

GENESIS 5

Genesis 5:1–32

The Genealogy from Adam to Noah

These studies are designed for believers in Jesus Christ only. If you have exercised faith in Christ, then you are in the right place. If you have not, then you need to heed the words of our Lord, Who said, “For God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten [or, uniquely-born] Son, so that every [one] believing [or, trusting] in Him shall not perish, but shall have eternal life! For God did not send His Son into the world so that He should judge the world, but so that the world shall be saved through Him. The one believing [or, trusting] in Him is not judged, but the one not believing has already been judged, because he has not believed in the Name of the only-begotten [or, uniquely-born] Son of God.” (John 3:16–18). “I am the Way and the Truth and the Life! No one comes to the Father except through [or, by means of] Me!” (John 14:6).

Every study of the Word of God ought to be preceded by a naming of your sins to God. This restores you to fellowship with God (1John 1:8–10). If there are people around, you would name these sins silently. If there is no one around, then it does not matter if you name them silently or whether you speak aloud.

This is a collection of the weekly lessons of Genesis (HTML) (PDF) interspersed with the complete word-by-word exegesis of this chapter from the Hebrew with some information from Genesis (HTML) (PDF) thrown in. Furthermore, the examination of this chapter has been expanded with additional commentary as well. However, much of this material was thrown together without careful editing. Therefore, from time to time, there will be concepts and exegetical material which will be repeated, because there was no overall editing done once all of this material was combined. At some point in the future, I need to go back and edit this material and consider other source material as well. Links to the word-by-word, verse-by-verse studies of Genesis (HTML) (PDF).

One more thing: it is not necessary that you read the grey Hebrew exegesis tables. They are set apart from the rest of the study so that you can easily skip over them.¹ However, if you ever doubt a translation of a phrase or a verse, these translation tables will tell you exactly where that translation came from.

This should be the most extensive examination of Gen. 5 available, where you will be able to see every word of the original text.

Many who read and study this chapter are 1st or 2nd generation students of R. B. Thieme, Jr., so that much of this vocabulary is second nature. One of Bob's contributions to theology is a fresh vocabulary along with a number of concepts which are theologically new or reworked, yet still orthodox. Therefore, if you are unfamiliar with his work, the definitions below will help you to fully understand all that is being said. Also, I have developed a few new terms and concepts which require definition as well.

In addition, there are other more traditional yet technical theological terms which will be used and therefore defined as well.

Sometimes the terms in the exegesis of this chapter are simply alluded to, without any in-depth explanation of them. Sometimes, these terms are explained in detail and illustrated. A collection of all these terms is found here: (HTML) (PDF) (WPD).

Definition of Terms

Rebound (Restoration to fellowship with God)

In the New Testament, this is naming your sins to God, so that you are both restored to temporal fellowship with God and are then filled with the Spirit of God. In the Old Testament, naming your sins to God would result in a restoration of fellowship and, in some cases, the empowerment of the Holy Spirit once again (the Holy Spirit was not given to all Old Testament believers). See the Doctrine of Rebound (HTML) (PDF) (WPD).

An Introduction to Genesis 5

Introduction: Gen. 5:1–2 sounds like the beginning of a new section, perhaps by a new author. We do not know when the oral tradition stopped and when these things began to be written down. There is no reason to think that man was not capable of writing until centuries later. Man has been a genius from the first man and has always been able to write likely from the time that this was needed, although we are not told specifically when.

There is no reason why we ought to assume that there was a need for writing at the very beginning—man was very verbal, but he was also probably very smart. It is likely that nearly every man remember everything that was said to him over the period of his life, and that he could recall whatever it was that he needed to recall. So, if Enosh and Kenan entered into some kind of an agreement, this contract did not need to be written down and notarized, because both men were there, and they both understood the terms of the contract, and each man heard and recalled what the terms of the contract were.

Gen. 5 is the first lengthy genealogy, and a chapter that most people skip over mentally if they read the Bible through in a one-year (or, whatever) program. The words of this chapter barely touch your brain, even if you try to read it, and they are gone 2 seconds after your eyes move on to the next verse. The logical question is, why Gen. 5?

Why Did God the Holy Spirit Record Genesis 5, a Genealogy?

1. Gen. 5 is a genealogy which follows Adam all the way to Noah. This is a very specific genealogy which cannot be swept under the carpet, theologically speaking. Nearly every man lives to be 900+ years old, and they are fathering children at age 100+. There are simply too many things which do not jive with today's world in it.
2. First of all, we need an unbroken line from Adam and Eve to Jesus the Messiah, and this is the first line which takes us to Noah. There must never be, at any time, a doubt that Jesus Christ was fully human.
3. This gives us a pre-deluvian time frame, which would suggest that the world was filled with people at the time of the flood. When Noah steps into the ark, there are not a few hundred thousands people, or a few million; there were probably a billion people alive at this time. This chapter carefully gives us a timeline and a way to estimate the population of pre-deluvian man.
4. Finally, the gospel message is hidden in this first genealogy; a testament to the power and intelligence of God the Holy Spirit, the Divine Author of Gen. 5.

Chapter Outline

Charts, Graphics and Short Doctrines

So far, we have seen two genealogies—Adam and Eve and their family has been mentioned; and then the Cainian line was followed for a few generations. It is reasonable to suppose that someone from that era, like Seth, for instance, or Enoch, of this chapter, recorded, in some way, the first 4 chapters of Genesis. It is my belief that men in that era had great memories, and memorizing the first 4 chapters of Genesis would have been nothing to them.

However, this chapter is very different from the previous genealogies. The genealogies of Gen. 4 could have been (mentally) recorded by a contemporary, looking forward. However, Gen. 5 had to be (mentally) recorded by Noah or Shem. Families in the United States, in the 1700's and 1800's typically had 10 or 12 children in a family, with 1 or 2 or 3 of them dying young. These were by men and women with a lifespan of maybe 50 or 60. The people of Gen. 5 lived for 900+ years. They were fertile probably from age 20 or so on up to age 500 at least. Therefore, their families must have been enormous. Having 50 children does not strike me as being something out of the ordinary, although there is certainly nothing recorded to indicate that. But, the point I am trying to make is, there is a particular line followed in this chapter, from Adam to Noah; if you follow the male line all the way back, then there is only one progression, one set of forefathers, and they are recorded here. Therefore, this chapter is likely recorded by Noah or Shem. Shem knew his father Noah. He knew his father's father Lamech. He knew the father of his father's father, who is Methuselah, and so on and so forth. Seth both knew these men personally and he knew the line by heart (along with the numbers), which is not terrifically difficult, particularly for men of that era.

In this chapter, we are going to follow the line of salvation from Adam to Noah, and you might be expecting that this would be the most boring thing to study ever—almost one entire chapter of a genealogy. Admittedly, there are going to be almost 20 verses which are very repetitive, but with different numbers and different people's names. However, you're going to be surprised as to what we'll find hidden in this chapter.

There are two things to catch the attention of the reader in this chapter of Genesis: the translation of Enoch (Gen. 5:24) and the meaning of Noah's name (Gen. 5:29). The latter item makes us stop and think—should we have been looking at all of these names and what they mean?

Sometime after Noah, man's lifespan and, logically, his mental capabilities also degenerated. There was probably a time when man knew, at the very least, the Scriptures of God. However, somewhere between Abraham (circa 2100 B.C.) and Moses (circa 1440 B.C.), I suspect, God's Word began to be written down (God tells Moses to write down the laws which He gives him in Ex. 34:27).

V. 25 carries with it an explanation as to why Seth was so important to Adam and Eve (Adam again knew his wife and she gave birth to a son. She called his name Seth, for [she said] "Elohim has appointed to me another offspring in place of Abel, for Cain killed him.").

Many believe that Moses collected this source material and edited it and recorded all of it under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit, meaning what Moses wrote down was definitely inspired. We do not have to imagine Moses as sitting down as a secretary under God the Holy Spirit and writing down word for word as the Holy Spirit dictated. There is no indication of that. In Exodus, when God delivers the law, that is a matter of strict dictation. The fact that Moses used source material or recorded and edited from source material does not make the writings less inspired. What Moses does in Deuteronomy is a dramatic change from the previous 3 books. He gives a sermon (actually several) tying everything together for the Jews under his command, preparing them to go into the Land of Promise without him, and, at some point, both he and his people recognize that he is actually speaking the Word of God, even though it is not being dictated to him.

Dr. Luke, in his introduction to his gospel, indicates that this account was a result of compiling information from several sources. His source material may or may not have been inspired, but the resultant gospel is inspired. That is, as we have studied, God the Holy Spirit recorded through Dr. Luke and through Moses exactly what He wanted to communicate to man, i.e., God's complete and connected thought to mankind in such a way that Dr. Luke's and Moses' personalities, vocabularies, experiences, trains of thought and literary styles remained intact, so that the very words of their writings were simultaneously the words of God and the words of man. On the other hand, this does not mean that the Law may be separated into four basic authors who wrote centuries after the exodus, each identified by the frequency of the use of the different names of God. That is liberal tripe which has been overlaid on the Scripture, taking into account several pre-existing prejudices of the creators of this theory. However, just because their concept is not Biblical, this does not mean that we must retreat to the other end of the spectrum and claim that Moses was the original author of all the portions of Genesis. He was a brilliant man whose authorship is, in Scripture, continually attributed to the latter four books of the law, but never to Genesis; although tradition places him as the author of Genesis. Therefore, he is likely the editor but not necessarily the original author of Genesis. In this chapter and in subsequent chapters, we will follow the line of Adam for at least one millennium and perhaps even two.

We have left Cain's generations with Lamech at this point and have picked up with Adam's progeny. . The human and legal line of Christ will proceed from Adam through Seth and through Noah into the post deluvian civilization. Why did we stop with Lamech's family? This could have been all of the information which was available to the author of that portion of the source material to Genesis and it may have been the last of the completely human posterity of Cain. But more of that in chapter 6.

It is possible to see the final couple verses of Gen. 4 as somewhat of a prologue to Gen. 5. They do seem to hang together as a whole. Sometimes, when examining verses word-by-word, we often lose the full impact of the overall passage sometimes. It is hard to see the forest through the trees. However, examine this as a prologue, a title and text:

[Prologue] And Adam had sexual relations with his wife again and she gave birth to a son, and he [Adam] named him Seth, for [she said] "God has decreed for me another son [seed] in place of Abel; for Cain murdered him." And to Seth—to him also—was born a son; and he called his name Enosh. Then he began [or, was compelled to begin] to call upon the name of the Lord.

This is the Book [or the Record] or the Generations of Adam:

In the day when God created man, He made him in the likeness of God. He created them male and female, and He blessed them and named them Man in the day when they were created. When Adam had lived 130 years, he became the father of one in his own likeness, according to his image, and he named him Seth. Then the days of Adam after he became the father of Seth were 800 years, and he had sons and daughters. So all the days that Adam lived were 930 years, and he died. And Seth lived 807 years after he became the father of Enosh, and he had sons and daughters. [Gen. 4:25–5:4]

It is often said that the Hebrew manner of writing back then was to take an incident and later embellish upon that incident by quoting a line or so from it. This is definitely a possibility. However, the other explanation is that when additional material was added on to God's word, the manner in which it was done was to often quote a previous verse or two to tie the writings together and then to title this section or to indicate that this is the beginning of a new section.

A problem one would think of at this point is writing material. We have been taught from early on that man began with crude pictographs scrawled on a cave wall and a written language evolved from that. It is certainly possible that some languages developed that way; however, recall that man in the antediluvian civilization was much more intelligent than we are and had likely developed a written language and writing materials and some sort of medium to write upon. Furthermore, this writing medium was not necessarily chunks of clay with indentations but something perhaps more sophisticated, but more perishable. This was likely carried upon the ark and added to as time went on. At some point in time, someone must have realized the significance of the writings and the fragility of the medium and copied it onto something which might last longer. All of this, needless to say, is pure conjecture, just as Mosaic authorship of the book of Genesis is pure conjecture. However, it is a reasonable theory.

This passage begins what sounds like a different author. This merely means that Moses possibly had several manuscripts to work from and chose to copy that which God the Holy Spirit led him to copy (it is my opinion that the books of Genesis and Job were actually in complete form before the time of Moses). Book is the Hebrew word ṣêpher (סֵפֶר) [pronounced SAY-fur], which means, letter, missive, book, document, writing, scroll, tablet, register. Strong's #5612 BDB #706. Generations, if you will recall, is the word later translated genesis in the Greek Septuagint. Man was quite interested in genealogy and sought to preserve it as best as he could. There are many people who today do the same thing with their own family line. The primary difference here is, Noah or Seth knew personally nearly every person named in Noah's genealogy (as we will see when we look at the ages of these men and when who sired when).

It is in this way that God the Holy Spirit preserves for us the line of the humanity of Jesus Christ. Here, man, in the singular, is said to be in the shadow-image or in the likeness of God, as it is written in Gen. 1:27. Paul quotes this in I Cor. 11:7 when dealing with the headware of the man and the woman and the authority of the man. The woman is never said to be created in God's image although the Bible uses the words created and built when it comes to the creation of the woman. Adam and man are the same word in vv. 1–5. Certainly, Moses, or whoever wrote the last copy of these verses became concerned over the time period named. Even the Bible says that man's life span, under normal circumstances, is approximately 70 years (Psalm 90:10). Here is where an author, concerned that no one would believe this, would have downplayed the ages, or eliminated them. However, the ages of man as he began were all close to the millennial mark. We do not know at what age man matured, married and had children. The youngest age named for siring a child was that of Enoch, at age 65 (v. 23). The oldest named is 500 years (v. 30). The child is not the first or the last born necessarily. Adam had other sons and daughters; otherwise, Cain would have been hard pressed to find a wife, as would Seth. Prior to Seth, there were certainly born to Adam and Eve at least two sons and a daughter (and likely far more). God the Holy Spirit records here only the line of Noah, through which will come the line of our Lord.

Ancient texts:

Note: I compare the Hebrew text to English translations of the Latin, Syriac and Greek texts, using the Douay-Rheims translation²; George Lamsa's translation, and Sir Lancelot Charles Lee Brenton's translation as revised and edited by Paul W. Esposito, respectively. I often update these texts with non-substantive changes (e.g., you for thou, etc.). I often use the text of the Complete Apostles' Bible instead of Brenton's translation, because it updates the English text.

The Septuagint was the earliest known translation of a book (circa 200 B.C.). Since this translation was made before the textual criticism had been developed into a science and because different books appear to be translated by different men, the Greek translation can sometimes be very uneven.

When there are serious disparities between my translation and Brenton's (or the text of the Complete Apostles' Bible), I look at the Greek text of the Septuagint (the LXX) to see if a substantive difference actually exists (and I reflect these changes in the English rendering of the Greek text). I use the Greek LXX with Strong's numbers and morphology available for e-sword. The only problem with this resource (which is a problem for similar resources) is, there is no way to further explore Greek verbs which are not found in the New Testament. Although I usually quote the Complete Apostles' Bible here, I have begun to make changes in the translation when their translation conflicts with the Greek and note what those changes are.

The Masoretic text is the Hebrew text with all of the vowels (vowel points) inserted (the original Hebrew text lacked vowels). We take the Masoretic text to be the text closest to the original. However, differences between the Masoretic text and the Greek, Latin and Syriac are worth noting and, once in a great while, represent a more accurate text possessed by those other ancient translators.

In general, the Latin text is an outstanding translation from the Hebrew text into Latin and very trustworthy (I say this as a non-Catholic). Unfortunately, I do not read Latin—apart from some very obvious words—so I am dependent upon the English translation of the Latin (principally, the Douay-Rheims translation).

Underlined words indicate differences in the text.

Bracketed portions of the Dead Sea Scrolls are words, letters and phrases lost in the scroll due to various types of damage. Underlined words or phrases are those in the Dead Sea Scrolls but not in the Masoretic text.

New American Bible	Generations: Adam to Noah. [5:1-32] The second of the five Priestly formulas in Part I ("This is the record of the descendants."; see 2:4a; 6:9; 10:1; 11:10) introduces the second of the three linear genealogies in Gn 1-11 (4:17-24 and 11:10-26). In each, a list of individuals (six in 4:17-24, ten in 5:1-32, or nine in 11:10-26) ends in three people who initiate action. Linear genealogies (father to son) in ancient societies had a communicative function, grounding the authority or claim of the last-named individual in the first-named. Here, the genealogy has a literary function as well, advancing the story by showing the expansion of the human race after Adam, as well as the transmission to his descendant Noah of the divine image given to Adam. Correcting the impression one might get from the genealogy in 4:17-24, this genealogy traces the line through Seth rather than through Cain. Most of the names in the series are the same as the names in Cain's line in 4:17-19 (Enosh, Enoch, Lamech) or spelled with variant spellings (Mahalalel, Jared, Methuselah). The genealogy itself and its placement before the flood shows the influence of ancient Mesopotamian literature, which contains lists of cities and kings before and after the flood. Before the flood, the ages of the kings ranged from 18,600 to 36,000 years, but after it were reduced to between 140 and 1,200 years. The biblical numbers are much smaller. There are some differences in the numbers in the Hebrew and Greek manuscripts. This is the record of the descendants of Adam. When God created human beings, he made them in the likeness of God;... Young's Updated LT This is an account of the births of Adam: In the day of God's preparing man, in the likeness of God He has made him.

The gist of this verse:

Genesis 5:1a

Hebrew/Pronunciation	Common English Meanings	Notes/Morphology	BDB and Strong's Numbers
zeh (זֶה) [pronounced zeh]	here, this, this one; thus; possibly another	masculine singular demonstrative adjective	Strong's #2088, 2090 (& 2063) BDB #260
ṣêpher (סֵפֶר) [pronounced SAY-fur]	letter, missive, book, document, writing, scroll, tablet, register	masculine singular construct	Strong's #5612 BDB #706
tôwlêdôth (תּוֹלְדוֹת) [pronounced tohl ^e -DOTH]	generations, results, proceedings, genealogies, history, course of history; origin; families; races	feminine plural construct	Strong's #8435 BDB #410
ʾâdâm (אָדָם) [pronounced aw-DAWM]	a man, a human being, mankind; transliterated Adam	masculine singular noun	Strong's #120 & #121 BDB #9

ʾÂdâm (אָדָם) [pronounced aw-DAWM], without a definite article, is also used as a proper noun, for the first man and for a city. Strong's #121 BDB #9.

Translation: This [is] the scroll [or, record] of the generations of Adam... It appears that this is a second section of Genesis. I believe that this is a different writer, not because of the different style or material, but simply because of this beginning. We are going to examine the generations or the genealogy of Adam. However, these are not the only people to be born from Adam. This is a particular line which leads us in a particular direction. There are many genealogies in the Old Testament, but there is only one set which takes us from Adam to the last person in the Old Testament who is the father of Mary, the mother of the humanity of Jesus Christ.

This genealogy will be picked up by both Matthew and Luke, but with the slight difference that Matthew will begin with Abraham (who is at the end of the next genealogy) and Luke will go all the way to this genealogy. Matthew will follow out the legal line of Jesus Christ (the line which leads to Joseph, His legal father) (Matt. 1:1–16). Luke will follow out the line of man, which begins here at Adam and runs all the way to Mary (Luke 3:23–38).

Genesis 5:1b

Hebrew/Pronunciation	Common English Meanings	Notes/Morphology	BDB and Strong's Numbers
bê (בְּ) [pronounced b ^{eh}]	in, into, through; at, by, near, on, upon; with, before, against; by means of; among; within	a preposition of proximity	No Strong's # BDB #88
yôwm (יוֹם) [pronounced yohm]	day; time; today (with a definite article)	masculine singular noun with the definite article	Strong's #3117 BDB #398

Together, these are literally translated in the day; however, we may understand it to mean in that day; in this very day; at once, presently; lately; by day; in the daytime; throughout the day; in this day, at this [that] time; now; before that. These interpretations often depend upon when the action of the verb takes place.

When followed by an infinitive, this can be rendered in the day in which, in the day when, in the day that; when.

The construct phrase is literally in days of; and this phrase is properly rendered in the days of, during the time of, at the time of. The concept here refers to a particular time.

Genesis 5:1b

Hebrew/Pronunciation	Common English Meanings	Notes/Morphology	BDB and Strong's Numbers
bârâ' (בָּרָא) [pronounced baw-RAWH]	to create; to create something from energy [or from the immaterial]; to create that which is immaterial; to produce; to shape, to fashion	Qal infinitive construct	Strong's #1254 BDB #135
ʿĒlōhîym (אֱלֹהִים) [pronounced el-o-HEEM]	God; gods, foreign gods, god; rulers, judges; superhuman ones, angels; transliterated Elohim	masculine plural noun	Strong's #430 BDB #43
ʾādām (אָדָם) [pronounced aw-DAWM]	a man, a human being, mankind; transliterated Adam	masculine singular noun	Strong's #120 & #121 BDB #9

ʾĀdām (אָדָם) [pronounced aw-DAWM], without a definite article, is also used as a proper noun, for the first man and for a city. Strong's #121 BDB #9.

Translation: ...in the day when Elohim created Adam:... This means that we are going back all the way to Adam in this genealogy. This genealogy is going to take us from Adam to Noah and Noah's three sons.

God gave life to Adam; God first built Adam from the chemicals of the ground and then God breathed life into Adam; the latter part of Adam's creation is in view here. There was no life; there was no soul; and then, there was life and there was a soul.

Genesis 5:1c

Hebrew/Pronunciation	Common English Meanings	Notes/Morphology	BDB and Strong's Numbers
bē (בְּ) [pronounced b ^{eh}]	in, into, through; at, by, near, on, upon; with, before, against; by means of; among; within	a preposition of proximity	No Strong's # BDB #88
dēmûwth (דְּמוּת) [pronounced dehm-OOth]	likeness, [shadow] image, similitude; model, pattern; [and, later] appearance [of something resembling something]	feminine singular construct	Strong's #1823 BDB #198
ʿĒlōhîym (אֱלֹהִים) [pronounced el-o-HEEM]	God; gods, foreign gods, god; rulers, judges; superhuman ones, angels; transliterated Elohim	masculine plural noun	Strong's #430 BDB #43
ʿāsâh (עָשָׂה) [pronounced gaw-SAWH]	to do, to make, to construct, to fashion, to form, to prepare, to manufacture	3 rd person masculine singular, Qal perfect with the 3 rd person masculine singular suffix	Strong's #6213 BDB #793

Translation: ...in the shadow image of Elohim, He made him;... Here the verb means to do, to make, to construct, to prepare, to fashion, to manufacture. God constructed man; God fashioned man; God took the chemicals of the earth and manufactured man. However, here, we are speaking of a shadow image, so God took Adam's life and manufactured it into a shadow image of God. God is sovereignty; man has self-determination (volition). God is omniscient, man has mentality. God is able to communicate to His creatures; man has vocabulary.

This is the second time that we have a phrase similar to This is the book of the generations of... (the first was in Gen. 2:4—it read these are the generations of). That was the account of the creation of the heavens and the earth; this lists those descended from Adam.

Men have long supposed that Genesis was handed down verbally until man reached a point at which he could write it down. I am fine with that, and we have come to that point. At the end of the previous chapter, we read it was begun to call upon the name of Jehovah. In this chapter, we began with this [is] followed by the Hebrew word for book, missive, document, legal document, or scroll. The noun found here refers to something which is written down. I believe that these two things are tied together. We may look upon Gen. 4:26 as being in a different chapter from Gen. 5:1, but there were no chapters or verses in the original writings. We go directly from then it was begun to call upon the name of Jehovah to this is the book of the generations of Adam... As soon as man was able to record human history, God no longer came to man regularly in what appears to be a daily fellowship and teaching.

The environment of the earth and its population is much different than we have been led to believe. Man was more intelligent, they lived longer, and we know that he had developed tools, musical instruments, houses and cities early on. I would submit to you that mankind, at this point in time, was very technologically advanced, and that the concept of turning their language into the written word was not some giant leap.

Gen 5:1 This is the book of the generations of Adam: In the day that God created man. He made him in the likeness of God.

One could make the argument that these are the first words of the Bible, so to speak. What came before was later added, or, what came before was in a separate accent, passed on verbally. In any case, someone recognized that it would be a good idea to write these things down. What will follow will be the 10 generations of Adam to Noah. We do not know if Enosh began to write this down or Adam; and that each generation added a few verses; or if Noah wrote down this entire genealogy, seeing that the end of man, apart from him and his family, was near. In any case, bear in mind that, for a period of time, almost all of these men in this chapter were alive at the same time on this earth.

We find a similar introductory statement (These are the generations of...) in Gen. 2:4 5:1 6:9 10:1, 32 11:10, 27 25:12, 19 36:1, 9 37:2. Pastor Robbie Dean calls these the toledoth's, because the Hebrew word here is: tôwlêdôth (תולדות) [pronounced toh^l-DOHTH], which means generations, results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history. Most of the time that we find this statement, what follows is a genealogy. It may be a long or a short genealogy. The use of this word also appear to be a marker throughout the book of Genesis, and it may even point to a new author each time, or a new source.

I believe that it will be worth our while to look ahead, gather up each time that we find the words, these are the generations of, and to see what follows:

Scripture	Immediate Context	What Follows
Gen 2:4 These are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of the heavens and the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens.	The environment into which Adam was brought; Adam's first day, including the building of the woman.	The fall of man, Cain and Abel, the genealogy of Cain, the birth of Seth.
Because there is no time in the Hebrew tense system, one could reasonably argue that Gen. 2:4 looked backward to what God had created and restored in the previous 1½ chapters.
Gen 5:1 This is the book of the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of Adam. When God created man, he made him in the likeness of God.	The line of Adam through Seth down to Noah. This is a long genealogy (10 generations) in which lifespans are given.	The demonic corruption of man.
This is the only time that we have the words the book of . I submit to you that, at this point, information began to be written down.
Gen 6:9 These are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of Noah. Noah was a righteous man, blameless in his generation. Noah walked with God.	Noah and his immediate family living in world where mankind had been corrupted.	The flood and Noah's family after the flood.
Gen 10:1 These are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of the sons of Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth. Sons were born to them after the flood.	The sons and grandsons of Japheth, Ham and Shem (who are the sons of Noah). This chapter gives us the early nations of the earth.	The Tower of Babel.
This is one of the few times a family list is concluded with a similar phrase. Gen 10:32 These are the families of the sons of Noah, according to their genealogies, in their nations, and from these the nations spread abroad on the earth after the flood. However, this conclusion also gives credence to the hypothesis that Gen. 2:4 also looked backward.
Gen 11:10 These are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of Shem. When Shem was 100 years old, he fathered Arpachshad two years after the flood.	The line of Shem down to Abraham. This is a long genealogy where lifespans are given.	The next genealogy.
Gen 11:27 Now these are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of Terah. Terah fathered Abram, Nahor, and Haran; and Haran fathered Lot.	Terah, his sons (which include Abram) and Abram's wife Sarai.	The lives of Abram (Abraham) and Isaac, down to the death of Abraham, including God's promise to Abram, the conflict between Sarai and Hagar, Abram's nephew Lot, the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, the birth of Isaac, the offering of Isaac, the death of Sarah (Sarai), Isaac's wife, and Abraham's death.

Although the two genealogies above seem to belong together, the second one leads into the great narrative of Abraham’s life, which is fairly extensive.
Gen 25:12 These are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of Ishmael, Abraham's son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah's servant, bore to Abraham.	The sons of Ishmael. This is a line which ends.	Nothing.
Gen 25:19 These are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of Isaac, Abraham's son: Abraham fathered Isaac	Isaac and his wife with twin sons to be born (Esau and Jacob).	Some of Isaac’s life; and much of Jacob’s life, including the treachery of his own sons.
Gen 36:1 These are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of Esau (that is, Edom).	Esau’s wives and sons. This is a line which ends.	Nothing.
Gen 36:9 These are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of Esau the father of the Edomites in the hill country of Seir.	Several generations of Esau are chronicled. This is a long genealogy. This is a line which ends.	Nothing.
The two genealogies above appear to fit together, and neither of them actually leads into any sort of a narrative. This is a literary way of indicating that these lines led nowhere; that is, these are lines of the unsaved (quite obviously the line of Esau continued, as we find the Edomites for thousands of years).
Gen 37:2 These are the generations [results, proceedings, genealogies, course of history] of Jacob. Joseph, being seventeen years old, was pasturing the flock with his brothers. He was a boy with the sons of Bilhah and Zilpah, his father's wives. And Joseph brought a bad report of them to their father.	Joseph and the favoritism of his father and the jealousy of his brothers. The immediate context lists no specific family lines, and only Reuben and Judah are mentioned by name as Joseph’s brothers. The overall focus of the final 14 chapters of Genesis is Joseph on the one hand, and Jacob and Joseph’s brothers on the other.	We follow two parallel narratives: (1) Joseph being sold into slavery by his brothers and his eventual life in Egypt; and (2) that of his father Jacob and his brothers. These two narratives will merge when Jacob’s family has to go to Egypt for additional food. Jacob’s family then moves to Egypt.
Obviously, most of the time, this phrase (These are the generations of...) introduces either list of sons and sometimes grandsons; or it introduces a genealogical line. In most cases, this phrase marks the beginning of a new set of narratives.
You will note, at first, this phrase is not standardized, which we would expect from different authors. However, it quickly becomes standardized, which is something we would expect from subsequent authors.
Although the line of promise and the line of fallen men are both followed, only the line of promise (Adam to Noah to Shem to Abram to Jacob) leads anywhere. The line of fallen man always goes to an abrupt stop, and is never picked up again. This does not mean that the line dies out; it means that line goes nowhere ; not continuing a line of unbelievers indicates that it is cut off, spiritually speaking.

Gen 5:1 This is the book of the generations of Adam: In the day that God created man. He made him in the likeness of God.

Adam, Created in the Likeness of God
Scripture	Text/Commentary
Gen 1:26 And God said, Let Us make man in Our image, after Our likeness . And let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the heavens, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over all the creepers creeping on the earth.	Man is made in the image and likeness of the Godhead. Man had shadow qualities of God and man was made triune (body, soul and spirit), just as God is triune. God has sovereignty, man has free will; God has omniscience, man has mentality; etc.
Gen 5:1 This is the book of the generations of Adam. In the day that God created man, He made him in the likeness of God.	When man decided to chronicle his own existence, it is recognized immediately that he was made by God in the likeness of God.
Gen 5:3 And Adam lived one hundred and thirty years and fathered a son in his own likeness , after his own image. And he called his name Seth.	Seth was born in the likeness and image of Adam, setting up a parallel relationship: God and man; man and his son. This word is not repeated for each son born. In order to maintain the parallel, we have just one son here as God has One Son.
This word is not used until thousands of years later by some of the prophets.
In case you were wondering, the Hebrew word is d ^e mûwth (דְּמוּת) [pronounced dehm-OOTH], which means likeness, [shadow] image, similitude; model, pattern; [and, later] appearance [of something resembling something] . Strong's #1823 BDB #198.

...male and female, He created them. And so He blesses them and so He calls their name Adam in a day of their being created.	Genesis 5:2	...He created them male and female. He then blessed them and called their name man in the day of their being created.
...He created them male and female. God then blessed them, calling them by the name Adam when He created them (because they were made from the materials of the soil).

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	Male and female He created them, and blessed them in the name of His Word; and He called their name Man in the day they were created.
-------------------	---

Latin Vulgate	He created them male and female; and blessed them: and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created.
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	...male and female, He created them. And so He blesses them and so He calls their name Adam in a day of their being created.
Peshitta (Syriac)	Male and female he created them; and God blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created.
Septuagint (Greek)	Male and female He made them, and blessed them; and He called his name Adam, in the day in which He made them.

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

Common English Bible	...and created them male and female. He blessed them and called them humanity[a] on the day they were created.
Easy-to-Read Version	God made them male and female. And on the same day he made them, God blessed them and named them "Adam." Adam This name means "man" or "people." It is like the word meaning "earth" or "red clay."
Good News Bible (TEV)	He created them male and female, blessed them, and named them "Human Beings.")
The Message	He created both male and female and blessed them, the whole human race.
New Berkeley Version	He created them male and female. He blessed them and called the human at the time of their creation [as distinguished from the animals]..
New Life Bible	He made them male and female, and brought good to them. And He gave them the name Man when they were made.
New Living Translation	He created them male and female, and he blessed them and called them "human."

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible	He made both the male and the female and blest them. And in the day that He made them, He called his name Adam.
Ancient Roots Translinear	...and created male and female. He blessed them, and called Adam's name in the day of the creating.
God's Word ™	He created them male and female. He blessed them and called them humans when he created them.
New Jerusalem Bible	Male and female he created them. He blessed them and gave them the name Man, when they were created.
New Simplified Bible	He created them male and female and blessed them. When they were created, he called them Mankind.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Bible in Basic English	Male and female he made them, naming them Man, and giving them his blessing on the day when they were made.
Complete Jewish Bible	...he created them male and female; he blessed them and called them Adam [humankind, man] on the day they were created.
Ferar-Fenton Bible	...constituting them male and female, giving them His blessing and naming them by the name of Mankind, upon the day of their creation.
New Advent Bible	He created them male and female; when they were created, he blessed them and named them "humankind [The Hebrew word used here is אָדָם ('adam)]."

n ^o qêbâh (נִקְבָּה) [pronounced n ^o -kay ^o -AW]	female in contrast to male; woman, female [woman, child animal]	feminine singular noun:	female [woman, child animal]
bârâ' (בָּרָא) [pronounced baw-RAWH]	to create; to create something from energy [or from the immaterial]; to create that which is immaterial; to produce; to shape, to fashion	3 rd person masculine singular, Qal perfect with the 3 rd person masculine plural suffix	Strong's #1254 BDB #135

Translation: ...He created them male and female. The first part of v. 2 is actually a continuation of v. 1. We know this because v. 2b picks up with the wâw consecutive followed by an imperfect verb, which sets up a series of acts which are laid out in a chronological order. Therefore, this ought to read: This [is] the scroll of the generations of Adam in the day when Elohim created Adam: in the shadow image of Elohim, He made him; He created them male and female. We have the title of the book, followed by an aside, which is a part of the title of the book. The title of the book is, "This is the record of the genealogy of Adam in the day that Elohim created him: in the shadow image of Elohim, He made him; He created them male and female." God describes more about His creation of man: man was created in God's shadow image and man was first created male and female.

'êth (אֵת) [pronounced ayth]	untranslated mark of a direct object; occasionally to, toward	affixed to a 3 rd person masculine plural suffix	Strong's #853 BDB #84

Translation: He then blessed them... Then we have two wâw consecutives followed by two imperfect verbs, which indicates a logical or chronological series of events. Man was created and then God blessed man. And God said, Let Us make man in Our image, after Our likeness. And let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the heavens, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over all the creepers creeping on the earth. And God created man in His image; in the image of God He created him. He created them male and female. And God blessed them (Gen. 1:26–28a; MKJV). So the writer of Gen. 5 is going back and summing up the creation of man in a couple of sentences.

'âdâm (אָדָם) [pronounced aw-DAWM]	a man, a human being, mankind; transliterated Adam	masculine singular noun	Strong's #120 & #121 BDB #9

'Âdâm (אָדָם) [pronounced aw-DAWM], without a definite article, is also used as a proper noun, for the first man and for a city. Strong's #121 BDB #9.

Translation: ...and called their name man... Interestingly enough, we do not find that God named man back in Gen. 1 or 2; this is the first allusion to God naming man. God named man after the soil from which man was taken. The word for soil is 'âdâmâh (אֲדָמָה) [pronounced uh-daw-MAWH]. It means ground, soil, dirt, earth, tillable earth, land, surface of the earth. Strong's #127 BDB #9. Quite obviously, the word for man and soil are very similar words. Adam is 'âdâm (אָדָם) [pronounced aw-DAWM], which means a man, a human being, mankind, Adam. It can be the proper name for Adam, another name for man or a name for the human race, e.g., human being, mankind. Strong's #120 BDB #9. The writer doubles-down on what was once seen to be as a silly notion by some: man made out of the ground? Ridiculous! However, we have discovered that the elements found in the soil could be combined in order to form the body of man. But God first had to breathe life into this clay, then God could bless and name him.

So far, the words to call and name are found in Gen. 2, 3, 4 and 5 (call is also found in Gen. 1). This is an important concept, calling things by a specific name. This is the basis of having a vocabulary, and a vocabulary is necessary for thought. For those of us who enjoyed a Tarzan movie early on a Saturday morning, we recall one of the first things which is established is, "Me Tarzan; you Jane." When I studied mathematics, one of the most important aspects was assigning a name to various concepts, like a vector bundle or fuzzy sets.³ In theology, it is equally important to develop concepts and to name those concepts.

One of the many things that R. B. Thieme, Jr. ought to be given credit for is the establishment of a new Christian vocabulary which also advanced theology and the mechanics of the Christian life.

³ Actually, I don't know what those things are; I came across them when in the mathematics section of my universities library.

These interpretations often depend upon when the action of the verb takes place.

bârâ' (אָרַב) [pronounced baw-RAWH]	to be created [spoken of heaven and earth; of birth; of something new]; of miracles; to be born	Niphal infinitive construct, with the 3 rd person masculine plural suffix	Strong's #1254 BDB #135

Translation: ...in the day of their being created. Let's pull the first two verses together: This [is] the scroll [or, record] of the genealogy of Adam in the day when Elohim created Adam: in the shadow image of Elohim, He made him; He created them male and female. He then blessed them and called their name man in the day of their being created. This final phrase simply gives this a time frame; God named man in the day that He was created, even though we are only finding out about this in Gen. 5.

One of the lessons that we should get from this is, God does not reveal everything in the first part of the narrative. From time to time, there are details which are filled in at a later date. We saw this back in Gen. 4, where Cain kills Abel, but we do not find out until the New Testament how he did this (we a sacrificial knife).

Gen 5:2 He [God] created them male and female, and blessed them, and called their name Adam [= man, mankind] in the day when they were created.

You will recall that I have previously suggested that only Adam was created on the 6th day, but he was created in such a way as to be divisible later, when God took his rib and made of this rib, Eve (which was a cloning, although God changed a chromosome). This verse does not really support or contradict that notion. Adam simply means man, human being, mankind (much more frequently intended sense in OT); Adam, first man. However, just so I am being clear, I have not been persuaded fully that Eve was made after the 6th day of restoration or on the 6th day of restoration. I realize that one could take this same verse and argue for Adam and Eve being created as separate persons on this 6th day of restoration as well.

As we have studied previously, the word day in the Hebrew, can simply refer to a period of time, which may be more or less than 24 hours. Therefore, the phrase in the day when they were created does not necessarily refer to a 24-hour period of time.

Also, has been pointed out previously, we do not have to take a cell of every type in order to clone animal (that is, we do not have to take blood cells, skin cells, bone cells, etc.). So, the idea that God is able to take Adam's rib and make from that Eve, is not scientifically unsound. The fact that Adam's sons were all born with the correct number of ribs is also genetically sound (for instance, if you cut off your finger and then sire a child, that child will be born with 10 fingers).

At this point, we begin the line of Adam and this will take us all of the way to Noah. In this genealogy, we will actually find out how long the antediluvian age was (ante = before; diluvian = deluge, flood).

As mentioned before, it is not clear to me whether Adam's age was calculated from his creation or from his fall. However, given that his age is not particularly long, I would lean toward the years given in this chapter as those applicable to Adam as a fallen man. In the Garden of Eden, there was the Tree of Life. Apparently that tree, combined with the way our bodies were designed, made man's life virtually everlasting.

The Life of Adam

And so lives Adam thirty and one hundred a year. And so he fathers in his likeness as his image. And so he calls his name Seth.

Genesis
5:3

Adam lived 130 years and fathered [a son] in his likeness [and] according to his image. He calls his name Seth.

After living 130 years, Adam fathered another son in his likeness who looked like him, which son he named Seth.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	And Adam lived a hundred and thirty years, and begat Sheth, who had the likeness of his image and of his similitude: for before had Hava born Kain, who was not like to him; and Habel was killed by his hand. And Kain was cast out; neither is his seed genealogized in the book of the genealogy of Adam. But afterwards there was born one like him, and he called his name Sheth.
Latin Vulgate	And Adam lived a hundred and thirty years, and begot a son to his own image and likeness, and called his name Seth.
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	And so lives Adam thirty and one hundred a year. And so he fathers in his likeness as his image. And so he calls his name Seth.
Peshitta (Syriac)	And Adam lived a hundred and thirty years, and begot a son in his own likeness, after his image; and called his name Seth.
Septuagint (Greek)	And Adam lived two hundred and thirty years, and begot [a son] after his own form, and after his own image, and he called his name Seth.

Syndein	And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years, and he caused to bring forth {yalad} . . . one in his own likeness {essence plus Adam's sin - source of the Old Sin Nature}, {a son} after his image {demuth - emphasizes invisible essence from God}; and called his name Sheth/Seth. {Note: Yalad is the Hebrew word for giving birth. It is in the hiphil stem, which is the causative stem in the Hebrew. So, Adam did not have the baby himself, he caused the baby to be born.} {Note: This verse is referring to the fact that the original sin passes from the father to the child - NOT from the mother to the child. Therefore when the 'lamb without spot' came into the world as a perfect sacrifice, He had to be born of a virgin - with no 'sin of the father' at the point of birth. Then to go to the cross perfect, He had to also live a sinless life, which He, the second Adam - the Lord Jesus Christ - did.} {Note: WE are born in the image of Adam NOT the image of God. Adam sinned and now has an Old Sin Nature that is passed on to the child. The child is born without a spiritual relationship with God. Actually though this is the good news! Condemnation has to come before forgiveness (ever forgive someone BEFORE they did something to you?). So, the baby who dies before reaching the point of God consciousness is already condemned and God forgives him and he goes to heaven. If the child reaches the point of God consciousness, then he is IN the angelic conflict - where the battlefield is free will - he will have positive volition and choose for God or have negative volition and deny God.}.

The Greek has 230 years.

Translation: Adam lived 130 years and fathered [a son]... There are many things that we do not know about Adam's age; did it begin the day he sinned or the day that God made him? I would guess that it is the latter. So, we have some period of time in the garden where it is just Adam and the woman—perhaps they are there together for 100 years and Adam loves his job and he loves his woman. However, at some point, Adam sinned, and he and the woman were banished from the garden.

In the next verse, we will find out that Adam had other sons and daughters, none of whom are named. One would have been Cain's wife and one would be the wife of Seth. However, we do not know anything more than this. The way I read the Bible is, Cain was the first male born, Abel the second, and Seth the third. However, there would have been other girls born to Adam and Eve during this time period. Gen. 4:1–2 (MKJV) reads: And Adam knew Eve his wife. And she conceived and bore Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from Jehovah. And she bore again, his brother Abel. And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground. This certainly indicates the order of their birth and suggests, but does not outright state, that Cain is the firstborn. Gen. 4:24 (MKJV) adds: And Adam knew his wife again. And she bore a son, and called his name Seth. For she said, God has appointed me another seed instead of Abel, because Cain killed him. The fact that Cain is said to have a wife (Gen. 4:17) and that Adam and the woman have other children (Gen. 5:4) suggests that, at some point in between, there were females born to Adam and the woman. In between Cain and Abel, there could have been another male-child; and this would not impact the second verse cited; but it simply makes more sense that Eve bore Cain, Abel and then Seth, with some female children born in between.

There is a clear recognition of the authority of the male in the way these verses are phrased. Furthermore, the expected Seed of the Woman is expected to be a male. Adam and the woman simply did not realize that would not occur for another 3000–4000 years.

As noted in the Hebrew exegesis, the Greek says that Adam is 230; the Hebrew, Latin and Syriac have him at 130 years old.

We are not really given any way of determining how often Adam and the woman had sex or how often they had children. It would be my guess that they would easily produce children, as their bodies would function better than our bodies today. However, it is not clear how often they would have sex; and, as any woman can tell us, after having a child, sex may not be the first thing on her mind.

And so are days of Adam after his fathering Seth eight hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters.

Genesis
5:4

Adam's days after his fathering Seth were 800 years. He also fathered [other] sons and daughters.

Vv. 3–5 give us a 3-verse pattern which will be repeated throughout the remainder of this chapter: Adam lived 130 years and fathered [a son] in his likeness [and] according to his image. He calls his name Seth. Adam’s days after his fathering Seth were 800 years. He also fathered [other] sons and daughters. And so are all the days of Adam, who lived 930 years, and then he died. If I was to do this exegesis all over again, I probably would have grouped these sets of 3 verses.

Translation: ...he fathered Enosh. Enosh means a man, a mortal, mortal man; fallen (or feeble) man. It was clear to Seth that man was fallen. It is reasonable that Adam told Seth all that had occurred prior to his birth.

Gen 5:3–6 And Adam lived 130 years and fathered a son in his own likeness, according to his image, and called his name Seth. And the days of Adam after he fathered Seth were 800 years. And he fathered sons and daughters. And all the days that Adam lived were 930 years. Then he died. And Seth lived 105 years, and then he fathered Enos.

We are given 3 stats here for each person: how old each person is when they father a son; how much longer they live after that; and their age at death is given. The son whose name is given is not necessarily the firstborn. This sets up a pattern: from time to time, we will follow a specific line. We will follow the line of Adam all the way to Jesus Christ. Although this will be given in full in Luke 3, Luke bases this line will upon several genealogical lines which are noted throughout the Bible as well as upon some extra-Biblical resources.

This is a very unusual thing to be found in a book written by dozens of men over several millennia. How do you follow out a line—and why would you follow out a particular line—for hundreds of years, each writer of Scripture knowing exactly which child to choose. These families might have 3 or 4 children and they may have 9 or 10. Every writer of Scripture who records a genealogy knows the pertinent line to follow. This is not the only line which is followed in the Bible, but it is the only line which is followed from first to last, and then stopped. Once we come to Jesus Christ, no holy book continues to follow out the genealogy of, for instance, His half-brothers and half-sisters; nor is the line of Peter followed out. Somehow, 9 or 10 writers of Scripture, separated in time by hundreds of years, determined that there was a particular genealogical line to be followed, and somehow, they chose to record that correct line again and again, for 77 generations. And the Apostles which follow these writers of Scripture know that there are no other lines of any importance. Matthew records the genealogy of Joseph and Luke records the genealogy of Mary, going all the way back to Adam, who is called the son of God (Luke 3:38). But no one makes any attempt to record anyone else's complete line because there is no reason to. In the end, Luke takes us from the first Adam to the last Adam (Luke 3:23–38 1Cor. 15:45) and there is no reason to go any further.

And so lives Seth after his siring of Enosh seven years and eight hundreds a year. And so he sires sons and daughters.

Translation: Seth lived 807 years after fathering Enosh. In all of these lines, it appears as if it is the firstborn who is named. However, it is never stated in that way, suggesting that we are following a particular line, which may include the firstborn.

To be clear, there is not one person necessarily, each generation, recorded who the next “in line” will be. As I have suggested before, every person probably had a memory much better than ours. Not only did each man learn his own line from Adam, but he knew his father, grandfather, great grandfather, great great grandfather, and great great great grandfather (and more). If a son in this line is born about every 100 years, and most people live to age 900 or so, then each man knew his line personally back 7 or 8 generations (by contrast, we generally know our lines going back 2 generations and sometimes 3). So, I can put a face on my father and grandfathers. I may have met a great grandfather, but I certainly could not put a face on them if I had. For the first millennium, every man could tick off his forefathers all the way back to Adam, and he probably knew what most of them looked like. Given the way that these are recorded, the great X grandfathers would be known in a line from Adam to Charlie Brown, just as they are given here. So, 8 generations back, Charlie Brown might know all of his 255 forefathers—even personally—but the line he knew consisted of just however many took him back to Adam.

I am setting you up for this proposition: Noah or one of his sons (Shem) recorded this information. Noah (or Shem) knew his line back to Adam, so this is the line which is recorded here. So the Bible tends to note men of significance, and, if they are in the line of Jesus, their lineage is also noted. In other words, no one had to figure out, in each generation, which is the right person to watch. A man might have 20 sons; he might have 40 sons. No one had to stop and figure out which son was in the line of Jesus. In fact, some did not even realize that is what was going on, that it is the line of Jesus that was being followed out. Someone, like Noah, is a man of significance (a man of doctrine; a man under the authority of God); and that man knew his lineage and he recorded it. Some may have realized that they were following out the Seed of the Woman, which would culminate in the One Who would crush the serpent's head. Others may have simply recorded the forefathers as a matter of convention. However, God the Holy Spirit knew what was going on and recorded the particular lines so that we could go from Adam all the way to Jesus the Messiah.

Here is one of the many problems with Mormonism: Joseph Smith saw all of the Old Testament genealogies (and 2 from the New Testament) and figured out that, “Hey, they must be something magic or cool in recording a genealogy.” And so, Smith recorded a bunch of genealogies in the Book of Mormon because that is what the Bible did (he also record the Book of Mormon in Old English, because that is what the Bible did as well⁴). But various genealogical lines are not holy or spiritual or cool; they are just a line of relatives that take you from Charlie Brown to Joseph Smith. I am personally interested in my own line; but there is nothing spiritual about that. So, recording this information would be for my benefit, but there would be no spiritual benefit to others. This is why genealogies stopped with Jesus the Messiah. That genealogy was significant; that genealogy was spiritual, if you will. But subsequent genealogies mean absolutely nothing, except to the person doing the research on his own ancestors.

Genesis 5:7b

Translation: He also fathered [other] sons and daughters. Again, although it does not specifically say that Enosh is his firstborn, he possibly was and maybe he wasn't. At this point in time, Noah or Seth is recording this information (they either wrote this all down or they committed it to memory).

The Life of Enosh

And so lives Enosh ninety a year; and so he fathers Kenan. Genesis 5:9 When Enosh had lived 90 years, he fathered Kenan.

After Enosh had lived 90 years, he fathered Kenan.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	And Enosh lived ninety years, and begat Kenan.
Latin Vulgate	And Enos lived ninety years, and begot Cainan.
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	And so lives Enosh ninety a year; and so he fathers Kenan.
Peshitta (Syriac)	And Enosh lived ninety years, and begot Cainan.

Septuagint (Greek) And Enosh lived one hundred and ninety years, and begot Cainan.

Significant differences:

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

Contemporary English V.	When Enosh was ninety, he had a son named Kenan.
Easy English	When Enosh had lived for 90 years, he became Kenan's father.

The Life of Kenan

And so lives Kenan seventy a year and so he fathers Mahalalel. And so lives Kenan after his fathering Mahalalel forty a year and eight hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Kenan ten years and nine hundreds a year. And so he dies.

Genesis
5:12–14

Kenan lived 70 years when he fathered Mahalalel. After fathering Mahalalel, Kenan lived 840 years. He also fathered [other] sons and daughters. All the days of [the life of] Kenan were 910 years when he died.

Kenan lived 70 years when he fathered Mahalael. After fathering Mahalalel, Kenan lived an additional 840 years. He also fathered other sons and daughters. He lived for 910 years and then died.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Although the genealogies throughout the Bible will sometimes skip a generation or more, it is likely that every male in Noah's ancestral line was preserve. The reason for this conclusion is the age given. So and so was a particular age when he sired his son. So we may know exactly how long the antediluvian age lasted: 1676 years (we do not know whether Adam's age was calculated from the fall or from his creation).

The meaning of Kenan is unclear; it is close to the words for elegy or dirge and also the word for chant or wailing. Thieme says that it means deplorable. Mahalalel means, according to Thieme, praise of God. This meaning seems to be well-agreed upon.

The Life of Mahalalel

And so lives Mahalalel five years and sixty a year and so he fathers Jared. And so lives Mahalalel after his fathering Jared thirty a year and eight hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Mahalalel five and ninety a year and eight hundreds a year. And so he dies.

Genesis
5:15–17

Mahalalel lived 65 years when he fathered Jared. After fathering Jared, Mahalalel lived 830 years. He also fathered [other] sons and daughters. All the days of [the life of] Mahalalel were 895 years when he died.

Mahalalel lived 65 years when he fathered Mahalael. After fathering Jared, Mahalalel lived an additional 830 years. He also fathered other sons and daughters. He lived for 895 years and then died.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos

And Mahalalel lived sixty-five years, and begat Jared. And Mahalalel lived after he had begotten Jared eight hundred and thirty years, and begat sons and daughters. And all the days of Mahalalel were eight hundred and ninety-five years; and he died. And Malaleel lived sixty-five years and begot Jared. And Malaleel lived after he begot Jared, eight hundred and thirty years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Malaleel were eight hundred and ninety-five years, and he died.

Latin Vulgate

Masoretic Text (Hebrew)

And so lives Mahalalel five years and sixty a year and so he fathers Jared. And so lives Mahalalel after his fathering Jared thirty a year and eight hundreds a year.

Peshitta (Syriac)	And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Mahalalel five and ninety a year and eight hundreds a year. And so he dies. And Mahalael lived sixty and five years, and begot Jared; And Mahalael lived after he begot Jared eight hundred and thirty years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Mahalael were eight hundred ninety and five years, and he died.
Septuagint (Greek)	And Mahalalel lived one hundred and sixty five years, and he begot Jared. And Mahalalel lived seven hundred and thirty years after his begetting of Jared, and he begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Mahalalel were eight hundred and ninety-five years, and he died.

The Life of Jared

And so lives Jared two and sixty a year and one hundred a year and so he fathers Enoch. And so lives Jared after his fathering Enoch eight hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Jared two and sixty a year and nine hundreds a year. And so he dies.

Genesis
5:18–20

Jared lived 162 years when he fathered Enoch. After fathering Enoch, Jared lived 800 years. He also fathered [other] sons and daughters. All the days of [the life of] Jared were 962 years when he died.

Jared lived 162 years when he fathered Enoch. After fathering Enoch, Jared lived an additional 800 years. He also fathered other sons and daughters. He lived for 962 years and then died.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	And Jared lived a hundred and sixty-two years, and begat Hanok. And Jared lived after he had begotten Hanok eight hundred years, and begat sons and daughters. And all the days of Jared were nine hundred and sixty-two years; and he died.
Latin Vulgate	And Jared lived a hundred and sixty-two years, and begot Henoch. And Jared lived after he begot Henoch, eight hundred years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Jared were nine hundred and sixty-two years, and he died.
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	And so lives Jared two and sixty a year and one hundred a year and so he fathers Enoch. And so lives Jared after his fathering Enoch eight hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Jared two and sixty a year and nine hundreds a year. And so he dies
Peshitta (Syriac)	And Jared lived a hundred sixty and two years, and he begot Enoch: And Jared lived after he begot Enoch eight hundred years, and begot sons and daughters; And all the days of Jared were nine hundred sixty and two years, and he died.
Septuagint (Greek)	And Jared lived one hundred and sixty-two years, and begot Enoch: and Jared lived eight hundred years after his begetting of Enoch, and he begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Jared were nine hundred and sixty-two years, and he died.

The first thing that you may notice is, there are names here similar to the line of Cain. Some are the same and some are similar. Bear in mind that, since the line of Cain (at least a portion of it) is recorded in Gen. 4; this would indicate that someone in Adam's line was keeping track of Cain's family as well as some of their activities. There was likely some intermarriage which occurred as well.

You will notice that man is also a lot more fit at this time, living typically to about 900 years of age. Evolution has taught us that man has become more evolved, and better (presumably; at least, fitter) with each generation. The Bible tells us that man is not evolving, but, to some extent, devolving,

With everything that we know from the Bible and from genetics, this would make sense. Breeds of dogs is a relatively new thing. We have been able to, over the past 1000+ years, isolate certain characteristics of dogs into a breed. However, this involves continued breeding within a line, which will not produce the healthiest, longest living dogs. We have determined that inbreeding in a family (between brother and sister or even between cousins) can produce children who are weaker and more prone to various ailments. However, when man was first created, it was not like this. Man, as created from the hand of God, was far healthier than is man today.

One of the things which is fascinating is, our cells reproduce and die out. Every 7 years, we are supposed to be a brand new person. That is, all of the cells we had 7 years ago are gone and have been replaced. It is as if we were designed to live forever.

We now come to Enoch, whose end is quite unusual.

The Life and Translation of Enoch

In this next set of verses, there is a dramatic change.

And so lives Enoch five and sixty a year and one hundred a year and so he fathers Methuselah. And so walks Enoch with Elohim after his fathering Methuselah three hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Enoch five and sixty a year and three hundreds a year.

Genesis
5:21–23

Enoch lived 65 years when he fathered Methuselah. After fathering Methuselah, Enoch walks with Elohim 300 years. He also fathered [other] sons and daughters. All the days of [the life of] Enoch were 365 years.

Enoch lived 65 years when he fathered Methuselah. After fathering Methuselah, Enoch walks with God for 300 years. He also fathered other sons and daughters. He lived for 365 years.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	And Hanok lived sixty-five years, and begat Methushelach. And Hanok worshipped in truth before the Lord after he had begotten Methushelach three hundred years, and begat sons and daughters. And all the days of Hanok with the sojourners of the earth were three hundred and sixty-five years.
Latin Vulgate	.And Henoch lived sixty-five years, and begot Mathusala. And Henoch walked with God: and lived after he begot Mathusala, three hundred years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Henoch were three hundred and sixty-five years
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	And so lives Enoch five and sixty a year and one hundred a year and so he fathers Methuselah. And so walks Enoch with Elohim after his fathering Methuselah three hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Enoch five and sixty a year and three hundreds a year.
Peshitta (Syriac)	And Enoch lived sixty and five years, and begot Methuselah. And Enoch found favor in the presence of God three hundred years after he begot Methuselah, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Enoch were three hundred sixty-five years.
Septuagint (Greek)	And Enoch lived one hundred and sixty-five years, and begat Methuselah. And Enoch was well-pleasing to God. After his begetting of Methuselah, He walked with God two hundred years, and he begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Enoch were three hundred and sixty-five years.

After he became the father of Methuselah, Enoch walked with God [With the seventh panel there is a digression from the pattern. Instead of simply saying that Enoch lived, the text observes that he "walked with God." The rare expression "walked with" (the Hitpa'el form of the verb ??????, halakh, "to walk" collocated with the preposition ???, 'et, "with") is used in 1 Sam 25:15 to describe how David's men maintained a cordial and cooperative relationship with Nabal's men as they worked and lived side by side in the fields. In Gen 5:22 the phrase suggests that Enoch and God "got along." This may imply that Enoch lived in close fellowship with God, leading a life of devotion and piety. An early Jewish tradition, preserved in 1 En. 1:9 and alluded to in Jude 14, says that Enoch preached about the coming judgment. See F. S. Parnham, "Walking with God," EvQ 46 (1974): 117-18.] for 300 years [Heb "and Enoch walked with God, after he became the father of Methuselah, [for] 300 years."], and he had other [The word "other" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied for stylistic reasons.] sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Enoch was 365 years.
NIV – UK	When Enoch had lived 65 years, he became the father of Methuselah. After he became the father of Methuselah, Enoch walked faithfully with God 300 years and had other sons and daughters. Altogether, Enoch lived a total of 365 years.

Translation: Enoch lived 65 years when he fathered Methuselah. Relatively speaking, Enoch sires a son early in life.

Jared means to descend or to go down. We notice a similarity in the lines of Cain and Seth at this point. Both had descendants named Enoch, who in turn had descendants named Methushael (Methuselah for Seth, a different Hebrew word); and almost the last named person in the lines: Lamech. Satan has always been an imitator of God; a very poor imitator. He counterfeits the line of Seth as best as he could. Enoch might mean trained or experienced or it might mean dedicated. Methuselah means it will be sent when he dies (according to Thieme). Methuselah died the year the flood began.

The gist of this verse: Enoch is said to walk with God after fathering Methuselah.

Translation: After fathering Methuselah, Enoch walks with Elohim 300 years. In all of the previous passages, the men named are said to live for so many years. Here, Enoch walks with God for 300 years, which is very different. This suggests that Enoch was a believer, a believer who stayed in fellowship for a maximum amount of time and a man who had learned the Word of God, whatever it was during that era.

Translation: All the days of [the life of] Enoch were 365 years. At this point, the text is very different. In all previous sets of verses, we have ...and he died. However, this is not the case here.

And so walks Enoch with Elohim and [there is] not him, for took him Elohim. Genesis 5:24 Enoch [continued to] walk with Elohim, and he [is] not, for Elohim took him.

Enoch continued walking with God, and then he was not, for God took him.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	And Hanok served in the truth before the Lord; and, behold, he was not with the sojourners of the earth; for he was withdrawn, and he ascended to the firmament by the Word before the Lord, and his name was called Metatron the Great Saphra.
Jerusalem targum	And Hanok served in the truth before the Lord; and, behold, he was not; for he was withdrawn by the Word from before the Lord.
Latin Vulgate	And he walked with God, and was seen no more: because God took him.
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	And so walks Enoch with Elohim and [there is] not him, for took him Elohim.
Peshitta (Syriac)	And Enoch found favor in the presence of God, and disappeared; for God took him away.
Septuagint (Greek)	And Enoch was well-pleasing to God, and was not found, because God translated him.

God's Word™	Enoch walked with God; then he was gone because God took him.
New American Bible	Enoch walked with God,* and he was no longer here, for God took him. Enoch is in the important seventh position in the ten-member genealogy. In place of the usual formula "then he died," the change to "Enoch walked with God" implies that he did not die, but like Elijah (2 Kgs 2:11-12) was taken alive to God's abode. This mysterious narrative spurred much speculation and writing (beginning as early as the third century B.C.) about Enoch the sage who knew the secrets of heaven and who could communicate them to human beings (see Sir 44:16; 49:14; Heb 11:5; Jude 14-15 and the apocryphal work 1 Enoch). Wis 4:10-11; Sir 44:16; 49:14; Heb. 11:5.
NIRV	Enoch walked with God. Then he couldn't be found, because God took him from this life.
New Simplified Bible	Enoch walked with God. Then he was no more, because God took (moved) him away.
Revised English Bible	Enoch walked with God, and then was seen no more, because God had taken him away.
Today's NIV	Enoch walked faithfully with God; then he was no more, because God took him away.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Bible in Basic English	And Enoch went on in God's ways: and he was not seen again, for God took him.
Complete Jewish Bible	Hanokh walked with God, and then he wasn't there, because God took him.
Ferar-Fenton Bible	And Hanok walked with GOD; and he did not die, God having taken him to Himself.
HCSB	Enoch walked with God, and he was not there, because God took him.
Judaica Press Complete T. NET Bible®	And Enoch walked with God, and he was no longer, for God had taken him. Enoch walked with God, and then he disappeared [The Hebrew construction has the negative particle ???? ('en, "there is not," "there was not") with a pronominal suffix, "he was not." Instead of saying that Enoch died, the text says he no longer was present.] because God took [The text simply states that God took Enoch. Similar language is used of Elijah's departure from this world (see 2 Kgs 2:10). The text implies that God overruled death for this man who walked with him.] him away.

Translation: Enoch [continued to] walk with Elohim,... Here we have a wâw consecutive with a Qal imperfect, but there are not many verbs with the same construction nearby (except at the beginning of the previous verse and the beginning of the following verse). Since the days of Enoch would be reasonably coterminous with Enoch walking with God, it would be reasonable for this imperfect tense to be taken in a continuous sense; this is what Enoch did typically and regularly.

Walked is in the Hithpael imperfect, which is the reflexive of the Piel. This means that Enoch caused himself to walk, or to go with God. It means to walk to and fro. It is a constant, daily walk with God. This is intensive, meaning that in the state that the earth was in, this walk was a difficult, intense experience. We will see more about the corruption of the earth in chapter 6.

So far, in this portion of Genesis, the idea of naming one's sins to be restored to fellowship has only been implied (every time that God speaks to believers who are sinned, He asks them a question to elicit a confession of sin), we may reasonably suppose that Enoch kept short accounts with God (he remained in fellowship by naming his sins to God the moment he sinned); he sinned only infrequently; and he was totally interested in God, God's Person, and God's plan.

There is even a suggestion here that Enoch may have remained in fellowship for all or nearly all of this time.

Translation: ...for Elohim took him. The final phrase explains why Enoch no longer was. God took him. This suggests a translation from life to life, without an intervening death. No body was left behind, would be my educated guess.

Took is the Hebrew word lâqach (לָקַח) [pronounced law-KAHKH], which means, to take, to take away, to take in marriage; to seize. Strong's #3947 BDB #542. Enoch here is a type; that is a shadow image of the pre-tribulational rapture. God is about to bring great and intensive judgment upon the earth. Enoch, as God's faithful, is taken up prior to the judgement. We have a world, during Enoch's time of the corruption of flesh and evil beyond imagination. Even though we are but seven generations from Adam and Adam is still alive at this time, there has been an incredible population explosion, and by this point in time there are a number of half-angelic, half-human beings. The angels had never seen anything like a woman before and the fallen angels burned in lust for the daughters of men. At that point in time, they were able to manifest themselves physically as more than an apparition and they did (that, or they took over the bodies of men as in demon-possession) and they earth was becoming vastly corrupt. It is difficult to live in the midst of a vastly corrupt society and not to become quite corrupt yourself. Enoch managed to remain uncorrupted, unaffected by the evil about him, even though he possessed an old sin nature and was born with the imputation of Adam's original sin. Enoch was not a monk nor was he a person who went off to some hill to meditate. He had a family and sons and daughters. However, he knew God because he knew God's Word as revealed at that time. Although it is not stated, he could go directly to his great⁵ grandfather, Adam, and find out everything that God had told Adam in the garden. Our walk with God include fellowship and God's Word, as it has always been. At that time, he could get God's Word through Adam, who walked with our Lord in the garden. As he got this information from Adam, he also walked with God.

Lest anyone examine this verse carefully and say that there is nothing about Enoch being raptured⁵ here, we need only look to Heb. 11:5 for corroboration: By faith-doctrine, Enoch was taken up [or transported or transferred] so that he should not see death; and he was not found because God took him up; for he obtained the witness that before his being taken up, he was pleasing to Go

Let's look at these verses together:

Gen 5:19–24 Jared lived after he fathered Enoch 800 years and had other sons and daughters. Thus all the days of Jared were 962 years, and he died. When Enoch had lived 65 years, he fathered Methuselah. Enoch walked with God after he fathered Methuselah 300 years and had other sons and daughters. Thus all the days of Enoch were 365 years. Enoch walked with God, and he was not, for God took him.

Enoch was simply taken by God; he did not endure death. His child Methuselah lived longer than any other person. This is known as, blessing by association. We will cover this doctrine in more detail at a later date, but, briefly speaking, if any member of a family is growing spiritually, then those of his family, those in his neighborhood, those in his city, those in his business, often enjoy blessing as well. Blessing to this individual believer overflows and spills onto those in his periphery. The United States is a wonderful example of blessing by association. We have more believers by percentage of population than any other nation on earth. We have more mature believers and more accurate Bible teaching as well. Therefore, we would expect the United States to be the most blessed nation on earth, which it is. We would expect more people would desire to move to the United States than to any other nation, which is also the case. But I digress.

Enoch, who walks with God, and then, was not; has a son who lives longer than anyone else on this earth. Methuselah was blessed because he was the son of Enoch.

Recall that I said that there was some system of protocol in place at this time; the fact that Enoch walked with God indicates this. How does a person have a complete idea as to his relationship with God without having some sort of system in place? How did Enoch figure out how to walk with God? Enoch apparently had a close relationship with God and, also apparently, had a way to know how to walk with God. That is, man, at that time, must have had some extensive knowledge of right and wrong, which could have even been ingrained in man's soul.

However, there does not appear to be a specific system of justice laid out at this time. That is, there are 3 murders that we are aware of, and the murderers, Cain and Lamech, do not appear to be sentenced to anything other than being separated from the line of Adam through Seth. Although they face potential revenge and retribution, nowhere in Gen. 1–6 do we have some sort of government or some sort of law laid out, apart from man's internal conscience.

Gen. 5:22a, 24: And Enoch walked with God three hundred years after he fathered Methuselah. And Enoch walked with God. Then he was not, for God took him.

This also suggests, however, that God was with Enoch in a personal way, face to face, as He had talked to Adam, Eve, Cain and Abel. This seems to further define the relationship which God had with men at that time. He spoke with some directly, but His presence became less frequent, so that, men, for the most part, would call upon His name (Gen. 4:26).

⁵ Some cults make an issue out of words, such as rapture or trinity not being found in the Bible. These are theological terms which were later coined to represent theological truths which are found in the Bible. So, even though the word rapture is not specifically found in the English neither is it a transliteration of a Greek word or, still several synonyms are found (such as in the verse quoted and buried deep in the Greek of II Thess. 2:3).

However, what we appear to be lacking in this antediluvian age is, a written-down law. What appears to be lacking is a system of justice. God appears to have allowed anarchy to be the rule of law, with God intervening on one occasion to separate Cain from Adam and Eve, as well as to further curse the ground upon which Cain walked.

Gen. 5:3–24 When Adam had lived 130 years he fathered a son in his own likeness, according to his image, and he named him Seth. The length of time Adam lived after he became the father of Seth was 800 years; during this time he had other sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Adam was 930 years, and then he died. When Seth had lived 105 years, he became the father of Enosh. Seth lived 807 years after he became the father of Enosh, and he had other sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Seth was 912 years, and then he died. When Enosh had lived 90 years, he became the father of Kenan. Enosh lived 815 years after he became the father of Kenan, and he had other sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Enosh was 905 years, and then he died. When Kenan had lived 70 years, he became the father of Mahalalel. Kenan lived 840 years after he became the father of Mahalalel, and he had other sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Kenan was 910 years, and then he died. When Mahalalel had lived 65 years, he became the father of Jared. Mahalalel lived 830 years after he became the father of Jared, and he had other sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Mahalalel was 895 years, and then he died. When Jared had lived 162 years, he became the father of Enoch. Jared lived 800 years after he became the father of Enoch, and he had other sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Jared was 962 years, and then he died. When Enoch had lived 65 years, he became the father of Methuselah. After he became the father of Methuselah, Enoch walked with God for 300 years, and he had other sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Enoch was 365 years. Enoch walked with God, and then he was no longer present because God took him.

Enoch is the only man in this line, apart from Adam and Noah, who is individually mentioned in the New Testament (apart from a genealogy). Enoch is first mentioned in the great faith chapter of Heb. 11: By faith Enoch was taken up [lit., transferred, transported] so that he did not see death, and he was not to be found because God transferred him. For before his removal he had been commended [or, received a good report] as having pleased God (Heb. 11:5). The New Testament confirms to us what we studied here in the Old—that Enoch did not die, but God transferred him from life to eternal life. Enoch and Elijah are the 2 men of the Old Testament who are said to be taken by God in this way.

Jude also writes of Enoch: About these [clouds without water...wandering stars, for whom impenetrable darkness is reserved forever] also Enoch, the seventh from Adam, prophesied, saying, "Behold, the Lord came with ten thousands of his holy ones, to execute judgment on all, and to convict all the ungodly of all their works of ungodliness which they have done in an ungodly way, and of all the hard things which ungodly sinners have spoken against him." (Jude 1:14–15).

The interpretation here is quite difficult, so let's take it in points:

The Explanation of Jude 1:14–15

1. The passage we are examining, reads: About these [clouds without water...wandering stars, for whom impenetrable darkness is reserved forever] also Enoch, the seventh from Adam, prophesied, saying, "Behold, the Lord came with ten thousands of his holy ones, to execute judgment on all, and to convict all the ungodly of all their works of ungodliness which they have done in an ungodly way, and of all the hard things which ungodly sinners have spoken against him." (Jude 1:14–15).
2. Jude is comparing, but not conflating, unsaved man in the end times and the fallen angels of Gen. 6 (which includes the half-human, half-angelic beings of Gen. 6). He will include other judgments against man as well.
3. For many ages, there have been irreverent men who creep into history, to turn the grace of God into legalism, lasciviousness, excess and/or insolence. Jude 1:4: For certain persons have crept in unnoticed--men spoken of in ancient writings as pre-destined to this condemnation--ungodly men, who pervert the grace of our God into an excuse for immorality, and disown Jesus Christ, our only Sovereign and Lord.
4. Jude illustrates God's judgment of those who do not believe by using the Exodus generation as an example. Those who were 20 and older when they left Egypt were struck down by God in the desert for their defiance and unbelief. Bear in mind, these were people who believed in Jesus Christ (Jehovah Elohim in the Old Testament); and God took them out via the sin unto death in the desert. Moses was not lost or confused and therefore wandered in the desert for 40 years; God took that time to kill off the older generation. Now I want to remind you, although you once fully knew it, that Jesus, Who saved a people out of the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed those who did not believe (Jude 1:5). See also Heb. 3:7–11 where the writer notes that their bodies dropped in the desert and that God loathed that generation.

5. Similarly, God judged the angels of Gen. 6 (which we will study next)—those who did not keep themselves separate from mankind—and has them in chains of darkness until now. Jude 1:6: And angels--those who did not keep the position originally assigned to them, but deserted their own proper abode--He [God] reserves in everlasting bonds under darkness, in preparation for the [final] judgement of the great day.
6. Those of Sodom and Gomorrah are also spoken of here, who went astray in their unnatural sexual lust. Just as Sodom and Gomorrah and the surrounding cities, which likewise indulged in sexual immorality and pursued unnatural desire, serve as an example by undergoing the punishment of eternal fire (Jude 1:7).
7. These are examples of men and angels who instinctively have some kind of understanding, and yet they blaspheme God and things about which they have no knowledge; and yet, with their actions that corrupt themselves, doing things they instinctively know are wrong. The examples given already are of those who have corrupted themselves, although within themselves, they recognize their self-degradation. Jude 1:10: Yet these men blaspheme things of which they know nothing, and in things which, like untamed animals, they understand instinctively--in all these they corrupt themselves.
8. Men who are so corrupted, sneak into churches and pervert the doctrines of the church (which is Jude's main point). Jude 1:4, 11–13. We have the modern example today of Liberation Theology and its American counterpart, Black Liberation Theology. These are men who, over decades, have crept into churches (at first, into Catholic churches in South and Central America, in the 50's, 60's and 70's), who managed to pollute the church with their evil doctrines, cloaking Marxism in distorted Christian doctrine. See Black Liberation Theology at <http://kukis.org/Doctrines/liberationtheology.htm>
9. Jude then describes these kinds of men, and, includes angels in this indictment: These men--sunken rocks! --are those who share the pleasure of your love-feasts, unrestrained by fear while caring only for themselves; clouds without water, driven away by the winds; trees that cast their fruit, barren, doubly dead, uprooted; wild waves of the sea, foaming out their own shame; wandering stars, for whom is reserved dense darkness of age-long duration (Jude 1:12–13). The words clouds and stars are often references to angels (see Heb. 12:1 Rev. 12:4).
10. Enoch, in his time, prophesied against the angels who sinned (Gen. 6); and in this prophecy was a parallel prophecy which also applies to the end of the Tribulation. About these [clouds without water...wandering stars, for whom impenetrable darkness is reserved forever] also Enoch, the seventh from Adam, prophesied, saying, "Behold, the Lord came with ten thousands of His holy ones, to execute judgment on all, and to convict all the ungodly of all their works of ungodliness which they have done in an ungodly way, and of all the hard things which ungodly sinners have spoken against him." (Jude 1:14–15). What we have is God's certain judgment, which has been executed in the past (the flood, Sodom and Gomorrah, the Exodus generation), and will be executed in the future at the end of the Tribulation; can also be depended upon for those false teachers who creep into churches to pervert the doctrine of God's Word. The righteousness of God judged men and angels in the past (Gen. 6 and the Exodus generation); and the righteousness of God will judge mankind at the end of the Tribulation; therefore, God's righteousness also judges those who stealthily enter into churches in order to lead the faithful astray.

One more thing that we ought to deal with is this quotation "Behold, the Lord came with ten thousands of his holy ones, to execute judgment on all, and to convict all the ungodly of all their works of ungodliness which they have done in an ungodly way, and of all the hard things which ungodly sinners have spoken against him." This quotation is not found in the Old Testament. There is an apocryphal book of Enoch which reads: "Behold: He comes with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon them, and destroy the wicked, and reprove all the carnal, for everything which the sinful and ungodly have done and committed against him." This book was written before Christ (170–65 B.C.), was never considered to be a part of the Old or New Testament canon, and it carries within it information and traditions which were passed down through the years. Like mythology, this book contains some things which are true and things which are false. Whether this quotation had a common origin in tradition, written down in the book of Enoch and in the book of Jude; or whether Jude lifted this passage from the book of Enoch, we don't know. We only know, by the doctrine of inspiration, that this is a true quotation, regardless of its exact origins.

Again, bear in mind, the book of Enoch is not a part of the Word of God; the books of Genesis and Jude are.

Gen. 5:22a, 24: And Enoch walked with God three hundred years after he fathered Methuselah. And Enoch walked with God. Then he was not, for God took him.

To me, this is one of the most fascinating aspects of the antediluvian civilization (ante = before; diluvian = deluge, flood). There is some concept of walking with God which is not clearly defined in Gen. 1–6. We know that there is an animal sacrifice involved in this walk, and no doubt, some history was taught by God to those who would listen (the fall of Adam and Eve). But we do not have any more specifics than this.

Furthermore, this time period appears to be some form of limited anarchy. Although Cain was banished and punished for his murder of Abel, his life was not taken by God or by anyone else. Furthermore, a descendent of Cain's, Lamech, kills 2 people, and there does not appear to be any system of justice which is applied to him. Instead, he writes and performs a folk song about this, and he receives some notoriety for what he has done. What we do not find in this antediluvian era is a system of laws and consequences laid out by God. God deals with two sets of sins directly (the sins of Adam and Eve; and the murder of Abel by Cain); but He does not ever lay out a set of laws, other than indicating His requirement that He be worshiped with an animal sacrifice rather than with a fruit and vegetable offering.

In other words, what appears to be the case is, God gave man and angels great freedom with regards to their thoughts and actions, requiring only worship from His faithful with animal sacrifices. In this, Enoch somehow determined how to walk with God, so much so, that God took Enoch.

One more thing on Enoch: Enoch was a type of Christ. His name means consecrated, dedicated, as was our Lord Jesus Christ. In order for Enoch to walk with God, he would have offered up blood sacrifices (as Jesus Christ is our sacrifice). God took Jesus into heaven alive after His resurrection (Acts 1:9), just as He takes Enoch into heaven here. In other words, Enoch is a picture of Jesus to come.

Bear in mind that the AEB uses the Septuagint to translate from.

The American English Bible: A Contradiction?

Two scriptural references, however, have been understood as meaning that certain individuals had in fact been taken to a heavenly reward during pre-Christian times. The first is found at Genesis 5:22-24, where we read, 'God found Enoch righteous; and he lived on for some two-hundred years as he fathered other sons and daughters. So, Enoch was three-hundred and sixty-five years old. Then, because he pleased God, God transported him and he disappeared.'

The American English Bible: A Contradiction?

In Greek this reads, 'kai euerestesen Enoch to Theo kai ouch eurisketo hoti metetheken auton ho Theos,' or literally, 'and pleased Enoch the God and not found, [for] transported (or translated) him the God.'

Many read the above scripture and assume that God took Enoch to heaven. But this can't be true, if you believe the Bible, because we read at John 3:13, 'No one has gone to heaven other than he who came from heaven, the Son of Man.'

In Greek this reads, 'Kai oudeis anabebeken eis ton ouranon ei me ho ek tou ouranou katabas ho uios tou anthropou,' or literally, 'And nobody ascended into heaven (or sky) if not he/who from heaven descended, the son of man.'

Also, Colossians 1:17 says of Jesus, 'He's the earliest and the first one to be born from the dead, so that he would be first in everything.'

So according to the Bible, nobody could have gone to heaven until Jesus opened the way, for he had to be the first to be born from the dead. Thus, to harmonize the scriptures, we must assume that Enoch wasn't really taken to heaven, but to somewhere (or some time) else. Could he have been transported into the future? Possibly, for that is possible with God, but the Bible simply doesn't tell us.

The second scriptural reference that some use to teach a resurrection to heaven prior to Jesus' death and resurrection is found at 2 Kings 2:11. It says there, 'And as they were walking along and talking, {Look!} a flaming war chariot with flaming horses rode between them and [took] Elijah into the sky in a tornado.'

Other Bible translations usually say that Elijah was taken 'into the heavens.' And because of this, most people believe that he went into the presence of God (heaven). Yet, as you'll notice in this translation's Notes (such as the references linked to the scripture found at Genesis 1:1), Elijah simply flew (on the chariot) into the SKY. because that's what the Greek word ourano (and the equivalent Hebrew word) really means. And (in harmony with John 3:13) notice that he didn't actually go to heaven, because King JehoRam later received a letter from Elijah (see 2 Chronicles 21:12). So, God had apparently used the celestial chariot to take him to another place here on the earth. Also notice that earlier, a man named AbDiu, who was a servant of the unrighteous IsraElite King Ahab, had spoken of such a thing happening to EliJah (see 1 Kings 18:12).

As a quick response, there are the two compartments of Hades, where there are the saved and the lost; and Enoch could have simply been translated into "Abraham's bosom" (as it is later called) without dying.

As suggested above, it does not seem likely that Enoch went straight to heaven, but that he went to what would later be called, Abraham's bosom, or the portion of Hades where believers go to.

Although nothing is said of it in Gen. 5, there seems to be a great deal of social unrest at this time. People are cohabiting with angels; God is giving them the ability to both copulate and to have offspring, and fallen angels are doing everything possible to totally corrupt the human race. So, about this time there is Enoch, who is living the life of a mature believer; simultaneously, society seems to be breaking down all around him. Enoch remains faithful to God and God simply removes him from this earth.

The Life of Methuselah

And so lives Methuselah seven and eighty a year and one hundred a year and so he fathers Lamech. And so lives Methuselah after his fathering Lamech two and eighty a year and seven hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Methuselah nine and sixty a year and nine hundreds a year. And so he dies.

Genesis
5:25–27

Methuselah lived 187 years when he fathered Lamech. After fathering Lamech, Methuselah lived 782 years. He also fathered [other] sons and daughters. All the days of [the life of] Methuselah were 969 years when he died.

Methuselah lived 187 years when he fathered Lamech. After fathering Lamech, Methuselah lived an additional 782 years. He also fathered other sons and daughters. He lived for 969 years and then died.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	And Methushelach lived a hundred and eighty-seven years, and begat Lemek. And Methushelach lived after he had begotten Lemek seven hundred and eighty-two years, and begat sons and daughters. And all the days of Methushelach were nine hundred and two and sixty and nine years; and he died.
Latin Vulgate	And Mathusala lived a hundred and eighty-seven years, and begot Lamech. And Mathusala lived after he begot Lamech, seven hundred and eighty-two years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Mathusala were nine hundred and sixty-nine years, and he died.
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	And so lives Methuselah seven and eighty a year and one hundred a year and so he fathers Lamech. And so lives Methuselah after his fathering Lamech two and eighty a year and seven hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Methuselah nine and sixty a year and nine hundreds a year. And so he dies.
Peshitta (Syriac)	And Methuselah lived a hundred eighty-seven years, and begot Lamech; And Methuselah lived after he begot Lamech seven hundred and eighty-two years, and begot sons and daughters; And all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred sixty-nine years, and he died.
Septuagint (Greek)	And Methuselah lived one hundred and sixty-seven years, and begot Lamech. And Methuselah lived eight hundred and two years after his begetting of Lamech, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Methuselah, which he lived, were nine hundred and sixty-nine years, and he died.

Translation: All the days of [the life of] Methuselah were 969 years when he died. This makes Methuselah the oldest person in the Bible.

The AEB has a good set of notes here.

The American English Bible asks What About the Long Lives?

Something else that has stuck in the craw of Bible critics for centuries, is the fantastic ages that people lived to prior to the downpour (Adam 930 years, Methuselah 969, etc.). Also, notice the long reproductive periods: Genesis 5:21 'Enoch was a hundred and sixty five years old when he fathered Methuselah.' Could these be actual years?

Yes they could, for as anyone who has reached the age of 70 or 80 can tell you, our lives are really too short.

The American English Bible asks What About the Long Lives?

But, what about the fact that human life spans seem to be about average when compared the life spans of other animals? Well, it could be (and it's likely true) that animal life spans are also much shorter than they were prior to the downpour. How could this happen?

We've heard many explanations, such as the changes in the atmosphere, or that man was getting 'farther from perfection.' And while these things could be true, the most obvious reason is that it is all the result of prolonged inbreeding. Whereas there were eight humans who survived the downpour, only six produced children thereafter, and three of them were brothers.

Consider, for example, the lines of the Hebrews, which likely reflected what was true of other families throughout the world at the time. Abraham's father was Terah and his wife's father was Terah, so she was his half sister. Their son Isaac's grandfather was thus a direct descendant of Terah on both sides, and the grandfather of the woman he married was also Terah on at least one side. So, Isaac's son Jacob's great-grandfather was Terah through at least three sides, then two of the wives he married (Rachael and Leah) were also great-granddaughters of Terah through multiple lines. and then the descendants of their sons intermarried.

It was only after God gave His Laws to Israel that sexual relations and intermarriage among close family members was forbidden. And this proves that a Divine power recognized the genetic damage that would result from further inbreeding. Also remember that these laws were given just to the descendants of Israel, not to any of the other nations of the world, so inbreeding could have continued throughout the world until the results became obvious.

What about animals? Remember that most animals (the 'unclean') were brought into the chest (ark) in single pairs, so even more genetic damage was possible for them than it was for humans. For, why do such intelligent animals as dogs or such large animals as horses live less than twenty years? This isn't normal - it's illogical.

Notice how human life spans progressively decreased after the downpour (which disproves the teaching that 'they counted years differently back then'):

Noah lived 950 years

His son Shem (the first progenitor of that line) lived 600 years

His son Arphaxad lived 500 years

His son Cainan lived 460 years

His son Sala lived 460 years

His son Heber lived 404 years

His son Phaleg lived 339 years

His son Ragau lived 337 years

His son Seruch lived 330 years

His son Nahor lived 304 years etc.

So, by the time of the exodus from Egypt, we find the Israelites living just 70 or 80 years, for the Bible tells us that only Joshua and Caleb of all Israel's warriors who left Egypt, survived to enter the promised land.

Note this conversation between the Pharaoh of Egypt and the patriarch Jacob, as found at Genesis 47:7-9: 'Then Joseph brought his father Jacob in and stood him before Pharaoh, and Jacob blessed Pharaoh. Then Pharaoh asked Jacob, How old are you? And Jacob replied to Pharaoh, The years of my life that I've lived are a hundred and thirty. But these years have been too few and too troubled. I haven't reached the age that my ancestors [achieved], back in the days when they lived.'

So, the very aged man Jacob verified that his ancestors had lived to be much older than him.

What do scientists tell us is the likely cause of the human (and possibly animal) aging process? They say it's because the ends of our DNA strands break off as cells divide - an apparent genetic problem.

Notice that even secular history agrees with the long lifespans of ancient times! Look, for example, at the Egyptian history of their Pre-Dynastic kings (see the link Pharaohs Timeline). It says, 'Up to 13 kings ruled from Hierakonpolis in Upper Egypt during this period who were known as the Horus-people or the Hawk-people.' However, look at the period during which these supposed 'Up to 13 kings' (we count 12 to Adam) ruled. 2,500 years. that is about 200 years of rule for each of them, according to Egyptologists!

And if you would like to see how closely the Bible comes to lining up with the dates given for Egypt's Pharaohs, see the subheading in the Septuagint document, How the Corrected Dates Align With Egypt's Historical Records.

As you can see, there's really no reason for anyone to question the Bible's accuracy, authenticity, or the dates that are provided there. The facts are too detailed and too well substantiated in history, and the ages of men descend in a logical order that's well in line with the understandings of medical science.

The Community Christian Bible notes: Methuselah lived nine hundred and sixty-nine years! It was absolutely essential to give the idea of a long stretch of time from the beginning of the world up to the ancestors of the people of God, and names could not be multiplied. Just as the Babylonians before the flood had placed eleven kings with a fabulous life duration, the Israelites needed a few Methuselah. Besides they held that their distant ancestors had been better than themselves and for that reason had been rewarded with a very long life. In this legendary list of the ancestors of humankind appears the name of Enoch the just one, whom God took up to heaven just as he did with Elijah (2 K 2)..

An important note is that the years given in Gen. 5 are different in the Hebrew text (upon which our Bible is based), the Septuagint and in the Samaritan text. We do not know which text is more accurate in this area, although most scholars tend to go with the Hebrew text, as that is the original text. The numbers in the LXX indicate that Methuselah would have survived the flood and the numbers found in the Samaritan text would have Jared, Methuselah and Lamech outliving the flood. Obviously, this does not jive with the Genesis account of the flood where these men are not mentioned as survivors of the flood. It is possible that all the ages were changed systematically in order to make certain that no one outlived the flood. This, of course, causes us problems with the common interpretation of this passage. Therefore, I will list some other interpretations. However, I should point out that only one scribal error could throw off the chronology of Genesis 5 and if that occurred, then the ages of the others named in Genesis may have been changed to correlate with the error.

The two problems which current theologians have with the antediluvian period is the longevity of those named in this record and the overall dating of this record. Important archaeological evidence which has been cited is that human fossils which have been examined have been determined to be between 20 and 60 years old. Further, it is generally agreed upon between archaeologists that man is approximately a million years old. To the former, recall that we are dealing with bones and fossils which are 5-10,000 years old and that certain assumptions are made as to the aging process; my point being is that these bones may (1) only appear to be 20-60 years old or (2) these are not bones from the antediluvian period. When it comes to dating the antediluvian period (for which Biblical scholars will be hard-pressed to do with any great accuracy), we cannot rely upon what archaeology has done in the dating of mankind in general. They are forced into these positions by the assumptions under which they operate. We have superficially dealt with the methods of dating used by archaeologists and paleontologists and have shown that they are not necessarily infallible.

Whereas in other genealogies throughout Scripture, it is clear that some generations are skipped, in Gen. 5 it appears as though this is the one time where each and every father and son are named due to the unique construction of this chapter. The parent is listed; the age when his son is born is listed, the number of years afterward that he lived is listed, and then the total years that he lived is listed. Now, there are other sons and daughters born to these men and it is possible that the son listed is not their son but their grandson—the amount of time given allows for that as does the precedence of other genealogies. However, the meticulous manner in which this chapter is written seems to indicate that the author was particular about getting the ages correct. Furthermore, the verb found here is associated with fathering a child, not with simply being an antecedent.

Could the text have been corrupted? That is certainly a possibility. How about the longevity factor? It is my personal opinion (and this is not shared by many) that the remains of the antediluvian civilization have never been found because (1) they were completely (or nearly completely) destroyed and/or (2) we have never looked in the right place. I believe if any of it has been preserved (and I doubt that much has) it would be found at the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean. Whereas we have seen many destructive floods in our lifetimes, I do not think that we have seen any flood even one-tenth the magnitude and strength of the Genesis flood. I do not believe that civilization began in Mesopotamia but even possibly on another continent which was destroyed in the Atlantic. Throughout the Old Testament, God would occasionally order the destruction of a particular group of people and would command the obliteration of every man, woman, child, and their cattle and possessions. If God would command Israel to execute such judgement, then it only stands to reason that a generation so corrupt as the antediluvian age should be similarly summarily obliterated when God is Himself exacting the judgment. When that continent was deluged, it sunk and caused havoc throughout the rest of the earth, including tidal waves hundreds of feet high, almost unimaginable. There were likely dramatic geological changes which occurred at this time.

The new civilization did begin in the Mesopotamian area. Archaeology has not found any ancient man who died being hundreds of years old because archaeology has never discovered any antediluvian men. Whether they could be found or whether they even exist, we have no idea.

However, it is probably important to note what other theologians are thinking with respect to the genealogy given in Gen. 5:

The (false) theories start out innocuous enough. It has been noticed that there are 10 generations from Adam to Noah and ten from Noah to Abraham. It is postulated that this is done for symmetry, brevity and easy memory. The Hebrew words for sired (or, begat) and for son or daughter are used with great latitude and immediate descendent is not always the meaning (I am not aware of this being true for the verb sired, begat, became the father of). Skipping a generation or two is common (and we are always referred to Matt. 1 as proof). All this is true; however, we do not show the skipping of four or five generations at every benchmark in Matthew. So even if a generation is skipped here or there, there is no implication that between each set of names we have several generations.

However, based upon those facts, we have a theory that Enosh lived 90 years and sires Kenan and then Enosh lives another 815 years, having other sons and daughters, and then dies at the age of 905, that Enosh, at age 90 had a son, Bob, and Bob had a son Bubba, and Bubba had a son Junior and Junior (quite a number of years later) had a son Kenan. If this is the case, then figures and statements made in Gen. 5 would be false, which would suggest that this is not the Word of God. The conclusion that not all generations are included in Gen. 5 and the time frame given is not what it seems, does not really solve any problems (the age of mankind; and the individual ages noted herein), and introduces the new problem that: the Bible is not the Word of God.

Because there are some instances where an individual's name is used for both himself and for his seed (Gen. 46:1–4), it is theorized that the list of antediluvian names represents tribes or families or dynasties and the number of years given stands for the length of time that dynasty survived (this does not account for the fact that the ages given are all very similar). Again, this really does not solve any problems, but only suggests that the Bible is not the Word of God.

Let's summarize this:

Summing up the Longevity Digression

To sum up, what I have hoped to accomplish by this lengthy digression is to show:

- It is possibly that most or all of the direct ancestors of Noah are given in Gen. 5
- It is very likely that the time frame given for the antediluvian period is reasonable and true; other than the error of a copyist, we have no reason to doubt the overall time frame of Gen. 1–5
- It is very likely that those men named in Gen. 5 really did live for almost an entire millennium.
- Most theories end up questioning the accuracy of the Word of God, not questioning any of the scientific theories they hope agree with; and yet, never actually come to a point where they agree with existing scientific thought.
- Finally, there is no reason to hold to some date a million years ago for the actual beginnings of man on this earth. 5000 to 10,000 B.C. is a reasonable time frame for a Christian to believe

Science, over and over again, comes up with theories that people believe for many decades (or longer), and then these theories turn out to be wrong.

Translation: Lamech lived 182 years when he fathered a son. Just like with Enoch, we have a break in the pattern. Normally, we have a person's name here (Noah), but we are simply told that he had a son. This is designed to catch our attention.

And so he calls his name Noah, to say, "This one will comfort us from our work and from labor of our hands from the ground which has cursed her Y^ehowah."

Genesis
5:29

He called his name Noah, saying, "This one will give us comfort from our work and from the toil of our hands on account of the ground which Y^ehowah has cursed."

He named his son Noah, saying, "This one will give us comfort from our hard work and from the toil of our hands, which is caused by Jehovah cursing the ground we farm."

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	...and he called his name Noah, (Consolation,) saying, This shall console us for our works that are not prosperous, and for the labour of our hands with the earth which the Lord hath cursed on account of the guilt of the sons of men.
Latin Vulgate	And he called his name Noe, saying: This same shall comfort us from the works and labours of our hands on the earth, which the Lord hath cursed.
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	And so he calls his name Noah, to say, "This one will comfort us from our work and from labor of our hands from the ground which has cursed her Y ^e howah."
Peshitta (Syriac)	And he called his name Noah, saying, This one shall comfort us concerning our work and the toil of our hands, because of the ground which the LORD has curse.
Septuagint (Greek)	And he called his name Noah, saying, This one will cause us to cease from our works, and from the toils of our hands, and from the earth, which the Lord God has cursed.

Significant differences:

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

Common English Bible	...and named him Noah, saying, "This one will give us relief [Heb resembles the sound of Noah's name.] from our hard work, from the pain in our hands, because of the fertile land that the Lord cursed."
Contemporary English V.	Lamech said, "I'll name him Noah because he will give us comfort, as we struggle hard to make a living on this land that the LORD has put under a curse."
Easy English	Lamech called his son Noah. He said, 'We pray that this son will bring rest to us from this hard work. It is hard work to farm the ground because God has *cursed the ground.'
Easy-to-Read Version	Lamech named his son Noah. [This name means "rest."] Lamech said, "We work very hard as farmers because God cursed the ground. But Noah will bring us rest."
Good News Bible (TEV)	...and said, "From the very ground on which the LORD put a curse, this child will bring us relief from all our hard work"; so he named him Noah.
The Message	He named him Noah, saying, "This one will give us a break from the hard work of farming the ground that GOD cursed."
New Living Translation	Lamech named his son Noah, for he said, "May he bring us relief[d] from our work and the painful labor of farming this ground that the Lord has cursed."

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible	...whom he named Noah. And he said: 'He will stop us from doing the things we do, from working with our hands, and from [living on] the ground that Jehovah has cursed.
Ancient Roots Translinear	...and called his name Noah (comfort), saying, "This will comfort us, for Yahweh reprimanded the handiwork and the toil of our hands in the earth."

Beck's American Translation	...and he called him Noah ["Rest"], saying, "He will comfort us as we work and are weary because the LORD has cursed the ground."
God's Word™	He named him Noah [Relief], and said, "This child will bring us relief from the work and painful labor of our hands since the LORD has cursed the ground."
New American Bible	...and named him Noah, saying, "This one shall bring us relief from our work and the toil of our hands, out of the very ground that the LORD has put under a curse [Gn 3:17-19]." The sound of the Hebrew word noah, "Noah," is echoed in the word yenahamenu, "he will bring us relief"; the latter refers both to the curse put on the soil because of human disobedience (3:17-19) and to Noah's success in agriculture, especially in raising grapes for wine (9:20-21).
NIRV	He named him Noah. Lamech said, "He will comfort us when we are working. He'll comfort us when our hands work so hard they hurt. We have to work hard. That's because the Lord has put a curse on the ground."
New Jerusalem Bible	He gave him the name Noah because, he said, 'Here is one who will give us, in the midst of our toil and the labouring of our hands, a consolation out of the very soil that Yahweh cursed.'
New Simplified Bible	He named him Noah. He said: »He will comfort us in the labor and painful toil of our hands caused by the ground Jehovah has cursed.«
Revised English Bible	He named him Noah, saying, 'This boy will bring us relief from our work, from the labour that has come upon us b of the LORD's curse on the ground.'

Judaica Press Complete T.	And he named him Noah, saying, "This one will provide us relief [Connecting Noah with Hebr. Nihau "to comfort;" compare 9:20 and following] from our work and from the toil of our hands, out of the very soil which the LORD placed under a curse."
NET Bible®	He named him Noah [The name Noah appears to be related to the Hebrew word ????? (nuakh, "to rest"). There are several wordplays on the name "Noah" in the story of the flood], saying, "This one will bring us comfort [The Hebrew verb ???????????? (yĕnakhamenu) is from the root ????? (nakham), which means "to comfort" in the Piel verbal stem. The letters ? (nun) and ? (heth) pick up the sounds in the name "Noah," forming a paronomasia on the name. They are not from the same verbal root, and so the connection is only by sound. Lamech's sentiment reflects the oppression of living under the curse on the ground, but also expresses the hope for relief in some way through the birth of Noah. His words proved to be ironic but prophetic. The relief would come with a new beginning after the flood. See E. G. Kraeling, "The Interpretations of the Name Noah in Genesis 5:29," JBL 48 (1929): 138-43.] from our labor and from the painful toil of our hands because of the ground that the LORD has cursed."

Nôach (נֹחַ) [pronounced NOH-ahkh]	rest, repose; consolation; transliterated Noah	masculine singular proper noun	Strong's #5146 BDB #629

Translation: He called his name Noah,... The Hebrew intentionally grabs us with the previous verse, which does not repeat the genealogical pattern, and makes us look at this verse. All of these sons have been named. However, Noah is given a name for a reason, suggesting that all of these men in the genealogy were named for a reason.

Translation: ...saying, “This one will give us comfort from our work...” There is a similarity between the name Noah and the verb to comfort, to console, to have compassion [for, upon]. Every day of their 900 year lives was a struggle of sorts to get enough food to eat. You will note that many wild animals spend much of their day looking for food; this consumes the better part of their existence. So it is with mankind, and it wore on the people born from Adam. For whatever reason, Lamech looked at his son and said, “This one will comfort us all.”

Translation: ...on account of the ground which Y^ehowah has cursed.” We have a repetition of the same preposition, which before was translated from. However, this does not indicate that he expects comfort from the ground..., because there is no wâw conjunction, which would continue the verb. Since we go right to the min preposition, that allows us to consider other meanings for this word. The reason that Lamech and his fathers are toiling is, God cursed the ground upon which they walk. So that is what Lamech says: “This one will give us comfort from our hard work and toil, which is all a result of God cursing the ground.”

This literally should read: ...on account of the ground which Y^ehowah has cursed her.” In the Hebrew, the min preposition goes with the word ground, so it is proper to use the feminine singular suffix for the verb to curse.

This line of Seth, the seed of the woman, hoped for someone to deliver them from this earth of sin. Most of those who were alive had spoken with Adam and had learned from Adam what the earth was like 1500 years previous. Life, for them, as it is now, was a struggle and hard work. They further faced a world of half-angelic, half-human creatures. Each generation hoped for Messiah, the seed of the woman, the one to give them rest from all their labors. Noah is Nôach (נֹחַ) [pronounced NOH-ahkh] and the word for rest is nachath (נָחַת) [pronounced NAH-khahth], which means tranquility, quietness, rest. Strong's #5183 BDB #629. The verb that Lamech uses here is nâcham (נָחַם) [pronounced naw-KHAHM], which means, to comfort, to console, to have compassion, to show compassion. Strong's #5162 BDB #636. Jesus said, "Come to me all of you who are weary and heavy-burdened, and I will rest you. Take My yoke upon you; and learn from Me, for I am gentle and humble in heart; and you will find rest for your souls." [Matt. 11:28–29] Rotherham also points out that Noah could mean consolation.

V. 32 will mark the end of the generations until we come to Gen. 10:1, which deals with the descendants of Shem, Ham and Japheth. This indicates that the author of the narrative from Gen. 4:25-9:32 was probably the same person, very likely Noah or one of his sons. The generations of Adam are dispensed with quickly with very little history or information other than the fact that Enoch was raptured (which had to be mentioned as the amount of years each person lived was mentioned). However, this would have been written by someone who possibly knew some of these men in the past and had kept some sort of a record and wrote from that record. Since the author will record Noah's life in more detail, along with the general state of the earth, I would further assert that Noah was the author of this portion of God's Word. Again, believing that this is a record written down by someone closer to the facts than Moses in no way detracts from the inspiration of God's Word. As I have mentioned, even Luke pooled different resources from which to write his gospel. He did not sit down after forty days and forty nights of eating nuts and berries, praying in the desert, and then start writing from a semi-conscious, subliminal state. We are never told to go into some kind of a trance state and start taking dictation nor is any writer of Scripture. This is foolish and very un-Christian. Those who wrote Scripture give the impression of being very lucid and very conscious while recording Scripture (although some of it came from dreams and visions).

Furthermore, there is no indication that some author like Moses later took these several different sources and tried to weave them together. Each individual narrative seems to be quite cohesive and self contained. There does not seem to be various writing styles found within each narrative. The narratives have a beginning and a logical end. They do not repeat word for word what previous or later narratives say, yet some of the material overlaps. In other words, this is not too different from the gospels, where there are portions which are found in almost all the gospels and information which only one gospel holds. The chart below is the result of educated guesswork; it is by no means to be taken as truth etched in stone:

The Possible Authors of Sections of Genesis
Text	History Covered	Possible Author(s)	Rationale
Gen. 1:1–2:3	Creation of the earth and the universe; the six days of restoration; the seventh day of rest	God dictated this to Adam, Noah, Abraham or Moses	No person was alive to witness this, therefore it had to be dictated. It is reasonable to assume that another writer of Scripture was the instrument of God's dictation.
Gen. 2:4–3:24	The creation of the man and the woman, the fall of man, the pronouncement of judgement upon them and the serpent;	Adam.	This is too difficult to call with any accuracy. The history which has been covered is vast and covers information known primarily to Adam, Eve, Cain and to Lamech.
Gen. 4:1–4:15	The birth of Cain and Abel; the murder of Abel.	Adam, Cain or Seth.	Adam would have found out about this, possibly from God. Cain would have known about all of it. Particular striking is the conversation between God and Cain.
Gen. 4:16–24	The generations of Cain to the sons of Lamech.	Cain; one of Lamech's wives or children, Enoch, Shem or Noah.	The earth at this time would have been a "small town", and information would be gathered through the grapevine. Furthermore, Lamech's song was possibly known far and wide. Furthermore, man lived for centuries, so that his life spanned 10 generations.
Gen. 5:1–32	The genealogy of Adam to Noah.	Noah or Shem.	Every individual at this time could probably know his genealogical line in greater specificity than is recorded here. Just as we learn our names as very young children, they would be taught their genealogies in the same way.

The Possible Authors of Sections of Genesis
Text	History Covered	Possible Author(s)	Rationale
Gen. 6:1–9:29	The corruption of mankind, the flood, and the beginning of the post-diluvian civilization.	Noah or Shem	The author was aware of the previous generations but does not record much information about them. The author spends the greatest amount of time dealing with the life of Noah. This indicates to me that this is the work of Noah.
Bear in mind that I have suggested that man’s memory was much greater around the time of the flood, so that hundreds or thousands of men could have been aware of all of these incidents up to the flood. Even after the flood, large numbers of men could have known this information, many of them knowing the narrative of the flood exactly as we read it in the Bible.
Gen. 10:1-32
Gen. 11:1-0
Gen. 11:10-24:67
At this point, we are far ahead of where we need to be.

Charts, Graphics and Short Doctrines

And so lives Lamech after his fathering of Noah five and ninety a year and five hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Lamech seven and seventy a year and seven hundreds a year and so he dies.

Genesis 5:30–31

After fathering Noah, Lamech lived 595 years. He also fathered [other] sons and daughters. All the days [of the life] of Lamech were 777 years and then he died.

After he father Noah, Lamech lived an additional 595 years. He also fathered other sons and daughters besides Noah. His entire life was 777 years and he died.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	And Lemek lived after he had begotten Noah five hundred and ninety and five years, and begat sons and daughters. And all the days of Lemek were seven hundred and seventy and seven years; and he died.
Latin Vulgate	And Lamech lived after he begot Noe, five hundred and ninety-five years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Lamech came to seven hundred and seventy-seven years, and he died.
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	And so lives Lamech after his fathering of Noah five and ninety a year and five hundreds a year. And so he fathers sons and daughters. And so are all days of Lamech seven and seventy a year and seven hundreds a year and so he dies.

Peshitta (Syriac)	And Lamech lived after he begot Noah five hundred ninety-five years, and begot sons and daughters. Thus all the days of Lamech were seven hundred seventy-seven years, and he died.
Septuagint (Greek)	And Lamech lived five hundred and sixty-five years after his begetting of Noah, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Lamech were seven hundred and fifty-three years, and he died.

Significant differences:

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

Common English Bible	After Noah's birth, Lamech lived 595 years; and he had other sons and daughters. In all, Lamech lived 777 years, and he died.
Contemporary English V. Easy-to-Read Version	Lamech had more children and died at the age of seven hundred seventy-seven. After Noah was born, Lamech lived 595 years. During that time he had other sons and daughters. So Lamech lived a total of 777 years; then he died.
The Message	Lamech lived another 595 years. He had other children and died at the age of 777.
New Life Bible	Lamech lived 595 years after the birth of Noah. He had other sons and daughters. So Lamech lived 777 years, and he died.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible	Then, after fathering Noah, he lived on for some five hundred and sixty-five years, as he fathered other sons and daughters. So, Lamech was seven hundred and fifty-three years old when he died.
God's Word ™	After Lamech became the father of Noah, he lived 595 years and had other sons and daughters. Lamech lived a total of 777 years; then he died.
New American Bible	Lamech lived five hundred and ninety-five years after he begot Noah, and he had other sons and daughters. The whole lifetime of Lamech was seven hundred and seventy-seven years; then he died.
Today's NIV	After Noah was born, Lamech lived 595 years and had other sons and daughters. Altogether, Lamech lived a total of 777 years, and then he died.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Bible in Basic English	And after the birth of Noah, Lamech went on living for five hundred and ninety-five years, and had sons and daughters: And all the years of Lamech's life were seven hundred and seventy-seven: and he came to his end.
HCSB	Lamech lived 595 years after Noah's birth, and he fathered sons and daughters. So Lamech's life lasted 777 years; then he died.
NET Bible®	Lamech lived 595 years after he became the father of Noah, and he had other [The word "other" is not in the Hebrew text, but is supplied for stylistic reasons.] sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Lamech was 777 years, and then he died.

Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:The Amplified Bible

Lamech lived after the birth of Noah 595 years and had other sons and daughters. So all the days of [a]Lamech were 777 years, and he died. It is now well known that the age of mankind cannot be reckoned in years from the facts listed in genealogies, for there are numerous known intentional gaps in them. For example, as B. B. Warfield (Studies in Theology) points out, the genealogy in Matt. 1:1-17 omits the three kings, Ahaziah, Jehoash, and Amaziah, and indicates that Joram (Matt. 1:8) begat Uzziah, who was his great-great-grandson. The mistaking of compressed genealogies as bases for chronology has been very misleading. So far, the dates in years of very early Old Testament events are altogether speculative and relative, and the tendency is to put them farther and farther back into antiquity. Kukis note: Because of the way this is written, this particular genealogy is very exact and can be used to calculate the time from Adam to Noah.

Concordant Literal Version

And living is Lamech, after his begetting Noah, five hundred and sixty-five years. And begetting is he sons and daughters. And coming are all the days of Lamech to be seven hundred and fifty-three years. And he died.

English Standard Version

Lamech lived after he fathered Noah 595 years and had other sons and daughters. Thus all the days of Lamech were 777 years, and he died.

Syndein

And Lamech lived - after he caused the birth of {yalad} Noah/Noach - five hundred ninety and five years, and caused to bring forth sons and daughters. And all the days of Lamech were seven hundred seventy and seven years and he died.

Young's Updated LT

And Lamech lives after his begetting Noah five hundred and ninety and five years, and begets sons and daughters. And all the days of Lamech are seven hundred and seventy and seven years, and he dies.

The gist of this verse:

Lamech lived an additional 595 years after fathering Noah; and he also fathered other sons and daughters.

Translation: All the days [of the life] of Lamech were 777 years and then he died.

Gen 5:25–31 When Methuselah had lived 187 years, he fathered Lamech. Methuselah lived after he fathered Lamech 782 years and had other sons and daughters. Thus all the days of Methuselah were 969 years, and he died. When Lamech had lived 182 years, he fathered a son and called his name Noah, saying, "Out of the ground that the LORD has cursed this one shall bring us relief from our work and from the painful toil of our hands." Lamech lived after he fathered Noah 595 years and had other sons and daughters. Thus all the days of Lamech were 777 years, and he died.

Noah is a type of Christ. What is tied to the earth (the ground) is cursed, and those who are with Noah would be delivered.

Let's stop for a moment and look at the meanings of these men's names, starting with Adam (man, mankind) and ending with Noah (rest):

man, mankind → compensation, appointed, foundation → frailty, man → possession, possessor, purchaser → praise of God → descent, to descend → dedicated, consecrated (who was taken up) → man of the javelin → powerful, strong youth; poor, made low → rest

One might see this as the history of mankind: we begin with man, who is appointed to this earth as the foundation of this earth (man is given authority over all the earth). However, man fell, so he is frail and subject to death. We then move to Israel, which is God's possession. This leads us to the Jesus Christ, in the flesh, Who is the praise of God. He descends to earth (since Jesus is God), dedicated and consecrated to God (and the church is in Christ, so they are dedicated and consecrated to God). Then Jesus is taken up (resurrected) and the church will be taken up (raptured), which will leave us with the Tribulation, where men are at war (men of the javelin), and some men are powerful and some are made low. This leads us to the Millennium, where there will be rest for God's people.

One additional item of interest: Lamech, who will live to the age of 777, is representative of the tribulation, which is 7 years in length. I don't really care to delve into numerology in the Bible, unless there is a strong reason to do so, but this is, at least interesting, particularly given that Lamech's age is unusually short compared to the others in this line. Also of some interest, there will be 77 generations from Adam to Christ. 7 is often seen as a representation of God's perfect number or as a number which represents completeness. Man, on the other hand, often associates 6 with the perfect number, a name 6 is actually given in mathematics.

Interestingly enough, I wrote this material several months ago, and, about a week ago, I was led to this link on the internet where a pastor does a very similar thing.

The Gospel of Jesus Christ in the Genealogy of Adam to Noah

Name	Meaning*	Text/Commentary
Adam	Man
Seth	Appoint	Meaning according to Easton, Fausset and ISBE.
Enosh	Mortal, frail, miserable	As per Hitchcock, Smith and ISBE.
Kenan	Sorrow, dirge, elegy	I come up with the meanings possessor, purchaser here. I don't know from whence this pastor got his meaning of Kenan.
Mahalalel	The blessed God	It is almost unanimous that this name means praise of God (which is close).
Jared	From the verb yarahd, which means Descent, will come down
Enoch	Teaching	Consensus is this means dedicated, consecrated .
Methuselah	His death will bring	There are two disparate meanings here: man of the javelin but, more likely, he dies and it is sent . When named, it would have referred to the flood (which was judgment). When our Lord died on the cross, both salvation and judgment were sent (in the flood, there was an ark, which was the salvation of those who believed).
Lamech	Despairing	I come up with two disparate meanings: a strong man, powerful or poor, made low .
Noah	To bring relief, rest, comfort	Also, the meanings repose; consolation .

*The meaning, according to Chuck Missler.

Commentary in case there is any disagreement; or additional things to say.

Together, these all mean (according to Missler): “Man [is] appointed [to] mortal sorrow; [but] the blessed God will come down teaching [that] His death will bring [the] despairing, rest.”

These definitions were taken from <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=pSb9SPeMkhY> which video maker credits Chuck Missler. This is also found here and here.

Taking the revised meanings, we come up with: “Man [is] appointed [to] mortal [ity]; purchased (or, possessed) [by] the Praise of God [Who] will descend [as the] Dedicated [One] (Who will be taken up). He dies and is sent [to the] poor [who are made strong in Christ] [bringing them] rest [or, comfort, repose, consolation].” So here we have the gospel of Jesus Christ as well as the history of mankind hidden within the names of the chosen genealogy.

Even when we correct some of these meanings, and even add in the second meanings, we still have the gospel and human history laid out for us, all in Gen. 5:3–31. Again, the words of the Bible give testimony to the fact that this is the Word of God.

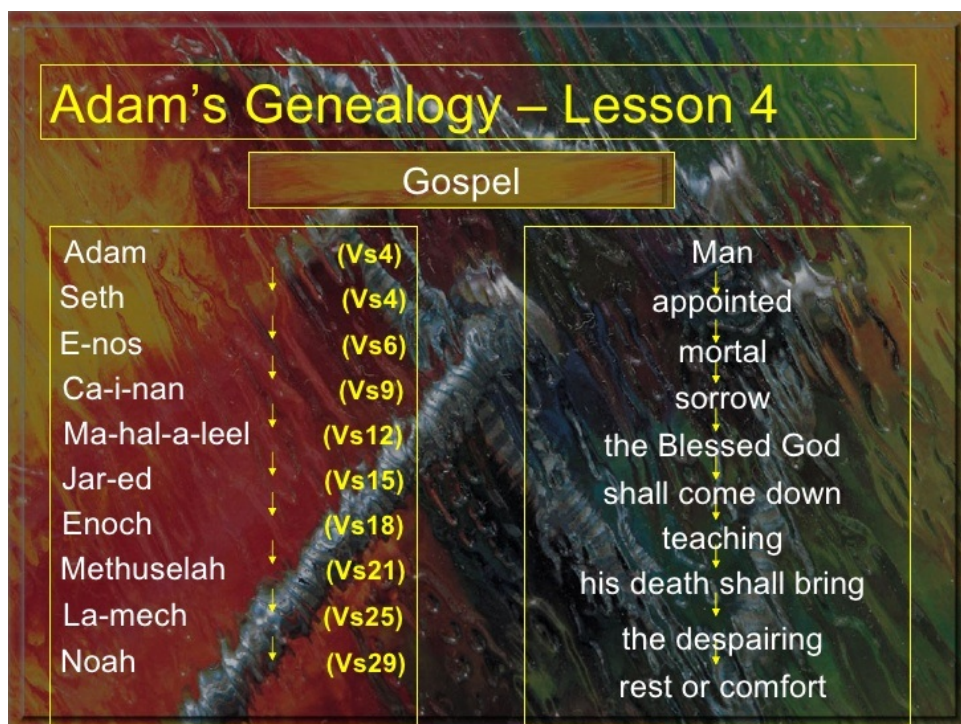

The Gospel in the Line of Adam (a graphic); from Slide Share; accessed May 13, 2016.

Also recall that the only line in human history followed out from beginning to end is the line of Jesus Christ. By this point in our study, you should have come to realize just how phenomenal and unique the book of Genesis is, and, by extension, the entire Bible.

Let me also recommend that you go back and re-read Introductory lessons 11 and 12, so that you may better appreciate just how phenomenal the Bible is:

<http://kukis.org/Basicexegesis/Introtoexegesis.htm#Introductory%20Lesson%2011:%20The%20BibleChristian%20Apologetics%20and%20Biblical%20Prophecy>

We previously studied the genealogy of Jesus Christ, and it was pointed out that no other person in the history of man has a genealogy which goes all the way back to the first man. This genealogy is unique as it is the only complete genealogy recorded in all of human history. Although, it is quite obvious that those in this line also have a complete genealogy; the culmination of the Davidic line in Jesus Christ marked the final complete genealogy.

We also observed that the saved genealogy, the genealogy of promise, also had hidden within it the history of mankind as well as the gospel of Jesus Christ—our salvation laid out in the genealogy itself; the promise of Jesus Christ, our Savior, hidden in the genealogy of Adam to Noah.

Gen. 5:25–31 When Methuselah had lived 187 years, he became the father of Lamech. Methuselah lived 782 years after he became the father of Lamech, and he had other sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Methuselah was 969 years, and then he died. When Lamech had lived 182 years, he had a son. He named him Noah, saying, "This one will bring us rest from our labor and from the painful toil of our hands because of the ground that the LORD has cursed." Lamech lived 595 years after he became the father of Noah, and he had other sons and daughters. The entire lifetime of Lamech was 777 years, and then he died.

In this genealogy, two things stand out: Enoch walking with God and being taken; and Noah’s name being clearly defined. He named him Noah, saying, "This one will bring us rest from our labor and from the painful toil of our hands because of the ground that the LORD has cursed." (Gen. 5:29). So these 2 people—Enoch, who is a type of Christ, and Noah—are tied together, as they are prominently featured in this genealogical line. And what are we told about Noah? “He will bring us rest from our labor...because of the ground that Y^ehowah has cursed.” So Noah is seen as a type of Christ. Jesus Himself promises us this rest: “Come to me, all who labor and are heavily burdened, and I will give you rest.” (Matt. 11:28).

Somehow, the author of Genesis knew to feature Enoch and Noah prominently, so that the few words spoken about them point to Jesus Christ.

Enoch, Noah and Jesus
Enoch and Noah	Jesus Christ
Since Enoch walked with God, we must assume that he offered up animal sacrifices.	These animal sacrifices are a picture of Jesus dying for our sins.
Enoch, who walked with God, was taken by God into heaven.	Jesus walked with God the Father throughout His entire life. There was no sin in Him. Jesus was taken by God into heaven, receiving approval from God, because His sacrifice was sufficient.
Noah, the only other prominent name in this genealogy, is called Noah because “He will bring us rest from our labor...because of the ground that Y ^e howah has cursed.”	Jesus calls to us: “Come to me, all who labor and are heavily burdened, and I will give you rest.” (Matt. 11:28).

Over and over again, God the Holy Spirit, through the very words of the Bible, points toward Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior.

Of course, both Enoch and Noah are in the saved line or the regenerate line or, if you will, the genealogical line of grace.

This particular line in Gen. 5 will give us the actual time frame of the antediluvian age. We simply add up how old each man was before bearing the child mentioned, and then add this to 600 years, which is approximately how old Noah was at the time of the flood.

Noah and His Three Sons

Some ancient translation have this as the first verse of Gen. 6.

And so is Noah a son of five hundreds a year. Genesis And Noah is 500 years old when he [lit., Noah]
And so fathers Noah Shem, Ham and Japheth. 5:32 fathers Shem, Ham and Japheth.

And Noah was 500 years old when he fathered Shem, Ham and Japheth.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Targum of Onkelos	And Noah was the son of five hundred years, and Noah begat Shem, Cham, and Japhet.
Latin Vulgate	And Noe, when he was five hundred years old, begot Sem, Cham, and Japheth.
Masoretic Text (Hebrew)	And so is Noah a son of five hundreds a year. And so fathers Noah Shem, Ham and Japheth.
Peshitta (Syriac)	And Noah was five hundred years old, and Noah begot Shem, Ham, and Japheth.
Septuagint (Greek)	And Noah was five hundred years old, and he begot three sons; Shem, Ham, and Japheth. This is Gen. 6:1 in the Greek.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible	And [by the time that] Noah was five hundred years old, he had fathered three sons; Shem, Ham, and JaPheth.
Ancient Roots Translinear	Noah was a son of 500 years. Noah begat Shem, Ham, and Japheth.
God's Word ™	When Noah was 500 years old, he became the father of Shem, Ham, and Japheth.
New American Bible	When Noah was five hundred years old, he begot Shem, Ham, and Japheth. Shem, Ham, and Japheth: like the genealogies in 4:17-24 and 11:10-26, the genealogy ends in three individuals who engage in important activity. Their descendants will be detailed in chap. 10, where it will be seen that the lineage is political-geographical as well as "ethnic." Gn 6:10; 10:1.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Complete Jewish Bible	Noah was 500 years old; and Noach fathered Shem, Ham and Yefet.
JPS (Tanakh—1985)	When Noah had lived 500 years, Noah begot Shem, Ham, and Japheth.
New Advent Bible	And Noe, when he was five hundred years old, begot Sem, Cham, and Japheth.

NET Bible®	After Noah was 500 years old, he [Heb "Noah." The pronoun ("he") has been employed in the translation for stylistic reasons.] became the father of Shem, Ham, and Japheth.
The Scriptures 1998	And Noah was five hundred years old, and Noah brought forth Shēm, Ḥam, and Yepheth.

Translation: ...when he [lit., Noah] fathers Shem, Ham and Japheth. Noah will father Shem, Ham and Japheth. Unlike the other lines, we do not read, "And Noah fathered other sons and daughters." Nor do we read, "And Noah lived a total of 900 years and so he died. So, at this point, we really break ranks with the previous verses.

Gen 5:32 And Noah was 500 years old. And Noah fathered Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

Shem means celebrity, Ham means swarthy or hot, and Japheth means extension. These are not necessarily Noah's only children, but these are the only ones which are mentioned in Scripture. If Noah had other children, then they perished in the flood, having been contaminated by the demons of Gen. (to be covered in more detail in that chapter. Writing about other sons and daughters would have been no doubt very painful for Noah.

Some people are confused about the genealogical records and their purpose. The primary purpose of these records is to record the line of the humanity and the legal line of our Lord, which do not diverge until after King David. They trace, throughout several centuries, the seed of the woman. At this time, it was obvious that at least Adam and Lamech had sons which they thought were the promised seed. Furthermore, we are in a time of great corruption on the earth, which will be covered in chapter 6.

The New Testament makes several allusions to Noah and the flood and these references would be a good way to preface chapter 6. In Matt. 24, Jesus is telling of the signs of His return. When He returns, man will be preoccupied with his life on earth and little thought will be given to spiritual things. Noah, after having his three sons, will evangelize the earth for 120 years and the sum total of his converts will be his wife, three of his children and their wives. He would not be written up in Evangelism Monthly. Man and partial man will be too caught up in their own affairs to pay any attention to Noah. Our Lord said, "For the coming of the Son of Man will be just like the days of Noah: for as in those days which were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, they were marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark. Further, they did not understand until the flood came and took them all away, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be. We have two pictures of the time prior to the flood and the time prior to the coming of the Son of Man. One picture is that of great violence and destruction (Gen. 6:11–13 and Matt. 24:6–7, 21–22) and the other is a picture of a total lack of interest in things spiritual, or daily life being carried on without a thought to God or to the eternal consequences of one's actions (see also Luke 17:26–30). There is no contradiction in these pictures; merely a difference in emphasis. Today, you can go to any place on earth and find great violence and you can find people totally preoccupied with their own lives. Prior to the flood and prior to our Lord's second advent, this will also be true, except that the violence will become intensified.

Our Lord spoke of Noah as an historical person and the flood as an historical event. There seems to be no indication that this was some kind of a folk tale carried down through the ages. Further, Noah finds himself in several genealogies (see 1Chron. 1:4 and Luke 3:36).

Hebrews take a wide view of spiritual history, covering the faith of Abel, Enoch and Noah, as well as baker's dozen of historical Jewish figures. Concerning Noah, it reads: By faith-doctrine, Noah, having been warned about things not yet seen, in reverence, prepared an ark for the salvation of his household, by which he condemned the world, and became an heir of the righteousness which is according to faith.

Peter, who became quite a Biblical scholar in his later years, mentions Noah once in each epistle. However, Peter, in each case, is not focusing upon Noah as much as he is focusing upon the angels who sinned. So I will save his quotes for the beginning of chapter 6 when we examine the actual makeup of the earth in the days of Noah.

Just recently, I have read that the continuous history of Israel certainly could not have been written by just one person (or two or three), so those who were the human authors of God's Word would always tie together their portion of the Bible with the previous section with a couple of verses. They might perhaps add a verse or two or a chapter to the previous book (for instance, Joshua likely wrote about the death of Moses at the end of Deuteronomy) and then in their portion of Scripture, they might repeat in the first few verses of their portion one or two verses from the previous book of Scripture. In this way they establish an end, a beginning and continuity. Chapter 1 of Joshua contains primarily a direct quote from God spoken to Joshua and in this quote, there are several quotations of what was in the writings of Moses. The Mosaic (and Abrahamic and Palestinian) covenant is repeated briefly in Josh. 1:2–4. God's promise repeated to Israel several times under Israel: "I will never fail you or forsake you" is found in Josh. 1:5. The Law of Moses, a reference to the five books of Moses, is recognized immediately as Scripture in Josh. 1:8. Then we begin with a history of Joshua, written in the third person as did most, but not all, writers of Scripture did.

We find a very similar pattern in the book of Genesis. In the chart which is found previously in this chapter, I have noted certain portions of Scripture and have given reasonable, educated guesses as to the authors of these sections. What we are studying here is very likely the work of Noah. A short addendum is added to chapter 4 of Genesis (vv. 25–26); the portion which is begun is given a title of sorts in Gen. 5:1 (this is not always the case); a portion of the previous book is repeated almost word for word (Gen. 5:1b–2a quotes Gen. 1:27–28a); this author notes the genealogical link in Gen. 5:1–32 (not always the case); and then the author launches into the text of his portion of God's Word. As for myself, I would bet money that—since the genealogy covers the seed of the woman throughout the entire antediluvian period, from Adam and the woman to Noah and his sons, and since the bulk of the following text deals exclusively with the events of Noah's life, which spanned the end of the antediluvian period and the beginning of the post-diluvian civilization—that Noah is the author of this portion of Scripture. I would be even more inclined to say that Moses did not necessarily even examine the documents and write the history of man, but copied it line for line in the book which became Genesis or merely added to it.

Gen 6:3 Then the LORD said, "My Spirit shall not abide in man forever, for he is flesh: his days shall be 120 years." This verse will receive more of an explanation in the near future.

Noah had fathered these sons by age 500.

Here are the lines of each person, with the approximate overlap.

The flood would have taken place after Methuselah and Lamech have died (Methuselah died the year of the flood). Noah is said to be 500 years old by the time that he fathers Shem, Ham and Japheth. God is going to give man an additional 120 years (Gen. 6:3), so this takes us to approximately 620 years for the age of Noah at the time of the flood (we will later find out that he is 600 at the time of the flood—Gen. 7:6). What this tells us is, 20 years before Noah sires his youngest son, God speaks to him and tells him that there will only be 120 more years that God would allow the violence on earth to continue.

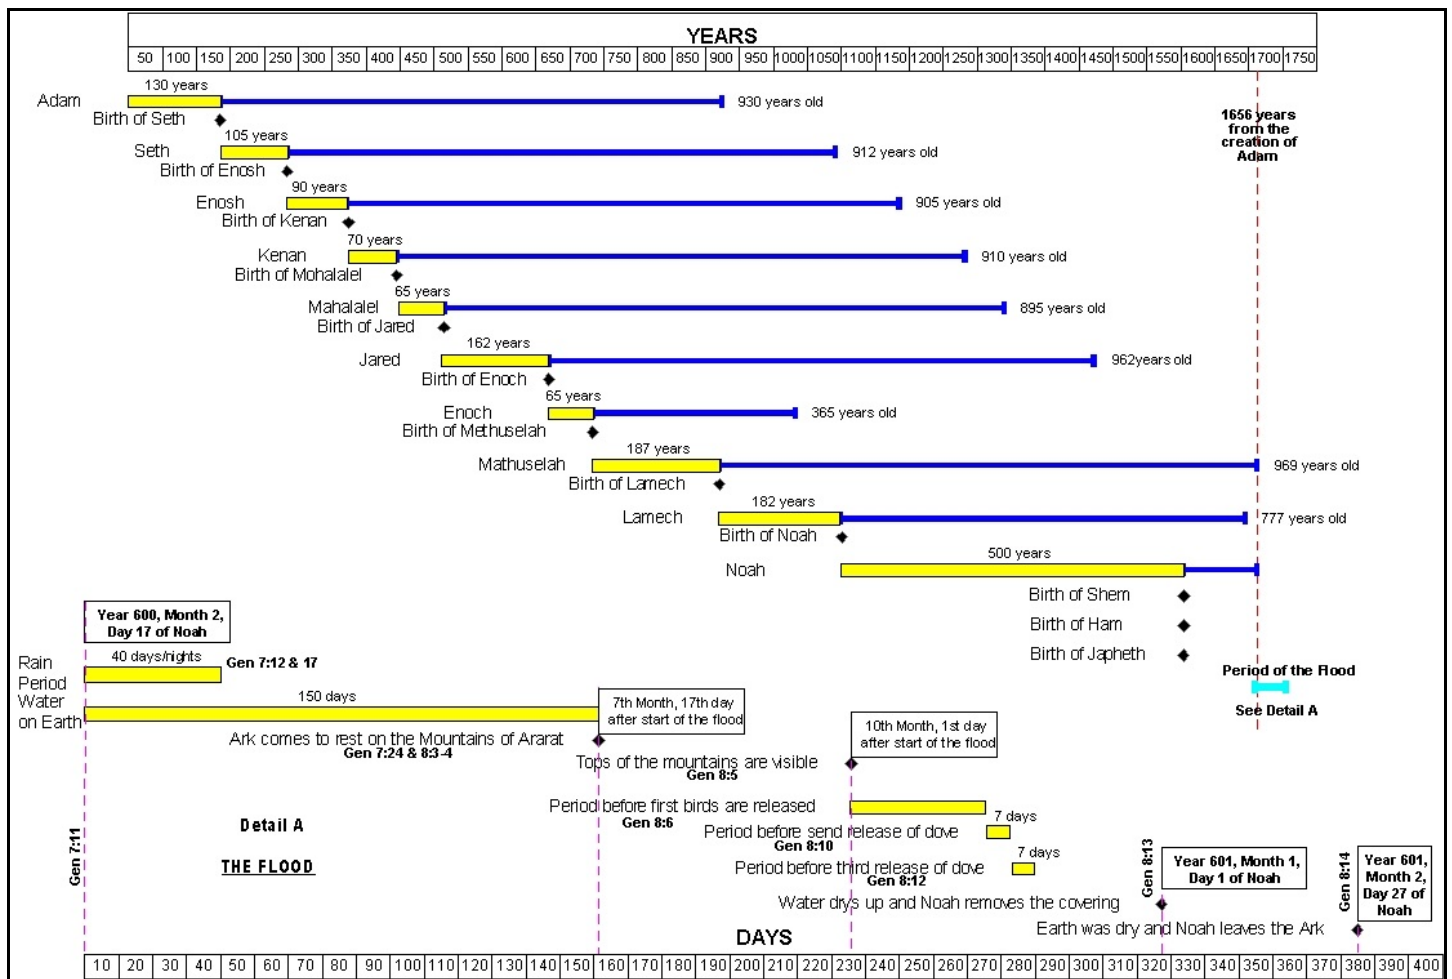

His father, Lamech, sires Noah at age 182 and then lives an additional 595 years. Therefore, Methuselah and Lamech, Noah's grandfather and father, have both died prior to the flood (along with all of Noah's ancestors). It would make sense that both of these men believed in Jehovah Elohim (Jesus Christ).

Also, Methuselah would have lived 100 years after Noah's sons were born and Lamech would have lived 95 years past the birth of Noah's sons. Both Methuselah and Lamech were born before Adam died; Noah would have been born shortly after the death of Seth and before the death of Enosh.

One of the things which is fascinating is the age of Noah before he bears children. You will note that children were born to these men between the ages of 65 and 187. For whatever reason, it appears that Noah had no children until he was 500 years old. To be specific, Noah sired Seth at age 500 or 501 (which we get by comparing Gen. 5:32 7:6 11:10). If these 3 sons were born around this time period, then Noah's children only know their father, grandfather and great-grandfather. I am sure that there is a fascinating story here. Did Noah go for hundreds of years without meeting his right woman? Did they marry, but were they unable to have children until later in life? Were there other children, some who died young and/or did some go astray? Whatever the back story is, God knew what He was doing.

All of Noah's ancestors will die off before the flood; the only people from the line of promise still alive at the flood is Noah and his immediate family. Noah's father will know Adam, and Noah will be born before the death of Seth. Except for Adam and Enoch, Noah would have had the opportunity to know all of his ancestors.

We do not know how long Adam lived before he and Eve ate from the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil. However, from Adam to the flood is: $130 + 105 + 90 + 70 + 65 + 162 + 65 + 187 + 182 + 600 = 1656$ years.

There are actually two parallel passages to Gen. 5 found in the Bible: 1Chron. 1:1–4 and Luke 3:

The Parallel Passages

Adam, Sheth, Enosh, Kenan, Mahalaleel, Jered, Henoch, Methuselah, Lamech, Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth (1Chron. 1:1–4, Young's Literal Translation).

Shem, the son of Noah, the son of Lamech, the son of Methuselah, the son of Enoch, the son of Jared, the son of Mahalaleel, the son of Cainan, the son of Enos, the son of Seth, the son of Adam, the son of God (Luke 3:36b–38, Young's Literal Translation).

From Adam to Noah, there are 10 generations. The passage in Luke goes back all the way from Jesus to God (so the other two sons of Noah would not be included).

The ancient historian Josephus seems to take the Old Testament texts at face value and uses them to record the history of this era.

Josephus' History of this Time

CONCERNING THE POSTERITY OF ADAM, AND THE TEN GENERATIONS FROM HIM TO THE DELUGE

3. Now Adam, who was the first man, and made out of the earth, (for our discourse must now be about him,) after Abel was slain, and Cain fled away, on account of his murder, was solicitous for posterity, and had a vehement desire of children, he being two hundred and thirty years old; after which time he lived other seven hundred, and then died. He had indeed many other children, (8) but Seth in particular. As for the rest, it would be tedious to name them; I will therefore only endeavor to give an account of those that proceeded from Seth. Now this Seth, when he was brought up, and came to those years in which he could discern what was good, became a virtuous man; and as he was himself of an excellent character, so did he leave children behind him who imitated his virtues. (9) All these proved to be of good dispositions. They also inhabited the same country without dissensions, and in a happy condition, without any misfortunes falling upon them, till they died. They also were the inventors of that peculiar sort of wisdom which is concerned with the heavenly bodies, and their order. And that their inventions might not be lost before they were sufficiently known, upon Adam's prediction that the world was to be destroyed at one time by the force of fire, and at another time by the violence and quantity of water, they made two pillars, (10) the one of brick, the other of stone: they inscribed their discoveries on them both, that in case the pillar of brick should be destroyed by the flood, the pillar of stone might remain, and exhibit those discoveries to mankind; and also inform them that there was another pillar of brick erected by them. Now this remains in the land of Siriad to this day.

Josephus' History of this Time

Edersheim Summarizes Genesis 5

Genealogy of the Believing Race, through Seth. (GENESIS 5)

ONE purpose of Scripture has now been fulfilled. The tendencies for evil of the Cainite race have been traced to their full unfolding, and "the kingdom of this world" has appeared in its real character. On the other hand, the race of Seth have gathered around an open profession of their faith in the promises, and of their purpose to serve God, and they have on this ground separated themselves from the Cainites. The two ways are clearly marked out, and the character of those who walk in them determined. There is, therefore, no further need to follow the history of the Cainites, and Scripture turns from them to give us an account of "the elders" who "by faith" "obtained a good report."

At first sight it seems as if the narrative here opened with only a "book," or account, "of the generations of Adam," containing here and there a brief notice interspersed; but in truth it is otherwise. At the outset we mark, as a significant contrast, that whereas we read of Adam that "in the likeness of God made He him," it is now added that "he begat a son in his own likeness, after his image." Adam was created pure and sinless in the likeness of God; Seth inherited the fallen nature of his father. Next, we observe how all the genealogies, from Adam downwards, have this in common, that they give first the age of the father at the birth of his eldest son, 10 then the number of years which each of them lived after that event, and finally their total age at the time of death. Altogether, ten "elders" are named from the creation to the time of the flood, and thus grouped [Such are the numbers according to the Hebrew text. There are differences between this and the Greek translation of the so-called LXX (the Septuagint), and also the Samaritan text. For further particulars we refer to ch. 10, where also the difference between the chronologies of Ussher and Hales is explained.]:

Names	Age at Birth of Son	# Years After the Birth	Total Age	Year of Birth from Creation	Year of Death from Creation
Adam	130	800	930	1	930
Seth	105	807	912	130	1042
Enos	90	815	905	235	1140
Cainan	70	840	910	325	1235
Mahaleel	65	830	895	395	1290
Jared	162	800	962	460	1422
Enoch	65	300	365	622	987

Methuselah	187	782	969	687	1656
Lamech	182	595	777	874	1651
Noah	500	450	950	1056	2006
Flood	100
TOTAL	1656

On examining them more closely, what strikes us in these genealogical records of the Patriarchs is, that the details they furnish are wanting in the history of the Cainites, where simply the birth of seven generations are mentioned, viz.: Adam, Cain, Enoch, Irad, Mehajael, Methusael, Lamech, and his sons. The reason of this difference is, that whereas the Cainites had really no future, the Sethites, who "called upon the name of Jehovah," were destined to carry out the purpose of God in grace unto the end. Next, in two cases the same names occur in the two races - Enoch and Lamech.

But in both, Scripture furnishes characteristic distinctions between them. In opposition to the Enoch after whom Cain called his city, we have the Sethite Enoch, "who walked with God, and was not; for God took him;" and in contradistinction to the Cainite Lamech, with his boastful ode to his sword, we have the other Lamech, who called his son Noah, "saying, This same shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground which Jehovah hath cursed." Thus the similarity of their names only brings out the more clearly the contrast of their character.

Finally, as the wickedness of the one race comes out most fully in Lamech, who stands seventh in the genealogy of the Cainites, so does the godliness of the other in Enoch, who equally stands seventh in that of the Sethites. Passing from this comparison of the two genealogies to the table of the Sethites, we are reminded of the saying, that these primeval genealogies are "monuments alike of the faithfulness of God in the fulfillment of His promise, and of the faith and patience of the fathers." Every generation lived its appointed time; they transmitted the promise to their sons; and then, having finished their course, they all "died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth." That is absolutely all we know of the majority of them. But the emphatic and seemingly needless repetition in each case of the words, "And he died," with which every genealogy closes, tells us that "death reigned from Adam unto Moses," (Romans 5:14) with all the lessons which it conveyed of its origin in sin, and of its conquest by the second Adam. Only one exception occurs to this general rule - in the case of Enoch; when, instead of the usual brief notice how many years he "lived" after the birth of his son, we read that "he walked with God after he begat Methuselah three hundred years;" and instead of the simple closing statement that "he died," we are not only a second time told that "Enoch walked with God," but also that "he was not; for God took him." Thus both his life and his translation are connected with his "walk with God." This expression is unique in Scripture, and except in reference to Noah (Genesis 6:9) only occurs again in connection with the priest's intercourse with God in the holy place. (Malachi 2:6) Thus it indicates a peculiarly intimate, close, and personal converse with Jehovah. Alike the life, the work, and the removal of Enoch are thus explained in the Epistle to the Hebrews: "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God." (Hebrews 11:5)

His translation was like that of Elijah (2 Kings 2:10), and like what that of the saints shall be at the second coming of our blessed Lord. (1 Corinthians 15:51, 52) In this connection it is very remarkable that Enoch "prophesied" of the very thing which was manifested in his own case, "saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousands of His saints, to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against Him." [Jude 14, 15. This quite accords with what was generally known about Enoch. One of the Old Testament apocryphal works, written before the time of Christ (Ecclesiasticus 44:16), has it that "Enoch was translated, being an example of repentance to all generations;" while another book (B. of En. i. 9) expressly states, that he prophesied the coming of the Lord for judgment upon the ungodly.]

Evidently Lamech felt the burden of toil upon an earth which God had cursed, and looked forward to a gracious deliverance from the misery and corruption existing in consequence of it, by the fulfillment of the Divine promise concerning the Deliverer. In longing hope of this he called his son Noah. A change, indeed, did come; but it was by the destruction of that sinful generation, and by the commencement of a new period in the covenant-history. We mark that, in the case of Noah, Scripture no longer mentions, as before, only one son; but it gives us the names of the three sons of Noah, to show that henceforth the one line was to divide into three, which were to become the founders of human history.
