These studies are designed for believers in Jesus Christ only. If you have exercised faith in Christ, then you are in the right place. If you have not, then you need to heed the words of our Lord, Who said, “For God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten [or, uniquely-born] Son, so that every [one] believing [or, trusting] in Him shall not perish, but shall be have eternal life! For God did not send His Son into the world so that He should judge the world, but so that the world shall be saved through Him. The one believing [or, trusting] in Him is not judged, but the one not believing has already been judged, because he has not believed in the Name of the only-begotten [or, uniquely-born] Son of God.” (John 3:16–18). “I am the Way and the Truth and the Life! No one comes to the Father except through [or, by means of] Me!” (John 14:6).

Every study of the Word of God ought to be preceded by a naming of your sins to God. This restores you to fellowship with God (1John 1:8–10). If there are people around, you would name these sins silently. If there is no one around, then it does not matter if you name them silently or whether you speak aloud.

Links to the word-by-word, verse-by-verse studies of Genesis (HTML) (PDF) (that is what this document is). This incorporates 2 previous studies done in the book of Genesis. However, much of this material was thrown together without careful editing. Therefore, from time to time, there will be concepts and exegetical material which will be repeated, because there was no overall editing done once all of this material was combined.

There is a second, less complete set of weekly lessons of Genesis (HTML) (PDF). Every word of that study can be found in the word-by-word, verse-by-verse studies.

This study makes reference to a wide-range of sources. There are quotations from doctrinal teachers, of course; but from Catholic commentaries and from other sources as well. Wherever I found relevant truth, I quoted from it or was inspired by it. Even though it is clear that some churches have a better concept of our reason for being here, that does not mean that there is no truth to be found anywhere else. So, from time to time, I will quote from John Calvin, even though I do not subscribe to 5-point Calvinism; I will quote from some Catholic sources, even though I believe that they are very wrong regarding Mary, the pope, apostolic succession and other such doctrines. The intention is for this to be the most thorough and accurate study of Genesis available anywhere.

Also, it is not necessary that you read the grey Hebrew exegesis tables. They are set apart from the rest of the study so that you can easily skip over them (based upon the suggestion of a friend). However, if you ever doubt the translation of a word, phrase or a verse, these translation tables are then available.
Preface: Gen. 35 is a chapter of milestones: (1) Jacob and his family move to Bethel; (2) Deborah, Rebekah’s maid dies; (3) God reappears to Jacob and Jacob worships Him; (4) Rachel bears Jacob’s 12th son but then dies during childbirth; (5) Reuben is intimate with one of Jacob’s mistresses; (6) the 12 sons of Jacob are listed; and (7) Isaac dies.

What is remarkable is the great grace that God had given to both Jacob and Esau (recounted in this chapter and the next). How petty and ridiculous had been their undue competition and jealousies 20 years previous.

There are many chapter commentaries on the book of Genesis. This will be the most extensive examination of Genesis 35, where you will be able to examine in depth every word of the original text. Every attempt has been made to make this both a complete and self-contained study. Therefore, all references, vocabulary, and related concepts should be found within this extensive study. Easy access links to more in-depth studies of some vocabulary words, concepts and doctrines are also provided.

Many who read and study this chapter are 1st or 2nd generation students of R. B. Thieme, Jr., so that much of this vocabulary is second nature. One of Bob’s contributions to theology is a fresh vocabulary along with a number of concepts which are theologically new or reworked, yet still orthodox. Therefore, if you are unfamiliar with his work, the definitions below will help you to fully understand all that is being said. Also, I have developed a few new terms and concepts which require definition as well.

In addition, there are other more traditional yet technical theological terms which will be used and therefore defined as well.

Sometimes the terms in the exegesis of this chapter are simply alluded to, without any in-depth explanation of them. Sometimes, these terms are explained in detail and illustrated. A collection of all these terms is found here: (HTML) (PDF) (WPD).

Definition of Terms

Gloss
A word or phrase added in by way of explanation by a later author (or copyist). I include in this those people who might relay this narrative verbally. This would have been done by a later writer or copyist.
A type is a preordained representation wherein certain persons, events, and institutions of the O.T. stand for corresponding persons, events, and institutions of the N.T. Types are pictures or object lessons by which God has taught His redemptive plan. They are a shadow of things to come, not the image of those things (Col. 2:17 Heb. 8:5 10:1). The Mosaic system, for example, was a kind of kindergarten in which God's people were trained in divine things and taught to look forward to the realities of things yet to come.¹

Chapter Outline

An Introduction to Genesis 35

Introduction: In the previous chapter, a man named Shechem had raped Dinah, a daughter of Leah and Jacob. As a result, Levi and Simeon, sons of Jacob, avenged her rape and killed all of the males related to Shechem; and then took all their women, children and stuff as their own.

Genesis 35 is somewhat of an unusual chapter. Vv. 1–8 pretty much continue the narrative of Gen. 34. The sons of Israel had made themselves odious in the land, so they had to move from Shechem to Bethel, as guided by God. In v. 8, Deborah, Rebekah’s nurse, dies—interestingly enough, we have never heard her name before, so she needs to be explained and read into the picture.

God seems to appear to Jacob once again in vv. 9–15 in Bethel. Jacob is associated with Bethel twice—once when he was leaving Canaan and 20+ years later after he had returned from Paddan-aram. This appears to be a second encounter in Bethel with God; and God names him Israel a second time.

They left Bethel and Rachel, Jacob’s wife, will go into a hard labor. She will give birth to Benjamin, Jacob’s final son; but she will die in the process (vv. 16–20).

Israel (Jacob) continues traveling south and Reuben, his eldest son, has sexual relations with Bilhah, has father’s mistress. There is little editorial comment in the Bible about this incident.

This chapter ends with a list of Jacob’s 12 sons, and finally with the death of his father Isaac.

Gen. 35 is quite a hodgepodge of topics, very much as if someone is looking way back into their past and chronicling important events which took place over a period of so many years. We have the deaths of Deborah (Rebekah’s maid), Rachel and Isaac. However, sandwiched between these deaths are a two meetings between Jacob and God, Reuben’s sin against his father, and a list of all Jacob’s 12 sons. Given all of this material and the long-view perspective, it would be my guess that Joseph, Jacob’s second youngest son, recorded this information as an adult when in Egypt. These are the highlights of the things which take place between moving to Bethel and the death of Isaac. It would make sense that these are the sorts of things a very young Joseph would recall from these years. He is setting the table, so to speak, for things to come.

Authorship discussion: When I first began studying this chapter, I believed that Joseph authored some of all of it. However, this final appearance by God to Israel is something that Jacob himself would have more likely recorded. And if he recorded that, then the material which occurs prior to this, would likely be Jacob’s writing as well.

There are those who ascribe the authorship of the Law to several authors, most of whom lived several centuries after Moses, did so primarily because they were predisposed to removed prophecy from that portion of the Bible. They did not like that there would be prophecies centuries prior to those prophecies coming true. Therefore, they concluded that this was all written sometime later by a few religious fanatics and strung together after that, perhaps during the dispersion. On the other hand, there are the more conservative group who believes that Moses wrote every word of the Law. Nowhere does the New Testament ascribe Mosaic authorship to Genesis; it does to the other four books—see the Study of Inspiration (HTML) (PDF) (WPD).

Even though Jacob tells us a great deal, there is always interesting information about each incident which he leaves out. In this chapter, God will speak to Jacob, but we have no idea how God came to speak to Jacob. Quite often, in the past, God spoke to him through dreams.

It is the summary nature of these events which makes me think that Joseph recorded them. However, I would view Jacob as a close second for recording these things (when someone gets older, they tend to focus on the most important events).

Given this theory, we would expect the life of Joseph to unfold in subsequent chapters, which it does—with the exception of Gen. 36, which gives the genealogy of Esau, who developed his family into a powerful kingdom over these years. Since this kingdom is not far from Egypt, it would make sense that Egypt is aware of this kingdom of Edom and of its rulers.

In any case, the events of this chapter, although significant, would have occurred within a fairly small window of time—say over a period of 10 years. This is because Benjamin, Joseph’s younger brother, will be born; and the next time we speak of Joseph specifically, he is 17 years old. It is almost as if Joseph is setting the stage for his narrative (Gen. 37–50) by writing, this was the life I was born into (he does not write that; but it would be apropos if he wrote this chapter of Genesis).

It may help to have an overview of this chapter and those to come, which will help to explain who authored them.

<td>Genesis 38</td>
<td>This is one of the oddest narratives in Scripture. It is here for a purpose, but that purpose is not known for hundreds of years. This is all about Judah and how he leaves his brothers and takes up with a Canaanite woman, has children, finds a wife (Tamar) for his first son, and then that son dies. The woman is given to his second son and that son dies. Although Judah promises his third son to her, he does not deliver on this promise. Sometime later, Judah’s wife dies, and he has relations with Tamar, not realizing who she is. When she is pregnant, he calls for her execution, when it is revealed that he is the father.</td>

There are two points that need to be made about Gen. 38. The first is the time frame—this chapter has to take place in the very short space of 20–22 years (unless there is some overlap with subsequent chapters). Secondly, this chapter seems like it is thrown into Genesis without reason (like Gen. 36), but this is the line of the Messiah, which is obviously quite significant. No one at this time has any idea that this will be the line of David and David’s Greater Son.

We do not know if these chapters existed as separate traditions which were later woven into the book of Genesis (presumably by editor Moses); or if these were written and memorized and passed along as an entire literary unit (or some mixture of these two).

We should bear in mind that, prior to Moses taking a position of leadership over the people of Israel, the children of Israel in Egypt were aware of their God (Ex. 1:17–21 2:23–25 3:7–18); as well as Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and Jacob’s sons (Ex. 1:1–8 2:1 3:6). This suggests that they knew at least portions of their heritage, if not the Scriptures themselves (which would have consisted of the books of Genesis and Job).

2 These can be tricky passages because, strictly speaking, they do not involves Hebrews expressing faith in their God.

Here is what to expect from Genesis 35:

A Synopsis of Genesis 35
Like all chapters of the Word of God, you need more than just the simple plot outline to understand what God wants us to know.

Chapter Outline

God was absent from the very morally ambiguous chapter of Gen. 34. However, God will return and speak to Jacob in this chapter.

The first title is often applicable to the entire chapter (although it may pertain just to the verses which follow it to the next section heading).

Obviously, there are a great many subjects covered in Gen. 35. Interestingly enough, the NKJV, the TEV and the NJB are almost identical. Only the NASB seemed to catch the significance of Jacob’s new name (enough to consider it to have a subtitle).

We also have a changing of the guard, if you will, at the end of chapter 35 (Jacob’s sons are mentioned in full; and Isaac’s death is recorded). We know that this will be an eventful chapter because Scofield’s notes go from being \( \frac{1}{6} \) of a page to \( \frac{1}{4} \) of a page.

The chapter breaks are man-made and not inspired by God (ditto for the divisions of the verses). Chapter 34 should not have stopped here, necessarily. Jacob and his family are leaving Shechem because of the incident of the previous chapter and traveling south to Bethel. Shechem is Northwest of the Dead Sea and Bethel is 30 miles south of there, still slightly Northwest of the Dead Sea. This is not far enough away from Shechem; however, they will stop there for a short time.

Kukis slavishly literal:

And so says Elohim unto Jacob, “Arise; go up [to] Bethel and live there and make there an altar to the \( \text{Ì} \text{l, the One appearing unto you in your fleeing from faces of Esau your brother.”

Kukis moderately literal:

Elohim said to Jacob, “Arise [and] go up [to] Bethel and live there. Construct an altar there to \( \\text{Ì} \text{l, the One Who appeared to you when you fled from Esau your brother.

Kukis not-so-literal paraphrase:

God said to Jacob, “Rise up and go to Bethel and live there. Built an altar there to God, the One Who appeared to you after you fled from Esau your brother.”

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Note: I compare the Hebrew text to English translations of the Latin, Syriac and Greek texts, using the Douay-Rheims translation\(^5\); George Lamsa’s translation, and Sir Lancelot Charles Lee Brenton’s translation as revised and edited by Paul W. Esposito, respectively. I often update these texts with non-substantive changes (e.g., you for thou, etc.). I often use the text of the Complete Apostles’ Bible instead of Brenton’s translation, because it updates the English text.

The Septuagint was the earliest known translation of a book (circa 200 B.C.). Since this translation was made before the textual criticism had been developed into a science and because different books appear to be translated by different men, the Greek translation can sometimes be very uneven.

When there are serious disparities between my translation and Brenton’s (or the text of the Complete Apostles’ Bible), I look at the Greek text of the Septuagint (the LXX) to see if a substantive difference actually exists (and I reflect these changes in the English rendering of the Greek text). I use the Greek LXX with Strong’s numbers and morphology available for e-sword. The only problem with this resource (which is a problem for similar resources) is, there is no way to further explore Greek verbs which are not found in the New Testament. Although I usually quote the Complete Apostles’ Bible here, I have begun to make changes in the translation when their translation conflicts with the Greek and note what those changes are.

\(^5\) I have begun to doubt my e-sword Douay-Rheims version, so I now use www.latinvulgate.com.
The Masoretic text is the Hebrew text with all of the vowels (vowel points) inserted (the original Hebrew text lacked vowels). We take the Masoretic text to be the text closest to the original. However, differences between the Masoretic text and the Greek, Latin and Syriac are worth noting and, once in a great while, represent a more accurate text possessed by those other ancient translators.

In general, the Latin text is an outstanding translation from the Hebrew text into Latin and very trustworthy (I say this as a non-Catholic). Unfortunately, I do not read Latin—apart from some very obvious words—so I am dependent upon the English translation of the Latin (principally, the Douay-Rheims translation).

Underlined words indicate differences in the text.

Bracketed portions of the Dead Sea Scrolls are words, letters and phrases lost in the scroll due to various types of damage. Underlined words or phrases are those in the Dead Sea Scrolls but not in the Masoretic text.

I will only list the translation from the Dead Sea Scrolls if it exists and if it is different from the Masoretic text.

The Targum of Onkelos is actually the Pentateuchal Targumim, which are The Targums of Onkelos and Jonathan Ben Uzziel. On the Pentateuch With The Fragments of the Jerusalem Targum From the Chaldee by J. W. Etheridge, M.A. From http://www.becomingjewish.org/texts/targum/onkelos_genesis.html and first published in 1862.

The very fact that we have ancient Greek, Latin, Syriac and Arabic translations of the Bible testifies to its accuracy. There may be a difference word or phrase here or there; the Greek may have a singular where the Hebrew has a plural, but there is no set of doctrines in the Latin Bible which are any different from those found in the Greek Bible or the Syriac Bible. These different cultures when they chose to translate the Bible chose to translate it as accurately as possible. Where human viewpoint would expect to find doctrinal differences between the Bible of the Hebrews, of the Greeks or of the Romans, no such differences exist.

Ancient texts:

Masoretic Text (Hebrew)  And so says Elohim unto Jacob, “Arise; go up [to] Bethel and live there and make there an altar to the 'Èl, the One appearing unto you in your fleeing from faces of Esau your brother.”

argum (trans. Etheridge)  And the Lord said to Jakob, Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there, and make there an altar unto Eloha, who revealed Himself to you in your flight from before Esau, thy brother.

Latin Vulgate  In the mean time God said to Jacob: Arise and go up to Bethel, and dwell there, and make there an altar to God, who appeared to thee when thou didst flee from Esau, thy brother.

Peshitta (Syriac)  AND God said to Jacob, Arise, go up to Beth-él, and dwell there; and build there an altar to God, who appeared to you when you fled from the presence of your brother Esau.

Septuagint (Greek)  And God said to Jacob, Arise, go up to Bethel, and dwell there; and make there an altar to the God that appeared to you, when you fled from the face of Esau your brother.
And God said to Jacob, Go up now to Beth-el and make your living-place there: and put up an altar there to the God who came to you when you were in flight from your brother Esau.

Jacob goes home and Isaac dies

God said to Jacob, ‘Get up. Go to Bethel and live there. When you ran away from your brother Esau, you saw God. Now make an altar there for God's honour.

Easy-to-Read Version

God said to Jacob, “Go to the town of Bethel [This name means "God’s house."] Live there and make an altar [A stone table used for burning sacrifices that were offered as gifts to God.] for worship. Remember El [A Hebrew name for God.], the God who appeared [God often used special shapes so people could see him. Sometimes he was like a man, an angel, a fire, or a bright light.] to you there when you were running away from your brother Esau. Make your altar to worship that God there.”

The Message

God spoke to Jacob: "Go back to Bethel. Stay there and build an altar to the God who revealed himself to you when you were running for your life from your brother Esau."

NIRV

Jacob Returns to Bethel

Then God said to Jacob, "Go up to Bethel and live there. Build an altar there to honor me. That's where I appeared to you when you were running away from your brother Esau."

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

Common English Bible

Jacob establishes worship at Bethel

God said to Jacob, "Get up, go to Bethel, and live there. Build an altar there to the God who appeared to you when you ran away from your brother Esau."

Contemporary English V.

God told Jacob, "Return to Bethel, where I appeared to you when you were running from your brother Esau. Make your home there and build an altar for me."

The Living Bible

"Move on to Bethel now, and settle there," God said to Jacob, "and build an altar to worship me—the God who appeared to you when you fled from your brother Esau."

Names of God Bible

Jacob's Fifth Encounter with God

Then Elohim said to Jacob, "Go to Bethel and live there. Make an altar there. I am the El who appeared to you when you were fleeing from your brother Esau."

New Berkeley Version

God said the Jacob: Get ready! Move up to Bethel; settle there and build there an altar to God, who appeared to you when you were fleeing from your brother Esau.

New Life Version

God said to Jacob, "Get ready and go to Bethel to live. Make an altar there to God, Who showed Himself to you when you ran away from your brother Esau."

New Living Translation

Then God said to Jacob, "Get ready and move to Bethel and settle there. Build an altar there to the God who appeared to you when you fled from your brother Esau."

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible

Then God told Jacob: 'Get up and go up to the place [you named] BethEl, and live there. Then build an altar to the God that appeared to you there, when you were running from your brother Esau.'

Beck’s American Translation

At Bethel

God told Jacob, “Go up to Bethel, stay there, and build an altar there to God, whom you saw when you fled from your brother Esau.”
Jacob Moves to Bethel

Later, God told Jacob, "Get up, move to Bethel, and live there. Build an altar to the God who appeared to you when you were fleeing from your brother Esau."

In the meanwhile, too, God had said to Jacob, Bestir thyself, go up to Bethel, and make thy dwelling there; there build an altar to the God who revealed himself to thee when thou wast in flight from thy brother Esau.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

- Ancient Roots Translinear: God said to Jacob, "Rise and ascend to Bethel to dwell there. Make there an altar to the God you saw when you disappeared from the face of Esau your brother."
- Conservapedia: God said to Jacob, "Rise, go up to Bethel. Live there and make there an altar to God, Who appeared to you when you ran away from your brother Esau." Bethel literally means "house of God." This was the location of Jacob's stairway dream.
- Ferar-Fenton Bible: GOD afterwards said to Jacob ` Arise; go to Beth-el and reside, and make an altar there to the GOD who appeared to you in your flight from your brother Esau.
- Lexham English Bible: Jacob Goes Back to Bethel And God said to Jacob, "Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there, and make an altar to the God who appeared to you when you fled from before Esau your brother."
- Translation for Translators: Jacob and his family returned to Bethel

Catholic Bibles:

- Christian Community (1988): Jacob at Bethel
  God said to Jacob, "Go up to Bethel and settle there. Build an altar there to God who appeared to you when you were fleeing from your brother Esau."

- The Heritage Bible: And God said to Jacob, Rise up, ascend to Bethel, and dwell there; and make there an altar to God who appeared to you when you fled from the face of Esau, your brother.

- New American Bible (2011): Bethel Revisited. God said to Jacob: Go up now to Bethel. Settle there and build an altar there to the God who appeared to you when you were fleeing from your brother Esau [Gen. 28:12-13]. [35:1-7] Jacob returns to Bethel and founds the sanctuary, an event that forms a "bookend" to the first visit to Bethel in 28:10-22. To enter the Lord's sanctuary, one must purify oneself and get rid of all signs of allegiance to other gods (Jos 24:23; Jgs 10:16). Jacob also seems to initiate the custom of making a pilgrimage to Bethel (see Ps 122:1 and Is 2:3, 5).

- New Jerusalem Bible: God said to Jacob, 'Move on, go to Bethel and settle there. Make an altar there for the God who appeared to you when you were fleeing from your brother Esau.'

- Revised English Bible: GOD said to Jacob, "Go up now to Bethel and, when you have settled there, erect an altar to the God who appeared to you when you fled from your brother Esau."

Jewish/Hebrew Names Bibles:

- exeGeses companion Bible: YAAQOV MOVES TO BETH EL
  And Elohim says to Yaaqov, Rise, ascend to Beth El and settle there: and work there a sacrifice altar to El; who was seen by you

6 Also called the revised edition.
And Elohim (הַלָּהַּ יִתָּ) said to Ya'aakov:

Arise, go up to Beit-El, and dwell there: and make there an altar to EL, that appeared to you when you fleddest from the face of Esav your brother.

The Voice

Genesis is filled with moral failures and ethical dilemmas, the kinds of things that happen in real life. Abraham's children are not perfect people; they-like the rest of us-are deeply flawed and conflicted over the tough moral choices we all have to make. After Dinah is forcibly raped, what are her brothers to do to protect her and restore their family honor? How is justice to be done? How can they make things right? These are important questions. The desire to protect those you love and to make things right is a noble impulse, but ignoble deeds follow. Skilled in deception, her brothers use circumcision-their covenant obligation-to temporarily disable the men and make them vulnerable to attack. After the carnage, Jacob, the older, wiser head of the family, knows the score: actions like these have consequences. Violence only breeds more violence. If they are to survive, they must leave . . . soon.

God (to Jacob): Get up, go back to Bethel, and settle there. Build an altar to Me, to the God who appeared to you when you ran away from your brother, Esau.

Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:

Concordant Literal Version
And saying is the Elohim to Jacob, "Rise, go up to the place at Beth-El and dwell there, and make there an altar to El Who appeared to you when you ran away from the face of Esau, your brother."

God said to Jacob, "Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there. Make an altar there to the God who appeared to you when you fled from your brother Esau."

NASB
Jacob Moves to Bethel
Then God said to Jacob, "Arise, go up to Bethel and live [Lit dwell] there, and make an altar there to God, who appeared to you when you fled from your face of Esau your brother."

New European Version
Jacob Quits Pagan Gods
God said to Jacob, Arise, go up to Bethel, and live there. Make there an altar to God, who appeared to you when you fled from the face of Esau your brother.

New King James Version
Jacob's Return to Bethel
Then God said to Jacob,"Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there; and make an altar there to God, who appeared to you when you fled from the face of Esau your brother."

World English Bible
God said to Jacob, "Arise, go up to Bethel, and live there. Make there an altar to God, who appeared to you when you fled from the face of Esau your brother."

Young's Updated LT
And God says unto Jacob, "Rise, go up to Bethel, and dwell there, and make there an altar to God, who appeared unto you in your fleeing from the face of Esau your brother."

The gist of this verse:
God tells Jacob to rise up and go to Bethel and live there, and make an altar there. This is where God appeared to Jacob before.

At this point, it does not appear that Jacob has seen his father Isaac.

Translation: ..."Arise [and] go up [to] Bethel and live there... Bethel is a bit north of Jerusalem. It means House of God.

It is not clear at first just how close Gen. 34 is to Gen. 35 in time. Did Jacob’s sons kill the males of Shechem and take their stuff; and God came to Jacob and said, “Here’s where I want you to move to next”? Or is this simply the next significant set of events in the lives of Jacob and his family, taking place perhaps a few years later? Let’s look at a map:

Map of Shechem and Bethel; from bible-history.com; accessed November 23, 2015 (only a portion of the map is reproduced). Bethel is about 20 miles due south of Shechem.

Logically, because these cities are so close (by our terms), God’s command to Jacob probably occurred right after the events of Gen. 34. We might surmise that Jacob, worried about the jackpot his sons had landed him in, prayed to God, saying, “My sons have killed the men of Shechem and have taken their substance. What can I do? Will the people of the land find out and kill us?” And God says to him, “Get up and go to Bethel.”

The manner in which God spoke to Jacob is not revealed, but throughout Jacob’s section of Genesis, there always appear to be a number of unanswered questions.

I am only making an educated guess about this—that these events are close together in time and that God is responding to a prayer from Jacob. This does appear to fit together reasonably well, given the proximity of Shechem and Bethel.

So that there is no misunderstanding, the Bible does not justify what Jacob’s sons Levi and Simeon did in the previous chapter. It is possible that all of Shechem (the city) would have gathered around Shechem (the king’s first son), but the sons of Jacob used duplicity and murder instead to deal with what happened.

One thing which ought to be clear: Jacob and his sons are undeserving of God’s grace. There will be various points throughout the history of the Jewish people where it is clear, they do not deserve what God does for them or what God promises to them.

The three patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob did a lot of traveling. They always lived in tents which is analogous to our living in the world in our temporary habitations, or bodies. Our home is in heaven and we dwell in tabernacles (tents; temporary dwellings) as the patriarchs did. Jacob has lived in Bethel and has traveled north to flee from Esau and now he is returning to this area again. Jacob recognizes that there is one God and one God only; so he requires that all of the idols be gotten rid of. He has picked up people from all different kinds of cultures and under his roof (actually, within his compound), he has the right to require that idolatry be removed from his home.

So God speaks to Jacob and tells him to move:

Translation: ...the One Who appeared to you when you fled from Esau your brother.”  The last time that God appeared to Jacob was when he was fleeing Esau, some 40 years or so ago.

This estimation of time is based upon Jacob living 20 years with Laban, and then returning, and his sons being old enough to fight and kill the sons of Hamor in the previous chapter. His sons would have started being born in the 8th year of living with Laban.

Genesis 35:1 And God said to Jacob, “Arise, go up to Bethel, and live there. And make an altar there to God, who appeared to you when you fled from the face of Esau your brother.”

God tells Jacob to move south, to Bethel, which is a reasonable distance away from where they were in Gen. 34. The text reads up to Bethel because Jacob will be going up into the hill country of Judah (not then known as Judah). We often think of up as referring to going north; in the time of the Jews, up refers to a higher elevation.

In Gen. 34, it is clear that Jacob’s sons have veered far away from the faith of Yahowah, and this is the fault of Jacob. It is the father’s responsibility to take the lead in spiritual things in his family. The mother (in this case, mothers) may often have more interest in spiritual matters, but it is the husband who should lead.

This is to remind you of a previous encounter that Jacob had with God.

A Blast from Jacob’s Past
Jacob previously, because of his own bad decisions, angered his brother Esau so much, that he (Jacob) had to flee their home, so he went to Bethel. Recall this from that time:

Gen 28:10–12 Jacob left Beersheba and went toward Haran. And he came to a certain place and stayed there that night, because the sun had set. Taking one of the stones of the place, he put it under his head and lay down in that place to sleep. And he dreamed, and behold, there was a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven. And behold, the angels of God were ascending and descending on it!

Jacob had cheated Esau out of his blessing, and Esau was angry enough to kill him because of this. His mother, Rebekah, helped to get Jacob out of the area, saying that Jacob needed to meet a woman who is not a heathen and to marry her. So Jacob will travel to Laban’s ranch (Laban is Rebekah’s brother). At the same time, Rebekah kept herself from being implicated in her own scheme to defraud her husband and other son.

Jacob has barely been on the trail for a day or two, when he had the vision described above.

Gen 28:13–15 And behold, the LORD stood above it and said, "I am the LORD, the God of Abraham your father and the God of Isaac. The land on which you lie I will give to you and to your offspring. Your offspring shall be like the dust of the earth, and you shall spread abroad to the west and to the east and to the north and to the south, and in you and your offspring shall all the families of the earth be blessed. Behold, I am with you and will keep you wherever you go, and will bring you back to this land. For I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised you."

God speaks to Jacob and makes great promises to him. However, bear in mind, none of this is deserved. Jacob is a picture of God’s grace, because he clearly does not deserve what God has given him and promised him.

Gen 28:16–19 Then Jacob awoke from his sleep and said, "Surely the LORD is in this place, and I did not know it." And he was afraid and said, "How awesome is this place! This is none other than the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven." So early in the morning Jacob took the stone that he had put under his head and set it up for a pillar and poured oil on the top of it. He called the name of that place Bethel, but the name of the city was Luz at the first.

Jacob would certainly be inspired for short periods of time. Having God speak to him and see the angels ascend and descend certainly got Jacob’s attention.

Gen 28:20–22 Then Jacob made a vow, saying, "If God will be with me and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat and clothing to wear, so that I come again to my father's house in peace, then the LORD shall be my God, and this stone, which I have set up for a pillar, shall be God's house. And of all that you give me I will give a full tenth to you."

Jacob makes a vow to God about giving 10% of his income, which suggests that there were spiritual organizations that he could have given to. You may recall Abraham’s meeting with Melchizedek the great priest, were Abraham gave him an offering. This would suggest that such a priesthood existed in the time of Jacob, although I do not recall there being a reference to it.

Jacob makes other vows to God, that the LORD (lit., Y’howah) would be his God. If you remember much of what we have studied, except when God speaks to Jacob, there is very little spiritual activity in his life.

Notice above that Jacob said, "...and this stone, which I have set up for a pillar, shall be God’s house." Bethel means God’s house (or, more literally, house of God).

In any case, God wanted to take Jacob back to a place that Jacob clearly associated with God; at a time when Jacob’s thinking was better. He may have been fleeing Esau due to a series of bad decisions, but this caused Jacob to focus more intently on God and God’s leading.
So God tells Jacob, “Return to Bethel.” Many times, we associate where we are with spiritual experiences. If you have attended a doctrinal church and have made friends with a variety of believers, and have experienced spiritual growth at such a place, then returning to that place many years later will evoke memories. In this situation, it is clear that Jacob has moved far away from God and has not guided his sons toward spiritual truth. So, perhaps the intention here by God is to cause Jacob to remember what he has seen and what he has said to God.

Do not become confused by this. God is not sending Jacob to Bethel so that Jacob will remember to give his 10%—giving is a privilege in the spiritual life—but so that Jacob might remember his relationship to God and act upon that.

And so says Jacob unto his house and unto all who [are] with him, “Remove elohim foreign who [are] in your midst; and purify yourselves and change your garments. Genesis 35:2

Jacob then said to his house and to those who [are] with him, “Remove the foreign elohim who [are] in your midst; and purify yourselves and change your garments.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew): And so says Jacob unto his house and unto all who [are] with him, “Remove elohim foreign who [are] in your midst; and purify yourselves and change your garments.
- Targum of Onkelos: And Jakob said to the men of his house, and to all who were with him, Put away the idols of the peoples which are among you which you took from the temple [Or "the house of idols."] of Shekem, and purify you from the uncleannesses of the slain whom you have and change your raiment.
- Latin Vulgate: And Jacob having called together all his household, said: Cast away the strange gods that are among you, and be cleansed, and change your garments.
- Peshitta (Syriac): Then Jacob said to his household and to all who were with him, Put away the strange gods that are among you, and cleanse yourselves, and change your garments; ...
- Septuagint (Greek): And Jacob said to his house, and to all that were with him, Remove the strange gods that are with you from the midst of you, and purify yourselves, and change your clothes.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

- Bible in Basic English: Then Jacob said to all his people, Put away the strange gods which are among you, and make yourselves clean, and put on a change of clothing:...
- Easy English: So Jacob said this to his “household and to everyone with him: ‘Throw away the foreign gods that you have. Wash yourselves and change your clothes.
- Easy-to-Read Version: So Jacob said to his family and to all his servants, “Destroy all those foreign gods made of wood and metal that you have. Make yourselves pure. Put on clean clothes.
- The Message: Jacob told his family and all those who lived with him, "Throw out all the alien gods which you have, take a good bath and put on clean clothes, we're going to Bethel.
I'm going to build an altar there to the God who answered me when I was in trouble and has stuck with me everywhere I've gone since." V. 3 is included for context.

Names of God Bible
So Jacob said to his family and those who were with him, "Get rid of the foreign gods which you have, wash yourselves until you are ritually clean ["Clean" refers to anything that is presentable to God.], and change your clothes.

NIRV
So Jacob spoke to his family and to everyone with him. He said, "Get rid of the statues of false gods you have with you. Make yourselves pure by washing and changing your clothes.

New Simplified Bible

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

Contemporary English V.
Jacob said to his family and to everyone else who was traveling with him: Get rid of your foreign gods! Then make yourselves acceptable to worship God and put on clean clothes.

The Living Bible
So Jacob instructed all those in his household to destroy the idols they had brought with them, and to wash themselves and to put on fresh clothing.

New Berkeley Version
Jacob then told his household and all under his authority, "Get rid of all the strange gods you have with you; purify yourselves and change your clothes; then let us get ready and move up to Bethel. A portion of v. 3 is included for context.

New Century Version
So Jacob said to his family and to all who were with him, "Put away the foreign gods you have, and make yourselves clean, and change your clothes.

New Living Translation
So Jacob told everyone in his household, "Get rid of all your pagan idols, purify yourselves, and put on clean clothing.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible
So Jacob told his family and everyone that lived with him: 'Get rid of the strange gods that you have, then wash yourselves, change your clothes, and get ready, because we're going up to BethEl, where we will build an altar to the God who listened to me, was with me, and kept me safe throughout my journey and trials.' V. 3 is included for context.

International Standard V
Jacob announced to his household and to everyone with him, "Throw away the foreign gods that you've kept among you, purify yourselves, and change your clothes.

New Advent (Knox)Bible
Whereupon Jacob summoned all his household; Cast away, he told them, whatever images of alien gods you have among you, purify yourselves, and put on fresh garments.

Translation for Translators
So Jacob said to his household and to all the others who were with him, "Get rid of the idols you brought from Mesopotamia. Also, bathe yourselves and put on clean clothes.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Ancient Roots Translinear
Jacob said to his house, and to all with him, "Turn from the foreign gods in your midst. Clean and change your raiment.

Conservapedia
Then Jacob said to his household, and everyone with him, "Put away the foreign gods that are in your midst, and cleanse yourselves, and change your clothes." This certainly includes, perhaps without limitation, the theraphim that Rachel stole from Laban.

Ferrar-Fenton Bible
So Jacob Destroys the Idols of his Family and Servants
So Jacob said to his family, and all who were with him; "Throw away.
Then Jacob said to his household and to all who [were] with him, "Get rid of the foreign gods that [are] in your midst and purify yourselves and change your garments.

The Expanded Bible
So Jacob said to his ·family [household] and to all who were with him, "Put away the foreign gods you have, and ·make yourselves clean [purify yourselves], and change your clothes.

Kretzmann’s Commentary
Then Jacob said unto his household, and to all that were with him, Put away the strange gods that are among you, and be clean, and change your garments. This was an act of repentance, since Jacob, up till now, had permitted Rachel to keep her father's idols, Gen. 31:32, and had not turned the hearts of the members of his household from idolatry. His order went forth that all the strange gods and everything that savored of superstition and idolatry be removed from midst, that they should purify themselves, moreover, through religious washings and by a complete change of garments.

NET Bible®

So Jacob told his household and all who were with him, "Get rid of the foreign gods you have among you [Heb "which are in your midst."] Purify yourselves and change your clothes [The actions of removing false gods, becoming ritually clean, and changing garments would become necessary steps in Israel when approaching the Lord in worship.]."

Syndein/Thieme

Then Jacob {Israel} said unto his household, and to all that were with him, "Put away the strange Elohim/gods that are among you, and make yourself clean (spiritual cleanliness in view here - use rebound), and change your garments. {physical cleanliness now}."

The Voice

Jacob told his household and those with him to get ready to move.

Jacob: Get rid of any foreign gods you have in your possession. Purify yourselves: bathe and change your clothes.

Concordant Literal Version

And saying is Jacob to his household and to all who are with him, "Take away the foreign elohim which are in your midst, and clean yourselves, and change your garments.

Translation: Jacob then said to his house and to those who [are] with him,... The relationship between God and Jacob is much different from that between God and Abraham. You will recall that Abraham appeared to carefully record all that God said to him; and that God appeared to speak at length with Abraham. Either God has very little to say to Jacob, or Jacob has not remembered all that was said to him.

With the bêyth preposition, tâvekô can mean in the middle of, in the midst of; into, among. In the Hebrew, this is spelled לְבֵית. With the 1st person plural suffix, it means in our midst. With the 2nd person masculine plural suffix, it can mean in your midst, among you. With the 3rd person masculine plural suffix, it can mean in their midst, among them.

Translation: ...“Remove the foreign elohim who [are] in your midst;... It appears that there were those in his family who has foreign gods with them—perhaps small statues or religious icons from the surrounding peoples.

Jacob’s sons plundered the people of Shechem, killing all of the males and keep the women and children and their stuff. No doubt, this included various gods and religious artifacts.

There are now a whole new group of people with Jacob and his family. Remember that they have taken the children and the wives of Shechem’s family. They are not to have any foreign gods; no statuettes or religious symbols.

There are those in Jacob’s own family who may have various heathen religious items (recall that Rachel stole some religious figurines from her father).

Remember that God has already appeared to Jacob and angels have appeared to Jacob; and that Jacob has made great promises to God—promises which he has apparently not kept. When God speaks to him again, Jacob is reminded of his own shortcomings.
We know very little of the religious practices of the family of Abraham. Abraham certainly built more altars than Jacob did; and in more places. Abraham appeared to have a much closer relationship with God, which is confirmed in Scripture. Abraham is called the friend of God; Jacob is renamed Israel (on two occasions).

Jacob realizes that he needs to clean up his act here, and anything which is related to heathenistic religious practices must be removed from his family. It seems likely that this change of heart is based upon what his sons did in Shechem. Jacob may recognize, to a limited degree, that he has not properly guided or instructed his sons.

Translation: ...and purify yourselves and change your garments. We do not have a specific system of worship described in the Old Testament until the Land of Promise. We know that animals are offered up sacrificially, but this appears to be the first time they are told that there needed to be some sort of purification process (which is not specified) and that clothes are apparently changed, as representative of the purification.

Because of where purify yourselves is, it is difficult to ascertain whether they were ordered to wash up or whether there were some religious purification rituals that they entered into. Putting away the foreign gods seems in indicate the latter, but putting on new garments seems to indicate the former. In any case, they were about to spend a long time on the road and Jacob was getting them prepared for it. During this journey, they would feel more and more at God's mercy and Jacob is trying to see that no one will cause them to stumble on this lengthy trip.

Now, we cannot truly purify ourselves; but this is strictly ceremonial. It stands for the requirement that God has that, in order to interact with Him, we must be pure. We cannot have any bit of sin in us. God cannot accept the sin that we have committed; He cannot accept the sin nature which is integral to our humanity; and He cannot accept Adam's original sin which has been imputed to us. Just reducing the amount of sinning that we do or making our sins less noticeable to those around us does not make us pure—ceremonially or actually. By requiring these things, Jacob was telling his family that we must approach God in complete and total purity—without even a speck of sin.

Changing their garments represents getting a resurrection body, one which is cleansed of sin.
And let us rise up and let us go up [to] Bethel and let me make there an altar to the 'Èl, the One answering me in a day of my affliction and so He is with me in the way which I have gone.

Let us rise up and go to Bethel and let me construct in that place an altar to 'Èl, the One answering me in the day of my distress. He is always with me in the way that I have gone.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew): And let us rise up and let us go up [to] Bethel and let me make there an altar to the 'Èl, the One answering me in a day of my affliction and so He is with me in the way which I have gone.

- Targum of Onkelos: And we will arise and go up to Bethel, and I will make there an altar unto Eloha, who heard my prayer in the day when I was afflicted, and whose Word was my helper in the way that I went.

- Latin Vulgate: Arise, and let us go up to Bethel, that we may make there an altar to God; who heard me in the day of my affliction, and accompained me in my journey.

- Peshitta (Syriac): And let us arise and go up to Bethel-el; and I will build there an altar to God, who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the journey that I took.

- Septuagint (Greek): And let us rise and go up to Bethel, and let us there make an altar to God who listened to me in the day of calamity, who was with me, and preserved me throughout in the journey, by which I went.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

- Bible in Basic English: And let us go up to Beth-el: and there I will make an altar to God, who gave me an answer in the day of my trouble, and was with me wherever I went.

- Easy English: Let us get up. We will go up to Bethel. There I will make an "altar for God's honour. God listened to me when I was in trouble. He has been with me wherever I have gone."

- Easy-to-Read Version: We will leave here and go to Bethel. In that place, I will build an altar to the God who helped me during my time of trouble. And that God has been with me everywhere I went."

- The Message: ...we're going to Bethel. I'm going to build an altar there to the God who answered me when I was in trouble and has stuck with me everywhere I've gone since."

- Names of God Bible: Then let's go to Bethel. I will make an altar there to El, who answered me when I was troubled and who has been with me wherever I've gone."

- NIRV: Come, let's go up to Bethel. There I'll build an altar to honor God. He answered me when I was in trouble. He's been with me everywhere I've gone."

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

- Common English Bible: Then let's rise and go up to Bethel so that I can build an altar there to the God who answered me when I was in trouble and who has been with me wherever I've gone."

- Contemporary English V.: Afterwards, we'll go to Bethel. I will build an altar there for God, who answered my prayers when I was in trouble and who has always been at my side.
Then let us get ready and go to Bethel. I will make an altar there to God, Who answered me in the day of my trouble, and was with me every place I went."

We are now going to Bethel, where I will build an altar to the God who answered my prayers when I was in distress. He has been with me wherever I have gone."

Restored Names Version

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

The Amplified Bible
Then Jacob said to his household and to all who were with him, Put away the [images of] strange gods that are among you, and purify yourselves and change [into fresh] garments; Then let us arise and go up to Bethel, and I will make there an altar to God Who answered me in the day of my distress and was with me wherever I went. V. 2 is included for context.

Bullinger’s Companion Bible
And let us arise, and go up to Beth-el; and I will make there an altar to God, Who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way which I went.” (cp.28:20; 31:3,42)

The Expanded Bible
We will leave here and go [rise up and go up] to Bethel. There I will build an altar to God, who has helped [answered me] during my time of trouble [in the day of my distress]. He has been with me [an indication of a covenant relationship] everywhere I have gone."

Kretzmann’s Commentary
And let us arise, and go up to Bethel; and I will make there an altar unto God, who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way which I went.

The journey was to be from the lowlands near Shechem southward to the mountainous country of what was later Northern Judea. Jacob openly confessed his debt to the Lord, who had answered him in the day of his trouble, when he fled before his brother Esau, and declared his intention of fulfilling his vow.

NET Bible®
Let us go up at once to Bethel. Then I will make [The cohortative with the prefixed conjunction here indicates purpose or consequence.] an altar there to God, who responded to me in my time of distress [Heb "day of distress." See Ps 20:1 which utilizes similar language.] and has been with me wherever I went [Heb "in the way in which I went." Jacob alludes here to God's promise to be with him (see Gen 28:20).]."

The Voice
Then come with me. We’re going to Bethel so that I can build an altar there to the God who answers me whenever I am in distress and who is with me wherever I go.

Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:

Concordant Literal Version
And rise will we and go up to Beth-El, and make will I there an altar to the El Who answered me in the day of my distress, and came to stand by me and saved me in the way which I went.

A Conservative Version
And let us arise, and go up to Bethel, and I will make there an altar to God, who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me on the way which I went.

Emphasized Bible
And Jacob said unto his house, and unto all who were with him,—Put away the gods of the alien which are in your midst, and purify yourselves, and change your garments; And let us arise, and go up to Beth-el,—that I may make there an altar to the GOD who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way that I went. V. 2 is included for context.

English Standard Version
Then let us arise and go up to Bethel, so that I may make there an altar to the God who answers me in the day of my distress and has been with me wherever I have gone."

Green’s Literal Translation
And let us rise up and go up to Bethel. And I will make an altar there to God, who answered me in the day of my distress. And He was with me in the way in which I went.

NASB
...and let us arise and go up to Bethel, and I will make an altar there to God, who answered me in the day of my distress and has been with me wherever [Lit in the way which] I have gone."
And we rise, and go up to Bethel, and I make there an altar to God, who is answering me in the day of my distress, and is with me in the way that I have gone.'

The gist of this verse: Jacob tells his family that he will build an altar to God in Bethel, because He has answered his prayers and has been with Jacob wherever he was.

Translation: Let us rise up and let us go up [to] Bethel... Despite being nothing like his grandfather, when Jacob is told to do something by God, he did it.

Rising up indicates that someone develops a plan and follows through on it; or that one has a purpose and follows through on it.

Note that Jacob has done wrong, and he was, in a respect, cast out of the land; but now he has returned.

The cohortative hê, when applied to the first person, the idea is an expression of will or compulsion, and in the singular, may be expressed with I must, I could, I would, I will, I should, I may. When applied to the 1st person plural, the verb is often preceded by let us (as in Gen. 1:26).

Translation: He is with me in the way that I have gone. Jacob, despite his shortcomings and despite the mistakes made by his sons, he still recognizes that God has been with him all of this time.

Jacob here is witnessing to those in his periphery; in his family. This is something which he had not done before. We have seen that a couple of years ago, Jacob’s spiritual life was pretty weak. He had no real testimony. He recognizes how God has been with him constantly, during his difficult times, and that God had consistently delivered him. Very few of us realize how closely God operates in our lives; how active His guidance is and close that He is. We chose to push Him away, as Jacob had for most of these years.
Regarding God’s will in our lives, we see the interplay of God’s plan and the volition of man in the upcoming chapters of Scripture. In Gen. 38, no one seems to have any idea what they ought to be doing, but God’s plan still moves forward, as this chapter is all about the Line of Promise. In Gen. 37, 39–50, Joseph is clearly aware of God’s will and he is clearly a mature believer. And so, God’s plan moves forward in his life as well (and in the lives of his family). But whether attuned to God’s thinking (as Joseph is) or not (Judah), God’s plan still moves ahead; it is never slowed or stopped because of human volition.

Jacob, although nothing like his grandfather Abraham, did have moments of clarity, which is what we see here.

Genesis 35:3  And let us arise and go up to Bethel, and I will make an altar there to God, Who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way which I went."

Jacob tells them about the God Who answered him, in a time of difficulty. I would assume that Jacob went into more detail about this encounter.

God having talked to Jacob along with the idea of going back to Bethel has Jacob speaking to his family about to God to whom they are related. His sons knew something about this relationship—they were all circumcised—but they did not appear to know much more than that.

God has answered Jacob on several occasions when he was in distress. The way Gen. 34 ended is only one example of this.

Genesis 35:4  And so they give unto Jacob all [the] elohim foreign which [were] in their hand and the rings which [were] in their [two] ears. And so hides them Jacob under the oak which [was] with Shechem.

They gave over to Jacob all of their foreign gods which they carried along with the religious rings which were in their ears. Jacob then buried them under the oak which was in Shechem.

  They turned over to Jacob all the alien gods they'd been holding on to, along with their lucky-charm earrings. Jacob buried them under the oak tree at Shechem.

- NIRV

  So they gave Jacob all the statues of false gods they had. They also gave him their earrings. Jacob buried those things under the oak tree at Shechem.

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

- Contemporary English V.

  So everyone gave Jacob their idols and their earrings, and he buried them under the oak tree near Shechem.

- New Berkeley Version

  Then they handed Jacob all the strange gods they had, and their earrings [Earrings were worn by both sexes and by children (Ex. 32:2), but some used them idolatrously as amulets (Isa. 3:20); hence their removal on this occasion.], which Jacob buried beneath the Shechem terebinth.

- New Life Version

  So they gave to Jacob all the strange gods they had, and the gold objects which they wore in their ears. And Jacob hid them under the tree near Shechem.

- New Living Translation

  So they gave Jacob all their pagan idols and earrings, and he buried them under the great tree near Shechem.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

- American English Bible

  Then they gave Jacob all the strange gods which they owned and the earrings in their ears; and Jacob buried [these things] under a turpentine tree at SeciMa, where they’ve remained destroyed down to this day.

- International Standard V

  So they handed over to Jacob all their foreign gods on which they had been depending [Lit. gods that were in their hands], along with the rings that they were wearing on their ears. Jacob buried them under the oak that grew near Shechem.

- New Advent (Knox) Bible

  So they gave him all the images of alien gods that were in their possession, the rings, too, which they wore on their ears, and he buried them under the mastic-tree, close to the town of Sichem.

- Translation for Translators

  So they gave to Jacob all the idols that they had brought, and all their earrings. Jacob buried them in the ground under the big oak tree that was near Shechem town.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

- Ancient Roots Translinear

  They gave to Jacob all the foreign gods in their hand, and the hoops from their ears. Jacob camouflaged them under a terebinth-tree in Shechem.

- Conservapedia

  They gave Jacob all the foreign gods that were in their hand, and all the pendants in their ears, and Jacob hid these under the terebinth tree that was next to Shechem. The terebinth (Pistacia terebinthus) is not an oak at all. It is a tree common to the south and southeast of modern Israel. It is a deciduous tree that grows to a maximum height of 30 feet (9 meters) and produces red berries.\(^7\)

Jubilee Bible 2000

So they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their power and all their earrings which were in their ears, and Jacob hid them under the oak which was by Shechem.

Lexham English Bible

So they gave to Jacob all the foreign gods that [were] in their hands, and the ornamental rings that [were] in their ears. And Jacob buried them under the oak which [was] near Shechem.

Catholic Bibles:

New American Bible (2002)

They therefore handed over to Jacob all the foreign gods in their possession and also the rings [Earrings were often worn as amulets connected with pagan magic.] they had in their ears.

New American Bible (2011)

They gave Jacob all the foreign gods in their possession and also the rings they had in their ears [the earrings may have belonged to the gods because earrings were often placed on statues.] and Jacob buried them under the oak that is near Shechem.

New Jerusalem Bible

They gave Jacob all the foreign gods in their possession, and the earrings that they were wearing. Jacob buried them under the oak tree near Shechem.

Revised English Bible

They handed over to Jacob all the foreign gods in their possession and the ear-rings they were wearing, and he buried them under the terebinth tree near Shechem.

Jewish/Hebrew Names Bibles:

Complete Jewish Bible

They gave Ya'akov all the foreign gods in their possession and the earrings they were wearing, and Ya'akov buried them under the pistachio tree near Sh'khem.

exeGeses companion Bible

And they give 'Yaaqov all the strange elohim in their hand and all their noserings in their ears; and 'Yaaqov buries them under the oak by Shechem:....

Judaica Press Complete T.

And they gave Jacob all the deities of the nations that were in their possession and the earrings that were in their ears, and Jacob hid them under the terebinth that was near Shechem.

Kaplan Translation

They gave Jacob all the idolatrous artifacts that they had, even the rings in their ears. Jacob buried them under the terebinth tree near Shechem. It was under this tree that Joshua later set up a stone (Joshua 24:26; Rashi ad loc.). From a Gen. 12:6 footnote: The terebinth of the Torah is a large tree (Pistacia atlantica) of the sumac family, also related to the pistachio. It is also sometimes identified with the oak. The terebinth could live for over a thousand years, and was often as much as twenty feet in diameter. The Terebinth of Moreh would have been a particularly large tree that served as a landmark in the area. See Genesis 35:4, Judges 9:6.

Orthodox Jewish Bible

And they gave unto Ya'akov kol elohei hanekhar which were in their yad, and all their nezamim which were in their oznayim; and Ya'akov buried them under the elah (terebinth) which was at Shechem.

The Scriptures 1998

So they gave Ya'aqoḇ all the foreign mighty ones which were in their hands, and all their earrings which were in their ears. And Ya’aqoḇ hid them under the terebinth tree which was near Sheḵem.

So they [both young men and women] gave to Jacob all the strange gods they had and their earrings which were [worn as charms against evil] in their ears; and Jacob buried and hid them under the oak near Shechem.

And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hand, and all their earrings which were in their ears [showing that "strange gods" were part of the booty: probably of precious metals]; and Jacob hid them under the oak which was by Shechem.

So they gave Jacob all the foreign gods which they had [in their possession; in their hands], and the earrings which they were wearing on their ears, and he hid them under the great tree [oak; or terebinth; 12:6] near the town of Shechem.

And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hand, and all their earrings which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them under the oak which was by Shechem.

And giving are they to Jacob all the foreign elohim which are in their hand, and the pendants which are in their ears. And burying them is Jacob under the terebinth which is at Shechem.

So they gave Jacob all the foreign gods that were in their possession [Heb "in their hand."] and the rings that were in their ears [On the basis of a comparison with Gen 34 and Num 31, G. J. Wenham argues that the foreign gods and the rings could have been part of the plunder that came from the destruction of Shechem (Genesis [WBC], 2:324).]. Jacob buried them under the oak [Or "terebinth."] near Shechem and they started on their journey. A portion of v. 5 is included for context.

And they gave to Jacob all the strange gods which [were] in their hand, and [the] ear-rings which [were] in their ears; and Jacob hid them under the oak which [was] by Shechem.
And they give unto Jacob all the gods of the stranger that are in their hand, and the rings that are in their ears, and Jacob hides them under the oak which is by Shechem.

The gist of this verse: All those under Jacob handed over their figurines and other religious symbols and he buried them under the oak by Shechem.

This combination of the bêyth preposition and hand means in their hand; in their power, in their possession; under their control; with them; through them, by them, by means of them; at their hand [i.e., before them, in their sight].

Translation: They gave to Jacob all [their] foreign gods [= elohim] which were in their hands...  This might be better understood as figurines which represented gods that they carried about with them.

The sons of Jacob killed the men of Shechem and took all of their wives and children, as well as their things, which would have included all of these small statues and religious ware. And, you may recall that Rachel brought some figurines which she stole from her family.

Translation: ...and the [religious] rings which [were] in their ears.  Since the rings are mentioned in the same breath, it would make sense that they have a religious significance to them.

This does not mean that the rings which they wore in their ears were wrong as ornaments. These apparently had some sort of pagan significance (such as little gods hanging from them or engraved onto them), and therefore were as idolatrous as the idols which some of the people possessed. This connection with idolatry is further verified by Hosea 2:13. Ex. 32:2 indicates that earrings were worn by women and children. These earrings had strange creatures engraved in them for the expressed purpose of warding off evil and as good luck charms.

Translation: These rings were not worn as mere ornaments, but for superstitious purposes; perhaps as amulets or charms, first consecrated to some false god, or formed under some constellation, and stamped with magical characters. Maimonides mentions rings and jewels of this kind, with the image of the sun, moon, etc., impressed upon them; and Augustine describes them (Epist. 73), as used for this execrable purpose.\(^8\)

Interestingly enough, their earrings appear to have some religious significance. Their strange gods would have been figurines and the like that they worshiped (not unlike our statuettes of Mary).

Jacob was about to renew his covenant with God; he was beginning to realize that God had an extremely important function for him to play in history and that it was about time that he took it seriously. The reason that Jacob hid them was so they could not secretly go back and retrieve these idols and take them with them. This sentence here indicates to us that Jacob is still the author of this portion of God’s Word.

(the city which was named after him); and then it appeared that they might have to leave, because they had made themselves odious to the people around them. However, Gen. 34 does not have them actually leaving this area. In Gen. 35, Jacob is burying these religious artifacts under an oak in Shechem, suggesting that they remained in this area.

Jacob hides these things. The mention of Shechem here further confirms that they are living in Shechem now, and God has appeared to Jacob immediately after Gen. 34 in order to give Jacob some guidance.

In our culture, for the most part, earrings are simply jewelry. For that reason, there is no religious significance to them.

Also note the concept of authority here. God speaks to Jacob and then Jacob communicates to his family. We already know that Jacob is no spiritual giant, and yet God continues to work through him. God does not appear to the entire family of Jacob, and give them all instructions—God appears to the one in charge, and then allows Jacob take it from there.

This reference to an oak in Shechem is interesting because it suggests that (1) there was one oak in Shechem; (2) there was one notable oak in Shechem; or (3) there was an oak that was majestic and magnificent where the family of Jacob stayed.

And so they [pulled up stakes and] journeyed [on]. And so is terror of Elohim upon the cities which [are] from around them; and they did not pursue after sons of Jacob.

Genesis 35:5

So they [pulled up stakes and] journeyed [on]. Also, the terror of Elohim is upon the cities which [are] surrounding them; so they did not follow after the sons of Jacob.

The sons of Jacob pulled up stakes and left. Also, the terror of God was upon the cities around them, so that the inhabitants did not chase after the sons of Jacob.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Masoretic Text (Hebrew)
And so they [pulled up stakes and] journeyed [on]. And so is terror of Elohim upon the cities which [are] from around them; and they did not pursue after sons of Jacob.

Targum of Onkelos
And they journeyed from thence, offering praise and prayer before the Lord. And there was a tremor from before the Lord upon the people of the cities round about them, and they pursued not after the sons of Jakob.

Latin Vulgate
And when they were departed, the terror of God fell upon all the cities round about, and they durst not pursue after them as they went away.

Peshitta (Syriac)
And they journeyed; and the fear of God fell upon the towns that were round about them, and they did not pursue after Jacob and his sons.

Septuagint (Greek)
So Israel departed from Shechem, and the fear of God was upon the cities round about them, and they did not pursue after the children of Israel.

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

Bible in Basic English
So they went on their journey: and the fear of God was on the towns round about, so that they made no attack on the sons of Jacob.
Then Jacob set out on his journey with all those people. God made the people in the cities along the way very afraid. So they did not chase Jacob and his sons.

Then they set out. A paralyzing fear descended on all the surrounding villages so that they were unable to pursue the sons of Jacob.

When Jacob and everyone with him started out. The terror of God fell on the towns all around them. So no one chased them.

As they moved on, Elohim made the people of the cities that were all around them terrified so that no one pursued them.

Then they started to leave, great fear fell on the people of the nearby towns, and they did not pursue them.

When Jacob and his sons started to leave, great fear fell on the people of the nearby towns, and they did not pursue them.

Then Jacob and his family traveled through Canaan. God terrified the people in the towns so much that no one dared bother them.

When Jacob and his sons left that place. The people in that area wanted to follow and kill them. But they became very afraid and did not follow Jacob.

When they set out, God made all of the surrounding cities fearful so that they didn't pursue Jacob's sons.

While Jacob and his family were traveling through Canaan, God terrified the people in the towns so much that no one dared bother them.

Then they started on again. And the terror of God was upon all the cities they journeyed through, so that they were not attacked.

They broke camp and a God-sent dread rested on the surrounding towns so that they did not pursue Jacob's sons.

Then Jacob and his sons left there. But God caused the people in the nearby cities to be afraid, so they did not follow them.

As they traveled, much fear from God came upon the cities around them. So the people of the land did not go against the sons of Jacob.

As they set out, a terror from God spread over the people in all the towns of that area, so no one attacked Jacob's family.

Then they set out, and the terror of God fell on the towns all around them so that no one pursued them.

As they prepared to leave there, God caused the people who lived in the cities around them to be extremely afraid of Jacob's family [PRS], so that they did not pursue and attack them.

And so they journeyed. The dismay of God lay upon the cities that stood round about them, and they did not chase after the sons of Jacob.
Then they marched, and a terror from God was upon their neighbours, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob.

Catholic Bibles:

- Christian Community (1988) They then left and a terror fell on all the surrounding towns with the result that no one followed in pursuit of them.
- The Heritage Bible And they pulled up, and the fear of God was upon the cities that were around them, and they did not run after the sons of Jacob.
- New American Bible (2011) Then, as they set out, a great terror fell upon the surrounding towns, so that no one pursued the sons of Jacob.
- New Jerusalem Bible They broke camp; a divine terror struck the towns round about, and no one pursued the sons of Jacob.
- Revised English Bible As they moved off, the towns round about were panic-stricken, so that they were unable to pursue Jacob’s sons.

Jewish/Hebrew Names Bibles:

- exeGeses companion Bible ...and they pull stakes: and the terror of Elohim on the cities surrounding them; and they pursue not after the sons of Yaaqov.
- Hebraic Transliteration And they journeyed: and the terror of Elohim (אֵלֹהִים) was upon the cities that [were] round about them, and they did not pursue after benai Ya’akov.
- Kaplan Translation They began their journey. The terror of God was felt in all the cities around them, and they did not pursue Jacob’s sons.
- Orthodox Jewish Bible And they journeyed; and the chittat Elohim (terror of G-d) was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the Bnei Ya’akov.
- Restored Names Version And let us rise, and ascend to Bethel; and I will make there an altar to God who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way which I walked.
- The Scriptures 1998 And they departed, and the fear of Elohim was upon the cities that were all round about them, and they did not pursue the sons of Ya’aqob.

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

- The Expanded Bible Then Jacob and his sons left there. But ·God caused the people in the nearby cities to be afraid ['the terror of God was on the surrounding cities], so they did not ·follow [pursue] them.
- Kretzmann’s Commentary And they journeyed; and the terror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob. That they struck their tents and removed from the neighborhood of Shechem without interference on the part of the heathen inhabitants in the neighboring cities was due entirely to the divine protection.
- NET Bible® So they gave Jacob all the foreign gods that were in their possession and the rings that were in their ears. Jacob buried them under the oak near Shechem and they started on their journey. The surrounding cities were afraid of God [Heb "and the fear of God was upon the cities which were round about them." The expression "fear of God" apparently refers (1) to a fear of God (objective genitive; God is the object of their fear). (2) But it could mean "fear from God," that is, fear which God placed in them (cf. NRSV "a terror from God"). Another option (3) is that the divine name is used as a superlative here, referring to "tremendous fear" (cf. NEB "were panic-stricken"; NASB "a great terror").], and they did not pursue the sons of Jacob.
The Voice

As they traveled, God struck terror into the hearts of all of the cities along the way so that no one pursued Jacob's family.

Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:

Concordant Literal Version
And journeying is Israel out of Shechem. And coming is the dismay of the Elohim on the cities which surround them, and they do not pursue after the sons of Israel.

Emphasized Bible
And they brake up,—and it came to pass that the terror of God, was on the cities which were round about them, so that they pursued not after the sons of Jacob.

English Standard Version
And as they journeyed, a terror from God fell upon the cities that were around them, so that they did not pursue the sons of Jacob.

Green's Literal Translation
And they pulled up stakes. And the terror of God was on the cities all around them, and they did not pursue the sons of Jacob.

Webster's Bible Translation
They traveled: and a terror of God was on the cities that were round about them, and they didn't pursue the sons of Jacob.

Young's Literal Translation
And they journey, and the terror of God is on the cities which are round about them, and they have not pursued after the sons of Jacob.

The gist of this verse:
The people around the area of Shechem were afraid and did not attack Jacob's caravan.

Translation: Also, the terror of Elohim is upon the cities which are surrounding them;... At some point in time, the people in the surrounding towns must have known that something went on in Shechem. However, they are in fear of the sons of Jacob.

All the neighboring villages had heard what Jacob’s sons did to the inhabitants of Shechem and they were likely very indignant and understood that their actions were evil and vicious. In many of these villages, the number of men far outnumbered the number of men which were with Jacob. Under normal circumstances, some of these villages would have come out and killed all of Jacob’s family in retribution or to do it to them before Jacob’s family did it to them. However, God caused these men to be afraid of Jacob’s family so that they had safe passageway out of that area.

Translation: ...so they did not follow after the sons of Jacob. As a result, they did not chase after the sons of Jacob.

The terror of God is on the cities nearby, so no one attacked this family. This fear is apparently of God, done in order to protect the family of Jacob.

What seems to be likely is, the cold-blooded nature of what the sons of Israel did to Hamor and his family made other groups of people decide not to mess with them. The end result would be fear, and no one would be interested in their families intermarrying and thus confusing the God-given identity of the Jews.

People have reputations, and sometimes, these reputations are not based upon a clear understanding of the facts. Here, we are told that the terror of God was upon the cities in Jacob’s vicinity. You may think, well, of course, because Jacob’s sons killed Hamor and his family. But that is not the only response that these cities could have.

King David was very successful militarily. However, his armies continued to fight the cities around Israel almost every single year for the bulk of his kingship. The armies which David faced were not so filled with fear as to back away from David; these people continued to be aggressive, even though they were certainly aware the David’s army had just defeated many of their neighbors in battle. My point here is, even though Jacob’s sons killed Hamor and his family, the terror of God felt by the people in nearby cities is not the only possible response to this knowledge.

Just as we do not know exactly how God appeared to Jacob; we also do not know much about the terror of God experienced by the cities near to Shechem and Bethel. It seems obvious that these other cities nearby would have heard about the slaughter of Hamor by Jacob and that their response was fear. Exactly how this was of God (as v. 5 tells us) is not completely clear.
And so comes Jacob to Luz, which [is] in Canaan (she [is] Bethel), he and all the people who [were] with him. And so he builds an altar and so he calls to the place El-Bethel, for there reveals Himself unto him the Elohim in his fleeing from faces of his brother.

Genesis 35:6–7

Jacob came to Luz, which [is] in Canaan (it [is also known as] Bethel)—he and all of the people who [were] with him. Then he built an altar and he called the place El-bethel, because the Elohim revealed Himself to him there, when he was fleeing from his brother.

Jacob came to Luz (also known as Bethel), which is in Canaan—he and all the people who are with him. There he built an altar and he called the place El-bethel because it was here that God revealed Himself to him, when he was fleeing from his brother.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew): And so comes Jacob to Luz, which [is] in Canaan (she [is] Bethel), he and all the people who [were] with him. And so he builds an altar and so he calls to the place El-Bethel, for there reveals Himself unto him the Elohim in his fleeing from faces of his brother.

- Targum of Onkelos: And Jakob came to Luz in the land of Kenaan, which is Bethel, he and all the people who were with him. And he builded there an altar, and named that place, To God, who made His Shekinah to dwell in Bethel, because there had been revealed to him the angels of the Lord, in his flight from before Esau his brother.

- Latin Vulgate: And Jacob came to Luza, which is in the land of Chanaan, surnamed Bethel: he and all the people that were with him. And he built there an altar, and called the name of that place, The house of God: for there God appeared to him when he fled from his brother.

- Peshitta (Syriac): So Jacob came to Luz, that is Beth-el, which is in the land of Canaan, he and all the people that were with him. And he build there an altar, and called the place Beth-el (the house of God), because there God appeared to him when he fled from the presence of his brother Esau.

- Septuagint (Greek): And Jacob came to Luz, which is in the land of Canaan, which is Bethel, he and all the people that were with him. And he built there an altar, and called the name of the place Bethel; for there God appeared to him, when he fled from the face of his brother Esau.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

- Bible in Basic English: And Jacob came to Luz in the land of Canaan which is the same as Beth-el, he and all his people. And there he made an altar, naming the place El-beth-el: because it was there he had the vision of God when he was in flight from his brother.

- Easy English: Jacob came to Luz. (That is, Bethel.) It is in the country called Canaan. He came with all the people that were with him. Jacob built an *altar there. Jacob had seen God there when he ran away from his brother. So he called the place El-Bethel.

- Easy-to-Read Version: So Jacob and his people went to Luz. Luz is now called Bethel [A town in Israel. This name means "God's house."] It is in the land of Canaan. Jacob built an altar [A stone table used for burning sacrifices that were offered as gifts to God.] there. Jacob named the place “El Bethel.” Jacob chose this name because that is the place God first appeared to him when he was running from his brother.
Jacob came with all his people to Luz, which is now known as Bethel, in the land of Canaan. He built an altar there and named the place for the God of Bethel, because God had revealed himself to him there when he was running away from his brother.

The Message
Jacob and his company arrived at Luz, that is, Bethel, in the land of Canaan. He built an altar there and named it El-Bethel (God-of-Bethel) because that's where God revealed himself to him when he was running from his brother.

Names of God Bible
Jacob and all the people who were with him came to Luz (that is, Bethel) in the land of Canaan. He built an altar there and called that place El Bethel [God of the House of God]. That's where Elohim had revealed himself to Jacob when he was fleeing from his brother.

NIRV
Jacob and all the people with him came to Luz. Luz is also called Bethel. It's in the land of Canaan. Jacob built an altar at Luz. He named the place El Bethel. There God made himself known to Jacob when he was running away from his brother.

New Simplified Bible
Finally, they reached Bethel, also known as Luz. Jacob built an altar there and called it God of Bethel. That was the place where God appeared to him when he was running from Esau.

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

Common English Bible
Jacob and all of the people with him arrived in Luz, otherwise known as Bethel, in the land of Canaan. He built an altar there and named the place El-bethel,[a] because God had revealed himself to him there when he ran away from his brother.

Contemporary English V.
Finally, they reached Bethel, also known as Luz. Jacob built an altar there and called it "God of Bethel," because that was the place where God had appeared to him when he was running from Esau.

The Living Bible
Finally they arrived at Luz (also called Bethel), in Canaan. And Jacob erected an altar there and named it "the altar to the God who met me here at Bethel"[a] because it was there at Bethel that God appeared to him when he was fleeing from Esau.

New Century Version
And Jacob and all the people who were with him went to Luz, which is now called Bethel, in the land of Canaan. There Jacob built an altar and named the place Bethel, after God, because God had appeared to him there when he was running from his brother.

New Life Version
So Jacob and all the people who were with him came to Luz (that is, Bethel) in the land of Canaan. He built an altar there, and gave the place the name El-bethel. Because God had shown Himself to him there, when Jacob ran away from his brother.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible
Well, Jacob and all the people that were with him finally arrived at Luza in the land of Canaan, which [he had earlier named] BethEl; for it was there that he had built an altar and called it 'the House of God,' because that's where God appeared to him when he was running from his brother Esau.

Beck’s American Translation
Jacob and all the people with him came to Luz, that is, Bethel, in the land of Canaan. And there he built an altar, and he called the place God-of-Bethel because God had shown Himself to him there when he fled from his brother.

International Standard V
Eventually, Jacob and everyone with him arrived at Luz (also called Beth-el) in the territory of Canaan. He built an altar there to God and named the place El Beth-el, because God had revealed himself there when he was fleeing from his brother.

New Advent (Knox) Bible
Jacob, then, with all his clan, made their way to Luza, which is now called Bethel, and built an altar there. It was he who called the place Bethel, the house of God, because it was there God appeared to him when he was in flight from his brother.
Jacob and all those who were with him came to Luz, which is now called Bethel, in Canaan land. There he built an altar. He named the place El-Bethel, which means 'God of Bethel,' because it was there that God revealed himself to Jacob when he was fleeing from his older brother Esau.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Ancient Roots Translinear
Jacob came to Luz (it's Bethel) which is in the land of Canaan, he and all the people with him. He built there an altar, and called the place El-Bethel (God of Bethel) for God revealed himself there when he disappeared from the face of his brother.

Conservapedia
So Jacob came to Luz, in the land of Canaan, which is to say, Bethel, together with all the people who were with him. There he built an altar, and called the place El-Bethel, because in that place God appeared to him when he ran away from his brother.

Ferar-Fenton Bible
So Jacob came to Luz in the land of Canaan (it is Beth-el), and his people with him. He also built an altar there, and called the House of God, Beth-el, for there God appeared to him in his flight from the presence of his brother.

Lexham English Bible
And Jacob came to Luz which [was] in the land of Canaan (that [is] Bethel), he and all the people that [were] with him. And he built an altar there and called the place El-Bethel, for there God had appeared to him when he fled before his brother.

Catholic Bibles:

Christian Community (1988)
When Jacob and all those with him came to Luz in Canaan—which is Be-thel—he built an altar there and called the place El-Bethel because it was there that God had shown himself to him when he was fleeing from his brother.

New American Bible (2011)
Thus Jacob and all the people who were with him arrived in Luz (now Bethel) in the land of Canaan [Gn 28:19; Jos 18:13; Jgs 1:22-23.]. There he built an altar and called the place El-Bethel,* for it was there that God had revealed himself to him when he was fleeing from his brother [Gn 28:12-13.]. El-Bethel: probably to be translated "the god of Bethel." This is one of several titles of God in Genesis that begin with El (= God), e.g., El Olam (21:33), El Elyon (14:18), El the God of Israel (33:20), El Roi (16:13), and El Shaddai. Most of these (except El Shaddai) are tied to specific Israelite shrines.

New Jerusalem Bible
When Jacob arrived at Luz in Canaan -- that is, Bethel-and all the people with him, he built an altar there and named the place El-Bethel, since it was there that God had appeared to him when he was fleeing from his brother.

Revised English Bible
Jacob and all the people with him came to Luz, that is Bethel, in Canaan. There he built an altar, and called the place El-bethel, because it was there that God had revealed himself to him when he was fleeing from his brother.

Jewish/Hebrew Names Bibles:

Complete Jewish Bible
Ya’akov and all the people with him arrived at Luz (that is, Beit-El) in the land of Kena’an. He built there an altar and called the place El-Beit-El [God of Beit-El], because it was there that God was revealed to him, at the time when he was fleeing from his brother.

exeGeses companion Bible
So Yaaqov comes to Luz in the land of Kenaan - Beth El - he and all the people with him: and he builds there a sacrifice altar and calls the place El Beth El: because there Elohim exposed himself to him, when he fled the face of his brother.

Kaplan Translation

Jacob and all the people with him came to Luz in the land of Canaan - that is, to Beth El. He built an altar there, and he named the place Beth El's God (El Beth El), since this was the place where God was revealed to him when he was fleeing from his brother.

Orthodox Jewish Bible

So Ya'akov came to Luz, which is in Eretz Kena'an, that is, Beit-El, he and kol haAm that were with him. And he built there a Mizbe'ach, and called the makom (place) El Beit-El; because there HaElohim appeared unto him, when he fled from the face of achiv.

Restored Names Version

And Ya'aqob came to Luwz (she is Bayith-El) that is in the land of Kena'an, he and all the people who were with him. And he built an altar there and called the place El Bayith-El, because there the Elohiym appeared to him when he fled from the face of his brother.

The Scriptures 1998

And Ya'aqob came to Luz, that is Bêyth Él, which is in the land of Kena'an, he and all the people who were with him. And he built there an altar and called the place El Bêyth Él, because there Elohim appeared to him when he fled from the face of his brother.

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

The Amplified Bible

So Jacob came to Luz, that is, Bethel, which is in the land of Canaan, he and all the people with him. There he built an altar, and called the place El-bethel [God of Bethel], for there God revealed Himself to him when he fled from the presence of his brother.

The Expanded Bible

And Jacob and all the people who were with him went to Luz, which is now called Bethel, in the land of Canaan. There Jacob built an altar and named the place ·Bethel, after God [El-Bethel; or "God of Bethel"], because God had appeared to him there when he was ·running [fleeing] from his brother.

Kretzmann’s Commentary

So Jacob came to Luz, which is in the land of Canaan, that is, Bethel, he and all the people that were with him. Cf Gen. 28:19-22. And he built there an altar, and called the place El Bethel (God of Bethel), because there God appeared unto him when he fled from the face of his brother. By thus instituting the worship of the true God Jacob paid his vow of some thirty years before, for he distinctly remembered the revelation of God at that time, which seems to have indicated also the plurality of persons in the Godhead.

NET Bible®

Jacob and all those who were with him arrived at Luz (that is, Bethel)16 in the land of Canaan [Heb "and Jacob came to Luz which is in the land of Canaan - it is Bethel - he and all the people who were with him."]16. He built an altar there and named the place El Bethel [The name El-Bethel means "God of Bethel."] because there God had revealed himself [Heb “revealed themselves.” The verb הביא (niglu), translated “revealed himself,” is plural, even though one expects the singular form with the plural of majesty. Perhaps עלים (elohim) is here a numerical plural, referring both to God and the angelic beings that appeared to Jacob. See the note on the word “know” in Gen 3:5.] to him when he was fleeing from his brother.

The Voice

Jacob, and all those who were with him, arrived in Luz (which is also known as Bethel) in the land of Canaan. 7 There he built an altar and called the place El-bethel because it was there that God had revealed Himself to Jacob when he was running away from his brother.

Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:

Context Group Version

So Jacob came to Luz, which is in the land of Canaan (the same is Beth-el), he and all the people that were with him. And he built there an altar, and called the place El-beth-el; because there God was revealed to him, when he fled from the face of his brother.

Emphasized Bible

And Jacob came in towards Luz, which was in the land of Canaan, the same is Beth-el,—he and all the people who were with him. And he built there an altar, and called the place El-Beth-el,—because, there, God revealed himself unto him, when he fled from the face of his brother,...

God's Truth (Tyndale)

So came Jacob to Lus in the land of Canaan, otherwise called Bethell, with all the people that was with him. And he builded there an altar, and called the place Bethel: because that God appeared unto him there, when he fled from his brother.

Third Millennium Bible

So Jacob came to Luz (that is, Bethel), which is in the land of Canaan, he and all the people that were with him. And he built there an altar and called the place Elbethel [that is, The God of Bethel], because there God appeared unto him when he fled from the face of his brother.

Webster's Bible Translation

So Jacob came to Luz, which [is] in the land of Canaan (that is Beth-el) he and all the people that [were] with him. And he erected there an altar, and called the place El-beth-el; because there God appeared to him, when he fled from the face of his brother.

Young's Updated LT

And Jacob comes in to Luz which is in the land of Canaan (it is Bethel), he and all the people who are with him, and he builds there an altar, and proclaims at the place the God of Bethel: for there had God been revealed unto him, in his fleeing from the face of his brother.

The gist of this verse:

Jacob and his family arrived in Bethel and he built an altar there, calling that place “The God of Bethel” because God revealed Himself to Jacob there 20 years earlier.

Translation: Jacob came to Luz, which [is] in Canaan (it [is also known as] Bethel)... God told Jacob to go to Bethel, which was originally known as Luz. Jacob, when alone, met God there, and he called it Bethel (Gen. 28:19).

Bethel means House of God, and we find this name affixed to this area as early as Gen. 12:8 13:3. This does not mean that it had this name during the time of Abraham; but that was added or changed perhaps a few hundred years later for clarity (I am assuming that Abraham himself originally recorded Gen. 12–13). Let’s take a look at these previous verses:

Gen. 12:8 reads: From there he [Abraham] moved to the hill country on the east of Bethel and pitched his tent, with Bethel on the west and Ai on the east. And there he built an altar to the LORD and called upon the name of the LORD.

Gen. 13:3–4 read: And he journeyed on from the Negeb as far as Bethel to the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Bethel and Ai, to the place where he had made an altar at the first. And there Abram called upon the name of the LORD. (ESV)

So, what appears to be the case is, these verses were first recorded using the name Luz, and that someone, after the fact, replaced Luz with Bethel. Abraham would have known this place by the name Luz; Jacob knew it as Bethel, as he gave it that name in Gen. 28:19 (He [Jacob] called the name of that place Bethel, but the name of the city was Luz at the first.). I see this as the most logical and simple explanation.

It would not make sense for this city to be known as Bethel during the time of Abraham, because Bethel is made up of two very common and oft-used Hebrew words.

Translation: Then he built an altar... Jacob had come through here before, when he was running from the situation he had created for himself when he was at home. When he arrived in Luz, God appeared to him. He set up a memorial then; and he builds an altar now.
An altar is where animals would be offered up to God—portraying the Son of God Who would offer up Himself for our sins.

Jacob, unlike Abraham, his grandfather, was not known for offering sacrifices or building altars. God has come to him on several occasions but he has not very often gone to God. In Gen. 31:54, after Laban caught up with him Jacob made a sacrifice to God. When he first settled in Shechem, he made a sacrifice to God. His making these sacrifices and building these two altars indicates that he was finally becoming oriented to life in his old age. He finally was recognizing that God was operating in his life.

What Jacob Had Asked for From God/How Jacob Promised to Respond

The last time that Jacob had been there, he had a dream, referred to as Jacob's ladder (or escalator). He named that area Bethel and, during his spiritual immaturity, he made a vow to God. He expected God to:

- Be with him
- To guard him on this journey away from home
- To provide food for him to eat
- To provide clothes for him to wear
- To cause him to return safely to his father's house (he has not seen Isaac since he left 20 years previous)

In return, Jacob was to:

- Make Yahweh his God (doesn't this remind you of making Jesus Lord God in our lives?)
- Jacob would give God a tenth of all that God had given him

So there is no misunderstanding, this was a vow made by a spiritually weak believer and such vows often mean very little (although God will hold a person to his vows). During those times, Jacob manipulated and deceived others, and to a certain extent, that is what he was doing to God. Thiemé's language, as I recall, is that some people try to strap it on God. They think that they can make a trade out. God usually has to go first when it comes to self-preservation. However, people make vows and trade-offs with God also when they want some material item or some person. Then they often will begin giving God some great thing so that God must repay them by giving them what it is that they want. It is not unlike being good for the month prior to Christmas (or, as it was in my case, a few days before Christmas).

Translation: ...and he called the place `El-bethel,... Before, he called this general area Bethel. Here, he calls this particular place `El-bethel, meaning God—House of God. Or, God of the House of God.

I do not fully understand why Jacob calls this place El-Bethel (= God of the House of God) as opposed to plain Bethel. Perhaps with this new group of people who are with him, Jacob is making emphatic his meeting with God in this place.

The change of the name of Bethel is significant. Bethel meant House of God because Jacob, in his spiritual youth, was quite impressed by meeting God there. His concept of Who and What God was, was very limited. However, when he returns, he has already faced Esau with confidence in God. He escaped Esau years ago in fear and also ran from Laban in fear. Finally, after being wrestled and having his butt kicked by Jesus Christ, Jacob met Esau with confidence in his own preservation and in the preservation of his family. He now knows the God Who he met at Bethel, so he renames this place The God of the House of God, because he now knows this God. You may wonder, didn’t Jacob already name Luz Bethel? And he did, back in Gen. 28:19. However, you cannot simply name a city on your own, and necessarily have that name stick. Charley Brown cannot simply call the city of Houston Brownsville and have it stick. So, Jacob named it back in Gen. 28:19; God later appeared to him and said, “I am the God of Bethel” which is El-Bethel in the Hebrew (Gen. 31:13). And so, Jacob returns to Luz and names it again El-bethel.

However, here Jacob builds an altar (and therefore offers sacrifices upon the altar) and he names this particular place El-bethel not to fulfill his vows to God, but because he recognizes that God was gracious enough to reveal Himself to Jacob when Jacob did not deserve this in any way, shape or form.

All of a sudden, in the next verse, we have an unusual statement. We have been traveling with Jacob and his wives, which include Rachel. Rachel has her nurse, Bilhah. Out of nowhere, we hear about Rebekah, Jacob’s mother. Here is where we should have had our chapter break. This should be Gen. 35:1 or the final verse of Gen. 34.

These verses are strung together with the waw consecutive, which I have taken great liberties in translating it. In fact, I have represented the waw consecutive in a myriad of ways in past chapters and verses, doing a fair amount of interpretive translation. Context helps to determine how the waw consecutive is to be translated and I vary the translation somewhat just for variety (linguistically, that is valid). The other option is to continually translate the waw consecutive as and continually, in verse after verse. And Jacob went to Bethel and God revealed Himself to Jacob and Jacob went somewhere else and this happened and then that happened. This can be quite tedious and monotonous. The NASB and the KJV will continually move from and to so to now. All versions, including the very literal Emphasized Bible does this. Often, a series of wâw consecutives followed by imperfect verbs suggest a series of successive events (particularly in narratives).

The connective here is the simple waw conjunction, which is nearly always found with a perfect verb. Nearly always, to die is in the perfect tense.
Jacob was actually the person who named this (although it is not out of the question that Abraham named this city before\(^9\)—we just do not have a record of that). Here, Jacob is naming this place a second time.

The complete Doctrine of Bethel (HTML) (PDF) (WPD).

A Summary of the Doctrine of the City of Bethel

1. Bethel is a city located in central Israel, west of the Jordan, on the border of Benjamin and Ephraim. The name, Bethel, means House of God. Jerusalem is the only city mentioned more often in Scripture than Bethel. One might even see Bethel is being representative of all Israel.

2. Bethel is close associated with the patriarchs and with the appearance of God to them.

3. Bethel, known as Luz around the time of Abraham, began as a city of great spiritual import. This appears to be the first city in the land of Canaan where Abraham stopped after separating from his family in Haran. He moved westward with his nephew Lot and wife Sarai; and Jehovah appeared to Abram in this general vicinity. Abram built an altar to Jehovah with Bethel to the west and Ai to the east. Gen. 12:4–8 (Even though it is called Bethel in Gen. 12 and 13, that appears to be a gloss—to be explained in point 6.)

4. After traveling down to Egypt, Abram returned to the land of Canaan and Bethel, where he and Lot separated. Jehovah again appears to Abram and promises him and his descendants all the land that he could see in all directions. Gen. 13

5. Jacob, Abraham’s grandson, has a dream about the ladder or staircase which extends from earth to heaven; and God promises Jacob that his descendants would settle lands in all directions and that by his descendants will all the earth be blessed (which is somewhat upping the ante on the similar promise made to Abraham). Jacob builds a pillar here and he calls this place Bethel, although it had been named Luz previously. Jacob says, “This is the House of Elohim and this is the gate of heaven.” Gen. 28:10–22

6. When the name Bethel is found prior to this in Genesis, that is known as a gloss. A gloss is either a short addition to the original text is made (for clarification); or a name is changed (giving a more modern-name when an ancient name would have been expected). So, in passages about Abraham being in Bethel (like Gen. 12:8), we would expect Luz (the more ancient name), but it is replaced with the proper noun Bethel.
   a. Remember that it is very possible for much (or all) of Genesis to have been transmitted orally; and that each generation would memorize what the previous generation added.
   b. It would make sense, when Joseph learned the book of Genesis from Jacob, to say, “Luz?” and for Jacob to say, “That’s Bethel.”
   c. Therefore, sometimes, we read the name Bethel and sometimes we read Bethel (which was previously named Luz).
   d. Calling this city Bethel in Gen. 12–13 was shorthand for, Luz, a city which would be renamed “Bethel” by Jacob.
   e. Note Gen. 48:3 And Jacob said to Joseph, “God Almighty appeared to me at Luz in the land of Canaan and blessed me...” Since that is a direct quote, we would expect whatever Jacob said to stand without being changed. This would also suggest that it is Jacob who changed the name of this city, as he called it Luz.

\(^9\) I don’t believe that Abraham did name it; but I am throwing this out there in the realm of possibility.
A Summary of the Doctrine of the City of Bethel

7. Jacob travels to the east, where his relatives are, and marries Rachel and her sister Leah, and works for their father Laban. When God appears to Jacob again in a dream, He says, “I am the God of Bethel.” This is because, that is where God first spoke to Jacob. And God tells Jacob to return to the land of Canaan. Gen. 31:13

8. Jacob leaves this area but he returns on at least two occasions. It is God Who tells Jacob to return to Bethel (Gen. 35:1). Jacob moves there and calls the place El-bethel (it is apparently still known as Luz to the locals). God again speaks to Jacob in Bethel and renames him Israel and God confirms His promises which He had made to Abraham—and, in fact, makes a greater promise to Jacob. Gen. 35:9–13

9. For the patriarchs Abraham and Jacob, the city of Bethel is most closely associated with their spiritual birth, their spiritual growth and God’s promises to them. No other city in the land of Canaan is as closely associated with God and these men.

10. It is unclear whether Joshua conquered Bethel when he went into the land of Canaan, Joshua 8:17 and 12:9 notwithstanding (there are textual problems with those passages). However, Bethel was clearly conquered by Ephraim (and probably the half tribe of Manasseh) at a later time (Judges 1:22–26). As an aside, it is not impossible for a territory to be conquered, taken back, and then re-conquered.

11. For awhile, the spiritual center of Israel appears to be in Bethel. Although the Tabernacle is not specifically named, the Ark of the Covenant and the High Priest Phinehas are both said to be in Bethel. See Judges 20:18, 26–28

12. Even though the House of God is later located in Shiloh (from early on in the period of the Judges through to the time of Samuel), Bethel continues to be a city of some spiritual import (Judges 18:31 1Sam. 1:3 10:3).

13. Bethel, like Israel, progressed from being a spiritual center to a city of idolatry.

14. Bethel is not mentioned during the reigns of David or Solomon. However, the first king of the northern kingdom, Jeroboam, sets up a golden calf in Bethel, in the southern tip of his country, primarily to keep his own people from going to Jerusalem (in the southern kingdom) to worship. 1Kings 12:28–32

15. Elijah and Elisha both minister to the northern kingdom, and are therefore occasionally associated with Bethel, which continued to be a city of idolatry. 2Kings 2:2–3 23–24

16. Because Bethel is representative of all that is wrong with the northern kingdom (primarily, their worship of another god), both Amos and Hosea prophesy against Bethel and foretell its ruin. Hosea occasionally refers to Bethel as Beth–aven, which means House of Idols, House of Nothing. Hosea 4:15–16 5:8–9 10:5–6, 15 12:4 Amos 3:14 4:4 5:5–6 7:10, 13

17. Although King Jehu, a hundred years after Jeroboam, destroyed the prophets and worshipers of Baal, he allowed the calves that Jeroboam set up to remain in Bethel and Dan. 2Kings 10:18–29
A Summary of the Doctrine of the City of Bethel

18. After the northern kingdom is defeated in war, and the people of Samaria deported, the king of Assyria sent back some priests to Bethel to teach the people about the god of that land, as lions were killing much of the population that had been moved to there. 2Kings 17:23–29

19. Jeremiah warned that Bethel would be the shame of Israel (Jer. 48:13).

20. King Josiah, of the southern kingdom, instituted many reforms. The temple and vessels involved in Baal worship were burned in Jerusalem and their ashes carried up to Bethel (2Kings 23:4). Josiah also destroyed the heathen altar which was in Bethel (2Kings 23:15). Apparently, the golden calf was long gone, which we would have expected, as Samaria (= the Northern Kingdom) had been defeated and deported. No invading army is just going to leave a golden calf behind. There was apparently still a monument by the grave of the prophet who had gone to Bethel, and Josiah said to leave it alone (2Kings 23:17–18). Then Josiah goes throughout Samaria and destroys the idolatrous worship and kills and burns the priests involved in this worship, just as he had done in Bethel (2Kings 23:19–20).

21. Bethel is not mentioned in the gospels or anywhere else in the New Testament, even though it would seem the Jesus Christ must have been there, as Bethel is so centrally located (it is between Galilee, where Jesus conducted much of His public ministry) and Jerusalem, where Jesus went on numerous occasions.

22. For centuries, it has been assumed that the modern Beitin marked the spot of the ancient Bethel. However, Dr. David Livingston has presented a great deal of evidence to the contrary, suggesting that el-Bireh is the proper site. See http://www.ancientdays.net/bethel14.htm to support this view.

23. General archeological information spanning several millenniums for the traditional site of Beitin may be found at http://www.ourfatherlutheran.net/biblehomelands/palestine/bethel.htm.

Even though this may appear to be a very long summary, the actual doctrine is in excess of 10 pages.

The Niphal can be used in both a reflexive and passive way: (reflexive); to uncover oneself; to discover or show oneself; to reveal himself (of God); (passive); to be uncovered; to be disclosed, be discovered; to be revealed.

This is the first occurrence of this word in Scripture.

The infinitive construct, when combined with the bêyth preposition, can often take on a temporal meaning and may be rendered when [such and such happens]. It can serve as a temporal marker that denotes an event which occurs simultaneously with the action of the main verb.

Translation: ...because the Elohim revealed Himself to him there, when he was fleeing from his brother. Jacob fled his brother so many years previous (some 30–40 years ago). Jacob has not had a life of revelations from God. God revealed Himself to Jacob here; God told Jacob to return to Canaan; and God told Jacob to go to Bethel (Gen. 35:1). Assuming that all of his interactions with God are recorded, this is the 4th or 5th time that God has appeared to Jacob.

The Great Reversal of Fortune in Jacob’s Life: Let’s look at vv. 6–7: Jacob came to Luz (also known as Bethel), which is in Canaan—he and all the people who are with him. There he built an altar and he called the place El-bethel because it was here that God revealed Himself to him, when he was fleeing from his brother. What is sad is, God the Holy Spirit lays out the amazing transformation which has taken place in the life of Jacob, and it is not clear that he appreciates what has happened to him. 20 years previous, he traveled through the city, separated from his family for the first time, in fear for his life, and heading into a great unknown (to Haran). He is probably traveling with his mother’s personal servant, Deborah, and little else, apart from enough supplies to get him to Haran.
Now look at Jacob! He has returned with a wonderful family—11 sons, at least one daughter, a wife he loves, a wife he tolerates, and two mistresses. He has been greatly prospered by God, and he has great substance. He returns to the Land of Promise under completely different circumstances, with a new life, and God did all of this for Jacob out of grace. He did not earn it, he did not deserve it, and he did not work for it.

Even though Jacob recognizes, to some extent, his great change of fortune; and worships God, there is very little in his life that makes us think that he truly appreciates all the God has done on his behalf, and how undeserving that he really is.

You can be Jacob at Bethel1 and you can be Jacob at Bethel2. God’s blessing may be obvious to you and others; and it may not be obvious at all. But, if you have capacity for life through Bible doctrine in your soul, then you are more content, more relaxed and for more appreciative of all that God has done for you.

Bear in mind that God is always there and God desires to pour blessing upon you. Sometimes he does it when you have been a lousy so-and-so; and sometimes He does it when you have enjoyed a great spiritual life. If you are spiritually mature, then you recognize and appreciate all that God has done in your life; if you are not, you may not have any idea what God has done on your behalf.

If you have been a believer for more than 5 years, you should be able to look around you or review your blessings, and note some great differences in your life. My life changed dramatically over the first 5 years that I was a believer. I went from being an addict who could have been arrested at any time for a variety of reasons; to a clean and sober life with an AA and BA degrees. Now, I was anything but sinless, and I am not even sure you could call me a good person, but the changes that took place in my life between age 21 and 26 were quite remarkable. In retrospect, I can see how much God was with me in those early years; and, in retrospect, I did not deserve or earn any of the grace that God poured out upon me.

A Review of Genesis 35:1–7:

We have already studied these first 7 verses, but below is the ESV with the words and so inserted whenever there is a waw consecutive followed by an imperfect verb. A series of waw consecutives with imperfect verbs usually indicates a series of chronological events.

Gen 35:1 [And so] God said to Jacob, "Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there. Make an altar there to the God who appeared to you when you fled from your brother Esau."

Logically, these events take place right after Simeon and Levi have killed off Hamor and his descendants. This is because Bethel is not too far from the city of Shechem.

Gen 35:2–3 [And] So Jacob said to his household and to all who were with him, "Put away the foreign gods that are among you and purify yourselves and change your garments. Then let us arise and go up to Bethel, so that I may make there an altar to the God who answers me in the day of my distress and [so] has been with me wherever I have gone."

Bethel is the city most closely associated with God at this time. In the destruction of Shechem, the sons of Jacob took many slaves from their women and children (and possibly wives). They would have been worshipers of false gods.
Gen 35:4  [And] So they gave to Jacob all the foreign gods that they had, and the rings that were in their ears. [And so] Jacob hid them under the terebinth tree that was near Shechem.

The false gods are left behind in Shechem.  This is another indication that Gen. 35 follows immediately after Gen. 34.

Gen 35:5–7  And [so] as they journeyed, a terror from God fell upon the cities that were around them, so that they did not pursue the sons of Jacob. And [so] Jacob came to Luz (that is, Bethel), which is in the land of Canaan, he and all the people who were with him, and [so] there he built an altar and called the place El-bethel, because there God had revealed himself to him when he fled from his brother.

People can react in a variety of ways to events which take place.  The people of that region reacted with fear to the destruction of Shechem by Jacob’s family.  Somehow, God is involved in this (because the text tells us this), but it is not clear exactly how.

Jacob often recorded material without giving us a full background of that material.

And so dies Deborah, a nurse of Rebekah; and so she is buried from below to Bethel under the great tree.  And so he calls his name Allon-bacuth.

Deborah, Rebekah’s nurse, died and she was buried below Bethel under the great tree.  Jacob [lit., he] called its name Allon-bacuth [that is, the oak of weeping].

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

While they were there, Rebekah's personal servant Deborah died. They buried her under an oak tree and called it "Weeping Oak."

Soon after this [Soon after this, implied] Rebekah's old nurse, Deborah, died and was buried beneath the oak tree in the valley below Bethel. And ever after it was called "The Oak of Weeping."

Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, died and was buried under the oak tree at Bethel, so they named that place Oak of Crying.

Soon after this, Rebekah's old nurse, Deborah, died. She was buried beneath the oak tree in the valley below Bethel. Ever since, the tree has been called Allon-bacuth (which means "oak of weeping").

Well thereafter, Rebekah's nurse Deborah died, and she was buried under an oak tree in BethEl that Jacob then named, Allon-Bacuth (Oak Tree of Mourning).

Rebekah's nurse Deborah died and was buried there, under the oak tree that was below Beth-el. That's why the place was named Allon-bacuth. The Heb. name Allon-bacuth means Weeping Oak

It was at this time that Debora, Rebecca's nurse, died; she was buried under an oak, by the spur of the hills where Bethel is, and the place came to be called, The Oak of Mourning.

Deborah, who had taken care of Isaac's wife Rebekah when Rebekah was a small girl, was now very old. She died and was buried under an oak tree south of Bethel. So they named that place Allon-Bacuth, which means 'oak of weeping.'

Kaplan Translation
Rebecca’s nurse Deborah [See Genesis 24:59. This was a name that would later become famous through a prophetess by the same name (Judges 4:4). Some say that Rebecca had sent Deborah to inform Jacob that it was safe to return home (Rashi; Lekach Tov; Sefer HaYashar p. 79. See note on Genesis 30:25). According to others, Jacob had stopped at his parents’ home and had picked up Deborah (Yov’loth 31:30.) died, and she was buried in the valley of Beth El, under the oak. It was named Weeping Oak (Alon Bakhuth).

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

Bullinger’s Companion Bible
But Deborah Rebekah’s nurse died (we hear no more of Rebekah from the time Jacob left home-27:45, not even of her death! Deborah may have come with a message, or she may, on Rebekah’s death, have joined his household), and she was buried beneath Beth-el under the oak: and the name of it was called Allon-bachuth. (= the oak of weeping).

The Expanded Bible
Rebekah’s nurse Deborah died and was buried under the oak tree outside Bethel. So Jacob called it the Tree of Crying.

Kretzmann’s Commentary
But Deborah, Rebekah’s nurse, died, and she was buried beneath Bethel under an oak; and the name of it was called Allonbacht (oak of weeping). It seems that Rebekah had died and Jacob had persuaded Deborah to make her home with him and his children. The old faithful servant had endeared herself to all to such a degree that her death was keenly felt by the family. The oak below Bethel figures also in later history, Judges 4:5; 1Sam. 16:3. The story shows that the relation between masters and servants may well be one of cordial regard.

NET Bible®
(Deborah [This woman had been Rebekah’s nurse, but later attached herself to Jacob. She must have been about one hundred and eighty years old when she died.], Rebekah’s nurse, died and was buried under the oak below Bethel; thus it was named Oak of Weeping.)

The Voice
Along the way, Deborah (Rebekah’s nurse) died, and they buried her under the branches of a stately oak below Bethel. Since that day, it has been known as Allon-bacuth, which means “oak of weeping.”
Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:

Concordant Literal Version And dying is Deborah, Rebecca's wet-nurse, and entombed is she below Beth-El, under the oak. And calling is Jacob the name of it Alun-Bakuth.

God’s Truth (Tyndale) Then died Debora Rebecca's nurse, and was buried beneath Bethel under an oak. And the name of it was called the oak of lamentation.

New King James Version Now Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, died, and she was buried below Bethel under the terebinth tree. So the name of it was called Allon Bachuth [Literally Terebinth of Weeping].

World English Bible Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, died, and she was buried below Bethel under the oak; and the name of it was called Allon Bacuth.

Young’s Updated LT And Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, dies, and she is buried at the lower part of Bethel, under the oak, and he calls its name “Oak of weeping.”

The gist of this verse: Deborah, Rebekah’s nurse dies, and she is buried under the oak at Bethel.

Translation: Deborah, Rebekah’s nurse, died... Rebekah is Jacob’s mother. Rebekah’s nurse is mentioned back in Gen. 24: So they sent away Rebekah their sister and her nurse, and Abraham's servant and his men. And they blessed Rebekah and said to her, "Our sister, may you become thousands of ten thousands, and may your offspring possess the gate of those who hate him!" Then Rebekah and her young women arose and rode on the camels and followed the man. Thus the servant took Rebekah and went his way. (Gen. 24:59–61; ESV; emphasis mine) This is the first mention of Deborah by name. The location of her death in this narrative suggests that perhaps she accompanied Jacob for all of these years. Although some commentators have suggested that she came to Jacob at some point recently with a message that Rebekah had died, that is not mentioned not does it seem like Isaac would send Rebekah on this kind of mission, given her age and gender.

There are several possibilities: (1) Deborah has been traveling with Jacob all along, having been sent with him from the very beginning when he went to Haran. (2) Upon returning to Canaan, Jacob found that his mother was deceased, but that Deborah was still alive and he took her into his group. This strikes me as somewhat convoluted, although not an impossibility. (3) Deborah never left Canaan, and Jacob hears of her death. This final option seems odd—why would Jacob record Deborah’s death but not the death of his mother? Even if she had died while Jacob was in Haran, it seems like this would bear a mention.

I think that the first option is the most likely, even though Deborah has not been named until now. It seems likely that Jacob’s mother, concerned for her son, would send someone along with him; and without having much preparation for his going to Canaan, she could not have done better than to send Deborah, who would have partly raised Jacob.

For some children, their mother’s nurse can have a relationship with the child equal to that of the mother.

Furthermore, Deborah would have had some memory of their relatives to the east, and what the lay of the land was. She would have made this trip one time with her mistress, Rebekah. Therefore, it would make sense for her to be there with Jacob to help him get to the land of Laban.

Deborah has never been mentioned before. We do know that many of the women from the east had personal servants. However, nothing is said here about Isaac or Rebekah. Isaac appears to still be alive (Gen. 35:27), but context is always related to Jacob and his family.

Her presence has not been mentioned until now, but that does not mean she has not been with Jacob all of this time.

Translation: ...and she was buried below Bethel under the great tree. This is where Jacob is living with his family. It would make the most sense that he is the one who buried her. However, this is not clearly stated. Contextually, she appears to be tied to Jacob—likely being with him and accompanying him.

This is an unusual chapter, inasmuch as, God appears to Jacob in the next verse, but it is unclear whether this is occurring in this particular order.

Together, these two words make up the proper noun Strong’s #439 BDB #47.

Translation: Jacob [lit., he] called its name Allon-bacuth [that is, the oak of weeping]. I have inserted Jacob’s name here, simply to sound good in the English. However, it is simply an assumption on my part that Jacob does the burying.

This leads to a number of conclusions about Deborah—that is, (1) she has either been with Jacob all of this time; (2) she came to Jacob at some point in time at his return; or (3) Jacob came upon her and brought her along with him. #2 seems the least likely, but it is not out of the question. Jacob and his family was known to have returned to the land of Canaan, as Esau met him upon his return.

Deborah could have been very much a second mother to Jacob. Having a personal servant, or even several, was not unusual in the ancient world. You may recall that each of Jacob’s wives was given a personal servant (which servants were later impregnated by Jacob at the behest of his wives).

Deborah is the first of 3 deaths in this chapter.

Chapter Outline

God Reappears to Jacob and Reiterates Promises Made to Abraham

And so appears Elohim unto Jacob again in his coming from Paddan-aram and so He blesses him. And so says to him Elohim, “Your name [is] Jacob. You will no longer be called Jacob for if Israel is your name.” And so He calls his name Israel.

God had appeared to Jacob again when he had come from Paddan-aram, and He blessed him. God said to him, “Your name used to be Jacob, but you will no longer be called Jacob. Now, Israel will be your new name.” Therefore, God named him Israel.

God Appears Again to Jacob

9 God appeared again to Jacob after he had arrived from Paddan-aramd and blessed him. 10 Then God told him,

"Your name is Jacob.

No longer are you to be called Jacob. Instead, your name will be Israel."

So God called his name Israel 11 and also told him,

"I am God Almighty.

You are to be fruitful and multiply.

You will become a nation—in fact, an assembly of nations! Kings will come from you— they'll emerge from your own loins! V. 11 is included for context.

New Advent (Knox) Bible

Once again God revealed himself to Jacob, after his return from Mesopotamia of the Syrians, blessing him, and assuring him, Thou shalt not be called Jacob any longer; Israel is to be thy name.

Translation for Translators

After Jacob and his family returned from Paddan-Aram/Mesopotamia, while they were still at Bethel, God appeared to Jacob again and blessed him. God said to him again, "Your name will no longer be Jacob. It will be Israel." So Jacob was then called 'Israel.'

Jacob's Sixth Encounter with God—His Name Changed to Israel

Then Elohim appeared once more to Jacob after he came back from Paddan Aram, and he blessed him. Elohim said to him, "Your name is Jacob. You will no longer be called Jacob, but your name will be Israel." So he named him Israel.

Kretzmann’s Commentary

The Lord Blesses Jacob

And God appeared unto Jacob again, when he came out of Padanaram, and blessed him. He did not merely speak to Jacob in a dream, but He revealed Himself to him in some visible form, now that Jacob had once more returned to that section of Canaan from which he had left for Mesopotamia. As Abraham had been blessed repeatedly, so the Lord here renewed His Messianic promise. And God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob; thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name; and He called his name Israel. Thus the Lord confirmed to Jacob what He had told him at Peniel, Gen. 32:28. It was a formal introduction to the blessing.

NET Bible®

God appeared to Jacob again after he returned from Paddan Aram and blessed him. God said to him, "Your name is Jacob, but your name will no longer be called Jacob; Israel will be your name." So God named him Israel. Heb "and he called his name Israel." The referent of the pronoun "he" (God) has been specified in the translation for clarity.

The Voice

Now that Jacob had come back from Paddan-aram, God appeared to him again at Bethel and blessed him.

God: Your name is Jacob, but you will no longer be known as Jacob. Israel will be your name. From then on, God addressed him by his new name: Israel.

The directional hê is the āh (ה) ending to a noun, usually found after a verb of motion. This is called the directive hê or the he locale, which often indicates direction and puts somewhat of an adverbial spin on the noun. Essentially, it answers the question where? The pronunciation of the word does not change. The directional hê indicates the direction in which something moves. It is often used with the noun heaven and the most literal rendering in the English would be heavenward. We can also indicate the existence of the hê directionally by supplying the prepositions to or toward.

Together, these words refer to the table land of Aram; Paddan or Paddan-Aram, a region of Syria. If there is a directional hê added to Paddan, then this means to [toward] Paddan-aram.

Translation: Elohim appeared to Jacob again when he came from Paddan-aram... At first, I did not understand why this is done. God has already renamed Jacob back in Gen. 32. I even considered that this might be a summation of that incident. However, what appears to be the case is, God did give Jacob a new name back in Gen. 32, but he never became known by that name.

To follow what is occurring, we need to follow Jacob’s life and the times that he encountered God:

Jacob’s Life and His Encounters with God

1. Jacob steals Isaac's blessing from Esau and flees the land of the Philistines (Beersheba—Gen. 28:10) and leaves for Padam-aram (Gen. 26:18, 27:1–28:2)
2. Isaac, in one of his more lucid moments, gives him a blessing before he goes. This blessing is from God. Isaac said, "And may El Shaddai [God Almighty] bless you and make you prosperous and cause you to be prolific that you may become a company of peoples. May He also give to you the blessings of Abraham—to you and to your descendants with you—that you may possess the land of your travels which God gave to Abraham." (Gen. 28:3–5).
3. On his way toward Haran, Jacob has a dream wherein God makes several promises to him:  (a) "I will give it [this land] to you and to your descendants." (Gen. 28:13)  (b) "Your descendants will be as the dust of the earth, spread out to the west and to the east and to the north and to the south; and in you and in your descendants shall all the families or the earth be blessed." (Gen. 28:14)  (c) "I am with you and will keep you wherever you go; and I will bring you back to this land for I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised you." (Gen. 28:15).

4. Jacob names this place Bethel (House of God).

5. Jacob arrives in Haran, which is in Padan-aram and takes two wives and lives with Laban (Gen. 29–30).

6. God, twenty years after Gen. 28:13–15, appears to Jacob and tells him to return to the land of Canaan (Gen. 31:3).

7. Jacob leaves Laban surreptitiously, Laban pursues Jacob and catches up to him in a place that Jacob then named Galeed (later, Mizpah) (Gen. 31).

8. Angels of God met Jacob afterward. Jacob names that place Mahanaim (Gen. 32:1–2).

9. Jacob, in fear and confusion, attempts a number of different human viewpoint plans in anticipation of meeting Esau (this is soon after seeing his guardian angels) (Gen 32:1–23).

10. This is where Jesus Christ comes to him, after giving him those promises, after showing him his guardian angels, and kicks his butt in a wrestling match (Gen. 32:24–32). This is because Jacob continues to oppose God.

11. It is during this wrestling match that God changes his name to Israel and blesses him (Gen. 32:28). No matter what, God’s plan moves forward.

12. Jacob settles in outside of Shechem, in the land of Canaan, after resolving his differences amicably with Esau (Gen. 33).

13. Jacob’s family has a run-in with Shechem, the son of Hamor and overreact to his rape of Dinah (Gen. 34); they kill many innocent men.

14. God tells Jacob to move to Bethel (i.e., Luz). Here, Jacob encounters God once again.

I will go into more detail on Jacob’s meetings with God.

Translation: ...and He blessed him. God blessed Jacob, and it ought to be clear in all that we have studied that Jacob is no spiritual giant. However, he is blessed because of his association with Abraham (his grandfather).

There are two possibilities here: (1) this could refer back to the wrestling match between the Lord Jesus Christ and Jacob. Or (2) this is a new appearance of God to Jacob in Bethel. The use of the wâw consecutives followed... by imperfect verbs suggests this continues the chronological order. However, when the subject changes (here, God is the subject of the verb) and a qualifiers is added (when he came out of Paddan-aram), that can break up the general chronological order of the passage.

What suggests that the latter understanding is accurate is, this narrative continues, where God continues speaking to Jacob, saying some things which were not recorded before. Then God leaves Jacob and then the chronology continues, very naturally, as if this were a new appearance of God to Jacob after returning to Bethel. Therefore, I would understand this to be a new appearance of God to Jacob upon his return to Bethel, as God had directed him in Gen. 35:1.

Genesis 35:9 And [so] God appeared to Jacob again when he came out of Padan-aram and blessed him.

Although the translation above (which I believe is the MKJV) is quite accurate, the number of appearances is difficult to ascertain. In this passage, we have the word ḍōd (דּ֣ד) [pronounced ḡōhd], which means still, yet, again, again and again, repeatedly, in addition to. Strong’s #5750 BDB #728. An appearance of God takes place in v. 7 (referring back to when Jacob was fleeing Esau); so, taking the construction of this verse along with this particular adverb, we may first assume that this is another appearance by God to Jacob, different from v. 7. God appeared to Jacob before in Bethel and now God is appearing to Jacob again in Bethel.

The number of times that God appears to Jacob is rather remarkable, because Jacob is no spiritual giant. Jacob has a mixed track record as a man born-of-God (for which I am thankful, having a mixed track record myself).

Have you ever heard the same doctrinal principle a second time, and the second time you heard it, it clicked? It made sense, because you had progressed. It does not stick here with Jacob, because he has not progressed spiritually as much as God would have liked.

Translation: ...indeed Israel will be your name.” Yisra'ēl (יִשְׂרָאֵל) [pronounced yis-raw-ALE] means God prevails; contender; soldier of God; which is transliterated Israel. Strong’s #3478 & #3479 BDB #975.

This is very similar to what occurred in Gen. 32.

God renames Jacob. Israel means God prevails; contender; soldier of God. Right now, this name applies strictly to Jacob; 400 or so years from now, this name will become the proper name of the Jewish people and the Jewish nation.

It is interesting. Why isn’t Israel, the nation, called Abraham? Let me suggest that the key to this is grace. God is certainly gracious to Abraham and his life—there is no question about that. But, it would be easy to point to Abraham, who lived a life 1000x better than I have lived my life, and understand why God blessed him and called a nation after him. But, it is much harder to look at Jacob and his life and say, “No wonder God gave the name Israel to him. He deserved it!” Instead, you examine Jacob and his life and think, “God made the nation Israel from this man? And from these worthless sons?” God is gracious, and Jacob is a prime example of God’s graciousness.

At this juncture, this will become the name by which Jacob is supposed to be known. We ought to note that Abraham seemed to stick, even to this day; but most readers of Scripture do not necessarily see Jacob’s name as being Israel. We know that it is, but Israel tends to be used as a term for the state of Israel. Even after this point in Scripture, we will hear Jacob called Jacob far more often than we hear him called Israel. So, what does that mean? God had hoped to affect a change of heart in Jacob, speaking to him a number of times and even wrestling with him; but Jacob, for the most part, refuses to accept God’s will and God’s plan. I am not saying that Jacob is some kind of a reprobate; I am just saying that, he did not achieve the spiritual maturity that his grandfather, Abraham, achieved. Once God changes Abram’s name, from that point on, he was known as Abraham. However, God changed Jacob’s name twice, and at neither point, did the name change quite connect.

What does this mean? God has a plan, and He will execute this plan. However, there are times when individuals will resist His plan, and that describes Jacob, throughout much of his life. So, from a human standpoint, Jacob is remembered as Jacob, his man-given name. Had Jacob completely turned himself around, this would have been a different story.

However, this does not mean that Jacob is this horrible, reprobate person. It simply means that, he was a mediocre believer. Or, to be more precise, he did not get to the level of his grandfather, Abraham.

As a result, human authors tended to refer back to Jacob as Jacob (Matt. 1:2 8:11 Heb. 11:9, 20–21).

Application: Every believer in the Church Age has the potential for spiritual greatness. The fact that we do not attain that spiritual greatness is based upon our own negative volition toward God’s plan.

This is apparently the fifth or sixth time that God has appeared to Jacob. I did not realize that there had been so many appearances by God to Jacob until reading this heading here. Two of the appearances might refer to the same interaction between God and Jacob. Translation used below will be the WEB (unless otherwise noted).

God’s Appearances to Jacob

He came to a certain place, and stayed there all night, because the sun had set. He took one of the stones of the place, and put it under his head, and lay down in that place to sleep. He dreamed. Behold, a stairway set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven. Behold, the angels of God ascending and descending on it. Behold, Yahweh stood above it, and said, "I am Yahweh, the God of Abraham your father, and the God of Isaac. The land whereon you lie, to you will I give it, and to your seed. Your seed will be as the dust of the earth, and you will spread abroad to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south. In you and in your seed will all the families of the earth be blessed. Behold, I am with you, and will keep you, wherever you go, and will bring you again into this land. For I will not leave you, until I have done that which I have spoken of to you." (Gen 28:11–15)

It happened at the time that the flock conceive, that I lifted up my eyes, and saw in a dream, and behold, the male goats which leaped on the flock were streaked, speckled, and grizzled. The angel of God said to me in the dream, 'Jacob,' and I said, 'Here I am.' He said, 'Now lift up your eyes, and behold, all the male goats which leap on the flock are streaked, speckled, and grizzled, for I have seen all that Laban does to you. I am the God of Bethel, where you anointed a pillar, where you vowed a vow to me. Now arise, get out from this land, and return to the land of your birth.' Rachel and Leah answered him, "Is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our father's house? Aren't we accounted by him as foreigners? For he has sold us, and has also quite devoured our money. For all the riches which God has taken away from our father, that is ours and our children's. Now then, whatever God has said to you, do." (Gen 31:10–16)

So far, God has appeared to Jacob 5 or 6 times.

Application: Many times you have thought, if only I had lived when Jesus was walking the earth or If only God would do a miracle right in front of my face or if only God would talk to me and tell me what to do, then I would be a much better Christian. However, this is not true. We are what we are and we are who we are based upon our volition and our interaction with God and His Word—and it does not matter in which way we are exposed to His Word. Jesus could be teaching us, Paul could have written a letter to our church, which is read and discussed, or we can have the benefit of the entire Word of God preserved for our study. In case you do not realize, we live right now in the greatest time in man’s history regarding the understanding of God’s Word.
Application: God appeared many times to Abraham and many times to Jacob. It ought to be clear that Abraham was at a much higher level of spiritual maturity than Jacob (James 2:23 2Chron. 20:7). Jacob was a hard-headed soul, yet God would fulfill His plan through Jacob. His sons were, for the most part, cold-hearted and vicious and self-involved, much like their father. Yet God would fulfill His plan through them. Don’t you think God might have even a better chance of fulfilling His plan through you?

Translation: So Elohim [lit., He] called his name Israel. This occurred in the past. Now God is telling Jacob once more, that his name is now Israel.

Now, why do we have a repeat of this incident? The only thing that makes sense to me here is, there are two different authors. As noted earlier, Jacob’s name occurs multiple times in the past 5 or 6 chapters—at the beginning of all of these chapters. Perhaps what we have at this point is the writing of one of his sons (like Joseph). Authors are never identified in the book of Genesis, although, as we have observed, some passages are particularly personal (Jacob saying that the 7 years that he worked for Rachel seemed to him to be a few days—something a man in love would certainly say).

Genesis 35:10 And [so] God said to him, “Your name is Jacob. Your name will not be called Jacob any more, but Israel will be your name.” And He called his name Israel.

Bear in mind that God has renamed Jacob previously, in Gen. 32:28, when He wrestled with Jacob the night before he met up with Esau. However, it did not appear to stick, and Jacob has not really embraced his spiritual leadership position.

Application: Not every believer embraces God’s plan for his life. God gives us a plan, a destiny, the Holy Spirit and the Word of God (these things, R. B. Thieme, Jr. called the portfolio of invisible assets), but it is up to us to apprehend what God has given us.
I wonder if there is something to this: Jacob names Bethel twice; and God names Jacob twice. I may have to think about that. Might not mean anything.

And so says to him Elohim, “I [am] ʾEl Shaddai. Be fruit and multiply and a people and an assembly of peoples will be from you; and kings from your [two] loins will come forth. And the land which I gave to Abraham and to Isaac, to you I will give her and to your seed after you I will give the land.”

Genesis 35:11–12

Elohim said to him, “I [am] ʾEl Shaddai; be fruitful and multiply and a people and an assembly of peoples will come [lit., be] from you; kings will come from your loins. Furthermore, the land which I gave to Abraham and to Isaac, I will give [that land] to you; and I will give [this] land to your descendants after you.”

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew): And so says to him Elohim, “I [am] ʾEl Shaddai. Be fruit and multiply and a people and an assembly of peoples will be from you; and kings from your [two] loins will come forth. And the land which I gave to Abraham and to Isaac, to you I will give her and to your seed after you I will give the land.”

- Targum of Onkelos: And the Lord said to him, I am El Shadai: spread forth and multiply; a holy people, and a congregation of prophets and priests, shall be from thy sons whom thou hast begotten, and two kings shall yet from thee go forth. And the land which I gave to Abraham and to Izhak will I give unto thee, and to thy son, after thee will I give the land.

- Jerusalem targum: He hath taught us the blessing of matrimony from Adam and his bride, as the scripture expoundeth. And the Word of the Lord blessed them, and the Word of the Lord said to them, Be strong and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it. He hath taught us to visit the afflicted, from our father Abraham the Righteous, when He revealed Himself to him in the plain of Vision, and gave him the precept of circumcision, and made him to sit in the door of his tent in the heat of the day; as the scripture expoundeth and saith, And the Word of the Lord revealed Himself to him in the plain of Vision.

- Latin Vulgate: And said to him: I am God almighty, increase thou and be multiplied. Nations and peoples of nations shall proceed from you, and kings shall come out of thy loins. And the land which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, I will give to thee, and to thy seed after thee.

- Peshitta (Syriac): And God said to him. I am God Almighty; be fruitful and multiply: a people and a multitude of peoples shall come from you, and kings shall come out of thy loins; And the land which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, I will give to you, and to your descendants after you will I give the land.

- Septuagint (Greek): And God said to him, I am your God; be fruitful and multiply; for nations and gatherings of nations shall proceed from you, and kings shall come out of your loins. And the land which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, I have given to you; and it shall come to pass that I will give this land also to your seed after you.

Significant differences:

1. Masoretic Text (Hebrew) uses the phrase “I [am] ʾEl Shaddai” while the other translations use “I [am] God almighty.”
2. Targum of Onkelos emphasizes the creation of a holy people and two kings, whereas the other translations focus more on the spread of the people and the land.
3. Jerusalem targum includes a lengthy explication of the blessing of matrimony, which is absent in the other translations.
4. Latin Vulgate and Peshitta (Syriac) both use the phrase “be fruitful and multiply” but differ in the number of themes covered—nations, peoples, and kings, respectively.
5. Septuagint (Greek) includes the phrase “for nations and gatherings of nations shall proceed from you,” which is not found in the other translations.
And God said to him, "I am El Shaddai [Or God Almighty or God of the Mountain]. Be fertile and multiply. A nation, even a large group of nations, will come from you; kings will descend from your own children. The land I gave to Abraham and to Isaac, I give to you; and I will give the land to your descendants after you."

I am God All-Powerful, and from now on your name will be Israel instead of Jacob. You will have many children. Your descendants will become nations, and some of the men in your family will even be kings. I am giving you the land I gave to Abraham and Isaac. I will also give it to your children after you.

The land that I gave to Abraham and Isaac I will give to you. I will give the land to your descendants after you."
Then God said to him, "I am the All-powerful God. Have many children and add to your number. A nation and a group of nations will come from you. Kings will come from you. I will give you the land which I gave to Abraham and Isaac. This land I will give to your children and their children's children after you."

New Life Version

Then God said, "I am El-Shaddai-`God Almighty.' Be fruitful and multiply. You will become a great nation, even many nations. Kings will be among your descendants! And I will give you the land I once gave to Abraham and Isaac. Yes, I will give it to you and your descendants after you."

New Living Translation

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible

Then God said to him: 'I am your God, so prosper and grow. nations and groups of nations will descend from you, and kings will come from your loins. I will give this land to you that I gave to AbraHam and IsaAc, as well as to the seed that descends from you.'

International Standard V

So God called his name Israel 11 and also told him,

"I am God Almighty.
You are to be fruitful and multiply.
You will become a nation-
in fact, an assembly of nations!
Kings will come from you-they'll emerge from your own loins!

Now as for the land that I gave to Abraham and Isaac,
I'm giving it to you and to your descendants who come after you.
I'm giving the land to you!"

New Advent (Knox) Bible

So, calling to him by this name of Israel, he said to him, I am God all-powerful, and I bid thee increase and multiply; peoples shall descend from thee, whole families of nations, and kings shall be born of thy stock; and that land, which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, I will give to thee and to thy posterity after thee.

Translation for Translators

Then God said to him, "I am God Almighty. Produce many children. Your descendants will become many nations, and some of your descendants will be kings. The land that I promised to give to Abraham and Isaac, I will give to you. I will also give it to your descendants."

God told him, "I am the God Who Suffices. Be fruitful and multiply. An ethnicity and an assembly of ethnicities will come from you, and kings will descend directly from you. The land that I gave to Abraham and Isaac, I will give to you, and to your descendants after you I will give the land"

Ferar-Fenton Bible

...and God said to him, "I am the Almighty God. Be fruitful and multiply. A Nation and an Assembly of Nations shall come from you, and Kings shall proceed from your loins; and the land which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, I will give to thee and to thy posterity after thee."

Jubilee Bible 2000

And God said unto him, I am God Almighty; be fruitful and multiply, a nation and a company of nations (Gentiles) shall come out of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins; and the land which I have given to Abraham and to Isaac, to thee will I give it and to thy seed after thee will I give the land.

Lexham English Bible

And God said to him, "I [am] El-Shaddai. Be fruitful and multiply. A nation and an assemblage of nations shall be from you, and kings shall go out from your loins.
And as for the land that I gave to Abraham and to Isaac, I will give it to you. And to your descendants after you I will give the land.

NIV – UK

And God said to him, 'I am God Almighty [Hebrew El-Shaddai]; be fruitful and increase in number. A nation and a community of nations will come from you, and kings will be among your descendants. The land I gave to Abraham and Isaac I also give to you, and I will give this land to your descendants after you.'

Catholic Bibles:

Christian Community (1988)  Then God said to him, “Be fruitful and grow in number! A nation or rather a group of nations will come from you. The land I gave to Abraham and Isaac I will give to you and to your descendants after you.”

The Heritage Bible  And God said to him, I am El Shadday [El Shadday is Hebrew for God Almighty,..]; be fruitful, and multiply; a people and an assembly of peoples shall be from you, and kings shall come out of your loins. And the land which I gave Abraham and Isaac, I will give to you, and I will give the land to your seed after you.

New American Bible (2011)  Then God said to him: I am God Almighty; be fruitful and multiply. A nation, indeed an assembly of nations, will stem from you, and kings will issue from your loins. The land I gave to Abraham and Isaac I will give to you; and to your descendants after you I will give the land.  Ex 32:13; Heb 11:9.

New Jerusalem Bible  God said to him, 'I am El Shaddai. Be fruitful and multiply. A nation, indeed an assembly of nations, will descend from you, and kings will issue from your loins. The country which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, I now give to you; and this country I shall give to your descendants after you.'

New RSV  God said to him, 'I am God Almighty:* be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations shall come from you, and kings shall spring from you. The land that I gave to Abraham and Isaac I will give to you, and I will give the land to your offspring after you.'

Revised English Bible  God said to him: "I am God Almighty. Be fruitful and increase: a nation, a host of nations will come from you; kings also will descend from you. The land I gave to Abraham and Isaac I give to you; and to your descendants also I shall give this land."

Jewish/Hebrew Names Bibles:

Complete Jewish Bible  God further said to him, "I am El Shaddai. Be fruitful and multiply. A nation, indeed a group of nations, will come from you; kings will be descended from you. Moreover, the land which I gave to Avraham and Yitz’chak I will give to you, and I will give the land to your descendants after you."

exeGeses companion Bible  And Elohim says to him, I - El Shadday: bear fruit and abound; a goyim and a congregation of goyim become from you; and sovereigns come from your loins: and the land I gave Abraham and Yischaq, I give to you and to your seed after you I give the land.

JPS (Tanakh—1985)  And God said to him, "I am El Shaddai [Cf. 17.1], Be fertile and increase; A nation, yea and assembly of nations, Shall descend from you. Kings shall issue from your loins. The land that I assigned to Abraham and Isaac
I assign to you;
And to you offspring to come
Will I assign the land."

Kaplan Translation
God said to him, 'I am God Almighty. Be fruitful and increase [See Genesis 1:22, 1:28, 8:17, 9:1, 9:7. This is seen as a commandment to have children (Yevamoth 65b).]. A nation and a community of nations will come into existence from you [See Genesis 17:5, 17:16, 28:3, 48:4]. Kings will be born from your loins [See Genesis 17:6, 17:16]. I will grant you the land that I gave to Abraham and Isaac [Genesis 12:7, 13:15, 26:3, 28:13]. I will also give the land to your descendants who will follow you.'

Orthodox Jewish Bible
And Elohim said unto him, I am El Shaddai; be fruitful and multiply; a Goy (nation) and a Kehal Goyim shall be from thee, and Melechim shall come out of thy loins; And HaAretz which I gave Avraham and Yitzchak, to thee I will give it, and to thy zera after thee will I give HaAretz.

Restored Names Version
Also Elohiym said to him, "I am El Almighty. Be fruitful and multiply. A nation and an assembly of nations will proceed from you and kings will come from your loins. The land that I gave Abraham and Yitschaq I give to you, and to your descendants after you I give this land."

The Scriptures 1998
And Elohim said to him, "I am Ėl Shaddai. Bear fruit and increase, a nation and a company of nations shall be from you, and sovereigns come from your body. And the land which I gave Abraham and Yitsḥaq I give to you. And to your seed after you I give this land."

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

Bullinger’s Companion Bible
And God said to him, I am GOD ALMIGHTY (El Shaddai = GOD-the all-bountiful or all-sufficient. The title which best accords with the promise here given): be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations shall be of you, and kings shall come out of your loins; (Always has & always will until Christ returns) And the land which I gave Abraham and Isaac, to you I will give it, and to your seed after you will I give the land."

The Expanded Bible
God said to him, "I am Æl God Almighty [Æl Shaddai]. ÆHave many children [ÆBe fruitful] and Ægrow in number [Æmultiply; 1:22] as a nation. ÆYou will be the ancestor of many nations [ÆA company/assembly of nations will come from you] and kings [Æwill spring from your loins]. 12 The same land I gave to Abraham and Isaac I will give to you and your descendants [Æseed; 12:2]."

Kretzmann’s Commentary
And God said unto him, I am God Almighty; be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations shall be of thee, and kings shall come out of thy loins; and the land which I gave Abraham and Isaac, to thee. I will give it, and to thy seed after thee will I give this land. It was God Almighty that was speaking to Jacob, He whose protection and guidance Jacob had so richly enjoyed during the last thirty years. It was the patriarchal blessing, including the Messianic promise, which was here transmitted, for it indicated that Israel according to the flesh would not alone be the possessor of the oracles of God, Rom. 3:2, but that members of all nations would make up the sum total of the spiritual Israel, of the great assembly of nations whose God would be the Lord. The immediate guarantee of this eventual blessing would be the temporal blessing of the possession of Canaan, the heritage of the children of Israel. Cf Gen. 48:3-4.

NET Bible®
Then God said to him, "I am the sovereign God. Be fruitful and multiply! A nation - even a company of nations - will descend from you; kings will be among your descendants [Heb "A nation and a company of nations will be from you and kings from your loins will come out."] [A nation will descend from you.] The promise is rooted in the Abrahamic promise (see Gen 17). God confirms what Isaac told Jacob (see Gen 28:3-4). Here, though, for the first time Jacob is promised kings as descendants.]! The land I gave [The Hebrew verb translated "gave" refers to the Abrahamic promise of the land. However, the actual possession of that land lay in the future. The decree of the Lord made it certain; but it has the sense "promised to give."] to Abraham and Isaac I will give to you. To your descendants [Heb "and to your offspring after you."] I will also give this land."

The Voice God: 11 I am the God-All-Powerful [Hebrew, El Shaddai]. Be fruitful and multiply. You will give rise to a great nation; indeed nation after nation will come from you. Kings and rulers shall be numbered among your descendants. 12 Your children will one day possess the land I promised to Abraham and Isaac.

Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:

Concordant Literal Version And saying to him is the Elohim, "I am the El-Who-Suffices. Be fruitful and increase. A nation and an assembly of nations shall come from you, and kings from your loins shall fare forth. And the land which I gave to Abraham and to Isaac, to you am I giving it. Yours it is; and to your seed after you am I giving the land.

Context Group Version And God said to him, I am God Almighty: be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations shall be of you, and kings shall come out of your loins; and the land { or earth } which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, to you I will give it, and to your seed after you I will give the land.

God’s Truth (Tyndale) And God said unto him: I am God allmighty, grow and multiply: for people and a multitude of people shall spring of you, yea and kings shall come out of your loins. And the land which I gave Abraham and Isaac, will I give unto you, and unto your seed after you will I give it also.

NASB God also said to him, "I am God Almighty [Heb El Shaddai]; Be fruitful and multiply; A nation and a company of nations shall come [Or come into being] from you, And kings shall come forth [Or come into being] from you [Lit your loins]. "The land which I gave to Abraham and Isaac, I will give it to you, And I will give the land to your descendants [Lit seed] after you."

New King James Version Also God said to him: "I am God Almighty. Be fruitful and multiply; a nation and a company of nations shall proceed from you, and kings shall come from your body. The land which I gave Abraham and Isaac I give to you; and to your descendants after you I give this land."

Young’s Updated LT And God says to him, “I am God Almighty; be fruitful and multiply, a nation and an assembly of nations is from you, and kings from your loins go out; and the land which I have given to Abraham and to Isaac—to you I give it, yea to your seed after you I give the land.”

The gist of this verse: God assures Jacob that He is capable; and Jacob needs to do is to be fruitful and to multiply, and from him would come a nation and an assembly of nations; and the land promise to Abraham and to Isaac will also belong to Jacob and to his descendants.

Together, these two nouns are often transliterated 'El Shaddai.

The NET Bible: The name שָׁדַי (‘el shadday, “El Shaddai”) has often been translated “God Almighty,” primarily because Jerome translated it omnipotens (“all powerful”) in the Latin Vulgate. There has been much debate over the meaning of the name. For discussion see W. F. Albright, “The Names Shaddai and Abram,” JBL 54 (1935): 173-210; R. Gordis, “The Biblical Root sdy-sd,” JTS 41 (1940): 34-43; and especially T. N. D. Mettinger, In Search of God, 69-72. Shaddai/El Shaddai is the sovereign king of the world who grants, blesses, and judges. In the Book of Genesis he blesses the patriarchs with fertility and promises numerous descendants. Outside Genesis he both blesses/protects and takes away life/happiness. The patriarchs knew God primarily as El Shaddai (Exod 6:3). While the origin and meaning of this name are uncertain its significance is clear. The name is used in contexts where God appears as the source of fertility and life. For a fuller discussion see the note on “sovereign God” in Gen 17:1.¹²

Translation: Elohim said to him, “I [am] ’Ĕl Shaddai;... God identifies Himself in many ways; and as El Shaddai, He is the All-Sufficient One, the Almighty One. Therefore, He is able to bring to pass all that He promises to us.

Translation: ...be fruitful and multiply... He tells Jacob to be fruitful and multiply. Now, bear in mind, Jacob has at least 11 sons and one daughter; and it appears that he is nearly done with having children himself. He will father one more child in this chapter. So, we therefore must understand this to be applied not strictly to Jacob, although this is God speaking directly to Jacob, but to Jacob’s sons.

Translation: ...and a people and an assembly of people will come [lit., be] from you;... God’s promise is that a people (the Jews) would come from Jacob, as well as an assembly of peoples, which is less specified. Poole and others suggest that this refers to the different tribes of Israel. There would be 3 (and arguably 4 or 5) nations which would come from the Jews.

I don’t know that we have non-Jewish nations coming from Jacob. One might understand this as a continuation of God’s promise to Abraham specifically, as many other nations would come from him.
An assembly (or, company) is the masculine singular construct of qâhâl (םָחָל) [pronounced kaw-HAWL], which means, an organized assembly, a called convocation; this is not just a crowd, but people who were assembled for a reason. When it is affixed to nations, it is unclear as to the number being implied here. From Jacob would come Israel; then there would be Israel and Judæa; then Judah; and today, the modern Israel. In the future, there will be regathered Israel (regathered by God, not by man).

Unlike Abraham and Isaac, Jacob would not be the father of many groups of Arabs. All of his children would be Jews.

Translation: ...kings will come from your loins. The kings of Israel will all be descended from Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Israel would begin as a united kingdom, guided by 3 kings: Saul, David and Samuel. From there, would come two kingdoms, a southern and northern kingdom, each headed by a number of kings for several hundred years.
Translation: Furthermore, the land which I gave to Abraham and to Isaac,... God has already made promises to Abraham and to Isaac concerning that land that they would inherit (Gen. 13:14–17 for Abraham and 26:3–4 for Isaac). Here, God continues this promise for Jacob.

Translation: ...I will give [that land] to you; and I will give [this] land to your descendants after you.” God promises Jacob that His promises to Abraham and Isaac would be continued to him.

Speaking of Abraham and Isaac, Isaac is still alive at this time, and yet, insofar as we know, Jacob has made no attempt to contact his family.

God has already described the land that He would give to Abraham; and this land is also promised to Jacob.

This tells us that God speaks through other people to us. This was a blessing from Isaac to Jacob and here it is quoted as a blessing from God to Jacob. Isaac was not God; Isaac was a very flawed human being as we have seen. God, however, spoke through Isaac to Jacob and blessed him through Isaac.

Jacob Builds an Altar to Worship God

And so goes up from upon him Elohim in the place where He spoke with him. And so sets up Jacob a pillar in the place where He spoke with him—a pillar of stone. And so he pours upon her a drink offering and so he pours upon her oil.

Elohim went up from him in the place where He spoke with him. Then Jacob set up a pillar in the place where He spoke with him—a pillar of stone. Then he poured a drink offering on it and then he poured oil on it.

God went up from him in the place where God spoke to him. Then Jacob, to commemorate this event, set up a pillar in that place—a pillar of stone. Then he poured a drink offering upon it and after, he poured oil on it.
Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Masoretic Text (Hebrew)
And so goes up from upon him Elohim in the place where He spoke with him. And so sets up Jacob a pillar in the place where He spoke with him—a pillar of stone. And so he pours upon her a drink offering and so he pours upon her oil.

Targum of Onkelos
And the Shekinah of the Lord ascended from him in the place where He had spoken with him And Jakob erected there a pillar of stone in the place where He had spoken with him, a pillar of stone; and he outpoured upon it a libation of wine, and a libation of water, because thus it was to be done at the feast of Tabernacles; and he poured oil of olives thereupon.

Latin Vulgate
And he departed from him. But he set up a monument of stone, in the place where God had spoken to him: pouring drink-offerings upon it, and pouring oil thereon.

Peshitta (Syriac)
And God went up from him in the place where God had spoken with him. And Jacob set up a pillar in the place where God spoke with him, even a pillar of stone; and offered a libation upon it, and poured oil upon it.

Septuagint (Greek)
And God went up from him in the place where He spoke with him. And Jacob set up a pillar in the place where He spoke with him—a pillar of stone. And so he pours upon her a drink offering and so he pours upon her oil.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

Bible in Basic English
Then God went up from him in the place where he had been talking with him. And Jacob put up a pillar in the place where he had been talking with God, and put a drink offering on it, and oil.

Easy English
Then God went up from Jacob. God left the place where he had spoken to Jacob. Jacob put up a column of stone where God had spoken to him. Jacob poured out an *offering to God on it. He poured oil on it. v15 Jacob called that place Bethel, because God had spoken to him there.

Easy-to-Read Version
Then God left that place. Vv. 14–15 are not found in my ERV.

Good News Bible (TEV)
Then God left him. There, where God had spoken to him, Jacob set up a memorial stone and consecrated it by pouring wine and olive oil on it.

The Message
And then God was gone, ascended from the place where he had spoken with him. Jacob set up a stone pillar on the spot where God had spoken with him. He poured a drink offering on it and anointed it with oil.

Names of God Bible
Then Elohim went up from him at the place where he had spoken with him. So Jacob set up a memorial, a stone marker, to mark the place where Elohim had spoken with him. He poured a wine offering and olive oil on it.

New Simplified Bible
Then God went up from him at the place where he had spoken with him. So Jacob set up a memorial, a stone marker, to mark the place where God had spoken with him. He poured a wine offering and olive oil on it.

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

Common English Bible
Then God ascended, leaving him alone in the place where he spoke to him. So Jacob set up a sacred pillar, a stone pillar, at the place God spoke to him. He poured an offering of wine on it and then poured oil over it.

The Living Bible
Afterwards Jacob built a stone pillar at the place where God had appeared to him; and he poured wine over it as an offering to God and then anointed the pillar with olive oil.
Then God left him. Jacob set up a stone on edge in that place where God had talked to him, and he poured a drink offering and olive oil on it to make it special for God.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible
Then God left him there in that place where He spoke to him. And Jacob erected a [stone] pillar [to honor] the place where he had been spoken to by God, pouring a drink offering and oil upon it.

International Standard V
After this, God ascended from the place where he had been speaking to him. Jacob erected a pillar of stone at that very place where God had spoken to him. He poured a drink offering over it, anointed it with oil, and named the place where God had spoken to him Beth-el. V. 15 is included for context.

New Advent (Knox) Bible
Then God went away out of his sight; and he built a monument of stone at the place where God had spoken to him, offering libations there and pouring oil upon it.

Translation for Translators
When God finished talking there with Jacob, he left him. 14 Jacob set up a large stone at the place where God had talked with him. He poured some wine and some olive oil on it to dedicate it to God.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Ancient Roots Translinear
God ascended above him from the place he spoke with him. Jacob stationed a memorial in the place that he spoke with him, a stone memorial. He poured oil over it.

Ferrar-Fenton Bible
Then the Divine Messenger went up from him from the place where he spoke with him. So Jacob erected a pillar at the place where he had spoken with him, - a pillar of stone, and poured a libation upon it, and poured oil upon it.

HCSB
Then God withdrew[e] from him at the place where He had spoken to him. Jacob set up a marker at the place where He had spoken to him-a stone marker. He poured a drink offering on it and anointed it with oil.

Catholic Bibles:

Christian Community (1988)
Then God left him.
Jacob set up a stone in the place where God had spoken to him and offered a libation on it and poured oil on it.

The Heritage Bible
And God ascended from him in the place where he had spoken with him. And Jacob stationed a memorial column in the place where he had spoken with him, a stationary monument of stone, and he poured on it a drink offering, and he poured out oil on it.

New American Bible (2011)
Then God departed from him.
In the place where God had spoken with him, Jacob set up a sacred pillar, a stone pillar, and upon it he made a libation and poured out oil. Gn 28:18; 31:45.

New Jerusalem Bible
Then God went up from him.
Jacob raised a monument at the spot where he had spoken to him, a standing-stone, on which he made a libation and poured oil.

Revised English Bible
When God left him, Jacob raised a sacred pillar of stone in the place where God had spoken with him, and he offered a drink-offering on it and poured oil over it.

Jewish/Hebrew Names Bibles:

Complete Jewish Bible
Then God went up from him there where he had spoken with him. Ya'akov set up a standing-stone in the place where he had spoken with him, a stone pillar. Then he poured out a drink offering on it and poured oil on it.
And Elohim ascends from him from the place he worded with him: and Yaaqov stations a monolith in the place he worded with him - even a monolith of stone: and he libates a libation thereon and he libates oil thereon:...

God parted from him at the spot where He had spoken to him; and Jacob set up a pillar at the site where He had spoken to him, a pillar of stone, and he offered a libation on it and poured oil upon it.

God went up [This indicates that the prophetic vision ended (Moreh Nevukhim 1:10). See note on Genesis 11:5.] and left [Jacob] in the place where He had spoken to him.

Jacob had set up a pillar [This is the one mentioned in Genesis 28:18 (Ibn Ezra; Ramban).] in the place that God had spoken to him. He [now] offered a libation [Nesekh in Hebrew. Jacob poured water and/or wine on the pillar to purify it (Ibn Ezra; Ramban). It was also to dedicate it as a place of future sacrifice (Targum Yonathan). Such libations would later be an integral part of the service; see Exodus 29:40, Leviticus 23:13, Numbers 15:5, etc.] on it, and then poured oil on it.

And Elohim went up from him in the makom where He talked with him. And Ya'akov set up a matzevah (pillar, monument) in the makom where He talked with him, even a matzevat even (pillar of stone); and he poured a nesech (drink offering) thereon, and he poured shemen (oil) thereon.

Then God ·left him ["went up from him in the place where he spoke with him"]. And Jacob set up a ·stone on edge ["pillar, a stone pillar"] in that place where God spoke with him, and he poured a drink offering and olive oil on it to make it special for God.

And Elohim went up from him in the place where He talked with him. And Jacob set up a pillar in the place where He talked with him, even a pillar of stone (Jacob's pillar, see 31:13 & Num. 20:7): and he poured a drink offering thereon (first occ., afterward provided for in Lev. 23:13,18,37 and in Num. 15:5-10. Always "poured out" never drunk), and he poured oil thereon.

Then God ·left him ["went up from him in the place where he spoke with him"]. So Jacob set up a sacred stone pillar in the place where God spoke with him ["and Jacob set up a sacred pillar in the place where he spoke with him, a sacred pillar of stone" (see the notes on the term "sacred stone" in Gen 28:18)]. This passage stands parallel to Gen 28:18-19, where Jacob set up... a sacred stone, poured oil on it, and called the place Bethel. Some commentators see these as two traditions referring to the same event, but it is more likely that Jacob reconsecrated the place in fulfillment of the vow he had made here earlier. In support of this is the fact that the present narrative alludes to and is built on the previous one. He poured out a drink offering on it, and then he poured oil on it. Then God ascended from the place where He had spoken with Jacob. And Jacob set up a pillar of stone in that same spot. He poured wine on it as an offering to God and doused it with oil.

The gist of this verse: God is through speaking with Jacob and He leaves; Jacob sets up a pillar and pours a drink offering and oil on it.

Translation: Elohim went up from him in the place where He spoke with him. God has spoken to Jacob twice in Bethel.

The Geneva Bible: As God is said to descend, when he shows some sign of his presence: so he is said to ascend when a vision is ended.13

God was speaking to Jacob in Bethel; and now He has left.

What appears to be the case, based in part upon the wâw consecutives followed by imperfect verbs, is that God first appears to Jacob in Shechem and tells him to go to Bethel (a city with spiritual implications) and that God appears to Jacob once again in Bethel and again calls Jacob Israel.

Quite frankly, I don’t know how important this is; but I tend to be a stickler for details, when these details are actually found in the Word of God.

Translation: Then Jacob set up a pillar in the place where He spoke with him... Jacob has set up something previously before he went to the east to stay with Laban. Now, many, many years later, God speaks with him again. Therefore, Jacob is going to commemorate this by setting up a pillar.
There is nothing said about whether Jacob receives any direction here. Has God specified in the past anything about how He ought to be worshiped?

It is not necessarily likely that Jacob understood the communication ministry of God the Holy Spirit at this time (or, ever, in his lifetime). Therefore, from Jacob’s point of view, the oil was not necessarily a reference to God the Holy Spirit. However, God had just communicated with Jacob in both of these instances, so, from the God-ward point of view, the oil—apparently chosen from Jacob’s free will—represents the Holy Spirit, Who reveals spiritual information to us.

Translation: ...—a pillar of stone. The pillar that he sets up is made of stone. God does not generally want things done with great skill (except for the articles of furniture and accessories for the Temple and Tent). So, my guess is, Jacob took an elongated stone and simply set it upright, so that it is clear that someone had been there and someone did something here. But he did not fashion anything or sculpt anything.

This is the first occurrence of this word in Scripture.
Translation: Then he poured a drink offering on it... It is unclear how Jacob made the decision to pour a drink offering upon it. This is the first time a drink offering is mentioned; and nothing in the promises of God suggest that a drink offering is called for.

We have no idea if this was a part of the worship which Jacob observed or not.

This is the first drink offering found in the Bible; and drink offerings are offered up in the Levitical offerings. Whether this is water (representing the water of the Word), blood (representing the spiritual death of Jesus Christ on the cross) or wine (representing the blessings in life), we are not told.

The NET Bible: The verb נָטָשׁ (nasakh) means “to pour out, to make libations,” and the noun נְסֵח (nesekh) is a “drink-offering,” usually of wine or of blood. The verb יָצָק (yatsaq) means “to pour out,” often of anointing oil, but of other elements as well.14

Translation: ...and then he poured oil on it. Again, this is something which will be proscribed in the Law of Moses, but it is unclear why Jacob chose to worship in this way. Jacob has made an offering of oil previously in Gen. 28:18–19. The oil represents God the Holy Spirit.

We are still in Bethel. Jacob named this Bethel before, and now he will call it Bethel again.

And so calls Jacob a name of the place where spoke with him there Elohim Bethel. Jacob called the name of the place where Elohim spoke with him Bethel.

Jacob called that place Bethel, where God spoke with him.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Masoretic Text (Hebrew)       And so calls Jacob a name of the place where spoke with him there Elohim Bethel.

And Jakob called the name of the place where the Lord bad spoken with him Beth El.

And calling the name of that place Bethel.

And Jacob called the name of the place where God spoke with him, Beth-el.

And Jacob called the name of the place in which God spoke with him, Bethel.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

Bible in Basic English And he gave to the place where God had been talking with him, the name of Bethel.

The Message Jacob dedicated the place where God had spoken with him, Bethel (God's-House).

Names of God Bible Jacob named the place where Elohim had spoken with him Bethel [House of God].

NIRV Jacob named the place Bethel. That's where God had talked with him.

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

Contemporary English V. After God had gone, Jacob set up a large rock, so that he would remember what had happened there. Then he poured wine and olive oil on the rock to show that it was dedicated to God, and he named the place Bethel. Vv. 13–14 are included for context.

The Living Bible Jacob named the spot Bethel ("House of God"), because God had spoken to him there.

New Century Version And Jacob named the place Bethel.

New Living Translation And Jacob named the place Bethel (which means "house of God"), because God had spoken to him there.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible And that's when Jacob actually named this place where God spoke to him, BethEl (House of God).

Translation for Translators Jacob named that place Bethel, which means 'house of God,' because God had spoken to him there.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Ancient Roots Translinear Jacob called the name of the place there that God spoke with him, Bethel (House of God).

Ferar-Fenton Bible Jacob also called the name of that place where God spoke with him God's House.

Catholic Bibles:

New American Bible (2002) Jacob named the site Bethel, because God had spoken with him there.

New RSV So Jacob called the place where God had spoken with him Bethel.

Jewish/Hebrew Names Bibles:

eXeGeses companion Bible ...and Yaaqov calls the name of the place Elohim worded with him, Beth El.

Kaplan Translation Jacob had named the place where God had spoken to him Beth El (God's Temple).

Orthodox Jewish Bible And Ya'akov called the shem of the makom where Elohim spoke with him, Beit-El.

Restored Names Version And Ya'aqob called the name of the place where Elohiym spoke with him, Bayith-El.
And Ya`aqob called the name of the place where Elohim spoke with him, Bêyth Êîl.

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

Kretzmann’s Commentary
And Jacob called the name of the place where God spake with him, Bethel. This was his confession of his trust in the Word and promise of God, which is the rod and the staff of all believers during their pilgrimage on earth.

NET Bible®
Jacob named the place [Called the name of the place. In view of the previous naming of Bethel in Gen 28:19, here Jacob was confirming or affirming the name through an official ritual marking the fulfillment of the vow. This place now did become Bethel, the house of God.] where God spoke with him Bethel [The name Bethel means "house of God" in Hebrew].

Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:

Concordant Literal Version
And calling is Jacob the name of the place where the Elohim spoke with him, Beth-El.

Darby Translation
And Jacob called the name of the place where God had talked with him, Beth-el.

NASB
So Jacob named the place where God had spoken with him, Bethel [I.e. the house of God].

World English Bible
Jacob called the name of the place where God spoke with him "Bethel."

Young’s Updated LT
And Jacob calls the name of the place where God spoke with him Bethel.

The gist of this verse:
Jacob again named this place Bethel, which means House of God.

Translation: Jacob called the name of the place where Elohim spoke with him Bethel. At least twice, Jacob is said to name this place (Gen. 28:9  35:15).

Again, Bethel is House of God.

Jacob also named this place House of God when traveling in the other direction, to leave Canaan for Paddan-aram.

The times which God appeared to Jacob will be given next time.

We have been studying Gen. 35, and God guided Jacob and his family back to Bethel and then God appeared to Jacob once again in Bethel. When studying Genesis, I am not at all surprised at God appearing to Abraham many times. However, it indeed surprises me how many times God appeared to Jacob, who is clearly no spiritual giant. Given what we know about the patriarchs, we might have supposed that God might have avoided meeting Jacob altogether.
This ought to give all of us a great deal of confidence in the grace of God. The faith that Abraham revealed is difficult for me to relate to. The cynicism and self-centeredness of Jacob—well, quite frankly, that is more my speed. Yet God still worked with Jacob and God blessed him; despite the fact that Jacob never seemed to get fully onboard with God’s program. He had good days and perhaps even some good weeks and months; but so much of what we have studied (and will study) indicates Jacob was mostly concerned about himself.

Translation is A Voice in the Wilderness. Quotation marks added.

As has been noted before, Jacob’s biography, although quite extensive, does not fully explain each life experience.

God’s 6 Appearances to Jacob

<td>Gen 28:10–11 And Jacob went out from Beer-sheba and went toward Haran. And he came to a certain place and stayed there all night, because the sun had set. And he took one of the stones of that place and put it at his head, and he lay down in that place to sleep.</td>
<td>Jacob here is on the run from Esau. His cover story is, he is going to Paddan-aram to find a wife, but the real problem is, Esau wants to kill him because he had cheated Esau. This first appearance occurs while Jacob is moving to Paddan-aram.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 28:12 And he dreamed, and behold, a ladder was set up on the earth, and its top reached to the heavens; and behold the angels of God were ascending and descending on it.</td>
<td>The first thing that Jacob sees in his dream are angels traveling between heaven and earth. This angelic travel is a common thread running through Scripture.</td>
<tr>
<td>Gen 28:13–15 And behold, Jehovah stood above it and said: “I am Jehovah the God of Abraham your father and the God of Isaac; the land on which you are lying I give to you and your seed. And your seed shall be as the dust of the earth; you shall spread abroad to the west and the east, to the north and the south; and in you and in your Seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed. Behold, I am with you and will keep you wherever you go, and will bring you back to this land; for I am not forsaking you until I have done what I have spoken to you.”</td>
<td>God identifies Himself to Jacob and reiterates a promise previously made to Abraham and to Isaac. God adds that Jacob’s seed would be scattered throughout the earth. The implication here appears to be more than Jacob just occupying a great deal of land. God promises to bring Jacob back to the Land of Promise.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 28:16–17 And Jacob awoke from his sleep and said, Surely Jehovah is in this place, and I did not realize it. And he was afraid and said, “How awesome is this place! This is none other than the house of God, and this is the gate of Heaven!”</td>
<td>There is an interesting parallel here. Abraham was led into the land, and Isaac was kept in the land. However, God allowed Jacob to leave the Land of Promise and then return many years later. This would happen to the people of Israel as well. Now, note the promise that God makes to Jacob above. God tells Jacob that his descendants would be spread abroad into other countries in other places. This would be an appropriate promise for Jacob, as he is leaving the land as well. Jacob, when he wakes up, is quite amazed at his experience. Because of the angels and the sight of God, Jacob designates this place at the gate of heaven.</td>

This is about year 19 or 20 for Jacob living and working in Paddan-aram. Since Laban began to pay Jacob, Laban and his sons were unhappy with the end results. They believed Jacob was enjoying too much profit.</td>

<td>Gen 31:3</td>
<td>And Jehovah said to Jacob, &quot;Return to the land of your fathers and to your kindred, and I will be with you.&quot; The means by which God speaks to Jacob is possibly given to us later. This is Jacob speaking in retrospect, and he does not credit his own goofy scheme for producing the kinds of offspring which would belong to him. Jacob understands this because God told him that is what has been happening (vv. 12–13).</td>

<td>Jacob sees the angels and then wrestles with God in Mahanaim. God renames Jacob Israel. This is the night before he meets up with his brother Esau again.</td>

<td>Gen 32:1–2</td>
<td>Jacob here has left Paddan-aram, but he is about to meet Esau, whom he had done wrong to 20 years previous. It is interesting that Jacob encounters angels at least twice. Here, there is no reason to understand this as a reference to God.</td>

<tr>
<td>Gen 32:22–23</td>
<td>This and the next chapter are somewhat confusing because, in one chapter, he appears to be hiding his wives and children on one side of the river; but in the next, he is with his wives when approach Esau.</td>

<tr>
<td>Gen 32:24–25</td>
<td>Jacob is continually at odds with various people (Esau and Laban), as well as with God. Jacob’s life has been wrestling against God, and he refused to bend his will to God as his grandfather Abraham had.</td>

Genesis Chapter 35

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Scripture</th>
<th>Text/Commentary</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Gen 35:1</td>
<td>And God said to Jacob, “Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there; and make an altar there to the Mighty God, who appeared to you when you fled from the face of Esau your brother.” God associates Jacob fleeing Shechem to his fleeing from his brother Esau.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 35:2–3</td>
<td>And Jacob said to his household and to all who were with him, “Put away the foreign gods that are among you, purify yourselves, and change your garments. Let us arise and go up to Bethel; and I will make an altar there to the Mighty God, who answered me in the day of my distress and has been with me in the way which I have gone.” Recall that when Jacob left the Land of Promise, he said, “If God will be with me, and keep me in this way that I am going, and give me bread to eat and clothing to put on, so that I return to my father’s house in peace, then Jehovah shall be my God.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 35:4</td>
<td>So they gave Jacob all the foreign gods which were in their hands, and the earrings which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them under the terebinth tree which was by Shechem. Two of Jacob’s sons killed all the men of a village (due to one of them raping their sister) and they took captive all of their women and children. This means that those women would have various figurines that they would worship. Throughout the Old and New Testaments, the Bible is very specific about the God we worship. He is never presented as generic. Nowhere in the Bible do we find the verse: “You worship your God, I worship my God; it’s all good; they are the same God.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 35:5</td>
<td>And they journeyed, and the terror of God was upon the cities all around them, and they did not pursue the sons of Jacob. The people of the land feared Jacob and his family, which gave Jacob safe passage in the land.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 35:6–7</td>
<td>So Jacob came to Luz (which is Bethel), in the land of Canaan, he and all the people with him. And he built an altar there and called the place El Bethel, because there God had revealed Himself to him when he fled from the face of his brother. Jacob would offer up an animal sacrifice on the altar and he would explain his relationship to God and his grandfather’s relationship to God. This was how some people received the gospel in this era. El-Bethel means God of the House of God.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(5)</td>
<td>God again appears to Jacob in Bethel.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 35:9–10</td>
<td>And God appeared to Jacob again, when he came out of Paddan, and blessed him. And God said to him, “Your name is Jacob; your name shall not be called Jacob anymore, but Israel shall be your name.” And He called his name Israel. God reiterates His promises to Jacob; promises originally made to Abraham. God again changes Jacob’s name to Israel.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 35:11–12</td>
<td>God also said to him: I am God Almighty. Be fruitful and multiply. A nation and a company of nations shall proceed from you, and kings shall come forth from your loins. The land which I gave Abraham and Isaac I give to you; and to your seed after you I give this land.” God first tells Jacob to go to Bethel and then He speaks to Jacob in Bethel, a separate appearance. This is somewhat tricky and has already been discussed. There would be several nations which came from the Jewish people (Israel, Samaria, Judah, Judæa, Modern Israel and future Israel).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scripture</td>
<td>Text/Commentary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-----------</td>
<td>-----------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 35:13</td>
<td>And God ascended from him in the place where He had spoken with him. This verse in particular suggests that this is another appearance made by God to Jacob. Unlike most of the times that God speaks to Jacob in dreams, this appears to be face to face, as God ascends from him.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 35:14–15</td>
<td>And Jacob set up a pillar in the place where He had spoken with him, a pillar of stone; and he poured a drink offering on it, and he poured oil on it. And Jacob called the name of the place where God had spoken with him, Bethel. Jacob then honors God, memorializing the fact that God spoke with him there.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 46:1–2</td>
<td>So Israel took his journey with all that he had, and came to Beer-sheba. And he offered sacrifices to the God of his father Isaac. And God spoke to Israel in the visions of the night, and called out, “Jacob! Jacob!” And he said, “Here am I.” This next appearance comes sometime later, with a lot of narrative concerning Joseph coming in between. Beersheba is in the southern desert of Canaan (called the Negev).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 46:3–4</td>
<td>And He said, “I am the Mighty God, the God of your fathers. Do not fear to go down to Egypt, for I will make of you a great nation there. I will go down with you into Egypt, and I will arise to bring you back. And Joseph shall put his hand on your eyes.” Jacob again is being guided by God out of the Land of Promise once again; but with assurances that God would bring him back. Joseph putting his hand on Jacob’s eyes suggests that he will close Jacob’s eyes after he dies.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gen 46:5–6</td>
<td>And Jacob arose from Beer-sheba; and the sons of Israel carried their father Jacob, their little ones, and their wives, in the wagons which Pharaoh had sent to carry him. So they took their livestock and their possessions which they had acquired in the land of Canaan, and came into Egypt, Jacob and all his seed with him. Leaving the land of promise, particularly so late in life, was difficult for Jacob. However, Joseph sent a limousine to pick him up. At God’s direction, Jacob responds by going down to Egypt from Beer-sheba.</td>
</tr>

Applying Jacob’s life as an example that God appears to people in many different ways. Jacob was guided by God throughout his life, avoiding the land of promise for a period of time due to his problems with Esau; and then, he returns to the land. Then again, as the head of a family, he will lead his family out of Israel to Egypt during the famine. The people of Israel will not return for another 400 years, when Moses leads them out of Egypt. We will set up the parallels in a doctrinal table.

The people of Israel were removed from the land under the 5th Stage of National Discipline in 586 B.C.; and they returned 70 years later. Then, the Jews were removed from the Land of Promise in A.D. 70, for a much longer period of time. Although some Jews have gathered in Israel today, this is not the regathering which God has promised them (Isa. 11:10–12  Jer. 30:3–4  Ezek. 36:22–28  37:12  38:8).

Interestingly enough, Jacob’s life parallels these exiles. He leaves the land for a period of time (20 years) because of his problems with Esau; and then, he returns to the land. Then again, as the head of a family, he will lead his family out of Israel to Egypt during the famine. The people of Israel will not return for another 400 years, when Moses leads them out of Egypt. We will set up the parallels in a doctrinal table.
A Map of Jacob’s Travels from Paddan-Aram to Bethel (and Beyond); from Reading Through the Bible; accessed July 14, 2015. The lime green line would be Esau coming up to meet Jacob. The red line is Jacob coming down from Paddan-aram (way off the map to the northeast). Jacob’s movement corresponds with the order and chronology of Genesis.

The map shows us where Jacob travels, having left Paddan-aram (he is the red line); and later to Bethel, where God names him Israel once again and gave him a very remarkable blessing. The green line is his brother Esau coming up to meet him at the Jabbok River.
Upon Jacob’s return to the Land of Promise, God has appeared to him in Mahanaim (as the One Who wrestled with him and renamed him Israel); in Shechem (telling him to go down to Bethel); and again in Bethel. All of God appearances to Jacob have already been studied.

At some point, Esau would join up with Jacob, west of the Jordan and they would live in close proximity for a time. This probably took place after Isaac died (Isaac’s death will be recorded in this chapter).

Rachel Gives Birth to a Son and then Dies

And so they journey from Bethel and so he is still a distance of the earth to enter Ephrath-ward. And so is giving birth Rachel and so she is in hard labor in her giving birth.

They all journeyed from Bethel, but the distance of Ephrath was still a lot. However, Rachel began to give birth, and she is in a difficult labor.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew): And so they journey from Bethel and so he is still a distance of the earth to enter Ephrath-ward. And so is giving birth Rachel and so she is in hard labor in her giving birth.
- Targum of Onkelos: And they proceeded from Beth El; and there was yet much space of provision land in the coming to Ephrath and Rahel travailed, and had hard labour in her birth.
- Latin Vulgate: And going forth from thence, he came in the spring time to the land which leadeth to Ephrata: wherein when Rachel was in travail,...
- Peshitta (Syriac): And they journeyed from Bethel, and continued until they came within the distance of a mile from the entrance to Ephrath; and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labor while she was being delivered.
- Septuagint (Greek): (And Jacob journeyed from Bethel, and pitched his tent beyond the tower of Gader,) and it came to pass when he drew near to Habratha, to enter into Ephratha, Rachel labored in childbirth; and she had hard labor.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

- Bible in Basic English: So they went on from Beth-el; and while they were still some distance from Ephrath, the pains of birth came on Rachel and she had a hard time.
- Easy English: Then Jacob and those with him left Bethel. They were still not near Ephrath. Rachel had bad pains because she would soon have a baby.
- Easy-to-Read Version: Jacob and his group left Bethel. Just before they came to Ephrath (Bethlehem), Rachel began giving birth to her baby.
- Good News Bible (TEV): Jacob and his family left Bethel, and when they were still some distance from Ephrath, the time came for Rachel to have her baby, and she was having difficult labor.
They left Bethel. They were still quite a ways from Ephrath when Rachel went into labor—hard, hard labor.

Then they moved on from Bethel. When they were still some distance from Ephrath, Rachel went into labor and was having severe labor pains.

Rachel went into labor and was having severe labor pains.

Then they moved on from Bethel. When they were still some distance from Ephrath, Rachel went into labor. She had severe labor pains.

They moved on from Bethel. Ephrath wasn't very far away when Rachel began to have a baby. She was having a very hard time of it.

After that they moved from Bethel. When there was still some distance to go to Ephrath, Rachel went into labor. She had severe labor pains.

Then they moved on from Bethel and still some distance from Ephrath, Rachel felt the birth pangs.

They moved on from Bethel and still some distance from Ephrath [Ephrathah or Ephratah, the earlier name for Bethlehem (Gen. 48:7 Ruth 4:11). In Micah 5:2, Bethlehem-ephratah.], Rachel felt the birth pangs.

They moved away from Bethel and were still some distance from Ephrath when Rachel started giving birth to her baby, but she was having much trouble. When Rachel's nurse saw this, she said, "Don't be afraid, Rachel. You are giving birth to another son." V. 17 is included for context.

Leaving Bethel, he and his household traveled on toward Ephrath (Bethlehem). But Rachel's pains of childbirth began while they were still a long way away.

V. 17 is included for context.

The message, Jacob's [Israel's] Sons

Jacob and his group left Bethel. Before they came to Ephrath, Rachel began giving birth to a child and was having a difficult labor.

Rachel and Isaac Die

Leaving Bethel, Jacob and his clan moved on toward Ephrath. But Rachel went into labor while they were still some distance away. Her labor pains were intense.

[Well, after Deborah died], Jacob left BethEl and pitched his tent beyond the tower of Gader. And as they were getting close to ChabRatha, on their way to EphRatha, RachEl had birth pains and then went into hard labor.

Beck's American Translation

Benjamin is Born

They moved away from Bethel and were still some distance from Ephrath when Rachel started giving birth to a child and was having a difficult labor.

Rachel Dies in Childbirth

Later, they set out from Beth-el. While still a long way [Lit. a distance of land] from Ephrathah, Rachel started to have trouble giving birth.

Rachel was the name he gave to the place, and when he left it, in the spring, he journeyed into the country that lies towards Ephrata ["In the spring, he journeyed"; the Hebrew text here has a different meaning, "It was still some way for him to travel."]. Here Rachel was in travail, and the difficult labour she had was endangering her life; but the midwife said to her, Do not be afraid; this time, too, thou wilt give birth to a son. Vv. 15 and 17 are included for context.

The Deaths of Rachel and Isaac

Leaving Bethel, Jacob and his clan moved on toward Ephrath. But Rachel went into labor while they were still some distance away. Her labor pains were intense.

Vv. 15 and 17 are included for context.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

The Living Bible

Leaving Bethel, he and his household traveled on toward Ephrath (Bethlehem). But Rachel's pains of childbirth began while they were still a long way away.

The Deaths of Rachel and Isaac

Leaving Bethel, Jacob and his clan moved on toward Ephrath. But Rachel went into labor while they were still some distance away. Her labor pains were intense.

Vv. 15 and 17 are included for context.
Then they moved on from Bethel. While they were still some distance from Ephrath, Rachel began to give birth and had great difficulty.

Rachel died as Benjamin was born

Jacob and his family left Bethel and traveled south toward Ephrath town. When they were still some distance from Ephrath, Rachel began to have severe childbirth pains.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Ancient Roots Translinear

They journeyed from Bethel. In coming to Ephratah, there was still some land when Rachel begat and begat harder.

Conservapedia

They traveled from Bethel, and they were still a short distance from Ephrathah. Rachel entered labor, and had a difficult labor.

Catholic Bibles:

Christian Community (1988)

They moved on from Bethel and were still some distance from Ephrath when Rachel gave birth and the delivery was very difficult.

The Heritage Bible

And they pulled up from Bethel, and there was still a little distance of land to come to Ephrath; and Rachel bore, bearing in hard labor.

New American Bible (2011)

Jacob's Family.

Then they departed from Bethel; but while they still had some distance to go to Ephrath, Rachel went into labor and suffered great distress.

New Jerusalem Bible

They left Bethel, and while they were still some distance from Ephrath, Rachel went into labour, and her pains were severe.

New RSV

Then they journeyed from Bethel; and when they were still some distance from Ephrath, Rachel was in childbirth, and she had a difficult labour.

Jewish/Hebrew Names Bibles:

Complete Jewish Bible

Then they traveled on from Beit-El, and while there was still some distance to go before arriving in Efрат, Rachel went into labor, and she had great difficulty with it.

exeGeses companion Bible

And they pull stakes from Beth El; and there is still a bit of land to come to Ephrath: and Rachel births and she has hard birth.

ebrew Names Version

They traveled from Beit-El. There was still some distance to come to Efрат, and Rachel travailed. She had hard labor.

Kaplan Translation

They moved on from Beth El, and were some distance [About half a mile (Maasoth Binyamin 10). It was to the north of Ephrath or Bethlehem.] from Ephrath
And they journeyed from Bethel; and there was but a little way to come to Ephrath (= fertility); and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labor.

Then brake they up from Beth-el, and it came to pass when there was yet a stretch of the land to go to Ephrath, that Rahel began to give birth, and had great difficulty giving birth.

And they journeyed from Beit-El; and there was still a space of ha’aretz to get to Ephratah; and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labor.

Then they set out from Bëyth Él. And it came to be, when there was but a little distance to go to Ephrath, that Rahel began to give birth, and had great difficulty giving birth.

Then they journeyed from Bethel and had but a little way to go to Ephrath [Bethlehem] when Rachel suffered the pangs of childbirth and had hard labor.

And they journeyed from Bethel; and there was but a little way to come to Ephrath (= fertility): and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labor.

Then they set out from Bethel. When they were still some distance away [Heb "and there was still a stretch of the land to go to Ephrath."], Rachel went into labor [Normally the verb would be translated "she gave birth," but because that obviously had not happened yet, it is better to translate the verb as ingressive, "began to give birth" (cf. NIV) or "went into labor."] - and her labor was hard.

After that, they all traveled on from Bethel. While still a long way from Ephrath, Rachel began having labor pains, and it was a hard labor.

And journeying is Jacob from Beth-El, and it comes to be still some distance over land to come to Ephrath. And bearing is Rachel, and hard is she having it in her bearing.

And they journeyed from Bethel. And there was yet a certain distance to come to Ephrath, when Rachel travailed in childbirth; and it went hard with her in her childbearing.

Then brake they up from Beth-el, and it came to pass when there was yet a stretch of country, to enter into Ephrath, that Rachel was in childbirth, and had hard-labour in her child-birth.

Then they journeyed from Bethel. When they were still some distance [Or about two hours’ distance] from Ephrath, Rachel went into labour, and she had hard labour.

And they pulled up stakes from Bethel. And there was yet a length of land to come to Ephrath. And Rachel bore; and she had hard labor in her bearing.
Then they journeyed from Bethel; and when there was still some distance to go to Ephrath, Rachel began to give birth and she suffered severe labor [Lit had difficulty in her giving birth].

The Deaths of Rachel and Isaac

They travelled from Bethel. There was still some distance to come to Ephrath, and Rachel travailed. She had hard labour.

Death of Rachel

Then they journeyed from Bethel. And when there was but a little distance to go to Ephrath, Rachel labored in childbirth, and she had hard labor.

And they journeyed from Beth-el; and there was but a little way to come to Ephrath: and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labor.

They traveled from Bethel. There was still some distance to come to Ephrath, and Rachel travailed. She had hard labor.

And they journey from Bethel, and there is yet a kibrath of land before entering Ephratha, and Rachel bears, and is sharply pained in her bearing.

The gist of this verse:  Rachel, during their journey from Bethel, goes into a hard labor.

Translation:  They journeyed from Bethel...  The family of Jacob is on the road again.  They were at Bethel, where Jacob built an altar and poured both oil and a drink libation over it.  No time frame is given for their remaining in Bethel.
Genesis 35:16b

This is also spelled ‘Ephⁿâth (אֶפּוֹת) [pronounced ehtⁿ-RAWTH].

This generally refers to a place and it may be identical to Bethlehem (or it is a general area where Bethlehem is located—see Micah 5:1). This is a place near Bethel where Rachel died and was buried. This can also be a woman’s name (1Chron. 2:19, 50 4:4).

Translation: ...and it is still a distance of land to enter into Ephrath. Apparently, they were determined to come to Ephrath, but they were quite a distance out from there.

Here the vocabulary, the geography and the author’s personal experience are all intertwined. They are traveling south from Bethel, west of the mountains and this comes from the viewpoint and memory of a very young man, Joseph. The Emphasized Bible puts it this way: ...when there was yet a stretch of country to enter into Ephrath. Kibⁿâh (כִּבְנָה) [pronounced kihb-RAW] probably means little and it is used in conjunction with a measurement, usually with a distance. Although its exact meaning is unclear, it seems to indicate a short distance (not because I want to interpret that way; this is from BDB pg. 460). Because of the NASV rendering of some distance, some commentators believe that there is a second Ephrath (Bethlehem) found here. Whereas there is no problem that two different places have the same name, that just doesn't appear to be the case here.

There is the familiar word here ‘erets (אֶרץ) [pronounced EH-rets], which is translated land, earth, and, in this case distance, country, ground. This is the famous word used in conjunction with the promised land and with Gen. 1:1 when God created the heavens and the earth. We know because of 1Sam. 10:2 that we are in the country or the area of Benjamin, which is on the West side of the mountains. Just over the mountains, east from where they are, is Ephrath (or, Bethlehem).
The Geneva Bible: The Hebrew word signifies as much ground as one can cover from resting point to resting point, which is taken for half a days journey.

Translation: Rachel [begins to] give birth, but she is in hard labor in her giving birth. Rachel is pregnant and she begins to give birth, but she is experiencing a very difficult labor.

Rachel has had difficulty becoming pregnant, and, so far, has only given birth to one child, Joseph. She had gone through many human viewpoint solutions to this: (1) she gave her maid as a surrogate mother to Jacob; (2) she tried sexual stimulates; and (3) she blamed Jacob when she was not having any more children after Joseph. We will see here that her remaining not pregnant kept her alive all of these years.

Genesis 35:16

Then [= and so] they journeyed from Bethel. When [= and so] they were still some distance from Ephrath, [and so] Rachel went into labor, and [so] she had hard labor. (ESV; and so’s inserted)

As is found throughout Jacob’s writings (or section of Genesis), we have no idea why he is leaving Bethel and moving to Bethlehem-ephraph. There are a lot of details that Jacob tends to leave out.

Here, Rachel is pregnant for the second time, and this is apparently a difficult pregnancy.

Recall that Rachel did not give birth at first; and she even designated her personal maid as her surrogate (Gen. 30:1–8). After her personal maid gave birth, Rachel later became pregnant with Joseph (Gen. 30:22–25). This was the time that Jacob became to talk about leaving Laban’s ranch.

If all of this is in roughly chronological order, then fewer than 17 years have passed since Jacob and company left Laban’s ranch (Gen. 37:2). Doing the math, Reuben would have been around 26 or 27 in Gen. 37, so the sons of Jacob in the time that we are studying them are in their teens and early 20's.

And so he is in her hard labor and so says to her the midwife, “Fear not for now this to you a son.”

And it came to pass during her hard labor that the midwife said to her, “Do no be afraid, because this is a son you are giving birth to.”

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew) And so he is in her hard labor and so says to her the midwife, “Fear not for now this to you a son.”
- Targum of Onkelos And it was in the hardness of her travail that the midwife said to her, Fear not, for this also is to thee a male child.
- Latin Vulgate By reason of her hard labour, she began to be in danger, and the midwife said to her: Fear not, for thou shalt have this son also.
- Peshitta (Syriac) And it came to pass, when she was in hard labor, the midwife said to her, Fear not; for this one also is a son for you.
- Septuagint (Greek) And it came to pass in her hard labor, that the midwife said to her, Be of good courage, for you shall also have this son.

The NET Bible: The construction uses a Hiphil infinitive, which E. A. Speiser classifies as an elative Hiphil. The contrast is with the previous Piel: there "she had hard labor," and here, "her labor was at its hardest." Failure to see this, Speiser notes, has led to redundant translations and misunderstandings (Genesis [AB], 273).\(^{16}\)

Translation: ...because now this [is] a son for you.” The midwife announces that she is having a son. We do not know whether this occurs and she has almost delivered the child; or if the midwife is simply thinking that this must be a male-child, because the birthing is so difficult. The former seems most likely, as Rachel will live long enough to give birth and to name her son—although this may be a few minutes or an hour that she lives after giving birth.

Rachel is being encouraged in this birth, which further suggests that the birth is difficult.
And so he is in a departing of her soul (for she died), and so she calls his name Ben-oni; and his father have called to him Benjamin.

With her dying breath, Rachel names her son Ben-oni. However, his father named him Benjamin.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew): And so he is in a departing of her soul (for she died), and so she calls his name Ben-oni; and his father have called to him Benjamin.
- Targum of Onkelos: And it was in the going forth of her soul, for death came upon her, that she called his name The son of my woe: but his father called him Benjamin.
- Jerusalem targum: And there was a space, as much ground, to come unto Ephrath; and Rahel travailed, and had hard labour in her birth . . . But his father called him in the language of the sanctuary, Benjamin.
- Latin Vulgate: And when her soul was departing for pain, and death was now at hand, she called the name of her son Benoni, that is, the son of my pain: but his father called him Benjamin, that is, the son of the right hand.
- Peshitta (Syriac): And it came to pass, as her soul was departing and she was dying, she called the child's name Bar-kebai (the Son of My Sorrow); but his father called him Benjamin (the Son of My Right Hand).
- Septuagint (Greek): And it came to pass in her giving up the ghost (for she was dying), that she called his name, The son of my pain; but his father called his name Benjamin.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

- Bible in Basic English: And in the hour when her life went from her for death came to her, she gave the child the name Ben-oni: but his father gave him the name of Benjamin.
- Easy English: Rachel did not stay alive. As she was dying, she called her son Benoni. But his father called him Benjamin.
- The Message: With her last breath, for she was now dying, she named him Benoni (Son-of-My-Pain), but his father named him Ben-jamin (Son-of-Good-Fortune).
- New Simplified Bible: Rachel was dying! With her last breath she named her son Ben-oni (Son of My Sorrow), but his father named him Benjamin (Son of My Right Hand).

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

- Common English Bible: As her life faded away, just before she died, she named him Ben-oni [Or my suffering son], but his father named him Benjamin [Or right-hand son or strong son].
- Contemporary English V.: Rachel was at the point of death, and right before dying, she said, "I'll name him Benoni." But Jacob called him Benjamin.
- New Century Version: Rachel gave birth to the son, but she herself died. As she lay dying, she named the boy Son of My Suffering, but Jacob called him Benjamin [This name means "right-hand son" or "favorite son."].
- New Life Version: As Rachel's soul was leaving, for she died, she gave him the name Benoni. But his father gave him the name Benjamin.
- New Living Translation: Rachel was about to die, but with her last breath she named the baby Ben-oni (which means "son of my sorrow"). The baby's father, however, called him Benjamin (which means "son of my right hand").

- Beck’s American Translation
  > As her life was going—she was dying—she called him Benoni ["Son of Wailing"], but his father called him Benjamin ["Son of My Right hand" or "Son of Good Luck"].

- International Standard V
  > Just before she died [Lit. As her soul was departing while she was dying], Rachel called her son's [Lit. called his] name Ben-oni [The Heb. name Ben-oni means child of my pain], but his father Jacob [The Heb. lacks Jacob] named him Benjamin [The Heb. name Benjamin means child of my right hand].

- New Advent (Knox) Bible
  > But her life was ebbing away in her pangs; she saw that she was close to death, and called her son Benoni, the child of my distress. His father's name for him was Benjamin, the child of his right hand.

- Today’s NIV
  > As she breathed her last--for she was dying--she named her son Ben-Oni. But his father named him Benjamin.

- Translation for Translators
  > But she was dying, and with her last breath she said, "Name him Benoni," which means 'son of my sorrow,' but his father named him Benjamin, which means 'son of my right hand.'

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Catholic Bibles:

- Christian Community (1988)
  > And as she breathed her last—for she was dying—she called him Benoni (which means: son of my pain), but his father named him Benjamin.

- New American Bible (2002)
  > With her last breath - for she was at the point of death-she called him Ben-oni; his father, however, named him Benjamin. Ben-oni: means either "son of my vigor" or, more likely in the context, "son of affliction." Benjamin: "son of the right hand." This may be interpreted to signify a son who is his father's help and support, but more likely its original meaning was "southerner." In the Hebrew idiom, the south lies to one's right hand, and Benjamin was the southernmost of the Rachel tribes.

- New American Bible (2011)
  > With her last breath—for she was at the point of death-she named him Ben-oni;* but his father named him Benjamin. Ben-oni: means either "son of my vigor" or, more likely in the context, "son of affliction." Benjamin: "son of the right hand," meaning a son who is his father's help and support.

- New Jerusalem Bible
  > At the moment when she breathed her last, for she was dying, she named him Ben-Oni. His father, however, named him Benjamin.

| NET Bible® | With her dying breath [Heb "in the going out of her life, for she was dying." Rachel named the child with her dying breath.], she named him Ben-Oni [The name Ben-Oni means "son of my suffering." It is ironic that Rachel's words to Jacob in Gen 30:1, "Give me children or I'll die," take a different turn here, for it was having the child that brought about her death.]. But his father called him Benjamin instead [The disjunctive clause is contrastive.] [His father called him Benjamin. There was a preference for giving children good or positive names in the ancient world, and "son of my suffering" would not do (see the incident in 1Chron. 4:9-10), because it would be a reminder of the death of Rachel (in this connection, see also D. Daube, "The Night of Death," HTR 61 [1968]: 629-32). So Jacob named him Benjamin, which means "son of the [or "my"] right hand." The name Benjamin appears in the Mari texts. There have been attempts to connect this name to the resident tribe listed at Mari, "sons of the south" (since the term "right hand" can also mean "south")]}
And it came to pass, as her soul was in departing (for she died) that she called his name Ben-Oni (name means 'son of my sorrow'). But his father called him Benjamin (name means 'son of the right hand' (the hand of honor)).

God’s Truth (Tyndale)
Then as her soul was departing, that she must die: she called his name Ben Oni. But his father called him Ben Jamin.

Third Millennium Bible
And it came to pass as her soul was in departing (for she died), that she called his name Benoni [that is, The son of my sorrow], but his father called him Benjamin [that is, The son of the right hand].

World English Bible

Without a specific subject and object, the verb häyâh often means and it will come to be, and it will come to pass, then it came to pass (with the wâw consecutive). It may be more idiomatically rendered subsequently, afterwards, later on, in the course of time, after which. Generally, the verb does not match the gender whatever nearby noun could be the subject (and, as often, there is no noun nearby which would fulfill the conditions of being a subject).

Translation: And so it is, when her soul departed... Rachel dies during childbirth or shortly after it. Her death will occur when her soul departs.

The NET Bible aptly describes this, with her dying breath. So, she has given birth, but the labor was so difficult that she is dying soon after giving birth.

...she called his name Ben-oni;... We will assume that Rachel (rather than her midwife) names this infant. She knows that she has given birth to a boy.

V. 18 (so far): And so it is, when her soul departed (for she died), she called his name Ben-oni;... With her dying breath, she names her son.

God knew the condition of Rachel’s body and that giving birth was quite difficult for her. Therefore, most of Jacob’s children are born from his other wife and from their two personal maids. In this way, Jacob was able to enjoy his relationship with Rachel, his right woman, for a maximum amount of time.

Translation: ...but his father named him Benjamin.
Authorship Discussion Part II: In this verse we come upon another clue to authorship and to a most marvelous word: the first word in the Hebrew dictionary is ‘âb (אָב) [pronounced awb] and it means father. Throughout the portion of Scripture that Jacob wrote, we find the word father (over)used in Gen. 34 for Hamor, the father of Shechem; and in Gen. 31 for Isaac. Not once in the several chapters that Jacob wrote do we find the word father applied to himself. However, here Jacob is called father. The word was obviously in his vocabulary, but he never used it of himself. The Hebrew word can mean father, grandfather or ancestor. So Jacob would not have seen himself in that light. He was the son of Isaac. However, this new author looked upon Jacob as father. This is one place in this narrative which suggests that Joseph could have been the author. Jacob does not refer to himself as father, but Joseph, who would have been quite young when his mother died and his younger brother was born, would have seen Jacob as his father and the naming of the child would have made an impression upon Joseph.

It is possible that Jacob began this chapter and Joseph completed it. The problem with this theory is, there is no simple transition verse (prior to this verse) which would suggest a change of authors. A new author could have begun the text in the middle of v. 22, but there is really no place prior to this in Gen. 35 where this would make sense.

Regarding the transmission of text, we have no idea how this occurred. Writing did exist in some areas during this time; but did it exist in Canaan? That we do not know. Remember when Abraham bought the grave site, the business transaction was carried out before many witnesses, suggesting that there was no deed recorded, but that these men and their memories of the agreement made was the recorded deed.

Could this portion of Scripture been originally written by Jacob, recounted to his favorite son Joseph, who carried it with him in his soul? Joseph could have made some slight changes here and there, occasionally adding his own sensibilities to the text (like referring to Jacob as his father).

And, whereas in the previous chapters we have many mentions of Bildah, Leah and Zilpah, Jacob’s other wives, they are not mentioned again other than in an incestuous event between Reuben and Bildah, and their names come up in a list of the sons of Jacob. Their deaths are not recorded nor does this author mention one more item of interest about these three women. Jacob had a lot to say about all of them and each is mentioned over a half-dozen times by Jacob. However, this author mentions only one wife of Jacob, and that is Rachel; along with Rachel's last son, Benjamin.

Again, we do not know how the text was transmitted (I believe by word of mouth from father to son; and I believe that it was memorized); and we do not know if one author (Joseph) may have modified the narratives of another author (Jacob).

Quite frankly, I feel like I have missed something in this chapter, something which would give me greater insight into this topic (although not necessarily a definitive outcome).

Let’s discuss the child born here. Benjamin is in many ways a type of Christ. He was born in Bethlehem-Ephrath, as was our Lord, and his life is associated with the death of another. Rachel died that Benjamin might live. Benjamin was given two names. His mother, at her death, named him Ben-oni, which means son of my sorrow, which gives us one aspect of our Lord. He suffered the penalty for our sins. He was despised and forsaken of men, a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief and like one from whom men hide their face. He was despised, and we did not esteem Him (Isa. 53:3). Jacob named him Benjamin, which means son of my right hand. The Lord said to my Lord [God the Father said to God the Son], “Sit at My right hand, until I place Your enemies beneath Your feet.” (Matt. 22:44  Psalm 110:1).

Ben-oni means son of my sorrow, referring to Rachel’s difficult labor. In dying grace, some of us know that this is the end of our lives, which is very possible in Rachel’s case. Benjamin means son of my right hand, which, as C.I. Scofield points out, is a shadow of the function of the two advents of Jesus Christ. The son of my sorrow is the humanity of Jesus Christ, bearing our sins, paying the penalty for our iniquity (Isa. 53:3 reads: He was despised and forsaken of men, a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief; and like one from whom men hide their face, He was despised and we esteemed Him not). This interpretation is based upon a Hebrew homonym\(^\text{17}\) that most translators agree upon. The Son of my right hand refers to His return at the end of the tribulation; the second advent, the judge the world and to cull out the unbelievers from the face of the earth, executing judgement as God's right hand (Mark 14:62 reads: Jesus said, "...You will see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of power and coming with the clouds of heaven." See also Psalm 110:1 Dan. 7:13 Mark 16:19).

Benoni means son of my sorrow. Delivery was quite painful and Rachel died from giving birth.

Jacob changes the name slightly—perhaps not wanting to remember the death of lovely Rachel every time he called his son by name—so he names his son Benjamin, which means Yah [Jehovah] has built up.

God made some tremendous promises to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob; and now, it appears that He is going to fulfill these promises, as Jacob has a very large family with so many sons—a family which God has built up.

Chapter Outline

Charts, Graphics and Short Doctrines

As an aside, there are some who try to ignore the plain text of Isa. 53 and say that this is not about Jesus Christ. If you know anything about our Lord’s purpose for coming to this earth and His dying for us on the cross, you cannot read Isa. 53 without understanding that this is our Lord. What confuses some people is, there are two authors to any Scripture: there is the human author and there is the Holy Spirit. In the passage that we just studied, Jacob (the supposed author; and it might be Joseph) is simply giving us a narrative of the birth of Benjamin and telling us what happened. It is highly unlikely that the author had any idea that Benjamin is a type of Christ. However, when we look at the 5 or so parallels above, it is clear that Benjamin here is presented as a type of Christ, with an emphasis upon His work on the cross. That would be God the Holy Spirit. You can have the exact same set of words, and the human author is conveying one set of facts with these words; and, at the same time, God the Holy Spirit is teaching something on an entirely different level. To understand more about this, see the Dual Authorship of Scripture (HTML) (PDF) (WPD).

These are excerpts from an excellent treatise by David H. Linden (accessed January 3, 2015).

Certainly, we might find a reasonable explanation as to what Isa. 53 is about, but it is hard to deny that the thrust of this chapter is to reveal the work and suffering of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Isaiah 53 by David H. Linden

We should be very careful to see who is speaking! In Isaiah 42:1-7, it is the Father speaking, with one verse narrated by the prophet. In Isaiah 49, the prophet reports the words of Christ and the Father to each other! In Isaiah 50, I think it is Christ alone who is speaking in the entire song. In Isaiah 52, 53 Christ does not speak, rather God and men combine to sing His praise.

In the last great song, the five stanzas change speakers:
- It begins with the Father speaking of His Servant,
- and switches to Israel expressing its own unbelief,
- but suddenly they speak with understanding of the Servant's mission.
- Then Isaiah the prophet speaks.
- Then Isaiah speaks of the Father’s purpose in Christ's suffering and resurrection, with the final words, like the beginning, coming from the Father.
Isaiah 53 by David H. Linden

It is my opinion that not even in the gospels do we come across an explanation of the cross that exceeds this part of Isaiah in clarity. The Gospels speak primarily of what happened; Isaiah spoke of the purpose of the Servant's work.

The Servant's death was substitutionary. Note how representative it is; it is He for us:
- He took up our infirmities
- He carried our sorrows
- He was pierced for our transgressions
- He was crushed for our iniquities
- Punishment that brought us peace was upon Him
- By His wounds we are healed
- The Lord laid on Him the iniquity of us all.

Here I must repeat Isaiah's words because there is more than one crucial perspective on Christ's work. Some evangelicals today will admit one element of Christ's work and deny another.

The Servant's death is atoning. This means it has special reference to our sin. Earlier it was for us, now I am saying it was because of our sin. But this makes no sense unless the intention is that Christ takes the consequences of our sin in our place. We can have a substitutionary action that is not atoning, such as one doing a task for another. The representation of Christ in the Bible is a major theme developed more in the New Testament. But the Old Testament makes a strong connection between sin and death. Redemption is a release from sin secured by a payment being made for it. The earlier quotations say:

- He was pierced for our transgressions
- He was crushed for our iniquities
- Punishment that brought us peace was upon Him
- The Lord laid iniquity on Him

On this theme there is more in later stanzas:

- For the transgression of my people was he stricken, vs. 8
- His life was a guilt offering, vs. 10
- He will bear their iniquities, vs. 11
- He bore the sin of many, vs. 12

I include this simply because, in my research, I came across those who try to say that this chapter does not refer to Jesus Christ. If you understand dual authorship, then the fact that there might be another interpretation of this passage does not invalidate it referring to Jesus Christ.

At this point in our study, Jacob is leading his family on a southern route through the land of promise, and Rachel gives birth to Jacob’s youngest son, Benjamin. It is a difficult pregnancy and Rachel dies.

And so dies Rachel and so she is buried in the way Ephrath-ward (she [is] Bethlehem). And so stands up Jacob a pillar upon her grave. She [is] a pillar of a grave of Rachel as far as the day.

Rachel died and was buried along the way to Ephrath (the same [is] Bethlehem). Jacob stood up a pillar over her grave. This [is] the pillar [over] Rachel’s grave even to [this] day.
Rachel died and was buried along their route to Ephrath (which is known also as Bethlehem). Jacob stood a pillar up over her grave. That same pillar stand over Rachel's grave even to this day.

And Rachel died, and was buried on the derech to Ephrathah, which is Beit- Lechem. And Ya’akob set a standing column on her grave; that is matzevet kevurat Rachel to this day.

Restored Names Version

And Rachel died and was buried on the way to Ephrathah (she is Bayth Lechem). And Ya’aqob set a pillar on her grave, that is the pillar of Rachel's grave to this day.

The Scriptures 1998

So Rahel died and was buried on the way to Ephrath, that is Bëyth Lehem. And Ya’aqob set a standing column on her grave, which is the monument of Rahel's grave to this day.

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

The Amplified Bible

So Rachel died and was buried on the way to Ephrath, that is, Bethlehem. And Jacob set a pillar (monument) on her grave; that is the pillar of Rachel's grave to this day.

Bullinger’s Companion Bible

And Rachel died, and was buried in the way to Ephrath, which is Beth-lehem. (= house of bread. Same place Christ was born Who is the Bread of Life.) And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave (first occ. 23:4 = a sepulcher, from kabar to bury. Not sheol, which = THE grave = hell): that is the pillar of Rachel's grave to this day. (Well-known in the days of Samuel-1 Sam. 10:2)
Rachel was buried on the road to Ephrath, a district of Bethlehem, and Jacob set up a pillar on her grave. It is the pillar of Rachel's grave to this day.

And Rachel died, and was buried in the way to Ephrath, which is Bethlehem. And Jacob set a pillar upon her grave; that is the pillar of Rachel's grave unto this day. So the monument was still standing in the days when Moses wrote. It was a bitter cup of grief which Jacob had to quaff at the death of his wife, for even believers feel the sting of death.

So Rachel died, and was buried on the way to Ephrath (that is, Bethlehem) [This explanatory note links the earlier name Ephrath with the later name Bethlehem.]. Jacob set up a marker [Heb "standing stone." ] over her grave; it is [Or perhaps "it is known as" (cf. NEB).] the Marker of Rachel's Grave to this day.

So Rachel died, and they buried her on the way to Ephrath (which is also known as Bethlehem). Jacob set up a pillar to mark Rachel's tomb, and the pillar at her tomb still stands to this day.

The gist of this verse:

Rachel dies and she is buried along the road to Ephrathra. Jacob sets up a pillar over her grave which is known even to the day of the final writing of this chapter.

Translation: Rachel died and was buried along the way to Ephrath (the same [is] Bethlehem). Rachel died and was buried along side the road that they were all traveling on their way to Ephrath, which later became known as Bethlehem.

Rachel did not do well with childbirth in the first place; and traveling while pregnant was probably no help to her. However, after moving from Paddan-aram, Jacob and company appear to have done a fair amount of traveling.

They were on their way to Bethlehem along the Western portion of the mountains. We know this because Rachel’s grave is still found in the area of the tribe of Dan as recently as 1Samuel. There is a popular grave site for Rachel located near Bethlehem; however, that is not what this passage says. Jacob and his family are on this road which goes to Bethlehem (which is possibly their destination) and Rachel dies at the beginning of this journey. Her exact place of burial is unknown today (this will become an issue to us in 1Sam. 9–10). But what is important that we need to note from this passage is that the road Jacob was on continued on to Bethlehem; this does not mean that they were right outside of Bethlehem when Rachel died and was buried. Jacob will later say that he buried Rachel some distance from Bethlehem (or, Ephrath, as it was called then—Gen. 48:7).

This is the first mention of Bethlehem in the Bible—the city where our Lord was born. Bethlehem means house of bread. As Scofield points out, other than the birth of our Lord there, Bethlehem is never mentioned with respect to any aspect of our Lord’s ministry nor is it mentioned in conjunction with the church. Because it is but five miles from Jerusalem, it was essentially a suburb of Jerusalem.

Translation: Jacob stood up a pillar over her grave. Jacob marked her grave with a pillar. Again, I believe that this would be an elongated rock which is set up vertically, so that it stands out as an unusual sight.

The Geneva Bible: The ancient fathers used this ceremony to testify their hope of the resurrection to come, which was not generally revealed.

This is the precursor of the modern-day gravestone.

Translation: This [is] the pillar [over] Rachel’s grave even to [this] day. There appear to be at least two comments added by a later author here. One is the identification of Ephrath with Bethlehem, which is a name later given to Ephrath. Secondly, this author is aware of where Rachel’s grave is and that the pillar remains standing over it.

Gloss Discussion: That Jacob set up a pillar and the author writes, that is the pillar of Rachel’s grave to this day, is quite fascinating. The idea that someone later takes note of this actually carries with it several implications. Joseph appears to write the remainder of Genesis, beginning with Gen. 37 (although I am not sure about Gen. 38). For him to have added this remark while living in Canaan would not make sense, as it would just be a few years later. Joseph is already born at this time and he is 17 years of age in Gen. 37—so, that the pillar is still there 5–15 years later is not really a remarkable thing. Therefore, Joseph would not have written that.

By the end of Gen. 37, Joseph is on his way to live the rest of his life in Egypt; and his family will all follow a few decades later. The sons of Jacob will continue to live in Egypt for another 400 years until Moses takes them out of Egypt. When Moses returns to the land, he is never near Hebron or Bethlehem (which are west of the Jordan River). Rachel is buried somewhere near Bethlehem, north of Hebron. There is actually a theological disagreement here about exactly where she is buried, but there is no dispute that Rachel is buried west of the Jordan River. Moses never crosses the Jordan River. Therefore, this statement which we find here, which is very likely a gloss, had to have been inserted after Moses, since neither Joseph would not have made these remarks as a 17 year old; and Moses never traveled to her (Joseph will record the final chapters of Genesis and Moses will be the next human author, writing the books of Exodus through Deuteronomy). We do not know when or by whom this was added, but it had to have been added at least 400 years later by Joshua or someone after him.

Joshua did, as a spy; and later, leading an invading army, go by the pillar marking Rachel’s grave. This would have caught his attention, knowing the Scriptures as he did. It is over 400 years since Rachel is buried there; the sons of Jacob have not lived in the land for over 400 years; and yet the pillar of Rachel is there. That would have been remarkable to Joshua and he very likely added this gloss.

A gloss, by the way, is a sentence or phrase clearly added after the writing of the original text (and I use write in a very loose way, as I believe the text of Genesis was memorized and taught from generation to generation; and that some men actually added more information to this book, to update and specify locations).

Glosses usually tend to help us determine old and new names for a place, which aids us even today in determining the location of this or that place. A gloss never actually affects the doctrine of the Bible. It is simply a point of clarification, often added for the readers (hearers) of the era during which it is added.

The second phrase of this verse is a gloss or suggests that this was written many years later. I would go with the gloss. Obviously, Jacob would not set up the pillar, mourn for a few days, and then head out, commenting, and the pillar for Rachel’s tomb is there to this day. This is only remarkable if this is observed a generation or more later. Although Joseph could have added these words, it would have made little sense for him to do so. He is perhaps 10 or 12 at this time, and he will leave the Land of Promise for good at age 17. It is certainly possible that one of his brothers told him that the pillar still stands. However, this may have been added by Joshua, who scoped out the land as a spy and later conquered the land. Since these glosses occur throughout Genesis, they do not necessarily point to an author at a much later date, but to someone who may have added these words and would have had the authority to add them (like Moses or Joshua).

Authorship and Transmission Discussion: For instance, let me suggest that Jacob taught the book of Genesis (up to chapter 36) to his favorite son Joseph and Joseph memorized it. When Jacob first mentioned the name Luz, Joseph may have asked, where is that? And Jacob said, that is Bethel. Joseph would have been familiar with Bethel, but not with the name Luz. His father named that place Bethel twice, the first time being prior to Joseph’s birth.

More importantly, when Joseph went to Egypt, he carried the book of Genesis with him, chapters 1–36 (logically, it was in his brain). Joseph was incarcerated for a very long time. Let me suggest to you that he remembered and repeated the words of Genesis 1–36 to himself throughout this time, adding the chapters of his own life to those words.

It would never occur to you or I to add anything to the Word of God. Furthermore, no one would pay much attention to what we added. So, why would Joshua, 400 years later, consider adding a few words to this portion of Genesis? Answering this question, requires some explanation.

Today, we have a very well-defined concept of the Word of God. Most evangelical, orthodox Christians adhere to the verbal-plenary definition of the inspiration of Scripture, which is, human authors wrote as moved by the Holy Spirit, so that, without waving their human intelligence, their vocabulary, their personal feelings, their literary style, their personality, their environmental influences or their individuality, they recorded God’s complete and connected message to man with perfect accuracy in the original languages of Scripture, the very words bearing the authority of divine authorship. The end result is, the Bible is the Word of God, but written by the hand of man. Just as Jesus is undiminished Deity and true humanity, so the Word of God is that as well as being the words of men.

When Jacob taught Joseph the book of Genesis (up to Gen. 36) and possibly the book of Job, they understood that the book of authoritative and that it was similar to listening to God speak. It is questionable that, when adding over a dozen chapters, that Joseph thought, “I am writing down God’s words.” It is highly unlikely that they had ever articulated the outstanding definition above of the inspiration of Scripture.

Generally speaking, there would have been nothing particularly mystical when recording the word of God. Joseph would not have been in some kind of a trance. He simply wrote down what had happened to him (and again, by wrote down, I don’t know if he literally wrote those words down or not, or whether he simply recalled what he had been taught, and passed this along to his two sons, along with appending his own story to the original narrative).

So, Joshua, who may or may not have understood himself to be writing the Word of God (he completed the book of Deuteronomy and wrote the book of Joshua), would have added a gloss as we read here, without giving it too much thought.

Genesis 35:20 And Jacob set up a pillar upon her grave. That is the pillar of Rachel's grave to this day.

The priest/prophet Samuel anoints Saul king over Israel and prophecies about what would happen to Saul. Circa 1040 B.C.

| 1Sam. 10:1–2 Then Samuel took a flask of oil and poured it on his head and kissed him and said, &quot;Has not the LORD anointed you to be prince over his people Israel? And you shall reign over the people of the LORD and you will save them from the hand of their surrounding enemies. And this shall be the sign to you that the LORD has anointed you to be prince over his heritage. When you depart from me today, you will meet two men by Rachel’s tomb in the territory of Benjamin at Zelzah, and they will say to you, 'The donkeys that you went to seek are found, and now your father has ceased to care about the donkeys and is anxious about you, saying, &quot;What shall I do about my son?&quot;' | Samuel here is anointing Saul as king over Israel, and there is a mention of Rachel’s tomb, indicating that its whereabouts was known at this time. |
| 1Sam. 10:3–5 Then you shall go on from there farther and come to the oak of Tabor. Three men going up to God at Bethel will meet you there, one carrying three young goats, another carrying three loaves of bread, and another carrying a skin of wine. And they will greet you and give you two loaves of bread, which you shall accept from their hand. After that you shall come to Gibeah-elohim, where there is a garrison of the Philistines. And there, as soon as you come to the city, you will meet a group of prophets coming down from the high place with harp, tambourine, flute, and lyre before them, prophesying. | That she is named and known about suggests rudimentary knowledge at the very least of the book of Genesis. |
| 1Sam. 10:6–8 Then the Spirit of the LORD will rush upon you, and you will prophesy with them and be turned into another man. Now when these signs meet you, do what your hand finds to do, for God is with you. Then go down before me to Gilgal. And behold, I am coming to you to offer burnt offerings and to sacrifice peace offerings. Seven days you shall wait, until I come to you and show you what you shall do.&quot; | Samuel, as a prophet, makes prophetical pronouncements about what Saul would do and who he would meet. |
| | This indicates that Samuel is a prophet, that God allowed him to see into the future, and therefore, has authority over Saul the king. Saul, even though king over all Israel, was to never forget that God gave him that position (ideally speaking). |
| | Saul himself, when meeting up with these prophets, would speak prophecies as well. |
| | Saul would observe each of these prophecies to come to pass, which should have given him great comfort as the king chosen by God and anointed by Samuel. |

Chapter Outline

We have studied a great many side doctrines in Gen. 35, and therefore, may have lost the flow of this narrative. So far in Gen. 35, these are the events which have taken place:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>A Review of Genesis 35:1–20</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. God tells Jacob to go to Bethel, which is not too far south of Shechem. This is because Simeon and Levi murdered all of the males of Shechem and Jacob was worried for the safety of his family. V. 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Jacob oversees the removal of the false idols from his people. Recall that after two of Jacob’s sons killed the males of Shechem, they took their women and children as captives; so they would have certainly had many idols. Vv. 2–4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. They arrive to Bethel and Jacob builds an altar there. Vv. 5–7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Deborah, Rebekah’s nurse, dies. Rebekah is Jacob’s mother; and this suggests that her nurse has been with Jacob since he left Canaan many years previous. We have no indication that Jacob has even seen his father or mother since returning to the land. Furthermore, Rebekah’s nurse would have been a second mother to Jacob and she came from Paddan-aram; so it is logical for her to have been with Jacob from the very beginning of his trip to Paddan-aram. V. 8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. God appears again to Jacob in Bethel and Jacob builds an altar there where God appears to him. Vv. 9–15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. They all travel from Bethel to Bethlehem, while Rachel is pregnant. Rachel dies when giving birth on the way to Bethlehem-Ephrath. Her death is the second of 3 significant deaths recorded in this chapter. Jacob puts up a pillar where Rachel is buried and we deduced that this pillar and grave were still there at least 500 years later. Vv. 16–20</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

This prepares us for the remainder of the narrative.

Reuben's Sin
And so [pulled up stakes and] journeys [forth] Israel and so he stretches out his tent from farther towards the Tower of ‘Eder.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew): And so [pulled up stakes and] journeys [forth] Israel and so he stretches out his tent from farther towards the Tower of ‘Eder.
- Targum of Onkelos: And Jakob proceeded and spread his tent beyond the tower of Eder, the place from whence, it is to be, the King Meshiha will be revealed at the end of the days.
- Latin Vulgate: Departing thence, he pitched his tent beyond the Flock tower.
- Peshitta (Syriac): And Israel journeyed, and pitched his tent beyond the tower of Gadar.
- Septuagint (Greek): No text.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

- Bible in Basic English: And Israel went journeying on and put up his tents on the other side of the tower of the flock.
- Easy English: Israel continued his journey. He put up his tent beyond the *tower called Eder.
- Easy-to-Read Version: Then Israel (Jacob) continued his journey. He camped just south of Eder tower [Or, "Migdal Eder."]
- God’s Word™: Israel moved on again and put up his tent beyond Migdal Eder.
- Good News Bible (TEV): Jacob moved on and set up his camp on the other side of the tower of Eder.
- NIRV: Israel moved on again. He set up his tent beyond Migdal Eder.

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

- Common English Bible: Israel continued his trip and pitched his tent farther on near the tower of Eder.
- Contemporary English V.: Jacob, also known as Israel, traveled to the south of Eder Tower, where he set up camp.
- New Berkeley Version: Israel moved on and pitched his tent beyond the Edar tower [Flock-tower, so near Bethlehem, suggests flocks and shepherds there this early in Bible history; possibly Jacob named it.],...
- New Life Version: Then Israel traveled on, and put up his tent on the other side of the tall building of Eder..
- New Living Translation: Then Jacob [Hebrew Israel; also in 35:22a. The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged throughout the Old Testament, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation] traveled on and camped beyond Migdal-eder.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

- American English Bible: No text.
- Beck’s American Translation: Israel moved on an dput up his tent beyond the Tower of the Flocks.
- International Standard V: Jacob settles Near Migdal Eder
- New Advent (Knox) Bible: And he went on from there, and pitched his tent on the further side of the Sheep-tower.
Jacob, whose new name was Israel, continued traveling with his family, and he set up his tents on the south side of the watchtower at Eder.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

And Yisra El pulls stakes and spreads his tent beyond Migdal Eder:...

Judaica Press Complete T.
Israel journeyed, and he pitched his tent at some distance past the Tower of Eder. Israel traveled on, and he set up his tent beyond Herd Tower (Migdal Eder). Migdal Eder...is on a hill (Micah 4:2; Rashbam). See Shekalim 7:4. It is halfway between Bethlehem and Hebron (cf. Tzava’ath Reuven 3:13). There is a tradition that the Messiah will arrive there (Targum Yonathan).

Orthodox Jewish Bible
And Yisroel journeyed, and pitched his ohel beyond Migdal-Eder.

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

Bullinger's Companion Bible
And Israel journeyed, and spread his tent beyond the tower of Edar. (= a flock, 1,000 paces from Beth-lehem).

The Expanded Bible
Then Israel [Jacob’s new name] continued his journey and camped [pitched his tent] just south of Migdal Eder [or the tower of Eder; Eder means "the flock"; perhaps located near Jerusalem; Mic. 4:8].

NET Bible®
Then Israel traveled on and pitched his tent beyond Migdal Eder. The location of Migdal Eder is not given. It appears to be somewhere between Bethlehem and Hebron. Various traditions have identified it as at the shepherds' fields near Bethlehem (the Hebrew name Migdal Eder means "tower of the flock"; see Mic 4:8) or located it near Solomon's pools.

The Voice
Israel then continued on the journey, and he pitched his tent beyond the tower of Eder.

Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:

Concordant Literal Version
And journeying is Israel, and stretching out his tent is he beyond the tower Edar.

Darby Translation
And Israel journeyed, and spread his tent on the other side of Migdal-Eder.

Translation: Israel [pulled up stakes and] journeyed [forth]. Jacob (Israel) continued to travel throughout the land that God had given him.

Why is Jacob called Israel here? He just did the right thing. In renaming his son Benjamin, he set up a parallel between the birth of Benjamin and the work of our Lord.

Even though the names Jacob and Israel refer to the same person, they are not always interchangeable. Jacob is a hard-headed man who often needs to have the crap kicked out of him to put him in the right direction and in the right frame of mind. Israel is the same person who is acting within the plan of God. So, when things are right, then we ought to see the name Israel; when Jacob is back to his old self, then we ought to see the name Jacob.

Israel is the name that God gave to Jacob. We are speaking of an individual man here and not of a nation. There is no nation Israel at this time; that is another 500 years or so in the future. Israel will not be a nation until they exodus from Egypt and then conquer and settle Canaan as a people. Mediterranean Sea and the Dead Sea.

These two words together mean the tower of the herd; and they are often transliterated Migdal Eder or the Tower of Eder. Strong’s #4029  BDB #154.

Translation: He pitched his tent from farther toward ʾEder. There is a preposition and an adverb which probably mean something when put together like this. It appears that Jacob and his family are moving towards this place called the However of ʾEder.

Eder is the site of a watchtower between the cities of Bethlehem and Hebron. This was Jacob and company temporary residence. They were heading toward Bethlehem, but the death of Rachel just stopped Jacob to where he did not feel like going any further for awhile.

Migdal Edar is the transliteration of this place; and it means tower of the flock (as we find it translated in Micah 4:8). Since Rachel dies and is buried in Bethlehem (vv. 19–20) and Jacob later goes to his father in Mamre (v. 27), then, logically, Edar (also spelled ʾEder) is in between these two places.

These places we are talking about (Shechem, Bethlehem, Bethel) are all on a north-south line between the Mediterranean Sea and the Dead Sea.

The final sentence of v. 22 (And there are 12 sons of Jacob) really belongs with v. 23. I will place it there, but include the sensibilities of the various translators below (if they keep it with v. 22, then I will do the same). This is one of the few times I will do something like this. Bear in mind that sometimes, the confines of a verse are adhered to, no matter what (as in Webster’s translation). Some separate into verses, but not into paragraphs, like the Third Millennial Bible.
And so he is in a dwelling of Israel in the land the this. And so goes Reuben and so he lays with Bilhah, a concubine of his father. And so hears Israel.

When Israel was dwelling in the land, Reuben went and lay with Bilhah, his father’s mistress (and Israel heard about it).

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

Masoretic Text (Hebrew)
And so he is in a dwelling of Israel in the land the this. And so goes Reuben and so he lays with Bilhah, a concubine of his father. And so hears Israel. And so are sons of Jacob two-teen.

Targum of Onkelos
And it was while Israel dwelt in this land that Reuben went and confounded [Bilbal.] the bed of Bilhah the concubine of his father, which had been ordained along with the bed of Leah his mother; and this is reputed with regard to him, as if he had lain with her. And Israel heard it, and it afflicted him, and he said, Alas, that one should have come forth from me so profane, even as Ishmael came forth from Abraham, and Esau from my father! The Spirit of Holiness answered and thus spake to him: fear not, for all are righteous and none of them is profane!

Latin Vulgate
And when he dwelt in that country, Ruben went, and slept with Bala the concubine of his father: which he was not ignorant of.

Peshitta (Syriac)
And it came to pass, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and lay with Bilhah, his fathers concubine; and Israel heard of it.

Septuagint (Greek)
And it came to pass when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and laid with Bilhah, the concubine of his father Jacob; and Israel heard, and the thing appeared grievous before him. The Greek separates the verse right here.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

Bible in Basic English
Now while they were living in that country, Reuben had connection with Bilhah, his father’s servant-woman: and Israel had news of it.

Easy English
Israel lived there for a while. Reuben went in to Bilhah. Bilhah was a slave, but she was also his father’s wife. Reuben had sex with her. And Israel heard about it.

Easy-to-Read Version
Israel stayed there for a short time. While he was there, Reuben slept with Israel’s woman servant [Or, "concubine," a slave woman who was like a wife to a man.] Bilhah. Israel heard about this and was very angry.

Good News Bible (TEV)
While Jacob was living in that land, Reuben had sexual intercourse with Bilhah, one of his father’s concubines; Jacob heard about it and was furious. Jacob had twelve sons.

The Message
While Israel was living in that region, Reuben went and slept with his father’s concubine, Bilhah. And Israel heard of what he did.

Names of God Bible
While Israel was living in that region, Reuben went to bed with his father’s concubine [A concubine is considered a wife except she has fewer rights under the law] Bilhah, and Israel heard about it.

NIRV
While Israel was living in that area, Reuben went in and slept with Bilhah. She was the concubine of Reuben's father. And Israel heard about it.

Jacob’s family

While Israel stayed in that place, Reuben went and slept with Bilhah his father’s secondary wife, and Israel heard about it.

Contemporary English V.

During their time there, Jacob’s oldest son Reuben slept with Bilhah, who was one of Jacob’s other wives. And Jacob found out about it.

The Living Bible

It was while he was there that Reuben slept with Bilhah, his father’s concubine, and someone told Israel about it.

New Berkeley Version

...and while they lived in the land Reuben went in to Bilhah, his father’s concubine, and lay with her — and Jacob was informed.

New Century Version

While Israel was there, Reuben had sexual relations with Israel's slave woman Bilhah, and Israel heard about it.

New Life Version

While Israel lived in that land, Reuben went and lay with Bilhah, the woman who acted as his father’s wife. And Israel heard about it.

New Living Translation

While he was living there, Reuben had intercourse with Bilhah, his father’s concubine, and Jacob soon heard about it.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

American English Bible

It was while Israel was living in this land that Reuben went and [had sex] with BalLa, his father’s (Jacob’s) concubine. And when Israel heard about this, it really upset him.

While Israel was living in that country, Reuben went and lay with Bilhah, his father’s concubine, and Israel heard about it.

International Standard V

But while Israel lived in that land, Reuben went inside his father’s tentk and had sexual relations with his father’s concubine Bilhah, and Israel heard about it.

New Advent (Knox) Bible

It was while he was living there that Ruben betook himself to his own father’s concubine, the one who was called Bala, and slept with her; nor did he contrive to keep Jacob in ignorance of it.

Today’s NIV

While Israel was living in that region, Reuben went and lay with his father’s concubine Bilhah, and Israel heard of it.

Translation for Translators

While they were living in that area, Jacob’s son Reuben had sex [EUP] with Bilhah, one of his father’s concubines/female slaves whom he had taken as a secondary wife. Someone told Jacob about it, and it made him very angry.

And it was while Israel was dwelling in that land that Reuben walked and lay with Bilhah, his father's concubine; and Israel attentively heard it.

New American Bible (2002)

While Israel was encamped in that region, Reuben went and lay with Bilhah, his father's concubine. When Israel heard of it, he was greatly offended. The sons of Jacob were now twelve.
While Israel was encamped in that region, Reuben went and lay with Bilhah, his father's concubine. When Israel heard of it, he was greatly offended. The genealogy in vv. 23-29 is prefaced by a notice about Reuben's sleeping with Bilhah, his father's concubine. Such an act is a serious challenge to the authority of the father (cf. 2 Sm 3:7 and 16:21). In his final testament in chap. 49, Jacob cites this act of Reuben as the reason for Reuben's loss of the authority he had as firstborn son (49:4). Reuben's act is one more instance of strife in the family and of discord between father and son. Gn 49:4; 1 Chr 5:1.

Kaplan Translation
Jacob' s Sons; Isaac's Death
While Jacob was living undisturbed in the area, Reuben went and disturbed the sleeping arrangements [According to Talmudic tradition, after Rachel's death, Jacob moved his bed to the tent of Rachel's handmaid Bilhah. Reuven moved Jacob's bed and placed it in Leah's tent (Shabbath 55a, b; Targum Yonathan; Rashi). The Hebrew word here, shakhav, literally means to lie down or to make bedding arrangements, but it is often used as a euphemism for sex. Some say that Reuben actually desired Bilhah and lay next to her (Yov’loth 33:2,4). At the time Bilhah was drunk (Tzava’ath Reuven 4:13). In any case, Reuven lost the birthright because of this. See Genesis 49:4; 1 Chronicles 5:1. See 2 Samuel 16:22, 20:3.] of Bilhah, his father's concubine. Jacob heard about it.

Restored Names Version
And it happened when Yisra'el dwelt in that land, that Re'uwen went and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine, and Yisra'el heard about it. And the sons of Ya'aqob were twelve.

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

The Amplified Bible
When Israel dwelt there, Reuben [his eldest son] went and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine; and Israel heard about it. Now Jacob's sons were twelve.

The Expanded Bible
While Israel was there, Reuben ·had sexual relations ['lay] with Israel's ·slave woman [concubine] Bilhah, and Israel heard about it [49:3-4].
And it came to pass, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine; and Israel heard of it.

This teaches that the fathers were not chosen for their merits, but only by God's mercies, whose election was not changed by their faults. Bilhah, his father's concubine, and Israel heard about it.

While Israel was living in that land, Reuben had sexual relations with Bilhah, his father's concubine. The expression "lay with" is a euphemism for having sexual intercourse. Reuben's act of having sexual relations with Bilhah probably had other purposes than merely satisfying his sexual desire. By having sex with Bilhah, Reuben (Leah's oldest son) would have prevented Bilhah from succeeding Rachel as the favorite wife, and by sleeping with his father's concubine he would also be attempting to take over leadership of the clan - something Absalom foolishly attempted later on in Israel's history (2 Sam 16:21-22). Bilhah, his father's concubine, and Israel heard about it.

And it came to pass, when Israel (Jacob) 'dwelt permanently' in that land, that Reuben went and had sexual relations with Bilhah, his father's concubine. And Israel heard it. The sons of Jacob were twelve.

During the time Israel lived in this land, Reuben slept with his father's concubine, Bilhah, and Israel found out about it.

The gist of this verse:

And it came to pass, when Israel dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine: and Israel heard of it. Now the sons of Jacob were twelve.
Translation: And it was when Israel was dwelling in this land... Jacob and his family was moving along a road from Bethlehem, and he lost his wife along the way. Something is said about the Tower of 'Eder back in v. 21, but it is unclear whether this is where Jacob is living. Anyway, the incident that follows occurs apparently wherever Jacob is living at this time (a city or town is not named).

Translation: ...that Reuben goes and lays with Bilhah, his father’s mistress...  Reuben is somewhat of an odd duck. Recall that these sons killed all of the men of Shechem and took their children and women as slaves. Any of these could have been made a wife (with her consent, of course). However, Reuben decides, instead, to have a one-night-stand with a wife-mistress of his father. All of this indicates that these sons of Jacob were not angels.

Again, Jacob, or Israel, is called father, and we have the unfortunate incident of incest and adultery. Reuben did not have any self-control and he did what he wanted when he wanted. Jacob will alter call him as unstable as water. At this point in time I am uncertain as to what this verse is telling us, other than it gives us insight into the (lack of) character of Reuben. We have the question as to who told who? After all, this would have been a private affair unless Reuben bragged about what he did—this would not have been out of character for Reuben. Who would be likely to have told Jacob about what Reuben did? Let me suggest a young Joseph did.

Translation: ...(and Israel heard [about it]). In this portion of Genesis, when we read the name Israel, that is a refer to Jacob. Usually it is a reference to Jacob when in fellowship.

Now, Jacob appears to be in fellowship, as he is called Israel in vv. 21–22. But, after he hears that his eldest son had relations with his mistress, how do you think he reacted? My guess is, Jacob is out of fellowship now; and will therefor be called Jacob throughout the rest of the chapter.

This could be an attempt by the eldest son to secure his preeminence by sleeping with the mistress of his father.

Constable: There are two important instances of first-born sons relinquishing the rights of primogeniture in Genesis: Esau and Reuben. Esau considered his birthright of so little value that he sold all his rights as first-born to Jacob to realize an immediate physical gratification. Reuben forfeited his birthright through sexual promiscuity (Genesis 35:22; Genesis 49:3-4). In Esau’s case, his entire birthright went to Jacob. In Reuben’s, his went to three of his brothers. Judah obtained the regal right, Levi eventually received the priestly right, and the blessing of the double portion went to Joseph who realized it through his two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh.20

This is one of those things in a narrative which makes you think it is going somewhere. Reuben has sex with the mother of his half-brothers; with his father’s wife (or, more accurately, mistress). Then Jacob finds out about it. Yet, we do not seem to take this any further. The incident itself is given fully only in this verse.

Robert Dean has this take, which seems logical: This is not seduction and is not done because of lust, as was the rape of Dinah in the previous chapter. This is a sign of rebellion against his father. He is indicating that he wants to take control of everything that his father has. This is the same kind of thing that is described in 1Kings 2:13-25, the episode with Adonijah who wanted to have sexual relations with Abisgag the Shunamite in order to assert his authority as king and to assault the authority of his father, king David. This was a custom in the ancient world. This is what was behind [this verse].21

Setting aside Reuben’s motivation, again and again, Reuben revealed that he was not of the character to be the firstborn, with its privileges and responsibilities. He has an affair with one of his step-mothers (who is also his aunt), Bilhah, who was Rachel’s maid.

21 From Genesis lesson 137; accessed February 1, 2016.
V. 22a provides a very subtle clue about the change of authorship. Here, Bilhah is called Jacob’s concubine (or, mistress). This is how Jacob and his first sons would have understood her position in the family. As the children are being born and growing, there would have been a clear distinction made between Jacob’s wives, his mistresses and his children.

On the other hand, when Joseph is born, everything is already in place. He would have seen these 4 women (Jacob’s two wives and two mistresses) as Jacob’s wives, which is how they are referred to in Gen. 37:2. The youngest child is not as likely to make these distinctions.

I stopped midverse, as the people who set up our verse system should have. What follows is a list of the sons of Israel; the twelve tribes if you will.

The Sons of Jacob

And so are sons of Jacob two-teen. Sons of Leah: a firstborn of Jacob, Reuben and Simeon and Levi and Judah, and Issachar and Zebulun.

And [there] are 12 sons of Jacob. Leah’s sons are Reuben (Jacob’s firstborn), Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar and Zebulun.

There are 12 sons of Jacob. Leah had 6 sons: Reuben (Jacob’s firstborn), Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar and Zebulun.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew): And so are sons of Jacob two-teen. Sons of Leah: a firstborn of Jacob, Reuben and Simeon and Levi and Judah, and Issachar and Zebulun.
- Targum of Onkelos: So, after Benjamin was born, the sons of Jakob were twelve. The sons of Leah, the first-born of Jakob, Reuben, and Shimeon, and Levi, and Jehudah, and Issakar, and Zabulon.
- Latin Vulgate: Now the sons of Jacob were twelve. The sons of Lia: Ruben the first born, and Simeon, and Levi, and Juda, and Issachar, and Zabulon.

Translation: And [there] are 12 sons of Jacob. This sentence is misplaced in both the Hebrew and Greek Bibles (there is nothing inspired about the division of verses and chapters in Scripture).

Interestingly enough, the sons of Jacob are named again. At this point, all or most of them are adults.

The sons of Jacob, the twelve tribes of Israel, are mentioned as a group several times in Scripture. They are named together in Gen. 49 where Jacob describes the characteristics of each member of his family. They are listed together several times in the book of Numbers and Moses blesses them in Deut. 33 (this will be covered when we do Jacob’s death bed evaluation and predictions concerning his sons). We again find them listed in the genealogy tables of 1Chron. 2:1–2, listed in the same order as we find them here except that Dan precedes Joseph and Benjamin. Joshua 15 and following (and elsewhere) lists the twelve sons and the division of land. Finally, the twelve tribes are listed at the end of the Bible in Rev. 7:4–8; however, the tribe of Dan is conspicuously absent from this list and they are replaced with the half-tribe of Manasseh (to be born to Joseph when he is in Egypt). If memory serves, either the Beast or the False Prophet come from the tribe of Dan.

11 of the sons were born outside of Canaan in Paddan-aram over a fairly short period of time (less than 12 years). After 7 years, Jacob was given Leah in marriage (by deceit) and apparently he was given Rachel soon thereafter for the promise of another 7 years of work. Jacob would work for Laban for 14 years for his daughters, and then an additional 6 years on a commission basis. Allowing for 9 months after Jacob’s marriage to Leah, Reuben would have been born at the end of year 8.

As we have just seen, not all of Jacob’s sons were born in Paddan-aram, but Benjamin was born after they left that area. This is called synecdoche [pronounced syn-EK-do-kee] of the whole where the whole is put in for the part (the greater part, usually) and we find this in Heb. 11:13 where it reads these all died in faith. However, Enoch, who is mentioned in context, did not die; he was translated. So there is no contradiction here, just a common figure of speech. As an example, I might say all translators agree on some point, whereas I mean to say virtually all conservative translators agree on this point.

Joseph appears to be born before the commission dispute between Laban and Jacob, which take place in Gen. 30:25–43. Jealousy and anger swell upon among Laban’s sons (who are now on the scene as adults—Gen. 31:1–2).
The division of the Bible into chapters and verses was done long after the words were written and recorded. Most of the time, these divisions are intelligently done. However, in the case of Gen. 35:22, the first half belongs with the previous section; and the second half belongs with the final section of Gen. 35.

Genesis 35:21–22a
Israel journeyed on and pitched his tent beyond the tower of Eder. While Israel lived in that land, Reuben went and lay with Bilhah his father's concubine. And Israel heard of it.

As we studied, this very short piece of information simply tells us that Reuben was ill-suited to assume the responsibilities of the firstborn; and that this action may even represent an unsuccessful power grab on his part.

Then v. 22b goes onto a different topic.

Genesis 35:22b
And the sons of Jacob were twelve:...

V. 22b should be a separate verse, or affixed to v. 23.

There is no little confusion regarding the 12 tribes of Israel.

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. At this point, there are 12 sons of Jacob, who make up (more or less) the 12 tribes of Israel. These 12 sons will all be named in this chapter.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. This 12 tribe thing is actually not that straightforward. For example, Joseph will have two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, and they will be treated as separate tribes (this is the blessing of the double-portion for Joseph). So, that really make 13 tribes for Israel.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. However, the tribe of Levi will not be given land which belongs to them as a tribe, so 12 sons of Jacob will make up 12 regions of the Land of Promise (Ephraim and Manasseh have their own sections; and Levi does not).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. To add to the confusion, 10 of these tribes seem to disappear with the first dispersion, circa 721 B.C. This was the first application of the 5th stage of national discipline to nation Israel.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1) Nevertheless, some Jews today lay claim to being from the tribe of Levi, or Gad or Manasseh.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2) There are references in the New Testament to people being from the tribe of Levi. The term Levite is used in Luke 10:32 Acts 4:36. However, the Levites lived throughout the land, in all the various tribal regions.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3) Paul was descended from the tribe of Benjamin. Rom. 11:1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4) So tribal distinctions continued; but they may have become more blurred with time, as the northern tribes no longer occupied their tribal territory.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. To add more confusion, the tribe of Simeon appears to lose its national identity, living among the tribe of Judah. It is hard to say exactly when this takes place; but perhaps not long before the 2nd dispersion, or at the return of the Jews to the land.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. We loosely throw around the terms Hebrew and Jew, but the original term used was Hebrew, and it was applied to Abraham when he came to the Land of Promise; and later on, it was applied to Jacob and his sons living in Egypt (particularly in the book of Exodus). Hebrew comes from the verb that means to pass over; and it means, one who has passed over, sojourner, the one passing through.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7. Jew, on the other hand, is closely related to the Hebrew word Judah, and it means, more or less, someone from the tribe of Judah. After the 2nd dispersion and their return to the land, the children of Israel lived in the territory of Judah and were called Jews.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8. It appears that their tribal identities were either lost or became less distinguishable at this time. Certain names appear in the New Testament—particularly Levi and Simeon—but these refer to individuals and not to tribes.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9. All of the 12 tribes will be reprised in the book of Revelation, which looks forward into the future. The tribe of Joseph will be named rather than the tribe of Ephraim; and the tribe of Dan is omitted from this final list. In any case, this suggests to us that, whether the 10 tribes are lost or not, God knows where their descendants are.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
That the number of tribes, from time to time, had some fluidity, has no bearing on any of the prophecies or history recorded in Scripture.

So there is no misunderstanding, the 10 lost tribes did not become English (known as, British-Israelism—which is a false doctrine).

Translation: ...Issachar and Zebulun. Neither of these sons were ever portrayed as leaders—not as individuals and not as tribes.

Leah had 6 sons by Jacob. You will recall that she first had 4 and then, after some time passed, she had 2 more.

Because Reuben is the firstborn, he should have been seen as Jacob’s natural heir. However, we find in his life, Reuben does not act as a leader with integrity. Time and time again, he fails. He slept with his father’s mistress and there will be other incidents that will occur in future chapters.

The gist of this verse: Rachel bore two sons to Jacob: Joseph and Benjamin.

Translation: The sons of Rachel [are] Joseph and Benjamin. Rachel, although she appeared to be quite healthy, died giving birth to Benjamin (in this chapter).

Earlier, she had the son Joseph, who will turn out to be the greatest of Jacob’s sons.

Joseph would have been the last son born in Paddan-aram probably in the last few years of Jacob’s time there (Gen. 30:22–24). He will be 17 years of age in Gen. 37:2 (with the end of this chapter and all of Gen. 36 being the two genealogies, of Jacob and of Esau). Assuming chronological order, 17 years transpire between Gen. 30 and 37.

Genesis 35:24  The sons of Rachel: Joseph and Benjamin.

These two sons will be consequential in the early days. Rachel died giving birth to Benjamin, the only one of Jacob’s sons born in Canaan. The final third of Genesis will be written by Joseph.

Joseph’s writing is far more organized than previous authors, having many chiasmi throughout. Furthermore, his narratives will be far more developed and less choppy than those of the previous authors of Genesis.

And sons of Bilhah (a maid of Rachel): Dan and Naphtali.

The sons of Bilhah (Rachel’s handmaid) [are] Dan and Naphtali.

Translation: The sons of Bilhah (Rachel’s handmaid) [are] Dan and Naphtali. Each daughter was given a personal maid or personal servant to take with them into marriage. Bilhah was Rachel’s. She acted as a surrogate mother for Rachel, and these two sons were born from a union of Jacob and her.

Rachel did not have any children at first, so her personal slave has two children on her behalf.

And sons of Zilpah (a handmaid of Leah) [are] Gad and Asher. These [were] sons of Jacob who [were] born to him in Paddan-aram. Genesis 35:26 The sons of Leah’s [personal] maid Zilpah [are] Gad and Asher. These [all were] the sons of Jacob who [were] born to him in Paddan-aram.
Leah’s personal maid, Zilpah, had two sons: Gad and Asher. All these were the sons of Jacob born to him in Paddan-aram.

The directional he is the ‛ah (א) ending to a noun, usually found after a verb of motion. This is called the directive he or the he locale, which often indicates direction and puts somewhat of an adverbial spin on the noun. Essentially, it answers the question where? The pronunciation of the word does not change. The directional he indicates the direction in which something moves. It is often used with the noun heaven and the most literal rendering in the English would be heavenward. We can also indicate the existence of the he directional by supplying the prepositions to or toward.

| ‘Ārâm (אַרְאָם) [pronounced uh-RAWM] | the highland, high region; exalted; and is transliterated Aram; sometimes rendered Syria, Mesopotamia | singular proper noun | Strong’s #758 BDB #74 |

Together, these words refer to the table land of Aram; Paddan or Paddan-Aram, a region of Syria. If there is a directional he added to Paddan, then this means to [toward] Paddan-aram.

Translation: These [all were] the sons of Jacob who [were] born to him in Paddan-aram. It should be obvious that Benjamin was not born in Paddan-aram, but after they left. However, the other sons were born while Jacob was working for Laban, to pay for his two wives and to make a little money after that.

Obviously, this excludes Benjamin, who was born to Jacob and Rachel after they left Laban’s ranch.
The New Berkeley Bible says, instead: Although Benjamin was not born at Padan Aram, he was born on the journey from there to Isaac’s home and is so counted in.

When Leah stopped having children, she got her personal slave to bear children on her behalf.

And so comes Jacob unto Isaac his father [at] Mamre (Kiriath-arba)—she [is] Hebron. Which lived there Abraham and Isaac.

Genesis 35:27

Jacob went to [see] his father Isaac, [at] Mamre (Kiriath-arba)—it [is] Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac have lived.

---

\(^{23}\) This is not a Catholic study; they just had the best genealogical line.
Jacob eventually went to see his father Isaac at Mamre (Kiriath-arba; in Hebron) where both Abraham and Isaac have lived.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew)

  And so comes Jacob unto Isaac his father [at] Mamre (Kiriath-arba)—she [is] Hebron. Which lived there Abraham and Isaac.

- Targum of Onkelos

  And Jakob came to Izhak his father, at Mamre the city of Arba, which is Hebron, for there Abraham and Izhak had dwelt.

- Latin Vulgate

  And he came to Isaac his father in Mambre, the city of Arbee, this is Hebron: wherein Abraham and Isaac sojourned.

- Peshitta (Syriac)

  And Jacob came to his father Isaac to Mamre, to Koriath Gabarey, which is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac had sojourned.

- Septuagint (Greek)

  And Jacob came to Isaac his father, to Mamre, to a city of the plain; this is Hebron in the land of Canaan, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

- Easy English

  Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre. (It is also called Kiriath-Arba or Hebron.) That is where Abraham and Isaac had lived.

- Easy-to-Read Version

  Jacob went to his father Isaac at Mamre in Kiriath Arba (Hebron). This is where Abraham and Isaac had lived.

- The Message

  Finally, Jacob made it back home to his father Isaac at Mamre in Kiriath Arba, present-day Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac had lived.

- Names of God Bible

  Jacob came home to his father Isaac to Mamre’s city, Kiriath Arba (that is, Hebron). Abraham and Isaac had lived there for a while.

- NIRV

  Jacob came home to his father Isaac in Mamre. Mamre is near Kiriath Arba, where Abraham and Isaac had stayed. The place is also called Hebron.

- New Simplified Bible

  Jacob came home to his father Isaac, to Mamre’s city, Kiriath-arba (Hebron). Abraham and Isaac had lived there for a while.

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

- Common English Bible

  Isaac’s death

  Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre, that is, Kiriath-arba. This is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac lived as immigrants.

- Contemporary English V.

  Jacob went to his father Isaac at Hebron, also called Mamre or Kiriath-Arba, where Isaac’s father Abraham had lived as a foreigner.

- The Living Bible

  So Jacob came at last to Isaac his father at Mamre in Kiriath-arba (now called Hebron), where Abraham too had lived.

- New Berkeley Version

  Jacob arrived at his father Isaac’s at Mamre, suburban to Kiriath-Arba, which is Hebron; where Abraham and Isaac had pilgrimed.

- New Life Version

  Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre of Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had been living.

- New Living Translation

  So Jacob returned to his father, Isaac, in Mamre, which is near Kiriath-arba (now called Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had both lived as foreigners.

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:
Then Jacob returned to his father Isaac in Mamre, to a city of the plains [called] Hebron (in the land of Canaan), where Abraham and Isaac had stayed.

The Death of Isaac
So Jacob reached his father Isaac at Mamre, in Kiriath-arba (also known as Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had lived.

He went, too, to visit his father Isaac at Mambre, the city of Arbee, also called Hebron; here, as strangers, Abraham and Isaac had dwelt.

Jacob came home to his father Isaac in Mamre, near Kiriath Arba (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had stayed.

Jacob went back home to see his father Isaac at Mamre, which is also named Kiriath-Arba, and which is now named Hebron. Isaac's father Abraham had also lived there.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Jacob came home to his father Isaac in Mamre, near Kiriath Arba (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had stayed.

Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre in Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had resided as aliens.

And Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre in Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had stayed.

And Jacob came to Isaac his father [at] Mamre, or Kiriath-arba (that [is], Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had stayed.

And Jacob came to Isaac, his father, to Mamre, to the city of Arbah, which is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac turned aside.

Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre, or Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had resided as aliens.

Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre near Kiriath-arba, that is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac had stayed.

Ya’akov came home to his father Yitz’chak at Mamre, near Kiyrat-Arba (also known as Hevron), where Avraham and Yitz’chak had lived as foreigners.

And Yaaqov comes to Yischaq his father to Mamre, to Qiryath Arba - Hebron, where Abraham and Yischaq sojourn.

Ya’akov came to Yitzchak his father, to Mamre, to Kiyrat-Arba (which is Chevron), where Avraham and Yitzchak lived as foreigners.

Jacob thus came to his father Isaac in Mamre, at Kiriath Arba, better known as Hebron [See above regarding Mamre (Genesis 13:8) and Kiryath Arba (Genesis 23:2). As to whether Isaac had moved there or had lived there all along, see note on Genesis 28:10.]. This is where Abraham and Isaac had resided.

And Ya’akov came unto Yitzchak Aviv unto Mamre, unto Kiriat HaArba, which is Chevron, where Avraham and Yitzchak sojourned.
And Ya’aqob came to his father Yitschaq at Mamre’, or Qiryath Arba’ (she is Chebrown), where Abraham and Yitschaq had dwelt.

The Scriptures 1998

And Ya’aqob came to his father Yitschaq at Mamré, or Qiryath Arba, that is Hebron, where Abraham and Yitschaq had dwelt.

Expanded/Embellished Bibles:

Bullinger’s Companion Bible

1726 B.C.

And Jacob came to Isaac his father to Mamre, to the city of Arbah, which is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned. It does not follow that Jacob did not often see Isaac. As son as Isaac was married, Abraham disappears from the history. It is the same with Isaac when Jacob married: and the same with Jacob when Joseph comes into prominence. They do not appear together in history: but Abraham is described as "dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob"—Heb. 11:9

The Expanded Bible

Jacob went to his father Isaac at Mamre near Hebron [13:18; 18:1; 23:17-18; 25:9], where Abraham and Isaac had [sojourned; lived as an alien].

NET Bible®

So Jacob came back to his father Isaac in Mamre [This is an adverbial accusative of location.], to Kirjath Arba [The name "Kirjath Arba" is in apposition to the preceding name, "Mamre."](that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had stayed [The Hebrew verb גָּר (gur), traditionally rendered “to sojourn,” refers to temporary settlement without ownership rights.].

Syndein/Thieme

And Jacob {Israel} came unto Isaac, his father, unto Mamre, unto the city of Arba (It is now Hebron) where Abraham and Isaac resided.

The Voice

Jacob finally arrived at his father Isaac’s house at Mamre not far from Kirjath-arba (which is also known as Hebron). This is where Abraham and Isaac had resided as foreigners.

Literal, almost word-for-word, renderings:

Concordant Literal Version

And coming is Jacob to Isaac, his father, to Mamre, the town of Arba (It is now Hebron), in the land of Canaan, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned.

Darby Translation

And Jacob came to Isaac his father to Mamre-to Kirjath-Arba, which is Hebron; where Abraham had sojourned, and Isaac.

English Standard Version

And Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre, or Kirjath Arba (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac sojourned.

Green’s Literal Translation

And Jacob came to his father Isaac, to Mamre, to the City of Arba; it is Hebron where Abraham and Isaac resided.

God’s Truth (Tyndale)

Then Jacob went unto Isaac his father to Mamre a principal city, otherwise called Hebron: where Abraham and Isaac sojourned as strangers.

New King James Version

Death of Isaac

Then Jacob came to his father Isaac at Mamre, or Kirjath Arba[e] (that is, Hebron), where Abraham and Isaac had dwelt.

Webster’s Bible Translation

And Jacob came to Isaac his father to Mamre, to the city of Arbah (which is] Hebron where Abraham and Isaac sojourned.

Together, these are transliterated Kiriath-arba, Kirjatharba and the word probably means city of Arba; city of the four (giants?); the four-fold city. Strong’s #7153 BDB #900.

Translation: Jacob went to [see] his father Isaac, [at] Mamre (Kiriath-arba)...

ISBE: Hebron is said to have been rounded before Zoan (i.e. Tanis) in Egypt (Num. 13:22); its ancient name was Kiriath–arba, probably meaning the “Four Cities,” perhaps because divided at one time into four quarters, but according to Jewish writers so called because four patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and Adam were buried there. According to Joshua 15:13 it was so called after Arba, the father of Anak.24

The combination ’āsher + shâm, whether together or not, means where, in what place, to what place. Min + shâm mean from that thing, from whence, out of which.

Translation: ...—it [is] Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac have lived. Both Jacob’s father and grandfather have lived here.

Hebron is almost due south from where Jacob was and not appreciably far from Bethel or from Bethlehem. Nothing is said as to how long it took Jacob to go back to visit his father or to bring his children to him. The indication is that they did not live all that far apart, but that Jacob settled down a couple times before he actually came to his father.
It is unclear if Jacob is coming to his father after he died or just prior to. It is fascinating that Jacob waited such a long time to see his father. It is reasonable to assume that Jacob felt great personal shame for deceiving his father so many years ago.

In many ways, this short section (the end of Gen. 35) is somewhat a testament to Isaac, as he seemed to concern himself primarily with births and deaths. So this chapter which includes his death, is also a chapter primarily concerned with births and deaths.

Here is how others have translated this verse:

Ancient texts:

- Masoretic Text (Hebrew): And so are days of Isaac a hundred year and eighty a year.
- Targum of Onkelos: And the days of Izhak were an hundred and eighty years.
- Latin Vulgate: And the days of Isaac were a hundred and eighty years.
- Peshitta (Syriac): And the days of Isaac were a hundred and eighty years.
- Septuagint (Greek): And the days of Isaac which he lived were one hundred and eighty years.

Significant differences:

Limited Vocabulary Translations:

- Easy English: Now Isaac was 180 years old.
- Good News Bible (TEV): Isaac lived to be a hundred and eighty years old and died at a ripe old age; and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him. V. 29 is included for context.
- The Message: Isaac was now 180 years old.
- NIRV: Isaac lived 180 years.

Thought-for-thought translations; paraphrases:

- Common English Bible: At the age of 180 years, Isaac took his last breath and died. He was buried with his ancestors after a long, satisfying life. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him. V. 29 is included for context.
- The Living Bible: Isaac died soon afterwards, at the ripe old age of 180. And his sons Esau and Jacob buried him. The Living Bible combined vv. 28–29.
- New Berkeley Version: Isaac's life span was 180 years;...

Partially literal and partially paraphrased translations:

- New Advent (Knox) Bible: And now Isaac finished his life, of a hundred and eighty years; he died at last, worn out with age, his tale of years complete. He too became a part of his people; and his two sons, Esau and Jacob, gave him burial. V. 29 is included for context.
- Translation for Translators: Isaac lived until he was 180 years old.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

- Conservapedia: Isaac lived to be 180 years old.
Now the days of Isaac were one hundred and eighty years.

The length of Isaac's life was one hundred and eighty years; then he breathed his last. He died as an old man and was gathered to his people. After a full life, his sons Esau and Jacob buried him. V. 29 is included for context.

Isaac was a hundred and eighty years old when he breathed his last.

Yitz'chak lived to be 180 years old.

And the days of Yischaq
are a hundred years and eighty years:.

And the days of Isaac were a hundred and fourscore years.

And the days of Yitzchak were me'at shanah u'shemonim shanah.

And the days of Yitschaq were one hundred eighty years.

And the days of Isaac were an hundred and fourscore years. (= 180).

Isaac lived to be 180 years old [Heb "And the days of Isaac were one hundred and eighty years."].

And the days of Isaac were an hundred and fourscore years {180 years}.

Isaac lived 180 years.

And coming are the days of Isaac to be a hundred and eighty years.

And the days of Isaac were 180 years.

And the days of Isaac came to be—one hundred and eighty years.

And the days of Isaac were a hundred and fourscore years.

Now the days of Isaac were 180 years.

The gist of this verse: Isaac lived to be 180 years old.

The days of Isaac were 180 years. Isaac, like many of his ancestors, lived for a very long time.

Timewise, Abraham was 100 where Isaac was born. Isaac married at age 40 and sired Jacob and Esau about 20 years later. This would make Jacob and Esau about 120 years old.

Isaac lived the longest of all the patriarchs, although his life seemed to be overshadowed by both his father Abraham and son, Jacob (which could simply be the result of the history which he himself recorded). He spent a great deal of his life in old age, as many years previously he was spoken of as old and blind.

It is this verse which makes Gen. 27:2 seem rather humorous. Recall that Isaac called his son to his side because he thought that he was dying. He said, "I do not know the day of my death." Idiomatically, this meant that he thought death was imminent and he did not want to die without properly blessing Esau, his favorite son. However, literally, it means that he did not have a clue as to the day of his death, which occurred forty some years after Gen. 27:2. Scofield, usually astute in Biblical trivia, wrote this occurred 43 years ago, given 20 years spent in Haran and 25 years transpired after Jacob returned from Haran.
And so breathes [his last] Isaac and so he dies and so he is gathered unto his people, old and full of days. And so bury him Esau and Jacob, his sons.

And Izhak expired and died and was gathered to his people, old and full of days, and Esau and Jakob his sons buried him.

And being spent with age he died, and was gathered to his people, being old and full of days: and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Then Isaac grew weak and died; and he was gathered to his people, being very old and full of days; and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him in the burial ground which his father Abraham had purchased.

And Isaac gave up the ghost and died, and was gathered to his people, old and full of days; and Esau and Jacob his sons buried him.

Then Isaac grew weak and died; and he was gathered to his people, being very old and full of days; and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him in the burial ground which his father Abraham had purchased.

Then he took his last breath and died. He was very old when he joined the members of his family who had already died. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Isaac took his last breath and died. He was buried with his ancestors after a long, satisfying life. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Isaac died at the ripe old age of one hundred eighty, then his sons Esau and Jacob buried him. The CEV combines vv. 28–29.

New Living Translation

Isaac lived for 180 years. Then he breathed his last and died at a ripe old age, joining his ancestors in death. And his sons, Esau and Jacob, buried him. V. 28 is included for context.
When Isaac was 180, being old and having had a full life, he died and was laid away with his people. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Isaac had lived a total of 180 years when he died and joined his ancestors at a ripe old age. Then his sons Esau and Jacob buried him. V. 26 is included for context.

He was very old when he died and went to join his ancestors who had died previously. His sons Esau and Jacob buried his body.

Isaac had lived a total of 180 years when he died and joined his ancestors at a ripe old age. Then his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Mostly literal renderings (with some occasional paraphrasing):

Isaac expired and died, gathered to his people as an elder satisfied in days. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Isaac expired, and was gathered to his people, having lived a long and full life. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Then Isaac expired, and died, and was added to his people, old and satisfied with years, and Esau and Jacob his sons buried him.

He took his last breath and died, and was gathered to his people, old and full of days. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

And Isaac passed away and died, and was gathered to his people, old and full of days. And his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Catholic Bibles:

After living a hundred and eighty years Isaac breathed his last and was gathered to his people at a good old age. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

And Isaac breathed out, and died, and was gathered to his people, old and satisfied with days; and his sons, Esau and Jacob, buried him.

The lifetime of Isaac was one hundred and eighty years; then he breathed his last. After a full life, he died as an old man and was taken to his kinsmen. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him. V. 28 is included for context.

Isaac was one hundred and eighty years old when he breathed his last. He died and was gathered to his people, an old man who had enjoyed his full span of life. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him. V. 28 is included for context.

He died and was gathered to his father's kin at this very great age, and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Jewish/Hebrew Names Bibles:

Then he breathed his last, died and was gathered to his people, an old man full of years; and his sons 'Esav and Ya'akov buried him.

...and Yischaq expires and dies and is gathered to his people
- aged and satisfied of days:
and his sons Esav and Yaaqov entomb him.

Yitzchak gave up the spirit, and died, and was gathered to his people, old and full of days. Esav and Ya'akov, his sons, buried him.

And Isaac expired and died and was gathered in to his peoples, old and sated with days, and his sons, Esau and Jacob, buried him.

He breathed his last and died, and was gathered to his people, old and in the fullness of his years. His sons, Esau and Jacob, buried him [In Makhpelah, see Genesis 49:31].

And Yitzchak expired, and died, and was gathered unto his people, being zaken (old) and full of yamim; and his banim Esav and Ya'akov buried him.
And Isaac’s spirit departed; he died and was gathered to his people, being an old man, satisfied and satiated with days; his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

And Isaac gave up the ghost, and died (for great emphasis, they all mean the same thing, repeated in other words, to add solemnity to the event), and was gathered to his people (see 49:33, 2 Sam.12:23), being old and full of days: and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him. (5 "ands", #5 = grace)

So Isaac breathed his last breath and died [and was gathered to his people/relatives; 25:8] when he was very old [and full of days], and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Then Isaac breathed his last and joined his ancestors [Heb "and Isaac expired and died and he was gathered to his people." In the ancient Israelite view he joined his deceased ancestors in Sheol, the land of the dead]. He died an old man who had lived a full life [Heb "old and full of years."]. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

By the time he took his last breath and joined his ancestors in death, he had reached a ripe old age and lived a full life. His sons, Esau and Jacob, buried him.

And expiring is Isaac, and he died, and is gathered to his people, old and satisfied with days. And entombing him are Esau and Jacob, his sons.

And Isaac breathed out [a final time], and died, and was gathered to his people, old and full of days: and Esau and Jacob his sons buried him.

And Isaac breathed his last, and he died and was gathered to his people, old and full of days. And his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

And Isaac expired and died and was gathered to his people, old and satisfied of days. And his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

And the days of Isaac were an hundred and eighty years: and then fell he sick and died, and was put unto his people being old and full of days. And his sons Esau and Jacob buried him. V. 26 is included for context.

Isaac breathed his last and died and was gathered to his people, an old man of ripe age [Lit and satisfied with days]; and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

So Isaac breathed his last and died, and was gathered to his people, being old and full of days. And his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

And Isaac gave up the ghost and died, and was gathered unto his people, being old and full of days; and his sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

And Isaac gave up the spirit, and died, and was gathered to his people, old and full of days. Esau and Jacob, his sons, buried him.

Isaac dies at age 180 after a full life. Esau and Jacob bury him.

There seems to be the sense here of taking one’s last breath. The full listing of BDB meanings: to expire, die, perish, give up the ghost, yield up the ghost, be dead, be ready to die; to be about to die. Gesenius adds tro be destroyed. Zodhiates adds, to breath out one’s life; saying [this word] may not always connote the precise moment of death.

Translation: Isaac breathes [his last] and dies... The impression is, he has been reunited with Jacob, his son, taking vv. 27–29 as a whole. He takes his final breath as a mortal and passes from life to eternity.

Obviously needs editing.

With Abraham as the father of the Jewish people, God had worked His plan so that Isaac would be clearly a type of Christ.

The miraculous birth:

Gen 21:1-7 Now the LORD was gracious to Sarah as he had said, and the LORD did for Sarah what he had promised. Sarah became pregnant and bore a son to Abraham in his old age, at the very time God had promised him. Abraham gave the name Isaac to the son Sarah bore him… Abraham was a hundred years old when his son Isaac was born to him. Sarah said, “Who would have said to Abraham that Sarah would nurse children? Yet I have borne him a son in his old age.”

As a picture of the Lord Jesus Christ, the first thing to notice is the miraculous birth by which Isaac came into the world. God had promised that a child would be born to Abraham in his old age, but one hundred years old is leaving it a bit long don’t you think? In the natural it’s obviously far too late but this was not a natural birth. Galatians 4:28 tells us

‘And you brethren, like Isaac, are children of promise. But as at that time he who was born according to the flesh (Ishmael) persecuted him who was born according to the Spirit (Isaac).’

Isaac truly was ‘born according to the Spirit’. It was the work of God that allowed the ninety one year old Sarah to conceive and it was the power of God that bought about Jesus in an even greater miraculous birth.

Both Jesus and Isaac were Sons of promise. Isaac was Abraham’s son, through whom God promised to make a great nation, and bless all the nations of the earth (Gen. 18:18).

Matt 1:18 This is how the birth of Jesus Christ came about: His mother Mary was pledged to be married to Joseph, but before they came together, she was found to be with child through the Holy Spirit.

Like Isaac, the Lord Jesus was ‘born according to the Spirit’ and would go on to fulfill in His life many of the events that we see pictured in the life of Isaac.

<td>The sacrifice of the promised son is revealed in Genesis 22.</td>
<td>Isaac, whom Abraham loved, was to be a sacrifice on Mount Moriah. This was actually a mountain range, upon which Calvary stood. So this is the same place that approximately 4000 years later God would allow His son to be the sacrifice for the sins of the world. Notice also that God spoke of the love that Abraham had for Isaac. Believe it or not, this is the first mention of love in the Bible and while it speaks of Abraham’s love for Isaac, it is a picture of the love which God the Father had for Jesus. This love existed before the foundation of the world and was expressed several times in Jesus’ earthly ministry when God’s voice was heard from Heaven stating ‘this is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased.’</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>22:1-2 Some time later God tested Abraham. He said to him, “Abraham!”</td>
<td>While Abraham carried the fire and the knife, it was left to Isaac to carry the very wood on which he would be sacrificed. This again pictures the Lord Jesus who, while he was physically able, carried his wood, the cross, to Golgotha where He would die.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>“Here I am,” he replied. Then God said, “Take your son, your only son, Isaac, whom you love, and go to the region of Moriah. Sacrifice him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains I will tell you about.”</td>
<td>Just as Isaac was to take the place of the lamb for this sacrifice, so Jesus became the ‘lamb of God that takes away the sins of the world.’</td>

<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>22:13-14 Abraham looked up and there in a thicket he saw a ram caught by its horns. He went over and took the ram and sacrificed it as a burnt offering instead of his son. So Abraham called that place The LORD Will Provide. And to this day it is said, “On the mountain of the LORD it will be provided.”</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abraham called the place where Isaac was to be sacrificed, ‘The Lord will provide.’ And that is exactly what God did do 4000 years later because He ‘so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son…’ With Isaac, we had a picture of Jesus as the only Son, deeply loved by the Father being sacrificed. But a slightly different picture emerges now with the ram. With the ram we have a picture of an innocent victim dying as a substitute for another. Its blood was spilt so that others could go free. This again is what Jesus did for us.</td>

24:1-4 Abraham was now old and well advanced in years, and the LORD    | had blessed him in every way. He said to the chief servant in his     | household, the one in charge of all that he had, “Put your hand under| your thigh. I want you to swear by the LORD, the God of heaven and the |
God of earth, that you will not get a wife for my son from the         | daughters of the Canaanites, among whom I am living, but will go to   | my country and my own relatives and get a wife for my son Isaac.”      |

What then, is the next mention of Isaac after he was to be sacrificed | on mount Moriah? What we find is that Abraham is concerned that Isaac | should have a bride and sends his servant out to find her. This is a   | clear picture of God the Father’s heart after the sacrifice of His son|
Jesus. This is discussed more in the study on Abraham but it should    | be mentioned that like Isaac here, the next major event after Jesus’  | death and resurrection was the sending of the Holy Spirit to find and | prepare a bride for him. The servant in this passage is a beautiful    | picture of the Holy Spirit. The servant was the chief servant in       |
Abraham’s household, yet is unnamed in scripture. This pictures how   | the Holy Spirit, the third member of the Godhead, doesn’t speak or     | draw attention to Himself, but gives all glory to Jesus. In John      |
16:13-14 Jesus spoke of the Holy Spirit saying, ‘but when He, the     | Spirit of truth, comes, He will guide you into all the truth; for He   | will not speak on His own initiative, but whatever He hears, He will  | speak; and He will disclose to you what is to come. He shall glorify me;|
for He shall take of mine, and shall disclose it to you.’              |

Likewise we read that the servant was in charge of all that Abraham    |
had. This also pictures the Spirit who, being part of the Godhead,     | possesses all the nature and character of God but has taken a subservient role doing and speaking only what He hears the Father saying.

<td>We have seen how Isaac was offered as a sacrificed on Mount Moriah. We also noted how the next mention of Isaac was with his father Abraham sending the servant out to find a wife for Isaac. But in this scripture, we have the first time that Isaac is actually seen since his near sacrifice in Chapter 22. Clearly, this also continues the picture of the Lord Jesus Christ who ascended into heaven after the resurrection and is not seen again until He meets His bride at His return. From the scripture above we see three things that occurred at this time. Firstly, we see that Rebekah prepared herself by covering her face with her veil. Secondly, we see that Isaac took Rebekah back to his home, to his mother’s tent. Finally we see that Isaac loved her and the two were married. These three events foreshadow the meeting of Jesus and his bride, the church.</td>

Abraham sends his oldest servant to select a bride for his son (Genesis 24). The bride responds to the servant even though she is in a foreign country. The Holy Spirit is sent out into the world to seek out the church. The church responds even though she is in the devil’s world, among Gentiles (Ephesians 6:12).

Rebekah, before marrying Isaac, acquires silver and gold (Genesis 24:53). Before the marriage to Christ the bridegroom, the Church acquires gold, silver, and precious stones (1 Corinthians 3:12-15).

Isaac went out and brought Rebekah into his mother’s tent (Genesis 24:63-67). Yeshua meets the church in the air (1 Thessalonians 4:13-18) and takes her to His Father’s house (John 14:1-3).

Abraham gives all things to Isaac (Genesis 25:5). God has given all things to Yeshua the Messiah (Ephesians 1:22; Hebrews 1:2).

God’s covenant was confirmed with Isaac (Genesis 26:3-5). Yeshua’s spiritual children are the children of promise (Romans 9:8).

Isaac and Jesus were "only, beloved" sons of a righteous father; Ishmael had been sent away in Genesis 21:14 [Genesis 22:2].

Both Isaac and Jesus are identified as the "son of Abraham" [see Genesis 21:3; 22:2; Matthew 1:1].

Both were offered in sacrifice [Genesis 22:2; John 1:29; Matthew 27:35; Mark 15:24; Luke 23:33; John 11:5019:17-18].

The sacrifice was offered in the land of Moriah – Jerusalem [Genesis 22:2; 2 Chronicles 3:1; Matthew 16:21-23].

Both sons carried the wood for their own sacrifice [Genesis 22:6; John 19:17].

Both were "bound" and placed on top of the wood [Genesis 22:9; John 19:18-19; Philippians 2:8].

Both willingly allow themselves to be offered in sacrifice [Genesis 22:7-8; Colossians 2:6-8].

Both sons were "resurrected" or "given back" the their fathers on the third day. Isaac was essentially "dead" to his grieving father when God commanded him to sacrifice his son. On the "third day" God provided another sacrifice and his son was restored. God’s son died on the Cross and was resurrected on the third day! [Genesis 22:4; Matthew 16:21; 17:23; 20; 19; Mark 9:31; 10:34; Luke 9:22; 18:22; 24:7, 44-47; Acts 10:40; 1 Corinthians 15:4].

Translation: His sons Esau and Jacob bury him. Esau and Jacob are both old men now—they are each 120 years old. The things of the past they have left in the past.

Interestingly enough, Isaac appears to be an old man for a very long period of time. Remember, back when Jacob left Canaan, Isaac was blind and could not distinguish the two fraternal twin brothers apart. Then Jacob spent 20 years in Paddan-aram and then some time moving from place to place in Canaan.

It is often stated and implied in Scripture that a relationship with God results in a longer, fuller life (quite obviously, this is not true of martyrs). Isaac is said to have had a long life and a good life as well. That is what it means to be old and satisfied of days.

Life has changed very little in 4000 years. At a funeral, the family returns to the patriarch and those family members who have not seen each other for a long time gather. Esau is named first and the author must have spent some time with Esau (or, the author of the next chapter), as we have a complete genealogy of Esau follows.

Jacob and Esau both participate in the burial of their father. It is possible that Esau moves back into the Land of Promise for a time after the death of Isaac.

Now, even though the line of Esau will be the topic of the following chapter, the line extends beyond this period of time. Therefore, even if Gen. 36 was first recorded soon after the funeral, someone would have to have added many of the names at a later date.
A Summary of Genesis 35

1. In previous chapters, it is clear that Jacob and his sons have failed on many occasions.

2. In Gen. 34, when Levi and Simeon slaughtered the men of Shechem, God is not mentioned, except as a ruse to get the sons of Hamor to agree to circumcision (in fact, God is not mentioned even there; but the ritual of circumcision is insisted upon by the sons of Jacob).

3. Despite how unfocused the sons of Jacob are, God gives guidance to Jacob, telling him to go to Bethel. Robert Dean: [E]ven though Jacob had become complaisant about God and not completed his mission, God continued to exercise the initiative towards Jacob. That is an important principle. No matter how we fail God, God is never going to fail us. He is continually going to exercise the initiative of divine grace in our behalf. Gen. 35:1

4. At that point, Jacob purifies his household by purging it of all traces of false gods. Fellowship (interaction) with God requires cleansing. 1John 1:9  Gen. 35:2–4
   1) As an aside, the God of the Old and New Testament is Unique and Specific.
   2) The Bible never teaches that if you worship one god and I another, that this is the same God. The God of the Bible is worthy of our worship. There is no other God. There is only the Revealed God of Scripture.
   3) So, whatever household gods were being kept by the people of Jacob had to be removed.

5. Then Jacob says, "Then let us arise and go up to Bethel, so that I may make there an altar to the God who answers me in the day of my distress and has been with me wherever I have gone." This is gratitude. Jacob recognized God’s function and protection in his life. There is little indication that Jacob turns his spiritual life around here. However, from time to time, he recognizes what God has done in his life.

6. God provides the family of Jacob protection, allowing the fear of his family to spread throughout the area where they traveled. God has continually set up protections for them. Despite the many failings of this family, God is always faithful to them.

7. Jacob, recognizing God’s care and grace, worships Him in Bethel. This is where God first appeared to Jacob when he was running from his brother Esau. God reappeared to Jacob in Bethel as well. Gen. 35:7, 9–10

8. God renames Jacob a second time. Gen. 32:28 35:10

9. Now that Jacob was back in the Land of Promise, God promises Jacob directly about his future and the future of his descendants (just as God had done for Abraham and Isaac). And God said to him, "I am God Almighty: be fruitful and multiply. A nation and a company of nations shall come from you, and kings shall come from your own body. The land that I gave to Abraham and Isaac I will give to you, and I will give the land to your offspring after you." (Gen. 35:11–12)

10. Jacob honors God after He spoke to him. He set up a pillar, then poured out a drink offering and oil upon it. Gen. 35:13–14

11. In honor of God, Jacob calls this place Bethel (this is the second time that he names it Bethel). Gen. 35:15

12. Jacob’s 12th and final son are born to him—Benjamin—the only son of Jacob to actually be born in the land of promise. You may recall the wonderful foreshadowing of Jesus Christ which was found in the birth of Benjamin. Gen. 35:16–18

13. Jacob and his family will be called Hebrews, which is a transliteration from the Hebrew word 'Ib'ry (יִבְרִי), pronounced 'ih-bay'-VREE, which means one from beyond. Abraham came into the Land of Promise from the east; and all of Jacob’s sons, save one, are born in the east. Therefore, they have come to Canaan as those from beyond [the Jordan River]. Strong’s #5680  BDB #720. For the rest of the history of the Jews, this will be their name. Hebrew is a rough transliteration of 'Ib'ry (יִיבְרִי).

14. When Jacob set up a pillar as a memorial to Rachel, there is a gloss in this chapter telling us that the pillar is still there to this day. We saw through simple deduction that such an observation would have been made 500 years later. This gave us an opportunity to discuss the concept of glosses, several of which are found in the book of Genesis. Gen. 35:20

15. Reuben provides evidence that, even though he is the firstborn of Jacob, that he lacks the integrity and common sense to carry on as the first heir to Jacob. Reuben has sex with one of his step mothers. Gen. 35:22a

16. The final portion of this chapter appears to be a salute to Isaac, who concerned himself with births and deaths, for the most part, in the portions of Genesis that he wrote. All of the sons of Jacob are named, and then the death of Isaac is recorded. Gen. 35:22b–29

17. There are three deaths recorded in this chapter:
   1) Deborah, who was the personal servant of Rebekah, and apparently given to Jacob for his trip to Paddan-aram. Gen. 35:8
   2) Rebekah, when giving birth to her second son. Gen. 35:16–19
   3) Isaac, of old age, while Jacob was still in the land. Gen. 35:28–29

18. Gen. 35:29 (where Jacob and Esau bury Isaac) and Gen. 36:6–7 (where Esau takes everything and moves away from the land of Canaan) suggests that there was a time when these brothers lived side-by-side. Reasonably, this would have taken place after the death of Isaac. Interestingly enough, both houses are said to be so blessed as to be overrun with cattle that they could not support them (Gen. 36:7).

Most of these chapters can be read through in 2 or 3 minutes. However, even if a person is able to retain much of what he has read, it is of little benefit to the spiritual life if the spiritual lessons are not understood.

Just as Gen. 35 summed up the sons of Jacob, Gen. 36 will list Esau’s descendants.

Robert Dean’s quotes are from Genesis lesson 137; accessed February 1, 2016.

Chapter Outline

Carroll summarizes portions of the Genesis narrative very much like Edersheim does.

B. H. Carroll Summarizes Genesis 35

This will be a running comment commencing at the thirty-fifth chapter and extending through the forty-first. Our last discussion showed the great disturbance of mind on Jacob’s part at the cruelty of Simeon and Levi in destroying the Shechemites. At this time God told Jacob to leave that place and go to Bethel. In removing, Jacob determined to purify his household from idols; if he was to have the enmity of the people, he was determined not to have the disfavor of God. So be commanded all his household to put away their strange gods and to change their garments. They also gave up the rings in their ears and noses. It is not fashionable with us now to wear rings that way, but many do. After this purification God protected them by causing a fear to fall upon the inhabitants of the land, or else Jacob’s crowd would have been annihilated on account of what Simeon and Levi bad done.

At Bethel he builds an altar and worships God, and God reappears to him and gives him a renewed assurance of his protection. He then leaves Bethel for what is now called Bethlehem, or Ephrath. At that place occurred the death of Rachel in giving birth to Benjamin. She was not buried in the cave of Machpelah, like the rest of the family, but for hundreds of years her tomb was standing and visible; they show it to you now, but not with certainty may you accept the tradition. In Gen. 35:8, we find an account of the death of Deborah, Rebekah’s nurse. That is the only hint as to the death of Rebekah. We infer from the fact that the old nurse had come to live with Jacob that Rebekah was dead. I may have an examination question on that point. The rest of the chapter is devoted to the names of Jacob’s sons by his several wives, which I will bring out in an examination question. The chapter closes with the death of Isaac. Jacob comes to Mamre, or Hebron, now the head of the tribe. Esau and Jacob unite to bury their father.

From An Interpretation of the English Bible, by Dr. B.H. Carroll; from e-sword; Genesis 35–41. Updated.
Edersheim wrote a book called The Bible History, Old Testament, which is very similar to Josephus, where he simply rewrites much of what is in the Bible, and adds in notes and comments as he deems to be relevant. This volume of the book is entitled The World Before the Flood, and The History of the Patriarchs.

This comes from Chapter 18, entitled Jacob at Mahanaim - The Night of Wrestling - Reconciliation between Jacob and Esau - Jacob settles at Shechem - Jacob proceeds to Bethel to pay his Vow - Death of Rachel - Jacob settles at Hebron (GENESIS 32-36)

Edersheim Summarizes Genesis 35

But one, though undesigned, consequence of the crime proved a further blessing to Jacob. It was quite clear that he and his family must remove from the scene of Simeon's and Levi's treachery and cruelty. Then it was that God directed Jacob to return to Beth-el, and fulfill the promise which he had there made on fleeing from the face of Esau his brother. About ten years must have elapsed since the return of Jacob from Mesopotamia, and yet he had not paid his vows unto the Lord! From what follows, we infer that, in all probability, the reason of this delay had been that the family of Jacob had not been purged from idolatry, and that hitherto Jacob had been too weak to remove from his household what must have rendered his appearance at Beth-el morally impossible. But now we read, that "he said unto his household, and to all that were with him, Put away the strange gods that are among you, and change your garments" (this as a symbol of purification): "and let us arise, and go up to Bethel." And all the teraphim and idolatrous "charms" were buried deep down below a terebinth-tree "which was by Shechem." A touching incident is recorded immediately on their arrival at Beth-el. "Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, died, and she was buried beneath Beth-el, under an oak, and the name of it was called Allon-bachuth (the oak of weeping)." Thus Deborah's long and faithful service in the household of Isaac, and the family-mourning over the old, tried family friend, are deemed worthy of perpetual memorial in the Book of God! But from the circumstance that Deborah died in the house of Jacob, we infer not only that her mistress Rebekah was dead, but that there must have been some intercourse between Isaac and Jacob since his return to Canaan. Most probably Jacob had visited his aged parent, though Scripture does not mention it, because it in no way affects the history of the covenant. At Bethel God again appeared to Jacob; and while He once more bestowed on him the name of Israel and the covenant-promises previously given, Jacob also paid his vow unto the Lord, and on his part likewise renewed the designation of the place as Beth-el.

From Bethel they continued their journey towards Mamre, the place of Isaac's residence. On the way, some distance from Ephrath, "the fruitful," which in later times was called Bethlehem, "the house of bread," (Micah 5:2) Rachel died in giving birth to Jacob's twelfth son. His mother wished to call her child Ben-oni, "the son of my sorrow;" but his father named him Benjamin, which has been variously interpreted as meaning "son of the right hand," "son of days, i.e. of old age," and "son of happiness," because he completed the number of twelve sons. From Jeremiah 31:15, we gather that Rachel actually died in Ramah. "Jacob set a pillar upon her grave." As the oak, or rather the terebinth, of Deborah was still known at the time of the Judges, when Deborah's greater namesake dwelt under its shadow, "between Ramah and Bethel in Mount Ephraim," (Judges 4:5) so the pillar which marked Rachel's grave was a landmark at the time of Samuel. (1 Samuel 10:2; 3) Another crime yet stained the family of Jacob at Migdal Eder, "the watchtower of the flock," in consequence of which Reuben was deprived of the privileges of the firstborn. (Genesis 49:4) At last Jacob came to his journey's end, "unto Isaac his father, unto Mamre, unto the city of Arbah, which is Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned." Here Scripture pauses to record, by way of anticipation, the death of Isaac, at the age of one hundred and eighty years, although that event took place twelve years after Jacob's arrival at Hebron; and, indeed, Isaac had lived to share his son's sorrow, when Joseph was sold into Egypt, having only died ten years before Jacob and his sons settled in Egypt. But the course of sacred history has turned from Isaac, and, in fact, Jacob himself is now but a secondary actor in its events. The main interest henceforth centers in Joseph, the elder son of Rachel, with whose life the progress of sacred history is identified.

* As Jacob was seventy-seven years old when he went into Mesopotamia, he must have been one hundred and eight on his return to Hebron; while Isaac was at the time only one hundred and sixty-eight years old, since Jacob was born in the sixtieth year of his father's age, as appears from Genesis 25:26. It is, however, fair to add that Dr. Herald Browne proposes another chronology of Jacob's life (after Kennicott and Horsley), which would make him twenty years younger, or fifty-seven years of age, at the time of his flight to Padan-Aram. (See Bible Commentary, vol. 1. pp. 177, 178.)

Portions of Gen. 34 are included, as they lead into Gen. 35.

Addendum

Why Genesis 35 is in the Word of God

1. The very fact that God appears to Jacob 5 or 6 times by this chapter, and yet, he is nowhere near the spiritual maturity of his grandfather Abraham, tells us that positive volition is the key to salvation and spiritual growth, not God’s personal interaction with us.

2. God even changes Jacob’s name, a second time, and yet, this new name never seems to stick with Jacob. The problem is with Jacob and his negative volition toward the plan of God, rather than with God.

3. Despite Jacob’s hard-headedness, God still used him and Rachel to set up a marvelous parallel between the birth of their son, Benjamin, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

What We Learn from Genesis 35

1. It ought to be clear that, even though God appears to Jacob on multiple occasions, Jacob never achieves the spiritual development of his grandfather, Abraham. Much of the time, God and Jacob are seen as being in contention with one another (hence God wrestling with Jacob and breaking his hip a few chapters back).

2. We studied Benjamin as a type of Christ, pointing towards the cross of Christ.

Throughout the life of Jacob, there is one clear principle, despite Jacob’s many failures: God is always faithful. Clearly, this is a flawed family, and yet, God is always there. God is ready to guide Jacob and his family; and God will protect them all. These are God’s chosen people who have been given many unconditional promises from God—so these promises will be fulfilled, no matter how many times they fail. One thing which ought to be clear: Jacob does not deserve the blessing he has received. His sons do not deserve the blessings that they receive. That is what grace is. Grace is what God chooses to do, despite our own inconsistencies and foibles.25

Tying together some random incidents.

The Royal Line of Israel Goes Through Judah

1. There are some incidents recorded in the Word of God which may seem to be quite random to you.
2. Reuben sleeps with his father’s wife. That seems to be thrown into the narrative and almost for no reason.
3. Reuben is the firstborn, and he has responsibilities and privileges. As the oldest son of Jacob, we would assume that the royal line will go through him. The double-portion would go to him. However, he violates the wife of his father (that is called adultery) and in a future chapter, he will not take a leadership position regarding the Joseph, the second to the youngest son. He should have protected Joseph, and Reuben wanted to do this, but he wanted to do it on the sly (indicating that he was not cut out to take a leadership position). He should have stopped the scheming of his brothers—as the firstborn—and explained why they could not sell Joseph into slavery. Reuben should have put his foot down, as a leader, and said, “You will kill our little brother; you will not sell our little brother into slavery. That is the end of the discussion on this matter.” This is what a leader would do; Reuben was not cut out to be a leader.
4. In the previous chapter, Simeon and Levi killed all of the sons of Hamor because one of them had raped their sister. This is murder and this eliminates son #2 and #3 from the firstborn position.
5. This leaves son #4, Judah, and it is through him that the royal line to David will be established. His line will be established in a fascinating way in Gen. 38.

Quite obviously, the human authors of these two sections, Jacob and Joseph, do not know that Judah will become the royal line. They simply record incidents in their lives which stand out to them. However, God the Holy Spirit, the Divine Author of Scripture, includes these incidents because He knows the end from the beginning.

Do you see how these seemingly random events actually have a purpose for being recorded?

There appears to be a much larger chiasmos, spread over several chapters. It is difficult to determine where to place this particular chiasmos. This helps us to look back and organize what we have studied and see how it is organized.

Constable and Fishbane on the Chiasmos of Genesis 25:19–35:22

A Oracle sought; Rebekah struggles in childbirth; bekorah birthright; birth; themes of strife, deception, fertility (Genesis 25:19-34).

B Interlude: strife; deception; berakah blessing; covenant with foreigner (Gen. 26).

C Deception; berakah stolen; fear of Esau; flight from land (Genesis 27:1 to Genesis 28:9).

D Encounter (<paga’) with the divine at sacred site near border; berakah (Genesis 28:10-22).

E Internal cycle opens: arrival; Laban at border; deception; wages; Rachel barren; Leah fertile (Genesis 29:1 to Genesis 30:21).

F Rachel fertile; Jacob increases the herds (Genesis 30:22-43).

These came from notes prepared by Tyler Williams, 2003. Quite frankly, I don’t know where I got them from.

CHAPTER 21. CONCERNING THE VIOLATION OF DINA’S CHASTITY.

2. Now while Jacob was astonished at the greatness of this act [killing the men of Shechem—Gen. 34], and was severely blaming his sons for it, God stood by him, and bid him be of good courage; but to purify his tents, and to offer those sacrifices which he had vowed to offer when he went first into Mesopotamia, and saw his vision. As he was therefore purifying his followers, he lighted upon the gods of Laban; (for he did not before know they were stolen by Rachel;) and he hid them in the earth, under an oak, in Shechem. And departing thence, he offered sacrifice at Bethel, the place where he saw his dream, when he went first into Mesopotamia.

3. And when he was gone thence, and was come over against Ephrata, he there buried Rachel, who died in child-bed: she was the only one of Jacob’s kindred that had not the honor of burial at Hebron. And when he had mourned for her a great while, he called the son that was born of her Benjamin, (39) because of the sorrow the mother had with him. These are all the children of Jacob, twelve males and one female. - Of them eight were legitimate, - viz. six of Lea, and two of Rachel; and four were of the handmaids, two of each; all whose names have been set down already.

CHAPTER 22.
HOW ISAAC DIED, AND WAS BURIED IN HEBRON.

FROM thence Jacob came to Hebron, a city situate among the Canaanites; and there it was that Isaac lived: and so they lived together for a little while; for as to Rebeka, Jacob did not find her alive. Isaac also died not long after the coming of his son; and was buried by his sons, with his wife, in Hebron, where they had a monument belonging to them from their forefathers. Now Isaac was a man who was beloved of God, and was vouchsafed great instances of providence by God, after Abraham his father, and lived to be exceeding old; for when he had lived virtuously one hundred and eighty-five years, he then died.

(39) Since Benoni signifies the son of my sorrow, and Benjamin the son of days, or one born in the father's old age, Genesis 44:20, I suspect Josephus's present copies to be here imperfect, and suppose that, in correspondence to other copies, he wrote that Rachel called her son's name Benoni, but his father called him Benjamin, Genesis 35:18. As for Benjamin, as commonly explained, the son of the right hand, it makes no sense at all, and seems to be a gross modern error only. The Samaritan always writes this name truly Benjamin, which probably is here of the same signification, only with the Chaldee termination in, instead of im in the Hebrew; as we pronounce cherubin or cherubim indifferently. Accordingly, both the Testament of Benjamin, sect. 2, p. 401, and Philo de Nominum Mutatione, p. 1059, write the name Benjamin, but explain it not the son of the right hand, but the son of days.
