

THE BOOK OF 1 CORINTHIANS

1 Corinthians Intro

#1 Sunday AM 1st Session

July 18, 2004

This book teaches us more about a 1st century church than any other book in Scripture. There were a plethora of problems in the Corinthian church, and Paul gives us solutions for all of those problems.

Geographic: Corinth was a strategically located city; Greece is two peninsulas, split by two gulfs. In the center of these two gulfs is the isthmus of Corinth. Could not go from northern to the southern parts of Greece apart from going through this area. Those coming from the east and the west would stop at two different ports. Extremely important to commerce at that time. There was no water bridge back at this time; it is a canal now. Adriatic and Aegean Seas. 45 miles from the center of Greece from the capital of Greece. Corinth received shipments from Italy, Sicily and Spain. Corinth was the center of commerce in the ancient world. Egypt, Phoenicia, Syria, etc. all ran shipments through Corinth. This was one of the most bustling port of the ancient world. What would happen, the ship would stop at Lichia, then the goods would be hauled to the other port, and then shipped from there.

Corinth was the capital of Achaia during Paul's time. In 146 B.C., Corinth was flattened in the 3rd Macedonian wars. Cæsar rebuilt this as a Roman city, in Roman fashion. Agora would be the center of the city; the market place. The Bema was also there, the place of all legal transactions. It was a judgment seat.

Corinth had a Roman flavor, but there were enough Jews there to have a synagogue. There were merchants and travelers from east and west. 250,000 free and 400,000 slaves. A wide open cities. Men developed commercial and other interests. It was a can-do town.

There was the biannual isthmus games. A prosperous city, and an anything goes sort of place. A cosmopolitan sort of place; Temple of Aphrodite stood on the highest point. This could be seen from the entire city. 1000 female and male prostitutes served the city there. Strabo the Greek philosopher ascribed its favor to blessing of this temple. Corinthian became almost synonymous with pleasure.

Paul began there in about 51 A.D. Central location or multi-cultural area, Paul wanted to go there. He stayed there for about a year and a half. His church was made up of mostly Gentiles, with a few Jews. There will be a potential for trouble there.

Acts 18:1–17: Paul was utterly rejected when he went to this area. This was part of his growth. He met with the opposition and the contempt of Athens, so he moved on to Corinth.

Acts 18:1: And after these things Paul departed from Athens and came to Corinth.

Acts 18:2 And finding a certain Jew named Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy with his wife Priscilla (because Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome) Paul came to them.

Acts 18:3 And because he was of the same trade, he stayed and worked with them; for they were tentmakers by occupation.

Paul, as a Rabbinical student, learned tent making. He took up this skill when he came to Corinth; he never wanted to sell the gospel. Paul naturally came into contact with Priscilla and Aquila, being in the same business. They were his first converts. Priscilla became an exceptional student of doctrine.

Acts 18:4 And he reasoned in the synagogue on every Sabbath, persuading both Jews and Greeks.

There were Gentiles and Jews worshiping in the synagogue. Paul often went to synagogues wherever he went because he wanted his people to know Jesus. This is where he was most comfortable; however, God is not in the business of comfort. Paul reasoned with the Jews to convince them that Jesus was the Messiah. His presentation in the synagogue was more of an apologetic than a simple presentation.

Paul persuaded or attempted to sway the Jews with logical and apologetic arguments. His persuasion could not equal the power of God the Holy Spirit. The Word of God is more powerful than apologetics. When you argue with apologetics, you often get an argument back.

Witnessing Versus Apologetics

1. When we witness, do not argue with unbelievers. Don't try to dazzle them with your logical skills.
2. Our responsibility is to present the gospel of Jesus Christ.
3. We are not witnessing to win a debate.
4. Present the gospel and let the Holy Spirit do his job. As a part of common grace, the Holy Spirit will make the gospel real to the unbeliever. We plant the seed to the Holy Spirit can use this information either then or the next time. Our job is not to win souls for Christ but to present information. Pastors were asked in a survey asked how are you saved? They could not present a straightforward gospel. We need to be able to present the gospel in a precise way. The gospel of Jesus Christ is all about grace and the work of Jesus Christ. We should be able to give the gospel in about ten sentences. Therefore, we need to learn a good presentation of the gospel.
5. Stick to the issue. Do not get sidetracked; evolution or what about the heathen.
6. There is nothing wrong with apologetics; but it may be used as an opener, not as the main body of your presentation. People may reject it. It is not our job to argue them into the kingdom of God.

7. Don't continue to argue things like, is the Bible the Word of God? Or, is evolution true? Or, why is there evil in the world? These are smokescreens.
8. When faced with a diversion from the gospel, use your best judgment.
9. We may be forced to give an explanation about a peripheral issue. Don't forget your mission. You are not there to argue, but to present the gospel.
10. Make your argument short, concise, and then return to the issue of salvation. Bobby was faced with what about evolution? And they want to argue about this bone here or that one there.
  - a. Go back to the beginning of evolution. No one has any idea as to how that got started.
  - b. Here is your premise, this pulpit, given billions of years, becomes you. Do you believe that? It takes blind faith to believe that, no one has ever seen it happen.
  - c. This allowed you to introduce faith. "I believe in Jesus Christ by faith." But He was an historical person who witnessed to thousands of people. It is witnessed to by Scripture.
  - d. You have moved from a side issue back to the gospel.

1Corinthians Intro

#2 Sunday AM 2nd Session

July 18, 2004

Approximate beginning place for the second session.

The arguments they present mean that they have already made their decision. Paul was making some mistakes in his presentation. Jews love to argue about everything. Paul liked this as well. He forget what he was supposed to do and he was running head first into brick walls. He was discouraged from Mars Hill and out of fellowship.

Acts 18:5 And when Silas and Timothy had come from Macedonia, Paul was pressed in the spirit and testified to the Jews that Jesus is the Christ.

Paul is now back to the gospel. When they showed up, he assessed the situation and apparently reminded Paul of his mission. Paul was a man of humility; he suddenly realized that he was going down the wrong road. "Remember Mars Hill? Well, cut it out."

Paul had to go somewhere to present the gospel; and it does not mean that you can only witness to those you want to witness to. The door to the Jews was closed. The Greeks were willing to listen to anything; they liked hearing different things.

Acts 18:6 And they resisting and blaspheming, shaking his garment, he said to them, Your blood is on your own heads. I am pure from it. From now on I will go to the nations.

Paul realized that he had to move on. This was a quote from Ezek. 34.

From this point forward, Paul goes to the Gentiles primarily. He will still witness to Jews.

Acts 18:7 And he departed from there and entered into the house of one named Justus, one worshiping God, whose house was next to the synagogue.

There is a connection here. This verse represents a shift from the Jews to the Gentiles. This was his first step of positive volition; he wanted to know more. Sebomai = used for those who have accepted the God of Israel, but have not yet made the transition from Yahweh to Jesus Christ. Justus was not all the hung up on the Law. Here was an opening for Paul. This is a contract for Paul. This is symbolic and actual.

Acts 18:8 And Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord with all his house. And hearing this, many of the Corinthians believed and were baptized.

Paul's presenting the gospel here had some real impact. The leader of the synagogue believes along with his family and many Corinthians. His high status made his public profession of faith important. This would also cause some problems as well.

Water Baptism

1. Paul in his mission was baptizing.
2. In the pre-canon area, water baptism was a visual confirmation, a witness to faith in Christ. This was important in the pre-canon era. What he did was a public profession, and the entire synagogue got the message, as did many others.
3. This is why water baptism even in the post canon period is not wrong. It is not a mandate like the communion. Nothing wrong with it, as long as you know what it means.
4. If you are immersed today (which is the proper way to do it), it must be understood that it is merely a witness by the believer. This is how you tell your friends about this. This attests to your faith alone in Christ alone. Some Baptist churches present baptismal regeneration.
5. Water baptism is never a means of salvation or a requirement of salvation. This is completely un-biblical and anti-grace.
6. Immersion, the believer makes the profession that he was identified with Jesus Christ.
7. He is identified in Christ's deaths and burial.
8. This is called retroactive positional truth.
9. When we believe in Christ, the sin nature was crucified with Him. The sin nature is no longer an issue. We still have an old sin nature, but we have a way to deal with it.
10. This identifies us retroactively with His death and resurrection.
11. Christian water baptism in the early church was also a testimony to the baptism of the Holy Spirit. That is an important baptism.
12. The ritual of water baptism before the canon was written, before it had been distributed, there had to be other ways to learn doctrine. This was a visual aid. This explained doctrine to these people. Paul would explain this as he did it.

13. Once the canon was completed, one the pastor teacher had something to teach his congregation, then it was no longer necessary. Communion is a way of worship, a way of celebrating and remembering what Jesus Christ did for us. Baptism is a testimony and a teaching tool.
14. The explanation for the baptism of the Spirit is now in writing, so it is no longer mandated for us in the Church Age. It is not wrong, as long as it is done with the correct meaning understood. This is why it isn't done at Berachah. We know what it is.

Paul had been discouraged and despondent because he was rejected by the Jews. There are moments of melancholy in the ministry. Often it is associated with great spiritual victories. If we advance, that is a great victory, and there will be a Satanic counter attack. Opposition to doctrine, gossiping, maligning doctrine, legalism, criticism.

The pastor leads a life which is not normal. Had Bobby had a choice, he may have gone for a different gift. It takes time for these problems to be ironed out and to run their course. There are a lot of things that Bobby doesn't think about because the board takes care of those things.

Paul recognizes that there is positive volition among the Gentiles.

Acts 18:9 And the Lord spoke to Paul in the night by a vision, Do not be afraid, but speak, and be not silent.

Paul got a vision, which is not something we can expect. Paul received a lot of opposition and he was depressed. God tells him not to worry; to stick with it. Any one leading the spiritual life will be under pressure.

Acts 18:10 For I am with you, and no one shall set on you to hurt you, for I have many people in this city.

God knows that there are many in Corinth who need Paul's teaching. Paul was encouraged by these conversions. Paul's eyes were on what he should be doing. It is not easy to get out of this mode. It is we who have to change; it is in our soul. Paul was encouraged; he was refreshed. Given a green light by God will bring anyone out of depression. God said to Paul, "Do not be silent. I have man people in this city. These people are waiting for the gospel and for doctrine." So Paul stayed there for a year and a half.

Everything else is just a detail of life, when you deal with salvation and the teaching of doctrine. We can get out of this depression; God is whispering for us to get up and go out. When you get sidetracked; that pulpit is only as good as the one teaching doctrine. There is no other solution for us.

The only reason that Bobby is alive is to teach God's Word. That is his job.

There was apparently no teaching this week? Was this the week the Bobby was gone on vacation?

I Cor. Introduction

Lesson #3 Sunday First Service

July 25, 2004

I think my numbering is off here; aren't there two lessons prior to this?

We are looking at the city of Corinth, which splits Greece in half. Saronic gulf and the Corinthian gulf, and between them is a 5 mile stretch of land which is Corinth, an isthmus. Corinth would be the shipping capital of Greece. It was a wide open city with all kinds of interests being developed there; of course, business and commerce. Ocean going ships going east and west; foot and animal movement north and south. Biannual isthmus games. It was a melting pot of cultures and peoples. A prosperous, anything goes kind of place. A city of pleasure and promiscuity.

The temple of Aphrodite stood at the highest point of the city and was visible to all. Fertility rites with 1000 temple prostitutes. Paul entered this city in about 51 A.D. Acts 18:1-17 is the founding of this church.

Discouragement, rejection and fear is what Paul got in Athens. This moved him to Corinth. There was no positive volition in Athens. Paul hooks up with Aquila and Priscilla; all of them were tent makers. Paul learned this trade as a Rabbinical student. All of them had to have day jobs or a trade. Paul never wanted to be accused of charging people for presenting the gospel. Doctrine should never be charged for. He was not the evangelist who would pass the hat every time that he spoke. Paul was in the synagogue persuading the Jews and Greeks. He was making involved academic arguments from the Old Testament, and this did not work. He was being rejected. His reasoning could never equal the power of the Holy Spirit. One is to stick to the gospel. If you deal with apologetics, you need to guide the person back to the gospel. Paul was trying to argue people into believing in Christ.

Timothy and Silas counsel Paul to stay with those who have positive volition. The Jews resisted Paul, but the Gentiles did not. Paul shook out his garment, to show his dismissal and contempt for these Jews. When you have presented the gospel and there is no positive volition, then you let it go. "Your blood is upon your own heads." Paul can do nothing to change their negative volition. Paul knows that they will not accept the gospel. From this time forward, Paul goes to the Gentiles, because they are responding.

Then Paul goes to the house of Ticius Justus. He was not steeped in the legalism of the synagogue. He did not have to keep the Mosaic Law, as a Gentile. He became Paul's contact with the Gentiles of this area through Justus. This is symbolic of Paul passing from the Jews to the Gentiles. There was an influential member of the synagogue name Crispus, who was a believer. Baptism was not a part of their salvation; it was their faith which saved them. Baptism is legitimate today, but not a mandate. Since we have the complete canon of Scripture in our hands today, making baptism not an issue anymore.

God then assures Paul that he can speak and teach there, because there were many there. When Paul left Athens, he had a bad attitude. It made him ineffective. Fear and discouragement obscure grace and doctrinal orientation; and Satan uses these against God's men. Paul was no longer depressed or discouraged. There is a tremendous amount of positive volition in Corinth and they were waiting for Paul to give them the gospel. Paul will stay there for a year and a half. Paul was rolling along at this point. Paul's mission was to focus on evangelism and teaching. The focus should be upon the Word of God.

Acts 18:11 And he continued there a year and six months, teaching the Word of God among them.

When people become positive toward the gospel, then there are attacks. In Corinth, it was an attack of the Jews. The Jews were angry that Crispus believed. The Jews here become the persecutors. They want to kill the Apostle Paul because he believes in Jesus Christ. Even when you are in God's plan, the movement forward is not always smooth sailing. Even someone like Paul, filled with doctrine.

Application to Us: Fear and Discouragement

1. These are sins and defeat in the Angelic Conflict.
2. You must be very cognizant of this pitfall. It sneaks up on you. You get your eyes on yourself. You see yourself and not in a very good light. Fear and discouragement will weigh us down like a huge amount of baggage.
3. You lose sight of your spiritual life and Jesus Christ. Your life is just superficial when your eyes are on yourself.
4. When you have fear and discouragement, your life becomes a quagmire of self-pity.
5. The solution, of course, is to rebound, and then get back on track with doctrine. You must have a different perspective. There is no other solution.
6. Then after you have rebounded, focus your eyes on the Lord and off yourself and your problems. In the scope of things, your problems are not much. When you have divine viewpoint, the light of eternity far outshines your personal problems. Your problems are minuscule to God.
7. Keeping your eyes on the Lord relieves you from those ubiquitous personal (ever-present) problems.
8. Fear and discouragement are insidious and recurring. However, they can be overcome with divine viewpoint. Γνῶσις doesn't get it. You can know more doctrine than anyone in your city, but if you can't apply doctrine, it is not good to you.

Acts 18:12 But Gallio being pro-consul of Achaia, the Jews with one accord rushed against Paul and brought him to the judgment seat,

The Jews bring Paul to the judgment seat, and accuse him. They say that Paul teaches to worship that which is contrary to the Law. However, their rioting was against God. They obeyed the laws of man.

Acts 18:13 saying, This one persuades men to worship God contrary to the Law.

Religious Zealots and Legalisms Versus Grace

1. Jews of the synagogue were out of control, and they got upset easily.
2. Self righteousness religion opposes grace and they use unrighteous means to get rid of their opposition.
3. Our Lord exposed this pharisaical hypocrisy time and again in his earthly ministry. They Jews were so mad at Paul for being so exposed.
4. It was a religious mob which dragged Paul in front of the judgment seat, and there was a similar mob that hauled Jesus before the Sanhedrin. They hauled Paul to the highest court.

Gallio is the name of Lucius Julius Anaus, and he received Gallio as a name because he adopted this Gallio of this passage. He is the older brother of Seneca. This would be Gallio Jr. who was seated here. Gallio was the opposite of Pontius Pilate. Pilate was afraid to stand up to the mob, and he simply wanted to quiet the Jewish mob that he faced.

1Corinthians Intro.

2nd Session Lesson #4

July 25, 2004

Gallio was not intimidated by this mob. He was not afraid to do the right thing. A howling mob of Jewish legalisms bring Paul and he listens to them complain about Paul teaching the gospel of Christ. The Law to which they referred was really not Roman law. Did Rome have jurisdiction over religious law? This was the question. They hoped to indict Paul for violating Jewish Law and get him condemned to death; they figured if they made enough noise, that Gallio just had to go along with them. Gallio was a man of courage and leadership.

Gallio

1. He was fair-minded with an excellent understanding of law. He did not let things get out of hand. He was in charge. And no one else would take over.
2. He did not believe that the state should interfere in matters of religion. That was not his business.
3. Gallio recognized the privacy and right of citizens to accept or reject a religion.
4. He was not taken in by these vicious attacks on Paul and Roman justice. They wanted to distort Roman law to gain their own purposes. Jewish religious law would not usurp Roman law.

Act 18:14 And Paul being about to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews, If indeed then, it was anything wrong or wicked criminality, O Jews, according to reason I would endure you.

He cuts Paul off; he does not have to hear what Paul has to say. It is immaterial.

Acts 18:15 But if it is a question of a word and names, and of your law, you look to it. For I do not wish to be a judge of such things.

I am not the judge of your religious matters. He took a stand and saw right through all of their little tricks. He wanted nothing to do with this case. A smart judge to know when he has no reason to take a case. He was not going to be manipulated by a mob. He was Rome and he was not going to let them forget it. If there was a serious crime, then he would put up with them; however, he would not deal with a religious matter. He knew how the Jews would try to manipulate things. Gallio could make the distinction between Jewish religious law and Roman law. He refused to hear the case; Paul was protected by Roman law. God works through national institutions.

The Jews may have tried to stone Paul, but they would run afoul of the law then. They would be murderers, as Rome reserved the option of capital punishment.

Acts 18:16 And he drove them from the judgment seat.

Gallio dismisses this crowd of Jewish legalists.

Acts 18:17 And all the Greeks seized Sosthenes, the chief ruler of the synagogue, and beat him before the judgment seat. And Gallio did not care for any of these things.

Acts 18:18 And Paul having remained many days more, taking leave of the brothers, he sailed from there into Syria. And Priscilla and Aquila were with him. And Paul had shorn his head in Cenchrea, for he had a vow.

The Greeks had enough of this Jewish tyranny. They acted like a mob as well. They grabbed up Sosthenes, the Jewish leader, and beat him.

Gallio was a quiet man with manners, but he was still tough. He impressed the Greeks. He was a guy they could respect; he stands up to this mob. Others have allowed the Jewish mobs bully them.

What did the Greeks See Here?

1. They saw a Roman proconsul who would rule in a just way. He would not bend the law.
2. The privacy and liberty of the Greeks would be respected. Law is a protection for all citizens.

3. Gallio was not going to force any religion down the throats of anyone in Corinth. Our courts are not designed to force Christianity on anyone. Our job is to present the gospel; not the courts.
4. In this way, Gallio preserved freedom and protected the rights of individuals in the matters of religion.

The Greeks got emotional about this and rather excited. They liked debate and philosophy and they did not like the bullying of the Jewish mobs. They grabbed up Sosthenes, the leader of the synagogue, and the successor to Crispus, and they beat Sosthenes up in front of the judgment seat. This sent the Jews a message that he would not put up with mob activity. He sends them a message; no more riots. He shows them what it is like to be the focus of mob activity.

This beating had a good effect on Sosthenes. I Cor. 1:1 will become a believer. That is how he responded to this. Some of us take severe beatings before we get the message. This is how the church at Corinth was founded.

The Corinthians

1. They loved philosophy. Greeks enjoyed philosophy. They liked debate.
2. They were vain and lovers of pleasure.
3. There was an infusion of Jewish converts to this area, although the Greeks will predominate this area. Some Jews took leadership roles in the church.
4. The church was then surrounded by Greek excesses.
5. To them, pleasure was the greatest good. It was all about fun and all about a good time. Philosophers said that pleasure was the greatest good.
6. This pleasure philosophy was the message of their religious teachers. Possibly a backlash to Stoicism? Greek dualism, dark and light, good and evil. Some elements of truth, but human viewpoint for the most part.
7. They tended to split into factions. They could be upset with one another in a heartbeat and divide and fight. These are characteristics of this church described in this epistle. They are a lot like us.
8. In four years since Paul had gotten there (56 A.D.), not many had advanced spiritually. That was Paul's great concern.
9. Most of them failed to take in doctrine and they remained in an immature status.
10. They were, to say the least, sexually active. Incest, adultery, and homosexuality.
11. It was not unknown for them to make a few side trips to the Temple of Aphrodite now and again. This was up the hill, and there were temple prostitutes available there. They retained a lot of these old ways.
12. The problem with this is, this activity is so ingrained in their thinking, and that they had not advanced spiritually, that they did not really consider this to be immoral. Like some religious homosexuals today. When they get out of church, they go out for a little fun. They led two lives and lived them.

13. They were just continuing their old customs and habits. They knew no different. They just had not advanced. They are eternally saved, but they were the biggest bunch of rounders in the ancient world. They did not have the information with which they could advance.
14. They began to split their church. They began to identify with different pastors and leaders. They were totally divided. It was not about doctrine, but it was about influence. Often, they liked someone that they could push around and influence. This is almost denominationalism.
15. They took each other to court. They sued each other all the time. They aired their dirty laundry in public. To those on the outside, these believers seemed no different. They sued each other just like unbelievers did. This nullified their witness of Jesus Christ in their community.
16. These guys misused their spiritual gifts, including tongues. They made a mess of it, and they became further divide. There were an abundance of spiritual gifts in this church, and they messed these gifts all up.
17. They were drunk at the communion table; they got loaded and went to the Communion Table. You do not approach the Lord's Table out of fellowship. You keep Him in mind and you meditate on what He has done for you.
18. If all of this were not enough, some were into legalism. That definitely caused factions as well. The lascivious group and the legalists hated one another.
19. Interestingly enough, this was a flourishing church. There was great positive volition in Corinth. Their sin natures were in charge. They hadn't rebounded. This would become a great church in the ancient world. They will keep the church together.
20. This shows how doctrine occurs among believers.
  - a. Advance does not occur overnight. This is a process and it is a grind. It occurs day after day after day. There were many ways that they could go.
  - b. Becoming a believer does not change one's soul and immediately battle evil or sin. Except, those who grow, it does change their souls and they do battle evil and sin.
21. These Corinthians have the same foibles as we do. This book directly relates to us and all of our weaknesses. This is a very practical book and it is all about us.

1 Corinthians Introduction

Lesson #5

We'll complete the introduction tonite.

We need to look at why Paul wrote this book. There is more information about a 1st century church than any other epistle. 1. This was a response to many questions (chapters 7–16). 2. This was one of the most divided churches, and the second purpose was to correct those problems (chapters 1–6). Dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη). Paul wanted these Corinthians to grow up.

Outline of the Book

1. Various cliques in the church (chapters 1–4).
2. Lack of discipline. Chapter 5
3. Litigation 6:1_11
4. Chapter 6:12–end
5. Marriage chapter 7
6. Liberty or license. Chapters 8–10
7. Regulation of Christian churches 11:3–16
8. Order of communion: 11:17–34
9. Nature and use of spiritual gifts. Chapters 12–14
10. The resurrection. Chapter 15.

The Chain of Events Leading up to the Writing of this Book

1. Paul learned tent making, and he left with Priscilla and Aquila. Paul organized the church and its leadership.
2. Paul chose Apollos as a pastor. He was a very good orator; but he did not know the full realm of doctrine. Acts 18:25–26. Corinth needed strong authority and an excellent teacher; good oratory did not hold the church together.
3. The factions found in the church.
  - a. Jealous people. They got jealous over spiritual gifts. They want the gift that someone else had.
  - b. There was a lot of gossip going on as well. They even made things up.
  - c. There was a lot of bullying. Some thought they were better than others in the congregation.
  - d. There was a strong legalistic clique. When you have Jews from the synagogue, you will have legalism. This group could be very critical of doctrine and grace. They were conspicuous and self righteous.
  - e. There were Greeks who had a strong bend toward licentiousness as well.
  - f. Right in between all of these factions is the grace group. It takes spiritual maturity to maintain that spiritual perspective. Bobby uses the apex of a house to illustrate those in grace; the others were on either side of the slope. The attacks are always against grace. As long as you stick with grace, you will not become part of the faction. Legalism is probably the greatest opponent of grace:
    - i. The legalism thinks he knows best for everyone. He is the person with the plan and his plan is always the best. Inference, what is God's plan compared to my plan?
    - ii. His blind arrogance says, no one knows better than me how to run a church or a ministry.
    - iii. This is how the legalists in Corinth thought. The church did need to change, but they were wrong on how to do it. Where legalism exists, grace is absent. They do not co-exist.
  - g. Some use grace to rationalize their behavior.

- i. God knows I am a sinner. This gives them an excuse. The self righteous person does not necessarily admit this.
  - ii. God's grace has provided for my condition. So far, they are accurate.
  - iii. Even though I am undeserving, grace will cover my weakness. God has provided for a way to deal with my weakness.
  - iv. Therefore, I won't worry about my weakness; I will indulge it. Don't worry about it. Sin now, rebound later. This is the wrong understanding of grace. Grace doesn't provide for your sins, but it makes provisions for the sinner.
4. Apollos took off. He deserted his post. He was not interested in returning either. I Cor. 16:12
  5. This left a vacuum which was filled by those who were not friendly to Paul or Timothy.
  6. Paul was in Ephesus, so he took a side trip to Corinth. He was unable to change things and he had other places he had to go (3rd missionary journey). He got back to Ephesus and wrote a letter, which was lost.
  7. Chloe brought Paul a letter, and Paul wrote the Corinthians another letter. This is 1Corinthians.

Vv. 1–3 is Paul's salute.

1Cor. 1:1 Paul, a called apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, and Sosthenes our brother, klêtos is the genitive here, and Paul's authority was probably the most extensive at any time. Paul was called directly by the will of God, by divine authority, directly.

Apostle

1. Apostolos means the sent one. Paul is called, meaning he is a commissioned emissary. 1Cor. 1:1
2. Paul was an Apostle of the Apostles. This is how Peter referred to him. Without the definite article, the high quality of the noun is emphasized. 1Cor.
3. Apostolos was a 500 year old term. A high ranking admiral or general. Such an officer was chosen by a counsel.
4. The word connotes authority and command responsibilities.
5. Apostleship was a gift of super authority, beyond the local church level. Highest level today in churches today is the pastor teacher. Paul had authority over all of the churches at that time.
6. This super-authority was for the purpose of communicating the mystery doctrine of the Church Age before it appeared in writing in the canon of Scripture, and Paul communicated more doctrine than anyone who had ever lived. There was nothing by way of mystery doctrine written at that time, except for the epistles as they began to be written.

7. This applies only to the immediate messenger or called one. This was not an appointment by any human being. This means the apostles were directly appointed by God, and not by anyone else. There was no election by people or an appointment by some other person. Unlike the pope in Rome. The Roman Catholic church was a good church at one point in time. When they split, there were two popes in the 14th century. They tried to kill each other and overthrow each other. Nothing to do with the gift of apostleship. There are saved Catholics and some priests teach salvation correctly.
8. The qualifications of an apostle:
  - a. An apostle is appointed by the Holy Spirit directly. 1Cor. 15:8, 11
  - b. To be an apostle, you had to be an eyewitness to the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Paul saw Jesus Christ on the road of Damascus. 1Cor. 15:8–9 Acts
  - c. Apostles had great powers; they had all the gifts. Acts 5:15 19:11–12 28:8–9
9. Purpose of the apostolic gift
  - a. To provide leadership in the pre-canon period of the Church Age.
  - b. They had the authority to establish of local churches.
  - c. Teaching and clarification of the mystery doctrine of the Church Age.
  - d. The maintenance of a true systematic theology with a true dispensational doctrine.
  - e. They were to train pastors; apostles were roving seminaries. Intensive training of pastors.
  - f. They were also administrative men. They established church policy and it was not followed. They put together the local church constitutions.
  - g. Responsible for sending out colonial apostles, super missionaries. They went out to various locations and they were beholden to the Apostles.
10. There were no apostles appointed until after the ascension of Jesus Christ. They were disciples. Eph. 4:8–11 Peter was not an apostle in Matthew. This gift came with the Holy Spirit at Pentecost.
11. Apostles were recipients of direct revelation of God. 1Peter 1:21. They were inspired to write Scripture. Holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit.
12. Roster of Apostles;
  - a. Some were active and some were almost honorary in their function.
  - b. Simon Peter, who wrote two epistles. James and John (James wrote the book of James?); John was one of the most active.
  - c. The other Apostles are known only through extra-Biblical sources:
    - i. Andrew, Peter's brother, short life.
    - ii. Philip; gift of evangelism.
    - iii. Bartholomew.

- iv. Thomas (Doubting Thomas). Didymus, which means twin. Extra Biblical sources tell us that he went as far as India.
  - v. Matthew or Levi.
  - vi. Simon the Zealot or the Canadian; least known of the Apostles.
  - vii. James, son of Althaus. Disappears almost immediately into history and his is called James the Lessor, only because we know so little about him.
  - viii. Thaddius, also known as Jude, who wrote the book of Jude.
  - ix. Matthias was elected, but he disappears. He got a mediate appointment, which does not qualify him as an Apostle.
13. The Office of Apostleship:
- a. Those who held the office do not have the spiritual gift of Apostleship. They are called Apostles in the sense of being pioneer missionaries.
  - b. The pioneer missionaries are colonial or delegated Apostles. Missionary leaders of the early church.
  - c. Colonial Apostles had lessor spiritual gifts; they had the authority to establish local churches, the gift of pastor teacher. Not the sign gifts, however.
  - d. They are the patterns for missionaries today.
  - e. Colonial Apostles included men such as Barnabas (Acts 14:14 Gal. 2:9); James (1Cor. 15:7); Apollos, Silas and Timothy (1Thess. 1:1 2:6); Andronicas and Julia; two others.
14. Additional spiritual gifts of Apostles:
- a. Miracles, tongues and healing. Also prophecy and interpretation of tongues (Acts 5:15 28:8–9).
  - b. These gifts were used as credit cards to establish that these men had the authority.
  - c. Once the authority was established, and once they were clearly identified in the Roman empire, his credit card was revoked. Acts 19:11–12 Paul could heal at one time, but not Philip. 2:7 (Epaphroditus).
15. The Apostles prophesied the details of the eschatological dispensation: Tribulation and the Millennium.
16. Any claim of Apostleship today is bogus, phoney, heresy and blasphemy.
17. Once the canon of Scripture was completed, the gift was no longer necessary. John was the last apostle. He died around 96 A.D.

Many churches are founded on revelation directly from God, like the Mormon church. Such revelation contradicts what is already known from Scripture, then it is wrong. God does not contradict Himself. Scripture is not to be contradicted. If this new revelation agrees with Scripture, what is the point? We don't need it. This is really, just someone who wants attention. Listen to me, God talks to me.

Apostleship doctrine completed.

1Cor. 1:1b ...through the will of God,...

Dia + the Genitive

1. This phrase emphasizes the exclusive call of 12 men.
2. It means that Paul is called by direct divine authority.
3. Such authority is necessary to solve the problems of the Corinthian church.
4. When problems exist in the local church, they must be resolved by the use of divinely given authority. The pastor can solve many of the problems by teaching and continuing to teach. No pastor today can claim authority as Paul had.
5. Paul states his rank and authoritative credentials before dealing with the problems of Corinth.

...and Sosthenes our brother,...

Here was a guy totally opposed to Christianity and to Paul and suddenly is in the fold. He was Paul's amanuensis. He could get beaten up and then accepted Christ. The beauty of God's grace. This man was soundly beaten by a group of Greeks, and he became a believer after being beaten before Gallio. He just needed a little push to believe in Christ. He was a trophy of grace, and this is why Paul introduces him to the Corinthians. Sosthenes was a potential killer of Paul.

Adelphos

1. This word makes an important distinction between Paul and his associates.
2. Wherever Paul in his epistles has a partner or a companion, this person does not have equal authority. They are not Apostles.
3. He always distinguishes between himself and these other men by title. These are believers who accompany Paul.
4. These are mentioned in the greeting of the epistle, but not in the body of the letter.
5. This is an important distinction and an indicator of the uniqueness of the gift of Apostleship.

1Cor. 1:2 to the church of God which is in Corinth, to those who are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called out with all those in every place who call on the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours.

This was directed solely to the Corinthian church. Possessive genitive—the church of God or the church belonging to God.

Ekklesia

1. Never used in the New Testament for a building.

2. A collective term for the universal church.
3. A collection of believers in any one location. Where 2 or more meet to listen to doctrine. There was the church in Philemon's home was an example. Rom. 16:5 the home of Priscilla and Aquila.

Tou theou = of God and is the genitive of possession. These Corinthians belong to God. These Corinthians were called saints, but definitely not sinless. Human beings are not sinless. This was a church sanctified or set apart in Jesus Christ. These people knew how to sin. They are called to be saints and they are sanctified. Sanctification here refers to positional sanctification and eternally secure.

1Cor. 1:2b ...to those who are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called out with all those in every place who call on the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours.

These Corinthians knew how to sin. They would have a very difficult time making others think that they are a righteous bunch of people. These are positionally sanctified brothers; they are in Christ.

Positional Sanctification

1. Paul tells these Corinthians that they are sanctified. Positional sanctification refers to one of the 40 things given to us at salvation. It is one of the 39 irrevocable absolutes given to us at salvation. Paul addresses Corinthians, who are not saintly as we think of it.
2. Sanctification is the Greek word hagiasmos; we have the verb here: hagiazô, which means to set apart, to make holy, to set apart for holiness, set apart as a saint. They are not experientially holy.
3. Hagiazô is a perfect passive participle. Perfect tense means that we are sanctified in the past with the result that we are sanctified forever. Passive means the Corinthians received sanctification.
4. The believer is positionally sanctified in the past, at the moment of salvation with the result that he is sanctified forever.
5. This is solely the work of God. We do not earn or deserve this.
6. Fundamental idea here is belonging to Christ at the moment of salvation, which carries on into eternity. It is an unassailable position. We are set apart to Christ at salvation and this is a status we retain forever.
7. Positional sanctification identifies us with the person of Jesus Christ in two ways:
  - a. Retroactive Positional Truth:
    - i. This is the meaning of retroactive positional truth identifies the believer with Christ in His Substitutionary spiritual death, His physical death, and His burial.
    - ii. The believer acquires at salvation, a status of separation. Sin and death, rulership of Satan, and his sovereignty over us are what we are freed from (positionally).

- iii. Id with Christ places the believer in a position to break free from the power of the old sin nature and from Satan's influence of corruption and depravity. Rom. 6:4–14 We are in a position to break free and we can progressively do so (experiential sanctification). We are in a position to break the power of the old sin nature.
- iv. This is the basis for us being experientially separated.
- b. Current Positional Truth:
  - i. Identification with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session, which is current positional truth. Hundreds of believers saw Jesus Christ in His resurrection body and testify to that in the Scriptures.
  - ii. Identification with a new spiritual life; all things have become new.
  - iii. This means that the believer now has a permanent relationship with the King of Kings and that he is a new creature in Christ and the old things have passed away. We have the position and the opportunity to advance. The rulership of Satan and the old sin nature are broken as status quo in the life of the believer because of current positional truth.
  - c. When God takes away the old by retroactive positional truth, He substitutes in the new, which is current positional truth; this is the equivalent of positional sanctification. We are set apart unto Christ.
  - d. We are positioned now to live the spiritual life. The two together are positional truth.
- 8. Positional sanctification qualifies the believer to live forever with God.
- 9. Positional sanctification separates us from the judgment that this world lives under. This forms the royal family of God and creates a new spiritual species.
- 10. Positional sanctification separates us from the judgment to come.
- 11. Positional sanctification puts us in a position to utilize the equal opportunity to utilize the assets give us by God and to execute the plan of God in time.
- 12. Positional sanctification belongs to all believers, winners or losers experientially; we cannot lose it. 1Cor. 1:2, 30
- 13. Positional sanctification has nothing to do with your experience as a believer. It is not the same as spiritual advance. It is simply a status which God gives us at salvation.
- 14. This is the guarantee of being separated from eternal judgment of all unbelievers when they are cast into the Lake of Fire.
- 15. The believer is separated by...mechanics to be given Sunday AM.

1Cor. 1:2

Sunday Morning 1st Service #7

August 1, 2004

Review, which is inserted in previous lessons.

Positional Sanctification

15. How is this done? What are the mechanics?

- a. At the moment of salvation, you are baptized by the Holy Spirit and put into union with Christ.
- b. At the moment that you are put into union with Christ, we share all that He is and all that He has.
- c. We share His perfection. This does not mean that we are sinless. His +R is imputed to us simply because we believed in Jesus Christ. 2Cor. 5:21
- d. We share His eternal life immediately, which is the guarantee of our eternal life. Advancement in the spiritual life has nothing to do with this.
- e. We share His election; we are called to privilege. Eph. 1:4
- f. The Corinthians and we share the destiny of Jesus Christ. John 1:12 Eph. 1:5
- g. Since we share His destiny, we are heirs of Christ. He left a will and we are in it. In order to be a recipient of things in a will, the person who gives it to us must die. Rom. 8:16–17
- h. We share His kingdom. We will rule with Him in the Millennium. 2Peter 1:11.
- i. We share His priesthood. He was appointed as a royal High Priest as a part of the priesthood of Melchizedek.
- j. Levitical priesthood came by birth; ours comes by the new birth and each one of us are priests. In Israel, only a few were priests, and everyone had to go through the priests; we represent ourselves. We have more than the average Old Testament believer, as we share the priesthood of Christ. Heb. 10:10–14.

16. Summary; characteristics of positional sanctification:

- a. You never experience positional sanctification; it is the status quo of every believer. It is just there; you don't feel it, you don't experience it; it is just there. As are all of the 39 irrevocable absolutes.
- b. Positional sanctification is not progressive and it cannot be improved upon.
- c. Do not forget that your positional sanctification does not relate to human merit. Not in any way.
- d. We are not positionally sanctified by what we do, but only because we have believed in Christ.
- e. God the Holy Spirit did the work which sanctified us in Jesus Christ. He did the work through the baptism of the Holy Spirit. Holy Spirit baptism, positional sanctification, and justification are all related.
- f. Too many people mean that sanctified means that these are better people. And therefore, many think that when you believe in Christ, you become a better person. This is Catholic theology. They do not understand the difference between a status and an experience. So few people understand this. This does not mean you are experientially a better person immediately and automatically. We are simply identified with Christ. This word hagiazô should really jolt this people. No matter how good or bad you are, you are positionally sanctified.

- g. Justification and positional sanctification are both conditions at salvation, and not experiential.
  - h. We are positionally sanctified just like the Corinthian believers. Paul reminds them of this. They have the potential to advance.
17. Positional sanctification is given at the baptism of the Holy Spirit.
  18. Positional sanctification is eternal and it cannot be changed by any person or any angel.

1Cor. 1:2

Sunday Morning 2nd Service #8

August 1, 2004

1Cor. 1:2b ...called saints, with all those calling upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in every place--both theirs and ours.

Klêtos hagios = called to be saints, and both are in the dative case. Election is what we are looking here. Election is based upon the sovereign will of God. Equal opportunity and equal privilege. It is talking about the believer. The sovereignty of God willed the highest and best for every believer.

Hyper-Calvinism/Election

1. It is not a call for a few to be believers and for all others to be condemned.
2. This is Calvinism taken to extreme lengths. This is not how Calvin thought.
3. Electing a few people would be a choice of God, regardless of volition—this is a mistaken notion about election. If this is true, then God simply chose us to be a believer and others to be condemned.
4. That negates the free will of man. We have no real choice here. We will either be saved or not, but it is not our choice.
5. God's sovereignty is the only determining factor when this understanding is held. We should feel fortunate that God chose us and too bad for the other poor fools.
6. The sovereignty of God elects us to privilege. Election properly is applied only to the believer.
7. The book of Esther teaches us the importance of free will and the sovereignty of God and how they coexisted. In spite of our free will, Jesus Christ still controls history.
8. Now we are dealing with the importance of free will in salvation.
9. Without free will, believing in Christ would simply be a formality, a foregone conclusion. When we finally to believe, it is simply a formality. God did foresee that we would make that decision and He elected us to privilege based upon His foreknowledge.
10. If God elected us to be saved (which is wrong), then the outcome would have been decided by His sovereignty alone. Our belief is not enough to save us; but the work of God the Holy Spirit to place us in Christ, and what Jesus Christ did on the cross. Christ did the work and the Holy Spirit places us in Him.

11. Election does not mean that God simply chose us in advance to be elected.

1Cor. 1:2c ...with all those...

Called with all to be saints is how this next portion should be rendered. Paul is not making this epistle Catholic (which means universal). Paul is speaking specifically to the Corinthians, and this reminds them that they are united with all believers throughout the world. They are thinking divisiveness and Paul is teaching them union. These Greeks loved to debate, to argue theological issues. These people must recall that they are just as much believers as anyone else in the world. This epistle is for each one of us today.

1Cor. 1:2d ...calling upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in every place--both theirs and ours.

Calling on the name of Jesus Christ is a stock phrase for worship. This phrase was used over and over again in the LXX. This phrase was used many times for the worship of YHWH. Paul uses this same phrase that he found in the Septuagint. We are all believers in Jesus Christ. We are all justified, we are all in union with Christ. Their problem is internal unity. Paul addresses this problem immediately.

Calling on the name, which is a different use of kaleô. It is to the believer's advantage to look to the Lord for help and to call upon His name. We would think prayer when we read this, but the idiomatic phrase here is to use the doctrine in our souls for worship.

1Cor. 1:2e ...calling upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in every place--both theirs and ours.

αὐτῶν<sup>846</sup> τε<sup>5037</sup> καὶ<sup>2532</sup> ἡμῶν<sup>2257</sup> why should this church be so divided if we worship the same God and hear the same doctrine. There is nothing more polar than human viewpoint infesting a church. In order to divide a church, you simply move away from doctrine.

August 4, 2004

Bobby is ahead of us, luckily, in his study. It was difficult for Paul to know where to start with the people in Corinth. There is no rebound; so how can they not be divided? They have splintered into factions, which can be found in any church in the world. This is true in churches and all Christian organizations.

Through the grace given to me, no man should think more highly of himself than he ought to think. You should have sound judgment (Rom. ).

What is Paul Reminding these Corinthians

1. They must look to grace solutions. This is what Paul is reminding them of.

2. The Corinthians need to realize that God's grace towards them (salvation, spiritual life and eternity) transcends their squabbles and scandals.
3. Graciousness is the opposite of fractiousness.
4. Review your own perspective on life. We are part of a congregation that can go south in a minute. We must have sound judgment from doctrine and grace orientation.

What is our focus? What drives us? What motivates us? Are we driven by self-pity, anger, greed? The Corinthians will find that these sins are driving the church. They are not moved by grace motivation. We are constantly exposed to human viewpoint. The people you see, you work with, that you are friends with, that you must deal with—we are bombarded by human viewpoint constantly. Grace orientation always includes humility. And the realization and application that we will receive the constant consideration, equity and care of the supreme court of heaven. This is no matter what the situation is. This is the consideration of God Himself, and this is with no exceptions. Grace orientation is the individual answer to a divided soul in turmoil. We have a hard time choosing between human viewpoint and divine viewpoint. It depends upon the hour of the day and the circumstances as to which one you are using. Our soul, which is not divided, is the key to a divided soul. When we focus on God's grace to us, and not on the situation and not on our failures or the sins of others, we find a whole different perspective of life. The rest of the world has no clue about grace. If you cannot apply it, you are in human viewpoint. God provides everything for us; the opportunities and your talents, etc. Otherwise, you go straight into human viewpoint. Human viewpoint increases exponentially. We are the solution to divisiveness in the church. This is the answer.

1Cor. 1:3a Grace be to you, and peace....

Charis and eirênê. Grace is the source and peace is the result. Each person has that responsibility. Paul's standard greeting is grace and peace. This has a great and profound effect. His greetings are packed with doctrine. He says more in his salutations than most of us say in our lives. This is genius.

1Cor. 1:3b ...from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

You don't find undue familiarity with Jesus Christ in the Bible. They never called Him just Jesus. They referred to Him with His title. Never in direct address; only when used in the third person, e.g., Jesus wept; etc. The Apostles all had respect for our Lord Jesus. We should never forget what we owe Him by respect. No one should speak to others in witnessing and just call Him Jesus. Witnessing reveals to someone Who He is and what He has done. This shows respect. This is according to the pattern that we find in the New Testament.

Paul is dealing with people who have no respect for anything other than their own opinions.

The Holy Spirit glorifies Jesus Christ. What follows is Paul's thanksgiving.

1Cor. 1:4a I thank my God always on your behalf..,

Considering the problems of the Corinthian church, it is amazing that Paul thanks God for this church. Present active indicative of eucharasteo. The root of this is Eucharist. Pontote = all, always. There is no break in Paul's thanksgiving. He thanks God for them habitually. But Paul is not thankful for the Corinthians, but he is thankful on their behalf.

Paul's Focus

1. His focus is on God, not about the Corinthians.
2. He is not thinking about divisiveness or divisive people.
3. God is the object of all true thanks giving. With people, you may feel thankful, but you will eventually change your mind.
4. People can be objects of thanksgiving, but not with the consistency found here. This includes the closest relationships. Somehow, we always manage to make ourselves less than objects of thanksgiving.

1Cor. 1:4 ...for the grace of God given you in Jesus Christ,...

Problems with Eyes on People:

1. Eyes on people always precludes us from being occupied with Christ.
2. When your eyes are on people, you feel envy, bitterness, despair, inordinate ambition and competition, etc.
3. Ultimately, even the best and most promising relationships will disappoint you. When it happens, you will react in one of those eyes on people ways. When you are disappointed, get down, out of fellowship, these things will happen. These things did not get Paul down. His focus was on God, not on the Corinthians. Half of us were probably in a fight before we got here.
4. So instead of getting your eyes on people, concentrate on doctrine and how it relates to you. Concentrate on doctrine and how it relates to you. This is where thanksgiving comes from.
5. Then regardless of the relationship, no matter how bad it is, you will be at peace, which is what Paul has recommended to the Corinthians. Grace orientation leads to peace. When the Corinthians look at each other, they get out of fellowship.
6. When our eyes are off God, we will fail people testing (or circumstance testing). Paul can be thankful for what God has done for the Corinthians, not for what they are doing to one another.

Dative singular, aorist active participle of didime, which means to give. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb.

Paul's Thanksgiving

1. Grace and grace orientation always precedes thanksgiving.

2. Thanksgiving results in praise for grace.
3. This is associated with positional truth: retroactive and current positional truth.
4. That makes it nonmeritorious.

1Cor. 1:5a ...that in everything you are enriched by Him;...

In What are They and We Enriched?

1. This is an abundance of spiritual wealth.
2. The Corinthians were greatly blessed as a local church in many, many ways. Spectacular spiritual gifts.
3. So Paul then uses two words to describe their wealth. En closely connects speech and knowledge. This is doctrine. The Corinthians had been richly endowed with divine truth.

Hoti is epexegetical. This refers backward to the last part of v. 4 as well as ahead to the rest of v. 5. Christ is Lord is an example. Christ = Lord is what that means. Hoti clarifies a previous word or phrase. Here, we have thanksgiving for spiritual wealth. The grace of God is further described.

Aorist passive indicative of Pluteô. Constativ aorist, which is the basic understanding of the Aorist. A total event which has already taken place, although the author is unconcerned with the beginning or ending of the event. This event has happened, regardless of when it began or ended. We are enriched by His grace.

1Cor. 1:5

Lesson #10

August 5, 2004

Mueller is talking after church tonite.

1Cor. 1:5b ...in all speech and in all knowledge;...

This is how the Corinthians are enriched: in speech and in knowledge. These words are very closely connected. This represents the two gracious things in Christ by which they are enriched. Speech is the noun logos (λογος). In John 1, Jesus Christ is the Word. Logos should be understood as doctrine in this verse. There was no Bible when Paul wrote, apart from the Old Testament. This information was only communicated by speech; there was no other way for them to get doctrine, apart from an occasional epistle. At this point in time, they probably had no epistles to work from. Then we have gnôsis (γνώσις).

Γνώσις

1. Γνᾶσις is not just knowledge but a clear comprehension of knowledge in the left lobe.

2. These Corinthians had a clear understanding of the doctrines which they had been taught. They had no excuse. They understood. They had a clear and concise look at the doctrine which Paul taught.
3. However, this information was only γνώσις. It was only academic. They heard it, they took it in, they may have taken notes. But they did not believe it.
4. It was not being applied in their lives, as Paul will make totally clear. No application; it is just γνώσις. Bobby can only teach knowledge. He cannot teach ἐπίγνωσις. They understood, but they did not apply it. We need to be able to apply it to the circumstances of our lives. We can hear it over and over, but it doesn't work unless we believe and apply it. This leads us to realize that doctrine in and of itself cannot solve our problems.

Doctrine in and of Itself Does not Solve our Problems

1. Doctrine is information. It is our source of spiritual growth; it is the path of our understanding, and it is the resource that you use to cover that plan. Doctrine is everything.
2. Doctrine reveals the heart and soul of the spiritual life. Without doctrine, we have no clue as to what the spiritual life is and how to solve our problems.
3. Knowledge of doctrine in and of itself does not translate into a spiritual life. If it is not used, then it cannot solve problems.
4. Spiritual growth, a thriving spiritual life and application of doctrine to the circumstances of life all come from faith and confidence in the truth. Faith is metabolizing doctrine and confidence is application of doctrine. God's promises will be fulfilled. Every time we use one aspect, we have confidence that they will work. When you are confident, you then relax. Hard to be confident in anything; people change, circumstances change; but God's truth does not change.

What is Bobby talking about?

1. You must first accept doctrine as truth as the very words of God. These words are written by men, but inspired by God. We must first accept what we have as truth.
2. Some of Berachah say, "I know it is the truth" but there is no relief from your lousy circumstances and no peace in their soul.
3. Believing is not applying. Believing that something is truth is not applying it. Doctrine must be transferred to the right lobe and then it must permeate your thinking. If you don't think it, of course it will not work for you.
4. What is doctrine? Doctrine must be our scale of values. It is what happens when we think it. It must evaluate everything that moves into our consciousness of soul.
5. Applying doctrine boils down to human viewpoint vs. divine viewpoint. Which one to you fall back on during the crisis.
6. It is so easy to allow human viewpoint to creep into our thinking. It is everywhere. The advice you get, tv, movies, whenever you talk to someone. It is always there. You must discriminate, human viewpoint from divine viewpoint.

7. You might block out doctrine because it conflicts with the views or advice of your friends. They can't wait to tell you how to handle everything. This often comes from envious friends who don't have a doctrinal frame of reference. How does their advice line up with doctrine. You can solve your own problems when you have divine viewpoint in your soul.
8. You may rely on the power of positive thinking, which is a common problem in churches because it is taught on so many Christian shows or in some many churches as doctrine.
9. Common sense tells me that... Common sense is okay; it is sad to be ditzy all the time. It is never a real substitute for real divine viewpoint. When you examine something which appears to be common sense, look at it from the perspective of doctrine.
10. We are thinking about doctrine, but then we don't actually use doctrine under pressure.
11. If you don't use it, you will fall back on your old ways of thinking and problem-solving. They were not permanent solutions then and they are not permanent solutions now.
12. Without the application of γνῶσις as ἐπίγνωσις, we will fall prey to the subtleties of human viewpoint every time. They can be subtle. The longer you associate with human viewpoint, the easier it is to allow it to become a part of your life. If you have a relationship with people with no doctrinal scale of values, they will more often bring you to their level than vice versa. You need the compatibility of doctrine in your souls.
13. Anger, bitterness, self pity, arrogance, etc. all open the pipeline to human viewpoint. When these mental attitude sins are there, you are vulnerable to human viewpoint.
14. The more you attach yourself to human viewpoint, especially when it is disguised as doctrine, the more frustrated you will get. The more your emotions revolt when you operate on human viewpoint. You will get frustrated and your emotions will go off like a sky rocket. This is the problem of the Corinthian church; they are completely permeated with human viewpoint.

They had good teaching and they had γνῶσις, but they also had every mental attitude sin known to man. Paul breaks them down into four different factions, and they are all at each other's throats.

1Cor. 1:6 ...even as the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you;...

Marturion = genitive singular testimony, witness. Then we have tou Christou (also in the genitive; objective genitive, which means the noun receive the action. Christ receives the action of the verbal noun. Witness concerning Christ. Aorist passive indicative of bebaioō = firmly established. Aorist is a timeless tense. It represents a point in time; the point of faith alone in Christ alone. The gospel is firmly established in the soul of the believer, at the point of salvation by the action of the Holy Spirit. God was at work when Paul witnessed to the Corinthians.

Mechanics of How they Became Firmly established in Christ

1. They were justified when they believed in Christ. One of the 39. Justification is just one of the them.
2. Then they had justification, so the righteousness of God was imputed to them. This was a necessary condition for being firmly established by faith.
3. Paul is making it clear to them that justification has already happened. Paul wanted them to know that the gospel was firmly established in their soul.
4. Paul wants them to know that they are justified. Therefore, their status in Christ is set once and for all.
5. That means it is firmly established. God Himself cannot revoke this justification. All that is required is faith in Christ. It cannot be revoked.
6. Since they were justified, they would stand before the judgment seat of Christ blameless. These Corinthians were thoroughly to blame for all sorts of things, but Paul tells them that they will stand before Jesus Christ at His judgment seat fully justified. Their responsibility is to grow in grace; not to kill one another.
7. Paul came to Corinth to minister the gospel and doctrine. In telling them this, he has firmly established that these Corinthians are saved. He needs to start from this position.

V. 7 offers further evidence of their being firmly in Christ.

1Cor. 1:7 ...so that you come behind in no gift, waiting for the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Hosti = everything that follows is a result of Christ being firmly established in them. Charismatic = gift. They were received at salvation. The Corinthians can be assured of their absolute position in Christ. You are approved by God, Paul tells them. God does not give spiritual gifts to unbelievers.

Summary

1. Paul confirms that these Corinthians have an abundance of spiritual gifts. This means they are saved.
2. If they were not saved, they would not have a spiritual gift or any sort.
3. These Corinthians have definitely believed, and they began to grow a little, but things began to happen. They got a lot of human viewpoint. Judaizers; legalists came in; then the lascivious crowd came in. Pretty soon, there were all sorts of factions based on human viewpoint. The Corinthians did begin to use their spiritual gifts. Their gifts were substituted for the spiritual life. We got a lot of these things; look at what we can do. They were caught up in the spectacular.

The gifts found here are not those which we have today for the most part.

George and Erica Mueller — missionary in Africa

His Work in Africa and Europe is not finished yet. Many hungry believers. Began 40 years as missionaries ago at Berachah. The struggle on this earth is against the powers of this dark world. We are responsible to keep Christianity from being a religion.

The less Moslems know about their religion, the better for them. A Moslem tried to sell life insurance to Mueller. He prayed daily to be accepted by God. He used sex to get closer to Allah. It is a Satanic program to prey on our lusts. The Moslems in the planes on 9-11 have gone straight to hell, no virgins waiting, and it is too hot to have sex.

Sept. 11, 1663 the Muslims were beaten in Germany. Another victory a few years later on the same date. 1600 A.D. is when Moslem began. When Moslems won in 1600 A.D., they beheaded 600 Jews. They took children and women as slaves. Islam does not mean peace; it means submission to this dark religion.

This Satanic religion continues to kill Christians in Africa and Jews in the Middle East. Reagan dropped a bomb to stop Kadafy.

They learned anti-Semitic songs in Germany in 1942. Prayer was answered on D-Day. Mueller thanked Robert O'Neil for liberating him. He said it was the first time he had been asked.

During Hitler, the quality of the Christian churches. Some could be manipulated by Hitler; the Lutheran and the Roman Catholic. When there was an attempt on Hitler's life, he got a telegram praising that he was not killed from a Baptism organization.

There were some believers that Hitler could not control. He tried to set them up for the gas chambers. Americans are not always welcome in Germany today.

John Emory and Peter Mueller started something in Germany a year ago. John recently went to Kuwait and Peter to Afghanistan. He encourages us to pray for these.

March 11, 2004 a meeting, the same day that the Muslims attacked Spain. Encouragement from Romania, Baltic Russian, etc. Positive volition changes in history. Every missionary needs a pastor teacher so that they use the right weapons for their warfare.

His son is leaving soon with a large container which will be taken to Africa.

There can be no correct thinking unless there is correct information.

He began in America in 1964. It was proposed that he sign a blank sheet of paper and let him fill in the details. He changed his German passport for an American one; and then got introduced to Berachah church. Returned to Germany in 1965. A whole load of Bibles and such when they entered the middle east. Not allowed to cross Sudan territory. Stayed in Libya at that time. North African missions open at that time. There was an American air force base at that time, and that was a center for missionary activity. Apparently, it was removed and Kadafy took it over.

1Cor. 1:7

First Session #11

August 8, 2004

Communion Sunday. First 6 verses reviewed. These people were carnal and they had divided into factions and they wondered who's particular brand of apostasy would rule this local church. In v. 6, they will become firmly entrenched in the gospel.

The Corinthians and Justification

1. When the Corinthians believed in Christ, they were justified.
2. They had the imputation of God's righteousness, which was a necessary condition for being firmly established in the gospel.
3. Paul is making it very clear to them that their justification had already happened.
4. Paul is reminding them that they are justified in the Lord.
5. It is firmly established and it cannot be revoked.
6. Since they were justified, then would then stand before the judgment seat of Christ blameless. This should strike a cord with these people. "We are going to stand before God blameless, because God declared us righteous." Your responsibility before the Lord to advance; not to fight and argue and impose your will on everyone else.

1Cor. 1:7 ...so that you come behind in no gift, waiting for the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Paul confirms that these Corinthians had an abundance of spiritual gifts, which is further evidence that they are saved. However, none of their gifts were in proper use, as they were out of fellowship.

The factions had been formed already in this church and the line had been drawn in the sand. They were now glorifying these spectacular spiritual gifts. They were so enamored of these gifts that they began to desire these showy gifts. They had lost sight of what spirituality was all about. They needed to keep these gifts subordinate to their spiritual growth.

Miraculous gifts:

1. Tongues, interpretations of tongues, miracles, prophecies, healing.

2. People believed that these gifts needed to be more in evidence in the church. This is proof to them of a great spiritual life. They were connecting their miraculous spiritual gift with service to the Lord.
3. Growing in grace and knowledge is the impetus for service to Christ. This is true of any gift. It is utilized for service.
4. The sad part for the Corinthians is that these gifts are no longer necessary in the post canon period of the Church Age.
5. Spiritual gifts, whether spectacular or not, were and are never the key to the spiritual life. Some cannot wait to figure out what their gift is so they can know what they will be doing. Your spiritual gift will operate whether you know what it is or not, as long as you advance.
6. One may be gifted with a great spiritual gift, but be carnal. You could have a spectacular spiritual gift; however, without those are worthless apart from spiritual advance. The Corinthians are a great example of those with fantastic gifts, but they are not really used.

The Doctrine of Spiritual Gifts

1. Spiritual gifts are talents, ability or aptitude, sovereignly bestowed upon every believer in the Church Age for the purpose of performing a particular service in the body of Christ. Every believer has a spiritual gift. Rom. 12:6–8 1Cor. 12 Eph. 4:11 Heb. 2:4. This is not a natural ability, e.g., sports, business acumen, etc. There may be a relation between them.

1Cor. 1:7

Second Session #12

August 8, 2004

The Doctrine of Spiritual Gifts con't

2. The Greek noun is charisma (Χαρισμα) are based upon the grace of God.
  - a. All spiritual gifts are a matter of grace and they are never earned or deserved.
  - b. No gift is given based upon God's foreknowledge of the merits of a believer. That is, even though God knows how far you would advance in the spiritual life, He does not give a gift appropriate to that advance.
  - c. Spiritual gifts are not developed through any form of emotional experience. They are not developed in the first place,
  - d. Charisma is primarily a Pauline expression. Only he uses this expression. 1Peter 4:10 is the only other place we find this. 1Cor. is where this is mostly addressed.
3. Jesus Christ made the first distribution of spiritual gifts and it took place at the moment of His ascension. Eph. 4:7–8
4. Heb. 2:4 1Cor. 12:11 this is the Holy Spirit's job now.
5. Our gift is based upon the wisdom of the Holy Spirit. He gives this gift because He is eternally wise.

- a. The Holy Spirit does not give more visible gifts (pastor-teacher or evangelist) in anticipation that one believer will be more spiritual than another or more mature.
  - b. A man may be given the gift of pastor teacher or evangelist and fail miserably in the spiritual life and never operate under this spiritual gift. The person with this gift has double the responsibility to advance.
  - c. The Holy Spirit does not give more invisible gifts because He knows you won't turn out to be much anyway. They are not lesser gifts.
  - d. The Holy Spirit does not play favorites. He gives gifts commensurate with your aptitude and abilities. He probably takes into account our innate abilities.
  - e. Don't ever object to your own gift.
6. All spiritual gifts depend upon two factors for their function: the filling of the Holy Spirit, which is the power to function and the intake of Bible doctrine, which is the momentum of spiritual growth. The further you advance, the more effective your gift is.
  7. Spiritual gifts are not earned or deserved. They are a product of grace. They are not acquired through begging or pleading with God the Holy Spirit. God will not change your gift in midstream.
  8. You identify your spiritual gift as you continue to advance. Even those who advance to spiritual maturity may never fully identify your spiritual gift. You may be partially certain or partially uncertain. The advancing believer will advance under his gift.
  9. Every believer has equal privilege and opportunity in the spiritual life; but there are distinctions between believers. Some are feet and some are hands. Spiritual growth stage is a distinction and the gift we have is a difference.
    - a. God the Holy Spirit has decided to give different spiritual gifts to different people.
    - b. Some differences in modus operandi exist in the body of Christ. Different functions are assigned to different portions of the body. They all function together.
    - c. The gift you have does not make you inferior to superior to another.
  10. Spiritual gifts only function inside the friendly confines of the spiritual life. You cannot function outside this realm.
    - a. You won't use your spiritual gift by accident; it will only be the enabling power of the Holy Spirit and spiritual growth.
    - b. This is totally apart from emotion.
    - c. As you gain momentum from doctrine, your spiritual gift will function.
    - d. You will find yourself as you continue to advance finding yourself in activities where your spiritual gift functions.
    - e. Don't be afraid to take up an opportunity to serve in some capacity. You may find you are gifted in that area. You may have a gift of teaching.
    - f. You may find out that you have no ability or gift in this area, and you move on to other areas. Your spiritual gift may function wherever you are in life.

You can pray anywhere and that could be your gift. You could do this at anytime and for any length of time. There are various ways that your spiritual gift may function.

- g. Your gift falls within the realm of your capacities. If you have the gift of pastor teacher, but you have no aptitude for studying and teaching, then forget it—you do not have that gift.
11. Spiritual gifts are the Father's witness to the saving work of Jesus Christ and to the strategic victory of our Lord in the angelic conflict.
- a. As you know, Jesus Christ bestowed the first gifts to believers after the cross and at His ascension, when the disciples became Apostles.
  - b. Church was initiated by the Holy Spirit.
  - c. Today, the Holy Spirit bestows gifts to us which reflect Christ's past victory and continue the function of the body, and provide a means of serving Him in the rebuttal phase of the angelic conflict.
12. Two categories of spiritual gifts: temporary and permanent.
- a. Permanent spiritual gifts function from the completion of the canon of Scripture until the rapture of the church (96 A.D. to whenever).
  - b. Temporary spiritual gifts only functioned during the pre-canon period. This is between the ascension of Christ to 96 A.D. During that time, these temporary gifts began to disappear. They progressively disappeared. Paul had the gift of healing, but he could not fix Epaphroditus.
  - c. On the day that the Church Age began, there was no New Testament. There was nothing; not even the gospels had been written. It needed to be in writing; this is the only way we know anything.
  - d. The temporary spiritual gifts were used to fill in the gap of Church Age doctrine.
  - e. But only until the New Testament canon was complete and circulated.
  - f. Temporary spiritual gifts were designed to function before the completion of the canon of Scripture; they took of the slack for the lack of the use of the Bible.
  - g. Permanent spiritual gifts exist throughout the Church Age.
13. Spectacular gifts did not imply spiritual growth, superior Christian experience or spiritual greatness. The Corinthians did have these gifts, but they functioned improperly in the Corinth church.
14. The team concept: every team has certain positions and certain functions, so the body of Christ has certain spiritual gifts and every gift is a part of the advance of the team. When the line blocks and the quarterback passes, and the tight end receives the ball, this is an illustration of a team working together. No one in Corinth functioned as a team. Spiritual gifts must work together as a team.
15. The abuse of spiritual gifts:
- a. The attempts to perpetuate pre-canon gifts into the post canon period. This is found throughout the world. One of the greatest problems are charismatics. After the gospel, if they have that straight, then everything else is screwed up.

- b. There is also a problem of arrogance or inferiority. Some worry that no one sees their gift operate and they don't receive any praise. Don't feel inferior if no one compliments you on your gift.
- c. Occupational hazard in the ministry: the evangelist, pastor-teacher or missionary become arrogant.
- d. Others feel that they are in a state of inferiority, thinking because their spiritual gift is not obvious that they are second class believers. They are neck deep in most of these abuses at Corinth. Yet, these Corinthians are blessed with incredible spiritual gifts.

Lesson #13

August 11, 2004

A column by Ben Stein that Bobby got an email about. He watches "Win Ben Stein's Money." Ben has written an online column twice a week. He writes about Morton's, a steak house or some such. He is no longer impressed with movie stars. Real stars aren't riding around in limousines, etc. They can be interesting, nice people. He names a few soldiers in Iraq. One soldier who threw himself on a bomb to save an Iraqi girl. God is real and not fiction and when we turn ourselves over to Him, he takes better care of our lives than we do.

What the Corinthians Needed to Know

1. These believers at the church in Corinth need to know that they are saved.
2. They need to know that they are righteous before the supreme court of heaven.
3. As justified and as believers, they needed to remember what their purpose is here on earth.
4. If they can recall their purpose, then they can learn to live their lives as unto the Lord.
5. Instead of each faction competing to be dominant in the church, they must grow spiritually and be unified in the body of Christ.

If you are growing spiritually, then it does not matter what your gift is. It will come to you; you will get it or you will use it.

Paul's Points to the Corinthians

1. Paul states that these Christians have a large number of spiritual gifts. Paul could say they were firmly established as believers in Christ. So he is continuing his same approach; he is convincing them that they are saved.
2. They have spiritual gifts; therefore, they are saved.
3. You do possess gifts in abundance, so you are firmly established in Christ.

4. They were definitely believers and they had begun to grow spiritually. That is your purpose on earth.
5. It did not take long for these Corinthians to get off track.
6. They needed to return to doctrine and get with the plan of God as individuals and corporately as a church.
7. But, instead, the Corinthians emphasized and glorified spiritual gifts and substituting the function of those gifts for their spiritual life. It is spiritual growth and then the function of spiritual gifts, not vice versa (which was their approach).
8. They were so preoccupied with themselves, that they were vying for the most gifts per faction.
9. Their eyes left occupation with Christ and their eyes on themselves.
10. They needed to keep the gift subordinate to spiritual growth and occupation with Jesus Christ.

1Cor. 1:7 so that you come behind in no gift, waiting for the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Present active participle of apekdexomai and it means expectant anticipation of something. They are waiting for apokalupsis, which means revelation. Revelation of God's word is not in view here. The revelation of Christ Himself; and that is a strong possibility. Realize what apokalupsis is in context. There is an eschatological sense. It is used seven times in the New Testament for the return of Jesus Christ. This is the revealing of Jesus Christ in an eschatological sense. It refers to the revelation of our Lord, which is His appearance in all of His glory in the rapture or the exit resurrection. We are waiting with anticipation for a future event. We are waiting for this future event. We don't do it by selling our property and waiting for it to happen; we don't do it by guessing the date of His return. None of this is living the proper Spiritual life.

How Does One Prepare for the Return of Jesus Christ

1. Expressing divine viewpoint from your soul.
2. This means you look at life in light of the return of Jesus Christ.
3. The return of Christ should always be a source of encouragement. This is only for the believer who understands his ultimate destiny in God's plan.
4. We have an incredible inheritance in Christ. We expect this inheritance.
5. This should always be a great source of confidence in our future. This description is continued in v. 8.

1Cor. 1:8a He shall also confirm [or, warrant] you...

We begin v. 8 with a relative pronoun; but it is not clear who the antecedent is...Jesus Christ or God. The nearest noun is Jesus Christ. Many churches today have a confirmation rite. The Greek verb is the future active indicative of bebaioō = firmly established; warrant, guarantee. This completes the thought of v. 6.

Warrant has judicial implications here, which makes warrant more apropos.

The Day of our Lord refers to the future rapture (which is in view here). It can refer to any part of the II Advent. Our stand in front of the bama seat. This warrant of Christ assures us that we will stand blameless before Him. We will not be charged as we stand there. To not arraign goes along with our judicial theme. The verb and its direct object. Warranted guaranteed not to be arraigned. Anaklêtos is a word of encouragement to those in Corinth.

Words of Encouragement for Us

1. When we stand before Jesus Christ, we will not have to answer for each and every one of our sins.
2. We can only be found innocent; not guilty.
3. We are innocent because our sins have already been paid for. Salvation is not at risk.
4. V. 6 tells us that the gospel was firmly established in the soul of the believer at the point of salvation.
5. The Corinthian believers are justified, just as we are.
6. As justified, our status in Christ is assured.
7. We will be evaluated based upon our works or deeds that we have accomplished.

We won't be judged for our sins, but we will be rewarded for what he have done in the flesh. We are evaluated based upon divine good.

1Cor. 1:8b ...to the end, that you may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The Corinthians are Guaranteed to be at the Judgment Seat of Christ

1. Some of the Corinthians do not care one way or the other, even though Paul assures them that they will all be there on the Day of the Lord. His immutability guarantees that he will not change it. He cannot change it.
2. Paul states with no equivocation that he has no doubt that those who believe in Christ will appear in heaven.
3. These people are kept by the power of God; ready to be revealed at the bama seat of Christ.
4. This is one of the greatest reasons for security. All of this is positional.

1Cor. 1:9 God is faithful, by whom you were called to the fellowship of His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

Ho theos begins this verse. It refers to God the Father. Pistos, which means faithful. He tells them that they are in union with Christ. Therefore, since they share all that He has, God will keep them until the end. Paul's reason for confidence: their position in Christ. He is not confident that the Corinthians are growing. He is confident simply because they were called. This is God's promise to the called; that they will be justified at salvation and ultimately glorified in heaven.

Aorist active indicative of kaleô, which means to call. An ingressive aorist, concentrating on the beginning of the action. It is a whole situation, but it is being focused on in the beginning. Once called, always called. The subject receives the action of being called. The only one who can be called is the believer.

Doctrine of Election

1. Election is the expression of the sovereign will of God in eternity past before the universe existed and before man lived on this earth.
2. Election puts a stamp of approval upon what God has decreed. Election, Divine Decrees, being called—all of these come into play.
3. Election is the plan of God for believers (Eph. 1:4).
4. God elected ro called believers, knowing that they would freely choose to believe in Christ.
  - a. God knew ahead of time, if given free will, that we would choose to believe in Christ.
  - b. They God decreed that call would take place. It confirms what we have decided will happen.
  - c. God agreed that no only would our positive volition would occur at a certain point but that all the blessings of salvation would be our possession.
5. Election, or to be called means the sovereignty of God wills the highest and best for us all.
6. The called are selected for privilege. Because God knew we would believe, he selected us for privilege; because He knew when faced with the gospel, we would believe.
7. As called, we have equal privilege and equal opportunity to live the spiritual life.
8. Being called does not mean that we were selected to be a believer, and others would not be selected to not believe. God does not decide that we would not believe.

1Cor. 1:9

Lesson #14

August 12, 2004

Bobby got an envelope with the last will and testament of Uncle Fritz (Bobby's great uncle Fritz). It is a clear presentation of the gospel and encouragement to study 1Corinthians.

Paul guarantees their ultimate sanctification and he writes to insure that they will remember. They were justified at the moment of salvation and share the righteousness of Christ. They cannot be judged for any of their sins, as Christ died for those sins. Paul is confident simply because the Corinthians are called. To whom much is given, much is expected. They were given innumerable spiritual gifts. Paul will cite God's promise that the Corinthians have been called. They are told the beginning, when they believed in Christ; and they have been told the end, when they stand before the judgement seat of Christ. What happens in the middle still has to be addressed.

Doctrine of Election—Revised

1. Election is the expression of the sovereign will of God in eternity past before the universe existed and before man lived on this earth before anything existed; the sovereign will of God elected us. This is when and how we were called; in eternity past; how: by the sovereignty of God.
2. Election puts a stamp of approval upon what God has decreed. Election, Divine Decrees, being called—all of these come into play. God decreed our calling.
3. We are called to salvation and into the plan of God as believers. Election is the plan of God for believers (Eph. 1:4).
4. God elected or called believers, knowing that they would freely choose to believe in Christ. This is done knowing that we have free will and that we would choose Him in a moment of time.
5. God decreed that a call would take place. He does not leave out our free will.
6. Not only would the positive volition would occur, but then, for those who believe, all the blessings of salvation would be their possession.
7. What is the call?
  - a. The call is the gospel of Jesus Christ.
  - b. Then, when you hear the gospel, the Holy Spirit makes the gospel comprehensible to you. You cannot understand spiritual phenomena without the Holy Spirit making it real to you.
  - c. Positive volition accepts the gospel or believes the gospel. It is not our volition which makes it efficacious for salvation; it is the Holy Spirit which places us into Christ. God makes our volition effective. Our free choice in and of itself means nothing. It is non meritorious.
  - d. We are in a state of union with Christ by God the Holy Spirit.
  - e. We have then been selected for equal privilege and equal opportunity.
  - f. Being called or elected does not mean that we were selected to be a believer regardless of our volition. Some believers believe that positive volition occurs only because God elected us; and He elected others for damnation. It is backwards and it negates free will.
  - g. We are elected or called because God knew before hand that given the opportunity to hear the gospel, positive volition would be expressed. He allowed it also to be truly free. Positive volition is integral to the call. God did not elect us making us believe in Him. Election deals only with believers. If we are elected in eternity past, this means He foresaw our free will.
8. Election, or to be called means the sovereignty of God wills the highest and best for us all.
9. The called are selected for privilege. Because God knew we would believe, he selected us for privilege; because He knew when faced with the gospel, we would believe.

10. As called, we have equal privilege and equal opportunity to live the spiritual life.
11. Being called does not mean that we were selected to be a believer, and others would not be selected to not believe. God does not decide that we would not believe.

1Cor. 1:9 God is faithful, by whom you were called to the fellowship of His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

Fellowship can refer to fellowship with Christ, which is effected by God the Holy Spirit. Union with Christ means everything. We share everything that He is and everything that He has.

Koinnonia

1. Koinnonia includes sharing His glory in eternity.
2. Because believers share His glory, Paul was assured that even the Corinthians would not perish eternally. They cannot perish because they were destined to share His glory.
3. Paul ends the verse with our Lord; we belong to Him eternally.
4. He is our possessor; He possesses us; He is our sovereign, our king our Creator; and our protector forever.
5. No one can perish who stands in such a relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ.
6. This is the great comfort of eternal security. There is none other like it. Some see marriage, success, money as security; both those things are nothing. Christ is secure.

Paul notes what Paul has done in the past and what He will do in the future. However, Paul leaves out the present. Believers of Corinth cannot enjoy this fellowship with Christ when they are at odds with the others in Corinth. Because they are united in Christ, they need to repair the divisions that exist in the church. They are way deep into carnality and reversionism.

What Will Paul Do About It?

1. Paul challenges them first to grace in rebound.
2. Paul's thanksgiving is a reminder of God's grace to us; he is reminding the Corinthians of the same thing. The Corinthians must realize that Paul is commending God grace to them.
3. Paul has given thanks for spiritual wealth, for spiritual gifts, for positional sanctification; and for the divine faithfulness of God.
4. As Paul reviews God's grace, his challenge to them is to use it. God has given you grace in your salvation. He has supplied them with everything that they needed in the spiritual life.

Paul will now take a different approach. He is going to talk about the divisions in the church at Corinth. He exhorts them by the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. They haven't agreed on anything. He has finished his pleasantries and is now getting into the body of his letter. These Corinthians have not followed through on their union within Christ. They are not living out union with Christ.

Men and women have formed denominations in our day; and there are many factions among believers in the form of denominations. These are those who are accepted the true gospel of Christ and the basic tenants of Christianity. They go wrong in the rest of the doctrines of Scripture. There are also many false justifications for these denominations.

Justification for Denominations

1. Each denomination represents a different regiment in war. We are all working for the same spiritual victory.
2. So the justification goes, we have these denominations who chose for themselves what branch of service they are in. This intimates that this is the choice of the Holy Spirit.
3. This does not represent the reality of this situation.
4. It is not ever the Holy Spirit Who divides believers. He is the unifying factor; especially where Biblical theology is compromised. Even today, many denominations have even departed from the gospel.
5. In spite of man's divisions, there remains one body of Christ. No matter how far they get off doctrinally; there is still just one body of Christ. There is the positional unity.
6. The divisions are caused by the failures of believers in Biblical fundamentals. Fundamental doctrines. They depart from Scripture. Therefore, we have schisms and divisions. Many start with the gospel and doctrine being cranked out. But they get astray at some point. In Corinth, there are people ignoring Bible doctrine. This is the problem with denominations today.

Paul is not dealing with denominations here; but in this one local church, there were many divisions and schisms. Paul is appealing to them in a very authoritative way.

Parakalô

1. It is much stronger here than normally found.
2. Paul is using his authority to urge them; not to appeal to them. Urge is just short of a command.
3. Paul will not pull any punches with these guys; he cannot afford to.
4. Paul wants them to change their minds about internal divisiveness. They must change their minds about doctrine.
5. He couches his tremendous authority and concern in a inoffensive approach. Paul is a great leader and he urges them to do something. This factious group will take offense if he tells them what to do.

6. He does not command; he urges them
7. He urges them in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Paul had the authority to do this. They knew he was serious.

1Cor. 1:10a But I urge you, brothers, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ,...

Now we will see what Paul is urging them to do. They are to agree or to say the same thing.

To Speak the Same Thing

1. Speak the same thing is a synonym for unity.
2. Legō means to speak. Present active subjunctive.
3. It is a progressive present; an ongoing state of affairs. This is an ongoing problem.
4. Subjunctive means that this state of affairs is on a potential. They will be united only with spiritual growth.
5. They are unified positionally; now they must live this unity. Paul doesn't want them to mouth the same words; but Paul wants them to express divine viewpoint. They must have the same viewpoint in their souls. It is impossible to express the same spiritual viewpoint without knowledge of doctrine.

How Do we Express the Same Spiritual Viewpoint

1. From thought comes speech.
2. This verse anticipates speech that lacks divine viewpoint. They should be thinking divine viewpoint, and that is how they would speak the same thing.
3. They have no true divine viewpoint, carnality creeps in. Paul's exhortation here is anticipating something here.
4. They talk about one another, which causes them to further split apart. Don't do that, no matter what you see or hear.

1Cor. 1:10

Session 1 Lesson #15

August 15, 2004

1Cor. 1:10b ...that you all speak the same thing...

We have started a new chapter in 1Corinthians. This church is a mess, and Paul will reveal this to them and to us. Paul is finished with the pleasantries, and now he is going to launch into the matters at hand. He is going to exhort the Corinthians. What Paul has dealt with so far is positional truth. He has reassured them that they are believers in Jesus Christ, no matter what else they have done. The Corinthians needed to be reminded. They are unified, but only in the positional sense. They have the basis for their spiritual life and for unity within the church; this is their unity by position. Paul also knows that they have not advanced, and their status is not in step with the time they have been believers. This church is very divided.

Paul makes 3 exhortations for unity in v. 10: we begin with hina, which is an introductory particle. Then he uses the verb parakalô, which means to exhort to urge. Paul is appealing to them in a very authoritative way. There are 3 recommendations that he will make. Paul urges them by the name of Lord Jesus Christ. Paul is being a little tender. He is not going to assert his authority. He is going to approach them from a less authoritative position.

To auto legetês = you all speak the same thing, you all speak in the same way, you all say the same things. Paul is not expecting them to say the exact same thing. They are not to change superficial opinions or to change their vocabularies. He is referring to divine viewpoint in the soul. These Corinthians must be changed from the interior; they need to change to divine viewpoint; so that, from their mouths will come divine wisdom. Paul anticipates sins of the tongue from the Corinthians believers. This is very common in fractious churches.

1Cor. 1:10c ...and that there be no divisions among you;...

Schizmata = cracks, tears, schisms, factions.

Application: What Does It Mean Not to Have Divisions?

1. You may think in one way and I may think in another. This does not disqualify us for being in harmony.
2. If we both possess the mind of Christ, and we think with divine viewpoint, then we are not going to split or fight.
3. We have differences in opinion, but not about important things. Grace is the key. We are unified by positional sanctification.
4. With doctrine, we get along in the fellowship of God's Word. After Paul left, they went in different directions.
5. The Corinthians had not fellowship and they became sneaky little back stabbers of each other.
6. Not only is the fellowship of the Word of God involved here; however, impersonal love is also required.

We are mandated to grow and to have discernment. This is not to judge each other, but to show discernment. What happens when you cannot show discernment? Paul wants that, but it is not happening.

Application: You Fall for Anything if it Seems to have Biblical Backing

1. Without doctrine, you cannot have discernment.
2. You listen to all kinds of teaching without discernment and you back away from a careful study of the Word of God. There are very few out there who carefully handle the Word of God.

3. An example: you can't discern, you will go for a devotional which will carry you for maybe an hour; your spiritual blood sugar crashes.
4. I listen all over and I get a little from everyone. You cannot go everywhere and listen to everyone and get fed.
5. This is a recipe for spiritual disaster.
6. When you fall for those things that seem to have Biblical backing, you will be unable to discern between the truth and falsehood.
7. You have opened up the floodgates for human viewpoint. It is subtle, insidious and it can happen to any one of us.
8. Here is what happens: you become spiritually incoherent. You become a superficial Christian with a superficial vocabulary, but without substance. The devotional is rolling, but it doesn't work.
9. You will be full of contradictions and full of confusion.
10. The result: in a crisis, you will begin to doubt God's care and keeping. You will wonder where is God now; why is He not taking care of me now?
11. This happens because you try to get spiritual nourishment out of sawdust instead of true spiritual food.
12. That sawdust will not carry you in the spiritual doctrine.
13. In short, you have no discernment.

Without discernment, you can listen to 50 televangelists and not be able to tell one from the other with regards to truth.

How Do You Discern?

1. You apply Bible doctrine from your soul.
2. Application of divine viewpoint from your soul.
3. Sometimes these problems cannot be totally solved. There are differences between human beings that cannot be solved. But doctrine has the answer to butting heads. You may not like one another, but you can resolve the friction. If we don't deal with it, God may solve it. You don't want God to solve your problems.
4. So, you get into these situations, then don't drag the rest of the church into these petty differences.
5. When you do this, people choose sides; they like you or the other person. The result is a church split. This happens so often, you cannot imagine. Envy, hypersensitivity. You react and you can't help but talk about them; or you get involved in power lust. Or there is greed. Sometimes, it can be arrogance in general. When these things happen, the result is a church problem in the church or in the church organization. We are unified in the body of Christ.

Don't fix what isn't broken. Arrogant mental attitude sins are present in the Corinthians.

1Cor. 1:10c ...but that you be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment.

Katartizô = to set a broken bone, to repair a faction [political usage]. No more bickering, no more fighting. Having the same divine viewpoint. It is parallel to the same exhortations. The same judgment refers to discernment. No divisiveness; be of the same mind and be complete. He is trying to put it all back together.

1Cor. 1:11 For it has been declared to me concerning you, my brothers, by those of Chloe, that there are contentions among you.

Paul reveals that he knows this by Chloe. She told him about what was going on. Actually, it is from her household. He or she came to Paul. However, Paul listened. Bobby says, if we have an opinion, then put our name to it. If it was simply a person complaining about another person, then Paul would have ignored the report.

We know very little about Chloe, who is very well known to the Corinthians. He was a member there or possibly a part of Paul's ministry in Ephesus, which did business in Corinth.

Nominative plural of eris.

1Cor. 1:10

Session 2 Lesson #16

August 15, 2004

State of Affairs at Corinth

1. There is strong division in the Corinthian church.
2. There are four factions, and he will tell us what is wrong with them.
3. Each party had their favorite teacher. They were focused on the man but not the message. Nothing wrong with having a favorite pastor. Don't get your eyes on the man, but keep it on the message.

1Cor. 1:12a But I say this, that every one of you says, I am of Paul,...

Each faction has its own favorite leader

The Pauline Faction

1. Those who were allied with Paul, the doctrinal party. These were mostly Gentiles. This does not mean that they are the correct party. They fought about everything. This first group places Paul on a pedestal. Paul is the greatest.
2. This group recognizes Paul as a great doctrinal teacher.
3. These people were not metabolizing the doctrine. There was γνῶσις in their left lobe, but they had not believed it. It is not real; it is only information.
4. How do they use it? They arrogant use this doctrine to lord it over another faction. We love doctrine, so we are better than you are.

5. It is sad, because even the bedrock of Christianity, which is doctrine, becomes a means of strife and arrogance in the hands of these reversionists. They are talking the talk, but they are not walking the walk.
6. They are phonies. They are far from divine viewpoint. Doctrine has no meaning for them. It is just a word.
7. They cite the source of their divine viewpoint, in order to justify their lack of doctrine.

Application of the Pauline Party

1. These have placed Paul on a pedestal; they are the doctrinal party; but not as we think of it.
2. They use doctrine to beat up on the other parties.
3. There is no application from their souls; they are misusing that.
4. Even doctrine becomes a means of strife and arrogance in this faction.
5. They cite the source of divine viewpoint (Paul) to cover up the lack in themselves (review points).
6. No one wants to be in the shoes of those who make the very source of the great spiritual life to be a source of strife. This seems to be the worst, but there will be another which is worse.
7. They quote pious phrases of doctrine, but they have little meaning. They blast those they see as being below you. You can quote the phrases but you cannot wait to blast those who are not in your group.
8. Outside the church, these same people castigate others in other churches for their lack of doctrinal teaching.
9. These other churches may lack doctrine; many do not teach doctrine. It is not up to us to straighten them out; we have no right to belittle another church because they don't get doctrine.
10. These are not mature believers, no matter how good they sound. People will say exactly what you want to hear, but they have no real meaning.
11. Beware of the Trojan horse believer. They look and sound good, but is about to let the evil of reversionism spill out of their souls. That is divisive.
12. You who have doctrine understand the means of spiritual growth; others don't. You have no right to blast them for that. You might speak doctrine to them. Do not attack them or their church.
13. You know the means of spiritual growth and the source of the spiritual life; do not use this to stir up strife.

1Cor. 1:12b ...and I of Apollos,...

The Emotional Party

1. Review points: Apollo did not know enough doctrine.
2. A great orator

3. He could captivate his audience. He was spell-binding.
4. He motivated this group. End of this review.
5. Apollos was the first real pastor of Corinth. Paul left him behind to teach them.
6. He was an eloquent orator.
7. There was a problem with him. He was not very well versed in doctrine. He originally only taught the baptism of John, meaning he was behind in his theology. Aquila and Priscilla had to teach him doctrine. Acts 18:25–26.
8. This emotional faction loved a great speaker. They liked someone who was a great orator. He did not stumble; he never got tongue-tied. He could really get his audience going. He was an excellent speaker.
9. Apollos stayed to water what Paul had planted. 1Cor. 3:6. None of them encouraged this sort of fighting. He did not want to be placed on a pedestal. However, he walked out on this church. 1Cor. 16:12. He just wanted to speak.

1Cor. 1:12c ...and I of Cephas,...

The Legalistic Party: the Petrine Party

1. Review: Peter was an emotional type.
2. Peter was an Apostle to the Jews.
3. This made Peter more attractive to the Jews there.
4. Peter had never come to Corinth, but they still attached themselves to him.
5. The Jews here were small in number, so they naturally gravitated to Peter.
6. As a Jew, Peter had a tendency to return to the Mosaic Law; Peter could get off track from time to time.
7. This played into the hands of the legalists, who wanted to blend the Mosaic Law with the Church Age doctrine.
8. The legalist's purpose was to undermine the authority of Paul. They knew Paul well and they didn't like him necessarily. He wrote Christ is the end of the Law in Rom. 10:4.
9. This faction was encouraged by Jewish false teachers who came into Corinth after Paul left. They stirred up criticism of grace; they often showed up after Paul.
10. Therefore, the 3rd faction thought that Peter must somehow be connected to the legalistic faction.
11. Their hero was the Apostle Peter.
12. Why Peter? 2Peter 1:18: I will stir you up
13. Peter was the Apostle to the Jews.
14. He was attractive to those of Jewish origin in the church. There is no evidence that Peter never visited Corinth.
15. His race and place in Christ's early ministry is why he appealed to them.
16. As a Jew, Peter had a tendency to return to the Mosaic Law. He was a great Apostle, but he deferred to Paul as a great man of doctrine.

17. This played into the hands of these legalists, who wanted to inject the Mosaic Law into Church Age doctrine. They wanted a little bit of the Law with their grace.
18. Their purpose was to undermine the authority of Paul and his Apostolic gift; and they wanted to undermine grace. These Judaizers had not quite gotten with the Church Age.
19. This faction was encouraged by false teachers. 1Cor. 11:21–22
20. The third faction thought that Peter must be connected with the legalistic doctrine. When the Judaizers showed up in Corinth, they associated them with Peter.

1Cor. 1:12d ...and I of Christ.

The Holier-than-thou Party

1. They cited their leader as the Lord Jesus Christ.
2. These are the ones who are name droppers. The rest of you are really nothing. You can talk about the Law, and about Paul, but we are the real deal.
3. This faction did anything but follow Christ. They disregarded many of Paul's essential doctrines. To claim it was pure blasphemy.
4. They saw themselves as godly people. They claimed His name as a mantra; they said it over and over. His name had no meaning or substance.
5. They touted themselves as having this special relationship with God.
6. In claiming Christ, they said every other faction as being second rate. They may have even asserted the others were not believers.
7. These were the most independent and least authority-oriented.
8. They would not bend to any Apostolic authority.
9. In the name of Christ, they became laws unto themselves.
10. Anytime they could, they puffed out their chests and injected God's name into their conversation. Total arrogance; calling on the name of Jesus.
11. Here is the real problem: they touted themselves as having some special relationship with Christ that no one else has. "We have it and you don't."
12. Christ belonged to them and not to the followers of others. They had a special relationship. Total arrogance.
13. In making this claim, they put all other factions down as not even Christian.
14. We are the ones following Jesus Christ. You had better get with us.
15. Only they were the holiest of holy people.
16. They were right that following Christ was necessary, but they were wrong in their outlook. It was all lip service and arrogance.
17. They were the most independent group and the least authority-oriented.
18. By citing Christ as their leader, they had to bow to no apostolic authority. They could always claim to defer to Jesus Christ. They forgot there was a body of Christ; they just wanted to claim the name of Christ.
19. They saw no authority over them, as they are of Christ.

20. That is taking the name of Jesus in vain. They were probably Judaizers who were even more legalistic than the Petrine group.

What was Really Going on in the Church?

1. Each faction needed a respectable front for their agendas.
2. This always happens when hidden agendas and less than honorable intentions permeate a group of dissenters. They have to claim something to indicate that they know more and should be in charge.
3. Each of these factions hid their evil behind the names of great Christian leaders. We've been called Thiemites.
4. These leaders in no way sanctioned this strife. These are leaders and teachers who were not there to break the church up into groups.

Paul has an answer for them. He is going to tell them how they stink up their witness for God.

1Corinthians 1:13

Lesson #17

Tuesday August 18, 2004

Bobby talks about those in seminary who meandered around and got coffee, etc. when being taught. Bobby is concerned about those who shuffle and such during the closing prayer.

A review of the factions from v. 12.

Paul has an answer for each of these factions. Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Paul used sarcasm a lot when dealing with these Corinthians. Christ has never been portioned out to any one group.

1Cor. 1:13 Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you, or were you baptized in the name of Paul?

Christ cannot be divided among believers. Paul will stress the unity of being in Christ and being a part of His body. We have no larger portion of being in Christ than anyone else in Christ. Paul was not crucified for them nor were the baptized in Paul's name. The answer is of course not. This is the way Paul reveals the stupidity of their position.

What is Paul Saying?

1. The logical outcome is a human leader supercedes Christ as the head of the church.
2. Paul says, "Why are you following me? I'm not your savior."
3. The Corinthians are not redeemed by Paul...he is the messenger, nothing more.

4. Even being baptized by Paul does not make the Corinthians identified with Paul in his burial, death or resurrection. Paul did not save anyone nor did anyone confess him as their savior when they were baptized.

Paul's Points

1. Believer's bear a spiritual relationship to Christ only.
2. We are united with Christ, and not with any teacher. Paul was a great teacher and he revealed to us an incredible amount of theology. He wrote more of the New Testament than anyone else (well, I think Luke did). But Paul was not crucified for us.
3. The only one a believer is to recognize as head of the church is Jesus Christ. Believers are not to invoke the names of human saints for help. Nor do we pray to Mary.
4. The pastor teacher has the authority to teach doctrine; but not to lead some clique. Bobby does not teach certain small groups, but he is responsible for the whole congregation. Bobby talks about Thiemites and all of Bobby's professors knew his father by name, although they did not like him. This made his stay there interesting. Bobby made an attempt to show them at that seminary just what a person from Berachah is like; and a professor complimented him in the end.
5. Going on from this:
  - a. This does not mean that learning from any pastor teacher will do.
  - b. Each of us learns best from one man with a gift whose teaching style and content you best respond to.
  - c. If you listen to many different pastors, confusion can result.
  - d. There can be and often is subtle differences in nuances of theology and sometimes not so subtle; and if you don't detect them, you cannot put these together into a coherent theology, which can confuse you.
  - e. All orthodox pastors have the basics of the faith down.
  - f. Some teaching is pabulum and some lack spiritual mechanics. Some groups have no clue about mechanics.
  - g. Exegesis and advanced doctrine. Bobby spent a year at Trinity someplace. Great theologians there. Head of Christianity Today magazine. Bobby lists many brilliant men in his field and he had classes with many of them. Dispensationalists, closet dispensationalists, and covenant theologians...and it is impossible to build a coherent theology from those different positions. In seminary, you should already have a framework to build from. You need a framework in order to discern error.
  - h. There will be contradictions if you listen to several different pastors. However, with several ministries, you can become confused. There are different brands of dispensationalists and different brands of covenant theologians.

6. There is a definite tendency by some people to glorify powerful Christian leaders; to idolize them; to glorify them. They do this because of their brilliance or speaking ability or for whatever reasons.
- a. Entertaining speakers and charismatic leaders fascinate the sheep. They are engaging; they tell jokes, they fascinate others. There is no stigma with being a great speaker.
  - b. The problem comes when the man is celebrated for his art and the message is lost.
  - c. Pastor teachers are conduits for communicating doctrine. PT's have a gift and all of them have different abilities. Our loyalty belongs to doctrine and not to the messenger.
  - d. That does not mean that you should not respect the gift or the one who exercises it. It doesn't matter if they are your pastor or not.
  - e. Keep it all in perspective. It is not the man, it is the message.

Paul does not like any faction which puts him at odds with Jesus Christ. He wants to leave Ephesus and go and slap the Corinthians silly.

1Cor. 1:14 I thank God that I baptized none of you except Crispus and Gaius, Crispus was the ruler of the synagogue who got converted. Gaius was a Roman? Paul was glad not to be associated with people in this way. In vv. 4–9, Paul did a lot of thanking God for sanctification, this that and the other thing. So he continues here. "Thank God I did not personally baptize you." There is a legitimate reason for baptism; and Paul does not want to have some faction following him because he baptized them.

1Cor. 1:15 lest any should say that I had baptized in my own name.

There is no importance to be attached to this.

1Cor. 1:16 And I also baptized the household of Stephanas. Besides these, I do not know if I baptized any other.

"Oh, yeah, I remember these as well." It was not a big deal to Paul.

Baptism Problems and the Corinthian Church

1. Some Corinthians had attached erroneous value to baptism.
2. They thought the person who baptized them was more important than their confession of faith.
3. Some thought they were superior Christians based on the importance of the one who baptized them. "I am more important than you because Peter baptized me." They had established a baptismal pecking order.
4. Consequently, Paul is delighted that he did not baptize many of them, because they cannot say that of him. He could escape their name dropping.

5. Paul by saying this was short stopping another power play by those who would use ritual baptism to gain ascendancy over others.

1Corinthians 1:17

Lesson #18

August 19, 2004

Rick Hughes will be teaching on Sunday. Manners; don't move your crap around during the prayer.

Paul is making an issue of out not making an issue of baptism. Paul makes it clear that baptism is not an issue which elevates one faction over another. For Christ did not send me to baptize, but to preach the gospel.

1Cor. 1:17a For Christ did not send me to baptize, but to preach the gospel...

Apostalin which is the aorist active indicative of apostellô; this is the verb cognate of apostolos, which is transliterated Apostle. Paul was not sent to baptize. Baptizô. Infinitive expresses purpose; and the negative expresses Paul's negative purpose. Paul did not arrive in Corinth for the purpose of baptizing anyone. There was a baptism of one house, but he couldn't recall exactly who he baptized there. There were a lot of baptisms going on in Corinth and the gospel was communicated in the ritual. Baptism is not wrong today; however, Paul did some baptism, but on a limited basis.

Paul and Baptism

1. Paul doesn't mention water baptism very often; this is one of the only times that he does.
2. Paul let others do the baptizing. Baptizing required no special gift to perform. Evangelism and teaching the mystery doctrine of the Church Age did require a specialized gift.
3. In the early Church age, special communication gifts required an Apostle; and therefore, there were only 12, and they were quite busy.
4. Paul was not going to detract from his special gift or be distracted from his mission by performing baptisms that his followers could do.
5. Baptism represents positional truth and retroactive positional truth. It can be a meaningful ceremony, as long as we know what it represents.

Present middle infinitive of euaggelizô. This refers to proclaiming the good news or the gospel. The subject is benefitted by the action of the verb.

Paul's Emphasis is Upon the Gospel

1. No one has been saved by baptismal regeneration.
2. So baptism takes a distant second to teaching the gospel.
3. The true purpose of baptism is a testimony to salvation and a recognition of positional truth.

4. Ritual is no good without the reality of salvation.
5. Paul emphasizes the reality of the gospel rather than the ritual of baptism.
6. Paul went out and preached the gospel and when anyone believed, they were baptized...but probably not by Paul. Orthodox churches or high churches indulge in much ritual and the sprinkle a lot of infants. It confuses the issue of faith alone in Christ alone.

1Cor. 1:17b ...not in wisdom of words,...

Word is an attribute of wisdom here. Logou modifies sophia. In wisdom of words. Paul is not to teach in wisdom of words; he is not there to be eloquent or to be clever.

Content of the Gospel as Paul Sees It

1. It was not Paul's purpose to teach human wisdom but truth revealed by God.
2. Paul does not use the eloquence of speech as a come on or a sale's pitch.
3. The Greeks idolized persuasive words and clever speech. Paul idolized the power of the gospel.
4. Paul never depend upon human oratory prowess but upon the power of God the Holy Spirit.
5. Then, when people believed and took in doctrine and became occupied Christ, that is what unifies them. Only occupation with Christ unifies people.
6. They will not be unified by eloquent speech or philosophical or logical speech. These are not the power of doctrine.

1Cor. 1:17c ...so that the cross of Christ should not be made of no effect.

Human wisdom was viewed dimly by Paul. Kinoô. Jesus did not use His deity apart from the plan of God.

What Does this Mean?

1. Philosophical and logical arguments describe what Paul tried to use in the synagogue in Athens.
2. Paul found that these argument convinced no one. Only a few and the rest wanted him killed.
3. Paul realized that the straightforward message of the cross and the grace of God presented in the power of the Holy Spirit is the power of God unto salvation.
4. The cross is always the true issue; not how eloquent you are.
5. Whatever obscures the message of the cross deprives the gospel of its very essence and power. That includes how it is presented.
6. Paul did not want people to listen to him with admiration. He could care less whether people walked away talking about his logic and great ability to speak.
7. Paul did not want people to listen to him just for his speaking ability.

8. That would put the focus on him rather than upon the message.
9. Instead, Paul wanted them to hear the gospel and understand its meaning. He wants them to know, "I'm a sinner with no hope of reaching God; but Jesus Christ came and died for my sins." There is nothing wrong with eloquence, as long as it does not obscure the message. Eloquence is not what is important.
10. If Paul has substituted human wisdom and oratory for the doctrine of the cross, his presentation would have been empty. Had he used human wisdom instead of the cross, it would have been empty.

19th century pastor Charles Spurgeon. A very wealthy man came outside of London, and he wanted to hear both pastors. He decided the other person was a great orator. Then he heard Spurgeon and he observed, "He has a great Savior." The gospel was clear in his speech.

Paul compares human wisdom and divine wisdom; human viewpoint and divine viewpoint. Paul is very eloquent and logical; and he uses irony and sarcasm. False wisdom covers the subject of the next few verses (vv. 18–25).

1Cor. 1:18a For the preaching of the cross is foolishness to those being lost,...

The gospel is foolishness to the unbeliever; but it is the power of salvation. He begins with logos again. It's been used several times in this chapter so far. Apollumi = perish present active participle. It sounds like a process of dying; but the meaning is deadly serious. This refers to an unbeliever. The present tense states that which is certain. This is a statement of fact. These are unbelievers who are already lost. They will be separated from God forever. They are not just perishing, but they are lost forever. These are people with hardened hearts. They do not want to hear it. The gospel is moria = foolish, stupidity, childishness. Moron is the transliteration.

Moria

1. This reflects the unbelievers utter hardness of heart and utter rejection of grace. That is foolishness, childishness and stupidity.
2. These people see the gospel as foolish, childish and stupid; for simple minds.
3. It is too simple.
4. It is illogical that a man dying on the cross is the solution to the human condition. What sense does that make? I reject it.
5. The empiricist; you can't prove any of this to me; if I cannot witness it and see it, I refuse to believe it.
6. Christianity is just a crutch for the weak.

1Cor. 1:18b ...but to us being saved,...

Here, Paul gets very personal. Present passive participle.

Sozô

1. It is not correct to take this meaning of this as those who are in the cause of being saved. It sounds like this is a process.
2. Salvation is the certain result of a relationship with the Lord. Paul has made it clear that they are justified.
3. This relationship has a beginning, which is a moment in time. It is a fact which continues forever, and it characterizes their present state of salvation.
4. The passive voice means that the believer receives the action of sozô. God does the action and we receive it.
5. No one earns or deserves salvation. He just has it.

[August 22, 2004; Sunday am was done by Rick Hughes]

1Corinthians 1:18a

Lesson #19

August 25, 2004

An article about our involvement in Iraq. Wants to explain Iraq in terms of WWIV; and this was the only safe route for us to take. Some disagreements with WWII, and very popular war. He refers to WWII as the cold war. This new enemy has already attacked us on our own soil; and this enemy would like to destroy everything that is good about the US. Even the Russians and Germans never struck us on our own soil.

President Bush affirmed that history called the US to action. We did not seek this war on terror; be we did respond to an attack upon us. In 1947, for 42 years, we stood against Communism; to insure our own preservation and we also brought an eventual fall and great freedom for millions of people.

This will be a long war; we are facing religious fanaticism.

The straight presentation of the gospel is foolishness to the unbeliever and it is the power of God to save us. These people are locked into negative volition. These are people who are already lost. They are not perishing, but they are lost. Foolishness will be a major theme of Paul's discourse:

Morea

1. Morea reflects an utter hardness of heart and total rejection of God's grace.
2. Those who are perishing see the gospel as foolish; childish; stupid. Fit only for simple minds.
3. The skeptical approach of those who reject the gospel: I am too sophisticated to believe that gospel nonsense;
4. Logical approach: it is illogical that a man dying on the cross is a solution to the human condition.
5. Empirical approach: you cannot prove any of this gospel to me, therefore I reject it. If I cannot see it, I will not believe it.

6. Psychological approach: Christianity is simply a crutch for the weak. Those who are already lost; separated from God and eternity.
7. This is the human viewpoint involved in the rejection of Christ.

Next we have to those who are being saved; present passive participle of  $\sigma\omega\zeta\omega$ . It characterizes their present state; passive means they receive the action of the verb.

1Cor. 1:18 ...it is the power of God.

The only reason that the gospel saves us is that is it the power of God.

The Gospel is the Power of God

1. Nothing human can convert people to believers.
2. Eph. 2:8–9 document this.
3. “I was converted to Christ by so and so” or “So and so led me to the Lord.” Truly, this is an inaccurate statement.
4. It is not the word of someone else who saves us. In that strict sense, no one converted you.
5. It is the Word of the Cross which is the power of God.
6. Words can bring understanding; someone speaks the gospel to you and you understand it. To reveal grace; to convict a person of their hopelessly lost condition, to regenerate a soul; to sanctify a lost soul—these are things that no human can do. People do not seek the gospel. The gospel is the Lord Jesus Christ and His work and person.

Paul’s arguments are intricate. He uses irony and sarcasm. It is enjoyable to unravel his arguments. Paul uses Isa. 29:14 here. Sometimes, the second line tells you what the first line says. They can be synonymous lines.

Corinth was a cosmopolitan city; Corinth merged three major cultures: Greek (philosophy, dualism), Roman and Jew.

Dualism, like good and evil. Two things which are kept in balance. The Greeks had a dualism; however, in Christianity there is a modified dualism (God and Satan are not absolutes).

The Jewish part of the Law was based upon legalism.

Roman culture: stoicism and power.

Why the Background?

1. This caused a city of debaters and philosophers steeped in the guile of human viewpoint and wisdom.

2. The Corinthian believers could not refute this abstract human viewpoint. They were mental digits and they panicked.
3. These believers could not out think or out debate their unbelieving opposition.
4. From their failure they erroneously assumed that divine viewpoint was no match for human viewpoint (when human viewpoint was articulated by shrewd and difficult arguments).
5. These philosophers were interesting and they had some good arguments. Much of these, Bobby observed in college. Middle of Viet Nam was and a lot going on at UT. It was all there and espoused by strange people. However, some could state their position well. Bobby saw that some believers could not answer the mail on these arguments. Head of SDS could argue for the truth of Communism and that we did not belong in Vietnam, and he defeated many believers who went there and talked with 1Cor. 1:19 For it is written, "I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and I will set aside the understanding of the perceiving ones."

Γραφω introduces and Old Testament quote; this is in the perfect tense, indicating that this was divinely inspired.

Paul sometimes quoted these and used them in different ways than they were used in their own context. Isa. 29:14: The wisdom of their wise men will perish. Απολυμη is found here; which refers to perishing. The greatest wisdom of the greatest minds of that age. It is still human viewpoint and therefore unacceptable to God in any form. For the most part it is negative viewpoint. Men pride themselves on academics and human skills.

Human Thinking and the Search for Salvation

1. There is no philosophy, or brilliant skills which will discovered the mess for the cross.
2. Rationalism cannot explain why only through the death of Christ can man be saved. How rational is it to do nothing to gain the greater thing on this earth.
3. Human reason is insufficient to lead people to the knowledge.
4. Reason is nothing more than the folly of human viewpoint in searching for Salvation. It is useless.

Human viewpoint and Human Wisdom

1. Isa. 29:13–14; they spoke words of human wisdom; they honor God with lip service but they removed their hearts far from God. They gave witness to the
2. Human wisdom is not an absolute. Human wisdom and the gospel are antithetical.
3. Rationalism (reality through reasoning and empiricism); the latter is what you can prove by what you see, touch, and hear. This come from the mind of man and these are meritorious. There are degrees of rationalism.

4. Faith is a nonmeritorious system of discernment and attainment. We cannot apprehend the infinite. We are incapable to understand the gospel on our own. Designed to apprehend the infinite God.
5. How can human systems of perception understand the infinite absoluteness of God. The finite cannot understand the infinite. Faith perception allows each of us to be wiser than the unbeliever with the highest IQ.
6. Faith allows each of us to discern divine viewpoint. That is infinitely wiser than the human wisdom that the person with the highest IQ. Faith allows those even with the lower IQ's to discern divine viewpoint. This divine viewpoint is infinite greater than the person who has the highest IQ. The highest IQ is dumber than us, as they cannot understand the infinite.
7. God could have discredited the wisdom of the world; and Jesus did speak only divine viewpoint.
8. Instead, God placed in every person the system of perception or of discernment. The weak could put to shame the wise.
9. This is just another aspect for being witnesses for the prosecution of the phase of the angelic conflict. We all have the grace apparatus for perception. This makes us wiser than the wisest human being.
10. Regardless of human IQ, the believer is never hindered in perceiving divine wisdom and applying it. God has made this possible to perceive and apply it to his life. Job is an illustration of this. He went from a large family to no family; from great wealth to poverty. The world did not have the capability.
11. No matter how brilliant an unbeliever is, his human wisdom will pass from the scene.
12. Divine wisdom from doctrine can never fade or fail.
13. 1Peter 1:24–25: All flesh is like grass; it withers and the flowers fall off (or, it goes away). The Word of the Lord abides forever.
14. The Lord never sanctions worldly wisdom as a way of finding favor with Himself. Human viewpoint cannot; only divine viewpoint.
15. No matter how hard he tries, the brilliant intellectual unbeliever cannot understand God; he has no way to perceive God. God gives this ability to understand Him. The unbeliever cannot do this. He is incapable. The most brilliant unbeliever cannot understand God. He can never have ἐπίγνωσις. The brilliant intellectual cannot understand God; we understand God through Bible doctrine. Therefore, who is the wiser of the two? We may not understand quantum physics, but we have wisdom about the infinite in our soul.
16. New points: the evil cosmos will be utterly destroyed at the second advent of our Lord Jesus Christ.
  - a. Poverty will be abolished, something that man has never been able to do; nor will he ever abolish poverty.
  - b. War will be abolished; something man is unable to do as well. Man constantly attempts to end war. 50-70 wars going on upon this earth at all times.

- c. The Lord Jesus Christ will reign on the earth for a thousand years and divine wisdom will be available to all.
  - d. At that time, we will see first hand the capacity of divine wisdom and what it can accomplish.
17. We have access at this moment to the same wisdom which will turn the wisdom of the world upside down in the millennium. Col. 1:9–10: For this cause we also, since the day we heard, do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that you might be filled with the knowledge of His will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding, that you might walk worthy of the Lord to all pleasing, being fruitful in every work and increasing in the knowledge of God,
  18. When man uses human viewpoint to approach God, his heart is far removed from God.
  19. Human viewpoint no matter how brilliantly is it packaged, can never solve man's most basic problem, which is spiritual death. Only faith alone in Christ alone solves that problem.
  20. At the cross, God made the greatest display of divine wisdom for salvation. The unbeliever displays his absolutely foolishness in rejecting the grace of God.

1Corinthians 1:19b

Lesson #20

August 26, 2004

There were certain aspects that Bobby would be unable to teach; like children, since he has no children. He brought something about children tonight. The marine DI's rules for dating his daughter.

Human viewpoint and wisdom returned to and about 5 points are added.

1Cor. 1:20a Where is the wise?

Four rhetorical questions. All these questions expect negative answers. The fourth question answers the first three question. These questions all begin with που and it means where; however, here it is a figurative place. We would expect the answer to be nowhere for these questions. Paul is taunting those who consider themselves to be wise and learned. This is the infallible Word of God which Paul wrote.

Where is the wise man? Isa. 19:12 is where this comes from. Where are they? Where are your wise men? And let them tell you now, and let them know what Jehovah of Hosts has planned against Egypt.

The wise really takes in the next two question. Those two are really part of sophos.

1Cor. 1:20b Where is the scholar?

Scribe or Jewish scholar is the Jewish academic. The answer expected is nowhere.

Jewish Scholar

1. Scribe originally was applied to secretaries whose business it was to issue decrees on behalf of the king. Several passages given.
2. In the New Testament, this word was used for those who were well versed in the Law.
3. They transcribed the Law; they made copies of it. This is how the Law was preserved. Copies came and went. There was no printing press at that time.
4. They were responsible for the exposition of the Law. They interpreted the Law.
5. Even on occasion, these scholars were required to administer the Law to others. They wrongly interpreted and applied the Mosaic Law to Jesus and to Paul.
6. Timothy 3:7: Always learning and never coming to the epigosis knowledge of the truth.
7. They used legal systems and memorization in order to be saved. The wisest of the wise were fools. Do not envy the brilliant unbeliever. They will end up in hell.

1Cor. 1:20c Where is the lawyer of this world?

Sudsatêtês

1. This is the Greek who wanted to dispute every issue and solve it with human reasoning.
2. This is the questioner; the inquirer. The sophist; he could be the philosopher. He questioned everything; he reasoned everything. He claimed superior intelligence.
3. Much like attorneys today, the disputer could take either side of an argument and win. It did not matter which side he was on. You simply take a side and defend it.
4. When they ran into the dogmatism of the gospel and doctrine, it was a threat to that method of logic. Dogmatism is foreign to him. He would argue either side of a case and win.
5. He could not understand divine truth because his mind is mired in relative truth.

1Cor. 1:20d Has not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?

Paul wants to include every human viewpoint system of that age and every other age is covered. God makes foolish all human wisdom. A bunch of genitives here; genitive singulars; qualitative genitives. The quality of these wise people is at issue here. It is between the quality of the relative state of things as represented by the wise of this world. Human viewpoint and divine viewpoint of the age which is to come are contrasted.

Tou κοσμου is at the end of v. 20. Of the ages and of the world are incomparable to the divine wisdom of the cross.

Has not God made foolish the wisdom of this world? God separates these systems of thinking.

Human and Divine Systems of Thinking

1. All men are not born equal; physically or mentally.
2. While no two people have the same perceptive ability; this is changed at the moment of regeneration.
3. At salvation, the believer is born into the family of God, and that includes a new system of grace perception and access to the new system of thinking.
4. Human IQ or lack thereof does not hinder learning Bible doctrine.
5. Hence the grace system of ascertaining divine viewpoint makes the discernment of the cosmos foolish. They are foolish in their discernment.
6. Rom. 1:22–23: Professing to be wise, they became fools and changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like corruptible man, and birds, and four-footed animals, and creeping things.
  - a. They have become fools because they have rejected doctrine; they have no way of understanding doctrine. They worship their own wisdom, birds, crawling creatures. They cannot understand God; and they have a very imperfect understanding of nature. The universe has generated itself; the universe is therefore God because it created itself. They cannot understand the God of the universe, but they can understand the universe making itself.
  - b. They understand so much and they understand nothing. They understand a number of subjects, but they do not understand divine viewpoint. They are left with separation from God for eternity.
  - c. These unbelievers are so steeped in their own knowledge that they do not care that they truly do not understand God.
  - d. They can only explain the universe and its workings in terms of human wisdom. The facts of evolution change with those who profess it. Every new discovery changes what they knew before. Divine wisdom never changes.
  - e. They became fools; the wisest of the world became fools. Human wisdom cannot regenerate anyone; it cannot understand the cross. No one understand human wisdom as well as Paul. So it is well for him to make these points.

1Corinthians 1:20

First Session Lesson #21

August 29, 2004

Bobby reminds the congregation about rustling around at the end of the service.

It is the word of the cross which carries the meaning of the cross. Without words, we cannot understand one another nor can we communicate. To convict a person of their hopelessly lost condition, it requires the power of God. No human wisdom can accomplish this. No human merit and no human system can accomplish these. None of these meet divine standards. Paul grabs these Corinthians and asks them, what about these human meritorious types?

When Paul asks, where is the wise man, he is quoting from Isaiah where the Jews wanted to go to Egypt for knowledge, guidance and defense. Paul takes this phrase, and applies it to the Corinthians. Interrogative pronoun που = where. Σοφος = wise; the literal translation is where wise; a verb is added, along with man: where is the wise [man]? When Paul begins to blast someone, they know they have been blasted. This is setting these people up for a discourse which will tear them apart. These are those who are learned in human wisdom.

Που γραμματαυς? It means where is the scribe? Better, where is the scholar? 2Tim. 2:7: Always learning, but never coming to a knowledge of the truth. They worked out systems of law and law keeping. The expected answer is nowhere.

Συδσητητης = the philosopher, the lawyer; the one who wanted to question everything and dispute whatever. The Greeks loved philosophy and they loved to argue it. They considered themselves as having considerable logic; superior logic. Paul asks where is the philosopher? The dogmatism of doctrine was a threat to the philosophers of that time. They rejected the gospel. It was not logical. How could a man who claimed to be God come to earth and pay for our sins? Scripture claims to be absolute. They did not necessarily believe this. They wanted to be able to argue either side.

Only God's revelation can help us to grasp God, who is infinite. Either He is the way, the truth and the life, or He is not. However, this is presented as truth and not a relative truth.

Του αιονος τουτου. This means of this age; in the genitive case. It includes both Jew and Greek.

Hasn't God made foolish the wisdom of the world? All men are not born equal. All created equal means we should all have equal rights under the law. Two people do not have the same perceptive ability as others. Some have greater aptitudes; some are more attractive. However, the very moment you are saved, you have exactly the same ability to perceive Bible doctrine. You can understand divine wisdom. You get equal access to a new wisdom. It is always available if you want it. The Holy Spirit is the great leveler; the Holy Spirit teaches us doctrine. This is different than learning academics or human wisdom. God allows all believers to have the same ability to perceive, then this makes the wisdom of the world foolish. It does not make logical sense to the unbeliever; you must understand it via the grace apparatus for perception. GAP is a great and true leveler. This puts us on the same playing field.

Rom 1:21–23: Because, knowing God, they did not glorify Him as God, neither were thankful. But they became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened. Professing to be wise, they became fools and changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like corruptible man, and birds, and four-footed animals, and creeping things. They are unbelievers; this is how they are fools. The worshiped knowledge and possibly themselves. They began to worship nature and creation rather than the Creator. The natural realm is fascinating, but the problem is they see this as truth. They worship nature; they are too taken by nature. It is an incredible system. People in the world see what we believe as being foolish and they look at us as simpletons. The professors in the classroom try to explain things and leave God out of it; it is very limited. The study of astronomy is a great illustration, as it is infinite. This is relative wisdom. They dive into the infinite with finite minds. Education is valuable, but it is not absolute truth. Do not worship it, however. Can the cross be empirically or logically determined? No; it cannot be gotten from logic; it cannot be observed. Even those at the cross still have to have faith, because they were not allowed to see our Lord suffer for our sins.

Μωραίνω is the root of the word moron. All these other questions and all these other facts are nowhere. Without divine viewpoint, people are inevitably fools. They will certainly be fools in eternity. Nowhere is the wise; nowhere is the scholar; nowhere is the debater; did not God prove foolish the wisdom of this world?

1Corinthians 1:21      Sunday Second Session Lesson #22      August 29, 2004

1Cor. 1:21a For since, in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom did not know God,...

Paul is now turning this all upside down. Human wisdom cannot find God. Paul's point is this: human wisdom is inadequate. Men with all of their philosophical and religious wisdom, they do not come to know God. God declares the world's wisdom as worthless. Paul will do this with irony. God adopts the foolishness of the gospel as the door of salvation. The question is, who actually finds this foolish. God chooses a seemingly foolish process to teach the gospel. It is not foolish to us. It is the power of salvation. In His wisdom and in His grace, God chose operation Z. Rationalism and empiricism is not chosen to save people. Faith was chosen. All men can have faith. Empiricism and rationalism are meritorious systems of perception. Just hear the gospel, and God will provide the ability to understand it.

Ἐπειδὴ γὰρ points usually back to something else.

The Gospel is Foolishness

1. God refutes the whole system.
2. The gospel is foolishness to the world, but it offers salvation to these same people who find it foolish. When the gospel is ridiculed by someone, they are rejecting it.
3. When people reject the gospel, their foolishness will be revealed to them when it is too late.
4. These unbelievers are doomed because they reject divine revelation, which they saw as foolishness. This is the stupidity of human thinking. They reject the most profound wisdom of the world and call it foolish.

Ἐν σοφίᾳ refers to divine insight. God's own wisdom is in view here. Grace is wisdom and his grace is absolute wisdom. God has provided the true means to find Himself. God provides all that we need on this earth. The finite can understand enough of the infinite. The most brilliant man with all of his intelligence cannot find God. Wisdom or understanding of God is unattainable through human systems of perception. God allows man to attempt to find Him this way; however, man can only find God by faith. Anyone who believes in Christ is saved by this simple response of faith perception. This is the brilliance of grace. What did man do? The world through its own wisdom did not come to know God. The world is surrounded by the various manifestations of God. E.g., the book of Esther; they saw the grace bestowed upon the Jews by God and they still rejected it and attacked the Jews. Philosophy cannot find God. It is man's attempt to understand man, how we got here, who we are, what meaning there is in life. The problem is, all of it is contradictory. They reveal tremendous wisdom and tremendous logic; but no divine truth. The unbeliever sees and studies the world around him and only gathers information. But he does not learn about God. He cannot attain a relationship with God.

What Does All this Wisdom do for the Unbeliever?

1. He sees the tremendous creation of God. Incredible and impressive.
2. In gathering all of these facts and knowledge, he misses the point. He sees the beauty of it, the marvel of it, but can't put it altogether. The universe creates itself. It explodes and then it becomes what we find today.
3. Man's wisdom and knowledge cannot and will never fathom divine power behind creation; and more importantly, the divine power of salvation.
4. Only divine revelation reveals the truth about creation and Christ on the cross. There are some things in creation which will point us toward God; but nothing more than that. It does not give us the gospel.
5. When man depends upon human wisdom, he cannot understand. There are different degrees of wisdom.
6. All then they can do is to reject divine wisdom revealed by the gospel. It makes no logical sense. Their only option is to reject the gospel.
7. Observation: this is the sad end to human wisdom. It leads nowhere. It has no eternal meaning. In the end, that wisdom comes to nothing. It is dust. Divine wisdom never fades; human wisdom goes by the wayside.

The gospel is so simple, that it is the wisdom of the ages. Faith rejected the wisdom of the ages. The human wisdom bunch thought this to be foolish.

1Cor. 1:21b ...it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save those who believe.

Δια + genitive of της μοριας + κηρυγματος . Some say they have gone too far beyond the gospel in their thinking. Sometimes, a less intelligent person witnesses to a more intelligent person, teaching the wisdom of the ages. This foolishness presented by a person with a lower IQ can save the genius unbeliever. Aorist active infinitive of σωζω. These are those who respond to the gospel. Πιστευω = to believe; a participle. You hear, you assimilate the information and you buy into it. You believe it. You receive it in an interesting way.

What is Faith Perception and How It Works

1. Operation Z. You present to gospel to someone. The gospel goes to your human spirit. The unbeliever lacks the human spirit. The Holy Spirit acts as the unbeliever's human spirit, allowing him to understand the gospel. That is GAP. At this point, with positive volition, the unbeliever believes. Left lobe = the soul. The information is transferred there by the Holy Spirit. It is internalized. However, it is not assimilated as it is not believed. Then we believe it. The Holy Spirit made it real and we believe. We don't have to be a genius to get it. Even a brain damaged child can get it. An unbeliever is dichotomous and now he becomes trichotomous when he believes in Jesus Christ.

2. The key is positive volition. The rationalist and empiricist reject it. At the point where it is presented, they can say no. GAP is the great leveler of this life. It gives everyone equal footing.

September 1-10 missing, as I am in California

1Corinthians 1:21

Lesson #23 Wednesday September 1, 2004

The system of manners here extends to the very end of the service. They Kelly's studied Joe Griffin through the Internet and their son goes to Berachah. Mrs. Kelly passed away.

A native of India who was put into an arranged marriage, essentially a slave, under lock and key. She found a book on the Faith-rest life and she got doctrine through this book and a Bible. She witnessed to her in-laws and to her children (all of her children became believers). Her husband is, to say the least, negative. The husband sustained injuries and now she can leave the house, which she could not do before. She went to her moms and wrote a letter to Berachah and she asked for books to be sent to her mother's house. She has listened to 4 or 5 tapes over and over again. She has determined not to hide her cassettes from her husband; and she kept them in her bag and knew her husband would check her bag when she went to the market. Not enough courage to listen to these cassettes openly.

Paul was making fun of the intellects of that day. μωρία = foolishness; it is from whence we get the word moron. The gospel is childish information and the intellectuals are too sophisticated to accept these explanations. Paul is reflecting in the foolishness of the gospel (he is presenting this tongue-in-cheek).

The gospel is presented by a believer, an evangelist, a pastor-teacher. The Holy Spirit must act as a human spirit to make the gospel information understandable. The unbeliever responds with some interest in the gospel. The unbeliever has internalized the gospel, and it is understood through faith-perception.

Summation

1. There is no human merit in this.
2. Compatible with God's grace.
3. Faith is common to all members of the human race which is non-meritorious. This is the only system which levels the playing field of perception.

4. No one is born with the same human IQ. There is a huge range of cognitive abilities in the human race. Some intellects have a superior abilities through rationalism and empiricism.
5. All believers have equal abilities to utilize faith as a system of perception. This is equal for us believers.
6. Therefore, faith is non-meritorious...always. It is never something that we do. Faith is a way of appropriating what God has prepared for us. The Holy Spirit is the great leveler 1Cor. 1:21b ...it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save those who believe.

Next couple verses... Paul continues his thought on wisdom and foolishness which he has begun earlier. Since human reason has now failed; it will not save us, no matter how great it is, Paul teaches the revelation of Jesus Christ.

protasis and apodosis of a conditional. Vv. 22–23 are similar. They can be used that way. The Jews and the Greeks are one way; and we are another way. In v. 22, Paul breaks down the failure of human wisdom. He is doing this by racial category. This does not mean that God is a racist. He is using two races to explain these categories of human wisdom. The Jews and Greeks have both failed, but in different ways. They have failed due to their cultures and propensities. Even today, if confronted with the gospel, many secular Jews will fall back on some religious excuse from their past (this is not universal, of course). The Jews require external, supernatural evidence. The Jews really are empirical; they are an empirical group of people. John 6:30: What do you do for a sign? What work do you perform? They want to expose Jesus Christ as a fraud. Matt. 16:4: An evil and adulterous generation seeks after a sign and a sign will not be given it except the sign of Jonah. They were not really interested in a sign. The Lord had given so many signs prior to this. These guys knew their Scripture. Jesus Christ performed lots of miracles. Some of these men had witnessed these signs as well. His sinless life also perfectly fulfilled the Mosaic Law, which they could not do themselves. Right in front of their eyes was the perfect God-man Messiah.

If Bobby could do miracles, this would not bring anyone else to Christ. People could see the Messiah right in front of them; they could see Him performing all of these signs, and many of them did not believe in Him. They rejected Jesus Christ, their own Savior. They demanded signs that they refused to recognize when they saw them. How can you tell the difference between what is real and what is a trick?

They wanted a political leader; they wanted a revolutionary. This is one example of how politics is not the solution. They did not want the suffering Servant of Isa. 53.

Once you have given the gospel; once you have given it your best shot; then sometimes, you need to get up and walk away from it. You present someone with the gospel message, and they continue to say no again and again. Only the Holy Spirit can soften a hardened heart; we can't do anything about their lack of response.

There was no rational sense in the gospel to some. How could God be put on a cross? How could that secure out salvation? Ζητεω = desire to possess. Man cannot by his own human processes understand the gospel.

1Cor. 1:22 For the Jews ask for a sign, and the Greeks seek after wisdom;

They are this way, but we are that way. Paul still uses these same racial categories. Contrast between the rationalism of the Greeks and the empiricism of the Jews. Human wisdom can never make spiritual matters clear to us. Neither can bring us to a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. The faith system of perception is the only way we can come to Christ.

Present active indicative of κηρυσσω = public proclamation of the gospel facts. The gospel was presented at that time; an act in process. It is still presented today. Σταυρω = to crucify; perfect participle, which is a rare form. It conveys the thought that Christ's crucifixion in the past has a continuous effect. The force is a participle. His work is efficacious for eternity. The message of the cross has an endless power of salvation. We preach Christ crucified.

Faith System of Salvation

1. The Holy Spirit convicts the unbeliever of sin, righteousness and judgement (John 16:8). This is called common grace.
2. The Spirit functions as a human spirit, which was lost at the fall of Adam. We are born spiritually dead; we gain the spirit back at salvation. The spirit makes the gospel comprehensible to us. The Holy Spirit must act as a human spirit for us, as we lack this human spirit.
3. The gospel is comprehensible to all that hear it. For unbelievers, they could understand the words; it is, however, just γνῶσις. Just as doctrine is simply γνῶσις to us; the gospel is γνῶσις to the person with positive volition.
4. Common grace insures that the gospel is no longer just academic knowledge.
5. The gospel has confirmation beyond rationalism and empiricism. Once common grace has done its work, and the person expresses positive volition, the Holy Spirit makes that faith efficacious or effective. That is efficacious grace.

Efficacious Grace

1. The Holy Spirit acknowledges and transforms the faith of a spiritually dead person. The Holy Spirit must take this faith and make it effective.
2. The necessary condition is to respond with positive volition, which is faith in Christ. Faith perception is a necessary choice for salvation.
3. The Holy Spirit must have something to work with. Our faith in itself does not sanctify us, does not save us, does not put us into union with Christ.

4. That is the importance of the ministry of efficacious grace. The Holy Spirit takes that faith and makes it effective for salvation. That is grace. We don't do it by faith; He does it when we express faith.
5. Without the work of the Holy Spirit, the positive response of the unbeliever could never result in salvation.

1Cor. 1:23 but we preach Christ crucified, to the Jews a stumbling block, and to the Greeks foolishness.

1Corinthians 1:23

Lesson #24

Thursday September 2, 2004

A nice crowd for a rainy evening. Better than a category #4 hurricane come through.

Paul is referring to Jews and Gentiles in general here. Paul reminds the Corinthians of their formerly lost status. Now they are involved in in-fighting and stabbing one another in the back. He wants them to know where they came from, who they are, what they are doing and what they should be doing.

The Jews claim that they would believe if they observed the signs; however, they despised the Lord. He had given them innumerable signs. The pharisees knew the Old Testament and they observed the fulfillment of these in Christ Jesus. He fulfilled the Law perfectly; and he had done many public miracles. Bobby says they kept asking for signs, but they actually did not. They knew that Jesus could probably do whatever they asked of Him; they kept trying to trap Him in the Law. However, in general, the Jews sought for signs. Matt. 16:4: An evil and wanton generation is always wanting signs and wonders. The only sign you'll get is the Jonah sign." Then he turned on his heel and walked away. The Jews in general asked for signs; but the pharisees did not. Okay, in this passage, the pharisees and sadducees are asking Jesus for a sign from heaven.

Sometimes, the idea of grace is so foreign that they want it. The proclamation of the cross did not satisfy the Jews or the Greeks. They rejected at the point of common grace. The problem with the Jews is that the gospel was a stumbling block. Σκανδαλον = stumbling block. The Jews did not expect the Messiah that they got. Isa. 53 is about the Messiah, but the Jews ignored it. It made no sense for the Messiah who was despised like a criminal; it did not make sense to them for Him to be a servant. These Jews wanted to be released from the slavery of Rome. They wanted the conqueror Who would come and set up His kingdom. They expected Jesus to come wearing a crown. They did not expect a man, a common man. They wanted Him to liberate them from political oppression; He came to liberate them from sin. They did not want the cross, they wanted the crown.

Empirical Perception

1. Even empirical signs had to be believed. They had to be taken as faith.
2. Empirical signs must be believed by empiricism. Even if you have believed the signs, you still have not come to God.

3. His miracles satisfied faith-perception, and they believed.
4. But the same signs which those who expressed faith did not satisfy those who were religious. They were a stumbling block to the religious types.
5. They could not accept these miracles as empirically true, even though they witnessed them. You'd think that these miracles that they saw time after time after time would eventually click.
6. The empiricist had already rejected Christ because of his presupposition.
7. When presented with the evidence that Christ was the Messiah, they did not express faith in Him. That is negative volition from a hardened heart.
8. Empiricism failed to convert the religious Jews to Christ. They already had an idea of what the Messiah should be.
9. Empiricism is even more futile today when it comes to approaching Jesus Christ. There are no legitimate signs to satisfy the demands of empiricism. The signs and wonders movement, the vineyard movement, tried to capitalize on this. There is only the gospel message at the end; only that has the power.
10. This is why faith is the only means of perception which brings us to Christ. His life and miracles were witnessed to by thousands of witnesses. Four gospels are four independent gospels of four witnesses (or material collected from eyewitnesses). This is not blind faith, as we have their witness. The empiricist does not want to believe this. Evolution is based upon a theory based upon facts not in evidence. What passes for evidence is often disputed. And this evidence changes from time to time. When a few bones are found, we hear the theories and the official view of it;; you don't get the alternate theories, the other possibilities.

Paul uses mopia = foolishness again. The evidence is obvious without using logic to discover it. Rationalism could not reconcile God's plan to logic...as they want it to be reconciled. The rational Greeks understood fallible gods. So these gods who chased women made sense to them.

1Cor. 1:23 but we preach Christ crucified, to the Jews a stumbling block, and to the Greeks foolishness.

V. 24 is addressed to those who believe in Jesus Christ. He combines Jews and Gentiles here. Racism is not part of the gospel or doctrine; racial distinctions do not matter. There is no racism in the Bible. 1Cor. 12:13 is an example of that: For also by one Spirit _we_ all were baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free persons, and we were all given to drink into one Spirit.

Election

1. Called refers to believers only. They have been effectually called.
2. In eternity past, God decreed this call.
3. All members of the human race are potentially called.

4. The call was only decreed for those whom God foreknew would believe. He saw our positive volition and decreed the call.
5. Those who were called would be the recipients of common grace. They would believe and then their choice would be made efficacious for salvation. He knew they would believe at gospel hearing.
6. God's decree made certain futurity of the call of every believer. A marvelous concept, although difficult to understand. The Jews who were called abandoned empiricism to believe in Christ. Christ, the power of God.
7. The doctrine of Christ crucified produces effects that nothing short of divine power can reveal.

Paul is making a contrast between divine wisdom and the wisdom of the Greeks and the Jews. That is his point in v. 24. No one can approach the cross with human works and perspicacity. You Jews were legalistic empiricist...did that get you anywhere? No. And you Greek rationalists believed in this goofy pantheon of gods. Paul was a brilliant man and said in these verses what Bobby has explained.

1Cor. 1:24 But to them, the called-out ones, both Jews and Greeks, Christ is the power of God and the wisdom of God.

In the next verse, Paul is not saying that God is foolish. We will pick up on that paradox when we return.

1Corinthians 1:21

Lesson #25

Sunday1 September 5, 2004

We've been studying rationalism and empiricism in relationship to faith perception. Paul brings this up as a comparison. We may only approach God through faith-perception. These human systems of perception cannot comprehend infinite God or His plan of salvation. Human systems of perception can only understand human beings and only imperfectly. Immanuel Kant tried to use rationalism in order to proceed from himself to the infinite. He postulated the Cartesian principle, I think, therefore I am.

The Jews wanted signs and wonders and they had all the signs and wonders that they could possibly stand. Many pharisees had observed Christ do signs and wonders; they saw the Old Testament prophecies fulfilled in Christ; and they saw that Jesus obeyed the Law perfectly. However, they could not believe in Jesus Christ. They were looking for a conquering hero. They were tired of the rule of the Romans. When they looked into the Millennial passages and that is what they wanted. They did not conceive of Christ on a donkey entering into Jerusalem; they wanted a conquering hero. This was a failure of empiricism. They could see nothing but a lowly Galilean. Only faith-perception and not empiricism would bring these men to Christ. They must accept more than the miracles; they have to accept what they see as true.

Problems that Pharisees Had

1. Even Biblical signs must be understood and believed.
2. Once the sign is presented and empirically accepted, it must still be accepted as true using faith-perception.
3. When our Lord's miracles satisfied the questions of the observers, then they expressed faith-perception and then they believed.
4. Those same signs that the pharisees refused to believe never satisfied the empirical demands of the religious types. Jesus Christ was a stumbling block to them.

Greek logic turned the Greeks against Jesus Christ as well. How could one man do that for the entire world? This was illogical; it made not sense whatsoever to them. They understood their own gods, because they were obviously human in their characteristics. Unlike Christ, they were flawed and they sinned incessantly. They acted more like fallible human beings that they acted like deity. These gods on Mount Olympus had no interest in the benefit of the human race. They would trick man. Mankind was a sitcom for the gods. If they could help things to get entangled, that was cool too. If rationalism had led them, then they could have expressed faith. But, they were unable. They cannot approach God by rationalism.

We are going to have a short review of the Doctrine of Election.

Doctrine of Election

1. Called always refers to believer. Common grace is part of the call. The gospel is made comprehensible when the Holy Spirit functions as the human spirit for the person, so they can respond with faith in Jesus Christ at understanding the gospel.
2. Called also refers to common and efficacious grace. Faith does not make you spiritually alive; it puts you into Christ and the Holy Spirit regenerates us.
3. In eternity past, God decreed the call. This was before we were born and before even earth as created.
4. All members of the human race are potentially called. Christ died for all mankind. That is what unlimited atonement means. Not all are called.
5. God agreed to save those who believed. Jesus Christ knew those who would believe in Him.
6. Christ is the power of God. His death produces the salvation that we need.

The wisdom of God is in contrast to the wisdom of the Jews and the Greeks. They could not understand the thinking and wisdom of God. No one can approach the cross with human works or human rationalism.

1Cor. 1:24 But to them, the called-out ones, both Jews and Greeks, Christ is the power of God and the wisdom of God.

Paul presents a paradox; he dearly loves this sort of writing. What he says is effective in communicating. Human wisdom and divine wisdom. A paradox is a statement which, on its face, is contradictory. The weakness of God and the foolishness of God; God is not weak nor is God foolish. The lowest manifestation of divine wisdom infinitely exceeds the highest human wisdom. This makes the reader think; it makes him focus.

Nominative neuter singular noun  $\mu\omicron\rho\omicron\nu$  = foolish, moron, stupid. Paul is being ironic and paradoxical; he is not calling God a moron. This is the exact opposite of the literal meaning. It is human rejection of divine provision which assigns foolishness to God; it is human perspicacity which assigns this to God. It came from the mind of a genius. It is so simple and so easy to understand. Authors often use literary devices like this. Paul could have said God is intelligent and man is stupid; but this would not get our attention.

The Meaning of the Foolishness of God

1. God is perfect and His plan is perfect; He is never foolish.
2. Man is imperfect and his plans are imperfect and sinful; and unable to reach God in any way.
3. Man is the moron, while contending that God is the moron. This is man's viewpoint.

A Summary of the Previous Points

1. The foolishness that man assigns to God is infinitely wiser than the brilliance of man.
2. The gentiles regarded the cross as childish.
3. The grace of God is infinitely beyond all the genius machinations of the mind of man.
4. Only God with His foolishness can save man through Jesus Christ.
5. God has ordained the nonmeritorious systems of grace.

The Holy Spirit makes the faith perception what is required for salvation. Paul uses  $\alpha\sigma\theta\epsilon\nu\epsilon\iota\varsigma$  = weakness to describe God. Jesus Christ did not meet their needs cause the religious types to assign to Him this word, weak. Paul calls Jesus weak because this is what the Jews called Him. The Romans destroyed Jesus Christ, which is how they saw it. Christ could not be the Messiah, because He would not come down from the cross, as that is how they mocked Him. This caused them to call Him  $\alpha\sigma\theta\epsilon\nu\epsilon\iota\varsigma$ , but He was strong to remain on the cross and continue enduring the pain.

Our Lord's volition had to be constantly on throughout that entire 3 hours of darkness. In the strength of His humility, Jesus took on the sins of those who stood beneath Him on the cross, those who mocked Him. Jesus was despised of men, and they knew this Scripture well. What is weakness to human IQ is actually the power of God through faith-perception.

Application

1. The Church Age is free from miracles because the Jews were not impressed or swayed by miracles.

2. The life of the believer depends upon perspicacity by grace through faith.
3. The believer who hopes for and leans on miracles rejects God's plan for perspicacity by grace.
4. The believer who must see God's work through some sign or supernatural act, then we are relying on empiricism.
5. The believer who tries to make logical sense of God's grace through rationalism, then you are a loser. Faith-perception is lost on you. We are a success if we grown by grace orientation and doctrinal intake through faith perception. Rationalism has trouble with grace, as nothing in this life is free.
6. The believer becomes strong through faith-perception and the Holy Spirit and transferring doctrine to our right lobe by the Holy Spirit.
7. Epignôsis is the power of God.
8. God has provided the mechanism for transfer.
9. False systems of perception in spiritual matters leads to false doctrine.
10. Scar tissue in the soul is the by-product for failure to use God's system of spiritual advance.

1Cor. 1:25 Because the foolish thing of God is wiser than men, and the weak thing of God is stronger than men.

1Corinthians 1:21

Lesson #26

Sunday2 September 5, 2004

Religious Jews always looked for signs. Review of the previous points and a couple are added.

We can often look back on our lives, observing what God has done, and recognizing God's grace.

A new section to examine. Paul, in this next verse, is speaking directly to the members of the Corinthian Church. A new argument to illustrate the uselessness of their human wisdom. Βλέπω = to see, to observe, to consider; it is actually in the imperative here. Κλησις = calling. He wants the readers to think about their calling very carefully. Paul asks his readers to think about their calling, that place that they have in this world. God decreed common grace and saving grace.

The Corinthians are not concentrating on anything but themselves.

1Cor. 1:26 For you see your calling [to privilege],...

Paul is going to name certain classes of people who find it difficult to believe in Jesus Christ. Three nouns for these people. Σοπος = wise. High IQ's, philosophers, academics and that sort. Second is δυνατος = the mighty, the powerful. Those with great abilities and talents and great authority and great influence. Ευγενης = the noble. These are the well-born, the men of high rank.

Κατα σαρκα = according to the flesh. This is not a literal reference to skin but a reference to human standards.

Summation

1. Not many of these categories are elected to privilege. God looks after me because I am the downtrodden and under privileged.
2. What this actually means, is that not many of these types believed in Christ when Paul was in Corinth.
3. These types did not believe in Christ because their thinking was stuck in rationalism and empiricism. High intelligent types have difficulty understanding grace.
4. Paul wants the Corinthian believers to think about this. "What do you mean some of these categories cannot believe in Christ. This should suggest, "Who are you, Corinthians? And why are you suddenly so high and mighty?"
5. God called us to privilege. "You are nothing on your own."
6. And now, Corinthians, you have become like the arrogant unbelievers, falling back on human viewpoint and fighting for power in a small pond, the church. "Why are you here? Consider the purpose of your calling."

Paul is asking them to make the application of the doctrine of privilege to this. These are successful people, those that others look up to. These have a very difficult time seeing that they need anything. These are the things which elevate people in this world. Human distinctions are insignificant and not efficacious in the sight of God. Is God impressed with the great accomplishments of man? Not at all. We might be impressed by things the men do, but God isn't impressed. God is impressed with His grace; He is not impressed with us. Matt. 19:23: Truly I say to you

Most of Paul's converts were slaves and freedmen. Erasmus, Danicus, Acts 17:4, 12. These are more likely not to believe in Christ. It is not simply that time period; this applies to today as well.

1Cor. 1:26b ...brothers, that not many wise men according to the [standard of the] flesh are called, not many mighty, not many noble.

1Corinthians 1:26

Lesson #27

September 8, 2004

It is more difficult for these mentioned for these to believe.

Summary

1. Paul means not many of the intellectual class, or of those having power, or those having great power, or those with great abilities are elected to privilege.
2. They were tuck in rationalism and empiricism; and they were also tied up with lust and materialism.

3. Such people as these are impressed with their own IQ's. they are full of human wisdom and arrogant self-importance.
4. Paul's purpose in writing this section is for the Corinthian believer's to examine themselves. As believers, we should do that now and again. We should evaluate ourselves as far as the spiritual life goes. Doctrine is for these purposes.
5. The things which elevate people in this world, like knowledge, influence, power and rank, and not things which lead to salvation nor do they impress Him.
6. What pleases God is His own grace, and those who respond to it by faith alone. Human distinctions are insignificant to God. There might be people around you who wish they were you; but God is not impressed.

Being a big fish in the small pond is nothing; without God electing them to privilege, they would be nothing. Each faction is attempting to impose their will on the rest of the church. Paul is presenting the difference between human viewpoint and divine viewpoint.

Jesus said it was easier for a camel to enter through the eye of a needle than a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven.

Why it is harder for the rich or wealthy to enter in the Kingdom of God

1. They were depending upon their wealth, or high station to make themselves commendable to God.
2. They had proof that they were commendable to God; they had all this wealth and power.
3. They already had what they needed; grace was for those who were have nots. "I am successful; people look up to me; therefore God must look up at me." How humans perceive you is meaningless.
4. They thought they were already acceptable to God because of their merit. They deserved the affirmation of God; weren't they holy and righteous; didn't God smile on them?
5. This was typical of the pharisees, who were impressed with their own self righteousness. They were never impressed with God; they were impressed with themselves.

Paul tells them: why are you admiring these people have all these human advantages; we have the great advantage. If the rich and powerful were all saved, that would have obscured grace. God works not with the greatness as defined by the world; He works with the greatness of His own grace. He is manifesting the result of his grace in those who are the most unworthy.

These slaves and freedmen are not the ones the world looks up to; but God gives them common grace; He watches them grow in grace; they are far above the rich and powerful believers of this world. If you utilize grace in your life and you are grace oriented, then you impress God, because you utilize His grace. That is what His plan is all about. That is what glorifies Him.

How many of you are so famous, the press pesters you constantly for an interview; how many have wealth like the top 1% of our nation; how many of us wield the political power of a Senator? Few if any of those in Berachah. This is just like the Corinthian church. God still uses those with fame, power and all the rest; but only if they are not so impressed by their own wealth, power and fame. Now anyone who believes in Jesus Christ is saved.

1Cor. 1:26b ...brothers, that not many wise men according to the [standard of the] flesh [or, according to human standards] are called, not many mighty, not many noble.

Aorist middle indicative of εκλεγω = to choose, to choose for a particular end or purpose. Believers are chosen for special favor or privilege. God was the One Who designed this plan. When man designs a plan, it is unequal. Μορα = moron. The verb form is μορεινω. In the neuter, this means the foolish things. Κοσμος = world. In the genitive case.

Now let's get back to the paradox.

1. Paul is using paradox to make his point about divine versus human perception.
2. In other words, grace and faith are foolishness to human viewpoint. This is how people view grace and faith.
3. Believers who utilize faith perception and grace are incomprehensible in the eyes of the world. Studying the Bible, to the rest of the world, is foolishness to them.
4. People who are saved by grace through faith out of the Devil's kingdom, out of his world; you are anathema to those who see human merit as the highest good. So many people see human merit or human achievement as the highest good. Do nothing and God blesses you? That is foolish; this is ridiculous.
5. This is a huge reason why Christians are persecuted in the devil's world.
6. To the rich, the powerful and the famous who are full of arrogance and rejection of the gospel, the foolishness of grace and the childishness of faith preclude their participation. It is foolish and childish in their eyes; I'm not going to take part in that.
7. Here is the point of paradox; that which the world calls foolish is the absolute grace and wisdom of God.

This is how Paul gets to the Corinthians; you have gone the way of human wisdom. You are trying to gain power in this small pond. Metabolize doctrine and continue to go. Paul is making a point which gets their attention. What Paul does here is fascinating. The lowest, poorest and most insignificant of the world were the first believers. Tax collectors were hated; fishermen were not great; Galilean peasants. Only Judas was a man of higher stature and education.

Paul presented us with grace orientation; but not with false humility. Ironically, Paul thanked God that he could be used by God. He was a great man of brilliance. He could write of the foolishness of human wisdom, of which he was a part. Paul himself was a paradox. He was a great man of wisdom at one time.

1Cor. 1:27a But God has chosen [for special privilege and favor] the foolish things of the world to confound [or, discredit] the wise;..

1Corinthians 1:27

Lesson #28

September 9, 2004

Another night or two of paradox.

1Cor. 1:27a But God has chosen [for special privilege and favor] the foolish things of the world to confound the wise;..

Two clauses with similar sets of words; εγλεγω, κοσμος, κατεσκυνω, are the common words, already studied in previous lessons. We will focus on the words which are different.

1Cor. 1:27b ...and God has chosen the weak things of the world to confound [or shame] the things which are mighty;

ασθενης = used in v. 25 for the weakness of God. Believers are described as weak. He is thinking of the quality, not the gender. So he uses the neuter. Weak things are believers who cling to grace because they recognize their own weakness. The weak are really the strong and the strong are really the weak. The world sees you as weak, although you are strong; this is the sense of what Paul is teaching.

Paul reflects God's sense of Humor with Irony

8. God could have destroyed the strong, to show His strength; He chose instead to discredit them with what they saw as weakness and foolishness. God wanted the grace principles reflected in this teaching.
9. His grace operates in the weak to discredit the strong.
10. Without the grace of God, even the strongest human is weak. If you don't have salvation through utilizing the grace of God, you are weak.
11. Applied to the circumstances of life. Paul later wrote: For when I am weak, then I am strong; this is a quick summation of 1Cor. 1.

Of the world really means in the world's judgment; we are the weak things judged by the world. The unbeliever has his own power, strength, intelligence, logic.

Εισκυρος = mighty things (neuter gender again); reference. The Jewish legalists contend that they had superior knowledge because they kept the law. That was their strength. These scholars could not keep the Law; that was their weakness. Where there is no dependence on the Lord and His wisdom, there is no strength. Their personal righteousness was simply their self righteousness. Those who rely on the grace of God are always strong. Those who rely on their own resources are always weak; those who depend upon God's resources. The Jewish theologians never saw their strength as weakness. We don't have to do anything for our salvation; we simply sit there and absorb it.

Our only option to live the spiritual life is grace.

Principles of Application

1. Every local church should be a training ground for believers executing the spiritual life. It is like lifting weights for explosive power for serious situations. You need to apply doctrine to every aspect of our life.
2. The strength of every believer is not his human achievement. Bobby suggests that we think about what our greatest personal achievement is. However, our strength is what we have received; not what we do.
3. Every believer has an obligation to grow in grace. That is our strength. Utilize the grace apparatus for perception.
4. Every believer possesses this grace apparatus for perception.
5. Every believer has a spiritual IQ. This is the doctrine in our soul. This develops problem solving devices in the soul. Bible doctrine is our strength. It is all grace. It is always our doing.
6. Problem solving devices, e.g. grace orientation, discredit the might things of human wisdom. When we are grace oriented, we have a world view which is greater than any unbeliever. The more you think about God's grace, the stronger we are. The more we stand back and understand what God is doing for us, the stronger we are. What has God done for me in order to handle this situation. What is the divine viewpoint for this situation? Think grace in everything that we do. Put our life together with grace. Grace is our strength.
7. Doctrine is stronger and wiser than any human intellectual system. It is divine viewpoint; and no man is a match for that. We are smarter than those with human wisdom. Inside of our soul is the absolute wisdom of God.
8. ἐπίγνωσις must be firmly implanted in the right lobe of the soul in order to provide the application of divine viewpoint that by comparison shows human strength to be weakness. You will be able to see where the faults of human logic lie.

Paul will continue to use paradox in the next few verses. Paul more or less repeats the point; and He says that God has elected to privilege those from a lower part of society.

1Cor. 1:28 ...and God has chosen the base things of the world, and things which are despised, and things which are not, in order to bring to nothing things that are;...

Overview

1. These base things (people; individuals and their qualities); these are the low-born people and they are contrasted with the well-born unbeliever with all the human advantages. The lowest born believer is greater than the highest born unbeliever.
2. Most of the disciples of Christ were tax collectors, fishermen, prostitutes. Paul reverses conventional wisdom. The advantage is in the spiritual life. Believers who do not utilize their spiritual resources.

Αγενής = family, lineage, genealogy, father. Alpha primitive is the beginning. Ευγενής is a whole different word. Paul uses the same word with different prefixes. Paul uses two words with different roots and similar meanings for the base. They confirm a Biblical doctrine.

Low Born and High Born

1. People are not born equal.
2. There is not equality at the point of physical birth. There is no such thing as equality in the human realm.
3. All men are created equal means that all are equal under the law (ideally).
4. No two are born equal. Some attractive; some not; some
5. This will not change.
6. The paradox is strength and weakness. Then we have κοσμος. We live in the devil's world until the return of our Lord. Inequality will be with us always. Genetic tampering cannot bring physical equality. Legislated cannot bring equal justice.
7. In regeneration, God accomplishes in that moment what man cannot accomplish ever.
8. This equality begins with union in Christ. Nowhere else do we find that sort of equality.
9. Grace found a way for equality. Regeneration is the key.
10. Our volition bring inequality even into the spiritual realm. Everyone at Berachah has some positive volition, accounting for the inequalities. We all have the option of moving forward or not.
11. We are positioned for equality, and we are all positioned to go forward. Only we can hold ourselves back.
12. This is why the Lord mandates that we grow in grace.

1Corinthians 1:28

Sunday1 Lesson #29

September 12, 2004

Communion service with mentions of the pharisees and the sadducees.

V. 28 reviewed. Paul uses paradox to emphasize how much greater divine wisdom is over human reason.

1Cor. 1:28a ...and God has chosen the base things [or, low-born people] of the world, and things [or people] which are despised,...

Αγενής = family, lineage + the alpha negative. This means from a low lineage, a crappy family. This is contrasted with ευγενής in v. 26, which means a good family, a good lineage. We are not equal and this is a fact of life, always. Equality is impossible in the devil's world. No genetic tampering can bring physical equality and legislation cannot bring equal justice. God accomplishes in the moment of regeneration equality. Our position of Jesus Christ is equal. We are equipped with the grace apparatus for perception. Regeneration is the key to our equality. Every believer has equal privilege and equal opportunity. We advance at different rates. We all have the same equality with every other believer to fulfill the plan of God. We are the only one reborn or regenerated with equality. God will never hold us back. Only we can hold ourselves back. Jesus mandates us to grow in grace; that is the basis of our equality. A verbal noun or a participle εξουθενεω = to treat with contempt, to disdain, to despise. Here it means the despised things. Sometimes, this is even despised by believers, particularly by legalistic believers. The only way to preclude this is to think grace constantly. Sometimes, when we are in trouble, we appeal to the grace of God. However, the grace of God should be part of our lives at every moment. When we feel really great about yourself, the grace of God brings humility into our life. Grace should permeate our thinking. Grace is despised in the devil's world. People hate it.

Low-Born People and Despised People

1. Believers are despised by the world.
2. In our faith, we have rejected human systems of perspicacity, empiricism and rationalism, which causes the world to hate you.
3. Those who are rejected and despised by the world are lifted up by God.

Εκλεγω = election, chosen for special favor, chosen for the plan of God. We are despised of he world, but God has chosen us for special favor.

1Cor. 1:28b ...and things which are not [or, which are considered by some as not existing, although they do exist],...

Concluding Points

1. God has clearly called lowly people.
2. He has elected objects of contempt.
3. God has even called those who are below contempt; the lowest of the low. Those who are not even considered.
4. The world system rejects us as contemptible and inconsequential. However, we are not seen that way by God.

1Corinthians 1:28c      Sunday 2nd Session Lesson #30      September 12, 2004

1Cor. 1:28c ...in order to bring to nothing things that are;...

Καταργεω = to cancel, to abrogate, to render null and void. Those who see us as nonexistent will be those who will be cancelled; rendered null and void.

James 4:6: God gives grace to the humble. Knowledge, power or rank does not impress God. Our accomplishments mean nothing to Him.

The reason that God did all of this will come out in v. 29. This is the triumph of grace and God's plan. God's plan is always designed to glorify God rather than man and his weaknesses.

A Summary of the Egotist

1. The man of learning, of human wisdom, of power, of influence, of wealth often glorifies himself.
2. He sees himself as someone who should be emulated, even worshiped.
3. Extreme egotist, who thinks of himself as first, last and always.
4. This type of person is brought to nothing, because he rejects the grace of God.

1Cor. 1:29 ...so that no flesh should glory in His presence.

Πασα σαρξ = all flesh. Reference to the Romans, Jews, and all mankind. The emphasis is upon man's brief existence on this earth. Aorist subjunctive of καυχασθαι middle or passive in form only; deponent verb with an active meaning. It means to boast, to glory, to joy, to rejoice. However, there is a negative here, which means all flesh will not boast. Subjunctive of emphatic negation. Special stress is placed on the μη (the negative). So that no flesh can every boast... Ενωπιον = before, in the presence of, in the sight of.

Principles of v. 29

1. If even one Jew can get into heaven by keeping the Law, he could boast before God and negate God's grace. "I did it; I kept the Law; I made it."
2. If even one Gentile could get into heaven with his superior intellect and logic, then he could boast before God and negate God's grace.
3. Grace excludes any system of human achievement; rationalism, empiricism, legalism. The most brilliant person cannot get into heaven. Paul had every right to be arrogant, as he was brilliant.
4. No unbeliever can stand in the presence of God at the last judgment to boast that he has done something to merit God's favor. It does not matter where we stand in human estimation. Not by wisdom, intelligence, birth, etc.; none of these things matter.
5. Conclusion and application:
  - a. If anyone could boast before God, this would give the power of flesh in the eyes of men. If God accepted the power and success of mankind, then God's grace would be obscured.
  - b. When God chose the weak things in the eyes of the world, He could then manifest His own power and glory to the maximum. God chose the weak things of this world so that He could manifest His own power and glory.
  - c. In his own power, man can not accomplish anything toward the plan of God; however, in grace provision, he can accomplish great things to the glory of God. The example of the Cathedrals, which are really monuments to the glory of man, to the architects and artisans; and not to God.

- d. The glory belonging to God is the principle of grace.
- e. God said in Isa. 42:8: "I am Jehovah; that is My name; I will not give My glory to another." Grace will not be subverted to another. It was the grace of God that told Moses Who He was. The duplication of the verb to be. God in His grace gave Moses the Law.
- f. God cannot relinquish His glory or His grace to any human being so that they can boast of their own merit. If they do, His grace is totally discredited.

Paul now moves away from this paradox and offers another conclusion. This tells us that we who are regenerate have the righteousness of God. We are redeemed.

Δε υμεις εστε = but you are. This contrasts with those who are humanly strong. The real fools are put to shame. Paul is now drawing from the paradox. You are in Christ and you have found divine wisdom. Εκ + αυτος = from Him [God]. The Father is the source of the divine plan for man. It is because of His plan and His grace. Aorist passive indicative of γινομαι = to become. Dramatic aorist; the present reality is associated with a past event (faith and the baptism of the Holy Spirit); the present reality is our union with Christ. This is only one of these aspects. The foolishness of God is wiser than man. Everything we need for our deliverance is found in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. The wisdom of God in Christ in our union with Christ, will put to shame the wisdom of man, which is true foolishness. It is God's grace which makes a person wise. Paul names wisdom, righteousness, and sanctification. This is how we know the wisdom of God. He became for us righteousness, wisdom, sanctification and redemption... When we are regenerated, we become these things by imputation. We become righteous because we have the righteousness of God in us.

1Cor. 1:30 But of Him you are in Christ Jesus, who of God is made to us wisdom and righteousness and sanctification and redemption;...

We have only the right to boast in God's grace. Our boast is telling someone about Christ; telling about what He has done for us. Salvation is all about God's grace.

1Corinthians 1:28

Wednesday Lesson #31

September 15, 2004

Bobby is going to back up to v. 28:

1Cor. 1:28 The low-born and the despised of the world, God has chosen for special favor. The things which are non existent that He might make nothing the things which do exist.

Those who are non existent in the world will make the world's wisdom nothing.

Summary of v. 28

1. God has called lowly people; He has called objects of contempt and even those who are below contempt.

2. The world's system of the cosmos reject such people as contemptible and inconsequential.
3. Ironically, the utterly rejected ones, these are the ones God has chosen, to make kings and royal priests. All of us who are lowly in the eyes of the world are the one's whom God has chosen to make kings, as we share His kingship. We are royal priests.
4. The low-born and the despised things are believers who have exercised the grace means of perception for salvation. These believers have rejected rationalism and empiricism as systems by which to attain favor with God.
5. So the lowest are the highest, not in the sight of the world, but in the sight of God. What we are doing right now is a 100X more important than what any unbeliever is doing; yet they view this as foolish.

1Cor. 1:29 ...in order that all flesh can never boast in His presence

Those with the money and the power and the influence are no comparison to those who are lowly.

Summation of v. 29

1. This would give the power of the flesh a prominent place in the eyes of man and God would never allow that to be obscured. God would never allow that to be obscured by giving any prominent place to the power of the flesh.
2. No one can boast that they have accomplished something for salvation or something in the spiritual life, apart from the grace of God.
3. By choosing the weak things, God could manifest His own power and his own glory through what He has provided these weak things in His grace. When God provides grace, it glorifies Him.
4. We cannot earn or deserve anything. That is our weakness. What God provides for us becomes our strength. Our sole purpose in life is to glorify God. When we exercise the spiritual assets given us, we glorify God. We glorify God by staying in fellowship and acting in accordance with doctrine.
5. The glory belonging to God is the principle of grace. God's grace is His glory. Our using His grace glorifies Him.
6. God cannot relinquish any of His glory or any of His grace to any human being.
7. No human could before God boast of his human virtue and worth because no matter how humanly worthy he is, he is unacceptable. No matter how good you are, you aren't good enough for God. The only thing that impresses God is what do you do with His grace assets.

Δε ημεεις εστε = but you, you are. This is done for emphasis. You refers to believers in contrast to those who are learned, powerful, rich, etc. Those who appear to be foolish because they have accepted grace discredit the real fools who call grace foolish.

1Cor. 1:30a But of Him you are in Christ Jesus;...

Εκ αὐτοῦ = from the source of Him. God the Father is the source of the divine plan as well as the creator of GAP.

In Christ means being in union with Christ. Election is God's grace in eternity past. All of this is grace. It is what God has done for us.

1Cor. 1:30b ...Who becomes to us wisdom from God: [that is] righteousness and sanctification and redemption;...

Aorist passive indicative of γίνομαι. Dramatic aorist = states the present reality of union with Christ with the certitude of past event. If an event has happened in the past, then you are certain of that event. The present reality is our continued unity with Christ as long as we live. Passive voice means that the believer in union with Christ receives the action of becoming wise. We become wise through salvation and doctrine and we come to know Christ as wisdom. The wisdom of God becomes part of us. The Holy Spirit acts as a human spirit when it comes to the gospel.

Indicative mood of γίνομαι means we have become grace; it is a reality. Christ becomes wisdom to us. The foolishness of God. This is wiser than all the human knowledge and brilliance. If you understand Bobby's little diagram, you understand God's grace and what He has provided for you by way of a spiritual life. The wisdom of man is true foolishness.

Scripture tells us that Christ is the wisdom of God. Matt. 11:27: "All things have been handed over to Me by My Father; and no one knows the Son except the Father; nor does anyone know the Father except the Son, and anyone to whom the Son wills to reveal to him." Christ is the revealer of God. His Word is the wisdom of God. John 1:18 14:6–9 And that from childhood you have known the sacred writings (OT Scripture). Knowing this, we have become wise through salvation. 2Tim. 3:14–17: But continue in the things that you have learned and have been assured of, knowing from whom you have learned them, and that from a babe you have known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make you wise to salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is God-breathed, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfected, thoroughly furnished to every good work.

Back to our passage; it looks like there are four things, but there is one thing, split into 3. The grammatical structure combines the three words into one whole. Paul expresses the wisdom of God through 3 doctrines: righteousness, sanctification and redemption.

Δικαιοσύνη = righteousness. There is an entire doctrine wrapped up in this one word. We will define what Paul has been talking about for an entire chapter: divine wisdom, where it comes from and what it means to us.

Missionary from Brazil will be here after the service. Timothy L.

Bobby mentions about the guy who went onto a plane with an explosive shoe. US District Court William Young gives this sentence: "You are not a soldier in any war; you are a terrorist. Calling you a soldier gives you too much stature. We don't sign documents with terrorists. You are no warrior; you are a terrorist. When you were taken off the plane, you wondered where was the media. What sort of unfathomable hate led you to do what you did. It seems to me that you hate our freedom, our individual freedom, to believe as we choose, to come and go as we choose. It is because we prize individual freedom that you are in this courtroom. It is for freedom's sake that your lawyers have tried so hard. We will bear any burden to continue our freedom. That flag which stands for freedom will fly there longer than you or I."

1Cor. 1:30: But from Him, you, even you, are in Christ, Who became to us wisdom from God: righteousness, sanctification and redemption.

The last three words are expansions for wisdom. We begin with τε and then the 3 words connected by και.

We stopped on δικαιοσυνη.

What is Δικαιοσυνη here?

1. It means much more than simply being good.
2. It means righteousness in the sense of God's standards. God's +R is perfect.
3. Man cannot ever meet the righteous standards of God on his own.
4. If you are going to live with God forever, and have expressed faith alone in Christ alone, then you must be as good as God is.
5. Therefore, you must possess the righteousness of God. You have no other choice. You must have perfect righteousness. However, you cannot. Or do you?
6. Christ has had to become (γινωμαιν) in order for us to meet God's standards. God became righteousness for us that we might have the +R of God.
7. When Christ took on the sins of the world, God the Father's righteous demands, that we have God's +R, were satisfied (propitiation). That is the substitution, Christ for us. Christ satisfied the wrath and demands of God's justice by His death.
8. When we express faith alone in Christ alone, we become the righteousness of God in Him (2Cor. 5:21).
9. So at the moment of salvation, God is now free to impute the +R of Christ to us. He just gives it to us. We all have perfect righteousness. It was given to us; imputed to us the moment that we were saved. Justice has been served by Christ. We have the righteousness of God imputed to each one of us.
10. Δικαιοσυνη refers to imputed righteousness. It is what is given to us at the moment of salvation.

11. This is the same +R that Christ possesses as part of His essence. However, we are still as much a sinner as we have ever been. However, we have perfect +R.

Since we are in union with Christ, we share Christ's righteousness. We have become acceptable to God. Otherwise, we are sorry and God does not accept us. We only are accepted in the beloved if we have His righteousness. It is all grace.

3 great blessings based upon our imputed +R:

1. We are justified.
2. We are beneficiaries of God's personal love. When we have His +R, God can love us personally.. However, before, He could only love us impersonally, based upon His character. John 4:10–11.
3. Beneficiaries of grace blessings and logistical support for spiritual advance.

There is a good chunk of soteriology wrapped up in the word righteousness as found here.

Results of Imputed Righteousness

1. It excludes human righteousness and legalistic systems and legitimate Christian service as a means of receiving blessing from God.
2. Blessing is God's grace that comes through what has been called the grace pipeline. God has perfect +R, perfect +J and are very close and sometimes under the title of δικαιοσύνη. The third one is personal love, which can function because His perfect justice and righteousness have been met. This grace blessings must have a target in us, which is imputed righteousness. God gives us blessing because of His righteousness in us. It is all His grace.
3. Sharing His +R is the foundation for building a system of experiential virtue, also based upon grace. Part of the blessings which come down the grace pipeline is equal privilege and equal opportunity in the Christian life to advance. Attaining this virtue means that you maintain your fellowship and you advance to the high ground.
4. When this happens, this engenders what could be called a capacity righteousness. Capacity righteousness means you can grow in righteousness, and it is a potential and it is based upon the utilization of our spiritual skills.
5. As you gain capacity righteousness, you can always be relaxed about the failure, sinfulness and evil which is around you and not become self-righteous.

When we stand at some future time before the judgment seat of Christ. When our name is called, Jesus can answer for us. He presents His own infinite righteousness for our own merit.

ἁγιοςμος = Sanctification. This is something which is part of our union with Christ. From Him, you are in Christ. Sanctification makes our human nature holy. "Sanctify them in truth; Your word is truth." (John 17:17). You experience a greater righteousness as we mature. Christ becomes experiential wisdom for us. As believers, we will all be eventually glorified. All of us, as imperfect as we are, will be glorified.

One more word to look at ἀπολυτροσις = redemption. This is deliverance from the slave market of sin by the payment of a ransom. This was paid by Jesus Christ while he hung on the cross. We can simply walk out of the slave market of sin by faith alone in Christ alone. He is our deliverer from the grave, which cannot hold us (1Cor. 15:55–57). There is also a day of redemption. This is mentioned in Eph. 4:30, which is the day our salvation will be consummated. The divine wisdom which is in our soul is from Jesus Christ. Three aspects to this, and all of it is wisdom for us. The saving knowledge of Christ, and redemption, sanctification and imputed +R are all wrapped up in this. We have the wisdom of the mind of Christ. There is our capacity +R and our experiential sanctification and our redemption. We have the foresight of knowing God's provision for our eternal future.

Union for Christ, which is the basis for almost everything that we have, is one of the most important doctrines that we can have. It is not of ourselves, none of it is. It is the unmerited grace of God.

1Cor. 1:31 This is taken straight from the Old Testament. Paul appeals to the Old Testament for authority. The pharisees and rabbis had to memorize the Torah. He pulls exactly the right quotation to use. Jer. 9:24 is condensed here and is close to vv. 19, 30, etc.

Missionary from Brazil Tim L. He is a missionary's son. 187 million people in Brazil. His father died in 2002 and stayed in a place where there were Italians. Returned to the US was something which this guy experienced once every 5 years. He found it to be a really nice place to hang out. He studied in Brazilian schools. His studies and college all in Portugese. He came in contact with Berachah in his college days, and at that time, had to decide whether he was going to take Christianity seriously. He always had to be in church as a child at home. When he was in college, he had to choose for himself. It is when he came in contact with Berachah when it put a lot of things together for him. He always taught a lot.

He took on the work of a camp of his father. The people were not supporting it. He wanted the Brazilians to feel it was theirs. They were only concerned with what happens to the assets when it was abandoned. People were charged to stay there and it became self-supporting. He is moving away from the camp and his son is taking over the camp. He had the opportunity to teach there as well. Most of his teaching was a one-shot deal. There is so much more to Christianity than avoiding hell. There is so much more when it comes to the blessing we are given here on earth. When he was invited back to various places, he would be able to teach a lot more.

His father was skeptical of Berachah. He stopped teaching and went to a church and stopped being a front man, and he was up front with them and said, "I study under a guy who is very controversial." It turns out that there was someone who was there who was also turned onto the Thieme. They had the faith-rest book. He worked there for 17 years as a teacher.

Of course, they also translate. He is asked, where do you get this or that? After many people showed interest, he organized a translation. Brazilians are not great readers. Some did read them. Started classes where the basic doctrines were taught. Many of Bob's books are rendered into Portugese. More people in the world who speak Portugese in the world than Spanish, even though this language is found only in Brazil in South America (I believe). Also in Africa, Angola, Mozambique, and a few other places. Beautiful beaches and coast land. Most have settled along the coast land. Just recently that cities on the interior have begun to grow a great deal. 20 years ago, these were just groups of shacks and huts. Now there are lights and asphalt and electricity.

His father was one of the founders of the Brethren churches. If you walk in with a Bible, they ask, do you teach? And then they say, "The pulpit is yours." Not a lot of sound doctrine is taught, therefore. A lot of singing, and they like that. When someone begins teaching, the members wander about and get water, etc. 50% maybe pay attention. Many ask, are you sure about that? Most are from a Catholic background and they concentrate on the literal blood of Christ. Some of that is found in the Brethren and Protestant churches.

Isa. 53:10: His soul was put as expiation for us.

He just moved to a place in Brazil. You'll be invited all over the place for the novelty. Most of the churches were started by groups of people, without pastors. They do evangelize and they are not charismatic and they do value the word of God. They don't get all these open messages. However, they don't have pastors. 75 churches in this state, and he has taught in about 8 of them. In about 2 years, only a handful will continue to invite you back.

1Corinthians 1:30

Sunday First Session #33

September 19, 2004

The filling of the spirit brings truth and knowledge into our souls. Still in v. 30. This verse gives us a complete Christology.

1Cor. 1:30: But from Him, you, even you, are in Christ, Who became to us wisdom from God: righteousness, sanctification and redemption.

Paul is being emphatic here: "You, even you [the Corinthians] are in Christ, Who became to us wisdom from God: +R and sanctification and redemption." This grammatical structure combines these three words into knowledge. The first word is δικαιοσυνη. Man can never reach God's perfect standards. Bobby has been told by a gf or two that he was perfect; however, he already knew that he was not. Christ has to become our righteousness in order for us to meet the standard of God.

God's wisdom is revealed in what Jesus did for us. Jesus fully satisfies the demands of divine justice. God chose to find a way to redeem man and yet not compromise His character. This is great wisdom. When we stand before the judgment seat of Christ, God will look upon the righteousness of His Son in order for us to be accepted in the beloved. No matter how good you are; no matter how elevated your opinion is of yourself, God does not share the same opinion. In this study of imputation and justification, we are caused to see Jesus Christ from the standpoint of divine wisdom. This is God's plan, which is His wisdom. Righteousness is a doctrine, and that in our soul is divine viewpoint.

The second word which explains divine wisdom is ἁγιοσμος, which is positional sanctification. The fundamental idea here is belonging to Christ. Our union with Christ is our only means of sanctifying ourselves before God. This word means that we are set apart to God. It is a condition, which is not a feeling or an attitude. We have no reason for self righteousness or for boasting. This also means to be set apart from the corruption of the devil's world experientially. "Sanctify them in the truth; Your word is truth." When we have ἐπίγνωσις, we have metabolized doctrine in our souls. We are never perfect, but progressive or experiential sanctification is something which is progressive. Doctrine or divine viewpoint becomes wisdom for us. There is also a culmination to sanctification: we will ultimately be glorified, when we receive our resurrection bodies, which is our heritage, which is what we have for eternity. We will live face to face with our Lord together. In Christ, we are sanctified.

Απολυτρωσις απολυτρωσις we are removed from the slave market of sin by having our ransom paid. We are slaves to sin and we do not have the financial means to buy our way out. God pays for us to leave this slave market. Eph. 4:30 is a day of redemption, when our salvation is consummated. That is when we receive our resurrection body, which will occur at the twinkling of an eye. We have a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ. This is part of our knowledge. Christ has become wisdom for us. We have the wisdom of the mind of Christ, divine viewpoint, our experiential wisdom. This is why we are here. We also have the foresight of knowing our eternal future. There will be a day of redemption, when we are fully sanctified. This is insight and wisdom which is beyond anything the world knows. Our spiritual life depends upon this.

1Cor. 1:31 ...so that, according as it is written, "He who glories, let him glory in the Lord."

Paul will complete this chapter by quoting a little from the Old Testament. These people boasted about a lot of things, and most of these things are about themselves. This is an unbelievable passage. Paul knew the Old Testament and he quotes something from the book of Jeremiah which was a perfect parallel. This is a condensed version of Jer. 9:24.

Jer 9:3 "Their tongues shoot out lies like a bow shoots arrows-- A mighty army of liars, the sworn enemies of truth. They advance from one evil to the next, ignorant of me." GOD's Decree.

Jer 9:4 "Be wary of even longtime neighbors. Don't even trust your grandmother! Brother schemes against brother, like old cheating Jacob. Friend against friend spreads malicious gossip.

Jer 9:5 Neighbors gyp neighbors, never telling the truth. They've trained their tongues to tell lies, and now they can't tell the truth.

Jer 9:6 They pile wrong upon wrong, stack lie upon lie, and refuse to know me." GOD's Decree.

This is the same reminder that we need to think grace. There is nothing we can do to please God unless it is through His grace. This is the only way that God is pleased with us. His grace has provided that for us. It is all about what He has done for us.

Jer 9:23 GOD's Message: This is a message from God directly; this is not simply Jeremiah's opinion. Paul uses Christ instead of YHWH here. "Don't let the wise boast of their wisdom. Now go back and look at 1Cor. 1:19: Where is the wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the lawyer of this world? Has not God made foolish the wisdom of this world? For since, in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom did not know God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save those who believe. Don't let heroes brag of their exploits. Recall again that Paul mentioned Not many mighty are called. These men are insignificant before God. The Mighty are not mighty, the weak are mighty. Don't let the rich brag of their riches. Here is a person with all of the details of life.

Paul is essentially teaching Jer. 9 here. He makes several references back to that passage, without a direct quotation.

There are people in Pensacola who have had their entire lives blown away. One day they have it and the next day they do not. This is a situation where it is imperative that you can depend upon God and God's grace. Every day, every moment, you must apply what you know of truth. When faced with a catastrophe, then step back and look at what has occurred.

Jeremiah 9:24

Sunday Second Session #34

September 19, 2004

Once the details of life become your God and your priority, then you are messtup. You must be able to step back from disaster and see where you are. Spend some time on your knees and ask "Why is God giving this to me now for my blessing?" It is a golden opportunity to sit back and to watch God take care of everything.

Jer 9:24 If you brag, brag of this and this only: This is what you should be boasting about. That you understand and know me. You are here caused to learn. You come to know wisdom from doctrine in your soul; gnôsis is converted to epignôsis. I'm GOD, and I act in loyal love. I do what's right and set things right and fair, and delight in those who do the same things. These are my trademarks." GOD's Decree.

God may bring disaster our way just so others can watch you handle it. Sometimes, you must be kicked in the head really hard to get it. Our travels through these pressures often result in great blessing from God. Job had his things returned twofold. In order to receive blessings from God through the grace pipeline, we must have a target that God can bless. God cannot bless our self righteousness; He cannot bless our good deeds. God can only bless His imputed +R. There is no need to boast in money, in things. When he get lost in boasting about ourselves, that is arrogance.

Nothing worse than to be slaves to the details of life. Those who have nothing and desire everything.

Conclusion of Chapter 1

1. Paul has clearly presented grace in the form of the grace apparatus for perception. In the paradox, Paul teaches great things. You may be foolish in the eyes of the world, but you are everything in the eyes of God.
2. The reality of God's blessings and our nonexistent part of procuring them.
3. All human machinations of wisdom and power and wealth are foolishness in the face of divine wisdom, power and resources and eternity.
  - a. How hard we strive in this life for a short amount of time. We have more riches than we can possibly imagine.
4. No one is saved or grows to maturity using human wisdom, strength, or worldly position (influence or power). One is only saved through God's wise plan via the cross.
5. Paul is now ready to continue his defense of grace and his method of teaching to the Corinthians. These people need grace. They want to be on top. They want to dictate to the others policy. They want the power. Paul will show us in chapter 2 that his own wisdom would never save others. Paul came to Corinth as an orator, but he did not use oratory. He could have discussed philosophy with the best of them, but he did not approach them from that standpoint. He approached the Corinthians as a witness. Your powers of persuasion will not be enough to convince anyone else. It is the gospel of Jesus Christ which reaches other people. True wisdom is God's viewpoint.

1Cor. 2 is where Paul will discuss what he has already opened the door for us to look at. He will continue with the gospel and his sermon on true wisdom vs. false wisdom.

1Corinthians 2:1

Lesson #35

September 22, 2004

Second to the last song, Danny Boy, and Bobby says they are interesting lyrics.

Paul has given a fabulous expose of human logic and human wisdom, which have no place in the spiritual life. Paul continues his sermon of human wisdom vs. divine wisdom. When he got to Corinth, Paul had to communicate in a grace way. Purpose for the Corinthian believers was to tell them they were way out of line, and heading in the opposite direction from spiritual maturity. " You need to remember where you came from and you need to know where you are going."

The character of the gospel and the character of grace explained in the previous chapter. Paul isn't giving a defense of the faith, nor does he have to prove why Jesus is Who He is, etc. Paul presented the gospel in a straightforward way. Nothing is more powerful than the grace of God. Grace is the opposite of what we are used to. We are used to earning something. Everything is related to our ability; when you tell someone that they do not have to do anything for this gift, that it is free and unearned, and for eternity; it is a powerful message that they have never heard before. Paul reminds the Corinthians that salvation is God's gracious gift and that is what counts. These Corinthians have lost this. The gospel epitomizes grace. The plan of God is grace. Our first contact with grace comes with the gospel. That is only the beginning. Everything that we have and everything that we gain is by the grace of God. God's grace and plan is in control. As long as we stay with that mode, with the mental attitude, then we cannot be defeated in this life. We are now full of the foolishness of the world. When we are foolish according to the world, we are wise. The gracious provision for us is even the means of perceiving of the gospel is grace.

Common grace = the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit. He convicts the unbeliever of sin, righteousness and judgment. Efficacious grace acknowledges and transforms the faith of the spiritually dead person into life eternal. God the Holy Spirit makes that faith efficacious.

Election Review

1. The sovereignty of God willed the highest and best for every believer.
2. Election is the plan of God for believers only.
3. God elected believers in the sense that, He knew ahead of time, if given free will and given the choice, that they would freely choose to believe in Christ, uncoerced by God.
4. Then God decreed in eternity past that such an act of faith would take place. He made certain that an offer of salvation would occur. He did not make us believe.
5. He decreed that salvation would occur and that all of the gracious advantages would be given to those who believe in Jesus Christ.

Grace and faith are the life of the believer. When Paul arrived in Corinth, there were no believers or very few. Corinth was a hotbed of Greek philosophy. They deified human lust with a 1000 temple prostitutes. Paul had just left Athens with a brilliant speech on Mars Hill, and there was little by way of response. He presented the gospel in a brilliant approach, but it was done in the power of apologetics and human wisdom, which is not enough. You cannot persuade anyone of this subject matter. Paul is a whipped dog and he got out of Athens as quick as he could.

He began to address some of the same kinds of people in Corinth and he attempted to prove the gospel. This did not work in Corinth. The Jews tried to kill him; Gallio did not like the Jews and the way they handled things; and the Jewish leader got beat up and he finally believed.

Paul then changed his approach. He put aside his logic and education and ability to persuade, and he functioned by God the Holy Spirit, teaching Christ crucified. Many believed and many were baptized by Paul's new approach. The church at Corinth was formed. Paul is properly utilizing the grace of God in his presentation of the gospel. If we make an issue of yourself, you fail. It is not about you, but what the Holy Spirit does through you.

End of chapter 1: Let him who boasts, boast in this... Speak the truth and glorify God in so doing that. Paul changed his approach in presenting the gospel and he became effective; there were great results and the church at Corinth was born. This gives us the application that witnessing involves God's power, not ours.

Witnessing

1. Exhale of επιγνωσις from the right lobe of the soul. This means that you must inhale something first to exhale. You begin to understand more and more about God's grace and what occurred in order for you to be saved. That is your inhale. Then you can clearly present the gospel. You can only exhale when you have something in your soul to exhale. It is our responsibility to give the gospel to the unbelieving world. Have you ever practiced giving the gospel? Can you make it clear and precise to the unbeliever. 10 or 12 pastors were asked to give the gospel and most of them were very confusing. In our congregation, we should have no excuse. That is our responsibility. This type of επιγνωσις is absolutely critical in order to present the gospel.
2. The content that Paul preached was from his επίγνωσις understanding of grace that is necessary to make the gospel lucid.
3. Paul communicated from his spiritual IQ and not from his human IQ.
4. The Holy Spirit brings to mind at just the right time with just the right approach. You might spend years with a personal who is an unbeliever. However, there may be the one moment when the door is open. The Holy Spirit is intimately involved in timing.
5. This is when the unbeliever is most open to the message and when you are ready to give them the message. If you are ready, the Holy Spirit will provide the opportunity.
6. Since this was Paul's approach in Corinth, he was very successful; he was not successful in Athens.

1Cor. 2:1 And I, brothers, when I came to you, did not come with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring to you the testimony of [or, proof concerning] God.

Υπεροκη λογος = superiority of words. Paul probably knew Aramaic, Hebrew, Latin and Greek. But he did not come to them with superior words. Σοφια is the other thing which he did not come with. Words refers to the method and wisdom refers to the content. He did not come to Corinth to speak with human reasoning. He did not come to argue with those who were experts in logic and philosophy. Paul essentially asks, "If the words and wisdom of the Greek scholars and debaters so persuasive, then why did I not use them in my message of the gospel?" Paul has a far greater means of presenting the gospel. Rom. 1:16: For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of salvation to everyone who believes; to the Jew first and also to the Greek.

A Summation of Paul's Argument and the Gospel

1. God produced a system of perception by grace rather than use the persuasive abilities of man.
2. Since God's plan is grace, no one can be saved because of human intelligence or brilliant rhetoric.
3. People are saved because of the grace apparatus for perceiving the gospel.

4. God does not ever use human resources as part of His plan for salvation. It is not us, it is the grace of God. If you forget this, the grace of God is lost in your presentation. We do not have to do anything; nor for salvation; not for the presentation of the gospel. You must drive home the point of grace. God does use people in order to communicate His gospel. We communicate via the power of the Holy Spirit; we communicate His grace message; and we communicate in order to receive a grace response.
5. Therefore, human intelligence and human eloquence are never the means of witnessing. A good salesperson would have trouble with this. He is used to closing the sale. We have that tendency, but we have to fight that.
6. It is presenting the grace message of the gospel and allowing the Holy Spirit to do the rest. Practice in the mirror and then present it.

1Cor. 2:1 ...declaring to you the testimony of [or, proof concerning] God.

Καταγγελλω = to announce, to communicate according to grace standards. Προς + ου which is a dative of advantage; it is the advantage of the Corinthians to be the recipient of salvation. Grace communication is the power of God in persuading human free will of the truth of the gospel. The power of the gospel does the persuading; we do not. Debater's superior knowledge and technique is an attempt to coerce free will.

Μαρτυριον = proof, testimony, a court testimony. You live the truth in such a way as to attract the unbeliever. The proof of the gospel in its presentation to the unbeliever is our life. Witnessing to the unbeliever is our life. How do you live the spiritual life? The life that we have is unique. The MENTAL ATTITUDE that it engenders is unique. Do people see that in you? If they can, they are going to be curious; and that precedes what you say. The unbeliever is critical and alert. The gospel challenges him. When he observes you, he watches you and determines is it worth changing.

1Corinthians 2:1

Lesson #36

September 23, 2004

We didn't cancel class, even though Ivan is on the way.

There is a proof or testimony which can be afforded, which is living the truth. Our life is a testimony to others. The unbeliever observes you living the truth; and they may observe you speaking the truth. The first, obviously, is the most difficult. Operating under impersonal love is something that not many people observe. Relaxed mental attitude helps as well. You should not use theatrical friendliness or gushing hypocrisy, this does not impress the unbeliever. When you interact with the unbeliever and you begin from a point of arrogance, then you have nothing to give them. One of the most effective ways to show the unbeliever the strength of God's power, is grace under pressure.

Grace Under Pressure

1. There is never a moment when a believer has a greater affect than we he is under pressure and he handles it with poise and grace.
2. Grace under pressure—here, this is something for the world to see and it is obvious.
3. Grace under pressure is a believer who responds to a crisis with eyes on the Lord rather than reacts with eyes o self.
4. The one who exhibits grace under pressure keeps the bigger picture of God's plan in mind when all hell breaks loose all around them. You must look at the wider picture.
5. This is one of the greatest witnesses of the spiritual life in action; that is proof of the gospel. That is attractive.

The unbeliever watches the believer with doctrine very carefully. He is alert and watches your every move critically. He wants to prove you wrong in his own mind. You threaten his very existence. It challenges his way of life, his philosophy. If he does not understand your relaxed mental attitude and what you have he cannot duplicate; then this throws him out of wack. It challenges his life. The Holy Spirit can handle him and make the gospel real to him.

Testimony of the Life

1. Practical application definition: parents should remember that your children will follow your example instead of your advice. You can talk until you are blue in the face, and it makes no difference.
2. The testimony of your life can be a hang up for the unbeliever. Your spiritual life may not match your words. The unbeliever is obviously not grace oriented. Mature believer can overlook your faults; unbelievers will not.
3. The Holy Spirit can do His work in spite of you; even if you are a hang up for someone. If you present your words, they may plant the seat for someone else. The message of grace has power. The Word of God is alive and powerful.
4. The testimony of the life is the personal condition of the life exhibited by the believer which cause the unbeliever to want to know about Jesus Christ.
5. Once in the circumstances, the unbeliever will receive the verbal proof from the gospel. You can speak the gospel after your life.

...of the proof concerning God.

Presentation and Response

1. You inhale doctrine and exhale the gospel. You must know the gospel in order to speak it. You must know soteriological doctrines. It must come from your soul.
2. Communication comes from God the Holy Spirit. You know it is the power for reception. The reception for the gospel is grace. The Holy Spirit acts as a human spirit in order to make the gospel understandable.

3. The response is grace; non meritorious faith perception.
4. Then the Holy Spirit makes that faith efficacious for salvation. Our faith does not regenerate us; God the Holy Spirit regenerates us. It is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit Who places us into Christ.
5. Grace and faith unite at the cross. Grace of God at the cross is our gift.

1Cor. 2:2 For I determined not to know anything among you except Jesus Christ and Him crucified [or, even He Who was crucified].

Paul's sole purpose was to go to Corinth and present Christ as the only means of salvation. We have the postpositive γαρ, which backs up what has been said. What is the gospel in philosophical terms (which is not the way to do it). Do not present Christ as a great rabbi or a great teacher. Trying to prove the Christ is the Messiah; that Christ is God. Do not present Christ as the starting point for the bettering of the human race.

Aorist active indicative of κρίνω + ου which means I did not decide. This concept of grace is fundamental. If you do not understand grace, then you do not understand the gospel. Grace must be understood.

Perfect active infinitive of οἶδα τι = to know anything. Paul knew in the past up until that very moment of the epistle. This is all he knew. He decided not to know anything. The only thing he decided what was in his soul in the right lobe. Paul decided to stick with the gospel, which was epignôsis doctrine from his soul.

Presenting the Gospel

1. If you are not presenting the gospel, it will not strike home. We must leave the gospel in the hands of God the Holy Spirit after we present Christ.
2. Our tendency is to try to prove the gospel.
3. You will get trampled if you are trying to prove something to someone else.
4. The results belong to God the Holy Spirit and common grace and not in our persuasive pleadings.
5. When we witness out of fellowship:
  - a. We can easily get sidetracked from the pure message of the gospel.
  - b. If we witness in this process, the whole thing is human good. It is God's mandate to be filled with the Holy Spirit. The gospel may reach this person; however, best to speak from the gospel.

Σταυρω = to be crucified. His substitutionary death was effective then and it is effective now. Paul also in his presentation not only proclaimed the message of the cross, but of the resurrection as well. When you present the gospel, and Christ dies for our sins; it is important to tell that He is risen; that He is alive. The resurrection is part of the gospel. We believe in a living God. Paul came armed with epignôsis in his soul.

Roman Catholic art generally has Christ on the cross. However, he is no longer on the cross. The cross is empty.

Paul had just come from Athens, and he was brilliant and logical and he got thrown out of town. He got no results. Paul failed in Athens. There was the right time for Paul to enter Corinth. He came into Corinth with a new perspective. He was down and beaten; depressed and despondent. God wanted Paul to pick himself up and dust himself off and start over again. Don't let failure debilitate you. He failed and now he has a new mission. A football team cannot function if they are worried about a previous bad play. This was a test for Paul. He was being tested to further his personal spiritual growth; he also evaluated himself and he realized that he needed to make some changes. God is telling Paul that he needs to make some changes. Our life may be headed in a particular direction and then suddenly, a test comes along, and it causes us great problems. When you look back at the test, you decide, what did you do wrong and what changes do you need to make. God sometimes takes you apart so God can put you back together in a different way. If you pass the test, part of the test is making the proper changes. We tend to hate change; it is too unsettling. You might as well get it right the first time. You can't be tested without viewing what God wants us to get out of it at the end of it.

1Corinthians 2:3

Sunday #1 Lesson #37

September 26, 2004

Paul arrived in Corinth after failing in Athens. He was at a low point and he knew just a couple people in Corinth. He was depressed and despondent. This was a test for Paul, which furthered his spiritual growth. Paul had made some mistakes in Athens, and these tests were allowing him to make changes and to advance.

Job lost everything; he was not under discipline, as the book makes clear. He lost everything that he had. He showed no self-pity; he did not cry. He sat on an ash heap and tore his own clothes. However, he said, "The Lord gives, the Lord takes away; blessed be the name of the Lord." This is the key to our spiritual life. The speed and accuracy of the recovery is what counts. We rebound and keep moving in the spiritual life. We should not be stagnate in life in general; there are changes ahead. Our spiritual life should match what we speak. Handling pressure with poise and grace, which makes you someone for the world to see. A believer in the crisis keeps his eyes on the Lord. The unbeliever watches the believer's actions; the unbeliever won't listen to you, if you have nothing to show them. If you live just like them, then you have nothing to offer them.

Προς + ου nothing but unbelievers in Corinth. Paul had no human power. Paul's weakness in arriving to Corinth, was in fact his strength. What Paul had done in Athens was fail. He knew he needed to make that change. Paul uses the preposition ἐν three times in this verse, following each with a noun, each one being a weakness in Paul.

Εν + αθηνεια, which is a state of mind. Don't confuse physical strength with spiritual strength. It all depends upon what you have in your soul. Paul needs to meet the situation in Corinth. He is a man with plenty of energy. Paul cannot meet the situation in Corinth if he uses apologetics. That was his mistake in Athens.

Ev + φόβος Paul has been in many different disasters. Paul is saying, "I am in fear." However, this was not a fear of personal danger; it was a fear of not fulfilling God's plan for his life. This was not a failure he wanted to have. Paul had a responsibility to fulfill; and that fear of not fulfilling it motivated him. This is a good fear. He was afraid to fail. Paul did not want to run away from God's plan for him. We all have moments of fear and regrets; but succumbing to fear and not performing is the problem. Cowardice is being debilitated by fear; courage is acting despite fear. Both have fear. Paul's fear did not make him inert in Corinth. His was a good fear. He wanted to do the task that God had for him. Failure to complete the plan of God is not an option for us, no matter what our justification is. Paul ends up examining himself, despite this fear. Paul applied a doctrine and reached a conclusion. Fear led him to a solution. Paul cannot resort to his own drive, personality or human strengths. When you are whipped, that is when grace is the strongest thing in your life. Use these resources; don't forget them. Usually, this is something bad; but here, it is something wonderful.

Ev + τρομος = trembling, which is the physical manifestation of fear. Paul has the motivation from fear. Fear and trembling both go together, like grace and peace.

1Cor. 2:3 And I was with you in weakness and in fear, and in much trembling.

The content of Paul's message comes from his thinking; he came with doctrine that was επιγνωσις in his soul. Inhaling the gospel means that we understand the basic doctrines of soteriology. When it is time to speak it, it comes straight out of our soul. We can make the clearest and best representation of the gospel. Ουκ + πειθος = negation + to entice. Then λογος. Not with enticing words. Paul did not use human wisdom. He depended upon God's wisdom.

Then we get the positive approach. Ev + αποδεικσις, which means to set forth in a stringent proof. These are the instruments of the power of proof of the Holy Spirit. Some take this to mean a visible miracle. The Jewish empiricists looked for signs and wonders; however, they rejected them as a part of the Messiah; they refused to recognize Jesus Christ.

Paul could probably speak Greek, Aramaic, Hebrew and Latin; and he would be very persuasive. The power is in the gospel, and not in your delivery. You deliver it in your own style and your own way. The Holy Spirit controls the communicator by bringing to mind by the things which are necessary.

1Cor. 2:4 And my speech and my public teaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power,

Principals of v. 4

1. Human intelligence + human logic + enticing human proofs will not bring the unbeliever to Christ.
2. It pleases God if we use His system of perception.

3. Human wisdom and enticing words are not necessary to evangelize the unbeliever with high intelligence.
4. Cognizance of the unbeliever's religion or philosophy is not an issue. You can give the gospel, whether you know their position or not. Don't be intimidated by human wisdom or human intelligence. It is the power of the Holy Spirit which convinces the unbeliever. You're not talking about mathematics or their religion; you are talking about their salvation. Christianity is a religion of no works; that is, we do not have to do something in order to be saved.
5. You must have, however, a thorough knowledge of the gospel and be filled with the Holy Spirit for maximum effectiveness in our presentation. Our presentation should be accurate. Bobby wants us to stand in the mirror and give the gospel and determine if we know enough to make the gospel clear. See if you understand what redemption and reconciliation are. You should be able to be flexible and accurate. Concise and clear presentation of the gospel. You must understand grace; you must understand the hypostatic union. The simple concepts of the gospel are second nature can be revolutionary to someone else who has never heard it before. Grace is very foreign to most people. It is powerful and will have a great impact upon them. It can convict the unbeliever, whereas, your learned logic will not. There are times you wish you could force someone to believe in Jesus Christ; but you know that you cannot. No matter who you face in witnessing, you can give this in confidence.
6. This is Paul's point when he said his message was the stringent proof of the Spirit and of power.
7. The creation of a public relations image is not a substitute for the Holy Spirit. You do not have to learn how to present apologetics in order to make an impact.
8. It is the grace system that saves; nothing else. The presentation of the gospel from the mouth of a spirit-filled believer saves.
9. Popularity or celebrity status is not more enticing than your spirit-filled presentation. Some think that the presentation of a public persona will have a greater effect. However, this brings no one to Christ. Let's say that you are extremely wealthy, but you bumble a presentation of the gospel because you have nothing in your soul. The poorest person in the congregation can make an accurate presentation, and it will have a greater impact on the person who hears it.
10. Human attractiveness will not bring the unbeliever to Christ. Some of the worst personalities ever can give a great presentation of the gospel.
11. Human rapport and even love will not entice the unbeliever to believe in Christ. You cannot win your best friend to Christ based upon your friendship. Gf's cannot win the bf's to Christ and vice versa based upon their mutual feelings. Ditto for wives and husbands. This should tell us just how ineffective we are and just how powerful the gospel is. Do not bombard someone with the gospel. One presentation can send the Holy Spirit to work. Now, you might present it twice, to clear things up; but it is the Holy Spirit Who makes it clear to the unbeliever. You may be heartbroken when someone close to you will not believe. 1Cor. 1:21: God took pleasure in the foolishness of the message. This message carries the power of God. God set up a way that anyone can hear and believe. It is the greatest system of perfection that ever existed; the great leveler. Gospel presented from the right lobe of the believer. This message glorifies God because we use His assets.

1Corinthians 2:4b

Sunday #2 Lesson #38

September 26, 2004

We stopped with point #4.

Now v. 5 should make sense to us. The faith of the Corinthians did not rest upon human logic. The grace system of perspicacity: the Holy Spirit acts as the human spirit and we have common grace, which is the Holy Spirit's convicting ministry. Then we have positive volition or not; when we believe, that involves efficacious grace. Regeneration means that we then receive a human spirit.

An idiot must have brainpower in order to understand higher-level mathematics; however, any person can understand the gospel. This is the only place where there is any sort of equality. The Corinthian church is at war; they all hate each other. They all want to become the big fish in the little pond. Paul is reminding them of their departure from grace.

Sequence of Events for Corinthians

1. The Corinthians began as unbelievers who appropriated grace from God by expressing faith in the Savior. They became born again.
2. Now they are believers and they GAP it to maturity.
3. Paul left an Apollos took over the church, and the Corinthians departed from grace. It is not necessarily because of Apollo.
4. They decided that they knew better, and so began the war of the factions. I am of Paul, I am of Peter, I am of Apollo, I am of Christ; the only thing that they were is divided. It was simply an excuse to be part of a faction.
5. Bobby's said grace 150 times today. These factions had no grace in them. When grace leaves the soul, you are a loser. Your whole way of life depends upon what God does for you; not your ability. When you are going to persuade somebody; that is not to be dependent upon persuasive arguments.
6. The Corinthians had reverted to the same modus operandi as unbelievers; their old habits. They were still saved; trying to climb their way to the top using their own abilities. God has a purpose for us, depending upon our spiritual gift and growth. No need to claw your way to the top. Remember God's grace. God is waiting to find the lost and put them where they belong. No matter how bad things are, it is for one reason. Everything in life will lead to blessing. As believers in Christ, our life should be lived in the light of eternity. What matters in life. Bobby will be 55 years old this month. The years we spend on this earth are a drop in the bucket compared to eternity. What is your purpose in life? To glorify the Lord. Remember the grace of God and remember to live your life in the light of eternity. Our years are short and eternity is long.

Email: "Does God exist?" The professor, "if God created everything, then He created evil; and work defines who we are, so God is therefore evil." We are the creators of evil. Student asks him, "Does cold exist?" "It does not; as cold is merely the absence of heat. We have created a world to describe lack of heat. Then does darkness exist? Darkness is the absence of light. Light we can study, but darkness cannot be studied. A simple ray of light breaks into the darkness. Does evil really exist?" Professor, "Yes, it does. We see in it man's actions every day." Student: "Evil does not exist unto itself. Evil is simply the absence of God. It is like darkness and cold, a word devised by man to describe lack of God." Not a good apologetic. Unlikely to accomplish what it wants to accomplish. There is no power in what is found there. Confusing and polemic. Unlikely that the professor, at this point, chooses to believe in Christ.

Our purpose is not to put people down, but to teach the gospel. An apologetic does not get us where we need to go.

This is the purpose of Paul in teaching perspicacity by grace. Spiritually dead person has no human spirit, so the Holy Spirit acts as the human spirit, transferring gospel information in the soul so that the person can believe or not. Paul reminds these Corinthians of grace and their departure from it. The Corinthians were unbelievers, but Paul presented to gospel to them, and they believed and were regenerated. Then they grew in grace. However, they departed from God's grace and they got out of practice; they stopped rebounding and stopped growing. This began the war of the factions in Corinth. No grace orientation; all arrogance and a power grab. We want control of the church, because we know best. They were now scheming to climb their way to the top of the heap in the Corinth church. Paul wants the Corinthians to see their problems and to turn things around.

Scar Tissue

1. This is another word for hardness of heart.
2. It is analogous to the lungs; scar tissue on the lungs. That decreases your ability to metabolize oxygen and put it into the bloodstream.
3. Scar tissue prevents doctrine from being metabolized into the right lobe.
4. Scar tissue prohibits the circulation of doctrine in the stream of consciousness. It effectively blocks scar tissue from γνᾶσις into ἐπίγνωσις. No divine wisdom in the soul.
5. Scar tissue is the result of prolonged residence and function inside the cosmic system.
6. Scar tissue of the soul is that spiritual malady that results in the total loss of spiritual momentum. The stream of consciousness is blocked.
7. It results in loss of faith perception; or perceptive ability.
8. The believer forgets what doctrine he has learned and he cannot apply any doctrine to the circumstances of his life.

Hina = begins a purpose clause. Human merit is the epitome of the cosmic system and of human wisdom. Grace perspicacity cannot stand on this cosmic system. Then πιστις = non meritorious system of grace perception, faith. Inhale is an analogy. Gospel is absorbed into the soul. Inhaling oxygen is necessary to start life; that oxygen also maintains your life. The same is true of the gospel and doctrine. You must inhale the gospel in order to begin your spiritual life. The more you learn, the better your spiritual life. The more doctrine you breathe, apart from scar tissue, the greater your growth. Inhaling is on via the grace of God. The exhale is faith; faith alone in Christ alone. The exhale of faith cannot coexist with the exhale of works.

Faith and Works in Salvation

1. Faith and works are like oxygen and carbon dioxide.
2. Poison to one another.
3. When human works are exhaled along with faith, faith is corrupted.
4. It is no longer faith and it cannot be life giving.
5. The person who adds works at the faith exhale, you have corrupted the gospel and are not saved.
6. If works follow the initial exhale of faith, the person is a believer, but will become legalistic. Therefore, there will be no growth in the spiritual life.
7. Life carbon monoxide overcomes oxygen in the blood and affiliates a person, the gospel or doctrine is choked out and nullified by works. This is scar tissue.
8. Works cannot be coterminous with grace and faith; works cannot be coexistent with works and faith.

Present active subjunctive of εἶμι = should be; with the negative = should not be. The subjunctive has several different uses. This is the subjunctive of emphatic negation. Your faith cannot exist

Blackout of the Soul

1. You can often recognize this in a believer. The soul is blinded to the plan of God.
2. The believer fails to orient to grace because of negative volition and rejection of doctrine. It starts out with not wanting to go to class now and again. Then, people begin to reject doctrine. I don't agree with that; no, I don't care how he presents that.
3. As a result, false doctrine, human viewpoint and works enter into the vacuum of the soul.
4. Then the soul enters into the realm of reversionism. Then the trends begin to rule the soul.
5. Your friend don't like doctrine and you move in that direction. As soon as human viewpoint begins to reign, you have a problem.
6. Such soul blindness leads to subjectivity and irrationality. It is just a step away from human viewpoint. It's all about me. This is the thought process which is not gracious and it is not pretty and it is not grace-oriented. It leads to incredible frustration and unhappiness in life. You lose sight of doctrinal reality. You lose sight in what God has for you.

7. The next step is a frantic search for happiness or self indulgence. The two go together; rather than a relaxed mental attitude and the great contentment which comes with grace orientation. Whatever the difficult situation you're in, it is for your benefit. The more frustrated you get, the less likely you are to concentrate and be occupied with the person of Jesus Christ.
8. In blackout of the soul, capacity to love anyone but yourself is lost. You will blame others for your failures; no capacity for love and no ability to take responsibility for your actions.
9. The believer in blackout of the soul is missing in action. They are casualties; dead on arrival at times.
10. Without rebound and return to doctrine, misery and discipline intensifies. If you never recover, this goes all the way to the sin unto death.

Σοφία + άνθρωπος. Human ability and intelligence are examples of inequality. We all have that equal opportunity to grow spiritually. When you use human viewpoint and the wisdom of men when you have blackout of the soul, because you are unable to use faith perception.

1Cor. 2:5 ...so that your faith cannot exist in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

Paul is giving these men the clear symptoms of their disease.

1Corinthians 2:5

Lesson #40

September 30, 2004

First half of 1Cor. 2:5a: ...that your faith cannot exist in the wisdom of men.... The factions inside the church had been at war for some time. They were the definition of reversionism. Still with eternal security, but nothing else. They had developed scar tissue which prevented doctrine from circulating in their stream of consciousness. They were devoid of all doctrine there. Faith cannot exist in the wisdom of men.

Spiritual life there was probably like any reversionistic group. Their souls were blacked out and they could not orient to grace. No doctrine; so human viewpoint is sucked into the soul. It begins subtly and eventually, it takes over. The Corinthians also fed off of one another. Others were encouraged to adopt the same human wisdom. They were affected by those with whom they associated. If there is no doctrine in your soul, the human viewpoint will rub off. After awhile, it will inundate your soul. Outside of Berachah, you are bombarded with human viewpoint. Often, unaware, we become full-fledged believers in human viewpoint. There are some who can talk doctrine, but they do not apply any of it. They use the language, but they do not apply it. There are those who begin to drift away, or desire power; and this escalates until human viewpoint takes over. The mature person can fall into this.

Subjectivity about self. That is the first the misstep. Another result, is the capacity to love anyone apart from yourself, then you are falling into reversionism blaming others for failures often becomes the modus operandi of the failure. Fall into inordinate competition, which increases the chance of failure; and you blame someone else for your failure. You don't blame yourself; you blame others for your failures. You can put your failures off on someone else.

Blaming Others

1. The first thing the blackout soul does in a crisis is to blame someone else. They blame others so they don't have to look at their own culpability.
2. You project your failures onto someone else. When you have to blame someone else, you gloss over your own failure. Projection, denial, failure to take responsibility for your own actions.
3. People who blame others elicit guilt from the people that they blame. They want others to crawl and grovel to be reconciled. It starts up a vicious cycle. You often don't even recognize that you are blaming someone else. Same results will occur.
4. When you blame those closest to you, it is a devastating situation, because of your own bad attitudes and decisions. So your soul is blacked out. You must blame your problems on others.
5. When we blame others, we especially blame those we love and are closest to. They are particularly the objects of our blame.
6. Then misery is intensified in those who are making the accusations. When you blame somebody else, deep down you know they are not really at fault. But you have to blame them in order to ease your own thinking. Still makes you miserable.
7. In self pity or bitterness, they blame others and lash out at them. This reflects their own miserable status quo.
8. When you do not take responsibility for your own actions, you can then become disappointed in them, rather than in yourself. Projection. Poor people; their fault. Don't have to feel bad for them.
9. You cannot allow yourself, when you are the object of blame, to take you down and distract your from doctrine. If you get distracted by doctrine, you fall right into human viewpoint. Now it is worse; you are at their level.
10. When you care about someone and love them, then you want to help them overcome this. Sometimes you are able to do this. You want to help them, but you cannot. They have to help themselves by reinserting doctrine into their lives.
11. So blaming others is a terrible flaw and weakness that can only be overcome by concentrated doctrine in your soul.
12. Blaming others cannot sustain friendship or love; it destroys these things. You can only blame someone for so long before they run in the opposite direction. "Why weren't you there when I needed you?" When people fail you, we all have a tendency to blame them from that point on. That is a blacked out soul. No ability to see the other side of the coin. This is why some families do not talk to one another. They can't wait to get out of family meals.

13. Blaming others shows no capacity for love or graciousness in the soul. If you can't take responsibility for your own actions, that is not graciousness. That is the exact opposite. God could blame you when you fail and take you out then and there; however, He does not. However, we blame others; it is so insidious.
14. Another result of the blame game is irrationality under pressure. They suddenly go ballistic.
  - a. This irrationality is a total loss of doctrinal perspective.
  - b. Once that perspective is lost, there is a frantic search for a patsy to take down with you. Self indulgence goes with this. You lash out at those you are closest to because they are nearest to you.
  - c. Chaotic actions of a tortured mind instead of divine viewpoint; this is how you function under pressure; this leads to irrationality.
  - d. The contentment of grace orientation is replaced by self righteousness. Blame on someone else eases pressure on you.
  - e. You lose perspective, you lose grace orientation; someone fails you or is actually blameworthy, give them the benefit of the doubt. They may have a good reason. You may fail to see each other's perspective. If you have grace orientation, you can cut the worst loser some slack. Tomorrow, you may be the worst loser. If you have divine viewpoint, you handle it graciously. Why won't they come back to me and grovel a little bit. It is all about you to blame someone else to make yourself feel better. There is nothing in legalism or self righteousness or blaming which is gracious. When disaster strikes, look to yourself and divine assets. Don't find someone else to blame it on, even if they deserve it. Leave it alone; let the Lord handle it.

Faith and human systems of perception are opposed to one another. They are antithetical systems. Grace orientation: I am responsible for my own decisions and my own life.

These are all warnings to the Corinthians, who blame everyone else in the church for their problems. They blame others in the church.

What is the relationship between Grace and Faith?

1. Introduction: We will begin with an analogy; grace and faith are married. They are as close as they can be. One thing represents the other. Bobby will start with the reality and then give the analogy in order to clarify it.
2. The reality:
  - a. Because of His love, God initiated His grace plan. God loved the world so much that He initiated His plan.
  - b. He created the human race to respond to His love and grace. His plan we made well before He created us.
  - c. God initiates with grace and man responds with faith. That was the reality. The Corinthians did not see the relationship. They blamed everyone else for the problems of the church there.

3. The analogy is in the realm of male and female relationships.
  - a. The male was created by God to be the initiator.
  - b. Eph. 5:25: husbands, love your wives just as Christ also loved the church and gave Himself up for her. The man loves the wife and he initiates that love, just as Christ initiated that love toward us.
  - c. The husband initiates love toward the wife just as Christ initiates love toward the church.
  - d. This does not make the wife subservient nor does it make her a second class citizen. God has just assigned us different roles.
  - e. “Be subject to your own husbands in the Lord” which is respect.
  - f. Like Christ and the church, we respond to doctrine; man also has a responder in the woman. Christ initiated doctrine for us, so man initiates love and the woman responds to it. Human viewpoint and feminism will confuse you on these issues. This is all about the love of God for us. Grace is the initiator; faith is the responder.
  - g. The man initiates love toward his wife, just as God initiates love and grace to the entire human race. This is a model which God designed.
  - h. The wife responds to the husband’s love, just as the human race responds by faith to the love and grace of God. Grace of God to us; we respond with faith to Him. The church receives doctrine and we respond by learning it.
4. Grace and faith are like husband and wife. Grace is the initiator and faith is the responder.
5. Just as there is one husband for one wife, so there is only grace for faith and faith for grace.
6. Grace and faith meet at the cross. This is where they are introduced. This is where they begin to court, which stretches this analogy somewhat. In order to meet at the cross, faith responds to grace.
  - a. We marry at salvation.
  - b. Salvation is the framework for grace and faith in the spiritual life. John 5:4–5
  - c. Faith responds to love and grace in salvation.
  - d. As the marriage progresses, faith continues to respond to grace in GAP. This is what we do every day. The grace of God provides doctrine.
  - e. We are saved by grace through faith; and we live the spiritual life by grace through faith (Heb. 11:6).
  - f. Marital works is antithetical to grace and faith.
  - g. Grace rejects human works and faith will not operate on human works.
7. Grace as the husband rejects the harem of works. We studied Ahasuerus for 57 lessons. Faith is the only true responder to grace; not works. Faith must come alone to the cross; without works. Faith cannot coexist with works. Faith is an integral part of GAP, which is the progression of the marriage. Eph. 5:22, 25 give us the analogy.

Bobby apparently had a birthday recently. He reads off a birthday card.

1Cor. 2:5 corrected translation read. Grace and faith cannot be separated in the plan of God. Bobby goes back to set up the relationship between grace and faith. ↗

Analogy of Faith and Grace to Love and Marriage

1. Grace is the male in the relationship. Grace initiates the relationship, just as the male is the initiator in a relationship.
2. The wife responds to the husband's love just as people respond to Jesus Christ by faith in Him. Faith is the responder to that love. Just as there is one husband for one wife; faith is the only partner for grace and vice versa.
3. Marriage is the framework for love; salvation is the framework for grace and faith.
4. When the marriage takes place is analogous to salvation. Then the living takes place, which is often more difficult. There is a day to day existence. Living a life in faith is also a more difficult, day to day existence. We must consistently take in doctrine; that is our response. The wife must continue to respond just as the believer must continue to live the Christian life.
5. The power of God is the grace foundation. He initiates grace to the believer. The Holy Spirit initiates the teaching of doctrine to us, just as the husband initiates love to the wife. The doctrine is transferred from the pastor to the left lobe of the believer; and this is then transferred to the right lobe.
6. What if faith does not respond to grace.
  - a. Too many Christians think that their good works and their systems of merit are the proper response.
  - b. So many Christians want to earn the grace of God.
  - c. This is not living the spiritual life; Christian service is not the spiritual way of life. Some people think if they work around the church or in the mission field, that this is the Christian way of life.
  - d. God's grace never ceases, no matter how far you advance or retrogress.
  - e. Christian service and works respond to spiritual advance; not vice versa. You are not spiritual, no matter how much you do Christian works.
  - f. The more advanced you are, the more clearly to grasp your Christian responsibilities.
  - g. Respond to grace by faith perception.
  - h. Spiritual growth is the proper response.
  - i. Works are never the proper response to grace.
  - j. Works is to grace as black of the soul is to epignôsis of the soul.
    - i. Black out of the soul: because of continuous carnality without rebound, you become incapable to seeing the plan of God. A soul vacuum is caused in your soul. When your soul is blacked out, divine viewpoint is not a part of your life.

- ii. Instead of focusing on the Lord, you focus on yourself. You lose occupation with Christ and gain occupation with yourself.
  - iii. Unhappiness and frustration in our lives is a result of blackout of the soul.
  - iv. You need epignôsis if your soul is blacked out.
  - v. If you are in bad shape here, you will search for happiness all over.
  - vi. Lose this capacity and no one can love you like you desire. If there is only gnôsis in the left lobe, and it is not transferred, then you have no resources for problems and pressures in life.
7. Faith perception comes first; then you have the foundation for thinking divine viewpoint and for being involved in Christian service.
  8. The marriage of grace and faith produces divine good and Christian service.

Results of Grace and Faith

1. Children are produced by the union of husband and wife.
2. Spiritual life and all of its results is the spiritual offspring.
3. Spiritual offspring depend upon the seed of Doctrine.
4. Just as human seed only produces in the womb of a woman, so the spiritual seed of doctrine only produces in the right lobe of the soul
5. Doctrine is transferred tot he right lobe by faith.
6. Perception becomes conception by means of faith.
7. The cycling of doctrine in the stream of consciousness.
8. The building fo problem-solving devices of the soul.
9. Divine good production.

1Cor. 2:5: That your faith cannot exist in the wisdom of men but upon the power of God.

True wisdom of Bible doctrine now to be covered. This verse is a personal answer to Paul's' personal paradox.

True Wisdom

1. True wisdom comes from God; nor from the wise men of this world.
2. This wisdom has a profound impact on those who listen and learn
3. Those who hear and heed divine wisdom are those who mature spiritually. This verse is aimed on the focus of the Corinthians.

This verse just tells us where the Corinthians are and where they should be. λαλεω = to speak, to utter. The whole realm of the plan and purpose of God is what Saul will teach. These things are the depth of God. This wisdom is written and spoken to be understood by the Corinthians. We will find out just how bad things are in Corinth. If you want to be unhappy, then keep it up. Faith perception must be utilized if we want to grow.

Grace apparatus for perception only works with believers. The human spirit is the focus of the teaching. The Holy Spirit teaches the human spirit. It is up to us to believe it. Our non meritorious positive volition transfers all of this knowledge. There is nothing that we do to make it work. It functions automatically. The longer we are in carnality, the more we move into the sphere of reversionism. Rebound and gap will function again.

Εν + τελειος = among the mature. If you are completed, you are mature. Paul refers to believers who are advancing spiritually. He is here to help others grow. The more advanced the concepts are, the more mature you become. Paul has so much to teach, but these Corinthians are incapable to advance while in reversionism. He wants to teach Church Age doctrine than no one has learned before. Bobby has to speak to all believers in all levels. His ace in the hole is the Holy Spirit, which makes this real to us. Doctrine reaches us at whatever level of spiritual maturity that we are. Must be something pertinent to believers of all ages. If we are filled with the Holy Spirit, no matter how immature we are, something will come through. To make his point to the Corinthians, Paul uses the term teleios.

1Cor. 2:6 But, we speak wisdom among those who are perfect; yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the rulers of this world, that come to nothing.

1Corinthians 2:6

Sunday 2 Lesson #42

October 3, 2004

Paul desires very much to teach doctrine to the Corinthians; unfortunately, they cannot seem to assimilate anything. There are not enough who are mature. Paul is addressing them as if they could understand advanced doctrine, even though they cannot. Τελειος is found here to contrast with νηπιος; the baby believers are contrasted with the mature believers. Some of the believers are immature and cannot even remotely learn advanced doctrine. They must recover the power source, so that they can then utilize the doctrine.

1Cor. 2:6 But, we keep on teaching wisdom to those who are mature;...

Paul no longer had any flexibility in what he did. He was locked into his calling. He just needed someone to teach. He desperately wanted to teach doctrine and faced groups of people who needed shoring up instead.

Paul was stoned, beaten, thrown in prison, spat upon, etc. There is not greater honor than to teach the Word of God. This is also true of a pastor today. Personal considerations of a pastor must set aside personal considerations. Paul's focus had to be on his ministry. He had considerations which would not be an issue to someone else. There is a necessity to study and to teach. It is a gift which requires us to function. There are pressures and there is an awesome responsibility associated with this gift. There is no other purpose. This doesn't mean he can't have a social life (he'd have no illustrations apart from a social life).

When it comes to responsibility in the local church, it demands sacrifice in other areas of life. Bobby loves doing this. He likes seeing the light of recognition in the eyes of various people. There are things he cannot do that he would like to do, because of this responsibility. It is not just an obligation, but a pleasure.

Paul tells the Corinthians what this wisdom is not. First, ου του αιωνος τουτου = wisdom not of this age. This refers to a dispensation. It refers to the dispensation that Paul lives in. However, this could refer to any age in history. Each age is defined by divine revelation appropriate to that era. We live in Satan's world since the fall of Adam; and it will be that way until the Millennium. There is cosmic wisdom involved in everyone of these dispensations as well. Specifically here, Paul is the Apostle to the gentiles in the Church Age.

Αρχων αιωνος τουτου = . Divine wisdom comes from doctrine.

1Cor. 2:6b ...yet not the wisdom of this age...

Worthlessness of Cosmic Wisdom

1. Paul has objected to philosophy, debate, rationalism, empiricism, or any other human device used to find God.
2. The truth worthlessness of cosmic worthlessness is in regards to the means of salvation and of spiritual growth.
3. These things do have value in the human realm; even for divine establishment.
4. Paul was not for banishing empiricism, or debate or logic from human life. He is banning it from the pulpit or from the presentation of the gospel.

Καταργεω = to render useless, powerless. Those aspects of human wisdom become null and voice; the become powerless and useless.

1Cor. 2:6b ...nor of the rulers of this world, that will be abolished [or, powerless, useless]...

Doctrine replaces all the human wisdom that we have. Doctrine is still more important when it comes to living our life in the Christian life. Paul is putting divine wisdom his priority and for everyone else as well.

By the end of the Millennium, there will be a Grace of God and Magog revolution against perfect environment. We have a great wisdom than all the wisdom in this world. Divine wisdom puts it all to shame. The wisdom of God is forever. What lasts of this world is God's truth. Human wisdom will pass away and is passing away.

What v. 6 is, is what wisdom is not. In v. 7, it is what wisdom is. This is the positive side. God does not speak to the mature, but he now speaks in a mystery.

Αλαλω is repeated for emphasis. This is emphatic. "We did not communicate cosmic wisdom, but what we DO communicate..". Μυστηριον = Church Age doctrine for the new dispensation, mystery. The idea here, however, is that it cannot be understood by human systems of perception. He speaks wisdom in a mystery.

Mystery

1. This word is only related to human systems of perception in the unbeliever. Human systems of perception always originate with man.
2. The wisdom of God comes from God from eternity past before you or I or anyone existed.
3. It was known only to God until He provided the means for us to comprehend it. This mystery was only known to God until He provided the means for us to comprehend it.
4. The wisdom of the mystery of the ages, the wisdom that existed from eternity past, can be understood by the believer through the grace apparatus for perception. All they have is human wisdom.
5. Only perspicacity by grace can comprehend doctrine as the mind of Christ and can transfer it from the right lobe as epignôsis. We can have God's thinking in our soul. The unbeliever cannot do this.
6. To the rest of the world, divine wisdom is counted a mystery—even foolishness. No human system of perception can understand the wisdom of the ages.

1Cor. 2:7 But we keep on speaking doctrine [or, the wisdom] of God in a mystery, which God has hidden, predetermining it before the world for our glory;

The means of our production of divine good is doctrine. Without this wisdom in our soul, we have nothing.

1Corinthians 2:7

Lesson #43

Wednesday October 6, 2004

Paul denied the efficacy of human wisdom in v. 6, but he states what wisdom is in v. 7. The wisdom in v. 7 is God's wisdom. λαλεω is found at the beginning of both verses. Ev + μυστηριον and together, these terms usually refer to mystery doctrines of the Church Age. However, that is not how it is found here. Mystery in this context is the divine wisdom of Bible doctrine which cannot be understood by the unbeliever. It is a mystery insofar that it is baffling to the unbeliever. Review of mystery above:

1Cor. 2:7a But we keep on speaking doctrine [or, the wisdom] of God in a mystery...;

Present passive participle of αποκρυπτω = to conceal knowledge. Wisdom remains concealed from those unable to be fathomed through human reason, observation or philosophical pursuits.

1Cor. 2:7b ...which God has hidden (or, concealed), predetermining it before the ages for our glory;...

Doctrine existed in eternity past apart from human existence. Πρωριζω = to design beforehand. Doctrine existed en masse in eternity past; before the universe existed. The mind of Christ has always existed. It unfolds in increments. We learn it little by little throughout history. Revelation as needed all the way from eternity past until now.

There is very little about heaven in Scripture. Our human minds cannot fathom what eternity will be like. We truly have no idea where we are headed. We cannot even imagine eternity; and on our deathbed, we are on the edge of eternity.

God designed the plan, but it always existed, as a part of the divine decrees.

Αἰων = ages. A time before human history began.

Why is it We Who are Glorified?

1. It is still God who is glorified, but this phrase takes it one step further.
2. Our glory includes all the benefits that God brings to us when we metabolize doctrine in our right lobes.
3. When we utilize these benefits and advance spiritually, we reflect this glory to the world. The wisdom is invented, so to speak, for our glory.
4. Shekinah glory is what we have here, who resides in us, so that we might reflect God's glory within us. . Shekinah is a term not actually found in the Bible. Shakahm = to dwell; Shekinah = dwelling place. The Lord Jesus Christ is omnipresence. He is not contained by place and time. Our Lord dwelt in a specific place, which was in Israel; in the pillar of fire; etc. The 3 Apostles saw this Shekinah glory on the mount of olives?
5. We can reflect His glory. Doctrine is to our glory, so that we reflect His glory. As we become more mature, we further glorify Him.

The trinity indwells us, so we can go on to reflect that glory.

V. 8 is the historical rejection of the grace system.

Hv = which (which refers to wisdom). No Greek word in this verse for wisdom. Wisdom is the implied indecent of which.

1Cor. 2:8 ...which [wisdom] none of the rulers of this world knew (for if they had known, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory).

Αρχων = ruler, great, mighty men, men of influence, objects of approbation. Not many are called because it is more difficult for them to grab the concept to themselves. It is naturally to be on top, and then to assign this to oneself. We are the weak thing and God has chosen us to glorify the mighty.

Reagan's statements were those of a mature believer. He certainly had doctrine in his soul. The greatest discredit of all is our divine viewpoint matched to their human viewpoint. These men are clueless divine wisdom. This refers primarily to the Jewish and Roman leaders during the time of our Lord's death.

Who Was Discredited?

1. In that age, these rulers were unable to comprehend the Lord of glory right before their eyes. They would not believe.
2. They could not understand His person or His intended work.
3. They had no perceptive ability by which they could understand Him.
4. These people were loaded with negative volition; they would grind their teeth when they heard the name of our Lord. Our Lord had only a 4 year ministry. Jesus was not their king, so they assumed that He could not be their Savior. They thought in political terms. They demonstrated their failure of their own system of integrity. Pontius Pilate tried to reason his way to an understanding of Jesus Christ.
5. These men represent all people who cannot find Jesus Christ through human systems of perception. This is inadequate. They reject faith perception.

Protasis of a 2nd class condition. Ei + ginôskô. The contrary to fact condition. A premise and then a conclusion. Then we have an + the aorist active indicative. Σταρω = to crucify.

1Cor. 2:8b: If they had known [but they did not], they would not have crucified the Lord of Glory.

What is this Awesome Note?

1. The One crucified was none other than God Himself.
2. If these so-called mighty rulers realized that they were crucifying almighty God, they would not have done it.
3. They crucified Him because they were incapable of understanding, so they went on their murderous ways.
4. This sin of ignorance from their hardened heart was evidence of inconceivable blindness and weakness. In faith-perception, there is the power of the Word of God.
5. The pharisees knew nothing of God in their empiricism. They were incredibly self righteous and self-indulgent. They could not understand Christ; only themselves and their self righteousness.
6. The best the Pontius Pilate could do is find Jesus Christ innocent. Logically, He knew Jesus Christ was innocent; but he sentenced him to death despite that.
7. Ironically, the rejection of Jewish empiricism and Roman rationalism, our faith perception accepts Him, resulting in our faith-salvation.

1Corinthians 2:9

Lesson #44

Thursday October 7, 2004

The phone line in Huffman is out. So I am recording this at home. 1Cor. 2:8 is reviewed. The Lord of Glory is a title of His deity. Paul is reminding everyone that it is the God man Who was crucified. He was not just a great man. If these rulers understood that they were crucifying Almighty God, then they would not have done that. However, they crucified Him because they were incapable of knowing Who He was. This sin of ignorance was a failure of rationalism and empiricism.

The pharisees knew nothing of God in their empiricism. They claimed to know everything about Him, but they really knew nothing. Face to face with the Messiah and they knew Him not. Pontius Pilate could do nothing but determine that Jesus was innocent of all charges. Violating all logic, he still sentenced Jesus to death. Even those who stood at the foot of Jesus' cross, little did they know that He was dying for their sins. No better understanding of grace than the sacrifice of Jesus Christ for these people.

Just as it is written would generally assume that this would be the quotation of an Old Testament passage. Isa. 64:4: And from forever they have not heard, nor did they listen. Eye has not seen a God except You, who works for him who waits for Him. Paul has a different use of the Old Testament passage. Paul does not quote this directly. It is more of a paraphrase. It uses similar language; but not much else. 1Cor. 2:9 does not have the same meaning as the Old Testament passage. The only real similarity is the similarity of the terms, eyes seeing and ears hearing. The difference phrase is has not entered into the heart of man. 1Cor. 2:9 deals with faith-perception, which is not Isaiah's meaning. This is not the point of what Isaiah has to say at all. Isa. 64:4 is just giving us a look of the God of the Ages; God can do anything that He chooses to do. It is an encouragement to the Jews at that time to realize that God can do anything.

There are many who do not believe that Paul is not quoting from Isa. 64:4. 1Cor. 1:31 quoted Jer. 9:24 and Paul used this meaning when he quoted it.

All the verse breaks; even the word breaks, all came along later. There are so many copies, no one knows where the actual autograph is. All of these letters circulate; which one is right and which one is not. There are hundreds of thousands of copies of these letters and all of the variants make little or no difference at all. Bobby, "These variants do not change the meaning one iota." It is amazing how the Lord preserves His Scriptures. We have as close to the original autographs as we possibly can.

There is a definitely different relationship between this verse and the one that is quoted. Paul pulls some words out of the Old Testament, and yet put a different meaning to it. Paul could probably pull any of these verses out of memory.

What Is Paul Doing Here?

1. Paul was appealing to the authority of the Old Testament in general, rather than the exact language or the same meaning of a specific verse in the Old Testament. He was using the Old Testament in a different way than we have seen before.
2. In doing this, Paul gives a double-dose of authority to what he has to say. His authority and the authority of the Old Testament.
3. Why does Paul need this double-dose? Recall who the Corinthians are. Paul is letting the Corinthians know He has the authority to actually change the meaning of the Old Testament text. He has the authority to do this. We can't do that; but Paul can, as he is divinely inspired. This should grab the attention of the Corinthians. Paul is writing this letter to the Corinthians as though he is a middle-man.

4. Paul did not change the meaning of the text in the Old Testament; but he did take the Old Testament passage, which was already inspired, and he utilized that language, but he applied a different meaning to it in this epistle. He had the authority to do this. He wrote the very words that God would have us know. Paul's style and vocabulary are all retained in his epistles.
5. This is an air-tight revelation of Paul's Apostolic authority. These different Corinthians had broken into Christ, Pauline, etc. factions. Paul expresses what is important is the words he is writing; not these factions.
6. This reminder of his authority is needed when dealing with these reversionists.
7. This is the type of emphasis that the Corinthians need to take notice of and to take heed to what Paul is telling them. "Listen, you jerks, I am speaking for the Lord." is a paraphrase of this. What Paul says to the Corinthians should carry the same authority in Berachah church at this time.

The lazy person might say, "We don't have to learn this stuff because it is inscrutable. We can't know it." But that is not the meaning of this passage. That sort of an attitude is an excuse for negative volition. Bobby's not going to make us feel better, if he can help it.

The meaning of this verse is crystal clear:

1. Eyes seeing and ears hearing is a metaphor for understanding Bible doctrine.
2. What Paul is driving at in this verse is the futility of human perception when it comes to understanding spiritual phenomena.
3. Paul's quotation in v. 9 makes reference to v. 8 that the rulers of that time were clueless when faced with Jesus going to the cross. They were unbelievers. They could not understand spiritual phenomena. Paul is talking about these leaders, to explain that human systems cannot understand spiritual phenomena.
4. The unbeliever has not the ability to understand divine knowledge. Their ears and eyes cannot understand. Ours can, as we have the grace means to understand spiritual phenomena. There must be a pastor teacher than you can learn from, and the unbeliever lacks this capability.
5. The believer who loves God, sees and hears through the grace apparatus for perception and advances to spiritual maturity. We all have that capability. However, only the believer with positive volition will use this capability. If we want to know about God, then we utilize that capability. We all have that capability, but only those who know and love God will actually use it.
6. The eye and ear are metaphors and they refer to empiricism. Empiricism is the pursuit of knowledge by observation or experimentation. Most people believe that is the way that they learn. Some think, much of what we learn comes from experience; but this is only in the human realm.

Example: Paul is comparing empiricism to faith-perception. Bobby wrote a paper on John Locke (1632–1704) and he had a profound effect on theology, but from a philosophical perspective. He was a philosopher who tried to marry faith perception and human perception. What he tried to do is something that cannot be done. He asks questions and then answers these questions. He saw the human mind as a blank slate, without any ideas. Ideas form on this blank slate as we grow. Something is written on this slate. There are two fountains of knowledge which flow. Experience and reflection upon that experience. That is empiricism. He has a place in Christian philosophy for his attempt here. He believed in faith-perception, but was trying to reconcile our mentality with faith-perception. He clearly states that the essence of Christianity is acknowledgment of Christ as the Savior. He also emphasizes reason as the final criterion for understanding the Bible. He also admits that doctrine is incapable of irrefutable proof. You must acknowledge Christ, you must then use reason to gain additional knowledge. Human systems of perception are a dead end. Reason is your proof, but it is not irrefutable. Historically, his philosophy and religion would result in deism.

Deist believes that God is transcendent. He created the world, and then He stands back and watched. He is transcendent, but not imminent. If God doesn't affect us, then we do not have real revelation. Locke did not intend to do this. Jefferson was a deist; and Ben Franklin possibly. Locke was not denigrating divine revelation; he was just attempting to reconcile empiricism and faith-perception. He was a brilliant man, but even the most brilliant philosopher cannot merge these systems of perception.

The smarter you are, the more revelation you can understand—that is meritorious. We have the grace of God working for us; which means our spiritual maturity must be based upon that which is non meritorious.

1Cor. 2:9 But as it is written [or, to take from the language of the Old Testament], "Eye has not seen, nor ear heard," nor has it entered into the heart of man, "the things which God has prepared for those who love Him."

1Corinthians 2:9

Lesson #45 Sunday #1 October 10, 2004

1Cor. 2:9a But as it is written [or, to take from the language of the Old Testament], "Eye has not seen, nor ear heard," ...

Paul chose to use some of the language of Isa. 64:4, but not the meaning. He appeals to the authority of the Old Testament; but he does not use the meaning from Isa. 64:4 or the exact words. He is not attempting to accurately quote Isa. 64:4. It was unlikely that Paul had access to the scrolls of Isaiah at that point. He did not write these letters from a library. This could be quoted as, to use the language of Scripture. He is making a general reference to an Old Testament Scripture. He gives his own epistle a double-dose of authority: the Apostolic authority which he has; and he uses the authority of the Old Testament text as well. Isa 64:4: And from forever they have not heard, nor did they listen. Eye has not seen a God except You, who works for him who waits for Him. Paul is letting the Corinthians know that he has the authority to change the usage of an Old Testament passage. Paul is just as inspired as Isaiah from a thousand years previous. When the Corinthians see this, at least the Hebrew believers, it should grab them. He is not changing the meaning of the interpretation of that passage; nor is he misapplying it; he is applying it to his situation, relying upon the authority of the Old Testament and upon his own Apostolic authority. I speak for the Lord; I am writing for the Lord; you need to listen. What is written in Scripture or what you study, is exactly what God wants you to know about yourself. Paul wants you to take note of the authority that he has. The meaning in this passage is crystal clear.

Meaning in 1Corinthians 2:9

1. Eyes seeing and ears hearing is a metaphor for empiricism—observation and experimentation.
2. What Paul is teaching is the futility of human perception, when it comes to spiritual phenomena.
3. Paul's quotation makes reference to the previous verse, where the unbelieving archons of this age, who were clueless about divine wisdom of Bible doctrine.
4. The unbeliever cannot conceive of the revelation which God has prepared for you. He cannot fathom it. This is why it is called conceal knowledge.
5. Only the one who sees and hears through gap. He is the only one who can understand what God has provided for us. Paul is setting up the mechanics for gap in this passage.
6. Neither God nor spiritual phenomena is observable or provable through reason or to the human senses. Spiritual phenomena cannot be found in the laboratory or through our personal experience. You cannot start with yourself and prove from that any spiritual truth which approximates the gospel. Locke tried to show how our mentality could take us to divine wisdom. His writings instead, were a stepping stone to deism, although he was not a deist himself. He was possibly a believer himself. The paradox was unsolvable, even to a man as brilliant as Locke. Paul speaks to spiritual IQ rather than to human IQ in this passage. There is no other way. The Corinthians don't understand anything.

Paul wants to be clear that the only thing these Corinthians should be doing is taking in doctrine. Apollos and Timothy were pastors of Corinth? I think it was Apollos around this time and Timothy later? We start with the Scripture and move from there.

Αναβεινω + εις + ουκ + καρδια = does not go up into the heart. You guys our out of fellowship and you cannot take this truth into your soul either. "You Corinthians do not have divine wisdom 1." The Corinthians were not using gap.

Paul's progression to lead us to an explanation of faith perception. The world has it's schools of thought. Cumbersome, ponderous, boring for Bobby to study philosophy. It is an exercise in mind functioning. Locke was interesting, insofar as he used theology in conjunction with human perception. However, most of us are not interested in this. Similarly, God's deep things are not for everyone. The unbeliever has no interest in the deep things of God either. Divine revelation is designed for the right lobe of the believer only. We don't understand philosophy; they don't understand divine wisdom. We have the chance to understand spiritual phenomena. That is what we learn to have a spiritual life; it is not a mystery to us.

We are in church to build upon what we know and to use divine viewpoint in every area of our life. Suddenly, unsolvable problems become solvable. It is all done within the confines of His grace.

1Cor. 2:9b ...nor has it entered into the heart of man,...

1Corinthians 2:9

Lesson #46 Sunday #2 October 10, 2004

The unbeliever does not understand the depths of God. We have the ability to understand God. Paul is telling the Corinthians that they must use this ability. "Do not cast pearls before swine." Unbelievers cannot appreciate doctrine anymore than pigs can appreciate the value of pearls. How privileged we are to be able to understand. There is nothing the unbeliever that we can have which will equal what is in our souls (at least, potentially).

Ετοιμαζω = to make ready, to prepare. What God prepared was decreed in eternity past. God provided all the spiritual resources that we will need. The indicative mood is the reality of this grace system of perception. Then we have for those who love God.

Divine viewpoint existed in eternity past. He has provided all things for us, for those who love God. The question is, how do we love him? People think it is emotional and syrupy and how we feel about God. We may feel a little emotional after the communion service. But is that love? Is that loving God? Nope. Love must be consistent, in order for us to have capacity for love.

Points on Love

1. In order to love God, we must discover Who He is. You don't love someone at first sight. They could be criminals. You have to actually get to know them. With God, the same thing is true. We must get to know Him. We must get to know what He has provided. Now we are getting to know the person we love.
2. When you understand His overwhelming care and love for us, we will respond with respect, admiration, and reverence. Love and capacity for love = respect, admiration and reverence.
3. This love motivates us. When we begin to develop love for God, it motivates us. When you care for someone like that, you have a desire to conform to what they want and what they have for you. We obey his mandates and metabolize his thinking.
4. We appreciate the way someone thinks. With a capacity to love, you appreciate the way a person thinks. You want to conform to the way that God thinks. You want to think in the same way that He thinks. That is the mind of Christ. Vv. 10–16 tells us how to apprehend the mind of Christ.

5. The love motivates us and we gain absolute confidence in God's ability to care for us and to support us. This supports and sustains momentum for applying the doctrine resident in our soul. He has a plan individually tailored and designed for us. Everything that we do, everything that we have, and everything that we are is courtesy of God. God has a plan for our life, no matter what.

Doctrine Related to Love of God

1. In short, we love God when our soul is inculcated with doctrine. Our soul is inculcated with doctrine if we love the Lord. We think His thoughts. As we advance spiritually, we begin to take on divine viewpoint. We know His thoughts through faith-perception. His Word becomes Epignōsis in our right lobe. The mind of Christ is our mind.
2. We share His divine viewpoint.
3. We appreciate His perfect integrity and matchless mind and grace. We have the capacity for love when we have the capacity to appreciate who someone is. When we appreciate their soul, then we have the capacity to love them.
4. We understand that the Lord directs even our problems for our benefit. We understand this as we gain confidence in the Lord. Even the problems that we do not see our way out of; we should recognize that it is for our benefit. No matter what happens to us, we are in His hands. It is the only way for us. Take in His Word and then make it our thinking. Understand it; unwrap it, and use it.
5. This is what God has prepared for those who love Him.

1Cor. 2:9c ... "the things which God has prepared for those who love Him."

We have been prepared for vv. 10–16 for the work of God the Holy Spirit. Without these verses, we would not know anything about what God has provided for us that we might have divine viewpoint in our soul. What is undiscoverable by human reason, God makes known to us.

God has revealed what He has prepared for us (v. 9). The Holy Spirit searches all things, even the depth of God. The Holy Spirit does not have to figure out His Own thinking. He knows what wisdom is; He is not searching wisdom for Himself. This gives us a reason why a believer's eyes can see and ears can hear. It cannot enter into the heart of the unbeliever; but it can enter into our heart.

Ἐμὲν δὲ which is the dative plural of the 1st person pronoun; and to us simply means that Paul is now addressing believers. He contrasts between the unbeliever who cannot hear or see. Then ἡο τηεος = the God. The verb connotes illumination. Our soul is illuminated; the light goes on. To bring to light that which was hidden in ages past. = αποκολυπτω the believer receives doctrine. There is a definite time that this is revealed to the believer. Therefore, this describes the result of the grace system of perspicacity. His Word always existed. Unless God the Holy Spirit functions in your soul, doctrine will not sink into our brains. It is the result of the divine system of perspicacity.

Δια + πνευμα (Genitive) = through the spirit. Pneuma can be used for breath, spirit, human spirit, Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit plays a vital role in grace perspicacity. Without Him there is no grace apparatus for perception. How does the Holy Spirit reveal divine revelation.

Ερευνῶ = to investigate, to explore, to examine. The Holy Spirit does not study or research to discover divine viewpoint for himself. This is not an examination of the process of finding information. He already knows the information. The Holy Spirit does not need to investigate to understand anything. This refers to the results of an investigation rather than to the process. We tend to think of the process; what they are doing. Since He knows all, we are looking at the result. He investigates the deep things of God, because we need to know them. He knows these things already. The Holy Spirit does not have to investigate these things for Himself. He already knows these things; He searches these things for our benefit. How does the Holy Spirit do this? He does not whisper it in our ear or reveal it to us in our dreams. This is not the way He communicates to us in the church age. His teaching ministry illuminates the pages of Scripture and He teaches the principles to us. He does not need to learn about Himself; we need to learn about doctrine. He searches out doctrine for us, so that we can grasp divine viewpoint.

Stay in carnality and human viewpoint will be our way of life. I need help; I'd better call on someone. Divine viewpoint is the way we live. Nobody can tell us divine viewpoint. It is up to us to listen and believe. It is our job to apply it when we need it. Think divine viewpoint because our life is divine viewpoint.

1Cor. 2:10 But God has revealed them to us by His Spirit; for the Spirit searches all things, yea, the deep things of God.

1Corinthians 2:10

Lesson #47

Wed. October 13, 2004

Bobby doesn't like to see the ears. He talked with Joe Griffin, a rabid cardinal fan. They have a bet going. Bobby will wear a cap if the Cardinals win. Sport's Illustrated article, from the 50 year issue. 10 cent beer night at the Cleveland Indians game.

Undiscoverable by human reason is what God has revealed to us. Paul is addressing believers when he writes to us. Contrast between believers who do get spiritual information in v. 9 and those who do not. Αποκαλυπτω = to set forth, to reveal, to manifest, to show. There is no direct object, so the verb is strengthened. The verb often refers to that which is revealed. This connotes illumination of revelation. Aorist points to a specific time in the past when the believer receives this doctrine. This is all accomplished not through the Spirit but by means of the Spirit. Ερευνῶ = to investigate, to explore, to examine, to search. The Holy Spirit does not need to investigate anything, as the Holy Spirit is omniscient. He already knows everything, including the depths of God. It is His person to illuminate for us truth. This does not refer to a process of investigation; the Holy Spirit needs to look for nothing. This gives us the idea of the work of the Holy Spirit giving divine revelation for us. He investigates for us. The Holy Spirit is illuminating all that God has prepared for us. The filling ministry of the Holy Spirit reveals to us the knowledge of the Word of God to us. There is nothing of God which is unknown to the Spirit. He knows Himself much better than we know ourselves. He is not investigating Himself, but He is illuminating the Scriptures for us (if the desire is there). These doctrines are necessary for the believer's spiritual growth. This is somewhat of an anthropomorphic idea. He brings these things to us when we need it, when we can handle it. He knows just when to bring it into our minds for investigation. He investigates the depths of God for our benefit.

Τα βάθη = depths. This is the object of εραυναω. We cannot know these things apart from the teaching of God the Holy Spirit: the essence or the plan of God. The Holy Spirit has more to investigate for us than has ever been known in the past. Paul uses the 1st person plural here rather than the 2nd person singular here.

Why Do We Have the 1st Person Plural Here?

1. This means that divine revelation was originally given to the Apostles; they received it first. But, what is true for the Apostles is also true for all believers, but in a different way.
2. What they wrote and communicated as divinely inspired; the filling of the Holy Spirit illuminates to us.
3. It is the same doctrine given to all the Apostles, so the 1st person plural.
4. The Holy Spirit transfers this to the right lobe as Bobby teaches. The Holy Spirit metabolizes this in our soul.

What We Have in the New Testament

1. Old Testament believers had no clue as to what the Holy Spirit would do in this age or what our unique spiritual life would be about.
2. Even the Old Testament prophets knew nothing of the resources that we would have. Paul brought some Old Testament Scripture into his own writing which illuminates things which we need to know, even though this was not known to the prophets who wrote them originally.
3. The mechanics of salvation has never changed and it was always revealed in the Old Testament. They believed in Christ through faith alone. No one knew the name of Jesus Christ in the Old Testament, but they still believed in Jehovah, the God of Israel. They learned salvation through the sacrifices. Old Testament simply looked forward to the cross. Abraham believed in God and it was credited to him for righteousness. The gospel never changes; He is revealed in a different way, and His name is different.
4. We are privy to new doctrines, because of the great power experiment of the Church Age. They are there; they are offered to us; but we must exercise positive volition.
5. The Old Testament saints did not have the filling of the Holy Spirit.
6. Only a few of the Old Testament believers were indued with the power of God the Holy Spirit and only for specific responsibilities. Joseph was prime minister of Egypt, and was therefore given the Holy Spirit. Those working on the temple. Those in nation Israel; Joshua in the Bible, as well as judges. Othniel, Gideon, Jephthah, Samson. All indued by God the Holy Spirit. Even Saul had God the Holy Spirit as well. Daniel did. I would assume all writers of Scripture.

7. Would we be indued with God the Holy Spirit? Not most of us. Bobby maybe. We would not have God the Holy Spirit in that day; but we all have the Holy Spirit today. They never considered having God the Holy Spirit. Our dispensation is where the Holy Spirit is universally available.
8. The Old Testament believers were not taught via God the Holy Spirit.
9. The depths the Holy Spirit searches are the doctrines taught. Paul was to communicate and write the doctrines that the Holy Spirit gave him. Basic doctrines and mystery doctrines.
10. To fulfill this function, the Holy Spirit new reveals, that which did not exist previously. Simply because there was no filling of God the Holy Spirit. This advantage, the Old Testament saints would have loved to have seen. We represent ourselves before God just as a priest would. We have in this dispensation the possibility, the capability to know the Lord like no one from a previous dispensation has possessed.

All things = the whole realm of doctrine. Just when Bobby needs doctrine for a specific situation, it just happens to appear in his thinking; that is God the Holy Spirit bringing to mind what he needs when he needs it. We need doctrine in our souls 1Cor. 2:10 But God has revealed them to us by His Spirit; for the Spirit searches [or, investigates] all things, yea, the deep things of God.

Summary Points

1. The depths of God are the deep things of doctrine. We are learning about God, His character, and what He has done for us. Many of us have any idea how important it is that we are able to receive this information. Here, we know as much as we want to take in.
2. The deep things of God are transmitted to the believer in a manner which is compatible with grace.
3. The system of perception for these deep things is provided by God the Holy Spirit. If there is one major thing that we have, it is the filling of the Holy Spirit.
4. The mechanics of divine revelation are consistent with the principle of grace (or compatible with).
5. The Holy Spirit is the teacher who teaches the deep things of God to our own human spirit. When we believe, they are transferred from one lobe to the other.

In vv. 11-16, Paul will give us the mechanics of the grace apparatus for perception. We have the mind of Christ. The nature of our perceptive ability. We can think with the mind of Christ. Bobby looks at us and realizes that we can think with the mind of Christ. We have the incredible ability and potential to think with the mind of Christ.

Paul will build a case which is brilliant and it will illuminate us in ways that we will never know. This illustrates a point. Only a man knows his own thoughts. We know our own thoughts and God know His own thoughts. Paul wants us to be clear that no one is competent to reveal God cannot be known through any human capacity. We should already understand that God has designed a grace option. A pastor can reveal information to us; but Genitive plural of ανθρωπος = men, mankind. Perfect tense used as a present tense for the irregular verb). Inherent knows = divine knowledge. To know your own thoughts, which are our personal memories, thinking, motives, reflections, motives, etc. Only you know your own mind. Who apart from man understands the thinking of man.

Πνευμα = spirit. This is found a number of different ways in this passage, but should be rendered in 3 different ways.

1Corinthians 2:11

Lesson #48 Thursday October 13, 2004

τις γαρ begins this verse. Paul is advancing his argument from v. 10; γαρ links these verses together. Τις = who; an interrogative pronoun. Paul's point will be a further development of the grace apparatus for perception. How we can understand doctrine, whereas the unbeliever cannot understand spiritual things. Genitive plural of ανθρωπος = man. Οιδα = to know; perfect tense translated as a present tense; it means inherent knowledge. This is a verb referring to both believers and unbelievers. This does not include the divine system of perception. The unbeliever does not have the grace system of perception. There is no Greek word here for thought, but this is a good addition to the passage. However, it works with the verb. Reflection, deliberation, thoughts and motives are things possessed by all people. Even those with a very low IQ have inner thoughts, which no one else can see those thoughts. They only know them if you communicate them. Only we can understand our own mind. Only the person with his inner thoughts understands his own thoughts; those thoughts within himself. Paul is referring to all mankind, and he is making a universal statement here. Man is the only one who can understand his own thinking; but he cannot understand divine thinking.

1Cor. 2:11a For who among men knows [or, understands, comprehends] the things [or, thoughts] of a man...

Πνευμα = God [as a Spirit]; [Holy] Spirit; [human] spirit; air, wind, breath [particularly used this way in Classical Greek]; the immaterial part of mankind; for those who believe than man is strictly material, a living organism but they believe that there is no immaterial portion; however, we understand that God has given us an immaterial part. This can also refer to soul-life; God imparts the soul life to our physical body, and it becomes human life. The human spirit is only given to us at the moment of salvation, and only the believer can understand spiritual things. Mentality, volition, self-consciousness, conscience make up the soul.

1Cor. 2:11b ...except the spirit [or, soul life] of man within him?

Our brain allows us to physically think; and the brain is the physical expression of our soul. It is not the source of our thinking; but it is a go between our thinking and our bodies. Animals do not have a soul as man does. Man understands what is around him and stores this in his mentality.

Bobby makes the point that his inner thoughts can be very different from what he is appearing. A person can seem very arrogant, yet they can be very humble in their souls. Bobby doesn't understand our inner thoughts; he only knows. A lot of times we don't want anyone to know what is going on inside of us. The Holy Spirit knows all that goes on in His mind, as we do ourselves. We only understand what the mind of God is thinking if He reveals it to us. Unbelievers don't understand God; but they can understand some things about man. The unbeliever can only think within the framework of relativity; he cannot think in terms of what is on his own mind. When you wonder how an unbeliever can believe this or that? This is because they have the thoughts of an unbeliever. The unbeliever inhales knowledge of himself and the things around him based upon empiricism and rationalism.

Πνευμα can only refer to the soul here, as we are speaking of both believers and unbelievers. Other interpretations would make little sense. Adverb houta = even so, referring back to what precedes. Man has a frame of reference within him to understand human phenomena.

Γινωσκω = to know. This is God's knowledge. It is stronger than οἶδα. Καταλαμβανω = to comprehend. These two are almost equivalent words. Rationalism and empiricism can never take the place of perspicacity by grace.

Next we have Πνευμα θεου = spirit of God.

1Cor. 2:11c So also no one knows the things [or, thoughts] of God except the Spirit of God.

A believer cannot know the mind of Christ either; except the Holy Spirit. It is not the Holy Spirit investigating the mind of God for Himself; He already knows; He investigates it on out own.

Summary of v. 11

1. The unbeliever lacks a spiritual IQ; it does not exist for him.
2. Therefore, the unbeliever cannot understand spiritual phenomena.
3. He has no frame of reference for spiritual information.

4. Human IQ is not an issue for understanding the gospel. You do not need the Holy Spirit to understand the gospel. This is common grace, and the Holy Spirit acts as the human spirit, to make it real to us.
5. After salvation, the filling of the Spirit is the basis of our understanding and the deep things of God. The simplest and most complex of doctrines can be understood. No matter what our IQ, as a believer, we can understand these things. We can understand the entire realm of doctrine. Our mentality is important to understand human knowledge; but it is not needed to understand spiritual information. We can understand doctrine, basic or complex. It is understood on the level of the mentality; and it is applicable. The dumbest and smartest can grasp it. All of us dummies have a ray of hope.

1Corinthians 2:12

Lesson #49 Sunday 1 October 17, 2004

There is a lot of exegesis in this section, but not much application. These seven verses are critical when it comes to understanding how God communicates to our finite minds.

The mechanics for the grace apparatus for perception are emphasized here; also called faith perception. The Holy Spirit searching or investigating the depths of God is not the process, but the result of the process. He brings these things up at the right time for us to apply them. He teaches doctrine on the basis of concept on concept; precept upon precept; a little here, a little there. The depths of God is a reference to doctrine which is unknowable apart from the grace system of perception.

To v. 11 refers to all mankind; and we all have inner thoughts within our own souls. They cannot be penetrated by other members of the human race. You cannot understand another person's inner thoughts. This is true of the entire human race; we can comprehend our own thoughts; these thoughts come from human systems of perception, and so he continues. Pneuma is used for God, for God the Holy Spirit, for the human spirit, in a general sense for the immaterial part of man (or the soul); and for breath. In v. 11, pneuma cannot refer to God or to the Holy Spirit, because of the qualifier ανθρωπος, which refers to all mankind. Since all men do not possess a human spirit, this refers here to the soul of man—the immaterial part of man, which allows us mentality, self-consciousness, norms and standards, vocabulary, frame of reference, etc. The soul in man here is related to comprehension, so we are looking primarily at the mentality of the soul. Man stores up knowledge from his own experience.

The brain is connected with our thinking. But the brain is part of human physiology; it is an organ in our body. In contrast, the soul is an immaterial entity, and it is not the same as the soul. It is the real seat of human mentality. We all think in the mentality of our soul; however, there is a connection between the brain and the soul. The immaterial soul, as it thinks, is manifested through the brain. Even so the thoughts of God, no one .

Summary of v. 11

1Cor. 2:11: Is there anyone who can understand his own thoughts except by his own inner spirit? In the same way, no one can know the thoughts of God except God's Spirit.

1. The believer can comprehend God's thoughts; however this is a general comparison between human thinking and divine thinking.
2. The unbeliever is without a way of spiritual understanding. We take the Scripture as absolute truth; he will see this as relative truth. The unbeliever humanizes and equivocates God. The unbeliever can understand some facts about God in an intellectual way; however, we see the Word of God as truth, and unequivocal.
3. The unbeliever cannot understand and apply spiritual phenomena.
4. He has no spiritual frame of reference for understanding.
5. According to this passage, only God can know the infinite workings of his own mind. Mankind in general cannot.
6. The unbeliever is able to grasp the gospel, but only if the Holy Spirit makes it knowledge to him. The Holy Spirit does make the gospel clear. We need that ministry of common grace in order to respond to the gospel.
7. After salvation, the filling of the Spirit is the basis for our ability to understand spiritual phenomena.

V. 12: Paul explains in more detail what he has just said. There are two sources of knowledge; a human system of perception; the second system is gap, which is our ability to understand divine wisdom. The spirit from God would seem at first to be the Holy Spirit; however, it is a reference to the human spirit. This is a critical passage; therefore, we must know what is being spoken of here.

We refers to believers. λαμβανω = to take, to receive. Negative particle ου, ουκ, ουχ. It cannot refer to the immaterial part in general; pneuma is a contrast between what believers receive and what unbelievers already have. Therefore pneuma cannot refer just to the soul. First it is the source and seat of human discernment, as verses the source and seat of divine thinking.

In most translations, Spirit is capitalized, which is an interpretation. The Holy Spirit is our divine teacher; that is a given. The Holy Spirit is not the source of our teaching in this context. The key is λαμβανω. The first clause with pneuma deals with the human seat of thinking; the parallel analogy follows, referring to the human spirit. Unbelievers perceive in one way and believers perceive in another. Without the Holy Spirit, and His teaching ministry, we have no idea what is to be found here. And God the Holy Spirit teaches the human spirit.

1Cor. 2:12 But we have not received the spirit of the world [or, cosmic spirit], but the [human] spirit from God, so that we might know the things that are freely given to us by God.

The reference here is to the human spirit, because of the parallel which Paul is setting up. Interpreting this as the Holy Spirit ruins the parallel. This meaning also carries right on over to v. 13. This spirit from God here is the human spirit, which is the receptacle for divine knowledge.

Human Spirit

1. The human spirit is the immaterial part of man. Not synonymous with the human soul.
2. Without the human spirit, there is no relationship with God.
3. The human spirit was designed by God to receive, accept and convert divine information into spiritual phenomena.
4. It is the human spirit which receives spiritual information which the Holy Spirit converts into  $\gamma\nu\omega\sigma\iota\varsigma$ .
5. In the original creation of mankind, the human spirit was received along with the soul. Adam was created with a body, a soul and a spirit.
6. At the fall, Adam lost his human spirit; he no longer had a relationship with God. If he lost the human spirit at the fall, you can see that this loss is what killed us spiritually. That is how we died spiritually; we lost our human spirit. Adam and the woman became dichotomus.
7. Spiritual death includes the absence of the human spirit.
8. At the same time the human spirit was lost, we acquired the sin nature. This is what tempts us; it is a part of our physiology. We make the decision to sin; however, the old sin nature tempts us. We have a soul which God imputes to us at birth.
9. As a result of the fall; Adam's progeny, the human race, are all born dichotomus, having no human spirit. The believer has a human spirit, acquired at the second birth. Jude 19: these are the ones who cause divisions, sourish, not having a human spirit.
10. The human race lost its grace system of perception in the fall. We lost our ability to understand doctrine. We have the mind of Christ. The unbeliever doesn't, because he has not the ability to understand doctrine. He has no human soul.
11. Since the unbeliever has no human spirit, that is why the Holy Spirit must act as a human spirit to communicate the gospel John 16:8-9.
12. When anyone believes in Christ, the Holy Spirit restores the trichotomus nature; the only difference is, we still have an old sin nature. We can regain the Holy Spirit; and at salvation we regain the human spirit. Restoration of the human spirit. 1Thess. 5:23: Now may the God of peace Himself sanctify you entirely; may your spirit, soul and body be preserved complete. Heb. 4:12: The Word of God is living and powerful; dividing even the soul and spirit.
13. When we are regenerated, the Holy Spirit creates the human spirit for the imputation of eternal life. I bet this human spirit is without an old sin nature. That the old sin nature is found only in the soul and body. We have not received the spirit of the world. Human IQ is set aside for spiritual IQ. We can now understand the revelation of God. We can understand, to some extent, the infinite. The unbeliever does not accept it. He cannot accept the deep things of God.

14. The human spirit is the target for Bible doctrine as taught by the Holy Spirit.
15. Because of the human spirit, low human IQ does not inhibit the learning of doctrine. We can be dumb as a post and still learn Bible doctrine. Human perception is meritorious. Doctrine which comes to us is applicable to our life. Bobby mentions a gal at Berachah who had a very low IQ who got a great deal of doctrine.
16. The human spirit is the initiator of doctrine which is then transferred to the left lobe of the soul. This is basic information is complex to get to. Commentaries do not go into this kind of depth with this passage.

1Cor. 2:12 But we have not received the spirit of the world [or, cosmic spirit], but the [human] spirit from God,...

Perfect active subjunctive of οἶδα = to know, to understand. The is inherent knowledge, or knowledge by reflection; permanence of knowledge. When it resides in our soul, it becomes inherent knowledge to us. Learning doctrine is only potential. Just because we have a human spirit, does not mean that we immediately know the entire realm of doctrine. This is why we study doctrine all of our lives. As you mature, you begin to learn things that you had not learned before. Sometimes you are not even aware you are learning things like that. Your spiritual life continues upward.

1Cor. 2:12 ...so that we might know the things [inherent and permanent knowledge] that are freely given to us by God.

The Bible is crammed with information. We may have a large library or a book or two. The books belong to us and they are stored somewhere; however, we must take them down and study and read them to get the knowledge from them. In the spiritual realm, it is the same way. This is the job of the human spirit. The human spirit takes the book down from the shelf and makes doctrine inherent knowledge. This knowledge was not written by men, per se. It is given by God through men who were divinely inspired. 2Peter 1:21: No prophecy was ever made by an act of human will, but by God the Holy Spirit. The unbeliever is intellectual; the believer is spiritually apprised. Some in Berachah are intellectuals, but that is related to the way doctrine is presented from the pulpit. For some, it is just another form of intellectual exercise. The Bible is certainly the source of moral, legal standards. Comparative religion courses will study the Bible intellectually.

Doctrine is the real world; you don't have to learn it by experience, by getting kicked in the head etc. reality is the Word of God. Doctrine is our world through the eyes of God. There is no greater wisdom. If we understand doctrine, we understand the reality of the world around us. The Bible contains the doctrine necessary for understanding absolute reality. Unbelievers do not accept or even look at things the way that we do. The unbelieving world cannot think in the way that we do. We should not be afraid of death, because we know what comes after death.

1Cor. 2:11: Is there anyone who can understand his own thoughts except by his own inner spirit? In the same way, no one can know the thoughts of God except God's Spirit.

In the second phrase, no one refers to unbelievers, as they cannot know the thoughts of God.

1Cor. 2:12 But we have not received the spirit of the world [or, cosmic spirit], but the [human] spirit from God, so that we might know the things that are freely given to us by God.

This Second Πνευμα Refers to the Human Spirit

1. We cannot function apart from the Holy Spirit. The first πνευμα refers to the immaterial part of the world; the spirit of the unbeliever. This refers to the general source and the seat of unbeliever perception.
2. Πνευμα in v. 12 is parallel to its use in v. 11. This knowledge of the world is the application of human viewpoint to life. We get something much greater at regeneration..our human spirit, which is much greater than our human thinking and empiricism.
3. Κοσμικ πνευμα is in contrast to our human spirit. They key is the parallel in the two phrases. The cosmic spirit in the unbeliever as verses the human spirit in the believer. The unbeliever perceives in one way and we perceive in a different way.
4. The parallel is between human unbeliever spirit and human believer spirit. The unbeliever simply has a soul; and in this soul, he can rationalize and observe.
5. Bobby's first point by point; there is a one to one correspondence between unbeliever spirit and believer spirit in v. 12.
6. But the translation of Holy Spirit, which is what we find in most Bibles, does not fit the parallel.
7. There is no question that the holy spirit knows all things and teaches us all things; however, that is not in view here. Paul is a genius and he is setting up a parallelism. Paul is comparing the unbeliever to the believer here.
8. What Paul is not doing is naming the source of divine knowledge.
9. Paul has already talked about the Holy Spirit in vv. 10–11; he has already made this statement and he is not restating it.
10. What Paul says is this, "We have not received the cosmic spirit, but we have received the human spirit."
11. Another illustration: SAT tests. Always a multiple guess section, which one of these words does not fit in the category. This is similar to what is going on in v. 12: Human spirit fits here; Holy Spirit does not fit.
12. By this parallel, Paul is setting up everything in preparation for what comes after.

Now simply listen and absorb information about the human spirit. This is the immaterial part of man which is designed by God in order to perceive, accept and to learn Bible doctrine. The original man was created trichotomus in order to fellowship with God. However, when he fell in the garden, he lost the human spirit. When anyone believes in Christ, the human spirit is restored. This renews the trichotomus state of man after salvation. The believer can now understand divine viewpoint, because he has a receptacle for it.

Bible doctrine is not simply an intellectual exercise. It is an academic study, but it is not our purpose. It is not a mere subject. We are here to understand Who God is and what our relationship is with Him. Doctrine for us is the real world; it is just as applicable to our life as academic information is not.

Illustration: let's say that God gives you a book of observations about you. It might be boring for everyone else; but we would enjoy our own book. We might get bored with someone else's Thought and words are not present in v. 13; they have been inserted by the translator. On this hinges the doctrine of GAP. Formation and preservation of the canon of Scripture and the gift of pastor teacher λαλεω = to speak, to communicate doctrine publicly. Which things we also speak... These words are the instrument of communication. Paul's words are not simply human systems of perspicacity. All human perception.

1Cor. 2:13a These things we also speak, not in words which man's wisdom teaches, but which the Holy Spirit teaches [the source of all divine wisdom],...

There are no nouns in this second section except as inserted by previous exegetes. The gender of one noun will tie this altogether. Συγκρινω = combining. Κρινω = to judge. 2Cor. 10:12 is another time that Paul uses this word. This is a late use of the term and is out of place in this context. Συγκρινω = combining to teach. Bobby gets this from where this is located elsewhere, including classical Greek passages.

The most difficult word is next: πνευματικος = spiritual. Combining to teach spiritual with spiritual...

Πνευματικά

1. The first use it πνευματικη and it is an accusative neuter plural. It means spiritual things.
2. Πνευματικοις same basic word; but a different gender. This is the dative case and this is in the masculine. Exactly the same in the Greek, but different ending, meaning a slight difference of meaning, perhaps.

1Corinthians 2:13

Something about the Astros and someone who never hits a home run.

1Cor. 2:12 But we have not received the cosmic spirit, but the [human] spirit from God, so that we might know the things that are freely given to us by God.

Recall the parallelism set up the previous two nights. Believers have a different apparatus for perception. Most translations render spirit here with capital letters; however, the lower case is actually correct. Bobby mentions the SAT question again. Holy Spirit simply does not fit the parallel here.

We will deal with the mystery of v. 13. Things here refers to Bible doctrine. We is a reference to himself, Apollos, Timothy, etc. Doctrine is what they taught. Paul did not try to convince those listening by rationalism and empiricism of the rightness of the gospel. In the 3rd clause below, we now have the Holy Spirit. This is the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit. The filling of the Holy Spirit is necessary. Now we come to the mystery phrase.

1Cor. 2:13a These things we also [publically] communicate, not in words which man's wisdom teaches, but teaching from the source of the Holy Spirit teaches,...

In the NASB, it reads ...comparing spiritual thoughts with spiritual words. Often, these translations are reached by a consensus of opinion. Dr. Earl Romoer was Bobby's teacher and he is the editor of the NKJV. Spiritual is an adjective in both cases; but is used as a substantive. An adjective is a descriptive word that further modifies a noun; and it must agree in gender and number with the noun. Bobby's grammar lesson. Why did Paul put in two adjectives here with nothing to modify? It is up to us to determine exactly what Paul meant.

We must fill in these missing nouns and add perhaps two nouns to make sense of this. The nouns will depend upon the gender of the adjective. There are cases in Greek; besides gender and number. Πνευματικός is the adjective here that we are dealing with. Πνευματικός occurs twice, but with different endings. The gender will help to define what should be associated with it. So will the verb συγκρινω = combining to teach.

Here, we have πνευματικά (the accusative singular neuter). The pure, basic neuter translation would be spiritual things. However, this does not really communicate as well as we would like. The second time we have πνευματικοίς = a dative plural ending, which could be masculine or neuter here. We might favor neuter here, as the other one is neuter. Ψυκικός = the natural man. If compared with this word, then it should be seen as masculine. A parallel within the same phrase, within the same verse, where there is another parallel, would make the most sense.

Going with this narrows our choices down. The Hebrew and Greek are not exact sciences; however, Greek is fairly exact. This one is simply more nebulous more than most. One commentator gives two interpretive nouns. Interpreting spiritual truths by spiritual language. Unbelievers can listen to a sermon and get some things out of it, using their native mentality. The unbeliever can understand the same vocabulary as we can understand.

The hypostatic union is difficult for the unbeliever to understand, as he does not have any other gaps to fill in to shore up this doctrine in his mind. ...combining spiritual [truths] with spiritual [faculties]. Faculties refers to our spiritual faculties, which the unbeliever lacks.

The faculty for understanding doctrine, which is apropos here. Bobby looked at several commentators; he looked at Driver and Briggs (of BDB) and their exegetical approach.

V. 13 Points

1. The accusative neuter plural of πνευματικά is the direct object of the verb συγκρίνω.
2. What is combining to be taught is πνευματικά.
3. Doctrine or spiritual phenomena is what is to be taught. Spiritual phenomena. That will be put with the first use.
4. What combines with spiritual phenomena in order to teach the believer?
5. What the commentator called spiritual faculties or spiritual apparatus.
6. The spiritual apparatus is faith perception; GAP.
7. Paul has built up right to this point. Now, he is defining what he has been talking about all through chapter 2.
8. The unbeliever cannot have a spiritual apparatus. He cannot accept the spiritual phenomena taught by God the Holy Spirit. This is found in the next verse.
9. Illustration: opera. However, it is not a part of Bobby's soul, and certainly not a part of his abilities. It doesn't touch his soul like it might Gla's. Bobby's grasp of opera is purely intellectual understanding. Gla not only knows it, but she could apply it. She can sing it. It is γνῶσις for Bobby and epignōsis for Gla. The opera lover is analogous to the believer; the person who knows some things about opera is like the unbeliever.

1Cor. 2:13b ...combining to teach spiritual [truths] with spiritual [faculties].

Spiritual growth occurs here. This is how we learn and how we grow. These passages are the Biblical documentation for GAP. Paul will now inform us that this system of perception is unique to us as believers. It cannot be utilized or possessed by the unbeliever.

Only when you understand God, do you understand absolutes. The unbeliever can only understand relative truth. We have an outside source of thinking.

1Corinthians 2:14

Lesson #53

Sunday 1 October 24, 2004

We have spent a long time unraveling v. 13 due to the missing words (i.e., the implied words).

Summary of 1Cor. 2:13

1. KJV: ...combining spiritual [things] with spiritual. There is no noun following the adjectives spiritual.
2. The word is πνευματικός = spiritual. The Corinthians understood what Paul was saying. He may have already told them this verbally and they filled in the blanks.

3. We should be able to understand what Paul meant as well. Adjectives require a noun to modify. The phrase meaning depends upon these two missing nouns.
4. The first adjective is actually πνευματικά. This is the construct form. The endings tell us what case, number and gender a word is. Accusative neuter plural for the first πνευματικός = spiritual things.
5. The second form is the dative plural, but we do not know the gender. Πνευματικοίς, which should be probably a masculine case, to parallel the previous verse. Parallel neuters in the same verse is a more compelling argument.
6. One commentator gives two possibilities for nouns: ...interpreting spiritual [truth] by spiritual language. This first is reasonable; but the second is not. What does language mean here? It is vague.
7. Bobby studies Driver and Briggs as commentators. ...interpreting spiritual [truths] by spiritual [faculties]. Since GAP is the general subject here, this interpretation fits in well with the context.

More Summary Points

1. The first πνευματικός, is the direct object of συγκρινω.
2. What is combining to be taught is πνευματικά.
3. That is the meaning of the first use: spiritual phenomena, doctrine. That which the Holy Spirit teaches to our human spirit.
4. The second use matches with the idea of spiritual faculties, spiritual apparatus, faith perception. Now we have not received the cosmic spirit but the human spirit from the source of God that we might have permanent knowledge of the things [or, doctrines], having been graciously given to us under the authority of God. Which things also we communicate, not in words taught from the source of man's wisdom, but by the teaching by the source of the Holy Spirit, combining to teach spiritual things with spiritual phenomena [or, apparatus]. But the natural man does not receive the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness to him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

Paul will now tell us that this system of perception is unique and possessed only by the believer. This tells us what the mechanics are. The comparison here tells us that the believer can spiritually apprise things, but the unbeliever cannot.

Δε = but; which sets up the contrast or comparison here. Ψυκικός = natural and this modifies άνθρωπος. The emphasis of soulish is simply human life; life in the natural world. Soulish carries the same connotation as v. 11. Soulish is in opposition to spiritual. From this we know, soulish man refers to the unbeliever. The spiritual man is the one who has been regenerated. The soulish man is the man without a human spirit. He comes in all sorts of shapes, sizes and conditions. They can be nasty and horrible; and they can be pleasant, religious and respectable.

Application: Some of these may even like walking into a Cathedral or some place which seems holy to them. They may be affected by a religious service. Some people come just for that; or the pastor is eloquent. It is just oratory; interesting information. They may like to hear someone speaking in absolutes. These sorts of people often fill churches all over the world. They can still be soulish.

Charles Spurgeon from the 19th century. Great preacher in England during his time. 1861–1871 was when he was this great teacher. A famous skeptic and agnostic and he was seen leaving the church and a man saw him, and asked, “What are you doing here? Why do you come here?” “I get satisfaction out of hearing a person preach about that which he really believes.” People are attracted to certainty. There are also people very involved with religion who are soulish as well. They try to impress God with how religious and good they are. However, the soulish man has no appreciation for the doctrinal message which is presented.

1Corinthians 2:14

Lesson #54

Sunday 2 October 24, 2004

Spiritual death precludes the existence of the human spirit in unbelievers. Those who are spiritually dead have no human spirit. In order to gain a human spirit, we must believe in Jesus Christ. As believers, we now have the ability to have a relationship with God. Everything happens in a moment. A spiritually dead person cannot comprehend what we study. They can understand the words, the language, but it has no spiritual meaning to them. It is not information that they can actually use in their life. The unbeliever has no faith perception. Incapable of understanding divine wisdom. Incapable of having an eternal relationship with God. It is part of the mechanic of our growth.

The soulish man does not grasp... δεχομαι = to seek, to grasp, to approve. With the negative ou, it means does not grasp, does not apprehend. Neuter accusative plural τα and it comes from το (a Greek article). They agree with what they modify in gender, number and case. No noun again, just like the missing noun in the previous verse. The key is that this is in the neuter gender, connected to what has come before in the neuter gender. The article in the context of v. 14 refers back to πνευματικός at the end of v. 13. The unbeliever does not grasp spiritual phenomena. No doctrine; no gap. The soulish man does not grasp the doctrine of the Spirit of God.

Μορία = foolishness, dull, tasteless. The soulish man is dull, stupid, foolish. Obviously, soulish men can be very intelligent. However, since they cannot understand the wisdom of God, that is stupidity—he does not understand that which is real and true. The unbeliever cannot have the certainty of a believer. However, without doctrine in our right lobe, we have no certainty either.

1Cor. 2:14a But the natural [or, soulish] man does not grasp the things [doctrines] of the Spirit of God,...

The final clause of v. 14 begins with ὅτι = that. The unbeliever has no apparatus to understand spiritual phenomena. We have had συγκρινω; here we have ανακρινω. This is the only time this verb is found in the Pauline epistles; only found in the book of Acts by Luke (a protégé of Paul) = to discern. The believer cannot understand without the filling of the Holy Spirit. It is the Holy Spirit which teaches us. If we are not in fellowship, He cannot teach us. Furthermore, our human spirit is shut down. It releases no information and takes in no information, as there is no fellowship with God at this point. This is our requirement—to be filled with God the Holy Spirit before studying God's Word.

1Cor. 2:14b ...for they are foolishness to him; neither can he discern [or, know] them, because they are spiritually discerned.

Application to the Believer—GAP

1. When the believer does not transfer doctrine from the left lobe to the right lobe, he has no more discernment than the unbeliever. Γνωσις by itself is no good.
2. The left lobe is merely the staging area for doctrine; it is academic knowledge there; but it has no application. We must believe it. The unbeliever has no way to perceive doctrine in the sense that it becomes a part of his soul and in no way can he apply it. He can understand doctrine.
3. Doctrine in the left lobe is not valuable—it is not operational; only in the right lobe does it have any application to our life. You know doctrine is most applicable is when we are in the most difficult of situations...when our feet are in concrete and we begin sinking to the bottom of the lake. Now we know why it must be επιγνωσις in our right lobe.
4. Many believers had a tremendous amount of γνωσις; they can recite complete doctrines. Many believers have doctrine in their left lobe but which has not been transferred by faith. This is just information which has never been transferred. It has no use for us at all. This is why doctrine does not work for some. It is a waste of time if it does not work in our lives. Doctrine doesn't work if it is just γνωσις.
5. Only επιγνωσις burns scar tissue of the right lobe. As you move through the problem solving devices, they are worthless apart from επιγνωσις.
6. The unbeliever cannot gain επιγνωσις without a human spirit; he lacks divine resources. He can only think with human viewpoint. Even those who think with divine establishment, they cannot think with certainty. There is no certainty for them; what they believe one day, they may not believe tomorrow.
7. The believer who fails to utilize gap has a perceptive handicap similar to the unbeliever. We are assimilating doctrine with a human IQ. It must be spiritually discerned.
8. But where the unbeliever has a permanent handicap (without regeneration), the believer can always recover via rebound. It is always there; we always possess this ability.
9. Επιγνωσις is as close to the believer as rebound.

Just being in Berachah is not going to be enough. You test this. Does everything get to you; does every pressure get to you. Do we worry about everything that faces us. In this situation, sitting in Berachah is meaningless to us. A believer who does not utilize gap has a handful of nothing. You do not have to get up in the morning and dread the day.

Bobby is wearing a red hat because of the Astro loss. A video will be sent to Joe Griffin.

1Cor. 2:14 But the soulish person does not grasp the things from the Spirit of God, for to him, it is absurd; he is not able to understand spiritual phenomena, because it is discerned spiritually.

The believer cannot understand doctrine any better than the unbeliever can, without the filling of the Holy Spirit and then transferring doctrine from the left lobe to the right lobe. Doctrine for the unbeliever has not spiritual value. He cannot conceptualize absolute truth; for him, all things are relative. Points above reviewed.

You don't actually need to have επιγνωσις in order to give the gospel; that can be done from memory. Christian service is only rewarded if we are filled with the Holy Spirit.

Πνευματικός = spiritual. This is in the masculine gender and it refers to the believer who possesses the grace apparatus for perception (not to the apparatus itself). This pronoun refers to a believer. Predicate nominative, predicate adjective and it is designed to modify something. It is synonymous with who which refers to he. These three things are synonymous. The believer has a human spirit. The believer learns doctrine under the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit and he transfers γνωσις into επιγνωσις.

Ανακρινω = to discern spiritually, to judge, to evaluate. Doctrine can be discerned as truth. Doctrine, called in this verse, the all things, can be discerned by the human spirit. It takes the filling of the Spirit to make the grace apparatus function. Here, it refers to the believer's innate ability to use this function. We have the ability to discern doctrine if we utilize the capability. That utilization does require us to be in fellowship to utilize the power of the Holy Spirit. We should be able to recite this now.

The entire context of this message; we're supposed to listen to the translation. The soulish person is the person without God the Holy Spirit. To him, the psuchichos man is absurd. He cannot understand spiritual phenomena.

1Cor. 2:15a But he who is spiritual judges [or, investigates, evaluates] all things,...

Paul uses ανακρινω again, it carries the connotation of being judged or investigated or evaluated. No man can spiritually appraise the spiritual man, because he lacks the means by which to do so. He has no capability to do this. The evaluation of the spiritual man requires Bible doctrine, not human judgment or investigation. Bible doctrine must be the criterion for the spiritual life. The person with only γνωσις cannot evaluate the growing believer. Paul uses this in a very barbed way, to correct this very factional church. Paul has been criticized and judged by several of the existing factions in Corinth. They have criticized him and have judged him. As he writes, this judging must be on his mind. This is designed for their correction. This is because they are unable to use gap. They have no ability to evaluate anything spiritual. They lack the ability to properly evaluate any believer, including the Apostle Paul. Unbeliever or the believer not using gap is unable to properly evaluate anyone.

1Cor. 2:15b ...yet he himself is judged by no one.

Application

1. God evaluates us based upon the doctrine in our soul.
2. We succeed or fail before God based upon the doctrine in our soul; our positive or negative volition.
3. He pleases God by the doctrine in his soul and by applying the doctrine in his soul.
4. We cannot please God in the status of ignorance of doctrine. This means human viewpoint, which is the opposite of God's will for us. In a state of ignorance, there is no way we can understand the will and the plan of God. Everything happens to us because God has designed it that way. We can be certain that, whatever happens to us, that what happens to us is what God has planned for us.
5. This is a private matter between God and me. We must evaluate ourselves with the doctrine in our souls. Human viewpoint, under these circumstances, rule our life. It is not our business to straighten out anyone else...particularly your spouse. It does not matter if your spouse is out of line; you aren't to run their lives.
6. The Lord must do the evaluating based upon Bible doctrine and its application in our soul. He knows best. The Lord must do the evaluating of us, based upon Bible doctrine in our soul.

Now we are at the concluding verse of this chapter. We have the mind of Christ, the same mind that He used for 30 years on this earth. If that doesn't grab us, nothing will. No soulish man can grasp spiritual phenomena. When he tries it, it is tantamount to the unbeliever evaluating the Lord Himself. These Corinthians are evaluating one another; one group evaluates another. Spiritual phenomena is never subject to the evaluation of the unbeliever.

They superimpose their human appraisal on spiritual things. They take their human viewpoint and place it over that which is spiritual. They are, in effect, judging Jesus Christ. They rejected the Word of God, and yet felt free to judge the lives of believers. It is like a dog trying to understand the Internet. He has no idea how to search. Without doctrine in the soul, we cannot search the spiritual Internet.

1Cor. 2:16 For who has known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct Him? But we have the mind of Christ.

1Corinthians 2:16

Lesson #56

Thursday October 28, 2004

The unbeliever or the believer who rejects doctrine can only think in terms of human viewpoint. That is the conclusion for several nights. The unbeliever cannot conceptualize absolute truth; he has no frame of reference for it; it is foolishness to him. The reversionistic believer cannot utilize absolute truth. Some of us seek out human viewpoint as if it were gospel; and some of us do not even realize that we are doing that. These people are unable to evaluate Bible doctrine. When we seek this out, we do this because people we admire think that way. Therefore, we seek out the way that they think. This is the garbage which fills our soul. You often don't recognize that what you hear and accept is simply human viewpoint. If you cannot distinguish, then you have very little doctrine in your soul. Human viewpoint is insidious and it creeps into your soul. Unbelievers and believers without doctrine cannot think outside of the human viewpoint box. The rest of the world will despise your divine viewpoint. The world will not open their arms to you when you have the mind of Christ. You should never be ashamed of thinking divine viewpoint.

Ἐπίγνωσις doctrine makes all the difference ἐπίγνωσις. You may not realize just how different your viewpoint is. Sometimes, when you read or listen to a news broadcast, you might begin to question your perspective of life. We have more wisdom in our soul than all the political pundits combined. Don't be disheartened because you cannot refute every viewpoint that you hear. We have the mind of Christ; that is an absolute for us. There is no concept to the unbeliever of an absolute. He cannot think with a mind of absolutes. Doctrine can provide him with some superficial benefits, like morality. Even his morality can change with circumstances. Situational ethics. Doctrine, to him, is not the truth. It is not the final word or guide for everything in life.

Bobby was reading the other night as to how this works. God and Ronald Regan, A Spiritual Life. Regan saw God as an eminent font of knowledge. He used Bible quotes a great many times in his speeches. We gain intellectual strength in applying Scripture. Freedom cannot exist alone. Learning, faith and freedom...each reinforces the other. Despotism can govern without faith; but liberty cannot. Learning is a good thing; but unless it is tempered by faith and a love of freedom, it can be very dangerous indeed. He saw Biblical wisdom as indispensable in devising law. His spirituality shaped his presidency. Several of these were quotations. Regan knew that the thinking of Christ was the solution to many problems of life. He did not waver from his viewpoints; and he was viciously attacked by the news and various groups for his views. Regan never tried to combine church and state, but he showed that his guide was Bible doctrine. Those around him could simply not understand. For them, this was absurd; it was foolishness. He was one of the great presidents of the 20th century. He made the best decisions that he could based upon the wisdom in his soul. Regan said that a criticism of him were that his solutions were simplistic. This is how things seem to the unbeliever. Absolute divine viewpoint is going to be simple, without gray area, and dogmatic. Human viewpoint cannot grasp this; it seems too simplistic. We do not have to circumvent gray areas. We may not have the solution to them. Sooner or later, the issue will be clear. Part of these gray areas are that we are in the devil's world and people possess old sin natures. Unbelievers do not know about the old sin nature. They don't think about it. It does not factor into their solutions. We have the mind of Christ; we cannot come up with the solution to the old sin nature; but we don't have to fall apart over it either. Simplistic is the key word in the relativistic pantheon. Absolute truth is one dimensional; God's dimension. Everybody's got a solution; everyone has got an angle. The unbeliever does not trust and even fears the dogmatism of the believer with doctrine. They even see the absolute truth of God's Word as dangerous. We will be called unsophisticated and one-dimensional. This is Satan's world and divine viewpoint is difficult to find in it. God honors the doctrine in our souls. Spiritual phenomena is the infallible Word of God. No unbeliever can judge the doctrines which are resident in our soul. No unbeliever is equipped to understand the mind of Christ. The Lord always honors application from the soul of the believer.

Isa. 40:13: Who has directed the Spirit of Jehovah, and what man taught Him counsel? Paul changes spirit to mind. The Hebrew word for direction taken (יָצַח) [pronounced taw-KAHM], which means to bear up, to arrange, to direct. We humanize God in theology, which is an insidious thing.

What Happens When Doctrine is Evaluated from a Human Frame of Reference

1. Rather than using the Bible is the text book, liberalized uses...
2. The God of the Bible is rejected, misunderstood, not present.
3. Instead a god is created with whom man can feel close; warm and fuzzy.
4. God cannot be explained by equating Him with the inadequacies of human beings. This sort of theology starts with man. Liberal theology takes man and his experience and applies it to God.
5. For man to ascribe to God human characteristics and behavior which He does not possess, is blasphemy. God can reveal anthropopathisms to us.
6. When anyone takes human thinking and superimposes it on God, it is tantamount to instructing God about Himself. It is a humanized God. It can be found in all religions.
7. No one understands God unless the revelation of Him comes from God Himself. Liberal theology throws out inspired Scripture; therefore, their ideas must come only from themselves. They cannot think from God's perspective.
8. No one instructs the Lord; He instructs us about Himself. This should seem obvious. The carnal Corinthians are not taking in doctrine. They humanize God. They had their little factions; they were going their own way. They superimposed Him on the rest of the Corinthian church. We don't have to make up some God or some doctrine to take over the church; "You have the mind of Christ."

1Corinthians 2:16

Lesson #57

Sunday A October 31, 2004

The tradition of Berachah; rebound.

Paul wrote this primarily as a corrective to the Corinthians for their behavior in their church. They had not utilized GAP. These verses disclose to us gap. We have not received the cosmic spirit but the human spirit.

Combining spiritual teaching with a spiritual apparatus. We will review...

Grace Apparatus for Perception—a Review

1. The Holy Spirit teaches our human spirit.

2. Doctrine is automatically transferred from the left lobe, the staging area, to the right lobe, which we must first accept by faith. The right lobe is the target for επιγνωσις.
3. The soulish man is the unbeliever, who lacks a human spirit; he cannot grasp the things of doctrine from the Spirit of God. That doctrine is absurd to him.
4. Discerned spiritually is a reference to GAP.
5. The unbeliever will hear sermons; they will hear words, vocabulary and concepts. He can hear and understand. He does not have the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit and he lacks a human spirit. The unbeliever cannot conceptualize what we have, because he cannot assimilate what we can...not in the same way. It is all academic to him.
6. Our growth is predicated on certain absolute basics: the death of Christ for our sins; rebound, the filling of the Holy Spirit. Therefore, the other things which are built upon these basic concepts do not seem reasonable, because he has no true frame of reference.
7. The carnal believer has a human spirit; but there is no filling of the Holy Spirit. Therefore, the Holy Spirit does not teach him. He can listen, but he cannot transfer doctrine into the right lobe. He can memorize and learn; but he cannot take it any further than that.
8. The unbeliever cannot conceptualize absolute truth; he can understand doctrine as academic, but he cannot grasp doctrine as divine viewpoint; it does not have that kind of meaning to him. He has to reject Christ, so his conception of God can only be relative—however, God is absolute and His Word is absolute.

Relative vs. Absolute

1. There is no spiritual frame of reference for the unbeliever; he does not possess a human spirit; nor does he have the Holy Spirit.
2. Relative means that God can only be considered by comparison with someone or something in the human realm.
3. This means that to think in relative terms, which is all the unbeliever can do, you must be able to compare one thing to understand another thing. You hear something and you compare it with something else that you know about.
4. The problem is, what can you compare absolute God to? How can you learn about absolute God when there is nothing to compare Him to?
5. There is nothing that we can compare God to; He is an absolute. Relativism is the only way for him to think.
6. The spiritual apparatus accepts doctrine by faith. God cannot be understood, comparing Him to human concepts.
7. Only by faith-perception can a believer understand spiritual phenomena. The unbeliever has no way to apply divine viewpoint as we do.
8. The relative means there are few constants. In a fallen world, we are in a state of flux. There is nothing in this world which is absolutely dependable. Everything fails from time to time.

9. God is an absolute; He cannot change. He is immutable. His promises are immutable; His truth is never outdated; it is always relevant. Human relativism is shifting sand.
10. Human relativism can never understand the person of God.

The relative mind can, at best, humanize God. He cannot understand God in the true theological realm. Liberal theology attempts to humanize God. They begin with man and attempt to compare God to man, who is their flawed frame of reference. They begin with man and move toward the divine. The God of the Bible is absolute perfection. The unbeliever can only disregard or reject the God of Scripture.

Where Does that Leave the Unbeliever?

1. He cannot grasp the absolutes of doctrine.
2. Substituting for the absolute attributes of righteousness, justice and love, the unbeliever creates a god that is warm and fuzzy and does everything that he wants this god to do. He has no concept of absolute love, or absolute justice.
  - a. An example would be laws which allow for criminals to be executed; and then changing this so that two people can be convicted of the same crime essentially the same way, and get different sentences.
3. Eastern religions are based upon human relativism.
4. Human viewpoint cannot relate to the absolutes of divine viewpoint. Human viewpoint is where we live and think everyday, if we lack the Holy Spirit. We have the mind of Christ. The unbeliever does not.
5. This is why divine viewpoint has no meaning to the unbeliever; God cannot be explained from the inadequacies of the human condition. We are all fallen; we all have sin natures; there is no way we can apply that to God. But, this is how the unbeliever. We start with ourselves and then try to build God in our own image. To the unbeliever, doctrine is not as we should understand it to be. The unbeliever can understand intellectually what Bobby is saying, but he cannot apply this doctrine to his own life. He can only advance as far as his sin nature will take him. We are in the same place if we are not filled with the Spirit. What Bobby got from college is, everything is relative. That is the basis for all learning.

God's plan is an absolute; we have the mind of Christ. Therefore, we can base our lives upon this. The soulish man finds doctrine to be unacceptable. The soulish man cannot grasp the things from God.

The spiritual man discerns all things of doctrine; but the soulish man can never evaluate the mind of Christ. We can have the mind of Christ. We can think like He does. Inside of us, we can think exactly like Jesus Christ did in the first advent.

Isa. 40:13: Who has measured the Spirit of Jehovah, and what man taught Him counsel? No one can take the measure of the Spirit of God. Instead of kakan, Paul uses γινωσκω; Who has known the mind of the Lord? Of course, no one can know God's mind; however, we have the mind of Christ. Paul is emphasizing the inability of man to understand God. You pathetic Corinthians; you can know the mind of Christ. Isaiah says no one can measure the mind of Jehovah; and Paul says, You can, because you have the mind of Christ. Future active indicative of συμβιβάζω, which confirms Isaiah's statement. Συμβιβάζω = to instruct. BDB (to force; causatively [by reduplication] of the base of G939); to drive together, that is, unite (in association or affection), (mentally) to infer, show, teach. Paul is using a little sarcasm here in this verse. He is saying, "How can anyone instruct the Lord?" How can the unbeliever without the mind of Christ instruct the believer who has the mind of Christ. We have the mind of Christ by which we are instructed. Who do we turn to for advice; we all unload on someone. Many of those that we unload on are loaded with human viewpoint. Spouse, bf, gf, etc. These may or may not be believers; and even if believers, they may lack God's viewpoint. Once and awhile there is a believer with divine viewpoint who can remind us of doctrine that we should be able to apply. There is a lot of human viewpoint out there.

There are no solutions for us via human viewpoint. No spiritual advantage is gained through the teaching of doctrine to those who are soulish. Our election will tell us exactly what American deserves. The Corinthians could not evaluate their own situation. It is us; we must evaluate our own circumstances. Paul has gone through all of these chapters, developing the foolishness of human wisdom and the greatness of divine wisdom. Now he lays down the mechanics.

Bobby is going to give us a syllogism.

Major premise: The unbeliever cannot evaluate or instruct the Lord.

Minor premise: The believer has the mind of the Lord.

Conclusion: Therefore, no unbeliever can evaluate the soul of the believer with doctrine.

I don't know exactly how accurate this is in terms of a syllogism. Only the maturing believer can understand God's thinking because we have the mind of Christ. Jesus Christ understand and grew spiritually by the same doctrine that we have. Everything that He did was based upon Bible doctrine. When we advance, we can apply more and more by way of the realm of doctrine.

It is awesome that we can be guided by the same principles which our Lord Jesus Christ functioned from. There is no one else that we can go to with the same wisdom as we find in the Bible. Why look for some human viewpoint person, when we have the mind of Christ. We keep banging our head against the wall of human viewpoint. People who live in a relative world and do not understand the mind of Christ—these are the foolish ones. These mock the truth. They hate the truth and they often hate us because we believe in absolutes. This is Satan's world and he does not like to see the mind of Christ functioning in his world.

This is a final point that Paul is giving the Corinthians. He is grabbing them by the lapels and he shakes them up a little. "Move into the same realm of thinking as Jesus Christ." Real reality based thinking is Bible doctrine. We keep on having the mind of Christ.

Final Summary of 1Cor. 1–2

1. Paul has told us in chapter one of the foolishness of the world's thinking and their hatred of divine viewpoint.
2. He then defines GAP. This is not an option; we are obligated to use it.
3. We must use the mechanics of GAP in order to think divine viewpoint.
4. By Paul's comparison of cosmic thinking with spiritual thinking, he sets the stage for chapter 3, so that he can really nail the Corinthians.
5. Back in v. 10, Paul began with the subject of σκιζματα = factions. These groups cannot think with divine viewpoint. They cannot evaluate properly. Divine viewpoint is totally beyond their reach. Their inability to think with divine viewpoint is seen in the fragmentation of their church. This is what Paul wants to correct. There should be no factions or schisms in a church where doctrine is taught. There is a huge fragmentation problem in our church.

1Corinthians 3:1

Lesson #59

Wed. November 3, 2004

Bobby watched the election results. A lot of opinions of what was going to occur even though that had nothing to do with what happened. Jesus Christ controls history. Bobby thinks back to Nov. 4, 1992; and a prayer was given by Bob. So Bobby reads it.

This chapter begins with what the Corinthians are missing. They are not utilizing their gap. The unbeliever cannot comprehend the mind or thinking of Christ and the absolutes of God. In this chapter, we compare carnal believers with spiritual believers. Paul will give us an application of gap. Both categories of believers possess gap. The carnal believer has obvious advantages over the unbeliever; but they are not using any of their spiritual assets. Paul will define one of the most basic principles of the spiritual life.

Πνευματικός is used again here; it was used as a principle in the previous chapter; in this chapter, it will be used of a person. We all have a grace apparatus for perception. Believers filled with the Holy Spirit will be contrasted with those who are not.

Paul makes it clear as to whom he is speaking. αδελπηος = brother. This refers to fellow believers. Then Paul uses the negative ουχ + the aorist active indicative of δυναμαι (which means able). Λαλέω = to speak. Ingressive aorist; Paul is stating an existing condition of being unable to speak. The ingressive also designates entrance into this condition as well. Paul enters into a condition of being unable to speak. He cannot communicate with these Corinthians. Pronoun humen, which is the dative plural indirect object of σου. To you. This is an undefined number of Corinthians. Paul cannot speak to the church as a whole. This means that this has been this way for awhile and it continues. The Corinthians cannot metabolize his message. Paul is pulling no punches with them. Paul is willing to teach them, but they are unwilling to hear him. Paul is casting pearls before swine. These things have no spiritual value.

Ὁς πνευματικοίς = as (like) spiritual, in such a way as spiritual. Simile; two unlike things are compared. Paul is going to compare two unlike objects. The believer and the believer. This time πνευματικός is not used of an apparatus but here, it refers to a person. They are brothers, believers; but Paul is unable to speak to them. These people are the opposite of spiritual men. Plural dative case; it is to their advantage to be spiritual. Paraphrase: "I am unable to speak to you believers in such a way as he would to spiritual men. Not all believers are spiritual persons. Every believer has a position with Christ; we all have eternal security. Paul is not telling these believers that they could lose their salvation. Paul is setting up a contrast.

1Cor. 3:1a And —I—, brothers [and sisters], was not able to speak to you* as to spiritual [people],....

The word spiritual is a misunderstood and misused word. Unbelievers use this word all of the time. They say they have a spiritual side; they say they are going to do something spiritual. They might mean they are trying to get in touch with their most inner self. It means nothing. Unbeliever thinks that when they are dealing with the immaterial, that means that they are dealing with that which is spiritual. The philosophical difference of the body and the mind. Eastern religions have spiritual concepts; even atheists do. But, most of them are just dealing with the immaterial. It is usually a humanizing process of God.

Believers think they are spiritual simply because they are believers. This is also a misunderstanding of spirituality.

In the next phrase, we have the fleshly man contrasted with the spiritual. Fleshly is a nuanced meaning from v. 3; and there is a subtle difference between the two. Σαρκινός = fleshly. Σαρκινούς = fleshly (in the dative). Belonging to the realm of the flesh = σαρκινός. Several words for flesh; one is σαρξ, which often refers to the old sin nature. Σαρκινός comes from this same root word. A description of those with a controlling sin nature. This is linked to the operation of the old sin nature. Σαρκικός = belonging to the order of earthly things, belonging to the realm of the flesh insofar as it is sinful; fleshly. Only one difference here. A difference of one letter.

Differences Between Words

1. Σαρκινός = the whole condition of those with a sin nature.
2. This means the fleshly person is being governed by the flesh.
3. That is, in the sense, of the believer's overall condition.
4. Σαρκικός = partial, temporary characteristics of the old sin nature.
5. Σαρκικός denotes a dynamic relation.
6. That means a relationship which is in constant flux which changes within the believer.

We are in the midst of a difficult word study. Even though the words are difficult; the concepts are fairly simply, which is rebound and keep moving. Paul is talking about basics, but you cannot move on to more advanced doctrine apart from the basics.

Paul says that he cannot speak to the Corinthians as to spiritual people. Paul is speaking to brothers here, which means he is speaking to fellow believers. These believers are not spiritual men, or Paul could speak to them—i.e., he cannot speak to them in terms of advanced doctrine.

Αλλα = but; adversative particle. Paul cannot communicate at all to fleshly types.

σαρκινος	σαρκικος
v. 1	v. 3
These both obviously have the same root word; and are often rendered fleshly .
Belonging to the realm of the flesh	Belonging to the order of earthly things; belonging to the realm of the flesh insofar as it is sinful.
A description of the condition of those with a controlling old sin nature.	This is a partial or temporary characteristic of the old sin nature.
This is linked to the total operation of the old sin nature in the life of any person. However, bear in mind, he is addressing believers.	Denotes a dynamic relationship between the believer and his ever present old sin nature.
This is the whole condition of the believer with the sin nature.	This is a relationship which is in constant flux which changes within the believer.
This means that the fleshly believer is being governed by the flesh or the sin nature.
This is in the sense of the believer's overall condition when he is under the control of the sin nature.

Summary

1. We continue to have a sin nature after salvation.
2. When the sin nature is in control, we are σαρκινος.
3. The σαρκινος believer is governed by the old sin nature just like unbelievers are. The unbeliever is always under the control of the old sin nature.

4. Σαρκινος is not a reference to a shift in the bottom circle. By faith alone in Christ alone, we enter into the permanent status of the top circle; we are in union with Christ and we remain in the top circle for the rest of our life. We are eternally saved and we have eternal security. There is the bottom circle. This is a temporary condition; it is temporary fellowship with God. Spirituality is a technical term for being in the bottom circle. When we are out of the bottom circle, we are fleshly, we are σαρκινος; however, the changing between being in and out of fellowship is σαρκικος.
5. The fleshly Corinthians, even though they are believers, continue to operate as unbelievers, in the realm of the old sin nature.
6. Σαρκινος represents what the believer is like out of fellowship; and σαρκικος refers to the believer moving in and out of the bottom circle. This way, we understand the impact of the old sin nature on the Corinthians; and therefore, it has an impact on us.

The Corinthians are involved in incest, getting drunk at communion; they sue one another; they were out of fellowship, and therefore behaved just like unbelievers. The sin nature is what we live with; it does not make us sin, but it tempts us. The sin nature completely contaminates mankind.

The Old Sin Nature

1. We are born spiritually dead and we have Adam's imputed old sin nature.
2. The old sin nature is the center of rebellion against God and it tempts us to sin; however, we make the choice.
3. The sin nature is what tempts us.
4. This depraved nature came into existence as a result of Adam's original sin. When Adam made that decision, he made it for everyone.
5. The sin nature resides in the cell structure of your body. Why do we have the sin nature even though we did not do the sinning? It is because Adam passed it down to us by birth. We are all born with one.
6. The sin nature consists of...
  - a. An area of weakness, which is the area where all temptation for personal sin originates.
  - b. An area of strength, which tempts us to do human good. It is not really temptation, but it does produce human good. Satan is disguised as an angel of light; he does acts of good and does good things in order to work his plan of evil. These are not sins, but acts of benevolence.
  - c. We have a lust pattern. Two of them as well. There is the insatiable desire that is sinful; it is such an intense motivator that it can consume all of your thoughts and motivations (sexual, materialism, power, approbation lusts). The sin nature functions on these trends.
  - d. Trends, which goes with the lust pattern. Ascetic trend or legalistic trend; the other is the antinomian trend. Most of the world sees the first group as good people. The second group are those who are involved in self gratification of whatever your lust pattern.

Our sin nature is a constant grim companion throughout life. It cannot be removed during life. Only through the filling of the Spirit can we control the old sin nature. Yes, sin is inevitable; but sin is not inevitable. The homosexual may have a trend in his old sin nature toward homosexuality; it is by his choice that he chooses to commit acts of homosexuality. We can resist the temptation, whatever it happens to be. A baby in Christ does not resist the sin nature very often. We recognize our trend as we grow and we do not indulge it.

Paul cannot talk to these Corinthians as though they are spiritual, because they are fleshly. They cannot do any better than the unbeliever because they cannot assimilate spiritual things. Outside of the bottom circle in carnality is a place where we possess only human perception. This person is only capable of human viewpoint. We must be careful as to whom we go to for advice. A fleshly person can offer fleshly advice. When it comes to spiritual problems, there is nothing they can do for you. When it comes to establishment, some unbelievers can pass along good advice. However, in general, the unbeliever can, at best, give you human viewpoint. Our best advisor should be what is in our soul. In any case, no one else can apply doctrine for us; we can only apply doctrine for ourselves. If we don't apply it for ourselves, it will not help at all. We can listen to good advice; but if we do not apply it, it does not mean a thing. We don't need anyone's advice. We must solve the problem in our own life; only we can do it.

Paul is telling these people that they do not have divine viewpoint; their souls are way out of line; they are acting way out of line. Every day, something will come up in our life and we need divine viewpoint in order to find our way through it. In 1Cor. 2, we found out that we have the mind of Christ. This is where we go when we face problems.

1Cor. 3:1b ...—but— as to fleshly [people], as to young children in Christ.

1Corinthians 3:1

Lesson #61

Sunday 1 November 7, 2004

GAP has been the study lately. A prerequisite is rebound. There is no spiritual life without it.

Numerous portions of secular society; we now have a fundamentalist militaristic government now. The greatest threat to our liberty is the socialistic agenda to rid our society of all Christian elements. The problem that Christianity is the antithesis of freedom is ridiculous; Scriptures are very pro-freedom. Those institutions which spout this look to enslave believers. What Paul describes has great relevance to our spiritual advance. We have more to do with the status of our country than any leader has. We are in that position. Don't get caught up with Christian activism, which is bent on uniting church and state. That is a threat to liberty. There is a strong movement in this land to do just that. Especially those who attempt to ram Biblical viewpoint down the throats of the unbeliever. The unbeliever cannot understand the tenants of Scripture; and he has the right to reject them. Legislating Bible doctrine will not bring people to Jesus Christ nor will it improve our status. Christian activism is not divine wisdom. We are not called to whitewash the devil's world. We need to distinguish between the salt of the earth concept as versus the believer who is an activist. Get a copy of this.

Unbeliever has only human systems of perception and cannot get anything from Bible teaching. We are going to deal with two types of believers: the carnal believers and the spiritual believers. What the Corinthians are and what Paul would like them to be. Some believers are the salt of the earth and others are detrimental. The carnal believer has what is necessary to grow in grace, but it does not function, as he is not empowered by God the Holy Spirit. He is in the same place as the unbeliever. He cannot take in doctrine or apply it. He has no personal, historical or national impact.

1Cor. 3:1a And I, brothers, am unable to speak to you as spiritual men;...

Αλλα ουχ sets up a contrast. Fleshly men, and those are those to whom Paul cannot speak. Fleshly is the adjective σαρκινος = fleshly, belonging to the realm of the flesh; σαρκικος = fleshly, belonging to the realm of the flesh insofar as it is sinful. It is a puzzle why Paul would not use the same Greek word in each verse. Σαρκζ = flesh. This often refers to the sin nature (especially with Paul). Σαρκινος is related to the whole spiritual life of the believer. Σαρκικος refers to the partial or the temporary function of the old sin nature. This denotes a dynamic relationship.

Bobby is going to use a diagram to represent this; on the cover of the Prodigal Son. The top circle and the bottom circle. You begin with the cross and when you believe in Jesus Christ, you go into the top circle. This is permanent; you can never leave this top circle. It is in fact union with Christ forever. It represents our eternal security.

The bottom circle is represented with a broken line; it is porous; one revokable asset: the filling of the Holy Spirit. It is a temporary status. We begin in both circles. You can lose the filling of the Holy Spirit by personal sin.

When you are controlled by the old sin nature, that is σαρκινος. Σαρκικος is the fluid aspect of your going in and out of fellowship. When you are out of fellowship, you have a great tendency to forget everything. There is nothing more important to the spiritual life than fellowship. You may go out of the Spirit every minute as a new believer; as you grow, you will spend more time in the Spirit; you cannot spend all your time σαρκικος-ing in and out of the Holy Spirit. Paul is wasting his time speaking to these Corinthians because they are out of fellowship. They are like unbelievers with only human perception. There are many believers in this life who are capable of only human viewpoint. Many believers in our nation today only think with human viewpoint; Christian activism. We need to take in doctrine so that we can be the salt of the earth and preserve our nation.

1Cor. 3:1b ...—but— as to fleshly [people],...

Ναπιοις = children dative plural; dative of disadvantage, just like σαρκινος. They are babies in the sense that they have no knowledge; they are unlearned in the realm of Bible doctrine. They have not gotten into the realm of the bottom circle. Just as infants are devoid of knowledge, these believers are without spiritual information by which they can grow.

1Cor. 3:1c ...as to young children in Christ.

We all begin as babies. We continue to grow physically and mentally as a child. We continue to be taught and we continue to learn. It is the same in the spiritual life. There will be no outside stimuli and you don't grow. Like a person who does not expose himself to doctrine. They are believers, but they have forgotten Bible doctrine. These believers can only assimilate the simplest of doctrines, just as a baby cannot take in solid food. Two years after Paul has left, these Corinthians are still babies. They have not advanced; they have not utilized gap. "I gave you milk to drink; not solid food; you were unable to receive it; even now, two years later." It always helps to be reminded of the basics, but Paul cannot even teach them the basics, because they are out of fellowship. Βρομα = solid food, food beyond infancy. This is a metaphor for advanced doctrine. Δυναμαι = able to + the negative.

Ετι = yet. We are moving toward the idea of σαρκικος, a fluid relationship between the believer and his old sin nature. Both are absolutes. Either the sin nature controls the soul or the Holy Spirit controls the soul. The unbeliever has no choice; he is always living in the realm of the old sin nature. The believer fluctuates; the unbeliever cannot.

1Cor. 3:2 I gave you* milk to drink and not solid food, for you* were not yet able. Indeed, neither are you* now yet able,...

1Corinthians 3:3

Lesson #62

Sunday 2 November 7, 2004

Summary of Σαρκικος

1. Partial or temporary relationship.
2. Denotes a relationship between spiritual and fleshly.
3. There is a fluid relationship between the believer and his sin nature.
4. This relationship is the status of the sin nature's control or lack of control. That is the changing nature.
5. Both are absolutes; either filled with the Spirit or not; never a partial control.
6. Conclusion: a believer under the control of the sin nature is no better off than the unbeliever who is always under the control of the old sin nature. The believer has the opportunity of losing the sin nature's control.

The more a believer advances, the more he stays filled with the Holy Spirit. It is like building muscle as you attempt to lose weight. The more muscle you build, the easier it is to lose weight, as muscle burns more fat than fat does.

1Cor. 3:3a ...for you* are still fleshly. This should have been the end of v. 2.

Ζηλος = mental attitude sin of jealousy. This is the gateway to a number of vicious mental attitude sins. Possessiveness is nothing but jealousy or mistrust. That is arrogance. It is a manifestation of one of the 3 arrogance skills. Self absorption. Normal jealousy is fearing unfaithfulness, fearing a rival, fearing that someone will slip into their place. Jealousy and bitterness always go together. Jealousy intrudes into the privacy of others and that is exactly what is occurring. They are attempting to control other's lives. A jealous person thinks they have the right to control another's life. When a jealous person seeks to control, he destroys their personal freedom and destroys their love in the process. They do not realize that their jealousy produces the opposite effect. It drives the object of their love/jealousy further away. The factions at Corinth are becoming more and more separate; they are more and more angry. It can happen nationally as well. Many nations out there are jealous of us and what we have and who we are. A jealous person demands what he wants when he wants it; and he wants no one else involved. Jealousy is total preoccupation with oneself. This is what is occurring at the Corinthian church on a grand scale. Paul really nails them with the word ζηλος. Acts 13:45 reads: But the Jews, having seen the crowds, were filled with jealousy and began objecting to the [things] spoken by Paul, objecting and blaspheming. They began to contradict the doctrines taught by Paul; they were blaspheming. We are capable of anything if we are out of the Spirit. The Corinthians were contradicting and blaspheming the doctrine spoken by Paul. Yet Paul did not give up on these people. Paul is telling them just how far out of line they are. They are filled with jealousy and strife.

Strife is the hostility and the bickering that results from jealousy. When you are jealous, you immediately fall into strife. Prov. 17:1: Better is a dry piece of bread, and quietness with it, than a house full of sacrifices with fighting. 17:14: The beginning of strife is like letting out water; therefore leave off fighting, before it breaks out. 17:19: He who loves fighting loves transgression; he who makes his gate high seeks ruin. Strife surrounds you; turmoil follows you. You want to go to war with everyone who gets in your way. You are ready to wipe out anyone who does not do what you want them to. When enough people are like this, you have a war going on. As a σαρκινος believer, we have the ability to wreak great havoc with those who are in our periphery. We are full of jealousy and anger and hatred and bitterness. We have no capacity for marital love or for friendship here. We can make a great mess of the lives of those around us, if they allow us to. We will come in contact with the unbeliever and the believer out of fellowship, and you cannot tell the difference. Run from them; use impersonal love and go as far from them as possible. They are troublemakers for the church and for all those around them.

Keep your eyes on those who cause dissensions and strife and turn away from them (Rom. 16:17). Keep your eyes on them and steer yourself away from them. If you are fleshly, then you will be just like them. The church at Corinth is filled with troublemakers. We are jealous and now we cause strife. Inordinate competition and unconfessed jealousy of the other factions. Paul in two words describes the Corinthian church. They are jealous and experiencing strife. Each group attached themselves to a great Christian leader. Paul has described them. This type of thing will split a church. If you have jealousy in your soul, then you have strife in your life. Men and women who are spiritual, who are advancing, that is where we should be. As wonderful as our president can be and as wonderful as his cabinet may be, they will not deliver this nation. Believers guide a nation to destruction or to prosperity.

1Cor. 3:3b For whereas [there are] among you* jealous rivalry and strife and divisions [or, discords], you* are fleshly and are walking about [fig., conducting yourselves] according to human [standards], are you* not?

1Corinthians 3:3

Lesson #63

Wed. November 10, 2004

σαρκικός = fleshly. This occurs twice in v. 3.

σαρκικός	σαρκικός
Belonging to the realm of the flesh	Fleshly;
Since the believer still has the problem of the old sin nature, σαρκικός is a general statement of the believer's condition when the old sin nature is in control.	This describes a movement; a changing status of control. Personal sin, rebound, personal sin, rebound.
This is the definition of control by the old sin nature.
The σαρκικός believer is governed by the old sin nature. This is the absolute status of carnality.
The Corinthians were essentially ruled by the old sin nature. Paul said that he could not be to these believers, because they were not spiritual men.

Bobby deals with the top and bottom circles now. In v. 2a, Paul says, I gave you milk, but not solid food; and these are metaphors for basic doctrine and advanced doctrine. Paul compares them at this point to immature believers.

Assumptions and Direction of Paul's Logic
1.	These are believers; therefore, Paul had to have taught them basic doctrine; at least salvation doctrine.
2.	He says clearly that they could not receive basic doctrine in a σαρκικός condition.
3.	Obviously, when Paul first came to Corinth and began teaching basic doctrine, the Corinthians must have taken some of that in.
4.	Σαρκικός does not mean that they learned nothing. They have taken in milk, but they have not progressed very far. In 18 months, they slipped into full-time carnality.

5. These were new believers coming out of a pagan society; mostly Greek; and they had a very hard time breaking old habits of the Greek temple religion; e.g., the 1000 temple prostitutes. They had a difficult time staying in fellowship.
6. They were σαρκινος a good bit of the time. Enough to splinter the church; to scatter it.
7. Paul speaks to them in v. 1 as though they were σαρκινος all the time. Obviously, they had learned something under Paul but they were spiritually out of it now.

V. 2: Indeed, even now, you are not yet able to take solid food (advanced doctrine), for you are still fleshly (σαρκινος). Paul is making it clear that he is really disappointed with them. Paul was extremely upset with them and best that this is handled with a letter. Paul's point is, "You are going nowhere, even now" almost 2 years later.

In the next verse, he will use σαρκικος.

Σαρκικος

1. Paul is now focused on their status of moving in and out.
2. He has already told them they are fleshly.
3. Paul has redefined their condition in a more helpful and hopeful way.
4. Even though the sin nature still have an upper hand, there can be some counter acting influence of the Holy Spirit. They need to get things under control by getting into fellowship and move away from the constant influence of σαρκινος.
5. It is Paul's point that they are σαρκινος but that they will advance as σαρκικος.
6. Σαρκικος is a shade better than σαρκινος.
7. Paul wants to see some movement from σαρκινος to σαρκικος.
8. They are still fleshly. Paul wants them to move away from the hopeless condition of σαρκινος to the fluid position of σαρκικος, which is the shade of nuance with hope. Only here, they can begin to grow.

They are ζηλος and

Summary on Jealousy

1. This is a nasty mental attitude sins that leads to a whole bundle of evil.
2. Jealousy is a manifestation of the 3 arrogance skills. Self-absorption; irrational fear of a loss of love and lack of personal attention. If we have a jealous problem, that means we have a self pity problem.
3. Jealousy is an intrusion into the privacy of others and it attempts to control the lives of others. You want to change and control someone else, so they will fit the pattern that you want them to be in. Their self absorption gives them a green light to control another's life.
4. When the jealous person seeks to control the object of their jealousy, he destroys personal freedom and love in the process.

5. A jealous person never understand that his jealousy produces the opposite effect of what they want. You want a person to love you out of their own volition; if you attempt to coerce someone out of jealousy, nothing good can come of that. You cannot coerce and compel love.
6. Jealous people wonder why love does not last. Jealousy precludes exactly the kind of love that they want.
7. Jealousy is part of the demand syndrom; a total preoccupation with self. When you are jealous, you are thinking only of yourself. You demand that everyone subordinates themselves to your wants and desires.
8. Jealousy is the arrogance of seeking to regulate and control everyone in your periphery. You think you love these people, but you have no capacity for love. Jealousy always goes nowhere. Jealousy is destructive. Jealousy will drive others away; it will not bring anyone closer.
9. The jealous and possessive person demands love and attention based on his own volition and on his own timing; and not on the volition of the other party.

They are full of strife (ερις). Tremendous strife in the church.

1Cor. 3:3b For whereas [there are] among you* jealous rivalry and strife and divisions [or, discords],...

The believers there have a ray of hope; Paul asks them two questions: are you not fleshly, which refers to the moving in and out of the bottom circle. He also asks, are you not walking around according to human standards.

Περιπτεω = to walk, to walk around. This is a common metaphor for walking in spiritual growth; however, they are only standing still.

1Cor. 3:3c ...you* are fleshly and are walking about [fig., conducting yourselves] according to human [standards], are you* not?

Getting back into fellowship is at their disposal, but they are not making use of that. Indeed, even now, you do not have the power to receive it. Where there is jealousy and strife among you, are you not controlled by the sin nature? Are you not walking like unbelievers? Paul is disappointed with them because they are broken up into factions. They planned to pick a pastor later and have him do what they want him to do.

Control: if you have had a friend who is self-centered. We can only apply this to ourselves. This sort of friend is delightful to be with as long as things are going their way. However, when they cannot control the situation, then they are unhappy and they make those around them unhappy. Don't cross them; don't go contrary to their desires, or you will see their demeanor change. The sin nature's arrogance becomes very strong at this point. You must conquer those people you cannot control; that is the thinking of the self-centered person.

How do self-centered people take control? They use manipulation. There are many ways to manipulate. Anyone who does not get their way will manipulate those around them to get their way. If you are being manipulated, this may be helpful so you know what to do when this happens. When a person loses control, they must bring back their control. Their thinking to manipulate may not be a conscious thought process; but they do choose to do this. They may use lying, intimidation, brutality, various social exploits.

Manipulators will have relationships that never work. You destroy their volition, their love, all that goes with this. When you destroy a person's freedom, you destroy their ability to love you. They can only love out of their freewill. Manipulation is a difficult habit to break.

1Corinthians 3:3

Lesson #64

Thurs. November 11, 2004

Bobby thinks of his father on veterans day. There is nobility in war, courage and self-sacrifice. It is a noble cause, what veterans do. Some of the great moments of humanity have been in war. Bobby has an interest in World War I, when Armistice Day was proclaimed. Bobby reads from A Storm in Flanders, which is about the Battle of Epr. 100,000 men for a few miles of real estate; the result was a poem, In Flanders Field. McCrea wrote it. This became Poppy Day, when poppies were in that field. A few flowers, a poem, and then a celebration on both sides of the Atlantic. It eventually became Veterans Day?

The Corinthians were acting just like unbelievers; they were involved in a power play; a corporate takeover of the church. They formed their factions around these leaders (it sounds a lot like denominationalism to me). With a faction, many are forced to choose sides. According to Paul, their problem was jealousy. Then follows hostility, implacability, quarreling, etc. Jealousy destroys all privacy within the confines of the church. They are fighting for their clique to take control. Many are engaging in inordinate competition. They distort doctrine and blaspheme the name of Jesus Christ. The faction, I am of Christ, blasphemes the Lord's name.

The Corinthian Church is going nowhere because of this jealousy and infighting. Those who desire control...for what? Maybe you want control over an individual. As the factions grow and as they grab at power, they become less and less interested in doctrine.

This occurs in every sort of organization; math departments, the military, churches. In short, σαρκίνοϛ believers have done what they could get control over that church. They are manipulating others in order to take control. Manipulation is the opposite of authority orientation. It is always the opposite of authority orientation. In the church, the Word of God is our authority. There is always a human element to that. Any believer bent on manipulation and control must usurp the authority of the pastor. If the pastor has authority, then they cannot control the church. Some try to manipulate a church with money; they will offer so much, if they can get this or that.

Flattery and fawning is one type of manipulation. Brooding and moroseness is also used. Then scheming and lying and gossiping. All of this serves to manipulate others. Sometimes, a mood is projected to manipulate; often by a particular gender.

Manipulation

1. The objective of manipulation is control and dominance; always; whether in a church or between individuals.
2. The power lust of a control freak is indulged through manipulation.
3. Manipulation is truly a vicious evil which will destroy friendship and romance. If you manipulate, then you use others. When someone feels used, that is not conducive to great friendships or love affairs.
4. Human love without virtue or capacity becomes an inevitable sphere of manipulation. The emotions involved in love become tools that some learn how to use very early in life to use to manipulate.
5. Normal friendship and love involve companionship, intimacy, rapport, help and communication...all part of normal friendship or love relationships. Manipulators corrupt these things with a desire to bully and to breed dependency.
6. That is a lust that many find very hard to resist. Manipulation is the gratification of power lust. It is all competitive, but the wrong type. There is no freedom where manipulation exists.
7. Guilt is another way that self centered people are able to manipulate. This is not about someone else. This, you apply to yourself. Bobby is doing this to offend us. He wants to see if any of this fits us. With doctrine in your soul, you don't need to manipulate. You let it happen because the Lord has our best interests at heart. Manipulation is the opposite of the plan of God. Applying it to anyone else does not change them one bit. You can only change yourself if this doctrine applies to you.
8. Guilt is used by self-centered people to manipulate as well. It is an emotional feeling for wrong, a manipulative approach; they are inciting mental attitude sins in another person. Think back to someone who has made us feel guilty; how did we react to that? As the manipulator, you have guided them to being out of fellowship.
9. Disappointment at some real or imagined wrong dramatized by the manipulator, is the trigger mechanism for guilt. Unearned guilt can be created in friends or loved ones by making them feel culpable for some situation in the life of the manipulator. When a manipulator is disappointed, that is intolerable to that person. They must take corrective action into their own hands. It isn't pleasant to feel disappointed in someone you love. They don't want to leave it in God's hand; they try to manipulate the other person so that they don't disappoint them again. See how insidious this is? They attempt to make the other person feel guilty so that they will not feel disappointed. You sabotage your own spiritual life when you get involved in this. This is closely allied with connecting others with your failures. You manipulate by blaming others for your failures. You don't feel bad; it is their fault.
10. If you are manipulated into guilt reaction, you will make decisions that under such emotional compulsion, are irrational and detrimental to your life—especially your spiritual life.

11. Under these circumstances, you real responsibilities and often your integrity are forgotten. You then cater to the manipulator. By doing so, you encourage more manipulation. It is power lust gone mad; it feeds itself.
12. This is the objective of the guilt trip; to bring others to their knees; and then to control and dominate them by getting them to wallow in mental attitude sins; e.g., guilt.
13. When you use leverage and manipulation against other believers, it is a manifestation of legalism and self-righteousness. The manipulator says, "You can't dress like that and be a Christian." Or, "You can commit that sin and be a Christian." That is an attempt to control your life. That is a horrible sin; I don't want that sin to be around me.
14. Trying to manipulate believers into acting the way you want them to, is usurping the role of doctrine in their souls. This is prevalent in churches today; our churches are rampant with this sort of activity. "Bearing fruit" is an expression; you must show a sign or a proof of your salvation by something that you do. Matt. 7:16; so they suggest, "We will know who is saved by what they do." The Corinthians are examples of the worst kind of people and really flummox things up. Those who quote this bearing fruit stuff then choose to become fruit inspectors. This is tailor made for a manipulator. Accuse someone of not bearing fruit, implying that they are not saved; and the potential for manipulation is staggering.
15. This type of manipulation is always temporary, superficial and hypocritical. How long do you think you can be manipulated into leading this or that kind of a spiritual life? Well, for some; a long, long time. Some feel if they follow others into this great spiritual life, that they can get their growth, etc. by being manipulated. If you are so stupid as to let someone lead you into a holy life; you will be run ragged I this kind of arrangement. The manipulator really doesn't care about your behavior; it is not about making you better; it is about control. He wants to control you. Manipulation is all about control. There is no good motivation in a manipulator.
16. Only doctrine in the soul can initiate a healthy spiritual life, and change the character of a believer. We cannot force someone to live the kind of life that we expect them to.
17. Sins of the tongue are integral to successful manipulation.

1Corinthians 3:3

Lesson #65

Sunday 11/14/2004

Manipulation is the opposite of authority orientation. It is usurping legitimate authority. The σαρκινος believer sees himself as being the most capable of running your life. They disregard the authority of Jesus Christ and insert themselves. To control others, they might fawn; brood; scheme, malign, intimidation, etc. All of these are skills used in order to achieve control.

We need to apply this doctrine to ourselves and not to anyone else. We must determine if we fit any of the criterion of a manipulator. If we think of someone else while listening, then we will get little or nothing out of this.

Points of Application on Manipulation:

1. The objective of manipulation is control of dominance.
2. The power lust is indulged and realized through the process of manipulation.
  - a. Anything which is a lust can be controls through one's free will. Any lust can be controlled.
3. Manipulation will destroy friendships, because you will use people to achieve your own ends. When one uses another to achieve some sort of dominance or power. The emotions of love can become tools that some learn early in life.
4. Power lust is a lust which is a lust that is very difficult for some to control. Friendship and love are trampled. There is no freedom where manipulation exists. When you must control and dominate them, then you will chase them away.
5. Between intimate friends and loved ones, you should not have to fight for freedom.
6. People use guilt to manipulate others. It is an emotional feeling for wrongs which one feels bad about; often accompanied by self-pity. Disappointment with a real or an imagined wrong; and it is used as a trigger for guilt. Humans disappoint other humans; that is normal. They have a desire to control those and do it by causing others to feel guilt. Blaming someone else for your unhappiness; that is not one of the problem-solving devices. You cater to the manipulator when you fold before their manipulation. This happens repeatedly. Dominance and control must happen over and over. One time does not end the cycle. Manifestation of legalism and self righteousness when you attempt to manipulate others. "You can dress that way and be a Christian; you can't sin that way and be a Christian." This is an attempt to control our life. When they do not allow your spiritual life to correct your spiritual problems, then they are trying to manipulate your life for their own ends. This is wrong and it is so prevalent in our churches today.
7. You must examine your own life; not someone else's. What they do is not an issue for you.

1Corinthians 3:3

Lesson #66

Sun. 2nd session 11/14/2004

8. Permanent changes in a manner of life are not made by manipulative believers. They cannot change your personality. What can be changed? Your modus operandi. If it is from the sin nature, then doctrine can control it.
9. Sins of the tongue are integral to successful manipulation. The technique:
  - a. Lying or distorting truth is a component of manipulation. It creates an aura of infallibility about the manipulator. It gives credibility to the manipulator's point of view. Sometimes, only lies and distortion allow them to have this credibility. There is always a price to pay; that is the leverage. The manipulator cannot be found to be wrong; if they are, then their manipulation is compromised. They must lie about themselves in order to appear flawless, so that you will follow them. They can only correct our spiritual lives if we buy into their lies.

10. The manipulator has a lust for control; once they have some control, they want more. Can you imagine wanting control and not getting it? Or not getting enough of it? Manipulation demands attaining control. It is like a drug. It is consuming; it consumes one's soul with a desire. Doctrine is to change our modus operandi. Such a desire for control obscures the doctrine which is necessary to guide our spiritual life.
11. With husbands and wives, someone has to be in control. There is an occupational hazard in marriage; the woman has a natural propensity for manipulation. There is a natural desire to control the husband. However, the woman will never respect a man whom she can control. A woman responds to a man's authority. However, there must be love on the part of the man and respect on the part of the woman; and none of this includes manipulation.
12. Manipulation can even be manifested in our spiritual gift. For instance, the person with the gift of helps. To come along side of someone who is in need or who is ill or without, and you supply this need; however, you can use this to manipulate them as well. You cannot cross the line to domination and control.
13. Manipulation is the weak controlling the weaker; the weaker succumbs to it. The manipulator is weak because they do not rely upon doctrine. It takes great strength to manipulate; and it takes the strength of doctrine to recognize that is happening.
14. The manipulator uses your vulnerabilities to manipulate you. Vulnerability should be protected by those you love; they should not exploit them.

The manipulator uses your vulnerabilities to manipulate you. Manipulation is exactly what is going on in the Corinthian church. They are broken up into factions, and each faction is vying for control, which involves manipulation.

How Do you Solve the Problem if You are a Manipulator?

1. Manipulation is an indulging of power lust. It comes from your lusts.
2. You must recognize it; you must identify it. You cannot apply doctrine to something that you do not recognize. If it is a sin, you must rebound; and manipulation requires rebound. You must get out of this σαρκινος condition.
3. Resist the temptation which draws you. Manipulation can be part of that. The sin nature is temptation; it is not sin itself. We can buy into that sin or not. Manipulation is like any other lust; it is a long climb to get out of it. We have the resources to get out of it.
4. What is the point of doctrine if doctrine cannot solve these problems? Doctrine can solve all of the lusts in our life.
5. You want someone to solve their problems with their own soul and doctrine in their own soul. Our spiritual life is non-functional if we are manipulating others and theirs is non-functional if the changes they make are based upon manipulation.

Sometimes you may have doctrine in your soul and that is the solution to this or that problem. Grace orientation does not manipulate others. In grace there is understanding, tolerance, impersonal love, and capacity for personal love. There is freedom to live and love. The greatest love comes from freedom in your soul. You will never receive love from anyone. We are not called to redecorate people to suit your taste.

What do you get from manipulating someone else? Ultimately, you will get exactly the opposite of what you desire. If you want love, you will not get it. You do not want to manipulate those you love because it will drive them away. This is so true in love and romance and friendship. In courtship, if you want to manipulate them, you will never get what you want in marriage. You cannot change a person; only spiritual advance will do that. Don't think you can change your personality via manipulation. This is a modus operandi, not a personality trait. It is a trend, but it can be controlled. We have all we can do to conform ourselves to the mandates of Jesus Christ. We don't have the time or the spiritual authorization to change all those around us. We are not called to do that.

We are all manipulators from time to time. Paul did not hate those who were manipulators of the Corinthian church; he just chose to straighten them out. He knew doctrine would change that church and the people in that church.

Church leaders use Scripture to manipulate others. That is heinous. Each faction will manipulate the others. We are not called to be egocentric; we are called to be Christ-centered. We are to have the mind of Christ. That is being Christ-centered.

The leaders of these factions are the consummate manipulators.

1Corinthians 3:3

Lesson #none

Wednesday 11/17/2004

Rained out.

1Corinthians 3:3

Lesson #67

Thursday 11/18/2004

Still studying manipulation, I think? There are many problems in the Corinthian church; so far, Paul has been more general about these problems. Paul has seen the blackness in their souls. The result has been factions. There is a huge problem with infighting and manipulation; there has been a struggle for dominance by various sects.

Manipulation involves control and dominance. It also involves the emotions of love. Human love without virtue or capacity becomes an arena for manipulation. The vulnerabilities of an emotional relationship are ripe for manipulation. Love is destroyed by inordinate competition and oppression.

Manipulation involves the guilt trip; they incite the mental attitude sin of guilt; if you can be manipulated into the emotional sin of guilt, then you may act in specific ways in accordance with that guilt. Fruit inspectors of the church who inspect you to get you to change your ways. They inspect you to manipulate into doing this or that. Do not feel guilty because you are not doing enough.

Manipulation involves sins of the tongue; lying, maligning, distorting the truth. It gives the manipulator an aura of infallibility.

The weak control the weaker. The weaker are those who succumb to manipulation, as they do not have enough doctrine to counter being manipulated. They know your weaknesses, they know your trends, they know your vulnerabilities; and they will use your vulnerabilities against you. Vulnerabilities should be protected, not used as leverage. You should not exploit the weaknesses of others. When people are sinners, they are sarkinos, they are carnal. Do not manipulate others into doing what you think they should do. We have no right to interpose ourselves between God and another person.

If you are a manipulator, how do you control it? What if you don't know how to stop it. Manipulation is a part of your sin nature's lust pattern. You want to control and dominate others. If you are a manipulator, you must realize you are and that this is a part of the lust pattern. It does us no good to recognize the problem in someone else. This is designed for us to examine yourself.

Rebound gets us out of the σαρκίνοϛ condition. Rebound is the gateway to other problem-solving devices. You must utilize rebound, and then get doctrine, in order to deal with this. Beating manipulation is a slow climb out of an entrenched habit.

Her desire is to her husband; this refers to the woman's desire to manipulate her husband. Women will use crying to manipulate their husbands (or other men). Of course, there is legitimate crying.

Manipulation is using human viewpoint. Divine viewpoint overcomes a manipulative outlook every time. In grace, you understand and you are tolerant. Love must be a response brought on by the person who loves. Soliciting love by manipulation destroys any love that might be there. You cannot manipulate people into truly changing. They may change some behavior from time to time or change this or that; but there is no real change which occurs. In other cases, the other person rebels against the manipulation. You must take people the way that they are or leave them where they are.

If you can't be with a person in courtship without wanting to manipulate them, forget marriage; it will never work. Only spiritual advance permanently changes a person. God has a plan for each of our lives; and God's plan for Charlie Brown may not be our plan for C. Brown.

We are all manipulators now and again. Paul aimed his reproof at the manipulators in Corinth. Paul did not hate the Corinthians; he wrote this epistle to get them in line.

The Corinthians broke into faction and they have fallen into a myriad of mental attitude sins. Distorting doctrine to manipulate others. These factions were creating a church within a church.

An illustration. The problem of people moving to other churches. Every believer has the right to find a good pastor under whom he can learn. Sometimes personalities rub you the wrong way. Every believer has a right to do this. When some leave a church, they attempt to recruit others to leave with them. This is manipulation and it is a violation of the privacy of the priesthood. It foment competition between churches for bodies, which should not be. This is pure and simple divisiveness and similar to the factions of Corinth. Recruiting others is not the correct procedure.

You don't get oatmeal at one church and solid food at another. We have no right to manipulate someone else into finding another pastor. Don't hang out in several churches and foment revolution. You have no right to decide what pastor is better. When you leave a church, do not rip the fabric of a church apart. Jesus Christ supplies the hearers; we don't. A pastor must keep a church from splitting into factions. Faction leaders are not pastors or true teachers of doctrine. They are not pastors; they only can destroy. The more human viewpoint they get, the deeper they fall into factions. These factions can affect families as well. Some choose to stay in factions because of friendships. They are drawn like moths to a flame. Common ground of antagonism toward others.

Perversion of Christian Life

1. Factions consist of people whose power lust finds fulfillment in their group attempt to usurp authority. They must bring down all authority but their own.
2. Power lust; to be a big fish in small pond.
3. Gossip and malign those who stand in their way.
4. They become hypocrites who give...
5. They become σαρκινος in their quest for power.
6. These associations are nothing more than sin nature compatible. Like-mindedness of doctrine.
7. Doctrinal orientation can be one of the greatest bases for friendship. No friendship between those who have a mutual desire to manipulate.
8. The abnormal associations within factions become a foremost importance in life. Doctrine is put on the back burner to simmer and go out. Thus says the Lord, "Cursed is the man who puts his trust in man and makes flesh his arm." Being fractious is destructive to your own soul, to the church, and eventually to the US.

George Meisinger

from Chafer Theological Seminary

Ordained in Berachah in 1968.

Spent the summer studying in Berachah under Bob. Taught the college class in the summer. He lived with Bob during one of those summers, which was an education in itself. Chafer Theological Seminary has been around for 11 years. Bob and Chafer were very instrumental in this seminary. Those things you have learned, entrust these to other men, so that they may teach others. Their training is based on ICE; isagogics, categories and exegesis. The Bible was written in an historical context and what we know about that historical context throws a great deal of light on the Bible. Hermeneutics, which are rules in studying the Bible. Church history helps us in learning what to do and what not to do. Categories is systematized examination of certain topics. Bob's genius was rising above and seeing the big picture and categorizing doctrines.

In the 1960's in MIT, they began to study how all languages work. Major breakthroughs on how languages work. They developed certain theories and principles in the 1960's and Wycliffe used these principles in translation.

Built Chafer Theological Seminary on 5 Principles or 5 Distinctives:

1. Prophecy is not allegorized. E.g., 1000 years means a literal 1000 years. All of the liberal denominations and some conservative take an allegorical approach to the prophetic passages.
2. 4 years of Greek and Hebrew each in order to graduate. One seminary is 4 semesters of Greek and 3 semesters of Hebrew; this is not enough for a lifetime ministry.
3. Classic Dispensationalism. Not to blur the lines between the Church and Israel.
4. The Bible is sufficient for a lifetime ministry. Psychology is not required; no other social sciences required. No counseling courses. Concentrate on the languages, which does require hard studying. It will be swimming upstream.
5. Freeness of God's grace is a major distinctive. "God's grace is free, but it costs you everything." is something one idiot says. That is not grace and it certainly not free. Salvation is by faith alone in Christ alone. Good works before, during or after does nothing to affect our position in Christ.

Dr. John Beck is the systematic theology. Tim Nicols there and teaches Greek and graduated from there. John Nemah, heads the Greek department. He moves in rarified air. Mike Constant from Dallas, and chairman of the Hebrew department.

Some adjunct faculty. Jewish studies, which helps with the historical information. Zane Hodges taught Greek at Dallas for 27 years, but taught textual criticism there.

We are the recipients of great Bible teaching because Bob had a serious educational background. He came along when this guy needed a good, swift kick.

Goal to equip men for the ministry. $75/credit hour; in southern California; 31 students. Pastor's conference in the second week of March.

Paul has received many reports dealing with the divisiveness of the church of Corinth. The Corinthians are carnal and reversionistic. Paul tells the Corinthians, are you not controlled by your flesh? There was a lot that went on behind the scenes of the various factions as they vied for power. Some actually incited others, their own friends, to mental attitude sins. Sins of the tongue were rampant there—lying, gossiping, and maligning those of other factions. Legalism and self righteousness were rampant among the factions. There were cliques which saw themselves as the rightful leaders of the church. Each group is hypocritical of their condemnation of the other cliques. Each one was as bad as the other. These factions created a church within a church.

Churches that do teach doctrine can be just as divisive as those that do not. The people in Corinth have moved to their respective factions. It is okay to move from one church to another. We have the right to find a pastor under whom we grow best. Conflicting messages from time to time from different pastors, which is why we should stick with one pastor. Stay away from confusion. The problem is when individuals leave one church for another and attempt to recruit those around them. Everyone has the right to make their own choice. Bible doctrine is procedure for life. Privacy of the priesthood is critical, which is why you don't get to try to move others from one church to another. This kind of behavior foments revolution and competition between churches.

Bobby was in the parking lot last Wednesday when no class was; and someone drove up and said, "When two or more are gathered."

Believers should not pit one church or one pastor against another. Pastors should be united in the ministry; they should not be pitted against one another. They may claim, this church is missing something; and this other has what we need. Competition between churches is wrong. This is a parallel to what was occurring in the Corinth church. When you chose to leave Berachah, just slip out and go. We are each responsible for our own spiritual lives; we are not responsible for the spiritual lives of others. God will discipline those who attempt to rip a church apart. Being fractious in any church requires you to leave or stop being divisive. There is no other option. We are part of a team; we are not on opposite teams, even if we go to different churches.

Back to the leaders of these Corinthian factions. Faction leaders must destroy those who teach doctrine; that is, their authority. That is the only way they can achieve dominance. They must destroy authority orientation. Believers in factions often choose to remain in these factions for friendship. Actually, mutual support groups for trouble-making. These are abnormal friendships. They are based upon arrogance, jealousy and strife. There are mutual antagonisms here. These abnormal friendships pervert Christian social life.

Factional Friendships

1. Factions consist of people whose power lust find fulfillment in their group attempt to usurp authority.
2. They must bring down all authority but their own.
3. They prop each other up through gossiping and maligning those they don't like.

4. They give lip service only to doctrine; they use their lips for sins of the tongue
5. They become σαρκινοϋς in their quest for power.
6. These cliques are nothing more than sin nature compatibility.
7. Doctrinal orientation is the basis for some of the greatest most lasting friendships that life has to offer. Like minded in doctrine is the basis for lasting friendship. When you have a problem with your friend, integrity allows you to talk to them, but not behind their back. Like-minded sin natures will not foster integrity. Doctrinal orientation is also a problem-solving device for marriage.
8. Abnormal friendships in become the most important aspect of your life...greater than doctrine. Jer. 17:5
9. Factions trust in people and not in doctrine. Bobby's illustration below.*

*An aside by Bobby: Bobby recalls a clique with a leader of a clique in Berachah and he was confronted with his divisiveness. His friendship was severed because he challenged Bob's authority. He had a showdown with Bob in the office, and he took this as an opportunity to attempt to manipulate. He did not listen, except enough to form a rebuttal. "If you get used to throwing your friends away, you will never have anything permanent in life." But this was a deception to turn the situation to his own advantage. A manipulator cannot be wrong; they must deflect all criticism. He said this from a position of an abnormal friendship, not a normal one. That is why his statement was erroneous. He was a plague to the church. The pastor teacher has the obligation to protect the congregation from divisiveness. Human viewpoint has a ring of truth to it. It is both deceptive and attractive. Doctrinal standards must be applied in order to understand when a statement is made to manipulate.

1Corinthians 3:4

Paul now begins to address the factions of the Corinthian church. Paul now goes after them. These perpetrated jealousy and strife, as per v. 3 and they were attempting to manipulate other believers in the Corinthian church. They were critical of the leadership of other factions. Each faction was critical of the other factions. Pure arrogance and divisiveness. These people are critical and unkind to those of opposing factions. They praise those who are in their clique or those they are attempting to recruit.

The pastor should not be a part of any faction in a church. Paul was writing against it; and the factions drove Apollos out of town, who went to Paul and said, "I don't want any part of these people." They use the names and authorities of the church leaders. They do a wrong thing in a wrong way. They are bullies. They have no real authority. People manipulate when they are deceptive and when they lie. Sooner or later, this sort of modus operandi will be exposed. These people who want to indulge their power lust will be frustrated by us...as long as we stay away from them. God will discipline them; He can handle these kinds of people. When your lust cannot be gratified and you are in σαρκινοϋς, you are an unhappy person.

Paul has now described all of this for us, and he will use this in order to focus on the gift of a pastor teacher. The pastor teacher must understand his own responsibilities. The Corinthians were losers and a distorted view of the pastor, who is the spiritual leader of the congregation. He is the spiritual leader because he studies and teaches. He is so gifted to teach and he has God-given authority in the church. A clique is not designed to teach doctrine, but to control and dominate others. A pastor should care about teaching doctrine. Three of these factions were very critical of Paul. The 4th misrepresented him. These are unimpressed. They are sorry to hear the same old pablum from Paul. Their complaints about other factions was just an excuse. They wanted to discredit Paul, get rid of their pastor, and to take over control of the church. That was the 3-fold objective of three of the factions. The 4th would want first to distort Paul's teaching, get rid of their pastor and to take over control.

Are you not mere men is a reasonable rendering of σαρκικός. Paul was challenging their leadership in a clique and their manhood. They had no doctrine; they were babes in Christ and they were manipulators. Paul is going to call them a bunch of silly backbiting women in conflict. Paul insults them; these are church leaders. These are supposed to be leaders, but they are not acting that way. Leadership in a church is for men only; that is the teaching of Scripture. "You are not leaders and you are not even men" is what Paul will say to them. These are believers who were acting just like unbelievers. Paul was acting like a shock jock right here.

1Cor. 3:4 For whenever someone says, "—I— indeed am of Paul," but a different [one], "I of Apollos," you* are fleshly, are you* not?

Paul had been discussing σοφία and the thrust of wisdom. In v. 5, he will shift his subject. He was teaching truth prior to this. Now he will ask some leading questions. Now, a pastor must even examine himself.

οὐ = then. This new section begins with two more questions. What exactly are Paul and Apollos? Τί = who, what; interrogative pronoun. Since, we would think who should be here, as there are people named here. But we know who these people are and we do know what their quality is. What then is Apollos and what then is Paul. What is their function? What is their qualities.

Διακονός = servant; deacon. This is a one word description that Paul applies to himself. This carries the connotation of serving; of ministry. Paul and Apollos have great spiritual gifts; they possess the highest gifts; however, Paul calls himself a servant. Even, with his great authority, he is simply a servant or attendant of God. He is not presenting himself as self-effacing (although he is secretly proud). Bobby is a servant, and he serves those in his congregation.

1Corinthians 3:4

Lesson #70

Wednesday 11/24/2004

It God's will for our life to be always thankful. God has called for us to share His happiness all of the time. Thanksgiving is in our soul, not in our circumstances. Be thankful for the tests that God has given you for your benefit. We are not to be discouraged; we are not in Felugia.

Two of the four factions are named in v. 4: the Pauline and the Apollos factions. Apollos is the local pastor of the Corinthian church. Paul is writing against the strife and the jealousy and the backbiting and the gossiping. Apollos was run out of town. Paul will correct both distortions, if the Corinthians will listen. The spiritual leader in any local church is the pastor. Paul calls these people what they are: "You are acting as mere men." They had no spiritual life; only σαρκικός. Paul wrote them, hoping they would rise above their slandering, malicious hostility. These men were acting like σαρκικός men. All is not lost; they can recover from this. They can rebound and come out of this; from ναπιος to spiritual maturity. These are believers acting like unbelievers.

1Cor. 3:4 For whenever someone says, "—I— indeed am of Paul," but a different [one], "I of Apollos," you* are fleshly, are you* not?

In the next verse, Paul will shift his subject. He will shift from teaching to the teacher and to the students. Paul will now be on the hot seat. He will now explain what he is to do; what his leadership is all about. 1Cor. 3:5.

This new section is marked by the transitional conjunction ουν. Paul is now addressing the question he posed in the previous verse. He and Apollos are not mere men. Τι = who, what. Διακονος = deacon, servant. Paul and Apollos are servants. They administer, like an attendant, and benefit others. This is the loftiest of the gifts, that Paul and Apollos have. Paul doesn't come to them in a high hat, in long robes, with his hand out asking for money. He comes to them as a servant.

Servitude is leadership. Paul teaches; he communicates; he is still a servant. Paul and Apollos communicate doctrine; it is the gift that they were given. It is the gift that gives them authority. Paul was firing with both barrels when writing to the Corinthians. He is grace oriented and would always stand tenaciously stand their ground.

What the Pastor is

1. The pastor serves for everyone's benefit in the congregation.
2. Communication and leadership gifts do not entitle any pastor to arrogance. Bobby is to teach and that doctrine should convict us and make us realize what the spiritual life is all about.
3. A pastor is privileged to communicate God's word when given such a gift from the Holy Spirit. It is an abnormal lifestyle.
4. The pastor has no right to think of himself as a special creation of God. That leads to arrogance. Bob originally taught 8, 9 10 classes a week. Bobby has no idea how he did that. Bobby is working at 90% of his own capacity. Bobby is teaching the most important information to his congregation.
5. He simply fulfills his leadership role as unto the Lord, fawning to no one. Servants are often seen today as fawning people. That is not what a pastor is.

6. The pastor's work is based upon the grace of God exclusively.
7. It is not based upon the pastor's talent, personality or rhetoric.
8. The gift of pastor teacher is not given to those who earn it. Some never use it; some don't want it; some agonize over it. It is given by the Holy Spirit, as all gifts are. God's grace supplies the gift and the Word of God for leadership and communication. In the military a good leader gains the respect of his men and women. He cares about his troops. Troops are not just cannon fodder. The pastor is the same way; he cares about us based upon what he learns from us.
9. Using these resources illuminates the Word of God, first to Bobby, and then to us. The Holy Spirit illuminates the study for Bobby.
10. Servant-hood includes the hard word of study that is necessary for illumination. It does not just pop into Bobby's head. The man who digs into the Bible finds what his congregation needs for him to find. The congregation must respond and then advance spiritually.

Bobby enjoys commanding a unit and seeing them reach their potential. Each has his own job and we are part of a team. However, there is no teamwork in Corinth. Apollos is being handled and run all over the countryside. The church was not responding to the doctrine that Apollos taught.

In essence, we are all servants of God. Paul here talks about himself; he has to destroy these factions. He will point the way by explaining to them what they are doing and why. Vocabularies are deceptive. When we are tested with adversity, we get an idea as to where we really are.

Illustration; let's say you are well-off enough to have servants for your family. In all families, there are fights. Families have their ups and downs. It is impossible to function without some fights sometimes. Then the people in the family, they choose various servants as their support. That is absurd. The battle continues in Corinth. These are just names without meaning to them. All of this is totally absurd.

Pastors as Servants.

1. The servants, Apollos and Paul, are nothing. By the grace of God, the pastor is gifted.
2. The pastor attends the congregation as a servant. Bobby is not a slave to the whims of the congregation. He is not to be manipulated.
3. Pastors are never to be objects of devotion or leaders of factions. A pastor must be even-handed. You don't take sides. In circumstances like this, everyone is wrong. A pastor is not given a leadership role to promote one faction over another. We are in church for one reason—to grow spiritually.
4. The pastor serves as the communicator to all the congregation. That includes the most obnoxious person in the worst factions.
5. Pastors are not flunkies and they do not cater to those who lust for power and recognition. Leadership is gone when that happens.

6. The doctrine taught from the pulpit refutes that activity. When a leader gets bogged down officiating little petty squabbles, no one is growing.
7. A pastor is a mediator because of the doctrine he teaches. Squabbles end because we rebound, take in doctrine, and straighten ourselves out.
8. Pastors are leaders and they must show leadership, based upon doctrine and principles; never based upon self-interest. In the military, a leader only interested in himself will never have his people perform for him. They are not to serve the interests of factions or cliques. A good leader does not get down in the trenches and fight the war and fight with the grunts. A leader abdicates his responsibilities when he gets down and fights with the men.

You should never use the name of a pastor to discredit another pastor; to recruit from one church to another; to support your particular clique.

1Cor. 3:5 Who then is Paul? But who [is] Apollos? —But— rather [they are] servants through whom you* believed, and to each [one] as the Lord gave.

1Corinthians 3:4

No Class/Thanksgiving

Thursday 11/25/2004

1Corinthians 3:4

Lesson #71

Sunday 11/28/2004

Paul chooses two factions: the Pauline and the Apollos factions. Those who said, "I am of Christ" was simply using His name to further their power lust within the church. In v. 5, Paul asks, "Who [or, what] is Paul?" He really asking, "What quality is Paul? What quality is Apollos?" Paul says that he and Apollos are διακονος, or servants. Paul was possibly the greatest of all the Apostles and he calls himself a servant. By inference, other pastors and Apostles are therefore servants. This point will further Paul's objective to stop all of the infighting which is going on in the Corinthian church. Paul will use his Servant-hood as a means to end this infighting. Many Corinthians saw their spiritual life as deferring to this faction or that. They saw themselves as being part of a faction. These factions were attempting to be overloads in the church. Paul, the man with the greatest sets of gifts, calls himself a servant. His position as a servant will debunk the idea that leadership in a church should run the show. These people are way out of line. These cannot be the authority in the Corinthian church, as pastors are but servants. The leaders of the faction don't teach doctrine. A servant takes orders; he does not give them. Paul reveals the Corinthians failure to follow the pattern of God's authority in the church.

These Corinthians have aspired to run the church, but do not know the first thing about running a church. Certain men are given a gift of pastor-teacher or Apostle, in order to teach the Word of God. The pastor is a guide and he is gifted to study and teach God's Word. The pastor studies privately and then teaches what he learns. Bobby serves the Lord and serves all those in his congregation. The pastor pulls the doctrines from the pages of Scripture and that is the pastor's servitude. So we all have servants, even though we don't have much money. The pastor uses ICE. It is God's grace which provides the gift of pastor-teacher, the Holy Spirit to guide the pastor, and the Words of Scripture which make all of this possible. All of this is grace. The pastor confers upon himself by virtue of study and teaching authority. By very definition, the pastor has the leadership position in the church. The communicator of doctrine gains this authority through his teaching. The pastor-teacher is essentially a servant-leader. Every pastor finds themselves in that position. We are mandated to study and mandated to follow. Bobby's job as a good leader is to take care of us. A good leader does not just issue orders; he guides and takes care of his sheep. Bobby never uses his authority for personal aggrandizement. Money, fame, a good tv spot, glory, etc. This is never the function of a leader. If a pastor does not have his congregation's respect, then he cannot lead them. The pastor gains this leadership by teaching God's Word. A good leader takes care of those under his command. You must earn the respect of those under you in order to lead them. The leader, in order to be a leader, must develop certain characteristics and traits in order to lead his congregation.

Characteristics of a Good Spiritual Leader

1. Spiritual maturity; the ability to make wise decisions.
2. A good leader must be humble; he must be grace-oriented. The Corinthians want to manipulate and oppress those around them; they want to run over those under their command. Good leaders are not oppressive. You can talk loud and you can talk tough; but you take care of those beneath you.
3. You need self-discipline; in college, you either have self-discipline or you fail. Bobby must make himself study; there are times he would rather do almost anything else. Self-discipline is the key. Bobby's greatest fear is to run out of notes. Sorry, come back next time and I'll have more stuff for you.
4. A pastor must have compassion. Must be able to deal with people without judging them for their failures. This is true of a husband in a leadership role. This is critical for a leader to have.
5. Poise. Poise is simply handling pressure and often in front of a lot of people. Without poise, a leader becomes a buffoon. This comes from integrity and character.
6. Will. You are not a pushover. You might be soft-spoken, but people don't stream roll you.
7. You are flexible. In the military, situations change constantly; and a military leader must adjust to changing circumstances. Everyone begins to get uptight. Bad leadership spreads to those under the leader.
8. Endurance. Sometimes, you must just take one more step.
9. Confidence; you know what must be done, and you do it. Bobby's confidence comes from the Word of God. Bobby can be insecure about everything except for the Word of God.
10. A pastor must be decisive and assertive. Leadership always lets those know how critical the mission is.
11. A sense of justice when dealing with problems. If you have no sense of justice, then you will be unjust in dealing with those who follow you. You cannot solve problems if you are unjust. The Word of God is the standard for justice. There is nothing more clear-cut or black and white than the Word of God.

12. A leader needs to have a sense of humor. You cannot spend all of your time being uptight. A leader must be able to have a sense of humor about himself.
13. A leader must be equitable and fair. You don't give a lot of slack to your friends, but hang tough on those you don't like. You don't give special privileges to your friends and give the lowest positions to those who are. not your friends.<sup>1</sup>

These few characteristics can be applied to any leader under any circumstance. Paul says, I serve you; I lead you.

Why Does Paul Say I Serve You?

1. The faction leaders are self-appointed. As the pastor grows, so do we.
2. These factional leaders are usurping leadership authority that does not belong to them. Illegal authority attempting to overthrow legitimate authority.
3. These people serve themselves. They have no interest in serving others.
4. This word διακονος is Paul's one word which shows that they are wrong. Paul is appalled that they use his name to further their own agenda.
5. Doctrine is being distorted and the church is entirely distracted. This chiefs want to be church leaders. Each one of us has a niche; a leader or follower; and we each have our own spiritual gift.

1Corinthians 3:4

Lesson #72

Sunday2 11/28/2004

The factions of the Corinthian church are usurping authority which is not theirs. Servant-leaders in themselves are nothing. Even the great Apostle Paul is nothing. Arrogance is not a great characteristic of leadership.

The Pastor Status

1. The pastor did not earn his gift and he does not deserve it. God gives the gift of pastor teacher; we don't earn it or deserve it.
2. The pastor attends with his gift as a servant to the Lord; not as a slave to the whims of his congregation.
  - a. Bobby doesn't use PowerPoint presentations, so that he can maintain a personal contact with his congregation.
3. Pastors are not be objects of devotion.
4. They are not to be leaders of factions. Making a pastor a leader of a faction is a perversion of his authority.

<sup>1</sup> I added this characteristic; I had a very, very bad leaders twice in my life.

5. They must be even-handed. When there is a disagreement that must be solved, then the pastor must mediate fairly.
6. Leadership traits are developed; in the church, they are developed through Bible doctrine. In the world, it is hard work, experience and personal integrity.
7. A pastor must communicate to everyone in his congregation. He must communicate to the most obnoxious of his congregation. If the person becomes divisive, then Bobby may have to remove them. We are imperfect sinners and God cannot just lay aside His perfect righteousness and justice. God is love, but He is also justice and righteousness.
8. Pastors are not flunkies. They do not cater those who lust for power and recognition.
9. Doctrine taught from the pulpit refutes the negative activity described.
10. The pastor must be a mediator with doctrine. The doctrine that he teaches is used to mediate correctly. He is not to be an instigator with human viewpoint. This is why Bob did not counsel. The best way to counsel is to teach divine viewpoint. What we need is doctrine to handle our own circumstances. There are pastors all over who cannot wait to get you behind closed doors and fix your problems.
11. Pastors are leaders and must show leadership based upon doctrine and principle; never upon self-interest. A pastor who is self-promoting should be run from. This indicates arrogance. This indicates a priority other than teaching doctrine. If he promotes himself as a great pastor, he is not leading you to maturity. He lacks objectivity in the soul.

1Cor. 3:5a Who then is Paul? But who [is] Apollos?

Δια ὅς = instrumentality is stressed here. Something happens through Paul or through his communication to the congregation. Constative aorist of πιστευω. This looks at the action in its entirety. It points back to the time of regeneration when you believed and sums up their spiritual lives as a whole. There is more here than just a salvation message. Paul's work goes beyond simple salvation. We hear doctrine, but we must also accept it.

Paul planted, Apollos watered, and the believers there grow. The aim of the pastor is to edify his congregation.

1Cor. 3:5b But— rather [they are] servants through whom you* believed,...

Bobby is going to dust off the old edification complex and teach it. Growth them depends upon gap; converting doctrine to επιγνωσις information in the soul. The Corinthians completely corrupted the authority of a church. They forgot that a pastor is to attend to an entire church, not to just a portion of the church.

Believers are bound by Scripture to regard a person of the Lord as being of great value. Leadership appointed by God demands respect. Not because you like them but because they teacher. We don't gather at a church to glorify this or that person. A person with doctrine is of the highest value. If you are good at what you do, you are respected for what you do. They may not like you... We are to grow in grace and knowledge. Not everyone will love and respect us; and this should not matter to us.

Δίδωμι is here, without a direct object to emphasize giving. Paul wants to emphasize the grace of God. God is maturing the leader. He causes the growth. It is God's grace which is critical to our growth. If we don't understand grace, we don't understand God. Grace is the key to the spiritual life and without it, we know nothing. The Corinthians do not know anything. God gave them the opportunity. The opportunity to be saved and to grow is given by God. Everyone of us has the same opportunity; all of this has been give to us. God also gives us the opportunity for Christian service, which leaders to rewards in heaven.

1Cor. 3:5c ...and to each [one] as the Lord gave [opportunity].

A person with great talent has the most difficult time recognizing the grace of God; but it is indispensable to us.

1Corinthians 3:5

Lesson #73

Wednesday 12/1/2004

King of Kings has been revised somewhat.

Paul asked the question: what is Apollos and what is Paul? Paul is making a statement with this. Just what are we that we should be leaders of your clique? Paul and Apollos were servants (or attendants). Διακονος = servant. Every pastor is mandated to study and teach the Word of God. The servant is to teach the Word of God and guide the congregation as a shepherd does his sheep. The pastor is the man with the illumination, which he is by the Holy Spirit. When the Holy Spirit illuminates the pastor, he reveals that in turn to his congregation. The pastor must have great self-discipline in order to bring his message to his congregation. A pastor must be able to communicate what he knows. The authority of leadership is with the pastor; yet he is also the servant as well. A servant-leader. Servitude is a word which we don't often use today often in a good light. Not every pastor is a natural born leader; not many can really inspire you to follow them. Bobby had to learn how to lead in the armed forces; it did not come naturally to him. His personality was not necessarily that of one which others see as a leader. Inherent to the gift of pastor-teacher is the gift of leadership. The function of the leadership as a communicator of doctrine

Leadership and Communication of Doctrine

1. Doctrine is the authority for the spiritual life. It is easy to figure out what to do when God tells us to do this or that. Our mandates or marching orders to live come from Scripture.
2. The pastor-teacher gets his leadership or authority from his teaching doctrine to his congregation.
3. From this very servitude comes Paul's authority for leadership. From her servant-ship comes his authority. Studying and teaching the Word of God is from whence the pastor gets his authority. This is the servant-hood of a pastor, which results in his authority. People look to those who have answers. People will follow.

4. This is the true purpose of the pastor-teacher: to study and teach and to lead his congregation. He is not their to promote a faction.

The Faction Leaders in Corinth

1. The faction leaders of the church were not divinely appointed leaders. They ignore the God-given authority.
2. Such people are out of line by usurping authority which does not belong to them.
3. People like this serve only themselves.
4. This is Paul's statement against the use of his name by a faction. They claimed Paul's name in order to use his authority. Paul is extremely upset that they are using his name inappropriately.
5. Doctrine as been distorted and the congregation is being led astray by these faction leaders.

Paul and others who followed him presented the gospel. You believe in Christ and you continue to believe in doctrine, transferring it from the left lobe to the right lobes. All the people had better ideas and the like for Berachah are gone. Eph. 4:11–16. Since there is just a faction which lists Paul as their leader means that he is not the leader over the entire congregation but over just a small portion of the church. Believers who are in a church are bound to regard the servant-leader of a church as a person of great value. Bobby's purpose is to teach us something that God wants us to know. Bobby is gifted by God the Holy Spirit to know the original languages, to exegete the Scriptures, and to teach it.

Scripture just has one meaning. Each passage means one thing. Many interpretations can come out of a book; however, the Bible can be interpreted in just way. It is extremely for a pastor to be prepared, to understand the principles of exegesis, to know the original languages, and to know how a verse belongs in his contextual and historical context.

Proof texting is taking a verse out of context and then applying that in whatever way that you want, ignoring its context. There are so many differing theologies out there, and this is why.

The pastor must teach all of his congregation. He must not take sides. He must not serve one portion of the teaching there. The Corinthians used Apollos for their intrigues and factions.

1Cor. 3:5b But— rather [they are] servants through whom* believed,...

The verb is διδιδμι, which is a very common verb that means to give. It is always God who provides the opportunity for everyone to believe. This is the whole realm of the spiritual life. If there is positive volition, they will hear the gospel. There are millions who have never heard; but there is no positive volition. The gospel is given to anyone who wants to hear it. Then there is equal privilege and equal opportunity to reach the pinnacle. We can share the happiness of God; He can share His happiness with us. This is executing the spiritual life; this is reaching the pinnacle. Thirdly, we have the opportunity for spiritual growth. Our time on earth is a drop in very large bucket.

Are you consumed with money? With success? Paul always gives credit to the grace of God. God in grace provides every opportunity for each and every person. If we are positive at God-consciousness, then the gospel of God will find us. If you want doctrine, then you will find it. If you have a desire to know the will of God, you will find it. Anywhere in the world where doctrine is desired, it will be presented. Almost everyone in Berachah wanted to know about God and His plan. We found it and we are here. There are as many ways of finding doctrine as there are people in Berachah Church. We found doctrine because we were looking for it. Some decide it is too much work to get to Berachah; it is too much work to write down anything; it is too much work to concentrate after such a long time. Some do not want to be enlightened. Some go to a church for a social life. When you go to a church; they have to accept you. Some go for business opportunities; there is bound to be someone there who want what you are selling. The only reason we should be in church is for doctrine.

1Cor. 3:5c ...and to each [one] as the Lord gave [opportunity].

1Corinthians 3:5

Lesson #74

Thursday 12/2/2004

The opportunity is available in three ways:

1. Salvation; if anyone is positive toward God, salvation will be given. God will track that person down and give them the gospel in some way or another.
2. Each person is responsible for his own decisions, and that constitutes the opportunity; you are either negative to it or positive.
3. If the volition is negative toward knowing God, then God is not obliged to provide gospel information. This explains why some people have not heard the gospel.
4. It is the unbeliever's choice not to be positive.
5. The unbeliever is positive at God consciousness, then the Holy Spirit will provide the knowledge of the gospel for that person.
6. The Holy Spirit reveals the gospel and provides the means by which the unbeliever can be saved. Paul in Corinth: modern missionaries arise seeking positive volition, and missionaries were called to this or that mission field. The living conditions were difficult for Bobby to imagine. However, the answer is simple: someone in that area is positive toward the gospel. The missionary must overcome linguistic and cultural barriers. There are even some who have told the missionary, "Where have you been? I have been waiting to hear this." Wherever positive volition exists, God provides the gospel. God is never limited in how He reaches people.

Sometimes God provides gospel information to those who are negative toward Him. This is done so those in the periphery with positive volition can respond. There is the case of the exodus when Moses went to Pharaoh and presented the gospel; even though Pharaoh was negative, there was a mixed multitude which traveled with the Jews. Pharaoh was not just negative, he worked to turn himself against God. The Egyptian and Jew focus was not on the false gods of Egypt, but upon the power of Jehovah Elohim. Many gentiles in this empire heard this message simply because Pharaoh hardened his heart against the gospel and the truth. There were a number of saved Gentiles who went with the Jews when they left Egypt.

Paul did appear in Corinth and many responded. Paul was a missionary; a super-missionary, if you will. There is equal opportunity for salvation for all. All who are positive toward God can get the gospel. They will hear it. Nowhere else in life do we have equal opportunity and equal privilege. Paul taught the mystery doctrine as the world had never heard before. There is no Apostolic succession. We can still advance, if we want to. Now we have electronic ways to disseminate doctrine. If someone wants it, doctrine can be sent around the world.

Warnings about electronic dissemination of doctrine. DVD's will be a medium of dissemination even at Berachah after awhile. There is no substitute for face to face teaching, and many have come to Houston in order to get this. Berachah's auditorium is the best place to get doctrine. Tape ministry was first for those who could not be there and later it became available to those outside of Houston. Believers must set aside a few hours each week in order to take in doctrine. There is some sacrifice on our part to be there. Easier to say, "I'll stay home and listen to a tape." This is the most important part of our life, taking in Bible doctrine. Nothing is more important. We get more doctrine in the auditorium than we would elsewhere. Bobby speaks from experience. He had 20 years when he took in doctrine elsewhere. When you have the opportunity for face to face teaching, then you should take it. Bobby likes to see us, but it is more important for us. It is positive volition just to get to Berachah. Opportunity does not mean that it is going to happen.

Thirdly, there is opportunity for Christian service; that is our opportunity for rewards. It is okay to be driven by rewards. We should put our spiritual advance in perspective. We are driven by this or that, and we need to advance, as that is eternal.

Don't become frustrated because there are those who do not have any positive volition towards doctrine. We are not part of the equation for correction for these people. We cannot be the arbiter for someone else's spiritual advance. Remember, you cannot force it; you cannot will them to advance spiritually. However, you have to be careful, even with children; however, you have to allow them a certain amount of volition. It is their responsibility, not ours, to see that they get doctrine. Bobby was forced only to the teen class; but after that, it was up to him. Bobby didn't truly become positive until the end of college. You cannot push and nag too much and certainly not when they are adults. They must take it in themselves.

God gives us testing, and this forces us toward spiritual growth acceleration. We sometimes act in our negative volition as if God fails us. Either our expectations of Him are low, which means we have a lack of confidence in His Word. We don't understand that what we want does not necessarily coincide with what He wants for us. Just because we want something does not mean that God wants it for us. Our own agenda is a refusal to acknowledge that God knows best for us. God always does know best and we often just want to push Him aside. We demand action from God but we may get a different kind of action. God has a way of jerking us up and getting our attention, so we must pay attention to what He wants for us. We cannot superimpose what we want on Him.

1Cor. 3:5c ...and to each [one] as the Lord gave [opportunity].

Paul planted, Apollos watered, and God caused the growth. There is a variety of services of the leaders. One plants and another waters. Paul's emphasis continues to be the work that God has done in grace. Paul's focus is not on his planting, but upon God growing the believers.

There is a shift in v. 6:

1. Paul is now addressing all the believers in Corinth, not just the factions.
2. Paul is addressing their positive early history.
3. Paul is defining the role of those through whom God has worked as well as the work of God Himself.

Paul uses three verbs to describe each role here. There is a role which each one plays with regard to our growth in the spiritual life. This is a universal and normative statement for all churches today. Φεττω = to plant a seed. This is an agrarian economy that Paul is addressing. There is shipping, trade, industry, etc. However, planting is something everyone understood. The metaphor is a seedling believer growing to maturity. These are the baby believers and this is a seed which did not grow. Culminative aorist; the event is looked at in terms of the culmination of its results. Paul planted; this was Paul as a missionary. Paul planted some doctrine in the minds of these baby believers. Paul had in mind the attainment of a certain result, which is the Corinthians moving toward spiritual maturity. He initiated the process through teaching. That was Paul's mission: to plant.

The second verb is ποτιζω = to water. Another culminative aorist. The event is seen in its entirety with an emphasis upon its final results. Apollos is the caretaker. The planting is a one-time thing, but the watering is continuous—it must be. Paul is the forerunner.

1Corinthians 3:6

Lesson #75

Sunday 12/5/2004

Apollos and Paul are both servants, through whom the Corinthians believed. Faith-perception is also in view here—believing the doctrine which is taught. Believing denotes the entire spiritual life, from beginning to end.

Equal opportunity for salvation; equal opportunity for growth. Rewards will be a subject that we will study soon, and rewards are also available to us via equal opportunity.

There were at least the 4 factions of the Corinthian church: those of Paul, of Apollos, of Cephas and of Jesus. Paul and Apollos are both servants of God, taken as examples. All of those who wrote Scripture were inspired of God the Holy Spirit; however, these believers retained their writing style. There is nothing which can be added to Scripture now. Many cults and religions add to the Scriptures. Paul's gifts gave him authority over all of the churches in the Roman empire; the gift of Apollos gave him authority over the Corinthian church. We don't think of servants as having authority, but Paul describes himself and Apollos as servants.

The Leadership and Servitude of Teachers of Doctrine

1. Bible doctrine carries the very authority of God Himself. It carries His divine mandates and His directives.
2. Those who teach doctrine are associated with this same authority.
3. Their gifts and teaching doctrine helps to realize the authority of the communicator.
4. All pastors are servants, those who give doctrine. However, he is a servant-leader. They are not pawns in these factional disputes.

When you yank verses out of context, that is called proof-texting, which is not God's method. People interpret these Scriptures apart from their context. This leads to a false understanding of doctrine and false standards with regards to your own life.

Paul wants the Corinthians to understand that they are servant-leaders. This is what they are (v. 5); v. 6 is what they are.

Miscellaneous Points:

1. The variety of their service, and the subordinate nature of their service. Leaders are thought of as having subordinates, but not as being subordinate. They serve the congregation by studying and teaching.
2. Paul's second emphasis continues to be on the work which God has done in grace. This is his main concept throughout. Paul's focus continues to be on the work which God has done. GAP is the key to spiritual growth. Without God's grace, without the filling of the Holy Spirit, without the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit, without the transfer of doctrine to the right lobe, it does not work. Our only part in all of this is our volition. Our metabolizing of Bible doctrine is nothing more than grace.
3. Three different attitudes:
  - a. Paul is addressing all of the believers in Corinth. He was addressing the factions.
  - b. He is now going back to the positive history of the church; he recalls where they were and what they should be doing.

- c. Paul is defining the role of those through whom God has worked.

In v. 6, Paul will use 3 different verbs and 3 different subjects. Φυτεύω = planted. There is the inference of the planting of a seed. The aorist looks at an event from its entirety. The culminative aorist looks at the event from its existing result. Paul is the subject here and Paul is the one who plants. Paul went to Corinth (and to anywhere else) to do the planting. Part of his mission was to write the inspired Word of God.

Anytime you plant a seed, you expect growth. Paul planted the seed, he expects something to happen. The Corinthians moved toward spiritual maturity. The planting of the seed is evangelization. Paul initiates the process of growth through teaching.

The second verb is ποτίζω = to water. An aorist active indicative, as before; and a culminative aorist as well. The event is looks at from the perspective of the result. The existing result of Apollos watering is spiritual growth. What a seed requires is water in order to grow. This was the job of Apollos. Apollos has the gift of pastor-teacher. Paul planted and Apollos watered. Part of Paul's planting was evangelism, and also he planted the idea of doctrine in the minds of those he planted. We are all planters; we are all farmers, as we all evangelize. However, we do not all water. A person is only saved once; that is the planting of he seed. However, there must be watering for the plant to grow. Stop watering and the plant withers. There is volition involved. Planting is a one-time operation and planting is on-going. Two different gifts: the evangelist plants and the pastor waters. The gift of Apostleship is a one-time gift for the formation of the church. The gift of pastor teacher is an ongoing gift; not a one-time gift. There are no more apostles. The gift of pastor teacher is on-going. There should not be a drought in any church, but there is. The church actually should be our favorite watering hole. Watering is the advance to maturity. Paul and Apollos had different talents and different gifts. Apollos was a spell-binding speaker. Paul was outstanding at teaching and logic; although he may not have been a good public speaker. God the Holy Spirit bestows our spiritual gift and under the filling of the Spirit, we use our gift to the glory of God. In combination, Paul planted and Apollos watered. The intention is the glorification of God. Our objective is in front of us. Our objective will be seen and realized. When Paul wrote a letter and sent it, that letter stood forever as the Word of God. We will never write a letter which will last forever. Paul's purpose was very long-range.

Paul's Purpose

1. Only the gift of Apostleship carried with it the production of Scripture which would stand forever. We can all understand our mission and purpose by what Paul wrote.
2. This information would be used thereafter by the pastor to edify his congregation, if he is doing his job. Thousands of pastors are not doing their job. When a man deviates from their job, they are out of line. They are not to put together parties; they our out of line; when they counsel, they are out of line.
3. Apollos, as a man with a gift represented a shorter range purpose.

- a. The watering represented his lifetime wherein he would communicate doctrine. He could only communicate doctrine in his lifetime. One pastor will move out and another will take his place.
  - b. All pastor teachers will continue to communicate their doctrine on a consistent basis. Bobby did not use his gift until a year and a half ago. He got the gift at age 4 or 5, and he got the gift at that time. The pastor never loses his gift. The function of a pastor is to teach the whole realm of doctrine and it never stops. When you teach doctrine and others grow, that is the proper function of the gift of pastor-teacher.
4. Paul and Apollos has different gifts, but they were on the same team.

1Corinthians 3:6

Lesson #76

Sunday2 12/5/2004

Without water, a congregation will wither. Paul and Apollos were on the same team. Paul and Apollos were never working for opposing purposes. They did not have cross purposes, but these factions did work against one another. We are on the same team. Paul and Apollos were playing for the same side. It was the Corinthians who were wandering all over the field without purpose, without moving toward the objective.

A warning should be issued to all pastors: who accomplishes the spiritual mission by planting and watering? Paul and Apollos do act in this process, but the glory goes to God the Holy Spirit. He, Christ, must increase, but I must decrease.

The third verb is αὐξάνω = to increase, to grow. Imperfect tense (imperfect of duration). God causes the growth.

Growth

1. The growth is caused by God in the past, but it is not completed. Durative imperfect. God began it in the past, but it is not completed.
2. By application, it is never completed in our lifetime. God causes the growth.
3. We never stop growing as long as we live. A plant may reach its zenith at some point, but we never stop growing. There is always another hill to climb.
4. There is no such thing as, I have reached the pinnacle and I can now cease learning doctrine. You never stop learning and you never stop growing. Not at any point can you stop listening to doctrine and stop growing. It began in the past, and it should continue. It began with Paul evangelizing and teaching basic doctrine; and continued with Apollos teaching; but the Corinthians stopped and broke into factions. Paul used two aorist tenses, but next uses an imperfect. "Don't stop," is what Paul is saying. "Don't get your eyes on some faction which does not have the answers." Their attack was insidious.

The subject is θεός = God. Bobby waters but God causes the growth. No human being ever takes the credit. Paul's divine inspiration is God the Holy Spirit. Paul's letters lasted beyond his lifetime, as the Corinthians copies his letters and sent them all over the known world at that time. These were the very words of God that Paul wrote (and apparently not in every epistle). Paul was just one instrument, but he should not be the only instrument playing. No matter how intense or magnetic a teacher is, it is God the Holy Spirit Who teaches and manifests. Paul was the genius that everyone knew. But Paul takes no credit for the growth: God caused the growth. All Christian growth and all Christian production is based upon grace.

1Cor. 3:6 —I— planted; Apollos watered, —but— God was causing growth.

These three verbs and their subjects are looked at again in the next verse. The ones planting and the ones watering are nothing. God causes the growth. Paul and Apollos are instruments, but not instigators. Therefore, a cult in their name is ridiculous. All blessings come from God apart from human merit and ability. What conclusion can we make about what Paul has just said? Even today, some say, I am of this pastor, and I am of that pastor; which pits one pastor against another. The implication is, you should be here or there. It is not about me or anyone else. Paul and Apollos cannot forgive sin; they cannot make someone grow; they cannot effect spiritual results. Paul and Apollos are of one value: nothing. It is blasphemous to choose a human leader and then claim him to be the true purveyor of doctrine and Christian growth. Paul and Apollos are only tools. Tools without a mechanic are useless. We don't cause anything. No believer can be a blessing to anyone or produce any Christian service apart from the grace of God. God causes these things to happen; not Apollos or Paul.

1Cor. 3:7 So then, neither the one planting is anything, nor the one watering, —but— the One causing growth-God!

With regards to rewards: how can I get a bonus in life? How do I receive rewards. Those who plant and water (Paul and Apollos) are one. Therefore, there is no reason to line up behind one or the other. However, despite this, they will be rewarded separately and differently in heaven. This has nothing to do with any of these factions.

Paul refers to himself and to Apollos as communicators of doctrine. Adjective έν = one.

Grammar

1. Those who plant and water are one thing. The predicate adjective means they are one and the same.
2. The planting and watering make up the whole.
3. They are the parts, Paul and Apollos, make up the whole.
4. Paul and Apollos are communicators of doctrine are united as one team; they are on the same team. They advance together. They win plays together. A team that wins is a team which works well together. The most difficult thing is the lack of foresight on the objective. One guy blocks to the left; another to the right; and the quarterback gets sacked. This is lack of teamwork.

There are times when pastors work together and function as a team. The pastors have objectives, and part of that is the preservation of our nation. As a nation, we send out missionaries and we provide safe haven for the Jews.

The Corinthians did not like this. They did not want to see themselves as one with another faction. It does not matter if you hate some of your team members; you still function as part of a team. Your team is successful if you function together; unsuccessful when you don't.

Paul does not put himself above everyone else, saying, "Well, shucks, yes, I am an Apostle, so I am a little bit better than you." He is one with Apollos and he is one with even the Corinthians in their objective. Each member of a team must function as part of the team. We move forward as a team. The pastor must remember not to lead a faction. He is not to show favoritism to this group or that.

A pastor is supposed to further the growth of his congregation. The pastor teacher fails in his mission if he does not study and teach. In the context, Paul is addressing leadership gifts. However, every believer is in full-time Christian service. We are all members of the team. All of us will be rewarded based upon our labor. We will each receive our own reward according to our labor.

We work for something; but how is grace involved?

1Cor. 3:8 Now the one planting and the one watering are one, but each will receive his own reward, according to his own labor.

1Corinthians 3:8

Lesson #77

Wednesday 12/8/2004

But the [one] planting begins this verse. Paul put the seed in the ground, which was evangelization, and he also taught basic doctrines. Ποτιζω = waters. This is a participle form. and the watering [one] Apollos was the instrument of growth; the teacher of doctrine. A seed is planted one time. However, each seed must be watered several times in order to grow. Apollos was to furnish the church with divine viewpoint. Paul and Apollos were very different, with different gifts, but they were used by the same Holy Spirit. They had the same objective. The church possesses many gifts but the same objective. We are all various parts of the same body, each with our own function and our own gift. In spite of their differences, Paul and Apollos acted in conjunction with one another; they were on the same team. The Corinthians, on the other hand, were in opposition to one another. The Corinthians completely lost sight of where they were going. They did not care about the overall result of the contest. With the Corinthians, it was all about themselves. Christianity is a team sport and every member of the team must function. are one;...

There are no Apostles today, but there are many pastors. We are all responsible for planting the seeds. We are responsible for the seeds of the gospel. The pastor can present the gospel and we believers are. Bobby likes presenting the gospel at funerals. There is a captive audience and everyone is focused on the idea of death.

God will open up an opportunity for us when it is time to present the gospel. When faced with an unbeliever, realize that if they died tomorrow, they would spend eternity in hell. As a pastor, Bobby does not come into contact with as many unbelievers as we do. Therefore, it is better that we witness. We are different from the world and they may not even recognize it, but those who watch you do. In some churches, the pastor does everything but teach doctrine. He goes to hospitals, he organizes things; completely outside his gift. The pastor may not be wrong in these other activities; there is nothing wrong with that unless it short-changes the spiritual growth of the congregation.

Growth does not refer to increasing church size; growth is those who individually mature. We are all involved in full-time Christian service. We should be ready to do it; we should be ready to apply our spiritual growth.

But each will receive his own reward according to his own labor. Some people will be confused here. This does not mean if we work hard enough, we will get rewards. Labor does not guarantee rewards. Paul has made it clear that we are nothing; he is nothing. Therefore, energy of the flesh works do not impress God. The instruments of God are not robots.

Use of Our Spiritual Gift

1. Our service requires the operation of our own volition; not being coerced or influenced by Bobby or anyone else; not motivated by fear tactics or on carrots held out in front of you.
2. You cannot be slotted by some pastor or some busybody to a place to serve; we are not to be a round peg put into a square hole.
3. We must make that decision.
4. There are two factors involved in this is our spiritual growth and maturity level; and upon our internal motivation to serve the Lord.
5. It is our individual utilizing of the resources provided by God that constitute service and rewards. We utilize grace; we use our grace resources.
6. So, it is not what we do, as much as how we do it. It depends upon what mode that we are in. God's plan will move forward with or without us. We are not such a big cog in a wheel as to slow things to a halt if we are out of the picture.

Service to God

1. Successful service; rewardable service is dependent upon the appropriation of God's grace.
2. We all have equal opportunity to take in God's Word.
3. We all have the grace sources.

Philip. 3:13–15: Brothers [and sisters], I do not consider myself to have laid hold, but forgetting indeed one [thing], the [things] behind, but reaching out to the [things] ahead. I press forward toward [the] goal, for the prize of the upward calling of God in Christ Jesus. Therefore, as many as [are] mature, let us be thinking this [or, be having this attitude], and if [in] anything you* think otherwise [or, have a different attitude], this also God shall reveal to you*. Paul forgets what is behind the presses forward to those things which are ahead. Isolate those sins from your past. You cannot spend all of your time forgetting about your past. The function of our spiritual life is our labor. This puts us in a position to serve. What is labor and what are the rewards. What do I have to do and what is in it for me? This is not like a job interview where we ask, what do we do and how much do we get paid. Bobby's only responsibility is getting there. He will allow God to take care of everything else.

Labor is the accusative singular of κοπος = work, toil, labor. How do we reconcile man's eternal rewards with labor. Our production must happen from the sources which God gives us. Preposition κατά = according to a norm or standard of; according to. What are the necessary conditions and standards of production to receive eternal rewards.

The Standards of our Labor

1. The standard must be compatible with grace. The standard is grace, not our ability.
2. Any labor which does not involve the grace of God is human works. Whatever we do in human power does not please God.
3. Our own energy never pleases God.
4. Only divine standards are acceptable to God.
5. Remember God is only glorified when His grace plan is manifested through us. We glorify God. Grace is always the key. Not our works but God's grace. It is the standard of grace.
6. Any production in the energy of the flesh does not count with God. This is human good and any unbeliever can accomplish good works. The unbeliever will not be rewarded in heaven. He will not even be there. Unbeliever good works do not please God. The grace of God must be manifested through us. That is only what we do when empowered by God the Holy Spirit. What is the right moment to witness? The Holy Spirit will bring us to that moment and work it through with us. Otherwise, we are on our own and we will blow it.

If you simply do good works, what is the point? They are eventually going to be burned up. Gold is connected to rewards, as gold has true value. We can only get there by His grace. We have the same resources but we do not have the same reward.

1Cor. 3:8 Now the one planting and the one watering are one, but each will receive his own reward, according to his own labor.

I missed about 13 summary points here.

Works apart from grace are not rewardable. Κατα κοπος = according to the standard of his own work or labor. The standard is the grace of God; that is the norm for receiving rewards. God evaluates our service based upon His grace. Whatever we gain in this life is meaningless; it has nothing to do with anything that is eternal. The fame, devotion, etc. of others does not mean anything with regards to eternity. Grace begins with rebound and continues with the filling of the Holy Spirit.

Human Good VS. Divine Good

1. Only that production accomplished under the power of the Holy Spirit counts with God; that is the key.
2. Only utilizing His divine power pleases Him and fulfills His criteria for Christian service. The old sin nature has opposite poles; and part of our old sin nature wants to do good things.
3. Good produced apart from the filling of the Holy Spirit and is not rewardable
Isa. 64:6 Rom. 8:8
4. Unacceptable works will be designated human good.
5. The same deed that we do can be rewarded or burned depending upon the filling of the Holy Spirit. Bobby gives the example of giving money; this can be reward or it can be burned as human good.
6. Therefore, labor is the production of the spiritual life as provided by the grace of God. That is divine good.
7. Divine good is everything we do while filled with the Holy Spirit. We are fully controlled or intoxicated.
8. Only divine good has intrinsic value.
9. It is called gold, silver and precious stones do not leave their value; paper money will. What we do under the filling of the Holy Spirit has intrinsic value. These receive recognition and reward in Heaven.

Paul and Apollos are one; they are united. They are united in the work of the ministry. Apollos and Paul are teaching the same church here. The pastor remains, even though the Apostles are long gone. Future middle indicative of λαμβανω = to receive. It is important to note that this is in the future tense; all believers. The rewards that we receive are not in this life. We will not give these reward in our lifetime.

Spiritual rewards will come with spiritual advance. What we do right now has a great deal to do with our rewards. Indicative is a statement of fact. It will come for certain in a future time. As church age believers, we can have more than we can even think or imagine. We can understand the lucrative aspects of having a big salary, but that is nothing. That is the importance of what is happening. Confidence in our future rewards does provide confidence in our day to day life. This does not replace doctrine in our life right now.

Those who want to focus on eschatology often are not interested in the spiritual life. Eschatology will not carry us. God leaves us here for a purpose. You cannot just sit on your duff and expect rewards. There is grace labor. The rewards are future; they are not in this life. They will be given out at the judgment seat of Christ. This judgment seat has nothing to do with punishment or condemnation. Unbelievers will go to the great white throne and they will be cast into the Lake of Fire.

Sign posted in the state house of Wisconsin; there is no God, there is no theology, there is only human life. If they are right, what does it matter what we do? Why don't we just go out and party. If the Bible is true, then they will have to face how wrong they will. Only unbelievers will be at the great white throne. As believers, we will not have to sweat anything. Our loss comes from living outside the parameters of the spiritual life. Being inside the spiritual life for the execution of divine good. We will be rendered rewards based upon what we have done. Fundamental to living the spiritual life and receiving rewards is the filling of the Holy Spirit. Christian service becomes divine good and it is the only production which is any good. The metaphor: good deeds of wood, hay and stubble; or eternal good rewardable with gold, silver and precious stones. Some sort of a bonfire in heaven burns this wood, hay and stubble.

Μισθος = reward. What we do in our own arena is what is rewardable. We are not in a competition with each other with regard to rewards. There is no competition here between believers for rewards. Some will be competitive with regards to Christian service. If we are simply trying to witness to as many people as possible in order to outdo someone else is not rewardable. However, the true reward is leading someone to God and having them become believers.

Reagan's home spun maxim: much is accomplished when no one takes credit for that which is done. It takes humility to not take credit for what one does. We let God worry about our brownie points. When we bask in our own accomplishments, we have lost momentum. We do not all advance at an equal rate; we don't all apply doctrine with equal regularity. All of this is related to our volition, which has a lot to do with the rewards that we will get. There will be some red faces at the judgment seat of Christ.

1Corinthians 3:8b

Sunday A 12/12/2004

We are all in labor. Unlike human production, the believer's labor is not dependent upon himself. It is normal for awards, etc. to be based upon our actual production. However, our talents, etc. are not really a part of our divine labor. Our labor is closely connected to the provision of the Holy Spirit. Our increasing motivation to serve the Lord based upon our spiritual advance. Without motivation, we are simply going through the motions. We produce for the Lord as long as our service is motivated by our spiritual life. We all have identical spiritual sources for living the spiritual life. Logistical grace; Bible doctrine as our spiritual nourishment; GAP by which to make this epignôsis. We also have problem solving devices to apply to all the circumstances of our lives. We can fail the prosperity test as well as the adversity test; even though God has given us every opportunity to advance and to glorify Him. The world should see the grace of God and what it has provided for us.

It is not what you do but how you do it. We have boundaries within which we are to operate. The various acts, right or wrong, are not acts of divine good; unless we are filled with God the Holy Spirit. Our Christian service must be the function of a grace modus operandi. We can only labor for God based upon His grace. Our works do not count outside His periphery of grace. When we fall outside these standards, our good deeds are meaningless with respect to eternity. These nice things are meaningless to God apart from the filling of the spirit and the production of the spiritual life. This is divine good as opposed to human good—deeds performed apart from the filling of God the Holy Spirit.

Old sin nature, with an area of strength and an area of weakness. This is our temptation to do sin and evil. The unbeliever will not be in eternity and his deeds are not rewardable. However, if we do not function within the Holy Spirit, then our works are burned as well. Human good never meets divine standards. Sin is obviously not acceptable to God; but some good deeds are not acceptable either. God is not pleased with one deed of human good.

We have awards available to us. Whether we appropriate them or not is up to us. There is an absolute standard. Divine good deeds have intrinsic and eternal value. They are like gold and silver—the idea is, these things have intrinsic value. It is an eternal value. The deeds go with us; we cannot take our gold or silver with us.

The very common verb λαμβανω = to receive. Future passive indicative. We do not receive rewards in this life for what we have done. We don't get to do the work and then see the gold. Rev. 22:12. Jesus Christ says, "I am coming quickly and my reward is with Me to render to every man according to what he has done. The rapture comes first and then we get the rewards. This will all occur at the judgment seat of Christ. At the judgment seat of Christ, He will enumerate all of the acts of divine good that we participated with it. We will personally stand there and Jesus Christ will tell us what we have gained and what he have lost.

One of Regan's maxims was, "Much gets done if no one takes credit." We have been warned by Bobby that we could lose all rewards.

Μισθος = reward. We all have the same operating assets but we don't all get the same results. The mature believer has a better shot at producing more divine good because he is filled with the spirit more often. When you are proud of what you've done and it is done outside the filling of the spirit, then it is not rewardable.

Crown is used many times to describe the rewards. We are given a ribbon and there will be a citation card describing our service.

The crown represents many other things.

We are studying the concept of labor and rewards. Labor harmonizes with the grace of God. We are to the point where we can define what those rewards are. The illustration of an award; and a military citation is read as an example. It was a man who loved his own men and took charge to preserve their lives. We do divine good deeds to bring credit upon ourselves; a citation will be read about us before the judgment seat of Christ.

2Tim. 4:7–8: I have fought the good fight; I have finished the course [or, race]; I have kept the faith. Finally, [there] is laid up for me the victor's wreath [or, crown] of righteousness which the Lord, the Righteous Judge, will give to me in that Day, but not only to me, _but_ also to all the ones having loved His appearing.

We represent the Lord Jesus Christ to the world which is around us; we are an ambassador for Him. A virtue built for faithfully representing the Lord to the world. It is our production of divine good. It is a virtue which can only happen from spiritual advance and grace orientation. What comes from this is a crown of virtue.

What a Crown of Righteousness Represents

1. It represents a successful tour of duty on this earth.
2. Given to us for our virtue, our honor, our integrity and our fulfillment of the royal family honor code.
3. The amount of Bible doctrine in the soul + the momentum of the spiritual life = the award of the crown of righteousness.
4. This is available to every believer.

The crown of life. Very rare that a person goes out to gain a medal in the military; however, it is okay for us to do it, as long as we are filled with the Spirit. James 1:12: Happy [or, Blessed] [is the] man who endures temptation [or, testing], because having become approved, he will receive the victor's wreath [or, crown] of the life which the Lord promised to the ones loving Him. Rev. 2:10: 'Stop being afraid of what you are about to be suffering. Listen indeed! The Devil is about to throw [some] of you* into prison, so that you* shall be tested, and you* will have affliction ten days. Continue being faithful until death, and I will give to you the victor's wreath [or, crown, and throughout book] of life. This is a long-term thing. It goes from our salvation until our death.

Crown of Life

1. This is an award from continuing to advance steadily in the spiritual life despite what we suffer. This is called momentum testing. Are we moving forward or are we retreating?
2. Momentum testing means logging maximum time inside the spiritual life where doctrine is more real than the test that we must undergo.

3. The promise of this reward is related in James 1:12 to love for the Lord. This is advance in the spiritual life all the way to occupation with Christ.
4. The crown of life is award for the use of spiritual self esteem in winning the victory over fear in your life—occupation with Christ to overcome various attacks by others.
5. Related to historical trends. Momentum testing is related to historical trends in the client nation. As a result of passing persecution testing, mature believers have prepared the way for great missionary movements in history. Sending out missionaries is a function of the client nation; it is a criterion for being a client nation. Persecution is often a part of that good fight. We represent Jesus Christ in bring Him to those who have never heard. For this, one can receive the crown of life. India and Africa and parts of China were all evangelized by the British; they send missionaries all over the world. A tremendous historical impact in the 19th century.
6. Crown of life rewarded for faithful production that occurs especially during testing but also at other times as well.
7. The crown of life is related to the invisible hero's production from his spiritual gift.
8. Production when under pressure. When we are able to maintain that focus and continue our advance, then the crown of life is a real reward for us.
9. Rewarded for consistent filling of the Spirit and consistent advance with doctrine and consistent use of the problem solving devices.
10. This reward also goes to those who are martyrs of the faith.

Freedom through Military Victory has a great summation of the problem-solving devices?

Philip. 4:1: So then, my beloved and longed for brothers [and sisters], my joy and victor's wreath [or, crown], in this way be standing firm in the Lord, beloved.

The Crown of Joy

1. Related to other believers in related to yourself.
2. This is exhorting other believers to stand firm.
3. This can be done by the example of standing firm in our own life; this is encouragement to other believers.
4. Reminding others of a doctrine that they need to know. Helping someone in Berachah who is confused on a point; or lost on a point. There is a crown involved here.
5. This crown is a crown of joy or happiness, based upon helping other people in the realm of doctrine. For who is not our hope our joy of exaltation? Is it not you in the present of our Lord Jesus Christ at His coming? Communicating doctrine is the most important information in the world.

1Cor. 3:8b ...but each will receive his own reward, according to his own labor.

Christian service is not utilizing your own talent or ability. Christian service or labor depends upon the believer utilizing the assets provided by God in order for this service to be meaningful. Production of divine good using divine resources. Divine good has intrinsic value, which means it lasts. Human good is produced when you are out of fellowship; unbelievers can produce human good and we can produce this same human good outside of the spirit. Unbelievers will not stand before the bama seat of Christ; however, when we stand before God and present human good, it will not gain God's favor nor will He reward us for human good. Our Lord evaluates each one of us after the rapture and He will determine gain or loss of rewards for eternity. All of us will stand before God and we get evaluated, probably in public. It is a job well done, when we receive our rewards. We are not in competition with anyone; it is about executing the spiritual life. Christian production is an effect of God's grace through the use of His divine operating assets: rebound and the filling of the Holy Spirit, which is the gateway to the spiritual life, as well as the empowerment of this life; then there is logistical grace by which God provides for us; gap is also one of our resources. We also have Bible doctrine as our spiritual nourishment. We each have a spiritual gift, given to us at regeneration, which defines our specific area of service or production. We can serve in many areas; but God has provided that special gift for us to operate in a particular area. Problem solving devices, which allow us to deal with adversity and prosperity. We need to keep focused on what God has for us. In using these resources, we produce divine good and we gain rewards. By demonstrating His grace to a lost and dying world, we glorify Him in the process. It is His grace that gives us all of the assets that we need to produce. God's grace comes first. It is not what we do by way of service; it is how we do it. If we have the how down, the what will automatically follow. Grace and labor harmonize in this way. If you exclude grace, then our service turns out to be human good.

Doctrine of Rewards

1. The Crown of righteousness. A coronation has a lot more to it than simply putting a crown on one person's head. There is this picture of the pope who is going crown Napoleon. Napoleon takes the crown and crowns himself. He said, "No one is more worthy of crowning me than me." Emperor of all Europe is one of the things that this signified. Great wealth was a part of this as well. He received wealth, property and authority which was all represented by this crown. 2Tim. 4:4-8. Mentions the crown of righteousness. δικαιοσυνη is the word for righteousness. We are royal ambassadors.
  - a. A functional virtue results in a crown of virtue.
  - b. Functional virtue is that we represent the Lord as examples of His grace.
  - c. This is a virtue directed toward man and .
  - d. A virtue that can only come from spiritual advance and grace orientation. The end is a crown of virtue.
2. Crown of virtue.
  - a. This is gained from spiritual advance.
  - b. Given for our personal honor and integrity and fulfillment of the royal honor code.

- c. All doctrine is God's breathed and instruction in righteousness, which leads to a crown of righteousness or of virtue.
- d. Doctrine in the soul + momentum in the spiritual life results in a crown of righteousness.
- e. Crown of virtue is available to all believers who advance to spiritual maturity. If we do, what comes with this is the crown of righteousness. What comes with this is unknown. We who fight the good fight and finish the race get this.
- f. It is a crown for spiritual advance.

3. A crown of life

- a. James 1:12 when one is approved, he will receive the crown of life.
- b. Rev. 2:12: Do not be afraid of what you are about to suffer. The devil will cast some of you into prison that you may be tested; and you will receive tribulation for ten days. Be faithful unto death and I will give you the crown of life.
- c. This is a reward for continuing to steadily advance in the spiritual life in spite of all testing and tribulation. This is momentum testing.
- d. Passing momentum testing means logging maximum time inside the spiritual life. Doctrine is more real than the suffering that we must undergo.
- e. The promise of this reward is related to love for the Lord. Loving the Lord is tantamount to loving the Lord in spite of all the hatred and persecution from the world. One way to advance is from the hatred that we receive from the world. It accelerates our advance. There is a crown of life, which is a little bit higher reward.
- f. It is awarded for spiritual self esteem. Overcoming all circumstances of adversity through occupation with Christ.
- g. This is related to historical trends. Momentum testing is related to historical trends within the client nation to God. Mature believers have prepared the way for great missionary movements in history. Bobby's mom read him stories about Mary Slessier, a great missionary. One of the greatest missionaries who ever lived. She went to Nigeria and had one of the greatest impacts of any person who has ever gone. Incredibly brave. She was motivated to bring Jesus Christ to those who had never heard before. Robert Moffett and David Livingstone; Hudson Taylor who went to China. This was a great era of missionary movement. They have the crown of life.
- h. So the crown of life is a reward for faithful production which occurs during testing as well as at other times.
- i. The crown of life is awarded for consistent filling of the Spirit and consistent intake of Bible doctrine, and the consistent facing of pressure in our life.
- j. Crown of life is also related to the production of the invisible hero's production from his spiritual gift and his tour as a royal ambassador and from his royal priesthood. All of us have this potential.

k. This is the award which goes to those who are martyrs of the faith. To take whatever comes and not to renounce the name of Jesus Christ. A Muslim terrorist who says, "I will cut your head off unless you renounce Jesus Christ." Martyrs of the faith do receive the crown of life. We are in the middle of a religious war, which always includes hatred of Christianity.

l. Many examples of missionaries who will die for their faith; his wife spoke at Bobby's seminary. The door was wide open for the gospel there when she returned (Ethiopia?).

4. Crown of Joy

a. Related to other believers.

b. It is a crown for exhorting other believers to stand firm in doctrine. Philip. 4:1; this exhortation can be done by standing firm in one's own life and using the problem solving devices.

c. It can be done by reminding someone of a doctrinal principle. Don't take it upon yourself to grab someone by the lapel and tell them what you know. Be careful how we do this.

d. The crown of joy is a happiness based upon helping other people in the realm of doctrine.

e. 1Thess. 2:19 For who is our hope or our joy in our crown of exaltation. These believers were Paul's crown of exaltation.

f. When we witness in fellowship and are motivated by love for Jesus Christ, that is rewardable.

g. It is awarded for people won to Christ and edified by your words.

h. This joy is the greatest joy of life. It is sharing the happiness of God.

5. The Crown of Glory

a. 1Peter 5:1-4: I encourage the elders among you* [as] a fellow-elder and a witness of the sufferings of Christ and a partaker of the glory being about to be revealed: shepherd [or, pastor] the flock of God, the [one] among you*, overseeing not under compulsion _but_ willingly, nor with greediness for dishonest gain _but_ eagerly, nor as domineering over the [ones] allotted to your* care, _but_ being examples to the flock. And when the Chief Shepherd appears, you* will receive the unfading victor's wreath [or, crown] of glory.

b. This crown is awarded to pastors who faithfully study and teacher their congregation.

c. Leadership is another criteria. Exercising oversight. Bob was very lucid the other day; it is amazing how high a minister can get in heaven and how low he can get here on earth.

d. The motivation for the pastor is occupation with the Lord; not just a sense of duty or a large salary. Doing out of duty, it will catch up to you.

e. There are 4 different categories of pastors, and Bobby will cover those tomorrow. However, there are those who are not pastors who can get this crown.

Bobby on having one shepherd: If you are a sheep, then you need to listen to your shepherd. He is the one to guide you. We have been given a shepherd; we are sheep; we will grow when we listen to our shepherd. It is not our charge to try to put it all together and separate it so that we can figure out what to keep and what to throw out. We don't need the distraction of sorting out different pastors. Bobby has a hard time doing that, and that is his job. We don't need to figure it all out. Growing and doctrine are what are important. When you compare different pastors and different messages. It is like two different women under the same roof; you are going to have trouble. Bobby was speaking to someone and they did not even know if he was a dispensationalist.

We learn not just about rewards, but we learn about our everyday life. The rewards will take care of themselves.

1Cor. 3:8b ...but each will receive his own reward, according to his own labor.

1Corinthians 3:8b

Lesson #82

Thursday 12/16/2004

We will finish rewards tonite.

Crown Summary

- I. Crown of Righteousness (or virtue)
  1. 2Tim. 2:4–8: The award is for finishing the course and fighting the good fight.
  2. This is a functional virtue, built upon advancing to spiritual maturity. This is over and over the virtue which unbelievers have.
  3. Using functional virtue which we have developed in our spiritual life, we will operate on peak efficiency as we function as a royal ambassador.
  4. At the bama seat of Christ, we will receive the royal crown for our service; this brings Christian service into focus.
  5. Equation of virtue: amount of doctrine in the soul + the momentum in the spiritual life = the award of the crown of virtue in eternity.
  6. This crown is available to all believers who advance in the spiritual life.
  7. So this crown could be classified as a general award simply for advancing in the spiritual life. Even just sitting in Bible class helps out here.
- II. Crown of Life
  1. James 1:12 Rev. 2:10
  2. It is a reward for continuing the advance to maturity, in the face of great suffering and testing.
  3. Having an overwhelming love of God and occupation with Christ overshadows the terrible suffering you must endure.
  4. The crown of life is awarded to those who have historical impact because they handle great persecution. Stephen in Acts 7 comes to mind immediately. Stephen had shredded some religious unbelievers in his teaching and they dragged him outside and stoned him to death. Saul was one who witnessed Stephen's martyrdom.

5. The life of the mature believer of this caliber has far greater significance than anything ever recognized by human success standards. Of all the news makers that we observe, none have an impact like Stephen. This kind of maturity is not beyond us.
6. This is the life that has meaning beyond the grave. It means several things: blessing by association of those who are left behind; they are blessed in this life after the believer has departed from this life. This kind of a believer has a lasting impact on the client nation. His spiritual life has international impact. Hardships and Satanic opposition. Launching missionary activity in many parts of the world. Mary Sliasher, a true heroine of the faith. The country of Nigeria owes a lot to this woman.
7. The crown of life is awarded for being consistently filled with God the Holy Spirit.
8. It is awarded for consistent intake of doctrine and the consistent use of problem-solving devices when under pressure. It goes to martyrs of the faith like Stephen, making it a very high award.

III. The Crown of Joy

1. 1Cor. 4:1
2. It is for those who exhort others to stand firm in the faith; our own example is one way of doing this.
3. Reminding someone of a doctrinal principle when it is necessary for them to need it. However, it is tricky; you don't want to interfere with other's lives.
4. The crown of joy commemorates the great happiness and satisfaction in helping others to latch onto doctrinal principles.
5. This is a crown awarded to those who communicate doctrine apart from the gift of pastor teacher. This can be awarded to those who do not have the gift of communication. Teaching in prep school or parents who teach their children at home. Bobby's mom wrote books 30 years ago, and they are even used today. Being revised and reprinted as we speak.
6. There are other forums from whence you can communicate doctrine. Rotary clubs, prayer breakfasts, etc. are places for communication of doctrine. Instead of sympathizing with a friend in adversity, give them some doctrinal perspective. Give them some doctrinal perspective. We can only communicate doctrine at the level of our own understanding. We can only communicate how much we have metabolized.

IV. The Crown of Glory

1. 1Peter 5:2-3: ...shepherd [or, pastor] the flock of God, the [one] among you*, overseeing not under compulsion _but_ willingly, nor with greediness for dishonest gain _but_ eagerly, nor as domineering over the [ones] allotted to your* care, _but_ being examples to the flock. And when the Chief Shepherd appears, you* will receive the unfading victor's wreath [or, crown] of glory.

2. This deals specifically with pastors. All of these crowns are available to us, although this is specifically for a pastor.
- (1) This crown is awarded to a pastor who faithfully communicates doctrine.
  - (2) A criterion is also leadership; how well does a pastor lead his flock.
  - (3) The motivation for the pastor should be occupation with Jesus Christ. Bobby gets calls for pastors now and again, and they only give the names of pastors who have been ordained in Berachah.
  - (4) 4 types of pastors; only one gets a crown:
    - a. Cosmic pastor, who is an ardent, social activist, filled with crusader arrogance. The world is filled with this type. Totally disoriented to reality as found in Bible doctrine. Often a theological liberal and in some cases, not even saved.
    - b. Baby pastor or the  $\nu\alpha\pi\iota\omicron\varsigma$  pastor; he emphasizes his personality and he might evangelize; and he shows off his personality. Sometimes some nice little moral homilies as well. If he grows, he might get the crown of joy; but certainly nothing else.
    - c. Adolescent pastor. He teaches truth and he teaches doctrine, but he is distracted by ambition and various forms of high profile activity. We will sell his programs and will organize social events; and he is a very popular head of his flock. He does not have time to mine for gold. He wants a large congregation and have a large congregation in. Most people want the adolescent pastor; they want to be entertained. Bobby is not naming names; just teaching principle.
  - (5) The Mature pastor.
    - a. He study and teaches and goes to maturity himself.
    - b. He leads his congregation to maturity.
    - c. His crown comes from believers listening.
    - d. Two things must happen; we must take the giant step to spiritual self esteem and then the victory step to spiritual maturity. We get our own crowns for doing that. His joy comes from the positive response to his teaching of Bible doctrine.
    - e. The mature pastor's happiness is different from that of other believers.
    - f. The pastor focuses on the message not on personality or programs. He has the privilege of seeing the spiritual growth.
3. We don't have to do pastoral work to get this crown; it is communicating doctrinal information which causes others to be edified or stabilized or oriented to their situation. As a believer, each one of us has a chance to teach and speak in places other than the pulpit. There is a way that we do pastoral work.

V. The final award: the Accolade of Well Done:

1. Matt. 25:21: "So his lord said to him, 'Well done, good and faithful slave! You were faithful over a few things, I will put you in charge over many things; enter into the joy of your lord.' There are no names given in a parable; but that does not mean that there are no real people in this situation. This is a verbal reward which comes from the Lord Jesus Christ. When He says that, there will be nothing like it.
2. This includes the joy of rulership. There is more than just the crown; there is wealth, property authority, etc. This accolade also include authority. Synoptic means they are very similar, with the same parables, the same experiences.
3. Luke 19:17: "And he said to him, 'Well done, good slave! Because you were faithful in a very little [thing], be having authority over ten cities.'
4. This is an award of ruling which Christ in the Millennium (Rev. 3:21). Specific rulership.
5. It is the award of the order of the morning star
6. Rev. 2:26–28: 'And the one overcoming and the one keeping My works until the end, "I will give to him authority over the nations; and He will shepherd [or, rule] them with an iron staff; they will be broken in pieces like the vessels of the potter," as _I_ also have received [authority] from My Father. [Psalm 2:8,9] And I will give to him the morning star.
  - (1) a calling out of a new royal family.
  - (2) A new royal title.
  - (3) King of kings and Lord of Lords.
  - (4) The spiritually mature believer will rule with Christ as a Knight of the order of the morning star for 1000 years.
  - (5) This is the highest decoration of authority received for faithful service.

We are part of a fraternity in essence. There have been millions of believers and we will all be at the bama seat of Christ and there will be a differentiation of awards. Some will get one or two crowns and some will get nothing. We will be there and glad to be there, no matter. What we do in this life affects eternity. We have seen in this doctrine they ways to get these rewards. Don't embarrass Bob or Bobby.

1Cor. 3:8b ...but each will receive his own reward, according to his own labor.

1Corinthians 3:9

Lesson #83

Sunday A 12/19/2004

Bobby shares about that Dec. 24th, during the first winter of World War II, when the German soldiers on the front lines sang Silent Night; and the Americans applauded. 24 hour truce after that.

Paul starts out with we are God's co-workers; but it is you are God's building. Θεου συνεργοι and Paul is certainly a co-worker of God's; we can even see how a pastor might be. However, the Corinthians are so classified here. This means that all believers are co-workers of God's. All believers are elevated to this point. Every believer can receive the same award; and every believer can move ahead in spiritual advance. We are all partners with God in ministry. We are each specifically gifted to function as God's co-worker in that area (although we function with God in many ways). We all have this responsibility. This does not mean that we cannot drop our day job and become ministers; this does not in any way make us inferior in any way. We all have a responsibility to the Lord in whatever area of ministry. Even we work for God, we also work with Him. There is certainly a hierarchy; each one of us are co-workers. We all work for the same objective, which is doctrine and the furtherance of the church and the building up of the saints. We are His ambassadors; that is one of our areas of service. Each one of us has a gift and various responsibilities. We all represent the Lord Jesus Christ as co-workers and as ambassadors. We are all equally visible to God and all equally important to God. No one is better than anyone else; more important than anyone else. This is why we don't die immediately after being saved. There are all kinds of distractions and all sorts of reasons to get us to forget our mission. Now, we cannot shut down our temporal life; but we do always keep our spiritual mission in mind. Our full-time job, for every waking hour, is serving God. God has given us one more day to serve Him; that is what each new day is. It is one more day to serve Him.

1Cor. 3:9a For we are God's co-workers,...

Paul used the word God three times in this verse. Γεωργιον = field; and George comes from this. In the ancient world, this was the name given to a farmer. Θεου γεωργιον begins the next part. We are the fruit and that which bears fruit in the field. We are dead seeds which God puts into the ground, providing the sun, water, etc. for us. God gives us everything that we need to grow in the spiritual life. Corinth was a center of commerce; but farming also took place in and around Corinth; in the plane beneath it. It had been famous for centuries for its grape vines. Currant is a medieval corruption of Corinth. These vineyards were famous all over. Mar 4:14, 20: "The one sowing sows the word...And these are the [seeds] having been sown on the good ground: who hear the word and receive [it]. And they keep yielding fruit: one thirty[fold] and one sixty[fold] and one a hundred[fold]." Heb. 6:7-8: For [the] ground, the one drinking the frequently coming upon it rain and yielding vegetation suitable for those on account of whom indeed it is cultivated, receives a blessing from God; but [if] producing thorn plants and thistles [it is] worthless and on the verge of being cursed, whose end [is] for burning.

Production

1. When God's field, the believer, produces thorns, by analogy, he is producing human good.
2. When there is growth in the field, the believer is producing divine good.
3. In other words, he will receive a blessing from God; reward.

1Cor. 3:9b ...God's field;...

Οικοδομη = building. This refers to all of the church as a corporate entity; it is not a reference to the actual church, but to a building process. The next verse makes it clear that the building is in process; it is a process, not a finished product. Γίοργιον is a process as well; not the finished field, but a process of planting and taking care of and growing.

The Building Metaphor

1. The foundation: salvation by grace and the teaching of basic doctrine.
2. The building itself; the actual structure. This is an ongoing process in our life.

In v. 10, there will be the founding of the church and the building upon that church. More people are added daily; and then they spiritually grow.

1Cor. 3:9c ...*you** are God's building.

1Corinthians 3:10

Lesson #84

Sunday B 12/19/2004

We have covered a field metaphor and are dealing now with a building metaphor, which will be covered in greater detail in v. 10. We have logistical grace; we have dying grace; we have everything that we need in order to function spiritually.

We are not referring to a church building per se, but to believers themselves who make up the church; it is metaphorical. Grace always receives the emphasis. Labor is our Christian service. Grace is always the emphasis. God must always receive the credit. It is not the labor of the coworker, which is us. God directs the building of the church; it is His building. We are part of the church and we paid for Berachah church; it belongs to Berachah church; and the building up of the saints belongs to God.

κατα = according to. This denotes norm, standard, or criterion. The standard for all construction is the grace of God. His standard must be met as the master builder. 1Cor. 15:10: But by God's grace I am what I am; and His grace, the [one] towards me, did not become in emptiness [fig. was not without purpose], _but_ I labored more than they all, yet not _I_, _but_ the grace of God, the [one] with me. Paul says that he labored more than everyone else; but he explains—yet not I, but the grace of God within me. The grace of God gets the credit. Whatever we do in the spiritual life; whatever we do, we never get one ounce of credit. It is all that the grace of God produces. Recall, we are only rewarded for divine good production. It is all the grace of God; that will be clear even at the bema seat of Christ.

Dependency on Grace and What We Do in Service to God

1. It was not Paul's hard work which accomplished the objective.
2. It was the grace of God through Paul as he labored. It was the grace of God which worked through him.

3. Christian service is necessary and mandated. We have a service to perform. We cannot perform any service to the Lord apart from spiritual advance. If we don't produce within the confines of the spiritual life, then it will not be rewarded.
4. Neither Paul nor we should take credit for what we do. If we think we are great because of what we do, we are arrogant. We don't need to be arrogant, or we cut off our spiritual life. We are cut off at the knees. God uses the chief among sinners. Paul also calls himself the master builder and the chief of sinners. The chief of sinners builds the foundation of God's church. Paul was a blasphemer, persecutor and a murderer; yet he is the master builder of the church. This should give us all some hope as, even though we have failed continually, that we might accomplish something in our lives. No matter how miserable a person we are, when we look back on our life; no matter how pathetic we are, we are still coworkers by the grace of God. It just takes rebound to get back on track. We are not coworkers with each other.
5. Nothing is hidden; God knows all that we do. There is not an emphasis in this passage about coordination among the brothers; we are not responsible to each other. The partnership here is with God, which should be a strong incentive to produce. If you are partner with someone, you want to hold up your end. It is not us, but God's grace working within us.

1Cor. 3:10a According to the grace of God, the one having been given to me, ...

Paul knew that he could not do this on his own, but he knew that it was through God's grace and that others would build upon what he has done. The grace of God being named, Paul also names himself as the master builder. When Paul speaks about himself as the master builder, that does not mean that he is being arrogant (although some who do this are arrogant). He is not to be judged here as arrogant. Some believers develop superficial approaches to Christian life. Some get competitive; some wrongly judge us as arrogant. We sometimes makes assumptions and we make interpretations; assumptions are the mother of errors and they easily turn to arrogance. Speaking with confidence is not arrogance. Bobby knew that Bob was not arrogant.

Αρχιτέκτων = builder.

Paul as the Master Architect

1. All that Paul knew, all that he communicated, was revealed to him by divine inspiration—the plan of God. To teach the church how this plan might be carried out.
2. Paul does call himself an architect.
3. He could be compared to a general contractor
4. As a divinely inspired architect, he was a wise builder. Paul build on the principle of Bible doctrine and grace. He built according to the standard of grace. He communicated that plan.

1Cor. 3:10b ...like a wise, expert builder,...

Aorist

1. The aorist tense contemplates the action of a verb as a whole.
2. This is an ingressive aorist; the action is seen as a whole, but also contemplates the action at the beginning. Paul laid the foundation in the past, but the effects continue until the church is removed from this earth. Paul's foundation is perfectly laid in the past. The foundation is critical to any building; and those who build must build upon a foundation. We must build on a foundation laid by Paul.

Θεμέλιος = foundation; it is used here in the figurative sense. It is the elementary beginning of a thing. Edification means education, essentially. It is educating the congregation about Bible doctrine. The church is for the purpose of edification and enlightenment. Built on a foundation of elementary teaching about Christ.

The Foundation

1. Paul has stated that he has preached to the Corinthians: it is milk, all they could take in, because they were babies.
2. The foundation is laid by the preaching of the cross and the teaching of basic doctrine thereafter.
3. The purpose of all doctrine is to divorce the human race from human merit, works and ability (and our human mode of thinking). Grace is the key to the salvation plan. It is the key to every bit of problem-solving that we do. It is the key to everything.
4. The communication of doctrine and the positive volition of the believer means the mind of Christ will begin to operate in us. This is a practical application to the foundation. It has everything to do with what happened to us.
5. The first step is the foundation of the gospel and basic bible doctrine. At the same time, the believer is also a coworker in building the church.
6. As construction continues, the believer can then take in solid food. Advanced doctrine for the building of spiritual maturity.
7. At the end of the construction period is payday. Once the construction is completed, it is payday. Do not think that our construction toward maturity is ever completed.
8. The rapture of the church is the completion of the church; when Christ returns for the church. This appearance brings reward for the right kind of service. We will receive rewards based upon what we do in construction. The wrong type will be consumed.

1Cor. 3:10c ...I have laid a foundation, but another is building on [it]. But let each be watching [or, be taking care] how he builds on [it].

Correct lesson and lesson number.

The builder is God Himself; yet Paul calls himself the master builder. Paul had the greatest advantage; he was grace-oriented. 1Cor. 15:10: But by God's grace I am what I am; and His grace, the [one] towards me, did not become in emptiness [fig. was not without purpose], _but_ I labored more than they all, yet not _I_, _but_ the grace of God, the [one] with me. Paul had real humility; not some phoney humility as you find elsewhere. Paul gave up his own self-importance on the Damascus road. Paul, that great Rabbi, had so much promise; and when he was knocked off the horse, realized that he was nothing. “I am what I am; and His grace toward me did not prove empty (or, vain)... Paul utilized the grace resources which God provided for him. ...but I labored even more than all of them... It sounds a little vain. Paul was totally dedicated to what he had to do and all that God had for him. Paul is simply stating a fact. Without his labor, we would not be able to study this epistle. Paul advanced further and reached a higher plateau faster than just about anyone else. Paul had great service in the Lord. He had everything to do with the church in the Gentile world. He evangelized everyone that he could. He was fearless in his representation of Jesus Christ. When he was beheaded, he was ready to go. He was a great man of the faith and of the word. He could look back over his life and realize that it was all God's doing. It was the grace of God working through Paul as he labored. It requires a lot of positive volition to get there. But God has provided every source and every opportunity in order to reach that place. It is always the grace of God.

Paul spoke constantly, evangelizing and teaching. He was fearless in the representation of Jesus Christ in his life. Paul was one who could have failed miserably. Paul should have been hopeless. Paul called himself the chief of sinners; called himself a blasphemer, murderer, etc. Yet, in grace, he calls himself the master builder. None of Paul's accomplishments came about with his own power; it was all God's doing. A deluge of arrogance begins with a small drop of self-importance in your mind. One drop of arrogance leads to a waterfall. No one was more intense in his purpose to serve the Lord than Paul; although Paul had a good time in his life. He never let his social life or enjoyment get in the way of his life or his mission.

There is no greater motivator than the grace of God. Master builder is the compound Greek word: αρχιτεκτων = architect, expert builder, master builder; one who supervises other workers.

You have to check your people every once and awhile; however, you need to let them go and do their work; they will not get much done if you stand over looking at them.

Paul as the Master Builder

1. Paul was communicating in writing the whole plan of the building process.
2. It was revealed to Paul by the grace of divine inspiration.
3. Paul preached to the church the blue print of God's plan. This is how we know it. We are rolling out the scroll of 1Corinthians and tracing out the lines.

4. Any contractor will be concerned with the foundation.

Φαμιλιος = foundation; in this case a figurative foundation; the beginning of anything (in this case, the beginning of the church). Edification means education and it is a part of our metaphor of building. Apparently Bobby is going to get into the Edification complex.

The Foundation

1. The foundation is laid by the teacher of the cross. 1Cor. 1:18 2:2
2. And Paul preached to the Corinthians; milk; basic doctrine. 1Cor. 3:2
3. Φαμιλιος = a foundation of beginning or elementary teaching. This includes the cross and very basic doctrines. No one begins in the spiritual life apart from the cross. No one can build apart from rebound and the filling of the Holy Spirit. This might be all we learn, and that is a good foundation; but no building.

1Cor. 3:10a According to the [standard of] grace of God, the one having been given to me, like a wise, expert builder, I have laid a foundation [of elementary teaching],...

Apollos is the one who is building upon this foundation; and all other pastors by application. Bobby cannot build our building; we have to. He can give us the information; but we will have to hammer the nails. Εποικοδομew = to build upon. A progressive present tense. It is a building in progress. This is a building in progress. This would be a good sign out in front of Berachah. There is no real construction going on; but we are not completed. We are a building under construction. Such a sign would be accurate; and it would refer to the people inside. This building or construction is a constant work in progress. Once we hear and respond to the gospel, we become a rough project.

What Does Another Build?

1. The church—i.e., the believers who are in the church. What we do with ourselves insofar as construction is concerned is our business.
2. Paul is really speaking to individuals with this verb.
3. We are the real work in progress.
4. All believers are build on the foundation of basic doctrine. We progress onto solid food. Milk is where we start.
5. This solid food advances the progress of construction in the soul of the believer.

The use of this word building is very descriptive and lends itself to a number of metaphors. Edification complex of the soul, which is something that we will relearn. This is based upon categorizing the Greek noun οικοδομew = to edify, to build up. We will build the ECS from this. This noun goes back to v. 9 and it refers to a building in progress. Εποικοδομew = to build upon. This will be the doctrine of the edification complex.

Bobby is going to pull out this doctrine and dust it off and reteach it, the same way he heard 30 years ago. Paul does it with one noun and one verb used twice.

Edification Complex of the Soul

1. The edification complex of the soul is illustrative nomenclature for the progress of the believer toward spiritual maturity and the result of that progress.
2. The process begins at the foundation, which is faith in Christ and basic Bible doctrine and is continued as the superstructure of the building. Every believer has a foundation. Now we must build on it.
3. Edification complex cannot be built without perception, metabolizing and applying the mystery doctrine of the church age. You must hear, believe and apply what you hear. It demands a pastor teacher and the grace apparatus for perception.
4. The result of the communication of doctrine is the construction of the edification complex structure in our soul. This is the building process.
5. What does the structure consist of? And what does it mean in terms of spiritual advance?
  - a. Obviously the structure begins with a foundation; the moment we believe in Jesus Christ, the foundation is laid. Paul lays the foundation insofar as he taught the gospel. 1Cor. 3:11 this is the one foundation; there can be no entrance. We get 39 irrevocable absolutes and one temporary. The believer builds the edification complex on very basic doctrine. Basic doctrine is the beginning of building.
  - b. Col. 2:7: Having been firmly rooted in Christ and now being built up (ειρικοδομew) and established in your faith just as you were instructed and overflowing with gratitude. The result is grace orientation and gratitude to Jesus Christ. This one verse gives us the entire overview of the ecs.

1Cor. 3:10b ...but another is building on [it]. But let each be watching [or, be taking care] how he builds on [it].

1Corinthians 3:9

Lesson #86

Thursday 12/23/2004

ειρικοδομew = to build upon. The noun is found in v. 9 and the verb is found twice in v. 10. These two words have a dual use: first, as the building up of the body of the church; then the body of Christ is completed and we are taken up in the rapture. This will be the time of completion, where we have the exit resurrection. No series of events which tell us that it is coming soon. The rapture could occur in a few minutes or 1000 years from now. That is the collective connotation. The second use is the individual use—the build up of the individual. The metabolized doctrine necessary to build an edification structure in the soul. This represents the advance of the spiritual believer in this life. The result of the construction, which is Christian service. The two are linked intimately. Christian service is the glorification of God and rewards in heaven.

1Cor. 3:9 For we are God's co-workers, God's field; you* are God's building.

V. 10 focuses on the individual building up of the soul of the believer. We will be very specific as to how we build the building from the ground up. Paul lays the foundation, but another builds up, which is the pastor teacher—in this case, Apollos. In essence, this passage speaks of the pastor who edifies the individuals. Bobby's study will primarily deal with the edification of individual believers. Every building begins with a foundation, which, in this case, is the gospel. In this particular case, it is Paul evangelizing in Corinth the first visit, teaching faith alone in Christ alone.

Jesus is called the rock upon which the church is founded; He is called the chief cornerstone. He is the bedrock.

The foundation for us is Bible doctrine. Of course, this includes the gospel. Doctrine is the raw material which will be used. This doctrine lends itself to many applications. Paul says that he has laid the foundation, which means the building process can then begin. You must have a foundation first. In order to advance, the believer needs a pastor-teacher and, furthermore, the believer must be able to accept the authority of a pastor-teacher. It is not a matter of someone being great or a natural leader; it is simply the gift given by God the Holy Spirit. The Corinthians were reacting to Paul's authority. They would not accept it. They were contrasting and comparing all of these different teachers, Apostles and even Jesus Christ, and pitting them against one another. They rejected the authority of Apollos at this time and they were not oriented to the authority of any pastor. Most of them rejected Apollos and those who claimed Apollos, chose him over and above Jesus Christ. Believers cannot grow up apart from authority orientation. The arrogance of anti-authority thinking is a total wasteland for the Christian life. We must find a pastor whose authority that we can accept. Bobby is not plugging himself; it could be someone else as well. We will maximize doctrinal intake from a pastor whose authority that we accept.

Sheep do not have a plethora of pastors. The metaphor is apt here.

Each pastor has a different way of communicating and some are more competent than others. You cannot have two commanders. In any company, give two leaders the same authority and you will have a mess. When you have two pastors, you are not accepting either authority.

Many pastors promote self-study; however, that is not God's choice for us. That is not why God gave the gift of pastor teacher. Pick a pastor under whose authority you can learn from and learn. If it is not the doctrinal issue, it is the comparing and contrasting of pastors. That is normal and human. If Bobby turns on tv, that is the first thing that he does; he compares someone on tv with what he knows. This all seems very logical to Bobby; when you compare, then two pastors are competing for your attention. In any case, we are the arbiter of what we accept; confusion and arrogance together.

The edification complex will clarify things for us.

Doctrine of the Edification Complex

1. This is the progress of the believer's soul.
2. It begins at the foundation and continues to the superstructure of a building.

3. It cannot be built without perception of the mystery doctrine; and we must metabolize and apply the doctrine.
4. The result is the edification complex in our souls. This requires us to accept the authority of the pastor and we grow. It must become part of our souls—every aspect of our lives. There is a production which comes from the edification complex.
5. What does the structure consist of and what does it mean by way of spiritual advance? Col. 2:7: Having been firmly rooted and anchored to the ground and now being built up (εποικοδομew) in Him, Who is the foundation, and established in our faith just as you are instructed [by the pastor-teacher and the Holy Spirit]; overflowing with gratitude.
6. The first floor of the superstructure: Eph. 4:22: In reference to your former manner of life, that you lay aside the old man [manner of life is the way that you think; not what you do], the one being corrupt according to the desires [or, lusts] of deception,... The sin nature always goes contrary to the integrity of God. Impossibly to build an edification complex apart from the filling of the Holy Spirit. The foundation if Christ and doctrine; the first floor is the filling of the Holy Spirit, which links the rest of the structure with the foundation.
7. The second floor is established by Eph. 4:23–24: ...but [you* are] to be continually renewed in the spirit of your* mind... Only a believer can utilize the grace apparatus for perception. Doctrine taught by the pastor is also taught by the Holy Spirit to the human spirit. ...and to put on the new person, the one having been created according to God in righteousness and holiness of [or, dedication to] the truth. Doctrine is turned into epignōsis; usable doctrine in our souls.
  - a. The grace apparatus for perception is required for post-salvation epistemological rehabilitation. Bobby loves that phrase; it was a mainstay around Berachah for some time. The transition in spiritual advance from human viewpoint to divine viewpoint. That is all it means. It is gradual; just like any construction project. Epistemological is how we know what we know. Bobby used that word on a teacher; the teacher used it in a different way. When Bobby used epistemological rehabilitation, it clicked with that teacher and he understood immediately the impact of that phrase. These terms communicate. Bobby enjoyed seminary because he was able to use so many of these terms there.

1Cor. 3:10 According to the [standard of] grace of God, the one having been given to me, like a wise, expert builder, I have laid a foundation [of elementary teaching], but another is building on [it]. But let each be watching [or, be taking care] how he builds on [it].

1Corinthians 3:9–10      edification complex Lesson #87      Sunday A 12/26/2004

Listened to during hurricane Rita.

This is the day after Christmas and Bobby wonders if we passed the Christmas test. E.g., not being able to spend time with a person you would want to; or getting into a fight with family members. Currently studying a doctrine which will help us out. One of the doctrines involved is the doctrine of the relaxed mental attitude.

This came before the divine dynasphere and it was used to describe advance in the spiritual life. Edification complex was a metaphor developed from constructing a building. The raising of a structure or a building as a person advanced to spiritual maturity. Many of the doctrines given from the pulpit there just describe the spiritual life and the mechanics of the spiritual life. Very few believers ever have the opportunity to get this taught. This doctrine examines the mechanics of the advance to spiritual maturity. As the structure is built on the foundation, there will be results. Increasing effectiveness of our Christian service. Also, we should understand rewards in heaven. This doctrine will put together many aspects of what we have already learned.

Bobby goes over the verb and the noun again. Another builds, but let each man be careful as to how he builds upon it. You must have raw material; you must have something to build with. That raw material is Bible doctrine. Edification really means nothing more than spiritual education. This demands concentration and our concentration on doctrine under the filling of the Holy Spirit. This requires interests, positive volition, and you must realize that it has bearing on your life. This also demands teaching and grace apparatus for perception. We must be filled with the Spirit, we must be taught by a pastor, and we must be taught by God the Holy Spirit. You do not have to work and you do not have to antagonize. That results in spiritual growth and we respond later by producing. The process of constructing this building. This structure is built in our soul built by our education in doctrine.

Like any building, the process begins at the foundation. It always begins by pouring some sort of a foundation. Faith alone in Christ alone. 1Cor. 3:11: No man can lay any other foundation than Jesus Christ. Believing in Jesus Christ is eternal life and that is the very foundation for the edification complex. We begin with 39 irrevocable assets and the one revocable asset. There is something else there: Bible doctrine, which is a part of that foundation. No construction can take place apart from Bible doctrine. All the construction in the believer's soul is based upon Bible doctrine. This will be a high rise construction.

The first floor from Eph. 4:22: that in reference to your former manner of life, you lay aside the old man, which is being corrupted in accordance with the corruptions of our manner of life (which is the way we think); when there is a disconnect between your thinking and your actions, and that is being a hypocrite. We are saddled from the very beginning with our former manner of life, the old man, which is the old sin nature residing in us, in the cell structure of our body. This makes a fleshly man. The sin nature corrupts every believer. We are corrupt and depraved. Depravity here is called the lusts of deceit. There is never a time when the sin nature and the integrity of God are compatible. You cannot have any contact with the integrity of God via the old sin nature. In this passage, we lay aside the old man, which is rebound. You cannot build the edifice apart from the filling of the Holy Spirit. You stop all construction without the filling of the Holy Spirit. We cannot lose the foundation; it is ours forever. The filling of the Holy Spirit is a link which links our foundation to our construction. We cannot build anything apart from that.

The second floor is found in Eph. 4:23: and you must be renewed which is the exhortation to grow spiritually. We are mandated to be renewed in the spirit of our mind, which is our human spirit. Without it, we cannot have a grace apparatus for perception. This is the real beginning of construction. Up until that time, all you have is a foundation that everyone stares at. The second floor is the grace apparatus for perception. This is the inculcation of doctrine. From this, we get the all important Epignôsis doctrine in the right lobe. This information might be second nature to us, but most Christians do not have a clue. All they know is work, work, work. This is all they know how to do, and Christian works are a result, not the means to growth.

Grace apparatus for perception

1. Grace apparatus for perception is the second floor.
2. Epistemological rehabilitation. This is how we know what we know. This perfectly describes what happens in our soul. It means the transition through spiritual advance from human viewpoint to divine viewpoint. This is a gradual transition, like any construction process. Each day, there is a little change in the building of a structure, and this is the deal here. The structure in our soul will continually grow and it will eventually end up the way that the architect designed it. God drew up the plans for the building.
3. Epistemological rehabilitation is the process of being renewed.
4. It is found in Rom. 12:2-5. Do not be conformed to human viewpoint thinking, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind. (Or the renovation of your thinking). When you are renewed, you take on the mind of Christ. ...that you may prove what the will of God is... Divine viewpoint is the key to all of it. Divine viewpoint is the key to all of this. ...namely the good of intrinsic value achievement... or the production of divine good.
5. In other words, this floor is the perception of Bible doctrine under the consistent function of the grace apparatus for perception with all the attendant results.
6. The results are all the rest of the floors of the edification complex.

The next service will be the 3rd floor.

1Corinthians 3:8b

Lesson #88

Sunday B 12/26/2004

Foundation is Christ and Bible doctrine. All of our spiritual life is built on this foundation.

The first floor is the filling of the Holy Spirit. There can be no construction apart from the filling of the Holy Spirit.

The second floor is the grace apparatus for perception, which is the method by which we build the next floors of the edification complex. When we have Epignôsis doctrine in our soul, we begin the process of building our structure.

The third floor is the inculcation of basic and more advanced doctrine. This is doctrinal orientation. Doctrine is present in the foundation; it is simply available there. This is a main floor. This doctrinal orientation is when we think with doctrine in the soul; we think with the mind of Christ. The mind of Christ is divine viewpoint. This describes the process of our thinking. We are all dependent upon some kind of viewpoint and the information of our soul is directly linked to what we think, and the results are what we do. Being able to think as Jesus Christ did when He was on earth is epistemological rehabilitation. This is an advantage that no one else has. To think with the mind of Christ, we must metabolize Bible doctrine. Each floor is build upon the other; that has meaning here. Each floor is dependent upon the floor which is beneath it.

The fourth floor is the development of grace orientation. The third and fourth floors are problem solving devices as well as floors in the edification complex. Grace is the plan of God. Grace is what God requires of us to understand and function in our lives.

Grace Orientation

1. Grace orientation engenders humility. That is a requirement for spiritual growth. It is freedom from arrogance.
2. It is a way of thinking and a way of life. As you think, so you will act. Your thinking precedes your actions. Humility is a way of thinking; you can still have a little swagger in your walk. Arrogance is in your soul, not in your walk.
3. As a system of thinking, humility is freedom from arrogance. Grace orientation is a key floor in epistemological rehabilitation. The unbeliever never thinks in grace. It is always I must earn everything; it is all based on my effort. God has provided everything in our life for us. God's grace is the only thing that matters.
4. As a way of life, humility is authority orientation, which is necessary for all edification. You cannot learn unless you are authority oriented. If you are the final decider on right and wrong, that is arrogance. You must be able to accept the authority of the teacher. When you trust the authority of the person you hear, then you can advance. Until then, you do not have the ability to metabolize and advance.
5. As a way of life, humility is seeing objective reality based on divine viewpoint.
6. In humility, we can be taught. Our thinking adapts to the grace plan of God. Grace is God's way of thinking. You cannot understand the spiritual life until you are authority oriented. Until then, you will be working to please God.
7. With grace orientation, you realize that only the ability and the power of God can meet your needs and solve your problems. No more reliance on your faulty resources.
8. Grace orientation linked with doctrinal orientation results in divine virtue or Christian virtue. This is the virtue of doctrinal orientation. It goes beyond morality. It encompasses morality, but it goes beyond reality. We have access to the most perfect thinking known.
9. Virtue increases tolerance of your fellow man. It also includes mastery of the details of life. See how the rehab takes place and what it means.

10. The attaining of the details of life are a huge test of our momentum. Prosperity is one of the greatest tests of our momentum.
11. This leads us to the fifth floor, which is the mastery of the details of life, which is the first really practical floor.

When we get to the fifth floor, we actually get to a point where we can really apply. However, at grace orientation, we will be tested. Get a little prosperity and we will be tested. God tests our ability to focus on divine viewpoint. Momentum testing is designed around the details of life. Prosperity can be a huge momentum test.

Why do we pray? Why do we do it? Well, God tells us to pray. We are to pray often and consistently. Pray without ceasing. Why do we need to pray if God already knows what the answer will be. Bobby prayed for a long time simply because God told him to pray. But there is more to it than that. When you see an answer to something that we have prayed for. By the way, whenever you pray, God will answer that prayer. He may not answer in a way that we don't expect or want, but He always answers. His answers tell us that He is listening and He responds. God has known from eternity past what He will do. When we see it, it is a confidence builder. Prayer does not solve problems, but we will see problems solved when we pray. Prayer is integral to that. We pray because God will show us great and mighty things. It is a confidence builder in our life.

Mastery of the Details of Life

1. Once you get the details of life, you are often tested.
2. The momentum test mastery is designed for accelerated growth. Testing is designed to speed up growth.
3. Money, material things, friends, success, health, loved ones, status symbols are all a part of the details of life. It can be simple; our hobby, what we want to acquire. There is nothing wrong with the details of life. Details of life are great. They make life enjoyable. Details are not our life, but they are a part of our life. If we can enjoy and function with these details, then we are fine. However, the details can run our life. If we had a bad Christmas, the details of life are running our life. Whatever makes us unhappy is a detail of life. Our job is to master these details. When details are more important than our spiritual life, then we are not growing.
4. Chasing the details of life are antithetical to the spiritual life. They constitute an erroneous scale of values. The abundance or the lack thereof, often results in happiness or unhappiness, but that is not the way it should be. Our happiness should never be dependent upon the details of life. Our spiritual life should be gauged by how much we are affected by the details of life. We can enjoy life. But we can also have the focus that God intended for us.
5. If our grace and values are based on what grace and doctrinal orientation, the spiritual life is a priority and we are content. There is nothing wrong with possessing the details of life. It is dependency which is a problem. What is our happiness dependent upon. Analyze ourselves. Christmas is a great gauge. The change comes from inside our souls. That is where change occurs. We can be content at any time. Heb. 13:5: Let your character be free from the details of life; be content with what you have. We all have the details of life. Be content with them. Jesus Christ has told us, "I will never desert you and I will never forsake you." Jesus Christ will never desert us. Most people will disappoint us at one time or another. However, the Lord Jesus Christ never does. He is always the same. He will never do anything but be there for us. Doctrine is how we focus in on God. Problems mean we cannot wait to talk to God about changing things. In prosperity, we may not want to talk to God. We may not want anything to change.

6. Content with what we have is the mastery of the details of life.
7. Obviously, any detail of life can be removed at any moment. All those things which are important to us can be washed away, burned up, taken away. Mastery of the details of life--it will hurt, but God will always be there; He will never forsake us.
8. Since this is true, there must be a permanent anchor in the soul which cannot be moved by temporal disaster.
9. The anchor which keeps us from moving is a personal sense of destiny built from grace and doctrinal orientation. See, there is nothing more important than learning how to master the details of life.

Personal Sense of Destiny

1. With doctrine, you begin to live in an eternally secure future.
2. Our self worth is inseparably united with Jesus Christ and not with the details of life. People get their self-esteem from their work, their possessions, their friends, etc. Everyone we know get their self-esteem and fun and contentment from the details of life. We can have self-esteem, even if the world views us as worthless. When we begin to master the details of life and have spiritual self-esteem apart from the details of life. We need to ponder this stuff and answer the question for ourselves.

1Corinthians 3:8b      edification complex Lesson #89 Wednesday 12/29/2004

We are current constructing a building, the edification complex. It is being raised as the result of epistemological rehabilitation. It comes from being renewed in the spirit of our mind. Transition in spiritual advance from human viewpoint to divine viewpoint. As we begin our spiritual life, we are steeped in human viewpoint. In rehabilitation, we are renewed in our minds. It is a process. Mark 14:24: "This is the blood of My covenant which is poured out for many." The other half of our foundation is Bible doctrine, which is about Jesus Christ; it is the mind of Christ. Bible doctrine is the rebar which is in our foundation and it is integral in the foundation of a house. We have Bible doctrine and we have Jesus Christ if we are believers in Jesus Christ. However, we must build upon that foundation. We have doctrine, which is the raw material, found in the pages of Scripture. Doctrine is ours, but we must build upon it. Once the foundation is established, we have the first floor. It is impossible to go past the foundation apart from the power of the Holy Spirit. Power tools without power are useless. The filling of the Holy Spirit is pivotal to any construction.

The second floor is grace apparatus for perception. Bible doctrine and the filling of the Holy Spirit already supplies us with the grace apparatus for perception. It is dependent upon the filling of the Holy Spirit. This is the beginning of our construction. We had nothing to do with any of our assets...we simply believed in Jesus Christ, and He gave us the means to grow. At the third floor, we begin to become involved with our volition. We must spend time concentrating on the word of God. When we metabolize that doctrine, it forms the superstructure of that complex. Our renewal project is then underway. We are being epistemologically rehabilitated.

The next floor is doctrinal orientation. We are taking in doctrine and we continue to grow and we become oriented to that doctrine. We are able to metabolize more and more doctrine. It indicates that our thinking is in the process of being converted. When we take in doctrine, it indicates we are making progress in our construction. We lose our dependence on human viewpoint and begin a dependency on divine viewpoint.

Fourth floor: Grace orientation, which is right in the center of our edification complex. There are 8 floors. There is always some central point of support in a building, and that is grace orientation. As the fourth floor goes up, we become more and more grace oriented.

Grace Orientation

1. Whatever
2. Grace orientation is a system of thinking and a way of life. If you think grace orientation, then you will act on grace orientation. It is the most foreign concept to the human race as possible. People will often realize that you have something that they don't.
3. As a system of thinking, humility is freedom from arrogance. Humility and arrogance are diametrically opposed. Arrogant thinking is the downfall of any spiritual life.
4. As a way of life, humility is authority orientation. We must have authority orientation to progress in constructing the edification complex.
5. With grace orientation, we see reality based upon divine viewpoint. In human viewpoint, everything is relative. With authority orientation, we can see reality on the basis of absolute standards; based upon the grace of God. No one else has absolute standards. This is why we are not relative, but we are absolute. If we live by absolutes, those absolutes are perfectly correct.
6. We are teachable if we are grace oriented. Our thinking adapts to God's way of thinking; to God's grace thinking. This is where grace orientation comes in; without it, we cannot think like the Lord Jesus Christ.
7. With grace orientation, we realize that only the ability and the power of God can meet our needs and solve our problems. We think too often someone else can meet our needs and solve our problems. If we can think this way, no more reliance on our human resources. That is grace orientation and humility.
8. Grace orientation linked with doctrinal orientation produces Christian virtue. This is much more than morality.

9. Virtue progressively increases tolerance of our fellow man. Hearing the news, watching tv, driving...these are all irritants to Bobby. This gives us a relaxed mental attitude in life.
10. Virtue also include mastery of the details of life, which means we are passing the momentum test. All of our tests in life are designed for our momentum. Cast your cares and problems on God, and that is grace orientation. We spend more time letting God solve our problems, and we know He is sufficient for all of our needs. Therefore, we can let Him take care of the problem.

The fifth floor is mastery of the details of life. These next floors are going to be very practical. We will see some fantastic results.

Mastery of the Details of Life

1. Once we acquire grace and doctrinal orientation, which does not come all at once, but is gradual, we get tested; we can bank on that. One of the greatest tests in life is the prosperity test. Many of us ask for this test. A taste of prosperity is as addictive as a drug and it can undermine our spiritual life. We can lose our focus.
2. What are the details: money, material things, loved ones, status symbols, etc. It can be a hobby, a vocation, an avocation...whatever, it is a detail of life.
3. Chasing the details of life, it is antithetical to the spiritual life and constitutes an erroneous scale of values.
4. If our scale of values is built on doctrinal and grace orientation, then our spiritual life takes priority.
5. We are content because of a divine viewpoint focus. There is a lot to be said for contentment in life. All else is merely a detail in life. It is not the details, but the dependency upon them which is problematic.
6. Content with what we have in Heb. 13:5 is proof that we can master the details of life. Some people have the world and they are not content with it. Some people have everything and some have nothing and neither can be happy with it. Being content with what we have is a result of doctrinal orientation.
7. Any detail of life can be removed at any moment. We have seen many disasters in this world. This should remind us that the details of life are here today and gone tomorrow. We may have tremendous possessions and suddenly lose them.
8. We must have a permanent anchor in our soul which cannot be moved by temporal disaster. What test or disaster will overtake us in 2005? It could be a person or the stock market or your house; it could be lost suddenly. We must have an anchor in our soul.
9. What is that anchor? The anchor is a personal sense of destiny built from grace and doctrinal orientation.
  - a. With a personal sense of destiny, we begin to live in the light of an eternally secure future apart from the details of life. The details of life are in perspective. So what if we lose something? So what if the rug is yanked out from under us? God owns the cattle on a thousand hills; His wealth is permanent.

- b. Our self worth is inseparably united with Christ and not with the details of life. We can be a failure in the eyes of the world and have self-esteem. All we need is to be successful in the spiritual realm.
- c. From spiritual self worth developed by doctrine in the soul, we develop spiritual self esteem...spiritual adulthood.
- d. In spiritual self esteem, we develop capacity for life.
- e. This capacity is not connected to how many details you have. It is contentment in all circumstances. These things are details of life. We can be a sorry person and still content with life. You can even have a lousy, sour personality; you'll be content, although others might not be.
- f. You can endure the loss of the details of life. It is great capacity when you can let things go. Paul suffered extreme deprivation and spend much of his life without details. However, he said, in spite of this, he never lacked anything. He always had the source of blessing in his soul, which is Jesus Christ. Be content with whatever we have. Paul did have some prosperity and he had an relaxed mental attitude under all conditions (which is the sixth floor).

Relaxed Mental Attitude

1. Relaxed mental attitude is merely functioning under pressure. You can miss the last shot at the buzzer and still have an relaxed mental attitude
2. It requires the construction of the floors of doctrinal and grace orientation, as well as the mastery of the details of life. Relaxed mental attitude depends upon these.
3. What does it actually mean? A relaxed mental attitude is freedom from mental attitude sins. You cannot have a sustained relationship with God and have consistent mental attitude sins. Mental attitude sins and a relationship with the Lord are antithetical.
4. Therefore, we must develop a stabilized attitude toward the entire human race; particularly, those you are close to.
5. Not an attitude consisting primarily of mental attitude sins. They develop into sins of the tongue and overt sins. We will eventually malign and gossip and eventually retaliate. The counter to mental attitude sins in our life is a relaxed mental attitude. We can be abused, maltreated, disappointed, and our relaxed mental attitude covers this waterfront.
6. The gateway to our relaxed mental attitude is a personal love for God. The building of this edification complex is spiritual advance. This is always an automatic result of spiritual advance. This is simply breaking down spiritual advance into its component parts.
7. As we advance, personal love develops for Jesus Christ.
8. We discover through doctrine the perfect essence and integrity of God.

9. We make this discovery about Jesus Christ, about our resources and our eternal security and we begin to view these with doctrinal orientation. We begin to understand them with respect and reverence. We will love the Lord with all our heart and soul and mind. That is personal love for God. If you think you have fallen in love with someone, then you ought to know what they are about. You should know who they are. Some think of love as gooey emotions. That is not love; it happens within a few minutes of seeing them. You don't get personal love overnight; not for God or for human beings.
10. Personal love causes us to conform to the mind of Christ by following His precedence of virtue and integrity. We begin to think as He does. We have divine viewpoint in our soul. We are motivated by our love for the Lord.
11. This brings absolute confidence in Him. We love Him because we know who He is.
12. We know that He supports and sustains our momentum for problem solving, which gives us confidence and courage in adversity.
13. As our capacity to love God increases with spiritual advance, we gain even more confidence in Him. We gain a relaxed mental attitude. They go hand in hand. When we have confidence in Him, then we can relax. He directs even our problems for His benefit. When we realize all of our problems for our benefit, then we have reached another plateau. Our problems fade when we realize that these things are done for our benefit. He does not give us prosperity for our benefit, but so that we can maintain our momentum, whether in prosperity or in adversity. Each cycle takes us a little bit higher in the edification complex. Then our mental attitude sins are kept to a minimum. Our capacity to love others increases exponentially. This is a benefit for everyone around us.

Something else on New Year's eve; but we will go back to this on Sunday.

Lesson #2

Sunday A 1/2/2005

The principles of time?

1Corinthians 3:8b

Lesson #90

Sunday B 1/2/2005

This is a continuation of our study of the edification complex. Eph. 4:23 is "Be renewed in the thinking of our mind." The objective of spiritual growth. This is the process of being renewed. As part of that foundation, we have access to the mind of Christ. Bible doctrine is the mind of Christ. We are given two floors of the edification complex. This is the power source for getting our building off the ground. The metabolized doctrine forms Epignôsis in our soul. Third floor is doctrinal orientation. We will begin to think in cadence with the mind of Christ. Our thinking is in the process of being converted. We gain dependency on divine viewpoint. That is doctrinal orientation. The fourth floor is grace orientation. As doctrinal orientation gains momentum, we gain humility and become authority oriented. We become teachable. We adapt to God's way of thinking as opposed to our own way of thinking. Without grace orientation, we cannot realize that God provides everything for our needs and problems. God solves our problems through the resources that He has given us. Then we can have the things which He has given us. As we advance, we build these wonderful applications in our souls. The next floors are practical floors. What is in our soul will be manifested in what we do. We become increasingly tolerant of our fellow man. It is difficult to be tolerant of our fellow man, when they are all screwed up (except for us); we also learn how to deal with the details of life. Living our life includes all of the things that we want in life...health, loved ones, status symbols. The details can easily become a major momentum test for us. An aggressive pursuit. How easy it is to get our eyes fixed on these things. It is not wrong to pursue to details of life. When our spiritual life is relegated to second or third place...that is the problem. If our edification complex has the first four floors, having the details is not wrong, unless they consume all of our attention. The priority of Bible doctrine and grace orientation. The details can be destroyed in a minute. Some of us will face catastrophe in the next year. The lifeline is a personal sense of destiny. We begin to live in the light of an eternally secure future. Our security does not depend upon the details of life. If we are content, we don't go berserk when the details are missing. Someone will always think we are worthless, whether we are or not. It is not how we perform in front of people; it is how we perform in front of the Lord. Here is where we develop capacity for life. Are you content when you divest yourself of things that you have worked for all of your life? If you master the details of life, you can do fine with the loss of these details. You can handle it and thrive spiritually. The purpose of life is not collecting details, but being able to handle them. As a result of our spiritual self esteem, we will get an relaxed mental attitude. This is relaxation; lack a tension. He focused under pressure and he functioned under pressure. He was relaxed. A consistent relaxed mental attitude requires the construction of grace orientation and doctrinal orientation. We can represent that relaxed mental attitude in every aspect of our life. A person with a relaxed mental attitude does not have mental attitude sins. You cannot have fellowship with God with a soul filled with mental attitude sins. We must develop a stabilized attitude toward the entire human race. When you get with those obnoxious people who really drive you nuts? The counter of mental attitude sins comes from a relaxed mental attitude. As we advance, we develop personal love for God by discovering through doctrine perfect essence of God. This is our motivation in life; absolute confidence in His ability to take care of us, what does this bring into our life? Relaxation. Nothing can touch us. God has a plan for our life, even though we may not like the direction it takes at time. As our capacity for confidence increases, we realize that He even directs our problems for our benefit. We know the Lord is directing this for a purpose. We will let the consequences fall where they may. Our mental attitude sins are kept to a minimum. Our capacity to love others increases (which is, by the way, the seventh floor).

The seventh floor cannot be constructed without the previous floors. We must be able to keep our mental attitude sins to a minimum; we must have capacity to love God.

Capacity for Love

1. Mastery of the details of life is critical. Those who have material things and focus on those things, we do not have a real capacity to love persons. There is just no room.
2. A relaxed mental attitude is also critical here. Mental attitude sins pattern destroy love. Instead of love, a person has jealousy, envy and strife. The Corinthians cannot love anyone. They were users and manipulators.
3. What is capacity to love? Capacity to love is our overall ability to express love because we have capacity in our soul. Friendship or romantic love. We can express it towards another and not just toward ourself. We can express it from spiritual advance. Our love is constant and stable, in spite of the circumstances.
4. If we want to know if we have capacity, then is our love stable?
5. Capacity for love can be developed in other ways apart from Bible doctrine. Even in unbelievers. It can come from idealism or romanticism. It can be a philosophy.
6. Don't ever think that the unbeliever cannot have capacity. However, we have a great chance at capacity. Now we know how to attain it and where it comes from. Self centeredness turns a person into a user or a manipulator, or if we are ego centric, we can love ourself, but we don't have the capacity to love others.
7. No one is perfect. Especially believers, who may think that they are perfect. Allowances have to be made for a person's lack of perfection. We can see a person's feet of clay and lose your capacity for love. This is where impersonal love kicks in. We must be able to love someone impersonally in order to love them personally.
8. Even those we love most can be the biggest tests in our life. . Personal life is the most difficult love to maintain our life. Two people together have double the problems.
9. How do we obey the mandate to love our neighbor? Loving our neighbor is part of capacity. That same love is mandated toward everyone. That requires capacity. We obey with a mental attitude of an impersonal love. That is an unconditional love which flows from the integrity of the subject rather than the attractiveness of the subject.
10. If you want to realize what impersonal live is, this is the same love which God bestows upon unbelievers. That is certainly impersonal love. That is true capacity. God plans and executes salvation based upon unbelievers. Impersonal love is not influenced by failure. Failure is one of the big undermining factors in love. They fail and then you lose your love for them. Failure should not undermine your capcacity to love them. God's love is driven by integrity.
11. When we acquire spiritual self esteem and personal love for God, we gain integrity and virtue. Bobby notices that when people stand in front of him to get married, they have the glassiest stare.
12. Impersonal love derived from divine virtue in the soul takes precedence over the flaws of faults of people. That means you can pass people testing. Capacity for love is constant and stable and it thrives on integrity. No capacity for love means you will never know how great love can be. Even if those who love you try to hurt you, you can maintain your love, based upon your own character and spiritual growth.

13. With virtue love from personal and impersonal love for God, capacity for love can preclude: being cruelly intolerant (which is common, because you often expect the most from the people that you love); or you harbor anger and vindictiveness for those who are closest to you; you judge, you hate or indulge other mental attitude sins. Mental attitude sins are generated by people who are close to you; not from people on tv.
14. If you must face these sorts of things, we will not be distracted by impersonal love by stress, pressure and turmoil. Even with these, you can maintain your capacity for love.
15. You will become imitators of God, repaying insults and antagonist with grace orientation and with kindness and compassion. By the way, everyone has feet of clay.
16. If you repay insults with those qualities, we will live in a pleasant, relaxed environment in our soul.
17. We will live a life of great stability and power.
18. We will develop a capacity for love and happiness unknown to the rest of the world. That is our legacy. The rest of the world does not even have a clue about this. If we have capacity for love and are grace oriented, then we can live in the penthouse, which is sharing the happiness of God.

1Corinthians 3:10 (ECS)

Lesson #91

Wednesday 1/5/2005

Bobby has given up cancelling because ya never know.

We are on the final four floors of the Edification Complex. All four of the final floors are application floors. They are manifestations of spiritual advance. Each is a result of the foundation (Jesus Christ and Bible doctrine in general). Without this foundation, we cannot build a structure. The Holy Spirit is the power source for anything that we do.

The first floors provide a transition. Increasing tolerance of our fellow man. You don't even have to have contact to be intolerant; just see them on the television. Mastery of the details of life; money, material things, health, friends, etc., all of which can be major tests in our lives.

The Details of Life

1. The test is generally, will you focus on these details and assign your spiritual life to a lower priority
2. How easy to lose track of your real security.
3. The spiritual life is designed to bring contentment into your life, with or without those details. Are you content in adversity, in difficulty, in prosperity?

4. Contentment under all circumstances is a result of the mastery of the details of life, the construction of the 5th floor. You should wonder how to get there.
  - a. In our temporal existence, we are content when we are comfortable with ourselves.
  - b. We see ourselves as having some human self esteem.
  - c. Spiritual self esteem is not tied to our accomplishment or by what we have gained from our own hard work. It derives from one source, which is our personal sense of destiny.
  - d. You see yourself as our Lord sees us, in the light of eternity, not in the light of our own accomplishments.
  - e. We are a person of infinite worth. This is not because of what we have done in life; it is the grace of God which makes us infinitely worthy—even in the eyes of our Lord. There should be no comparison with the human realm.
  - f. Our self esteem is inseparably united with the foundation Christ and the construction of the first five floors of the ecs. When you do that, you will have spiritual self esteem.
  - g. You can endure the loss of the details of life without falling to pieces. The rug can be yanked out from beneath you and not fall apart. With spiritual self esteem, you develop an relaxed mental attitude under all circumstances. This is composure, being at ease, relaxed under difficult situations. Unbelievers can function under pressure. This is the believer who does not engage in mental attitude sins or does not launch into tirades when wronged, or disappointed or frustrated. This believer has a stabilized confidence.
  - h. The gateway is personal love with God.

Relaxed mental attitude

1. Learning about Him, coming to respect Him because of what you know about Him, and appreciating His grace for all He has done for you. If you love the Lord, that is what you have.
2. You have absolute confidence in God's care for us. Cast our your cares upon God because He cares for you.
3. When you do that, you know He supports and sustains your momentum and He gives you courage in adversity. If you fear things in adversity, you are not relaxed.
4. God directs all circumstances for all best interests. Testing accelerates our growth. We apply doctrine and it works; regardless of the test and regardless of how difficult that it is.
5. When all of these things occur, our mental attitude sins are kept to a minimum. We are human, we have problems, we still make mistakes, but they are reduced. Our capacity to love others is increased.

7th Floor: Capacity for Love

1. Capacity for love is our overall ability to express our love for another. It must start in the soul and then it becomes an expression. From doctrine, from spiritual self esteem, and one other thing.
2. This is a love that is constant and is stable, despite bad treatment from others. No one is perfect; especially believers. We have no capacity if we do not allow for the stinkers.
3. Impersonal love comes in at this point. People, even those you love the most, can be the severest test in life. Personal love is difficult to maintain on a moment by moment basis.
4. You must develop virtue and integrity by advancing in the spiritual way of life.
5. Impersonal love is an unconditional love flowing from that integrity. How do we want to be loved? Especially when we are moody and creepy; we want to be loved unconditionally and have our faults overlooked and we want to be tolerated; we want to be stroked and told it's okay by those who love us. The person who does not react when pressed, is the person who can love with impersonal love.
6. This is the same love that God bestows on unbelievers. We earn or deserve nothing; He is gracious in His treatment of us. We are all miscreants, and yet God still love us. Our responsibility is to give that kind of love, not to expect it.
7. Impersonal love derives from divine virtue in the soul and takes precedence over the flaws and faults in people.
8. With impersonal love, you can pass people testing; with virtue love, which is impersonal love for mankind and personal love for God.
9. We will not be intolerably cruel; we will not harbor smouldering anger or vindictiveness; we no longer judge or hate or indulge in mental attitude sins. We have the ability to deal with it.
10. With impersonal love, we will not be distracted by stress, turmoil or pressure; those things that people bring into our lives.
11. As Scripture mandates, we should Become imitators of God. God has given us everything that we need, and we often fail. God is patient about this. Can we have this same patience about another person?
12. Then, here's the benefit: you will live in a pleasant and relaxed environment in your soul.
13. You will live a life of stability and power; instability is so difficult to deal with; all kinds of problems. No idea where you will land. Those who love you will appreciate your stability; they want to be able to depend upon them. In love, you are vulnerable, so you want someone that you can depend upon.
14. You will develop a capacity for love and happiness unknown to the rest of the world. It is all part of capacity for love.

8th Floor: Sharing the Happiness of God

1. Christ was suffering unbearable pain when He paid for our sins. He never lost contentment. His was a permanent happiness. He wasn't effervescent, exuberant, or enthusiastic.

2. His relaxed mental attitude equated adversity with prosperity and living with dying. There is no greater demonstration of that than His relaxed mental attitude on the cross.
3. Our Lord's happiness never allowed Him to feel threatened or sorry for Himself.
4. His contentment never changed. Not even in the face of cruelty, injustice or death. He died with His eyes on His all-important mission. True contentment in construction of the ecs.
5. We have access to the same ecs as our Lord Jesus Christ.
6. To live is Christ, to die is profit. That equates living with dying. Few see dying as profit, but it is, and we are mandated to think that way.
7. Our occupation with Jesus Christ focuses our attention on Him. We should focus on the Lord Jesus Christ.
8. The Lord becomes our role model. His love and character become the role model for our life. Don't expect the pastor to be your role model. Keep your eyes focused on Jesus Christ; not on some guy.
9. The Lord is our closest companion, influencing our love.
10. When you think with the mind of Christ, He is truly our closest companion. This is consistent focus for us. There is no human counterpart which can equal this.
11. When you have this, you cease to depend upon people for happiness. We depend on people to get us through our problems or to prop us up under adversity. Ideally, we can be content when they are making us unhappy.
12. No suffering or disaster or shock or pressure will supercede the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ in our soul. Fun only carries us so far. Fun until 3am; and no fun when we get up at 6 am for work the next day. You must continually look for such stimulation. How much time in our life do we have a good time? How long when we are not? That should be a lopsided comparison. Consistently focused on the Lord; you may or may not have fun, but you can still enjoy life. He built an ecs in His own soul. We have the ability and the capacity to have the same thing in our own souls. What we have can be permanent. The only thing which carries us is the ecs. Life is a balance; there is a time for fun and enjoyment and there is a time for other things. No balance and you will find misery eventually. If we share the happiness of God, we can enjoy the moments when it is fun; and the moments when it is not so much fun.

1Corinthians 3:10 (ECS)

Lesson #92

Thursday 1/6/2005

The foundation is Christ and the mind of Christ for the ECS. GAP is the second floor, which is the result of the filling of the Holy Spirit and having the mind of Christ. Doctrinal orientation and grace orientation for the next two floors. When we think with the mind of Christ, we understand how He operates.

The next four floors are very practical floors. Mastery of the details of life; testing, including prosperity testing. When we master the details of life, we are then tested. If we pass some or all of these tests, we will find ourselves with an relaxed mental attitude.

Then we have capacity for love: personal love for God and impersonal love for all mankind. Spiritual integrity; with this virtue, we can handle anything in life. If you have capacity for love, you can deal with them on a higher level. Great relationships in life require capacity for love.

Sharing the happiness of God is the penthouse.

Nothing you Cannot Face with the Penthouse

1. While Christ was on the cross, suffering horrible and monstrous pain; while doing this, He never lost happiness or content. You live well and you die well.
2. Living is equivalent to dying.
3. Our Lord's happiness never allowed Him to feel threatened. He never felt sorry for Himself. We have this capability.
4. He was focused and He died with His eyes on His all important mission. Once you have believed in Christ, then why doesn't God take you home? We must determine what to do on earth.
5. We have access to His contentment. Occupation with the person of Christ is the basis of our contentment. That is the ultimate in doctrinal orientation. Philip.1:21: to live is Christ and to die is profit. We are given the ability to do whatever Scripture requires us to do.
6. When we know and love the Lord Jesus Christ, that is how we can share His happiness. The more we know about a person, the more respect and admiration we have for the person. Bobby does not believe in love at first sight. You've gotta know Him.
7. The Lord then becomes our role model. We want to be like Him; we can't help ourselves. When He is our role model, then we have reached maturity.
8. The Lord is our closest companion and He influences our every thought. This is the end result of the process of maturity. Don't become disappointed when we fail; rebound and try again.
9. Under these conditions, we cease to depend upon people. This does not mean that we are an island. This does not mean that we push away anyone who offers to help us. Do we depend upon people? Does our happiness depend upon people and how they think about us and what they do on our behalf. We have the greatest resource in the world. We can, in our own minds, sustain our happiness. This is a summation of what we can have in the Christian life.
10. No suffering, shock, disaster, pressure etc. supercedes the presence of Jesus Christ in our soul.
11. The constitution says we have the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. A rather vague. Persistence in the pursuit of happiness is different for us. The only thing that brings consistent happiness is capacity developed. Pursuit of happiness lasts only as long for most people as if you don't have capacity, yesterday's happiness becomes tomorrow's misery. We have great stability in Him.
12. Just as asks us to do, we can share it. The humanity of Jesus Christ built that final floor from His own humanity. Day after day he made this work. Do I have the ability to be consistently happy, as per the commentary. Don't get morbid. Some will not pursue happiness. Sharing the happiness of God means a lot more under adversity.

13. When the mind of Christ is our right lobe, the our happiness is unlimited and consistent. You must pursue happiness properly; in the right way.
14. When we have constructed the ECS, the following things happen:
  - 1) It does not mean that you have pleasant circumstances every day.
  - 2) We'll have good years and bad years.
  - 3) Emotion is not necessary for happiness. We do not have to go into this emotional pit to find happiness.
  - 4) Sharing the happiness of God is a stable existence. It is stability in all circumstances; the absence of.
  - 5) Of course, you will have emotional turmoil in your life. This does occur. The contentment that Christ had during the greatest pressures of life is ours.
  - 6) If you wallow in emotional turmoil, then you only have yourself to blame
  - 7) The more you practice, the better you get. Sharing the happiness of God gives us a greater capacity for love; it keeps us stable. The details of life are not the criterion for our pursuit.
  - 8) John 15:11: I have spoken these things to you so that My joy might remain in you and your joy might be full. His joy is complete so that our happiness may be complete. Jesus had external temptation just like Adam had external temptation; the temptation was real. As a man, He did not. He was temptable. Jesus was truly a man, truly temptable, and He built and ECS. The final word for full is πληρωω. This is being made complete; being made mature. This indicates that we have a deficiency; our soul has a deficiency; there is something missing. John is writing the words that he hears Jesus speak. When that doctrine fills our soul, we begin to build that edification complex. The soul is filled right to the top. Eph. 4:3: And this until we all come into the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to a full-grown [mature] man [construction of the edification complex], to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.

Christ enabled by the power of the Holy Spirit and momentum from Bible doctrine. With these resources, grace and the other resources, He made a rapid advance to maturity. There was never a discordant moment of negative volition. He had a fully functioning edification complex before He began His 4 year ministry (maybe beginning around age 28). He dropped out of sight at 12 years old. We do not know what happened in Egypt, but when He returned, He certainly had an ECS. Capacity for love: "Forgive them father because they don't know what they are doing).

Final Points of Application

1. We have the same divine operating assets as the Lord Jesus Christ. Everything He had, we have. He was the prototype, we are operational. It is standard equipment with every Christian.
2. These assets were heretofore unknown to the ordinary believer.
3. In this age, we can construct the same edification complex that He had. Imagine that. We can have a mini millennium in our soul; that is tranquility and contentment. We will have this perfectly when we return with Christ at the second advent; but we can have that right now on earth.
4. We can have an relaxed mental attitude in the worst situations and maximum happiness in life. That is an awesome endowment. Don't squander it. It is our inherence; use it.

1Corinthians 3:10 (ECS)

Lesson #93

Sunday 1/9/2005

Bobby has attempted to integrate the edification complex (an old doctrine) with the problem-solving devices, which were taught in Berachah in the past ten years or so. There is nothing more important than to know what we have and what we are capable of in the spiritual life. Bobby is going to look at these floors in order now.

Edification Complex

0. Foundation, which consists of the Lord Jesus Christ, Who is called the chief corner stone. We also have the mind of Christ, which is Bible doctrine (1Cor. 2:16). He provided us with the source of our thinking, which is the most fundamental aspect of what we believe.
1. Once the doctrine is out there, we need the first floor, which is the filling of the Holy Spirit. Nothing happens with the renovation project without the divine power to begin and maintain construction. That requires the retention of the Holy Spirit for as long as possible. This links with the next floors.
2. Gap is the next floor, found in 1Cor. 2; this is the only employee qualified to work on our building. There is no other way. There is no other way for us to access the mind of Christ. It is the key. With the filling of the Spirit and gap we can access what is already present. This is the metabolizing process which turns gnosis into Epignôsis.
3. 3rd floor is doctrinal orientation. This third floor is built by gap pouring doctrine into the right lobe. We become epistemologically rehabilitation. Our soul is underway and fundamental change is taking place. It is critical for us to think doctrinally. The unbeliever can be academically oriented, but he does not build up an edification complex. We can imitate Christ's thinking; the unbeliever cannot do that.
4. 4th floor: The pivotal floor is grace orientation. This is a critical transition. God thinks in terms of grace. This 3rd and 4th floor launch the building of the next four floors, which are practical; they are application of doctrinal and grace orientation.
5. 5th floor: mastery of the details of life. This encompasses testing in our life. We have a lot of prosperity testing in this life. Our focus must be on grace and doctrinal orientation. When the details become the focus of our thinking, then we have lost spiritual momentum and we will not be fulfilling the purpose for being here. We will only be gratifying ourselves.

6. 6th floor: a relaxed mental attitude. You will discover when you begin to handle testing, that an relaxed mental attitude will ease the tension in our soul. We all have this tension in our soul. We live our lives enjoying what we have; and not worrying about what we don't have. These two floors work in tandem. If the main focus in our lives is us, then our soul lives in turmoil. When the details of life control us, and we are self centered, then we worry about what we don't have. We get up thinking about what we don't have and how can we get it. How can we move ahead and be successful; how can I make others notice me; how can I be me? Too many of us think about what is necessary to fulfill me? This is a great striving in life and a great trap in life. Heb. 13:8: Be content with whatever you have. If you are content, then you are mentally relaxed. Maybe God does not want us to be fulfilled in those areas. Grace orientation is what God has in store for us; not what we think we should have. If you want fulfillment, then accomplish the plan of God for your life; that is fulfillment. If you think fulfillment must happen on our timetable. I must accomplish this, and then this, so I can move on to the next one. When will you be content with what you have? When will you be relaxed and stand down with what you have? Why do you need to be fulfilled in every area of life? When you accomplish the plan of God for your life, you can get it all. You won't enjoy a relationship with another human being when you are seeking to mold the parameters of that relationship. You think that the circumstances of the relationship must progress when you want it to progress and on your timetable. Who cares what they want? I want to be fulfilled in this or that way. See how egocentric that is? It is God's timing and God's plan which counts. How do you acquire a relaxed mental attitude? You must realize that God has a perfect time table already worked out to the nth degree. God will put us into this plan; we can depend upon Him for that. How do we apprehend this? By staying doctrinally oriented; by being filled with God the Holy Spirit. God will provide for us what we have the capacity to enjoy just at the right time. We cannot be fulfilled in this plan unless we have the capacity to enjoy it. This is why there is a time table to all of it. Waiting for God's timing brings a relaxed mental attitude. That is patience in the spiritual realm. We will then step up to fulfillment in other areas of life. Some of us may have plans and goals that by this age, we will have that; by that age, we will have that. But, none of that will be fulfilling unless our focus is on God's plan for our life. We must be able to ignore what we don't have and appreciate what we do have.
7. Capacity for love (actually capacity for everything). When you are relaxed, you begin to have capacity for all that you have. Personal love for God is the great motivator for our life. It is the virtue of this life. When we trust God, we know He will be there for us and that we can depend upon Him. Casting all your cares upon Him because He cares for you. God will not skimp on anything that we need to live the spiritual life. As you gain more capacity for life, you get a great relaxed mental attitude, which increases your capacity for life. Each floor strengthens the other. You are not always tense about your relationships. Relationships of life are also some of the greatest adversities of life as well. The greater our capacity for love, the greater is our attitude. Impersonal love is critical for maintaining relationships with others. We must be able to obey the mandate, love your neighbor as yourself. This does not mean that we encourage countries which are trying to destroy us; we are to love every other human being in this world. There will be times when your spouse or your friends are not attractive to you; and that is when you need impersonal love. This integrity of soul which is developed comes from the previously constructed floors from your edification complex. When we are concerned about the object of your love being the way you want them to be, then you have missed the point of impersonal point. They cannot always do this for us. It take integrity in our soul so that we can love the unlovely. When we are particularly obnoxious and they are obnoxious back, we need this impersonal love. This integrity of the soul comes from these floors. Loving the unlovely is impersonal love. What Jesus Christ did for us on the cross is the pattern for our love. Anyone can love someone else when they are all dressed up, and they look good, and you are going where you want to go; that is easy. That takes no capacity for love. How do you love when they are not very lovely? That is true capacity for love.

8. Final floor: sharing the happiness of God; a stabilizer under pressure. This is where you get pressure unlike any you can imagine. You may wonder, why do I want to go up there? It is the happiest moment of your life, and you can't lose it. You will get pressure everywhere; you might as well have the 8th floor on your side, since you are going to have pressure anyway. We can be just as content and just as happy as the Lord Jesus Christ at the first advent. We did not lose His perfect happiness, even on the cross. We will not have pleasant and enjoyable circumstances every single day. But we can still have a great day every day regardless. When we are in a tough situation, we are going to be emotional; when we react to difficult circumstances, we are tense and we don't have an relaxed mental attitude. We are fighting it. John 15:11: These things I have spoken to you, that My joy may be in you. Jesus Christ said this because it is true. My joy may be in your and your joy might be complete. This is fulfillment. It is not what we acquire, but it is what God has done for us in every aspect of our life.

This is an illustration of the spiritual life and it tells us how fulfilling our lives can be. Now, Bobby is going to make it clear where it comes from.

Jesus Christ and the Edification Complex

1. Our Lord's humanity lives inside the prototype edification complex in the first advent.

2. He lives under the enabling power of the Holy Spirit. We are not born again with a fully developed edification complex. Jesus Christ was the first man to have the filling of the Holy Spirit and who advanced based upon divine truth.
3. With these resources, He made a rapid advance to spiritual maturity during His human life.
4. Fully functioning edification complex before He began His earthly ministry. Relaxed mental attitude, doctrinally orientted, He had personal love for God and impersonal love for us. He was focused on His mission. That is the focus of our life. He had already to the disciples what He had to do. He knew that God's grace was sufficient for all of His needs.
5. Application to us:
  - a. We have the same operating assets that Jesus Christ had during the first advent. He was the prototype of the edification complex. He showed the way and he followed. This is how we have capacity for love; and how we can have total contentment in life.
  - b. He had impersonal love: "Forgive them Father, for they know not what they do." Can we do that? We have the potential of being able to do that.
  - c. These assets given by God were unknown to ordinary believers prior to the time of Jesus Christ on this earth. No ordinary believer in the Old Testament had that. If you don't have the first floor, you can't have the others.
  - d. In this age, we can construct the exact same edification complex in our own soul. We can have our own mini-Millennium in our soul. If you live for the weekend, if you hate everything but those football games and your golf games, then you do not have it.
  - e. We can be grace oriented and we can have capacity for love. How we feel about the person next to us is a good indicator whether we have spiritually advanced. The only real fulfillment that we have is executing the plan of God. No matter what our lot is in life, we will be fulfilled. If you have these goals, having a child, making it big in the stock market, etc.; and you think you cannot be happy without these things, then you have a problem. Each believer is responsible for his or her own fulfillment. Our own volition and consistent metabolizing of doctrine. All of this is simply epignôsis in our right lobe. Metabolizing process simply helps us to advance. Paul will give us an incredible illustration of those last 4 floors. The edification complex is nothing more than epignôsis in our right lobe.

This completes vv. 9–10 and we can go to v. 11. This verse is a warning for all of us. The foundation has already been laid. The foundation is present when we believe in Christ. Themilios (θεμιλιος) [pronounced theh-ME-lee-oss], which means foundation. There is no other foundation upon which we can build. Occasionally, we sing "A Church's One Foundation" illustrates this. Growth in knowledge of our Lord and Savior. We learn about Christ, and that allows us to love Him. The doctrine is in the foundation. As we gain doctrinal and grace orientation, we have the mind of Christ. The plan of God for our life is what we should be doing and the rest all falls into place. If we fit into the plan of God and we are advancing in doctrine, we will be fulfilled. You won't keep striving for additional fulfillments. 2Peter 3:18 is the key to the edification complex:

present active indicative of δυναμαι [pronounced due-na-mie], which means to be able. With the negative, it means no one is able. It refers here to false teachers who change the focus away from Jesus Christ. These are those who make social action the thrust of some cults. When a foundation is not the gospel, Jesus Christ and Bible doctrine, they are cults. Christ should be the focus of their theology. They have no chance of building an edification complex, even though some are believers. A light bulb must go on in their minds. We have the capability of constructing the edification complex. That is our own responsibility; not Bobby's. He can only build his own structure.

Aorist active infinitive of τιθειμι, which means to place, to lay; it contemplates the action as a whole. You can only build the edification complex on the foundation which is already laid. This foundation is available to any believer; we are standing on it. There is no other foundation.

1Cor. 3:11 For no one is able to lay another foundation besides the one laid, which is Jesus Christ.

This is the foundation of the edification complex. Paul said in the previous verse, I laid the foundation; and here, it says the foundation was already laid. Paul simply revealed what had already been done. He gave the gospel. The foundation was there; Paul simply revealed it. Paul has taught the truth of doctrine; he presented the gospel of Christ. The mind of Christ is already there; he simply referred to it. "Here it is; now run with it." It is the teaching of doctrine which builds the edification complex. He took the foundation that is laid and he gave us the ability to raise the ebs in our soul. That pastors which follow Paul must be very careful to present the same truth.

How Critical Is the Truth?

1. Each believer must build upon the truth.
2. The building of the edification complex from metabolized doctrine has everything to do with production of divine good, as we will see in the next 3 verses.
3. Without divine truth, there is no construction of the edification complex.
4. The failure to metabolize doctrine and to grow spiritually means only human good can be produced and rewards in heaven are lost. If we do not construct the edification complex in our soul, the best we can produce is human good, which will be burned at the Judgment Seat of Christ. The basis for rewards in heaven is divine good accomplished here. Eternal repercussions.

1Cor. 3:12–15: Take particular care in picking out your building materials. Eventually there is going to be an inspection. If you use cheap or inferior materials, you'll be found out. The inspection will be thorough and rigorous. You won't get by with a thing. If your work passes inspection, fine; if it doesn't, your part of the building will be torn out and started over. But you won't be torn out; you'll survive--but just barely. Our labor will become evident; each man's work will become evident for the day; there is much more than a 24 hour period. It begins with the rapture seat of Christ and concludes with the Judgment Seat of Christ. We will all be present in resurrection bodies. Our work will become evident; we will show it. It will be revealed with first. Evaluated and revealed with fire. The fire itself will test the quality of each man's work. Our evaluation involves a test by fire. This is a verse where one demonination takes purgatory. None of us will go through a purgatory. We will see all of our good deeds dumped into a fire. Whatever remains will be permanent. Obviously, some materials are burned in a fire; and other things are not (gold, silver and precious stones). These are descriptions of divine good with intrinsic and eternal value. This is what survives and that is what is rewardable. Human good/works will not lost; it is worthless. It will be burned up forever. Whatever is done in the energy of the flesh will not survive. Good deeds will not be look on with favor by God. Maybe, before doing some act, we will rebound first; so that it is rewardable.

1Corinthians 3:12

Lesson #95

Wednesday 1/12/2005

Volume 2 of the children's Bible study. What is God like?

We have completed the edification complex study. Oikodomeō will be mentioned several times still in this chapter. Paul obviously did not use the words edification complex, but he did know what a soul is.

Φαμιλιος = foundation. The foundation is available to all of us and there is no other foundation for the church. The Corinthians have gone off in a variety of directions and they have made a mockery of the church. Paul is reminding them again upon what foundation they build.

Δυναμαι = is able to, is able, is capable. Ουδεις = no one; a negation? No one is able to lay another foundation other than that which was laid. People attempt to change the focus of Christianity constantly, which is of course Jesus Christ. How is the foundation undermined? How is it cracked? How do Christians, well meaning ones as well, crack this foundation.

Methods by Which the Foundation is Changed

1. Crusader arrogance; social reconstruction. An attempt by man to change man's nature. Social activism. Only the Holy Spirit and the power of God can make these changes in a person. As believers, we can still be just as lousy as anyone else on earth. We can put some controls over the old sin nature by believing in Jesus Christ and being filled with the Holy Spirit; but the old sin nature is always there. Man thinks he can legislate social programs to fix the old sin nature.
2. Serving humanity is another way. There is a major service going on today; tsunami relief. This does not mean that there is anything wrong with it. Humanitarian relief is often a way to present the gospel. Some of the worst terrorist groups are found in Indonesia. We serve humanity by serving the Lord Jesus Christ. Spreading the gospel is the greatest service that can be done. Keeping them alive long enough to hear the gospel is important as well. It is easy to lose sight of the issues when such things occur. However, this is the perfect opportunity to present the gospel to these people. Humanitarianism is not the end all; it is a means. Spreading the gospel is the end. Divine good is the approach that we should take. You serve man by serving Jesus Christ. That has the only real and lasting impact on this world.

3. A false system of works and legalism rather than doctrine. This is an everyday problem for all of us. It is easy to fall into legalism rather than doctrine and grace. There was a Sarah who was a self appointed governor of the church's morals. She was feared and intimidated enough to get by with it. George was a new believer there and she saw his truck parked by the only liquor store. She spread the gossip. He didn't say anything. But he later parked his car in front of her house all night. Obviously a fictitious example.

Grace orientation and doctrinal orientation puts you in touch with the thinking of Christ. Christ had the prototype edification complex and we have the operational one. We have what He had; the filling of the Holy Spirit and the ability to build an edification complex.

Our spiritual life should be our number one focus; this should keep us focused on grace. We are attacked in this area every single day. There are Sarah's in churches everywhere.

Aorist active indicative of  $\tau\theta\epsilon\mu\iota$  = to place, to lay. Ingressive aorist which contemplates the whole action of laying the foundation, but focuses on the beginning. This foundation was laid in the past on the cross. The past was actually the beginning of the foundation. It began in the past, but the effects continue forever. The mind of Christ will be with us forever. It will be taken with us. Occupation with Christ lasts forever. It cannot be replaced by any other concern in life. There is no more laying of a foundation. The foundation is our key for construction. Believers can only build their edification complex on the foundation which has already been laid. The Corinthians had no spiritual advance; Paul told them what the edification complex was and how to do it. Paul was telling them what they needed to do. He is reminding them to start with the mind of Christ and to build upon it. Here is what you have and here is what you ought to be doing. The Corinthians were building a house of cards all over. There is no substitute for building upon the foundation of Christ. Without divine truth, there is no construction of the edification complex. The true focus of Christianity will be lost. The filling of the Holy Spirit links the foundation with every other floor. Divine good is produced only in the filling of the Holy Spirit. But more and more is produced as you go up the ladder of the growth. Without the edification complex, only human good can be produced. Any rewards that are found in heaven will be lost. We must build upon the foundation of Jesus Christ, otherwise everything will be lost.

1Cor. 3:11 For no one is able to lay another foundation besides the one laid, which is Jesus Christ.

What we know about rewards will pay off in these next few verses. Rewards and the edification complex is what we have been studying. There are material options. Our construction will become evident. God will inspect our building. As your edification complex is build, so your Christian service escalates. We will all be present at the evaluation seat of Christ. What we have produced will be revealed by fire. The fire will test the quality of each man's work. We are going to be evaluated. Fire will test the quality of each man's work. None of this has anything to do with the fire of hell. The only fire that we will face is this one, which will destroy human good, but not us.

1Cor. 3:12 Now if anyone builds on this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw,

Everything that we have done from the moment of salvation will be dumped into the bonfire. Wood, hay and straw represent our human good; gold, silver and precious stones represent the divine good which we produce. Wood, hay and straw will not survive in a fire.

1Cor. 3:13 the work of each will become evident, for the Day will make [it] clear, because it is revealed in fire, and the work of each, the fire will prove what kind it is.

The key to this next verse is remains. Whatever is left after the fire consumes the wood, hay and stubble. A little bit of logic must be used here. What remains will be the gold, silver and precious stones, because these things have inherent value. Eternal value versus temporal value. Gold, silver and precious stones have intrinsic and eternal value. The greater your edification complex, the great the value of the divine good which you produce. These things last and are eternal. What we produce under our own ability is consumed. It will not go into eternity.

Edification Complex and Rewards

1. The construction of the edification complex takes place with the filling of the Holy Spirit through epistemological rehabilitation.
2. In v. 12, Paul declares the material for construction of the edification complex.
3. What is constructed is gold, silver and precious stones. These materials bring reward and the proper result.
4. When the right materials are used, the building is permanent and reflects advance in the spiritual life.
5. But, any structure build with wood, hay and straw is never a permanent structure. It is not fireproof and it will not last.
6. Gold, silver and precious stones are analogous to using the correct materials to build the edification complex. In the process of building, we build a reservoir of divine good to complete it. This reservoir is rewardable.

This is how we will be rewarded in heaven. This is how our good deeds will be rewarded in heaven. Construct, produce and get rewarded. Paul tells these people these things because he wants these people to get with it.

Back to v. 12.  $\epsilon\iota$  = if. We do not have any idea exactly how these words were pronounced exactly. These words tells us something about the meaning of this verse. Present active indicative of the verb  $\epsilon\pi\epsilon\kappa\omicron\delta\omicron\mu\epsilon\omega$  = to build, to build up. The indicative mood and  $\epsilon\iota$  gives us a 1st class condition; if and it is true. Paul assumes the reality of his statement. It is a protosis which is assumed to be true. This premise is taken as true. The 1st class condition takes this as a statement of fact. We will have to have a concluding statement. There must be an apodosis which is also is a statement of accurate fact and must take place. The result is, each man's work will become evident. These works will become evident. The result of our building will be observable. Nobody can see a soul; so the edification complex cannot be seen. We don't know what it looks like; we never will. What we can see is the observable results, which is Christian service; divine good and/or human good. We are looking at if someone produces something. Now, some take this to the conclusion that if you don't produce anything, that you are not saved. We are saved if we believe in Jesus Christ. That is all there is to salvation. The foundation is Christ and the cross. People forget this. The fruit inspector theory; if you are a believer, then you will bear fruit. There must be some outward observable sign that you are a believer; you must show some evidence of your salvation. They believe that this is inevitable. Believers do end up as soulish men. There are believers who produce nothing. Some are actually very evil after salvation. Don't ever get hoodwinked by the fruit inspection theory. These people depend upon a passage in James for this.

1Cor. 3:12 Now if anyone builds on this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw,

1Corinthians 3:12

Lesson #96

Thursday 1/13/2005

Phone problems. Listening as an mp3 file. Berachah went through a pastor search. Bobby was given a perfect pastor outline. All the qualities of the perfect pastor. He teaches 12 minutes. Bob used to open up the church; but he gave Roger Lewis the keys after knowing him for 3 days, and he has opened up the doors for 50 years.

Three Introductory Points

1. The continuing construction of the edification complex increases our capability for producing divine good.
2. It increases the rewards that we will get in heaven.
3. Simple formula: edification complex construction then divine good production and then reward presentation.

These three things are inextricably linked: ecs, divine good, and rewards. A building can have an outward manifestation of beauty. Bobby likes the skyline of Houston. Pleasing to look at and enjoyable to see. They also have a look of durability about them. We are stable and solid when have an edification complex in our souls. What is the result of that building.

Εποικοδομew = edication complex of the soul. We have a 1st class condition here. There is a protosis and an apodosis. We have a statement of fact in a conditional sense. If the protosis is true, then the conclusion will also be true. The condition is, we must do some construction. If we begin to build the edification complex, the results will be observable and evident in our life. It is inevitable.

Christian Service, Human Good, Divine Good and the Edification complex

If we build an edification complex, our works will be evident.

1. If we have expressed faith alone in Christ alone, then we are eternally saved.
2. Christian production is not evidence of our regeneration ever. It does not work that way. It is evidence of our edification complex.
3. Christian service is evidenced only of an edification complex under construction.
4. Believers do end up as fleshly men; but they will still spend eternity in heaven, but without rewards.
5. Also recall that human good is not a result of the construction of the edification complex. When we produce good deeds in our life as a believer, there is human good and divine good. The filling of the Holy Spirit is the criterion for producing divine good. Human good can never be the result of the edification complex.
6. So many believers do good deeds, and they will be consumed at the end of time.
7. Human good is not good if it distracts us from Bible doctrine. When we get wrapped up in it, it will eventually take us away. It is so much easier to produce divine good. It is from the sin nature that human good is produced. As the edification complex is constructed, you begin to see a facade of the building, which is often an attractive looking adornment. The edification complex is a building under construction; just don't confuse the outward facade with the inward reality of our salvation. Our edification complex will have an outward facade. It is our service for the Lord.

Paul will mention materials which are used in construction and suggest some materials which are beautiful and long lasting and others which are not. Paul would have seen all of the wonderful buildings of Rome. Here, we could be speaking of a facade of marble or granite. Many of these ancient buildings were trimmed in gold and silver. Many had those sorts of materials involved. Beautiful to look at and well-constructed. Of course, they did not put beautiful materials onto mud huts. Just on well-constructed buildings.

The Barbarians stripped all of the facades off the buildings and the precious metals as well. This was done in the 4th century A.D. What we see is just the stucco like exterior, what was left behind. They were truly spectacular when they were built.

Exterior Construction Materials for Buildings

1. Gold, silver and precious stones presents the things used in the facade.
2. The more gorgeous the exterior, the greater the value of the building.
3. Our facade represents our spiritual facade of our advance. They become the outworking of our advance.

4. Divine good is the outward manifestation of the well-constructed and invaluable edification complex.
5. Conversely, wood, hay and straw are poor for long-term construction.
6. Wood can look very nice; however, wood is perishable. It can look great, but it will not last for any amount of time. Ordinary houses in the ancient world were made out of wood, hay and straw. 31 minutes

1Cor. 3:12 Now if anyone builds on this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw,

1Cor. 3:13 the work of each will become evident, for the Day will make [it] clear, because it is revealed in fire, and the work of each, the fire will prove what kind it is.

1Cor. 3:14 If the work of anyone remains which he built on [it], he will receive a reward.

1Corinthians 3:12

Lesson #97

Sunday 1/16/2005

Communion Sunday.

The edification complex is simply an illustration of spiritual growth. Gap is the doctrine in our soul necessary to construct the edification complex. Floors 5–8 are the practical floors. Sharing the happiness of God, mastery of the details of life, impersonal love for man and personal love for God.

We can build with gold, silver and precious stones; or with wood, hay and stubble. This structure is the outermost manifestation of the edification complex. Paul had been in Athens shortly before Corinth. He certainly saw the Parthenon and other great buildings in Athens; as well as some marvelous buildings in Corinth. He would have seen buildings with marble and granite facing, and trimmed with gold and silver and precious stones. Lettering and other writing was often done in gold leaf. Gold, silver and precious stones would have been used on the facade of the buildings. Such materials would not be used on lesser buildings. The barbarians carried off the veneer of many of these buildings in the 4th century A.D.; and left a crumbling stucco appearance.

The outward facade of our edification complex would be gold, silver and precious stones, representing divine good. If gold, silver and precious stones represent divine good; wood, hay and straw would therefore represent human good. Wood does have a certain value; and it can retain a value, but it is still perishable. Fire and humidity destroys the wood. Wood is used for the supports and the doors; hay was mixed with mud and used for the walls; straw was used for the roof. These buildings could be destroyed by floods or heavy rains; and whole towns could be destroyed by fire. These houses could be made to look wonderful, and wood looks great; but it is perishable, and its value is only to mankind, and it is transitory. Wood, hay and straw has no value to God; it is not eternal. It is analogous the human good. Gold will change its shape in a fire; but it retains its value. Wood in a fire loses its value completely. Gold cannot be devalued, even by fire. It still retains its intrinsic value.

We all perform deeds; not necessarily evil deeds, but good deeds. The personal responsibility for our lives is on us. We are responsible for what we do and we will be held accountable. What we do in this life will be evident.

1Cor. 3:12 Now if anyone builds on this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw, δηλω = will become apparent, will become clear, will become well-known. These works will be our works and well-known or revealed at the Judgment Seat of Christ. The facade is removed and thrown into a fire. Does it last or is it consumed? That is what will be revealed. The fire will tell. That is the test.

The day of the Judgment Seat of Christ might take 7 years, and it takes place before the Lord Jesus Christ. Rom. 14:10. 2Cor. 5:10: For it is necessary [for] all of us to appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each one shall receive the things [done] through the body, according to the [things] which he did, whether good or wicked. Some people think that deeds here refers to sins. However, this is πρασσω = what is done, what is accomplished. What someone has accomplished in the body, whether good (divine good) or bad (human good). Human good is called bad; it is not criminality; it is not sin. Human good is production which is produced from the area of strength of the old sin nature. As we do human good on this earth, no one calls it bad. However, this is how God sees it. Divine good is produced only under the resources of God. As a believer in Jesus Christ, we can construct using gold, silver and precious stones; or we can build using wood, hay and straw. We will be in heaven, without sorrow, tears or death; but we may or may not have anything else with us. We glorify God in the flesh—well, we are left here for that reason. Nothing wrong with human good deeds; just don't think that God will preserve them.

1Corinthians 3:13

Lesson #98

Sunday2 1/16/2005

2Cor. 5:10: For it is necessary [for] all of us to appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each one shall receive the things [done] through the body, according to the [things] which he did, whether good or wicked. Our works will be tested by the great bonfire of the Judgment Seat of Christ. This day on which we are evaluated (not a 24 hour period); this is not a day of judgment for our sins. Sins will not be judged. Sins have already been judged in Jesus Christ. The sins of the believer and the sins of the unbeliever will never be mentioned again.

Personal Sins and the Cross

1. Christ died for all of our sins on the cross. For all of the sins that we have committed, all of them were judged on the cross.
2. Sins are no longer an issue in salvation; therefore, they are no longer an issue in the final judgment. The only difference between us and the unbeliever is that we have believed in Jesus Christ.
3. The unbeliever faces the Great White Throne Judgement.
4. The indictment is the works of the unbeliever; not their sins. His works are not good enough for God.
5. No one can reject the grace of God and live forever. He will have only his works to stand upon. He might say, "I am a good person; God will not send a good person to hell." The hell he won't.
6. There is no excuse for rejecting the Lord Jesus Christ. God is a God of perfect righteousness and justice. The love of God was expressed when Jesus Christ hung on the cross and paid the penalty for our sin—that is the greatest love which has ever existed. Unbelievers do not realize that God will condemn them for their good deeds.
7. No unbeliever possesses the righteousness of God imputed at the moment of salvation. We cannot produce enough good deeds to be righteous in the eyes of God.
8. Perfect righteousness is the only righteousness which can satisfy the righteousness of God.
9. God cannot accept the righteousness done in the old sin nature.
10. The justice of God will not accept the righteousness of man. The end will be eternity in hell. All believers should have a special desire to keep unbelievers from hell.
11. It is the unbeliever's works which he substitutes for the works of Christ which condemns him. The very human good that he relies upon will condemn him. There is no substitution for faith in Christ.

What about the sins of the believer? The sins of the believer will not be named at the Bama Seat of Christ.

Sins and the Believer

1. All those sins will be blotted out at the cross.
2. All the sins that we committed between birth and salvation are forgiven at regeneration.
3. Post-salvation sins are forgiven by rebound.
4. What about dying and not rebounding at death? Any sins not confessed before we die do not negate salvation given by God. God cannot rescind that salvation which He has given to us. These sins which we may or may not confess before we die. These are not mortal sins which are not absolved before we die. Christ paid the penalty already. These sins are not paid for twice; and Jesus Christ paid for all of our sins.

5. Unconfessed sins still fall under the category of blotted out. There will be repercussions in our life; but it ends right there. No discipline for our sins at the Judgment Seat of Christ. There will be no penance. That is an adulteration of the grace of God. What we produce as a believer is an issue. V. 13: each man's work will be evaluated.

Present passive indicative of αποκαλυπτω = to be revealed, to be disclosed, to be uncovered. A future event is so certain that it may be spoken of as already being here. It is a statement of fact. The verb is translated to be disclosed. A very common use of the present tense for a future event. What will happen in the future is a certainty. The subject receives the action of the verb—the subject could be εργον = work; or ἡμερα = the day. Each man's work will be disclosed, or the day is disclosed. The grammar gives us the answer, as ἡμερα is in the nominative case.

Ev πυρ = by means of fire. The day is disclosed by means of fire. It would seem like works would be disclosed by fire.

Why Paul Used Day as the Subject

1. Fire is used for judgment.
2. The Day of the Lord runs from the rapture to the second coming. It is when the Judgment Seat of Christ takes place.
3. So it is the Day of the Lord which will be disclosed or uncovered. The Day of the Lord is revealed as a day of judgment.
4. This is a passage for believers and not unbelievers. Believers are evaluated here. This does not refer to unbelievers.
5. This is a reference to the Judgment Seat of Christ which we will participate in. We know we will be there, we know the bonfire will be going, and that we will be lined up.
6. This is the day that the nature of the works will be revealed. All of our works will be revealed in public. We will all be there. There might be some red faces there. Nothing more.
7. In other words, the day is to be revealed by means of fire connotes that the Day of the Lord, the Judgment Seat of Christ, will be a time period of judgment or evaluation of our works. Works are still a part of what are revealed. This is the bottom line.

1Cor. 3:13a the work of each will become evident, for the Day will make [it] clear, because it [the day] is revealed in fire,...

The fire itself is the element by which this takes place. Most of the time we envision this as facing the Lord. Our divine good deeds will be preserved; the others will be burned. It is a day of evaluation, because it is a day of fire.

Future active indicative of δοκιμάζω = to test for approval or disapproval. The Greek language is very precise; it is like a mathematical problem. There is a single right answer. God chose Hebrew and Greek because they are so precise languages. The bama seat will be a final examination. There is no cramming for that judgment. You cannot do that here. This is a day by day situation. Most people don't learn day by day in a class; they try to cram it all at the end. Cannot cram for the Judgment Seat of Christ. You cannot expect to get in a bunch of good works right before you die. The idea for purgatory is not involved in this word πύρ. There will be a judgment for believers, but it is of our deeds. There is no punishment or going anywhere due to this judgment; only a reward is spoken of (or lack thereof). There are different grades of rewards as well. There are different crowns and different speeches. There are many rewards and they are based upon this evaluation of our works.

Accusative singular neuter of ὅποιος = quality. This is what will be tested; this is the direct object. Here, it is the quality of each man's work. Fire reveals; we don't have to think of it as being painful.

1Cor. 3:13b ...and the work of each, the fire will prove what kind it is.

Now we are looking at work which we have done. This is a building which we have constructed. This is the result of the construction of our edification complex. As we build the edification complex, we add a facade upon this building.

1Cor. 3:14 If the work of anyone remains which he built on [it], he will receive a reward.

1Corinthians 3:13

Lesson #99

Wednesday 1/19/2005

We're still in v. 13? We'll get into some old doctrines with a few new wrinkles.

Each man's work will become apparent, because the fire itself will test the quality of each man's work; if any man's work remains which he built upon [it], he will receive a reward (1Cor. 3:13–14). Every believer will be there at the Judgment Seat of Christ. We will, at that moment, be face to face with the Lord, and receive our evaluation. There is the sobering aspect of why we are here and what we should accomplish. God has prepared a place for us in heaven.

Review of Points

1. Fire is often used in Scripture as a reference to testing, evaluation, judgment.
2. Day refers to the Day of the Lord, which begins immediately after the rapture of the church. This is an eschatological day; it is future from now.
3. The Day of the Lord is to be uncovered as a day of judgement by means of fire.
4. This passage is addressed to the Corinthian church; and it is therefore addressed to believers, as unbelievers will be judged at the second advent of Christ; not at the rapture. The unbelievers will never see heaven. They will be evaluated at the second advent.

5. Therefore the judgment spoken of here cannot be the great white throne judgment, which is one we will never see it. It will be horrible.
6. It is a reference to the judgment seat or the bama seat of Christ.
7. That is the day when the nature of the works of every believer will be evaluated. That is a lot of deeds.
8. In other words, the day is to be revealed by means of fire connotes that the day of the Lord, the Judgment Seat of Christ, will be a time period of judgment or evaluation of our lifetime of works.

A time of evaluation and a means of evaluation. The evaluation is whether it is divine good or human good. The quality is determined by whether or not the works are accomplished under the control of the human spirit or the old sin nature. There is a certain standard for the believer's works. Human good counts for nothing in the eyes of God.

The fire is a means of discovery; it will reveal the gold, silver and precious stones owned by us as a believer; because we have produced them. The wood hay and straw will be ashes. The work of an assayer. He tests ore to find if there are any precious metals in that ore. He used to put fire to the ore to see what is found in the rock. The valuable materials is separated from the worthless rock. The rock is nothing but human good which disappears in the fire. Only the gold, silver and precious stone remains. They have eternal value and they are rewarded by God.

Aorist active indicative, 3rd person singular of εποκοιδιμew = to build. Then the relative pronoun ho; and this means which he has built. The outside, or the facade, is our Christian production. We build a superstructure. As we build the floors, we build the facade of the building, which is the outward manifestation of what the building is. The facade on our edification complex is our works that we produce. What we do is what is being evaluated.

Paul likes the 1st class condition. He assumes the reality of his statements. After the test of fire, he has if any works remain. There must be a fire; there must be an evaluation; when any works pass the test of fire, they do retain their value. That is a statement of reality. There is a certain element of condition in this statement.

Conditions Related to Works

1. There is a certain condition on which the works pass the test.
2. The works must be of permanent construction.
3. Only materials which can withstand the test of fire can be used.
4. If that is true, the works will be proven to have intrinsic value that cannot be lost.

When a building catches fire, the perishable materials are consumed; like the wood. Today, what remains are the steel girders. The nonperishable materials remain, and these represent divine good.

Principles:

1. If the materials used are permanent, that means they stand the test of the day of evaluation. The analogy is gold, silver and precious stone. They may lose their strength, but never their value. No matter what shape it takes, the gold still has the same value per ounce.
2. Human good can no more stand the test of the day than wood, hay and straw stand fire.
3. All that is left standing after the fire is gold, silver and precious stones. The World Trade Center had a few girders remaining after the devastation, which is like most believers at the Judgment Seat of Christ. But that is our problem, not Bobby's.
4. Gold, silver and precious stones represent divine good done under the filling of the Holy Spirit and they will be rewarded.
5. Only that work which glorifies God will remain after the fire and receive recognition by Him. What do I need to do in order to glorify God? We can do anything which involves the filling of the Holy Spirit. That is His grace gift to all of us. Nothing produced under the control of the old sin nature has any value at all. Don't forget spiritual advance.

When we construct the edification complex, we also construct the facade of divine good. The more we construct, the more divine good which is put on the facade. God will reveal everything that is contrary to divine good. God will reveal all the good.

Human Good

1. Human good is better than evil; but it will still be lost time in the spiritual life. What glorifies God is permanent; what does not is burned.
2. Had we remained with the Holy Spirit and produced divine good, He would have rewarded us. If we do not fulfill these conditions, we have wasted time. God has only given us so many days. Let's say you have 1900 days as a believer; those days will determine our rewards in eternity. A short time to determine what occurs for a very long time. There is no mistaking how important that is. It is based on our volition.
3. We cannot be rewarded when our works do not please Him. If God is not pleased, He is not going to reward us.
4. He will burn up our human good. Those deeds will never be heard of again for all eternity. They will be gone; all these wonderful deeds will be gone.

1Cor. 3:14 If the work of anyone remains which he built on [it], he will receive a reward.

If our work is burned up, we will suffer loss; but even though we might suffer loss, we will be saved.  $\Sigma\omega\zeta\omega$  = to save, to preserve, to deliver. This is the flip side of v. 14. Paul moves from the divine good in v. 14 to human good in v. 15. This verse is a warning of the futility of human good in the light of eternity. There is a comforting bright side to this. Loss of rewards never entails loss of salvation. You may do not one thing of divine good, and you will still be saved.

We have another 1st class condition. If + the indicative. It is a statement of reality with a condition. When a believer loses his human good in a fire, he does suffer loss. Why does God want to destroy all of these good deeds? They do have value in our temporal life. Good deeds are helpful to charity. We have an obligation. Sometimes these deeds open doors and have value in witnessing; when you have compassion and show care for others. When we have the opportunity to show compassion for someone, this may open the door to witnessing. The very thing that we see as very important is worthless if it is not divine good. Witnessing done in the power of the Spirit is divine good. However, it is human good, if we are not filled with the Holy Spirit. God is absolute; it is good or bad; it is sinful or not. Divine good is the only thing which counts.

The power of the Holy Spirit is worth anything we can do. Why not do it this way. Anything produced by the sin nature cannot exist in eternity; no matter what it is. If we are out of fellowship, whatever we do, whatever we produce, is eliminated in eternity. That is just temporal human good. Good deeds from the sin nature's area of strength are not eternal and not rewardable. If they are not left standing after the fire, they are nothing.

The apodosis is a contrast to the protosis. The protosis deals with that which is lost at the Judgment Seat of Christ. This is human good and rewards consumed by the divine assayer's fire.  $\text{Αυτος} + \delta\epsilon = \textit{but he}$ . This refers specifically to the believer at the bama seat. Our deeds have been evaluated by fire. They are consumed or they remain. Conversely, what remains will be rewarded. A completely different comparison. Human good is here, but divine good is not. What is retained in v. 15 is not divine good. We have what is perishable and what is imperishable, to an entirely different subject. These people are producing perishable works. Many are going to read this and determine that they are going to die in this fire. Paul is telling them, "You will lose the reward; but you will be okay." The future active indicative of  $\sigma\omega\zeta\omega = \textit{shall be saved, shall be preserved, will be delivered}$ . We are saved forever at the moment of our faith in Jesus Christ; but we find this word in the future tense. It sounds like maybe there is a potential problem. Here, we are speaking of salvation is ultimate sanctification; it is the final stage of eternal salvation. We are saved by faith alone in Christ alone. Ultimate sanctification is the final stage of salvation; but there is nothing which can trip us up. It is the end of our life leading into eternity. The fact that we are saved means that we will be ultimately sanctified. The Doctrine of Ultimate Sanctification is up for tomorrow.

1Corinthians 3:15

Lesson #100

Thursday 1/20/2005

We should completely understand what it means for our works to be burned up. However, we are going to spend a great deal of time on the second half of this verse.

Work Being Burned Up

1. Producing human good is futile in the light of eternity.

2. Human good has absolutely no standing with God.
3. Human good is not produced under the control of the Holy Spirit as part of the facade of the edification complex. As we construct the edification complex, we have a facade on the outside; our divine good production. Human good is not produced when we are filled with God the Holy Spirit.
4. Human good is not produced using the grace resources provided by God; therefore, human good is not divinely sanctioned. The dichotomy between good and good. It is hard to understand why God would not like good; but it is not up to His standards.
5. Human good deeds are not glorifying to God; but to the person who does them. That is the nature of human good. The person who does human good does not use the resources that God has given him. Human good is not produced under the control of the Holy Spirit; so it is therefore produced under the control of the old sin nature. His good deeds can only be produced from the strength of the old sin nature. The unbeliever cannot produce divine good. Whatever the unbeliever can do is not acceptable to God. That good has no standing with God. All that is available is faith alone in Christ alone. The unbeliever's works do not and cannot save him. The human good is indicted at the Great White Throne. Since a person cannot produce divine good, then he must fall back on human good at the Great White Throne. Eph. 2:8–9. The unbeliever cannot be saved by his works; no one can. Anything produced by the old sin nature is offensive to God. It carries no value in eternity.

Why is this Statement True

1. Not all deeds that come from the old sin nature are sinful.
2. Deeds which come from the area of strength of the old sin nature are not necessarily sinful. You can help someone in need, you can give money, you can do acts of kindness.
3. These good deeds from the area of strength do not violate God's standards, so they are not inherently sinful.
4. They do not meet God's standards either.
5. When the believer produces good deeds, they are still unacceptable to God.
6. Sin is not the issue.
7. God cannot sanction any deeds under the control of the old sin nature. They will be burned at the bonfire of the bama seat.
8. Wood, hay and straw being burned up describe this.
9. Jesus Christ died for sins; not for human good.

Epyros = works, deeds. This is not sin.

1Cor. 3:15a If the work of anyone will be burned up,...

The apodosis is what follows the 1st class condition. There will be works which are burned up. There are two words that begin. Αυτος δε = but he himself. This distinguishes what is lost and what remains. The apodosis tells us what is retained, which is salvation. Then we have the future active indicative of the verb σωζω = to save, to deliver, to rescue. The previous verb (future passive indicative) : ζημιω = to suffer loss. There is the contrast of the loss of rewards and the impossibility of losing our eternal salvation. The believer can never lose his salvation. Our salvation is settled forever when we believe; when we express faith alone in Christ alone, it is a done deal. The Corinthians were all messed up, but they were believers. Paul never says, "You backsliding unbelievers; you need to be saved again." But it does say, "He will be saved, yet as through fire." Why a future tense if salvation is a done deal? The future tense of σωζω refers to ultimate sanctification. It does not refer to the moment that we expressed faith in Christ. There is the moment of salvation when we are positionally sanctified. How, at some point, we will reach eternity in different states.

Ultimate Sanctification

1. If the believer has eternal life at his belief, then ultimate sanctification is guaranteed. This is why Paul can say, "He will be saved, yet as through fire."
2. The believer is ultimately sanctified for eternity by or when he is in possession of a resurrection body.
3. Ultimate sanctification is the state of being without a sin nature and being spotless or blameless before God. We are positionally free at this time. But our cell structure will be changed at ultimate sanctification and we will be truly free.
4. Ultimate sanctification corporately sets apart the body of Christ as the bride of Christ.
5. What is the body of Christ? All church age believers on earth. That includes us.
6. The bride of Christ is the Biblical designation for the Church Age believers are in heaven in our resurrection bodies.
7. The bride refers to every Church Age believer's future, eternal uniting with Christ after the rapture. We will all be brides to Christ.
8. Remember, we are united with Christ as salvation. Then we share everything He is and everything that He has. Ultimate sanctification is the consummation of our salvation. Ultimate sanctification consummates that uniting. We are united positionally with the groom prior to marriage. We are united with Christ right now.
9. When the body of Christ is completed, the rapture takes the people to heaven. Some are concerned about when and where the rapture is. No one knows when it will occur. When the last person believes in Christ, he is united forever with Christ.
10. At the Judgment Seat of Christ, we achieve ultimate sanctification.
11. We will be presented spotless as the bride of Christ
12. Ultimate sanctification is us as the bride of Christ with no old sin nature.

Passive voice means that God produced the action. We receive it because God provides it for us. Indicative mood is the reality of the believers's deliverance all the way to ultimate sanctification.

Σωζω = to save; and it can be used in many ways. The state of eternal salvation. It can also be used as a progressive way as well. This is where some people become confused (Philip. 2:12: work out your own salvation). This does not refer to a salvation that can be lost. If you have to work it out, that does not mean it can be lost.

Experiential Sanctification is progressive. This is spiritual advance. That is working out our own salvation. We become sanctified in the sense that we become more and more mature. This stops when we are ultimately sanctified. We work out our own salvation by advancing to the high ground. This is the confirmation of our personal salvation. We can be assured of salvation when we grow. We cannot be ultimately sanctified unless we are saved in the past. We cannot will be saved unless we are already saved. At the moment of faith in Christ, we can be assure that we are eternally sanctified. Many Christian denominations do not believe in salvation by faith alone. Some think that faith gets you in the door, but you can step out again. Rick Hughes gets his biggest problems from church groups who do not believe in eternal security.

Unless you continue to be good, and to be like christ, and you don't drink and you don't smoke; and this keeps you saved. That is false and wrong and is just used to keep people in line. It ties up these believers in knots. They decide it is hopeless and they wander off and just do whatever.

Eternal Security

1. Immutable God cannot cancel the 39 absolutes that He gives every believer at the moment of salvation without violating His Own Essence.
2. Of these 39 absolutes, one of them is eternal life. If 38 cannot be revoked, then eternal life cannot be revoked either. If the Holy Spirit creates a human spirit in us, then we have eternal life.
3. God cannot cancel our eternal life; what He gives, He cannot take back. His life so that we are qualified to live with Him forever. If we did good deeds for every moment of our lives from now until we die, that would not qualify us to live with Jesus Christ. If we have believed in Christ, we have a ticket to ride. You believe in Christ, we grow, we die, and we live with Christ forever.
4. This eternal security does not mean that we are going to succeed in the spiritual life. We must work out our salvation. It depends entirely upon our attitude toward Bible doctrine and building our edification complex. God saves us eternally, but our volition is the key to our advance. God seals up our eternity; we work out our salvation from day to day. We are not out there on our own; God has given us what it takes to do that. Paul is covering a lot of great theology here. Some of this is basic theology in Corinthians, but that is what they need. He will use what he teaching here and use it in many practical ways. This is the ground work for understanding how he corrects those who need correction.

5. Our success, our success or failure, our virtue, etc. is not what our relationship depends upon. If we are not eternally secure, the God's integrity is intact.
6. If we are not eternally secure, then God is not immutable. He has therefore promised something to us that He cannot come through with. Integrity is the basis for our eternal relationship with Him. We don't have eternal security without God's integrity.
7. Eternal security is an unbreakable relationship with a perfect God. We stand on His grace, not on our merit.
8. Neither God, nor an angel, nor can any person break up our relationship with God. Rom. 8:28. Bobby discussed with a professor. "I know nothing can take us out of the hand of God, but we can do it ourselves." the professor said. How can we have eternal security? That means, that there is something that we can do to make ourselves so repugnant to God that God will just have to chunk us out. There is nothing that we can do. If there is something we can do to lose our salvation, then there is something that we must do (or not do to maintain or to retain our salvation—that is works). We can all produce tons of human good and we can produce tons of sins. But our human good does not disqualify us from eternal life. James 2:14 next time.

1Cor. 3:15b ...but he himself will be saved, yet so as through fire.

1Corinthians 3:15

Lesson #101

Sunday1 1/23/2005

There are some basic but important doctrines found in v. 15.

1Cor. 3:15a If the work of anyone will be burned up,...

We can come to several conclusions about human good and altruism, which will be burned up at the Judgment Seat of Christ. Good works are something which believers and unbelievers can perform. The unbeliever relies upon his good works for salvation. He depends upon these many deeds of altruism to impress God. But human good works cannot gain salvation for even one person. These good works are actually the basis for the unbeliever's condemnation. Our human works will not gain the favor of God and they have no eternal consequence. These good deeds do not influence God at all. Human good is not produced under the filling of the Holy Spirit. Human good is not a part of the facade of the edification complex. An outward facade goes up when we construct the edification complex. As we build and as we mature, there is also a facade of divine good which is produced; it is the outworking of the edification complex of the soul. The dividing line between merit and no merit is the filling of the Holy Spirit. The more divine good you produce, the greater will be our rewards.

If there is no edification complex constructed, then we will not receive rewards and there is no merit. That is, if we are not filled with the Spirit. The unbeliever produces good deeds all the time from the area of strength of the old sin nature. Good deeds produced by the old sin nature are not acceptable to God. Divine good glorifies God; human good does not. Whatever glorifies God goes into eternity.

The second half of v. 15 has a lot of important soteriology in it. It is the 2nd half of a 1st class condition; and it is in contrast. The contrast is what the believer loses, by way of eternal rewards; and what he retains as per our promised salvation. We can lose rewards; but we cannot lose eternal salvation.

Future active indicative of σωζω = to save, to deliver, to preserve. Here, we are not speaking of salvation as we think of it. When we believe in Christ, our eternal future is settled. However, there is ultimate salvation, which is what we find here—being saved at some future date. Salvation did happen once in the past for anyone who believes. Ultimate sanctification is what we are speaking of here. We are set apart to Christ through the aspect of having a resurrection body.

We are new creatures in Christ. We have a regenerated spirit, which makes us new. We become positionally separated. Here, we are promised a future real resurrection body sans the old sin nature.

I often think about, but can't we sin after ultimate salvation? Sort of; but we don't. I don't have a desire to use heroin. It is unlikely I will ever make any moves to secure and take heroin. I could possibly do it; that possibility is there; but I won't. However, if I was surrounded by those who did heroin, and there was an unlimited supply, I might be more tempted. This is what sin will be to us in eternity. We will have the ability to sin, but we will have no temptation to sin and no interest in sinning. I will have less interest in sinning in eternity than I have in taking heroin right now at this time.

Eternal Security

Preface: Many Christian denominations reject this doctrine today. There is to be this constant striving for holiness, with the possibility of not quite making it into heaven. They psychologically put us in a place where we are always trying to hold onto our salvation. That is a means of manipulation; it is a matter of their control over us. "You're answerable to me," is their view. Bobby does not want to control our lives; he has enough trouble with his own. It is arrogance to think that there is something that we can do to hold onto our salvation. There is this idea that we must do something in order to deserve heaven. Living the spiritual life is between God and ourselves; living to please big brother is pure legalism.

1. Immutable God cannot cancel the 39 absolutes that He gives us at salvation. It is interesting that God cannot do something. It would be contrary to His Own character. He would violate His Own essence and immutability.
2. God is incapable of taking away what He has given us.
3. What God gives, He cannot take back. He cannot take back His righteousness; He cannot take back His eternal life. If we have His eternal righteousness, what can we do to improve on that? God's righteousness is a gift to us and He cannot take it away.

4. This imputation does not mean that we will succeed as believers in Jesus Christ.
5. Our relationship with God is not dependent upon our righteousness, our holiness; it depends upon His integrity.
6. If we are not eternal secure, God is not immutable; and His Word is flawed and His integrity is compromised.
7. Eternal security definition: this is an unbreakable relationship with the integrity of God. God will not revoke His covenant with us, regardless of what we do or fail to do. Those who produce mountains of human good will still have a resurrection body; we will reach ultimate sanctification.
8. God, angels, man and even we cannot destroy this unbreakable relationship. Rom. 8:38–39. In Christ Jesus is the phrase for being in union with Jesus Christ.
9. We do not have the power or ability to cancel our salvation, not matter how evil or sinful we become. It is outside of our power as a human being. This means that, logically speaking, that even Adolf Hitler could be saved; if he believed at some moment in Jesus Christ, he would be eternally saved.

This doctrine is a major stumbling block for those who hear it and they go to James 2:14. What [is] the advantage, my brothers [and sisters], if someone is saying he has faith but is not having works? Such faith is not able to save him, is it? There appears to be a contradiction here. How do we deal with this?

James 2:14

Lesson #102

Sunday Session 2 1/23/2005

James 2:14. What [is] the advantage, my brothers [and sisters], if someone is saying he has faith but is not having works? Such faith is not able to save him, is it?

Some people think that this means that a person without production could not have been saved in the first place. A false conversion; a head belief and not a heart belief; he never made Jesus Lord. All of these are tantamount to salvation by works. If we are saved by works, we must continue in these works; or if our security depends upon continuing our salvation by works, then we are saved by works.

James 2:14 seems to say three things:

1. Faith is not good enough for salvation, works are required.
2. You can lose your salvation if you do not produce works.
3. You were never saved in the first place if you do not produce works—fruit inspection theory.

Rick Hughes runs into great resistance when it comes to this doctrine of Eternal Security. These are very strict holy people; they want to look down on everyone and decide who is saved and who is not saved.

σωζο = to save, to preserve, to deliver. This does not refer to eternal salvation; this is not salvation from the Lake of Fire. This word can be used in a number of different ways. Its use here is parallel to our passage of 1Cor. 3:15. Πιστις = faith, what is believed. Here we have the subjective use of πιστις. It is a reference to the content of what is believed. It could be faith in Christ and it could be faith in doctrine and the content of doctrine. James is exhorting divine good as the result of metabolizing doctrine. What use is it, if [3rd class condition] a man says, he has faith-doctrine [James is speaking to believers here] without works [or, he has no production]? James is speaking of production in the life of a believer? As we build the edification complex, the higher the building goes, the more we actually produce. The edification complex is the inner building of the soul. It is the result of what we do. A man is not producing divine good; he can say he has doctrine all he wants. There is an element of proof here; if we are constructing the edification complex, we are producing divine good (and vice versa). This is a rhetorical question.

We have discussed ultimate sanctification, which is guaranteed at the moment we believe in Christ. This is experiential sanctification. This compliments 1Cor. 3:15; it does not contradict Eph. 2:8–9. The idea is, if we grow spiritually, then divine good will be produced. If we produce no divine good, then we are not growing. Jam 1:21: For this reason, you* yourselves having put aside all filthiness [fig., moral uncleanness] and abundance of evil, in humility receive the implanted word [within you*], which is able to save your* souls. Receive the word implanted which is able to save your souls. Save here is experiential sanctification again. It has nothing to do with eternity. Working out our own salvation refers to spiritual advance; to experiential sanctification; to a loss of rewards if we do not advance.

10. Man's weaknesses do not cancel God's grace. God does not withhold His grace because we are pathetic. It is His integrity which guarantees our security.
11. Salvation in Jesus Christ depends upon having half of God's integrity—the righteousness of God. Our lack of production does not affect our righteousness. We don't become righteous; we are righteous. There is experiential righteousness. There is nothing we can do which will ever equal God's righteousness. We are qualified to live with God forever because we possess His righteousness. As we progress in the spiritual life, we do have God's righteousness. But we also increase our own experiential R.
12. The Scriptural approach to eternal security.
  - 1) The Greek Tense approach:
    - (1) Eph. 2:8–9: by grace you are saved [perfect passive participle]. The perfect tense means it occurs in the past with results which continue into the future.

- (2) An emphasized present state from a past action. That is the present state.
- (3) The past action is faith in Christ.
- (4) This indicates the completion of an action at the moment of faith in Christ.  $\Sigma\omega\zeta\omega$  is complete. Perfect tense emphasizes existing results.
- (5) Once saved, always saved is the simple way of putting this.
- 2) The union with Christ approach:
- (1) Rom. 8:28–29: But we know that to the ones loving God all things work together for good, to the ones being called according to [His] purpose. Because whom He foreknew, He also predestined [to be] conformed to the image of His Son, for Him to be the first-born among many brothers [and sisters].
- (2) Being in union with Christ means we share His eternal life; everything this He is and everything He has.
- (3) We share His divine righteousness. 1Cor. 1:30.
- (4) We are fellow heirs with Christ. Rom. 8:16–17.
- (5) We share His election; Eph. 2:4: He is elected to privilege, we are elected to privilege.
- (6) We share His destiny. Eph. 1:5.
- (7) We share His son-ship. We are a son of God by being in Christ. Do we think that God ever turns a son away? No matter how bad we are, God does not turn us away.
- (8) We are sanctified in Christ. 1Cor. 1:2, 30. Positionally and ultimately sanctified.
- (9) we share His priesthood Heb. 1:10–14. We do not need a priesthood like the Levitical priesthood.
- (10) We become a new spiritual species. Eph. 2:10 2Cor. 5:21.
- (11) We can never lose our union with Christ. We will follow this out all the way to being the bride of Christ.

We will cover the logical approach and the family approach next time. We are truly unworthy. God has provided for us in His grace something which is very difficult for us to imagine. Even though worms destroy this body, in our flesh we will see God.

Forwarded email asking for prayers for elections in Iraq. These convoys which carry the voting machines will be prime targets. The larger issue is terrorism; and the terrorists want to stop the vote, as that is a stated objective. This will show who is the most powerful in Iraq. No voting machines and no ballots and no elections. From Chaplain Lyle Shackelford.

Eternal security covered on Sunday. It is a disputed doctrine. We need to understand the truth of it. It is important and it is the foundation of our confidence and hope. We have the security and confidence that God will bring us into eternity.

Review of doctrine:

It is an unbreakable covenant between God and man. His grace never fails. He fails; we never do. It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed because His compassion never fail; they are renewed every morning; great is Your faithfulness. God is incapable of taking away eternal life from us; that would violate His character. God is immutable; He cannot change His mind about us. What God gives us, He cannot change and He cannot take back. If God did this, He would violate His person. Even though God is omnipotent; He cannot violate His Own person. To violate His person destroys Himself. He cannot violate His Own essence. He has given us 39 irrevocable absolutes at the moment of salvation. One of these is His perfect righteousness. We cannot earn or deserve our salvation; we cannot have a relationship with God based upon our own righteousness. Human good deeds are inadequate to impress God. God could not have fellowship with Adam in the garden even though he ate only one piece of the wrong fruit. God had to throw Adam out of the garden for one sin, which blemished a previously unblemished record. If anyone should have been worthy, it should have been Adam. Adam could have thrown himself at the mercy of the court; and even that would not have solved the problem of Adam's sin. We were all seminally present in Adam when he sinned. There is no bending for the righteousness of God. Not even the smallest sin is acceptable to God. We cannot offset our own sinfulness or our own nature with good deeds. Adam could no longer meet God's standard of righteousness. God had to throw Adam out of the garden for this one sin. We were in Adam, and we share his fallen state. How can God have fellowship with us when we are less than perfect? The only thing which qualifies us to have a relationship with God is His perfect righteousness. Being a good person is not enough to gain any favor from God. Only God's perfect righteousness is good enough to gain God's favor. God's +R is provided for us by His grace. This is basic theology. Abraham believed in God and it was imputed to him as righteousness. The foundation for our eternal security is His righteousness. We are not righteous, even at the moment of salvation. We are made righteous. It is imputed. It is given to us anyway. This is a position. 2Cor. 5:21: He made Him Who knew no sin to become sin on our behalf that we might become the righteousness of God in Him. We are righteous; we possess the righteousness of God. We cannot lose that positional righteousness. We are righteous and we will always be righteous. Because we are a believer, we are righteous.

In ultimate sanctification, we receive the resurrected body sans the old sin nature. Rom. 8:38–39: For I have been persuaded that neither death nor life nor angels nor rulers nor powers nor [things] present nor things about to be nor height nor depth nor any other created [thing] will be able to separate us from the love of God, the [one] in Christ Jesus our Lord! God's righteousness cannot bend; not even a little bit. His justice will not allow it. His immutability forbids it. Not one attribute can be compromised, or God is not God. We are eternally secure because of His character. It depends upon his integrity (or holiness). If we are not eternally secure, then there is a loophole in God's promise. If He can wiggle out of our salvation contract, then God is not perfect; and the work of Christ is in vain. Man's failure and sinfulness never abrogates God's integrity. God's integrity guarantees our security.

Scriptural Approaches to Eternal Security

1. The Greek tense approach:
  - a. Eph. 2:8–9: For by grace are you saved; it is a gift of God; not of works, lest any man boast.
  - b. Σωζω here is in the perfect tense; saved in the past with results which carry on into the future. Perfect passive participle.
  - c. It is an intensive perfect; it emphasizes the present state from a past action.
  - d. The past action is faith in Christ. Saved by grace once so that you are saved forever.
  - e. The perfect tense indicates the perfect use in the verb σωζω. It is the completion of an action. The emphasis is upon the existing result. The finished product is emphasized.
  - f. Once saved, always saved; that is what the perfect tense means.
  - g. Once we are saved, we have eternal security by this one Greek tense.
2. The Union with Christ approach (Rom. 8:38–39):
  - a. When we are saved, we are put into union with Christ; we share everything He is and everything He has.
  - b. What do we share? We share His life, which is eternal. John 5:11–13.
  - c. We share His divine righteousness. 2Cor. 5:21.
  - d. We are fellow heirs with Him. Rom. 8:16–17.
  - e. We share His election; He was elected to privilege and we are too.
  - f. We share His destiny; Jesus Christ is face to face with God; we share that with Him.
  - g. We share His son ship. John 1:12 John 3:1–2.
  - h. We are sanctified in Him. 1Cor. 1:2, 30
  - i. We share His priesthood; there is no intermediary between God and ourselves. He cleanses us of all our unrighteousness. Heb. 3:12–14.
  - j. We will rule with Him.
  - k. We become a new spiritual species. 2Cor. 5:17. We are positionall separate from the old sin nature.
  - l. We can never lose this union with Christ. We will be united with Christ as His bride.
  - m. Once we are united with Christ, nothing can take us out of that union.
3. The logical approach:
  - a. Rom. 8:31–32: What then will we say about these [things]? Since God [is] for us [or, on our side], who [is] against us? The [One] who indeed did not spare His own Son, _but_ [who] handed Him over on behalf of us all, how will He not also with Him graciously give to us all [things]?

- b. Afortiori which means with strong reason. It means if God did the greatest thing for us at salvation by not sparing His Son, but delivered Him up for all of us; then it follows logically that He can do no less than the greatest on our behalf God has done the most difficult—He sacrificed His Son.
- c. The greatest is that He saved us; so He will continue to act on our behalf after salvation.
- d. Salvation is freely given to us.

4. The family approach

- a. Gal. 3:26: we are the Sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus.
- b. To help us understand the illustration: once we are born into a human family, we cannot be unborn. We cannot be removed by unbirth from that family. Genetically we are attached to the family; and there is nothing we can do about it. We can disassociate ourselves, but we cannot be reborn into a different family. Even if we are adopted, we are still genetically a part of the other family.
- c. Likewise, once we are born into the family of God, no believer can be removed. We can renounce God; we can forget God; we can convert to some other religion or become an atheist; but we are stuck.
- d. All believers in Christ are regenerated into the same royal family of God. We are born again into the same family. That cannot be changed. That is the epitome of eternal security. When we are born-again, we are born into a royal family.
- e. As a member of a family, every family passes something down to the next generation. Something is passed down. Maybe a sofa, maybe money. But, no matter; it is still an inheritance. As a member of the family of God, we possess and eternal inheritance. 1Peter 1:4–5: into an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled and unfading, having been reserved in the heavens for you*, the ones being guarded by [the] power of God through faith for [the] salvation ready to be revealed in [the] last time;
- f. Titus 3:7: so that having been justified [or, declared righteous] by that One's grace, we shall become heirs according to [the] hope [or, confident expectation] of eternal life. This is our incredible inheritance.
- g. Our inheritance cannot be contested in probate court.
- h. We will arrive in eternity to get our inheritance.

5. The essence of God approach:

- a. Because of the immutable, eternal character of God, our salvation cannot be cancelled.
- b. Nothing can remove us from the power of God.
- c. Even though we are unfaithful and losers, we cannot lose this salvation.
- d. Jude 24: Now to the One being able to keep them from stumbling and to make [you*] stand in the presence of His glory unblemished [or, blameless], with great happiness, To [the] only wise God our Savior, [be] glory and majesty, dominion and authority, both now and to all the ages [fig., forevermore]! So be it!

- e. If God did it initially, is He not able to maintain it?
  - f. The fact that we are unfaithful and losers from time to time cannot change the essence of God. Once God gives us something, it is ours; it will never be removed.
6. The anthropomorphic approach:
- a. This ascribes to God a human characteristic or a part of the human body which God does not possess; like hands, eyes, etc. The Bible explains some divine policy to us in terms of human anatomy. We might not grasp a spiritual essence. An anthropomorphism explains divine policy in terms that we understand.
  - b. John 10:28: "And I give to them eternal life, and they shall by no means perish into the age [fig., forever]! And no one will pluck them out of My hand this refers to God the Father.
  - c. God does not have hands; He is spirit.
  - d. The policy described is His unbreakable, eternal hold on us.
  - e. We are in the Lord's grip and He will never let go. We cannot be removed. God holds us and He never lets go. God has us in the palm of His hand and He never lets go.
7. The sealing ministry of the Holy Spirit.
- a. Eph. 1:13–14:

1Corinthians 3:15

Lesson #104

Thursday 1/27/2005

Saw Hotel Rwanda this evening. Another email to Bobby, with the Abraham Lincoln ship which was sent to rescue some of the victims. Unwanted humanitarians came onto the ship. They had gone to assess the damage. We had to host them, as there were no hotels for them. Also reporters and low level VIP's. The helicopters were wasted on these other groups of people. Indonesian government wanted us out as soon as possible; some of their people are wearing Osama Bin Ladin tee-shirts while taking food and water from the US. What is going on is an attempt of human good which has been turned to evil.

Previous points are reviewed.

Eternal Security con't:

7. The sealing ministry of the Holy Spirit.
- a. Eph. 1:13–14: in whom you* also, having heard the word of the truth, the Gospel of your* salvation, in whom also having believed [or, having trusted], you* were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise, who is [the] down payment [or, guarantee] of our inheritance, with respect to the redemption of His acquired possession, to the praise of His glory! You hear the gospel message and you respond to it. When you express faith alone in Christ alone, you are then saved.

- b. We are sealed in Him. In the parenthesis tells us when we were saved.
- c. Redemption, reconciliation and sanctification are 3 of the related doctrines.
- d. We are saved to his glory. The sealing of the Holy Spirit is our guarantee of the salvation of Jesus Christ.
- e. Historically, sealing was a sign of possession. If a king put his seal on something, that signified that he owned it. Anything which God attaches His seal to belongs to Him.

Don't be hoodwinked into thinking that you won't be holy enough unless you hold onto your own salvation. How far you go is unrelated to eternal security.

The content of the divine good that we have produced will be revealed at the Judgment Seat of Christ. Those who are believers who are not filled with the Holy Spirit. If we have done nothing but produce divine good, then we have done nothing but glorify ourselves. True altruism comes from the area of strength of the old sin nature in most cases, human good is self serving and there is an element of approbation involved.

Altruism and Human Good

1. We have a higher calling than altruism: glorifying God and producing divine good.
2. Divine good occurs by using the resources of the Holy Spirit. Virtue love is our motivation. Virtue love only comes from part of the problem-solving device. Comes from the edification complex.
3. If we produce human good, we are producing nothing more than what the unbeliever produces. Producing divine good is an opportunity to serve the Lord and to glorify Him. Why not produce divine good and the altruism that results?
4. Altruism is fine. Sometimes, it is fine; it makes unbelievers sit up and take notice. Some will notice and wonder why people who are altruistic do that. Our world will never be brought together by the UN. Only the gospel brings hope to the Moslem world.

The believer who produces human good is still saved. All of his works can be burned up, but he will remain saved. He will still get ultimate sanctification. No rewards are accumulated. Even tho' the believer can lose rewards at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

Illustration; your house catches on fire. You escape with your life. Everything in your house is destroyed. All your labor that you put into this house goes up in smoke. It is Gone. There is nothing but your life; it is all we have. This is how some of us will arrive in eternity.

1Cor. 3:15 If the work of anyone will be burned up, he will suffer loss; but he himself will be saved, but so as through fire.

Bobby is going to wrap this verse up today. Any man refers to us, the believer. This all takes place at the Judgment Seat of Christ after the rapture. The loss is the wood, hay and straw. There must be something else apart from our sins being evaluated. Many think that our humanitarian efforts are going to bring them recognition and praise from God; however, that is not the case. Nothing that is human good glorifies God. Humanitarian efforts glorify man, not God. Good deeds do not glorify God; they glorify the good deed doer. There is often an eye for self-promotion or self-gratification. Always an element of personal approbation. These type of things are human good. There is nothing wrong with charity or altruism; except in the case of the believer.

Charity and the Believer

1. Simple charity is not our primary purpose as a believer.
2. We have a higher calling than pure altruistic activity.
3. We are to glorify God. God's grace, not our effort, produces divine good.
4. Divine good is the production of the believer who is filled with the Holy Spirit. Without it, there is no divine good. Proper motivation comes from God the Holy Spirit. As we build the edification complex, we become a mature believer.
5. In producing divine good, as we produce divine good, we can also produce deeds of altruism in the human realm. We can also produce deeds of charity and altruism when filled with the Holy Spirit. These kinds of deeds are mandated in Scripture.
6. Divine good glorifies God and is rewardable at the Judgment Seat of Christ. This has eternal impact. Divine good covers all of our bases. The bonus is that we are also doing something which is a true good deed. This glorifies Jesus Christ. True deeds of divine good have an eternal impact and provide a wonderful witness.

The burning up in v. 15 means that some will arrive with little or no production in the end times. The believer who produces nothing but human good will still reside in eternity with God; however, all of his human good will be burned up and destroyed. For many believers, their life will not count. The testimony they could have had is non-existent. They will be saved, so as through fire. What does this mean? Think about Lot spending years in Sodom building a great reputation for himself. He was an important man in Sodom. He resided by the gates, which indicates that he had a high position. 2Peter 2:8: (for by seeing and hearing, that righteous [man] living among them, day by day [his] righteous soul was being tormented with [their] unlawful works);... Lot did not separate himself; he remained in the middle of it. He could not leave the big man syndrome behind. He had to be an important person. He needed the approbation, even though it came from the Sodomites. At the same time, he knew that he should not be there. Abraham kept himself separated from Sodom. God destroyed Sodom by fire, but Abraham saved Lot out of there. He was saved, so as by fire; all that he had built up was destroyed. Lot was offended by the sinfulness and the evil of the Sodomites; yet, he did not want to walk away from his big house and his position. Lot would have nothing to show for all of his hard work in Sodom; but he was able to be delivered.

1Cor. 3:15 If the work of anyone will be burned up, he will suffer loss; but he himself will be saved, but so as through fire.

We are in a new subject now; related, but different. This states that we are temples of God. There is a new thought introduced and a simile as well. It is not a simile; this is a . In any case, we are being compared to the Temple of God. We are a Temple. There is no definite article in front of Temple. There were Jews who would have been listening to this and this would shock them. For the idea for their bodies to be Temples, it was a strong comparison. We are a holy place because the Holy Spirit resides within us. Paul uses this structure for a different reason. He God to a new building analogy. We are building an edification complex. We are a Temple.

Differences of Righteousness/Temple Illustration

1. The building of the edification complex is internal and it is an illustration of the experiential spiritual life.
2. Them temple in our body is also internal. It is positional, indicating that the believer's body is a holy place.
3. The edification complex is what the advancing believer constructs in his soul as he moved toward maturity. If we review these, this is what God does in our life. All of these are results of our advance.
4. The Temple image is something that the believer possesses. It is not because he is righteous; it is because God makes him righteous. The righteousness of God is imputed to him. We are not righteous; we are made righteous. 2Cor. 5:21.
5. That righteousness of God which was imputed to us at the moment of salvation and the indwelling Holy Spirit is what makes the believer a holy place. We are a holy place, even though we may be holy terrors.
6. The temple analogy reminds the Corinthians of their lack of virtue. They have failed to advance spiritually. The temple is a holy place or worship. The Corinthians are anything but holy. Their spiritual lives are in shambles. We are made righteous; but look at us; we are not righteous; we have not grown spiritually.

The Temple illustrates the lack of virtue for the Corinthians. We can have an experiential sanctification. That is the exhortation in v. 16. They have abandoned the very purpose in their lives. "You have abandoned the temple but you are the temple of the Holy Spirit." They are to live as they are the temple of the Holy Spirit. It has a very precise meaning in this context. These Corinthians are deep into carnality. They are backstabbing lowlifes.

We are also indwelt by Jesus Christ Himself as well as God the Holy Spirit. We are to reflect the glory which indwells us. Do we? Do we reflect His glory? The temple image is used in a very negative way; it is used as a corrective. The picture here is something which has gone desperately awry. The Corinthians are a long ways from spiritual advance. The Greeks were the predominant group there; they understood the temple as a place of worship; the temple of Aphrodite, which was a wild place. It was a perversion of true worship. The Jews understood this image in a different way. Paul used ναός = temple. Daniel prayed toward the holy place. As Jesus Christ entered Jerusalem, there were a huge number of people coming to the temple; their pilgrimage. The temple was the shrine of the God of Israel. Our body is a shrine to God. The gothic cathedrals in Europe are magnificent. It is impossible to even imagine how these were built in the middle ages. The architecture is incredible. There is no worship there; there is nothing which represents the worship of God. We are cold and dead. We are built to the glory of God. It is a wonderful image. Berachah Church, on the other hand, is one of the ugliest auditoriums in all of Houston. Paul is addressing sarkinos men; carnal believers; and they are temples in which God dwells. The contrast is truly extraordinary. God indwells even the pitiful sarkinos men. How is it that God can indwell us? Only by imputed righteousness. If we think about our worst moment, and God indwells us at that time. Simply because we accepted the work of Jesus Christ on the cross; this is why God indwells us. We are a holy temple.

1Cor. 3:16 You* know that you* are a temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwells in you*, do you* not?

Annual Congregational Meeting No Lesson #                      Sunday Session #2 1/3/ 2005

The second service is the annual meeting. A year after Bobby was chosen as pastor. MP3 production activities. 163,000 lessons sent out. 24 FX groups; 20 video groups, 3 audio groups, should be able to distribute DVD's in the near future. Details will be made known soon. We are past the growing pains. Order management system also installed.

$162,000 a year to missionaries last year. $48,000 spent in a pastor search. Increased cash position to $218,000.

Bobby is president of R. B. Thieme Jr. Bible Ministries. This is part of the report. About $250,000 down from the previous year. The manna principle is involved; not too much and not too little. Postage and mailing went down about $40,000. Cost of sending out MP3's is significantly less. Salaries is the highest amount. Also reduced because less personnel involved. $2500 in the black at the end of the year. Statement of financial position = balance sheet.

1Corinthians 3:16

Lesson #106 Wednesday

February 2, 2005

Everyone knows our passage below, and so many people misinterpret it; so we are going to spend sometime with it. We will find out exactly what the Holy Spirit does and we will connect this all to Jesus Christ and to our operating assets.

Our body is compared to a temple; a holy place. Bobby wrote down a ledger. A credit side and a debit side. The everpresent temptation to sin and actual sin. We often use devine viewpoint. Some are more ego-centric that others.

Temple; some days, I am a pretty nice person. Bobby tries to depend upon Jesus Christ as much as possible. Some attempt to be ambassadors for Christ. So there are good things that we do to credit ourselves.

We all have an old sin nature, so we cannot be a holy place. It is difficult for the Holy Spirit to do anything for us, even when the old sin nature permeates every cell of the human body. Yet Paul can say, "You are truly a holy place" to these Corinth. There is nothing that we can do to make our bodies holy places. Every cell is permeated with the old sin nature. Paul challenges these holier than thou type with this statement.

Each faction claims to be the holiest; but Paul says that none of them are. The Jews knew what this temple was. Paul wants them to differentiate between their position and their experience. He is asking them, who are you, child of God. Αναος which is a temple, a holy place. Paul, "You are a temple; you are a holy place; are you acting like it?"

Now, we are not taking your body. This does not mean that we cannot smoke or drink. The problem is not the body but the destroyed spirit. This is a disconnect now between what Paul calls them now, and what he called them holy. They are anything but holy in the traditional sense. This has nothing to do with bad habits.

Christ covered our sins, as the mercy seat covers our sins. The lives of the Corinthians are in shambles. The Corinthians are delinquent, but the power of the Holy Spirit. Why did Paul choose this analogy?

Solomon built the first temple; Solomon's temple; then Jerubbabel's. When Paul teaches about this, the Corinthians are supposed to wake up.

The Spirit of God indwells you. Present active indicative. Marriage is a state of perpetuity. It is forever; that is the idea here. Marriage is a strong image for marriage. Preposition + the 2nd person personal pronoun εν υμιν. The Spirit of God indwells you. The Holy Spirit is God and He exists everywhere. Now here it says He exists personally in you.

Jesus Christ indwells the Temple in Israel. He is God with us. He is always there. Localized. He will rule on earth in the Millennium. Very consistent.

It is His indwelling which makes us a Temple. The full impact of that indwelling and we need to look at the significance of God and the Temple.

God Indwells the Temple

1. Deep in the holy of holies resided the physical presence of God. This is why it was the holy of holies. Lev. 26:11–12 Ex. 25:8 God dwells with His people, in the Tent of Meeting, because that is where His people met Him physically.
2. That presence conferred on the Temple justice, righteousness and divine power; utter holiness in this building. Only the chief priest could enter this section once a year. Only those who do what God requires can enter into the holy of holies. The Tabernacle and Temple of Israel illustrate what Jesus Christ did. When these people were called a Temple, it smacked them right between the eyes.

3. God's dwelling presence was the glory of Israel, called the Shekinah glory. Shekinah is a theological concept.
  - a. There is a Biblical term, shakan, which means to dwell.
  - b. This means the Shekinah glory is a description of God, which is the divine dwelling presence in the Tabernacle and Temple.
  - c. Jesus Christ dwelled in the Temple. He was the visible manifestation of God to Israel. He lived among them. He was seen, but no man saw Him. He was the glorious light of the burning bush. Pillar of cloud by day and pillar of fire by night. He was the only light in the Temple and Tabernacle.
  - d. He was the visible glorious presence of God among men.
4. Luke 2:32: a light for revelation to Gentiles, and [the] glory of Your people Israel!
5. John 1:14: The Word became flesh and lived among us and we beheld His glory, full of grace and truth.
6. John 1:14 refers to the transfiguration: which is only found in the synoptic gospels. At the transfiguration, John, Peter and James witnessed the glory of Christ revealed; they looked at the Shekinah glory. That brief glimpse. They looked visibly at the God of Israel.
7. In John 1:18, Christ is called the manifest person of the trinity; the visible person of the trinity.
8. There is a conclusion: it was the Lord Jesus Christ, the manifest person of the Old Testament, who was the indwelling presence of God in the Tent of Meeting and the Temple. He is the visible presence. It is He Who is the dwelling presence of God. He was also the Shekinah incarnate who dwelled in the flesh among us. He was called Yahweh, the visible presence.

A trained pastor teacher puts together this stuff; this is why one is required. We always think of Jesus as the One Who appeared for 33 years, but Jesus was the revealed person of the Trinity. He was the presence of the Temple; the incarnate Christ. He is with us as well in this day. As a logical conclusion, then God must have a visible presence in the Church Age; and His presence is in our bodies; our bodily Temples. The Holy Spirit indwells us but also Jesus Christ. Col. 1:27: to whom God willed to make known what [is] the riches of the glory of this secret among the nations [or, the Gentiles], who is Christ in you*, the hope [or, confident expectation] of glory; It is not just the Holy Spirit; Jesus Christ lives in us.

Preview: so we can reflect Christ's glory.

1Cor. 3:16 You* know that you* are a temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwells in you*, do you* not?

Updating of the music. Elvis: I can't help but falling in love with you. Vance asked Bobby what kind of music he wanted to hear, and Bobby said Jimi Hendrix. Without missing a beat, Vince said, "He was a great guitarist."

Our body is a temple in which the Holy Spirit dwells. If it were not for the Word of God, we would not realize this. Omniscient God who exists everywhere also lives in us—a localized dwelling in us. The word for to dwell is to live with someone in a state of permanence; as if married. God inhabits our body continuously. This is not the same as the filling of the Holy Spirit, which can be lost.

Isagogics: God had a localized presence in the Tabernacle. He remained there until the Ark of the Covenant was removed. When Israel became apostate, God no longer had a local presence with Israel. Isa. 7:14: o, the Lord Himself shall give you a sign. Behold, the virgin will conceive and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call His name Immanuel. In Matthew, we have the fulfillment of this. The God of Israel Who dwelt with His people with the Incarnate Christ Who lived among us. Christ was the God of Israel. The Shekinah Glory was an Old Testament title. There is a continuous dwelling of God in Israel. It was continuous. This was continued with the incarnation and it continues today.

Shekinah is a rabbinical term from shakan, which means dwelling. This word is a theological term which is found in writings other than the Bible. This is a theological formulation, not a Biblical term, like the term Trinity. The concept is correct, even though the term is not found in Scripture. Jesus Christ was the glory seen by Moses in the bush; He was the pillar of fire at night and the pillar of cloud in the day. The Shekinah was the visible glory of God among men. This Shekinah glory was none other than Jesus Christ. Luke 2:32: a light for revelation to the nations, and the glory of Your people Israel. There was a picture of Christ in the Old Testament in the Temple. Jesus Incarnate is the real thing. The transfiguration is proof that Jesus Christ was the Shekinah glory. Matt. 17:1–8. John 1:14: The Word became flesh and dwelt among us and we beheld His glory, full of grace and truth. Jesus is called the visible manifest person of the Trinity. John 1:18: No man has seen God at any time. God's glory has always been veiled; we could not handle it. Jesus Christ is the uniquely born God. I am in the father and He in Me. By His Word and His actions, Jesus explained the essence of God. The Incarnate Christ became flesh and lived among us.

Conclusion

1. The Shekinah Glory, the Lord Jesus Christ, was the visible, manifest person of the Trinity to Israel.
2. He was the dwelling presence of God among men as the Savior among men.
3. This both shows continuity and difference between the dispensations. Bobby was asked to pursue this for his doctorate by a dispensationalist, but he did not.
4. God, Who has dwelled among men in all previous ages, this presence was true in the past and He must also have a presence today.

Christ's Presence Today

1. Christ had a presence in our bodily temple today. He lived in the Temple then and now.
2. There is a continuity from the Old Testament, through the Incarnation to the Church Age.
3. Christ dwelling in us is unique; never before found in history.
4. If Christ is our confidence of glory, and he is, it is the glory that comes from his indwelling presence reflected in our lives through spiritual growth to maturity. The Shekinah glory does not shine through our eyes; we are to glorify God in our bodies.
5. The visible reflection of Him in our Age is the visible aspect of Jesus in this age.
6. The Shekinah does have a presence in the dispensation of the Church inside of us. The same pillar of fire that kept the Egyptians from crossing over the Red Sea is the same God in us. This is unique to us; no other dispensation has this.
7. The Lord Jesus Christ in our dispensation is still the presence of God with His people. God put Himself in one place; localized Himself, just as He does in our body.
8. Now He has a different place of dwelling. He unites and separates the dispensations in this dwelling. In the Millennium, He will dwell on the earth on His throne.
9. This is an indwelling of us which gives us a chance to shine through a mature spiritual life.

We understand the indwelling of Jesus Christ in our bodies; but this verse speaks of the Holy Spirit indwelling our bodies. However, Paul says it is the Holy Spirit indwells us. Therefore, both Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit indwell us. Both members indwell us. God the Father also indwells us (Ephesians, although we are not told why). Since Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit indwell us, then there must be a connection; there must be a reason. This theological question must be resolved.

Indwelling of the Holy Spirit

Introduction: This doctrine takes on a whole new meaning when he relate it to the indwelling of Jesus Christ.

1. Understand that v. 16 is not a mandate to be indwelt. This one mood and the difference of moods explains an important difference of theology. Oikeô is a statement of fact here; indicative mood.
2. There is a contrast with the indicative mood and the imperative mood. Eph. 5:18, where we are told: Be filled with the Holy Spirit. Some pastors take these terms as the same thing. It is the change of mood which tell us that they are different. We are mandated in Ephesians but it is a stated fact in 1Corinthians.
3. The difference will be the indicative-imperative model.
4. Indwelling is indicative, one of the 39 irrevocable assets. These 39 things are statements of fact.

5. Filling is a command. Because of this, we may or may not comply with it because we have free will.
6. The filling of the Holy Spirit is the one revocable absolute. You can sin and temporarily lose the filling of the Holy Spirit.
7. We can never lose the indwelling; it is an irrevocable fact. We always have the indwelling.
8. Immutable God has provided that indwelling and it is a fact which cannot change. It is a permanent ministry of the Holy Spirit to us. We have it; it is there.

Connection Between the Two Indwellings

1. The believer is created as a temple.
2. This creation is a function of the indwelling Holy Spirit at regeneration and the baptism of the Holy Spirit.
3. Titus 3:5: The Spirit does the washing of regeneration of the Spirit and renewing.
4. These Scriptures must be put together to get a cohesive doctrine.
5. Because the body is the headquarters of the old sin nature, the Holy Spirit sets up His headquarters in the body for counteraction.
6. Therefore, the washing and renewing is the Holy Spirit cleansing us to become a holy temple. This is the reason for the indwelling.
7. This is the countermeasure to the sin nature, which resides in the cell structure of our bodies.
8. 2Cor. 6:16: We are the Temple of the living God.

Who is the Living God in 2Corinthians 6:16

1. This Living God is God dwelling with His people; and this is an Old Testament reference.
2. 2Cor. 6:16: And what agreement does a temple of God have with idols? For you are the temple of the living God, as God has said, "I will dwell in them and walk among them; and I will be their God, and they shall be My people." This is taken from Leviticus.
3. Who is the God Who lives with His people in the Old Testament? The Shekinah, Jesus Christ, the revealed member of the Trinity.
4. Now we know that we are a Temple that is scrubbed clean by the Holy Spirit.
5. When the Holy Spirit scrubs us clean, then and only then can the Temple be the residence of the Living God, the Lord Jesus Christ.
6. The Temple for the Lord Jesus Christ in us is made holy by the indwelling presence of the Holy Spirit. That is our link. This is the washing of regeneration and the renewing of our bodies—we are made new creatures in Christ.
7. The Holy Spirit renovates a residence within depraved humanity worthy of the indwelling presence of the Shekinah Glory. All of this happens instantaneously at the moment of faith in Christ; but all of this happens together, even though we may see it as a logical progression.

8. Only when the Temple of our body is cleansed can Christ indwell the believer.

1Cor. 3:16 You* know that you* are a temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwells in you* , do you* not?

We now know there are two indwellings. The Holy Spirit indwells to make a residence for Christ. However, why does Jesus Christ indwell us? What is the reason for this? Sunday morning.

1Corinthians 3:16      Lesson #108 Sunday 1st Session      February 6, 2005

That God the Holy Spirit cohabits us is a fantastic thing. This is true in no other age and no other dispensation. Why is this important? What does this do for us?

Paul wanted the Corinthians to focus on the old Temple of Israel, where the omnipresent God had a localized presence with His people. Shekinah refers to this localized presence. It comes from the Hebrew verb shakan, which means to dwell. This Shekinah glory is parallel to what we enjoy today. The God of Israel had a localized presence; a glory found in the Temple of God. The Shekinah refers to the visible manifestation of God, Who is Jesus Christ. His presence in the Temple was fully apparent; but we did not behold His full glory. We behold His light as veiled, just as Israel did in the Tabernacle and then Temple. Ex. 34:29: And it happened as Moses was going down from the mountain of Sinai, the two tablets of the testimony being in Moses' hand as he went down from the mountain, Moses did not know that the skin of his face had become luminous through His speaking with him.

How Does Jesus Christ Fit the Shekinah Glory

1. Jesus, before age 12, we in the land of Palestine, and he was taken into the Temple and He was called the glory of Your people, Israel.
2. In the last year of His ministry, James, John and Peter witnessed the glory of Christ's deity in Matt. 17:2: And He was transfigured before them. And His face shone as the sun, and His clothing was white as the light. In John 1:14: And we beheld that glory.
3. John calls Jesus the manifest person of the trinity in John 1:18: No one has seen God at any time; the Only-begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, He has declared Him. We are not capable of seeing God. Jesus Christ has explained God. His visible presence among men is how Jesus revealed God to man—by His words and actions.
4. The Presence in the Tabernacle and the Temple was none other than Jesus Christ, the second person of the Trinity, Who lived in the Holy of Holies upon the Mercy Sea of the Ark.

5. In this dispensation, Christ has a presence in our bodies. The Temple in the Church Age is our bodies. Col 1:27: For to them God would make known what are the riches of the glory of this mystery among the nations, which is Christ in you, the hope of glory,...

Jesus' presence in the past was in the Temple; now He dwells in us. In our passage, it is God the Holy Spirit which indwells us. There is a connection between the two indwellings.

The Doctrine of the Indwelling of the Holy Spirit

1. This verse is not a mandate for us to be indwelt with the Holy Spirit. We are indwelt by the Holy Spirit whether we want that or not. This is a fact; if we are a believer, we are indwelt.
2. Eph. 5:18 is in the imperative mood: Be filled with the Holy Spirit. The difference of mood indicates that being filled and being indwelt are 2 different things. Indwelling is our status forever. Being filled with the Holy Spirit is the one revokable asset that we receive at salvation. We can sin and lose the filling of the Holy Spirit; we cannot lose the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.
3. Titus 3:5: the Holy Spirit washes and renews us. Our body is the headquarters of the old sin nature. It exists in the cell structure of our bodies. The Holy Spirit does cleanse the body to become a holy Temple.
4. We are the Temple of the Holy Spirit. Later it says, we are the Temple of the Living God. This connotes God dwelling with His people in 2Cor. 6:16: And what agreement does a temple of God have with idols? For you are the temple of the living God, as God has said, "I will dwell in them and walk among them; and I will be their God, and they shall be My people." Jesus Christ is the God of Israel; He is the Shekinah glory; Lev. 26:11–12: And I will set My tabernacle among you. And My soul shall not abhor you. And I will walk among you and will be your God, and you shall be My people.

When the Holy Spirit does its work of cleansing and renewing, then God the Son indwells us. Only when our body is cleansed can Christ indwell us. Why are there two indwellings?

Why Does the Holy Spirit and Jesus Christ Indwell us?

1. We must be able to fulfill the command, Glorify God in your bodies.
2. It is the invisible dwelling Christ Who produces the visible glory in the believer. Christ in us, the hope and confidence of our glory.
3. The believer can glorify God as he reflects the Shekinah glory which resides in us.
4. When we are able to reflect this glory, then we are formed into the same image. 2Cor. 3:14.
5. The indwelling Christ as the Shekinah is invisible. He was the dwelling presence and dwelt in the Tabernacle. In us, He is not visible but His reflected glory is seen in the Church Age believer who advances to spiritual maturity.

A trained theologian does this. Goes through all the passages which relate to this or that. Usually, there is no one definitive passage. Most could not put this altogether.

1Cor. 3:16 You* know that you* are a temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwells in you*, do you* not?

1Corinthians 3:16–17

Lesson #109 Sunday 2

February 6, 2005

Why Christ Indwells Us

1. 1Cor. 6:20: Glorify God in your bodies. For that we have Jesus Christ, the Shekinah glory, indwelling us.
2. It is the invisible indwelling Christ which produces the visible glory. Col. 1:27
3. The believer can glorify God as he reflects the Shekinah glory in him.
4. 2Cor. 3:18: Then we are formed into the same image.
5. The indwelling Christ as the Shekinah is invisible.
6. The Church Age believer glorifies God in his body.

Becoming Christ-Like

1. Construct the edification complex that Christ pioneered during the 1st advent. Jesus Christ came to a point of spiritual maturity. He utilized the filling of the Holy Spirit. He utilized the doctrine found in Scripture. He had to progress as a person; even though His diety was perfect.
2. This is what doctrine does for us—it makes us Christ-like. 2Cor. 3:18
3. You construct the edification complex on the foundation which is the Lord Jesus Christ. You build upon that foundation.
4. Then, the top 4 floors of the edification complex reflect the glory of Christ in the facade of your complex. The gold, silver and precious stones is the glory of Christ which comes from us and shines from within us. So many pastors say “Be Christ-like, do nice things.” But they give you no mechanics.

What else does the Holy Spirit do for us? He cleanses the Temple of our bodies for the indwelling of Jesus Christ. There are more things involved.

What Else the Holy Spirit Does for us

1. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the sign of royal status.
2. It is also a sign of union of Christ, as the Holy Spirit cleanses the temple for the indwelling Shekinah glory (a superior status to all previous dispensations). This does not make us superior; this gives us a superior status.
3. The objective of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is to positionally break the sovereignty of the sin nature’s rule over human life. This is what He does when He cleanses and renews. This is a positional thing. The old sin nature is not eradicated, however.

4. The inner conflict between the sin nature and the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is portrayed in Rom. 8:2–9.
5. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the principle of victory over the old sin nature. The filling of the Holy Spirit is the actual victory over the old sin nature. This is the function of victory over the old sin nature.
6. The indwelling is the principle of divine righteousness in us, the cleanser of our temple for the indwelling of Jesus Christ, the Shekinah Glory.
7. The Holy Spirit indwells the body of every believer, but it is the filling of the Holy Spirit that controls the soul of the believer. That is called walking in the Spirit or by the Spirit. These denote the function of the filling of the Holy Spirit.
8. You must distinguish between these two ministries of the Holy Spirit. They must be separately categorized in our minds. The indwelling is not operational but it is positional; maybe we should see this as potential? Potential vs. kinetic energy.

All of this is the underpinning of our spiritual life. Nothing can be more important to our spiritual life than the fact that the Spirit of God lives in us.

1Cor. 3:16 You* know that you* are a temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwells in you*, do you* not?

We are not really all that holy, but we are that holy. Our experience and our potential are sometimes at odds. The Corinthians, despite how messed up they were, were still Temples of God the Holy Spirit.

Those who destroy the Temple of God will be destroyed. There are people being pumped full of false doctrine in Corinth. ΤΙς = anyone. It refers to those who are false teachers. These are the ones who destroy the Temple of God. Corporately and individually the Temple of God is being destroyed. The barbarians carry away the facade of the buildings. The buildings were damaged, but not beyond repair; they only needed a new veneer. The analogy is to the Temple being trashed. And we are the Temple of God. We are the ones who are trashed and damaged by false teachers and divisive groups. V. 17 especially refers to the false teachers and leaders of the Corinthian church. These are the factions who claim that their doctrines are supported by the famous name that they take.

Paul uses the first class condition, which is εἰ + the indicative. Φθείρω = to defile, to corrupt, to damage, destroy. The condition is a true condition. The Temple in Corinth is being destroyed.

What Does this Mean?

1. We have degenerated into a former condition.
2. We were designed for experiential sanctification. In other words, we were designed to advance because the Holy Spirit indwells us. The fact that we are a member of the royal family means that we have a protocol, a procedure. The Shekinah Glory is reflected in our spiritual life.

3. We end up being corrupted, damaged, or defiled by false doctrine.
4. We retreat from divine viewpoint. We have no excuse for thinking human viewpoint. He reflect nothing but human glory when we entertain even the wisest human viewpoint.
5. Following false teachers leads to personal reversionism and divisiveness in the church.

The tongues crowd which goes into a church and uses 1Corinthians to support their false doctrine of tongues completely miss the point of this book. They move into the church and break the church up into factions. The book of 1Corinthians warns explicitly against these factions. It warns explicitly against the kind of behavior which tongues people support.

In the Old Testament, the penalty for defiling the Temple would be death or being cut off from the Temple, as Israel was a theocracy. This would be a terrible fate. Defiling the Temple was a serious offense in Israel.

In our passage, we are speaking of divine discipline. The result will be punishment to those who defile the temple of God. This punishment is a certainty. There is no other recourse for the pastor than to teach the truth; otherwise, they are in for a lot of pain. There are those in the Corinthian church who attempt to lead others astray. Those are in for incredible discipline. Do not take other people down another road with you; down a road of false doctrine; taking them to a worse state.

1Cor. 3:17 If anyone destroys the temple of God, this one God will destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which —you*— are.

1Corinthians 3:17

Lesson #110 Wednesday

February 9, 2005

A very encouraging letter; a woman writes. "I used to pursue Bible doctrine on every front. I tried many different pastors, television, the radio. I wondered if right pastor was right. I've accepted you as my right pastor. She found many areas of disagreement with various pastors; but she trusts God to teacher her through Bobby. She likes having one pastor." Bobby thinks that we should only listen to one pastor. Certain people are arrogant about this and think that they can pick and choose.

Final look of the Doctrine of the Holy Spirit:

Summary:

1. Indwelling of the Holy Spirit is for the purpose of purifying our bodies for the residence of the Shekinah glory.

2. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is a sign of the royal family status, which is a far superior status than any possessed by any other believer in the past.
3. The indwelling is the principle of divine righteousness in us.
4. The objective of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is to positionally break the sovereignty of the sin nature's rule over human life.
5. Renewing entails creating a human spirit for the imputation of eternal life.
6. The result is the opportunity to utilize the human spirit. We are now body, soul and spirit. Epistemological rehabilitation, which is the result of renewing our minds.
7. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the principle of victory over the old sin nature.
8. The idea is to break the control of the old sin nature over our life. As an unbeliever, the old sin nature has control over our entire life. The Holy Spirit makes it possible to take back that control.
9. There is an interior conflict. Rom. 8:2–11
10. V. 4 is a little different; the function of the spiritual life apart from the old sin nature control. Walking according to the Spirit.
11. Although the filling of the Holy Spirit and the indwelling are 2 different things. But there is an obvious connection between the two.
12. The use of divine power, a power which is inherent to the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.
13. The filling of the Holy Spirit is the function of victory; in orthodoxy
14. We must distinguish between indwelling and filling. Only filling is the empowerment.
15. The difference is between a position the filling carried with it a mandate.

Indefinite pronoun ΤΙΣ

Next, we have φηω. To bring into a worse state; it is converting to a different position.

More Points

- 1 these believers have degenerated into a former state of a damaged, defiled
- 2 the believers end up being corrupted, damaged or defiled
- 3 it is our job to think deeply in a viewpoint.
- 4 these believers had followed various factions and the whole church is involved in this. Someone gets involved in false doctrine and they get restless and need something solid even one little aspect causes us to bring on
- 5 the Holy Spirit dwells our temple to provide a basis of operations to counteract this personal defilement. It is not the.
- 6 believers are guaranteed this opportunity. believers have the resources the power to be undefiled by false doctrine

These devious functions were legalistic; legalism d. God will destroy those who do not take this opportunity. God will image them God will give them serious divine discipline. We do not grow from false doctrine.

Why are Believer's Defiled?

1. The temple of our body is set apart. Breaks the control of the old sin nature.
2. Because of
3. When there is encroachment
4. God will bring retribution for such pollution; partial.
5. This is God's response. It is not healthy for the pastor to lead the church astray with false doctrine, no other choice.

those who continue to perpetrate false doctrine will be disciplined.

This is not the body being defiled by smoking, drinking, overeating. This verse is not all about health. Don't berate others for their lack of health by quoting this verse.. Proof-texting: do not use a Scripture out of context to prove some pet doctrine. The statement: don't be drunk with wine, but be filled with the Holy Spirit. This is not about alcohol; but about being filled with the Holy Spirit.

The context is talking about our temple which is being experientially sanctified because it is already positionally sanctified. You're ready for anything in life with the top four floors of the edification complex.

ἅγιος = holy place. Others rely on human viewpoint.

Summary of v. 17

1. The edification complex cannot be built upon false doctrine.
2. Production of divine good from the filling of the Holy Spirit is impossible when you accept falsehoods and are led astray.
3. When you accept false doctrine, you cannot grow.
4. As the temple of God, we cannot be tampered with false teaching.
5. Human viewpoint is an obscenity where the Holy Spirit dwells. This is a warning to all of us to lead others away from doctrine using human viewpoint solutions. Without divine viewpoint, keep your mouth shut.
6. You must always be thinking doctrine. What am I doing here; what is my life in the light of eternity. When you begin to be grace oriented and doctrinally oriented, then you begin to grasp why you are here.

1Cor. 3:17 If anyone destroys the temple of God, this one God will destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which —you*— are.

Why are things going wrong next verse. Human viewpoint wisdom vs. divine viewpoint wisdom.

1Corinthians 3:18

Lesson #111 Thursday

February 10, 2005

Paul is going back to an old subject from chapter 1: wisdom vs. foolishness. No believer should doubt the truth regarding the worthlessness and destructiveness of false doctrine. Human wisdom, no matter how brilliant or wise, is never a substitute for divine wisdom or Bible doctrine. This is true wisdom in human viewpoint; so it is often difficult to distinguish between divine viewpoint and human viewpoint wisdom.

Present active imperative of εξαποτάω = to deceive. Those who announce human viewpoint in a church as if it is divine viewpoint. Divine truth is being taught by their pastor, Apollos. They get the message of their pastor, but on the other side, they are getting the viewpoint of other church leaders who pretend to represent others (like Paul). These sheep are having a difficult time discerning between these two viewpoints. Thinking human viewpoint is a form of self deceit and a result of being corrupted by false friends and false doctrine.

False friends can be believers or unbelievers. They lead you in another direction different from doctrine. They lead you away from divine viewpoint. They do not think in the same channels that we do. They cannot think with divine viewpoint. They may not mean to lead you astray; they may be very nice people who truly care about you. Without doctrine themselves, they are not equipped to do anything but lead you away from truth. They have no other thought process than human viewpoint. Immature believers are incapable of having thoughts of divine viewpoint. They do not think it and they do not communicate it. They think human viewpoint occasionally interspersed with the right vocabulary. Divine viewpoint is entirely unique; especially if you are a mature believer who consistently thinks with divine viewpoint. This divine viewpoint is also very fragile. Every day of our life, we are bombarded with human viewpoint. We are inundated with it. It is everywhere; on television, on the news; everywhere you go, everything you hear is human viewpoint. It is so easy to get sidetracked because we are so bombarded with human viewpoint. If you lie down with the dogs, you will rise up with fleas. Human viewpoint will rub off on you with constant exposure to it. You will automatically think that way. We are in this world, but we are not of this world. When you seek out human viewpoint, you will have fleas. You can have all the vocabulary in the world, but not think with divine viewpoint.

When you take several different pastors and you cannot figure out what is right; and you do not metabolize doctrine, because you are only concerned with trying to figure out who is right. There are some in other cities who are spiritually isolated; and this is okay. They do not have the refreshment of being around like-minded believers. Then you must be even more determined; some have started tape and video groups to be around those who are like-minded. You must continually take the doctrine in your souls and compare it with everything else that you hear. Consistent intake of doctrine is required; you cannot afford to miss a lesson. If you are being thrown off by close relationships, sometimes you have to separate from them. It takes a lot of stability to keep from being affected by human viewpoint. Another solution is to get out of Dodge. What is more important: doctrine or a human goal in a certain geographical location where you are inundated with nothing but human viewpoint. In years past, many people and families have come to Houston for doctrine, opting instead to grow in grace. Those who have stuck with it have no regrets. Not the most gorgeous geography in the world can replace the top floors of the edification complex. Nothing replaces sharing the happiness of God. No amount of material benefits do not even remotely stack up. Those who came to Houston, God has taken care of logistically. In fact, some have benefitted financially from moving to Houston. Houston is the optimum for spiritual growth. At home, you can break your concentration in dozens of ways; in Berachah's auditorium, you cannot break concentration as easily.

Paul's use of the imperative mood in v. 18 is not exactly a command. The imperative mood is primarily a mood of volition. Any command in the imperative mood requires a decision to execute the command. A command has no meaning; you hear it and then decide what to do. Paul wants the Corinthians to make a choice. Apollos is getting really frustrated here. This is an imperative of entreaty here. Paul is making a request. He is not softening his position to false teaching; but he is not being as tough to those who have been led astray. "Let's think about the fact that you are being lied to." There is a time to be tough and there is a time to be reasonable and to explain divine viewpoint step-by-step. Paul tries both approaches in these three chapters. Paul is approaching this in such a way to help the Corinthians to remember this. He is going back to compare foolishness with wisdom. He will reveal again that human viewpoint will not guide one in the spiritual life. Some nice application is taught in their church; some moral maxims; totally inadequate. Lose this human viewpoint and pick up on divine viewpoint.

1Cor. 3:18a Stop letting anyone deceive himself.

Paul differentiates between σοφος & μορος. Paul also compares σοφος to σοφος. Two types of wisdom in this verse. The main verb is δοκεω = to think, to assume.

εν τωι αιωνη = in this age, in this world. Here, there is a spacial rather than a temporal use. Here, we have wisdom of the world, or human viewpoint wisdom. All human viewpoint is not from the devil.

Human viewpoint

1. All human viewpoint is not straight from the devil.
2. However, human viewpoint is thinking with its basis in humanism, which can be good or bad.
3. Humanism is thinking voice of doctrinal orientation.
4. That is the thinking of most of the world—99% of the world, which includes your immature believing and unveiling frieds.
5. What is subtle about such human viewpoint is that it contains elements of the truth. Human viewpoint is often interspersed with a little truth.
6. There is the danger: the mix of human viewpoint and divine viewpoint. Resident doctrine in the soul is the only defense.

7. If you find yourself thinking like wise believers or immature unbelievers. There are pastors who have taken feminism and have integrated it into church teaching. However, when teaching takes women out of the place set for them in Scripture, then you are turned around. In almost every area in life; there is a mix.

It is easy to leave divine viewpoint behind and to take on human viewpoint.

Human Knowledge v. Divine Viewpoint

1. There is nothing wrong with human knowledge.
2. You need human knowledge to function.
3. However, the reasoning of human viewpoint is human philosophy and the reasoning of human viewpoint that is in opposition to God.

No believer should ever deceive him or herself into thinking that the wisdom of this world is compatible or comparable in any way with divine wisdom. Human wisdom is always incompatible with the spiritual life. We are here to make the differentiation: between human and divine viewpoints.

1Cor. 3:18b If anyone assumes to be wise among you* in this world [or, age], let him become foolish, so that he shall become wise.

1Corinthians 3:18

Lesson #112 Sunday 1

February 13, 2005

They are pushing their own cult doctrines down the throats of others and tying it to the names of that day. The sheep have become confused. Paul is not directly dealing with false teachers, but is primarily dealing with believers who deceive themselves. Wisdom and deception seem antithetical, although it is wisdom which is deceiving the wise. Paul is speaking of human viewpoint wisdom. Believers who deceive themselves see themselves as being wise. Divine wisdom is not deceptive. The Corinthians do see themselves as wise. The first class condition indicates that they do see themselves as wise. Ev to aiōnē = in this age, in this world. The devil's world is our home during this period of time when we live on earth. Thinking human viewpoint is a form of self-deceit. False teachers and from personal associations in life—this is from whence we get human viewpoint wisdom. Almost any church in the US is a font of human viewpoint wisdom. Some gather a little piece from here or there and include it in their world view wisdom. Even with this religious human viewpoint bunk which is floating around, if you are positive towards doctrine, then God will bring the truth to you. Doctrine is always available to those who seek it. The principle of the doctrine of refreshment is a good reason to be under face to face teaching. Those who can come along side and remind you of divine viewpoint.

We are bombarded with human viewpoint every day of our lives. We live in a world of human viewpoint. We can choose with whom we associate; no matter how scintillating a friend is, you cannot choose those with human viewpoint to be your close associations or your marriage partner. A person who only thinks human viewpoint is confused by divine viewpoint. They see it as foolishness. They will bring you down to their viewpoint; when the two are associated, usually those with human viewpoint will pull others to their opinion. Now, all of us have human viewpoint friends; but it is encouraging to have friends who have divine viewpoint thinking. Since you can communicate with them in the same way; you will be affected. You must disassociate yourself at times from human viewpoint. You don't need to voluntarily place yourself with those of human viewpoint. Hmm. We have to witness to the unbeliever. Anything we do to destroy our spiritual life is way out of line. God often grabs us by the collar and tries to straighten us out, and we often return right to it. Some of us nurture relationships which should not be nurtured.

What we have below is human viewpoint wisdom. What is Human viewpoint Wisdom?

1Cor. 3:18a Stop letting anyone deceive himself. If anyone assumes to be wise among you* in this world [or, age],...

1Corinthians 3:18

Lesson #113 Sunday 2

February 13, 2005

Human Viewpoint Wisdom

1. Humanism is man-centered thinking. It explores man, his capacities, his value, his worth. Divine viewpoint is that we have no worth; we are fallen; we are spiritually dead. We have capacities, but human viewpoint does not have the same capacities.
2. Humanistic thinking is void of grace and doctrinal orientation. This is how most of the world thinks.
3. This is why we should not be unequally yoked in this way to those with human viewpoint.
4. More insidious are those who think with human viewpoint, but appear to think with divine viewpoint. This would be friends and loved ones who are religious or spiritually mature.
5. In our personal choice associations, we should be with like-minded believers. There is nothing more refreshing than with someone who is also moving toward maturity.
6. Human viewpoint wisdom contains elements of divine viewpoint.
  - a. Example: Christian activism can espouse worthy causes. Human viewpoint in some areas can correspond with divine viewpoint.
  - b. Example: poverty. No one likes to see people and children in poverty. Divine viewpoint mandates charity with the proper motivation. The Christian activist also wants to be charitable. The activist embraces his war on poverty. He embraces a social gospel of human reform; often with the assumption that poverty can be totally eradicated. Poverty will never be eradicated until our Lord comes. The doctrine of the depravity of man means that man cannot reform himself.
7. When we are distracted from divine viewpoint, our motivation is sometimes changed. You can get caught up in this wrong motivation; but it should not be exclusive of doctrine.

8. Divine viewpoint tells us that the problem with man is his inner nature and that true reform comes from regeneration—from within. We are charitable, as we are mandated to be, but it is a witness. We have a mission in life.
9. The activist takes that which seems to be a good idea and makes it into a human utopian dream. One should be concerned with the eternal future of those in poverty (or those who are rich); not with only meeting a few material needs today and tomorrow.
10. Human viewpoint wisdom is not the same as human knowledge; the latter is necessary for living in this world. We need the latter in order to make a living. Human viewpoint wisdom is reasoning and philosophy which is in opposition to God. No believer should deceive himself into thinking that the wisdom of this world is compatible or comparable to divine viewpoint wisdom. They are antithetical, even though they may appear, in some surface areas, to be compatible.

Principles:

1. Human wisdom is always incompatible with spiritual wisdom.
2. Human wisdom cannot compare to the edification complex of the soul.
3. That is the defiling of the temple that we live in. Human viewpoint wisdom defiles us.
4. Unless it has its basis in divine viewpoint, in Bible doctrine, then human viewpoint wisdom will inevitably oppose doctrinal thinking. Anyone who trusts human viewpoint will diverge from divine viewpoint thinking.
5. Human viewpoint thinking always goes awry, even with a believer. Humanism is still the foundation for those who even think divine establishment. Don't be deceived by their conservatism or establishment orientation. Bible doctrine takes us to the depths of the human soul and to the heights of divine wisdom. Sooner or later, human viewpoint wisdom just becomes human viewpoint. At some point, human viewpoint wisdom will diverge from divine wisdom. A real problem with intimate friends or espousal relationships. This is where we have problems.

1Cor. 3:18a Stop letting anyone deceive himself. If anyone assumes to be wise among you* in this world [or, age],...

Γίνομαι = to become; the imperative mood, but the imperative of volition. It is a mood of choice. The imperative of entreaty. This is why we find the let. Let him become μωρος = foolish. Paul is back to this word play that he began with earlier. He is mandating that they become foolish, but not stupid. In 1Cor. 1, the foolishness of God is the gospel; it is foolish in the eyes of the world; but the gospel is truth and wisdom. The idea of getting something for nothing is not a part of human viewpoint wisdom. It cost our Lord everything; but it is free to us.

In 1Corinthians 1, it was the gospel which was foolish to the world; here, it is the foolishness of divine viewpoint (as the world sees it).

Why Does Paul Juxtapose this, this Way

1. Foolishness and wisdom turn out to be synonymous terms in this context.
2. Foolish here is the status of the believer who departs from the wisdom of this world.
3. Foolishness means that he turns to divine viewpoint. What Paul does is use an oxymoron, foolish and wise, and makes them into synonymous terms.
4. He is called foolish because the world sees divine viewpoint that way. The world sees it as foolishness.
5. This person is actually wise. He is called foolish, but he is a believer oriented to grace and doctrine.
6. The wise man, called here foolish, is the one constructing the edification complex.
7. Summary point: Those who are seen as foolish in the eyes of the world are wise in the eyes of God.

When the believer builds an edification complex of the soul, he has no illusions about himself. Human viewpoint has us earning the approbation of God by being good people. Grace-orientation is pure divine viewpoint. In the eyes of the world, divine viewpoint is foolishness. Human viewpoint wisdom can take us in the opposite direction. Grace is divine reality, which is absolute wisdom. God operates on grace; the world operates a different way. It is easy to agree with the world, which sees grace as foolishness. The spiritual life screams the grace of God. Human wisdom is a false wisdom that believers must put aside and choose foolishness instead, which is divine wisdom.

1Cor. 3:18b ...let him become foolish, so that he shall become wise.

1Corinthians 3:18

Lesson #114 Wednesday

February 16, 2005

Personal association with human viewpoint, and you begin to think with human viewpoint. If you have assumed yourself to be wise, then you need to become foolish in order to be wise. The imperative here is a petition or a request; not a mandate. It is as if Paul is saying, "Please, do this." The difference is, that this is a 3rd person imperative. Foolishness and wise are being compared. Paul uses this style of writing for emphasis and effect. Why is Paul doing what he is doing?

Why Does Paul Do This?

1. Foolishness and wisdom are synonymous terms in this phrase. Foolish is the same as wisdom.
2. An oxymoron takes two unlike things and places them side by side.
3. If any man assumes he is wise, which expects a negative answer.
4. A believer cannot be wise unless he thinks with divine viewpoint wisdom; he cannot think with human viewpoint wisdom.
5. If the believer assumes that he is wise, but has departed from divine viewpoint; then he is foolish.

6. Paul's solution to all of this: the believer must detach himself from this foolishness and the wisdom of the world.
7. This has a great effect on the reader; it makes the reader's brain work. Paul wants this to remain in our stream of consciousness.
8. When the believer becomes foolish, which is the last phrase; rather than considering himself wise in worldly wisdom, which is actual foolishness; then he has turned away from human viewpoint, which is worldly wisdom, and to divine viewpoint, which is foolishness.
9. Becoming foolish means turning away from the side of the world.
10. Paul uses the word foolish because he is sending this letter and trying to make a point. This is to grab their attention.
11. Becoming foolish is becoming oriented to doctrine. Human wisdom does not accept my point of human foolishness.
12. Human solutions are no solutions; divine solutions are the only solutions.

The truth about Doctrine/Application fo

1. Our thinking can be nothing. Epistemological rehabilitation. You will eventually be able to recognize the truth.
2. It is divine viewpoint that opens your eye.
3. Because you have divine viewpoint, you can understand us how far off they are.
4. We must be able to recognize the human viewpoint that surrounds us.
5. We do this through Bible teaching.
6. When you see yourself in the light of Bible doctrine, you will be able to clearly we attach ourselves so easily to what appears to be wisdom, but it is no
7. We are motivated to become wise. We are motivated to build the top 4 floors.
8. We become discerning in our choice of close personal friends or their wives.
9. It is important because close friends can be purveyors of human viewpoint to your soul.
10. Best application of them all: without true wisdom, we will live superficial. This is a Christian who talks a good fight, but has no wisdom.

When went from the imperative to the subjunctive.

Grammar

1. Subjunctive mood is a mood of contingency.
2. It is dependent upon a number of known conditions being fulfilled.
3. If the condition of foolishness exists, then the condition of foolishness is
4. The believer can become wise if he first becomes foolish.
5. Paul uses one in the subjunctive and one in the imperative. If any is wife, let him become foolish.
6. If you think you are wise, become foolish, in order that you may become wise.

7. The subjunctive mood can become an indicative.

Summary of v. 18

1. The first use of σοφος = wisdom. The first use of wise does not refer back to real divine wisdom.
2. Becoming foolish in the second half of this verse refers to the process of removing oneself from the human viewpoint wisdom of this world. Get out of this and get into some real foolishness.
3. If you remove yourself from human wisdom, then you are foolish in the eyes of the world.
4. The second use of wise is in contrast to the first use of wise. They refer to two different wisdom's.

1Cor. 3:18b ...let him become foolish, so that he shall become wise.

The Corinthians are wise in the world. An interpretive translation: Let no man deceive himself [with human viewpoint]; if any man among you assumes that he is wise in the realm of human viewpoint wisdom; let him then become foolish, so that [or as a result] he will become wise. Differentiates the way we think from the way that we should think.

Paul explains what he just said in v. 19; he explains the oxymoron of v. 18. He restates this principle established in 1:21 and 2:6. Wisdom of the world is nothing but human viewpoint. Foolishness includes the entire realm of false doctrine. Men who use knowledge and facts to come to false conclusions about God and His creation—this is human wisdom, which is foolishness. This would be like the belief in evolution. Human wisdom can lead to questions about God, but no answers. Only revelation can tell us about God. No one can elevate us to the level of God's thinking. Those who are wise with human wisdom, will never know Who God is. Now, this can also happen to believers, who depend upon human wisdom as well. No human viewpoint wisdom will take us there. Human viewpoint as a means to finding God is utter futility. Isa. 55:8–9: "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways," says Yahweh. "For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts." Man's human good, corruption, self-serving plans are not God's ways. A word picture is given: as the heavens are higher than the earth, so is God's wisdom over man's wisdom.

1Cor. 3:19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it has been written, "[He is] the One trapping the wise [ones] in their craftiness." [Job 5:13]

1Corinthians 3:19

Lesson #115 Thursday

February 17, 2005

Paul has explained the synonymous oxymoron in v. 18. We are dealing with an oxymoron in v. 18.

Summary of the Last Few Nights

1. Worldly wise and becoming wise have different meanings. Same word, which refers to different things. Σοπτος = wise.
2. Foolish and wise are synonymous terms. The two terms which are alike are antithetical; the two terms which are different are alike.
3. Wise refers to human viewpoint, which is foolish.
4. The use of wise in the second half of v. 18 refers to the foolishness of divine viewpoint. Paul uses this idea to make it memorable.
5. Foolish is used because that is how the world sees divine viewpoint. Paul plays off of these two words.
6. Removing oneself from human viewpoint wisdom of this world to divine viewpoint is therefore described as an act of foolishness in the eyes of the world.
7. If he believer assumes that he is wise in the wisdom of this world, then the believer has not become wise in divine viewpoint. The two are not the same. Wise in worldly wisdom is human viewpoint and actually foolish.
8. The believer must detach himself from the foolishness of human viewpoint wisdom and then become foolish, in the eyes of the world, by learning divine viewpoint.
9. The use of foolish in the second half of the verse refers to the wisdom of divine viewpoint. Wisdom and foolishness are opposite terms, yet they refer to the same thing; whereas, the identical term wise, used twice, refers to two different things. The Corinthians are foolish to follow human viewpoint as opposed to divine viewpoint.

Human viewpoint is everywhere; it is all around us; and it is subtle. We must be able to recognize human viewpoint for what it is and keep it from becoming a part of our soul. You must have a handle on divine viewpoint in order to recognize human viewpoint. When we can objectively apply divine viewpoint to ourselves. We need to objectively see ourselves in the light of Bible doctrine. If you are not thinking divine viewpoint, then you cannot apply it. Human viewpoint is insidious and it sneaks into your thinking. If you think human viewpoint at all, divine viewpoint is negated. If we have doctrine and can think with divine viewpoint, then we are motivated to throwing out the wisdom of this world. The Corinthians are thinking purely with divine viewpoint.

The wisdom of this world is foolishness before God. The summarizes v. 18 and 19a.

1Cor. 3:19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with ...

This is the only clear quote from the book of Job. Quite often it is difficult to determine if a quote came from the Old Testament, as they take just a little piece of a verse. Here, we have a clear quote from Job 5:13a: He takes the wise in their own craftiness.

Deponent verb δρασομαι = catching, trapping. Passive in form, but active in meaning. God has a strong grasp of something; a total understanding of what is going on here. God has a total grasp of πανοργια = craftiness; a readiness for anything [in order to gain one's own ends]; one is ready to do anything to gain their own ends. There is a whole idea behind this word. This is a perfect description of a believer entirely infiltrated by human viewpoint and reversionism.

God sees everything in total reality; nothing is hidden from Him. No one is a match for God and He blocks any and all machinations which He chooses to. He will accomplish His plan with or without us.

Bobby got a book called If I Perish, I Perish; published in the early 60's. He would have had more stuff on Esther had he had read that.

Those who spout false doctrine or human viewpoint are accountable for this.

Application: Some of us probably wonder why we are always getting pounded by the circumstances of life. Why don't things get any easier? Check your thinking under pressure and when frustrated. Do you think with human or divine viewpoint. Do you speak with a vocabulary of doctrine, while spouting human viewpoint? Knowing some of the vocabulary does not mean that

Application:

We are getting the test before we take the test.

1. Do you think human viewpoint while speaking the vocabulary of doctrine?
2. We might piously say, "I want God's will for my life;" but really what you want is God's will to coincide with our will and to coincide with our life. This happens every day in some of our lives. We need to relax, sit back, and let God unfold His plan for our lives before us.
3. This is subtle craftiness; self-delusion. Do not deceive yourself.
4. No matter how convincingly you speak the language of doctrine, when you have a hard time applying it under stress and disappointment, you are not thinking divine viewpoint.
5. Quite often believers think of themselves as spiritual; even though they are applying only human viewpoint. Do you know the difference? Can you ascertain what is human viewpoint and what is divine viewpoint?
6. We are often blind to the fact that human viewpoint intrudes on our thinking. It is a trap.

The Trap

Intro: This is for us; Bobby wants us to be able to look at this later and examine our thinking; our thinking is the application of Bible doctrine.

1. How do you fall into the trap of human viewpoint? You become isolated with friends and co-workers who have no doctrinal perspective.
2. Thereby, you are inundated in your life with human viewpoint, which has now permeated your thinkings.

3. When this happens, you can't help but take on their human viewpoint attitudes.
4. You have the consistent readiness to gain your own objective.
5. When that happens, the plan of God is relegated to second place behind our desires.
6. Therefore, we are not distinguishing human from divine viewpoint.
7. How can you tell if you are in this mode? You panic and you become frustrated when you cannot accomplish your own objectives. You become disappointed; you become upset because you cannot accomplish our own objectives.

Example: you have come to admire a brilliant, successful person who is learned in the ways of the world; and you are deeply influenced by this person. Your own thinking is so influenced that their thinking becomes our own thinking. We admire them; they are our idol. Knowingly or unwittingly, we pattern ourselves after this person. We are foolish before God and it never enters our head that we never understand anthropocentric viewpoint. We pattern ourselves after the mind of Christ, we pattern ourself after the mind of that person that we admire. Could be a great sports figure; a leader of a great rock band; a celebrity; and God will let us run with these bad decisions. Things appear to go bad even in the midst of prosperity.

If our circumstances do not seem to line up with what we believe them to be, then we need to rethink our position. We should not focus on the details of life; we should focus on God's plan. What are the associations of my life doing to me? You must detach yourself for your own safety and for your own spiritual life. Has human viewpoint subtly become our way of thinking. If we are self-centered and subjective, we cannot think objectively. That is why it is so difficult to discern human viewpoint thinking. I want this and I am going to get it. And when we don't, we are frustrated when we don't get it. At some point in time, we will have to rely on the objectivity of doctrine. We cannot do this without this objectivity.

Without doctrine in your soul, automatically you are going to think human viewpoint. You cannot accidentally think divine viewpoint. If you advance spiritually, these things will happen. You will think and live divine viewpoint slowly but surely; you will take back your world from human viewpoint thinking.

1Cor. 3:19b ...For it has been written, "[He is] the One trapping the wise [ones] in their craftiness." or "God is the One Who has a total grasp of those who are willing to do anything to gain their own ends." This is an interpretive translation.

1Corinthians 3:19

February 20, 2005

Divine viewpoint is the believer's thinking which results from Bible doctrine entering into the believer's soul. When we believe it, it is ready for application to our life. All application is, is our thought process. That is our application of doctrine. Whenever human viewpoint mixes with divine viewpoint, it begins to dilute divine viewpoint in the soul. This can be a very slow process which occurs over years; or more rapid when the believer stops taking in doctrine. They begin to negotiate in their soul various human viewpoint thinking; e.g., certain bits and pieces of feminism. Equal pay for equal pay is just; but the premises of feminism lead to the overturning of the roles of husband and wife given by God. Why do believers accept this creeping human viewpoint? Often, this is because they hear it from the pulpits of America; and it comes from close associations. This is how the believer begins to rationalize two antithetical viewpoints. Eventually, you will be affected in every area of thinking. The more human viewpoint you negotiate, rationalize or accept, the less room there is for divine viewpoint in your soul. Therefore, we must be able to recognize the human viewpoint reasoning in this world that permeates our environment. Concentration upon doctrine is the only way to counteract this human viewpoint. There is a self-examination necessary. This happens constantly; we are associated with this everyday. Inculcation of doctrine is our only approach that we can take. When you stop learning doctrine, you will stop advancing spiritually, and human viewpoint will be sucked into your soul.

This picture is someone who is ready to do anything to get what they want. They are infiltrated with human viewpoint. It is man ready to do anything in order to gain his own ends; he will compromise anything to gain his own end. It allows us to rationalize whatever it is that we do in order to gain what we want. This is foolishness before God. We are fools. It is deceitful wisdom. It emanates from anyone who would do anything to gain their own ends. It is adaptable craftiness. Satan has tremendous wisdom; he is the epitome of human viewpoint wisdom. He deceives with what appears to be wisdom. Therefore, we can apply crafty worldly wisdom by which we can gain the goals and objectives of our life. In almost every aspect of our lives, we get so steeped in human viewpoint wisdom, that we even think we no longer need any doctrine. Now I have enough doctrine to get on with my life. That is an excuse to get what you want; it is an excuse to fritter away your time. I have other things that I want to do. You think what you have taken in will carry you for the rest of your life; maybe you will come in for a refresher course. You can use the vocabulary, but you don't think it. Your vocabulary never meets your thinking. Divine viewpoint is drowned in the ceaseless tide of human viewpoint, as it rolls over you every day. They wonder why, when they attain some of their human goals, that they are not satisfied. This is because they have blinded themselves with the vocabulary of doctrine; but they think human viewpoint. Once and awhile you might be able to evangelize; but you are human viewpoint in every other area.

The excuse—I hang with unbelievers so that I can evangelize them. However, there is no point in wallowing in their viewpoint in order to witness. Human viewpoint in your soul is no way to evangelize. The key is how we think, not how we talk. Who affects me; who influences me? Does your viewpoint line up with these friends of yours or is it different? Pretty soon, human viewpoint pollutes divine viewpoint.

How Does Human Viewpoint Reach Your Soul?

1. In your zeal to reach your human potential, you have close human viewpoint friends.
2. Your close friends and co-workers often have little or no doctrinal perspective.

3. You become entirely inundated in your life with their viewpoint; not with divine viewpoint.
4. With this constant exposure, your thinking converts to human viewpoint.
5. You will take on the attitudes of the people with whom you associate. You begin to see God's plan for your life as corresponding with your own plan for your life. God knows what I want, so He will give me what I want.

You put yourself in harm's way, even though it is unnecessary. You wonder why do things continually go wrong, even if you are in the midst of prosperity. God is reminding you in His love and compassion and His great wisdom that you are not thinking with divine wisdom. God will remind us with discipline. Thinking with divine viewpoint glorifies God in life. This is what the first couple chapters of Corinthians is all about. The Corinthians did not get it; so Paul, in correcting the Corinthians, is telling all of us what our objective in this life is—and it is not human viewpoint.

If human viewpoint is so insidious, how do we know it is not creeping into our soul?

1. If we think in the light of eternity, instead of our own goals in life, then that is divine viewpoint.
2. If you think with divine viewpoint, materialism and the details of life will not be paramount in your thinking.
3. If you have divine viewpoint, you will master the details of life and your impatience to have them.
4. You will
5. If you think divine viewpoint, you will gain capacity to love and not make yourself the priority in your friendship and romance.
6. You will become content with your life, regardless of the circumstances. Are you content, that is a tough one. How do you think when you are in circumstances which would cause others to be upset and frustrated; when circumstances go against you. You will share the happiness of God; that is contentment.
7. We should recognize these as the top four floors of the edification complex. If we continually build them, we will think divine viewpoint.

We see worldly wisdom as being divine wisdom.

1Cor. 3:19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it has been written, "[He is] the One trapping the wise [ones] in their craftiness." or "God is the One Who has a total grasp of those who are willing to do anything to gain their own ends." This is an interpretive translation.

The evaluation which Bobby gives us is for us only; not for anyone else. You cannot make excuses for yourself and your assessment. Don't rationalize in your soul. Reversionism is as far away as the little switch in our thinking. When human viewpoint infiltrates your thinking, your guard has been lowered. The fortress in our soul is doctrine. We are self-centered, so we think only about ourselves when it comes to our lives. Απογυια. We don't think in terms of what God will give us in His plan; but this does require patience on our part. That is when we use divine viewpoint; when we are waiting for God to give us what He is pleased to give us. When we think divine viewpoint, then God gives us what is best for us. Constantly, consistently putting things in the Lord's hands is what we need to do; when God's plan is consistently in our minds, then we can depend upon God giving us what we need and we will be content. Are you thinking divine viewpoint when you are achieving your own personal goals in life. There is nothing wrong with setting goals and attaining them in the temporal world. But when they get in the way of God's plan, then we are elevating ourselves above His plan. We don't just sit back as lazy bum's and say, "God, bring it." There is a balance there; and it is all about divine viewpoint thinking.

Let God handle it, when you are in a difficult situation or when you aren't getting what you want. You do not need to push the jet. Primary mistake to try to help God. Leads to restlessness, blind egocentric thinking. How easily do you take offense? Do you have hidden agendas in your life? Is everyone wrong except for you?

Being an expert in one field makes you think you are an expert in all fields? That you can out think anyone. Example: women can be competers instead of completers. They compete for dominance and leverage over their husbands instead of completing. They expect adoration.

Adam's Rib

1. Adam knew when he was alone in the garden that something was missing in his life, even in perfect environment. Gen. 2:18
2. This means that Adam was incomplete and he could only be completed by what God provides.
3. Recall, Gen. 2:22, 25 that God took a rib from Adam and built a woman from that rib.
4. Then that which was missing from Adam was given to him as the woman. He felt something missing in his soul; God took something from his body; and then gave the woman to him.
5. The woman was created for the man. 1Cor. 11:9: The man was not created because of the woman, but the woman was created because of the man.
6. Whatever man lacks, the woman makes up for. Every male lacks something and the woman fulfills it.
7. Although man had the priority in creation, he is still incomplete apart from what God provided. Women are the most gracious provision of God for men.
8. God defines man's eminence in the order of creation; and defines the wholeness between the two. Women are not inferior; that is a distortion of this doctrine.

9. What was taken from Adam was returned to make him whole.
10. The woman was not created to compete with him; she was not created to usurp his authority; which is a problem identified as early as Gen. 3:16. There is to be no inordinate competition here. The context of this passage is a curse; the woman will have terrible childbirth; the man will work with the sweat of his brow. There is the final couplet: her desire will be to him [which is not sex]; but he will rule over her. Her desire is to rule over him. That is the couplet aspect of this.
11. Once God brought the woman to Adam, they became ish and ishshah; or husband and wife.
12. When the rib was taken and returned as Ishshah, ish and ishshah became one flesh.
13. What does this mean? The man fulfills her and he loves her; she completes him and she respects him. The man and the woman both have roles in the marriage.
14. This is God's design; not for subjugation and slavery of the woman. Rule and leadership does not mean subjugation. This will give you a completer instead of a competitor.
15. Completer means providing something for the man which is missing; what is missing is not competition. Competition does not complete a man. Competition between husband and wife will result in bitterness and antagonism.

This is not a popular understanding in the world of this relationship. The difference between leader and follower. It is never equal. That is the way the world works. When you reverse those roles, there will be inordinate competition and turmoil.

In the military, you have a speciality; and there are leaders and there are followers. For Christian marriage, there is no other option. The husband and wife must come to understand their rolls with the bounds of marriage. The marriage contract is the role of man and woman in marriage; it is not a pre-nup. The marriage state is completely and totally described in Scripture. Marriage illustrates our relationship between Jesus Christ and His Church. Christ is the head of the Church just as the man is the head of the woman. Conversely, the man loves his wife; he willingly gives himself up as a substitute for her, just as Christ gave Himself up for the church. Christ substituted Himself for the church; He showed His integrity and leadership by His sacrifice. He still retains His authority over the church, even though He sacrificed Himself for His church. Does the man's willingness to sacrifice himself for his wife does not negate his authority over the woman. There is a balance between human viewpoint and divine viewpoint; and this is divine viewpoint. This is an example where you can determine if you are infiltrated with human viewpoint.

Marriage is more than just living together and having kids and trying to make it financially. There is much more to marriage than this. Today, for so many, it is who has the control. This creates turmoil. God's design is always the correct approach, despite what the world thinks. The world thinks that this is horrible. Many US churches want nothing to do with Eph. 5. It is very unpopular. There can be no fulfillment, no true happiness, apart from God's designs. When a wife decides she owes no deference to his leadership; or when the man thinks he owes his wife no love; then their marriage is skewed. Your thinking should be “Am I outside of God’s plan?” You don’t worry about whether your partner is meeting your needs. Always look to yourself; you only have control over your own volition. If you try to control your husband or wife; you will not solve any problems. Do not compromise divine viewpoint in marriage. You cannot demand that your partner match divine viewpoint. You have to think it; do not demand it from someone else. No control by you will change their negative volition. The biggest mistake between husbands and wives.

Summary Points

1. Husbands and wives should be extremely careful about demanding compliance even with Scriptural mandates.
2. This is particularly true when it comes to our own needs and desires. That is self-centeredness.
3. That is manipulation of Scripture; and manipulating by Scripture. You apply why you know to yourself.
4. You comply with God’s mandates in your soul.
5. Allow the opposite gender to fulfill their role in marriage; do not attempt to force it. Let them use their own volition; don’t jam it down their throats. ‘
6. We have responsibility only to ourselves with respect to divine viewpoint. You are not responsible for the viewpoint of another.
7. A husband guide, provides love, but not impatience.
8. This is the one way the wife shows deference to her husband by applying divine viewpoint.
9. That is God’s viewpoint with curbs competition between spouses. That is the difference between human viewpoint and divine viewpoint.

1Cor. 3:19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it has been written, "[He is] the One trapping the wise [ones] in their craftiness." or “God is the One Who has a total grasp of those who are willing to do anything to gain their own ends.” This is an interpretive translation.

1Corinthians 3:19–20

Lesson #118 Wednesday

February 23, 2005

You never know when you will run into those who get into doctrine. A friend of Bobby’s who does a lot of business in Europe. The train broke down and there would be a couple of hours of downtime. They could go down to the village down the road. They took the hike and sat in a sidewalk café. Rock music blaring. The music stopped; then from the top of the stairs, from a window, he heard, “The Word of God is alive and powerful...”

Divine viewpoint vs. human viewpoint is what we are studying; and human wisdom can be quite insidious. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness before God. Human viewpoint stands in the way of our advance. It would be nice if everyone had common sense and lived by the laws of divine establishment; but it is still human viewpoint just by itself.

1Cor. 3:19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it has been written, "[He is] the One trapping the wise [ones] in their craftiness." or "God is the One Who has a total grasp of those who are willing to do anything to gain their own ends." This is an interpretive translation.

V. 20 is essentially a repetition of v. 19. And again indicates that there is another quote coming up, which will be essentially the same.

Paul focuses on human viewpoint wisdom. There is always a little divine wisdom in human viewpoint, which is what makes it so insidious. Paul wants the Corinthians to know that they are way out of line with their human viewpoint. It is easy to cross this line of human viewpoint and eventually, you will leave for reversionistic thinking.

Human wisdom is a mere breath; human viewpoint is a mere breath; useless. Paul hopes to show how their wisdom has become pure evil.

Γινώσκα = what is said. God knows us and every thought that we have ever had. Nothing is hidden from God. God knows us even more intimate. We see ourselves as we want to see yourself; God sees us exactly as we are. Divine viewpoint is the thinking of God; pure divine thinking.

Reasonings = λεγοις; this is we beed ti naje rtuibak tiy I; You don't need Bible doctrine I human viewpoint. "Am I not in church and gill be given I." It is how we think under pressure ippon God. They see us as depending upon God. God is like this or like that.

They begin to question God; why is God not there when they call on Him.. God will handle the problem perfectl. You often see the world as the world sees Him. God always has our best interests at heart; they are for our benefit. We don't have to ask, "Why is God going this to me? Why is this happening to me?" These all happen for a reason, and God has our best interests at heart. Don't blame God or question Him because of our own asinine thinking.

The Corinthians are using various leaders in order to spout their human viewpoint.

How God Uses Human viewpoint Wisdom

1. Ματαιος = empty, vain, futile, useless.
2. Ματαιοτης = emptines, emptiness of soul; vanity.
3. The vacuum of the soul form by the sarkinos believer. This is when the soul is void of Bible doctrine.
4. The vacuum formed scoops up human viewpoint. There is an empty spot and it sucks in human viewpoint.
5. Blackout of the soul and reversionism. God sees us with our soul blanked out.
6. Now we will see the result of human viewpoint wisdom. Blackout is the state in which the left lobe is devoid of doctrine; no academic knowledge even is taken in.

7. The left lobe is attacked by human viewpoint. No doctrine on the launching pad; so all that we find is human viewpoint. The malfunction of GAP.
8. There can be no transfer of the left lobe to the right lobe.
9. Where this vacuum exists, human viewpoint forces divine viewpoint out. Thinking becomes distorted and subjective. Our entire thought pattern is then corrupted.
10. In the worst form, blackout of the soul can bring the believer under demon influence. Satan thinks with human viewpoint wisdom. Satan understands the wisest of human viewpoint, because he invented it.
11. However, ματαιος is a milder word. It does not refer to our soul void of divine viewpoint in this context; but it refers to human viewpoint itself. Human viewpoint is void of any valuable content. Human viewpoint is useless in our souls.

Principle

1. Thought pattern of the Corinthians is devoid of wisdom.
2. It is human viewpoint which lacks divine wisdom. It has not spiritual value.
3. Human viewpoint wisdom is always opposed to divine wisdom. The result that we see in Corinth is factionalism, false doctrine, and human viewpoint thinking.
4. Therefore, realize that human viewpoint wisdom is useless for building the edification complex. Some will try to build their lives around human viewpoint wisdom; and that is useless.
5. Human viewpoint wisdom is a breath of air; a fleeting value at best in our temporal life.
6. Even though it has some value for this world, it still makes covert inroads into our soul. Why take partial wisdom when it can be complete wisdom? Why are we affected by friends who give us human viewpoint wisdom, when we have access to so much more.
7. Ματαιος wisdom will lead to human viewpoint thinking opposed to doctrine.
8. Ματαιος is useless for bonafide divine production in the Christian life.

1Cor. 3:20 And again, "[The] LORD knows the thought processes of the wise [ones], that they are futile [or, useless]." [Psalm 94:11]

Psalm 94:11 Yahweh knows the thoughts of man, that they are futile.

1Corinthians 3:20

Lesson #119 Thursday

February 24, 2005

In order to evaluate our spiritual life, we need to see ourselves as God sees us. With the mind of Christ implanted in our souls, we can begin to see ourselves as God sees us. It is His Word which gives us the criterion. We must be grace-oriented in order to recognize our own fallacious thinking. When human viewpoint is so difficult to distinguish from divine viewpoint.

The reasonings of the wise; they are useless; when God is left out of the equation, it's value is nil. Human viewpoint is empty of any true value.

Review of Principles of V. 20

1. Paul aims v. 20 as a repudiation of the thought pattern of the divisive false teachers in Corinth who are completely voice of divine viewpoint.
2. Their thinking may constitute some human wisdom; but it is still human viewpoint with no spiritual value. Human viewpoint, even when it takes on some spiritual truths, has no value even mixed. Sooner or later, the human viewpoint will push the divine viewpoint right out of your soul.
3. Human viewpoint is opposed to divine wisdom and the results are: factionalism, false doctrine, pollution of human viewpoint. Kind of like an oil spill. The Corinthians cannot understand doctrine, so they cannot apply it.
4. Human viewpoint is useless when it comes to constructing the edification complex. Human wisdom is comparable to gnosis in the left lobe of the soul, except that it is not pure doctrine. Gnosis can be transferred to the left lobe; human viewpoint cannot be transferred in this way.
5. According to Psalm 94:11, human viewpoint wisdom is but a breath of air; it has value in the temporal life; but not in our spiritual life.
6. The mix of human viewpoint wisdom and divine viewpoint will make covert inroads into the soul of the believer. One human viewpoint
7. Μακαίος = useless; this useless wisdom leads to ever more
8. Μακαίος is useless when it comes to building the edification complex.

1Cor. 3:20 And again, "[The] LORD knows the thought processes of the wise, that they are futile [or, useless]." [Psalm 94:11]

vv. 21–22 is the conclusion to this chapter. They are steeped in human viewpoint. Paul says, Don't boast in man. Put the focus back on God. Recall, they had different leaders that they exalted; and Paul wants them to refocus on God. "Why should you become followers of truculent, false teachers in your midst?"

What happens when we become a follower of some Godless, soulish man. Goodbye to doctrine from human viewpoint seduction.

Goodbye to Doctrine

1. By our associations, we will fall into the trap of elevating human viewpoint to the rule of our life. This is what happens to us when Bible doctrine is forced from our lives. Our norms and doctrine. If we cannot recognize him.
2. As we are trapped by human viewpoint wisdom, we begin to lose our spiritual values.
3. We no longer have insights as to the...it is destructive because it can lead to legalism.

4. You can no longer resist the lusts of the old sin nature and the temptations of the old sin nature. They begin to rule over us. It is easy to go along in order to get along.
5. In this case, doctrine has been squelched in our soul. We speak the vocabulary, but we cannot apply doctrine.
6. Results:
  - a. We live in turmoil; constant.
  - b. Nothing seems to go right.
  - c. I need to gripe; I'll feel better if I do.
  - d. You react to setbacks. They are often you fulfill your goals.
  - e. You begin to find a band-aid solution to stop the bleeding and close the wound.
  - f. When you are in reaction, you begin to blame others for the your lousy life.
  - g. The only avenue left for us is a frantic search for happiness.
  - h. The details of life take over; materialism becomes your God.
  - i. The patience then to wait on the Lord for His timing, blessings and solutions completely escapes us.
  - j. Mistakes in important places in your life.

About to make some application in our lives. Human viewpoint is subtle; we need to put everything aside and see God as God sees us. We must have some residual doctrine in order to be able to see ourselves. Flattery or criticism can confuse us or cause us to think outside of divine viewpoint. Don't look at our successes or failures. We're supposed to search the recesses of our soul for our weaknesses. If we don't recognize it, then we don't know what we are. There is a requirement for us to do this. We must have divine viewpoint to look inside ourselves. We are deluding ourselves. We tend to see ourselves better than we actually are. We must see what is empty and useless in our spiritual life. When you recognize human viewpoint, then we have a chance to keep it out. We will be frustrated, unfulfilled, etc., if we are guided by human viewpoint. When you want to control everything and everyone around us, then we are operating under human viewpoint. Forget about controlling and manipulating others.

Present active imperative of καυχᾶσθαι = to exalt, to rejoice, to boast, to give glory to. Boast about the Lord in 1Cor. 1:31 is instead of boasting in oneself. The Corinthians were putting their honor and confidence in mankind...in the wrong place. They are not saying, "I am of doctrine" but "I am of this or that person." I love so-and-so who is my pastor. It does not matter what you think of your pastor's personality. It depends upon what he teaches.

The ones who said, "I am of Christ" were no closer to the truth than anyone else. They were boasting in the person of Christ without understanding His mind and thinking. They were using the name of Jesus Christ to further their own interests. You can claim the name of Christ and be as far away from the truth as is possible. They put their trust in these men, but they were not honoring the doctrine of the men they claimed to honor.

They espoused the opposite of what they were attempting to teach. “But all things belong to you” says Paul to the Corinthians. The unlimited assets of the Christian life. The filling of the Holy Spirit. What possibly can human wisdom offer? We have the mind of Christ; why would we want the mind of man? God is the God of the universe; the universe is His and therefore the universe is ours. Paul is giving these people an incredible doctrinal perspective. We must be on guard our entire spiritual life; that is what spiritual maturity is all about. Are you mature? How often do you think of doctrinal issue, or take a doctrinal approach; that is thinking with the mind of Christ. Human viewpoint will be forced out. The Corinthians are not doing this; and Paul is attempting to guide them to thinking divine viewpoint.

1Cor. 3:21 So then, let no one be boasting in people, for all [things] are yours***,

1Corinthians 3:21

Lesson #120 Sunday 1

February 27, 2005

Paul has been comparing human viewpoint to divine viewpoint. He begins to make his conclusions with v. 21. Paul will close out here his general argument and reproof of the Corinthians. This will sum up all that he has been telling them. The Corinthians have an erroneous viewpoint. Don't boast about the things of this world, including your own wisdom and factions.

Why Is Boasting in Human Viewpoint Always Useless

1. Because boasting in men means you have fallen into the trap of elevating human viewpoint wisdom to the rule of your life.
2. Your norms and standards have regressed to the human viewpoint level of those with whom you have chosen to associate. You human viewpoint friends, your romantic partners, etc.; these are ones you emulate in your thinking.
3. You will lose the ability to distinguish between human viewpoint from divine viewpoint. Sometimes distinguishing can be very subtle and human viewpoint often mixes with divine viewpoint.
4. That is when the sin nature's area of strength appears to be good to the world. It becomes critical when the human viewpoint becomes your view of life. When your area of strength takes over, legalism encroaches your soul.
5. From that situation, you know that doctrine has been displaced.
6. When no doctrine is applied from your right lobe, the lack of application is revealed by...
  - 1) You are consistently aggravated by circumstances; there are times when you are happy, but you are not content.
  - 2) When you are agitated and aggravated, then you attempt to control your environment.
  - 3) That will inevitably fail. You will eventually react to all the set backs in your own personal plan for your life. This increases your aggravation.
  - 4) Now you are unhappy; and you spend more time aggravated than happy and you are going to attempt to fix this under your own power without doctrine.

- 5) You only have one avenue left to us, apart from doctrine. A frantic search for happiness and a frantic search for fulfillment and sublimation. The details of life become one of your great priorities.
- 6) Tragically, you lose the patience in life to wait on the Lord for His timing and His solutions.
- 7) Inevitably, you will make terrible decisions in life that we will end up regretting them for a long time and they will have extended repercussions. Just realize, that there is always a solution to your problems. All of this is recoverable.
- 8) As Paul says, forget it and move on. God can take these things and fix them in His own time.
- 9) You will end up having a handful of nothing in this life, even though you may have everything by way of details. We are blessed with incredible blessings and resources in this country.
- 10) When we are like this, it is the equivalent to boasting in men. This is boasting in our own accomplishments and boasting in human viewpoint wisdom. We are unfulfilled, disappointed in our life, and totally frustrated.

V. 21 is Paul's rebuttal to our aggravation and human viewpoint. All things are yours. These are the unlimited assets of the spiritual life: the filling of the Holy Spirit and the ability to build the edification complex. Paul is saying, "Get your eyes off yourself and off your friends and off human viewpoint, and focus on God's Word. Why limit yourself to your own thinking when you have the option of knowing the mind of Christ. Remove the egocentric and anthropocentric thinking which permeates your soul."

1Cor. 3:21 So then, let no one be boasting in people, for all [things] are yours*,...

Paul continues this in v. 22. We have an incredible number of resources. Paul has given some negative examples and now he will give positive examples. The Corinthians have their eyes on the man and not upon the message. They are great men of the faith because they are great men of doctrine and not because they are great men. Κοσμος = world. We normally think of κοσμος as the devil's world. How can Paul say this world belongs to us if this is Satan's domain. Rom. 12:14: we are the heirs of this world. We will reign over this world. It will be taken from the master of the world and given to us. As church age believers, we will return with Him and we will rule with Him. Not the world as it is this moment, but the world which is to come. Rom. 8:38–39: For I am sure that neither death nor life, nor angels nor rulers, nor things present nor things to come, nor powers, nor height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Our focus must be on eternity; we must view all things in the light of eternity; not on men and not on human viewpoint. God gives to us living grace; and then death. But death is a provision. Philip. 1:21: To live is Christ, but to die is profit. Whether adversity or prosperity, God's grace has us covered. He has designed His plan exactly for us. The things present are always for our best interest. If you view things in the light of eternity, what does it matter that you are successful or unsuccessful in life. What does it matter if people think well of you? What does it matter if people like you? However, not all of us will reach these pinnacles of human achievement—what does it matter to anyone or anything when it comes to the Judgment Seat of Christ? What does it matter in the light of eternity. What will matter is that we advanced to maturity. Living in the light of eternity does not mean that you sit on your thumbs; you do not ignore your temporal life. We all have a part in this life; we do not move away from most people, starve ourselves and wear itchy clothing. Living our life in the light of eternity means that we continue in God's plan, which includes human activities and achievements.

In v. 22, Paul reiterates all that we have in Christ. Jer. 17:5: Thus says the LORD, "Cursed is the man who trusts in man and makes flesh his strength, whose heart turns away from the LORD." These people in Corinth put their trust in false teachers and human viewpoint. In the logistics of life, what is our trust in? You have friends who may not always think well of you; because they know you. Where is your perspective? In the light of eternity or are your eyes on people? The grace of God is the all things. Without the grace of God, the world would crush us complete. It is easy to have capacity for life when things are going well; not so easy when things are not going well.

1Cor. 3:22 ...whether Paul or Apollos or Cephas [i.e. Peter] or [the] world or life or death or [things] present or [things] about to be, all [things] are yours*,...

1Corinthians 3:23–4:1

Lesson #121 Sunday 2

February 27, 2005

The Corinthians are a miserable bunch. Paul has given them corrections. He is not finished with them yet. At the end of this chapter, he is giving them a little encouragement. "You don't belong to these factions that you have allied yourself with, but you belong to Christ," is the gist of what Paul is saying to them. These Corinthians are all divided in their church. Ownership is his point here: you are property of Jesus Christ.

We need to see ourselves as God sees us. We have the wisdom of the world, which is no wisdom at all. It is our thinking which defines us; human viewpoint or divine viewpoint. We are owned for eternity, in the positional sense, forever. This is the temporal sense. Paul wants them to know. We are not owned by ourselves but by Jesus Christ. We miss out on great blessing if we attempt to own ourselves. Jesus Christ owns us; we belong to Him.

1Cor. 3:23a ...but you* [are] Christ's,...

Then we have the disputed phrase: and Christ [is] God's. The problem is, this appears to put Jesus in a subordinate position. As the Church is subject to Christ, so is Christ subject to God.

The Subordination of Christ to God the Father

1. Jesus was dependent upon God; He was empowered by the Holy Spirit, just as we are. His mode of subsistence and mode of operation show His subordination to God in His humanity.

2. There is the voluntary subordination to God becoming a man; the doctrine of Kenosis.
3. Jesus Christ is subordinate to God the Father in the work of redemption. Christ bowed to the will of the Father in order to take on the sins of the world. “Not My will, but Your will be done.” Christ, in His deity, was never subordinate; in His humanity, He was.
4. Jesus is subordinate to the plan of God in order to redeem us.

We are owned by Christ and Christ is owned by God. Jesus Christ is our pioneer; He pioneered our spiritual life. We are subordinate to Him and He is subordinate to the Father. This final statement executed God's plan in order that we might be in union with Him. Being subordinate to Him is a wonderful thing; it is something that we should never be ashamed of. Everything goes back to the Father and His plan.

Summary of What We Have Learned So Far

1. The Corinthians are all wrapped up in factions. They are anthropocentric losers, wrapped up in people.
2. Paul has pointed out the foolishness and the uselessness of this world and the foolishness and uselessness of elevating mankind.
3. Paul has pointed out the folly of following false teaching from other leaders. You don't follow the factions, you don't follow the man; you follow what is taught. Let no one boast in men, because all things belong to you.
4. This is a title to a fortune. We are rich; but not as a divided church. That is not wealth.
5. Here is what the all things are:
  - 1) The indwelling of the Holy Spirit.
  - 2) We are the shrine of the Shekinah Glory.
  - 3) We are in union with Christ with 39 irrevocable absolutes.
  - 4) We have the mind of Christ.
  - 5) We have the potential to build the edification complex in the soul which transcends anything which man can accomplish. We have that potential because we have the all things.
  - 6) We can master the details of life. If only I had that great car, that big house, all the money that he has. These people have these things for a short time; and we will have these things for all eternity.
  - 7) We can have a relaxed mental attitude in adversity and contentment with what we have. Paul has been teaching contentment to these malcontents.
  - 8) We can develop capacity for love. We don't get upset when we observe someone's feet of clay or someone seems to mess up our plans for the moment. Capacity for love is impersonal and personal love both. When someone takes you to the cleaners, what does it matter in the light of eternity? The Corinthians are getting an incredible perspective. Human viewpoint is useless; divine viewpoint is everything. The only way for us to look at life is from the light of eternity.

9) We can share the happiness of God regardless of our circumstances.

1Cor. 3:23b ...and Christ [is] God's.

The pastor teacher should never be in competition with anyone. Pastors all study from the same book. But in Corinth, there were false teachers and factions as far away from correct doctrine as they could be.

No pastor wants to shortchange his congregation. The discipline for that is astronomical. The pastor teacher is a dispenser of truth. He is a communicator of the Word of God, independent of his weaknesses and personality; and despite the opposition. None of it matters; Bobby is a servant of Christ.

Paul is now dealing with Apollos, who is the Corinthian pastor.

1Cor. 4:1 Let a person be considering us in this way, as attendants of Christ and stewards of [the] secrets [or, mysteries, and throughout book] of God.

1Corinthians 4:1

Lesson #122 Wednesday

March 2, 2005

No Bible class next week Wednesday/Thursday

Chapter 4 goes in a new direction, although it does build on what has gone before. He has previously pounded the Corinthians concerning what is wrong with them; now he will explain what is right with himself and his teaching. The pastor-teacher is to serve the church. The factions have set one pastor and two Apostles against each other in terms of whom they have aligned themselves with (not the actual pastors or Apostles). There is no competition for the pastor. The PT is a dispenser of truth, as he has learned it through God the Holy Spirit. Regardless of his personality, his weaknesses, his opposition, etc. The pastor teaches and there is pos. vol. The pastor begins the process in conjunction with the Holy Spirit and with the positive volition of his congregation.

There is Apollos, an eloquent teacher of doctrine. There is also Peter, who is a stirring orator and a motivator for his congregation. A pastor teacher is not the servant of one group who favors him. The church must respond to the pastor in unison to their right pastor. Every pastor should have the same message of doctrine. Pastors have different personalities and different teaching styles; they will be different—that is normal. Every believer has a pt that he or she can learn from best. We have favorite teachers in school and we learned best from them. There was something in them that we learned from the most. One pastor will teach and motivate you more than others. Some you cannot stand and some you can learn under; and many in between. They should study and teach the same Scripture and teach the same doctrine. They should advance their congregation. The pastor teacher should have a message and an objective.

When we advance quickly, then we are a unit which faces the toughest missions. Believers does become casualties when they operate out-front and isolated from other believers. Combat units fight together; so move together as a unit. Paul must correct the thinking of the Corinthian church and their predilection for factiousness.

Paul is a servant of Christ, and not of men or factions. Believers in some churches see themselves as being the boss of the pastor. When the pastor appeases his group, but does not lead them, he is not doing his job. It is the doctrine which grabs us by the lapels and tells us to get straight. It is not the pastor.

When you begin to criticize is the beginning of negative volition. Get your eyes on the man and not the message, and that begins factions. Bobby's authority comes from the Word of God. When we begin to disdain the teaching of our pastor, we become disgruntled. Whether you agree with them or now is not a good criterion. If you listen to a pastor teacher. Not a single pastor teacher who will get it right. Pastors are fallible. "Can I control him?" is a questions that some ask themselves.

No pastor is directly responsible to their own congregations. If Bobby loses momentum in his own life, he will soon be unable to lead his own congregation.

Summary of the first 5 Verses

1. He puts the servants of Christ in the right perspective. We are all servants of Christ.
2. Each faction gloried a leader or recruited for that leader. That is devisiveness. That is a power grab, that is all that is.
3. These people had lost perspective and had their own agendas in the church.
4. Paul will make it clear that the pastor teachers and evangelists and other leaders in the church.
5. Each pastor is, in effect, a slave to his mission of studying and teaching; evangelizing and leading. I am your slave, but you don't run my show.
6. The most important quality that a pastor can have is faithfulness to that mission.
7. Then Paul makes it clear that the sheep are not the judges of pastoral faithfulness. That is not the job of the sheep. If Paul is not faithful, this is between him and God.
8. There is only one competent to judge his servants. He is the only one qualified to render judgment. Only God can do this.
9. The pastor teacher will be judged harshly for failure to perform his mission. Bobby has a greater responsibility, which makes the punishment greater.
10. The final judgment of the pt is the Judgment Seat of Christ.

The adverb which begins this is houtos oútos = thus, so. Paul has already asked, "Who are these guys that you call your leaders? They are all servants of Christ." This is 1Cor. 3:5. Do not let anyone boast in man (1Cor. 3:21). The Corinthians used the names of these leaders to justify their own power lust. They wanted these men to be servants of the factions instead of servants of the Lord. Paul says, "I am not furthering any faction." Paul is a pastor who serve all the church; and as an Apostle, he served all churches.

Λογιζομαι = to think, to consider. This is an imperative mood which makes it a mandate. It is directed toward us. This is an entreaty, not a mandate. Paul is softening the blow. I guess because this is a 3rd person imperative? These believers must make an entreaty from their own volition. Think of pastors as servants; but as servants to God. There is never an excuse not to operate from divine viewpoint. Consider obeying and then obey.

Then the noun ὑπηρητης = servant, attendant. This is a substitute for διακονος; however, this is a word that can be used for church leadership. However, this new word cannot refer to leadership. It will have great meaning for the Corinthians because of heir background. This is a nautical term in classical Greek. Could there be a parallel to αποστολος? They are both nautical terms. Paul used just the right word at just the right church at just the right time.

1Cor. 4:1 Let a person be considering us in this way, as attendants of Christ and stewards of [the] secrets [or, mysteries, and throughout book] of God.

1Corinthians 4:1

Lesson #123 Thursday

March 3, 2005

These men should be seen as servants; and the Corinthians are bragging about their servants. Now, these are servants of God, not of the church at Corinth. Present active imperative of λογιζομαι = to think about, to consider. This is an imperative of entreaty; it is a weaker imperative than a direct mandate. Let a man think about the following: this gives the Corinthians an option. They can consider Paul's imperative. This obligates them to think of their pastors in a certain way—the way that God wants them to think. It is divine viewpoint, so it must be complied with. Think of Paul and Apollos as servants. ὑπηρέτης = servant. This word is used instead of δεακονος. When Paul is done, the Corinthians will know exactly what it means for them to be servants.

Etymology of ὑπηρέτης

1. This is an undertier of a trireen. An athenian fighting ship. Three tiers of oarsmen; one tier on top, in a fairly open area. Then one in the middle and some at the bottom.
2. This ship was used as a weapon and the one weapon was a battering ram. The way this was done was they moved quickly to another ship and ran into it. Side to side, it was 18 ft. and 120 ft. long.
3. 170 oarsmen on each side of the ship. Each oarsman had 2'9" in which to row and had to function in that size. One man per oar. Maneuver was all important when it came to war. They could travel at around 7 nauts for 184 nautical miles.
4. Solomos battle saw 100,000 men went down; and the Greeks defeated the Persians. I think? This occurred right before the book of Esther opens up?

5. The rowers can see the ocean and those on the third tier would always be wet from the ocean. These guys were not allowed to leave the benches to use the bathroom. The lowest rung got the worst of it. Very uncomfortable.
6. The third tier set the pace of the ship.
7. In 697 B.C.. It was in the city of Corinth where the first people built the trireen. This is what they did; they were ship builders. This word has an impact on the Corinthians.
8. And Paul calls himself a ὑπηρέτης, and this came to mean an underling; entire submission.
9. Paul uses this word only here. Luke uses the word once in the book of Acts. Paul used it here as these Greeks would understand its usage here.
10. ὑπηρέτης = complete subordinate, underling.
11. Paul is subordinate to Christ.
12. The Lord possesses these third tier rowers.

Summary

1. The pastor teacher is not to be flattered as a celebrity or manipulated by members of the congregation.
2. Neither are they lackies to those in the congregation.
3. Paul is not the lackey of any special interest group.
4. Paul is a subordinate to Christ.
5. Paul is NOT a celebrity. No one can claim Paul is the celebrity of their faction.

Paul is not their servant; he is completely subordinate to the Lord Jesus Christ; but is not under the control of the Corinthians. A parishioner who donates a lot of money often thinks this buys him some say-so in the church and the pastor who submits to that will be compromised. The pastor is a servant of Christ and not of any special interest group or of any faction. This is a corrective directed toward the Corinthians; but he is not berating the Corinthians. Factionalism is not a part of the church.

Οικονομος = a responsible member of a household/to distribute, to apportion. This is a responsible member of a household who is entrusted with the distribution of a major household. He distributed the resources of a household. Joseph did this for Potipher. When some is called a good steward of the Lord think of this as someone who gives a lot of money and is careful with it. Grace orientation must be what dictates how one manages their money. Stewardship is not synonymous with being parsimonious. Grace means that sometimes you are very generous. Being a good steward of the Lord is seen as related to money; but it is not used that way here. The steward here is the pastor. Certain things are dispensed for the benefit of others. Here, Paul is to dispense the truth which God has revealed to him. The truths referred to are μυστηριον = mystery. Genitive plural. Genitive of description, but not of possession. The steward is characterized by the mysteries. Possessive genitive of θεος. Stewards characterized by the mysteries which belong to God. Here, one is to distribute as much as possible. Mysteries are the doctrines concerned with the new dispensation of the church. These are doctrines which are now revealed by Paul, but they were not revealed prior to this time period.

Mysteries

1. Deut. 29:29: The secret things belong to the Lord our God, but the things revealed belong to us and our sons forever. Israel did not know the mysteries. They only knew what was revealed in their dispensations.
2. "I have many more things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now. However, when He, the Spirit of Truth comes, He will reveal to you all things."
3. Rom. 16:25: According to the revelation of the mystery which was kept secret since the world began.

1Cor. 4:1 Let a person be considering us in this way, as attendants of Christ and stewards of [the] secrets [or, mysteries, and throughout book] of God.

How Dispensationalism is Different from Other Theological Viewpoints

1. Israel and the Church are different.
2. Eschatology is different; what happens after the rapture of the Church.
3. The rapture of the Church is different from the second advent.
4. You must understand dispensationalism in order to interpret Scripture accurately.

1Corinthians 4:1

Lesson #124 Sunday 1

March 6, 2005

The Bible is the source of all doctrine. Those who did not claim Paul made him their object of scorn and criticism. This was power politics, without the leaders actually taking part in the politics. These politics got in the way of the teaching of the Word of God. One faction has elevated Paul to a celebrity status while the others held him in low esteem. From a human standpoint, Paul seems to be a celebrity. He has written most of the New Testament (apart from Luke). This group wanted to become the preeminent faction of their church, and they attacked Peter and Apollos. Each faction elevated their own man and attacked the other men. Paul wants to correct this horrid power play. Paul will not launch a direct attack, as he has done in the previous 3 chapters; but he will now mount an indirect attack against the factions. He will not tell them what to do, but he will tell them what the Apostles and pastors ought to be doing. The Corinthians want to use these men as pawns. These men are glorified so that these factions can assume power.

ὑπηρέτης = servant. This was originally a classical Greek word referring to the men on the bottom tier of the trireme, an ancient Greek ship. 120 ft. long. 18 ft. across; 170 men total, 31, 27, 27 for the top, middle and the bottom. There was very little space for them to row. One man per oar and they could not get out of synch. One man out of synch threw everything out of whack. There was a battering ram built into the helm of the ship. They would maneuver their ship so that their battering ram would run into the side of another ship. This took speed and precise maneuvering. The Greeks used this to soundly defeat the battle at Solamos when they defeated Ahasuerus. This puts Paul down on the 3rd tier of oarsmen. This is a very low position for him to occupy. Those on the bottom rung were only inches above the water line. They were wet and uncomfortable all the time. No one had a bathroom break. There was a trickle down effect because of that. They set the pace for the rest of the ship, and the others followed their lead. Paul was not belittling himself nor was he exalting himself. This was a term that was completely apropos for his position and function. He was the heart of a hard-working war ship. The Corinthians in 697 B.C., the Corinthians were the first to build ships with 2 tiers of oars. Therefore, these Corinthians knew exactly what Paul was saying. They understood fully Paul's position. Paul only used this term here. This was a careful choice on the part of Paul (used by Luke in the book of Acts once). This means entire submission; entire subordination. Paul leaves no confusion about his position. However, he is not without critical value. The church could not exist apart from his position. He is not subordinate or inferior to the Corinthian church or to any of the factions. He was subordinate only to the Lord.

Οικονομος = steward; the trusted member of a household to distribute the riches of the household. Οικος = responsible member of a household. Νεμω = to distribute, to apportion. Today, this would be a pastor-teacher. Paul is responsible for communicating the truth of God's Word. The steward is characterized by the mysteries, which is what he dispenses. He is not a mystery writer; he is a writer of mysteries, which is affixed to the genitive of possession θεου. These mysteries had never been revealed in the past; however, Paul was revealing them at this point in time. These doctrines are directly from God and they pertain to the church alone. They are a dispensational distinctive. Paul is a dispenser of the mysteries, which have great emphasis. They have critical importance. These mysteries are important to us as well.

Doctrine of the Mysteries

1. Background: Moses was speaking to Israel on the plains of Moab before they move into the Land of Promise: "The secret things belong to the Lord our God. But the things revealed to us belong to us and to our sons forever, that we may observe all the words of the Law."
2. God gave the Law to Israel to guide them in their life as believers and it was given through Moses. Later honed by the prophets.
3. But there were other secret things which Moses alluded to that God did not reveal to Israel. Deut. 29:29.
4. Believers heard these mysteries during our Lord's 1st advent. Jesus: I have many more things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now. But when He, the Spirit of Truth comes, He will guide you into all truth. He will not speak on His own initiative, but whatever he speaks, He will reveal. John 16.
5. Rom. 16:25: According to the revelation of the mysteries which had been kept secret since the world began.
6. To the church, God has revealed mysteries that neither Moses nor the nation of Israel, ever knew. The doctrine of the mystery is now manifested.
7. A definition of mystery doctrines: doctrines never revealed previously to those of the church age.

8. Μυστεριον was a reference to the secret doctrines of the ancient Greek fraternities. Only those who were initiated in the fraternities knew the mysteries. When you go through the initiation, and submit yourself to the initiation rites, you learned the mystery doctrines. These rites were involved with a pantheon of Greek gods and these were demons. Drugs used to bring about whatever and there was human sacrifice, even child sacrifice involved. Guthrie The Greeks and their Gods. Madness or mania is a word describing what the women went through in these mysteries.
9. When Paul uses μυστεριον he is drawing from this ancient usage. He uses the word without the degeneracy involved. This became a technical designation for New Testament doctrine. This could only be for Church Age believers. We have, in essence, pledged a fraternity. No one prior to this time period knew that this was coming.

1Cor. 4:1 Let a person be considering us in this way, as attendants of Christ and stewards of [the] secrets [or, mysteries, and throughout book] of God.

1Corinthians 4:1

Lesson #125 Sunday 2

March 6, 2005

The servant of Christ is not subordinate to any other human being. The oikonomos is a dispenser of the mysteries of God. Point #9 completed above.

10. Mystery doctrine separates the dispensations of the Church Age and Israel. The protocol plan of God. Protocol: a rigid long established code prescribing complete deference to superior rank and authority followed by strict adherence to coupled by precisely correct procedure. Our code of protocol is the mystery doctrine. The authority of our protocol is the Lord Jesus Christ. The precisely correct procedure is based upon precedence. Our precedence is the modus operandi of the humanity of Jesus Christ. Our precedence is the spiritual life of Jesus Christ. In other words, the protocol plan is the spiritual life pioneered by the Lord Jesus Christ in the First Advent. It was never before known before the Lord Jesus Christ pioneered it during His time on earth. So the Old Testament ritual dispensations provide no part of the structure of the Christian way of life. The Old Testament rituals are gone. Christ is the end of the Law. There are principals that we can follow; unfortunately, there is a tendency to apply the Mosaic Law as part of the Christian way of life. Legalism and morality are often substituted for the virtue of the Christian way of life. The unique aspect of the Spirit-filled virtue from spiritual advance. The precisely correct procedure becomes the Mosaic Law as opposed to our spiritual life defined by the life of Jesus Christ. This brings all sorts of aberrations into the Christian way of life. There are several denominations who observe the Sabbath; some on Saturday and some on Sunday. Sabbath observance is part of the Mosaic Law; it is not part of our spiritual life. How many churches demand 10% of your income? This is not related at all to grace-orientation. We interject liturgies. This has nothing to do with living the spiritual life in the Church Age. Universal priesthood of the Church Age is a mystery doctrine. There is no specialized priesthood as found in the Old Testament. We have direct access to God. All 3 members of the Trinity dwell in us. We confess our sins directly to God. We do not go through an intermediary. This is one of the important points of dispensationalism. All these perversions are caused by the intrusion of the Mosaic Law into the spiritual life of believers. The churches of America throw in all kinds of perversions into the spiritual way of life. This is why Paul is the teacher of the mysteries of the Church Age.

11. Revealed by the mystery doctrine are the advantages that the church has over Israel.
  - a. Israel never had 100% availability of divine power through God the Holy Spirit. Only a small number of people had indument of power from God the Holy Spirit.
  - b. Israel did not have the indwelling of all three members of the Trinity.
  - c. We are heirs to everthing. We share everything which belongs to Jesus Christ.
12. Therefore, no precedence exists with Israel for the Church Age believer. Our precedence are the mystery doctrines purveyed to us by the pastor-teacher.
13. All precedents for the plan of God for the Church is taken from the prototype spiritual life of the Lord Jesus Christ. Our Lord established the precedence for the Christian way of life. He matured spiritually. He reached the penthouse rather quickly. He shared the happiness of God. He was the victor; we are victors. We have exactly what the humanity of Jesus Christ had to function in this life. That is unique and part of the mystery doctrine. His resurrection set the precedence. If Jesus Christ did not rise from the grave, we would be worshipping a dead God. It gives validity to our faith. We will possess the same body that our Lord Jesus Christ had when he revealed Himself to 500 people.
14. The mystery doctrine defines our spiritual life. All of the doctrine of the New Testament defines our spiritual life; not the Mosaic Law. We have all kinds of concerns over the Ten Commandments being on the lawn. This does represent the rule of Law, which is how we live in this country. Bobby gives his opinion on this matter. The government will not start passing laws to enforce some sort of prescribed religion. Highly unlikely.
15. The gift of pastor-teacher is not found in the Old Testament. Eph. 3:8–9: To me, the very least of all [the] holy ones, was given this grace, to proclaim the Gospel among the Gentiles, the unfathomable riches of Christ, and to enlighten all [as to] what [is] the administration of the secret, the one having been hidden from the ages in God, the One having created all things through Jesus Christ Paul has a very critical mission, even though he is the least of the saints. Those in the Old Testament would love to know these things. We can learn the mystery doctrine like no one else could. We have an incredible number of resources no available to believers in previous dispensations. Part of the fraternity is, they shared the destiny of the gods; we share the destiny of our God, Jesus Christ. 1Tim. 3:9: holding the secret [or, mystery] of the faith in a pure conscience. We have what they do not have. This is the highest form of worship. Unprecedented. The edification complex becomes our reachable goal. Every believer is an ambassador for the Lord Jesus Christ; responsible for witnessing. "Go unto the world and proclaim the good news." We are invisible heroes with great impact. No one can have the sort of impact that we have. We are royalty and royalty is privileged. No Jew in Old Testament is called royal family. We are directly related to the King of kings of Lord of lords. Royalty has protocol, precedence and we live by a certain code and we must know that procedure. That is why we are in church; to know that procedure.

16. The sequence of eschatology which was never before revealed is all defined in the mystery doctrine. Israel had no clue as to what would happen in the future. It is a part of the Christian doctrine. It does encourage you with regards to the light of eternity. This sequence begins with the rapture of the church and then the bama seat of Christ. The evaluation seat. No one knew about that before and we know what will happen there. We will stand in front of Jesus Christ. The tribulation will take place while we are there. Daniel's 70th week was a gap and it was well-defined in Revelation, but not known prior to this. The Age of Israel is not completed yet. Then, of course, the kingdom; the Millennium; the one the rejected at the first advent. It is a part of the mystery understanding. Then the eternal state, which we will be in. The desolution of the previous heaven and earth and so we will live with the Lord Jesus Christ forever. Let a man consider us in this manner: as complete subordinates of Christ, stewards characterized by the mysteries which belong to God. (1Cor. 4:1).

1Corinthians 4:1

Lesson #126 Sunday 1

March 13, 2005

Bobby reviews the huperêtês; those on the 3rd tier, the oarsmen, who set the pace for all the other oarsmen. This word is extremely descriptive of himself. He was not humiliating himself. He was critical to the operation of the church. He should not be belittled nor should he be raised to a superstar attraction, as the leader of one faction over another faction. Paul was the heart of the function of the church. He was the communicator of certain doctrines of the church. Paul also used the word oikonomos; this is a steward; the responsible member of a household. He is entrusted with the communications of the household. This passage refers to pastors and to Apostles both. The pastor is the dispenser of truth for the benefit of the church. He teaches us about the resources which God has provided for us. Paul was the purveyor or the steward of the mystery doctrines. These doctrines are called mysteries, as these are doctrines unknown to the family of God until taught by the Apostles and those with the gift of knowledge. The protocol plan is our advantage over all Old Testament believers. We have more strength and power available to us by God the Holy Spirit in this dispensation over all of those in previous dispensations. First and foremost, we have the filling of the Holy Spirit. We also have the grace apparatus for perception, which was not available until the Church Age. We can also construct the edification complex of the soul. We can also develop problem-solving devices. These mysteries encompass the whole package of our resources. We can accomplish all that God has entrusted to us. We're privileged.

As Bobby teaches mystery doctrines, we learn the mystery doctrines.

1Cor. 4:1 Let a person be considering us in this way, as complete subordinates [those rowers on the 3rd tier] of Christ and stewards of [the] secrets [or, mysteries, and throughout book] of God.

Paul continues in the next verse. A passive voice, which means an attribute is required of a steward or of a pastor. This is a quality that every man in the pastorate must have. This attribute is a critical word, which is an absolute requirement of the ministry.

iva = that. When used with the subjunctive mood, as it is used here, it means in order that. It is found with the aorist passive subjunctive of εὕρισκω = to find. Subjunctive mood means that this is a volitional choice; he must be filled with the Holy Spirit first.

Πιστος = trustworthy, faithful, dependable, inspiring trust. This is a critical quality required of a steward of God. Very important of those who handle the teaching of God's Word. Paul hammers away at this word: be faithful. His meaning is that there is a primary quality which is required, for handling the truth of God's Word. As a dispenser of truth, he must be faithful to those under his teaching. He must be faithful and dependable because that is his charge. Believers at Berachah belong to Christ, not to Bobby. Bobby is just temporarily in charge. The pastor inspires trust in those who hear the message because of his detailed study. He should be trusted based upon his message and how well he prepared his lesson. His faithfulness in studying and teaching. This is so that we can grow and so that we are not devious. We can strive for the unity of the faith. If we are not compared for combat, then we will be run over. Human viewpoint will be pushed out of our souls. The pastor-teacher initiates the process of operation Z. The pastor teaches, via the grace apparatus for perception.

Bobby's Responsibilities

1. Bobby begins the process and God the Holy Spirit completes the process in the soul of the believer.
2. In order to do this, Bobby must be faithful and dependable in the proclamation of the mystery doctrine.
3. If Bobby is not prepared, there is no spiritual food for us to metabolize and apply.
4. As a faithful servant, Bobby is not to contaminate our food with human viewpoint. He must never water down the message; and we must be prepared to receive it.

1Cor. 4:2 Now furthermore, what is required among the stewards [is] that one be found faithful.

A man must be faithful to the Word of God. He must be faithful to those who are the hearers. As a steward, the obligation is to study and teach. Only through his faithful studying and teaching, can God reveal the mystery doctrine to believers of the Church Age. So the pastor-teacher teaches, so we are inspired to trust him. This is the wonderful aspect of our relationship to Bobby; a response to his faithful teaching. The key for our growth in grace. He must be faithful in his preparation and he must not contaminate pure doctrine with falsehood and human viewpoint. This is Paul's exhortation to himself and to Apollos, as well as to all teachers throughout the Church Age. Teaching is often the first thing which is neglected by a pastor. They become promoters, they become fund raisers, entertainers, inspirational teachers, glad-handers. In all of this, studying and teaching is lost in the shuffle. This is why the pastor carries so much responsibility before the Lord. By gift, Bobby can prepare spiritual meals for us; but we must come in order to be fed. There is nothing here about dazzling believers with scholarly ability or invoke emotional responses with emotional messages. These things can be a part of the presentation, although the natural ability to teach is not part of it. Communication of the mystery doctrine is always the paramount objective.

Seeing things in the light of eternity, which is divine viewpoint perspective, then nothing in this world can bother us. Bobby is to make known the mystery doctrines of this age. We cannot fully share in what God has for us in this life.

1Cor. 4:2 Now furthermore, what is required among the stewards [is] that one be found faithful.

Being a steward clearly means responsibility to someone. Someone will examine and evaluate our faithfulness; just in a different way. Aorist passive subjunctive of ἀνακρίνω = to be judged, to be put on trial, to pass a tribunal. By whom will he be judged? Some of us want to evaluate Bobby; which is fine; however, Bobby is truly evaluated by God. Paul will state 3 false judges; these are those he is not responsible to.

Hupumo or ὑφ' ὑμῶν = by you [plural]. These factions substituted themselves and their arrogance for the doctrine which was being presented. The pastor can only be prepared and can only grow in his own spiritual life. He cannot make his people grow. We must do that part of it. The Corinthians rejected the message and the messenger. They were jealous, arrogant and wanted to be in power in a church. What a petty thing. Who wants to do that? To have power in a church. The criticism of the church had absolutely debilitated Apollos; he got his eyes on their criticism, and the factions, and the people and he was run out of town by these people. He was very disillusioned. This was a lapse in Apollos' dependence upon the Lord. He forgot divine viewpoint. He forgot how the Lord viewed him. He was too concerned with what people thought of him. He packed his bags and left town, precipitated by arrogant believers in his church. This is not what he should have done. 1Cor. 16:12 indicates that Apollos might have returned to Corinth. But we don't know for sure. Tradition has him in Frigia and Iconium. He wimped out under some very difficult set of circumstances. Getting your eyes on people is one of the worst things that a pastor can do. Apollos left all of these people without spiritual food. He failed at this point. Some did not want to listen, but others did. Apollos broke down at this point; but Bobby must remain faithful to his mission. If Bobby falls apart and breaks down, then his congregation will do the same thing. We will worry about what others think of us. We need to be faithful to what the Word tells us to do. Continue to take in doctrine; continue to be faithful, and there will be incredible rewards, no matter what the circumstances are that we face. We should not focus on people but on the Lord. The idea is that we come through on tests with flying colors—like people testing. However, if you are critical and judging, then you will pay for it. God protects his pastors. And if a pastor does not do his job, just move out of the way. God will take care of them. Unjust criticism and judging hinders the ministry of the pastor and ignores the doctrine that he teaches.

The scope of the influence, the more influential he is, the greater the impact this person has and it becomes even more divisive. In Berachah, there have been factions and those who made power plays. When the pastor gets unjust criticism and judgment, then it can affect his focus on doctrine. These are the Corinthian believers who are judging Paul.

The second group are those who are outside of the church. ἡμερὰ ἀνθρώπου = by man's day. In this context, this is a Greek idiom, referring to the day of man's judgement. This is why we find this rendered as the day of man's judgment. Acts 18, Paul was hauled before the human court of Gallio, and then he beat the responsible Jews. Gallio did not want to deal with religious matters between Jews. These courts are designed for criminality and other things; but not what the pastor teaches. Human viewpoint is incapable of evaluating divine viewpoint.

The 3rd false criticizer of Paul is Paul himself (although he mandates self-examination in other areas 1Cor. 11:31 Gal. 6:4). We must realize if we are applying divine viewpoint or if we are mired in human viewpoint. We cannot know where we are going unless we know where we are. Paul is not speaking of examining his own spiritual life. He is speaking of examining the impact and results of his own ministry. This is not for him to do. This is a professional examination. ἀνακρίνω = to judge, to evaluate, to examine. He does not attempt to judge his own ministry in terms of success or failure or even compared to others. It is his job to be faithful; it is not to assess his effect on others. No one who teaches the Word will never know in this life the complete results of his teaching. Self-judgement is an unreliable way to gauge the ministry that he has. Bobby gets nice letters from time to time from those who tell him how his teaching has affected others. Bobby might look out at the congregation and determine that they are half-asleep, and therefore his ministry is worthless. But that is our problem, not his. "I do not examine my own ministry, I do not worry about the effect of my ministry; I simply teach what God has given me."

1Cor. 4:3 But to me it is as an insignificant [thing] that I should be examined by you* or by [any] human day [fig., human court], but I do not even examine myself.

1Corinthians 4:2

Lesson #128 Wednesday

March 16, 2005

Extremely important to be faithful in any endeavor. Whatever job you have should be done as unto God. Faithfulness means filled with faith. God is the object of our faithfulness and of our devotion. This is not just a fair-weather attribute; sometimes it is taking just one more step, despite obstacles, injustices, or discouragement. You must be convinced that the Lord honors that faithfulness. We should press on faithfully. Success and failure are not issues. The issue is the attributes of faithfulness in our lives. In all of the personal relationships that we have in life, we remain faithful. Love demands faithfulness. No one can claim capacity for love without the characteristics of fidelity and devotion. A person who never loses sight of the relationship that they have, despite heartache and inconsistency in another person. Egocentricity precludes real devotion. If you only have devotion to yourself, it stifles any faithfulness. You will be faithful as long as someone comes through for you, until they don't meet your needs or fit into your time schedule, etc.

The arrogant leaders in Corinth are not faithful to anything except their own ambition and desire to control the church. They turn inward. They see only their own goals and ambitions.

1Cor. 4:2 Now furthermore, what is required among the stewards [is] that one be found faithful.

Paul will use himself as an example in v. 3. This is applicable to all pastors. He will state 3 false judges or critics or evaluators. The Corinthians will learn that their judging is not a measure of his faithfulness. Paul uses himself as the target of a warning. Paul uses himself, when he does not need the warning.

The very fact that Paul will be examined means that he has responsibility. If anyone evaluates him for any reason, then that means you have some responsibilities. 3 categories of people who will not evaluate Paul or anyone else. 1) The Corinthian believers themselves. They might be trying to gain power, and that clear. They are sniping, judging, maligning. The only authority that some want is their own authority. They want to acquire illegitimate power in the church. That is the aim, to gain power. Those who compete and run down authority and those who attempt to take authority into their own hands are nothing but devious and troublemakers. The Corinthians will get disciplined in ways that we do not want any part of. Do not get involved in judging or criticizing the pastor. That is a bad choice for all involved. This is also true in personal relationships. Example; a woman who spends time berating her husband to her friends. A woman attempts to gain power, to gain ascendancy, to try to dominate the man. That is an area of her old sin nature. Such ascendancy does not gain power, but reveals unfaithfulness. The man who belittles his wife in an attempt to bring her down is not faithful to his charge of loving his wife. We have a personal relationship with our pastor. Bobby must promote faithfulness in us, and we must operate in faithfulness in every aspect of life.

The second false criticizers are those outside the church. A formal court setting in front of unbelievers or an informal group of unbelievers. The court of public opinion. Human viewpoint is incapable of evaluating divine viewpoint.

The third false criticizer is the pastor himself. He examines his own spiritual life before the Lord; but in this context, it is different. Avakpivw = to be on trial, to judge. Paul does not evaluate his own ministry in comparison to others. How am I doing? How do I compare with so and so down the street. He does not get into the numbers game. Paul does not examine his own ministry in the realm of success and failure. No man who teaches the Word of God can fully know the impact of his ministry upon others. If he knows about his own impact, even on one person, then he might become arrogant. The information is provided by God; Bobby is just the messenger. It is not the pastor's impact, but the impact of the Holy Spirit and the Word of God.

A Pastor does not Evaluate Himself

1. He remains faithful to what he is supposed to do.
2. If Paul is to be faithful, then he need not concern himself with the results. Doctrine does its work within the believer.
3. Self-judgment is an unreliable and unusable gauge of the ministry of a pastor. Bobby can only do what he is charged with.
4. A pastor cannot gauge what doctrine does in the life of another.
5. You can examine yourself "Am I faithful?" This is in applying doctrine after learning doctrine. We all have a ministry of some sort. We all have a ministry of witnessing. Whatever our spiritual gift is, is our ministry. Being faithful does not mean that you don't do your job. Do your job; that does mean you are being faithful. You do your job to the best of your ability. Faithfulness requires a day by day existence of faithfulness.
6. God can judge the results of our spiritual life and of our ministry at the Judgment Seat of Christ. It is a simple formula and people get so confused as to what they should do. Faithfulness and the filling of the Holy Spirit produces divine good.

You do not want to judge or malign a pastor; you will get wasted. If you get in the way, you will get handled and severely.

Paul is not responsible to the Corinthian believers, to the court of public opinion, or even to himself for the effects of his ministry. Now, he is responsible to the Lord. He must be faithful to God. God's Word never goes out without accomplishing that for which it is sent. Isa. 55:11: "So will My Word be which goes forth from My mouth; it will not return to me empty without accomplishing what I desire and without achieving that for which it was sent out." When God's Word goes out, it always accomplishes that for which it was sent.. A pastor cannot get down on himself for a meager harvest. "Who has despised the day of small things?" A pastor can critique himself if he was become lazy or unscholarly; but he need not worry about the results of his ministry.

Dwelling on failure, whether it is yours or someone else's is failure in itself. Forgetting those things which are behind. When a pastor fails, he simply needs to get back on his horse and ride again. God will vindicate a faithful pastor. The hearers and who are positive will advance. All Bobby has to do is to be faithful in his work. A pastor should not be worried about whether his sermon appeals to his pastor. "Drive on..." means "take one more step" and then "take one more step." That is all it requires, on all of our parts. Pastor-teacher's concern is to serve the Lord. The Corinthians are very appreciative of oratory and other verbal gifts. They loved spectacular gifts; it makes them feel superior.

2Cor. 10:10: Paul's letters are weighty and strong, but his speech is contemptible and he is unimpressive. Paul is a genius. They focused on his personal characteristics; his looks and his speech. Israel decided to reject God's rule and decided they wanted a king. They want the majesty of a king. Saul was kingly in appearance; he was very tall. He was well-educated. His reign was a disaster for Israel. King Saul had the look; Saul of Tarsus did not. However, Saul of Tarsus had doctrine, where King Saul did not; and there was the difference. What do they teach is important; not how they look. Do not look at the outward appearance; listen to what they teach. Don't judge anyone on their outward appearance.

1Cor. 4:3 But to me it is as an insignificant [thing] that I should be examined by you* or by [any] human day [fig., human court], _but_ I do not even examine myself.

1Corinthians 4:3–5

Lesson #129 Thursday

March 17, 2005

Paul says that it is insignificant for the believers at Corinth, for the opinion of public courts, or even himself to examine his ministry. It is God's Word which is alive and powerful. The power of the Word of God can be rejected by the volition of human beings. Even in reproof, the Word of God can be used. Paul has been faithful in his obligation to provide correct teaching for this congregation. A pastor-teacher must always keep in mind his responsibility to faithfully study and teach. He cannot get caught up in all sorts of inconsequentialities in the church. He cannot be consumed with finances. He must be grace oriented. It seems that the more money there is, the more trouble there is in a church. Over and over again, there are televangelists with their hand in the till. There is also the numbers game. Every believer has his own volition. We have free will. No programs of excitement will stimulate true positive volition. There might be some superficial interest which arises. Real positive volition is a daily personal wake up call to keep divine viewpoint top priority. It is not something which we have all the time. It must be renewed every morning. It can come and go, and sometimes it comes and goes based upon circumstances. That wake up call is characterized by a faithful pursuit of Bible doctrine and the application thereof. You may not feel like being in Bible class; there might be a great party going on; but what is more important, feeding your soul or feeding your fun. Some pastors want to rest on the laurels of great rhetoric. What is important is content and not what it sounds like. Rhetoric without reality. No good without content. Then there are pastors who must dwell on their perceived failures. Make sure you concentrate on doctrine and forget those things which are behind. You can be overly critical of yourself. No pastor has any idea as to what his impact is on others. God will vindicate any pastor's ministry if he is faithful. Bobby cannot be concerned about where each one of us is. Those who are positive, will advance. Bobby cannot attempt to evaluate those who come to Berea. The Word of God is alive and powerful; not the style and rhetoric of the pastor. If there is no knowledge, then we do not grow. We might get bored with his doctrine. Paul is reviewing basic doctrine for the church in Corinth, to make sure they are not divided. The Lord gives the pastor the spiritual gift and the Lord expects faithfulness in studying and teaching.

Those Who Listen and Denigrate Doctrine

1. Unjust criticism and wagging tongues are a great hindrance to the church (as in Corinth).
2. Believers have a tendency to denigrate ministries. Public figures tend to be denigrated by the public.
3. Ezekiel speaks about the results when they are critical of pastors Ezek. 33:31: So My people come to you in crowds, sit in front of you, and hear your words, but they don't obey them. Although they express love with their mouths, their hearts pursue unjust gain. God's people come to Ezekiel and they listen, but they do not do what Ezekiel tells them to do. There is no metabolizing of doctrine. They simply do the lustful desires expressed by their mouths. They have sins of the tongue; they are subversive to authority. They are controlled by the details of life rather than doctrine. Ezek. 33:32: Yes, to them you are like a singer of love songs who has a beautiful voice and plays skillfully on an instrument. They hear your words, but they don't obey them. Nothing makes a dent in your soul.
4. The result of judging the pastor is a deaf ear. If you judge the pastor, your ears are deaf; your spiritual life is broken. There is devisiveness among the congregation.
5. Those who communicate Bible doctrine are discredited, and by those who should be benefitting from the teaching. The immature believer is particularly distracted by these conditions.

There was a nonregional accent in Oregon where Bobby went to seminary. He attempted to correct that, as it was very obvious to him there.

However, Paul says all of this is a small thing. As long as the pastor teacher is doing what God has him to do, then he is doing his job. There is legitimate constructive criticism and there is maligning. That kind of criticism can be painful but it can be quite helpful. Bobby altered his approach and style because of that criticism. Maybe that is why he began to give more and more points? Bobby does not want us to send him lots of mail now. In any case, Bobby is not answerable to his congregation, but to Jesus Christ—just like Paul. If we advance spiritually, we will serve the Lord in a number of ways. We must grow first in order to serve. Service is a result of spiritual growth.

1Cor. 4:3 But to me it is as an insignificant [thing] that I should be examined by you* or by [any] human day [fig., human court], _but_ I do not even examine myself.

Paul simply understands, in v. 4, that he is doing his job, and he is being faithful to Jesus Christ. That he can evaluate. Paul is not acquitted by his lack of self-indictment. This does not mean that Paul is without failures. But he is not spending time and energy judging his own effectiveness. Bobby has seen the first hand; Bob never judged how effective he was; people came and went, and Bob was faithful for 53 years. What he did demonstrates to us faithfulness to his responsibility to study and teach. The evaluation is the Lord's prerogative. There will be a final judgment by Christ of every pastor, as there will be one of us. The pastor-teacher will be evaluated for his service, just as will be true of all believers.

Summary

1. The Corinthians need to stop judging; they are not competent to do so, nor are they charged to sit in judgment. This is applicable to us as well.
2. They are looking at Paul's appearance, his style, which they are unimpressed by; but their criticisms of him are meaningless. Our eyes should be on the content. They need to listen to his message; not for its artistic effect, but for its doctrinal content, and they will grow thereby.
3. If there is little or no doctrinal content, then the Lord will judge that pastor in time with discipline.
4. If we can't find what we need under this pastor, or the content is not there, then quietly move on. Do not be devisive. Find the doctrinal content that you need.
5. As you leave a church, do not judge, malign, or denigrate that pastor-teacher to anyone else. You are then devisive and reversionistic.

1Cor. 4:4 For I have been conscious of nothing against myself [fig., my conscience is clear]; but I have not been justified [or, acquitted] by this, but the One examining me is [the] Lord.

V. 5 speaks of the bama seat of Jesus Christ. Paul is hearkening back to what he revealed back in 1Cor. 3 about the Judgment Seat of Christ. Human good vs. divine good. All of this follows. Paul builds one concept upon another. He is going back to it and supplementing it. Paul will be judged by Christ for his ministry. Therefore, why is it important or necessary for the Corinthians to judge him? Pastors do not automatically perform divine good.

Present active imperative of κρίνω = to judge, to evaluate. Paul's statement has command effect. It is a mandate not just from Paul, but from Jesus Christ. Προ + the genitive of καιρος = time. The door is not left open for human judgment. There is not going to be human judgment now and then divine judgment later. A pastor's ministry is only assessed by God. The appointed time here is eschatological. There will be a judgment by Christ and it will occur at an appointed time; if He is going to do it, then you don't need to do it. Do not go judging a pastor before the time. "Cool your jets, stop judging me, and await his judgment." No one has all the facts; we never have all of the facts. Only the Lord Jesus Christ has all of the facts. Jesus Christ will do infinitely better than we can. That is Paul's point here. The Lord knows it all and the Corinthians do not; therefore, they have no business judging Paul or any other minister of the gospel. Never judge a pastor; never judge someone else.

1Cor. 4:5 So then, stop judging anything before the time, until the Lord comes, who will both bring to light the hidden [things] of the darkness and will reveal the counsels [or, intentions] of the hearts [fig., inner selves], and then the praise will come to each from God.

It is quite clear that Paul is quite faithful and the greatest writer of the New Testament. He was unjustly indicted in a Roman court, he survived 2 or more assassination attempts, he was shipwrecked, stoned.

How meaningless it is for the Corinthians to criticize Paul. Their examination of Paul and his ministry is laughable, if anything. They judged and criticized Paul, as well as others; and this was to further their own power lust. They set up Paul vs. Peter or Apollos vs. Paul; etc. They set up these denominations in order to gain power themselves.

“I am not responsible to you with regards to my faithfulness,” is Paul to the congregation at Corinth. He is not responsible to any unbeliever or any group of unbelievers, e.g., some Roman tribunal, with regards to his own faithfulness. Paul is not even responsible to himself with regards to the results of his ministry. He is responsible to God to be faithful. “You are responsible to us, because we are the judges of your ministry,” the Corinthians say to Paul. Bobby grows in grace just like we do; he just gets a head start, as he studies it first. Bobby cannot know that impact of doctrine on our souls. He only knows his end of it, his own faithfulness.

1Cor. 4:3 But to me it is as an insignificant [thing] that I should be examined by you* or by [any] human day [fig., human court], _but_ I do not even examine myself.

Paul makes it clear that he is responsible to God, but not to the Corinthians. Paul has not indicted himself. He can only rebound and keep moving. God is not shy about evaluating and disciplining for unfaithfulness. There is nothing that we can do to a pastor which comes even close to what God does.

There are always those who think they know how things should be done; and they seek to impose their will over everyone else. Grace orientation tells us that we don't know more than everyone else. Don't get arrogant, thinking that you always know best and no one else does. The only redeeming feature is the grace of God. Even in a leadership role, you must realize that others do have some ideas which are reasonable and their input can be valuable. But the Corinthians are not doing that; they are slashing each others' throats in order to gain ascendancy. “His letters are weighty and strong; but his personal presence is unimpressive and his speech is contemptible.” (2Cor. ). Tradition has Paul is short, stumpy, bald with a high squeaky voice. King Saul, on the other hand, was tall and handsome, and inspired leadership by his looks. But he was a failure.

Some see it as great prestige to take a place of leadership in a church; and there is some attached to teaching doctrine; but it is really only evident to those who exhibit positive volition. The pastor better have a spiritual gift and he had better carry out the function of that gift. The Corinthians are unfaithful, but they are criticizing him. Paul is faithful and the recipient of criticism. The Corinthians need to cease revolting against the legitimate leadership which exists in their church. There is no authority orientation among the arrogant of the Corinthian church. Grace orientation; doctrinal orientation, authority orientation. These are 3 spiritual skills which should be in place, and they are acquired in your spiritual advance.

1Cor. 4:4 For I have been conscious of nothing against myself [fig., my conscience is clear]; but I have not been justified [or, acquitted] by this, but the One examining me is [the] Lord.

Paul comes to a conclusion in v. 5. This is a reference to the Judgment Seat of Christ. "He will spring to light the hidden things of darkness will be laid out in the light." That statement should give you pause. Paul makes it clear who will be the real judge and when it will actually come to pass. He is saying, "Why are you believers doing this judging? God is going to take care of that. What gives you the right to judge when Jesus Christ is the eternal judge?" The Corinthians arrogantly go along their way as lame judges, but they are usurping the prerogative of Jesus Christ. Do we want to be found at the Judgment Seat of Christ with nothing but petty jealousy and the responsibility for dividing a church. This verse contains a motivation for living our lives in the light of eternity. The Corinthians lead their lives in their own eyes according human viewpoint; no thought given to eternity. A day of reckoning will come.

We should not be so heavenly minded as to be no earthly good. We are not to run off and forsake all earthly things and become monks. We have the responsibility to fulfill God's will for our life. Part of our lives is hard work at some occupation. We also inculcate Bible doctrine and apply it at the same time. We cannot ever ignore the inculcation of Bible doctrine. We can be sure of one thing: we are off-track in our spiritual life when the arrogance of egocentricity overwhelms the grace orientation in our life. The more arrogant that we are, the less likely we are to see it. Check out the presence of pain and suffering in our own life. Evaluate our frustration, our unhappiness and disappointment in our own life. The top floors of the edification complex are capacity for love and sharing the happiness of God.

Present active imperative of κρίνω = to judge, to evaluate, to pass judgment. This is an emphatic mandate not to judge. We have the ability to judge our pastor and anyone else in our periphery, and then malign them afterwards. What a waste of time; furthermore, stop it. Our purpose is to grow in grace and knowledge and execute the plan of God.

Before the time is a qualification. There is no loophole here.

1Cor. 4:5 So then, stop judging anything before the time, until the Lord comes, who will both bring to light the hidden [things] of the darkness and will reveal the counsels [or, intentions] of the hearts [fig., inner selves], and then the praise will come to each from God.

1Corinthians 4:5

Lesson #131 Easter Sunday 2

March 20, 2005

The warning is for us not to pass judgment. Paul's statement has an imperative force. Προ + the genitive of χρόνος = before the time. It sounds as though there might be a time when we can do some judging, but that is not the case here. There will be a time that we will be evaluated, but that will not be by our peers, and it will be by Jesus Christ. The appointed time is future; eschatological. It is not something which takes place during our life. Since Jesus Christ is the judge, there will be an appointed time for His judgment. This is a reference to Jesus Christ, Who will judge us at the bama seat.

The Corinthians did not have all of the facts; and often those facts are skewed; so their judgment is worthless. Jesus Christ is the evaluator. He knows all of the facts. He knows all of Paul's failures and all of his successes. This does not mean that he is without wrong; it does not mean that he is without problems. God knows the motivations for the judgment of the Corinthians.

Then we have the conjunction: ἕως = until. This denotes the end of a period of time. Do not pass judgment until the appointed time. Do not pass judgment until the appointed time; wait until the Lord comes. Paul will say, in his own way, forget passing judgment. It sounds as though Paul is telling them to wait for the appropriate time; but that is not really what is happening here. They are to not judge at all, ever. God will, and at the appropriate time.

Aorist active subjunctive of ερχομαι = to come, to arrive. This means that the conjunction plus this morphology means the commencement of an event is dependent upon some circumstance. Don't pass judgement before the time until arrives the Lord. Punctiliar action here is what is involved; a point in time. It happens at one point in time. The Lord's arrival is at a point in time at which his judgment then commences. Jesus Christ will judge our motives and He will examine these at the bama street. The potential subjunctive. The Corinthians must make a decision to stop their criticism and to wait. No judgments of spiritual lives should take place before the Lord returns. Jesus Christ will do the judging of spiritual lives. This is Paul's way of telling these Corinthians that they are not to evaluate his ministry; Jesus Christ can and will do that.

This is even more emphasized when Paul says that he himself does not evaluate his own ministry.

Φωτισω = to bring to light. This reveals specifically what Jesus Christ will be doing at the bama seat. This tells us exactly what will happen.

What Does Jesus Christ Reveal at the Judgment Seat?

1. The hidden things of darkness. Paul is not addressing rewards here; this is the negative side of the Judgment Seat of Christ.
2. Censor and praise are the two activities at the bama seat of Christ.
3. If censure, that brings disgrace and loss of rewards. If He censures us, we will be disgraced and we will lose rewards.
4. That is perspective. This gives us an idea as to the importance of living our lives in the light of eternity. We need to look beyond tomorrow. Never lose sight of where you are going or who you are. It makes this life pale by significance. We can never enjoy our life to the fullest until we live our life with our eyes toward eternity.

5. This also puts into perspective the consequences of not fulfilling the plan of God for our lives. We would stand in front of Him in total disgrace. We will stand in front of Him in great dishonor. Some of us are motivated by carrots and some by sticks.
6. This also puts into perspective the relative unimportance of all of our accomplishments which are unrelated to divine good. It is wood, hay and stubble and ends up in smoke at the Judgment Seat of Christ. Paul uses very interesting imagery here. He uses his style and genius to communicate Bible doctrine to us. Here we have the imagery of bringing light to darkness.

Light

1. Light illuminates that which has not been revealed before.
2. Paul may have been thinking about Jesus Christ, who is described in terms of light. He is called the light of the world. This is the light of the world which will evaluate us.
3. As light, He is the absolute opposite of sin, evil and human good. He is the exact opposite of darkness.
4. From His perfect standard of light, without evil, without human good, He will reveal what we have done to glorify Him.
5. The image of light is the image of the Judge who brings the light of absolute righteousness and justice to bear at the bema seat.
6. We should never take lightly the negative aspect of our Lord's judgment. We might be able to fake everyone else out; we use the language, we have the vocabulary of doctrine; God Jesus Christ will know. Jesus Christ is never fooled by any of it. This is one side of the bema seat of Jesus Christ.

What is the Impact to Us?

1. Don't stand at the bema seat and dump out all of your dirty underware before everyone else.
2. Keep the negatives in His evaluation to a minimum. We do this by living our lives in the light of eternity. We need to focus on that.
3. We should utilize the resources which God has given us to advance spiritually. Filling of the Holy Spirit, grace apparatus for perception and utilizing the problem-solving devices.
4. Maintain divine viewpoint at all costs. That glorifies the Lord. This is all application at this point. Maintain divine viewpoint; nothing is more important. Think with the mind of Christ.
5. God is not pleased by those who judge His subordinates and His stewards. Paul does not care if they judge him; that is a small thing. But it will not be a small thing in their lives. They will have to face up to it. Paul is telling them, this is your darkness. We will be without excuse. God has given us plenty of time to refrain from judging. When we get into eternity, we will hear "Well done, good and faithful servant." We do live in this life, so we should not be so heavenly minded that we are no good in this life. We do not need to be encumbered by human judges. They are accountable.

Σκοτος = darkness, gloom, darkening [of the sun], darkness [of death]; unknown. What dirt will be disclosed on the day of evaluation? We can identify that with the Corinthians or with ourselves. We will get to see the Corinthians evaluated. They will also get to see us be evaluated as well.

In this light, it is easy to dismiss things which are around us; being judged by petty, maligning types. Being a believer is a liberating experience. We can keep our eyes on the Lord; we lead a life unknown to most of the rest of the world.

1Cor. 4:5 So then, stop judging anything before the time, until the Lord comes, who will both bring to light the hidden [things] of the darkness and will reveal the counsels [or, intentions] of the hearts [fig., inner selves], and then the praise will come to each from God.

1Corinthians 4:5

Lesson #132 Wednesday

March 23, 2005

An email sent to Bobby about Brian Comtosh, a marine in Iraq. Stuff that will not be reported in the news. First Lieutenant received the something cross.

Paul has had to make statements about not judging before (Rom. 14:10). We will all stand before the judgment seat of God. There is only one ultimate righteous judge. On the other hand, there are legitimate forms of evaluation and judging. Performance and attitudes of those in business must be evaluated. What Paul is saying is, "Stop judging the spiritual life of other believers." The Corinthians were judging other believers, Apostles and pastors. This sabotages the authority of a church. Gossip and maligning is antagonism toward others, and motivates a litany of other sins against those people, and will elicit sins from those who are being judged and maligned. Furthermore, if the person who is the object of these sins is antagonized, then those who gossiped and maligned are happy with that sort of result.

Paul cites the Judgment Seat of Christ in order to convince his readers that there should be no judging, gossiping or maligning. There is a mandate to live your life in the light of eternity. Judging and maligning are never a part of this modus operandi. Do not retaliate when you are maligned and gossiped about. Jesus Christ will do a perfect job of evaluating you.

Jesus Christ will bring to light the hidden things of darkness. Almost an oxymoron. The Lord's disapproval brings disgrace and dishonor to us. The few years we live on this earth is a drop in the bucket. There are eternal consequences for not fulfilling the plan of God. These eternal repercussions should put a slant on our day to day activity. You cannot separate your spiritual life from your temporal life. You must apply doctrine to your temporal life. No matter how justified we think we are, it gets us nowhere. Leave all the judging to the Lord; He does so with all the facts with infinite wisdom and infinite justice.

Paul uses this image of light and darkness

1. Light illuminates that which has never been seen before—darkness.
2. Jesus Christ is the light of the world. Jesus Christ illuminates the world. He is the only Light in the Holy of Holies.
3. As the Light, Jesus Christ is the absolute opposite of all sin, evil and human good. Sin, evil and human good are classified here as darkness.
4. From His perfect standard of light, He will reveal what we have done to glorify Him and what we have done which does not glorify Him.
5. The image here is of the Judge Who brings the light of absolute justice and absolute righteousness to the judgment seat.
6. We will have no recourse, no appeal; in front of the supreme court of heaven. There will be a difference between believers.
7. We will be disgraced or honored.

We don't even have all the facts about our own soul. We may have forgotten this or that; or suppressed other things. Live our lives in the light of eternity. Maintain divine viewpoint at all costs. When our eyes move away from divine viewpoint, we move away from the light of eternity. What we do can have tremendous historical impact; there can be marvelous positive impact in our own lives and in the lives of those around us.

The pastor is the servant when it comes to communicating truth. Therefore, he is not to be judged. The Corinthians are not immune to God's judgment and neither is the pastor. Bobby tries to listen to constructive criticism and he tries not to react.

God's Word goes out and does what it is intended to do. God's Word will not return void. It has an effect on the hearers. If the truth is being taught, then it will have an impact. Whether Bobby is carnal or not, God's Word will not return void. The power is in the Word of God, not in the speaker. We cannot grow any faster than Bobby does. No pastor in his right mind wants to be revealed in a bad light at the bama seat of Christ. He does not want to be revealed in that way. For the pastor, all that matters is he cranks out the Word of God while filled with the Spirit and for the congregation to be filled with the Spirit when taking in doctrine. This will make a difference. We have the same responsibility in our own lives. We must live in the light of eternity. From the beginning of every day, we need to decide to live our lives in the light of eternity. Stopping everyone once and awhile and rebounding. We need to live our lives in the light of eternity. We are a moving target in the angelic conflict and we are constantly under attack. God's evaluation is much more to be feared than any other circumstance in life. Nothing in life should be feared as much as ourselves in front of the Judgment Seat of Christ.

Satan will try to distract the pastor, which will be problematic for the congregation. Bobby needs a certain environment in life in order to function. Tranquil and disciplined. Turmoil must be kept to a minimum. Those people that Bobby is closest to can be the biggest distractions. Greatest tests is chaos in the immediate family or in those who are close to you. A pastor cannot afford to be on a roller coaster. Wives, girlfriends, family, friends can be the most refreshing or most distracting to the pastor. Distractions will be there and if he is distracted, Bobby can blame no one but himself.

Bobby learns to apply doctrine first; to live his life in the light of eternity. There will be distractions and they easily become stress in our souls. Once we apply doctrine and overlook distractions and live with it. Overlook them and move on. Do not look for the distractions to be corrected. Live with what we have; apply doctrine and overlook the distractions. Whether it is adversity or prosperity, it must not deter our advance. We function together on this. If Bobby doesn't advance, we don't advance. This is why Bobby is a big target in the angelic conflict.

The next thing to be revealed is the motives of men's hearts. That is a confirmation that His evaluation will bring to light all the darkness. All the deep down rotten things within us. The stuff which is hidden; it will all come out. 1Sam. 16:7: Man looks on the outward appearance but the Lord looks at the heart (Right quotation but it is not Isa. 6:7). We have no right to judge; it is too easy to misread someone. How many times have we misjudged others at the first appearance.

1Cor. 4:5 So then, stop judging anything before the time, until the Lord comes, who will both bring to light the hidden [things] of the darkness and will reveal the counsels [or, intentions] of the hearts [fig., inner selves], and then the praise will come to each from God.

1Corinthians 4:5

Lesson #133 Thursday

March 24, 2005

Paul uses the bama seat of Christ to indicate what actual judging should be and that what the Corinthians were doing was not legitimate. Bobby will want to divert for the evening as to what might be judged at the judgment seat of Christ.

Darkness is not sin; we will not be judged for the sin; but Jesus Christ bore our sins; He paid the penalty for all sins who have lived in the past and will live. We will not undergo another judgment for that which has been judged. Let's go to Eph. 5:8–13a to find out what darkness is: For you were once darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Walk as children of light-- for the fruit of the light results in all goodness, righteousness, and truth-- discerning what is pleasing to the Lord. Don't participate in the fruitless works of darkness, but instead, expose them. For it is shameful even to mention what is done by them in secret. Everything exposed by the light is made clear, for what makes everything clear is light. The fruit or production of the light is goodness, righteousness and truth. We must learn under the filling of the Spirit what glorifies God so that we can fulfill his plan. Do not participate in the unfruitful deeds of darkness; even expose them. Rebound and then produce the fruit of the light. These unfruitful deeds are absolutely opposed to the deed of the light. Ακαρπος = unfruitful, not fruitful; useless, unproductive. Unfruitful deeds of darkness are human good. Darkness in this passage is never connected with sin. It is contrasted with divine good and connected with the unfruitful deeds.

Unfruitful Deeds of Darkness

1. Eph. 5:12 is the same imagery as found in 1Cor. 4:5.
2. It is the recesses of the soul which contains secrets of darkness in 1Cor. 4:5, which are disgraceful and dishonorable.
3. They become secrets of the soul and unfruitful deeds of darkness.
4. Unfruitful deeds of darkness is connected with secret or hidden things in the soul; in other words, with human good.
5. When we produce human good, it can also be evil. Human good is sometimes good and it can also be evil.
6. This is exemplified by Christian activism and that can be evil.
7. The wrong motivation means dead works. Sometimes that motivation is evil.
8. Human good can be disguised as the evil of moral degeneracy, which is legalism and self righteousness.
9. On the surface it looks like divine good, but it is moral degeneracy and evil.
10. Evil is part of the human good problem and it will all be judged at the bama seat of Christ.
11. Evil will be judged at the Judgment Seat of Christ, but not sin.

A Comparison of Evil, Sin and Human Good

1. Policy and modus operandi of Satan is evil.
2. Evil reflect the subtlty of Satan's genius. Sin and human good are a part of Satan's plan.
3. Satan uses evil to corrupt the human race in order to corrupt the world that he now rules.
4. It is true the evil involves both sin and human good; but the Word of God makes a distinction between them, which means there will be a distinction at the bama.
5. The distinction goes back to the cross; each one was handled differently at the cross. All human sins were judged at the cross. Human good and evil were not imputed; they were not dealt with at the cross.
6. Sins were judged, which eliminates them as a barrier to salvation.
7. Human good and evil, although rejected by God, could not be imputed to Jesus Christ. Human good and evil are a part of the angelic conflict, which is resolved by the volition of man.
8. Every man must choose between the grace policy of God or the evil policy of Satan. Satan wanted Job to adhere to his policy of evil. Every day we must choose between the grace policy of God and Satan's plan of evil.
9. Satan always seeks to obscure or discredit the plan of God. Satan will use anything to distract us from doctrine.
10. If even one believer in history fulfills the plan of God for his own dispensation, then God is glorified and demonstrated as being just, righteous and gracious in all of His actions. In the Church Age, there are millions who have.
11. Thus, the tactical victory of the angelic conflict is won and we become witnesses for the prosecution.

12. Therefore, all of those sins are not an issue; they have already been judged. Human good and evil remain issues throughout the angelic conflict.
13. Our decisions in life are critical and they encompass human good and evil vs. divine good production. We sin when we perpetrate evil; but it is the evil that we produce which will be judged at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
14. Therefore, human good and evil will both be judged at the bama and exposed as the hidden things of darkness.

1Cor. 4:5a So then, stop judging anything before the time, until the Lord comes, who will both bring to light the hidden [things] of the darkness...

The next thing is 1Sam. 16:7: Man looks at the outward appearance, but God looks upon the heart. What will be revealed or made known the motives of men's hearts. Jesus can do this because He can see the heart of man. There is no fooling Jesus Christ at the bama seat of Christ. Jesus Christ has a complete knowledge of all the facts. He knows about everything about every human being in history. We are the first to be judged. Secondly, there will be a full insight into our motives. The Lord will apply this absolute discernment at the Judgment Seat of Christ. Fact and motives; He knows both of these completely. During our lifetime, He accesses the stream of doctrine which runs through our souls, as well as the unfruitful production.

What Will Be Dealt With at the Judgment Seat of Christ

1. Under these conditions, lip service to doctrine is worthless and useless. You can't talk yourself out of this one. You cannot negotiate a settlement with God. All the lip service that we give to doctrine is meaningless.
2. The self righteousness will be exposed; that is one aspect of evil.
3. You will have to live with what you have done at that time.
4. The question will be, how well did we utilize the resources that God provided for us. There is no production of divine good without using the resources of God. Therefore, ask, what is your motivation in life? Dredge all that darkness up; don't hold anything back.
5. It is simple black and white. If you are filled with the Holy Spirit, then your production is meaningful. Produce divine good and the rest will take care of itself. We will all have the other side. We produce divine good and let the rest of it take care of itself. We are to shoot for producing divine good.

The application to Bobby is the same for him as it is for us. Bobby teaching is not automatically producing divine good. His motivation must be good in order to produce. As a pastor, any pastor can crave approbation, prominence and power; it is a place of leadership; so this can feed a lust for approbation and power. Some pastor's seek a lazy life of do goodism. Many pastors do little studying; some crave the details of life; you can hear that every day on tv. A pastor can produce just as much darkness as anyone else can produce. In the pastor's case, it is not whether the oratory is compelling. It is about the filling of the Holy Spirit and about teaching under the power of the Holy Spirit.

The key is, how well do we use the spiritual gift that God has given us. Study to show yourself a workman who needs not to be ashamed; where will you be ashamed? The Judgment Seat of Christ. Any deviation from God's plan is human good and evil.

1Cor. 4:5b ...and will reveal the counsels [or, intentions] of the hearts [fig., inner selves],

There will be the proper praise at the right time; at the Judgment Seat of Christ. No one can judge the soul of another; we cannot look at the soul of another and make a conclusion about their spiritual life and production. No man can ever look at us and say, "Well done, good and faithful servant." It does not matter how anyone else looks at you or views your spiritual life.

Επαινος = a hearty recognition, loud applause, praise. The bama will be the true no-spin zone. Jesus Christ will deliver the final verdict upon us. We will be hurled into eternity, with or without crowns. It is important that we live our life in the light of eternity. Bobby cannot really explain exactly how embarrassed that we will be at that time. We have no idea what it will feel like. Conversely, what will it feel like when the Lord praises us loudly and boldly. Those are words which will greatly mean something.

1Cor. 4:5c: ...and each man's praise will come to him from God.

1Corinthians 4:2

Lesson #134 Easter Sunday 1

March 27, 2005

A question which has frightened and stimulated man throughout history—what happens after death. Some think there is nothing; blackness, annihilation. Plato, the ultimate humanist, imagined a heaven, called plêroma. For Eastern religions, there is reincarnation; the objective is to fuse with the ultimate reality. A very different concept from the Biblical one. Merging with God to them is being in harmony with nature or with whatever force that is.

Easter is our celebration of the resurrection, the resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ on the third day. It is an historical fact, as opposed to other religions theories on the afterlife. Jesus appeared until 500 brothers, most of whom remained up until the time of that writing. That is enough for any jury to find in favor of. Eternal life for all believers by faith alone in Christ alone. Because the grave could not hold Him, it cannot hold us. Our eternal life is secure because we share that life with Him. As believers in Jesus Christ, we will be victorious over death, as He was victorious over death 2000 years ago.

The Thessalonian believers had these questions, and Paul answered these questions in 1Thess. 4:13–18: We do not want you to be uninformed, brothers, concerning those who are asleep, so that you will not grieve like the rest, who have no hope. Since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, in the same way God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep through Jesus. For we say this to you by a revelation from the Lord: We who are still alive at the Lord's coming will certainly have no advantage over those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the archangel's voice, and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are still alive will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; and so we will always be with the Lord. Therefore encourage one another with these words.

Those who are alive will not precede those who have died first. The dead in Christ will rise first.

Some of the false teachers at Corinth have been teaching that there is no resurrection. The Hellenistic view of the afterlife. The idea of a resurrected body to the Greeks was completely repugnant. They saw the body as being evil and the soul as being good. The gods set the pattern in Greece for all human existence. The male gods spent all of their time afflicting human beings and chasing women. The female gods spent their time chasing men and afflicting human beings. "The gods don't care how we live; they live in abandon." The gods were the pattern for man. The Greeks hated their bodies; they indulged their bodies to the maximum; the more they indulged, the closer they were to heaven. 1000 temple prostitutes were in Corinth for temple worship. The idea of a resurrected body was a very strange idea to them. The Apostle Paul had to explain to them what was being promised to them. They would receive a new body because Jesus Christ received a new body at His resurrection. The body had nail prints. The body could appear suddenly; it could go through walls. It was a very different kind of body. Paul must correct their idea of resurrection. 1Cor. 15:35–44: But someone will say, "How are the dead raised? What kind of body will they have when they come?" Foolish one! What you sow does not come to life unless it dies. And as for what you sow--you are not sowing the future body, but only a seed, perhaps of wheat or another grain. But God gives it a body as He wants, and to each of the seeds its own body. Not all flesh is the same flesh; there is one flesh for humans, another for animals, another for birds, and another for fish. There are heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but the splendor of the heavenly bodies is different from that of the earthly ones. There is a splendor of the sun, another of the moon, and another of the stars; for star differs from star in splendor. So it is with the resurrection of the dead: Sown in corruption, raised in incorruption; sown in dishonor, raised in glory; sown in weakness, raised in power; sown a natural body, raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body.

How are the dead raised? is the first question. We lead in this country a very hedonistic lifestyle and we do it frantically. We have simply rejected the idea of heaven and hell. The idea is, there is nothing to come after death, so let's just live it up. Live anyway that they want to live; live anyway that they enjoy. This is like the Corinthians of that time. Some will say there is no resurrection (1Cor. 15:12). Some believed that the resurrection body had no relationship to the original one—i.e., it is a spiritual body. Others saw it as a reformed human body.

Paul answers first by calling the Corinthians fools. The Greek word is ἄφρων = non-thinking, unable to think; stupid, stupid-heads. When you put a seed into the ground, it is a dead seed; when it is put in the ground, it comes back to life. We should not squirm at death, because once we die, life begins. That which we sow does not come to life unless it first dies. The Corinthians lived in an agrarian society; so they understood this illustration. Because of His spiritual death, we can be saved. Jesus Christ did all of the work; there is nothing that we can do for salvation. Afterwards, He died physically, and then He rose again. Our faith is not in a dead God. To have faith in something which is dead is useless; our hope would be in vain. John 14:2–3 is one of the few passages which describes heaven: “In My Father’s house there are many dwelling places. If it were not so, I would have told you. For I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go, I will return and receive you to Myself, so that where I am, you may be there also.” Not only must Jesus be resurrected from the dead, He must also be seated at the right hand of God. Resurrection cannot be fully completed until He is seated. And that which you sow, is not the body which is to be, but a bare grain; but God gives it a body just as He chooses. Each seed bears a particular plant.

Paul’s Comparative Analogy

1. There is some relationship between our physical body. The seed is the beginning of a new plant.
2. The body we have is the beginning of our resurrected body.
3. But the seed, the body we have will not look exactly like the body we end up with.
4. When you plant the seed in the ground, it germinates; it comes from the dead.
5. When it grows, it will look entirely different from the seed that was planted.
6. The resurrection body will begin with the physical body which must die. This is why we must die. We live with a body of death. From the moment we are born, we begin to die.
7. The new body has no resemblance to the old body, by comparison. However, bear in mind that the disciples all recognized Jesus Christ.

God gives it a body just as He wished. This is the continuing analogy. Each of us has a certain resurrection body from which it will spring. One of the disciples walked into the tomb and there are grave clothes laying there, but no body. Jesus was recognizable; it was a shock and they did not recognize Him immediately; there was the shock as they had watched Him die so horribly.

1Corinthians 4:2

Lesson #135 Easter Sunday 2

March 27, 2005

“I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in Me will never die.” Paul’s audience were Greeks here; unlike Jesus’ audience of Jews. They disliked the idea of a physical resurrection.

1Cor. 5:39–46: Not all flesh is the same flesh; there is one flesh for humans, another for animals, another for birds, and another for fish. There are heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but the splendor of the heavenly bodies is different from that of the earthly ones. There is a splendor of the sun, another of the moon, and another of the stars; for star differs from star in splendor. So it is with the resurrection of the dead: Sown in corruption, raised in incorruption; sown in dishonor, raised in glory; sown in weakness, raised in power; sown a natural body, raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. So it is written: The first man Adam became a living being; the last Adam became a life-giving Spirit. However, the spiritual is not first, but the natural; then the spiritual.

God has created a menagerie of bodies. He's created bodies for fish, fowl, for mortals. The body was originally created by God, even though the bodies are now passed along through biology.

There are different types of glory, differences for the sun, for the moon and for the stars. We have a connection with our past temporal existence. Paul used the analogy of the seed which becomes a plant, related to the original seed. Each body will have a different kind of glory; the moon is reflected glory, which would be like those who have been saved and never got back into fellowship after that. Others will be like stars, generating their own glory. Some will be like the sun, which to us is much greater than all the stars (from a relative viewpoint).

It is sown a perishable body and it is raised an imperishable body. Therefore, we must die in order to receive this resurrection body. This is a body which is not subject to death or to deterioration. That body will retain its luster and glory in exactly the same way for eternity. There will no be change as we observe in our earthly bodies. Imperishable which will never fade away.

There is a body of disgrace vs. the body of honor (v. 43). Sown in weakness, and raised in power. The sin nature is the source of our spiritual death. We are born spiritually dead and we will later die physically. We will be raised in the power of God. A body which is incorruptible and undefiled. God can never accept corruption in eternity; there will be no sin nature in our resurrection bodies.

V. 44a: It is sown a natural body and raised a spiritual body. Some have thought this means that the body will be immaterial. The body which dies is material; it is flesh and blood. The spiritual body is a real body; it is not ethereal. It is not just a spirit body. It has a different structure and a different function. All sorts of different aspects which we cannot have in our bodies today. We will not know what it consists of until we arrive in eternity. Because Christ is the resurrection and the life, we will have this body. He creates that life and He creates that body.

Vv. 44b–49 further compares the natural and spiritual body: If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. So it is written: The first man Adam became a living being; the last Adam became a life-giving Spirit. However, the spiritual is not first, but the natural; then the spiritual. The first man was from the earth and made of dust; the second man is from heaven. Like the man made of dust, so are those who are made of dust; like the heavenly man, so are those who are heavenly. And just as we have borne the image of the man made of dust, we will also bear the image of the heavenly man.

When Adam sinned, he acquired an old sin nature, which became part of the cell structure of his body. It is true of every person who is born. Only those who have believed in Jesus Christ can have victory for a period of time over the old sin nature. The last Adam, Jesus Christ, also had a human spirit and a human soul; but He never had an old sin nature. We are born without a human spirit. Jesus never lost it. He always had it. The first Adam brought death and the last Adam brought life. The body which we have produces nothing but death. The body we get from the last Adam results in death; the body from Jesus Christ results in life eternal.

However, the spiritual is not first, but the natural comes first. The first man is from the earth; the second Man is from heaven. Earthy does not refer to a personality type but to the fact that Adam is made out of the chemicals of the earth. The body reverts to those chemicals at death. They break down. There will be a new earth. The body made from the earth cannot survive the cataclysm of the destruction of the earth and the surrounding universe. The second Man is from heaven and His body was designed from heaven and that body has the properties of heaven. Paul stressed the differences between what we have now and what we will have in the future. From the seed analogy, there will be a correspondence. As is the earthy, so also are those who are earthy; and as is the heavenly, so also are those who are heavenly. Even though their bodies are permeated with the old sin nature, there is a temporal aspect to the body; however, the body will be the basis for our spiritual body. The new body will be one which can exist in eternity. We are incapable of understanding of what we will have in the future. Our heavenly body can only be described to us by analogy. As we now bear the image of the earthly, we will, in eternity, bear the image of the heavenly. We wear a body over our spirit and soul as we wear a suit of clothes. Our souls remain forever; our souls are never destroyed. We will discard one suit of clothes and put on another.

How are the dead raised? That is what one person asks. Paul answers the first question next. He has answered what kind of body that we will have. 1Cor. 15:50–54: Brothers, I tell you this: flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, and corruption cannot inherit incorruption. Listen! I am telling you a mystery: We will not all fall asleep, but we will all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised incorruptible, and we will be changed. Because this corruptible must be clothed with incorruptibility, and this mortal must be clothed with immortality. Now when this corruptible is clothed with incorruptibility, and this mortal is clothed with immortality, then the saying that is written will take place: Death has been swallowed up in victory. The resurrection is the mystery doctrine that we will be exposed to in this section; this is the rapture of the church, which will be reveal to the church. The word for sleep is κλοιμαω = physical death [of the believer]. This refers only to the death of the body; the soul never sleeps. Our soul is always functioning. The body which goes to sleep is the body of corruption. The body which is resurrected is the body which is the new body; the spiritual body. We will not all die, but we will all be changed. That is, there will be a generation of believers who change to their resurrection body in a twinkling of the ye, without dying first.

1Thess. 4:16–17: For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the archangel's voice, and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are still alive will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; and so we will always be with the Lord. There is no specific passage in Scripture describing the soul and spirit in heaven; and there is a lag time from death to receiving our resurrection body. We will be face to face with the Lord; the Scripture never speaks of disembodied souls and spirits, which suggests that we will have an interim body. The mortal must put on immortality.

1Cor. 15:54–55: Now when this corruptible is clothed with incorruptibility, and this mortal is clothed with immortality, then the saying that is written will take place: Death has been swallowed up in victory. O Death, where is your victory? O Death, where is your sting? Death is never victorious over us. The grave may claim the body temporarily; but the victory of the grave is only temporary.

1Cor. 15:57 But thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ! Because of His resurrection, we are guaranteed immortality in the presence of the Lord. That is what the cross and the resurrection means to each one of us.

1Corinthians 4:5

Lesson #136 Wednesday

March 30, 2005

DVD's available Friday; 4/month, 16 lessons.

Bobby needs to make a correction from Sunday am; he said the Pharisees did not believe in the resurrection, but they did. It was the Sadducees who did not. They also believed in the free will of man and the sovereignty of God, although a bit mixed up about it. They were political leaders. They saw Jesus as a rival, and they did not like that. As legal and religious experts, they saw Jesus as a dangerous teacher. He did not always keep the Sabbath to their liking.

According to Josephus, the Sadducees even denied the immortality of the soul. They also opposed Jesus vociferously. They were opposed to any teaching about resurrection. They saw Jesus as a destabilizing factor of the balance between the power of the Romans and the Jews. If Jesus Christ was the Messiah, then the King had come, which would be against Rome.

What makes Paul think that these people will ever listen to him? Up until this time, they had not. They drove Apollos right out of town on a rail. He had gone to Paul to explain the problems there. Paul had his supporters in that crowd, but his crowd was just as divisive as the other crowds there. Paul wants all of them to refocus on a non-divisive thought. "But wait until the Lord comes." They should not be judging others; Paul wants them to think about God judging them. The future bama moment is a powerful incentive. It is an incentive for all of us to stick to our own spiritual knitting. We must live our lives in the light of eternity. There will be judgment at that moment in history.

Bringing to light those things in the darkness refers to human good and evil. This will all be revealed at the bama seat of Christ. What is our motivation? Human recognition, altruism? Essentially, the question is, are you in fellowship or not. Either it is human good and evil or divine good based upon the resources that God has given us. All of this is between God and us—has nothing to do with anyone else. We answer for ourselves and ourselves alone at the bama seat of Christ.

Ἐπεινος = praise, a hearty recognition, loud and boisterous applause. The praise includes tangible rewards for us. Before the bama, we will get our resurrection bodies. The praise comes from God = ἀπο τοῦ θεοῦ. This should be a sobering phrase, yet invigorating.

No matter how we end up, being at the bama seat of Christ is much better than the alternative. Some, it may appear, do not have the ability to produce divine good. Or, others may think, I don't have the opportunity to serve as I don't have a communication gift.

The Opportunity to Produce Divine Good

1. You are not evaluated on how much we do. Quantity is not the issue, even though that is how things operate in this world.
2. We are evaluated on the quality of our work based upon the opportunities presented to us.
3. Quality is based upon being filled with the Holy Spirit.
4. It is also based upon taking maximum opportunities of divine good. These opportunities will present themselves; perhaps every single day.
5. It does not matter if you have less opportunity or less maturity than anyone else. We are not in competition with other believers to produce divine good.
6. What matters is, what do we do with the opportunities that we have. All that matters is what we do with the opportunities which God gives us.
7. The thief who hung on the cross lived but a few hours of life remaining after believing in Jesus Christ. All he did, as far as we know, is he recognized the God of the Universe; and since he did, he received eternal life. It appears as though it is a bit unfair to have so little time to work with. What divine good was he capable of? He was certainly not a mature believer in that few hours that he was there. The thief said, as an affirmation of faith alone in Christ alone, “Remember me when You come into Your kingdom.” (Luke 23:46). “We are receiving exactly what we deserve for our deeds; but this man has done nothing wrong.” (Luke 23:41). Our Lord guaranteed him that he was saved. “Today, you will be with Me in paradise.”
  - 1) This man was one of the greatest witnesses for Jesus Christ in history.
  - 2) He was a witness to everyone present to Who Jesus Christ was and what He was doing on the cross. Probably some looked at Jesus Christ in a little different light.
  - 3) this statement echoed though the history of the Church Age to all of us.
  - 4) That is a witness in perpetuity.
  - 5) His statement is also a confirmation of our future; an encouragement to all of us.
  - 6) It is the encouragement of being face to face with the Lord when we die. Essentially, a death bed conversion.
  - 7) He also presented a little eschatological doctrine to the world.

- 8) He presented the salvation message and great encouragement for our future.
- 9) He will hear from Jesus Christ, "Well done, good and faithful servant." He did not have much time, but he used it to the maximum.
- 10) That was quality production; not quantity.
- 11) He accomplished all that he could in the short time that he had.
- 12) We have opportunity and we will be evaluated on our performance. It is not a competition with other believers.

Don't ever be skeptical about God's ability to be fair. We can maximize our own opportunity. We must always think in the light of eternity. We will have maximum impact if we maximize the time we have.

1Cor. 4:5 So then, stop passing judgment before the times, until the Lord comes, who will both bring to light the hidden [things] of the darkness and will reveal the counsels [or, intentions] of the hearts [fig., inner selves], and then the praise will come to each from God.

The Example of Paul and Apollos

1. Paul will reveal why he has used himself and Apollos as complete subordinates and stewards of Christ.
2. These two men are not subordinates of the church.
3. In their arrogance, the Corinthians have been extremely critical of Paul; they subordinated every leader to themselves.
4. One faction elevated Paul in order to gain the upper hand against the other factions.
5. In this case, to them, Paul is no longer the servant of Christ but an object to be used for his own advancement. Paul wants the Corinthians to do the same things toward him as to themselves.

Mental attitude sins lead to sins of the tongue and none of these do anything for a church. It is a guarantee of our unhappiness, frustration, of conflict in our life and turmoil in our own soul. How easy it is for us to evaluate our own spiritual life. It should be easy to evaluate these. Our spiritual life is obviously not operating. We cannot have turmoil of the soul and still have a good spiritual life. We cannot be frustrated with everything in life or aggravated, and yet have a good spiritual life. Your soul cannot be filled with conflict and you, at the same time, have a good spiritual advance going.

Aorist active indicative of μετασχημητιζω = to say something with the aid of a figure of speech. Paul will transfer the principle from one person to another. He makes a transfer from one party to another. He has substituted the names of Apollos and himself instead of the leadership of the Corinthian church.

Paul's Figure of Speech

1. Paul and Apollos are not the real problems here.
2. The Corinthians are the ones causing the problems.
3. So Paul uses himself and Apollos as a foil to point out these problems.
4. Paul names the requirements (stewardship, subordination and faithfulness), which are the prerequisites for the plan of God for his life: subordinate to Christ, steward of the mysteries, not judging others and thereby usurping the Lord's prerogative.
5. He placed on himself and Apollos warnings for faithfulness, subordination, and stewardship. Since they have those qualities, Paul mentions it because the Corinthians lack these qualities. Paul puts these standards on himself, even though he was already applying these standards to himself.
6. Paul is a faithful servant and a steward who is not judging Apollos or Peter, but they are.
7. It is the Corinthians who are the ones guilty of judging all these men. They saw themselves as better than the other factions and they were hostile to the other factions. They judged everyone.
8. In essence, they are receiving instructions in righteousness in an indirect way. Paul has challenged himself to be faithful, but he is really challenging them.
9. In v. 6, Paul will apply to the Corinthians what he has previously applied to himself.
10. He wants them to recognize their arrogance and spiritual malfunction.

1Cor. 4:6 Now these [things], brothers [and sisters], I transformed [fig., applied] to myself and to Apollos for your* sakes, so that in us you* shall learn not to be thinking beyond what has been written, so that you* shall not become conceited one on behalf of one against the other.

1Corinthians 4:6

Lesson #137 Thursday

March 31, 2005

Paul has figuratively applied these things to himself. We have a figure of speech here.

Figure of Speech

1. A figure of speech is a literary device which could not be done with a literal terminology.
2. It is a technique for comparing dissimilar objects.
3. The figure of speech is used to achieve an effect beyond the range of literal language. For instance, he could call someone "blind as a bat." This does not literally mean that someone is nearly blind; it means a person is not observant.
4. These figures of speech add color and intensity to his writing.
5. Why not be literal? Even literal language can be misinterpreted. Paul uses a figure of speech in a masterly way.

Almost everyone uses a figure of speech, even if inadvertently. Some don't know that we are doing it. It is just our style or the way we communicate. Bobby might call someone an idiot, but that does not mean that we have a subnormal IQ. It might simply mean that we disagree with him. Paul uses figures of speech very literally in his writing and they add color and intensity to his writing. When you use a figure of speech, it is often more memorable; however, saying something straight up may not stick in one's memory. Paul indulges his literary flair and maximizes his own teaching ability. Calling the Corinthians thick-headed will have an impact; and possibly more of one than simply saying, "You guys aren't listening properly to doctrine."

The real masters of figurative language. All authors use literary devices. Shakespear uses a figure of speech in almost every line that he writes. Drill sergeants are also masters of figurative language experts.

Paul here stops and actually tells the Corinthians that he is using a figure of speech language. You must separate the literal and figurative language, as well as their language. The Bible can use figures of speech and still be taken literal.

Using Figures of Speech

1. The first principle of hermeneutics: every passage in Scripture has one meaning—the meaning which God meant for us to get.
2. This does not include a figurative interpretation.
3. Figurative interpretation leaves room for all sorts of different meanings.
4. Figurative language does not mean a figurative meaning.
5. Figurative language means the exegete must deal with that genre of literature in order to find that literal meaning.
6. Paul is comparing a principle which he applies to himself and then he applies the same principle to the Corinthians, who are not applying it to themselves.

Paul is comparing himself and Apollos with the Corinthians. They are all believers, which is the one similarity. This is a figurative application.

Vv. 1–5: A person should consider us in this way: as servants of Christ and managers of God's mysteries. In this regard, it is expected of managers that each one be found faithful. It is of little importance that I should be evaluated by you or by a human court. In fact, I don't even evaluate myself. For I am not conscious of anything against myself, but I am not justified by this. The One who evaluates me is the Lord. Therefore don't judge anything prematurely, before the Lord comes, who will both bring to light what is hidden in darkness and reveal the intentions of the hearts. And then praise will come to each one from God.

Paul said it is important to be found trustworthy and he applies this to himself, but it is also applicable to the Corinthians. Paul continues this shift to himself—it is a small thing for you to examine me, or a human court, or even myself. Paul actually is faithful to his mission—unquestionably so. Paul wants them to compare themselves to the divine standard of faithfulness to see how well they stack up. These Corinthians are perhaps the most judgmental of all the ancient congregations. The application really applies to the Corinthians. They are not faithful to their mission. The Corinthians should treat others as Paul treats them. Paul wants you and I to do the same.

Paul wants the Corinthians to see themselves in his writing, so he applies all of this to himself.

Paul makes a transfer of attitudes; the attitude of faithfulness, subordination and stewardship are to be given to those to whom it belongs. Paul is comparing unlike objects; all the Corinthians. He wants the Corinthians to look at themselves.

Review to last night's points.

The Corinthians will have to substitute their names in for his. This would be a warning to be faithful. They are strictly occupied with themselves; they live in self-righteous egocentricity. The arrogance of the Corinthians is in all of us. We can substitute in our name for Paul's as well.

1Cor. 4:6a Now these [things], brothers [and sisters], I transformed [fig., applied] to myself and to Apollos for your* sakes, ...

Μη υπερ = not go beyond. "Do not go beyond what has been written. The perfect tense; there are results which continue to this moment and beyond. Paul refers back to what has been written, which refers to the Old Testament passages which he has cited. Do not go beyond the divine viewpoint which has been written and received by you.

Summary of not Going Beyond

1. Always stay within the parameters of what Scripture says. It is easy to go beyond and add in your little agendas. Scripture, by the way, should never be a source of discouragement to us. Stay within the parameters of what Scripture says.
2. Do not mix up human viewpoint with divine viewpoint. Do not go beyond divine viewpoint.
3. What is written and only what is written is the absolute norm for our spiritual life.
4. Nothing else approaches that norm and standard of Scripture. Do not ever think that your proper life is unattainable.

You Corinthians are so far outside the parameters that it is hard to believe. Paul is just trying to get this people back to what they should be also for us.

1Cor. 4:6b ...so that in us you* shall learn not to be thinking beyond what has been written, so that you* shall not become conceited one on behalf of one against the other.

1Corinthians 4:6

Lesson #138 Sunday 1

April 3, 2005

Bobby reflects on A Mighty Fortress is our God; what we learn in Berachah is what has been taught throughout the ages. There is accuracy in every phrase of that song.

There was an arrogance of one faction against the other. Paul lets the Corinthians know here that he is going to use a figure of speech. This figure of speech explains a literal point of doctrine. Figurative language, but a literal meaning will come from it. Paul is a master of using figurative language which will have a literal meaning.

Paul compares two dissimilar objects—the Corinthians, who are not mature, and himself, and he is spiritually mature. He looks at the Corinthians and their lack of spiritual advance. The Bible is literature, but it does have a literal purpose. There are tons of different kinds of figures of speech. William Wordsworth, and said of John Milton, “Your soul was like a star that dwells apart.” He essentially says that Milton is a noble person who likes solitude.

A trope; a different use of the word; it is an art form to use a figure of speech. It makes a more vivid impression than would the straight literal approach. Paul uses language here which is far more effective than taking a literal approach.

Scripture has one meaning. It comes from God, it comes directly to us, and it has the same meaning for all believers. Christians go off in a dozen different ways because they forget their roots in Bible doctrine. When that happens, Christianity becomes divided. The Corinthians are all over the place. Paul makes certain that the Corinthians will understand this and that they will remember it.

The Corinthians are deflecting the truth of the Word of God. Paul is trying to get through to them. Paul’s purpose is not to simply blast the Corinthians; his purpose is to restore them to a spiritual life.

The Points of Comparison

1. Paul must be found subordinate to Christ (v. 1). He must be faithful to his calling and a steward to the Word of God.
2. Paul shifts these principles onto the Corinthians. This is a comparison of unlike objects. The Corinthians cannot take in solid food, because they are vying for power, they are involved in mental attitude sins.
3. He makes faithfulness a common spiritual value for all of them.
4. He is faithful to His calling. I am fulfilling my calling and you are not. Paul is being informative here.
5. This comparison, this figurative comparison, is designed for a specific purpose. He does not need this comparison; the Corinthians need it.
6. To compare themselves to the divine viewpoint standard of stewardship. Paul uses figurative language to drive it home. The Corinthians have no clue about the spiritual life.
7. Paul makes application to himself, but the application is really designed for the Corinthians for their own judging and maligning. Paul does not need this evaluation; they do.
8. Paul makes a transfer of faithfulness, subordination and stewardship from himself to the Corinthians. Hence, doctrine is taught to those in desperate need of it.

Εν ἡμῶν μαθηθῆς = in us, you may learn. This means that Paul is going to use himself and these men that the Corinthians have maligned as an object lesson. He will use the people that they malign to teach them an object lesson.

1Cor. 4:6a Now these [things], brothers [and sisters], I [figuratively] applied to myself and to Apollos for your* sakes,...

There are those who can use the name of God at the drop of a hat and then launch into a vicious vituperation in the next minute. Doctrine is usable to the Corinthians only as a ruse of respectability and phoney piety. This can be useful when dealing with a group and you are trying to project an image which is advantageous to you. Deep in our soul, we have nothing, but we have an external facade of righteousness.

Μη υπερ = to not go beyond. Relative pronoun ος and γραφω = which has been written. Do not go beyond what is written. This refers to previous writings to Old Testament passages already cited in this epistle. We already had the comparison between the wise and the foolish. Here, Paul is telling them not to go beyond the divine viewpoint which has been written and revealed to them from the Scripture.

Here is What Paul Means

1. Stay within the parameters of divine viewpoint.
2. Do not mix human wisdom with divine wisdom. In the end, human wisdom will squelch divine wisdom.
3. Don't rely on human viewpoint as a criterion for the spiritual life; you become vulnerable to any wind of doctrine which blows by you.
4. What is written in Scripture is our absolute norm for life.
5. Nothing else in our life approaches the norms of Scripture.

Paul is putting maximum emphasis on the Word of God. No pastor can overshadow the Word of God. God has given the gift of communication to reveal the content of His Word. Each man mentioned gave good content in their teaching, but the Corinthians focused in on the person there, as opposed to the message they spoke. If believers get arrogant about their pastors or about themselves, they get arrogant toward each other and divisive in general. This leads to egocentricity. In the arrogance of egocentricity, the only thing that matters is yourself. All you are concerned with is how the world treats you.

1Corinthians 4:6b–7

Lesson #139 Sunday 2

April 3, 2005

There are no grey areas in the Word of God; in life, there seem to be so many gray areas; the Corinthians were filled with relativity; but from the Word of God, we get the absolute standards by which we may guide our life.

We have been given the absolutes of Scripture, we know divine viewpoint, and we should not go beyond what we find in the Bible. Inordinate competition follows when believers become arrogant. It is just like a family squabble; we know each other so well, that we can go right for the throat, because we know what sets them off. All it takes is a little incendiary spark to set them off. It is much easier to live according to the Word of God than it is to ignore it. It makes our life easier and it keeps us away from discipline. The confusion of divine and human viewpoint.

Don't think of your leadership more highly than you ought to think of them. It is too easy to get your eyes on people. It is easy for people to get fat heads. Paul is speaking to them in the sense of their arrogance and what they need to do about it. Paul is completely subordinate to the Lord Jesus Christ. He is also a dispenser of the truth. He dispenses the mystery doctrine to all those who would come after as well. He is completely subordinate. Then Paul applied the standard to them. "Are you completely subordinate to Christ and are you a dispenser of the truth by living the truth?" Our actions have an incredible amount of impact. We have more impact as believers than even the president of the United States. Their spiritual life is a shambles, whereas it should have great impact on the city of Corinth.

We are υπερητης; we are rowing on the bottom tier. "Don't think more highly of yourself than you ought to think." Paul could have been straightforward and said, "I don't want you to be arrogant and think of yourself more highly than you ought to." Paul applies the standards to himself, and then applies them to the Corinthians. He gets them nodding their heads in agreement, and then says, "This applies to you as well." Rom. 12:3: For by the grace given to me, I tell everyone among you not to think of himself more highly than he should think. Instead, think sensibly, as God has distributed a measure of faith to each one. This was to the Romans, but it could have been directed toward the Corinthians as well. It does not matter how much doctrine we have heard or how long he's sat in this seat or that. The arrogance of egocentricity breaks down all the doctrine in our souls. Our dependence is upon His Word. We depend upon His resources; not upon our own.

Summary Principles Concerning the Pastor and What We've Covered

1. Never attempt to compare pastors and decide who is effective and who is not. You are taking upon yourself the arrogant stance of deciding which person has the most impact. You are pitting one pastor-teacher over another.
2. You cannot gauge the effectiveness of any pastor's ministry. These Corinthians are a fine example of where we should not be.
3. We can only look at the outward appearance of anyone.
4. We have no way of knowing how doctrine affects others. If you are competing with other believers, then you cannot go forward. You do not know how it affects others; only how it impacts us.
5. When people move beyond the impact of the Word of God in their own life, and into the realm of people critics, eyes on people, it brings discipline in the life, dissention in the church, even to the point of church splits. It has nothing to do with the spiritual life.

6. It can also cause discouragement and distractions for the one teaching the Word. Criticism is very difficult for anyone to take.
7. It stimulates the arrogance of the one who judges or maligns. Once it takes over our soul, it is difficult habit to break. Egocentric arrogance is something which can become a bad habit; however, concentration of doctrine can break it. The Corinthians are mired in the arrogance of egocentricity.

1Cor. 4:6b ...so that in us you* might learn not to be exceed thinking beyond what has been written, so that you* shall not become arrogant one on behalf of one against the other.

Paul wants them to think about God's grace rather than about their own arrogance. When you think about God's grace, you step outside of yourself; you stop the victim mentality. Anytime the perspective of grace is lost, there is pettiness and jealousy, bickering and maligning. If you do these things, you are a Corinthian. We can all be egocentric and think only of ourselves and how we are being mistreated. It can happen to any of us. The grace orientation and humility that comes from occupation with Jesus. We study Scripture because it has direct application to us. We have the same problems today as the Corinthians 2000 years ago. It is not easy to be grace oriented; you must understand the grace of God.

There is always a place for us in God's plan; God's grace will always win out and if we attach to that, we come out as winners as well. Our petty little problems every day, what do they matter in the scope of eternity? When we have the perspective that the grace of God is what matters, all of these other problems drift away. We will spend less and less time in the system of arrogance.

Paul's first question is, who regards you as superior? Who sees you as better than anyone else? You see yourself that way, but who else sees you that way? Γαρ = for; is used in its illusive sense; a reason is given. Present active indicative of διακρίνω = to judge, to make a distinction, to make someone different from someone else, to separate. His point is, they are filled with self-conceit and self-deception. It is very difficult to see ourselves when we are wrapped up in ourselves. It is very difficult when we are always correct (i.e., we see ourselves in this way). We have no basis of thinking of ourselves as superior in any way. Now Paul is using sarcasm, which can also be very effective.

The underlying reason for the superiority question. Even if the Corinthians were superior, this superiority is not due to themselves. That is the difference between egocentricity and grace orientation. When you are humble, you can be superior in certain ways, except you don't have your eyes on yourself.

Being mature in Christ is a superior status; but that is a matter of grace. Everything in Christian maturity depends upon Who and What God is. When you think more highly of yourself than others, you are projecting your superiority on others. No one has any more by way of resources or opportunity than anyone else. Furthermore, God does not depend upon our great ability in the spiritual life. It is easy to forget that God supplied the resources and the means of maturity and the person that you witness to, God brought to you. All of it is grace. You are not a superior Christian because you witnessed and your best buddy did not. Exercising the spiritual life is grace, not legalism. If you are inundated with self righteousness, then you have lost momentum. You feel superior because you are succeeding, then you lose momentum. Any success in the spiritual life is from His grace; it is never what you have accomplished. Our success has nothing to do with us. We live the spiritual life, but it has been given to us. That is the essence of spirituality.

1Cor. 4:7 For who makes you to differ [or, who is regarding you to be superior]? Now what do you have which you did not receive? But if you also received, why are you boasting as though not having received?

1Corinthians 4:7

Lesson #140 Wednesday

April 6, 2005

Without grace orientation, you cannot advance in the spiritual life. It is an integral part of the plan of God. No grace perspective means no divine perspective. No divine viewpoint solution unless you can focus on the grace of God. Everything that you have and everything that you are is based upon the grace of God. You lose this grace viewpoint, and you begin to think more highly of yourself than you ought.

When people begin to think more high of themselves than they ought, they lose complete focus and the lose grace orientation. They become users of other people and users of God. No one else has any more importance than you. You use people for your own purposes; and this can be very subtle. Humility cannot exist in such an environment. Egocentric arrogance is a great destructive malady. By the very definition of egocentric arrogance, you think only about yourself. You are not occupied by Jesus Christ. Paul's first question reflects his contempt of those in egocentric arrogance.

Paul's first question in v. 7 is dripping with sarcasm. It demands the answer, you are. Paul's hard core message to these arrogant, approbation minded leaders of this faction. Any superiority that they actually do enjoy at this point is not due to themselves.

You lash out against anyone else who does not have the viewpoint of you that you have. It is always God who provides the church age believers with the resources that makes them superior to believers of past dispensations. Paul is comparing Church Age believers and he is speaking to the Corinthians as a group and he tells them that they are equal, and they all have the resources to grow; and the reason they are not growing is that they are involved in egocentricity and power lust. These spectacular privileges are revealed by metabolizing the mystery doctrine taught by Paul.

The resources that we all have should never be separated from their source, which is God. We should always focus on Who and What God is, rather than who and what we are. If we think that we are the source of our own successes, then we are deceiving ourselves. Executing the spiritual life is the source of true humility. Nothing is more critical than understanding the grace of God. You cannot think with divine viewpoint if we lose the understanding of the grace of God.

There is a tendency to feel superior when we begin to grow in the spiritual life. When this happens, the rug gets pulled right out from under you. You suddenly find yourself floundering in the spiritual life; and you are derailed, and those things which should not bother you bother you.

There is no way that everyone in this world is going to feel good about you. When you lose grace orientation, then this bothers you. Your spiritual self esteem comes from grace orientation. God's plan is grace; His provisions for us is grace. This is also true in the secular world. Grace is the key. How easy it is to be successful in this life; to make money, to be well-thought of by some; and then to think a lot of yourself. It happens in the spiritual life and in your temporal existence.

You can be aggressive and humble at the same time. Humility can turn to arrogance. Another point of self evaluation: am I humble? It is not the way that you act; not your exterior; you can be aggressive as you need to be, and still realize that anything that you achieve is God's grace. God gave us our abilities, it is God who controls our life; it is God who puts us into the right circumstances.

When you have grace orientation, you never question the benevolence of God, no matter what your circumstances are. His benevolence is always our focus; He gives us everything that we are.

1Cor. 4:7a For who makes you to differ [or, who is regarding you to be superior]?

Another question of grace. Is there something that you have that God did not give you? What right does anyone have to have egocentric arrogance, if all we have is received from God. God's love, justice and grace has provided us with eternal life. We live by grace just as much as we are saved by grace. We have equal privilege and equal opportunity to live the spiritual life.

The grace of God provides everything that we have. It is likely that none of us will reach the stature of the maturity of the Apostle Paul and his execution of the spiritual life. However, we will still get a resurrection body, just like everybody else. We will all get an inheritance which will never fade away. There is not one believer who will not be face to face with eternity. It is not how much we have done by way of service, but it is the quality of production based on the filling of the Holy Spirit and how we took advantage of what God has given us. There is some equality and inequality in heaven; but God's grace gives us opportunity to gain heavenly gain. We are to glorify God and not ourselves. We can earn nothing from God; He has given us everything.

True humility is the foundation for a relaxed mental attitude in life.

We Know We Have Humility if...

1. We have no axe to grind with others. We are not competitive in the spiritual life. We are on the same team. We are not superior to others.
2. Inordinate competition is a waste of our time.
3. You do not self-destruct or go ballistic under pressure; how easy it is for us to lose it. Sure there is pain and suffering; our focus should be elsewhere.
4. Our attitude takes on a calm and gentility that can be experienced in no other way. Nothing gets to us. There might be some moments of fear, anxiety and panic. However, we can quickly look at the grace of God and see it all in the light of eternity. The grace of God is all in all.

Humility makes you a great lover; it gives you the capacity for love. The arrogant person is not the great lover.

Humility and Capacity for Love

1. Egocentricity means you have no capacity for love.
2. The egocentric lover loves only as long as his expectations are met. Marry and egocentric person and you must meet their expectations to a t.
3. You no longer demand that you be loved in the way that we expect to be loved. That is humility and grace orientation.
4. When we have grace orientation, the object of our love is higher in our own estimation than we are ourselves.
5. Humility brings a share of God's happiness, because we are content in whatever state that we find ourselves in.

How content are you right now? How content are you for your 8 hours of work? The greatest contentment that we will have is while grace oriented and sharing the happiness of God. We are so occupied with Him that His happiness becomes our happiness.

Who regards you as superior? Is the first question. What do you have that you have not received? Is the second question. We have all the equal opportunity and resources that we will ever need. We should not worry about what we will hear at the bama seat of Christ.

1Cor. 4:7b Now what do you have which you did not receive?

3rd question: why are you boasting as if you did not receive these things?

Do We Think too Highly of Ourselves?

1. The Corinthians are boasting about their worthiness as if they are the source of their own good works. They are nothing without the grace of God, although they think they are handling life without the grace of God.
2. They are acting as though the grace of God has never touched them. They are spiritually macho. We must remember that to God's grace we owe everything; and they felt they owed nothing to God's grace.

3. They are completely disoriented to the grace of God.
4. Lost in the shuffle of arrogance is everything that is real and true about our existence in the spiritual life. We will be frustrated; we will wonder what hit us. Everything will go wrong. We forget the benefits. The grace of God is always in operation. Everything that happens to us is for our benefit. God always does things for our benefit. We relax and look to the grace of God for deliverance. We live our lives in the light of eternity and none of the difficult moments matter.
5. The Corinthians have become the glory of their own lives. When we are focused on our own lives and accomplishments, we are doing things to our own glory.
6. These believers have received everything—divine blessing through grace—and now they are boasted as though they deserve it all. Anytime they get into adversity, they see themselves as a victim. Where is God? Why did He do this to me? I asked for deliverance, but I am still mired in it all.
7. Grace, humility, authority orientation are so removed from arrogant thinking that the spiritual life in all respects is awol.

Paul faces off these egocentric types, as the Apostle of grace. Just a little prosperity, a little adversity and we are thrown out of whack. We are underserving of everything that we have received. We had nothing going for us in life and He gave us everything. The unbeliever cannot even conceive of what it is that we have. Our life is no different.

1Cor. 4:7c But if you also received, why are you boasting as though not having received?

1Corinthians 4:7

Lesson #141 Thursday

April 7, 2005

News about a taper in Iraq who took the blast of a bomb to protect the men he is with.

What can anyone do to place themselves above God's grace. You can define your life by what you have or what you have produced; but without a spiritual life, you have nothing to show. We are nothing without the grace of God.

Egocentric arrogance can result in the victim mentality: everyone is against me; no one loves me. Poor pitiful me. I'm so lonely I could cry. What other permanent solution is there in life apart from relying on the grace of God. When you are down on yourself; when you remove yourself from that equation, you will be better off. If you remove yourself from feeling sorry for yourself, you will see that the grace of God will see to your every need. Orientated to grace tells you that the solution is there.

The loss of capacity to love someone is very likely egocentric arrogance; from that comes out of control emotion. All capacity for love tends to evaporate. The only room for love and admiration is love and admiration for yourself. You only love them as much as they can do for you. When you are buried in egocentric arrogance, there is no solution. There is a language of love and it is not capacity for love. You are only full of yourself when you use that kind of language in order to fulfill your own desires. Egocentric lover loves only as long as his expectations are met. With the humility of grace orientation, you no longer place yourself over the object of your love. There are unbelievers and believers both who cannot place the object of their love above themselves. Legalism, religiosity and activism; all of these are forms of egocentric arrogance.

Self-justification fails to take responsibility for your own actions for the things that you do, you are not oriented to grace. You cannot correct any situation in life. If you make mistakes and you are wrong, you cannot apply doctrine to it. You deceive yourself that you are someone of worth, and you are blind to your own faults. You can certainly self-righteously tell anyone else what your problems are. Anyway who disputes your view of yourself become your enemies and are subject to your malice and vituperation. People who have wronged you deserve your malice, in your own mind. You might be hypersensitive to even your slightest disapproval. When you are grace orientated, your security becomes the Lord and His plan. Grace orientation handles insecurities like nothing else in life. We are hypersensitive to even the slightest disapproval. Anything that anyone says can be taken in the wrong way. Self-deception means the self-justifying person can never be wrong (in your own mind). Once you are into bitterness, your spiritual life is non-existence. Any deviation from that sends you into spasms of arrogance. Some of us have been the dealer of arrogance in that way.

Another subtle form of egocentric arrogance is trying to attain human self-esteem. Human self-esteem is simply consciousness of things which you have done which are right. You have a good image of yourself. If it underlays spiritual self-esteem, you are out of whack. Human self-esteem should never precede spiritual self-esteem.

Dependency upon God and His grace. We should be able to solve problems apart from dependence upon others. Now, we can be refreshing to others. In spiritual self-esteem, we do not need the advice and we are not dependent upon others. Doctrinal orientation is your guide and counselor in life.

You are not grace oriented if you are stressed out in your soul. We all have pressure; but if stress is pushing us, and that is the focus of our life, we are losers. The worst tests we have are the easiest ones to solve in all reality. These are made for being solved by Bible doctrine. Grace orientation and spiritual self-esteem. Spiritual self-esteem is the proper response to stress. It is much more relaxing to sit back and know that God has the solution for our problems. We sit back; doctrine does work and it works every time. The more we apply doctrine, the stronger we get. The more we apply doctrine, the more it focuses us.

There are those who think they must have all the right answers and doctrine is not their criterion; they set up their own solutions.

Arrogant people attract arrogant people. They don't see arrogance in others because they are too arrogant to. The arrogant egocentric crave the company of those who flatter them. They are dependent upon people. The final question of v. 7 is:

Summary Points from Last Night

1. God gives these people opportunity after opportunity. They are nothing apart from the grace of God.
2. Totally arrogance. Desired to speak tongues. They are worthy of these spiritual gifts in their own mind.
3. They are complete disoriented to the way God deals with the believer and solves the believer's problems.
4. Lost in the shuffle of arrogance is everything that is real and true about the believer's existence.
5. The Corinthians have become the glory of their own small culture.
6. Glory of God to them is nothing but lipservice and hypocrisy to these people.
7. They have received tremendous blessings from the Corinthian church; and suddenly began to boast that these were a result of their intelligence.
8. They are completely out of line in every way. Egocentric arrogance rules.

The Factions

1. Each faction emphasized a different teacher.
2. The teachers were simply the recipients of the gifts that God had given them many have similar gifts.
3. In boasting, the Corinthians ignored God's part in supplying pastors for the growth of the church. They were concerned about themselves and how to rule with power in their church. Power politics working among the cardinals right now.
4. The factions treated each of their champions as nothing more than demonstrators of rhetorical skills. How well did they entertain the troops.
5. One faction invoked the name of Jesus Christ.
6. People in one faction were on the side of this or that teacher simply because he interested them. They liked the way he looked and liked the way he spoke. They used these men to further along their own preferences.

Why These People Invoked the Name of Christ

1. Invoking His name is far beyond this clash of rhetorical skills among other men.
2. Invoking the name of Christ is a despicable attempt by one power mad.
3. No one could argue that Jesus Christ was infinitely above all others.
4. This faction was no more occupied with Jesus Christ than any other faction which claimed other men.

The true impact is the Word of God. This passage is the last phrase studied by Augustine intensely in 397 B.C., and we wrote down the view of grace which was the definitive view of grace until Martin Luther. The grace of God won the day. He recognized from whence came his power and strength; from God and not from himself. No one can reach God on his own. It is a doctrine that we would believe and adhere to even today. There is not way in our current condition that we could ever reach God. He formulated the doctrine of the depravity of man. One of the first to put it into a written form. Not delineated again until

Martin Luther. Faith alone; scripture alone. Many thought they could buy their way into heaven. Augustine added that this text is the basis for his thinking on grace.

These three questions are fundamental to a grace oriented position. That young man in Walter Reed hospital has only one thing: the grace of God.

1Cor. 4:7c But if you also received, why are you boasting as though not having received?

1Corinthians 4:7–8 Lesson #142 Communion Sunday 1

April 10, 2005

The various factions believed that they were superior to the other factions. The sarcastic point is, God laughs at your attempts to appear superior. Why think of yourself as superior? In the spiritual life, this is devastating and arrogant.

First question is, What makes you think that you are superior?

1Cor. 4:7a For who makes you to differ [or, who is regarding you to be superior]?

Paul answers this question with a rhetorical question. 2nd question: What do you have that was not given to you from God?

1Cor. 4:7b Now what do you have which you did not receive?

3rd question, which rhetorically answers the first: Why are you boasting, seeing that all you have, you have received? They are completely disoriented to God's grace. We do not earn or deserve anything from God. These believers had received a great number of blessings from the grace of God, and they were boasting as if they received this because God considers them to be great.

The Corinthians cannot seem to grasp grace and Bible doctrine at this point.

1Cor. 4:7c But if you also received, why are you boasting as though not having received?

Paraphrase of v. 8: You Corinthians sit in judgment of the Apostles and pastors and from your lofty position of spiritual maturity; you can watch us struggle to reach the pinnacle that you have already reached. Very sarcastic. Sarcasm can be very cruel; however, now and again, it is a valid weapon, particularly at the hands of Paul. Paul forces them to think this subject through; sarcasm was freely used to persuade Israel to give up their idolatry. It was often used by the Apostle Paul; this was a slap to the face. This would be called sanctified sarcasm, attacking their egocentric arrogance (a great malady of the spiritual life). We have studied all of the problems of egocentric arrogance. In our own lives, almost all of our problems can be traced back to egocentric arrogance, at least in part.

Paul says, "If only we could live like the spiritual kings that you are, we pastors and Apostles." Do you see the sarcasm? Pastors and Apostles were sent by God to get these people to the goal of spiritual maturity; but they are so far into maturity, that it would be great if their pastors and Apostles could be there with them. It is like walking into a Calculus class as a college Freshman and claiming that you know more than your professor. Your professor says, "If only I knew Calculus as well as you do!"

Sarcasm is often used for the user to elevate himself above the object of his sarcastic remarks. However, this is not Paul's use.

Perfect passive participle of κορηνυμι = to fill. You who have already been filled. A participle can be rendered with a relative pronoun. The perfect tense is great for sarcasm; it means that this is a completed action in the past with results the continue onto the future. This is not a finished result in all reality; this is more of Paul's sarcasm. You have progressed far enough in the spiritual life to spiritual fulfillment. We might think we are spiritually mature, but in a crisis, we may suddenly find out that we are not equipped to handle it. Whatever happens to us is for our benefit; problems are to bring us to a new level of maturity. We must see what our shortcomings are. "Wake up, Corinthians; look around and see your problems." Paul has been building up to this throughout this epistle. The Corinthians have not taken advantage of any the resources to help them grow. If you run into problems that you cannot handle, you know where the solution lies.

1Cor. 4:8 *Already you* have been filled! Already you* grew rich! You* reigned [or, became like a king] without us! And O that indeed you* did reign, so that _we_ also should reign together [or, live together as kings] with you*!*

1Corinthians 4:8

Lesson #143 Sunday 2

April 10, 2005

Sarcasm can be brutal. Some people come out fighting in response and others wither under it. Paul is looking for neither reaction. Paul wants them to respond to his sarcasm. He is not showing them disrespect. He is bringing them to the realization that they are mixed up, even though they have great blessings given them by God. The church at Rome was severely persecuted; the Corinthians did not have that problem. Paul is being very sarcastic. Each verb that Paul uses drips with sarcasm.

The Corinthians are really like spectators in a sporting event. They are sitting in the stands, and they are filled with peanuts, soda, popcorn and beer; when their team is losing, they boo loudly, as if they had been personally insulted. The spectators malign the efforts of their team when it is losing. The Corinthians are the spectators and they see Peter and Paul and Apollos on the field; and these Corinthians sit on the stands and boo and dividing into factions, as if they know better than Peter, Paul or Apollos. They do not really understand the conditioning involved, the strategy, the tactics of the Apostles and pastors. They are acting as though they are superior to the athletes that they are observing, even though they do not have a clue. You must have knowledge. They are looking at the spiritual giant of our history and they are booing him, and they have no idea what it takes in his life.

Ironic to Bobby that the hometown crowd can so easily turn against their team on the court (or the field). There are critics everywhere, who sit in the stands and boo, but they are not in the game. The Apostles and the pastors are in the game; and the Corinthians are smug and egotistical, thinking that they know better, sitting in the stands under no pressure.

Paul wants to introduce these Corinthians to grace and get them into the game. They are fractious and arrogant. 2nd verb is the aorist active indicative of πλυτεω = to become wealthy, to become prosperous. Eph. 1:18–19: I pray that the eyes of your heart may be enlightened so you may know what is the hope of His calling, what are the glorious riches of His inheritance among the saints, and what is the immeasurable greatness of His power to us who believe, according to the working of His vast strength. The Corinthians are not actually enlightened, nor are they mature. Paul congratulating them in v. 8 is sarcasm.

Βασιλευω = to become kings. They are not full, they are not rich, they are not kings. Every believer shares the kingship of Jesus Christ. These people have taken this position and changed into something which does not exist.

Χορυσ = . They are acting as though they are living in the Millennium; however, Paul, Peter and Apollos are not with them. Those who are actually in the game and playing hard are not with them. Paul is being persecuted in every possible way. He's been beaten, thrown in jail, persecuted. His life is really not that great, but he is privileged to teach the Word of God. No matter how bad it gets, God's plan marches on, and Paul has all of the doctrine and resources that he needs to march on.

As long as we are on this earth, then this is where we should be. Our lives are just a drop in the bucket. Your sole mission is to grow in grace and the knowledge of Jesus Christ. Making money is secondary; fame and achievement are secondary; what comes first is our spiritual growth. God has a plan and mission for us. No matter how bad it is, no matter how much we wish we were in eternity, we aren't. We aren't kings. We have a long way to go yet. We should focus on the plan of God and not on our miserable problems. Get out of fellowship for a few moments and suddenly we are mired in mud and not living our lives in the light of eternity.

1Cor. 4:8 Already you* have been filled! Already you* grew rich! You* reigned [or, became like a king] without us! And O that indeed you* did reign, so that _we_ also should reign together [or, live together as kings] with you*!

We are going to the angelic conflict. Paul is a spectacle to angels and to men. "You've been denigrating me, and now let me tell you what I really am." Then he says, "You're kings and I am a man condemned to death and, by the way, everyone is watching." Paul is a servant of the Lord condemned to death. Paul is in the center ring being observed by all. Are we spectators or gladiators?

If anyone deserved to be a king in human terms, it is the Apostle Paul. A brilliant, well-educated man; enlightened in every aspect of the ancient world. He tells them that he is no better than a peon.

Bobby teaches the grace of God, because nothing is more important to us. Paul is saying, "I am the lowest of the low," because he is demonstrating grace orientation. Moses was a genius and he is still called the most humble who ever lived. Grace orientation. Paul understands grace orientation. These arrogant Corinthians are not even in the same league with him. Δοκῶ = it seems to me. This sounds as though Paul is kicking an idea around in his head with no definitive answer; he is just casually thinking about what he is going to say, although that is just the opposite of what he is doing. "I am exhibit A." It is the Lord Who exhibits us. Paul does not put himself on display. We often think of grace as what God gives us, our blessing; and His grace is all that He is free to give us based upon the cross. However, here, God has put Paul and the other Apostles as last of all. Now, how is that grace? Last of all is exactly where God wants him to be to fulfill his plan. Paul sees himself through the grace of God. Paul wants to be here. He wants to fulfill the challenge of his life. The Corinthians are not facing any real challenge. Wherever we find ourselves, God's grace is what put us there. In adverse circumstances or in great circumstances, God has put us there. We have to like what we don't have. We often want what we don't have, but we need to be able to like what he don't have. Paul has a lot of discomforts; he lacks many material things. But he has to like it, and he does. God gave this to him and that is his grace challenge.

You have to like what God did not give you just as much as what God has given you. What we don't have is just as much for our blessing as what we do have. God puts us in the positions where he wants us, which may mean a lack of materials or a great many material blessings.

If we are executing the spiritual life, then we are a warrior; a gladiator. If we are not, then we are spectators. The greatness of grace is to be able to like this. We too often just wallow in what we don't have.

1Cor. 4:9 For I think that God displayed us, the apostles, last, as sentenced to death, because we have become a spectacle to the world and to angels and to people.

1Corinthians 4:9

Lesson #144 Wednesday

April 13, 2005

Bobby is in super grace among the golfers; he got an eagle on a par 4; sunk the ball from 125 yards.

During the Old Testament dispensations, God worked through visible heroes. Actually a very small number of believers. However, all Church Age believers are invisible heroes. Many had a tremendous affect on Messianic history, as it came through many of the visible heroes. Israel was a union of church and state at that time. Union of divine law and the national entity. Israel was originally a theocracy, ruled by God directly, through Moses, and then through various judges. Until the time of King Saul, Israel was a theocracy. Then it was ruled by kings and priests, who represented Jesus Christ. Priests and the kings were intimately related. The average person did not have any access to God; they had access to the priesthood. Their impact was limited, if not non existent. Only a small percentage had the indument enduement of the Holy Spirit, whereas, we all can be filled with the Holy Spirit. The invisible hero is the person who works behind the scenes. Our spiritual life has a tremendous impact in this world; personal, national and angelic. We all have equal privilege. We can have the same impact as the great men of history, e.g., Moses or David. We can be a blessing as well to the persons in our periphery. Enough invisible heroes form a pivot within a nation, and a large enough pivot can make a nation a gentile client nation. Israel's client nation status was dependent upon one promise made by God to Abraham. Israel could not lose its client nation status; we can lose our client nation status. Israel spent a lot of time in idolatry, chasing after Baal and the other gods of that time period. A client nation is a haven for Jews and sends out missionaries.

A pivot of mature believers is the answer to national degeneracy. We are observed by men and angels. Paul mentions that in this passage in passing. There is no glorification of God in Corinth. There is direct contact with the Apostle Paul; they have access to the mystery doctrine; however, they are full of themselves and fighting constantly. The order of the day in Corinth is divine discipline.

Present active indicative of  $\delta\omicron\kappa\epsilon\omega$  = it seems to me. Paul will give them the shock treatment. "It seems to me that you guys are idiots." Paul will call himself last of all. Paul wants to fulfill God's plan for his life. Low means that Paul is a servant of God. He is a servant of God even in the unpleasant circumstance in which he finds himself. The grace of God appears in situations of difficulty as much if not more than the times of prosperity. If we are in the plan of God, His plan is in action.

When we are blessed financially or in some other way, we like to think that we are in some sort of favor with God. However, God's grace is given liberally to all men, in both prosperity and in adversity.

The Corinthians have become bystanders, who watch and criticize. They are armchair quarterbacks. They are guzzling beer and chips and dip and their heroes are losing.

Αποδεικνυμι = to exhibit. Paul is giving them license. I am exhibited as a very low person. Then Paul describes just how low he is. Επιθανατιος = condemned to death, sentenced to death. Paul used this word only here. Only found here in the NT. Paul sets up an entire image with this one word. It has a very specialized meaning which Paul is using in this case. This is used for criminals who are condemned to combat in a gladiatorial realm. So, these Corinthians are sitting in the stands and the Apostles and the pastors are out in the coliseum fighting. Gladiators were very heroic men in the eyes of the ancients; they lead a tough life and a doomed life.

Gladiator in the Roman World

The Flavia Coliseum was a place of human sacrifice. There was a festival happily celebrated by the entire city of Rome; it was like any sport which energizes us. The men were armed to kill and to be killed for the amusement of those who came to watch. This as a spectacle of unpardonable cruelty. Men were slaughtered in the thousands; and animals as well. The politicians in Rome got support by putting on these spectacles. Life expectancy was much shorter at that time than in our time.

These men were hauled out of court and given the choice between the cross or being a gladiator. In the latter, they might live; and their death would be quick. Slaves could also get into this. Those who won received great rewards as well. They were trained like an army and also trained in groups. Pupils and instructors. Each group had weapons, depending upon their whatever. Bobby names off various Latin names and they had various weapons. Reperiari (carried a net and a trident) were pitted against the Mermilones. There were those who fought against animals as well. Very bloody and vicious. The human combatants understood why they were there; the animals did not. This slaughtered purged certain areas of the Roman empire of certain animals. Tiger was wiped out of modern-day Iran; elephant destroyed from North Africa. The coliseum could be flooded with water as well for fights against sea creatures.

Life and death of a gladiator. They trained in conditioning, in their weapons. This was their sole purpose; to kill or be killed as entertainment. The final meal was a lavish banquet. It would last into the next morning and it is from this is where we get the phrase, eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die. This was a pre-game ritual; some resisted the pleasure, so that they would have a better chance; some fell into it. Some were scared and spent the night crying in anguish. The public could watch. There were tickets for the pre-game. All of this was going on. They would observe and place bets.

There was a parade prior to the fight. Very much like a sports event today, albeit more barbaric. They would then come to the coliseum and they paraded around while everyone cheered or jeered. They would walk the exterior of the coliseum, and then they would come by the royal box, and they would extend their arm to the empower, "Hail Caesar, we who are about to die, salute you." Then their weapons were distributed and checked.

There would be music horns, hydraulic organs, flutes which would get the spectators worked up to a fever pitch. They cheered for their favorite gladiator (just like the Corinthians and those they picked as their leaders at Corinth).

Many of these would fight over and over again, and very few ever retired, but those who did were revered, just as we revere our own sports heroes. The gladiator in the arena had to kill his opponent in order to live.

This gives us an idea as to what Paul was referring to. The Corinthians got this picture. They understood completely what Paul was talking about. The Corinthians were spectators to savagery. Paul confronts them with these facts. Vv. 11–13 tells us just what he means.

You do not progress in the spiritual life unless you confront and deal with your own failures. Paul wanted the Corinthians to see themselves and their failures just as they were. These people needed to confront their own failure; their failure to take in doctrine, their failure to be grace oriented. This is where Paul wants them to be. We are gladiators and we are doomed to die. We might as well go out like warriors, as we are going to die. We do not belong up in the stands screaming for blood. We should never be afraid to be condemned as a gladiator. When we are carried off, we will be in eternity.

Θιατρων = theater, spectacle. We will use that word next time.

1Cor. 4:9 For I think that God displayed us, the apostles, last, as sentenced to death, because we have become a spectacle to the world and to angels and to people.

1Corinthians 4:9

Lesson #145 Thursday
The Angelic Conflict

April 14, 2005

Technical difficulties, which kept us from starting on time.

Paul mentioned being a spectacle to men and angels, which is what we will have to deal with. As believer priests, we are responsible for ourselves with regards to rebound.

The Apostles and the pastor-teachers are like gladiators, which is how Paul describes his place in the world. Suffering was really not his gig. God had not placed Paul in a lofty position. He calls himself last of all. He calls himself this, in comparison to the Corinthians, who think of themselves in first place.

Paul and his crew would rather reign as kings rather than suffers as Apostles. The more mature we are, the more we will reign (or the greater the kingdom that we rain over). In this rank, Paul was actually following the Incarnate Christ. He was the King of Kings. At least one part of the humiliation is the doctrine of Ketosis. He became lower than angels. If the Lord took the abuse that he did, how much less could Paul do? The believers of that day were gladiators, for all intents and purposes. Επιθανατιος = condemned to a certain type of death. The gladiators in a procession and walked around the outside of the coliseum. Paul knew and understood the real strength of adversity; in God's strength,

The world of mn and angels observe our actions. Paul wakes the Corinthians up several times during this epistle. These Corinthians were being watched; there is nothing we can hide. Μυυς = gladiator battle. Θιατρον = theater.

Paul will tells us just who the spectators are. Κοσμος = world, entire intelligent universe. Satan's cosmic system is the orderly, cohesive, multi faceting system, whihcldes.

This strategy includes believers and unbelievers

Have you ever considered the Lake of fire, burning forever and ever. This is a pretty good appeal. God created us to show how a loving God could condemn us to death. The Son of God died for us. ## The Angelic Conflict

Lesson #146 Sunday 1

April 17, 2005

We are on the final portion of v. 9. Paul also used ἐπιθανάτιος = condemned to death. This is a shocking word; a word used to indicate a gladiator who has been sentenced to fight in the coliseum and thereby die in this fight.

1Cor. 4:9a For I think that God displayed us, the apostles, last, as sentenced to death,...

Θεατρον = theater, spectacle. Paul uses the very words which God wanted him to use. He speaks to us just as the Holy Spirit would that he speak. Paul is giving the Corinthians instruction in righteousness and correction. Gladiators was the major sport of the ancient world. It was a brutal, inhumane sport, particular as per our own 20th century sensibilities. Paul and other teachers of the Word were doomed, criminal gladiators. Particularly the strong and mighty were taken to make the games interesting. Paul is a condemned gladiator, like a criminal. He uses this image as a comparison. He compares himself to the Corinthians. Paul compares himself to these gladiators, sentenced to death; and the Corinthians would never see themselves like this. Paul put himself last of all. If anyone deserved to say, "I am at the forefront of the Church Age, it would be Paul; but he represents himself as being last of all. Paul describes this challenge as gladiatorial combat in the spiritual realm. Why use such a bloody comparison? In the Roman coliseum, the deaths were purely for the lusts of the crowd. The Corinthians had become nothing more than spectators. They are watching from the stands, each one choosing the gladiators on the field that they stand with. They were users. They are not gladiators, and they are not condemned to death—so how could they be of Paul or of Peter. They should be in the arena hacking away with Paul.

Men and angels observe Paul and we are all in constant warfare; each one of us is at war with unseen powers and enemies. Paul says that he and the other Apostles are being observed—this is true of all believers. The Corinthians should not be off in the stands watching and choosing their gladiator. They are not in the fight and they ought to be. Believers cannot stay out of the arena. The Corinthians must enter into the arena. Like it or not, all believers are destined to be gladiators. They are not armchair quarterbacks. That is improper.

Κοσμος = the world, Satan's cosmic system, the intelligent universe (angels and men; not including animals and plants). In this case, κοσμος refers to unbelievers and angels. We are in the world, but we are not of the world.

We may ask, why do angels watch us, on this insignificant planet in this vast universe? To understand why they watch us, we must examine the Doctrine of the Angelic Conflict.

Doctrine of the Angelic Conflict

1. Lucifer and other angels were in opposition to God; they make up the fallen angels. We know there is a Satan because of what Scripture tells us. Isa. 14:14: I will be like the Most High God. This is when Satan stood in opposition to God. Satan wanted to be like the Most High; that was his moment of complete arrogance. It was arrogance and not admiration. This continued until all angels made a decision for or against God. Rev. 12:4: a third of the angels fell. This many chose Satan over God.
2. This brought God's +R and +J into play. This meant there had to be judgment; there had to be a trial. God convened a trial with the fallen angels as defendants. This was prior to creation as we know it. It may have been the prehistoric earth.
3. The indictment was, some of the angels rejected God out of arrogance and from their own freewill. We are here because of their freewill.
4. Matt. 25:41 states the sentence pronounced at the end of the trial; the Lake of Fire will be for Satan and all of the fallen angels.
5. At this point, Satan appealed. Nobody knows exactly how this was conducted, but a trial appears to be the best analogy that we can draw. This illustration best fits the context. On TV, we see the actual trial, but we rarely see the appeal. The trial is interesting, but the appeal process is less so.
6. The petitioner or the appellant is the one who files a written brief of appeal, arguing an error in the trial. He does not reargue the trial, but says that there was an error in the trial. 3 judges read the briefs, and both sides usually make an oral argument (not always); the appellant goes first. Satan is the one who is convicted and he hopes to overturn the sentence which God has pronounced. Satan goes first in the appeal process, and then God goes second, showing His character and righteousness and justice to be perfect.
7. How does God show His character to be righteous and just? God creates a creature similar to, but lower in stature to angels. God's rebuttal is the human race.
  - 1) The death sentence against Satan has not been carried out yet, he is not in the Lake of Fire. There is a lag time.
  - 2) This lapse of time and the execution of that sentence. Rev. 20:10 God has given us enough to come to this kind of a conclusion.
  - 3) What has happened between God's pronounced sentence and the carrying out of the sentence, is human history. This would indicate that we are the argument for the prosecution.
  - 4) There are several possible appeal points:
    - (1) How could a loving God condemn His created creatures to the Lake of Fire? "God, You did not show enough love in the trial." God's love must be a part of the appeal process. God is more than just love. All men are condemned at birth. We are born spiritually dead. We all have a genetically inherited old sin nature. God's love is what sent Jesus Christ to die for our sins. It is God's love which provided this for us. God made Himself lower than angels to die for us. That is God's love. God's justice and righteousness will condemn the unbeliever to hell; His love will provide a way out. This appeal impugns the character of God.

- (2) "You made me thus, so I am not responsible for my acts." So freewill has to be a part of the appeal process.
- (3) "I may have disobeyed God, but I am essentially a good person," may have been an appeal by Satan. Therefore, human good must be a part of the appeal process.

1Cor. 4:9b ...because we have become a spectacle to the world and to angels and to people.

The Angelic Conflict

Lesson #147 Sunday 2

April 17, 2005

Then Angelic Conflict

8. Some questions:
  - 1) Why is man here?
    - (1) Man is created to resolve the prehistoric angelic conflict. We are evidence for the appellee.
    - (2) Man was created to glorify God as inferior creatures (inferior to the angels).
    - (3) Mankind are parallels to the angels. Man is an object of the love of God.
    - (4) We are witnesses to the justice of God in God's decision.
    - (5) We are evidence of God's perfect character. The Church Age evidence is part of the most important evidence of history.
    - (6) We are an exhibit of God's justice and righteousness to all of creation, which includes angels.
  - 2) Why is there sin in this universe?
    - (1) Sin and the fall of man parallel the arrogance and fall of Satan.
    - (2) If man falls, was it inevitable that he falls? Was God the perpetrator of sin or the cause of sin? God created us with freewill, and man chose against God. Adam and the woman chose to sin. God did not program into them the desire to sin. If Adam did not sin, the conflict is over.
    - (3) God created man with the same freewill as angels so that man could choose for or against God just as the angels did in eternity past.
    - (4) This is the crux to the resolution of the angelic conflict: man, sin, and witness.
  - 3) Why is there sin, evil, and disaster in the world?
    - (1) At this moment, Satan rules this world. We live in Satan's world. It is a fallen world. Man gave control of the world over to Satan. God can have something to do with us, but not with this fallen world.

(2) Satan tries by any means throughout history to duplicate the Millennium to prove himself equal to God. If he can usher in perfect environment, then he shows himself to be equivalent to God.

(3) Satan does not have the power to control all the inhabitants of the world. Satan cannot get all of us to do what he wants us to do. Communism is one approach here to have control over all men. Satan is the most powerful created being and he cannot reform the world.

(4) Satan does not have the ability to produce perfect environment in a fallen world. Not even environmentalists can bring about a perfect world.

4) Why is the human suffering in this world?

(1) Man is a sinner, and there is volitional responsibility. Where the world is fallen, there is suffering.

(2) Believers and unbelievers commit sins and make bad decisions. This causes self-induced misery always. Make a bad decision and count on the fact that it will hurt. Sin always causes the same thing.

(3) Believers fall under divine discipline and punitive suffering, which brings us back in line. Like a parent disciplines a child, to bring them back in line. To help them understand what correct behavior is. It always hurts; it has to, or it is not discipline. The more pain we get, the more we are out of line.

(4) Suffering is designed to orient us to the reality of sin and failure and the need for rebound and the importance of the grace of God and spiritual advance. When we advance spiritually, we are tactical victors in the angelic conflict. Suffering keeps on the road as tactical victors in the angelic conflict. We advance in this war and win tactical victories in this war.

(5) There is also a suffering for blessing.

i. This is the no fault suffering to the believer.

ii. There are two categories: providential suffering and evidence testing. Christian Suffering covers this information.

iii. 3rd category is evidence testing. It is a part of the angelic conflict.

iv. Evidence testing demonstrates the efficacy of God's grace in the life of the mature believer.

v. This testing is directly related to the tactical victory of the angelic conflict. We are charged to win this conflict. The mission order: stay in fellowship and take in doctrine. That is what we are here for. Sitting in church makes us a warrior and a gladiator. We are not sitting in the stands, but we are warriors in the center of the arena. What we do in church has impact for us and for our nation and international impact as well. We sent out missionaries throughout the world. Also, it has angelic impact. The angels watch us all the time. There are billions of angels who observe mankind. Everywhere we are, angels are.

- 5) Why are we here as a church?
  - (1) The church came into existence as a result of our Lord's victory on the cross. He won the strategic victory on the cross. When Jesus Christ died on the cross, Satan was doomed. Satan can't give up. He has no choice but to continue to fight, even though he is doomed. We are in the gladiatorial arena against Satan.
- 6) Why the cross?
  - (1) The cross is the greatest representation of God's grace, love, justice and righteousness toward His Son and toward us. That is the strategic victory.
  - (2) All the issues of the angelic conflict are resolved at the cross. All of them will be resolved. As church age believers, we are critical to the angelic conflict.
  - (3) Never before in human history and never after the rapture of the church is there so much weaponry given to any believer. We have more than any Old Testament believer had. Satan will fight harder to defeat us.
- 7) What does this mean to us?
  - (1) The church is the greatest bulwark and power against Satan's rule on the earth.
  - (2) Christ left behind the church to challenge Satan in the angelic conflict.
  - (3) Believers have the potential as gladiators. We can attain the tactical victory of the angelic conflict.
  - (4) Tactical victory is won each time a believer achieves spiritual maturity in the angelic conflict. We are the invisible hero, with maximum impact in the angelic conflict. We are different from the visible heroes like Moses, David and Esther. The Old Testament believer never had even remotely what we have. Israel was always off chasing down foreign gods; and we had so many visible heroes who would have to guide Israel. Israel was not good as a nation; they failed constantly. They were God's people and they still have that covenant. We have more resources and impact in the angelic conflict than anyone else up until this time. More, more, or o
  - (5) So if enough believers grow to spiritual maturity and form a pivot of mature believers, there will be prosperity in certain portions of the earth where they reside. We live in a client nation and wherever a client nation exists, there is prosperity. There is prosperity in order for us to send out missionaries, to send out Bibles, to be a haven for Jews, to provide a place for people to come and hear the gospel.

- (6) When we give, or support by prayer, we are a part of this fight in the arena.
- (7) A pivot of mature believers turns the course of history. One person makes a difference; two people can make a difference. God honors the mature believer and He honors the nation where a pivot exists.
- (8) Since the US is a client nation, this is the chief arena; this is where the angelic conflict is taking place. Satan will concentrate his forces where there is a pivot. Satan does not have to hang out elsewhere; he probably rarely leaves the USA.
- (9) If believers do not grow in grace, then Satan dominates and two forms of power exist. Angelic power, manifest by demon possession of unbelievers and demon influence over believers. There is a lot of demon possession in the world where there is no positive volition. Then there is human power, organized for influence and control as a part of Satan's control. Look to any communist regime. Anything government which opposes the spread of the gospel—that is the Satanically controlled nation, which is a result of those in that nation and their negative volition.
- (10) The church will represent the Lord of earth until the second advent, when Satan's kingdom comes to an end. Satan no longer rules in the Millennium; that is when Jesus Christ rules over the earth.

Both angelic groups have a stake in the angelic conflict. 2Peter 2:4: the elect angels are warriors on the side of God; fallen angels function to attack us. We do not know how or why angels are at war with one another; or even if they are at war with one another.

The present human race was created by God to resolve Satan's revolution. We are clearly inferior to angels in all respects. But we are created with a similar soul. A rational mind and the same decision making capabilities. This is why planet earth is the battlefield of the historical angelic conflict. God's response to Satan's trial and appeal is a host of witnesses; the witnesses for the prosecution will be a large group of mature believers.

This is only a beginning of the angelic conflict. There is a lot left and Bobby is jazzed about teaching it. In this one doctrine is all that we need to know about our existence. This encompasses everything that we do in this life. This tells us what the angels are like and how they oppose us, and the power that they have. We are fighting a great battle.

1Cor. 4:9b ...because we have become a spectacle to the world and to angels and to people.

The Angelic Conflict

Lesson #148 Wednesday

April 20, 2005

Bobby will continue with the Angelic Conflict:

Summary of the Angelic Conflict

13. The answer to some basic questions: why sin, why suffering, why evil; the angelic conflict answers these questions

1) Why was man created?

- (1) Man was created to resolve the angelic conflict. Man will be the one to settle the angelic conflict.
- (2) Satan probably objected: "How can a God of love send His creatures to a Lake of Fire?" When one stakes their life upon this, they spend eternity in the Lake of Fire.
- (3) God's justice and righteousness cannot fellowship with sin. God must condemn sin. The punishment must fit the crime. Hell was created for those who reject the Lord Jesus Christ. Unless all of our sins are propitiated, the punishment must be carried out. Jesus Christ propitiated the sins of all mankind.
- (4) We all died when we were born under the law of sin and death. Fallen man becomes the object of God's love in the cross. We are witness the Satan being consigned to the Lake of Fire.

2) Why is there sin in the world?

- (1) Man was created with exactly the same free will as angels. Man, by his own free will, initially chose against God in the garden. Man fell under the penalty of sin and death. Our fall paralleled the fall of Satan and his angels in prehistoric times. God is not the author of sin. It was man's choice to sin, just as it was Satan's choice to sin.
- (2) Why does God allow sin at all? Why does He allow free will?
  - i. No one can truly love without free will. A robot cannot love and they cannot glorify God. Therefore, men and angels were all created with free will.

3) Why do chaos and evil permeate the earth?

- (1) Satan as the great deceiver tempted man in the garden. With the fall came chaos and evil. This mess extends to all of God's creation, including animals and plant life. God is still in heaven, but Satan rules the earth. John 14:30 16:11
- (2) Satan's original arrogant idea, "I will be like the Most High." Now he tries to duplicate God's perfection on earth.
- (3) Satan cannot control all of the inhabitants of this world. Humans have volition. Humans can choose against Satan just as they can choose against God. We are those who reject Satan and his cosmic system. We are not a part of the phoney millennium that Satan thinks he can bring in.
- (4) The chaos on earth is proof positive that Satan cannot bring in the millennium. He is not equal with God and he never will be. The evil that we see is visible proof of that.

4) Why is there human misery and suffering?

- (1) Most of this is our own decisions. The more we are involved in Satan's system the more misery we bring upon ourselves.
- (2) There is true sadness in the loss of unbelievers who do not believe in Jesus Christ.
- (3) In any case, we cause most of our own suffering.
- 5) We are evidence in the Satanic appeal. We are intimately involved in the tactical victory of the angelic conflict. Our Lord was the One Who won the strategic victory on the cross.
- 6) Why the church?
  - (1) In Acts 1:8 and 2, we see the inception of the church. The cross is the central point of angelic conflict.
  - (2) Christ has done everything necessary for us to win.
  - (3) We are left behind to challenge Satan and his rulership. We have all the weaponry, support and logistics. Never before and never after will we see so much given to individuals.
  - (4) We as gladiators in the coliseum have the potential to become invisible heroes. When we achieve spiritual maturity, we win.
  - (5) History turns on us as the pivot. We are evidence.
  - (6) Along with the pivot, a client nation emerges.
  - (7) Our spiritual life turns the course of history. As our life goes, so goes the spiritual struggle on earth. Satan will never bring the kingdom in.
14. Both the elect and the fallen angels have a stake in the appeals; they have a big stake in it. Fallen angels and elect angels watch carefully. The fallen angels, because they are condemned; and the elect angels because they are warriors.
15. The angelic conflict is the answer to Satan's appeal.
16. God created mankind to resolve the revolution of Satan.
  - 1) To settle the angelic conflict, man was confined to earth and made lower than the angels.
  - 2) Our souls are similar to the souls of angels. We have a rational mind and we have free will.
  - 3) Therefore, planet earth is the battlefield of the angelic conflict. We are confined to a battlefield. We must fight or we must lose.
  - 4) The conflict is initiated by a judicial appeal by Satan. Satan has already been condemned and now he is appealing and we are in the middle of that appeal.
  - 5) The appellee goes second and presents a rebuttal against the appeal. We are the evidence. He presents a host of witnesses, and that is us.
  - 6) This is how God would demonstrate the fairness of His sentence and the justice of His character and His grace in providing us with the dynamics of the spiritual life. We may not understand our resources, but Satan does. When we reach spiritual maturity, we are a witness.
17. Human volition and angelic volition are tested in exactly the same manner.

- 1) The conditions of prehistoric time were reproduced for man.
- 2) Human history provides the same circumstances and the same options which belonged to angelic creatures in prehistoric time. We will make the same choices as made by angels in prehistory.
- 3) All angels and man were created by God, perfect and without sin; but with freewill
- 4) The negative volition of Satan in the garden of God in heaven which resulted in the fall of a third of all angels. They are called stars of heaven.
- 5) It was the negative volition of Satan which led to the garden of Eden.
- 6) Man followed the exactly same pattern as Satan's did. Satan's temptation of man was possibly very similar to the temptation which he offered to the angels who fell with him. What an insidious thing arrogance is.
- 7) God provided a grace salvation or a deliverance of some kind for all angels. This brings up a question. Did God provide a redemption solution for angels as He did for us? Did all angels fall and did God provide a way for them to get back in His graces. All we know for sure, there is a division between elect and fallen angels. If some did not fall, they were delivered by God in some way. Heb. 2:2 Non-meritorious volition existed in angels just as it exists in us.
- 8) God also provided a grace salvation based on the saving work of Christ on the cross.
- 9) Regenerate members of the human race are higher than angels. We are positionally higher than they are. We are in union with Christ, which means we share everything that He is and everything that He has. Heb. 1:4 Being positionally higher than angels puts another nail in Satan's coffin. We demonstrate further evidence of our superiority when we execute the plan of God for our lives.

This doctrine was started right here in Berachah's pulpit. Bobby is just continuing with it. This doctrine cannot be separated from all that we do.

A second aside. Some people think the validity turns on the question, Did God provide the same opportunity for angels to be saved as well? It would seem fair and just that God would provide the angels a second chance, although we do not know. This is not revealed to us, and therefore, it is not necessary that we know that.

Logical Deductions (Bobby Speculates)

1. Angels formerly lived in heaven by the grace of God.
2. They outright rejected the grace of God. But there is a difference in the way that we do it and the way that they did it. They rejected God in His very throne room.
3. They fell and with Satan made this appeal.
4. The issue is the appeal, not their redemption. Their doom is settled by the cross.

5. To this moment, none of them have changed their minds about God even though they know everything about Him; they still reject Him.
6. These angels were firsthand witnesses in heaven to the glory of God, to His power and His person.
7. The angels understood the grace of God when they were in heaven.
8. They are also witnesses to the sacrifice of Christ and they knew exactly what it meant, they have shown that they have locked in negative volition. It is immovable and it will not change. That is the power of arrogance.
9. So, based on what they already know about God in heaven, Bobby's opinion is that the angels made one decision for all time. We must learn what God has provided; we don't see it like they did; they saw God and rejected it. Bobby does not believe that they got a second chance.
10. They will see the justice and righteousness of God in our redemption.

The Angelic Conflict

Lesson #149 Thursday

April 21, 2005

A continuation of the study of the Angelic Conflict.

The Angelic Conflict

17. Human volition and angelic volition are tested in the exact same manner; there is a parallel between the two.
  - 1) The fall of Adam was the fall of all mankind. Those who express faith alone in Christ alone will be our salvation.
  - 2) Why did all men fall when Adam fall? It does not seem fair that we suffer the penalty for Adam's sin?
    - (1) In the garden, Adam was the federal head of the human race. In other words, he represented the entire human race before God, not just himself. He made decisions for us, just as congress and the president make decisions for our country. Adam represented us.
    - (2) In essence, we made the same decision; it is just Adam made it for us. It was as though we were present in the garden.
    - (3) Adam's original sin is imputed to us. Adam sinned, so we all sinned.
    - (4) His sin nature which he acquired by his sin of cognizance is transmitted to us. This is why the sin nature is transferred genetically and often referred to as the flesh.
    - (5) We are the seed of Adam and he acted for us and his sin became our sin.
    - (6) Similarly, the last Adam acted on our behalf.
  - 3) Adam had to be created as the angels were created, without any internal desire to sin. God provided a grace salvation for both created beings. The exact nature of that salvation option for angels is not revealed to us in Scripture. Whatever criterion was required was met by two-thirds of the angels.

- 4) For fallen mankind, God provided a redemption solution. Mankind received a second chance. Adam's original sin was imputed to us; the second chance for us is Christ on the cross Who paid for our sins, the greatest act of love and justice which has ever taken place.

There is the speculation if there was some sort of payment for sins made on behalf of the angels, which Bobby dealt with last night.

Bobby Speculates about Redemption of Angels

1. Angels formerly lived in heaven by the grace of God.
2. The angels did reject God in His very presence.
3. To this moment, they have not changed their minds about God.
4. They were firsthand witnesses to God's power and grace; they saw Who God was and they saw the grace of God.
5. Even though these angels knew everything about God, they still did not believe.
6. In essence, their negative volition is locked in. Satan's original sin was arrogance and that is the power of arrogance, to see all that God has done for man, and yet not turn from their evil.
7. So based upon what the angels already knew about God, the angels probably made one decision one time in heaven without a second chance.
8. Man must express positive volition after never seeing God and never witnessing His power; we have not seen it firsthand.
9. The angels, conversely, have already seen God's power and have known from their creation God's character; and with that nature, they reject Him.
10. It is not about redemption for them; that option no longer exists for them. Their own second chance is only if they win the angelic conflict and that is where their energy is directed, as opposed to reconciliation with God.
11. If we recognize what Jesus Christ has done and believe it, we are saved; and if we reject Jesus Christ, we will spend eternity in the Lake of Fire.

The Angelic Conflict (Continued)

18. Satan's strategy is directed entirely to deceiving mankind.
19. Satan can no longer attack the volition of mankind. Rev. 12:9: So the great dragon was thrown out--the ancient serpent, who is called the Devil and Satan, the one who deceives the whole world. He was thrown to earth, and his angels with him. The counter to this is 1Peter 5:8: Be sober! Be on the alert! Your adversary the Devil is prowling around like a roaring lion, looking for anyone he can devour. Satan is portrayed as a lion who is voracious. He is after believers who reject doctrine and men who reject Jesus Christ as savior. The ball is in our court now; whether to be devoured or not.

20.

Satan has an evolving strategy as history unfolds.

- 1) His initial strategy was to stop the first advent:
  - (1) Nephilim, and this is from the Victorious Proclamation. Gen. 6:2–4: the sons of God saw that the daughters of man were beautiful, and they took any they chose as wives for themselves. And the LORD said, "My Spirit will not remain with mankind forever, because they are corrupt. Their days will be 120 years." The Nephilim were on the earth both in those days and afterwards, when the sons of God came to the daughters of man, who bore children to them. They were the powerful men of old, the famous men. This was Satan's first attack against the first advent. The Nephilim, who were the corrupted human race, half human and half angelic. Angels do not procreate now, but at that time they could. In every polytheistic society, there is a mythology, which bears a grain of truth. In the Greek mythology, there are those like Hercules and Achilles. They were both half-men and half-God. Achilles was vulnerable only in his heel. If there were no true humans on earth, then Jesus could not be born as true humanity, as he would be part angel. Satan understood this and corrupted the human race for this reason. Satan did determine to pollute the human race, but not only as an attack on the first advent.
  - (2) If the Jews are destroyed, there is no covenant which can be fulfilled by God. This is an approach which Satan takes before and after the incarnation. If God lies, Satan wins; anything which reveals a crack in God's perfection makes Satan the victor. Satan cannot come up to God's standard, but he tries to bring God down to his level.
  - (3) Satan's strategy fails when Jesus Christ appeared in the flesh and took upon Himself our sins.
- 2) Satan lost the initial strategy on the cross, so now all he can do is win a tactical victory. All he has to do is prove that God's character is imperfect:
  - (1) He attacks to obscure the content of the gospel, the person and work of Jesus Christ; to corrupt and obscure Bible doctrine.
  - (2) Satan is extremely brilliant and he establishes systems of religion in which the works of man replace the function and mechanics of the grace of God. Every religion relies upon a system of human works in order to gain the favor of God; apart from Christianity. It is the grace of God versus the works of man. Religion is the devil's ace trump and it drives people away from God. Religion makes man think that he can earn salvation. Every religion is the same, even though they worship different gods or don't have gods; we still become united with God through our works. It is all straight from the devil's strategy. 2Cor. 4:3–4: But if, in fact, our gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing. Regarding them: the god of this age has blinded the minds of the unbelievers so they cannot see the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God. Satan attempts to veil that glory from the rest of humanity. He attempts to veil the gospel from unbelievers and doctrine from believers.

- (3) He attacks the believer's dependence upon the grace of God and his execution of the spiritual life; that is the story of Job. Job was a mature believer. The attack against Job was evidence testing; "Take away what Job has and see if he still follows you." Satan attacks the believer to attempt to get him to reject doctrine to keep him from advancing. This is why Paul tells us that we are observed by men and angels. Paul wrote this one line to the Corinthians all because of the angelic conflict. Satan pushes his system of good and evil upon us, which includes false doctrine and heresy. False doctrine has been a part of Christianity from the beginning. They are called doctrines of demons. There are the everyday distractions; you get buried in all the little things in life. Those little things really don't matter. The strategy is to turn us away from the light of eternity. Then there are the false scales of value. Human good causes us to lose a tactical victory. He also gets us through the details of life; we fail to pass the prosperity test.

1Corinthians 4:9b

Lesson #150 Sunday 1
The Angelic Conflict

April 24, 2005

1Cor. 4:9b: Because we have become a spectacle to the world, both to angels and to men.

Angels and men are cognizant and observant. Both can reason and both have a conscience. Angels have made their decision in eternity past and some have been judged. Their decisions are over; their judgment has been pronounced; however, their sentence has not yet been carried out.

When Lucifer stood in opposition to God in prehistory, when he stood up and said, "I will be like the Most High." Once Satan made this decision, the justice and righteousness of God had to act and there was a trial convened in prehistory. Satan and the fallen angels were accused in this trial. Once their sentence was pronounced, Satan appealed: "How could a loving God cast His creatures into the Lake of Fire?" Also, "How can we be responsible for our acts if God made us this way?" Also, "The sentence is too harsh." Human history is the answer to Satan's appeal. We are the extension of the prehistoric sentence pronounced upon Satan.

We have the same volition as found in the angels and we are equipped to be the witnesses for the prosecution in the trial's appeal. The negative volition of angels. The negative volition of Adam marked the fall of man. With Adam, all men fell as well. We are born spiritually dead because of Adam. Adam is the federal head of the human race. It is similar to our government officials who make decisions for each one of us as our representatives. Adam made this decision for all of us. He received an old sin nature as a part of his cell structure. Adam sinned and died for all of us; being in Adam, we are all sinful and we are born spiritually dead. We have condemnation from the first Adam and salvation in the second Adam.

God provided some kind of salvation for the angels themselves. We do not know the exact nature of this designation, fallen and elect angels. The choice made by some angels delivered them and the choice made by others condemned them. There was a salvation in prehistory. All mankind received a second chance. Each one of us now has a second chance. This second chance is faith alone in Christ alone. They demonstrate to Satan in this conflict the love and grace of God. Each person who believes in Jesus Christ and each believer who advances to maturity further demonstrates the fallacy of Satan's appeal. If man rejects Jesus Christ, then God's justice must condemn man to the Lake of Fire, which is eternal separation from God. If man rejects the love of God and the sacrifice of Christ, then he is worthy of death. The Lake of Fire was created for the devil and his angels. We will share in this punishment.

Satan constantly has his own appeal in mind and his strategy is how to come out on top in the angelic conflict. He must win his appeal or he will spend eternity in the Lake of Fire. We stand in Satan's way and he wants to win. Satan understood immediately from Gen. 3:15 his own faith. This is the first statement of salvation and eternal punishment. Satan's strategy is now to deceive man and to lead us astray. 1Peter 5:8 is addressed to us: Be sober; be vigilant; Satan goes about like a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour. Devouring believers does not mean that they go to hell with Satan; he seeks to make them a part of his cosmic system and to be caught up in this cosmic system. Satan's strategy has several phases. He looks to stop the first advent of Jesus Christ. If Christ died on the cross and was judged for our sins, then God wins the strategic victory of the Angelic Conflict. The victory of the crucifixion is the greatest representation of the love and justice of God, which sealed Satan's doom.

Satan's first attack was the Nephilim in Gen. 6. The Nephilim were the progeny of the sons of God and the daughters of men. The term sons of God (Job 1) applies to angels who are convened in heaven. The sons of God are attracted to the daughters of men. The Nephilim were half-men, half-angel creatures, which is the basis for mythology. There is a basis in fact for mythology; an oral history which was transferred from generation to generation. The idea was to taint all humanity so that there was no longer any humanity from which Jesus Christ could descend. That would be a victory. Satan attempted to corrupt the very genetic structure of the human race. The human line was secure and the angels were thereafter confined.

Satan's next strategy was to destroy the Jew. This would also stop the first advent of the Lord Jesus Christ. Satan has championed anti-Semitism from time immemorial. At first, it was to stop the incarnation; secondly, it is to violate God's promises to Israel. If the Jews disappear, then that promise cannot be kept. God would have broken his word with Abraham if there are no Jews to inherit the kingdom.

Satan lost the strategic victory at the cross. He now has a two-fold strategy to achieve a tactical victory. Every time that a person believes in Jesus Christ, there is a tactical victory for God. His first strategy is to attack. He (2Cor. 3:3–4) corrupts the gospel and he obscures the gospel. Satan attempts to mislead us through religion. Satan is the author of religion. Every religion in this world focuses on the works of mankind; all except true Christianity. In Christianity, we focus on the work of Jesus Christ. Satan wants us to believe that our works count. He wants us to think we can deserve God’s approbation.

We are witnesses against Satan and against his appeal. Satan will do anything to destroy us. Eph. 6 describes the defensive weapons which we have to defend ourselves against the attacks of Satan. True Christianity relies exclusively upon God’s grace. The true belief system of the Old Testament is exactly the same as our belief system as Christians.

To infiltrate the message of grace and to distort it is what Satan would like to do; inject works into the grace of God and it is false. Satan’s next strategy attacks the dependence of the believer on the grace of God. An example is Job. He was a mature believer. Satan made accusations against him (Job 1:6–12). Job was winning a tactical victory and Satan was trying to prove that this victory was nothing but a fluke. His assertion was, if God removed his prosperity, then Job would curse God to His face. Satan makes similar accusations against us. Job was in the midst of great blessing; and Satan said, “Take this away from Job and he will curse You; he will hate You.” Satan questioned Job’s spiritual maturity and his devotion to God. Could Job hold onto the grace of God in severe adversity? The book of Job is a microcosm of the Angelic Conflict. Satan and his angels watch to see if Job could maintain his faithfulness to God.

A specific category of men is who Paul is referring to. Those who are being observed are specific men; and those who are observing are unbelievers and angels. What do unbelievers watch?

1Corinthians 4:9

Lesson #151 Sunday 2

April 24, 2005

In the previous hour, we studied what the angels have observed. In this hour, what about men? What do men observe? In this context, it is unbelievers that we are speaking of. Those who observe are unbelievers. What is it that unbelievers watch?

What is it that Unbelievers Watch

1. The war between Satan and the spiritual life of the believer.
2. Unbelievers are not cognizant that they are watching the Angelic Conflict.
3. Nevertheless, they are unwitting observers and pawns in the conflict.
4. The unbeliever watches the believer and his execution or his failure to execute the spiritual life. They watch us, if they know we are believers. This is our witness to the unbelievers. If you say you are a believer in Jesus Christ, someone will observe you.
5. Believers who fall apart, who mix human and divine viewpoint, who run down unbelievers, and those in reversionism are not attractive or unacceptable to unbelievers. They see this and think, “I am in just the same condition that they are.” On top of that, they have to go to church. They don’t need that.

6. They observe us and the execution of the spiritual life. They observe if there is any difference between the believer and the unbeliever. They run the other way when you say you have all the answers explains what they observe in you. What interests an unbeliever in you is when they see something in you that they don't have. That is a great witness.
7. Those who do fall apart and are not witnesses in the life; such believers are not gladiators; they are not witnesses for the prosecution; they are at best spectators in the warfare.
8. All of this becomes an excuse for the unbeliever to reject. We have become Satan's pawn; part of his cosmic system.
9. They may have rejected Jesus Christ anyway; but we as believers are not called to be a stumbling block to others because of our lack of spiritual growth. When we submit to the human viewpoint that surrounds us, we are a stumbling block to those around us. "I love the Lord" along with hedonism or legalism negates what you say and they realize what a hypocrite you are.

Back to the angelic conflict:

21. Executing the Christian life and advancing spiritually, is the tactical victory which occurs when we advance.
22. If Satan can disrupt the execution of our spiritual life, then he can win a tactical victory for himself. This is what he attempted to do with Job and what he tries to do with us. You have got to wonder about Satan sometimes; Al Pacino did a great portrayal of Satan in a movie. Satan knows God intimately; Satan was created in the very garden of God in heaven; he has seen the absolute power of God; he has seen the great power of God in the throne room of God. How does he think he can defeat God? He is arrogant; this is the power of arrogance. Satan is the most arrogant creature who has ever lived. He is so focused on himself, that he can overlook the power of God. Arrogant believer sees himself as humble. Arrogant as can be, yet they seem themselves as humble. That is how insidious arrogance can be. Only their own desires matter. That is the primary example of that. Satan sees nothing and no one but himself. Satan's power system of arrogance makes him buy into the possibility that he is greater than God. Satan living in the very throne room of God rejects God.
23. The culmination of Satan's strategy in the Angelic Conflict: Satan fights in the Church Age and he has plans for the future.
  - 1) The attacks of demon assault armies stationed in the abyss.
  - 2) The attack of the second demon army (Rev. 9:) stationed in the Euphrates River. This is because Israel is so close.
  - 3) There is the demon attack of the Gog and Magog revolution at the end of the Millennium (Rev. 20:7-10). These are attacks which close out Satan's final attack against God.

4) There is chaos in our soul, psychologically, etc. Our world is in chaos, in case we haven't noticed. A client nation provides refuge for the Jew, teaches the Word of God, and sends out missionaries.

5) Satan cannot control the world that he rules; and he cannot control us. He foments chaos in this world in an attempt to gain an advantage. Unbelievers will join the devil and his angels in the Lake of Fire. Failure to execute the protocol plan of God. Rejection of Christ and not executing the spiritual life are the two things for which Satan strives. We should be that which brings order to a chaotic world and to our own nation. We should be the ones sending out missionaries to guide those in darkness to the light. Doctrine keeps us from participating in Satan's system.

24. Closing arguments and summary of the prosecution of Satan.

1) The Millennial rule of Jesus Christ. The Millennium duplicates the perfect conditions of the garden of Eden on this earth.

2) There is a revolution. Perfect environment will not satisfy everyone. There is a sin nature. We will be resurrected and we will not have old sin natures. When Armageddon occurs, there will be a rescue of believers. They will go straight into the Millennium in the body that they have. They will go into the Millennium with an old sin nature. They will procreate and some of their progeny will reject Jesus Christ in perfect environment.

3) Satan's closing argument will be the Gog revolution at the end of the Millennium (Rev. 20:8).

4) Human history culminates with the Gog and Magog revolution.

5) In the end, Satan, his angels, and all the resurrected unbelievers will be consigned to the Lake of Fire for all eternity (Rev. 20:10). Now, many believers want to know will I die or will I be raptured? Let God take care of this. Then there will be the 7 year Tribulation followed by the Millennium. The Angelic Conflict rages in the age in which we live.

6) Operation footstool from Psalm 110:1 "The Lord says to My Lord, 'Sit on My right hand until I make Your enemies a footstool for Your feet.'" Two phases completed at both ends of the Millennium. Satan is bound up and thrown into the Abyss with all his angels. That is not the Lake of Fire. The final phase is at the end of the Millennium when Satan will be loosed from the Abyss and he will gather those who are unbelievers and they will revolt against God. He knows the end is near. We will observe it.

25. The post historic sentence to Satan.

1) Satan cannot win.

2) The sentence of the prehistoric trial is carried out in Rev. 20:11–15.

3) That is the moment that Satan and all of the fallen angels are cast into the Lake of Fire.

4) The Great White Throne Judgment follows immediately, which is a court of judgment for all unbelievers. All unbelievers of history will be resurrected into some sort of a body and they will be brought before the Lord Jesus Christ and His judgment seat. They will be tried, found guilty, and sentenced, and cast into the Lake of Fire forever. There will be absolute, abject horror at the Great White Throne; many will look into the Lake of Fire and realize that is where they are to be thrown forever.

- 5) The entire universe will be destroyed by fire; the Angelic Conflict is over and a new heaven, a new earth and a new Jerusalem are created and this begins the eternal state. That is total victory in the Angelic Conflict. We as believers in Jesus Christ will be there. We will be in the eternal state, whether we have any rewards or not. God's justice, love, righteousness and grace will be proven without a shadow of a doubt at that point. His character will be uncontested.

This explains why all categories of angels watch us in the Angelic Conflict. If even one person believes in Jesus Christ, Satan loses, and the grace of God triumphs. The sentence which God pronounced upon Satan is justified and will be executed. Unbelievers also watch believers and watch the spectacle of the Corinthians. The Corinthians are losing. They watch to see the validity of salvation and the spiritual life of the believer. "What do I get out of this?" is what the unbeliever asks. The issue in history is two-fold: the plan of God: salvation as well as growth. We are the key. There will be no excuses.

The Angelic Conflict

Lesson #152 Wednesday

April 27, 2005

We may have been watched at one time by a peeping Tom or a stalker, which can be intimidating or even frightening. Bobby had to relieve an officer of conduct which was unbecoming an officer. He was a vindictive person and made certain allegations, which had to be investigated. He claimed that civilian personnel were taking food home and that there were unauthorized trades going on as well. Bobby recalls seeing people in a car with binoculars. There was still pressure when you know you are observed; you walk very lightly; you cross your t's and dot your i's. Paul was hoping that the Corinthians would recognize that they were being watched and behave accordingly. Paul tells them that the angelic CID was watching them. This was to shed a new light on Corinthian behavior; as now they realize that they were being watched. They were being made a spectacle for unbelievers and angels; a sobering and disturbing thought. You might prefer that they not be there; but they are. We are all in the midst of the angelic conflict; and Satan and his angels are our mortal enemies. They constantly accuse us; especially mature believers. Periodically, Satan goes to heaven and accuses this or that person of their behavior and their sins.

The attack of the Nephaliim which is in "Victorious Proclamation." Another strategy of Satan's is anti-Semitism; which occurred prior to the incarnation to keep Christ from being born of Abraham; and after to prevent the fulfillment of prophecies to the Jew.

Satan understood from the cross that he lost strategically. Then he attempts to have enough tactical victories to show there is a problem with God and God's character. During this dispensation, he attempts to obscure and confuse the gospel. He also tries to corrupt faith alone in Christ alone with the insertion of works. Religion is the devil's ace trump.

Religion is just gaining the favor of God through our own works. He also attacks the believer's dependence upon God. He pushes human viewpoint and his cosmic system of good and evil.

Distractions from the Plan of God

1. Anytime Satan can mix human viewpoint with divine viewpoint, he distracts us from the plan of God. Satan has brilliant ways of worming human viewpoint into our thinking. We must always be aware of human viewpoint and always aware of divine viewpoint.
2. False doctrine and heresies within the church, which can be very seductive, especially to those who believe they can distinguish between right and wrong on their own apart from a pastor-teacher.
3. A spiritual life based upon works instead of grace. When you live the spiritual life based upon how well you can do, you have lost. Do not forget that our spiritual life depends entirely upon the grace of God.
4. There are distractions like the details of life. Get a little prosperity; getting some of the things you always wanted. You lose sight of the grace of God with the gaining of a few details.
5. Activism is another distraction; I have become a Christian; now I will go out and change the world. Personal adversity can be a distraction as well.
6. Human good is another distraction which Satan throws our way. This has no eternal impact; only divine good done under the filling of the Holy Spirit counts.

Unbelievers also watch us; they watch to see if we fail or execute the Christian way of life. When you tell them you are a Christian, then they will watch you carefully. They watch closely whether a believer whose position they know, and they watch to see if we go ballistic. If we fall apart when something bad happens to us, the unbelievers notice it. If the unbeliever handles things that we cannot, then they are going to go with their own system. In fact, on top of that, they are not a hypocrite. We do fail, but we do have resources and problem solving devices that no one else has. We have to implant these things in our soul and use them.

There was nothing wrong with eating the meat offered to idols; but this really upset some immature believers and it caused problems for them. You don't have to be legalistic to be a witness for Jesus Christ; you can relax and enjoy life, without becoming a hurdle for the perception of the gospel. We should not be surprised to know that all categories of angels watch us. If even one person believes in Jesus Christ, then God's plan is successful and Satan loses. The love and grace of God has triumphed. The sentence that God has pronounced against Satan is justified. The grace of God has worked. The plan of God for salvation and the spiritual growth after salvation are the two aspects to our lives.

Application Points

1. History and the Angelic Conflict take a very sort amount of time compared to eternity; which is why we should live our lives in the light of eternity. Our lives may seem horrendous and as though they last forever, but they do not.
2. All who place other things in life first or above executing the spiritual life are failures as evidence for the prosecution; not a good thing to be. We will be rewarded or not accordingly.
3. All those other things of the cosmic system will become meaningless at eternity. All these things which we have gained and strived for in life become meaningless; they add up to regrets. We will be spectators who failed to become gladiators.
4. If we have not provided evidence for the prosecution in the rebuttal phrase of the Angelic Conflict, then we have lost the opportunity to win a tactical victory. We each has a little niche; and we get this by advancing in the spiritual life.
5. We will realize that the things we considered important were roads to becoming spectators in the spiritual way of life.
6. How easy it is to choose to fall into the cosmic system of Satan. He is so insidious; he is so brilliant; his approach is incredibly subtle.
7. You choose to succumb to the pressures of life instead of using spiritual resources to overcome them.
8. This explains the importance of mature Church Age believers gaining a tactical victory. This is a new way of understanding the advance. There is the historical impact on this nation. With have national and international impact.
9. Our evidence testing is a major factor in breaking the back of Satan in the angelic conflict.

Check the big red book for an expanded doctrine of evidence testing.

Important of Evidence Testing in the Life of the Believer

1. The mature believer has the honor of being entered as evidence testing against Satan's appeal. This is the mature believer only.
2. Thoughts, motives, decisions and actions for the prosecution against Satan.
3. Every person demonstrates God's love and graciousness at the cross.
4. The greatest demonstration other than what Jesus Christ did is the believer becoming mature.
5. Satan does not believe in mistakes for himself; he is too arrogance for that.
6. Satan cross-examines every believer who reach maturity; he can trip us up in a heartbeat.
7. Satan attempts through his cross-examination of underserved suffering to discredit those who attain spiritual maturity. He does everything in his means to send them into reversionism.
8. Those who withstand such testing demonstrate the divine dynamics of grace utilized.
9. Execution of the spiritual life has impact far beyond our personal existence.

10. The impact when spiritual maturity stands up under evidence testing; that is the front line of battle. The enemy has been defeated and God is glorified to the maximum in the angelic conflict.
11. Evidence testing is best illustrated with the Job incident. Job is receiving great blessing as a mature believer; Satan claimed that Job did not deserve what he got.
12. Three parts to Job's test:
  - a. He lost his prosperity. Job 1
  - b. He lost his health and social life as well as his good looks. Job 2
  - c. Job lost his friends. Job 3– some of the most difficult things in life is evidence testing. He passed the first two and temporarily failed the third; but he got it under control. The Apostle Paul was under evidence testing his entire life. It is designed for our benefit. We can handle it and we will appreciate it when we get to eternity. Job proved that Satan's allegations were false.
13. Evidence testing comes quickly; often without any notice or warning; when things are going very well. Since the believer is mature in his spiritual life; what he undergoes is completely undeserved suffering. Expect it; the other shoe will drop.
14. Evidence testing is very severe. The more severe it is, the greater reward is when you pass it; the more damaging the evidence is against Satan.
15. Undeserved suffering never puts on the believer more than he can bear. 1Cor. 10:13: No temptation has overtaken you except what is common to humanity. God is faithful and He will not allow you to be tempted beyond what you are able, but with the temptation He will also provide a way of escape, so that you are able to bear it. God did not tempt Job beyond what he was able; the gives you an idea as to how mature Job was. The negative believer piles on himself more suffering than he can bear. This verse does not apply to the negative believer. God is faithful; but we can do this to ourselves. This is not the outside testing of the world, the flesh and the devil. Even this unbearable suffering is designed to bring us back into the plan of God. If the believer does not respond, then the suffering is unbearable. If it hurts; rebound. If you have rebounded, then you are living under undeserved suffering, which has impact for us personally and in the Angelic Conflict and has impact nationally and internationally.

Evidence Testing

Lesson #153 Thursday

April 28, 2005

Doctrine of Evidence Testing

Summary: We are all in the midst of the appeal trial of the Angelic Conflict. Every situation and every objection which Satan brings before God is replicated among us on earth and how God's character is maintained. "Why did you create us, God, if you are just going to send us to hell?" This directly impugns the character of God. God's love and character are impugned by Satan in this appeal and these things needed to be shown as perfect in every regard. Satan attempts, in his appeal, to prove that God is less than He is. If God is less than God, then Satan's lack of perfection is a result of God's character, which would be imperfect. Satan's appeal depends upon proving that God is unloving and unfair in His character. Suffering in the human race is a central line of argument against God; this is the practical side of Satan's appeal. Is suffering fair? Is this just? "Why doesn't God do something about my miserable condition?" Man initially chose against God in the garden. Condemnation must always precede salvation. We must be condemned before we can be saved. Salvation is a part of God's character and condemnation brings us to a point where we can be saved. We made a decision and the law of volitional responsibility kicks in. "There is a believer, and he is suffering greatly; prove to me that you are honorable, just and fair." Our suffering is a further indictment of Satan's negative volition toward God.

How is God's Character Show in Salvation?

1. His love is clearly shown in the salvation which is given to us.
2. His justice and righteousness are shown as man exercises his volition to decide for or against salvation.
3. God's justic and righteousness are shown when we overcome suffering in our lives.
4. When we make positive decisions, either toward God for salvation or toward our spiritual lives, this condemns Satan.

We are the evidence for the prosecution in Satan's appeal. Satan could not care whether we suffer, or whether we spend eternity in hell; he just doesn't want to.

Job and Evidence Testing

1. Satan argues that man cannot handle suffering, especially if the suffering is unfair and unjust. Man remains faithful to God only when things go right; only when God blesses him. Stop blessing man, and he will curse you to your face.
2. Job, in his mature status, discredited Satan's allegation. Job lost everything; he was a mature believer who suddenly found himself on the ash heap; then his friends showed up to tell him how much he was out of line. They told him, "You obviously did something to make God really mad at you." Job was the classic case of suffering for blessing; evidence testing.
3. Job was a mature believer, so he was not being disciplined under the law of volitional responsibility. Undeserved suffering is really for the mature believer only. This is both suffering and blessing in evidence testing. When we pass evidence testing, we will be greatly honored by God as a response.

Satan was also given great assets prior to his fall. He claimed that God made him fall; God's justice and righteousness are too harsh. Moses and David all suffered intensely; deserved and undeserved. David showed the resources in his soul; he was a witness. And Moses dealt with a million Jews constantly whining and he passes, except for one time. Moses and David were giants in the faith because they passed evidence testing, over and over again. They equated living with dying; prosperity with adversity; this evidence confirms that only Satan is to blame for the state that he finds himself in.

Satan's second argument is, no one will remain faithful to God if offered enough wealth and power. Everyone has their price; everyone can be bought off at the right price. Satan had it all, and he still rebelled against God. He rejected it out of his own arrogance. Will man's lust for power or fame or whatever be more important than the plan of God?

Matt. 4:1–11: Satan tempted Jesus Christ in the same way; Satan offered Him the rulership over the world, which would have come apart from the cross. The Holy Spirit empowered Jesus Christ just as the Holy Spirit empowers us. Evidence testing becomes a major argument against Satan in this appeal. All his thoughts, motives, decisions and actions are offered as proof. Every believer who weathers evidence testing shows that Satan failed and not God.

Satan cross-examines every mature believer with undeserved suffering. This is designed to discredit believers in maturity. If they blame or question God and His love and fairness, then Satan has just impeached this witness. 1Cor. 4:9 is angels watching us.

Satan nails us when we least expect it. The believer is advancing and the suffering is completely undeserved and very severe. The more severe the suffering, the more damaging the evidence is against Satan. We ultimately damage Satan's case. Underserved suffering tests are usually flunked.

Evidence Testing Continued

15. Don't let up; never let up. You must continue to advance.
  - 1) There is no trust fund of doctrine. You must continually replenish your trust fund, just as you must eat every day.
  - 2) Paul assumes that spiritual maturity has its vulnerabilities. Philip. 3:15
  - 3) This different attitude results in failure to continue our spiritual advance. "Oh God, please take this testing off of me." Regardless, you are functioning under total human viewpoint. Instead, it should be, "I have the resources to handle this; bring it on."
  - 4) Arrogance or a propensity for self-pity or bitterness will result in failure every time.
  - 5) God will not put any more on us than we can bear; but this is not true in the law of volitional responsibility.
  - 6) The one who fails evidence testing goes straight to emotionalism. He forsakes it for the cosmic system.
16. Passing evidence testing:
  - 1) What do you think about when you are under pressure? Your momentum is perpetuated under evidence testing. Are you in fellowship and are you advancing in doctrine.
  - 2) The mature believer uses the mind of Christ implanted in his soul.
  - 3) When we face evidence testing, it requires courage and thinking under pressure. Fear, courage, and cowardice. Under pressure means that fear is there. Courage is the ability to think and act even when you are afraid. You are courageous when fear does not debilitate us.

- 4) Cowardice is when we allow fear to get the best of us. Fear takes over and doctrine leads. Falling apart emotionally is failing to live the Christian life.
- 5) Under suffering for blessing, the believer's content for thought is always Bible doctrine. If you focus on the situation or on yourself, then you will fail. You must focus on Bible doctrine and on the solution. Don't make yourself the issue. There is something much bigger than us that we are in.
- 6) Correct thinking from metabolized doctrine and occupation with the person of Jesus Christ. Metabolized doctrine and thinking from doctrine and motivation from occupation on Christ all allow us to pass evidence testing. Satan watches us; he knows where we are vulnerable; they know our areas of weakness in our sin nature, and they attack at that point. Evidence testing is our responsibility.
- 7) No matter how far we go in God's plan, we are human; and we are prone to failure; especially under suffering for blessing. This is not an excuse; Bobby is talking reality.
- 8) Failure can come from several directions:
  - (1) A lack of doctrine in your soul.
  - (2) A vulnerability in your soul.
  - (3) Fear, anger, self-pity, bitterness, etc. cause failure in our spiritual lives.
  - (4) Satan will hit us where we are weakest; often a doctrine that we have rejected for some reason or another. We don't believe it. When we get into evidence testing and we are suddenly afraid, Satan is going to hit us that much harder.
  - (5) If we fail, then we have not only the evidence testing and the suffering from failure and from being out of fellowship.
  - (6) Recovery is always as near as spiritual advance; we will never pass evidence testing without doctrine in our souls.
  - (7) When you are surrounded by evidence testing, you do not have the option of retreat. Temporal death might indicate defeat. When we are surrounded by adversity, we fight in a different direction. Do not fail evidence testing.
- 9) Final objective in evidence testing:
  - (1) God's perfect fairness and matchless grace are confirmed to all the spectators when we pass evidence testing.
  - (2) This confirmation has an impact on the Angelic Conflict which we will not fully appreciate until after death.
  - (3) We have a part in the victory from which comes to us great blessing and reward from the Judgment Seat of Christ.

Bobby mentions Paul in Iraq, and he gives an update. He was out of bed on Friday and could walk with a walker now.

Evidence testing and Angelic Conflict. For most tests, it only takes a D to pass. We are still a witness for the prosecution. Job passed and passed, then he failed, passed, and failed. He still remains one of the greatest witnesses for the prosecution that we have.

The people in Corinth should be warriors, but they are a long distance from that. He is not finished with his illustration of the gladiator and the spectator.

Paul's sarcasm returns in this verse. This continues the comparison between the spectator and the gladiator. The spectators in v. 9 are angels and unbelievers, but he includes others as spectators as well. Believers in reversionism are indistinguishable from unbelievers. He extends his definition of spectators to the loser Corinthians. Those who pass evidence testing will be rewarded for that work (even those who get D's). Paul makes it clear to the Corinthians that they have no impact whatsoever. They should be in the arena and they are spectators. They know the mystery doctrine; they understood it. But they are babies; Paul has called them ναπιος. Unbelievers cannot be in the arena. Paul calls them spectators and reversionists. The unbeliever must always be in the stands; he cannot get into the arena. The believer can always step into the arena. The contrast is set up by two pronouns: ἡμεῖς and ὑμεῖς are the two pronouns which are prominent in this verse. We refers to Paul and Apollos; you refers to the Corinthians, to whom this letter is addressed. There will be 6 nouns. Μορος = moron, fool. Paul tells them, we are fools; then we have φονιμος = sensible, prudent, wise.

Paul sets up a contrast:

ἡμεῖς and ὑμεῖς
We	You
Μορος = moron, fool .	φονιμος = sensible, prudent, wise .
ασθενεις = weak, feeble	ασχυρος = strong, mighty, powerful .
Ατινιος = insignificant, without honor .	Ενδοξος = honored, distinguished, eminent . This is one of the 103 nouns used only by Paul or Luke; rarely found.

All of these are turned around here. Paul is being sarcastic.

Paul calls himself feeble; this epistle is dripping with sarcasm. These letters were passed around from church to church. These other believers had heard Paul's teaching, and he was anything but a weak, insignificant moron.

Kiosmos

Kiosmos is a literary device used by Paul. He writes in Greek, even though he speaks Aramaic.

1. The order of the pronouns are reversed. This is not unusual for Paul to do this; he did it in Philemon.
2. In the first two sets of pronouns, the we comes before the you. We are fools and feeble; you are brilliant and strong.
3. He reverses the we and you on the third list; this is how he gets across his message, simply by reversing this order.
4. This is done to avoid monotony in the contrast; it keeps them awake.
5. Paul uses kiosmos here to give them further information on the contrast.
6. Paul wants them to focus on honor versus dishonor; this is the main reason for turning these around. All of this is related to the honor of warfare. Paul emphasizes honor versus dishonor.
7. This last comparative clause generalizes on the generalized status of Paul and the Corinthians. This is a general statement of the contrast. What Paul is really trying to say is, you Corinthians are not really the objects of honor; that is only in your eyes; but that is not true.
8. The reversal is in structure as well as meaning. They Corinthians are the ones without honor; they are insignificant; they are the spectators.
9. Also, the Corinthians would protest the things which Paul says about himself. I am weak, insignificant, a moron, without honor. Actually, he says we are these things. So this includes him and those who are the heads of these various factions. Well, they cannot be these things, if they are held up as the faction heads. So, if Paul and Peter and Apollos are not these things, then this tells the Corinthians that they are these things.
10. You people don't even recognize how arrogant you are. This is what Paul is telling them. Apply human viewpoint, then you never get a clear picture of what is going on.

The only way to see yourself is how God sees you. We are so worried about how others see us; but the only thing that is important is how God sees us. If you please God, then people will not be pleased with you. Vv. 11–13 tells us how Paul must live in order to remain in fellowship and to fulfill God's plan for his life. In evidence testing, there is a lot which must be endured. We will probably never go through the evidence testing that Paul and Job went through. Whatever evidence testing we must undergo, it will not be that great compared to Paul and Job; but it may seem like a lot to us. We win in the arena in evidence testing if we apply doctrine.

These believers are nothing but fools in their own arrogance. Paul's use of sarcasm indicates that these people are children in their spiritual growth. He calls himself a fool and feeble and without honor; he would only do this with lame believers. Paul would never use this approach with mature believers.

Paul is not degrading himself here. He is exemplifying grace orientation as versus the arrogance of the Corinthians. If he and Apollos are fools for Christ's sake, that is a great honor. When he calls himself moronic, weak and dishonorable, this is actually from the viewpoint of the spiritually wimpy Corinthians.

Bobby was told that Corinthians is one of the more complex books of the New Testament. Paul has a genius which he uses in his writing. When Paul faces the evidence testing in vv. 11–13, Paul has only one direction that he can turn to. He can only say as he writes, "When I am weak, then I am strong." That is the true picture of grace orientation. Without the support of the grace of God, Paul is weak, feeble, moronic and dishonorable. This is where he stands without the support of the grace of God. When I am weak in my own power, then I am strong in divine power. Paul has revealed to them their blind egotism.

Some situations, we of course, could not handle. However, there are places where we are gifted, and we can make it through those situations. The Lord prepares the right person for the right task in history. As long as we stay within His will, we are the right person for the right circumstance that God has planned for us.

1Cor. 4:10 We [are] fools because of Christ, and you* [are] wise in Christ! We [are] weak, but you* [are] strong! You [are] esteemed, but we [are] despised!

1Corinthians 4:10–11

Lesson #155 Sunday 2

May 1, 2005

Paul is almost always critical of the Corinthian church. We are fools for Christ's sake, but you are wise in Christ; we are weak, but you are strong; You are honored, but we are dishonored. The Corinthians are not what they think they are. He will use another approach now once we get into v. 11. Paul is feeble without the grace of God; he is a fool without Bible doctrine; and he is dishonorable, if he does not apply Bible doctrine.

1Cor. 4:10 We [are] fools because of Christ, and you* [are] wise in Christ! We [are] weak, but you* [are] strong! You [are] esteemed, but we [are] despised!

Bobby reads the next 3 verses: Up to the present hour we are both hungry and thirsty; we are poorly clothed, roughly treated, homeless; we labor, working with our own hands. When we are reviled, we bless; when we are persecuted, we endure it; when we are slandered, we entreat. We are, even now, like the world's garbage, like the filth of all things. No one wants to live like this, but the Corinthians see him as a fool and a buffoon for living in this way. Paul is not a fool. A fool lives voluntarily in these circumstances; he is not down on his luck; he voluntarily lives in this way. We would not put up with these things for a minute. Job had all of the comforts of life and overnight, it was all gone. This could happen to us easily. Paul one moment was walking down a road and the next, he is blind. Could we pass evidence testing if conditions became terrible? Not only the angelic realm views us, but unbelievers watch us as well. How do we handle adversity? If we are not mature, evidence testing will not be a part of our life. We will get punitive discipline, which will be for correction and reproof; and it will be more than we can deal with. Evidence testing is entirely different. Vv. 11–13 is evidence testing for Paul. Paul is the epitome of the believer who lives his life in the light of eternity. He knows he will spend eternity in luxury and opulence. A personal sense of destiny guides him. He will hear, "Well done, good and faithful servant." What is a little hunger and a little thirst and being without just the right clothes; and being homeless now and again. In the whole scheme of things, it is nothing. Even the maximum tests which Paul undergoes is not comparable in any way to what we will have in eternity.

Paul calls himself weak and feeble and depends upon a strength which is outside of himself. He simply does his job as unto the Lord. The Corinthians do not have this kind of strength. They are not battling as gladiators. They are contributing nothing as spectators. They are simply furthering their own cause, which requires no dependency on the Lord. The Corinthians are not going through any of these difficulties. Paul lives this way because it is necessary for Christ's sake. The Corinthians do not have a clue about this. Doctrine is incidental in their life; when convenient, we chat it up; and other times, not at all.

These problems were insignificant to Paul; he utilized the mystery doctrine which God had given him; he took it in and understood it and applied it before he wrote it down.

Paul suffered hunger and thirst; he wore crappy clothes; he was occasionally homeless; he was beaten. He endured these things, and he did so using the grace of God. Suffering does not have any value in itself. It is only worthwhile when the grace of God is involved; when grace is utilized; when one falls back on the power of God—then suffering is meaningful. There is suffering for discipline and it is worthwhile insofar as it brings us back to God.

We have nothing to complain about. Self-pity and anger should have no place in our lives. If we are angry, we are out of fellowship. There is nothing to be gained by spilling our guts over this or that woe. Suffering is our opportunity to produce divine good unlike any other time in our life. Have a relaxed mental attitude.

Adversity in the Christian Life

1. The greatest progress in the spiritual life is made under pressure. Apply problem solving devices and put it in the Lord's hands.
2. Pressure makes the issues in our life more clear. Emotion and reaction under pressure means that we have missed the boat. Pressure makes these issues crystal clear.
3. Adversity will reveal what is truly important to us. Are we anchored to our comfort in life? To our friends? To our talents? To the ability of controlling our environment? Adversity means that we cannot control our environment. Our only recourse is to utilize the doctrine in our souls.
4. Human props and human viewpoint do not stand up under the pressures of the gladiatorial arena.
5. Only doctrine resident in the soul and applied; and the motivation of humility from grace orientation is worthwhile. When you worry about, what is the worst thing that could happen? Think doctrine instead. Paul is not mentioning all of these things to unload on the Corinthian church. He is not looking for sympathy. All of these problems are to get them back on track. He needs for them to get their eyes off themselves and get them where they belong. Handle the problem; don't let the problem control you.

6. Grace orientation and occupation with Christ is what brings inner happiness; this is permanent resolution. Human viewpoint has the same pitfalls as our circumstances do. Human viewpoint has already directed us away from doctrine. Adversity and divine viewpoint is the greatest teacher and vehicle for spiritual advance. Paul is saying, "This is wonderful; I am applying the doctrine that I know under the worst possible conditions." Paul was beaten, stoned, abused, thrown into jail in the book of Acts. He was thrown in jail and he and Barnabas were singing. He still passed along the gospel (Acts 16:31). The temporary help of your friends is not going to cut it. Job's friends showed up to tell him what is wrong and how he could correct it. They became evidence testing for Job. They delivered lofty speeches and their descriptions, at times, are really and truly wonderful. Do not trust those who talk about God, but lack doctrine. Behind what they say is human viewpoint. We always rely on them rather than on doctrine; and it should be the other way around.

Job's friends: "Let me give you a self righteous speech which exalts me and shows you up; and that'll straighten you out." Job lost everything and that did not bother him; but his friends and what they had to say, that bothered him. Friends can be the most wonderful and sometimes they can be the worst. They temporarily set him back with a load of human viewpoint. He was taken in by their high-sounding spiritual speech and he was deluded by it. Spiritual failure will accompany you when you fail spiritually. Be careful who you seek in adversity. Seek the Lord and the doctrine in your soul; do not seek your friend's human viewpoint. Utilize the doctrine in your own soul first. Everything that Paul faces is nothing like what we face. We will face adversity at one time or another; and, although it won't be what Paul faced, we still need to function under that adversity. As we advance to spiritual maturity, Satan will throw every possible roadblock in front of us. If we don't think doctrine when it hits, we will be run down. The last three chapters of Job reveals how magnificent his recovery was. It is remarkable what he had, what he lost; how he was defeated; and then we recovered and passed evidence testing. There is nothing more important and more enjoyable than living the Christian way of life. The worst the crisis is, the more evidence we supply.

1Corinthians 4:10

Lesson #156 Wednesday

May 4, 2005

Bobby is not feeling all that well this evening; he's never unloaded on anyone before.

Christian one-liners that Bobby got in his e-mail.

Paul calls himself a fool, but he qualifies it by saying, for Christ's sake. Paul calls himself feeble or weak, when it is the Corinthians who are. Paul is not talking about his physical condition but his spiritual life. Paul's spiritual life can handle any adversity which he has to face. Paul will show just how far short the Corinthians fall from God's grace.

1Cor. 4:10 We [are] fools because of Christ, and you* [are] wise in Christ! We [are] weak, but you* [are] strong! You [are] esteemed, but we [are] despised!

From time to time, all of us undergo the grind of our jobs. V. 11 begins Paul's description of the pressure that he is under.

Deprivation is Opportunity

1. Each hardship is a privilege for Paul to encounter in the word of the Lord.
2. It is a privilege because each test presents evidence for the prosecution in Satan's appeal.
3. Each passing grade that Paul receives shows that Satan, his angels and unbelievers the sufficiency of the grace of God.
4. Passing evidence testing glorifies God. That is Paul's purpose and our purpose in life.
5. Paul is growing spiritually by leaps and bounds in coping with each adversity by utilizing his spiritual resources. Paul had the ability to perform many miracles and healings; but his inner resources are the same as ours.
6. Vv. 11–13 is a learning experience. He can equate prosperity and adversity, living and dying, so that the light of eternity in his soul burns brighter. We begin to realize what God has provided for us in every circumstance in life. This is a crash training course for a man who is in the heat of battle.

He must know what it means to serve the Lord; he must know the grace purpose. He is a mature believer being used by the Lord. When we face evidence testing, God is using us greatly. We also have the opportunity for great blessing and rewards as well. The greatest progress that we can make is under adversity testing. Temporarily routing adversity with human viewpoint wisdom does not solve anything. There is no advance made when you rely on divine viewpoint. For some reason, human viewpoint always seems to supercede divine viewpoint when they are both rolling around in your head. When we can think divine viewpoint under stress, we grow by leaps and bounds.

Adversity Testing

1. We can face adversity testing with divine viewpoint.
2. We can fold under pressure or employ human viewpoint.
3. When you react to your circumstances, you are controlled by those circumstances. It is not our purpose to function under human viewpoint.
4. Adversity reveals whether we are anchored in the truth or rely on human solutions. Are you depending upon the human solutions of your friends or do you depend upon the truth. Job is a demonstration of the fallacy of friendly counsel. His friends showed up to comfort him, and

5. We can use our own talents and abilities to get out of trouble.
6. We might use a stoic acceptance of our trouble which often results in bitterness and mental attitude sins, like self-pity. We don't have to be stoic with divine viewpoint; being stoic is depending upon your own resources.
7. Depending upon your ability to control your own environment and the persons and people in it. You try to manipulate them to make it better or to get out of it. This leads to utter frustration.
8. Human props and human viewpoint solutions do not stand up under the pressure of a gladiatorial arena.
9. Only doctrine in the soul, resident and applied, and the motivation of humility from grace orientation can provide certain things under pressure: peace, focus.

Here are some of the results of what we can learn under adversity:

What We can learn in Adversity

1. Faith-rest 1Peter 1:6–8
2. We learn grace under pressure like no other time. 2Cor. 12:9–10
3. The manifestations of the filling of the Holy Spirit. 2Cor. 4:8–11 reflecting the glory of Jesus Christ Who is in us.
4. We can learn to live our lives in the light of eternity. 2Cor. 12? Philip. 4:11–12

Phil. 4:11–12 tells us what we learn when it comes to living in the light of eternity: I don't say this out of need, for I have learned to be content in whatever circumstances I am. I know both how to have a little, and I know how to have a lot. In any and all circumstances I have learned the secret of being content--whether well-fed or hungry, whether in abundance or in need. Paul is in some horrific circumstances, as we will see in these next few verses. Paul could live in humble means and he could live in prosperity. This is contentment in any and every circumstance. The secret is metabolized mystery doctrine, which are the resources for our life. Mystery doctrine teaches us that what goes on in this life is almost non-existent. This is a faith-rest drill rationale. What does it matter if we suffer a little in time, when we will enjoy all of eternity.

After Jesus Christ, Paul was the focus of Satan. Satan followed him around. The Corinthians did not like hearing that they were being watched by angels; they did not want to be in combat right at this time. However, they and we are in an intense stage of the angelic conflict. There is no escaping combat for us. It is not an option for us to retreat. We must advance. We are in combat up to our neck; we have been drafted. That battle is the Lord's; that is always the case. That is an expression of the angelic conflict. David expressed this when fighting an enemy that he could see; we apply this when fighting an unseen enemy. Our circumstances are in His hands. Never forget that the battle is the Lord's in our combat. Paul has developed in spite of all this. We should think the same whether we are in prosperity or in adversity.

V. 11 is physical hardships. Πεινάω = to be exposed to hunger, to be famished. Indicative means that this is sometimes Paul's condition. It is a customary present. This happens from time to time. That is the force of the customary present, which is the tense of all these verbs. These things all occur habitually but not continuously. When we are hungry, it is a very gnawing and debilitating experience. Bobby lost 30-40 pounds in ranger school. Food was withheld as part of the training. Bobby focused on the end, getting that ranger tag at the end. Ranger school was not a survivor course; it was to teach how to function under adversity. It is a leadership course; to lead men under pressure. Lead men in the middle of the night across a swamp to reach an objective. Starvation did not deter Paul. Paul focused on graduation to eternity, which was his prize and ours as well. We face a tougher mission than Bobby; real bullets are flying here. All we want to do is focus on the mission. Let God focus on the food.

1Corinthians 4:12

Lesson #157 Thursday

May 5, 2005

We are studying Paul's lament; but this is his badge of honor to the Lord. 1Co 4:11–13: Up to the present hour we are both hungry and thirsty; we are poorly clothed, roughly treated, homeless; we labor, working with our own hands. When we are reviled, we bless; when we are persecuted, we endure it; when we are slandered, we entreat. We are, even now, like the world's garbage, like the filth of all things.

A customary present tense indicates that these are ongoing processes. Paul is not writing to the Corinthians to complain. Each verb is a testimony to God's grace. Paul can equate living with dying. Humility and grace orientation are applied under these circumstances Faith-rest: You claim some promise. You can also dredge up from your soul a doctrinal rationale and attach it to the promise and then draw a conclusion. Your memory and mind don't always work.

What is a Rationale

1. An underlying reason which details the promise behind God's power.
2. Every Biblical
3. In order to use these rationales, they must be resident in your frame of reference.
4. This is why doctrine must be present in your soul to make them real and useable.
5. If all you do is repeat something you have memorized. It has no benefit for any permanent solution.
6. You must have a doctrinal rationale in order to use these.
7. Bobby here is questioning our ability. Without the doctrinal rationale attached to the promise, divine viewpoint behind it. Only a fleeting relief from adversity if you do not have the doctrinal. Once you claim the promise, you calm down and begin to apply the doctrinal rationale.

8. The plan of God rationale which can overcome fear in our life. We claim a promise and we realize that God has a plan for our life. If we are in God's plan, that is our rationale.
9. Light of eternity rationale; you must gain a comparison of states, in order to deal with suffering in time.
10. Logistical grace rationale—God will provide all of our needs. I am hungry and thirsty now; God will take care of it.
11. Aforiori, which means...
12. Love of God rationale
  - a. We are convince that God loves us.
  - b. God cemonstrates His grace and His love motivates His grace.
  - c. That knowledge united with the confidence of a strong love.
  - d. We are confident because we have this faith and we avet his love must be combined with His +J and His +R.
  - e. The injustices and inequalities in life we are able to balance them with His abs
  - f. We could be the victim of a public lie; slanders, pos
  - g. We reverse our concentration abwa from ou
  - h. We apply God's J and R to his

  - j. Absolute perfect R and J.
  - k. God's perfect standards are evaluating our situation.
  - l. If God can be for us, who can be against us?
  - m. We also know that not . No one can remove us faith-rest the loving arms of our
  - n. We don't take matters into our own hands. "I got a raw deal; so I am going to fix it."
  - o. Paul claims the love of God rationale.

Πεινῶ = to be famished; the emphasis is the empty stomach. Starvation will not deter Paul. Bobby is going to describe being starved. 170 lbs to begin; went down to 140 lbs. Your full mechanism turns off when you have eaten enough. Paul's mission was to get the prize. This prize made hunger bearable. For Paul, it made all these privations bearable. Paul was keep his eyes on the prize.

It was as if Paul was asking the Corinthians if these were their problems as el. Thirst and deprivation will debilitate faster than a lack of food will. Now he is in the desert needing water. Paul's thirst was quenched by the water of the Word. "Get in the arena; you aren't thirsty. You are doing nothing."

Γυμνέτουω = to be poor clothed, they were tired and hungry and they needed a new uniform. Paul's the mission came first.

Κολατίζω = toughly treated, beaten with a fist Paul was aware of the beating that Jesus got. Paul was totally appreciative of the beating that he took. It wasn't pleasant, and he knew\ we are drawn to finding a place to. Our house could be burning down as he speaks. We would be homeless. Don't get rooted in your home. You still go and

A house or a home can be a great blessing; we live in whatever circumstance we find ourselves in. Paul went on 4 missionary journeys. He spent 2 years in a jail in Rome; 18 months in Corinth. This was the longest he was anywhere after being in a place. No house to live.

Bobby ate at a professor's house and it was sparse and crappy because he got paid so little. Paul had no such hangup. He had lived in magnificent places; and he had lived in no place. Missionaries uproot themselves and live in squalor and their eyes are on their mission and not where they live.

The final verb is the present active indicative of ἀσθεω = to be without clothes.

1Corinthians 4:11a

Lesson #158 Sunday 1

May 8, 2005

Paul will take the gloves off in chapter 5; he will no longer speak in generalities; he will no longer reprove them in an oblique way.

In chapter 4, Paul is not whining or griping about his life. He is not saying, "Oh, my life is so difficult." Paul will use these tests to explain the reason for suffering in the life of the mature believer. Each test is a reminder to him of the great purpose and privilege that he has. Paul suffered greatly; it was no picnic to him. But, he is relaying to us what the focus should be. He is trying to convey the suffering of the mature believer.

The first verb used is πεινάω = to be hungry, to be starving. Hunger can often overwhelm all other considerations. Nothing is kept in your brain except a desire for food. Hunger is not missing a meal, but it is going days upon days with very little food. In our country, the closest we can find this is, pictures of children in Africa with swollen bellies from starvation.

Paul also understood that these privations were a part of evidence testing.

Next verb is διψάω = to suffer from thirst. Lacking water can drive a person to do anything in order to get water. Paul will keep the mission of spiritual advance foremost in his thinking. The water discipline imposed on a soldier in training or in combat. The professional soldier must be concerned about his mission first. A soldier behind enemy lines can find filling a canteen with water to be a most dangerous activity which might end his life.

Γυμνατω = to be destitute of sufficient clothing. Paul did not have a choice; he was in rags or he was cold in the middle of winter. He is not mentally deficient. He is unable to solve these problems. It matters little to him whether he has an extensive wardrobe or not. His mission comes first; everything else was secondary, including food, water, clothing and shelter.

Κολαθίζω = to be treated roughly, to be beaten with a fist. Paul was often physically abused. He was beaten, he was stoned, he was roughly treated. He handled that kind of treatment without losing it. He stepped into situation after situation where he face physical danger and the hand of man. He saw his own beating as being insignificant compared to the word of his Lord Jesus Christ. Paul endured this punishment continually. What he chose to do placed him in situations where men would hate and try to hurt him. You cannot focus on yourself and be able to deal with this kind of beating. Your focus must be on eternal things. Grace and doctrinal orientation, occupation with the Lord Jesus Christ, faith-rest, personal love for God—these are all directed toward the Lord Jesus Christ; we do not focus on ourselves. We focus on Him instead of our present, painful circumstances. These things solve all of our problems. All that is adverse in our life can be dealt with using these problem solving devices.

In interviews with POW's, it was found that many of them focused on what they learned spiritually. They focused on verses which they had learned; promises from God which they had learned. These things are our solutions for all problems, from adversity to prosperity. What is a moment of suffering in the light of eternity? Don't be the spectator; it is miserable. They die a thousand deaths, through their fear. We all have spiritual gifts; we all have missions in life.

1Cor. 4:11a Until the present time we both hunger and thirst, and we wear ragged clothing and are beaten with fists [fig., are harshly treated] ..,

1Corinthians 4:11b

Lesson #159 Sunday 2

May 8, 2005

Rick Hughes will be in Berachah to speak after Bible class.

The Corinthians have not caught on to what Paul is teaching. In his correction and reproof of their reversionism, Paul decides to tell them what real trial and tribulation is. What he endures is nothing compared to what he has. Prosperity, as well as adversity, can be a test. Paul finds himself hungry and thirsty; and this can be days at a time. He has been beaten by men; stoned, kicked, whipped. There was one time when he was stoned and died, and he was necessitated by Jesus Christ. He suffered every hardship imaginable.

Ασθετεω = to wander, to be unsettled. Paul often had no roof over his head, in all kinds of weather. One of his purposes in life was to take the gospel and the mystery doctrine on the road. Any one of us could become homeless; any natural or human caused disaster could bring this upon us. Being displaced is overwhelming, confusing, disorienting. It is an empty, lonely lost feeling, not having a place to live. We all have a natural drive for shelter; and our desire to have a roof over our heads should never take precedence over our mission. We have only one permanent home, which is heaven. Gladiators live in barracks and they can be taken from those temporary barracks at any time. Our home environment should not become another detail of life. Paul is not earthbound by his domicile. He is able to pick up and move at a moment's notice.

1Cor. 4:11b ...and wander about without a home,...

κοπιῶ = hard, manual labor; a daily struggle; hard work. Paul works with his hands; he has learned the trade of tent making. He has plied this trade throughout his journey. Paul was an Apostle and a man who worked as well. The Greeks despised manual labor, and mostly slaves did manual labor in their society. Paul was an object of contempt for working this kind of profession. That superiority, that arrogance; they understood his intellectual background. The Corinthians did not care for it, but Paul still labored in this way. Paul was willing to do this kind of work, even though it was not his background. He learned tent making to support himself. He was willing to become a manual laborer in order to further his mission in life. Paul understood the impact of the mystery doctrine that he was privileged to teach.

Paul's calling was originally a Rabbi; he was a teacher of the Law and he could have been financially successful had he kept with that profession. That is upper crust in Jewish society. This would give him great prestige.

Why would Jesus allow Paul to take the time away from his teaching ministry in order to make tents? It seems like this manual labor would interfere with his teaching. It is the opposite of teaching. Paul had to remain independent. He was constantly on the move. He was not like a pastor today who studies and teaches. His mission wasn't that of a pastor teacher, who is remunerated for his work. Paul was not one who wanted to be a financial burden on those to whom he ministered. He could give them everything and they could give him nothing.

Why Does Paul Labor Manually as a Minister of the Gospel and the Mystery Doctrine?

1. He wanted for those that he ministered to, that they understood that the gospel and doctrine are both completely and totally free. He was willing to undergo tremendous hardship and to do manual labor to present the picture of grace. He was a living, walking example of the grace of God. He never had his hand out for money when he went to this or that city. He did not want to go to a city and say, "Hey, give me a few bucks for a hamburger and some new clothes. It's been a tough mission so far." Paul does not want money to be connected with the giving of doctrine. Paul did depend upon the grace of God, every time that he moved; every time that he went to another city. God gave him the opportunity to ply his trade. God provided that opportunity. Many people at Berachah have moved to Houston to get face to face teaching; and God has provided for many of these people, so that they can sit under doctrine. Some have been financially blessed as well because of this move.

2. We all have pressures on the job; Paul had this as well. He had to get out a tent before he could go to the tent meeting. Paul would rather die than give up grace. The grace of God was sufficient for him in every aspect of his life.

Present passive participle of λοιδορεω = to abuse verbally. A temporal adverbial participle; when he is verbally abused, then something else happens. There is a result or an accompanying event when Paul is verbally abused. He was assaulted at times with vicious and abusive language. Everywhere that he goes, he is opposed and hated for it. Sometimes, in teaching, there are hecklers. They attempt to drown the message under the pretense of free speech. When someone has the poor manners to attack a speaker with cursing and loud verbal attacks, to prevent him from exercising free speech; this is what Paul endured regularly. What Paul did is the present active indicative of ευλογεω = to bless, to use words of esteem. We get our word eulogy from this, which is to hold another in high esteem. This really requires the love of God rationale. If God loves me, then I can return that love. God loves us so much impersonally, that He sent His only-begotten Son; now, God can love us personally, as we are in Christ. If God loves us enough to sacrifice His Son, then the faith-rest drill means that we can reciprocate.

Retaliation gains nothing; it causes scars and repercussions; and can leave permanent scars on the other person. You might feel better by unloading it all. But the other person may be devastated by these remarks. We have assassinated their character. Impersonal love demands that a line be drawn in personal relationships that a line be drawn, which is never crossed. This means that you must be able to hold your tongue; you must hold back your egocentric retaliations. When there is someone who trusts you and you attack them verbally, you have violated that trust. The Corinthians are causing permanent divisions in their church with what they are saying. When someone reviles you verbally, then you need to respond with blessing them. The returns will be fantastic. Some of us live with very volatile people, and anything can set them off. It can even be worse if we attack them back. There are times when you have to stand up and hold your ground; but at the same time, you have to hold your tongue. There is a line that you cannot cross over with loved ones. It is not your responsibility before God to tear anyone else down. We are never to destroy someone else verbally. Most of us deal with these two verbs every day of our lives; we should return cursing with blessing. This does not mean that we become a doormat; but we can say things that will destroy a relationship, we need to hold back.

1Cor. 4:12 ...and labor, working with [our] own hands. Being insulted we bless, being persecuted we ourselves endure [it],

1Corinthians 4:12

Lesson #160 Wednesday

May 11, 2005

Rich Hughs after class. Bobby's been friends with him for 30 years.

Bobby is going to read something which deals with the warfare that we are in. General Peter Pace speech, given April 27th of this year at West Point, who is the vice president of the joint chief of staff. He graduated in 1967 and was concerned how he would feel going into battle. "Fear is normal...you are in the world's best army." All of this is applicable to us as well. The first person killed in his unit...he was furious and had guns set up to destroy a nearby village where the fire had come from. He pulled back instead and when they walked through the village, it was all women and children. You have to check your own moral compass. A lot of application here to us to the warfare that we are in.

Paul recited a list of adversities in v. 11; he labors to exhaustion in v. 12; when he is insulted, he blesses; when persecuted, he endures the persecution. We will be ridiculed for divine viewpoint. At best, they'll think we're crazy. Human viewpoint does not understand divine viewpoint. V. 12 relates universal problems that we will face. Exchanging evil for evil is destructive to our spiritual life; however, this is the kind of response that we often come up with. This is exactly the kind of response that Paul does not want us to have. We might rationalize, "God made me pugnacious, so sometimes I just react with a bit of volatility. God made me this way, so it is okay." Paul had a volatile personality, because we know he was a great persecutor of Christians. He was in agreement with the stoning of Stephen. Paul understands persecution from both sides, as he has been on both sides.

Κοπιῶν = to toil, to work hard, to do manual labor. One of the greatest intellectuals and Apostles in history worked with his hands. He sewed and sold tents. You might see this as a waste of time. You would think that Paul, this great man of doctrine, would be spared the pressures of the workplace; but God did not spare him. He worked two jobs, essentially. Paul was clearly communicating grace. That is the point of what he did; he had to remain independent. He did not want to be a financial burden to those to whom he ministered. He was best at teaching and preaching, and yet he worked with his hands.

Why Paul had to Work

1. He wanted to make sure that those to whom he ministered understood that his message was truly free.
2. No one was charged, even indirectly, to financially support him.
3. Paul's message and his life were a picture of grace.
4. This was critical in the early stages of the church.
5. This was particularly important at this time, because there was this transitioning into the Church Age.
6. As a former Rabbi, Paul had been trained in the strict legalism which came from the Judaistic perversion of the Law.
7. Giving should never be done grudgingly or from necessity. Paul did not want them to ever give a dime without the proper motivation. Salvation is free and the doctrine we receive is free.
8. Paul, will of course, teach that pastors need to be supported. But he never wanted anyone to support him.

9. This also kept Paul from being beholden to anyone.

1Cor. 4:12a ...and labor, working with [our] own hands.

Λοιδορεω = to be reviled, insulted. Ευλογεω = high praise, tribute. This is where we get a eulogy from. This is being give high praise at your death. You are insulted and reviled and you bless someone verbally; you praise them verbally. He gives them words of esteem.

In returning ευλογεω for λοιδορεω is the perfect application of impersonal love. Paul does not enjoy the battering of verbal abuse; none of us want that. He can overlook the tongue lashing; the verbal explosion. He has the ability; meaning it is potential; he even more has the capability, meaning that he is even more able to do this. Antagonists attack and humiliate, not friends. Not right in a romantic relationship where there is verbal abuse or public humiliated; it is impossible and it will never work. Run from this kind of abuse.

How Not to Misapply Impersonal Love

1. Impersonal love is important in any relationship. Especially for lousy relationships, but you are stuck in that relationship.
2. But impersonal love does not require staying in a relationship which is humiliating and devastating to you.
3. Impersonal love does not imply that we must remain in a situation which is untenable simply because you are able to use impersonal love. You can use impersonal love, but you do not have to remain a punching bag.
4. This does not mean that we should be walked on and abused.
5. You don't retaliate in abuse; nor do you cultivate such a relationship.
6. There are times that you must separate. That is part of impersonal love. This may keep you from trying to sustain an incapacitating relationship. This might keep you from making a horrible marriage down the line. The person who is abusing you verbally is not your right person.
7. When married, this changes things. This is not an excuse for divorce. Arguments, disagreements and even verbal abuse occurs in a marriage.
8. Under physical abuse, get out quickly. But verbal abuse in a marriage, then you stick it out. You have to be very careful with your own application. You are only responsible for yourself. You cannot apply any of this to your spouse. It has to be applied to you. Do not say things that you cannot take back. Later, you are going to wish that you did not say certain things—vicious, angry things which leave permanent scars and terrible memories—that is destructive to the relationship. Certain words and certain criticisms have to be off limits. Going beyond a certain place, going over a certain line that you should not cross. You must have impersonal love toward that person. If you become extremely angry, then you have to back off. You know what will hurt the worst and you need to back off from that. In a close relationship, you know the absolute worst things to say to the other person; and you have to back down from this. You cannot react in anger. You might say anything to hurt them. People do cross those limits and they know exactly what they are doing—however, we do not go there. We are not to stir up a hornet's nest. That is a lose lose situation every time. Impersonal love requires thoughtfulness despite vicious disagreements and even if that person has the knife out. "Endure." When you strike out against someone you are married to, it is going to get worse. Get over it and move on. If you have ever retaliated and you said exactly the wrong thing; and you cannot take it back. Think about it before you get in that situation. Don't retaliate in a moment of anger. You don't go there.

1Cor. 4:12b Being insulted we bless, being persecuted we ourselves endure [it],...

Rick Hughs back to 1974 and scared to death talking the first time in Berachah. He prefers teaching in private schools rather than Christian schools. He just happened to be nearby. 1968 was the first one that he went to. He had been to every high school in Mississippi done without charge and obligation. 400+ high schools. He was going through all the high schools in Georgia about the first time he talked in Berachah.

He's spoken in some public schools. He was at North Pike high school for a week. He simply sets up and begins teaching the Word of God. He learned about application. "If you want to glory in anything, glory that you know Me and understand Me." He talks to teachers there as well. He spoke to 100 teachers for 3 hours; the other speaker did not show up, so he spoke for another 3 hours.

These kids respond to content. He might reach them with humor and personality, but he will leave doctrine with them and that is what they recall. He never goes to any principal and ask for a place to teach. That would violate these principles. He has to sit at home and wait for calls.

The attacks he receives are from the religious community. One of the problems that occurs is the distortion of the message. Every type of religious type will be out there. Most believers in most churches do not have a spiritual life; they don't even know that they have a spiritual life. He's been doing this for nearly 40 years.

Don't deviate from sound doctrine. Don't move away from grace. Expect nothing in return. It is all grace. It is all grace that we are alive. Don't get discouraged by failure. Satan tries to get us discouraged or disillusioned with ourselves. He doesn't get his motivation from people. We must get our motivation from the Word of God.

In his yearly prayer breakfast, which is free, he gives the gospel to the administrators and teachers who show up.

A Cusa River Bible Church and they are praying for a pastor. 25 of them with their own building.

Adversity is something that we have to live with; stress is something that we do not have to live with. Vv. 11–12 is a list of the things which we face. Adversity is necessary; but stress is optional. It is not the adversity which debilitates us, but when we internalize it. Circumstances can be handles with a relaxed mental attitude and in sharing the happiness with God. Pressure and stress in the soul comes from a sinful reaction to our adversity which surrounds us. It is the affect on our thinking which is detrimental.

Stress in our Soul and Cognition Relationships

1. Stress makes it difficult for us to think. It impairs learning.
2. Impairs our application of doctrine.
3. Stress affects our perception of life.
4. Stress becomes the launching pad for human viewpoint. Stress comes out of our thinking. It is prolonged old sin nature control which results in a fatality to our spiritual life. We will have negative volition to all divine truth. When there is no filling of the Holy Spirit in your life, then there is no post-salvation epistemological rehabilitation. Without the filling of the Holy Spirit, we have no ability to utilize the doctrine in our soul; stress takes over. Stress in the spiritual realm is the unacceptable alternative to using the problem solving devices. Without the problem solving devices, any adversity in our life will turn to stress. Adversity will be in our life.

Practice comes with the small adversities in life—at work, at home, with people. Little bitty nagging problems, and we have those everyday. That is our practice. Just like on a driving range, which gives us practice for our game. These adversities will get larger; and what we use on the small adversities will be used against the larger adversities. It just does not sort of happen. We have to be able to utilize it under pressure. Without practice, these little adversities mount up and become major stresses; they escalate. Isolate and overcome the outer pressure. Keep the adversity out of your soul and you will be a victorious gladiator. Using the problem solving devices and thinking skills requires thinking.

Application of the Problem Solving Devices

1. Under adversity, you cannot focus on yourself or on your problems.
2. You concentrate through the power of the filling of the Holy Spirit on divine viewpoint resident in your soul.
3. You begin using the faith-rest drill, which is the first and easiest problem solving device. You can use it the first day you are saved and the last day of your life.
4. The Holy Spirit will bring to mind exactly the doctrine you need at the exact time that you need it. There will be no blinding flash of a doctrine that you missed. He will bring it home, if it is in your soul.

5. Whatever bit of information you can apply, that is doctrine; and then your attitude relaxes toward adversity.
6. You have successfully reverse your concentration away from yourself. In any athletic event, you must concentrate on what you are doing, and not who you are, the pressure on your or the people all around you. Faith-rest deflects your thinking away from yourself and you focus on the divine solution.
7. This concentration requires grace and doctrinal orientation.
8. A mustard seed of grace orientation; the filling of the Holy Spirit in rebound is grace orientation and you know one doctrine if you know rebound.
9. When you practice your skills become second nature in your life. Your thinking of mechanics must translate into muscle memory. When you need it, it functions in exactly the way that it is suppose to do.
10. When we pick up the sword of the spirit and the shield of faith, you will know what to do with it. So many people quote this, and have no idea. The shield of the faith is simply the faith-rest drill; the sword of the spirit is the filling of the Holy Spirit. It should be second nature; know how to use them.
11. These skills take over under adversity. Focus and be objective. Stress has us by the throat and we stop thinking and we stop being objective. Doctrine will be in our mind because the Holy Spirit will bring it there. Stress negates the ability to think under pressure.
12. This is simply thinking and using the mechanics of the problem solving devices. Train your thinking through epistemological rehabilitation.
13. That is the secret to spiritual strength. Put the mechanics into operation. Use the mechanics of the problem solving devices. Rebound when you are out of fellowship. Continue to take in doctrine through epistemological rehabilitation. The humility of grace orientation takes over; and you get a relaxed mental attitude; and your little problems do not build up; and when a real problem occurs, like being fired, like going broke, your stock market goes to shit, you can handle this just like the small adversities. "When we are reviled, we bless."

Paul returns verbal abuse with eulogizing. When undergoing the adversity of being reviled; with grace orientation, the believer has humility. Relaxed with peace and stability in your soul. We are confident that the supreme court in heaven is in session. There is an objectivity there; but regardless, we are relaxed. We don't have to get arrogant about it; we don't have to react. We return slander with eulogeo. We do not reciprocate in kind; we do not give back what they dish out. Impersonal love does not require us to be a cowering, whipped dog...especially for men who are supposed to lead in the home. "Yes, dear" is not always the right answer. You do not become a doormat. On the other hand, you do not cross that line, that verbal line that should not be crossed.

Becoming a gladiator means that you don't strike back when you are hit; when you are struck, you do not strike back. We are spiritual gladiators.

Present passive participle of διωκω = to persecute. This is a temporal adverbial participle. It means when we are persecuted. This is not general physical abuse that διωδω; this is someone pursuing for religious persecution. It can be persecution for racial reasons, religious reasons, against a believer advancing toward maturity; the Apostle Paul could be persecuted for teaching doctrine, for being a Jew and for moving toward maturity.

This present passive participle requires another verb. Ανεκομαι = to endure, to bear, to handle a problem. When you are persecuted, you handle it. We must operate on those principles and not seek reprisal. This is not necessarily easy; it is not easy to take physical abuse. It is unnatural for a sin nature to not react to physical abuse. Eph. 4:26: Be angry and do not sin. Don't let the sun go down on your anger, and don't give the Devil an opportunity. For the most part, it is unreasonable to expect that there won't be some kind of an emotional backlash. You are going to feel normal emotions; this is spiritual anger management.

Explanation of Eph. 4:26–27

1. When we are deliberately persecuted, we will have an emotional response; count on it.
2. The point is, you cannot let this natural reaction of the sin nature blossom into further sinful reaction.
3. Don't let that initial anger become a chain of sins.
4. Anger is not only a sin, but the motivation for many other violations.
5. Inevitably there will be a response of anger to hurt; being angry means that it will happen.
6. In other words, avoid further violations; avoid bitterness, slander, pettiness, hatred, hostility, revenge motivated operandi. When someone constantly persecutes you, you are going to react; that is normal.
7. Subjectivity and egocentric arrogance, which is inherent to carnality, inflames anger. If this anger continues to smoulder and it will break out like a wildfire. Pops up all over and it is really difficult to stop. Sometimes, it just has to burn itself out. The destruction of such a fire is unbelievable.
8. Eph. 4:26 tells us, don't let anger seize control of your soul and your life. When this person allows this to get out of control; it foments anger and the person wants to lash out at the person who has hurt them. Anger is an emotional sin and that makes it irrational. The result includes slander to homicide.

Let's close out with....

How Can You Keep from an Extended Emotional Reaction

1. Rebound instantly before other damage occurs. Don't stop there.
2. Concentrate away from yourself and your hurt and onto doctrine. If you feed your anger, it will progress to mental attitude sins which will culminate in problems.
3. Faith-rest.

4. Under this situation where we are being persecuted, how can we keep from retaliating. Let God take care of it. Let Him take care of it. He is in charge; He knows what is going on; He will take care of it.
5. Use problem solving devices like impersonal love and put the problem in the Lord's hand. When you are persecuted, do not retaliate. The only way we can do this.

1Cor. 4:11–12 Until the present time we both hunger and thirst, and we wear ragged clothing and are beaten with fists [fig., are harshly treated] and wander about without a home, and labor, working with [our] own hands. Being insulted we bless, being persecuted we ourselves endure [it],...

1Corinthians 4:11–12

Lesson #162 Sunday 1

May 15, 2005

One of Bobby's colleagues spend 850 hours on the 4 chapters of Philipians.

Stress is the internalization of the problems which we face daily; but stress is optional. No matter how difficult our problems are to us, they are not new problems. That which has been is that which will be; and that which has been done will be done; so there is nothing new under the sun (from Ecclesiastes 1:9). We can handle any problem that comes our way without letting it stress us out. God knew in eternity past exactly what all the problems would be. God made provision for each one of them. Doctrine always works in every case. There is not just one problem that will defeat everyone. There will be temporary setbacks and moments of failure; but a relaxed mental attitude is adversity is always the alternative for stress in the soul. It is available to all of us; adversity will occur, but stress is optional and using one's mental attitude to overcome stress is available to all of us and it works every time. If we share the happiness of God; if we have a relaxed mental attitude under every circumstance; we can function fine. You cannot assume that stress will always accompany problems. Too many believers have already passed evidence testing; too many have shown a relaxed mental attitude under adversity. Of course, everyone has failed from time to time (no record of Daniel's failures). He was a man who could solve problems in adversity. I can do all things through Him Who keeps on pouring the power into me (Philip. 1:13). Divine viewpoint is what we think in adversity. We cannot ever say that, no one can handle the problems I face. We will face adversity, but there is no excuse to internalize your problems. There is no problem with doctrine, with God or with adversity; the only problems are internal ones. We want to feel good when we leave church; we want to feel good for a little while. Emotionalism is not the solution to stress. Bobby has seen his parents handle great adversity without being stressed out. He's seen it and he knows it exists.

Don't focus inward on our problems but train ourselves to examine outward, to look at Jesus Christ, to look away from ourself, and get the greater picture of doctrine. We begin with the faith-rest drill and it just takes a little pinch of doctrine. It is the easiest to use because it only requires a smidgeon of doctrine. If you have a little doctrine, the Holy Spirit might bring what you need to your mind at the right time; but God does not apply the doctrine for us. We have to apply it ourselves. We must utilize it. “Oh, yeah, now I have the perspective; now I have the focus; now I know and apply the verse.”

Stress becomes less and less of a problem because we have a personal sense of destiny in the plan of God. God has designed His plan for us, and He is right there providing us the resources to do so. We love because He first loved us. Reciprocal love. We are so motivated by our adversity, by our desires in life, by our lusts, by gaining by whatever it is that we want. Love comes when you know someone. It is the same with God. You must know Him or you cannot love Him. You must know everything about God in order to be properly motivated. When we are occupied with Jesus Christ, there is no room in our lives for stress. Our antidote to stress is using the problem-solving devices and to think doctrine under adversity. Problem solving devices always deflect our thinking away from our troubles and the self-pity which comes with them. Turn outward and focus on Jesus Christ; focus on the divine solution rather than on the problems. In this way, the problem solving devices, the problem solving skills become second nature to us. Just like the athlete who can perform under great pressure, because he has muscle memory. It is thinking which kicks in automatically. Thinking Bible doctrine. That may seem very simplistic to us. We are told that we must jump through tons of psychological hoops in order to be mentally healthy; No! The key is the problem solving devices. Paul gives us several situations and then he provides the solutions. When we are verbally abused, then we bless. Ευλογεω = to bless, to eulogize. Paul can eulogize the person who assassinates him. The problem solving device of impersonal love is what is required when someone verbally assaults you (which is something that Paul faced almost daily). When we are persecuted, he endure it; we handle it. Διωκω = to have physical abuse, to face religious abuse. You might be abused for being Christian, Jewish; because you are advancing in the angelic conflict. Present active indicative of ανεχομαι = to endure, to handle [it]. Grace orientation must be applied. How do we endure and handle physical abuse, when retaliation seems warranted. We get anger and we feel as though retaliation is justified. Eph. 4:26: Be angry and [yet] do not sin. Don't let the sun go down on your anger,... Using problem solving devices does not mean you won't have some agitation, some reaction to adversity; that is normal. A spiritual anger management course.

Explanation for Eph. 4:26

1. You cannot let the initial angry response continue. You cannot let the initial reaction of the old sin nature blossom into a chain of sins.
2. This verse is often mistaken for being righteous indignation. However, the idea is, don't let this sin take over.
3. Anger can come the basis for a whole host of other mental attitude sins.
4. There can be a response of anger to hurt. This is real; we are not perfect.
5. Do not sin comes next. In other words, after your initial reaction, avoid vindictiveness, and revenge operandi, perpetuated anger. This all ends up as being stress in your soul.
6. Do not let the sun go down on your anger. Let it go. How do you do that? When that anger surfaces, you rebound immediately. You know when you are slapped in the face. Get out of being carnal immediately. Don't stop there.

7. Concentrate away from your anger and onto doctrine. Don't let your anger simmer or smoulder; don't let it convert to more mental attitude sins.
8. Utilize the faith-rest drill to think doctrine. Claim a promise in this case. Vengeance is mine; I will repay, says the Lord.
9. Applied to the faith-rest drill, put away anger and put retaliation in the hands of the Lord. Without doctrinal rationales, it will just be words. Mantras do not solve your problems. It doesn't help.
10. You can put it in God's hands because He knows all the facts and He will vindicate us. He knows the facts and He knows about the abuse, even if it doesn't happen the way we might wish it to happen. "He abused me, so, Lord, kill this guy." It will be resolved in God's time in a manner which will fulfill His plan for all. God will not function with just us in mind; God also takes into account what that person is as well and their friends and relatives.
11. It does not matter what people think of you. They might think, "I would retaliate; what is wrong with you?" It takes a lot of courage not to retaliate. Most people, their inclination is the fight back. Even if you are nonviolent and you choose a peaceful type, that is not it either. Even a peaceful person will want to do something, even if you are a peaceful type.
12. There is an anger management time limit. Sundown. Keep short accounts with regards to rebound. Impersonal love cannot work apart from the power of God the Holy Spirit. This keeps further damage to our soul from occurring. Get a good night's sleep without all the emotional turmoil.

1Cor. 4:11–12 Until the present time we both hunger and thirst, and we wear ragged clothing and are beaten with fists [fig., are harshly treated] and wander about without a home, and labor, working with [our] own hands. Being insulted we bless, being persecuted we ourselves endure [it],...

1Corinthians 4:13

Lesson #163 Sunday 2

May 15, 2005

There is nothing which doctrine cannot handle. Spiritual anger management is covered in Eph. 4:26. When we are angered, we try to conciliate; we have become like the scum of the earth and dregs up to this moment.

Δευσφενεω = to verbally assassinate, to cut one's throat with words, to slander, to be defamed. Words, deeds and movies are assigned unjustly to us. This can be misrepresentation to lies about us, as far as an indictment in a court of law about us which is untrue.

Present active indicative of παρακαλεω = to call to one's side in order to speak privately, to call someone over to gain support; to call someone over to instruct, to call someone over to comfort them; to request of someone, to entreat, to implore; to speak in a friendly manner to. The latter definition is what applies here. How do you speak with kind words when someone is particularly hostile toward you? Rebound immediately; faith-rest drill, apply the problem solving devices; these things keep you from attempting to retaliate.

Don't let the sun go down on your anger. Go to sleep with your mind free of hostility. God's plan continues regardless of what someone else thinks of us. We don't heed slander and we don't dwell on it. We pay attention to doctrine and we utilize the problem solving devices. When slandered or defamed, the slandered party can speak kindly to those who have slandered him.

When We Are Slandered

1. In slandering, the slanderer is indicted themselves with their own tongue. There is never a reason to slander someone, whether they deserve it or not.
2. We cannot ever improve the situation by returning defamation with defamation. It is always counter-productive.
3. If, we return the slander, we are impeached as a witness in the appeal of Satan in the angelic conflict. We have just failed; we have no impact in the angelic conflict; we have just failed in our mission in life. This is one that we will face all the time: people badmouthing us. We fail if we give it back to them.
4. We are not called to slander, even though they may deserve it. It is like an athlete who is verbally assaulted by the crowd. Even if the athlete is justified to jump into the stands and start pounding on someone, he is wrong...no matter how justified he is. As gladiators, we cannot jump into the stands and start pounding on those who revile us.

Paul's service to the Lord does not introduce him to the higher parts of society. Paul would have been accepted by them, had he conformed to their norms and standards. The opposition labels us scum and dregs of this society. By Paul's own admission, he lives an eccentric lifestyle. Paul lives an eccentric lifestyle. No one can understand how the mature believer lives and his point of view.

Paul is homeless; he has a poor wardrobe; there are several places where he comes up short. He goes other places where no one else would think of going. He faces circumstances that no one in their right mind would face. He suffers hunger and thirst all the time. He is labeled a zealot, a man of peculiar objectives, a freak. Paul is repellant to many people. He is dismissed, despite the fact that he is one of the greatest geniuses of all time. Paul does not care what all these people think of him. He just does not care.

Gladiators may have enjoyed some popularity, but they did not spend any time with upper society. Γίνομαι = to be made, to be created, to become. Related to εἶμι = to be. This is an equative verb. Both are equative verbs. You can equate the subject and the object here. They are essentially the same things. The object is called a predicate nominative; not a direct object. The subject is we. Whatever it is on the other side of the verb to be is what we are. We are equal to or the same as; Paul uses the comparative conjunction ὅς = as, like. In English, this introduces a simile. As a believer in Jesus Christ, we are not actually scum or dregs. The predicate nominative is scum, dregs. We are like scum, like dregs. This means that we are scum only in the minds of those who have created us as such. Slander does not make us scum. Clearly Paul is not the scum of the earth, even though he is viewed that way. Since Paul does not really care how unbelievers view him, why does he even mention this? It has to related his purpose as a gladiator to how the world views him as a gladiator. Do not expect anything from the world; do not expect that the world will applaud what you do. The rest of the world will not care one way or the other; or it will be antagonistic toward us.

We all want to be well-thought of; none of us want to be seen as scum.

Royal Family Gladiators

1. When we are gladiators, and that is our purpose for existence, the world, the cosmos will not applaud us.
2. If they do, then we had better assess our spiritual condition.
3. The criminal gladiators were viewed as the lowest of the low. They were canon fodder, used for entertainment, and not well-thought of.
4. We are labeled the dregs of society because of our spiritual life, but we are not.
5. We are royal family. We belong to the King of Kings; Caesar pales by comparison. Everyone of us, from the lowest to the highest, are all in Christ, royal family.

Περικαθαρμα = scum; refuse removed with a thorough cleansing; garbage that is immediately removed. Greatly insulting term. Our inclination would be to react. Περι = around. Καθαρμα = sweepings, rubbish, garbage; scapegoats. Someone sacrificed to appease Zeus. In Athens during times of plague or similar problems, some outcast was taken off the street and sacrificed; no one of any importance. They would throw this nobody into the sea. Περιπσιμα = something scraped off shoes; scapegoat. Both mean scapegoat. This refers to the vileness of the victims who were tossed into the sea. They were the most worthless and despised people of the city. The basic meanings of these two words are very similar. They could be whatever one might step in on the street. Must be scraped out and cleansed to get rotten. We are seen as the filthiest and lowest of mankind and are seen as disposable. Not only do we get evidence testing, but those around us see us as being garbage as well. However, we can handle it; we can handle anything.

1Cor. 4:13 ...being defamed we speak words of encouragement; we have become like garbage of the world, scum of all until now.

1Corinthians 4:13b–14

Lesson #164 Wednesday

May 18, 2005

Paul calls himself scum and garbage; these are very strong words; we are also to be identified with these words as well. However, this is not his real opinion of himself or of anyone else.

Aorist passive indicative of γίνομαι = to become. This is the inspired Word of God; and the grammar is also inspired. Every word, every phrase, every verse is inspired by grammar. Related to the verb εἶμι = to be. These are not action verbs; these are stative verbs or equative verbs. They equate the subject and predicate nominative.

The verb on the other side of γίνομαι is also in the nominative. They are in apposition to one another; they refer to the same thing. The nominative in this verse means that we have become something. We are included here as well. Ὅς = like, as. We have become like the scum of the earth; we are like the dregs.

Scum is the word περικαθαρμα = refuse which is removed by a thorough cleansing. Dregs is περισημα = dregs, dirt that is removed from an object by scraping. These two words complement each other in meaning. Paul wants to make sure that we know that we are being insulted. Paul intended a major insult; and he gets everyone's attention, as he had expected to get. We may have our faults, but we are not scum and dregs. Are we not the salt of the earth; the preservative of our nation? Are we not the apple of God's eye? Have we not been sanctified. That one little word ὅς changes everything. We have a metaphor of unlike objects.

When we are reviled, persecuted, there is a doctrinal response to that. Those who slander and revile and persecute and we are only scum in the minds of those who have created us in that way. Paul is describing how we are regarded by those in option of us.

The world looks at us just like the people in the stands of the coliseum; but they see us as worthless and despised. The opposition looks at us as nothing; as dog crap on their shoes. Are we exactly what they say we are? Why are you proving them correct? Why do you act as though you are scum and dregs?

1Cor. 4:13b ...we have become like garbage of the world, scum of all until now.

Paul tells them that he is not writing them to shame them, but to admonish them. He gives them the reason for all that he has done. Paul has a flare for the dramatic. Peter was a plodder and he only wrote two books. Paul could modulate his tone with his words, as we find here. He has reached a crescendo of intensity and gravity.

Paul is simply admonishing them for their own good. He is being punitive, but he is doing it out of love, absolutely for their own good. When God spans us, it is for our own interest. Paul is playing on that.

Present active participle of εντρεπω = to invert, to turn around, to move. Here, it means to move to shame. Paul is not writing them in order to get them to hang their heads in shame. When you feel guilty, you are focused on yourself and what you have done. If we was doing this, that would mean he was working on their feelings, to get a specific reaction out of them. He is looking to get their minds in synch with the mind of Christ. He is being dramatic, but not melodramatic. Churches today are filled with emotionalism. There is weeping and emotional frenzies. There is no emotional shortcut to maturity. So many believers think that if they feel good about their relationship with God, then they are gaining maturity. We know we are gaining maturity when we think with divine viewpoint, especially under pressure. Emotions, dump, emotions, dump; up and down. With doctrine, you think in a straight line. No roller coaster rides.

How we feel about our growth has nothing to do with their actual growth. You are not progressing in the spiritual life because you can use a great holy vocabulary. Bobby had a gf who was on fire for the Lord. We have a profession spiritual life. When you get up in the morning, you should be thinking divine viewpoint. Emotionalism can devastate your spiritual life. Emotionalism means that your emotions lead you around by the nose. There is not enough time to gripe or to cry in this life; you have to press on. Just like a soldier in combat or an athlete in a game; you cannot keep looking backwards. Your spiritual life must take precedence and you must look forward.

We should return slander with courteous words; when we are physically abused, we do not react with emotionalism. We must defend ourselves and family against criminality; but this is on a personal level. The Corinthians are already high strung. Their emotionalism will have no mental attitude sins. Paul uses the word shame and he is not trying to shame anyone, even those who are arrogant. When you slander back, you get an arrogant reaction. The only thing that should control us is our spiritual life is the power of God the Holy Spirit. We should not be controlled by some petty idiot who says some nasty things about us. Paul is trying to get these people to think clearly about their own fractious lives. Paul's purpose is to admonish them. Νουθετεω = to admonish. Νους + τιθεμι = mind + to place = to put or place into the mind.

What Paul is Doing

1. I am correcting your family squabbles.
2. I am not trying to defend my actions to you (just as a father would not to their kid).
3. His responsibility as their father is to bring them into line, by communicating principles and rules.
4. That is showing the greatest love possible for the Corinthians, his children.

Don't try to be your kids buddies; teach them rules and principles.

You can take your choice; if you want to find your place and position in this world; do you want to have impact as a believer and have a place of notoriety in heaven, but not here. The alternative is to attempt to be successful in human eyes; to gain notoriety in human terms.

1Cor. 4:14 I am not writing these [things] [to be] shaming you, but as my beloved children I am warning [or, instructing] [you*].

1Corinthians 4:14–15

Lesson #165 Thursday

May 19, 2005

Bobby got a short note from a woman from Rhode Island (or somewhere in the northeast); this woman is 82, so she listens to his lessons several times on MP3's. Bobby attempts to make his lessons dense enough to where it could be listened to another time.

In the previous verse, he described himself and other believers as scum and dregs. There are some which do not like those who advance in the angelic conflict; and they form the opposition, and see us as scum and dregs. This teaches us how much other despise growing believers (and this can be believers and unbelievers who hate us).

After these harsh and demeaning descriptions, he now softens the blow. The Corinthians are not scum and dregs to him; nor are they to God. We are not scum in the eyes of Lord. I don't write these things to shame you, but to admonish you as my children. Paul accomplishes his seemingly impossible response from impersonal love and from grace orientation. It is this same attitude which parents must display before their children. Paul is displaying a lot of patience toward those who really deserve a great deal of discipline. The Corinthians must notice the change of tone in this verse. Teaching can be done with an attitude. Teaching requires a balance; you need techniques of discipline and a patient affection. Harsh tones, but then he tones it down for those who are his children. When you teach correct principles and they know you love them, then they begin to buy it. Always being angry and correcting and harsh will not always elicit the response that we want. He has been harsh, but now he is softening things up. He is doing good cop/bad cop. Paul is not trying to elicit guilt from them either. Guilt reaction emphasizes energy of the flesh recovery. You don't need to feel guilty about your failures; you need to focus on the grace of God. Paul is not looking to take them from an emotional low to an emotional high. This is all about spiritual advance; not about looking backwards and feeling remorse and failure. Tomorrow is another day, but only if you are advancing spiritually. At best, guilt takes you to a place of feeling inadequate.

The emotional Christian goes up and down; we will all fail; we will all foul things up at one time or another. Then we might feel like we are okay, but then we repent of our sins and we want to feel good about getting away from that sin. But when you commit that sin again, then you drop down emotionally. The spiritual life allows us to advance at an even keel and emotion does not rule our life. Paul is not writing to insult or to make them feel guilty. You don't have to feel good to advance spiritually. Advancement is a thought-process; and it will not be an emotional high, but you suddenly appreciate what God has done for you.

Paul is νουθετω-ing them. He is admonishing them. Νουθετω = νοος = mind + τιθεμι = to put, to place. It means to put or place something into the mind. This is not discipline; he is placing something into their minds. He is attempting to inculcate them with doctrine. He is not trying to shame them or to make them feel guilty. He is trying to get them to think; not to emote.

1Cor. 4:14 I am not writing these [things] [to be] shaming you, but as my beloved children I am warning [or, instructing] [you*].

In the next verse, we will have a predicate nominative; Paul is their father.

There is the subjunctive mood; they may or may not have countless tutors. Accusative plural of the adjective μυριοσ = countless, innumerable, myriad; 10,000 (literal meaning).

Παιδαγωγος = tutors. There is also the phrase in Christ; If you were to have in Christ (as Christians) innumerable tutors... Custodians, guides, pedagogue, teachers, tutors is the reference of παιδαγωγος. These are not formal teachers of the Word of God. May will attempt to teach all kinds of things; but they key is the Word of God. There is not place here for emotionalism. Παιδαγωγος were usually slaves who were in constant attendance of the boys of a family. They were to attend to their supervision. They took them to school; they taught them good manners and decorum.

Paul makes an obvious contrast here. He is their spiritual father; and compares their relationship to other tutors and guardians. Paul is their father through evangelism. Paul presented the message; he was the agent of their conversion; and he also taught doctrine, which was the information that they needed in order to grow spiritually. Solid food is too difficult to swallow; give me milk, was their cry.

They've become arrogant and puffed up; and they are not growing. Milk only takes you so far. He calls himself their γενω = their father. This is the term for siring or fathering.

Paul is the father; so who are the tutors? This would be the leaders of the factions in Corinth. They are the divisive ones; they have misused their position and they are running amok in Corinth. They are like trusted slaves who had taken over and have usurped Paul's authority. Those who claim to be of Paul, in effect, as saying that they are subordinate Paul. They claimed Paul as their authority, but acted as though they had equal authority. Paul is straightening them out. You are a hired gun to supervise these children; I am their father and I will take over their training, because you rail.

There are many people out there who want to teach you something and lead you astray. They are not prepared or gifted to do it. God has given the church pastors and teachers for our edification; we don't need anyone else. We aren't going to be individual tutors for someone else. The heads of these factions are passing themselves off as fathers; and they are really tutors, and poor ones at that.

1Cor. 4:15 *For although you* shall be having countless tutors in Christ, but not many fathers; for in Christ Jesus through the Gospel I became your* father.*

1Corinthians 4:14–16

Lesson #166 Sunday 1

May 22, 2005

What things did Paul write to the Corinthians which did not shame them. He wrote an entire paragraph from v. 7, which shames the Corinthians. 1Cor 4:7–13: For who makes you to differ from another? And what do you have that you did not receive? And if you did receive it, why do you boast as if you had not received it? Already you are full! Already you are rich! You have reigned as kings without us! And oh that indeed you did reign, that we also might reign with you. Great sarcasm here; the Corinthians were none of these things. For I think that God has set forth us last, the apostles, as it were appointed to death; for we have become a spectacle to the world and to angels and to men. We are fools for Christ's sake, but you are wise in Christ. We are weak, but you are strong. You are honorable, but we are despised. Even until this present hour we both hunger and thirst and are naked and are buffeted and have no certain dwelling place. And we labor, working with our own hands. Being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it; being defamed, we entreat. We are made as the filth of the world, the offscouring of all things until now. It is the Corinthians, not Paul, who are fools and without honor; it is Paul who is suffering a multitude of hardships, not the Corinthians. The Corinthians are simply splitting off into factions.

Paul does not want to invoke guilt in these Corinthians. This is why he does not need for them to get emotional over this; they do not need to feel shame; they do not need to feel guilty over any of this. The problem with a guilt complex is, it distorts grace and rebound. You cannot recover from a sin that you feel guilty over. Shame and guilt, at best, are works. Rebound is all about grace and nothing but grace and that is God's system for recovery. Guilt is not required to get back into fellowship; in fact, it will not bring you back into fellowship. How you feel about your sin is irrelevant.

Many homosexuals do not feel any guilt over their homosexual acts. It is never important for us to get them to feel guilt or shame over what they have done. Guilt and shame are not issues in salvation and not in rebound. The key is, believe in Jesus Christ for salvation; name your sins to God in rebound. Guilt and shame are not involved.

Νουθετεω = to put or place in the mind. Paul is not hoping to do anything but place these doctrines in their brains. Guilt is an insidious sin and once you have confessed that sin, that sin is gone. You are in fellowship and you can move on. When you admonish your children, you are doing that in love, in order to correct them, to put them on the right path. You bring them into line in order to teach them doctrinal principles. That shows great love. This is what Paul is hoping to do.

1Cor. 4:14 I am not writing these [things] [to be] shaming you, but as my beloved children I am warning [or, instructing] [you*].

Paul is the father of these Corinthians through the gospel. Παιδαγωγος = attendant, custodian, guide. There is an interesting cultural study here. These are usually slaves who are in constant attendance to the boys of a family. They were there to supervise these boys in every aspect of their lives. They were like guardians, even bodyguards. They were not teachers in the formal sense. The παιδαγωγος are the ones who have misused their power in the church to guide people into a faction. These are faction leaders. They have boasted that they are of various fathers. These people boast that they are of Peter, Paul, Apollos and Jesus Christ. Intentionally or not, these faction leaders have subordinated themselves to Paul's fatherhood. They are spiritually corrupting their wards. The Corinthians did not mean to do this by claiming their spiritual fathers; but Paul uses this against them. Παιδαγωγος convicts them. They are subordinate to the family and they are acting as though they are the fathers of their church. They say Paul is our father; but they act independently of him. Paul says, these παιδαγωγος have been fired; I am taking over at this point. These leaders of the factions are not the fathers of the Corinthians.

We may have tutors in our life, and those who try to tell us how to live our spiritual life; but we are not responsible to anyone else. Paul, in v. 15, expresses himself and his spiritual fatherhood.

1Cor. 4:15 For although you* shall be having countless tutors in Christ, but not many fathers; for in Christ Jesus through the Gospel I became your* father.

Paul appeals to them; he is not commanding them; he is allowing them their own freewill. Who is your father? They need to recognize who their father is. Paul led these people to Christ when he came to Corinth. He is their spiritual father.

Γίνομαι = to become. This is used in the imperative mood. It is an equative verb. The imperative mood does not carry the force of a command. This is an imperative of an entreaty. "You need to be" is Paul's use of γίνομαι. Μιμητης = imitators, followers, mimics. "Be like me; be exactly like me." Paul sounds egotistical in telling these people to imitate him. This has nothing to do with personality; it does not mean to take up the same hobbies as Paul has. He is exhorting these Corinthians to imitate him, but in specific ways. Now, taking this wrong would be to make the factions stronger; his in particular. Paul does not want a group of cattle following him and acting like him. These tutors have become very partisan in their cause. It is divisive. "Do not follow the dividers."

Paul does not want his children to imitate that which is incorrect. They must follow his example in the right areas. They cannot be the slavish followers of iconoclastic tutors.

Doctrine of the Imitators

Not only are the Corinthians suppose to be followers, but we are to be followers as well. There are people in Berachah who have spent their lives imitating a personality.

1. He'll start it in 15 minutes.

1Cor. 4:16 Therefore, I am calling on [or, pleading with] you*, continue becoming imitators of me.

1Corinthians 4:16–17

Lesson #167 Sunday 2

May 22, 2005

It is not about imitating Paul's person, his personality, his intelligence. There is not a role model in each church that we ought to emulate. You cannot copy the behavior of Charlie Brown in order to be spiritual. "Be imitators of me" does not mean that we are imitating Paul's personality.

Doctrine of the Imitators

Not only are the Corinthians suppose to be followers, but we are to be followers as well. There are people in Berachah who have spent their lives imitating a personality.

1. The believer is to imitate God. Therefore, be imitators of God as beloved children. Why did Paul inject himself into this equation? Why did he not simply say, "Imitate God" ?

- 1) God is our role model.
  - 2) The unconditional, impersonal love which God bestows on the entire world (John 3:16). God gave his only-born Son because He loved us impersonally. He loves us personally, because we are justified. The unbeliever has not imputed +R, so he is loved impersonally. Think of someone that you cannot stand and someone that you hope to never see again; someone who is the bane of your existence and the thorn in your flesh; this is what God sees in us—we are even further from God; and we are supposed to love that person. We do it impersonally.
  - 3) God's love toward us is a motivator to have the same love toward each other. We can never imitate the personality of God. You only know God's essence; you know what He is; you know about His grace, justice and righteousness; and we can only imitate God through our spiritual life.
  - 4) If a perfect God can love us despite our glaring imperfections, we must in turn use impersonal love toward others, despite their flagrant flaws.
  - 5) God provides the power to do so through God the Holy Spirit and doctrine to accomplish unconditional love. We cannot exhibit unconditional love but we can imitate it or we can be a facsimile of that. You can love someone that you despise. It is so relaxing not to hate them. Not to wish the worst upon them. Not to want to trip them up in whatever way possible. Our life is 100% better when we think of them in this way.
  - 6) Who is our precedence? The precedence of the unique spiritual life set by Jesus Christ in the first advent, as He lived as a human being. Jesus Christ used a spiritual life that we have access to. We have access to the very spiritual life that our Lord used to sustain Himself for His 33 years. We have this same spiritual life.
  - 7) We may not be able to imitate the perfect of God, but we can imitate His spiritual life. We can do this with the doctrine which He has provided for us. We have the 4 mechanics of imitation.
    - (1) Filling of the Holy Spirit.
    - (2) The grace apparatus for perception
    - (3) EDIFICATION COMPLEX of the soul.
    - (4)
  - 8) We become imitators of the humanity of Christ
  - 9) Thus we can endure insult and antagonism through humility. We can do this, not because we are good people, but because we are imitators of the spiritual life of Jesus Christ and we have the filling of the Holy Spirit.
2. In carnality and reversionism, there is no such thing as imitating God or Christ. Who then does the believer imitate? He imitates the unbeliever or another reversionistic believer.
- 1) Without the filling of the Holy Spirit, we can only imitate the unbeliever. We might emulate an unbeliever who is sweet, kind and filled with human good. But we are not called to emulate human good. There is good and evil in the cosmos.

2) Eph. 4:17b–18: You should not walk from now on as other nations walk, in the emptiness (or vacuum) of their mind, having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness [or, hardness] of their heart. They are darkened in their understanding. They are alienated from the life of God. They are darkened to the gospel and darkened to truth. They are this way because of the ignorance which is in them. It is because of the hardness of their hearts. Jesus Christ could stand in front of someone, perform miracles, and still, some would not believe. When you are negative to doctrine in the same way, it is devastating. A hardened heart, “I don’t want to know all these details; I just want to feel good.”

3) If the believer is mandated not to walk like the unbeliever, this means that he can do it. This means, you have a choice. You can choose these things; we can imitate Gentiles (which is code for unbelievers).

4) This walk of the Gentiles is the way of life of the believer when he turns away from God’s plan and God’s will for his life. The unbeliever is the model. This is the thought process, the human viewpoint. The unbeliever has no spiritual life, no matter how good they are. This is the emulation of the unbeliever.

5) The believer imitating the unbeliever returns to a former viewpoint, a former set of beliefs, and a former modus operandi. The reversionist has not lost his salvation ever. The unbeliever is under the influence of Satan’s cosmic system.

6) Becomes influenced by doctrine of demons.

7) The believer becomes involved in sin and evil and suffers the consequences of self-induced misery and divine discipline.

3. The believer is urged to be an imitator of Paul. The context shows what this imitation entails.

1) We are not to imitate the personality or the style of Paul. We are not to be a slavish follower of personality.

2) In Oregon, almost everyone knew about R.B. Thieme Jr. They knew how strange the Thiemites were. The problem was, there were all of these people attempting to emulate his personality. The doctrine taught from the pulpit is in opposition to that. When Bobby left seminary, they said that Berachah must have been okay for him to turn out as he did. We do not need to emulate a personality like Bob or Bobby’s. That image being brought to others is not the thrust of Berachah.

3) It means to emulate the message and not the man. Paul is the greatest believer who ever lived; and if anyone was worthy of emulation, it would be Paul. Now Paul made mistakes; he was out of fellowship sometimes.

4) They are to imitate Paul’s way of thinking; his grace orientation, his occupation with Christ, his doctrinal orientation. You need to emulate his use of the problem solving devices. These cannot be imitated as imitating a personality; this must be imitated from the inside out.

5) The Corinthians were to feed on doctrine and not on human viewpoint.

- 6) 1Thess. 1:6–7: And you became imitators of us and of the Lord, welcoming the Word in much affliction, with joy of the Holy Spirit, so that you were examples to all who believe in Macedonia and Achaia. These two imitations are synonymous in mechanics. Paul operates with the mind of Christ. He has received the Word of God with the joy that comes from the filling of the Holy Spirit.
- 7) Imitating Paul is thinking the mind of Christ and imitation of the spiritual life.
- 8) If they imitate Paul, who is living and thinking with the mind of Christ, then they are imitating Jesus Christ.
- 9) Essentially being an imitator of Paul is the model of a mature believer. Paul is a mature believer; model what got him there.

1Cor. 4:16 Therefore, I am calling on [or, pleading with] you*, continue becoming imitators of me.

Paul teaches doctrine and he wants them to think the mind of Christ.

Apollos was the pastor of Corinth. He should have been imitated, but Apollos was run out of town. The Corinthians ran him out of town, even though he was their teacher and he was their pastor. He had taken so much of their behavior that he finally just left. He was a great orator. He could teach a message to keep them riveted. The Corinthians probably did imitate his speaking ability; however, they missed out on what he taught. He did not emphasize doctrine heavily enough; he was weak in doctrine. He did not have all the information and he failed for that reason. He had not had enough training. He could take the Corinthians any further than he had advanced.

A pastor can only take his congregation as far as he has advanced. Apollos was weak, and the Corinthians were weak as well. Once he was out of town, the Corinthians had their own ideas for the church. They functioned as factions trying to take over control of the church. They wanted to control the man who came in and that would allow them to control the church.

What a Pastor Should and Should not be

1. The pastor should be his own man; not someone's puppet. Those who are rich or think they are spiritual and should run the place—they don't get to run the pastor.
2. The pastor must faithfully present the Word of God for all the congregation. He should never pay attention to a faction.
3. The pastor should never submit to any one person or group ever. His authority is in studying and teaching.
4. There is a war going on in Corinth. Paul cannot back pedal; he cannot go easy on them. He has to tell it like it is.
5. You cannot bring peace out of divisiveness without a meeting of the minds. We should all think with one mind.
6. As long as doctrine does not have priority or is rejected, there will be no change in that church or in anyone's church.

7. The pastor's purpose is to present the doctrine which brings change in the mind and life of the believer. Change always begins from the inside and works its way to the outside. That is the pastor's purpose; to implant the Word of God in the souls of the congregation. There are automatic built-in problems with any church. We should be unified in one respect; we think alike. Imitate Paul; imitate God; imitate Christ; live the spiritual life God has given to us. Do not imitate any believer or unbeliever when it comes to their personality.

1Cor. 4:17 For this reason I sent Timothy to you*, who is my child, beloved and faithful in [the] Lord, who will remind you* of my ways, the [ones] in Christ, just as I teach everywhere in every assembly.

1Corinthians 4:16–17

Lesson #168 Wednesday

May 25, 2005

Paul, in v. 16, exhorts them to follow a role model, which he himself will be. Paul is not a counselor nor is he a one on one trainer. Nor are they to be a slavish follower of his style. Paul is not setting up some kind of Simon says; furthermore, the church is not to look like some cookie cutter operation where everyone appears to be a duplicate. Paul is not setting himself up as an icon; nor is he asking these people to become Apostles or spiritual leaders. We all have different gifts and not all of us have a leadership gift; each one of us is part of the whole.

What they are to do is to emulate the message, but not the man. One should be able to see the results from this working in their souls. Paul was uniquely prepared to carry out his mission, and his mission was the message of the Word of God. Paul's complex style lends itself to the complex doctrine. He wants us to emulate the message, not the man. The imitation is the love of God's Word. The Corinthians are to imitate Paul in feeding on Bible doctrine. They are not to imitate the human viewpoint which surrounds them. They are imitating the human viewpoint which surrounds them, which will become even more clear in chapter 5.

1Thess. 1:6a: And you became imitators of us and of the Lord, welcoming the Word in much affliction,... Being imitators of us is imitating the spiritual life of Paul and the others who are with him. They are also to imitate the prototype of Jesus Christ, since He pioneered the spiritual life that Paul used and that every mature believer has used since the inception of the Church Age. You cannot be an imitator unless you receive the Word of God. We think with the doctrine which is in our soul. This inculcation of doctrine is often done in the sphere of great adversity. When some advances at a rapid rate, it is often in the sphere of great difficulty; adversity and pressure will accelerate spiritual growth.

Look at Suffering like This

1. Where there is a time that God needs to rush you into the game, and He provide accelerated training to get you into the game. This often means suffering and pressure. Suffering will always be a part of that preparation. If you are to utilize the spiritual gift to stand in the gap, the God will give it to us.

2. Suffering is not to be feared or avoided. Suffering is to be taken advantage of for spiritual growth.
3. As long as you are in fellowship and growing, then suffering is a benefit and it helps you to grow. That is how we should always look at suffering. Doctrine becomes so real and so applicable that it is amazing. "I know what this is for; now what am I going to do in this situation?" You will accelerate your spiritual growth by leaps and bounds. If you get out of fellowship, it will end up being discipline.

1Cor. 4:16 Therefore, I am calling on [or, pleading with] you*, continue becoming imitators of me.

Μετα = with. When one occurs, the other will occur. As we advance, we utilize the power of the Holy Spirit. 1Thess. 1:6b: with joy of the Holy Spirit, so that you were examples to all who believe in Macedonia and Achaia. For from you the Word of the Lord sounded out, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but also in every place your faith toward God has gone out, so that we do not need to speak anything. There is nothing but factions at this church; they are power mad; there are people who want to be on top. They are getting rid of Apollos in order to bring in a pastor that they can control. Even with the diversity of that church, and with all their backgrounds, because it is a seaport, they can think and act in unity. Similarly, Berachah is a diverse church. We have many different backgrounds, come from different places, and make different amounts of money. Being of one mind is the unity of doctrine. This is the model for the unity of the believer. Imitation is the only way for the problems of Corinth to be resolved; one believer at a time. If people have agendas, if they stay out of fellowship, if they are not interested in growth, then the pastor can teach the greatest doctrine, the congregation is not going to grow unless they are positive toward doctrine. Being of like mind and growing in grace and knowledge together. This positive volition is what brings unity of purpose to the individual and to the church as a whole. When we are not working right, the body is not working right. All the part must work in synch. Peace comes to the church when individuals are of one mind, which is the mind of Christ.

Great friendships are founded on like-mindedness, and these are the ones which last.

Application

1. Change in your soul does not mean your personality or individuality is going to change.
2. Thinking with the mind of Christ does change your modus operandi. You might be the same old jerk that you were or that same nicer person you were, but your modus operandi changes.
3. When you are controlled by the Holy Spirit, your personality does not change.
4. If you do not operate with the spiritual life, then you will operate with egocentric arrogance; with power lust and manipulative skills. If you are controlled with the Holy Spirit and the application of doctrine, you will not make an issue of yourself.

5. A new way of thinking means you apply grace orientation, personal and impersonal love, etc. When you share the happiness of God, you may still have that rotten personality, but it is under control.
6. This is the magnificent result of thinking with the mind of Christ.
7. This is what changes interaction between believer's from hostility to teamwork.
8. This new way of thinking is what makes personal relationships tenable and wonderful. This change in our soul, this change in our modus operandi is what makes relationships wonderful.
9. Doctrine in the soul truly bring unity in diversity. We can have unity in doctrine when we think with one mind. We have peace in our souls which results in peace in human relationships...all of them. We always want to blame whatever problem there is on someone else. When slandered, we return with kind words. This is what the mind of Christ does.

Now Paul sends to this hotbed of reversionism and man who might be able to bring order out of this chaos. He will remind these people of the doctrine which Paul had taught. Tim comes with the mantle of Apostolic authority. He is not an Apostle, but he is sent by an Apostle and has that kind of authority. It will be the irresistible force meeting the immovable object.

For this reason refers back to v. 16, so that the Corinthians can learn to imitate Paul. Πέμπω = to send. Aorist tense; it could be the epistolary aorist. Paul puts himself in the place of his readers; therefore, he describes an event in the past to the readers; but to him, it is in the present, but he is writing in the past. He is writing of an advent in the past which is happening in the future thought. The present thought is Paul has sent Tim and Timothy has just arrived. Paul would be introducing Timothy within the epistle and Tim would be the bearer of this letter. This could be as a common past tense aorist; normally, the aorist is timeless, but in the indicative, it is often taken as a past tense, past time, event in the past. Tim has not yet arrived, but he is on his way. If Tim is already on his way, then the letter is still in Paul's hands because he is writing. Tim is not mentioned in the beginning or in the salutation at the end. Timothy had already left, and Paul was still writing. We will find out that Tim was delayed in Macedonia, and he was to continue to Corinth after that. The Bible is not a book of history, but it contains history. Other passages give us an idea what the sequence of events is, or determine who did what and when did they do it. We are just determining when Tim was sent. Tim was not sent with this epistle. Paul sent Tim to Corinth, by way of Macedonia in the past, after Tim had been sent.

Who carried the letter? 1Cor. 16:17: Stephanis, and two other guys probably carried it. They would have traveled after Tim, but arrived before Tim in Corinth. By this epistle, he introduces Timothy, who was sent in the past, but is in Macedonia.

Who is Timothy that he can show up and clean up this mess in Corinth? Tim is the son of a Greek father who is an unbeliever, and a believer mother; and he was reared by Lois, his grandmother, and by his mother, Eunice. 2Tim. 1:5 Acts 16.

Teaching Bible Doctrine to your Children

1. There is no substitute for parents spending time with their children in the Word of God. If you want your kids to be spiritually mature, then spend time with them in the Word of God. A few minutes before bed or a few minutes in the morning.
2. This translated to them how important doctrine is to you. They may not get much of the doctrine that you teach, but they will understand the important.
3. That time spent has the greatest impact on impressionable young children. Bobby grew up with this, and he grew up under a blanket of integrity and a blanket of grace. Bobby saw it and it made an impression from the very beginning. That was the way his parents were and that is how they thought. This is critical to any child as they grow up. When this is done, it is reasonable that the kid will return to doctrine when he is older. It is not a done deal, because they have volition. The parents are to inculcate doctrine and to be the model for them.
4. When a child learns a little doctrine from the parent, then that child may come back to doctrine when he is older.
5. There is no substitute for parental instruction. Bobby's mother spent the time to find stories to read with him and they both prayed. Every night, they both prayed together.

There were kids who were dropped off for church, and their parents wandered over to a bowling alley while the kid was in church. How does that translate to a kid? The kid knows that the parent does not care. When a kid is 1–5 years old, you are their god; and they will listen to you, and they will soak it up, and they will gain all kinds of spiritual growth from those first few years. Your impact on impressionable young children is great.

Bobby at age 16 went to Mexico to surf with 3 friends for 10 days. Bobby fulfilled that trust, although there were some close calls. At 16, Bobby went to Mexico and he is still okay. Bobby is our spiritual parent.

Prep school is important, but there is no substitute for parental teaching. Kids will follow our lead.

1Cor. 4:17 For this reason I sent Timothy to you*, who is my child, beloved and faithful in [the] Lord, who will remind you* of my ways, the [ones] in Christ, just as I teach everywhere in every assembly.

1Corinthians 4:17–

Lesson #169 Thursday

May 26, 2005

Bobby got a letter from a woman out of town. She listens to MP3's. She wondered if distance learning would give her the spiritual growth she needs.

It is an amazing spiritual life that we have been given. Paul is the model for the spiritual life; not his personality or his temperament, but his positive volition. Modeling Paul works, despite our personality quirks.

How Our Modus Operandi Changes

1. The impulses of your ego are controlled by the filling of the Holy Spirit and the grace apparatus for perception.
2. You apply grace orientation by acting with humility.
3. Then you find your selfworth in a personal sense of destiny; living your life in the light of eternity, rather than in human accomplishment or approbation.
4. Then you can respond to people in grace and impersonal love, instead of reacting in anger, bitterness, implacability or revenge. These are occupational hazards for those who cannot utilize impersonal love.
5. You are at peace with yourself and personal relationships.
6. You still have your good old personality, your quirks and your personal characteristics; but you are not a slave to your personality.
7. The obnoxious personality quirks are quelled over time. Your personality does not control you. The traits which drive you and other crazy can be overcome, even though it does not change. A lousy personality, but operating as if you did not have a lousy personality.

Each believer is responsible for his or her imitation. You must have positive volition toward doctrine. This means opening up on a consistent basis to the teaching of doctrine. It is a change in the believer's soul which brings with it a unity of thinking. That is a wonderful thing. The person next to you can be like they are from Mars, but you think alike because you have doctrine in your soul and so do they. If you do not have this like-minded thinking, a similar personality will cause you to be inundated by that personality. Creeping human viewpoint will take over.

Paul must take some action to encourage a change in Corinth; from divisiveness to a unified thinking. He decides to send an emissary. He sends Timothy into the cauldron of reversionism. He decides on Timothy, who is a trouble-shooter.

Timothy

1. Son of an unbeliever Greek and a believer mother who is Jewish.
2. He was reared by his grandmother, Lois and his mother Eunice. Both are mature believers. His mother saw to it that he got a good spiritual background.
3. When Paul went to Greece on his secondary missionary journey and he probably met Tim near Galatia in Lystra (Tim's home town). He went with Paul from there to Greece and Tim was very young at that time. Tim is probably the best-known of Paul's co-workers.
4. Philip. 2:21: the epitome of a Christian gentleman.
5. Tim did have some weaknesses, as we have.
6. He was frequently ill. 1Tim. 5:23
7. He had a shy and timid personality. This is always a problem for a leader. It must be overcome with doctrine. Bobby has a shy personality, yet has been thrown into leadership roles from time to time.
8. Bobby became a lieutenant when he was much younger than those around him; and his men often trained him. He learned, but they also followed his orders. Tim often was disregarded and given no respect because he was so young. Also, he did not get complete obeisance, as he was in the shadow of Paul, a strong personality. 1Tim. 4:12

1Cor. 16:10.

9. Paul often left Timothy behind to troubleshoot; or he sent him out to troubleshoot. Tim was sent to Thessalonika to remind them of the strength of doctrine.
10. He eained in Philipi after Paul left to deal with the main branch. Acts 16:12
11. He did a great job in this city.
12. Left behind with Silas in Berea (Acts 17:14).
13. Tim did fail in Corinth, when he came up against reversionists in Corinth, who defeated him. Not tough enough to deal with the bullies there.
14. Tim went with Paul when Paul went through these trials and tribulations; and was with Paul when Paul was hauled into prison.

The Corinthians tore Apollos a new one, and they then ran off Timothy. Paul had no idea that Tim would fail. He had not failed before. Paul sent him along as his beloved child. Paul uses the term γίναω = to sire, to father; about himself and the Corinthians, as well as of Timothy.

Tim and the Corinthians

1. Tim was faithful in his inculcation.
2. Paul states that Tim will bring recall to the Corinthians.
3. This means, Tim was prepared to teach doctrine. He had been to the Pauline seminary.
4. The Corinthians had forgotten or ignored what Paul had already taught them. They had things to do and they wanted to be big fish in that little pond there. Tim was to review the doctrine and teach it to them.
5. Tim will teach them to be imitators, just as he is.

We get kicked in the head enough to where we get back and get with it; or die. The spiritual life that Paul imitates is the one that we imitate. Paul now teaches it.

Paul and the Corinthians

1. The Corinthians will grow with the doctrine that Paul taught and that Tim will review
2. He will again teach doctrine trough Timothy. He spend 18 months with the Corinthians.
3. It is this doctrine which H teaches and supplies that he must emulate.
4. Paul also presents a doctrinal role model.
5. Humility and faithfulness to doctrine, along with his enthusiasm.
6. Paul has made comparison after comparison between himself and the Corinthians.
7. These comparisons have manifested his spiritual advance and points out their spiritual failures.
8. Paul was not bragging on himself, but providing a pattern for spiritual maturity. Paul is not a stoic who just takes it; he has a spiritual life which allows him to live through anything. What happens to him is inconsequential in relationship to eternity. Tim wants what Paul has, but the Corinthians do not; they want approbation and power.

9. Paul's purpose in chapters 2–4 was to present a comparison and give the Corinthians a window into the spiritual life.

Children are incredibly impressionable; they may not listen to what you say, but they soak up what you do. When kids are dropped off at church and picked up later, this teaches them how much doctrine means to their parent. By age 10, they also deserted doctrine.

1Cor. 4:17 For this reason I sent Timothy to you*, who is my child, beloved and faithful in [the] Lord, who will remind you* of my ways, the [ones] in Christ, just as I teach everywhere in every assembly.

Paul will return to them; but he will send Timothy first. Failure in the spiritual arena does not end the contest. Failure should be a learning experience. You do not allow it to defeat you; it is a springboard for future victory in the spiritual life. Never let past failures take you down in the future; they are in the past. Do not be discouraged when you fail; we all fail. If you fail and then react to that failure, you intensify that failure. A first base man can make a mistake, and then dwell on this past failure; and when that ground ball comes again, he fails again. You simply pick up and move on. You cannot react with that sort of emotion. If you fail, then you rebound; and, euphemistically speaking, you get back up on the horse.

Timothy failed, but he did not run home with his tail between his legs to Lystra to his mother. Paul did not hold it against him and both moved on. Timothy became a great hero as Paul's aide-de-camp. He also became a great church leader as he advanced.

In v. 18, Paul actually comes right out and says, "You Corinthians are arrogant." They maintained their arrogance because they did not think that Paul was coming back. Timothy came as a second string, and they expected to chew Tim up and spit him out, which they did. Some of the Corinthians even spread the word that Paul was afraid to come to Corinth. Paul was able to endure hunger, thirst and abuse; but they said he was afraid to travel to Corinth. Paul was afraid of nothing; he had a great spiritual life and he was afraid of nothing. No one took more abuse than the Apostle Paul. Paul was doing a great work in Ephesus; so Timothy was a great choice, as he was free and had done well in the past in difficult situations. Paul is thoroughly immersed in God's plan. Paul's personal desires always came second to what God had planned for Paul to do.

Paul is not saying this in a way to get back at the Corinthians; he is not going for an eye for an eye. There's nothing that Paul could do to replace the power of the Word of God in the souls of the believers in Corinth.

1Cor. 4:18 Now some became conceited, as though I were not coming to you*.

1Corinthians 4:17–19

Lesson #170 Sunday 1

May 29, 2005

Bobby wonders how much we know about who we memorialize and what we memorialize on Memorial Day. He is going to read "On the Edge of No Man's Land" by Thomas Flemming about a nurse Miller. From WWI; despite the mandate for there to be no American women in Europe as a nurse or operators, about 25,000 went over there. She went over to be a French nurse, and she assumed there would be training; but she was immediately moved to the front. She was given a hypodermic needle to inject every man; she had never even received a shot before. Also hit by influenza there, which raised temperatures more than one could imagine. No antibiotics in WWI.

We are free to do what we do because of sacrifices above. There is a nobility and honor beyond what we could even imagine.

A parallel in Christ suffering untold horror in His sacrifice; the results are what we focus on. Communion is our Memorial Day, so to speak.

Timothy is beloved and faithful, two things which commend Timothy to the Corinthians. Tim had great positive volition; he kept on advancing. Timothy will help the Corinthians recall all that Paul had taught these people. He is the man for repetition. He will bring the Corinthians up, as long as they function under positive volition. Tim is to help them become imitators of Paul.

1Cor. 4:17 For this reason I sent Timothy to you*, who is my child, beloved and faithful in [the] Lord, who will remind you* of my ways, the [ones] in Christ, just as I teach everywhere in every assembly.

For the first time, Paul calls the Corinthians arrogant; their arrogance thrives because they do not fear Paul's return. They feel as though they have a free reign in the church. They see Tim as a second string. They were going to chew Tim up and run him out of town, as they did to Apollos. No young kid is going to get in the way of their power struggle. Paul has to stop this uprising. So Paul has to make it clear that he is coming back; Tim will get their first and begin to clean up, and Paul will be there next. He did not fear the Corinthians; he was not worried at all of facing these people. This was the rumor which was going around the church.

Φουσιω = puffed up, arrogant, conceited. Paul is telling them that he knows all about their arrogance. A constantine aorist, contemplating their arrogance in its entirety. They had become arrogant and they continued in their arrogance.

In both books of Corinthians, it is clear that there were those doing what they could do to undermine Paul's authority.

How the Corinthians Questioned Paul

1. They questioned his apostleship. 1Cor. 2Cor.
2. They accused him of instability, which is what they are. 2Cor. 1:17.
3. Represented him as weak and contemptible in speech. They were so arrogant and impressed with themselves, that they slandered the apostle Paul. Cor.
4. They referred to Paul as a coward. We know what he has faced. They were prosperous, and they called him a coward.

5. They were unimpressed with Timothy, whom Paul would send.

It is not a done deal that Paul will come to Corinth; it depends upon the will of God. I will find out the power of the Corinthians and not what they are saying. Paul will ignore all of their verbal slander, and rebellion; Paul will go straight to the source of their arrogance. Forget what happened behind; go to the source. When you want to know what the problem is, look inside your own soul. Γινωσκω = to know, to find out, to discover. Paul uses γινωσκω because it is related to the words γνωσις and επιγνωσις. Paul is not going to just find out facts, but he will want to look into their souls. Paul is not looking at the results of arrogance, but at the arrogance itself.

These people are not gladiators, but they are exaggerators. They do everything in the energy of the flesh. If they function under the influence of the old sin nature, then their words are nothing but hot air. Their words are a trumpet played by their egos.

Φυσιω = arrogant, conceited, puffed up, inflated by their own approbation lust. They simply toot their own horns with their words. They express their own egocentric arrogance. There is nothing glorifying in empty words; you cannot glorify God in the flesh. They are judging, gossiping, criticizing. They are bragging about their accomplishments and attacking believers who are around them. They disguise this as some kind of spiritual righteousness, but it is self righteous hypocrisy. They are not imitating Paul or Christ, because they have nothing in their soul. "Do what I do, or you are not living up to God's standards." Phoney piety, which is completely nauseating. They are devoted not to the Lord but to themselves. You can only manage your own spiritual life.

Teaching doctrine changes people from the inside out; they attempt to scare people into changing their exterior in order to satisfy themselves, even though there is no real internal change. Some pastors teach you can lose your salvation so that the pastor can keep them in line. "Here is what you need to do" in order to hold onto your salvation. They want you to live a life that they approve of. They have no clue about the grace of God. If you can lose your salvation, then there is something you can do to keep it; the grace of God is not enough; what Jesus did on the cross is not enough. It is evil for us to run down another believer who is advancing in their spiritual life, especially those who advance past you. We must advance at our own pace, as doctrine becomes resident in our soul. Do not retreat, don't worry about others and their growth; don't become jealous because someone has a great spiritual life and you don't. This is jealousy and pettiness. You have to get your own spiritual life. We can share the happiness of God in any adversity and circumstance in life.

1Cor. 4:18 Now some became conceited, as though I were not coming to you*.

Δυναμις = power, authority, inherent power. This is the power which is essential and available to each one of us. No other age has what we have by way of inherent power. Paul says, I am not coming to hear your words, but to see what kind of power is going on. Is it simply their lust for power or actual spiritual power. No matter what they say, Paul tells them to step outside of their words and see what drives them.

1Cor. 4:19 But I will come to you* soon, if the Lord wills, and I will know not the word of the ones having become conceited but the power.

1Corinthians 4:20–21

Lesson #171 Sunday 2

May 29, 2005

Here we have a carryover from the previous verse. Christ is physically present and He will physically reign on this earth, which is His future kingdom in the Millennium. However, kingdom here is not used in a future eschatological sense. Its use here is in more of a spiritual sense. We are all parts of His family; we are in union with Christ. We have a close personal relationship because we are members of His family. We are born into His family. As part of His family, we are princes, princesses, dukes and duchesses; Christ is not only the head of our family; He is also our sovereign. Christ rules us when we think like He does. A king rules over us, because he is king; which is true of the Lord or of any other king. That rulership is realized when we think with the mind of Christ. That is the internal rule of our souls. Paul contrasts Christ internal rule over the external words of these Corinthians. When there is nothing on the inside, then there is nothing which comes out of the mouth. They have empty words; the person with a spiritual life has words which are not empty. Ου εν λεγοις = not in words. Words here represent the externals, not the internals. These words depict lips service. They represent hypocritical observances of religion. It is similar to us taking communion, without there being a reality behind the ritual. We have no kingdom in our soul. The spiritual life does not consist of a system of phoney spiritual vocabulary. The godly language with no content. Some of it is completely meaningless because there is not doctrine behind it. It makes everyone around nauseated or thinking that this person is a spiritual person. That is what was expected in seminary and in some churches. What matters is if your words have some soulish backing. You can be chewing on a cigar and still be as spiritual as anyone around you. Seminaries are filled with superficial Christianity; a godly language designed for public consumption. They are letting you know just how spiritual they are. If you can say great words of doctrine, but you fall apart at every adversity, then your words mean nothing. There are tons of devotional sermons which are meaningless. You can find them on tv at any time; you can find them in self-help books. These devotional sermons are meaningless and they will carry the believer nowhere. Those who listen do get something, but it is better than nothing. There is a trickle of water. If you want to grow, use a blasting faucet. These people are without eternal power. The kingdom of God consists of inherent power; not of external words. Who God is and what He expects of us is what we need to know. How can we function in the plan if we don't know what is going on. They are unwilling to submit to the authority of Paul or Tim or Apollos. They give a phoney lip service to these people, those who are not in opposition; they have no spiritual life; they are not advancing. Spirituality, you either have it or don't. It is an all or nothing proposition. The spiritual life is what is in you; not the externals. The phoney spiritual life is self righteous religiosity manifested by empty words without internal power.

1Cor. 4:20 For the kingdom of God [is] not in word but in power.

V. 21 presents the Corinthians with a choice. Would you prefer a spanking or a more sedate form of correction. How they respond to Timothy will go a long ways in helping Paul how to deal with these Corinthians. Tim will be run out of town and Paul will have to come in with a big stick. Behind Paul's question here is a clear desire to correct these Corinthians. If they respond to Tim, then Paul's arrival will be a cakewalk. There will be love and gentleness. However, there is the other side of the coin; God can come with a rod or with encouragement. It is always in a spirit of love and grace. We are His children; we are all sons of God. Paul addresses the Corinthians as a parent. Paul must do something about it for their own good. He must make the attempt at correcting them. He must make them understand what God expects of them. Correction is no good unless they know what is expected of them. You must know what it is all about. This will give you every opportunity to grow up and succeed. This is the duty of every Christian parent. Nonchristian parents also must prepare their kids for life; they must know the rules for life and what the criterion is. They must orient to authority. There is not one child born into this world without arrogance. The basic flaw in humanity is arrogance; in Satan, in the woman who was deceived; and in the man, who only thought about himself. Egocentric arrogance is the biggest problem in the soul of any child. When authority is rejected, then arrogance kicks in. If that arrogance is excused or indulged or if you look the other way, you destroy the soul of that child. This will bring them misery that no parent would want for their child. This is Paul's perspective with the Corinthians. He is like a parent and a child; he wants to guide them away from their arrogance and to a better life. Encourage arrogance in a child and you will lead your child into misery. Now, if the parent is arrogant, then the kids will get it too. The parent's misery will find its way into the souls of those children. It will reside in their souls because they see it. Arrogant pastors breed arrogant congregations. Reversionism is insidiously evil.

Paul cares about these people. He is willing to bring the big stick with him; he can turn people over to Satan. He has great power and authority. The Corinthians were too arrogant to be worried. Paul is our example as a leader, and this is his spiritual responsibility to these people. Paul intends to do what is right before the Lord. He knows that these Corinthians do not love him; but he does love them. Discipline will be appreciated by your children in the future. Paul knows it is important to give his children every opportunity to recover. Paul will not indulge them; he will not overlook their arrogance. Parents want to make their children their best friend. But that is not the responsibility of a parent. They try to treat a child as an adult companion. They are not to assuage your loneliness. Your child might dislike you and you are worried and you try to coddle them. You try to use reason and logic to teach them what is right. They are children; scare them. Always treat your children in love, but discipline is necessary. Children need imperatives. They don't need to be talked into something. They need an external curb on their sin natures. Children need correction and discipline to give them direction in life and security as well. Discipline is security for a child. Children are not to be your pals all of the time, although that time can come occasionally. A child is vulnerable and defenseless. They have no defenses. A child molester destroys the soul of a child. Parenting calls you to be a disciplinarian. If you cannot do that, then you should not have children.

Children pick up on things that you think that they would never notice. Discipline is reassurance; they know who is in charge. When you discipline a child and when you do it right and when you do it in love; and when you explain why you are doing it and you explain in a calm, and loving way. It should not be pain from your frustration. They know you care about them and you are giving them attention and correction. You are giving them an opportunity in life that they would not have otherwise. You are giving them the best opportunity to be successful in life. Some believe that giving a child things will do that; that is completely false. Giving a child material advantages without authority and grace orientation are destruction. It is better to be poor and given instruction in life than to give them stuff. You should feed and clothe them; but you fail to teach them and you fail in your responsibility. Having monetary advantages will not spoil a child; the kid must understand grace. He must be taught and disciplined; giving material advantages is not wrong or right. The key is teaching and discipline. Children do not earn the details of life; they are born to it. They are attached to whatever family they are born to. This teaches them grace. Just as parents provide certain advantages in life, so God freely provides great advantages to His spiritual children. Freedom, a spiritual life, salvation; we earn and deserve nothing and we are entitled to nothing. We are born into affluence when we are born again. The source of details of life is the grace of God. Bobby did not earn these material things; they were given to him. But instruction came with the details of life. Bobby learned the source of these details by being taught.

Some people think that you learn the value of money by earning it; but that does not teach grace. What you receive without earning is grace. Bobby learned how to earn money but he also learned grace from it as well. When a child is grace-oriented, he grows up with the greatest opportunities that he can have. Children need to understand grace, just like we do. This gives them the opportunity to learn grace and to be great people and great believers.

1Cor. 4:21 What do you* desire? Shall I come to you* with a rod, or in love and in a spirit of gentleness?

(1Corinthians 4:21) Emotionalism Lesson #172 Wednesday

June 1, 2005

Emotionalism and Christian Parenting

What passes for a spiritual life today in most churches is simply emotionalism..

Emotionalism

1. If emotionalism is in control of the soul, the believer cannot think or apply doctrine to his life; they are mutually exclusive.
2. Emotion is not designed to control the soul. It is designed to be dominated by the filling of the Spirit and epignosis doctrine. The number one stimulus in our life should be Bible doctrine. Emotion may appreciate doctrine, but not control the soul.
3. When the soul is dominated by the emotions, the believer makes a god out of emotions.
4. When emotionalism becomes his god, he falls into all sorts of religious traps.

5. Used to be called Pentecostalism and now is called charismatic. Many people in churches and in extra curriculum activities who misuse their gift because they are so steeped in emotionalism. In 1980, the charismatic movement had grown into the largest group of Protestants and still is. Even the staid Episcopalian church accepts the charismatics. Bobby wandered around Capos in Costa Rica, so Bobby wandered in and it was a charismatic church. It is found in eastern Europe, in Africa, all over the world. Unleashed emotionalism negates post salvation epistemological rehabilitation. You cannot change the way you think unless you are able to metabolize doctrine. The emotionalism in the charismatic movement negates that.
6. Emotionalism does not have common sense; it cannot reason and it cannot be logical. We see the results of emotionalism everyday in all sorts of criminality. Someone in an emotional crisis goes to an extreme. The engage is bitterness, hatred, etc. They vent their feelings. Example of the husband who murdered his wife and kids because he was frustrated. Egocentric arrogant emotionalism is the driving force behind the kids who take guns to school and then take out a few of their friends.
7. Clearly, rampant emotionalism always hinders the perception and application of Bible doctrine. 1Cor. 11–12.
8. This is called emotional revolt of the soul. That always means loss of momentum in our spiritual advance.
9. Emotional revolt is the 4th stage of reversionism and it means no capacity for life, for happiness, for love for God or true capability to love another person.
10. Emotionalism is divorced from reality. The believer sees the problems, but has no idea how to solve them. They cannot apply the problem solving devices. When those don't work, they turn inward and they become egocentric.
11. Emotion is a responder to the content of the soul; that is the function of emotion. All of us have had great emotional responses. This is normal.
12. Emotionalism is related to human power and influence, but not to the working of divine power.
13. Since it is related to human power, it means that emotionalism has nothing to do with the operation of a spiritual gift. Our spiritual gift does not run on emotion. God still heals in our Age, but the charismatics don't. Those who go to these services walk out and know nothing more than they did when they walked in.
14. A believer's uncontrolled and unrestrained, it is the basis for total involvement in egocentric arrogance. Emotionalism and egocentric arrogance go hand in hand.
15. There is a very close relationship between egocentric arrogance and emotionalism.
16. Emotional stress causes people to act on egocentric, subjective impulse rather than objective doctrine from their souls. Absolute truth is never utilized, although human viewpoint is. Paul is challenging their emotionalism. 1Cor. 4:21: What do you* desire? Shall I come to you* with a rod, or in love and in a spirit of gentleness? The Corinthians must make a decision as to how Paul will minister to them when he arrives. He is addressing them like a father to his children. He addresses them as a father. These people are under Paul's authority and these people are way out of line.

Bobby is going to continue the line of thinking of being a parent and dealing with one's children.

Christian Parenting

1. The guiding principle: you must prepare your children for life in the spiritual and temporal realm.
  - a. Preparing them is the primary obligation of the family. God supplied us with a mother and a father because both are instrumental in preparing children in different ways.
  - b. Children must learn authority orientation; this is a primary job of a parent. Men and women often have different views on this and they bring different perspectives to the tables.
  - c. Grace orientation retards the arrogance which will develop in the child. Our child should learn grace orientation almost from the womb.
2. Christian parents often make mistakes.
  - a. It is more important to make the child learn to set correct spiritual priorities rather than to make the child love you by indulging them.
  - b. Parents want to make their children their best friends. They treat their children like their adult friends and companions, but they are not; they are children.
  - c. They are afraid their children will dislike them if they are not cool, tolerant, and permissive. You have a more important job than to seem cool to your kids.
  - d. Children need imperatives; not just indicatives, but enforced humility. They need an external curb on their little sin natures. Parents are the ones to do this; especially on young children in their formative stages.
3. You show more love in discipline your children than when you don't.
  - a. Children pick up on that love through discipline, at least subconsciously.
  - b. When you correct and instruct them properly, this translates to them as caring. Discipline with loving instruction about what they did wrong; don't leave them hanging. You cannot discipline in anger or when you are out of control. This will not translate to caring. This is security for them. Neglect brings insecurity to a child and discipline is positive attention and direction in life. That is the opposite of neglect.
  - c. Material advantages do not spoil a child. Little rich kids who run around rampant; but this is lack of discipline and training. This is a problem only when a child is indulged with the details of life. That is indulgence.
  - d. If you do it right, material advantages become a great teaching point of grace.
  - e. Children don't earn or deserve the details of life that they may receive.

- f. When they are given things, and they should be given things, they should understand the true source of these things.
  - g. They must be taught that the details of life are provided in grace and love by the parent and not by the entitlement of the child. A child is not entitled to anything. It is not what you give them, but how you give it to them. The child must learn to appreciate the source rather than the details. Bob often gave Bobby things when he did not deserve them; because you don't earn it or deserve it. Just as parents can provide certain advantages in life, so God provides even greater advantages to His children. We don't earn or deserve anything. You do this with correction—they must know what they have done is not right—but it is a grace picture when they get what they do not deserve and when they realize that they are not entitled to anything. Grace is not conventional human wisdom, and it is not understood even by Christians. Grace orientation leads to humility which leads to authority orientation.
- 4. Egocentric arrogance is curbed by teaching and correction at a young age.
  - 5. Absolute truth gathered at a young age is a guide to life. Without this, there is not anchor of the soul. This is critical for a spiritual and temporal life. You prepare students for all possibilities in life.
  - 6. Prov. 22:6: Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it. This is misunderstood:
    - a. This is not a promise that children who are taught doctrine will always end up in spiritual maturity or even as good citizens. Even good teaching will not insure that.
    - b. Don't be confused or upset yet. Proverbs is filled with general principles.
    - c. In spite of the fact that proverbs are general principles, every child still has volition and advancing to spiritual maturity depends upon their choices.
    - d. Prov. 22:6 does not mean that when you teach your children, that they will turn out at some future point as positive to doctrine and develop into mature believers.
    - e. This verse does have a specific guarantee: the lessons learned in childhood will last a lifetime to impressionable young souls. It will be there that long.
    - f. Lessons driven home by teaching and discipline will not disappear; they will be firmly implanted.
    - g. By teaching and discipline, you increase exponentially your children's chances of spiritual maturity. Even when they screw up big time, recovery is only an application away. They can learn to apply these principles all of their lives. You have then prepared them. The catch is, you must teach them. This is critical. The parent has the most influence on a child's thinking and actions. We are gods to our children. As they grow, outside influences will have their affect. They initially look to you to learn how to think. Their thought process form from ours. At a very young age, they will mirror us. Guiding principles come from the parent. Spiritual growth comes from us.
    - h. This is why, prep school is given so much attention. Prep school is not a substitute for parental training. Bobby's mother taught a Bible club at her house and many people believed in Jesus Christ as young children. However, she also taught Bobby personally. There was always a personal time which she gave to Bobby. This personal attention matters in the human and spiritual realms. Our society is a mess because parents do not fulfill their responsibilities. Many people are authority disoriented because of those parents who have failed to teach. Even though Bob is one of the greatest Bible teachers of this century, Bobby learned a great deal directly from his mother. However, you are not responsible for a child's future choices; you can only fulfill your parental obligation to them. You may not like how they turned out, but you know you have done your best by them. Maximum opportunity orients the children to life; they can gain stability and humility and spiritual self-esteem. This gives them a jump start to a mature spiritual life, which is the objective in life. This all assumes that you have evangelized your child. That is the first responsibility. Parental and spiritual failure is not evangelizing and teaching these kiddos.

1Corinthians 4:21

Lesson #173 Thursday

June 2, 2005

Combining D-Day and Memorial Day services.

Paul sums up his solution in v. 21 for all the problems in the previous verses. What he has dealt with previously is problems which he has touched on and he will tell, in general terms, how he will accomplish his mission. "Will I come to you with a rod or with love and a spirit of gentleness." Paul does not intend to indulge them. If Paul did indulge them, it would be to tolerate something? Not sure about that. The Corinthians are going to continue the way that they are. If anything, Paul overdoes his mission. He cannot let these Corinthians stay in this state of reversionism. He knows that he can only do so much. Bobby can only teach so much and it is up to us as to what we do with it. Paul must use just the right approach in what he does in order to correct this situation. Paul is like a parent who is going to correct his children. The Corinthians are his children, as many responded to the gospel message which he presented. Paul views them as his children and no parent wants to see his children way out of line. Paul, as a good parent, does not want to see them pained. All discipline must be carried out in this way. Whether parents of children or congregational discipline. The only people designed to administer discipline in Berachah, unless it comes down from Bobby. Only the leadership can do that.

Every believer has a right to know exactly what God requires of them. 1Cor. 1-4 is to know what God expects of you. We must know what happens in a church where reversionism is the order of the day. This will be Paul's commitment until the day he dies. Paul is that committed. He is their spiritual parent and their teacher of doctrine. Bobby recognizes his responsibilities in studying this book. Paul is going to be able to look back and know that he has done everything to help the Corinthians get out of this mess. Resentment and bad feelings on the part of the congregation will be temporary. If God says well-done, good and faithful servant, it does not depend upon what the Corinthians do. It does depend upon what Paul does. The criterion for success is not how they turn out; it is what he does. As a parent, it is not how the kids turn out, but whether or not we fulfill our obligation. That must be part of our repertoire. Paul has to discipline with love and in patience. Will Paul come to them with a whip and a kick start, or with the patient counsel of doctrine? Paul must decide the most effective way to bring them out of reversionism. Paul asks them, what do you want? What do you want me to do? The Corinthians might ask Paul to be gentle so that they can run roughshod over him. Every pastor and parent has to make the same choice under differing sets of circumstances. It is tough for a parent to deal with recalcitrant children under various conditions. When do you apply corporal punishment or when do you patiently instruct as a corrective. You will eventually have to use both.

Paul is still the gladiator in this verse. He makes it clear when he writes εν ραβδοι = with a rod; this is a threat, and it is a serious one. He is coming armed with severe discipline; and there is nothing wrong with the threat of punishment with recalcitrant children. Once the threat is made, then you must be ready to carry it out. Never threaten unless you are going to carry it out. Jeff Cooper, if you pull your gun and turn it on someone, then you had better plan to be able to carry through; otherwise, they will take it from you and kill you. Paul wants it to be perfectly clear that he is there to kick ass and take name. Heb. 12:6: Whom the Lord loves, He disciplines and scourges every son with a whip. If the Lord is willing to discipline those that He loves, then we must also be willing to do so. Paul can also arrive in love with a spirit of gentleness. Never discipline when you are out of fellowship. Do not do that when you are anger. At best, you cause fear in them. You must not be out of control with your child. You must give yourself some time first. Paul says he will not discipline when he is out of control.

Ev αγαπη = in love. Innumerable meanings which can be attached to this word. You have to determine what this means in context. It is further destroyed by those who all think they know what it means and they superimpose their ideas on the passage.

A Few Principles on Love

Someone says they love you and you had better figure out what they mean. The way they see it may not be the way that you see it. Capacity is also a factor.

1. Love is always a mental attitude, not an emotional response. It is a way of thinking. Love is not a physical response; that can be a result of love, but love is a mental attitude.
2. Love is a system of thinking, not of touching.
3. Agape is thinking; it is an attitude. An attitude of virtue, benevolence, kindness and grace.
4. Benevolence:
  - a. Benevolence is a good basic description of love.
  - b. It is a concern for the welfare of those you love; it means giving, not taking.
  - c. God is benevolent; He always seeks our best interest.
  - d. Benevolence is the actual carrying and providing in every way of those we love.

- e. Persistence is endurance; it is to love someone despite their shortcomings and failures. No matter who you love, they have shortcomings and failures. You must be able to deal with those. This is an aspect of love that you don't hear very often.
  - f. The thinking of virtue love from the mentality of your soul.
  - g. Then with virtue love, you are gracious to those with whom you are in conflict. Love does not mean that you will not have conflict with the person that you are in love with.
5. The overall attitude of love is thinking with a relaxed mental attitude toward someone else, even in conflict. You must approach with a relaxed mental attitude, and not with insanity.
  6. It is easy to be magnanimous in love when you are not at war with your lover. It is easy to have endurance and to be persistent and to be benevolent...unless you are at war.
  7. Confrontation is where you apply impersonal love. You cannot look at agape without considering impersonal love.
  8. Recall, impersonal love is not based on the merit of the object, but on the integrity of the subject. I love you; in personal love, you is attractive; there is something lovable, something attractive, something to like. However, there can be periods of time when that object is difficult to deal with. Impersonal love is more important especially when there is nothing lovable about the object.
  9. The integrity of the subject means that the subject must possess virtue, or there is nothing with regards to love going on. You can only fulfill this by having virtue and the filling of the Holy Spirit.
  10. Impersonal love includes your benevolence towards the object of love, because you have virtue. You want the best for the object of your love, even when that person is not worthy.
  11. This includes your graciousness in personal love in the face of disappointment, frustration and letdowns. Those things will happen when you are in love.
  12. Impersonal love is a love free of emotionalism. It is emotionalism which reacts to unpleasantness.
  13. Emotionalism negates the impartiality of the subject; you react and you are no longer impartial. It negates virtue so that impersonal love cannot be applied.
  14. Virtue love is expressed in an attitude. It includes impersonal love and graciousness. 1Cor. 13:4–8 can only be understood knowing impersonal love.
  15. The expression of personal love is often narrower than the expression of impersonal love. The object will lose their attractiveness.
  16. God's love toward us is expressed in His grace toward us. God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten son. The unbeliever is completely unworthy of God's love.
  17. Motivated by the recipients of the greatest love in history, God's divine impersonal love; we become the expression of God's eternal love.

18. This is why with agape in our souls, we are motivated to express the same attitude of graciousness and impersonal love toward the unworthy. That is our virtue and our integrity. This includes anyone with whom we are in conflict.
19. The motive behind God's grace is His attribute of love. We are to be imitators of God through the execution of the spiritual life; Jesus Christ is the pioneer of the use of virtue love. Our spiritual life is His spiritual live. Jesus Christ had to use impersonal love consistently in his 3 or 4 year ministry. He never lost virtue love.

1Cor. 4:21 What do you* desire? Shall I come to you* with a rod, or in love and in a spirit of gentleness?

1Corinthians 4:21 Impersonal Love Lesson #172 Sunday 1

June 5, 2005

Bobby explains why Berachah believes in freedom through military victory to visitors.

Paul can bring options for discipline that no one else possessed in the Church Age. He hints at it in v. 21, which he will bring to fruition in chapter 5. Paul will make an all-out attempt to correct their apostasy. Paul will never give up on them, as one should never give up on any believer. Any believer can begin advancing in the spiritual life, no matter where they are—as long as a believer is still alive.

Paul takes on the responsibility of a parent with recalcitrant children. Paul is the father of these Corinthians, insofar as he led them to Christ. He brought the message of salvation to these people. Paul may have to administer some extremely severe discipline. Paul has already sent Timothy (although Tim has not arrived as of the writing of this letter). Tim is to remind these Corinthians what Paul taught them originally. If the Corinthians respond to Timothy's review, then Paul can come in a spirit of love and gentleness. Αγάπη = love, mental attitude love. When this word comes up in Scripture, people come up with all these weird ideas as to what it means. Paul is acting as a parent here and he must discipline in love. An out of control, frustrated and angry parent who tries to discipline instills fear in the child; instead of instilling a sense of caring, of love, of belonging. A child should still feel a part of his family, even under discipline. Fear causes reaction in the person who is being disciplined; but what we want is a proper response to the punishment. The punishment should not cause a reaction but a response. The child needs to know, after the discipline, that they are still loved and still a part of the family; and that discipline is for their correction. A professor of Bobby's used to call it sloppy αγάπη.

Love

1. Love is a mental attitude; it is a system of thinking; it is not touching and not an emotion. The essence of love is in the mentality of the soul. It is not something physical, although that can be a response to love in the soul, under the right circumstances and at the right time.

2. True love always has an attitude of virtue; integrity in the soul. In God, you cannot separate love, justice and righteousness. All three must be taken together. On the cross, all three were manifested.
3. Virtue love
  - a. Virtue love is an attitude of benevolence. It is a concern for those you love. Love is not selfish. It is love directed toward someone without an ulterior motive.
  - b. Virtue is an attitude of kindness, which reflects forgiveness, civility and consideration.
  - c. Virtue is an attitude of persistence and graciousness; which provides endurance to be benevolent and kind despite the shortcomings of the object of our love.
  - d. That reflects virtue; the thinking of virtue love in the mentality of the soul. All of these are the virtues of ἀγαπή.
  - e. Virtue love include personal and impersonal love.
4. Recall that personal love is based upon the attractiveness and the merits of the object of your love. There is something in this person that you like; you like what they look like or how they behave or you recognize virtue within them. The Corinthians have no merit and no redeeming value as a whole. They are not lovable. There are a few; but for the most part, they are divisive, they suffer from power lust, they slander and malign.
5. Paul's primary attitude of virtue is to come to them in love.
  - a. Impersonal love is based not on the attractiveness or merit of the object, but on the virtue of the subject. I love you means something different impersonally and personally. The latter means the object is attractive in some way; in the former, there is integrity in the former. There is nothing attractive to God about us. The epitome of impersonal love is what God did for us. That is what Paul must bring to Corinth. Personal love has nowhere near the power of impersonal love.
  - b. The virtue of Paul means that Paul can utilize doctrine from the mentality of his soul to love impersonally. You must have doctrine in your soul in order to love impersonally.
  - c. Paul is able to apply an attitude of impersonal love, which is benevolent, kind and persistent, even though the Corinthians do not deserve any of this.
  - d. Impersonal love is a grace attitude; possessing and using impersonal love means you are grace oriented. History is filled with martyrs who hold nothing against those who martyr them. That is an attitude of impersonal love. The unbeliever can never equal that attitude. Paul cares for them and wants the best for them; that is impersonal love.
  - e. Paul is disappointed and frustrated by these people. It can apply doctrine and grace orientation; but he is still able to apply impersonal love. The Corinthians have let him down. In emotionalism, he could easily become angry and vindictive and he could easily have revenge motivation. People in authority cannot let frustration turn into mental attitude sins. Paul needs to be able to present doctrine and not to get emotional about these people. Emotionalism always weakens objective thought. Emotionalism would negate Paul's objectivity and impartiality of impersonal love, and that is needed for dealing with the believers in Corinth. If you don't have impartiality, you have lost leadership. You cannot accomplish your mission as a leader if you are not impartial. If you dislike some of those under you, you still must remain objective and impartial. Impersonal love is critical, even for personal love. You cannot love spouses and friends personally all of the time; they will make you frustrated and angry, sometimes more often than not. You must be able to apply impersonal love. Your personal relationships can be great, as long as you use impersonal love. If Paul comes to them in a spirit of love or agapê, then Paul will strengthen his ability to deal with these Corinthians.

6. The overall attitude in love is thinking with an relaxed mental attitude. This means you can relax in conflict. We have this capability, to be relaxed in conflict. Paul's attitude must remain benevolent, patient and gracious. But, this does not mean that Paul cannot be tough. When you spank your child, you still have these attitudes.
7. Agapê is an expression of grace and impersonal love. This has a wonderful application for all of us. God's love toward unbelievers is impersonal and grace is the expression of that love. Love is the basis for all that God does for us, and grace is the expression of that love. God began loving us impersonally; He is able to love us personally now because we are in Christ. However, before, we were completely unlovable, yet God was able to love us. We are born spiritually dead and without righteousness; which makes unlovable to God. We should treat the unlovely in love and in grace. Agapê in our souls is an imperative. The person with whom we are in the greatest conflict; how do we think about them? What is our thought pattern about them? Do we get out of fellowship when we think about them? Do we want to gossip about them and malign them? That is not impersonal love. How we think about the person that we cannot stand the most is the test of impersonal love. Sometimes, impersonal love simply requires separation. However, often, they are family members, we work with them; we find them in the same room with us—so we have to apply impersonal love.

Paul wants these people to be imitators of himself and imitators of God. Part of our imitation is grace orientation and the application of impersonal love. There was never a moment, never a day when Jesus did not have to face incredible conflict. Jesus Christ always applied impersonal love, day after day; and using the exact same resources as we have. He had the same spiritual life as we have today. Jesus Christ expressed grace and impersonal love to perfection; and we are able to express these attributes with those that we are in conflict with.

Summary

1. The doctrine which circulates in our stream of consciousness allows us to use agape.

2. I missed point 2.
3. Without the motivation of agapê love in our soul, there is no ability to apply doctrine to those with whom we are in conflict. Therefore, they make our lives miserable.
4. If we have agapê in our soul as motivation, we will approach conflict in the same way as we approach harmony with others.

Lesson #173 Sunday 2

June 5, 2005

Paul approaches the Corinthians with impersonal love and graciousness. People testing occurs in our life on a daily basis. This is pertinent to us, as this is a person test. This is how important the development of agapê in our soul. The Apostle must now apply these concepts to the recalcitrant bunch of spiritual derelicts in Corinth. Paul needs to arrive not angry, not frustrated and not out of control. If Paul must apply iron discipline, he could abuse his power; he might bring fear and loathing into the Corinthians. Paul does not want to do this; he wants to bring doctrine instead of discipline. Paul was able to turn someone over to Satan for discipline; that is an awesome power. Paul could do that. 1Tim. 1:20 Among these are Hyminius and Alexander that I have delivered over the Satan so that they are taught not to blaspheme. Paul will need to approach this congregation with an attitude of agapê. Paul will do this, not out of hate, but to teach and to protect the congregation. He must do this in love. This will be best for everyone. Paul cannot turn someone over the Satan and then laugh about it. You must be circumspect to administer discipline. He would prefer to come with a spirit of gentleness. He wants to come there as a teacher. No one wants to stand up in front of a congregation and discipline. Bob had to administer discipline at times. He was strong, it was done in no uncertain terms, it was clear that Bob cared about that person, even if he told them that they could not come back. Paul has to know that the congregation will recognize that, even if he must discipline some members of the church, that still this is for the betterment of the congregation as a whole. Very few pastors have the pleasure of standing in front of a congregation who want doctrine. They need to be certain that people can come into the congregation and learn doctrine. Divisiveness will not be tolerated.

Many of the Corinthians were in a position where they could be disciplined; Paul preferred not to do that, but was willing to. Agapê love is inherent to even severe discipline. The pastor-teacher may have to apply that principle.

Paul will have to address some aberrant sexual behavior and some other behavior which he must deal with. Paul's first and foremost objective is to inculcate with doctrine.

1Cor. 4:21 What do you* desire? Shall I come to you* with a rod, or in love and in a spirit of gentleness [or, kindness]?

Now on to chapter 5: There was a toleration of sexual behavior in Corinth which should not have been. They simply were overlooking a lot of things. We are bombarded today with hundreds of sexual aberrant behavior—child abuse, husbands and wives killing the other, porn stars running for political office, gay rights, rape, etc. The newspaper has several of these every single day. It almost carries a sense of normalcy to us. Some give into by saying, “Immorality does not have to be a quality of a leader in high office.” You can make moral public decisions while leading an immoral life; but, what you think is what you are. Your personal decisions cannot be separated from what you think. You cannot rationalize these things away. We have become inured to it; we ignore it, we are callous to it. A lack of norms and standards is called progressive by many. They are seen as stigmas on society. We condone many things in our society and have become inure to it. It becomes a law of society integrity or lack of integrity. Once you begin to go down, there is a downhill slide in all areas.

The Corinthian believers were experiencing the same thing. They lived in a city which was famous for pleasure and promiscuity. If you want to have a good time, you go to Corinth; that is what is happening. There were 1000 females who functioned as temple prostitutes in what were known as fertility rites, in order to please the gods. All of that was condoned in the name of worship (although the Corinthian church had not gone quite that far yet). Many of those in the Corinthian congregation came from this promiscuous background. What was happening now in the church were things that these Corinthians knew better. But this is the power of reversionism. The believer falls back into a previous way of thinking.

Eph. 4:17–18: This I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that you should not walk from now on as other nations walk, in the vanity of their mind, having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart. When a believer is ordered not to walk in this or that way, that means that they can behave this way. “You are to no longer walk in the futility of your mind.” The unbeliever refuses to believe in Jesus Christ. The pharaoh of Egypt saw great miracles of God and still refused to believe. Paul is telling these Ephesians, “Do not act like the unbeliever.” We are to have a completely different set of values and views. Doctrine is the discriminator here. The Corinthians are believers in Jesus Christ and they cannot lose their salvation; however, they are walking just like unbelievers. 1Tim. 4:1 is the believer under the influence of Satan’s cosmic system. We will find something so bad in the Corinthian church that is so far out of line that it will even offend the Greeks. And it was tolerated in the church and it is even a crime. Paul will not allow a sexual aberration which is a crime to continue in a church. This is so bad, that Paul must deal with this personal sin. Certain things just cannot be tolerated; and there are things which affect the corporate witness of the church to the outside world; and Paul must deal with this. However, Paul will deal with this in love. He will have the best interest of the person involved, as well as the congregation as a whole.

Berachah has a jail ministry; they bring the gospel to those in jails.

June 8, 2005

Thomas Sowell article "Looking Back." Some eras we will look back at with utter disbelief. What will we think of the hoo hah about the terrorists today. German soldiers out of uniform were uniformly lined up and executed by American soldiers in WWII. There are even films of this shown on the history channel. There is not a single person we can name in Iraq as a hero because the media will not report anything like that. If 100 terrorists are killed in battle, and ten American soldiers die, the latter will be the only thing carried as a news headline. People will look back years from now and wonder how we could allow nuclear weapons to be developed in countries which will then sell them to terrorists who will attack us. We have the means to stop this, but we do not.

Outline of Chapter 5

Paul condemns sexual immorality v. 1

He reprimands the church at Corinth for their arrogance in not dealing with the problem. Vv. 2–5

Leaven. Vv. 6–8

Instructions given to church. Vv. 9–13

Believers were trying to force unknown standards upon unbelievers who did not understand those Biblical standards. This is no help to the unbeliever, who needs the gospel. Christians drive unbelievers away from the gospel by setting norms and standard for them to follow.

Chapters 1–4 have given us some general problems in the Corinthian church; now, Paul will get very specific. The sin he will deal with has been ignored and maybe even condoned by them. They could have rationalized and said, "This is the way Corinth is." There was a worship of some gods in Corinth related to erotica. Goddess of love was a center of the temple activity. The temple was on a prominent building on a hill overlooking Corinth. There were over 1000 female prostitutes. The Corinthians simply saw them as women who took the place of Aphrodite. Adonas is one son and Eros was another son. The women substituted themselves for the goddess Aphrodite. This could be a counterfeit for Christ's substitution for us on the cross. There were literally hundreds of gods who all represented something. Greek god Mars (also known as Hermes in Rome). Same stories for both, but a different origin. Glorification and appeasement of the goddess Aphrodite. The festival was called the Aphrodisiac. They did this for prosperity, and Corinth was a booming city. Sexual debauchery was the thing one could find in Corinth. It was an isthmus where the goods were carried over land for a short distance. This was the background for many of the believers who were in Corinth.

Now what was going on was something which even surprised the Gentiles. The Greeks in Corinth were appalled by what went on in the church. An immature believer can only fall back on what he has known in the past, if he does not advance spiritually. The reversionist, no matter what, never loses his salvation. He does come under the influence of the cosmic system and the doctrine of demons.

Now, is Paul legalistic. Does this sin shock him? The sins in Corinth had been going on for a long time, even before Corinth. So why does Paul single out this particular sin. However, this does not mean that all sex is sin. There can be no compromise within these standards. Paul is making sure the Corinthians understand this. They are very relativistic. Bobby is not talking about legalism and laying down a bunch of rules for them to follow. Taboos are pseudo-spirituality systems. Drinking is not wrong; that is a taboo. Problems if you are underage or an alcoholic. Rampant relativism on one side and antinomianism on the other side. A parent can regular the behavior of a child; and a parent can have taboos. If a child disobeys the parent, then it is a sin and no longer a taboo or standard set by the parent.

People in the Christian world set up taboos because they want to dominate; they want to have power over other believers.

Old Sin Nature

Jer. 17:9 the old sin nature is desperately sick.

We are free of sin because Christ paid the penalty, but not of the sin nature.

The sin nature is the source of temptation; our volition is the source of sin.

Bobby does the same thing a lot as a golfer; that is like a weakness of the old sin nature.

Antinomianism is self-gratification leading to licentiousness. Pretty standard with regards to ego-centric arrogance. Since the believer can choose to succumb to any temptation and not rebound, no one should be surprised when a believer is guilty of great immorality or some crime. Believers are perverted; they can be criminals. They can do this because they succumb to the old sin nature. God still provides for recovery no matter what you do. A spiritual life can curb the old sin nature.

Guilt can keep you from recovering and there is no guilt like that produced by sexual immorality. There is a lot of this, "You must repent of these sins." Which means they want us to feel badly and to promise not to do that sin again. "Repent" and then they put a guilt trip on you. A change of mind about succumbing to future temptation does not include guilt. You do not need to feel guilty in order to recover.

There is always a price to pay when you violate God's standards. Part will be the law of volitional responsibility and part will be divine correction. There are always repercussions in the life of the believer. It never means the loss of salvation. It is normal to wonder how can God accept us in our awful state.

As a member of a family, no matter what we do, we do not lose this family relationship. There is nothing that they can do which will change the gene pool. As a child of God, we are part of the divine gene pool. God cannot kick us out of the family. We are sealed by the Holy Spirit; we are in union with Jesus Christ. Eph. 1:13–14. Rom. 8:38–39. Bobby had an argument in seminary and he was backing it up in Scripture. The professor held out that God and we could remove ourselves from union with Christ. However, God is immutable, and He has given us something which never changes. To do so would violate his own character. If anyone could get out of God's standards, it would be the Corinthians. However, there is the rod of divine discipline and self-induced misery; those are the repercussions. This is what the Corinthians have at this point.

A general statement: it is reported that there is immorality among you, and immorality that is not even reported among the Greeks. It is a case of incest, a revolting sin from the trend of antinomianism. There is no sin which a believer cannot commit. Euphemism for sexual relationship with his mother. The Corinthians were all aware of what was going on. Some did not like it; some tolerated it, and some thought it was okay—an example of great grace. You will not lose your salvation, but there is this great problem of reversionism which must be overcome.

1Cor. 5:1 On the whole it is reported that there is fornication among you, and such fornication as is not even named among the nations, so as one to have his father's wife.

1Corinthians 5:1

Lesson #175 Thursday

June 9, 2005

The sin nature has an area of weakness and an area of strength; the sin nature is what tempts us to sin, although it is not the cause (our volition is the cause). Usually springs from a lust pattern, whether it is legalism or antinomianism. This believer has committed a disgusting sin, and there is no sin that a believer cannot commit. There might be sins that you would never think of committing, but someone is around who could. The sin of incest has possibly never tempted any of us, but this is a sin this believer has committed. Paul may have singled out this sin for that reason, even though it is not the worst sin. Everyone thinks that sexual sins are the worst and many are involved in it (a prevalent area of weakness). Prov. 6:16–19 lists the worst sins.

Sometimes believers even commit worse sins than unbelievers, and why is that true? The believer in Jesus Christ with any knowledge of doctrine knows that he is eternally secure, that once saved is always saved; and he understands rebound, and he might feel liberated and is more likely to follow the trend of his sin nature. Once you go down that path, it becomes more and more addictive. The unbeliever sometimes just won't go that far simply because they are concerned about their behavior. This is a distortion of grace on the believer's part. Begins with the adverb ὄλος = most assuredly, incontrovertibly. Then we have the indicative mood of ακουω = to hear. Paul is being informed here; he is not simply hearing something. This was not just some rumor that he was hearing. There was no question about what he heard about. Ενημεμεν = among you. This localizes the problem. Progressive present; it signifies some action in progress or in a state of persistence. This report is being repeated persistently. Paul hears this report several times, and it is spreading. It was not confined to Corinth; and it had become even an object of discussion among other churches and among unbelievers in Corinth. All it takes is one person traveling elsewhere to pass this along. This bothers Paul considerably, as there have been rumors passed around about him. This had become an unsettling factor to Paul; this was unheard of even among the Gentiles. The churches were filled with immature believers and the first thing that they hear about is this immorality. Many unbelievers rationalize this by saying, "Well, that person cannot be a believer." The person involved is a believer in the middle of the church, as Paul will clearly state. This really bothers the legalist, which can surface even among antinomian. Legalists want to gossip and condemn for such immorality. Some of these legalists become crusaders and they sometimes go on a witch-hunt and they go into areas where they have no business going. They start getting involved with every other aspect of one another's lives. Disenchanted, disappointed and depressed. Paul let's them know that this cannot continue to go on. This must also be handled correctly. The leadership must step forward and do the right thing. That is the responsibility of the leadership in any church. The entire church is involved when this sort of thing happens. The problem is, there is no mature leadership in Corinth. Πορνεία = immorality, illicit sexual activity. In classical Greek, this referred to prostitution. The Greeks in Corinth were very familiar with this term. Prostitution was a boom business in Corinth. That was not a big deal to them; however, Paul uses this term in a more general way to mean more than simply prostitution. He used it to refer to several types of illicit sexual activity. The Greeks in Corinth had no problem with sexual immorality; and illicit sexual behavior was a part of their religious modus operandi. Having sex with a temple prostitute was paying homage to Aphrodite, in a substitutionary way. Paul will later zero in on the actual sin. Paul, in no uncertain terms, would condemn the practice. Paul sees it as a crime as well as a horrible sin.

Paul, by the way, is not shocked by this sin; but there will always be sins which shock us. Our sin natures are active every minute of every day and our lust patterns are always working. As you move in on maturity, the sin nature will have less and less control over you.

Position of Weakness

1. A position of weakness is anything short of divine viewpoint.
2. Weakness is characterized by egocentric arrogance.
3. The arrogance begins when the believer remains out of fellowship and fails to utilize rebound.
4. When he remains out of fellowship, with amazing speed, egocentric arrogance becomes pervasive in his life. The more weight you have under the sand, the more it pulls you down.
5. Ego-centric sins lead you into a complex of sin, which leads you further into your areas of weakness.
6. In a very interesting irony, you then strengthen your position of weakness.
7. The arrogant believer places himself in a position of weakness by over estimating his strength and by being blind to his own faults.

8. The arrogant reversionist lives in a house of cards built on illusions of self-importance and false immunity from repercussions. The arrogant believer thinks he is bulletproof.
9. When repercussions happen, as they will inevitably do, this believer in reversionism will blame others rather than take the responsibility himself.
10. That person lives in a false reality; from this position of weakness, you make bad decisions. This person lives in a false reality, blind to his own weaknesses. Anything can happen and usually does.
11. Missed a point somewhere in here.
12. Such a believer becomes his own worst enemy.
  - a. He compounds poor decisions and dedicates himself to a life of self-induced misery and divine discipline.
  - b. The more bad decisions that he makes, the weaker he becomes.
  - c. Stress builds in his soul to the breaking point.
  - d. Such a believer abandons himself to hedonism
  - e. In disgust with himself, he now becomes a reformed rake. The rake's progress is a 6 panel (in the Stone palace).
  - f. Not only does he impose legalistic standards, but the stress can even lead to a believer committing suicide. We have a lot of young people who commit suicide; but this also occurs among older believers. A Greek professor there committed suicide; and another was asked to leave because of his homosexual behavior. No one should every be shocked by what a believer can do.
13. I'm unhappy; it must be someone else's fault
14. He becomes weak from failure to rebound and has no divine viewpoint; human viewpoint creeps in; more and more bad decisions and pretty soon, he is completely out of control. The trends of the sin nature get indulged one way or the other. He ignored God's grace plan. He refused to live in the sphere of virtue and humility.
15. There is a solution; a genuinely humble person sees his weakness and depends on a strength greater than his own. We must depend upon a strength which is greater than our own.
  - a. When out of line, the believer rebounds and he latches onto the truth in God's Word.
  - b. Only divine viewpoint thinking can defeat the corrupting force of arrogance and weakness. You always need a strength greater than yourself
  - c. Divine viewpoint and humility is thinking and acting from a position of strength. If you can do that, you can parlay weakness into strength. We are all weak; we are not all strong, but we can be.
  - d. A believer operating from a position of strength builds his life on the principle of virtue first and doctrine frist. The Corinthians indulged their old sin natures.
16. The position of weakness always comes from some area of weakness.

17. In conclusion, humility from grace orientation is the mark of the mature believer in a position of strength.

This just gives us an idea as to how the Corinthians got there.

His weakness is when he has no power and he then depends upon the Lord for strength. Paul will next try to get to the root of the problem. Rebound corrects all sins.

1Cor. 5:1 On the whole it is reported that there is fornication among you, and such fornication as is not even named among the nations, so as one to have his father's wife.

1Corinthians 5:1

Lesson #176 Sunday 1

June 12, 2005

πορνεία = sexually immoral behavior. Paul uses this first to refer to general sexual immorality; and then later to a specific immoral act. This verse speaks of a particular believer who is mired in this sin. Paul killed Christians that he had persecuted. Paul was not being self righteous; he just had to deal with this sin. The believer in this situation was making very poor decisions from a position of weakness. A position of weakness is any place from which poor spiritual decisions are made. Ego-centric arrogance is often a place from which these sins begin. Arrogance and other mental attitude sins which lead to a host of other sins. Residing in a complex of sins pulls the reversionist deeper and deeper into evil. The source of this behavior becomes understandable, although not justified. Such a believer becomes his own worse enemy. Our volition which responds to the lust pattern within us is generally our worst enemy. Usually, we go to our preferred trend. This believer is assuring himself of a life of misery and divine discipline. The weaker he becomes, the more degrading his lifestyle. Self righteousness can lead one to a downward spiral of reversion; for some, this can lead to abortion clinic bombing. The legalistic person attempts to apply impossible legalistic standards to all of those around him. He is just too good for the world around him and he attempts to bring everyone else into this place. Such stress can bring a believer to a point of suicide. The Greek professor that Bobby had in seminary, who had even written a textbook for Harvard. Nothing to fall back on apart from your own lust patterns. People become a pathetic product of their lust pattern and they are able to justify almost anything that they do; they openly defy all standards of Scripture and refuse to live in the realm of virtue and humility. They know no boundaries. Arrogance takes over their soul and their life. The build-up of arrogance makes their own authority the lusts of their own soul. A genuinely humble person can recognize being in a position of weakness; when we recognize that we are in it, we recognize the direction in which we are going. We use rebound. This is the believer who latches onto the truth of God's Word. The believer with humility, who continues to use rebound and doctrine in his soul, uses a strength, which is far greater than his own strength. Divine viewpoint and humility act from a position of strength and counter the position of weakness. Doctrine first and virtue first. Any person can commit the most innocuous to the most heinous of sins; arrogance is always the starting point. That is the root of the problem. There are billions of sins which Paul can correct; but that is not his true purpose here. Rebound and taking in doctrine corrects any sin. The real problem is that immorality is a sign of rejection of the plan of God.

Sexual Sins are Tied Directly to Arrogance

We will be studying a form of immorality, and arrogance is the basis for any sin.

1. Sexual immorality is preoccupation with self which disregards all others; it does not matter what it does to the partner, as long as you are gratified.
2. 2Tim. 3:2 calls these people lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God. There is nothing wrong with pleasure in its correct context.
3. When you put you pleasure before God, your own pleasure comes before God's will and mandates.
4. This is the epitome of arrogance. It is not just about sexual sins, but it is the epitome of arrogance.
5. Sexual arrogance supercedes love for God; self-gratification above all.
6. Superceding the love of God with pleasure is the height of arrogance.
7. It is a position not just of weakness but of spiritual disability. You are a spiritual paraplegic.
8. Arrogance, not sexual immorality, is the basis for all problems of believers. In some churches, you will hear sexual immorality as the basis of all problems or the roots of all problems. A sin is a sin is a sin. Sexual immorality is just one sin. However, what lies below that is arrogance. The depts of degradation that a believer can fall into.

1Cor. 5:1 On the whole it is reported that there is fornication among you, and such fornication as is not even named among the nations, so as one to have his father's wife.

1Corinthians 5:1–2

Lesson #177 Sunday 2

June 12, 2005

The more you give in to your sin nature, the more your lust pattern becomes entrenched in your soul; the more you give into it; the more you sin.

The problems of the Corinthian church were just as much related to those who were arrogant and reacting to the sexual sins as the sexual sins themselves. A legalist prefers to reform us from the outside in. However, true epistemological rehabilitation is changing from the inside out.

Victorian England quote, "Do what you want; just don't scare the horses."

God the Holy Spirit guided Paul to choose these words. This is so that we can understand here what God has for us. Everyone wants to know exactly what the Bible says. Sometimes, there are difficulties with even the word that is there. There are disputes over this and that word. 5000 variants in the New Testament; of all those variants, not one of them affect the meaning of Scripture. We don't have the original autographs. When the churches received these manuscripts, they began to make a copy of it. There were mistakes, sometimes of a letter here or there. These manuscripts were copied hundreds of times. These thousands of copies never changed the meaning. That is the stewardship of God and His Word.

ὅστις is a qualitative relative pronoun. This re-emphasizes this horrible sin. At this point, he is addressing this one particular sin. The next phrase brings out the abhorrent quality of the sin. This is a sin that not even unbelievers will touch. And these are unbelievers who are involved in the temple of Aphrodite. They are religious insofar as they go to religious prostitutes. Gentiles who frequent these temples to cohabit with prostitutes don't even get involved in sins like this. This is regarded as a sin which is even too much for Gentiles. Cicero confirms this, saying there was once occurrence of this sort of sin.

We are dealing with a type of incest. Commentaries say that this is a man married or having sexual relations with a person's step mother. Now, you are less offended; at least it is not his natural mother. Mosaic Law Lev. 18:6–8: None of you shall approach to any who are near of kin to him, to uncover their nakedness. I am Jehovah. You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father or the nakedness of your mother. She is your mother; you shall not uncover her nakedness. You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father's wife. It is your father's nakedness. Here we have the actual mother of the offender in v. 7; the father's wife is a different category (this could be a second wife, concubine, or a wife who married after the death of the first). V. 6 just gives us a general category, and the verses up until v. 16 are the different types. Lev. 18:9–16: You shall not uncover the nakedness of your sister, the daughter of your father or the daughter of your mother, born at home or born away. Their nakedness you shall not uncover. The nakedness of your son's daughter, or of your daughter's daughter, you shall not uncover their nakedness. For theirs is your own nakedness. You shall not uncover the nakedness of the daughter of your father's wife, begotten of your father. She is your sister. You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father's sister. She is your father's near kinswoman. You shall not uncover the nakedness of your mother's sister. For she is your mother's near kinswoman. You shall not uncover the nakedness of your father's brother. You shall not approach his wife. She is your aunt. You shall not uncover the nakedness of your daughter-in-law. She is your son's wife. You shall not uncover her nakedness. You shall not uncover the nakedness of your brother's wife. It is your brother's nakedness. There are the two categories of mothers. However, it is possible that the Corinthians excused this because it was not his natural mother. However, Scripturally, this is a case of incest. The Greeks way of life is adultery; it was part of their religion. Jewish and Roman law both forbid incest. This was a sin before God, a violation of divine establishment and will be treated as such.

1Cor. 5:1 On the whole it is reported that there is fornication among you, and such fornication as is not even named among the nations, so as one to have his father's wife.

In v. 2, we have the emphatic personal pronoun and the copulative καί. It is among you that this has taken place. The church had become notorious and poisonous to others. And, most importantly, they had become arrogant as a result of this.

What does all this mean? What will we do about it? It is their arrogant thinking which will allow them to accept this. Mainline churches today are tolerating all kinds of sexual sins today. What comes to mind today is homosexuals. Some homosexuals are even being ordained. They were thinking then, "Our progressive thinking has gone beyond these antiquated Biblical norms. We are much more in tune with today's world." There is only one way to deal with this, and that is what this chapter is all about.

These Corinthians were even tolerant enough to overlook a sin that even unbelievers would not tolerate. Their priority was arrogant power lust. When Paul blasts them, their humility should have kicked in first. They should have recognized their spiritual failure and focused on divine viewpoint solutions: rebound and then epistemological rehabilitation. What we study in Corinth also occurs here at this time in our day. These things even happen in Berachah. We have the means to overcome it or to stay away from it.

1Cor. 5:2 And you are arrogant, and have not rather mourned, so that he who has done this deed may be taken from your midst.

1Corinthians 5:1

Lesson #178 Wednesday

June 15, 2005

Paul calls this sin nonexistent among the Gentiles (referring to unbelievers). Even these unbelievers who go to the heathen temple to worship with prostitutes find this particular sin disgusting. Paul sees this act not just as a sin, but as a crime, which violates Jewish and Roman law. He pulls Lev. 18:8 out here, as marked below. In this general area of Leviticus, we have categories of incest. This could refer to a step-mother and that this is, in fact, an incestuous relationship. Some may have used the excuse that it is not incest if they are not related. There is no excuse to tolerate this activity as mere fornication. Greeks would have no problem with simple fornication; but they would with this.

Privacy is generally the way to deal with personal sins. There is no excuse to tolerate the activity which is going on; Paul is attempting to jolt the believers in the Corinth church. Intercourse between a step mom and a step son is categorically placed with incest between a birth mother and son. The man is a pervert and a criminal and that is a problem and an exception when it comes to involvement of the church. This is not everyone's business; it should be handled by the leadership of the church. The real problem is the rearing of the ugly head of arrogance. That is what is going on in the church and this is a manifestation of it. Sexual immorality is simply a display of egocentric arrogance. Sexual immorality is a preoccupation with self which disregards every factor of virtue or even one's partner or anyone else in the circle of involvement. All of this is irrelevant to personal gratification. The damage to others is not a consideration to the egocentric arrogant person. It is all about the egocentric person. As long as he indulges his lascivious trends so that nothing else matters, that is all the arrogant person wants.

Insidious evil of egocentric arrogance. Lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God; this is a person who places his own pleasure before God. All is not lost when egocentric arrogance rules your life. It is true that the deeper you fall into this well, the harder it is to get out. Lust patterns become infused in your thinking. There is such a thing as a sexual addiction (which does not excuse anyone). All addictions begin with volition; as you get deeper and deeper into it, your volition is less and less usable. You get into addiction via your volition and you get out of it with your volition. Egocentric arrogance places your spiritual life second. Mental attitude sins and sins of the tongue. The more that you commit these sins, the more that you commit them and the more that you fall into them. Your guard is down (or nonexistent). A spiritual life is what gives us confidence to overcome the sins in our life. Our spiritual life changes our thinking and changes our modus operandi.

Changing Your Thinking and Changing Your Modus Operandi

1. How you think is how you will act, no matter how you try to cover it up.
2. A change in activities is not the forerunner of a change of thinking.
3. Many Christians attempt to change how they act instead of how they think. That is a standard malady of Christianity today. A change of thinking is the true mode of all other change in life.
4. Superficial change is the malady of legalism.
5. A believer becomes self righteous because by human means and human power, he changes his outside to the world. No grace orientation; no humility. "I've made these changes and I am pretty great." Self righteousness kicks in. This self righteous arrogant person presents himself as the model for spiritual rehabilitation. The legalist presents himself as the model of Christian behavior.
6. Now he becomes the model for changed lives, and he gets into the business of others.
7. He becomes the arbiter of change in other people's lives.
8. He superimposes his values on to other believers in order to straighten them out. He comes along side of you teaching you the trade of spiritual living. You grow not because some superficial legalistic nosey type involves themselves in your life.
9. This is at best superficial Christianity.
10. Only thinking from doctrine in your soul elicits a genuine change of modus operandi. The only change that you will ever make which is not temporary is from the inside out.

The Corinthians allow this to go on and they have run their pastor out of town.

1Cor. 5:1 On the whole it is reported that there is fornication among you, and such fornication as is not even named among the nations, so as one to have his father's wife.

Paul deals with the real problem now—you have become arrogant. Paul knows exactly what the problem is. Και ὑμεῖς = and you. "Right in the middle of you all, this is happening." This is what the key is: you have become arrogant. It is arrogant thinking which allowed this to continue. They should have recognized their failure and begun to change, beginning with rebound and then epistemological rehabilitation. Humility feeds the failure and acknowledges the sin. Rebound, but don't just stop there. Without the spiritual advance, you can rebound all you want, but you will never solve the problem. Only a change in thinking will bring a change in modus operandi. These people could not listen to Paul's teaching or bow to his authority.

"We're a great church; we are a broadminded church." They represent those who cannot be found to be wrong; a common malady. This blows their human self esteem. It blows their self image to be found wrong. This is pure egocentric arrogance. Any person with a sin nature has egocentric arrogance lurking in the depths of his soul. "We are not wrong and no one can tell us any different." Justification and defensiveness are never characteristics of humility.

Justification and Defensiveness

1. Some of us are very slick and good at this. If you try to justify yourself in the face of failure or when you get caught in failure.
2. You will learn nothing from your failure.
3. There will be no correction or solutions, not even a recognition of the problem.
4. There will only be future justification and defensiveness when you fail.
5. What are you doing when you do this? You are only exonerating yourself from a problem which is still a problem. You still have the problem. You are saying that you don't have a problem, but you do.
6. Justification and defensiveness is a problem which short-circuits the solution.
7. Genuine humility build from the advance to spiritual maturity causes you to look at yourself objectively without justification or defensiveness. This is how the world thinks: don't take responsibility for your actions; justify your actions.
8. When you take responsibility for your actions, that is when you learn.
9. Do not react with excuses and arguments. Bobby has seen tremendously inventive excuses, which is simply self-justification. A murderer can justify himself. We also give them the opportunity to do so. We do this as a society, so no big wonder that we do this individually.
10. When you see yourself in the light of divine objectivity, you do not offer alibis before the Lord. When you foul us, you sin, you commit a crime, there are no alibis. You can say, "There's a good reason for me doing this." There is no alibi in the supreme court of heaven.
11. Humility, objectivity—this is the way to approach a mistake. Another wrong approach is belligerence. "Ok, I did it; what are you going to do about it?"
12. The key is applying doctrine to yourself and your situation. Any situation which is tailor made for self-justification, look at this objectively with the application of doctrine.
13. What are we doing when we do this? We are learning to use the problem solving devices. That is the opposite of self-justification.
14. When you learn to use the problem solving devices instead of justifying yourself, that is a manifestation of spiritual maturity. It is a lot of work to justify yourself. Some people will spend a great deal of time justifying themselves. We justify ourselves because we are so worried about what someone thinks about us.

1Cor. 5:2 And you are arrogant, and have not rather mourned, so that he who has done this deed may be taken from your midst.

1Corinthians 5:2

Lesson #179 Thursday

June 16, 2005

Radio Music Theater

V. 1 tells us that there is a perverted sexual sin in progress. Paul does not rail on and on against this sin; no legalistic tones about the horror of it all. But Paul says, “And you have become arrogant and you have not mourned instead.”

We often think of this happening in a vacuum, but it doesn't. As long as the ego-centric person has his own pleasure, injury to others is of no concern. The sins of this man never stand alone. Self-justification is heavily involved here with this man and the Corinthians.

Self-Justification

1. Self-justification is failure to take responsibility for one's own sins and bad decisions made from a position of weakness.
2. Self-justification is an emotional reaction.
3. It is a reaction of anger and defensiveness upon discovery by someone else of our failures, deficiencies, etc.
4. The person who is discovered is very threatened by being found wrong. S-j is the solution to being found wrong.
5. Arrogant people have to be right and they must justify their position when they are wrong, in order to keep equilibrium in their life. They cannot keep an equal keel in their spiritual life. S-j is a malady which is in all of us.
6. People like this are hard to live with and hard to deal with. They suck energy out of you in order to justify themselves. They do not want you to see through the problems.
7. The arrogant s-j sets himself up as an icon. This is iconoclastic arrogance. They fail to take responsibility for their own actions.
8. Inevitably, someone is going to challenge that icon status. They are either jealous or they want to climb up on the pedestal instead of you. They are attempting to expose the feet of clay of the icon. They do not want their feet of clay to be seen. You handle mud on your feet like anything else—rebound and move on. S-j means your focus is wrong. You are overly concerned about how others see you.
9. When the icon gets challenged, how is the icon challenge defended? You transfer the blame to someone else. It is always someone else's fault.
10. The s-j cannot be wrong, or it destroys their self image. You get your self image from spiritual self esteem, not from human self esteem. This is intolerable for the ego-centric person to be wrong.
11. Failure that cannot be justified to another person, then love or friendship turns to hatred, malice, and revenge. If you cannot justify yourself, then you hate the person, and you want to retaliate. They expose your dirty laundry. All the s-j does not seem to wash it.

Paul tells these Corinthians that they have become faction leaders and self-justifying. They are arrogant people with no regard to their impact on others. They don't care if they divide a church, as long as they get what they want. Arrogance always justifies its own self-centeredness. Without a spiritual life, the ways of s-j are numerous and varied. They always occur when we are arrogant. Arrogance always justifies itself. No one is treated as we want to be treated or loved as we want to be loved. Combine that with preoccupation with self, that is a recipe for volatility and self justification.

Justification and Defensiveness

1. This are not characteristics of humility.
  - a. If you try to justify yourself in the face of failure or you are caught in failure, you have no humility
  - b. When you justify yourself, you learn nothing from your failure. You do not rebound and keep moving; you just attempt to justify it. You won't even recognize the problem; you are too busy justifying it.
  - c. There is on future failure and self-justification; and it is a vicious cycle.
  - d. All we are doing is exonerating ourself from a problem which remains.
  - e. This is a problem which always short-circuits your spiritual life.
  - f. Genuine humility built from enforced humility of authority orientation causes us to look are ourselves objectively from divine viewpoint, without defensiveness and self-justification. You cannot live a spiritual life if you are focused on justifying all that you do.
  - g. When we are able to act without justification or defensiveness, that is when we learn. Stop looking at ourself and see ourselves in the light of divine viewpoint. It takes a lot of energy to spend your life justifying yourself. When you turn your failures over to God, you do not have to work so hard to justify yourself to everyone else.
  - h. When you learn, you accept the divine solution. You don't mask problems with your own alibis. When you alibi, you only mask your own problems. You do not need to self-justify when you have true humility.
  - i. That is the key to application of doctrine.
  - j. This is how we learn to use the problem solving devices. S-j is exactly opposite of problem solving devices, or applying doctrine to our lives. You attempt to solve your problems by looking the other way.
  - k. When we learn to use problem solving devices, that is a manifestation of spiritual maturity; seeing ourselves from divine viewpoint and applying that divine viewpoint.

This is what the Corinthians should have done; they becme arrogant and they should have mourned instead. Πενθεω = to mourn. A gnostic aorist; timeless. This expressed timelessness; a fact is regarded as axiomatic, as if it were occurring. This is a normal inclination. The normal inclination is to mourn for this guy.

The woman is never mentioned; it is possible that the woman was not a believer and not a member of their congregation.

With the verb, we have ουχ = no, not. What they should have done, they did not do. It was axiomatic that they should have mourned, but they did not. Paul did not mean they should mourn for the loss of this man's salvation; that can never happen. They are to mourn for this person's spiritual failure, as well as their own. Also, he must be removed from the congregation; and he must be excommunicated, which is like a death in the family.

A general sin does not carry the same problems as associating this sin with a person. Lack of privacy shows general sins of the tongue. Discussions by phone. Paul names no names. He wants to make a point without making it personal. Those who do not know and do not need to know would just compound the problem. Blissfully, these problems would be unknown to some. Not everyone needs to know every other person's business. No one has a right to castigate anyone. The Lord does a great job of that. Paul, who represents the Lord. This is here for us to know how to handle such a problem. Paul is giving us a precedent for handling difficult problems in the church. The old hypocritical words, "I would never do that." Paul is guarding the principle of privacy by not naming names. Something needs to be done; but not everyone needs to know everything that is going on. The leadership of a church must always be mindful of privacy.

Sins of the tongue are like a wildfire; they burn everything in their path; they singe the entire church. This is not what is needed at this particular time. The leadership must be very careful about privacy.

The person here has not just committed a sin, but he has committed a crime. Criminal actions should not be sheltered by the church; ever. We do not shelter criminal activities in the church. Paul is not mourning for the crime or for the criminal. The mourning is for personal, spiritual failure. It is the neglect and failure of the church for not making the proper application. They should be in mourning because of the arrogance all around. The criminal has to be cut out; he must be removed. Church leadership failed to comprehend this and therefore, they have not followed up. They are too busy with their infighting. They are justifying themselves in arrogance. How else can they justify this?

This sin could be justified; a step mom and step son; there are much worse things. A bleeding hear: why is there not more compassion for this kind of a person? Shouldn't he be reprimanded and given a second chance? Of course, but not inside the church. A 2nd and 3rd chance is fine. Separation is the issue. This is for a good reason. Society as a whole has the right to judge those who are acceptable and unacceptable. Put them away or don't put them away. Paul is laying a foundation for excommunication within a church. It has happened in Berachah and it will happen again.

Sin does not mean excommunication. This is not finding out about someone and throwing them out. Criminality certainly means excommunication. Serious crime cannot be condoned; you cannot simply overlook crime. You do not wipe criminality out because you have forgiven the person. There are still repercussions for the act. You can forgive the person; you should. Sometimes, the criminal system needs to handle the repercussions. The punishment must always fit the crime. Forgiveness should never supercede justice meted out for the criminal act. Forgiveness is part of our recovery; not theirs. A jury panel where a Christian wants to go light on someone simply because he is forgiving that person. Here, the punishment will be the sin unto death. There is no long time period which passes. Paul will protect society as a whole. Paul will violate the principle of privacy in order to make the future of this church obvious. The rest of the people must straighten up their act.

This is the first warning to the Corinthians. This man will be turned over to Satan. This man is going to be destroyed and it will not be pleasant. It is not just this sin but about the reversionism of the entire church. These people must see the consequences of their reversionism. People take notice and they should. If you know a person and what they are doing, God will discipline them as an example to us. We should be mourning. Today, Christianity constantly discredits the Lord Jesus Christ. Burning something down or killing someone in the name of Jesus Christ. This is an embarrassment. There will be pain and suffering for this sort of person. There will be second looks from those in the Corinthian church, and it should. You can never get away with thumbing your nose at Jesus Christ and the spiritual life that He has given us. Make them realize what is going on here.

1Cor. 5:2 And you are arrogant, and have not rather mourned, so that he who has done this deed may be taken from your midst.

1Corinthians 5:2

Lesson #180 Sunday 1

June 19, 2005

Vance is on vacation; Gla Posh is on the piano.

The Corinthians have disgusted the Greek unbelievers of Corinth for their toleration of the crime and sin of incest. It is a crime and a sexual perversion. Instead of being arrogant, they should have mourned and removed this person from the congregation.

Usually, mourning is for those who have died. Unusual for Paul to say this. The believer who was committing this sin could not lose his salvation; this is hard for some to swallow, that a person could do this kind of thing and still be taken into heaven by God. He is acceptable to God because of Jesus Christ, not because of any good thing he has done. There are 3 aspects of carnal death. Temporal death, which is being out of fellowship and lacking Holy Spirit control. He is in cosmic death, as he has become involved with Satan's cosmic system, including all manner of evil, and incest is probably just the tip of the iceberg. Fragmented death, which is where the believer goes to pieces in moral or immoral degeneracy. This Corinthian's fragmented death was incest, which is something that even the Corinthians could not get into. These are all parts of the descending spiral of reversionism that this guy is in. They should be mourning this man, as it is a death in the family. Paul is going to require them to excommunicate this man. Neglect and failure of the church and its leadership in this regard (and these are the various factions who think they had everything figured out). True leadership requires moral courage and doctrine. The Corinthians lacked doctrine, they lacked true leadership, they lacked moral courage. Paul will set down some critical principles of excommunication.

Principles of Excommunication

Greatly misused in the history of the church.

1. Excommunication never removes anyone from the body of Christ. Neither man nor God can take us from being in Christ. God Himself cannot even remove us from being in Christ. No matter what we do, we are eternally secure.
2. Some churches believe that they can consign someone to a hell-like existence.
3. What are circumstances in which the believer can be excommunicated, which is removal from the congregation of the local church.
4. No one is excommunicated because of simple carnality; that is what rebound is for. Everyone would have to leave based upon carnality. We are all carnal from time to time.
5. For what reasons can a believer be excommunicated from a local church:
  - a. For a complex of sins which disrupts and distracts others from taking in doctrine. This is the church's mission, and if this mission is disrupted, then one might be excommunicated.
  - b. For being a busy-body legalist who invades the lives of other people; who distracts others from learning doctrine and living the spiritual life.
  - c. Malicious vilification, gossip, slander and maligning, which attempts to destroy reputations or to harm in some other way. Sins of the tongue can act like a wildfire and spread through the church.
  - d. Concentrated malfeasance. Public problems. Bitterness, jealousy, vindictiveness, implacability, hatred, habitual sins of the arrogance complex. Lots of people hate, vilify, gossip, etc.; therefore, excommunication must be carefully considered. If it is a distraction, that is what is the key.
  - e. For factionalism which divides the church. Divisive cliques.
  - f. Criminality, which is what we have here.
    - i. A church can never afford to sweep serious criminal activity under the rug. Some churches have a tendency to do that where there are serious sexual sins involved.
    - ii. This is not for misdemeanors or traffic tickets, etc. These things do not affect the growth of the church.
    - iii. Serious crime cannot be condoned in the name of Christian tolerance or impersonal love. Separation is more important here than impersonal love (although impersonal love is used in the process of excommunication). You never let impersonal love go. You still treat the person in impersonal love.

- iv. Christian love does not mean that the church condones or ignores violent or sexual criminal activity perpetrated by a member of the congregation or by the clergy (which is something which has been tolerated by the Catholic church). This endangers the congregation as a whole; this can set members of the church up as the victims of criminal activity.
- v. Church leadership has full responsibility of the physical protection of the church. This is why there are police in Berachah's parking lot.
- vi. There is a hard and fast principle of protection of believers in the church who are affected or threatened by criminality.
- vii. When a person is ejected from the church, that is confirmation of the heinousness of the church.
- viii. The church only excommunicates; the legal authorities prosecute and punish for the crime. The church does not do that; no execution committee on the board.
- ix. No individual should attempt to drive out another individual from the church. This is a church leadership issue. Serious matters should be passed along to church leadership for investigation. However, they are the ones who deal with it. When Berachah has done this sort of thing, privacy has been applied and we as a congregation did not even know about it.
- x. Paul will pronounce the sin unto death upon this person, and he could do that because he was an Apostle. This is not something that anyone else can do.

1Cor. 5:2a And you are arrogant, and have not rather mourned,...

ivα = that, so that. They should have reacted as if a plague was going through the congregation. Mourning is equivalent to the wearing of sackcloth, which is a goat or camel haired coat worn during times of mourning and sorrow.

It is normal to grieve when a loved one dies. The wearing of sackcloth can also be a sign of protest.

Wearing Sackcloth to Protest

1. By wearing sackcloth, the person protested that society was out of kilter.
2. Protest some act like death, potential of death, or something which disrupts the entire assembly, which gets out of kilter, which distracts. The Corinthians should have protested; they should have mourned. Mordecai sat at the king's gate wearing sackcloth because of the king's edict.
3. Mourning here is related to this Corinthian's crime and sin and that he should have been removed, as he was dead (in long-term carnal death).

Aorist passive indicative of αἴρω = to bear, to carry. Culminative aorist. The action of the verb should be regarded from the result. The problem is solved if this Corinthian is removed. Paul will have to pronounce a sentence. Passive voice; this man received the action of the verb. Subjunctive mood means that these people could have and should have removed this guy; but they did not. Their excuse may have been, we did not have any idea how to deal with this. You must let Scripture and doctrine be your guide and what is best for the congregation as a whole. Even if the Corinthians did not know what to do, someone could have appealed to God in prayer to determine what to do. Leadership of the church needs to do something. In some cases, members of the congregation were arrogant about it. In the most licentious city of the world, and this guy figured he was just doing his thing. Paul will solve this problem which the Corinthians had failed to solve. Remember, there are 4 factions in Corinth and none of them dealt with this problem.

Sometimes, God brings the sin unto death onto someone as an example. There can be very strong consequences to behavior. It is not just incest and other problems; Paul wants the whole church to see the reversionism that they are in. Not everyone will die, but many will suffer the consequences in their personal lives and in the corporate entity of the church. When the assembly of the church is threatened, something must be done. Excommunication can be good for the sinner as well; nothing gets their attention like that. Just like being expelled from school. If anything will wake you up, that should.

1Cor. 5:2b ...so that he who has done this deed may be taken from your midst.

1Corinthians 5:3

Lesson #181 Sunday 2

June 19, 2005

We will now get into the mechanics as to how Paul will administer the sin unto death.

What does it mean to deliver over; how is that done? And what about him being saved? Isn't he already saved? Vv. 1–3 are one sentence, which must be taken together. V. 5 has Paul delivering this guy over to Satan.

The verdict will be delivered to the entire congregation. Paul will deliver this verdict in absentia; and it will be public. However, discipline is generally done on a need-to-know basis. Public disclosure can be problematic, particularly for those who are not involved. There is always someone who gets wind of a problem; and rumors sometimes fly. You would think that believers would have better things to do than to indulge in rumors; yet, some cannot resist talking about a little dirt. People try to stick their noses into the situation and they often make a bad situation worse. They decide that they are going to solve someone else's sins by initiating a little discipline themselves. The result is often legalistic meddling, the attempt to foment a guilt complex in the person that you don't care for. If you hear a rumor or someone wants to tell you something, then tell them, "I don't want to know about it. Leave me out of it." Great response.

If you do not know what to do, then pass it up along the chain of authority. And don't attempt to counsel someone. Lack of discretion can cause a wider range of problems. When these rumors begin to spread, then a complex of sins form where none existed before. We all have plenty to take care of in our own lives without attempting to mind someone else's business. The person who is invading privacy and the person whose privacy is invaded. When people gather around a rumor or a problem, then they often divide into groups over it, and it is something that they should not be involved in, in the first place. When you hear a rumor, keep your mouth shut. This type of thing becomes a problem for Bobby, as it distracts him from what he should be doing and it often takes untold hours of others to deal with this sort of problem. This is why it is important to leave the believers of a church out of the loop. You don't let the problem fester; you take care of it in a timely manner. Many churches are ripped apart by controversies like this which should be left private.

However, Paul will involve the entire church at Corinth. Paul has a specific reason in this case for letting the entire church know.

Εγὼ γὰρ = for I. My thinking about this situation is very different from your situation. Paul will be disputing their apostate position. They should have cut off this incestuous guy from the church; however, they did not. Paul will complete what they did not do. Paul, here, is addressing the leadership who should have dealt with this situation themselves. Paul had authority that no one else had. Whatever they left undone, Paul would finish. He had been given this power and authority directly by God. No man has been given this type of authority in the church today. In the Middle Ages, people were killed for being apostate; they would pronounce the sin unto death and then kill them. They discredited the church by doing this. Many Jews are suspect of the Christian church because they and their ancestors have been persecuted by the Christian church. God Himself still pronounces the verdict of the sin unto death. Bobby cannot pronounce it nor can he always recognize it; so he can give general guidelines; but not much more than that.

Paul continues in v. 3. Present active participle ἀπημι = to be absent. Concessive participle; Paul is conceding a point here. Although I am absent; Paul is acknowledging an incontrovertible fact. The Corinthians must be saying, "You can't deal with this; you aren't here. Leave us alone." Paul could do a lot in absentia; it is not a problem for him to do that. Παρημι = to be present. The root of the word is the same in each case...εἰμι = to be. Paranasia. Same word, but with a different prefix. This is to make someone notice. This is a bit of literary flair, which draws attention to Paul's spiritual presence despite his physical absence. They are both concessive participles, and he admits to another fact; and this fact supercedes the previous fact. He is present in spirit. We would think of this as being present in his mind and in his thinking. However, there is more to this than that. He was present in thinking with knowledge and authority and the power to act in absentia. Paul is judge and jury in this case and he has come to a decision and he will act.

Paul is going to make his presence felt without being there. Paul carries a hint of spiritual authority here. There are factions all over the place all looking to grab power. Who is over the church? None of these factions. His authority does not come from the factional leaders, but from God. He is projecting divine power. Paul is projecting divine power from a distance. Paul is the projector of power. His is a mouth piece. No human being has the ability to do what Paul is doing unless God gives him the ability. Paul's authority is taken from a source much greater than that of the leadership in Corinth. In arrogance, those in Corinth were assaulting divine authority; they were attempting to usurp divine authority. Try to steal authority from God if you want some quick discipline. They are about to get a taste of the discipline for the arrogance of their actions. Egotistic arrogance means that you will reject all authority. Egocentric arrogance tacitly or blatantly sets one's self up over human and divine authority. When we are not authority-oriented and not grace-oriented, then we become the arbiter of our own life, rather than doctrine. When doctrine is not in charge, we become anti-authority. We might reject the authority of our parents, a pastor, the boss in the office; wherever authority is, we are against it. It is something which we face in our country over and over again in the past 40 years. The principle of authority—even if it is bad authority, you let God deal with it. If you take matters into your own hands and become anti-authority, you will pick up all of the discipline. You will be angry and unhappy and bitter. Allow God to deal with it. There is only one fair and righteous person, and allow Him to deal with it. God knows when we are under lousy authority. Do not become anti-authority. We will lose the impetus of our spiritual life. People and people-testing will take over our lives. The Corinthians have bucked Paul's authority all the way; anti-authority is anti-God and Paul will show them the consequences and the consequences are very heavy.

This passage is about complexes of sins; this is about a lack of authority orientation; this is about divine discipline. Paul, as an Apostle, has the authority to judge in this case. Paul would teach them a lesson that they either had to understand or they would fall under God's discipline. Authority orientation begins with the authority of Scripture. You cannot throw out the principle just because you have a bad authority over you.

Each verse in Corinthians deals with up-to-date issues. Every verse that Bobby teaches has some application to our lives today.

1Cor. 5:3 For as being absent in body but present in spirit, I indeed have judged already as though I were present concerning him who worked out this thing;

1Corinthians 5:3

Lesson #182 Wednesday

June 22, 2005

Paul had received confirmation of one particular evil among the Corinthians, this incestuous guy. Paul will take some decisive action, which is a necessary attribute of a leader. Men look up to you to act when you are seen as a leader. The offense has a serious affect upon all of the church, and there is a serious apostasy as well. This particular sin is simply a manifestation of their apostasy. The leadership in that church should have simply separated this man from the congregation, and that means it is up to Paul to do this. Paul, from a distance, will excommunicate this guy from the church.

Vv. 3–5 is all one sentence and the order of the phrases is rather strange. Paul's specific judgment is mentioned, his authority to carry out this judgment, and the mode of announcing the judgment. Paul's authority: in the name of the Lord Jesus. Paul will give the verdict in his absence. It will be delivered to the entire assembled congregation.

He tells the Corinthians that he is making this pronouncement from a distance. He is physically absent from Corinth. However, he is present in spirit. Here is how I am with you; Paul will participate as a leader in this appalling situation regardless. The people in Corinth need to be put on notice. This is not a specific reference to the human spirit here; the human spirit is what makes each one of us trichotomos beings. Spirit does not mean that Paul is simply going to give his opinion in this matter—however, Paul is doing this by the power of God the Holy Spirit. Being present in spirit means Paul has complete knowledge of the incident; and he has the authority and the power to act, even though he is not present (something which few leaders possess). There will not be some long, drawn out appeal process; Paul will turn this guy over to Satan. He is not going to listen to any appeals by the offending party. He has the facts and the ability to act.

The Sequence of Events

1. Paul has looked into this matter and has the facts.
2. Paul is the judge and jury all rolled up into one.
3. He has reached his decision and it is a just decision.
4. He will act upon this decision based upon his apostolic authority.

Paul is projecting divine power to believers who are interested only in their own power lust. These Corinthians are interested only in their own power, and Paul shows them what real power is. These guys in Corinth were biting off much more than they could chew. God will not allow an attack upon His authority go by. It is a challenge to divine authority for a person to be in egocentric arrogance. You have your own agenda; you have your own ideas as to what is best. This tacitly or blatantly sets oneself above human and divine authority. Arrogance means there is no human authority which can tell you what to do.

In Corinth, these believers are anti authority and anti-divine authority. If you are in reversionism, then you are anti-divine authority. This is similar to the rebellion which Satan launched against God and he took a third of the angels with him. God pronounced on Satan a delayed sin unto death. Anti-authority to divine power is never taken lightly. They were now about to get a taste of what they had caused. Since these leaders would not stop it, Paul would put a stop to it. Paul will decide to go the mode of public discipline here.

Why Did Paul do this Publically rather than Publically?

Public demonstrations of sinfulness of others can cause all kinds of problems within a church. This can set off all kinds of other sin natures.

1. Paul was away from the congregation, God's will must be known. They don't understand it at this point.
2. The entire church apparently already knew about this situation.
3. They must here the punishment for such a crime as an example to them. These people were distracted; there was arrogance involved. They needed to see an example of where there would lead; an example of punishment.

4. This will shake up the Corinthians and get their attention. This man involved in evil will now pay the price. This person has gone deeper and deeper into reversionism and they Corinthians need to see the consequences.
5. The Corinthians needed to see the consequences of unchecked reversionism. They needed this jolt. They needed to take heed lest it happened to each one of them. Paul went public; they needed an example of divine discipline.
6. There is a fight for authority, and Paul shows them what real authority is. He is not there and he turns a man over to Satan for discipline.

Paths of Glory is a story of the French mutiny of WWI. After a few years, they did not want to do it any more. In order to deal with it, one man from each group was taken and executed as an example. That is what Paul is doing here in essence. Paul must set this man up as an example. This way, the Corinthians will see this by way of example.

Paul is letting these Corinthians know that he is going to turn this man over to Satan, and then it happens. Each of them will need to take another look at their own spiritual lives. Paul's authority from a distance is staggering. Paul, in this act, shows them how little power they actually have. Paul proves to them that he has power and authority. Paul will not take the credit himself, but he will show that it is the Lord's power that he applies.

1Cor. 5:3 For as being absent in body but present in spirit, I indeed have judged already as though I were present concerning him who worked out this thing;

In v. 4, Paul lets them know that this is done in the power of the Lord Jesus Christ. This verse is an anacoluthon. This is a sideline. Paraphrased: I have already judged him who has so committed this (v.3b) to deliver (v. 5) in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ (v. 4) such a one to Satan [the judgment] for the destruction of his flesh (v. 5). When the congregation is assembled, the judgment of this guy is announced. Then these power grabbers will get to see what real power is. This man will leave the assembly and face the sin unto death. Not sure who is going to announce this; perhaps Timothy. Paul represents this kind of power.

Paul wants these people to know that this is the Lord who acts with this power; Paul acts just as an agent. The decision is made in the name of the Lord. Paul downplays his own spiritual authority.

Never discipline in anger. If Paul was mad and said, "I am going to discipline this guy" he would just seem like one more person trying to grab power. Paul downplays his own leadership. Paul is not making the impact here; it is divine power which has the impact. Paul is looking to halt the arrogance of v. 2. There are a lot of sin complexes in this church. Paul told them that he could come with the rod of discipline, which this is an example of.

1Cor. 5:4 in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, when you are gathered together, with my spirit; also, with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ;

What is said in v. 5 is quite serious. Now, some might think this indicates a loss of salvation, but that is not the case here. The man in view here is involved in evil. Satan himself will administer the discipline and he will live through it. Paul and no one else can remove another's salvation. Satan can inflict great pain and suffering and can bring demon influence to bear, but he cannot remove a person's salvation. God is immutable. God would violate His Own character to take away our salvation. There is no reversal to salvation. The verdict of salvation. The sin unto death is only about our life until we die. God cannot act against His Own perfect character.

It is the serious consequences of unchecked reversionism. This one sin is the tip of the iceberg. You do not interfere with other's spiritual lives; that is going to cause you more trouble than you can handle. Paul is clearly showing the believers in Corinth the tenuous position that they are in. There is a lot going on at this church. Some of drunk at communion, and they are weak and sickly over it; and some have died over this. This is just the opening salvo of the sin unto death.

1Cor. 5:5 to deliver such a one to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, so that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

1Corinthians 5:3

Lesson #183 Thursday

June 23, 2005

Being present in spirit means that Paul has complete knowledge of what has gone on in Corinth with regards to this incest and he has gathered all of the facts that he needs. Paul has corroborated the facts and he knows that they are accurate. He has made a judgment based upon his authority. Today, the local church is autonomous. The local church is the authority, although Paul and other Apostles were over the local churches in the 1st century.

The Corinthians are so interested in themselves that they will tolerate this kind of behavior.

Power Lust and the Incestuous Man in the Corinthian Church

1. Power lust always produces an obsession. The obsession to control the thinking and behavior of others; in other words, interference in the lives of other believers.
2. Power lust is an indicator of inordinate ambition. They had an authority problem.
3. Power lust is a high and it requires constant stimulation and that stimulation takes precedence over all other aspects of life. It becomes all-consuming. The insatiable arrogance involved in power lust demands ardent admirers and supporters to assuage that lust. What is power lust without those who tell you how great you are; this feeds the lust.
4. Fear of losing power will cause faction leaders in Corinth to try to control and manipulate those in the congregation.
5. How are they going to do it?
6. One way, they cater and even support the deviations of others in order to gain their support, admiration and approval.

7. In the case of the deviation of the incestuous man, the faction leaders in their arrogance are supporting him as a means of maintaining their positions of power. Power lust drives those who need it into doing that which is a deviation; they support those who deviate from the truth.
8. The real mission of the church is taking a back seat to their power lust.
9. Other believers have become involved and are taking sides with various factions. This is all a part of the arrogance power of sin;
10. The arrogance of power lust has caused the toleration of this incestuous man and the overall affinity for arrogance that Paul observed in v. 2.
11. Everyone is being influenced in one way or another and the incestuous man is the focal point.

They are about to get a taste of the arrogance complex of sins. Paul will now make a public display of this guy; he does not handle this privately. He doesn't write some leader to take care of this.

What does Paul Make a Public Display of this Guy?

1. Paul is going to make this situation public to get the congregation back in fellowship to get them back to their great purpose in life. They should be fulfilling the plan of God for their lives and they are one where
2. This drastic move will have a shock affect on this congregation.
3. Look at the dire consequences of a church in dire reversionism.
4. Take heed lest you are in line for the sin unto death. This discipline could be pronounced on someone else instead of the incestuous guy.

The whole church will be able to view the sin unto death.

1Cor. 5:3 For as being absent in body but present in spirit, I indeed have judged already as though I were present concerning him who worked out this thing;

Paul makes an important pronouncement here. Paul carries the greatest authority and he could have the biggest head on his shoulders in all of Chrsiandom. He wields this power in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. In this verse, Paul makes it clear who is pronouncing this discipline.

Why Should no one Overstep their Authority?

1. Abuse of one's authority is nothing more than power lust. You will abuse authority for your own interest. Humility keeps a leader self-disciplined.
2. Humility keeps a leader from falling away from grace orientation. A grace oriented person serves those who are under him, as well as lead them. A good leader can get his people to do what he wants them to o.

3. Authority orientation is not just directed to those in authority over you, but authority orientation is directed to your own use of authority.
4. We must be oriented to the authority above us. We must have the humility to accept someone else's authority in order to properly wield authority over those below you. If you are not authority oriented, you cannot wield power properly. You just cannot do it.

This is discipline from the Lord; it is not just some man pronouncing judgment. They are looking into the jaws of death. They need this shock; they need to look into the jaws of death.

1Cor. 5:4 in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, when you are gathered together, with my spirit; also, with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ;

A translator adds a phrase here, but it weakens the affect of v. 4. There is no I have decided (as is found in the NASB). You are so far out of line that you are going to die; that is the pronouncement made upon these. This is will be a moment of super importance. A deterrent to that downward spiral of reversionism that this an is in.

Why is Paul using the Sin unto Death with this Man

1. This man is already choosing a ruin for himself. It is manifest.
2. Since this man will not recover on his own, Paul needs to deal with it.
3. It is not just the sexual offense.
4. A believer can recover from any sin. This man has no intention of recovering.
5. He is locked into a mode of self-destruction; in Scripture, it is called having a hardened heart. The incestuous believer has already begun on his own personal destruction. He has chosen his own path,

Many might think that this is too great a sin. This guy has already influenced a large number of people. Some will be drunk at the upcoming communion. "Weak and sickly and many sleep" is the punishment for reversionism. Some want to win this guy back; show him love; that will bring him back.

Psycho therapy is so often just human viewpoint. But Bible doctrine is the greatest therapy that one can have. Bible doctrine has changed their souls; it has changed their thinking. Coddling jsut allows this man to ellicit sympathy from others; about all you can do for this kind of person is to pray for them. They need doctrine, not your empathy. Paul is simply relegating this reversionist to where he already lives; to the cosmic system where Satan already rules. Why not just turn him over to his master. He has put himself in this position; this is where you want to be? Okay, you've got it. Satan has the green light to take this believer out. This is the only possible way for this man to recover. Major pain and suffering is the only way to get through to this guy to help him recover. If he does not recover, then Satan will take him all the way to the grave and it will not be pleasant. This is a true picture of the Corinthian reversionistic status.

The temptations for the old sin nature; a believer chooses to succumb to temptation and he sins. He loses the filling of the Holy Spirit and is under the control of the old sin nature. His spiritual life implodes under the pressure of personal sin (this is perpetual carnality

Reversionistic Implosion

1. Implosion is succumbing to legalism or antinomianism.
2. Implosion to legalism brings on a specific set of problems. Self righteous arrogance; substituting human taboos for spiritual dynamics.
3. Implosion to antinomianism; obvious results exemplified by the Corinthian church.
4. Once in perpetual carnality, the believer then explodes. He fragments; his life fragments. He fragments according to the trends of the sin nature which he follows.
5. Fragmenting to self righteousness, he moves toward legalism; the deeper you go into it, the more you demonstrate moral degeneracy. Zealous activism.
6. If he fragments to antinomianism, then he goes to pieces in that way. He will get into self-gratification: sexual gratification, gratification by drugs or alcohol, etc.
7. He fragments right into the stages of reversionism. These others are feeding off of this. Others were spiraling down the road of reversionism right after him.

1Cor. 5:5 ...to deliver such a one to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, so that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

1Corinthians 5:5

Lesson #184 Sunday 1

June 26, 2005

This man has gotten quite a pronouncement against him—a rare situation. The sin unto death was pronounced on this man for complex of sins; not for incest alone. He failed to rebound and he rejected divine truth. He was deep into reversionism.

This man is also a focal point of distraction for the Corinthian church and everyone is getting involved in this. They are being distracted from Bible doctrine; and this feeds the factionalism which is going on. There are all kinds of things going on in this church. They are suing one another. The sin unto death is put on this man to make him an example to the church at large. Many of these Corinthians are moving down a long spiral of reversionism and this example is designed to be a deterrent so that these others will not have to undergo the same thing.

Works will not determine our salvation, but what this man has done has affected his life. This man has sent himself down the path of no return and he refuses to recover. He has a hardened heart; it is like flint. He has locked himself into a mode of destruction; he has gone through all 8 stages of reversionism.

Carnality is an absolute state. It is all or nothing. Under the loss of the spiritual life, life implodes.

Implosion

1. You have succumbed to the trends of the old sin nature; legalism or antinomianism.
2. Implosion to legalism brings on certain types of problems. You go right into self righteousness arrogance. Salvation by works; you think you have earned your salvation. You think you must be a good person in order to be saved (which is the result of the Christian life, not the means).
3. Implosion to antinomianism.
4. You succumb to your trend and you fragment toward that trend.
5. Fragmentation results in cosmic involvement and deeper and deeper reversionism.
6. He becomes a moral degenerate. Self righteousness, intolerance, zealot activism, judging, slandering, good person and hypocritical.
7. Antinomianism: chemical sins or alcoholism or abuse; sexual promiscuity. It just depends upon which way you want to blow yourself up.

This guy has started in a spiral . Destruction of the flesh; delivery to physical suffering, culminating in physical death. A literal transfer to Satan's control.

Authority Over People

1. Scripture reveals that personal evils are inflicted by the organization of Satan (his demon organization).
2. Psalm 109:6–15 describes an appeal to God by the psalmist for Satan to bring pain and suffering on an enemy (which is not our prerogative). This is an example which says that Satan is called upon to do this.
3. This man is an enduring example.
4. Satan has powers in the realm of physical death. Heb. 2:14
5. By the way, this is about believers.
6. Satan killed the children of Job (Job 1:12).
7. Satan motivated Cain to murder Abel (John 3:12). He has an indirect power; to influence others to kill.
8. Satan is used sometimes as the agent of the sin unto death. The destruction of the flesh is the human body. Flesh here means the body.

Sin Unto Death

1. The sin unto death is a believer who rejects doctrine and goes on his merry way into reversionism.
2. Divine discipline are the several stages of punitive measures.
  - a. It teaches the believer in time. If you think discipline is bad, it hurts, but it is for our benefit. Even the sin unto death is for our benefit.
  - b. The sin unto death is the final stage of discipline. Bobby can't tell us when the sin unto death is going to be laid upon us. There is a point at which this will be applied, even though we are not sure when it will occur.

- c. The sin unto death of one believer can teach another believer the consequences of prolonged carnality and the dive into reversionism. This is why Paul is writing chapter 5, even though it is not a very pleasant chapter. This warns the Corinthians and us.
  - d. Such discipline is confined to time; it is confined to our temporal life. It does not carry over into eternity; the sin unto death is not a part of the eternal state.
3. Sin unto death is essentially the sin of total rejection of the spiritual life in the church age and lack of advance; failure to rebound and into that long spiral of reversionism. This is above and beyond normal discipline. It is maximum divine discipline from the justice of God. If it happens, there is a reason. There is no verdict which is a miscarriage of justice. The supreme court of heaven is always in session. Pain and suffering is deserved if the justice of God pronounced it. There is always a reason, and it is always coupled with grace. Even the sin unto death is a part of God's grace.

1Cor. 5:5 ...to deliver such a one to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, so that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

1Corinthians 5:5

Lesson #185 Sunday 2

June 26, 2005

Bobby just saw his old roommate, who he hasn't seen for 35 years. Was just passing through this city.

Sin unto death

- 4. Moral people can be under the sin unto death. The pharisees give you an idea as to how moral degeneracy can act.
- 5. The sin unto death is a complex of sins; it is functioning without rebound for a long period of time.
- 6. It is related to locked in negative volition. Locked-in negative volition preclude recovery.
- 7. Sin unto death is also related to the rejection of establishment truth and idolatry by the believer. Jer. 9:13–16 Idolatry amounts to continued blasphemy of the Lord.
- 8. There are certain sins which lend themselves to more and more intense discipline. You first get warning discipline, then intense discipline and finally the sin unto death.
- 9. Specific sins which are problematic: Prov. 6:16–19: These six Jehovah hates; yea, seven are hateful to his soul: a proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, a heart that plots wicked plans, feet hurrying to run to evil, a false witness who speaks lies, and he who causes fighting among brothers. Note there are no sexual sins named here; and all of these are complexes of sins. Any sin can be handled by rebound; keep moving after you rebound.
  - a. Haughty eyes:

- i. refers to unchecked arrogance.
  - ii. It is a presumption of superiority; self-centeredness, inordinate pride.
  - iii. This person defines his own relative moral standards and self-righteously believes that he lives up to them (nobody else does, but I do).
  - iv. Because this believer avoids certain overt sins, he becomes convinced that he is spiritually superior to everyone else.
  - v. Haughty eyes is the epitome of moral degeneracy, self righteousness, hypocrisy. When you see yourself as superior, you have just failed in the spiritual life. It is an abomination.
- b. A lying tongue:
    - i. Consistent sins of the tongue.
    - ii. Falsely defaming others; slandering others, maligning them, trying to destroy their reputations; trying to elevate yourself by cutting others to ribbons. Distortion of the truth to preserve or protect yourself.
    - iii. Consistent deceitfulness. It is an habitual situation.
  - c. Hands that shed innocent blood. This is not self-defense; this is not killing in war.
  - d. A heart that devises wicked plans.
    - i. This is an unchecked pattern of mental attitude sins. No rebound; perpetual carnality. These sins build to a crescendo of hate. These all develop a complex of sins.
  - e. Feet which run rapidly to evil.
    - i. One who goes after all sorts of evil. Can't wait to get there.
    - ii. His life is characterized by a lack of any self-restraint or self-discipline. Whatever you feel like doing, you do.
    - iii. A person like this constantly involved in deceit, lying, wrongdoing, a pattern of faulty thinking and actions.
    - iv. They plot conspiracies and other problems in a church.
  - f. A false witness who utters lies.
    - i. This is a person who deliberately and consistently perjures himself.
  - g. One who spreads strife among others.
    - i. This person turns one believer against another. In their own mind, this elevates themselves.
    - ii. He never ceases in his efforts to ruin friendships and to create mistrust in others. These kind of people thrive in seeing others being unhappy. They like seeing others who are as miserable as they are. This is arrogance, character assassination, sins of the tongue.
    - iii. This person follows a pattern of divide and conquer for personal gain, for power. These are the faction leaders of Corinth. They play on the emotions and feelings of others.

10. Documentation for the sin unto death:

a. 1John 5:16: If anyone sees his brother sin a sin not to death, he shall ask, and He shall give him life for those that do not sin to death. There is a sin to death, I do not say that he shall pray for it. You have to see the sin being committed, meaning you have to know this person quite well. Husband, wife, friend, family member. You do not gossip, malign or spread tales about this person. The point is, do not interfere, no matter what kind of discipline they are under. Getting involved with another person's sin is like touching a hot stove—you will get burned. You don't get to pray for God to take them out from the sin unto death. Do not interfere with the Lord's discipline of someone else.

b. Psalm 7:14–16: Behold, he labors in pain with iniquity, and he has conceived mischief, and has brought forth falsehood. He dug a pit and bored it, and has fallen into the ditch which he made. His mischief shall return on his own head, and his violence shall come on his own crown. This reversionist has dug a pit and has hollowed it out and is not in the pit. His actions which return upon his own head. His violence will come back to get him. Warning discipline tells us that we are divorced from reality. We are on the road to degeneracy. God brings us back to reality and objectivity. Psalm 32:1–5 is intensified discipline. It is very difficult to recover if you are way down in the various stages of reversionism apart from the sin unto death. Without recovery, you will die, although you will be delivered in the day of the Lord.

11. Case histories of the sin unto death:

a. Certain believers in Philippi (Philip. ) and Laodicia (Rev. 3); King Saul in 1Chron. 10:3–14. Believers to participate in devil worship. The believers in Corinth who were getting drunk at Communion. King Hezekiah when he was going down to Egypt, which was the culmination of a long slide into Reversionism (Isa. 30:1–3 38). Hezekiah did recover. Some people believe by 2Cor. 7:8–11 that this guy recovered. Ananas and Saphira. They lied to God Himself. Hinnai and Alexander (1Tim. ).

Lesson #186 Wednesday

June 29, 2005

Letter to Bobby from a woman who is dealing with her 3rd bout with cancer. Recommended to have psychological testing because she had too positive an attitude. She has always been able to take in doctrine.

We are studying the opposite of this woman; here we are dealing with the sin unto death. The incestuous man was delivered to Satan so that his body might be inflicted and then destroyed. Satan has the power over death and the power to inflict pain (Heb. 2:14) when allowed. However, being delivered over to Satan does not mean that one will encounter a terrible incurable disease. It can be a set of circumstances. A person under the sin unto death will have the worst experience that he could possibly have. The woman in the letter is in a similar situation; but she is under dying grace.

The incestuous man's situation will be drawn out and painful. He will be an example to the entire Corinthian church. Many of the Corinthians are in the last stages of reversionism. The example of this one man provides them the opportunity to recover rather than face what he is facing. The destruction of this person is Satan's work, under God's allowance. This is sanctioned by God, but not His preference.

Sin unto death results from any believer using his volition to create his own massive failures in the spiritual life. The sin unto death is a total rejection of the unique spiritual life of the church age. There is only one direction a believer can go here. This goes well beyond normal discipline. It is not the normal discipline that we might receive. A complex of sins which are repeated many times, but without rebound; reversionism. In grace, God is very slow to pronounce such a punishment. It is rare in Scripture; so we might reasonably assume that it is rare in life. Recovery is still an option, even under the sin unto death. This can bring back the most hardened heart to a point of positive volition. It happened with King Hezekiah. He went down to Egypt when God told him not to. He was being assaulted by one of the toughest armies in the ancient world. Hezekiah decided to hedge his bets, even though God had already promised deliverance to Hezekiah. The sin unto death is designed to wake us up. What we do with that discipline is entirely up to us.

Certain sins often result in a complex of sins, which often result in the sin unto death.

The Worst Sins:

Prov. 6:16–19: These six Jehovah hates; yea, seven are hateful to his soul: a proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, a heart that plots wicked plans, feet hurrying to run to evil, a false witness who speaks lies, and he who causes fighting among brothers.

1. A proud look:
  2. Moral degeneracy and self righteousness.
  3. Such reversionists live with a presupposition of moral and spiritual superiority.
  4. He defines his own standards and believes that he lives up to them.
  5. These are modern-day pharisees. The standards are superficial and they think they live up to them. Self righteousness hypocrisy.
6. A lying tongue:
  - a. Rampant sins of the tongue. Unbridled falsehood; lying all of the time.
  - b. Falsely defaming others with extreme malice.
  - c. Distortions of the truth to protect oneself or for power lust.
  - d. Devious in personal or professional life. It become a habit.
7. Hands that shed innocent blood: the sin unto death can certainly include the death penalty administered by the state.
8. A heart that devises wicked plans:
  - a. An unchecked pattern of mental attitude sins.

- b. Unbounding envy, jealousy, implacability, revenge and hatred. One sin leads to another.
  - c. A desire to destroy lives and to destroy the lives of loved ones. You certainly do not love someone that you are trying to crush.
9. Feet that run rapidly to evil:
- a. A lack of self-restraint and total cosmic involvement. They cannot wait to watch their human viewpoint take them down the road of reversionism.
  - b. They incite malfeasance, deceit, treachery.
  - c. These fanatical malcontents plot innumerable conspiracies and prodigious derisiveness.
10. A false witness who utters lies:
- a. Unchecked sins of the tongue. No deterrent on the sins of the tongue.
  - b. This refers to deliberately and consistently perjuring oneself, as a public servant or in the pursuit of criminal activity.
11. One who spreads strife among brothers:
- a. He turns one believer against another. He turns believers against believers. He can turn groups against other groups.
  - b. His motto is divide and conquer.
  - c. The one who spread strife is ceaseless in his efforts to spread mistrust and suspicion between people for promotion, power, monetary gain—some sort of gain is involved.
  - d. Such a reversionist delights in the unhappiness that he creates in the lives of others.
  - e. This is especially true in relation to unfettered power lust and unrestrained desire to control others. That last one is power lust.
12. These sins are symptomatic of those who could fall under the sin unto death. No announcement that you are under the sin unto death, but you will know it.
13. 1John 5:16 Psalm 7:14–16
14. Case histories of the sin unto death:
- a. Certain believers in Philippi (1Cor.?)
  - b. Certain believers in the church in Laodicia (Rev. 3:16).
  - c. King Saul in 1Chron. 10:13–14
  - d. Participation in the communion table while out of fellowship continually. 1Cor. 11:30 tells us that some died for that reason.
  - e. Ananias and Sapphira in Acts 5:1–10; they suffered immediate destruction.
  - f. Hymanias and Alexander in 1Tim.
  - g. The incestuous man in Corinth.
15. The sin unto death does not extend into the afterlife. It never carries on into heaven. Embarrassment at the Bama seat, yes; loss of rewards, yes; but no severe pain after death.

The Lord will kill this person, but his spirit will be saved in the day of Jesus Christ. Whenever a person dies under the sin unto death, it is certainly in their best interest, regardless of the circumstances.

Πνευμα = spirit, breath. Adam, when he ate of the fruit in the garden, he sinned and lost his spirit. We were in Adam when he sinned. If we were there, we would have done the same thing as Adam. We lost our spiritual life and our human spirit when Adam fell. When a person is regenerated, they go from being dichotomus to trichotomus. The Holy Spirit at regeneration creates a human spirit and imputes eternal life of that person. You are spiritually alive; you regain your human spirit. This occurs one time at salvation. You cannot lose the human spirit once it has been created by the Holy Spirit. What you can do is grieve the Holy Spirit. The spirit being saved at a future day means to some that regeneration was not enough. Isn't this another salvation? Nope. Some think that salvation never occurred in the first place; some glitch occurred in this situation. Assumed that what was done was not enough. Many think that if someone truly believes in Christ and they think that discipline will always bring back into line a true believer. If a person does not truly believe, then they won't recover; if they don't, they will not recover. When someone teaches these things, it is simply a way to manipulate you. If you don't live the way that I tell you to, then you really aren't saved. If you do live like I think you should, then you are saved. It is strictly manipulation. Someone the pulpit trying to run your life. It is not salvation by works; it is works to prove your salvation. You had better live a certain way to prove that you are saved. A person must demonstrate that he can live enough of a life to demonstrate that he is saved. It is the fruit of the Spirit; not the fruit of salvation. There would be no sin unto death if believers all self-corrected or they are corrected by God. Pastors who teach this are apostate and they are manipulators. You cannot look on the outward appearance and determine if someone is saved. God looks on the heart. Don't ever bother to judge whether someone is saved or not. Believers in reversionism simply imitate unbelievers.

1Cor. 5:5 to deliver such a one to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, so that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

1Corinthians 5:5

Lesson #187 Thursday

June 30, 2005

Philemon available in DVD now.

Our context is a man who will die the sin unto death miserably. Satan will do his worst to this person. The body and soul of this man will antagonizingly be destroyed; he will eventually die, under lingering physical agony prior to. The Corinthians got to actually watch this man die. This is a very real thing for anyone who continues their downward trend of reversionism. A believer here will spend eternity with God; but his life's end will be miserable. Salvation will never be taken from anyone who believes in Christ alone for salvation.

Stage 8 is characterized by the immersion of the evil of the cosmic system. Stage 8 coincides with dying the sin unto death.

Stage 8 of Reversionism

1. Stage 8 is reverse process reversionism; it is the substitution of Satan's plan for God's plan. It is a reversal and it is a process because you are continually going down the tube.
2. Satan's cosmic system is so powerful and so devious that the reversionistic believer becomes completely divorced from reality, especially the reality of divine viewpoint.
3. What is worthwhile and valuable in life is rejected.
4. What is useless and worthless is accepted. This is the result of having no divine viewpoint and no discernment.
5. Prolonged residence in the cosmic system results in a reversal of all priorities and all norms and standards related to the plan of God. All of these things are reversed. Degeneracy peaks in stage 8, whether it is moral or immoral degeneracy.
6. The modus vivendi cannot be distinguished from the unbeliever.
7. Reverse process means to face in the opposite direction; to reverse course; to invert beliefs, by a turnabout in thinking. Our thinking is inverted.
8. In reverse process reversionism, all true values in life are pushed aside and priorities are inverted. Everything that divine viewpoint is distorted into human viewpoint.
9. In other words, the reversionist spurns that which he should love and embraces that which he should spurn. That is the reverse. Rev. 2:4 describes this as leaving your first love.
10. The reversionist in stage 8 experiences a reversal with regards to the true object of his love in all categories of love. Love for God, for people, and for friends. He becomes enamored with objects of pseudo love compatible with his distorted spiritual condition.
  - a. Personal love for Christ is replaced with love of self and pre-occupation with the trends of the soul....the lust pattern.
  - b. In category 2 love, the reversionist pursues false lovers instead of his spouse.
11. The conclusion: the reversionist is at the bottom of the barrel. The incestuous man has reversed his priorities; his norms and standards are reversed; he has built a complex of sins and he has pursued an object of love which is criminal.

The letter from a woman who is under dying grace, under one of the greatest experiences of life; God saves the best for last.

1Cor. 5:5a ...to deliver such a one to Satan for the destruction of the flesh,....

The second half of 1Cor. 5:5 is that slight ray of hope under these conditions. God's grace is always operative, even to the man whose soul has been turned over to Satan. Πνευμα = human spirit. This is created by the Holy Spirit at faith alone in Christ alone; God the Holy Spirit creates the human spirit and the believer is born again because he is now spiritually live; eternal life is imputed to this newly formed human spirit. This occurs just once at the moment of faith alone in Christ alone. This is distorted by some; it is a travesty that extreme distortions are built upon this Scripture. Grace is the basis for all that we have, yet it is distorted. One distortion is, if the human spirit is saved on another day, isn't there a second day on which we are saved? The great day of our initial moment of faith was just not quite enough. Or maybe there was some hitch in the faith that you expressed and something went awry, and you were never saved. Maybe it was academic; just a head belief. It wasn't real. There was not enough of an emotional response; there was no heartfelt faith (whatever that means). They assume that a change of lifestyle must take place; there must be a change in us. If you are saved, you will advance; if you had true belief, you will advance; if you don't advance, then you did not truly believe. If you go for awhile without doing anything spiritually, you doubt your salvation. You only have to believe in Jesus Christ once. Whatever our lifestyle is about, that has nothing to do with it. There is no such thing as a head belief vs. a heart belief. There is a difference between salvation and what comes after. There are fruit inspectors out there; you must produce fruit for God and they will inspect it. This is evil and sinful, but in many people's eyes, this is the criterion for the salvation of people all over. Fruit inspection is manipulation for the purpose of enforcing a superficial standard. How do they know if you have rebounded? This is garbage and bunk. Fruit inspectors are not the arbiters of your faith. It is not a requirement for us to suddenly live a new lifestyle in order to prove or maintain your salvation.

When Bobby was in seminary, he found that it was unbelievable that people did not believe in eternal security. God knows whether we have expressed faith alone in Christ alone; this other sort of thinking completely negates grace. Now, it is possible to be saved and to go nowhere in the spiritual life. You can go completely backwards. It is up to us, not someone else, when it comes to our spiritual life. There is no guarantee of a spiritual life.

There are other distortions related to this. This particular verse has nothing to do with another day of salvation.

Some theologians theorize that severe punishment would eventually bring a person back into a state of grace because of divine discipline. You can gain a state and you can lose a state. The term state of grace is meaningless; it makes grace dependent upon our behavior. We do not achieve some state of grace because we adhere to some pious level of living. We are always in a state of grace. God's grace cannot be lost and it cannot be recovered. Our eternal future is secured by the grace of God. There is nothing we can do to gain God's favor. We already have His favor in the form of His grace and the perfect +R given over to us.

Another false theory; there is some intermediate state from which a believer can later be rescued. There is no half way house of heaven. Example of the Roman Catholic church and purgatory. It is an intermediate state. It is designed for venial sins, which are sins which can be forgiven. You can expunge your venial sins; and they will be forgiven. Actually, we don't have to go anywhere for salvation. Sins are all forgiven at the cross. That is a system of ecclesiastical works which nullifies salvation by grace. And you cannot pray a dead person into heaven. 1500 A.D. no one can pay enough to get you out of purgatory. You do not pay to get someone out of purgatory. Martin Luther broke away from the Catholic church based on this one false doctrine. They bought their way into heaven, supposedly. The grace of God is completely lost in all of that. Titus 3:7. All of these theological views are based upon how we live.

This incestuous man had eternal life at the point of believing in Jesus Christ. There are other views which are so ridiculous as to not even warrant mentioning. His incest and complex of sins do not mean that he was not saved in the first place; or that he lost his salvation.

1Cor. 5:5b ...so that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

1Corinthians 5:5

Lesson #188 Sunday 1

July 3, 2005

The Declaration of Independence read. We can study the Word of God without persecution because we are in a free country. Missionaries bring back stories of governments which persecute believers in Jesus Christ

The first half of this verse is the sin unto death pronounced against this man in an incestuous relationship. The congregation will observe this man in reverse process reversionism. A reversal of all priorities, norms and standards as related to the plan of God. Spiritual priorities are inverted and true values are pushed aside. What is useless and worthless is accepted; doctrine and the spiritual life is rejected. Moral and immoral degeneracy is embraced.

1Cor. 5:5a ...to deliver such a one to Satan for the destruction of the flesh,....

The second phrase is sometimes distorted. It sometimes confuses Christians about their salvation. Our eternal life is imputed to the human spirit when it is formed. The human spirit is saved in this verse on the day of the Lord Jesus, which is an eschatological day. It has not yet occurred. This is different than the day that you expressed faith in Jesus Christ. See how this can be a problem in interpretation. Some pastors and theologians have come to erroneous conclusions about salvation. If there are two or more days of salvation, then there must be different salvations. Some think the first one is just not good enough—it just did not take here. The final one is the one that takes. They think that a second true salvation occur, in the Day of the Lord. The first day must have been an academic belief, which was not heart-felt. Maybe it was not lifestyle changing. Just faith is not enough. Their standard is one of works and/or emotion. The idea is, if you do not produce good works in your life, then you really aren't saved. If you don't produce, you aren't saved. The premise is that simple faith is not enough. You must produce these good works to some extent. If you die the sin unto death, that is proof positive that you are not saved. That is a fallacious view, by the way. You must bear the fruit of the Spirit in order to prove your salvation. We are mandated to bear the fruit of the Spirit. But this only occurs from your positive volition and your subsequent spiritual advance. A superficial change in lifestyle is not the same thing. Stop drinking, smoking, and chasing, and that is the fruit of the Spirit. Then they take another passage. They believe the fruit of the Spirit is inevitable—if you are saved, you will produce good works. They cite Matt. 7:20: So then, you will know them by their fruits. If you don't bear fruit, if you don't live a certain way, then you are not saved. This is about false teachers, both saved and unsaved—that is what this passage is all about. How does their doctrine line up with Scripture; doctrine is fruit, not good deeds. The conclusion drawn by legalists is erroneous. You do not need to produce fruit as proof of your salvation. You can only produce divine fruit by living the spiritual life. It is fruit from the Spirit; it comes from the power of the Holy Spirit. Works are not involved in salvation; the epitome of grace is salvation apart from any works. The legalist wants to be a fruit inspector. If you are a believer, you will inevitably perform good works. This is simply manipulation in order to get others to live a superficial spiritual life which conforms to their views. Normally, what happens is, they live a moral life for about 5 minutes after the pastor's message, and then wander out the door and do what they want to. Outside pressure from some moralistic bully telling you what to do is not spirituality. A moral life is only one part of the spiritual life; the spiritual life is a supernatural life.

Aorist passive subjunctive of  $\sigma\omicron\zeta\omega$  = to save, to deliver. This can refer to eternal salvation; however, that is not its only use. Here, it means to be delivered [from something which is very unpleasant]. Passive voice means the human spirit receives the action of the verb; the Aorist tense is a point in time. The passive voice negates works; the person is acted upon, they are not doing the work. Culminative Aorist here. The entire event is in view here; it is also regarded from the viewpoint of its results. The turning over to Satan has the result of deliverance. Deliverance cannot occur unless he is turned over to Satan. Obviously, this is not what anyone wants—to be turned over to Satan. In deliverance, this man will no longer live with the pain and misery of his earthly life. It will be a relief for him to be delivered and face to face with the Lord. The subjunctive mood is potential (although it can be a mandate). Relief will be face to face with the Lord. It is not conditioned upon what this person does. He may or may not change his mind about what he is doing; no matter, he will be delivered. Passive voice. He is being acted upon, he is not doing the action. The man is turned over to Satan and that is where his deliverance is based.

Prepositional phrase  $\epsilon\nu\ \tau\alpha\iota\ \eta\mu\epsilon\rho\alpha$  = in the day, during the day. Because of the time element present in a day, there is a temporal meaning to be understood here. The final prepositional phrase is of the Lord Jesus. That defines the day. This deliverance takes place during the future day of the Lord. This is the day that our Lord returns for the exit-resurrection. He will appear in the air. No one can predict when this will occur. 1Thess. 4:17: Then we who are alive and remain will be caught up together with them in the clouds and so we will be forever with the Lord. This is not a deliverance in his lifetime; this is the guarantee that we need. Even dying the sin unto death results in being delivered in the end. He has not changed his mind about the spiritual life; he is deep in cosmic thinking and continues to be. This guy, in his life, is a loser. His death will ultimately be to his gain. This is a reminder that his ultimate destination is being face to face with the Lord. He is a man in pathetic shape, a man who is an example to the entire church. This man made the choice to reject the spiritual life; he has rejected God; yet God is faithful and God will ultimately deliver this man, even though we are completely undeserving. This is the victory which is often called ultimate sanctification. This last phrase brings hope to everyone living under divine discipline or simply terrible circumstances. This is completely the opposite of trying to prove your salvation by your works. Ultimately, we will all be delivered.

1Cor. 5:5b ...so that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

1Corinthians 5:5a

Lesson #189 Sunday 2

July 3, 2005

The 4th of July is a celebration of freedom; hundreds of thousands of men who have been to war to gain and protect our freedom.

How is there spiritual freedom when a man is delivered over to Satan? This man deserves nothing, but will be delivered in the day of our Lord. The greatest freedom in life is to know your own security. Our eternal security is absolutely secure. Even if we fail big time, we will be delivered at the end of this dispensation. Before God, this man will be blameless. Eph. 1:4 1Thess. 1:8 guarantee this. We have the grim look of a man who is dying. This man becomes a severe example to others in the church. Early on, in this epistle, this man is a warning to the dire consequences of going down the path of reversionism without recovery (although, doom is not his final end, but deliverance).

Continually indulging the whims of the old sin nature can result in the sin unto death. Paul now has to deal with the fallout of his sin unto death announcement. This incestuous man has been condemned, pronounced by Paul in absentia. Paul is positive of the facts in this instance. You cannot make an announcement like this without getting everyone's attention. Paul will show leadership through doctrinal advice. Through doctrinal advice means that every pastor can be a leader.

1Cor. 5:5b ...so that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

Paul knew the Passover and all of the rituals; all the feasts and all of the rituals. He knew them inside and out. He suddenly understood why he kept all of these feasts. He celebrated the Jews leaving Egypt. Now Paul understands what the Passover is really all about. It is the passing over sins because of the Lord Jesus Christ. He will use this analogy. 1Cor. 5:6–8: Your boasting is not good. Do you not know that a little leaven leavens the whole lump? Therefore purge out the old leaven so that you may be a new lump, as you are unleavened. For also Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us. Therefore let us keep the feast; not with old leaven, nor with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth. What is going on here? We have gone from the sin unto death to the leavened bread and the Passover. Paul will pass the discipline onto this incestuous man and now he will shed light on all of these people through this one man. These people can remain arrogant even though this man is involved in this complex of sins. There is no mourning, there is arrogance (see v. 2). This is how they can still be arrogant: spiritual failure among the leadership and among the congregation. Both sides failed. They are participating in this man's complex of sins. They should have mourned for this man's departure. This man is being excommunicated from the church and from life as well. Paul wants them to mourn a death in the family; this incestuous man is on his way to endure more pain than anyone else and he is an example, a spectacle to others—and this is for the benefit of the rest of the congregation. This is to bring their egocentric arrogant boasting in his sin to an end. There should be a rush to get back into fellowship at this point. Paul is only pronouncing the sin unto death to just one man. However, Paul is concerned for the whole church. The evil can spread. This is an example that he will give, which the Jewish believers will understand. A little leaven will leaven the whole lump.

This is not literal bread. Paul and the Corinthians are not in the midst of a cooking class. Leaven is more than an agent of fermentation. It is a common Jewish metaphor. It is often used for a veiled but a widespread influence. There is a link between the literal aspects of leaven and an analogy.

Bobby has no talent in the kitchen. If leaven is put into a large pan of dough, the dough will rise and spill out of the pan, and there will be a mess. There will be an expansion. The leaven permeates the entire loaf and makes itself known throughout. The rise and the spread of leaven. You take the analogy from the reality. The expansion of the dough will help us grasp this.

Leaven is both a noun and verb in this verse. Ζυμη = leaven (the noun). Ζυμω = to leaven (the verb).

How is Leaven used elsewhere?

1. In Mark 8:15; the leaven of the pharisees and of Herod. First use in the New Testament. This is the hypocrisy of the pharisees and Herod here is Herod Antipas (I believe). Maybe Antiper? These men were a terribly corrupting influence in this society. The pharisees had a corrupt control and a tremendous influence over the society; they were extreme hypocrites. Their control saturated the thinking of the Jews. There is no grace in Judaism. They zealously kept the Law in order to gain God's favor, which is antithetical to grace. Herod was Jewish as well; he was under the Romans; they were all seeking a sign, the sign of the Messiah. Despite the hundreds of signs given by Jesus Christ, they would not recognize Him. In spite of all these signs, they refused to believe His Messiahship. They were looking for the great liberator. They saw the Messiah as the political liberator. They wanted to be freed from the Romans and Roman influence. They were looking for the crown, but not the cross. They missed the Messiah; they did not see grace. The leaven of the pharisees is a group of men who are permeated with evil and legalism, which permeated the entire Jewish society. And evil, ubiquitous connotation.
2. Matt. 16:6: the leaven of the Sadducees. Not much difference between the two. They were both extreme legalists. The Sadducees had no regard for principles or results. They were fruit inspectors. They were the modernists; they were permeated with modern thought. They were filled with mental attitude sins. They kept the Law and did not grasp it. They used the Law for their salvation. The very thing which points to their need of salvation is what they grabbed onto for their salvation. Everything that they thought was transmitted to those that they served.

3. Gal. 5:9: the leaven of the Gentiles. This is an exact repeat of the phrase from 1Corinthians. A little leaven leavens the whole lump. The greatest antinomians in the Corinthian church along with the greatest legalists; this is what we found in the same church. These Judaizers were buying into this legalism. They can now live the way that they thought they should be living and they could also look over everyone else's shoulders. Their false doctrine was having a corrupting influence over the entire church.
4. It might be easy to say that leaven is the people who corrupt; however, it refers to the corruption of evil itself. The dough, whatever it is, is corrupted by the leaven. The leaven will permeate throughout the dough. Leaven, which is evil and sin, will infiltrate and permeate everything that it comes into contact with. It is not the incestuous man which is leaven, but it is the evil which this man has brought into the congregation (as well as the faction leaders). The whole lump of dough is the congregation of Corinth. In general, it is all believers. Pretty soon, everything will be rotted. This man was affecting the whole church. People are excommunicated from the church because they affect the spiritual lives of believers in the church.

1Cor. 5:6 Your boasting is not good. Do you not know that a little leaven leavens the whole lump?

1Corinthians 5:6

Lesson #190 Wednesday

July 6, 2005

No Bible class next week.

Paul is writing from Ephesus and has pronounced the sin unto death against this man, which gives us an idea as to the tremendous power which Paul had. It is critical that Paul makes clear what God's grace does under these situations; even such a pronouncement as the sin unto death has grace involved. This is to the man's advantage, because he will be delivered in the day of the rapture. Paul must give them a lesson, which will be through doctrinal counsel. He will do this in 3 short verses. Paul is a literary genius and he will give them an analogy, so that these people will perfectly understand. He will use an Old Testament analogy concerning the Passover feast.

Your boasting is not good is what Paul first says. The church should have excommunicated this man and mourned for him as one would mourn for a brother or a sister. They will now see the dire results to both this man and themselves. Paul's analogy to leaven will explain what the problem is. Paul does not want the influence of this man to spread throughout the congregation more than it already has. Don't you know that a little leaven leavens the whole lump of dough? He will go on to tell them to clean out the old leaven.

A veiled but ever-increasing influence of one over the others. There is a link between the literal meaning of leaven and the metaphorical meaning. The leaven permeates the dough and causes it to rise through a fermentation process. The metaphorical leaven also permeates and infects the entire congregation. Figuratively, the leaven expands the dough, whatever the dough represents. We'll need to see how leaven is used elsewhere.

Mark 8:15: the leaven of the pharisees and of Herod. The conservative religious group were the pharisees; they kept the Law and watched others to make sure that they kept the Law. They continually charged our Lord with breaking the Law. They were the keepers of the Law and they saw themselves as the arbiters of salvation. Their influence permeated the entire society. No one, of course, can keep the Law. The Law points out our failures. We realize that we need a Savior; we cannot save ourselves. We fall short of the standards of God. Of all people, the Jews could not keep the Law.

The Law was designed to govern the Jewish nation; it also revealed the Jews and how far short they fell of keeping the Law. The Pharisees made up all kinds of ways to convince themselves that they were keeping the Law. The leaven of the Pharisees was their influence, their legalism, their false teaching. They had a subtle, pervasive, corrupting control over society. Herod is also a part of the leaven. In Mark 8:15, this refers to the son of Herod the Great, Herod Antipas, the leader who had John the Baptist beheaded. His wife, Herodious, wanted John's head on a platter. Herod only wanted to talk to John, because he wanted power. He was bright and he knew the Law and the theology of the Messiah. The Jews were looking for someone who could free them from bondage to Rome. They wanted the Messiah to come so that they could be free at last. Herod was skeptical, but he did not want to see a Messiah. He did believe in Herod Antipas, and if anyone showed up claiming to be the Messiah, he knew that this would be a personal problem. Herod wanted to find out who these potential messiahs are and get rid of them.

Herod (another one I think) asked for Jesus to show him some miracles. Herod figured he was another fake and sent Him back to Pilate. He has no intention of believing in any messiah. "Keep them out of my domain. Herod's skepticism also spread throughout.

The pharisees liked to argue theology; the Sadducees were aristocrats; they were rationalist and Jewish aristocrats. They were involved with Temple ritual and administration. They did not believe in a spirit world or anything which was supernatural. They only believed in the Pentateuch, but not the rest of the Old Testament. They were totally opposed to Scripture.

The leaven of the Galatians in Gal. 5:9: a little leaven leavens the whole lump. False teachers were in Galatia called Judaizers and they taught nothing but legalism—salvation by works.

Leaven represents false teaching, false doctrine, legalism. It does not represent a person or persons. It represents evil and sin. In the case of the Corinthians, it represents the Corinthians sin and evil in their church.

Ζυμη = leaven. There is the malt liquor called Zuma, which is leaven. The verb is ζυμω = to leaven. The sin will infiltrate and permeate the dough. It will affect the whole lump of dough (which is not actually present in the Greek). The analogy corresponds to the literal meaning. Φυραμα = that which is mixed or kneaded. When the leaven and dough are mixed, together, we get a blended mix of dough. The metaphorical idea is that the lump has been mixed. Out of it will arise sin and evil, as the leaven is sin and evil. The lump represents the people of the Corinthian church. The deadbeats are the lump. The leaven, those who are sinful and evil, will permeate and affect the rest of the congregation.

Leaven

1. When arrogance is indulged for one person, which is the case of the incestuous man. The leaven then spreads throughout the whole body of the congregation—they are the lump.
2. It spreads to others with whom he mixes. Leaven permeates the entire lump; it does not stay in one place.
3. Or, arrogance and evil in one man tolerated and unchecked, infects and spoils the larger group. One rotten apple spreads to the rest.
4. The church does not reduce the evil of the leaven. They can only handle the leaven by cutting it out.
5. The evil of the leaven will alter the thinkings of individual believers in the church.
6. The leaven must be separated and not mixed in with the lump, or it will affect the whole lump.

This guy's life is about to end and he is being thrown out of the church. This man was causing huge problems and he had to be removed. Paul uses this analogy so everyone understands. Teaching by analogy allows the listener to easily recall what is being taught.

Excommunication

1. For a complex of sins.
2. For being a meddler.
3. For malicious vilification, gossip, maligning, attempt to destroy reputations.
4. For factionalism that divides the church.
5. For criminality.

Pope Bonasus and there was the issue of a disagreement. 13th century I think. The armies in those days were mercenaries. Philip IV needed an army. He decided to tax clerical income to get some cash. 1296 Bonopus said that no money could come from the cleric without their permission. Pope was the head of the church and Philip lost a great deal of income. Then Bon threw in salvation. The theology of the Roman church was fine up until the Middle Ages. Philip had to challenge this or he would lose. He was concerned that the pope would use theology to refute him. He brings charges against Bon. Bon was 86 years old. He was charged with sodomy, simony and murder; he failed to fast on fast day, etc. this was obviously a political ploy. The idea is, you throw enough mud against a wall and some would eventually stick. Bon pleaded no guilty, of course; and he wrote another bul, which excommunicated Philip from the church. This was his trump card; the last thing he could do is excommunicate Philip. Philip had to resort to force. Sept 7, 1303 seized the pope and imprisoned him. The citizens were incensed that the pope had been arrested and they freed him. The pope got out and died a month later. One bad leader and one bad religious leader led to poor doctrine in the church at Rome.

There was certainly a lot of politicking going on in the church in Corinth. This man needed to be excommunicated, but he wasn't. The leaven of evil within the church.

1Cor. 5:6 Your boasting is not good. Do you not know that a little leaven leavens the whole lump?

1Corinthians 5:6

Lesson #191 Thursday

July 7, 2005

The face of our enemies were seen today in London; they are barbaric. The greatest enemy to Christianity today is the false doctrine taught in our own ranks. No Muslim can defeat Christ or the client nation to God. We can defeat ourselves and we can defeat the client nation through reversionism, as the Corinthian believers were doing.

Ζυμω and ζυμη. The pronouncement of the sin unto death on this incestuous man. It is critical that this congregation understands exactly what is going on. Paul has given them the divine viewpoint on this situation. He chooses a one-word analogy: leaven. Vv. 6–8 is begun with a little leaven leavens the whole lump. Mark 8:15 mentions the leaven of the pharisees and of Herod.

The pharisees were puritans, essentially. Their forerunners were the reformers under Ezra and Nehemiah. They fought against apostasy between the Jews and heathenism. 458 B.C. time frame. The pharisees took upon themselves the duty of maintaining purity of life and of religion. The synagogue became a place of prayer and Scriptural. Hasidic is one description of Jews and it comes from chesid, which means unfailing love, grace. The Hasidic movement began only 200 years ago in Belarus and somewhere else in that general area. In the time of Christ, the pharisees were the religious party of the common people, where the Sadducees were the religious party of the aristocracy. By the time of Christ, the pharisees were a doctrinally corrupt organization, although they began as those who were for the preservation of the Torah. They became law-keepers, the epitome of legalism. As such, they opposed the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. They provided an evil alternative to faith in Jesus Christ. That was their evil influence. Herod the Great saw the signs of the Messiah when our Lord was born; he was a power-monger, so he did not want to be threatened. In this passage, it is his son, Herod Antipas. He opposed Christ as a trouble-maker, because He claimed to be the Messiah. The people were looking for a leader to break the back of Rome. The people only recalled the kingship aspect of the Messiah, but this did not understand the suffering servant aspect of the Messiah.

Herod never considered that Jesus Christ might be the Messiah, and he therefore acted accordingly. He asked for some signs and wonders. The leaven of Herod Antipas is his skepticism. Mark 8:15: leaven is the anti-grace evil of the pharisees and of the negative volition. The Sadducees were very secular in their outlook. Gal. 5:9 repeats our mantra.

The evil of legalism had become pervasive in that day. They preached legalism and keeping the Law.

The lump of dough represents people; particularly those of the Corinthian church at this point in time.

Leaven and Lump

1. When leaven in. The leaven of this incestuous guy. Arrogance and veil
2. The congregation is the lump.
3. Arrogance and legalism in one man spreads and affects others with whom he mixes.
4. Evil like this in one man, spoils the entire group.
5. Leaven will have an effect on the whole church. This man has to be excommunicated.
6. This is also true of a client nation to God.
7. Corporate purpose of the sin unto death in this case. It will get the incestuous man out of the way and throw a scare into the congregation.

Εκχθαιρω = .

The Passover plays a large part in this testimony. This was a celebration of the founding of the Jew. Herod wanted to kill all of the firstborn children, which is very similar to the same. For many, the communion means little or nothing. They just sit there and daydream.

How is leaven involved in the Passover. At this time, they purged all leaven from their homes, which represents separation from sin and evil.

Purging from Leaven

1. Represented the removal of sin.
2. This was designed to communicate to them. It explained why this was done to this "poor guy." Being forgiven of all unrighteousness.
3. It was the believer who was the true celebrant of the Passover. The purification was a critical point of the ritual. You could not participate unless you purged the leaven. You must purge the sin and evil before you could participate. This is also a cross-over point for Communion and Passover. You must rebound before participating.
4. These Corinthians have just seen the sin unto death pronounced, and they must realize that they must get rid of the leaven. Ex. 12:15. The Jews were meticulous in the things that they did. The search for leaven was scrupulously minute. Everywhere where they might be a little leaven, they found it. The penalty for having it or eating it was scourging—being whipped. 1Cor. 11:29. He who eats and drinks judgment to himself. He must judge the body rightly, or some will be weak, sickly and some will sleep. The Corinthians needed to know that they must purge sin and evil. The cleaning out of the old leaven of v. 7 is the purging of sin and evil of the incestuous man from their midst.

Heb. 12:1: Therefore since we also are surrounded with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which so easily besets us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking to Jesus the Author and Finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and sat down at the right of the throne of God. The spiritual life is our race. The sin which so easily besets us. Rebound and keep moving. Sin and evil in the incestuous life is the sin which entangled the Corinthians. They have to clean out the old leaven, which means they have to rebound. They have to un-entangle themselves by doctrine. Paul tells them that he has physically gotten rid of this guy, now they must remove this leaven from their souls. You must disentangle yourself from those who are filled with sin and evil. Now, you may not be able to physically separate yourself; but you can do this in your own soul. This includes intimate relationships with those who would seduce you with human viewpoint, which is the epitome of leaven. We are to keep our eyes on the prize; we are to keep our eyes on the great purpose in life, which is to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ.

1Cor. 5:6 Your boasting is not good. Do you not know that a little leaven leavens the whole lump?

1Corinthians 5:6

Lesson #192 Communion Sunday 1

July 10, 2005

We are studying Paul's leaven analogy. A little leaven leavens the whole lump. Any church which is fragmented is facing this problem. The Holy Spirit can take one word and provide us with an entire lesson on the spiritual life. The metaphorical meaning of leaven is evil, sin and reversionism. In our passage, reversionism is the proper understanding of leaven.

The lump of dough refers to the people of a congregation. This can be further applied to all believers in the Church Age. When evil and reversionism is indulged, then arrogance and evil expand and infiltrates the entire congregation. Arrogance and evil in one person can permeate and spread to others with whom he mixes. Evil which is indulged instead of purged infects the entire group. Paul does not want the Corinthians to be further fragmented. Paul excommunicates this incestuous man, because he is the leaven. It is time for the leaven to be purged. Before the holy day and celebratory feast time, a house had to be purged of leaven. This is parallel to a believer rebounding. Communion and the Passover are two parallel rituals; one is before the cross, the other after the cross. We cannot celebrate our Lord's work on the cross out of fellowship; the results can be quite disastrous. Sick, weak is the result of those who do not purge their souls of leaven.

The incestuous man is destroying the congregation because he is the rotten apple in the barrel; his evil, sin and reversionism causes problems for the congregation. He is permeating the congregation. Evil must be purged. He suffers from a complex of sins. Heb. 12:1: Therefore since we also are surrounded with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which so easily besets us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking to Jesus the Author and Finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and sat down at the right of the throne of God. For consider Him who endured such contradiction of sinners against Himself, lest you be weary and faint in your minds. You have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin. And you have forgotten the exhortation which speaks to you as to sons, "My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when you are rebuked by Him; for whom the Lord loves He chastens, and

He scourges every son whom He receives." Carnality and human viewpoint are the leaven.

1Cor. 5:6 Your boasting is not good. Do you not know that a little leaven leavens the whole lump?

1Corinthians 5:7

Lesson #193 Sunday 2

July 10, 2005

ἵνα + the subjunctive is a purpose clause. The purpose is to make the congregation a new lump. Advancing toward experiential sanctification, which is a theological term for the progression toward maturity for the believer during his physical life. It is the experience of the magnificent spiritual life which God set for us. Experiential sanctification is synonymous spiritual maturity. It involves the filling of the Holy Spirit, the inculcation of Bible doctrine, and finally, building the edification complex and utilizing the problem solving devices. The process of spiritual growth is the disentangling of one from the leaven of life. Paul calls these people unleavened. As a congregation, this congregation is filled with evil, sin, power lust, etc. However, Paul calls them unleavened. He continues his analogy. Unleavened means without sin and evil. Experientially certainly they aren't.

Why Does Paul call them Unleavened? Paul is continuing to teach the lesson. He issues a reminder to them of who they are in Christ.

The Concept of the Corinthians being Unleavened

1. They have a position in Christ; an unleavened status.
2. They have been pronounced holy at the moment of faith in Christ.
3. In other words, they are unleavened. Positionally, they are sanctified. 1Cor. 1:2, 30.
4. They are positionally sanctified because they have imputed +R in them. They don't deserve it but they have it. They are justified and sanctified.
5. In positional sanctification, they have a permanent, eternal relationship with Jesus Christ. This is very hard for legalists to understand. We are holy.
6. God cannot reject His perfect +R ever. God cannot reject His perfect righteousness which he put inside each of us.
7. Therefore, the possessor of perfect +R is accessible to God forever.
8. That is the connection between justification and positional sanctification.
9. We are declared holy by God—that is positional sanctification—because we share His righteousness.
10. Growth is a believer's spiritual advance and making their positional sanctification line up more with experiential sanctification.

Why are Believers Unleavened

1. Believers are unleavened as they are positionally sanctified and justified. We are purge of our unrighteousness by God.

2. When we are positionally sanctified, we receive a potential—the potential of the unique spiritual life.
3. So the unleavened analogy is positional sanctification. It does not stop here.
4. To be unleavened experientially, one must rebound and advance in the spiritual life. As the leaven is taken out, the evil, reversionism and sin stop rising.

The Corinthian believers are unleavened positionally, but not in action. Paul wants them to move forward spiritually. The unleavened status and the unleavened experience. There is always a connection. There is a connection with every aspect of the spiritual life. We are given certain things which are always ours. You cannot lose what God gives you (the exception is the filling of the Holy Spirit).

The final portion of this verse is the basis for our being unleavened and a new lump. We need to understand a little theology. The Passover lamb of the Old Testament history. Physical and spiritual death are all conquered. He reconciled man to God. Jesus Christ propitiated the wrath of God by the cross. “Christ, our Passover lamb, has been slain for us.” Christ, as the lamb of God, takes away the sins of the world.

Pre-salvation sins are all forgiven at the moment of faith in Christ. Jesus Christ also secured the assets of rebound and the spiritual life by His death on the cross. He laid the foundation for rebound and spiritual growth.

We still have a propensity for sin Christ paid the penalty for all sins. This includes pre and post-salvation sins; rebound is the non Meritorious. All of our personal sins are forgiven at salvation.

Why is rebound necessary if sins have already been paid for.

1. The penalty for sins is removed once and for all at the cross
2. The repercussions of personal sin in the life must be confronted. Carnality, reversionism, leaven.
3. When we sin, we lose the filling of the Holy Spirit and we are no longer in fellowship with Jesus Christ.
4. It takes Christ on the cross to activate rebound.
5. Another repercussion is there can be no fellowship with any member of the Trinity without rebound. There is the indwelling of Holy Spirit.
6. We always have a relationship with God; but we are not always in fellowship with Him.
7. The repercussions of our sin nature must be faced as we grow. Pre salvation sins are gone. Never look back.
8. Rebound is this:
  - a. It is our access to intimacy with the Lord (or fellowship).
  - b. We can confess our sins and enjoy complete cleansing.

- c. Rebound is our license to serve the Lord. He has given us this option. It is access to everything we need to get through life and to grow spiritually. It is connected with the salvation package 1Cor. 5:7 Therefore purge out the old leaven so that you may be a new lump, as you are unleavened. For also Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us.

July 17, 2005

Terrific morning storm today.

These 3 verses are a succinct and revealing commentary on our spiritual life.

Leaven is the result of evil and carnality in a church. When these ingredients are added to a believer's soul, human viewpoint rises in their soul. That leaven acts as a catalyst for the destruction of one's life. The leaven is reversionism; the lump of dough is us. We are malleable, we can be kneaded. We can be permeated by leaven and rise to a full-blown reversionism. The leaven of arrogance and Satan's cosmic system can be very attractive. We can cultivate close associations with like-minded believers, or we can be a groupie of human viewpoint and allow human viewpoint to invade our lives. Heb. 12:1–2: Therefore since we also are surrounded with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which so easily besets us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking to Jesus the Author and Finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and sat down at the right of the throne of God. Our endurance comes from our faithfulness and spiritual growth. Paul did use running the race analogy in other places, which is one reason he is thought to be the writer of this book. This one man who was incestuous and his complex of sins infected the entire congregation. They must disentangle themselves from the cosmic system by immersing themselves in doctrine. They must recall what they know from their souls. They were not filled with the Spirit; they were filled with carnality, so doctrine was useless to them (they could not recall it or bring it to mind). They must be led to a change of mind or the change of a way of thinking. That is repentance. Rebound is the means of that change of mind. You move from human viewpoint to divine viewpoint. When the mind of Christ is applied under the filling of the Holy Spirit, there is no room for the leaven of human viewpoint. It is forced out. Corinth is a congregation filled with leaven. Paul tells them about their failure in this analogy. We are either leavened or unleavened. Becoming disentangled is something which we do on a personal level; however, the church was affected by this sin on a corporate level. The corporate body of the church must disentangle from those who would create havoc.

Disentangle

1. Disentangle those who exert a human viewpoint influence on the decisions that we make in life.
2. We must disentangle from those purveyors of human viewpoint who hold a subtle, pervasive control over our thinking.
3. We must disentangle from the influence of those who discourage and disrupt our spiritual life.
4. This includes those relationships with people who seduce you with cosmic system viewpoint. You will become entangled and you do not even know it. This sometimes means physical separation from these. If physical separation is not possible, then we must identify and separate from the viewpoint and the thinking that is evil and detrimental to our spiritual life.

1Cor. 5:6b Do you not know that a little leaven leavens the whole lump?

Without doctrine in your soul, you can be easily seduced by the leaven of cosmic viewpoint. There is attractive and sophisticated human viewpoint. There are those who present cultured, clever human viewpoint. Paul tells the Corinthians that they are unleavened, which is reversionism. Now, we know that the Corinthians are filled with reversionism. He is saying they are without leaven, meaning they are without sin. They are ultimately leavened people and Paul calls them unleavened (v. 7). Paul calls them unleavened for a specific reason and purpose. He is issuing them a reminder of who they are in Christ. As unleavened, they are positionally sanctified. The Corinthians are not holy, but Paul calls them sanctified, because at the moment of salvation they were made holy. They are given the righteousness of God the moment they believed in Christ. They had a permanent, eternal relationship with the Lord. We are declared holy, just as we are declared righteous. The possessor of God's righteousness is acceptable to God forever. We are judicially declared righteous by God, and therefore, we are sanctified and holy. In that respect, the Corinthians are unleavened. We are sanctified and justified. This is positional sanctification here. Paul is not talking about how they act and what motivates them. He speaks of how they stand before God.

We must then progress in the spiritual life, which means to rebound and then to grow spiritually. This is moving toward an experiential holiness. To become unleavened, we must purge the leaven from our life. Even if we never experience sanctification, we are always positionally sanctified. Position means that we will ultimately be sanctified. The Corinthians need this reminder; they need to be reminded of the grace of God. Paul wants them to understand that they are unleavened. They have retained the old leaven, meaning that they are out of fellowship.

Paul wants them to understand and then to act on what they understand. Two parts to this: you need to understand what is right and then you need to apply what you know. The old lump is leavened and the new lump is unleavened.

1Cor. 5:7a Therefore purge out the old leaven so that you may be a new lump, as you are unleavened.

This phrase is what makes the difference between us being leavened or unleavened. There is no positional sanctification apart from Jesus Christ. Forgiveness and purging from all pre-salvation sins occurs at the moment of salvation. The substitutionary work of the Lord Jesus Christ takes us beyond. Without Christ, we had none of this.

1Cor. 5:7b For also Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us.

1Corinthians 5:7b

Lesson #195 Sunday 2

July 17, 2005

It is always a good thing to hear basic doctrine again. When basic doctrine is given, then it is a time for us to examine whether or not it is a part of our soul; if we understand it completely and apply it. The atonement of Jesus Christ provides everything for us; not just salvation and purging and forgiveness of sins, but the cleansing of sins by rebound and experiential sanctification.

Review:

1. Pre-salvation sins are purged at the moment of faith in Christ. When Christ paid the penalty, they were no longer a barrier.
2. We still commit sins after we are saved.
3. Christ paid the penalty for all sins, including those committed after salvation. Jesus Christ died for the entire spectrum of sins and He died for every person who has ever lived.
4. Scripture has designated rebound to purge us from post-salvation sins, which are leaven in our life. People sometimes ask, "What is the point of rebound if Christ paid for all of our sins?" First of all, we cannot ignore John 1:9. Rebound is so obviously directed toward believers, it is mandated, even though it is a 3rd class condition. Rebound is powerless apart from the atoning work of Jesus Christ. That is the penalty for rebound working.
5. Why is rebound necessary, if our sins have been paid for?
  - a. The penalty for sin is removed once and for all by the cross. The penalty of sin is eternal, spiritual death. Theologically, it means separation from God. All kinds of death in the Bible.
  - b. Even though the sins have been paid for, there are repercussions for personal sins in the life of the believer.
  - c. What repercussions? When a believer sins, he loses fellowship with God and the filling of the Holy Spirit. Without that, we have no temporal relationship with God. We have an eternal advantage, but no temporal advantage.

- d. We are no longer empowered for the spiritual life apart from rebound. If we do not have the power for the spiritual life, we have no spiritual life.
- e. No fellowship with any member of the Trinity when we are out of fellowship.
- f. Rebound is the only means of restoring fellowship and cancelling the repercussions. Another repercussion is discipline, which you might be under. Rebound turns cursing to blessing.
- g. Rebound is the only means compatible with grace. Man comes up with all kinds of options for purging themselves from sin. The middle ages are filled with these things. Some became monks, some castrated themselves.
- h. Rebound is our access to Him and our gateway and our license to serve Him. Rebound is for our benefit to live the spiritual life rather than to sin with impunity. God knows our hearts and will deal with us.

6. Rebound:

- a. A believer using rebound is citing sins which have already been judged.
- b. When Christ died, the sins that we committed previously are no longer a barrier. Sins mean we fall short of the glory of God. All of these sins are a barrier to us on the cross.
- c. Post-salvation sins are no longer a barrier to fellowship with God in time, because of rebound.
- d. Rebound provides the removal of the barrier of post-salvation sins and fellowship with God.
- e. The substitutionary spiritual death of Jesus Christ is the basis for rebound.
- f. Based upon the unlimited atonement of Christ, these sins are covered.
- g. Sins will not be the basis for the condemnation of the unbeliever at the Great White Throne judgement.
- h. Based upon this unlimited atonement of Christ, He must forgive us for the sins that we commit. If God forgives us of our sins, then we need to forgive ourselves as well. That is, we should not nurture guilt. People go to psychiatrists and to pastors because you have guilt, but we need to get rid of that guilt.
- i. Once we have rebounded, God is absolutely just and fair to forgive post-salvation sins and to fellowship with us as cleansed from sin. This is all based upon the work of Jesus Christ.
- j. This is the grace basis behind the rebound technique. By grace, we are given salvation and by grace we are given rebound in order to be in fellowship with God.
- k. The atoning work of Jesus Christ on the cross is the basis for forgiveness and purifying us of all pre-salvation sins and all post-salvation sins.

The Passover Represents 3 Things:

1. The purging of pre-salvation sins.
2. Rebound, the purging of post-salvation sins.
3. With the purging of post-salvation sins and experiencing fellowship means that we experience unleavening.

When the Jews celebrated Passover, before the lamb was slain, the house was purged of leaven. The Jews had to prepare. They had to purge their homes of all leaven and leavened bread. There are crumbs all over; they had to go after all of those. Passover could not be celebrated unless one was purged from all leaven. This is a picture of rebound. It is like rebound prior to celebrating the Eucharist.

The Corinthians house was not cleansed; corporately and personally, they needed to cleanse themselves with rebound. They had not taken advantage of what needed to be purged through rebound. The intricacy of Paul's analogy. When we think of leaven, we should think of our spiritual life and what God has provided. Paul provided for us a memorable moment. We are new lumps when purged of pre-salvation sins. We fall into the unleavened status. We are positionally sanctified. We are a new lump and we also become a new lump through rebound. If we continue as leaven after salvation, then we live in contradiction with the sacrifice of Jesus' atonement. We do not utilize the work of His atonement. If we do not live with the benefits of what Jesus has done, then we waste what He has done for us. Our condition is parallel to that of the Corinthians.

One last comparison. For Israel, Passover day was the first day of the 7 day feast of Unleavened Bread. Each feast of Israel expressed a theological statement. All of these feasts are shadow expressions of what will come. The Feast of Weeks or Pentecost, which consecrated the first harvest to God. That which was most important was set apart to God. Today, it represents the formation of the Church. The Feast of Tabernacles commemorates the 40 years that Israel lived in the desert. Those complaining Jews deserved nothing; they complained and bitched. They got scared when Joshua scouted out the land, and wandered in the desert for 40 years. The Feast of Tabernacles teaches them about their spiritual life, if they are willing to learn.

The Feast of Trumpets. This celebrated Israel's regathering to the land. Everyone gathered when they heard the trumpets. This represents Israel regathering to the land after a long period of time away from the land. They rebuilt the walls and the Temple, which was torn down in 70 A.D. The Jews in Israel are not what God promised in the regathering. In future times, this speaks of Jesus regathering all of Israel to the Land of Promise and He ushers in the Millennium.

Christ is called the 2nd Adam, as He was born without an old sin nature and with a human spirit. The Feast of Unleavened Bread speaks of redemption in Christ and His atoning work on our behalf. The Atonement of Christ is efficacious because He was without sin.

The Passover

1. Passover represents the sacrifice of our Lord as the spotless Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world.
2. The preparation for Passover paves the way for our spiritual life.
3. The Passover Feast represents the believer celebrating redemption in Christ and deliverance from eternal condemnation.
4. The rest of the feast days of unleavened bread represent remaining unleavened through rebound and epistemological rehabilitation. The days of this feast represent our life. One moment, the Passover feast, and then 6 days, our lives, the feast days of unleavened bread.

1Cor. 5:7b For also Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us.

1Corinthians 5:8

Lesson #196 Wednesday

July 20, 2005

The analogy is solely the post salvation removal of leaven. It refers to finding each and every crumb of leaven and remove it. Leaven represents reversionism, something which the Corinthians were closely involved with.

The first purging is that of pre-salvation sins; the second purging is the removal of post-salvation sins. The getting rid of the leaven after salvation. This purging is rebound. It is the rebound technique. Rebound removes sin in the life so that we can have fellowship. This is the full analogy of vv. 6–8.

Heotrazô = the feast of unleavened bread. Subjunctive mood is hortatory. Paul is inviting the reader to join him in a course of action. He wants others to join him in the feast of unleavened bread. Obviously, the passover is involved. The Feast of Unleavened bread is closely associated with Passover. This is not for us to celebrate literally. Church Age believers do not practice the shadow rituals of the Old Testament. These rituals looked forward to Jesus Christ and it taught them about the spiritual life they would live. These are shadows which foresaw what would happen. Jesus Christ has been here in the 1st Advent.

This is not a literal invitation; Paul is not calling upon the Corinthians to join him in celebrating an Old Testament feast. Unleavened bread is simply a feast around the time of Passover. These feasts looked forward to what would occur. Passover began after the 10th plague in Egypt. The Jews were to paint the lintels of their doors with the blood of the Passover lamb. For unbelievers, these simply became rituals without reality. Unbelieving Jews could not comprehend then what it meant.

Communion looks back to Christ and celebrates what He did. It is the Church Age equivalent to the Passover. At the moment of faith in Christ, the believer is passed over when it comes to condemnation. Free to glorify the Lord and to live the spiritual life.

The 6 days represent what come after redemption. These 6 days of the unleavened bread celebration is analogous to the Christian life. As believers in Jesus Christ, we must continue to be unleavened. The Jews prior to the feast of unleavened bread, they completely purged their homes of all leaven, crumbs and all. Then they were ready for the passover to celebrate the redemption. They celebrated the status of being unleavened.

I am purged of leaven and I continue in my life as unleavened. It is not just a position but also a progress. Passover is salvation and redemption; the release from condemnation. Unleavened bread is the Christian life. The analogy is celebrating the feast; it is equivalent to the life of the redeemed. This is a metaphor for the Christian life.

Paul's Use of the Old Testament Feasts

1. All of the Old Testament applies directly to us as an analogy. Paul is not equating the spiritual life of the Old Testament with the spiritual life of New Testament believers.
2. Paul is using Old Testament things to represent New Testament things.
3. He is using the prophetic to teach New Testament truth.
4. We keep the feast of unleavened bread by rebound. Then we isolate our sins, so that fellowship is maintained for progressively longer periods of time. We isolate sin so that we don't become a chain smoker of sin. Lighting one sin on another. This person never escapes carnality. Confessed one's sin, and flubs up again.

It is the same thing, lighting one sin on another. You worry about that sin; you have anxiety about that sin. You feel sorry about it or you become bitter about it; you have a chain of mental attitude sins working. You might revisit the sin as a pattern of sins that you cannot seem to resist. Or you go back and revisit your skeleton in the closet, a sin which bothers you from ten years ago. Your guilt is a constant reminder of your failure. This is why guilt is such a corrupting mental attitude sin. It is the epitome of chain sinning.

When people feel guilty, they will do almost anything to get rid of it. Just unload it and you will feel better about it, is what the world teaches. The guilt remains; you cannot seem to get rid of it. Some will recall an incident for years, but God has forgiven and blotted out that sin. God has taken care of it. It is over.

When rebound does not seem to cut it, then you learn to isolate your sins.

Revisiting David and Bathsheba. David did not go to war with his army. He is in Jerusalem and he is bored so he hangs out on the roof and sees Bathsheba. He is struck with a wandering eye. He needs something to do. His eye stops on Bathsheba on the roof. Then he goes from a mental attitude sin to an overt sin. David may have even raped her. He at least fornicated with her. Then he had her husband murdered. His life was miserable for years after that. It takes us down the hard road because we don't forget it.

When you are carnal, you cannot advance. Once you name your sin, you must isolate it.

How Do You Isolate a Sin

1. Once you confess a sin, the problem is in the hands of the Lord. He will deal with it, but, first and foremost, you are forgiven.
2. The sin no longer belongs to us; Jesus Christ paid for it. You named it and that sin is purged.
3. What right do we have to cry, feel guilty and to look back? We have no right to look back, to rattle the skeletons.
4. Let's get a perspective on grace. An a fortiori argument:
  - a. If God did the most for the human race on the cross; paid the penalty for our sins and purged us from sin, then how could He not forgive us for this or that failure on our part.
  - b. If God forgive us, then we need to forgive ourselves.
5. Failure to isolate our sin is a slap in the face of the grace of God. We have no right not to. If Jesus Christ has forgiven us, then we need to.
6. We do not purge ourselves. There is nothing that we can do to purge ourselves of sin.. We're called to share the happiness of God.

Sin must be isolated after rebound.

A Different Perspective

1. The act of rebound is easy to accomplish. It is no big deal. You may or may not
2. You've missed the point if we think of this incorrectly.
3. We will not have to rebound every 5 minutes as we advance. It does not last forever as long as we advance.
4. Rebound sets us up for the power of advancing. The longer we can retain the filling of the Spirit, we can advance
5. The more we advance and the farther we advance, the less we will have to rebound. The more we advance, the less time we spend in carnality.
6. As maturity increases, time spent out of fellowship is reduced. That is a spiritual axiom.
7. This does not mean that we are speaking about perfection. We will always sin with an old sin nature.
8. Progressively reduce the time you spend in carnality. It is a circular concept.
Growth

you begin to understand your place in the plan of God, which is spiritual self-esteem. An example: if we begin to operate in the realm of impersonal love. Once it is in operation, those who got us out of fellowship. As you grow, your enemies have progressively less impact on you. Isolation of sin means more time spent in fellowship; the more you advance, the less time you spend in carnality.

1Cor. 5:8 Therefore let us keep the feast; not with old leaven, nor with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Paul is using the Old Testament feast to illustrate our Christian life. It tells us about our Christian life. We symbolically celebrate Passover, which is the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread. We celebrate this by means of faith alone in Christ alone. The following 6 days are what occur after salvation. This would be the whole spectrum of the Christian life, from birth to death.

We must get rid of the old leaven. This is purged by rebound. The Holy Spirit then controls our soul. The act of rebound is the easiest thing to do. Even a 4 year old can do that. The difficult part is maintaining the fellowship for an ever lengthening period of time after rebound. Some rebound and are back out of fellowship in 30 seconds. That is not enough time to grow. You cannot advance if you continue to stay in carnality. You must get to the point where rebound begins to stick, where you don't have to rebound every 30 seconds. We are looking to maintaining the status of fellowship. Spirituality and spiritual advance, although different phases, are in separately united.

Summary Points

1. Rebound is the status of purging the old leaven based on the power provided by the Holy Spirit to do so.
2. Spiritual advance is the experience of purging the old leaven. As we advance spiritually, we have the experience of purging the old leaven. This is based on the power of the Holy Spirit to do so.
3. What must be purged is sin by rebound and the possibility of reversionism by living the spiritual life.

To maintain fellowship, you cannot just stop with rebound. Simply rebounding does not make you advance. The technique to accomplish this is called isolation of sin. When you rebound, then you must forget the sin. That is all isolation of sin is. You name it and forget it. If you cannot forget it, it will be perpetuated. If you don't, you will light one sin on another. Do not revisit the sin.

How to Isolate a Sin

1. Do not worry or become anxious over the sin or the results of that sin.
2. Do not feel guilty over the sin.
3. Simply forget the sin after you name it.
4. Don't jump back into the sin, even if you like it a lot. "If I've got to sin, I might as well I do one that I really like." You have a problem when you indulge the preference of your old sin nature.
5. When you worry about a sin or feel guilty, then you are slapping Jesus Christ in the face after naming that sin.
6. The sin, after rebound, no longer belongs to us. We no longer own it. We don't have to look back and become concerned about it.

7. God does not discipline for a sin from ten years ago, but for the chain of sins that you have lit on that sin afterwards.

Always, if there is a repercussion after rebound, it is for our benefit. Don't look back, don't feel guilty, and don't think about the repercussions. The more that we advance, the less time that we spend in carnality. As maturity increases, conversely, the time spent out of fellowship is lessened. The endless cycle continues as you move toward the high ground of maturity. We begin in carnality, move to rebound, and then we have the filling of the Holy Spirit. When we isolate and stay in fellowship for awhile, then we can metabolize doctrine. If the cycle is longer, then you have a greater chance of advancing. The better you can isolate the sin, the more you advance. If you cannot isolate the sin, and you go back to carnality and stay there, then you are retreating.

In Bible class, you have a good environment for concentration. It is easier to rebound and remain in fellowship. You can often metabolize for one solid hour. The longer period of time you are in fellowship, the greater the window of opportunity for metabolizing doctrine. The window is open and you dive through it until it slams shut. Isolation of sin is so key. Only by isolating sin can you utilize to the fullest God's provisions. You use grace apparatus for perception

How is this Isolation Done? What are the Mechanics? Faith-rest drill. Every believer can use this whether mature or immature. The faith-rest drill is all about relaxing. You name the sin, and then you exercise faith-rest. The faith-rest drill is one of the keys of isolating and maintaining your spiritual life. Philip. 3:13–14: My brothers, I do not count myself to have taken possession, but one thing I do, forgetting the things behind and reaching forward to the things before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Paul is the most spiritual believer who has ever lived and he tells us here that there will always be a cycle in his life. He has not laid hold of it yet, as we never lay hold of perfection. If Paul stopped advancing, then he would retreat.

It is never perfection, but it is always spiritual advance. It is like golf; it requires practice. Never look back on any sin. That is a sign of spiritual weakness. You have divine permission to move on and for a great reason. And you reach forward to what lies ahead. What lies ahead is growing up, maturing. Serving the Lord. Maturity is the goal or the prize. It is all the rewards which are given at the bama seat.

You get perspective when you live your life in the light of eternity. We have the resources to deal with everything which God brings our way.

1. The old leaven is carnality and domination of the old sin nature over the soul. We know now this means the cycle ends.
2. There is no symbolic celebration of the feast of unleavened bread when we are out of fellowship. Naming you sins gives you the opportunity to advance.

Genitive of aposition, which means the leaven and malice designate the same thing. The leaven of malignity. It means leaven = malignity. That is what aposition means. One describes the other. The leaven is partially mental attitude sins. They are malignancy of soul. They are the foundation for the foundation of every other sin which we light on another. If you want to be the object of hate, then just cross someone; they will express hostility like you cannot believe. You will know that you are dealing with an immature and an arrogant believer. What is in the mentality of your soul? Κακια? If someone can make you hostile in two seconds, then they are arrogant and immature. To avoid being hostile, the metabolize doctrine and advance.

Armondo Garcia a missionary in Costa Rica and Nicaragua. He handles the Spanish publications and was involved in a jail ministry.

He sat in Berachah for 32 years. He has all his notes on computer with trunks and trunks of notes. The only reason we are alive is because we have been invited on a tour. The director of this tour is God the Father. We can love Him only through the intake of doctrine. If we don't take doctrine every day, we cannot procede. We cannot move forward. We move forward is a state of commemoration. It is supernatural. The freedom is what we think. It is not the circumstances. We have to remember that we left the garden a long time ago. Adversity is inevitable. We return to the garden of Eden in our own souls.

John 16:32–34 I ask you not to take them out of the world. There is affliction in this world. Separate them in Your truth.

Those in Costa Rica, Russia, Nicaragua, etc. all have soul life, but they are spiritually dead. If any member of the human race anywhere wants to know God, God will bring him the gospel.

Many are positive to the gospel. However, there are nations who are affected by the negative volition of the believers. In every village in Nicaragua, there will be 3 or 6 believers there. 155,000 died today? He teaches 3 times a week in a home.

When we enjoy something, then we want to share this. He spends time along the coast in Costa Rica and he finds evangelical churches and he wants to give the pastor the message so that they can teach. He leaves them a package. A group of booklets. He names these off. Never in the history of the Church Age has it been so easy to get so many books on theology. Presenting the gospel is merely a privilege.

He teaches in 3 prisons. Each prisoner can only have 4 tapes a week and the tapes have to go out in order to get more tapes. The Catholic Church is a way to express negative volition. It is the first denomination and it is filled with idolatry. What he runs into often is Pentecostalism, and there they are jumping around like grasshoppers.

The simplicity of the Christian life is astounding to Bobby; it is simple, but not necessarily easy to accomplish. We still have several enemies: the old sin nature and Satan and his demon corps. Every road block that we can imagine will be put in our way, to upset us and to promote human viewpoint in our souls. Advancing to the high ground of spiritual maturity is how we glorify God. Our advance will never go unchallenged; in many cases, we are our own worst enemies. But there are also those external attacks as well. Our internal and external enemies. These attacks are designed to slow our advance.

In between all of this, there is a life to lead, and there are personal and professional things in our life which seem to be detached, but they are not. Everything in our life can be a part of our glorification of God. If we focus on the mechanics of that life, and persevere in executing these mechanics, then that is all our focus needs to be.

Rebound is the gateway to our spiritual life. We have the metabolization of doctrine, which is grace apparatus for perception. Recently, we studied the edification complex. 25 years ago, this was called the divine dynasphere. Spiritual advance has also been described as problem solving devices. These are all different names which are synonymous with the spiritual life. The FLOT line of the soul. We are mandated as believers to fulfill the Christian way of life.

Bobby is focusing on the isolation of sin. Rebound is critical, but it is often a catch-all. However, it is a problem if you continually find yourself out of fellowship. Then you do not have much time to grow spiritually. 1Cor. 5:5–8 is the leaven analogy, which kicked all of this off. Leaven is the opposition to the spiritual life. Unleavened is a position in Christ, and it can also be our experience as well. Faith alone in Christ alone makes us positionally unleavened. Isolation of sin maintains and sustains the experience.

To reach spiritual maturity, we must metabolize doctrine. You never stop your education of God's word. Illustration of golf—you never stop learning and you never stop improving. You cannot metabolize doctrine without the filling of the Holy Spirit. Grace apparatus for perception will not work without the Holy Spirit. We have it, but it is inert without the power to make it work. Continually getting in and out of fellowship, every few minutes, it does very little for us. The trick is to maintain and increase the time in the Spirit. You cannot go back and revisit an old sin. Once you have committed a sin and confessed it, then you are done with it. If you continue to sin, then you often fall into a guilt complex, which does not allow you to isolate your sins and move on. You must not repeatedly indulge in your old sin nature trends; you must actively oppose it. Chain sinning is death to our spiritual life, which is why it is imperative to isolate these sins. Rebound is not enough; we have to grow as well. You might be out of fellowship too often to advance. Rebound and do not revisit the sin you committed.

It is all part of God's plan, good, bad and indifferent. God has designed it so that we can advance and that we can deal with every problem in life. The greater the opportunity for metabolizing doctrine is based upon isolating previous sins. The longer we are filled with the Holy Spirit, the more we can metabolize and advance. We are here on this earth to advance.

V. 8 is Paul's conclusion to his leaven analogy. Celebrating the feast is an invitation, not a mandate (it is in the subjunctive mood). The Unleavened Bread feast is what we are dealing with as the analogy. It is a 6 day feast, which represents the extent of our spiritual life (I think it represents the extent of our life). There is redemption, illustrated by the Passover; and our spiritual life, illustrated by the spiritual life.

We should not feast with the old leaven. There is no celebration when the old sin nature controls the life. We cannot celebrate with the old leaven.

Two Greek words manifest the leave: κακία = malice, ill will, malignity. In the genitive case, a genitive of apposition. This is critical for our understanding. Leaven and malice and malignity go together. Κακία is the malignancy which goes with the old sin nature. Paul is reiterating the particular leaven in Corinth and tells us about the way that they think. This all leads to judging a maligning. This church has gone through all the stages of leaven and it is not working out for them.

Ποναρία = leaven (by comparison). As a general term, this refers to over sins, whereas κακία more deals with over sins. The spiritual life can only be lived in the status of spirituality. Most people cannot distinguish between spirituality and one's spiritual life. Spirituality is the status of being in fellowship.

4 genitives of apposition in this verses; all with leaven. Specific aspects are defined by these words. Ειλικρινηα = sunshine + . Eileen means sunny. Κρισις which is judgment. What we have here is judgment by the sun.

1. Connotation is the test the purity of an object by holdin I up outside, in the rays of the sun.
2. Any impurity will be seen with this intense light.
3. What is being tested is rebound and the spiritual life.
4. When the sun shines through the unleavened bread, it reveals o mental attitude sins
5. No κακια or ποναρια.

1Corinthians 5:8b–11

Lesson #199 Sunday 2

July 24, 2005

ειλικρινεια = judgement of the sun, purity of motives. The Corinthians have no pure motives because they are not advancing. Through our flaws, we can still advance. Rebound and then the isolation of sin. Then our motives become pure. We know why we do things; we know for what purpose we do this or that. We know if we are driven by mental attitude sins or by the Word of God. We know this because we know the standards set by the Word of God. This is the sunshine shining through us. We are unleavened positionally, but whether we live that way is an option. Paul had the gift of Apostleship; and we also have our own spiritual gift, and Bible doctrine is powerful. Nothing is more powerful than doctrine in our souls. There is no problem in our soul that we cannot deal with. Sunlight refers to the absolute standard of Bible doctrine. It is the unleavened bread of pure motivation.

The second genitive is ἀλήθεια = truth, absolute standard of Bible doctrine, truth in our soul from Bible doctrine. This grows in the soul. The unleavened believer with the pure motives of doctrine in the soul lives and applies that truth. This is the celebration of the unleavened bread.

1Cor. 5:8 ...but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

The next 3 verses are one paragraph. There is a separation from certain categories. Paul had apparently given the Corinthians some previous instructions in writing. This refers to a letter written previously; it is not 1 Corinthians.

Why is this is a Previous Letter?

1. The verb I wrote is the aorist active indicative, 1st person singular of γράφω = to write, to draw.
2. This aorist is epistolary; an epistolary aorist.
3. This means that Paul as the writer is putting himself in the place of his readers.
4. He describes his letter from the time frame of the audience.
5. He describes as past that which to himself is present. A past correspondence which he is now reviving. It is now part of his current correspondence. He wrote something in the past which he is now writing again.
6. I wrote (Aorist active indicate) is something he did in the past.
7. He wrote about things which the Corinthians were aware of in the past.
8. I am re-writing something to you which I wrote to you before.
9. There is a general address here. The excommunication of the incestuous man is a specific example of the types they were to avoid. We know that this is something which Paul wrote before.
10. Paul is referring to some other document; not the epistle that he is writing right now.
11. They were very arrogant and for whatever reason, they ignored it. They may have tossed it out. They may refuse to let it be taught. Paul's previous letter had been completely disregarded.

That previous document has been lost to us; none of us will never read that letter, but we don't get to see it. It is no longer in existence. Hard to think of an inspired writing of Paul, and it is gone. Someone in the Corinthian church probably put it into file 13. The Apostle Paul wrote hundreds of letters; and only a handful still exist. We have here what we need; Paul repeats himself. The epistles in the Bible are not the only one.

Lost Letters

1. These letters were never designed for the churches to come. Only the epistles that we have.
2. Many were probably designed to answer a specific Direction. The Corinthians had some unique problems.
3. Quite possibly the directions in the previous letter are included in the epistle that we do have. All the information we need to know is found in what we have.
4. If a letter has been lost, it was not intended by God to be in the canon.
5. This epistle has a universal message to every generation of the Church Age.
6. The fact that this epistle is in the Word of God, mean that it is designed for us. He wrote this letter to us; he wrote in the past, but it has present meaning for us.
7. 1Cor. 8:1 12:1 and several other passages refer to this previous letter.

We are currently dealing with separation from immoral people; sex before marriage, eating food offered to idols. Spiritual gifts monetary offerings. All of these are parts of question then and now. "I am going to give you an answer that I gave you before; this time, pay attention." The Corinthians must go through this cycle of advance. They must advance because of the doctrine. Paul is getting very practical now and he will maintain that for several chapters. We sue each other today. There are good things about suing one another and for believers, there are parameters to this. Some attorneys cannot wait until we get to chapter 6.

Scholars inspired to do so, took all of this evidence and colated it and looked at it and said here where there are variants in the manuscript. A marvelous preservation. Questions will be asked in this book which are proably in our minds as well. What about this or that? It is all coming up.

1Cor. 5:9 I wrote to you in the letter not to associate intimately with fornicators;

1Cor. 5:10 yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then you must go out of the world.

1Cor. 5:11 But now I have written to you not to associate intimately, if any man called a brother and is either a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

1Corinthians 5:9

Lesson #200 Wednesday

July 27, 2005

Isolation of sin just means forgetting that which is behind. Forget what you have done. Move on. Isolate it. You metabolize doctrine when filled with the Spirit. At the moment of salvation, we become positionally unleavened; that is our status in Christ. The more you grow, the longer you are in fellowship. The ticket is staying in fellowship for longer periods of time. If someone got you mad and out of fellowship, then you cannot get anything out of Bible class.

Two principles: grace orientation and how does something affect your spiritual life.

in v. 9, Paul has clearly written to the Corinthians already. Γραφω = I wrote. Paul is describing a letter written in the past, as if he were writing that letter at that present moment. This document is no longer available to us. The reversionism of the Corinthians means that the letter has not been placed in their souls. Paul will clear up their misunderstanding of this letter.

1Cor. 5:9 I wrote to you in the letter not to associate intimately with fornicators;

συναναμειγμα = to mingle, to associate with, to mix into something. The person would benefit by not mingling with someone here. This is not casually mixing with someone at a cocktail party. This mingling means to not mix with certain categories of people as close friends, romantic interest, or any other significant influence which impacts your life in a negative way. You do not ignore or shun someone in the office because they are immoral. But you don't get close. You do not intermingle. Πορνα = people. These are sexually immoral people. It is a reference to all types of immoral sins. It is to their disadvantage to associate with these people.

Paul does not quantify this word for us. How much immorality should be involved here? Incest, bestiality, running around, etc. He leaves this up to us and indicates that we need to have some discernment. He has put it on us to make some of these decisions. Maybe if someone is committing adultery and we are pulled into it.

This phrase refers not only to intimate physical relations, which is definitely out.

What Does this Mean?

1. Someone in immoral degeneracy. Shun that, since we can get sucked right into that.
2. Also the reference here is to intimate relations with any type of people.
3. This is not a reference to just contact with such people. Rather, you do not seek their company.
4. What does Paul say this? Aren't these the people who are the most fun.
  - a. This is the leaven principle.
  - b. A little leavens the whole lump.
  - c. This is why the incestuous man was excommunicated and caused problems with the whole congregatin.
  - d. This incestuous guy was adversely affecting their spiritual lives and then affected their lives in general. Degeneracy was the result.
5. This is the principle of separation: in the world, but not of the world.
6. It infiltrates your thinking. It takes you away from the spiritual life; it takes you away from inculcating the mind of Christ. Don't mix the leaven and the lump.

Paul only names one sin, and that is incest. The Greeks hated that. Paul writes this because the leadership of the Corinth church failed at this point. The Corinthians lived in an extremely hedonistic society. Materially, sexually, and every other way. Do not let that thinking become an integral part of your life.

Πορνός is repeated and Paul lists some additional people to add to this list: κοσμου τουτου = of this world. Κοσμος is Satan's system; it is opposed to everything that we stand for. This cosmic system is our implacable enemy. Paul refers specifically to the opposition and to the system to which it resides. The people of this world are unbelievers. Since they are of this world, these are unbelievers. Unbelievers should never be close companions. They cannot be, by definition, soul comrades. There is always a dimension that is missing. Don't you want your associates to have some idea as to where you are coming from? You would be faced with the insidious pull of human viewpoint. Particularly true of unbelievers. You can only go downhill, because they cannot go to your level. It takes a very strong believer to resist being affected from a close association here.

They are generally classified as immoral people in v. 10a. But then he breaks it down further.

Πλασωνκτης = unbelievers with material lust. Wealth is their supreme object. They make personal gain the highest purpose in life. The love of money is the root of all evil. This can rub off easily. When this intrudes on our spiritual life, then we have mingled with these materialists. They have their eyes on things and effect us as well. These are people with a different way of thinking and a different way of life. We know what the line is and how far we can go. Where do we draw it and what is that line?

1Cor. 5:10 yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then you must go out of the world.

1Cor. 5:11 But now I have written to you not to associate intimately, if any man called a brother and is either a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

1Corinthians 5:9

Lesson #201 Thursday

July 28, 2005

Paul is clarifying previous instructions which the Corinthians have ignored. The central verb is συναναμιγνυμι = to mix together, to associate with, to mingle with. It is found in vv 9 and 11, and it is accompanied by the negative μη = not.

The key is not the kinds of sins or how immoral these sins are; the key is, how do these associations affect us? How much association is too much? It is a judgment call on our side. Bobby can't take care of this for us. We must decide based upon the doctrine in our souls. The key is, does the mixing influence your spiritual life and your spiritual advance. If such an association pulls you away from doctrine, and you relaxed mental attitude is affected as well as your grace orientation, the you need to back away. These people do not share your values or your beliefs, therefore they cannot be your soul companions or your confident. They can be a dangerous distraction to your spiritual life. Divine viewpoint is not part of their thinking. We have a built in separation with people like this. You need to be able to keep this distance. They cannot be brought up to your levels; so, most often, you are taken down to theirs. It takes a very strong and mature believer to be unaffected from the inroads of human viewpoint from those close to you. Our focus must be on doctrine and we must keep these things from infiltrating our souls. Do not mix, do not mingle, do not associate with. Πορνός = sexually immoral people, those in immoral degeneracy. If antinomianism is your area of weakness, then being influenced will be almost automatic. It is like an alcoholic. You don't hang out at the bar with your friends if you are an alcoholic. These kinds of activities inhibit spiritual growth.

On the other hand, God designed sex for our enjoyment. It was not invented after he fell. Love and companionship must occur first. In the proper context, sex is a wonderful thing. In Corinth, we have sex taken out of its proper context. The association is key, as you do not need to be caught up in this lifestyle.

1Cor. 5:9 I wrote to you in the letter not to associate intimately with fornicators;

These immoral people are κοσμος τουτου = of this world. They are a part of the cosmic system. They can be unbelievers or believer reversionists. There are three more categories mentioned in this group. Swindlers, idolaters and the covetous.

Who are these three categories. Πληονκτης = covetous ones. These are unbelievers; they have materialism lust. Wealth is their supreme object of their love and endeavor. Personal gain is their highest purpose in life. The key is priorities. There is nothing wrong with making money; the problem is materialism lust. It is easy to be affected by people who make money their god. It is easy to make money your god. It seeks up on you and it is often tied to those who are involved in materialism lust.

άρπηξ = swindlers, grifters, those who take advantage of others for their own gain, con men. These can be those who are involved in shady business deals. There are a sting of movies where con men are portrayed as heroes, as suave and interesting. They might steal from mafia kingpins, etc. They might simply be duping those who are worse criminals, in the movies. But stealing from the rich is class warfare and anti-doctrinal. Those who extort from the rich are just as greedy as those they steal money from. There is this assumption that those who accumulate wealth must be greedy and wrong; but that is not necessarily true. In reality, these grifters do not steal for altruistic reasons; they are out for their own gain and they will take from anyone. All money is fair game no matter who possesses it. Thieves are not noble, Hollywood notwithstanding. Their materialism lust and activities will rub off. There are Christian con men. They advance get-rich schemes to their friends. Sometimes, life savings are lost this way. Your money, their investment. Everything to gain and nothing to lose.

αιδολολοτρης = idolaters, those who worship the creature rather than the Creator. Anything which is a substitute for God. It might be nature, money, power, sex, history, social or political systems, mankind, other people. Those who worship mankind are called humanists. It is a lifestyle and a religion. The idea that man is a deity is not going to be overtly espoused. It is expressed subtly. Man is said to have certain attributes of God, like sovereignty—there is no higher authority over me. Or they assign to themselves complete rationality. A continued evolution with the result of future moral perfection. Mankind will combine together.

Humanism

1. This is the idea that civilization is continuing to move forward, rationally and purposefully toward a harmony and a unity of culture and ideas.
2. This human conformity to an ideal standard and morality will be impeded in history; there will be some blocks and some setbacks. It is an inevitable human progress, given enough time. They will become united in their moral precepts.
3. Humanism is eternally optimistic about the bright future of humanity based on our own commonality and rationality. We will overcome all difficulties of this world, because we have a common bond and we are all humans. Conflict will be over at some point. This is the underlying idealism of the progressives of this world.
4. Someday, everyone will see what is to their own best interest. We will all begin to see what is to our own best interests as a unity and we will accomplish it. An example is, we will understand war is bad and we will abolish it. One basic principal of the United Nations.
5. It is a soaring misplaced faith which is without substance. What substance is there in a misplaced faith in mankind. This is apart from any divine action or intervention. God is removed from this equation completely. All of this will take place in the Millennium, but humanists believe that they can do it on their own.
6. Sept-Oct 1973 The Humanist and this is the Humanist Manifesto. The next century (the 21st) can and will be the humanistic century. We have virtually conquered the world and been to the moon. We stand at the dawn of a new age, ready to move farther into space and perhaps to inhabit other planets. Using technology wisely, we can control our environment. We can conquer poverty, reduce disease, extend our lifetime, modify our behavior, alter the course of human evolution, unlock new powers (what power can be unlocked that won't be used for evil?). We will achieve abundant and meaningful life. B. F. Skinner among others signed this.
7. In 65 years, we went from earthbound to the moon. So this is thought to be applied to everything else.
8. The manifesto ignores the great problem: the old sin nature. No matter how much progress is made, the old sin nature is here to screw things up. Millions believe in humanism. It is pervasive in our society.
9. Humanism is the epitome of human viewpoint. Everything around us screams progress, but it is just technological progress. There is always the downside of the old sin nature.

1Cor. 5:10 yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then you must go out of the world.

1Cor. 5:11 But now I have written to you not to associate intimately, if any man called a brother and is either a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

1Corinthians 5:9

Lesson #202 Sunday 1

July 31, 2005

Paul is correcting a previous misunderstanding in the Corinthian church; it came out from a letter that Paul had written earlier. The Corinthians did not quite understand what he had said before.

Paul uses the verb συναναμιγνυμι = to mix together, to mingle oneself, to associate with. With this, we have the negative μη. This means do not associate with. The verb is an indirect command, in the infinitive, and is an emphatic and applies to all of those in the church and believers forever following. We are not to mix with a certain category of people. The Word of God is accurate, regardless. We are supposed to think that we can associate with everyone; however, we are not to associate with anyone who impacts and influences our spiritual life in a negative way. This refers to close friends and to intimate relationships. Who should I not be mixing with? How much is too much? The latter is a judgment call on our part. It is based on doctrine resident in our soul. Does that association negatively affect our spiritual life and our spiritual advance? If our spiritual life is not working, then maybe we should look at our associations.

Πορνος = sexually immoral people. This is a reference to all types of sexual sins and those who commit them. This refers to personal relationships with anyone involved in immoral degeneracy. This does not prohibit mere contact; we'll come in contact with all sorts of people in this life. We should not seek out their company and they are not to become our close companions or confidants. This is because they influence our lifestyle. They are fixated on sexual immorality. It is their compulsive behavior in life and they can affect us. Pornography is addictive like drugs and alcohol and people of this ilk are the same way. Don't substitute our occupation with Jesus Christ with sex. It comes from too much association with the immoral person. This association is denied in order that we do not get thrown off. This is not a mandate for us to go on a crusade based on this passage. This is not a call to self-righteousness; this is not a call for us to go out and change the behavior of immoral people. Paul refers to sexual immorality because these are Corinthians, and that is their weakness and their spiritual failure. It could be something different in a different church or in a different environment. Don't get next to it, or it will rub off on you as it already obviously has.

In our society, we are inundated with the same thing. When many Christians look at this passage, it seems quaint, archaic and even unrealistic. However, this is the Word of God. This is not a passage for you to think sex is wrong; however, it must be in the correct context of marriage.

1Cor. 5:9 I wrote to you in the letter not to associate intimately with fornicators;

Χοσμου τουτου = of this world, of this cosmic world (system). 3 other categories here. Πληνονεκτης = those with materialism lust. This is those for whom wealth is their supreme object; gain is their personal god. We are surrounded by rampant materialism and greed. It is so pervasive and it is easy to get caught up in it. We are surrounded by the most oppulance in any society before. We have access to material things never known before. People around you have many material things that you desire. You are legitimately in the workplace to make money; but if you lose your focus on doctrine, then you will succumb to a consuming pursuit of the details of life. A close association with people like this is forbidden because it is destructive to your spiritual life.

άρποξ = swindlers, crooks, grifters. Here this is connected with those who lust after material things, but they use criminal behavior to take these things. There are Christian con men and some will relieve others of their life savings without a pang of conscience. It is a small step to go from materialism lust to criminal behavior. We saw an example of this at Enrol.

A 3rd category: ειδολολοτρης = idolaters. Those who worship the creature as opposed to the creator. This is widespread even today. Because we associate idolatry with Old Testament Israel's idolatry, we don't think much of this. Idolatry is any substitute for God; it can be a worship of nature or money or power even history or social and political systems. One of the worst idols is mankind himself. Humanism. The idea of humanity as a deity is seldom espoused openly; not many would call man a god, but it is expressed in subtle ways—sovereignty, in the sense of complete autonomy from any higher authority or complete rationality; we, as human beings are rational creatures. The idea that we will achieve a perfect righteousness. This is pushed in the concept of inevitable human progress. Civilization in general is moving rationally and purposefully in the direction of harmony. This human conformity to idea standards; in the long wrong, according to humanism, it will happen; it is inevitable. The horrors we see will eventually disappear. The millennium will come about by man's actions.

A great example of this would be called human manifesto 2 in the Humanist. The next century (21st century) can and will be the humanist century. Dramatic scientific accomplishments crowd our awareness. Progress in the realm of technology is thought to accompany human progress. It is an ever shifting standard in our world today. These standards often become a tyranny. Nazi Germany and Russia are a part of the downside of humanism. He have virtually conquered the earth and traveled to the moon. We stand at the dawn of a new age ready to move farther into space and maybe to inhabit other planets. Using technology wisely, we can control our environment. [Technology is not our saving grace and even using it wisely, which we don't do, will not save us. The sin nature cannot be controlled by technology or even by ourselves; if you think it can, you do not know it. It can be temporarily controlled by establishment government. Humanism is the only thing they have]. We can conquer poverty [which is in opposition to the Bible—the poor you will have with you always]. Significantly modify our behavior. B. F. Skinner, the father of behavior alist psychology, signed this. [Jesus "Where you hear of wars and rumor of wars, do not be frightened]. Unlock vast new powers (which we have done; nuclear power). [Man can use this for evil purposes and he will corrupt anything]. Provide humankind with unparalleled opportunity for an abundant existence.

This manifesto sounds convincing. We went from being earthbound to the moon in less than a century. The UN is a disseminator of humanism. Humanism is not the same as humanitarianism (although some humanists are humanitarians as well). These are in opposition to the missionaries, who can be humanitarians as well. Humanism can never remove the stain of the old sin nature. There will always be regression to corruption. Freedom will be sacrificed in order to bring about humanism. The human manifesto stands in opposition to the God of the Bible.

A young man suggested that the tower of Babel was the first humanistic movement...going to heaven without God. Humanism is the secularism of society. They worship their own intellect above divine revelation. Those who believe in divine revelation are seen as archaic are ridiculed and seen as in opposition to progress. Humanists cannot defeat their own sin nature.

When you associate with this, it rubs off. The lying down with the dog results in fleas.

1Cor. 5:10 yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then you must go out of the world.

1Corinthians 5:9

Lesson #203 Sunday 2

July 31, 2005

4 categories of people here: sexually charged groups, the covetous, the criminals and the idolaters.

1Cor. 5:9 I wrote to you in the letter not to associate intimately with fornicators;

An idolater is not simply a person who worships an image. Man worships himself. Essence of God is attributed to us and it is done in subtle and not so subtle ways. Humanism is so pervasive that we often do not recognize it.

Humanism elevates man above God or God is not acknowledged at all. An historic example: the enlightenment of the 18th century, which was a sustained humanist attack against Christians. Rousseau and Voltaire. They openly deified humanity.

Sociology for the most part is a very humanist science and it gets its name from someone in this time frame. He essentially deifies the human race and he calls it the religion of humanity. Kant (but it is someone else; his name sounds like this). Many prominent intellectuals of the 19th century from this movement. George Elliot, the poet. Oh may I join the choir invisible of this immortal choir made better... Humanity is worshiped because of our rationality and intellect. Humanity is not just glorified but deified. However, these humanists are dead. They only can influence for the cosmic system. These people represent the hope of human moral progress. They are the beacon of what man can become without God. This surrounds us in every way. In eastern religions. No God in Hinduism or Buddhism. You evolve into a god. You are reincarnated with respect to your life here. The sin nature never disappears. They must adjust the standards to fit their flaws. This is where relativism comes from. There is not eternity in a philosophy like that.

We can become idolaters as well, whether materialism lust or a worship of humanity and those who are substitutes for God. God prohibits intimate mingling with such unbelievers. Paul limits this prohibition. It is not absolute in the sense that it could never happen. Paul's intent in this Scripture is not to prohibit all dealings with unbelievers, including immoral unbelievers.

Ου παντος = not all, not at all, by no means. Here, it is more emphatic, like the main verb. Connect the verb from v. 9, I wrote, along with this by no means. I by no means wrote to you not to associate with the immoral people of this world. Paul has limited his prohibition. I, by no stretch of the imagination, wrote to you not to mix with the immoral people of this world. The mandate is to separate from these four categories, but to recognize that you are going to have contact with the unbelieving world. You cannot stop this association. You cannot isolate yourself from this world. This is a not a complete disassociation with these people. You cannot separate with unbelievers of all types. There are social events, there is work, there are functions in business, etc. which we cannot get out of. As believers, we are responsible to evangelize unbelievers. We must have some contact. Paul is not precluding all contact. We are not of the world, but we are in this world. You cannot hide from the world and you cannot stick your head in the sand. These close associations can affect us; they can lead us down the primrose path of reversionism. We must be advancing to maturity to handle all the circumstances and the people testing in our lives. We must have some resources. Do not hide from this world; you cannot separate yourself. If you don't keep the plan of God firmly planted in your mind, and if doctrine is not firmly implanted in your mind, then you are in trouble in this life. There must be a line that you cannot cross and it must be firmly established in your mind. You must have that line drawn in the sand established in your thinking. This is based on the standards of doctrine and not on the standards of legalism.

Some are shocked by immorality and you think this will tell you to speak out against all of these sins that shock you. You cannot be a legalist and be oriented to grace. "I'm not like that; I'm better." No you're not; you just became worse. Sexual immorality is not listed with the worst of the sins. Where is the line drawn with unbelievers. You cannot snub or put people down in order to witness. If you are legalistic, you put people down or you denigrate them and this does not represent Jesus Christ to the world. You represent Who Jesus Christ is and what He has done. These people have no other contact to hear the gospel. Eph. 6:20 we are ambassadors for Christ and we should never conduct ourselves in a way to discredit the Lord Jesus Christ. It is like being an ambassador in another country for the US and everything that we do reflects the United States to that country. The rest of the world has no other contact with others other than us, which is scary, in some cases. As an ambassador, we make a pulpit out of your circumstances. As a believer, you declare who and what Jesus Christ is. This is what an ambassador does. This does not mean that you are legalistic and you make an issue of the things which you find to be disgusting. A taboo is an arbitrary prohibition made by someone else. Drinking, smoking, wearing skirts too short. You don't make an issue of tattoos to a tattooed person, as your witness to them. Taboos are manmade bans. We look down on those who do not meet our standards. We cannot wait to impose our values on others. Doctrine is excluded as an agent of change. It is the legalist who becomes the arbiter of right and wrong.

You may not think that you are in any of these categories and that you don't know anyone like this; you associate with these people all the time. When doctrine is destroyed in your soul by your associations, then you are out of line and you destroy your own spiritual life. You cannot alter the unbelievers behavior. You do not straighten out society with your taboos. As an ambassador you present the gospel and you don't antagonize the unbeliever. It is the gospel which changes people.

A faithful envoy brings healing by his presentation of the gospel. Do not indulge in the legalistic excesses of your soul. You must some time take a stand on Biblical principles and you might be ridiculed and ostracized for this stand that you take. One result of this is not being able to share the gospel. The world will ridicule us, and you must maintain your poise and do not compromise because of fear and embarrassment. We have a responsibility before the Lord and we either honor this responsibility or we don't. We are to communicate to this foreign world in which we live. An ambassador does not justify himself nor does he promote himself. We are only to represent the One who has sent us.

As an illustration concerning relationships with unbelievers, Bobby will present a pitfall: evangelistic dating. This has to do with the singles. We might see someone that we are very attracted to and they just don't meet our criterion. It is not a matter of "don't ever do it." It can work, occasionally. Sometimes this is an excuse and a trap for us. It can start out with an evangelistic purpose and it usually goes in another direction. You cannot use evangelism as an excuse for spending some time with a person you find very attractive. Unbelievers can be very charming and they can be desirable and they can even seem to be of like mind with you. In this situation, there is a real danger with crossing the line. You can put yourself in a very difficult situation in order to carry out your original mission of evangelism. It is easy to become emotionally entangled with people. It is even harder to extract yourself, as you must do, if you plan to remain in the plan of God. The difference between you and the unbeliever should be obvious. You know what it takes to get momentum. You know what that takes. Grace apparatus for perception, isolation of sin, metabolism of doctrine. The unbeliever cannot do any of that. They are filled with human viewpoint and that in abundance. Even those who are divinely establishment oriented.

Entangled with or Associated with those you should not

1. You negotiate with human viewpoint in order to keep the relationship going. The unbeliever only have human viewpoint.
2. You must make some concessions in order to get along with the unbeliever.
3. When you negotiate with human viewpoint, you are compromising with human viewpoint.

4. If you don't compromise, your romantic relationship with the unbeliever will never work. This is true with every close relationship with the unbeliever.
5. They cannot come to our spiritual level; this is impossible. Therefore, you must revert to their level to continue your liaison with them. Compromising with human viewpoint is the beginning of reversionism.
6. There are no grounds for real compromise that is not destructive without divine viewpoint in both souls. Relationships involve compromise; marriage has compromise; and this is why you do not marry unbelievers. With an unbeliever, you must compromise with human viewpoint.
7. If you do, you have accepted some of their ways of thinking. You have to, by definition.
8. Once you have done that, then you rationalize your inevitable compromise. You have to. These are your intimate relationships, not the business or casual ones.
9. Our most intimate relationships in life should never cause us to compromise divine viewpoint principles. We can compromise these by ourself, but these relationships should never bring us to a point of compromise. If we must compromise with human viewpoint, then we are in the wrong relationship. We must give it up and move on. This is especially true of a woman, because she is a responder. Settling for human viewpoint and compromising with it compromises the plan of God for our life. You cannot have a great relationship with someone that you must compromise divine viewpoint principles. That is the line.

1Cor. 5:10 yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then you must go out of the world.

1Corinthians 5:10

Lesson #204 Wednesday

August 3, 2005

v. 10 deals with unbelievers specifically. Do not have close companionship with or close relationships with the following types of unbelievers.

What about the obligations of life? In-laws, co-workers, bosses, etc. There is a difference between intimate companionship and contact. The key is, does the association negatively affect your spiritual life and your spiritual advance? You will have social life with unbelievers from time to time; but if such a relationship distracts you from the mission of growing, then the familiarity has gone too far in your life. Friendship is allowed, as we are responsible to exercise our ambassadorship with unbelievers. We must, in fact, come into contact with unbelievers.

V. 10 names 4 representative categories, meanings that there are other categories of unbelievers that Paul did not name. It is our responsibility to identify the others. The problem is when you nurture and promote such relationships in such a way to impact your growth negatively.

Πορνος

1. Sexually immoral people.
2. These people have chosen the path of immoral degeneracy fixated on illicit sex as a pastime.
3. These are persons who can significantly impact our thinking and spiritual life. It is very easy to go down this road.
4. If we have an area of weakness in the realm of antinomianism, we are particularly susceptible to this trend. This does not mean being legalistic means we won't be affected.

Πληονεκτης

1. Covetous; unbelievers with materialism lust, which is a lust in our society today. Never have we had so much available to so many.
2. Personal gain is their highest purpose in life.
3. The danger for us in the workplace. Our purpose in the workplace is to make a living.
4. When you associate with unbelievers in that environment, you can lose your focus and succumb to a pursuit of the details of life rather than a pursuit of spiritual maturity. There is nothing wrong with the details of life.
5. It all comes down to a matter of focus; you focus on doctrine or on the details of life. You can enjoy details to the maximum, as long as they do not rule your life.

άρποξ

1. Swindlers.
2. They take advantage of others for their own gain, including criminal activity.
3. This category is connected with πληονεκτης.
4. One can lead to the other. Being a swindler is more obsessive.
5. You become willing to bend the rules in order to gain the details; that is what differentiates this from above. Enrol is a good example of that.
6. If you associate with swindlers, you live in a climate which lends itself to a άά
7. You can be influenced into criminality for personal gain.

ιδολολοτρης

1. This is not someone who bows down to physical idols.
2. We think of a physical idol.
3. Idolatry is any substitute for God.
4. Environmentalism, money, power, history, social and political systems, mankind can all be idolized. We idolize man.
5. Those who worship mankind are called humanists. Very pervasive today.
6. Humanism means that mankind stands as a substitute for God.

7. Humanism includes the secularization of society. We have become very secular today.
8. Humanists worship their own intellect above divine revelation. In their view, divine revelation is a deception and they see it as completely invalid. They believe that if you study the Bible, they will ridicule you as archaic and anti-intellectual.

Article by Chuck Colson: www.Townhall.com. Both parties are now held in low regard by most people. Why would these be? Ideology begins to replace revealed truth as the basis for governing society, you get the polarization of society. Ideology is a man-made idea as to how a society should live. Dangerous when a society becomes polarized by these ideologies. Everything is a matter of relativism. Humanism and relativism. This eliminates reasonable discourse, because all we can do is clash. We cannot come to any sort of agreement. America is disenchanted with this political process. The politicians are not to blame. We lack a common standard. With no agreed upon standards, you simply start shouting more loudly. When you don't get your way, you just become shrill. Power is the way to win an argument. As Christians, we should be the first to recognize that substituting human schemes for revealed truth is the enemy of the gospel and the enemy of historic conservatism. A respect for tradition and custom and religious underpinnings for our society.

Οὐ πονηρός = by no means. I by no means wrote to you not to associate with the immoral people of this world.... There was no absolute prohibition to separate from unbelievers. This mandate does not preclude all associations. We have the responsibility to evangelize, so we must have contact and even friendly relations. Drawing the line depends upon your own spiritual growth. You must draw a line in the sand in your head that you do not cross and you must be careful not to cross that line. This is based on doctrine and not on legalism. Associations with unbelievers can be confusing and it is easy to cross the line. If the association is too intimate, then you can have problems.

Evangelistic Dating

This has other applications; this can be tricky. You might stare into their eyes and lose the idea of evangelism. You can start out with an evangelistic purpose and end up somewhere else. Don't use evangelism as an excuse for spending more time with an unbeliever to whom you are very attracted. They can be oriented to divine establishment and they can be attractive and charming. There is a danger of crossing that line. It is easy to mix with human viewpoint, especially with someone who has divine establishment thinking. It is so easy to become closely involved, especially when there is a close attraction. Part of the plan of God is not to be intimately involved with an unbeliever. We know what is required to have spiritual momentum. Is this unbeliever capable of supporting this advance when they have only human viewpoint. Of course not, they do not have the same depth of thinking. In their soul, they do not have the like-mindedness for what we need as a lasting, lifetime relationship. You will end up negotiating and rationalizing.

1. We must negotiate with human viewpoint to insure the survival of your relationship; that is by definition of a relationship. In a romantic relationship, you want to accentuate the positive.
2. You want to make concessions, and that is normal with any relationship. And if you don't, the relationship will fizzle.
3. When you negotiate with human viewpoint, you are compromising to human viewpoint. That is an axiom that you should never forget. Negotiating with an unbeliever, you compromise doctrine.
4. The relationship will not work if you do not compromise and negotiate.
5. They cannot come up to our spiritual level. That is impossible. We must revert to theirs, at least in part.
6. There is no real grounds for compromise that is not destructive without divine viewpoint in both souls.
7. If we compromise, that means we accept some of their ways of thinking. We must accept it in order to make it work. You might not even believe in it, but you have to act as if you do. You must live it to survive the relationship.
8. When that happens, you rationalize your inevitable compromise. These are intimate relations; not casual friendships.
9. Your most intimate relationships must never cause you to compromise divine viewpoint. If divine viewpoint is compromised, then you are in the wrong relationship. Once you compromise divine viewpoint, you go downhill from there.

Marriage between a believer and an unbeliever is never part of the plan of God. No way and no how. If you have already done it, then you cannot get out of it. Marriage between a growing believer and a reversionist is allowed, but can be a disaster. If we are advancing, then we need to have our intimate relationships with those who are advancing. Don't think you can evangelize or turn someone positive in marriage. That is only rationalization. When you ignore divine directives, you are going to have problems. Such a relationship should not get past the first date. If they change later, you can revisit the situation.

The circumstances are different if you are already in this situation. You cannot separate from an unbeliever that you do not like. That is a different set of circumstances that you must deal with. Subtle attacks of human viewpoint will be common. There will be a void of like-mindedness in a mixed marriage. No corporate witness to the world. That is one reason against it; but also because God is trying to save us a bunch of headaches. If you are in this situation, you can evangelize, but slowly and carefully. They want to know, and you have a witness all the time to them. You need a lot of prayer and a lot of patience. Positive volition can always change things for the better. You have not necessarily lost the chance at a great relationship. Maybe, maybe not. God's grace does not doom you to a life of misery. In this case, you are a witness every moment of the day. It is not an easy situation, but it is livable and manageable and it could even turn out to be the great relationship of your life.

Doctrine first, so that you do not compromise.

1Cor. 5:10 yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then you must go out of the world.

1Corinthians 5:10–11

Lesson #205 Thursday

August 4, 2005

The previous night was practical night. Tonight, we get technical with grammar and syntax. Paul was not completely eliminating contact with the outside world—with unbelievers.

Ου ποντος = not at all. It is more emphatic than that and should be rendered by no means. By no means did I write to you not to associate with the immoral, the greedy, the dishonest and the idolaters. Or, I did not say not to mix with the people of this world. Or, I did not absolutely prohibit you from mixing with unbelievers. This mandate does require some separation from those who would adversely affect our spiritual life. It does not preclude all unbeliever association. There must be some contact in our life with the unbelieving world. We must have contact with unbelievers. Paul acknowledges this in v. 10. Even though we are in this world, we are not of this world. We reside in the sphere of God's plan. In order to have no contact with the world means that we would have to go completely out of the world, which is absurd. We are here to glorify God; this is our purpose; we demonstrate His grace by utilizing His divine operating assets. The unbeliever needs to see the grace of God through us. We are here are ambassadors to our King, Jesus Christ. We must have contact with the outside world; but not close, intimate contact. We cannot have the kind of contact which will affect us negatively.

The Corinthians had made an assumption in a previous letter. They misunderstood that Paul was speaking only of separation from unbelievers. They did not separate from this incestuous guy, as he was a believer. There is a principle of separation which can be applied to unbelievers and reversionists. It is unclear who misled these people from Paul's teaching; it was probably the faction leaders.

1Cor. 5:10 yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then you must go out of the world.

We will have a further clarification in the next verse. Our most intimate associations are generally believers; however, this tells us that there are times to get away.

Νυν δε = but now; therefore. This is an adverbial phrase; a connecting phrase. Usually a connotation of time. I wrote something else to you in the past, but now I am writing something else to you. There can also be an inferential sense. I wrote you in the previous letter, but since you cannot go out of the world, therefore, I write you another letter. A direct connection to vv. 9–10. A temporal and inferential sense. I wrote you [in a previous letter]...and now I am writing you [in another letter]... Should it be temporal or inferential? That explains the verse. The clear intent is to say, I did not mean to write in my previous letter "do not associate with unbelievers;" therefore, what I meant was... Paul is making a logical conclusion from a previous letter. Νυν δε here is the logical or the inferential sense. We must occasionally deal with the very words which Paul uses, as this explains what the Holy Spirit wants us to get from this verse. So, what we have here is, let me draw a conclusion now...

Aorist active indicative of γράφω = to write. Therefore, I am writing to the entire congregation at Corinth... Συναμιγνυμι = to mix. Αδελφος = brothers. Present passive participle of ονομαζώ = one who is named as or called a brother. When we see adelphos in the Scripture means that we have a relationship in a family situation. These who are named as brothers should not be the kind of relationships that you have with a brother. This person named here has disgraced the Lord Jesus Christ. They have not forfeited their position. The Corinthians have just gone through a separation.

Therefore, Paul is making a connection with these believers. Paul wants no misunderstanding of what he is saying. There is a fiasco in Corinth and part of it is . Εαν = if (3rd class condition). Paul uses the 3rd class condition for a very specific reason. We may or may not do it. It is a volitional issue. What type of carnal reversionistic believer should we not mix or mingle with?

Πορνος = a person guilty of all types of sexual deviations and sins. Rom. 1:26–27: For this cause, God gave them up to dishonorable affections. For even their women changed the natural use into that which is against nature. And likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust toward one another; males with males working out shamefulness, and receiving in themselves the recompense which was fitting for their error. Liberal theologians interpret this in a number of ways in order to change the obvious meaning here. They even break it down into the Greek in order to change the meaning. Homosexuality is included in πορνος.

1Cor. 5:11 But now I have written to you not to associate intimately, if any man called a brother and is either a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

1Corinthians 5:9–11

Lesson #206 Sunday 1

August 7, 2005

Nothing more important than the Word of God.

1Cor. 5:9 I wrote to you in the letter not to associate [μη συναμιγνυμι] intimately with sexually immoral people [πορνος];

1Cor. 5:10 I by no means wrote to you not to associate [or, I did not absolutely prohibit you from associating] with the sexually immoral people of this world [coming in contact with unbelievers must occur in this world; there are business associations, friends, relatives; so we must have contact; and we all must be a witness to the unbeliever in this world. This verse also indicates that we are not to associate with those who will cause us spiritual problems. Paul is not necessarily singling these sins out; these are examples of sins which might slow our spiritual advance], or with the covetous [πλεωνετης = covetous, greedy], or swindlers [con men, criminals; anyone who takes advantage of others using crime], or with idolaters [ἰδολολητρῆς = those who put something else before God. This can be the worship of money, power, history, mankind, as a substitute for God]; for then you must go out of the world. No contact with unbelievers if they are going to slow your spiritual growth. So, Paul qualifies himself here; if an unbeliever can bring you down, you need to disassociate yourself from them.

Paul adds a few categories of people to this list of those who are believers. These are believers who are carnal but who are reversionistic. This tells us that believers can have the same characteristics and do the same things as unbelievers do. These believers can cause you personal problems. You don't separate because you are so shocked by sins. Sin is all around us and we commit sins every day; we are sinners as well. The main difference between us and reversionists is we are involved in spiritual advance. We must be very careful here. Paul is more concerned with separation from the believer, as he names more categories of believer reversionists.

Πορνός = sexually immoral. This time, this word is applied to believers (i.e., one who is called ἀδελφός). Some use whoremongers, which term is too restrictive and deals with only one area of sexual sins. Rape, incest, bestiality, homosexuality, lesbianism, pediphilia. There is a heated debate today whether homosexuality is a genetic predisposition. 15 years ago, Bobby, Bob and Goldwater had lunch. Goldwater lost in a landslide as he was a crusty politician, straightforward, no nonsense kind of guy. Goldwater said, "I think gays should serve in the military." That was a change. Bob said, "My son was in the military and he is going to tell you that is not true." Goldwater changed his opinion because his grant nephew decided he was a homosexual. For a personal reason, Goldwater changed his mind. Many people believe that homosexuality is Biblically wrong, but because people have friends or relatives who are so involved, and because it is so pervasive, they have backed off.

Rom. 1:26–27: For this cause, God gave them up to degrading passions [God handed them over to what they had already chosen for themselves. This does not mean that God made the homosexual]. For even their women changed the natural use into that which is against nature. And likewise also the men [ἀρσεν = sexual man. We don't have ἀνθρωπος ἀνερ], leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust toward one another; males with males working out shameful, and receiving in themselves the recompense which was fitting for their error.

it is okay to have sex with your husband or wife in anyway that you choose; that is not degrading, as long as you both agree. Outside of that boundary, there is degeneracy.

Desire toward one another; men with men

1. This refers specifically to a volitional decision in the soul which is a response to the temptation of the trend of the sin nature.
2. Homosexuality is a choice; it is an acquired vice and a cultivated evil.
3. There may be a trend of the sin nature toward homosexuality. However, like any antinomian trend, it can be resisted. The argument is, "I am a homosexually by birth, and therefore, I have no choice." Even if that is true, it can be resisted, just as a heterosexual can also choose not to have sex.

4. Stopping a corrupt lifestyle also requires volition.
5. It is cured by the same remedy as any type of carnality. Rebound, isolate the sin and advance spiritually. You can get to a point where you sin less and less.
6. For the homosexual reversionist in emotional revolt and blackout of the soul, the sole aim of existence is self-gratification in many areas, including sexual. This can be in many categories.
7. Such a person exists in complete anarchy of soul. This is not a normal situation. There is no self-discipline.
8. With no standards from doctrine in the right lobe of the soul to furnish wisdom and stability, illicit and degenerate forms of sexual behavior and stimulation become acceptable. It can be true personally and in a society. This is a distortion of God's design.
9. Rom. 1 clearly states same sex relations are a reversal of God's created order. You cannot reverse God's created order and be right.
10. 1Cor. 6:9 does not mean that you cannot be saved if you are sexually immoral; once you believe in Jesus Christ, you cannot lose that.
11. God handed them over to their degrading passions. The actual activity in itself is a punishment. It is not simply a lifestyle.

What about association with homosexuals?

1Cor. 5:11 Therefore, I have written to you [a second letter to clarify the meaning of the first letter] not to associate intimately with one who called a brother [Paul is doing some clarification here] and is either sexually immoral, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

1Corinthians 5:11

Lesson #207 Sunday 2

August 7, 2005

This is a very misunderstood subject dealt with by our courts, our families. This is a difficult issue, but we must face it, as the Bible deals with it. Simply put, this is not God's design. This is where it is utilized. Anything outside of marriage is sexual deviation. Pederasty, rape, bestiality, homosexuality.

Our culture now demands no separation from homosexuals; if you don't want to associate, then you are called homophobic. People are afraid when they are charged with homophobia. It is to evoke the same charge as racism; racism is wrong, but homophobia is not. They mean that "you are afraid of a legitimate lifestyle different from yours. It is just ignorance; you haven't explored it." That is the argument. The assumption is that homosexuality is legitimate and that it is attractive. It is actually normal to be repelled by degeneracy. It is repugnant because it is repugnant in Scripture and because of the affect that it can have on your spiritual life. You do not want to be attracted or influenced by perversion. In an interesting reversal, you are seen as the perverted one; they are not perverted, we are. This is the cosmic system; it is insidious and ingenious. It is not a legitimate lifestyle. You do not want to be influenced or affected by perversion. When you begin to rationalize perversion, your life is affected. Believer or unbeliever, Goldwater's decision was based upon a personal association with that deviation, in the same way that it can affect our thinking. The believer who separates from homosexuality must never worry about being labeled or ridiculed. We are labeled as anathema to the cosmic system. When you take a stand on an issue like this, you will face ridicule. Politically incorrect and Biblically correct. When the Bible disagrees with current mores, then those mores are wrong. Believers, especially women, do become enthralled with the feminine talent of homosexuals. This is the problem of very close associations. You do not need close association with degeneracy nor should you admire it; however, you do not reject the person. You do not accept the activity, but you do not reject the person. They are people for whom Christ died. Christ is the best way to overcome that perversion. Don't be intimidated by cultural pressure and do not be impressed by great artistry and talent. Degeneracy, no matter what the form, can be influential. This is why we have all the court battles. It is all part of the cosmic system. This is the devil's world. This does not mean that you cannot work with a homosexual interior designer. That is not a close, personal association. That is different from a superficial business association. Whatever association influences you from evil or distracts you from doctrine must be shunned. We should not be gay bashers. We should not bash anyone who sins. We should not be influenced by degeneracy; nor shocked by it. All degenerates are souls who Christ died for. Do not sympathize with a degenerate lifestyle. Our society has bought into the idea that this is a legitimate lifestyle, hook line and sinker. We have no business buying into these cultural norms and standards. You never compromise with human viewpoint. When you compromise with human viewpoint, then you begin to think human viewpoint. These are souls for whom Christ died. Casual contact for evangelism is always authorized. Doctrine in the soul controls the temptation and controls someone from the inside out. Any sin is a matter of choice. We are not inevitably become homosexuals because of a genetic predisposition. We separate from reversionism so that we are not influenced by it.

Πορνος applies to believers and to unbelievers. Believers can be just as immoral as unbelievers and just as distracting. Believers can affect you in ways that are subtle. Intimate associations with believers can be even more destructive than with unbelievers. This does not indicate a condemnation of this or that person. Sin is sin. Separation is to keep your spiritual life going; not because you look down at your nose at someone else's sin. You do not separate out of self-righteousness.

Paul makes a similar statement in 1Cor. 6:18–20: Flee fornication. Every sin that a man does is outside the body, but he who commits fornication sins against his own body. Or do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit in you, whom you have of God? And you are not your own, for you are bought with a price. Therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's. And in 1Cor. 7: better to marry than to be consumed by sexual lust. Paul is consistent with his prohibition.

Believers can slander other believers for a variety of reasons; especially for sexual sins. That is the #1 reason for slandering someone else. Do not blackball someone because of a rumor. What someone tells you about someone else is not an issue. That is gossip. Separate from the gossip would be a reasonable choice. It is always about doctrine and spiritual growth; it is never because of the sin itself.

Πληονεκτης = covetous, greedy, those affected by materialistic lust. This occurred in v. 9 as well. Reversionistic believers can be just as destructive as unbelievers. His previous letter dealt with believers and unbelievers both; whereas, the Corinthians misunderstood this to apply to unbelievers only.

When Bobby was growing up, there were a bunch of guys who were hell-raisers; a fun bunch. The ones who did not move on were closely associated with degenerates. Some became sexual degenerates, alcoholics and drug addicts. All of it came as a result of association with those who are degenerates. This includes the next groups we are to study.

Πληονεκτης = covetous, greedy, those affected by materialistic lust. This is a big problem of our society today. These are believers who make monetary gain as the highest objective of life. This can be power lust and approbation lust. We have so many people who want to be on television today. They want to be recognized. In Corinth, there were people who wanted power.

Ιδολογητρης = idolater. Used for believers as well as unbelievers. Those who worship the creation rather than the creator. Carnal believers are capable of anything that unbelievers are capable of. Believers can be just as degenerate as unbelievers.

One of the idolatries which is destructive to the spiritual life is evolution. This is a difficult subject just like homosexuality. Should public schools teach evolution and creationism or should they not teach the latter as it is religious. There is a definite need for separate between church and state, but there are times that we take this too far. We separate church and state so that there is no state established church. Today, it is interpreted that there is no connection between church and state in any way. In the latter thinking, we have lost the very foundation of our country. Not every person who founded our country were believers. However, most held to the norms and standards that believers held to. Evolution is ιδολογητρης. If you have children, you should teach them the Biblical perspective. If they don't get it at school, then they should get it from you. Our children need to hear the Biblical alternative.

1Cor. 5:11 But now I have written to you not to associate intimately, if any man called a brother and is either a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

1Corinthians 5:11

Lesson #208 Wednesday

August 10, 2005

Paul lists more of those that we should not have a close personal relationship with and here we are dealing with believers. These lists are representative lists. These lists have a great deal to do with the people of Corinth at that point in time (and with us as well). We cannot associate closely with these and maintain spiritual growth. Their key is spiritual growth.

Idolaters are those who substitute something for God. Paul adds two categories in this verse because he is making a point. The Corinthians had mistakenly understood Paul to tell them previously that they were only to separate from unbelievers. Separation from the reversionist is even more critical.

You are not to associate with one who is called a believer if... A more probably future condition here is expressed; this is a 3rd class condition. Maybe you will mix with these people and maybe you will not mix with them.

The first one on the list is πορνός = sexually immoral types. Rom. 1:26–27. This tells us that lesbianism and homosexuality are among this list. 1Cor. 6:9 also lists homosexuals as those who will not enter the kingdom of heaven.

Summary of Sunday

1. Sex between men and men and women and women is an expression of degeneracy. It forsakes God's design of sexuality.
2. V. 27: desire toward one another, men with men; does not refer to an innate predisposition; it is not inevitable for someone to be homosexual.
3. Desire refers to volition in the soul. This volition in the soul responds to the antinomian trend of the old sin nature.
4. Homosexuality is a choice; an acquired vice and a cultivated evil.
5. There may be a trend of the sin nature toward homosexuality. That may be a part of the antinomian trend. Like any other trend, it can be resisted; anything which is a choice, you can resist it. If God prohibits it, then you can choose not to do it.
6. Participation in homosexuality is a choice; stopping that lifestyle is a choice which people can actually make. Do you think it is any more difficult to stop heterosexual bad choices? No way.
7. So, if it is a make able choice, it is cured by the same remedy as any other sin; rebound, isolation of sin, spiritual advance.
8. The homosexual and lesbian is in reversionism and blackout of the soul.
9. The soul of such a one is in complete anarchy and chaos.
10. The aim of their existence is pure self-gratification; no interest in glorification of God. It is no different for the heterosexual who chooses a lifestyle out of bounds from God's design.
11. With no standards from doctrine to provide wisdom and stability, illicit and degenerate forms of sexual stimulation are preferred and accepted by the even believers.
12. Same sex relations is a reversal of God's created order; a man and a wife.
13. This disregard of God's design is the direct cause of divine discipline of any believer who is so involved. God hands them over to degrading passions and .

Homosexuality and lesbianism is a penalty for their sins. There is no happiness here. Homosexuality definitely falls under this category.

14. These are people whose souls Christ died for. They are sinners just like we are. Contact and evangelism are always offered. For these types, they have the same goals as we do. The unbeliever can resist these kinds of sins; but they do not have the same resources as we do.

A close personal relationship with these types can be very destructive.

Πληονεκτης = power lust, approbation lust, materialism lust. Ιδολαοτης = idolater.
Unbeliever idolatry today is humanism.

Evolution is an example; and this is pertinent to believers and unbelievers. This is a part of humanism. It is one more substitute for faith in Jesus Christ. Pat Buchanan Aug. 8 article. "In the monkey trial 80 years ago the issue was did John Scopes violate Tennessee law for teaching evolution? He was, and was convicted and fined $100. The press was very wrapped up with Clarence Darrow, an agnostic. Darrow put William Jennings Bryan on the stand and made him take a stand for the literal understanding of everything in the Bible. He made him look like an idiot. But today, Darwinism is in the dock. Dogmatic believers in evolution are facing challenges to the claim that their doctrine is established truth. Intelligent design is the banner under which evolution is attacked. There is a reversal of the attack. Fundamentalists have reversed the methodology and have used it against Darwinists. It appears that Darwinism goes against all evidence. If we come to a garden in a forest, we may not know who put it there, but we know someone did it. As a watch presupposes a watchmaker, so does an orderly universe demand a creator. Who or What created this?" Bobby mentions Chaos, creationism, etc. in the Library. The evolutionist explains that an explosion created order. Where did the chemicals come from and who lit the firecracker. Who ever would think a hurricane would create a computer. Why are there not missing links everywhere? Is the picture of the fish coming to land, walking, then walking upright, what is that? That is faith. Unproven and untrue and people with faith in this have blind faith." We believe in a historical person and there are thousands of witnesses. "Science points to intelligent design. For most of man's existence, we did not understand the laws of gravity, etc. Understanding these laws allow us to put a man on the moon. Only recently do we find out about subatomic particles which are held together. We not only have Christian faith but we have reason. Bush is accused of something for mentioning intelligent design."

Bobby deals with this under idolater.

Evolution

1. According to evolution, natural laws act on inert matter over a period of billions of years in order to create what we see; all life on earth.
2. Thus, nature becomes the creature of itself. Nature creates nature. If natural laws act on inert matter to create life, then nature creates nature.

3. Nature becomes an impersonal force which designs and constructs the universe and all life on earth.
4. The problem with this is, the design is just random chance; hence, calling it a design is a stretch. Given enough time, random events will produce something which is orderly. Monkeys sitting in front of the computer banging on the computer for 1 million years, that eventually, one will type out Moby Dick.
5. In this theory, God as a rational being and designer does not exist.
6. There is an exception to this: theistic evolution. God does exist.
  - a. In theistic evolution, God does the creation, and then He lets evolution take over. God is the big bang.
  - b. This solves the basic problem; where did all of this start from? Theistic evolution has many Biblical problems.
  - c. In theistic evolution, God is transcendent, omnipotent, omnipresent, but He is not imminent. He leaves the universe to its own development. That does not present the Biblical view. The intervention of Jesus Christ in history.
7. In secular evolution, natural laws always existed; they are eternal. This gives nature the same attributes as the Bible assigns to God...eternal life. Worship the creature rather than the creator.
8. Nature becomes a replacement for God; this is the basic tenant of many environmentalists. Nature is the cause, nature is the great force.
9. There is a religious sense to evolutionary theology, and it is called pantheism. It is a form of religion. Παντος = all; θεος = God.

Pantheism

1. Everything is God. There is no personal God, but it is a force of nature.
2. God is present in all matter.

Whether children ever hear about God or not is up to the parent. To give up evolution and to say that God exists is to give up completely their entire way of thinking. It is very difficult for them to ever to do so. Not a good idea to get into arguments with them. Turn it into witnessing; you can't convince them that evolution is not correct. You can present the God of the universe. Blind faith vs. faith in a real, witnessed object. God is imminent as well as transcendent. God has not left us alone here in the universe. We are not just creatures developed from evolution. God with us = Immanuel. Our entire point of existence and evolution undermines it. Evolution is a brilliant lie.

1Cor. 5:11 Therefore, I have written to you previously not to associate intimately, if any man called a brother if he is either sexually immoral, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

Fascinating section about separation. Excommunication as well. 6 categories of separation in this verse. Separation must occur when the believer's advancing spiritual life is negatively affected. When human viewpoint begins to replace divine viewpoint, that means you need to be separated; you must be sensitive to that. When human viewpoint replaces divine viewpoint, you are in trouble, as you are mixing with the categories: the sexually immoral one, the greedy person, and idolaters. Humanism is the worship of mankind, which includes evolution.

Debate on Nightline last night between Cal Thomas and George Will, who are both conservative types. Bobby is not covering this information so that we can go out and challenge the college professor. We won't get that kind of information from Bobby. Evolution is not just a science; it is a religion. One of the commentators said, "It is all a matter of faith." It is not all about faith in Christianity. Evolution requires much more faith than does faith in Jesus Christ. His work, life and death was witnessed by thousands of people. Evolution requires a lot more faith. As a science, evolution fails; it is unproven theory. Pat Buchanan the other day showed us how evolution misses the mark as a science.

Evolution

1. According to evolutionary theory, natural laws act on inert matter over a period of billions of years to generate all life on earth. Law of physics, biological laws, etc. The evolutionist begins with these natural laws and it assumes that you make significant changes over millions of years.
2. Nature creates itself. Natural laws are just nature and they create the universe. Evolutionists already accept that evolution is true, so when they find evidence, they put it into a framework that they have already built for themselves. The presuppose whatever they find will fit into this proof. The real question is, how did it all begin? What started all of this; what put all of these laws in motion?
3. To the evolutionist, nature is the impersonal force which designs and constructs the universe and all life on earth.
4. The design that the impersonal force designs is really just random chance. From chaos comes order. That chaos to order simply comes from a random occurrences. This never naturally occurs; chaos never sorts itself out to an orderly system. In the evolutionary scheme, chaos becomes order, even though this does not ever occur. Bobby's illustration again of the monkeys typing on typewriters over millions of years and ending up with the book Moby Dick. At some point, this will happen; that is random chance. This is how the universe is created in the mind of the evolutionist.
5. In evolutionary theory, God as a rational being or designer does not exist (or can be considered superfluous). The kind of universe we observe demands a designer. Our universe shows a tremendous designer. Buchanan's illustration of a hurricane going through junkyard and creating a computer. You cannot put the parts in a box and shake it for a million years and get a computer.
6. Some try to reconcile God and evolution; this is called theistic evolution:

- a. In theistic evolution, God creates, as we find in Genesis. On the 7th day, when God rests, evolution takes over. Genesis 1 is considered to be metaphorical.
- b. In theistic evolution, God is transcendent. He is the creator who puts the universe into its beginning.
- c. However He is not imminent; He does not directly involve Himself in our world and universe. The greatest intervention in history is Jesus Christ. Theistic evolution means that God is not imminent. God intervened in the laws of physics in the book of Joshua.
7. In secular evolution, natural laws always have existed. They are eternal, which gives nature the same attributes as the Bible assigns to God. If nature creates the universe, then nature must be eternal.
8. Nature becomes a replacement for God. This is why nature worship is an enemy of Christianity; it is a replacement for God. This is the basic tenant of many environmentalisms. A worship of the creature more than the creator, including birds and 4 footed creatures.
9. In the religious sense, this is called pantheism. Literally, everything is God.
  - a. In catchy language, we might say god is the rock. He is a force of nature, but not a personal god. We are in essence gods as well.
  - b. God is present in all matter and physical substance. This is the view of the Hindu and the Buddhist. There is divinity in us and in all matter and all substance.
  - c. Why is evolution pantheistic?
  - d. Because in evolution, matter has a creative force. Matter is god.
  - e. In other words, nature is the force that creates.
  - f. Hence nature is divine because it is the creator. All natural forces act together to create.
  - g. What we have here is a radical imminence. God is the universes; god is the rock, god is the sea, god is all of us; but this is not a personal transcendence. All a result of natural forces.
  - h. Omnipresent God is exchanged for a force in and with all physical substance.
  - i. Pantheism denies God as a person. We have a personal God with a personality, Who speaks to us, who communicates with us; we have a personal relationship with Him.
  - j. There is only the force of nature to create the universe. The force be with you.
  - k. Thus nature is an object to be revered in pantheism as a replacement for divine activity, for divine essence, activity, transcendence and personality.
10. Closely connected with evolution is environmentalism; nature is places above other considerations, including God.

Another type of idolater is one who is a Christian activism. He is more interested in a cause than who and what God is; their service to God is their activity, which precludes the grace of God. Believers can be involved with any of these things. When a believer thinks in any of these ways, he is following the creature instead of the Creator.

Λοιδωρος = Reviler.

1. A reviler and an abusive person.
2. It is one who constantly abuses other verbally.
3. This is a slanderer.
4. Paul refers to the Corinthians who have slandered him and others. He is referring to the faction leaders and their cohorts.
5. They were verbally expressing the envy and jealousy of their own poisoned minds. They are filled with human viewpoint. The Corinthians are a divisive bunch. Slander rubs off; you get slandered and you slander in return. You are completely distracted from doctrine and impersonal love.
6. Sins of the tongue, which is what λοιδωρος is, is contagious and they spread like a fire. James 3:5–6: Even so the tongue is a little member and boasts great things. Behold how little a fire kindles how large a forest! And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity. So the tongue is set among our members, spotting all the body and inflaming the course of nature, and being inflamed by hell.
  - a. Being involved in slander is the worst thing. A slanderer should never be in a leadership position.

Μεθυσος = Drunkard

1. This is a drunk, addicted to alcohol and possibly other substances.
2. This is not a person who drinks; drug addicts are under this category.
3. What is a drunk? There are some who you cannot tell; they can drink vast quantities. You can tell if you have a problem if you stop drinking. It is a sure fire way to know. This is an easy substitute for dependency on your spiritual life. It can be anything which is substituted for doctrine.
4. The μεθυσος seeks to escape, to be stimulated or to gain happiness through a false state of euphoria and detachment. You need to deal with life in its reality.
5. There is no genuine stimulation or escape in drunkenness.
  - a. It destroys the mentality of the soul.
  - b. Alcoholism corrupts doctrinal norms and standards in the conscience.
  - c. It neutralizes volition.
  - d. Linked to sexual reversionism.
  - e. Μεθυσος creates the possible impairment of soul function, the immaterial portion of mankind. It is part of immoral degeneracy.
6. Being a drunk is a manifestation of spiritual degeneracy. This leads to all manner of physical and mental degeneracy.

7. This does not mean that a person here cannot be helped; but co-dependency is not helping. This exacerbates the problem in their desire to help. Co-dependency is why we don't have this close association with these people.
8. Intimate mingling with drunks and those involved with drugs puts one in extreme danger.
9. Distraction to your spiritual growth and your life in general. The destruction of our physical health is not Paul's emphasis here. This brings us down to the level of the reversionist.

ἀρτοξ = grifters, gamblers, the believer who takes advance of others for their own gain. These 6 types lead others into reversionism. We are to separate from them. Do not have a close intimate relationship with them. Do not even eat with such a one. This is a good relationship, this is a close friendship. Do not be socially involved with these people.

1Cor. 5:11 Therefore, I have written to you previously not to associate intimately, if any man called a brother if he is either sexually immoral, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

1Corinthians 5:11

Lesson #210 Sunday 1

August 14, 2005

V. 11 is a list of reversionistic believers. Paul here added two categories of reversionists to the list of unbelievers in the previous verse: revilers and drunkards.

A reviler is one who continually suffers from sins of the tongues. Μηθυσος = drunkard. A person addicted to alcohol or to other things. Not a person who drinks in moderation. This category would include a drug abuser. This is any substance abuse which causes mental or physical dependence and results in the loss of reality. The problem of close association with a drunk should be obvious. This often draws us into joining with them in over indulging. Our relaxation should not be measured in how many tequila shots it takes to loosen us up. Overindulgence can become a crutch for our inadequacies, a replacement for our loneliness. We have problem solving devices on the FLOT line of our soul. Escaping reality by drowning it or the inability to have a good time apart from alcohol is problematic. Losing the reality of divine viewpoint through substance abuse, you have lost. You do not have to escape anything with doctrine in your soul.

These are 6 types of reversionism which leads others astray as well. This is why Paul says, "Separate from such as these." Do not even eat with such a one. Anyone who can detract from your spiritual advance should be avoided. Μηδε ευεσθιω = do not eat. This is something which indicates a close personal relationship. This goes back to μη συναναμιγνυμι = do not [closely] associate with. These are parallel verbs which complement one another. We should not have close, intimate relationships with reversionists. However, this does not cancel out business lunches. This prohibition would include dating. Some close relationships develop over a conversation at dinner. We are not looking at a casual lunch or a casual dinner here. This is not a denial of all social relations. Not a total exclusion of intimate social relations. Even in separation you should never be ungracious. You do not chop their hand off and then their head. You may not continue a close relationship; but you should not be ungracious. The immature believer watches the mature believer. "If you can have a relationship with a reversionist, then why can't I?" We will go down and so it will take down the immature believer as well.

1Cor. 5:11 Therefore, I have written to you previously not to associate intimately, if any man called a brother if he is either sexually immoral, or covetous [greedy, lust for power, money, sex], or an idolater [one who places something else above God], or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

1Corinthians 5:11–12

Lesson #211 Sunday 2

August 14, 2005

A workman that should not be ashamed. Heb. 4:12. You don't have to move to the other side of the lunch room because there is a reversionist there.

Summary Points for Separation

1. If associating with a reversionist negatively impacts your volition
2. If that association adversely affects your spiritual life.
3. If this association advances human viewpoint in your soul.
4. If this affects the spiritual life of others; then we must abstain from such contact. There is no other solution. You might have to separate from some of the most interesting.
5. An example: you don't eat with the drunk when you have a personal propensity for alcoholism. You don't spend time at the bar when you have this kind of propensity.
6. You don't associate with the sexually immoral person if that is your area of weakness. This is an association which can affect your thinking and your activities.
7. You simply put yourselves in harm's way by starting or continuing your associations. Starting is not difficult; ending is.
8. Continuing or starting such associations will have an adverse spiritual affect which we should deny ourselves. Though intimate associations, there is always that danger of being brought down to the spiritual level. This does not give us license to act ungraciously. We are not to become the spiritual martinet.

This caveat against eating does not include the Lord's supper. We should focus on Jesus Christ; not upon the people who are there. If we never have another close association with Jesus Christ at any time, we should at that time. If there is a reversionist next to you, that should not affect your intake of the Lord's Supper. Communion constitutes a close personal relationship or association with Jesus Christ, not with those around you. We all have to decide, where is that cut off point? Your closest friend or someone you love might be in that situation. What comes first in your life? That tells you what your spiritual life is like. We do not need to spend time having fun, when those having fun are far away from what Scripture tells you what is right.

1Cor. 5:11 Therefore, I have written to you previously not to associate intimately, if any man called a brother if he is either sexually immoral, or covetous [greedy, lust for power, money, sex], or an idolater [one who places something else above God], or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such a one not to eat.

Now, to the closing line of 1Cor. 5; he begins with the incestuous man and will end on that note as well. The Corinthians mistook Paul's warning to mean separating from unbelievers only. Marriage with an unbeliever is strictly forbidden. It is easy to be attracted to an interesting, fun, fabulous unbeliever; and they might even be establishment oriented. Still, you cannot marry them. The same holds true for the believer reversionist. Now, we don't get to divorce someone because they are reversionistic or unbelievers. You should not marry such a one; but you also don't get to divorce them later. In v. 10, Paul let's us know that we will have some contact with unbelievers; this is inevitable; however, it should not be intimate contact. And Paul makes sure that we know in v. 11 that this applies to the believer who is reversionistic as well.

Look at their actions as well as what they say. If someone is a reversionist, they will show it. When you see the signs, then back off. Don't get started.

Paul concludes that he is not to judge outsiders. Present active infinitive of κρίνω = to judge, to evaluate, to criticize, to find fault with, to condemn. To find fault with is what applies here. Paul does not have any disciplinary control over those outside of the church. That is way beyond his responsibilities. You don't tell the unbeliever, "You are a jerk; now let me tell you about Christ." It is not the responsibility for the Corinthians to find fault with unbelievers outside of the church. Sins are no longer an issue in the gospel; whatever a person does in life is not an issue, even if it is Charles Manson. Jesus Christ died for every heinous person in this world. The law deals with those in the outside world. We don't judge unless we are on a jury. We don't criticize the unbeliever for their sins.

Paul made it clear that there is personal separation without a judgmental attitude. We are the separate, but we don't have to unload on them. We separate with grace orientation. If we fall in love with the reversionist and they rip us up one side and down the other, then it is easy to become judgmental. No matter what an unbeliever does to you, do not act in an ungracious manner. We can find fault with people or society as a whole; e.g., the widespread increase of drug addiction or pornography; and that anti-war activity is detrimental to our soldiers. Bobby mentions the woman outside of Waco, who lost her son in Iraq. A great loss and she is suffering bitter anguish, which is understandable. She has transferred her loss to criticism of the war. She and others want the US out of Iraq. Problem is, we are already there and if we leave without accomplishing our mission, then the lives lost are wasted. Despite her anguish, defeating Islamic terrorism is legitimate. We must draw the line against terrorism, and if we don't, it will come back to us. She is dishonoring the sacrifice of her own son, which is the second great tragedy of her life. She is projecting the dishonor that she has placed on her son onto all the others who have been wounded or killed. If we withdraw, then all of the deaths are in vain. Her feelings are understandable from human viewpoint. We don't expose society's ills to the unbelievers. It is better to abstain from criticizing society's ills, as it drives people away. We don't need to convict a liberal to be a conservative. Sometimes such discussions with unbelievers is inevitable; not an argument, however. A discussion can sometimes provide an opening to present the gospel. Do not dwell on society's ills or the problems or the lack of principles. Divine establishment discussions do not provide eternal life for the unbeliever.

The example of the religion evolution, which has taken the place of God. Arguing this is not the right approach; find a way to turn the discussion around to Jesus Christ. We cannot argue in that realm, since evolutionist thinking is so steeped in our society. It has been here for 150 years. They believe in evolution; I believe in Jesus Christ. These arguments often lead nowhere. You will not convince a person of something different. The only thing we can do is present the gospel.

Paul says he does not have a right to judge those on the outside of the church. The news can be upsetting and you might wonder, how can a person think like that? Other people do not have a clue about divine viewpoint. Don't lose your cool. This is the devil's world and these thoughts and opinions will be here until the Lord returns. Tell them to believe in Jesus Christ and tell them what is necessary.

1Cor. 5:12 For what is it to me to also judge those who are outside? Do you not judge those who are inside?

1Corinthians 5:12

Lesson #212 Wednesday

August 17, 2005

One line sometimes interprets another line. In order to understand the first line, we must understand the second. This is how Paul will complete this chapter. Two questions in v. 12 and two sentences in v. 13. These are two questions with two answers. 12a: we don't judge outsiders; 13a: God judges the outsiders. 12b: you are to judge those on the inside; 13b: therefore, judge those inside the church. Paul's logic for this entire chapter is dealt with in these final two verses. These four lines develop the logic of what we have so far. Paul makes sure that the Corinthians understand contact with believers and unbelievers. You cannot have close personal relationships with those who are unbelievers; but we will all have contact with those who are unbelievers. You cannot witness unless you have contact with them. That will be the first and foremost reason to have contact with the unbeliever.

Advancing believers are to separate from certain believers; particularly, those who are in reversionism. You cannot think with divine viewpoint unless you have doctrine resident in your soul. Many Corinthians went in the opposite direction of epistemological rehabilitation. The believer without doctrine is not different from the unbeliever in his way of thinking or acting. Grace is a discriminatory in our grace life. The Scripture is grace oriented; there is no legalism in the Bible. If we think of ourselves as righteous, we will demonstrate that to all who are around us. 6 categories of reversionism have been studied. Paul's point is, there is no difference in the necessity for separation from believers and unbelievers. The conclusion is the final sentence. Separate from the wicked man.

If we have human viewpoint in our soul, we are not being epistemologically rehabilitated. The stumbling block principle in chapter 8. This can confuse those who are spiritually weak. When your spiritual life is affected in a negative way, then there is a problem. Our spiritual advance will be complicated or eliminated. We are told not even to eat with such people. This is a very emphatic statement. No intimate social life with those people. Many an intimate relationship is begun over dinner.

When you separate, then do not be rude or ungracious about it. This separation principle never gives us the right to separate ungraciously. You do not do so with a judgmental attitude. This includes any personal denunciation of an unbeliever's or attitudes. It is not our witness to tell unbelievers where they have gone wrong. This is not a part of our job. We are not to tell the unbeliever where their values are all wrong. The Corinthians had no problem castigating those who were immoral. It was a great party town and some of the Corinthians had no problem separating from those types and letting them have it. The reversionist in the church causes more problems than anyone outside the church.

There is a lot of obvious evil in the outside world and there appears to be a lot more morality in the Christian world. There is this marked differentiation, that we often overlook those who are self-righteous. Their thinking is pure legalism. Inside, they are dead man's bones; whitewashed tombstones on the outside. They knew to separate from those who are outside the church, even to the point of not witnessing to them; but they did not know enough to separate from the incestuous dude inside the church. We don't compromise with evil, so we don't care for these things. The unbeliever has no frame of reference for their wrongdoing. This is not a part of our calling. We can deal with those on the inside, to some extent. However, we are to keep from criticizing the unbeliever. Our personal zeal in these areas often drive the unbeliever away. Bobby cannot stand someone with their political views coming in his face; so imagine how the unbeliever deals with that. The gospel has a thousand times more impact than any political argument. We don't need to argue the finer points of evolution in order to present the gospel.

If we were in a jury room with hundreds of witnesses with the same story; then we would be reasonable to believe them. We need to present the gospel; we do not need to discuss divine establishment points of view. We don't have to tell the unbeliever how far they fall from Biblical standards. The Holy Spirit will make the gospel clear to those who need it. When the gospel is heard, the Holy Spirit will make it real. There is no neutral with respect to the gospel. Furthermore, we don't need to worry about what they think about it. That is the best thing that we can do for the unbeliever.

You don't have to wallow in the unbeliever's dirt in order to witness to them. Without salvation and bible doctrine, there will never be the idea of divine establishment in the unbeliever's soul. Putting clothes on the natives is the superficiality of religion; but it is not salvation.

The gospel has more power than all of the philosophies in the world; more power than any group of people in the world; greater than the power of all world leaders.

Nagging does not change anyone. The same is true in the spiritual life; the same is true of the unbeliever. You cannot force anyone into the plan of God. Paul cannot judge anyone on the outside and we should not do this either. There will always be an unlying difference between the way that we think and the way the unbeliever thinks, even if they seem to think closely.

1Cor. 5:12 For what is it to me to also judge those who are outside? Do you not judge those who are inside?

1Cor. 5:13 But God judges those who are outside. Therefore put out from you the evil one.

1Corinthians 5:12

Lesson #213 Thursday

August 18, 2005

Just made it in time. With little divine viewpoint in the souls, the Corinthians were distracted in a number of different ways. 1Cor. 5 deals with many of their distractions. Judging outsiders, which are simply unbelievers. These people will be influence and even captivated by the cosmic system which is all around them.

Paul says, "I have no business considering the activities outside the church; I have no jurisdiction over those outside the church." For me to criticize the lifestyle of those on the outside would be worthless. The unbeliever does not need criticism; they need salvation. It is not up to us to deal with societal problems. The Corinthians must ask themselves the same question: do I have the obligation or the right to judge someone from outside the church? Of course not. They must come to the same conclusion which Paul has come to. They have no business with those outside the church. Correcting them is not their business. You cannot be shocked when someone outside the church cannot fulfill Christian responsibilities. This would be ridiculous to expect of an unbeliever.

Present active infinitive of κρινω = to judge, to criticize, to find fault with, to condemn. When you hire an employee or when determining how far to go in an association in life; these are normal judgments which we must make. Here, the idea is, we are dealing with an unfavorable criticism. Spending time in criticizing the unbeliever is just a waste of time; it is superfluous to Paul's mission. Individual finding fault can be distracting. You cannot concern yourself with divisive issues that you have with unbelievers. You cannot change their modus operandi without a fundamental change in their norms and standards. We find fault so that we can argue and change the behavior or opinion of someone. Any change you might effect is simple whitewashing. On core issues, we will always differ from unbelievers. We might agree on even some divine establishment issues; we are not to criticize them for their imperfect lifestyles; that is not our business. This does not mean that we are to compromise with evil. When a relationship causes us to compromise with evil, that is a problem. The principle holds true. If you are married to an unbeliever, or they are believers who are not interested in doctrine, then do not nag them about it. Talk to them if they offer an opening; but, other than that, do not nag them about it. The unbeliever can never meet our standards. We destroy our witness for Jesus Christ when we search out their weaknesses. Paul is wasting his time to judge these unbelievers. This ruins his witness as well.

The best we can hope for with an unbeliever is the belief in divine establishment. Paul is once again warning the church of an intimate association with unbelievers; but do not put a personal judgment on the unsaved. You will not gain a hearing for the gospel by exposing their sins. The holier than thou approach. This is going to turn off most unbelievers. For us to do this, it can become a springboard in our soul for Christian activism. There are Christian activist movements all over; but Paul is telling us not to become involved. The end result is, people become polarized. The more we castigate the other side, the more polarized we become. No one wants to talk to the other side; they just want to yell the loudest and get their way. No civility is involved. Civility is the name of the game when dealing with the unbeliever. We are presenting the message of grace. Paul has done a lot of witnessing; and he has killed a lot of Christians. St. Stephen did not find fault with those who stoned him. It is not our job to expose the cosmic system to the unbeliever; similarly, we do not have to condone sinful behavior in order to get a hearing.

Who can we find fault with, if you cannot find fault with the unbeliever? We can find fault with those who are within. There is no backstabbing or anything wrong with finding fault with those within. We have 6 limited categories.

Who do we Find Fault with?

1. The church as a whole must evaluate those up for church office. Employees, prep school, etc.
2. Leadership must evaluate believers for job recommendations, for entrance into a school, etc.
3. The more punitive aspect: church or assembly discipline. This has been so distorted as to almost be unrecognizable.
4. Assembly or church discipline includes removal or negating of cliques which are distracting the congregation from doctrine. There was a choir and they were in the choir loft and when they disagreed with a doctrine, so they would illustrate it with their expressions or body language. Bob fired them. They did not have to leave the church, although many did. Sometimes those on the periphery fall out over these things as well. The church leadership must always be objective in order to protect the members of the congregation. The church leadership must be very careful as to how this is done. It should be done as sparingly as possible and it is a last resort. Pastor or deacons might make these decisions and it might require some heart-rendering decisions. The principle is protecting the congregation from various attacks.
5. There is personal discipline as well, like this man in Corinth, whom will be given over to Satan by Paul.

Notice the shift in pronouns in v. 12: I don't do it in this respect; you must do it in that respect.

Paul's Pronoun Change

1. Separation from unbelievers is necessary in some cases, but that is not the focus here.
2. Those inside the church are the subject.
3. Paul says you can find fault with them, because these are the ones who have Biblical standards and live up to them.
4. This verse is a reminder of the correction that Paul makes concerning his first correspondence.
5. It is the reversionist believer who was the true subject of the first letter.
6. The reversionists are the ones the church needs to look out for. Paul reiterates this with a change in pronouns.
7. It is the reversionist who can more easily disrupt the life of the church. "You, Corinthians, must find fault with..." There is such a thing as church discipline; we do not let the believers run wild in the church. Disruption or distraction from doctrine; or where there is danger to individuals.

God is the personal disciplinarian of individual believers; Bobby is not. Finding fault is not the job of the pastor. Bobby finds fault only when we need protection. When we find fault in those from the outside, God will find fault with us and divine discipline is on the way.

At some point in time, we will be the butt of someone's fault finding. The Lord will handle that.

1Cor. 5:12 For what is it to me to also judge those who are outside? Do you not judge those who are inside?

1Cor. 5:13 But God judges those who are outside. Therefore put out from you the evil one.

1Corinthians 5:12

Lesson #214 Sunday 1

August 21, 2005

Worship is done in the mentality of our soul. We may or may not have some emotion involved. We can only worship God with doctrine in our soul.

Two questions: should I find fault with those who are outside the church? Paul does not have time to deal with those who are outside the church. He cannot spend time worrying about the decadence of society; it is a waste of time for him to do this. It is not up to him to criticize the society in which he lives; he does not need to whitewash the society that he is a part of; he is going to leave the external society up to God. That is God's prerogative. It is not our duty to put a whitewash on the society in which we live. Morality has no eternal ramifications. The righteousness of God is not found in adhering to a system of laws or imposing morality on others. Morality has nothing to do with our salvation. We are not the arbiter of public morality. Salvation and then spiritual growth.

Our real impact is with the gospel. Carrying signs in protest or chaining yourself to a fire hydrant in order to draw attention to this or that cause is not our job. Thousands protest this or that evil; however, most of the time, they are protesting relative evil and sometimes they even protest divine establishment. Salvation and epistemological rehabilitation offer much more than whitewashing the devil's world. Our life according to the standards of God's Word has real impact. Doctrine in our soul is what affects society most. There is a lot of frustration out there, from the congress down to those who walk the street and beg. We can see it at every level of our culture and our society. Finding fault with the unbeliever is not going to solve a thing. We do not need to make others look or act like Christians. Drop the judgmental attitude; do not be sidetracked by this or that. This approach has no effect on the unbeliever; more often, it antagonizes the unbeliever.

Maintaining a Nonjudgmental Attitude toward Unbelievers

1. You do not become nonjudgmental by compromising divine standards. You do not go down to the level of the unbeliever. We should not wallow in their muck.
2. No prejudice toward the unbeliever requires impersonal love. You tolerate; you do not love them because they are tolerable; you tolerate them because God tolerates us. We are representatives of the Lord Jesus Christ on earth. We do not need to use holy language to impress them; we cannot whitewash them.
3. Nonjudgmental means, do not find fault with a person who cannot follow Biblical standards. Divine viewpoint is our way of life. You may not even understand how they think. Do not evaluate the unbeliever by divine standards. For those who reject the gospel, you can separate. However, even if you really like them, do not form a close, personal relationship (which compromises doctrine).

The second question: aren't you going to judge those inside the church? A church can judge those who are within the church. The church has a right and a duty to find fault with those in reversionism with those who cause problems and distractions. Now, there is carnality that we will never deal with. We are all from time to time out of fellowship and sometimes for longer periods of time. We are from time to time out of fellowship. That is not up to the church to deal with. Now, if we are harassed or distracted or hindered in any other way by other believers, then this is an issue for the church leadership. There are several factions in Corinth which cause tremendous disruptions; and there are many who are distracted by overt sinful behavior which some glorify.

There is personal discipline, which can include excommunication. Sometimes people are involved in criminal behavior and criminal schemes which are sprung on others. These have to be removed. Some gossip and spread rumors about others; these have to be removed from the church. The idea is protection of the whole of the congregation. The congregation must be protected. Leadership is the avenue for church discipline; it is not individuals who deal with this. God is the personal disciplinarian of every believer. It is not our prerogative. Avoid anyone who attempts to do this; avoid gossip and slander. We will never be the arbiter of church discipline—this person will be disciplined by God.

There is some separation for those who are within the church. However, the unbeliever is not the primary focus of this chapter. Those within the church should have Biblical standards. Reversionists who are distractions to spiritual growth. Do not worry about the unbelievers on the outside. They are not going to disrupt the spiritual growth of those within the church.

1Cor. 5:12 For what have I to do with finding fault with outsiders? Do you not judge those who are inside?

This final verse is a summation of chapter 5: finding fault with is a human evaluation. Is this a future judgment of the Great White Throne? Is it God will judge or God judges? The present tense means God has the prerogative to judge. He has the prerogative; we do not. Only God can make a judgment. We might say, "That person is an unbeliever; look at how they behave." It is not up to us to decide. It is not up to us to judge their lifestyle or their degeneracy.

Deut. 22:22–24: "If a man is found lying with the wife of another man, both of them shall die, the man who lay with the woman, and the woman. So you shall purge the evil from Israel. "If there is a betrothed virgin, and a man meets her in the city and lies with her, ...then you shall bring them both out to the gate of that city, and you shall stone them to death with stones, the young woman because she did not cry for help though she was in the city, and the man because he violated his neighbor's wife. So you shall purge the evil from your midst. Paul has derived his sentence from this quotation.

There are two situations to be dealt with here. There is a woman who has disgraced her father's house by having sex prior to marriage. She has disgraced her family and it will be handled by capital punishment. This was the code for Israel, which is not our code. We live by the code of the United States of America.

Capital punishment for the man who commits adultery and for the woman who is not a virgin prior to marriage. So, what is the point? Bobby has a long explanation for this.

1Cor. 5:13 But God judges those who are outside. Therefore put out from you the evil one.

1Corinthians 5:12

Lesson #215 Sunday 2

August 21, 2005

This same quote is found in several places in Deuteronomy. There is capital punishment, where everyone can watch, and stones are picked up and these people are stoned to death. The leaders of the society are responsible for public order. There were to throw these stones at them until they are dead. Deuteronomy calls for an adulterer or a fornicator to be stoned.

The Mosaic Code was the law for Israel. These quotes together do not constitute capital punishment for these two offenses. We are under the laws of the United States. There were some laws in these areas, but most of them have been repealed. Not a part of our study.

Deut. 22:22–24: "If a man is found lying with the wife of another man, both of them shall die, the man who lay with the woman, and the woman. So you shall purge the evil from Israel. "If there is a betrothed virgin, and a man meets her in the city and lies with her, ...then you shall bring them both out to the gate of that city, and you shall stone them to death with stones, the young woman because she did not cry for help though she was in the city, and the man because he violated his neighbor's wife. So you shall purge the evil from your midst. Paul has derived his sentence from this quotation.

Why Does Paul Make this Quote in 1Cor. 5:13?

Often the crowd on Sunday morning are the nod-to-God'ers. The spiritual life involves a continual study of the Word of God, and not just once a week. There are probably some in this group. This is information that we need to know.

1. We are no longer subject to the specific statutes of the Mosaic Law. Covenant theology has believers subject to some of the statutes of the Mosaic Law. How are we separate from those in the age of Israel?
2. There are principles which are still valid today from the Mosaic Law; these are universal, divine principles. Don't steal, don't murder.
3. The Mosaic Law by way of principle approves capital punishment. We do not approve it for the same offenses. That is up to our laws. The principle is approved, however, for offenses which our own law specifies.
4. In the church age, we do not adhere to specific case law from the nation of Israel. That was their legal code. It was a law by which they lived and abided, although it was divinely inspired.
  - a. There was no separation in Israel between church and state. National law and God's law were the same thing. In our society, these things are not the same, and it should not be. In Israel, God's law and national law were synonymous.
  - b. Israel lived under the Mosaic Law as a national theocracy. There is no theocracy in the Church Age; where it exists is a distortion, e.g., Islamic fundamentalists. They want to rule by Islamic Law. This is a tyranny; their law is a distortion of divine law. It is not ordained for the Church Age today.
  - c. Divine law and the law of Israel were inseparable. The purpose of the New Testament is not a book of statutes.

The Mosaic Law

1. We do not look to the Mosaic Law for our own standards. Rom. 10:4: Christ is the end of the law for righteousness. Today, our personal life and spiritual life are governed; in Israel, the national life was governed.
2. The Lord Jesus Christ kept the Law perfectly, which qualified Him to be our Savior. Bobby tells someone to shut off their phone.
3. The Law was given as an indicator of how far short man falls of God's righteousness. The spiritual aspect of the law were things which Israel violated every single day. Their law was a part of their spiritual life, and they always fell short. That was the worst legalism of all. The pharisees alleged that they could keep the law, although they could not. If the Israelites understood the law, they realized that they could not keep the Law. This points to the greatest righteousness of all.

4. The Mosaic Law was a national code. The Law also witnessed to the Jews that true righteousness could only be obtained through divine imputation. Salvation is the same in every dispensation. Our righteousness does not reflect the righteousness which God gives us. The Mosaic Law is a national law; however, we clearly need something else.
5. Today, we are declared perfectly righteous (1Cor. 1:30) and we live by a greater law.
6. We live by the doctrine found in the New Testament. We do not live under the Mosaic Law, Hammurabi's law, etc. Laws can also bring tyranny, but great laws reflect divine establishment. Divine establishment is the basis for all law. In practice, the laws of the US remain separate from divine laws. The laws of the US apply to unbelievers as well. The laws of the Old Testament was a code for believers and unbelievers; and it was also a spiritual code. One compliments the other.

Why Does Paul Quote this from the Old Testament if he does not Expect it to be Literally Carried Out?

1. Why did Paul say this if he did not literally expect these people to be stoned? Paul did want a purging to take place in Corinth.
2. The sentence, the excommunication sentence, was to link in the minds of the Corinthians the parallel to the divine punishment of the sin unto death.
3. Hence the link between the sexual offender in Old Testament Israel and the sexual offender in Corinth.
4. Both were to be purged; separated from. The Old Testament was by divine fiat: take them outside and stone them. In the New Testament, there was no stoning; God pronounced the sin unto death. There was no legal code, no national requirement that such a one be stoned. God can do this. God can pronounce upon any given person the sin unto death.
5. Why not stone them in the church age? Doesn't that also purge them? No; we do not live by the specific statutes of the Mosaic Law. God gives a direct punishment instead. We are not to take this punishment application upon ourselves.

Why the Harsh Punishment under the Mosaic Law?

1. The sexual immorality would become a norm if it was not restricted and severely punished. The Old Testament gives very few instances of these sentences being carried out. There are instances where God punishes for these things (David, Solomon, Israel as a people).
2. The Mosaic Law defines the parameters of sin and evil in Israel.

- a. The Mosaic Law codified the laws for the nation of Israel: the sacrifices, the dietary laws, the morality laws, the spiritual code. Each one of these were precisely defined.
- b. God knew that this punishment would demonstrate the seriousness of the sin if the offense went unchecked.
- c. This punishment had a practical side to it.
  - i. This was a needed protection for Israel. Israel was a theocracy. It lived under God's laws.
  - ii. This was not simply a protection for personal sexual immorality.
  - iii. Israel, as a nation, was God's representative on earth at that time. As the other nations came in contact with Israel, Israel represented the God to them.
  - iv. What kind of a representation would Israel be if they were steeped in degeneracy? The diaspora was a part of the punishment when Israel did not behave as they should.
  - v. This protected the spiritual life of a nation. Israel was surrounded by neighbors involved in the phallic cults; Baal, their god. The Philistines and the rest. It was a short step from personal sexual immorality to frequenting the temples of Baal, which happened over and over again in Israel.
  - vi. In reality, this was the destruction of the spiritual life of many Jews. This brought a spiritual apocalypse.
  - vii. The parallel: the temples of Baal were similar to the worship of Aphrodite in Corinth. Both were phallic cults. There is a parallel here. The phallic cult existed in both societies.

Israel must be separated from these evil practices; and the church must be as well. Paul uses this one statement to teach the Corinthians why their spiritual life is going down the tubes.

The entering of the Holy of Holies was once a year to indicate that Jesus died once for our sins; it was not done in the Year of Jubilee, as God knew that would not be followed. Israel did not obey the Sabbatical years nor did she obey the Year of Jubilee. Therefore, the entering of the Holy of Holies had to be done more often.

1Cor. 5:13 But God judges those who are outside. Therefore put out from you the evil one.

1Corinthians 5:12

Lesson #216 Wednesday

August 24, 2005

Two cases here: a man and a woman, separate situations, and they are both subject to stoning. This will remove the evil from among the Israelites. Fornication and adultery received capital sentences for them in that time.

We need a little background to understand all of this. The Mosaic Law is divinely inspired law which governs the nation of Israel in the Old Testament. There was no separation of church and state at that time. God's law and national law were synonymous. This is entirely different from what we have today. The Torah is Israel set apart unto God. Israel lives under God's government, partially under the statutes of the Mosaic Law. A theocracy, which is not actually a Biblical term, coined, probably by Josephus from the 1st century A.D.. This happened only one time in history. Every sphere and relationship in life was governed by the special revelation of God in the Mosaic Law. Under divine law, Israel would reflect God's purposes for the nation. It reflected the purpose of God. All of these statutes governed the priests, the Levites, the people, the prophets and the kings. In most of the nations around Israel, the king was law (as in Esher). The king was a divine figure. The spiritual code was intertwined with the criminal and civil code.

Why did Deut. 22 prescribe such a harsh penalty for these mistakes?

Mosaic Law, Sexual Immorality and the Death Penalty

1. Without restrictions and severe punishment by the Mosaic Law, sexual immorality would become acceptable and a norm in Jewish society. Therefore, the punishment was a deterrent.
2. The statutes of the Mosaic Law define the standards for the nation.
3. The Law codified the forbidden practices to Israel. This would be every aspect of sin and evil; our context is sexual sins.
4. Capital punishment for sexual immorality was designed to counteract the serious affect that sexual malfeasance would have to the divinely ordained nation, if it went unchecked.
5. It was designed also to deter the serious affect on the spiritual life of individual believers.
6. This harsh punishment had a theological and practical side to it.
7. The punishment was needed to protect Israel; it was necessary. Israel represented God on earth. Israel was the first and only client nation during the Old Testament. A national protection for national degeneracy.
8. The problem was—this is why Israel needed protection—Israel was surrounded by neighbors involved in the phallic cult.
9. Baal worship had a tremendous attraction for the apostate Jew. A tremendous pull to Baal worship.
10. A short step from sexual immorality to frequenting the temple for sex to going their for worship.
11. The Jews frequently disregarded the anti-fornication statute to the detriment of the nation.
12. This was the cause for the destruction for several national apocalypses.
13. The death penalty for this offense was a deterrent designed to protect the nation and individual believers from this sort of degeneracy.

What is the connection between these two.

First, what it is not?

1. Paul's quote was not to institute capital punishment for adultery.
2. It is not to incite the church to push through legislation to require capital punishment for sexual sins. We are no longer subject to the individual laws of Moses.
3. We can derive certain things from this law—capital punishment for murder. Not for adultery and fornication; but the principle is a divinely established deterrent for crime. There are still those who think the Mosaic Law is designed for us today and this leads to Christian activism. We do not live our spiritual life as per the laws
4. The law of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus. The doctrine which comes in the New Testament.

What is the Connection?

1. The circumstantial parallelism is sexual immorality in both contexts.
2. The context of 1Cor. 5 is the incestuous man and other deviations.
3. The context of Deut. 24
4. Paul is not building a hierarchy of sexual immorality. Both temples were places of fornication.
5. The link between these two verses is purging sexual offenses. However, the sexual aspect is not paramount. It is actually incidental.
6. The important parallel is the purging of sin and evil which much take place in both societies.
7. The quote served the purpose of linking in the minds of the Corinthians the necessity of the sin unto death for the incestuous man.
8. There is a circumstantial link between the immoral ones in Corinth and during the time of Israel.
9. Just as Israel needed to purge the sexual offenders from the church,
10. Just as the national and spiritual life of Israel was protected by the purging of the sexual evil among them,
11. So the direct sentence by God of the sin unto death to the incestuous man was meant to purge the evil from to the church.
12. Paul was saying, "Purge the evil from among you; excommunicate, so that your spiritual life can advance. Now in Corinth, Paul says get rid of that evil among you.
13. The sin unto death of the incestuous man was a parallel to the immoral types in the Old Testament; to the diaspora of Israel in the past.
14. The corinthians failed to purge the evil, God delivered the immoral man to Satan, just as He delivered Israel from k
15. They have to be rid of the evil in the church.

The Israelites had to recognize why God removed this immoral man; it ws all about their spiritual life. It was all incidental. There is a certain continuity between the testaments. However, there is a discontinuity between the Old and New. There are some which are found in both ages.

Deut. 22:22–24: "If a man is found lying with the wife of another man, both of them shall die, the man who lay with the woman, and the woman. So you shall purge the evil from Israel. "If there is a betrothed virgin, and a man meets her in the city and lies with her, ...then you shall bring them both out to the gate of that city, and you shall stone them to death with stones, the young woman because she did not cry for help though she was in the city, and the man because he violated his neighbor's wife. So you shall purge the evil from your midst. Paul has derived his sentence from this quotation.

1Cor. 5:13 But God judges those who are outside. Therefore put out from you the evil one.

V. 13 is a response to v. 12. Don't you judge those within the Church?

Of course, would be the response.

ὄκει = not. With the indicative verb in a question means a positive response to the question of v. 12; there must be a positive response to the rhetorical question of v. 12. Πονηρός = wicked, worthless, degenerate, evil. This is specifically applied to the degeneracy of the incestuous man of that congregation. They did not answer yes to the question of Paul, so Paul will hand this guy over to Satan himself.

In the meantime, the Corinthians must recognize the affect of this guy and that he deserves what he gets. God is providing an enforced separation. When they did not separate from him, God had to do it through Paul. This final verse is a summary of the entire chapter.

Summary of 1Corinthians 5

1. The chapter began with the evil and degeneracy of the incestuous man who was affecting the entire church.
  - a. He needed to be removed.
  - b. Therefore, God did it and the Corinthians must accept it.
  - c. The Corinthians must heed the principles of separation from reversionism in order to maximize their spiritual life.
2. The chapter continues with the exhortation to purge the level of malignancy and wickedness. Wickedness in v. 8 is πονηρία; one is a cognate of the other.
  - a. This is the principle of separation from evil and reversionism.
  - b. The wickedness of leaven was an analogy.
3. The chapter continues in vv. 9–11 with the mandate not to associate with immoral people.
  - a. Once again, this is the principle of purging such people from our life. There is not the purging from the nation but from our lives.
  - b. In other words, we are speaking of sexually immoral people like the incestuous man. We are also speaking of covetous men, swindlers, revilers, etc.; and that is merely a representative list.
4. Remove the wicked man; and there is the mandate; and that is the progression of chapter 5. No association should ever deter or to slow down spiritual advance.

Wrong associations will slow down our spiritual life and we will not recognize it for the most part. If you run with the dogs, then you rise up with fleas. You must take great care with whom you associate personally.

You might really like the abnormal people in life; this might slow down your spiritual life considerably; it might even stop your growth. This covers several pitfalls of our spiritual life and how to deal with them.

The next chapter will deal with lawsuits and sexual immorality.

Lesson #217 Thursday

August 25, 2005

Hollywood of recent years is anti-war; however, it was different a half a century away. An article about Captain Kangaroo. Then something about Lee Marvin being buried near some 3-star generals. He was an actual hero, winning the Navy cross in Iwo Jima. Lee Marvin on Johnny Carson. He praised his sergeant Kishon, who is known to the world as Captain Kangaroo. He described what he did in Iwo Jima. Mr. Rogers was a master in small arms and hand-to-hand combat; he wore long sweaters to cover his tattoos. Served in Vietnam with 25 confirmed kills.

Marilyn Duff article about Cindy Sheehan. She talks about Cindy's counterpart in Iraq; a woman whose son would die carrying a bomb. Cindy's son signed up of his own free will; and pledged to protect his country. Women have the biggest stakes of all in this war. If Cindy cared about this, she would be talking to the women of Iraq, encouraging them to get information to our people; and other things can be done as war. These protestors misused and cheapen the names of other children who have died. She appears to use her son to further her own cause.

Chapter 6 continues the discussion of moral and ethical questions of leaders. These topics are just as valid today as they were for the Corinthian church. This is as practical as the Bible gets. We are a litigious society, suing each other on a regular basis, which is the acceptable way to settle disputes that don't seem to be solved in other ways. Better to peacefully arbitrate than have a gunfight in the street. As believers in Jesus Christ, we do not live apart from the rule of law. The rule of law is always a part of divine establishment. We have no right to disobey laws that we do not agree with. We should never participate in any action which discredits the name of Jesus Christ to the rest of the world. We are not to join ad hoc militias to procure what we see as lost rights. We are not revolutionaries who attempt to overthrow the government. What about the American revolution? It was not a revolution in the classic sense; we were separating from the mother government, but we were not looking to destroy the existing government. We did not look to bring down the monarchy in Britain. The French revolution was a revolution, as was the Russian. Revolution does not bring about freedom that people think that it does. Revolting against bad government does not mean it will be replaced with good government. If you join a militia, you are in opposition to God. The believer should never be involved in violence against the government. Activism does not cut it. Revolution and violence is not the solution. The solution is overcoming, fighting and winning the angelic conflict.

Our solution to problems in our government is the political process, despite the fact that it is a mess. Change comes through the political process. Our nation has gotten a home-grown set of revolutionaries; the Oklahoma City bombing is one example. That is not freedom; that is tyranny and criminality. Never side with that, no matter how just the cause seems to be. We will never have perfect freedom or peace in our time. Our laws, no matter how flawed they are, represent freedom in its purest form. We must abide by the laws of our nation whether we agree with them or not. Violence is never Biblically sanctioned against a government which represents divine establishment. Even if it represents divine establishment only in principle, but not in reality. In that divine establishment is the court system. It is the divinely sanctioned institution for solving legitimate suits equitably. Like anything that people participate in, the court system can always be abused or corrupted by those who run it or participate in it.

1Cor. 6 is all about civil lawsuits. Criminals should be tried in the court system; but we have a whole new set of rules for those civil cases. We will not be dealing with the criminal justice system. Without the civil system, there might be gunfights in the streets.

There can be wrong motivations

1. Suing someone out of bitterness or revenge.
2. Suing for the sole purpose of perpetuating misery on someone who has offended your ego.
3. Suing to appease your arrogance or to vindicate your own stupidity or bad choices.
4. Suing to derive pleasure from someone else's public pain and humiliated.
5. Suing to gain money to which you are not entitled. There are legitimate reasons for civil action; but these are wrong motivations.

Mental attitude sins should never be the motivation for every going to court. That should never be done in a public forum. Believers squabble and materialism lust and power lust; these things satisfy one's lust for money, power, control. The problem which Paul addresses is the same problem as we have today. Human law courts adjudicate between believers. This should be believers dealing with the differences with divine viewpoint. Civil courts cannot adjudicate with divine viewpoint. This is the entire background to this chapter. There are spiritual issues involved as well. We have the capability to settle disputes without having to go to war in court. Believers should be able to settle disputes outside of court. We should not be using a public forum to move against other believers. The believer shows off his old sin nature in a public forum; if it is big enough, it will be reported in the papers. We two believers are just as much πληρονεκτης as all you unbelievers; or, we can be just as αρποξ as other unbelievers. It shows the believers are just as likely to worship money. Mammon means that we are a slave to money. "You cannot serve God and mammon."

We do not show the world dependence upon the grace of God or the power of the grace of God and the doctrine in our souls. Unbeliever courts do not have these same insights.

Grace orientation is the attitude which we display towards the world. This is why we go to court with one another. Grace orientation is the key to solving disputes.

We are mandated to refrain from legal wrangling between believers when unbelievers will be judges. These people show themselves to be a category of those named in 1Cor. 5.

Our Lines of Defense

1. Use the problem solving devices.
2. Supreme court of heaven always available.
3. Our docket is always up in the divine courts.
4. We will never be neglected, delayed, or overlooked in the court of heaven.
5. The Supreme court of heaven will work out our disputes infinitely beyond what a human court filled with unbelievers can do.
6. How God works out the problem will not be to the satisfaction of someone's arrogance complex. It will be a teaching aide for our spiritual advance. The supreme court of heaven handles everything with the idea of our best interest being in mind.
7. God never indulges arrogance nor will He honor wrong motivations.
8. No victory for the believer in Jesus Christ in a lawsuit where the motivation is wrong. All they can face is disgrace.

1Cor. 6:1 When one of you has a complaint against another, does he dare to take it before the unrighteous and not before the saints?

1Corinthians 6:1 intro

Lesson #218 Sunday 1

August 28, 2005

Bobby's been looking forward to teaching this for some time and it is extremely practical. This passage is about suing one another. We are a litigious society; we will sue one another at the drop of a hat. In the news, someone is always suing someone else. The nastier the circumstances and the more prominent the litigants, the more exciting this is to our old sin nature. Litigation is the acceptable divine establishment way to settle disputes that cannot be solved otherwise. Bobby is not denouncing adjudication as evil; and the Bible is not advocating radical tort reform. The cap on lawsuits in Texas has reduced the number of frivolous lawsuits. Lawsuits are extremely expensive for everyone including us. When it is more expensive to try the lawsuit than what you get out of it, they are dropped. Frequently they are ways to display vicious hatred and unbridled arrogance. We get to see everyone at our worst, which makes us feel better. The civil courts can be abused and the sin nature is alive and well in our court system.

Wrong Motivations for Suing

People abuse the civil courts by suing with wrong motives.

1. Revenge motivation is one incorrect reason for suing. We often think that suing is solely for reprisal.

2. Sometimes we sue to take down someone who has ascended our egos. Someone says something which gets our ego in a knot.
3. We sue over our bad choices. When we are embarrassed about our own decisions, we sue someone else for them to take the blame for our actions.
4. When our egos are humiliated, we sue others.
5. We file suit to gain money and we sue everyone in order to gain money. Monetary lust.
6. Often, we sue simply to indulge our mental attitude sins.

Even though there is corruption and evil in our courts, as believers in Jesus Christ, we never live apart from the rule of law. There is no injustice which allows us to live apart from the law.

Televangelists should stick to evangelism. They should not be advocating lawlessness (e.g., suggesting that we assassinate world leaders). Joining some ad hoc militia to carry out some violence is absolutely wrong, even if we know that some laws are unjust and illegitimate.

We should never take steps to overthrow our government. We are in opposition to God Himself. It is spiritual maturity which resolves the angelic conflict, not social activism. Activism might seem to resolve some issue at some time in some way. However, no one can resolve the problem of man's old sin nature by activism, even though this is the principle behind all activism. The sin nature is handled when we are resurrection from the dead or at the rapture.

This does not mean that we roll over and play dead. We can oppose evil and anti-establishment legitimately. We utilize the political process, as flawed as it is. The first amendment allows for the redress of grievances. This includes vocal opposition to evil policies, as long as you are not caught up in activism which distracts from our Christian life. The more we are divided, the more difficult it is to put any credence in the political system. The one who yells the loudest gets the most attention. Activism would not solve the problem. Our spiritual life is the only way to solve our problems. There will always be unjust laws, incompetence and corruption. If we want, we can voice our opinion; do not let it interfere with our spiritual life. The more we are involved in politics, often the less time we can put into spiritual growth. Some of us feel it very necessary to oppose the evil in our society. A simple rule of thumb: always land on the side of advancing in the spiritual life. Anytime we spend too much time worrying about what the government does and how it affects us, the less time we can devote to spiritual growth. Believers must live in a client nation and abide by its laws. We are not called to change the devil's world through Christian activism or by violent means. We can use violence to protect ourselves from individuals, from foreign governments, and from terrorists. Revolution is never right. The American revolution was not an attempt to pull down the government of Great Britain; we were trying to separate ourselves from them. The French Revolution is a classic revolution; the same for the Russian revolution, which resulted in Lenin and Stalin. Our nation has more freedom than any other nation in the world, and we still have a nation rife with bad law. Our #1 priority is advancing in the spiritual life. Our court system is a part of divine establishment. A rule of law requires attorneys. They are not all bad.

The criminal court system. Unbelievers and believers alike are prosecuted in criminal courts for criminal actions. The criminal court is a way of protecting freedom in the society as a whole. This chapter should not be applied to the criminal court system. No believer escapes the criminal courts because there are unbelievers sitting in the court. We cannot apply this chapter to the criminal court. This is about civil courts only. It is about the arena of solving legitimate problems in a reasonable way.

It is the civil courts where believers run into problems. The problem is believers taking other believers to court; believers suing other believers. The problem with civil courts with believers is, a lust for money, power, control can be legally sanctioned. This is where arrogance is appeased. Human civil law courts should not adjudicate law disputes. There should not be adjudication between believers by civil courts; other believers should adjudicate personal disputes. We should look to solve personal disputes before they become public disputes. We have a very complex system in our civil courts. This chapter will deal in principle between believers; and generally speaking, we are to solve our own problems without going to the civil courts.

What is Wrong with Filing Suits Against other Believers?

1. When we go to court with one another, the unbelieving world gets to watch the believer publically excessively exercise his sin nature in a public forum.
2. We are not witnesses for the Lord Jesus Christ when we display and indulge our old sin natures in front of the world.
3. Nor do we show the world dependence upon the grace of God or on the power of the spiritual life or on divine viewpoint to solve our own disputes.
4. Grace orientation and impersonal love are the attitudes that we must display toward the world and toward one another.
5. If we are not grace oriented, we cannot be gracious toward each other. Without grace orientation, we cannot solve our own disputes. If we have no impersonal love, we will be at each other's throats, particularly when we feel that we are wronged. It is very difficult be to be wronged and then to demonstrate impersonal love.

Doctrinal Rationale to Use as Part of the Faith-rest Drill

1. The supreme court of heaven is always in session. There is a court system with no injustice and no ineptitude.
2. Our place in line on the divine docket is always first. Our case is heard immediately. Our Lord is perfectly just.
3. We will never be neglected, overlooked or delayed in pleading our case.
4. The supreme court of heaven will work out our disputes infinitely beyond what a human court of law can do.

5. However God works out our problems, it will not be to the satisfaction of someone's arrogance complex. God always has our best interests in mind. He always has our best interests in mind.
6. God never indulges arrogance nor will He honor wrong motivation. You want to drag a believer to court, He will not honor our arrogance and our wrong motivation. A believer should never go to civil court with the wrong motivation. There is no spiritual victory where wrong motivations are involved. There is only disgrace before the Lord and unbelievers who observe such a fiasco. There are legitimate reasons for a believer to go to civil court. Believer vs. believer is the critical point of 1Cor. 6. It is just as true today as it was then.

1Cor. 6:1 When one of you has a complaint against another, does he dare to take it before the unrighteous and not before the saints?

1Corinthians 6:1 intro

Lesson #219 Sunday 2

August 28, 2005

Bobby will teach the principles of Cor. 6; and when we walk out the doors of Berachah, that we are on our own. Dallas Seminary has been sued by a church member in Plano, TX. It can be going on right here and right now. Believers going to law courts with other believers. The problem with civil courts is that the world gets to watch and unbelievers watch believers suing one another. We are no longer witnesses for the Lord Jesus Christ, we are simply displaying our old sin natures for all to see. We do not display the grace of God; we do not display impersonal love; we do not display any of the problem solving devices. We are no different from unbelievers; this is where we study reversionism.

5 times in this chapter, we will see the phrase do you not know? This means, don't you have any doctrine in your soul? Don't you know what you should be doing? Do you lack doctrine? This is a rhetorical question; the answer should be, yes, I do know. We should all have the resources to resolve disputes between ourselves and others. It is not pretty, it is not pleasant, and it is not easy to solve. Only through the functioning spiritual life; it is better to be defrauded than to besmirch the spiritual life. In order to have confidence, we need the doctrine. Control of our soul is imperative. Without the filling of the Holy Spirit, without the edification complex, without the filling of the Holy Spirit, we have no practical, spiritual solutions to anything. When we cannot use divine viewpoint, we cannot glorify God. As a believer in Jesus Christ, to glorify God, we must be filled with the Holy Spirit. The difficult part is, sometimes application of doctrine is exactly antithetical as to how your old sin nature would handle it. For some of us, this may hurt. It is the knowledge of doctrine which counts. Without doctrine and without the filling of the Holy Spirit, we will depend upon human viewpoint. Just let someone insult me, cross me, take my money—I will call my lawyer and take care of them. It is the knowledge of Bible doctrine which provides the means. Such knowledge provides inculcation. There is no way you will take the carnal route, if you know doctrine. Can you imagine filing a lawsuit against an institution which produces pastors? This is completely a practical chapter. This chapter will provide practical, real-world application. Nothing stirs up the old sin nature more than when something unjust has happened to us. That is when you need to fall back on doctrine. The solutions are always the same for the believer. When you have doubts about what actions you should take under this or that situation, realize that we have some incredible divine operating assets. The supreme court of heaven is always in session. We do not have to file a lawsuit in civil court. Using divine viewpoint, we can solve our own problems without having to make it a public issue. When we are in the situation where we have to make real-world decisions about real-world problems, the Holy Spirit will bring to mind what doctrine we need when we need it. It is up to us to make the correct decisions; the information must be in our souls in order for us to use it.

Overview of the Litigation System in Vv. 1–11:

vv. 1–3:	If we are destined to judge the world and we will judge even angels, then surely, we can settle worldly affairs among ourselves.
vv. 4–6	If such disputes exist (and they do), must we appoint those to adjudicate those who have no standing in the church? Is there not someone in our church qualified to deal with out dispute?
v. 7	It is evil that such lawsuits exists (believer vs. believer in a civil court). It is better to submit to an injustice rather than to go to a civil court to solve it. The people at Corinth had no corporate witness. They besmirched the name of Jesus Christ.
vv. 8	Instead of allowing the divine courts to take care of these problems, the Corinthians allowed civil courts to solve problems.
vv. 9–10	The problem passage; what if you display these qualities?
v. 11	The Corinthians have displayed these characteristics; they are reversionists.

Paul's first phrase includes this Greek: πραγμα εχων this context applies this to a court of law. This is a specific terms for a court of law. The main subject is πραγμα = a trial, a law case. Εχω = to have, to hold. Present active participle. Whenever you have a case or cause for a trial with one another... Whenever there is a problem which might involve litigation with one another... This indicates that this occurs at various times; and this is a general application; Paul is not speaking about a specific court case. These are cases which end up in civil courts but they must be dealt with in a different way.

Paul has addressed 3 specific evils: the incestuous man; the general separation from certain types of believers and unbelievers; the 3rd evil is, lawsuits of believer vs. believer. Paul looks them right in the eyes, and says, τομαι τις υμων = how audacity of yours. This gives us Paul's view of the whole chapter. How dare you do this? How do you have the nerve, the audacity, to do this? Paul is challenging their practice of bringing lawsuits, believer vs. believer.

προ των ετερων = against one another. How dare you whenever you have a case against other believers in the church... This is not the lawsuit itself, but a dispute. Bringing suit is the conclusion. How can you bring a suit against another believer is arrogant and wrong. Roman law allowed the Jews in Palestine to settle their civil disputes by arbitration between the quarreling parties. This allows the Jews to settle their own disputes without going before a Roman court. The Roman courts did not like to deal with the Jews. The Roman courts told them, solve your own problems; do not bring them into our courts. Early Christians were not differentiated from Jews in those times. Κρινεσται = to go to law. Present middle infinitive, which is an emphatic. It continues the emphatic tone. The middle is indirect or intensive. The agent is producing the intense action (which refers to the Corinthians). Paul is emphasizing that he is irate that these believers are initiating cases against one another. Paul is irate that these believers are going to courts against one another. It is not necessary from a legal standpoint; nor from a spiritual standpoint.

Aristotle revealed that the Greeks were very litigious. Φιλοδεκοι = fond of lawsuits. He used this to describe his own people. The Greek believers were also fond of this, even 500 years later. They do this επι των αδικων, which means going to law before the unrighteous. How dare you whenever you have a dispute between one another to go to law before the unrighteous?

1Cor. 6:1 When one of you has a complaint against another, does he dare to take it before the unrighteous and not before the saints?

1Corinthians 6:1

Lesson #220 Wednesday

August 31, 2005

I was in California at this time. The lesson number and date match up correctly.

Litigation is the acceptable divine establishment means to settle disputes between people; and this is in general, apart from whom the parties are. There are certain circumstances where this is not acceptable. Our US courts system is a part of divine establishment government. Litigation now occurs more than ever before and we have access to a legal system more than ever before; as well as more courts which specialize in this area. We are ready to sue each other at any breach. As believers, we need to know the Biblical position on litigation; when is it right and when is it wrong? Some at Berachah make a living at civil litigation and there is nothing wrong with that. Order is maintained and laws are applied through the work of laws and judges. It is a part of divine establishment.

Injustice will never been eliminated, despite having a good court system. Our real line of defense again injustice is not the court system, but doctrine in our soul and spiritual advance. God has provided the resources for us to handle injustice and the problem solving devices.

There are parameters set by Scripture on civil court actions, and this is all that this verse covers. Often animosity and bitterness and a whole host of mental attitude sins involved. Sometimes it is for reprisal, greed, revenge. You never operate as a believer under mental attitude sins. You must realize that injustice will not be handled by seeking revenge, which is often what civil court is all about. It is about satisfying one's ego; or a way to attain funds that you do not have a right to. These kinds of motivations entirely dishonor God.

Because of this, many Corinthians had become a blight on Jesus Christ. They were involved in litigation right up to their eyeballs. There are many factions in this church and some disagreements were handled in court. Money, power, control, etc. is why they went to court. Chapter 6 emphasizes motivation.

An Outline of the First Part of 1Cor. 6

1. Vv. 1–3: If we are going to judge the angels, then what are we doing standing before an unbelieving judge?
2. Vv. 4–6: Believers should not be suing other believers.
3. v. 7: It is evil that such lawsuits even exist. It would be better to submit to injustice than to bring another believer before a civil/state court.
4. V. 8: Instead of conceding to the wrong and allowing divine solutions to take effect, the Corinthians perpetuate wrong in trying to solve their problems in civil courts.
5. Vv. 9–10: Those who are unjust, greedy and corrupt will not inherit the kingdom of God.
6. The Corinthians had been like this in their past as unbelievers. Now they are reversionists, and they are reverting to the lifestyle of their previous evil.

Participles are verbal nouns and can have all kinds of connotations; it can mean when, although, if; temporal, concessive, conditional connotations.

Paul agrees that they are having a dispute and does not indicate that there is any kind of problem with the dispute—he is not saying that it is unwarranted. Now, this is not just a single case, like the incestuous man. This is a bunch of cases which affect the church. Paul does not mince any words in condemning these lawsuits.

Τομαι τις ὑμων = how dare you? How do you have the audacity? Paul is laying it on the line; he is telling it like it is. This is not just any set of lawsuits. Paul is not being general here. Προς των ἑτερων = against each other. Bringing a suit against one another completely violates God's plan for any church. Επι + αυδικων = before those who lack imputed righteousness. Αβχ) [

Why Paul Says Don't Go Before Heathen Judges

1. Unbelieving judges can understand the law just as well as any believing judge.
2. This is not about incompetence among unbelieving judges or lawyers. He is not saying that you cannot get justice from the Roman courts because these people do not know what justice is.
3. It is all about the presence of believers in such courts at all. Believers should not be in heathen courts settling their matters.
4. The problem is that Paul will address is that unbelievers, the unrighteous, those without imputed righteousness, are ignorant of the spiritual issues involved. They are competent but ignorant of the spiritual issues involved.
5. Since believers and the Corinthians are to operate in a higher realm in the filing of the Holy Spirit and utilizing Bible doctrine and advancing in the spiritual life, these believers are qualified well beyond the unbeliever to resolve disputes among themselves.

6. Disputes between believers are not solved in a legal or legalistic setting. They are solved equitably and under the principles of grace, doctrinal orientation and impersonal love. This is what solves problems even when you are being defrauded. Now, we might think that this is idealistic, and that things are too complex for us.
7. This passage is about the function of the spiritual life, even in the context of litigation. It is about the function of the spiritual life; not about the state or the courts. It is always about our spiritual lives. The Corinthians could have gotten justice that way and justice can be done in our courts as well; however, in adjudicating believer disputes, the disadvantage is to the unbeliever.

The Disadvantage it to the Unbeliever

1. The unbeliever does not have the impersonal love to apply or the doctrinal orientation. Taking a believer to court is a lack of orientation in grace and doctrine.
2. Who is more qualified to arbitrate between believers other than those who understand the spiritual aspects. This is a real life situation that all of us might get involved in. The solution is the spiritual life.
3. What does a human civil court have to do with glorifying the Lord? Throwing out the Ten Commandments? A human civil court filled with unbelievers know nothing about glorifying God.
4. Our purpose is to glorify God in all things.
5. It is more important to glorify God than to get justice in some matter.
6. The issues are spiritual, not judicial. The focus should always be on spiritual issues and not judicial ones.

Paul is not showing disrespect to the courts and he does not teach to resist the courts or the government. Paul did exercise his right to appeal to Cæsar when he believed that he had been unjustly indicted. This was no small matter. He said, "I am innocent; I will have my case heard in Rome in front of the royal tribunal." This was Paul's right as a Roman citizen. Some legalistic believers think that Paul violates his own mandate here. That is legalism. It was not a sin to seek justice from a heathen judge against unbelievers who were persecuting him. He could obtain justice in no other way. That was not a civil matter between believers. This is outside the scope of 1Cor. 6. His appeal to Cæsar was not a matter of going to law against another believer. This is not to be mixed up with 1Cor. 6. There is a place for litigation. We will dig deeper into all of this as we continue.

1Cor. 6:1 When one of you has a case [or trial or complaint] against another, does he dare to take it before the unrighteous and not before the saints?

I was in California at this time. In the background, there is this radio program with some Bishop Spawn Spong Spon Spag (?) in favor of accepting homosexuality. He has many bogus ideas on Scripture.

Pat Robertson provides the other side. There was a tremendous amount of homosexuality in the Greek culture as well.

There are many aspects to this; but there is only one way to look at this. Lawsuits are a lawful way to redress our grievances. Our constitution is the epitome of divine establishment—one of the greatest ever. And going to court is a fundamental right. Spiritual laws and divine establishment laws are always compatible. God does not violate divine establishment laws by asking us to comply with His mandates.

We are never mandated to be revolutionaries. There is liberation theology in south and central America where license is given to be revolutionary. Divine establishment applies to believers and unbelievers alike. Spiritual laws and mandates only apply to believers.

Laws of Divine Establishment

The court system is available to us as part of the laws of divine establishment. However, there are limitations of what the believer can do and how much they can use the court system. We cannot use the court system to get other believers through civil litigation.

1. God knew that man would choose to sin. He knew this in eternity past. Adam had volition created by God. That volition was independent of God. When Adam made his decision to sin, it was his choice; God is not the author of sin ever.
2. God knew that once man acquired a sin nature, he would have unlimited potential to destroy himself. The sin nature is self-destructive. The disaster in New Orleans lets us see the best and worst of people in action. We have sin natures in action, which can be self-destructive.
3. To preserve and to perpetuate human existence during the angelic conflict, God instituted the laws of divine establishment.
4. These laws are principles for believer and unbeliever. They are designed for the protection and the stability and orderly function and survival of the human race. There is chaos and anarchy in New Orleans right now; some do good and some do that which is reprehensible.
5. These laws declare freedom to be man's most valuable possession.
6. When man observes these laws he restrains the tendencies of the sin nature. Anarchy reigns in New Orleans, not because of the disaster, but because of the sin nature in people and no laws of divine establishment. Newsmen cannot understand why things can be so horrible in New Orleans because they do not know the old sin nature.
7. The human race cannot long endure without a system of control. No control in the city of New Orleans. Legitimate authority always protects human freedom.
8. Authority is the power delegated by God through the laws of divine establishment whereby certain members of the human race have responsibility for and jurisdiction over other. One of the statements which Bobby found in college was, Question authority. and anarchy reigned—in their souls especially. They are confused; they do not understand authority; they do not understand laws of divine establishment; they are laws to themselves; they are arrogance run wild. God provided law to curb such arrogance.

9. Authority protects self-determination, privacy, property and human life. Freedom without authority is anarchy.
10. While authority exists in both the spiritual and temporal realms, and the temporal authority is police, military and elected officials.
11. Biblical divine establishment—the Ten Commandments. They are the underpinning for law.

The Ten Commandments

1. They were designed exclusively to govern the theocratic nation Israel. Not for the US.
2. The Ten Commandments define human freedom, liberty, and morality and divine authority in Israel for believer and unbeliever alike. Israel was the only legitimate theocracy. Iraq, Iran, etc. are Satan's rule; they are not theocracies.
3. The first five commandments embody the sovereign rule of God over the national entity. Those laws, as incorporated into our law, also rule our nation.
4. The Ten Commandments serve as an evangelistic witness to the power and sovereignty of God. When they saw how Israel was governed, they had to recognize God. The cloud of fire coming out of Israel.
5. For believers in Israel, these commandments define individual spiritual freedom and provided the ideal environment for development of a spiritual life. Ex. 20:1–12 The truth to those at UT was simply academic knowledge, but not the laws of divine establishment, which they ignored. They violated the freedom of others in their locking themselves in various buildings. The Ten Commandments provided an environment for developing a spiritual life, but they were not the spiritual life.
6. The last 5 commandments form the Biblical paradigm for morality and celebrate the privacy and property of believers and unbelievers alike; and these are incorporated into our own code of laws.
7. Although this code was designed by God specifically for Israel, these same truths guarantee personal freedom and national liberty to any nation operating under similar divine establishment axioms. They are a perfect example of what the laws of divine establishment do for us.

1. Volition is the first divine establishment.
2. Where marriage is attacked, it is an attack on divine establishment. There is also volition.

3. God designed a man and a woman to be parents. There are times for a single parent to raise children, but it is much more difficult.
4. The final divine institution is the national entity where authority is assigned to a government. All governments represent divine establishment. The principle of divine establishment is represented in all governments.

The court system is for all. We live by divine directive rather than by divine establishment. It is above and beyond divine establishment, but never in contradiction to divine establishment. Only the believer has the resources to understand and execute the plan or the will of God. Divine mandates never contradict divine establishment. Paul telling believers not to go to court against one another is a spiritual issue, not a legal one. 1Cor. 6:1–11 is not Paul vilifying the court system. He is not saying judges or attorneys are incompetent or that they are corrupt. Believers should be able to determine our disputes amongst one another. Unbelievers, who understand the law, may be ignorant of spiritual issues. The issues are not really the dispute; the solutions are spiritual. The more mature we are as believers, the easier we can solve disputes. There are great disadvantages to having unbelievers judge our disputes. Human civil courts do not have the purpose of glorifying the Lord; but this is our purpose in life.

The Corinthians have spiritual issues that unbelieving judges cannot adjudicate. Paul is saying “Wrong; don’t do this.” Believers are the only ones qualified to resolve disputes among themselves. The court system is human and sin natures are involved. The greatest system of justice is the supreme court of heaven, matters will be always resolved for our benefit, even if it means that injustice is perpetrated in this life. Believers should operate in a higher realm of spiritual function. Doctrine and grace orientation and impersonal love are the keys. Whenever we have a civil court case, then we need to examine our motivations. If there is greed, revenge, etc. involved, then we should leave it alone. Paul is only saying do not use civil litigation against one another. Glorifying the Lord is more important than getting justice from human courts.

At one point, Paul used the court system for his benefit; he appealed to Cæsar for a redress of grievances. Paul was constantly accused of some sort of violation and of some sort of crime. Paul said, “Take me to Cæsar; I demand my right as a Roman citizen.”

Why Paul did not Violate Corinthian 6

1. Paul acted in this case within his rights as a believer. He was violating no spiritual mandates when he demanded to be tried before a Roman tribunal.
2. Paul was not going to law against another believer.
3. Paul was being charged with a false criminal offense. He was charged with sedition. He was undermining the established government of Rome; so he should be killed. That was the accusation against him.
4. Paul was being indicted for crimes that he did not commit. He wanted a fair trial.

1. Paul wanted to make sure that Rome knew that he was not a subversive. He did not want to be tainted by unjust scandal.
2. Paul did not want Christianity branded as being anti-authority; as being subversive.
3. Paul wanted his day in court to refute the heathen charges against Christianity. This, in itself, became a witness for the Lord Jesus Christ in court. If suing someone brings dishonor to Jesus Christ, then leave it alone. However, this gave Paul a chance to clarify the relationship between Christianity and a nation. Are we serving the Lord or serving ourself when we appeal? An angel stood before Paul to tell him that he was right. Acts 27:23–24 “Do not be afraid; for you must stand before Cæsar.” A believer is only carnal if he is a criminal or wrong intentions for being in court.

Believer against believer is where lawsuits are wrong. We do not depend upon the Lord; we are not here being gracious and hoping for doctrinal orientation to be seen and used. However, this is what Paul was doing.

1Cor. 6:1a How dare you, whenever you have a dispute with another believer, that you go to court before unbelievers.

1Corinthians 6:1

Lesson #222 Sunday 1

September 4, 2005

As a believer, Paul rejects a court of law as a solution under certain circumstance. Paul understands the culture of Greeks. He knows that the Corinthians love to litigate. It was the Corinthian believer modus operandi, and Paul has to correct their thinking on this issue and on others as well. Ἐπι τῶν ἀδίκων = before the unrighteous. These are those who are without imputed righteousness. One thing provided righteousness for Abraham; he believed God, and that provided him with righteousness. You must express faith alone in Christ alone. These cases are being tried before unbelievers. It is a court of unbelievers.

Paul is not concerned that these believers would be unable to find justice before unbelievers. He does not think that unbelievers are incompetent to judge them before the law; he does not believe that they will be treated differently because they are believers. There is no incompetence implied here. The problem is being in court in the first place—believer against believer. They stand before the court completely ignorant of spiritual issue. Filing a lawsuit against another believer is not about getting justice in the courts. It is not about just compensation or getting material settlement. Filing a lawsuit calls into question God’s ability to take care of a believer. This violates the plan of God for our lives. This is a failure to utilize the spiritual life to solve problems among ourselves. This is a failure of grace orientation in your soul. Grace orientation is what makes us unique as a believer among all other human beings. This is in direct opposition to graciousness in our soul. It is failure to present a gracious attitude before the unbelieving world. It is a failure to witness to the grace of God to all mankind. It is our obligation to witness to the grace of God. If we cannot be gracious to another believer, what witness can we be? Jesus Christ, the victim of incredible injustice, died for our sins, giving us great grace. Is it God’s will that we show a callous disregard for one another in a public forum?

Should we put contempt ahead of grace? These are things which happen when we go to court against anyone. Believers are always to operate in a higher realm. We are to have a mature spiritual life. If we can operate in this realm, then we are qualified more than any believer to solve a dispute amongst each other. We may not solve the problem; we may not be able to reconcile with the person with whom we go to court; but we can reconcile the situation.

We will not solve the problem by using legal maneuvering and tricky rhetoric in court. It is done via impersonal love. As a mature believer, we relate to other believers and to unbelievers through grace orientation and impersonal love. Paul is expressing disappointment that the Corinthians are so removed from the spiritual life, so as not to apply this.

Paul is saying do not use the divine establishment court system against one another. This is for stability and order and to preserve the human race. Without the authority, this is anarchy and chaos. We have witnessed in the past week what happens without authority. Paul is saying do not use this great institution against each other. Glorifying God is much more important than getting justice from human courts.

Vv. 1–11 is the believer's responsibility. However, Paul did use the court system for his benefit and to show that he was not a subversive. Acts 25:8 Paul spoke to his own offense: "I have committed no offense against the law of the Jews, against the Temple or against Cæsar." Paul had been accused of crimes against all of these institutions. The indictment was both against Paul and against what he preached. His antagonists had attacked him and he was not guilty of any of these charges. He appealed to Cæsar under Roman law. He was going to the supreme court of the ancient world. This is the same court system that he is telling the Corinthians to stay away from. It is not wrong to seek justice from an unbeliever judge under certain circumstances. Believers with a spiritual life should not have unlimited access to the courts based on the spiritual issues. Between believers, the issue is primarily spiritual and not legal. Under no circumstances are the spiritual issues to be put aside. That is never pleasing to God. Paul acted within his rights as a believer when he appealed to Cæsar. He was being charged with a criminal offense. Paul simply wanted a fair, objective hearing before a tribunal in Rome. He did not want his ministry or the gospel tainted; nor did he want Christianity to be seen as subversive. Christianity always adheres to the laws of divine establishment. At the same time, he preached Christ. He was charged with crimes that he did not commit. Utilize divine establishment when necessary. Paul wanted his day in court to refute the charges leveled against him by unbelievers. Acts 27:23 indicates that what he chose to do was okay.

Paul did the right thing, partially so that Christianity was not seen as a subversive element; also, this was an opportunity to present the gospel unless what is normally found. The spiritual life always takes precedent. Stay out of divine institutions if it compromises the mandates of Bible doctrine. Paul's use of the court system means that all litigation is not sinful. The believer has a right to defend himself against criminal charges where he is innocent or against unjust unbelievers who civilly attack him. Believers hauling other believers before unbelieving judges is wrong. Christians suing other Christians is disgraceful. It is a sin. Lawsuits before unbelieving judges at best brings out dirty laundry before all to see.

A church suing an individual or a Christian organization over a money thing; Dallas Seminary is now being sued by a former student, which is absolutely wrong. It is a disgrace to Bible doctrine and to God's grace. These raise false issue to Jesus Christ. Unbelieving minds say, "These Christians are in the same snarl and mess that we are in. They display no grace. We aren't buying into this." Unbelievers who see this kind of thing occur in a public forum embarrass the faith. This is prevalent today in Christian thinking. Money is more important than the grace of God. Losing some money or being defrauded by another believer is more important than grace. Only we can apply doctrine to our own circumstance. When we drag another believer into court, it is clearly against the mandates of our Lord Jesus Christ and Bible doctrine.

1Cor. 6:1a How dare you, whenever you have a dispute with another believer, that you go to court before unbelievers.

1Corinthians 6:1

Lesson #223 Sunday 2

September 4, 2005

bobby has several friends who are very good attorneys. There is a question about an attorney taking a case between two believers; this passage applies to everyone. The criterion is, how does this affect the glorification of Jesus Christ? In every aspect of practical life, we are required to grow to spiritual maturity and we are never to do anything which disgraces or dishonors the name of Jesus Christ. Attorneys, defendents and plaintiffs have the same responsibilities.

When your attitude begins to drift from grace, then you are in trouble. When you think of grace as being exclusively something which God gives us, we are distorting things to some degree.

God has provided all things for us. When you go to court against another believer, then your attitude must be gracious toward that person as well. Even if it hits you in the pocketbook, you must still be gracious toward the others. Whatever you cling to for security, it is meaningless if it is your house, cars and money? Where is your security. The entire world can ask themselves, where is my security? It is wrong to think that grace is great, unless it affects my human notion of security. Instead of trusting in the provision of Jesus Christ, we depend upon our own prowess to make money. We act as if God does not own all the cattle on a thousand hills. That is our security; that is grace. He will always honor our grace orientation.

There is another test of grace when some unscrupulous believer takes you for some of your money. There are plenty of them out there. Where is the grace of God? These Corinthian lawsuits are in direct contradiction to glorifying Jesus Christ?

Our Attitude in a Civil Suit

1. What is our attitude when we sue each other? Contentious, combative, antagonistic.
2. In such an attitude, there is no impersonal love or graciousness.
3. There is no faith rest or a relaxed mental attitude in a civil suit. What better place than when you are defrauded.
4. You are not depending upon divine justice; there is where real justice lies. You may win or lose a civil court case and it may be a just or an unjust outcome; but where is the dependance upon divine justice?
5. When you take another believer to civil court, you are violating your mandate to be a witness for the grace of God. You are not reflecting the grace of God when you are in court trying to rip the throat out of another believer. These must be the overriding principles in dealing with such a situation.
6. The same issues are consideration when you are thinking about suing an unbeliever. You cannot throw this out when dealing with the unbeliever. The same principles still apply. Are you showing any impersonal love? Is there any dependance upon divine justice? These are issues to also consider. Defending yourself is one thing; initiating is another. However, even when defending yourself, you cannot forget these issues.

We ought to post these 5 points on our bulletin and apply them each and every day...what about that boss? What about that lousy co-worker? What about that bitchy spouse? We have no business judging the heathen.

Do you see the logic? It is impeccable; you cannot miss it. We aren't going to judge them, God does. They cannot judge us. The unbeliever cannot judge us; an unbeliever judge who adjudicates issues between believers means those believers are failures. You try to settle the circumstance, even if the believer still hates you. It is better to be defrauded. God can provide for us, even if we lose something that we want.

1Cor. 6:1a How dare you Corinthians, whenever you have a civil lawsuit against another believer in the church, go to law against another believer...

Now the final phrase: ...and not before the saints. We are not going to form our own courts and settle suits between others. Saints are those who have been positionally sanctified. This is not someone that we view as being raised to some godly position in our minds because of their wonderful works. We are all set apart for service to God, whether we ever learn or apply any doctrine at all.

What right do we have to go outside the grace of God? Going outside God's provision in order to gain some financial gain is outside God's plan. We do not serve the Lord by being in civil litigation against others.

ΕΠΙ ΤΩΝ ἁγίων = before the saints. You don't go to law against other believers. However, this does not mean that we set up Christian courts. Christian courts apart from the state do not carry divine establishment authority. We have a separation of church and state in our country. There are issues of divine establishment and issues of the church. Usurping divine establishment authority...not in any respect. Work out a solution between yourselves, using doctrine using doctrine, grace orientation, and impersonal love.

The spiritual life and divine establishment run in parallel tracks and they do not intersect. However, if government makes it unlawful to present the gospel, then you obey spiritual laws over government laws. However, in the realm of the court system, there is no overlap. Usurping divine establishment authority is never a church function. Since we cannot go to law, then we must work out a solution between one another. We need to use doctrine, grace orientation and impersonal love. We can work out a solution to anything here, whether the other party wants to or not.

In order to use these 3 things, we must be in fellowship. If we become angry and contentious, then we are out of fellowship and we cannot apply these 3 spiritual skills. We need to get into fellowship and decide, what does the grace of God require under these circumstances. How should I deal with this other contentious person? If we do this, then we can reconcile this on our own initiative.

If the two parties cannot come to an agreement, then it is possible to consider another believer as a middle man or as an arbiter.

The Church Arbiter

1. This believer as an arbiter must be trustworthy, impartial and have standing in the church. He can't just be your best buddy.
2. Both parties must have confidence in this person. This is a tough one.
3. This is not an organized court proceeding. This is an entirely informal situation. There is nothing binding. There is no legal binding here.
4. What should this arbiter be doing? He does nothing but offer doctrinal advice concerning the immediate circumstance.
5. The arbiter is to bring objective, doctrinal information to the table; nothing more.
6. The real arbiter is the doctrine that we are being taught; it is not a person. This is what we grow from. This is what glorifies God.
7. Most believers are not qualified to arbitrate such cases.
8. Arbitration requires authority, spiritual gifts, and spiritual maturity. This means church leadership.

Bobby recalls something Bob handled over the phone. A pastor was suing a member of the church. He had promised money to the pastor for a particular purpose in church. But he did not come through, so the pastor sued him. He told the pastor to cut it out; then he taught this chapter. It is the doctrine that we respond to. That case could have gone to civil court and it could have cost both sides a lot of money and it could have brought on a lot of heated debate in the congregation. And unbelievers would sit and laugh at them. When the leadership sues another believer; that is disgraceful. That is embarrassing to God. And for what? Money? God can provide the money. This was solved with objective Bible doctrine. The pastor was out of line; he recognized it; and he obeyed the Word.

Differences between believers must be decided on the basis of Bible doctrine instead of civil law.

1Cor. 6:1b ...and not before the saints.

1Corinthians 6:1

Lesson #224 Wednesday

September 7, 2005

Gary Horton coming in Thursday night.

Bobby had a couple of women who talked during the second service, and he tried to stare them down. Wasn't menacing enough. Figured they were from Louisiana. He did not want to upset them further.

A court is a part of divine establishment. However, this is not something that the believer ought to be doing in the realm of civil action. We are prohibited by divine fiat to bring suit against fellow believers. What do we do when we have problems between one another? We can easily fall into the pattern of surrounding litigious culture, at the expense of Biblical instruction. This is an application of human viewpoint. We can take on the same mental attitudes and the drives which drive society as a whole. We look after our own interests above all else. When you are not filled with the Holy Spirit, you are capable of anything that an unbeliever is capable of doing. Our attitude, according to human viewpoint, is to look out for our own interests above everything else. Our great purpose is to glorify the Lord in all things. This leads to a complete breakdown of doctrinal objective thinking.

In the civilized realm, we might go to the court system; outside, we might go to a physical confrontation. Our attitude becomes contentious, combative, and antagonist to anyone who is an affront to our own human self esteem. We have lost sight of what our Lord has provided for us; we lack spiritual self esteem when we lose sight of what God does. We can only fall back on human self esteem. When we are affronted, angry and bitter, we go to court (when being civilized). We then forfeit and forget faith rest. We forfeit any relaxed mental attitude. Where is dependence upon divine justice and the supreme court of heaven. What do you do when you are swindled and there are even some who are believers as well. This indicate that someone at Berachah might swindle you. Where is the concern for affirming God's grace to the rest of the world. This swindler has sinned against you; where is the graciousness? We go to court over personal injury; do we use graciousness and impersonal love, or do we become combative. What is the doctrinal viewpoint; where is the spiritual self esteem. The Corinthians don't have it. They are hauling one another to court as quickly as they can file. There are all of those factions and all of those who oppose one another; what better way than to beat down a rival in a court of law? There is no dependence on divine justice and the supreme court of heaven. The reversionists are unconcerned about living the spiritual life; about divine mandates. That is simply not a part of their consciousness. The spiritual issues must be kept in mind, especially when facing a believer. Such action is contrary to the plan of God for your life.

The same spiritual issues are considerations when we decide to take an unbeliever to court as well because of a personal injury or being cheated. Unequivocally, we do not take a believer to court; and there are times when you don't take an unbeliever to court. You must keep in mind the spiritual issue. We don't decide to go to court against a believer or an unbeliever based upon some title wave of emotion. Don't do it on some surge of self righteous indignation. Do not go to court against the unbeliever on a confirmed case of injustice.

The criterion for going to court is always mental attitude sins in your soul. Nothing done from the motivation of mental attitude sins is pleasing to God, including going to civil court. Contentiousness, hatred, anger, combativeness are never legitimate reasons to go to court. Faith-rest is absolutely required; you must depend upon the supreme court of heaven. In the supreme court of heaven, EVERY FACT IS TAKEN INTO CONSIDERATION; and God knows all of the facts. God may give us some discipline in order to help us to recover. The more time you spend in mental attitude sins, the more time we spend outside of the filling of the Spirit. Impersonal love and graciousness must always be our attitude when dealing with the believer and the unbeliever.

Bobby is going to build a bit of a practical scenario. We'll have at least one application. So far, we have just dealt with believer vs. believer. What about the corporate situation where there are two businesses involved; you might be involved as an executive or an administrator; and you represent that organization. You have responsibility for the people of this company, some believers and some unbelievers. Do you initiate a lawsuit if you are being attacked or defrauded. Class action suits; groups of people. Generally, you can do this; it is legitimate. You have a responsibility to protect those who are corporately under your charge. However, our personal attitude and conduct make a difference in this situation. You must not function on the basis of mental attitude sins in your soul. Filing the lawsuit is one thing; your motivation is something else. If you function on the basis of mental attitude sins in the soul, you suffer a personal, spiritual defeat. You can be doing the right thing for your company, but you still stuff a personal defeat. That entire organization might be attacked and you might be initiating a lawsuit; but you cannot be involved in mental attitude sins. Objective fairmindedness, keeping in mind those who are under your charge, even if they are insubordinate, recalcitrant, and buttholes; but they are still under your charge. Your motivation is all-important, even under that circumstance. Do not operate on greed, even in a corporate situation. You must examine your personal motivation even in corporate actions. You can approve a lawsuit; you can defend yourself in a lawsuit; but you must keep in mind your own personal integrity the entire time. Personal, corporate, and any other way, what is in your soul is the key.

Bobby gives the principles and we make the application.

What about the attorney whose job it is to represent people in a lawsuit; what about representing believers in a lawsuit? Same principles apply; you protect the interests of the client and you don't have to take a case in the first place. Your function must be beyond reproach within the confines of personal and professional integrity. You must be reasonable and not greedy and show impersonal love to friend and foe. Sometimes, as an attorney, you must get very aggressive in a cross-examination. You know the difference and you know your own motivation. This is true in any profession. Here, Bobby is dealing with the legal profession because that is what this chapter is all about.

Επι των αγαθων = upon the saints. It sounds like we are going before other believers who make a determination. Christian courts apart from government courts are never to be established. They cannot take the place of divine establishment. Believers are not to ignore divine establishment authority. This is why we don't establish formal courts. We as believers are to work out solutions among ourselves, using doctrine, impersonal love, and without resorting to a court of law. If we don't set up a court tribunal, what does this mean? If the two parties cannot reach an agreement on their own, then we should consider another believer as a middle man, an arbitrator. He must be trustworthy, impartial and have standing in the church. This is an informal situation and the arbitrator is to bring objective, doctrinal information to the table. He should be standing and maturity. He should also be a person of authority. Believer's who are in conflict must respond to this doctrine. Most believers are not qualified to do this. Church leadership should always be involved. If two parties decide to settle using an arbitrator, then facts must be gathered in order for him to render a decision. Such a person should be very careful in this situation.

If you are caught up in the middle; never give legal counsel and never resort to human viewpoint. Don't be an amateur attorney. You need to objectively approach this; what about 1Cor. 6? You need facts and it needs to be settled. If you are in the middle, stick to the doctrines involved. With the correct doctrines on the table, it is up to the believers to respond to the situation. Doctrine is a solution for people testing; for any kind of testing. Going to civil law court is simply people testing. An arbitrator is not to force a decision on anyone. It is not a binding judicial situation which much be opposed. If a believer removes themselves from doctrinal information, then get out of it. Do not become liable and don't try to play attorney. If they will not pay any attention to doctrine, then get out of it. If they go to court, then step out. When doctrinal principles are rejected, then you no longer take a part. It is no longer our problem. When someone rejects doctrine, then move out of the way. God will deal with those who reject doctrine. For the believer who rejects doctrine and goes to court, there is no victory. There is no happiness in violating divine mandates. There is only spiritual defeat when 1Cor. 6 is ignored.

Bobby knows there are lawsuits in Berachah could be brought against organizations and against individuals. Μη γινωιτω = may it never be; may it never happen. This is an absolute denigration of something that someone wants to do. We have no excuse to violate Scripture, either out of ignorance or cognizance. The worst discipline that we will receive when we besmirch the Lord Jesus Christ by our words or actions. When we make doctrine and grace a laughing stock, then will receive discipline.

1Cor. 6:1 How dare you, when you have a case against another, that you go before a court filled with unbelievers instead of believers?

The Corinthians do not need a court order in order to settle disputes. Paul uses fortiori logic here. He examines who these Corinthians are and what they are capable of. He uses their union with Christ to help guide them. We all have a place in the legal profession in the future. Some of them are in the legal arena, where they should not be. What we are going to cover applies as much to us as it does to the Corinthians. The Bible is written for those in the time that it was written; but it is normative for all time.

The Bible gives us very little information about heaven; just enough to give us an idea as to where our future lies. We know even less as to what our activities will be in heaven. You should wonder what you are going to do in heaven; sitting on a cloud, maybe drinking a beer, waiting for time to pass. This passage will address this, although it will be sketchy. These verses will partially answer the question what we will do in the future.

There is also the inevitable application to us. This deals with the lawsuit of that time; but also to us in this litigious society. The idea is, if you are going to be a legal eagle in the future, why can't you take care of your own little problems right now—instead of going before unbelievers? Do you not know that the saints will judge the world? We are a saint at the moment of salvation and we will judge the world. If the world is judged by us, are we not competent enough to judge the most minor lawsuits (or threat thereof). Then, v. 3: Don't you know that we will judge angels? If you can do the greater, then you can do the lesser. How dare you go to court before unbelievers and not before the saints? How can you be so ignorant? Where is the doctrine which should be in your souls? Don't you know that you will judge the world? The lawsuits that these believers involved themselves in against other believers, which ruined their testimony. "Who are these guys who talk about grace? Look at how they treat one another." Paul brings out a point that they should have known, but they don't. The expression is: ουκ οιδοτη = do you not know? This is a formula Greek construction. It is a construction which everyone understands. It is infinitely clear. Often these are slang phrases. Μη γινοιτο is a phrase often used by Paul. The people who heard it understood exactly what he meant. This indicates very strong dissent. Vv. 2, 3, 9, 16, 19 we find the phrase ουκ οιδοτη. Do you know know? Perfect tense from γινωσκο, the cognate of γνοσις. Οιδα is the perfect tense; γινωσκω is the present tense. This verb occurs 320 times in the NT. This is a perfect tense translated into a presence tense. This NT usage is related to the OT. Do you not know? refers to inexcusable ignorance. The fact that they are ignorant of Bible doctrine leads them to court. We all have lots of dirty laundry. When you drag that dirty laundry out of the hamper and strew it throughout the neighborhood, it is unsightly. This grosses everyone out. Eve's first sin was one of ignorance. 1Tim. 2:14. Adam's sin was one of cognizance. You cannot solve the real problems in your life if you cannot apply doctrine. You cannot find any permanent solutions for your life without doctrine. Κρινω = to judge, to find fault with. When it is man used of other men, it means to find fault with; when used of God as the one doing the action, it means to judge. Paul is speaking universally; more than the saints just in Corinth. Some of the saints that Paul is addressing are dead. Κρινω is the future active indicative. The saints will judge correctly in the future. We will be involved in this, whether we have departed from this life or not. We will judge the world and we will judge angels.

This will be a future time. This is judging in the future.

Doctrine of our Participation in Eschatological Judgment

1. All saints are in union with Christ, and we are therefore, joint heirs with Christ. Rom. 8:17. We will share in His kingship.
2. All judgment is given to Jesus Christ by God the Father. He is the ultimate Judge (John 5:22–27).
3. Because we are in union with Christ and we are joint heirs with Him, we will share in His judgment of that which He judges. Union with Christ means that we share everything that He is and everything that He has. We will be in the Millennium and we will judge right along side of Him.

We will find out about this on Sunday.

1Cor. 6:2 You know that the saints will rule the world, don't you? And if the world is going to be ruled by you, can't you handle insignificant cases?

Gary Horton—Gary got a few booklets; and then he found out that Bob had tapes. He was in Bible college studying the book of Hebrews and Gary listened to 16 4-track tapes and he became very controversial. Gary did not know, at that time, that not everyone wants to hear the truth. No one was that motivated. At the point forward, Gary was told that he would graduate and that he would not come back. He was pulled out of legalism.

Gary recently had jury duty and he wore a shirt that said narrow minded. He did not expect to get picked. Each had to stand and tell what he did. Gary was chosen as the foreman. Gary explained what was on his shirt; there are two roads of life: one is broad, crowded and leads to hell; another is less traveled and narrow, and that leads to life. Gary had the opportunity to share his faith. Gary bowed and prayed at that time. He asked a person if he was a believer in Jesus Christ. "To those who know to do good and don't do it, it is sin." It took them 5 minutes to find this person innocent. The judge asked to see Gary in chambers. He asked to meet him and he was from Lebanon. It is because of those marines that I have the right and the freedom to be an American.

Gary is a grandparent. He has a grandson Shane. April 15th, at age 2; Ruthie told Shane, "Today is taxes" Shane put his hand over his heart (thinking she said Texas). Gary is able to share the only good news left on this planet in a nation which no longer has freedom of speech. He can no longer walk into a public school and teach Jesus. "You didn't pay me, so you cannot shut me up." He has been told to keep away from anything to do with religion; and he says, "I wouldn't dare throw religion at these people." He says, "I'd love to tell you about the Man who died for our sins, about that changing my life; I'd love to tell you that is the power of my life, but I don't have the right to tell you about Him." A Black principal lady came up on stage when Gary shared the only good news that there is. She said, "This man will now apologize to this school for teaching his own belief system." Gary said, "No one will make me apologize for telling you about a Savior who will solve any problem that you will ever have." A kid later said, "This lady don't know Jesus." The youth are not the problem. We are the problem.

Gary can't get into some schools because someone will not go to the throne of grace and demand that he speak there. It is his job to be faithful. He does not ask to speak anywhere. He only goes where God sends him. "I am only here for an hour; if I have offended you, you come up and tell me. However, I have to stand up to the judgment of Jesus Christ. How come if I am so wrong, why someone doesn't come up and offer me a better solution?"

In America, we have betrayed our spiritual heritage. As a teacher, no one can keep you from sharing your faith.

He traveled to Afghanistan and traveled to every major base. One guy said, "You have a warm voice—not so hot." Gary shared the meaning of the flag and what it stands for. He ran into an army ranger. He said, "You sound a lot like a guy in Houston, TX called Bob Thieme. Do you know him?"

The young people today are literally starving to death for truth. He was booked as a comedy tour, and not religion. He did not want the stigma attached to us of religion.

"If you walk away from this program and you don't know where you will spend eternity, then you are in the wrong place and the wrong time doing the wrong thing." The chaplains had no idea how to deal with a suicide when Gary was there. Gary spoke. "You have a choice; his life was thrown away and wasted; or it was a gift. If you listen to me, you can vindicate his sacrifice and service." He shared the gospel with such force and conviction and said, "Did you get me? Did you understand?" He was very forceful. "You are not here to throw your life away, but to give it back to your Savior." He wore a shirt saying, "We are one nation under God" and on the other side, "Thousands have died for our freedom but one died for our sins."

The painting of the son. Tremendous collection. Only one bid on the painting of the son; and only one did. That ended the auction. The auctioneer said, "Whoever took this one painting gets the entire collection." Www.youthontrack.org and there are messages there from Afghanistan. "Time is short and urgency is now."

1Corinthians 6:2

Lesson #226 Sunday 1

September 11, 2005

In homiletics, Bobby was told to keep his sermons down to 20 minutes; today, he can follow that suggestion.

We will be the ones judging the world. Now, if the world is judged by us, then are we not able to judge the minor matters of our lives here on earth? We will even judge angels. How dare we drag other believers into a civil lawsuit? Paul could have added one of his favorite stock expressions: μη γινωιτο = may it never be so. The idea is, how dare us take a matter between believers to court before unbelievers? Why would he be so adamant in his disagreement with the Corinthians? This is simply a reflection of God's disapproval.

What is wrong with believers settling disputes in court. Isn't a court a part of divine establishment? Of course; however, there is a spiritual issue at stake, and motivation is at stake. Heavy emotions are involved when suit is involved...no matter which side you are on. Emotions and subjectivity have built up by the time you get to court. This is when you know. Retaliation and greed and revenge can become motivating factors in a suit. There should be no mental attitude sins involved in disputes with other believers. The focus should be on the solution; not on the problem. The solution is from doctrinal and grace orientation. God is never pleased with any motivation like these. God is telling these Corinthians that they have the wrong motivation. Where is the use of problem solving devices? Where is faith rest and grace and doctrinal orientation and humility and spiritual self esteem? All of these are lost in reversionism and mental attitude sins. Is that pleasing to God? There is another problem. Lost in this civil litigation is your witness for the Lord Jesus Christ. When you show nothing but ungraciousness and bitterness; this is a poor witness. We should be witnesses for the greatest grace plan imaginable—and yet we are bickering over a few dollars, lambasting some other believer. We must communicate God's plan.

An ambassador from another country should exhibit graciousness. Could we suffer a little bit of wrong in order to represent Jesus Christ to the world? In a civil court, we lose all credibility when we display an ingracious attitude for all the rest to see. Paul will take a different approach than μη γινωριτο; but it is the same idea.

1Cor. 6:2 You know that the saints will rule the world, don't you? And if the world is going to be ruled by you, can't you handle insignificant cases?

1Corinthians 6:2

Lesson #227 Sunday 2

September 11, 2005

Bobby's giving a dire warning. If you don't have any respect for the Word of God, then you do not belong here. He's remembering last Sunday, apparently.

In Cor. 6:1, Paul is not happy with the Corinthians taking one another to court to get settlements. There is bitterness, implacability, etc. There is nothing of God in those circumstance; more than likely, in this situation, we have a bad mental attitude. Christian organization vs. Christians (or a Christian organization), the press is there to record as much as they possibly can. The press is very antagonistic toward Christians and Christian organizations, and they want to capitalize on anything dealing with Christians.

Paul begins v. 2 with another stock phrase: ουκ οιδατη = do you not know? Paul is adamant against certain things. When Paul uses both of these phrases, which he will, you can tell he is super adamantly opposed to whatever he is speaking about. Here, Paul is adamantly against taking lawsuits out in front of unbelievers. Γινωσκω οιδα are two very different looking verbs; οιδα is an irregular verb, and it means to know, to understand. Οιδα is found 320 times in the New Testament. Οιδα is always translated as a present tense, from the 5th century B.C. up until Paul's time. It was a development of the language. With the negative and the 2nd person, it means don't you know? Paul was in Corinth for 18 months and they should have known enough from his time there not to take one another to court (even though he may not have taught that particular doctrine). Paul is making a very emphatic statement. Μη γινοιτο is for something which might not have happened yet. Paul uses ουκ οιδατη for what has already occurred or was occurring at the time.

So, what about the person who is in court? The person must extract himself in any way possible. Apply the doctrine and get out of it and don't let it happen again. This was a whole string of lawsuits; people were continually filing against one another.

Paul then uses a verb that we know well: κρινω = to judge, to pass judgment, to find fault with. Understanding this verb means that we will understand this passage. It normally means to judge; but it also means to find fault with. The saints have never applied doctrine up until that point. Future active indicative is used here. Paul is making a universal statement about the saints. You will be judging the world. Since Paul here is addressing saints universally, this means that he is addressing us at this point. We will be judging the world. This is an eschetological judgment.

1. All saints are in union with Christ; we were placed into union with Christ at the moment that we believed; we became joint heirs with Him and share everything that He is, has and will do. Rom. 8 Only we know just how undeserving we are of this.
2. All judgment is given to Jesus Christ by God the Father. John 5:22–27
3. Because we are in union with Christ and joint heirs with Him, we will share in the judgment activities of the Son of God. We will be there sharing in those activities.
4. When will Christ judge in the future and when will we be participants? We will participate in this in the Millennial kingdom. Indicative mood—we know it will occur, although, we do not know when.

Sequence of Events

1. We will be resurrected at the rapture of the Church. 1Thess. 4:14–17
2. We receive our resurrection bodies in the twinkling of an eye and we will participate in the Judgment Seat of Christ. He will look at our activities based upon what we have done in this life.
3. We will return with Christ at the second advent.
4. Christ will defeat the kings of the North, South, East and West who are closing in on Israel. He will destroy these enemies at a place called Armageddon.
5. Then once Armageddon has been completed, Christ will institute the Millennial kingdom, which He promised to Israel. This is what happens in the second advent. These are promises which He made to David and to Abraham. This is a literal, 1000 years of perfect environment found in several passages.
6. Christ, Who is the King of Kings, will then rule.
7. Kings are the supreme court of their kingdom; they render all final judgments for their kingdom.

8. As the King of Kings and Lord of Lords, all judgment in the Millennium is delegated to the Lord Jesus Christ.
9. We, who are in union with Christ, who share His kingship and His rule, we therefore share in His role as judge in the Millennium. 2Tim. 2:12 Rev. 20:24 Matt. 20:28. Bobby does not know exactly how we will share in this judgment; we are not told.
10. Therefore, Paul can say with confidence in v. 2 that the saints will judge in the Millennial reign of the Lord Jesus Christ. We will judge perfectly; we will judge and render perfect judgment. Who then will we be judging? Who will be the recipients of our judgment? The cosmos system; the world system. This refers to unbelievers and we will judge unbelievers. This includes those who do not believe in Jesus Christ in the Millennium and there will be the Great White Throne judgment. How does this work and what part do we have in it? We do not know.
11. Bobby speculates logically from Scripture:
  - a. Rejection of Jesus Christ is condemnation already. Condemnation is immediate at the point of death.
  - b. So, any judgment which we render must go beyond simple condemnation. Those who reject Christ will go beyond the cross.
  - c. Possibly, in the Millennium, saints may adjudicate unbeliever disputes. It is not condemnation, so it must be something else.
  - d. Sequence of events:
    - i. After the baptism of fire, at the second advent, the Millennium begins with believers only. No unbelievers are present because of the baptism of fire. There will be tremendous destruction at Armageddon. They will be placed into fire for 1000 years.
    - ii. This baptism of fire results in the Millennium beginning with believers only. Matt. 3:11–12 Luke 3:16.
    - iii. After the baptism of fire, there will be a depopulation of the earth. There will be some sort of interim fire. There will be a population explosion among the believers. After any depopulation, there is always a tremendous repopulation. This will happen at the beginning of the millennium. Ezek. 20:34–38 Matt. 25
    - iv. Some of the children of these believers who begin the Millennium will reject Jesus Christ, even though He is physically present and He is viewable in all of His majesty and glory. How could anyone reject Jesus Christ in perfect environment? It is hard to believe; but realize that the entire world of Palestine observed Jesus Christ and His miracles and His fulfillment of the Law; and they still rejected Him. It happened then and it will happen again.
    - v. Judging over such people may be required of us during those Millennial years. There will be an increasing number of them during that period of time. This is speculation. We should participate, in some way, with the judgment of believers during the Millennium.

Why did Bobby go through all of this? He wants us to understand that we will judge the world at some future time. He knows generally what will happen. Paul did not need to tell the Corinthians exactly what would happen. Paul is setting up a point which he will specifically make to the Corinthians. If you are going to judge the world in the future, then why can't you judge the simple things of the world today?

1Cor. 6:2 You know that the saints will rule the world, don't you? And if the world is going to be ruled by you, can't you handle insignificant cases?

1Corinthians 6:2

Lesson #228 Wednesday

September 14, 2005

Bobby begins with v. 1 and emphasizes the context. Since we often deal with a very narrow aspect of Scripture—a few words or a phrase—and we lose the overall teaching. Bobby's first run at this is simply reading the passage. The answer to this question is yes, we are competent to deal with our own problems.

1Cor. 6:1 When one of you has a complaint against another, does he dare to take it before the unrighteous and not before the saints?

When we go into a court of law against other believers, we do this in front of the world, and our spiritual life is completely discredited. The greatest tragedy is when we discredit our faith, which impugns the justice and love of God. The gospel message is contradicted. The very idea of God's grace plan becomes a mockery when we behave with mental attitude sins. Where is the grace that believers supposedly rely on? If grace is what believers rely on, why do we not display this grace toward one another? Why should the unbeliever pay any attention to the gospel of Jesus Christ if we are after someone else's money or property? There is no victory if this puts someone off someone from the gospel, if arrogance in the soul puts off the unbeliever. There is only spiritual defeat when 1Cor. 6:1 is ignored. There are all sorts of little disputes—you can back into someone's car and end up in small claims court. These Corinthian lawsuits are in direct contradiction to glorification of Jesus Christ. When we sue one another, our attitudes reflect many things, none of which are good. Hatred, revenge motivation, greed, etc. No graciousness, no faith-rest, no dependence upon justice or the supreme court of heaven. Mental attitude sins are present when a dispute cannot be settle with another believer using the system of law. It does not matter if you face a vengeful reversionist, who is belligerent and immature, and arrogant; then, you, as the mature believer, must deal with it.

Once a dispute ends up in a court of law, then it is clear that mental attitude sins control your soul. Suing someone else is a result of pure rancor, venom and unyielding viciousness. Only grace orientation empowered by God the Holy Spirit pleases God. Grace and doctrinal orientation cannot be applied to the situation. Paul again sets out to convince these believers of their stupidity.

We all face real world problems everyday. Everyday we are with another person, we face problems. To the extent at which our sin nature is in control, we are even more likely to lose control. All of these things are in progress when Paul writes. This is not a potential lawsuit, but there have been several lawsuits filed in the church.

Paul will use logic in the next few verses. Paul has a great mind and excellent training. There will be no mistakes or flaws in their judging. The spiritual life of a believer is a nonissue in a civil court. That is not a factor. They will strictly deal with the law and legal issues, and that is what they should do. We are not being judged on spiritual issues, but we will be a judge on spiritual issues. Κρινω = to judge, to evaluate. At some future date, the saints will judge, which includes us. Few of us are qualified by desire and training to judge; however, we will be judges, and the issues will be spiritual. Future active indicative verb. We will judge in the millennial kingdom. As believers, we are in union with Christ, which means we share everything that He is and everything that He has. We share His kingship and judgment. The king is always the supreme judge of His realm. This will be over the kingdom of Israel and over the entire world. Matt. 19:28

Rev. 3:21: To him who overcomes I will grant to sit with Me in My throne, even as I also overcame and have sat down with My Father in His throne. One of the great fiery darts is the hassles that we have with people in this life. He will grant us rewards and privileges and He will allow us to sit with Him on His throne. Jesus Christ overcame as well. He overcame by winning the strategic victory on the cross. The Judgment Seat of Christ will take place in heaven, and we will all be there, front and center. It will occur immediately after the rapture and coincide with the seven years of tribulation and before the 2nd advent of Christ. We will all be judged based upon our deeds; whether we have produced divine good or human good.

There will be no equality when it comes to rewards and privileges at the Judgment Seat of Christ. All believers will be somehow involved in the Millennial rule of Christ. We are all in union with Christ and our position will just be to a greater or lesser degree. According to Rev. 3:21, there will be a greater or lesser degree with reference to this rule. In the inner circle of His court in the Millennial kingdom is part of our reward. Imagine sitting on the throne with Jesus Christ.

The Corinthians are immature believer and they are not in line for any great rewards at this point in time. They do not really fall into the elevated status which Paul speaks of.

The Corinthians and the Judgment by Believers in the Millennium

1. The saints will rule in the Millennial kingdom; all of us.
2. Those who are mature believers in this life will have more responsibility as rulers.
3. The Corinthians are not mature; some are deep in reversionism.
4. If they grow up spiritual, they will not only be the great judges of the future, but they will also be able to judge the minor disputes in this life.
5. It is the mature believer who can settle disputes; immature believers will be in a court of law besmirching the name of Jesus Christ.
6. In their current status, they will not be the great judges of the future unless they grow up spiritually.

The Scripture does not tell us exactly what we will do with regards to judging. Those who reject Jesus Christ, the unbelievers, are already condemned, when they do not believe in Jesus Christ. We are not going to condemn unbelievers; they are already condemned.

Judgement in the Last Days

1. After the baptism of fire, after the 2nd advent, only believers begin the Millennium. Those who still remain are removed from earth and put into fire for 1000 years. We have no part of this baptism of fire. Matt. 3:11–12
2. After the baptism of fire, because of the depopulation, there will be a population explosion among the remaining believers on earth.
3. The progeny of some of these believers will not accept Christ, even though He is physically present in His full glory. Even as people observed Jesus on this earth, they still rejected Him as Lord.
4. Judging over such people—those who begin the Millennium—may be required of us. Bear in mind, this is speculation.

Paul's point is that these people will judge in the Millennium. The saints will judge the world. If we are going to judge justly and correctly unbelievers in the future (and we will), then they are under our jurisdiction. Therefore, it is contradictory of us to ask them to judge us. How can a believer let the unbeliever judge our civil disputes? If we will sit beside Christ and judge unbelievers in the greatest judgment of history, then isn't it absurd that we cannot settle the most basic problems amongst ourselves?

1Cor. 6:2a And if the world is going to be ruled by you, can't you handle insignificant cases?

Καὶ εἰ + the indicative mood = a 1st class condition. Then Paul will draw a conclusion from the premise. If we will judge the world at a future time, then we can judge now. Paul uses a fortiori logic. It means from or with a stronger reason. There is a greater and a lesser. The greater is found in the protosis and the lesser is found in the apodosis.

Protosis = if someone can do something which is extremely difficult (like judging the world); then (apodosis) it only makes sense that it is a much easier to deal with a few minor disputes of life. All the problems that we have are small, insignificant; nothing. If we are going to judge the world, then can't we handle a few minor disputes here on earth? These problems can be settled. Live our life in the light of eternity.

1Cor. 6:2b And if the world is going to be ruled by you, can't you handle insignificant cases?

1Corinthians 6:2

Lesson #229 Thursday

September 15, 2005

If believers are going to judge the world at a future date (and they will); and if certain mature believers will be in an elite group and closely share in His Millennial rule; then this sharing of rule with Christ will be the unequivocal status of the mature believer. When the winner believer who is designated now as one who will sit on the throne with Jesus Christ; and when we all return with Him at the 2nd advent, the mature believer will share with Him in His status. We sit on the Millennial throne with our Lord Jesus Christ. Thus the mature believer will be Christ's close attendants, part of His ruling circle. That is the destiny of those who reach the high ground of spiritual maturity. As believers in Jesus Christ who are in union with Christ, they will be present in the millennial kingdom in some capacity. All believers will be somehow involved. Those who do not reach spiritual maturity will not be the great judges ruling over nations along side the Lord. There will be moments of deep embarrassment for those who do not advance. For those who are always thinking what they can do for themselves here and now in the moment. What we accomplish here in relationship to the world turn out to be nothing in comparison to the accomplishments of spiritual maturity. The Corinthians don't really have the option; they will not be high judges in the high kingdom any more than they are able to judge the minor matters of this earth. If they cannot settle these disputes among themselves, then they cannot settle any major disputes in the Millennium. Those who reach spiritual maturity in this life are capable of settling disputes; and those who can settle disputes in this life can be seen as judges in the Millennium. At this point in time, the Corinthians are the exact opposite of what they should be.

If the world is judged by you, aren't you competent to judge the minor problems at the church? The Corinthians should be able to answer this competence question with, "Yes, we are able to settle our individual problems amongst one another." However, it is clear right now that they are unable to do so. The only way to successfully negotiate the mine fields of this life is spiritual maturity. The unlying premise is spiritual maturity.

1Cor. 6:2a And if the world is going to be ruled by you, can't you handle insignificant cases?

Και εἰ + present active indicative of κρίνω. There is a premise (or protosis) and a conclusion (or apodosis). Paul assumes as a fact the judgment of the world by believers. "If the world is judged by you [and it will be]..." Then Paul draws his conclusion from the premise. "If we can judge the world at a future time, then we are able to judge minor disputes now." A fortiori = from or with greater reason.

The Meaning of A Fortiori in this Verse

1. There are two parts: the greater and the lesser.
2. The greater is found in the protosis, which, in this case is, if the world is judged by you...
3. The lesser is found in the apodosis, which is
4. This is a 1st class condition (along with a fortiori logic). The premise is assumed as true.
5. If the protosis is true, then a fortiori, the apodosis must also be true.
6. Here is what it all means: if someone can do something which is extremely difficult, like judging the world (which is the greater), it only makes logical sense that he can also do that which is much easier, which is judging here and now between believers.

7. So what is the easier, lesser task found in the apodosis? It is adjudication amongst one another in Corinth rather than depending upon unbelievers to settle disputes between believers.
8. If we can judge the world, then we can adjudicate amongst ourselves without bringing in the world to judge us.
9. Remember, the apodosis is conditioned upon reaching maturity. It can assume to be true—we will judge the world, if we reach maturity.

The apodosis expects the Corinthians to answer in the positive. 2nd person plural, present active indicative of to be and the 2nd person plural of ἀνοξιος. In a question, this should be rendered are you? We have a hophoxlegomena ἀνοξιος this word attracts attention. Paul will never use it again. It means not competent, not good enough. ...are you not competent (or good enough)... Κριτεριον ελαχιστων this is the word criterion, which refers to a standard or criterion for judgement. The second word means unimportant, insignificant, minor. Aren't you good enough to deal with these insignificant matters, considering that you will judge the entire world? These matters on earth are insignificant compared to what will be dealt with in eternity. Paul wants them to look at these problems as tiny little things.

This refers to those who have jurisdiction over the insignificant details of life. Those incidents that we find so overwhelming and so important that we must go to court to settle the issue. These issues are nothing, which you see as so important. In this case the unimportant or insignificant matters should be handled in their own jurisdiction. If you are to sit with Christ in judgement over the world, are you not competent to handle everyday disputes using the criterion of doctrine? Using impersonal love to deal with the obnoxious people who set you off.

Differences do arise between believers that could be settled satisfactorily in court. It can happen; it can work; you can get justice. However, you have been defeated. You can solve your problems in this manner. You can get a ruling and an adjudication which can give you a great deal of money; but you have been defeated. The real issue is a spiritual one. All believers are not qualified to adjudicate such disputes. The criterion involved 4 factors: the filling of the Holy Spirit; doctrine resident in your soul; spiritual maturity; authority based upon a spiritual gift. Settlement involves these things. Pastors and deacons can solve some of these things based upon their authority and spiritual gifts. However, Berachah will not be setting up a court system; there will be no judge advocate core that we can draw from. Furthermore, we won't be calling anyone for jury duty. Berachah will not be a civil court annex. Adjudication can be as simple as two believers working out a dispute among one another. If only one is mature, then he should be the one to settle. To settle, grace orientation and humility must be present along with impersonal love. This is especially when there is a mature believer and an obnoxious believer. When someone is a total jerk, then you want to haul them into court and turn them upside down. The responsibility always falls upon the mature believer. He has developed maturity and impersonal love. The mature believer takes this passage and says, "I will be judging in eternity; therefore, can't I settle this now?" We can end up in all kinds of disputes. Person vs. person, person vs. organization; organization vs. organization. Now, a 3rd person can be involved from the congregation. However, this can be a dangerous approach.

When and How Should Leadership Step in and Adjudicate?

1. If it is affecting the church; if the dispute is widening as people take sides; if more people than the principals are getting involved.
2. This should never take the place of legal or personal counseling. Do not impromptu give out legal advice out, as you can be sued by one of them.
3. What do you do as an adjudicator? Apply the pertinent doctrine to the situation.
4. Then the doctrine must be accepted by one or both parties; even if it is only accepted by one party, then that one party can deal with the loss or the gain (usually a loss at this point). "Okay, you want that? Then take it. I won't fight you for it."
5. Such an adjudication is not legally binding before the state. Sometimes perfunctory legal action might be necessary to record such a settlement. You may need to record it in a court. For example: you may need a divorce decree from the state; that is the law.
6. However, even though these adjudications are not legally binding or compulsory, remember what is: doctrine is always binding and compulsory. Before the Lord, the doctrine is a compulsory and binding solution and if you reject it, look out.

That completes v. 2.

1Cor. 6:2b And if the world is going to be ruled by you, can't you handle insignificant cases?

In the next verse, Paul will make an even stronger case for our ability to settle our minor disputes. We will judge angels; so certainly, we can judge amongst one another.

1Corinthians 6:2

Lesson #230 Sunday 1

September 16, 2005

First rhetorical question is found in 1Cor. 6:2: Do you not know that the saints will judge the world? If the world is going to be judged by you, can't you deal with insignificant matters? Paul will lay this out in impeccable logic. The Greeks love logic, so they understand Paul's approach. A fortiori = from or with stronger reason. There is some limitation on this logic. You must believe that the premise is true. However, the conclusion must follow. The premise asserts that a task of great difficulty will be accomplished; the world will be judged by us. The conclusion will be drawn from this premise. If the greater task is a fact and will happen, then the lesser task should be able to be accomplished.

Paraphrase of the question: Don't you believers know that you are to sit with Christ in universal judgment of the world? This is a true statement of the certain accomplishment of a task which we will be involved in, in the future. Concluding statement: If you can sit in judgment of the world, are you not good enough and competent enough for the simple settlement of everyday disputes among yourselves? You must believe that the first fact is true in order to agree with the logic in this verse. The idea is, it is easier to accomplish the first statement as it is to accomplish the second. We will judge these guys in the future; why should we bring them into the equation at this moment to judge you. The disputes are legal, but the point Paul is making is logical and not legal. Believers are to operate on a higher realm. This is not about the court system of the state or the legal mechanisms of that day; believers do not need to be hauled before unbelievers in court; that is a spiritual failure.

1Cor. 6:2 You know that the saints will rule the world, don't you? And if the world is going to be ruled by you, can't you handle insignificant cases?

Paul ups the ante with the next statement. We will also judge angels. For the second time, Paul uses the phrase don't you know? = οὐκ οἶδατε. Perfect tense of οἶδα. Even though it is a perfect tense, it is always translated as a present tense. This refers to knowledge of doctrine which must be inculcated. Believers will judge the angels in the future; so why not solve the relatively simple disputes among yourselves? Paul has escalated the a fortiori logic. The lower form of creation (man) will judge the higher (the angels). You'll be judging unbelievers and you will be even judging the angels; why can't you solve your own simple, petty problems on earth? We will preside over angels and we will have a higher rank than they. Look what you will be in eternity; look at what you are now; get the perspective. Realize who and what you are in union with Christ. Those who persevere will sit with Me on My throne. We will all be raised above angels. Realize how ridiculous it is to be unable to handle these little minor problems; what does it matter who you are in the eyes of the world? What does this temporary money mean? God still owns the cattle on a 1000 hills. God will take care of us magnificently; as high as the angels are, they are still part of the cosmos. They are created beings, just as mankind is a created being. They will fall into the same future judgment as unbelievers. This is the connection between vv. 2–3. This is why we have κρίνω in both verses. Future active indicative in regards to angels. Vv. 2–3 are parallel judgments.

The grace of God, Who provides us a resurrection body, which body will be saluted by angels in the future. Paul does not specify any details about the angels who we will judge. Ἄγγελος = messenger, angel. Accusative plural. There is no definite article. This is an anarthrous construction. Paul is not including all of the angels in this phrase. Paul emphasizes a certain quality or character of angels in this verse. The angels over which you will judge. Elect and fallen angels. The elect kept their estate in heaven; the fallen joined Satan. A third of the angels fell and joined Satan's revolution. Matt. 25:41 Jude 6. This is the judgment which completes the victory of Christ in the angelic conflict. We will be intimately involved in His judgement. This will be the end of the angelic conflict and we are witnesses for the prosecution at the end of human history, at the end of time. These Corinthians will be the final judges of the angelic conflict and the little conflicts of this life are buffaloeing them.

1Cor. 6:3 You know that we will rule angels, not to mention things in this life, don't you?

We will judge the highest order of creation; in the Old Testament, the angels appeared to various men. It is not difficult to determine why people during the time of Jesus rejected Him, as even the angels rejected God and they saw God in all His glory.

The Lake of Fire was created for the devil and his angels. Satan filed an immediate appeal. "You are a loving, just and righteous God; how can you do this to those whom You have created?" Satan challenged the very character of God, and history will resolve human history. Mankind will demonstrate the great justice of God. We will demonstrate that to the angels. When we believe in Christ, we are witnesses to God's justice and righteousness. The fallen angels gnash their teeth (or whatever) when they see us believe and when they see us execute the plan of God. Jesus Christ has won the strategic victory and every time someone fulfills the plan of God, that is a tactical victory.

How will we be involved judging Satan and the fallen angels?

1. When Christ returns at the second advent (and He will), after the bama seat where we will receive our rewards, Christ will return and we will accompany Him and we will participate significantly during His millennial reign. Rev. 5:10
2. The return of Christ is the second stage of the strategic victory of the angelic conflict.
3. The first stage was the sacrifice of the cross.
4. The initiation of the Church Age, which began on the day of Pentecost, when the Spirit came upon the disciples.
5. Why were we constituted as the church? We were designed for a tactical victory over Satan. To whom much is given, much is expected. Our mission is a tactical victory.
6. The tactical victory of the church age believer occurs when we execute the plan of God. This will allow us to receive a reward at the bama seat of Christ for a tactical victory. The unbeliever can accomplish good works and they are the only things that the unbeliever can stand on. Their good works come from the old sin nature. They come from the strong point of the old sin nature. These deeds are still relative righteousness and they still fall short of perfect righteousness.
7. We as believers in Jesus Christ are identified with Christ in the first stage of the strategic victory through our union with Christ. We have 39 irrevocable absolutes which identify us with Christ.
8. Then we execute and advance to strategic victory. The angelic conflict answers so many questions. "Why can't we just go home after salvation?" These questions are asked every day by believers and unbelievers; look at what we have to live with? It is because we have a tactical mission; we must demonstrate to the angels Who Jesus Christ is by way of what He has given to us. There is nothing greater given to us in this universe. We are not here to perpetuate the human race or to evolve into something greater and better. One of our rewards is to share the throne of Jesus Christ in the Millennium.

9. We are identified with Christ in the second stage of the strategic victory; we will return with Him in resurrection body. We return with Him and are identified with Him.
10. We have already been rewarded out position in the Millennium at the bama seat of Christ. We will be given our rewards then. Our status will have already been determined at that time. We will rule over 10's of thousands or maybe just 10.
11. In this situation, we are set for judgment, as mature believers. We have returned with Christ, we are seated with Christ, and we are rewarded to sit in judgment.
12. We are not the only believers involved in this final judgement. At the opening moment of the 2nd advent, immediately before the Millennium, Old Testament believers will be resurrected; heroes and those who simply believed. All Tribulational martyrs will also be resurrected. They were massacred in all sorts of ways. They will sit in judgment of the very ones who destroyed their bodies in the Tribulation. Rev. 20: 6
13. Also at the second advent, Satan and all of his fallen angels are incarcerated for 1000 years. Rev. 20:2–3, 27. These angels are put into tartarus, where the Church Age unbelievers reside. It is a place of chains and darkness; a bottomless pit.
14. At the end of the Millennium, Satan and his angels are released from incarceration and they incite a conspiracy. As soon as they get out, they begin another conspiracy. Never be surprised as to how vociferous negative volition can be.
15. What happens when Satan starts a conspiracy? The unbelievers of the Millennium respond. Satan and all unbelievers are rounded up and the only ones left are believers, who will multiply, and some of their progeny will reject Christ, Who is present on the earth. They buy into the idea that Christ can be overthrown. This conspiracy will be against Christ and against us. They will be the enemy. That will be the Gog and Magog revolution. Rev. 20:1–10.
16. The revolution begins and God puts it down. Matt. 25:41 Rev. 20:10–15
17. Satan and all of his fallen angels are tossed into the Lake of Fire forever. Rev. 20:10.
18. The Lord Jesus Christ will sit on the great white throne at the end of the Gog and Magog revolution and there we will be also...witness to the great final acts of history.
19. What we will do and exactly how we will judge and what we will judge is not revealed to us. We will be present and we will be involved. Jewish and gentile believers will rule during that time, sharing His kingship and rulership.

The a fortiori logic is, if we believe that we will judge angels, then we can settle our piddling disputes here on earth. This is encouragement and it fills in some gaps.

Physical torture will last forever and ever. However, it will be clear to understand just exactly what it means and seeing Him will make all of the horror fade into insignificance. When you think of that horror, will there be any shame that you did not witness to that person? This gives us some impetus for evangelism.

1Cor. 6:3 You know that we will rule angels, not to mention things in this life, don't you?

Revelation 20:2–13 Lesson #233 Thursday September 29, 2005

apparently we are going into Rev. 20. The whole scene of Millennial judgment is revealed in Rev. 20:2–15:

Rev 20:2 And he seized the dragon, the ancient serpent, who is [the] Devil and Satan, the one leading astray [fig., deceiving] the whole inhabited earth, and he bound him [for] a thousand years.

There is no way for these angels to escape; they will be bound for 1000 years. There will be no more incarceration. Despite his removal from the scene, this will not be the end of negative volition. Some people do blame demons for all of their problems, and this will not be a valid excuse at that time. Our old sin nature and our volition are our own worst enemies.

Rev 20:3 And he threw him into the bottomless pit and shut and sealed [it] over him, so that he shall not be leading the nations astray [fig., be deceiving the nations] [any] longer until the thousand years are completed. And after these [things] it is necessary [for] him to be released [for] a short time.

During this 1000 years, the Millennium will be taking place. At the end of this time period, Satan will be released. Matt. 25:41 there will be a final judgment for Satan and all unbelievers.

Rev 20:4 And I saw thrones, and they sat on them, and judgment was given to them, and the souls of the ones having been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and who did not prostrate themselves in worship before the beast nor his image and did not receive the mark on {their} forehead and on their hand. And they lived and reigned with Christ [for] {the} thousand years.

During the Millennium, there will be church age believers sitting on the throne with God.

There will be the martyrs of the Tribulation. They are spoken of here.

Anti-Christ can be used generally, as against-Christ. Dan. 2:41 is where his kingdom is described. Those who bear this mark are bearing an outward allegiance to their king. This mark is the name of the Beast or his number. Theological sleuths have been thinking about this 666 for some time. People like to take these numbers and play with them, thinking that there is some code in these numbers; and wonder who is this old 666? This number has been severely misrepresented throughout Christian history. Various names have been made out of this number; Nero, various popes, Stalin, Hitler, etc. This is an exercise in futility. First of all, there is no spiritual advance in playing with these numbers. It is important Biblically because this will identify him at that time. Trying to figure out who he is now is a dispensational error. He will come to the forefront during the Tribulation, but during the Church Age. We won't be here; we will be face to face with Jesus Christ. Who gives a flying frog as to who he is, if we are face to face with our Lord.

This number is not given for mathematicians to play with. It is given for believers who find themselves in the midst of the tribulation. It is the fact that this is revelation that divine deliverance is on the way.

These tribulational martyrs will reign with Jesus Christ. This catches us up to tonight...

Rev 20:5 And the rest of the dead did not live until the thousand years are completed. This [is] the first resurrection.

When John says this is the first resurrection, this means that John is covering the entire gamut of resurrections. Old Testament believers and tribulational martyrs are a part of the same grouping.

For believers who live in the Millennium, and go into the Millennium as humans (and only believers go into Millennium as humans and with old sin natures). These people will have children. What about death during the Millennium? Old age and death will not overtake the believer in the Millennium. This is a time of perfect environment. Isa. 65:20. There will also be a group of unbelievers; those who are children of the believers who enter into the Millennium. They will not necessarily live through the entire 1000 years. Overt sins will be judged, by God and maybe by us. We will judge criminal actions and capital punishment will occur.

Rev 20:6 Happy and holy [is] the one having a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death does not have power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will reign with Him [for] a thousand years.

If there is a first resurrection, then there is a second resurrection. The first resurrection refers to those who are blessed and holy and in the first resurrection. Maybe this is the raising of all believers? Over this group, the second death will have no power. These will be priests of God and will reign with him for 1000 years. Israel is a kingdom of priests.

The Millennial kingdom is the kingdom which was promised to David. The future kingdom for Israel occurs during the Millennium.

Rev 20:7 And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison.

This takes us back to v. 3. Satan is released.

Rev 20:8 And he will go out to lead the nations astray [fig., to deceive the nations], the [ones] in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war, of whom the number {of them} [is] like the sand of the sea.

Gog and Magog are not names of two people; these words are used for nations which are in revolt against God. Satan returns and he gathers up a large number of unbelievers. There are so many, they are like the sand of the seashore.

The world's armies will gather once again against Christ just as they gathered a 1000 years before when the unbelievers of the earth rise up against Christ.

Rev 20:9 And they went up over the breadth of the earth and surrounded the camp of the holy ones and the beloved city. And fire came down out of heaven from God and consumed them.

They surround the camp of the holy ones, and this sounds very similar to Armageddon. This last battle could be fought in the Valley of Esdralon (possibly). God comes down out of heaven and wipes them out.

Rev 20:10 And the Devil, the one leading them astray [fig., deceiving them], was thrown into the lake of fire and sulfur [or, brimstone], where the beast and the false prophet [are], and they will be tormented day and night into the ages of the ages [fig., forever and ever].

The devil who deceives them is thrown into the Lake of Fire. They will be tormented day and night forever and ever. They belong there; they deserve it. So will every unbelieving human being. This is the execution of the verdict of Matt. 26:41.

βασανίζω = to torture, to use the rack; plague or penal torture; severe distress (mostly of the physical type). This is not some psychological distress; it is not some torment. It is considerably more than mere separation from God. It is more than just a separation. Some of us like to think this is just a state of mind; but this will be physical torture. The Scriptural data insists on a physical reality. There will be a physical resurrection, which implies physical punishment. This is an unimaginable physical horror.

This is a big price to pay for rejecting Jesus Christ. This should give us some impetus to evangelize. We would not want to consign our worst enemy to such an end.

Rev 20:11 And I saw a great white throne and the One sitting on it, from whose face the earth and heaven fled away, and a place was not found for them.

The earth and all creation will be utterly destroyed; a final destruction of the earth by fire. There will be no place in the new heavens and the new earth for unbelievers. Perfect environment for the eternal state.

Get the contrast—heaven and hell. We should thank God every day for His Son, as we all deserve the Lake of Fire. We are born condemned; and we sin against Him daily. Only by God's grace are we detoured from this.

Rev 20:12 And I saw the dead, the great and the small, having stood before the throne, and scrolls were opened, and another scroll was opened, which is [the Scroll] of Life. And the dead were judged by the [things] having been written in the scrolls, according to their works.

These are all the unbelievers who have been resurrected. Does it matter how great you are at the end of this life? The great and the small will stand together. The book of Life originally included all members of the human race. Those who die without believing in Jesus Christ have their name removed. If the name of a person is not found in the book, they are doomed to torture forever and ever.

Rev 20:13 And the sea gave up the dead, the [ones] in it, and death and the realm of the dead [Gr. hades] gave up the dead, the [ones] in them. And they were judged, each one according to their works.

There is also a book of works, filled with all of the works done by unbelievers.

Final judgment for Unbelievers

1. Unbelievers are judged according to their works and not according to their sins.
2. The word here is not used for sin. The sins for humanity have all been judged; they do not require a second judgment. If we have been acquitted once of a sin, we will not be judged a second time. Christ already died for our sins.
3. Sins are never a basis for judgment against unbelievers, as Christ died for them.

4. Condemnation of the unbeliever is based solely on human good deeds. This should give us some idea as to the value of our human good words. They are the basis of the indictment of the unbeliever at this judgment.
5. Why is condemnation based solely on human good deeds?
  - a. When an unbeliever rejects Christ and His saving work, he has only his own good works to stand upon.
  - b. All the good deeds combined can never be enough to please God.
  - c. These deeds are always accomplished from the area of strength of the old sin nature.
  - d. The unbeliever never holds to all of their ideals. The unbeliever, with any amount relative righteousness never lives up to his own standards.
  - e. These deeds are not sins; they are from the area of strength from the old sin nature. They do constitute a relative righteousness.
  - f. These unbelievers can never measure up to God's perfect standards. No matter how many of these are read from the book of works, they are not enough.

Revelation 20:13

Lesson #234 Sunday 1

October 2, 2005

Rev. 20 is a Millennial chapter and it is a fulfillment of the Abrahamic and Davidic covenants. Some of the events of that time period are covered here, which includes the final disposition of Satan and the fallen angels.

We will be here, according to 1Cor. 6:2–3; some to judge. None of us will be facing eternal judgment. We are told about this in 1Corinthians in order to teach us that we should be able to resolve problems amongst one another since we will judge unbelievers and we will judge angels. As believers, this is the connection between these two passages. This will be the greatest judgment in human history. There will be none like this. If we are going to deliver portions of the greatest judicial verdict in history, then why on earth would we want to turn over these minor judgments and disputes to unbelievers. We are to settle our own disputes.

These final 3 verses summarize what we have covered.

Rev 20:13a And the sea [The sea refers to those who did not receive a proper burial and probably those who were cremated. This is the unbelieving dead. It does not matter what kind of burial you had; you will be raised up anyway. Believers and unbelievers will both get bodies, despite the way that our bodies were dealt with at death.] gave up the dead, the [ones] in it [This is the second resurrection. This will be a bodily resurrection, although we do not know exactly the kind of bodies the unbeliever will be raised with. However, it will be a physical body. Since this called a second resurrection, that means there was a first, which is mentioned earlier in this chapter. That is a resurrection of believers, which are resurrected in groups], and death and the realm of the dead [Gr. hades] gave up the dead, the [ones] in them [Luke 16:20–25: Hades has a compartment known as Tartarus; this is where the unbelievers are kept. There is a great gulf fixed and on the other side is Abraham's bosom].

Note that Hades is not equivalent to the Lake of Fire. Tartarus is where the Nephilim angels who revolted against God in the pre-deluvian civilization. It is a place of complete darkness; there is no light. There is no presence of God anywhere in this place.

Gog and Magog refer to nations which are in revolt against God. The children of the believers who survive the tribulation will be those who are in this revolution against God. There will be a population explosion and a number of their progeny will reject Jesus Christ, even though they are in perfect environment and they can see Jesus Christ. People will still exercise negative volition.

The great and the small will stand before the great white throne judgment (v. 12). Everyone's name is found in the Lord's Book of Life; however, if they die without believing in Jesus Christ, then their name will be blotted out. A second book is opened—the Book of Works and they will be judged according to their deeds. The Scripture uses the term books because that is easy to understand. From all of these deeds listed, the verdict is rendered. These are human good deeds. The sins of all humanity were imputed to Jesus Christ on the cross. Since they rejected Jesus Christ, then they must stand upon their own works. This is all the unbeliever has to rely upon.

Divine good deeds are those which are accomplished when done in the filling of the Spirit. We are evaluated by those for rewards. We are not condemned and never will be. The same good deeds a believer can accomplish out of fellowship is all the unbeliever can accomplish. These are not sins, but they are nothing more than relative righteousness from the old sin nature. However, they do not meet the standard of perfect righteousness. The difference is, we have received the Holy Spirit. How good do we have to be to gain God's approbation? We must be perfect; absolutely perfect, as God is perfect. Deeds performed in the flesh will be burned up. The verdict for all unbelievers is guilty as charged.

Rev 20:13b And they were judged, each one according to their works.

The first death is physical death; the second death is being thrown into the Lake of Fire. Physical death, which places man into torments, is the first death (for unbelievers). Βασιλιζω = to torture, to put on the rack; plague, penal torture. This is considerably more than being apart from God in another place. It is an unimaginable place of physical horror. Fire means burning, and everlasting fire means everlasting pain. We associate torture with evil, and here is the God of the Universe sending His creatures to fire forever. We may ask "How can a loving God condemn His creatures to hell?" Same appeal as Satan has.

Rev 20:14 And death and the realm of the dead [Hades] were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire.

The sea gives up the dead, and death and hades gives up their dead. The first death is physical death and the second death will be eternal torments and separation from God.

Rev 20:13 And the sea gave up the dead, the [ones] in it, and death and the realm of the dead [Gr. hades] gave up the dead, the [ones] in them. And they were judged, each one according to their works.

This is where unbelievers are going to reside for eternity. These are the terrible consequences for unbelief. We will be there to judge.

Rev 20:14 And death and the realm of the dead [Hades] were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire.

The Scroll of Life contains the name of everyone who has believed in Jesus Christ. Those whose names are not found are thrown into the Lake of Fire. There is no more pain than being burned and this is why it is used here to describe eternity. There are no exceptions here for even the best of unbelievers. The greatest philanthropist imaginable; the person giving of themselves like no one else—if they reject Jesus Christ, they are lost forever. If you are halfway human, you don't want to see this, much less participate in it as a judge. However, we participate insofar as, we do not present them the gospel. There are some who will be there possibly from our own family. We are responsible at this point in time for witnessing; at Rev. 20:15, it is too late. They stand condemned.

How Should we Think about Eternity?

1. The idea that heaven does not include such and such or so and so and will not be perfect, then I don't want to be there. Some unbelievers have rejected Christ based upon their family members not being in heaven. You do not want to be in the Lake of Fire, no matter how many family members are there. You may think no football or no pets; so I don't want it. That sort of thinking is insane. There is only one place to be for eternity, and that is heaven.
2. The fact is, in resurrection body, we will be in a state of absolute adoration of God and His Son. It is impossible to describe the adoration that we will have for God and His Son. It will be heightened when we realize what He has done to keep us from the Lake of Fire.
3. He will transcend all other persons and circumstances. His grace, His love etc. will transcend all other circumstances, including the Great White Throne.
4. In those moments, we will completely understand the absolutely necessity for God's eternal separation from unrighteousness and sin. We understand perfect His love, His grace, His justice.
5. We will have at that moment total knowledge of and appreciation for the price that Christ paid for each one of us on our behalf. We will understand that God Himself associated the greatest hell imaginable, associating Himself with sin on our behalf. We will understand that fully.

6. We will also perfectly understand the absoluteness of justice, righteousness and the love of God, and how they are inseparable. Since God is love, we cannot say that He could not institute the Great White Throne, as He is also just and perfect righteousness. We cannot define an attribute of God apart from His entire person.
7. We will entirely understand His absolute fairness in eternal judgment and in eternal rewards. There is no unfairness in God. This will be clear to us in eternity.
8. We will understand the absolute significance of the grace of God extended to all mankind and the price that Christ paid. Love and grace was offered to each one of us, and we have accepted this. For those who don't, you will understand completely. It is all about a different way of thinking and being in a status that is foreign to us at this time. We will have the mind of Christ in full. The greatest man of doctrine who has ever lived, which is probably Paul, still has some deficiencies.
9. Such is the impact of our resurrection bodies, the locale where we reside, and the proximity of God will have on each one of us. The future judgment that we will see is always a reminder of the critical witness in this life.
10. In person, in resurrection body, will witness and participate in, the very end of history. There will be no exceptions. No blindfolds, no running in the other direction. This is all part of the great victory of the angelic conflict; it will be fair and just, and we will recognize that. We weren't there in the beginning, but we will be there in the end. His victory overrides the emotions of our earthly existence. We should have some sort of emotion in thinking of losing someone to the Lake of Fire. If we don't have that, then we do not understand personal love.
11. His perfect righteousness, His justice and His love will be on display to all those who have ever lived; in its unlimited majesty, which we cannot even conceive of. We have no clue as to His true magnificence and majesty. In the middle of this horror, as we see it now; we will see Who and What Jesus Christ is, and this will transcend all that we have going on in our minds right now concerning the Great White Throne.
12. No one who has ever lived, not even the greatest human genius, will be able to dispute God's perfect intentions toward all mankind. God gave Adam everything, including the greatest woman that he could imagine; he had it and he rejected it. He got us into this mess by his own volition, which we would have done ourselves. Even in all this, God still provided for us. There will be nothing but praise in our soul for Who and What Jesus Christ is. No one can dispute God's perfect intentions or rebut His verdict to those who reject Him.
13. We will see the flawlessness of God's grace plan and the inadequacy of our own accomplishments by comparison. All of our accomplishments are nothing compared to the cross.
14. His essence and His person will infinitely transcend any other circumstance, event, person or pet in all of human history. Our emotions will not be out of control. What we see in eternity will make perfect sense to us. We will praise God for what we witness at the end of human history. We will understand perfectly and we will applaud it.

Rev 20:15 And if anyone was not found having been written in the Scroll of Life, he was thrown into the lake of fire.

Now, if we are going to judge angels, why can't we settle these petty disputes and these ridiculous quarrels amongst ourselves. Even if these quarrels are not petty to us now, we must stop bickering and get some perspective in our position in Christ. We must live our life in the light of eternity. We have no excuse for going to court for a little bit of money; no excuse for these minor problems. Settle this in our own mind; if they won't settle, then it is better to be defrauded.

The Lake of Fire is our rationale for not taking another believer to court and getting our pound of flesh. We might say to ourselves, I still have a sin nature; I can still make mistakes. We might use the excuse that we have a sin nature, and use that to say, "I'm in the middle of a lawsuit." The fact that we have a sin nature is never an excuse for not executing the spiritual life. We use the spiritual life. We have doctrine to apply to every situation and it needs to be applied to people testing. Doctrine must be applied to people testing. We flunk people testing when we take someone to court. This is an F- with a zero average. Sin nature or not, we can settle anything. If we are incapable of settling our own cases, then God would not require us to do so. 1Cor. 6 requires us to do so. God will not give us a mandate or a requirement that we cannot fulfill. In Greek mythology, the gods play games with the mortals; they watch them dance for their own amusement. However, the True God will not give us a task which we cannot perform. This is why we have a spiritual life, so that we can glorify Him in this life. The protest about the sin nature and our inability to settle disputes is worthless. We don't have to go to court to settle feuds amongst ourselves. We don't need a court order to solve it all. If we can judge angels, then we can do the lesser, which is to settle minor disputes here on earth. Use impersonal love and be gracious towards your antagonist. Grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior and it can and will be done. When we escape the bitterness of a court battle and even face being defrauded, this is sharing the happiness of God.

1Corinthians 6:2-4

Lesson #236 Wednesday

October 5, 2005

Bobby got a bottle of Hell Fire and Brimstone BBQ sauce. It is rated at the purgatory level.

Two questions in this pair of verses, which are answered with two more questions. We will judge both unbelievers and fallen angels and Satan.

Summary of the Real Points of vv. 2-3

1. Paul uses a fortiori comparisons between present and future judgments.
2. The comparison is this: You believers will sit with Christ in universal judgment; are you not then competent enough to settle simple everyday disputes using the principles of Bible doctrine?
3. If we can judge in the greater circumstances of the future, which includes judging unbelievers and angels in the future. Then, as mature believers, we should be able to settle disputes amongst ourselves.

4. The crux of the conclusion: we must reach spiritual maturity.
5. So this is a different approach in Paul's appeal for reversion recovery. He is now taking a new tact. What will we be compared to what we are now? If you will be judging angels in the future, then why can't you work with one another during this time period?
6. Connect the future status of mature believers with the importance of maturity in temporal life.
7. Otherwise, there is no problem solving ability in this life and very little reward at the Bama seat of Christ. This is quite a statement of the believers future and temporal status. Much is expected because we are given so much.

Our mission is to advance ot spiritual maturity. We will receive rewards and we can judge in eternity. If we can look forward to this, then how do we get there? We get there by advancing to spiritual maturity. If we are incapable of settling our own disputes and our own problems, then God would not mandate us to do it. If God gives us a mandate, then He gives us a way to fulfill that mandate. God will never give us a mandate that we cannot fulfill. This includes settling disputes amongst ourselves. Don't ever say, there is no way that I can do that. God has provided us the ability to do this. God has made us capable of solving any problem in our life. We have the greatest amount of assets in the Church Age. The Apostle Paul above any other person knew that he could succeed in these areas where God is testing us and where God places something before us. If you can judge angels, how much more matters of this life?

1Cor. 6:2 You know that the saints will rule the world, don't you? And if the world is going to be ruled by you, can't you handle insignificant cases?

Βιωτικός = situations belonging to daily life, disputes or quarrels of daily life. This describes in general business matters and situations in life. The root word is βίος. Even an attorney spends much more time preparing for court than actually being in court. These quarrels are seen as trivial. They are daily situations which happen to us all the time. These are not necessarily trivial matters to us; but from divine viewpoint, they are. We may never settle the monetary dispute, but we settle the dispute within our souls.

One exception to this is divorce; divorce does require some legal action. However, this should not be acrimonious or bitter. There are times when divorce happens between believers. When it does, there are procedures which must be followed. A legal decree is required for a civil dissolution. However, there should not be any rancor. We do not go to court for our pound of flesh no matter how much wrong has been done to us. Going to court should be a simple formality to get the decree. In many cases, you can simply send your attorney and just sign the paperwork. This does not dissolve your marriage before God. Even here, it is better to lose than to go with the mental attitude sins. Some fight to the end just to keep the other person from getting any money. Acrimonious bitterness. It does not matter who has been wronged or what has been done.

Bobby's translation below:

1Cor. 6:3 You know that we will judge angels, how much more the matters in this life?

There is a lot of repetition of grammar and vocabulary in v. 4. We cannot separate these verses, as the grammar is so similar. The first word is βιωτικός = belonging to daily life. In this context, quarrels and disputes in daily life.

Κριτήριο = 1) the instrument or means of trying or judging anything; 1a) the rule by which one judges; 2) the place where judgment is given; 2a) the tribunal of a judge; 2b) a bench of judges; 3) the matter judged, thing to be decided, suit, case.

If and the present active subjunctive of ἐχὼ. This is the grammatical construction of a 3rd class condition. Ἐάν + the subjunctive = 3rd class condition. You may or may not have these tribunals; but you should not have them. Only once and awhile should you go to an outside source. You should be able to solve these problems amongst each other. The uncertainty of the subjunctive mood. Paul knows that this is a necessity at this time. They need someone to help them solve their problems. If then (and you probably will) have tribunals for judging quarrels in daily life,...

If you have quarrels in the mundane things of life [and you do], when you are destined to judge men and angels, why should you have those quarrels settled by those who have no standing in the church? You cannot solve these silly, everyday problems, when you will be judging even angels in eternity? Look at what your future holds and look at where you are right now.

The key is, look at all of this in the light of eternity. What does it matter if I win this little dispute?

1Cor. 6:4 So if you have cases dealing with this life, why do you appoint as judges people who have no standing in the church?

1Corinthians 6:2–6

Lesson #237 Thursday

October 6, 2005

First a fortiori in v. 2:

1Cor. 6:2 You know that the saints will judge the world, don't you? And if the world is going to be judged by you, can't you handle insignificant cases [i.e., personal disagreements amongst members of the church who are going to civil court over these matters]?

The second a fortiori in v. 3:

1Cor. 6:3 You know that we will judge angels, how much more the matters in this life?

There is a repetition of grammar and of words, which are similar enough to tell us that we are dealing with the same sort of subject matter. There is a continuation of this in v. 4. In v. 4, it is clear that they have not yet settled the quarrels of the previous verses. They have κριτήριο in the church itself which have not been settled.

When these disputes are kicked up into public level, they can cause problems throughout the entire church. People take sides; some become upset and become involved in mental attitude sins. It is clear that their choices leave much to be desired.

It is all about mental attitude; you are not worried about the money or the saving face, but you are concerned to end the conflict.

The 3rd class condition always contains two parts to the syntax:  $\epsilon\alpha\nu$  + the subjunctive. The 3rd class condition is maybe yes, maybe no. Uncertainty is implied. The uncertainty is you may have tribunals in the church and you may not. Who adjudicates in these tribunals. The problem is, they are making bad choices. These tribunals are optional. The church should not require tribunals; the reality is, they are occurring in Corinth. The viewpoint of the 3rd class condition always deals with the future. It always looks ahead. Paul is talking from that moment on. Paul wishes that they did not have to resort to tribunals. It would be preferable that mature believers can solve their differences. Their only option is to find someone else to settle the problem. If that doesn't work, they all go to civil court. They skip right over the first two (the first two what?). They are unable to solve their problems through tribunals, as there is no fundamental change in their souls. They lack the filling of the Holy Spirit, they lack doctrine, they are not growing; and therefore, they can do nothing by way of growth. Paul hopes that the tribunals can be phased out. Mature believers can deal with these things.

$\text{Καθιζω}$  = to cause to sit as a judge; to appoint a judge. Are you going to appoint judges who are fools to solve your foolish disagreements? There is nothing worse than a bunch of believers who are factional. With those in the church who attempt to referee here; it is little wonder that these people end up in front of a heathen judge. They should not listen to those without doctrine.

Four Summary Points

1. Human viewpoint never solves the spiritual issues of life any more than civil court does.
2. Those practical issues must be permanently solved by application of divine viewpoint. Settle these things in your soul first; then the rest can be settled easily. It begins and ends with our mental attitude.
3. That is why practical problems and disputes among believers inevitably falls into the realm of spiritual issues. We are speaking of issues among believers. Unbelievers do not have a spiritual life. There is no spiritual issue for the unbeliever; however, for the believer, it is always a spiritual issue.
4. That is what problem solving devices are all about. Solving problems with spiritual resources is our advantage over the rest of the world. You do not need a court order to settle problems. Furthermore, you do not need an unqualified believer to solve your problems. Only divine viewpoint present in one soul can settle a problem. The Corinthians aren't able to find enough divine viewpoint to get even a little divine perspective. Even good and just decisions from a court is not good enough. They did not use their spiritual growth. When we solve problems like these, we are producing divine good. We are producing peace and lasting decisions. What could be better than all of this? The contentiousness, this anger, these mental attitude sins—these are embarrassing. You are miserable. You wake up thinking about it and you go to sleep thinking about it.

1Cor. 6:4 So if you have tribunals [or, cases] for judging quarrels in this life, why do you appoint as judges people who are most contemptible have no standing in the church?

Paul will now step up the sarcasm. Sometimes, sarcasm can be the meanest way to deal with someone. However, God can use sarcasm. The believer shames himself when he brings in an arbitrator who has no wisdom.

Is there not one person who can settle these matters? You cannot find even one wise man so you are going to go to human viewpoint unbelievers to solve it? What kind of an idiot are you?

The bottom line in v. 5 is, all you need is one wise person in your entire church and you could solve this problem. It is a shame that you cannot find one wise person to solve this problem. There are people with no standing in the church, and these people are returning to courts to solve problems. That is reversionism. This does not really settle anything. The monetary or the image problems may be resolved in a civil court; but the soul remains unsettled. The problem was solved in a civil court, but it does not solve the problem in the soul. You will not have a relaxed mental attitude in the face of adversity. Settlement in a civil court simply means the believer has reverted to the unbeliever's method of solving a problem. Thus believers who depend upon a civil court are already defeated as believers and as a church. Individually and corporately defeated.

Εντροπή = humiliation, shame. The Corinthians are humiliated before the entire city of Corinth. Their witness is ruined and they have brought disrepute to the Lord Jesus Christ.

How are they Humiliated?

1. They fail to utilize doctrine from their own souls to settle their disputes. That is spiritual failure and humiliation.
2. They fail to appoint mature believers who were qualified by their doctrinal wisdom to arbitrate quarrels amongst the believers in the Corinthian church.
3. Then they opted for civil court depending upon unbelieving judges. Humiliated before the church and humiliated before all of Corinth.

1Cor. 6:5 I say this to make you feel ashamed. Has it come to this, that there is not one person among you who is wise enough to settle disagreements between brothers?

1Cor. 6:6 Instead, one brother goes to court against another brother, and before unbelievers at that!

Bible class on Wednesday and Thursday will be shut down for the first 2 weeks of November (Sunday will be normal). New AC.

If one person in a disagreement occurs, if one person involved is mature, then it can be settled. Some believers took this to court and allowed unbelievers to sit in judgment over them. This does not produce peace in the soul, a lasting solution or true divine resolve. These things can only be solved by divine viewpoint; otherwise, there is no true solution. Can you solve your problems, or must you resort to an unbelieving judge? Do you depend upon doctrine in your soul and divine viewpoint or do you depend upon human viewpoint? Human viewpoint provides no permanent solution and no solution for the soul. A court can solve monetary disputes and issues of fraud; however, many believers retain mental attitude sins win or lose in that same civil court. That is a spiritual failure, which is the most important thing in life. When there is a soul in chaos, there is no true solution. A third choice is found in v. 4 is having a tribunal to solve a dispute; a person in the church with doctrine in their soul to solve the situation. An informal situation. If the person adjudicates with divine viewpoint, then it is okay. Strictly an application of doctrine to the situation. Are you choosing the most contemptible men of the church to solve these problems? The people involved in infighting and factions are being chosen to arbitrate disputes, which is about as lame as choosing an unbeliever.

1Cor. 6:4 So if you have tribunals [or, cases] for judging quarrels in this life, why do you appoint as judges people who are most contemptible [and have no standing] in the church?

Paul heightens his sarcasm in the next two verses. Paul is writing the inspired Word of God; and his sarcasm reveals the contempt and scorn of God on these reversionists. “You rely on those who foment divisions and contentions and factions in the church? That is a settlement?” So Paul gets very sarcastic.

There are no spiritual issues with these people. It is all about material things; it is all about getting their pound of flesh. It is about money. Their motivation is all mixed up; so there is no real solution, despite the method they use.

1Cor. 6:5 I say this to make you feel ashamed. Has it come to this, that there is not one person among you who is wise enough to settle disagreements between brothers?

In v. 5, Paul speaks about these judges who have been chosen by the Corinthians to solve their disputes. In a public court, show them just how little Jesus Christ means to you; just how little your Christian life means when compared to money or to your personal reputation.

ἐντροπή = humiliation, shamed.

The Three Failures of the Corinthians

1. They failed to utilize doctrine to settle disputes between themselves.
2. They failed to appoint mature believers qualified by their doctrinal wisdom to arbitrate between them.
3. They opted for civil court using unbeliever judges to settle their disputes.

By doing this, they made their personal disputes public. This was entertaining to some of the Greeks in Corinth. The privacy of the priesthood is breached. Inaccurate opinions as well as accurate opinions are put on display for all to see. It is as if we are standing naked before a crowd. It is humiliating. Privacy is a key ingredient in settle squabbles between believers. It is a key ingredient to all relationships. No one wants to be exposed to public or family abuse. Exposing your dirty laundry to the public is not a problem solving device. This is a breach of privacy and destroys trust. When you violate privacy, it opens up needless friction between people. It severely restricts and tests the fabric of and confidence in a person who talks. You lose affection for a person who talks. They have violated your privacy and trust. It is a severe test of impersonal love, which can be a test of your maturity there. Violation of privacy can be a platform for sins of the tongue, self righteous justification, the spreading of rumors.

These people did not go to court in a vacuum. They failed in many major doctrines and they should have not violated one another's privacy. Then they should have gone to someone with doctrine; and that person should be discrete. However, going to court destroys privacy. Before you violate someone else's privacy, turn it around and see if you would want that done to you. If you are a mature believer, then you have no business violating the privacy of the priesthood.

With children, you get into their business and teach them the proper way to deal with life; but then, you step away and allow them to use this doctrine to make their own decisions and mistakes.

In these situations, you often end up with really bad interference; and people with no doctrine spreading rumors and adding their own editorials. You end up defending yourself before others who should not be involved in the first place.

You might get puffed up because you know some things which no one else knows; but when you tell someone else, then you violate their privacy. And that privacy continues to be violated. This interrupts the personal lives of many and disrupts their spiritual growth. The arbiter's sole duty is to present doctrine so that those involved can make the proper decisions. When privacy is maintained, person examination of your own decisions remains personal. You don't get off track trying to justify yourself. If you continually try to defend yourself, then you are not making any decisions to make the proper changes in your own life. You are not looking at yourself objectively.

If you are humiliated in front of other people, then this can ruin your personal relationships and sends you out of fellowship as well. The privacy of the priesthood must be maintained.

When we studied excommunication in the church, one of the great reasons for doing so is the chronic church busybody stirring up everyone with sins of the tongue, starting fires to burn the place down. Privacy of the priesthood must be maintained so that objectivity toward Bible teaching is not interrupted. When the privacy of the priesthood is violated, then suddenly other issues interpose themselves between you and doctrine. Privacy of the priesthood is necessary for maximum spiritual growth.

You give others the benefit of the doubt and you stay out of their business, and you do not violate their privacy. When people spread rumors about you and it is false; that is painful and difficult. When you do this, then you cause problems for these other people.

It is not our prerogative to make others stumble. If you are able to keep your mouth shut, then you greatly contribute to the solution of these disputes. These disputes can be personal love relationships. If we take part in privacy violations, shut it down; tell them to get lost. Christians are some of the worst yakkers about one another. We talk about people that we should not talk about. We are not to talk indiscriminately about one another. If you want to maintain a relationship, then you do not reveal personal information to others who are not involved. We are to work out our disputes in private. The battle is the Lord's.

The Corinthians are humiliated; they have not protected the privacy of their own. It was a disgrace for them to end up in a public forum. They would overlook one mature man in the church to arbitrate; and they would chose an immature reversionism or they would go to a public court to settle their disputes—in a very public forum. The truth is in short supply. The result is divisions, fractiousness, fights to be in charge, no leadership; mental attitude sins; multiple violations of the privacy of the priesthood.

When there is a problem, then put it in the Lord's hands. Do not spread the gossip around. Don't make everyone else aware of these problems. If the solution does not come from your own soul, then it is no solution.

1Cor. 6:5 I say this to make you feel ashamed. Has it come to this, that there is not one person among you who is wise enough to settle disagreements between brothers?

1Cor. 6:6 Instead, one brother goes to court against another brother, and before unbelievers at that!

1Corinthians 6:5

Lesson #240 Wednesday

October 12, 2005

Musing about miracles and the Astros (who just went 18 innings to win a divisional title).

There is not one wise man who is able to mediate your minor disputes? “You can't find one man? Not even one wise person in the whole church?” Is there not a single person with enough wisdom to settle these minor disputes? Things must be settled in your soul before you can settle it internally or externally.

Εντροπή = humiliation, shame, embarrassment. It could not be worse.

Humiliation

1. The Corinthian believers failed to utilize the doctrine in their souls. They could not settle it in their own souls or amongst one another.
2. Since they did not have any doctrine in their own souls, they should have listened to someone with some doctrine. This would be someone qualified by their doctrinal wisdom to mediate or adjudicate between believers.
3. They failed in the previous two options—solving it on their own, finding a wise man to mediate—so they elected to go to a civil court to air their problems. Not only do they have a problem among themselves, but they spread it all over town.

They have opened up their disputes to complete public scrutiny. The privacy of the priesthood had been entirely eliminated in the church. They were using the dirt on others to discredit the other factions; even these court cases were designed to do this. Their sins were being aired before all those in Corinth. We all have weaknesses of the sin nature and those sins are between us and God. They are dragging all of that into public court. Their church was becoming a soap opera. The various trends of the old sin nature were all being featured in this church soap opera. Vicious charges were being made: believer vs. believer. The unbelievers relished this. This caused other church members to take sides. “I just knew that person was a jerk, and now I can see it and I can tell everyone that I was right to begin with.” Then, we find out about something that someone said or thought and we find ourselves getting involved and huffy because of what is said or done. This makes some people feel better about their own flaws. You don’t build yourself up by tearing someone else down; you build yourself up with doctrine. Divine viewpoint in your own soul solves the problem. In fact, you can often solve the problem yourself in your own soul. You might be defrauded; you might not get your own way; and divine viewpoint still makes it okay. Once you settle it in your soul, then it is settled and move on. Otherwise, you think about ways to get back at those who have done you wrong. Otherwise, you become vindictive and you want to be satisfied; and you will not get satisfied, no matter how much the legal system gives you. Now, when unbelievers see this, they can see how petty these Christians are and they can easily decide; “Hey, I don’t need this.” Grace orientation settles the matter. We can be conciliatory. When facing a person who is negative toward doctrine, then we might have to bite the bullet. We are to use grace orientation and work these things out in our soul. When you can resolve conflict, then you move closer to God and the bond strengthens. Putting aside mental attitude sins means that we will share the happiness of God. However, in our passage, the Corinthians are humiliated; they have no access to any problem solving device. They did not have one mature person in the church and would have been unable to recognize the problem even if there was one. They ran their pastor out of town. They rejected him entirely. They lost the one man who was primary in teaching truth.

The Corinthians had various factions wrestling for power. They ran off the only man who was teaching them. They were even taken one another to court.

Paul was using sarcasm here; sometimes sarcasm can get through when nothing else can. People would laugh at those who are dealt with derisively. Paul tells them that they are humiliated before the Lord. Sarcasm makes people implacable. Here, it should make us think. You don't necessarily use sarcasm yourself in order to humiliate certain individuals; that may not be the best way to deal with that problem, even though Paul uses it here. Depend upon the power of the Word of God; do not depend upon human dynamics. The personality or the presentation or the dynamic of any person which is important. Do not get your eyes on people to resolve problems.

The Steps to resolve problems:

1. In privacy, in church, we hear the truth.
2. That truth reveals our culpability; but we get this in private.
3. When we are objective, then we face that culpability.
4. Then we can resolve the problem in our own soul.

If we are believers, even with legitimate complaints, this does not give us the right to go to court. These situations are real and valid conflicts. There was real wrong done here; there was real fraud which took place here. However, civil courts are not the way to go. Resolution is always a spiritual issue; not a legal one. Differences must be decided on the basis of Bible doctrine. There are two problems which the church faces: spiritual failure for any church involved: the lawsuit itself should never have happened (even though there might be good reasons for them from human viewpoint). This reveals a malicious attitude between believers. They are manifesting human viewpoint, mental attitude sins, etc. Every conflict will eventually go to a set of mental attitude sins; if not begun there. Secondly, the case is brought before unbelievers. These unbelievers are unqualified, due to doctrinal ignorance, to solve the situation. The wisest unbeliever cannot resolve spiritual issues between believers in court. Conflict always comes down to a spiritual issue. Conflict is mental attitude sins. Problems with other believers come from the soul. We can handle anything if we have objectivity, doctrine in the soul and if we avoid mental attitude sins.

We represent Jesus Christ before the world. We cannot witness His graciousness when we repudiate graciousness in court before unbelievers.

None of the failures listed here are unsolvable. This spiritual failure is only temporary. Failure to rebound; failure to isolate sins. Spiritual failure is not irretrievable. We rebound and isolate the mental attitude sins, and then we privately solve the problem in our souls. Sometimes, it seems like you get just the right doctrine at just the right time for what they are dealing with.

Conflict is not all bad. God uses conflict and failure to His and to our advantage. God in His omniscience, God knows the results of carnality and reversionism and He knows what we cannot see—the solution to any setback. Out of spiritual conflict comes the greatest spiritual victory. It is the easiest way to see doctrine working. Adversity can provide the greatest learning experience of our lives. It can be the greatest experience of our lives.

Why Conflict can be Good for our Spiritual Growth

1. Doctrine becomes entrenched in our soul when it is applied from difficult circumstances. We will never forget it when we have to use it like that.
2. The success of applied doctrine in solving disputes builds an impetus for further study and growth. It is like a snowball rolling downhill. It will motivate us, because we have more and more places to apply it.
3. We acquire grace orientation and humility in recovery, which speeds up our spiritual advance. That success builds impetus and motivation. We will never advance faster than when we must solve a conflict.

This is not hopeless. Paul is telling them how close they are to great spiritual advance. Settle these disputes and you are on your way. This can lead to the great spiritual victories that we can have. Nothing clearer than when you come out of a fog into the clear daylight.

1Cor. 6:5 I say this to make you feel ashamed. Has it come to this, that there is not one person among you who is wise enough to settle disagreements between brothers?

1Cor. 6:6 Instead, one brother goes to court against another brother, and before unbelievers at that!

Why not rather be defrauded? Why not rather be wronged? Is that not superior to gaining a little money over a dispute? In being wronged and defrauded is the greatest spiritual advance.

1Cor. 6:7 The very fact that you have lawsuits among yourselves is already a defeat for you. Why not rather be wronged? Why not rather be cheated?

1Corinthians 6:7

Lesson #241 Thursday

October 13, 2005

v. 7 is the heart of this chapter. This verse tells us how we operate as believers. It is about how we think when we have been epistemologically rehabilitated. It is already a defeat for you that you have lawsuits in motion at this time. Why not rather be wronged? It is better to be unjustly treated and outright cheated. Paul is communicating the length that we must go to stay out of court with other believers. There is never a good reason to bring suit against another believer. This is essentially the message for this verse. The Corinthians are filing suit against one another, including fraud, embezzlement and swindling, all of which seem very good reasons to go to court. However, there is no monetary dispute, no swindling, no unjust treatment, no slander which justifies one believer taking another believer to civil court. The summary principle of this chapter is that there is no reason to justify one believer taking another believer to court. There are no loopholes here. There are lots of loopholes in the law, and they are used to defend a client or to prosecute a defendant. However, there are no loopholes in this passage. There is no equivocation on the mandate of our Lord. There is a criminal justice system. Criminality must be prosecuted and criminals must be punished. There is nothing wrong with criminal prosecution. However, there are no justifications to take a person to civil court. You can take a person to court as a criminal for defrauding you; that is legit; but you cannot take them to civil court and sue for damages.

This is a real study of human viewpoint vs. divine viewpoint. Human viewpoint says that acquiring money is a paramount pursuit in life. It is one of the most important pursuits in life. Economic well-being is seen as what we should aim for in life. There is nothing wrong with money; it is simply a matter of priorities. The financial gods had deserted people in the 20's and many committed suicide for that reason. People will cheat, lie and steal to get ahead financially. The details of life are the tail wagging the dog. The human viewpoint attitude is simple. With human viewpoint: "I have a lawyer on retainer for anyone who tries to get in between me and my money. I don't care how many people get squashed in the process and who gets ruined in the process. I don't even care if my witness for Christ is ruined." Divine viewpoint: I would rather be defrauded than take another believer to court. Ignoring God's grace in all of this is disastrous. "The Lord gives and the Lord takes away; blessed be the name of the Lord." God can give us anything and He can take it away. What people do is immaterial. From divine viewpoint, there is no comparison between acquiring money and mastery of the details of the life.

Human viewpoint says money is security; divine viewpoint says money is no security; doctrine and spiritual advance is the only security. New Orleans, Port Arthur, Tx; Cameron, LA. The wealth is gone with a breath of wind. It can disappear with a terrorist attack or with a pandemic flu. We think that our high tech world has defeated all of these scourges. We think that disaster doesn't happen too often. We think we are immune to that sort of thing. We think that with money and the god of progress, we are secure from cataclysms. If money can solve a problem, then it is not a problem. The person who thinks with human viewpoint thinks exactly that way. Anything that man can devise or that money can solve is not really a solution. Nothing is worth compromising our spiritual life. It is better to be unjustly treated; it is better to be defrauded. If you are defrauded, does this mean that you will not recover? Does this mean that God's grace has been withdrawn? Divine viewpoint contradicts every tenet of human viewpoint thinking. Divine viewpoint is grace orientation; human viewpoint is take it while you can get it in any way that you can get it, and don't let anyone else take it from you.

Adjudication and civil court can replace your losses; it can settle disputes, even between believers. Why is this humiliation? If we can settle our disputes in civil court, why not? It will not replace the edification complex. When we take another to court, we are throwing dirt at another believer in a public forum. Human viewpoint says get justice and remuneration in court; divine viewpoint says, let God handle it. Treat people in grace; this reflect God's grace. We should reflect His grace and His justice.

Paul uses a 3rd declension noun ἡτῆμα = a falling short of spiritual attainment; defeat; it denotes the non-existence of spiritual perspective and divine viewpoint; whipped badly in spiritual warfare by the way that they have chosen to treat one another. One particle, one conjunction, and two adverbs. Μεν οὐν = so then, therefore. A continuation of and a conclusion to what has just been argued. It is connected to the entire section that we have studied.

The Spiritual Defeat of the Corinthians

1. Going to law before unbeliever judges.
2. Incompetent to settle their own disputes (vv. 2–3).
3. They brought in the losers of the church to adjudicate their differences (v. 4).
4. There are no wise men to adjudicate between believers in their church (v. 5).
5. Brother against brother in court; a civil war (v. 6).

The defeats above are what Paul is making a conclusion from.

ἤδη = now. ὅλος = under any circumstance. Under any circumstances, it is already a defeat for the person in court. Now therefore under any circumstance... Κριμα = a decree, a judgment, a condemnation of wrong. When we haul another believer into court, even if we get a 5 million dollar settlement, we have not solved the problem in our soul. No civil court will resolve a problem in the soul.

Prepositional phrase: μετα ἑαυτοῦ = with oneself. Isn't this a 3rd person? Filing a lawsuit against another believer is like filing a lawsuit against yourself.

Marcus Aurelius who lived between 121–180 A.D., a Stoic philosopher, a man filled with human viewpoint. However, this is a great illustration. He was also Caesar reigning during Rome's golden age. He will argue that all men are kinsmen and all wrongdoing is simply the result of ignorance. His definition of sin falls a bit short; sin can be done in ignorance or in cognizance. Those who know better (those who are not ignorant) must be patient (which is the Stoic equivalent of impersonal love and grace orientation) with those who do not know what they are doing in being malicious and who would malign you. I cannot be injured by any of them because no one can fix on me what is base. No one can cause you a problem when you have grace orientation of the soul. He can't be angry with those others or feel hatred against them; this is paralleled in the way that we should not have mental attitude sins against another. Every occasion, a man should say, "This comes from God. We are from the same tribe, the same society and have the same nature. He does not know what befits his nature." The family of God are all kinsmen in this way. "I treat him according to the natural law of fellowship, with kindness and justice." This is even when the kinsman is malicious and unjust. "Consider the fact that rational beings exist for one another."

So then under any circumstances it is already a defeat for you if you have lawsuits against one another.

1Cor. 6:7 The very fact that you have lawsuits among yourselves is already a defeat for you. Why not rather be wronged? Why not rather be cheated?

People have asked about Bob's condition. He has Alzheimer's and he is calm and recognizes those around him (some with this disease are restless). He still prays constantly and lucidly.

Actually, it is already a defeat for you that you have lawsuits with one another; why not rather be wronged? Why no rather be defrauded? A paraphrase: You are spiritually defeated by lawsuits against each other. It is better to be unjustly treated and it is better to be completely defrauded [than to enter into a lawsuit with another believer].

Points on Civil Lawsuits between Believers

1. There is no reason good enough to bring suit against another believer.
2. There is no monetary dispute, no swindle or fraud, no defamation of character, or anything else that is offensive which justifies a believer to settle a dispute with another believer in a civil court.
3. Paul is stating in this verse the length that a believer must go in order to stay out of court with another believer.
4. Paul is stating the abuse that a believer must take in order to stay out of court with another believer.
5. There are no loopholes. The law deals with loopholes; but with regards to this, there are no loopholes. There are no exceptions here to staying out of court in our dealings with other believers.
6. God is a God of Justice; but it is His Own justice which must be served; not the relative justice of two believers in a cat fight. Divine justice always outweighs human disputes. Doctrine must do the adjudicating.

Trusting God's perfect essence and grace is what we do in these circumstances. When we are able to apply doctrine to settle a dispute, we are depending upon God's justice to sort things out. This is faith-rest and here, we can relax, even though we are wronged or defrauded in the process. Man's deceptions, his frauds, his slanders are God's opportunity to show His integrity toward the grace oriented believer. The Lord is good to those who trust in Him. Great is His faithfulness! When an unbeliever must adjudicate between two believers, then that is a defeat for both believers. Civil courts can provide equitable settlement between two believers and civil courts are a part of establishment, as we live by the rule of law. That is the unbelievers recourse for justice in his realm. There are some certain conditions where it is recourse for believers.

When two believers go to court, then the problem solving devices are lost; spiritual resources are not used. Application of doctrine is the way that disputes should be settled by believers. All it takes is one of the believers to have a little doctrine to settle this. This one believer can settle a dispute, even if he is wronged. He can settle the dispute, even when the result is, he is wronged.

In this sort of a disagreement, mental attitude sins are perpetuated. Carnality is not supposed to be perpetuated. We can only grow when filled with the Holy Spirit.

Results of Civil Adjudication

1. Animosity escalates in a bitter court dispute.
2. You can see the bitterness pour out and it continues as the trial moves along. So does dishonesty.
3. Graciousness and impersonal love are lost in such a situation.
4. Our witness for Jesus Christ is invalidated; it is compromised. We do not reflect God's grace in this sort of situation.
5. We make a mockery of the message of the grace of God when we cannot show grace to a fellow believer. That is also true in our relationship to an unbeliever. Even though this passage deals with believers, shouldn't the unbeliever receive grace as well?

This verse is as clear as we can get in the contrast between human and divine viewpoints. From the human viewpoint side, there is never a good reason to be defrauded or wronged. Human viewpoint says that obtaining justice and proper retribution and financial well-being, then stability in life is threatened. There is nothing wrong with unbelievers seeking justice in the courts. This is well, proper and normal. However, there is no excuse for two believers to do this. We have these problem solving devices to deal with these kinds of circumstances. Grace orientation and impersonal love should be applied to our life and to every relationship of life. Human viewpoint says, protect human security and protect justice. We should reflect the grace of God in every circumstance of life. Everyone in town is amused by the Corinthian Times which has the lead story, Christian sues Christian. For the believer, money is not security. Doctrine is the only thing which is permanent. With doctrine, we have permanent security in our soul; so many people feel that they have lost security when they lose their money. Mastery of the details of life and grace orientation have eternal value; and applying them has eternal value. They dwarf temporary security, monetary security, and relative human justice. The believer should depend upon absolute human justice in order to settle these problems. Just when we feel the most secure, along comes a hurricane, a pandemic flu, a lawsuit; and our world is turned upside down. Where is our security? In the getting of justice and remuneration in court or is it from depending upon the justice of God. Divine viewpoint tells us never take another believer to court; do not adjudicate a problem in court with another believer.

It is easy to go along when things are fine; wait until you face some adversity or some injustice...then see how you feel. If your soul is in turmoil, then you have lost your self esteem. Grace orientation brings the most fantastic security in life; it depends not on us, but upon God Himself. The Lord is good to those who trust in Him; He is good to those who depend upon Him.

Μεν ουν = so then. This denotes a continuation of and a conclusion of what came before, which is 6 verses. Paul will draw his conclusion from these verses. ἡττημα = a defeat. ὅλως = under any circumstances. So then under any circumstances, it is already a defeat for you. Μετα ἑαυτων = with oneself. This is who the lawsuit is against—you have a dispute with yourself in your soul.

1Cor. 6:7 The very fact that you have lawsuits among yourselves is already a defeat for you. Why not rather be wronged? Why not rather be cheated?

1Corinthians 6:7

Lesson #243 Sunday 2

October 16, 2005

A lawsuit against another believer is like filing a lawsuit against yourself. We must never forget the bond of union with Christ; the bond of the royal family of God. You may justify it: "I am not going to be wronged; I won't allow myself to be defrauded." If we got what we deserved, we'd be on our way to hell. Jesus Christ did not come to this earth to suffer and to stand up for His rights. He did not get justice; he got complete injustice and He never whined about what He lost. He was completely humiliated in front of the entire world. He lost everything; He lost everything for us. He did not defend Himself; and His family did not file a lawsuit for wrongful death remuneration. That Jesus took our sins on the cross was the greatest act of suffering injustice. He was found guilty, although completely innocent. He was mocked; hated. For much less, we take other believers to court. Who are we to demand this kind of human justice when our life is based upon the grace of God? It would be ridiculous to file a wrongful death suit in behalf of Jesus; how could we possibly demand more than we have already received by His death on the cross?

We have the responsibility to be grace oriented and we have the resources to be grace oriented. This is why this passage exists at all. The preeminence of grace is clearly developed here. Grace orientation is infinitely more important than gaining some kind of temporal justice along with a handful of money. Graciousness is lost when you are searching to undercut the integrity of another believer in order to satisfy your old sin nature.

Think about how God's grace deals with us. We have no standing ourselves. We were obnoxious and noxious in His eyes; He still showed us His grace. He showed it to us and always will.

Conclusions from v. 7

1. We don't need to right the wrongs done to us by another believer.
2. We do not need to stand on our legal rights and take another believer to court. We do have legal rights in this country (as they did in Corinth). We do not stand on our legal rights and take another believer to court.
3. We must not invoke our legal rights against other believers.
4. Christ did not stand upon His legal rights at the cross. He was wronged for the sake of His mission; He was wronged for us.
5. This should reveal the gravity of this situation: rather be wronged than take another believer to court.

It is too high a price to pay when impersonal love is not in action. Cases with other believers can be solved in short order without civil court participation. It is so easy to clear things up. Ultimately, God's grace still provides us with everything that we need. Our soul is at peace with the use of problem solving devices. We may not be immediately satisfied in desire to receive some sort of justice or some sort of recompense. With faith, we don't always know what the outcome is. We must learn to trust in the Lord for the things which are going to happen. However, no matter what, they will happen in our best interest. We do not know how it will work out for our best interests, but it always will. We will have peace in our soul because we have entrusted our problems to the Lord.

Of course, there are some believers who will use this to their own advantage. They know that a mature believer will not take them to court; and they will get their attorney to threaten them, to get them to back down. They are punching them when they know they will not punch back. It is cowardice and fraud through the misuse of Bible doctrine. Even in these circumstances, we should not be goaded into filing a lawsuit. Such actions will result in strong divine discipline. We must be patient. We don't know how it will work. All we have to do is not react. Even some unbelievers will be aware of this. They may think they can win by intimidation. God will always protect the believer who is following His mandates and doing His will. You cannot use this as a negotiating device, threatening a lawsuit. Be careful; do not take advantage of a believer who will not sue to obtain human justice.

What about the person who claims to be a Christian in order to keep a lawsuit from being filed against him. He hides behind Christianity and is, at best, a reversionist. This same principle applies, even if he is an unbeliever. Do not ever denigrate your witness for Jesus Christ. This is just another place where we are wronged. It is still better to be wronged. This is what the witness is all about; a mature believer's thinking stands out like a light in a storm. The unbeliever or reversionistic believer looking to mess with us will possibly recognize your grace. In any case, be defrauded; it is worth it, even though human viewpoint says it is never worth it.

There are Times when a Lawsuit is Legitimate

1. A corporate disagreement; two corporations which are not religious in any way. Not a church or whatever. If you represent that organization, then you have a duty to those who are in the realm of this organization. This is never a license to go after a church or any other Christian organization. That is the caveat. You cannot go after a church under the guise of protecting others in your organization. You do not have license to go after someone that you have wanted to go after for a long time. You might desire to take down some person. Our personal attitude is everything. We must remain objective from doctrine. A lawsuit should never be used to cover your ass for your stupid decisions. You do not enter into a lawsuit in order to hide what you have done or to hide your mistakes. You undermine your own integrity. If you file to take money that you are not justly entitled to. There are times you must protect those under your charge; but that does not give you carte blanc. Suing is not an option when dealing with churches or any other Christian organization. There must be dependence upon the Lord.
2. You are not required to leave your family defenseless. Even if you are being sued by another believer for everything that you have. You can go on the defense in such a situation. A person must provide for those of his own household. This supercedes this lawsuit. Being personally wronged is one thing; our personal responsibility to our own family is something else entirely. You cannot allow your family to be without provision. Some believers give to Christian organizations to the detriment of their family. When we do that, we are worse than an unbeliever. This is being on the defense only. There is no opening here to go on the offensive.

3. Never forget prayer. Prayer solves many problems that you cannot solve in any other way.
4. What about the attorney whose job it is to represent other believers in a lawsuit? The same principles apply. You still follow these principles. You show impersonal love and graciousness to friend and foe alike. You must be beyond reproach in all ways. If the case has aspects that violates Biblical principle, then you don't have to take the case. No matter how much you stand to gain in some settlement, divine mandates supercede your desire to succeed.

1Cor. 6:7 So then under any circumstances, it is already a defeat for you by the very fact that you have lawsuits among yourselves. Why not rather be wronged? Why not rather be cheated?

1Corinthians 6:7b–8

Lesson #244 Wednesday

October 19, 2005

A few minutes late. This passage does not preclude us from filing criminal charges against another believer; nor does it preclude us from acting as a witness in a trial from being a witness for the prosecution. The difference is between civil and criminal matters. You do not shame the name of Jesus Christ by witnessing against a criminal. All of the shame falls upon a criminal. However, when lawsuits are filed, shame falls upon those who file the lawsuits. One Christian on a jury did not give the maximum penalty against a believer because he was a believer. It is okay to give out the hardest sentence. Turning the other cheek does not mean that you allow criminality to run amuck. Your witness is improved by supporting divine establishment. It is mixed up if you act as though we should try to understand the criminal and to let them off the hook for their behavior.

It is important to understand the scope of our responsibility. The present middle indicative of ἀδικεω = to injure, to harm, to damage, to deprive. The middle voice means that you endure this damage, harm, injure. You are enduring this put upon you by someone else. Why not endure wrong (injury, harm) against you? Human viewpoint says that enduring injustice is just wrong; however, from divine viewpoint, it has great importance. It means we can apply our problem solving devices; it is a wonderful look at the epistemologically rehabilitated believer. Otherwise, your mind is on retaliation and revenge. It is for your own happiness and your own peace of soul. It is very relaxing to know that we do not have to deal with every injustice committed against us. It gives us a lot of peace of mind. Injury, injustice or financial loss may be endured.

Some person did not care about this passage and vocally said he did not like it very much. The doctrine of Scripture is incongruous to the way the rest of the world and the way the world thinks.

When you are subjected to this kind of a wrong, you may at first think that you have made a grievous mistake by enduring this injustice. The Word of God does this in our best interest. Divine viewpoint always makes it a spiritual issue and never a legal issue. It is better to forgive according to the standards of Col. 3:14 and win in court and, at the same time, suffer spiritual loss. God never lets us down, even when we must endure injustice. Col. 3:13: ...bearing with one another and, if one has a complaint against another, forgiving each other; as the Lord has forgiven you, so you also must forgive. God endured the greatest injustice of all human history in order to forgive us.

The second verb is the present middle indicative of ἀποστερέω = to steal, to cheat, to defraud, to be robbed of something which is rightfully yours. In the middle voice, this means that we endure being stolen from, we endure being cheated, to endure being defrauded, to endure robbery. The indicative mood indicates that being cheated is a fact; it is a reality. We have been cheated out of money or out of property or our good name and reputation has been sullied. Don't react to and do not seek compensation or retribution through a lawsuit and do not take matters into your own hands either. Don't seek revenge yourselves, beloved, but give place to God's wrath. For it is written, "Vengeance belongs to me; I will repay, says the Lord." (Rom. 12:19). We are to depend upon God's power and God's ability to gain justice on our behalf. That is the justice of God. Depend upon His justice and righteousness. Leave room for the Lord to take care of this. Vengeance is His. We cannot even remotely approach God's ability to take vengeance on our behalf. He will handle it. When it is criminal activity, we can file charges; that does not violate this. However, we do not take matters into our own hands. Forgive and forget in civil matters, rather than to seek our own in court. That means we will face God as well.

1Cor. 6:7b Why not rather be wronged? Why not rather be cheated?

Perspective

1. The presence among Corinthian believers indicates that they are malicious and that they have been defeated spiritually.
2. They should be willing to suffer injustice or fraud, rather than get involved in civil litigation.
3. To choose to go to court is to unjustly treat, defraud and cheat other believers.

We find ἀδικέω here in the active voice. This gives a whole new spin on this situation. This refers to believers who initiate legal action against others, which is harmful to others. In the middle voice, we are wronged; in the active voice, we commit the wrong.

What Does v. 8 Mean?

1. It is harmful to file a lawsuit against someone else.
2. Paul wants them to think not about the harm inflicted upon them by the injustice.
3. Paul wants them to think about the harm that they are inflicting on others by suing. Don't look at the injury; look at the reaction. Our control here is what we think about it and what we do about it.

4. The real harm is to our soul if we react with a lawsuit and ignore divine viewpoint. It is not the injustice and fraud perpetrated against us, but our personal reaction to it, which includes ignoring divine viewpoint. The equal and opposite reaction to the lawsuit is the issue.
5. Each person must examine his own thinking and realize that the initiation of lawsuits against each other is spiritual defeat. We have already lost. What does it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul? What does it profit you to gain a great sum of money in a lawsuit and to be spiritually defeated in the process. Mental attitude sins are what are fostered in our soul. We do this to gain a little money? How much money is enough if we are defeated? What does it matter. Why not rather be wronged?
6. With doctrinal application, we handle personal injury. We have benefitted by the injury. In God's plan, we can benefit by injury.
7. With grace orientation, we do not retaliate or seek revenge for personal injury. This is how we know that we are grace oriented.
8. When we are able to follow divine viewpoint by forgetting injustice and injury, then we have advanced spiritually. We have also won a tactical victory in the angelic conflict. We have maintained a witness for the Lord Jesus Christ. Everything that we are is wrapped up in enduring injury and being wronged. This is what our spiritual life can do for us.

1Cor. 6:8 Instead, you yourselves practice doing wrong and cheating others, and brothers at that!

1Corinthians 6:7–8

Lesson #245 Thursday

October 20, 2005

Some believers have filed suits in civil court to right the wrong done against them and to get a money judgment. Paul calls this a spiritual defeat. Going to court between believers is always wrong. The defeat is not using spiritual resources, which are disregarded and ignored. Going to court is the human viewpoint solution. The proper response for the mature believer is to endure injustice or fraud or whatever. This is Paul's application. Believers have disregarded Paul's application. They are disregarding his application not to react to these wrongs. Those who file the lawsuits are the real culprits of injustice. Instead of enduring the wrong, they retaliate. That is the injustice and fraud. The injustice and fraud is by you, believer who has filed the lawsuit. Paul wants them to think about the harm which is inflicted on others by suing. The harm is falling prey to human viewpoint solutions. It is ignoring the doctrine of lawsuits which Paul is giving them in this chapter.

Filing a lawsuit does damage to the application of divine viewpoint in your soul. It fosters the carnality of mental attitude sins; you become bitter and hateful. It is not the injustice and the defrauding, but the issue is between being filled with the Holy Spirit or being carnal. It is a spiritual issue. It is a spiritual solution which Paul is calling for. Without the spiritual solution, there is no solution. Divine viewpoint says, instead of being involved in human legal activity, be willing to endure the wrong or the fraud.

1Cor. 6:7 The very fact that you have lawsuits among yourselves is already a defeat for you. Why not rather be wronged? Why not rather be cheated?

We know what's wrong, and Paul nails this down in v. 8. Each believer must examine his or her thinking. Initiating a lawsuit among themselves is absolute spiritual defeat. It is understood that enduring personal injury is personal benefit. In the spiritual life, suffering injury is beneficial. You do not retaliate or seek personal revenge.

Αλλα υμεις = whereas you yourself on the contrary. It does not just mean you, but you yourself. It is emphatic. They turn to human viewpoint answers when they are unjustly treated. They go to court in emotional revolt and retaliation motivation; this is why one believer takes another to court. The problem is mental attitude sins. Paul has already blasted those who are cheating and injuring other believers; and now he blasts those who use lawsuits in order to get those who have cheated or injured them. People think the only way to handle personal injury is by going to court. Paul says, that is wrong. A believer is never a victim when it comes to injustice or fraud. Human viewpoint tells us anyone who is wronged or cheated is a victim. In our society, we think that everyone is a victim. Victim status is an excuse and a justification for all manner of failure, retaliation and vindication. Was our Lord Jesus Christ a victim on the cross? Of course not. Neither are we. We are always winners when we utilize problem solving devices. This means you are using your spiritual life. Injustice and fraud against us by believers and unbelievers are blessings. Can you imagine being defrauded and it is a blessing? We get the opportunity to apply doctrine and grace orientation and to apply all the other problem solving devices. This means we are advancing spiritually. We deal with human problems using spiritual resources. We use spiritual solutions to deal with human problems; and that is spiritual strength. That is doctrine in your soul.

So the Corinthians and us ought to be ready to endure injustice and injury and cheating and stealing. Do unto others before they do it to you; or do unto others as they do to you; that is the attitude of the one initiating the lawsuit against a fellow believer.

This is a great contrast of human and divine viewpoint.

Contrast of Human and Divine Viewpoint

1. Human viewpoint thinks that taking a loss, being defrauded, or injury.
2. Divine viewpoint says that defeat is when we fail to endure a loss. If we cannot turn it over to God, we are defeated.
3. In human viewpoint, recovering from the loss comes from winning the suit against another believer.
4. In divine viewpoint, winning comes from not initiating a lawsuit in the first place.
5. The victory for the believer must always be spiritual and not legal.
6. The principle is this: never react to the believer who wrongs you by returning the favor. One sin against us does not justify a sin against the one who wronged us. Two wrongs do not make a right.

7. Do not reciprocate injustice with more injustice. Don't let sin against you provoke us into committing a sin in return.

In sports, the flag is always thrown on the guy who retaliated, not on the person who initiates it. Break the chain reaction before it starts.

How do You Break the Chain Reaction

1. You first isolate the sins. You are isolating the sins of the one who sins against you.
2. What that means is, you preempt mental attitude sins before they get started.
3. When you react with an emotional upheaval, it is too late.
4. If we do this, then we have lost our composure and we have lost the high ground. Going to court stops our spiritual life in its tracks.
5. Before something starts, we must have already the doctrine in our soul to put the matter in the Lord's hands. It must be put in the supreme court of heaven and we move on.
6. Don't light a long fuse until it finally detonates into some legal action. Doctrine won't let us light that fuse. Do not let anyone talk you into a course of mental attitude sins; "You were wronged? You need to deal with this. Let me give you the name of a good lawyer!" You get greedy as well when you see the lawyer advertising on tv.

There is just compensation for medical expenses from an insurance company. Auto accident. That is what insurance is for. Compensation should occur only for us to keep our family from financial destitution. You do have an obligation not to let your family starve. When it is one on one with a believer, you take the injustice and move on.

Bitterness is just another word for unhappiness. Lawsuits are not the way to share the happiness of God. You gain nothing of spiritual value by initiating legal proceedings in a civil court, especially when your motivation is greed or retribution. You perpetuate happiness in the soul by avoiding legal action. Human viewpoint says peace of mind comes by getting justice in the court. You do not gain peace and happiness by mental attitude sins which are inherent in retaliatory civil suits.

Our developing edification complex remains in tact when we are in fellowship. However, we lose out when out of fellowship and in a court battle.

How you Maintain your Edification Complex

1. We retain the filling of the Holy Spirit by rejecting the temptation to indulge in mental attitude sins.
2. While filled with the Holy Spirit, we continue to utilize the grace apparatus for perception.

- 1) Without the grace apparatus for perception, your bitterness and revenge attitude will evolve into a full-blown reversionism and .
  - 2) Post salvation epistemological rehabilitation. Spiritual advance is a renovation of our thinking, which can handle injustice and fraud.
  - 3) Epistemological rehabilitation, your focus is no longer of human viewpoint. It transitions to divine viewpoint.
  - 4) In this process of epistemological rehabilitation, you move from basic to advanced doctrinal application.
  - 5) Without divine viewpoint, you focus on human solutions. With divine viewpoint, you focus on divine viewpoint solutions. Your thinking converts from human viewpoint to divine viewpoint.
  - 6) Then the result is that injustice and fraud fade. They fade in comparison to living in the plan of God.
3. With epistemological rehabilitation, we develop grace orientation which generates genuine humility. When the edification complex operates, we will have the humility to not react and not to get into reciprocal reversionism.
  4. We will also master the details of life. When you go to court to get retribution and to get compensation, then that means we have a problem with the details of life.
    - 1) If money, material things, success, and status symbols are our priority, then when we chase the items through lawsuits, that is antithetical to the spiritual life. It constitutes an erroneous sale of values on our part.
    - 2) If our scale of values is built on doctrinal orientation, then the spiritual life, that is, living in the light of eternity, takes priority over injustice.
    - 3) When our spiritual life takes priority over injustice, then we are more concerned with glorifying the Lord than we are with material things. Then injustice does not keep us awake at night.
  5. We have a relaxed mental attitude about life when injustice and fraud do not impose themselves on our priorities. There is always the application to the unbeliever. Our attitude is always a part of any conflict. If our attitude does not reflect divine viewpoint, then we lose that unbeliever.
  6. Likewise, we develop capacity for love. We develop impersonal love toward people.
    - 1) Capacity for love is our overall ability to express love...personal or impersonal love, toward another person based upon the virtue in our soul based upon spiritual advance. You do not express love through sex. You express love through your soul. This comes from the virtue in your soul.
    - 2) That is a love which is constant and stable in all circumstances.
    - 3) That is the motivation which allows us to overlook injustice and fraud. It all applies. We may not take your spouse to court; but then again, you may.
    - 4) Capacity for live is motivation to keep your eyes on the prize, which is Philip. 3:14, which is living our life in the light of eternity. Priorities are not solving injustices against ourself.

7. When the edification complex is operating, in spite of injustice, we will share the happiness of God in the penthouse because of our ability to apply doctrine to all circumstances.
- 1) No harm or fraud can break into our focus on doctrine.
  - 2) Our thinking then remains divine viewpoint in the face of serious human viewpoint tendencies.

1Cor. 6:8 Instead, you yourselves practice doing wrong and cheating others, and brothers at that!

1Corinthians 6:8–11

Lesson #246 Sunday 1

October 23, 2005

The Corinthians had filed lawsuits against one another; the very fact that they filed these lawsuits mean that they are the ones who have wronged and defiled themselves.

1Cor. 6:8 Instead, you yourselves practice doing wrong and cheating others, and brothers at that!

The verses which follow have been so misinterpreted that it is hard to imagine. Bobby will first deal with the several misinterpretations of vv. 9–11. Some will not inherit the kingdom of God is something that we need to understand. Some teachers teach that these sorts of people are nominal Christians—they say that they are believers but they really are not. Perhaps you have done this or that activity listed on one or more occasions. Another interpretation is, these sins are so heinous that, if you commit them, you lose your salvation. Such interpretations are made completely apart from the context within which they are found. These interpretations are used to bully other believers. You will not inherit the kingdom of God if you act like this. That is bullying. Paul is making a final point about lawsuits. When you take a text out of its context, then you are proof-texting.

These verses are not about anyone being excluded from eternal life and from the kingdom of God. But what you just read is just the opposite of this? There is no sin that overrides God's grace. On the one hand, we have this list of sins that it appears if you commit any of these sins, then you lose your salvation.

Οὐκ οἶδατε = do you not know? There is a real intensity to this question. It means, how can you be so ignorant? It is an emphatic statement. In all of this lawsuit information, we are dealing with ignorance of doctrine. That is why these problems in Corinth are occurring. People are filing lawsuits out of ignorance. Paul will take this one step further in order to make this point. That is why Paul uses this illustration, to get their attention. If you are all or any of these things, you will not into the kingdom of God.

This is a passage where it appears as though Scripture is contradictory. On the one hand, you believe in Christ for salvation and on the other, you must not do these sins.

1Cor. 5:11—some Corinthians are committing these sins. Οὐκ οἶδατε points us back to what has come before. There is lack of understanding, ignorance, lack of knowledge of doctrine. There are repercussions to post-salvation sins. Paul is talking here about ignorance about the repercussions of post-salvation sins. The fact that Corinthians are committing such sins is related to their filing of lawsuits—it is related to being ignorant. However, they are believers as well. They are washed, sanctified and justified. There is a great disconnect. One is what they are and the other is what they do. They prefer carnality over spiritual advance. Sin of any type is a disaster when it is all that you know. When you fail to utilize the spiritual assets that God has given you, then you are a spiritual disaster.

Now is Paul saying, you must stop all of this sinning in order to be saved? No.

Αδίκος = unrighteous. So, who are these unrighteous people? The controversy is, are these believers who lost their salvation? Or, do they claim to be Christians, but they really aren't? We need to know what our problem is. The meaning of ἀδίκος is a person who does that which is not right. This means, this can be applied to believers or unbelievers; as anyone can do an unrighteous thing. Here, this must refer to a believer or to an unbeliever and we need to know what.

The context includes unrighteous, before whom the Corinthians were bringing their lawsuits. These are unbelievers. The Corinthians are bringing their lawsuits before these unbelievers, these unrighteous types. They are called this right at the beginning of the chapter. Αδίκος in v. 1 probably is the same as v. 9. It could be written off that, these are unbelievers; and, of course, they do not inherit the kingdom of God. However, the interpretation is more complex than that. V. 1 is not the immediate context of v. 9; but this is truly talking about someone in a different category, and we must take the closer context into account, which would be v. 8. V. 8 ends with a noun: αδελφος = brother. In Scripture, this always refers to a believer. When we have this noun so near, then we have the problem, are we now dealing with believers who lose their salvation by committing these sins? Christians are the ones committing these heinous sins against God and nature. Can believers commit these sins and be Christians? Of course they can! No question about it! Reversionists are believers in deep carnality. Reversionists are capable of any kind of sin. The longer we are in carnality, the deeper we fall into reversionism. This is a believer who is ascending the spiral of degeneracy. A reversionist can commit any sin. In 1Cor. 5:1, a believer committing incest is found. V. 2 arrogant believers. In v. 11: idolatrous, swindler, drunkard, etc. all apply to believers. These mention in 1Cor. 5 are without question believers. It just takes temptation, carnality and a descent into carnality. These Corinthians are real Christians and they are not simply professing Christians.

This is the culture of the Corinthians. They come from this kind of culture. Many retained their former pattern of life. Up to this point, they have not been epistemologically rehabilitated. Does this mean that these believers cannot inherit the kingdom of God? Now we have painted ourselves into a corner here.

So, some interpreters say these Corinthians are called brothers, but they are really professing brothers. They deceive themselves to think that they are believers, but their behavior keeps them from being so. However, this contradicts what we find in Scripture. There is the doctrine of Eternal Security. This tells us that we are eternally secure.

Doctrine of Eternal Security

If we have had just one mustard grain of faith, then we are eternally secure.

1. Once a person executes faith alone in Christ alone, that takes. Picture a wheat field. Let's say we have a hundred acres of wheat; it only takes one grain of faith, which causes us to fall under the doctrine of Eternal Security. 39 irrevocable assets are imputed to us at salvation (found in the Plan of God), which includes the one revocable asset. If we sin, then we lose the filling of the Holy Spirit. The 39 others, once given, cannot be lost. One of these assets is eternal life; and God is immutable; God never changes. Neither height, nor depth, nor creatures...can separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus.
  - a. God cannot cancel what He gives every believers at the moment of salvation. He cannot tear up the paperwork.
  - b. If we are not eternally secure, then God is not immutable. If He gives us something and then yanks it away, then He is not immutable and His word is flawed.
  - c. This makes God less than what He claims to be in Scripture. This could make Scripture not divine. At the least, this would be disconcerting.
  - d. If God is not immutable, then our faith has no more validity than if it were directed toward some flawed human being. If we have faith in the human being, then our faith will be let down. Anyone can do anything to be let down. Is it any different than if God is changeable? We could have what we think is salvation, and we could lose it, if God is changeable. Are we really saved?
  - e. The confidence of our faith must rest in a flawless object. We cannot have confidence unless our faith is in a flawless object. The impeccability is the precept of God's essence. This is the very essence of God is His flawlessness. This is why our mustard grain of faith is functioning.
2. One irrevocable asset is regeneration; being born again; rebirth; the second birth. Going from spiritual death to spiritual life. Once given, eternal life cannot be revoked. What God gives, He cannot take back. God cannot deny Himself or His Word or His character. He can't be immutable most of the time and say, "This person is just too rotten; he just is not getting into the kingdom of God." God is immutable all the time.
  - a. Regeneration means that the Holy Spirit takes us from death to life. We are born spiritually dead. Regeneration means that we are spiritually reborn unto the eternal, spiritual life.
  - b. The mechanics are: the Holy Spirit creates in us a human spirit the moment we express faith in Him. We are all born with a soul and a body; we are dichotomus at birth. However, as unbelievers, we lack a human spirit; we are spiritually dead. We do not have a human spirit. However, at salvation, God the Holy Spirit creates within us a human spirit. The unbeliever can understand some doctrines, but these have no meaning for such a person.
  - c. Once given, God cannot cancel the eternal life which He has imputed to the human spirit, even if He wants to, even if our performance as sons of God is disappointing. Will God cast us out? Will we no longer have God as a Father? God cannot revoke our status as a son.

- d. What God gives, He can never take back. Lots of denominations challenge our salvation. When He gives salvation, it is ours.
- e. God cannot deny Himself. He cannot deny His Word; He cannot deny His character in dealing with us. It is impossible. This is why we can put our trust into Jesus Christ and we remain a son of God. Once a member of a family, we are always a member of a family. Bob probably would have wanted to, once and awhile, disclaimed Bobby; and vice versa. Bobby could renounce his family ties, go to the other side of the world; and he would still be a member of that family. He cannot reverse this, no matter what he does. There is nothing we can do to release ourselves from this family bond. It is an unbreakable knot.

1Cor. 6:9 You know that wicked people will not inherit the kingdom of God, don't you? Stop deceiving yourselves! Sexually immoral people, idolaters, adulterers, male prostitutes, homosexuals, 1Cor. 6:10 thieves, greedy people, drunks, slanderers, and robbers will not inherit the kingdom of God.

1Cor. 6:11 That is what some of you were! But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

1Corinthians 6:9–11

Lesson #247 Sunday 2

October 23, 2005

We have security because we are washed, sanctified and justified. There is a problem in our passage—it sounds like there is some reason or some circumstance which can take me out of the guarantee of the kingdom of God after our departure from this life. There seems to be a problem if we are involved in certain sins, we can lose this salvation or that maybe we weren't saved to begin with. Could this passage only be applied to the unbeliever (context of v. 1)? However, the nearer context is brother, which is v. 8. This is not good for the home team. We are unrighteous; we stay out of fellowship sometimes for days at a time. Or, some say, sooner or later, you will come back from carnality; and that tells God that you are really a believer. You can lay on your deathbed and have doubts. If you believe in Jesus Christ, you will inherit the kingdom of God; however, this passage says, you will not inherit the kingdom of God, if... This seems to be the first contradiction in Scripture that we might lose our salvation.

Some notes are back with the previous points.

3. Our relationship with God, that eternal relationship, never depends upon our integrity, our morality, our virtue, our success or failure in the spiritual life. Lots of believers would stand up and chunk tomatoes at Bobby for this.
- a. If our relationship with God has anything to do with our integrity, then God's grace is a questionable commodity. God's grace says, He did it all.
  - b. Our eternal relationship depends upon His integrity. The grace inherent to His plan and His divine impersonal love to all sinners. God loved the entire world, believers and unbelievers alike. That is impersonal love; He gave his uniquely born Son, so that all sinners could receive eternal life.
  - c. The very integrity of God is at stake in the concept of eternal security. Does God have integrity or not?
  - d. It is an unbreakable integrity, because God's justice cannot deny His righteousness. His righteousness is imputed to us at the moment of salvation. The moment that we believe in Christ, we have His righteousness. He cannot deny His own righteousness and that is in us at salvation.
  - e. God will not revoke His justification, regardless of what we do. We are justified by His righteousness and not ours. Illustration: God never revoked His covenants to Israel. They are still in effect and will remain so even into the future. These covenants cannot and will not be revoked. The covenants to Israel are forever.
    - i. Other interpretations: the church is spiritual Israel and we get all the promises to Israel.
    - ii. God promised to a race of people, to the Jews, and He still holds that promise in His hand. Israel has failed, as soon as they left Egypt and wandered in the desert. They failed again and again. They wandered in the desert and died the sin unto death. That entire generation. They failed in their spiritual death. Later, they went out under the 5th cycle of discipline and spent 70 years in Babylon. God honored His covenant again and again; and they continued to fail. Just like us. God gives us great blessings and we fail.
    - iii. Believing Israel will still attain the kingdom of God. For what does the Scripture say? Abraham believed God, and it was credited to his account as righteousness. This covenant can never be revoked, because we have received the righteousness of God. He became righteousness on our behalf.
    - iv. Abe's salvation had nothing to do with his merit.
  - f. We stand on God's integrity; never upon our own merit. When God looks at us, He sees Christ's integrity. Don't get fatheaded because you think you are a nice person. This does not provide us our security.
  - g. We don't have the power or the ability as a human being to negate God's integrity. God's integrity is as immutable as any other aspect of His character. It cannot just go away and it cannot be taken away.

- h. We do not have the ability to cancel our salvation, no matter how evil or how reversionistic we become after salvation. We do not have the ability to cancel our salvation, no matter what we do.
  - i. This does not mean that we will not pay a price for carnality and reversionism. Heb. 12:6: God has personal love for us, as we are believers; but Whom God loves, he scourges. Furthermore, we can lose rewards in heaven. This is a price that we can pay.
4. We are firmly in the hand of God and He cannot release us.
- a. His hand is an anthropomorphism, found in both Old and New Testaments. An anthropomorphism is a figure of speech; it assigns a to God human, physical characteristics which He does not possess. God is a Spirit; He does not have hands. This helps us to understand His function; He is eternal and an anthropomorphism helps us to understand what he is like.
  - b. Psalm 37:24: Though he stumble, he shall not fall, for Yahweh holds him up with His hand. Once God wraps His hand around us, it never comes loose. He cannot let go. This is a picture of eternal security. We cannot fall, as we are held in His hands.
  - c. In the New Testament, it is John 10:28: "I give eternal life to them and they will never perish and no one will snatch them out of My hand." Bob always used the pencil story as an illustration. Bobby repeats it. Pre WW2 army story. A captain in the army before the second World War. He is a company commander and he had a commander which threatened his career. He knew his business and this colonel liked him. This captain was scared to death and he thought he's be fired when called into the colonel's office. He sits the captain down, and the captain expects to be chewed out. The colonel told him about Jesus Christ. "I want you to know where the solution lies. Let me tell you what He has done for you." And you know, there is no problem which will separate you from the love of God. The captain says, "I'll never hold out." The colonel took a pencil in his hand and drops it. Then he holds the pencil and does not drop it. And then he quotes John 10:28. It does not matter. You cannot be taken out of the hand of God.
5. One final eternal security guarantee: we are sealed by God the Holy Spirit.
- a. Sealing in the ancient world was a sign of possession. When our stamp is put on something, that means we own it.
  - b. A seal attached to something signifies ownership.
  - c. Anything to which God attaches His seal belongs to God forever.
  - d. Eph. 4:30: Stop grieving the Holy Spirit, by Whom you have been sealed to the day of redemption.
  - e. We are permanently and eternally owned by God.

There is the first contradiction to this passage, which is sometimes interpreted to mean that we can do something to lose our salvation.

The future active indicative of κληρονομεω = to inherit. This is a person who receives an inheritance based upon a family relationship or upon another close relationship. We receive an inheritance. Some kind of relationship must exist prior to getting the inheritance. We have to be a member of the family or have a close relationship before getting this inheritance. Prior to this word, we have the negative particle ou. The unrighteous will not inherit [at some future time]. This would be after death, way in the future. The believer who does not inherit still has a family relationship. We are eternally secure and we are family members. We are the member of a family by expressing faith alone in Christ alone. Once a family member, always a family member. Family members can be disinherited. Bob went into the ministry, and Bobby's grandfather thought such a choice was the lowest of the low, and he went punitive and would not pass along his inheritance. Bob was disinherited, which meant the loss of a considerable sum of money. His grandfather eventually became a believer, but he never changed his will. That one incident provides a sharp, clear picture of the faithfulness of God. God provides everything to accomplish His calling, even though Bob had some very lean years. God always uses adversity to illustrate His grace. Bobby hasn't inherited either, although he might get a little bit. We will not inherit the kingdom of God if... However, we will reside there. Κληρονομεω has nothing to do with salvation; however, it has something to do with our inheritance. This does not preclude us from residence in the kingdom of God. Sometimes, if a parent likes you a little more, he might give you a little more money via inheritance. We inherit different portions. There is still a grace issue. God has provided us a means for producing divine good. At the bema seat of Christ, we will be rewarded. That is the Judgment Seat of Christ.

1Cor. 6:9 You know that wicked people will not inherit the kingdom of God, don't you? Stop deceiving yourselves! Sexually immoral people, idolaters, adulterers, male prostitutes, homosexuals, 1Cor. 6:10 thieves, greedy people, drunks, slanderers, and robbers will not inherit the kingdom of God.

1Cor. 6:11 That is what some of you were! But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

1Corinthians 6:9

Lesson #248 Wednesday

October 26, 2005

Those Paul is talking about here are reversionistic believers. These reversionistic believers do not inherit the kingdom of God. You may be concerned, how much carnality is too much? If you are so carnal that you do not grow spiritually, then that is too much. Particularly if you retrogress. If you are neglecting doctrine, then you are a person in the realm of not inheriting the kingdom of God.

1Cor. 6:8 Instead, you yourselves practice doing wrong and cheating others, and brothers at that!

V. 8 refers to believers. This is the closest verse to v. 9. So, the people in v. 8 are going to be the people dealt with in v. 9. Αδίκος = unrighteous. This is a category of αδελφος (brothers). These are true believers in Jesus Christ who are involved in some very serious sinning, which we call reversionism. A believer in Jesus Christ is a person who expresses a tiny mustard seed of faith in Jesus Christ. However, from that moment on, you might pursue degeneracy of all sorts. However, you simply cannot be excluded from eternal life or from the kingdom of God. If you are a believer in Jesus Christ, you cannot be excluded from eternal salvation. We have a guarantee that we will not be excluded from the kingdom, which is the doctrine of eternal security. Even if we become the most heinous believers on the planet, God still cannot revoke your salvation. God cannot stoop to some situational immutability. To let such a person fall through the cracks would violate God's immutable and perfect character. Once God gives us eternal life, we are saved throughout eternity. We are not going to go back to our status as an unbeliever. Once born, you stay born. Once born into the spiritual life, that continues. Your status remains reborn, regardless of what you do. Your activity might be sinful and evil, but your status is in the hand of Jesus. Salvation never depends upon our own relative righteousness. As human beings, we are often unjust to ourselves and to those around us; but we cannot negate God's integrity. We cannot gain God's approbation through our flawed integrity, and we cannot lose His approbation through our own failures.

Abraham was a believer who had the imputed righteousness of God. Because His righteousness is immutable, it cannot be revoked. This does not mean that becoming a reversionist is a good idea; God scourges alive every son that He receives; that is discipline, not loss of salvation. God's discipline is never unfair. God cannot deny; He can never deny His own righteousness, which is in us. We are completely and totally in God's hands for eternity.

One can be eternally saved but not advance spiritually. There is no sin that anyone can commit which will override the grace of God. No group of sins will override God's grace; not even sins committed over a lifetime.

Again, the unrighteous of v. 9 are believers, not unbelievers. They are reversionist believers. A large group of believers in the Corinthian church have committed all of the sins in the next few verses.

The context of this verse are believers who are going to court against one another. They think the way that they do with regards to the lawsuits; they are confused in every area. They are confused about sexuality and criminality and all because they are ignorant. However, they are believers, they are washed and they are sanctified and they are justified. If God has saved them, then they need to demonstrate that salvation through a spiritual life.

There is something else in view other than forfeiture of the kingdom of God. Future active indicative of κληρονομεω = to inherit, to be an heir. This one verb is the key and how it fits into the context of the passage. A person receives an inheritance based upon a close family relationship. Something is inherited from someone else. In order to inherit, there must be a close relationship and that relationship must already exist. Furthermore, the person that you have the close relationship with must die. There are many families where you do not inherit anything; even in rich families. Here, we have the negative ou. The unrighteous family members will not inherit something in some future time.

The status of being related cannot be changed. When you are born into a family, you are always in that family. You are family whether or not you receive an inheritance. If you are in the family of a millionaire, then you might be in line for a large inheritance. If you are In line for an inheritance, then you might inherit. If you are a believer, then you are a son of God. As a believer, we have a family relationship with God and the Lord Jesus Christ. We are royal family because we are in Christ and we have eternal life. Now, the black sheep is sometimes disinherited; sometimes inheritance is used as a stick to get those in line who are out of line. A favored son or daughter might get a greater or lesser inheritance. The bottom line is, inheritance is a separate issue from a family relationship.

The Meaning of Inheritance in this Passage

1. The unrighteous believer already has an eternally secure family relationship before it comes time to receive an inheritance in eternity. The relationship exists before the time comes to inherit.
2. There is a difference between inheriting the kingdom and entering the kingdom as a member of the royal family.
3. We might even reside on a great estate; maybe in a boarding house; but we are a resident, but we won't inherit it, if we are not family.
4. There is no reason to assume that inheriting the kingdom of God is the same as entering the kingdom of God. It is inheritance in view here; not residence.
5. The heirs of the kingdom, the inheritors of the kingdom are its owners and rulers; not just its residents. We can be a resident or we can be an heir.
6. In other words, residence is dependent upon faith alone in Christ alone; that is eternally secure. We have that option by believing in Jesus Christ.
7. This is the guarantee of residence in the Millennial kingdom and in heaven.
8. Our inheritance in the kingdom of God is not yet secure. Our residence is absolutely secure; our inheritance is not.
9. Our inheritance in the kingdom might be great, small or nonexistent. Hence, it says the unrighteous will not inherit the kingdom of God.
10. As a family member, we do have an inheritance reserved for us. 1Peter 1:4. The inheritance is recorded in the hall of records in heaven; it is already written into the will. It is undefiled and imperishable and will never fade away. That means that God has guaranteed it.
11. There is a condition written into the will. Do we fulfill the conditions of the will?
12. We have seen what those conditions are...Col. 3:24: knowing that from the Lord you shall receive the reward of the inheritance. For you serve the Lord Christ.
13. Inheritance is predicated on divine good done by the believer. That is different than simple residence in the kingdom.
14. The condition is, do we serve the Lord? Do we function in spiritual maturity.

15. We are eternally secure as a family member; we cannot lose that status. 1Cor. 3:13: each one's work shall be revealed. For the Day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try each one's work as to what kind it is. The human good production will go up in smoke. If anyone's work is burned up, he will suffer loss; but he himself will be saved, yet as through fire. If we have no gold, silver or precious stones built up, then we will suffer the loss of our reward. If our production survives the fire, we will receive reward. If we suffer loss, then we can go to the hall of records and see what it was that we lost.
16. Obviously, these believers will not lose their salvation; just their inheritance (or their rewards). They will still be in heaven.

The kingdom is composed of those who simply believed in Jesus Christ as well as those who earned rewards via the production of divine good. This inheritance includes the ruling and judging angels. That is part of what we will be doing. The one condition for receiving an inheritance is executing the protocol plan of God. If the filling of the Holy Spirit controls our soul, then we will not commit these sins. We produce divine good and we receive the benefits of the kingdom. 1Peter 1:3–5: Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to His great mercy has regenerated us again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, We are born again to a living hope. to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and unfading, reserved in Heaven for you by the power of God, having been kept through faith to a salvation ready to be revealed in the last time; this promises us residence in the kingdom because we are believers.

Paul has talked about the unmitigated arrogance of the Corinthians, about their factions and about their lawsuits. This inheritance is reserved for you, but there is a condition.

1Cor. 6:9 You know that wicked people will not inherit the kingdom of God, don't you? Stop deceiving yourselves! Sexually immoral people, idolaters, adulterers, male prostitutes, homosexuals,

1Cor. 6:10 thieves, greedy people, drunks, slanderers, and robbers will not inherit the kingdom of God.

1Cor. 6:11 That is what some of you were! But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

1Corinthians 6:9

Lesson #249 Thursday

October 27, 2005

Integrity of God is back in print. Not clear as to why or if it has been revised. There is a good section in it on rewards.

These are not unbelievers. These are not professing Christians or nominal Christians (not good terms at all); they cannot be Christians if they sin these sins listed here. If you sin too much, you probably aren't saved. Christians can sin as much as unbelievers can, if not more. Some remain in carnality for all of their Christian lives. They will find themselves in heaven, just like us.

The Christians named here are believers, but they are unrighteous. God does not take back what He gives once He has given it. His justice cannot deny His righteousness which He imputed to us the moment that we believed in Jesus Christ. He cannot deny us because we have His righteousness in us.

None of this is dependent upon our own righteousness, our own lack of sin, our own good behavior. The Corinthians are reversionistic believers; they cannot inherit the kingdom of God. The reversionistic believer cannot inherit the kingdom of God. The word inherit is the Greek verb κληρονομεω, which means to be an heir, to be one who receives an inheritance based upon a family relationship. In order to inherit, we have a family relationship, and that relationship is already in existence. We must have the relationship first, and then we can inherit. In this context, we are already a member of the royal family; and then we may inherit.

However, the reversionistic believer will not inherit. Residing is eternally secure; inheriting is not yet secure. The unrighteous believer cannot lose his status as a member of the royal family. As a member of that family, we will have an inheritance. There is a will written in heaven with our name upon it. If we are a family member, our residence in the kingdom is a certainty. We have a certainty of residence; we already have a zip code; no more filling out a change of address card. This residence is a prerequisite for inheritance. The believer, as a member of the family of God, stands to inherit the kingdom of God. We don't have to live a righteous life; we don't have to accomplish anything. The moment we believe, we have a residence set up. However, there is the question of inheritance, and it is conditional. Every believer full inheritance is recorded; it is all there in the hall of records; and as a family member, we have a reserved inheritance there set aside for us. We will inherit if we fulfill certain conditions. That is what the inheritance is all about. It is related to the production of divine good.

Precious metal goes through the fire and is refined by fire. We will inherit based upon what we do with our salvation; our salvation is based on grace and our works are based upon grace as well. Producing divine good is not difficult at all. Our inheritance will not be difficult to get; we can be disinherited in terms of not receiving the rewards on file for us. We will receive great rewards as a favored son, which is a matter of grace. We must distinguish between residence in the kingdom and inheriting the kingdom of God.

1Cor. 6:9a You know that wicked people will not inherit the kingdom of God, don't you?

The size of inheritance depends upon:

1. The utilization of grace resources (filling of the Holy Spirit and grace apparatus for perception).
2. Utilizing grace resources, we advance to spiritual maturity.

3. Execution of the spiritual life and the resultant production of divine good.

The sins named in vv. 9–10 are problematic. Paul mentions these sins because these people are all involved in these sins. Paul is making a point of grace. These sins include degeneracy and criminality in several areas. Both are quite destructive to the spiritual life. Reversionistic believers can do anything that the unbeliever can do. What we do will affect our life in eternity. Involvement in any of these things will mean misery; and then, we spend eternity with less, because we have been degenerates. Some people still have a very difficult time deciding.

This list of sins are committed by Christians, which should tell us just how gracious God is with us. Paul is not threatening them with anything; he is informing them. He is not threatening to cut them off, but giving a lesson of grace to all of us. This is the responsibility of the Lord in this life. It is not about sin; it is about the solution to sin.

These are a representative list of sins. V. 9 are sins of self-indulgence; sins against themselves. V. 10 are sins against others.

Recall that this is related to lawsuits; sins against self—simply having a lawsuit; sins against others: filing a lawsuit in retribution.

The excuse: unless what I do hurts someone else, there is no foul, no wrong, and no sin. This is so wrong, and this passage shows us why. Sins against yourself are just as wrong and just as destructive as those against others. Don't be deceived. Sexual sins automatically hurt you and the person you are involved with. This excuse is simply allows for personal immorality.

Πλανῶ = to deceive, to delude. This comes with the negative μή. Do not be deluded. This is a present middle imperative. The middle voice means, do not do this to yourself. Stop deluding yourself! Οὐχ οἰδατή = do not be ignorant; and is found at the beginning of this verse. Don't be ignorant and stop deceiving yourself.

The Corinthians were not connecting these sins with problems. We have problems in life all the time and we fail to attribute them to our sins and lack of spiritual growth. Human viewpoint is a delusion. It seldom enters our mind. The problem is a spiritual one; one in our own soul. Look at your own situation. Look at yourselves; there is a connection between what you are doing and the problems in your life and in the church.

These Corinthians are inundated in their own Greek culture, which included bucketfuls of sexual degeneracy. They in fact used to worship this way. That was normal to them. We see so much today that we no longer view in terms of sin. They are so much a part of our cultural landscape that we tolerate them without giving them much thought. We are thought to be repressed because we don't try things that others are doing.

Think about the culture around us and the culture around us; that is Paul's point to the Corinthians; they barely give this stuff a second thought; they think, this is the way we live; this is how our culture goes. No matter what the cultural norm is, these are problem sins.

These Corinthians are so immersed in their lawsuits that they do not even realize how they are defrauding others. They only see the sins in others as it relates to themselves. They do not see the sins in themselves; that is how the factions got formed. We have no business worrying about other's sins; we need to worry about our own sins, rebound and move on.

It is not about legalism; it is about introspection. If we are filled with human viewpoint, then we are deluding ourselves. The sins in vv. 9–10 are all in apposition. We recognize the sins in the English, but they may look a bit different when we get into the Greek. They are all in apposition to ἀδικός. They forfeit inheritance in the kingdom of God.

1Cor. 6:9b Stop deceiving yourselves [or, stop being deluded]! Sexually immoral people, idolaters, adulterers, male prostitutes, homosexuals,

1Cor. 6:10 thieves, greedy people, drunks, slanderers, and robbers will not inherit the kingdom of God.

1Cor. 6:11 That is what some of you were! But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

1Corinthians 6:9b Hamartiology Lesson #250 Sunday 1 October 30, 2005

We are about to launch into a study of hamartiology. Bob was at the Shamrock Hilton and he was leaving the Hilton late at night and George someone, a columnist, ask him what he was doing there so late. Bob answered, "Studying sin, George, studying sin."

We cannot gain anything of spiritual value apart from being filled with the Holy Spirit.

These are believers and these sins will keep believers from inheriting the Kingdom of God. We cannot lose our salvation; we are eternally secure. We are in danger of losing our inheritance. Without the production of the spiritual life, we will not receive the inheritance of the spiritual life. There is a reason that Paul lists these sins and they are related to not inheriting the Kingdom of God. There are sins here of degeneracy and of criminality.

Some might be saying, "And I am not guilty of these things." If you are saying this, you are self-righteous and pompous. Do you think you can gain the Kingdom of God because you are self-righteous? This is not about what kinds of sins you commit, but that is not Paul's point. So, why does Paul address these particular sins? These are not sins that shock Paul and these are not to make us feel better that these are not among our pet sins. These are not listed as a scare tactic. This list is not designed to make us into a self-righteous believer.

This is what Paul is doing...he is listing the sins that those at Corinth are involved in. Paul has already mentioned these in 1Cor. 2 and 5. The real problem is not that these men are committing these sins, but that they are deceiving themselves.

Πλανῶ = to deceive, to delude [yourself] in the middle voice. Οὐχ οἰδατὴ = stop being ignorant. Self-delusion is one result of their behavior. They do not connect all of their church problems with their sins. They do not make the connection between their sins and the problems in their church. Some of these sins are harmful, some are degenerate and definitely problematic for the spiritual life; but the Corinthians did not realize the harm of these sins.

While the epistles were being distributed, the sins of the Corinthians were hardly given a thought in their church. This is all a part of their culture. They were not that far removed from that culture. They were totally removed from the reality of their culture and the sins therein. They did not think of many of these sexual practices as being sinful or unusual. We might even be called repressed if we do not participate in some of these sins; and we can always justify this behavior by saying, it is simply a part of our culture.

Sexual sins and sexual degeneracy were not an issue to the Corinthians; they were deceiving themselves; this stuff was so commonplace, that they did not realize their destructive results. They defrauded believers with their behavior, whether it involved lawsuits or their sexual sins. The emphasis here is on self-delusion. These Corinthians do not see the repercussions of their actions. Paul wants them to be introspective. Paul wants them to look into their own souls; what are you doing? What should you be doing?

You might want to correct someone who is involved in one of these sins; and there is some kind of truth here that these sins will cause them great problems. However, the only change must come from the inside out. It is up to us to be introspective. Plenty of people think that these activities are more important than anything else in life. Utilize the grace resources and make the corrections yourself in your own soul. Unless they do this, they must understand that there will be dire consequences. This is not to scare them or to make them feel guilty, but to get them to make these decisions in their own souls.

These believers will be in the Kingdom of God, but they will forfeit their rewards; and that is the lack of their inheritance.

Our culture even tells us that some of these things are not sins. This will be the Biblical perspective. This is divine viewpoint.

Αἰσχος = unrighteous. All of these sins are explanatory equivalents to unrighteous believers.

The first named sin is πορνός

Πορνός

1. This means a person who is a fornicator.
2. This includes any sexually immoral practices. Sex was given to us by God. God does not give us things for enjoyment to feel guilty about; but they must be in the correct context.
3. This general practice of sexual immorality includes a wide range of sexual misadventures. It included male and female temple prostitution. It was considered to be worship of the gods.
4. Pornos was the standard function in the temple worship. It was temple worship through sex. It was just part of their celtic worship.
5. This is why Paul would say, "Stop deluding yourselves."
6. Πορνός was okay by society's norms. However, it was not okay by divine viewpoint. We all have an old culture and a new culture—the new culture is from the Word of God. We do have an old culture, the residue of human viewpoint in our soul which we had prior to salvation.

1Cor. 5:11: ἰδολολατρῆς = idolator. This is obviously a transliteration.

Idolator

1. This is the celtic worship of a man-made image. This can include many other forms.
2. It can include the worship of money, power, sex, or anything which is attractive to us; something which we find desirable.
3. It includes the worship of mankind in the concept of humanism.
4. It includes the worship of nature in environmentalism or even in evolution, which turns away from God and worships the god of nature. Idolatry frequently included the activities of the phallic cults in Corinth. Thus the phallic cults are a part of idolatry in this context. In this set of sins, idolatry belongs in this group, since idolatry involved temple prostitution and the worship of the gods through sexual activities.

Μοιχος = adulterer. Generally, this is illicit sexual intercourse; specifically, sex with another's wife or husband. This may have something to do with the suits in Corinth and they are probably in divorce court and they are in the midst of all of these disputes in divorce court.

Μαλακος

1. This represents something which is as disgusting as the incest earlier.
2. With respect to persons, it means soft, effeminate, cadimite.
3. A cadimite is a man or a boy who allows himself to be kept for homosexual purposes. This would include child pornography.
4. The man or the boy is not the initiator of the homosexual activity.

5. He might fall into the category of a male prostitute or this could be pederasty. In our laws this is a crime; it was an accepted practice in Corinth.

The final term of v. 9: ἀρσινικοιτης = homosexual. This is a sin of degeneracy. The homosexual lobby makes it sound like this is simply a different lifestyle. Paul says, "Do not deceive yourselves; homosexuality is a sin." It may be your area of weakness. It is not simply an alternate lifestyle.

1Cor. 6:9b Stop deceiving yourselves [or, stop being deluded!] Sexually immoral people, idolaters, adulterers, male prostitutes, homosexuals,

1Corinthians 6:9b

Lesson #251 Sunday 2

October 30, 2005

This subject matter can be seen as pointing a finger at those who commit these sins and say, "You are so bad." Paul could have named anything; however, these are the sins of the Corinthians. Paul wants them to know exactly what their problem is so that they do not delude themselves.

It is difficult to stay away from something which seems so right; from something which is a sin, but you don't feel that it is. These sexual sins are destructive. Sex in the wrong context is destructive. It all starts with how they think. Paul makes it clear that this is a part of how they think. They must have divine viewpoint in their souls, or they will have no spiritual life and no spiritual rewards. If we are involved in long-term carnality, we forfeit our rewards, but not the Kingdom of God per se. This is not to make anyone feel guilty; it is a matter of giving information. Some people no doubt, think, if it feels good, then I want to do it.

The list includes a fornicator (one which is involved in any sort of sexual immorality; it refers to a wide-range of sins. There was idolatry, which included sexual functions with temple prostitutes. This that we find here is a Biblical norm, and not a cultural norm, which is where the Corinthians are. All on this list of sins will hit somebody somewhere where they live. In case we are unaware, these are sins and they are destructive to our lives.

Ἰδολογητης = idolater. Idolatry was completely immersed in sexual sins. However, idolatry can involve a great many things. How many pursue sex to the exclusion of a spiritual life. Bars are filled with these kinds of people.

Μοικος = adultery, which is destructive to marriage and destructive to the family. It also destroys the society in which we live. It attacks two divine institutions. This is clearly wrong. In Corinth, there were probably a number of lawsuits which involved divorce and adultery.

Μολοκος = effiminent, soft, pederasty, cadamite. This is a person who allows himself to be kept for homosexual purposes. This was almost an honored place. Boys were kept for this purpose, and it was not frowned upon and it was not illegal. They did not know it.

People can simply tell themselves, there is no problem with this. This is sexual reversionism. Our society is rife with sexual reversionism.

Αρσενικοιτης = some groups say that there is no word for homosexuality in the Bible. This is not a cultural norm; this is not another lifestyle. It may be a part of our old sin nature, and a weakness, but it is still a sin. Are you genetically predisposed to do this? Are you homosexual because you are unable to help yourself? Can you refuse that temptation? Yes. It is still a matter of volition. Whatever we feel predisposed to do, we don't have to do. Don't ever buy into the argument that you cannot stop yourself.

Homosexuality

1. This is a male who practices homosexuality or pederasty.
2. Μολοκος & αρσενικοιτης differ in the part which is played in the act.
3. The μολοκος receives.
4. The term applies to the aggressor.
5. This can also men two men who act in agreement to commit homosexual acts.
6. Rom. 1:26, Paul identifies lesbians who can be included in this list.
7. These type of persons were tolerated in Greek society and they were institutionalized. There were temples with prostitution, both straight and homosexual acts.
8. Homosexual acts in Greece was regarded as a normal thing. The same is happening in our society. In Greece, this was settled. Greek society steadily degenerated under this thought pattern.
9. Apparently in the Corinthian church, there was a carryover of this attitude among the Greek believers there. Some of the Greek believers in Corinth were simply following the trend of their old sin nature. They did not have a problem with it and neither did others in the church.

Why would Paul mention this in connection with the lawsuits? This was a manifestation of their culture; this was accepted, just like lawsuits.

Why did Paul mention this with Lawsuits?

1. The sexual sins are illustrations of roadblocks to settlements of divisions in the Corinthian church. They may not be seen as sins, but they were divisive. In the US, there are churches which recognize homosexuality as an alternative lifestyle. This is a church which has accepted cultural norms over God's truth. The same thing is happening today as happened then. We are involved in the same kinds of lawsuits and we are involved in the same sorts of sexual practices. The law is filled with lawsuits forcing acceptance of something we recognize as a sin.
2. How can one wise man be found in the church to settle these lawsuits when these pursuits named here are a part of their everyday life and supercede doctrine. They oppose doctrinal application; when you are consumed by these activities, and there is such a thing as sexual addiction, and it is consuming, just alike alcohol addiction and just like drug addiction. This is a fact of our culture and some of us accept it. We often think it is okay. "I'm not involved in it, but it is okay by me." It is very easy to go from this to fall into activism, to pass laws to prevent it. You cannot stop this behavior by passing laws. This is an inside out thing; it is not an outside correction. You must be able to handle the leanings of the old sin nature. Don't get activist on Bobby. We are the salt of the earth. We maintain the client nation and we must deal with these problems in our own soul. We must leave reversionism behind and carnality behind. Will we fail and sin and act on any of these sins? Of course. We have the means to overcome these sins. However, these are roadblocks to our spiritual advance, and the filling of the Holy Spirit can get us through these roadblocks. We destroy our own society by committing these sins. Only we can destroy our freedoms by the lack of our spiritual advance.

3. This is part of the world of the Corinthian believers. As far as the lawsuits are concerned, and it is part of the world of the unbelieving judges who presided over the lawsuits. The laws have nothing to do with these problems in the Corinthian church. Will the judges rule against culturally acceptable practices? No way. They are all a part of the same culture and the same society. They get further immersed by taking this before the same judges.
4. No physical or spiritual separation. The believers in Corinth had not separated themselves from the world around them. Whatever the culture dictates, we must be guided by Bible doctrine. The cultural norms and standards say one thing; the norms of Scripture say something else.
5. How can lawsuits and fractiousness be settled by doctrinal application when these believers act like unbelievers in the larger society? They cannot even settle the spiritual issues in their own soul; certainly, they cannot settle disputes amongst one another. We accept certain things which we have a tendency to still accept. Whatever our cultural norms are, we must allow it to be superceded by Bible doctrine. Otherwise, we will not inherit the Kingdom of God. These works will be burned up, and wood, hay and stubble. Is the time here on earth, is our trends on pleasures of a few years, worth it in exchange for eternity. When we are going to have a faith-rest rationale, there is nothing stronger.

Is the greed of gaining material things more important than spiritual growth? We can gain everything in this life by way of wealth, and do this apart from spiritual growth. However, in eternity, we gain spiritual wealth by production of the Holy Spirit in our lives. We should not focus on a few things in this life in order to gain these things to the loss of our spiritual reward. We are washed, sanctified and justified; God has given us everything at our spiritual birth; we are sanctified and set apart with regards to spiritual advance and production. Look at the temptations of the old sin nature that we cannot seem to resist and realize that God has given us the means to resist. God has given us the means to master the details of life which drive us into the ground. We are given these things as a part of our spiritual life; Paul is calling upon us to put these assets into action. It is not about how bad these sins are or how bad we are; it is about living up to God and His grace. God has given us the means to live up to His plan.

There are conditions in the will, the will which gives us rewards in eternity. We must fulfill these conditions.

Lesson #252 Sunday 1

November 6, 2005

The watchword of the reformation was sola Scriptura (Scripture alone). Whenever theology departs from Scripture, theology goes awry. We see the impact of this on Tuesday's election.

The unrighteous at Corinth were capable of committing any act of immoral degeneracy. All they had to do was to stay in carnality and remain there for some period of time. Many of these believers are completely without doctrine and they retain the pattern of their old culture and lifestyle. They have ignored their primary mission as believers in Jesus Christ; they have not become epistemologically rehabilitated. Every part of their lives should be controlled by divine viewpoint. They knew of their status in Christ, but they were not able to apply that. Believers too often compartmentalize doctrine; fine for church and fine for pressure, but we think we do not need it in prosperity. The Corinthians are in this situation. They did not know that their lives must be governed by Bible doctrine. All they had was the culture that they came from.

Paul was not giving us a sex sermon and he was not shaking his finger at us; but this is what was going on in Corinth. They were believers who were not far from their culture; they were confused by their surroundings. They were deceiving themselves about their own unrighteousness. To many of them, this was normal. They were operating under self-delusion. Sex is wonderful in the right context and this is not the right context. The sins named are not the primary focus of this chapter; they are used to bring out a point of doctrine. Paul wants to make a point of doctrine. They have forgotten, ignored or have never learned who they are in Christ.

Πορνος = fornicator, which could refer to any deviant sexual practice and it was the sins which were involved at the false phallic cult. Idolatry was integral to the sexual worship of the gods. Corinthian believers were not far removed from the Temple of Aphrodite. This is their culture.

They are also μοικος = adulterers. They came from temple worship where pornos and idolatry were done as worship. Then, it was easy to justify the same thing outside of the heathen temples. Adultery would be seen as normal, as it was practiced in the temple of Aphrodite.

This went well beyond male-female relations. Μολοκος = cadamite, man or boy who allows himself to be kept for homosexual purposes. He is not the initiator of homosexual activity. He could be a male prostitute or the victim of pederasty. Αρσενοκοιτης = aggressive homosexual. The difference between them is the part played in the act. One submits and one is the aggressor.

In this Greek culture, the cradle of western civilization found homosexuality completely acceptable. The normality of homosexuality has become a common view to many people in this country. This was the thinking where Bobby learned Greek. This fabulous Greek culture is often cited by intellectuals as an argument for legitimizing homosexual behavior. It was Greek culture which brought us democracy, then it would follow that homosexuality is just as good. Paul teaches that is not correct; it is not a normal part of sexual behavior. The gay agenda is to push for normalizing homosexual relations.

The argument is, this is just an alternate lifestyle; let me alone to lead my life as I see fit in free America. Another argument is, "I was born homosexual; God made me this way; therefore, I should be allowed to engage in this sort of behavior." If cannot be a sin if a person has no choice in their own sexuality. How can it be a sin if I have no control over it? Everyone has areas of weakness in their old sin nature, and this weakness could be homosexuality. Like any other weakness in our old sin nature, it can be restrained, regardless of the strength of the impulse. The spiritual life can overcome any weakness.

Bobby has been doing some reading and there is support for homosexuals among the liberal clergy and they believe in ordaining them.

4 Arguments for Homosexuals in the Clergy

1. Love is seen as the greatest of all things; if love is present, it is good; if love is not present, then it is not good.
  - a. There is an assumption that love is inclusive of all human sexuality. That is the assumption which is made.
  - b. However, love is an attitude; it is thinking. Sex is a result of this attitude.
  - c. Sexual lust is not the same as love in any realm.
  - d. It is clear that it is wrong, yet some theologians make an argument for it.
  - e. This is how love can be isolated from righteousness and justice. You cannot separate or isolate these things. Theological liberalism often isolates God's characteristics.
2. Since 10–15% are homosexual, there must be theological relevance for them. They can't all just be sinners.

- a. The theological relevance that they are talking about is simply a cultural norm, which has nothing to do with God's standards.
  - b. Relevance is simply a matter of shifting standards. Make homosexuality normal and that gives us a new standard. A flawed circular argument.
  - c. The Bible says that homosexuality is a sin, and therefore theological relevance is not an issue.
3. The theological liberal must relegate certain Old and New Testament passages and assign them to cultural relevance in society at that time, but no more.
    - a. This is how they put forth ideas which are anti-Scripture.
    - b. Their reasoning is, parts of the Bible are not relevant to our culture.
    - c. They see the Bible as being relevant to a culture in the past. This is a misapplication of isogogics.
    - d. We look at things differently now. Paul was an absolutist and a spiritual dictator and we are not like that today.
    - e. They relegate divinely inspired Scripture to ancient cultural norms; and who decides what is relevant and what is not? Whoever feels like it. "That passage is not relevant to me today."
    - f. Their argument is that portions of the Bible is obsolete. When Scripture is so denigrated, then theology goes awry.
    - g. Divinely inspired Scripture is relevant for all cultures and all people. When the Bible calls homosexuality is a sin, that is exactly what it means.
  4. The variety of God's creation allows for a variety in the way that mankind expresses love toward others. They call this inclusiveness.
    - a. This is a total distortion of God's creation; God created one man for one woman. The woman completes the man; and the man fulfills the woman. That has always been God's design. Anything else is against God's design for the natural world.
  5. The bottom line for any of these arguments is, Scripture is not the final word on this matter, but an individual is.

The final determination is that homosexuality is a sin. It is the degeneration of a society or a nation. A good bit of Rom. 1 deals with the degeneration of homosexuals. Lev. 18:22 calls it an abomination. This makes it an abomination to the Jewish nation.

Gen. 19:5–8 blames homosexuality for Sodom's fall.

Theological liberals and others argue that homosexuality and passages against it are not even found in Scripture. That is simply a lie.

The sins listed below are not sins which damn a person to hell, but are listed for another reason. Sexual sins are a by product of a lack of advance in the believer. There are always repercussions in life and in eternity with these sins.

1Cor. 6:9b Stop deceiving yourselves [or, stop being deluded]! Sexually immoral people, idolaters, adulterers, sodomites, male homosexuals,

Paul is not focusing simply on sexual sins. There are a number of sins which Corinthians were committing. This next group of sins are sins against others. Sin hurts us every time and it also hurts others.

V. 10 is a roll call of despicable believers found in 1Cor. 5:11. They will not inherit the kingdom of God; yet they are believers. There is a difference between inheriting the Kingdom of God and entering into the Kingdom of God. Those who enter are members of the family of God. We are in line as believers to enter and to inherit. However, we must fulfill certain conditions in order to inherit.

God cannot deny His own righteousness and He cannot take it back. But there are certain sins which preclude us from inheriting the Kingdom of God. If we were not royal family of God, we would not be in line for inheritance in the first place. We must be in line for it in order to lose it. We are all in line for inheritance. It cannot be denied and it cannot be removed. If we are riddled with guilt over some sexual practices or for one of the other sins listed here and you think that God could never take you into heaven—God cannot deny us. We have a certain status and we cannot lose that status. We are washed, sanctified and justified; v. 11.

1Cor. 6:10 thieves, greedy people, drunks, slanderers, and robbers will not inherit the kingdom of God.

1Corinthians 6:10

Lesson #253 Sunday 2

November 6, 2005

Prince Charles was in a long line of royalty; and this was changed in WWII to Windsor, as it was a German name and they did not want it.

If you are in this kind of line, then you are always a part of this family. The first in line could generally expect to get the inheritance. Often the oldest son got the land; then the others could go into the church or into the military. Most of the officers in the military in the Middle Ages were royalty. With or without the title, you still remained a member of that royal house. Many of these noblemen failed as great soldiers and many failed as clergy; and the latter departed from doctrinal theology. No matter what they did, they were still born into a royal family. We are born into a royal family. We have an undeniable connection.

Favored sons and daughters can be given a greater inheritance and others, born bastards or self-made bastards, can lose their entire inheritance.

Any accomplishment in the spiritual life is entirely dependent upon God's grace resources. All of this is dependent upon us being in fellowship and upon God the Holy Spirit, as well as the gifts and doctrine which God has given to us. We please God by what God has provided for us. We decide to be saved. Recall all of the parables about giving this and that servant money. The money is always given to them by the master. Everyone is given the same amount. There is no Christian production apart from our knowledge of the spiritual life and without metabolizing Bible doctrine. Without these things, it is human good, which is not rewardable.

You who do these things will not inherit the Kingdom of God. These are sins which represent carnality and reversionism. No one in this status inherits anything. The will is already written; the promise is already given us. There is an inheritance which is set aside for us which is undefiled and will not fade away. This inheritance carries right into the eternal state. Certain members who do not produce divine good will not inherit. They will be in the Kingdom of God; and their inheritance will be there on display; but they will not get these rewards.

We will all be in eternity? Why can't I get what everyone else has? Isn't that grace? We have equal opportunity and equal privilege right now to execute the spiritual life. The conditions remain. Our entire purpose in life is to execute the spiritual life.

The first word is ληπτης = thief, one who steals. This is a crime against another person, rather than against oneself. As despicable as a thief is; yet they cannot be excluded from a family relationship. They are still in royal status in the royal family of God. A criminal was crucified next to Christ. One refused to accept Christ and he would not enter the kingdom of God; and the other did.

Πλεονεκτης = covetous, greedy. This is the reversionist believer with materialism lust. Wealth becomes the supreme object of one's hierarchy. It is not the mere existence of money in someone's pocket; it is the mental attitude or greed. Liberals will tell us that we are sinful to have wealth. That is not correct. The Bible never condemns wealth; it condemns the wrong attitude. Is the temptation to have gain worth the loss of reward. How can you trade wealth for a short time in this life for wealth for all eternity. We cannot lose eternal wealth. There is no comparison. Luke 15 and the prodigal son. One aspect of his problem was a misuse of wealth.

True wealth comes from production; for us, this is the production of divine good. Wealth produced by the spiritual life is much greater than anything that we can produce on this earth in the realm of human wealth.

Μετησος = drunk, addicted to alcohol.

1. A drunk, an alcoholic, a substance abuser.
2. The problem with a drunk is he seeks escape, stimulation of happiness through chemical means.
3. The Scripture also says, "Take a little wine for your stomach's sake."
4. Being a drunk or an addict is a manifestation of a spiritual wasteland in the soul; a desert in the soul. Needs to be filled with chemicals.
5. Addiction by its very nature is total distraction to your spiritual growth and temporal life in general.

6. This also means a loss of inheritance, not because you are a drunk, but because it is a sin and a total distraction from advancing in the spiritual life. It is a total detriment to where we need to go in life.

Λοιδωρος = reviler, an abusive person, one who abuses others verbally, a slanderer. This fits the Corinthians to a tee. They have slandered Paul and each other in their drive to become powerful in the church, in their drive to make their faction in the church preeminent. They are verbally abusive persons.

Harpos ἄρπος = defrauder, one who defrauds. If you defraud, you will lose your inheritance; however, if you endure fraud, you will be rewarded. This brings us back to being defrauded early on in this chapter. Those who defraud are grouped with these other gross sins.

So ends this list of sins.

1Cor. 6:10a ...thieves, greedy people, drunks, slanderers, and robbers...

This is what they do not get.

1Cor. 6:10b ...will not inherit the kingdom of God.

Paul will remind them what they actually are at the end of this chapter. Well, in v. 11.

November 13, 2005

AC has been installed. Moses Anwobeko in Nigeria, Zimbawa, Kenya is here (a missionary that Berachah supports); and Rick Hughes is here as well and he'll speak to us Wednesday.

Friday was Veterans Day, one of the great holidays. Bobby celebrates and he likes to put a face with a person. Sgt. Paul Stasser who was severely wounded in Iraq, an unseen member of our congregation. He is from Butler, Pennsylvania. Hit by a IED which ravaged much of his face and head. He has been recovering, even though most figured that he would die. They attribute their recovery to God's will and the article says that they are associate members of R.B. Thieme ministries. A captain says there is something about this man who inspires me. "We believe in fighting for our country." He has met a few movies stars and politicians. He attended a bbq of Cheney's house. Paul and his father have been tremendous witnesses for Jesus Christ due to these tragic events.

Bobby got a letter from Michelle Mansfield and her daughter, a 5th grade student, Allison wrote an essay. A 1-page essay about a person who exhibited civic virtue. She shares Paul's story and emphasizes the importance of doctrine. She speaks of him as being an invisible hero. In national guard for 16 years and several years of active duty prior to that. He jeopardized his own health and safety in Iraq. This girl interviewed him as well. He is being treated in Bethesda, MD. What he was next to, would usually level a house. He can only speak in 5 or 6 word sentences and half of his voice box is gone. A nurse's call to his father from Germany told his father that his son would be a vegetable and was being kept alive on a respirator. The prayer from his father. 5 min later, he heard that Paul made it through the night. "I owe my country my time for my freedom." Sgt. Stasser. This 5th grader has a tremendous understanding of freedom. She and her mother would go to visit Sgt. Stasser. He is not bitter, he is not angry at his country; he is a witness for Jesus Christ which coincides with the communion we celebrated.

1Corinthians 6:11

Lesson #255 Sunday 2

November 13, 2005

Carnality and spirituality are mutually exclusive; you cannot have one along with the other. Paul will now give the reason why he has named all of these sins. They have an incredible privilege; and Paul reminds them just what Jesus Christ has done for them. Paul calls them αδελφος because they are brothers. They have received the 39 irrevocable assets, which includes being washed, sanctified and justified. Christ did not wash them or justify them so that they can live a life a great reversionism. Paul knows exactly what these Corinthians are thinking. Salvation means eternal security. In reversionism, "Thanks for salvation; see you in heaven after I have lived my life as I want to live it." Some do not acknowledge this outloud, but this describes the way that they live their life. In salvation, we also incur a responsibility to our Savior.

Independence often translates into anti-authority. Nobody tells me what to do; I am my own boss. If someone tells me what to do, that infringes on my self-determination. Believers often balk when they hear of some Christian doctrine infringes on their independence. They want to decide which doctrine they want to comply with. They become negative because doctrine might interfere with their autonomy. Doctrine won't dictate my lifestyle.

As a believer, we are never independent from Bible doctrine. John 8:32: "You will know the truth and the truth will set you free." When we ignore our responsibility, we lose freedom. We lose freedom in our Christian life and in our temporal life. We have the freedom to inculcate the truth in our own souls; for the unbeliever, true freedom is adhering to the laws of divine establishment. When anyone refuses, then someone else's freedom is encroached upon. The criminal goes to jail for his activities, and the crime deprives us of something that we lose. If we fail in our responsibility, this destroys our individual or national freedom. Lawlessness in this situation might take over which is followed by great oppression. The Germans after WWI went into a great depression, which was worse than ours because of losing the war. Their elected Adolf Hitler for economic reasons.

Chinese government can demand a solution and get it, because they are an authoritarian government. They have a higher value of security and economic well-being than upon freedom. What is freedom worth? Economics and ideology are often involved in political systems. "Live free or die" or "I would rather lose my freedom than my life in a war." Veterans enter the service and their sacrifices provide a greater freedom for that nation. We all have responsibilities. We have a whole society today which thinks that freedom centers only on one's self and that no one has responsibility to others. "You have violated my rights; I am an atheist and am offended by any display of Christianity." No prayer at a public gathering; symbols of law, like the Ten Commandments are not allowed, as someone might be offended. When you pray in public, the gospel should be presented in that prayer.

Bob prayed before a game in Rice Stadium and he made it clear what the gospel was. About 72,000 are there. The truth epitomizes freedom as if it were a tyranny. The pillar of freedom is Christianity is presented as a tyranny in our courts, when we have check with the courts to see where a nativity scene can be set up. Setting up Christian symbols does not violate the constitution. No one is persecuted for rejecting the gospel or rejecting Christianity. A public display of Jesus Christ does not impose a form of worship on anyone. A person who is offended by a religious display can turn away or speak against it. This includes a Muslim display, even though it represents tyranny. Put up the two next to each other; truth and false concepts. Muslim countries are a union of church and state, which is why we have tyranny in those countries. A mandated state religion is a loss of freedom. No freedom in the Muslim world except where the US has made an impact, like Iraq. Believers in Jesus Christ should never decry the military presence in Iraq. A Christian display of any kind does not cause problems for anyone's freedom; it does not hurt their freedom of worship or freedom not to worship; nor does it mean that it is an announcement of a union of church and state. It commemorates our founders and it reminds us as our right to worship as conceived by our mostly Christian founding fathers. These things do not impose Christianity on anyone. Believe or do not believe—that is freedom. It represents the greatest freedom of all to have such a display set up. It might be a wrong object of worship set up; but it represents the true issue of freedom. This is the opposite of being upset over some religious icon set up in a public place (e.g., a Buddha). This is simply an excuse to remove Christianity from around us. Witnessing simply presents the truth. It is not tyranny. Purpose of witnessing is exactly the opposite of what the world says it is. Accepting Christ as Savior is a matter of freedom; not of imposition. It is the opposite of tyranny. The presentation of the gospel and of Bible doctrine is the opposite of tyranny. The forcible removal of Christian symbols from public life is evidence of a loss of values. That loss is the very basis of our freedom. The principles of freedom; this is not license to riot in the streets or to violate court injunctions. The exercise of freedom requires us to take responsibility for every decision that we make. We have Biblically mandated behavior. We need to adhere to divine viewpoint. Negative volition to doctrine means asserting independence from divine viewpoint. This places us under the tyranny of the cosmic system. When we don't have the truth, we will buy into anything.

When we decide for doctrine, we exercise our fulfillment in the plan of God. We have the option of being filled with the Holy Spirit or not. We can choose carnality or reversionism, or we can choose to metabolize Bible doctrine.

Negative volition toward doctrine means a loss of freedom; we put ourselves under the tyranny of Satan's cosmic system. It is antithetical to the human viewpoint which permeates our society. Bad decisions reduce freedom; good decisions increase freedom. The best decision is to know the truth. The truth will make us free. Doctrine is inculcated into our soul. The more we obey Bible doctrine, the more freedom we have, even though that seems ironic. Freedom demands responsibility; irresponsibility destroys our freedom. We possess every provision that we need to live with the Lord Jesus Christ. The truth sets us free, but within the parameters of God's plan for our life. When we go outside a certain parameter, we lose freedom. So many Christians don't want to hear Bible doctrine because they do not want to obey divine mandates. We are free to serve the Lord in grace and we are free to receive rewards in heaven. Anarchy of soul is when everything is about me. The plan of God? No. I know what I want and I know what I want to do. When we take that approach, we have just lost our freedom. The Corinthians have complete anarchy of soul. They feel free to do what they want to do, thinking there are no repercussions. Some of them are in true degeneracy and criminality. They have no freedom because they choose against the resources of the Christian way of life. They are deep in slavery to the old sin nature. This is not why the Holy Spirit washed, sanctified or justified them. We are not freed in order to enslave ourselves to the old sin nature. This was not done so we can enslave ourselves to the sins found in the previous verses.

These Corinthians were enslaved to their sin natures. They are winners positionally and losers experientially. They have it, now Paul encourages them to use it. They have not advanced even a little bit in the Christian way of life. Choices that line up with doctrine enhance freedom, because we are set free from the greatest tyranny's of life—human viewpoint, the cosmic system, the old sin nature. We think of lawsuits as one way to stand up against inequities and oppression, but this is false.

Vv. 9–10 says they are enslaved; v. 11 tells us that they have the potential freedom.

1Cor. 6:11 That is what some of you were! But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

1Corinthians 6:11

Lesson #256 Wednesday

November 16, 2005

Rick Hughes is here after Bible class and speaks to kids to schools in the southeast.

At one time, some of them were the unrighteous who would not inherit the Kingdom of God. They fell into one of the categories of sinners named previously. These believers committed these sins before they were saved, as many of them were common place activities; simply a part of that culture. Unfortunately, some of them had continued those activities in the church of Corinth at that time.

Paul is not concerned about their past; he is not even concerned about what they did after salvation. These are believers who would reside in the Kingdom of God because they have eternal security. However, there will be no inheritance of rewards here. There will be no inheritance for them as they produced no divine good. We often have some of the same problems in our churches today and many more as well.

After rebound, forget it and move on. Godly sorry and emotional repentance over what you have done in the past does not advance you spiritually. The only thing that advances you is what you are doing right now. The past is gone. Paul is concerned about their present; where they are now and what they are doing now. These Corinthians were still indulging in these same sins as if they were unbelievers. Their past has come back to haunt them.

To be in reversionism, you have to go somewhere to revert back from. However, many of these Corinthians went nowhere. This is Paul's concern. These sins are sexual; some are degenerate; and there is even some criminality involved. Some of their activities might even shock us. We can point to some of these sins and self-righteously say, "I'm not so bad; I don't do anything like that." Paul is not expecting us to become self-righteous about their behavior. Paul is not shocked either. Paul was a murderer of lots of Christians, and Paul believed that he served God by killing Christians. Paul has no self-righteousness in him. He knows that he is no better than anyone else. He is not shocked by their sins nor is he self-righteous about them. These people must get with doctrine in order to go somewhere spiritually. Sin is sin; it is all carnality; any sin will negate our spirituality and stop our spiritual advance. Divine good is impossible to produce apart from spirituality and growth.

If this is not a diatribe against sex, greed and partying; why does Paul name these sins? That is because these are the sins which are holding the Corinthians back. To Berachah, he might name a whole other set of sins. What Paul names here is by way of illustration. The lack of spiritual growth and the flagrant reversionism can be present anywhere. All of it is the antithesis of the believer's new position in Christ. V. 11 is a reminder of what their position in Christ is. They are believers, but their lives do not match what Christ has done for them on the cross. Who they are does not match what they are; to whom much is given, much is expected. We are given a great salvation; if we are given so much at salvation, then that means that a great deal is expected of all of us. "You are simply not living up to what you have." This verse reminds them what Christ has done for them. The lawsuits are a manifestation of where they are; that tells Paul that they are out of line. The other things are simply a part of their carnality. They could not destroy their residence in the kingdom of heaven; but they were cutting themselves off from their inheritance. Their bad decisions continued to narrow their options in life. You cannot be a growing believer and go through the things that Bobby's got his own problems and we have our own. Bobby is not going to straighten us out. Self-righteous people only see others, but they do not see themselves. If we impose this self-righteousness on someone else, then we are a legalist and a tyrant.

The responsibility to take in the truth is what makes us free. Without responsibility, we have anarchy in our souls. The Corinthians are completely ungoverned in their souls. Do not every forget our heritage in Christ. Always be aware of what He did for us at the moment of salvation.

People are motivated by some of the sins which Paul named. What drives us? Our old sin nature or the doctrine in our souls? Are we in effect saying, "Thanks for salvation; and I will see you later." All the things that you think will make you happy apart from the spiritual life are temporary. Like a party. You may have some good times, but they will be over and they will not sustain you. Without the spiritual life, there is nothing to fulfill you. There is no permanent happiness.

Και and the nominative neuter plural of ταυτα, which connects the Corinthian believers with the previously named sins in the previous list. What stands out is that ταυτα is in the neuter gender instead of being in the masculine gender. So it means such things. The emphasis is upon the reversionism itself rather than the people. It highlights their horrible spiritual condition.

These are believers here; and this is controversial and Bobby got a letter the other day—it was taught differently before. Apparently, Bob said they are unbelievers. The verb in the first phrase of this verse. Imperfect active indicative of ειμι. This one verb tells us that these are believers. We must understand how Paul uses the imperfect tense here. If Paul used the present tense, it would mean that these people are at this very moment these things. Paul uses the imperfect tense.

The Imperfect Tense here

1. The imperfect always indicates past time.
2. This could be understood that these sinful things occurred in the past, but they are no longer occurring. If that was the case, then we could say, this deals with unbelievers in vv. 9–10.
3. Paul uses a progressive imperfect here, which is very important and it means a lot to this interpretation.

The Progressive Imperfect

1. This deals with a progress which began in the past and continues to happen right up to the point of the context.
2. There is no inference that the process has been completed.
3. Bobby is going to diagram the progressive imperfect. Progressive imperfect goes from the past and is continuing to occur right up until that point in time.
4. The progressive imperfect contemplates a Reversionistic process as having started in past time and continues up to the time of Paul writing.
5. Again, there is no inference as to whether or not the reversionism process has stopped.
6. We must assume, based on this progressive imperfect that reversionism is ongoing right to the time when Paul writes the letter.

7. Why would Paul write this in his letter if it had already stopped? Paul is obviously writing this letter to someone who could stop it. Some want
8. At the time that Paul writes, these Corinthians are doing these things. We know that Paul is addressing believers.
9. Such were some of you in the past right up until this moment.
10. A reversionist is someone who has reverted from a present status to a previous status. In the indicative mood, this is a statement of undeniable fact.

Paul first emphasizes what they could and should be.

What Should the Corinthians Be?

1. Paul emphasizes what they should and could be based upon their status.
2. Advancing is what they should do in spite of their past.
3. The Corinthians addressed in this verse are believers who need to come out of Reversionism.
4. These things named below are conditions—washed, justified and sanctified. These are simply positions which have nothing to do with experience. They do not live according to these things given them by God.
5. To whom much is given by way of salvation, much is expected by way of the Christian life.

Paul has told them what they are and what they should be.

1Cor. 6:11 That is what some of you were! But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

Rick Hughes to speak in 5 minutes. He gives them the gospel and a few days Bible teaching.

Rick stood in the pulpit back in 1975 for the first time. Speaking in schools is not all that Rick does. He has also spoken in churches and gets to speak in a lot of doctrinal churches. Joe Griffin's church and Rick Naff's church and he named a few others. There is even a church near where he used to fish. He ran a Bible study all summer long and it ended up as the Kulsa River Bible Church. It requires a lot of study in order to do that. Rick has been teaching twice on Sundays there, and they are awaiting a pastor teacher.

Rick has a radio ministry now, which he never expected. One in Birmingham and another in Mississippi. He is not on Christian radio but on talk radio. WERC 960 in Birmingham; and 97.3 superTalk in Jackson, Mississippi. This is on his web site as well. He interviews some people. All of these are run on a 26 week contract.

Something is very shocking and he has not spoken in a school since September. Rick does not call schools to speak in them; they call him. However, he only accepts calls and does it based upon calls to him. Never gone this long without speaking in a school.

At the beginning of the year, there are 4-5 schools which will have him for a week each. 4 books over the years. Crash course in basic Christianity and another put on the other side. An administrator brochure is available as well, which tells what will be done.

A yearly breakfast once a year for the Mississippi association of schools. However, where they did that breakfast is no longer there anymore. The hurricane took it out. Usually the principals come up to Rick at the end of the prayer breakfast and ask him to speak in there schools and none of them did. That is strange. He was in Pittsburgh speaking, and then drove over to New York to visit.

Pray for open doors for Rick. He goes for a week, 5 45 minute sessions and he often goes to individual classrooms to speak. Sometimes that pastors get wind of what he is teaching; but one guy said, "I'm never having you come back again." Rick taught the 5 cycles of discipline and where the US is at this time. He scared the kids.

Pastors often show up and they sit in the back and they don't agree and sit in the back and seethe. Satan will distort the message as well, and a kid will say something that Rick did not teach. One lady sent him a nasty letter indicating that he did not teach eternal security. Distorting the message discredits Rick.

Rick does get into public schools now and again. He went to 2 of them for a week at a time. He taught the Word of God in a high school and a junior high school. Sponsored by the student body; not by the faculty. Not a mandatory assembly.

He speaks mostly in academies and not in Christian schools per se, as they have heard so many mixed up people that they don't realize that he is accurate until the end.

Bad decisions limit future options. That is one of the things he teaches. Twice, Rick has been told that a woman prays for him every day...a woman whom he does not know.

1Corinthians 6:11

Lesson #257 Thursday

November 17, 2005

Controversy on whether or not this refers to believers or unbelievers. We must know what the text says before we know what it means to us. And such were some of you... This refers back to the Corinthians. We inevitably have been involved in some carnality. We have been and we still are. It is part of the fact of having the old sin nature. We have all had a past.

When we advance spiritually, it changes our attitudes and motivations and our actions. No spiritual growth keeps us mired in the past. Paul recalls their dubious past in v. 11 and speaks to their current unchanged modus operandi. Paul speaks to the past only to compare it to the present. For the Corinthians, their past and present are identical. These things should be different. A change of modus operandi from the past is necessary.

Paul is not saying that these were unbelievers but not they are believers based on washing, sanctification and justification. True, but not Paul's point. Paul is dealing with their reversionism. Paul wants them to be motivated to pull out of reversionism. Paul is trying to motivate them to progress in the spiritual life.

The verb here is εἰμι, which is in the imperfect tense, which is a past tense. Generally continuous event in the past. This is called a progressive imperfect, and Bobby tried to explain it, but he doesn't think that it communicated.

Progressive Imperfect Summary Points

1. The progressive imperfect contemplates a process, which is their modus operandi which went on in the past, but it continues right up to the point of Paul writing to them. Begins in the past and continues to the present.
2. In other words, there is a time progression from the past to just before the present.
3. The progressive imperfect verb refers to both the near and the far past. When speaking of the past, the imperfect does not put a time on it. It could be 5 minutes ago or 100 years ago. Progressive imperfect narrows this past down.
4. The near past is so close as to be right up to the time of the writing of this epistle. Way back in the past is one thing; but a few minutes ago is something else. Paul is saying to the Corinthians, "You haven't changed one bit."
5. We have a time continuum with this progressive imperfect.
  - a. The imperfect addresses their unbelieving past, which is from their moment of birth to the time that they believed.
  - b. It addresses the moment that they believed in Jesus Christ.
  - c. It also addresses their modus operandi as Christians in the past up to but not including the present moment.
6. So the phrase such were some of you includes their current status as believers who participate in the sins of vv. 9–10. They are behaving exactly the same on both sides of salvation right up until the time that Paul writes.
7. These are believers, not unbelievers; and we understand why Paul uses the imperfect. He is referring to their past life as unbelievers which differs not at all from their recent past as reversionists. There was no change, even though they were positionally changed at a point of time—but this positional change has no effect on them. What they are positionally is much different than what they are experientially.

Their past life as unbelievers has to change; and Paul makes this point by stating what Jesus Christ did for them. Their status was changed when they believed. "Stop living in the past.” The only difference between them in the past and now is that they are going to heaven; but there are no other changes in their lives. At salvation, then we have the greatest potential on earth; whether we utilize it or not is a whole different story.

Paul also uses the indefinite pronoun τινες = some. Some of them are in this horrible condition of reversionism. This use of this indicates that not all of them were in this condition. They are not all in reversionism. Many of them were; but not everybody. Not everyone fell into this situation.

Reversionism affects everyone, unless you can get your eyes off the people in the church. Paul makes it clear that the incestuous man was causing a ruckus in the church. They are polarized. This reversionism affects all of them.

Paul uses αλλος 3 times in this verse. The comparison between statuses.

The Absolutes and the Comparison

1. 3 of the 39 absolutes are mentioned in this verse. These are all positions in Christ (these 39 absolutes).
2. These 3 changes are contrasted to Corinthian reversionism.
3. These 3 changes are the positional bases behind the experience of becoming a mature believer.
4. It is the status of washing, sanctification and justification and the experience of spiritual advance which will transform them from where they are to something much greater. We have the potential, which we might be able to do something with.
5. The potential for spiritual advance is possible because of the positional changes provided at salvation. They are linked; they are not the same, but they are eternally linked. The ground work is done with these imputation of these absolutes. It is like laying a foundation. A foundation is not a house; but a house cannot be build without a foundation.
6. It requires positive volition to exploit the positional changes.
7. These changes occur when we have faith in Christ. Plan of God and Rebound Revisited list all 39 things that we have. We did not earn them, but we have them. We have these, so we should use them. They are our springboard for advance.

Now 3 verbs are in the ingressive Aorist, which tells us 3 of the 39 absolutes.

Ingressive Aorist

1. An ingressive Aorist views the action of the verb from the beginning.
2. With verbs that signify a state or condition and denote entrance into the state or condition. We understand these verbs as positions or conditions because of the tense.
3. In this case, the ingressive Aorist emphasizes the initial action of faith alone in Christ alone.

4. Those conditions signified by the ingressive Aorist will continue indefinitely without regard to time. The basic use of the Aorist is that it is timeless. It does not refer specifically to time, but it can refer to time. That happens here at salvation continues on forever and it does not depend upon time. At this moment, we are washed forever; we are sanctified and justified forever.
5. In other words, these 3 statuses which stem from faith identified by the 3 verbs in the ingressive Aorist begin at the specific point of salvation and they never end. In this situation, it means we do not need to every question our salvation.
6. Bobby does another diagram.

“God has washed, justified and sanctified me forever” is our testimony. God gave us something and He expects something better. We have the status; now we must grow.

Our gratefulness to God should give us motivation to represent Him in this life. 3 ingressive aorist tenses so that the Corinthians understand what they are and what they should be.

1Cor. 6:11 That is what some of you were! But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

1Corinthians 6:11

Lesson #258 Sunday 1

November 20, 2005

What the spiritual advance is and what we have in Christ. Paul has blasted the Corinthians for running their pastor out of town (Apollos was run out of town and came to Paul in Ephesus to inform him of what has occurred). Paul has dealt with the incestuous believer in their church and the suits which were occurring. There are criminals, sexual degenerates, greed, etc. amongst the members of the Corinthian church. These people are still embroiled in their own culture. They come from a Greek culture and they cannot seem to let it go. However, regardless of all of this, they are all believers. No matter how far out of line we are, there is always hope and there is always correction. There is always a way to get back to the plan of God for our lives. Paul was a murderer of many Christians and he believed that in killing Christians, he was serving God; but, he nevertheless became the greatest believer of all time. There is never a time that we should be without hope. Obviously, in Corinth, some of these believers have not grown even one inch in the spiritual life. These are babies in Christ. It is not all of their sins which are the problem; it is the fact that they need to grow up. These people are losers in the spiritual life; but they are believers. Paul is attempting to correct their reversionism. The Corinthians probably figured that Paul did not know about what was happening there. When he enumerates these problems, they are probably shocked.

Paul tells them here what they should become experientially based upon what they already are.

1Cor. 6:11a And such were some of you!

Paul is not politically correct. He is dogmatic. He does not obfuscate; he lays it on the line. Pastors are trapped by the relative standards of the culture all around them. The US is entrenched in relative standards. Human and divine viewpoint are indistinguishable to our culture. They are lost in do-goodism. People occasionally trip over some divine good. Nothing is more important to Paul than to see believers grown in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. Paul does not care if he is politically correct. Paul does not care what network television news thinks he should say.

Imperfect tense of εἰμι. A progressive imperfect, which considers all the activities of the Corinthians in the past. However, the past also includes moments just prior to Paul writing this epistle. The progressive imperfect includes the near and the far past. It represents a time continuum. Past <————>a few seconds ago. The present is where the past stops; the progressive imperfect stops just short of the present. This continuum moves from the distant past (when the Corinthians were unbelievers) to the near past (while Paul writes this epistle). Even though positionally, in their past, they became believers, at this point in time, there is no difference in their behavior. They had a certain modus operandi prior to salvation and they are continuing this modus operandi even until now. The Corinthians were unbelievers in the past with a certain set of behaviors; and now they are believers, with a change of status, but their behavior has continued unchanged.

If you are in church for any other reason than to metabolize doctrine, you are in the same boat as the Corinthians here. Our only revocable asset is the filling of the Holy Spirit. We all got 39 irrevocable assets and one revocable asset. The Corinthians received all of these as well. We may like to look at our financial statements now and again in order to see how we stand financially; how much more important is our spiritual life, so how much more important would it be to review our 39 irrevocable assets.

To whom much is given in the salvation position, much is expected in the exterior salvation experience. There should be epistemological rehabilitation. The potential for spiritual advance is possible because of the spiritual assets given to us at salvation. It is these positional changes which give us this potential. "Here is where you are; here is where you should be," is what Paul is telling them. All that it takes now is positive volition toward doctrine at this point.

Paul will identify what these Corinthians are positionally by using 3 verbs, which will represent 3 of the 39 things given to them at salvation. These are 3 of the positional transformations which occur at a point in time. They are all aorist tenses. These are all Ingressive aorists. Ingressive means when or where something starts. We are looking at the beginning in past time. The progressive imperfect puts us in the past. The beginning of them is a past event. These additional verbs indicate a state or a condition.

Ingressive Aorist of *to Wash

1. The initial action of believing in Christ alone with faith alone. This occurred in the past.
2. Entrance into 3 statuses specified by the 3 verbs.

3. It emphasizes these 3 conditions continuing indefinitely in time. There is no ending to this position.
4. These 3 verbs begin at salvation and there is no ending to them.

Diagram of the Ingressive aorist. In this situation, the point in time that these things begin is the cross. However, we begin here at the cross, the point at which it begins. The condition continues without regard to time. It continues into eternity.

This first verb is the aorist middle indicative of απολουω = to wash. A reflexive middle; you yourselves were washed. Entire sects of Christianity interpret this as water baptism. Water baptism is a ritual which does not save. Any ritual by a person will never save anyone. The blood of bulls and goats never brings anyone to salvation. The ritual of baptism is a testimony, but it does not save. It is a testimony that we are in Christ.

There are three words here and they should all fit together. These are 3 positions and not 2 positions and a ritual. One of the great oppositions that Rick Hughes receives is from those who believe in baptism regeneration. This is a false doctrine which leads many people astray. Anyone who believes that water baptism saves them is not saved. This is not a mere ritual here. This is something that we receive by faith alone in Christ alone; it is something that we receive from God the Holy Spirit.

Efficacious grace is a specific ministry of the Holy Spirit which acknowledges and transforms the non meritorious faith of a spiritually dead person. No spiritually dead person's faith saves them. Without the work of the Holy Spirit, just the positive volition of the unbeliever could never result in regeneration and eternal life (1Cor. 2:12). Only what the Holy Spirit does is effective. No man can accomplish with his own works what Jesus has done for us on the cross.

1Cor. 6:11b But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

1Corinthians 6:11

Lesson #259 Sunday 2

November 20, 2005

washed is the aorist middle indicative of . Let's look up at Titus 3:5: He saved us--not by works of righteousness that we had done, but according to His mercy, through the washing of regeneration and renewal by the Holy Spirit. Some people think that there are good deeds in order to be saved. How many good deeds would be enough? Is there a cut off point? Will you show up before God and be one short? All it takes is one sin to reduce you to a level of condemnation. When we present the gospel, we should focus on grace. We are not saved on the basis of good deeds which we have done (which includes water baptism); but by His mercy through the washing of regeneration. This verse gives us our salvation package. Being washed means that we were regenerated.

What Do We Have Here?

1. Regeneration is the theological term for being born again. It is spiritual birth. John 3. We cannot go back into our mother's womb and be reborn; there is a spiritual rebirth; not a physical rebirth.
2. This birth is the imputation of eternal life to the divinely created human spirit. Every spiritually-dead human being is dichotomous.
3. A regenerate person passes from spiritual death into eternal spiritual life in the twinkling of an eye. There is really no time lag. It is immediate. The aorist tense means a point in time. This continues on for eternity. It is irrevocable; we cannot lose it; it is good for all time. Once born, it cannot be taken back. This is true of physical and spiritual births. "In my flesh, I will see God," said Job.
4. Regeneration consummates forgiveness of the pre-salvation sins and establishes an eternal relationship with God which can never be removed. How many Christians live in constant fear that their salvation is not theirs for all eternity? What a tragedy this all is. The wonder of rebound. The pre-salvation sins are gone and post-salvation sins cannot remove our salvation.

Aorist middle indicative of ἀπολουω = to wash. These Corinthians are still saved, but they have gone back to their old mode. They returned to all of the things which Greeks did at that time. They reverted. Paul reminds them of their status of salvation in order for them to go in the correct direction. When Adam fell in the garden, we all died. We are spiritually dead. We have rebound now to handle our sins in our post-salvation experience.

Paul is telling them, they have been washed positionally; "...now let's get washed experientially." With their newly created human spirit, they can now understand spiritual phenomena (1Cor. 3:15). This washing of regeneration is the guarantee of the availability of an experiential spiritual life and the option for spiritual advance. This sentence explains to us what Paul is saying here. Because we are spiritually alive, we have options; options to build an edification complex. We have the option to be filled with the Holy Spirit. Washing is a reminder to these degenerate Corinthians (some of them are degenerate). This means there needs to be an experiential status which corresponds to their positional change. There needs to be an external change to match their internal change.

Regeneration and their Present Life

1. They are washed. They have been scrubbed; the Holy Spirit scoured them at the moment of salvation. These sins are no longer in the way.
2. They have the condition of regeneration; they are no longer dead in their sins and trespasses (Eph. 2:1).
3. They can start advancing spiritually any time that they are ready.
4. The washing of regeneration, mentioned in Titus 3:5 is the basis for the cleansing for the post salvation sins through rebound. Christ paid for all of our sins, past, present and future.

Are we motivated when someone does something great for us to express gratitude? This is similar to the gratitude that we should have to Jesus Christ and why we should advance spiritually. We should never worry about death because we will remain here as long as God wants us to be here. Until that plan is over, nothing can remove us. When that plan is over, nothing can keep us here. At death, at a memorial service, Bobby makes it clear that this person is face to face with God. There are very few things about heaven in the Bible. What is described to us is nothing compared to what is there. When God's plan for us is over, what awaits us is incredible. Death is nothing more than going home. We must be motivated by having this understanding. We have an eternal inheritance which is reserved for us in heaven. There is also a difference between what believers receive in heaven. Our focus needs to be on this. "Those people at Berachah church, they just sit on their hands and do nothing." is a complaint which Bobby hears. What an insult this is. Other church members who say that we are not doing enough are often those who are out hustling doing human good. What we do here is spiritual growth and then we exercise our spiritual growth.

Paul is trying to motivate these people; they have forgotten or ignored what they are in Christ. They have reverted to what they were before Christ; yet, they still have their position in Christ. They must take hold of the spiritual life and they must make use of the salvation package. Spiritual advance is not inevitable; our volition is a part of this advance. Positive volition, the filling of the Holy Spirit, and taking in doctrine is necessary.

1Cor. 6:11b But you were washed,...

An Ingressive aorist passive indicative of  $\acute{\alpha}\gamma\iota\alpha\zeta\omega$  = to be sanctified. The aorist tense means that this verb belongs to the same event as washed. They all take place at the same time and they make up a position which continues forever.

There are 3 types of sanctification; and this refers to positional sanctification.

Sanctification

1.  $\acute{\alpha}\gamma\iota\alpha\zeta\omega$  means that we are sanctified at the moment that we believe in Christ.
2. This is a condition or status of holiness. It is not yet a happening of salvation.
3. Just because we have this status, it does not mean that we will actually practice this holiness. Our volition is a part of this growth. We are on the same level as Mother Theresa, because this refers to a position, not to an experience. We are set-apart to God; this here is positional.
4. Positional sanctification is the same as being made righteous. We are justified. This is the same event. We are made righteous; we are forgiven; we are made holy. We have these things positionally; do we indicate any of this by our lives? Does our experience match our position? So few Christians separate experiential sanctification and positional sanctification. The holiness movement gets all of this confused. This is how we get baptismal regeneration or a disbelief of eternal security. We receive these things in a point in time and we keep those things, regardless of what we do in time. There is a distinction between positional and experiential sanctification; but there is a connection. One is possible, because the other exists. There is a 3rd sanctification, which is ultimate sanctification. We are potentially sanctified. We will never be completely holy in this life; as we progress experientially, we progress in sanctification.

5. Sanctification is not the end all; but it gives us the potential in life.

1Cor. 6:11c ...you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

1Corinthians 6:11 Sanctification Lesson #260 Wednesday November 23, 2005

We band of brothers on Thanksgiving Eve.

Our country is facing a very dangerous threat, as dangerous as World War II. Very few of us think that it is possible to lose the war that we are in and few know the consequences of this loss.

Article: Can we lose this war and what does losing really mean? We can lose this war because many of us cannot fathom what the second question means. We think that bringing our troops home and hanging our heads like Viet Nam. We would no longer be the premier nation. The terrorists want us dead, not just quiet. The attacks would continue and increase. This war began in 1979 when our embassy in Iran was stormed and hostages taken for 444 days. Pan Am flight blown up. 1996 bombing. Nairobi Kenya embassy bombed. Several others named, and World Trade Center in 2001. From 1981–2001 there were 7000+ terrorist attacks worldwide. The idea was for terrorists to attack us. Who would depend upon us if we pull away when it gets difficult. Terrorists will take one nation at a time. They already hold Spain hostage. Spain did it because the terrorists bombed their train and told them to withdraw from Isran, and they did. The next will be France. They might realize that, if we don't win, they're gone too, If we cannot stop the Muslims, who can? They are committed to winning at any cost.

Examples of how we don't understand the terrorist attack. The secretary of transportation will not allow profiling, even though all terrorist attacks were done by men between 17–40. Do I blame President Bush and Clinton before him? I blame all of us for thinking that we can have a clean, lawful, honorable war. It almost seems like some would like to see us lose; it is because they have no idea what losing would mean.

Recently had incidents with terrorists, and these are men who were throwing people off buildings after cutting out their tongues and hands. Provided videos of beheadings for press. Our press has talked and talked about humiliating these prisoners. Brings our country to a virtual standstill, is like Nero playing the fiddle while Rome burns.

Their goal is to kill all infidels. We have been criticized for many years for being arrogant. It is true in one respect. We think we can win the hands and hearts of those who oppose us and that we can defeat any nation with our hands tied behind our back.

Name any Muslim nation with freedom of speech, etc.

If we do not win this war, watch Muslims take over France in the next 5 years. The French will be fighting among themselves over what should or should not be done, keeping them from political resolve. Doesn't that sound eerily familiar? They have shown that when they are in control, they will not stop killing each other. Will we ever stop hearing about peaceful Muslims?

What is not mentioned here is our client nation status. Our spiritual advance is critical.

1Cor. 6:11a And such were some of you!

Paul bases their case upon being wash, sanctified and justified, 3 of the 39 absolutes which we receive at salvation. These must have a particular meaning here. These are positional transformations which move in one point in time from positional death to positional life. Complete spiritual death to a status of relationship. That is exemplified by these 3 changes. These take place in one moment in time. However, these positional transformations had not been translated into experiential transformations. There is no filling of the Holy Spirit in the church. No epistemological rehabilitation. No divine viewpoint in this group. It is the experience of spiritual advance, using the spiritual resources, which transforms them from a positional change to an experiential one. These people are royalty by birth. Royal families have wonderful members, horrible members, and many in between. Now they must function like the royal family that they are. However, they have no idea what protocol is.

Aorist middle indicative of ἀπολυω = to wash. An ingressive aorist, as are the next two verbs. This means, we look at the action where it started. The initial action of believing in Jesus Christ. The ingressive aorist also tells us that these three conditions go on forever. We are looking at the beginning of the action, but that point of time continues on indefinitely. Here is where we are ἀπολυω. In Titus 3:5, washing refers to regeneration. We pass from spiritual death to spiritual life. Never be ashamed of the term born-again regardless of the sarcasm which abounds. Regeneration means that we pass from spiritual death to spiritual life. We receive the imputation of eternal life to the human spirit. We have become trichotomus. The Corinthians are being reminded of their regeneration and of this transformation. They were cleansed of all their pre-salvation sins; and they are cleansed from their post-salvation sins by rebound. This is revoked when they are carnal when they are controlled by the old sin nature. We are washed at the moment of salvation and at the moment of rebound. Washing is a reminder to these carnal, reversionistic believers in Corinth. To whom much is given, which includes the salvation package, much is expected by way of spiritual advance and maturity.

Aorist passive indicative of ἀγιάζω = to be sanctified. Ingressive aorist again; occurred at the moment of salvation with indefinite duration. The believer receives the action of the Holy Spirit. Indicative mood to the reality of the action.

Sanctification

1. Hagiazô in the ingressive aorist refers to a point of time in which sanctification takes place.
  - a. The ingressive aorist referring to a point of time means that we are speaking of positional sanctification.
  - b. We have been pronounced holy or sanctified.
  - c. This is a status of holiness, not a happening of holiness. Because we are made holy at the moment of salvation, there is no guarantee that we will progress in sanctification during our lifetime.
  - d. Progress in sanctification is called growth.
2. Positional sanctification is a parallel concept to being made righteous. Being made righteous is a position as well. We are given divine righteousness at salvation, but this does not make us perfect. We are pronounced righteous; however, we are not better or worse than we were a second before. We still have an old sin nature. As we mature, we are controlled less and less by the evil nature, and more and more by God the Holy Spirit. The more time we are filled with the Holy Spirit, the more we can grow. Spiritual growth is an experiential righteousness, as well positional righteousness.
3. Even though there is a separation between positional and experiential sanctification; but there is also a connect between the two. One is possible because of the other. The experiential is impossible without the position. The position does not guarantee the experiential.
4. There is always the third category of sanctification, which is ultimate sanctification. We will be in the perfection of a resurrection body. Our rewards and decorations will be based upon our experiential sanctification. Ultimate sanctification has a status as well—no old sin nature and being in a resurrection body. However, there is an experience as well, which is our status in heaven.
5. Positional sanctification means that we are pronounced to be in a state of holiness. We are holy.
6. We are called saints in the New Testament. We are not called saints because we do some holy deeds, but because God declared us holy. Recall that Paul called the Corinthians saints already. That is positional sanctification.
7. We are holy and set apart for all time. We are made holy by the Holy Spirit.
8. We are set apart in service to God and we no longer serve ourselves.
9. We have not yet served Him at all at the moment of salvation; but we are set up to do so by positional sanctification.
10. Experiential sanctification by way of comparison is to experience a modicum of holiness in this life. This is based upon positional sanctification.
11. Experiential sanctification means that we progress toward spiritual maturity in our lifetimes. This is a process; when you progress, it is a moving forward. It happens a little at a time. It is the process of learning doctrine and applying it to your life; the process of being filled with the Holy Spirit. The more this occurs, the more progress we make.

12. This is the relative experience of sanctification. If something is relative, there is a flexibility involved here. In some ways, that is true with sanctification. That depends upon us and our rate of advance and how we handle suffering in our life. Wonderful to go through bad situations in life and it does not even bother us. There are the times when we weep and cry and are disturbed. We realize that, in growing, that we do not have to lose sleep over difficult circumstances. If we are at a dead end in a difficult circumstance, then just let it go and let God handle it. That can be the most relaxing time. All it requires is the application of a little doctrine.
13. Absolute holiness is only our experience in heaven. This absolute holiness is a status on earth. It is a status on earth, not an experience. There are some which teach your experiential sanctification = your positional sanctification. These theologians must alter the definition of sin in order to justify their own system.

A false doctrine to be covered Sunday am.

Lesson #261 Sunday 1

November 27, 2005

The Corinthians were winners positionally, but losers experientially. Many are deep into reversionism. They are washed, justified, and sanctified. These are 3 of the 39 irrevocable absolutes which all believers receive at the moment of salvation. These are believers, despite their reversionism. These irrevocable absolutes occurred at a point in time, and these Corinthians received all of these in a point of time. These 3 represent a positional transformation, not an experiential change. We are all changed when we are saved; and these things give us the potential of becoming experientially sanctified; we have the option of becoming experientially sanctified. These 3 irrevocable absolutes characterize what it means to go from spiritual death to spiritual life, which is a condition and a status. Experiential means that they have not experienced spiritual growth as believers; they have gone nowhere in their spiritual life. They are mandated to grow, and yet they have not. Paul's point is to incite these 3 positions and to bring them into experiential growth. There is no edification complex being begun in their souls. It is the experience of spiritual advance and spiritual growth using the Holy Spirit and the infallible doctrine in the Word of God. The Corinthians need to be reformed about all of these things. Paul has already told them about all of these things before.

Paul's first reminder is that they possess the status of being washed. The person passes from spiritual death to spiritual life; he is born-again. He receives the imputation of eternal life to the regenerated spirit. Their current and continuous position. Rebound cleanses them from post-salvation sins. This allows them to regain fellowship with God in time. We always have a relationship with God which lasts forever and can never be taken away. When we sin, we don't have fellowship. In our lives, we have a family relationship whether we want it or not. We can always recover that fellowship. This cleansing is positional and it is critical for empowering the experiential. These Corinthians, at salvation, have a potential; they can learn and understand spiritual phenomena. This is the basis for them growing in grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The second verb in the ingressive aorist of sanctified positionally; they are declared holy, which can be a loaded word in Christianity. It can mean all sorts of things. There is a holiness movement which says we must be holy through tongues, healings, etc. This is actually a position. The verb is ἁγιαζω; we are called saints and the Corinthians are called saints (1Cor. 1:2) right from the beginning, even though they are anything but to our way of thinking. For 6 chapters, Paul has described just how unsaintly these people are; but, positionally, they are sanctified forever. We are given divine righteousness at the moment that we believe in Jesus Christ. Being given divine righteousness does not make us perfect in our thoughts and behavior. Having absolute righteousness does not mean that we are absolutely righteous in our daily actions. We have a status of sanctification. We are sanctified, not because we do holy deeds in this life; we are sanctified even if we are the worst person in town. We may have partied all night and wandered into church with a hangover, and we are still sanctified.

It is not Paul's intent to make these Corinthians feel sanctified. Positional sanctification simply means that you have a potential; we have the potential for experiencing something. This is an incomplete situation experientially. Positionally, we are completely holy; in experience, we are not.

We must always distinguish between the positional and the experiential. The two are connected, but they are never the same. The experiential is possible because of the positional. It is never that you are positionally sanctified, therefore, you are experientially sanctified. Experiential sanctification requires the filling of the Holy Spirit along with the intake of doctrine and then the application of doctrine to life. Do not be like the Corinthians, who knew what they are positionally, but have done nothing with it. Our position in Christ means that we have an obligation. Paul's point—you have a position, so now experience that position. You do not have an excuse to disregard spiritual progress in your life. No one will reach perfection in time; but there will be perfection in the future, which is ultimate sanctification.

Bobby promised on Wednesday that he would give a false doctrine today, but he has a reason for doing this. There is a theological system which touts an entire sanctification for us as believers while here in this life. The experience and position are equated by this movement. Some of the great falsehoods have come about in Christianity through this.

The definition of sin is distorted; any lack of or deviation from conformity to the expressed will of God. At some point, we lack a lack of conformity to the expressed will of God in Scripture.

Wesleyan system of sanctification: sin is a voluntary transgression of the known laws of God. The idea is, if you did not mean to sin or did not know it was sin, then you did not sin. I didn't know that is a sin. When you don't know it is a sin, then it is not a sin. In the legal realm, ignorance of the law is never an excuse. We may not know a certain traffic violation; the traffic cop writing the violation does not care if you know the law or not. No matter what crime you commit, it is a crime whether you are aware that it is or not. With sin, you cannot mitigate it by saying, "I didn't know that was a sin" or "I didn't mean to sin." No matter what, you have still committed a sin. Without knowledge, intent or action, there is no sin. A distinction is made between sin and weakness. We must detach ourselves from the things of the world and attach ourselves to that which is spiritual. We never entirely detach ourselves from the things of this life, although we are constantly in progress of doing so. To get there, we must have a different definition of sin. The experience of sanctification is impossible to achieve fully; it is a spiritual progression; but it is never completed. This Wesleyan system is more complex than what Bobby is teaching; he is teaching the falso to more clearly express the truth. Change the standards, you can achieve anything. If you change the definition, then you change the standard.

We have cointuinally change our standards, and many of these are done by claming that everything is relative. However, to God, nothing is relative. God is not relative; His standards never change. They are always in place. These are the standards that we must use. As believers, we must evaluate ourselves with divine standards. We will never reach entire sanctification, but we will progress toward it spiritually. Our drive toward spiritual maturity must never cease while we are alive. We can never cease this in our lives. We can never say, "I am mature and I have reached the pinnacle of spiritual maturity and I cannot progress any further." If you don't continue to move forward, then you are going downhill. Anytime you decide that Bible doctrine inculcated in your soul is enough, then you are on the way down.

Bobby runs into people who say, "I learned everything that I know from Berachah" and it was 20 years ago when they last went. They are going to a new church, where they learn nothing. Experiential sanctification is synonymous with spiritual advance, and it depends upon the function of 3 spiritual skills. We are given 3 spiritual skills and we must continue to utilize them. We metabolize doctrine through gap, which continuously allows us to grow. You construct the edification complex structure of the soul and you use the 10 problem solving devices to move. The spiritual life is like golf; you don't ever arrive; you cannot just quit and expect that you will advance.

1Corinthians 6:11

Lesson #262 Sunday 2

November 27, 2005

The third positional change is δικαιω. Justification occurs at the moment of salvation and it has no ending. Imputation of divine righteousness to the believer through faith in Christ. The ingressive aorist. There is a point in time during which we are justified.

What is justification?

1. Justification is an imputation of divine righteousness to the believer where righteousness did not previously exist. There is no true righteousness in any person. We might do a few good deeds, but that means nothing. One sin means that we no longer have any fellowship with God. Justification is the imputation of a true righteousness.
2. This is a forensic or judicial act at the moment of faith in Christ.
3. We are not righteous; we are declared to be righteous. Abraham did not suddenly become holy because he believed; God simply imputed His righteousness to Abraham.
4. There are three logical steps to justification. We are given all absolutes at a moment of time.
  - a. Faith in Jesus Christ.
  - b. God imputes perfect righteousness to us as a believer.
  - c. Once we have this righteousness, God judicially pronounces us justified. When then official possess His righteousness; however, all of this happens at one time. It occurs in a moment.
5. Forgiveness subtracts sin; imputation adds His righteousness.
6. How can God freely give us His righteousness without compromising His integrity? Why are we made righteous when we are still sinners? All of our personal sins were imputed to Jesus Christ on the cross and He paid for these sins.
  - a. Jesus Christ paid the penalty for us sins when they were imputed to Him.
  - b. Once these sins are imputed to Him, they are no longer our sins; they are reckoned to Jesus Christ. He paid the penalty for them.
  - c. By this act of imputing sins to Christ, those sins are no longer an issue in His dealings with us. We have repercussions in life for sins; but, our sins are not a problem in our positional relationship to God.
  - d. God's justice and righteousness are satisfied at the cross. This is why we have this righteousness. This is what Jesus Christ did for us; this is why He suffered for us. Do you think He did this so that we could be hell-raisers for the rest of our lives? Of course not.
  - e. God is satisfied; so He is free to impute His righteousness to us. Christ paid the penalty. There is no compromise now.
  - f. When anyone believes in Christ. God's righteousness and justice are free to do so. It is incredible that we, who are dead in our trespasses and sin; who are self righteous and impressed with ourselves; we who have mental attitude sins all the time, we who gossip and hate, we who murder, we who do ever imaginable sin, God gave us His righteousness. And God does this without compromising any part of His character to declare us righteous. This is Paul's reminder to the Corinthians.
  - g. God, therefore, recognizes that He has given us perfect righteousness. This vindicates us in His eyes. Did we do anything for it? Of course not! Do we get vinci dated by the scale of our good deeds exceeds our bad deeds? Of course not! We are vindicated simply because what Jesus Christ has done.

We share His perfection. That is what it means to be in Christ. We share everything that He is and everything that He has.

- h. We are not sinless during this life; we still have a sin nature in this life; we are tempted and we sin. Justification simply means that we have His righteousness present in us. Rom. 4:3–5
  - i. Justification is a relationship with the integrity of God. We possess the perfect righteousness of God, and this is maintained forever.
7. There is a connection between justification and sanctification. What is this connection?
- a. We can be pronounced holy in positional sanctification because we possess His righteousness. It is His righteousness, not ours.
  - b. In positional sanctification, we can be permanently set apart for service to the Lord based upon the possession of His righteousness.
  - c. Why? He cannot reject His own righteousness. God loves His righteousness wherever it is found. That is the basis of His love for us: His righteousness—not something which we have done. His love is faithful and this righteousness is eternal, because it belongs to Him.
  - d. The possessor of this righteousness is acceptable to God forever. We have gained the favor of God, not because of something which we have done, but based upon Him.
8. Summation: we are declared holy because we possess His righteousness. It is all positional and it is eternal (because of the Ingressive aorist). We are declared holy because we possess His righteousness. We are, therefore, under obligation to Him, which means that we do not return to our former way of thinking or to our former lifestyle.
9. God is not proud of us because of what we do for Him; He is proud of us for reaching spiritual maturity, which is all based upon what He has done for us. This means that we will perform true deeds of divine good. We will accrue more inheritance in heaven. We understand His mandates and His plan. People who flounder around by trying to do good deeds...there is no difference between that and unbelievers also doing good deeds. To whom much is given—washing, justification, sanctification—much is expected, by way of spiritual growth.

If only I had this or that job; if only I have a better salary, so I could buy this, or do that. But that would not be lasting happiness. What is in your soul would take over after a few hours or a few days or weeks. The change in the soul only moves forward with spiritual maturity. It begins with the positional; it moves into the experiential; and ends with eternal perfection.

Paul names the source of justification and sanctification: Jesus Christ. Paul, in making the Lord Jesus Christ, cites the authority for His statement for being Positionally changed. Jesus Christ is our Savior; He provided by way of the cross justification and sanctification; we cannot do that for ourselves. This is why Paul cites the authority and source of our change.

Greek: εν τοι πνευματι = by means of the spirit. Paul invokes the means by which we have position in Jesus Christ. God the Father planned this perfect plan; Jesus Christ performed His plan; the Holy Spirit conveys these absolutes to us. Christ did the work; the Holy Spirit conveyed it to us. It is the Holy Spirit Who provides the power to live the Christian way of life. This is how the positional is connected to the experiential. The Holy Spirit gives us these irrevocable absolutes and it is the Holy Spirit Who empowers us to use the assets which He has given us.

The position is the indwelling of the Holy Spirit; the experience is glorifying God, accomplished by the filling of the Holy Spirit. An old way of life is contrasted with a new way of life. Paul contrasts what they Corinthians were in their sins and trespasses with how they are now as believers, justified. The Corinthians have incurred an obligation with what God has given them in Christ.

A Summary of Points

1. We are separated from what we were in the past.
2. They have been cleansed, justified and sanctified.
3. Consequently, they are no longer dead; they are spiritually alive (Eph. 2:1–5).
4. They are now outfitted with a new experience in life.
5. Paul's point is, they must experientially separate from their old manner of life.
6. Here is what these reversionists must take in this study. They haven't gotten it yet; they don't know exactly what it means; they have not yet utilized the fantastic grace resources provided for them. Paul hopes that the Corinthians will catch onto grace orientation and that they will understand what it means to them in their Christian life. He is trying to correct their ignorance and self-deception.

Lesson #263 Wednesday

November 30, 2005

Borrowing the FX computer

Bobby is reading an article; an Op Ed piece. Eva and his men were to help bridge the Euphrates River and to cross over to take positions held by insurgents. House-to-house fighting and they had to blast in each house like Starskey and Hutch. Some insurgents hid in a crawl space under the door sill, and they would shoot up for those who came in. Every time the problem is a lack of military personnel. Most Americans cannot name a single war hero; this receives absolutely no press. There is no question that this is a war and a war that we must win.

Bobby got a poem from a missionary in Nicaragua and Costa Rica. A Christmas poem, which Bobby will read in the future.

Lawsuits in chapter 6 and reversionism in 9 and 10.

The Corinthians were unaware how much doctrine encompassed. Doctrine should permeate every aspect of our lives. They did not realize that there was a connection between their new position in Christ and the experience of their life in Christ. This is always the problem where spiritual reversionism and failure is present.

One of the problems is the continued influence of the surrounding culture. They had every form of degeneracy and sin in the city of Corinth. The influence of our surrounding culture is just as great for us as it is for the Corinthians in the time in which they live. This section clarifies our own times using the culture of their time. Whatever culture deviation we have at this time is paralleled in Corinth. There was the temple of Aphrodite, rampant fornication and adultery, the acceptance of homosexuality and lesbianism as legitimate lifestyle; the arrogance which accompanies all reversionism. They are new creatures, but they don't think like new creatures.

Apparently, this next section which stomps on some toes here. Bobby needs to teach what is here, whether he wants to or not. If you don't deal with the whole realm of doctrine, then you don't fully understand our place in this world or our obligations. Basically, we are required to think and live by the standards set forth by Bible doctrine.

We must metabolize Bible doctrine and think divine viewpoint. People leave churches skeptical; doctrine doesn't work; they often have a need for instant gratification. We are used to everything in our society occurring quickly; if we want it, we get it. That is arrogance and self-indulgence. There is a change of thinking which accompanies doctrine. Some people don't think doctrine when under pressure. If you don't perceive much difference in yourself, that does not mean that doctrine is not affecting your life. It can be subtle and even imperceptible to us. As we consistently listen and metabolize doctrine and accept, a change of thinking does occur.

For instance, you don't get strong for a few weight workouts. It is a gradual change; you build yourself up and sometimes it is imperceptible. When you look back where you have been, you realize how far you have come. Bobby goes to the golf metaphor. You never completely master that little ball and the way that it goes. In golf, there are mechanics, and a golf swing can be broken down into 3 areas. Backswing; hand position, club position; then the transition to the forward swing until the clubhead is in just the right position; and the follow through should be in exactly the same way as the ball goes. Millions of words have been written about these three things. No matter what theory you buy, no matter how you decide to deal with this swing, it must end up in muscle memory. It must be automatic; it does not happen overnight. It takes a lot of swings; the learning never ends. Sometimes, when you dwell on the bad shots, then you can't get it right. This parallels doctrine. In the Christian life, you don't get discouraged; you keep at it. Eventually, your good shots outnumber your bad shots; but the change is so imperceptible that you don't notice it. Sometimes, you cannot see the forest for the trees. You just keep it up; you stay with it.

There is a particular time when you best realize just how much you have grown in the spiritual realm, when you are under pressure, and you realize just how far you have come.

Pressure and suffering can be beneficial. When these things occur, we suddenly realize that we have really moved forward. Bobby plays golf with some people who really get upset when they make a bad shot. But you don't think about the last golf swing, you think about the next. There is a difference in facing pressure with poise or with panic. The payoff is a way of thinking which handles everything in life. Everything that we do is actually enjoyable, whether suffering or blessing. Whether you see it or not, your swing is getting better; and your soul is becoming dominated by divine viewpoint. Divine viewpoint should never be far from your thinking. This does not mean that you have to spout out holy things in order to impress others.

In golf, you can make a dozen bad shots, but you make a great shot and you come back again, simply because of that great shot. Even before we get into vv. 12-20. We cannot make an doctrinal application for anyone else; only for ourselves.

A caution is applicable at this point: we must advance by learning and applying the Word of God. Some people learn too much; that is, they learn just enough to make themselves dangerous. They may think they know too much, but it is enough to be dangerous. Without grace orientation, which only comes with a great deal of doctrine in the soul, arrogance kicks in. There are so many amateur pastors and theologians; they have enough doctrine to criticize, which initiates the problem of church hopping and itching ears, or listening to various pastors concurrently. We become the arbiter of doctrine. We become, in a sense, ecumenical. They may teach the same things, but that is not the point; it gives you license to balance and compare pastor teachers based upon your knowledge of God's Word, as opposed to theirs. You cannot advance when you play one pastor against the other.

We aren't here to compare different pastors; we are here to grow; it is inculcation, not by comparison, by which we grow. In this situation, you are not concentrating on what you are hearing, but upon how these pastors compare. Get under one pastor teacher, accept his authority, and grow there. That is optimum. When we listen to others, we become arrogant in our own knowledge of doctrine. That is the nature of comparison. Bobby is pretty worked up about this subject, as it is an ongoing problem. He wants us to grow to the optimum. He knows that if we don't accept his authority, then we will not advance. If you cannot accept what is being said, then go somewhere where you like the way it is presented.

1Corinthians 6:11

Lesson #264 Thursday

December 1, 2005

There should be a connection between what we are about to study in the second half of this chapter and the first half. This new section also deals with law; it is the code of Christian conduct. These will be the laws by which we live our lives. Paul reveals the correct thinking and actions of the code of conduct. The premise is that we incur an obligation as believers with the status of being in Christ. The code of Christian conduct in vv. 12–20 is a part of this obligation. We must learn to conform to His standards and they must become our standards, however imperfectly. We must begin to adhere to His standards as the code of Christian conduct. We cannot fulfill the code until we know it.

Knowledge of Bible doctrine comes only through inculcation. The divine standards are inculcated in our soul. In the military, they teach a code of conduct; we must know the standards to which we are held. We must become epistemologically rehabilitated. Deceleration: I've heard that before. There are no flashy, immediate, spectacular results. It is a slow, steady process, which sometimes causes us to be discouraged. This discouragement can also cause some deceleration. This can end up being a loss of interest in Bible doctrine, which is when spiritual progress comes to a screeching halt. These results only occur over an extended cycle of metabolism of doctrine, followed by the application of said doctrine to our lives. Every night we are a little more advanced; every time we apply doctrine to another circumstance, we are accelerated a little more.

We accelerate also when we apply doctrine when under pressure or under stress. This means that we are thinking clearly and objectively when our minds don't want to think in this mode, but we want to panic instead. Applying doctrine under pressure is a test as to how well we have learned and applied the doctrine which is available to us. It is also a test as to how important the spiritual life is to us. Do we panic; do we fall back on human viewpoint? Are we remaining attached to our own relative standards or do we adhere to the absolute standards of doctrine? Epistemological rehabilitation means that we go from relative standards to absolute standards. Learning doctrine can cause us to become dangerous; the incursion of the arrogance of knowledge. It is the arrogance of knowledge. The believer with such knowledge detached from the filling of the Holy Spirit or from the authority of his pastor teacher. The result is itching ears or being a church tramp or listening to several pastors concurrently. It is the idea that, "I am now capable of listening to several different views and I can pick and choose what I believe to be correct." You are setting yourself up as the authority. Sitting on the fence does not facilitate our spiritual growth. You might get too concerned over this doctrine which you have heard before from someone else, and they taught it differently, and you spend too much time comparing the two. It is inculcation, not comparison. The attempt to correlate pastors and doctrines is you usurping the pastor's authority. You are sitting on the fence looking into the backyards of several different pastors. You reject or question that which you do not understand or have heard from someone else, but you aren't sure which way you should go. You sidestep the authority of your pastor teacher for your own authority.

We might think that Bobby is being self-serving here. Those who do not learn from Bobby, need to go elsewhere and find some authority that you can accept. Bobby is not trying to bolt us to the seats of Berachah Church. Don't sit on the fence and listen to everyone concurrently; find the person who you can submit to and listen to them. Stick it out with one pastor. Pastors are not infallible. Bobby can get out of fellowship; he can make bad decisions in exegesis. However, he does teach enough perfection for us to grow. When you sidestep pastoral authority, this means you have given yourself permission to determine which doctrines are accurate and which are not. We become the doctrinal arbiter, even though we do not have the gift of pastor teacher. Bobby is prepared theologically and by gift and by education to delve into Scripture. We are not prepared to do that. We must take in doctrine with humility. Otherwise arrogance will creep in with the more that we know without metabolizing it. Knowledge must always be tempered with humility.

We are the arbiter of our own application; however, we do not get to decide who is correct. This does not mean that we are to become an automaton who just listens and believes, no matter what. This is the short way to divine discipline. We have lost the concept of the local church for us. We have rejected the authority orientation and the humiliation necessary for doctrinal application. It is not just the knowledge but the humility to accept and apply. We cannot be the arbiter of what is truth or not.

Sometimes we isolate sometimes on a doctrine that fits our needs or we can apply immediately. This might result with a false application from this doctrine because we make it fit our own desires. This is not divine viewpoint. You do not superimpose your own views over doctrine.

This is illustrated well by the wife who hammers her husband with Eph. 5. Show me some sacrifice. However, the application the woman should make is, "Be subject to your husbands as to the Lord." This means she follows his lead; she respects him. This has been the problem since Eve fell. The desire of a woman is to usurp the authority of the husband. Do not use doctrine in that way. When a woman quotes that one phrase, she has made application for her husband but not for herself. You do not use doctrine that way. You do not use doctrine to manipulate. You only use doctrine yourself. You do not manipulate others by using doctrine. God takes His Word very seriously; Bible doctrine is to be applied to ourselves; not to others. We don't tell someone else how they should apply doctrine. Ditto for the husband who uses this passage to expect the woman to submit to him. He must apply that which applies to him; she must apply that which applies to her. You cannot make the application for the other person. Do not focus on what you want, but on what you give. You can only apply doctrine which is pertinent to yourself. Allow the other person the freedom to apply doctrine to themselves. Just let God have His way through the soul of another person.

Learning an application of doctrine always involves humiliation and authority orientation. If you use doctrine to manipulate someone or quote just enough to make your point, you have lost it. You never make the application for others (the exception is parents for children).

There are times when doctrine should be mentioned to someone who is in desperate straits or in a difficult situation. But, you never use doctrine for your own advantage or to gain an advantage. You must give doctrinal advice as a help to them; but not to make the application for them. When you try to force doctrine down their throats or approach someone in arrogance or you use doctrine as a club to beat them, what you intended was not good to begin with. It takes patience—especially when it is something which applies to you or affects you. It is not something you do to get your way or to manipulate them. That idea of patience requires humility and a relaxed mental attitude. Without a relaxed mental attitude, you are guaranteed to be impatient.

A malady of parents for adult children; you don't get to apply doctrine for adult children. At that point, it becomes manipulation. You must let them be adults; you have already done your job. Parents can offer refreshment and you can give advice; just do not force some action upon them or manipulate them.

Find a pastor that you can learn from and stay under their authority. We are obligated to the Lord for obedience to His standards. A popular term in Christianity today: accountability. By this, some mean obedience to their false standards and prejudices. They expect you to obey their legalistic views and their taboos. Accountability is manipulation. It is not personal application of doctrine.

We do have some obligations toward people and it is all part of the code of Christian conduct. Bobby is not giving us license to react to taboos and legalism with antinomianism. This does not mean you get to rub it in their faces; "Watch while you watch me do what you don't want me to do." There is a law of liberty, but there is a responsibility within this law.

We've all said at one time or another, "I'm going to do what I want to do." When we are arrogant, we conform only to our own standards. In many other places, Christianity is nothing more than coercion; do what I want you to do; be what I want you to be. Live your life the way I think you ought to live. When you go into a small study group, you open yourself up to their standards and their prejudices. There is a loss of privacy when you have some sharing time and give your opinion about this or that. One-on-one or small study groups mean that you open yourself up to the taboos and prejudices of the person who is sitting next to you. You can discuss doctrine with others and you can discuss viewpoints; but the inculcation must come from a qualified pastor. Those study groups can be dangerous; others want to make application for you; they want to make you accountable to them. Often, those who lead these groups are not qualified to do so.

Letters: "I needed some clarification" and they keep listening, and, in a lesson or two, they say, "And you gave me exactly what I needed when I needed it." So you don't have to run to someone to get the clarification. This happens every time without fail. If you need it and you ask for it, you get it. God will never need us hanging; when we need specific doctrine for specific circumstances, God will provide that. We always need the doctrinal standards.

1Corinthians 6:11

Lesson #265 Sunday 1

December 4, 2005

We have completed lawsuits and Corinthian reversionism. Vv. 12–20 begin a whole new subject. Bobby faced particular rules and a code of conduct in his home; a code of conduct in the military, often called an honor code. There are codes and standards in the workplace as well. Things we can or cannot do. Every organization has some set of rules or laws that we must submit to. As believers in Jesus Christ, we must think and operate by the mandates and principles set forth by Bible doctrine. It has been called the Royal Family Honor Code. As part of the royal family, we have a code by which we should live; it is a system of spiritual integrity. No believer has an excuse to stray from that code. We must honor the King of Kings and glorify Him. Absolute truth will tolerate nothing less than the royal honor code. It relates to every function in relationship to unbelievers, believers and to the nation in which we live. This honor code is apparently our next subject? We cannot live by the code unless we know what the statutes of that code are. We must know about what is expected of us in this code. This is not our own relative, accommodating, adaptive standards; but the true standards of the Word of God. Our own rules change along with what we want or so that we can violate this law. The standards of the Royal Family Honor Code are perfect and absolute and do not change. Our obligation as believers in Jesus Christ is to concentrate on and conform to the Royal Family Honor Code. There is no adjusting it or changing it in order to fit our own relative, human standards. God's code is immutable and His code is immutable as well. When standards change, then we are confused as to what we should do. We continually see a shifting group of standards. We can always have a great comfort in the perfect standards of God. You might begin a new job and wonder what is expected; what is considered success and what is failure? The boss might change the code to fit what he wants; one day it is one thing and the next day, it is something else. That is the detriment of a shifting code. We never have to be concerned about God's standards. All we have to do is know His perfect standards.

This first epistle to the Corinthians is to bring compliance to the Royal Family Honor Code. This is a summary of what we have studied. This church is not in compliance; they do not understand. They have their own ideas as to what this code should be. But there is no human viewpoint in the Royal Family Honor Code. We know what God's standards are. The Corinthians should be applying doctrine from the standards which are in their souls; however, they do not have any doctrine in their souls.

Jesus Christ will be the final victor in the angelic conflict and the Royal Family Honor Code will stand forever. These standards must be revealed to the Corinthians then and to us now. They desperately needed an honor code. This code must be inculcated; it must be written in our souls. Our actions and thoughts must glorify God. Paul knows that this is the code, and he verbally communicated it to the Corinthians and he communicates it to them by epistle as well. They have the code in writing; and we have it in writing as well.

The pastor teacher communicates the absolute principles of the Royal Family Honor Code. He must have the gift and be qualified through training and education. The optimum way for a believer to grow to spiritual maturity is to put oneself under the authority of a qualified pastor teacher and concentrate on what is taught. Authority is important in understanding any code. The code is authority. Our pastor represents authority in teaching the code. But we do not know this code to the optimum by listening to several pastors concurrently. This means that you are not under the authority of a pastor with that particular gift. If several pastors are in doctrinal agreement, then why do you need to listen to other pastors? There are minor differences even of pastors in a particular camp. We will inevitably get distracted when we perceive some difference. When we hear a difference, then we automatically compare. However, it is not our purpose to compare pastors and their teachings. At this point, we become the arbiter of our own faith; we determine what is right...even though we do not have the spiritual gift; even though we are sheep; even though we do not have the educational background. As a sheep, we are a blank slate and we are to fill this slate with doctrinal teaching.

Example of Bobby's. The last seminary that Bobby went to was Trinitarian for his PhD. He heard it all from covenant theologians to dispensational theologians, and they believe the same essential doctrines that we do. However, students came out of that with no solid framework with which to study and teach.. If they were confused, then we can be confused. A little incorrect doctrine taught by your right pastor teacher will not hinder our spiritual advance. Bobby can get out of fellowship; but these small deviations will not blunt the overall presentation of doctrine. In any case, we are not the arbiter of doctrine; hearing something which is not quite right will not keep us from growing spiritually. Sometimes, you might check out when you hear something that does not jive with what you have heard; and that may take you away from growing for 15 minutes will you ponder things. The Holy Spirit will not allow occasional mistakes in doctrine interfere with our spiritual growth. This is not speaking of someone who teaching heretical doctrines; this does not apply to those who do not teach the correct fundamentals of the faith. If a pastor is not orthodox, of course you will not grow. Don't put ourselves in a place where we have to decide what is right. This slows our momentum. We must always be ready to advance, with the teaching of each doctrine.

"If I listen to several pastors at a time, I know enough doctrine to weed out the bad doctrine." This means we don't know what Bobby is teaching here; the concept is the authority of the local pastor rather than our authority being foremost. Bobby says, "If I am not your right pastor, then find someone else under whom you can grow." Don't dwell on the differences; dwell on the doctrine. Keeping your feet in different churches is not the way to grow. Bobby has not problem with us listening to R. B. Thieme Jr. and he considers his ministry to be nothing more than an extension of his. We can grow from either of them. Bobby uses Bob's notes and tapes to grow and to teach from. Now, Esther was all from Bobby's teaching, as Bob had no notes here. However, Bobby always considers what Bob has to teach and always learns from him as a master theologian.

We are always accountable. We are not accountable to Bobby or to other people, but we are always accountable to God. This is based upon the spiritual code of conduct. We are accountable to the absolute standards of the Word of God. It is a much happier way to live than to try to change to meet the changing standards around us all the time. We need only make adjustments to the justice of God, not to the relative standards of man, which change continually.

End introduction and beginning of our study, next hour.

1Corinthians 6:11

Lesson #266 Sunday 2

December 4, 2005

Pornea = Πορνεία

The generation today has different standards than what their parents have; and Bobby's Generation standards were different than those from his parents. These standards change, particularly among unbelievers. Temple prostitution was normal in Greek culture. Incest, however, was not; it was horrible to the Greeks. Prostitution was fine but incest was horrible. Paul will make clear that πορνεία is forbidden, not matter what type. It is lawful to eat food and it is lawful to drink wine; but gluttony is forbidden and drunkenness is unlawful. The Royal Family Honor Code defines what is lawful and what is not. This sort of overindulgence can lead to addiction of some sort. In the code of conduct, there are no gray areas. It is never legitimate for the believer to abuse the body just as they abuse eating with gluttony. Bobby must use the illustration which is here. The Holy Spirit determined that this would be the example used. Paul will give some practical results from this 2nd or 3rd look of pornea. Paul is not addressing simple morality vs. immorality. Paul is addressing the spiritual life vs. everything else; the honor code vs. everything else.

The Romans did have a very strong code of conduct; however, the Greeks had gone right downhill. Bobby's next door neighbor just went to Greece. The wife said he had never seen a worse group of people in her life. She said they were rude, nasty, etc. This society was a democracy and they were the underpinnings of western civilization; however, they have moved far away from this. They have degenerated into something which is much less. Laws of divine establishment are always attacked. Satan goes after anything which glorifies God. Civilizations go up and civilizations go down. At Paul's time, the Greeks were on the downhill side of their civilization. The Jews in this congregation were very legalistic, on the other hand. Antinomian and legalistic groups in the Corinthian church. Paul will spare no one. The Corinthians are deeply inculcated. Their heathen culture of polytheism is deeply ingrained. They had not yet been inculcated with a different standard. Their change or status in Christ had not quite changed. One of their problems is what had changed when they became believers. They were ignorant and confused about the Christian way of life. The Greeks in general were probably not too fond of the Christian way of life anyway. Their obligation to the Lord involved restrictions which would be placed on them. They would have to put aside things which they really enjoyed in the past. There are things they believed made life worth living, and now they must put it aside. You don't give up fun and enjoyment simply because you have to change some of your modus operendi. Everything in the code of conduct is designed for our benefit. Some of the things which we think are enjoyable are also very destructive. Simple illustration of drug usage or drunkenness. Nothing can be greater or more satisfying in life than glorifying God in our bodies.

Can we assume that the Royal Family Honor Code precludes all sex? Absolutely not; sex must occur in the right context. God has provided sex for our maximum enjoyment in the correct environment. Glutton or eating, drinking or drunkenness, sexual immorality or sex in its correct context; that is the choice which Christianity sets up. No other lifestyle can approach this. Their lifestyle is an illegal combination of current culture and a lack of understanding of their new life in Christ.

There is a Greek philosophy which separates the physical from the spiritual. Our thinking always reflects our actions. How we think reflects exactly how we live. Paul must clarify that their previous lifestyle is illegal. Paul addresses what sort of modus operendi would fulfill their new status. Paul will address this in terms of the differences between law and liberty. What am I allowed to do? What do I want to do? What does freedom in Christ actually mean? "You will know the Truth and the Truth will set you free." What does that mean? There can be no spiritual advance in their service. The filling of the Holy Spirit must be used. Without God's resources being used, anything could happen and anything did happen. We can't compare what reversionism is for them and us. Their culture had no spiritual profit for them. The doctrines of the new life in Christ could not be inculcated; they could not glorify God. They had no honor code.

Paul addresses 4 laws in the book of Corinthians; what is forbidden and what is allowed is found in these 4 laws. It takes maturity to understand which law applies when; and one can supercede the other. It becomes difficult for some to determine which one to apply. Paul will teach us how to determine which one to do. We will study these laws extensively. Paul begins to introduce these laws right here.

The 4 Laws of Corinthians

1. The Law of Liberty, which the Corinthians understand very well. This law is directed toward ourselves. Apart from immorality and sin, everything is lawful to us.
2. The Law of Love: this code takes into consideration our relationship with other believers. It places concern for others ahead of our own desires.
3. The Law of Expediency. This means that we must always consider our responsibility toward the unbeliever. The unbeliever sets up standards and expectations, right or wrong, about us as believers. He has some idea as to what a Christian should be. We must have some concept of this standard.
4. The Law of Supreme Sacrifice, which is difficult for almost anyone to swallow.

Each law acts like a funnel; each has a more and more narrow funnel and each one applies in its own way to us. The Law of Supreme Sacrifice is the highest law in the spiritual life. The Law of Supreme Sacrifice abandons something which is completely legitimate. Bobby could have gone to see Texas at the Rose Bowl and he did not go; that is applying the Law of Supreme Sacrifice.

1Cor. 6:12 Four Laws

Lesson #267 Wednesday

December 7, 2005

Obviously that "All things are lawful for me" does not mean that we can sin without impunity. There are limits which Paul places on his freedom. Paul is not speaking about himself in isolation; he is speaking for all of us. There is a code of conduct for every believer. This is the royal family honor code. There are activities that we should and should not engage in. There are limits under the code. Paul limits his liberty by the idea of profitability. This is not financial profit. Sometimes, the less money one has, the less options one has. Paul limits liberty by denying that which becomes all consuming.

Priorities

1. Nothing is more important than thinking and operating from the code of conduct.
2. Nothing takes priority over this code.
3. Nothing supercedes this mission that we are called for.

4. Anything which replaces this mission, or supercedes this code or is more important in our thinking has mastered us to our detriment. It has taken priority in our life.

What we must understand is how is the code broken? They operate on an entirely different standard than the code and what it spells out for us. Nothing is immune from this when we carry around the old sin nature in our bodies. The believer has an obligation to the Lord. We must glorify the Lord by what we do. We incur this obligation the very moment we are born spiritually. This is the moment that we are washed, sanctified and justified. We believe in Jesus Christ by the imputation of eternal life by faith alone in Christ alone, and we have the obligation. We do not have a clue as to what that code is that we are made a part of. An attorney goes to school for several years to learn the code under which they must live. There are many codes, rules of law, protocol in business, at our jobs, as a political entity, in our schools. So, we have the same sort of thing in the Christian life.

Christians often don't like the idea of having these obligations, but, as a believer, we are born into a set of obligations. We live under a stringent, absolute code. It is not a burden to live under this code, nor is it a hardship. In fact, exactly the opposite is true. There is a gargantuan upside which goes with living under this code. Why is this code not confining? Why is it to our advantage?

Why is this Code to our advantage?

1. Nothing can be greater or more satisfying than living under divine regulations and glorifying God.
2. Nothing in human existence can equal the experience of living as a spiritually mature believer. When an unbeliever hears he might have an obligation when he believes in Jesus Christ, he often rejects it for this reason. Now, there are things which fall under our liberty which we forgo at times. This is difficult for believers and unbelievers both to grasp.
3. No other life or lifestyle can approach our spiritual life under the code for fulfillment and satisfaction.
4. God designed for every believer what is of supreme benefit to us; that is the design. This design comes with parameters. Those parameters are already laid out in the code. God designed for every believer what is supreme benefit, and it is already laid out for us.
5. There is no security in life greater than knowing that we are right where we should be doing exactly what we should be doing. We know this by knowing the code; we know this by knowing what is expected.
6. The Royal Family Honor Code is our guide. Laws are not made to be broken; they are made to guide us into the paths of righteousness.

The military is often a nice environment, as you know exactly what is prescribed for us. There is a specific honor code; discipline is built in. Those areas which are relative, vague and shadowy; it is not so for the military. There is great security in this. When a soldier faces the stress of combat mission, he is prepared morally and mentally to complete his mission. He is able to make choices which is very difficult for those of society. These are necessary choices; you are trained in this code; when it is time to apply the code, you can do it. The military person is mentally and morally prepared. They never need to feel guilty about living under this code. They are performing a legitimate function and they carry it out with vigor. They have the authority orientation from the discipline of the code.

Parallels

1. We have a dangerous, intense combat mission in the devil's world; we are all Christian soldiers.
2. We need to know exactly what is expected of us in Christian combat. We are all in it up to our necks. We have enlisted for a lifetime hitch.
3. We need the regimen of the code of conduct to function in the angelic conflict.
4. We must have authority orientation which comes under the code to understand and to accomplish our spiritual orders.

As believers, we are ignorant, we are children, we are blank slates. We are children without information; without knowledge. We are here to succeed in the spiritual life. The realm of the family of God is the realm in which we should live. Remember, it is not what you think, believe or say; it is also what we do which is also part of it.

Paul begins to introduce these laws in v. 12 and following. They are the background for what we will study.

The Four Laws of 1Cor. 6

1. The Law of Liberty. This law is directed toward ourselves.
2. It asserts that apart from immorality and sin, everything is lawful for us. These are the two lines of v. 12.
3. Unlawful includes legalism and antinomianism.
4. Paul will clearly define the Law of Liberty as freedom to serve the Lord; not freedom to serve ourselves.
5. The bottom line is, we can enter into any activity at all which will not cause us to personally fail the Lord. This is true liberty. Spiritual failure reduces freedom to slavery to the sin nature. Spiritual failure reduces freedom to slavery to the sin nature. The Corinthians abused this law of liberty. At least one of the factions in Corinth was composed of legalists. The whole spectrum lived in Corinth. Paul has been addressing the immoral degenerates.

The Law of Love

1. This principle takes other believers into consideration.
2. It places concern for immature believers ahead of the liberty that we have as believers. This is legitimate liberty, by the way.
3. There are activities which are not spiritual failure which we are normally free to do as believers in Jesus Christ.
4. Even though we are normally free to do these things, we should refrain from doing these things at certain times.
5. This is not because the activities are wrong in themselves; we have the freedom to do these things. You spare the temptable believer in his area of weakness. You keep them from falling.
  - a. We might enjoy a glass of wine or two and there is nothing wrong with it. There is no legitimate taboo to forbid the use of alcohol. However, we don't drink in front of an alcoholic which could lead them into their area of weakness or spiritual failure.
6. As a believer who has advanced in doctrine, we wish to encourage other believers to advance to maturity as well. That is an obligation. This runs parallel to our code. It is an obligation to not cause another believer to stumble.
7. It is never our purpose to discourage, to cause confusion, or to impede the advance of a less mature believer.
8. That requires personal and impersonal love on our part. That is an advanced believer who can function under these principles.

The Corinthians are all about themselves. They are cutting the throats of other believers in opposing factions; they are bad-mouthing one another. There is no law of love here.

The Law of Expediency

1. We must consider our responsibility toward the unbeliever. This is something the Corinthians did not do.
2. The unbeliever has set up standards and expectations, right or wrong, for Christian modus operandi. They have an idea as to what a Christian should be like, and they expect these things of you.
3. Our life must be a testimony, not a stumbling block to the unbeliever. When we wallow in the mud with the unbeliever, then they have no motivation to become like us. If we are just like them, they have nothing to look to for inspiration.
4. We sometimes must refrain from liberties; not because they are sinful, but because we can distract the unbeliever from the gospel. This is not because these things are wrong, but because of the unbeliever with the confused norms which he applies to us.
5. Indiscriminant exercise of our permissive liberty may prevent some unbelievers from listening to the gospel. You can justify this by saying, "If they want to hear it, they will hear it." You thus forfeit the opportunity to present the gospel to someone who is headed for eternity in the Lake of Fire.

In our passage, the Corinthians are not witnessing to the unbelievers around them. They are living the same profligate life as those around them live.

The Law of Supreme Sacrifice

1. This is the highest law of the spiritual life.
2. Supreme sacrifice is directed toward God, where the other laws are directed to self or to others. It involves the abandonment of a completely legitimate function in life. You just don't do it, even though it is absolutely legitimate.
3. The purpose of such a concession is to diligently serve the Lord in a greater capacity.
4. Missionaries often operate under this law when they live in primitive conditions of the country where they live. Thank God that they do, as this is part of the reason that the US is a client nation to God.
5. A pastor may forgo numerous bona fide pleasures in dedicating his life to study and teaching.
6. An evangelist may spend his life on the road. He may forfeit time with his family. This is very true of Rick Hughes. He was unable to see his children grow up as he would like. This law has no correspondence to the Corinthians, who are not sacrificing anything at this time. They are indulging in everything from legalism to antinomianism.

We will build on these laws in vv. 12--20.

1Cor. 6:12 Four Laws

Lesson #268 Thursday

December 8, 2005

There is a restriction on the Law of Liberty; the Law of Love and the Law of Expediency. The Law of Liberty is direction toward ourselves. Apart from immorality, reverentism and sin, all things are lawful for the believer. Obviously, there are some exclusions to all things are lawful, or that would negate all things which were just written. Liberty is freedom—not to serve ourselves but to serve the Lord. We can enter into any activity which would not cause us to fail the Lord. When we fail the Lord, we abuse the Law of Liberty. Serving the Lord is true liberty. John 8:32: you will know the truth and the truth will set you free.

Liberty

1. Liberty involves us exercising our volitional options. This is our positive volition toward doctrine.
2. We decide to take the responsibility to inculcate the responsibilities of the royal family honor code. That is our positive volition; our exercise in the Law of Liberty. We learn the honor code by the doctrine that we metabolize in our souls.
3. That is the free and correct exercise of our liberty under the Law of Liberty.

4. Then, we can know the extent of our liberty within the Honor Code. The Law of Liberty is never unlimited. Liberty, to most people, speaks of unlimited options. However, there are boundaries. We have freedom and liberty in this country which are always limited by law. They are limited by the irresponsible use of liberty. Our liberty is limited by its irresponsible use.
5. Without knowing the honor code, we cannot know the parameters of the spiritual life, or how to use our liberty correctly. If we know the honor code, then we can live it.
6. Without the inculcation of the honor code, we will be influenced to a greater or lesser extent of lawlessness. We are out of bounds with the honor code.
7. Freedom without responsibility inside the honor code becomes a lawless anarchy of soul. Abuse of the law of liberty is where we stop. We do not go beyond this statement and we don't realize that this leads us to the Royal Family Honor Code. However, there are curbs upon our liberty. We will know when to apply these laws and we will do it. We will recognize there is something which supercedes our own self-serving liberty. The Corinthians are not allowing anything to supercede our own
8. Liberty is toward ourself; the the Law of Love is always directed toward another person. It places the interests of other believers ahead of our own. Therefore, we refrain from activities which are not spiritual failure. Under the Law of Love, we refrain voluntarily from activities which are not spiritual failures and which we are free to do. Personal love toward God and impersonal love toward God will mean that there are times when we will not exercise all of our options.

We may not care about some believers. There are some believers that are obnoxious and we don't care for. However, we still should have some thought to them. We want to discourage spiritual growth; not to discourage it. If we are in doubt, then don't do it. The Law of Love is directed toward another believer. This might be sparing a believer from some temptation.

Law of Expediency

1. This is directed toward unbelievers. Our life must be a testimony to the gospel of grace rather than an affirmation to our liberty.
2. You do not flaunt your liberty before those who cannot tell the difference between a responsible use of liberty and permission to abuse liberty.
3. Therefore, we sometimes refrain from legitimate liberties. This and the Law of Liberty are very similar. Sometimes these legitimate liberties can distract the unbeliever from the gospel.
4. Indiscriminant exercise of our permissible liberty may prevent some unbeliever from giving the gospel a hearing. You don't want to be responsible for that. We can turn off the unbeliever by our actions. Our position in Christ does not give us unlimited liberty to continue their former lifestyle. They have been liberated by Christ, but they do not understand the honor code under which they should live. They have freedom, but they do not understand the obligation of freedom.

What is Wrong with Unrestrained Liberty?

1. This becomes a green light for antinomianism and sinful code violations.
2. We can justify anything under the Law of Liberty if we ignore love and expediency. That is, we leave out the royal family honor code.
3. The Law of Liberty gives us freedom to serve the Lord; not freedom to indulge in antinomianism. This is what Paul has been addressing in vv. 9–10.
4. The law of Liberty is always regulated by expediency and love. There is never a time when liberty supercedes expediency and love. Those are the parameters of the honor code. The Corinthians have no doctrine and they pay no attention at all to the Apostles teaching and writing.

Ποντα μοι εξεστιν. Πας means all things as it is in the neuter (which refers to all things pertaining to Christian service and all other activities. Dative plural μοι, which is the indirect object of this phrase. The verb is εξεστιν is impersonal because the neuter is found here. From the unused root verb of εξειμι. This use simply disappeared over time; that form of the verb was not used when Paul wrote; however, it is the basis of this verb. Εξειμι goes back to classical Greek; it was a classical Greek word which was no longer used during Paul's day. Rules change in grammar. Language is constantly in flux; which is why it is separated into Doric, Classical, Koine, etc. This will give us an idea as to what this word means during this time. Εξεστιν means [it is] permitted, proper, lawful. The Corinthians have taken this to mean all things are permitted. Now, where would this come from? Believers were no longer under the Law of Moses, which is what Paul taught when he was in Corinth, and Apollos would have taught the same thing. The believers in Corinth were involved in incest, in lawsuits, etc. Today, we might say, our personal morality has no effect on public service. They would go by our personal lives have nothing to do with our spiritual lives. The Corinthians do not get it. They do not realize that these are related.

Metaphysical dualism is the Greek philosophy which is related to this. This is the way the people thought. Greek dualism; it comes from Plato was 5th century B.C. What is this metaphysical dualism. What makes them separate totally their spiritual life from their secular lives? Why are they so able to compartmentalize.

Greek Dualism/Metaphysical Dualism

1. Dualism means that the facts of the universe are explained as two basic, separate elements. The Universe is broken down into two elements.
2. Mind and matter. Incorporeal and corporeal; body and soul; material and immaterial.
3. The two elements are qualitatively different orders of reality.
4. The physical or the body does not affect the metaphysical (or the spiritual). What happens in the body does not affect the spiritual.
5. They are compartmentalized; they are kept separate.

6. In Greek dualism, the soul is the source of all good and the body is considered evil. It is the devil on one shoulder and the angel on the other. They are separate. The corrupt body is hopelessly lost in evil. There is a bit of determinism in the idea that the corrupt body is hopeless. Once it is evil, it will always be evil.
7. Dualism gives license for people to do whatever they want with their evil bodies.
8. The evil cannot be purged from the body. There is an element of truth in this dualism. Philosophy is simply a way for people to explain their surroundings. The Greeks left out the actual truth. We know the cell structure of the body is permeated by the old sin nature; but the believer has the option to control this nature. For the Greeks, this is a corrupt, unredeemable body. However, we believe that we have the option to control our bodies through the filling of the Holy Spirit.
9. According to the absolute dichotomy of dualism—these are separable, warring factions—the evil done in the body and with the body has no effect on the separate category, which is spiritual. The Corinthians felt they had a spiritual life and a corrupt body. We have dualism and Christianity. The Corinthians are into dualism. The believer knows that our lives are actually trichotomus. Paul has already taught this to the Corinthians so that they do not get this confused with their old dualism.
10. Dualism gives license for the bodily activities of πορνεία. The honor code does not give license to these activities. Disconnect for the Corinthians; Christianity connects them.
11. Scripture never separates the body, soul and spirit (except Christ at death?). What we do in our body, we do not glorify ourselves. Paul begins with a false philosophy of the Corinthians and distinguishes it from Christianity.
12. Our souls and bodies are intertwined; what we do in the body affects the soul, and vice versa. All things are lawful to me.
13. The philosophy of dualism makes lawful for the Corinthians what is unlawful for believers under the royal family honor code.

We have a body and we have a soul and between these two elements, we have a human being. We are composed of a corporeal body and an incorporeal soul, and never the twain should meet.

1Cor. 6:12      Metaphysical Dualism   Lesson #269 Sunday 1   Dec. 11, 2005

Class on Sunday Christmas and New Year's; both at 11 am.

For the Corinthians, there was nothing in their mind which was out of bounds—at least, whatever was approved by their culture, they figured was okay. The Corinthians did not even recognize that there should be a change experientially. Our culture is ingrained in us just as it is for the Corinthians. They were not sure where they stood and what was allowed. They had a new spiritual life in Christ based upon their position in Christ; but they did not exactly understand this. They did not know that what they had was far beyond anything than had ever been given to them before.

We know we are saved; we understand our eternal security and a few basic doctrines. Unbelievers often feel like the Christian life is going to cause them to change their lifestyle and they use this as an excuse not to believe in Jesus Christ. Nothing in life or in human existence can equal the life of spiritual advance; it cannot compare to spiritual growth, which is not confining but liberating. There is no security in life greater than knowing that we are right where we should be doing just what we should be doing. The Corinthians are neck-deep in hedonism and antinomianism. This is an empty life and a life which is often destructive; there is no glorification of God; there is only self-indulgence and self-glorification (if that). The spiritual life is the greatest fulfillment that we can have. The believer must lie within the Royal Family Honor Code. Without this, we make up the code for our lives; we make the decisions, and it is freedom without responsibility, which is an anarchy of soul. Without the honor code, we flounder in our life. We only serve ourselves without the Royal Family Honor Code. We cannot defer to the law of love or the law of liberty when we operate under our own standards. The Corinthians could not put any interest above their own personal interests. Their heathen culture was antithetical to their new life. Πορνεία was permissible and pervasive in the Greek culture. Rampant homosexuality and temple worship through prostitution was common; it was ingrained in them.

Πορνεία is a physical act; it is a bodily act. The philosophical system of Plato allowed for this. Their philosophy influenced all thought in the Greek-influenced world. Metaphysical dualism. The word metaphysical dualism was not coined until 1700 A.D. Metaphysical dualism had been the basis for Greek thought for 500 years. Paul is well-versed in Judaism, in the Scriptures, and in Greek philosophy. Paul was able to easily link the culture of the Greeks with the actions of the Corinthian church.

Metaphysical Dualism

Why do we need to look at a philosophical system? These people have been dead for 2500 years; why do we need to talk about them? We must examine this letter in the time that it was written.

1. Dual means that the facts of the universe can be explained as two basic, disjoint elements.
2. Examples: mind and matter; material and immaterial; body and soul. Metaphysical dualism explains the disconnect of the Corinthians.
3. In Metaphysical Dualism, the two elements, body and soul, are separate orders of reality.
4. The physical, which is the body, does not connect with or affect the metaphysical.
5. The body and the soul, the physical and the metaphysical, are kept separate; they are compartmentalized.
6. A diagram of metaphysical dualism: the human being is actually a soul and spirit intimately and thoroughly connected. In Greek dualism, they are completely disconnected. Material and immaterial in our thinking mix; in Greek thinking, there is no mixture. Best way to illustrate this is the devil on one shoulder and an angel on the other shoulder, each whispering into the ears of the individual.

7. The corrupt body is hopelessly mired in evil with no recourse and no recovery.
8. The result of this philosophy can legitimize many self-indulgent activities in the body. The body is going to perpetrate evil activities, so we simply do it.
9. The evil cannot be purged from the body in dualism, and is therefore inevitable. The body gravitates toward evil; only the soul produces good. Whatever is produced by the body is evil; what is produced by the soul is good. This will explain the practical thinking of the Greeks. Christian theology reveals that there is some truth to this system. The sin nature is in every cell of our body; we have sin in us. However, the soul is tainted by this sin nature. Adam was trichotomus rather than dichotomus. The believer has the ability to control the sin nature in the body and in the soul both. This is done through the filling of the Holy Spirit and by spiritual advance. The Holy Spirit can control our activities in both soul and body.
10. According to the absolute dichotomy of metaphysical dualism, that which is done in the body is compartmentalized—whatever you do in the body is compartmentalized and it has no effect on the metaphysical. Whatever is done in Vegas stays in Vegas is the attitude.
11. In practice, dualism gives license. The way the Greeks saw dualism, this gave license to the bodily activities of πορνεία.
12. Those evil body activities are not connected to the soul activities. They are disjoint functions and the body functions does not affect the spiritual life. This is dualism and this is why the Corinthians were confused. They knew their culture better than they knew Bible doctrine.
13. The philosophy of dualism makes it acceptable for the Corinthian believers to do what is actually unlawful under the honor code. Paul is telling them, this is your old way of thinking; this is the inculcation of your culture.

When Paul says All things are lawful to me, he is not condoning anything which is unlawful, immoral or sinful.

Even today, Platonic thought influences the thinking of today's culture. According to Alex, it influences Christian thought as well. DeCartes said body and mind to not interact with each other; one does not affect the function of the other. Spinoza, Libnitz, and Kant all were affected by dualism. Dualism is found in many of the world's religions. The apocalyptic literature of the Jews is steeped in dualism. We also find it in the eastern religions. This helps us because we, in many ways, have this same thinking. Dualism is a mistaken notion of Christianity. The pervasiveness of this philosophy, which is very close to Christian theology, is a part of their culture and it is very close to our culture as well.

Carnality and the spiritual life are opposites and they do affect each other. Those who sin willfully and use rebound are practicing dualism to some extent. Law curtails liberty.

There are rules and regulations. Rules are not made to be broken, as breaking rules limits your freedom.

1Cor. 6:12

Lesson #270 Sunday 2

December 11, 2005

Paul used this first line to get the attention of the Corinthians 1Cor. 6:12a All things are lawful [or, possible] to me,...

Law is a part of divine establishment, so that the human race will not destroy itself. Law restrains that which is destructive to freedom. We live by the rule of law. We also live by the Royal Family Honor Code. It limits that which is destructive and carnal. We must know that through Bible doctrine. The amendments are the very basis for our freedom. The Bill of Rights enhance our freedom.

3 Points on these First 3 Phrases

1. Freedom is limited by what is worthwhile to the believer; by what is beneficial to the believer.
2. This means that the believer has a sense of responsibility toward another believer and that is what the law of love is all about; and toward the unbeliever, which is the law of expediency.
3. The gospel of Jesus Christ and Bible doctrine should never be discredited because of the believer or the unbeliever's negative perception of our activities.

This phrase expressions an option; volition is involved here and it carries with it a mandated code of action. Volition always has a limitation. Anything goes except where we fail the Lord. This is the over-arching parameter. This is where we begin it. The constitution; the Royal Family Honor Code. We the people will not fail the Lord. They have perverted their freedom; they have perverted the law of liberty. Not all things are permissible. Paul is going after the very core of Corinthian thinking—the very core of their thinking, which had been ingrained since their youth. If we are trying to witness to an unbeliever, do not attack the very core of their thinking from the beginning. Ease into it. Let them have a look at you (which may involve the law of expediency). In other words, do not turn them off—that is the law of expediency. You show them the grace of God; which is liberating, and not limiting. Paul gently eases into his mandates. He is gently limiting their liberty. He is limiting their freedom under certain conditions.

The law of expediency must be applied for the sake of the unbelievers in the city of Corinth. Their modus operandi at this time just does not make an impact on Corinthian unbelievers. We have these statutes, but we must apply them. What effect do these actions have on others if we indulge our liberties. Do my actions constitute a distortion of my liberty? There is a rationale for the use of the law of love and the law of liberty.

The Rationale of the Law of Liberty and the Law of Expediency

1. We must belong to Christ by virtue of our union with Him by virtue of faith in Christ.
2. In this world, in this life, we represent Him as an ambassador. Ambassadors who embarrass are recalled. We are the point of contact for some.
3. We do not witness just by what we say but by what we do. If someone drops off their kids at Berachah, but takes off to shop or have coffee, that affects the kid—if we don't listen in Berachah, then they won't, whether they are here or not. We witness by our life as much as by what we say. Some will say, "I don't want anything to do with Christianity if so-and-so is a believer." Someone that Bobby knows hated Christianity by those who witnessed to him by complaining about his antinomian ways. We have no right to drive anyone away from spiritual advance.
4. Contrary to some thinking today, unlimited license is not a means to reach the unbeliever. "I'm an antinomian and I will reach them by wallowing in the muck with them."
5. You do not go to the level of the unbeliever to reach him where he lives.
6. This type of modus operandi is not an entre to the unbeliever; it merely discredits our ambassadorship.
7. This does not mean that you make an issue of your own taboos and represent this as Christianity. This is not the issue to the unbeliever. It is not what do you think of me; it is, what do you think of Christ? We should be relaxed in life. If we are legalistic, we may not be relaxed. If we are antinomian, we might be too relaxed.

The Corinthians have various options; all things are possible, but not all things are permissible. Their indulgence in carnality defeats the progress of their spiritual life. They do not realize that what they do in the body affects their spirit. They think they are not connect, but they are. The indulgence of carnality is not beneficial to those around them. There is no distinction between Corinthian believers and unbelieving hedonists in Corinth. Therefore, the law of expediency says your modus operandi must represent our positional and experiential sanctification.

1Cor. 6:12b ...but not all things are permissible.

I can do anything, but I will not be mastered by anything. Εξουσιαζω) which means to have power over something. Future passive indicative.

Drinking is lawful to a certain point in our culture; it is also lawful or permissible in the Christian life as well. Drunks are self-indulgent; they have no concern when drunk for the law of love or the law of expediency. It is all about them. We must have concern for the immature believer. We do not make a good witness for Christ when we are inebriated. We do not need to get drunk with our unbelieving buddies in order to witness with them. If we are dealing with some high moral or legalistic person, do we want to ask them out to a couple a drinks? Do we want to take such a person out for a drink, if that is their weakness? If they might end up drinking like a fish, should we take this approach? Paul is saying, if I overindulge in the things that are lawful and they gain power over me, then they own my life.

Some pithy little sayings:

1. In all things, I can do as I please; but I will not let things do as they please with me. There is the control. All things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any of them. Or I am freed by the Lord Jesus Christ and I am going to maintain this freedom through the Royal Family Honor Code. Or, I am free to please the Lord, not only to please myself. Does this mean that we should not have any fun and that we should not do things which are pleasurable. We must think in divine viewpoint.

1Cor. 6:12c I will not be brought under the power of that which will consume me...

1Cor. 6:12

Lesson #271 Wednesday

December 14, 2005

I think there was no Bible class due to rain???

1Cor. 6:12

Lesson #271 Thursday

December 15, 2005

All things are possible to me is freedom; however, where there is freedom, there can also be an abuse of freedom. But not all things are permissible to me. Liberty is restricted by that which is permissible; law is for the personal and common good of those who keep these laws. It is the honor code which defines what is permissible; it gives us the parameters of the spiritual life. The mandates define our honor code.

How the Honor Code Defines what is Permissible

1. The Honor code defines integrity; we cannot live as believers in Jesus Christ without integrity. This is the divine integrity that we can reflect.
2. The Royal Family Honor Code limits what is evil, destructive to the well-being of the Christian life.
3. The Royal Family Honor Code enhances the believer's freedom by negating slavery to the sin nature.
4. Therefore, the result is, the believer may grow under the honor code and serve the Lord, which is the permissible and profitable use of freedom. We are limited in what we can do, but that limitation is for our benefit, and it enhances our life and our capacity for happiness.

The Honor Code reflects who and what God is. It reflects His standards; His perfection. We reflect His character. When the believer limits himself to the statutes of the Honor Code, we are expressing the highest and best use of our volition. We must choose to live within the Honor Code. There is an interesting paradox. We are expanding our scope of our liberty, by the laws of love and expediency, which, in turns, actually limits our liberty. The Honor Code is our guide in avoiding our slavery to the trap of the old sin nature. We are mandated to live under Bible doctrine. That is a major aspect to the Honor Code. These are the laws of our constitution; they define our freedom. We can serve and glorify God under the Honor Code. Under the Honor Code, we reflect the integrity inherent in the Honor Code. Living under the honor code is demonstrated by a sense of responsibility. Liberty is limited by love and expediency. The Honor Code limits freedom, but it also expands freedom. Freedom without responsibility is anarchy. Having liberty only in your soul means that you are abusing liberty. Under certain conditions, the laws of love and expediency supercede the law of liberty.

An Overview of the Honor Code

1. You do not have the option of discrediting the gospel or Bible doctrine through our actions. You live in honor when you do not do that.
2. You do not have the option to discourage any believer's spiritual advance or to turn off any unbeliever's response to the gospel with your actions. Most of us understand that we are free when it is not sinful; however, there are more limitations than that.
3. The integrity which is gained by adherence to the code makes us always consider the consequences of our actions on others. Integrity means that we consider the influence of our actions on others.
4. Instead of being immature, self-serving and self-centered, we grow up, and become a responsible citizen of the church.
5. Then, we can serve God in whatever capacity that He has for us. God has some place for each one of us. God has a mission and a plan for us individually.

Paul, in the first half of verse 12 addresses the ignorance or indifference of the Corinthians to the Royal Family Honor Code.

All things are lawful to me, but not all things are permissible to me. We will contrast our liberty with the limitations of it. Exousiazō + ouk = to have power over something (with the negative). All things are possible, but I will not be under the power of... Paul will not be brought under the power of something, even when it is lawful to him. Paul is saying, "If I indulge in things which are lawful, but they gain power over me, then they own my life." Paul's life can be limited and constricted by the things which are free to him. We do His bidding unequivocally. We are the slave of only Jesus Christ; when we put ourselves in servitude to something else, that is a mistake. "I will not be mastered by or dominated by my appetites." No one can function under the Royal Family Honor Code if we are dominated by something else in this life.

How does Porna Exceed our Liberty

1. Sex is lawful and desirable under the conditions of marriage; there are no exceptions to this.
2. Porna is not acceptable; it is not lawful. It is outside the bounds of marriage. It is therefore self-indulgent. It is the definition of self-indulgence.
3. Porna in any of its forms can become an addiction. As you see, this explains Paul's statements of not being mastered by something.

4. Sex can become a consuming factor in your life; it is a strong power; a strong draw on most human beings. Anything which is wonderful and beautiful can be easily abused. Like anything which is wonderful and beautiful, it has its own limitations. Wrongly used means that it will become self-indulgent, arrogance, and a consuming factor in our lives.
5. Not only is pornea a sin, but it takes control of our thinking. Pornea is a perfect example of a one-track mind.
6. Under these conditions, emotion rules our life. We are to grow in grace and knowledge; not by grace and emotion.
7. Pornea is never the believer's focal point; it can become so when it rules over us. Sex is lawful; but, when it is misused, it will rule over us. That is the problem of the Corinthians—they are ruled by sex. Do not glorify God by sex, but glorify Him in our body.

Paul and the Law of Liberty

1. There are things which are lawful, but not permissible to Paul. Therefore, he abstains from them. It all depends upon the impact on other people. We are dishonorable when we do that which is not permissible. When we do so, we cause another believer to be distracted from doctrine or an unbeliever to be distracted from the gospel.
2. It is necessary for Paul to stay away from thinking and activity when it comes to things which can take from others. When we let the old sin nature run amuck, then it will overpower us. Paul knows he must limit that.
3. Many activities are enjoyable and permissible; but they might have to be set aside under the law of love and expediency. It is difficult to set aside these things which are enjoyable and lawful.
4. It is expedient to refrain from an activity which might cause an unbeliever to reject the gospel; we should never compromise our testimony in front of the unbeliever.
5. It is love for the sake of another believer that one believer refrains from what is otherwise permissible.
6. The law of love and liberty supercedes our freedom for the sake of a presentation of the gospel and the encouragement of spiritual advance. Pornea is less fun than these things.
7. When this principle is violated, liberty becomes nothing more than self indulgence and we are ruled by it.
8. Paul will not become a slave to either permissible or unlawful activities which will hinder his spiritual life or testimony. This is how we demonstrate spiritual maturity and responsibility to others. This is rewardable in heaven.
9. The Christian life must always be interpreted in terms of the mission and purpose of God's plan on earth for the believer. We must adhere to God's plan and God's timetable, and not our own self-indulgence.
10. The Christian modus operandi must not be determined only by what is permissible to us. This gets into the realm of antinomianism.

1Cor. 6:13: Food is for the stomach and the stomach is for food... Paul must have lost his mind here. What is the deal? Is this a non sequitar? It doesn't follow. Then Paul goes on. ...yet the body is not for immorality... What's the connection here? ...but the body is for the Lord and the Lord for the body. This is the divinely inspired Word of God and it fits together perfectly.

According to the Greek philosophy, body and soul are completely separate. But Paul will bring in an analogy and he will connect the soul and the body. It is not just about the stomach; it is about the whole spiritual life. This is so straight-forward that the idiot Corinthians just cannot miss it. It tells us what is permissible and what is not permissible under the Royal Family Honor Code.

Koilia in its literal use means belly, stomach. This is the organ for digesting food. Paul is making an obvious statement, which the Corinthians cannot even dispute. Food is for the stomach and the stomach is for food. Paul is making an obvious statement. God created the stomach to metabolize food and everyone in Corinth has a stomach which they use to metabolize their food. Anything is suitable for food; the stomach will receive it and the stomach will metabolize it. God designed it to work in exactly that way. Paul knows that they all agree on this. He will play off this certainty.

Under starvation, people notice their stomachs and their bellies become extended. They need to eat to survive. We mostly decide when and where to eat and what to eat. We must eat, but there are certain conditions under which we must choose not to eat. There are certain foods or certain quantities of food that we should not eat. Rangers had to voluntarily limit what they would eat; the idea was to put them under stress without shooting at them. Starving had a purpose there. Paul realizes that there is a reason to abstain from food. There are those conditions under which we should not eat certain types of food or certain quantities of food. In 1Cor. 8 and 10:23-33 we will discuss some of these things. Gluttony is over eating, and there are limitations there. Prov. 23:21. Gluttony falls under the deceptive heading of more is better. It is pleasant to eat; so one thinks the more you eat, the more pleasant it is. However, overeating can be very uncomfortable and consistent overeating can bring on a great deal of personal misery. It can bring on a guilt reaction; it can bring on physical ailments. We simply need to learn to limit our eating.

1Cor. 6:13

Lesson #273 Sunday 1

December 18, 2005

Next Sunday is 1 service only at 11 am.

All things are possible to me, but not all things are permissible. All things are possible to me, but I will not be brought under the power of anything. Obviously, Paul is not referring to sins and evil, but to a number of things which are lawful. Some activities can begin as being lawful but end up being sinful.. If I indulge in things which are lawful as a believer, and these things gain power over me, then they own my life. Legitimate things can result in servitude to those things.

Why can't we indulge in legitimate activities if they are legitimate? This is so that we are not brought under the power of things which would supercede our lives. They get to a point where they take us out of the plan of God and override our spiritual life.

Has Paul gone legalistic? Is he imposing his own personal taboos upon the Corinthians? There are times when a believer will abstain from certain activities which would otherwise be permissible. The laws of love and expediency supercede our freedom. Our freedom must sometimes be sacrificed for a higher purpose. This is something like the suspension of our civil rights in order to win a war. It is more like a parent having complete freedom to do this or that, but sacrifices these freedoms in order to raise his son or daughter. When our liberty is less important than our mission, then there is the higher purpose of our life on earth. It is important as to how believers interact with believers and unbelievers around them. Is this done in the guise of liberty or is this done in accordance with the laws of liberty and expediency. The believer must occasionally refrain from that which is otherwise permissible. We are never to discourage unbelievers from hearing the gospel or to cause another believer to turn from doctrine. This does not mean that we never enjoy certain legitimate activities which are not wrong. We need to focus on our mission as believers in Jesus Christ on earth rather than giving priority to our valid pleasures. The law of love and expediency can supercede the law of liberty. We should not become a stumbling block for the immature believer. We similarly do not indulge them in their legalism. Sometimes we want to rub this in the nose of the legalistic believers. We walk a fine line between the law of love and not becoming legalistic. It is not always an easy decision. Always keep our mission in mind. What impact do we have on believers who are around us? Our liberty is not always the criterion for our modus operandi. The Christian life must always be interpreted based on our mission and purpose on earth. Christian modus operandi must only be decided by what is permissible. All things are lawful, but not all things are permissible. Legitimate activities can become illegitimate when overindulged. Food is for the stomach and stomach for food, but God will do away with both of them. This verse appears to come out of nowhere. This appears to be a non sequitor, which means it does not follow. Why does Paul make such an obvious reference to a body part and what goes into it? Is God going to do away with food and eating? Yet the body is not for immorality, but for the Lord; and the Lord for the body. Paul moves from the stomach and the body to immorality and the body. What a strange flow. This is the inspired Word of God. It is all inspired by God the Holy Spirit and it fits perfectly into this context; we just need to figure out how. They are written just as God would have us know them.

v. 13 simply tells us what has gone before. Paul uses a fact here; he launches with a statement that no one can deny: food is for the stomach, and the stomach for food. The Corinthians can dispute almost anything and they cannot divide up on this one. Paul will compare the legitimate and illegitimate use of two bodily functions. He will look at these in such a way as to dispense with metaphysical dualism. Paul's illustration proves that the spiritual and the physical are entirely linked. There is no gulf between the body and the soul, and this will refute that Corinthian viewpoint.

Paul begins with a body part: koilia = stomach, belly. This is the organ for metabolizing food and it works every day in this way. It is a biological fact. We can eat anything suitable for food and some things not suitable for food, and the stomach will receive it and metabolize it. God designed it to work in that way. Paul will play off this certainty. Now Paul gives them a fact that they must agree to. If we are to survive, we must eat—that is clear. We often make choices about where and when we will eat. The act of eating must occur for our survival. There are certain conditions that we must choose not to eat—certain types of food and certain quantities of food. Paul will address these in 1Cor. 8 and 10:23-33. There is another restriction. Prov. 23:21: This gets into the realm of where Paul is going with this first statement. For the heavy drinker and the glutton will come to poverty. Gluttony is the personal philosophy of those who believe that more is better with regards to food. There is a limit to the amount that we can eat. Bobby left Ranger school 30 lbs underweight. Even after becoming full, his body still wanted more food. It was consistently a miserable situation. Overeating can bring on guilt in fact, which is a mental attitude sin. Food guilt can bring on other physical and mental maladies. Binge eating can be followed by self-condemnation is an eating disorder. The result is, the food controls your life. Overeating and undereating controls your life. I cannot be brought under the power of the stomach or food. When our stomach rules instead of divine viewpoint, this is what happens. Gluttony is a lack of self control. It is equated with drunkenness. People choose to drink to oblivion or for a number of reasons—to lower inhibitions, to have fun, to socialize. Drinking to excess is a matter of bad decisions. Some of us have the problem of alcohol abuse. None of this should control us. Our stomachs should not control us; drinking should not control us. With gluttony and drinking comes poverty. The Hebrew word is yarash, which means impoverished, dispossessed. Gluttony implies having much food, but it is a poverty (of soul). When it controls us, gluttony is poverty of soul. We all understand what it means to be controlled by something; whatever it is, Paul uses gluttony and later on, something else, to illustrate things which control us and take us away from the spiritual life—even things which are legitimate, including eating and drinking. When you have to make that choice, err on the side of not being a stumbling block. Paul knows his context here; he is a genius. He completely understands the people to whom he is writing; he completely understands the malady of the human condition; he knows how these people live and how they think. Paul knows these things because he is a student of the Word of God. He knows his audience and he knows what we need to hear. Paul knows that these Corinthians live in a Roman culture and they are steeped in Roman traditions. Greek philosophy affects the Romans, and these people are similarly influenced. Paul knows his Corinthians. He knows why this illustration will be effective in getting across his point. The Corinthians saw gluttony and drunkenness firsthand, and it was acceptable and a part of their religion. The Corinthians did not realize that the physical and the spiritual are intimately connected; there is no metaphysical dualism. That is false doctrine.

1Cor. 6:13

Lesson #274 Sunday 2

December 18, 2005

On December 24, 1914, one of the Germans began to sing Silent Night and they were joined by some English on the other side. There was Christmas truce which went on for a day or two. The words of Silent Night come from Isaiah. These words had the ability to stop a war for a short term.

Food is for the stomach and the stomach is for food, but God will do away with both of them. This appears to be a non sequitor, which means it doesn't follow, it is loose, it doesn't fit. All Corinthians, despite how divided they are, can agree with Paul here. Paul will use this moment of agreement. He will use the fact that he is right in the eyes of all the Corinthians, and he will use that to explain what is permissible and what is not. Why would Paul choose the stomach to talk about? He knows his audience; he knows their culture; he knows what they are thinking. There is legalism and antinomianism in this crowd, and he is about to speak to the antinomians. They are steeped in Greek thinking and Roman culture, which are very similar. Paul was also very learned in Greek and Roman culture. Paul knows what he needs to know, and he is about to do it. Paul uses the stomach as an example of excess. The Corinthians had certainly observed this in the Roman culture. In the ancient world, a simple meal could become an eating contest. Cena is what a full-dressed Roman banquet would be called; it consisted of at least seven courses. The problem is, these 7 courses are spread out to 8-10 hours, and each course is a massive amount of food. Each course in itself is a great meal. It took a gargantuan appetite to polish off the menus of the cena. It became somewhat of a crude eating content. There were even religious connections. Vomiting was often induced in order to continue with the eating. At the end of the meal, which included a lot of drinking as well, and there was a ceremonial drinking match as well. A commissitio is the Latin for this drinking contest. In this ceremony, every cup was filled. In this ritual, the entire cup must be drunk at one time. There could be 1-11 cups filled at one time. No idea why 11 would always be the cutoff. This became an excuse for serious binging based on the excuse of honoring a guest or a god or something.

Not only was it overindulgence and gluttony, but there was a religious aspect to this. Festivals to the gods were celebrated with this sort of gluttony and excess drinking. Why all this excess? What was the religious significance of this? What is the significance of being bombed and gorged? The idea is so that the practitioner could become one with god. Bacchus was the God of wine, and the more you drank, the more united you were with the god of wine. Perhaps it had something to do with metaphysical dualism? The people overindulged in what the god represented, and in this way, they pleased the god. Similar in the worship of Aphrodite. Very often, gluttony and drinking were a part of this worship. Such rituals and heathen worship were common. They certainly did not mind indulging in wine, women and song. The Corinthians associated the Communion table with the worship of Bacchus, so they would be drunk and they would overeat. The idea is, more is better.

Paul is refuting metaphysical dualism, which is the idea that the body and soul are completely different. One does not affect the other, or so their philosophy is. These Corinthians completely understand overindulgence in these areas, even though they did not see that as a bad thing. Paul used a normal body function which could be abused, and a function which was abused in Roman culture. This is a natural and normal and allowable function which could become distorted into binge behavior and overdoing things. Metaphysical dualism makes us think, we can do whatever we want with these bodies. We do the same thing in our lives today—I will just commit this sin and rebound later. The sin will affect our spiritual life. Our body is permeated with the sin nature. It is found in every cell of the body, and there is always that temptation; and when we succumb to sin, we are no longer in fellowship, and we stop progressing, we are out of God's plan, and we might even retrogress. Eating is a legitimate pleasure in life; but gluttony is an option—it is something that we choose to do. Food is for the stomach; gluttony with food is not allowed. Paul uses this illustration—food for eating is fine; gluttony is going over the line. Paul is again directing them from a previous pagan practice to the function of the Christian way of life. Paul knows exactly what the Corinthians are up to and he knows how to reach them. Eating is a normal function of the body; but it is not the believer's purpose to feed his body in life. Pornea is an appetite that the Corinthians indulge in, which is not legitimate. There is a right way and a wrong way. Normal functions in life exemplify right things done in a right way. Eating is normal and right; gluttony is wrong. You have a drink, and that is okay; you have ten drinks, and you have stepped over the line a long time ago. The sin nature can control the soul. There should not be any metaphysical dualism in our thinking. Our lives should be doing right things in a right way.

The Corinthians overindulged at the Communion Table, which could bring the death penalty to them. Many slept. God take worship of Him very seriously. The food illustration begun here in v. 13 and is done so with great logic.

But God will do away with both of them: the stomach and food. Future active indicative of katargeo, which means to abolish, to bring to an end. This is very emphatic. These things will be abolished; they will be gotten rid of entirely. At some point in the future, these things will no longer be a part of our existence. We will no longer be sustained by food and therefore, our organ of digestion will no longer have a function either. This will not come to pass during our temporal lifetime. This is an eschatological occurrence. No one will be overweight in heaven; no one will be hungry in heaven. Our bodies will be able to survive without nourishment as we know it. Our resurrection body will be entirely different than the one we have now. What does this future fact mean; why does he tell us this now? Gourmets might be upset that there is a lack of fine dining and great restaurants in heaven. Many unbelievers use this type of thing as an excuse. Unbelievers can come up with a host of reasons why they don't want to be in heaven. Being in heaven is the only place to be; being in hell because you don't eat in heaven is ridiculous. Paul is dealing with a body function, and he will change this to a spiritual function.

The Human Body in Eternity

1. The human body is not connected with food in eternity.
2. The human body does not require nourishment in heaven.
3. There is no need for a stomach in eternity.

4. The stomach has no influence beyond the grave, but this is not true of pornea, which will come next.

Pornea is beyond what God has designed. God has already mentioned where the Corinthians are. The stomach and food will have no bearing on eternity; the excess has an effect on eternity; the body is involved in eternity. The body will be there in eternity. Body and soul are interconnected in this life and in eternity as well. Normal body functions will be done away with, but not the body itself. The soul and body cannot be divided. The Corinthians are thinking exactly the opposite. Our body, linked with our soul, will not be given certain rewards. The body is there in eternity; there is no such thing as a disembodied soul. A soul is always housed in a body. This includes even the moment that we die. This has everything to do with how we perceive the Christian life. We may not have known metaphysical dualism, but we might in fact live that way. We may have the same modus operandi. We separate what we are, believers in Jesus Christ, from what we do, which is sin. There is a connection with what we choose to do in our bodies and what we choose to do in our spiritual life. One is not detached from the other. Normal functions in life have no repercussions in eternity—sex in marriage, food for the body; etc. However, the wrong use does have an eternal effect for the worse. While physical metabolism has no effect in eternity, but spiritual metabolism has a great affect in eternity. We take our souls into eternity. That which is physical and normal, we leave behind; that which is spiritual, we take with us.

1Cor. 6:13

Lesson #275 Wednesday

December 21, 2005

1Cor. 6:13 Food is for the stomach and the stomach is for food. Paul felt this was necessary to write. But God will do away with both of them; yet the body is not for immorality, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. This is an illustration of what came before. Eating is necessary for the body and it is entirely permissible. There are constraints put upon at least with respect to quantity. Consistent overeating is gluttony and it is a sin and compared to drunkenness. It is the overindulgence in food. It is amazing that this comes up during the Christmas season, when people tend to overeat. However, gluttony is consistent and chronic. There is a parallel to the overindulgence in simple carnality. If the Corinthians accept the necessity for food, then there can also be an abuse of that function; that is, for every normal function, there is an abuse of that function.

The background is the Roman cena (which means dinner in Italian). It is a romance language. A cena in Roman times was overindulgence. Comosatio has to do with drinking. A cena consisted of 7 courses spread out over 8-10 hours. However, these courses were huge and eating went on continuously with lots of drinking as well. This cena was a highly regarded social pastime. Their parties lasted at least as long as our do. At the end of this was the comosatio, which was simply a drinking contest. This would toast someone there or the host or whatever. A huge cup would be filled and they were to drink this cup in one gulp. They would drink 1-11 of these. These festivals of gluttony and inebriated were for social life and even had religious significance.

Aphrodite was the goddess of love and sex, and worship of Aphrodite included those activities. Celebrating Bacchus involved eating and drinking too much. Bacchus was the god of wine. He represented wine and they worshipped him with wine. The practitioner became one with the god. This was a perversion of union with Christ. Demonic activity came in the guise of polytheistic worship. This image that Paul paints could be uninhibited pagan abuse in their culture. Eating is a natural normal function of the body; everyone can agree on this. The Corinthians need to understand this. Normal functions in life exemplify a right thing done in a right way. Eating and not overeating is a right thing done in a right way. Even these normal functions of the body can become abuse. There are abuses of the body which affect the spiritual life. Paul will be refuting metaphysical dualism. The physical and the spiritual have no connection. The body can be used for anything and it has no connection with the spiritual life. This is why Paul deals with the body and stomach and food. The Greeks believed that they could indulge in any physical activity and that this would not affect their spiritual life.

But God will do away with both of them [food and the stomach]. Do away with, to abolish, to bring to an end = katargeo (καταργεω).

The Body in Heaven

1. This is an eschatological reference.
2. This will not be necessary as soon as we cross the high golden bridge into eternity.
3. Residence in heaven does away with the stomach.
4. The resurrection body in heaven will not require any nourishment as our current body does on earth. For some of us, this is good news, as eating for some is a nuisance.

Why is Paul saying this?

What does this mean for us?

1. There is a superior, different body standard in eternity. It will be more than in just the area of food and drink.
2. The inference is that all of our normal body functions at this time will not be necessary in heaven.
3. Abuse of these functions will not exist in heaven. No stomach and no old sin nature; so, how can we be a glutton?
4. The physical maladies which plague our temporal bodies will no longer exist. No more sorrow, no more tears and no more death. All the aches and pains and disease will be missing from our bodies.
5. The point that Paul is making is, there is a body in heaven. This is a revelation to the Corinthians, who did not connect the body with their spiritual lives.

6. There is no such thing as a disembodied soul; that is nowhere given in Scripture. Many other religions have all kinds of spirits running around without bodies; but not Christianity. No disembodied souls.
7. The Corinthians must draw the obvious conclusion: metaphysical dualism is not divine viewpoint. Stop thinking in the old ways and start thinking with doctrine in the soul.
8. It is not just the soul which resides in heaven. Body and soul are eternally connected...but not the same body, but a body like Jesus Christ had when He was resurrected. Much of the normal function of our body on earth will not happen in heaven, there are repercussions in heaven of abuse of the body here on earth. This is the direction that Paul is going in his argument with the Corinthians.

Paul is going to make certain that the Corinthians understand that loss of spiritual life from carnality and inability to produce divine good in heaven. All of this is connected; the body is in no way separate from our spirit. This is not an effect on the resurrection body itself, but rewards in eternity. Every one of us will get a resurrection body in the future. No one will be short-changed on their resurrection body because of abusing it here on earth. It will be perfect like the one that the Lord Jesus Christ. There will not be an Arnold Swartzenegger body in heaven. This is where the equality ends. The body has an eternal future, in contradiction to metaphysical dualism. Dualism still has an effect upon us today. It can affect us by saying, "I have rebound." That false rumor will be dispelled in our soul. Rebound is a license to recover, not a license to sin. Simply rebounding does not mean your spiritual life is fine; rebound is simply the gate; you walk through the gate into spiritual life.

Paul says that God will abolish the necessity for food and the necessity of having a stomach.

Summary

1. There is a different superior standard of body function in eternity.
2. The inference is that all of our normal body functions are not necessary.
3. Abuse of these functions will not occur in heaven.
4. The maladies which afflict us here on earth will no longer exist.

There is a normal part and an abnormal part. Yet the body is not for immorality. It should be more clear why Paul is making this next statement. Immorality is  $\pi\omicron\pi\nu\epsilon\alpha$  in the Greek. The Corinthians probably argued with Paul about the lack of importance when it came to the activities of the body. Maybe they argued among themselves and maybe they argued with Paul. They used their philosophy of dualism. Paul must refute this philosophy; Paul must make another physical vs. physical argument.

Sex is a normal function of the body which has a correct usage—within the confines of marriage. Sex out of marriage has a negative repercussion. The Corinthians had distorted the body and they had abused it. They did not believe that their bodily functions affected the spiritual. Pornea = sex outside of marriage.

The Corinthians justified their lack of divine viewpoint and their sexual reversionism by distorting normal functions of the body with abnormal functions of the body. Paul is refuting this misapplication. He will give a detailed discourse on sexuality in the near future. Abbreviated: sex is a normal function of the body as designed by God; there are certain circumstances where it is forbidden; when sex is used in any old way, it can destroy the human race. Why and how? Two divine institutions are perverted by pornea. The first perversion is of divine institution #2: marriage.

Perversion of the Second Divine Institution

This is what happens to a nation as well as individuals. This destroys people, society and the nation.

1. God invented marriage to provide the framework for conjugal love and sexual expression. This is the status of the sexual relationship between man and woman.
2. Marriage forms the most basic unit in society.
3. The elemental interaction of man and woman is designed to take place in the confines of marriage. The deepest most elemental interaction between man and woman takes place within the confines of marriage.
4. Without marriage, the man and the woman are incomplete. Marriage was God's gift to Adam. Uniting them was marriage, the first marriage in human race, which should abolish all light and frivolous views of marriage. The man and woman are both completed in marriage.
5. Sex outside of marriage breaks the divinely designed bond, the trust, and the complete fulfillment of love in marriage. Something is always missing in sex outside of marriage.
6. Marriage is God's answer to one of the great societal and spiritual problems of the human race.

Tomorrow night deals with the curse on the woman. It will deal with the desire of the woman which is her curse. The second line is he will rule over you. In Hebrew poetry, the second line further defines the first line. We have a marriage crisis in this country for just this reason.

1Cor. 6:13

Lesson #276 Thursday

December 22, 2005

1Cor. 6:13: Food is for the stomach and the stomach is for food. Do you really think that the Corinthians were just grabbed by this line and got their attention. They probably yawned when they heard this. But the body is not for sexual immorality; and this gets their attention. Now Paul has come across a subject which catches their interest. Apparently, they have questioned and even challenged Paul on this particular subject. "Why do you keep telling us that we have liberty, but then you tell us that we don't have liberty in the areas where we want." Probably a more polished argument. "We want to do what we want to do when we want to do it and as often as we want to do it.” For them, pornea was a natural part of bodily function, and they were justifying sexual reversionism from any spiritual repercussions. They have ignored all that Paul has taught them and go in for all of the cultural norms of their time.

The parallel of a normal body function and the misuse of the body; and the relationship of the body to the Lord. Sex in marriage is normal and desirable. Pornea is sin and it is destructive in a number of ways. It is destructive to the church and to society as a whole.

The Destructive Effects of Pornea. Pornea is anti-divine establishment. Divine establishment is for believers and for unbelievers. It is designed for the survival and protection of the human race. When man observes these things, he restrains the old sin nature and exhibits the highest expression of individual and national freedom. The only way for the unbeliever to restrain the sin nature is by adhering to the laws of divine establishment. Through pornea, divine establishment is perverted.

God ordained 4 divine institutions through which divine establishment functions. The individual and his volition; marriage; family and the nation. These institutions are ordained by God for all mankind. Two of these are directly affected by pornea. Actually, it affects all 4, I would think.

Misuse of the Body and Pornea

1. God invented marriage to provide the framework for conjugal love and sexual expression. Marriage is the status the sexual relationship between the husband and wife.
2. Marriage forms the most basic unit of society—two people.
3. The elemental interaction of man and woman is designed to take place within the confines of marriage.
4. Without marriage, the man and the woman are incomplete. God created woman and brought her to Adam for marriage.
5. Sex outside of marriage breaks the divinely designed bond. It breaks the trust of the basic unit of society. It ruins the fulfillment designed by God. Adam and Eve got completion when they hooked up, which is what God provided.
6. Marriage is also God’s answer to one of the great societal and spiritual problems in the human race. God knew that when man fell and that marriage was instituted among men, that there would be problems. God enumerated these problems in Gen. 3:16. There were curses placed at this time.
  - a. Gen. 3:16 is part of the curse on the woman.
  - b. The second half of this verse Yet your desire will be toward your husband. This is not the woman sexually desiring her husband. And he will rule over you. Desire here is not sex or physical desire, but it is the woman’s intent to rule over her husband. We know this because this is a parallel with the first two lines. The woman routinely attempts to usurp the God-given authority of the husband. Your intent is to rule your husband, but he will rule over you is a paraphrase of what is meant here. It is not 50-50.

- c. When the wife is anti-husband's authority, she is expressing an aspect of the fall and the acquisition of the sin nature. This is an occupational hazard for every woman in every marriage. The woman must always be cognizant of this. This is one of the most difficult things that a woman has to do. She wants to undermine her husband's authority. It is a constant battle. The more you grow spiritually, the more it is under control. The more spiritually-oriented you are, the more this falls neatly into line.
  - d. To properly exercise leadership, the husband must express virtue love, honor and integrity. Without it, you will be in a constant war with fixed bayonets and between you will be no-man's land. The woman's responsibility is to respect her husband's authority; and if the man exhibits honor and integrity, then it is easier for the woman to respond to this. The woman needs integrity as well. If she has integrity, the structure of marriage in Gen. 3:16 remains in tact.
7. The structure of marriage defined in Gen. 3:16b is the front line of authority-orientation and integrity in society.
  8. Marriage proves the structure for authority-orientation and for integrity and virtue and the structure for stability for all society.
  9. Instability and insecurity and loss of integrity when there is no authority-orientation between a man and wife.
  10. Marriage is the foundation for the 3rd divine institution—the perversion of which can destroy humanity. Pornea is the beginning of the destruction of bonds of marriage. They do not go together.

How Does Pornea Corrupt Family

1. The fundamental organization of family combines with marriage to form a second Biblical safeguard for the perpetuation, stability and protection of the human race.
2. Two parents form the ideal environment for raising a family.
  - a. God designed two parents to raise children.
  - b. God did this because the man and the woman bring different perspectives to the child. Both perspectives are necessary for the child.
  - c. Both perspectives are necessary for the optimum training of children. Parents have the responsibility to train their children and without a full cadre of trainers, the child loses out.
  - d. Two parents to provide the balanced viewpoint of life and people. Two men will not give that perspective; they will give a perverted view. Two women will not give that perspective either. Those perversions will affect the child's thinking. Lesbianism and homosexuality are anti-establishment, and this teaches the child to be this way from the very beginning. A single man and a single woman does not give the full range of perspective. Sometimes, the Lord can take up the slack, and there may be others involved who give a different perspective. When the parents are separated, they can both make it work.

- e. The Family is an all-important training and teaching environment.
  - f. When a child does not have that environment, an important piece is missing in his or her training.
  - g. This does not mean that a child cannot learn some of these important lessons before the Lord. The child can learn these lessons. The Lord will take up the slack when the parent is on their own. Let me caution you here: if you are contemplating divorce and children are involved, these children must be your primary consideration, and not your own problems. You may have to stick it out for the child's sake unless there is physical brutality involved. The child's welfare must be the top priority.
  - h. The parents must make every effort to make the family the ultimate teaching and training environment. This does not mean that a child cannot learn some important lessons, but it will be more difficult.
  - i. The Biblical injunction to train up a child in the way that he should go is best fulfilled in the full family unit.
  - j. The family unit is authority and love together. Sometimes it will be tough love; but you can never let the child forget that you love them and that you look to make the child know that it was for his best interest.
  - k. This guidance enveloped in parental love offers environmental security and stability of the home. We have a breakdown in the family unit today. Too many parents do not know what they are doing.
3. Parents are mandated to instill in their children norms and standards. This is one of the greatest responsibilities that we have. If permissiveness rules your life, then what norms and standards do we have? It is accepted by society as a whole, and it destroys society as a whole.
- a. Authority in the family is always vested in the parents. When your children run you or do what they want, the parent no longer has authority. We cannot give it up.
  - b. The authority structure must remain intact between the husband and the wife. When she rules over him, the authority structure has broken down. If it is not intact, then authority orientation is a sham to the child; a joke. If the marriage is out of whack, the children will be out of whack.
  - c. The children must be taught obedience and right and wrong.
  - d. This involves inculcating the children with the principles of self-discipline, manners and the respect for others. Where is that in our children today? This means that you have gone a long way into breaking them in to authority orientation.
  - e. Self-discipline, manners and respect for others is the basis for true personal and national freedom. We have greater freedom because of law.
  - f. Integrity begins in marriage; it begins with the individual and carries on over into marriage. The Corinthians are a mess.
  - g. This training and correction within the family conveys stability to the individual as well as to the national entity.

4. Once a child learns to obey his parents and to understand the principles of authority, he is prepared to respect and deal with all other authorities in life—that is true humility. Humility is necessary to deal with all other authorities in life. The kid with authority problems will have problems throughout his entire life, from childhood to adulthood.
5. When basic principles of authority and self-discipline are not taught to a child, the child often rejects other forms of authority as teenagers and young adults. This is the result of perversion of the family.
6. No authority-orientation, no self-discipline means the following will happen:
  - a. Without authority being taught in the home to include enforced humility, children become insolent and defiant. That is in them. That lurks in them. It is in their old sin natures. All of this begins with the parent. It all begins in marriage; individual authority orientation.
  - b. If they become insolent and defiant, then they become devoid of boundaries and they are self absorbed.
  - c. By default, they reject divine establishment, norms and standards. Nothing is greater than themselves—that is self-absorption.
  - d. Peer pressure rules their lives; there is no integrity when you succumb to peer pressure. It takes strength and humility and self-discipline in order to resist peer-pressure.
  - e. In the child who is not authority oriented, self-gratification replaces the authority of law. They are lawless; they have a mentality of lawlessness.
  - f. The kids then begin to sublimate with alcohol, illegal drugs, illicit sex or with gang activity. Their family becomes a gang, when they have no family. Their family is vested in anti-establishment.
  - g. When children get to that point, violence becomes rampant and criminality becomes common-place among the younger generation.
  - h. The lack of standards breeds a generation of adults that hold that nothing is criminal unless you get caught, prosecuted and convicted.
  - i. If a significant number of young people defy authority and divine establishment, mindless rebellion takes over an entire generation. This is happening in our country right at this time.

A parent trains up their kid, and then sends them off to school to face the kids that are herein described. This is preparation for the application of doctrine. These are the lessons which they must learn. They are lessons of life and they must apply these lessons to life. It is a character builder. It is difficult when they are surrounded by those who have no boundaries. Those without authority-orientation want to pull them down to their level. They are set apart and they become outsiders in the very groups that they want to be a part of. Do they stay with the authority-orientation that they have been taught, or do they succumb to peer-pressure. Understand what is going on and communicate to your children. You have to be able to instruct them intelligently. You must realize the pressures that they are under. Don't ever give up and don't ever give in. Doctrine carried Bobby through on many occasions. Continue to pray for your children, as they are in a world that we have never seen.

Isa. 7:14

No Lesson # Sunday Christmas Day December 25, 2005

New laptop is in business again. Received 2 days ago.

Silent Night first sung in Austria in 1818 on Christmas Eve? It is a German song. It was sung in a clear still night by a German baritone; and the English troops sang it in English. It was sung in both German and English. Then men got up out of their trenches and walked out of their trenches and had a 24 hour truce; and they played soccer and they talked.

A couple of weeks ago, Bobby was speaking to Bob; they had an abbreviated conversation; but Bob began to speak and he was speaking about his love for Jesus Christ. Upon leaving, Bobby knew what he would be teaching.

Isaiah spoke a prophecy to King Ahaz, and Ahaz was in trouble. This is one of the most famous prophecies of the Bible. Isa. 7:14: Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign. Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel.

Peka in the northern kingdom had made an alliance with Syria, and Resin from Syria was to attack the southern kingdom and install a puppet king, his name meaning good-for-nothing. Isaiah countered this threat with this prophecy. This prophecy was designed for two results. It was an invitation for Ahaz to trust in God for health and rescue; and to anticipate the deliverance of Israel by God. Ahaz flatly refused this sign.

Ahaz made an alliance with Tiglath Pileser, which was forbidden. Israel was to depend upon God for deliverance; not upon man. The sign of deliverance is virgin with child. The word chosen for virgin was carefully chosen. Almah (אִמָּה) [pronounced ahl-maw], which heralded the births of various deliverers, like Samson and others. He was to save his people from the Philistines. What did the sign of a virgin bearing a child mean? It did refer to a real child who was born during the reign of Ahaz. Some suggest that this is Hezekiah; but unquestionably, the virgin and the child were a sign to the court and to Judah as a sign. This would be an unmarried woman, who would later marry, give birth and conceive through the normal means. Her son born in the royal court would be named Immanuel, which means God with us. God had this problem completely under control. All Ahaz needed to do was to trust God for salvation and deliverance. The sign of the virgin was an indictment against Ahaz.

In the fullness of time, a child would be born, a symbol of God's ultimate salvation for His people. Isa. 7:14 was a unique prophecy of the Messiah, but not the only one. Isa. 4:2 11:1 11:10 53. Micah made other Messianic pronouncements, and he was a contemporary of Isaiah. Micah implied the pre-existence of the Messiah, which John affirms. Micah 5:2–3 speaks of the mother and of Bethlehem.

Isa. 7:14 Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign. Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel.

700 years after Isaiah's pronouncement, Matthew cites this verse in Matt. 1:22–23: All this took place to fulfill what the Lord had spoken by the prophet: "Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and they shall call his name Immanuel" (which means, God with us).

This does not mean that the Holy Spirit had sex with Mary and they gave birth to a demi-god; and there are variations of this heresy. Jesus was born undiminished deity and true humanity. The seed of the man contaminates the children. The woman produces one uncontaminated cell once a month which is the physical process by which God made provision for Jesus to be the seed of the woman. In female myosis, God paved the way for a female pregnancy. The Holy Spirit miraculously provided the seed to fertilize Mary's one uncontaminated cell. This was part of the credential of the Lord Jesus Christ as He appeared; this was the first one. This fulfills Isaiah's prophecy.

By rights and by culture, Joseph should not have married Mary. He showed real integrity, as well as a great faith in God. He could have been bitter, angry and made the assumption that all of us would have made. Mary's confession would not be believable to most men.

Joseph, however, had a dream, in which an angel appeared and explained this to him. Could this dream be legitimate and accurate, was what Joseph had to believe or not. Jesus did believe it and he did not have relations with Mary until Jesus was born.

Joseph knew Scripture; he was a man of doctrine. He connected the prophecy of Isaiah with the birth of his child. He was honored to know that his virgin wife would give birth to the Greater Son of David, the Messiah.

Matt. 1:24–25: When Joseph woke from sleep, he did as the angel of the Lord commanded him: he took his wife, but knew her not until she had given birth to a son. And he called his name Jesus.

Jesus was more than a carpenter. He was by birth heir to the throne of Israel, as a direct descendant of David. Mary was also in David's line, which is given in Luke 3. As the adoptive father, Joseph was in David's line as well.

Isa. 53:3, Jesus would be despised and forsaken of men. When He appeared, He was rejected as the Messiah by the leaders of Israel, just like Ahaz rejected the sign of young woman giving birth in his reign to a savior. Ahaz rejected the sign, which did not mean that the sign was not still in effect. The unbelief of the human race cannot stop God's plan. Our salvation began beginning with the events of the first Christmas.

John 8:12: I am the light of the world; he that follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life.

God was the baby in the manger; God literally lived among us. Every aspect of His birth had meaning. Everything that happened that night and that morning had meaning.

The shepherds came and found Jesus wearing swaddling clothes, which are death clothes. People who died were buried in swaddling clothes. The Messiah born on Christmas day would be judged by God, just as Israel would be judged in 721 and 536 B.C.

John 1:14a: And the Word became flesh and lived among us.

The people were delivered, despite of their rejection of Him. God conquered the southern kingdom with Assyria, the very same nation that Ahaz went to for help.

Despite another rejection, God provided salvation through the baby in the manger, which was the mission of the Messiah. That is why He was born. He was the only One qualified for the salvation mission. He was born without an old sin nature. He is the one who brought salvation to us.

The shepherds saw the fulfillment of Isa. 7:14; the God of the Universe, lying in a marriage. He was born in a barn, which are designed for livestock, and not for people.

Isa. 53:7: He was led like a lamb to the slaughter. The manger was the harbinger of his true purpose.

There is born to you this day a Savior, the Messiah. Rejection is judgment; believing by faith alone is salvation. Those who miss Him are judged already; those who believe receive the grace of God, provided 2000 years ago.

Πορνεία & the Divine Institutions Lesson #278 Wednesday December 28, 2005

The Corinthians are still thinking as metaphysical dualists; they are also involved in a pagan religion which was still being practiced by them. They were involved in sexual degeneracy or sex outside of marriage or both. They did not connect what they did with their bodies and their spiritual life. They thought that their physical and spiritual were entirely separate. One had no effect on the other. That is not a doctrine of Christianity. That is a pagan doctrine. It is not the spiritual life, but it is certainly a part of the life that God has provided on earth. If enough believers are involved in evil and sin, a nation suffers discipline and is possibly taken out. Evil and relativism result in ignorance. Everyone does what is right in their own eyes. Israel ignored the Mosaic code and did what was right in their own eyes; this is simply relativism. Specifically, pornea is contrary to marriage and family. Pornea

Πορνεία Affects Marriage

1. God invented marriage as the framework for conjugal love and sexual expression.
2. Πορνεία outside of marriage breaks the bond between man and wife and the trust between the man and woman.

3. Πορνεία causes a breakdown of the leadership structure of the marriage.
4. Here is how it happens:
  - a. In chasing πορνεία the man loses all honor and integrity.
  - b. He becomes sneaky, a liar, a user and a cheat.
  - c. He abdicates his leadership responsibilities, which is why there is a breakdown in marriage responsibilities.
  - d. The soul love of the husband for his wife, which is the natural status in marriage (he is mandated to love his wife), is replaced by increasing unrestrained lust for illicit, cheap substitutes.
  - e. Hence, the wife has nothing to respond to or to respect when her husband is involved in πορνεία and it causes confusion in her soul. Marriage is lost to her. It takes a very spiritually mature wife not to lose spiritual momentum under these conditions.
  - f. If the woman chases πορνεία, her response to the husband will be perverted or non-existent.
  - g. She also demonstrates a lack of honor and integrity. Πορνεία is the antithesis of the royal family honor code.
  - h. The woman who chases after πορνεία falls under the Genesis curse by overtly demonstrating her anti-authority orientation. Her desire is to rule over her husband. That is part of the curse placed on her at the fall. Women always want to usurp the authority of their husbands. This is why the husband occasionally must steer the wife back into her position. The husband must lead with his integrity and virtue; but πορνεία is a reversal of the divine design in marriage.
  - i. When a woman chases πορνεία, she is no longer a responder but an initiator; she takes on inordinate competitiveness in certain arenas. She becomes hardened and tough. The man is a user in πορνεία. He is a user and she becomes hardened and tough, because she is being used.
  - j. She will embrace some form of feminism in reaction; which can even include lesbianism. Many feminist organizations are rife with lesbians, because they cannot respond to a man.
5. The structure of marriage is the front line of authority orientation and integrity in all of society. It is not just about the two of them. It is about the whole nation.
6. Without integrity in marriage, the society crumbles.
7. With instability and insecurity in society, the nation suffers from the attack of πορνεία and immorality in general, which is found in v. 10, already covered. When you cheat in marriage, then you will cheat in any aspect of your marriage. It will not stop just with marriage.

First marriage and now the family:

How Πορνεία Affects the Family

1. The family forms another second fundamental organization; a Biblical safeguard for the perpetuation and orderly function of the human race.
2. This is the environment for inculcation of doctrine. There are norms and standard taught as well; right and wrong.
3. Two parents, mother and father, are critical in creating the optimal environment for raising children.
4. Two parents are God's design to provide the balanced viewpoint of life and people. Children need a balanced viewpoint. Both sides of the coin—Venus and Mars. One parent, or male+male, or female+female and not divine design. Even being traded back and forth, you do the best you can to train them in doctrine. You trust the Lord at the same time to take up the slack. Many children have been raised successfully in single parent homes. Those who teach their kids doctrine have a better shot at it. If you are contemplating divorce and children are involved, they should be your primary consideration. You must weigh your own problems against that. You may have to stick it out for their sake. Danger to yourself or the kids would be reasons to separate. The Scripture is clear about raising children.
5. The family unit is designed for basic guidance enveloped in parental love. You must never lose sight of the love. Discipline is for training; love is for security. Too often, parents don't show this. Parental love is sacrificial love.
6. The nuclear family provides optimum security and stability for children. These are absolutely necessary. These things are basic for any child. This takes place, even if the parents are not the best parents.

The most you can do for a child is Bible teaching. Nothing is more critical for the survival of our nation than Bible doctrine taught to our young people. They aren't always the best disciplined groups of kids.

7. When a child does not have this background, an important piece is missing from their life, which can cause a change in their future thinking and perspective.
8. The authority structure must remain intact. The parents must also maintain authority orientation; and this is particularly true of the wife.
9. Otherwise, without that structure, authority-orientation is a sham. Πορνεία destroys that structure. When either chases πορνεία, there is nothing but self-centeredness; because it will cause problems for the kids when they see it, and they will see it.
10. The parents must demonstrate right and wrong; they must teach right and demonstrate it. They must inculcate children with the principles. You may not have the personality to capture your children's imagination. They need to know self-discipline, manners and respect for others.
11. When basic principles of authority and self-discipline are not taught, children often reject other forms of authority.
  - a. Without authority orientation, which includes enforced humility and respect for adult supervision, juveniles become insolent and defiant.
  - b. They become devoid of boundaries and they are self-absorbed.

- c. They reject divine establishment, norms and standards.
  - d. They replace this with peer pressure. Peer pressure replaces adult authority.
  - e. When these children live according to their peers' standards, self-gratification replaces self-control.
  - f. If a significant number of young people in a nation defy authority and divine establishment, mindless rebellion overwhelms an entire generation. It began in the 60's and continues until today. They are in rebellion, but they don't really know against what. Their parent's don't trust authority, so they don't.
  - g. Alcohol abuse, drug abuse, πορνεία, and gang activity.
  - h. Violence and criminality become commonplace and normal. Criminals are getting younger and younger.
  - i. Lack of standards breeds a generation of adults that think nothing of indulging πορνεία or criminal activity.
12. Here is how society destroys itself:
- a. National disintegration begins in the family, which begins in marriage, which begins with the integrity of the individual.

Here is how society destroys itself:

1. National disintegration begins in the family, which begins in marriage, which begins with the integrity of the individual.
2. Unstable husbands without integrity or leadership results in insecure wives who revolt against authority.
3. Parents without integrity—starts in marriage and in the individual—result in children without integrity. They will follow what you do, and not with what you say. Your actions must equal what you say.
4. Children without integrity produce an unstable, insecure, emotionally-eratic, unscrupulous generation. This is where we are right now.
5. An insecure, unstable, over-emotional generation without integrity demands results from others rather than achieves results on their own. The entitlement generation.
6. Such a generation would rather cheat than operate under a standard of law. The standard of law means nothing to them.
7. That carries over into instability in the 4th divine institution. These are all together. Πορνεία attacks every one of the 4 divine institutions. We should not be depressed as we have the solution.
8. The government of such a generation will be fragmented, corrupt and ineffective.
9. The cycle of insecurity and lack of integrity starts with rampant πορνεία, the disillusion of the family and ends with the destruction of the national entity.
10. Therefore, maintaining stability and freedom depend upon the integrity and standards of marital and parental authority. This is how serious marriage and parenting is.

11. When πορνεία rules, parents have no virtue. Then the next generation lacks virtue. They reject the gospel and doctrine and the nation goes under the cycles of discipline. When parents lack virtue, the next generation also will lack virtue. They will reject their nation and doctrine and the nation will go down.
12. The client nation cannot survive πορνεία and the loss of the divine institutions. Chaos and anarchy are a result. Homosexuality and lesbianism are direct challenges to the divine institution; they are more than sin; they are evil. They affect and infect an entire society with perversion. This is why Paul castigates these practices in v. 9 and also in v. 13.

1Cor. 6:13

Lesson #279 Thursday

December 29, 2005

Metaphysical dualism was related to polytheism as well. It is still relevant to the near future. They, of course, did not call it metaphysical dualism, and they possibly did not have a name for it. The label came along in the 1700's. The body and the soul can be divided and compartmentalized, is the concept of metaphysical dualism.

Paul tells us that there is a close connection between the physical and the spiritual. They cannot be compartmentalized. The body is not for immorality.

Paul's Rebuttal to Dualism

1. The body is a part of the spiritual life.
2. Proof: the body is the home of the indwelling Holy Spirit. That is the point of v. 19.
3. What we do with our bodies reflects what is in our souls or what controls our souls. Is it the sin nature or the filling of the Holy Spirit. The sin nature is actually in the cell structure of our bodies.
4. Πορνεία is an undisciplined and destructive use of the body which reflects the poor condition of the spiritual life.

Our mentality is reflected by how we think. The body, the σῶμα that we live with, in its present form, will not last. The body will be destroyed; the stomach will be done away with. However, the body does have an eternal future. In fact, body and soul are always linked; even in heaven. Never does the Bible ever mention anything about a disembodied soul. The rapture of the church will give the believers another body. That is the resurrection body. We are all aware of that. The two are always linked. The body is always linked to the soul. At the rapture of the church, the new body will be permanently linked to the soul. This will be a body which does not need food; however, our Lord is able to eat. The body is without a sin nature; it does not get thirsty; there is no physical infirmity; it cannot be destroyed and it will not age. There will be no infirmities. It is a body that cannot be destroyed. Resurrection is a phenomenon which is relevant to the body and not to the soul. The soul does not change; the soul does not deteriorate. The soul does not die. It is the body which is involved in resurrection. It is the body which is in need of the resurrection.

There is a time lag between death and getting our resurrection body. We do not know how much time there is there. There is that interim period and there are no disembodied souls, as Scripture never speaks of them.

The body and soul are not separated in life; and they are separated for a moment, if that, when we check out. Maybe we receive an interim body. Always the soul and body are linked. We will never be without some sort of body. The Corinthians do not see any link between the soul and body. There is an eternal connection.

Plato and Aristotle believed that man was capable of good and of sin; the sin is related to the body and the soul to good; however, this is incorrect. No disembodied souls.

An interim body is a temporary home for the soul. When we die, at the moment of our death, we are face to face with the Lord. Bobby cannot even imagine breathing our last in a hospital bed and dying and suddenly being face to face with the Lord. It is a conveyance into eternity. We have nothing to fear from death.

This helps to explain 1Cor. 15, which is all about the resurrection. We are face to face with the Lord. There is no purgatory or anything like that. Since there are no disembodied souls, then there must be an interim body.

The unbeliever also has an immortal soul. What about the unbeliever and his soul? There is a time where unbelievers are awaiting the last judgement and they have an interim body as well, one which is of a completely different constitution.

There is no passage which specifically points to an interim body. Bobby is going to require our brains now. We are going to get some theology via deductive reasoning. We will have to think; we will have to deduce. We will take some facts from the Scripture. The facts will not state directly what the conclusion will be: that there is an interim body.

Theologians and pastors take Scripture and put it together in this way.

Rev. 7:9–10: After this I looked, and behold, a great multitude that no one could number, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, with palm branches in their hands, and crying out with a loud voice, "Salvation belongs to our God who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb!" The palm branches represent peace between man and God. Clothed in white robes refers to believers; cleansed. This is a tribulational passage. This is out of the Church Age. These are the 7 worse years of the history of the church. Christians will be persecuted and martyred as never before. Here John sees these believers in white robes and holding palm branches. Then jump to v. 14b: "These are the ones coming out of the great tribulation. They have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore they are before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple; and he who sits on the throne will shelter them with his presence. This multitude are tribulational martyrs; that is who this refers to, as per v. 14b. These are ones who were killed by the Beast and his cohorts. These martyrs are the same souls given white robes back in Rev. 6:9: When he opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of those who had been slain for the word of God and for the witness they had borne. These were the ones who were killed for the Word of God and for their witness. The word for soul is ψυχή, which has a wide range of meanings. Here it refers to the life-principle; the principle of life. It does not refer to the soul in the sense of that part of the human being. This is simply a referral to a general life principle. Although martyred, these people are living. They have died physically, but John can see them. John is seeing a whole person. They must have a body, as they will be wearing white robes and carrying palm branches. The image is one of a body; not of a disembodied spirit. What kind of bodies are interim bodies? Those who die during the tribulation do not receive resurrection bodies until the second advent. We are church age believers. We do not receive our resurrection bodies until the exit resurrection, which is triggered by our Lord returning (He is in the air; not on earth). The Lord returns, we are resurrection; there is a seven year period of tribulation. People die during this tribulation. They die and they are face to face with God. However, they will not be resurrected until the 2nd advent, at the beginning of the Millennium. Resurrection is always linked with our Lord returning. They are face to face with the Lord, but they are not yet in resurrection bodies; however, being in robes and holding palm branches means that these are interim bodies. All church age believers during the tribulation already have interim bodies. Those from the Tribulation, those who are martyred, have the same kinds of bodies as church age believers do. When these tribulational martyrs are face to face, we will have that same resurrection body. We get ours at the rapture and they get theirs at the 2nd advent. Conclusion: the white robes and the palm branches are adorned by trib martyrs with interim bodies.

However, this is not really the point and this is not Paul's real point. The body is intimately connected to the soul. The soul and body affect one another. They cannot be separated. The Lord has claim to the service of the body as well as the service of the soul. Therefore, what the Corinthians did with their bodies was irrelevant. When doctrine is applied, it is reflected in our bodies. When our earthly bodies respond to divine viewpoint, they are vehicles for the service and the glorification of the Lord. This will be Paul's conclusion at the end of all this.

Paul is developing this entire argument through 1Cor. 6. We are not designed for πορνεία; we are designed for sex within the proper parameters.

Proverbs 8

Lesson #none Saturday New Year's Eve December 31, 2005

The laws of divine establishment are being flaunted all around us. We wonder about the folly of the thinking which surrounds us. Evolution has become a religion; πορνεία has become an acceptable lifestyle. Relativism has replaced absolute standards, even among believers. Some call the war against terrorism unwinnable.

In frustration and anger, we become self-absorbed and in our frustration and anger, we seek some sort of comfort. We try to find happiness in details; in materialism, in success, in approbation. Fulfilling our own desires and wishes takes up all of our time. So many things gain ascendancy over us and takes over the spiritual life we are supposed to live.

Some will stay in Berachah, others will go. Some will reject the authority of one pastor for several and become our own authority. We can go the way of the Corinthians or heed Paul's corrections offered the Corinthians.

The end of the year is a good time to assess our spiritual progress. We will either advance or move backwards. Without wisdom from doctrine in our souls, we will fall into all kinds of traps.

Proverbs 8 is used to renew our focus. This is to be our New Year's cheers. We will not survive this year spiritually unless we take hold of this chapter.

Pro 8:1–11: Does not wisdom call? Wisdom is divine viewpoint. Without wisdom, we will be blown by every cultural wind which comes our way. Does not understanding raise her voice? The voice is that of our pastor-teacher. On the heights beside the way, at the crossroads she takes her stand; these are accessible places; places where people can congregate. Wisdom is not hidden; if we want it, it is available. beside the gates in front of the town, at the entrance of the portals she cries aloud: "To you, O men, I call, and my cry is to the children of man. Doctrine in Martin Luther's soul meant that he would not compromise the truth. There was always a place where announcements could be made to the citizens. This would be the front gates at that time. Here, it is Berachah church. The gospel and doctrine have the greatest impact on the sons of men. Doctrine is the power of God.; doctrine itself carries power. This power comes from the pastor who teachers; from fearless evangelists and missionaries. It comes from invisible heroes who think and speak doctrine. God's Word cannot be silenced. There are many who are at war with the gospel and many who are at war with the truth. There are those who would like to strike any mention of the Word of God from any public place. When these voices are heeded, and they are being heeded, then we will find ourselves in the cycles of discipline. However, doctrine is the means of recovery. O simple ones, learn prudence; O fools, learn sense. Paul called the Corinthians babies; immature. They paid no attention to doctrine. "Pay attention, fools; wisdom must have #1 authority. We must learn and apply doctrine. Through doctrine in our souls, we discover our areas of weakness. If someone finds our weakness, we often become defensive and we despise them for knowing it. Hear, for I 1st person personification referring to doctrine. will speak noble things, and from my lips will come what is right, for my mouth will utter truth; wickedness is an abomination to my lips. All the words of my mouth are righteous; there is nothing twisted or crooked in them. Wisdom engenders true nobility. However, we are noble from doctrine. Wisdom must be valued more than anything else in life. We have studied the perversions of the Corinthians. From the wisdom that we possess, we will have no problem identifying these perversions and not falling prey to them. They are all straight to him who understands, and right to those who find knowledge. We must learn to be open to repetition; we never know if a doctrine is going to be simple or complex; and sometimes, they surprise us. We must review; we must hear doctrine over and over again, because each piece of doctrine in our soul clarifies what we know. Take my instruction instead of silver, and knowledge rather than choice gold, for wisdom is better than jewels, and all that you may desire cannot compare with her. We think that gold, silver and jewels are of great value; but the details of life have little value next to doctrine.

Proverbs 8:12–21: I, wisdom, dwell with prudence, and I find knowledge and discretion. The person who knows doctrine will have common sense and wisdom. We can find discernment and prudence from the wisdom in our soul. The fear/respect of the LORD is hatred of evil. Respect and love for the Lord cannot coexist with evil in our souls. Pride and arrogance and the way of evil and perverted speech I hate. Doctrinal wisdom is the opposite of arrogance; it fosters humility and grace orientation in the soul. The arrogant person presents himself as wise. The competitor practices sins of the tongue to elevate themselves over others. They act as if they are more spiritual. Wisdom and respect for the Lord brings admiration for those who have wisdom; for those who speak wisdom. Doctrine in your soul recognizes wisdom in the soul of others and does not despise it. I have counsel and sound wisdom; I have insight; I have strength. By me kings reign, and rulers decree what is just; by me princes rule, and nobles, all who govern justly. Power and authority are divinely allowed; however, some groups who make the loudest voices sometimes control the law and enforcement of them. We have activist judges and they believe that their relative thinking is the only true course for our nation. Wisdom among rulers means just laws. The standard of our law in our country is our constitution. Those who framed our constitutions were, for the most part, wise believers. I love those who love me, and those who seek me diligently find me. The most important love which we should seek is the love of doctrine. We often love people who do not love us. Some just use us to get something. Unlike people, wisdom will always love us back; if doctrine is the love of our life, then we gain from even our most painful experiences. Riches and honor are with me, enduring wealth and righteousness. From wisdom, we gain capacity for life. The great pitfall of believers is legalism. The greatest love we can express is toward God and toward others. My fruit is better than gold, even fine gold, and my yield than choice silver. The application of doctrine gives us a far greater gain than what any man can give us. Wisdom is much greater. I walk in the way of righteousness, in the paths of justice, granting an inheritance to those who love me, and filling their treasuries. Doctrine endows us with wealth.

Bobby knows that this is time to make a prediction, but he is on the fence. Saying that we support our troops but we do not support what they do, then that is not true support. Devisiveness in our country rules in every area; civility in a public forum is a thing of the past. We have little hope of recovering unity. We have little respect of propriety. We have a decadent culture, which gets more so, day by day.

Our future life depends upon gaining the wisdom of divine viewpoint. We can watch our nation fall apart, and we can fall apart as well. We can lose our job or see our fortune shrink and fall apart. We must dedicate ourselves to gaining wisdom and divine viewpoint. The life of our nation is also at stake. When wisdom is applied; God is glorified. God always honors His Word and the glorification of Himself. When we glorify God, that acts as a preservative to our nation. Doctrine provides for our well-being in every area; it solves the problems of our life. We do not think of a thing as loving us—but doctrine loves us in the sense that it is God's Word to us. Our future is always bright, always hopeful; despite what happens around us.

Love doctrine. We don't have to fall prey to every wind of distraction which blows our way. This should be a year where we are dedicated to spiritual advance. We must fix bayonets and get into the trenches and live doctrine every day. This is how we provide blessing by association for those around us; this is how we have historical impact in our nation.

Proverbs 8:22–31: The LORD possessed me at the beginning of his work, the first of his acts of old. Ages ago I was set up, at the first, before the beginning of the earth. When there were no depths I was brought forth, when there were no springs abounding with water. Before the mountains had been shaped, before the hills, I was brought forth, before he had made the earth with its fields, or the first of the dust of the world. When he established the heavens, I was there; when he drew a circle on the face of the deep, when he made firm the skies above, when he established the fountains of the deep, when he assigned to the sea its limit, so that the waters might not transgress his command, when he marked out the foundations of the earth, then I was beside him, like a master workman, and I was daily his delight, rejoicing before him always, rejoicing in his inhabited world and delighting in the children of man. "And now, O sons, listen to me: blessed are those who keep my ways. Hear instruction and be wise, and do not neglect it. Blessed is the one who listens to me, watching daily at my gates, waiting beside my doors. For whoever finds me finds life and obtains favor from the LORD, but he who fails to find me injures himself; all who hate me love death."

1Cor. 6:13

Lesson #280 Sunday New Year's Day

January 1, 2006

Returning to 1Corinthians. The Corinthians are very much like us. Similar problems; similar failures. The corrections which Paul makes to these people are pertinent to you and to me. They are our example of where we should and should not be. We are surrounded by an anti-God culture; and surrounded by people who would remove any mention of Jesus Christ in any public forum. Evolution has become almost like a religion. We have seen the anti-war movement; there are those who claim they support our troops, but they do not support what they are doing.

Once the divine institutions are destroyed, the cycles of discipline will hit us. We are certainly paying for our problems in many ways. Believers are the key to the deliverance of our nation. Πορνεία represents the physical aspect of dualistic thinking; which is that there is no connection between the physical and the spiritual. The Corinthians believed that they could be involved in πορνεία but without negatively impacting their life.

Paul is introducing his counter-attack of their dualistic human viewpoint. In v. 15, he will say, Your bodies are members of Christ; not members of a prostitute's body. The believer is to glorify God in his body. There is a constant connection in this chapter between body and spiritual life. What we do in our bodies reflects what is in our souls. Carnality and the filling of the Holy Spirit are mutually exclusive. If our bodies are controlled by the sin nature, the spiritual life is non-existent. The Corinthians think that they can have both. If we are involved in all sorts of carnality, including πορνεία, then our body will negatively affect our spiritual life. If the Holy Spirit controls our souls, then divine viewpoint reigns. The mentality of our souls controls the actions of our bodies. What is in our soul affects what our body does. Human viewpoint in our soul means that the surrounding culture will envelop us. Our mission in 2006 is to fulfill our mission and conform to the Royal Family Honor Code. Bobby doesn't tell us to avoid πορνεία because it shocks him; it is in Scripture and it affects our spiritual life, as well as the life of our nation.

If we glorify God, He will always honor those who glorify Him. Enough of those who glorify God, and God will honor this nation as a client nation. Πορνεία is viewed as an undisciplined and unscriptural use of the body.

If our bodies are reflective of our spiritual lives, then we do not become involved with πορνεία. We have volition; we can destroy our body; however, God will keep us here as long as He chooses.

What does it mean the Lord is for the body? God has provided for every need of the body so that we can serve Him. This is known as logistical grace.

Logistical Grace

1. Logistical grace is God's complete provision for our physical and spiritual needs in order to serve Him.
2. Because we possess imputed righteousness, we are immediately qualified to receive logistical grace blessing and support.
3. It does not matter if we succeed or fail in the Christian life; whether we are a reversionist or advancing to the high ground of maturity; we will have logistical grace. We can be the biggest loser ever, and still get logistical grace.
4. We either serve or dishonor the Lord with our bodies. The grace pipeline remains open, no matter what.
5. God supports our body for service, even if we are losers, in anticipation of our recovery.
6. Wherever we go and whatever we do, we will always be supported by the unlimited power and immutable power of the love of God. God always loves us; logistical grace is the demonstration of His love.
7. Deut. 33:27: Underneath are the everlasting arms.
8. When the need is greatest, the Lord is nearest. Philip. 4:5, 19 If we have nothing in our soul, then we don't know that. With doctrine in our soul, we know that when the worst is there, that is when his best is near.
9. Matt. 6:25–27: "Therefore I tell you, do not be anxious about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink, nor about your body, what you will put on. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing? Look at the birds of the air: they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they? And which of you by being anxious can add a single hour to his span of life?" God takes care of the birds; and we are far more important than birds. We will always have food, shelter and clothing in some way or another. God provides everything in life; this is particularly to those who are in combat against terrorism and who have doctrine in their souls. As long as we are to be here, God will provide logistical grace. God will keep us alive to accomplish His mission. We need not be anxious for our lives. Our life is in God's hands and He takes care of us via logistical grace. It is the Lord Who imparts eternal life to our bodies and He gives us the assets to live our spiritual life in our bodies. Eternal life is enjoyed by believers only. Given in time and consummated in eternity. Our body, as well as our soul, has an eternal relationship with God.

Immortality is not equivalent to eternal. The soul is immortal. Once the soul is imputed to the body at birth, it is immortal. Physical death for the unbeliever does not mean oblivion. The unbeliever is never said to have eternal life; the unbeliever continues to exist in hell with a body that experiences pain and suffering. Our bodies will experience none of that. Eternal life is what God has given us; given only to believers. Our perfect resurrection body is given only to us; unbelievers do not have eternal life; they have only immortality. The body and soul are inseparably united. This is a revelation to the Corinthians; they are stunned by this. It is only the soul that would be with God, in the mind of the Corinthian. Therefore, they could only see the soul as having eternal life. However, our bodies will have a place in heaven. The body of the believer has eternal life imputed to it.

1Cor. 6:13 Food is for the stomach and the stomach is for food. Paul felt this was necessary to write. But God will do away with both of them; yet the body is not for immortality, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body.

Because Paul has made a statement like this, he will elaborate on it. The stomach will be done away with, as the body decays. Ultimately, our bodies will be dust. Paul confirms our eternal future in our bodies. His statement in v. 14 is our hope and confidence for our future.

We only have one mission in our life; our mission, our purpose in life is always to fulfill our mission, which is to grow in grace and the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. When we grow in grace, our bodies will glorify God.

1Cor. 6:14 And God raised the Lord and will also raise us up by his power.

1Cor. 6:13b–14

Lesson #281 Wednesday

January 4, 2006

Various ideas about death; you are reincarnated, although it is not clear what happens if you are really good. There are those who see it as oblivion, which is a good excuse to do whatever you want.

People simply don't want to depart this life and also, they fear the unknown. However, for us, the moment that we stop breathing, we find ourselves in a state unlike any that we can imagine. For us, death is something to look forward to. Death is inevitable for all. Some unbelievers don't think that they will ever die; and they fear death more than anything, which is reasonable. To live is Christ, but to die is profit. There are very few passages in the Bible which describe heaven. The mansions are in heaven; streets of gold; no more sorrow and no more tears. However, it is far beyond anything that we can imagine. We cannot even determine what is in store for us.

This particular passage is a description of our status in heaven. It is a bodily description. This verse guarantees the future uniting of our soul and spirit in heaven, despite of our decaying bodies. We all go through the aging process. In spite of our decaying bodies, permeated by the old sin nature. Furthermore, we may not be excited about how we look; all these things are the flaws of our existence. The Lord is for the body; there is also a temporal meaning; a guarantee that every need will be met, despite of our decaying bodies. This is called logistical grace. This is so that we might serve God and fulfill and accomplish the plan that He has for us in this life. Deut. 32:37. And underneath are the everlasting arms.

The health and wealth group, and they are Christians. They think that being believers in Jesus Christ guarantee us health and wealth in this life. Logistical grace does not mean that we will not have health problems or money problems. Logistical grace is greatest when we need it the most. It is most visible in deprivation. God often uses our infirmities and deprivations to advance His plan for us.

Bobby talks about an old friend and he was upset and down on God because he was jilted by some gal. What great justification for leaving the Christian life. Their lives don't quite meet their standards of comfort, approbation or whatever. They think that they should be wherever they think they should be, regardless. Our ability to handle this or that problem is an illustration of God's grace. Our lives demonstrate in adversity God's grace. When adversity is at its worst, God's grace is at its greatest. How relaxing it is to know, it is going to work out. To live is Christ and to die is profit. There is no reason to worry.

It may not seem fair to us that we must show the Christian life in adversity. "God, I would rather that you gave the poor health deprivation privilege to someone else. I want to live a great spiritual life in good health and with enough money." That sort of thinking is fallacious. How much spiritual life does it take to face nothing but blue skies. Logistical grace is not the same thing as getting everything that you want. It is more impressive if you don't get everything that you want and you still accomplish the mission.

An example of winning a war despite of great deprivation. That is being a great warrior. We are warriors as well. We will live through deprivation. Maybe God has a reason for your infirmities and problems. God always has our best interests at heart. Especially with pain and suffering. We must rely on Him in pain and suffering. You don't need much deliverance from health and wealth. If you have never faced deprivation and watched God handle it. How much greater will your rewards be in heaven?

There is incongruity in our thinking. Will we arrive in heaven and say to God, "Why did you not give me an easier time in this life?" You are not going to tell God that you would rather have a better life on earth, rather than eternal life with greater rewards in heaven. So many believers do not live their life in the light of eternity. All they can think about is what they have and don't have. It is a matter of perspective. It is a matter of where our future lies. God will never cease His logistical grace while we live in this life.

1Cor. 6:13b The body is not meant for sexual immorality but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body.
