a pastor can provide guidance or nourishment. Teaching demands authority. Ask someone in HISD how well they can teach without authority. Kids no longer have to learn; they do not have to even be quiet. Many a pastor has tried to muscle in on another church, and some have decided that they can be the bishop of one or more churches, which is divisive, which confuses the sheep. Whose voice should they listen to? One pastor, one authority, and one church. If you cannot learn from one church, then go into another.

Πρεσβυτερος = an elderly man, an older man. 1Tim. 5:1–3 In the church, this became associated with someone who is a mature person, but the key is spiritual maturity rather than age. This is the principle of authority whereas ποιμην is the function of authority. Presbyterian comes from this word.

Since Bobby grew up at Berachah, there are always those who do not want to accept the authority of the pastor. That kid, that punk, is the authority at Berachah? This could be particularly difficult for those who grew up in Berachah under Bob, who is authority personified.

2 members of this congregation were actually babysitters of Bobby. One actually works for him. However, he is authority-oriented.

Bobby wishes he had time to deal with his authority as a company commander, where he has dealt with things like rape and murder. Επισκοπος = superintendent, policy maker, bishop. The word Episcopal comes from this. The mistaken impression is someone with authority over more than one church.

We had a man who greatly understood grace orientation. There were men under him who did not understand his grace policy. There is no excuse for not understanding grace.

All organizations have commanding officers, and with large organizations, there are subordinate leadership positions, and people have to deal with authority over them and exercise their own authority. The pastor must delegate authority to subordinates. A pastor should appoint deacons who are mature believers. They need to understand grace and are doctrinally oriented. Those who do not wield their authority properly do not benefit the person at the top. Regardless, it is for the benefit of the sheep.

Eph. 4:11 pastor and teacher are one and the same. It is properly pastor-teacher. These 3 words are different titles for the same gift. Each word deals with a different aspect of the gift.

The Intersecting Words

1. The pastor-teacher teaches under the principle of authority. Πρεσβυτερος. A pastor-teacher needs to be well-versed in leadership. Bob always believed that leadership training in the military is the best place for such training.
2. Teaching with authority is the pastor's function, which is ποιμην, the shepherd. Care and guidance is emphasized here.

3. The pastor holds an office of authority, which is επισκοπος.

Bobby is responsible for our spiritual growth; he is not a coordinator and he is not a social coordinator, and departing from the primary function of teaching, then he has departed from his gift.

James 3:1: My brothers do not be many teachers, knowing that we will receive greater judgment. Bobby is held to a higher standard than we. He gets double-discipline. This gift should never be taken lightly. This verse is here so that, those who aspire to this office recognize that we are in for and all who teach will be answerable for what they do.

Lesson #771

1Tim. 3:2–7 August 21, 2008

Thursday

The spiritual gift of teaching, from 1Cor. 12:28 Eph. 4:11 is foundational for the spiritual growth for every believer, which growth is mandated for every believer. This growth cannot occur without someone who is qualified to teach doctrine to us. They are qualified by the gift and by the doctrine residing in their own soul, which they gained from being taught. The believer with a teaching gift can be found everywhere in the church; not just with the pastor-teacher. Every gift that anyone might have is dependent upon teaching from the pastor-teacher. He provides doctrine which can be metabolized and guidance by the teaching of the Word of God. Bobby does not counsel; but the actual counseling takes place in the auditorium. Bobby will guarantee us that sooner or later, he will answer our questions. God will not leave us in the lurch with a huge question mark. You do not need all that personal attention in order to grow. The pastor is also the πρεσβυτερος.

There are others who are teachers who teach believers. Someone stopped Bobby in the driveway after Bible class, “You know, I finally know what my spiritual gift is; I am a teacher.” She just assumed that she, as a woman, could not be a teacher. This gift is critical for the foundation of doctrine in the souls of these young children. Prep school is designed to do that. The teachers there learn from Bobby and teach in their own style and in their own way. The kids are being prepared to learn doctrines of a more advanced nature. They need the basic, preparatory doctrines. Parents need to also be involved with the teaching of their children.

The Scripture contains a caution for pastor-teachers. Teaching doctrine carries a greater responsibility and accountability before the Lord. A teacher is held to a higher standard. It is rewarding to teach doctrine. It was rewarding to Bobby when he taught teenagers. We all fail and some gifts do not have the impact on a large group of people. The teaching gift is a corporate, teaching gift. The teaching gift has a wide-ranging impact upon others, which means a greater responsibility. There are great temporal rewards in all gifts, and in watching others grow spiritually from teaching. We are in partnership as believers. God the Holy Spirit takes this information and metabolizes it into the soul. That is an amazing partnership. No one should teach in prep school on a lark. The ministry is no place to hide and be lazy. A pastor-teacher needs to be a self starter. Enter soberly with James 3:1 in your mind. It was a part of Bobby's hesitancy in becoming a pastor; he saw what it required. To go into it lightly is the footstep of a fool.

5 ways to know if you ought to teach.

It is the teaching gift which qualifies a man who is a pastor-teacher.

1. Can you teach; can you communicate. Bobby was hesitant because he knew what he was getting into.
2. You must have a desire to teach. Bobby did not think that he had the desire until he tried it. Bobby knows that he will answer for us at the Judgment Seat of Christ. We will have to answer for ourselves personally.
3. Do you have the circumstances to make this work? Is your life moving in the direction of being a teacher. Bobby grew up in a home which prepared him with doctrine. His college major was classical Greek, and that was not planned out. He had a little G.I. Bill and he tried a seminary; and he found out that he loved it. Also the years that he spent editing the books in the library caused him to be organized.
4. You must be prepared to study and to teach. That means, you will need a formal education. Some pastors have spent a lot of time in the seminary of Berachah. Study and teaching requires academic preparation and self-discipline. The pastor must enjoy exploring the depths of the Word of God. You must be prepared to study and teach. Bobby has known a few teachers in prep school, and they must sit down and prepare a lesson. Bobby prepared for his teen class. Song of Solomon he taught as "Sex, Drugs and Rock 'n' Roll" sermons.
5. You must meet the personal qualifications of a pastor-teacher. They are stringent. Titus 1:6-9 1Tim. 3:1-7

A teacher must edify his congregation. If he is muddled and confused; if he does not have the background to put it altogether. If he does not know the historical background, then he will be muddled and confused, and he produces a congregation which is muddled and confused.

In seminary, there was the nauseating thought that a person must have a pastor's heart. However, you do not need a particular personality to be a pastor. A pastor can be amiable and laid back or aggressive and authoritative. He might be autocratic or democratic.

A pastor's personal qualifications is locked in concrete, within Biblical pre-requisites. Found in 1Tim. 3:2-7: Then it behooves the overseer [ἐπισκοπος] to be blameless [above reproach], one-wife man [not a polygamist; and those divorced ought to be carefully examined], temperate [he has self-control], sensible [common sense], well-ordered [his life must not be filled with distractions], hospitable [generous; gracious soul], apt at teaching; not a drunkard [or a druggie], not a contentious one [not pugnacious, not a bully; not supposed to be a striker of persons, which was a struggle for Bob], not money-loving, but gentle, not quarrelsome [not abusive], not avaricious [free from the love of money]; ruling his own house well, having children in subjection with all respect. But if anyone does not know how to rule his own house [if he cannot lead his own family, then how can he have authority over a church; Franklin Graham was a wild hare], how will he care for an assembly of God? He should not be a novice [he needs spiritual maturity], lest being puffed up he may fall into the devil's judgment [a pastor-teacher has authority and this can cause a person to become arrogant and abuse his own authority]. But he must also have a good witness from those outside [a pastor-teacher needs to have good relations with those outside of the church; he maintains a good personal witness], that he not fall into reproach and into a snare of the devil. The snare of the devil is human viewpoint. It is the doctrine of demons. He cannot compromise his leadership. No pastor-teacher is perfect. This list should never be used legalistically. Men with the pastor-teacher gift all fail in various ways. This list cannot be used legalistically. A legalistic use of one of these qualifications to disqualify someone forever as a pastor. Nevertheless, these are the Biblical qualifications of a pastor. A pastor must have good character and good character habits.

This concludes Bobby's dissertation on the pastor-teacher. Now he has no excuse before us.

The gift of evangelism on Sunday.

Lesson #772

1Cor. 12: August 24, 2008

Sunday 1

Bobby, while contemplating what he is going to teach, watches us and is struck by the diversity of people at Berachah. One thing which struck Bobby this morning was the unity today. We are all a part of the body of Christ. We all have a spiritual gift, which is our subject. This makes us a member of the body. This gift is a part of the whole. We cannot function without the sum of the parts. We are at different places, different maturity levels, different motivations, we still have a place in the body of Christ.

We have moved away from the spectacular and miraculous gifts, which were indispensable, but temporary. The performance of miraculous deeds and the prophecies which were made, all provided credentials for the Apostles and their surrogates. These miracles, all of them, including the gift of tongues, drew attention to the one with the gift, and, ultimately, toward their message. It would make little sense for someone to do something miraculous without accompanying this event with words of truth. The church was not designed to be a place of entertainment or as some fantastic magic show.

As the church began to grow, the miraculous gifts began to disappear, and these gifts were no longer in existence. However, spiritual gifts remain today in the post-canon era of the Church Age. We all have spiritual gifts.

Earlier this week, a woman came to Bobby and told him she knows that her spiritual gift is teaching, although she has been functioning in this gift for sometime.

The church continues to grow and continues to function as the body of Christ by means of communication gifts; but these are not the only gifts which operate during this portion of the Church Age. Bobby demonstrates to us, the gift of pastor-teacher. As we move through our lives, we are going to use our spiritual gift; it will manifest itself, if we grow spiritually.

The missionary falls in between the gifts of pastor-teacher and evangelist. The pastor-teacher teaches with authority because that is his office. Bobby carries a certain authority. He is a πρεσβυτερος. We are the sheep and Bobby is the ποιμην, or the shepherd. Bobby makes application of doctrine from time to time. We, as believers, need guidance, from time to time.

With authority goes responsibility. As James 3:1 says, Bobby incurs a stricter evaluation than do we. Even though a pastor has a past, that past is not something which disqualifies a pastor. That must be evaluated by deacons. They had to carefully consider the qualifications. Titus lists a set of qualifications. He must be a mature believer. He cannot lead other believers to maturity unless he is mature. He must possess good character and good personal habits. He guides and protects his congregation. This is all a part of his qualification and his office. He is not better or higher in the estimation of God; he is simply a communicator, and his gift is important, as is our gift.

Eph. 4:11 evangelist ευαγγελιστης, which is translated evangelist, which literally means a messenger of good news. The cognate is the noun ευαγγελιον, which means the gospel, good news. An evangelist is the one who presents the good news.

Acts 21:8 speaks of Philip the evangelist, who taught throughout Samaria Acts 4:4–8. When Paul took Timothy aside, he tells Tim to do the work of an evangelist. That occurs during the pre-canon period. A person might possess many gifts to found a church. Eph. 4:11 also lists evangelist on the list of spiritual gifts. Paul had a traveling entourage throughout the ancient world. They all did the work of evangelism. He communicates primarily to unbelievers outside of the local church. That is what his gift is designed to do.

What about when an unbeliever accepts from an evangelist? Bobby thinks that one ought to teach this person some very basic doctrine. He needs to be directed toward a spiritual life. He is the first contact. The centrality of Bible doctrine for his spiritual growth. Epistemological rehabilitation. The new convert is a baton; he should be passed along to the pastor-teacher from the evangelist.

Bobby is about to speculate somewhat. A missionary who goes to another country to present the gospel; or there are domestic missionaries who teach within this country. A missionary may have a dual gift of evangelism and teaching, to some extent. Bobby cannot prove this by the Scriptures; but it is not beyond the realm of possibilities. A missionary has a lot of responsibility and he ought to teach some basic doctrine to the new converts.

The evangelist has the gift to hold the attention of an evangelist. Billy Graham has the ability to hold the attention of those who are in his audience. Rick Hughes is another of these. Unbelievers are likely to listen where they might not listen to anyone else. It is an amazing thing to see an evangelist at work. Evangelists certainly have human talents which go along with their gift. It is the actual gift which attracts and keeps the unbeliever's attention. The message of the gospel has the power. It is almost as if a cobra is sitting in front of them and their attention is focused upon it. They can still reject the message and many of them do.

Rick Hughes has the gift to take a room filled with kids and hold their attention. There is no more difficult group to get their attention than a large group of junior high or high school kids. These kids are quiet as he communicates the gospel in his own style. Who on earth could keep their attention for a half hour. His message appeals to them as an ungifted unbeliever cannot. An untold number of kids will be in heaven because of him.

It is difficult to listen to some religious person giving their opinion and it gets you upset and you want to stand up and refute them. This is common. This will even happen with Rick Hughes; but, they will generally give him a hearing. There is the least amount of friction and the maximum amount of attention.

A pastor does not have this gift, even though they are mandated to do the work of an evangelist. But you be sober in all things, endure hardship; do the work of an evangelist. Bobby communicates the gospel in the same way that we do. Bobby gives a formal invitation of the gospel at the end of the service or he will do so when there is a large group of unbelievers present at some sort of a speaking event (like a funeral).

As royal ambassadors, we represent Christ before the unbelieving world. The evangelist cannot reach everyone; Bobby cannot reach everyone; so we are given this assignment as well. At Communion, we receive the doctrines related to salvation. Personal witness is done in two ways. It is done by what we say and by our lives. People view us in our lifestyle and they make determinations as well. We have an unavoidable contact with unbelievers. Everytime we are in association with unbelievers, we must keep our options open to witness to them.

Our primary relationships should not be with unbelievers and we should not indulge their lifestyles. There is a certain distance which we cannot go. We should represent the gospel without being a stumbling block, not through legalism or through antinomianism. Legalism does not represent the grace of God; antinomianism does not represent the freedom of God.

The grace of God is the issue in witnessing. Legalism makes an issue of the works of man instead of the work of Christ. We should not be uptight or condescending. We should not join an unbeliever in duplicity either; that is not personal evangelism. The extent to which we indulge in the lifestyle of the unbeliever is the extent in which our witness is effective. It is never the right relationship for us when our witness is lost sight of and it will set us back in our spiritual advance. There is a line that we must not cross. We simply cannot move into the lifestyle of the unbeliever. This is where maturity comes in, where we can make wise decisions related to unbelievers in our lives.

Personal evangelism is next.

A difficult part of the Christian life, being an ambassador for the Lord Jesus Christ. You may think, an evangelist is easy; yet, I deal with these heathen at work every day, and I gave up on them long ago. We forget that it is not just about what you say. People don't come up and say, "Will you tell me about Jesus Christ, I hear you are a Christian." That just does not happen. You need to have a personal relationship with this person. When they can observe that you have a relaxed mental attitude, and that you can deal with problems without hysteria.

If God is Who He says He is, why are things so bad. Or, how do you know the Bible is the Word of God? These are defenses put up for people to keep from believing in Jesus Christ. They are avoidance maneuvers from hearing the gospel. The words of the gospel are convicting. If you don't believe that, mention Jesus Christ to someone in your periphery and you will get a response. Some will glare at you and there are a number of responses.

In most cases, you build a relationship with those who are unbelievers, and you need to be careful as to how far you take the relationship. We are given a fantastic spiritual life. When we live it, it shows. You don't have to be a legalist. You can have rapport with certain unbelievers in certain relationships.

If you have chosen to indulge in the lifestyle of the unbeliever, you have chosen to neglect or reject the application of doctrine. You have to properly apply the principles of separation. Anything that turns you away from Bible doctrine is not good for you. You do not indulge the lifestyle with those with whom you are building a relationship.

We need to be able to say no to some things. No matter what we do, we remain saved and are going to heaven; but if we fall into all kinds of human viewpoint and relationships with unbelievers where we get fouled up. Witnessing is not the only reason to have a relationship, but at the moment of salvation, one of the things we become is an ambassador for Jesus Christ. We cannot reject it and we cannot neglect it.

We will be brought to the level with those with whom we associate. Whatever doctrine we metabolize at 4 hours a week or more, that can be offset by our bad choices.

There is a separation of thinking between the mature believer and the immature believer or unbelievers in general. We have the mind of Christ. We think far differently than the rest of the world. Bobby is just beginning to recognize how different his thought process is. When Bobby watches politics on TV, he can see how far his thinking is from their approach. He cannot understand how they even think.

Be cautious and remember your great purpose in life. You will not be left wanting. You will have great relationships. If you think that you must hustle a relationship out in life, then you are not trusting God to deal with that aspect of your life. You must demonstrate divine viewpoint thinking, the mind of Christ. If you cannot represent His thinking, you cannot represent Him. The immature believer cannot show this attitude and such a person is indistinguishable from unbelievers.

Some of us advance spiritually; and some are just scratching the surface of what is available to us. When there is no difference, there is no distinct witness for Christ. When you possess a relaxed mental attitude, and you have contentment and happiness in your spiritual life, these qualities will be noticed by others. There is negative volition, so that we will not convert everyone that we speak to.

For some unbelievers, we are their spiritual contact. We have an organic relationship built up and sometimes this is for their benefit. Start with the unbelievers in your family. It is terrible to think of someone in your family spending eternity in hell. And if there is some incident that pisses you off, forget it. Do not allow some problem or disagreement which can destroy your relationship. In some cases, all you have to do is tell someone how to be saved; that is all that is necessary. Demonstrate the spiritual life and do not go down to their level.

Do not indulge yourself in a lifestyle which looks tempting. Even without a mature spiritual life, you can still speak the gospel. The power is in the gospel. Do not fear ridicule or rejection.

Bobby suggests, in case you think you are about to begin an intimate relationship with someone that you speak the gospel to them, to make sure that they know the gospel. That can clarify things overnight.

Do not ever make an issue of yourself when presenting the gospel. Do not get involved in legalism or antinomianism. Do not be a stumbling block to those with whom you have contact.

The function of your spiritual gift in evangelism. The pied piper approach. An evangelist can stand up and grab your attention. Your mind drifts and his gift can focus you on the gospel. There is the function of the spiritual gift of pastor-teacher. He is not an evangelist, but he gives an accurate presentation of the gospel under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. No one should leave Berachah without hearing the gospel of faith alone in Christ alone. The 3rd category is the common function of every believer under the principle of the great commission, which is our mandate to go out and give the gospel. Every believer, even those with the gift of evangelist, must learn Bible doctrine from their pastor-teacher. No matter what a person's spiritual gift is, he still must grow spiritually under a pastor-teacher.

There are a number of non-communication gifts.

The gift of helps, found only in 1Cor. 12:28. It is the Greek noun αντιλαψις and it comes from αντιλαμβανω, which means to take someone's part, to come to the aid of.

Helps: The believer with the gift of helps makes his talent available whenever a need arises. This can include assets as well. This is a foot soldier gift. This is a believer who is in the trenches and the church cannot do without this gift. This is an unsung hero; their gift is not flashy and few notice it. There is a reward for this gift and Jesus Christ notices what we do. For all gifts, there is reward in heaven. Helps is a gift which functions in every church. It is the most sustaining gift providing cooperation and coordination within the body of Christ. Everyone has the responsibility for some charity. We, as a believer, ought to be charitable, either by attitude or in some other way. This is beyond the normal desire to help. We may want to help a friend or see someone in need and want to do with a problem. However, this person, is strongly pushed. There is no restriction with reference to gender. It can involve financial aid and it can involve time. If you are in need, someone with the gift of helps can help you. Without this gift, many of us would be left out in the cold, so to speak. This should not occur within the church. This gift can be extended inside or outside of the church. We picture it as being inside of the church, but that is not necessary. It is a work of charity giving benefit to all in the church; and it models the grace of God. The recipient is not deserving of grace, but it is given to them anyway. This is a golden opportunity to witness to those outside of the church. Mercy is a separate gift from the gift of helps. Helps is not necessarily people-centered, whereas, mercy is.

Bobby thinks of several things when it comes to helps. People making training aides for prep school are exercising their gift. This is the one goal of advancing children. This aides in the advance of a child's spiritual growth.

We spend more time in the function of our spiritual gift and less time spent out of fellowship in mental attitude sins and in the function of other sins. Administration, mercy, giving, etc. still to come.

Lesson #774

1Cor. 12: August 27, 2008

Wednesday

Soney passed away, and first heard Bob in 1956 and has been with him ever since. Some have actually discovered their spiritual gifts. It is profitable to know what it is. It is always nice to know the direction we ought to go; however, it is not entirely necessary to know what your gift is. As you advance, your spiritual gift will advance, and it will function whether you identify it or not. It is sometime difficult to distinguish between the function of your spiritual gift and just the normal thing which occurs in your life. All believers are told to function in the Bible in ways which are similar to a spiritual gift. The gift of teacher, the evangelist and administration. Anyone can be connected with teaching, a parent, someone involved in a prison ministry. We are all to function as evangelists. At any time, you can recite a doctrine; and that is the teaching mode. Parents must impart doctrinal knowledge to your children; so teaching is a part of their daily life. Not having the gift of teaching does not let you off the hook.

Some of us were thrown into a situation where our gift has to function; others of us just desire to do this or that; and God allows for that. There is a direction that our spiritual gift leads us. There can be a close association between teaching and the gift of teaching.

Evangelism, the gift of gathering people and holding their attention. They have the ability to hold the unbelievers attention, when they might not listen to anyone else. An evangelist often will witness to people on a 1 to 1 basis. Philip's gift was apparent when he spoke to a man he had never before met. In either a group or in a single situation.

The ordinary believer can reach the unreachable. They are reachable for us. People can observe us in life and our character and we are put in a position where we can reach this person. We do not have the gift of evangelism, but we still reach out with the gospel. If you are able to talk, then you can present the gospel. We are all witnesses for Jesus Christ.

Yesterday, Bobby had a funeral in this auditorium, and it is a golden opportunity to hammer these people with the gospel. Bobby tells them about death, and then about how to have a spiritual life.

Bobby has a long-time friend who is a professional golfer and he witnessed profusely to other golfers on this tour. They heard the gospel on that tour because this man was not afraid to present it. Many of them are even in Berachah or listen to MP3's because of this. Whether this guy has the spiritual gift of evangelism, we don't know.

Bobby always thinks of Rick Hughes, who thought that he had the gift of pastor-teacher. The one he traveled with gave the gospel, and Rich then taught some doctrine, and it turned out that they had their gifts backwards.

The gift of helps, which is beyond the normal desire to help a friend. Hopefully, we all do kind things now and again, but someone with the gift is compulsive about it; or they might do some task which is of help. Everyone has a responsibility for some charity. We are not exempt from this because we lack this gift. Grace requires that we act graciously as someone who provides assistance. In doing something like this, we have the opportunity to present the gospel.

Sometimes it is hard to tell what your gift is. You are not exempt from doing that.

1Cor. 12:28 administrations and leadership from Rom. 12:8, and these are closely connected within the body of the local church. This could be possibly the same gift, administrative leadership. They may or may not go together. A bureaucrat in a large organization would be an administrator. One with authority could be a leader. They can be separate or they can overlap.

Administration is the Greek noun κυβερνησις = administration, government. This is a gift which allows a holding of a leading position in a local church. Its cognate noun is κυβερνητης = captain, pilot, steersman. Together, these can be seen as a man who commands a ship or leads a vessel. Local churches require church government. There are those within the local church do a lot of the duties which Bobby cannot do. There are 19 deacons at Berachah.

Rom. 12:8 participle from προιστιμι = those who stand before, those who are at the head of, an activity of those in leadership positions in a family (1Tim. 3:4); elder (1Tim. 5:17). A pastor is certainly a man who can lead his church. He needs to make sure that policy lines up with the Word of God. Where a pastor is involved in too much administration, he ends up organizing and not teaching. There is a delegated authority, in a position of subordinate leadership. There is no specific gift of deacon is mentioned; it is mentioned, but a deacon is involved in the church and on of the... Administrative service is necessary to keep a church running. These gifts allow the pastor-teacher to study and teach. These are men that Bobby can trust. He can turn his back on them and know that they can be trusted.

Bobby is paid a salary to do what he does. He does not ever handle the money. Never write a check to him. There have been all kinds of problems within the church and they have been handled beautifully by those with such a gift. Unless it is a superbad case, Bobby does not get involved with the details. All the matters are covered. There are ushers in Berachah every Sunday, and men who take care of Communion. All of this is put together by men with this gift. They do these things as a wonderful service to God. These gifts must be identified. Bobby has the responsibility to identify these duties. Bobby looks for maturity and someone who has some kind of background with Berachah. Without this, the church cannot be administered. There are also qualifications for these and they are stringent.

Anyone in a local church who deals with other members of the congregation should have this gift and they are always worthy of respect, which is authority orientation. Rebellion against church authority is rebellion against God's design for leadership in the church. Bobby has seen some amazing rebellion in his time as the pastor's son.

Most of the time, when we stay in fellowship and listen to doctrine, these problems are handled. However, people get out of fellowship, and then things have to be handled in other ways. Witness the Corinthian church. They were in rebellion. They were involved in factions, splitting up the church into several factions. Bobby understands his own father better because he did not fool around with insubordination, rebellion and factions. Bobby is the beneficiary of this ministry. Bobby has been in other churches where they wander about, go the restroom and come back, and have no thoughtfulness with regards to other people. Bobby has never had to say, "You there" ever. The people in this congregation understand authority and leadership and the proper church decorum.

There is someone in the church who heads Operation Grace Missions. He has obvious administration gifts. Those who lead different service organizations also have such gifts. Prep school has a standing position on the board of deacons. He heads up prep school. He was ordained as a pastor, but he has never had that opportunity.

One type of deacon has the administrative leadership gift; they have leadership qualities. Then there are those with the service gifts in Rom. 12:7, which is next up.

We have examined 5 permanent spiritual gifts—teaching, evangelism, helps, administration, leadership. There must be in the function of the local church, leadership which is subordinate to the pastor, so that the pastor can study and teach. The pastor needs help in order to be able to do this. The pastor needs to provide spiritual food for his congregation. Bobby does not want to face the Judgment Seat of Christ and answer for an underfed congregation.

Administrative Leadership

1. They organize and they execute numerous church activities and details. Communion and memorial services, along with ordinations and other events.
2. These administrative leaders must oversee business and financial matters, which is an extremely important duty. There will be soon an extensive building project next door, which is going to involve taking out the northern wall. Plans and estimates are involved and the entire operation has been handled with tremendous efficiency and good stewardship. The key is to not to waste God's funds. Many churches have been defrauded and bankrupted due to poor or criminal financial administration. The believers in our administration have been honorable in this regard.
3. They must be able to handle a myriad of problems within a church. Where there are two people, there are problems. From simple organizational glitches to serious problems with members of the congregation. All churches have problems. Bobby cannot handle all people problems and do his job.
4. Administrative leadership must make wise recommendations and decisions, involving divine viewpoint and grace. Church government can be quite complicated. Church cannot function without gifted men in this area.
5. Two types of gifts:
  - a. Administrative type gifts. Leadership positions, heads of committees, etc.
  - b. Service administration gifts, service gifts.

This service gift is closely related to the one above. Διακονία, which is transliterated deacon, but it should actually be translated service. Rom. 12:6–9: Having gifts that differ according to the grace given to us, let us use them: if prophecy, in proportion to our faith; if service, in our serving; the one who teaches, in his teaching; the one who exhorts, in his exhortation; the one who contributes, in generosity; the one who leads, with zeal; the one who does acts of mercy, with cheerfulness. Let love be genuine. Abhor what is evil; hold fast to what is good.

Since we have gifts which differ, each person should exercise these gifts accordingly (according to the gift that it is). Serve within the framework of the gift of service.

Some confusion comes from the cognate noun διακονος. This is the gift of administrative leadership.

Διακονία

1. In Rom. 12:7 διακονία connotes a person who waits tables.
2. Generally, it came to be used for domestic tasks of service.
3. It connotes a personal service rendered to others.
4. Paul could have used alternative words here. The word itself refers to something different; a servant. There is no distinction here in rank or authority.

If someone is in the office of deacon, it is not about leadership but it is strictly about service. These are the men on the board of deacons who serve under those with authority. Some deal with financial function of a church. The gift of service goes beyond the office of deacon. This can be other people in the congregation. This gift is at the very heart of the purpose for spiritual gifts. All spiritual gifts are given to the service. A deacon is a conspicuous example of that gift. The deacon is and an example to the rest of the church. The deacon may serve the entire body, but the gift of service can be involved with others, dealing with just one or two or even the body of the church. This gift was possessed by the Apostles.

Paul calls himself in many passages, a δουλος = slave, servant. He was a servant to Christ and he was a servant to those whom he taught. Grace orientation and humility is certainly a part of service, which is what Paul had, even though he had the ultimate human authority. Having authority also requires humility. The greatest leaders are those who recognize that they have authority and that they know how to use it.

Bobby is a table waiter essentially serving us food. It is a special gift that the Apostle Paul has. The Lord Jesus Christ is the ultimate servant. He is called in Isa. 52:13–53:12 the Suffering Servant.

All spiritual gifts are about service. This particular gift of service includes both men and women. Other gifts are sometimes for men only because authority is placed in the man.

With all gifts, we will be led in the direction in which we should go as we advance spiritually.

There are those in T&P and who do maintenance and they make the church work. They serve because they want to. Bobby apparently enjoyed working for T&P. Those who have the gift of service and work at T&P is great, because they utilize their spiritual gift.

What about δεκονεσες which is probably not the Greek. No woman holds the authority found in administrative leadership, or as pastor teachers and evangelism.

Women are looking toughly at Bobby.

Women Under Authority

1. Qualifications for pastor-teacher found in 1Cor. 3:1–7 are addressed exclusively to men.

2. 1Tim. 2:12 women are not to have authority over the men in the church.
3. 1Cor. 14:34–35 women are to keep silent in church.

Those in authority are just as much servants as any woman with any spiritual gift. God has simply set up men in authority in the church because men are initiators and women are responders.

Conclusion

1. What about the office of Deaconess? She is not ever a part of administrative leadership or the pastorate of the church. She cannot hold the office of deacon.
2. She always does belong to the same ministry.
3. Because of that, she has a subordinate, ancillary role in the field of service.
4. That is the general meaning of deaconess, a female who serves, but not with authority over the men.

Women can be an integral part, because some women can do what we cannot.

Deaconess Gifts

1. Serving the ill and the orphans.
2. Providing hospitality Martha Ann Hines comes to mind. Without her, none of this could happen without her. She has done this without complaint and others have picked up her baton and have carried on. Bobby calls for volunteers and there is never a lack of volunteers. This sort of service by women is indispensable to the church. Women are co-workers side-by-side with men.

Rom. 8:12: the one who exhorts, in his exhortation; the one who contributes, in generosity; the one who leads, with zeal; the one who does acts of mercy, with cheerfulness.

The verb here is παρακαλεω. It means to comfort, to encourage. Παρακλησις. Our primary comforter and encourager, is what we have in our souls. We do not have to lean on anyone. We have the Holy Spirit Who is the παρακλητ and doctrine is metabolized into our right lobes, and it is that upon which we feed and grow. Secondly, we have the metabolized doctrine, which is the basis for our stability and our encouragement. Self-encouragement and self-comfort.

Personal Sense of Destiny

1. With confidence in our soul from spiritual advance, we live in the light of an eternally secure future. A personal sense of destiny and this security is an incredible comfort and encouragement. No matter what kind of financial disaster occurs around you, we know we will never go hungry, we will not be thrown out of our house, no matter how the election goes, no matter how many taxes are required of us. We live our lives in the light of eternity.

2. When we understand and apply the incredible resources and life that He has provided, that is the ultimate encouragement.
3. Then, when all of that happens. When you advance spiritually, you advance your life and the eternal security, and in this is encouragement, consolation, etc.
4. With the realization of that destiny, we will attain that which is called spiritual self esteem. That is the attitude of self-exhortation. Spiritual self esteem falls under the personal sense of destiny. No human self esteem can equal this. Human self esteem is based upon your accomplishments, upon which you base your self-esteem. Psychology tries to make this happen without any accomplishments. Spiritual self esteem is dependent upon divine accomplishments, of which we have a part. Divine accomplishment is accomplishment. It is absolute and we have a part in that. Our personal identification is in Christ. We share everything that Christ is and everything that He has. We have the greatest encouragement in life that there is with spiritual self esteem. That is a problem solving device.

Gift of exhortation next.

Lesson #776

1Cor. 12: August 31, 2008

Sunday 1

Pneumatology is one of the misunderstood doctrines and this study began a long time ago. How the Holy Spirit related to the spiritual life, how does He related to the spiritual life, etc? These concepts all begin for us by the filling of the Holy Spirit. It is the Holy Spirit which places us in union with Christ. Without the Holy Spirit, we cannot metabolize Bible doctrine. Without the Holy Spirit, we cannot grow spiritually. The only way to be filled with the Holy Spirit. This means that we are not controlled by the sin nature. Sin causes us to be controlled by the sin nature.

It may have crossed our mind that, certain gifts seem more exciting and more desirable than other gifts. Why did God give me this gift and not that? Why did I get this mundane gift of helps and service rather than something more exciting like teaching and leadership? Something with a little flash and a little dash. In other words, I want a gift where I can gain more approbation; a gift where I can raise my status. This is the Corinthian model. This is what they wanted. They wanted to stand out in this church; they wanted the approbation. This should never be the mode of the spiritual life. What God bestows by His grace always demands grace orientation.

Every spiritual gift is just as desirable and just as important and the gift which we receive at salvation is the exact right gift for us, based upon our talents and the needs of the body of Christ. It fits us perfectly. God has made no mistake. We should not wish for a reevaluation of our gift. "Wait a minute, Holy Spirit, I think I want a different gift." Every gift is one of service to the body of Christ and to the glory of God. What we have is based upon God's full understanding of who we are. No spiritual gift supercedes another. That which seems less desirable is not worse than the gift which seems more desirable.

The next gift is exhortation, and it has something in it for everyone. This is a normal activity in the Christian life for the advancing believer. It works for the gifted and the ungifted. This is something of a hybrid gift. It is a cross between teaching and helps from one believer to another. It also functions individually in the soul, even one who is without this gift. Even if we don't have this gift, that does not mean that we cannot use it or benefit by it.

Exhort in the Greek is the verb parakalô (παρακαλέω) [pronounced pahr-ahk-al-EH-oh], = to comfort, to encourage. Thayer definitions: 1) to call to one's side, call for, summon; 2) to address, speak to, (call to, call upon), which may be done in the way of exhortation, entreaty, comfort, instruction, etc.; 2a) to admonish, exhort; 2b) to beg, entreat, beseech; 2b1) to strive to appease by entreaty; 2c) to console, to encourage and strengthen by consolation, to comfort; 2c1) to receive consolation, be comforted; 2d) to encourage, strengthen; 2e) exhorting and comforting and encouraging; 2f) to instruct, teach.

Personal Sense of Destiny

Anyone who is a believer who is maturing spiritually must reach a personal sense of destiny.

1. At some point, we see the plan of God for our life more clearly. The whole plan of God starts to take shape; we have an eternally secure future. Our eternal destiny, which is involved in living our life in the light of eternity, requires maximum confidence in the soul.
2. You understand the impact of being in Christ. This is the Biblical formulaic phrase, being united in Christ. This is our ultimate destiny; we share everything that He is and everything that He has. That is our destiny.
3. As we advance to spiritual maturity, we understand and apply the incredible resources that He has provided for us. As we see the sources work in our life, that is maximum encouragement in our life.
4. When you understand and apply eternal security and the concept of union with Christ, you have acquired the sense of your destiny and we have a personal sense of destiny. People in life often determine what their destiny is and they strive to fulfill it. That destiny is eternally linked to God Himself.

Spiritual Self Esteem

1. There is a lot of talk about spiritual self esteem and how important it is for our life. Spiritual self esteem is linked to understanding our personal sense of destiny.
2. We develop grace and an understanding of our spiritual life. Without spiritual self esteem, there is no authority orientation in our soul nor is there any teachability in our soul. Teaching is paraklêsis.
3. Spiritual self esteem means that we rely on God's infinite grace, not on our own finite talents and abilities. Human self esteem is linked to our failures and our faults. Human self esteem is based upon what we accomplish in life, and lack of accomplishment means a lack of human self-esteem. Psychology tries to put together an artificial self esteem linked to accomplishments, real or not. At worst, it does not work; and at best, it is an unstable solution. Spiritual self esteem is so much greater because it is dependent upon our accomplishments of which we are a part. With a personal sense of destiny, we share all that the Lord Jesus Christ is and all the He has. Spiritual self esteem depends upon Jesus Christ and not upon us. It is His accomplishments for us which matter. The rest of the human race can look upon us and say, what a failure. This is based upon our

4. Spiritual self esteem means avoidance of inordinate ambition and inordinate competition. All of these human ambitions we recognize that we will not accomplish and now we are insecure. Spiritual self esteem removes us from this rat race. This does not define us. Our relationship with Jesus Christ defines us.
5. Spiritual self esteem is the development of spiritual common sense and good judgment related to divine viewpoint. This is the crux of the application of Bible doctrine. It is always self-encouraging and comforting when we make good decisions from doctrine. This precludes attempts to justify our actions and bad decisions. Spiritual self esteem does not do that; we do not get discouraged when we make bad decisions. We get back on track. We cannot encourage yourself to get back on track when we encourage our bad decisions. Doctrine is the wonderful common sense and good judgment.
6. Spiritual self esteem is cognitive self-confidence from the absolutes of Bible doctrine rather than from the human viewpoint perception of yourself. Human viewpoint perception of ourselves is the very definition of instability. Our emotion responds to what is in our soul by thinking. However, emotions do not run your life.
7. In spiritual self esteem, we can address and we can solve our own problems from the doctrine in our own soul without depending upon the advice of others. With Bible doctrine, our advice comes from what is resident in our soul.
8. With a problem solving devices and with spiritual self esteem from spiritual advance, you can counsel yourself; you can warn yourself; you have good judgment and common sense; you can advise yourself from internal wisdom. Spiritual self esteem is wisdom in your soul, divine viewpoint. We understand who we are, our destiny, and this puts us in a position of self-exhortation.

Rom. 12:8: ...the one who exhorts, in his exhortation; the one who contributes, in generosity; the one who leads, with zeal; the one who does acts of mercy, with cheerfulness.

Lesson #777

1Cor. 12: August 31, 2008

Sunday 2

Colonel Thorton who has been in Afghanistan. When Thorton first walked into Berachah 35 years ago, he could not to imagine. Nancy Crighton sent him MP3's. Those left behind have it more difficult than being deployed. Horrendous things happen to spouses during deployment. In deployment, there are no traffic jams, no bills to pay, etc. This deployment was more in God's plan than anything else that Thorton had been involved in. Sometimes it is difficult to get deployed.

He was first going to be sent to Iraq, but then they changed him to Afghanistan. Later his son was moved there. His CO was going to be someone he knew, but there were a lot of people challenges.

Military intelligence officer means that you cannot tell your family anything that you do. Derrick had a security clearance and access, and once he got his badge, Thorton brought him into a secure area and the ability to lay out what he had been doing all of this time. He had the time to listen to one lesson each day.

It is no mystery that the Afghan people struggle, who have been under tyranny for years. 80% are illiterate. 40 countries there and it is an opportunity to witness to them as well.

The same doctrine which get you through Houston traffic also sustain you in deployment.

Missions change, uniforms change, but the army never changes. It is basically always the same. There is something about the army which is comforting, and you always know what to expect, even though you may not like it. There is an important aspect of the spiritual life. It does not matter which whom you have to associate. Bible doctrine works. Whether you are sitting at home or in a far away place like Afghanistan. It is the greatest part of every person's life.

Exhortation is one of the most interesting spiritual gifts. Bobby exhorts us all the time, which means comfort and encouragement. We build a personal sense of destiny and spiritual self esteem and we no longer have to rely on our own accomplishments and what others say.

This is a perfect morning for Colonel Thorton. He had doctrine and a friend to encourage him.

Self-Exhortation

1. We can clearly see and combat our areas of weakness. We normally like our area of weakness and many times, this is something that we do not want to change. This is usually what is in conflict most of the time with our spiritual life.
2. We recognize when we are headed down the wrong road. We are not blind and unaffected. Blind arrogance is one of the great problems in life.
3. When you recognize that you are going down the wrong road, you avoid it, using the counsel of Bible doctrine. You advise yourself from Bible doctrine. There is a different way of thinking and there is a way to self-exhort. We are destined in another direction to repeat the same old patterns of our life over and over; and we struggle with it every day.
4. Self-exhortation means the obvious things which we should not indulge in are the very things to which we must say no. Our area of weakness. What else do you need to say no to more than the area where you are mostly likely to become frustrated with and entangled in. Without it, is it the same old pattern. What great encouragement it is to see ourselves growing and making good decisions from a position of strength.

A personal sense of destiny and spiritual self esteem and self-exhortation, and we begin to move away from our well of weakness. The same old quagmire. The more we fail, the more discouraging it is. One of the greatest lives to live and when it fails, it is a great source of discouragement. You are no longer in denial about bad decisions. One of the ways that human self esteem is simple to deny them; it did not happen; I am moving on. There is no more rationalizing your bad decisions. The more you can apply Bible doctrine, the more encouraged you are and the greater is your stability and the comfort of your life. We all could enumerate the circumstances of our life which is commensurate with our weakness. If you have some doctrine in your soul, then concentrate on that doctrine. The disadvantage is not using it. It is wonderful when you break the old patterns; those things which the world says makes you happy; how often we are fooled by human self-esteem. So we self-exhort and then move back into making good decisions from a position of strength.

An external exhortation; a good example is what Bobby does when teaching us; he exhorts us. This gives us comfort in doctrine; it gives us application in what we see and utilize. All of that is designed to encourage our spiritual advance and the application of doctrine. That is part of what Bobby does. Bobby makes application and he does some exhorting himself. This is an appeal for application of doctrine. In covering spiritual self esteem, Bobby just made an appeal like that. Bobby is giving us external exhortation as a part of his teaching ministry.

1Peter 5:1–2: So I exhort the elders among you, as a fellow elder and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, as well as a partaker in the glory that is going to be revealed: shepherd the flock of God that is among you, exercising oversight, not under compulsion, but willingly, as God would have you; not for shameful gain, but eagerly;... Peter is exhorting people to do their job; actually pastor-teachers. Exhortation is not to be judgmental, intrusive (except from the pulpit, but impersonally). “Do your job!”

Hebrews: But I urge you, brothers, bear with this word of exhortation, that I have written to you briefly. It is all about doctrine; that is the direction from which exhortation and appeal comes. Sometimes Bobby gives it to us softly and sometimes he lets us have it. The book of 1Corinthians is an idea book for exhortation. It lends itself to that. There is a lot of practical application to us. It is Bobby’s encouragement of us; we have the same problems that the Corinthians have. They apply to us just as much as they apply to others. Sometimes exhortation hurts, when Bobby faces the realities of his own failures and his own realities, to see yourself as the Scriptures sees you. Either way, it does encourage. Our spiritual self esteem is lasting and our personal sense of destiny is eternal. We think of someone encouraging someone else in a little circumstance, but they may need more of it tomorrow.

This is all the general approach, and this has been all about this act related to us and Bobby however, this gift is given to many believers who comfort and encourage those in the body of Christ. We may have it. Bobby thinks that this is a great gift; we take Bible doctrine in our own souls and we exhort someone else with it.

2Cor. 1:3–4: Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and God of all comfort, Who comforts us in all our affliction, so that we may be able to comfort those who are in any affliction, with the comfort with which we ourselves are comforted by God.

God is the Great Comforter through His Word. This is the whole picture of exhortation. With the gift of exhortation, we can exude the confidence and stability of those around us and who are in need of encouragement and exhortation. We learn this from God and we can use this to encourage others. It is that gifted ability to encourage through the doctrine that we express and we apply.

The Gift of Exhortation

1. Exhortation is that gifted ability to be of encouragement through the doctrine that we express and apply. This is not through our personality, not because we are a happy person, but this helps in consoling the grieved. We die and we go to heaven and our loved ones die and go to heaven. Those we care about depart from this life. Some of you have the ability to come along side and are able to comfort. They know what to say what doctrine is resident in their soul. It is good to have doctrinal perspective from someone during your grief.
2. A person who helps to settle the fearfulness in a person's life. We can utilize doctrine and help a person suffering from fear.
3. The one with the gift of exhortation can reassure of the power and efficiency of Bible doctrine to those who are wavering. This gift is beyond what is normally found in these circumstances. Now, there are those who can comfort someone based upon a personal relationship; but this is a gift which can be applied with strangers. However, you have to have divine viewpoint in order to exercise this gift. A believer must be in spiritual advance and in the realm of spiritual maturity.
4. The ministry of refreshment, which we studied in Philemon; and at anytime, one believer can refresh another; however, this gift goes beyond a personal relationship. The gift in war might involve doctrine or the gospel. We can all take encouragement and be comforted by others. Bobby has done this in the past. Can Bobby pinpoint the fact that someone has this gift? No. This can be a rewarding and wonderful gift.

Lesson #778

2Cor. 1:3–4 September 3, 2008

Wednesday

Palin speech night.

Bobby said that Sunday was one of the most important pieces of application, worked in with the gift of exhortation. Rom. 12:8a is where we find this gift. Bobby became rather stunned at the expanse of this gift of exhortation. There are two uses of the root word, exhort, exhortation. Παρακλησις and παρακαλεω. Spiritual gifts are always used for the good of the body of Christ, as well as for individual believers. Some of these gifts are serving even a wider audience. The gift of exhortation. It is one of the most representative gift of all the gifts. It includes the communication of Bible doctrine and comfort and helps, generally from one believer to another believer. It is used from individual to individual. There is a lot of danger in this, as well as a great blessing. Encouragement comes from doctrine and exhortation comes from assistance and help. An internal exhortation, from one's own soul to one's self. This is the most effective encouragement that you can have. Self exhortation is not about the spiritual gift.

This gift is a microcosm of the gift. It is an everyday function of our spiritual life. This is self-παρακλησις

παρακλησις

1. Self-paraklêsis is a truly wonderful, practical application of spiritual advance.
2. This is the inherent confidence which is produced by our souls. That which we have learned and metabolized. There is a built-in confidence and exhortation.
3. Self-exhortation is the result of spiritual maturity and the exercise of problem solving devices. This is related to a personal sense of destiny.
4. This is about advancement; as we advance more and more. We live in the light of an eternally secure future. Receiving eternal life by faith alone in Christ alone. We have an eternal future, but we certainly do not understand all that this means. We do not have a full conception of this.
5. As we realize the impact of our eternal life for every aspect of our temporal life. It is not just the position which we have. There is an impact on our temporal life. When you begin to realize that impact, it affects your life.
6. You also begin to understand the practical application of being in union with Christ.
7. So we were always in union with Christ, a position which we acquired at the moment of salvation.
8. As you advance with your spiritual growth, you discern and you digest what that means in pragmatic terms. When you actually begin to realize the reality of this that we as a human being, that we share all that Jesus is and all that He has, and we put this together with our life, it is an epiphany for us.
9. When you comprehend and apply eternal security to our insecurities in life, your insecurities matter very little. The fall-back position is absolute security in life. You comprehend and apply the reality of your union with Christ to your human associations and relationships, it overrides. You no longer succumb to people testing. You no longer let those little situations in life get the best of you. What supercedes this is your relationship with Christ. When you comprehend and apply your infinite scope of your spiritual resources, the problem solving devices as a whole; for living your spiritual life, when you understand the grace of God and what He has done for us, then you have acquired that personal sense of destiny. Think of this in human terms. When you recognize your vocation in human life and you love it, there is a great security and happiness in having a direction in life. There is a security in our destiny in Christ. Nothing can stop your spiritual advance, nothing can take away your spiritual resources. That is our picture of destiny; that is our picture of self-exhortation. We develop an attitude of spiritual self esteem. That is central to everything which happens to us in our lives. We talk about our accomplishments in life. Look at what I have done. We have the same circumstances. It is a whole different situation when you develop spiritual self esteem.

Spiritual self esteem

1. Spiritual self esteem is the attitude of self-exhortation.
2. This means that we rely on God's infinite grace, not on our finite abilities.
3. Our spiritual self esteem is based upon divine accomplishment; He has accomplished everything for us. We then begin to recognize our destiny in Christ.
4. With all that in mind, we no longer have to trust in our finite competence and potential. Whoops, there goes my self-esteem, because I had so much potential and I accomplished nothing. When someone's human self esteem is tied to accomplishments like money, if we lose it, we jump out of a window.
5. With spiritual self esteem, we trust in His absolute promises. They are iron-clad and we get it. We can still strive for human accomplishments, but that should not be our self-esteem.
6. You find yourself in spiritual self esteem. "I gotta be me." They want to find themselves in themselves. It is a vicious circle. It is dependent upon their own accomplishments and how well they think of themselves. The criterion for finding yourself is finding yourself in Someone greater than yourself. Sometimes we find ourselves in another person with our children or with a role model or with the spouse, but that is finite.
7. After all of this, we are spiritually self-sustaining. This means we have a growing confidence and encouragement in the Lord Jesus Christ. Everyone will fail you; your closest associates will fail you. You will feel stabbed in the back. The best of them. Even those with the most integrity. The ones you expect to cover your back. God never fails. His promises never fail. Our spiritual life and advance never fails. That is who we are, with spiritual self esteem. Our country depends upon us and whether or not we can utilize the spiritual life and the assets we have been given.
8. This is the progress of the spiritual life. The progress of the spiritual life in which we realize our destiny. We have an iron-clad destiny. The progress of the spiritual life and we operate with the spiritual self esteem of one being in union with Christ. And this is where we find ourselves, in union with Christ. Self-exhortation is an email to ourselves from the doctrine in our souls. Our appeal for advancing and living the spiritual life and self-examination. Self-exhortation is also wrapped up in self-examination. All it takes is to continue to progress to spiritual maturity and we will have spiritual self esteem. We get the encouragement from the doctrine in our souls.

There is an exhortation that one believer supplies to another believer. This sort of exhortation takes the form of a spiritual gift. This gift in action is truly a thing to behold. It is a wonderful gift. Bobby's been exhorted many times from his father and his mother. Encouragement and comfort. It comes from the doctrine resident in another's soul and given to another. A great gift when exercised toward us.

2Cor. 1:3–4: Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and God of all comfort, who comforts us in all our affliction, so that we may be able to comfort those who are in any affliction, with the comfort with which we ourselves are comforted by God.

There is no greater comfort in life than God Himself. How does this work? God rains down comfort and encouragement upon us? We grow and we begin to recognize our destiny and we develop an attitude of spiritual self esteem. This allows us to be able to comfort others in any similar affliction. We are comforted by God in our own spiritual advance and we can comfort others by the same doctrine as He has given us.

2Cor. 1:3–4

1. The spiritual gift of exhortation is a reflection of God's comfort of us.
2. The one who is exhorted by God, self-exhortation by gaining a personal sense of destiny and spiritual self esteem, and can self-exhort, can also comfort and encourage others.
3. But, as you should be able to ascertain now, exhorting others requires one thing: wisdom from doctrine. If you have no wisdom, do not try to exhort someone else. You might even make them mad.
4. All that is the basis for the effective function of the spiritual gift of exhortation.

The gift of exhortation is the ability to be of the ability to encourage and comfort based upon the doctrine which we have in our souls and how it is applied and how it works toward others. This is a microcosm of our entire spiritual life.

Gift of Exhortation

1. We use this to console the grieved and the desolate.
2. This gift manifests itself in steadying the fearful and defenseless, someone whose defenses are gone in this life. What a great comfort for them to be encouraged by the doctrine in their soul.
3. It manifests in reassuring the power and sufficiency of Bible doctrine to those who are uncertain and floundering in life.
4. This encouragement can take the form of admonition and caution or empathy but always from divine viewpoint. Never from human viewpoint. You may admonish someone at sometime. That may be part of this gift. This gift is beyond what is normally done in such circumstances.

What Does that Mean

This is a look at our spiritual life and how it applies to other people in a wonderful way. All of us as believers in Jesus Christ can have a part in exhortation.

1. In the power of the Holy Spirit, exhortation is a compulsion, a strong urge, like the gift of helps. It is a strong desire to do this gift or compulsion. Some of us may have a desire to help and encourage those, and most of us are charged to do. This is a compulsion to help those who we do not know. Sometimes those who are peripheral to our lives. Sometimes, it opens the way to evangelism. It opens the realm and possibilities of the spiritual life. Some see you and say, "I want what that person has; I no longer want to wallow in my life.
2. This is above and beyond the call of every believer in their spiritual life. The gift is a heightened ability to do what other believers should do.
3. It is a divine provision for immature believers who do not have the ability to self-exhort. They cannot use the resources which God has given them. They need a little help.
4. It is ap or vision for any believer who needs refreshment or a caution. That is true even for a mature believer. Even mature believers need a jump start from time to time, encouragement in a circumstance. That is where the gift works.
5. Understand that it is doctrine that ultimately does the refreshing and comforting through the gift. Never forget where exhortation comes from.
6. Those with the gift who have acquired the wisdom of divine viewpoint are the personal vehicles of doctrine and comfort to others in need.

Self-exhortation includes all of us, and the gift includes some of us.

Lesson #779

Heb. 3:13 Rom. 12:8 September 4, 2008

Thursday

Still studying the spiritual gift of exhortation, which is for the encouragement and comfort of all believers who are in need. It is a supernatural endowment given to a certain number of believers in order to get the job done. Through the power and the guidance of God the Holy Spirit, this gift does several things: it motivates, it compels, it strongly urges, and it spurs them on to compassion, one believer in service to another. The gift manifests itself in so many ways; it steadies the fainthearted and the insecure. It helps those who are wavering in their faith in Bible doctrine. The handling or the imploring or the admonition of those who are out of line; and that is only part of it. The gift is designed for encouragement to bring to mind those who are in the midst of a bad decision, and it helps to move them back to a position in Bible doctrine.

However, this does not give you the opportunity to be a busy body. This does not open the door to a legalistic tirade against other believers who have made bad decisions who you want to straighten out. Nor, is Bob coloring this in terms of a sloppy pitty party of those who are in need. The ability to impart that strength and insight of Bible doctrine at just the right time and just the right way. This is the realm of the spiritually mature believer. This gift is most effective in the believer who has the wisdom of divine viewpoint. That is practically a prerequisite. It truly becomes operable to the maximum. That is the gift. The use of this gift can take several forms. The form of commiseration and empathy of someone in need. Giving advice when the opportunity presents itself; it can take the form of offering a caution to someone. It can mean admonition under certain circumstances.

This gift of external exhortation also has a universal application. It is something which every believer can take part in, whether he or she has the gift or not. These things we have been studying does have some application to us, even if we do not have the gift. The application is simimilar for the gifted and the ungifted. We all have a need and all of us are required to exhort now and again.

Heb 3:13 But exhort [παρακαλεο = to encourage, to exhort] one another every day, as long as it is called "today," that none of you may be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin.

A daily encouragement is called for. This verse commends consistent exhortation. Even for believers without the spiritual gift. Obviously, this can be extended to those without the gift. All believers are instructed by the Bible to function in a way similar to the function of this gift, without actually having the gift.

What does this command to the ungifted believer? We get the ansewr from the last line of Heb. 3;13: ...so that we are not hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. We can define it as a frantic search for happiness. It could refer to the process of reversionism in the believer. The delusion initiates a hardening process and a callousness to sin itself. A general hardening in life from bad decisions. The less doctrine you apply, the worse decisions you make, the harder that you get in life. Hardness requires a good bit of skepticism and pessimism. You use people, they use you; they get hardened. It always culminates in frustration and misery for the believer. That is what you get with the frantic search for happiness. Contentment and peace are elusive. The frantic search can occur in sexual promiscuity and it can destroy the capacity for true love and great intimate relationships. It wipes out the ability to have a truly great relationship. You become distrustful of others; you get used and you use others and you begin to see this as how people interact.

When the opportunity presents itself, you function with this gift. There is the way that exhortation can be used by every believer. A wise parent may be able to do this for an adult offspring. It can be done between siblings who are both adults. It can be one believer exhorting an intimate believer friend and cannot exhort themselves. When it is handled correctly, it is truly a wonderful application of Bible doctrine in your soul.

Let me give you a big caution: this type of exhortation should never be done in an intrusive, judgmental or legalistic way. When you do it like that, you drive people in the opposite direction. Be very careful when exhorting others. This can be well-meaning but poorly executed; of just mean as well as poorly executed.

There are times when you need to be patient and you have to wait until someone reaches rock bottom. You have to have the doctrine and the sensitivity to know when to do this. This is what you are mandated to do. This is the gift and the general use of exhortation.

The next gift of giving, a spiritual gift which is also a normal function for all believers. All believers who are mature will give. The very name, giving, epitomizes the use of spiritual gifts. However, this is a different type of giving.

Μεταδίδομαι, is a selfless sharing of one's prosperity. Hoploths. Sincere, uprightness and generosity. This means giving without being parsimonious. Generosity is the epitome of grace orientation. This is another example of a gift which becomes more effective when you have matured. You must be grace orientated in order to operation. Even those with parsimonious tendencies.

It is just like love; we love because He first loved us. It is a reflection of what we have been given. The greater the maturity, the more maximum the function of the gift.

Giving may be a concentrated of self to a ministry or to others; the giving of self or time; and here, it refers to the sharing of one's own resources. This particular gift is given to both rich and poor. You don't have to have a lot of stuff in order to give. That is giving to individual believers or to Christian organizations.

Bob told the story of Dallas Seminary when they needed money, and God provided that gift just at the right time.

Giving

1. A person with this spiritual gift often gives sacrificially. Most of the time when when Bobby saw this word, it was usually legalistic.
2. Sacrificial means that you
3. u are donating a larger portion of financial means than what is otherwise put to a personal use.
4. Such giving is from a specil motivation from the Holy Spirit, which is indicative of the gift. Any motivation of the spiritual gift, any motivation is from the Holy Spirit.
5. This sort of giving is giving often; giving more than the means and abilities of others.
6. The gift carries a heightened motivation for supporting and dissemination of the Word of God. Everyone who has this motivation, wants to support the getting out of the Word of God.

In this regard, there are certain categories of those who seem more in line for this gift, simply by virtue of their circumstances.

1. Believers who are single, because they have more time and less likely to have conflicts with where money goes.

2. Those who have greater assets and resources from which to draw. Wealth may be supplied by God for those who have this gift in order to function at this gift. You may think that you are a brilliant investor, but it may be that God just decided to bestow this on you just for that purpose. However, this does not mean that only the wealthy have this gift. The mistake of churches and politicians who continually hit up the rich.
3. You must have the correct motivation to use this gift.

It may seem weird that this gift is not just given to those who have lots of money. Sometimes, this is given to a believer for this or that purpose, and it just involved time. Even those with a smaller amount of capital participate with monetary giving. Rick Hughes has had the policy that, if the money isn't there, he would not do it. Sometimes, it just boiled down to a little gas money, and sometimes, a small check would arrive at just the right time, without an solicitation, a few dollars, seemingly coming out of nowhere. When the Lord is in a ministry, He provides the funds. Some churches never catch on to this.

Bobby has the opportunity to see this. They disseminate the monthly sheet of our finances; and it is quite interesting, no one solicits money, and month after month, there is money. One year, there was no money; and they had to figure out, where do we make the corrections?

So the poor can have this gift, and some give to the point of personal hardship. It presses on their soul to do so. It is a consistent impulse. It is in their souls to give anytime that they can. Those with this gift, even with the little funds, this person is often the picture of grace motivation. They demonstrate doctrinal motivation in this field, which is so critical.

You cannot give with the wrong motivation. Either give with the right motivation, or do not give. Berachah does not contact those who give. No one has to prod any believer to give. Many believers solicit for sacrificial giving, and that term has been used so many times that it is nauseating. This takes the joy out of giving as well. When someone is pressed to give, they never enjoy the true motivation to give.

Care must always be taken not to make believers feel guilty for not giving. There must be a seminary course for making believers feel guilty for not giving. This is something which is between them and the Lord. The guilt-leverage or high-pressure dunning; or getting someone on the board, so that you can ask them for money when it is needed. There are a ton of gimmicks. These are cons and many are found in the church. What a tragedy. Cowmen for the Lord. It is pitiful and it happens all the time. This does not further grace orientation. Whether a person is poor or rich, the person looks for the opportunity to use this gift.

This is an area which requires a lot of caution.

Giving sacrificially never requires putting one's family in financial jeopardy nor does it mean that you ignore debts. You do not act financially irresponsible.

It never means deposit giving to the church. Do not go into debt to give. Many believers put their families in direct financial states in order to give sacrificially. Some churches have even insisted on this. 1Tim. 5:8: But if anyone does not provide for his relatives, and especially for members of his household, he has denied the faith and is worse than an infidel. This does not make a person an unbeliever nor does it mean that they lose their salvation. If you can't or won't care for your near relatives or family, how can you legitimately care for those outside of your family? Giving like this is heinous. There is a clear line between giving sacrificially or putting your family behind the 8-ball. When people put their family at risk, it is arrogance, desiring to receive approbation from others; or, sometimes out of guilt.

The amount that you give should be the amount that you can afford to give. Never shirk your responsibilities in order to give to a church. Some won't teach this out of fear.

The problem of tithing is going to be next.

Rom. 12:8: ...the one who exhorts, in his exhortation; the one who contributes, in generosity; the one who leads, with zeal; the one who does acts of mercy, with cheerfulness.

Lesson #780      1Tim. 5:8   Prov. 11:24–25    September 7, 2008      Sunday 1

Grace is one of the wonderful concepts and it is the Christian life and the plan of God. Everything that we accomplish always seems to be of our own making, but we must accept grace in order to understand God's plan of salvation. Our spiritual life is focused in grace.

A seminary professor asked about, what about methods of soliciting gifts? Bobby told him, money should not be solicited from anyone nor should anyone be pressured or made to feel guilty. These are cards which many pastors play. His reply was typical of many, how do you take in enough support to operate the church? This is a man very knowledgeable in the Bible. For him, it was as if God could not support the ministry apart from some human viewpoint fund-raising tactics. The Christian world learns from politics how to bring in money. But a Christian should not be pushed or prodded or made to feel guilty. Only when a believer has gratitude for the teaching of the Word of God should he give. Giving should not be based upon some human ploy. If believers are not taught grace orientation, then how do you get them to give? Then you have to buffalo them into giving; cajole them. Money has a way of clouding issues and overriding doctrinal teaching. Berachah church and T&P have not, in 60 years, sent out a card or a solicitation for funds. We should only give when we are motivated through spiritual advance to do so. Otherwise, do not do anything. Otherwise, it is worthless. We don't want it and we don't want you to give. Most churches will never teach this principle of giving. It is wonderful to see the Lord take care of a church. As long as doctrine is taught from this pulpit, that will be the case.

Probably the worst offenders are televangelists who make a lot of money by their approach. They promise God's blessing to the donors. The bigger the donation, the greater the blessing. That has nothing to do with God's grace. Work is fine; service is great, but it must be done under the proper motivation and the proper conditions. These people on television are either mixed up or crooks.

Some ministries rank giving above taking care of one's family. 1Tim. 5:8: But if anyone does not provide for his own, and especially his family, he has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever [infidel]. This is one who has denied the faith and has demonstrated that with his reversionistic thinking. Never give money to the church and deny your family. There is a whole group of churches who do this and keep many people in great poverty because of it.

The false doctrine of tithing is an imposed doctrine of a church in order to get a certain amount of our income. Therefore, it is not a well-motivated giver who tithes. This is a believer who has been forced to give based upon a requirement. Tithing can foster a whole operation of resentment and plenty of other mental attitude sins. We are required to give a certain percent in some churches, and you feel guilty if you do not tithe. If you have been tithing for years, you have not been blessed because of it.

Tithing was commanded in the Old Testament. God commanded Israel in the Mosaic Law to bring tithes. But in this case, tithes were not giving; these were national taxation. Lev. 27:30–34, tithing was required. The nation tithed—believers and unbelievers both.

The word tithe means one-tenth. This is what one owed based upon what they owned and earned that year. Mal. 3 Tithes were brought into the storehouse [and they were obligatory]. not paying in Israel was criminal. Some of you think because of the policies of the nation mean you do not have to pay taxes. We are citizens of this nation and taxes are the obligation which we are under.

Bobby when he pays taxes likes to think of it as going to a certain organization, and that makes him feel better with this obligation. Prov. 11:24–25: There is one [a believer in this case] who scatters [gives] and increases all the more; and there is one who withholds what is justly due, and it results in lack. They hold onto their money and what do they have? They have a poverty of soul. The generous man will be prosperous and the one who waters will be watered. Divine blessing for the one giving. The one who withholds, withholds because of his motivation.

In Israel, they were taxed and they also gave. The principle of giving functions in every dispensation. Tithing is not a choice in the Age of Israel. Only a free choice with a grace oriented.

Jesus looked the pharisees in the eyes and blasted them for their thinking. The pharisees tithed minutia. They tithed their seeds. They had no attitude for giving. The emphasis of Jesus was the mental attitude of giving, not on the actual tithing amount.

Giving is the privilege of every believer for just that privilege. Only give when you are motivated by gratitude for God's grace. The grace of God is always in action, from eternity past to our life at this moment. Everything that we are and everything that we have is from the grace of God. Until you have gratitude for that, do not give.

We are not required to respond without the attitude. When we understand the sources and the gracious activities that God has given to us for our spiritual life. Giving a means to express grace orientation and gratitude for what God has done on our behalf. It is never something to be forced upon us. You may think that tithing is a ticket to God's grace. God provides living and logistical grace and he provides dying grace and He provides eternity. We do not earn anything in the spiritual life. Never in the New Testament do we find the mandate, give. There are other aspects which are commanded, like assembling yourselves together. We are commanded to love our brother. We also learn how to fulfill these commands. We need to know the mechanics for these commands. Giving must be self-motivated and not mandated. It must be accomplished in the filling of the Holy Spirit. Give should always reflect the correct motivation from doctrine resident in your soul. As you advance, your giving reflects correct motivation.

Principles

1. No pressure should ever exist, internally or externally. Someone is demanding or trying to persuade you to give money.
2. You must not allow an emotional appeal to sway you in this area. There is no more emotional appeal than those given for money. There must be courses in some seminaries to teach how to raise money. There is no blessing for giving with the wrong motive.
3. Giving today should not be competitive. Giving more than someone else is meaningless. This does not mean a better seat in church. You never give in order to receive approbation or accolades from anyone.
4. The amount given should never be made a matter of public display/disgrace. One church where Bobby was had a target amount for giving.
5. All giving should be done in the privacy of your priesthood. It should be no one else's business how much you give or if you give.

1Cor. 12: September 7, 2008

Sunday 2

Giving by coercion is never pleasing to God. Many organizations who have fleeced the flock are finished as history. Many of those who are leaders of such groups have found themselves in disgrace. Some of it has ended up being criminal.

Bobby remembers an incident some time ago. There was an election where Dan Quayle was on the ticket. His wife was on tapes and her mother as well. The press thought that Quayle was on tapes, and they went down to Berachah to find problems. There was Time magazine, Newsweek, and several others. Bob, with cameras, was asked, "How do you get money?" They figured that this would be a trap, based upon what they knew about other churches. Bob explained and then showed them the financial statement on every single publication.

Summary of the 1st Hour

1. Giving focuses on the mental attitude not the amount donated. If we have the mental attitude, and do not give a dime; it is more important than giving a million dollars and having the wrong mental attitude. Our church has survived for almost 60 years on this principle. It is all about God's grace and not on Bobby's ability to persuade you. Berachah has survived by teaching Bible doctrine in the church (which includes those who have gone out and started churches as well). Believers motivated by the Word of God give. An example: 2Cor. 8:2: the Macedonian believers were in great poverty and they gave on the basis of their inner happiness and their grace mental attitude. They did not give a lot, but they gave from their mental attitude.
2. Giving must be an expression of free will apart from human coercion. It must be apart from emotionalism and apart from legalistic pressure. When we pass the bag, we have the choice to give or not.
3. Giving is a privilege associated with God's grace. 2Cor. 8:4 but only under the right motivation. Not understanding God's grace makes giving a burden not a privilege. When you recognize it as a privilege, then you are grace orientated.
4. Giving is a soul activity motivated by Bible doctrine. It is not writing a check. The amount of the gift is not emphasized ever.
5. Since giving commemorates God's grace, the believer must give on the basis of integrity and reciprocal love for God. God loves us. He has always loved us from eternity past. When we accept Christ as Savior, He can love us personally. He provides logistical grace and dying grace and an eternal future. When we advance spiritually, and you understand all that God has done for you, you understand enough to have gratitude. We love because He first loved us. You must know someone in order to love them. There is no such thing as love at first sight. There can be plenty of attraction at first sight; that is true. Love is a mental attitude; it is not an attraction. Sex is not love; sex can be a response to love. No extra charge for that. That is the point of reciprocal love. When we know the grace of God and when we see the grace of God, when we understand his plan is grace, we become grace orientated. It is parallel to reciprocal love. It is reciprocal grace orientation.
6. Grace giving is a reflection of the execution of the spiritual life. They are intimately connected. You cannot live the spiritual life without the Holy Spirit and knowledge of Bible doctrine. Giving is an extension of grace. 2Cor. 8:7 When your thinking conforms to divine viewpoint, you cannot help but have the right mental attitude for everything including the ministry of giving.
7. Giving must never be related either to the amount or accomplished under the stimulation of emotionalism.
8. Giving is not about internal or external pressure.

There is a book on this topic. Giving Grace or Gimmick. There is also a spiritual gift of giving, which is found in Rom. 12:8 in a long line of spiritual gifts; it is the next to last in the line of a long list of spiritual gifts.

Generosity is all about a mental attitude.

Rom. 12:8: ...the one who exhorts, in his exhortation; the one who contributes, in generosity; the one who leads, with zeal; the one who does acts of mercy, with cheerfulness.

A person with this spiritual gift, gives sacrificially, an abused word, but correctly applied here. It does not mean to give until it hurts, sacrificing everything else. The gift itself. The gift itself precludes this condition. This gift requires a grace oriented mental attitude and a special mental impetus and inclination from the Holy Spirit. It inherently reflects a joy and appreciation as opposed to an obligation. This is someone who gives a larger proportion other than what they might usually use. People depend upon money for security, luxury, etc. and the excess money that they have, they throw into those pursuits. This spiritual gift gladly relinquishes whatever personal use, luxury or security that money provides. This does not mean personal deprivation or poverty. This does not mean instead of paying your bills or giving every dime you have or denuding your fortune. It should never result in the neglect of your family. One gives sacrificially in total dependence upon the Lord for supply. You can give over and above what others give. Such a person is never in want. He who waters is watered. The gift does call for giving over and above the abilities of others. And this is a gift which is not based upon your own personal assets. Poor people can have this gift. It is all about the motivation; it always is.

The gift sometimes involves those who have great assets or resources; for this purpose, God may supply wealth in order to function under this gift. This does not mean that only wealthy people have this gift. Plenty of churches gather all the wealthy people and hit them up.

Why would the poor have this gift? Isn't this gift about giving lots of money? It is not about the amount and not the mental attitude.

Why do the poor have this gift

1. No one is deprived of the satisfaction and the fulfillment of the supporting of the ministry, having this gift. There is fulfillment and satisfaction in exercising this gift. This is true of a poor person just as much as a rich person.
2. A poor person with this gift obviously shows their trust in God's provision. This indicates that they have great trust in God's provision.
3. Even though the amount may be small, it is still sacrificial. That is the mode of the gift. This should not affect the provision of the family. You do not go into debt to do this and you do not deprive your family.
4. This presents a sharply focused picture of dependence upon the Lord. The less money you have does not have anything to do with our dependence upon the Lord.
5. The poor who have this gift are conspicuous examples of other believers with the correct mental attitude for giving. You do not know how much they give. It is between that person and the Lord. You might think, "They don't have money; why are they giving?"

6. They demonstrate to all the doctrinal motivation which is critical to all of our lives. Bobby has seen this and it is inspiring to watch. This is a visible wonderful way. When someone has this gift, it is noticeable and a wonderful view of grace orientation. The Lord perfectly uses each gift for the overall needs of the ministry. The Lord perfectly uses that amount. Each gift supplies the perfect needs for the church.
7. The poor have equal privilege and equal opportunity to exercise their gift for an equal impact.

When you look at this gift of giving, this is a microcosm of each spiritual gift giving to the body of Christ. Each one has impact for the whole. Every gift has an impact for the whole. That is true of everyone who gives with the right mental attitude. If you do not have this gift, then God only requires that you have the mental attitude of giving, whether you have the money or not. We should never forget 2Cor. 9:7: Let each one of us do as he purposes in his thinking, not grudgingly or of necessity. For God loves a well-motivated giver the mental attitude is what counts it is not a contrived mental attitude. We don't have to feel a certain way in order to give. Relax, move toward maturity, and the mental attitude will come.

1Cor. 12: September 10, 2008

Wednesday

Bobby will make a decision tomorrow at noon concerning class and Ike.

Gift of faith was not a temporary gift and any of us might have it. Some of the other gifts are still with us and some are not.

There is one gift left, and that is the gift of mercies, and it is the last gift named. This is probably a representative list. If we mature and grow spiritually, our gift will eventually function and the quality of our service will increase.

Eleeô means mercy, to feel compassion for someone, an outward manifestation of an inner compassion; having sympathy or pity, but not in the sense of emotionalism. Sympathy, empathy or pity for another person and this action is often some sort of aid or support. This gift is specifically people-centered. It is exclusively people-centered. People who are sick or physically afflicted. Anyone can show mercy at any one time. It does not take the gift of mercy to show kindness or compassion. Most of us have shown some compassion now and again, and we are commanded to be merciful and compassionate toward others. However, there are times when you do not want to show mercy or compassion to someone, or you do not enjoy doing it. Sometimes, showing mercy is merely an obligation, which is not backed up by an attitude of blessing. The thought is, I come before someone else in need, which is a self-centered approach. James 2:13: For judgment will be without mercy to the one not doing mercy. And mercy rejoices over judgment. This in itself is a good idea to get over yourself. Mercy is part of gaining impersonal love.

It is easier to be merciful toward someone you love or someone in your family. It simply means, you have that attitude. Showing mercy as a spiritual gift. It is not an obligation or simply a spiritual gift. It is a craving. Hilarious is not an outward manifestation of some goofy joke; it connotes a very specific attitude connected with mercy; it is a desire to become involved.

Bobby will admit that this gift is somewhat synonymous with the gift of helps. What is the difference. Mercy extends primarily to the afflicted, persecuted, under tyranny, ill, jailed, etc. Helps is not necessarily people-centered, and mercy would be. Mercy would perhaps be more dramatic and more focused than the gift of helps. It could be a hospital visitation. You bring them comfort and aid. You sit with them in the last moments of their life, and people who do it love this and are compelled to do it. A medical missionary could have this gift; countries who need doctors and are in great poverty. It is truly difficult to tell the difference. It is okay if there is some overlap. ID of the gift is not really that important.

Bobby needs to answer a few questions which have arisen.

What happens to the male believer who has the gift of pastor-teacher or evangelism, but does not recognize or utilize that gift? Or what happens if they are unable to utilize this gift even though they recognize it?

Bobby knows for a fact that there are more men with these gifts than are in existence and these gifts are not being utilized. Such a believer can teach in another capacity. A lot of churches do not want a pastor who teaches a lot of Bible doctrine. They want a little teaching, mostly pabulum, and they want this guy to do everything. A lot of churches like this precludes men from functioning in this gift. This does not mean that he can't teach in some capacity. The gift of teaching can still be utilized. There are those in this church who are excellent in these communication gifts. Many believers are afraid of presenting the gospel. They are afraid of giving the gospel, thinking it may destroy a relationship. It is important to recognize how important this message is. It can be truly pleasurable and satisfying as a believer.

You may not be able to go out like Rick Hughes does and evangelize groups, but you can still evangelize individuals. Some people begin with the gift they think they have, and they later realize that they do not. Some even prepare for it with great sacrifice, and then realize, I don't have that gift. Never is your time wasted in a concentrated study of the Word of God. You simply advance more quickly in the spiritual life.

Others thought they had the gift, but the time and circumstances were not there to allow them to prepare. Some who do not grow and recognize their gift or simply reject their gift, God just replaces them with another growing believer with that gift.

What happens to the person with a gift who is carnal or reversionistic? Their gift does not function in carnality. Carnal believers can be in fellowship from time to time. The reversionist is less likely to function in their gift. These people have no motivation to serve the Lord. They have no motivation in spiritual advance. The immature have not developed a perpetual motivation to serve the Lord. The carnal Christian does not lose his spiritual gift. There is not greater fulfillment in life than to function with your spiritual gift.

Such a believer suffers under the 3 categories of discipline. Although all believers have a spiritual gift, any believer simply has an academic gift. They may know that they have the gift, but it never operates.

When does the spiritual gift begin to function? We all have a spiritual gift, so when does it begin to function? Generally speaking, the gift does not begin to function right away. It begins to function gradually, as the believer begins to grow.

Communication and administrative gifts need to be identified. Communication gifts require some specific growth. You cannot teach without basic information. All of this is part of training. There are men who have been trained just at Berachah and have never gone to a seminary. Some learn by growing and advancing spiritually. When the time was right, they left and got their own congregation. Most of the other gifts function without any spiritual advance.

What happens when the believer does not function under his spiritual gift? He is replaced by another believer with the same or a similar gift. That leaves an empty slot in the body of Christ, so someone else has to fill the void.

For eternity, there are no rewards without the production of divine good. This can only be produced by the filling of the Holy Spirit and through the spiritual advance. The simple truth is, the gift does not operate if the spiritual life is not functioning.

The completes the catalogue of spiritual gifts. One place, it says that God the Father distributes these gifts. God the Holy Spirit is just as much God as the Father, God works all of these things, and it is the Holy Spirit specifically. There is an exception to this rule, which is in the pre-canon era of the Church Age that first distribution was not just the Holy Spirit. It is actually the Holy Spirit for the first distribution of gifts.

The Holy Spirit works all these things. The verb is ενεργεω, from which we get the word energy. It means to energize, to empower, to operate. The Holy Spirit gives certain gifts and He empowers their use. He gives them and He empowers them. It is the Holy Spirit Who empowers them and it emphasizes the grace of God. Do not get the idea that we have a spiritual gift, but now it is up to us to utilize it. It becomes effective as we move toward maturity, but it is the Holy Spirit Who guides the function. Production can only work through the power of the Holy Spirit.

The Holy Spirit does not empower pre-canon gifts to the post-canon period. He does not empower tongues, healings, prophecies, etc.

Διαειρω = to divide, to divide out, to apportion, to divy up the goodies. It is not our desire or our indifference which makes a difference. Our gift has already been given to us, and envying someone else's gift going to make that happen. The Holy Spirit has already distributed that gift. Because He distributed this gift, it is the best gift for us. We may think that we have a propensity for a particular gift. You cannot pray or beg to get this or that gift. It is not up to us. It is the best thing for us. The Holy Spirit distributes, knowing exactly the capacity and aptitude of each one of us. God the Holy Spirit knows where we fit in the body of Christ. He has so distributed those gifts so that we might fulfill that slot.

As Americans, we love the options in our American life. When someone tells us that we have already been slotted into a particular realm in the plan of God, we might object, but God has put us here already.

As we go through life, we do not always end up in a circumstance which is our highest and best use. In actuality, very few people are happy where they are. They all want to move up. The Millennials think they ought to be on top right now, and they think that they ought to be there already. They have ambition. As a believer in Jesus Christ, we have an ambition, but it has nothing to do with our own desire. All we have to do is to advance to spiritual maturity. Who supplied the means and resources and who gave you the spiritual gift and who slotted you in exactly the right place, and who placed you there for your highest and best use? God the Holy Spirit. The grace of God is in charge and He has it all figured out. Relax about your position in life. If it doesn't work out, do not lose sleep over it. At the right time in the right place, you will go where He wants you to go. Don't ever get dissatisfied with your life.

Often the difference is our own opinion of where we ought to be and where God has placed us. However, we know we are in the right place; the Holy Spirit decides. That is the greatest gift of all.

There is someone out there who is right for you and you can relax and God will take care of it.

1Cor. 12:11 But the one and the same Spirit works all these things, distributing separately to each as He wills.

Lesson #none                      1Cor. 12:    September 11–23, 2008                      Hurricane Ike about 10 days without classes

Lesson #783                      1Cor. 12:11    September 24, 2008                      Wednesday

Think of Hurricane Ike as our chance to apply the problem solving devices which we have gathered over the past several years. This was a test and Bobby hopes that we passed it. It would be nice to know that we have made some spiritual progress. Adversity handled with doctrine becomes suffering for blessing. Bobby spent most of his time in Michigan at the West Michigan Bible Church. He left about 3 days after the Hurricane hit. This is Berachah far north. They assemble and listen to DVD's. They just look at a tv screen. A great crowd, auditorium was packed each night. Bobby had never met many of them before. He went to that conference before with his father. There was an immediate comradery from the like-mindedness which comes through doctrine.

Bobby developed the pre-election special, a Biblical view of what is coming. It will not be a political tirade. It is wild and crazy and fascinating; and Bobby has become more fascinated by this election than any more in his life.

There is a diversity of gifts among us. We have done a detailed study of the spiritual gifts, and among these gifts, there is only one giver of these gifts, the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit works all these things. He gives and energizes all of these gifts. When we function with our gift, it does not come from our own power. We may have certain talents and abilities, but it is not all about talent and abilities. We are not the ones working all these things; the Holy Spirit energizes our use of these things. We have fallen apart in the past couple weeks, and so what; pick yourself up and move forward, after rebounding.

The definitive concept of the actual giving of gifts. Distributing is the present active participle διαειρω which means to divide out. People pray for the strangest things. Some people think that God does not answer prayer, but sometimes He answers no. You can't pray, for instance, for a spiritual gift. The moment at which we were born again, God gave us a spiritual gift. Bobby has no idea when he became a believer because he was very young, and that is when he got his spiritual gift.

God gives us a gift and that is the right gift for us. He does not make mistakes. He did not slip up on us. There is at least one time in our life that we can be absolutely certain that we are in the right place, the right situation and all things were right (when we received our spiritual gift at the time of being born again). We sometimes wonder if we are in the right place or with the right person; this is one thing that we don't have to worry about.

The closing thing is, according to His will. God is not wrong; He did not make a mistake. His decisions are perfect. Present active indicative of βουλομαι. This is a very common verb and it is a decision of the will after some deliberation. When going to be reassigned, soldiers would list the 3 places where they wanted to go, and the officers in charge probably had a dartboard with the destinations which they used for assignments.

What βουλομαι Implies

1. God the Holy Spirit has a decision; this is a sovereign, volitional decision. He decides about our spiritual gift.
2. Βουλομαι means that there was careful and intelligent planning involved.
3. When there is intelligent, careful planning by a person with mentality, that person has mentality and volition. God the Holy Spirit is described as a Person.
4. The personality of the Holy Spirit is implicitly implied by this verb. All of this was decided back in the divine decree. How is here any volitional aspect here if this was decreed. The Holy Spirit still sovereignly assigns the gift and we have our own free will and we use the gift. We use it by means of the power of the Holy Spirit. It is all about the grace of God. It is not at all about us.

5. This verb means the Holy Spirit decides which gift we get and He also empowers this gift. He produces the effects of our gift. They are not effective unless He empowers us. No one merits any particular spiritual gift. God the Holy Spirit did not decide in eternity past that we merit our spiritual gift. They are not earned or deserved and they are not manifested by an emotional experience.

Summing Things Up

1. Our spiritual gift will function as we mature. It does not manifest itself until that point. It is done in increments. It does not necessarily happen all at once. As we continue to grow, our spiritual gift grows with us. They are in operation, but it is not as effective way back when. It will manifest itself as we mature.
2. We will accomplish God's will for which He gave us a gift as we execute the spiritual life.
3. You may or may not have an emotional response as your gift is utilized. It might be enjoyable to see what God does with you in your spiritual life. Emotion is not the criteria for the use of your spiritual gift. Your spiritual gift is not determined in any way by emotion. A branch of Christianity sees the spiritual gift experience comes as a second blessing or a second work of grace and there is some sort of emotional response as you speak in tongues.
4. Emotional response or feeling is not an indicator that your gift is functioning. It functions regardless of how you feel. You can be sick and your gift functions. There may be no emotional response.
5. Possession of a certain spiritual gift does not indicate a more mature believer or a more privileged believer. God the Holy Spirit did not look back in eternity past and say, "I am going to bestow this gift because this believer will mature more or that he is a privileged believer." God gives us equal privilege and equal opportunity to function in that gift. It is not given based upon our maturity or lack thereof.
6. Maturity means that your spiritual gift becomes more effective in the service to the Lord.

All of this is the point of contention in Corinth. We have been defining and studying all of these gifts and we have a pretty good handle on all of these gifts, and we know how they function. These gifts were not given in order to divide a congregation. "I got the gift of tongues and you have the gift of mercies; I am better than you." No gift is more important than another. Each gift is critical to the body. The Corinthians were arrogant about a lot of things, and this is just one of the many things about which they were arrogant. The type of gift is never a type of proof of special merit with God. Bobby was not given the gift of pastor-teacher to distinguish him from us. To God, no believer functioning with his gift is less visible.

This is some discrimination of the Holy Spirit in the giving of gifts. Discrimination does not always have a bad connotation. His discrimination simply means that He is attuned to absolute reality and truth. The Holy Spirit knows us before we knew ourselves. God knew us in eternity past, even before we were born, before angels or humans were created, before there was anything. If truth and reality are involved, then discrimination is not a bad thing. Discrimination is not okay if it involves pre-judgment based upon no knowledge.

The Holy Spirit Discriminates

1. The Holy Spirit's distinction between believers are never based upon race, status, personality; and any form of human or spiritual achievement. These are the ways that we discriminate.
2. The Holy Spirit makes a decision concerning our gift based upon His omniscience and His sovereignty. In centuries past, marriage was decided often before two participants were even born. It was decided for a number of reasons. These were arranged marriages. Your parents know us better than we know ourselves. When this happened, probably the first time the royal couple saw each other was when the future queen or duchess was presented at court and she sees the man (or boy) who would be her husband. The man, "Where did they find her? That's not for me." Why would parents be so seemingly cruel to their children. One reason parents did this was for alliances. This meant a greater purpose; the feelings of this couple did not matter. This is a poor illustration of what the Holy Spirit does for us; He does not worry about our little feelings.
3. Things turn out perfect because the Holy Spirit knows our abilities, talents and interests
4. He knows how we will best benefit the body of Christ. If He knows our abilities and talents, He knows how to fulfill God's plan with his gifts. Our impact can be great and it is much bigger than us. Any complaints must be filed under permanent ignorance of His plan. The Holy Spirit will not be compelled in His actions. His selection, His sovereignty is what is important. As we grow to spiritual maturity, which is our responsibility, then we fit in exactly the way that He expects us to fit. We will be rewarded because we were effective. Who would you rather trust? Our fallible decisions or the perfect decision of God the Holy Spirit. It is just right for who we are, just right for the talents and abilities which we have. The Holy Spirit distributes different gifts just as He wills. That is good for the entire body of Christ. Diversity of service based upon the diversity of gifts; unity of purpose. Our individual plan melds with the entire body of Christ. We are a cog in the plan of God, but it is not unimportant or minor. God always knows if we are pulling our weight.

Paul will now use an analogy. Bobby might think of an illustration as to how to show how one small cog works in with the whole, but Paul has come up with a great analogy. He uses the human body, and he uses body parts which we all understand, all of which are critical to the whole human body, without which, the human body is handicapped. We will see how the parts are critical to the whole, whether we are a hand, foot, eye, or ear.

1Cor. 12:11 But the one and the same Spirit works all these things, distributing separately to each as He wills.

The electricity came on, finally, after 12 days!

Bobby will begin a special on Sunday.

We should be able to understand the entire spectrum of spiritual gifts by this time. It is likely that we have some gift similar to what has been discussed. We should be able to fit ourselves into a niche. It is individual, but as we operate within the confines of our spiritual gift, we are a part of the corporate function of the church. Not just the members of Berachah, but a part of every believer in Jesus Christ wherever they reside. The spiritual gifts within the local church will certainly have more of an effect on that local church. The effectiveness of our service in His plan is always dependent upon our spiritual growth; and, in some cases, there are those whose gifts do not operate at all.

Not included in these gifts are tongues, prophecy, miracles—those gifts which were designed for the Apostles and their surrogates for the Church Age. The spectrum of permanent gifts, of which we have at least one, represent the diversity of service of all believers. We all have a specific service niche in the plan of God. We have as believers individual diversity of gifts, a unity of results occurs for accomplishing the whole mission of the church.

What is the mission of the church? The mission of the church is to be a beacon of the gospel to the entire world. That is one major mission or objective. We are also to be at the center of dissemination of Bible doctrine. We are also to form a pivot of mature believers, and we are thereby a blessing to the entire nation. Our objective is to glorify and to extol Jesus Christ. That is the mission of the believers in Jesus Christ.

Paul makes doctrine clear by developing analogies, and this analogy is so famous, that it is one of the great analogies of the Scripture.

Something has been on Bobby's mind since the Michigan conference. An analogy is a figure of speech; it is figurative language. One thing represents another. When you have figurative language sometimes opens the door to several interpretations of the same thing. Bobby has spent a lot of time writing about the Biblical allusions of Moby Dick. However, the Bible is different, and it has various types of literary genre within it, it is not interpreted figuratively. When Paul wrote the analogies, he had a specific thing in mind. The analogy is straightforward. Figurative language. A point of doctrine can be presented in figurative language, but the interpretation must always be literal. The Bible has a literal meaning, no matter what sort of genre it is. In poetry, that is basically figurative language. The wisdom books are filled with figurative language. It is easy to play fast and loose with the text. Some of us do what is called double-dipping; you are listening to several people, and you are getting a little bit different perspective. All that I have said about that, the chickens are about to come home to roost. People are taking analogies and not interpreting them literally. It comes out in eschatology. Revelation is filled with figurative language. You can say almost anything that you want in eschatology, and do away with the rapture or the Millennium and simply say that it is figurative language for forever. If the Millennium is not real, then you can do away with the Millennium and the rapture and dispensationalism. It is coming, not from this pulpit, but from others. Some of you will not even recognize it.

There are 3 areas where dispensationalism is different from all other interpretations.

1. Ecclesiology, where the church is accurately taught as a specific entity different from Israel; however, some teach that the church has inherited Israel's promises.
2. Eschatology; if you interpret these figuratively, then you can make prophecy say almost anything. The rapture, pre-millennialism, the Tribulation. All of these are distinctives of dispensationalism. All of the eschatology gets piled into one thing if you equate the church with Israel.
3. Hermeneutics or isagogics. Once you confuse Israel and the church, that confuses many passages which you must interpret. When you depart from dispensationalism, you bollix up everything.

An analogy links the function of our physical body with the body of Christ. Individual human body parts will be represented by individual believers. The function of the whole human body will represent the function of the church as a whole. Different functions assigned to different parts of the body. Unity in diversity. The analogy of the whole body.

one last summary on the use of our gifts

1. Maintaining the filling of the Holy Spirit. The absolute function of The working of our spiritual life depends upon the function of the Holy Spirit.
2. Our effectiveness depends upon our degree of spiritual growth. How spiritually mature are we. We can grow a little or we can grow a lot. The more we grow, the more effective our gift will be.

One interesting point which Bobby wants to bring out, and this has great importance for all of us. Can our spiritual gift function to some degree when we are out of fellowship? The answer is, yes, it can. You can spend some time in carnality and your spiritual gift will function. God honors our spiritual gift. You don't get a reward for it. You might give the gospel to someone when out of fellowship, and the words of the Bible might reach their soul. Jonah did not want to have to witness to the Ninevites about the gospel. Jonah hated them and he did not want to go anywhere near there. Jonah's attitude stunk, but God honored the message. Nineveh responded, even though Jonah really did not want them to.

We might conduct some act of mercy when out of fellowship, and yet, our attitude is wrong. However, the act of mercy is beneficial for the recipient. The problem is, in that act, there is no difference between the unbeliever showing charity and the believer doing an act of mercy out of fellowship. When we show mercy as believers in Jesus Christ, we represent Christ and we represent His grace. It is not just about what we do, but it is how we do it. It is a right thing done in a right way. Another great example—the gift of pastor-teacher. We must have food as believers; and we must be fed, even if the server is grumpy and is like a Parisian waiter who does not want to do it. If the doctrine is presented correctly, and it is accurate, then others can grow, even if the pastor is out of fellowship. Bobby's gift still functions; it is just not service which is rewardable.

A famous illustration which will help to define the church and the necessity of every gift for the entire body. We may have even discovered what our gift is of those gifts listed. We will now be reassured of the importance of the gift that we have. No one ever flies solo in the body of Christ. The corporate objective of the church always requires teamwork. We suited up and we got a number as soon as we were saved. From time to time, we all need support, which comes from Bible doctrine in utilizing our gifts. The gifts are for support for one another, as well as glorifying God. Because of this, all of us have our part to play as team members. We are all dependent upon one another. We are not dependent upon one another. When our gift functions, it functions for all of us. It is not a one-on-one dependency when we lean on someone else, but one body of Christ, but many parts, all of which contribute to the whole body. None of us can fulfill our mission without one another, although we may be able to function without the others.

Unbelievers are not unified in any of their objectives. Certainly, some unbelievers can have a limited unity of purpose. Not all unbelievers have the same purpose. However, every believer in the world has a unity of purpose.

Bobby is going to do his own little analogy. For man in general, and for animals, the stomach rules. First and foremost, one must feed oneself for survival. In general, people look after their own survival. We must eat to survive. So a person is autonomous in that sense and they are not a part of a wider group. It does not matter if someone is fulfilling that objective or not. This is a general statement and there are exceptions to this. This is a truism among evolutionists, who see man as just a very advanced animal. What is the watchword? Survival of the fittest.

The ultimate aim of any animal is to survive and to procreate. This is often at the expense of at the lives of others. It is dog eat dog in a very literal sense. This is contrasted with believers in Jesus Christ, where it is never every man for himself. In particular, the well-being of the whole body supercedes the well-being of the individual parts. We are not purposed to survival only, but we have a purpose and Christ is the example. He never spared Himself. He came to die for us. While the rest of the human race sees nothing greater than themselves, we as the body of Christ, with Christ as our example, we are unified in our purpose with Him. Christians are not a mob of individuals, like a cage of hungry wild animals. As part of the body of Christ, we are all one organism. A body does not tear itself to pieces. A body has one objective. That is the illustration. We are not individuals who go off on our own. No two parts of the body are exactly alike. All parts function for the good of the whole. Our service is sacrifice for the whole. We reflect the sacrifice of the Lord Jesus Christ in our service for the rest of the body. That is the concept of spiritual gifts.

In considering Spiritual gifts

1. The body of Christ is like the body of a living human being. That is the analogy.
2. There is in that one being, a divinely apportioned diversity of members. That is the spiritual gifts combined. They are combined with a oneness of purpose. Mutual support of one another and devotion to the head of the body, which is Jesus Christ.
3. The body is a living union with other members as well as with the head.
4. No member can be jettisoned as unimportant.
5. The unity of the body excludes discontent and jealousy among the members. It also excludes arrogance and contempt for other members. The Corinthians are disunified, and contemptuous for one another.

1Cor. 12:11 But the one and the same Spirit works all these things, distributing separately to each as He wills.

Some of us are quite concerned and worried about what is going on. Bobby is going to refocus us away from the incredible lies and problems which are going on today. We will be refocused on a corporate level. Time for us to get our focus where it needs to be.

Lesson #1                      Pre-Election Special      September 28, 2008                      Sunday 1

Politics and Hope.

Missed about 10 minutes with computer problems.

3. You cannot legislate hope. Politicians who claim that they have nothing to do with special interests, and they are often embroiled in such interest groups.
4. Government cannot give hope. So many people depend upon government to bail them out. Tax the rich and give it to the poor for health care.
5. The only hope for client nation United States is spiritual. The pivot of believers provides hope.
6. As goes the Church Age believer, so goes the client nation. Individual hope lies in the confidence that we have in union with Christ. A lasting confidence, regardless of adversity or prosperity, is a monopoly which belongs to the royal family of God. Change must come in our souls. It does not come from your government or from your politicians.

This is not a political lecture. Politics is merely an illustration, and almost anything can be substituted at this point. Bobby is not at any point going to endorse any candidate or mention the name of any candidate at any level.

No politician is perfect, so you are always voting for the lesser of two evils. Do not have any illusions on election day that the selection of any particular president, senator or congressman does not control our spiritual lives. How we think as believers in Jesus Christ is key here, not which politicians are chosen.

No political power on earth can supersede our impact as believers in this life. It is not about what we do, but what God honors in us. It is not what we do in political activism, it is what God honors in our souls. Our personal hope and His cause for blessing.

How can we help to bring down this nation or to preserve it. James 4:4 is our springboard verse: Adulterers and adulteresses! Do you not know that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? Whoever, then, purposes to be a friend of the world is put down as hostile to God. This is addressed to believers, and James is using a metaphor here for a Christian reversionist. Do you not know that friendship with the world is hostility toward God. Friend or foe and we are talking about believers. There is no middle ground here. The believers ground here is clear and well-defined. This verse is a statement of absolute fact, which is, the world opposes God. This verse is not a call to become involved in political activism, or even voting, which is certainly legitimate. An activist puts his trust in his own ability to mold his surroundings to whatever ideal he determines necessary. The realm of empty human solutions. He believes that he just has to change a number of entities, including the government. There are some who think that bringing courses on the Bible into schools or prayer in schools or Christian symbols, etc., that will solve things. They then engage in demonstrations or even illegal action in order to bring these things about. James 4:4 names such a person as a friend of the world. The Christian activist is motivated by emotionalism and by crusader arrogance. They believe that their cause is so just that they may use any means necessary to gain what they want. He will reject or intrude on the private of others. No different than the humanist who wants to impose his ideals on everyone else. He adopts an end justifies the means philosophy. He is a crusader and he seeks to legislate political solutions in order to force his ideas down the throat of everyone else, mostly those who are not Christians. He may even resort to violence and destruction of property. This is no different than the Christian crusader who used Christianity in order to pillage other countries and people.

The Christian crusader often properly diagnosis a problem of spirituality in his country is the fundamental problem. No believer is going to deliver this nation or the heathen world to Christ through crusader arrogance. He actually becomes a stumbling block. James 4:4 does not call for us to abstain from secular pursuits or to not be involved in politics. A Christian can hold public office and can express opinions commensurate with divine viewpoint thinking. However, there is a limit. The crusader arrogance of Christian arrogance is out of bounds. For, all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes, and the boastful pride of man...

James is addressing our priorities in life. Do we think with human viewpoint or divine viewpoint? Do we take a Christian view of things or do we concentrate on activism. If our priority is politics or Christian activism, that is exactly what we will sow in our life.

Gal. 6:7: Do not be deceived [doctrine in our soul keep us from being deceived]; God is not mocked [this is not just applied to the unbeliever]; whatever a man sows, this he will also reap. When you see divine solutions, you will see the ineffectiveness of human solutions, even if your candidate gets elected. That is the direction that we are going in. Do you depend upon the things of the world, or is your focus and priorities on Bible doctrine?

Bobby is challenging us not to be afraid and to remember where our priorities lie. We should not be concerned with the next 4 years or the next 8 years. God is always watching out for us. We need not fear politics or politicians.

Do politicians really have solutions. "If you have me in office, then I will solve all of these problems." But what a morass of false hope for you for those who believe this. There are pastors of all sorts who are throwing themselves into this fray. God is mocked when you place this secular world of politics ahead of Him. Focusing on politics rather than on Him. Bobby has thoroughly enjoyed watching the election season; it is entertaining, grim, surprising. Like a great Greek drama. It has made Bobby laugh at times and mad at times.

All in all, enjoy, but remember where your priorities are, so that you do not turn on tv and curse and throw things at it. Many of us are immersed in this political season. Bobby is not telling us not to be involved; the key is, where do we think the solutions lie? We will reap what we sow. Instability, anger, frustration. That is what we will reap. Election day is not going to change these things. You are putting your trust in man rather than in the Lord. Jer. 17:5: Cursed is the man who puts his trust in mankind and makes flesh his strength, and whose heart turns away from the Lord. This is hostility toward God. When you put solutions of God behind the solutions of man. We are doomed to frustration.

The subject is, the Christian's relationship to God. Hostile and antagonistic or are we His friend? Is Bible doctrine first or is the world and its cosmic system first in your thinking? Sometimes that is a hard to know. Sometimes that fluctuates. That is where rebound comes in. That is where consistency comes in; the intake of Bible doctrine. If you from Bible doctrine, that m you to human inconsistency. If you are depending upon a politician, you are cursed right there. In all of this, have I lost focus? Am I more interested in staying home and watching a debate instead f going to Bible class? There is a statement, and then a question. Adulterers and adulteresses [friends of the world]. Do you realize that friendship with the world is enmity with God? James is awakening believers to this challenge by this fact. Hoti is often placed after a verb of knowing and perception. As a believer are we friends with the world? Are we hostile to God? These are antithetical words. The first association is friendship with the world. Friendship is the Greek noun  $\phi\iota\lambda\iota\alpha$ , which is more than just friendship; this is a deep attachment. This is an intense pseudo affection bordering on fanaticism. This is an emotional relationship which is volatile and a pseudo love. This is a devotion to activism. This friend of the world believes himself to be a friend of God. That is how deceptive this is. A pseudo affection, but it is something which he ought to have no affection for at all. He thinks that he is furthering God's cause by his great enthusiasm. The reversionist embraces with great passion one thing in particular. Not Biblical truth, not doctrine; but a pseudo passion for the world.

Bobby has said the word world many times. We need to understand what it means to be a friend of the world.

Κοσμος = cosmos, cosmic system; world, world system. The world is in complete opposition to God.

Cosmos

1. The cosmic system is in the genitive case, and this defines the relationship between the devoted reversionist and that to which it is developed to.
2. This is a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ who has an illicit allegiance to that system.
3. His fervor is for the world under the cloak of Christianity.
4. The cosmic believer has substituted that which he should love with that which he ought not to love.

When you are a lover of the cosmos, you have substituted that which you should love by that which we ought not to love.

What does the cosmic system refer to?

1. This is Satan's kingdom on earth. The cosmic system is opposed to God. Who is opposed to God? Satan, the evil one.
2. Satan's kingdom includes his viewpoint.
3. He also has deceptions. This departs from or opposes the plan of God. It includes Satan's strategy for victory in the Angelic Conflict.
4. Satan is the ruler of this world. John 12:31–14:30 16:11 he has been ever since the fall of Adam and he will continue to be until the Millennium. This world is dominated by his minions, human and angelic.
5. Satan's designs are the norm in this world. The believer can also fall in this category.
6. Satan's designs are always evil because he is opposed to God. He is thoroughly the evil one. 1John 5:18–19 What is most deceiving about him is that his evil often masquerades as good. We have an area of strength in our sin nature, and that is human good and a part of the cosmic system.
7. Evil permeates the world because it is Satan's world and he is evil.
8. The world that Satan owns is represented by the unbeliever. The one who has rejected Christ. He absorbs the only doctrine which he can absorb. The doctrine of demons is really Satan's manual for administering his kingdom, which is evil and human good. Any doctrine, humanism, relativism, which is opposed to the plan of God. The unbeliever is totally without the mind of Christ. Politicians can be great people. We have had great politicians in our past, those who understand divine establishment. However, if they are unbelievers, then their trust is in the cosmic system. Only a believer can have the thinking of Christ.
9. Satan seeks control of the human race and he is very good at it. He seeks this through the insidious nature of the human race and of his own system.
10. Satan is the greatest of all deceivers. It began in the garden and it continues to this day. 2Cor. 4:3–4 His evil is alluring.

11. Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. Socialism is an example of this. A great leveler which is done through government which forces this through. Liberation theology. We lose our freedom in these good sounding programs. This is why we need to know what divine establishment is. If we are out of fellowship, we cannot apply doctrine. Satan is the angel of light and his world appears to be enlightened and progressive and appears to be good. Enlightenment comes through the Word, not from a politician and not some political program.

There is no cosmic system in Bible doctrine. We need to adhere to God's system. When you shut down the tv and are upset, then realize where your strength is. Do not worry about all of the lies of the politicians or the politicians who tell you things which they believe will solve our problems. It is okay to support the candidate with the most integrity; but recognize the difference between the cosmic system to your life.

There is a period o history called the enlightenment, which was really just a lot of human viewpoint where knowledge of God was basically purged. E are being enlightened by politicians today.

If you think you are the master of your own ship, you are anti-authority. You are against the authority of the Word of God.

12. Satan's system attempts to control his domain using the arrogance of the human race. As humans, we all have manipulation in us, and we learn how to manipulate others to get what we want. It is easy to manipulate those who love you, You can and have manipulated those you love. You are nothing compared to the manipulation of Satan; he appeals to your sin nature.
13. Believers are never immune to Satan's deceptions. We will never be immune to his attacks and his appeal. This becomes less and less of an appeal as we grow spiritually. It is hard to recognize evil when it is in the guise of good. 1Cor. 10:20-21 1Tim. 4:1
14. No one understand arrogance like Satan does; his objective is to get us preoccupied with ourself and some external crusade. What seems to be so good and so part of the American society and so right and so good, that you get. Political activism and to think that you are doing God's work. This may touch us the wrong way. Where is your focus? Where is your priority? Will you follow the pattern of the unbelieving world? Will you be a friend to the world and a slave to the cosmic system? Will you be a slave to the cosmic system or to the world?
15. The greatest manifestation of cosmic authority is antagonism toward or neglect of Bible doctrine. Where you do not...negative toward the laws of divine establishment. You become a disciple of politics, giving priority to human solutions rather than to divine solutions. In all o this, you have rationalized the cosmic system. It can't be all that bad; look at what I am doing. You can vote for whomever you want, but do not put your hope in that person.

Bobby has been wanting to say this ever since the election season begun and he is just getting started.

James 4:4: Adulterers and adulteresses! Do you not know that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? Whoever, then, purposes to be a friend of the world is put down as hostile to God.

Pre-Election Special October 1, 2008

Wednesday

Politicians are trying to hold the high ground of legislative righteousness, and they are going to solve the problems of the world, and throw in energy independence, stop foreclosures, etc. At the same time, religious figures are touting various activism and even socialism and communism. They will bring good stuff to main street and to the masses. What a tenuous place for hope. The stock market goes up, then it plummets, and today's confidence is tomorrow's insecurity. That is so typical of every life. It is the same with human hope. Government cannot supply or legislate permanent hope. Peace and contentment does not come from government bailouts or a redistribution of wealth or the changing of the tax structure. Religion without the grace of God brings no answers either. Permanent hope and permanent confidence is the monopoly of Bible doctrine. All human beings are subject to false hopes, misplaced solutions, and certainly wrong solutions. They rely upon candidates and human solutions and human viewpoint. When these things take precedence over God's Word, the believer becomes a friend of the world and an enemy of God.

If you are a friend of the world, you make yourself an enemy of God. This is written to believers. This is a believer who puts his trust in politics or in man. He has become a friend of the world; a lover of the world; an adulteress. He is complete devoted to the world. This is the Greek word κοσμος. This becomes the cosmic system. Whenever you see κοσμος, you are speaking of that which is not of God, but Satan's kingdom on earth. It includes his viewpoint, his doctrine of demons. Every unbeliever is in the cosmic system. Every believer who thinks in this way thinks like an unbeliever. Satan is the most deceptive. Satan seeks to control through these deceptions and through the cosmic system. It is insidious and it is deceptive. Satan's evil often masquerades as good. He disguises himself as an angel of light and he becomes a purveyor of that which appears to be good. Some of it is actual human good. His world appears to be enlightened, progressive and productive. That system of Satan is only as effective as Satan is effective. It makes for a very interesting juxtaposition. Human good is actually opposed to God because it is part of the cosmic system. Satan's system cannot hold a candle to God's resources. The sad part is, believers can be wooed away from God's plan through this cosmic system. As soon as the believer begins to neglect or reject Bible doctrine, he then gives human solutions rather than divine solutions, rather than the spiritual life, which means he becomes a reversionist. A reversionist is always apart from God's plan. This is someone who is immersed in the cosmic system. He is lost in humanism or relativism. Some believers can have a strong attachment to the cosmic system. Even the best of unbelievers and the most altruistic of unbelievers are a part of the cosmic system. That reveals the realm of the cosmic system. All unbelievers have to be a part of this system.

In reality, such a believer is an enemy of God; hostile to God. A foe to the One Who has provided his salvation. So, what are the characteristics of the reversionist who is devoted to the cosmic system? Whoever makes a decision to be friends with the world is at enmity with God. This is an absolute statement. What is not of God is against God. What is not the spiritual life is the cosmic system. You are in the cosmic system as a reversionist when there is no doctrine in your soul. You operate inside of the cosmic system. When you operate in the cosmic system, this has great repercussions for your life and for the life of your nation.

Echthra means alienation. We may think of the reversionist as an illegal alien to the plan of God. If you are alienated from someone in the family, then there is usually a reason why. An εχθρα We are no longer alienated from God when it comes to our eternal place. However, in the bottom circle, we can become more and more alienated from Him. If you are in the cosmic system, you are advancing Satan's plan. And you decide to do just that by your indifference, neglect or rejection of Bible doctrine. Your disinterested yawns in Bible class. Bobby is not going to tell us what candidate to vote for. We need to evaluate from our own soul just what is right. We are the determiner of which direction our client nation goes in. Divine viewpoint is a stranger to our thinking if we move away from doctrine. The believer who is a relativist or a humanist makes politics as his god. When you begin to focus on a candidate on human promises as solutions, etc., you have made politics your God and the savior of your nation. Human solutions are often connected to divine solutions. Human solutions are never a solution. Human solutions might solve a problem temporarily, but they recycle the same problems from generation to generation. Protocol is the way that God designed the plan; it is a step-by-step approach to the plan of God. That situation is characterized by the believer whose sin nature controls his life. Such a one follows the protocol of the cosmic system. As he does that, Satan exploits it. You cannot hope to match Satan whit for whit, thought for thought. Divine viewpoint is the mind of Christ, not our mind. Only He can defeat Satan, but we can oppose him and stay out of the cosmic system and think with the mind of Christ. We are only able to apply human viewpoint. What happens is that we, as a reversionist, are launched on a downward spiral and those stages of reversionism which are exemplified by someone who puts their faith in politics rather than in doctrine.

In the sin nature, there is an area of weakness, and it is obvious, an area of sin. The interesting area is the area of strength in the sin nature. This is where human good is generated in our soul. It is part of the cosmic system when the sin nature controls our soul. Politics can fall under this area of strength. When it becomes your god, it can be your area of strength. When politics are corrupted, it moves to your area of weakness.

Whenever you get out of fellowship, and you do not rebound (you remain a reversionist) and when that reversionist starts down the spiral, he gets distracted. That is what he does first.

Distraction and Reaction

1. This means that he puts politics or personality over the Word of God. Soon you get enthusiastic or you react to something that you do not like.
2. You reject the authority of the pastor-teacher and you accept the authority of one who speaks politics.
3. Such a believer lacks objectivity in self-evaluation. In evaluation of the words and motives of others. You cannot tell the difference between lies and truth.
4. When they are reprimanded by Scripture or by someone in authority, they react, which is a manifestation of nothing more than self-centered arrogance. Now they are in the downward spiral.
5. The believer lacks all spiritual motivation to advance. With no motivation, he substitutes political convictions for spiritual convictions. The solutions reside in Bible class, not on a televised debate.
6. His personal life becomes a frantic search for fulfillment.

A Frantic Search for Fulfillment

1. He chases his tail; he is never fulfilled or content. Such an immersion keeps you from having a focus. You are not content in your spiritual advance.
2. You are on a frantic pursuit of change or reform or of political persuasion and invective. You know all the talking points and you know how to put them down. Sometimes that can be an exercise in fun, but it can also be an exercise in futility. The impulsive pursuit of politics never satisfies not any more than the pursuit of activism.
3. Operation boomerang, which affects the political crusader.
  - a. The more he chases cosmic system solutions, the more they elude him.
  - b. The result of all this is, the more he puts his hope in politics, the more contentment eludes him.
  - c. In frustration, you have a full scale emotional eruption. It is not pretty. The Thieme family has that trait. Grandparents had explosive tempers at the table when dealing with politics. A family trait. What happens is emotion wracks this person and expresses human viewpoint. Suppressing divine viewpoint.
  - d. His crusader arrogance ignites and excites the extremes of Christian activism all the way to violence.
  - e. That leads to a full-blown emotional revolt of the soul. The absolutes of Bible doctrine are lost. Pastor-teacher are scaring their congregations to death, scaring them about one candidate or the other. In talk radio, you hear this emotional revolt all the time. When you hear some Christian come on, they rail against this or that, and it disparages the name of Jesus Christ. If you go on talk radio to tirade, do not say you are a Christian.
  - f. The crusader has reached the point of locked in negative volition.
    - i. He abandons spiritual priorities and makes bad decisions. Hos. 4:1–4 Bobby may teach Hosea sometime; it is an incredible book about the love of God and the apostasy of a people.

- ii. The person with locked-in negative volition is working just with Γνώσις.
- iii. This is the coup of the cosmic system over the reversionist. He is now prepped to take to the streets, to get arrested, to become involved cosmic style.
- iv. In this facade of opposing the cosmic system, this believer become the willing dupe of this system.
- v. The negative volition which is locked in negates any resistance to the cosmic system. There is no resistance to the cosmic system.

The Downward Spiral

1. Blackout is where the left lobe is devoid even of Γνώσις doctrine.
2. When this happens, any divine viewpoint is utterly replaced by evil concepts and ideas of the cosmic system. Like my candidate is the savior of the nation and all is lost if he is not elected and I am going to Australia if he is not elected. No one from the president on down can change the thinking of human viewpoint and cosmic thinking. If the man understand the constitution and is oriented to freedom and property do we have a reason to celebrate. The believer whose soul is blacked out.

Scar Tissue

1. Operation Z is jammed up if there is scar tissue.
2. This believer is blind to the cosmic system; he cannot see the forest through the trees.
3. God becomes synonymous with politics.
4. The result of scar tissue is twofold: strong delusions (2Thess. 2:10–12); they cannot acknowledge the absolute evil of Satan's world because it is their world.

Delusions

1. He compromises with evil because he sees good in evil.
2. They speak lies. Their lies become truth in their own mind.
3. They spin facts to fit their own humanistic preconceptions. The press does this. They have pre-conceived notions and they spin everything to conform to this.
4. They make laws to denigrate freedom. This is the believer we are talking about.
5. This is a political solution. It is the solution of fear and not confidence in the plan of God. When believers fear circumstances more than they trust the Lord, then they are in reversionism. The more you grope for political solutions, the more your fear increases. Politicians are no different. They will negotiate with Islamic terrorists, as if they will get something out of it.

The slide into moral degeneracy. Often people have a good point of view. When you get to this point, you have reached the bottom and you are a bottom feeder of Christianity. That slide is reverse process reversionism. They will talk to politics to anyone who will listen.

Reverse process reversionism

1. This final stage is characterized by the total influence of evil and of Satan's cosmic system. These are good people; Christians, but they are out of fellowship, and they are spiraling down to moral degeneracy.
2. The reversionist becomes divorced from reality. You cannot put your faith in a politician. It won't every happen.
3. What is worthwhile in life is rejected.
4. What is useful is accepted.
5. Prolonged residence and function in the cosmic system causes a reversal of all norms and standards related to the plan of God and a reversal of all priorities.

If you are falling into any of these categories, if you are putting your trust in a politician, tape it to the front of your tv: cursed is the man who trusts in man.

James 4:4: You adulterers and adulteresses! Do you not know that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? Whoever, then, purposes to be a friend of the world is put down as hostile to God.

Lesson #4

Pre-Election Special October 2, 2008

Thursday

Jesus Christ bails out history as the title for this special. Will complete this series tonight.

James 4:4 believers can be enemies of God. Satan is a genius and he does deceive quite well. Human good is a part of his deception. Human good is a part of the cosmic system, which is evil. In that way, good becomes evil. Satan's system is in total opposition to the plan of God. God has His own system just as Satan does. God's system is the spiritual life, with all the grace resources necessary. A believer in these systems becomes hostile to God. He neglects and rejects Bible doctrine. He becomes hostile to God. All that the believer thinks and does is a reversal; all of his norms and standards are reversed. Politics become the reversionist solution. He forgets all about God's plan. What happens is, the reversionist puts his trust in man. Cursed is the man who trusts in man (Jer. 17:5). Or, cursed is the believer who puts his trust in a politician. What happens to these sorts of believers and to the client nation when the cosmic system is in full control and the cosmic believer is in full agreement. The people fall for what is known as cosmic panaceas, which can be devastating to a client nation. A cosmic panacea is a cure-all. Can you imagine curing the world's ills based on Satan's deceptions? But that is exactly what is going on. The philosophy behind Satan's system is evil disguised as good. Believers in this way get caught up in political activism for a good cause. However, even a good believer can attempt to establish Christianity rather than simply have freedom. Unbelievers can never be expected to conform to Christian doctrine, imposed by Christian activists. Some want to force Christian doctrine upon others. Divine establishment is legitimate. The constitution was written mostly by believers, but it was a constitution for all citizens. The church should not interfere with the legislation of the state and the state should not interfere with what comes from the pulpit.

Some promote big government as the solution for social ills. Big government promises a lot and ends up with little people. Government promises to do things for people which they refuse to do for themselves. In this way, the people become enslaved to the state. The more the government doles out, the more these people become wards of the state. They have opted for a shaky security at best, rather than freedom, in which they might fail. They want to be propped up. This is a mob mentality supremely seen in the Roman empire. Those who bent to the whims of the mob ruled. The people did not demand freedom, they wanted security and entertainment. They became dependents upon the state. When a person is like that, they no longer define their needs in terms of freedom, privacy or self-sufficiency. The inevitable consequences of cosmic panaceas is, people lose incentive in life and become wards of the state. At the end of the day, cosmic panaceas degenerates. These things can begin as a good cause. They will go toward implacable leadership, a dependent population, anger and even terrorism. History has demonstrated over and over the danger of cosmic panaceas. Humanistic movements, socialism, all have good intentions, but they all end up in evil. Human viewpoint believer still pushes for political panaceas. A believer like that has certain characteristics. Self righteousness, humanism, relativism, He distorts Christian service to Christian activism. The Christian activist always ignores what God does for him and promotes what he is doing for God, promoting crusader arrogance for himself. The believer who promotes cosmic panaceas is an enemy of God's plan and an enemy of God. That believer sets aside the spiritual life for cosmic panaceas. With that personal agenda, he actually becomes the bane of the nation. The more cosmic Christians there are, the worse it gets for the nation. They think they are saving the nation, but they are helping the cosmic system. God never honors departure from Bible doctrine. God disciplines the believer in reversionism and He will discipline the nation as well with the 5 cycles of discipline. The more cursing there is, the further down we go in discipline. We are seeing them increasingly in this country. The more emotionalism and activism that we see, where lies pass for truth and God is mocked by cosmic panaceas, the social and national degeneracy is obvious. There is plenty of social and national degeneracy.

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge." (Hosea 4:6). No spiritual growth and no spiritual advance. "Because you have rejected knowledge, I will reject you from being My priests. Since you have forgotten the Law of your God, I also will forget your children" The following generations of a degenerate generation will suffer. Whether the Assyrians, the Chaldeans or the Romans, over and over again, they were disciplined. Hosea 4:6 is a warning, applying to Israel and to any client nation in the future, including the US.

There is all kinds of national disaster, degenerate politicians, and many other things. One of the great problems that we see in our nation today is the constant struggle for power. All levels of government, political parties, and politicians are more concerned with maintaining political power than governing with honor for good. The cosmic system is always in conflict over power. The demand for power always exceeds the need for power.

The result is conflict every time. In the cosmic system, power is demanded, and this is what happens to politicians in the cosmic system. A lack of integrity among leadership always means that power will be abused. The goal of such people would be to gain power through whatever means is necessary. Throw in some arrogance in the mix, the demand for power will cause national turmoil, strife and violence. This is also a part of the fifth cycle of discipline. Lying leadership, internal chaos and even military defeat. The reversionistic Christian cannot counteract this sort of thinking.

What is the solution and how do believers contribute to the preservation of the cosmic system. It is an individual spiritual solution to national deterioration. Self-destructive tendencies in a national entity can be averted by only one thing: Bible doctrine in the soul of believers. We have tried every cosmic panacea, including wealth redistribution. Our self-destructive tendencies can only be averted by a pivot of mature believers. It starts with each individual believer. We must be a member of the pivot, and we are not a part of the pivot based upon who we vote for. The believers who is growing spiritually should be able to see through cosmic panaceas. You don't get sucked into cosmic panaceas. "We are going to throw out all the people with no integrity and only put in people with great integrity." We are putting our hope in someone who seems to be fresh on the scene.

God honors doctrine in the souls of His people. He honors those who execute His plan. The pivot is blessed by God because He honors doctrine in the soul. We have had some good presidents because God honors the doctrine in our souls. We have had great presidents because of us. We are the invisible heroes because of all of this. God honors us. That brings a reprieve by God.

The pivot is the accumulation or the remnant of believers. As believers, we are a part of the solution, which is. Dutch Republic, North German states, Great Britain and the United States have all been client nations.

A pivot does not have to be within a client nation. Sometimes the nation within which the pivot resides actually persecutes those of the pivot. An interesting irony. The Protestants of France were completely displaced from that nation by the edict of Nance. They moved and blessed other countries: Holland, England and Germany. The Pilgrims were chased out of all over the place and they came to America and we have been blessed because of this. Wherever a pivot is, it is a preserver and blessing to those who surround it.

Why is a pivot a blessing to a nation?

1. A pivot exists where there is vigorous and dynamic Bible teaching.
2. The pivot pursues missionary activity at home and abroad.
3. The pivot contributes to the laws of divine establishment.
4. The pivot is also supportive of the Jews, knowing that these are God's people.

Believers in the pivot contrasted with those in the cosmic system. The friends in the world as contrasted with the pivot. The pivot preserves. God sometimes have to rejuvenate the pivot, and some need to be awakened, slapped across the face. They need to become a pivot again. God allows discipline and suffering. This is all for our benefit.

Let's contrast; power politics with the pivot of mature believers. Pivot politics.

1. The basis of power politics is when man cannot solve his personal problems and he recognizes the limitations of human solutions.
2. When we cannot solve his personal problems, he compensates by attempting to solve collective problems in a nation. Poverty, injustice, prejudice.
3. He does it through political and legislative means.
4. We has a certain logic to all of this. If collective problems are solved through legislature and personal panaceas, then personal problems will also be solved.
5. The problem is, he cannot solve the dilemma of man's sin nature.
6. When you try to solve collective and personal problems with the cosmic panacea of power politics. That is the human approach versus the pivot politics.

Pivot politics

1. Pivot politics involves personal spiritual advance and the preservative influence on the nation.
2. Pivot politics focuses on individuals, on divine rather than human good, A personal impact with national repercussions.
3. They advocate the laws of divine establishment, rather than those of cosmic panaceas.
4. God honors that type of politics and preserves the nation and the pivot.

Power politics parlays the intent of human good into the evils of socialism, humanism, self righteous religious fervor and activism. Our politics represents the constant flux of human viewpoint solutions. This is where we get the concept of change as a panacea.

Change is the Big Cosmic Panacea

1. Change means the previous cosmic panacea did not work, so let's try a new one.
2. Power politics is the concept of social upheaval practiced for the alleged common good of all the people.
3. This is change which supposedly provides people with hope. There is no hope in the cosmic system.
4. The change brought by power politics brought by cosmic panaceas actually destroys hope.
5. The change brought by power politics diminishes freedom in the name of the common good. Personal rights are trampled underfoot the public good.
6. Opposition to private property, personal privacy, free enterprise and all authority apart from the agent of change. Responsible government becomes irresponsible. The nation is often unaware of the loss of freedom until that pot begins to boil, like the frog.

We do not oppose power politics by political activism. Spiritual maturity and preservation of the client nation. The means justifies the ends. Social upheaval and change, which is a buzz-word for power politics. National crisis serves to highlight the antithetical solutions of power politics and pivot politics. Our Congress is groping in the dark. They can only point fingers at others for what has gone wrong, and the refuse all personal responsibility. There is feuding in high places.

Pivot politics is based upon unchanging doctrine in the soul of the believer, offsetting the ever-changing world. It is the anchor of the soul against the always drifting panaceas and human change. The problem solving devices of the spiritual life bring peace of soul and contently in the midst of national and personal disaster. When you can handtel national crisis, then you are a blessing to your nation and a preserver of that nation. A pivot of mature believers value freedom over collectivism, they break no laws, they do not engage in terrorism, etc. They depend upon doctrine in the soul.

We are part of a nation in crisis. Our pivot politics are being challenged by power politics every time we turn around. We are at a crossroads tonight. This freedom depends upon our attitude toward Bible doctrine as an individual believer. As goes the believer in the Church Age so goes the national entity in the Church Age. The pivot establishes the client nation. That is the importance of the next generation, and that is the importance of the building next door. The greater the pivot, the greater freedom and greater effectiveness of the client nation.

The pivot of mature believers counters the cosmic system and the inadequacy of power politics. This pivot defers from civil disobedience and illicit Christian activism. When they do not take that road, they advert a national disaster. Nations rise and fall. Every nation gets exactly what it deserves, based upon the concept of the pivot and power politics. So it is with client nation USA at this moment.

Remember as we continue into our election and when a new administration comes in, the Lord Jesus Christ controls history and He bails us out and He can intervene at any time. We will survive based upon His grace and mercy toward us. That is our part to play. Vote, by all means, but do not think that saves the nation. God always uses prepared people in the crisis. Those people who know how to function in the cosmic system.

1Cor. 12:12–13 October 5, 2008

Sunday 1

Bobby wants to make a last closing statement, a post script, for what has been taught for the final 4 classes. "The budget should be balanced; the treasury should be refilled, the arrogance of officialdom should be tempered, people must learn to work instead of living on public assistance," Cicero 55 B.C. Cicero understood the problem and delineated it very well.

Vv. 12–31 is a new paragraph, and this is one of the great metaphors of the Bible, a metaphor of the church, and it is of the human body. It is a lovely illustration of how the church works, based upon how the human body works. This should be a clear illustration. The parts which make up the whole of the human body functioning in harmony is a picture of the unity of the body of Christ. This is the universal church, not the building we are in. 1Cor. 12:12–14: Even as the body is one, and has many members, but all the members of the one body, being many, are one body, so also is Christ. For also we all were baptized by one Spirit into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, even all were given to drink into one Spirit. For also the body is not one member, but many.

The body has many members, but all the members of the body are one. It is all believers in the Lord Jesus Christ who are many members. All the members of the body of Christ, all believers in Jesus Christ, go to make up the one body, which is the church. V. 14, the body is not made up of one member. There are a diversity of spiritual gifts. You may understand what your spiritual gift is and maybe you don't, but you recognize that it works as you grow spiritually. We have diverse personalities and functions and interests in the body of Christ, but our function in the body of Christ is one of unity. As there are members in the human body, so there are in the body of Christ.

Example; Bobby has a gift, which most of us are aware of. He has a gift of pastor-teacher. These are one and the same and his gift is critical for our spiritual growth. We must metabolize this so that we may grow. Just as we grow physically, so we grow spiritually. Sometimes Bobby throws a gourmet meal at us and sometimes just slop. However, Bobby is just one part. He is a necessary part and as central as he is, he cannot function without other believers. We must function as a body. We are dependent upon one another, as we are all one body. The Lord Jesus Christ is the final unifier. This makes an undivided whole. We are all a part of His body. It is the mind of Christ in us that coordinates each part of the body. It is certainly our brain which coordinates our movement as human beings and unifies all of the body.

Mind of Christ Bobby is supplying us with the food which we can grow with. We have body, soul and human spirit. Pneumatikos is the raw material of Bible doctrine. This is transferred to the left lobe of the soul as knowledge. This is academic knowledge, which is the knowledge which we can gain from any subject. This knowledge is metabolized and becomes part of our soul, and become ἐπίγνωσις. This is the mind of Christ in us, as we believe what we hear. As we grow to spiritual maturity, that is the unifier. We are like-minded, one objective as believers. We think with the mind of Christ and this mind of Christ is what unifies us. It is His thinking in us which coordinates and unifies us as one body. Our diversity of gifts is brought together in a unity of purpose. That unity is delineated by the function of all the spiritual gifts. As we grow to spiritual maturity and develop the mind of Christ in us, it is learning that the unbeliever cannot accomplish, as it requires the mind of Christ. As our spiritual gifts begin to operate, we begin to function as one body.

All body parts do not always function; sometimes they let us down, sometimes sickness takes apart our body. If various members of the body fail to develop the mind of Christ, the body gets out of synch. One part is not working quite right. The body as a whole is in trouble. You know that your body does not work as it did when you were 18. When the body of Christ is out of synch, the church becomes apostate. The pivot of mature believers shrinks. Mature believers have an impact on the entire nation and a nation is blessed by having all of these believers.

The church goes into decline when the body is out of whack, which is what we have in the Middle Ages. A number of soldiers, in the name of Christ, went to the Middle East and raped, plundered, etc. There were others who sold indulgences, which meant, if you bought it, you were saved, and that is a non-functioning church. They did not understand salvation. They sold these indulgences in order to build the Vatican. But there is no salvation by works or by purchase. There are only two ways that we can go. We can go the growth route or the reversionist route. We either grow or we retreat. The downward spiral of reversionism.

All members of the body operate differently, but with the same goal. It is like the military, particularly in the army. There is infantry, the front lines. By analogy, there are those face to face with the enemy, the pastor teachers and those who communicate Bible doctrine. There is also combat support gifts, which include exhortation, leadership, faith, etc. That is combat support. No army can survive without logistics. An army cannot go to the front without logistics. You have combat, combat support and logistical support. The military cannot operate without all of these facets. Take away one, and you take away the effectiveness of the military.

In the military, there is one commander-in-chief, which would be Jesus Christ. He is called the Head of the body in several passages, and His Word provides, which gives us our field orders, our instructions. Each member of the body of Christ, which is His spiritual gift, His assignment from the top. We accomplish our mission and we also support one another.

If you get too wrapped up in an analogy, you want to set up an exact parallel everywhere. However, that is getting too wrapped up in all of this. Each gift is integral to the whole. We are all one body. So also is Christ. That means, so it is with Christ's body.

1. We are united with Him as part of His body.
2. Each believer as a part of His body must operate in his diversity of gift or gifts.
3. We must serve our one Lord; so also is Christ.

1Cor. 12:12 Even as the body is one, and has many members, but all the members of the one body, being many, are one body, so also is Christ.

When we are placed into union with the Lord Jesus Christ, we share everything that He is and everything that He has. That is what makes us part of the body. The Holy Spirit's action of baptism, and being made part of the body of Christ, are all intimately connected, all unifying factors for all of us. If we believe in Jesus Christ, we have been baptized (not water baptism, but Spirit baptism, something which occurs). We did not experience it; there is no emotion or feeling involved. At that moment of faith alone in Christ alone, each of us is identified as the whole body of Christ. This fits directly with the analogy of v. 12. It is Spirit baptism which is the means of putting us into the body and making up the body.

We are all royalty in the body of Christ. So we are all members of His family. Spirit baptism breaks the back of the sin nature as the ruler of human life. We had only one mode of operation prior to this, spiritually dead and separated from God. We are spiritually dead and we had a sin nature, which is what we were born with. That is our propensity as human beings. It is our constant companions, making up part of the barrier between man and God.

You can define sin to just include very specific actions, you might be able to think that you are not sinning. However, have you ever had mental sins? That is the function of your sin nature. Jesus Christ is the Lamb of God Who takes away our sin.

We are new creatures in Christ. We may think, we don't look any different. Positionally, we are new, because we are in Christ. Because God the Holy Spirit has baptized us, as new creatures, we now have the capability of advancing to spiritual maturity. The more we advance, the less we are under the power of the sin nature. The more we are filled with the Holy Spirit, the less function the sin nature has in our life.

Wesleyanism gives the idea that you can reach a point of sinless perfection, but that is wrong.

Let us not confuse some believers look at this verse and immediately say, this is water baptism, this is a ritual. So they would conclude, unless you are physically baptized, you cannot be saved. That is a great lie in Christianity.

1Cor. 12:13 For also we all were baptized by one Spirit into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, even all were given to drink into one Spirit.

Lesson #785

1Cor. 12:13 October 5, 2008

Bobby's been teaching Spirit baptism, and it is mentioned many times by Paul. A lot of people don't think that this Spirit baptism actually happens. Bobby thinks of this like a colorless, odorless, tasteless gas. It is there and when it is there, it has an effect. You don't know it, but it happens; the Bible guarantees that it happens. Being placed in Christ is the greatest thing which happens to us. Many aspects of Christianity do not recognize this and many focus on water baptism instead. Some of you may have been baptized and some have not. Some came into Berachah off the street and have not been in a different church, and therefore have never been baptized.

We need to distinguish between ritual and real baptism, between the baptism of the Holy Spirit and water baptism. The ritual of water baptism is a recognition that the baptism of the Holy Spirit has occurred. Since water baptism is not necessary for salvation, if it takes place, it would be subsequent to the event of Spirit baptism. There might be some analogy if we are baptized after we are saved. We are saved by faith and not by ritual. Infant baptism is pointless and meaningless. No infant is capable of faith alone in Christ alone. Water baptism is simply giving the world notice that we are believers in Jesus Christ.

Some view this as a sacred sacrament, and they see it as part of salvation. However, this is nothing more than salvation by works. By grace you are saved, through faith. We have nothing to boast in, including baptism. If someone asks you, "Have you been baptized, brother?" and you say, no. If they question whether you are saved, you can explain salvation to them. Too many believers are ignorant today. They may have accepted Christ, but they do not know what that means. We are saved by faith alone in Christ alone and we are simultaneously baptized by union in Christ. Also, water baptism is a testimony to our new status to believers who are united with Christ. If Bobby ever did a baptism, he would make it absolutely clear what it means to be baptized with water. Under the water, we are identified with Christ in His death and raised up identifies us with His resurrection. It is retroactive and positional truth. These are great concepts of Christianity.

The other ritual with this church does is Communion. This is not the reality of union with Christ. We are either united with Christ or not, but not because we taste a wafer or grape juice. There are denominations which teach that the wafer actually changes into the body of Christ and that the wine or grape juice actually becomes the blood of Christ, and that is a false doctrine called transubstantiation. We are united with Christ in the ritual and reality. For every Church Age believer, 30–33 A.D., the Holy Spirit descended physically and baptized the believers there, and it was visible at that time. This is so we of the Church Age know that it is real. At the moment that we are saved, the Holy Spirit fills us and empowers us. That is what happened when the disciples received the Spirit.

Mystery doctrine is doctrine which was never heard before in human history. At the moment of Spirit baptism, believers began to speak with foreign languages, and this demonstrated that they had been baptized by the Spirit and something new was happening. The sign of Isaiah was exhibited. Tongues were the sign of discipline and the sign of recovery as well. It is an age in which all believers are independent members of a spiritual body.

Spirit baptism did not occur in the Old Testament and there was no union with Christ in that dispensation or in any previous dispensation. Spirit baptism and union with Christ is a brand new thing which will continue until our Lord returns at the exit resurrection. There is an age where every believer is in union with Christ and is a part of His royal priesthood.

We do not have to be of any particular tribe; there is no specialized priesthood; we represent ourselves before God. We name our sins to Him and are cleansed from all unrighteousness. We do not have to go to a priest and see the throat cut of a little lamb to understand the price of redemption and or forgiveness. We do not do that anymore. Christ has already come. We do not have to pay the penalty ourselves. Every Church Age believer is uniquely positioned to have a distinctly spiritual experience. Once we have the baptism, we are ready for a spiritual life. With all the resources the baptism of the Holy Spirit portends, we may have an experience, the experience of the spiritual life. Spiritual life rolls off of our tongues like some kind of a buzz-word, but our spiritual life is patterned after someone. Jesus Christ is our spiritual life. That is unusual. We have every resource that Jesus Christ had to fulfill His mission. We have all that He had. We live in the power of God the Holy Spirit. Jesus Christ was God Himself, but He never used that power Himself. That humanity has a spiritual life, and we have that same spiritual life that He had. We are quite privileged in the Church Age. We are unique. We operate in the life pioneered by the Lord Jesus Christ.

Jesus Christ has an internal spiritual presence in us. That is a part of the elife which He provided. In Israel, there is the Shekinah glory, which was demonstrated in several ways, at the burning bush, and this was demonstrated in front of Moses.

Col. 1:27: Christ in you, the hope of glory. We possess the Lord Jesus Christ by means of faith in Him. He is no longer an external presence; He is ours, each one of us individually. Each person is a member of the royal family of God. This is another way to describe the body of Christ. We are all family members. We are a unified whole, but individuals. Most of us have been in families before and when we were born into this family, you had no say in it. You can never reverse being born into your family. You will always be genetically affixed to the family. You cannot get out of this. You may not like them and you may become estranged from them, but you are born again into the Christian family and we cannot get out of that either. There is not one thing that we can do about it. Even if we renounce Christianity, we are still members of that family. Once He gives you something, He will not take it away.

The disciples and later the Apostles were the first ones to be baptized by the Holy Spirit. In a millisecond, when we believe in Jesus Christ, we are filled and baptized by the Holy Spirit. They all put us in a certain position, which is in union with Jesus Christ. There is no longer some temporary manifestation of power like tongues, healings, or miracles. These gifts are no longer necessary for the Apostles and their surrogates. We have the completed Word of God so there is no reason for those other things. We have all the resources that we need now, without all of the temporary gifts. Paul continues with this kind of emphasis.

We have a tendency in Berachah to think that all we need to do is to take in doctrine. However, Paul emphasizes spiritual gifts, which reflects our service to the Lord. The more we function as a member of the body of Christ, the more we fulfill the diversity and unity understanding that we are seeking in Scripture right now.

How does Bobby know that everyone gets the baptism of the Holy Spirit? 1Cor. 12:13 For also we all were baptized by one Spirit into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, even all were given to drink into one Spirit. We have racial, social and economic differences listed here. Everyone falls under these categories. Everyone falls into one of these categories. All strata of society, all cultures and all races are in here. This is a salvation gift of equality. No matter how hard we try and no matter how hard we strive, we are baptized by the Holy Spirit.

Bobby is going to remind us of who we are and what we have. We share everything that Christ is and everything that He has. Everyone of us shares in His life. This qualifies us to live with Him forever. We have to separate having the life of Christ from our temporal life.

Closing Points

1. It is the difference between eternal security and temporal security; the difference between human life and eternal life. Eternal life is not an experience; it is given to us.
2. We share the perfection of Jesus Christ. We may think, "We will get there, if we can just get over this little thing." What does it mean, you are perfect? Union with Christ means that we are declared righteous. God said, you are righteous. God imputed His righteousness to us. It is a position, not an experience. This is called justification found in 2Cor. 5:21.
3. All believers share His election, eph. 1:4. We are all called to privilege. That is what He provides for us. This concept of election. What we have is incredible and very complex. Bobby will do that on Wednesday.

1Cor. 12:13 For also we all were baptized by one Spirit into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, even all were given to drink into one Spirit.

Lesson #786

1Cor. 12:12 October 8, 2008

Wednesday

v. 12 begins a new paragraph which continues to the end of the chapter. Each one of us is distinctive as we each have our own spiritual gifts. There is a diversification of believers because we have different spiritual gifts, and each one is used a certain way inside the body. That distinct activity of all parts goes to make up the whole function of the body. We are unified as one body because all of the body parts work in coordination for the whole function of the body. Each part works in coordination. Just as the human body is made up of many parts. All of that is a particular part of the body, all contriving to the whole function of the body. That is the experiential aspect of the body of Christ. This is the experience of being a part of the body of Christ. This is how we operate as individual believers as part of the body. This is what we do as diverse members of a unified whole. We can talk about all believers on earth, but it may be easier to understand them as a local church filled with believers. God designed us to operate as a unified whole. In doing that, the church fulfills its mission. The whole body spurred on by individual members. None of that is possible without the Holy Spirit unifying us. This baptism secures our position in the body. We are all a part; we are all members of the body. It is not about the function of our body. When the hand moves, that is the experiential part of the body. Function in the body of Christ in the analogy is brought about by spiritual growth and by the increasing effectiveness of our gifts. As we grow, our spiritual gifts begin to become more effective. We all have a place in Christ. Jesus Christ is the brains and the authority of this outfit. We are unified by the Holy Spirit and the mind of Christ is our experiential unification. This baptism of the Holy Spirit is not a corporate thing. We are individually baptized by God the Holy Spirit. The moment of faith alone in Christ alone. At that moment when we express faith in Christ, that is the moment that He baptizes each one of us. This is not a ritual union like water baptism. Spirit baptism is a real event, even though it is unseen and unfelt. Once this baptism takes place, it gives us a status. It gives us a status in Christ and once that status takes place, it puts us into an absolute status. It is also affiliating, as members of the body of Christ. Spirit baptism is our individual position in Christ. We read in Christ hundreds of times in the New Testament and we are speaking each time of union with Christ.

What does this permanent unification consist of? This is a technical theological term describing the result of the baptism of Jesus Christ. The baptism and the uniting means, and it is so spectacular that we share everything that He is and everything that He has. We, normal Joe-six pack believer, sharing everything that Jesus is and all that He has. No one earns this union with Christ. If we couple this union with Christ with this giving of a spiritual gift at salvation, we are then positioned to function as diverse and equal members of the body of Christ. Union with Christ is our unifying factor. No one member is more important than another member. When a part is not functioning, then the body is not functioning to maximum efficiency. The Middle Ages were the Dark Ages because of the apostasy of the church.

What do we share with Jesus Christ?

1. All believers in union with Christ share the life of Christ. This qualifies us to live with God forever whether we mature or not. If we never grow one inch or part, we still share the life of Christ. In every one of these items, all of them are ours. They do not change no matter how we end up in life. Sharing in the life of Christ is 1John 5
2. We share in His perfection. At the moment of salvation, the righteousness of God is imputed to us. We are not righteous, but the grace of God makes us righteous. Abram believed in God and it was imputed to him as righteousness. That makes him acceptable to God.
3. All believers share the election of Christ. Eph. 1:4 [where we left off on Sunday]. We are called to privilege. Why is this doctrine so important? Election, the entire concept of election, defines just how God works, in eternity past and in human history today. It is a wonderful description of God particularly in relation to us.
  - a. In eternity past [this is not a point in time; what happens in election did not happen in one point in time; God is beyond time; He is not governed by time; He always was; never was a time that He did not exist. Eternity past refers back to the eternal past. It is a continuum. It is easy to understand that an infinite God has an infinite future. However, there was always a time when God was. This has been talked about by theologians. We were always in God's mind, because He was infinite. Before He created the universe, He knew all of the universe. He knew every decision that we would make, every step that we would take and He knew whether or not we would believe in Jesus Christ], God sovereignly expressed His will and purpose for all things. There was not a point in time when this actually occurred. His will is made known by the divine decree. Even though all subjects that ever were are covered, we think of the decree as a starting point. The divine decree had many parts. The only way we can know about the contents of this decree are found in the Bible. Part of that decree expressed God's will for the Lord Jesus Christ.

- b. In the decree, God the Father anticipated. He was omniscient. He knew. He also provided for it in the decree.
- c. Christ is held in honor by the decree.
- d. He is the Elect One with the great mission of salvation and the resources to accomplish this mission.
- e. Since we share His election, God holds every person who is in Christ in the same honor. We are just as honored as the Lord Jesus Christ because we are elected in Him. What honor is Bobby talking about?
  - i. God willed the highest and the best for every believer just as he did for Jesus Christ. Right there we recognize, whatever happens to us is the best for us.
  - ii. Willing the highest and best means that God selected every believer to privilege. When you are honored, you are privileged.
  - iii. God the Father deposited to your account; He deposited fabulous blessings to us for time and eternity. That is part of how He honors us. Those blessing include all spiritual assets and resources for the spiritual life. Do you realize how much God gave Jesus Christ? We have the operational spiritual life. That in itself is amazing. This is the same life and the same privileges as Jesus Christ had.
  - iv. We have equal privilege and equal opportunity. We are honored with that. This is the honor which we share with Christ. The is the honor which we are given.
  - v. That is the election which we are a part of, in the decree of eternity past.
  - vi. We share His honor, His privileges, and the resources of His spiritual life. During the time that He was on this earth, He lived a perfect spiritual life. All of that we share. That is truly an honor, which is a part of our election to privilege.

There is a common misconception about election.

1. Some branches of theology simply think that God chose one group for election and others of condemnation.
2. God elected believers in Jesus Christ in the sense that, He knew ahead of time, if given free will, they would freely choose to believe in Him.
3. Then He decreed the free will itself, which insured that such an act of free will would actually take place. On. Election does not mean that a person was predestined for salvation or for or for condemnation.
4. When we make that decision, He determines that decision would happen.
5. Then He decreed that not only would positive volition occur, at a certain point, but that all the blessings of salvation would be the bel's eternal possession. Did Jesus just determine that we would have positive volition? We have free will. We can decide one way or the other. If God predetermined this free will. He simply determined that we would make a certain decision. We have free will, He gave us this free will, and the decree says, "I know what that decision is" and He simply decrees that it will happen. It is a free decision.

6. Since He predetermined our decisions, then we would just be puppets of God, and at His whim in any aspect of life. The Muslim religion has the doctrine of kismet, which is fatalism. God determines everything. There is no free will. God determines everything. The person who does it is not really responsible.
7. He decreed that all things would be certain to occur.
8. God did not interfere with the free will of man or of angels.
9. Whatever occurred would be the result of truly free will. This is made certain by the decree.
10. This is the key to all of this: the decree of God and the free will of man coexist in human history. They are both truth.
11. In that mode, He elected believers to privilege. He knew we would believe and as believers He elected us to privilege. He did not simply consign some to salvation and some to damnation.
12. Election is only for those who are saved. It is only to the believer, and never to the unbeliever.
13. So, election means, the same honor and privilege which belongs to Jesus Christ also belongs to those who are believers. Now we understand who we are as we share the election of Jesus Christ.

4. The 4th thing which we share is His eternal destiny. He is destined to return and take us up with Him. We will rule with Him in the Millennium. We share this destiny all the way into eternity.
5. We share His Sonship. We are members of the royal family.
6. We share His heirship. We inherit all that He has in eternity. 1Peter 1:4–5 What He inherits, we inherit. We are trustfund babies.
7. We share His sanctification. 1Cor. 1:2.
  - a. We are set apart as a new spiritual species. We are set apart as holy. That is positional sanctification. Experientially, we are a long ways from holy.
  - b. God's purpose is to bring each believer into conformity with Christ according to Rom. 8:29. The more we grow spiritually, the more that we are experientially sanctified. As we grow, we are in fellowship for longer periods of time. We serve the Lord to a greater and greater capacity. If we don't grow, we are still positionally sanctified. Work out your own salvation has been fouled up.
  - c. Every believer is given an operational spiritual life. The purpose is to emulate the humanity of Jesus Christ. We do this by utilizing His spiritual life. When we think as He does, we act as He does.

d. One day we will be ultimately sanctified in heaven. This means that we will no longer have a sin nature. We will have a new body, a resurrection body. We will live in ultimate sanctification forever.

8. We share His priesthood. 1Peter 2:5, 9 all of share His priesthood and represent oursevles before God. A priest mediated between man and God, but we share in the priesthood of Christ. We are not just a priest, but a king-priest.

9. We share His kingship. 2Peter 1:11 we will all rule with Him forever. That is union with Christ. That is what spiritual baptism provides.

1Cor. 12:12: Even as the body is one, and has many members, but all the members of the one body, being many, are one body, so also is Christ.

Paul could, at this point, go very cultural on us. How easy would it be for him to say there is a certain race who could not be baptized into Christ. He could refer to several areas of inferiority, which was a standard assumption of that period of history. They saw people of certain races and certain statuses as inferior. We think of slavery in this day and age as something terrible, and we have mostly abolished slavery, which we should have. However, most of the world before this time had slaves and many of them. The Romans probably had more slaves than anywhere else in history. About 2/3 rds of Rome were slaves. Paul made slaves and free equal in Christ. Never before heard of in cultural thinking. There is no more equality in Jesus Christ apart from being in Christ. Jew or Greek, slave or free, wealthy, poor, no matter what your race, if you have believed in Jesus Christ, you have everything that Bobby has just mentioned. This is true equality and true equal opportunity.

1Cor. 12:13: For also we all were baptized by one Spirit into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, even all were given to drink into one Spirit.

1Cor. 12:13 October 9, 2008

Thursday

The stock market continues its free fall and fear is in the air. Especially a problem who have put their trust in money and material things. Politics could have been just as easily been about the economy. There are no economic solutions. It's here today and gone tomorrow. Our panic as believers in Jesus Christ need to put our panic away. This is why we study Bible doctrine, so that we can grow up spiritually, so that this is more of a issue of interest than of panic. Whatever is happening is for the benefit of this nation. More importantly, it is for our benefit. There are no tragic accidents; this is not an accident. There is graft and greed, of course, but our focus should be upon who we are in Christ. If you came in, in a state of panic, now it is time to put it away.

The baptism of God the Holy Spirit in v. 13, which identified all believers with Christ in two ways. We are identified as being in union with Christ. We know who we are in Christ. We know what we possess. It all occurred at one moment of faith alone in Christ alone. We are also identified with the body of Christ. One of the great concepts of Bible doctrine, union with Christ, we share everything that He is and everything that He has, so there is no greater unity. We are all part of the royal family of God. This is some unity in a human family; sharing genetics. A family shares in some material things and inheritance from parents and elsewhere. Mostly, there is some comradery. We as members of the royal family of God are united with Christ. Our family is absolute incorporation. We have all of His inheritance; we have all of His righteousness; we have all of His life, and we have them in equal proportions.

If you understand election, then you understand how God works toward us. We understand that before all of that, God knew all of us perfectly and individually. The divine decree decreed all of that. And we share election with the elected one. We share in His honor and His privilege. We understand more about God if we understand what being in Christ means, than 90% of the believers in the world. We don't just get a portion, but we get the whole thing. We get it all. We get all of His wealth and we share in His sanctification and all of His priesthood. We are an integral part of that kingdom. Being in the body, which we are, by the baptism of the Holy Spirit, unifies us with Christ and it unifies us together. We are members of the body and we are also one body. Each one of us is a part of that body. In that body, Christ is the head; He is the orchestrator, the conductor, or whatever.

How does Paul make this unification doctrine perfectly clear? Paul went against the conventions, the culture, and the prejudices of his day. Paul made sure that every believer understands that no one is excluded from being in union with Christ; it does not matter if you are in a mansion or what. This was unheard of before this time. The idea of equality and this was truly revolutionary. The Corinthians who read this were knocked back; they all had a social hierarchy, and most of them pretty much agreed that slaves were at the bottom.

Christianity was the catalyst for the end of slavery. This is where it started, with these words. A lot of people want to take credit for this, but this is based upon the Word of God. Slavery has been a problem throughout history and no one cared before Christianity cared. Slavery was normal. Economic inferiority was normal; everyone accepted it. The emphasis was always on spiritual liberation. It was never on physical liberation. Paul never ordered Philemon to free Onesimus; he encouraged him, but he send Onesimus back.

Slavery was not confined to any one race in the Roman empire. You could be born or sold into slavery. You will know the truth and the truth will make you free. It is not liberation theology. We are made one by the baptism of the Holy Spirit. It is a real equality. Paul added male and female to the non-excluded categories. The female was always second class. As believers in Christ, regardless of gender, no one is inferior and no one is barred from the body of Christ.

Spiritual freedom means that all of us have equal privilege and equal opportunity as members of the body of Christ. We all have one thing in common: we all have the greatest thing that any human being can have: we have the same spiritual life and the same resources for the grace of God to execute that spiritual life. There is nothing greater. That is the only true equality which exists in this life. No matter how much we push for equality and no matter how we try to redistribute wealth, the best we can do is partial. Legislation will not change the souls of human beings. Legislation will not make people equal. As growing believers, this should no longer be a problem. The rest of the human race has sin natures as well.

As the body of Christ, we become a functioning member of His body. We accomplish the corporate mission which God requires. We fulfill it in diverse ways. It all comes together in one body. All of us as members of the one body have been baptized into union with Christ. This should actually be a part of our faith rest drill in these times of great insecurity. We are in Christ, we are permanently in Him, and He has a plan and we are in this plan.

When we superimpose Bible doctrine on our circumstances, it is actually a pleasure to watch the Lord work. It is one of the great experiences of life. When things seem the most hopeless and they work out, it is a marvelous thing to see. Through His baptism, we are permanently identified with the body of Christ. We are a new spiritual species; we are born again. This is known as positional truth. Last night we covered election and tonight we will cover positional truth. A position is different from an experience. A position is what is. This is a doctrine of what is. You is what you is, and you are what you are.

Positional truth

1. Position defines our status in Christ, which is part of our equality.
2. Positional truth guarantees no judgment in eternity.
3. We will not be judged, because believers receive at the moment of salvation, God's perfect righteousness and eternal life.
4. We have a perfection, and that is what makes us acceptable to God. Our perfect righteousness makes us acceptable to Him, as He is perfect righteousness. When we are given eternal life as a position, this is a position, a status, a standing, but not experiences.
5. So positional truth means the believer is now qualified to live with God forever.
6. Positional truth belongs to all categories of believers; everyone; immature, mature, carnal, reversionist. It has nothing to do with the progress of spiritual life. Everyone in the Christian world thinks that this comes from what we do. However, there is nothing that we can do to earn this. This is all based upon one moment of faith alone in Christ alone.
7. Positional truth removes all racial, economic, gender and class distinctions in life. We are all one; we are all equal in Christ; we are all members of His body. These distinctions still exist in this life, but none of these things affect equal opportunity. We all have the same status and the same spiritual life. We have all of it.

Positional truth as two parts to it. Retroactive positional truth.

Retroactive positional truth

1. United with Christ, we retroactively share in Christ's victory on the cross. It is retroactive. His death has an effect on us.
2. Through retroactive positional truth, the believer is separation from the sovereignty of the sin nature and the world. Most people think you have to work yourself to a point of separation from the sin nature. We have that as a position. Unbelievers cannot be separated from the sin nature ever. We have the option of living outside of the sin nature. We are still deceived as believers by Satan and the cosmic system, but the power of the sin nature is broken because of our position in Christ. We do not have to live in that quagmire.
3. We are complete in Christ. We are righteous; we are sons, we are eternal. Col. 2:9–12

Current positional truth

This is based upon how Christ is.

1. Current positional truth means that we share in His resurrection. We share in that new life. We share in His ascension. He has a home in heaven; we have a home in heaven. That is a status. It will be an experience. Being a status makes it no less secure and no less real.
2. We share in His session. Where is Christ right now? He is seated at the right hand of God the Father, and we share this position. We will be in the throne room of God. We have a position there.
3. That means that we share in His exalted position in heaven. Jesus Christ is omnipresent, because He is God. However, He is localized in heaven at the right hand of God. It is the same concept of Jesus Christ being present in us. From current positional truth we share His exalted position. Rom. 6:4–5 Col. 2:12b Heb. 1:13 2:9–11 10:12 at some point we will reside in this exalted position. It is ours. If we have a position, it will happen.
4. The believer is now positionally higher than angels. In heaven, we will be higher than angels experientially.
5. We are God's personal possession forever. That is a relationship which dwarfs all others (or it should).

What Positional Truth is Not

People get their position and their experience all boloxed up.

1. It is never an experience nor is it emotional. You may get emotional knowing who you are and what you have, but that is not required. You do not feel this anymore than the baptism of the Holy Spirit. It is just there. This is the precursor of the spiritual life.
2. Positional truth is not progressive.
  - a. Positional truth cannot be improved over the course of time. It does not get better; it just is. It is always perfect and the best; it cannot get better.
  - b. Positional truth is perfect and complete at the moment of salvation.

c. It remains complete regardless of the circumstances and choices which we make. It is done; it is finished. When Christ said, "It is finished," that meant that His work was finished.

3. Positional truth is not ever related to human merit. No one deserves all of this any more than salvation is related to human merit. There is no human good works involved in gaining positional truth. There are people who want to work for their position. We can never work enough to be as good as God.

4. Positional truth can never be altered. It cannot be changed. We cannot change it and God cannot change it. God is immutable. He is not an Indian giver. He does not remove our inherence if we have not lived up to the terms of the will. Neither angels, nor principalities, nor angels, etc. can separate us from the love of God which is in Christ. Positional truth is an immutable condition of our life.

We all take a swig from the same cup. Bestowal of our spiritual gifts, which is also a position; and that is the same concept. That spiritual gift can be a diversifying factor, but it produces a unifying environment. This is one of the greatest verses in the Bible to tell us who we are in Christ.

1Cor. 12:13: For also we all were baptized by one Spirit into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, even all were given to drink into one Spirit.

V. 14: we are one body and many parts. Many Timothy was sort of a goofy guy and uncoordinated, and Paul watched him and used this brilliant analogy. Anyone can understand a person's various body parts and how they are in concert with one another.

V. 14 introduces the body analogy which is found in vv. 15–17. There will be some personifications.

Lesson #788

1Cor. 12: October 12, 2008

Sunday 1

Communion Service

Being a member of the one body of Christ, we are diverse, but we are still one body. We have one body made up of many parts, and this is analogous to the church. The analogy is to many believers with many spiritual gifts.

Vv. 15–17 begins the body analogy which is the body analogy, one of unity and diversity.

1Cor. 12:14–17: For also the body is not one member, but many. If the foot says, Because I am not a hand, I am not of the body, on account of this, is it not of the body? And if the ear says, Because I am not an eye, I am not of the body, on account of this, is it not of the body?

If all the body were an eye, where would be the hearing? If all hearing, where the smelling?

They eye seems more crucial than the ear; or the hand seems more important than the foot. So, does this make the eye more important in the overall function? Without the ear, the body is still missing a very important function. The Corinthians are a very divisive lot. Some of these Corinthian believers crave the more spectacular gifts; particularly the gift of tongues. Those with the more mundane gifts feel less important and you can hear Mr. Foot and Mr. Ear lamenting their status, and the gloating of Mr. Hand and Mr. Eye. This is typical of the divided status of the Corinthians. They are diverse, but they are not unified. You must think of these 4 body parts as the Corinthian believers. These believers are divided over the most gracious of spiritual endowments, and this sort of thing happens all of the time. People are upset because they are like this all the time. Some people are upset because they want to be this or that, or they see someone and they want to be in this or that position. "I am better than you because God has given me this seemingly more important gift."

1Cor. 12:14: For also the body is not one member, but many.

Lesson #789

1Cor. 12: October 12, 2008

Sunday 2

We have people in Corinth who do not like one another and are at odds with one another. It is like your hand being mad at your foot. These body parts are described in us. We can make the decision as to what body part we are.

This poor downtrodden foot says, "Because I am not a hand, I am not part of the body." So, is it really not a part of the body? Λεγω which means to say, to speak. This is a grammatical construction which is a 3rd class condition; Paul is setting up a hypothetical condition. It may or may not be true. In this hypothesis, uncertainty is implied. Whether true or not, there is this uncertainty. Mr. Foot is insecure and he reveals this insecurity verbally. Mr. Foot has developed an inferiority complex based upon his function as a foot. He has developed this complex and his compliant implies that he is not as good and he is not as useful as the rest of the body. He must feel quite inferior to Mr. Hand, and he declares petulantly, "I will not be a part of the body" or "I am not a part of the body." He is exaggerating for effect; exaggerating to make a point. We are not getting the attention and the approbation that we want. Mr. Foot is letting us know that he is not happy with his lot in life; and he does not want you to be happy when he is not. They try to make us unhappy by complaining by moping by manipulation, whatever it takes, and, in a perverted way, that makes them feel better. That is what passive-aggressive is all about. "If I can't do what Mr. Hand does, I won't do anything." You can just hear his whining. "That hand gets to do everything; he gets to hold, to gesture, and I am here stuck inside of a stock; free me now!" He refused to move until he gets his way. Does this sound familiar? Do you do this? Mr. Foot is irrational, jealous and resentful. He sounds like a 5 year old child because he is not getting his way. He feels like he is treated as a 2nd class citizen, and, perhaps, even Mr. Hand is slapping him around a bit. The real problem is, regardless of whether he is being shown disrespect, Mr. Foot's contention is completely wrong here. Each part has a different but important function for the entire body. Mr. Foot knows that, deep down, he cannot change his location or his function; not any more than a believer can change his spiritual gift, which the Holy Spirit has bestowed sovereignly on each believer. Some of you will see what you want and whine until you get it. This is the problem in Corinth. The whole situation is pointless and childish. Paul has build a beautiful illustration of Corinth.

What is the problem that we can identify with? He obviously does not have the stability of Bible doctrine in his soul, because he is not a failure nor is he a second class citizen. The body cannot move without him. In his resentfulness and anger at his own position, he is fundamental to the body. No matter how much he wants to be out front and out of the sock, he will always be a foot.

There is an application, in the sense that each one of us is often unsatisfied with our position and with who we are. One of the most difficult aspects of our life is to worry about where we are going. Mr. Foot wants to know right now, and he wants to be someone else. We are given a gift to do our own service to the Lord. The point is, fulfill your own spiritual gift. This is not something that you need to go out and strain over. Just continue to grow spiritually; your gift will begin to function normally and it will all happen as you advance toward spiritual maturity. Unfortunately, Christians do not grow and they want to get out there and strive. Don't look around and be concerned with how other believers are functioning. The Lord rewards faithfulness in that which He requires of the believer. It is not how well you judge someone else or how their situation in life seems to you. We are to deal with our own life and we do not need to be concerned with the lives of others. We only need be concerned with the true Word of God and our own function in the plan of God.

On the flip side, God handles in discipline those with the mental attitude of Mr. Foot and Mr. Hand. There is no contentment in Mr. Foot; he is a tortured body part and his life is not pleasant in his own eyes. There is this unreasonable emotionalism.

All of this makes him think, "I want better treatment" or "I want equal treatment, or I am going to cause plenty of trouble." The problem is, he causes as much trouble for himself as well as for others because of his malady. The great part about it, it requires rebound, because mental attitude sins are the worst. Rebound is critical; they must be forgiven and we must be filled with the Holy Spirit. Doctrinal thinking and the faith rest drill requires us to lose our self-centeredness and our lack of contentment. We need to stop focusing on ourselves and our lives. That is when the greatest peace comes into our lives.

Here is how this particular problem works: one who has the gift of teaching, and there are some in the prep school with this gift, and they are doing this to prepare the children to get them ready to come into the auditorium to learn. They might decide they want some other gift. In Corinth, someone might want to be the real authority. Someone might want that position. The one with gifts of helps and administration. Those with the lower gifts envy those with the more spectacular gifts; those with the higher gifts look down on those with lesser gifts. That is just self-righteousness and legalism. The most divisive sins.

In the church, this ruins the variety of spiritual gifts which are required by the church in order to operate. The entire local church functions most smoothly when they can function as one body.

The final phrase of v. 15 corrects the contention of Mr. Foot. Mr. Foot is more concerned with his status in the hierarchy of people than he is with his position in the body of Christ.

Learn to be content. Our attitude is dependent upon what we have learned. Contentment is a learned attitude.

We can claim a promise and regardless of our circumstances, we do not have to be afraid; we can be content with our circumstances. There are many young men and women in Iraq and Afghanistan, and their lives are in danger often. Bobby has seen many letters of believers with Bible doctrine and they realize to live is Christ and to die is profit. This does not mean you don't have a life.

As you draw your last breath, you should recognize that you are just one breath away from your eternal future. This is nothing to fear and this is something to anticipate. This is a brief for the plan of God in your life. When you begin to do this, your discontent is calmed. You get the greater perspective. You change the focus from yourself and from your place in Christ. You understand who you are and what He has provided for you. You understand who He is and what He has provided and that is when you are content with your life. Peace supercedes dissatisfaction and inordinate competition and jealousy. Those who are dissatisfied with their lives. Doctrine has to be applied under those circumstances. What is human stature in comparison to stature before the Lord? Understand that you can be content in whatever circumstance you find yourself. All Mr. Foot has left is self-pity and dissatisfaction. What do we have to pity? We ought to pity those who do not have Christ. Get a perspective; get a focus on life.

Mr. Foot is just as much a part and just as critical to the whole as any other part of the body. It is not Mr. Foot's status in life or gift, but it is his own thinking which degrades him as a believer.

1Cor. 12:15: If the foot says, "Because I am not a hand, I am not of the body;" on account of this, is it not of the body?

Being more conspicuous does not make a person more important than any other part of the body. There are more wrinkles for eye and ear coming up on Wednesday.

1Cor. 12:16: And if the ear says, Because I am not an eye, I am not of the body, on account of this, is it not of the body?

Lesson #790

1Cor. 12:16 October 15, 2008

Wednesday

The same principles apply here from the previous verse. This illustration is more compelling than the foot and hand illustration. The areas of perception are dealt with here. Ears and eyes represent the visible communication gifts. With this illustration, Paul will drive home his point one more time.

The Analogy

1. Human body parts of many and varied.
2. Spiritual gifts are many and varied.

3. The human body is united, but made up of many parts.
4. Just as the body of Christ is united and made up of a diversity of gifts.

This entire scenario is rather comical. The ear wants to be the eye. The ear wants to be an eye, which would make for a very ugly face. When you look at this back of a bill, it is as if someone is watching you, as it is just this one big old eye. It just sits there and hovers. Mr. Ear is denuding the body of an entire avenue of perception. He wants to leave his place behind and become something else.

The eye over the pyramid on the dollar bill, and that has been the source of a lot of speculation. Some think it is the symbol of the Masonic seal, a controversial group. Some Christians think that it is an apostate group. A lot of controversy over this little picture. This unfinished pyramid below the eye is actually a symbol of strength and duration, which is the idea behind the United States. There are 13 steps on this pyramid leading to an incomplete summit, which represents the remainder of the United States to come. After all, we were forged in freedom. That was the thinking. The eye is known as the eye of providence. The eye with these rays of light represents the care and benevolence of a benevolent God, as the guiding power of the universe and the light of our nation. Do not be upset about the symbol or wonder about it, as some do. We were forged in divine freedom.

The ear cannot be the eye even if it wants to, and it does want to. If it could leave its position and become an eye, then the body would be out of whack and only partially functioning and handicapped. The ear wants to be something that it isn't. "If I can't be that, I won't fulfill the function for which I was designed."

1Cor. 12:16: And if the ear says, Because I am not an eye, I am not of the body, on account of this, is it not of the body?

The body with just an eye were be at a terrible disadvantage. The body is at a distinct disadvantage. When there is no eyesight, the hearing becomes more acute.

The Analogy

1. Just as the human body is a living organism, so the church, the body of Christ, is a living organism.
2. Believers are in union with the Living God, the Lord Jesus Christ. Sharing all that He is and all that He has. We, in Christ, are each members of His body. Members of the living, resurrected Jesus Christ.
3. However, we are more than just a unified body in the metaphorical sense. We are more than just a living organism, as we are the body of a living person, Jesus Christ. We are part of the body of a Living Person.
4. Each member of the body has a dynamic relationship with Jesus Christ.
5. Each of us has that living dynamic relationship which goes to make up the entire living body of Christ.

We have a guarantee of current positional truth as being a part of Christ's body.

What does this mean?

1. Individually, we share in His resurrection, which is His new life. That is part of His new life. A resurrection body.
2. As the resurrected Christ, He originated that life. We are a new spiritual species in Him.
3. As the source of our individual life, He is also the source of the life of the whole church. Since each person is a member of the living resurrected Christ.
4. That makes the body of Christ a living organism made up of members with eternal life.

Each member of the body of Christ has an important function which they must discharge. A body functions with the coordination of its parts. The body of Christ has many members which must also be coordinated. We are all related in that way as individual body parts. The person next to us is a body part just as we are, and we all work together. We function as a whole body. This is our unity. The body function, the body part is diverse. We have all sorts of different things. This is a brilliant illustration. Our unity in diversity is our spiritual gifts and their function. The body is dependent upon all those parts. We are dependent and in cooperation with each other. The whole body, the church, depends upon us in the various areas in which we are gifted. Being part of the same body makes the petty squabbles rather unimportant. The body of Christ is at a distinct disadvantage when members are not coordinated and in factions. The spiritual gifts operate in coordination. Without our spiritual gifts functioning, the body of Christ does not operate to its full capacity.

Where would the gifts of help and mercy be, if everyone had a different gift. Without the variety of gifts, there is not a complete package. It does not matter how conspicuous your gift is. There would be no aid or comfort. Listening to doctrine means that we are growing and this is a part of our spiritual function. Where would the communication gifts be if all people had administration gifts? No good to have communication gifts if there were not gifts to back these up.

Christianity is reduced to one more relative alternative, which it certain is not. Gifts like mercy or compassion or comfort would be no different than what unbelievers do in the name of charity. The gifts of charity would be the same that unbelievers do. There is nothing wrong with charity, but the motivation of Christianity and the secular motivation is quite different. The Christian gift of charity does it as unto God and unto His glory. It is a spiritual life experience and, for many, it is something which we have great motivation to do. In the secular world, there is a lot of glorification of oneself. As believers, we must operate strictly with divine viewpoint. When our spiritual gifts are operating, we must operate with divine viewpoint. Our actions must occur in accordance with Bible doctrine. It is all empowered by God the Holy Spirit.

Bobby wants to clarify something about the filling of the Holy Spirit. We throw this term out all the time, and we would say, "We have the power of God working in us." This is one of the most misunderstood terms of Christianity. Bobby is going to tell us what it is and what it is not.

Filling of the Holy Spirit

1. The filling of the Holy Spirit is the power and efficiency of God. It is the Person through Whom God's power is exercised in us. He fills us, as a Person, and through Him, God's power is exercised.
2. The Holy Spirit is a real person. He is unseen, He is Spirit; but He is a person. Personal pronouns are used, He is given a personality. The Trinity is personal so many eastern religions see God only as some kind of a creative force. God is personal.
3. So the filling of the Holy Spirit is not some mystical power. He is not being union with some sort of mystical impersonal force, nor is He a sense of well-being, nor is the filling an emotional experience.
4. The working of the Holy Spirit is not subjective. He is never subject to relative, humanistic descriptions or personal interpretations apart from Bible doctrine. He has been defined in so many ways apart from the Scripture. The Holy Spirit is often just made out to be whatever someone wants Him to be. However, his working is objective and not subjective. His power is not awakened nor is it acquired the human musings or medication. There is a lot of that which goes on today.
5. He is not some extra-natural voice in our head.
6. In the filling, He is literally and actually in control of our life.
7. This means that He dominates our thinking. He supplies objective absolute divine viewpoint. As you learn doctrine, the Holy Spirit is the One Who teaches us and He makes application and He brings to mind doctrines just when we need them. There is nothing mystical about it. It is about our thinking. He influences and dominates our thinking.
8. He is the source of metabolizing doctrine and spiritual growth. Without Him, that is not there.
9. We cannot grow spiritually on our own. We are incapable of this or through our own self-control or our self-awareness. Growth does not occur based upon meditation. The eastern religions try to find calm and interact with the universe, but it is all subjective; the god they meditate on is all ethereal and experiential. We have an object for our concentration.
10. The filling of the Holy Spirit is a divinely accomplished work. We did not earn it nor did we deserve Him; it is accomplished or deserve it.
11. Our spiritual life is grounded in the reality of a divine person and presence of power. It is not just hanging out here with some mystical meditational force of the universe. We are grounded in the reality of a divine presence and power. This is what separates us from the secular world that we live in.

There are many ways that people attempt to find spirituality. Sometimes, the search for spirituality is simply a search for oneself. People just try to find spirituality as a part different from that which is material and they try to find it in any possible way. There is a huge difference between what we believe and humanistic spirituality. Our life is not finding ourselves within ourselves. It is not inventing a god for our own usage or as some sort of a psychological function. It is truly amazing how different our thinking is with divine viewpoint in comparison with such human viewpoint. We do not think like they do at all. We may not realize it or recognize it.

What is the Difference between our thinking and theirs?

1. We do not start at the same place. Our thinking begins with Bible doctrine empowered by the filling of the Holy Spirit through which we understand ourselves. We begin with God and understand man in general from the standpoint of God. We understand being lost and our need of Christ.
2. They begin with themselves; that is where they start, humanistic thinking, and they try to reach, understand, or unite with God. That is humanism.
3. Our thought process is hugely different from the mind of Christ.
4. You do not come to the same conclusions as the secular mind because we do not have the same standards or criterion for life.
5. Our standards are fixed. We do not partake in situational ethics or develop an individualistic God. This is a god we develop apart from the Bible; god is who we want him to be. Our objective knowledge defines God and His thinking.
6. We all fail; we sin, we fail, but our standards do not change because they are centered in Bible doctrine. This is not true of the reversionist. When the humanist fails, their standards change to fit what they want to do therefore there is no guilt.
7. So, the result is, there can only be superficial like-mindedness between the advancing believer and the secular unbeliever or the reversionist.
8. There can be no rapport between such types because doctrine is the final word for us, but not for them.
9. What is the difference? Problem solving of everyday issues is quite different. There is no depth of common ground at all. We have problem solving devices based upon doctrine, they have nothing like that. There is no common ground. We think with doctrine, and they do not. This is why people are not to be unequally yoked.
10. It is divine viewpoint which is the separator. This separates us from the rest of the world.
11. Divine viewpoint is the major factor of our life. It is not so with the unbeliever or with the secular world (the cosmic system).

1Cor. 12:17: If all the body were an eye, where would be the hearing? If all hearing, where the smelling?

Rick Hughes will be the guest speaker for both services this Sunday.

The analogy that we have studied is to a living organism and the body of Christ is also a living organism. Each human body part which we have studied is a member of a living breathing human being. All of the parts function together to maintain human life. There is a great complexity of design and movement. There is tremendous complexity, each part having a specific function.

Medical science is still learning how each individual part of the body functions. These parts make the body more efficient and the body functions better, and the body is made up of members, body parts made of the body of Christ. We are parts of the body of a living person. We are a part of the church, which is made up of living human parts. We as believers in Jesus Christ are each a part of this dynamic body of Christ. This is how we need to think of our role as an individual believer. We tend to think only of the necessity of individual growth, but we tend to forget that, as individual believers, we are part of a whole. As a church, we have a mission, which includes certain activities on this earth. We are all part of this as individual members. Our life begins as a new life and the living organism is maintained by spiritual growth. The living body must grow. The maximum efficient function of the body of Christ begins with the mature believer.

Spiritual maturity is the gateway to individual production as well as to the proper function within the body. Then there is the head of the body, which is Jesus Christ. No living, higher organism can operate without the working of its central nervous system and thought processes. There must be impulses from the brain. There is this central nervous system which controls these parts. The same is true of the body of Christ. Divine viewpoint in the body parts is what makes the body function. Christ is the head and it is the mind of Christ which is the central nervous system. The body therefore functions as one unit because of the mind of Christ in each one of us. Spiritual growth is how the body works. As the mind of Christ grows in us, so does the body as a whole function more efficiently. So no member under these conditions should belittle his own function in the body or envy the gift or position of another believer, as all are equally important. You may think that a communication gift is more important, but, it is not; it is critical, but then so is ours.

The body does not work as well when the body parts are not working either. All gifts—every spiritual gift is necessary, in order to carry out the mission of the church. We thought that we were some anonymous Christian, but we have a function. Whatever we are, we are a part of it; all gifts are necessary.

The meaning is obvious. The operation of the body of Christ as a living organism, depends upon its individual members—that is, believers with spiritual gifts—working in conjunction, under the head of Jesus Christ. Within the body, a diversity of gifts is necessary for the whole operation.

An adverb of time as well as a conjunction of contrast. There is the bizarre and far-fetched analogy of becoming a foot or an eye. This is a real situation. Vv. 15–16 were hypothetical analogies. V. 17 was a true thing, but a hypothetical. However, this verse is simply true.

Paul is presenting the reality of spiritual gift incorporated into the body of Christ. The gifts that we find here are the ones which the Holy Spirit determined to reveal to us, and He determined which gift and to whom the gift would be given. The Holy Spirit determined the proper proportion of body parts. He gave proportionately each gift. This is how it works individually and corporately. The human body is designed with exactly a certain proportion of body parts. The Holy Spirit also assigns a specific number of parts to the body of Christ. If God created our bodies—and He did—God in an instant in time, took dust, and made every part of our body and every body part and developed the interactions, the latent reproductive system, etc. He also formed the body of Christ in an intricate way. We are a part of this set of principles. He determined the makeup of the human body. How it is put together, how the parts work together; and God did this in a moment of time. This is nothing for him to determine. He determines of what the body consists. What types of gifts are necessary, which we have studied, and how each one operates. Nothing is left out of the table of organization. The proportion of spiritual gifts and the type of spiritual gifts and the entire plan and who gets what is all a part of the divine decree. The Holy Spirit understood every portion of the church throughout the Church Age and he knew every single person of the Church Age and how he would function in the Church Age, and He knew the capabilities and which gift or gifts would be apropos. He distributes the gifts to have just the right number of gifts to continue the mission of the church effectively. How can we question God's decisions in this or any area? As a matter of fact, the Corinthians questioned God's plan all the time and the incredible intellect and the divine decree of God Himself and the function and movement of the body. They complain as if God the Holy Spirit has no idea what He is doing.

God the Holy Spirit has placed each of the members in the body just as He has desired. They all come from his absolute sovereignty and from his perfection. There are perfect decisions and perfect results. Why would a believer desire anything different than the gift which God has provided. Why would anyone say, "I'd like to be the pastor and have control and have people listen to me." Don't ever be dissatisfied with your place in the body of Christ. This decision was made in eternity past and that decision is perfect.

You are either a functioning or a non-functioning part of the body of Christ. Without our gift, the body is deficient. We don't get it; we do not understand it; we refuse to grow. Some think that they are functioning in their gift without having any knowledge of what it is they are doing. They are infants or adolescents in a mature body. All we have to do is advance. So many believers work so hard and they achieve nothing.

If a believer desires something different than what the Holy Spirit's will is, and deviates and adheres to his own plan, he is alienated. We may have one plan and God may have a different plan. When one door closes, another door opens. It is our responsibility as a growing believer to recognize a door and to walk through it. Bobby had all kinds of plans and teaching at Berachah was not one of them.

At the end, some rewards will be handed out and others will not be. We are putting all of this together and we understand what it means to be an individual believer as a part of something bigger than just us. Sometimes we don't pick up on these things either. Paul then follows the previous verse by giving the rationale for the distribution of gifts.

If the body were just one member, where would the body be? If every believer was an evangelist or a pastor-teacher, then where would the body of Christ be? The diversity of gifts are all important. Without each one, crippled and in a truncated situation, truncated. No longer in maximum operational efficiency.

Summary

1. We are individual members of the body of Christ by virtue of our salvation. We are linked to the eternal living God in a dynamic relationship.
2. We have a spiritual gift which is just right for us, given by the sovereign decision of God the Holy Spirit.
3. Without the function of our gift, the body is truncated.

Conclusion

1. Do not desire a gift which was not designed for you.
2. You need to get with it and advance, so the body will function smoothly and efficiently.
3. Individual believers can fail. We can fail and we all do, to a greater or lesser extent. Likewise, when individual believers fail, the church fails in its mission in history. If the members collectively fail, like the Middle Ages, the church fails. Individual believers knew nothing and they were taught nothing.
4. This is why a client nation goes down. When the body does not function, the nation is not blessed.

Concluding principles

1. If we do not operate in our gift, then someone must replace us.
2. Without us, the body is not up to part, not up to fighting strength.
3. When our gift does not operate, we have failed to advance spiritually.
4. We have missed out on the satisfaction and fulfillment of service to the Lord, which is one of the greatest things in life. Using our gift in our spiritual advance is totally satisfying. One of the greatest things that a believer can have is functioning in one's own spiritual gift.
5. The body of Christ functions a little less efficiently without us.
6. With enough like us, non-functioning little cogs in the wheel, the body functions very little.
7. We will, as a non-functioning member, miss out on the options available to us. When we are mature believers, we live our lives in the light of eternity and we know the divine mandates for our life. The end of the road for a satisfied life is eternity. That is our life. No one else in the world can say that we have a life like that.

Paul has demonstrated in vv. 18–20, he has demonstrated unity and diversity. The church includes everyone who has believed in Jesus Christ. The diversity which Paul has described includes the assorted spiritual gifts. The Holy Spirit has determined the types of gifts which have been distributed. He understands our propensities, our weaknesses, our skills, and has matched us perfectly with the gifts which are appropriate to us. He decides who gets what and decides how each gift will function. Bobby has described to the best of his ability how each gift functions. The Holy Spirit knows all of the facts. He distributes the gifts according to His knowledge and sovereignty. Once we receive it, it is up to us to use this gift productively. This is the diversity of the body of Christ. It has a unifying purpose. The human body needs a full complement of body parts, and the body of Christ needs a full complement of gifts.

No one is weaker or stronger or greater or lesser because they have this or that gift. This is not how the body works. That is not how the body functions. There are just the right number of individuals and individual believers, with their varying gifts at one time in church history.

Paul now defines the unity of the church, which is based upon the human body analogy. V. 20 is where Paul draws a conclusion. This is a restatement of v. 14, but now it becomes pivotal with a different use than it did in v. 14. It is a conclusion. It is also an introduction to the remainder of 1Cor. 12, which is about the coordination of all the gifts of the body of Christ. This verse is a confirmation of the concept of teamwork. In this auditorium in the whole, we have a team, and we are never isolated entities. Even though we may be isolated, we are not an isolated entity. For those who are members of the body of Christ, serving in a place like Iraq or Afghanistan. Bobby listened to tapes on a number of occasions and there were no believers in his immediate surroundings, Wherever you are and wherever we find ourselves, isolated, each one of us are members. We operate individually but we also operate corporately. We are on a team.

All of us have been on a team or part of an organization, and accomplishing a goal requires all of us to work together. No organization functions without teamwork. It is not an easy concept. Teams are difficult to bring into being. In case you have never been on a team, there are so many variables and so many different skills and so many different policies, ideas, angers, many situations, problems and distraction. When one member of the team is out of synch, he can put the entire team out of synch. One team member might have to pick up the slack for one who is coasting; or several may have to take up for the weaker link. The team is made up of a group of individuals working together for a common goal. This goal is important. Team success is paramount. Not all members on the team are of equal stature or of equal value. Some have less to do with team success than others. Ultimately, the body of Christ will be a winner, whether we are out of synch or not. That is assured. So we are either part of the victory or we are a part of the problem of the team. Being a part of the problem, that has eternal repercussions. We have a spiritual life to lead and it is defined; the mechanics are given to us in a clear manor. We function as a part of our spiritual gift. In sports, as in other areas, team members who excel receive special honor. There is special honor and attention. The body of Christ, the weaker team member actually receives more honor (vv. 22–24). If even the weak members are important to the team and given even more honor, this elevates the team. In sports today, a star can cause plenty of dissension on a team by grabbing all of the headlines. The star who crows about his own success divides the team; and the one who exalts his team members and makes it clear that he could not do it without them, he unifies this team. The Corinthians all want to be stars, and they base this upon the spectacular gifts which they may have. The ones speaking in tongues believe that their gift is more important, as it is obvious that they have the gift.

We are all in this together. We are a unified body of team members. There are stars on every team and those we might call journeymen, who do their job day after day. They are not spectacular; however, they certainly get noticed when they do not do their job. That journeyman who does his job day after day after day has his honored place. The weaker member actually receives more honor. That is the grace of God. Every believer is critical to God and important to the team.

Teamwork requires knowing the fundamentals, conditioning and training. No team can win without these 3 features. How do they manifest themselves in the church.

How Does the Team Win?

1. The fundamentals of Bible doctrine are the principles of the team. These are first γνῶσις in the left lobe and then transferred by faith to ἐπίγνωσις in the right lobe. We have to believe this; that is a part of the process of the fundamentals.
2. Conditioning is metabolizing doctrine. We cannot be weak-minded. We become efficient in knowledge of doctrine. The doctrine flowing by operation Z, through the stream of consciousness. It is like oxygen flows into our blood stream, and we become oxygenated. The more doctrine flows, the better prepared we are.
3. Training is the circumstances and the tests which we undergo. We are trained to utilize this doctrine.

John Wooten Basketball coaching, and in 12 years of coaching, he won 10 championships, 7 in row, 88 games in 4 seasons. This is how good he was as a coach. How he put his teams together and how they functioned. His program dealt with fundamentals, conditioning and teamwork.

John Wooten and what he did

1. His fundamentals included all the basics of the game. The necessary skills and fundamental of the game. They simply mastered the fundamentals over and over again. He gathered his team the first day, and he taught them how to tie their shoes in the same way. They got the point. Every little detail counts. He instilled in them from the beginning that no detail was too minor to cover. The team got tired of doing these fundamentals, but he continued to teach them throughout the year. He understood absolutes; these are the fundamentals and they do not change.
2. They ran the same drills every day; he hammered them with it. Each player knew what his part was to play, and he did not want to let the other team members down; so conditioning was important. you must persevere in spite of every circumstance.
3. The success of the team was the payoff. they knew exactly what they needed to do in the program. They stayed with the fundamentals. correction after failure is trying to buy batteries after the hurricane rather than before. he did not develop different strategies for different games.

We can only play as far as the fundamentals that we have; we can only go as far as we have practiced to play. This is true in the spiritual life as well. He also taught them the fundamentals, but he did not have to tell them, "Here is what you must do to win."

Game on when we walk out of the Berachah does. Wooten was unemotional. He kept a stabilized under control demeanor. That is also true of the emotional Christian who fails in the face of adversity. He focuses on himself. You do not help the team when you do that.

1Cor. 12:20: But now, indeed, many are the members, but one body.

Lesson #793

1Cor. 12:20 October 23, 2008

Thursday

v. 20 makes a simple and profound statement. "But now there are many members but one body." We are not just isolated believers just out there on our own. We have support and we are team members. At that moment, the team, the body of Christ, is formed, and we continue to advance in the body of Christ. We continue to be believers with a common goal. The drive and the corporate mission of the church. We are a coordinated body, each of us an integral part, a critical cog, of the body of Christ. It has been that way since the day of Pentecost. We have individual believers, but part of the corporate body of Christ. All the things which the church is designed to do, is what we as individual believers are designed to participate in individually. It does not matter where we are geographically, amongst a mess of unbelievers or believers without any interest in spiritual growth; we are all still members of a team, the body of Christ team. Isolation does not separate you from the team.

Rick Hughes is a perfect example of this, who is on the road and he is not in consistent contact with a body of believers. He must grow by listening to MP3's or watching DVD's. in his spiritual growth or in his travels, his gift functions. He is presenting the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to kids who need to hear the gospel. He is adding to the body of Christ, recruiting for the team. His spiritual gift is a part of the team effort of the entire body. It does not matter that he is not a part of a local assembly all the time. Their spiritual gift functions, whether you are tied geographically or not to believers at a church.

If we accomplish God's plan for our individual lives through spiritual growth and serving Him through our spiritual growth, then we are serving Him and His corporate plan. Wherever we exist, God provides the circumstances in which our spiritual gift operates. We should ask ourselves, how does the individual function? Knowing the fundamentals, conditioning and training. Bobby featured these 3 features to parallel our spiritual life with Wooten's sports team. You learn fundamentals from doing it over and over again. As a golfer, repetition is a critical part of that game until muscle memory kicks in. Your swing needs to be consistent.

Wooten's team changed, the teams they played changed, but the fundamentals did not change, nor did the results. Wooten also stressed conditioning. Great wear and tear on a man playing basketball 3 times a week and practicing on the other days. And you have to be in shape for the closing moments of the game.

Ranger school taught Bobby that there is no quitting. When one member of a team quits, then the team is let down. Teamwork was the result of mental and physical conditioning after mastering the fundamentals. They did these things individually, but they operated as a team.

Bobby failed to mention that Wooten had some of the greatest players in the game; but great players is not enough. We have a system as an individual team member. As we execute it, so we are a team player, because we are a part of that team. The fundamentals are the principles of Bible doctrine. We must learn them, we are taught them; they must be repeated to us.

Conditioning is the metabolizing of that doctrine. We are conditioned for play by Bible doctrine in the soul. We are mentally tough and our soul is ready to operate in whatever circumstance we find ourselves. In the church, training is the circumstances and the test that we apply ἐπίγνωσις doctrine to our lives. The result of fundamentals, conditioning and training is the development of the operation of our spiritual gifts. The fundamentals of doctrine are learned as we progress from γνῶσις to ἐπίγνωσις. Conditioning occurs as the increased flow of doctrine circulates and permeates our stream of consciousness. As the flow increases, we are more conditioned. Conditioning means that oxygen is carried more efficiently to all parts of our body so that we may function without fatigue. As we face the tests of life in adversity or in prosperity, we are trained by applying the fundamentals and relying on our conditioning. We have the fundamentals are we rely upon our conditioning. The Lord will not test us beyond what we are able to bear. He knows our conditioning and the fundamentals. As you mature in the fundamentals and the training, your spiritual gifts begin to kick in. The corporate plan of God for the church because we are ready. We are physically and mentally ready. We can use problem solving devices and our spiritual gift is functioning. Beautiful illustration of teamwork.

The Analogy

1. You do not depart from your routine of fundamentals, conditioning and training. That means consistency in the intake and metabolizing of doctrine. Wooten never departed from the fundamentals. He did not criticize the players who failed. When we fail, we go back to the fundamentals, rebound and the faith rest drill. Consistency of the intake.
2. We must never let up, or inconsistency creeps into our souls. Neglect creeps in too.
3. We are so well conditioned and well-drilled in doctrine, that we can apply it under pressure even when you cannot think. Have you ever been under pressure when no thought comes to mind, that is when the fundamentals kick in. They work even when you are totally stupefied.
4. That is what the faith rest drill does. Drill means that you have pounded it in many times.
5. You never have to change or adapt your thinking to fit different circumstances. Wooten never scouted other teams nor did his players make adjustment for other stars. Doctrine works in all circumstances, since we think in absolutes. We deal with gray areas all the time, but we think in absolutes.
6. Divine viewpoint fits every circumstance. It has an absolute application to every adversity, all the prosperity tests, to everything in our life. No circumstance in our life when Bible doctrine is not applicable. If you have doctrinal principles, then you can apply them.
7. There are no circumstances in which you cannot win with the fundamentals, conditioning and training. We are in the Angelic Conflict and that is a part of our corporate mission. We cannot help but win. Can't lose.
8. When you are trained and functioning in your spiritual life, you are a solid team member of the body of Christ. You do your job, whatever your spiritual gift is.

If you function in the spiritual life with the absolutes of the spiritual life, you don't have to do something special. Wooten did not emotional whoop us his players and they did not touch a rabbit's foot. No matter how good you are, someone else can be better; you still play within your abilities. Bobby never presents an emotionally based spiritually life. Wooten never tried to pump up his players emotionally. He wanted his players to focus; he wanted them to concentrate and to focus on the fundamentals. You have to continue thinking, and you cannot think when you are operating on emotion. When we recognize all that God has done, we might get a little emotional, but the doctrine comes first and the emotion comes later. Bobby is our John Wooten, and he trains us to apply the principles to our lives.

Bobby cannot afford to let us down, but we are not any different. We are no-less compelled to operate in our spiritual gifts than Bobby is. We have a tendency to see ourselves out there doing our own thing, but we are out there as a team player. Always remember, we are not the one to accomplish it; the power is in the Word of God. It is not the power which we bring to it; it is not about us; it is what is taught; it is what is repeated. It is how our spiritual gift works.

Most coaches would agree with John Wooten and like his coaching, as he was the most successful coach in basketball history. For him it was absolute and for other coaches, that was relative. Wooten's team always knew what to do on the court. For Coach Wooten, this was his approach in toto. Team fundamentals carried on, despite any minor setback.

Too many believers react with emotion, without fundamentals; and people will be pulling their hair out, and pastors trying to figure out how to bolster their congregations with absolutes. Problems are about to strike; we have just begun to see problems in this country and we need to have the fundamentals. We must be able to apply that doctrine and function as the team, because we are the pivot. That is how the pivot functions and we hold the destiny of the country in our hands. When we operate with doctrine, the team works. There will be pastors who have endorsed certain candidates and their candidate does not win, and if he is an emotional wreck, then his congregation will be as well. They will do all kinds of stuff other than functioning under Bible doctrine. They can be steeped in legalism or emotionalism and without doctrinal orientation. A church may have a lot of programs but no fundamentals.

Bobby has no control over no one but himself, but by operating under his spiritual gift. God will put us in the circumstances.

Paul illustrates teamwork with the body illustration. I don't need you, I have the gift of tongues; I don't need you, I am of Paul; well I am of Peter. They are all trying to be stars on a team, but the team is messing up.

1Cor. 12:20: But now, indeed, many are the members, but one body.

Lesson #794

1Cor. 12:21    October 26, 2008

Sunday 1

In the body of Christ, which is the living association of all those who have believed in Christ, God has seen fit to make us dependent upon one another. We are independent as individual believers concerning our spiritual growth, our life and our personal identify does not ever remove us from the common goal of executing God's corporate plan for the church. We are united. Learning the fundamentals of doctrine is critical by taking Γνωσις and converting it to ἐπίγνωσις. Secondly, we must condition ourselves by getting into shape, and increase the flow of divine viewpoint in our souls. Thirdly, we must train ourselves to face all circumstances of life. Prosperity and adversity can both be huge problems. The result is, we are a mature believer and we are a functioning member of the team body of Christ. Thus a group of believers provide for the completion of the church as a whole. We are part of a team. When individual spiritual growth is neglected or rejected, there is both personal and corporate failure. There is divine discipline personal and corporate and for us there is self-induced misery.

All of us will have some relationship with an organization or several. Sometimes when a purpose succeeds inside a corporate organization, a justified recognition is received. In those accolades, there is also a great danger for the person. However, there are those who are honored, but fail to recognize the team effort and the system of the organization, a system of discipline and a system of authority, and human alliances and associations.

The arrogance comes in when the central individual fails to orient to the organization itself, to its discipline and authority. They think that they make the organization and that the organization exists for them. Any success is a team success. The idea grows in the exalted person that he is superior to everyone else, that there is no collaboration in teamwork. The approbation this person receives is often because of the organization which is behind them. They are borne on the shoulders of the others in the organization (like the blockers for a quarterback). However, such a one can become arrogant and a detriment to his entire organization because of that arrogance. When the individual becomes arrogant, they are a detriment to the organization.

We in the church are a living organization, linked to the body of Christ. As each of us advance in the spiritual life, we become members of the team, a team of believers, each one of us using his own developed spiritual gift. We do have a mission; He does have a plan for us.

We are the organization which represents Jesus Christ on earth. God made this plan for each of us well before even the earth was created. It is individual. He knew everything that we would think and do throughout our lives and the choices which we would make and how they were carried out. Individually, each one of us was known by God. He knows the very number of hairs on our head.

His plan has a corporate purpose as members of the body of Christ. We each develop our spiritual gift so that we may be a part of accomplishing this plan. Some succumb to organizational arrogance, where some think, "The team would not succeed without me." There are those who seem very spiritual and think of themselves as stars. Other people may think the same thing. You can only focus on yourself and your own spiritual life. We individually have the responsibility of growing and developing our spiritual gift and functioning within the plan of God. The flashy arrogant believer is not necessarily the important believer. Arrogance and self-absorption, great enemies of team effort. When one team member stands out there and brags about how great he is, and this is disheartening to the rest of the team.

The person who is arrogant about his gift and where he stands is a detriment and no more important than those who continue team play. His spiritual growth is short-circuited by his own vainglory. He becomes a detriment to the team itself. He fails to understand that he could not succeed without the rest of the team. He puts the entire team out of synch.

Paul's caution and correction begins with v. 21: no team can function effectively without all of its team members being in synch and functioning. Believers at Corinth were not only out of synch, but they disliked one another. They did not care about being out of synch. One thinks the other is unnecessary and would even prefer that some of the team players were not there.

"I'm the star and I don't need the others." The eye and the head may think that they are much more important than the hand or the foot. Visibility is important, but it is not what is critical to the mission accomplishment of the whole organization. Everyone is necessary.

This verse is just another body illustration, paralleling vv. 15–16. The seemingly inferior body part then wished to be more conspicuous and important. They are jealous. The ear wants to be the eye. Those below are jealous.

Some believers view themselves as stars and want to make sure that everyone else is aware of their status. They want attention over everyone else. That is not an attitude of coordination or cooperation or the solidarity of the body of Christ. That one body must function in conjunction with the other members of the body. When one part of the body is missing or not functioning, then the overall body is handicapped. The teamwork of the church becomes inefficient.

Corinthians has a great range of doctrine and application. We will be out of it next year. Great secret of where we are going, but it will not be 2Corinthians. Paul is driving home the point that all members of the body of Christ are of equal value and there is fault with the stars and the wannabees.

Instead of hand/eye coordination, the eye says, "Hand, I don't need you. Get out of here." Arrogance and ego are always the enemies of teamwork. Thinking more highly of yourself than you ought to think does not get it done. The eye thinks of himself as the star.

All members of the body of Christ need one another in order to function; we are all a coordinated body. No one is inferior or superior, no matter what our gift, no matter whether we are visible or not. Arrogance and jealousy and other mental attitude sins not only destroy the spiritual life of individuals, but destroy mission accomplishments of the team.

Many of us know about the Angelic Conflict and we know that we are placed here to resolve the Angelic Conflict. Bobby has taught corporate victory in the Angelic Conflict. Believers, husbands and wives, have victory. All of us, body of Christ, fulfill a mission with regards to the Angelic Conflict. We are all in combat together. We all have different equipment and different jobs, but each one is necessary to the mission. When we are out of synch, a rifleman is missing from a platoon, or an artillery piece is missing. Both personally and corporately can we be united and victorious.

In most cases, most teams recognize that the star ought to be honored, after all, doesn't the star contribute the most to victory? However, we do not give the greatest honor to the most obscure on the team in human viewpoint teams, but we do in the body of Christ (vv. 22–25). On the contrary, the parts of the body that seem to be weaker are indispensable, and on those parts of the body that we think less honorable we bestow the greater honor, and our unpresentable parts are treated with greater modesty, which our more presentable parts do not require. But God has so composed the body, giving greater honor to the part that lacked it, that there may be no division in the body, but that the members may have the same care for one another. We are positionally above the angels and we have a great purpose in life. Never fear, we may think of ourselves as nobodies in the body of Christ, but we, as a member of the team, have an important function, and we need to pull our weight. We have just exactly the right gift and now we must function and the team will win.

1Cor. 12:21: And the eye is not able to say to the hand, I have no need of you; or again the head to the feet, I have no need of you.

Lesson #795

1Cor. 12:22 October 26, 2008

Sunday 2

“There is no way I am a team member of any of these people around here; I don't hang around these people.” However, on a team, the coach chooses the players and whether the mesh or not is still to be seen. However, we are still on the team together. As we develop impersonal love, those we don't want to be team members with, we recognize that we are on the same team and that we are here to function on this team.

A friend who would go to Berachah one day and then go to a locker and hang with people with whom he had nothing in common. That is the nature of being on a team.

1Cor. 12:21: And the eye is not able to say to the hand, I have no need of you; or again the head to the feet, I have no need of you.

False divisiveness of previous verse refuted in v. 22. Those which are weak are more indispensable than those which seem to be important.

Ασθενής = weak, less influence, inconspicuous, little visible importance. Without authority. Sometimes this person is called the little guy. Present active participle of δοκῶ = to seem. This verb is the key to the little guy and to the less influential parts of the body. To presume, to suppose, and this comparative distinguishes between a true and a false doctrine. Αναγκίος = necessary, an integral part of the whole operation. The less influential member is just as critical is seemingly more important member. We can often look at people and see them as being indispensable and others as being unimportant. However, the really important people are often the weaker and less important-seeming people.

Interpretive: In contrast, here is the doctrinal truth, that the member presumed to have little influence or stature is in fact integral and indispensable to the body. We see certain parts of the body which are conspicuous and obviously important, and we understand their prominence and critical nature. However, there are hidden members of the body without which the other parts of the body could not function.

Who is inconspicuous at a construction site, and there are all these ants scurrying about who may seem to be less important than the builder or the architect. The Corinthians are the target of this analogy. To them, the most conspicuous and prized gift was that of tongues. They could watch someone just spout out words from a different language out of nowhere. That was impressive to them. Even though they marveled at this miraculous gift, how important is this gift without the thinking of doctrine and the mind of Christ? What is the conspicuous without the inconspicuous. That is the mindless way the gift of tongues was being used by the Corinthians.

The less conspicuous gifts are actually those which are more important. Illustration: Bobby has a conspicuous gift and everyone is looking at him, so he seems to be important, otherwise, nothing seems to be working. However, he cannot function without administrative, even though most of us know none of the administrative staff. Bobby cannot possibly do all that they do. What they do is critical for the function of Berachah Church. Bobby and the administrative staff are dependent upon one another. Without them, Berachah goes nowhere. The less influential are just as important as those who are easily seen. In this passage, they receive more honor for their quiet operation.

This is grace orientation and humility. To the least belongs more. In the body of Christ, those with quiet gifts are every bit as important if not more so. Paul has not yet completed this thought.

1Cor. 12:22: But much rather the members of the body seeming to be weaker are necessary. Interpretive translation: [In contrast, here is the doctrinal truth, that the member presumed to have little influence or stature is in fact integral and indispensable to the body.]

Some do not even know what their spiritual gift is. It does not matter. Regardless of what the gift is, it functions, whether conspicuous or inconspicuously. Less honorable means there is something wrong with their integrity. We find the same verb δοκεω = to presume, to suppose, to imagine, to think. The purpose of this supposition is to compare a true doctrine with a false doctrine, making the true doctrine completely clear. Who are those in the church who are less honorable? Ατιμος = insignificant, of lesser significance.

These gifts of the Corinthians in this context is being compared to those who have the gift of tongues. Are these other gifts less important than those with the gift of tongues? The other gifts are not less significant. There is more honor placed upon gifts which seem to be less conspicuous. Περιτιθιμι = to place around, to put around, to surround. This verb is used in a way for us to identify with.

Etymology: this term was used in a literal sense to clothe oneself to dress oneself, to throw a cloak over oneself; or throw a cloak of honor upon a body; to place a garland or wreath upon the head. Often done for a man who had a military triumph. He received a great honor. This is an example of the less significant believer being seen as more significant. He is not of equal significance but he is more highly valued. Ironically, a person who receives greater honor for doing that which seems of lesser importance. Bobby dishes out raw material, spoons it out, and it is hot and ready to eat. We have to choose whether to eat it or not. Bobby has to grow just as we do and he has a responsibility to supply and consume the food both. Bobby's gift functions in the body simply to provide food for the rest of us. We have to take it, to chew it and to swallow it, and to grow from it.

We had about 2 minutes to eat in basic training. Bobby's spiritual gift functions to feed us. He is of no use unless we do this together. If Bobby speaks to no one and no one listens or masticates the food, his gift is meaningless. He cannot fulfill this mission on his own. He cannot fulfill the mission of the church himself. He is but one member of the team. He might be the quarterback throwing, but he cannot step back and pass without those blocking and without someone to throw too.

The Holy Spirit invented and gave a plethora of gifts so that we can move together the wagon on down the road. If there is nothing moving, then the church is not moving forward. We are each different parts of the wagon. Everyone's function is just as critical. Bobby might be given accolades and nice letters from various people. But those who are behind the scenes, whether at Berachah or elsewhere have just as much honor in their service. We have a built-in honor for our service; and there can be arrogance which develops when we are working behind the scenes at all times.

V. 23 closes with a parallel phrase: And our unrepresentable members have more abundant propriety. Ἀσχημῶν = unrepresentable, indecent, that which should not be viewed because it is unacceptable. Ευσχημοσύνη = propriety, presentability. They both come from σχημα = fashion, external show, outward appearance. One means fashionable and the other means unfashionable. There is a discussion of clothing here, continuing the context of v. 22 and the verb to place around, to clothe. There are certain parts of the body which can remain uncovered without clothing. Face, hands, etc. Normally, there are parts of our body which are not covered. Other parts of the body are covered due to the various conditions and appropriate to the situation. The interesting fact is, the things which we do not expose are treated as more valuable, as we spend more time and thought covering these things. We spend all kinds of money buying attractive clothing to cover that which ought not to be exposed. We spend a lot of time doing that. By our shopping safaris, we give more honor to those things which we cover up more. So it is in the church and all of its members. We appreciate and we esteem them as indispensable. Living and laboring in anonymity takes more discipline than those who stand out.

Lesson #796

1Cor. 12: October 29, 2008

Wednesday

Self-centered arrogance over a decision made by God the Holy Spirit in eternity past. They were vying over something God had decided in eternity past. These decisions which God the Holy Spirit has decided for us, we want to dispute or act arrogant about. God gave gifts not for the purpose of divisiveness. If we think that we are being treated unfairly or unjustly by God, we should recognize that there is no partiality by God. God does not look at people and say, "I don't like this person and I am going to make him miserable." Or, "This guy is really cool and I like him a lot. So, I am going to treat him really well." But in Corinth, people thought that God was being partial in giving them this or that gift. They don't get it. This conflict stems from ignorance of the plan of God and of Who God is and ignorance as to how God operates toward them. Who is more important to the operation and the mission of the church.

There were arrogant people in Berachah who thought that the church could not get on without them. Bobby is not complaining about anyone at this point. There are not deacons arguing about who ought to be the most exalted or head this or that committee.

The Corinthians wanted to know who was more important in the operation of the church, causing them to become further factionalized. Tongues was the hot gift of the year and everyone seemed to want it. The gift itself was misunderstood. Tongues was seen to be the ultimate gift. The exercise of the gift of tongues had become a real show stopper with no spiritual substance at all. For the Corinthians, the more highly prized gift was tongues.

Everyone watched those who spoke in tongues. How important is the gift of tongues without the thinking of doctrine or the mind of Christ behind it? What good is rattling off some language that no one understands? It was not working that way, which is the mindless way it was being used by the Corinthians in that day, and it is used in a similar fashion today, even though the gift of tongues no longer exists today. We have all the mystery doctrine which we need in the canon of Scripture today. It was divisive in those days and it was divisive now as well.

1Cor. 12:22: But much rather the members of the body seeming to be weaker are necessary. [Interpretive translation: In contrast, here is the doctrinal truth, that the member [the individual believer] presumed to have little influence or stature is in fact integral and indispensable to the body of Christ]

Paul tells them, "You are not more important with that conspicuous gift; you are less important. The church cannot operate without all the gifts. To the least belongs more. They receive more honor for their quiet, behind the scenes function.

The whole body of Christ cannot operate efficiently without all of its parts. Just because something is very conspicuous, that does not make it the most important part of one's body. We all function as a whole. These seemingly lesser gifts are every bit as important.

The low profile gift usually does not get overt praise for service, but continues to serve faithfully regardless. So many people give up on what they are because no one recognizes them. Faithfulness in a few things, and God will make us ruler in many things. Those who are behind the scenes and continue to serve faithfully. Because of this attitude, even in anonymity, we are highly honored, but not necessarily in this life. Those whose gifts are not very out front are an example of grace orientation and humility. All members of the body have great value, whether we are out front or not. Those who think that they have less value need to understand that is never the case. We live under true equality. It does not matter what our race is or our economic status. We are all members of the body of Christ.

In church, you may only see one pastor, but everyone else in church has a gift, and the church cannot run with Bobby alone. We have all the gifts and we are designed to function as the members of this body. We are the ones responsible for the body. The body cannot operate without conspicuous gifts. We are all mutually dependent. We all have real gifts, some conspicuous and some not. Paul is speaking to people who think that the gift of tongues is the ultimate.

No one in the body of Christ is insignificant. We do not need to think of ourselves as insignificant.

1Cor. 12:23: And those of the body we think to be less honorable, to these we put more abundant honor around them. And our unrepresentable members have more abundant propriety.

Those who are out front do not need more accolades and honor, so God gives greater honor to those who do not get it in this life. That is how God composed the body. The composition of the body is the determining factor about those who are the most influential.

Aorist active indicative of συγκεραυνυμι = to mix, to blend, to unite. A constative aorist, the mixing in a summary way. There is not focus on the details of the blending, but the whole action is what is looked at. There may be many actions or activities involved. This just describes that God put the body together. He alone does the mixing and the uniting. An author who writes a book or writes a thesis or some prose, someone in the process of writing. Bobby learned, as a writer, that what you have to do, is take unattached words and blend them together into phrases, paragraphs and chapters into a body of work. In this process, some words seem more important than others. Nouns and verbs may stand out, but there need to be adjectives, definite articles, prepositions, etc. One of the joys of writing is being able to conjure pictures in the minds of others. You cannot put together any sort of writing without these smaller words; they may not stand out, but they make all the connections. The composition makes no sense without them. The very mix of the subject, verbs and adjectives. It is God Who formed the organic whole of the individual parts. All of these things hold together with the little words.

God gives greater honor to those who seem less significant, but who are actually more significant. God gives them their due and then some. Nothing works without them. The whole composition does not work without the small and insignificant words; and God elevates the smaller words.

What does this mean to the Corinthians? The significance of the gift of tongues is replaced by the quiet, low profile gifts. The message is, stop the divisiveness centered around tongues.

Bobby's gift which is critical for all of us; and our gift may affect a few people that we run into; but God honors these latter gifts even more. Those with conspicuous gifts have no right to be arrogant and those who do not have no reason to be down on themselves.

We have honorable people, all a part of the body of Christ. There should be no divisions in the body. Members should not be divided, but have the same care for one another.

1Cor. 12:24: But our presentable members have no need. But God tempered the body together, giving more abundant honor to the member having need,

Lesson #797

1Cor. 12:24–25 October 30, 2008

Thursday

"I just come and go, I am innocuous and I don't know my spiritual gift." Only you know if you are moving in the right direction to develop your spiritual life and your spiritual gift. If you are not advancing spiritually, then you do not know your spiritual gift and you do not function as you ought as a part of the body of Christ.

It takes all of us for the body of Christ to function to the maximum. We are a part of the individual plan of God and the corporate plan of God. Certain believers with certain gifts appear to be more important than others, like a pastor-teacher or an evangelist, and that appears to be out front. Not all gifts deal with a large number of believers. It is only natural to think this, but that is not God's view. If I think it, then God must think it. What you think has nothing to do with what God thinks unless you think with the mind of Christ. Otherwise, what is logical to you and correct to you, is not. Bobby as a pastor-teacher may have an impact on more people, but it does not make our gift any less important. We are not inferior to any other believer. No one regardless of what kind of gift operates in a vacuum. No believer ever stands alone in the body of Christ and no believer stands above the crowd because his gift appears to be indispensable to the body.

What is our mission? It is, in part, to glorify God in our bodies. Our corporate mission is to glorify God in the body of Christ. We do this by glorifying God in our own body. Another is to represent Christ here on earth. That is our mission on earth. We are an ambassador for Christ here on earth. People see Christ through us. They see our stability and our relaxed mental attitude. As a corporate body functioning together, we represent Christ as well. That is the key. The Corinthians do not get it. None of it made any difference to the Corinthians. They each had their part to play, and we are all part of a drama. The Corinthians don't get it and they are contentious. They are fighting over a hierarchy of spiritual gifts, and they have been arguing over spiritual gifts which the Holy Spirit gave as He willed. How can you become arrogant because God the Holy Spirit decided in eternity past to bestow this or that gift.

How can these believers think that one believer take priority over another believer, if the Holy Spirit made the gift a matter of His sovereign decision. God never shows anyone partiality in anything which He does. His purpose is not to set up some lopsided body of Christ. Not going to be top-heavy with communication gifts. The Holy Spirit puts together all the members of the body. No person is just superfluous and He does not people put people out there to just flounder. God the Holy Spirit is never arbitrary and He is never capricious. What He does is always perfect and He has us in mind and He is not arbitrary.

The Greek gods were very much like this. Mythology was filled with gods acting up like putting people in places for their own amusement. They became capricious because people wrote this in. We are the arbitrary capricious ones so we wrote that in. God is not playing. It is blasphemous for the believer to scoff and to put down another believer in relation to Himself. This was not the reason why spiritual gifts were distributed.

Some Corinthians with the gift of tongues have taken on this great importance and they saw this gift as being more impressive than those with inconspicuous gifts. We should be aware of which gifts are temporary and which are around today. Tongues, prophecy, healing and miracles are no longer functioning today.

Helps or mercy may have an effect on only 2 or 3 people; but the number of people is not the issue. We as believers with many gifts are united in these gifts. Every gift has value because it is derived from the Holy Spirit. Because of this distortion, an awful divisiveness invades the Corinthian church. That is why this book is so fascinating. Those who are less conspicuous and those who are arrogant because they possess a conspicuous gift.

One funeral which Bobby went to, where a man was extolled for giving money to the church, and Jesus Christ was never mentioned. Vv, 21–25 are designed to debunk all that went on in Corinth. All members of the body have great value. Those who arrogantly claim themselves to have greater value, and their problem is iconoclastic arrogance. Those who want gifts they did not receive or those who look down on those with other different gifts. The unseen believers have even more value.

People think it is the CEO of a company is what makes that company do well (or not). In the spiritual life, all the members of the body have great value. Those who are arrogant about this are nothing but iconoclasts. The unseen ones have more value. In their anonymity. When your lung is cut out, you have another one, but the body does not function to maximum amount. The less-visible person may be localized; they may have a very small periphery. Might have 1 or 2 or 5 or 10 people. That single function to those few people is important and it has relevance for the body of Christ.

We are all individual members but one body. What makes the less presentable members more honored. V. 24b ought to burst their little self-important bubble. Those who seem less important are more important than those who have a more visible gift. The body is His creation. He composed the body. He composes and blends and unites and mixes the whole team. That is why more honor is given to those who are less conspicuous. No one is left behind; no one is left out.

The message to the Corinthians, stop the divisiveness centered around tongues. That divisiveness is still centered around the gift of tongues, although the situation is different. Today, it is the misuse of a gift no longer in existence. There is never the authorization for the glorification of anyone who speaks in tongues. They appear to be out front, and they are a detriment to the body.

Tragically, believers every use their spiritual gift in a self-glorifying way. How can they do anything which this gift, if they have no clue about their spiritual life.

1Cor. 12:24: But our presentable members have no need. But God tempered the body together, giving more abundant honor to the member having need, the conjunction hina, which means that, one of the little invisible words. The subjunctive of εἶμι. The subjunctive moon indicates that there is a mild contingency in this phrase. The Corinthians are divided, but they should not be. The reality of unity in the church is missing. The Greek syntax indicates a result clause. This is a subordinate clause. There cannot be a main verb in a subordinate clause. The result clause is a result of the action of the main verb. Συγκεραννυμι = to compose, to mix, to blend, to unite. Because He did it, there should be no divisions. God united us, giving us diversity and unity, and so we ought not to be divided. If God composed the body, who are we to divide it?

We as believers have no right to separate that body by jealousy or any other act or mental attitude. God designed a body of various parts. The human body is wonderfully made. God created out bodies, despite what evolutionists say.

Individual and yet all part of the same body. We cannot refute that God composed the body. If God did it, then we know it is perfect. We have a sin nature and we are capable of dividing the body, but that is not how God designed things to be.

How can anyone oppose the plan of God when it is laid out so perfectly? How can we be arrogant toward another believer? How can we use a spiritual gift to discriminate against another believer. It is very dangerous to disregard the plan of God, individually or for the church as a whole. The Holy Spirit blended and unified the church and He distributed diverse gifts to all of us.

Where there is division in an organized body, in a corporate group of any kind, when there is division, it always includes the idea of individual alienation. Teamwork is impossible when members of an organization are divided against each other. If this is what God intended, the members with diverse gifts should have the same care for one another. There are times when you see a phrase like this, and it may sound trite and mushy, but we ought to have a care for one another. It is easy to care for some people, but not for others. Easy to care for those you like, but not for those you don't like. This is a difficult phrase, not just to understand but to execute. 1Cor. 13 is going to show us how we have a care for one another. 1Cor. 13 is the great chapter on love. Some of these passages are some of the most misunderstood doctrines in the entire church.

1Cor. 12:25: that there not be division in the body, but that the members might have the same care for one another.

We live in historic times, when things are occurring in our nation which have never occurred before. We know the God of our history, and if we place our trust in man, we are cursed. No one solve the problems of this world or of this country. All that is required of us is to advance in His plan. We affect things more than does any politician.

V. 25 says that there should be no divisions between those in the body of Christ, and that the parts of the body should have the same care for one another. This verse sums up the unity of the body. There is the negative way and the positive way. If there are no divisions in the body, then there must be unity. This is the first of two result clauses; no divisions is the result of God the Holy Spirit composing, mixing and uniting the body of Christ together.

Each spiritual gift is designed to function for the benefit of the whole body and for the glory of God. There should be no alienation between believers for any reason, but the Corinthians found a reason. They are examples of a deeply alienated group of believers, fractured within themselves. They were all concerned over the preeminence of one gift over another. This negative clause was designed to preclude arrogance. As believers, we are commanded for humility. For those who have visible conspicuous communication gift of tongues, they are arrogant. Paul says, I don't care how great you think you are; there are no divisions. One group was arrogant because they possessed a gift they thought was superior and another group was jealous because they wanted this gift. The have-not's were just as arrogant as the have's. The spiritual gifts were not supposed to be a source of friction. The Holy Spirit, the giver of gifts, shows no discrimination, in His giving of gifts. Bobby cannot stand up and see us as inferior because we do not have his gift. At the same time, we ought not to be jealous of Bobby. However, that was exactly what was going on in Corinth.

The Holy Spirit did not give some sort of a placebo gift to some believers, one which marginalizes them as believers, making them superfluous to the body of Christ? Did the Holy Spirit give a specific gift to some to indicate superiority of one group over another. Bobby has his gift simply because God the Holy Spirit decided that is the gift he should have.

The first result of unity was no divisions and the second result is, the members should have the same care for one another. Present active subjunctive of  $\mu\alpha\rho\alpha\nu\alpha\omega$  = to have concern for one another, to have concern for another's welfare. There is nothing here of envy or divisiveness.

What gifts are those which provide concern for others? Helps, mercy, exhortation and faith. Bobby has already defined these gifts and they are less conspicuous and less flashy, but these gifts are given greater honor and greater notoriety. Bobby demonstrates concern for our general welfare from an impersonal level; and he deals with us as a group. He provides for us food. But the less visible gifts are intimate and more individual. Bobby is not talking about some part-time volunteer work in some sort of community service.

Something altruistic, truly beneficial work. But this does not necessarily show care for other individuals. There are all sorts of phony reasons why people do such work. They do it so that others notice them or that they want to be thought well of by others. It all boils down to 4 things, and they have nothing to do with caring for one another is all about (approbation, being thought well of by others). Caring for one another is a full-time Christian service. You are motivated and we are going way beyond self-glorification. Bobby is not knocking charity or human altruism. We are compelled to care for others because of the spiritual growth and the outworking of our spiritual gift. In this way, we do not glorify ourselves but we glorify God in what we do. This is how we demonstrate care. God gives us more honor in the function of these gifts, as it is not as visible. We develop care for one another by advancing to maturity. That is the only true altruism. We will never in this world find people who care more for the right reasons than those with the capacity to do so from their spiritual life.

No divisions and concern for one another are the two results, opposite sides of the same coin, and one is the flip side of the other. Whether we like it or not, we are all members of one body. The unity which we are supposed to have, we must advance spiritually and make personal application of Bible doctrine. That is true altruism and the rest of the world does not understand that. How we serve has a lot to do with our eternal reward.

This application requires the development in our soul the problem solving devices. Caring for one another can be a real problem. ("I know what I am supposed to do, but that is a real tough one, to care for someone that I do not like). In order to do this, you need to acquire some problem solving devices.

1John 4:19 is one of the last things that Bob covered before retiring. We can reciprocate our love for God only through spiritual advance. You cannot love someone until you come to know them. The only way to develop that love is to personally know Him. Once that is done, we can develop human love. In relationships, we might end up saying, "That is not the person I fell in love with" but it generally means that we just did not know them in the first place.

Spiritual growth can give us love toward some of those which we can barely stand. So many people think that their care for one another is what they do, but it is in our motivation, and then what we do falls out naturally. When we are crossed, and we are supposed to be concerned for them, and we become angry, then we realize that we did not have the proper motivation.

1Cor. 13 is the greatest single dissertation on love in the entire Bible. The Bible is the expert on love, since it has divine viewpoint as a source. It is much easier to have care for those with whom you have affinity, but if that is all you have, there will be divisiveness. Where do the divisions in the body come from? The divisions in your soul.

1Cor. 12:25: that there not be division in the body, but that the members might have the same care for one another.

The first result clause is no divisions in the body. The second is members having care for one another. No matter what our race and gender, there is still one body.

There are believers who rub us the wrong way or who irritate us and rub us the wrong way. They have an in-your-face antagonism toward us. So, how do you care and love someone like that? It does not matter what you think of them.

They make no attempt to have love because they have no capacity for love. Without capacity for love, you do not have love. You may have a relationship, but without capacity, you do not have love. If you have no capacity, then you cannot have love toward those in the body of Christ.

Outwardly, we have a show of unity, and we wander about and shake hands and smile. However, without capacity for love, that is not unity, it is hypocrisy. Because there is no capacity for love, that unity cannot be sustained.

Churches split, often not on doctrinal grounds, but on personal grounds. Most people believe in peace and unity and think that is a good thing; they think it is a nice thing to have. How to achieve that status and mental attitude can be entirely another matter. God has designed a specific inward and outward approach to true unity, which is doctrine circulating in your stream of consciousness.

Bobby is about to go esoteric on us, giving us some human viewpoint. There are many ways that people seek unity and peace. There is one great area of the human race and a very popular method to get this peace and unity, and it derives from the humanism of eastern religions (Hinduism, Taoism). All of these religions are entirely humanistic. Today, this is often seen as being new age religion. Lots of people like to cobble together all these difference pieces of religions and synching them up and trying to make a religion out of it. There is no such thing as thesis and antithesis and synthesis.

There was a Maharishi Yogi. This is not the same as the exercise unless there is another aspect of so-called spirituality associated with it. This is one of the fasting growing of the eastern religions. There is an anti-Christian aspect to mystical yoga, which includes transcendental meditation.

This is the human viewpoint unity. 2Thess. 3:16: May the Lord of peace Himself grant you peace in every circumstance. There are many attempts to achieve the peace of the Bible through TM. True peace comes from spiritual advance. The guard of your heart is a metaphor for a military guard. The purpose of any guard in wartime is to prevent a hostile invasion. It protects the mind of internal corruption and it keeps the right lobe focused. The peace of God which passes all understanding...

TM is a humanistic attempt to achieve what only God can provide. The Maharishi Yogi introduced TM to the west and it did not really quite make it, so he then presented it as a non-religious practice, so a person could make full use of his mental potential, and, at the same time to achieve peace in body and soul. In this way, it was well-received. Everyone wants greater peace. If you can find peace and enlightenment in yourself through this meditation (which is the religious aim), then you can find peace with all others, as you are united with all the universe. If you are told to meditate, that meditation is on yourself, looking inside oneself for introspection. This is done by a defining feature called a mantra, repeating a word or a syllable which is to have a special, vibrational quality. Many of these turn out to be the standard names of these various deities, and it ends up being a religious Hindu practice in disguise. Who attempts to turn you from Bible doctrine by deception? That is exactly what Satan's practice is in this world. You are repeating the names of gods of the Hindus, and not even realize it. Israel went into the Temple and called upon gods of various types. The Yogi calls a mystical experience, a trance-like effect, when you begin to enter into what they will call a god-consciousness. This is not God-consciousness from the Bible, but it is a mystical experience which will not turn you toward the True God. This is, instead, an altered state of consciousness and enlightenment becomes a very subjective experience. You look for enlightenment inside of yourself. There is an attempt to eliminate all conscious thought; your mind becomes empty, and that produces a vacuum, and the mind is now open to any subjective thought, and that is what is called god consciousness. This is the exactly opposite of seeking an objective God outside of yourself. In this negation of the mind, God becomes an abstraction, not a reality. God is not a personal God in this religion. He is not a Person in TM.

When Bobby tells us to mediate on God during the Communion, we are speaking of a true God. God is reduced under TM to being a part of nature, the universe, creation. In this altered state, the natural and the supernatural merge into one substance called god. Whatever the supernatural is, that is to merge with the natural, and that is what god is. That is the way it works. There is no God in those eastern religions. Christian God-consciousness is exactly the opposite. We do not empty our minds, but we fill it. Some people reach God consciousness by looking up in the stars and wondering, how did that all happen? We are looking for an Author, for a Creator. For the eastern religion type, that creation, that nature becomes god.

God is a Personal God

1. God is a Person; He has tangible essence and attributes, just as a person does. He is just, He is love, He is righteous. There is not this ambiguous universe or nature; nature does not love you.
2. God creates, which is a personal activity. Real people create. He transcends all He creates.
3. God does works. God the Holy Spirit teaches us.
4. God provides salvation through the Lord Jesus Christ. Jesus became human; it does not get more personal than that. God in man in One Person. Jesus Christ is God and humanity.
5. God has personal titles in the Scripture.
6. God is described in the Bible with personal pronouns, like He, His.

7. He has mentality, self-consciousness and will. People have plans, God has plans. That is a personal God, even though He is Spirit.

Compare the Pantheistic god with the True God

1. Pantheism teaches that God and the universe are one and the same.
2. God is not seen as personal. That includes religious yoga and TM. Much of what comes from that exercise is with people who have been trained in eastern religion.
3. God is seen as the universe and that God is found in all matter, in every part of the universe. He permeates the universe and He is found in all matter. However, the eastern god does not transcend the universe, as he is the universe.
4. The eastern god is in everything, including ourselves, and this is called god is in the rock. He is nature, universe, a creative force, but not personal.
5. Since he is in everything, then in that sense, we are all seen as part of the divine, as we are all a part of matter. Not a personal god, but a subjective, introspective god; an idea.
6. As a pantheistic view, the transcendental meditation of yoga teaches the essential oneness of all reality.
7. Through this religious yoga, man has the possibility through his mediation to unite with the divine. Our self is united with the higher self of the universe, but not with a personal god; and we are united with the divine who is already in us. This is not at all being united with God in Christ. We are a part of the universe and we are therefore part of the universe, and it comes out to be a totally subjective experience by which we create our own god. Every eastern religion is a great deception; it is all the cosmic system.

Lesson #800

1Cor. 12:26 November 5, 2008

Wednesday

Are you happy today because you are not happy with the status quo of the nation, or that he has promised to give a fair amount to everyone, or are you happy he is Black? Those who are concerned about it, because the presidential elect has no record or because redistribution of wealth approach or his radical associations or because you are not sure what kind of change is in the wind. The country is divided on these issues like we have not been divided since 1861. If either attitude describes you, where have you placed your hope and where have you placed your focus?

Bobby is going to review some of the principles which he taught previously. For the believer in Jesus Christ, true hope is always found in relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ. Our confidence must always be first in Him and in His Word; in His iron-clad promises to all of us. In the stability of the Christian life. We are here for His benefit. We must remain convinced of the power of His might.

Many Biblical examples came to Bobby's mind, but one example which popped out of the power and control for His people and His client nation was the account of the Rabshakeh in 2Kings, the Assyrian Crisis. The Rabshakeh was the chief spokesman for the King of Assyria, Sennacherib, and he threatened the destruction of the Jews. The Jews were intimidated. This army was the most powerful army at that time, but they refused to capitulate. 2Kings 18:19: [And the Rabshakeh said to them, "Say to Hezekiah, 'Thus says the great king, the king of Assyria: On what do you rest this trust of yours? What hope can you possibly have? You are facing the greatest army in the world. 2Kings 19:6: Isaiah said to them, "Say to your master, 'Thus says the LORD: Do not be afraid because of the words that you have heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have reviled me. No man is the hope of the world. "You alone are God." These words reflect God's promise to His people. Despite all circumstances, God is still on His throne. He is the deliverer. He is the one in Whom our confidence resides. His Word is our absolute hope and confidence. As with Israel, He will not leave you or forsake you; nor will He abandon His client nation. He is our rock. 2Kings 19:33–34: \[By the way that he came, by the same he shall return, and he shall not come into this city, declares the LORD. For I will defend this city to save it, for my own sake and for the sake of my servant David.\]\(#\)" Because of one man and a promise which God made, that is heritage impact. 2Kings 19:35–36: \[And that night the angel of the LORD went out and struck down 185,000 in the camp of the Assyrians. And when people arose early in the morning, behold, these were all dead bodies. Then Sennacherib king of Assyria departed and went home and lived at Nineveh.\]\(#\) The election is over and Obama is our president; it is not about him; it is our attitude and where our trust lies. Where is our attitude. Hope is not found in any new political leadership nor in any new beginning in government. In spite of the best of intentions, no one will be pleased with everything that a president does. Supporters and nonsupporters will have problems, no matter who it is. The "I told you so's" will jump, and the dream of change will turn to the human inability to bring about real change, no matter who the political leader is.](#)

Eccles. 1:9–11: What has been is what will be, and what has been done is what will be done, and there is nothing new under the sun. Is there a thing of which it is said, "See, this is new"? It has been already in the ages before us. There is no remembrance of former things, nor will there be any remembrance of later things yet to be among those who come after.

A civilization rises from bondage to courage to spiritual faith, which leads to liberty to abundance and then the fall to selfishness and greed to complacency to apathy at the subversion of freedom, to dependence upon the government and man and from dependency back to bondage. There is nothing new under the sun. No political leadership can change this. Whatever our persuasion, with God, there is no variableness or shadow of turning. His plans and promises never change. All else is change. Where does our hope lie? With a political leader? "Thus says the Lord, cursed is the man who trusts in man and make flesh his strength." Hope must lay with Bible doctrine and divine viewpoint. We cannot depend upon politicians or political programs. Today, tomorrow, 4 years from now or 8 years from now, our strength is always in Jesus Christ.

Whether we agree with the end of the election or not, the process has been completed. We support and we defend our nation, but we keep our focus on the Lord. Government can solve some problems and it can protect us and it does certain things for us; but it cannot solve our problems; only the Lord can do that, and He is the only one for us to put our trust in.

Bobby compared the unity of the church with peace of individual believers and the popular idea of real unity and a human way of finding unity and peace. Bobby wondered if he should go the distance with the transcendental meditation thing. Bobby overheard a guy talking way too loud speaking about transcendental meditation.

Transcendental Meditation

1. It was presented as a practice designed for us to reach of full mental potential.
2. For us to reach a bit of peace and relaxation.
3. The unlying religious philosophy is, if you can find peace and enlightenment in yourself, which was its aim, then you can find peace an unity with all others.
4. Why is this true? TM unites us in harmony with the whole universe.
5. The unity of TM is accomplished by looking at oneself in introspection.
6. The mantra
  - a. A word or a syllable which is repeated because it has special vibrational qualities.
  - b. These words turn out to be the names of deities
  - c. The mantra calls upon these gods.
  - d. This is essentially idolatry as we have studied i1Cor. n 8:4
  - e. The mantra is a standard Hindu means of inducing a mystical
  - f. This is not the god consciousness which leads one to seek a personal God.
  - g. In TM, this simply means an altered state of consciousness to reach enlightenment. Enlightenment is a personal experience, not an objective revelation.
  - h. The goal of this altered state is to eliminate all consciously directed thought.
  - i. The purpose is to open the mind to any subjective thought.
  - j. This actually is a negation of the thought process. It is certainly not a desire to hear the gospel.
  - k. It is an increased reliance upon subjective feelings, which is a counterfeit of objective knowledge through the gospel.
  - l. In TM consciousness, God becomes an abstraction; not personal.
  - m. That measn that God is not personal. He does not exist in any eastern religion as person.
  - n. Since He is not a person, He has no intelligence or will.
  - o. He is reduced to a conception of the mind as related to the universe, to nature, to creation.

p.

In the altered state of consciousness, the natural and the supernatural merge into one substance called God. This is what many people are into, as well as many other aspects of eastern religion. Taoism, Buddhism, Shintoism are all religions which are like this.

Christianity

1. We do not empty the mind.
2. We fill the mind with questions about God, about eternity about salvation. We might recall what triggered a God consciousness in us.
3. We fill our minds with questions which can be answered concretely through the objective gospel and Scripture.
4. God, as Spirit, is described as being a person; He is not an abstract ethereal force.

How Do We Know God is a Person

1. God has essence. Omnisicenece, eternal, etc. He has attributes.
2. God creates. He also transcends His creation. Whatever we create is a personal activity.
3. God performs works like the Holy Spirit, Who teaches and mentors us. Teachers are persons.
4. God provides salvation through the Lord Jesus Christ, Who is a person; Who is also God.
5. God has personal titles like Father, Son.
6. He is described in the Bible by using personal pronouns.
7. He is never described as it or by some nebulous force.
8. He has vitality, will.

Like all mysticism, God there is seen as pantheistic

Pantheism

1. God and the universe are seen as the same.
2. God is not personal in pantheism. This is not a personal God; the colloquial saying is, "God is the rock"
3. God is in everything, including ourselves. As believers, we know that God is in us.
4. The concept is, we are all divine. We are all a part of the divine. We are all a part of matter. We personally are divine in that sense because the universe is divine and the force of the universe is divine.
5. It teaches the essential oneness of all reality.
6. So through TM, man can unite with the divine. If it teaches the essential oneness of all reality, then man can unite with the divine.

what Does this mean?

1. TM tries to identify the self with the higher self of the divine.
2. We are united with the divine who is in us. We discover ourself as divine as we meditate.
3. This boils down to self-worship.
4. This is not unity with a personal gGod. It is simply a personal experience.
5. Essentially, you have invented your own unity and peace, which is a counterfeit of the peace of God, which passes all understanding. This system is very self-centered. Self-awareness does not bring enlightenment or peace. You are actually searching the darkness of man, yourself. We are not divine but human, undependable and sinful. According to Tm, man is not really a sinner but just detached from the divine. He is part of the divine by becoming enlightened. This kind of enlightenment is truly arbitrary and subjective and in the mind of the seeker. One seeks the universe in himself. It is pure humanism, pantheism and mysticism.

Awe as part of the body of Christ, we are united with each other; we are united by objective truth, by our status in Christ. All else is humanism, depending completely upon God. In whom do you put your trust. In yourself, in people or in Jesus Christ?

1Cor. 12:26: And if one member suffers, all the members suffer with it. If one member is glorified, all the members rejoice with it.

Lesson #801

1Cor. 12:26 November 6, 2008

Thursday

Bobby has been using TM to explain what the cosmic system is all about. We strive for unity among small groups or in national life or even internationally, but unity in the human sense is impossible. The only place where we can find true unity is in the body of Christ. As we grow to spiritual maturity, we begin to operate in the realm of our spiritual gift. But TM is that same attempt if not on the same scale.

Human unity is attempted with such things as TM. It is a counterfeit of what we already have in the body of Christ.

Transcendental Meditation

1. TM (Buddhism, Shintoism, Taoism) is an exercise in contemplating and reflecting to relieve stress, to bring peace to the inner man, thereby having a positive unifying effect upon society. TM was designed to have a unifying effect upon all society.
2. In TM, the practitioner contemplates himself.
3. TM's view of God is pantheistic. It is a form of perception about God. It comes from the Greek παντα, which means all.
4. It assumes that God and the universe are one and the same. This is a description of Satan's counterfeit of God. This is how he distorts the minds of the human race. It is a great example of it.

5. The pantheistic God of TM permeates the universe. In fact, it is all of the universe. That is where the name figures into it.
6. This god is found in all matter, in every part of the universe. It may sound like omnipresence, but this is not His attribute of omnipresence, as that belongs to a personal God. Our God is imminent and transcendent. He is a part of human history; He controls human history. He is present in all creation, all places everywhere, but not as the universe. He is transcendent over the universe.
7. Pantheism defines god as the essence of the universe. Not having personal essence or transcending the universe is their idea.
8. The pantheistic god is nature itself, an impersonal intelligence, not a personal God. This goes right along with evolution, where the universe essentially created itself.
9. All that is in the universe is divine. God is in everything including ourselves. He is a part of everything. He is a part of the stars and all of the universe, because all of it is matter.
10. In that sense, we are all divine. This does not mean that we are indwelt by God or united with Christ. We are all divine in the pantheistic sense. This is an insidious copy of Christianity.
11. The concept of god consciousness is merely consciousness of self. It is self-consciousness and not god consciousness. The meditation on ourselves is discovering this god within us. Self-awareness through meditation on self. That is the epitome of subjectivity.
12. Self-awareness is achieved through the mantra of meditation. That is the repetition of sounds and syllables to induce the mystical God experience. However, these names are actually the names of Hindu deities, and in this trance-like state, you are calling upon these deities, and you find god inside of yourself.
13. Through the mantra, one empties the mind of all things objective. In the Communion, we meditate upon Jesus Christ and His Person and work. That is the meditation on this objective. In this approach, we contemplate ourselves as a pathway to the divine. However, a lot of Americans buy into this. They want to cobble together their own god. They want their own god, so that they don't have to follow rules that they do not like. It is a easy way out. There are no problems if you are a god.
14. In this TM state, the mantra, the trance like state, it unites a person with the divine. We are united with the universe are one. "Om."
15. This is the very opposite of the true pathway to a true relationship with the divine. The true pathway is the work of the Lord on the cross. That is objective reality. You are not meditating upon yourself. Christ is God and we are united with Him through His objective work on the cross.
16. In comparison with our union with Christ, the mantra is an act of enlightenment without objective knowledge. At the same time, the mantra is an act of worship, packaged in a non-religious way, but it is still Hindu.
17. It is not worship of a personal God, but a god conjured from one's own imagination. That imagination can conjure up about anything. What you do find is a sin nature.

You find someone who needs something outside of himself or herself. That is god consciousness.

18. So what is salvation in this system of TM? It is accomplished by the realization through this introspective meditation that you are in union with a creative intelligence. Remember that the universe is a creative intelligence.
19. Since these people are all uniting with this impersonal god, this is...Satan is insidious, but people buy into this every day.

Here is the Payoff

1. A unity with self, the nebulous god of TM is entirely different from the united which comes from God in the body of Christ.
2. True unity and peace comes from uniting with Christ, a personal god with personal attributes. The unity is positional and experiential. When you believe in Jesus Christ you are placed in union with Christ, which is a position. We are all born again, we are born into a family. When we are born, we are in a family. Once we are genetically part of a family, we cannot go back and change it. Spiritual gifts are given to us at the moment of salvation, and as we advance, our spiritual gift comes into play. We are united with the body of Christ insofar as growing spiritually and using our gift, and we unify as one body. True unity and peace come from uniting with Christ.
3. God provides knowledge of Himself. That is what we are doing now. Bobby digs it out and presents it. Peace of soul and unity in the body of Christ, which is spiritual growth. Knowledge which is inculcated produces peace.
4. True enlightenment is meditation on oneself comes from repeating a mantra. This is based upon objective divine viewpoint, no human viewpoint or self-awareness. Bobby is comparing the spiritual life with all that is humanistic in TM. This is our spiritual life compared with Satan's counterfeit.
5. We do not find a subjective inconsistent capricious personalized God consciousness.
6. The basis of all enlightenment is divine viewpoint. In Bible doctrine we find God. Only doctrine defines Who God is. We do not find God in ourselves.
7. Enlightenment and a functioning unity is a tangible result of Bible doctrine circulating in your soul. Spiritual enlightenment and spiritual growth comes by knowledge of Bible doctrine. So you can only be enlightened about God and unified in the body through doctrine in the soul, never through meditation in yourself.
8. That requires implanting through the study of the Word of God the objective knowledge of God and not reflecting on yourself. When you understand Who God is and your imperfection, you discover who you really are. You are lost and helpless. There is no way to discover God no matter how you define Him.

Doctrine is absolute objective reality, versus all other humanism. It is never absolute because it is humanism, which is relative. Doctrine is absolute objective reality, because it is based upon an Object, God. Outside of Bible doctrine, everything else is deception.

We want to have all of these various things that we want to haul into Christianity. We have no way of knowing anything objective without knowing God's Word. With doctrine in your soul, you think entirely different from the rest of the world. It becomes painfully obvious because these people start with themselves. That makes things like TM quite dangerous. It is a part of the cosmic system and it is a purveyor of the doctrine of demons.

What separates Christianity from all other religions is grace; Christianity is not a religion, it is a relationship with God through Christ. That which is antithetical to Bible doctrine is the doctrine of demons. This is anything which is counterfeit or runs counter to the Word of God. Humanism is always against God. You begin to be able to recognize all of these things which are antithetical to God.

These cosmic things cannot be mixed with Christianity. They are not a part of your Christian experience. It is syncretism; it is taking two antithetical things and trying to mix them together. Stop trying to put all of this other stuff into Christianity. You are not operating in the body of Christ when you function in syncretism. For unbelievers, uniting with the cosmic system and a system like TM is how you get involved with doctrines of demons. Believers cannot be demon-possessed, but we can be demon influenced. Eastern religion in all of its forms is a conduit to demonism. It is a conduit for the occult. Bible doctrine in the soul is the only way to achieve peace, unity and having the same care for one another. Religion is always the devil's ace trump. Religion is the easiest way for Satan to trump God. In the name of God, Satan counterfeits God. Satan counterfeits salvation without grace. He does evil in the guise of good; he is disguised as an angel of light. Religion is his best weapon.

What is this unity between believers like? V. 26 is the mutual care of v. 25 in detail. If one member suffers, all of the members suffer with it.

1Cor. 12:26: And if one member suffers, all the members suffer with it. If one member is glorified, all the members rejoice with it.

Lesson #802

1Cor. 12:25 November 9, 2008

Sunday 1

Our individual gift functions within the body as a part of the corporate church, and this function moves the body forward and it glorifies Jesus Christ. The body must have forward movement. Each one of us is a part of the body of Christ. We move forward to the goal of the plan of God. It was God Who united together the body. Each member of the body was incorporated at the moment of faith alone in Christ alone. Every believer now has a position; we are all team members, some of us being more conspicuous than others. All spiritual gifts are important to the body of Christ. As we advance to spiritual maturity, our spiritual gift begins to operate effectively. Since God composed the body Himself and as believers continue to advance spiritually, there are specific results. V. 25 tells us that there should be no division in the body and that we ought to care for one another. The Corinthians need this doctrine because they are at each other's throats. Now they know exactly where they should be. If you just keep your mouth shut, you are not causing division; however, the second command is much more difficult, and cannot be accomplished simply by keeping your mouth shut. No divisions means no show of arrogance or jealousy. Those who seem to labor in anonymity were concerned about their station. Those who did not have the wonderful gifts of communication of any sort had an inferiority complex.

1Cor. 12:25: that there not be division in the body, but that the members might have the same care for one another.

In the function of their gifts, there was no care for the welfare of the others in the church. V. 26 tells us what mutual care is all about. And if one member suffers, all the members suffer with it. If one member is glorified, all the members rejoice with it. A team is built one member at a time; there is a draft and they build. God does not pick those who are most talented or most beautiful or anything else. No believer is left out; no believer is left behind. Being born again means that you are a member of this team. We as team members are subordinate to Christ. Every believer is positionally subordinate to Christ and experientially. We are united by our experience, our experience of Bible doctrine, and our experience of the same goal as everyone else. That is the manifestation of our unity. No divisiveness. That is what makes us part of one body.

1Cor. 12:26: And if one member suffers, all the members suffer with it. If one member is glorified, all the members rejoice with it.

Lesson #803

1Cor. 12:26 November 9, 2008

Sunday 2

We have been studying spiritual gifts and the concept of unity. People have all sorts of ideas of what it means to be unified. Some believe that we need to do things together, or like everyone, or think the same way in order to be unified. Now, there is a nugget of each one of these related to unity, but that is not the entire concept of unity. You can sit on your thumbs until you die and still go to heaven, if you have believed in Jesus Christ.

Some people say, "I don't want to give up my life, so I won't go to church or believe in Jesus Christ." There is only a kernel of truth to this.

The like-mindedness comes into play when we grow spiritually. This results in experiential unity. Positional unity would be the fact that we are all in Christ; unified first by our position in Christ and secondly by our spiritual advance.

V. 26: If one members suffers, then all members suffer; if one member is exalted, then the other members rejoice. This is talking about believers in this vicinity. This is talking about some public figures; they are part of the body of Christ. We are unified with them because we are a part of the body of Christ. We are growing together and functioning in our spiritual gift. One body and many members functioning together.

Suffering together will require some explanation. What is, one suffers and we all suffer. Present active indicative of  $\pi\alpha\sigma\chi\omega$  = to be affected by something [good or bad].

One Suffers/Many Suffer

1. when one member of the team is hurt, the entire team suffers. Team play is a good example of this.
2. As one member of the team is hurt, the entire team is affected.
3. If one suffers, all suffers. Examples can be dangerous here, if we try to overthink it, we can go astray. You hit the tip of your finger with a hammer; the pain is immediate and intense. The pain is localized, but the pain affect the rest of your body. In many ways, the entire body suffers with that finger. Radiation of pain; swelling; the body is partially incapacitated. The hand is not used as much because of the finger.

Bobby's home remedies. Poke a heated needle through the fingernail and let the blood come out.

Those with migraines just want to go to bed until everything is all over. This suffering affects the whole body.

Who does one person's suffering affect the most? Those who are closest to it. Family and friends. If one or the other is suffering or in pain, everyone else is affected. The unity of the body of Christ puts us close in the same way. One believer's suffering is everyone's suffering.

It is all about teamwork. When one suffers, we all suffer. When one remains in carnality or does not grow, it is not just individual disaster for that believer but it affects those around him. An illustration of this in a Democracy are those who voted for government handouts in the person of Obama. Your reversionism or neglect to advance has a corporate effect. A believer out of synch with the body of Christ has a spiritual gift which is out of synch. When one person does not advance to spiritual maturity, we all suffer. Being self-centered, you don't necessarily care about it. Our disregard of doctrine, reversionism affects everyone in your periphery because you are not functioning as a team member. That is a personal and a corporate defeat in the Angelic Conflict. This is when nations begin to destroy themselves from within. It all begins with us individually. Otherwise we fail. We stand together or we fall together. When one member suffers, we all suffer. There is a mutual suffering because of association. Believers can be influenced toward their own reversionism by friends who are already in reversionism. They can resist reversionism, but it is still an effect. We are not just observers; it affects us.

Ideally, we want to function like a well-oiled machine, like Texas Tech yesterday, 8 times with the ball and 8 scores. Good family members, when someone suffers, we are sympathetic and supportive and exhortative. Or, we can be refreshers of doctrine.

The best that you can do is to offer a doctrinal viewpoint. Don't tell them what to do, but live doctrine in your life.

Suffering for blessing has a profound affect, and it is not crazy.

Suffering for Blessing

1. Suffering for blessing is testing under pressure.
2. In spiritual adulthood, further growth often requires periodic suffering. You can make incredible gains, and then there is difficulties.
3. Suffering in this realm is not intended to hurt the believer. It is also for our blessing.
4. The intent of suffering for blessing is spiritual growth. We get a little application, and there is where we begin to learn and grow. In fact, this is how we learn in many cases. This is how we make certain gains in our spiritual life.
5. Doctrine is spiritual nourishment; suffering for blessing is exercise. Doctrine is the fuel and working out adds muscle to our doctrine. We can go out here and watch what the coach tells us to do, but we have to actually get out there and do it on the field, we are never going to get it.
6. Spiritual nourishment from doctrine and exercise of that doctrine increases inner strength. Increase of the utilization of problem solving devices. There is nothing like making gains in the spiritual life.

Now how does the believer handle this suffering for blessing?

1. suffering for blessing calls for endurance by using the resources of the spiritual life. We do not know how long it is going to last or from which direction it is coming.
2. It results in accelerating individual spiritual growth.
3. God does not administer suffering for blessing until you are qualified to handle it. You will not suffer beyond what you are able to bear.
4. There is also a corporate benefit for this suffering for blessing.

Corporate Effect

1. This suffering is a view of the grace and benevolence of God.
2. It is a manifestation of problem solving devices in action. You get to see what the grace of God can do in the life of someone else.
3. The corporate benefit is a demonstration of peace and stability in suffering which passes all understanding. You see the attitude of those suffering for blessing.
4. This is a peace and stability which is available to all believers through spiritual growth. You have heard about it and now you know where it comes from and how it operates.
5. When one is honored, we are all honored. In the Christian life, believers are honored for utilizing the grace of God. We glorify God by using the grace resources which He has given us.

1Cor. 12:26: And if one member suffers, all the members suffer with it. If one member is glorified, all the members rejoice with it.

Bobby is going back to deal with the last half of v. 25:

Unity of the Brethren

1. We are positionally united in the body of Christ. The very moment that we secure our eternal salvation, we become Body Inc. We share all that He is and all that He has. This is positional and we have that completely.
2. We must be experientially united, and this is done by advancing to spiritual maturity. Then we function with our spiritual gifts. The Corinthians are anything but united. They have only experienced the positional aspect of the body of Christ.

The ibg problem is, the Corinthians are not showing the care for one another.

How will it be corrected?

1. Many believers operating with diverse spiritual gifts operating as a team.
2. By utilizing these gifts, believers are in fact demonstrating care for one another. When you utilize the spiritual gift, you are, by default, caring for one another.
3. As the gifts function, so the body is served.
4. Care for one another begins with the spiritual life and with spiritual advance. It begins when we begin to advance spiritually. It also ends with spiritual life and spiritual maturity.
5. Caring for one another in the Christian life is about inner motivation and producing divine good. Charity is how most of the world thinks of caring for one another.
6. The essence of caring for one another is what goes on in your soul. Why do you care? What is your motivation for these actions? At times, you have affinity for those who surround you, like family and friends. However, outside of this, some people are involved in charity for self-serving reasons. "Look at me; I am so benevolent for what I do for others." Some are assuaging guilt because they see others in hardship. That is a right thing done in a wrong way. Wrong attitude, wrong reasons and wrong motivation means no accomplishing of divine good. This is not about being self-centered; it is about being properly motivated.
7. Motivation and the deed itself must be based upon His Word. God has designed the inward and outward caring.
8. Only that kind of caring actually glorifies God. All that we do ought to glorify to God. We are not out to glorify ourselves, which is, unfortunately, a large portion of the human race. Most people's motivation is self. Grace orientation is the proper motivation.
9. Operating with grace orientation is the secret to the right motivation for caring. As you grow up spiritually, you become more and more grace oriented. Being grace oriented is the proper motivation toward others. You are exhibiting grace which was given to you. Now you can begin to care for one another. The mechanics is utilizing our spiritual gift. If you think that you are hot stuff because you are performing these great works of charity, then you need to examine yourself.

10. Caring or charity is accomplished by using your spiritual gift, which is service to others; it is service to the body of Christ. Each one of our gifts demonstrate our care for one another, and for the welfare of one another.
11. Those spiritual gifts operate effectively when we advance and gain the right motivation through grace orientation and living the spiritual life. This is how the body of Christ is unified in caring for one another. It is not some mushy, self-aggrandizing, humanitarian thing.

1Cor. 12:25: that there not be division in the body, but that the members might have the same care for one another.

You might not even know someone else in the congregation; so, how do you suffer when everyone else is suffering? Spiritual gifts are service to the entire body. When one person is out of synch with the rest of the body, he is a drag to the rest of the body. That is an individual disaster for that believer. It affects all the rest around him. When volitional responsibility fails and one does not advance, there can be mutual suffering, even if you do not even know that person. If you are not advancing spiritually, then your gift is not functioning, and that means you are not pulling your weight. That is the team concept and the unity of the body of Christ. When we sit in the penalty box or on the bench, the whole team suffers. His suffering; we as advancing believers all suffer.

Bobby has to function as a pastor-teacher; and the rest of the body can suffer if we are not advancing spiritually. Refreshing someone else is caring for one another. Suffering for one another, we care for one another. You do not have to seek someone out to help them. Utilize your spiritual gift. Just stay in fellowship. Keep moving. All under the motivation of the filling of the Holy Spirit and Bible doctrine applied to whatever circumstances we find ourselves in. This is how we respond when one member suffers.

Similarly, when one member of the body receives honor, we all receive that honor. We are not honored in the Christian life for what we do, because it is the grace of God working through us which brings true honor. The execution of the spiritual life elevates God's power and work through us; that is the source of honor.

How am I honored when someone else is honored executing the spiritual life?

1. When one member is honored, God's grace is in focus.
2. All honor is given to the grace of God as He works in believers. Our honor comes from His grace. It is like a soldier in battle, a soldier who demonstrates the greatest of valor above and beyond the call of duty; he brings honor to his unit and to his country and he is honored for it.
3. Anytime God's grace is elevated, then the entire team is elevated.
4. We are all elevated because we are all members of the same team, where the fundamentals of grace is honored.
5. We are all recipients of His grace, whether we are grace oriented or not. We will receive God's grace whether we recognize it or not.

6. For all believers, the honor of grace in one believer becomes a demonstration of God's grace to all believers. Therefore, it is a blessing to the entire body.
7. When one is honored by the grace of God, we are honored by the grace of God. It demonstrates what God's grace does for each one of us. A medal of honor recipient also makes his unit honored as well.

This is in contrast to the individual believer, like those in Corinth, who brag and are arrogant about their own efforts and accomplishments. Honor in the body means the benefit of one is to the benefit of all. When you recognize the grace of God you are honored for it. It is not about you. Therefore, those other members are honored as a part of that unit. It is like a family—we are a family—and if one member of a family is honored, we are all honored. If we have children, and these children do something great.

Some people do not even recognize that they are being honored by God; that they are being blessed as a part of the body of Christ. God's plan is corporate as well as individual. If one person is singled out for an honor, that singles out the team for honor. You either are elevated as a team member or you are disgraced as a team member.

An example from the physical realm. If a body builder enters and wins a contest, it is because the individual parts of his body are found to be better than those of his opponents. The judge looks at the various individual parts of the body, and makes a determination. The more members of his body which are developed, the more likely he will win. That individual part or parts of the body bring honor to the body as a whole.

This is a point that the Corinthians must understand. No one in the body is denigrated because someone has a gift which is functioning. It is never about people honoring individual believers; it is all about the Lord honoring each one of us. We may never hear from others, "What a great job." We are all a part of the grace plan of God. We are a team; each gift as it functions honors the entire team. Paul has done something in this chapter up to this point. He has defined unity through the spiritual gifts.

1Cor. 12:26: And if one member suffers, all the members suffer with it. If one member is glorified, all the members rejoice with it.

1. Paul revealed the results of unity.
2. He has depicted the manifestations of unity.
3. Now Paul looks the Corinthians straight in the eyes and pronounces the solution to their divided circumstances. This solution will complete the dissertation of chapter 12. Vv. 27–31a does this.

Diversity is how God designed the body. Gifts do not work separate from other gifts. There are all of these other gifts; so why are you so hung up on this one particular gift?

1Cor. 12:27–31: And you are Christ's body, and members in part. And God placed some in the assembly: firstly, apostles; secondly, prophets; thirdly, teachers; then works of power; then gifts of healing, helps, governings, kinds of languages. Are all apostles? All prophets? All teachers? All workers of power? Do all have gifts of healing? Do all speak languages? Do all interpret? But zealously strive after the better gifts. And yet I show you a way according to excellence:

Lesson #805

1Cor. 12:27 November 13, 2008

Thursday

Summary to Date

1. The unity of the body of Christ.
2. The diversity of each of the members of the body of Christ.
3. The mutual dependence on one another as members of the team.
4. The great importance and honor goes to the weaker member rather to the stronger member; i.e., the less conspicuous member. The greater honor goes to them.
5. The individual aspects of the gifts defines the entire body. All gifts are important.

This has tremendous application to us.

What v. 27 means

1. Each spiritual gift of each member is a critical part of the team. Not one person is left out.
2. Each spiritual gift determines the position of a player on the team. We are not all the same position on the team.
3. Each player is a necessary part of the whole team.

A football team illustrates this well. There are 11 men on the field at any given time from each team. Bobby describes the team members. In both formations, the down linemen are the most inconspicuous, but these are the guys who are quite important. Everyone knows who the quarterback is and the line backer. The down linemen are not flashy or spectacular. They are big and they spend most of the game beating one another to death struggling for dominance, and most of the time, no one knows their names. However, you cannot run or pass without them doing their jobs. There must be a scheme of blocking and no yardage is gained if the team does not do their job. If the line can't hold them out, or if the linebacker cannot be contained, etc., they cannot win. Bobby watches the line play; his dad would take binoculars to a game and watch the line, but that is where you see the game won or lost. That is where the real game happens. The team to bet on is the one whose line is winning. The quarterback and the linebacker are the ones who will be talked about. Without the blocking linemen, the team doesn't move.

In any case, these linemen are often unappreciated and unknown, but the team does not work without them. Whatever your spiritual gift, we are all involved. We are all necessary for team play. Those who make the big plays and get all the praise. Like a football team, each member is dependent upon one another. Each spiritual gift is an integral part of the team. Our team is Christ on earth, the body of Christ. We have our individual battles to fight and this is all stated in Eph. 6:10–18. However, the church has an overall combat mission defined by each gift. Each one of us taken together make up the army of Christ. We are involved in the battle of the entire body. As an individual goes, so goes the combat unit.

The Corinthian team is losing badly. The teachers, the evangelists, the leadership; in Corinth, they all wanted to seem flashy. They wanted notoriety. Faith, exhortation, helps are those gifts which are not seen; and we cannot be noticed, but those with non-flashy gifts are just as important.

In Corinth, the linemen are tired of not getting enough recognition, so they have decided to stop doing their gifts. That is dissension within the team. When one member suffers, we all suffer, regardless of what our position is. Paul has to correct this feeble and impotent team, a team bringing shame to Jesus Christ.

He begins by naming some of the team positions. Paul's point is, God has given some of these gifts. Who can say they have a better gift when all of these gifts are given by God.

1Cor. 12:27: And you are Christ's body, and members in part.

Paul lists the gifts, putting tongues at the end.

Paul lists the Apostle first

1. Apostles were the vehicles for the divinely inspired doctrine of the Church Age. The Church Age had just begin and the Apostles were appointed from the very beginning to kick off the Church Age.
2. This gift was temporary; it was withdrawn; and the gift retired with the death of these Apostles.
3. Even though their gift was temporary, while they were in existence, they provided the permanent doctrine upon which the church was established.
4. That gift was given only to the original 11 disciples + Paul.
5. At one time or another, all of the Apostles demonstrated the use of the spectacular gifts. They performed miracles, they healed, they prophesied, and these many gifts established their authority during that age.

Prophets

1. The prophet gave a message from God to believers.
2. In the Church Age, the gift of prophet was designed for the immediate edification of first century believers.
3. This gift existed to inform a local body of bles. It was not intended for the entire nation of Israel. This is one way in which it differed from the Old Testament function.

4. Sometimes the prophecies which these prophets gave were included in the New Testament and sometimes they were not.
5. Some were not pertinent because they only had to do with that particular moment in time.
6. The first century of the church was a unique time with unique needs. This doctrine which was being prophesied had never been known before. It was something entirely new; the Church Age itself was entirely new. No one in the Old Testament had a spiritual gift.
7. The dispensation of the church was being defined by the Apostles. They were the key gift in definition and inspiration of Scripture. But prophecy also had a place in revealing mystery doctrine. When these prophets went throughout the world, it gave a wider distribution of Church Age doctrine. They did carry the authority of the Word of God with them.
8. This gift also disappeared in the first century after the condition of the Canon.

Bobby is going to prove that none of these gifts exists any more—the miracles, tongues, prophecy, etc.

What is the purpose of prophecy?

1. It communicates information relating to practical things to the first century church. Who knows what they talked about? Applications of individual church problems, the structure of the church. Practical information which may not be necessary for us today.
2. A benefit for the Holy Spirit revealing mystery doctrine for a specific time and place during which it was needed.
3. This implies special wisdom from the Holy Spirit into previously unrevealed truths.
4. Prophecy could also include a better ability to communicate and apply that wisdom. No one has this gift today. He put His knowledge in writing and provided pastor-teachers for all of us. The prophet got it straight; Bobby gets it from the Word via the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit.

The prophet got a lot of attention and some got jealous and some prophets got pretty arrogant about it. This is why Paul is writing this. There are a lot of different gifts and each one has a position on the team.

The Gift of Teaching

1. Teaching is a gift defined as the ability to explain truth which has already been received in writing.
2. Teachers include pastors, seminary professors, prep school teachers, women who teach (prep school, in their home, etc.). Bobby has a gift which puts him above other teachers. Bobby is able to go to the Bible and dig it out for himself from the original languages.

3. Contrary to popular belief, the church does not exist for amusement, for diversion, for entertainment, for leisure. Nor is the church for a place of rituals. Nor is it a place of social life. Or a place of athletics or pageants or musical extravaganza.
4. The teacher and his teaching of doctrine is the lifeblood of the believer. Nothing supercedes teaching for the advance of the individual believer. When other things supercede the teaching of doctrine, the body is out of synch.
5. Teaching also unites the body of Christ. As you are taught, you advance to spiritual maturity and you begin to use your spiritual gift.
6. It is only the communication of Bible doctrine by the teacher which serves this purpose. That is the only way. You can hear musical extravaganzas until you are blue in the face, and it gets you nowhere spiritually. Social life, rituals, pageants, etc. gets you nowhere spiritually. Many churches put these programs ahead of teaching.
7. This type of teaching is unique to the church and can be found nowhere else. The teaching of doctrine can only be found right here. All of these other activities, can be found in other places. They are not the primary purpose of the church, the body of Christ.

That world of humanists and human viewpoint types sometimes becomes an ordeal. Nobody thinks like you do. No one around you have divine viewpoint and it makes you somewhat lonely. It is not the secular world that is conducive to your spiritual well-being. That secular world is loaded with only one thing—human viewpoint.

Bobby is not saying that our friendships in the secular world have to end, but they should not be primary in your life. In the church is where the spiritual gifts operate for the good of the body. You cannot find them in the workplace, in some pageant somewhere. You find them in the church.

The Word of God is very simple in many ways, but there are also many complex doctrines as well. It is the Word of God which is God-breathed, and it is profitable for correction and instruction. The key to this is teaching. But so many churches have so many other programs in which they indulge. Nowhere else can this be done. If you need to go to some other church and hear a Christmas pageant, that is great.

1Cor. 12:28: And God placed some in the assembly: firstly, apostles; secondly, prophets; thirdly, teachers; then works of power; then gifts of healing, helps, governings, kinds of languages.

1Cor. 12:27–28 November 16, 2008

Sunday 1

We are on the home stretch of 1Cor. 12. From v. 27 to the end, we have a summation of all that has gone before; we are Christ's body and individually members of it.

Each gift is a necessary part of the whole team; there are no exceptions. Each one of us has a different assignment as we go through life. Each person on a football team, whether a lineman or a quarterback or a pass receiver or a lineman, they are all dependent upon one another for team victory. You cannot operate any time without all of these players working in synch, and so it is with the body of Christ. Some members of the team are clearly out front. There are visible gifts and essentially invisible gifts (invisible to us, but not to God). We depend upon each other because we each have a spiritual gift and that gift serves the whole body of Christ. Each gift is indispensable to the whole body. No gift stands alone and no gift is unimportant. We are a critical part of the team body of Christ. No one functions by themselves.

Some of the Corinthians believed themselves to have a gift which stood above all other gifts, and that is the gift of tongues. They all value the high-visibility of the team, and they see themselves running down the field, breaking free from the other team, and the crowd going wild. Everyone wants attention; everyone wants a gift which is visible. Some give a lot of money and expect attention for it. Some are pastors and teachers and they feel as if they should have more deference because they are more visible. They see other gifts as being not as important, that is their problem. If you see the linemen as being unimportant, then you have no clue. We all serve the body of Christ. Earl Campbell was one of Bobby's favorite players, and he used to buy rolexes for all of his linemen at the end of each season. He never forgot who it was who made him a star and he thus gave him acknowledgment. Without his linemen, he was just another running back under a pile of the opposition's players. Paul is going to correct the divisiveness which is on that team. He will point out that there is more to the body of Christ than just a few visible gifts. The bottom line for the Apostle Paul is, there should be no arrogance or jealousy over God's given gifts. It is God who designed, God Who gives and God Who empowers these gifts. So, how can we brag? How can we feel inferior? Who can say that God favored anyone? God does not show favoritism. He does not show partiality.

This includes the Apostles, all of whom exercised almost every gift from God for that time period.

1Cor. 12:27: And you are Christ's body, and members in part.

Notice that Paul places the gift of languages last. There is a method to his inspiration. He wanted to downgrade that which the Corinthians think is pretty important. Their arrogant notions of their own self-importance is based upon a certain gift. Their egos are monumental and those egos must be deflated. We all have at least one gift, so why be inflated or deflated about something which God chose to do? We all have a place on the team.

These gifts are the linemen and Paul also puts special emphasis upon the quarterback and the running backs. These gifts are all listed together as gifts which God has given. These have already been listed before in vv. 8–10.

Bobby is going to summarize these gifts.

Apostles were foundational for the church. Paul who wrote all this great doctrine for the New Testament was the guy killing more Christians than anyone else. He was the Apostle to the Gentiles, the greatest one, and there were 12. The Apostles were mouthpieces for revealing the mystery doctrine of the Church Age. This doctrine had never been heard before. The Old Testament believers just dreamed about such doctrines. The Apostles spoke it and wrote it.

The pope is not an Apostles and no one else in any other church is an Apostle. They introduce the church and the mystery doctrine, and that is completely contained in the Bible. Every gift which is necessary for us to advance to spiritual maturity is given by God.

This gift was temporary, but they provided all of the permanent doctrine upon which the church was based. The only reason we know anything about this subject is that God the Holy Spirit provided this information in the New Testament.

Don't words pass away? Don't books fall out of print? Sure. But this is not just some book. The Bible has survived the centuries. It has been suppressed in every possible way. Translators were often killed and massacred. Kings and princes all over Europe have attempted to suppress the words of the Bible. These are the words of God.

The 2nd gift is prophets, and they declare a message from God to believers. The Old Testament prophets are different from the New Testament prophets. The New Testament gift of prophecy was designed for the immediate edification of contemporary believers of the 1st century A.D. Their messages were designed for individual believers; the Old Testament prophets spoke to the nation Israel or Judah. The OT prophet would tell where Israel was going or they would warn of discipline to come. They foretold 586 B.C. when Nebuchadnezzar would come into Jerusalem and destroy it. Most importantly, they foretold of the Messiah. The OT is filled with passages about the Messiah to come. In any case, they spoke to the entire nation of Israel.

New Testament prophets were called upon to more quickly teach the New Testament doctrines and many of them were not even writers of Scripture. Only a few of the Apostles are known about. Most of them are unknown. Some of them were writers of Scripture; and some of them were writers of Scripture. The prophets were aides to the Apostles. The Apostles could not be everywhere, so the prophets spoke to those in the church. The church had begun but doctrine of the church had not yet been disseminated.

Peter was not a scholar by any means, but he communicated doctrine in his own words. Paul was quite learned by contrast. He could write in great long thoughts. John was a great thinker who used a very limited vocabulary. We might think of Hemmingway here.

Prophecies could also include practical applications. They applied this doctrine to 1st century churches, which would be unknown without the written canon. They spoke about local church government and local problems. These were new churches and never before had a church been formed. These were itinerant prophets traveling from church to church.

They were able to tell the future as well. However, this gift was never presented for individual fortune telling. A prophet did not every do this. The prophets were not spiritists.

That gift was used extensively. They were foundational to the church according to 1Cor. 2:20.

In some ways, the gift of prophecy is similar to the gift of pastor-teachers. The pastor-teacher deals with the already-extant information from God (in the Bible). No one gets direct divine revelation. Those who claim to be prophets today are speaking straight from the devil or their own ego.

1Cor. 12:28: And God placed some in the assembly: firstly, apostles; secondly, prophets; thirdly, teachers; then works of power; then gifts of healing, helps, governings, kinds of languages.

Lesson #807

1Cor. 12:28 November 16, 2008

Sunday 2

The 3rd gift in this list is teachers. The final gift in this list is tongues. Teaching is a gift defined as the ability to teach truth. Bobby walked under the tower of UT when there was the Biblical verse, “You will know the truth and the truth will make you free.” (John 8:47). The truth is the Word of God. The truth has already been placed in writing. Bobby’s entire life deals with the Bible and he spends countless hours in the Word of God digging out truth. That is his gift, a half of it. The other half is standing up and communicating what he has learned.

Some people say, just read your Bible, and that is fine for basic Bible knowledge. Teaching, however, is a gift for expounding Bible doctrine and for spiritual growth. The Bible is God’s Word. It has one meaning, and that is the meaning that God intended for us to understand. Now, some people just see the Bible as literature and it just speaks to you in a subjective way. However, the Bible is an objective literature.

Whichever version of the Bible you read, you are not equipped without the gift of pastor-teacher, to dig out the truth of the Bible. That is not the way that God intended it. Teacher is designed to interpret and to teach the Bible. If we could all read the Bible and get what we needed to get, then why would we need a pastor-teacher? You can read your Bible, but do not think that you will get all of the meaning out of it that you were meant to get. There are other teachers besides the pastor-teacher; there are teachers in the prep school. Bobby can teach teens (he taught them for 10 years), but he could not teach 4th graders. They would not understand him and he would not understand them. The primary purpose of the church is teaching, and building up the body. All other activities like pageants, musical extravaganzas, etc. are all secondary and can be found in all other places. Only the pastor-teacher gift can be found in the body of Christ. Churches have, unfortunately, become centers for all of these other activities. Christian community activities are worthwhile and it is okay to enjoy other believers in a socially connected life. Nothing wrong with this, and to get away from the secular, human viewpoint world in which we are forced to exist. We are in the world, but we are not of the world. As a believer in Jesus Christ, we are separate from the world. It is not the secular world which is conducive to your spiritual growth. Some of your best friends may be secular friends, but the most intimate associates coming from that realm will influence your spiritual life. You must seek out like-minded believers with divine viewpoint. The influence of human viewpoint as you advance to spiritual maturity is a deterrent to your spiritual advance. Bobby lived in this world and he was separated from Berachah for decades. It can have an influence. Close, intimate associations affect you. Unbelievers can only have human viewpoint. In the church, is where the gifts operate. When Christian community is presented. Many churches today present the Christian community as being the major draw for assembling as a body. This is twisted and it defeats the primary purpose of a church, which is teaching doctrine.

There have been 4 pastors at Berachah? The teaching of the Word of God has always been the emphasis.

The rest of the program stuff is superfluous. You can go to enjoy a Christmas pageant or go to see music at some church. It does not take the church to do this, but the church is the only place where we can get Bible teaching. Teaching is what every believer needs to advance. Unfortunately, the preponderance of churches in America do not see it that way. It is very sad and they do not get anything.

the 4th gift is miracles, and often when we are sick or someone we love is ill, we want a miracle. This is a supernatural phenomenon and done directly by God or through an intermediary, a human agent, which is the person with this gift. For the intermediate agent, this only occurred in the Church Age through a human agent. When miracles occur in the New Testament, these were acts of God. It is God Who chooses to accomplish these things. A gifted person with the authority or the ability to perform miracles at their own discretion. It is always God's miracle, not Paul or John's miracle. It is not me, it is God. Why didn't the Apostles just go all over the countryside doing miracles? Miracles were not the issue or that gift; the issue is God and Jesus Christ. The miracle gift was a credential. This was a passport. Before there was a written canon, they person with the gift of miracles could perform a miracle and get a hearing.

Today, the church is formed and the canon is in writing. The key is Jesus Christ and Bible doctrine, not miracles.

Healing is a person with the gift, who cures someone by the power of God. This is not a gift that some doctor has. This gift was of the 1st century where God works directly through the one, and he does this on the spot. Satan can heal. Today, God no longer works through intermediaries his own gift of healing. None of them have the gift of healing. This was another temporary gift with the credentials of healing in order to present the gospel or divine truth. If curing illness was what was important, then they would have gone through every hospital and every slum and healed every single person. However, they did not do this and we do not have this gift anymore.

One of the less spectacular gifts is the gift of helps. This is a lineman gift, often a person who works in anonymity. Helps means helpful deeds. This person often works one-on-one. He makes his talents available to someone who has a need. There are plenty of people who help, simply out of obligation. This spiritual gift is a compulsion. You cannot wait to do it. It is a part of the fabric of your being. It is above and beyond mere assistance. This is not necessarily a people-centered gift, but it can be used to make training aides for young people.

The 7th gift is administration, which may or may not involve a leadership gift. This is someone who deals with some of the nitty gritty in a church. They might manage or direct others in a church. One who manages or directs other in church government. A local church cannot run without this gift of administratin. Berachah could not run without them.

You do not know Bobby's administrative assistant. These are things which Bobby is not going to do and she takes care of these things.

The gift of languages means that a person can speak another language without previous teaching. It was quite impressive and the person who spoke in tongues could undertand themselves. They could speak the language with no previous training and it was intelligible to the hearers, and they had all the vocabulary necessary to present the gospel and doctrine in another language. They could teach and evangelize in a different language during the 1st century. If you could speak in tongues, it wrapped up a gift. It had prophecy involved, and teaching, so you could do these things as well. With this gift, you were hot stuff. The Apostles spoke in tongues and that put you right there with them.

We will spend time in the next 2 chapters with this gift, but there is no speaking in tongues today. So often people who speak in tongues do exactly what the Corinthians are doing; they do it because it is spectacular, it draws a big crowd, it fills up the coffers, and it brings glory to them. With doctrine in your soul, you are much closer to God than some phoney speaking in tongues. Miles closer.

If some do not block for Bobby, he is going to be under the biggest pile we have ever seen. These spiritual gifts identify us and our spiritual position. These Corinthians should begin to understand that running backs need linemen to win. We are all in this together, individually and corporately.

The linemen who are being disparaged actually deserve more for their invisible working behind the scenes. The linemen should not resent the wide receivers who get all the glory. We are not here to glorify ourselves; we are here to glorify Jesus Christ. No gift should be overlooked or set aside as unimportant.

We ar not isolated and independent. We are not a bunch of islands moving individually forward. We are a team. As we mature and move forward, we are a part of the greater body of Christ. Our gift is not to be selfishly used. These believers in Corinth and we need to get over ourselves and learn to play together as a team. If one suffers, all suffer; if one is honored, all are honored. Metaphorically, Paul makes this easy to understand. Once you hear it and believe it, it becomes ἐπίγνωσις in your soul.

1Cor. 12:28: And God placed some in the assembly: firstly, apostles; secondly, prophets; thirdly, teachers; then works of power; then gifts of healing, helps, governings, kinds of languages.

As we look at the final verses of this chapter, there is a final point, teamwork. Many gifts, one team, one objective in the spiritual life. There are 7 repetitive questions, the relevance and necessity of every gift on the team. Not every gift is listed in these 3 verses. The point is, there are many gifts, but one team. It was God the Holy Spirit Who designed all of these gifts. Who are we to question His choice? The distribution of those gifts should never be seen as showing any type of favoritism. They think that, if they get a certain gift, they are the most favored. And every believer without this gift is of a lesser stature.

Paul is using reverse psychology on all of these Corinthians. If there are all of these gifts; doesn't that mean that they are all necessary. Every one of these gifts are what could be called spectacular gifts; they are upfront gifts. Every one of these, except for a teacher, are no longer extant today. These gifts are so conspicuous, including teaching, that Paul named them as examples of gifts which are in contention. Wouldn't you rather be a healer or someone with the gifts of helps or mercies; wouldn't it be wonderful to speak in tongues to anyone you came across rather than having the obscure, quiet gift of giving. Paul makes reference to all of these gifts. What about tongues? What makes it so desirable? It is so highly visible and highly spectacular, that it would be most desirable. It combines many aspects of all the great gifts. It involves some teaching, and it is a miracle to speak in tongues, and there may even be some prophecy involved. If you needed to be somebody, you needed to have this gift of tongues. It is still a desirable gift today. Speaking in tongues even today is one of the most desired of the gifts. Everyone wants to see tongues in action. The irony is, this gift no longer exists. How wonderful it would be to speak doctrine in another language.

It was certain a desirable gift among the Corinthians. "Obviously, God has not favored you with this gift, but He has favored me. Too bad, so sad." Bobby can look back in the history of Berachah Church, and see what his father did. The Corinthians must see tongues as being right below the gift of Apostleship. The Church Age began on the Day of Pentecost, and there the Holy Spirit descended and they Apostles spoke in tongues. Everyone was aware of that. Here were the Apostles, the first ones. The Corinthians, 30–40 years later, still saw this as a gift of power and prestige. The gift of tongues, in spite of all of this, Paul write them, understanding full-well what their attitude was, and he places it last on the list.

Paul sets up somewhat of a hierarchy here, listing Apostles first and gifts of tongues last. We need to be able to see. Where would the whole body be if there was just one gift. If everyone had just one gift, the gift of tongues, the entire body is stagnant.

1Cor. 12:28: And God placed some in the assembly: firstly, apostles; secondly, prophets; thirdly, teachers; then works of power; then gifts of healing, helps, governings, kinds of languages.

Not everyone has these gifts. All of these gifts exist; but not every person has this or that gift. God gives all of these gifts with a specific purpose. The Holy Spirit did not distribute. There is a diversity of gifts. The Holy Spirit gave the right gifts to the right persons and matched them up for the whole body to function. He did not give the same gifts to everyone. Nor did God pick out a few believers as special to have some specific gift. We all have our gifts and that is the way that it is.

There is the negative μή. Each question anticipates a negative answer; these are rhetorical questions. Each gift would be independent of other members. There is a phrase in v. 27 which is the theme of the chapter. Individual members of the body. No one member is self-sufficient. They are not all prophets, they are not all miracle workers. Altogether, there is no member who is self-contained, even if some gifts are done separate from others. We all have a gift whether we like that or not. “If you are here and hearing doctrine, you will have to utilize it. Do you think the Lord is going to leave you alone? Do you think you are going to live without facing some circumstance to make you grow up?” God wants you to get it. Realize that it is all for your benefit.

Some in isolation also have spiritual gifts. Some of us have spent time in isolation. We might find ourselves in geographical areas where there is no one in that area with any doctrinal orientation. The body is still in support and supported by individual members. As an example, doctrine is made available to people all over the world that Bobby teaches. Bobby lived outside of Houston for 20 years, but he was supported by many wonderful ways. Missionaries and evangelists have been supported by many in wonderful ways. God can send other believers with other gifts into the lives of other believers at just the right time and just the right place. No one is truly isolated. There are those who will hear this lesson in a foxhole in Iraq, and he will recognize how he is supported in this way. At several points in Bobby’s exile from Berachah, he would run into someone and they would form a tape class. A conference was organized twice with the group in Hawaii. You come into contact with believers at just the right time at just the right moment. Some in isolation have opted to move to Houston. Some moved to Houston, even without having a job here. If this is where God wants you, then God can take care of you. Some are pastors today who just showed up and stayed for several years.

God never leaves us hung out to dry, especially when we are positive toward doctrine. If we desire to advance, the support will be there. Believers are never neglected in the body of Christ. We are still knit together no matter where we are in the diversity of gifts.

All gifts have their place, and that is what vv. 29–30 say.

1Cor. 12:29: Are all apostles? All prophets? All teachers? All workers of power?

1Cor. 12:30: Do all have gifts of healing? Do all speak languages? Do all interpret?

There should have been a break in this verse, the latter half going to the next chapter. To overcome these divisions, Paul tells them to desire the better gifts. What is love? The proper motivation.

This is a strange statement. Paul makes this point that we all have equal value in the body of Christ, regardless of the gift; and then Paul says, there are greater gifts. This seems to be counter-productive. Seems like the Corinthians could stand up and say, “Here is what Paul said, so we were right.” Paul does conclude that there are greater gifts. He made the point to say that there is equal value in the body of Christ. Can there be equal value while others have different gifts. This is not a contradiction. Both are true. How can both be true?

Here is how it works

1. In the previous context, Paul was addressing the value of every member of the body of Christ as a team. That is every one of us. The team does not every believer has value to the entire body.
2. Every believer, regardless of what gifts he or she possesses, is an integral part of the whole body.
3. So, individual believers regardless of gift, are not being ranked here. Earnestly desire the greater gifts, but believers are not being ranked here.
4. Except for those who have seemingly less honor have more honor. That indicates the importance of every person on the team.
5. This verse refers to the gift themselves, not to the people.
6. Gifts, not people, not believers, have differing values, based upon their purpose and usage. Gifts, not people, have different values. There is no heirachy of ranking of believers, but there is such a thing when it comes to the gifts. We have to separate the people from the gifts.
7. For example, teaching doctrine is designed for the edification of all believers. What is being taught from the puppit is designed for everone here. The teaching of doctrine is foundational for our spiritual advance. The conclusion is, it would be of greater need for the whole body.
8. Doctrine is a universal requirement for the spiritual growth of all. We all need doctrine.
9. That makes the gift of teaching and pastor-teacher a gift of greater need for the body. It doesn't not make the person of greater value, ut the gfit.
10. Therefore, Paul is here addressing a hierarchy of gifts, but not the value of individual believers in their function within the body.
11. This is not about a hierarchy of believers based upon the possession of a more critical gift. We are all of great value, but certain gifts are of a greater value because they have a greater impact on more people or some have
12. Do not forget that all believers are members of the same team with indespensible functions.
13. Certain gifts do have rearer unpack upon the whole body.
14. This verse is about a priority of gifts, not a priority of believers. The Corinthians are using gifts to make a hierarchy of believers. There is no priority of believers. The greater gift are those which have a great impact for the body as a whole.

The gift of tongues is seen as the most important gift, so Paul needs to knock that down.

1Cor. 12:31: But zealously strive after the better gifts. And yet I show you a way according to excellence:

All gifts are not equally important for the whole body of Christ. Each member had his or her own critical part to play. There should be no divisions over a supposedly better gift. Every gift has a certain place in the overall function of the team. We do have the same gift at the moment of salvation. It is the gift of the Holy Spirit from eternity past. He made the decision before anything was in existence. He knew us in eternity past and He decided what gift we should have; it is right for us because He gave it to us.

We should not desire a gift which is not already ours. That is what some people in Corinth were already doing. The bottom line is, be content with what you have. Yet, there is this v. 31. It still says, earnestly desire the greater gifts. This verse is not contradictory to the rest of the chapter.

Why this verse does not contradict what has come before

1. This verse is not about believers. This verse is about spiritual gifts.
2. Spiritual gifts, not believers, have differing degrees of value in the function of the body.
3. The example, communication gifts have a higher degree of value than helps, mercy, faith, etc. Why? It seems contradictory
4. It is a higher degree of value because doctrine is a universal requirement for all believers to grow spiritually.
5. The gift of teaching is a gift of greater need for every individual member of the body. This is not about individuals being superior or inferior.
6. That gift of teaching has a greater overall impact on the full body of Christ by sheer volume. This does not reduce the importance of every individual in the body of Christ or our own individual spiritual gift. All believers are members of the team with indispensable importance for overall value.
7. Every believer has great value for the team; we are members, even though some of the individual gifts do not directly impact as large a number of the body. Bobby speaks to more people than we do, if we have the gift of exhortation.
8. So this verse is not about a hierarchy of believers. Because Bobby has a certain gift, that does not make him higher in the pecking order of believers. This is not what this verse is all about.
9. This verse is about a priority of spiritual gifts.
10. Certain gifts do have greater impact on the whole body. That is what makes them greater gifts.
11. The fact that there are greater gifts does not mean that there are lesser gifts.
12. Greater simply means wider ranging to more believers.
13. As you look at all of the gifts which have been listed, on to the first 3 bring doctrine to all.

That is why they are listed. Apostles, prophets, teachers. Each one is a communication gift. One gift is dropped to the bottom, the gift of tongues, also a communication gift. This is the greater gift and it is being used by others.

The mandate is, there should be no divisions in the body, but each should have care for one another. Don't desire tongues; that is at the bottom of the list. This is designed to impact these believers. What they are doing is absolutely wrong and it contradicts what chapter 12 has been teaching. There are no inferior and superior believers based upon the possession of this or that gift. That is not caring for one another. To refute this idea of superior of inferior.

Jealous, self-centered, arrogant believers are at the heart of this matter. Paul is going to slap them into the reality of their attitudes. No gift must ever be used to make another believer a 2nd class citizen.

The Corinthians might be attempting to rank people based upon this list, but the very gift which is the heart of the problem is the one which is named last.

What are the Greater Gifts they should Desire?

1. The Corinthians have formed a wrong estimation about what a greater gift actually is. They have greatly miscalculated what the greater gift is. They are ranking other believers along with their gift.
2. The Corinthians desired what they saw as a better gift.
3. They have a wrong standard as to which was the greater gift. They were looking for a gift that they could use to promote themselves. Tongues hit the top of the list, eliciting a lot of attention and it made Corinthians feel on top of the world when they used it.
4. The greater gifts are not the ones which present the best show. Which one elevates me to a better position? Communication gifts because of the impact are ranked higher.
5. The greater gifts which promote spiritual growth for the whole body. New Testament prophets and teachers brought spiritual growth to all. In spite of its design and bestowal, was in Corinth retarding spiritual growth because of its misuse. Its misuse brought it low.
6. The greater gifts are the ones which provide spiritual advance for every individual believer regardless of what spiritual gift they might possess. We all have a brain and the body cannot work without that nerve center. It is where our soul is, in the physical brain, even though the soul is not physical. The brain directs the entire body, sending electrical impulses to the entire body, voluntary and involuntary. The teaching of doctrine has impact on every member of the body of Christ. The teacher has a great impact on the entire body. Doctrine is what makes the body work; it is what unifies us. A brain in a glass jar is just a brain in a glass jar; it does not direct anything. Our spiritual gift cannot function without Bible doctrine. Doctrine as the brains of the body of Christ is what makes us function within the body and this is where our service comes from. A greater position. But when it comes down to the function of the team, no one can function without the others. There are greater gifts, but which team member is most important? Neither and both.

Certain gifts have a great impact on a larger number of believers. Leadership would be important as well because leadership involves a number of people. In Corinth, tongues has no excess value. Who gets on tv? The tongues speakers; who is high in the pantheon of believers? Those speaking in tongues. Unfortunately, they never read 1Cor. 12; and they don't like to hear that their gift no longer exists.

Vv. 29–30 tells us that not everyone has a communication gift. The function of these gifts is more important when communication is made to a lot of people.

Summary Points

1. The body of Christ requires many different gifts and many different functions, some of which are done with less public exposure, or with less impact on a large number of believers.
2. There is no gift which does not glorify the body and glorify God, so we should never forget, our gift is critical for the whole body, regardless of what it is.
3. No spiritual gift should be denigrated, looked down upon, or thought of as inferior.
4. No believer should ever been thought of as second-class. How many people have seen Billy Graham and thought, there is a man we cannot do without. Our gift may not reach 25,000 people in one night, but it is as important, and we can receive the same reward as Billy Graham.
5. We are all one in Christ, each with his own specific duty on the team. God knows what each of our gifts are. He gave them to us and what each of these gifts does by way of service.
6. He also knows the impact of each one of us on the body of Christ. Each member of the body has an impact. We are all in service to the body of Christ.
7. God rewards us based upon the accomplishments of divine good in that service. It is not based upon who possesses what gift. God rewards those who use their gifts correctly. Divine good means we are filled with the Holy Spirit while functioning. We will also hear, "Well done, my good and faithful servant."
8. We all have equal privilege and equal opportunity, regardless fo which gift we possess. We have equal privilege to serve the Lord from our position on the team.
9. We have equal privilege and equal opportunity to use our particular gift in service to the Lord and for the benefit of the enitre body.

There is one additional problem in this verse before Bobby moves on. Did not the Holy Spirit give us our specific gift? We do not get to change horses in the middle of the stream. Why should be earnestly desire the greater gifts? If we desire one gift more than another, can we get a transfer over to that gift? I see this great gift, and I want that gift. Vv. 29–30 should make it clear that no particular gift be desired by..

Earnestly desire does not mean to wish for something which you do not have or to step up in the ranks. Present active imperative of ζηλω = ardently devoted to, strong affection toward, eager for, earnestly desire. The best and most appropriate translation is to be eager for. When you think of the imperative, you normally think of a command. This what is called an imperative of entreaty. Ζηλω does not convey; this has the force of urgency, but it is not a hard and fast mandate. You Corinthians stop desiring tongues as some premier gift. Instead, be eager for the function the premier gift? It is not about being eager for another gift; it is being eager for the greater gifts. Be eager to receive the result of the communication gifts. Be eager for Bible doctrine. That is the crux of it all. Many members, one body. All of the problems go out the window with spiritual advance.

1Cor. 12:31: But zealously strive after the better gifts. And yet I show you a way according to excellence:

Lesson #810

1Cor. 12: November 23, 2008

Sunday 1

Are there greater gifts and should we desire them in order to exercise dominance over everyone else? The idea of superiority and inferiority contradicts the first 30 verses of 1Cor. 12, so that is not what it means. God the Holy Spirit will not inspire contradictions in His Word.

There is a ranking of spiritual gifts, a hierarchy, but not a hierarchy of believers. The fact that there are greater gifts does not mean that there are greater and lesser gifts. There is a certain category of spiritual gifts which have varying value, and the key is communication. That is what Paul is writing about to the Corinthians. Why would communication gifts be the greater gifts? What is the basic common requirement for spiritual growth—Bible teaching. Doctrine must be taught in inculcated into your soul. Doctrine must be taught and the learn by the renovation of our thinking. The world and most believers think with human viewpoint. However, we are to learn how to rethink everything. We may think logically or we may have radical thinking, but it is human viewpoint. Divine viewpoint is very narrow, and it comes from the mind of Christ.

Every believer in Jesus Christ must grow to spiritual maturity; that is the mandate. Grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. God has provided the means to do so. There is an element of prophecy in tongues, as you may be speaking some of the mystery doctrine, and there is some teaching involved here, so this is why this gift is so sought after.

Paul lists the gifts in order, and conspicuously absent from the top of the list is tongues; why does he list it last? It is deemed by the Corinthians more important than any other gift. Among the communication gifts, tongues is not ranked with the others, pointing out the bogus thinking of the Corinthians. It is all about the benefits for the greatest good for the greatest number here. We know the greater gifts now, so what does that mean to earnestly desire them? If we do not have that communication gift, does that mean that we ought to forsake the gift given to us and pursue another gift? Once He gives that gift to you, it is not exchangeable. There is not going to a refund desk and exchanging one gift for another.

To be eager for, to earnestly desire = ζηλω. Normally, we think of a command applying to individuals. This is an imperative of entreaty. Be eager for the greater gifts because they are best for all of us.

This is a 2nd person plural, present active imperative. So, this is a command for the church as a whole. You, as a body, ought to desire the greater gifts for the assembly of the church. This desire would involve prayer for those to develop and use their gifts.

---

Do not focus on certain ones with the gift of tongues. It means to be eager to exercise the greater gifts. Be eager to gain these gifts as a whole. All members of the body of Christ should be eager for the use of these gifts for the whole body. They all need the communication gifts in order to grow. You cannot function in your own gift without the rest of the body.

No one should be looked down upon for not possessing a communication gift.

1Cor. 12:31: But zealously strive after the better gifts. And yet I show you a way according to excellence:

This takes us to 1Cor. 13. In 1Cor. 14, we have the use of these gifts, but in 1Cor. 13, we have the motivation for these gifts.

Are some of you not speaking to family members? Are you acting stupid and making dumb decisions based upon the emotion love? This chapter explains all of the things that we need to know about love.

Lesson #811

1Cor. 12:31 November 23, 2008

Sunday 2

God's love for us and our love for Him is the basis for all of our relationships. We are mandated to love all mankind, and that is a tall order. Bobby doubts that we have even a clue as to how to do that.

As we progress in this chapter, do not forget about the Corinthian divisiveness. They have already been told to desire the gifts and they have been told to care for one another.

This defines how we live in the body of Christ. Love begins with God and it ends with God.

The indirect object and this teaching is for the very personal interest of these believers. This teaching is for their distinct advantage. This is actually a dative of advantage. It is to our advantage to be personally taught a more excellent way. The more excellent way is the way which we must understand. This is not really a comparison here comparing this to some other thing which we have already covered. This is a way-beyond comparison.

It is put in a comparative way because that is how the Corinthians must look at their own truncated life and recognize the excellence of absolute compared to the relative.

We have a way beyond comparison way of life. Ask the unbeliever what is life all about, and most of the time it is all about themselves. It is a way beyond compare. This should slap you in the face and wake you up. Think back to what the greater gifts are; they are the gifts in the assembly, the ones designed for spiritual growth. You must seek the inculcation of Bible doctrine. Showing them the more excellent way shows the motivation for desiring the greater gifts. This does not happen with divisiveness.

1Cor. 12:31b: And yet I show you a way according to excellence:

Soppy ἀγάπη is one of our problems and we need to understand this word. ἀγάπη is not just some category for God. It refers to our love for God and our love for people, and if this love is a love beyond comparison, then believers must understand what ἀγάπη is and how this relates to spiritual advance. This is virtue love. It is connected to everything which God is and the result is, it works out in all relationships in our life. No one has the capability of exercising ἀγάπη love. So few understand what this love is, and it is very appropriate to marriage. This love reflects the very nature of God Himself. 1John 4:8, 16: God is ἀγάπη. By this, we know that we love, when we love God and observe the Bible doctrine in our souls. 1John 4:16–5:1 is the other great passage on love in the Bible. This is the true picture of ἀγάπη. We can demonstrate exactly what He has in His spiritual life. Agapê love is a mental attitude toward God and toward people, which will deal with the divisiveness in the body of Christ in Corinth. This is a love which develops and reflects virtue in your soul. Love is a progression and it develops in your soul. If you are a young person, you do not have a development of love in your soul.

love is the answer; this is divinely originated love, virtue love. Not a bad line if you understand what love it.

1Cor. 13 is divided into 3 parts:

The necessity of love. Vv. 1–3

The characteristics of love. Vv. 4–7

The unfailing perseverance of love. Vv. 8–13

A new book on love to come out, and perfectly timed and it will come out about the time that we complete this study. This chapter is also written in a way which stuns Bobby. He's studied poetry and prose, and this chapter is written in a very melodious and pleasing way as it progresses; it has movement, rhythm of language. It could be put to music and sung. It is very simple, but sublime, exalted and inspiring. This is one of the great subjects and Paul expresses this in a beautiful way. It relates the attitude and motivation of love.

We need to have a firm idea of what love is, so that every time that Paul speaks of love, we have a comprehensive understanding of what love means. It is used 7 times in the Greek and 9 times in the English.

Next time, a comprehensive study of love, from top to bottom.

1Cor. 13:1 If I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal.

Lesson #812

Love 1Cor. 13: November 26, 2008

Wednesday

The Bible is the definitive authority on the subject of love. The failures in love often come from starting with ourselves first and proceeding from there. We learn about God and love together and go from there. The Bible describes God as the very essence of love. He giving love to His own creatures is the consummate pattern of love. We can manifest that same love as part of our own character. It is only believers who can demonstrate such love. Believers are the only ones who can renovate their thinking through Bible doctrine.

If we have no character, then there is no true love. The source of God's love and the pattern of God's love. Only in this way, can we enjoy love in its fullest extent, both toward God and toward other people. This is a perfect message for Thanksgiving Eve. Most of us will gather around a table with loved ones. Recognize that your love for them is only as good as the character and attitude which produces it. It takes on its finest form with the Bible doctrine circulating in your soul. The greatest expression of Thanksgiving is thanksgiving. Thanksgiving is always an attitude of appreciation, and attitude of gratitude, for what God has done for us by His grace. If you do not have that capacity, then hang in there and it is developed right in this chapter.

The great human relationships in life reflect love and these relationships have their ups and downs. It often relies on expectations being met by the object of love. That is the false premise of love. Love does not hinge upon your expectations being met. Bobby has his own failings here, but He has access to the truth. God is love. That love, for which God is the essence, cannot be examined without the full knowledge of God. God's love is only one part of Who He is and what He does. We must understand the full spectrum of Who God is. We need to examine the essence of God as the background to the single attribute of love.

Attributes of God: Sovereignty. There are many gods out there. You do not understand Who God is without understanding these 10 qualities of God.

Sovereignty

1. Deut. 12:41 God's sovereignty; there is no other God; not Allah, not Mohammed.
2. As King of Heaven and Earth, He has absolute authority, volition and will. Psalm 47:2
3. The sovereignty of God is the final cause of all things.
4. God's sovereignty is expressed in eternity past in something called the divine decree. God's sovereign decree makes all things certain to occur. The decree is what God drew up before anything existed. God's actions, your actions, everything. Our personal plan is a part of that. It made all things certain to occur. The decree does not interfere with angelic or human free will. Our volition is truly free. God has decreed for us to have free will. Islam puts everything upon God. The free will of man and the sovereignty of God precludes the idea that God predetermines all things. God's sovereignty guarantees that our decisions are truly free. In giving man his own volition, our decisions will take place, even those decisions which are contrary to His perfect will.

God is Eternal

1. Jer. 10:10 God is eternal.
2. God has not beginning and no end.
3. Psalm 90:2: God has always existed.
4. God transcends all temporal limitations. 2Peter 3:8b Time has no authority over God. Time does not constrain God; God is over time.

Omniscience

1. Omniscience. God is all-knowing.
2. God knows perfectly all things, and all their alternatives. He knows this about every person who has ever existed. Psalm 139:4
3. God has always known everything, past, present and future.
4. God knows the Psalm 33:13–15 Matt. 6:8 end from the beginning.
5. God knows all the conclusions and all of the premises. He knows all conditional clauses.
6. Because God's knowledge is infinite, everything is completely and clearly comprehensible to Him.
7. Total wisdom as well as total knowledge belongs to God's omniscience. Rom. 11:33 His wisdom is the application of His omniscience in accomplishing His plan and purpose.
8. The omniscience of God is not subject to development, reasoning or remembering. Human knowledge involves all of that. God's knowledge is complete and total.

Omnipotence

1. God is all-powerful; He is limitless in His ability.
2. By His infinite power, God rules and upholds all things. 1Chron. 29:11–13 Even from eternity, I am He; none can deliver you out of My hand; I can act and no one can reverse it.
3. His omnipotence guarantees Luke 1:47: nothing is impossible for God. For God, nothing is impossible.
4. Because of omnipotence, He is the highest causality in the universe. There is none higher. Isa. 44:24 I the Lord am the maker of all things, stretching out the heavens by myself.
5. God can do all that He wills; but He may not will all to do that He can. Eph. 1:11

6. God is able to do all things within the range of His holy character.
7. God can do all things which are not self-contradictory or contradictory to His own complete nature. In effect, there is a limitation upon God's power.
8. If God's power is limited at any time, it is because of a self-imposed limitation consistent with His plan and with His essence.
9. God cannot use His power to alter His sovereign decree. He cannot overrule His decree; He cannot ever make right wrong, or wrong right. Man can do a good job of that. God will never act foolishly or abuse His power.

Omnipresent

1. God is omnipresent. He is not limited by time or space. He is ever present. Jer. 23:24
2. He is eternally and wholly and simultaneously present everywhere. Psalm 139:8
Prov. 15:2
3. God is not subject to the laws of space. He is outside the reach of spatial limitations. 1Kings 8:27 we all take up a limited space. How hard is it to understand that God has no limitations like that. Jesus Christ is localized and he localized Himself on many occasions. Space is large, but not as large as God. He created space and extends infinitely beyond it.
4. God is also imminent and transcendent.
5. Imminent means His entire essence; God is spirit. His entire essence is always present everywhere, in nature, in history, in all man's affairs. Acts 17:27-28 God is present but He is not synonymous with nature.
6. God is transcendent. This means that God is entirely independent, over and above the created universe, so that no particular place exclusively contains Him. He is everywhere. Psalm 113:5-6
7. In other words, there is no place on heaven or on earth where God is not present. He is always available to every believer. He is always there.

Immutability

1. Immutability. This means, God is unchangeable. He is neither capable or susceptible to change. He cannot change His own perfect nature. His immutability locks it in. There is not change, no shadow of turning with God.
2. Because of that, He is absolute stability.
3. God cannot be better or worse in condition or attitude. We are better or worse minute by minute.
4. God is never altered by circumstances. God is not swayed by man's decisions or by events of history or time. Heb. 13:8 Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever. With God James 1:17, there is no shadow or shifting of shadow.
5. From God's immutability comes His great faithfulness. Lam. 3:21 2Tim. 2:13 not one of His promises has ever failed. They do not fail; not ever. Salvation is secure all of us. Our eternal future is secure because of His character. His compassion never fail; great is Your faithfulness.

Veracity

1. God is absolute truth.
2. Truth is not something that God acquires. It is hard for us to imagine, as we acquire truth or not. All of us lie.
3. The truth has never been diminished or compromised in Him. We have varying shades of truth, we have lied by omission. John 6:32, 42 He is the source of all truth. Your Word is truth.
4. Therefore, Bible doctrine is the source of truth for mankind. Bible doctrine is the mind of Christ.
5. Upon the veracity and immutability of God, depends all certainly and assurance of life. Because of God's truth, we can be assured of His plan. We can be assured of His salvation. When you develop Christ-likeness, the character of God, and Bible doctrine advances us spiritually, and that is what spiritual advance is.
6. God is truthful in what He promises and faithful that His promises are true.
7. This is the basis for man's confidence in God. Deut. 7:9

Righteousness

1. God is absolute righteousness, which is perfect in character. He is absolute good. There is not false in God; there is not bad in God. There is no sin in God.
2. The righteousness of God is the perfect standard of His essence.
3. All of His attitudes and all of His actions conform to His flawless standards; all of them. Psalm 145:17 we are full of relative righteousness.
4. Righteousness is the foundation of His character and the very core of His being.
5. Since God is infinitely perfect, He cannot sin nor can He be tempted to sin. God's righteousness can only condemn sin.
6. Neither is God free to disregard or forgive sin. God only forgives sin apart from the propitiation of His righteous claims. God cannot have contact with sin.
7. God cannot have a personal relationship with anything less than the absolute standard of His own righteousness. He cannot have a relationship with any sinner, with anyone who is less than perfect.

Justice

1. God is perfect justice and absolute fairness. God treats all of His creatures alike. Without bias and without partiality. For the Lord your God is the great and mighty Who does not show partiality or take a bribe. No one escapes the justice of God.
2. God judges mankind with perfect fairness and He never makes exceptions.

3. Divine justice always functions according to the standards of fairness found in god's perfect righteousness. The integrity of God and His love are the 3 attributes which deal with mankind directly.

1Cor. 13:1 November 30, 2008

Sunday 1

Children often have a better grasp of love than adults do. What is the meaning of love, according to some young people. Rebecca (8) when my grandmother got arthritis and could not bend over, grandfather paints her toenails. Billy (4) they say your name differently and your name is safe in their mouth. Terry (4) Love makes you smile when you are tired. Bobby Love is what is in the room on Christmas when you stop opening presents. Noel (7) love is when you tell a guy you like his shirt and he wears it every day.

Love is a long conversation which never ends.

Even in the garden, Adam and Eve abused love. Most of us will think that finding or giving or sustaining love is an important part of our lives.

Human viewpoint, unfortunately, is often the starting point for love. We must not start with human viewpoint, but we must begin with divine viewpoint. We must begin with God, as He is described in the Word of God. It is our objective to study the topic of love by beginning with God. Romance and friendship are only as good as the integrity of those who love. This is why God's character must be developed in all of us in spiritual advance.

The attribute of love in God. Love begins with God because love is an attribute of God.

The Attribute of God's Love

1. The very essence of God is love. That is the meaning of the statement of 1John 4:8, 16. No other attribute in Scripture is listed as "God is ____." There is, God is light.
2. Θεος ἀγάπη have two nouns in the same case, and when they are set up like that, it means that they are equal things. God is love; God equals love. However, it does not mean the reverse (love equals God).
3. God equals love is a qualitative statement. The quality of love is intrinsic to God.
4. That means that love exists in God wth out reference to anything or anyone else.
5. God is eternal and since God is eternal and love is one of His attributes, then God's love is eternal. God's love existed in Him before any creature existed. His love exists independent of any object. It can never be said of man that man is love. We may have an attitude of love, but we need an object. God has love, before and after creation.

6. God's love is part of His absolute nature.
7. God is love before He expressed any love toward us.
8. As part of his absolute nature, God's love does not require anything outside of Himself. We understand human love to be inspired by an object,
9. We expect love to be inspired; this is not true of God.
10. Long before there was an occasion for love or an object of love, God's love existed because He existed.

Most people start with man's love and try to equate it with God's love. That is the only way they can understand love. Man's love was always relative and always imperfect. God's love is transcendent to human love in every where. Man does not have the natural ability to understand God's love, because he remains subjective in his thinking when it comes to God. How can your love be equated to God's love? Even though love in mankind is a very noble thought and expression, it is flawed because we are flawed. We love because He first loved us. Yet, one of the greatest problems with man is love.

One of the problems is God's love and man's suffering, both co-exist. Those who are skeptical of God's existence. Some have a grievance against God because He did not alleviate some suffering in their life. That is superimposing our concept of love upon God. God's love never disappears. He may not love us in a way that meets our expectations, but he loves us with a greater love than we can understand. If God does not accomplish for some what they believe He should do, then before man created mankind, God created angels. God created Lucifer, called the son of the morning. He is described as the most beautiful creature to come from the hand of God. His name was changed from Lucifer to Satan, which means adversary. Satan said, "I will make myself like the Most High." So God sentence Satan to the Lake of Fire. Satan made an appeal directly to God, and his rebuttal to God's judgment; "How can you be a loving God and cast your creatures into the Lake of Fire." That is not love, that is something different. God allowed Satan's appeal. We know this because God still portrays Satan as not yet incarcerated. His sentence is on appeal. God would reveal His perfect love in such a way as to retain His perfect righteousness and Justice. God would unequivocally reveal His love. He began by creating mankind. Man would disprove Satan's contention. However, in many ways, it appears as if we are backing up Satan's objection. God created man with truly free will.

Condemnation will mean eternal suffering. The cross provided our salvation and broke the back of Satan's appeal. It was the cross where God showed His love for all mankind. That is God's love which provided that. Every time a person believes in Jesus Christ, he is taking God's love. God became man and came to the earth and went to the cross, and in this way, God demonstrated His love for man.

You cannot understand love unless you understand integrity, and we cannot love unless we have integrity.

God equals love, but man does not equal love. Man's love is distorted often. Man does have love and a propensity for love. Man's concept of love is as distorted as his sin nature can make it. We have access to the source of love.

In order to maintain that love, there must be an object toward which our love must go, but God's love does not require an object, nor does it require maintenance. Only from the pages of Scripture can we objectively understand Who God is and objectively understand what love is. We have a tremendous capacity for love. People lose sight of the fact that God's love provided the greatest sacrifice in history; there is no greater demonstration of love in history.

Satan says, "If God is so loving, how can He allow me to suffer in the Lake of Fire?" And we often ask, "If God is love, why is there suffering?" Much of the suffering in this world is caused by people who inflict suffering upon others and upon themselves. Our fallen nature is the cause of most suffering.

Another objection: "Even if man is responsible, why doesn't God just wipe out suffering? Why wouldn't He just wipe it out completely? Just remove the suffering." If God was to wipe out suffering, He would have to wipe out the source of suffering. His justice and righteousness requires that He wipe out the source of suffering, which is us.

How can Satan make himself like the Most High? Satan cannot make himself as high as God; he must bring God down to his own level. We do the same thing all the time. His justice and righteousness would require Him to wipe us out. God cannot accept sin, alleviate suffering. God can remove the suffering, but it is more important that we have the cross. Simply wiping out suffering does not demonstrate love and it does not solve the problems of mankind, the problem of spiritual death.

Why can't God make us stop making bad decisions? God could restrict our freedom and computerize our actions. In doing so, God simply makes us robots and makes us unable to respond to His love. We must freely respond to His love on the cross. If we could not respond to that love, His love would be demonstrated in vain. We must have volition in order to love. Love is a choice. You cannot program love.

What about the suffering which man does not bring upon himself? We know that we bring great suffering to ourselves, but what about those things which he does not cause? Birth defects, natural disasters? If God is loving, why does He not remove at least undeserved suffering? All suffering, deserved and undeserved, was brought about by the fall of Adam. In Adam, all die. Natural disasters, disease etc. all exist because the earth was cursed at the fall (Gen. 3:17-19). The environmental protection agency will not save it, nor will any piece of legislation. Man chose to walk in the path of suffering. Therefore, he will suffer the things on that path. Disease and disasters in nature are a result of Adam's choice. God provided perfect environment, the perfect love and all that man needed in love. It was all about love. It was not until man fell that the justice and righteousness had to take over. The love of God did not leave the scene. God demonstrates His love for us in that Christ died for us. A mature spiritual life are a way to bear the sufferings in life. Temporal suffering for a few years on this earth, and we glorify God in our suffering, using the problem solving devices, and we will be rewarded in eternity for dealing with these things. When God does not do what we want Him to do, we accuse Him of being unloving. That is blasphemous. God does not exercise His love apart from His perfect character and His plan. God cannot exercise His love apart from His character and His perfect plan. God cannot isolate on love to the exclusion of all His other attributes. Man continues to superimpose his own concepts of love over God. In humanizing God, we make God whatever we want Him to be. However, this is not God. He is not made in our image. We are made in His image. In order for us to understand love, we must start with God. Our love is infinitely less than God's.

Bobby does not believe in love at first sight. He believes in a lot of things at first sight, but it is not love. We appreciate and replicate God's love in our own souls. We love because He first loved us. We must know how God's love exists in itself.

God's Love

1. God's love is not sentimental. It is not emotional like human love. If I don't feel right, then maybe it is not love? Love as emotion is unstable, erratic and changeable. God's love is a straight line. Our love changes. One day it is better and one day it is worse. God is immutable; He does not change; therefore, His love does not change. The character of God's love never changes. God cannot experience the ups and downs of human emotion. If you don't understand that, you will never understand God. His love cannot change, and thank God that it could not. What if Christ said, "I don't feel very good today; I don't think I will go to the cross." But His love is a straight line.
2. God has certain qualities like tenderness, compassion, affection all toward His creatures, but it is not sentimental and it is not emotional.
3. God's love is not temperamental.
4. God is not moody, nor is He passive aggressive. God's love is not manipulative. He does not use His love against us. We may try to use His love against Him, but it does not work the other way around. We are often using love to manipulate others. "If you love me, then you would do such and such."
5. God's love is not dependent upon attraction, rapport, whether or not He gets a response or good behavior. How many people think that, if they are good, God will love them more or if they do certain things for God, He will bless them more. Do you think that there is anything that we do that merits God's favor? God's love does not depend upon attraction, rapport or good behavior. The grace of God is the only way that we survive. Without it, we would never understand God's love.
6. God's love is un failing in its character and constant in its operation. Can this every be said of human beings? Our love changes. It is not consistent.
7. God's love is always rational. Our love can be quite irrational at times. God's love exists impartially without favoritism or injustice or irrationality. God's justice and righteousness always functions in conjunction with His love.

8. His love is never disappointed; it is never frustrated; it is never diminished by knowledge of our failures or unworthiness. Have we been disappointed in love? Of course. The object of our love did not turn out to be what we expected them to be. I want what I want. But that is not God's love.
9. God's love is eternal because He is eternal. It never disappears.
10. God's love is self-motivated, infinite and absolute. Human love is object motivated, finite, and relative. We can fall out of love, we can reject love and we can swear off love altogether. God cannot fall out of love or swear off love because of us. Love is an integral part of His essence. It is always there; it cannot disappear.

The integration of two other aspects of His character with love. It is God's justice and righteousness and how they interact with love. God's character is to our advantage. In order to deal with imperfect humanity strictly out of love, that is strictly our contention.

Lesson #815

1Cor. 13: December 3, 2008

Wednesday

Bobby is giving us the full spectrum of the meaning of the word ἀγαπή. He wants us to see where we are going with all of this. What is the ultimate objective of understanding this concept love. It is key to everything which God is how we perceive Him to be.

Bobby is going to read the ending of the book, so that we know where we will end up. They payoff: 1Cor. 13:4–8: Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice at wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth. Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Love never ends. As for prophecies, they will pass away; as for tongues, they will cease; as for knowledge, it will pass away. Those who are closest to us often get the full brunt of our anger and moodiness.

Love brags and is arrogant. Is that your concept of love? That is self-love; there is some boasting; you brag a little bit on yourself. We cover up some of our flaws with a little bull? Love does not brag and love is not arrogant. When we examine this passage, we often see that we fall short of what it says here. 2Tim. 3:2–5: For people will be lovers of self, lovers of money, proud, arrogant, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, heartless [without virtue love], unappeasable, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not loving good, treacherous, reckless, swollen with conceit, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, having the appearance of godliness, but denying its power. Avoid such people. The facets of arrogance are found here, in relation to love. Lovers of self, lovers of money, proud, arrogant, abusive, disobedient to parents, ungrateful. Being capable of having gratitude, you have some characteristics of love. Without virtue love. The arrogant person is not a lover of God. If we do not understand and if we cannot reciprocate God's love. Lovers of pleasure rather than loving God is the description of the people in the US.

1Cor. 13:5–8: It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice at wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth. Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Love never ends. As for prophecies, they will pass away; as for tongues, they will cease; as for knowledge, it will pass away. The end statement of the doctrine of love: virtue love never fails. Until we understand what love is, we cannot say, virtue love never fails. This is the importance of the doctrine of love.

Unbelievers are incapable of the full extent of these qualities in their soul. These qualities come from doctrine in the soul. What unbelievers have are facsimiles of the qualities which we have in our souls based upon doctrine.

All believers can have these qualities. What this passage it is the outcomes of the believer's attitude based upon doctrine in the soul.

God is love—no other attribute is stated in just this way. If you want to understand what love is, you go to the source. We must understand that His love exists. We understand human love as being inspired by an object. God's love exists without an object. God's love is based upon His Own integrity. He does not need an object for His love to exist.

Our love is not worth a flip without integrity in our soul. This is a part of the pattern that we will see. None of the qualities of love are possible in us without integrity. This is how God's love operates and that is how our love must operate. Divine integrity and divine love which we must emulate in order to feel the virtue love that we find in 1Cor. 13.

How we do this is emulating the mind of Christ. If Bobby wanted to describe the character of Jesus Christ on earth, this would be 1Cor. 13:4–8. We advance to spiritual maturity so that we can emulate Him. That is what spiritual advance is.

We have no natural ability to relate to love as God possesses. We are arrogant. We can never possess those qualities in God to that absolute degree that He possesses them. How do we even approach these qualities? How do we go from 2Tim. 3 to 1Cor. 13? However, we have 1Cor. 13 because this is attainable. Once we understand love in God, we can understand love in ourselves.

Review (copied and pasted from the previous lesson):

God's Love

1. God's love is not sentimental. It is not emotional like human love. If I don't feel right, then maybe it is not love? Love as emotion is unstable, erratic and changeable. God's love is a straight line. Our love changes. One day it is better and one day it is worse. God is immutable; He does not change; therefore, His love does not change. The character of God's love never changes. God cannot experience the ups and downs of human emotion. If you don't understand that, you will never understand God. His love cannot change, and thank God that it could not. What if Christ said, "I don't feel very good today; I don't think I will go to the cross." But His love is a straight line.
2. God has emotion in the sense that He has tenderness, compassion and affection toward His creatures. It is not emotion as we understand it to be. It is not erratic or changes. God has certain qualities like tenderness, compassion, affection all toward His creatures, but it is not sentimental and it is not emotional.

3. God's love is not temperamental. God is not moody
4. God is not moody, nor is He passive aggressive. God's love is not manipulative. He does not use His love against us. We may try to use His love against Him, but it does not work the other way around. We are often using love to manipulate others. "If you love me, then you would do such and such."
5. God's love is not dependent upon attraction, rapport, whether or not He gets a response or good behavior. How many people think that, if they are good, God will love them more or if they do certain things for God, He will bless them more. Do you think that there is anything that we do that merits God's favor? God's love does not depend upon attraction, rapport or good behavior. The grace of God is the only way that we survive. Without it, we would never understand God's love.
6. God's love is unfailing in its character and constant in its operation. Can this every be said of human beings? Our love changes. It is not consistent.
7. God's love is always rational. Our love can be quite irrational at times. God's love exists impartially without favoritism or injustice or irrationality. God's justice and righteousness always functions in conjunction with His love. Our love is mostly irrational; God's love is rational.
8. His love is never disappointed; it is never frustrated; it is never diminished by knowledge of our failures or unworthiness. Have we been disappointed in love? Of course. The object of our love did not turn out to be what we expected them to be. I want what I want. But that is not God's love.
9. God's love is eternal because He is eternal. It never disappears.
10. God's love is self-motivated, infinite and absolute. Human love is object motivated, finite, and relative. We can fall out of love, we can reject love and we can swear off love altogether. God cannot fall out of love or swear off love because of us. Love is an integral part of His essence. It is always there; it cannot disappear.

Love is an integral part of His essence. Now we come to God's righteousness and justice.

God's Righteousness and Justice

Love and integrity always go together in God's essence.

1. God cannot compromise His justice and righteousness in His love.
2. God cannot overlook sin just because He is love. That is what people want Him to do. That would compromise His essence and His deity.
3. Justice and righteousness serve as guardians of the perfection and the absolute immutability of God's love.
4. Without the function of integrity, God's love becomes emotional, variable and plays favorites.
5. But God's love would function like human love when governed by righteousness and justice.
6. God's love cannot be bribed or patronized. It cannot exist apart from His integrity.

7. God's love always exists. God's love is unfailing, absolute benevolence, grace kindness and mercy. Psalm 100:5. These qualities are always tempered by perfect justice and perfect love. Our minds must be renovated.

One of the greatest of Bob's breakthrough was love. One of the last that he did was love. When Bobby began to write the Unfailing Love of God, He began to realize that all of the attributes of God ... There was no definitive statement in the Bible of what love is. It was great to sit down with his father and come up with a definition.

God's Love

1. Love is what God is; love is an attitude and love is an action.
2. God's love is expressed toward His creatures but only in relation to all of His attributes. No one attribute can supercede another.
3. Here is the definitive statement: love is the absolute virtue and the inherent benevolence of God's thinking and actions. God's love is the basis for our salvation. It is the basis for fellowship with God.
4. Eph. 2:47 surpassing grace riches bestowed upon every believer. That is what we have in time and what we have in eternity.
5. Love is absolute it is total, it is complete. His thinking. We can think with the mind of Christ. God's love provides us the access to the unique spiritual life and to all the resources which go with it. Virtue and benevolence directed toward us.
6. God's love along with His righteousness and justice is the cause of all His actions. All of His actions are formed from His righteousness and justice and His love. Love cannot be isolated from all of His other attributes. One attribute does not take precedence over another.
7. The attribute of love along with justice and righteousness are the 3 attributes most directly involved with His creatures. These 3 attributes are where we meet God and where He meets us on a personal level. Even when God disciplines us, it is done in love. It is godly ; it is divine. He uses it on us and sometimes it hurts. God's plan for us in always based upon love.

Some of us are hearing this for the first time. If you understand God's love, then you have the basis for human love and for capacity for love. God is the source for all love.

God is the Source of all Love

1. Inherently, God is love. No object.
2. Outwardly, He extends love toward His creatures.
3. His love in us is the basis for our virtue love.

It should be clear to us that God is love, and we should also know what that means. Love is a central attribute of God's nature, and therefore, does not require an object upon which to be projected. It has inherently and eternally existed before any object of love has existed. It existed completely and totally and did not need that object. When God's love is in action, it is directed toward His creatures. God is the source of all love. Pure love resides in Him and it flows from Him. He is the source, it resides in Him and flows from Him.

In God, absolute virtue of His thinking and actions, that is what His love is. Definition of love. God's mind, and God does have a mind, because God does have a mentality. His mind is essentially His thought process. We understand from His attributes and that His thought process is absolutely logical. However, God's thinking is not progressive. His thought processes are Who He is. He does not increase in knowledge. As He is, so also, He acts. As a person thinks, so He is. As He is, so He acts. God is a person and He has personality and mentality and His personhood is defined by His thoughts. God is a person and His actions, which are motivated by His thinking, which is His character. What He thinks is behind all of His actions. If He thinks, the actions which God takes, are part and parcel of what He thinks. He is a person. He thinks and He acts. How He thinks reflects His character. His character is motivated by benevolence and virtue. That is the expression of His inherent character of His love. As love, He thinks in the way of love. All of His actions come from His love, but there is more to His character than just that. God's actions of love are directed toward us. God demonstrates His loves for us, in that, while we were sinners, Christ died for us. Love is involved in everything which God does for us. Inherently, it is His action. All those actions extend toward us. God's absolute virtue is His integrity; it consists of His perfect righteousness and His perfect justice. Love is a part of His character. But God has a little problem in expressing His love.

God cannot simply wink at sin and say, I love you, regardless of how you have sinned. God cannot love us because we are sinners. It is impossible for God to love sin, but He is able to love the sinner. He cannot love the sinner directly and personally. Along with love comes justice and perfect righteousness. God cannot love anything associated with sin. Justice and righteousness serve as guardians to the perfection of God's love. Justice and righteousness serve as guardians and they guarantee the absolute virtue of God's love in His thinking and in His actions. Justice and righteousness serves as guardians to the perfection of God's love. Justice and righteousness guarantee the absolute virtue of God's love. His love is compatible with His integrity. This is what makes this kind of love God's love, and not human love.

Definition of God's Love

1. God's love is the absolute virtue and inherent benevolence of His thinking and His actions.
2. It is His love along with His righteousness and justice that are the cause of all His actions.
3. It is the attribute of love along with the attributes of justice and righteousness which are most directly involved with His creatures. There are 10 attributes of God.

Justice, righteousness and love are the primary portions of His essence which directly interact with mankind.

God's love is always tempered by perfect justice and perfect righteousness. 1John 4:19: we love because He first loved us. The cause of our love is that He first loved us. We have just finished God is love, which is part I of this doctrine. Now we will see what this means to us. He loved us with all the love which is inherent in His essence. When we learn from metabolized doctrine, the incredible scope and depth of God's love, we will have a response.

How will we return His love? We have to understand His love, what it is and how it works toward us. This is what we are doing right now. We are learning this, and this doctrine advances us spiritually. When the believer learns from metabolized doctrine, when he continues to advance, the incredible magnificent nature of that love, he begins to develop reciprocal love. It comes from our capacity to love God. That capacity comes from our spiritual advance. It all links together so beautifully.

This love is the training ground of all love, the categories. Then we respond toward the infinite love of God toward us. Benevolence is God looking out for us and caring for us. What comes from us is gratitude for that incredible benevolence. God, in essence, is our benefactor. Everything which He does is for our benefit. Grace is the expression of God's love. God is the perfect object of love because of His integrity and benevolence. No person is more deserving of love than God. To not love God is to fail to understand him. To not love God is the highest order of failure in the spiritual life. That is how critical this is. Paul said, "I have a better way." That better way is love. This chapter has been garbled and slopped up and it has become confused and poorly taught. We must get to know Him, to understand Him, to love him.

We love when we get to know someone. We gain the impetus to love as we get to know about them, knowing their good qualities, their generous character, and what is lovely about them. Love is not real until we get to know and appreciate the object of our affection. If we have capacity for love, then that love is unbounding. Love is not real for a person until we get to know that person. We need to beware if the object of our love has no stability, no character,

The more we reciprocate, the more our capacity for love grows. No matter how infatuated or obsessed you are, that is not love. If you have love for someone with no integrity, no stability, and then, that is not love. So get over your attachment and run the other way.

Your better judgment from doctrine must become your norms by which to act. Doctrine in your soul is your gut feeling. It is your better judgment. It is your natural impulse when it comes to matters of love. Otherwise, you are a train wreck when it comes to love. God is infinitely worthy of our love. The more we love Him, the greater our capacity is, greater our capacity for appreciation and gratitude.

We begin to love God as we begin to know Him. We have got to understand His perfect character and all that means. God's attractiveness and magnificence and all the attributes we can think of is completely unlimited. How many times have you heard about the love of God? What do people say about the love of God? Most people humanize it and they expect us to return His love, and it is nothing more than human love for a human person Who is actually divine. Our reciprocal love ought to be transcendent, as it is our spiritual life and our spiritual advance. The love of God is one of the great subjects of the Bible.

Exactly how does God's love extend toward us? It happens in 2 ways. The first way is called His impersonal love. It is easy to misunderstand impersonal love.

What does Impersonal Love Mean?

How does God love the sinner and hate the sin?

1. By impersonal, that does not mean without reference to a person. God's impersonal love is always directed toward a person.
2. His impersonal love is a love directed toward those who are unlovely; those who are sinful; those who are corrupted.
3. It is directed toward every person who has ever been born. In Adam, all die. Genetically, we are all born dead.
4. In spite of this overwhelming flaw and irreconcilable flaw in spiritual death, God can still love mankind, but it can only be impersonal love.
5. Impersonal love is actually the most powerful love. You think personal love is the most powerful; untrue. The love in God is the most powerful love. We can see that in us is the most powerful love. Impersonal love with reflect the traits found in 1Cor. 13. If you do not feel like loving someone, impersonal love kicks in. God takes that which is unloveable (you and me) and He expresses love toward that otherwise disgusting object. We are disgusting objects to God.
6. Impersonal love does not mean that God's love is expressionless. This does not mean that God's love is devoid of mercy, compassion or care. All of these things are a part of God's love.
7. In fact, god's impersonal love is the very essence of compassion, mercy and care.
8. Impersonal love is total concern for the welfare of and the provision sfor His creatures.
9. Impersonal love is God's eternal giving of Himself to mankind.
10. Impersonal love continuously seeks us despite of our unworthiness.

It is hard for people to love someone who has totally rejected them. We utterly and totally rejected God. We are born rejecting him. Yet, even though we have rejected Him, His love for us never stops and it never will. It is a rare kind of love in the human race, but it is inherent to Him.

What is the epitome of impersonal love? God gave His Son; He loved us so much that He gave His uniquely born Son, that we might have eternal life. The cross is the expression of His impersonal love. No greater expression of His impersonal love. This is why it is the most powerful love to ever exist.

Lesson #817 1Cor. 13 Intro impersonal love December 7, 2008 Sunday 1

We are studying the Greek word ἀγαπή. Some who hear this word have so many false concepts leap into their minds. They see it is, Christian love, whatever that means. However, they will let this word come off their tongue with great feeling and meaning. And there are so many organizations which name themselves using this particular word. However, even though ἀγαπή is a subject which is quite important, few really understand it. The scope and the breadth of this one word. What does the doctrine of ἀγαπή actually involve? This includes Who God is and how He relates to us and how we relate to other people. This word defines the relationship between God and man and believers in the Lord Jesus Christ. This Greek word cannot be defined narrowly. It has a wide range of meanings, which is why this doctrine has such a tremendous scope. There are many passages where this word is used. Almost every time we see the word love in the Bible, it is the word ἀγαπή.

Everything that Bobby is giving us in this doctrine is a feature of this word ἀγαπή. If you do not understand this doctrine, you are a novice in the realm of love. If you metabolize this doctrine, which is our purpose for being here, (1) you will begin to understand Who God is and our relationship with Him and other people. (2) this will provide us a great rationale in the faith rest drill. It is something which we can use every single day in people testing. The love of God rationale is critical. (3) we can attain a mental attitude commensurate with the Christian way of life. That is how important this one doctrine is in the believer's life.

ἀγαπή—the 4 fundamental points

- I. ἀγαπή is an attribute in the essence of God.
- II. ἀγαπή is the outworking of God's love toward His creatures. 1John 4:19b
- III. The believer's love for God, which is reciprocal love. 1John 4:19a
- IV. ἀγαπή in the soul motivates the believer's love toward other people.
- V. We show these characteristics toward others, once we understand the previous 4 points.

Everyone we come into contact with, we are to ἀγαπή.

God has impersonal love and personal love, and we must develop it. When you hear someone who defines ἀγαπή with a couple of words, you can smile, but you do not have to straighten them out.

ἀγαπή is an attribute in the Essence of God

1. ἀγαπή is one of God's attributes. God is love. We need an object in order to love, but God's essence is such that, He does not require an object to be love.

2. Definition of God's attribute of ἀγαπή: God's absolute virtue and inherent benevolence of His thinking and action.
  - a. God has infinite mentality; God thinks. He has omniscience. God is a person and a person has mentality. Those thoughts reflect His attribute of love. All of His thoughts reflect this attribute.
  - b. God's actions are motivated by His attribute and attitude of love. Everything that He does is caused and motivated by this one attribute.
  - c. Absolute virtue: the absolute virtue of God's love is contained within His perfect righteousness and justice.
  - d. Inherent benevolence reflects all God's grace, compassion and enduring patience of His love. Patience is one of the great attributes of God's love. God has infinite patience and thank God that He does.
  - e. God's righteousness and justice and His love are the cause and motive for all of His actions, and all of his actions are benevolent. Always remember, all of God's actions are benevolent. This helps us to understand how God functions toward fallen man. God cannot compromise His righteousness or justice in order to deal with us in love. God cannot simply will sin away. He cannot simply overlook all of our flaws? As humans, don't we learn to overlook the flaws and shortcomings of those we love? In the appeal phase of his trial, Satan appealed God's condemnation, and he asked God to set aside His justice and righteousness. Without them, God's love is nothing more than human love. It is God's attributes of love, righteousness and justice which are most involved in His relationship with His creatures. How are His attributes involved? They are a part of every aspect of our salvation.

Eternal rewards and blessings are given from His righteousness and justice and from His love. God's love extends toward us in 2 ways: impersonal love, which is extended toward unbelievers. Then there is personal love, which is extended toward believers only. These two categories define how God loves mankind.

All of us have been recipients of God's love. Impersonal love has an impersonal aspect to it, to hear it, but this does not mean without reference to person. God's impersonal love is always extended toward persons. This is never without an object. God's love is directed toward those who are sinful, those who have fallen, those who are corrupted. We are all born spiritually dead. Adam is the federal head of the human race. Our status at birth is the possession of Adam's fallen nature. We are in Adam and we all die in him. When we are brought into this world as a living human being spiritually dead. Spiritual death means that we are separated from God permanently. However, even in this state of separation, God can still love us. Impersonal love under these circumstances, and it is actually the most powerful love that there is.

God's Impersonal Love

1. Impersonal love is total concern for the welfare of and provision for all of God's creatures.

2. Impersonal love is God's eternal giving of Himself to fallen mankind. That is sacrificial love. He sacrificed Himself.
3. Impersonal love continuously seeks us, in spite of our unworthiness and rejection of the One Who loves us. Love in the face of rejection is most amazing.

What action of God most illustrates His impersonal love and how does His impersonal love operate toward us? 1John 4:10: in this is ἀγάπη, not that we agapaō God, but that He avapaō'ed us, and sent His Son to die for our sins. God loved us first. God put no conditions on His impersonal love. There was no, if you love me, then I will love you. However, meriting love is exactly the opposite of impersonal love. Impersonal love is about not meriting love. God provided His Son, even though we are repulsive to God. We deeply and totally offend God. Do we invite people into our house who repulse us? This is what God does for us. Impersonal love is the highest expression of God's grace.

God's impersonal love

1. Impersonal love is the viewpoint and the expression on the cross.
2. God offered His Son to die on the cross, even though we are repulsive to Him. We are unlovely and repulsive to God.
3. So the cross is the gracious demonstrations of impersonal love that there is. It is the most powerful love in its operation.
4. God's impersonal love is the very basis and motivation for our salvation. Rom. 5:8 in that when we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

You cannot possibly love everyone personally, but you can have impersonal love toward all mankind.

Lesson #818

1Cor. 13 Intro December 7, 2008

Sunday 2

Bobby's boss sent him to a Baptist church to represent the military. The pastor said a few nice things about the military, and then the pastor told them to all stand up and tell the person behind you, and say, "I love you." A high ranking officer was behind him, and he saw Bobby's nametag and said, "Are you related to Bob Thieme? I'm a taper." Then he hugged Bobby.

How can you love anyone that you are not attracted to; that you do not like, people who are repulsive to you. It is all tied to your spiritual life. That pattern is the Lord Jesus Christ. We have that pattern by the way that He lived on this earth. For God to love us, it would be like us saying, "We love Adolf Hitler." We are separated by sin without a way for us to reconcile with Him. God cannot reconcile with us, because we are sinners. For Him to personally love us is simply not possible. This would utterly violate His perfect integrity, which is His righteousness and justice. We are not fitting objects for God's love. Do you understand just how unfitting and how unworthy we are to get God's love? There is only one way for us to have impersonal love. This is for us to understand Who Jesus Christ is and for us to grow up spiritually and to learn how to parallel His love. Those we love personally we will also have to learn how to love impersonally. People do not automatically have impersonal love. Our natural reaction is to despise, to hate. There is incredible power of impersonal love. It is the basic attitude for the Christian life. God would not be God if he violated His righteousness and justice by overlooking sin in favor of love. If God simply expunged sin in the name of love, that would be seemingly too easy for God. He is omnipotent? Why can't He do anything that He wants.

Why God Cannot Set Aside His Righteousness and Justice to Love us

1. To love us apart from justice and righteousness would be to destroy Himself. The perfection of His character would be compromised. He would compromise His deity; conceding His deity.
2. God cannot set one attribute aside in favor of another attribute. Some think that God can do anything; one reason He cannot do some things is, He cannot violate His own integrity. Otherwise, He would not be God.
3. Should God concede justice and righteousness for love, God would be relative just like us. We look the other way; we make allowances for sin. We cannot do that. In effect, God would be winking at sin.
4. To do so, God would violate His Own integrity in the name of love. Yet, despite all of this, He loves us. God cannot, and yet He does. That is where impersonal love kicks in. He has to actually limit His own omnipotence.

God can do all things which are not contradictory to His Own nature. God has the self-imposed limitation which is consistent with His plan and His essence. This does not limit His omnipotence. Even with omnipotence, God cannot make wrong right or right wrong. He cannot simply look the other way. We cannot ask nor can God violate His essence. One thing He can do, one thing He cannot do.

God's justice and righteousness always stand guard over His love.

This is critical and Bobby wants us to write.

God's Integrity and His Love

1. God's integrity will not allow God to love sin and we are sinners.
2. That is why impersonal love must come to the rescue.
3. God does not love sin.
4. Based on the function of God's integrity, God can still love us, we who are sinners; and remain with His perfection.
5. God's integrity can only condemn sin along with the sinner. His perfect righteousness and justice condemn sin. We were born in sin; we were born in Adam and he condemns us from the very first breath that we take. We are in Adam, and in Adam, all die.
6. If you throw impersonal love in with His integrity, God can solve the problem of our sin.

7. Impersonal love is the motivation to save us. It is the solution for us.

Impersonal love does not depend upon the merit of the object. You have no merit to God. None of us do. There is nothing which we can do to merit His love or His favor. Everything that we do and everything that we are is sin. We are sin because we have that nature and because we sin personally. We are foul and repugnant from the moment we are born. God's impersonal love acts without direct contact with our repugnant nature.

Impersonal Love

1. Impersonal love depends solely upon the integrity of the subject. Absolute virtue is the basis for His love.
2. God cannot love sin or the sinner personally. He cannot do that. There are persons in this life that we love personally; there is something in their looks or character which we like personally. No direct association with God; no fellowship with us as sinners.
3. Such an association would violate God's integrity to overlook sin without resolving the problem of sin. The problem of sin must be resolved.
4. God therefore must resolve the sin barrier before He can associate with man on a personal basis.
- 5.
6. Based on impersonal love, God provides for an intimate association between Himself and sinful man, without violating His essence or the perfection of His righteousness.
7. Divine impersonal love is the benevolent expression of love in relation to sinful mankind without accepting or overlooking man's sin.
8. Impersonal love is governed by the integrity of God's character. Impersonal love is governed by His righteousness and justice. Feelings govern our love; how unstable is that?
9. Emotion is object oriented. It is directed toward something or someone. This means that God's love is dependent upon the object. If God's love were emotion, it would depend upon the object; however God's love is not emotional.
10. God cannot be object oriented and remain independent from the imperfection of mankind.
11. Impersonal love always acts within the confines of His character; his righteousness and justice.

How does God's love operate in the confines of His justice and righteousness

1. God's impersonal love is subject-oriented and not object-oriented.
2. Subject-oriented means, God loves His own righteousness and justice, but He does not love man's sinfulness. This is not an arrogant, narcissistic love.
3. How does this work toward man? God's impersonal love toward man is expressed toward man in sending His Son.

4. Jesus Christ came to propitiate the wrath of the Father toward our sin so that God can love us personally. God sent someone that He can love personally. While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.
5. God's impersonal love caused Him to reconcile with us through His Son. He reconciled the extreme hostility through His son between Himself and man. Bobby is giving us a Communion service here. This is basic soteriology, approaching it from God's viewpoint, and not from ours.
6. God's impersonal love caused Him to redeem man. Propitiation, reconciliation and redemption are the 3 aspects of salvation. He laid His Son down as the price of our redemption to remove man from the slave market of sin. His impersonal love caused Him to redeem man, to pay the price of His Son.
7. His impersonal love was His motivation to atone for the sins of all mankind through His Son. When we think of His 1st Advent, think impersonal love. Jesus in the manger was impersonal love toward us. He came to propitiate, to reconcile and to redeem us. God could not overlook our sin. He had to do for us what we could not do for ourselves.
8. This atonement is the only way that God could accept mankind and not compromise His righteousness and justice in doing it. It is the only way.

How could God do this?

1. All God could do, because of His righteousness and justice, was judge and condemn sin. \
2. Man was the sinner; he had to be judged, unless someone else was judged in his place. The Law demands punishment for a crime.
3. God accepted His Son as a replacement object of death. Our penalty, He took it. We are free to go.
4. Christ was a perfect substitute, because His righteousness equals the Father's righteousness.
5. So the wrath of God would be poured out on the Lord Jesus Christ in order to comply with the just requirement of sin. He was punished for us.
6. God's perfect righteousness was satisfied concerning our sins. All of those sins which man committed, God took them and imputed them and judged them in His Son. We are spiritually dead and God's Son had to come in contact with sin. When He did, Jesus died spiritually. That is what substitution is. This is why we do not have to die.
7. The blood of Christ means the substitutionary death of Christ and this propitiated God the Father. These 6 hours of judgment are the center of human history.
8. So the sacrifice of Christ satisfied the righteous claims of condemnation for all sin.

The most powerful love in human relationships is impersonal love. We tend to think of the most amazing and compelling love as that warm, sweet pleasant feeling that we get for those few with whom we are close and personal. We direct and shower personal love on our favorites, on those we choose to do so. This is the finest of personal love. Still, impersonal love is the key to the greatest relationships of mankind. Our warm, fuzzy relationships with others cannot be maintained without impersonal love. The most important aspect of impersonal love, is the relationship between God and man which cannot exist without impersonal love. Impersonal love is the basis and the divine motivation, the cause for the provision of our salvation. God loves us; we are His creatures and it is clear that He does love us. In this is love, not that we loved God but that He loved us. We have no merit in and of ourselves before God, but He still loves us with impersonal love. This does not mean that He loves us with warm, personal affection. Impersonal love is so powerful, that it solves the great conundrum between God and man. How can God possibly love something which is so unlovable. Our fallen status and sin nature that we acquire the moment that we are born is repugnant to God. As soon as we emerge from the womb, taking that first breath. He imputes to us Adam's original sin. Genetically, we are born with the nature which Adam acquired as a result of his sin. God abhors every cell of our bodies, as each cell has within it, the sin nature. Each cell passes on the sin nature. We are permeated with the sin nature. Rom. 5:18 then through one transgression, and there resulted condemnation to all men. There is no question about our condemnation. We share the sentence of Satan because of our fallen nature. It just takes one sin by Adam, and we are all condemned to the same place as Satan. For God to do anything less than condemn us is a compromise which He cannot do. This would violate His integrity. If God chose love over righteousness, we might be okay, but God cannot focus on just one part of his attributes and ignore the others. God's attributes must all act together. If He forgets about His justice and righteousness and just focuses on His love, then God is not God. God cannot deny any of His attributes. They are all wrapped up together; they are all a part of the same package. Impersonal love is the total concern of God for His creatures who are in rebellion. We are totally depraved and totally apart from God. Impersonal love is a part of God; it is a part of His love.

Impersonal love is all a part of God's love and His inner nature to give. It is God's nature to give grace, and it is not because He sees us as great and wonderful creatures. Impersonal love continuously seeks us in spite of our nature. Condemnation, and yet provision at the same time. Impersonal love in no way depends on our attractiveness to God. We can never merit God's personal love.

All personal love is based upon the merit of someone else. Our personal love is based upon a few. There is no way that we can personally love everyone.

How then does God demonstrate impersonal love?

1. Impersonal love depends solely upon the integrity of the subject; and never upon the sinner. This is true of all impersonal love.

2. Divine impersonal love is the benevolent expression of God in relation to sinful mankind but without accepting or overlooking man's sin.
3. Impersonal love then must be governed by the integrity of God's character, not the non-existent merit of the object. God's impersonal love is governed by His righteousness and justice. In God, also His personal love cannot be placed upon sinful mankind, but His impersonal love based on His integrity gives us everything.
4. Impersonal love is never object oriented. It is not dependent upon an object.
5. God's love cannot be object oriented toward man and remain independent of the imperfection of man.
6. So impersonal love operates within the confines of the character of God.
7. That means that God loves His own perfect righteousness and justice but not man's sinfulness. He cannot love man's sinfulness because of His justice and righteousness. This is the premise upon which God the Father sent God the Son to man on the first Christmas. The birth of the Lord Jesus Christ is the greatest demonstration of the greatest love that there is.

What is this Demonstration?

1. The substitutionary death of Jesus Christ is the only way that God could accept us. Without this atonement of Christ, God cannot accept mankind, or He would compromise His righteousness and justice.
2. All God could do because of His integrity is to judge sin.
3. Man was the sinner; he had to be judged, unless someone was judged in His place. Condemnation had already been decreed.
4. Jesus Christ was acceptable to God the Father as a replacement for us.
5. Jesus Christ was a perfect substitute because the Son's righteousness equals the Father's. This is why it was critical for God the Son to retain His perfection. One little sin would have made this not work.
6. Upon Christ, the wrath of God was poured out to comply with the just punishment of all sin. Righteousness and justice demanded judgment of sin.
7. Because He judged our sins in Christ, God's righteousness was satisfied. God loved His Son personally. Impersonal love is what sent His Son to die for us.
8. The Lord Jesus Christ became our substitute to bear the penalty of our sins so that we do not have to.
9. The sacrifice of Christ satisfied God's righteous claims. That is propitiation; that is what it means.
10. The blood of Christ, which was the substitutionary death of Christ for our sins. Sin is no longer the issue. This provides the opportunity for a personal faith in Him. Impersonal love depends entirely upon God's merit without any dependence upon our merit. God found a way to expunge our sins without any involvement in our sins.

His impersonal love is how God was able to have contact with man and save man.

It is amazing to Bobby when someone says, "A loving God would never condemn anyone to hell." That is a universalist statement. All Bobby knows is, eternity in hell is literal and it is real. It has everything to do with His righteousness. A just and righteous God must condemn.

We would be condemned forever apart from ἀγαπή.

Impersonal love and our Salvation

1. The gift of His Son is how we are saved.
2. Jesus Christ maintained perfection throughout His life.
3. That made Jesus Christ the only person acceptable to God. That is why Gandhi and Mohammed are nothing. They were condemned at birth as well and they are all rotting in hell if they have not believed in Jesus Christ.
4. That made Jesus Christ the only fitting sacrifice to make atonement for our sins.
5. The Father gave His Own Son as a substitute for us. God did not send His Son because He saw potential in us. This is entirely on God.
6. The Lord Jesus Christ gave us the way of salvation in spite of our sin nature and spiritual death. Bobby has never put this together recently until now, God's impersonal love and our salvation.
7. This is the demonstration of impersonal love and that is absolute benevolence.
8. Salvation brings the love and integrity of the subject into focus; the integrity of God Himself. When Jesus was on this earth, He gave us this impersonal love.

The Lord Jesus Christ is the pattern for our spiritual life; He was the prototype of our spiritual life. Jesus Christ retained impersonal love prior to the cross, despite the abuse which He received. He was beaten until unrecognizable and then nailed to the cross, he had to bear the sins of the whole world in His own body. Throughout this entire ordeal, Jesus Christ was absolute silent, without sin, and with impersonal love. Isa. 53:7: He was oppressed and afflicted, yet He opened not His mouth. As a sheep before his shearers is dumb, so He opened not His mouth. The Romans were professions here, and every time in the past, their victims cried out in pain. Only on the cross did Jesus scream, when He said, "My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?" Only at the bearing of our sins did He scream. Only the bearing of our sins over a 6 hour period. That is the most powerful of all love.

For us, the cross was one-sided, completely motivated and caused by the love of God on the cross. Impersonal love is entirely unconditional, emphasizing the subject and not the object. God loves sinful mankind based upon Who He is and not upon who we are. Once again, divine impersonal love is the greatest love which has ever existed.

We do not motivate God's love and we do not improve it. God's love does not even require an object.

We still have to examine God's personal love as well. This does not mean that we deserve it. We have believed in Christ, but this does not mean that we have stopped sinning.

Somehow, we receive God's personal love even though we still sin and have a sin nature.

Lesson #820      1Cor. 13 introduction      December 14, 2008      Sunday 1

ἀγάπη begins with God. He has the absolute attribute of ἀγάπη. Without love as part of His essence, there is no love. Without His love, we cannot know love, we cannot be love and we cannot express love. Many people think that love begins with them; love begins with God. He is the epitome of love, He defines love, He originates love.

When we begin to understand God and His character, we begin to be able to express love. God is the only One that we can love without reservation. Many people think of love as being a physical attraction. We have never seen Him. He is a Spirit.

Reciprocal love for God carries over to other human beings as a part of our spiritual growth. The greater the spiritual maturity, the greater our capacity to love. God has impersonal love toward all and personal love toward believers.

We as human beings are born spiritually dead and physically alive. Through one transgression, there was condemnation upon all mankind.

God cannot and will not tolerate even one sin; He must reject any person for committing even one sin. We have sin natures and we sin on occasion. We are all condemned, simply because we are in Adam. In spite of our flaws, God is able to love us. How does that work? That is the meaning and power of impersonal love. That is how strong impersonal love is.

Someone had to pay for our sins. The moment Jesus was born, He was acceptable as a replacement object for sin and for man. He was born not spiritually dead; He was born spiritually alive and able to have fellowship with God. He was the perfect substitute. When He hung on the cross, the wrath of God was poured out on Him as the just condemnation of our sins. This is why that baby appeared. Hell was created for the devil and his angels; and this is our ultimate punishment as well. The blood of Christ covered and propitiated our sins. This is how impersonal love from God was expressed, depending solely upon the integrity of God and of the Son. The sacrifice of Jesus made us acceptable to God the Father. He could not and did not simply disregard sin.

What is God's Personal love?

1. God's impersonal love encompasses the entire human race. Divine personal love is reserved on for a few.
2. Divine personal love emphasizes a particular object of love, the few. These are the ones acceptable to God's perfect standards. God's personal love must preclude any sin. Those He loves personally must meet His personal standards; we are acceptable in this way, because we are in Christ.

3. Personal love emphasizes the attractiveness of the object.
4. Personal love depends upon rapport with and affinity for the object.
5. Personal love is exclusive; it does not include everyone.
6. God Himself is the only object deserving personal love, He can only love Himself as He has perfect righteousness. God loves all members of the Trinity. They all possess the same essence, and are able to love One Another for that reason.
7. Man is different. Man is imperfect. Man lacks righteousness. No imperfect object is worthy of God's personal love. Even a believer is not attractive to God on his own merits. God does not love us on the basis of our own merit.
8. Believers still have defects and failures. We are believers. We are still sinners after salvation. We still possess a sin nature throughout our temporal life. We can do nothing about that. God has no affinity for our situation.
9. Yet God does love believers as objects of personal love.
10. When anyone believes in Jesus Christ, God establishes a personal exclusive relationship, and that relationship can never be changed, altered, reversed, greater or lesser than at that moment. Once God gives His love, it is permanent. We as humans, we give more and less love; we give love and withdraw love. But God's love is permanent and immutable. It never wavers. This is His unfailing personal love for us.

Under these conditions, can the believer really get God's personal love? What is the difference? We were sinners before and after salvation? God has a means by which He can personally love us after salvation. When you take in the truth of doctrine, you have a body, soul and spirit and you can take in doctrine because of God's personal love which is directed toward us. Part of what God is and part of what He is, is perfect righteousness. That sharing includes a very important imputation, which makes us a recipient of God's perfect love. One of the 39 irrevocable assets, justification, makes us the objects of God's personal love.

Lesson #821

1Cor. 13 Introduction December 14, 2008

Sunday 2

God extends His personal love toward us, even though we have nothing which is inherently attractive, but God continues to love us personally unabated at the moment of our second birth, whether we reciprocate His love or not. The problem is, we are still sinners after salvation.

There is a Wesleyan brand of theology which claims that we do not sin after salvation; but they have to redefine sin as just being known sins.

However, we do not rid ourselves of the sin nature until our physical death.

How God is able to love us is based on Him justifying us, the regeneration package. That is at the heart of His personal love relationship with us.

Justification is an act of God's grace. We deserve nothing, we merit nothing. We are not righteous, but we are made righteous in His sight. God bestows His perfect righteousness on everyone who believes in Him. We do not earn or deserve this, but we have it. Justification is a forensic or legal declaration made toward us. We are vindicated by this; we are declared righteous; we are given a position of righteousness. When God declares us righteous, we are righteous. It is not overlooking sin, it is because our sins have been paid for. Because of that and because we have believed in Jesus Christ, sin is no longer an issue. This declaration is made possible, as the Lord Jesus Christ propitiated (satisfied) God the Father. Jesus paid the penalty for our sins; sin is no longer a barrier. We are no longer spiritually dead. These sins are expunged. Rom. 5:16: And the gift is not as by one having sinned; for indeed the judgment was of one to condemnation, but the free gift is of many deviations to justification. Because of this justification, God's perfect righteousness is not blemished to love us. It is Christ's death and our resultant justification which makes us attractive to God. It is what He gives us, not that which we have as a result of being people. We are not experientially righteous. God does not call us righteous because we follow some set of commandments which please Him. Our life does not please God. Our personal relationship is provided by the grace of God in only one way; we are justified. We are not righteous because we are self righteous, it is because we have been justified. We share in union with Christ His perfect righteousness.

Do we have a reciprocal relationship with God? Yes, but it does not come naturally. The personal love of God is one-sided and extends from Him to us. In the cases where we advance to spiritual maturity, we grow and are able to respond to Him with personal love. We can only have a personal relationship with God based upon salvation and then spiritual growth. Spiritual love and reciprocal love go hand-in-hand. You do not suddenly love God at salvation. There are those in Christmas pageants who swell with emotion, and they think this is love for God. You do not love God if you do not know Him.

This is called the imputation of His righteousness. Rom 5:19: For as through the one man's disobedience the many were constituted sinners, so also through the obedience of the One the many shall be constituted righteous. Adam's original sin was imputed to us as physical birth; this is how much God hates sin. I didn't sin? What did God do this to me? We are related to Adam genetically, and we have his fallen nature as a part of our physical bodies. The first Adam and the last Adam in this verse. Through the obedience of One, we are made righteous. It is a position righteousness which is handed to us, even though we do not deserve it. Rom. 4:3: For what does the Scripture say? "And Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness." Gen. 15:6 How are the two connected?

What Does Imputation Mean with Regards to His personal love for us?

1. Anywhere sin is found, it is not worthy of love.

2. But God loves His Own perfect righteousness, anywhere that it is found. There is no perfect righteousness in any unbeliever. God loves His Own righteousness anywhere that it is found.
3. There is the personal love process:
  - a. We believe in Jesus Christ.
  - b. The righteousness of God is imputed to us at the moment that we are regenerated.
  - c. God recognizes that perfect righteousness in us and He pronounces us justified. Did we do anything? Do you not know anything about efficacious grace? Your faith is non-meritorious. Your faith is a response to something which is done for you.
4. Once we believe in Jesus Christ, He can justify us, and He is able to love us personally for that. The justice of God is free to impute His perfect righteousness to us.
5. Because we are in union with Christ and because we possess His righteousness, we have a personal love relationship with Him.

The question remains, how is it possible for God to make such an imputation to those who believe? Our sins have been paid for; we have been pardoned. Every president decides to pardon criminals, and those who have been pardoned are guilty. We are freed; we have been justified; someone has given us righteousness, even though we are not righteous. God can personally love us, sinners, because He loves His righteousness which has been imputed to us. It is His righteousness and God loves His righteousness wherever it is found. We are able to return His personal love, but we cannot have that without His personal love first?

What else comes down this pipeline of personal love? Everything. This transfer of His personal love to us is grace; grace gives us everything in this life. Nothing is excluded. Without that, we have nothing. This is how God can love us, even as imperfect objects.

God's impersonal love is unconditional; His personal love is conditional. Divine personal love emphasizes the object of His love, which is us, the believer.

Why Does God Love us Personally?

1. What the righteousness of God accepts, the justice of God blesses with personal love.
2. God has accepted His perfect righteousness in the believer.
3. Therefore, there is no more condemnation or the impossibility of a personal relationship with God.
4. God personally loves what His justice approves.
5. Therefore, we are not rejected because of our continuing sins after salvation.

6. With God's perfect righteousness uncompromised because of justification, God is free to personally love members of His family forever. That is the basis of our personal love relationship.

This may seem esoteric. Bobby will use a human example. We do not personally love all people. We do personally love members of our own family. Just think of one of them, or somebody. We do love members of our own family and we know them; they are familiar to us. We know their weaknesses and strengths. We find them attractive and we find them as someone we are able to love. They have some merit in our eyes. They return our love. It is difficult for a person to return love if there is no knowledge of that person. We cannot love someone that we do not know. There is no compatibility, no natural affinity.

The conditional part of God's personal love toward us is His perfect righteousness in us.

Lesson #822

1Cor. 13 Introduction December 17, 2008

Wednesday

Christianity is not a religion; it is a relationship between man and God through Christ. We must remember and understand about this relationship: only God can initiate this relationship. Man has no ability to initiate this relationship. We cannot on our own gain God's favor or elicit His attention. Man attempting to gain God's attention through good works is religion. All other religions adhere to this principle: there is something man can do to gain God's favor. The one word contrast between Christianity and other religions is grace. We are all born physically alive but spiritually dead; and there is nothing that we can do to correct this.

Even nature was cursed when man was cursed. Gen. 3 tells us this. Our concern is the transgression of Adam and that we are all condemned. God demonstrates His love for us in that when we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. God's personal love is directed toward all those who believe in Jesus Christ. Not all mankind receive personal love; only believers receive the personal love of God. This is accomplished because we are in Christ.

God's Personal Love

1. When anyone expresses faith alone in Christ alone, God pronounces him justified.
2. Justification is an act of God's grace and only God's grace, whereby every believer is made righteous in His sight. And Abraham believed God and it was credited to His account as righteousness.
3. Reckened is a judicial act by God has recognizing personal righteousness as belonging to every believer.
4. Justification, therefore, is a judicial imputation. The justice of God the Father imputes His righteousness to the person the moment he believes in Jesus Christ. We have no compatibility with His perfect righteousness. We are not worthy of it. Abraham was justified; He received a judicial imputation upon believing in God. He did not deserve it, but it came by the grace of God.

5. This imputation of perfect righteousness is made possible because the Lord Jesus Christ propitiated God on the cross.
6. Sin is no longer an issue because Christ paid the penalty for sin. The work of Christ results in justification.
7. Justification makes us attractive to God, when, otherwise we are not.
8. Nothing we can do, even as believers in Jesus Christ, can accomplish compatibility with His righteousness. It is given to us. Being justified makes us acceptable to God.
9. The judicial imputation of judicial righteousness establishes a pipeline between God and man, through which God justifies us. The justice of God imputes perfect righteousness to us.
10. Because we possess the righteousness of God by judicial imputation, every believer receives personal love from God through this pipeline. This can only happen because we have His righteousness.

God has an affinity for His Own righteousness, and therefore, He loves His righteousness wherever it is found, when when it has been judicially imputed to us.

God's Personal love and His Righteousness

1. What the righteousness of God accepts, the justice of God is free to bless. Personal love is therefore not compromised by sin.
2. God personally loves what His justice approves. God approves of His righteousness. He can personally love His righteousness.
3. Hence, His perfect righteousness in us, approved by His justice, becomes the target of His personal love.
4. God initiates a perfect love relationship based upon His perfect righteousness.
5. We continue to sin after salvation. Since we do sin and we will continue to sin, His integrity is not compromised by our sin.
6. This is the basis for His personal love relationship with us.
7. God personally loves us, conditioned upon His righteousness being in us. Personal love is conditional.
8. His personal love toward us does not exist without His perfect righteousness in us which attracts His personal love.

What is God's personal love. God relates to us. We cannot relate to Him unless something happens. Relationships are two-sided. We are part of the relationship. We cannot do this unless we develop personal love for Him, which is reciprocal love, which completes our relationship with Him. That is the believer advancing in the spiritual life.

The key builds capacity in us. As that capacity for love is built in us, then we have the capacity for love in Him. That will be called virtue love.

How does God relate and associate to us in personal love? We know it exists, but what does it do for us. Personal love is God's individual love for each one of us. He has a plan for us, and that plan is His love for us. Impersonal love had to come first. Personal love is His policy of grace extended toward all believers. God's impersonal love is expressed by saving grace and His personal love is extended by living grace. God's grace is the expression of His personal love toward believers.

What the justice of God accepts, God is free to bless with personal love. This is the grace pipeline. Grace is the expression of that personal love. Grace is the demonstration of His unfailing personal love toward believers.

How is God's personal love extended toward us? What flows down the grace pipeline? The first thing which comes down is logistical grace. Everything which God does for us by means of logistics, this comes on the basis of God's personal love. It comes down the pipeline whether we deserve it or not. When the plan of God for us is over, then God takes us home. Until our purpose on this planet is over, God keeps us alive. Logistical grace guarantees our daily support.

This earth's environment will not be cured until God takes care of it. That is God's logistical grace. Global warming will never wipe out the human race. 2Peter 3:7: but the presence heavens and earth are being reserved, kept for the day of judgment, and the destruction of ungodly men. We are not going to be destroyed. At the end of the Millennium, we will return. At the end of the Millennium, there will be a revolution.

Heb. 1:14 Rom. Logistical grace provides equal opportunity and equal privilege. Matt. 4:4 John 17:17. God provides everything that we need to advance to maturity.

The grace pipeline is the conduit of all of our blessings. There is no greater demonstration of personal love. God has given us so many gifts. All the logistics and all the resources for this life and our eternal future. Wherever the believer goes and whatever he does, he will be supported by the matchless grace of God.

Once imputed righteousness is given, it cannot be withdrawn. God cannot reverse his work of justification. He promises Abraham that he was made righteous, and God never took it away. The believer can never lose God's personal love. We cannot be separated from His personal love by anything which God does.

We are secure for eternity. When we step out of line, and start down that road, God is going to discipline us. He promised that he would. That is also personal love. That comes straight down the grace pipeline. Heb. 12:6. We are family and He loves His family. However, He will wallop us in ways that we cannot even imagine. He does this because He has a plan for us. It is the best for us. He is absolute benevolence. Most of us have received discipline from our parents, and we may not have felt like it was done in love. Real discipline done in love has great affect. You may not know it at the time. Your parents demonstrate that love, even in discipline. Bobby's father spanked him, and needs no therapy to get over it; and after it was over, Bob kept him on his knee until he stopped crying. "If I did not spank you now and make it hurt now, it would hurt more down the line." Bobby was disciplined for correction and it hurt. Bobby benefitted from it. In blessing or in pain, His personal love extends toward us.

God's infinite, eternal, benevolent love toward us. This should start to make and impact upon us. We should begin to understand that God loves us. God provides everything for us, from birth to death and everything into eternity.

We are about ready to look at our own virtue love as found in 1Cor. 13. This is the knowledge which we need to understand what love is. God's love is the pattern for love. This is so that we can advance to spiritual maturity and show the qualities of God's love. They come through spiritual growth. In spiritual maturity, they will manifest themselves to the greatest extent.

Bobby asks someone, what does it mean to love. If they do not have a clue as to what God's love is, then they do not have the capacity to love you. You may want to find out how much impersonal love and personal love they are capable of. Personal love will fade if impersonal love is not there.

Lesson #823      1Cor. 13 Introduction    December 18, 2008      Thursday

We are continuing with the love of God. His love is the divine motivation for our salvation and it is based upon God's character rather than upon our merit. While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Every believer is the recipient of God's personal love. Every believer has a personal relationship with God as the outcome of God's personal love for us. We love Him because He first loves us. For those whom the Lord loves [personally], those He disciplines and scourges with a whip.

God's love is the source of all love; His love is the pattern of all love. That is why knowing the love of God is important. We can reflect the qualities of God's love in ourselves, and we do it through our spiritual growth. The mind of Christ exhibits the love of Christ. We can attain the mind of Christ, and it is formed in us in our spiritual advance. Our love is patterned after His love. These are the virtues which are named and mentioned in this chapter. Those are the potential qualities of virtues in us.

The whole spectrum of God's love and virtue love. His love extended toward us and how this builds capacity so that we can love others. So that we can acquire this love, first requires reciprocation of God's love for us. Our obligation is to return His love.

As you learn to love God, and gain capacity, it will pay off in your love relationships. You may be asking yourself the question, how is reciprocal love developed in us?

How is Reciprocal Love for God Developed and Realized

1. As you grow, so does your personal love for God. As you metabolize doctrine, so your personal love grows as well. Pretty much everything in the Christian life boils down to your spiritual advance.
2. The 7 compartments of stream of consciousness, and the final compartment is wisdom, the point where doctrine is stored and applied. This doctrine comes out as wisdom and it forms problem solving devices. One of the problem solving devices is personal love for God.
3. The natural result of understanding God's virtue love through spiritual growth is returning His love. This is not hard. It is not some mystery. The natural result of understanding God's virtue love is returning that love, reciprocating that love. You cannot help yourself.
4. When you understand what God has done for you, both in impersonal love and personal love, you are building the capability for return His love with your spiritual growth. We are human, of course, and we do not always reciprocate love as we should. There are no other factors with God. The only reason for not loving Him is you fail to know Him. If you do not know Him, the love of God is not perfect in you.
5. Coming to know Him is coming to know His love is all of its broad scope. At least, this information should be Γνώσις rattling around in our left lobes.
6. In perceiving the doctrine of God's love, you concurrently understand the meaning of all virtue love. God is love, He is the source of love; He is the pattern of love.
7. So now, we have the mind for exhibiting virtue qualities for love in yourself.
8. Understanding His love builds the capacity to develop that love. This simply means that we can love and it is virtue love, not some sloppy, meaningless love.
9. In returning His love, we gain capacity for all love. Even impersonal love toward those people you do not even like.
10. Capacity for all love means love toward mankind in two categories: personal and impersonal love.

Every time you walk into Berachah, you are gathering knowledge, and we believe it, and we begin to build. When you understand the depth and the scope of God's unfailing love, we are inspired to love. This motivation for love becomes the function of our love.

Gratitude is a key element in love. It is one of the greatest things in the world, to feel gratitude for what people have done on your behalf (like parents).

You cannot love God in arrogance; self-centeredness cannot love. The extent to which someone is self-centered is the extent to which they are unable to love. Such a person has no capacity to love.

In your advance, you will gain an inkling of the magnificence of God's love. It is unfathomable otherwise.

The Magnificence of God's Love

1. This knowledge of the magnificence of God's love brings motivation and momentum for us to develop a reciprocal relationship of love with God. The more you advance, the greater your momentum.
2. Admiration and reverence for him flow from orienting to His grace, and learning His perfect character and virtue.
3. This is divine viewpoint, which is the thinking of reciprocal love. Divine viewpoint in us is the mind of Christ. This is how it is developed.
4. So you gain enough knowledge of His love to reproduce that love in yourself, albeit imperfectly.
5. Christ exhibited perfect love during the incarnation. He gained in grace and knowledge and He grew spiritually and physically just as we do.
6. We exhibit that love using the operational spiritual life; we have exactly the same resources as we do. We have the promises of God, which we have as well. We have the faith rest drill; He loved the Father and He understood His mission, which is pure grace.
7. We can never equal His love. We can reflect its characteristics. 1Cor. 13:4ff these describe exactly God's love in the incarnation. Paul wrote this to give us an example of what Christ's love is, and it is also our mission to reflect these qualities.

We might be able to understand the man and a woman love more. Love between a man and a woman begins usually with physical attraction or a surface affinity. This is often called chemistry. All love at first sight is nothing but chemistry, and it is not virtue love. Love without deep familiarity, without rapport of soul is simply attraction and it is not love. Attraction lasts only as long as expectations are met. When things do not go well and virtue love is undeveloped, the whole relationship falls apart.

Emotion and passion mask problems, things which would be normally obvious. Passion tends to disregard the flaws and weaknesses of the whole relationship. You lead with passion and emotion and you disregard the rationality and common sense of love. Common sense is a good thing; it is something which we need.

True love is developed as one person comes to know the character and love of another. Without virtue, a personal love relationship cannot endure relationship. Loyalty, deference, consideration, partiality, and dedication to the object of your love. It is all about having these qualities, and not finding them in someone else. If you do not possess these qualities, you will not be able to find these qualities; you will not recognize them. Do you give deference to the one you love, or does everyone else get your attention. Are you dedicated to the object of your love? You must have these qualities, otherwise it is not virtue love. In the human race works, based upon the character of the participants. Virtue love is the key to true love. If one possesses these qualities and the other one does not, then they can only stay together via impersonal love on the part of the one with those qualities. Impersonal love is where the virtue lies. Personal love is virtue dependent.

God has no flaws. We discover through spiritual advance, His character, so we develop a reciprocal love as we advance in maturity. What are the mechanics and how do we gain that personal love?

Lesson #824

1Cor. 13 Introduction December 21, 2008

Deuteronomy 6:4–5 7:9, 7:13 2John 1:6

The Christian world has many agendas, but most turn to focus on Jesus Christ during this season. We celebrate the birth of Christ, the God-man, the Savior of the Universe, the center of man's history; it was all that God promised to Israel. Whatever event we think is more important, we are wrong. Those 33 years are the central and most important moments of our history. We worship Him in Spirit and in truth.

Today, the shema is repeated in every Synagogue throughout the world. This has always been a call for Israel to call upon God. This is Israel's confession. The Creator, Savior, Sustainer and King. There is something else about the Shema. This is also a call to a relationship with the God of Israel. He is their personal God and the Jews have an exclusive relationship with the God of Israel. God made promises to Israel, and these are the covenants to Israel. God ordained the Jews as a race to be a blessing to the entire earth. The blessing which God promised to the earth would come through the Messiah, Who was in the line of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and David; and He was a Jew. In the future, there will be a 1000 year reign of peace on earth. As are all relationships, they are two-sided. A relationship is not just about one person. To us, it is a unique spiritual life which is a part of the spiritual pipeline.

Deut. 6:4: "Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God, the LORD is one.

What was Israel's part of this relationship? What were they to do with regards to the God Who made a covenant with His people. A reciprocal love relationship was commanded of Israel.

Deut. 6:5 You shall love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your might.

Chesed = unfailing love.

Keeping God's covenant and God's love for 1000 generations, essentially means forever. There have not been even a literal 1000 generations since Abraham. His unfailing love with those who love Him (reciprocal love).

Deu 7:9 Know therefore that the LORD your God is God, the faithful God who keeps covenant and steadfast, unfailing love with those who love Him and keep his commandments, to a thousand generations,

Deu 7:10–12 and repays to their face those who hate him, by destroying them. He will not be slack with one who hates him. He will repay him to his face. You shall therefore be careful to do the commandment and the statutes and the rules that I command you today. "And because you listen to these rules and keep and do them, the LORD your God will keep with you the covenant and the steadfast love that he swore to your fathers.

God will bless Abraham and his descendants. The one who keeps His commandments is an expression of reciprocal love response. This is more than the Ten Commandments. This does not mean that you simply attempt to keep most of them.

Deu 7:13 He will love you, bless you, and multiply you. He will also bless the fruit of your womb and the fruit of your ground, your grain and your wine and your oil, the increase of your herds and the young of your flock, in the land that he swore to your fathers to give you.

The Mosaic Law is not our law; the commandments here are the mystery doctrines of the Church Age. The commandment from the beginning of the Church Age is walking in it; which refers to reciprocal love. We have greater resources and so much more than Israel has.

God's discipline is a part of His love. Reciprocation means returning the love of God to Him.

2John 1:6 And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments; this is the commandment, just as you have heard from the beginning, so that you should walk in it.

How is reciprocal love accomplished? As we grow spiritually and as we metabolize Bible doctrine, and as we establish the mind of Christ in us, we become more and more able to think with the mind of Christ. We have divine viewpoint. Our personal love for God grows, which is synonymous with reciprocal love. From these compartments come all of the problem solving devices which we can use, and one of those is personal love for God. This means that we reciprocate His love. The natural result for us is through our spiritual growth. To know Him is to love Him. When we come to increase our understanding of what God has done for us, we begin to understand all that He has done on our behalf. His love has an unlimited scope. In perceiving His love, we understand His character and all that He has done for us. God's love, being that absolute virtue, is the model for us, for developing the virtue qualities for love in ourselves. When we have the mind of Christ in us, we have the very virtue which was demonstrated by the Lord Jesus Christ. We get this mind by metabolizing doctrine. We can reflect the virtue love demonstrated by Christ. We can demonstrate this virtuous love with all of these qualities. The motivation from Him becomes the function of love in us.

Human personal love is very much like this. The object that we are attracted to is worthy of our love, and their qualities are more and more important to us. If all we have is attraction, emotion and passion, we do not have love. However, as we come to know that person, our love grows. This is how love relationships work. God is infinitely worthy of our love. We do not have to question God's character; He is totally worthy of our love.

The ability to love grows in our soul as we grow spiritually. We develop this actually for God and for people as well. We gain the capacity to love other people. We develop a great capacity for personal love, as we have great integrity. We are also able to deal with that person that we love, but is not altogether loveable now and again. Our impersonal love gets us through this, as He is the model for all love.

We increase our capacity.

1. When we know Him through spiritual maturity, and as we advance, and this increases our capacity to love. We come to appreciate and to respect Him. Two great qualities.
2. Secondly, we show deference to Him, and loyalty and dedication to Him.
3. Thirdly, we develop an attitude of worship. Those are the qualities of worship in point 2.
4. Devotion is the epitome of capacity for love. As we learn about God and His love, our love for Him grows. Our capacity to worship Him grows.
5. Our reciprocal love cannot endure unless we continue to grow in grace and knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ.
6. Carnality and reversionism shatter capacity for love. In fact, they destroy the attitude for any virtue love.
7. Without doctrine in the soul, the expression of love toward God and toward others is superficial and it is not enduring; there is no capacity. There are Christians fighting to get a nativity scene on public grounds; that is not love toward Him, that is politics. If you do not know Him, you do not love Him. The expression of this love is to keep His mandates.

Lesson #825

1Cor. 13 Introduction December 21, 2008

Sunday 2

We must know the object of our love. God takes first place always in our thinking. We have the mind of Christ. This is the very thinking of Christ. Therefore, we can think just as Christ thought. We can think just as Christ thought and we can love just as He loved. We will not love perfectly, but we can reflect the virtue and the love of Christ.

How do we make Christ 1st place?

1. Jesus Christ gets 1st priority, no matter who else or what else is involved. You give priority to the Lord Jesus Christ, even over your spouse. All capacity for love comes from our personal, reciprocal love of God.
2. His thinking develops in us the mind of Christ. That is divine viewpoint. Remember what we are trying to develop here.
3. Divine viewpoint is divine virtue resident in our soul. This is the basis for virtue love. With virtue resident in our soul.
4. His virtue love develops in us. It is directed back in Him as we gain the virtue of spiritual maturity. Spiritual advance leads to personal love. You advance in two columns. The first column is Bible doctrine, which is what we metabolize in order to advance. At the same time, personal love for God moves forward, and it advances at the same rate. As we advance spiritually, our personal love for God increases. This is our capacity for love. As that capacity grows, so also that capacity continues to grow toward man. It is a two-way street. It goes up and it goes down.

We have the opportunity to express our love toward God in worship. Examples of expressing our personal love toward God. On New Year's Eve we will have a communion service. In communion, we memorialize the Person of Jesus Christ. We are occupied with Him; He is the center focus of our thoughts. Therefore, as we have grown spiritually, we are able to better express our personal love toward Him. You meditate on His work and on His grace, on His personal and impersonal love. This should not be a 20 min/month occurrence.

The gyms are filled with people with New Year's resolutions and they are gone by February. Moment-by-moment, just as consistent as our spiritual growth.

The Outworking of our Spiritual Advance

1. The grace pipeline. As we make use of His spiritual assets, we grow. We first believe in Jesus Christ and we have His perfect righteousness imputed to us. The justice of God accepts the righteousness of God in us; then personal love comes flowing down the pipeline. Everything that we have comes flowing down that pipeline. Anytime that we utilize the resources which flow down the pipeline, provided for us by His personal love, we are demonstrating our personal love toward Him.
2. Our spiritual growth and our personal love for God develop on parallel tracks.
3. Your reciprocal love, your personal love for God strengthens as we gain maturity. It is dynamic; it is not static. It never reaches some certain peak and it is all over. We are never completely spiritually mature in this life. The more we grow, the more we see this life for what it is. What is one of the worst things you have to deal with on a daily basis? People testing. There is always someone around who is going to push the envelope on us. The more we develop personal love, the better we can handle it. Toleration does not mean that we force ourselves to be around them. It is amazing how the Lord deals with these various circumstances when we simply depend upon His Word.
4. We sometimes want to learn how to love more, and we check all the self-help books, and capacity for love comes from spiritual advance. That is what makes personal love relationships wonderful. That is what give strength to husbands and wives.
5. As goes your love toward God, so goes your capacity and capability to love others.
6. That capability and capacity always includes impersonal love, which is one half of virtue love. Personal love will not solve a single problem without impersonal love. In our love for God, we never love God impersonally. He is the only worthy and virtuous object of benevolent love.

In our love for God, we never love God impersonally. He is the only worthy and virtuous object of benevolent love. God is always stable; He is always dependable; He can always be trusted. God deserves our constant personal love. Impersonal love solves problems in our personal relationships. There is no problem which needs to be solved between God and us. The only glitch is found in our own soul. We may have an undeveloped personal love toward God, but that problem is with us and not with God.

Every believer is mandated to love God. This mandate is fulfilled by reciprocal love. It revolves around His character and His person. His care and His provision for us is unmatched and is absolutely dependable. We may wonder from time to time why we cannot generate love for God. We may sit there during Communion service and say, "I just cannot feel love for God." The mistake has to do with thinking your emotions must engage. If you are thinking of some doctrine which concerns Jesus Christ, then you are loving Him. You are understanding Him and thinking with divine viewpoint.

Doctrine is the key to everything when it comes to loving God. Without it, there is no loving God. Reciprocal love. We might even feel a little emotion now and again. We might appreciate and enjoy our own thinking; and this is a bonus in our love for God. We were in God's thinking in the divine decree before anyone was created. Our salvation and all of the blessings in our life was in His mind in eternity past.

Knowledge of the divine actions of the Trinity gives us confidence in this life. Sometimes, when we are on top of the world, we have great confidence; but that is not really confidence; that is bravado. Doctrine gives us confidence in God's love which is unassailable. Unfailing love toward us never fails. We can have confidence in that. When love is a certainty in your soul, we are confident in that love. If a person's love waivers, are we confident in it? We can use impersonal love, but we cannot have complete confidence in it. However, we can have complete confidence in the love of God, because He never fails. His blessings and benevolence is always there.

No matter how great your relationship is with your husband or wife, it is nothing like your relationship with God. When you make your relationship with God your priority, then it is the best your other relationships can be. Jesus Christ is the great demonstrator of reciprocal love for us. Jesus learned divine wisdom and He reached spiritual maturity at a very young age. Jesus grew physically and spiritually just as we do. He did it perfectly. He existed in every way that we do, but in perfection. Doctrine dominated His thinking. His thinking was dominated by personal love for God the Father. He was occupied by love for God the Father. He was able to stay focused on the mission and purpose of His life. Matt. 4:11: He was tempted in all things just as we are, but He remained unblemished.

The Lord Jesus Christ was the centerpiece of God's plan, the expression of His impersonal love for us. The Lord Jesus Christ did not operate in the power of His deity, and He could have. He was God; He subordinated Himself to the plan of God. He utilized the same spiritual life which we possess. He utilized the power of God the Holy Spirit. This was manifested in His own personal spiritual life. His impersonal love for us and His personal love to the Father motivated Him to submit to the plan of God. That is the power of impersonal love toward us and personal love toward God the Father.

When Jesus prayed in the Garden of Gethsemene, He said, "Father, if it be Your will, let this cup pass from Me. Nevertheless, not My will but Your will be done." He had the confidence and the staying power to complete His mission. God's personal love for the Father and His impersonal love toward all mankind motivated Him to be obedient to the plan of God. He remained on the cross and He endured the judgment of all the sins of all mankind. The ultimate demonstration of reciprocal love. John 14:31: "That the world may know that I love the Father, as the Father gave Me the commandment." Because of the motivation of this personal love for God the Father, He was able to show impersonal love for all mankind. He showed us the essence of impersonal love toward all mankind.

We will complete the doctrine of ἀγαπή with just that description.

Lesson #1                      Christmas Eve Message    December 24, 2008                      Wednesday

For most, Christmas is a time for gracious giving and this giving is called the spirit of Christmas. In this, let's not forget about those who are wearing the uniform of our country and they can only dream of these things. For them, the believers in Jesus Christ, this Christmas may take on a whole other meaning; many of them are living closer to the birthplace of Jesus Christ. Their sacrifice is more in keeping with the spirit of Christmas, more than is ours. They unselfishly maintain the sacrifice of our country.

None of these things quite measure up to the celebration of the 1st advent of Jesus Christ. One of the most vociferous and grumblers of that age (I forget his name—Thomas Carlyle). For many, revelry versus reflection is the contrast :of different people's reaction to this holiday.

Bobby wants to put Christ back into Christmas. Matt. 1:16: ...and Jacob the father of Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom Jesus was born, who is called Christ. That night, He was given the name Jesus, the name of His humanity, and He was called the Christ, meaning the Messiah. From this one verse, we can be certain that Jesus is the Christ.

2Sam. 7:12–13: When your days are fulfilled and you lie down with your fathers, I will raise up your offspring after you, who shall come from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build a house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. The right to rule Israel would always belong to the line of David. The first 15 verses of Matt. 1 tell us that David was descended from David. Joseph to Jesus through Mary. Matthew is always called the husband of Mary, but never the father of Jesus. The woman was exclusively involved in this process. The Messiah is the seed of the woman in Gen. 3:15. I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your offspring and her offspring [there is a distinction made between the seed of Satan and the seed of the woman]; he shall bruise your head, and you shall bruise his heel. To the woman he said, "I will surely multiply your pain in childbearing; in pain you shall bring forth children. Your desire shall be for your husband, and he shall rule over you." Her seed would be in conflict with the seed of Satan. All mankind is at war with one person. This is the first mention of the Promised One, the Messiah, Satan's mortal enemy.

This term seed is used several times in the Bible Num. and Isa for Jesus. The purpose of the advent of Christ is the bruising of the heel of Jesus. This is combined with the crushing of the head of serpent. This bruise is a fatal blow. Satan's doom is sealed.

The Seed is the greatest expression of God's impersonal love to all mankind.

Gen. 3:15 is called the proto-evangel, as this is the first mention of Jesus Christ. The Scripture continues to elaborate on this. In His humanity, the Messiah must come from another seed.

Gen. 21:21: is not quite the correct passage. But Abraham was told that from himself and Sarai would come the promised one. The Messiah had to be a Jew. Gal. 3:16: Now the promises were made to Abraham and to his offspring. It does not say, "And to offsprings," referring to many, but referring to one, "And to your offspring," who is Christ. In God's promise to Abraham, He was emphasizing just one Offspring. This is why Matthew painstakingly reveals that the Jesus Who is born was a Jew born of Abraham.

This was not the only stipulation. Gen. 49:10: The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff from between his feet, until tribute comes to him; and to him shall be the obedience of the peoples. The ruling authority would be in Judah and from no other tribe could the king come. And it says until Shiloh [the one to whom it belongs] comes. Until He comes, that authority is vested in the tribe of Judah. Anyone who makes the claim to be the Messiah is from the tribe of Judah. Otherwise, he would only be an imposter. Israel forget this prophecy, as they chose Saul as their first king. They choose someone from the line of Benjamin.

God further narrowed the scope. The tribe of Judah was not just an extended family, it was comprised of thousands of people and families. So God chose one family in the tribe of Judah. All of this is done in the New Testament so that those who saw Jesus on that first Christmas evening, that they would know who Jesus was. God confirmed that the Messiah would be from the line of Judah. This would be from the line of Jesse, and Jesse had 8 sons. The prophet Samuel was instructed by God to speak to Jesse's sons and 7 of them were there. None were right. 1Sam. 16:12-13: And he sent and brought him in. Now he was ruddy and had beautiful eyes and was handsome. And the LORD said, "Arise, anoint him, for this is he." Then Samuel took the horn of oil and anointed him in the midst of his brothers. And the Spirit of the LORD rushed upon David from that day forward. And Samuel rose up and went to Ramah. Man looks at the outward appearance and God looks at the heart. Each son that Samuel met impressed him and he thought each one was Israel's king. However, the true king was outside with the sheep. The anointing ritual meant that Jesus was chosen. The Spirit of God came upon David at that time forward.

Issa. 11:1-5: There shall come forth a shoot from the stump of Jesse, and a branch from his roots shall bear fruit. And the Spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him, the Spirit of wisdom and understanding, the Spirit of counsel and might, the Spirit of knowledge and the fear of the LORD. And his delight shall be in the fear of the LORD. He shall not judge by what his eyes see, or decide disputes by what his ears hear, but with righteousness he shall judge the poor, and decide with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall strike the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips he shall kill the wicked. Righteousness shall be the belt of his waist, and faithfulness the belt of his loins. There are figurative words used here: branch and root, both terms synonymous for seed of the woman. Israel was brought to the greatness under David. David conquered the land all around as the king of Israel. God removed all other families from the Messianic line until we come down to the line of David. This is why the first verse of the New Testament reads: The book of the genealogy of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham.

David had many wives and many children. So God made sure that there would be no mistake as to who. God indicates early on that the Messiah, from the line of David, would be supernaturally born. Isa. 7:14: Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign. Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel. Matthew repeats this prophecy. This prophecy was fulfilled when Mary became pregnant with Jesus. Many have said, the Holy Spirit had sex with Mary, but the conception was a miracle. The sin nature of all mankind is propagated genetically through the cell structure of the body. The seed of the man contaminates the cell structure of every person. We are all described as being in Adam. It is the woman who produces one egg a month. The person must be the seed of the woman only and without a sin nature. In female meiosis, Jesus was conceived.

In no other instance is a person called the seed of the woman. This was not a phrase ever used in the ancient world. God clearly stated how His Son would enter the world. The Messiah must produce the credentials of a virgin birth.

God provided even more proof of Messiah-ship. Had the Jews paid any attention to the book of Daniel, they would have known from the book of Daniel that the Messiah would come to them in their time. We studied this in 1Cor. 11. Dan. 9:25–27: Know therefore and understand that from the going out of the word to restore and build Jerusalem to the coming of an anointed one, a prince, there shall be seven weeks. Then for sixty-two weeks it shall be built again with squares and moat, but in a troubled time. And after the sixty-two weeks, an anointed one shall be cut off and shall have nothing. And the people of the prince who is to come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary. Its end shall come with a flood, and to the end there shall be war. Desolations are decreed. And he shall make a strong covenant with many for one week, and for half of the week he shall put an end to sacrifice and offering. And on the wing of abominations shall come one who makes desolate, until the decreed end is poured out on the desolator."

14Nissan 445 B.C. is when the decree was made. The time clock to the day is set up: 173,180 days later takes us to palm Sunday in 30 A.D. or so. Here are these studious Jews would could have studied this timetable and understood that this was the era of the Messiah. So it was in the winter of 4–5 B.C. The Jews of that era missed this prophecy.

God also indicated where Messiah would be born. Micah named the town of Bethlehem in Micah 5:2: But you, O Bethlehem Ephrathah, who are too little to be among the clans of Judah, from you shall come forth for me one who is to be ruler in Israel, whose coming forth is from of old, from ancient days. The Messiah is linked with the God of the Universe. This prophecy was given 800 before Christ.

Matt. 2:1–2: Now after Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, wise men from the east came to Jerusalem, saying, "Where is he who has been born king of the Jews? For we saw his star when it rose and have come to worship him." The Maggias were Gentiles and they arrived sometime after our Lord's birth. They were specialists in astronomy. They were given a sign through their study of the stars and they were able to discern His star, and it had great meaning to them. The advent of the Messiah was a previously known event for this group from as far away as Iran. They had migrated east with copies of the Old Testament. This was Balaam's prophecy of Num. 17 about the star of the Messiah. They simply made a connection with a star that they had not seen before in the heavens, and they made the connection and followed that star. They had believed that this child was the Promised One.

The Maggias knew, but the Jews did not make this association. They quote Micah 5:2 in Matt. 2:6. Right in front of them, the Messiah was born and they did not see it.

Bethlehem was known as the city of David and it was his stronghold and it was also the place where he was buried. Micah tells us that the King of Kings would come from that city. Jesus completely fulfilled the prophecy of Micah. This was another indicator surrounding the circumstances of the birth of Jesus.

The Maggias is a fascinating story. Only wise men seek Christ; only wise men recognize Him. So each of us must look up at the true light of Christmas. He is foremost on the day when we celebrate that event. The Jews of Jesus' day should have recognized the Messiah. The exact time and location of His birth was known. He was testified to by many at His birth and early on. As Christians, we accept His credentials. In our Christmas, do we ignore Him?

Two women were celebrating at a fashionable restaurant. One woman said, "We are celebrating my baby's first birthday." "Where is he?" "Why bring him? He would not understand any of this." To His grace, we owe everything.

Reciprocal love for God, which means to return to God what He has already given to us. We also have His love given personally to us, as we have been justified. The justice of God imputed His righteousness to us, which is the target for His personal love for us. All of that is a part of what He provided for us. When we reciprocate His love, we are involved in the training ground for all other love relationships in life. Capacity to love all other people is predicated upon our capacity to love God. Capacity is the name of the game. Capacity to love is the ability to love with our own virtue, personally and impersonally to the maximum. Capacity to love God is built upon the acquisition and function of the love for God. He learn to love God and this gives us the ability to love with great capacity.

He makes it so clear to us what our objective is. All of us are mandated to reciprocate with God's great and incredible love. That mandate is best found in Deut. 6:5: And you will love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul and with all your might. As we progress in our spiritual life, we begin to love Him with all of our heart, as doctrine flows through the stream of consciousness. This is how we reciprocate the love of God. This love is our obligation and our privilege, because we are reciprocating something which is almost unimaginable. This is also the gateway to all loves in our life. In fulfilling the mandate to love God to reciprocate that love, we must learn about Him. The only way to love is to know. We must get to know Him in order to build love for Him. We increasingly know Him only through His Word. Understanding His love is only through metabolizing Bible doctrine.

When we know God, we may develop emotions about God; however, our emotions are not the key. Our emotional response is responding to what we know. But you do not put the cart before the horse. You must know God first, which is true of human relationships as well. This is also the way that we grow to spiritual maturity. At the same time that we grow in grace we will increase in our love for God. Spiritual maturity and love for God grow in tandem. Love is a motivator. Love motivates many things in life. Personal love for God is the greatest motivator in life. Human beings are motivated by all kinds of things: love, greed, jealousy, emotion; but when you are motivated by personal love for God, then you are properly motivated for all things. Building capacity to love Him will parallel your spiritual growth; it is a two column advance. At the same rate that you grow spiritually, you advance in your love for God. If you are spiritual maturity, then your capacity to love God is increased. If you gain in capacity for reciprocal love, then you also grow in capacity to love other people.

Our reciprocal love has results. The first is an aggressive love as a part of our reciprocal love. Secondly, we develop a responding love. These are the reciprocal and responder loves of husband and wife.

Aggressive love. Half of reciprocal love is an aggressive love toward. God. This might describe David's motivation to build a Temple for God. God has provided salvation and then a spiritual life, and that is aggressive love, both personal and impersonal love.

Our aggressive love toward God is a vigorous drive to know God. We are proactive in our pursuit off God and knowing Him. God's attractiveness is unlimited. He is completely worthy of God's love. When you decide there is a person that you want to know, you pursue, you get aggressive (you don't stalk). God is a worth object of aggressive love. We must recognize His overwhelming appeal through doctrine. What it means to be aggressive in love is persistent advance in the spiritual life. This is how we attain personal love for God. We can only know God through His Word. He is invisible to us. How do you love something which is invisible? How are you aggressive toward someone who is not in your line of sight. You cannot make some pithy remark and make God laugh. How do you get aggressive toward an invisible God? You get to know Him and love Him through ἐπίγνωσις doctrine in your soul. And though you have not seen Him, yet you love Him God is invisible to us. Only Jesus was seen, and that was 2000 years ago. Yet you do not see Him now, but you believe in Him

How is aggressive love manifested in us?

1. This is through an enduring devotion to God. This is our aggressive love; the ἐπίγνωσις which we implant in our souls.
2. It is a wonderful quality of unremitting concentration and it is what you concentrate on all of the time; or most of the time. It is your intense focus in this life.
3. Focus and concentration of what is invisible. It is had to focus on that which you cannot see.
4. You gain enduring devotion when you persistently and consistently think Bible doctrine. This is how you gain devotion. Some churches think you gain devotion by walking into a church and seeing a cross with Jesus on there and there is some guy who blathers on about stuff which is not really true. If you leave and you no longer think about Him, then you have no devotion. Do you apply doctrine at any point in your day? Do you think about God? Do you focus on God anytime out of church? Aggressive love is what we are mandated to do. We will love Him with all your heart, all your soul, and all your might.
5. Intensity of focus means that we do not stop our intake of doctrine no matter what the circumstances. As soon as we do, we lose devotion. That is aggressive. Nothing stops you in it. No matter what, you focus. You say, "Okay, what does that do for me?" You develop problem solving devices as your love toward God grows.
6. The more you advance, the more you come to know Him, the greater your intensity of devotion. Your spiritual growth. Half of your reciprocal love is this aggressive love.

Your spiritual life grows as does your devotion to God. People strain on this. They wonder what love is. They go to seminars on it; they read self-help books on love. What is the result of this intense enduring devotion?

Responding Love

This is side two of love.

1. As you advance, you gain respect for God. Some people want respect, and yet they have done nothing to gain respect. "I want respect. You've got to respect me." You often will not respect someone unless they are worthy of respect. Some people, we respect them less as we get to know them. We often do not know anyone enough to respect them.

2. Respect is our response to the expression of God's love. The expression of God's love is the grace of God. This is why grace is such a wonderful word. It expresses all that God is and all that God does for us. We know God and He is utterly worthy of respect.
3. Grace orientation and humility is your attitude of respect. When we become grace orientation, we become oriented to His love, and we develop humility. If we are arrogant, we respect no one but ourselves. Arrogant people do not respect anyone else but themselves. Their souls are too full of themselves.
4. For you as a believer in Jesus Christ, you cannot maintain respect for God when you neglect or reject Bible doctrine. That is our aggressive love. When we stop being aggressive in our reciprocal love, we do not have any respect. When we remain in carnality, we are disrespectful.
5. Carnality, being out of fellowship, is flaunting God's mandates. We are mandated not to sin. This flaunts His Word. This abuses His grace. This is disrespect.
6. There is no respect and no response where there is disobedience to His Word. Deut. 6:5. You cannot do this if you are failing in aggressive love.
7. God's personal love response to disobedience is divine discipline for correction. He demands respect. If He does not get it, He will discipline us until we respect Him. You respect those you listen to. If you do not listen to Bible doctrine, you will get thumped hard until you do. When God disciplines us, He does so with Bible doctrine. Reassert aggressive love and respond.

Lesson #827

Sunday 2

Reciprocal love for God in all of its categories. Spiritual growth is the metabolized Bible doctrine, it goes into the right lobe of the soul, you think Bible doctrine, and that is how you grow spiritually. There is another side of this, and that is the development of reciprocal love for God. You grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. Reciprocal love is made up of aggressive and responding love. We saw that aggressive love is our focus, our concentration on the object of our love. We focus on Bible doctrine. The only way that we can love invisible love is through Bible doctrine. The more we are positive toward Bible doctrine, the more we metabolize it, the more that we grow spiritually. We respond to His aggressive love by respect. if we know someone well and they do not deserve any respect, then we often have no respect for them. That is our responding love.

Let's go back to aggressive love, and the overarching principle is an enduring devotion. There is an intensity and this means that we do not stop our intake of doctrine, no matter what the circumstances. The characteristics of enduring devotion, we develop a dedication to the Lord. We hear it a lot, but we often do not understand it. Our dedication means if we are dedicated to His Word, then we are dedicated to Him. Do not mistake His Word for Him; but we can only know God through His Word. Neglect or rejection of Bible doctrine is the opposite of dedication. If you walk into this auditorium and you can't wait to hear the Word of God; or you look forward to hearing an MP3, that means that you are dedicated to Him. You obey the mandates of the Word of God. You begin to live as the mandates of God instruct you. You will love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul and with all your might. In enduring devotion, we become dedicated. As we continue the march of our aggressive advance, we acquire a heightened dedication. This we might call consecration. Do you really understand what that means?

Consecration

1. The function of motivation in the mature believer. This is not baptism, which is simply a recognition of salvation. You are not saved for being baptized. Baptism is merely a witness to that. Our consecration is not about being sprinkled.
2. Consecration is a superior dedication to the principle of a harmonious rapport with God. This ought to conjure a perfect love relationship where you have little conflict; an emotional, even a physical understanding. If you have that in your life with your loved ones, that will be the best.
3. This is the committed willingness for God to accomplish the will of God for our life. And God takes care of us as well. His personal love for us is never more obvious than in the blessings which we have when operating inside the plan of God. This is not just when in times of adversity but in times of prosperity as well. Casting all your cares upon Him for He cares for you. That is harmonious rapport.
4. This consecration is the staying power of your enduring devotion. With people, our devotion sometimes wavers. It wavers by how we are treated by our opposite number.
5. Consecration is endurance. Endurance in the plan of God, in our reciprocal love. We continue to love Him reciprocally for the rest of our lives.

The results of this consecration and reciprocation is a loyalty to Him. No one else takes precedence, all other relationships are increased and enhanced. When we express loyalty toward God, we gain capacity for loyalty, and this means more loyalty toward our loved ones. When we develop reciprocal love, we develop capacity for love. Whatever we develop toward God, is also developed toward other people. It is acquiring capacity for love in general. This is the advance in reciprocal love.

Responding love is our worship of God. Aggressive love is developing our spiritual life; and responding love is thankfulness in what He has provided for us. When we understand what someone else's love means, then our love is thankful that we can bask in the aura of that love. Aggressive love must come first before we have responsive love. One does not work without the other.

The two categories of love is aggressive and responsive. Love is so connected with our spiritual life. There is no way that it cannot be connected.

Responding love is gratitude and appreciation. These are the focal points of awe, wonder, and adoration formed by our intimate knowledge of God's essence and His activities which reflect His unfailing love for us. If we have devotion, we have capacity for love.

The Quality of Deference

1. The believer submits, obeys the judgments, mandates of the will of God. We know them by our aggressive love. We bow to God's aggressive love in all things. No longer do we pick and choose what we want to obey. I like this one and I don't like that one. You cannot pick and choose; that is not deference. When you accept His authority, then you obey Him. When you join a platoon, the lieutenant is your authority, no matter what an idiot he might be. You do not pick and choose those orders which you want to follow. The authority of God is bound up in the Word of God. If you do not know the Word of God, then you do not know the will of God. This is all bound up in your aggressive love.
2. Consideration; you give God primary consideration, which involves careful thought on Him and on Bible doctrine. When you do that, you evaluate the circumstances of life based upon the light of doctrine and the light of eternity. That becomes the greatest consideration in your thinking. The more you consider Bible doctrine, the more you are responding to that doctrine in all circumstances of life. That is the application of Bible doctrine. That is giving consideration to Him.
3. Esteem; you esteem God by assigning the highest value to His norms and standards. His norms and standards are learned through our aggressive love. Now we are responding to that with esteem. We appreciate His benevolence. As we esteem Him, we begin to truly appreciate His benevolence. All else is supremely inferior. Many of us put personal love toward certain people in our lives. What did I do to get this love or what have I done to lose this love. When we show esteem for God, all else is inferior. We get our esteem not by how others think of us, but how our relationship from God is.
4. Partiality; we have partiality toward God. No person is above Him. It is easy to put things and people ahead of God. Partiality is our response. Nothing and no one is above Him. We favor divine viewpoint in all things. We simply do not put anything ahead of God. Deut. 4:39: And you shall know this day, and shall consider in your heart, that the Lord your God, He is God in heaven above, and on the earth below, and there is none else but He. Aggressive love and responding with partiality. Partiality is the very foundation for our worship for God. Military communion is also a wonderful thing to watch. We recognize the divine establishment freedom, and those who have served and died for our freedom. This uniforms of our country should always be given partiality. And God is so much more worth our partiality. When we concentrate on the Lord in our communion, that is when real partiality comes out.
5. Adoration; God is the One we adore. If you have ever heard, I adore you, that is a personal high. That is what you want from a husband or wife or a bf or gf. The wise men from the east were not there. The east was Parthia, from modern-day Iran. It took them awhile and they arrived when Jesus was already in a house. They were gentiles who came all the way from Parthia just to see the Messiah, just to look at Him. That is adoration. How do you look at Him today? Instead of traveling from Parthia to Bethlehem, you travel from home to Berachah.

One good example would be marriage. This illustrates aggressive and responding love. The husband is the initiator of love. It is always about devotion; enduring devotion comes from Bible doctrine. In marriage, enduring devotion does not come from having papers on one another or because you both wear rings. When a wife receives enduring devotion, that is capacity for love. You cannot show enduring devotion without capacity for love. You gain it by gaining reciprocal love; by growing spiritually. If you have capacity to love God, then you develop enduring devotion forward God and then will develop enduring devotion toward the opposite number. When the wife gets enduring devotion, then that capacity is respect.

In the husband, enduring devotion means something; he has a deep focus and concentration on his wife. It is a focus. His love is consistent and persistent. Circumstances can get rough in marriage. This does not just happen; it is developed. She counters and responds with deference and admiration. This means that she defers to his authority. He has the authority roll in marriage. In other words, his leadership. Leadership comes from enduring devotion. This does not mean that authority is not sometimes tough. The best officers in the military are those who care about his men; they know he has their best interests at heart, even if he is tough. She defers to his authority and she is secure and confident in that enduring devotion. His leadership provides that security. So she is the love of his life. We are all wives here in our relationship with God; we respond with reciprocal love. Bobby is building category upon category. The man has enduring devotion, which leads to enduring loyalty to her; which relationship takes importance over all other relationships. The woman is his primary focus. Our primary focus as believers is Jesus Christ. We may have to focus on many things in our lives, but our enduring loyalty to Him; we are faithful, and He initiates this faithfulness. Our devotion to doctrine gives capacity to loyalty. Her response to his loyalty is devotion. This is where real intimacy comes in. Without this security in the woman or loyalty in the man, there is no intimacy. This is all principle. The man's dedication and consecration to his wife is the highest form of love.

The results are incredible. Is it worth it? Maybe we will understand what God has given us in ἀγάπη love.

Lesson #1                      New Year's Eve Message   December 31, 2008                      Wednesday

Lev. 26 has five cycles of discipline.

A client nation is where a certain number of believers have formed a pivot, which is a number of believers who have moved into maturity. It is through this pivot of mature believers that Jesus Christ controls history. Without the pivot, the nation becomes cowardly and the privileges of God go elsewhere. Matt. 5:13–16 is the salt of the earth principles.

Client Nation

1. Custodianship of communicat of Bible doctrine to provide a haven for the Jews from anti-semitic persecution.
2. The client nation sends Biblically orthodox missionaries out.

3. Collective decisions of these believers affect the movement of the nation.

Very little execution of the plan of God individually or corporately in the church, when they go into apostasy. There is internal failure of the pivot, which destroys the client nation and their prosperity.

The second cycle of discipline in Lev 26:18–20: And if you still refuse to hearken to Me, then will I chasten you yet more, even seven times for your sins. And I will break down the haughtiness of your pride; and I will make your heaven iron, and your earth like brass. And your strength shall be in vain; and your land shall not yield its seed, and the tree of your field shall not yield its fruit.

Client nation USA finds itself in the midst of the second cycle of discipline. We have taken on human solutions to our problems rather than to look toward God and His Word. Our sky is iron and our earth is bronze; that is our economic drought. How did we get here? Economic breakdown is preceded by a lust for money and great economic affluence. Integrity is replaced by a power struggle. This struggle exacerbates an economic struggle and downturn.

3 entities are involved: management, labor and government are all involved. Management must take capital and convert this into production. Labor carries out the production. Government regulates and oversees the whole thing. National prosperity depends upon all of these staying in balance, where greed is unchecked. Management is inefficient in its use of capital and self-indulgent in its desire for excessive money. Labor implacably negotiates with management. Their demands become disproportionate, inflated, and they kill the goose which laid the golden egg. Labor unions and management are locked in a greedy power struggle for greater share of the pie. Government also seeks its share of the pie. The government is legislative and regulating. They allegedly step in to resolve problems and to control the market place in the guise of reform. But government is just as power hungry and greedy as the other two. Government nationalizes industry. They are a great contributing cause to economic disaster.

The government should be balanced; public debt should be reduced. People must learn to work rather than living on public assistance. Written in 55 B.C. by Cicero. Government bribes people and when people find they can get a handout without working, they vote for the handout. This has led to the legislative branch of government over-regulating business. Management has discovered entitlements of its own in the form of bailouts. Government moves in, not supporting freedom and self-determination, but they move in to take more money and to assume more power. Socialism is the state first controlling and then nationalizing certain industries and businesses, and then redistributing wealth in the name of fairness and equity. This destroys the free marketplace. Why work hard if you are giving the fruits of your labor away or if you can get it for free?

Under this system, the American dream dies, which is wrapped up in the freedom of individual achievement. Our government is considering a way to redistribute wealth; to dump all of our savings into one big pot; a nationalized socialized system. The money would be distributed equally to all. If you have worked hard all your lives for a nest egg, it will be given to those who did not. You are brought to the same standard of living where government wants you to be. This is socialism in just one of its forms. Government is no longer serving the people. The power grab by government corrupts free enterprise and corrupts capitalism and prosperity.

The power struggle has been taken over by the government. Christians are embracing a false hope based upon naive altruism and socialism. They place their hope in legislation, whether the Sierra Club or the national Rifle Association. An organization cannot replace spiritual growth. The pivot has distorted the truth; Bible doctrine is not being taught. The light of truth is not being taught. Believers are confused and blown about by every wind of human viewpoint. An imbalance of power and greed also diffuse the light; and the panacea of socialism also diffuses the light of truth, and bring discipline upon the client nation. God never honors the loss of truth in a client nation. Do you see a man wise in his own eyes? There is more hope for a fool than for him. He is so right and so self-righteous and for such a one, the end justifies the means. The arrogant one is so wrong, because Prov. 26:12 tells us the fool is wiser than this arrogant man. We have an imbalance of power because of labor, management and government. What will God do?

Lev. 26:19: And I will break down the haughtiness of your pride; and I will make your heaven iron, and your earth like brass.

The responsibility should be directly upon us, as believers. If you decide to follow your own plan, then you take the country down. National prosperity in our country has gone missing. "Give us a year and we will be back on track" but we as a nation cannot have national prosperity with unsound banking. There cannot be prosperity with excessive taxation or excessive regulation. Robin Hood government will not bring prosperity. We have to have the client nation. A nation obsessed with greed will not prosper.

What is the solution for the cycle of discipline that we are in? Only an enlarged growing pivot will save this nation from a continued disaster. Economic recovery will depend upon our attitude toward Bible doctrine. Ask yourself, "What does your attitude have to do with the economy of the US?" Lev. 26 is all about the nation which is out of whack and resisting God. God is the source of all blessing. His discipline on a client nation is the removal of economic blessing. It happened in Rome in the exact same way. Our recession is for one purpose and that is to wake up believers in Jesus Christ. Do you think greedy government, management or labor are not going to solve this problem. Human solutions are no-solutions. Their solutions are temporary at best. We can be a part of the solution. Spiritual growth; advance to the high ground of maturity. The rest of the client nation is blessed by association.

2Chron. 7:14: if my people who are called by my name humble themselves, and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and heal their land. This is God's solution responding to believers. Humble yourselves first, seek My face. Even though this verse was for Israel, these are for believers in a client nation. God's people need to humble themselves, which is grace orientation. This is the attitude of humility which comes from grace orientation. This is the opposite of the arrogance and the greed brought on by the 2nd cycle of discipline. Prayer is a great power, a weapon, and that is next to do. The great prayer of a believer in fellowship is far more important than the machinations of greedy unbelievers. God is not limited by man; God's solutions are eternal and unlimited. Ask and you will receive. Consistently and constantly pray for your nation. You pray on a continuous, consistent basis. Enough prayer from an expanding pivot is the means for restored prosperity.

The 3rd part is to restore the pivot of the client nation; pray, and then seek God's face. This is the positive volition for Bible doctrine. The result is the advance which builds the pivot which has crumbled. Turning from wicket ways is that combination of rebound, spiritual advance and the recovery of proper norms and standards. God then says, "I will hear your prayer from heaven, and I will forget your sin, and I will heal your land." God heals the land and He does it through people like us. We hold the keys to the kingdom.

The Crystal Ball: doctrine is the truth because it is of God and God is truth. It is the absolute standard by which everything is measured. The problems and the solutions are all readily available. Last year, this would be a year of testing. People have written to Bobby about personal testing which have occurred. We are growing and our service. Prayer and exercising our spiritual gift. This was also a year of national confusion. The pivot is suspect for that reason. That means we are entering into another year of diffusion of truth and strong delusion. Diffusion of the light of truth and of Bible doctrine. The delusion of human viewpoint is the result. Israel receives discipline for going awry, and so the US finds itself in the same place. We are deluded because of our socialistic solutions to our economic woes. We are blinded. We are seeking solutions in places where we should not seek them. There is a live pivot and there are enough believers who can turn this around.

Consistent positive volition toward Bible doctrine on the part of the remaining pivot is the order of the year. Do not succumb to diffusion of truth. Pray for the deliverance of our nation. Develop an attitude of humility. If you see recovery, the pivot is alive and well.

Lesson #none                      New Year's Day    January 1, 2009                      Thursday

Lesson #828                      1Cor. 13:    January 4, 2009                      Sunday 1

If God loved us so much as to send His Son, and if He then loved us personally that, in a moment of time, we are justified and we get God's love through the grace pipeline. And if He provides for us, logistical grace and living grace and dying grace and eternity in heaven, is that not enough reason for us to return His love. We are mandated to love Him and we have a commitment to do so. That is our dedication.

When you get married, it is expected of you to love your spouse; and a husband is supposed to love his wife by mandate. A necessity and a commitment. It makes marriage work and it makes a marriage endure. You must consistently persist in personal love. Even though that is a mandate and a necessity, it is still a choice as to whether or not you do it or not.

Believers are called His bride. Each one of us are the bride of Christ, meaning that we are married to Him at salvation. This is never retracted. There is never a time when He retracts His love or our marriage. Matt. 22:37. This is a mandate for us in the Old and New Testaments. We are required to respond to Him as our husband. Each one of us is married to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Mandates are one thing. Love cannot be forced or coerced, even by God. To insure our love and to insure that we fulfill the mandate to love God, would require God to remove our volition. Volition is a part of our soul; it is part of our image of God. God does not remove our volition. This would make every person a machine. Love must be freely given by one party to another. Mandate or no mandate. Whether toward another person or God, personal love is mandated, but part of our decision to do so. The charge then to love God is fulfilled by our volition responding positively to Him. Now, God is deserving of our love and it is because of Who He is. Love not freely given is not love. God wants love from us. He wants us to love Him because we have discovered His worthiness. The mandate can be fulfilled. We must choose to love Him and to live our commitment to Him. We must actively pursue love with Him, which is a persistent and consistent set of decisions. Many times that vow only lasts as long as the first couple fights or expectations are not met.

It is actually quite easy to reciprocate God's love. It is a natural response. In responding, we fulfill that commitment and that obligation. The capacity for all great love in your life. This is also building capacity in your soul for all love. We are mandated to love our neighbor and to love God. Our capacity to love God helps to build our capacity toward those we cannot stand. It all begins with that reciprocal love.

You get to know God in Bible class. This is just through His Word. This is what He has revealed of Himself to us. We worship Him in Spirit and in truth. Filling of the Holy Spirit and Bible doctrine. We doggedly and positively pursue the mandate to grow in grace and the knowledge of our Lord and Savior. Consistency and an enduring devotion gained by your continued knowledge of Him. When you see your spouse, do you think back on your vow? Probably not. You might look at them and say, "I don't know about this person any more." But this cannot be with God, as God is perfect and His character does not change.

If you reject His Word, then there is no way to reciprocate God's love. Fulfilling His mandate to love Him is our choice and fulfilling the commitment as His bride is our choice. As we respond to His Word, as we build the mind of Christ in us, and mind of Christ in us provides the acknowledgment of His absolute benevolence. It builds this understanding of Who He is. God thinks doctrine; and doctrine is absolute truth. From Him proceeds all truth.

You do not find the right person, you are that person. We expect to find someone who is perfect and then we choose to give them our personal love. It starts with us. We can control ourselves and how we love them. This is why the virtue and benevolence of impersonal love is so important. You need virtue love in order to function. When someone stays around only as long as their needs are met, then they have no virtue love. As reciprocal love develops, it becomes the motivation for our life. Many of the things which we do is out of love. It motivates us as people.

We love our children unconditionally. The greatest motivator of love is reciprocal love for God. It builds greater and greater capacity to love Him. The mental attitude of reciprocal love grows in the believer.

There is an attitude of reciprocal love. What does that mean by way of attitude? Grace orientation leading to humility. We orient to the reality of who we are, without Christ and with Christ. We understand what God has done for us in love and what rejection of that love means. As you begin to understand that the grace of God supplies everything that we need in this life. My God will supply all your needs in Christ Jesus. You think the economy is bad; you think your needs might not be fulfilled? In the face of all of your life, when you build confidence in the Lord because you reciprocate His love, you learn total dependence upon Him based on humility. When we get to that point, we can call ourselves humble. Unless you have humility of soul, based upon grace orientation, unless you understand that you are nothing without Him, you have no confidence in this life.

Living the spiritual life and reciprocating God's love requires an attitude of humility.

1. Humility and grace orientation recognizes the authority of Jesus Christ as the ruler of the church. There is an authority greater than our own. There is a system of authority in marriage; initiation and response. The wife is the responder, the follower; that is how God designed it. We are the bride and He is the husband.
2. In humility, the believer recognizes the immensity and the power of His unending love for us. We all have expectations of how we would like to be loved and we choose our spouse and friends based upon how they will fulfill our expectations. We recognize that we do not deserve that, but He gives it anyway.
3. With an attitude of humility, we submit to His plan. Maybe we think we have found another way to go. Humility means that grace orientation is first in our thinking; it is the ability to submit to God's plan. The reason we remain on this earth is to fulfill His plan for our lives. Grace orientation and reciprocal love must be first in our thinking.
4. Humility enables us to live within the directive will of God. That is doctrine and truth. That is what guides us. Truth shall be our guide. Without humility, you often make decisions from a position of weakness. The good decisions come from Bible doctrine in the soul. Humility to respond to His Word. When you hurt, you know it is from the love of God.
5. Humility and grace orientation are the impetus behind our positive response to God's plan for our life. It is an attitude of gratitude. That is humility. God has done far more for us than we could ever do for ourselves.

If we personally love another person, then we stick with them. In God's case, love for Him is mandated; it is not optional. There are no constraining aspects to this love. We are to love Him with all our heart, soul and might.

Moving away from Him is to devastate our personal life and it will destroy all of our personal relationships. There must be a lot of compatibility with God; and if someone does not have the capacity to love in their souls, then they cannot love us.

Lesson #829

1John 4:16–19 January 4, 2009

Sunday 2

God's love is an essential attribute. This is His absolute virtue and the thinking of His actions toward us. This is where it all begins.

1John 4:16 So we have come to know and to believe the love that God has for us. God is love, and whoever abides in love abides in God, and God abides in him.

We mature in that reciprocal love. The day of judgment is the day we die and face the Lord in eternity. We will all face this; what confidence does the unbeliever have standing before God? This will be the most terrible moment of their existence. We are not just protected, we have confidence when we stand before the Judgment Seat of Christ.

As He is, so also are we in this world.

1John 4:17 By this [a believer coming to maturity] is love perfected with us, so that we may have confidence for the day of judgment, because as He is so also are we in this world.

Fear permeates so many lives. This is how we ought to understand that sign, no fear. Perfect love refers to a mature love, a mature spiritual life which brings a mature love toward God. A mature love throws out fear. This is because fear involves punishment. When the emotions of fear take hold of your soul, this means pain and suffering. We punish ourselves by harboring fear in our souls. God will not leave us in the lurch choked by fear. He wants us to get back on track. That reciprocal love casts our fear. Fear involves punishment, and the one who fears is not perfected in love. If we have fear in our life, and if every adversity scares us, then we are not growing.

A lifestyle of fear is the opposite of a mature love. Fear is not only overcome, but it is defeated. When you use the love of God rationale in your life rather than being overcome with fear is a great moment.

1John 4:18 There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear. For fear has to do with punishment, and whoever fears has not been perfected in love.

The Church Age believer's reciprocal love. The supreme motivator and perfecter of the spiritual life. Πρωτος He first loved us. First in sequence.

Protos

1. God's love for us preceded our reciprocal love for Him. It was the first in the sequence of agapê. Also His love for us certainly precedes all love for Him. His love is always first in sequence. God loves us and God loves us. It is hard to understand. Bobby knows himself. So he knows that he is undeserving of love.
2. The love and grace extended toward us from eternity past sets up the pattern for our reciprocity. Without it, there is no reciprocity. His grace extended toward us is the pattern. He is infinitely worthy of our love.
3. As 1John 4:16 says, when we come to know the incredible scope of the riches of God's love for us, then we respond with love for Him. This is an intimate exchange. God first and then us. When you discover the depth of someone's personal love for us, we often fall in love back. We like how they treat us; we like how they feel about us. When we discover His absolute virtue and the perfection of His thinking, we fall in love. God's love becomes our point of reference in life. Reference is to direct attention toward something of importance. To direct our attention toward something important or something of great personal interest. Every Church Age believer has a point of reference upon which to focus his reciprocal love. This is the focus on the greatest spiritual life in all of history. This is the unique spiritual life. This is how we gain His love. As He is, so also are we in this world. His love is our point of reference. His love is the motivation, the foundation and the paradigm in our personal love.

Jesus demonstrated perfect love when on this earth, when He lived among us as perfect humanity. This He did to perfection. We do not see Him; we do not have the chance to see Him walk this earth. Certain men of that generation wrote of how Jesus Christ demonstrated great personal love. During His time on this earth, He was the prototype for our spiritual life. He advanced spiritually at a young age. He developed His spiritual life the same way that we do. He was motivated by perfect reciprocal love for God the Father. Jesus Christ not once for even an instance departed from the plan of God for His life. Depart from God's will for an instant is sin, and He never sinned. God's love motivated Him to go to the cross and to stay on the cross. That is the greatest love which has ever been. He understood the Word of God. He grew in grace and knowledge and He understood the plan of God in His humanity.

Jesus was truly human just as we are and He grew in Bible doctrine. He lived the spiritual life just as we do. That is what qualifies Him to be our Savior. That is how He can be the Mediator between God and man, to satisfy the justice of God. It is the same for us. Reciprocal love is as central to us as to the spiritual life of our Lord. We have what He had. We can reciprocate God's love.

Personal reciprocal love builds up confidence in God. Fear is stress. Reciprocal love builds up confidence so that we can do without fear. All of this stress of life is always there. It is inevitable. It is there. The inner stress in our souls is optional. Outer adversity is a constant, but it does not need to be reflected by our inner stress. To escape inner stress requires several things. The filling of the Holy Spirit and the consistent use of gap and advance in the spiritual life. In that advance, developing confidence in reciprocal love. Is our confidence is less than the adversity that we face, then we are going straight to stress. So stress will control our life because the sin nature controls our life. The spiritual life precludes sin nature control. The more the sin nature controls your life, the more stress that you feel in your life. So stress excludes the spiritual life. Stress stops all of that; but the filling of the Holy Spirit and confidence of the spiritual life negates the stress. These are mutually exclusive. We need to distinguish between outward adversity and inner stress. The breaking point does not have to break us. The spiritual life and reciprocal love negate stress in our life. Stress destroys capacity for love and capacity for life and our capacity for happiness. We are not happy when we are stressed out. Reciprocal love precludes that stress. Stress turns us inward and we think about ourselves and about our problems. However, reciprocal love turns us toward God, so we depend upon Him. Personal love for God is one of the great problem solving devices. If you have it, it precludes stress. All you have to do is develop it. You will not reach the breaking point; in fact, you will not even come near it.

1John 4:19 We love because He first loved us.

Rom. 8:28–31: And we know that for those who love God all things work together for good, for those who are called according to his purpose. For those whom he foreknew he also predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son, in order that he might be the firstborn among many brothers. And those whom he predestined he also called, and those whom he called he also justified, and those whom he justified he also glorified. What then shall we say to these things? If God is for us, who can be against us?

The promise of His great grace toward us. Bobby is going to cover this passage next time in greater detail.

Lesson #830      1John 4:16–1   Rom. 8:28   January 7, 2009      Wednesday

A letter from a guy whose wife began to get ill.

Stress is one of the greatest problems in our country today. 75–90% of all visits to a physician involve stress. Stress disorder causes all kinds of physical problems. Antidote for stress in our society seems to be pop a pill. Barbiturates, amphetamines and depressants. Also, a lot take illegal drugs. Courses on stress management everywhere. Nothing like a full schedule and the inability to meet it to drive up/ stress in your life. All of these a human solutions and some of which do work temporarily. They provide no permanent peace of soul.

God is the source of love. As we grow to spiritual maturity, a simultaneous love relationship grows in our soul, which leads to a harmonious rapport in our souls with God. By the fact that we abide in God and He in us, love is perfected in us. Reciprocal love builds confidence in God, the only One in Whom confidence is never misplaced. Our confidence in other people may be incorrect, but in God, it is well-placed.

In our life, circumstances of adversity are inevitable. Whether there are just a few things or many, these circumstances will all be there. Confidence in God's love is very reassuring in life. Our production, as it takes place, based on our spiritual life. It is all about the same confidence, confidence in God.

At death, how can we feel anything but confidence before the One Who loves us based upon the cross. We can have confidence in our eternal future. As He is, so are we in this world. What is in His mind; His thinking and mode of operation; and that is revealed in us when we think with this same mind.

God's reciprocal love is what allowed Jesus to remain on the cross for those 6 hours on the cross, and paid for our sins. It was a horror. What was horrible was not all the maltreatment, but the 6 hours on the cross. Jesus prayed, "If it be Your will, let this cup pass; but, nevertheless, let Your will be done."

We have the same doctrine. The same reciprocal love which He had, we can have. He lived under the greatest adversity, so why can't we live under a little adversity.

We all have fears in life and fear is stress in every sense of the word. Fear is one of the causes of many illnesses. Reciprocal love breeds confidence that God is in charge. We can depend upon His benevolence and love. The love of God rationale. All we have to do is remember, Who He is and what He has done for us; and then reciprocal love is much easier to imagine.

We can be assured that God's love overrides all situations. If God is for us, then who can be against us? Fear involve punishment. Stress has a way of punishing those who continually live in it. Those who allow fear to inundate their lives. In the confidence we gain, fear is overcome. We love Him because He first loved us.

1John 4:16–19: And we have known and believed the love that God has to us. God is love; and he that dwells in love dwells in God, and God in him. Herein is our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment: because as he is, so are we in this world. There is no fear in love; but perfect love casts out fear: because fear has torment. He that fears is not made perfect in love. We love him, because he first loved us.

Good of Intrinsic Value

1. This is divine good. This is the application of Bible doctrine on our spiritual advance.
2. Divine good is any Christian service or deed which has genuine and eternal value before God. This is what we are rewarded for at the bama seat of Christ.
3. Only divine good is acceptable to the perfect standards of God. We can do all sorts of good deeds in this life, but without the application of doctrine, what we do has no eternal value.
4. This production is divinely motivation and retains intrinsic value. This is the gold, silver and precious stones.

5. So, the filling of the Holy Spirit working in conjunction with doctrine resident in your soul and the motivation of reciprocity, which is a confidence builder and a great motivator. It is the greatest motivation. The plan of God as He has laid it out, God works things together as His love.
6. Good of intrinsic value is produced by those who operate in the Christian life and exhibit reciprocal love toward God. You can never forget that the grace of God allows us to produce good of intrinsic value.
7. Producing that intrinsic good through accomplishing the plan of God precludes stress in this life.
8. This is the answer to stress which controls our lives. The confidence gained from reciprocal love. Casting all your cares upon Him because He cares for you.

As believers, we have two options. We can take outside pressure and convert it to divine good. We can do what Rom. 8:28 says. Or we can surrender to outside adversity and allow fear to take over. That is when fear controls your life. For those who have personal love toward God, He causes everything in life, including adversity, to work together for intrinsic good. That is our confidence in the day of judgment.

Rom. 8:28: Now we know that to those who love God [reciprocal love], He causes all things to work together for [intrinsic] good, for those who are called on the basis of His plan.

Summary Points

1. Those believers who focus on the unconditional abilities of God to take care of them will show confidence in adversity. This is a part of His love for us.
2. Personal love for God breeds faith and reliance on Him; trust. When you are confident and secure in someone's love, you are able to depend upon them. Absolute perfect dependability. That is what reciprocal love brings.
3. Stress is replaced with serenity of soul. This is the solution.
4. There is no stress where there is reciprocal love. There is the production of intrinsic good, which includes stress management. That is the result of Bible doctrine and reciprocal love.
5. So reciprocal love is the bulwark against converting adversity to stress. It is our foxhole; our trench line, our fort. It is all we need to withstand the attacks from the outside and the inside.
6. The amount of intrinsic good that we produce reveals the depth and the nature of our personal love for God. Intrinsic good is the production when you are inside the plan of God. Inside the plan of God is reciprocal love for Him. It all fits together; application of doctrine, reciprocal love, stress management, production of divine good.

There is no fear in association with reciprocal love, but mature love casts our fear. The one who fears is the one who is stressed out. Fear overwhelms the believer with no reciprocal love.

You can have plans and aspirations; but what is the priority? God will sometimes redirect our plans. We develop reciprocal love. We learn to have confidence in our life and in the day of judgment.

Lesson #831

1Cor. 13 Introduction January 8, 2009

Thursday

Reciprocal love for God is a confidence builder and a motivator. It is what we need to live the Christian life. We need doctrine but we also need to be motivated. ἐπίγνωσις doctrine is the knowledge of God and His grace which causes spiritual growth. We are talking about the grace apparatus for perception. The doctrine which rolls through our human spirit ends up in the left lobe as academic knowledge, and our positive volition transfers it into the right lobe. ἐπίγνωσις doctrine causes us to grow. We are here to advance to spiritual maturity. Reciprocal love continues and motivates our advance and sustains our spiritual growth. When ἐπίγνωσις doctrine runs through our thinking, we will begin to respect and love God. When we begin to know Who God is, we are developing reciprocal love for Him. We are responding to His love.

Reciprocal love and Bible doctrine in the soul grow together. They grow in tandem or they leapfrog over one another. Our doctrinal knowledge leaps ahead. Both feed off one another. Both are necessary. There is a representation of that advance. The spiritual advance, attacking the high ground. That is metabolized doctrine and reciprocal love is the other column. They move forward together. Each guards the other flank from an assault. There are two formidable enemies: religious legalism (which is what feeds the rest of the world). Doctrinal orientation and grace orientation. Religious legalism assaults grace orientation. Emotionalism is also an attack against our spiritual growth.

We have the attack of religious legalism upon reciprocal love.

Let's look at the enemy: Legalism

1. Legalism is a trend of the sin nature. We have a hypocritical, self-serving attitude. Legalism is half of the sin nature trends.
2. Legalism is conforming to a trend of human ethics or morality. So man believes think that the Mosaic Law is the definition of the Christian life. There is nothing wrong with morality or human ethics, but we have so much more. The Mosaic Law does not define the Christian life. Israel lived by certain rituals and certain laws, which they transformed into pure legalism.
3. This human morality is a futile attempt to gain the approbation of God without the filling of the Spirit and the resulting spirituality. There is an attempt to gain the approbation of God. "God, how can you function without my good deeds?" Morality and ethics are great things, but not the Christian way of life.
4. The pseudo-spiritual believer functions on the basis of his works.
5. He practices self-denial. Don't do this or that. Don't wear certain kinds of dresses. Don't wear too much makeup or jewelry.
6. They practice self-denial, confusing human effort with the Christian way of life. That which lasts for eternity is what is important.

7. The motivation for the Christian life is elevating himself instead of reciprocal love. That motivation is arrogant hypocrisy over grace orientation.
8. This results in what is called moral degeneracy. When Bobby used this expression in seminary, they did not understand. How can you be a moral degenerate?

When someone gets into legalism without the protection of reciprocal love, their grace orientation is destroyed. Reciprocal love is our motivation. As soon as that breaks down, this then reeds into legalism. When religious legalism breaks through, the believer rejects or neglects rebound. Grace apparatus for perception becomes unusable. Legalism motivates human viewpoint. Who is your confidence in, in legalism? You are confident in yourself. This will take you as far as your self righteousness will take you. Believers will become discouraged because they are missing reciprocal love. They have no confidence. When legalism rules the soul, inner stress rules the inner life. When reciprocal love breaks down, that is where legalism goes.

When reciprocal love advances, its flank is protected by ἐπίγνωσις doctrine. As ἐπίγνωσις doctrine advances, reciprocal love protects it as well. Legalism is the enemy of doctrinal and grace orientation, emotionalism is the enemy of reciprocal love.

Reciprocal love must be feel-good love toward God, in the mind of the legalist. If you think that feeling good is all about God, then you are confused about all else. The more you gain the motivation for doctrine, the more you persevere in doctrine. When emotionalism supercedes doctrine, then you have to be worked up to either give money or to feel good.

With Bible doctrine, you get divine truth; this is absolute objectivity. Emotionalism is the height in subjectivity. Reciprocal love must not be diluted by emotionalism. Emotionalism must be stopped by doctrinal orientation.

Reciprocal love is turned into mushy sentimentalism without doctrine. This must be connected to doctrine. It must be more than just a feeling about God. Paul compares tongues to reciprocal love, because they are polar opposites. One is emotional revolt of the soul and the other is the spiritual life based upon doctrinal advance. Human good and political activism, which is rampant in America. If you think that a change in political leadership is the key to everything, then you are not advancing. Doctrine tells you that there is only one solution in life, and that is Jesus Christ controls history.

We need good political leadership, but if you think you can change the world by voting for this or that person, you have missed the point. God blesses believers who are growing.

If either column falters, then spiritual advance ceases. Without the objective authority of Bible doctrine in your soul, reciprocal love is twisted into emotionalism. When the columns remain intact, mutually supporting one another, our spiritual life presses on toward the goal. Our two columns converge on... All of this individual stuff depends upon our spiritual advance. All else pales by comparison. Our determination is based upon our motivation. Our motivation comes from our reciprocal love for God.

Emotionalism and stress are relieved by the spiritual growing. If these things break through, we get stress. When fear halts the two column advance, then you will stress out. If it doesn't, then you will take the adversity and advance even because of it.

Fear metabolized creates stress. Fear is one of those terrible emotions which can rule your life. Fear tells you that reciprocal love is not functioning in your soul.

Fear and Spiritual Growth

1. Fear is emoting under pressure rather than using reciprocal love motivation. Suddenly you are in the midst of an emotional tirade in the soul. Fear destroys confidence. The stress destroys your confidence in the Lord.
2. Under the influence of fear you are unable to apply Bible doctrine. Circumstances of your life rule over you. Your advancing stops.
3. When you succumb to fear you are overcome with panic and hysteria, which is the antithesis of spiritual security.
4. Your security comes from doctrine and reciprocal love but fear ruins your security. When you are afraid, you have no security.
5. In this condition, the result is, you can develop bitterness, guilt and malice toward others. The devastation of inoperable reciprocal love is summed up in the fear principle. It defines all of us as we live in fear.

Principles of Fear in the Soul

1. The more you surrender to fear, the more you perpetuate fear.
2. The more you perpetuate fear, the greater your capacity for fear, which expands and takes over. It begins to permeate your thinking. Fear breeds fear.
3. The greater your capacity for fear, the more you increase the power of fear in your life, and you reduce your reciprocal love in your love.
4. The more you increase the power of fear in your life, the more you live in fear. When you increase the power of fear in your life, and the greater becomes your failure to learn and utilize Bible doctrine. Your reciprocal love turns to mush.
5. The more you live by fear, the more life intimidates you. People fear walking out the door; they fear what will happen at work, they have moments without fear, but those moments are few and far between.

Reciprocal love casts our fear. Reciprocal love is the epitome of confidence. When fear controls your soul, then your soul and your life falls to pieces. You cannot worship God and you lose respect for God's plan because you think that doctrine does not work. You no longer function according to His plan. You say that doctrine does not work.

The motivation of the spiritual life drives out fear. The filling of the Spirit drives the whole thing. How you look at any given problem is based upon reciprocal love and doctrine in your soul. Does a problem paralyze you with fear? Are you the struthian believer? Do you put your head in the ground and ignore it. You need to meet it head on with doctrine and reciprocal love. Reciprocal love is how fear is driven out. When you have a problem, you cast your fears upon Him because He cares for you. Mature believers focus on the unconditional love of God.

Attitude of the mature believer

1. They show confidence in adversity.
2. Fear does not control their souls; Bible doctrine does.
3. The circumstances of adversity does not convert to the stress of fear. Are you sick or having problems with the bf/gf; is your marriage in trouble. Are you facing death? All of these things put fear into your heart.
4. For the mature believer, faith and reliance are put upon God.
5. The stress of fear is surpassed by the peace of God which passes all understanding.

2Ti 1:7 For God has not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.

In 1John 4:18: There is no fear in love; but perfect love casts out fear: because fear has torment. He that fears is not made perfect in love.

1Jn 4:19 We love him, because he first loved us.

Lesson #832    Virtue Love    1Cor. 13 intro    January 11, 2009    Sunday 1

We began our study of God's love where love is an attribute, something which He possesses whether there is an object for His love or not. God's love becomes the foundation for all love, both among the members of the human race as well as the soul of all mankind. All men are given the option of salvation. This is a concept that we have studied as divine viewpoint impersonal love. We do not earn God's love. We are born sinful and there is not enough good for us to accomplish which will change our status. We cannot earn His perfect love. Interestingly enough, we have His love. It is not that we merit His love, but it is based upon the absolute existence of His impersonal benevolence toward us. Any person can have salvation by faith alone in Him alone.

The one who expresses faith alone in Christ alone is justified. When we become justified, then we become recipients of God's personal love. Glorious things of There are Spoken speaks of God's grand benevolence. We understand that we get logistical grace; we get living grace; and we get that incredible dying grace, as we breathe our last, knowing that in a few moments, we will be face to face with God. For us, it is to be anticipated; for unbelievers, this is the most feared moment of their lives. This also provides comfort for those of us who have lost loved ones. God provides that motivation to capacity to love and to love those in our periphery.

The natural response of the growing believer is reciprocal love. We love Him because He first love us. This is our motivation. What He has provided for us. We can only reciprocate His love when we understand some of the depth and scope of His unflinching love. Morning by morning, we can depend upon God's faithfulness—every single morning. Some people can be depended upon from time to time, but not every single morning. We can be depended upon, but not every single morning.

You cannot love someone unless you actually know them. You need some perspective love. When you get to know God through metabolizing Bible doctrine, it is truly an experience.

It is our responsibility to get to know God. It involves positive volition. We are not required to be in church. Berachah has been called a cult because we concentrate on Bible doctrine. No one is going to entertain you nor is anyone at church going to track you down if you don't show; nor will there be repercussions for leaving the flock.

An enduring devotion and worship of the One who loves us unconditionally with His personal love. When the believer continues to advance, to metabolize doctrine, to understand the nature of God's love, His capacity to love expands at the same time.

This virtue love is the primary subject of 1Cor. 13. We are on the home stretch of love before we actually get started with this text of 1Cor. 13. This is the payoff for us, the practical aspect of all of this love. The more we progress in the spiritual life, the more that our respect, trust and intimacy with God increases. That is a wonderful thing. That is maturity. The capacity for love in our soul grows as we increase our love for God. Capacity for love is the direct result of spiritual growth.

Does fear control you? We do not have a lifestyle of fear. We have sound mind and judgment. Fear is cast out by confidence, love and spiritual maturity.

Once you develop in your soul divine viewpoint, as doctrine advances so does reciprocal love. The reciprocation is the motivation for the enduring advance. Once advances and the other advances. Capacity for love is knowing God; it is trust and confidence in God's ability to take care of us. Our love for Him motivates us. The result of God's love for us and our reciprocation, motivates virtue love in our souls. We do not naturally understand virtue love, as it is not a natural thing. This helps us to deal with all personal relationships in our lives, good, bad and indifferent. The critical nature of all of this and the reason that we are studying this.

Virtue love is manifested in our application of Bible doctrine toward other people. This is people testing and personal love for God. This is a part of our application of Bible doctrine and virtue love. This is a consistent attitude of reciprocal love from our souls. You cannot express virtue love unless you have the confidence that God directs all circumstances of our life for our benefit. The love of God directs all circumstances for our benefit, and if we can live Rom. 8:28, then we can act appropriately to other people. When you buy into this, and that God directs all of your circumstances for your benefit, no matter how good or lousy they are. God's love is expressed just as well in adversity as it is in prosperity. How does virtue love work in our relationship to people? Once we develop this virtue love, or semblance of it, how does it work in relation to people?

Let's look at personal love toward a few. Loving someone; what does it mean? What does it mean as far as virtue love is concerned.

Personal love is a choice. It is a preference. This is an expression of our soul. It is an attitude which we have in our soul. That means that personal love requires that we know the object of our love intimately. We must understand that person intimately. Mental concentration on the object of love. You learn something by concentrating on something to know it and understand it. Too many people want to do nothing but emote. Emotion is not intimacy. Intimacy is an attitude, it is thinking, it is concentration. Everything else is a result of that intimacy. The person on whom you concentrate the most is the person that you love the most. This is what sets them apart from all others. The concentration of impersonal love is a dynamic attitude. The extent to which a person has the ability to concentrate is the extent to which they have the ability to have personal love. Concentration and capacity to love go together. If your concentration lasts only a few moments, then you have no ability to love.

We are often surprised with personal love; what we thought existed does not actually exist. Personal love can vary, based upon the motivation and integrity of the lover. Personal love is related to norms and standards of the soul. It is an expression of our scale of values. The very essence of personal love is all about our scale of values. We have only as much capacity to love as our scale of values permit. If we don't have that, our scale of values is much less than it should be.

Personal love is often expressed with the phrase, I love you. Mostly this means that I like your looks and I have gotten to know you and I have developed some passion and affection toward you. Personal love revolves around attraction and the compatibility involved. Attraction sparks but the compatibility gives the love depth. You may be in love for many years and are suddenly surprised about what you learn about your loved one, good or bad.

People do change. It is a wonderful to recognize that you or your loved one has increased their capacity to love. As your scale of values develops, so your capacity to love all others grows. That is what you want, insofar as personal love is concerned.

Lesson #833

1Cor. 13 Introduction January 11, 2009

Sunday 2

Virtue comes from our reciprocal love for God. It is based upon our love for God and our spiritual maturity. This is how we build a scale of values in our soul. This is how virtue love develops in our soul. When Bobby mentions personal love, people either get a warm fuzzy feeling, or a cynical attitude. Personal love is only as noble and lasting as the people involved. It is about nobility of character or virtue of character. Half of virtue love is personal love for other people. Virtue must come first. There is a lot of personal love in this world and very little of it has to do with virtue. However, virtue is what Christian love is all about. The weakness of personal love is when there is no virtue behind it.

There is a built-in terminus point for personal love, depending upon your soul and Bible doctrine in your soul. Only a select few people can really qualify to become objects of our personal love. A viable personal love is based upon the virtue and the capacities of the people involved.

Categories: husband, wife, friends, children and pets are here. If you can't love your pet, who gives you unconditional love, you can't love anyone. God in His grace will provide us with the right person who has the qualifications, but we were too stupid to recognize it. You too can make good choices in that tricky arena of love.

Certainly, children are the objects of our personal love. There is always that blood bond personal relationship like no other. What is equally important to the parent is to rear the child so that they will be able to have great relationships in their lives. A parent has a responsibility in this area, to teach virtue love and to demonstrate virtue love. With children, you will need a healthy dose of impersonal love as well.

Personal love is discriminating and conditional. This discrimination is based upon personal appeal, which is variable and fickle among human beings. It is not personal love among people which solves problems. Only personal love with God solves problems. Personal love with people solves nothing; it is often a problem-manufacturing relationship. It often causes more problems than it solves. Marriage brings two sin natures under the same roof and clashes are inevitable, due to proximity, expectations, moodiness, etc.

Some people get married to solve problems; but marriage creates more problems. Double your occupancy and you increase your problems. Marriage is a divine institution; it is ordained by God as the greatest, most intimate relationship in life. It is a good choice in a mate. Your chances for getting a good mate is dependent upon your spiritual maturity.

Bobby's memorial services are about death. People need to think about themselves and about their own eternal future and they need to confront death head on. It is the ideal time to speak of death and to speak of eternal life.

Marriage is the environment for family, which is a part of the stability of our nation. As goes the family, so goes the nation. The pee wee pivot. Who will train them? Will they develop virtue? They are the only hope for this nation. Develop first the capabilities to solve problems, and, in general, advance in the spiritual life together. That is the greatest thing in a personal love relationship. If you develop virtue love and capacity to love, how can it not get better? Unfortunately, too often, it is downhill from the moment we say I do.

Without personal love, without virtue love, we have no capacity for personal love. What we should do is test our capability and our capacity for love. Do not test your physical capabilities and capacities; but test your virtue and soul rapport. Check all areas of compatibility. Mental, emotional and especially spiritual compatibility. You need a little compatibility in other areas. Your mate will have these compatibilities.

In choosing a personal love relationship, how can you choose wisely if you have none of these compatibilities. Your capability and capacity for personal love for others begins with personal love for God. The problem solving device is personal love for God, especially in our personal love relationships. As we develop our love for God, we also develop our love for others. When you have the capacity in reciprocal love to isolate and concentrate on God, we can also learn to isolate and concentrate on others. You must be able to put aside other people and things to concentrate on that one person. That involves loyalty and devotion. One simply leads to another. There is no transition. The secret to all of this is the two column advance; ἐπίγνωσις knowledge, reciprocal love for God.

Until these things are developed, you do not have the capacity to love others. Great personal love requires some stability of soul. You must have stability in order to focus and concentrate on one person.

As you develop reciprocal love for God, you also build virtue. Personal love for other people is virtue dependent. The virtue is in personal love for God. There is no virtue in personal love for people. Sometimes, your love is misplaced, as the people you love may not have any virtue, stability or impersonal love.

Personal love creates a weakness between people. "I know there are problems with so-and-so, but look, they look so good." That does not solve problems. They will lose that beauty. Nothing worse when you are hurt or stabbed in the back. In personal love, you don't get your expectations met. Or if your children are recalcitrant or angry, they do not meet with your expectations. Problems abound in any personal relationship.

Personal love will never be perfect, but it is viable, livable and even wonderful when you develop personal love based upon virtue. Fall in love with virtue and then you find virtue love. You find it in someone else and you have the basis for strong virtue love. Personal love relationships are much more than finding the right person.

Bob rued the day that he taught RM/RW, because he labeled it that. People began to look at their mates and say, "That's not right" and they bailed out left and right. Personal love relationships are much more than finding the right person. It is not finding the right person, but begin the right person. That is all you have control over. You cannot control the object of your love. If you have to control or change them, then they are not the right person. Too often, we look to stuff someone into a mold.

One of the great problems of a personal relationship with someone is, they have a mind different from ours. You cannot afford a personal relationship with someone who does not think like you. Being like-minded means growing together in divine viewpoint and developing virtue love together. An enduring love depends upon spiritual growth.

An enduring personal love depends upon a second aspect of virtue love. That all-important impersonal love. The greatest expression of love is God's impersonal love toward us. While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. We can also develop the capacity for personal love for for impersonal love as well, the greatest most powerful love that there is.

You kick a dog and they come back and lick your hand. That is impersonal love. You want to exist in this life with people you cannot stand, and fulfill the commandment to love all people? That all requires virtue love. All of those people that we do not like and do not want to associate with, and we are commanded to love them. But this is impersonal love. This is the greatest love which ever existed. It is great to tolerate and coexist with someone that you do not like, and impersonal love is the only way to deal with them. Virtue gives you the capacity for personal love and impersonal love. Put them together and you have the greatest of all love, virtue love. If you develop this in your soul, then you have the greatest love of all loves. Reciprocal love and spiritual maturity grow in tandem. This allows you to love God and to love others, both personally and impersonally.

Lesson #834

1Cor. 13 Introduction January 14, 2009

Wednesday

Tandem Growth

1. It is a natural thing that you begin to develop reciprocal love and that you advance to the high ground of spiritual maturity.
2. Doctrine causes spiritual growth and it causes reciprocal love to grow as well. They advance in tandem.
3. Half of our advance to spiritual maturity is reciprocal love.
4. This formation of reciprocal love has a huge impact; indispensable impact on our capacity to love. Love is completely misunderstood in the Christian world, and we are beginning to get it.
5. Building reciprocal love for God includes the formation of virtue love. This is our current study. When you advance to the high ground, you gain this fantastic virtue love.

Let's forget love for awhile and examine virtue. What is this virtue?

What is Virtue?

1. Virtue is an attitude. Virtue in the Christian life is an attitude which become the modus operandi of the maturing believer. It is an attitude first.
2. The attitude of virtue includes certain characteristics, which reflect the absolute standard of God which is built into the soul of the believer. The absolute standard of God is built up in the soul, and is found in the Bible.
3. This attitude is formed when the believer has the mind of Christ. ἐπίγνωσις doctrine is synonymous with the mind of Christ. You think with the mind of Christ as you think with Bible doctrine and advance with Bible doctrine. The mind of Christ is your divine viewpoint. His thinking is divine viewpoint. When you have His mind, and when you develop that mind, you think with divine viewpoint. Divine viewpoint is virtue.

4. So divine viewpoint is the source of virtue in your soul. Virtue becomes synonymous with your spiritual advance and thinking with the mind of Christ. The characteristics you develop with His thinking is virtue. Divine viewpoint is the source of virtue in the soul.
5. The mind of Christ reflects the virtue that was the Lord Jesus Christ's attitude and His standards while He walked on this earth. These are all one and the same. Jesus grew in grace and knowledge. He did not have the drag of the old sin nature. His virtue was pure and He was absolutely perfect.
6. If you tack on the absolute virtue of thinking and action of the benevolence of God, you have the concept of virtue love. Christ manifested His perfect virtue in virtue love. Jesus demonstrated impersonal love toward His followers, and He also showed great impersonal love for them as well. Christ was building in His disciples like-mindedness. They were building virtue in their own souls as they listened and followed Him. We are building the exact same thing in our souls. We can only follow Him in our soul.

Our Development of Virtue Love

1. As we develop the mind of Christ and reciprocal love, as we do that, we also develop virtue from doctrine and virtue love from reciprocal love. It is the natural course of things as we advance.
2. So we form a facsimile of His virtue that He demonstrated as virtue love. As we come to understand virtue love more and more, we begin to understand not only what we are capable of, but also what Christ was.
3. Like Him, our virtue is built in our soul and our virtue love attitude is turned outward toward other people. Toward believers He demonstrated personal love and impersonal love. He demonstrated absolute impersonal love for unbelievers who hated Him.
4. Our virtue love is the application of the mind of Christ and reciprocal love for God demonstrated toward others. Virtue love is the application of the mind of Christ demonstrated toward other believers. That is what we have when we have reciprocal love.
5. Our virtue love then is the outward manifestation of inner doctrine in the soul and the inner reciprocal love which we develop toward God. It is demonstrated as virtue love toward others.

This is an understanding of love that very few people understand. There are millions of words written about it; everyone has an idea, but that is the Biblical idea of virtue love. This includes two categories of love; personal and impersonal. Personal love toward a few and impersonal love toward all, and doing this demonstrates virtue love.

Personal Virtue love

1. The virtue of personal love is capacity to love...family and friends and your right person. You must have capacity in order to do this, and that requires virtue. The person has no virtue or capacity is not worthwhile. You get what you want. That is not virtue love. It is not about finding the right person in personal love, but it is being the right person in personal love. When someone comes into your periphery, you have the capacity to do so and you are the right person.

2. The virtue capacity to love is based on the integrity and the motivation of the believer.
3. So personal love is then related to norms and standards in the soul of the believer. Who ever says that? People think love is related to how much emotion that you can generate for someone.
4. That is why the believer's norms and standards and character must reflect the virtue of the Lord Jesus Christ in the prototype spiritual life. In His humanity, our Lord utilized the power of the Holy Spirit. Satan tempted our Lord in ways that we have not known before. Jesus resisted him in the power of the Holy Spirit. He endured the cross for us, using His spiritual life. We have the same spiritual life. We have it. Whether or not we use it is another story.
5. You must develop the characteristics of personal love that He had.
6. So just as His personal virtue love was His expression of His scale of values and attributes toward others, so must our personal virtue love be an expression of our scale of values toward a select few. His scale of values must be our scale of values. There are those who wonder, are our loved ones worthy of our love? What do I get in exchange for my love? In most personal love or what passes for personal love, we don't demonstrate anything. When you demonstrate virtue love toward another person, that is the greatest personal love that there is.
7. A scale of values of Bible doctrine and reciprocal love produces a personal love with the greatest virtue and capacity in the human race. That is what we are capable of developing.
8. Until you have doctrine in your soul and the motivation of reciprocal love, you do not have the understanding or the capacity to love personally. Until you began this march toward spiritual maturity, you do not have the understanding or the capacity to love personally. That is what you need to have. That is the virtue of personal love.
9. Doctrine and reciprocal love generate virtue, concentration. Personal love is concentration on the one you love. Personal love, even in advancing believers, is not the last word in love. There are often variables which we cannot control. Maybe we have all been there? Believers with virtue love. Being out of fellowship negates applying a personal virtue love. It is impossible to generate a personal love for those that you do not like. Some of you may be straining to love a love of people that you know and dislike. The weakness of personal love even with virtue in the soul. Human virtue, even that developed with doctrine, is imperfect. You will not always be loved as you think you ought to be and you may not always be the best representative of personal love. The virtue of personal love must be supplemented and enhanced by the virtue of impersonal love. We are mandated to love all mankind, and personal love just does not get it.

Let's look at impersonal love toward others. Virtue love motivates believers to have personal love for a select few and to have an unconditional love for all. Reciprocal love motivates virtuous, impersonal love in us, just as it motivates personal virtue love in us. So reciprocal love is the mainstay of virtue love toward people, which always includes virtue love and impersonal love.

We cannot love God impersonally. He is absolutely worthy of our personal love even on His worst day. We build virtue love, which includes personal love and impersonal love. Here, we have virtue love leading toward impersonal love. These two things are connected. They cannot be separated. You also advance like all mankind. This is all part of our capacity to love. Capacity to love is the capacity to love personally a few and everyone impersonally. The further you advance spiritually, the more capacity that you develop to do both. Half of your capacity is impersonal love as a spiritual skill. It does not operate toward those you love personally. Both certainly have to do with the spiritual life. A certain virtuous character in you. Impersonal love is about building a virtue based upon what is in you.

1John 5:2 By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God, and keep his commandments.

Love your neighbor is impersonal love. You do not love them personally, unless they are a selected few. When you love them impersonally, you do no wrong to them.

Loving as you love yourself is not a mandate for narcissism. We take care of ourselves because we do love ourselves. The source is our own souls. The real us. We give ourselves amnesty. That should extend to others. You still forgive yourself; you tolerate yourself. Love your neighbor as yourself. You put up with yourself and you tolerate yourself. Impersonal love emphasizes the subject, yourself; the one who does the loving, rather than the object, the thing you love. Impersonal love is on us. Love your neighbor as yourself does not set up self-love as a standard. This requires you to love your neighbor as yourself. Grant them the toleration and patience which you grant to yourself. You can only do that from one place. It all begins with taking in doctrine and building reciprocal love for God. Personal virtue love is gained and impersonal virtue love is gain. Virtue first; doctrine and reciprocal love; spiritual maturity, grace orientation which develops and attitude of humility. Without humility, you cannot express impersonal love. Arrogance takes offense at any slight, at any slander. Humility applies impersonal love. Toleration, patience, just as you would give yourself.

Rom. 13:9–10: For this, You shall not commit adultery, You shall not kill, You shall not steal, You shall not bear false witness, You shall not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying, namely, You shall love your neighbor Love works no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

Your spiritual life must reflect your love for all people.

Virtue is the norms and standards of God. Reciprocal love in one column and doctrine is for the spiritual advance. As doctrine is the cause of virtue, doctrine defines those norms and standards. As we grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior. On one side there is virtue love and the other is doctrinal advance. Virtue love is all about relationships. Reciprocal love is about your relationship with God. The standards of God define virtue and virtue love for the believer. These are found only in Bible doctrine and in reciprocal love. Those standards must be learned. Grace apparatus for perception would be superimposed over all of this. You must learn those standards from Bible doctrine. Developing the characteristics of virtue is how you begin. Mind of Christ, divine viewpoint form virtue.

The Lord Jesus Christ is the epitome of virtue. He manifested this virtue in His 1st advent. He was different from us only in that He had no sin nature. As He grew, He also grew in virtue. How could God have more virtue than He does? He can't. As our Lord grew in stature and wisdom, so did His virtue. He is the pattern for all virtue in the Christian life. He is our pattern in the Christian life. We develop the mind of Christ; we develop His virtue. Our virtue increases as our spiritual maturity increases. This is not a hard concept. All that is required of us is to take in Bible doctrine and metabolize it. The rest just happens. As we grow, reciprocal love happens. This is because we get to know God and His attribute of love. We come to understand what He has provided for us in love. Everything else comes to us down the grace pipeline.

When someone loves you that much, you cannot help but reciprocate that love. If you grow, you develop reciprocal love. It just happens. There is no great mystery here. Just grow in grace and knowledge. When you put it in these terms, it is simplest thing to understand. Great intensity of thought.

For so long in seminary, Bobby heard about growing; and their growth was all about numbers. How many people started going to the church. Divine viewpoint is the source of virtue in the believer's soul. As you grow in reciprocal love and you grow in virtue love, then you are motivated to extend this same love toward others which God has extended toward us. We grow and we reciprocate His love. We can extend that same love because we have taken in the same standards into our soul.

This virtue love which we have in our souls as believers, is in two categories. The key to this is reciprocal love. Half of this is virtue love. The key is developing reciprocal love for God. When your reciprocal love can isolate and concentrate on God, that is what love is. When you love someone, you concentrate upon them. You are able to focus your thinking on them. Other things do not intrude upon this thinking. Then you can isolate and concentrate in the form of virtue love. We are building this ability to isolate and concentrate on someone else. Personal love is concentration; intense thought directed toward another. It might include delight or affection and fellowship. Kindness, consideration directed toward the person that you love. As you develop personal virtue love, they are extended toward the object of your personal love.

You cannot have any of these qualities with arrogance and self-interest and self-centeredness. This is the opposite of grace. Your personal love for others increases.

Not all people are loveable. Virtue love brings another option. Most people that we come across, we do not love personally. If it was all based on personal love, then whenever the object of your attraction fails, then so does your personal love.

Definition of Impersonal love

1. Impersonal love is directed toward all mankind.
2. Impersonal love is a mental attitude of unconditional regard for the entire human race, even though most people are more than unworthy. Think of the worst person that you have ever met, and this applies to that person.
3. The believer's impersonal love does not require intimacy, attraction or even acquaintance with that person.
4. Impersonal love is not sentimental or emotional; it is entirely virtue-dependent. That is the importance of developing virtue from spiritual growth.
5. Unconditional love flows out of the virtue of the subject, rather than from the appeal or the merit of the object.
6. Impersonal love is the same love that God bestows upon all unbelievers. Do you think an unbeliever has anything to recommend him to God? God loves him anyway. This is the same love which we develop.

John 15:17: These things I command you, that you love one another. This is impersonal love. One another is everyone in the room and outside the room. This is not a select few which you love personally. This is a mandate. Many Christians consider mandates, such as this one, as a demand for enduring personal love. Even Christians do not find everyone attractive. Impersonal love is about those who intrude upon your consciousness and upon your life. Remember the concept of neighbors in Rom. 13:9; those are people that you come in contact with. This is a mandate even though they are thoroughly evil. It is impossible to maintain a consistent personal love. Personal virtue love certainly has its limitations. This is why we are mandated to have impersonal virtue love. Virtue love has two parts and only one is mandated. If we cannot generate consistent personal love for those we find most attractive, those with whom we have the most attraction, then how can we fare well at all with those whom we do not find attractive or even seem repulsive to us. There are so many people in politics that you cannot love. This country is filled with polarized people who hate one another. Left and right cannot stand one another. They have no way to change from animosity because they do not possess the virtue generated by virtue love. There is a barrier in this country. The differences will become more pronounced every day. There is no longer even civility anymore. Even in Congress before, civility was possible, even between those who disagree.

Christians try to show personal love to people that they do not like at all. It is sloppy ἀγαπή. There is no virtue in insincerity. The religious types followed Jesus in His life, and they were great religious types and they understood love your neighbor, a quote from the Old Testament. These people had no capacity for love, and so they hated Jesus Christ, even though He was the only person that they had ever met who actually deserved their love. Impersonal love for others is the most powerful human love. With impersonal love, you can impartially and objectively view the...

No politician is going to unify us; we all have our own thoughts about what make this country great, and the two extremes will never meet. No matter who the president is, he will not unify us. We can view all of this impartially and objectively, and we can do it and have a great peace and tranquility of soul.

Using impersonal love, you no longer lose control of your temper because strangers are rude. Bobby rebounds more often on the freeway than any other place. There are indicators as to how potent your impersonal love is. When friends are aggravating, you do not have to lose control. You do not have to lose that peace which passes all understanding. This does not materialize simply because you are a believer.

You will learn how to tolerate all kinds of people, no matter how repulsive they are. You do not compromise the truth, but you do not attack them personally, which is a national epidemic today. You will only oppose their thinking and their policies, and not their person. Our government has become one of personal assault.

A great example is our outgoing president. Some of his policies have not been good; but what he gets, he does not deserve. He has received all kinds of rancor. Whether you agree with him or not, you leave your shoes on. With impersonal love, you do not have smouldering anger.

The virtue of the subject exceeds the repulsiveness of the object, which is the summit of your spiritual growth. In no other way can a believer love his neighbor, maintain phoney relationships, without impersonal love. The only way to maintain them at the high level, is with impersonal love. No impersonal love means lousy personal relationships.

Companionship, etc. are all a part of personal love. But for those who look to personal love as the gateway from loneliness to personal fulfillment, this will make you bound for great disappointment. Those who depend upon personal love are never loved as they want to be loved or treated as they want to be treated.

Mental attitude sins stifle personal love and block impersonal love. Mental attitude sins and virtue love cannot coexist. Consequently, there is a chain of reactionary sins which control your life. It is never personal love which sustains any relationship. Impersonal love is compulsory. Personal love for people is optional.

Summary

1. Impersonal love is the only way to apply virtue to unfulfilled expectations or to obnoxious people. You need impersonal love or you will go ballistic. Impersonal love is the only way to apply virtue.

2. Impersonal love is the only virtue which can sustain personal love. Personal love cannot sustain itself.
3. Virtue dependent personal love for people can ever be substituted for virtue producing; personal love is virtue dependent.

Lesson #836

Spiritual Life January 18, 2009

Sunday 1

A simple illustration of our spiritual advance. It does not work without the filling of the Holy Spirit and grace apparatus for perception. We are filled with the Holy Spirit by the use of rebound. After that, there is taking in God's Word through gap.

Bobby speaks the truth from the Word of God, which is a part of his gift. This teaches our human spirit. As a believer, we receive this human spirit at the moment of salvation. The information we receive starts out like any information which we might hear in the college classroom. However, we believe it, and then it becomes ἐπίγνωσις. This is the product of the grace apparatus for perception and the filling of the Holy Spirit. As you grow toward maturity, you develop virtue. This means that you develop the mind of Christ. What you have done is, you have developed doctrinal understanding, including problem solving devices, the highest of which is occupation with Christ—all that He has done for us and all that He is to us. We also grow in reciprocal love, which comes at the same time as spiritual growth. This barely scratches of the surface of what God has done for us. When we realize how much God loves us, we begin to reciprocate this love, which indicates spiritual advance.

Virtue is what resides in our soul as a result of grace apparatus for perception. Personal virtue love extended toward others is one of the other outworkings of our spiritual life. This is a short course on the spiritual mechanics for the spiritual life.

Lesson #837

1Cor. 13 Introduction January 18, 2009

virtue love breaks down into two categories: personal virtue love, and personal love is for friends, spouses and family. The lasting attraction is finding virtue in the object of virtue love. The unbeliever may or may not recognize virtue in the soul. It is virtue in the soul which builds the capacity. It is virtue in both persons which makes for the greatest compatibility. You do not have any control over another person's virtue; you do not have that ability. In personal love, we are often on this search for just that right person. Since we have no control over the virtue of someone else, then you must become the right person. You develop virtue love in your own soul. You can only control your own virtue and its growth or languishing.

Personal love is always based on the attractiveness of the object. There must be something in the other person that you like. Problems abound in any relationship, as we all have expectations, and they may not be met. Our personal love is often based upon having those expectations met; and when they are not, that becomes the weak link in the chain. That is the built-in weakness of personal love. Personal love is always highly volatile and it is complicated by many variables completely out of our control. Personal love is virtue-dependent. There is unequal growth, and personal love is often based upon various attributes. A person is no better in a personal love relationship than he or she is as a person. Physical deterioration can alter personal love. We all want the right person, so we need to be the right person.

Personal love can fail in many ways, so virtue love includes impersonal virtue love. Impersonal virtue love is based solely on the character of the subject and not the object. When personal love fails or reduces, impersonal love must take over. Impersonal love must be a part of our repartee. We have all heard, "I love you." The object of love is you. Personal love requires the attraction and virtue to reside in the object. Impersonal love requires I to have the virtue. The believer's impersonal love does not require certain things.

The virtue of the subject exceeds the repulsiveness of the object is impersonal virtue love. Think of the most repulsive person that we know, and our virtue must exceed the repulsiveness of the object. God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son is an example of impersonal love for all mankind, as we are quite repulsive to God.

Everyone in your periphery is a neighbor. All of them potentially cause you problems. Personal love is mandated only for a few. Col. 3:19 you are mandated to love your wives and wives are demanded to respect their husbands. John 15:17:

1John 5:2 By this we know that we love the children of God, whenever we love God and keep His commandments.

We can only love all believers in one way, through impersonal love. Personal love toward other people is optional; impersonal love is commanded to all believers for all believers. Do not become upset if you cannot garner some warm and fuzzy feelings for other believers.

John 15:17 These things I command you, that you love one another.

Let's look at this impersonal love as it is mandated in these two passages. This requires toleration and understanding, and this must be directed toward those we do not like. When must we be flexible and inflexible? When do you apply impersonal love? Personal love is retained in great relationships with impersonal love.

We must be inflexible in the essentials of life for the believer. We must be inflexible in the area of Bible doctrine. These things are not up for grabs. When it comes to the principles of Bible doctrine, you are inflexible. These are our mandates and guide for the Christian life. This is how we learn about impersonal love.

We must apply principles under differing circumstances. Bobby will clarify with an example. Under impersonal love, we must allow other believers to live their own lives before the Lord. Our standards as advancing believers may not be their standards. They must catch up by using their own positive volition. They must grow just as we grow. So we must apply the toleration and the patience of impersonal love. We must never bully or forcefully make changes from the strength of our personality. We are never called to change or reform other believers. Bible doctrine is what renovates the souls of other believers. Rom. 12:2. This works from the inside out and not from the outside in. We do not get involved in pettiness or judging. Self-righteously quoting doctrines to others is not to be our approach. "Let me tell you what the Bible says, brother." The mature believer must take that into account. If they are here and listening, leave them alone; let them advance. Apply some patience and toleration. Let them grow up on their own.

People can get over-obnoxious when they are beginning to grow spiritually. For a couple weeks, they charge ahead in doctrine, and two weeks later, they leave.

How are we flexible in impersonal love? We have patience. We defer to immature believers who have ideas, traits which are obnoxious to us. Defer to them. The new believer can be a pain. Bobby saw some things in seminary which made him want to grab someone and shake them. At the end of 4 years, some in seminary began to grow.

New believers come up with ideas which are often legalistic, and then they try to superimpose this on us as well. It is this much better grasp of doctrine which makes for great impersonal love relationships. Mature believer under these kinds of assaults. The mature believer under such an assault must not react. We have the desire to malign them or to run out of patience with them. Impersonal love stops you short from messing up here. Be flexible in the face of people-testing. Every day we get some form of people-testing. It can happen anywhere, anytime, at any place. Apply doctrine from virtue, from impersonal virtue love. Do not alter your standards. Do not let it affect your happiness, your mental attitude, your spiritual growth; and, by the way, it is mandated as well.

As the strong believer, we must be thoughtful and considerate. We should not shake the enthusiasm of the new believer. We do not use our own freedom and liberty to shock a new believer. Mature believers know they have certain liberties, but we try to keep it under control. If one legitimate function offends the immature believer, you refrain from practicing your liberty in front of him. Be discreet. Do not flaunt your freedom—your legitimate freedom.

Lesson #838      Rom. 15:1–3   1Cor. 13 Intro   January 21, 2009      Wednesday

Jan Someone who has spend decades in the military and was in Iraq. He's been a member of Berachah for 34 or 35 years. He spent 19 months in Iraq. Most tours are 6 months to 15 months. Deputy Commandant at the Counter Insurgency Center. Taught what the enemy did and what he did. Taught Bible doctrine to some extent. Even focused them on God, as the people in the Middle East were interested in god. Kept reminding them that there is a God. It reminded him that Jesus Christ controls history and He has a plan. Each of us as believer priests, and God works through us and with us.

What we have done in Iraq has been fantastic. We have won that war. The Iraq people are very secular, and they are restricted about speaking about Jesus Christ unless they ask them first. Lengthy conversations with the Iraqis. Many are very positive. The Iraqi government is not dependable, and the people know this. Iranian forces move into Iraq and some have been caught, a couple a night, with the papers and European weapons.

With SOFA, they cannot do any raids without a judge okaying them. General Petraeus deputy appears to be in charge? Afghanistan appears to be confused. 16 nations there, and there are various restrictions. It is a fragmented force rather than a coalition force. A Pashtun insurgency, but there are 40 or 50 sub-tribes. Clear picture of our operations in Iraq but not as much so in Afghanistan. There is tremendous desire for hope and change there and a great deal of confusion there.

The Christians in the US are very confused. There are many who do not know what it takes to be a believer. They think that Allah is another name for God. We need to pray that our new president might be wise and rethink what he said in the campaign.

Jan only had 5 minutes to prepare that report. Bobby has taught many times that Jesus Christ controls history and that believers make a difference in this world.

Virtue love is certainly not destroyed in the soul of the believer while he is killing the enemy in war. Personal animosity is not their motivation. He is not guilty of homicide, but he is a noble protector of our freedom.

Personal love is the easy part of virtue love. Human beings love personal love. Falling in love feels so good and being in love is exhilarating. Finding someone that you are attracted to, to explore areas of compatibility, or to be comfortable in a long-standing relationship, especially when the attraction is a function of virtue in both the subject and the object.

Impersonal love is the answer to the weakness of personal love. I love you, is a statement that we have heard at one time or another. When the virtue resides in the subject, then impersonal love is involved in the operation. Impersonal love is the pattern for all impersonal love. 1John 4:10–14. His impersonal love is the greatest and most powerful love that exists. It was God's impersonal love as our pattern which motivated Him to bring salvation to all mankind. We are repulsive to God, so He cannot love us personally.

Impersonal Love

1. Impersonal love is God's virtue and benevolence extended to all mankind, regardless of our lack of virtue. This love in human beings is the greatest of all love.
2. God's impersonal love depends solely upon His perfect virtue. When God says, I love you, it is about His virtue.

3. God loves sinful mankind only because of Who and What He is; not ever because of who and what we are. So many Christians think that they are really great and God is completely impressed by them.
4. Impersonal love always operates within the confines of the character of God.
5. It is God's absolute virtue which is the basis for His love directed toward us. His justice and righteousness demands that we be condemned, and we are. We as believers are mandated to have that same type of love toward all mankind, regardless of whether we have a permanent relationship or not.

We have no right to hate anyone. We are to love our neighbor as ourselves. We cut ourselves some slack so we ought to do the same for our neighbor, whether they are repulsive or not. We must love unconditionally. If you have ever tried to love someone that you are repulsed by, then you realize that it is quite difficult. If you hate those who have gone after you or have hurt you, you are an immature believer. Because we are people with a sin nature, it is never going to be perfect. There will always be time when we have some mental attitude sin from time to time. It is about how you live, think and respond in our lives. When you build reciprocal love for God, you are building capacity in your soul. We must love impersonally regardless of the person, whether we care for them or not. It can only be done in one way. We must build our own virtue just as God has done for us. This means that impersonal love is primarily expressed by the mature believer.

The example Bobby is going to give, applies to all believers, but it is critical. There are particular Biblical commands to love all believers. You would think that it would be easier to get along with believers, as there is this inherent affinity. It has been Bobby's experience that immature believers can be the biggest pains to deal with. They can be critical, judgmental of anyone who does not meet their standards. In associating with such a believer as this, the mature believer must be inflexible in his doctrinal standards. He must never acquiesce or participate in non-doctrinal things. He must never compromise the doctrine in his soul. However, we must be flexible with regards to our relationships. The believer must exhibit patience and toleration. Furthermore, the mature believer must not take offense at personal attacks. That is a great indicator of impersonal love. We must not ever bury that immature believer with doctrine that they do not understand. You can apply doctrine for yourself, but doctrine is not a club and it is not leverage. The mature believer must always apply his own doctrine and not let the immature believer get him out of fellowship or affect his own spiritual advance. That is how critical it is. The strong believer; the mature believer is to be thoughtful and considerate. We try to do that with people that we love personally. We try to be considerate of their sensitivities. We want to have patience and toleration. That is the same for people that we do not like. You are not to shake the weak believers fragile confidence. You are not to use your freedom to shock the new believer. We have liberty to do certain things; if we function in that in life, but that shatters the immature believer, do not practice it in his presence, even though you have ever right to do so. You do not flaunt your freedom in front of those who do not understand the freedom. The law of love is all about impersonal love. Paul, in 1Cor. 13 puts together what he taught back in chapter 8. When do you apply the law of love and the law of liberty? Doctrine is your guide and impersonal love is your modus operandi. The immature believer who is advancing, is just beginning to shake off the chains of legalism and antinomianism. They are beginning to figure out how to deal with their weakness.

Rom. 15:1–3: Then we who are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good, to building up. For even Christ did not please Himself; but as it is written, "The reproaches of those who reproached You fell on Me." We bear the weaknesses of the weak through our impersonal love. This does not mean that we bow to legalism. We do not join them in their taboos or in their legalism. As a mature believer we must be and can be flexible. We know that for the immature believer, in due time, doctrine will change the immature believer, if they stay positive. You cannot affect the thinking of the other believer. You want to take the believer and slap them around and say, "Do you get it now?" Give them the opportunity to grow up. If they are positive, they will. Bear the positive with impersonal love. Just remember how many tolerated you when you were growing up spiritually. Sometimes, impersonal love requires just keeping your mouth shut and letting doctrine do its work. That is what patience is. Bible doctrine reciprocal love and virtue are always the answers for the immature believer. No one will learn everything at once. It does not happen overnight. It is a process. It slowly but inexorably moves the believer who is positive into the realm of maturity. So many believers throw road blocks in the way trying get these immature believers a moving forward. Impersonal love allows the immature believer to live as unto the Lord. He has a responsibility and obligation before the Lord. We have to allow reciprocal love for God to take over. You might even develop a great personal relationship with that person. Do not ever in all of this compromise doctrinal principles or embrace carnality in the name of impersonal love. When you have impersonal love, you begin to apply the rationales, the virtue love rationales which deal with God's love for you and of for others. Impersonal love is the road to one of the greatest things in life, sharing the happiness of God in your soul.

John 15:11–12: I have spoken these things to you so that My joy might remain in you and your joy might be full. This is My commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. We can have His mind and we can have His attitude. A mature happiness and contentment. That is how our joy is great. While suffering the unimaginable agonies of the cross, Jesus Christ thought impersonal love. He stayed on the cross. He could have hated those who brutalized Him, who drove the nails into His hands, and He said, "Forgive them, Father, for they do not know what they do." He never reviled or blamed these people for all the injustices in his life. When we face injustice, think about His treatment. The problems we face are piddling. God's happiness depends upon one thing in us; it depends upon our development in life. We will enjoy contentment in the midst of people testing and in all the injustice which we face. :

Lesson #839 Impersonal Love 1Cor. 13 Intro January 22, 2009 Thursday

our association with people can bring us the greatest joy in our lives but it can also be the greatest source of discontent and misery as well. As believers, we have the greatest of solutions as well; we have impersonal love. There are always people that you simply do not like. Bobby can name a number of them. Jesus Christ Himself made that statement. You cannot love all people personally. Those who are attractive to you; those you can build rapport with. But you must be able to find something attractive about them. This is where impersonal love kicks in. We must gain virtue love, which is the combination of ἐπίγνωσις doctrine and reciprocal love. Because we develop capacity for love, that capacity is extended to those around us. It is extended in personal virtue love and impersonal virtue love. The people we deal with on a daily basis can be dealt with by impersonal love. Sometimes we brood, get grumpy or moody. Impersonal love is worth developing as one of the premier problem solving devices; it is an attitude adjuster.

Invasion of the immature, self-centered arrogant believer. That is the believer we want to avoid, but we are mandated to love this person. He is a pompous person who depends upon his own flesh to live the Christian life. He has pretensions of living the Christian life by his own striving. Human works and human viewpoint standards. He lacks those things which makes for a moral degenerate. He sets himself aside as a judge of others. God is a great judge and a perfect evaluator. When He blesses us, and His timing is always perfect. The legalist superimposes Himself as the standard. This is someone who will judge you and try to set you straight when it comes to the Christian life. The tendency of the legalist is to gossip; a smear campaign. A gossip. To assassinate the character of anyone who violates the legalistic standards of such a person. The legalist often opposes the grace believer. The law of liberty is everything we can do. Mature believers had the liberty to eat meat sacrificed to idols coming straight out of the idol sacrifices. Anyone had the right to eat from that meat. However, they were to refrain from doing so under the law of love. The immature believer does not know enough to let other believers alone and let God deal with them. You may have children and you think, I cannot wait until they move past a certain stage. The immature baby believer is also obnoxious. The law of love in the soul of the law of liberty.

The law of love is nothing more than the application of impersonal love. Extremely simple.

Law of love Same as the Application of Impersonal love

1. The application of impersonal love as a problem solving device.
2. The law of love is the thoughtful application of divine viewpoint to other believers. From divine viewpoint comes the doctrine of impersonal love. You do have to be flexible here. Times when you face obnoxious legalists. It takes maturity.
3. The law of love is about keeping positive immature believers from becoming detracted from their spiritual growth. An entrenched legalist, then you have a decision to make; but apply the law of love to the immature believer.
4. It is all about grace orientation toward other less mature believers. This is so the immature believer has every opportunity to grow. You let him have every opportunity to grow.
5. You must apply impersonal love. It is hard not to react to some self righteous, self-centered believer. It is tough to apply impersonal love rather than reacting to it.

6. The mature believer does not flaunt his liberty. When you react, it is easy to flaunt. You know the immature believer is wrong; so you want to flaunt your liberty; there, you are wrong. You do not flaunt your liberty to put down legalism.
7. But, neither does the application of the law of love require obeisance or deference to legalism. Here is where your flexibility kicks in.
8. Legalism is not indulged by the law of love. Doctrine should never be compromised to appease legalism. The mature believer always stands for the principles of grace. That is impersonal love. The legalist must not be encouraged to some phoney, wrong-headed spiritual life.
9. "There seem to be some gray areas here." Sometimes the application of doctrine is somewhat hazy. Sometimes you have to pray and you will have the correct doctrine at the right time. There is nothing wrong with God directing your thinking in these circumstances. Bobby prays a little bit before each speaking period. The legalists should not be encouraged to a wrong-headed approach.
10. You do not lend credence to a set of false standards. You do not acquiesce to legalism. This will never cause a legalist to grow.
11. Nor do you slap down a legalist by claiming a doctrine for which they have no frame of reference. Impersonal love is the opposite of reaction. The mature believer must show some flexibility and some discernment in how they handle that obnoxious believer.

Impersonal love always demands tolerance and patience and thoughtfulness and sensitivity toward the immature. Your objective is not to become a stumbling block.

Rom. 15:1–3: Then we who are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good, to building up. For even Christ did not please Himself; but as it is written, "The reproaches of those who reproached You fell on Me."

You please yourself by indulging in the law of liberty. When positive volition is present in the immature believer, even if they are legalistic or antinomian, the law of love demands patience and tolerance to renovate that. Maybe you are obnoxious and people are avoiding you? It may seem like an imposition to apply the law of love. Applying impersonal love is absolutely the greatest way to live your life.

Application of Impersonal love

1. Impersonal love involves a relaxed mental attitude in all of your relationships. It is not only the right thing to do, but you are relaxed about it.
2. Impersonal love is an elevated stage of faith rest under people testing. In impersonal love, you have an incredible ability to apply faith rest. You begin to understand the whole realm of doctrine. Virtue love is a rationale, so it is a super elevated faith rest.
3. Impersonal love is the road to sharing the happiness and contentment in your soul that the Lord Jesus Christ demonstrated in His soul during the 1st Advent. He faced great injustice, hatred, and brutality. "Forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing."

4. With the same impersonal love in our souls, we have that operational spiritual life. Tranquility and happiness are enduring and self-sustaining. Jesus faced all of the legalists and He never lost His impersonal love. You may not like a person, the way they think, and this political season, they may have brought this out even more. Your life is much easier when you have impersonal love.
5. When your impersonal love takes precedence over irritating, obnoxious people, you carry God's happiness with you as your constant companion.
6. Your inner happiness and spiritual maturity conquers any unhappiness or fearful situations with regard to people. Impersonal love is where you meet everyone. It is your front line defense with people.
7. James 1:2: Consider it all joy, my brothers, when you encounter various trials. This is the chance to apply impersonal love. The believer will build the capacity for the greatest impersonal love.

Impersonal love carries you through the hardest of times. When two people are married, two sin natures now live under the same roof. So you must double up on your impersonal love.

Impersonal Love in General

Impersonal love is the bedrock of virtue love.

1. The object of impersonal love can be any person, known or unknown, attractive or ugly, appreciative or antagonistic. Impersonal love is applied to all of these categories.
2. The believer can deal with the other person without taking into account their flaws.
3. This does not mean that you must seek out people that you do not like for a close association. You do not have to spend time with people you do not like. It does not mean that you sacrifice all freedom in the name of love. You avoid miserably people whenever you can. Especially if they are a bad influence or a constant pain to you.
- 4.
5. With impersonal love, you can forebear when such people are in your periphery. There are times we just cannot avoid some people. We spend 8 or more hours at work every day and there must be someone there who is out to make us miserable.
6. Impersonal love views all people through the eyes of a virtuous character build upon Bible doctrine and personal love for God.
7. The only way to have this virtuous character is the two-column advance and to develop impersonal love in your soul.
8. You build virtue love to deal with reaction against negative people. You build it and use it. Every time you start to react, then think; what is your obligation to this person. You love one another. One thing that you do is you do not react. With impersonal love you pass people testing.

9. When you apply impersonal love, you mature more quickly under testing. This actually accelerates your spiritual growth. This is one of the great advantages of being under testing.

If you keep growing, impersonal love will grow naturally in your soul.

When we love God personally, he becomes our role model for impersonal love.

Lesson #840

1Cor. 13 Intro January 25, 2009

Sunday 1

How many of you can be insulted by someone, and then, hear an apology, and forgive and forget it right on the spot. However, this is how God treats us in grace.

Tolerance, stability, benevolence, etc. are attitudes which must be maintained; attractive to us or repulsive to us. Appreciative to us or antagonistic toward us. There are some people that we would rather avoid in this life. However, even these ought to be witnessed to. You cannot avoid everyone, which makes impersonal love a necessity. You can forebear any of these categories of people when they are in your periphery. Love is not true unless it makes it through the hard times and without impersonal love, that love will not make it through the hard times. We are not mandated to personally love everyone. James 2:8: If you fulfill the royal Law according to the Scripture, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself," you do well. Doing well, means that you are fulfilling your obligation as a member of the royal family. Nobles oblige is the requirement of one of royalty to behave benevolently toward those who are not royal. Jesus Christ is the King of Kings, and the Lord of Lords. So we have become, at that moment of salvation, a member of his family. We are, male and female, sons of God; we are members of His family; therefore, we share in His royalty. We are members of the royal family of God. Christ was a royal priest after the order of Melchizedek. As royal family, we have a royal obligation to all mankind. We are to tolerate the nonessential and the inconsequential of all mankind. Impersonal love is a wonderful thing; it is the great virtue which we possess when we acquire it. This is the good old two column advance. This advance requires the filling of the Holy Spirit. None of this occurs without the filling of the Holy Spirit. It also requires the grace apparatus for perception. This is not a simple classroom; God the Holy Spirit teaches our human spirit that which we need to know about Bible doctrine. That info is transferred down to our left lobe. We believe that and it is transferred to the right lobe. We drag ourselves into church, and that is our positive volition. None of what happens to us can happen to an unbeliever. We need to be in fellowship and positive toward Bible doctrine. As we grow in grace and in doctrine, reciprocal love grows as well. That becomes the motivation of our life. As we grow, we develop virtue and virtue love toward others. Impersonal virtue love and personal virtue love. This is not some humanistic system. Unbelievers cannot gain this same thing. An unbeliever can be patient, kind and tolerant. The unbeliever has a different motive than we have. The unbeliever is kind in order to gain something for himself. Something reciprocal; I am kind to you if you are kind to me. Or, approbation; or there is less hassles in his life. True altruism is very rare in this life. The believer has a genuine attitude toward others based upon the attitude Jesus Christ has toward us. Impersonal love is not about, what a nice kind person you are; kudos to you. This is not to receive reciprocal kindness and love from others. We do not give out impersonal love in order to get personal love back. Our motive is to please and glorify God; and to execute the plan of God. It is about producing divine good in this life.

Impersonal love is the mindset of Jesus Christ. The way that He thinks. It is His attitude, and it is a supernatural mindset. It is a way of thinking only possible for the Lord Jesus Christ. The unbeliever is relative. Even the believer who has not advanced or who rejects doctrine. You do not get to pick and choose which mandates that you want to follow. That is not your option. You might have one or two people, "I just want to hate them" and you may have good reason to. But that is not your option, nor is that your maximum in enjoyment. Bible doctrine is not just another option in this world. Bible doctrine is the essence of Christianity, and Christianity is a relationship with God through Jesus Christ and then the provisions of divine grace assets. Bible doctrine is the absolute and only option for you. It does not matter if you believe it or not. What is man that You even take thought of him? We are nothing, but God still loves us. Bible doctrine is first and always, absolute truth. If doctrine is the absolute truth from God, then you must unequivocally live your life by it. Spiritual advance is increasingly living your life by doctrine. If His mandates seem unfair to you or unlivable, always remember the Bible doctrine are for our own best interests. They are back by God's personal love for us.

Bobby sees people testing as the most difficult test. With impersonal love, you can deal with people testing. There is the benefit for us. We are not simply mandated to do this; this is also for our benefit. This gives us a relaxed mental attitude. It beats a smoldering, vengeful attitude in us. Impersonal love brings a relaxed mental attitude. We can be at peace with ourselves. Impersonal love is a great way to live. It is the road to sharing the happiness of God in our own souls. John 15:11–12: I have spoken these things to you so that My joy might remain in you and your joy might be full. This is My commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. This is the Word of God; this is Bible doctrine. He is, in fact, speaking to us. He has spoken His mind to us.

The happiness of God resided within the person of Christ. Every lousy situation which He faced and all of the people who ran him out of town, and He never lost contentment or happiness. Our joy may be made complete, as a problem solving device. Jesus Christ needed impersonal love on the cross. This provides a share of the perfect contentment and happiness on this earth. Are people abusive to us? How many have them have physically beaten us? Even under those circumstances, Jesus retained perfect impersonal love. This impersonal love continues to grow as we grow spiritually; and this accelerates our growth. One time, we use it on someone who badmouths us, and we learn something new about virtue love. You realize, this is easier. Impersonal love is therefore a primary objective in our Christian life.

Lesson #841      1Cor. 13 Intro   Eph. 5:1–2   January 25, 2009

Sunday 2

People without doctrine, at best, say, "What would Jesus do?" and then they come up with some way of justifying what they want to do. You must know someone in order to love them personally. When we love Him personally, He becomes our role model. As you get to know Him, you get to love Him. This is how it is supposed to work in the human realm as well. We love Him personally, so that, when we do, He becomes our role model. Without impersonal love, your love will not grow.

So many people think, imitating God is walking in the footsteps of Jesus, whatever that means. That is pathetic and it is so ignorant that Bobby cannot even believe it. You cannot be an imitator of God and be an unbeliever.

Eph 5:1 Therefore be imitators of God, as beloved children.

Here we have the way we can be imitators of God. Impersonal love is Jesus Christ dying for us, while we were yet sinners. How many people walk in impersonal love? We have no excuse for not walking in His impersonal love. We must be imitators of His impersonal love. If you think a mandate is unlivable, you are wrong; God has given us His grace resources. We never have the excuse, that is impossible for me. We can live our lives in impersonal love, as He gives us the means to do so.

We will, of course, fail now and again; some people just make us angry. Why should I become unhappy because Charlie Brown is unhappy? Impersonal love means that we make this application in a hurry. Christ loved us unconditionally when we are the most obnoxious. We are motivated by personal love for God to develop the same attitude in us as He had for us. Our response to obnoxious people, whatever it is, we can follow His pattern of impersonal love. We have that capability. The unconditional love which He bestows upon the entire human race, that is our precedent. In law, we have precedent. Our law which went before is our precedent. We are the ones who follow. Perfect God loves us, despite our glaring imperfections. We must learn that same love, despite all of the faults in those around us.

Eph 5:2 And walk in love, as Christ also has loved us, and has given Himself for us as an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet smelling savor.

This is His attitude, so we can have this attitude as well. We can live with impersonal love just as He did. Our impersonal love derived from divine impersonal love. Patient and tolerant. This is what we have at our command. Just as His impersonal love took precedence over the flawed sinner. This is one of the most important spiritual acquisitions of our lives.

Virtue love is one of the most important acquisitions of our life

1. Virtue love implants in our souls a functional list of standards.
2. These standards are the principles by which we live our lives in relation to other people and fulfill God's plan. It is not just about relationships.
3. These principles, virtue love principles, constitute and honor code for us. That is built upon ἐπίγνωσις doctrine leading to grace and doctrinal orientation and also built upon reciprocal love for God leading to virtue love. Hence, with virtue love, impersonal love toward all mankind. Impersonal love is the epitome of the mature Christian life.

Summary

1. This is applicable to everyone, whether you love them personally or not.
2. Impersonal love does not emphasize the virtue of someone else. It is about you; it is not about anyone else.
3. Virtue love holds no grudge or resentment against anyone, especially against other believers. 1John 3:11 Heb. 13:1
4. Other believers possess the same imputed righteousness which we possess. Every believer has the righteousness of God in him. All of us have that. No matter how obnoxious we get, we all have it. That obnoxious person, God gave His righteousness to, so maybe I ought to ease up.
5. It rejects self-pity and never seeks to arouse the pity of others. Why should we pity ourselves? We have been given more than anyone else. No matter how we are treated by other people, we do not become involved with emotional manipulation. Too often we try to manipulate people whom we love. John 15:12 Rom. 12:9–10 we are also to respect the privacy of other believers. Being a priest means that we represent ourselves before God. We bel-priests, we do this in privacy.

Impersonal love and Privacy

1. Privacy of the priesthood is one result of extending virtue love toward other believers.
2. Privacy is essential for freedom. Everyone must live their own lives before the Lord; no one haranguing them.
3. The Christian way of life is a life of freedom for the individual believer to advance to maturity. All of this takes place in our soul. This is individual. Allow it to take place; do not interfere.
4. Privacy demands that believers abstain from many things: gossip, judging, maligning, mental attitude sins, evil speculations, rumors and heresy evidence. Rom. 14:10–13
5. Respect for the privacy of the priesthood also demands other things: it demands toleration for the erroneous attitudes and opinions of immature believers on non-essential matters. Privacy requires flexibility. There is no flexibility on some matters, of course. You do not violate Bible doctrine.
6. The study of meat sacrificed to idols in 1Cor. 10:28, 31–33 Those who bought meat which was not contaminated; but some believers objected to it. They thought that it was some form of idolatry. Buying and eating this meat caused some of them to stumble. We are not to become a stumbling block to immature believers. That which we have a right to do is superceded by the law of love. This is impersonal love.

Summary Points for impersonal love

1. The law of love always takes other believers into consideration. It is not just yourself.
2. The law of love is fulfilled by the application of impersonal love.
3. There are certain activities which we have the liberty to do. Some believers believe that drinking any alcohol is a sin. Impersonal love demands if you have a glass of wine, do not do it in front of those who are confused by it.
4. Sometimes, you refrain from doing things that you have a right to do.
5. It is a judgment call. Do you have any good sense? Can you look at a situation and figure out what to do? Our wisdom allows us to make good decisions in every situation. We learn what the best is for every immature believer. The wisdom of Bible doctrine must always be your guide.

You want to always contribute to another's spiritual advance, not a block to it. You want to encourage rather than discourage by indulging your liberty. Impersonal love demands that you refrain from lawful activities so that you do not offend or cause the weak to stumble. That was tough for Bobby in seminary, because he knew that he had much greater liberty than they thought. The doctrine of the stumbling block demands that we refrain from exercising our liberty in these cases. You do not flaunt your right as a believer. We have this today—I am going to do whatever I want in public, no matter what you think. The bottom line is, you must never interfere with another believer's process of growing in grace. If they are implacable in their legalism, after repeated exposure to doctrine, means that you are not the cause of their problem. Do not strut yourself either. You must make some judgment calls as a mature or advancing believer.

1John 4:10: In this is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation concerning our sins.

Lesson #842

1Cor. 13 Introduction January 28, 2009

Wednesday

The law of liberty and law of love are sometimes in conflict. The application of impersonal love is critical. You must work out a solution and determine which one takes precedence. We are to tolerate and show patience toward the weak and immature believer. Anything not negated by Biblical principles is free for us to do. In certain cases, the law of liberty can be superceded by the law of love. In everything that you do, you take other believers into consideration; this consideration is the attitude of the application of impersonal love. This consideration for others is that attitude. It is not easy to apply impersonal love. However, it is a mandate. If you can apply it, then you can fulfil the royal law. If you can do that, then you are doing well. We have the obligation to behave nobly and kindly to others. This is a reflection of the nobility in your soul. As nobility, we need to learn to act like nobility. There is very little left by way of royalty in the world, except in England. They are taught from birth how to behave as royalty. They have a certain protocol. Whether or not they act like royalty, they are royalty, and they know the proper way to act. We are a greater royalty than any royal family in the world today. Liberty is approval of certain actions under Biblical standards. So, you might say, "When would I ever not be able to do something not sanctioned by Biblical standards?” You must sometimes refrain from taking liberties even when they are legitimate. You must make an application based upon your discernment of a situation that you come across. As you grow up as royalty, as mature royalty, you learn more and more how to apply that royalty to those who do not understand impersonal love. They also probably have little or no appreciation of it when you show them impersonal love. You must be flexible in your attitude and actions toward the weaker and sometimes legalistic believer. Never do you compromise doctrine. But you must apply that toleration and thoughtfulness based upon the virtue in your soul. The question is, when should you be flexible or not? When do you exercise your liberty or when do you apply impersonal love.

Review of Last Night

1. The wisdom of spiritual maturity and the motivation of reciprocal love for God are our reference points. The doctrine that you take it, you develop virtue and virtue love. Those are the points of reference that you use to apply impersonal love.
2. You wish to keep the immature believer from being distracted from doctrine.
3. Always contribute to the uninterrupted momentum of spiritual advance. Noblesse oblige.
4. You do not ever make yourself or your liberty an issue in the mind of the weak believer. Give them some privacy. They will want to jump all over us with legalism. However, we let them grow up. Do not be a stumbling block to them.
5. Encourage rather than discourage the weak believer and their new spiritual life. To them, you have done something heinously wrong. All kinds of things can distract weak believers. Just use some discernment and doctrine and some impersonal love, and move on. Do not get all wrapped around the axle because someone is testing your impersonal love.
6. Bobby knows people who can do some great insulting, but they have curbed that.
7. You temporarily or permanently refrain from the exercise of your liberty.
8. You do not flaunt your rights as a believer. Use some discernment and judgment. Do not react to circumstances and people. You might be able to utilize these rights in privacy.

You must discredit yourself in front of the unbeliever. You lose your opportunity to witness.

Witnessing and the Law of love

1. To not drive an unbeliever away, requires applying the law of expediency. This is the law of love applied to the unbeliever. This is impersonal love just directed to the unbeliever. We also have this obligation. Remember love your neighbor?
2. If the unbeliever looks at us and sees no advantage of Christ in you, why should he listen to you? The unbeliever watches you. Many times it is out of disgust and contempt. They want to see how pathetic you are and how right they are to reject it. Bob once hunted with an unbeliever, and he was impressed and he became a believer, noting that Bob was a very good shot. Do you embarrass Jesus Christ by your actions? One day you will have to stand in front of Him and get an explanation for your life. You are either furthering the cause of Christ or embarrassing Him.

3. You forgo a liberty so that you do not confuse an unbeliever with something which you want to do. You do not have to get sloppy drunk with an unbeliever in order to witness to them. Carnality is out, but good judgment is in.
4. You must operate in a manner so that the unbeliever sees the grace of God in you. If you are not grace orientated, then you cannot apply impersonal love. Doctrinal orientation means that you learn grace orientation. Starts with doctrine, and continues with reciprocal love. The bottom line is, you must not interfere with your witness or with your life. You might have to live the gospel in someone else's eyes, which requires impersonal love. One guy that Bobby played golf with, and they realized that they just chose to reject God, so they prayed to God to give them information. Two weeks later, another golfer provided them with that information.

When is it legitimate for liberty to supercede love?

1. If
2. If they have rejected doctrine and have rejected grace, then the exercise of your liberty is not their stumbling block. If they reject the Christian way of life in grace, then you do not have to sweat it.
3. In this case, you are not their stumbling block; they are tripping over themselves.
4. Again and always, you must exercise good judgment and the application of impersonal love. There are times even when a person with locked in negative volition where you must forgo your liberty and operate under the law of love.

With regards to the unbeliever, the law of love always supercedes the law of liberty. You function in impersonal love toward them for all of their life. Do not get in their way. You should decide in your great wisdom that liberty is justified. There is always the chance that the negative person will turn toward God. If you are about to do something which will confuse or mislead an unbeliever, then you refrain from doing it. Be judicious in how you use your liberty. This is where the wisdom of your impersonal love comes in. When in doubt, always err on the side of love. Ultimately, Bible doctrine is the essential for all of this. Where a believer adheres to Bible doctrine, to the privacy of the priesthood, the law of liberty can be applied. Virtue and impersonal love grow, and believers will stop stumbling over other people's liberty. They might even stop stumbling over other sins and mistakes. Psalm 32:5 is a great example: I confessed my sin to You, and my iniquity I have not hidden. I said, I will confess my transgression to Jehovah; and You forgave the iniquity of my sin. David hurt many people and caused many to stumble in his kingly career, and he paid a terrible price for it. But in the end, he was responsible for his failures only to God. In spite of these failures, he was called a man after God's own heart.

If some legalist comes after you, then he can take you right along with him. A very important aspect of impersonal love is toleration. This is a wonderful word. It sounds weak, but it is important to the Christian life.

1. Toleration permits all believers to focus objectively on the Word of God as the assemble in the local congregation. You tolerate all kinds of people. You would never choose to be around them if you have the choice.
2. Thus the immature believer has the privacy and the freedom to grow up without secondary issues of liberty intruding on their conscience.
3. The application of impersonal love also gives the mature believer opportunity to develop the spiritual strengths of virtue love by being flexible and tolerant. This means that you have made progress. More is demanded of the strong, mature believer than the weak, immature believer.

Lesson #843

1Cor. 13 Introduction January 29, 2009

Thursday

We live in a unique age. We have the filling of the Holy Spirit and access to gap by which we grow to spiritual maturity. We are a royal priest and we can fulfill the royal law of James 2:8. We have the unique spiritual life. The love that Christ utilized throughout His earthly ministry up to the cross and on the cross. We have access to all of that. We have the privilege of living with the same attitude. We have the option to live it. This is the more that we can enjoy this love as we grow. The development of the virtue love, which is the end product of spiritual growth, and this is key to the Christian way of life. The development is what we are aiming at as we grow to spiritual maturity. We find this in vv. 2–3. The overall theme, without virtue love, we are nothing. No matter how great you think you are, and how much you think you are accomplishing for the Lord, it means nothing without virtue love. We must use God's grace resources to do this. We must express virtue love in all that we do. We are nothing without that virtue love. Our spiritual life is really devoid of production without that right attitude of virtue love. As you grow, you develop virtue love. His plan to glorify Him involves virtue love. This is key to our eternal reward. This carries over for eternity. So, it stands to reason that the expectation for the strong and the mature believer is greater than for the weaker and immature believer. Less expectations from the immature believer. Without much doctrine, the immature believer is short on virtue love. In that condition, the immature believer cannot fulfill their primary function.

Jesus was a scholar of the Old Testament. Many times, in His messages, those who heard Him, also heard Him teach the Old Testament. They would be able to put things together. "You will love your God with all your soul, all your heart and all your mind" which is a great definition of reciprocal love. You cannot love Him unless you know Him. The two-column advance. "This is the first and foremost commandment."

All of us, including the weak believer and the immature believer, have access to the exact same spiritual life. Grow up and utilize the two-column advance. The two great commandments. Jesus is talking about the virtue love which we have been studying. We should have expectations of ourselves as well, just as God has expectations of us.

What obligation does virtue love impose upon those who can use it? What is expected?

1. The obligation of honest, generous and responsible behavior toward the immature believer. Another way to describe impersonal love. Rom. 15:1–5: Then we who are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good, to building up. For even Christ did not please Himself; but as it is written, "The reproaches of those who reproached You fell on Me." For whatever things were written before were written for our learning, so that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope. And may the God of patience and consolation grant you to be like minded toward one another according to Christ Jesus, Virtue love precludes that arrogant self-centeredness. We are to please for the neighbor's good for his edification. We bear the weaknesses of the immature believer for their edification. The strong must never get in the way of the advance of the weak believer. We must afford them every opportunity to grow to spiritual maturity.
2. The strong are to toleration the inconsequential, non essential or even unreasonable demands placed upon us by the immature believer.
3. The strength of virtue love overlooks and endures the obnoxious opinion and actions of the weak.
4. An arrogant person may assume that we are weak in applying the law of love to the immature. "You should be chewing this person out for not knowing the doctrine."
5. Remember, there is no weakness in the flexibility of impersonal love. It is the strongest part of impersonal love.
6. Impersonal virtue love demonstrates courtesy and thoughtfulness and sensitivity toward those in the congregation who are at different stages of growth.
7. The strong believer may bend, but he will never break. He is inflexible, but he may bend with the inflexible application of impersonal love. This has a lot to do with our conscience.
8. A believer with impersonal love maintains a relaxed mental attitude and a sense of humor about himself. He has a sense of humore about life and about others. If you get too serious, you set up false standards for others. Those whom you impose these standards must meet them in order to satisfy you.
9. So we can fulfill Rom. 15:1–2.

Every believer has a common objective. We have one common objective. Virtue love through spiritual growth. There is no one who is a Christian without that... All of us must develop reciprocal love. That means that all believers must submit to the authority of their right pastor-teacher. You don't hop from church to church looking for you right pastor. You get under one and stay there.

Impersonal love and bearing weaknesses. Every believer must build virtue through doctrine. There are so many Christians who confused virtue with human morality. They confuse morality and virtue.

Distinguishing between Virtue and Morality

1. Human morality belongs to believers and unbelievers alike. Morality is a good thing and immorality can end a nation.
2. But, the focus on mere morality often devolves into legalism when it is assumed to be the Christian way of life. Rom. 13:1, 8–10
3. The virtue love which we have been studying is the far superior Christian life.
4. Morality is the fulfillment of the laws of divine establishment. This is a good thing and an obligation that we all have.
5. Virtue is the foundation for virtue love, which is so much greater. Virtue love exceeds but it includes morality.
6. With virtue love, you fulfill the true norms of morality and
7. The downside of morality is breeding legalism in a person who is arrogant. Human morality has a tendency to change. We see this all the time. It becomes a situational ethic. We see this in the politics today. Situational ethics rule and it is called morality. In virtue love, there is no shadow of turning; it is absolute. There are no grey areas in virtue love.
8. The legalism engendered by arrogance and morality means being judgmental of those who do not meet the standards of the self righteous moralist. People who simply adhere to human moral standards are simply legalists.
9. Virtue love negates inflexibility, judging, maligning, implacability, and self righteousness.
10. Impersonal virtue love adds the all important dimension to human morality: Bible doctrine, which adds the standard of virtue.
11. Virtue love is the key to our morality and the standards of our Christian life.

Another Aspect

1. Self-serving arrogance is removed from your life with virtue love; they are antithetical.
2. Our talent, our scintillating personality, our asceticism, and all of our human ability never merits a single blessing from God.
3. Those are not virtues in the Christian life. These are impressive things in some Christian circles.
4. None of these things commend us to God; they are ego-centric and not theocentric.
5. Virtue love is grace orientated. This is where virtue love comes from...through the two-column advance.

We cannot apply these standards to others because we cannot impose our standards on other people. Virtue in the Christian life includes live and let live and it precludes legalism.

Applicational Results

1. No impersonal love means you have no true personal love

2. Anger and hatred intrude on your relationships.
3. Momentum from doctrine builds grace orientation and reciprocal love.
- 4.
5. So the virtue love of your life is centered around God; not us or another person.
6. Virtue love always requires grace orientation, which is the firm confidence that we will receive the grace of God and His virtue love toward us, despite our not deserving it.
7. We are constantly treated with benevolence of God. We can apply this to ourselves and others. We apply the benevolence with which God treats us and apply it to others.
8. This means we become sensitive to and tolerant to those around us.
9. Reciprocal love for God always produces virtue love. It is the opposite of self righteousness and the opposite of insensitivity.

We must depend totally on the virtue of God we must be aware of His attributes and His grace policy. Our point of reference with God is His virtue love. We learn to love as He loves us. Right motivations leads to right actions.

This is the fabulous virtue love

1. Its source is the attribute of God's love toward us in grace.
2. It is developed in our reciprocal love for Him.
3. It results in personal love for a few.
4. It results in impersonal love toward all.
5. This spectrum of virtue love is reflected in the qualities found in 1Cor. 13:4ff.

a special speaker

Ralph and Cindy LaRosa from the Philippines. They have been there for 30 years. This is a part of our ministry as well. They have been on the field, able to rebound a lot. Deut. 4:9: make them known to your sons and grandsons. In order to update us, we are to remember the blessing. Deuteronomy is a transitional book. The younger generation is about to go into the Promised Land and the older has died out. For over 33 years, God has made all grace abound toward them. The test. We need these tests because, by nature, we are arrogant and selfish. When the test is going on in our life, we forget that this is part of our growth. God provided leadership. One reason they are still in the field is the incredible leadership. Remember those who have led you, who spoke the Word of God to you. Imitate their faith. Some of you may be realizing that you can relate to something in this presentation. Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever.

He visited the Philippines in 1966 as an unbeliever. God opened his eyes in Vietnam. 1970 he and his wife came to Christ on the same day. He remembers this very vividly. Heard a missionary to the Philippines that same year. Did not see him for another 5 years. Apparently there was some preparation work then. You start with virtually nothing, and yet they would go from church to church, and go from offering to offering. In spite of all of these things, God provided for them. When they were ready to go to the Philippines, he asked them to stay at his home. He had all the publications of Berachah Church. 100 students at that time. They studied the tapes and publications. 1975 to 1977. They had to come back in 1977 and returned to Berachah Church for the first time. It was during this time of this studying, that they came up with their 4 major objectives: evangelize unbelievers. Edify believers to help them grow in grace and knowledge of Jesus Christ. To equip pastors and leaders. Through this ministry, they understood the thrust of their spiritual gift.

He learned to find a place and stay there a long time. Very fortunate to hang on to this concept. 2 year transitional period. This set them up to plant their own ministry, which was in 1978. Not in the areas of the terrorist organizations. 7000 islands and 80 million people there. Size of Arizona. South of Manila now. Were able to buy some property. First building for 6 or 7 years. They have been able to remodel it. Very close to a mall. God directed and guided them to start a school there. A third story will be added on one side. It is staying in the same place and plugging away. This takes teamwork and we are a part of their team. Doctrine from the church and the support and prayers.

His wife home schooled their kids and taught at an international school so their kids could go there. 8 students in 1999 and now it is 125 students. Impact on the city. There are about 60 kids per class in the city. They are not learning much. Kids must learn to read in order to learn the Bible. They can evangelize there. These children get 5 Bible stories a week. A presentation with the gospel regularly. They can rent a cinema and he taught a series over there. A lot of adults, some computer schools sent their kids there. Were able to fill up the cinema several times. He could give his testimony of being in the military to the Philippine police who go there. Leadership training.

Some muslim kids there taught to beg.

Estimated 90 million people, doubled since they arrived. 2 million babies born a year there. 7 main islands. There are 3 muslim groups and the new people's army. The wall of fire with them and they feel safer there than in Detroit. 200,000 philippinos served in WWII. There are over 170 languages in the Philippines, but two main ones. The whole ministry opened up with being able to teach English there.

About 48,000 pastors who are not really trained. To form a new ministry called the Christian leadership ministry or something like that. A group from Austin helped them. 169 delegates showed up.

The foundation. The authority of the Word of God. When he first heard about Berachah Church and he did not put some things together until reading canonicity. Excellent training in theology and hermeneutics. Use Chafer's Theology. Exegesis was the big one. This challenges him still, and he is turning 61. Systematic theology. Hundreds of categories from Berachah. Nothing happens until you apply it. Sometimes the organization you are with is the problem. They learned with Berachah Church that you do not beg for money. 27th year with grace world missions. Everything is provided. They are tested. Works salvation there and people trusting in their church, knowledge, sacraments, etc. Thought over emotion. That is a great challenge, problems with emotional Christianity. Religion is their main enemy. People who think they can go to heaven based upon their works. Intake of the Word of God daily. Inward man is renewed day by day and the outward man is perishing. Evangelism based on faith alone in Christ alone. Incredible evangelism there. Sister picked up some booklets and took them home because they were free and never read them. Her brother read them and believed and was a pastor for many years. Remote areas where there are Berachah literature.

Lesson #844

1Cor. 13:1 February 1, 2009

Sunday 1

We have fully examined ἀγάπη and there are 30 hours on this topic. The Christian way of life hinges on understanding love. The more you get to know the attribute love, that grace is the expression of God's love toward us. As you continue your march toward spiritual maturity, so grows virtue love, which is expressed toward other people, both personal virtue love for a few and impersonal virtue love for all. This virtue love which we have studied for the past 2 months gives us the whole spectrum of love for vv. 1–8.

1Cor. 12:31: Yet be zealous for the greater graces. And still I am showing you a path, suited to transcendence.

Tongues

1. Tongues is a spiritual gift of speaking in a language that the speaker did not previously know. Those around him can understand what he is saying. The speaker could give a complete and coherent message in that language.
2. What the person said was completely understandable to some of the listeners who knew this language.
3. The speaker also understood what he was saying. He was not a speech-puppet.
4. Therefore, the speaking was not an ecstatic utterance by someone in a trance-like state. This is not emotional, unintelligible speaking. This is not something which is just God in control.
5. What was spoken was fluent; it is a linguistic tool. It did not show a special relationship between the speaker in tongues and God. We all have this relationship. This does not bestow special favor on anyone.
6. The languages could be interpreted. This assumes that it was intelligible and a language used somewhere on this planet. This is the tongues of men.
7. Tongues no longer exists as a spiritual gift. Tongues ceased after the Bible was fully completed. The Corinthians had heard those speaking in tongues and they themselves had this gift. However, this was a contentious problem in Corinth and some used this gift to exalt themselves in the church. This is done today. Even in those days, tongues was no more special than any other gift, and today, it is not even a legitimate gift.

The better way described in this chapter is virtue love. Paul goes all out in this dissertation. It is amazing thing which Paul does. Paul in here uses the tongues of angels. Up until this time, Paul has talked about speaking in the tongues of men and now, he is going to talk about the tongues of angels. What purpose does Paul do this. The key to understanding this is found in the Greek grammar.

The conditional conjunction  $\epsilon\alpha\nu$  + the present active subjunctive of  $\lambda\alpha\lambda\epsilon\omega$ . If I speak... This is the 3rd class condition; maybe I do and maybe I do not. Uncertainty is applied. Here, it is better to say, suppose rather than if. There must be some sort of an angelic language. Paul maybe speaks in languages of men or languages of angels; maybe he does and maybe he does not. However, apart from love, there is nothing here but background noise. People love to focus on tongues in this chapter; however, the import of this chapter is virtue love. Tongues is just an illustration. Paul as an apostle had the gift of tongues, and this is revealed in the Book of Acts. So, why does Paul use suppose here? We might reasonably say, Paul may speak in the languages of angels. We may assume some sort of angelic language exists. His hypothesis is hyperbole or exaggeration. Suppose that I speak in every possible language known to man and angels...? is to be taken as quite impressive. Anyone doing this would be quite impressive. What we have here is an exaggeration for shock effect on the Corinthians. The Corinthians highly respect the gift of tongues and they exalted it greatly, more than its actual purpose.

Introductory Points on Paul's Reasoning

1. Paul is using a working hypothesis to explain virtue love, not tongues.
2. The hypothesis assigns the true value of tongues as a temporary gift, and the more important value of virtue love.
3. It also emphasizes that tongues has no validity apart from the spiritual life of the believer who uses it.
4. Even if you could converse in the language of angels, this would be of no use to you apart from virtue love. This gift is used to work up people emotionally, to show a miracle, to get money from them; but even if someone could do this, there is no use to them.
5. You can live the spiritual life without a spectacular gift, but you cannot live it without virtue love.
6. It is not the gift of tongues which matters but virtue love.

This is why Bobby spent all of this time on virtue love. This is one of the most critical doctrines in our spiritual life. The inflated perspective in speaking in all of these languages drives home the points of virtue love over all else. Even the tongues of angels is way secondary to virtue love resident in the soul of the believer. Paul uses hypothesis and hyperbole. It could happen, but hyperbole is used for effect. Paul is finally getting down in this chapter to giving the great solution. The Corinthians are in this sea of self-promotion, divisiveness, etc. There is no definitive Biblical evidence that any person has ever spoken in some sort of heavenly language. Paul does not attribute this to angels but to himself only. When he includes angelic languages in this mix, he is giving some possibility of angelic languages here. In practical terms, all other languages would be identifiable by some human being who speaks that language. Since no one has heard an angelic language, much less translated it, how would anyone actually know that it is an angelic language? The only way this would be known is, the speaker says, "By the way, this is some angelic language that I just spoke." Speaking in an angelic language is problematic. All people can understand doctrine and the gospel in their native tongues. So why is there a need to communicate in an angelic language? There could be an angelic language and there probably is. We need to learn in the language that we know. People today speak in some unintelligible gibberish and they call it an angelic language, and, it, at best, gives them some kind of thrill. Have you grown about this in hearing an angelic language?

In the past, some rabbis have contended that the tongues of angels refers to the Hebrew language refers to Hebrew, which is the language of the Old Testament. Angels have communicated to men, and this is in their own language. The word ἀγγελος means messenger. So angels are communicators. Their message to man was in Hebrew, Aramaic, or Greek. No other angelic communication is given in the Bible. Of course they will communicate in the way that men can understand.

We could be witnessing to angels? We do not witness to angels. There are fallen angels and elect angels. There is no additional chance for them. Those who did not choose to follow Satan are with God. There is nothing which requires us to speak in angelic languages. Clearly in this verse, angelic language is distinguished from human language. The real issue is, virtue love. Without virtue love, what Paul says is meaningless.

1Cor. 13:1 Suppose that I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal.

1Cor. 13:1 February 11, 2009

Wednesday

Although there may or may not be an angelic language, that is not the point of this verse.

Present active subjunctive of to speak. Eav+the subjunctive means a 3rd class condition. This is a speculative approach. Reasonable to render this suppose. A conditional clause has a protasis and an apodosis. This and the next two verses is, no matter what your spiritual gift, no matter what you think of yourself, if you have not advanced to virtue love, then all else is pointless. That is what makes virtue love such a central theme of Christianity.

The protasis: Suppose that I speak in the tongues of men and of angels,... Paul was probably the greatest believer of all time. He was gifted in ways that we will never be. He is talking about speaking in tongues, which he has done. He even throws in the language of angels here for good measure. This is the importance of of virtue love.

The gift of tongues was important in the pre-canon era. It was the way in which doctrine was spread. It was the way people understood it in the native tongue. Many people understood the mystery doctrine of the Church Age. This was a significant communication gift. I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal. Why would Paul denigrate the gift of tongues? He is exaggerating here for effect, to effect the Corinthians and their misuse of the gift of tongues. Paul will tell us how they have misused this gift and how the gift has ceased. Certain spiritual gifts have ceased in the post-canon age.

This gift was highly prized by the Corinthians. Those who spoke in it seemed to have an elevated status. Those who spoke in tongues saw themselves as great Christians. When they forgot where their gift came from, and the way God designed the gift to be used. Paul was presenting the problem and the solution.

Paul says, suppose I did speak with the gift of tongues and even spoke in the language of angels. And he says, "So what; it matters little that I did that." So, he is telling them, "Do not focus on this gift." Focus on virtue love rather than upon the gift. The gift of tongues can be exploited to the maximum, but not without virtue love.

What better way for Paul to offset the inflation of this temporary spiritual gift. He does it with this bold statement of linguistics.

Virtue Love, Tongues and Syntax

1. Using probable circumstances, Paul explains the importance of virtue love for the spiritual life of the Church Age. He will talk about other gifts as well. He explains the importance of virtue love.
2. They hypothesis assigns the true value of tongues as a temporary spiritual gift. But beneath the all-encompassing value of virtue love. Bobby has summed up once again the value of the Christian life.
3. Paul emphasizes the fact that tongues has no validity apart from the spiritual life of the believer who uses them. This emphasizes what is wrong in Corinth—no advance, no spiritual life.
4. Even if Paul could converse with the tongues of angels or even talk to God, this would be of no use to the speaker. Without virtue love, it is human good. It is worth nothing. There will be no rewards in heave for such a one. Human good will be burned up; only divine good will remain.
5. You can live the spiritual life without the spectacular gifts. There does not have to be a spectacular gift. But you cannot live the spiritual life without virtue love. Paul's intent in these 3 verses, and they are a passage of the great emphasis of the spiritual life. The point is, tongues, even the tongues of angels, which we think of as heavenly and beyond our imagination, are secondary to virtue love resident in the soul of the believer. Paul is using hypothesis and a bit of hyperbole. This is such a great indicator of where we are in our spiritual life. Do we have the capacity for personal virtue love or impersonal virtue love? How critical is that? That is where we meet every other person on this earth.

Now we go to the apodosis of this phrase. It is so revealing. These Corinthians had no idea how bad it was. This will explain how bad tongues can be without virtue love.

Cacophony, which is just noise that assaults the senses. This sound is the opposite of symphonic music. Chalks = gong. This is anything made of brass, which is where we get the meaning here. A gong is a convex metallic disc which gives a resonant tone when struck. Paul describes this sound as noisy. It is an adjectival participle. Acheô. This is ringing out, reverberating sound. This is a predicate nominative construction. Paul is being compared or equated to the brass gong. "If I speak in tongues without the characteristics of virtue love, I have become like a loud brass gong; irritating and not edifying." Everything that we have studied about the Corinthians can be summed up as a brass gong. The Corinthians get it immediately. Peddlers used to enter into the city of Corinth and they would move into the central market, and then they would beat their gongs in order to get everyone's attention.

1885 an obscure battle near Hanoi, between a small garrison of the French foreign legion who fought off 25,000 Chinese attackers. This was a super-Alamo of sorts. It is a memorable battle. The French foreign legion was a formidable fighting force and they are still intact. They were made up of many nationalities and many sorts of men; some who were trying to escape their past or they had been allowed out of jail to be in the legion. It took iron discipline to keep such men together. Deserting meant a firing squad. March or die. It was a tough military organization.

They finally lost in Vietnam after the French left in 1954, we entered into it. One group of them black flag army and they besieged the legionnaires.

A typical black flag attack included a violent charge, at full run, and screaming at the top of their lungs, banging gongs and cymbals. It was designed to strike fear into whatever force they were attacking. It was an unnerving sound.

It is in this way that Paul described the sound of tongues when there is no virtue love. The Corinthians understood this gong and cymbal illustration. Striking the kumballon gave a very loud sound. There was a difference in usage. The first for a peddler and the second was used for ritual observances. Αλαλαζω means to cry outloud, to cry loudly (especially used of people who have died).

Bobby went to a funeral where professional mourners were hired. Anyone else could join in with this sound. This also happened in the ancient world. There were hired mourners in the ancient world. A clanging cymbal was heard at funerals and for pagan worship and idolatry. Ritual observance. This is a highly charged, emotional sound. This slaps the Corinthians in the face. This sound would drive you mad if you heard it for too long; and there was this long wailing of women being taken in during pagan worship, and they would tear their victims to pieces. And this is compared to speaking in tongues. Paul has described this obnoxious noise to compare to the Corinthians speaking in tongues.

Paul is on a roll about virtue love and he is going to continue this misuse of tongues, and he will use more 3rd class conditions. They are all hypothetical.

1Cor. 13:1 Suppose that I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal.

Lesson #846

1Cor. 13:1 February 12, 2009

Thursday

vv. 1–3 are Paul's explanation of the importance of virtue love. What Paul does, he uses dramatic analogies to make his point. Hyperbole. Cutting and biting and it reverberates with these hard-headed Corinthians.

Virtue love is truly at the center of our Christian life. From the top to bottom. Our ability to apply that wonderful skill that we develop from capacity for love. That virtue love is the end of the line for us in terms of spiritual maturity. People can present the best and the worst. From the beginning, we see this virtue love. This chapter is central to the entire book of Corinthians. The many problems of disharmony can all be handled by this chapter. Every church faces these potential problems.

Hypothesis concerning virtue love related to the spiritual gift of tongues, which will be the illustration as he moves into the latter half of this chapter.

V. 1 is in the form of the Greek 3rd class condition. He is presenting a scenario which may or may not be occurring. They can identify with this, but this is an exaggeration for effect. This hypothesis serves beautifully for this effect.

Paul says, suppose that I am speaking with the tongues of men and even of angels; this is the supposition. Every time we find ἀγαπή love here, we are speaking of virtue love.

The gift of tongues really amounts to nothing without virtue love. Paul wants to drive home to them just how useless this gift is without virtue love. All of this is aggravating noise, and this is presented to them for effect. They are using this for their own purposes. This is like a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal. A brassy gong is how a peddler would announce himself. He would enter into the market area. Most cities had a central market. When he arrived, he would get out his gong and make noise. It was irritating. This is to draw attention to his arrival and his wares. This is how the Corinthians were using this gift. To draw attention to themselves.

Bobby is printing a retraction about the Gong Show.

Paul calls himself a clanging cymbal if he uses this gift without virtue love. The cymbal in the temple represented raw emotion and the ecstasy of the mania of their worship. The gift of tongues was just a grating noise if virtue love was not in attendance. No doctrine, no spiritual edification flowing from the use of this gift.

1Cor. 13:1 Suppose that I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal.

Now, Bobby is going to look at the next two verses: And if I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing. If I give away all I have, and if I deliver up my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing. (1Cor. 13:2–3).

4 premises; all hypotheses and all possible. These phrases all serve to emphasize Paul's point again and again. Paul is driving this point home. Virtue love first all tha that it means.

Προφητῆια = prophecy. The prophet did not have to exegete the Word of God; it was delivered to him and some aspect of mystery doctrine was made known to him. The way they were using these gifts was a problem, and the problem was not using virtue love. God did not bestow the gift of prophecy to just any Charlie Brown, was their point of view. This gift had become a great source of arrogance among the Corinthians by the one who possessed it.

The Gift of Prophecy

1. Prophecy predicted the future before the canon of Scripture was completed.
2. This included foretelling accurately the future as it related to the plan of God. This is not tarot cards or a ouija board.

3. It provided a message of divine guidance or a warning of coming judgment of sin.
4. Prophecy also revealed the will of God regarding current events.
5. It predicted future events during the apostolic age.
6. It also included the faculty for communicating doctrine pertinent to historical situations. How should a certain even be interpreted.
7. Finally, doctrine was what the prophets taught; doctrine not yet found in the Word of God. You can see why Corinthians would covet this gift. Prophecy was necessary in order to complete the canon of Scripture. Revelation is the most concentrated presentation of future events. The Apostles themselves had this gift. This is the importance of this gift.

Let's say, not only can you prophesy, but you understand all mysteries and all knowledge of the Church Age. These are separate concepts. Here, they represent just one concept.

We can open the Bible and the whole realm of doctrine is right there before us. Mystery and knowledge represent the same principle. The Church Age was about 30 years old at this time. It was still being disseminated to Church Age believers at this time. This mystery doctrine was now in effect as they are in the Church Age, and some are teaching it, even though there is no Scripture in existence.

Pastors are sometimes called prophets because they communicate mystery doctrine. Bobby communicates what they communicated. Gradually, the true gift of prophecy faded away.

The 2nd gift named here is the gift of faith (πίστις). This is the fundamental function of all believers; it is a system of perception and all believers operate on faith. This does not remove empiricism or rationalism from our thinking. All humans function on faith. All believers operate on faith. Faith is the evidence of things not seen. Rationalism is based on logic; empiricism is based upon things seen. Bible doctrine is objective and it proves what is unseen is real. God is not seen, but we have proofs that He exists.

We believe in Jesus Christ on faith alone. But we know He was a real historical person and we have the witness of thousands of people who saw Him in His life and ministry. People heard His Words and saw Him and heard what He said on the cross.

The Bible is the book attested to by so many sources which agree. That in itself is miraculous. There are literally thousands of variants, but none effect the meaning of Bible doctrine. That is the hand of the Holy Spirit, another proof of our faith. Everyone uses faith at one time or another. There is something that we have not seen and we accept their word that, that thing exists.

Blind faith of those who almost religiously accept and believe in evolution. No one has seen this take place. It is unseen. No one has ever witnessed it. Only the apparent results have been seen. Their ideas are often based on little or no evidence. One theory rapidly replaces another. The supposed evidence can often be interpreted in a number of ways. There is even a politically correct way to understand it. Evolution is a force of nature creating. This is true faith. Given enough time, millions of years, inanimate matter become alive and that eventually becomes us. It takes blind faith to believe that.

We may not see those things which we believe by faith, but we also see results. Our faith is based on confidence in the authority and veracity of someone. The veracity of the Lord Jesus Christ and the authority of the Scriptures. There are also other proofs. The grace apparatus for perception is unseen, but there is evidence for it. There is no Z in your soul, but there is that method which produces real results.

Bobby would like to have us stand up and tell us how we experience spiritual growth. As we take in Bible doctrine, we can see the results. We learn how to relax as we have never done before. All the results of Bible doctrine. Remember how you were ten years ago and what you are now. That is the result of spiritual growth in our lives.

Bobby can give testimony to things unseen; his spiritual gift. Here, this is a faith which can move a mountain, and it is still in existence today. Paul mentions this gift in this context because of the nature of the gift. This is faith way above and beyond the norm.

Faith can move a mountain in the figurative sense. This is a faith above and beyond the call of duty. This is an exaggeration. And he will say, this is spectacular and worthless without virtue love.

1Cor. 13:2 And if I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing.

Lesson #847

1Cor. 13:1–3 February 15, 2009

Sunday 1

Paul mentions things which are not out of line, and these are critical gifts, necessary gifts, important communication gifts, and some of the most important aspects of Christianity, and Paul says that they are nothing apart from virtue love.

These are hyperbolic statements, and Paul certainly spoke in some languages, and it does not matter whether he actually spoke in some angelic tongue. Without virtue love, speaking the gospel and Bible doctrine in any and all foreign languages is nothing but noise—irritating noise—if spoken apart from virtue love. It is like the peddler banging on the gong. This is how the Corinthians were using the gift of tongues; they bang their cymbals in order to draw attention to themselves. This was pure emotionalism used for personal gain.

Virtue love is a thought process; it is the opposite of self-aggrandizement. Tongues was useless apart from virtue love. Virtue love first, and then all else falls into place.

Prophecy was critical to the pre-canon church, and it provided doctrine for the new Church Age believers. There may have been warnings or information about current events of that time, but these things are pointless apart from virtue love. Some would show up into town and give mystery doctrine which had not been heard before, and without virtue love, it is nothing. It is all nothing without virtue love. You must grow in metabolized doctrine. You cannot just take in Bible doctrine to have the knowledge of it; you must grow from it. Academic knowledge of all mystery doctrine is meaningless without metabolizing doctrine and applying it in virtue love.

Then there is faith, a faith to move mountains. You may be able to recognize this as hyperbolic, and this faith is a spiritual gift for a special service. It is an increased measure of faith, faith above and beyond the norm, huge enough to move even massive land masses, so that it can put a mountain into the sea. But this does not really involve moving a mountain in all actuality, but moving great things in life. God can move mountains, literally and figuratively. God controls nature, history and circumstances.

1Cor. 13:1–3 Suppose I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal. And suppose that I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and suppose I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing. If I give away all I have, and if I deliver up my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing.

Lesson #848

1Cor. 13:2 February 15, 2009

Sunday 2

Wouldn't it be enough just to say that virtue love is greater than prophecy.

You are the front line of Bible doctrine, and Jesus tells them the importance of faith, and it is has incredible power.

Matt. 21:21–22: Jesus answered and said to them, Truly I say to you, If you have faith and do not doubt, you shall not only do this miracle of the fig tree, but also; if you shall say to this mountain, Be moved and be thrown into the sea; it shall be done. And all things, whatever you shall ask in prayer, believing, you shall receive.

When Paul uses this same phraseology, both prophecy, knowledge and faith are for nought without virtue love. Mountains moved by faith, and he is nothing? Paul can speak in tongues, he is a prophet, he does have great knowledge and great faith; and, without virtue love, he is nothing. Paul himself, the greatest of the great Apostle, the one bringing the gospel to the Gentiles, who is the most famous, who has written the most New Testament books, the great Apostle himself, says that he is worthless without virtue love. He is a clanging, brassy gong; he is loud background noise. Even his teaching is of no account without virtue love. That is the impact of this fantastic impact of this passage.

Virtue love is the encompassing factor of the spiritual life. It is our attitude, it comes from the doctrine in our soul. In v. 4, he will tell us exactly what it looks like. Of course, we know that Paul's teaching and gifts are worth everything, because Paul teaches that which is divinely inspired.

With this over-the-top hyperbole, Paul is making a great point. He is saying that he is nothing without virtue love. His point must not be missed by the Corinthians who have great trouble with virtue love, what it is and what it means.

Virtue love is the result of spiritual growth. It begins with the filling of the Holy Spirit. Without that, you have no ἐπίγνωσις doctrine. When you know Him, you love Him; the more doctrine you have, the more you know Him. A two-column advance, advancing to the high ground of spiritual maturity, and as we increase the doctrine in our souls, we are building up virtue love in our soul. Virtue love is the application of our spiritual life. The glorification of God, all of it. What Paul teaches and what he writes is the basis for spiritual growth. The use of his gift and all of his teaching is worthless to us and to him if we do not grow from it; if we do not develop reciprocal love. Paul's message. It is not that the gifts or knowledge or faith are useless, but it is because the people using these things are worthless; they are not putting it all together. The spiritual life is null and void without acquiring virtue love. If you develop virtue love, this is how the other things all take place. If you do not have virtue love, then you do not have spiritual advance or effective Christian life. No effect of spiritual gifts, no service, no spiritual production. "Look at your character, and if your virtue love is missing, then you are of no account in the spiritual life."

1Cor. 13:2 And suppose I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and suppose I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing.

Paul leaves the spiritual gifts behind and he now addresses spiritual activities.

Martyrdom occurs when Christianity is violently opposed. Doesn't this make people think that there is more to Christianity besides stoicism? It shows that there is more to this than just some nice, neat philosophy.

Muslims bastardize this concept and blow themselves up and call it martyrdom. They do not have virtue love, so you can see Muslims and how far they have distorted this, and how meaningless it can actually be.

There is a very practical statement of charity, something which all believers should be involved with. However, it is hyperbolicized here; suppose I give away everything. Keep in mind the hypothetical nature of this statement; it is not a mandate for you to give away all that you have to the needy. Giving to the poor and charity and giving to the church is a good thing. Berachah Church cannot keep the doors open without giving; the needy do not get fed without charitable activities; but these things are nothing when done without virtue love.

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me" indicated the filling of the Holy Spirit. "Because He anointed Me to proclaim the gospel to the poor." It is not monetary charity. Jesus was the great fundraiser, if He chose to be. He could have gotten millions from people for the poor, if He so chose to do. However, what He presented was the gospel; the gospel is far more important. The only lasting real hope for the poor and needy is Jesus Christ Himself.

Mark 14:7: “The poor you will have with you always.” Plenty of people get a lot of political mileage out of the poor. They need things, so I will see to it that you give them your things. But there will always be poverty. There are acts of charity, just don’t think that your acts of charity will remove poverty. “You will not always have Me.” The priority is Jesus Christ. You will have the poor, but you will not have Jesus Christ. He takes precedence over good works and selfless acts. Jesus Christ is our advocate in heaven. Our priority is the mind of Christ in us. That is His never-ending presence with us. Doctrine and virtue love is the cause for real charity.

2Cor. 9:7–8: Each one, as he purposes in his heart, let him give; not of grief, or of necessity, for God loves a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound toward you, that in everything, always having all self-sufficiency, you may abound to every good work. Virtue love as the motivation. Do not give if you do not have the virtue love behind it. God loves the well-motivated believer. Many believers have been deceived and confused on this point. They will substitute the outward manifestation for the inward motivation. This is the difference between human good and divine good; hypocrisy and virtue. Bobby will discuss human good in the near future. Divine good is what counts in the overall scheme of things. People will say good things about you if you are charitable; but remember, what actually counts in eternity. There are wealthy people who have given a lot of money, and it relieves a little pain and suffering. If these people have some of their material needs met, what good does that do when it comes to eternity.

The outer deed of charity is phoney unless it comes from virtue love. The inner motivation from spiritual growth must always be present.

Aorist active subjunctive of δομίζω to give away one’s property; to feed someone. ὑπαρχο means to exist, to be present. As a participle, this is the means of existence. Then we have the presence of πας, which makes this an even stronger supposition. “Suppose that I give away all of my property for the subsistence of someone.” The poor is not here. This is one person giving to many people for the purpose of their well-being. There is no call here for socialism. Charity; socialism is coercion to support others from the fruit of your own labor. Churches which try to squeeze money out of you, are socialistic. Berachah Church has a principle of giving from virtue love; having good motivation. There is nothing wrong with charity; it is a good thing. If it is the act of charity which constitutes the Christian way of life, Paul says, “Let’s go all the way and give everything you have.” This sounds like it might be okay. Divine good and virtue love is what you are rewarded for in heaven. It is not about simply giving everything away. This is what every ascetic has ever thought. All of these hermits and monks doing all of these strange things. There are no rewards for actions only. Paul hits every aspect which people think about; communication, faith, actions, and it all required virtue love.

1Cor. 13:3 Suppose I give away all I have, and suppose I deliver up my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing.

Paul's final illustration of the preeminence of virtue love over all else is in v. 3. In the first two verses, Paul used several illustrations. He took two communication gifts for the presentation of and the formation of the church. This does not relegate the communication gift to some secondary role; doctrine is primary; faith is primary. Without doctrine, you cannot advance to maturity or develop reciprocal love. This is a strong illustration.

Summary of 1Cor. 13:1-2

1. Spiritual advance to spiritual maturity produces virtue love. One cannot exist without the other. Virtue love is the status of ἐπίγνωσις and reciprocal love.
2. The person without virtue love is nothing. It does not mean that those communication gifts are nothing.
3. That means the person without virtue love is without reciprocal love. One produces the other.
4. Therefore, even doctrine and the communication of doctrine has no efficacy unless it produces virtue love.
5. All this means, unless virtue love is present in the soul of the believer, Bible doctrine is merely academic. It is Γνώσις in the left lobe. Scar tissue blocks its use. If doctrine was being metabolized, virtue love would be formed. One cannot exist without the other. If you are advancing in ἐπίγνωσις doctrine, and if you are developing reciprocal love, then you are developing capacity for love. It does not work without each of these 3 things together.
6. The point is, what good is doctrine if it does not result in spiritual growth and virtue love? That means it is not being metabolized.
7. The communication gifts are not being affected without growth.
8. The Christian life is not being lived unless virtue love is present. Because none of the other parts of the Christian life are present. All of it is based upon the grace of God. Bobby did not fully pull together the Christian life until he understood virtue love. Virtue love is a necessity for the Christian life. If you develop reciprocal love, then you are developing virtue love as well. There are some who sit in Berachah and all there is in their soul is academic knowledge. That is how critical this is. You must metabolize doctrine.
9. Virtue love is the indicator of the status of the spiritual life.

Bobby believes that this is the most important thing which he has taught since he started teaching in Berachah Church.

1Cor. 13:2 And suppose I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and suppose I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing.

Bobby like v. 3 more than the others. The hyperbole is truly amazing. Some people, from the outside looking in, think that giving away all their goods is the key to the Christian life. There is truth to all of these hypotheses, but Paul overdoes it in order to make a point.

The Lord told one rich man to give away all of his stuff and follow Jesus. This was somewhat hyperbolic, but there is truth that there is nothing as important as our spiritual life.

Let us suppose that charity is what the Christian life is all about. Giving financial support to the needy is important. So, shouldn't giving away all that you have be the greatest thing that you can do? Wouldn't this be evidence of spiritual maturity? It would not! Charity is not the highest rung on the spiritual ladder. Paul is not using a diatribe against wealth; he is not saying, "Sell it all because wealth is bad." Material goods are never to be our security in life. For some, taking away their wealth would be the most devastating thing in their life. If you think that material goods are security, all you need is a good Madoff to come along. There is no security in wealth. Another principle is, if you have a lot of material wealth, do not feel guilty. Some people give to charity because they feel guilty; and many are socialists because they feel guilty. They won't release all of their own wealth because that is their security; but they may support socialism for the great unwashed.

Furthermore, God may have provided wealth for us for a very specific reason. God owns the cattle on a thousand hills. He has no shortage of wealth. He can give us as much as we need. He may give us just enough. On many occasions, the belt has been tightened for Berachah Church and for R.B. Thieme Ministries. With our monetary resources, we can support the gospel and the teaching of doctrine. Wealth should never take priority nor should it be a consuming pursuit. Money is always a tool to be used, as is everything else.

The second protasis: suppose I give my body to be burned. This is about our life and this is about losing one's life. This is using the extreme example of bodily Christian sacrifice. There have been many burned at the stake for their faith. Such Christian martyrs are true paragons of the faith. We assume that they must be the most dedicated of the faith. It represents the consummate faith. Persecution of Christians always brings the possibility of having to die for simply being a Christian.

Acts 7:51–60: Stephen told them, "You stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, you always resist the Holy Spirit. As your fathers did, so do you. Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute? And they killed those who announced beforehand the coming of the Righteous One, whom you have now betrayed and murdered, you who received the law as delivered by angels and did not keep it." Now when they heard these things they were enraged, and they ground their teeth at him. But he, full of the Holy Spirit, gazed into heaven and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God. And he said, "Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God." But they cried out with a loud voice and stopped their ears and rushed together at him. Then they cast him out of the city and stoned him. And the witnesses laid down their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul. And as they were stoning Stephen, he called out, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." And falling to his knees he cried out with a loud voice, "Lord, do not hold this sin against them." And when he had said this, he fell asleep. Stephen died under a pile of rocks using the motivation of virtue love in his soul. That is how strong his virtue love is. Stephen is full of the Holy Spirit. He is also filled with impersonal virtue love. "Lord, do not charge them with this sin." That is the epitome of virtue love. Even while being stoned, he had no vindictiveness or bitterness against them. Some piddling little injustice and people go berserk and march and go crazy and destroy property. Yet Stephen is being stoned, and he does not hate them. Our spiritual life can mirror that of virtue love. He had the same operational spiritual life which Jesus Christ was a prototype of. This is not some phoney statement which Stephen makes. He dies speaking virtue love. We can imitate the impersonal love of Christ even to the point of our own demise. That is the power of impersonal virtue love. How many people were watching this who believed in Jesus Christ because of this? The Roman officer said, "Truly, this man is the Son of God." Sometimes, this sort of impact is the only way the gospel can reach some people.

Paul was present at Stephen's stoning. He approved of what was going on. Paul knew this martyrdom firsthand. Paul himself would later die as a martyr. Paul was beheaded because he was a Roman citizen, but he died for his faith. Later, Christians would be martyred under varying circumstances.

Examples of martyrdom

A good read of those who have faced death for Jesus Christ.

1. William Tyndale was burned at the stake for translating the Bible into English. Because of him, the Bible was available to the common person. Up until that time, it was only found in Latin. 1500's.
2. Yon Hus was a Czek thinker, and stood against the abuses of the Catholic church, and he was around 100 years before Luther and Calvin. Doctrine was available during this time, and he is an example of this. 1415 is when he was martyred for trying to reform the church. "The truth of the gospel I will die today for with gladness." That is the motivation of virtue love. There is always an impact when virtue love is applied. By his death, Yon became a key contributor to the later Protestant movement. Martin Luther did not begin the reformation. There are great lessons to be learned. It is amazing what doctrine can accomplish in the life of a believer.
3. Many modern missionaries have faced martyrdom. Jim Elliot which Bobby heard from Elizabeth Elliot when he was in Seminary. You could hear a pin drop in that chapel. He and 4 other missionaries flew into Ethiopia to reach some remote people and they went over the territory with a loud speaker and they dropped gifts and flew over them, and then they built a base camp close to these natives. A small group of these indians. They gave them more gifts and took the leader up in an airplane ride and named him George. They were very encouraged by these friendly encounters. George, after this airplane ride, lied to the others about the missionaries intentions. 10 warriors appeared, and there was a brutal attack, and they were killed in 1956. His mutilated body was found downstream in the river. There was an incredible good which came from this. Martyrs do not die in vain. Elliot and his 3 friends became known instantly worldwide. Life Magazine published a 10 page article about what they died for. They affected much of the Christian youth of that time. They are still considered encouragement to Christian missionaries even today. Elizabeth Elliot went back to Equidor, and began to work with another difficult tribe. This does not stop Christianity, but it accelerates evangelism. It is true of all of these believers who died for the faith. We do not think of martyrdom in this country, yet. When violent opposition to the gospel occurs that martyrdom comes. The opposition to Christianity grows every day in this country.

1Cor. 13:3 Suppose I give away all I have, and suppose I deliver up my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing.

Lesson #850

1Cor. 13:3 February 19, 2009

Thursday

We have covered the first half of this verse already in the past two classes. Suppose that I deliver up my body to be buned, but I do not have love, I gain nothing. This is not giving up one's life as a suicide or to end one's life because of a terminal illness.

Bobby believes that a person whose body is kept alive by mechanical means with brain death ought to be allowed to die, but that is not a conscious decision of the person. Bobby urges us to get a living will. This is different from euthanasia. You live out your life as unto the Lord, as, while we are alive, God has a purpose for us. Some people in Berachah Church have had incredible witnesses over the past few months in having chemo and whatever else they have had to face.

Paul is willing to deliver his body for the purpose of martyrdom. How does Bobby come to this conclusion? Aorist active of παραδίδομι = to give over. This same verb is used in Matt. 26:2 for the Son of Man being delivered over for crucifixion. Jesus did not deliver Himself up as a suicide, but He went to the cross as the Lamb of God to pay for the sins of the world. He did not resist; He fulfilled the plan of God for our salvation. Paul says that he would allow himself to be put to death for his faith. Martyrdom is a complete demonstration of dedication. The motivation of virtue love. Impersonal virtue love toward those who are doing the killing. Even in all that, martyrdom is of no profit or of any merit without virtue love. Martyrdom occurs when there is government or religious opposition to Christianity. Paul did his part to kill Christians until he was knocked off his horse on the Damascus Road.

Tyndale was not burned at the stake; he was tied to a stake, garroted and then his body was burned after he had died. For these same reasons, when government and/or religion persecute Christianity and it is because of this, our forefathers came to the United States. The Pilgrims were Calvinists, and they were run out of England to Holland and then back to England, and then to the United States. In writing the constitution, freedom of religion was written into the constitution and a protection from religion taking over the government, which had occurred on previous lands in previous generations. Most of them had grandparents who had experienced religious persecution.

Spain, Ferdinand and Isabella and they not only sent out Columbus, but they also sponsored Torquemada and he hunted down heretics and Jews, stole their money and substance, and gave a portion of that to Ferdinand and Isabella.

We do not often associate the United States with martyrdom. However, we are beginning to see Christianity and Christian symbols removed from the public sphere. People could be jailed for teaching Rom 1 with respect to homosexuality. What has happened in the past can happen again. Where the gospel is spread, some religious ideology will find some way to persecute believers. However, God uses their own hatred against them. God is still in charge, even when believers are being killed. We are in combat and at war. However, God never squanders a soldier in combat. Every believer in fellowship who dies is never squandered. It is all a part of His plan. Martyrdom has brought the gospel into the forefront, which is the opposite result of what is expected. Killing believers never stamps out the gospel, which is their intent.

Bobby wonders would you compromise doctrine in order to stay out of jail?

Numerous people have died in history for translating the Bible or teaching the gospel or teaching doctrine. If you die with the proper motivation, you can have an incredible impact.

Peter was approached during the trials of Christ and claimed not to know Jesus. He recovered from this and he ended up as a martyr and gladly so. The courage to stand for the truth, even under the threat of death.

Matt. 10:32: So everyone who acknowledges me before men, I also will acknowledge before my Father who is in heaven,... This is representing Jesus Christ as an ambassador of Christ. This is standing for the gospel no matter what. The result is, Jesus will acknowledge him before God in heaven. That is an honor citation.

Many people have a great fear of sharing Jesus Christ with someone else. Witnessing for the Lord Jesus Christ is what we call divine good, and that is always rewardable in heaven. But to refuse to stand up for Him is a loss of honor before the Lord.

We, as the Berachah Battalion, and these words will be heard or not heard. There will be varying levels of Christian rewards and those who are embarrassed at the very end. Bobby believes that this shame will last forever. You will wear a badge of honor or you will not. Those who witness, those who call the name of the Lord, glorify Him, and we are to glorify God in our body. Those who do that will be rewarded. Mature believers who display to the highest degree impersonal virtue love, which is what is required in the situation of martyrdom, and they will be recognized with great honor.

Here, if one delivers up his own body for burning, it is of no profit. As you stand or as anyone stands in that position, what goes through their mind as they are being martyred? Bobby suspects that, as dying grace approaches, I will feel pain for a few moments and then I will be face to face with Jesus Christ. Someone being tied to a stake is probably thinking reciprocal love. That is the attitude of grace impersonal love. It all comes from that motivation. We will probably recognize them as they wear their medal of honor.

Bobby wonders how many believers were martyred but without virtue love. That can happen. One can be martyred and it profits them nothing.

Filling of the Holy Spirit and the right motivation make the difference between human and divine good. Paul uses the extreme example of martyrdom. He is aware of the cause of martyrdom for Christ. He has been involved in the persecution and killing of Christians. Paul understood this impact, and as he moved through his Christian life, he began to recognize, as we should, the power of that martyrdom. He understood what the gospel and Bible doctrine in the souls meant. He knew the power. Virtue love first. How powerful is virtue love in the Christian life? There is no greater power. Without that motivation of the virtue of impersonal love, the Christian life is immature and probably a sham.

Summary Points

1. The extremes of self-sacrifice are meaningless when the individual believer is not advancing spiritually. Throughtout the middle ages, there were those who are ascetics who did all these strange things. They would walk through towns and beat themselves and it was all for self-glorification. It was all about self. It was all about arrogance.
2. A self-serving works of the flesh, works from the sin nature (believers and unbelievers can both produce good deeds which are without profit), neutralizes the noblest of deeds.
3. Maximum sacrifice of material possessions without virtue love is nothing but human good. The two-column advance is necessary. Intake of Bible doctrine and the development of impersonal love. If you give billions of dollars to the poor and needy, it is nothing without virtue love.
4. For the believer, all production and works outside of virtue love motivation, is of absolutely no value at the Bama Seat of Christ. It is a part of living our lives in the light of eternity. It is absolutely nothing without virtue love, which is the production of divine good, which is rewardable. Without virtue love, even good deeds are nothing. Most Christians believe that if they are good people and do stuff around the church, that they will be rewarded at the bama seat of Christ. Those are laudable things, in human terms, but these are good deeds which are not a part of the plan of God. It is about God accomplishing these things and not us. We must be filled with the Holy Spirit or it is pointless. Virtue love is critical for this life.

1Cor. 13:3 Suppose I give away all I have, and suppose I deliver up my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing.

Lesson #851

1Cor. 13:3 February 15, 2009

Sunday 1

So, you mean that it is nothing for Paul to communicate great information of the Church Age, and it is nothing? Or he even gives himself up for martyrdom, and that is nothing?

Would you call your greatest deeds in life nothing? What Paul is writing is divinely inspired, so this is truth. Paul had a doctrine in mind that we must know. The whole scope from beginning to end. Paul clearly states that he must possess virtue love in order for his actions to have any meaning.

Virtue love includes grace apparatus for perception. That doctrine is half of our two-column advance which defines our spiritual advance. This is the spiritual life. Doctrine is the key to the rest of the spiritual life.

In life, when you begin to love a person, the more you want to be with them and the more you want to be with them. With Christ, the more we want to be with Him and the more we want to know Him as we begin to know Him. Most of the Christian world thinks that they can get enough of a touch of the Christian life based upon going to church on Sunday, and running with this or that point that they hear. The key is consistency of learning the Word of God. It is a day in and day-out thing. You have to renovate your thinking. Your physical and mental life are the result of hundreds of actions and decisions. Do you think that you can think with Bible doctrine based one once a week? If you take in doctrine on a daily basis, you will eventually grasp what is going on. Doctrine will flow out of you; it is part of who you are. That becomes a part of who you are. When we are told to renovate our thinking, that involves regular Bible class. Take every thought captive for Christ. You cannot strive to do that; it is daily Bible class. It is a lot like a golf swing. You start out with a lousy swing. The instructor covers the back swing, and how you position yourself, and what your follow through is. But, after awhile, your swing becomes natural, a natural function. The same is with the spiritual life; it is just there; it is rote. Once you begin to mature, it happens—in the spiritual life and in the golf swing. Occasionally, it needs to be tweaked. You lay off Bible doctrine for awhile and all the other thinking from your life will creep in.

Virtue becomes a result, and then an activity and then an action. Your thinking controls your actions; as you develop your virtue love, so your life follows. You build as you build capacity for love for God, and you build the capacity to love in life. You are able to love a few people. Capacity for love for people, and you are building up virtue love. Personal love directed toward God and personal love toward a few and impersonal love toward all.

All of this is metabolized in your fl. However, this is not the end of doctrine in these two verses. What is the result of the filling of the Holy Spirit? Of the advance to the high ground? The result is developing virtue love. Also, with this virtue love in the soul, the believer has the means and motivation for accomplishing spiritual service. We have a spiritual gift. Paul's service of teaching to us; and the giving to the poor and acts of charity. This is service.

Bobby is missing part of the point that these are exaggerations. Who actually gives away all that they have? Who actually gives up their body to be burned? These things occur now and again, but, for the most part, this represents exaggerated Christian service.

Martyrdom is not important unless a person has virtue love. Islamic radicals do not have virtue love for those they kill.

The question is, how does the motivation of virtue love become meaningful in the realm of production and Christian service? The Apostle Paul knows all of this. He is not doing nothing; his motivation is virtue love. They must develop the motivation of virtue love. That is when production in the Christian life has value. No matter what you do, no matter how charitable you are, if it is not done within the confines of the spiritual life as designed by God, it is nothing before the Lord.

The activities of the spiritual life; and the predominant thinking of many believers is that the nice things we do are the very essence of Christianity. That is the highest good and the entire purpose for living, in their thinking. Good deeds which could be the result of virtue love and they are an expression of the love initiative of love in our souls.

Good deeds are laudable accomplishments in human terms; but they are of no value before God. They do not glorify God; they glorify self or other human beings. They must be done in His way, or they do not glorify Him. There is no time in eternity. Compared to a few years here, eternity is a very long time. Rewards in heaven have very specific prerequisites, and that is divine good. You see the final thought of Paul in these two verses. When does nothing become everything in the sense of Christian production and service.

Operate under the filling of the Holy Spirit and develop virtue love and that is God's plan. That is the basis for all divine good. John 3:21 6:28 Rom. 2:5–7 This is God's system, which encompasses his plan for us, on His terms. Our terms are nothing. The resources which we utilize are His terms. Divine good and rewards in heaven are obtained by God's system. Everything in our life needs to be about God's grace.

Self-aggrandizement is where most people are. We are to grow in grace and knowledge. Where does this come from? It comes from Bible doctrine. If you do not understand grace, then you will not grow. Doing good deeds in the human realm is fine. Voluntary, charitable deeds, and different types of altruism is fine, and is helpful to other people and a service as a whole. Military service and other activities are fine for human service; however, there are many unintended results which tend toward evil. Human good can become evil under changing circumstances.

Bobby is going to give an example. What we see as helpful and good for people, like making society more equitable, and we think, "That is good and that is what we should be doing." The consequences are a loss of incentive for those who produce and a loss of incentive for those who receive. The latter group no longer has a reason to work; same for those who provide. Once you go down the road of socialism, it works into dependency and you almost cannot turn it around.

There is the extremism in environmentalism, and there is tyranny in practice and arrogance in application and an economic destruction.

Global warming or climate change. If it is true, it is a good thing to try to correct it; but those who push for policy changes based upon their incomplete knowledge of climate factors, and there will be all kinds of unintended results. What about divine good? Divine good is the purpose and plan of God, and what God intends does not have unintended consequences. Divine good means you have produced absolute good which is never evil.

1Cor. 13:3 Suppose I give away all I have, and suppose I deliver up my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing.

Lesson #852

1Cor. 13:3 February 15, 2009

Sunday 2

We have been looking at two phrases: "I am nothing" and "It profits me nothing."

Without virtue love, Paul's service is nothing. From the filling of the Holy Spirit all the way to the motivation of virtue love. From this whole package, we have service to the Lord. We have the difference between nothing and everything. You can produce all sorts of human good deeds outside the parameters of the spiritual life. Some kind of altruism or humanitarianism, and these are things which an unbeliever can do. There is no difference between these deeds if there is no virtue love involved. The unbeliever does nice things without virtue love and it is nothing. We do deeds motivated by virtue love in the power of the Spirit, and it is everything. Human good has unintended consequences. Human good deeds can actually turn to evil, some unintended and some intended (when the concept of a power grab is involved).

Why can't good deeds just be good deeds? Why can't our humanitarianism just be good and nothing more? Our sin nature always corrupts good intentions. Furthermore, acts of human good are never permanent solutions for man's true problems. No matter how many good things you do for people, it will not save them. You can give all the money you want to someone without a job, and they will continue. Acts of divine good do not have permanent evil consequences. God's purposes never fail; they never change. The good which we do is the good. It is good because God uses it. Can we be out of fellowship and do some good deed? Of course, and it is not permanent. What do you want to produce? Divine good or human good? The end results of human good can come out to be something which you never intended. Every time you do something which is divine good, it has eternal impact. Human good cannot be compared to divine good. They both produce good deeds and they can even be the same action; but the motives are different and the power behind them are different. This is the great divide between our spiritual service and everything else.

Divine Good Versus Human Good

1. Divine good is something which can only be performed by a believer by means of the Holy Spirit. This always has intrinsic and eternal value before God the Holy Spirit. You cannot do anything apart from the Holy Spirit and have it eternal. Eph. 2:10

2. Functioning under the control and power of the Holy Spirit is the only way to produce divine good. This is because this is God's way, not ours. That is the difference. It is the only way to live the spiritual life.
3. Only divine good defined in the Scripture, which we studied in 1Cor. 3, and it is called gold, silver and precious stones.
4. Only divine good receives recognition in heaven. Buff ministry? Some people just work and work and it is for nothing. It profits me nothing. They do not know virtue love and they do not know what divine good is. It profits them nothing.
5. Voluntary charitable deeds, feeding the hungry, giving to the needy, etc., with virtue love motivation, are not only helpful to society but Biblically mandated as divine good with eternal value. Isa. 58:7–10 other verses as well

human good

1. Benevolent product or deeds of the believer or unbeliever who is under the temporary or permanent control of the sin nature. Isa. 64:6 For the believer, that is temporary control.
2. The believer with unconfessed sin in his life is carnal, and not spiritual. In this mode, the production of good works derives from the area of strength in the sin nature. 1Cor. 3:1 you have trends and areas of strength and weakness. Whatever your pinchot for sin is, it comes right from this area of weakness. The area of strength produces good deeds. There is nothing that you can produce from your sin nature which is meaningful.
3. That good on the human level, but corrupted by sin on two areas. The sinful motivation or intent. When it comes from the sin nature, it can only be sinful intent or motivation. "I am going to do this good deed and people will think well of me" and that is all about us. It is not about God. When good is corrupted, it is parlayed into evil. What the sin nature produces, it is always evil. The sin nature can produce nothing but.
4. Human good production is dead to God, sometimes called dead works because of its source and motivation. Paul can pack more into a phrase than anyone in history.
5. The source of human good is always the sin nature; it is never from Bible doctrine or virtue love. The source is the difference.
6. Human good is always related to the energy of the flesh and never to grace resources.
7. What pleases God, grace, and what turns Him away is the energy of the flesh.
8. Therefore, the deeds of a carnal Christian without the filling of the Holy Spirit are indistinguishable from the deeds produced by the unbeliever.
9. Unbelievers can perform good deeds of morality and divine establishment. But the spiritual life is beyond morality. The spiritual life is about the production from doctrine, which is virtue. Virtue includes morality, but it goes beyond that.
10. All such deeds from an unbeliever are done without the filling of the Holy Spirit and from the source of the area of strength of the sin nature.

11. So the unbeliever's good deeds have no spiritual value before God. Our fellowship with God can be cancelled in a moment's notice. There is the top and bottom circle. The unbeliever is always controlled by the sin nature.
12. For the unbeliever in spiritual death, human good cannot sustain itself.
13. In spiritual death, man is in total depravity. Completely controlled by the sin nature. And so, in that condition, even his good is tainted with evil. Therefore, human good can be converted to evil. Evil motivation comes out as evil on the other end. Every time you turn on television, you see human good parlayed into evil.

Occasionally, there may be a believer producing divine good. Heb. 6:1–6: Therefore let us leave the elementary doctrine of Christ [basic Bible doctrine] and go on to maturity [keep moving forward to eternity], not laying again a foundation of repentance [this is a change of mind; not some emotional thing; you change your mind when your thinking is renovated] from dead works [this is human good; this is what the unbeliever produces and depends upon; the believer changes his mind about depending upon his own works, whether for salvation or for spiritual merit] and of faith toward God, and of instruction about washings, the laying on of hands, the resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. And this we will do if God permits. For it is impossible, in the case of those who have once been enlightened, who have tasted the heavenly gift, and have shared in the Holy Spirit, and have tasted the goodness of the word of God and the powers of the age to come, and then have fallen away, to restore them again to repentance, since they are crucifying once again the Son of God to their own harm and holding him up to contempt. You changed your mind about dead works for salvation; so you need to change your mind about dead works for spirituality as well. If human good is excluded from salvation, then human good is excluded from the spiritual life. It is all about the grace of God; it is His works, His way. Neither do the good works or the carnal works of God impress God. Good works are worthless in the spiritual life. It is God's system which we need to be a part of, not our own. Our dead works will have a future; they will be burned at the Bama Seat of Christ. It is called wood, hay and straw. Dead works which cannot be rewarded, but will be burned. Put a match to it, and it goes up in flame, consumed. They have no lasting value for eternity. Everything produced from the sin nature will be burned. Bobby would prefer his stuff to be more on the gold side than the wood, hay and stubble side. We are not rewarded for the things which glorify us. What do you do in life? Human good or divine good? ἐπίγνωσις doctrine. That is the difference between human good and divine good.

1Cor. 13:3 Suppose I give away all I have, and suppose I deliver up my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing.

Lesson #853

1Cor. 13: February 25, 2009

Wednesday

Reciprocal love is a part of our spiritual advance. The deduction is, without the two-column advance, no virtue love can exist, and no spiritual life can exist either. They have not been developed through a healthy, growing spiritual life. It all begins with our positive volition. We grow in reciprocal love for God and virtue love is a part of this as well. This allows us to deal with people based upon divine motivation. Impersonal love is toward all mankind, including those whom you do not even luck. When virtue love is present, there is another practical application for the Christian life. One application is knowing and using your spiritual gift. Whether or not you can identify it, your spiritual gift will function as you grow spiritually.

The motivation of virtue love. The example of extreme charity of giving everything to the poor and the extreme giving of one's own body. However, without virtue love, these are meaningless. Aren't good deeds commendable? Isn't that what most people understand the Christian life to be? Too many Christians do not understand the Christian life, so all they can do is fall back on good deeds. However, these things have no value before God. Good deeds have value for people; but they may or may not have value before God. Anyone can do a good deed. How many believers think that when they do a good deed, that they are gaining the favor of God? It is not all the nice things that you do, but doing these things within the confines of the plan of God. Without virtue love, these deeds glorify oneself and not God. They may be genuine good deeds, but without virtue love, they do not glorify God and they are not rewardable in heaven. They need to be correctly powered and motivated. What does virtue love produce? It produces the effective use of your spiritual gift and Christian service which accounts for everything. The believer must understand in order to produce effective and rewardable Christian service.

Divine good is service or good deeds which can be performed only by a believer under the power of the Holy Spirit; the filling of the Holy Spirit. These good deeds have intrinsic and eternal value before God (Eph. 2:10) because he is using the sources of God. It is being done His way and not your way. Good can have unintended or evil consequences. God uses all divine good for his purposes. When man is involved, sometimes good turns to unintended results.

Human good is the benevolent production or good deeds of the unbeliever or the believer outside of the control of the Spirit (the carnal believer). The same deed can be done with the Spirit or without, and one is human good and the other is divine good. It can be the exact same deed.

The only way you can not produce divine good as a believer is to not be filled with the Spirit. Sinful motivation or intent corrupts the deeds which we do. They are corrupted because they have unintended consequences which develop into evil. A good example of welfare programs developed by the government. They were done with good intentions, and there are unintended consequences. What is developed is a dependent voting block. What the sin nature produces is always evil. Satan is the great example. Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. He does not run around producing sin continually. He would like to defeat God in the Angelic Conflict, and good is necessary. He administers his kingdom with good intentions. At the same time, he opposes God. His intentions are always anti-God.

A Christian can do human good deeds because they are indistinguishable from what the unbeliever produces. The unbeliever cannot produce divine good; he always operates from his sin nature. All human good is produced by the sin nature.

A comparative Doctrine of Divine and Human good

1. Human good is never the means of salvation. The greatest misconception in Christianity today. We have nothing that we can boast about; none of our good works are good enough. He saved us, not based upon deeds which we have done in righteousness, but according to His great grace, but by the renewing of us by the Holy Spirit. 2Tim. 1:9 as well. He always provided the means.
2. Divine good for the believer is an absolute concept related to absolute God. Anything related to God is absolute. We live in a relative world. Principles never fail. God is absolute good.
  - a. The production of divine good comes directly from the source of God, not from us. We do the deeds, but it is the filling of the Holy Spirit and the motivation of virtue love.
  - b. To produce divine good means that we must be within the directive will of God.
  - c. There is no effective or consistent function of good in our lives or effective Christian service apart from advancing in the spiritual life. That is the two-column advance.
  - d. That means that spiritual momentum of understanding and
  - e. This is because the believer must develop the correct mental attitude for production in spiritual maturity.
  - f. That means the motivation of reciprocal love is always present for divine good to be consistently produced. That builds a plethora of rewardable service.
  - g. All production must come from within the boundary of Bible doctrine and reciprocal love to count with God; otherwise, it is nothing.
  - h. The motivation of all Christian service comes from virtue love. When we are saved, we are just born-again. We are a little baby crying and we have no knowledge. You do not put baby believers out there working for Jesus. They have no know-how. They need to be properly motivated. However, the baby will produce naturally as he grows up.
3. The fact that we as believers can perform divine good means that God has given us in grace the means for doing it.
  - a. The key to divine good is what God has given us.
  - b. That is the filling of the Holy Spirit + the right mental attitude for being in the will of God. The spiritual life is where it comes from. The end produce is divine good.
  - c. So you produce divine good under the following conditions. The filling of the Holy Spirit and the motivation of Bible doctrine, which is consistent post-salvation epistemological rehabilitation. From reciprocal love and virtue love, that defines the mental attitude of the spiritual life. This is our motivation. That is divine good. When it comes from that source, it is always divine good.

- d. There can also be production by the growing believer who is not mature. Just stay in fellowship. However, the carnal believer cannot produce divine good. He is outside God's system.
4. Human good is a relative concept related to mankind and to the sin nature.
- The failure to metabolize truth or doctrine and to build reciprocal love and virtue love means human good is believer's primary production from the sin nature's area of strength.
  - Human good can have temporary good results. Doing good things can have temporary good results; but human good has absolutely no value in the Christian way of life.
  - Divine good is permanent and absolute; human good is fleeting and relative. Divine good will last forever and it is a monument to the grace of God.
- 5.
6. Human good is corruptible because man has a sin nature and commits acts of person sin.
- Human good can be motivated by self-aggrandizement or self-promotion. The deeds are good, the motivation is wrong.
  - Human good can corrupt; it corrupts your attitude and your motivation.
7. The more good I do, the greater the approbation lust. People love to see their name in lights; they like their name on a building. Our government is an example what what Bobby is talking about. A myriad of programs which seem to provide a bunch of programs. Like the giveaway and welfare programs which destroy personal incentive. Entitlements, which are unaffordable and irrevocable when they get them. Environmentalism which curb economic growth. Environmentalism done in the name of good. There is maintaining political power at the expense of those who correctly utilize their own resources. Or, government is going to control greed. Is there anyone with a sin nature who lacks greed? No, only Wall Street is greedy. The pharisees were the do-goobers and the religious crowd of their day. But Christ said something to them, Matt. 23:37: "Woe to you, scribes and pharisees, hypocrites! You are like whitewashed tombs which appear beautiful on the outside but are filled with dead men's bones on the inside." These men rejected the source of all good. Their attempts at good were actually evil. They thought it was good to rid Palestine of this Messiah. Any time evil is disguised as good, it is the epitome of corruption. Seemingly good things which can be parlayed into evil.

1Cor. 13: February 26, 2009

Thursday

Divine good versus human good. This is where virtue love and Christian production meet. Motivation meets action.

Divine Good Versus Human Good

- Human good is never the means of salvation. Titus 3:5 2Tim. 1:9 The grace of God is the expression of love in salvation.

2.

Divine good is an absolute concept in relation to the absolute God.

- a. God is definitive. God defines everything and He is definitive in all that He is and in all that He does. There is no relativity in God. People are relative; God is not. Absolute is not a part of our own experience because of our sin nature, which is relative.
- b. God's love never wavers or changes, regardless of anything else.
- c. God's perfect righteousness and justice are never compromised or altered, even for the best human being who has ever lived. That is absolute. God makes no adjustment in His standards. Human beings live in adjustment. We are even adjusting our standards. We have ethics based on the situation. We change our ethics based upon the outcome that we want. The outcome is always as He wills it and wants it.
- d. God has never had to interpret His Own justice to clarify its meaning to Himself. We have courts which do nothing but try to clarify laws, and our constitution is interpreted and given clarity. God never needs to sit in judgment of His own righteousness or justice. His law is always perfect and it needs no clarification or amplification and He is never confused about it. There is constant confusion about human law. New precedents are set all of the time in human law, but never in God's law.
- e. Everything about God is absolute. Nothing is relative.
- f. Anything which emanates from God is also absolute. Doctrine from God is absolute.
- g. It is the same with God's goodness. He is absolute good; there is no evil in God. In God is absolute good.
- h. His goodness is impeccable because it never contains any corruption; nary a speck. Man's good is corruptible.
- i. Further, God is the source of all good, and that good is called the goodness of God. Divine good is absolute. Human good is not.
- j. Divine good is absolute, impeccable and completely uncorrupted and is of God.
- k. God's good is never conditional. God's good is the epitome of all excellence, merit and virtue.
- l. We, relative human beings, are capable of the production of divine good, which has that absolute quality. A believer in fellowship with the motivation of virtue love, is capable of producing divine good. Divine good comes directly from the source of God.
- m. That divine good is what we produce when we use the resources that God has given to us. This is the only thing that we can do which is absolute, along with the spiritual life and the taking in of doctrine.
- n. That is the only good which is pleasing to God, because it meets His absolute standards, because it glorifies God when we produce it, and because it is a monument to His grace.

3. The fact that we as believers can perform divine good means that God has given us, in grace, the means of doing so. We are able to produce divine good under the following conditions.
  - a. Filling of the Holy Spirit for empowerment. We can do nothing absolute without the filling of the Holy Spirit.
  - b. Consistent post-salvation epistemological rehabilitation. That changes our human viewpoint thinking to divine viewpoint thinking. Divine viewpoint is the absolute viewpoint. It is the thinking of God. The more you mature, the greater your capability for divine good. Absolute knowledge produces absolute good.
  - c. Developing reciprocal love and virtue love. That takes us back to what we ought to know. They define the mental attitude and the motivation of the spiritual life. This is the environment for divine good. This is our Christian service or our production.
4. Human good is a relative concept related to mankind and the sin nature. This is all that human good can be related to. It comes from the strength of the sin nature. It is corruptible because it is based upon the source of the sin nature. It is not the absolute good because it is outside God's system for producing divine good. This is a statement which most of the Christian world does not understand. Anything outside of God's system does not meet God's standards. So many believers think they are meeting God's standards because they do something nice and good. It does not last, it can veer toward evil.
5. Divine good is permanent and incomparable. Human good is fleeting and comparative.
  - a. The divine good produced from God's resources will last forever as a monument to the grace of God.
  - b. Human good comes and goes and it can be evaluated as to its real worth. People judge good deeds in the human realm. Our Congress is trying to do something good, and everyone has an opinion; and that is relative. There are relative degrees of human good. Divine good is perfect; human good, there may be 30% good.
6. Works of human good are often performed for the benefit of the do-gooder and not for the glory of God. People do it because people will like them; I will do this because it will give me brownie points. Self-aggrandizing. Human altruism is often motivated by arrogance and self righteousness. Some of the worst hypocrites in the world, like the pharisees, are examples of this. Christ said to them, "Woe to you, scribes and pharisees, you hypocrites, for you are like whitewashed tombs who appear beautiful on the outside with dead men's bones on the inside. They just used their good to maintain their power in Jerusalem. They were nothing more than minions of Satan with all of their do-gooding. They did nothing compared to the absolute good of God. These pharisees and scribes perfectly fit in 2Cor. 11:13-14: For such men are false apostles, deceitful workmen, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ. And no wonder, for even Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. Jesus cut into the power of the pharisees, and they condemned Jesus doing God's work. Even Satan does good things. Satan does good, which is absolute evil. Like Satan, the pharisees were disguised. Anytime evil is disguised as good, it is the epitome of corruption. We, with divine good, ought to be able to spot it. We should be able to turn on television and recognize it. The intent may be good, but the results may easily be evil.

7. Therefore, all good deeds may have unintended consequences of evil from people whose motives are self-glorification, self-aggrandizement, self-righteousness or guilt. People do good things being guilty. People give away money because it guilted them that they have it.
8. There is an important function of human good under the laws of divine establishment, but it should never be mistaken for divine good.
  - a. Divine establishment the laws ordained by God for the survival and the freedom of the human race in history. Ten Commandments were designed for the survival and freedom of the human race in freedom.
  - b. The laws of divine establishment define freedom in terms of individual determination and opportunity. Free commerce; that is divine establishment freedom. When the government impinges on free commerce and property and they begin to dictate to those who own that business, business is lost. Human authority. There seems to be a disconnect between freedom and authority.
  - c. Freedom and authority are two sides of the same coin. Freedom without authority is, at best, irresponsibility. We have a lot of that, to be free to do any stupid thing someone wants to do. Without authority, at worst, it becomes anarchy. Authority without freedom is tyranny.
  - d. The volition and the integrity of the individual and the function of legitimate authority must be balanced in order to maintain maximum human freedom.
  - e. Authority must provide equal opportunity to succeed or to fail based on an individual's ability. Authority does not dictate your every move in life; it provides equal opportunity to succeed or fail. Authority must maintain freedom in that way. Now we are trying to prop up those who fail at the expense of a lot of us, and that is wrong.
  - f. Freedom demands respect for establishment authority. Existing authority must respect freedom. That is the balance. In this country, some think that freedom means freedom from all authority. Existence and perpetuation of freedom demands authority.
  - g. The existence and the perpetuation of freedom also demands several qualities: authority orientation, responsibility, you have the responsibility not to infringe on another's freedom, and government is to not infringe on freedom either; it demands self-discipline and self-sacrifice, as when armies go to war. This maintains freedom.
  - h. This all defines divine establishment for us, which is ordained by God. It is an absolute.
  - i. Security and comfort can never take priority over the will to maintain freedom. About the Athenian democracy by Gibbons: in the end, more than they wanted freedom they wanted security and they wanted a comfortable life, and they lost it all, security, comfort and freedom. When they wanted society to give to them, and they wanted freedom from responsibility, then Athens ceased to be free. People must be free to stand or fall on their own decisions, actions or motives. When they choose for comfort and security, they sell-out their own freedom. That is what is happening right now. We are waiting for some government or official to help us, and we are surrendering our privacy, our property, and our freedom to government. Government is often completely inept. Grim. But that is what the American people have asked for.

- j. The authority of government cannot solve the sin natures or the shortcomings of people. They think they can. But the two together, government and the sin nature when they are out of control, they can cause incredible problems, problems with the imbalance of authority and freedom. The self-centered individual and a power-hungry government means a loss of freedom.
- k. Therefore, the necessity of the rule of a just law which allows for maximum freedom and a respect for freedom. Just law is the basis; no respect for the rule of law, authority or freedom, then there is a loss of freedom. When the government interferes with contract law and decides who gets paid what, the constitution is circumvented. How long until someone stands in the pulpit and teaches the Word of God, and is prosecuted for it.
- l. Rom. 13:1–7: Let every person be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and those that exist have been instituted by God. Therefore whoever resists the authorities resists what God has appointed, and those who resist will incur judgment. For rulers are not a terror to good conduct, but to bad. Would you have no fear of the one who is in authority? Then do what is good, and you will receive his approval, for he is God's servant for your good. But if you do wrong, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For he is the servant of God, an avenger who carries out God's wrath on the wrongdoer. Therefore one must be in subjection, not only to avoid God's wrath but also for the sake of conscience. For because of this you also pay taxes, for the authorities are ministers of God, attending to this very thing. Pay to all what is owed to them: taxes to whom taxes are owed, revenue to whom revenue is owed, respect to whom respect is owed, honor to whom honor is owed. God is absolute. He designated authority. He sanctioned it for the orderly survival of the human race. Dog eat dog, anarchy, etc without authority. For there is no authority except for God and the authorities which exist are established by God. God delegates authority in the human realm. Volition, marriage, family, and government are the 4 divine institutions. When authorities go outside the rule of law, that is when authority goes awry. The authority of the husband over the wife; the parents over children, and government and law over citizens.

As has been promised, change has come to the United States of America. You cannot deny that our country is heading in a unique direction, which is a departure from its normal course. Bobby has made a few comments about economics, politics and the military, and the concept of freedom. There is one over-arching Biblical principle, the laws of divine establishment, found most clearly in Rom. 13:1–7:

These principles are also applicable to unbelievers. Divine establishment is mandated to believers, even though our greater responsibility is to produce divine good. All production in that mode can be called divine good (in the mode of the filling of the Spirit). Divine establishment is for believers and unbelievers alike. Both are under the laws of divine establishment. We need to understand what these laws are and how they apply to us.

Definition of divine establishment: laws and authorities ordained by God for the survival and security of a nation. We, as people, have a propensity to destroy ourselves. The history of the world is one conflict after another. The only restraint upon that is divine establishment. Free commerce, human authority which enforces good order and control, and these things must exist together. Freedom without authority is, at best, irresponsibility, and, at worst, confusion and anarchy. Authority without freedom is suppression and . Freedom and authority must be in balance to maintain maximum human freedom. That is divine establishment. Authority, government rulers, must provide the options to succeed or fail. Freedom allows people to succeed or to fail. The perpetuation of freedom within a society, within any nation, demands respect for establishment authority. Therefore, the existence and perpetuation of freedom demands responsibility and self-discipline.

Existing authorities must respect the existing freedom of the others. A perfect example of the conundrum is the fall of the Athenian democracy. Edward Gibbon around the time of the American Revolution wrote several works, including the Rise and the Fall of the Roman Empire. More than freedom, they wanted a comfortable life. When the Athenians no longer wanted to give to society, and wanted freedom from responsibility, Athens was no longer free. For this reason, it is all the more important for us to understand Rom. 13.

Every person refers specifically to believers and unbelievers. There needs to be respect for law and those in authority over us. Authority is only from God, and those in authority have been instituted by God. Human authorities are established by God, and God delegates authority in the human realm. He is the source of divine establishment. He is the source of the divine institutions. Volition, marriage, family and the national entity. Rom. 13 primarily deals with the final.

Eph. 5:22–23: the authority of the husband over the wife. There are obligations from both the man and the woman. Eph. 6:1: parents over children, and those parents who do not take this responsibility raise anti-authority children. Rom. 13: the government over the citizens.

God is the source of the authorities found in government. The constitution claims that government derives its authority from men, and that is at odds with the Bible. Authority itself and government are not human inventions. All authority in this world is by divine design. It is delegated to human administration.

The ideal form of government has been debated over the centuries. We seem to think that a democracy is the best form of government. The best form of government is the existence of civil rule compatible with divine establishment. It must provide for a common defense; it must secure the individual benefits of privacy and commerce; and enforce civil and human law. Government must secure the blessings of liberty, and these cannot be secured when the government and state are united. “Render to Cæsar that which is Cæsar’s and to God, that which is God’s.”

Bobby saw an article in the paper; Is the military too Christian? The idea is, there should be no Christianity within the military. The church should not rule the state; but Christianity can exist within government institutions. We are to provide opportunities and freedom for all individuals. God has separated the two. Religion has been one tyranny in the world because of self righteousness and hypocrisy, insofar as religion is concerned. Religion can be as power-mad as any individual. The pharisees ruled during the time of Christ. They had no problem with murdering Jesus Christ in order to maintain their own power. When church and state unite, freedom is destroyed. Spain and in the rest of Europe became stained by the Catholic Church. Government and the Catholic Church became intertwined. 1478–1834 is when this happened. England under Oliver Cromwell, who was a doctrinal believer. We can identify with his theology, but when in power, he was a tyrant. France under Louis XIV rescinded the Treaty of Nance which allowed only the state church, which drove out some of the great believers of that time. The pivot of believers moved from France to Germany.

The Muslim world under Sharia law, and everyone must live under their laws; the more fundamental the state, the greater the tyranny.

Government should not bring tyranny upon religion either. Christianity must be thrown out the halls of government. Self righteous Christian activists who gain power become intolerant toward unbelievers and believers both. Believers persecute other believers for the crime of disagreement. Unbelievers may be forced into religious conversion, denying them their freedom of volition to accept or reject the gospel. Salvation is based upon a volitional choice. You do not have full use of your volition when being tortured.

The true church should have influence on a national entity as invisible heroes and as a pivot, but they should not be seen as the state. The attacks on divine establishment are coming from every direction, and this is why Rom. 13 is so critical.

We are the church, and the influence of the church is spiritual; it is not activist. Salt is the pivot of believers in a national entity. Political activism is not what it is all about. Even a small pivot can be the means of maintaining and/or restoring a client nation. Even in Berachah Church’s auditorium is a pivot which can turn this nation around.

Bobby can get just as worked up as anyone, listening to talk radio. No need to go overboard; remember divine establishment. In contrast, the Christian activist loses its savor. The ends do not justify the means. Bobby has heard this, if we change our country, we will initiate the Millennium, which is a common thought in some Christian circles. The means range from civil disobedience to criminal violence. Spiritual issues are not settled by criminal activity. Spiritual solutions belong to the individual believer as his function in the pivot. The Millennium can only occur in God's timing. No amount of political activism will bring the kingdom to pass.

Rom. 13:1 Let every person be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and those that exist have been instituted by God.

Lesson #856

1Cor. 13: March 1, 2009

Sunday 2

One of the great disagreements of displaying the Ten Commandments in public courthouses. The Ten Commandments are a charter of human freedom, God being the direct source. God is the lawgiver. He understands freedom, and He ordained as the first divine institution free will. God knows freedom. "You will know the truth and the truth will make you free." Even under tyranny, you can still be free in your soul.

There is an important dispensational caveat. Israel is not the church; these are two separate entities in God's plan. Israel is a national entity and we are a spiritual entity. Some try to teach that the church is spiritual Israel, and this is wrong, and it causes serious problems when it comes to interpreting Scripture.

How do we interpret Scripture? How does Bobby sit down and determine how to interpret the Bible? The Bible is the Word of God and He has a meaning in His Word. He is a God of clear and concise meaning. There is a literal meaning, one meaning which God intends for us to have, so that we can understand what the Bible means. Bobby is highly trained to pull out the meaning and to communicate it to believers.

What genre of language in the Bible? Prose, poetry, metaphor, figurative, hyperbole, narrative. Some people make the church out to be spiritual Israel. Revelation is filled with figurative language. All kinds of things represent one thing or another. God did not intend for us to be confused. All Scripture has a literal, one meaning; do you interpret language literally or figuratively? Is there an interpretation? All theological aberration comes from the way that people handle the language. Dispensational problems is why the Ten Commandments are misinterpreted. The Ten Commandments were not designed to govern the Church Age. Establishing the Ten Commandments as the law of the land is not correct. However, the principles of the divine law of the Ten Commandments do apply to all dispensations. These are God's principles; not for our particular government, but as a guide for us to live by and for national law. Israel was a union of divine law with a national entity. Israel was a union of divine law and the state, which is not what we have today.

The Mosaic Law defined liberty and morality and divine authority for believers and unbelievers alike within Israel. The first 5 commandments which have to do with God's theocratic rule, and this is God's rule over Israel. God was the theocratic ruler over Israel.

The Mosaic Law served as an evangelistic witness to the unbeliever in Israel. When the people read these laws, they could see just how far they were from God's perfection.

The final 5 commandments form the Biblical paradigm for Biblical morality. They summarized the precepts of civil independence. This code was designed by God specifically for Israel, but these same truths guarantee personal freedom and national liberty. The Ten Commandments do not rule the state; but when the state operates under these laws, then there is maximum freedom: privacy, property, etc. The rest of the Mosaic Law found elsewhere is a personal and national concept over authority in government.

When you resist authority, you resist God. Applying political solutions to spiritual problems does not work. The one who resists authority resists God. Lev. 26 are historical trends. The end never justifies the means. When you are trying to decide to do something illegal to gain some advantage, remember this axiom of divine establishment. Christian activism is not part of the Christian life.

Repentance is a change of mind about Jesus Christ. We recognize that He is the Savior; He is the God-man; we change from believing in works to trusting in Christ.

Believers who oppose authority are strictly outside of the plan of God. They will engender divine discipline upon themselves and upon the nation. God does not bless a nation of Christian activists who relegate Bible doctrine to a secondary role. It is first and foremost the creation of divine good. Doing human good is not pleasing to God.

Responsibility of Christians

1. Obey the laws of the land.
2. Payment of taxes. Render to Cæsar that which is Caesar's.
3. Participation in the military establishment or being a part of government or serving government.
4. Whatever other duties that we are enjoined to do, like jury duty.
5. Holding public office and representing establishment authority. If you are the authority, then command, and do it under the principles of divine establishment. Deterioration of freedom, internal corruption, decline of the nation and the freedoms therein.
6. What about when the government itself is evil? When the laws of the land are unjust? Is resistance or armed revolution justified? Freedom of choice and determination allows the right of redress and a vote to remove leadership; but does this mean that we can oppose a government which does not respect law? How about religious persecution. No. Revolution is the deposing of existing establishment or government, which is the inadvertent or conscious destruction of divine establishment. Plots and intrigue constitute evil which is against God's will.

Overthrow of the government opposes God. God swiftly punished Dathan and Abiram when they revolted against Moses.

David is a great example of just about everything. He is a great man who followed Bible doctrine, and yet did more sinning than almost anyone else that you can think of. David understood doctrine and divine establishment principles. He learned humility in his father's house. Humility is something the believer is mandated to have. Remember King Saul, insanely jealous of David. Saul spent a good bit of time trying to kill David. He had spies everywhere out there looking for David. David understood that Saul was the ruler and ultimately responsible to God for his function as king. David was not to revolt or to assassinate. God could do what He needed to do. Saul abused his authority, but his authority was still ordained by God, and appropriate to the people over whom he ruled. You cannot violate divine establishment principles. Disregarding divine establishment is not the means to remove unlawful and unjust authority. Do you depend on God or do you take the law into your own hands? How many people died facing the Roman empire. Many died in coliseums, not doing anything to revolt against Cæsar. What came of this was the expansion of the church throughout the Roman empire. God uses tyranny. What about the American revolution? When civil power contradicts the Word of God, and subverts and denies the source of its own authority, it does so to its own destruction. You do not try to destroy Christianity. Governmental tyranny; you cannot get away with it. Nations which have tried to kill the Jews are still paying the price hundreds of years later. God punishes; look at Spain. The tyranny of government results in horror. Citizens are repressed and poverty reigns. God is not mocked; this includes national entities. You do not have to do His work for Him. Antagonism toward authority leads to anarchy, which is anti-God. Bobby never saw more confused students than those with whom he matriculated with in school. They thought they brought with them a new thinking. It is always the Christian duty to help to remove unjust laws, but never to use violence and revolution to achieve these ends. If there is injustice, then we depend upon God. God uses the adversity of bad government for His own purposes.

Prosperity sometimes brings with it a complacency. However, hard times often brings on a need for Christ. Do not get in God's way. Stay with His plan.

Bobby will get to the American revoliitiion.

Rom. 13:2 Therefore whoever resists the authorities resists what God has appointed, and those who resist will incur judgment.

Lesson #857

Rom. 13:2 March 4, 2009

Wednesday

The terrors of Christian activism. When a pivot of mature believers, who are the salt of the nation, the Christian activist is the exact opposite. They forget the solutions which are inherent to the Christian life. Our nation, as a whole, has become very anti-establishment, and sometimes it seems for a very good reason, as there is a lot of corruption in high places. It is easy to become anti-authority.

Vv. 1-7 is an outline for divine establishment and our place in our own country. V. 2b gives us the negative side. Those resisting the governing authorities. The believer must never oppose the governing authorities, no matter how much you disagree with the government, the ends do not justify the means. There are ways to do it and ways not to. Divine establishment means are the way to go. Good results are not created by evil. Anti-establishment methods will never result with the outcomes that we hope for. Some of you belong to the Texas militia, which opposes the government we have now, and refuse to pay taxes, and this is directly opposed to divine establishment.

Christians today who break civil laws and say that it is for a good cause. Those see themselves as the political solution. There are so many illegal activities which can be imposed by alleged Christians that they use against anyone with opposing views. They use anti-establishment methods, which always result in anti-authority results. God never blesses anti-authority actions; He never blesses us for opposing divine establishment. Problems requiring divine establishment solutions can never be solved by violating divine establishment principles. Governing authorities are representatives of the rule of law. History shows that time after time, the nation and the people in the nation cause the corruption. We cannot blame any individual or any political party because we disagree with them. If there is any blame for life today, it is believers in Berachah Church. The nation is blessed through us. It is not political activities which go on in this country, but our spiritual growth. When divine discipline hits us, then divine discipline will fall on the nation. Those who oppose authority engender this discipline from God.

Our Duty to our Country

1. Complying with the laws of the land, and people in this country do not understand what freedom is, and they will give up freedom for a little security. However, we still must comply with socialistic laws. We as believers are really here only for a short time, and we want to have all the comfort and security that we can. Remember what your obligation and what your purpose is for being here. Your purpose is not to be comfortable. Our purpose is to develop reciprocal love. Do you think it matters one bit if you are uncomfortable for a few years or a few decades? If we are uncomfortable for awhile or we are persecuted, so what?
2. We ought to go into the military and support our government that way. Going into the military as a young person is the best thing in the world. And when you come out, you have a stake in this country. In the 50's and 60's, when the military was not popular, Bob stood up and said what needed to be said. Many people developed self-discipline in the military.
3. We are obligated to pay our taxes, jury duty and voting. Often a government is evil. Still, there is no justify overthrowing that evil. A free people has the right to remove bad leaders by voting. When that choice of method is not possible, and when...

The ends do not justify the means, even in the face of tyrannical authority. Evil begets evil. Revolution is anti-authority and anti-God. Didn't God intend freedom for us? Some of the times of the greatest persecution are the times of great spiritual growth.

Who are you if you think you can overthrow a tyrannical government? The church of Jesus Christ had one of its greatest periods of growth in the Roman empire. During this time, thousands of Christians were slaughtered. They died because they would not renounce Jesus Christ. Christianity flourished under this persecution. Here, we may be persecuted for believing in the Bible. It condemns homosexuality and it can be called hate speech.

The ultimate outcome is destruction, and it discredits the believer who is involved. Bobby used to have a professor in seminary and he would chain himself to fire hydrants all over in protest, in order to get arrested. He did it because he opposed on particular thing. Did it do anything?

If we oppose government, it is evil. Fomenting revolution leads to mob violence. Violent overthrow of the government is not ever the prerogative of the believer. Whether we like it or not, Bobby is teaching the Word of God. When civil power contradicts the Word of God, if you want to take over God's role and fix it...its own destruction is the result. Life works itself out naturally. But we as individuals are not to try to run everything. If you go off against divine establishment, it is inevitable that you will turn against doctrine.

What about our revolutionary war? Was this rebellion against governing authorities? Is that what we are founded on? Our revolution began as a lawful attempt to address During that period of time, there were anti-establishment abuses. However, we were not of the model of the Russian or the French revolutions. The aristocracy was overbred, not very bright, arrogant; but what replaced them was equally bad, if not worse. Ours was a war for independence, but it was not for the destruction of the government of England. The existing ruler, George III, was not overthrown or replaced. Parliament stayed in power.

Americans tried to perpetuate the divine institutions in their government.

2. We can look at governments good and bad and examine their personalities, and that is different from this passage. Authority is delegated by God.

Rom. 13:2 Therefore whoever resists the authorities resists what God has appointed, and those who resist will incur judgment.

Whether the rulers are good or bad; but if we obey the laws, we have no reason for fear. Good here is αγαθος, which is good of intrinsic value. Εργον are deeds.

Morality

1. Morality is for all the human race and it is all of us functioning under a code of ethics. We would be in a total state of anarchy without divine establishment.
2. Morality is not a function only of Christians. It is a part of the Christian life.
3. For the Christian, morality is all about spiritual growth. Morality and the Christian life are not synonymous.
4. Christian dynamics always includes morality, but, at the same time, always exceeds morality. It is the spiritual life which exceeds morality.

5. Virtue love supercedes morality. There is no cause for fear when an individual...nothing is a cause of fear for us. There is a cause of fear in evil, which is κακός. The government is always a cause of fear for the person who functions in evil. Crime, revolution, terror, etc. we as believers have nothing to fear.

Fear of Authorities

1. The threat or fear of punishment can overcome the sin nature tendencies for crime, revolution,
2. Although some will participate in evil, regardless, others will not, out of fear of governmental reprisal.
3. Law enforcement is the arm of that fear. That makes law enforcement a part divine establishment.
4. Fear of being caught and punished is a deterrent and capital punishment is a necessary part of the process.
5. But, the more degenerate a society becomes, the less fear is generated by law enforcement. That factor of fear is removed.

If you do not want to be afraid of authority, then do that which is good. When those laws legislate against evangelism, spiritual growth, or church function, then there is a higher law of God. The report that we heard about the war of Afghanistan. They could not evangelize unless asked. Those who asked the question were expressing positive volition. We are over there for a reason, and one of the reasons is, there are those on positive signals there, and we provide this to them in a Muslim country. He assumes that if they do not ask, then they are not looking for the truth. God is not responsible for providing the gospel where it is not desired. This guy who brought us a report recognized that he could still evangelize, but only under the circumstance of being asked; and he went along with this. However, if the Defense Department said, "No speaking about Jesus Christ under any circumstance," then he would have to defy that directive.

If evangelism is forbidden, or doctrine is banned, or church attendance is forbidden, then you must obey God's mandates instead of man's. in China, there are still a lot of underground churches.

The sign of the fish, which was a sign that Christians drew on the ground so that they could recognize one another, but not the authorities who were against them.

Rom. 13:3 For rulers are not a terror to good conduct, but to bad. Would you have no fear of the one who is in authority? Then do what is good, and you will receive his approval,

Lesson #858

Rom. 13:3 March 5, 2009

Thursday

Mrs. Barta 12 noon Saturday at Rosewood.

The believer should fear no ruler when we have good behavior. Rulers do not administer punishment for those who obey the laws. There may be some gray areas, but most do not go after those who remain within the confines of the law.

Fear of reprisal is reasonable when dealing with criminal behavior. Authority in government keeps us from falling into chaos and anarchy. The threat of punishment can overcome some criminal notions and law enforcement if the arm of fear. The policeman on the beat and the judge on the bench, and these together are deterrents. Capital punishment is a necessary part of this process.

Bobby is going to clarify something by points:

Rulers and Their Authority

1. Paul is not saying in v 3 that this exemplary function of rulers will always be true in every case. Not every ruler who has ever lived will be a cause of fear for good behavior .
2. There are certainly rulers who function as dictators and tyrants. They may persecute or kill for religious, political or ideological reasons. Paul will be killed by Nero, who is the poster child of wickedness. Paul never calls for revolution against Nero, even though he killed thousands of Christians.
3. When civil rulers overstep their bounds and legislate or enforce persecution of Christians, violence resistance and revolution are not options for believers.
4. When civil rulers overstep their bounds, there is no justification for unlawful demonstrations, destruction of property, civil disobedience, revolution, or assassination.
5. Those problem areas oppose divine establishment, which is the ordinance of God. Doing any of these things violates Rom. 13.
6. Problems requiring divine establishment solutions cannot be solved by violating divine establishment principles. You do not get to break divine establishment principles in order to get rid of a tyrannical leader.
7. Coups only lead to senseless mob violence and the illegal usurping of power.
8. Forcefully overthrowing bad rulers leads to confusion, chaos, lawlessness and anarchy, and this all in the national entity. No matter how evil the ruler, violent overthrow does not solve the problem.
9. Forceful overthrowing of a ruler leaves a power vacuum, which often sucks in a ruler worse than what was there before. Sort of like matiatês in the soul.
10. Classic French and Russian revolutions. 1789 and 1917. The monarchies were corrupt. The French revolution was replaced by constant street violence. Napoleon finally settled down the rabble. Russians replaced a degenerate monarchy and replaced it with an evil corrupt regime and processor of rulers. All the coups in the banana republics and all of the problems in Africa. Mugabwa has destroyed his country. Nothing but misery when one evil ruler is replaced with another evil ruler. This is what happens when you destroy divine establishment.

11. What about Nazi Germany and Hitler? Hitler was elected by the German public in 1936. He was supported by the major factions in Germany. They expected Hitler to improve their lot in life. Industries like him and the army liked him, as they were restricted. The people of Germany were mesmerized by Hitler, and he did not even use a teleprompter. The economy got so bad with inflation; and Hitler promised them everything; and they forgot to look at who he actually was. He was duly constituted authority. We know the destruction of the Jews is anti-Semitism, and that is one thing which could be opposed. As a Christian, in Nazi Germany, there was a famous pastor, and he stood for Christianity and divine establishment, and he got thrown into a concentration camp for this. He did not start a revolution. We may face decisions like these some day.
12. Disregarding divine establishment is not the means to rescind unlawful and uncivil authority.

What About Christian Duty?

1. If evangelism was expressly forbidden, which is mandated by the Word of God, then you have no choice here.
2. If doctrine is banned by religious or secular rulers. Many martyrs have died for just this reason. Doctrine was banned and they stood for doctrine.
3. Or if certain portions of the Bible are called hate speech and censored.
4. The assembling of the local church. There is still an underground church in China and they are persecuted.
5. These situations do not mean that you must bow to that tyranny. There are ways not to bow to tyranny.
6. Violent overthrow and revolution are not an option. What about the confederacy? Like the US war for independence, they were simply separating. They were not trying to destroy the US government of duly constituted authority.
7. We have a higher law, which is to the mandates of Bible doctrine. We as believers must always stand for doctrine and evangelism.
8. If you want to have no fear of authority, then do what is good.
9. Continue to operate under divine establishment mandates. We are bound to pay taxes.
10. The first responsibility to our nation is to advance to spiritual maturity. This way the nation is preserved.
11. Secondly, follow the laws of the land on all levels. Good citizenship is always worthy of praise. This can be national, local, public recognition.

Good manners, because you were well-trained. Bob once said, "You are sitting in a seat that someone else needs." The privacy of the priesthood. Relationships which exhibit virtue love. That is always appreciated and it contributes to the good order of Bible doctrine. That is our call to authority orientation in Berachah Church. Recognition here on earth and in front of the Bama seat of Christ.

Rom. 13:3 For rulers are not a terror to good conduct, but to bad. Would you have no fear of the one who is in authority? Then do what is good, and you will receive his approval,

For he is a minister of God. This is a person who carries authority. This is a person, but the neuter refers to the principle of authority. Law is impersonal; law enforcement is administered by people.

The meaning of the word minister is important here. It is διακονος = deacon, servant, helper. This is an administrative official in a church. They are administrative leadership. The spiritual gift of organizing. They function under delegated authority. An administration of policy and good order. In the civil world, the diakonos is a servant of the people and he is a man with authority. The United States is the servant of God; the mayor and the city council are the servants of God. They carry authority in the civil realm; in a national entity. They are there for the good of the people, preserving freedom and property.

Our freedom documents are probably the greatest documents written since the Bible. Our constitution is based upon much of the Mosaic Law. All law of divine establishment comes directly from the principles of the Mosaic Law.

Our constitution today is being systematically ignored. Any government which usurps divine authority is not for the good; but we still have an obligation. The key is, we still adhere to divine establishment. We vote for our government and we pray for our nation; and we grow to maturity forming a pivot by which God blesses a nation. We never promote or participate in the violent overthrow ever.

We get to work out all the other specifics.

The principle of authority is always there. Authority orientation demands that we adhere to the laws of divine establishment. There is always that question, what about rulers who are evil? The principle remains the same.

It is easy to get your eyes on a bad ruler. God is in charge, no matter how bad it gets. Keep your eyes on Jesus Christ.

He does not bear the sword for nothing.

Rom. 13:4 for he is God's servant for your good. But if you do wrong, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For he is the servant of God, an avenger who carries out God's wrath on the wrongdoer.

Lesson #859

Rom. 13:3–4 March 8, 2009

Sunday 1

Martin Luther studied the book of Romans, and that is how the reformation began. There were works involved in salvation; the church was selling salvation.

Rom. 13:3 For rulers are not a terror to good conduct, but to bad. Would you have no fear of the one who is in authority? Then do what is good, and you will receive his approval,

In v. 4, this is not an impersonal ruler, but a personal ruler. The minister is the same word as used for the minister of the church. This is a servant-leader. Such a person serves those whom he leads. The rulers of our nation are ministers of God. The principle of authority demands that we obey authority, as they have been ordained by God for our good.

V. 4 are the guidelines for good government. It is the enforcement side of good government. God provided the διακονος with authority, then that διακονος can exercise his authority even to the point of capital punishment. Here, this is not the sword of war but the domestic sword. There is good order and protection in the national entity.

There are many people who do not like it when people are killed by the state, but it is right here. If you do what is evil, then be afraid. This is not the sword of protection of national freedom, as that is not the context. War never falls under the category of evil. This is a Biblically sanctioned sword. The sword of war is never an evil; it is a part of divine establishment.

Bobby suggests that, if you are of the eligible age, that you join the military. Bobby spent 10 years in the military. It is a great training ground and it will cause you to grow up. Bobby went into the military because he was challenged to do so from this very pulpit.

The sword of the civil ruler which combats evil is what we are dealing with in this context and it speaks of law enforcement.

Rom. 13:4 for he is God's servant for your good. But if you do wrong, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For he is the servant of God, an avenger who carries out God's wrath on the wrongdoer.

Lesson #860

Rom. 13:4–5 March 8, 2009

Sunday 2

The διακονος spoken of in this verse is the minister of God. Why is that the case? Why aren't they called secular leaders? Διακονος refers to someone who is both a ruler and a servant.

What does it mean for a civil leader to be a minister of God? He is an avenger who brings wrath upon the one who practices evil. The Bible says, Vengeance is Mine; I will repay, says the Lord. This avenger is delegated authority.

Διακονος as an Avenger

1. The sword of state represents official, judicial punishment.

2. The sword is an instrument of death. It represents the legal and official sanctions of punishment. It even includes capital punishment for evil. The sword is an instrument of death.
3. Roman criminals were executed by decapitation; it was not carried out by a guillotine, but by the sword by a Roman soldier.
4. The sword was used for capital punishment.
5. Num. 35:16–18 passages where capital punishment was given.
6. In the Mosaic Law, other punishments were specified. It was called an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. This phrase is hated by many, but it simply means that the punishment must fit the crime.
7. Capital punishment is a tool of authority. They have the authority as civil leaders to go as far as capital punishment. This tool provides fear, and fear as a deterrent. Fear is a deterrent. Have you ever were afraid of something and decided, I cannot do that. Like airborne rangers about to jump for the first time; some just don't do it. There are all kinds of things which we fear and do not do for that reason. Have you ever thought of going to prison for 10–20 years? That is a deterrent. Bobby knows the arguments, that capital punishment has no deterrent value and it is cruel and unusual punishment. The victim always seems to get forgotten in the anti-capital punishment arguments. How do you figure out whether it is really a deterrent statistically speaking. According to the Bible, it causes fear and is a deterrent. It does not deter everyone, but it deters some. The law examines even the motive for murder, and makes an assessment based upon that. There must be fear in order to restrain criminality. Weak punishment for other criminal acts promotes more criminality. It destroys a civilization from within. It makes the society fearful rather than the criminal fearful, when capital punishment is not used. Law-abiding citizens turn into slaves of violence. Some criminals are hardened and will not be deterred, and those must receive the full force of the law. An executed criminal commits no more crimes. Others who hear and know about this will be deterred. This is not state-sanctioned murder. Capital punishment is not murder. It should be carried out against those who do murder. Rape and child abuse, in Bobby's opinion, should be considered as capital offenses. There are a number of police officers in Berachah Church. Killing a criminal in enforcing law does not constitute a crime. Killing the enemy in combat is not criminality. Killing a domestic enemy is not murder when a part of the criminal enforcement system.
8. Capital punishment is to be taken care of by the state. This is not to be done by individuals or family members. In other words, there is no honor killing, even under sharia law. The state handles this; individuals do not.

Rom. 13:4 for he is God's servant for your good. But if you do wrong, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For he is the servant of God, an avenger who carries out God's wrath on the wrongdoer.

To be in subjection, to be subordinate to is ὑποτάσσω. A soldier must react and respond instantaneously to his commanders. You don't get the option of discussing when to attack and what the tactics ought to be.

Similarly, children need to learn to respond to authorities. Rejecting authority will turn a child into a misfit. This is not freedom. Rejecting authority does not give you more freedom. Since the 1960's, authority has become the enemy. You never have a right to be anti-authority. Everyone doing what is right in his own eyes is freedom without responsibility, which is never true freedom. This is irresponsibility. When that happens, freedom is forfeited. The rights of others are violated by selfish, reckless people. No one takes responsibility for their own failures or misdeeds. Freedom without responsibility. There is no civility in society. Very little civility in our country today. People do not take responsibility and there are very few with good manners. Bobby thanks God for this congregation, as they have good manners and they understand the principle of authority.

You cannot enjoy freedom until you recognize the authority which provides and enforces freedom. Using and enjoying freedom will not be one of your strong points. Bobby's have had a few tickets. Police officers always get flack for this. Bobby respects their authority. If he is stopped. That person in blue represents a minister of God. All freedom depends upon the exercise of authority. There is no freedom without respect in the citizenry. Freedom without authority is chaos and anarchy. You cannot live your life in peace and tranquility without law. We thank God even for lawyers, who represent the law.

Middle voice of ὑποτάσσω, which is reflexive; you initiate your own actions. You do the actions yourself. The agent must choose to exercise subordination. The choice to subordinate emphasizes self-discipline and authority-orientation. The person must choose from his or her free will to subordinate to authority. All authority is ordained by God. Submission to authority is not demeaning. That is what certain arrogant people conclude. Submission is respect for divine establishment and by divine design. Respect for authority is the key to all of this. That will preclude revolt in your own soul. You may not like this or that authority over you; but you must respect the principle of authority. They are ministers of God. Some of them may be evil and criminals themselves, but the principle of authority is always in effect.

When someone is elected, they represent duly constituted authority, whether you voted for them or not.

Scripture makes things easy for us. We can get the principle. If you do not know divine establishment, then you cannot apply it. Whether you like it or not, that is what is required of the believer in Jesus Christ.

Rom. 13:5 Therefore one must be in subjection, not only to avoid God's wrath but also for the sake of conscience.

Lesson #861

Rom. 13: March 11, 2009

Wednesday

Basec upon our study of divine establishment, we would not, in Nazi Germany, lead a revolution against Hitler. Hitler had the support of almost everyone. The industrialists bankrolled Hitler. The army supported him, because they wanted to rearm. The labor unions were concerned about their jobs and supported him. Inflation was rampant, and Hitler has programs to take care of this. His approach was nationalized socialism, which is what Nazi stands for.

The Christian is never to be involved with revolution or assassination. There is no exception here.

Rom. 13:1–4 Let every person be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and those that exist have been instituted by God. Therefore whoever resists the authorities resists what God has appointed, and those who resist will incur judgment. For rulers are not a terror to good conduct, but to bad. Would you have no fear of the one who is in authority? Then do what is good, and you will receive his approval, for he is God's servant for your good. But if you do wrong, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For he is the servant of God, an avenger who carries out God's wrath on the wrongdoer.

We are required to be subordinate to duly established authority. Our solution as believers in Jesus Christ is never political and never militant. We must always be oriented to divine promises and to divine mandates and to Bible doctrine. Establishment is what we need to pay attention to.

We may not respect a particular person, but we must respect the position they hold. Respect for the office of authority. This is the divine establishment rationale against revolution. It is not the person, it is the principle.

Bobby wants to go back to the horror of Hitler. What about the mandates of Scripture against anti-Semitism? Where would we draw the line of supporting divine establishment without supporting the evil of that regime.

One man at that time handled that situation. It fell in line with establishment and with the authority. Von Moltke was born in 1907 and died in 1945. He was German aristocracy just as we are royal family of God. He studied legal and political sciences. In 1935 he declined to become a judge since he would have to be a part of the Nazi party. This was before Hitler was in charge. He opened a private enterprise and he helped people travel abroad. He traveled himself abroad to make contacts. He was drafted for WWII. He was an expert in martial law and international public law. He provided appraisals of international appraisals of law. He traveled through German occupied countries and he observed many human rights violations. He did what he could to help in this regard. He wrote that 1000 people are murdered every day. He had a conscience and he had norms and standards. The Berlin Jews are being rounded up and sent off with just a handful of things. During Nazi Germany's war with Russia, he suggested that Germany follow the Geneva convention in order to gain better treatment of German prisoners. He was overruled in this opinion on the grounds that Russia was not a signatory to this agreement. He ordered deportation of Jews to countries which provided safe haven. He did it by writing reports on the psychological problems German soldiers had when killing and observing such mass killings. He twice contacted Britains to offer any help. He had strong religious convictions. Belief in God made a person in natural opposition to Naziism. He opposed the assassination of Hitler, as he would become a martyr. Gestapo used an attempted assassination to execute 5000 of Hitler's opponents. No evidence could be found the he participated in any revolutionary activity, charges had to be made up about him. He wrote two letters to his wife and said that he would be executed for his ideas and not his actions. He stood in front of the court as a Christian. The 3rd Reich fears discussion of divine establishment in relation to the Nazi party. Being a Christian does not remove us from our responsibility to the principle of authority in a nation. Neither anarchy or revolution is every sanctioned by the Word of God.

A negative example: Emperor Claudius was the Cæsar and he banned Jews because they resist the Roman empire. They would not submit to governmental authority, which had provided protection and freedom. This was 51 A.D. Even though polytheism was the religion of Rome, they had freedom of religion and freedom of movement and freedom and commerce. The Roman empire sponsored them and protected them. However, they distorted Old Testament eschatology. They believed they had no responsibility to the Roman government. Even though they professed only allegiance to the Messiah, they rejected their true Messiah. Each Cæsar was thought of as the anti-Messiah. The end result was the fifth cycle of discipline in 70 A.D. They were removed from Palestine and spread all over the world. They supported revolution and died by violence.

The Russian Revolution still has an impact today. There is nothing which is good about violating the laws of divine establishment. This helps us to figure out what we should do and what we should not do. When Paul wrote these words, this same degenerate ruler, Nero, was the emperor over Rome. He was power-mad. But nowhere does Paul suggest that revolution would be prudent. The authority of Rome provide protection for Paul from the Jews who crucified Christ and who wanted to kill Paul. Acts 23:27: This man was seized by the Jews and was about to be killed by them when I came upon them with the soldiers and rescued him, having learned that he was a Roman citizen. Nero would kill Paul and God disciplined Nero by killing him. There was a great spread of the gospel during the time of Rome. Divine establishment and doctrine go together. What doctrine and a pivot cannot solve is not solvable by revolution. We are the only country in the world which abolished slavery by fighting a war.

We have the freedom to be slaves. God's plan was not hindered by some believers being slaves in the Roman empire. Paul told Onesimus to get back to his master. They do not have to be good rulers to fall under the divine establishment umbrella.

1Peter 2:16–20: Live as people who are free, not using your freedom as a cover-up for evil, but living as servants of God. Honor everyone. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the emperor. Servants, be subject to your masters with all respect, not only to the good and gentle but also to the unjust. For this is a gracious thing, when, mindful of God, one endures sorrows while suffering unjustly. For what credit is it if, when you sin and are beaten for it, you endure? But if when you do good and suffer for it you endure, this is a gracious thing in the sight of God.

It is tempting to assassinate evil rulers all over the world, but it is wrong. It is never right. Rulers in this nation carry authority, whether we agree with them or not. Never be a part of fomenting revolution. Many believers understand the insanity of a bureaucratic government. Some believers enter into a conspiracy against the government. However, we can still assemble and take in doctrine. We have freedom to publically express faith in Jesus Christ and in doctrine. There is no present exception at this time. When evangelization is not allowed and when doctrinal teaching is not allowed, then you disobey the law. What God has ordained, the believer does not have a right to overthrow. We are not to destroy any regime, even if it is oppressive.

Summary Points

1. Civil government is necessary under the laws of divine establishment.
2. Civil revolt and anarchy are anti-God because they are anti-establishment. They are a part of the cosmic system.
3. It should be views as evil to be involved in revolt, revolution and assassination. At best, it is human good, which will be parlayed into evil. Good intent to remove a tyrannical ruler results in all kinds of problems.

Rom. 13:5 Therefore one must be in subjection, not only to avoid God's wrath but also for the sake of conscience.

Lesson #862

Rom. 13: March 12, 2009

Thursday

Bobby's notes are the most important thing that he owns.

There are two good reasons to subordinate ourselves to authority. Authority is for the survival of the human race. When lawbreakers step out of line, they must be subdued. The second reason named is for conscience sake. This is an entirely different set of circumstances from fear. All people, whether believers or unbelievers, have a conscience. Some have corrupted their consciences and some are undeveloped. However, that is key to this verse.

The Doctrine of Conscience

1. Definition:
  - a. Conscience is that mental faculty by which one distinguishes between right and wrong.
  - b. The conscience urges the individual to do what he recognizes to do that which is right and to restrain from doing that which he recognizes to be wrong. This means you have certain norms and standards.
  - c. Virtue is applied from the conscience. In the believer, it is the virtue developed from spiritual advance.

- d. Conscience is related to moral standards or to spiritual standards of one's thoughts, motives, decisions and actions. Your conscience is involved in almost every decision that you make in life.
  - e. If there is limited recognition of right and wrong, then we classify that as a weak conscience. 1Cor. 8 10
  - f. If one has no authority-orientation as a part of their norms and standards, they either fear punishment or proceed to violations, to breaking laws. Some do not break the law simply because they fear punishment.
2. In the conscience of the believer, norms, standards and priorities, and motives, decisions and actions must originate from Bible doctrine in the conscience. There is a stream of consciousness in the right lobe, and a part of that is the conscience.
    - a. That which provides the standards of a Christian's conscience must be Bible doctrine. That is the standard of the Christian conscience.
    - b. Whatever circulates in our stream of consciousness becomes a part of our norms and standards. If you are unsure about that, check out reversionism booklet.
    - c. The conscience draws from doctrine, the norms and standards for life. They should both be present in believers. We can draw from Bible doctrine. We have the absolute understanding of truth; and unbelievers do not have this. Absolutes are found only in the spiritual life.
    - d. When you build norms and standards related to Bible doctrine, at the same time, while you build them, you are setting aside false norms and standards. You build up the true and you tear down the false. Legalism, antinomianism, and anti-authority are things which you remove from your thinking.
  3. A great deal of your strength as a believer comes from having doctrinal norms and standards in the conscience. The application of Bible doctrine to circumstances of life is made through problem solving devices. That is how we apply Bible doctrine to our lives. Those problem solving devices are part of the conscience as the application of your norms and standards. As you build reciprocal love for God, you are also building up problem solving devices. You are building up impersonal love toward man, personal love toward God, and various doctrinal rationales. The conscience + doctrinal wisdom are the vehicles for the problem solving devices.
  4. How the conscience is formed:
    - a. The conscience of the unbeliever. The unbeliever is dichotomous. They have a soul and a body. They develop relative norms and standards from the training at home. There is also the education outside of the home, which could be good or bad. Then there are background experiences which help to form the norms and standards of your conscience, some good and some not so good. All of this circulates. There are many different cultures in our society, and that can impact us. They have no human spirit. They cannot utilize gap and they are unregenerate, so the human spirit is not present.
    - b. Notice that the unbeliever's conscience is always under the influence or control of the area of strength or the area of weakness of the old sin nature. The unbeliever can never escape the old sin nature.

- c. No matter how good the unbeliever's standards are, they are always subject to the factor of the old sin nature.
  - d. The sin nature is what makes the unbeliever's conscience relative. There are no absolute standards of Bible doctrine. At best, the unbeliever's conscience is relative.
5. Believer and conscience.
- a. The best conscience of the unbeliever can do is a strong human morality and has divine establishment norms and standards.
  - b. The believer has a decided advantage in the realm of the conscience. He has the human spirit. They can develop absolute norms and standards from Bible doctrine. From a young age, Bobby had a conscience formed from Bible doctrine in the home. This sort of training is critical for a child. Then there is doctrinal training outside of the home, which is good for all ages and for all consciences. We develop doctrine in our human spirits, and virtue love, and a conscience which functions on Bible doctrine. Believers are not always controlled by the sin nature, and the more time they are controlled by the Holy Spirit, the better they can develop their conscience. We
  - c. The seared conscience. This believer may have begun to grow and had access to Bible doctrine, but his conscience as gone a different direction. 1Tim. 4:1-5: Now the Spirit expressly says that in later times some will depart from the faith by devoting themselves to deceitful spirits and teachings of demons, through the insincerity of liars whose consciences are seared, a liar has few norms and standards in their conscience. Lies are justifications for your own actions, or subterfuge. Lies reflect a damaged conscience. The false teachers in Christianity lead the sheep astray in the realm of doctrine, using false doctrine. who forbid marriage and require abstinence from foods that God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth. For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving, for it is made holy by the word of God and prayer. A seared conscience means that you are no different from the unbeliever in your thinking. It totally affects the norms and standards of your conscience. A seared conscience is no conscience.
  - d. What happens when a cow is branded? It is nothing but scar tissue. Nothing grows there. However, we can grow hide back over our scar tissue, if you continue to gap it.
6. The believer in reversionism is as immoral in the area of divine establishment as any unbeliever with a relative consciousness.
- a. The reversionist likes to apply situational ethics which fit his own cosmic standards, which change from generation to generation. How do you handle the morality of divine establishment? Our country has changed radically in our understanding of freedom and the military.
  - b. That person's conscience capitulates: to one's own desires or impulses. Whatever feels good, do it. That is a conscience with no norms or standards. There are no objective standards. The Christian world is filled with believers who make decisions based upon emotion and false standards.

- c. Therefore, he justifies in his own mind his own evil from a seared conscience. "What are my ethics in this situation?" and they bend and they break.
  - d. His thinking is, the end justifies the means. That is a conscience which has no real standards.
  - e. The result is Christian activism, unbridled immorality, or hypocritical legalism.
  - f. There are those with some vestige of conscience...what happens to that conscience? There is guilt. Guilt is mental attitude sins. Nothing good comes out of guilt.
  - g. What happens from the mental attitude sins of guilt is bad application and a seared conscience.
  - h. For the advancing believer, obeying the divine establishment is a matter of conscience and secondly, it is obedience to God. That is where the believer has the advantage. Divine establishment takes place through the human spirit with absolute standards.
  - i. In other words, what happens to the believer's conscience? The believer does not refrain from criminal activity simply because he is afraid of going to jail. He refrains from criminal activity because his norms and standards refuses to let him consider such an activity. That is for conscience sake. He does not need to fear.
  - j. His conscience is far stronger than any fear of punishment of law enforcement. Such fear ought not be a problem for us.
7. Conscience is the most effective means of the believer or unbeliever to submit to the governing authority. Always remember that a conscience needs to be developed. We all have one, but it must be developed. The standards of that conscience aren't just developed. They must be taught and they must be learned. Conscience is only as strong as the principles which are held to.
8. Remember, if norms and standards are relative or shifting, as they have become in our society today, then the conscience is relative and shifting, and can be bent to the circumstances. Under those conditions, anything can be justified. You do not change divine standards in order to fit into the plan of God. Our situational ethics explains why we have a society of corruption and greed. Your conscience will mirror society around you unless you, as a believer, have absolutes which are inviolable.

Rom. 13:5 Therefore one must be in subjection, not only to avoid God's wrath but also for the sake of conscience.

Lesson #863

Rom. 13:1–5 March 15, 2009

Sunday 1

Virtue love lead to human good versus divine good.

Rom. 13 is the definitive passage on our earthly citizenship.

Rom. 13:1–4: Let every person be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and those that exist have been instituted by God [this is authority in any part of our lives as having been established by God; all authority emanates from God. Authority provides for the orderly function of man.]. Therefore whoever resists the authorities resists what God has appointed [Resistance to authority is opposition to divine authority. Those opposing authority are outside the plan of God. The principle is authority; it does not matter who is in authority.], and those who resist will incur judgment. For rulers are not a terror to good conduct, but to bad. Would you have no fear of the one who is in authority? Then do what is good [criminality and control and law enforcement of a national entity. Authority is for the orderly survival of the human race. The principles of divine establishment are available to us. Where there is authority, there must be a backbone to this authority, including law enforcement and punishment. Punishment is a cause for fear. Punishment is a deterrent from crime.], and you will receive his approval, for he is God's servant for your good [Paul is not saying that there is an exemplary function of authority in all cases; not all rulers follow the laws of divine establishment; this is essentially respecting the office of authority and respecting the person who is in authority. There is no revolution which is authorized, no matter how bad a person is.]. But if you do wrong, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain. For he is the servant of God, an avenger who carries out God's wrath on the wrongdoer [an executioner is a ruler with the authorized authority to punish lawbreakers, which includes capital punishment. Capital punishment is not murder by the state; it is authorized and required by God. Vengeance is mine and I will repay, says the Lord applies to individual retribution.].

Authority is a good thing; authority is to be trusted and it is for our benefit. Remember that when we want to revolt in some way or another. There is a time and place for an objection and a time and place to buckle your chin strap and get to work.

Paul revisits wrath in v. 5. Fear and punishment are one reason to respect authority. This is why rulers are presented as avengers. The other rationale is conscience and conscience's sake.

We all have a conscience. We are all born with a conscience. However, it is a blank slate when we are born and this conscience must be developed. Norms and standards are always learned. The conscience must be taught to recognize the difference between right and wrong. He must learn to do what is right and to avoid doing that which is wrong. Then volition makes the choice.

The front line for developing the conscience of a human being is what they get from their parents. Then they learn norms and standards in school. History is the study of the conscience of people throughout changing circumstances. However, we seem to learn nothing from history, as we continue to make the same bad decisions. Then there is culture. A person's culture influences his norms and standards. There are many cultures coming to our country who bring a different culture and do not want to integrate or abandon their culture. The best a conscience can do is adhere to a strong human morality or to divine establishment. The decisions of the soul can be made based upon a person's area of weakness or area of strength. The norms and standards often go through a sin nature process. Sometimes norms and standards are bent to fit one's sin nature and situation. Situational ethics is the conscience of someone who has abandoned absolute norms and standards. If you say, "I normally don't lie, but I need to now for this reason..." or "I need a good grade and my entire future depends upon it" and then you do something which is wrong. With situational ethics, anything can be justified in the conscience. People justify murder all of the time. You can justify anything in your conscience. There is no deterrent if your conscience does not have some absolutes.

This is not just about the unbeliever. The reversionist believer is under the constant control of the sin nature. A relative conscience justifies situational ethics.

For the believer, it is an entirely different story. He lives under an entirely different set of circumstances as the unbeliever. The believer has all of the same areas in his soul as does the unbeliever. However, he also has, in his life, the human spirit and he can live a spiritual life. He can inculcate into his soul the spiritual life by which we are to live.

Parents are responsible to raise up their children properly. Many have been brought up in a home where Bible doctrine was paramount. You should find the pastor under whom you grow the best. Bobby doesn't want us jumping around. No pastor is perfect. Bobby does the best job that he possibly can. He tries to pull the doctrine as accurately as he can. Stick with one pastor and you will not become confused by conflicting doctrine. If you stick with one pastor, you will grow spiritually. If you hear doctrine and you hear enough of it, you will grow up. Doctrinal training outside of the home is necessary. Doctrine will eventually take up residence in your conscience. You can develop absolute norms and standards. A soul inculcated with the absolutes of Bible doctrine. That is what you want in your conscience. This is where the conscience can discern between right and wrong. When doctrine circulates, it becomes a part of the norms and standards. Then the believer draws from these norms and standards for one's temporal life and for spiritual life. That is when the problem solving devices become available to us. When you build norms and standards related to Bible doctrine, you also are setting aside false standards which are related to human good, relative morality, and anti-authority thinking. With this, you develop and exhibit moral courage. You do what is right according to the fixed standards of your conscience. People must show moral courage when we do something based upon the standards of Bible doctrine. This is true, even when these actions may not seem to be in our own best interests. That is the stand that many a Christian martyr has to make.

Unbelievers can show moral courage by adhering to the laws of divine establishment. Lack of moral courage is the result of relative standards.

Rom. 13:5 Therefore one must be in subjection, not only to avoid God's wrath but also for the sake of conscience.

One of the greatest examples in all of Scripture coming up the next hour.

We are going to examine the great Old Testament hero Daniel. A weak conscience is a conscience filled with fear. Such a conscience is paralyzed with fear. Bobby thinks of Martin Luther saying, "Here I stand" in the tribunals; and they chased him all over the country trying to kill him.

Daniel has a great amount of courage and doctrine in his soul. He faced situation after situation which was life threatening and he never bent. He faced a seemingly insignificant event in Dan. 1. Daniel recognized a problem; he was not being self righteous or legalistic. This was not a simple matter of refusing to eat. This was not a minor offense. This was a command from the king to eat and drink. Daniel was a hostage of Nebuchadnezzar (Dan. 1:3–4). Nebuchadnezzar did not want to destroy Jerusalem, but he took hostages. He told them, "I will take these hostages and if you get out of line, I will hang them upside down and skin them alive." Daniel's opposition to the king could mean a slow, agonizing death. You will find out just how bad torture can be.

Daniel's conscience began in the home and he had some training outside of the home. He had a conscience filled with inviolable Bible doctrine. When it came time for him to be separated from his parents, and he began to march toward his destiny, he was ready. He had been thoroughly taught by his parents. He was one of the young men that Nebuchadnezzar took out of Jerusalem in 605 B.C.

Divine establishment in those days was the Mosaic Law. He understood the law and part of that code included dietary laws. He was not to eat under certain circumstances. He applies this training at this point. The Mosaic Law is burned into his conscience. The spiritual code, the code of ethics, the establishment code. This was the result of a doctrinally inculcated conscience.

The Chaldeans customarily offered the best food to their gods. Before it got to the king, it was offered to their gods. Their king, often thought of as a second divinity, got this food second. This would have been the best food. The same superb menu found at the heathen temple was found then in Nebuchadnezzar's palace. He was asked to eat meat and to drink wine previously sacrificed to idols. His conscience recognized that there was a problem. A bell goes off in his head, and Daniel had to respond to that. Doctrine in his conscience is the key to making a good decision from a position of strength. Our volition makes a decision based upon that evaluation. It is easy to make decisions as a believer in Jesus Christ. There are no grey areas. Partaking of this meat was tantamount to worshipping false gods. Ex. 34:14–15 and specifically prohibited idolatry.

During the time of the Corinthians, there was this fabulous meat which had been offered up to the gods, and then it was served at certain restaurants. The Corinthians faced a similar situation. Do they become a stumbling block by eating this meat? 1Cor. 8. We are to consider the weaker believer. We have every right to do whatever we want which is not prohibited in the Word of God; but sometimes, we might not indulge in this or that because of the weak believer who might become confused by our actions.

They key to applying the law of love is the discernment of doctrine. You discern when you should do this or that. Is this going to be a stumbling block for a believer or will it reinforce the false standards of a legalist? The more you grow, the more you can make decisions like this. A mature conscience is concerned about other believers and not just about yourself and what you can do and what you can get away with.

Daniel was being watched by heathen Chaldeans here. There was a lot of fear in this court. Daniel could not compromise the heathen in this court. He was the front line of evangelism in that court. He knew that God had a purpose for him and that he needed to move ahead despite the consequences. He knew the eating of that meat would directly violate the Mosaic Law in that dispensation. The Jews were not to be involved in idolatry. They were to evangelize the nations. Where the Corinthians had liberty, Daniel had none. There was no vagueness in Daniel's decision. The consequences were greater for Daniel. This was a risk to his life. This was a matter of God's direct command to him. Daniel could make a wrong choice.

If you were Daniel, you might try to rationalize your bad decision. "I know God wants me to live and to work here, so I'll just have this steak; they won't know or understand." God throws little tests in our way so that we can make good decisions from a position of strength. It does not get easier; it gets harder as life goes on. Daniel was faithful in the little things and he was ready for the great things. Daniel would not overlook God's mandates ever.

Dan. 1:8: But Daniel resolved that he would not defile himself with the king's food, or with the wine that he drank. Therefore he asked the chief of the eunuchs to allow him not to defile himself.

Daniel told him that he could not do it; and he probably explained why. Now the guy that he talks to is scared because if he can't get Daniel to eat, then he might die too. When you make a tough decision and you know that someone might not like it, you make it from a conscience full of doctrine. Daniel made this decision and then he relaxed.

Here is the odd thing, that one could follow divine mandates or follow human authority. And Daniel here seems to be willing to die over not eating a steak. Doctrine first and then divine establishment. This was the choice between divine mandates or legitimate human authority. Daniel recognized the what was at stake here. It is moral courage when it may cost you your life. You may think you are courageous until you face a decision like this.

The Nazi which Bobby told us about; he did not revolt and he did not try to assassinate Hitler. He simply stood up for that which was right and gave his life for that.

Dan 1:9–10: And God gave Daniel favor and compassion in the sight of the chief of the eunuchs, and the chief of the eunuchs said to Daniel, "I fear my lord the king, who assigned your food and your drink; for why should he see that you were in worse condition than the youths who are of your own age? So you would endanger my head with the king."

Daniel stood there alone and his only companion was a conscience filled with doctrine. No one else stood with him. He chose to maintain his integrity, despite the urge for self-preservation. Daniel was an up-and-comer in this court. He was seen as someone who could go somewhere. We have seen this in our government and in our military. Ambition and promotion take precedence. "Climb over the dead bodies and I will get there that way." Daniel had a clear-cut choice of conscience. His doctrinal orientation moved him. God honored Daniel's right decision and God promoted him in this court. Dan. 1:19–20. Nebuchadnezzar would believe in Jesus Christ because of Daniel because of his moral courage.

Just the decisions which Daniel made. God used Daniel and used Esther because of the moral courage in their souls. You will not always be liked for doing what is right, but you will be liked where it counts. Doctrinal orientation + courage. Daniel impacted everyone in his periphery. He was never defeated by outside pressure or internal stress. He had the peace that passed all understanding.

If you have doctrine in your soul, then power will not corrupt you. Daniel was the perfect example.

Dan 1:19–20: And the king spoke with them, and among all of them none was found like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. Therefore they stood before the king. And in every matter of wisdom and understanding about which the king inquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters that were in all his kingdom.

Lesson #865

Rom. 13:5–7 March 18, 2009

Wednesday

Rom. 13:5 is compulsory, and submission to authority is foundational to divine establishment. Authority originates with God and is sanctioned by God. God delegated that principle of authority to us. Authority without freedom is tyranny; and freedom without authority is anarchy.

Those who are anti-authority are law-breakers and are subject to the wrath of the state, called the sword here. The state must enforce divine establishment. That is for the good of all. The wrath of the state includes capital punishment.

For those who are authority orientation, there is another reason for being in subordination. In the conscience, right and wrong are discerned. A working conscience of the believer and unbeliever. The most effective conscience is that of the believer filled with doctrine. This is the conscience of the believer with absolute and inviolable norms. Do not forget that this is divine establishment, this is from God. It is as much an absolute standard as from God.

There are advantages to having a conscience with proper norms and standards

1. The believer with a conscience based on norms and standards of divine viewpoint avoids internal stress. When you apply doctrine, you avoid inner stress. The believer makes consistently good decisions from a position of strength. You may not be clear as to what a position of strength; but it is listening to a strong conscience inculcated with the Word of God. The conscience gives you the norms and standards and volition makes the decision.

2. The opposite is a position of weakness. With good decisions, there is no guilt complex in the soul. If you do not make bad decisions, then you have no reason to feel guilty. When you allow guilt to continue, it is a mental attitude sin. Then you have stress.
3. Moral courage is the will to depend upon doctrine. You do not bend divine norms and standards to fit corrupt human standards. Daniel was a man who could relax in a crisis; he could smile at death. Death is passing in a twinkling of any eye from life into all eternity. Daniel faced every crisis and God used him in a wonderful way.
4. Doctrinal standards in the conscience are problem resolvers. Doctrinal standards and a conscience are not an albatross which prevent happiness or personal fulfillment. For some people, a conscience is inconvenient.

What is taken away because of your adherence to a doctrinal conscience, God always replaces with something better. When you stand for Bible doctrine, God honors that. By making good decisions, we may lose friends, business opportunities, love interests, etc. However, we do not really lose; we gain, because we refuse to compromise our standards. You never compromise your doctrinal norms and standards. Daniel didn't and he was honored.

5. God always honors a conscience with Bible doctrine which makes good decisions in His plan. The happiest you will ever be is in the plan of God for your life. It is not indulging your own desires and lusts. You will not be tortured by the realization that you are out of the plan of God. You do not indulge your won plan. Fulfilling God's plan is the fulfillment of our lives.

The Results of a doctrinal conscience

1. You take responsibility for your actions.
2. With a doctrinal conscience, you do not desire to blame others or to justify yourself.
3. You leave justice to the supreme court of heaven. You do not need to get out there and correct injustices.
4. Neither do you wallow in self-reproach; or in shame.
5. You do not seek revenge for an injustice against you. 1Peter 4:19: Therefore let those who suffer according to God's will entrust their souls to a faithful Creator while doing good. You do what is right; that is always to your advantage. You simply entrust your soul to your creator. When facing martyrdom, they entrust their souls to a faithful Creator.

Rom. 13:5 Therefore one must be in subjection, not only to avoid God's wrath but also for the sake of conscience.

The next two verses are about paying taxes. Those who rule you pay taxes to. There are no exceptions here. You are not exempt from taxes because you disagree with the use of our taxes. Our taxes seem unfair, and they often are unfair, and our money is misused. It is difficult to hand over money for things that we despise. This is authority orientation and not personal finance. Your material things do not come first; divine establishment principles come first. So many times the Christian claims that the government is immoral and therefore, he refuses to pay taxes. That is not the proper application. The IRS is empowered to bring wrath down upon us. Paying taxes is our responsibility under divine establishment.

Bob's view on this point. The clergy have some special provision for exemptions in the US tax code. There are some options for clergy. Bob did not claim this option. He made careful consideration of this problem from a conscience of doctrine. He wanted to make certain that he did not even remotely violate this principle. Bob did not have to; he did not have to pay these additional taxes. That was his inviolable position. He was careful in this area to a fault. He justified it in his own mind by thinking his money goes to the military.

When April 15 rolls around, you are fulfilling divine mandate. Even though the US is engaged in the greatest ponzi scheme of all time. Keep the principle of taxation in mind, not the horror of it as it is used in this country today.

Government is ordained of God and all of this other stuff is superfluous. The human race is protected and perpetuated.

The misuse of authority in leadership does not ever negate the principle of divine establishment. Everyone in government appears to be on the take; everyone seems to be greedy; freedom seems to be flying out the window. Rulers are servants of God as they have delegated authority. We serve the Lord directly. However, there are many people in office who are not believers and they still serve God as His ministers. They wield the authority which is the glue which holds society together.

Where the government is suppressive of freedom, that is still not a license to destroy them. No matter what the situation is, God still has a purpose for us. Whether we have our freedoms or not. Even if we are paying 90% of our income in taxes, God still has a plan for us. The reality of John 8:32: You will know the truth and the truth will set you free.

Career public servants are necessary. Therefore, the servant needs support. He gains it through taxes as a part of divine establishment.

Rom. 13:6 For because of this you also pay taxes, for the authorities are ministers of God, attending to this very thing.

The Christian's responsibility to government. We need to fulfill our obligation to all. There is no wiggle-room here. Pay all that you owe. Repay everyone his dues. Whether you like these or not, these are legitimized by the national authority. Therefore you fulfill your obligation to pay taxes.

Custom to whom custom is due. Now, this is not to give our blessing to all cultures. Multi-culturalism is destructive to our country. That is the opposite of the great melting pot culture of the United States. Multi-culturalism is disunity. That means differing authorities. We live under Anglo-Saxon law, beginning with the Magna Carta law. We cannot mix that with Sharia law, as they are in opposition to one another. This unites religion with state in one case. Indirect taxes, sales taxes; this is a continuation of other types of taxes. Finally, fear to whom fear is due; honor him to whom honor is due. The first refers to fear and the second to honor. This is a double-entendre. To be a law abiding citizen, you obey the law. Give due respect to the servants of God who have authority over you. The only thing which brings a grudging respect to authority is fear. Enforce fear, which is enforced humility; followed by genuine respect. When you fail to give divine establishment its due, wrath is upon us. But if we give divine establishment its due, then we receive praise of the same.

Τιμαὶ is repeated and it means to honor. All government authority is honorable, even though all government is not honorable. Respect authority. That is what you owe. That is your obligation. That is the whole principle of divine establishment. Each category needs to be respected.

We are to respect the boss at the workplace; and other authorities as well. Since government is ordained by God, it is compatible with the plan of God to serve the government, which even includes political office or even serving with the IRS.

This is legitimate human good, and it is something which we must undertake. We are still obligated to divine establishment. An unbeliever can produce acceptable human good by functioning in this divinely ordained system. The unbeliever will not be rewarded for this, as he will be in hell; but we will if done in the Spirit.

Rom. 13:7 Pay to all what is owed to them: taxes to whom taxes are owed, revenue to whom revenue is owed, respect to whom respect is owed, honor to whom honor is owed.

Thursday

The expression of virtue love is the product of advance to spiritual maturity and reciprocal love. Operation Z + the filling of the Holy Spirit gets us doctrinally oriented and begins to develop virtue love in our souls. The greater the virtue love, the more that it manifests itself in our attitude and actions.

Virtue love consists of two categories: capacity for love for a select few; with that personal love comes the all important impersonal love. You are developing capacity for love as you develop reciprocal love. Virtue love develops inherently. Virtue love is personal love for a select few and impersonal love for all mankind. Impersonal love is the stabilizing factor in personal love. Personal virtue love has capacity; and that capacity is mirrored in those virtues which we will see in vv. 4 and 7. Impersonal love is the maximum function if impersonal virtue love toward all mankind. Virtue love is the key to Christian production.

We are motivated to use our spiritual gifts as we advance to spiritual maturity. We develop reciprocal love and they are motivations for using our spiritual gift. The laws of divine establishment are for believers and unbelievers alike. They are part of God's plan for maintaining a client nation. Impersonal love is important in all of this; it is critical in obeying the laws of divine establishment. Impersonal love is often the means by which we fulfill our obligation in submitting to the governing authority. You may not like the person in authority or the policies of the person in authority; they may be unjust or even tyrannical, yet you obey the servant of God.

Vv. 4–8 we have prepared for. Paul now goes to a summation of this subject. He recites all of the individual characteristics of virtue love. What does virtue love consist of? What does it look like? You know how to get it; you know what it means. We are to gain virtue love. This is what our reciprocal love and our doctrine is driving for. What do we look like and what do we act like in apply virtue love from our soul. These are not abstract characteristics; they are our attributes as we advance. These are the characteristics which we must acquire. This is the most concentrated passage depicting virtue love and what it looks like in our souls. This list is an insight into our own soul. We can look inside of ourselves. We can gauge our own spiritual growth by them.

We have a sin nature; we will not express virtue love all of the time. If we stay out of fellowship for a long period of time, this does not describe us. Being able to express these on a consistent basis is ours. We have the means and the motivation—doctrine and reciprocal love. Bobby encourages us to compare our mental attitude with this list.

Bobby cites this passage in a wedding ceremony. He never leaves this passage out, although he may shorten it or lengthen it. These characteristics have a personal application between spouses and the impersonal love necessary to weather every storm and trial. If we can apply these characteristics, we can withstand anything that love throws at us.

You do not find the right person; you become the right person. Marriage with these qualities, you will be stable, thoughtful, honorable, trustworthy.

This passage has poetry and rhythm to it as well.

Virtue love does not act unbecomingly. It does not seek its own. It is not provoked. It is easy to become provoked by the person that you love. They have that ability better than anyone else. Virtue love is not provoked. 1Cor. 13:4–8: Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice at wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth. Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Love never ends. As for prophecies, they will pass away; as for tongues, they will cease; as for knowledge, it will pass away. These standards are not the stars or the moon; the Word of God does not contain impossible standards. God does not put something before us that we cannot do. God has provided the means by which we can possess these characteristics.

As you advance, these characteristics begin to function; and you will be a nicer person to be around. It is not personal love which never fails (v. 8). True personal love does not exist without these characteristics.

Great personal love is not just sex or compatibility. It is the capacity to relate to a certain few based upon this list of virtues. These characteristics are what make personal love wonderful. It will not last without these characteristics.

Virtue love is patterned after Christ's love for us from the cross. He is the epitome of virtue love. In these characteristics, we can see the perfectly virtuous character of Christ as He lives on this earth. This represents His attitude perfectly. This is what He was like to perfection. You can substitute Christ for ἀγαπή in this passage; this is how important these characteristics are. This is what made Jesus so attractive. If you meet someone with these qualities, you will remember them. Jesus had these qualities perfectly; and for that reason was unforgettable. In His humanity, Jesus possessed these qualities perfectly. Christ was patient; He was entirely kind; He was never jealous; He never bragged; He was never arrogant, even though He was man and God in One person; Jesus was not provokable. In human terms, Jesus had every right to be provoked; but He never gave in to that. Jesus never gave in to the behavior of those who hated Him. Jesus did not react to all of these provocations; but He responded in synch. Because He had these characteristics, He never reacted.

Jesus walked into the synagogue, saw this woman, and He healed her on the spot. He got some vituperative backlash from some religious type. Luke 13:14–16: But the ruler of the synagogue, indignant because Jesus had healed on the Sabbath, said to the people, "There are six days in which work ought to be done [he assumes that this is a work which Jesus does]. Come on those days and be healed, and not on the Sabbath day." [he is berating the people who are there for showing up and one of them getting healed. These pharisees were experts at keeping the Sabbath and they believed that this impressed God; and yet, God was standing right in front of them. They are worried about this legalism, and they missed the importance of God right in front of them doing a miracle. They needed the grace of God; and they could not see that. If anything should have provoked our Lord, this legalistic reaction should have. Jesus answers these religious types with graciousness.] Then the Lord answered him, "You hypocrites! Does not each of you on the Sabbath untie his ox or his donkey from the manger and lead it away to water it?" [they took care of their animals even on the Sabbath; they were too valuable to let go without water; by their thinking, this would violate the Sabbath; and they did it all the time.] And ought not this woman, a daughter of Abraham whom Satan bound for eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the Sabbath day?" This humiliated these religious types. Luke 13:17: As he said these things, all his adversaries were put to shame, and all the people rejoiced at all the glorious things that were done by him. What legalism can compare to the grace of God. Jesus did not turn the other cheek when attacked; He stood up for the truth. Jesus did not get into an argument with them; He simply spoke the truth.

Our spiritual life is patterned after our Lord's spiritual life. We can reproduce His virtue love through our spiritual life. His expression of virtue love can be our expression of virtue love.

Prelude

1. The first pair are both positive.
2. The second pair are actually 4 pairs of characteristics and they are all negative. They are what virtue love is not.
3. The next pair is a positive and a negative. Not rejoicing and rejoicing.
4. The final two pairs are positive.
5. The summation of the effectiveness of virtue love: it never fails.

1Cor. 13:4 Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant

Lesson #867

1Cor. 13:4 March 22, 2009

Sunday 1

We are embarking on that section which amounts to a soul search. This is not a search to find yourself. We are also examining a gateway to a Christ-like attitude and life. This spiritual life is not some nebulous, make-it-up-as-you-go life. It is precise with regards to procedures and mechanics and procession.

If you reject or are ignorant of any of these facts, then your Christianity is nothing more than a secular, do-goobar morality play. You may be saved; but you have no spiritual life unless you understand the empowerment that you have as a believer in Jesus Christ. By using the resources which God has provided for you, you can live the Christian life just as God has designed it for you. In virtue love, you can express the greatest capacity for love for a selected few, and in impersonal love for all mankind. Our attitude in virtue love defines our relationships with people, just as reciprocal love defines your relationship with God. These are not abstract characteristics; they are the results of our spiritual life. So we need to ask ourselves, do we possess these characteristics and, if so, to what degree? These verses lay down the absolute qualities of what we have. We may not express these qualities all the time. We still have an operational old sin nature which we stumble over, due to our own volition, the characteristics below will tell us the condition of our spiritual life.

Bobby loves to just read these verses, and it gives us the feel for it. 1Cor. 13:4–8a: Virtue love is patient and kind; Virtue love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice at wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth. Virtue love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Virtue love never ends. There is no doubt who perfectly revealed these characteristics. The virtuous character of the Lord Jesus Christ as He lived on this earth. These characteristics are the summation of Who He was. You can replace virtue love with Jesus Christ in this passage. We do not have a physical portrait of Jesus Christ. After the first generation of those who observed Him in the flesh, there is no description of what He looks like. We have seen him as a long-haired man, hands folded with a halo over his head; and others show Him as emaciated. However, that is a distraction. We get to know Him through His mind and His thinking. This is a picture of Him. That which truly defined Him. This passage is more than just an insight into Who He is. These are qualities which are expected of us. Our spiritual life is patterned after His proto-type spiritual life. We have His spiritual life. We have an operational spiritual life. We have the capability to reproduce His virtue love.

14 descriptive statements all arranged in pair. 2 positive, 2 negatives, a positive and a negative, and then 2 positives. The summation: virtue love never fails.

Did Paul put these in an order of importance? Virtue love must be patient. That is a primary characteristic of virtue love. Μακροθυμew is one of the easiest concepts to understand and one of the hardest to fulfill. Every day, we are tested with this one. This means to be long suffering, to be enduring, to be patient, to endure with steadfastness, to persevere with fortitude under pressure. The last is Bobby's fave. This is a perseverance undeterred by obstacles, slowness, problems. The quality of patience must overrule our gut reaction to this or that. We are slow to anger, slow to take offense, deliberative.

Patience μακροθυμew

1. This is the opposite of quick or short-tempered. Patience means you can control this before it goes off. Some people who flare up often look back on what they do and wish they hadn't.
2. We bear and endure testing and suffering without giving into it; without complaining; without whining, without retribution or backlash.
3. We handle people with equanimity and tolerance.
4. We are not quick to assert our rights. "We want our rights and we want them now." and this can be personal or corporate.
5. In patience, we are not resentful toward anyone.
6. The rationale for patience is this: we let the Lord handle things that would otherwise bother us and tempt us to take matters into our own hands. In reaction, we want to grab whatever it is or whoever it is by the throat. Patience is consideration.
7. When we get impatient, something terrible happens. We precipitate more crisis and more turmoil than already exists. When we do not exercise patience, we exacerbate the situation.
8. When we are impatient, we do not take the time to consider our options in the light of Bible doctrine. Impatience is just reacting. Without patience, we react on the basis of mental attitude sins. We are vindictive, we malign, we are resentful; we are impatient to have our way. We lose any semblance of virtue love.

When we apply virtue love, we are reflecting the love of Jesus Christ. He is patient with us. Jesus is not slow with regards to His patience; The Lord is not slow to fulfill his promise as some count slowness, but is patient toward you, not wishing that any should perish, but that all should reach repentance (2Peter 3:9). This is truly a free decision by the unbeliever. James 1:19 This you know, my beloved; let everyone be quick to hear, but slow to speak and slow to anger. The assumption here is, someone has made you angry. Do not react; respond with slowness and patience.

Do not spend your time trying to justify yourself or letting them see you in a better light. Patience is a priority characteristic of virtue love. Patience does not mean that you do not act; it means that you do not react. Reaction is emotion. Emotion will usually take us down the wrong road. Give it time and let the solution come to you. When you are dealing with people under pressure, do not judge them hastily; do not lose your temper; do not detonate and then destroy. God's patience and His reactions.

Nahum 1:3: The LORD is slow to anger and great in power, and the LORD will by no means clear the guilty. His way is in whirlwind and storm, and the clouds are the dust of his feet. God is patient and slow to anger; but that does not mean that He ignores what we do. Patience never means no evaluation or no thought. It also does not mean to lie down and to be a doormat. It required prudence and deliberation. Not in a hurry to judge or act, but with patient, careful consideration, you do act.

1Cor. 13:4 Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant

Lesson #868

Jealousy 1Cor. 13:4 March 22, 2009

Sunday 2

The first characteristic of virtue love. We now know all there is to know about how to acquire virtue love. The study of virtue love is one of the most important studies that Bobby has done is that on virtue love. It is an encapsulation of the spiritual life. We develop that same attitude, thinking and behavior of Jesus Christ. It is based on these virtues, these qualities. This was His attitude; everywhere He went, everyone that He spoke to, and in everything that He did, He was consistent in these qualities of virtue love. These may seem somewhat unattainable, but they are. We will sin and we will fail; but we have the capability of achieving these when in fellowship.

Bobby would like to spend another hour on this; but Bobby could see some great impatience in the eyes of everyone.

Χρηστυομαι = to be agreeably disposed, to be kind, agreeable. There are 2 nouns and a verb from this same root: χρηστος, Χρηστοτης The believer is disposed to show kindness, goodness and benevolence. This mirrors God's kindness, goodness and benevolence toward us. God is good, and His good is absolute and it is completely uncorrupted. Χρηστευομαι is the proper spelling of the verb. Thayer definitions: to show one's self mild, to be kind, use kindness. These are the actions or deeds of kindness; deeds which are divine good. The first two, patience and kindness just about sum up all that we need to do. These are pretty far-reaching.

Rather than reacting with impatience, maligning, judging, etc. If you get away from circumstances and from reacting to choosing your own reaction.

Summary

1. Virtue love is patient; it endures with fortitude under pressure.

2. Patience functions by responding to evil intent with divine good in the form of kindness, benevolence and generosity. The active result of the filling of the Holy Spirit is the development of virtue love and these two qualities.
3. Virtue love results in both an attitude of patience and acts of kindness.
4. This means functioning with a relaxed mental attitude of impersonal virtue love. Impersonal love is defined by patience and kindness. This comes from the virtue love in your soul.

Ζηλόω = to be jealous, to be envious. This comes with the negative. Paul brings up this negative early. The factions in the church at Corinth are very jealous of one another. Each faction claims the mentorship of different Apostles. Some with the gift of tongues were using that gift as a club. Thayer definition: 1) to burn with zeal; 1a) to be heated or to boil with envy, hatred, anger; 1a1) in a good sense, to be zealous in the pursuit of good; 1b) to desire earnestly, pursue; 1b1) to desire one earnestly, to strive after, busy one's self about him; 1b2) to exert one's self for one (that he may not be torn from me); 1b3) to be the object of the zeal of others, to be zealously sought after; 1c) to envy. Do not be envious of those who speak in a different language. This was the entire Corinthian church. That is how ridiculous the church was.

Jealousy is a part of every congregation. There is something which we are envious of.

Doctrine of Jealousy

1. Jealousy is defined as an unpleasant fear, suspicion or distrust of another.
2. It is an emotional, mental attitude sins with wide-ranging repercussions for other sins.
3. Jealousy is generated by insecurity and fear. Fear of rivalry, of unfaithfulness, of loss of affection. Where are they tonight? Who are they with? What's going on?
4. Jealousy demands exclusive devotion. It is intolerant of competition. Do not get all excited because you do not have these propensities.
5. Jealousy is a sin of great misery. Tremendous repercussions with this sin; you are in constant turmoil. Virtue love is strangled where jealousy is.
6. Envy is a synonym for jealousy, but it is a different shade. Envy usually applies to possessions.
  - a. Discontentment with the things which you have and with the things others have.
  - b. It is jealousy with regards to another's advantages or successions or possessions.
  - c. Or they have mistreated you in your imagination or in reality.
7. Jealousy is self-centered
  - a. It is related to egotism, irrationality toward others, insecurity, it is often engendered from something in your own imagination.
  - b. The jealous person always makes an issue of self and is quick to judge others. You do not know a person, but in jealousy, you begin to judge them, because the issue is about yourself. Many of these things fit together perfectly. This is a whole series of dominoes; if one falls, they all fall. A jealous person never makes a good lover, husband or wife. The jealous person is totally preoccupied with self.

8. Jealousy in inordinate possessiveness of others.
  - a. A self-centered person is possessive because they think they have the right to control another person's life.
  - b. To accomplish this, the possessive person becomes a manipulator; passive-aggressive. All manipulation.
  - c. Jealousy intrudes into the privacy of others.
  - d. The possessive person stifles and destroys the personal freedom of another.
  - e. The person who has jealous possessiveness never gets what he wants. It never works. You bring the old rules to a new game.
  - f. Jealous possessiveness does not allow you to love people from your own volition. Love needs to be freely given. Jealousy does not see it that way.
  - g. Jealousy demands love and attention based upon a self-centered yearning, not respecting the yearning of another. Reciprocal love must come from the volition of the person who loves. Jealousy does not make a person love you and manipulating a person will not engender love; it is repulsive and it will get the exact opposite reaction.
  - h. The jealous person must be loved the way that he wants to be loved. There is no other way for a person to express love toward him. If you do not love me the way I want to be loved, I will change and possess you. Possessiveness is the manipulation of another's volition.
  - i. The jealous person thinks that he knows what is best for the object of his jealousy. He seeks to exert his oppressive will over them, which is manipulation. Sometimes, the smarter you are, in jealousy, the better you are at manipulating. But in the end, you will get a reaction and you will never get what you want from manipulation. Virtue love is not jealous.
  - j. In those possessive demands, the jealous person destroys the love that he wants from the other person.
  - k. The jealous person can never gain through manipulation that which can be freely given. If it is not freely given, then it is not given. Jealousy and manipulation will not get you where you want to go.
  - l. That is tyranny in love.
9. Jealousy motivates emotionalism.
  - a. As the sin of emotion, jealousy becomes irrational, blind and incoherent. Blind jealousy means worry, consternation, panic, etc.
  - b. Jealousy is consuming in its envy of others.
  - c. Jealousy is very difficult to get over. It dredges so deeply into the emotions. You need to step back and figure where you are going.
  - d. Jealousy becomes to motivator of hatred, gossip, slander, maligning, revenge, anger, judging, and even retaliation and revenge.

- e. Under those conditions, no one can really love another. The jealous person wants to be loved, but they cannot get there from here.
- f. Jealousy destroys that which it wants to preserve through isolation and distrust.
- g. Jealousy destroys your capacity for love. Christians do this all the time.

This is an insidious sin; which is why Paul includes it in the negative. There is not expression of virtue love.

1Cor. 13:4 Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant

Lesson #869

Jealousy 1Cor. 13:4 March 25, 2009

μακροθυμew = to be long suffering, to endure with courage and steadfastness, to be patient; to preserve with fortitude under pressure. There is no time limit on patience. The patience meter does not run out. It means unlimited patience. There is hardly ever any greater attribute than patience.

We have a generation now who is entirely impatient. They get out of school and they want to be on top. They want success right away. Patience is a great quality. Some of us are not patient in waiting for the RM or the RW. There is something that we want and we want it right now. The pressures which we face. Stress causes us to be short-tempered. It takes very little incentive to fire up. The virtue of patience is the antidote for all of the problems which we face in life. Or to deal with any roadblock thrown in our way. Patience is slow to anger, slow in deliberation. Patience precludes all of these reactions. Most of what patience is not is that flash point. There is something which triggers our flashpoint. Slow means we begin to back away from that flashpoint. Patience is always slow. We are always motivated to consider doctrine before we leap. In this way, we respond in a reasonable way. Patience steps back. There are times when we need to step back. We need to forget personal injury and insults. We must step back so that we can overlook failure and faults in others. If you have impersonal love in your soul, then patience is a quality that you will exhibit in all circumstances. Patience is waiting on the Lord; the battle is the Lord's. when you are patient toward Him, it always works out. When you have reciprocal love, it works out. When you gain capacity to love Him, you also gain the capacity to wait on Him as well. This is the primary ingredient for a relaxed mental attitude.

Kindness is the flip-side of patience. Patience does not resent irritants and problems. It is harder to do when there is antagonism, but if you can, then that is virtue love. You repay kindness with virtue love. Kindness is benevolence of action. Patience is maintain fellowship when you have every reason to get out of fellowship. Impersonal love accomplishes patience and kindness.

Virtue love is not envious or jealous.

The doctrine of jealousy

Bobby wants to make certain that we understand jealousy.

1. Jealousy is unpleasant fear or suspicion or a resentment from mistrust of others.
2. Jealousy is an emotional mental attitude sin that brings with it a wide-range of opportunity for other sins. When you begin with jealousy, you are off and running. Jealousy is right up there with arrogance as the great multiplier.
3. Jealousy is motivated by fear of losing another's affection, of rivalry, fear of unfaithfulness. You are not a great lover if you are a jealous lover. Impersonal love cannot function if jealousy consumes your thinking.
4. Jealousy demands exclusive devotion and it is intolerant of competition for affection. You cannot be that insecure and demonstrate virtue love. Jealousy is just insecurity but in another form.
5. Jealousy is misery, turmoil and unrest of soul. It is unrelenting. You are always afraid of something; that someone will not treat you the way you want to be treated.
6. Envy is an attitude of discontent. Jealousy for another's advantages, successions or possessions. They have a better house than you do, or a better car, a better job. They work less and make more money.
7. Jealousy is always self-centered. It is related to egotism, self-pity, narcissism and irrationality toward others. A person is self righteous and therefore quick to judge and quick to react. You can see the problems which jealousy leads to.
8. Jealousy is inordinate possessiveness of others. They will take everything that they can get and then some. Possessiveness is insidious. They think they have the right to control others. They will manipulate others for control. They must use their force of personality. They have to regulate other people to get what they want. The person who is jealous never gets that for which they manipulate. They remain frustrated. The manipulator is always frustrated. There is not enough manipulation to maintain control. The possessive person attempts to superimpose his or her will over the volition of others. It builds resentment in the person who is being manipulated. You may think you are a great manipulator; and those you manipulate will resent you and you will drive them away. You will even lose a great relationship with your own children. The jealous person always thinks that he can force someone to love him on his terms. They always destroy the love that they want. You can only gain that which is freely given; you cannot gain anything by manipulation. Jealousy never helps anything or anyone.
9. Jealousy motivates emotionalism. The jealous person sits up at night thinking about how they can get what they want. They are irrationally consumed. They lay awake at night. What is that other person doing? Are they somewhere else tonite? Are they enjoying themselves when I am not here? Personal relationships only bring frustration. Why would anyone want to build a personal love relationship on distrust, frustration and anxiety. That is what jealousy attempts to do.
10. Morality can be distorted by jealousy. This includes believers and unbelievers.
  - a. Jealousy causes the person to develop a facade of self righteousness which leads to a holier than thou attitude. A moralizer, which is a form of manipulation and tyranny. Especially true in believers who develop this legalistic self righteousness.

- b. The jealous person never sees himself at fault, which becomes a point of legalism. This distorts morality. If you cannot see the violation of your own standards, then you have a problem and you are a legalist.
  - c. Self-justification and you always view yourself to be right. You can now justify your jealous manipulations. They do not know how to love me; I will force them into it.
  - d. In jealousy, you are blind to your own flaws and distortions. Doctrine shed light on ourselves. We can evaluate ourselves by doctrine.
  - e. Self-justification leads to denial. We must deny the reality of our own jealousy in order to justify ourselves.
  - f. In that mode, you can justify anger, bitterness, maligning and self-pity. You can do this by blaming someone else. If they were not doing this, then I would not be jealous. It is your fault when you are jealous; it is not the fault of anyone else. Jealousy is one of the hardest things to overcome, but it can be overcome with virtue love. People justify their reactions in jealousy when others are at fault in their own eyes; they see themselves as the moral one.
  - g. You are deceiving yourself about your morality and motivation. Your morality is immoral and your motivation is wrong.
  - h. In blaming others, you project and superimpose your faults on others. This is hollow because it is all based upon self righteous legalism.
  - i. Self-justification can cause a person to move into a shell of indifference. You are indifferent to the feelings of others. You are thoughtless.
  - j. Jealousy means that a person is hypersensitive about themselves and insensitive toward others. Jealousy is one of the fastest avenues to hypersensitivity that there is. You cannot use the spiritual life if you are continually justifying yourself. When you are self-centered, you are hypersensitive.
11. Jealousy is pseudo love because it destroys capacity. They have no real capacity to love.
- a. Trust is missing where jealousy resides. If you do not trust someone, you do not love them. You will have to watch them every minute. It is frustrating and exhausting.
  - b. Where trust is missing, there is no capacity for personal love. SOS 8:6–7 it is easy to gauge whether or not you trust someone. If you are jealous, then you cannot trust them. No one entertaining jealousy has capacity for love.
  - c. Jealousy has a great power to destroy all capacity for love because you lose all patience and tolerance and you disallow privacy. Privacy is important in love. If you are a married couple, allow for privacy. It is important.
  - d. You actually become cruel because you are not being treated the way that you want to be treated. You are not being treated the way that you want to be treated. You become cruel in the process. Jealous people are cruel people. When you see this quality in someone else, run the other direction.

- e. Jealousy is also the antithesis of impersonal love. You are angry at perceived mistreatment. How can you show impersonal love when you are jealous?
- f. Further, as part of manipulation, the one who constantly arouses jealousy for the purpose of manipulation has no capacity for love. They cut their own throats with their attempts to make someone jealous. Virtue love precludes all of this. The only way to live is by demonstrating virtue love. You can preclude all of this and be relaxed in all relationships.
- g. The manipulation tactic in eliciting jealousy never brings the desired result. The unintended consequence is to destroy trust. The essence of your personal love is trust and you have done everything to destroy it.
- h. Manipulation is the attempt to control others and to control situations. This infringes on another's freedom. Right now, the government is attempting to do that to us. Any jealous person who does not get his or her way will manipulate to get it. They turn to manipulation to gain control. Jealousy goes with jealousy. Manipulation is always present where jealousy resides.
- i. Virtue love does not try to control by provoking jealousy in someone else. That is a fool's paradise to try and do that. No one gains loyalty or trust by making another jealous. You are playing, at times, to another's weakness. You do not want to base your personal relationship upon this.
- j. That is the weapon which is so often used to alleviate the reason for jealousy. Provoking jealousy to alleviate the reason for jealousy.
- k. Manipulation will not get you what you want, because it engenders reaction and mental attitude sins in another person.
- l. Remember, love is reciprocated where virtue love is expressed and in no other way. Jealousy is not capacity. When virtue love is expressed with capacity, you will get the same in return.

12. Jealousy rejects Bible doctrine.

- a. Jealousy is a characteristic of the cosmic system. Acts 13:45 17:5 believers who entertain jealousy operate in the cosmic system. They are in reversionism.
- b. 2Peter 2:19: For by what a man is overcome, by that he is enslaved. The mental attitude sins by which you are overcome and held enslaves you. The opposite is to reject doctrine. Wrong passage.
- c. Those who are jealous are enslaved by jealousy. You cannot escape it. It does not matter how much you possess. You will never get what you want, but you will be enslaved.
- d. When mental attitude sins are your point of reference, you cannot grow with doctrine, you cannot develop a relationship.

13. Jealousy motivates religion. Mark 15:10 Jesus Christ was delivered over to trial and death because of religious jealousy. The pharisees were jealous of the Lord Jesus Christ and opposed to grace. They are jealous of those who followed Him; He cut into their power and prestige. They were jealous and envious. They were anti-grace. This makes them religious.

14. Jealousy of authority is destructive to divine establishment. Many people are jealous of those in a leadership position. When that happens, divine establishment in your soul breaks down.

Jealousy 1Cor. 13:4 March 29, 2009

Sunday 1

“I will make myself like the Most-High” was a manifestation of Satan’s jealousy of God and his personal arrogance. Unrighteousness was found in him, which is jealousy. Jealousy destroys personal relationships between people. What jealousy does is cause distrust and it causes anxiety and frustration and physical exhaustion. There can never be impersonal love under these conditions. Just misery, turmoil and unrest of soul. His desire is to be a manipulative person. He intends to impose his will over others. He wants to be loved in the way he wants to be loved. He disregards the will of the other person. He manipulates and controls and hopes to alleviate his fears and worry that he will not be loved. There is nothing but fear. The jealous person destroys the very love that he wants from that other person. What do you gain from being jealous? You destroy that which you want the most. You destroy that which ought to be freely given by another. Manipulation, force, coercion. A jealousy person is possessive to a fault. Jealousy is tyranny. This is how it works out in relationship to other people. Jealous people never see themselves as part of the problem. The jealous person is a demanding person and exhausting to be around.

Jealousy becomes ingrained into your thought process. Sadly, jealousy destroys all capacity for love. Patience and kindness are two parts of virtue love. The jealous person becomes hypersensitive but insensitive to those around him. There is no virtue love in jealousy. We know if we suffer from jealousy or not; it is a point of self-evaluation. Jealousy is not just an attitude which shatters personal relationships. Establishment means authority. You cannot have divine establishment without authority. Jealousy resents, hates and brings down authority.

Jealousy and Authority

1. When you resent anyone because of their authority, you are arrogant and you will express jealousy to that authority. Jealousy arises when you dislike authority.
2. Jealousy people will conspire against authority to bring them down. Business, military, government. We have either done this or been a recipient of this.
3. Jealousy actually split the nation of Israel Isa. 11:18 Israel was jealous of Judah and Judah responded with mental attitude sins. Once divided, this nation never reunited. Many nations are jealous of the United States and want to see us brought down.

4. Jealousy was so prominent that there was a jealousy rebound offering. Num. 5:12–: "Speak to the people of Israel, If any man's wife goes astray and breaks faith with him, if a man lies with her sexually, and it is hidden from the eyes of her husband, and she is undetected though she has defiled herself, and there is no witness against her, since she was not taken in the act, and if the spirit of jealousy comes over him and he is jealous of his wife who has defiled herself, or if the spirit of jealousy comes over him and he is jealous of his wife, though she has not defiled herself, then the man shall bring his wife to the priest and bring the offering required of her, a tenth of an ephah of barley flour. He shall pour no oil on it and put no frankincense on it, for it is a grain offering of jealousy, a grain offering of remembrance, bringing iniquity to remembrance". This is a principle, and the husband is involved here. The husband knows that something is wrong, even though there is no proof. Up to this point, the husband has done nothing wrong until he begins to foster jealousy. This is why a husband or wife should never attempt to elicit jealousy from the other person. You will never get what you want. This is a great error of a relationship. Relationships cannot be build upon mental attitude sins. They are destroyed by mental attitude sins. This is why the Mosaic Law is so important here. In this section, it actually does not matter whether the woman has committed adultery or not. The offering here is for jealousy. Just one particular offering for this one particular mental attitude sins. It is specific in its procedure. Each Levitical offering has a specific procedure. Each person understood the meaning of them. This offering was a reminder to them of the mental attitude sin in them. You ought not to be concerned with your own situation, or with thinking about someone else, but be occupied with Christ. This is not about adultery; this is a rebound offering for jealousy. Jealousy is worse and more destructive than the act of adultery itself. In marriage, it is destructive. There is no way to work out things when you are jealous. There is no such thing as a righteous jealousy. You may wonder about your other half and thinking that they are out running around doing something else which is wrong.

Prov. 14:30–31: A tranquil heart gives life to the flesh, but envy makes the bones rot. Whoever oppresses a poor man insults his Maker, but he who is generous to the needy honors him. This is a comparison of soul and body. The emotion sin of jealousy is rotten to the bones. The tranquil or peaceful soul. Examine Job 5:2. The wear and tear of jealousy on your soul will cause a loss of health. It rots the bones, which represents the deterioration of the body. It is called psycho-somatic. You wonder why your health is falling apart? It can be caused by your mental attitude. Prov. 27:4–5: Wrath is cruel, anger is overwhelming, but who can stand before jealousy? Better is open rebuke than hidden love. Your wrath from jealousy can even get violent. Jealousy can even include anger and revenge motivation.

3 Final Points

1. Jealousy erodes any possibility of love or reciprocation of love.

2. Jealousy has incredible strength for evil. It is the strongest of mental attitude sins which beat a person down. You wonder why someone is beating you down? They are jealous.
3. No one can stand against jealousy. Prov. 27:4 so they must escape the jealous person's presence.

Lesson #871

Jealousy 1Cor. 13:4 March 29, 2009

Sunday 2

Jealousy is destructive. To live with it brings further mental attitude sins, anger, vituperation; jealousy can lead all the way to violence. There is nothing to recommend jealousy in your soul.

Mark 15:10–11:: For he [Pontius Pilate] perceived that it was out of envy that the chief priests had delivered him up. But the chief priests stirred up the crowd to have him release for them Barabbas instead. The chief priests ran the religious aspects of the Jewish life. They delivered up Jesus Christ because of envy. They demanded that our Lord be removed from the face of the earth. As they watched Him during the 4 years of His ministry, from the very moment that He began to teach. He was the Messiah and His Name needed to spread because there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved. They envied Jesus, His followers. The pharisees walked by and people would move away from them or go inside; legalism drives people away. Jealousy motivates legalism. Jesus Christ attracted people to Him because of Who He was, because of His message. They were jealous. Their jealousy ate away at them. They constantly refuted His message; they would try to drown Him out; they would interrupt His speaking. They would try to stop Him from speaking, from getting the Word out. Here they were, face to face with their own Messiah, and it totally blinded them to their own Messiah. If jealousy and envy could blind these religious leaders, then how do you think it affects you? Now is the time to consider what is in your soul and how destructive it is.

The church, as it grew, was opposed always. Acts 13:45: But when the Jews saw the crowds, they were filled with jealousy and began to contradict what was spoken by Paul, reviling him. This is not every Jew; this is a set of jealousy religious Jews. These are not all Jews, but these are Jews in a position of religious authority. They hated authority unless it was their own. They hated Jesus Christ. Mental attitude sins are the mark of jealousy. Berachah Church stands for exactly what Paul taught.

Bobby chatted with a guy who teaches doctrine 3x a week and there is no recidivism in his group. They get out and they stay out. There are other pastors there who are jealous of him.

They were not content to disagree with Paul; they wanted to kill him. Bobby has had a front-row seat to seeing his father attacked again and again. God protect Bob despite some of the worst attacks that you can imagine.

Those who do not teach doctrine and when they look at someone who does, they look to discredit the doctrine and the teacher. It is amazing how ministers in the same doctrinal camp try to destroy the ministry of someone else teaching the truth. Jealousy is powerful. It will take over the soul and destroy truth.

Bobby saw this again in seminary, and there were many there who focused on personality or someone would be jealous that someone else listened to a tape.

1Cor. 3:3: ...for you are still of the flesh. For while there is jealousy and strife among you, are you not of the flesh and behaving only in a human way? We will continue to see this jealousy in the Corinthian church. Paul decided that this was the worst of the worst. Instead of virtue love in their souls, there was carnality. Walking like mere men, this is Reversionism. Some people think you are not saved if you do not exhibit certain traits and activities. Here, walking like men refers to reversionism; they look like unbelievers. How often is the jealousy and power struggles, like a divided church. In the past, there were deacons early in Bob's career who were in constant strife with him. There were men who were jealous of his teaching. It is insidious. Bob would be proud of the board with whom Bobby works. They work in perfect harmony with Bible doctrine and with him. No power struggles in Berachah Church. However, you can go to the mega-church and there are struggles to control this or that; the money, etc. They are jealous of their own little world, of their own domain. That is a church in trouble.

2Cor. 12:20: For I fear that perhaps when I come I may find you not as I wish, and that you may find me not as you wish--that perhaps there may be quarreling, jealousy, anger, hostility, slander, gossip, conceit, and disorder. There will be some who, when Paul arrives, will be jealous of him; they will quarrel; there will be anger. Without virtue love, the Corinthians were a church in trouble.

1Tim. 6:3–6: If anyone teaches a different doctrine [anything in opposition to Bible doctrine] and does not agree with the sound words of our Lord Jesus Christ and the teaching that accords with godliness, he is puffed up with conceit and understands nothing. He has an unhealthy craving for controversy and for quarrels about words [verbal conflicts], which produce envy, dissension, slander, evil suspicions, and constant friction among people who are depraved in mind and deprived of the truth, imagining that godliness is a means of gain.

James 3:14–16: But if you have bitter jealousy and selfish ambition in your hearts, do not boast and be false to the truth [when you are arrogant, you lie against the truth; jealousy overrides the truth]. This is not the wisdom that comes down from above, but is earthly, unspiritual, demonic. For where jealousy and selfish ambition exist, there will be disorder and every vile practice. Jealousy and evil ambition go hand-in-hand with every evil ambition. Jealousy removes us from the plan of God. It puts our own selfish ambitions to the forefront. Now, we can have some goals which we set; the difference is between glorifying yourself and glorifying God. We are in the world but we are not of the world. It is not about us, it is about Jesus Christ; our service to Him, our glorification of Him. This is us. The Bible talks about us. Someone yawns and Bobby goes off because of it.

When you see someone involved in jealousy, they are involved in every evil thing. It corrupts relationships and the Christian life. Virtue love is designed to protect these things.

Gal. 5:25–26: If we live by the Spirit, let us also walk by the Spirit. Let us not become conceited [arrogant], provoking one another, envying one another. Arrogance and jealousy go hand-in-hand. This is a warning that we have justified and intensified sin and wrong doing when we are out of fellowship and building conceit in our souls. We justify all kinds of sins and evil in our lives. Jealous and virtue love are mutually exclusive.

Lesson #872

Jealousy 1Cor. 13: April 1, 2009

Wednesday

Bob is 91 today.

Jealousy and envy are the most insidious of the mental attitude sins. Virtue love does not contain mental attitude sins in it. On Sunday, we examined several verses dealing with jealousy. You cannot coerce someone's love. God has designed a plan exactly for us, and that plan is all that is needed for a great life.

Jealousy Review

1. Rebound offering for jealousy, just for this one sin. It is one of the great destroyers of the husband and wife relationship. Num. 5:12–15 the rebound offering was not for adultery, but for jealousy.
2. Jealousy imagines unfaithfulness everywhere. It is a perpetual loss of faithfulness. Jealousy is always the loss of trust, otherwise, you would not be jealous.
3. Jealousy is a long-term problem which erodes love. Jealousy will get you exactly the opposite of what you want.
4. Because of this, there was a special rebound offering for jealousy in the rebound offering. We do not have sacrifices, but this keeps jealousy from corrupting our relationships.
5. Prov. 14:30: A tranquil heart gives life to the flesh, but envy makes the bones rot. This is an antithetical parallel. Emotional sins is what is in view in the second half.
  - a. If you want to live in tranquility with a relaxed mental attitude and a healthy mind and body, stay away from jealousy. The whole process of building virtue love, the very fact the virtue love is present, means that jealousy is not. Jealousy is the exact opposite of a relaxed mental attitude.
  - b. Jealousy can cause mental and physical deterioration.
6. Prov. 27:4: Wrath is fierce and anger is a flood, but who can stand before jealousy. You can handle anger and wrath.
  - a. Incidents of anger; flashes of anger and wrath, will gradually stop, but not jealousy.
  - b. Anger can be connected to jealousy, but the consequences of jealousy is a much wider ranging sin.
  - c. Jealousy has tentacles which reach into every dark corner of the sin nature. If the tentacles go throughout your entire life, they destroy your relationship.

- d. Jealousy is insidious; once it takes hold, it continues to grow.
7. Mark 15:10: For he [Pontius Pilate] perceived that it was out of envy that the chief priests had delivered Him up. Bobby's concern is the teach the Bible, as it is the absolute truth; however, it is not his concern whether we think this or not. This is the only thing in life which is absolute. Jesus was delivered up merely out of envy.
- Envy was the motivation for the Jews demanding the trial and crucifixion of Jesus Christ. They envied the God of the Universe.
  - They envied His following; they did not like all these people following Jesus; they envied his notoriety. How did he do it? They envied His miracles. They could not explain away His miracles. Many of these men actually observed these miracles. There are a lot of fake healing services today; but if you had known someone all your life and they were crippled for all of their lives, and Jesus touched them, and they were healed. This happened over and over again, and they still rejected Him. Jesus fulfilled every aspect of the Old Testament on the Messiah. They still rejected Him.
  - They were jealous because Jesus diminished their power and frustrated their ambitions. They used religion for power, to further their own ambition, and for recognition. They had talked about the Messiah all of their lives, and they saw Him, and could not allow for it.
  - Envy and jealousy perpetrated the greatest injustice in all time. We do the same thing figuratively by crucifying people in jealousy. We despise them, we envy them, we gossip about them and malign them.
8. Acts 13:45: But when the Jews saw the crowds, they were filled with jealousy and began to contradict what was spoken by Paul, reviling him. They hated Paul like the Lord Jesus Christ.
- Religion is always jealous of teachers of the truth. They were there religious leaders of their day. Religion is man by man's efforts trying to please God. There is not one of us who can please God. There is none righteous, not even one. Religion rejects the gospel; religion determines that I can be good enough to impress God. There is no way that we are good enough.
  - Religion reacts in jealousy and tries to destroy the truth of Bible doctrine. The greatest Bible teacher who ever lived; and these people are filled with jealousy and begin to curse Paul for his teaching. Concern about the size of a congregation or the notoriety of a person. None of these things are important. It is all about teaching the truth.
9. 1Cor. 3:3: For you are still fleshly
- Jealousy is the fast track to reversionism.
  - Jealous Christians fall into the pattern of the modus operandi of secular unbelievers. There is no Christian function in you.
10. 2Cor. 12:20: For I fear that perhaps when I come I may find you not as I wish, and that you may find me not as you wish--that perhaps there may be quarreling, jealousy, anger, hostility, slander, gossip, conceit, and disorder. Paul is coming with doctrine in his soul, and the Corinthians may not be ready for this.
- Every sin in the book is connected with jealousy.

- b. Jealousy is connected with every other mental attitude sin that there is. And sins of the tongue as well and some overt sins too.

11. 1Tim. 6:3–4: if anyone teaches another doctrine and does not comport with sound doctrine, then he is arrogant and he understands nothing.

- a. Jealousy is connected with strife, abusive language, and evil suspicions. \
- b. These are all killers of personal relationships.
- c. Jealousy is directly caused by arrogance and the rejection of doctrine. You are a Christian because you believe in Jesus Christ, but you are not living the life.
- d. You live in controversy and gloomy obsessions; morbid obsessions.

12. James 3: But if you have bitter jealousy and selfish ambition in your hearts, do not boast and be false to the truth [when you are arrogant, you lie against the truth; jealousy overrides the truth]. This is not the wisdom that comes down from above, but is earthly, unspiritual, demonic. For where jealousy and selfish ambition exist, there will be disorder and every vile practice.

- a. Jealousy and selfish ambition go hand-in-hand.
- b. Anyone involved in jealousy and self-centeredness is not just involved in sin but in evil as well. Jealousy was Satan's original sin combined with arrogance. He could never reach God's power.

13. Gal. 5:25–26: If we live by the Spirit, then let us advance by the Spirit. When you begin to know God, you love Him. Let us not become arrogant challenging each other, being jealousy of each other.

- a. You cannot be filled with the Spirit and advancing while provoking others to jealousy. If you are in one, you are out of the other. Absolute state. No gray area in the filling of the Holy Spirit.
- b. Jealousy and virtue love are mutually exclusive.

14. James 4:2–5: You desire and do not have, so you murder. You covet and cannot obtain, so you fight and quarrel. You do not have, because you do not ask. You ask and do not receive, because you ask wrongly, to spend it on your passions. You adulterous people! Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Therefore whoever wishes to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God. Or do you suppose it is to no purpose that the Scripture says, "He yearns jealously over the spirit that he has made to dwell in us"? When you fail to reach that goal, you have jealousy and hatred for those who have. You cannot advance when you are jealous of another's possessions. You can never get what you want. You will never be satisfied. You lust and you do not have. You fight and quarrel; the miserable result of envy and jealousy. Manipulation is a huge by-product of envy and jealousy. When manipulation does not work, it brings frustration. When in jealousy and envy, your prayers go nowhere. Do you think that Scripture speaks to no purpose? Does the Bible speak in vain against jealousy? Human jealousy is sinful; the second is the anthropathism of God's jealousy. God's jealousy to His command. God demands from us our attention; our concentration on Him. It is a privilege, it is not a burden. Occupation with Christ first and everything else falls into place. Capacity for love is what makes relationships great. For us, this non-sinful jealousy is a concentrated attention to live by means of...

15. What do we learn about jealousy?
  - a. Jealousy and the resulting vindictiveness, bitterness, eliminate sharing the happiness of God. You cannot live in jealousy and be happy.
  - b. Jealousy is preoccupation with the object of your jealousy. Occupation with a person is okay, but not when it is with jealousy.
  - c. You cannot be jealousy preoccupied with another person and occupation with Christ.
  - d. Jealousy destroys reciprocal love for God. This is our motivation to continue to inculcate doctrine and advance in the spiritual life. Virtue love is not jealousy.

Lesson #873

1Cor. 13: April 2, 2009

Thursday

Jealousy is easily seen as an appalling sin. Tranquility in the soul is eliminated and a relaxed mental attitude in our life as well. Our life will not attain its potential without a relaxed mental attitude. Jealousy is a great roadblock to a relaxed mental attitude. With jealousy, we are unable to be occupation with Christ. Jealousy destroys reciprocal love. There is nothing good about jealousy; wherever it is found and however it occurs.

One more appalling fact to look at. Philip. 1:15: Some indeed preach Christ from envy and rivalry, but others from good will. Some are preaching Christ from envy and strife. How can you proclaim Christ from this attitude. Some also do this from good will, the right motivation for teaching. Witnessing and teaching doctrine with a competitive motivation. This is dueling teachers out of jealousy and out of envy. Like a pastor who is tell you how he has a larger congregation and more people want to hear him. What does it matter whether it is 10 or 20 or 10,000. Jealousy and envy is a waste of time. The one who does that in fellowship, for the right motivation, produces divine good. The one who does this out of jealousy and envy produces no divine good. This is inordinate competition. Athletic competition is fine; it is the inordinate type which is problematic. There is no place for any competition when it comes to spiritual greatness. A golfer is often competing against his own score. In the spiritual life, it is just about us moving ahead and breaking our own score. That is our obligation. We are not competing with anyone to witness. You are not king of Berachah Church if you have more notes in your notebook than anyone else.

The proper motivation for teaching and witnessing is always virtue love. You simply desire to see a person believe in Jesus Christ or grow spiritually. There is a lot of satisfaction for Bobby to teach the Word of God. Similar satisfaction to proclaim Jesus Christ and for a person to believe.

Jealousy is a source of false motivation. Although it seems obvious, a lot of people don't get it. In virtue love, we serve the Lord as a team. There is no competitiveness on the same team. We have the same objective no matter what position we play. Therefore, there is no competition. We conclude jealousy with one of the worst types of jealousy.

The second negative characteristic in v. 4: the negative particle and perpantuomai, and this is a hopoxlegomena, found in the New Testament only once. Paul was a scholar and he probably knew Aramaic, Greek and Hebrew, as a pharisee scholar. This was the perfect word here. Virtue love does not boast; virtue love does not brag. Origen applied this word to intellectual vanity. This is exactly where Origen came up with this intellectual vanity. Γνώσις puffs up; it builds no edification complex. Γνώσις cannot be applied as virtue love. This is often knowledge which brags; knowledge which puffs up. Intellectual snobbery.

Bobby knew a few famous seminary types where γνώσις puffed up; however he sees more of it in the pulpit. The puffer is the erudite person; the savant; the intellectual who speaks in a highbrow tone. He is the intellectual snob. He makes a grand display of his own intellectual prowess. However, it is only γνώσις. This today would be applied to the elite academic; teaching to impress others. These boasters cannot wait to express their excellence, their distinction; their mastery of any subject, which can include theology. The example of the pharisees; they boasted of their superior knowledge of the Mosaic Law. They loved to inspect others who were beneath them to see how well they were doing with keeping the law. They used that knowledge in the wrong way. This would be known as religious boasting for approbation and power. It is a series of leaders in the church; churchmen who have used their knowledge and education to gain approbation and power. You can see this in the study of the popes, who were more political than religious. They were after power and prestige.

The Γνώσις braggart also thinks he knows best for everyone. He not only uses for his own power, but he brags and boasts and he knows what is best for everyone else. He desires to impose his authority over his inferiors, as he sees them. A perfect example is our government today. There are a lot of people in our government today who think they are superior, who think that they have superior knowledge, and know what is best for all of us. They justify removing freedoms in the name of the common good. They are unfair to some in order to be fair to others. They need to level the field, but they need to be unfair to those with too much money. The sad part, the genius types never accomplish much outside of academia. They may have never even run a lemonade stand, but they think that they can tell everyone else how to do everything else. They can justify the removal of your liberty and freedom in order to do this.

This is not limited to the religious autocrat or the government bureaucrat, but it exists in all people, whether they are ignorant or brilliant, obscure or famous. All people have extravagant boasting in their sins. Whatever abilities or accomplishments they have in life, they have to boast about it. However, you need to let your actions speak for you. What you do tells us what you know.

The boaster without accomplishments is a fool. Anyone can find something to crow about. An inflated ego is the way the people acquire their human self-esteem. They must talk themselves into having human self-esteem. The human viewpoint arena, such self esteem is lauded by psychiatrists, and this is total human viewpoint. The believer who has acquired virtue love does not exalt himself. Virtue love does not play the braggart, so what does it do?

What Does Virtue love do?

1. It does not draw attention to himself for the purpose of approbation or advancement.
2. The believer with virtue love knows where the source of his self-esteem or power lies. It is spiritual self-esteem in the soul of the advancing believer. It is easy to have spiritual self esteem. All you have to do is advance. Just transfer the Γνώσις that you hear to ἐπίγνωσις.
3. Your self-esteem comes from Jesus Christ. You can seem to do nothing or have the world by the tail; but your self-worth is being united with Christ. How can anyone who accomplishes little in life have a sense of self-worth? That is where most people get their self-worth from. What have I done?
4. Even the person who accomplishes little recognizes his incomparable destiny in union with Christ. Spiritual advance and accomplishing God's plan gives self-worth. That is spiritual self esteem. When you recognize your place in life, that is self-worth, and it does not come from having to brag.
5. Spiritual life produces spiritual self esteem. It produces a character filled with virtue and virtue love. Not a blowhard. You never have to say a word about yourself. Your self-worth is intimately tied to the plan of God. You develop reciprocal love, impersonal love to all mankind; producing divine good. That is accomplishing the plan of God. You know your worth is eternal. Your worth will last forever. Any accomplishment who does human good passes with the person.
6. Virtue love in the soul precludes boasting about self. The two do not go together.
7. What can you boast about? The boasting of the mature believer is always about Christ, His grace and His love. 2Cor. 10:17: "Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord." For it is not the one who commends himself who is approved, but the one whom the Lord commends. The only legitimate boast is about your salvation, your eternal life, and that is all about grace.
8. Bragging on the Lord is a manifestation of reciprocal love. Sometimes, it is because you are bragging because of some trophy you have? You don't brag on another person in that way. You have reciprocal love for Him. That is the purest of all motives. You cannot wait to talk about Him.
9. When we know the Lord through doctrine, we have reciprocal love. When that love is paramount in our souls, we boast of Him, not of ourselves.
10. We are completely and totally impressed with Him and we are not impressed with ourselves. We have gone from self-centered to theo-centered.
11. In virtue love, we come to understand our own insignificance. If you understand how insignificant you are, then there is no reason to brag. Above all, infinitely above us. What brag is there in us when we know Him and His preeminence.
12. With virtue love, we do not inflict our insignificance on others. You do not inflict your insignificance upon others.
13. The absence of bragging and boasting occurs when virtue love takes precedent. That's why it says, virtue love does not brag. Jer. 9:23–24: Thus says the LORD: "Let not the wise man boast in his wisdom, let not the mighty man boast in his might, let not the rich man boast in his riches, but let him who boasts boast in this, that he understands and knows me, that I am the LORD who practices steadfast love, justice, and righteousness in the earth. For in these things I delight, declares the LORD." Γνώσις puffs up and brags; even wisdom from doctrine can even cause one to boast. Let not a wise man boast of his wisdom; let not a rich man boast of his riches. There is no reason to boast of one's riches or accomplishments. This is what you boast about: "I am the Lord Who exercises unfailing love, justice and righteousness in the earth." Everything which God does with man is related to these 3 attributes. Without it, we are doomed. With it, we have everything. "I delight in these things!" Is God arrogant? Why would He delight in this? When you boast in God, you are glorifying Him and boasting in Him of His love for us. God is always just, He is always righteousness. Even when we feel as though we have been unjustly treated, we can depend upon the supreme court of heaven. Everything which God gives us by way of blessing or suffering is for our benefit. He looks after us.

Virtue love is not boasting.

This leads to the 3rd characteristic; virtue love is not arrogant; it is humble. Humility is one of the great qualities of a believer, which is nothing more than grace orientation. We are humbled by the very thought of Who He is and how He treats us.

1Cor. 13:4 Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant

Lesson #874 Humility and Arrogance 1Cor. 13:4 April 5, 2009 Sunday 1

This is all about the characteristics of virtue love, which is what we are to develop. It endures, even under pressure. It is easy to be patient, even when there is no reason to be patient. Virtue love is also not jealous; jealousy is that terrible mental attitude sins which destroys capacity and personal virtue love. Jealousy also negates all impersonal love toward all mankind. It ruins capacity for love for any relationship. It brings only misery, turmoil and unrest. What could be further from the qualities and character of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Virtue love does not play the braggart. To inflate one's ego through bragging is not a part of virtue love. It is not necessary for us to boast. Virtue love builds something much greater than self-esteem; it builds spiritual self esteem. This means that we possess a unique spiritual life and it is secure in the benevolence of God. We have an incomparable destiny, and this is linked to Jesus Christ. This is where we gain our self-esteem. Our common desire, which is a normal desire. You look forward to eternal reward from the production of divine good. We do boast from time to time. He who boasts, let him boast in the Lord. If you have to talk in glowing terms about someone, make it about the Lord. Bragging on the Lord is a manifestation of your reciprocal love for Him. Virtue love is an attitude of grace orientation and an attitude of humility.

This leads into the final characteristic of v. 4. Virtue love is not arrogant, which means that it exhibits humility in all things. Present middle indicative. Φυσιω+ ου and this is a hopologomena, which occurs only here. Paul selected this word just for here. Virtue love does not inflate itself with pride. Virtue love is not conceited. There is no narcissism with virtue love.

Do not deflate my ego, is a sign the arrogant person needs. Virtue love means we can look at ourselves from the standpoint of reality. Rom. 12:1–3: I appeal to you therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual worship. Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, that by testing you may discern what is the will of God, what is good and acceptable and perfect. For by the grace given [salvation and the doctrine revealed to Paul] to me I say to everyone among you not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think [genuine humility], but to think with sober [sound] judgment, each according to the measure of faith that God has assigned. The mind of Christ by which we live by which virtue love is based. The mind of Christ is the way that Jesus Christ thought and it was expressed in virtue love. That virtue love is manifested in the qualities which we see in front of us. From a renovated mind, we express virtue love. Whether an impersonal relationship, whether to the obnoxious, worthless person or to a personal relationship. Humility is reality when you look at yourself. You look at yourself and you see yourself as you are. Sometimes, you can see yourself as others do. We see our good qualities, but too often we do not see our negative qualities. Many people cannot admit to their own shortcomings. It is too depressing. In genuine humility, you can see the good and the bad and you are able to deal with it.

Humility is a quality which we are mandated to have, and we develop it as we develop virtue love.

Humility

1. We are, above all else, teachable; able to develop the mind of Christ. Many people can be told nothing. They are so sensitive, if anyone criticizes them at all, they react in a number of ways.
2. You cannot ignore Scripture. You are arrogant if you decide what you are going to believe and what you are not going to believe. You cannot determine what is relevant to you. Your thinking adapts to His procedures and not to your own ego. When you are genuinely humble in virtue love, you adapt to His grace procedures and not to your own.
3. Only the ability and the power of God can meet your needs totally. That is arrogance.
4. You cannot accomplish God's plan for your life in your own strength. He is greater than you. Some people think they are doing all of these wonderful deeds for God and there is no humility in that. When you think you are impressive to God, then you are thinking of yourself more highly than you ought to think.
5. Only God can provide permanent answers and solutions to problems. You are aware of your limitations but you are not discouraged by them. The world tells you, you have no limitations, but you can see the flaw in that. God's strength is the only strength which matters.

6. Arrogance centers on self-love rather than on the true object of your life, which is reciprocal love. Self-love means that you can have esteem for yourself in the proper context; but narcissism puts yourself above everything else, including God.
7. God constantly treats us in love and benevolence, although we deserve none of it. There is not one time, not one moment, when God is not treating us in grace or in benevolence; even in suffering.
8. As you come to appreciate His love when you advance to spiritual maturity, that is a humbling revelation.
9. God not only chooses to deal with us, but to provide us with grace riches beyond anything that we can imagine. Security is what people seek the most in life, whether a relationship or with finances, etc. Do you know what shifting ground you are on when you place your trust in people or money. That is no security. Your security is dependent upon one thing—Jesus Christ. He deems to have something to do with us and provides grace riches beyond anything we could ask or think.
10. We respond to His grace; we recognize His grace toward us. You realistically see yourself and your own insignificance; and the flaws you see are not that bad. Your security does not depend upon your own ability and power. You don't realize that you are not the center of the universe. Your confidence is placed in the Lord Jesus Christ.
11. You learn to treat others with the same tolerance and benevolence that God's grace supplies to us. We do not think more highly of ourselves than we do God's grace. When you are arrogant, you expect to be treated in a certain way. Then you have a problem and the person not treating you in the way you want to be treated, has even a bigger problem. What does a man do in marriage? He is a leader; he puts his wife before himself. Humility of soul. Personal virtue love for that person. Humility has a bearing on every relationship in life.
12. Humility is the grace orientated attitude of virtue love. Grace orientation and humility are part and parcel. There is no virtue love without grace orientation. There is no virtue love in arrogance. It is impossible to love anyone personally or impersonally without grace orientation and humility. Grace orientation builds up the capacity for love for individuals.

If your self love is greater than your capacity for personal love, then you are arrogant and your relationships will not work. Without humility, you become judgmental of everyone. You are always in comparison and always in competition. Bobby has to deal with this himself. With humility, you are able to do this; you are able to deal with your flaws and failures. Until you are able to do this, it does not change. You can only manage this with Bible doctrine. Jesus Christ went to the cross for us, and that is true humility. We can have humility and we can realize who we are in this life. We have the ability to see who we are; and with doctrine, it gets better.

Both arrogance and humility are found in your thinking. Grace orientation builds capacity for love. God's love provides salvation for us, despite our failures. Humility in our souls and grace toward all.

1Cor. 13:4 Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant

Lesson #875 Humility and Arrogance 1Cor. 13:4–5 April 5, 2009 Sunday 2

People too often think of humility as being something that we say or do. How many times are we fooled by people who act humble, but are not. Do not think higher of yourself than you ought to think. Renovate your thinking. There is this whole mechanic of building virtue love.

Bobby will not let up on this until we get everything that Bobby got with humility.

Rom. 13:1–7 has a close relationship to virtue love. It relates to this characteristic; humility in particular.

Genuine Humility

1. When you are not conceited or inflated with pride, you can subordinate yourself to authority. You need some genuine humility. If you have no humility, authority can pound you until you gain a little humility. That is enforced humility. You learn how to salute, how to say yes, sir and no, sir; and you may not like it, but you do it. Like basic training, where they renovate your thinking. Those who cannot be renovated get article 15 or they get busted out.
2. With humility, you fulfill divine establishment principles. That which you owe to your nation and what unbelievers owe to their nation.
3. The result is, you are not hostile, insubordinate or humiliated because someone has authority over you. Have you ever been humiliated because someone you view as inferior to you has authority over you? How do you deal with it? You can gossip and malign or you can express genuine humility. You are not hostile or humiliated; you have developed genuine humility by renovating your thinking through doctrine. This is how you are able to properly relate to everyone else. You will continue to have problems in life without humility. All authority is delegated from God. The anarchists are wrong. Anarchists want to do away with all authority. At the turn of the century, anarchists began to kill various officials, and they killed President McKinley. Until you recognize where authority comes from (God), you will be bucking authority all your life.
4. In humility, you do not react with an anti-authority attitude. That is arrogance and virtue love is not arrogance.
5. Someone other than you has control over your life. They do by divine design. God designed authority, no matter who carries it. It is the principle, not the person in authority. Without humility, you will continue to attack authority, thinking that it is anti-freedom. Freedom without authority is anarchy. That is what Satan wants. He then can step into the vacuum.
6. Just as you submit to the plan of God, so you submit to divinely delegated human authority. That is from the motivation of virtue love. For the believer, this is not just an acceptable set of circumstances, but mandated and better. Perhaps some of you think that no one has authority over you? Why do you think that the Apostle

Paul calls himself a slave? Authority and freedom go together. Genuine humility combines these in your soul. You cannot be authority-orientated without true humility. That is where doctrine and divine establishment meet. You recognize an authority which is greater than your own. One leads to another. That is freedom. You have a responsibility to the governing authorities. Authority-orientation is a demonstration of the humility of virtue love in the realm of divine establishment. This is the authority-orientation to service of the Lord. Rom. 13:4 connects virtue love and authority-orientation. Impersonal love is the key to submitting to authority, even if this is an authority that you do not respect or an authority which is opposite to your doctrinal viewpoint. It is difficult to submit to someone whose thinking is entirely anathema to you. Have you ever been taught by a teacher who presents material which is totally foreign to Bible doctrine. It is a great test of enforce humility. You do not have to believe what they say, but you must respect the authority of the instructor in the classroom. Can you imagine Jesus Christ submitting Himself to these ridiculous trials? This is the God-man, Who could have walked away from this without incident, had He chosen to do that. He submitted to their authority under the precept of genuine humility. Lack of authority-orientation is continuous conflict. Genuine humility is ability to handle that which would be conflict. Virtue in personal love.

1Cor. 13:4 Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant

When you read this, you ought to be thinking, no one can have these qualities. We have the operational spiritual life, which allows us to develop these qualities.

Some of these words are a bit vague.

Present active indicative of ἀσχημονεω + οὐκ, which means to behave dishonorably, to be a disgrace; to be indecent; to exhibit conduct unbecoming. With the negative οὐκ, this means the opposite. This means to behave honorably, to not be a disgrace, to be decent, to exhibit proper behavior; to act with tact, honor and without rudeness.

Some of you must have seen the nicest person in the world and they get drunk and they are rude, loud, obnoxious, aggressive, coarse, unmannerly. This is their sin nature operating in full capacity with no breaks. This is operating the opposite of what they should be. Without virtue, the believer becomes a bore and a slob in life. They walk like a mere man; they walk in reversionism; they behave no differently than a believer. How many of you have friends who say, that's a Christian? If a person looks at you and says, they are no different than I am or I don't want to end up acting like that. The application of virtue love exhibits honor in all aspects of life. The finest gentleman or lady is the one with virtue love. Bobby once read an historian from the Middle Ages speaking about the church: "There appeared in Judea that knightly gentleman, Jesus Christ." At first this seemed too secular for Bobby. It struck him as a vast understated character and it seemed to relate to the chivalry of that time. However, this coincides perfectly with the concept of acting honorably.

Is being a gentleman something for that who is wealthy and well-educated? Or can a gentleman be poor and without advantages in life? Or is it someone who is weak and cannot stand up for himself. But these are misconceptions.

Bobby will describe a gentlemen:

1. Being a gentleman has nothing to do with status, rich or poor.
2. Nor does this refer to a person with impeccable manners.
3. Being a gentleman is a way of thinking. If you act and do not think, it is not real; it is a facade. It is an attitude, a learned attitude from training.
4. No one is born a gentleman. They learn it. There have been real pigs who have been royalty.
5. A gentleman learns the mental attitude of a paledon. One who consistently presents himself as gallant. Anything less is unsatisfactory to us.
6. The gentleman has instilled in his soul a sense of what should be done and what should be avoided. It is a set of standards. It is a correct set of standards.
7. A gentleman lives by a fixed code of conduct.
8. Certainly manners are a part of this standard, but manners are external. The gentleman retains these manners regardless of the circumstances. It is harder to do when faced with someone you do not like and you are expected to remain a gentleman toward him.
9. He does not show malice or anger or insult. When you are insulted, the natural reaction is to get angry. A gentleman does not retaliate. That is impersonal virtue love. The knightly gentleman. Impersonal virtue love to perfection. That is not weakness; that is strength. Strength of character and strength of soul. We think of the person who is insulted and does nothing as someone who cannot defend himself or someone who is weak. Impersonal love does not retaliate. You need to change your thinking about this. Many of us get insulted and we want to retaliate by punching the person out; that is not strength, that is weakness. It is the knightly gentleman who took everything which the Romans and religious Jews threw at Him, and remained humble. He was the strongest person who ever lived. That took great impersonal love.
10. Gentleman means respect for the souls and volition of others. He had great respect for the souls of others. Do not confusse gentle and weakness. A gentleman allows for the freedom of others. That is an attitude of humility coupled with nobility of character. Bobby thinks of those in Iraq and Afghanistan. They are subordinating their wills for our safety. Our Lord Jesus Christ was willing to subordinate His own freedom for our benefit.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful;

Lesson #876

1Cor. 13: April 8, 2009

Wednesday

does not act unbecomingly is so vague that it could mean almost anything. Present active indicative of ἀσχηνομεω + ουχ = to not be a disgrace, to not be dishonorable. Or, it means to behave honorably, to behave decently. Virtue love is always honorable. Honor is a concept intimately connected to virtue. People tend to view honor in relation to themselves. They see it as honor as being bestowed upon them. Glory, fame, renown is placed upon them, regardless of what is actually in their soul. It is an arrogant way of seeing something. It is all about what comes to them. This is not the honor of our passage. Honor and virtue go together. This describes what is inside of a person; which is mainly his thinking and his standards. It is not something that we receive, but something which is within us. Honor does not require recognition by others. It is internal; it is a part of the makeup of your soul.

3 Things Must be There

1. You must have a clear sense of right and wrong in the soul.
2. This is an adherence to principles considered to be correct based upon the norms and standards of a person's thinking. In the case of a believer, we are talking about renovated thinking.
3. And when you think that way, it translates to a strict adherence to duty and its performance. Honor translates to honorable actions.

It has been a long tradition in this church to give great examples of honor and duty, and that is the person who has received the medal of honor. Bobby is going to read one. The medal of honor is bestowed upon a soldier who has shown extreme valor above and beyond the call of duty. Joe Jackson, a Georgian farm boy. He did this voluntarily and no one would have faulted him for not landing. It appeared to be a suicide mission. Doing one's duty in the military does not include suicide. He did not have to, but his own personal standards required him to do this. He refused to let these men die in that situation.

There have been several, even from this church, who have been honored. To millions of other Americans, they are the bravest of the brave. They are America's form of knighthood. Bobby referred to Jesus as the knightly gentleman. These attributes which we are studying are the very qualities which Jesus showed to perfection. These are the qualities of his thinking. In all things during our Lord's lifetime, He acted honorably with impeccable virtue.

Those 3 men who were rescued by Jackson found him to be their savior; an example of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who did the same thing on our behalf. Our Lord's path was swept by enemy fire; from the pharisees to the hostile Roman soldiers to those who reject Him as Savior. He is our pattern. His qualities and actions and thinking. Our honor as believers comes from the mind and thinking of the Lord Jesus Christ. As He is, so also are we in this world. What is inside of us is determining our actions. Anyone can act honorably for a short period of time. But our continuing actions become dishonorable if that is in our soul.

Being a gentleman is an attitude, and it is a learned attitude from training. We are not born gentlemen. Being born an aristocrat or to a rich family does not make a person a gentleman; it is a matter of training. We must be trained to think in a certain way. We are being trained to think in a certain way. One way or another, you need the training in order to be a knightly gentleman. We learn what is to be done and what is to be avoided. A gentleman learns gallantry in action. Good manners are a part of the standard, and they are not the only part. A gentleman retains poise in all situations. He does not show malice or anger toward insult. That is the code of the knightly gentleman. Jesus never reacted in anger, although He received all kinds of disrespect and insult. A gentleman does not retaliate for offenses suffered. Respect for volition. A gentleman recognizes that other people have freedom and he allows for it.

The Gentleman Who has Respect for the Volition and Souls of Other

1. He recognizes that other people have freedom and he allows for it. Some of us don't like this when it crosses our interests.
2. He is willing to subordinate his own freedom for the freedom of others. This is a book of honor. Those who are willing to subordinate their freedom for the freedom of others. That is what the armed forces do.
3. The gentleman exhibits an attitude of humility coupled with a great nobility of character.
4. A gentleman respects womanhood wherever he finds it.
5. He does not try to control or manipulate the woman. That is honorable. A woman should reverse that.
6. A gentleman recognizes that a woman has free will; a lot of men do not.
7. A gentleman respects her free will and honors her free will and encourages her free will and strengthens that free will. He does not try to break it down or put her down; but he also must retain leadership. Even if she is not worthy of respect, he gives her respect. A woman is a responder and this brings out her best qualities. It is sometimes harder to treat those you know with honor as opposed to those you do not know.

One description given of a great gentleman about Lee's Lieutenants, but this is about Lee. A gentleman can forgive and forget an error, rather than bring it up again. He has mildness of character and strength to put this behind him. Robert E. Lee has tremendous humility. Anyone can be a gentleman or a lady, regardless of background or status based upon his character and treatment of others. The gentleman has a conscience which adheres to a well-defined code of honor.

For the believer, the gentleman is led by the honor code. There are many honor codes by which people live, but this is the greatest. Our nobility and honor comes from the virtue love defined by the honor code. Regardless of where we come from, doctrine and virtue love make us a spiritual gentleman or lady. With virtue love and doctrine the believer understands and executes a well-defined criterion of honor.

You are the spiritual gentleman or lady when adhering to this honor code. You do not have to be rich, well-dressed or well-heeled to live by this honor code. Honor is our thinking and our conscience apart from circumstances. If honor is internal, then it becomes external.

And there is nothing relative about our honor code. The honor code is the spiritual, moral and ethical principles.

The Honor code

1. The honor code is inherent to the spiritually mature believer.
2. The code centers on doctrine in our soul. We have no code without doctrine. We have no code apart from renovated thinking.
3. This code is motivated by virtue love. Our motivation is we love the Lord.
4. The honor code is realized by using the same spiritual life that Christ used. We use this same spiritual life, the prototype spiritual life. We can have His honor. This is where it starts.
5. The code includes the laws of divine establishment. This is all a part of our honor code. This is one reason we ought to spend a couple of years serving your country. We are willing to subordinate our own country in the service of someone else; namely the freedom of all.
6. Under establishment, the honor code includes good manners, thoughtfulness, recognition of the privacy, property and freedom of others. The honor code is authority oriented and all that goes with it. One of the great demonstrations of honor is accepting authority which is unjust and tyrannical. There is never action in reaction (something women often do). So often we react to authority in a negative way because we do not like the person.
7. The spiritual honor code is not a relative code. Honor is not relative in the spiritual life. It is an absolute; and exclusive code and it is defined by precisely correct procedures that are assigned to us. In the integrity of God we have the Royal Family Honor Code.
8. The honor code does not lend itself to legalistic actions which center on petty and irrelevant details. Being a martinet is not honorable. Worrying about petty little things is not honorable.
9. The honor code always takes into account the sin nature found within all of us. Jesus was able to be honorable and live it perfectly.
  - a. The honor code relates to people as they are in this imperfect world. Our honor code recognizes imperfection. Without it, our honor code would be meaningless.
  - b. The honor code gives a complete working policy in the face of human flaws. This honor code is Bible doctrine. This includes all of the procedures and mechanics prescribed by Bible doctrine.
  - c. In the plan of God, we have precise procedures which are revealed. They define our honor; our honor code.
  - d. When we follow these procedures, we exhibit humility and honor in any situation, despite our flaws and sin nature. This does not mean we do not fail; but we have rebound as our first procedure to get back in. If we fail to rebound, there is no honor.

- e. God has only one way of doing a thing, which He also demands of us. He does not give a lot. He only does it one way. That means that we live His code.
- f. We can fail and we do fail, but the code does not fail. This is why we must adhere to the code as closely as possible. When we sin, we must rebound and resume with our honor code. That is our way with honor. There are many ways to be brave.

This is a wonderful quality which we represent and sent toward others in our relationships. It is a wonderful thing to have honor.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful;

Lesson #877

1Cor. 13: April 9, 2009

Thursday

If a person is dishonorable, then his personal love will suffer. Honor bodes very well for leadership. When a man is honorable in his relationship with a woman, the woman must be able to respond or reciprocate. This makes for a wonderful and stable relationship. Whether or not the woman does or does not have honor, his honor remains intact (or vice versa). Honor is not based upon someone else and their acts. When others sew dishonor then you maintain your honor. It is part of virtue love.

Richard Loveless practiced what he preached ("I could not love you, loved I not honor more." You must understand, it is virtue love in the believer, not a chivalrous knight of the past, who provides the greatest demonstration of honor for today. No matter what the code of honor, the believer has the greatest code of honor.

The Believer has the Greatest honor code

1. This is because the believer is capable of the same honor demonstrated by the Lord Jesus Christ during His incarnation. His is perfect and ours is not.
2. The Christian can have the operation life. Jesus was honorable in all things. He fulfilled the plan of God, despite the dire consequences to His Own person. He honored His duty and obligation to the plan of God the Father. Because He weathered those storms which He had, we have the operational system available.
3. We can think with the very mind of Christ. The mind of Christ and exactly how He thought.
4. Thus, from the thinking, we live by an absolute code of honor. This is the same honor code of the Lord Jesus Christ.
5. In all things, a mature believer is guided by that honor code. That honor code comes from the Word of God. Our honor code is found in Bible doctrine. That is where we learn the Royal Family Honor Code. It is drawn from Bible doctrine in the soul.
6. The code exemplifies personal virtue in relationship to others.

- a. The mechanics of the spiritual life.
- b. The code is not variable nor is it negotiable.
- c. It includes the faith rest drill, it includes promises and mandate in this code. When we follow these things, we are living the honor code.
- d. All of these mechanics are precise and correct procedures, which cannot be circumvented and they cannot be violated. There is not going outside the plan of God. The honor code has precise and correct procedures.
- e. This is the means of following the code, and in no other way, that is our order. This is how we follow the code; this is how we live the code; and there is no other way to do it. The service acadamics all have a code of honor and a certain standard of behavior expected of military officers throughout their service. This code is inviolable. Violating this code is cause for termination. However, as believers, we are never terminated. They must live by that code. You do not lie, steal or cheat, the basis of the code. Men and women die when you violate that code. Our spiritual life dies when we do not follow the honor code.

Precedence in the Honor code

1. This honor code is based upon precedence, which is the pattern of Jesus Christ. It is His modus operandi.
2. You must do a right thing in a right way, as defined by the honor code of Christ. We live in a realtive world, and often a right thing done in a wrong way is thought to be right.
3. The chivalrous, honorable believer always presents Himself as the representative of the knightly Christ. We are a part of the royal court.
4. It was our King of Kings Who is the paradigm of the Royal Family Honor Code. He is the originator of the Royal Family Honor Code. We share this honor code as a part of the rf.
5. When He was resurrected, He left that code for us and we must conform to it.

Bobby's been dancing all around this. Why does a pastor-teacher like Bob or Bobby give points? It is a great way for us to concentrate, even if you never look at your notes again. We still have a better concentration as to what is being said when given point by point. It is easy to let your mind wander. You mind drifts here and there. When you have to take pencil to paper, it helps you to clear the clutter from your mind.

What Does the Honor code Include?

1. The humility of grace orientation is the basis for our honor code. People do not understand grace; but the believer understands it as he grows spiritually. We can submit to the authority of the honor code because we have humility and grace orientation. It is an honorable code because it comes from God. As we submit to this code, he exude honor in humility.

2. You must learn the code. There are many who have no idea what code they live under. Many have no idea what is in the constitution. They do not realize that the greatest country with the greatest freedom is contained in our constitution. We must learn it and we must agree with it. If we do not agree with it, then we will not live it. It must be our way of life.
3. The honor code must become our guide, our field manual, above and beyond our own human viewpoint, impulses and desires. There is no honor in simply indulging your own impulses and desires. Such people are undisciplined and a code is disciplined. It comes from spiritual advance. The code becomes your guide.
4. The Royal Family Honor Code is far above and beyond any other code of human ethics and morality.
5. The honor code prohibits the arrogance of human good. That is the grace aspect of the code. The honor code is opposed to that. The honor code is based upon go and humility, not arrogance. There is not honor in arrogance; there is no virtue love in arrogance.
6. Human good cannot replace the grace attitude for divine good production. Divine good production is a part of our honor code. Just as a knight glorifies his king, so we glorify our own King with our behavior. Virtue love is always about relationships. We have a relationship based upon honor.
7. There is no boasting about producing divine good. It is dishonorable to boast about ourselves. It is honorable to boast about ourselves.
8. The benefits of grace demand the function of grace as a part of the honor code. We are benefitted by grace in every way. We live by grace and we die by grace. The honor code is based upon grace orientation in every respect.
9. We are the beneficiaries of grace. Therefore, we reciprocate graciousness to all; we received grace and we give grace. That is our code of honor. That is the greatest code of honor. It provides the basis for every relationship in grace.

Rom. 12:20: To the contrary, "if your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him something to drink; for by so doing you will heap burning coals on his head." You may prefer to watch him starve, but you represent grace and you show grace. This is impersonal love. In so doing, you heap burning coals upon his head. This is a metaphor. You don't feed him and throw hot coals upon him while he is eating.

What does this mean?

1. Feeding your enemy when he is hungry or giving him drink when he is thirsty is the concept of benevolence. Benevolence in the face of hostility. God gave us the greatest benevolence.
2. We are to never retaliate while the Supreme Court of Heaven is in session. If they are an enemy, then they are an enemy for a specific reasons. Whatever your enemy gives to you, you give back grace. You leave this conflict for others; that is our code.

3. The code does not allow us to vindicate ourselves, to be implacable, to hate, to show arrogance or bitterness toward others. That is honor. Anything else is dishonor. Virtue love and honor fit together. It is all about relationships, including relationships with your enemy.
4. The results of following the code of conduct in relationship to our enemy, we will heap burning coals upon his head. That is a metaphor for shame comes upon him. Our graciousness faces off his ungraciousness.
- 5.
6. If our enemy has a conscience, then our actions bring shame to him. He may set aside his conscience because he hates. When you pay them back in grace, then there is shame in their own soul. That is when an enemy becomes a friend.
7. If he has no conscience. Others are ashamed of him. You still heap hot coals upon his head.
8. This is the power of virtue love as exemplified by the honor code.
9. Our graciousness and honor as we follow the code is visible to everyone else. Honor stands out. We represent the knightly gentleman. We live by the Royal Family Honor Code.

Rom. 12:21: Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good. This is the modus operandi. This is the major point of our honor code.

This is divine good; the good of intrinsic value. It can only be divine good. We are using the honor code and the mechanics of the honor code. We are utilizing the grace in which we are growing. That is central to maintain our honor code. That is the result of living under the honor code.

There is another way of thinking; the code demands that all people be treated as for those for whom Christ died. Think about the worst person that you can think of; the meanest, dirtiest, cruelest, and then realize that he need to apply our honor code. They are souls for whom Christ died. Regardless of our personal opinion of anyone, the honor code demands impersonal love. We are sinners for whom Christ died; we are repulsive to Him. Can we do anything less. His honor code is our honor code; His graciousness is our graciousness. Our honor code demands that we view every person for whom Christ died.

In the honor code, the law of love and the law of expediency take precedence over the law of liberty. Rom. 15:1–4: We who are strong have an obligation to bear with the failings of the weak, and not to please ourselves [this is virtue love]. Let each of us please his neighbor for his good, to build him up. For Christ did not please himself, but as it is written, "The reproaches of those who reproached you fell on me." For whatever was written in former days was written for our instruction, that through endurance and through the encouragement of the Scriptures we might have hope.

As a strong believer, we have an obligation to the weaker believer. This is our honor code. We are men and women of honor. We have no choice but to be honorable. We will be imitators of His honor.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful;

Lesson #1

April 12, 2009

Easter Sunday 1

We celebrate and should be in awe of the resurrection of 2000 years ago. This happened only once in the annals of human history. A hopoxlegomena. Our eternal destiny is dependent upon our Lord's resurrection; this guarantees our eternity in heaven. Without the resurrection, Christianity is absurd 1Cor. 15:14: If Christ has not been raised, then our faith is empty. Christ died as our substitute to bridge the barrier between man and God.

Our Lord's victory over death is also our victory over death, through one simple fact of faith. Death is one of the greatest fears of the human race. Jesus Christ handled that fear. It is a terrible thing to fall under the wrath of the Living God.

This unique event is constantly a matter of skepticism. Skeptics who have never observed the miraculous because they have not seen it. Proof is readily available. There were eye-witness accounts to the empty tomb and to the resurrection. Jesus Christ appeared to more than 500 believers, according to Paul. Some had died and many lived when Paul wrote this (30 years later). This is an amazing statement. If 500 witnesses were brought to trial, and paraded before a jury, and each testified to the same event, would not the jury believe that this event happened? Only 2 or 3 corroborating witnesses are every required in order to convict someone.

Bobby was taught an Easter service by his grandfather. The first steam powered ship to cross the Atlantic ocean. It carried with it 100 copies of a certain book, written before, telling us that such a ship could not exist. No ship could carry that much fuel, and, if it did, this amount of fuel would cause the ship to capsize. Logic and reason were not the deciding factor of that event; the successful crossing was the proof. The person who brought these books had to have a sense of irony and a sense of humor. People when they reject the resurrection of Jesus Christ, they forget about all of these witnesses.

The skeptics reject that if God is the Creator of Life, could He not resurrect from the dead? Luke 18:27: The things impossible for man are possible with God. We do not have a blind faith where no evidence exists. Our faith rests on a real, factual historical experience. The arrival of that steam ship on the other side of the Atlantic, the proof was in the seeing.

Lesson #2

John 21:1 April 12, 2009

Easter Sunday 2

This is Easter. There are many who are skeptics of the resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. They have a hard time seeing the miraculous. It is not something which they can relate to it.

Believers can also be skeptics. Some of those closest to our Lord Jesus Christ Acts 1:3: To these He also presented Himself alive by many convincing proofs [sitings and conversations], speaking of the coming of the Kingdom of God.

John 21:1 After this Jesus revealed himself again to the disciples by the Sea of Tiberias, and he revealed himself in this way.

There was a problem for these disciples here, even after at least 2 other encounters with Jesus Christ. And there had been unrecorded meetings with Jesus Christ.

Peter did not always pay attention to what went on around him and he often did not hear all that was there. Peter was to meet Jesus in Galilee. He was too distraught after the crucifixion. He forgot the earlier words of John 14:18–19: “I will not leave you as orphans. I will come to you. After a little while, the world will behold Me no more; but you will behold Me; because I live, you will live also.”

The week before, they had heard so much doctrine and so much had happened, that they were befuddled. Doctrine does not always make sense to you the first time that you hear it. You need to hear it more than once. It has to be heard many times to sink into your thick head, just as Peter had a thick head.

Also, they were confused about Judas, who betrayed Jesus to the Roman soldiers and religious types. With all of the events, in a few days, their entire world had been turned upside down. Their leader was executed Roman style. And while in disarray, He appeared. It was really too much for them. He would speak to them and then He would be gone again. They simply were not certain; and their heads were spinning a bit. They knew He was alive, but they had not pieced everything together yet. They had heard a lot of doctrine, but it had not sunk into their brains yet.

They were at Jerusalem, a strange, large city. So they had returned to their home, Galilee. It was quiet and peaceful; a familiar place. They needed to smell the sea again, the smell of fish; they were all fishermen by trade. There was a necessity for them to eat and to work. They had been in a crisis and they were returning to the life which they once knew. Peter did not know what to do, and there were 6 who went with him. Peter had leadership qualities, and they followed him there.

John 21:2 Simon Peter, Thomas (called the Twin), Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, the sons of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples were together.

Simon Peter tells them, “I am going to fish.” Rick Hughes, when he is not evangelizing, he is out on a lake fishing. They will fish at night. No matter what, Rick will stay there. These guys are the same way. They will stay there all night. This was their problem. They were going back to their old occupation, because they did not understand what was expected of them. They were treading water, so to speak. They had been at an event—the resurrection—but the ramifications of it had not sunk in yet.

They were fishing for fish and they were supposed to be out fishing for men. They returned to their old haunts, their old life, and they were in danger of forgetting what they had learned. They did not get the great picture. They needed more doctrine in their souls.

All of the facts were there. They had heard it many times. Here they were in crisis mode, and yet, it did not quite all come together.

These followed Jesus for 4 years and they were still ignorant, forgetful and neglectful. Maybe they didn't take any notes? They were there on the sea and they were confused. What happens here is to remind them of their great commission.

Disappointment, heartache, confusion.

John 21:3 Simon Peter said to them, "I am going fishing." They said to him, "We will go with you." They went out and got into the boat, but that night they caught nothing.

When they got into this boat that night, they did not know what was happening. Jesus was there with them, and they did not know Him on the shore. Now they needed to renew their doctrinal thinking.

Jesus came at dawn. He stood on the beach, and the disciples did not know it was Him. Perhaps it was early, with the dawning. Should they have known His voice? It was a spiritual understanding.

Notice that Jesus is not in the boat with them. Jesus speaks to them first. He comes to them.

John 21:4 Just as day was breaking, Jesus stood on the shore; yet the disciples did not know that it was Jesus.

Jesus tells them that they do not have fish, and they agree.

John 21:5 Jesus said to them, "Children, do you have any fish?" They answered him, "No."

Jesus tells them to throw their net on the other side of the boat. The disciplines recognized that this was a miracle. They remember the first miracle when Jesus turned water into wine. They realized that they were following the Messiah. Now they were in that same locale. Here, He would perform His very last miracle. It happens in the same place. All of this began to dawn on the disciples.

They needed another miracle. Is that what you are looking for? Another miracle? The shroud of Turin? The Canonization of John Paul for his miracles?

Jesus called out to them. "Children, you have no fish, correct?" Luke 5:5–10 was an incident which they had already been in; the same thing had happened already. The same scenario was being played out. They were confused as to their next step, the next step of their lives; and it was still being played out. There was still this spiritual life pioneered by Jesus Christ, with the identical power, which He had utilized in His life.

These men had caught nothing all night and they were hungry. Jesus was concerned.

Perhaps they thought Jesus was a man wanting a meal or wanting to buy some fish. Our Lord's voice came across the water to them. These guys were expert fishermen and this is their vocation. They had been all over and there was nothing.

Interestingly enough, they follow the instructions, probably not knowing it is Jesus. There are so many fish that they cannot even haul it in.

John was the thinker among them. John was chosen to write the book of Revelation, a book many are confused about. It all has real meaning. However, it all starts here with the resurrected Christ.

John 21:6 He said to them, "Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and you will find some." So they cast it, and now they were not able to haul it in, because of the quantity of fish.

John was the first one to recognize that Jesus was resurrected. He got it. And he is first again to catch on to what is happening. Then Peter got it. These were men who had been in His presence for 4 years and now they are beginning to get it. Peter and John now know that it is Jesus. Now Jesus is back in their world. He reintroduced Himself.

From this time on, they got it. They understood His eternal presence with them and they did not forget what their mission was. Their life was not to be hauling in fish. The end was doctrine in the soul and it was something which they never forgot. "And, lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world." Jesus stayed with them, although His physical presence was no longer with them.

Their eternal mission became their reality. They were no longer confused. So it should be for us, as we contemplate the meaning of the resurrection of our Lord.

John 21:7 That disciple whom Jesus loved therefore said to Peter, "It is the Lord!" When Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he put on his outer garment, for he was stripped for work, and threw himself into the sea.

Matt. 28: "Listen, I am with you always, lo, until the end of the Age." Jesus speaking to the disciples.

No one every walks alone because the Lord Jesus Christ is with us and in us. It is an end which is not an end. Their lives were not the end when they died. When we die, our life is not over. When eternity is over, it is just getting started, thanks to the resurrection.

John 21:8 The other disciples came in the boat, dragging the net full of fish, for they were not far from the land, but about a hundred yards off.

John 21:9 When they got out on land, they saw a charcoal fire in place, with fish laid out on it, and bread.

John 21:10 Jesus said to them, "Bring some of the fish that you have just caught."

John 21:11 So Simon Peter went aboard and hauled the net ashore, full of large fish, 153 of them. And although there were so many, the net was not torn.

John 21:12 Jesus said to them, "Come and have breakfast." Now none of the disciples dared ask him, "Who are you?" They knew it was the Lord.

John 21:13 Jesus came and took the bread and gave it to them, and so with the fish.

John 21:14 This was now the third time that Jesus was revealed to the disciples after he was raised from the dead.

Lesson #878

Honor code 1Cor. 13:5 April 15, 2009

Wednesday

Although these qualities are presented in a negative way, they can also be expressed in a positive way. To behave honorably. The believer embraces and follows the Royal Family Honor Code. We are royalty. All believers in Jesus Christ are royalty. We are more royalty than those who live in Buckingham palace in England. We are born into a royal family. We are sons of God through faith in His name. We share everything that He has. If we have honor, then we live as a royal family. Each royal family has a code of honor. Often those outside of the royal family do not understand their code. We live with the code. The code is a model of honor for us. We have to know what honor is. Secondly, the honor code is the norms and standards in the treatment of other persons. The honor code is something that we internalize and it becomes a way of dealing with others within the realm of the honor code. The standards and practices of the royal family.

We do not come in Bible class as strictly an academic exercise. It is presented in an academic way, but it must be transferred by faith into the right lobe of the soul. It becomes a way of thinking. This code must be inculcated into the right lobe of the soul; it must reside in our conscience; it must be circulating. We do a right thing in a right way. It is a fixed divine norms and standards. It is a code and there are many norms and standards.

Once the Royal Family Honor Code is entrenched in the conscience, then it is unaffected by external influences. The honor code is internalized and this means that the thinking of the believer has been renovated. We are honorable people with an honor code. This honor code does not deviate under any circumstance. The honor code is the opposite of situation ethics. Situational ethics mean that when the situation changes or if our normal standard is difficult to apply, then we simply change the standard. This gives us great latitude. This leads to the performance of our duties and obligations, regardless of the cost.

This honor code is basic to virtue. Honor first. God honors our thoughts and actions which are honorable.

Now we need to find out what is in the code. There is an order, which is the unique spiritual life of the Church Age. From this, virtue love is derived and honor is realized. You cannot keep the code because you do not understand it. The unique spiritual life includes the mechanics of the spiritual life and the results of spiritual advance. Mechanics would be rebound and gap. Without these mechanics, we have no spiritual life. From all of that comes the honor code. The honor code contains precise and correct procedures.

The Royal Family Honor Code

1. The human race has a tremendous range of thought when it comes to what spirituality is. However, the Christian life is a precise set of mechanics and procedures. Spirituality is defined by the Word of God. It is a system of precedent and procedure. Without it, there is no virtue love and no honor.
2. Jesus Christ spiritual life is our precedent. That is the prototype spiritual life. We have the same power and the same resources that Jesus Christ had. We have the same thing. Someone wrote Bobby a letter and they were confused, thinking they could reach some Christ-like perfection. However, we do have a spiritual life which can take us to maturity. We can function under the spiritual life which our Lord used. He was the paradigm for the Royal Family Honor Code. We are His royal family.
3. Characteristics of the honor code: the honor code is our guide; it is our self-help handbook, and it counters our flawed human impulses and desires. The sin nature is dishonorable and determines to be in charge and to drive us into a dishonorable life. There is no honor in the performance of human good. There is no honor in human good. Only divine good is honorable before the Lord. There is no honor in applying human viewpoint to your circumstances. This violates the code. This is why we must renovate our thinking. Without this, we cannot follow the Royal Family Honor Code. Apart from this, ethics and morality are relative standards. The standards of the Royal Family Honor Code are absolutes because they are from God. Our code is far greater than any human ethics or morality. It is far greater. Our human morality turns into situational ethics. The Royal Family Honor Code defines us in terms of absolutes. Now, we will fail in these absolutes. We can always use rebound and continue in our spiritual life. You do not lose the absolutes; they are implanted in your honor code.
4. The honor therefore is applied to our thinking. 3 sessions in Bible class is not going to renovate our thinking. Divine viewpoint is something which is progressive and it does not happen overnight. It requires patience and perseverance. Some people think that Bible class is inconvenient. If you think that, then your thinking has not been renovated. Being honorable before the Lord is not something that you want to neglect ever. The difference is between applying secular standards and divine standards.
5. The honor code is all about grace orientation. The benefits of grace from God to us demands that we function in grace toward all others. We receive grace from God and we give it back. God's grace is the expression of His love for us. We are grace oriented. We apply virtue love toward those we love personally or those our in our periphery, whether we like them or not. Honor is in your soul; it is not about your circumstances. We are beneficiaries of grace. Rom. 12:20: To the contrary, "if your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him something to drink; for by so doing you will heap burning coals on his head." As a soldier, we are to kill the enemy, and we are a better soldier if we do this without hatred, anger, bitter. We kill as a matter of duty but not based upon hatred or any other mental attitude sin. Anyone that you do not like, whether it is periodically or always, might be seen as our enemy. Burning coals here is a metaphor; we are not being encouraged to crop burning coals on the head of your enemy. Our gracious actions bring shame upon his head. The contrast between us and the person with shame is marked for all to see. Even if our enemy never acknowledges our graciousness, others may see the honor in you. Others must observe your honor, your virtue love, and your graciousness. If your graciousness is met with further hostility, our honor remains beyond doubt and intact. Rom 12:21: Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good. Divine good is the heart of the honor code.

6. Characteristic in the honor code is that the law of love and expediency take precedence over the law of liberty. You do not exercise liberty without a thought to anyone else.

What does the following verse mean?

Rom 15:1–2: We who are strong have an obligation to bear with the failings of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let each of us please his neighbor for his good, to build him up.

1. The strong believer has a maximum understand of the Royal Family Honor Code.
2. The weak believer is weak, as he has little understanding of the code; he has no honor; he is dishonorable or weak.
3. What does he have? He has arrogance by which he forms opinions and focuses on the superficialities of life. He is fixated on legalistic taboos. We are free as believers to do anything which is not sin as believers. But the weak believer has legalistic taboos, even about things which are not sin. These are false standards which are used instead of the honor code or superimposed upon it.
4. Instead of living by the strength of the honor code, the weak live in the weakness of their own hypersensitivity and bad judgment.
5. The weak believer is not well-versed in the honor code.
6. The strong believers must take care during his spiritual advance. We need to be careful how we treat other believers who are immature. They may not understand the Royal Family Honor Code at all.
7. The strong who live by the honor code carry a heavy burden by taking into account their weakness and, in so doing, giving up individual liberties for the sake of their spiritual growth; nothing could be more honorable.

The Honor code

1. The honor code is not an expression of self righteousness. It is about what we have internalized from virtue love.
2. Authority-orientation is a part of our honor code. We have an obligation to our honor code.

3. The honor code demands a confident expectation regarding the future.
4. Violations of the honor code can be found in several passages. Prov. 6:16 2Tim. 3:1–8, 15–16 Eph. 4:25 Rom. 14:4, 6, 10 this honor code changes us from being a royal bore to spiritual royalty. Honor does not cave in to dishonor.

The 2nd quality is, virtue love does not seek its own. Ζήτησθε. This is not seeking in terms of looking for something which one desires. There is self-discipline here. Ζήτησθε here has an object. Τα is the accusative neuter plural. Virtue love does not seek those things [interests] with a reflexive pronoun. It is a genitive feminine. The antecedent is the subject, which is virtue love. Virtue love here is depicted as having great beauty and grace. Virtue love does not seek those things of herself; virtue love does not seek its own self-interest. It never turns inward, seeking its own interests. A person with virtue love is not preoccupied with self. Everyone is preoccupied with themselves? How often do you think of yourself? During all waking hours. Virtue love is not being preoccupied with yourself. That is directing your love toward others. Preoccupation with self; you love yourself. This is how people get personal self-esteem. Virtue love is not directed toward itself; it does not seek itself.

Preoccupation with self is the opposite of occupation with Christ. When you are not occupied with Christ, we have no knowledge of Him. When we know someone, we know their qualities, their weaknesses, their strengths. The Lord Jesus Christ has no weaknesses; He is perfection. When we understand what He was done for us in grace, we cannot help but to be occupied with Him. We are not to be preoccupied with ourselves. Stop thinking that, it is all about me. Virtue love demands something different. It gets old thinking about yourself all of the time. It is wonderful not to be occupied with yourself constantly. Whenever you are preoccupied with yourself, you cannot handle any and all criticism. You ought to take into account what others see in you. When someone tells you about yourself, it is probably true. You may think that no one can know you like you.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest]; it is not irritable or resentful;

Lesson #879 Arrogant Preoccupation 1Cor. 13:5 April 16, 2009 Thursday

There are 16 characteristics altogether which we will cover, which describe virtue love. The negative particle + ζητεω + τη + genitive reflexive η αυτης = virtue love does not seek the things of herself; the person with virtue love is not preoccupied with himself; virtue love is not preoccupied with self.

What is preoccupation with self?

All of us are preoccupied with ourselves at various times. Sometimes we are way out of line. This is in the worst sense here.

1. Preoccupation with self is excessively interested with self-interests and personal pursuits.

2. This is a preoccupation which divorces a person from observing reality. There is an unrealistic self-image. No correction if you cannot accurately see yourself.
3. Preoccupation eliminates rational, objective thinking and substitutes irrational subjective emotion. It is easy to become emotional about yourself. Such a person cannot be renovated by objective doctrine because he is too steeped in subjectivity.
4. Preoccupation with self is in marked contrast with occupation with Christ.
5. Preoccupation with self and occupation with Christ are mutually exclusive.
6. Preoccupation with self causes unrealistic expectations, especially in personal relationships. Such a person is not loved in the way that they want to be loved. Things don't ever seem to work out the way they want it to work out. Never satisfied with personal relationships.
7. Preoccupation with self leads to blind arrogance; blind to one's own faults and flaws. You cannot admit anything to yourself. It challenges your self-love and your self-esteem. He places his own personal desires above all else. Everyone must consider me first; I take first place in my own thinking. The husband who takes personal pleasure for himself with no thought to the pleasure of his wife. It eliminates capacity for true happiness. This person is not able to develop personal virtue love. There is no capacity for it. You can only fix yourself; doctrine fixes you, not yourself. If you are thinking about someone else, you are preoccupied with yourself so they conform to what you want.
8. Preoccupation with self eliminates capacity for love and true happiness.
9. A person preoccupied with self has no capacity for love. He cannot see his own failures and flaws. No authority-orientation, and therefore, he has no humility or false humility. A person who is preoccupied has no loyalty except to himself. For him, truth is what he deems to be truth. Truth is what he wants it to be. Rule apply to others but not to him. There is no reality but his own. Who does this sound like? Politicians?
10. Preoccupation with self is manifested by an extreme desire for attention or a desperate need for approbation. This can be anything from a very sexual woman to a blowhard man.
11. The sociopath is preoccupied with self.
12. Suicide is total preoccupation with self.

If virtue love is how the believer relates to others with personal and impersonal love, then virtue love cannot be directed to self as self-love. Virtue love is always directed outward. People are often counseled to seek self-esteem, self-acceptance and self-approval. I accept myself and I expect everyone else to accept me. He builds a bogus, inflated image of self. The exaggerated self-image motivates inordinate competition with others and inordinate ambitions. You become very competitive with others. Extremely subjective.

Your inflated self-image is completely messed up if you cannot get the attention or respect or treatment you expect to get.

Selfless love directed toward others as opposed to being self-seeking. No capacity for personal love when you are preoccupied with self. Πυσιω is arrogance. Ζητεω is directed toward self.

The Arrogance of Preoccupation

1. This is the arrogance of self-promotion to the exclusion of impersonal love. You do not mind trampling people at all for your own self-importance.
2. It is a self-seeking attitude which breeds the opposite of grace orientation.
3. Self becomes the most important of all subjects. It can manifest itself in many ways. Nothing will stand in the way of my happiness or my success. It is all about me.
4. This person makes an issue of self on every occasion and under every circumstance. He always turns the conversation back to himself. They have no interest in your story; just in their own.
5. He constantly seeks to get his own way. This is an occupation in life to get their own way. Their needs come first. I want someone who will love me first. You cannot demand that.
6. At the same time, this person seeks to control everything in his or her periphery, especially those with whom they have a personal relationship. They want to control everyone. Other people are threats if they cannot be controlled.
7. But, virtue love in the soul provides freedom for others. Control stifles freedom. I want someone the way to be the way I want them to be; if not, then I will change and manipulate them. If that is the case, then move on. Find someone that you do not need to change. Virtue love does not demand change. You let doctrine change people. You exercise virtue love including impersonal love. Impersonal love excludes manipulation.
8. Preoccupation with self divorces a believer from reality. How can you have a true picture of yourself if you have this inflated vision of yourself.

There is always some truth in what some people tell you about yourself. Objectivity demands that you hear it. That takes some self-esteem and objectivity to hear this. You can see yourself as others see you and you are not threatened by it.

Characteristics of Arrogance

1. Under this arrogance, the individual believer places his own value above all else. He places himself over everything else and over all authorities. They place themselves above divine establishment. You may not like a leader so you put yourself above it all. The arrogant person often places himself above the law, which is the thinking of the criminal mind. Worse of all, they place self above Bible doctrine. They place their own personal value over everything else.
2. His preoccupation with self becomes his distraction to metabolization of doctrine.
3. Intense concentration on self excludes any real self-evaluation. You cannot handle that; you cannot stand to evaluate yourself. It precludes any self-criticism. And this will develop a hyper criticism toward all others. Won't evaluate oneself, but needs to evaluate others. This wards off personal criticism.

4. Hyper-criticism goes to the person who has offended, who has aggravated or crossed this arrogant person in some way. You will jump all over someone who offends you. Road rage is an example of this. Someone crosses you and you will not be crossed. They are in line for revenge. Preoccupied with self.
5. The self-centered person is often self-righteous. If they cannot handle criticism, they are going to be self-righteous. They cannot stand to be found wrong by anyone else. Don't find me wrong or I will find everything wrong with you and I will tell everyone else about it.
6. Any outside criticism is taken very personally. It causes anger, vindictiveness and bitterness. Occupation with self. When someone treats you in a way that you do not want to be treated, it makes you angry, bitter and miserable. Preoccupation with self is misery.
7. This person becomes overly-opinionated and highly judgmental. They will judge you in a second and never judge themselves.
8. Conversely the preoccupied person is always ready with self-justification for anything which they have done. They are hypersensitive. They inject themselves into everything in life.

Hypersensitive person can justify taking advantage of others in order to achieve his own purposes. They do not make good friends. They distort the thoughts and attitudes of their friends and acquaintances. They take everything wrong; they can hear a slight in every phrase. They wear their feelings on their sleeve. Hypersensitive about self and insensitive toward others. They are always on point wondering if someone is critical of them; and always ready to go on the attack. They are completely insensitive as to what they will say to that person. They are concerned with the most inconsequential things. You never know what will set this person off. You always have to watch yourself around a person like that. This person reacts to even constructive criticism. Shame, humiliation, resentment and rage can happen all of a sudden in rapid succession. Even if this anger is not immediately expressed, it can simmer and explode at any time.

The hypersensitive person has very little self-esteem and they constantly need reinforcement by you. It is spiritual self-esteem which is designed to counter this hypersensitivity. Unless you develop spiritual self-esteem, unless you gain humility and grace orientation, you will be hypersensitive.

Hypersensitive people have no sense of humor about themselves, but they are more than ready to laugh at others.

When a hypersensitive person is confronted with the excellence of another person, they see that person as a threat. They have unrealistic expectations. They must be treated in the way they want to be treated. No one loves the hypersensitive person in the way that he wants to be loved. He wants flattery. All other people must dedicate themselves to his entertainment or his personal desires, or they will make everyone in their periphery miserable. And that is what they think will make them happy is making others miserable. Hypersensitivity cannot exist where virtue love is. Impersonal love is manifested by your sensitivity toward others. This is why virtue love is so critical for your life.

Self-centered, self-absorbed person is prone to self-pity. Feeling sorry for self and seeing oneself in a hopeless, helpless situation, broken in spirit. This attitude is never right for a believer to have. It is subjective and removed from Bible doctrine in the soul. It is based upon pure arrogance and pure emotionalism. You know whether or not you pity yourself. You have gotten yourself into a circumstance that you cannot control. So you just go into a self-pity mode. Someone you love walks away, and you are not thinking about that person, but you are thinking about how you are being hurt and you never think about your own culpability. You never see the other person's viewpoint. You exhibit self-pity. You want the other person to feel guilty or to have regrets. Think about all those loves in your life who have walked away. What you ought to do is lick your wounds and walk away. This makes everyone around you want to get away.

This kind of person knows exactly what they are doing, but they are able to justify what they are doing. They have no spiritual self esteem. How much money do psychologists make telling people that they have no self-esteem and how to get it? There is only one self-esteem and that is spiritual self-esteem. Spiritual self esteem is a sure-fire way to virtue love.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest]; it is not irritable or resentful;

Lesson #880                      virtue love    1Cor. 13:5    April 19, 2009                      Sunday 1

So many people think of the Christian life as learning about these qualities and then straining to acquire them. As we grow in grace and knowledge, we will gravitate toward these qualities naturally by means of the Spirit.

V. 5 deal with our relationship to others, which is not true of the other verses. Do not act, do not seek, do not be provoked. These qualities bring virtue love right down to where we live. For your application of both personal and impersonal love.

These qualities are accompanied with the negative particle ou, which negates the quality or act named here. Paul, instead of stating a relational operation, he presents each quality in the negative.

All of these qualities are important. You cannot allow any one of them to drop out.

Virtue love does not behave dishonorably,... It has more impact and power than, "Behave honorably..." ...virtue love is not preoccupied with self...

Virtue love is not directed toward self; this is not self-love. There is nothing wrong with a little self-love. The husband is to love and cherish his wife just as his own flesh.

Virtue love is never self-elevating; virtue love is selfless love toward others. The believer who is preoccupied with himself is unable to exercise virtue love. In this condition, you will have great, unrealistic expectations about other people. You never seem to get treated or loved the way you would like to be treated or loved; you are frustrated. There is an extreme desire for attention.

It is the kiss of death to be preoccupied with yourself in a relationship. When you are not satisfied, you become resentful, angry and vituperative toward all those who you are supposed to love. You don't get to apply all of this to someone else. The purpose of all of this is for self-evaluation. When you have virtue love, this is not a part of your personal modus operandi.

You have a bogus, inflated self-image of yourself. You have no peers in your own mind. Without admitting to your own faults and failures, you do not have to be wrong. Isn't that convenient to never be wrong.

Truth is what you want it to be, which is the exact opposite of Bible doctrine. Your own truth is subjective. Your own truth and this applies to those who have no virtue love. This is applicable to politicians, who have their own set of rules. That is blind arrogance. The intense concentration on self excludes self-criticism.

Hypersensitivity injects self into every relationship. It is all about me. You are sensitive toward yourself and insensitive toward everyone else. They hypersensitive person can easily justify taking advantage of others to get this or that.

If they do not get what they want, then they go into self-pity mode; I am a victim attitude. How many times does someone come across as a victim. People look at the government and say, "I am a victim, help me." They are concerned about how they are hurt; and they never consider the other person's viewpoint.

Self-pity, you present yourself as a victim. What a manifestation of self-centered arrogance. The jealous believer, the preoccupied person with self is also inordinately competitive. Competition is not bad and wrong; in athletics or in the business world, it is a normal approach. That is the purpose; to win. You don't look to just climb over bodies, but it is a competition. However, this is not applied to social and spiritual life. Perpetrating rivalry where no rivalry exists. The inordinately competitive man is one who boasts about his sexual conquests or boasts about how he bests others. He is caustic in speech or he uses sarcasm to belittle others. It drives him to compete with everyone, including those who are closest to him. This person is jealous of anyone, even among his friends and family. He will compete with anyone for attention and approbation. He needs fawning people to pump him up.

The inordinately competitive believer gets even worse when it is applied to the Christian life. They ask a myriad of questions which impress others, but are not interested in the answers. They try to impress others around them with their life. He cannot wait to show his superior knowledge which he thinks translates into being a superior believer. The only one you consider in your spiritual life is Jesus Christ. You grow here, not to impress someone else. No relaxed mental attitude, no virtue love. This is a person to avoid; this person will require maximum impersonal love from you. Bobby knows, having lived with a bunch of seminary students for 5 years. This eliminates any happiness in personal love. He is a terrible lover as a husband or wife; they are so involved with their own pleasure-taking and they are only concerned about themselves. No matter how much a person succeeds or acquires, they are always dissatisfied. There is always someone else who seems to be happier or a little better off. The only way you can deal with this is to exhibit impersonal love. They have erroneous ideas about what constitutes happiness in their lives and they demand attention from everyone in their periphery. Children ages 2–4 are like this; they demand constant attention. Adults do this too. They are unhappy and they demand those around them to make them happy. People can give moments of pleasure, but they also give misery and disappointment.

When you are disappointed with others, you have iconoclastic arrogance. This is a person who is not occupation with Christ. He can develop an infatuation with someone, but develops no impersonal love. They see their flaws. They put them on a pedestal, and they expect perfection, especially in relation to themselves. They too fail, especially in relation to themselves. They become disillusioned and disenchanting and they think, “No one should disappoint me.” All those who are made into icons can turn your disappointment into antagonism. So many people put Bob on a pedestal, and then, became angry when viewing his feet of clay. This antagonism never helps. Bobby has seen these antagonists destroy themselves through their own mental attitude sins. It is all about being self-centered when you tear down an icon. You can gossip, malign, defame. You can work up some great sins of the tongue. You are displeased, frustrated, and you take it personally. You can fail yourself; but, with impersonal love, you do not take another person’s failures personally. This is nothing more than iconoclastic arrogance. This is a direct result of having no virtue love. The believer preoccupied with self is prone to depression and worse. A state of wandering around, depressed about life, when not given their rightful due in their own eyes. They become deflated, dejected and dismal about life.

No believer can justify suicide, no matter what.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not irritable or resentful;

1Cor. 13:5 April 19, 2009

Sunday 2

Bobby’s mother is 91 today. She is apparently spending it at Berachah Church. She is a pastor’s daughter, wife and mother.

You attention ought to be on Jesus Christ and not on yourself. You ought to be occupied with the person of Jesus Christ and not upon yourself. What is the solution to your iconoclastic arrogance and your preoccupation with self?

The Solution

1. Occupation with the Person of Christ is the ultimate in virtue love. As you grow in knowledge, you get to know the Person of Jesus Christ. As you begin to know Who Jesus Christ is, you begin to understand and develop reciprocal love. You are going toward the high ground of reciprocal love. So also does virtue love develop. It is not some effort, some work that you need to do to develop these qualities. As you develop virtue love, you are developing all of those problem solving devices as well as spiritual advance.
2. When you intensely love and respect a person, you develop a concentrate devotion to that person. It speaks of not self-love, but an ardor which is beyond what is normally thought of as love.
3. This love is not iconoclastic. Devotion is never iconoclastic. It disregards the faults and flaws of the object. You develop capacity to love Christ and then you develop capacity to love others as well. You understand that they have flaws and weaknesses in their sin nature. You gain capacity for love. Now, for Jesus, there is no impersonal love required. Impersonal love means that there are faults and flaws in the Person you love. Now, people can develop unrealistic expectations from God. You have these expectations of God Who provides for you in every way, and yet, it is not good enough for you. "I want what I want." This is the self-centered arrogance. People do get down on God. God does not love me or give me what I want.
4. Your attention and devotion is toward Jesus Christ and not toward yourself. You grow in knowledge and you grow in reciprocal love, and you are not focused on yourself. You can focus on others.
5. The Lord Jesus Christ is our role model. He is the vital pattern for our life; not some other icon. Not even parents. Bobby has two great role models with his own parents, but he goes to Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is our role model and not some human being. You are never disappointed by God because His grace is sufficient. You do not understand if you think otherwise.
6. When you demonstrate reciprocal love, then Jesus Christ becomes your closest companion rather than someone else. Jesus Christ is your closest companion. He is always with you. You can be in Iraq, or anywhere else, and Jesus Christ is there. When your eyes are on Him, nothing can defeat you. You do not build icons of people. You have realistic relationships. When you demonstrate reciprocal love, Jesus Christ becomes your closest Companion.
7. He influences your every thought and your every action. Your mind is renovated. He influences every thought and action. The more you love someone, the more they influence you. Sometimes good and sometimes not for good.
8. We have, when every thought and action is divine viewpoint, a mind which is not self-centered. Being self-centered is one of the greatest pitfalls to the Christian life. We are human beings; we naturally center on ourselves; that is humanism. The only way to renovate our thinking is to center our thinking on Christ. That is metabolized doctrine. A lot of people become ascetics in order to be holy; and that is pure preoccupation with self and not occupation with Christ. The key is having a renovated mind.

9. When your spiritual life depends upon encouragement from Bible doctrine, that is the renovation of your mind. You do not depend upon the ego-boosting by others. You do not depend upon the kind words of others. What you can depend upon is divine viewpoint always. This represents the thinking of Jesus Christ. Virtue love never fails. It never fails us.
10. When we depend upon our encouragement from divine viewpoint, we become spiritually self sustaining. We have developed the virtue love toward others which Christ possessed. It is not about you and not about them. You are no longer #1 in the pantheon of people. When you suffer, it is all about you, and that is problematic. When someone shocks you, it is iconoclastic arrogance. With virtue love, you turn outward and the solution is in occupation with Christ.
11. When nothing can dim the illuminating presence of Jesus Christ, you are no longer preoccupied with self. That is spiritual maturity. You have taken every thought captive for Christ. You approach every crisis, every pressure and every relationship problem that you have. It is all based upon the thinking of Jesus Christ. You are no longer preoccupied with the thinking of yourself. That is liberating. What a way to live, to be wondering about yourself, and to wonder, what happens to me if this or that occurs, or if this person does this or that to me. You move forward on a good day or a bad day. We all have those types of days, but it does not matter, unless you are preoccupied with yourself. When you have virtue love, none of these things get to you. Sure, you will have days and moments you are upset, but the more you are occupation with Christ the more you are able to deal with life and to have impersonal love toward others. The key to acquiring this personal love for Christ is always progressing to spiritual maturity. We are acquiring personal love for Jesus Christ as we learn Bible doctrine. Every bit of doctrine is moving toward spiritual maturity. It is one phrase at a time and one word at a time. We are moving ahead. That is the key to acquiring occupation with Christ. That is when the mind of Christ begins to permeate our souls. Our thinking begins to conform to divine viewpoint. We lose that terrible preoccupation with self. Now, we still comb our hair and take showers; that is not preoccupation with self. Inordinate competition, hypersensitivity, iconoclastic arrogance is preoccupation with self. Never admitting your own faults and always blaming someone else, you see yourself for what you are. You do not make an icon of yourself. Capacity for love and life. Wouldn't it be wonderful to be happy under all circumstances? You do not have to lose these things as long as you are not preoccupied with self. That makes you miserable. The plan of God is where we live, and no one can destroy our life or take us out of this life.

The hypersensitive person faces the life and lusts of the sin nature. Occupation with Christ means that these things fade. You are Christ-centered rather than self-centered. Occupation with Christ and loving Christ first is what helps you to build capacity for love for anyone else. With divine viewpoint in your soul, part of that capacity deals with people and circumstances, good and bad.

Virtue love and Christ-likeness

Bobby got a letter the other day when someone fretted for 20 years.

1. You will never be perfect in this life. Jesus Christ is perfect in every way. How then can I imitate Christ?
2. As you grow to spiritual maturity, you will stay in fellowship for longer periods of time. You will remain filled with the Holy Spirit for longer periods of time. No strain.
3. You are increasingly able to resist the draw of the lusts of the sin nature.
4. You will progressively lose your desire to constantly want to please yourself.
5. The Lord Jesus Christ is more important to you than you are to yourself. That is the whole thing in a nutshell. That is where we go when we grow to spiritual maturity. It is not a way of acting like a holy person, practicing self-denial. You can have a good wardrobe and be occupied with Christ.
6. Jesus Christ displayed impeccable faith rest, and He was never outside of the plan of God. He was not worried or anxious. He displayed perfectly grace and doctrinal orientation. His mind is divine viewpoint. He perfectly fulfilled his purpose. He had impeccable impersonal love toward everyone, including the pharisees, those who had souls like tombs.
7. Armed with the same power and the same assets that Jesus Christ had, His spiritual resources, our mental attitude can be a facsimile of His virtue love and not preoccupation with self. Only in heaven will we have no old sin nature. We can have a facsimile of all these things related to Christ, which comes with spiritual maturity. This is fulfilling the plan and purpose of God for our lives.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not irritable or resentful;

Lesson #882

1Cor. 13:5 April 22, 2009

Wednesday

The 3rd quality is, virtue love is not provoked. Paruxsuno to irritate, to become irritated in the passive voice; to become angry. This often involves working yourself up. Most of us have had to deal with anger to a lesser or greater degree. This problem is precluded by virtue love in your soul. It is provoked to anger here.

Does this mean that with virtue love you will never feel angry at a provocation? Of course not. However, this is where virtue love kicks in. Irritants, minor or otherwise. The implication is, without virtue love in relationship to people, a person can be incited by people; they can become argumentative; given to tantrums and outbursts of temper (which is what you see when you do not have virtue love and are provoked to anger). How about the word bitchy, cranky, belligerent, insensitive? When we are insensitive to others, we end up being hypersensitive. We are quick to take offense and quick to react. It is a blinding flash.

We need to take a prolonged look at anger. What is it and how do we deal with it?

Anger

1. This is a reactionary attitude and an emotional sin that reflects antagonism, hatred, exasperation, irrationality in a person who is aroused by other people and circumstances. This is what we are without virtue love.
2. The Bible presents some awful results of anger:
  - a. Anger motivates cruelty and a flood of evil reactions. Prov. 27:4: Wrath is cruel, anger is overwhelming, but who can stand before jealousy? Anger is a flood or a torrent which pours out of the soul of a person. It engenders all sorts of problem for yourself and others. Anger is cruelty and it is designed to hurt. When you are angry with someone, you want to hurt them.
  - b. Anger creates fear in others, which is often its purpose. Sometimes anger is just out of control irrationality. But there are times it is controlled in order to strike fear in others. It is much easier to go off like a firecracker. They use fear to intimidate or to get their own way. This is not a virtuous way to go.
  - c. The angry person is described in the Bible as a fool. Eccles. 7:9: Be not quick in your spirit to become angry, for anger lodges in the bosom of fools. You need to think before you act; you need to have some control over your emotions. Do not be in a hurry to react. Anger resides in the bosom of fools. If you are easily teed off, you are a fool. Anger turns a person into a jackass. Rationality, thoughtfulness, kindness, patience is all lost. When say certain things to someone that you love that you cannot take back, that can cause irreparable harm. You might even be saying what you think; you are not hiding anything; your emotions are out of controls. If you do that, you are a fool. It is hard to forget what is really inside of the soul of someone when it is directed toward you. It is the mindless braying of a donkey. If you must deal with an irritating person then you must keep your wits about you. When you are provoked, when you go off. Nothing good comes of losing your temper. You do not gain anything but a little manipulation or you might get someone to fear you when you go off. You might end up being cruel and brutal. Bobby had to deal with soldiers who were disobedient, trouble-makers, or they would make excuses for their behavior and attitude. It would be easy for Bobby to reaction with a temper. Sometimes, Bobby couldn't help himself. They could really get under his skin. If they were to become good soldiers, Bobby needed to retain an even-handed impartiality to administer punishment. You do not exercise authority and power in anger; you lose under those circumstances. Any sort of authority requires you to maintain control over your emotions. Otherwise, you have given up your power. If Bobby reacted to them in anger, there were negative results. It negated the impact of his authority. You also lose respect. If they can get to you, then you lose respect. It is the same with parents and children. For discipline to be an effective teaching tool, it must be impartial and dispassionate. If you get a temper tantrum, don't go ballistic. If you get mad, then you lose. Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in the discipline and the instruction of the Lord. Prov. 15:18: A hot-tempered man stirs up strife, but he who is slow to anger quiets contention. If you must punish, do not punish in anger. Think with virtue love and peace is restored. In all leadership instruction. Bobby sometimes looks out in the auditorium and gets a little angry. So, on occasion, he raises his voice. He does this in a controlled manner. Sometimes he sees someone drifting, and he raises his voice in order to gain our attention. When you do not react in anger, and it is controlled, it is much more effective.

- d. Anger is never an isolated sin. Prov. 29:22: A man of wrath stirs up strife, and one given to anger abounds in transgressions. Anger sets off chain sinning. Col. 3:8: But now you also, put them all aside, anger and wrath, malice, slander, abusive speech from your mouth... From anger comes more mental attitude sins as well as verbal sins. An expletive is not using the Lord's name in vain.
- e. Anger destroys a nation. Amos 1:11: Thus says the LORD: "For three transgressions of Edom, and for four, I will not revoke the punishment, because he pursued his brother [Israel] with the sword and cast off all pity, and his anger tore perpetually, and he kept his wrath forever. God allowed the destruction of Edom because of their vicious hatred for the Jews. It was like a carnivore tearing into its prey. It is a picture of unleashed rage, which is an apt picture of anti-Semitism in general. God destroyed 2 of the largest cities of Edom because of their anti-Semitism. V. 12. This is a picture of two city-states destroyed over anti-Semitism. If you develop a vindictive anger toward your own government, then look at Gen. 49:7: Cursed be their anger, for it is fierce, and their wrath, for it is cruel! I will divide them in Jacob and scatter them in Israel. Do not get angry with authorities over you. It would be very easy to get angry at things which occur today. Losing freedom does not justify destroying governmental authorities, whether we like this or not. We must be authority-orientated.
- f. Anger is associated with grieving the Holy Spirit. Eph. 4:30–31: And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption. Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and slander be put away from you, along with all malice. There is no fellowship with God the Holy Spirit in anger, wrath or bitterness. You cannot be filled with the Holy Spirit and be filled with anger at the same time. There is not spiritual life where anger resides in your soul. So many people today are angry all of the time. They watch the news and they are angry or they listen to talk radio and are stirred to anger. There is a difference between anger and concern for your country. People drive on the freeways of Houston and stay angry. They go to work and are angry at the boss and co-workers; or at their friends and loved ones who have cross them. They are angry at their government. This makes for a very angry person and a very angry life. This leads to a personal misery. We have an angry society today, on both sides of the fence. Anger destroys a nation. You have no relaxed mental attitude, you have no occupation with Christ. Anger takes away your virtue and your problem solving devices. Anger can be fleeting and you solve it with rebound. But that anger must not be allowed to be in your soul. Anger becomes less and less of a concern for the mature believer. It is a waste of energy and a waste of time. A renovated mind can control this flash of anger, the facing injustice.

- g. Anger hinders effective prayer. 1Tim. 2:8: I desire then that in every place the men should pray, lifting holy hands without anger or quarreling... Men pray, and must do so without anger and quarreling. Out of fellowship means you can pray and pray and no one will hear you. Of course God can hear your prayer, but He does not answer it. Sometimes, people get angry when their prayer is not answered, and it is not answered when they are not in fellowship because of anger. For prayer to be effective, the sins of anger must be put aside. The sin of anger does not negate prayer. The attitude of prayer must be virtue love.
- h. Anger causes misery to those in your periphery.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not provoked to anger or resentful;

Lesson #883

1Cor. 13:5 April 23, 2009

Thursday

Everything being presented here is about the spiritual maturity and the advancing believer. This could be a good indicator as to your growth.

The 3rd quality of virtue love is the present passive indicative of paroxsuno + the negative. Virtue love is not provoked to anger. Virtue love in the soul is the deterrent; it is the deterrent to tantrums. It is the deterrent to that latent volcano of anger and emotion. This precludes the mental attitude sin of anger. The anger which causes antagonism, irrationality, etc. can be nipped in the bud. Anger is at the root of almost every mental attitude sin. If you can isolate anger and forget it and move on, you will preclude a lot of misery in life. Virtue love is the solution to one of the worst problems that people have in life. The horror with everything you see on television and talk radio. You react to people and you get angry. You react to road rage. There are many reasons for us to perpetuate anger.

Anger

1. Anger motivates cruelty and a flood of evil reactions. Prov. 27:4 Anger is a torrent which pours out of a person's soul. Prolonged anger engenders all sorts of cruelty and all sorts of injustice. It drowns others in your periphery. This is the epitome of turmoil to the soul. This is an antagonizing existence to those who give in to anger. Everyone is devastating in the fire of your anger. Bobby used to love to surf as a kid, and he can still remember the feel of wiping out on a very large wave. The largest he recalls is about 10 ft. Being under a wave of that size, you realize the awesome power of water. It rolls you and bounces you off the bottom. You become disoriented. You are driven deep and you often do not know which way is up or down. It is a frightening experience to be under a wave of that size. Anger is the same way. The anger is the wave, or the flood as it is called in Prov. 27:4. Cruelty and the emotions of rage which override the tolerance which people have for one another. Impersonal love is intolerable for the angry person. It gets only worse if you cannot put that anger behind you. When you begin to handle problems using anger and you begin to manipulate people using anger.

2. The angry person is a fool. Eccles. 7:9 do not blow off objectivity in your soul; maintain an even keel. Anger resides in the bosom of fools. When people are angry, they do foolish things. Everything is inflated; everything is an offense; everything is a reaction. People say very stupid things in anger. You often cannot take back things that you put out there in anger. When you lose it in anger, you are a fool. Virtue love precludes you speaking out of anger or acting out of anger. Anger is the fastest way to destroy a relationship. If you must deal with a problem which requires a thoughtful, measured response, then do not react in anger. Bad decisions are always forthcoming when made in anger. Bobby is going to give an example of David in anger; and there will be a bad decision which will be made worse. It is an amazing story of an amazing believer. He could rebound and isolate the sin and failure and he could keep moving; that is a man after God's own heart. You must rebound and isolate that anger. The unchecked anger lights up revenge and bitterness; so does cruelty and then revenge motivation.
3. Anger is never an isolated sin. Prov. 29:22: an angry man stirs up strife and a hot-tempered man abounds in transgressions. Anger is the cause of chain sinning. Rebound, isolate, move away from it; do not allow it to build other sins. This often requires faith rest and impersonal love. Heb. 12:15: See to it that no one falls short of the grace of God; Grace is the key to orientation to the Christian life. You must grow in grace and knowledge. Grace orientation is our objective. ...that no root of bitterness springing up causes trouble. The emotional sin of anger will breed bitterness and continue in your soul. You will relate to those other people in bitterness without any impersonal love. How often do husband and wife react to one another with bitterness and allow that to simmer and fester. ...and by it, many are defiled. No one escapes the effects of anger when they are full of it. It has wide-ranging effects.
4. Collective anger destroys a nation. It goes against authority-orientation; when you are angry at politicians and angry at the laws of the land. This is against Rom. 13:1–2 anger destroys authority-orientation in your soul. You must not get anger and bitterness in your soul over what you think is wrong with our nation. It destroys us and it destroys the nation.
5. Anger is associated with grieving the Holy Spirit. Eph. 4:30–31 when we are saved, the Holy Spirit seals us forever. We are sealed until the very day of redemption. Don't try to unseal the whole thing; we cannot; but this defeats the purpose for us being sealed. Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and slander be removed from you together with all other evil. This is a sin complex. You cannot be filled with God the Holy Spirit and filled with anger. There is no spiritual life when anger fills your soul. No spiritual life means no virtue love, which is the counterweight to your personal anger. Not rebounding anger is a direct and speedy path to reversionism. That is the quickest way to do it. Virtue love motivates you instead of anger.

6. Anger hinders effective prayer, and this is a mandate for effective service for us. Not one of us can set aside prayer as not our gift. We pray for ourselves, our needs, for friends, and for those with whom we are angry. “Therefore I want the men in every place to pray, lifting up holy hands, It is not the position; it is being in fellowship, which is the meaning of lifting up of the holy hands. Anger and prayer do not go together.
7. Anger causes misery to those in its periphery, always. Prov. 21:19: It is better to live in a desert land than with a quarrelsome and fretful woman. What do we get from this? A wasteland, a desert, a place where no one resides. It is empty, barren and inhospitable, not a place you would choose to reside. Where there is an angry female soul, there is a wasteland. She is the nuclear reactor. She is no longer a responder. It is better to be in a rock-filled, scorpion-ridden, desert-wilderness than to be with an angry woman. With her, he is in a wasteland (actually, worse than a wasteland). This is simply great wisdom; such a woman can make everyone miserable. She is hypersensitive; her problem solving device when crossed is to lose her temper; to make the other person pay, to make him pay from the fear of her wrath. She may be 5'2" but you do not want to face that anger. She wonders why her relationships consistently fail. That is the no-win outcome. It is a brick wall. Much of feminism is the anger of women; inordinately competitive; want to wipe out the good old boy network and replace it with the feminist network. They are hardened; they try to out-man men. Prov. 25:24 is quite similar. Prov. 22:24–25: Make no friendship with a man given to anger, nor go with a wrathful man, lest you learn his ways and entangle yourself in a snare. Every man gets angry now and again; but this is someone who exhibits a pattern of anger; a propensity to be angry, and it will eventually be directed toward you. No man can lead in anger. He is unreasonable and brutal. Not every angry man is brutal, but every brutal man is angry. Furthermore, he is not protective. He is self-centered and easily offended. Hypersensitivity makes him angry. Even a little infraction makes him angry. Do not marry; do not even datesuch a man. He will cause you misery and fear. Prov. 29:22
8. With virtue love, anger is averted. Angry people are miserable people and they make everyone else miserable. There is nothing good in anger. Eph. 4:26: although you may have become angry, in spite of that, stop sinning. Do not let the sun go down on your anger. Keep your anger to a minimum; rebound it in a hurry. You will get angry now and again. This passage is a must and a key to put aside destructive anger. Psalm 4:4: Tremble [with anger] and do not sin; mediate in your heart upon your bed and be still. There are legitimate causes for anger. However, the idea is, do not let it linger in your soul. How is that possible where anger seems justified? If you are the object of great injustice; if you have an unfaithful wife or an unfaithful husband, you can go on and on with good reasons to be angry. Mediate in your heart [on doctrine] upon your bed and be still. This parallels with, do not let the sun go down on your anger. It just means to meditate and to consider doctrine. Consider doctrine with great concentration. This is where you need to dig it out of your soul. You need to dig out all of that doctrine which you have. Go to a quiet, intimate place (like your own bed), and there, concentrate on applying the appropriate doctrine to the situation. This is the time to rebound, isolate the sin, and to forget it, and to apply one or more of the problem solving devices. You have promises and doctrine; use them. Do not let the sun go down on your anger. Things are always better in the morning; especially in the clarity of Bible doctrine. Everything seems worse at night and better in the morning. Give it the overnight test, but do not let the sun go down on your mental attitude sins. In the midst of an outburst of anger, be calm. A still soul is a wonderful soul; it is a person others want to be around. It is someone who does not lose control.

We will see David wallowing in anger and he will have a good reason for it. He had a lot of wives and a lot of kids and inevitably, something bad happens. Amnon, a son, lusted after his half sister Tamar. David got angry and his other son Absalom got angry as well and killed his half-brother.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not provoked to anger or resentful;

Lesson #884

1Cor. 13: April 26, 2009

Sunday 1

An angry person become a baboon, controlled by his emotions and not at all by objective thinking. Lingering anger can light off a set of other sins, as in chain sinning. Anger causes the believer to be perpetually out of fellowship.

On a corporate level, anger can lead to a national disaster. Consider that moments of anger have reverberated for years among peoples, family, friends and in nations. Anger has broken up marriages and started wars.

Virtue love is not provoked to anger. Spiritual advance is the only permanent solution. Faith rest and impersonal virtue love. With virtue love, anger is averted. Eph. 4:26–27: Be angry and do not sin; do not let the sun go down on your anger, and give no opportunity to the devil. Even though anger will occur, keep it to a minimum; keep short accounts when it comes to staying in fellowship. You will never stop reacting with anger in your lifetime. However, as you grow spiritually, anger will become less and less of a problem. Paul pulled this verse from Psalm 4:4: Be angry, and do not sin; ponder in your own hearts on your beds, and be silent. David was a renaissance man. He was a writer, poet, musician, war hero, and king. David recognizes that there is a cause for anger and David, above all people, understood anger and how it happens. His exhortation here is to not let it linger. You may be a bit incredulous here, saying, “How do we stop anger?” Too often it seems justified; we are injured or there is injustice involved. Divine viewpoint resides in the mind of Christ, which we store in the right lobe. Meditate in your bed and think in your heart. Intensely consider Bible doctrine in a private place and substitute Bible doctrine for the wrath in your soul. Stop the emotional turmoil. Even in the face of that irrational emotion of anger. Apply the faith rest drill. Remember the promises which God has given us. Stop being upset by every wind of problem. Stay awake until you reach an objective conclusion about your anger.

There is a time frame given here. There is so much turmoil in this world and we are to be still; we are to be calm in our souls. We are to keep a relaxed mental attitude in our souls. No one knows this better than David.

One of the great examples is what happened in the house of David himself, which is found in 2Sam. 13 concerning Absalom, Tamar and Amnon.

2Sam. 13:1–16: Now Absalom, David's son, had a beautiful sister, whose name was Tamar. And after a time Amnon, David's son, loved her. And Amnon was so tormented that he made himself ill because of his sister Tamar, for she was a virgin, and it seemed impossible to Amnon to do anything to her. But Amnon had a friend, whose name was Jonadab, the son of Shimeah, David's brother. And Jonadab was a very crafty man. And he said to him, "O son of the king, why are you so haggard morning after morning? Will you not tell me?" Amnon said to him, "I love Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister." Jonadab said to him, "Lie down on your bed and pretend to be ill. And when your father comes to see you, say to him, 'Let my sister Tamar come and give me bread to eat, and prepare the food in my sight, that I may see it and eat it from her hand.'" So Amnon lay down and pretended to be ill. And when the king came to see him, Amnon said to the king, "Please let my sister Tamar come and make a couple of cakes in my sight, that I may eat from her hand." Then David sent home to Tamar, saying, "Go to your brother Amnon's house and prepare food for him." So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house, where he was lying down. And she took dough and kneaded it and made cakes in his sight and baked the cakes. And she took the pan and emptied it out before him, but he refused to eat. And Amnon said, "Send out everyone from me." So everyone went out from him. Then Amnon said to Tamar, "Bring the food into the chamber, that I may eat from your hand." And Tamar took the cakes she had made and brought them into the chamber to Amnon her brother. But when she brought them near him to eat, he took hold of her and said to her, "Come, lie with me, my sister." She answered him, "No, my brother, do not violate me, for such a thing is not done in Israel; do not do this outrageous thing. As for me, where could I carry my shame? And as for you, you would be as one of the outrageous fools in Israel. Now therefore, please speak to the king, for he will not withhold me from you." But he would not listen to her, and being stronger than she, he violated her and lay with her. Then Amnon hated her with very great hatred, so that the hatred with which he hated her was greater than the love with which he had loved her. And Amnon said to her, "Get up! Go!" But she said to him, "No, my brother, for this wrong in sending me away is greater than the other that you did to me." But he would not listen to her.

2Sam. 13:17–20: He called the young man who served him and said, "Put this woman out of my presence and bolt the door after her." Now she was wearing a long robe with sleeves, for thus were the virgin daughters of the king dressed. So his servant put her out and bolted the door after her. And Tamar put ashes on her head and tore the long robe that she wore. And she laid her hand on her head and went away, crying aloud as she went. And her brother Absalom said to her, "Has Amnon your brother been with you? Now hold your peace, my sister. He is your brother; do not take this to heart." So Tamar lived, a desolate woman, in her brother Absalom's house.

The whole thing began when Amnon lusted after his sister, Tamar. He ended up raping her. That is what started this whole series of incidents. There would be anger, murder and revolution in the household of David. Because of all this, David got quite angry (v. 21). There was a clear procedure here. Trial, judgment and death. David's bad decision was to do nothing. He overlooked the problem, but he was still angry about it. David possibly considered Amnon to be his heir apparent, and he let this go.

David allows Absalom to take Amnon on a little outing. Underneath all of this, Absalom was extremely angry. He had planned to kill Amnon; he had his servants kill Amnon. David, when he heard all of this, was devastated.

2Sam. 13:21–39: When King David heard of all these things, he was very angry.

But Absalom spoke to Amnon neither good nor bad, for Absalom hated Amnon, because he had violated his sister Tamar. After two full years Absalom had sheepshearers at Baal-hazor, which is near Ephraim, and Absalom invited all the king's sons. And Absalom came to the king and said, "Behold, your servant has sheepshearers. Please let the king and his servants go with your servant." But the king said to Absalom, "No, my son, let us not all go, lest we be burdensome to you." He pressed him, but he would not go but gave him his blessing. Then Absalom said, "If not, please let my brother Amnon go with us." And the king said to him, "Why should he go with you?" But Absalom pressed him until he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him. Then Absalom commanded his servants, "Mark when Amnon's heart is merry with wine, and when I say to you, 'Strike Amnon,' then kill him. Do not fear; have I not commanded you? Be courageous and be valiant." So the servants of Absalom did to Amnon as Absalom had commanded. Then all the king's sons arose, and each mounted his mule and fled. While they were on the way, news came to David, "Absalom has struck down all the king's sons, and not one of them is left." Then the king arose and tore his garments and lay on the earth. And all his servants who were standing by tore their garments. But Jonadab the son of Shimeah, David's brother, said, "Let not my lord suppose that they have killed all the young men, the king's sons, for Amnon alone is dead. For by the command of Absalom this has been determined from the day he violated his sister Tamar. Now therefore let not my lord the king so take it to heart as to suppose that all the king's sons are dead, for Amnon alone is dead." But Absalom fled. And the young man who kept the watch lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, many people were coming from the road behind him by the side of the mountain. And Jonadab said to the king, "Behold, the king's sons have come; as your servant said, so it has come about." And as soon as he had finished speaking, behold, the king's sons came and lifted up their voice and wept. And the king also and all his servants wept very bitterly.

But Absalom fled and went to Talmai the son of Ammihud, king of Geshur. And David mourned for his son day after day. So Absalom fled and went to Geshur, and was there three years. And the spirit of the king longed to go out to Absalom, because he was comforted about Amnon, since he was dead.

David will allow Absalom to come back into the kingdom, but he would not allow Absalom into the courts. 2Sam. 14:21–22 So, Absalom continues in his own anger. One irrational bit of anger sets off another irrational bit of anger. However, Absalom was in a position to cause great mischief in David's court.

Absalom goes to Joab and asks Joab to smooth things over between David and Absalom. This did the trick, to some degree, but there was no true reconciliation. They were still all anger under the surface. David should have let the law take its course in this situation.

Anger brought a chain of sins to this entire incident. Absalom's plan was destruction and vengeance. He wanted to replace his father with himself. He did not believe that David properly dealt with this situation. Absalom was using David's love and inner turmoil against him. He was manipulating David. 2Sam. 16 David was blind sided. Absalom began to court the favor of those in the northern kingdom. Absalom got David to flee the kingdom, just as he had fled the kingdom earlier. Anger will destroy families and even destroy a nation.

Virtue love is not provoked to anger. Absalom then raped some of David's mistresses in public. In spite of all of this, David began to apply doctrine. He had to do something. It suddenly dawned upon him, it is time to think things out according to doctrine. Acts 13:22 calls David a man after God's Own heart. The key is the doctrine in David's soul. This stays with us for a long time. We might make mistakes and we might stay out of fellowship for awhile, but the doctrine in our souls preserves us. If we retain doctrine, then we can come back. David is stuck out in the desert with a few men. David applied doctrine.

If David continued in his anger, he would have been involved in a continuing sin of revenge and counter-revenge. We see this in the Middle East. David ended the series of revenge actions. Anger festered in Absalom's soul. When the rape and murder happened, Absalom should have gone to his father and let David and the law handle this. Anger is an emotional sin and is therefore irrational and devastating in its results.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not provoked to anger or resentful;

Lesson #885

1Cor. 13:5 April 26, 2009

Sunday 2

We are in 2Sam. 13–16. Anger is one of the most vicious mental attitude sins that there is. Anger here is what is destroying David and his family. It began with Amnon raping his half-sister Tamar; and since David did not do anything about this, Absalom killed Amnon. Joab was able to talk David to let Absalom back into the country, but David would still not see Absalom. David will not forgive Absalom nor will he apply the law. Absalom hatches a plot, which is based upon anger and bitterness. David is out in the wilderness being chased by Absalom who got an army together of David's men. David faintly comes to the realization of how anger was destroying everything. Psalm 54:1:

It is possible to respond to unjust circumstances with anger. It is always possible to put the matter in God's hands after rebounding. David failed to depend upon the justice of God in his anger. Now David has overcome his anger at Absalom. In this war, David speaks to those who are a part of his army. He said, "We are going to win this war and I will take back the throne, because God promised this to me. Promise me one thing, do not kill Absalom." David wanted his son spared. 2Sam. 18:5 Therefore, God handled the situation in David's favor.

God's justice will never be mocked. How can we have greater justice than God? Anger leads to vengeance leads to every other mental attitude sin. David got tired of being miserable, so he rebounded and got back with it. Absalom would pay with his life. God had promised Abraham a kingdom forever. This was God's justice, which should have been administered by the law of the land from the very beginning. The Mosaic Law was God's law. When the law is properly administered, then there is no need for vengeance and anger. David did not allow the law to deal with Amnon, and the end result was almost a complete division of the kingdom.

There is a rationale for us in anger. Remember that God's justice always takes care of a situation. Forget it and move on. It is a good thing to remember when we are treated unjustly. This is a promise of God. He will honor our spiritual advance.

When maltreated, do not let reaction become sin. Be angry and sin not. Do not violate the Royal Family Honor Code. If you violate the Royal Family Honor Code, you have tossed virtue right out the window. This is exactly what Eph. 4:26 warns against.: Do not let the sun go down on your anger. Anger will just simmer in your soul unless dealt with. This anger just simmers and simmers and it is a much more devastating anger than an outburst. In Eph. 4:26, the believer has already become angry. Anger is the motivation for so many other destructive sins. Anger expresses antagonism, resentment, the overt sins, as found in murder and revolution.

Anger and the Royal Family Honor Code

1. Two wrongs do not make a right. This is illustrated by this situation.
2. If you are wronged (which you will be), and injustice is perpetuated against you, anger is exactly the wrong reaction. That is the first action which you take. Psalm 4:4 get away from the source of that anger and meditate on doctrine.
3. Do this so more sins do not become involved. Perpetuating the anger lights a whole set of sins. It takes humility to reconcile with another person with whom you are angry.

4. You cannot build your happiness upon someone else's unhappiness. Make them as unhappy as you are. Make them retaliate so they feel your pain. Anger retaliates.
5. This is exactly what retaliation is meant to do and what virtue love precludes. You will never be satisfied and never be at peace by letting anger take hold and seek revenge. There is no peace this way; this will result in turmoil of the sin. You may be angry all the time. You might be angry about your drive to work, at your boss, at your hours, and it just builds and builds.
6. To punish someone in anger by revenge modus operandi, such as verbal sins or violence is to obstruct divine punishment and the justice of God. You are in the way of divine justice. If you get in the way of God, you get trampled. Get out of the way of a truck going 80 mph. When you try to punish someone in anger, it is an encroachment upon divine justice.
7. Arrogance comes from anger, and arrogance is the root of all mental attitude sins. When Satan became arrogant he probably became angry that he was not God and that some did not recognize his greatness. We are all in the middle of the Angelic Conflict because of arrogance and anger.

Righteous indignation. Is there such a thing as this? Bobby says yes, but this needs to be defined. We cannot make it equivalent to anger.

Righteous Indignation and Anger

1. Righteous indignation is a thought process based upon Bible doctrine in the soul. Impersonal love comes from the same thinking.
2. Righteous indignation comes from a clear understanding of a bad situation. When in a bad situation, you have a tendency to go ballistic. Righteous indignation is clearly understanding what is going on.
3. Righteous indignation is a response to unjust treatment by concentrating on your relationship to the Lord.
4. Anger focuses upon injury to self; righteous indignation is not subjective.
5. Righteous indignation is objective; it considers people and circumstances and how you feel is not the issue or your injury is not the issue.
6. Righteous indignation applies doctrinal standards instead of the explosion of anger.
7. So righteous indignation is an objective evaluation of circumstances which rejects a sinful, angry reaction. David's own understanding of justice should have resulted in righteous indignation and then he should have turned this over to the law. He was angry, but he did nothing.
8. Righteous indignation is the doctrinal response to injury. It is not a reaction.
9. It exposes the injustice in your own mind. You can see what is wrong or what is unjust. When in an emotional swirl, you may not even see what is unjust.
10. Then this can be used as an object lesson for correction. Parents and children are a perfect example. Children can really get under your skin. They have a knack for it. Your response must always be measured, so that the discipline is measured and appropriate. If you are angry, you lose. A child facing anger may either become afraid or rebellious or manipulative. Anger is destructive to this child's soul. This small amount of pain by spanking teaches the soul. A little pain is a lot better than a lifetime of pain from making bad decisions. If you are about to react to your child in anger. Saying, "Wait until your father comes home" is often a good idea. That way someone who is objective comes on the scene.

Mark 10:14: But when Jesus saw it, he was indignant and said to them, "Let the children come to me; do not hinder them, for to such belongs the kingdom of God." Jesus is talking to His own disciples. This statement has been very poor applied. Jesus was reprimanding disciples from keeping children away from Him. Jesus was not expressing anger against His disciples; but He spoke strongly to make a point and to get into their souls. This was a response to something that was wrong. Be angry and sin not. This was a rational reason for allowing these children to come to Him. When he default to anger, we lose immediately.

We are all children in need of guidance. Jesus was revealing the attitude for anyone to approach Him. Mark 10:15: "Whoever does not receive the kingdom of God like a child will not be saved." A child is trusting and dependent. A child does not have to earn his parents love and protection. A child needs his parents to provide for him. We are unable to approach God on our own merit; we approach as children. No matter what we are, God takes care of us. As children, we must trust in Jesus Christ and be fully dependent upon salvation and God's work in our lives.

Jesus was not directing anger toward His disciples; He was explaining to them and giving them a life-lesson. Jesus was going to explain in a powerful way that they would not forget. Be righteous. Sin not.

Matt. 23:13–26 for the next lesson.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not provoked to anger or resentful;

Lesson #886	1Cor. 13: May 3, 2009	Sunday 1

If we understand the characteristics of this chapter, then we understand everything that we need in order to deal with other people and circumstances in our live. Virtue love does not act dishonorably [abandoning the Royal Family Honor Code]; it does not seek its own [it is not self-centered, preoccupied with self]; virtue love is not provoked [to anger] [or, virtue love deters us from defaulting to anger, or the smouldering of anger in our souls] anger is a mental attitude sins so closely associated with mental attitude sins. You can become cruel when involved in anger; and it can lead to criminality. You will recognize all of those sins as problematic. Now you understand or you should understand what anger actually is and what it does to you.

What about when someone does something which is unequivocally evil toward you; or when you confront evil in this life? Isn't anger justified and legitimate? Nope. Anger is never justified in your soul. Anger always makes a bad situation worse. Injustice is not corrected with anger but perpetuated by anger. You will retaliate or you will get even or you will seek revenge. More sins become involved and they perpetuate the anger as well. There is a failure in your soul to orient to the grace principles of life.

The purpose of angry retaliation is always to assuage your own hurt and to make your antagonist hurt. You do not mind giving it back to them. You cannot build your happiness on someone else's unhappiness or pain in life. Divine discipline is for correction and instruction in righteousness. Anger negates all of that. Our mandate is to express virtue love under all circumstances. Anger simply violates the Royal Family Honor Code. When you are outside of the Royal Family Honor Code, you are in effect, a Christian criminal. When you do get angry, then rebound quickly.

Virtue love is not quick to take offense. Without it, people have a hair trigger when it comes to taking offense. This is true on a national scale as well, as we see this in the Middle East; it comes from hatred and anger and we see it there every day.

There is such a thing as righteous indignation. Theologically, this is not a synonym for anger. This is a response of indignation as versus and emotional response of anger. Mental attitude sins versus and problem solving devices applied in virtue love. This crucial appraisal brings to us a crucial understanding of a bad situation. You must approach injustice and unfair treatment while being in fellowship, by concentrating on your relationship with Jesus Christ. Anger focuses on the injury to yourself and then retaliation. Anger is an expression of arrogance. It is all about me; someone has said something bad to me or done something mean to me, and I respond. This is occupation with ourselves as opposed to occupation with Christ. Virtue love rejects any form of retaliation.

Righteous indignation is objective and a consideration of people and their sin natures. It is easy to get angry when someone else's sin nature is directed toward you.

Bobby doesn't care about how we think politically; but we often have a reaction to what is going on. Righteous indignation is objective about these things; our eyes are on the Lord and no on ourselves.

The spiritual life is the life of a relaxed mental attitude.

So righteous indignation can be used as an objective response but it can also be used in our soul as a gentle object lesson. With anger, there is a retaliation and a -feud starts.

Mark 10:14–15: But when Jesus saw it, he was indignant and said to them, "Let the children come to me; do not hinder them, for to such belongs the kingdom of God. Truly, I say to you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God like a child shall not enter it."

Jesus was using these children as an object lesson; and he was dealing with the ignorance and lack of doctrine in the souls of the apostles. He saw that the disciples were perpetuating ignorance, so He spoke out strongly against the disciples and their actions. He did this in a controlled and measured way. Jesus was teaching salvation and appropriation of same, and He objectively evaluated these disciples and He was going to correct their actions with great force.

Everything that Jesus did was instruction, and it all centered on His Person and work.

John 21:5 and Jesus spoke to His disciples. They were out fishing and they were distraught. He called out to His disciples and called them children. Are we not all children in need of recognition of and approach to our Lord. The indignation of Jesus was about denying access to Jesus.

He expected them to come to Him as a child, to listen to the message and to believe what He says. A child should not have to earn his parents care and love. We are all children, unable to approach God on our own merit.

This was not anger directed to the disciples, but an object lesson concerning God's grace.

Matt. 23:13–36 is another example of righteous indignation.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not provoked to anger or resentful;

Lesson #887

1Cor. 13: May 3, 2009

Sunday 2

Matt. 23:13–36 is another example of righteous indignation.

This time our Lord's righteous indignation was directed to someone other than His disciples.

Jesus does this righteous indignation thing here and it is directed toward the scribes and pharisees. This is much stronger language than just shame on you! Jesus was exposing their hypocrisy and their wrongdoing. These were keepers of the Law and they looked down on anyone who did not keep the Law as well as they did. Did our Lord have a right to do this? Of course; Jesus was expressing objective truth and there were hundreds of bystanders who heard what He said and they listened to the corrections which He made. He was correcting injustice by exposing the legalism which was taking place in the Temple. These were the very ones who would crucify Him. Jesus spoke, when it would have been a lot easier to let it go.

“Come to Me as children” with an open mind, ready to learn. His indignation was a teaching device by which to present true doctrine. Some of these men did respond, like Nicodemus, who approach Jesus by night and asked about “What must I do to be saved?”

Application to us

1. Righteous indignation may be the only thing open to us; be angry and sin not.
2. You must think and speak doctrine.
3. You must trust in the supreme court of heaven. Let God handle the rest. You recognize the evil, the problems, and you see doctrine and you think through. You let God handle the rest. That is the way to a relaxed mental attitude. This way you defer the turmoil in your soul.

Jesus expresses His indignation toward Peter: Matth. 16:22–23: And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him, saying, "Far be it from you, Lord! This shall never happen to you." But he turned and said to Peter, "Get behind me, Satan! You are a hindrance to me. For you are not setting your mind on the things of God, but on the things of man." Peter was angry with Jesus Christ and he began to denounce Him in front of everyone else. Jesus calls Peter Satan. Jesus had just announced that He would die and be resurrected (v. 21). Peter heard this and was incensed, and He did not understand how Jesus could be the Messiah and then die. It did not compute to Peter. Peter was denying the real mission of Christ on earth. Peter had to learn, and, as usual, he needed to learn the hard way. Jesus Christ was short and He was forceful with Peter. Peter was mad, “How dare You say, You are going to die. You are the King.” He was counting on someone and they disappointed him. Jesus was teaching Peter that, even in disappointment, you do not respond in anger. Peter also needed to know that he himself would have a mission to represent the risen Messiah. Now he would understand his mission in life. Salvation first and then the kingdom of God; the cross must precede the crown.

Num. 25:4 2Kings 24:20 and many other passages deal with the anger of the Lord; or the wrath of God, found in the New Testament to: Rom. 1:18 Col. 3:6. These are anthropopathisms, ascribing human characteristics to God. We now have an insight into God. God cannot be angry or wrathful in the sinful sense as we can. Anger in God expresses His attitude toward sin and unrighteousness.

God’s wrath was poured out on the Lord Jesus Christ for all of us. We are no longer condemned; as He was condemned in our stead.

Principles of anger

1. Anger destroys virtue in the believer. It destroys the function of impersonal love, which is one of the great problem solving devices which we need in life. Relationships bring problems with them. Impersonal love is God's solution to all of these conflicts. Eph. 5:26 anger destroys marriages and other personal relationships.
2. Believers may express righteous displeasure or righteous indignation. It is called anger, but it does not destroy the virtue of the subject. It is the believer's measured response to injustice and wrongdoing. Bobby taught Rom. 13 at the California conference. Measured response to injustice and unrighteousness and to wrongdoing. It is not to react; it is not revolution; it is not assassination; you respect authority. Authority-orientation. Even if you do not respect the person in the office, you must respect the office. You have no right to be angry at your friends, at your tv or at the news organizations.
3. Righteous indignation should never be mistaken for judging or for self righteousness.
4. Anger is a sin which violates the Royal Family Honor Code. As believers in Jesus Christ, we are called sons of God.
5. Impersonal virtue love is the problem solving device which counters anger. If we cannot apply virtue love, then we cannot deal with anger and problems. Otherwise, we are using rebound every 10 seconds. A relaxed mental attitude is the opposite of anger. Anger means your soul is in turmoil. You do not have to go off like a Roman candle. Nobody resists anger when they are provoked unless you have developed your spiritual life.
6. When sinful anger is perpetuated, it becomes the motivation for many sins. When you perpetuate a sinful anger, you are just getting started. Never let the sun set on your anger. We have sin natures and we will react now and again in anger. But do not let anger smoulder like a volcano, waiting to explode. You have enough objectivity to recognize when you are going off. One of the most basic problem solving devices which we have is the faith rest drill. There are all sorts of promises which we can use. Put it in the Lord's hands and walk away from it. If it is not resolved quickly, you will develop more wreckage and there will be many sins built upon anger. Out of control anger is a quick way to enter into reversionism.
7. All unbelievers in spiritual death is akin to those in reversionism. Unbelievers are called vessels of wrath. You must be born again, or the wrath of God abides on you. Or, he who believes on Him is not condemned; but he who believes not is condemned already, because he had not believed in the Name of the uniquely-born Son of God. Eph. 2:3 tells us that unbelievers are, by nature, the children of wrath, destined for eternal condemnation.
8. Anger is the other side of the coin of jealousy; and especially when directed toward another person. When you are jealous, you are angry. What do you gain from jealousy? What is the point? There is no point to it; there is no gain to be gotten; there is no personal benefit. Even if the person involved is worthy of your jealousy.

9. Criminally is the function of the angry person. Unchecked anger, unchecked reaction and unchecked reaction toward other people. You want to hurt them and sometimes it goes personal.
10. People who spend their time in anger have at least a temporary loss of spiritual self esteem. It is not a complete loss. Be angry and sin not. You need to by occupation with Christ and share the happiness of God.

Matt. 23:13 "But woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you shut the kingdom of heaven in people's faces. For you neither enter yourselves nor allow those who would enter to go in.

Matt. 23:14 [Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you devour widows' houses and for a pretense you make long prayers; therefore you will receive the greater condemnation.]

Matt. 23:15 Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you travel across sea and land to make a single proselyte, and when he becomes a proselyte, you make him twice as much a child of hell as yourselves.

Matt. 23:16 "Woe to you, blind guides, who say, 'If anyone swears by the temple, it is nothing, but if anyone swears by the gold of the temple, he is bound by his oath.'

Matt. 23:17 You blind fools! For which is greater, the gold or the temple that has made the gold sacred?

Matt. 23:18 And you say, 'If anyone swears by the altar, it is nothing, but if anyone swears by the gift that is on the altar, he is bound by his oath.'

Matt. 23:19 You blind men! For which is greater, the gift or the altar that makes the gift sacred?

Matt. 23:20 So whoever swears by the altar swears by it and by everything on it.

Matt. 23:21 And whoever swears by the temple swears by it and by him who dwells in it.

Matt. 23:22 And whoever swears by heaven swears by the throne of God and by him who sits upon it.

Matt. 23:23 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you tithe mint and dill and cumin, and have neglected the weightier matters of the law: justice and mercy and faithfulness. These you ought to have done, without neglecting the others.

Matt. 23:24 You blind guides, straining out a gnat and swallowing a camel!

Matt. 23:25 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you clean the outside of the cup and the plate, but inside they are full of greed and self-indulgence.

Matt. 23:26 You blind Pharisee! First clean the inside of the cup and the plate, that the outside also may be clean.

Matt. 23:27 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you are like whitewashed tombs, which outwardly appear beautiful, but within are full of dead people's bones and all uncleanness.

Matt. 23:28 So you also outwardly appear righteous to others, but within you are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness.

Matt. 23:29 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you build the tombs of the prophets and decorate the monuments of the righteous,

Matt. 23:30 saying, 'If we had lived in the days of our fathers, we would not have taken part with them in shedding the blood of the prophets.'

Matt. 23:31 Thus you witness against yourselves that you are sons of those who murdered the prophets.

Matt. 23:32 Fill up, then, the measure of your fathers.

Matt. 23:33 You serpents, you brood of vipers, how are you to escape being sentenced to hell?

Matt. 23:34 Therefore I send you prophets and wise men and scribes, some of whom you will kill and crucify, and some you will flog in your synagogues and persecute from town to town,

Matt. 23:35 so that on you may come all the righteous blood shed on earth, from the blood of innocent Abel to the blood of Zechariah the son of Barachiah, whom you murdered between the sanctuary and the altar.

Matt. 23:36 Truly, I say to you, all these things will come upon this generation.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not provoked to anger or resentful;

Lesson #888

1Cor. 13: May 6, 2009

Wednesday

λογίζομαι + the negative. Several meanings to consider, to deliberate, to conclude; to calculate, to credit. A philosopher considering all of the facts and coming to a rational conclusion. The second group of meanings is a financial one; to add something to the books. With the negative, we are not to credit to an account, to not keep a record. In fact, the believer removes something from his books. What he does not credit to an account or keep a record of is an evil, a wrongdoing. Virtue love does not keep a record of evil.

Reflexive means, that we keep no record for ourselves; we make the decision ourselves to not keep a record of the evil someone has done to us. When you are wronged, you do not mark it down for later; you forgive and you forget. In practical terms, this means not to heed, not to plan revenge. What we are dealing with here is a retaliation. This is the idea that something must be done about it. You do not mark this person or circumstance down in your book to take care of later, to let simmer on the back burner. Anger simmers and then it breaks out. Anger has caused you to put something down on your ledger. There is a direct Biblical mandate for no direct retaliation. Heb. 10:30: Vengeance is Mine; I will repay, says the Lord. Vengeance is an anthropopathism. This is not human vengeance as we think of it. God does not return evil for evil. We have a tendency to superimpose upon God our own characteristics...like of human love. We make God a lover as we see that to be. That is when they say, "How would a loving God let this or that happen?" But God's love cannot be separated from justice or righteousness.

You might pray crush these people for what they have done to me and call it a prayer of imprecation. When you do that, all you are doing is taking account for yourself. God knows all of the facts. He knows what injustice is. He knows what our part may be in this. It is easy for us to think we are not at fault. God knows whether we caused the problems ourselves or not. God has all of the facts and His righteousness is perfect. God's vengeance is always from His perfect righteousness. So His vengeance cannot be sinful. God cannot overlook any evil.

God's love cannot be detached from His justice and righteousness; nor can any part of His character be detached from any other part. God's policy of justice against injustice. When there is evil perpetrated against you, it is God's justice. There is always something to be paid when we are wronged; divine justice is always there, so we can relax.

So many Christians react in Christian activism. They are angry and they cannot relax. They have no faith rest. God's justice and righteousness are perfect. We do not know all of the facts and He does. Always defer to the justice of God when you are tempted.

Do not every participate in illegal activities to attempt to right a wrong. Bobby will guarantee us that, if we do something along these lines, God's justice will not leave us alone either. First of all, we will be miserable, as vengeance is a matter of bitterness in our soul. Injustice makes people bitter. Virtue love takes so much of this out of our lives. You will also receive your own recompense from God. Is that clear?

It is not our place to ever preempt God's justice.

The Evil of Vengeance

1. Vengeance is taking matters into your own hands rather than leaving the evil to be handled by the justice of God.
2. Do not depend upon the supreme court of heaven. The justice of God sits always there. To not depend upon the supreme court of heaven is always a departure from God's plan. Never take your own revenge. There are no exceptions. Leave room for the wrath of God. Let God do it. We find this by Paul, Moses and the author of Hebrews.

3. What is the motivation for following this counsel of Vengeance is Mine? Grace orientation. All of the problem solving device of the mature believer. The mature believer can apply virtue love. The one who can apply virtue love from his soul.
4. This is the principle of leaving all matters of injustice in the Lord's hands. You might already be plotting as what to do after the service.
5. By leaving these things with the Lord, perfect justice will always be administered by perfect God. Let God's perfect justice and righteousness apply the perfect reckoning for sin. Psalm 94:1: Oh God, O Lord of Vengeance, sihne forth; rise up, O Judge of the Earth. Render recompense to the arrogant. David could have taken vengeance against a whole lot of people.
6. God is never mocked with impunity. You mock God by pushing His justice aside. No one gets away with anything. No one gets away scot free. The justice of God never allows it. Remember that about yourself.
7. You may never know how God handles an injustice against you. You may want to know, thinking it will make you feel better. You don't have to see someone hurt.
8. There is a great faith rest rationale when evil is done to you. The God of Justice is still in His heaven. You do not want the vengeance of God directed against you.
9. If you must retaliate; if you just cannot help yourself, then you have taken the matter out of the hands of God, and the retaliation will never be good enough. They will never hurt enough. It never satisfies; ever.
10. If you take matters into your own hands, it is just another category of human injustice, your injustice. You have perpetrated your own injustice against someone else.
11. Human vengeance is evil given for evil. Always seek after that which is good; even those who show you injustice and hate. Divine good is produced by us in the face of evil. Do not seek to repay evil for evil. If you want to repay someone, then you have no impersonal love.
12. You must, in the face of injustice, perpetrate divine good. If your enemy is hungry, then you feed him. If he is thirsty, you give him a drink. By doing so, you heap coals upon their heads. This is our application of the Royal Family Honor Code. We do not seek personal vindication or vengeance. That is the result of impersonal virtue love. Feed them is benevolence.
13. The Royal Family Honor Code demands that the matter be dismissed by you and turned over to the Lord. Dismiss it from your soul and give it over to the Lord. That is occupation with Christ. That is using all the faith rest rationales. Getting even is prohibited by the Royal Family Honor Code.
14. Virtue love and the honor code are almost synonymous. Virtue love is the motivation and the honor code is the law.
15. The honor code of the royal family demands the satisfaction be administered only by the justice of God. You are not on the field of honor to wound someone or to kill them. Your honor code demands that the justice of God be satisfied and He will be satisfied. His righteous recompense is far beyond what we can exact.

16. The justice of God possesses all of the facts in every case. We can rest assured that He will never make an error in judgment. His justice is justice. So many complain about the courts of our country. They are more like to perpetrate injustice or a lawyer robbed me of justice, etc. An email Bobby got, a Montana man wrote to court to say that he did not have to go to jury duty because the courts were no good. You can always trust in the justice of God.
17. The only means of real satisfaction for evil or wrongs suffered; evil perpetrated against yourself is divine justice. Our own justice is always being justified by what we pay somebody back with. We slap someone else with the gauntlet. We cannot use the excuse, I will take justice for myself to act for God. I have turned it over to God and the supreme court of heaven is in charge. Do not take satisfaction in God's discipline of others. That is still a mental attitude of taking vengeance against others. It is tough not to smirk when someone does not get their comeuppance.
18. Personal satisfaction gained from inflicting injury is no satisfaction ever. It causes all sorts of new mental attitude sins for us it invites further retaliation.
19. Vengeance becomes a vicious cycle of more vengeance. This is the origin of blood feuds between friends, families, tribes and nations. One of the greatest examples of this is the Middle East. There is a lot of vendetta involved.
20. If you throw in some religious legalism here, it is as bad as it gets. One of the most evil places is the Congress of the United States trading evil for evil, self righteous arrogance over and over again.
21. All royal family honor squabbles require the divine actions of God; two wrongs do not make a right.
22. To add wrong to wrong brings on a new set of problems for us. Rather than divine justice directed toward the one who wronged us, we get a piece of their action.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not provoked to anger or resentful;...

Lesson #889

1Cor. 13:5 May 7, 2009

Thursday

No tributes to moms on Mother's Day. Bobby has a new-found respect for mothers. Mothers have techniques which they use to train the little ones.

Virtue love does not take into account a wrong suffered. You do not make book on people who are unjust or who have brought you harm. Do not bring in the bone-crushers to collect on an unpaid debt. There is no repaying evil for evil. No repaying injustice with injustice. When you make book on personal injury, you let injury fester in your soul.

Remember that God is in charge is the dispensing of justice. When you are hurt and you are wronged and you have suffered these things, your turn it over to God.

The justice of God and His righteousness are never separated from His love. Discipline is for our benefit and it is a sign of benevolence. Human retribution is never designed for another's benefit. Vengeance will follow mental attitude sins when you want to pay them back. You must leave justice and a reckoning in the hands of the Lord.

To add wrong to wrong or evil for evil brings an entirely new set of problems for you. If you bring your own justice to bear on them, then you get a piece of their discipline. It comes to you. You need to leave room for the justice of God. Do not close the door to the justice of God. The supreme court of heaven is always in session. There is never a time when God is not utilizing justice on our behalf. God is not mocked; it is His justice. That, you can make book on. That you can inculcate into your soul. You must not entertain hatred, vindictiveness, and you must never seek personal vengeance.

The honor code demands that you extend impersonal virtue love. Taking vengeance and retribution in the human realm is all about yourself.

Vengeance

1. Vengeance is connected with the inability to control arrogance and vindictiveness. This is your inability to control anger.
2. Arrogance + being wronged without virtue love in the mix engenders retaliation in one form or another.
3. When people get hurt and they dwell on it, they become vindictive and then they want to hurt back. Keep short accounts. You now recognize that virtue love is maturing in the Christian life.
4. There is no more unstable or miserable person than the one who yearns for retribution.
5. The hypersensitive person is the one who goes off; and they think everything is directed toward them as hurtful. You may always be in the mode of retaliation. That is the epitome of arrogance self-centeredness. When you are having a reckoning with someone, it is all about you.
6. Anger combined with arrogance perpetrates vengeance on a monstrous scale.
7. Extreme anger is related to extreme cruelty and inflicts extremes of vengeance. The root of much of anti-Semitism. Extreme cruelty, vengeance and hatred; and much of it is irrational. Haman's vengeance was not enough; slaughtering a large number of Jews was not enough. He was eaten up with anti-Semitism. He wanted to wipe out all of the Jews. Haman avenged himself to his own death. Mordecai was a little thrown off, but he let God take care of everything. There is nothing but vengeance and retribution and a vicious cycle of terror in the Middle East. The vengeance of the Arabs will not destroy them.
8. God protects His people for vendetta when they leave things in His hands. You need to apply impersonal virtue love when you have a great temptation to strike back. You want to tell everyone what you know. Do not try countering with vengeance. You can be totally relaxed in the face of that sort of antagonism. Impersonal love and occupation with Christ. Do not become occupied with yourself.
9. Then get completely out of God's way. Let Him deal with those who have caused you problems. No counter attacks, no counter-vindictiveness, no mental attitude sins, no gossiping. Vengeance is always His. Rely on His justice as you rely on His love.

1Cor. 13:5 or rude [virtue love does not behave dishonorably]. It does not insist on its own way [virtue love does not seek its own self-interest, virtue love is not preoccupied with self]; it is not provoked to anger or resentful;...

Imagine seeing something which is completely unjust. Someone who cheats a good friend, overlooks them for a job or a promotion; lies about them; and this upsets you. When you care about someone, you hate to hear about their antagonism. You might react in conjunction to the injustice. You might get angry. There is a lot of injustice in our country and sometimes it causes more injustice and sometimes it makes you mad, and it is especially affecting if it is done to a friend. But you should not counsel them to seek vengeance. You have just approved of injustice. You have rejoiced in unrighteousness because you have become a part of it.

It is all about your thought process; it is all about what you do. You think it is all for their welfare. When you get involved in something like this, the application of virtue love is to tell them to forget this injustice. Let the supreme court of heaven handle it. Put it in the Lord's hands.

Do not rejoice in unrighteousness; rejoice in the truth. Use the faith rest drill. In the face of injustice, there is only one injustice for you. Occupation with Christ and sharing the happiness with God.

The first rejoice is the present active indicative of χαίρω = to rejoice, to be delighted in something. You will be hurt. Virtue love does not preclude you from being hurt or injured. It helps you to deal with it. We are all human and we can all be hurt. It can linger but you do not let it fester. This is virtue love and that is how it is handled. The old negative. Ου. This is something that a person should not delight in. Then we have a prepositional phrase: ἐπι ἀδικία in the locative singular. Does not delight at unrighteousness; does not delight in unrighteousness. This is big and this is general. You do not rejoice in the wickedness of the cosmic system. This covers everything; every problem. Remember the cosmic system is Satan's world system. They are, in fact, evil. The cosmic system is evil. In reversionism, we wallow in the cosmic system. It is great fun for us there. The cosmic system attacks believers in so many ways. It comes at us in so many ways. This is what virtue love opposes. This is big. The entire cosmic system and all of its machinations are involved. This battle opposes grace and doctrine. Virtue love opposes Satan's system and doctrine. This evil is Satan's strategy for winning the Angelic Conflict. You cannot delight in his cosmic system. It is so easy to delight in the cosmic system. We are starting to encompass the entire spiritual life. Virtue love is one of our front line defenses. As it builds, so does the problem solving devices in the right lobe of our soul. Satan is the great deceiver. Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. He is the greatest deceiver in the universe. He deceived the woman originally. We are all the beneficiaries of that deception. We are all born spiritually dead. Religion is the greatest deception in our world.

It is counterfeit to our relationship. Virtue love epitomizes relationships. In the case of virtue love, it is relationship with other people; and it is the opposite of the cosmic system.

How does Bobby know that this is cosmic wickedness and not personal wickedness? This is wider and more important.

1Cor. 13:6 it does not rejoice at wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth.

Lesson #890

1Cor. 13:6 May 10, 2009

Sunday 1

We are studying positive and negative aspects of virtue love. We study what we are and what we are not. Virtue love brings tranquility and peace of soul, a peace which passes all understanding. It does not seek reprisal in the face of personal insult or injury.

V. 6 moves into a universal quality. Virtue love does not rejoice in unrighteousness but it rejoices with the truth. Χαίρω = to rejoice, to be delighted in something. This connotes a happiness of soul. A contentment. Psalm 94:19 In the multitude by my thoughts within me, Your comforts delight my soul. We are always at ease; we are always possessors of a relaxed mental attitude because of the virtue love in our souls.

With this verb, we have the ubiquitous ου, which is the negative. Virtue love does not delight in unrighteousness. This is ἀδικία which we think of often as sin or personal sin. However, this has a much wider application. Here, we are dealing with cosmic wrongdoing. This is the universal aspect of unrighteousness or injustice. This is Satan's world system; his total scheme and policies in opposition to God, beginning from before man and continuing now to this point in time. Satan is the ruler of this world. His policies embody all evil. Adikia is Satan's tactic for winning. It includes evil and human good, which is one of Satan's most potent weapons.

Satan's good in this world; his attempts to counterfeit the goodness of God are all a part of his cosmic strategy. He uses good to discredit and to defeat God. This is what virtue love opposes. The entire cosmic system and all of its machinations. It opposes grace and doctrinal orientation. It opposes all that God has provided for the believer in this world. We do not delight as believers in Jesus Christ in the cosmic system; we delight in the system of God.

1Cor. 13:6 it [virtue love] does not rejoice at unrighteousness, but rejoices with the truth.

Lesson #891

1Cor. 13:6 May 10, 2009

Sunday 2

ἀδικία is not just sin, but it is universal; it is representative of all evil in this world. How do I know that? I could just be making this up? The first phrase is in contrast with the second phrase: ...it [virtue love] does not rejoice at unrighteousness, but rejoices with the truth. The word here is ἀληθεια which is the personification of God Himself. He is the way, the truth and the life. Truth is that personification. What we do is συγκαίρω = to delight in. .

The depravity to which we are born, Satan's system as versus the truth of Jesus Christ. V. 6 is virtue love and it is God's entire system, found within the context of virtue love. It gives us an overarching place in God's plan.

Philosophers for centuries have come up with philosophies which are relative and there are various systems of thinking, all of which have holes in them. You can fit all of these philosophies in either the cosmic system or the divine system. There is no other. That is absolute and they are opposed to one another. Whatever is of God, is in the divine system; and all other things are found within the cosmic system.

As believers, we must oppose the cosmic system. If we impose the one, we delight in the other. God's system of truth is the content. Bible doctrine is given a universal definition that it is.

Pastors are always saying, Bible doctrine, can't we do something nice and sweet rather than all this Bible doctrine all the time? We delight in truth. The more doctrine you have, the more you understand the system. Christian ministers can be a part of the cosmic system.

Satan's system impacts our lives in almost every way. So much of the Christian world believe that the good deeds which they do, the world smiles upon. Satan is an angel of light. His own good is a part of the cosmic system. This includes any good that we do apart from the filling of the Holy Spirit. Human good always has unintended consequences. No matter how good you are, no matter how many deeds you do, you will never gain the approbation of God.

God is impressed with His system; with His Word; and the extent to which we use His system, in that way we gain, as it were, God's favor. We need to be living in His system. We need to be in His truth.

Bob called this truth the divine dynasphere, which is found in Christian Integrity.

The divine dynasphere is God's power sphere. Bob also called it the sphere of love, which is a synonymous term. A system of power and a system of love. From God's love to us to the development of virtue love in the soul. This encompasses every aspect of love in our lives. It refers to the entire spectrum of the Christian life. It is the system by which we are to use throughout our lives. From our new birth to our death, we are to live in the sphere of love. This is the system of virtue love.

Unfortunately, we often live in the cosmic system, when we are carnal or reversionistic.

8 Aspects of the Christian Life

The divine dynasphere was an illustration. Jesus Christ used symbols so that we can understand Him better. Pastor-teachers use this so that we can understand God's truth. The idea is to make truth clear. The divine dynasphere was developed over several years.

1. The power in His system is the filling of the Holy Spirit, and every believer-priest can be filled with the Spirit. Without this power sphere, we cannot be a part of God's plan. Otherwise, we are simply trying to please Him through our own power and ability.
2. Basic Christian modus operandi. This is in His system of love. Rebound and the faith rest drill. Without this, we cannot be a part of His system. We will all sin. Rebound allows us to get back into His system. The importance of anger management. Rebound and put the sin behind you. Do not let the sun go down on your anger. You will compound your mental attitude sins. That is what virtue love precludes. This is why we spent so much time studying virtue love.
3. You must have an attitude of teachability. God's system is to grow in grace and humiliiy. It requires authority-orientation. If you do not recognize who is sovereign, then you are not authority-orientated. Some of you need to examine your own love and pray that is not God's love. A new book, the Unfailing Love of God will be coming out of R.B. Thieme ministries.
4. Spiritual momentum. You build momentum in a race as you move forward. The momentum to to get you to your stride. The application of Bible doctrine. You mus keep going forward. If you do not advance, you retreat into the cosmic system.
5. Motivational virtue. 25 years ago, Bob taught about motivational virtue. This is personal love for God. Bob spent his life studying and we often took it for granted. Never take God's system for granted. Bob put a tremendous amount of time into the truth which he presented to us.
6. Functional virtue. This is the application of impersonal love to all mankind. This includes personal love for a few. This is virtue love. This is parallel to the virtue love which we have been studying. We live in this system; we function in this system.
7. Momentum testing. You do not go through life without difficulties. Some of the testing is prosperity testing. It is easy to think, I've done all this, I am in happy land. If you are within God's system, the sphere of love is what we use. We accelerate our spiritual growth by momentum testing. The intensified attack of the cosmic system.
8. Reaching spiritual maturity. This includes sharing the happiness of God, mastery of the details of life, and occupation with Christ. You are occupation with Christ and you share His happiness. This means we have the capability of the same happiness of Jesus Christ. Even though Jesus Christ spent 6 hours on the cross, 3 of which were dying for our sins, and he maintained a happiness and a tranquility of soul, even in the worst circumstances.

This provides us protection and escape from the cosmic system; and this is alternative to functioning under the sin nature, which we continue to possess throughout our lives. We can easily fall back into that old pattern of the cosmic system, which is where the reversionistic believer resides. Satan's cosmic system versus God's system of virtue love.

1Cor. 13:6 ...it [virtue love] does not rejoice at unrighteousness, but rejoices with the truth.

there are two perspectives in this world: divine viewpoint and human viewpoint. 1Cor. 13:6 reveals these two ways of thinking to us. There is God's system and the cosmic system. The latter has many forms and many human philosophies. The cosmic system consists of the absolute evil of Satan. It also refers to relative human viewpoint, unbelief, etc. Anything which does not fall within God's system is of the cosmic system. The context of our passage is all about virtue love.

The cosmic system is anathema to the believer. You cannot live in both systems at the same time. They are incompatible.

Virtue love does not delight in unrighteousness. This goes far beyond simple sins. Αδίκια goes far beyond that type of unrighteousness. This is all forms of wickedness, and evil and all forms of injustice in Satan's cosmic system. Everyone seems to have an idea as to what evil is, and usually, it is stuff that they do not like. Some people's evil can be another's evil. Most people have some comprehension of that guy in the red epidermis and the forked tail, but, even though that is not what he looks like, that what he is involved with is evil. His system of evil includes systems of good. This is not an oxymoron. Evil can be good. Human good, although projecting the outward appearance of God, is not of God. Human good is within the cosmic system and it is a counterfeit of good. It is produced by Satan.

2Cor. 11:13–14: For such men are false apostles, deceitful workmen, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ. And no wonder, for even Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. If Satan can disguise himself as an angel of light, then so can men attempt to produce human good. Why would Satan do this? He is attempting to be like the Most High. He is trying to show that he can run the world as well as God. He is trying to be goodness. Any good deed outside of God's system is not of God. Even human good deeds can be contrary. These are good deeds which glorify humanity. Ultimately, they glorify the ruler of this world.

Attempts at human good often have unintended consequences in the realm of human good. One example is the well-intended philosophy of socialism. It is designed to bring equality and prosperity to all people. But, to fulfill the promise of socialism, many freedoms are removed. Living standards are reduced. The unintended consequences are not a part of the goal.

No believer should be involved in the cosmic system. Αληθεια is God's system of doctrine; it is a universal term which takes in all of God's system. It begins at salvation and is liveable only by believers. Christianity is the only thing which God favors. There is no other way. God's grace is the way in which His system operates. The grace of God is what separates Christianity from all other religions. Christianity is not a religion but a relationship between man and God through Christ. He is the only way to God. He is either the greatest liar who ever lived, or He is the Son of God, the only way. He cannot simply be a good man if this is all a lie.

The believer must be encapsulated in the sphere of love. We began with God's love. The sphere of God begins with us and continues in our relationship with man and God. The sphere of love is God's system. It is His resources and our response. God's perfect system for believers. We must live in the sphere of love. Living in the sphere of love is the result of advancing and developing virtue love.

The unbeliever always resides in the cosmic system with no options of getting out apart from faith in Jesus Christ.

Cosmic System or Satan's System

Bobby hates the illustration of the devil on one shoulder and an angel on the other; the two systems.

1. The cosmic system is Satan's orderly, cohesive and multi-faceted operation of both evil and human good. Millions of people in Islam think that they are a part of good but they are a part of Satan's evil system. This includes a purpose, a policy and an objective, and the objective is bound in the angelic conflict. His objective is to defeat God, and he has a policy by which to do it. There is a system of authority, and Satan is an absolute tyrant. He is the ruler of this world.
2. This sphere of Satan's cosmic system is administered by him with one attitude. The attitude of arrogance. Satan is the epitome of arrogance. Satan knows that he cannot be equal to God, but he can be a facsimile.
3. This arrogance is Satan's mental attitude which he first exhibited at the fall.
4. In the human being, this attitude of arrogance is reflected in certain ways: by preoccupation with ourselves. What does Satan think about all the time? Himself. There is apathy toward the gospel. It is reflected in any form of religion, humanistic philosophy, philosophy, etc. In the believer, apathy towards or rejection of Bible doctrine. Also the development of virtue love. There is no spiritual growth in such a one. If you are in the cosmic system, then you cannot think with divine viewpoint. Your mind is not renovated. You are only able to think with human viewpoint. You will have an occasion filling of the Holy Spirit and an occasional use of faith rest; but for the most part, you are involved in human viewpoint. Don't ever think that if you generate any activity apart from the Holy Spirit, apart from doctrinal motivation, that you are ever doing anything good. There is good and there is good, which is not good.
5. The cosmic system attacks a believer's personal weaknesses, and we all have them. We all have weaknesses and areas of strength.
6. The cosmic system enslaves us to our own bad decisions. The decisions which we make in life determine the life which we lead. It has nothing to do with the Christian way of life. The further they are away from God's system, the further we are from glorifying Him. We are enslaved to our own bad decisions.
7. Satan's diverse tactics only attack virtue love. Virtue love is not arrogant and Satan is the epitome of arrogance.
8. The cosmic system sponsors the basic mental attitude sins of arrogance, and hence self-centeredness of people, and that is antagonism to God.

9. The cosmic system is a classroom for communicating to carnal believers Satan's system to unbelievers. Satan's system is all about knowing his system and functioning within his system.
10. The believer living continually in the cosmic system is inculcated. This is a mind which is not renovated, but a mind which is the same as the one you came into the Christian life with. Cosmic thinking is the adversary of the believer in Jesus Christ. Satan and his system are not our friend.
11. The cosmic system parlays a believer's rejection of doctrine into hostility toward the plan of God. Believers can be hostile to God. When hostile as a reversionist, we dispute and ridicule the word of truth. That person delights in wickedness; not in just personal sin. Live your life in the light of eternity, which is not the cosmic system. The more time you spend in the cosmic system, the less time you spend in the gazebo of God.

What about God's system, the sphere of love?

1Cor. 13:6 ...it [virtue love] does not rejoice [delight] at unrighteousness, but rejoices with the truth.

Lesson #893

1Cor. 13: May 14, 2009

Thursday

The cosmic system embodies Satan's thinking, as he is the evil one. There is no righteousness in him. He was in the throne room of God and arrogance was found in him. This began the Angelic Conflict. Mankind leaped into the cosmic system when Satan deceived the woman and Adam.

Satan's plan

1. Satan's plan is an orderly plan; it is well-organized and very effective.
2. Satan's plan is cohesive. Its various parts work in coordination.
3. It is multi-faceted. There are many branches of various types of evil, all occurring simultaneously. Anti-Semitism is just one facet. There are religions.
4. His plan include a purpose, which is to win the Angelic Conflict. Satan does not want to be thrown into the Lake of Fire.
5. He has a policy in his plan, which is a policy of evil in the guise of human good.
6. He has an objective in his plan, which is to discredit God and His perfect love and righteousness and His justice, by building a world system where man no longer needs God. Satan wants his own domain.
7. Satan has a structure of authority in his plan. He is undoubtedly an absolute tyrant. The tyranny in this world comes straight from the mind of Satan. He has no patience for dissent or ineffectiveness. He has no loyalty.
8. This plan is designed to subvert the human race and to control the world that he now rules. He rules the world, but he cannot control it. It never seems to go his way. He wants to replace God. He wants to be like the Most High. Eph. 2:2 he is the prince of the power of the air. He is the prince of that entire cosmic system. He is the author of all of this. When involved in the cosmic system, whether the human race in general or as Christians in this world, when we are in the cosmic system, we are in opposition of God.

His plan is a facsimile of God's perfect plan, and he works with great deception. God is absolute goodness and there is no goodness in Satan. He is complete evil, even though he disguises himself as an angel of light. Satan sponsor relative good in this world. Any system of producing relative good outside of God's system is opposed to God's system. It is a counterfeit system and counterfeit good. When we produce good in Satan's system, we are producing counterfeit good. We are the only ones who can live in God's system. There is a very narrow range of God's system. That is why it is important to understand the mechanics of God's system. It is grace, grace, grace; and all other Christians want to do is follow some system of works. Let's say, you have decided to go out on Christmas day and accomplish some act of charity and you go to a rescue mission and you stand in a soup line, and you have a smile and a good word for all of htem, and you feel good about it. In itself, it is a noble and nice deed; and there is room for charitable works in the world. However, ask yourself, what is your status and attitude in this deed. Do you do this to impress others? Do you go to gain notoriety? If you want your actions to be divine good, then you need to do it within His plan and within God's system. God has bestowed upon us a perfect system to counter Satan's system. We must produce good of intrinsic value. We operate within the sphere of love.

The sphere of love is the summation of the Christian life.

The Sphere of Love = God's System

1. In God's system, love is the supreme factor. Genuine virtue love. No unbeliever, reversionistic believer, no carnal believer can produce what we have.
2. Virtue love. The whole sphere is God's system.
3. Once the believer develops his capacity, his motivation, his objectivity, his scale of values in his conscience, his momentum, then his mind has been renovated to divine viewpoint and his entire attitude toward life changes.
4. With momentum from doctrine and reciprocal love, the advancing believer constructs an edification complex of the soul. That was the original illustration. Then it was the divine dynasphere, then the sphere of love. Each one illustrates the same thing. The top floor is sharing the happiness of God, which is also the 9th problem solving device.
5. That happiness is so much a part of living in the sphere of love, it is part of maturity in the spiritual life, because it is the byproduct of functioning in the spiritual life.
6. Sharing perfect tranquility and contentment. We can have great contentment. It will never be absolute until we reside in heaven. It is a perfect peace, here on earth. This contentment is enduring and self-sustaining. Virtue love is about your character. You motivation and happiness also increase. When are you content?

What are the circumstances which take you right out of that mode? This is where sharing the happiness of God kicks in.

7. When virtue love take precedence over people testing or over adverse circumstances, then we can maintain this attitude of sharing the happiness of God. Without virtue love, it is fleeting. It comes and goes.
8. This inner happiness from a mature virtue love conquers several things which we need to know; it conquers discouragement, disappointment, dejection, despair, and anxiety. This means you can share the happiness of God. James 1:2
9. This happiness generates a tremendous capacity for life. Virtue love is personal virtue love for a few and impersonal virtue love for all mankind. The byproduct of that is happiness. When you can exhibit impersonal love toward the worst jerks in life, that is one of the great disturbers of life. Inner happiness leads to outward capacities. No set of circumstances can defeat the believer with happiness in their soul. The cosmic system is about fleeting happiness; God's system is about peace and tranquility in every circumstance.
10. Sharing the happiness of God equates adversity and prosperity and living and dying. Philip. 1:21 4:12. I know how to be abased and I know how to abound.
11. The happiness of virtue love will not change, even under cruelty, unjust treatment or the shadow of death. We have the same access to the same attitude as Jesus Christ possessed during His time on earth. He had a marvelous social life. We have access to this same attitude as Jesus Christ had. Contentment and tranquility are not unknown in the life of the new believer or the growing believer. It is a process. Each day is one more step toward a life where you can deal with all of the trials and tribulations of life. The mature believer develops his capacity, which is a continued motivation for attaining maximum virtue love.

Συγκαίρω = to delight in, to rejoice in. From doctrine in the soul, reciprocal love, which is the sphere of love, comes the greatest happiness in life. This sphere of love is the entire spectrum of ἀγαπή. When we are justified, we enter into the sphere of love.

We advance in two columns; doctrine and reciprocal love for Him. We advance in order to reach the high ground of maturity. This then is operating in the sphere of love. That includes all of the mechanics involved in the Christian life. That is God's perfect system, which is designed for us. The attitude and the actions of virtue love. Delighting in the truth. When you delight in the truth, you are sharing His happiness by delighting in His system.

God's plan works for every generation. What about these Christians back in the stone age? There have been believers from the beginning to this moment who have been in God's plan. The sphere of love was known throughout time. There may have been different terminology from Augustine, but they taught the same theology. God's system has always worked in every generation.

We must not try to find our happiness in the evil of Satan's cosmic system, but we must delight in the truth of God's plan.

1Cor. 13:6 ...it [virtue love] does not rejoice [delight] at unrighteousness [or, the cosmic system], but rejoices with the truth [or, in the sphere of love; in God's system].

Now Paul will continue to name various characteristics, but without using the negative. The remaining characteristics will be all stated in a positive way.

Lesson #894

1Cor. 13:7 May 17, 2009

Sunday 1

Bobby reads v. 7 and adds and virtue love never fails.

The first verb is στεγῶ = to bear; to cover, to conceal; to pass over in silence; to keep confidential; to protect; to excuse, to pass over the faults of others.

Verb: stegō (στέγω) [pronounced STEHG-oh], which means 1) deck, thatch, to cover; 1a) to protect or keep by covering, to preserve; 2) to cover over with silence; 2a) to keep secret; 2b) to hide, conceal; 2b1) of the errors and faults of others; 3) by covering to keep off something which threatens, to bear up against, hold out against, and so endure, bear, forbear. )Thayer) Bobby's definitions: to bear; to cover, to conceal; to pass over in silence; to keep confidential; to protect; to excuse, to pass over the faults of others. Strong's #4722.

Sometimes, we cannot wait to tell some secret of someone else's; and often the motivation is, I am important because I know this or that personal thing.

Sometimes, you invite someone into your private life, and you can often regret this, when you realize that this person will not maintain any sort of privacy.

You only tell your side of the story, but you never give the other side. All of the facts just seem to work out to your side. When you are dragged into something like this. Leaning on someone else with doctrine and upon their strength rather than upon your own doctrine. "Let me tell you about my problems" is not the correct approach. God is the one you tell your problems too. This is not the situation where you need legal advice or medical advice. There is legitimate consultation and there is a desire to hurt someone else. When it comes to insult or injustice or injury to your person, you do not need to immediately confide in others.

Be careful what you pray for; God may solve the problem. Sometimes you may wonder, is there really a God out there? Nothing is more encouraging than to see God work in your life. God's love is unending and His grace is unending. Cast all of your cares upon Him because He cares for you. God has so many solutions; and He is far wiser than the smartest person you know. If you are patient, many answers can be found in Bible class. God has something for us to learn in every difficulty.

There were 300 people at the Nixon funeral and they all heard the gospel and they all heard the solution to death and the solution to life. It is interesting to watch people squirm when it comes to death.

There is no more important time than when you are in personal or relational crises. You keep the affairs of others private and you keep the affairs of your own private.

Stego does not mean all of this here. Here, it means to bear patiently. Those close to you have flaws and failures; those who are closest to you can also hurt you the most. That includes us and our tongues. Wagging your tongue about someone else is nothing more than betraying them. When you run to mom and dad and complain about your husband or wife, you have betrayed them. You have mentally cuckolded them. That is a betrayal.

One set of meanings is a result of the other. In protecting others, you are also bearing that person patiently. You keep your mouth shut. There is an intimate connection between these sets of meanings. It is a manifestation of bearing patiently. You are not patient if you immediately run to vent against someone. When you suffer some injustice, give yourself some time to think it over and to be objective about it. Do not react. Do not be angry or bitter. Do nothing but take it to God and apply doctrine. If you have to cover, pass over in silence or protect in silence, then you are bearing patiently a person who needs protecting. The honor code demands that you protect the one who injures you. This is exactly what Becky Nixon did in her last days, and people respond to this. They do not respond to your vituperation; they respond to your bearing them patiently. That is how important your virtue love. You represent Jesus Christ in this life. You do not represent yourself. You pass over injury or insult in silence. You keep your own counsel. If you want to explode a family in a hurry, you talk about one member to another. Bear it patiently. In silence, you are protecting the privacy of someone who might be very irritating and aggravating. When you bear those troubles and flaws, it is the application of virtue love. Your protection is to bear patiently and silently with the application of doctrine. Remember the watchword, keep your mouth shut.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #895      Sins of the Tongue      1Cor. 13:7      May 17, 2009      Sunday 2

stego has two meanings: to cover, to protect, to pass over in silence; to bear patiently. These definitions are related to one another.

What is borne is all things. There is no injustice which cannot be borne. How much better do you feel by assassinating another's character. The one great thing that you do to justify yourself.

Virtue love demands that you bear these sorts of things, and this protects their privacy and your own privacy. It is a chain reaction of people being sucked into the vortex of your own problems. You could respond to the vituperation of the tongue; but you must bear without sins of the tongue. Whatever pain, suffering or hurt a person gives you, you simply keep it between the two of you. That is how you work it out. If you want to maintain a relationship, don't talk; if you want to destroy it, then go ahead. When you bring parents, friends and acquaintances into a relationship, then you stir up a lot of problems in the relationship, including infusing it with distrust. There is nothing but damage. You must understand that sins of the tongue are a result of a lack of virtue love. Inadvertently or purposely, they discredit or destroy one person to another. You react with sins of the tongue, you are not bearing anything patiently or kindly (two aspects of virtue love). Once you inject mistrust into a relationship, it will never be the same again. Once trust is gone, love may fly out the window as well. This will destroy another person's privacy.

If you are angry enough, then you will just make up lies or spread rumors which are flat-out untrue, or, at best, exaggerated. Many people cannot deal with problems without immediately going to sins of the tongue. This is a lack of virtue love.

Mental attitude sins and sins of the tongue: mental attitude sins are internal, and they affect just one person. Sins of the tongue have a much wider affect. They are like a disease. There is heartache and retaliation. We have a tendency to spread our problems all over. Sins of the tongue open your soul to everyone else. They get to look inside the garbage can of your soul. Bobby wants to spend a little time with the sins of the tongue, which are the exact opposite of virtue love here.

Sins of the Tongue

1. The believer who is guilty of slandering, maligning, gossiping, is a loser in life. You cannot be occupied with the sins and failures of others, judging them and talking about them, and, at the same time, advancing spiritually. The only good thing about sins of the tongue is you may give blessing to those you are blasting. You are thinking about others in a negative way; and there are usually a bunch of mental attitude sins which are involved here. There is a legalism here involved in judging and self righteously spreading the news about your conclusions about someone else. For us to renovate, we must concentrate on our own inculcation. We elevate ourselves and our own advance by telling someone else how another person is not advancing. You can say, "So and so is failing" and you are self righteous in your own eyes. All believers sin after salvation. Every believer has the right to rebound and get back on track in his own priesthood. Leave them alone. Let them handle their own problems. Your duty and your job is the renovate your own thinking. No one needs interference from slander, maligning, gossiping.
2. It is not up to one believer to punish another believer. There may be church discipline carried out using proper procedure. We often think it is our job to punish this or that person.
3. Judging other believers interferes with the judgment and punitive action from God. Whom the Lord loves, He disciplines and scourges alive with a whip. When we discipline someone, it is done in anger and bitterness; God disciplines in love.
4. When you use the sins of the tongue against someone, these sins are imputed back to you along with the discipline for them.
5. Therefore, the sins and failures of other believers must be left in the hands of God for judgment. This is simply a rationale for not gossiping or maligning. Our judging, our maligning, our gossiping supercedes the Supreme Court Judge's prerogatives. You do not know the law or all of the facts, so you do not make judgements.

6. When believers are judged by other believers, it becomes a source of discouragement and frustration to the victim. We are not called to be the source of encouragement or frustration.
7. The wagging tongue puts a stumbling block in the path of other believers. You do not want to be a stumbling block. This is an easy way.
8. The exception to this principle are areas where there is delegated authority in life. The authority of parents over children; management over labor, senior officers over lower ranks; teachers over students.
9. One of the 7 worst sins, 3 are sins of the tongue. Prov. 6:16–19: There are six things that the LORD hates, seven that are an abomination to him: haughty eyes, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, a heart that devises wicked plans, feet that make haste to run to evil, a false witness who breathes out lies, and one who sows discord among brothers.
  - a. If you are a liar, you are just trying to take someone down with you. You put up your own false front of righteousness rather than using impersonal love. Liars are malicious (Prov. 12:17a). Good cross-examiners cannot wait for someone to lie, because they can trip them up in their own lies.
  - b. A false witness; this is perjury or corporate lying. The loser who tells lies in court or in public situations. Prov. 12:17b This can make the difference in punitive judgments; it can make the difference in people's careers. Proverbs is a great wisdom book. Perjury will eventually be punished. Prov. 21:28
  - c. A person who spreads strife among believers. This is one of the worst. Again, these are lies. Because of lies, people begin to mistrust one another. It happened in Berachah on a number of occasions in the past. It did not end well. A lot of lies and vituperation were spread about Bob that way. He was there for 53 years; while others became weak and sickly and some of them sleep. You are taking your life and health into your own hands when you do that.
10. Other verses from proverbs. Some sins are subtle and some are not. Some you utilize everyday and some you do not.
  - a. Prov. 10:18b slander which is defined as lying against truth. James 3:14 give the definition: if you have bitter jealousy and selfish ambition in your heart, do not be arrogant and so lie against the truth. Do not let arrogance fester in your soul. It will come out as a lie against the truth. The courts are filled with slander suits. Slander is often initiated when a role model which you have set up ignores, disappoints or rebuffs you. Slander is often the way that you get back at this person. You tear down what was previously built up (iconoclastic arrogance). You condemn the faults of others while overlooking your own faults. Every time you are involved with the sins of the tongue; it never vindicates you; it always condemns you. You are not vindicated but you are indicted by your own mouth.
  - b. Prov. 30:10 slander which are words concerning a person's domestic affairs. You may be dealing with a family or business affairs. This is a difficult sin to deal with once it is out there.

- c. Gossiping, and this is really something. Gossip is something we often do and not realize it. And others who are more thoughtful, wonder if they are committing it all of the time. If someone else's name comes up, talking about them is gossip? Is repeating facts gossiping? None of those things are gossip. It is necessary to evaluate when you are a leader or a manager. To make someone else a topic of discussion when you are a leader and evaluation is necessary is not gossip. Gossip is repeating idle rumors about others.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #896      Sins of the Tongue    1Cor. 13: May 20, 2009      Wednesday

Bear up patiently has special reference to those with whom you are the closest. It can include anyone who aggravates or angers you. There is also a 2nd meaning, which has the concept of passing over in silence, which means to endure in silence and not to spread this stuff around. If you put the two meanings together, one aspect of bearing patiently is to keep the hurt and the irritation and the disappointment and the injustice between the two parties which are involved. That is an axiom you ought never to forget. Keep personal conflict confidential.

Bearing up Patiently

1. When you are able to pass over in silence, you are putting the relational problem in the Lord's hands. What could be more important? Do not take matters into your own hands.
2. You become spiritually self-sustaining, rather than needing to run to someone else and to vent. This venting is the opposite of bearing patiently by passing over a relational problem in confidentiality. How patient are you, if your immediate reaction is to erupt and air your dirty laundry before everyone else.
3. When you pass over in silence, you preserve the privacy of the other person and your own privacy as well.
4. You must never spread your hurt all over the countryside. If you are willing to breach your own confidentiality, then it becomes fair game, being passed from one to another.
5. In babbling, you are indicting, maligning and judging the other person with your tongue. But also, you are indicting yourself, trying to justify yourself, your anger, and whatever else. You malign them and indict yourself.
6. If you don't bear patiently in silence, you are now the source of a reverse hurt and justice. You become the secondary source of hurt and injustice by lashing back with your tongue. You are just as wrong as they are.
7. Loose lips sink ships. A smart person will know not to trust you, if you blab to them. Ruining the relationship using your tongue changes the dynamic of your relationship, so you have a bigger problem than what you began with.

8. When you are a tale-bearer, mistrust seeps in, which is deadly. If you have intimacy with someone, and you talk behind their back, that will destroy that intimacy.
9. All of these are problems which we should remember. The party to whom we vent can become a part of the problem.

the sins of the tongue can be the most damaging of sins. Lying tongue, one of the worst of all sins, spreading rumors and untruth for whatever reason. It is a terrible sin, which leads to one sin after another. Bearing false witness, lying on the witness stand or lying in the boardroom for your own gain. Spreading strife among others with your tongue. Whenever you wag your tongue, you will cause strife.

You cannot be talking about others all the time and advance spiritually. People testing is a built-in growth machine. If you are occupied with others, you lose momentum; and if you gossip and malign others, that slows you down as well. When you begin to talk about someone else's failures, you are putting yourself above them. You are self righteous in that. Self righteousness is arrogance. The sins of the tongue and arrogance are very closely related. You never have the right to judge anyone. When you judge other believers, this gets in the way of God punitive action. Simply get out of the way. When you initiate sins of the tongue, you become a source of reverse anger and vituperation; your own anger will be reflected in them. This will come right back at you. Sins of the tongue are never isolated sins. They cause a chain reaction in yourself and in others. Sins of the tongue are the enemy of the virtue of bearing patiently.

In addition to the sins of the tongue in Prov. 6, the Bible lists a plethora of tongue sins.

Sins of the Tongue

1. Slander Prov. 10:13b
  - a. Slander is lying against the truth. It is another lie. James 3:14
  - b. It is lying with a motivation, which is jealousy or hatred for the deliberate purpose of destroying another's reputation.
  - c. Slander is often about revenge. You have been hurt, so you try to get back at them. You assuage sin with sin, and you still have sin.
  - d. Slander never vindicates a person. It actually condemns that person (who is the slanderer).
2. Gossiping. "Let me tell you the dirt I have found out."
  - a. This is a misunderstood sins of the tongue. Certain things which you say about others do not fall into the category of gossip. True facts about a situation when a 3rd party is involved is not gossip. It also depends upon your motivation. Do you want to hurt and destroy? When is talking about another person not gossip? When as a leader or manager, you are evaluating the performance of someone with someone who needs to know, including that person. Sharing of flaws is not for general publication; it needs to remain on a needs to know basis.

- b. Anytime character assassination is involved; anytime lies are told about others; whenever information is divulged with an intentionally destructive intent, that is gossip. Maybe you just want to reveal information to tell others how much you are in the know.
  - c. The dirt of gossip causes fraction and dissention among those who hear and the objects of the gossip. Do you ever think, when you listen to someone gossip to you, that maybe they are doing the same thing about you to others. Gossip rolls downhill. The more you talk, the more you will be talked about. The dirt of gossip causes tension and dissention.
  - d. Gossip causes even close friends to doubt and distrust one another. Prov. 16:28b a lot of times, it will jerk people into knowing what is wrong. At least you kept yourself out of a chain reaction.
  - e. Gossip is a betrayal of confidence. Be careful with whom you share secrets. You can confide in some people; but you need to be circumspect. Talking to someone is both legitimate and necessary; but never gossip. Prov. 20:19 every line in Proverbs personifies wisdom. Wisdom is keeping your mouth shut.
  - f. People who talk too much should be avoided. They will find out something about you and share it with others.
  - g. When you metabolize doctrine, Prov. 18:8: the words of a whisperer are like dainty morsels, and they go down into the innermost parts of the body. This is like a piece of chocolate going down. You cannot wait for that burst of chocolate flavor that you love. Gossip stays with a person, and that is what is so evil about it. Once the thought is in place, it is very hard to dispel. There is still that lingering affect of gossip. It is insidious, mean and destructive.
3. Whenever you hear it and metabolize it, it hits you right between the eyes. Constant talking. Prov. 10:8, 10b this is often a companion to gossip. This is not a reference to a good conversationalist or to a long-winded preacher. \
- a. If you are constantly talking, you are not listening.
  - b. A consistent talker is someone who does not stop blathering enough to learn. And a corollary to this, the talker is constantly thinking about what he or she will say next. You can never seem to get your point across because they never seem to hear you. There is no give or take. It is constant talking.
  - c. The constant talking is impressed with the sound of his own voice. There is a mental attitude sins behind it. They think, "How can anyone else have anything more important to say than me?" This constant talking demonstrates arrogance. This is not railing against someone who is intelligent and has something to say.
  - d. The incessant talker is often associated with being a fool; a blowhard; a know-it-all. A closed mind and an open mouth. He brings on his own demise with his own lips. A babbling fool will be thrown down.

- e. According to Prov. 10:19 constant talking leads to carnality and reversionism. When there are many words, transgression is unavoidable. The babbler has no unexpressed thoughts.
  - f. The big mouth is unavoidable trouble for self and others. The more that they talk, the easier flows the sins of the tongue. It is unavoidable.
  - g. Constant talking can be associated with mental attitude sins. Constantly discussing his personal life and problems, as if no one else has any. There is no virtue love there. The primary relationship is with self.
4. Mockery
- a. A believer who is a mocker has no respect for anyone including the Lord. God is not mocked; the one who mocks, the Lord crushes him with divine discipline.
  - b. Mockery often takes the form of ridicule or a consistent mode of sarcasm. They always have a funny smile and a good joke, and the joke is on you.
  - c. The mocker is always impressed with himself, but is insecure. He has no spiritual self esteem. No self-esteem period. They are threatened by those they mock.
  - d. In mocking, they build their security by making someone else insecure. You tear someone down in mocking them. Humility should tell you that you do not beat someone down.
  - e. A mocker is insulting and petty and the result is strife and quarreling. Prov. 22:10 is good advice: drive out the scoffer and contention will go out. Even strife and dishonor will cease. When you are not around them, you will eliminate contention from your life. It is a lose-lose proposition.
  - f. A mocker seeks wisdom but never finds it. Prov. 14:6a they are into themselves and they are not wise when they are scoffers. Inherent to the mocker is an inflated image of himself. This inflated self-image makes him unteachable. Prov. 13:1 this is why he finds no wisdom, because he is unteachable. He is too busy finding fault with everyone else.
  - g. When a person mocks the downtrodden and the poor, in effect, he speaks against God. Prov. 17:5
  - h. A child who mocks his parents is the epitome of arrogance and he is on course for destruction. Prov. 30:17: The eye that mocks a father and scorns to obey a mother will be picked out by the ravens of the valley and eaten by the vultures. If you are blind to mocking authority, maybe you ought to be blind. The raven is the symbol of death; ravens eat carion.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #897 Sins of the Tongue 1Cor. 13:7 May 21, 2009

Thursday

Sins of the tongue is the exact opposite of enduring quietly.

Sins of the tongue

1. Sins of the tongue
2. Sins of the tongue are reactions to pain, injury, injustice.
3. They are infestations of pettiness, defamation, inordinate ambition, inordinate competition and evil designs in general.
4. Sins of the tongue can be a form of retaliation or vengeance.
5. Sins of the tongue can indicate a most devious character. Most dedicated to furthering one's own desires. Harming one's own reputation; building someone up by tearing down someone else. They can be devastating. They can be the worst of all sins. When you manifest those mental attitude sins, by sins of the tongue, you have spread your sin like a disease which effects other people. They are the opposite of manifesting virtue love from your soul. Sins of the tongue can be death to relationships; virtue love is life to relationships.

Bearing confidentially means to keep something confidential between two people. Sins of the tongue are the opposite. They perpetuate vituperation, and sow mistrust between people and involve others in conflict which is not their own. Mental attitude sins and sins of the tongue are incited into all of the parties involved, which can involved dozens of people. There is one way to curb the sins of the tongue; virtue love, bearing up confidentially those with whom you may have a conflict.

There is the importance of virtue love in your soul to control this poison tongue.

Sins of the tongue

1. Lying. Prov. 6:16–19
  - a. Spreading rumors or untruth.
  - b. Corporate lying; lying in court, in the boardroom.
  - c. Fomenting strife through a deceitful tongue. 3 of the worst sins.
2. Slander. The motive is often jealous or hatred. The deliberate purpose is to destroy another's reputation.
3. Gossip. Prov. 11:13 16:28b 18:8 20:19 you cannot fulfill virtue love if you gossip. This is the worst violation of the privacy of others. This can be done to inflate the ego of the gossip or to tear down others or the destruction of someone's reputation. In any case, the motivation is horrid. It is all about the gossip. They want to make known their own self importance. They want to be the center of everyone's affairs. Everyone comes to them with all of their problems. They are the go-to people; they have the inside knowledge and they gain attention by divulging what they know. They are human tabloids.
4. The constant talker. This is not the good conversationalist or the one who dominates the conversation; this is a person who is unable to listen. They are unteachable for this reason. If you are talking you are not learning. When you have the opportunity to learn from someone, then shut up and listen. If you cannot be taught, you cannot have any sort of humility. A closed mind and an open mouth.

Prov. 10:10b The real problem is, this inevitably leads to sins of the tongue. If a mental attitude sins is present in the constant talker, it will come out. Prov. 10:19. The more you talk, the more likely you will get involved in sins of the tongue.

5. Mockery. Prov. 14:6a 17:5 22:10 Proverbs is known as wisdom literature. Every line contains personified wisdom. In these passages, this is the wisdom of staying away from sins of the tongue. The mocker has no respect for anyone, including God. He verbally manifests his lack of regard. This is why Scripture contains the line, God is not mocked. The mocker is the one who ridicules. He uses sarcasm to belittle or to denounce others. This consistent use does nothing more than to tear others down. Such a believer has no spiritual self esteem whatsoever. He is insecure. He mocks because he gains a form of security by mocking. This makes others insecure. If others are insecure, then he does not feel badly about himself. He tears down others to build himself up. The mocker must maintain an inflated self image. He must defame others. He has a defaming image of others. When you hear someone who ridicules, uses sarcasm, who belittles others to build himself up, you have a loser believer. When Bobby wrote a paper, he often used the term loser believer. He was talked to immediately. The Christian with virtue love is not a loser. He can use impersonal love and that is the secret to being a winner in the Christian life. Bobby ended with the child-mocker, which is a real tragedy. You cannot let a child get away with a child mocking his own parents. Every effort must be made to dissuade a child from this. Prov. 30:17: The eye that mocks a father and scorns to obey a mother will be picked out by the ravens of the valley and eaten by the vultures. This scornful, anti-authority eye, talking back constantly, constantly sassing either parent or both. The raven will pick out his eye and eat it. The raven eats the dead meat. We think of eagles as being great, but they are carion eaters as well. A mocking child is dead meat, headed for the sin unto death. In spite of all that parents do, there are children who are incorrigible in various areas. But a parent must continue to build up a child in the way he must go. That is our duty. The outcome is out of our hands when we do our job. Part of the training of that child may be to sit him down and show him this passage. At the very least, such a child will get some very hard knocks in life. A child like this is flirting with a future which may include the sin unto death. Parents are the first teaching authority preparing a child for all other teaching authorities. You are, to this child, God; and anti-authority attitudes which are developed, will always have a catastrophic effect on a child. Without that enforced humility, genuine humility in life is very hard to attain. Without humility, the mocker will be in conflict with all authority. If you cannot correct the mocker, that is what they will be. They are anti-authority in every respect. This sins of the tongue is self-destructive. As parents, you should never mock your own child. Never deal with them in sarcasm and ridicule because that is what you will get back. Fathers, provoke not your children to wrath.
6. Perverse, reckless and sly words.
  - a. Perverse words: crude, rude and offensive speech. Such speech must be removed from your tongue; it can become a stumbling block for those who hear it.

b. Reckless words are unthinking words. They throw words like spears everywhere and they pierce. A reckless talking has no unfiltered speech. There is no consideration of anyone else. You may not intend it this way, but your speech brings anger to the soul of others. These are also promises made which you cannot keep. Beware of swearing an indiscriminate oath of promise or allegiance or an over-the-top promise in an over-the-top moment of gratitude. Such as, "I will be there for you at any time, in any place and anywhere." Your word must never be given lightly. When you make a promise, then you keep your word. Otherwise you are dishonest and dishonorable. You may live to regret giving your reckless promise to a user; and he may use your words against you. You may have to eat your impulsive words. What do you do? What do you say? Keep your debt of gratitude in your soul and not on your tongue. If there is a chance to repay it, then do so. Keep it in your soul, not on your tongue. This does not mean not to express thankfulness and gratitude; and you can be reciprocative. But be careful of what you say. Reckless words can divulge private information to those who should not hear this information. When a person is reckless, then people learn not to depend upon what he or she says and they stay away from them. There are those who are so reckless, that others just stay away from them. A person who is reckless in his speech may suffer physically or financially over things he says. People who are insecure will often talk to cover up their insecurity. Sometimes it is offensive and it misrepresents.

c. Sly words. Conspiratorial and devious speech. Notice how lies are often a root par to these sins of the tongue. All revolution comes from sly words. When you utilize sly words, you bring others down with you in subversions. These are often spoken in churches. Whispered words; I don't like this pastor; how can we get rid of him? Devious, sly words of revolt. Sly words are based upon lies.

7. One sin we have most been involved in: boasting. Turn on a sports program and you can see it.

a. Arrogance is the mental attitude sin which produces boasting.

b. Boasting is verbal confirmation of a lack of humility and grace orientation.

c. Caveat: understand the verbal confidence and boasting are two different things. Bobby is splitting hairs here. You can speak in favor of yourself without boasting. Sins of the tongue will have a mental attitude sin behind it. What are some examples of this? If you have confidence in the Lord, then you can always speak with assurance about Him. Once saved, always saved. It is great to tell others that you have a heavenly home to go to. Your verbal confidence. Your actions match your verbal confidence. You may have confidence in yourself and you can speak with confidence about your own personal abilities. When you are on a job interview, you can impart your confidence and abilities. You may have confidence about others, and you speak about them with favor. When Bobby has to endorse someone, then he needs to have confidence in them.

- d. Prov. 20:14: "Bad, bad," says the buyer, but when he goes away, then he boasts. This is boasting for the business person. The buyer impugns the product or the seller, and then he boasts how he did so well in this deal. This is not about business, but about personal aggrandizement and personal injury. If you get a good deal or a great deal,...
  - e. Boasting means self-praise from an arrogant mental attitude. Prov. 27:1–2: do not praise or congratulate yourself on what happens tomorrow, because you do not know what tomorrow will be. You are setting yourself to be only as good as your next day. Boasting on the past sets you up for a fall in the future.
8. The sin of quarreling.
- a. Quarreling is an unyielding arrogance. Prov. 13:10 If you like to quarrel.
  - b. This is an inflated view of oneself which translates to combativeness. You are so enamored of yourself that you cannot be wrong. When challenged, the quarrelsome person becomes argumentative and very . No self-evaluation from doctrine. When challenged, your emotions kick in. It is subjective. You will lie, you will quarrel and argue. You will call them names. You will put a red herring out there. "Look at what you have done. Don't look at me." Bobby will give a dangerous example. This example could incur some combativeness. Prov. 19:13b: A foolish son is ruin to his father, and a wife's quarreling is a continual dripping of rain. There are those who say the Bible has a cultural bias which keeps women down. No matter how much you dislike it, no matter how much it angers you, it is the Word of God. If you have thought or said any of those things, you have indicted yourself. You are not arguing with me but with the Scripture. You are doctrinally unsound and you fit the profile of the contentious woman. If you are contentious, you react. This is verbal dissension. This dissension is relentless; it is Chinese water torture. This parallels Gen. 3:16, a verse that no man or woman should forget. This is the source of contention between men and women. It is all about authority.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #898      Sins of the Tongue      1Cor. 13:7      May 24, 2009      Sunday 1

Freedom through Military Victory the first few pages are read. Originally written in 1971 when we were in a bad place, militarily speaking. It was revised in 2003. If one generation is not prepared to defend our values of freedom and liberty, liberty languishes. Wars will continue until the end of human history. For man to presume that he can accomplish what only Jesus can accomplish is the height of arrogance. The period of the Tribulation is the greatest period of time of war in human history. Only when Jesus Christ inaugurates His kingdom at the 2nd Advent will peace be established for good. A nation must prepare for war in order to attain and interim of peace. Augustine affirmed this Biblical view, and encouraged a general to defend one area from the Vandals. "Even your bodily strength is a gift from God. War is waged so that peace may be attained.” Without the 6.5 year war wherein our army defeated the British army, the constitution and declaration of Independence would have been worthless pieces of parchment. A policy which assumes that isolationism will not insure peace; it is divorced from reality. Our lack of military preparedness and desire to appease drew us into WW2. However, they eventually crushed the enemy and purchased freedom for their generation. We can evangelize without persecution courtesy of the military. MacArthur quote at the dedication of MacArthur Park. “Citizen soldiers.” In this, these men come closest to the sacrifice of our Savior. Their sacrifice for our cherished liberty, just as the Lord Jesus Christ died that mankind might have eternal life.

Even though we are born-again, and have been regenerated by faith alone in Christ alone, we still retain a sin nature. It is an inescapable fact, and we sometimes take this for granted, as if there are no remedies. Many believers become comfortable with the area of weakness and they make allowances for it or they overlook it; or become hardened to it. Isa. 64:6: We are all unclean things and all of our righteous nesses are as filthy rags.

As we advance to maturity, we remain in fellowship longer and longer. We gain freedom from our weaknesses. In virtue love, we gain some respite from sin; and people in our lives bring on the greatest temptations for us to sin. They can cause an incredible host of mental attitude sins in us. Envy, jealousy, anger, frustration, hatred, bitterness, self-pity, guilt, worry, etc. People can do this to us and we can give in. From mental attitude sins originate verbal sins; sins of the tongue manifest mental attitude sins. They are the result of our thinking sins. They are worse than mental attitude sins. They not only involve ourselves, but they involve others as well. They are designed to destroy those against whom we have mental attitude sins. Just as the foundational sin behind sins of the tongue is the lie. From lies come perjury, slander, defamation, mockery, sly words, conspiratorial subversions or distortions, reckless words, hurtful words. Some incessantly divulged private and personal to ears which should not hear them. Στεγω is bearing up with silence.

Then there is boasting, another sins of the tongue. It is motivated by an arrogance which contradicts humility. Boasting is self-praise for inordinate competition.

There is the sins of the tongue called quarreling, which is an unyielding arrogance.

Bobby promised to complete an example of quarreling, an example which is explosive and can upset half of the congregation.

Prov. 19:13b: the contentions of a wife are a constant dripping. Unfortunately some have already taken offense at this. Contentions in the Hebrew is verb dissension; and it can be a constant irritant dripping from the tongue of the irritated wife. It can be from one who is not irritated. It can be exhibited against a husband who even does not exhibit good leadership. Gen. 3:16: To the woman he said, "I will surely multiply your pain in childbearing; in pain you shall bring forth children. Your desire shall be for your husband, and he shall rule over you." The parallelism here indicates that the woman's desire will be to rule over her husband; she will want to dominate him. The power and leverage game.

This is played out so many times between men and women. God's design is for the husband to be in charge. God's design is, he will rule over you. The woman's contention is continuous dripping of water. Women are responders who compel leadership. They also desire to assume authority and that is where the quarrels begin. That contention is relentless, only being curbed by spiritual maturity and virtue love. Bearing patiently in silence. Men have their own weaknesses: misuse of leadership in general; and he is a poor leader and a poor husband. Husband love your wives as Christ loved the church. This is virtue love. One of the great illustrations of the sins of the tongue of quarreling. We all have some knowledge of that particular circumstance.

There is another sins of the tongue, deceit. We need to understand ourselves and our own depravity. We have the antidote. We have the filling of the Holy Spirit; we have the spiritual life. No one else has these things. We must know our enemy, the sins of the tongue and what virtue love precludes in our life. As you recognize these sins of the tongue. You begin to develop an objective view of yourself.

Cuckoldry: deceiving a husband or wife about other romantic liaisons and even about adultery. It is hiding one's intentions and activities with sly words. This is not maintaining the privacy of others; this is deliberate dishonesty with the intent to deceive. This is the verbal sin associated with the overt sin. Such deception can destroy a marriage. This is one of the more obvious of the deceits.

Flattery is sweet-talking lies and contrived adulation. What a weapon is flattery. It works best on an arrogant target. The arrogant person is entirely susceptible to flattery. Smooth talk or deceptive speech. Flattery is fine when it is meant for correct reasons. Flattery is using someone for one's own purposes. Samson and Delilah give us an example of this. Prov. 7:21: With much seductive speech she persuades him; with her smooth talk she compels him. Men can be flattered and are vulnerable in this. They want to be flattered; they want to be seduced. Their egos are inflated by this seduction. They are willing to be deceived because of their own egos.

Lesson #899      Sins of the Tongue      1Cor. 13:7      May 24, 2009      Sunday 2

Bobby reads a medal of honor citation. This is a 2nd cousin of someone from R. B. Thieme Ministries. He was born in Dallas and entered into the service there.

Sins of the tongue particularly a part of the female psyche. Bobby is not apologizing for any of this teaching. Entering into the marital state, you should be prepared for the mental makeup of the woman, and the best counter is virtue love in the soul. That is one of the greatest problems in human relationships. This began with the woman nagging the man into eating the fruit. Whenever Bobby teaches one gender, it is often applicable to the other gender. These are among the most destructive of all sins. We must be careful about sins of the tongue. We must be aware of the ones which we have a particular propensity for. The further we advance, the more doctrine we place in the soul; and the more thinking which is renovated in our souls.

Flattery is a sin which has been used from the beginning of time. It can mean seduction or seduction or smooth-talking speech; another form of deception. So often we men hear things which we know cannot be possibly true, but we want to believe them; it is arrogance which cause us to believe. We as men are susceptible to flattery.

We men use seductive words ourselves to captivate women to our own designs. 2Tim. 3:6–7: For among them are those who creep into households and capture weak women, burdened with sins and led astray by various passions, always learning and never able to arrive at a knowledge of the truth. Various impulses for women include attention lust for flattery. They pay heed to lies, even though they are aware that they are lies. They are called silly women; weak women. Men seduce weak women who are vulnerable. They are devoid of truth in their souls. Truth is the sphere of love. It is virtue love. Truth comes from understanding. Developing virtue love in your relationships. Truth counters the lie. The sphere of love includes the spiritual life and capacity to love. If you have no truth, the lies of seduction will be your problem. You will not catch the lie or you will not resist the lie. Men are willing to take advantage of the weak woman. Without truth, what standards do we have? Other than truth, what is the real basis for morality in our lives? How easy it is without truth to cross the line for seduction when your own lies become your truth. You alter your standards to conform to whatever it is you want to get. There are no constraints without truth. Situational ethics. Standards become completely relative. You have ethics until the moment that those ethics get in the way. However, you have no excuse because you know what those standards are. You know what the standards are because you are advancing in the spiritual life. With situational ethics, lies become expected, a part of life. We see this on a national scale as well. There are more lies told between nations than truth, but we believe the lies because we do not want conflict. A good example of this are the lies coming out of Iran. We want to believe them because we do not want to deal with the truth. No personal love relationship can be based upon lies. If you must seduce someone in order to get love; it is not love. If you must lie to someone to get love, it will not be love. No love lasts unless it comes from the soul. Love does not last if it is build upon the exterior. Personal love without virtue has no basis; it has no basis for continuing if it is based upon a lie or upon seduction.

Men are usually very straightforward when it comes to seduction. They use flattering lines in order to seduce. Women are more artful here, often using seductive speech to get something else. Whatever gender, it all amounts to the same thing. Sly words without true meaning. Whatever you call it, it is lying for personal gain. Virtue love is never seduction; it is never sly words. Personal love has capacity for love. This does not come from how you look.

Prov. 29:6: An evil man is ensnared in his transgression, but a righteous man sings and rejoices.

1. Seduction and lies are a trap in which both parties are trapped.
2. Seduction of others is also seducing or deceiving yourself. You tell a lie and you buy a lie.
3. What do you get by exercising untruths in seduction? You get exactly what you bargained for.
4. You get a relationship based upon untruths and distrust. Always looking over your shoulder; a relationship which someday returns your lie.

James 3:5–6: So also the tongue is a small member, yet it boasts of great things. How great a forest is set ablaze by such a small fire! And the tongue is a fire, a world of unrighteousness. The tongue is set among our members, staining the whole body, setting on fire the entire course of life, and set on fire by hell. Pound-for-pound, the tongue is the strongest muscle in the body.

The pastor-teachers intent must always be to communicate the Word of God through language. When he fails to do that, he is deceiving you. He makes you believe that it comes from the Word of God. From thousands of pulpits, you will never hear that freedom comes through military victory. The tongue can boast of great things. The eloquence of speech has that effect. They both have the meaning of bragging; boasting is arrogance manifested by sins of the tongue. The tongue has great potential for influence. There is a small thing, but it has great potential. It has dangerous potential. Such a small fire sets a huge forest aflame. Scripture uses great imagery to get a point across. California has more destruction than almost anywhere else in the U.S. The tongue is that small spark. One little word can ignite. One little spark can ignite whether great or small. A few words dropped can cause a raging fire.

One little phrase or a few hateful words can stick with a person for years. Especially if they have no way to recover. No virtue love, no problem solving devices, no way to overcome the pain and hurt of the tongue.

This does not mean that you sew your mouth shut. You just do not come back with sins of the tongue. Bobby gave all the sins of the tongue by knowing what is sin. Virtue love bears patiently in silence. It is all about your motivation. What is your motivation in silence? The opposite is sins of the tongue. Fundamentally, they are all lies.

James 3;6: And the tongue is a fire, a world of unrighteousness. The tongue is set among our members, staining the whole body, setting on fire the entire course of life, and set on fire by hell. This is a divinely inspired statement of the sins of the tongue. This is the result of the tongue which sets the spart. Lives are affected by the misery of that little tongue which sets the fire. One lie set off the spark which set things off in this world. One little deception and here we are. Fallen mankind with nothing but problems and that is what we are learning.

We are so attuned to what we do by our own sin nature that we even become hardened to it; it is part of our lives; part of our very being. As we progress; as we advance to spiritual maturity, as we stay in fellowship for longer periods of time, as virtue love becomes part of our soul, we begin to fulfill the mandates given to us by God. For every overt sin that we commit, there are dozens of other sins involved. The problem right here is the tongue.

Russians did to the German army; they destroyed everything in the German's path. Scorched earth policy; they burnt everything to the ground; houses and land and crops; and they were 1000's of miles into Russia, and one small and very long supply line.

Sins of the tongue fall in the category of sins which got us into all of this. Gen. 3:4–5: But the serpent said to the woman, "You will not surely die. For God knows that when you eat of it your eyes will be opened, and you will be like God, knowing good and evil." Isa. 14:14 "I want to be like the Most High." How stupid is that? The woman and the man saw God every single day and they think that they will be like the Most High? Adam chose the woman outside the garden rather than God inside the garden. Sins of the tongue is one spark. It is all there. The lie is what is behind all of it. The repercussions have continued down to this day.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #900      Sins of the Tongue      1Cor. 13:7      May 27, 2009      Wednesday

The first verb is στεγω, which means to bear patiently by passing over in silence. It is difficult not to bad-mouth another person who has injured or attacked you. That sort of talk is not virtue love. It is not bearing another person patiently. This sort of talk has the connotation of the sins of the tongue. Passing over in silence means that you do not talk about a person in that category. Doing that, vituperating, judging and maligning are not ways to pass over in silence.

The sins of the tongue are among some of the worst of all sins. Bobby began with lying and all the many permutations of this, which include slander, gossip, flattery, etc. These are all destructive. They are destructive to us and to groups of people and to entire organizations. The Bible reveals to us just how destructive the sins of the tongue are.

James 3:5: So also the tongue is a small member, yet it boasts of great things. How great a forest is set ablaze by such a small fire!

Small is in contrast with being mighty. The tongue has its own accomplishments. It can take people down or control them with a few words or phrases. Μεγαλυκεω = to cause a great stir. Words can cause a great stir by the use of one's own tongue. There is the tone of bragging, which is a sin of the tongue. It is a very easy thing to cross over the line to become braggadocios. We often speak of our own accomplishments with some arrogance attached. Your tongue is saying, "All hail me." The tongue is compared to a small fire. A forest can be set aflame with a small fire. Some can use a magnifying glass on something combustible. Every fire starts much smaller than it is at the end. Most start with very small beginnings. The most devastating of fires can be a forest fire. One little match and before long, it can be a fire which takes out trees, animals, houses and people. This sounds as if James had seen a forest fire and how much damage it can do. One little phrase directed toward someone; and unchecked by rebound, those words and phrases escalate by rebound.

V. 5 begins with a warning as to how dramatic a fire the sins of the tongue can set off. There is the person who is the spark and the person upon whom the spark falls. Especially with children, there can be mental attitude sins instilled in them for years. Like Arab children who think that Jews come from monkeys or pigs.

James 3:6: And the tongue is a fire, a world of unrighteousness. The tongue is set among our members, staining the whole body, setting on fire the entire course of life, and set on fire by hell.

The results of the flash point of the tongue is the very world of iniquity. The use of κόσμος carries with it the connotation of Satan. Straight from the raging fires of hell come the lie, particularly Satan's little lie which he used on the woman in the garden. Satan's deception is recorded in Gen. 3:4–5: "You certain will not die!" This little lie takes us into the great struggle which we are in today. Adam and the woman knew nothing of good and evil, and they needed not to know it. Satan tells a half-truth here. Many lies have a half-truth here. These lies are more believable with a half-truth. Adam and the woman would become intimately involved with sin and evil. When she ate, she acquired the sin nature. He acquired the same sin nature when he committed a sin of cognizance. With the sin nature, their bodies were defiled. The course of their lives and of human history was changed at that moment; a little lie. A spark of a lie ignited a great fire, which is the pain of sin in the world ever since. Without Jesus Christ, this lie would have caused us to burn in hell forever.

James 3:7–8: For every kind of beast and bird, of reptile and sea creature, can be tamed and has been tamed by mankind, but no human being can tame the tongue. It is a restless evil, full of deadly poison.

The veritable taming of all animals on this earth, but no one can tame the tongue. We can dominate every wild beast in the world, but we cannot tame the tongue. He describes just how vicious and terrible are the sins of the tongue. Flattery, boasting, lying, mockery, etc.

V. 8 tells us that an untamed tongue is a restless evil. It grows and it continually looks for more evil to get involved in. 1Peter uses the same imagery for Satan, that he roams about like a roaring lion seeking someone to devour.

The tongue can be filled with poison, which is like a poisonous snake. Copperheads, rattlesnakes, moccasins, and coral snakes. The venom of a poisonous snake. The serpent is symbolic of Satan. People in that world understood the poisonous snake. James compares the tongue to the small snake which can kill you. Restless evil and deadly poison are related to the untamed tongue.

Just as our poison tongue deceives others, we too are deceived by the cosmic system, which is a mixture of lies and truth.

Psalm 5:9: For there is no truth in their mouth; their inmost self is destruction; their throat is an open grave; they flatter with their tongue.

The poison tongue is addicted to backbiting, to seduction, to lying. Once you find one lie, it is not isolated. It will occur again. You cannot trust proven liars. They will protect themselves with a lie or advance themselves with lies.

The poison tongue reveals their inward parts, which is destruction. It roams about with the idea of burning down everything in its path. The ultimate goal is to break someone else down.

Their throat is an open grave. Their words are an open grave. This is a metonymy. The object is substituted for another. The first object is a cause and the second is an effect. Their words are the cause and the effect is the open grave. The rotting corpse in a grave describes the open grave.

The 4th line: they flatter with their tongues. We think of flattery in a good way, and we are ready to believe any lie, as long as it is something nice about ourselves. Flattery is nothing but lies from a poison tongue. Don't you like to hear about how handsome or beautiful you are? This is equated to speech which is a decaying, rotting corpse.

There are genuine words of respect or true admiration, but that is appreciation, not flattery. Flattery is an evil poisonous lie. In other countries, the smell of a rotting corpse is a common smell. In Germany, when the people were burned, you could smell the corpses for miles. In war, sometimes this is a part of war; and the psalmist likens flattery to a rotting corpse. The idea here is, flattery is lies, to some extent, in order to manipulate you.

Let's say that you are partially involved in the sins of the tongue. Let's say you do not rebound.

James 4:11–12: Do not speak evil against one another, brothers. The one who speaks against a brother or judges his brother, speaks evil against the law and judges the law. But if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge. There is only one lawgiver and judge, he who is able to save and to destroy. But who are you to judge your neighbor?

Only God is authorized to judge any individual. No matter how much you know or how much they have injured you, you leave this up to God, Who knows all of the facts. God judges the believer. If you slander and judge other believers, you are putting God's law aside and encroaching on His judgment. We violate by usurping His authority. We take over. We encroach upon God's right and prerogative.

Matt. 7:1–2: "Judge not, that you be not judged. For with the judgment you pronounce you will be judged, and with the measure you use it will be measured to you.

You are liable for judging others. Do not judge others, or you will be judged. This law will be enforced. There are a lot of laws on the book, and many are never enforced. God's law is never forgotten. There was a law passed here in Texas where we could not cover up the word Texas on a license plate.

The law and the precedent is already set. There is no way that we can overcome this precedent.

Judging Others

1. Whatever judgment you make against others, is the basis for and the degree of your own judgment from Him. The bigger fire you start, the bigger fire that you get.
2. You name your own poison based upon the poison you spew. When you judge, the venom you send out is the venom that you get. God sends back judgment upon you.
3. Whatever you charge others with, and whatever you think the consequences to them should be, are your consequences. Whatever you say is going to come right back at you.
4. This come directly from the supreme court of heaven; there is no plea bargaining; the punishment fits the crime. Every sin of the tongue is an injustice toward you.
5. The consequences are unfailing in their justice and their intensity.

There is no category of sin which brings so much discipline as the sins of the tongue. If you want to know what your discipline will be like?

What Your Punishment will be

1. You get divine discipline for the mental attitude sins which motivated the sin of the tongue. Sins of the tongue are worse than mental attitude sins, because it involves others.
2. You get the discipline for the verbal sin. You will be smacked for both of them.
3. You get divine discipline which might be going to the person that you judge. This is triple compound discipline; or triple discipline. A trifecta of discipline placed upon you, the maligner and the judger. This is God's justice.

Vengeance is Mine, I will repay, says the Lord. That is a promise from God. This is a promise of protection for you. God will handle it. And he does a much better job than anyone else. The one doing the judging actually gets the worse discipline. And if you are the one who is judged, you get the blessing, even if you are in the wrong, and they get your discipline. You must apply the virtue love characteristic of patience. It should be obvious that there is a side-step to serious punishment and great blessing in avoiding the sins of the tongue.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

sins of the tongue are the most vicious, heinous and dangerous of all the sins. Bobby is in the process of documenting the viciousness and the price to us for sins of the tongue.

James 4:11a: Do not speak evil against one another, brothers. The one who speaks against a brother or judges his brother, speaks evil against the law and judges the law. Speaking evil is anything which is harmful to the best interests of another believer. It does not matter whether it is true or false or a half-truth when speaking like this. It is the intent of the one doing the judging which makes this evil. Gossip is not gossip when you are speaking true facts without the intent of running down someone, judging, or maligning the other person.

Two Points

1. True facts spoken judgmentally are equally accountable before God as lies.
2. Because true facts spoken with malice aforethought are no less destructive than falsehoods or lies.

This is not just a misdemeanor; these are major laws which are broken. His mandates, His standards; any violation of His standards is sin. Violating His law is sin. James had earlier defined God's law, calling it the royal law. The believer who judges in this context violates the royal law. James 2:8–9: If you really fulfill the royal law according to the Scripture, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself," you are doing well. But if you show partiality, you are committing sin and are convicted by the law as transgressors. Half of virtue love is impersonal love. We use impersonal love toward anyone who injures us or insults us or attempts to bury us. Impersonal love applied by us fulfills the royal law. When you apply the royal law, you bear patiently by passing over in silence. Impersonal love is the fulfillment of the royal law. This is directly related to impersonal love. Bearing patiently by passing over in silence, which is the epitome of applying impersonal love. When you judge and malign, you dishonor the royal law. This is a greater sin than any sin or injustice enacted against you. You violate the royal law by not bearing with patience by passing over. When you violate the royal law, you are in for greater discipline than the person that you are judging. Such a person who maligns and gossips becomes the judge and jury. He pushes aside God; he elbows God aside, which is anything but humility and grace orientation. That is the height of arrogance. Encroaching on God's justice is foolish. It is dangerous for your health.

Matt. 7:1–2: "Judge not, that you be not judged. For with the judgment you pronounce you will be judged, and with the measure you use it will be measured to you. By your standard of measure, it will be measured out to you. If you judge, you will be judged. The statute says we are entirely liable by the supreme court of heaven. The penalty is maximum divine discipline. It is well beyond the discipline for any other category of sin. We get a triple dose of divine discipline. When you judge others, you get divine discipline for the mental attitude sins which motivate your tongue sins. You get divine discipline for the verbal sin (a twofer now). Then you also get divine discipline which might be going to the person that you judge. If they are out of line, they ought to be judged; however, because of your gossip or maligning, you get what they deserve. You have stepped in between God and His perfect justice as applied to another. Sins of the tongue compound your misery with a triple portion of discipline. Triple compounded discipline and misery.

What is the Equity?

1. Whatever judgment you make against others, it sets the magnitude of your own judgment from God. You get what you gave.
2. You name your own poison, based upon the poison which spews from your tongue.
3. Whatever you charge others with, which could even be true facts, where there is the intent of destruction, hurt or revenge; this becomes your consequence. That is the price of sins of the tongue. You take their sins on.
4. Those consequences are administered by the supreme court of heaven. It ought to be relaxing if you are being judged or maligning.
5. The supreme court of heaven is unfailing in its justice; perfect justice; it never fails. It is dreadful in its intensity.
6. Any judgment from the Supreme Court of Heaven is always terribly appropriate. The punishment always fits the crime. There is no plea bargaining or extenuating circumstances. If you are the victim of sins of the tongue, and someone is judging you or slandering you or gossiping about you; just put the matter in the Lord's hands. It is hard not to retaliate when someone is spewing venom and poison against you.

You must be able to leave it in the Lord's hands.

Get out of the Way

1. What good is your evaluation if the supreme court of heaven can do this fine.
2. There is no need for you to get triple compound discipline when it should be given to someone else. Let them take the discipline. Do not move them aside so that you can take their discipline.
3. Retaliation for judging gets the same results as the original judging against you. Wherever sins of the tongue are in play, get out of the way. Vengeance is Mine, I will repay, says the Lord.

Let God handle it, as He does a much better job than we could do. If we are the target of sins of the tongue, then we will get blessing for abstaining from retaliation. We are fulfilling the royal law. We are utilizing impersonal love. You never lose when you apply virtue love.

There is another serious repercussion of sins of the tongue. Psalm 34:12–13: What man is there who desires life and loves many days, that he may see good? Keep your tongue from evil and your lips from speaking deceit. Do not do it. If your tongue runs to evil and speaks deceit, then you will have a short lifetime of misery. The one speaking evil receives a major load of discipline. Speak evil and shorten your life; and enjoy it less.

If you want to judge Bobby or tell lies, just go right ahead. A pastor teacher who is out of line will get discipline. But gossiping and maligning will put you in the way. You do not need to tell anyone about the bad theology of another church. Bobby has seen many people malign and judge Bob, and they never come out ahead.

Psalm 52:1: Why do you boast of evil, O mighty man? The steadfast love of God endures all the day. Sometimes you boast because it feels good. Sometimes you might even do something worth boasting about. The problem is, you might do something to inflate your own ego, and the spiritual life is to guide you to humility. It is not what you accomplished in some human accomplishment, but what you produced from your spiritual life.

No one is mighty in reversionism. God is the only truly, Mighty One. He is the only One we may boast about. We never become mighty in the eyes of the Lord by boasting. The unfailing love of God endures all day long. God's love never ceases; it never declines; it never deteriorates.

New title coming out, The Unfailing Love. Psalm 52:2: Your tongue plots destruction, like a sharp razor, you worker of deceit. A razor cuts both ways. You will cut your own wrists. The way you are cut up, expect to be cut.

Psalm 52:3: You love evil more than good, and lying more than speaking what is right. Selah Lying become addictive. You begin to love falsehoods more than speaking that which is right. Do not produce evil from the tongue. Stay in fellowship and produce divine good from truth in the soul. Your tongue produces the evil.

The consequences of speaking falsehood gets even worse. Psalm 52:4: You love all words that devour, O deceitful tongue. It is a thrill to verbally kill.

Psalm 52:5: But God will break you down forever; he will snatch and tear you from your tent; he will uproot you from the land of the living. God will uproot you from the land of the living. V. 5 is what you can expect from sins of the tongue.

Bobby is going to illustrate when sins of the tongue are rampant in a church. There was a set up with the previous passages.

Lesson #902      Sins of the Tongue      1Cor. 13:7      May 31, 2009      Sunday 1

There are times that you must speak about others, sometimes in glowing terms and sometimes in negative terms. There are times that you must evaluate people. You must evaluate people in order to hire or fire someone. You must examine a person's qualifications. You need to know if someone is honest or dishonest, and sometimes you have to ask questions and seek answers, which may require careful conversation. You must examine various things and make recommendations, and making a recommendation places your own integrity on the line. Examining a true situation in another's life and discussing facts concerning someone else when those facts may have an effect on you, as long as you are not trying to attack them, judge them, to belittle them. It is not a sin of the tongue to discuss a predicament of a friend with those who are already aware of there situation, as long as the intent is not to injure or malign the other person. It is the intent of the one speaking which makes something a verbal sin.

Self righteousness is tearing someone down to build yourself up.

List of verbal sins

1. Speaking words which are harmful to the best interest of the person you are speaking of.
2. Speech which damages the reputation of others.
3. Speech which furthers one's own ambition by belittling someone else.
4. Judging others especially when you do not know the facts. This is not your prerogative in any case.
5. Repeating idle talk or rumors or gossip especially about the private affairs of friends or co-workers or acquaintances.

It is not just about lies, rumors or deception. True facts spoken antagonistically, sarcastically, or malice can be just as destructive and disruptive to the other person. It is obvious what damage is done to the target of talk. The personal damage done to one who is perpetrating the sins of the tongue is much greater than he can do to someone else. If you are the perpetrator of verbal sins, you are setting yourself up for something much worse than you are dishing out. That intent is very important. Verbal sins are not good for the health or well-being of a Christian. We all get involved in sins of the tongue; and they are very prevalent, but they are as bad of a sin as we can get involved in.

Some sins are vicious simply because they are often committed. Murder and adultery might be bad sins, but not many people commit these sins. Gossip and maligning are much more commonly committed.

“Whatever judgment you make against Me or others sets the magnitude of judgment against you.” says our Lord. Be careful of the intent of other people. There will also be discipline for the mental attitude sins which motivate the verbal sins. Mental attitude sins are always the basis for sins of the tongue. When you are jealous of someone or angry with someone, this mental attitude sins will be expressed verbally. God is difficult and tough on the verbal sinner. The point of Matt. 7:2, discipline form God is always completely appropriate. The punishment always fits the crime. The punishment vindicates the one who is being maligned. If the one receiving the judgment does not retaliate. The punishment for prolonged verbal sins is as bad as it gets. Psalm 34:12–13: length of days producing divine good involves keeping your mouth shut. Keep yourself from speaking lies, mockery, judgment. It is a quick way to a short miserable life. Sins can be enjoyable. However, it is Bobby's job to inform us.

The Bible has a description of the ultimate end of the gossip and maligner. Psalm 52:1–5: Why do you boast of evil, O mighty man? The steadfast love of God endures all the day. Your tongue plots destruction, like a sharp razor, you worker of deceit. You love evil more than good, and lying more than speaking what is right. Selah You love all words that devour, O deceitful tongue. But God will break you down forever; he will snatch and tear you from your tent [God removes you from your house]; he will uproot you from the land of the living. Selah when God breaks you down, He can take away your health and your finances. Death can be the final step. All believers will end up in heaven, but there will be a lack of rewards.

Sins of the tongue destroy organizations as well. Job 15:35: They conceive trouble and give birth to evil, and their womb prepares deceit. These are mischief-makers, but this is a weak translation. It is amal, which means trouble, serious trouble. It is trouble-makers who bring forth iniquity. It is like water which pours out of a fountain. Aven is the word for iniquity. This is pure evil. These are persons of complete evil who bring trouble to others. Believers can be evil; sins of the tongue are committed by believers all of the time. Such a person is perpetrating evil.

Satan is the first liar. He is the most arrogant. He is the one who fell from heaven. He approached the woman and gave her the half-lie. He convinced her with lies by convincing her to eat of the fruit and to offer this to Adam. There was a price paid by God Himself, and He sent His uniquely-begotten Son to die for our sins. In Christ, all are made alive.

One of the reasons that God takes sins of the tongue so seriously is, they are what misled the woman in the garden. Satan disguises himself as light, and he is the self righteous deceiver. You cannot be involved in sins of the tongue without being evil. They perpetrate the lies which destroy people. Any organization can be cut and slashed and destroyed by gossip.

Bobby is going to give an example of how this occurs in a church

1. The trouble-maker uses deceiving verbiage and flattery to attract a group. Trouble attracts trouble.
2. Informing a clique in a church. They accumulate power and a loyalty based up mutually evil objectives.
3. These are attractive people involved in sins of the tongue in a church. Otherwise, they could not charm a group of disgruntled people. Satan is the pattern. He is attractive. Hard to spread trouble if you are not attractive.
4. Trouble-maker is often attractive and he attracts to himself self righteous legalists.
5. Their self righteousness is at war with grace. The gossip, maligner is at war with grace.
6. Anyone who is grace orientated becomes a target of lies and vituperation from the troublemaker (s). Legalism opposes grace. There is so much legalism in our churches today.

7. Troublemakers reject Bible doctrine. All that is left is legalism. You reject grace. You do not understand grace. These people have no objective criterion for the Christian life and they just make up their own criterion for the Christian life.
8. The substitute human good works as a counterfeit of divine good. You must be filled with the Spirit in order to produce divine good. Those with the sins of the tongue are by definition are in carnality. They substitute good deeds as the Christian way of life.
9. They are a mockery of the spiritual life. They are seducers of gullible immature believers. This is a believer who is not growing or advancing, and he is open to gossip, flattery or deceit. They do not know any better. It just takes someone with a fast tongue. They are caught in a web of evil.
10. Seduction is the means of asserting control and manipulating, dividing and conquering. Legalism versus grace.
11. What happens? The church begins to lose spiritual momentum as a body. They begin to divide along the lines of legalism and grace; this is where churches split. This is the real issue.
12. The true purpose of the church is lost in the shuffle, and you have a divisive split. It comes down to one thing; a power play in the church, and history is filled with such ecclesiastical evil. The history of the church comes down to this very thing, where the church becomes a hotbed of legalism, power struggles, morality, etc. Soon you end up with a church filled with trouble-makers.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #903      Sins of the Tongue      1Cor. 13:7      May 31, 2009      Sunday 2

When Bob first began at Berachah Church, he had to fire the board of deacons and the choir, because of their sins of the tongue. There are many ways to use the sins of the tongue. Bob has seen it all. He kept the church safe from such people by simply getting rid of them. Bobby has never had to do that because people understand how bad that is. This is what can happen when sins of the tongue are rampant. When arrogant trouble-makers try to make themselves authorities in the church. They want to be an alternative authority in the church.

The trouble-maker is judging others who refuse their seduction. If seduction and flattery do not work, then they get the brunt of the sins of the tongue. Those who do accept such verbal assault get their lives manipulated, and the person holding power sways those around them. They will use a glib, evil tongue to do it.

Their talk is self righteous and it is the intent behind the words which define sins of the tongue. Many people can sound nice and pious and holy, and they are spitting cobras.

Inside and outside the church, there are attacks, and Bobby had never heard so much bad-mouthing of his church. "You are hiding behind doctrine." Or, "We need less doctrine and more Christian service.” Or, “Get more involved in church programs. Work for the church and give some money.” The teaching of Bible doctrine is always under attack; always under verbal assault. There is an attempt to gain power and authority in the church. This attacks are made by the very ones who should know better.

Pushing believers away from growing in grace and knowledge is what is being attempted, and substituting in human good activities. A believer cannot grow to spiritual maturity without grace orientation. Everything that we face in this life is exactly the opposite of grace. All that we know in this life depends upon merit. Do well and get promoted; do well and make more money. The Christian life is exactly the opposite. It is an entirely foreign way of thinking. The rest of the world, the cosmic system, does not understand that.

You find out Who God is and what the spiritual life is first, and then you move on that. You do not do spiritual works first, and then, when you have time, find out about God and what your spiritual life is all about. Too much preaching and not enough working; and as soon as you hear that, you get away from that. Production is a result of doctrine in the soul. That is the means of spiritual advance.

People in a church will gather a coterie of others to fight back against grace. Growth for many pastors is the size of a congregation, and many churches are concerned with numbers. The rationale is, once we get them in the door, then we teach them. However, the emphasis became, get them here and then get their money.

Do not place your hope and faith in a candidate, no matter who it is. However, some churches are used for political organization. That is a deception. They build a coterie of others who cannot distinguish between the spiritual life and human good.

The sincere but ignorant trouble-maker

1. He is well-meaning, but an ignoramus.
2. Ignorant of doctrine without grace orientation, he attempts to live his version of the Christian way of life. It is a distorted view of the spiritual life.
3. It is often self righteousness and human morality and/or works which is what they believe is the Christian life. These are all laudable things. Look at what I am doing for God.
4. This believer genuinely believes that his actions are good and proof of his Christian way of life.
5. Christianity is a series of do this but don't do that. When others do not fit into their concept of Christianity, they are criticized. He becomes a fruit inspector. Abstaining from the taboos becomes the Christian way of life to them. He religiously tries to do good by subjective deeds and not by objective knowledge.
6. His deeds are not divine good but human good. They might be well-meaning, but do these deeds line up with the Christian way of life?
7. He thinks that one believer must be held accountable to another believer. One to another they will cite. He becomes a spiritual accountant, putting the good on one side and bad on the other. Virtue, to him, is not developed, but it is a list of external deeds which he can analyze, scrutinize and determine their goodness.

8. He substitutes emotion for renovated thinking. Emotion does not carry anyone. You might have great emotion in church, but there is nothing to take with you. It is like a football team which is pumped, but something happens and you fall and deflate. You need to leave church and be able to use what you have learned.
9. Pastors who fail to teach doctrine, can fall into this emotional category. They are well-meaning, but ignorant. If they rely on emotionalism instead of doctrine, they are deceivers. They are their own worse enemies in their own churches. They are self righteous trouble-makers leading a church. Self righteous people are developed in a church led by a self righteous pastor.

Believer Establishing Himself as a Role Model

1. He someone akin to the genuine but ignorant trouble maker. The manipulative believer has a very well defined agenda as a role model. He has some doctrine and he is not as ignorant as the other. He is more subtle. He uses doctrine for his own manipulative purpose. Triple-compound discipline.
2. He sets himself up as the pattern for all others to follow. He has the right vocabulary and he strives to mold others into his own pattern. "Am I supposed to visit each one of you and tell you how to live?" You must have privacy before the Lord to live your life. Bible doctrine is the personification of our role model, Who is Jesus Christ. Bobby is not the right one. Get close to Bobby and you will see his feet of clay. There are plenty of people in a congregation who want to develop a little coterie of believers that they can lead around.
3. The manipulator is the know-it-all who is consistently critical and judgmental of the church he attends and of the pastor of the church.
4. He is never satisfied because Bible doctrine is not his real criterion for the spiritual life. He is his own criterion as the self-imposed pattern for others. "I have my own standards and you must fit my standards." It has nothing to do with Christianity. It is a self righteous legalist trying to manipulate you into various courses of action. During the time of Martin Luther, the church was collecting money of indulgences in order to build Saint Peter's. The privacy of the priesthood is violated. All of this goes out the window when the manipulative Christian takes over.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #904

Trouble-Makers 1Cor. 13:7 June 3, 2009

Wednesday

George Mueller (German and Africa missionary) will be speaking tonite

We have observed the magnitude of the sins of the tongue for those who are spoken against and for those who commit these sins. Individuals can be damaged by sins of the tongue. A group of believers can be damaged by sins of the tongue as well.

The book of Job does not have false doctrine; it has a misapplication of doctrine throughout.

We began to examine Job 15:35: They conceive trouble and give birth to evil, and their womb prepares deceit." Eliphaz said this, and he was one of Job's friends. Job, at this point in his life, was suffering intensely. God allowed this suffering to occur. His suffering was a direct result of Satan's accusation made against God. Job was a very wealthy man; he had a lot of land and a lot of cattle and sheep. Bobby thinks this was written during the time of Solomon. Today, Job might be a fat cat on Wall Street with plenty of money. He suffered because Satan told God, "If you take everything away from Job, then he will curse you." God allowed this suffering to occur, to demonstrate His essence, as well as to Job and those in Job's periphery. Job was a test case to show that, if suffering was put on a godly man, that he would then turn against God.

This is about Job's friend, Eliphaz. Job was at the very center of the Angelic Conflict at this point in time. Bildad and Zophar were the other two men. They continued to give speech after speech condemning Job. Job had lost everything and was sitting on a pile of ashes, and these friends of his looked at him and figured that God was punishing him for personal failures. They wanted to direct job back to the paths of righteousness. They were judging him based upon how he appeared and because of their own self righteousness. They were attempting to manipulate him into God's good graces. They were extremely divisive and in between their blasting of Job, they were unknowingly attempting to drive a wedge between God and Job.

Eliphaz reasoned that, if anyone suffered like Job had, then he had to be guilty. Job 15:35: [They conceive \[big\] trouble and give birth to evil, and their womb prepares deceit.](#)" These 3 men had become spokesmen for the cosmic system and the tormentors of Job. They took over for Satan. When someone does not meet their standards, then that someone else must be wrong.

The things which happen to Job can happen in any church. Any believer who is grace oriented, can become a target. Churches in American are loaded with trouble-makers. In the churches is the center of the angelic conflict. Sometimes spiritual advance is no longer the purpose, but divisiveness takes over.

The verbal assault takes over. Trouble-makers either judge others or they manipulate the lives of others in order to hold sway over a coterie or a clique of believers.

4 categories of trouble-makers which can be found in any church. Sincere but mistaken or ignorant types. Job's friends were like this.

Sincerer but Ignorant Trouble-Makers

1. This type of trouble-maker is unaware, but no less trouble.

2. Ignorant of doctrine and without grace orientation, the sincere Christian attempts to live his version of the Christian life. People get away from Bible doctrine, so the only Christian life they can live is making it up as they go along.
3. Their version is often self righteousness or merely morality or good deeds.
4. The sincere believer genuinely thinks that his good deeds are the Christian way of life. The sincere immature believer thinks they are the proof of his salvation. If you don't produce those good works, then your salvation is suspect. The self righteous sincere but ignorant trouble-maker will judge you. They are fruit inspectors.
5. For the ignorant Christian, Christianity is a series of taboos; of do's and don't's. it is a bunch of do this, don't do that. If you examine any of the friends of Job, you are looking into the face of self righteousness.
6. The good of such a believer is just human good. There is nothing good in human good. There are no rewards. They are disapproving and judgmental of those who do not live up to their taboos or false standards.
7. He thinks that one believers must be held accountable to their life of taboos. Eliphaz was dead-wrong; he was trying to be Job's conscience. No one else can be your conscience. Other believers are held accountable, not to God, but to these self righteous standards. They are discipling other believers, which means that they are going to superimpose on you some phoney standards.
8. In practice, this type of trouble-maker substitutes his false standards for Bible doctrine. Without Bible doctrine, he is unstable. In that mode, he transfers instability to other believers.
9. Pastors who fail to teach doctrine can fall into this category. They are well-meaning, but ignorant. You may, as a pastor, teach good deeds, and get your sheep all lined up and doing things, and often this is done by emotionalism. But this is not the correct way to lead.

The Role-Model Trouble-Maker or the Manipulative Trouble Maker

1. This person has some doctrine, but they also have an agenda. He uses this doctrine for his own manipulative purposes.
2. He sets himself up as the pattern in the spiritual life for all believers to follow. He has the right vocabulary. He has γνῶσις in his soul, but no spiritual growth.
3. He is a know-it-all. He is consistently critical and judgmental of the church he attends and especially of the pastor. If you can convince someone, you have manipulated them into being what you want them to be.
4. He is never satisfied because Bible doctrine is not his true criterion. He is his own criterion.
5. He superimposes his personal thoughts and judgments over Bible doctrine. He makes it sound like Bible doctrine. He is silver-tongued. He makes it sound like doctrine, but he has made it up. Bobby does not even understand the motivation behind this. This is the kind of believer who decides to study the Bible on his own without the preparation or the gift of pastor-teacher. He uses this to challenge the pulpit. When you are a manipulator, you begin to manipulate others in your own ignorance. This person has his own group. It is a prayer group or a Bible study or they teach stuff that they are not qualified to teach. He is setting himself up as an alternative in the Christian church. For the person who does it, look out. You are deceiving others. People want to have some ministry outside of the church, particularly if they do not agree with the pastor.

6. These manipulators are self-proclaimed experts in the Christian life. They want to manipulate you. Bobby heard this in seminary and he knows what damage these things can do. You will never get away with leading other believers astray.
7. Other believers must fit into the concept of the spiritual life, which he models so beautifully. You do not have the right to determine the model of Scripture.
8. The manipulator has an affinity for the first category of genuine but ignorant believers in this category.
9. The manipulator is always quick to correct other believers, but they do it in a sweet and saintly way. They exhibit Christian love.
10. The manipulator has a very hard time with a pastor who teaches doctrine who sets the pattern of the Christian way of life by teaching the whole realm of doctrine. The manipulator is arrogant. He would not be the extra-curricular guide and he must be as a part of his arrogant attitude.
11. The role model is the road-block for any believer reaching spiritual self esteem or becoming spiritually self sustaining. "How can anyone live without my example?" and if you say, "Jesus is my role model" that often is a distortion. We are to imitate Christ.
12. When a self-imposed, manipulative role model is confronted by doctrine beyond his level, he become defensive and self-justifying. He foments open warfar in the church. Arrogance.
13. Therefore, he becomes the church revolutionary. When a church is mega, it is hard to find them in the size of the church, as there are revolutionaries all over. They are fomenting a revolt within the church, and there are many in a mega-church. There used to be a lot of Sunday school classes taught at Berachah Church, and no more, because they were seed beds of revolution.

The Bully Trouble-Maker

1. He combines self righteous arrogance with . He is the activist. He is the talkig political head. He brow-beats others into submitting to his brand of legalism or activism. He is not a manipulator, he is a dominator. He has a big foot and a big voice and he abuses it.
2. He is liable to set up all sorts of extra-curricular programs, using guilt and intimidation to get you involved.
3. Fear is his ally. Christians use fear.

The Antinomian Trouble-Maker for tomorrow night.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Herr Mueller. Times change, people change; but the message from this pulpit has not changed. As a missionary, he needs a pastor-teacher. All missionaries and evangelists need pastor-teachers.

Lesson #905

1Cor. 13:7 June 4, 2009

Thursday

Dual steeples built on one Gothic cathedral, built 100 years apart, and not like one another as the 2nd one, they did not know how to make the first one.

What Bobby is teaching us is not theoretical; these are things which he has observed firsthand at Berachah Church. Spiritual trouble-makers do not have Bible doctrine as their priority; it is not the center guidance of their lives.

Virtue love in their souls is non-existent. That is their common ground. Trouble-makers must contrive a substitute for the spiritual life. They reject the very source of understanding of the spiritual life. They simply follow the whims of human viewpoint. There is a gospel according to their own dispositions. They are believers who are captivated by every fad of Christianity. One awhile ago was that the Bible was filled with a secret code, and trouble-makers often get involved in that sort of thing.

The relative is the modus operandi of the cosmic system. Immature and carnal believers can only bring grief and divisiveness to any church in which they find themselves.

Sincere but ignorant trouble-maker. This group is completely devoid of doctrine. They are the most immature of all believers. They are earnest, but illiterate and unenlightened. They put the cart of good works before spiritual advance. As self-righteous, they are disapproving of the grace oriented believer. They think that person has too much seat time. They are judgmental of those who do not meet their phony standards of Christian behavior. The immature church trouble-maker lives based on morality. They just do not get it. This believer clings to emotion because he wants to feel close to God. Once you know someone, then emotions fall into place. Feeling good around someone that you don't know is foolishness. You don't know what they are going to do. They transfer that instability to those with whom they associate.

The manipulative trouble-maker group has some doctrine. They have enough to make him or her dangerous. They also have an agenda. They have stopped growing and they have begun to control. He is the self-styled Christian role model, which is touted in seminaries today as one-on-one discipleship. The role model is guiding and teaching the person who is less mature. The blind leading the blind. One forces the other into a mold, even though it may have little to do with the Christian way of life.

The manipulator is good at deception. He has the spiritual vocabulary, and this is something which has gone through Berachah Church like a freight train. Berachah Church is known for its vocabulary. There are numerous vocabulary words which most of the Christian world does not use; but plenty of people pick up the vocabulary and they sound like the most mature of believers. They truly know nothing of the spiritual life, but they can use the vocabulary to maximum effect. These superimpose their own thinking over Bible doctrine. They make it sound like Bible doctrine. The immature believer ends up being fooled.

How can you advance when you are being dominated by someone as immature as you? We learn from Bobby. He is prepared and gifted to do this. One of the manipulator's great weapons is to make other believers feel good about themselves. The believer advancing to spiritual maturity gains spiritual self esteem. If you have spiritual self esteem and if you are spiritually self-sustaining, then you are not thrown off by such a one. These people have leadership qualities, but they stop growing, and these leadership qualities are never put to work. They use those qualities to manipulate instead of supporting Bible teaching.

At the end of the day, the self-promoting paradigm clings to his own false standards, and his relative spiritual life is put upon those who listen to him.

The bully combines two deadly problems. He is self righteous, he has self righteous arrogance and he has crusader arrogance. He uses guilt and intimidation to get other believers on-board with his program. He attempts to scare people into living a facsimile of the Christian way of life. They argue false things like, you are not saved unless you produce the fruits of the Spirit (which might be protesting some political or social injustice), and he is the fruit inspector. Or, they believe you can lose your salvation. They dismiss 1John 1:9 as too easy. If you do not repent of your sins or feel sorry for your sins, then you are not forgiven. You have offended Him; shouldn't you feel badly and beg forgiveness? There are all sorts of permutations of this. However, you simply depend upon what the Bible says.

The fruits of the Spirit are whatever the bully wants them to be. So this varies from bully to bully. However, in reality, we develop virtue love, and that is the basis of our interaction with others. The bully has no virtue love. How can he produce the fruits of the Spirit, much less judge what you do?

The Antinomian Trouble-Maker

1. He is inconsistent or negligent when it comes to listening to Bible doctrine.
2. He is consistently out of fellowship because his mind is set upon his own amusement. He is the one who comes to church for social intercourse, for the singles group. He comes to meet someone. Mr. Goodbar. He is the church predator.
3. He is never about doctrine, but he will use a doctrinal vocabulary in order to seduce.
4. Doctrinal norms and standards are ignored in antinomianism.
5. He delights in shocking the legalists. He is the self-proclaimed nemesis of such types.
6. He is an obvious stumbling block tot he weak.
7. Many legalists see him as a non-Christian because of his actions.
8. Christianity today is rife with believers who tell you that you cannot do this or that and be saved. Or they tell you that you will eventually stop doing certain things.

However, as you move toward maturity, you will deal with your own weakness less and less.

9. The antinomian appeals to those with the same area of weakness in the sin nature. They indulge that same area of weakness with him or her.
10. He is a divisive leader in the church, a magnet for those with the same area of weakness in the church. It can be trouble for you; trouble for others. Now you know what churches in America are like.

1Peter 3:8: Finally, all of you, have unity of mind, sympathy, brotherly love, a tender heart, and a humble mind. These are parallel characteristics to the virtue love characteristics and you can even match some of them up. 1Peter 3:9–11: Do not repay evil for evil or reviling for reviling, but on the contrary, bless, for to this you were called, that you may obtain a blessing. For "Whoever desires to love life and see good days, let him keep his tongue from evil and his lips from speaking deceit; let him turn away from evil and do good; let him seek peace and pursue it. If you must speak at all, you speak kindly. This is part of virtue love. The opposite of insult is kindness. The person you give a blessing to, do not insult, but treat in virtue love. Who knows what is in their lives. Treat them as one for whom Christ died. Let this person keep his tongue from evil. When the tongue is cut loose and the lies flow. For this person, turn away from evil. You have to break the pattern of sins of the tongue or they will break you. You will get triple compound discipline.

We cannot be involved with sins of the tongue and produce anything of the spiritual life. There is no production of divine good. But they will spend eternity in heaven. Sins of the tongue wreak havoc and not tranquility. Seek peace and pursue it. 1Peter 3:12: For the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous, and his ears are open to their prayer. But the face of the Lord is against those who do evil." You may wonder why relationships do not work out or why you get discipline. But the problem is lying, slandering, judging. Keep things confidential. "I gain the favor of God because I am so good." God is only impressed with the advancement of the spiritual life. Think for just a moment; who gives you the hardest time in life. Who bothers you the most? Who is it that you are forced to see, but you would just as soon never see them again. What do you do and how do you speak about those whom you do not like. It is all about virtue love. Sins of the tongue are deadly because they are completely antithetical to virtue love.

Virtue love believes all things. The verb is πιστευω, which means to trust, to believe; to be convinced of something, to trust something. Being convinced of something. This could mean trusting doctrine as the Word of God. This trusting is faith-perception and faith-application, which includes utilizing the grace apparatus for perception. It is the metabolizing of Bible doctrine. While it is a true statement that, we ought to trust all things of doctrine, but that is not what this means here.

Why this is not that

1. The process of believing or metabolizing doctrine and advancing spiritually is the divine system of attaining virtue love. This passage is characterizing virtue love, not how we attain it. We believe doctrine. We metabolize doctrine.
2. We cannot say the process of attaining doctrine is also a characteristic of doctrine.
3. What does trust mean here? Virtue love is about personal characteristics of believers in relationships with people. Reciprocal love is about our personal love for God. Virtue love is turned outward toward other people.
4. This phrase in this context indicates a specific characteristic of virtue love in relation to others.
5. This is therefore related to others.
6. Virtue love has trust as a characteristic. Trusting all things means trusting people. Virtue love trusts people. Particularly in personal love relationships. How do we do that and what does it mean?

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #906

1Cor. 13:7 June 7, 2009

Sunday 1

So far, we have covered the very first part of this verse. Virtue love bears patiently all things by passing over in silence,... which means abstaining from verbal sins and resisting the urge to verbally attack another or to resist attacking another's privacy. Personal love is directed toward a select few and impersonal love is directed toward everyone. The virtue of virtue love is the product of Bible doctrine in the soul and reciprocal love toward God. From the first phrase of v. 7, we know that sins of the tongue are the antithesis of bearing people patiently. Verbal sins utterly and publically violate the concept of virtue love. Virtue love is absent from your soul when sins of the tongue are evident.

The second part of this verse is ...virtue love believes all things... The interpretation here is being convinced of something or trusting someone. Our trust springs from faith-perception and metabolizing the doctrine which is here. As you mature, you demonstrate trust by faith application in the spiritual life. This is known as utilizing problem solving devices. Our trust is never misplaced when placed in the mind of Christ.

Impersonal love is, however, related to our relationship with other people, and virtue love is the context of this verse. Trust here refers to a specific characteristic in relationship with other people. Personal virtue love has trust toward those with whom you have a personal love relationship or an intimate relationship. In relationships, you are convinced that your intimate friend or loved ones are completely deserving of your trust. You credit those few people with the best possible motives, giving credence to what they say about themselves. You believe the statements, the explanations, and the reports which they give to you. You give them the benefit of the doubt in your relationship. Personal love and intimate friendship, to be possible, requires trust. It is necessary and irreplaceable. Without trust, we do not have the capacity to love, we are unable to choose those who are trustworthy, and we will be unable to build a trusting relationship. Love and friendship are reduced are tarnished when trust is gone. When this happens, impersonal love needs to kick in. If trust goes out of the relationship, or when trust is violated, there will be hostility, anger, sins of the tongue, etc. If the other person cannot trust, then there will be problems as well.

Trusting all things does not mean that you are so childlike and gullible that you overlook the obvious and facts which would invalidate your trust. A believer should have common sense in his soul, based upon the doctrine there. Objectivity is one of the things which you gain in the Christian life and with spiritual growth. Does a failure in someone else remove all trust, can it be recovered? Are you able to forgive that which is perpetrated against you which can destroy your trust. It depends upon your character of virtue love. Don't be self righteous about it; do not look at anyone else's failures, and look down on them. Retain the element of objectivity toward those you love so that you give them a fair shake in life.

Dating or courting or developing friendships or parenting, and sometimes you want to trust where trust may not be warranted. Do not pretend that black is white. Do not disregard overwhelming evidence to the contrary; do not turn a blind eye toward deception. There is emotion involved in any relationship, but you cannot allow your emotion to lead. Regardless, if your emotion runs your life, at some point mistrust will raise its ugly head, and usually it falls on you like a ton of bricks...which you did not see it coming. Figure out the trust issue before you get married. You need the capacity for trust then the object of your trust must be trustworthy. You must maintain some objectivity. Do not let unverified suspicions creep into your relationship. Do not believe rumors. Unwarranted mistrust can be as damaging as whatever. You have control over your own thinking; you do not have control over someone else's behavior. For someone with situational ethics, you know that, when it is not in their favor, that they will do whatever is good for them.

Place your trust in loved ones and relationships unless there is incontrovertible evidence to the contrary. Do not abandon the relationship. People can develop trustworthiness, through Bible doctrine.

If the breach of trust reveals a character flaw, so, they are just untrustworthy, then remove yourself from that situation if that is possible. There are many times when you cannot remove yourself, when family or marriage is involved. Impersonal love is your only recourse and it will get a workout. You will become an expert in impersonal love, it will accelerate your advance, and God will honor it. Your pattern for an intimate relationship; you build the capacity to trust others.

Believes or trusts all things is in tandem with hopes all things. When there is evidence of untrustworthiness, then virtue love hopes all things. You can be realistic with regards to sin natures, but you should not be pessimistic. Virtue love hopes all things. Ελπίζω is hope with confidence. There is no optative mood here. This is not a false hope. This is a possession of confidence. Hope is always tied to expectation. There is a confident expectation. We have the light of eternity. Do we not then have a confident expectation. We are convinced that our future is secure forever. That is the doctrine of eternal security. If you are depending upon money? Are you depending upon assets? No matter what happens to you in this life, your future is eternally secure. Your future is solid.

The secular non-Christian world cannot look down the corridors of time and share in our confidence. They think the oceans will rise. The unbeliever always lives with an ambiguous future. They have no hard and fast convictions of their future. They do not even have security in their immediate future. They plan for retirement; how is the 401k doing? They are not dependent upon God's plan. Luck is never a part of God's plan. You were either in or out of God's plan today.

The unbeliever lacks confident expectation. How do they cope? How do they live their lives without any real confident expectations of the future? They do not think about it. They will think about that tomorrow, maybe. They make seek solace or comfort in current success or pleasure. They may take refuge in their collective humanity. They rationalize that everyone is in the same boat. There is no trust in this; there is no confident expectation in that.

It is amazing for Bobby to stand in this pulpit and give a memorial service, and it deals with the living. Rarely does he give long eulogies. He speaks to those who are alive and he speaks to them about death. For the unbeliever, they have no confident expectation when it comes to death. This is one of the few times that they must come face to face with their own mortality. We have that. We have a confidence in our future. The unbeliever has no future expectation. Virtue love is convinced of future expectation. Nothing can assail you more in this life when you have confident expectation of the future.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things [virtue love is convinced of all things and trusts all things], hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #907

Sunday 2

ἐλπίζω = confident expectation. We have a confident expectation in the person and work of Jesus Christ. Then we build as a believer in Jesus Christ. This is not present in the secular world. It is very difficult for them to have an security. They have no real expectation. They have lots of excuses as to how and why they live without total pessimism. They have all kinds of crutches, although they will blame the believer for his religious crutch.

We are exactly the opposite of the secular unbelieving world with this characteristic of virtue love. We can have confident expectations of the future. God's plan always works out in exactly the way that He intends it to. In eternity past, He gave us the divine decree which defined all life on this earth and the lift of every believer in Jesus Christ. He decreed our salvation, and then He developed an individual, personal plan for each one of us.

We have a past, beyond back where we cannot understand. This plan was always in the mind of God, from eternity past. This means that we have never been out of His mind. God has thought about us forever and He has built a plan for us forever. When in this plan, we have the confident expectation that no one else in this world can have.

We can look forward to the future, with confident expectation and faith execution. Who among us does not realize that there is no confidence in life apart from that. There is no confidence in life apart from this. We can live in human viewpoint, if we so choose. "I am not telling you not to roll the dice; I am telling you that it does not matter."

When you look into the future down the corridors of time, we do not have many specifics. There are a few physical descriptions of heaven and being face to face with God. However, we can have confidence in Him and look off into the future and see that. We are developing confidence in the future.

This confidence continues to every moment of your life. No one else has that confidence. We either have that confidence or the potential of that confidence. Our future expectation has bearing on time.

Our Future Confidence

1. We are confident because God is the source of our confidence and of our future. There is not a charity organization or a rich person who is the source of our confidence.
2. Confident expectation in the Lord and His promises are then parlayed into absolute expectations and the near and far future.
3. If the future is secure, why not the present? What right do we have to be insecure or pessimistic? As it says, virtue love is confident expectation in the future and in the right now.
4. We, as believers, look forward to something great, something beyond imagination in eternity. "I have a miserable life today, but I know I will have it all in the future." However, this does not mean that you cannot have a confident expectation in time.
5. Understand that this world and all of its problems are not the end-all. They are just preliminaries to eternity in heaven. We have the confident expectation. This is just a preliminary. In God's plan, even adversity has a purpose. That is guaranteed as we advance toward maturity.
6. Current problems in our life or around us should not even be momentary roadblocks to confidence. There are times that we wake up and we are upset; but we rebound and we think of a promise of God. No matter how bad things look, we have confident expectation in time and for the future. It takes only a moment to rebound and then to move ahead with confidence. A great witness of Jesus Christ is a person who has confidence in life.
7. Because there is adversity, this does not mean that we lose confidence. We may temporarily lose our confidence, but the plan of God covers us presently and for the future. This thought in itself is a confident expectation.
8. If you maintain confident expectation, it is because we are secure in our temporal and future with the Lord. This is secured by spiritual growth. When you are involved in the grace of God, you know that there is nothing which intrudes upon this. There are literally millions of Christians who do not believe in eternal security. So many of them think, either they must live a certain way to maintain salvation or, if they do not act a certain way, maybe they were never saved ever. There is no confidence here. That is not growth in grace or knowledge; that is growth in fear. Those without eternal security are afraid.

We are not born again in this life to live a lifestyle of fear. An immutable God guarantees our eternal security. Once we are saved, we cannot be taken out. We cannot even take ourselves out. Immutable God makes an exception for you? A believer may exhibit a flaw, a failure, or even extended carnality in this life; but no believer need doubt his eternal security ever. Even in failure, the grace of God is still in operation. He never need fear the loss of salvation. How can you have security in your own repentance or your own good deeds? If you have been saved without merit, how do you think you can maintain your salvation? Have you suddenly become a person without sin? You cannot assert a loss of salvation if you do not produce the things which the Bible speaks of. The fruits of the Spirit are not good deeds imposed upon us by someone else. The fruits of the Spirit come from virtue love. They come through the grace of God. If we have expressed faith alone in Christ alone, then you have confident expectation in eternity (ideally speaking). Some believers do not like the doctrine of eternal security, because they are concerned that some will just say, "See You later, God; I will now just live my life in the way that I want to."

We live in a time of pessimism. God gives us confidence for time and eternity. We may take rebound for granted. But we have confidence that every time we name our sins, God forgives us. This is the beginning of confidence expectation.

You realize that problems are not really problems. This is the bedrock of your life. This is such an important characteristic of virtue love. Spiritual advance is based upon absolute confidence in God's grace and His love toward us. The more we apply virtue love, the more confidence which we have in this life. Some of us may have never faced any adversity with any confidence in this life.

Death is not the end, but the beginning. We as believers must be grounded in doctrine. We must be able to deal with difficult people with impersonal love. We as believers approach death without the hopeless grief and fear of the secular world. We can always be confident in our eternal future.

Application: if someone you love personally is outside of the plan of God, and you know it, and they reject or neglect doctrine, and are awash in human viewpoint and in carnality, we are not dejected or crushed by this. What you know is, the Lord is always working for their benefit. So we can still have confidence in the transformation which will renovate a person's thinking. We are confident that, until the Lord takes a believer home, there is always the possibility of recovery and growth. This confidence relaxes us. This way, we do not become a manipulative bully. We do not assault those for whom we have concern with guilt trips and warnings of dire consequences. We step back and let the Lord work in their lives. We are always here, whenever they might need us. Parents must keep this in mind when dealing with recalcitrant children. As a parent, you always discipline a child, but you are not discouraged if your discipline does not reach them immediately. God

He was surrounded by family and later by disciples, and crowds gathered to hear His message, but He was isolated by His purpose and ultimately, but his sacrifice. He was the sole implementer of the plan of God. No one else could stand where he stood.

George Bernard Shaw “Yes, I am alone on earth, I have always been alone” said Joan of Arc (the words of Shaw in a play). Jesus Christ could only do this alone.

In studied the gospel, Jesus loved to be with people, and he was always in the middle of a group, other than His solitude in prayer. Mark 3:14: He appointed 12 that they might be with Him. Even though He surrounded Himself with these 12, there always seemed to be a great gap between them and Him. Mostly, it is because they were so thick-headed, self-centered, self-indulgent and self-occupied. They were accompanying for 4 years the Messiah; He was the One they followed incessantly.

Jesus was surrounded by younger brothers and sisters as well. This was mentioned in Matt. 13:54–57: ...and coming to his hometown he taught them in their synagogue, so that they were astonished, and said, "Where did this man get this wisdom and these mighty works? Is not this the carpenter's son? Is not his mother called Mary? And are not his brothers James and Joseph and Simon and Judas? And are not all his sisters with us? Where then did this man get all these things?" And they took offense at him. But Jesus said to them, "A prophet is not without honor except in his hometown and in his own household."

Psalm 69:7–9: For it is for your sake that I have borne reproach, that dishonor has covered my face. I have become a stranger to my brothers, an alien to my mother's sons. For zeal for your house has consumed me, and the reproaches of those who reproach you have fallen on me.

One of the great incidents at the end of His life was His prayer in Gethsemene. He went a little beyond them. “Father, if it be Your will, let this cup pass from Me. Nevertheless, let it be Your will.” And later, “Could you not be with Me for even one hour?” but His disciples slept, oblivious to what would happen. The one time that He really needed His disciples for company.

He sacrificed everything for those of us who know nothing. “I have trodden the wine press alone.” One apostle denied Him, another forsook Him, one betrayed Him, and the others ran and hid at the time of the cross. When these disciples went with Jesus into Jerusalem, they should have understood His mission of salvation, yet they did not and they deserted Him. His total abandonment was all too apparent when He screamed from the cross, “My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?” Jesus alone paid the price for our abandonment.

Virtue love hopes all things is the 3rd phrase. That is too timid a translation. However, there is no fear here; it is all confidence. Virtue love has confidence in all things.

According to ἐπιζῶ we have a confident expectation. Our hope and our confidence is always based and projected on the confident expectation. We are convinced that our future is secure. There is the very basic doctrine of salvation.

You also have confident expectations for our immediate future. That plan was guaranteed in the divine decree. That decree was made in eternity past. God knows no time in His eternal existence. Time is an invention of God for us. Therefore, His decree is timeless. It has always existed as He has always existed. Our individual plan was a part of His divine decree. God has always known about us and His plan for us. We are never alone and we are never without expectations. We can be confident that God's plan always works out as He intends it to. We have the unlimited expectation that His plan will unfold just as He wills it to do. When we understand that we are in the hands of the Lord and always have been in His mind and plan, we can then bring that confidence into our present life. God is the source of all eternal expectations; therefore, in our eternal future, there is absolute confidence. We can always look forward to our future. Since our eternal future is secure, then our immediate future is secure as well. Absolute confidence and expectation is the monopoly of the believer.

Hope is confident expectation. The inculcation of confidence in God and His promises, and we have the confidence now and forever. This includes even the moments of adversity in our life. Even adversity has a purpose in God's plan. All things work together for good, including adversity. For those who have virtue love and for those who have confidence, we know adversity is working for us, even when the immediate future may look grim. We have no reason to look down the corridors of time without confidence.

What should our expectations be concerning our nation?

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things [virtue love is convinced of all things and trusts all things], hopes all things, endures all things.

Sunday 2

Can we have confident expectation when it comes to our own country? Can we have the same confidence in the future of our national entity? There is no reason for being forlorn. God will not abandon the pivot of mature believers. They form a pivot which blesses a nation, and we can always have confidence in the future, which should be reflected in our souls.

God blesses a nation with a pivot of mature believers, and we know that He is always faithful to His Word. Even if our nation goes under the 5th Cycle of Discipline, we can have confidence in the turmoil, as we are in the midst of the plan of God. We are going through some difficult economic times. Many Americans are hurting. Maybe we do not have a job. All of this is about our national economic condition. Be confident. Have ἐπιζῶ, an attitude of confident expectation. Psalm 50:10: For every beast of the forest is mine, the cattle on a thousand hills. Israel had an agrarian economy. A reduction of their herd or a bad crop meant economic disaster. God possesses all of the wealth in the universe. The metaphor of the cattle on a thousand hills. His wealth and rescue is always within His purview. It is with God's unlimited capital that He can prosper out and alleviate our troubles. Can He not restore our economic prosperity? Wealth is all God's. It is His purposes which matter. If your hardship is not alleviated, He has another plan for us. Even if we think we cannot live without our creature comforts, we can. Psa 50:11 I know all the birds of the hills, and all that moves in the field is mine. The hope characteristic of virtue love, and we will have confident expectations at every moment of our lives. There is no reason not to.

Principles of Hope for the client nation

1. You cannot buy hope. You cannot have absolute confidence with money. People with money are always in danger of losing it. You cannot buy hope; you cannot buy confidence. The lottery is not your hope.
2. You cannot peddle hope as a politician. No politician can give you hope for the future. They can only give human promises which are dependent upon millions of variables and unintended consequences. Only God has control over all that happens. Only He can give us true confidence. Does not history teach us that there are no guarantees of history even with great leaders and with socialism? From momentary prosperity, military success, and economic prosperity are all fleeting things. True hope comes from spiritual growth. You cannot put your trust in humanity and have confident expectations about anything.
3. You cannot legislate hope. You cannot pass laws to give people hope and confidence. That is a misuse of law. No government can give you hope or confidence in your future. Nothing external in this world is a source of lasting confidence. Only Bible doctrine resident in your soul can bring permanent confidence. Hope is the monopoly of the Word of God in our souls. It is a system of absolute confidence. It has nothing to do with government, politicians or other people.
4. The only hope for deliverance in historical crisis depends upon the invisible heroes. This brings us back to personal expectations and confidence. Berachah Church is the hope for our nation. God will bless this nation because of us. We place our trust in the Word of God. Only believers who execute the plan of God can become invisible heroes and the source of real confidence for a client nation. We can recover economically or continue to go down. In any case, His plan is in operation. Do not despair in hard times, difficult economy or military disaster. We have had economic problems and national turmoil; we are divided as a people. There should be no division between believers. This is not about political activism. Those who are in Berachah Church can be blessed by God, and this spills over to the nation. We become the hope of the U.S.

There is a great Biblical example of this. Absolute hope in a nation. Jeremiah was a great prophet of Israel. He was approaching the fifth cycle of discipline and he knew it. The Jews had turned to idolatry. Josiah was the leader at this time, and he was an okay king. He tried to reform Temple worship, and he wanted them to recall what these acts of worship meant. However, Israel refused to be brought back to God. They followed Temple rituals, the sacrifices, but their confidence was placed in the outward form of Temple ceremony. God will bless us if we do this; we don't know what it means and we do not care.

During this time period, murder and criminal activity was rampant. The believers and unbelievers were worshiping Baal. In 621 B.C., as all of these religious types and syncretists entered into the Temple, Jeremiah taught them. If your mind drifted during the Eucharist, and it had no meaning to you, then you do not have doctrine in your soul. Ritual without reality is meaningless.

Jeremiah never stopped speaking the truth, no matter that he was mocked and rejected; his confidence stayed in the Lord. He could see the pivot of mature believers shrinking. He knew what was coming, and yet his confidence never wavered; his confidence in God never wavered.

As this was going on, there were all sorts of events occurring in the outside world. Chaldea, Babylon, was on the rise. Nineveh and the remnants of the old Assyrian empire dissolved and Chaldea stepped in. This meant, however, that the two great empires, Babylon and Egypt were rising up, and a clash was inevitable.

Judah became a vassal state of Egypt and a puppet king, Jehoiakim. He did the wrong things, and then, like now, we are getting the judgment of God.

Jeremiah had confident expectation in the Lord. Once again, Judah rejected his words.

In 605 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar defeated Pharaoh Neco and he besieged Jerusalem in order to set up a buffer state. Jehoiakim immediately capitulated to Nebuchadnezzar. Whichever the political winds blew, that was the way he turned. The consummate political animal. Nebuchadnezzar took a number of hostages to keep Jehoiakim in line. Get out of line and you know what will happen. Daniel was one of these men. He was one of the great prophets of this time period.

3 years later, Jehoiakim went to Egypt, and asked for help. Take care of Nebuchadnezzar and we will trade off this or that.

Nebuchadnezzar returned a 2nd time in 598 B.C., and Jehoiakim was killed and his body thrown beyond the gates and his body eaten by dogs.

Nebuchadnezzar then rounded up 10,000 more Jews, taking the leaders, the soldiers and the laborers, and left Israel with nothing.

Zedekiah was life on the throne, but he finally got tired of hearing stuff from Jeremiah. So Zedekiah put him into prison. Then Zedekiah decided to rebel against Nebuchadnezzar. Those who are removed from the Word of God are removed from the Word of God.

Jeremiah continued to teach, but they would not listen. In the momentous year of 586 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar returned and he leveled Jerusalem and hauled another 5000 out of the land, the best of those remaining. Destruction and devastation is what was the result. Thus began the 70 years diaspora.

Nebuchadnezzar took all of the royal family with him. But, there had to be survivors because Jesus had to come from this royal line. Then Gedaliah was appointed governor, and he covered most of Jerusalem and a few miles around it. The Jews assassinated Gedaliah and then ran back to Egypt, and Jeremiah was hog-tied and taken to Egypt, which is where Jeremiah was hauled. He continued to teach.

Jeremiah was hated and persecuted, even by his own government, and he was a true patriot. Jeremiah had to consistently apply impersonal love to those to whom he ministered.

Although Jeremiah had some low points in his life, he always found refuge in the Word of God and he had absolute confidence in his ministry to Israel, regardless of their circumstances.

Lam. 3:26: this I call to mind, therefore, I have confidence. Your compassion are new every morning.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps confidential] all things, believes all things [virtue love is convinced of all things and trusts all things], hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #910

1Cor. 13:7 June 17, 2009

Wednesday

There is no question that our nation is at a crossroads and things are changing all around us. The knowledge that change is in the air is obvious. We can observe this change and realize that the hope of many citizens of the US is being placed in the government. Government and control and intervention in corporate and in our individual lives, and many Americans are choosing to follow this. New legislation is being passed at a particularly quick rate. Some of these laws will have great impact on how we live and operate in this country. The simple example is the cars that we drive at this moment. The size and power of the autos may be regulated, and allowing only a limited selection of automobiles, so this is not beyond the realm of possibility. Why would we have such a limited selection? Because the current models are polluting the atmosphere and the cars will be changed for the environment. The hoi polloi must make these sacrifices to survive global warming. We are attempting to make a switch to green energy for the same reason, even though there is no proven efficient way to harness this energy. We are not capable of supplying nearly enough energy to replace oil and coal. At the same time, one of the most clean and efficient ways of producing power, nuclear power, is being passed over out of fear.

We are being told that we have a health crisis and the solution is to adopt a government controlled system. And we ought to adopt an England or Canadian model, as per Pelosi.

But things like quality will be sacrificed. Now there are critical shortages of doctors in these places and people are dying waiting for procedures, and bureaucrats are making decisions about our health care decisions. We have the best health care system in the world. And, taxes will be raised to support and inferior system.

What we are looking at is government control, which is socialism. Central government planning of the economy, regulating or dictating the financial institutions, redistribution of wealth, which is class warfare; removing Christianity from public life (Marx called religion the opiate of the people), government promising a utopian society based on their actions, government control of the means of production. History has shown us that socialism leads to disastrous results. When half the people get the idea that they do not need to work, because the other half will pay for them, and then those stop working as well. Incentive to work decreases under socialism. The government cannot give to anyone what the government has not taken from someone else. You cannot multiply wealth by dividing it.

Some politicians have used the carrots of this system to gain power. They are more concerned with their own status than the welfare of the nation.

This is only a part of the overall situation which we face. For many of us, we become apprehensive about the United States of America. The hands of bureaucrats seem to be meddling in every aspect of our lives. Remember, that in all of this turmoil and change, the spiritual solution is the key. That is the only solution. The spiritual solution works every time. Our objective is to grow to spiritual maturity.

We have a confident expectation. What is the rationale for such a confident expectation when there seems no reason to be confident about anything. Whether we like it or not, change is hard. Our eternal future is secure. A fortiori reasoning tells us that our temporal future is secure. Can't God secure our present situation? We can be confident that God's plan for us and for the client nation works out exactly in the way that He intends it from eternity past. No matter what the human change is and no matter how difficult it all seems. God's plan works out exactly as He planned it. But He has not predetermined everything; we are given free will, and God's plan will work out as He planned it. That is all a part of the divine decree.

God can even fix the economy when He so chooses. Psalm 50:10, where God owns the cattle on a 1000 hills. He has unlimited wealth, which makes Him a capitalist, but also a target for redistribution of wealth. God can change anything for the better, but more importantly, He can provide personal freedom in the midst of horrendous tyranny. You will know the truth and the truth will set you free. Human truth is relative and it changes.

Even if our nation ends up in the fifth cycle of discipline, we can still have personal confidence in our life, as long as we reside in the plan of God. That means staying in fellowship and developing virtue love. This is us as an invisible hero. We joined the pivot of mature believers blessed by God, whether in adversity or in prosperity. We can have absolute confidence in this. As we go, so goes the nation. No politician has what we have. None have the absolute power behind us. We are the hope or the confidence of this nation.

Remember a few promises. Bobby is speaking about this so that we do not worry. Bobby could care less about our political persuasion. Psalm 119:12–14: With my lips I declare all the rules of your mouth. In the way of your testimonies I delight as much as in all riches. Psalm 119:113–114: With my lips I declare all the rules of your mouth. In the way of your testimonies I delight as much as in all riches. Psalm 119:81–82: My soul longs for your salvation; I hope in your word. My eyes long for your promise; I ask, "When will you comfort me?"

Moses had to deal with the worst generation, "I have confidence in Your Word." our confidence and our deliverance is in the Lord. Psalm 119:147–148: I rise before dawn and cry for help; I hope in your words. My eyes are awake before the watches of the night, that I may meditate on your promise. Where is our confidence? Where does it lie?

We believe all things in the plan of God. This does not we believe whatever we hear or see. We have confidence in all things because of the plan of God. This rationale includes even the greatest fear that we have in life. This confidence includes even death. We have an eschatology which looks forward to dying and death. Our life will be eternal. To live is Christ and to die is profit.

We know that God provides dying grace for the final phase of their lives. When we develop of personal sense of destiny. Our name is not nobody in the plan of God. We were in the mind of God always. That is the doctrine of divine decrees. He has an individual plan for us, as well as creation as well as all that is to come. We were in the plan of God from eternity past, and that should make us feel rather special and this should give us confidence. Therefore, we can live in the light of eternity. We should live with absolute confidence. Then we roll that confidence back into our lives. We develop confidence on all fronts, for time and eternity. With eternity in our future, we can be secure in the present. We have confidence in our future. That is what hope as a characteristic of virtue love is. With that power of doctrine in the soul and with the acquisition of virtue love, we build a confidence in life which overcomes any problem in any circumstances. Change does not upset us.

We should walk out of Berachah with great confidence. However, we may walk out that door and life crashes in on us.

If we are moving forward in the spiritual life, then we are going forward on God's perfect agenda. If we are looking backward or looking at our problems, then we are looking at our own agenda. The arrogance of self-absorption. We have confident expectation now and forever, or we don't.

As we grow spiritually, we experience less and less of that, and more and more confident expectation. We never lose under that system.

The plan of God has phases and it has stages by which we develop virtue love. There are 3 stages in the development of our confidence.

3 Stages in the Development of our Confidence

1. Absolute confidence that, once we believe in Jesus Christ, then we have eternal life. Titus 1:2 which God promises long ages ago. God promises salvation through faith alone in Christ alone, and this promise was made in eternity past before anything existed. The divine decree is God's plan for everything. Whenever we think of making a plan, we determine making it at some point in time. If we do not make a plan, we do not get what we want. In the military, they made all kinds of plans. There is always a time when that starts; but with God, that never started; it always was because God always was. This is an airtight promise; an eternally secure promise.
2. Once we believe in Jesus Christ, then we pass that moment of regeneration and that moment of receiving those irrevocable absolutes, plus the one revocable one; and then we receive a new confidence, but it does not happen all at once. This is the potential for a phenomenal relationship. At first, it is just a glimmer of hope, but after awhile, it becomes absolute confidence. Reciprocal love as we advance; gaining virtue love. Bible doctrine in the soul gives confidence in God's plan. That is the ultimate blessing. Are we blessed with wealth and happiness. Do we feel blessed with certain things? The ultimate blessing in life is absolute confidence in life, that we can depend upon God's plan and His character. We know He provides logistical grace through us throughout our lives. We know that God will bless us in adversity and in prosperity. If we remain in the plan of God, if we have confidence in His plan, then we will accelerate our growth. That is the greatest blessing. We will live in the realm of a relaxed mental attitude. That is a great blessing. The Bible is clear about this confidence of the spiritual life. 1Thess. 1:2-3: We give thanks to God always for all of you, constantly mentioning you in our prayers, remembering before our God and Father your work of faith and labor of love and steadfastness of confidence in our Lord Jesus Christ. We bear in mind our great confidence in Bible doctrine and courage under pressure from confidence in Jesus Christ. We will get kicked hard in divine discipline so that we get back with this plan and this confidence.

The Unfailing Love of God is 10 years in the making.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things [virtue love is convinced of all things and trusts all things], hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #911

1Cor. 13:7 June 18, 2009

Thursday

ελπις has been one of the more intriguing aspects of the virtue love. People have varying degrees of confidence. Many times, those with great success have confidence as well. Bobby has had varying degrees of confidence.

The first hope is the absolute confidence that once a person believes in Christ, he has eternal life. At that point, we have something which no unbeliever can have. Before being saved, we had no expectations of the future. We looked a little into the future, and we had some ideas of what we want to do, but in salvation, we have an eternal confidence. Furthermore, there is eternal security, so that we cannot lose this. Once God gives salvation, it cannot be revoked or removed. He simply cannot do that. In the confidence of eternal life, which God, Who cannot lie, He promised salvation ages ago (Titus 1:2). A promise of God is iron-clad. That is our reality.

A lot of Christians do not have this confidence, because they do not believe in eternal security. Whether you ever advance or not, whether you live in immorality or not, whether you use rebound or not, we are still eternally saved. We might get a lot of discipline, but we are still eternally saved. "I give them eternal life and they will never perish, and neither will anyone pluck them out of My hand." (John 10:28). Believers want to rededicate their lives to the Lord. But we do not need to rededicate. We have an eternal position in Christ. You may think that you need to come forward again and again. For some people, that is their form of confession. They believe again and again to make certain that it took the first time. That is not confidence, that is fear. If you are really a believer, then you will produce fruit, which is what some will say. It is grace and faith and works. God's grace saves us. It is faith which appropriates our salvation. Bobby suggests that head belief but not a heart belief is passe now, as he has not heard that. Every believer has the love and grace of God to fall back on. That grace begins at rebound.

When Rick Hughes goes to an assembly, he tries to stay for a week, and the first thing which he teaches is rebound. We need the confidence that we do not lose our salvation by sin. No sin removes us from a permanent relationship. Bobby goes over the top circle and bottom circle. In the top circle, we are in union with Jesus Christ forever. In the bottom circle, we deal with rebound. These two circles are separate, and much of the Christian world does not get that. Rebound is a confidence builder. Many criticize the rebound technique. It is easy-forgiving and causes people to sin. God wants you to feel something; He wants you to have repentance in your soul.

Great relationships are based upon love, trust and understanding. We gain confidence in our relationship with God through the intake of doctrine, thru reciprocal love for God, Bible doctrine in the soul, and trust and understanding are built up.

You build strong relationships with those you can depend upon. With those you have confidence in. With those who are always there.

Job 4:6: is not your fear of God your confidence? Job was the center of the Angelic Conflict; Satan and God were watching him and he needed confidence. Our reciprocal love for God is our confidence. And the integrity of Your ways your confidence.

Points on Job 4:6:

Is not your fear of God your confidence, and the integrity of your ways your hope?

1. The integrity of your ways is your developed virtue.

2. You cannot help but gain in confidence as you advance and as you build reciprocal love, here called respect for God.
3. This is the system for the sphere of love.
4. Gaining virtue from spiritual advance is the way to gain confidence.
5. We build the characteristic of hope as a part of virtue love.

Psalm 71:5–7: For you, O Lord, are my hope, my trust, O LORD, from my youth. Upon you I have leaned from before my birth; you are he who took me from my mother's womb. My praise is continually of you. I have been as a portent to many, but you are my strong refuge. David had some rough times and he could have developed a great deal of cynicism. However, he did not allow these things to overtake his thinking.

Some Points on Jer. 17:7

Jer. 17:7: "Blessed is the man who trusts in the LORD, whose trust is the LORD.

1. Happinesses is in the plural.
2. It is not an instant condition of the spiritual life.
3. Being made happy is a process which develops and continues when maximum metabolized doctrine circulates in the soul.
4. Being made happy is a reference to developing a relaxed mental attitude; a tranquility of soul. This comes from our first hope and then from the second hope. Confidence in our eternal future and confidence in our association and relationship with the Lord.
5. This is a structured system of confidence. The result is sharing the happiness of God. Jeremiah lived through 586 B.C. and saw the destruction of Jerusalem. Daniel was already in Babylon. Most everyone of note was taken captive and living in Babylon. What did he have to be confident about? Israel was being destroyed; Israel was gone. He knew that God promised Israel that they were the people of God. We are His people as well. It does not matter even if this country comes down around our ears.
6. A relaxed mental attitude is a part of our confidence. That means we are relaxed in everything.
7. Happiness is the quality of confidence and tranquility in the soul under any circumstance. This passage is so pertinent to the times in which we live.

Rom. 4:18: In hope he believed against hope, that he should become the father of many nations, as he had been told, "So shall your offspring be." He has confidence when there is no reason to have confidence. In hope against hope, he believed. Where there is no human hope, none for Abraham, he still had confidence. At 99, he was unable to procreate, and Sarah was barren as well. He had confidence against confidence. What God promises, He delivers; and so, Sarah delivered Isaac. There is no such thing as no hope in our life. God will give us exactly what we should have; He will give us exactly what He has promised us. This all comes with the development of virtue love. David had confidence in the Lord and he had some hopeless times. Neither David nor Abraham had the filling of the Holy Spirit. We have all of the doctrine and the filling of the Holy Spirit. Why should we not be confident with all of that?

The 2nd hope should be linked with virtue love. Rom. 5:1–5:

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things [virtue love is convinced of all things and trusts all things], hopes all things, endures all things.

Lesson #912

1Cor. 13:7 June 21, 2009

Sunday 1

Father's Day.

virtue love bears patiently all things; trusts all things, is confident in all things,... is how far we have gone.

The 3 Hopes

1. First hope is, when we have faith in Christ, we have eternal life. Once saved always saved. Much of Christendom today, that doctrine is not believed. As a result, some believers have no confidence in their future. Some are concerned about their production and they are subject to the fruit inspectors which they know. "I give to them eternal life, and they will never perish, and neither will any man pluck them out of My hand." (John 10:28). Rom. 8:38–39 as well. When you are convinced of something, and you know that nothing can separate you from Jesus Christ, then you have secured the first phase of hope. So many people are so concerned about how they act in life. They are told that a lot of sin will remove you from plan of God; or they will be told that they were never saved in the first place. We receive God's perfect righteousness. It is imputed to us by His grace. This is not experiential. This cannot be taken away from us any more than eternal life can be taken from us. Our Lord hates sin, and we continue to sin. Our Lord still loves us because we now possess His righteousness. God is the Father, and He is our Father, and we are all family. We have this relationship with God because He first loved us. The Unfailing Love of God is coming out and it will tell us all that God has done for us. Bobby has been working on this book for 10 years, so he will let us know. It is an intense and permanent love. Titus 1:2: ...in hope of eternal life, which God, who never lies, promised before the ages began...
2. The 2nd hope encompasses the realization the phenomenal relationship that we have. By our unique spiritual life, we draw closer to the Lord and we gain confidence. Our intimate and reciprocal love relationship with Him. The more we love someone, the closer we are to them. The greatest gift that we could ever have is what God has given us by way of a spiritual life. In nothing else in life can we have confidence. What other human being can you point to and say, "They always put me first." Only God Himself has provided care and keeping for us forever. We are never disappointed in those expectations. We are so often disappointed as human beings. Someone always stands in the way of what we want. All of those things that we think we need in this life. But we are never disappointed in the expectations of God. In You they trust. They were not disappointed. When we come to realize this, then we are never disappointed. God does not always do what we ask Him to do. God has His own plan for us, and sometimes what we want or expect is not within the confines of this plan. What He does, His plan is always to our benefit, whether we like it or not. When we develop the virtue love characteristics, then we realize that we have the greatest benefits of all. A great bit of our lives is confidence that what God promises, He delivers. The confidence built on the forward movement of our spiritual life.

Rom. 5:1 covers both the first and second hope: Therefore, since we have been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. We are declared righteous, which we receive at salvation. We have been justified by faith, we have peace with God through out Lord Jesus Christ. We have a reason for confidence. We have been reconciled with God. Rom 5:2 Through him we have also obtained access by faith into this grace in which we stand, and we rejoice in confidence of the glory of God. This is the grace in which we stand. Our first personal contact with the grace of God is with the gospel. We discover that Jesus Christ died for our sins and that He has done it all. He did it all on the cross. We learn about the grace of God at salvation. We stand forever in His grace. The spiritual life in which we stand; our confidence is in our salvation, and then in our spiritual life. As we draw closer to Him, we develop more confidence in His grace. Rom. 5:3: More than that, we rejoice in our sufferings, knowing that suffering produces endurance, we have confidence and we are tranquil in adversity. Jeremiah lived through the most tumultuous times in the history of Israel, and he had peace. He dealt with an audience who dismissed him. He saw 3 deportations. In the 3rd deportation, he saw Jerusalem leveled. He even went to jail because he preached confident expectation in the Lord. He had tranquility in adversity. A lot of Americans are facing all kinds of problems today. There are many without jobs and are concerned for their future. However, the 2nd hope is available to us. We do not have to be depressed or cynical about life. Adversity brings about perseverance. When you get a taste of confidence and our first taste of tranquility in adversity. To feel good in the middle of a time when we should not feel good. We have a relaxed attitude in the worst of conditions. We will continue to grow. It is a great way of life. Perseverance constitutes maintenance of the spiritual life. Rom 5:4 and endurance produces character, and character produces confidence, we all seem to strive for human self esteem. If we do not accomplish what we want to accomplish. As we persevere in adversity, we understand the grace of God, and we see these benefits work in our life. This furthers the confidence which comes from moving into spiritual maturity. And as we persevere, we offer proof of virtue love. Proven character. We see it and we have it in our own souls and we produce it in all of our actions. With proven character, comes confidence. Rom 5:5 ...and hope does not put us to shame, because God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit who has been given to us. This great hope does not disappoint because of the love of God which has been poured out in our hearts. Once we have learned enough doctrine and have secured virtue love in the soul, we utilize the potential of blessings from God. We are confident in that reality. Confidence in all relationships? How many have that. God works out the worst relationships to our benefit. This is confident expectation centered in the Lord, knowing that He works this all out. May the God of confidence fill us with all joy and peace.

1Cor. 13:7 [Virtue] Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes [trusts] all things [virtue love is convinced of all things and trusts all things], possesses confidence in all things, endures all things.

Lesson #913

1Cor. 13: June 21, 2009

Sunday 2

Confidence expectations is something which we see in a lot of people. We have all seen those with confidence. It is the opposite of seeming shy. It often has something to do with their own personal characteristics. Our confidence can look the same, but it does not come from the same source. We have confidence in our salvation, which is eternal security. We have a 2nd confidence in our spiritual life, which begins with the future and it rolls back into the present. We have a moment by moment confidence. We have a God of confidence. We do not have a God Who maybe will keep us saved, Who will maybe involved in our lives. We have complete confidence in Him because He is worthy of our confidence.

As a child, we have some confidence in our spiritual life. We do not have the 2nd hope until we have some spiritual growth. Confidence in the plan of God is an early indicator of maturity. Check yourself in adversity. Am I fearful every time I walk into the office? Fearful of if I have a job tomorrow? When you develop confidence and you cross that line into spiritual adulthood. Whatever personal relationship you are involved in. Will it happen just as you planned it? Of course not. Always remember the God of Confidence. He works things out in exactly the way which is best for us. Why do we need to let people get to us or to let life get to us. We have an obligation to obey parents. We can develop confidence that they know best; there is an indicator that we obey. Confident expectation that it will turn out for the best. When we have authority-orientation in life, we can handle life. The problem in the United States is lack of authority-orientation. It is doing whatever is right in our own eyes. We learn authority orientation in the home. So, if we are properly trained, when we walk into the boss's office, we have authority-orientation. We can respect his authority and deal with his decisions, whether we like them or not, or whether they are good or not.

When you have confidence in God's plan, you are on your way to the happinesses of Jer. 17:7: "Blessed is the man who trusts in the LORD, whose trust is the LORD. Confidence resides in having a personal sense of destiny. In realizing this, all of this other stuff fades. If we want to have capacity, then we must build confidence. This confidence morphs into a relaxed mental attitude. We learn to live our life in the light of eternity. In spiritual maturity, the confidence we build is a problem solving device connected to sharing the happiness of God. This is the 2nd hope, which is the first kind of maturity.

The 3rd hope is, when we reach spiritual maturity, the 2nd hope becomes an assured reality. The grace of our Lord is exceeding abundant with faith and love which is in Christ Jesus.

One of Bobby's favorites was Col. 1:27: To whom God willed to make known do you realize how fortunate it is that God's plan included making all of this known to us. The doctrine as He revealed it. Everyone is loaded with riches. Material wealth fades; it does not even buy love or virtue love. The riches of glory is the doctrine in us; it is the confident expectation in life. We get to take our spiritual maturity with us. When we get there, there will even be some rewards waiting for us for eternity. We may find that our dollar means nothing in the next few years. We cannot put our confident expectation in our human wealth. Christ in you, the confidence of glory. We have the Holy Spirit and we have Christ in us as well. This is the mature confidence that we can reflect the very One in us. He is our indwelling Shekinah glory. The Presence of God, Who was with Israel, leading them out of Israel. What do we do with this glory? We reflect it. When we are glorified with Christ, we can be confident that we will live with Christ forever. We need to reflect perfectly the glory of God. That is the consummation of Christ's indwelling. Glorification is receiving a resurrection body just like His. The divine good which we produce translates to rewards in heaven. God gives us exceedingly abundantly beyond all that we could ask or think. We can be confident in that.

Acts 23:6, Paul was talking to the Pharisees. They were after our Lord through His ministry, and now they are after Paul. He was on trial for the resurrection of the dead. For others, there is no life after death; so live for today. There are grim things approaching in this country, legislation coming up which could be terrible for our country. We may have legislation which makes portions of Rom. 1 hate speech, punishable by a fine and time in jail. The first hope is the result of our salvation. The mature believer continues with great confidence. Isa 5:20–21: Woe to those who call evil good and good evil, who put darkness for light and light for darkness, who put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter! Woe to those who are wise in their own eyes, and shrewd in their own sight!

Application of the 3rd hope as a part of virtue love. Heb. 6:18–20: ...so that by two unchangeable things, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we who have fled for refuge might have strong encouragement to hold fast to the hope set before us. We have this as a sure and steadfast anchor of the soul, a hope that enters into the inner place behind the curtain, where Jesus has gone as a forerunner on our behalf, having become a high priest forever after the order of Melchizedek. This hope is a top motivation in life. The faith rest drill is claiming a promise. We share that glory with Him. Our Lord's glorious place of honor. Our Lord was resurrected, and that body is localized, and that one place is at the right hand of the Father, making intercession for us. However, as God, He is in all places. We share in this glorification because we are in union with Christ.

Virtue love endures all things. Virtue love bears patiently, it trusts, it has confidence and it endures all things. They form a kiasmos which derives from two series of words, e.g., bears patience and trusts. The first word of the series corresponds to the last word of the 2nd series. The 2nd word of the series corresponds to the 3rd word. Bears patiently which is related to the last word, endures; and trusts relates to confidence. This is great literature. Paul had a wide range of academic talent. There is quite an irony here. God chose an intellectual Jew, a genius, to present a large portion of the great mystery doctrine to Gentiles. God used these intellectual skills in places like this. This is Paul's writing, his word choice, but it is divinely inspired. This flies in the face of those who say that doctrine is way to dry and intellectual. This sort of thing lifts us, not temporarily, like emotion, but continuously. Paul is using a very intellectual figure of speech and we are to consider this.

Love is one of those emotional subjects.

1Cor. 13:7 Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes all things [virtue love is convinced of all things and trusts all things], has confidence in all things, endures all things.

Lesson #914

Chiasmos 1Cor. 13:7 June 24, 2009

Wednesday

Paul found a way to bond these 4 characteristics. Virtue love bears patiently; virtue love trusts, virtue love has confident expectations; virtue love endures. Paul uses a literary device; a figure of speech. Paul knows how to paint a word picture. Paul is an intellectual. He could teach. His gift of Apostleship covered many of the spiritual gifts which we have examined. Paul knew how to use language to convey our Savior and God. He chose 4 very specific words, and he used a figure of speech called chiasmos. This is not the normal way that you see this figure of speech. Usually spelled chiasmus, using the Latin ending. Paul uses these words as a unified whole. They are all dependent upon one another. Paul brings us a wonderful application in this verse. You apply one of these characteristics means that you will also apply another. In algebra, Bobby found it to be terribly fascinating. You learn about  $x$  which stands for the missing number. By way of illustration, the  $X$  of chiasmos is similar.  $X$  represents 4 qualities in v. 7.

Chiasmos

1. Chiasmos is a set of two series of words.
2. The first is associated with the last word of the second series.
3. The second word of the first series corresponds to the first word of the second series.
4. Bears patiently and trusts are the first series.
5. Confident expectation and endures are the second two.
6. Bears patiently with endure; and trusts corresponds with confident expectation.

If you find this boring, you have fallen into the same trap that so many Christians have fallen into. Can you imagine this being taught in some church where they want excitement and emotional stimulation? They do not want to be bookish. Even though many of these churches do believe that this is the Word of God, they still want stimulation. This is in keeping with a generation of stimulus junkies. "Keep my interest in this dog and pony show, or I will find another church." We are told to renovate our thinking. God's plan for us is from the Bible. Bible doctrine goes to the intellect first.

Love has a cognitive aspect to it; it is not an emotional thing. There is the mental attitude of the mature believer. This is exhibited in the most personal of relationships. This knowledge is gained through the format of chiasmus. Paul has used this in several places. It is found in the most solemn and important parts of Scripture. This means, he wants us to consider this carefully. Paul has a very specific, cerebral purpose. The force of this language helps us immensely which helps us to understand and analyze these 4 characteristics.

What should we gather from this chiasmus?

1. Bears patiently has to do with present trials. Endures covers the future as well. The present and endurance has a future connotation.
2. When you trust in present time. Present trust and confident expectation. This includes your present thoughts as it looks down the corridors of time. Present circumstances can change quite radically. Circumstances change; one day you are in the midst of adversity, and then things are fine, and then you are back in it. Your confident expectation is in the knowledge that God has our best interests in mind. There is nothing in life that can move you.
3. Thus we understand the far-reaching nature of virtue love as we apply it in our temporal lives. Moment by moment, near future up until the day we die.
4. Virtue love, as we have seen, is the culmination of a detailed knowledge of metabolized doctrine. In reciprocal love for God, that is how love is developed. It is our attitude.
5. The chiasmus takes the present characteristics of bearing patiently and trusts and projects them into the future.
6. Do you get it? You apply in the present, the attitude that you relate to the circumstances and you have no fear of the future, all the way to eternity. This takes you to eternity without fear.

Have you ever written anything, and you look at it and say, hey, I did well here? That is possibly what Paul is doing here. The very things which Paul is thinking is the mind of Christ. We have exactly the same thing.

The chiasmus of virtue love. Clearly the knowledge must come first. When you lead with emotion, your learning is minimal. Lots of emotion and very little learning. You need to get the doctrine straight so that you have something to emote about.

There is going to be a lot of emotion invested in and tied up with spiritual gifts.

The final characteristic in this chiasmus is endures. The last characteristic is endures, which is hupomenô (ὑπομένω) which means to remain instead of fleeing; to stand one's ground (in spite of fear); to stay behind while others retreat; to persevere.

There is an entire vocabulary in the military; a lot of abbreviations and a lot of terms most do not know. Paul picked these up, having been kept by the Praetorium guard. "When we are in defense, hupomeno." It means to sustain the assault of an enemy. A medal of honor citation is an example of hupomenô. It is a very strong term for never-say-die believers.

Paul is talking about love, and he uses a military analogy. Does this seem incongruous? This is not sloppy agapê. Hupomenô is appropriate strength being applied as a part of virtue love. Virtue love is not for weaklings or for wimps. Virtue love carries strength. It expresses an attitude of perseverance. You will need hupomeno if you are to advance. This is a believer who is stubborn or steadfast. Philip. 4:12–13: And I know to be humbled, and I know to abound; in everything, and in all things, I am taught both to be filled and to hunger, both to abound, and to lack. I have strength for all things in Christ the One strengthening me. If we develop hupomeno, we will learn how to function in all of these circumstances. We will learn how to have abundance and how to suffer need. This is standing one's ground. Life is a battle. Every day of your life, stand firm in doctrine. Stand firm in your relationships in life. Utilize personal love in your relationships each day; do not let people wear you down.

Application here of Chiasmus

1. Chiasmus gives us the clue. Standing one's ground takes us to the first word, bearing patiently by passing over in silence. That is how standing firm begins. You get roughed up by someone, you do not come back with sins of the tongue.
2. That takes real strength and perseverance to maintain patience when being verbally assaulted.
3. It takes strength and perseverance not to retaliate. Vengeance is Mine, I will repay, says the Lord.
4. It takes strength and perseverance not to defend yourself when being assaulted verbally or being lied about. Can you handle sins of the tongue against yourself and bear it patiently without having to get out there and defend yourself. Once you understand the love and grace of God, you have a great, relaxed life.
5. Standing one's ground is showing internal determination in adversity and persecution. Bobby has no idea where our country is going or how many freedoms we will lose; but no matter what the circumstances, we must never be afraid to stand for the truth. The whole hate speech thing can affect what can be said in church. Virtue love brings the courage and strength to stand.
6. Hupomeno delivers the stamina and the resolve necessary to consistently apply virtue love.
7. With hupomeno as part of virtue love, the mature believer stands his ground, relying upon the spiritual life, whether in suffering or in success.

Virtue love never fails.

1Cor. 13:7 [Virtue] Love bears (patiently) [protects (with silence), keeps secret, conceals, keeps conflict confidential] all things, believes [trusts] all things [virtue love is convinced of all things and trusts all things], possesses confidence in all things, endures all things.

vv. 8–13 have been getting quite frustrating, and the argument is rather intricate. These spiritual gifts will cease at some point. The gifts in this verse will depart at some point. What is most important in the scheme of the plan of God? Is it the spectacular gifts of prophecy, knowledge and tongues? What lasts until the end? Virtue love. These gifts will cease; but virtue love goes on. Experiential living of the Christian life continues. It is sporadic and random. These gifts were important when it comes to the formation of the Christian church, but they are secondary to virtue love. Paul recognizes that virtue love is much more important and that is what is lacking in the Corinthian church. Paul says, there is a better way, which is virtue love. That is the better way. In comparison to these gifts which will cease, virtue love is everything. This comes down to the difference between the eternal and the temporal. One is permanent and one is temporary.

By Application

1. This comparison comes down to the importance of a permanent virtue love mental attitude through growing in grace and knowledge. That is what Paul is getting at.
2. Virtue love takes precedence over the ephemeral nature of emotion. Emotion is exemplified here by the nature of these gifts. Emotion is not the criterion for the Christian way of life.
3. Bobby was speaking to someone years ago, and they were in the charismatic camp. Bobby told them that they were more emotional than Bobby. Upon further questioning, this person had no idea the importance of Bible doctrine. They have no clue about taking in doctrine day after day. They do not understand that.
4. Virtue love is lasting experience in the Christian life.
5. Emotion at best is the fleeting response to the experience of virtue love. Virtue love is the result of doctrine the reciprocal love, but the application of virtue love is part of our experience.
6. At worst, emotion is a substitute for thinking with virtue love, which has been Bobby's experience with those who are charismatics today. Tongues is an emotional substitute for learning Bible doctrine.

The spectacular nature of temporary spiritual gifts is set against the permanence of virtue love. There is no question that these gifts existed when Paul wrote this. He had all of these spiritual gifts. Even if those gifts existed today, they do not take precedence over virtue love. Why are charismatics so hepped up on their gifts? It sets them apart; it makes them better.

This passage has been used for a theological position of cessationism. The position is that certain spiritual gifts no longer exist today: prophecy, tongues and knowledge are named in this verse. Healing would be a part of this. There are many Bible believing scholars who reject cessationism. They know that these gifts will end; it says so; they cannot argue with that. Their argument is the timing of the cessation. That will be the crux of this verse. Bobby is a cessationist, and he believes that these have ceased. Many believers have struggled with this issue and many scholars have as well.

Dr. Grudom was a brilliant man, a professor of Bobby's, and he came down on the other side. It is not an easy controversy. Since 1960, few topics have received as much attention as this particular one. Great division has come from this.

What does the Holy Spirit do in us? What gifts do we have that He utilizes in us? And what do these gifts do? Do certain gifted believers still serve the Lord by speaking prophecies, tongues and knowledge, or not?

Charismatic is the term used today. Pentecostal is the older terminology use for them; and the pejorative term, holy rollers. Their spiritual life function is deeply affected, and they do not understand the spiritual life as we do. There are charismatic scholars, and they tend toward the more mystical and less cognitive, but not always; they may stress experience over cognitive function, but not always. However, their biggest problem is growing in knowledge of Bible doctrine. That is the point and that is the controversy. Right from the outset, virtue love is permanent; virtue love takes priority. Even if these gift existed today, and they don't, virtue love still take precedence.

Introductory Points

1. Experiences in the Christian life are not a source of knowledge and doctrine. We never learn doctrine from the experiences in our life.
2. The Bible is the standard for all Christian experience. Our experiences are gauged by Scripture. Charismatics see the gift of tongues and they take them as legitimate. How they feel becomes the criterion of the spiritual life. It is always experience which takes precedence.
3. Any present-day claims of experience of the spirit, whatever they do in that spiritual gift is a manifestation of God the Holy Spirit, it is legitimate in their minds and it takes precedence. The average person in Berea has more doctrine than any charismatic.
4. Any such claims must be evaluated by Scripture.
5. Any such experience must be examined by Scripture.
6. If this passage shows that these gifts have ceased, then all use of these gifts today are false, because they defy the authority of Scripture. Therefore, there are a whole segment of believers today which based their spiritual lives on a false premise.

It is always a good things to search the Scripture. If searching the Bible reaffirms that, you are still understanding that the Bible is the authority, even if you get it wrong. That is better than nothing. This is a good thing, even if you get it wrong. Now, if the Bible is not taken as authoritative, then what is the point?

Have you ever been around someone who speaks in tongues? That is the spiritual life to them. They could not be more wrong. Those who do believe that the Bible is the guide for faith and practice, they still misinterpret this passage. Others downplay these gifts but they do not dispute them, but often that is to grow their church. They will look the other way. They want to appeal to everyone. Others who know the gift no longer exists, they will continue to accommodate those who do not speak in tongues. Some just do not want to be divisive. They just want to get along and not stir up trouble.

There are real divisions over this topic in the church. Millions of Christians have been captivated by this movement. Every major Protestant church was impacted by the charismatic movement. The Roman Catholic church in 1969, and Greek Orthodox in 1971. Jim Meyers was in Ukraine, who was asked to leave for 90 days, and come back for 90 days. He will then go to Zambia. They have the only constitution in the world which says that they are a Christian nation. He was watching tv in the Ukraine one day; the entire Zambian soccer team, coaches and all, went down in a plane. The president lined up all of the coffins and they had a big service for them, and the president got up and spoke the gospel at this funeral. Jim say, "I've got to go to Zambia." He found incredible positive volition. They were hungry. Almost all of them were charismatics. The charismatic movement infiltrated and won many to Christ, but taught them false doctrine.

Here is a country where people recognize the truth and they want to hear the truth. A teacher told Jim Meyer that he changed all that he was teaching. He realizes now how to teach.

Many charismatics have brought many people to Christ, but then have developed no spiritual life in these people. Virtue love is the only priority. Are there tongues-speakers today? Unequivocally, no.

If these gifts are still in operation, as many charismatic assert, are they providing new revelation beyond what the Bible gives? These gifts were used to give Church Age doctrine which has never been taught before. Is there extra-Biblical doctrine out there? This is a serious problem, which would indicate that the Bible is not their proper authority or the final authority. That makes their spiritual life a very iffy proposition. Jehovah Witness, Islam, and Mormons all began with new revelation.

Why do you need a prophet today, if their prophecies agree with already existing Scripture. The pastor ought to be the one still teaching. If someone claims new revelation, then it is not from God. God does not contradict Himself.

Those who speak new revelation in churches today, are speaking false doctrine. All the inspired doctrine and all the revelation is all found in the Bible already.

Bob saw a reason to write the book Tongues in 1971, because of the controversy going on at that time.

Our development of virtue love is the better way, which Paul speaks of in 1Cor. 12:31.

Tongues and prophecy are used to compare the temporary with the permanent. Everything which has been taught about virtue love is critical. Paul uses 3 temporary gifts to illustrate this principle. They have to cease; otherwise this analogy does not work.

Paul closes out vv. 4–7 with v. 8a. Virtue love never fails. You cannot lose.

1Cor. 13:8 [Virtue] love never fails. But if there are prophecies, they will be caused to cease; if tongues, they shall cease; if knowledge, it will be caused to cease.

Lesson #916

1Cor. 13: June 28, 2009

Sunday 1

There is a certain amount of failure in every person's life. This can be serious or not so much. It can be a breakdown in marriage, deaths on the battlefield, etc. Or, it can be a less problematic failure, like a bad golf game, a small transgression or a bad grade in school. The specter of failure always looms in life.

Some are haunted by failures. Some go in for escapism. Drugs, drinking. Some point out the failures of others.

The nation Israel failed again and again and again. Even Moses failed in the end in leadership, and he never entered into the land. King David failed. Jonah did not follow God's direct instructions. The disciples all failed in the final hours before the cross. Paul knew failure on several occasions.

And, at the very end, Satan will fail, and lose the Angelic Conflict. Sometimes we neglect doctrine or we reject it; or we do not rebound. We fail to utilize our spiritual gifts.

However, what never fails is virtue love. Virtue love in your life never fails. God never lets you down; His love never comes to an end. Every believer in Jesus Christ has access to virtue love. We can all live in the sphere of love. It begins with God's love for us. It begins at the cross, and continues as we move forward spiritually. That is the whole sphere of life. And it never fails, never. If we had built the characteristics of virtue love in our soul, we have built a system which never fails. We, as believers, will continue to have failures in this life.

Πιπτω = to fall. This is actually ekpiptō. By Thayer, it means 1) to fall out of, to fall down from, to fall off; 2) metaphorically; 2a) to fall from a thing, to lose it; 2b) to perish, to fall; 2b1) to fall from a place from which one cannot keep; 2b2) fall from a position; 2b3) to fall powerless, to fall to the ground, be without effect; 2b3a) of the divine promise of salvation. This is combined with an adverb. Oudepote (οὐδέποτε) [pronounced oo-DEP-ot-eh], which means never. Strong's #3763.

Tongues have ceased. That is what the Bible teaches. It does not matter what Bobby thinks or likes; it is all about what the Bible says. We will launch into a series which examines whether these gifts still exist.

Bobby went to some great seminaries where there were very learned teachers, and some of them still believed in tongues, although they did not speak in tongues themselves. Bobby suspects that their tortured exegesis was to keep the church from splitting up.

Virtue love never ends; it carries on into eternity. Virtue love represents a mature status for the believer. Virtue love is directly associated with the production of more and more divine good.

Just as God's Word lives and abides forever, so does the virtue love which is produced by the Word of God. We will be far beyond the status of the characteristic of virtue love. Virtue love in itself will not be a part of our heavenly existence; but divine good will be.

We will all be resurrected and we will all stand before the Judgment Seat of Christ. We will have to look Jesus in the eye and say, "What did you do with your spiritual life which I pioneered for you in the 1st advent." Ideally, we will answer, "I lived in the sphere of virtue love." Virtue love in the soul, the outcome of spiritual maturity, is the mark of spiritual success in this life. It is not what you do, but how you do it.

Good deeds matter not in eternity. Only by God's plan can you produce divine good in eternity. This is the mark of utilizing doctrine in the soul. It is the attitude for solving problems God's way. When you utilize problem solving device and solve the problems in your life, that is producing divine good. It is not just about doing good deeds.

You can preclude road rage by the function of virtue love on the freeway. Your marriage has something to do with your divine future.

What is more important to us is the here and now; virtue love is never withdrawn, it is never phased out, it is never retired. We have it; we stand on it. We may walk away from it, but God does not pull it away. Doesn't it stand to reason that virtue love will not fade? Every one of those characteristics has a complete and total impact upon our lives right now. Paul is focused in this context of virtue love as it is developed. This entire context of vv. 4–7 is the sphere of love in our temporal lifetime. However, there is a termination point to our lives. We will die. Our time will run out for our spiritual advance. However, while we are alive, we have the ability to acquire virtue love, and that never fades away and it never ceases. As long as we live, we have the sphere of love. As we apply those characteristics, we never fail. It is an absolute. It is what we build up in our souls to handle life.

V. 8a sums up everything that we have studied about virtue love.

Sometimes those who speak in tongues look at us as 2nd class Christians because we do not speak in tongues. Do you know what divides believers in this realm? The lack or abundance of virtue love in your soul.

Paul is focused on the here and now. Charismatics take this passage to mean that these gifts will cease, but only in eternity. That is not what is being said here; that is not the context here. Paul is not saying that this goes till eternity. Paul is talking about the here and now. These gifts will cease at some point in human history. All of this is confined to an earthly context.

Lesson #917

1Cor. 13: June 28, 2009

Sunday 2

You might be golfing wrong and your instructor has told you how to do it right; and one day, it dawns on you, "That is how it is done; that is what he has been telling me." Virtue love is like that; that pulls it all together. The sphere of love will always be with us, and this is the only thing in this life which never fails. People will fail us, we will fail, and circumstances will fail; but virtue love never fails.

There is no view here of virtue love in the eternal state or in heaven. All of this focuses on virtue love in time. It will last us through eternity, but that is not the focus of this passage.

The question is, when? If virtue love does not end, and if we are talking about virtue love in eternity, then these gifts can continue and cease at eternity. Paul is not asserting that knowledge and prophecy will continue until eternity. All of this passage is confined to an earthly context. Before the end times. There is a terminous point to these gifts within human history. Human history as we know it will end. There is no more history. It is just destiny which goes on forever.

The terminous point for these 3 gifts is not the return of Jesus Christ at the rapture, or at the 2nd advent, or in the Millennium, or in the eternal state. The terminal point will be in time, in human history.

We are barely into the Church Age, and Paul would not say these things if tongues, prophecy and knowledge were no longer extant. In the meantime, we must realize that everything in this life may disappear. Virtue love remains unassailable in this life. We never lose the sphere of love in this life.

We may stay out of fellowship, for short periods and for longer periods; and we may not develop virtue love in our lifetime as a believer. When it says that virtue love does not stop, go away, end or fail; that means that it is always available to us with spiritual growth. The sphere is always there. So we must remain in it. When we live predominantly in the sphere of love, it does not fail or go away. It will always function in our souls. When it is with us, it never ceases to operate. It is our mental attitude about life. It is our character about life. It is the way that we view all of life. When we have the characteristics of virtue love, we have the ultimate in faith rest. We have the ultimate in problem solving devices. We have the ultimate in divine viewpoint. Everything in life is seen through the grid of divine viewpoint when we have these characteristics in our souls. It does not fail; it does not malfunction. With virtue love, we can reflect the Shekinah glory in our life.

The Shekinah glory was the presence of God in the pillar of fire and the cloud by day. Now we have the Shekinah glory in us. How do we reflect the Shekinah glory? We produce through the filling of the Holy Spirit, Christ's own spiritual life. His virtue is the same virtue which we can reflect in this spiritual life. The Holy Spirit made known the riches of His glory, which is Christ in you. If we have expressed faith alone in Christ alone, the Shekinah glory dwells in us. Virtue love in us is the ultimate in reflecting the glory of God which is in us. God with us throughout human history. We have the greatest change to reflect God's glory in our life. God's power is infinitely greater than the power which surrounds us in the cosmic system. That is our guarantee; we gain the confidence of Christ in us through virtue love.

In making this final point, Paul has made an easy transition from what came before. Hupomenô means to stand fast, to endure. That is what a believer does in virtue love. He stand fast. He never retreats. He dies in place. That is what the believer does with virtue love. He relies on the spiritual life, whether in suffering or whatever. We persevere in virtue love. This defines how virtue love never fails or never ceases in our case. We carry this characteristic of hupomeno. That is the reason why we can stand our ground. It never ceases to be available and continues. We fail to use virtue love; but it never fails us. If virtue love is functioning in our souls, then we can be assured that it will never let us down.

How do we know this is true, and how do we know that this works?

How do we know virtue love works always?

1. We will not collapse, even in the worst of adversity. That is what standing fast means.
2. We will not become disillusioned by people. That in itself should be enough to want us to develop virtue love characteristics. The greatest failures are when people in life fail us. "I thought I knew that person; I am so disillusioned." That is the beginning of every relationship tragedy. With virtue love, you never become disillusioned by anyone. One of the greatest disillusionment in the human race are those who have this utopian view of what the human race can be. But, we are no damn good. The human race is a fallen race. We will not evolve into some great thing. Those who believe in this utopian world are doomed to disillusion.
3. Our personal relationships will be vastly improved. Review the characteristics of virtue love and put them into perspective with someone you love or do not love or associate with. Your personal relationships and associations will be vastly improved.
4. You increase capacity for impersonal love, with is virtue love. Nice to be known as a great lover. That attitude of benevolence and caring.
5. Most of us will not live past 100. No matter how long we live, we always have eternity to look forward to. In relative terms, 100 years versus eternity, why spend time being dissatisfied with this life? What is 100 years in this life? What mattres is the application of virtue love. It is meaningless.
6. You will never forget the great purpose of your life with virtue love; which is to glorify the Lord. The characteristic of virtue love.
7. You will not turn back to the futility of human viewpoint. When they get into trouble, it is right back to human viewpoint. They get disillusioned; they get dissatisfied. The characteristics are divine viewpoint. When you have the mental attitude, you think with divine viewpoint. You will not want to go back to human viewpoint. It is a futile system of thinking. Divine viewpoint in our souls characterized by virtue love never ceases or fails.

8. Your enthusiasm for spiritual advance will not fade away. People have, after listening to doctrine for many years, say, "It does not work. It is not working for me." They are just as disillusioned as before. Doctrine always works. We fail. We fail to build and apply virtue love. It is just γνῶσις. Maybe you just are not patient enough. These characteristics develop as we grow. The longer we stay in fellowship, the more we take in doctrine, the more the virtue love characteristics are applied, the more that we see that doctrine works. Those who left, what they are doing now does not work either.
9. You will not forfeit eternal rewards by using virtue love. The two go together.

All of this is the result of the sphere of love in which we reside. We can only depend upon the sphere of love in this life. When this happens, people testing is always a test we can pass. In fact, we will flourish in the midst of such testing. You cannot fail in the Christian way of life when you employ virtue love. This is not a burden; this is the best life. This is life beyond anything that we can imagine. All that we are as believers is demonstrated in the sphere of love.

Now, Paul will demonstrate how much better this sphere of love is than anything else in life, including certain spectacular gifts, which the Corinthians thought were the epitome of the spiritual life. This is what Paul will compare. Christianity today needs to hear what is greater.

Lesson #918

1Cor. 13:8 July 1, 2009

Wednesday

Bobby thought that this was going to be a fairly cut and dry subject, but if you listen carefully, you will hear every argument for and against the cessation of the gifts. This will also be a very practical study.

Some people define their entire Christian life by these 3 gifts. They believe that these are the workings of the Holy Spirit. They think that this is the Holy Spirit at work. Some believe that tongues and these other gifts are in existence today. Bobby can tell the same people are unhappy. Do you base your opinions on what you can see, hear or touch, or do you base them upon the Word of God. If these gifts are no longer in operation, what exactly are people seeing in these churches today. Bobby can tell you it is not the work of the Holy Spirit. Some of the healers are charlatans who make lots of money from this. In any case, there are false teachers in the church.

The Bible must be our final authority on this and all other matters.

These are all gifts which are spoken of here: prophecies, tongues and knowledge. Bob has already taught all of these gifts extensively. It is clear that these 3 gifts will cease. No one can argue that. The real question is, when will these gifts end and why; both of these questions are intimately connected.

First off, why did Paul choose these 3 particular gifts? Already from the context, we understand that a comparison is being made. There is the never-ending quality to the sphere of virtue love. Virtue love is always with us. As long as we are alive, we have the capability. Paul will show in this comparison the great value of virtue love in relation to other important aspects of the Christian life. The indispensable virtue love and how it relates to these dispensable gifts.

Tongues impacted many people in a very positive way. It was a legitimate spiritual gift for a specific reason. The sphere of love is a better way. Virtue love is lasting and unceasing, unlike the temporary status of these 3 gifts. Paul will set up a comparison between the sphere of love and these temporary gifts.

Let's go with an aside comparison. What this may show us, what comes immediately to mind, is the importance of being a plodder. Going step-by-step. You climb that mountain of ἐπιγνώσις one step at a time to reach pleroma. We do not speed across the heavens like a comet.

The Christian life does not center on spectacular, showy gifts; it centers on slow and steady spiritual growth. A believer who is a flash in the pan is no good to the plan of God. There is nothing important about this momentary high of a tongues service. The biggest problem is, their spiritual life is centered upon gifts which no longer exist.

Why are these 3 gifts singled out? Why did Paul choose the gift of prophecy?

Prophecy included doctrine which was not yet recorded in Scripture. The prophet was a forth-teller. He spoke mystery doctrine not yet communicated to mankind before the day of Pentecost. The prophet gives eschatology. Paul wrote eschatology and John wrote lots of it. By the very definition of prophecy, there is divine inspiration involved. (1) the prophet received his message directly from God. Bobby is illuminated by God the Holy Spirit while examining the Bible. (2) there was enough to inform these churches of mystery doctrine. (3) prophecy communicated the mind of Christ. This was divine revelation at a time when there was no other means to know it or to teach it. It was foundational to the emerging churches knowledge of Bible doctrine. Prophecy revealed doctrine never heard before revealed by the Church Age. New believers at this time did not know about Church Age doctrine.

Bobby is going to talk a lot about the canon of Scripture. The canon is central to what we will learn.

The Canon of Scripture

1. The Canon are the books of the New Testament accepted as authoritative. How did we get these books of the New Testament? They were accepted by the church as canonical.
2. The canon was a compilation of these books. There were different authors and they were compiled into one book.
3. Criterion:
  - a. Every book of the New Testament must be written by an Apostles or someone closely associated with an Apostle. Mark wrote a gospel and he was closely associated with Peter; Luke was closely associated with Paul.
  - b. The books must be universally accepted by the churches as authentic at the time of their writing.
  - c. Each book must be consistent with the doctrine that the church already possesses. They had the Old Testament, which was the Bible up until the mystery doctrine. The Old Testament was the Bible of Jesus Christ. That is what He used. Church Age doctrine must be consistent with what they already had.
  - d. Each book must give internal and external evidence of being divinely inspired. Distinguishing of spirits was used in order to identify these books as being divinely inspired.
  - e. Each book must be recognized as canonical in the catalogue of the church fathers. The following generation who compiled it. Paul wrote the documents, but did not compile the canon of Scripture. The church fathers compiled the canon. There was some debate.
  - f. To be canonical, each book must contain exhortation to public exegesis of the Word. Col. 4:16 Rev. 1:3 2:7 3:6 Peter puts Paul's writings on a par with the Old Testament Scriptures. 2Peter 3:15–16. Bobby may bring in a short list of books we ought to read about the canon of Scripture. The Apostles did not begin by knowing everything right from the start. They were divinely inspired to write. They had both going for them. That which they spoke as revelation was part of that which they wrote as divine revelation. They were intimately connected.
4. Divine inspiration: the human writers of Scripture wrote by means of God the Holy Spirit, Who supernaturally directed them, without waving their human intelligence, their vocabulary, their individuality, their literary style (there are many genres which they used), their personalities or any other human factor, He so directed them to record God's complete and coherent message to mankind with perfect accuracy in the original languages, the very words bearing the authority of divine authorship. The KJV is not divinely inspired. It was translated in the 16th century from a fair Greek manuscript. The Scripture which we have today reflects that with great accuracy. Even though there are errors by human beings. There are over 5000 variants which have been identified in the New Testament, and which scholar have attempted to rectify. A, B and C ratings of these readings. Not one error has ever changed an important doctrine of Scripture. Hundreds of manuscripts are compared. There are literally thousands of manuscripts of the Bible, fragments and complete manuscripts. There is a whole system scholars use to identify the accurate reading.

The difference with prophecy is, God essentially dictated the material to the mind of the believer with that gift. The writing came from the hand of an Apostle who already knew this doctrine, but used his own writing style. But God never removed a person's personality or writing style, etc. there is an inescapable relationship between the gift of prophecy and the formation of the canon of Scripture. Divine inspiration is the common denominator.

During the Apostolic period, the canon was open. It was in the process of being formed, but it was not yet compiled, spread about to all of the churches, and accepted as authoritative. Prophecy was a means to spread mystery doctrine more quickly, before permanently written doctrines had been distributed. These new believers knew nothing of Church Age doctrine. They knew about the Messiah, but they knew very little about Church Age doctrine. Prophecy was a way that the mystery doctrine could be given to them and then spoken.

In a church, you might get one or two letters, and that was your doctrine. Also, those who had these various gifts. Prophecy was one of the revelatory mystery gifts foundational for the church. It helped produce which is now recognized as canonical. It implanted into the minds of the Apostles that which they needed to know to write. It met needs of those who had no other way to learn Bible doctrine before the completion of the canon.

This is the background of how we deal with spiritual gifts after. You must first understand what these gifts are. The problem of an incomplete canon of Scripture was partially alleviated by these various gifts, like the gift of prophecy. These means that prophecy was divinely inspired revelation to the prophet.

What they all have in common is that these 3 gifts are all revelatory gifts. They are foundational in purpose, spectacular in function, and will cease to exist.

1Cor. 13:8 [Virtue] love never fails [comes to an end]. But if there are prophecies, they will be caused to cease; if tongues, they shall cease; if knowledge, it will be caused to cease.

Lesson #919

1Cor. 13:8 July 2, 2009

Thursday

People were standing for various service songs, and Bobby explained what was going on. "This was not some tongues service getting started."

3 spiritual gifts will cease, and that part is clear. There are 2 different verbs here used for a reason. The timing is something that hardly anyone agrees to. Because of the context in which we find v. 8, there is a comparison between virtue love of the spiritual life and the temporary spiritual gifts. It is notable that each of these 3 gifts have different purposes, but they all have a common purpose. In this comparison, Paul demonstrates just how much better the sphere of love is than anything else that the Christian way of life has to offer. He uses these spiritual gifts as his foil. Those who had these gifts looked down on those who did not. They see this as the extreme of spirituality. This happened in Corinth and in churches today. The sphere of love is the height of spiritual achievement. This is because using the sphere of love means that you are living the spiritual life. That basically makes up your spiritual life. Everything else is secondary and a result of your spiritual life. Production is a natural result of spiritual growth. The more you advance, the more your gift kicks in. All of these are results of the sphere of love.

Our resources are the filling of the Holy Spirit, gap, the edification complex, and the sphere of love, which is the culmination of what we have learned in 1Corinthians. Our Christian life centers on the slow, steady advance of spiritual maturity and the acquisition of the characteristics of the sphere of love. The Christian life does not center on even these spectacular gifts, even though they are critical to the early church. The real question here is, no which is greater, the sphere of love or these gifts (which should be obvious). The real question is, when do these gifts end and why? The whole point of this comparison is to highlight virtue love. What do each of these gifts have in common which singles them out to be used? What caused these gifts to end? It says that they ceased, so what do they have in common? What causes them to end. That is the logical progression of our study.

The Gift of Prophecy

1. This includes speaking mystery doctrine never revealed in the Age of Israel. All of the important people in the Old Testament had no idea that this was going to occur. Prophecy revealed this information. Only Christ revealed a little of Church Age doctrine, but most of it occurred after Pentecost.
2. The prophet was also a foreteller; he would tell what would come to pass after the Church Age.
3. Prophecy was important in the early church because there was no complete and fully compiled canon of Scripture.

Bobby has 4 books to recommend: intro only A Textual Commentary of the Greek New Testament explains how all of the errors occurred in the New Testament. When Paul wrote a letter, it was infallible. However, this letter was copied over and over again. They each began to sit down and wanted their own copy. All of these manuscripts were copied and over again by hand. There are literally 1000's of these manuscripts in existence. Scholars take many of these manuscripts and they compare them. They look at all the areas where there are scribal errors and they compile all of the different readings and they give greater weight to the older manuscripts; less weight to those done later. Those with less than an A reading have absolutely none affect on any point of theology.

The Origin of the Bible, edited by Philip Comfort; a compilation. Inerrancy by Norman Geisler. Inspiration and Canonicity of the Bible by Laird Harris. Bobby gives these with some trepidation. They are scholarly and somewhat involved.

4. That which was spoken and later what was written and later compiled into the canon bore an inescapable relationship.
5. That relationship was centered in divine inspiration.
6. The prophet received his message direct from God. He could not write it. It has to be revealed directly by God the Holy Spirit. He then declared that information to those in his vicinity.
7. Prophecy was intended to communicate divine revelation at a time when there were no other means by which to teach it.
8. Prophecy was foundational to an emerging church's doctrine. Without it, the church, they would not have had that much information about their early spiritual life. Prophecy was one means of revealing mystery doctrine before the canon was complete.

all of these gifts revealed God's message to the early church. Since these very important gifts ceased and were done away with. How much more important is the sphere of love? These gifts were critical to the early church.

What about the gift of tongues, which is the most controversial of these gifts? Tongues was also revelatory. It was a means of communicating. It was a means of communicating a sign of judgment and the gospel of Jesus Christ. This was a twofold purpose. 1Cor. 14:2. Speaking in tongues is described as speaking in mysteries. It communicated revelation. Most importantly, it was a sign of judgment.

Tongues

1. Tongues existed to spread the same pre-canon information in my different languages.
2. Tongues was spoken in exclusion of the human mind in the communication.
3. The mind of the gifted person who spoke in tongues did not participate in the communication. The Holy Spirit used the vocal cords to speak a language unknown to the speaker. Therefore, their mind was disengaged. This is why so many people are so thunderstruck when they saw the so-called gift of tongues at that time.
4. Prophecy required someone to form the words with his own mind to communicate what God communicated to him. The prophet had to communicate with his own words the thinking of God. He was given the knowledge as part of the gift, and then he spoke it in his own words.
5. Tongues is the gift of speaking in a language which the speaker did not have before. Bobby is fascinated with foreign languages and loves to hear them spoken. It is possible they had perfect pronunciation. The hearer understood what was being said. Our Lord spoke in Aramaic or Greek; but information was communicated in many different languages.

How was tongues used in the early church?

1. Tongues was first used to evangelize the Jews on the day of Pentecost and thereafter. Jesus arose and 10 days later, those with this gift began to speak these languages.
2. At that time, many Jews from many surrounding lands made pilgrimages to Jerusalem.
3. They were celebrating the feasts at the Temple.
4. On the day that the disciples received the filling of the Holy Spirit, they began to speak all sorts of languages. These are languages described in the Bible of those nations which surrounded Jerusalem.
5. Why did they speak these languages? This evangelized foreign-born Jews in languages which they understood. Since 586 B.C., many Jews did not leave their nation where they were placed, but they still came back and were evangelized.
6. There was a second reason for speaking in tongues.
  - a. Tongues was a sign that warned the Jews of the coming fifth cycle of discipline. This is per the prophecy of Isa. 28.
  - b. The 28th chapter called the corrupt religious leaders the drunkards of Ephraim. The people of Israel reflected this leadership. God brings judgment against the pivot.
  - c. Because of that situation, Israel was given a sign. Indeed, God will speak to this people through stammering lips (alien languages) and a foreign tongue. This was a sign of judgment.
  - d. Isaiah's sign of the judgment on Israel would be announced in a foreign language. You are about to go out on the fifth cycle of discipline. When Assyria conquered Israel, Assyrian was heard in the land. That warning sign was also directed toward future generations. When doctrine is rejected, the Jews could find themselves hearing truth in a foreign language. The fifth cycle of discipline fulfilled Deut. 28:49. Egyptian and Chaldean and Persian was all heard in the land. That which was heard on the day of Pentecost was a continuation of judgment. Israel had rejected her Messiah and His offering. The gift of tongues was designed to awaken the Jews to another imminent dispersion. The sign of Isaiah. This was a warning of a coming judgment in 30 A.D. and in 70, Jerusalem was leveled. The legions of Titus destroyed Jerusalem. In the speaking was the solution. The rejection occurred by the Jews during the life of Christ. The discipline was on the Jews. However, they heard the gospel in these foreign languages, so that they could avoid this judgment. It was a sign of judgment but, at the same time, the solution to that judgment.

Probably later, the gift of tongues was probably used, not just for the gospel or for teaching mystery doctrine to those of other nationalities. There were a lot of Jews who resided in Corinth. It was prior to 70 A.D. This was still the sign of Isaiah for these Jews. It was still happening. Tongues had a different purpose from knowledge and prophecy.

Recall 1Cor. 12:8: To one is give knowledge according to the same Spirit. This is the gift of knowledge. This is not some ordinary knowledge. It is knowledge given directly by God the Holy Spirit by means of this gift. The gift of knowledge was also by means of revelation. 1Cor. 13:2 it is connected to mystery doctrine. If I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith, so that I can move mountains, but do not have love, I am nothing. This is something which they share which is not found in the other gifts. These are revelatory gifts. Insight was provided into God's truth. Mystery doctrine had not seen the light of day until these gifts came into existence. More important was virtue love.

Differences and Similarities of These Gifts

1. All 3 were revelational, but they all had separate purposes. Tongues was a sign gift for the Jews, making it unique to all of the Jews. It was a spoken sign.
2. Prophecy and knowledge were specifically for divine revelation before the canon of in existence. This was before the canon was formed. The canon of Scripture was not completed until circa 90 A.D. the churches themselves testified to the canonical nature of these gifts. This spread mystery doctrine more quickly.

Their commonality and their differences are critical.

1Cor. 13:8 [Virtue] love never fails. But if there are prophecies, they will be caused to cease; if tongues, they shall cease; if knowledge, it will be caused to cease.

Lesson #920

1Cor. 13:8 July 5, 2009

Sunday 1

We live in the land of the free because it is the home of the brave. The uniforms in Berachah indicate that these are men and women who will defend America from all enemies.

The greatest provision of all is our Lord Jesus Christ, Who is the Author of all liberty.

Liberty is a word which evokes a powerful response in those who revere it. They are exempt from arbitrary control and exploitation, and they live in the confines of their own choices. Freedom is self-fulfillment. It means that each of us has an individual determination and opportunity. We can own property and engage in free commerce; and yet, we are still subordinate to authority. For freedom to be preserved, there is required personal responsibility. We choose to live by the rule of law. The citizens of a free nation are accountable for themselves and their actions. The decisions that we make determine the life that we lead. We all have a part in that. We are an entity which comes closer to the ideals of human liberty than any other nation in human history. It all came together at a point in time, 233 years ago, as of yesterday. Our liberty and freedom was eloquently and unanimously declared on July 4, 1776.

Bobby reads portions of the Declaration of Independence. The intent of the founding fathers was separation, and not the destruction of another government. Governments are instituted among men to preserve the rights of men. When a government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to abolish it and to establish a new one. Prudence will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transitory reasons. The object of the king is absolute tyranny over these states. In essence, this was a foreign power establishing authority with an army. The disputes are then laid out. We must separate and hold them enemies in war and friends in peace, as is our relationship with all other peoples. All political connections between the colonies ought to be resolved. Full power to engage in commerce, go to war, establish peace, etc. We mutually pledge our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

These founding fathers often gave their lives, their fortunes; but never their honor. There is little honor in high places today. But that is the foundation for our present-day freedoms. Besides the emotion of this document of liberty, one other thing stands out.

This document was not a knee-jerk response. They had no desire to destroy English government and they wanted to retain the rule of law. Law must be maintained and tyranny must be restricted. This document declares a new nation. As a nation, they had the right to defend themselves against a foreign power (Great Britain). This was not a classic revolution against an internal government, but a war for independence, a war for separation. We were colonies. There were local governments established with legitimate authority. The objective was not to destroy England's established government or our own local government; it was to have the right to govern ourselves. The King of England was not dethroned, not like in the French and Russian revolutions. This is the greatest document of freedom in history, except for the Bible.

Today, we have one of the greatest attacks on freedom in the United States. It is a threat from within the souls of our own populace. The American people have lost the understanding of what freedom is. We prefer security, comfort and fun instead of freedom. We prefer our government to make decisions for us, rather than take responsibility for our own lives. All is not lost. We are the key to freedom in this land. We as believers are the key to the freedom of the United States. That is the response to any and all internal threats to freedom. The solution in the end is always spiritual. We must continue to form a pivot which will preserve this nation. Jesus Christ controls history, and He does this through the pivot of mature believers. He honors and blesses the nations. As goes the pivot, so goes the nation. History has shown time and time again, the nation which turns its back on Biblical doctrine will lose its freedom. We need a great pivot of believers to preserve the destiny of this free nation.

The Pilgrims were covenant theologians. Their weakness. The rise of Christian doctrine and a nation go hand-in-hand. The rise of the Dutch Republic. The rise of the Germanic states.

Our entire study on the sphere of love. If virtue love is inculcated into your soul, it never fails. We will fail as people; but what is in our soul will not fail. We can handle adversity and difficulties. We have the same option and opportunity. If there are gifts of prophecy, they will be done away; if there are tongues, they will cease; if there are gifts of knowledge, they will be done away.

There is an intricate set of arguments to examine the cessation of these gifts. There is great controversy on when these gifts ceased or if they have ceased. There are churches where tongues are spoken, and the people get very emotional. The gift of tongues at this period of time existed and it manifested itself in these people. It was a visible demonstration of God the Holy Spirit working inside of someone. Imagine that if Bobby suddenly began speaking Bible doctrine in German or French or Farsi. This is exactly what happened. There are many good people who believe this gift is still extent. They have a similar response to those who spoke in tongues in the past.

Today, there are just unintelligible words spoken without any meaning. That is not the gift of tongues.

Virtue love is the center of our life, and not nearly as flashy as some of the spiritual gifts found here. We bless the nation through our spiritual advance. There are dozens of churches which will make us feel better. These other churches will teach love, but they will not teach virtue love. They teach sloppy ἀγάπη. Bobby will dig deep on this topic and it is so practical today. Paul is emphasizing what is important here, which is the development of our spiritual life, which is the function of virtue love; and not the gifts. Perhaps it is like gardening; the key is the garden and what it looks like or produces, and not the tools used in the process.

Prophecy and knowledge take on the verb to be rendered useless. And the gift of tongues will cease. People say that Paul may want to use different verbs for rhetorical style. However, every word in the Bible has a purpose; it is all divinely inspired. Paul was differentiating between gifts. There was a contrast going on here. There was a marked difference. Pauō means to cease of its own accord, to be discontinued. There is a point in time when it is discontinued because it had a unique purpose. When that purpose was fulfilled, it would just end. It is like a product line which is discontinued because a better and more suitable product has come along. Horse and buggy replaced by the car.

Isaiah pronounced this sign gift.

verb: pauō (παύω) [pronounced pow-OH], which means 1) to make to cease or desist; 2) to restrain a thing or person from something; 3) to cease, to leave off; 4) have got release from sin; 4a) no longer stirred by its incitements and seductions. Strong's #3973.

Lesson #921

1Cor. 13:8–10 July 5, 2009

Sunday 2

Tongues would be discontinued when it was no longer necessary to warn the Jews of impending judgment. When did foreign tongues again appear in the land? At the day of Pentecost. It was 11 disciples who suddenly broke out in the spiritual gift of tongues.

They were in an upper room, and they immediately began to speak in tongues. The purpose here was a sign gift. It heralded the dawn, and it heralded a coming destruction. This was the sign of Isaiah.

Verb: katargeō (καταργέω) [pronounced kaht-ahrg-EH-oh], which means 1) to render idle, unemployed, inactivate, inoperative; 1a) to cause a person or thing to have no further efficiency; 1b) to deprive of force, influence, power; 2) to cause to cease, put an end to, do away with, annul, abolish; 2a) to cease, to pass away, be done away; 2b) to be severed from, separated from, discharged from, loosed from any one; 2c) to terminate all intercourse with one. Thayer definitions only. Strong's #2673.

The sign of tongues became obsolete, because the warning which was being heralded had come to pass. 40 years of time, word had spread, and tongues was no longer necessary. By this time, enough people who spoke these other languages knew the gospel and Church Age doctrine and there was no longer a requirement for them to hear doctrine in their own language from someone who did not speak it.

Something else would act upon prophecy and knowledge. They would be rendered inoperative by something or someone. All 3 gifts would cease, and some people believe this to only be the end times. Many think these gifts which will continue until our Lord returns, seeing their end in the future.

The question is, what agent acted, and what caused knowledge and prophecy to be rendered inoperative. How did this happen?

Prophecy and knowledge were not sign gifts. These were gifts which were entirely revelatory. They were for the sole purpose of communicating Bible doctrine. The purpose for these gifts was different from tongues. This was to reveal mystery doctrine because there was no other means of mass dissemination. There was no other way. Mystery doctrine was only beginning to be put into writing for all to see. Eventually the canon of Scripture would be in writing and then distributed en masse, and this kept doctrine from being distorted, because here it is, in writing. Prophecy kept the message clear and without error. It would become obsolete. The best way to keep doctrine from being distorted is a written record. Until that time, prophecy and knowledge had to continue. We need some means by which we can get doctrine. Word of mouth had to be accurate.

The agent which would render prophecy and knowledge inoperative was the canon of Scripture. The epistles and the gospels and the book of Acts. They were only acceptable if written by an Apostle or someone connected closely with an Apostle. These became the New Testament canon, along with the eschatology of Revelation from John. When the Corinthians received 1Corinthians and 2Corinthians, they recognized it as such. They were reading the Word of God. They took these epistles as normative for the Christian life.

Prophecy and knowledge are rendered inoperative by the canon. These gifts were only for Church Age doctrine.

The sign of tongues was no longer necessary by 70 A.D. and the other gifts were no longer necessary after 90 A.D. Regardless of when this happened, these gifts are no longer operational; but virtue love continues.

Bobby now speculates. He thinks that tongues gradually discontinued. There may have been times where it was found, but used less and less as the Word spread. Same as prophecy and knowledge as well. These dates may not be rock solid dates for the discontinuation of these gifts, but any further use would have been very isolated and under special circumstances. In other words, this is not an overnight thing.

What we are studying is perhaps the most controversial of all passages in modern Christianity. Some people say, "I saw this occur with my own eyes." What is the criterion for your spiritual life? Is it your life experiences or is it the Word of God? Bobby is presenting what the Word of God says; not an experience. You decide. You can return to tongues or recognize where authority lies.

1Cor. 13:8 [Virtue] love never fails. But if there are prophecies, they will be caused to cease; if tongues, they shall cease; if knowledge, it will be caused to cease.

We are going to leave tongues alone after this. This word glossa is not going to occur again. Ἐκ μέρους will be found twice. Katargeô is in the passive voice. They become inoperative at some point in the future. Proving and convincing us of the time of cessation depends upon what is the perfect? How easy it would have been for Paul to use perfect as an adjective and then to complete it with a noun. Is the perfect Jesus Christ or the eternal state? Those things are all perfect. What else is perfect?

We will need to know what is the partial and what is the perfect?

This is a compound main verb. Those who wrote Scripture, those who compiled the canon, already had doctrine in their mind. They wrote not what the Holy Spirit dictated to them, but was in their minds, using their own personality, own style and their own rhetoric. What they put together was perfect, which is the Word of God. There are no mistakes in the inerrant Word of God.

1Cor. 13:9 For we know in part and we prophesy in part,

1Cor. 13:10 but when the perfect comes, the partial will pass away.

Lesson #922

1Cor. 13:8 July 8, 2009

Wednesday

virtue love never comes to an end; if there are gifts of prophecies...when the perfect comes, the partial will pass away.

Each one of the words in these verses is related to others. There is an all-important comparison where virtue love comes to an end; but the 3 gifts do come to an end. Paul uses something which ceases, to elevate the concept of virtue love. At the same time, there is another comparison within this comparison. It is between tongues and the gifts of knowledge and prophecy. What is highlighted is the time, purpose, scope of these gifts.

Prophecy and knowledge will be καταργεω which is in the future passive indicative, and it means to be rendered inoperative. Passive voice means that some intervening agent will act upon them to render them inoperative. Tongues will be παυω future middle indicative, and it means tongues will be discontinued. It simply goes away. Tongues was a sign gift, and once that sign was given, the gift is no longer necessary.

Tongues, the Sign Gift**

1. Tongues becomes obsolete when the message of the sign gift has been sent.
2. The message of tongues was a sign of Israel's apostasy. They were always in apostasy. They were constantly in some kind of trouble. They could not get it together.
3. This sign was first pronounced by Isaiah in Isa. 28. This was fulfilled twice in the history of Israel. 721 and 586 B.C.
4. There was a final fulfillment of this sign, when the disciples broke out speaking in tongues when they were first filled with the Holy Spirit. They began to speak to the entire city in languages which they had not spoken before.
5. The Age of Israel ended and will not come back until the Tribulation.
6. But now, the sign of the dispensational change and the discipline to come was foreign languages on the first day of the existence of the church. On that day, the sign was given. A sign of a changing age and a sign to the Jews of their discipline. Acts 2:6–12
7. At that time and for the last time, God had sent the sign to the Jews. They had just finished rejecting the Messiah, but He had not rejected them. The sign of tongues was the gracious reminder to them. It reminded of His provision of signs and deliverance.
8. The sign was of the fifth cycle of discipline, but the solution was in the words which were spoken in tongues. The discipline, the destruction and the solution .
9. Discipline could have been precluded if the Jews listened to the message in tongues.
10. The Romans administered the fifth cycle of discipline. It was horrible discipline.
11. So, the purpose of the sign was complete. It was παυω, discontinued; it faded out. When its purpose was completed, it was gone.

When will the intervening agent act upon prophecy and knowledge?

wrap Up**

1. There is a different purpose for prophecy and knowledge and tongues.

2. The Old Testament had never heard this stuff which was being taught in the Church Age. There was no other mass means to do it in all mystery doctrine.
3. Mystery doctrine was only beginning to be put into a permanent form for all to have. It needed to be in a permanent form for all of the church.
4. Paul writing to the Corinthians and to other churches is how the completion faction was occurring.
5. All of those epistles which were being written contained pieces of the mystery doctrine. One epistle did not contain all of the mystery doctrine. Each epistle was being directed toward specific situations in specific churches. The only time an epistle went to one man from Paul was to Philemon. Putting these epistles together meant that the whole realm of doctrine would be covered. The epistle to the Corinthians was to deal with them; they were completely out of line. He wrote doctrine to them and gave them practical application. And Paul must have loved Ephesus, as he wrote some of the most complex of doctrines. They were getting it and they were advancing. Ephesus was the Berachah Church of the ancient world. Paul wrote to the Galatians because they went all legalistic. He wrote to the Romans about justification. That is what they needed to hear. Martin Luther was in one the worst apostasies in the Catholic Church selling salvation in order to build Saint Peters Basilica. Not all doctrine. All of these doctrines were accepted. It was being disseminated by people like us.
6. Only later would all the books of the New Testament be compiled in the permanent form of written revelation. The original churches accepted these epistles as divinely inspired.
7. At the time of Paul's writing, his epistles were being slowly circulated and digested. It took time to copy them and to spread them around.
8. The supplemental and interim means of quick communication were certain believers with these gifts speaking divine revelation in place of its future permanent form.
9. They spoke the same revelation which would be compiled into one canon of the New Testament.
10. Rendered inoperable when the completed came.

Ekmerous. In part, the partial. V. 10 names the intervening agent. It all depends upon what is the perfect. Prophecy and knowledge will be rendered inoperable when the perfect comes. There is a time frame. When does the partial disappear? What is the partial in relation to the perfect? It is all a big mystery which we need to solve. We need to do this because this is a major issue today and because it is in the Bible.

1Cor. 13:8 [Virtue] love never fails. But if there are prophecies, they will be caused to cease; if tongues, they shall cease; if knowledge, it will be caused to cease.

We must begin with what is the partial. We have the of ginôskô. The second compound verb in this sentence is prophêtouô. Present active indicative. We know, we prophesy. This is foretelling and forth-telling.

Knowledge of mystery doctrine had to be received, and it came directly from God the Holy Spirit. There was no other way to know it. They wrote it down in their own style and vocabulary, but they needed the knowledge first. The gifts of knowledge and prophecy were necessary prerequisites for writing down doctrine at this particular time. What is known and what is prophesied is divine information of the mystery doctrine.

Retroactive progressive present, which is knowledge in the process of developing. It was progressive in its development. It had a start point, which was the Day of Pentecost. This knowledge was progressing; it continued to be revealed. It is the pre-canon. Doctrine is being put into writing. All of it was the same doctrine being disseminated. It was all going out from the unique canon which we have.

When Paul wrote 1 Corinthians, there were only 4 books written by that time. They were beginning to circulate among the churches. Only partial revelation of mystery doctrine pertaining to the unique life of the Church Age was available at that time. Only later would it be available in a more complete form. In the meantime, mystery doctrine was continued to be taught.

Paul traveled through the countryside and in the towns and in the fields, and Paul gives them the gospel. But he wrote epistles to groups. Someone eventually came along with the gift of prophecy and told them what they needed to know as new believers. They did not get the full realm of doctrine at that time. Only later. God never leaves us without doctrine and He never leaves us without the proper doctrine which we need to grow. You get what you need.

The Bible has been translated into almost every language on earth. If someone wants it, it is there. There are people who want doctrine, and they find it all over the world.

George Mueller tells about the German on a freighter, and he went to the church library because he wanted to improve his English, and God made it available to him. God does not leave us in the lurch. Today, the means is different through the permanent gift of the pastor-teacher.

Partial knowledge was incomplete which was being spoken through gifts of doctrine. Once revelation was fully recorded, then it was no longer partial. The Apostles were doing it all. They were writing and doing it all. Paul had to get this from somewhere. He did not make it up. When you understand when the perfect comes, it is critical. All Bobby has told us is when based upon the reason for these gifts. The canon of Scripture rendered inoperative these 2 gifts.

Bobby was not sure how much of the other side of the coin he ought to give us of the ceasing of the gift of tongues. George Mueller and another missionary in the Ukraine and in Brazil are running into the charismatic movement.

Cessation of tongues has been covered, it appears. It is discontinued when the sign is fulfilled. This is seen twice in the Old Testament. Vv. 9–12 do not mention tongues again, so we will put them aside.

Καταργεω means to render inoperable by an intervening agent. All of this is building something. There is nothing in vv. 9–12 which specifically tells us when the gift ends, but taken as a whole, we know. What is the intervening agent and when does this take place? The agent which is involved is divine revelation. That is the intervening agent.

Summary Points

1. That is what prophecy and knowledge are all about. What do you think they are for? They are to communicate God's Word; it is divine revelation. This is very important as we progress.
2. The in part of v. 9 refers to a portion of divine revelation.
3. Knowledge and prophecy in part are communication gifts of divine revelation.
4. That partial revelation was the developing mystery doctrine. Every time the Apostle Paul wrote an epistle, he was adding more mystery doctrine to his congregations. This mystery doctrine was communicated through these spiritual gifts. The Apostles and others had these gifts. Up to this point, they only had the Old Testament. Every time they got a piece of the New Testament doctrine. They learned about the filling of the Holy Spirit, rebound, the 39 absolutes, etc. They were learning about Jesus Christ in great detail. They were able to see the prophecy of the Old Testament and the real Messiah and what it all meant. At least in part it was developing. It had to be revealed by God the Holy Spirit. There were Apostles who were writing as they were divinely inspired. The Holy Spirit was his mentor and his teacher, and he expressed things in his own style and in his own vocabulary. There were also speaking gifts as well. Paul moved throughout the ancient world, and he spoke mystery doctrine based upon the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit spoke through them.
5. The mystery doctrine spoken here and there was in part. No man of knowledge was able to give out every doctrine found in the canon of Scripture at any one time.
6. The in part doctrine was being progressively communicated until it was no longer partial.
7. Thus if it was in part in the 1st century, continually progressing to be more and more, there would be a time when it was completed.
8. When it was finished, so would those two gifts be inoperative. Their purpose was finished. Some think there may be some remote places where doctrine has not spread. The Bible has been translated into hundreds of languages; there are missionaries all over the world. Where there is positive volition, God brings the gospel and Bible doctrine to them. God is obligated to bring information to anywhere there is positive volition. Missionaries will go there with the gospel. It may seem easier if a prophet gets out there and teaches, but that is not what God is doing.

9. The mystery doctrine in the New Testament canon renders the two gifts inoperative. That revelation will be completed at a future time.

The question as to when the canon renders these inoperative is found in the phrase when the perfect comes.

The Perfect

1. The perfect is the intervening agent, and operations are then discontinued.
2. The word for perfect is τελειον and it is translated the perfect.
3. But we found in this context, it should not be perfect but completed.

In part and partial both refer to the same thing. The partial revelation will be rendered exactly the same verb. When the completed comes, the partial will be rendered καταργεω.

Completed and Partial

1. In v. 10 completed and partial are juxtaposed for contrast. Two things are placed side-by-side in order to compare them.
2. The contrast is in the context of divine revelation.
3. The contrast is between the completed mystery doctrine versus partial mystery doctrine.
4. The comparison is between the post-canon completed mystery doctrine in distinction to the pre-canon partially revealed doctrine. When the perfect comes, the partial will be done away with. We no longer need prophecy and knowledge.
5. So the answer to the question is, when the canon is completed. Knowledge and prophecy are in part, and the canon is the completed thing.

1Cor. 13:10 but when the perfect comes, the partial will pass away.

Vv. 11–12 are illustrations of this. Vv. 9-10 give us the doctrine. Paul now illustrates.

Paul used to reason as a child. He spoke like a child and he thought like a child and he reasoned like a child. When he became a man, he put aside childish things. Καταργεω is found here again.

Child here is νηπιος 1Cor. 3:1 is where we have found this before. Paul spoke and used and reasoned as a child. So he was immature.

The Napios Analogy

1.  $\text{Ναπτιος}$  is a reference to spiritual babies, not to physical babies. They have knowledge commensurate only with the doctrine which is available. They have the in part.
2. What they learned is only partial. What they know is incomplete, which is why they are  $\text{ναπτιος}$ .
3. No one can think and reason with divine viewpoint, unless their thinking is renovated.
4. If unrenovated, the believer is incomplete and immature. You must be renovated to be complete. We are never utterly and completely renovated.
5. Hence childish here refers to having incomplete knowledge.
6. The implication is, more doctrine must be inculcated for completed knowledge. This is how a baby becomes a man or a woman. The doctrine must be present first.
7. So child is a metaphor for a lack of present knowledge. It is an incomplete thought process. Some children cannot even think in complete sentences. Partial thinking and partial knowledge means they cannot think like an adult.

The children represents the pre-canon doctrine.

The Child and the Early Church

1. The child is the infant church and the incomplete knowledge. The Corinthians got some of the best doctrine given to churches at that time.
2. Just as the child cannot speak, think or reason as a mature adult, so the pre-canon church did not yet have the entire realm of divine viewpoint with which to think and to reason with completeness.
3. They did not yet have all revelation other than would be imparted to them via prophecy and knowledge.
4. In the future, the post-canon Church Age would have all necessary revelation. Revelation had been progressing. Each generation moved ahead. They failed, but they still had the knowledge available. Pastor-teachers are sometimes called prophets, but it is because he digs out what is already there. We have such an advantage. However, even some believers today need to be spoon-fed.

The pre-canon time period was an interim period to still being believers to spiritual maturity. Even prophecy and knowledge could not inculcate these believers with the full repertoire of doctrine.

These old gifts are outmoded. They are replaced by a superior product. It is an inferior product being replaced by a superior product. The incomplete childish things are rendered inoperative. Incomplete revelation is replaced with a complete revelation. Now the unique spiritual life can be executed based upon the complete revelation available. God holds us accountable. We are held accountable for that. The mandate is to grow in grace and knowledge. There is no excuse. We ought to be able to grow much quicker in the time period in which we live. There is no more which needs to be added; no more which needs to be found.

The history of the Bible is a phenomenal thing. It is incredible how it was preserved. It is the greatest document preserved solely by God. Satan and every human minion of Satan has tried to destroy it.

Nothing can be added to the Bible at this point in time. There is a danger in adding to existing revelation of the Bible. The so-called prophets today of their claim of new revelation. New prophecy supposedly is found all over and it becomes a big practical problem. Someone will claim new revelation from God which will not agree with existing doctrine. The modern-day prophet takes license to supercede that which is always confirmed as the settled Word of God. Many a cult figure has arisen with new doctrine.

Islam is an example of this. This is one of the world's worse scourges and false all the way. The prophet Mohammed, the new prophet of Allah whose revelation superceded what Jesus said. To him, Jesus was just a prophet. Mormonism has this with Joseph Smith and Brigham Young; Joe dug up some tablets which he claims to be inspirational.

Yom Young Moon who founded the unification church, and he had some new revelation. That is a new cult. Jim Jones called himself a prophet. These types lead people away from Biblical Christianity. There is such a danger of those who claim to be prophets.

1Cor. 13:11 When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child. When I became a man, I gave up childish ways.

1Cor. 13:12 For now we see in a mirror dimly, but then face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully, even as I have been fully known.

Lesson #927

1Cor. 13:10 July 16, 2009

Thursday

The interpretation here must all fit. You cannot take a verse here or there out of context. Vv. 9–10 are supported by vv. 11–12. We now need to unravel these illustrations.

We were all children once and we thought like a child thinks; we spoke as a child speaks, and we reasoned like a child. Their knowledge could be called partial, limited, immature. Illustrations will not be perfect. What the child is, is the part. The man is the complete. There is this gradual development from childhood into adulthood.

Τελιον = the completed thing. It is complete knowledge as compared to the partial knowledge of the child. In comparison there is a more complete knowledge than the growing child. The analogy still works for the partial and the complete.

1Cor. 13:10 but when the perfect comes, the partial will pass away.

Καταργεω is used again in v. 11, translated here to give up, did away with. It means to render in operative. What is rendered inoperative, those things which are childish are given up. Childish things are useless for an adult. Why would an adult ever want to return to the knowledge of a child. It replaces the nascent knowledge of the child.

A child cannot think, reason, or speak like an adult, so the early church was unable to pull together all of the mystery doctrine at any given time. This is a logical step-by-step development. The nascent church did not have all revelation.

Epistles were copied and sent from one church to another. In the future, the post-canon church would have all of the necessary information. They would be the adult. What we have as the written Word of God, the mind of Christ, Bible doctrine, is enough. You do not need anymore. The completed revelation in the completed canon is all that God meant for us to have; this is all of it. This is the whole realm of doctrine. It was piecemeal in the first century, but it is complete.

Bobby doesn't know anyone who had the entire Bible mastered. He has heard many teachers, who have devoted their lives to Bible doctrine, and they are specialized. The most coherent presentation of the doctrine of the Bible was given from the Berachah pulpit. Bobby has worked for several great theologians and has heard many; but they have never put together the whole realm of doctrine as did his father.

We have the complete, even though we might not be mature. A lot of people have left Berachah Church saying, "I have learned everything I know in Berachah Church," and they go off to some oddball church. What comes to mind is, "Why did they leave?" They may have left because they think that they had completed doctrine. First of all, you do not have the complete realm of doctrine in your soul. And once you leave the teaching of doctrine behind, you will regret. You will stop breathing doctrine in and out. People just do not progress any further. We have the complete information that we need. We have all of the doctrine which we need to grow up spiritually.

Any new revelation of a prophet from today just cannot be. Either a prophet gives new revelation which is false, because it contradicts the Bible; or it is in line with Bible doctrine, which means his revelation was not needed in the first place.

There are tons of so-called prophets like Jim Jones, Sun Yuong Moon, Mohammed.

One of the arguments for tongues today is that people get to see these things happening and you are encouraged that you can watch all of this. Seeing something does not prove anything. Look at the Exodus generation or at those alive during the time of our Lord. People reject or believe. Faith is the evidence of things unseen.

The Holy Spirit comes in as our guide, teacher and mentor today, bringing us to maturity with the Bible doctrine available to us now. The gift of prophecy and knowledge are over.

1Cor. 13:11 When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child. When I became a man, I gave up childish ways.

V. 12 is more difficult to decipher, but it is the clincher. So, where did Paul come up with this mirror and what is the face to face business? This is another pivotal verse, and the last piece of evidence in a growing stack of evidence.

First word is αρτι = now. This refers to the immediate present. It refers to the time of writing, to Paul's time, as he writes this. There is a second adverb of time τοτε = then. There is this progression of time. There is now and there is this point of time in the future. This is all repeated in v. 12b. Paul is writing this, talking about himself. As Paul prophesies and writes, his knowledge is progressing as well. He probably knew more doctrine than anyone else, and even at this point in time, he has partial knowledge.

Paul understood this, and there would be a future time when there would be a completed amount of knowledge. Vv. 11–12 are illustrations of vv. 9–10.

How Do they correspond?

1. Then I will know fully corresponds to when the perfect comes.
2. I know in part is in contrast with when the perfect comes.
3. This means that v. 12b is in parallel
4. Now I know in part, Paul writes; which is pre-canon material.
5. Then I will know fully, is post-canon, corresponding exactly with the other two verses.
6. The time frame of v. 12b is the time frame of pre-canon and post-canon periods.
Know in part versus know fully.
7. Now is the pre-canon period.
8. Then is the post-canon period.

When Paul wrote this, believers were completely dependent upon the Apostles, the prophets and those with the gift of knowledge. Believers of that era were hungry for information. Messiah had come, and the Age of Israel was set aside, so what is going on? Believers wanted to know what was going on. This was all brand new. These are people who are brand new to Christianity, and now they need to know what they are.

All of this pivots about ceasing. Understanding when something ceases is what needs to be nailed down. The key to this is face to face. When we hear this phrase, we think about being face to face with Jesus Christ. We understand it to mean being in heaven. Being face to face must have an object. There must be something or someone that we are facing. What or whom are we face to face with? Almost everyone agrees that face to face is going to be with the complete. Some have taken this to be face to face with the Lord in heaven.

This Verse Confirms the Meaning of τελειον. In v. 12a is eksoptron. Is it a mirror or is it glass? These are both legitimate translations. The JN Darby translation: For we see now through a dim window or glass obscurely. New Testament in plain English: For now we see only dark shapes in a looking glass. So, two translations go with glass. Why is this word choice important? What does it matter, really?

Glass or Mirror

1. The translation determines the object.
2. If it is mirror, then the object one sees is oneself, if it is a mirror. That would be the mirror.
3. If it is translated glass, then face to face would be with something or someone else. This one term is the basis for the interpretation.
4. The preview, this means mirror, which Bobby will explain the next time around.

1Cor. 13:12 For now we see in a mirror dimly, but then face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully, even as I have been fully known.

Lesson #928

1Cor. 13:11–12 July 19, 2009

Sunday 1

Any communicator can present facts to impart knowledge. He does his or her job by defining or lecturing on the principles of some given subject. He then builds on the basics with more complex information. This includes all of the data which must be mastered. That is certainly the foundation for any teaching on any subject. However, to bring the information alive, there is nothing like a vivid illustration. Painting a word picture or a visual for the student is helpful. This makes teaching most effective. Bob was very gifted in this area and he could develop great illustrations to teach us the principles of Bible doctrine. The barrier of sin; the top and bottom circles; the rebound technique as a recovery mechanic; followed by more complex illustrations, e.g., the floors of the edification complex; entering the gates of the divine dynasphere.

What Bob presented was not dry, but it was dynamic and applicable and practical. His illustrations help us to recall various points of doctrine. Analogies make doctrine unforgettable. The Apostle Paul was also a master of the analogy. Jesus taught using parables and miracles and all sorts of techniques. All of these are memorable. So Paul used similar illustrations and metaphors.

Paul will use some illustrations in vv. 11–12. V. 9 gives us the partial and the complete. During the time of Paul, they had only partial knowledge. For we know in part, and we prophesy in part. But when the perfect comes, the partial will come to an end (1Cor. 13:9–10).

The facts are illustrated in vv. 11–12, and these illustrations teach the partial. There are word pictures being painted here. V. 11 is becoming a man to represent full or complete; and v. 12 uses the illustration of a mirror or a glass. A person's knowledge is lacking when one is a child. Knowledge is piled upon knowledge and remains incomplete until the child grows up. The child represents the nascent church; the infant church. The child cannot think, speak or reason as an adult, the young church did not have all that it needed to be complete. The early church did not have all revelation.

When the Apostle Paul completed the book of Revelation, the canon was complete. The canon was not compiled at that time. During those 60 years, a lot of doctrine was being disseminated to the churches. Once it was complete, these gifts of knowledge and prophecy was no longer needed; they ceased at that time.

V. 11 is an easy illustration and a vivid one.

1Cor. 13:11 When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child. When I became a man, I gave up childish ways.

Bobby spent a lot of time meditating on v. 12. He knew that it belonged in the context of this chapter.

Γαρ αρτι = for now. Then we have τότε = then, at that time. Paul can say, I only know in part.

We need to nail down the term face-to-face. This is a good translation. It is appropriate. Being face to face requires an object. With what are you faced with and when? Most theologians agree that the object is τελειον, from v. 10.

A key to understanding this ἔσοπτρον and before this is δια, which has a specific meaning with the genitive case: through; in; by means of. A figure seen through this glass could be seen, but it would be a shadowy figure. The idea would be looking into a mirror as opposed to through the glass.

James 1:23: Because if anyone is a hearer of the Word, and not a doer, this one is like a man studying his natural face in a mirror; here we have εν with the dative. A believer hears doctrine, learns doctrine and then applies doctrine. He stares at himself in the mirror and then he walks away. He immediately forgets what kind of a person he is. He does not see himself anymore. This is exactly what happens when you learn doctrine and never apply it. You are hearing the words and learning them academically, but you do not believe it and/or apply it. Mirror fits this context must better than glass does. The partial and the complete; the partial knowledge as compared to the complete canon of Scripture.

Bobby says that we are looking at ourselves in a dark mirror.

1Cor. 13:12 For now we see in a mirror dimly, but then face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully, even as I have been fully known.

Bobby hasn't quite gotten to the dynamic illustrations yet. We need to understand one of the terms. ἔκσπτον is the word we are dealing with.

What does it mean that we look into a mirror dimly? Is the mirror fogged over? When looking through an opaque glass, there is not a light which gets through. A mirror always reflects an exact image. A mirror reflects an exact image. The image is not dim.

Doesn't dimly lend itself to the translation glass? We see ourselves in one way (dimly) and then we see ourselves in another way (face to face).

Dimly is enigma ainigma (αἴνιγμα) [pronounced Ā-nihg-mah], which means 1) an obscure saying, enigma, riddle; 2) an obscure thing. Thayer only. Strong's #135. Neuter noun.

The illustration is, you are looking into the mirror and talking to yourself. You look into the mirror and you are asking yourself who are you? You see yourself as a puzzle. You look at yourself in a certain way. You take a very questionable look at yourself because you cannot figure yourself out. You look at yourself in the mirror and you ask yourself, who am I; where am I going? You see yourself looking into the eyes of divine viewpoint.

When you understand some of the characteristics of virtue love, then you begin to see yourself in the light of a spiritual life. You are developing the characteristics of virtue love and now you are beginning to see yourself face to face. That is the perspective of yourself in a mirror.

I think that this word ought to be glass; instead of seeing the full realm of doctrine, the new age can be dimly seen, and some doctrines partially understood; but you will be, at some time, able to see clearly, as face to face, which will be the Word of God as the canon of Scripture.

You eventually see yourself reflecting Christ because He is in us; He reflects our glory. We look in the mirror and we see ourselves.

Illustration within an Illustration

1. Less doctrine in the soul means that you do not know yourself very well in relation to God and His plan. You need to grow up in order to know yourself in God's plan.
2. In the mirror of more doctrine in your soul, your understanding takes shape in relationship to God and His plan.

Two different perspectives: incomplete doctrine, which is seeing dimly; and post-canon completed doctrine, face to face.

Now let's look at the time element. Another 36 years to go by until the entire canon of Scripture is complete. Now and then. Now is when Paul is writing, where he sees himself (or the doctrine of the Church Age) dimly; and then will be being able to see the Word of God with complete clarity; seeing the doctrine of the Church Age with completeness. The proper analogy is in time for Paul knowing in part then knowing completely. These are parallels in time (now and then). The face to face is not eschatological. The other interpretation is us dying and reaching heaven or the return of Jesus Christ. We use this same terminology with being face to face with Jesus Christ in death. Or some take this as when the rapture occurs; or during the 2nd advent.

However, the now and then are parallels in time. There is a moving from death to life, and we are in time progressing toward our deaths; but this is not about us. This is about a point in time of in part knowledge and complete knowledge. Not face to face with the Lord but face to face with the Word of God. The entire analogy here occurs within human history.

Believers saw themselves enigmatically in the pre-canon Church Age but later completely when the canon of Scripture is complete.

Looking through a dim glass is seeing bits and pieces of Church Age doctrine. However, at some point, we will be able to see face to face with the completed canon of Scripture which is the completed thing, which contains the completed Church Age doctrine. There is no longer a need for the partial, because we have the completed thing.

All we need to grow from a child to an adult is the canon of Scripture. Then I will know fully just as I have been fully known? But Bobby is going to require some time to unravel this.

1Cor. 13:12 For now we see in a mirror [or, through a glass] dimly, but then face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully, even as I have been fully known.

Lesson #930

1Cor. 13: July 29, 2009

Wednesday

Introduction to Bob's new book. God's Unfailing Love. Bob didn't feel like he put it all together until the final few years. We love because He first loved us. God graciously provided for us long before he existed. Our response is because He first loved us.

Jim Meyers will give a report tomorrow night.

1Cor. 13:9 For we know in part and we prophesy in part,

1Cor. 13:10 but when the perfect [the completed thing] comes, the partial will pass away [or, be done away with; be rendered inoperative].

Then we have illustrations of the incomplete and the partial. Paul thought about what children these Corinthians are, so he said, when I was a child; and he had divine revelation commensurate with starting out. As a child, what he was learning was only in part. Then he defines what that means. He spoke and thought and reasoned as a child. Children have undeveloped thinking, reasoning. A child does not think with divine viewpoint. Only when you renovate your thinking do you leave the status of child.

The more doctrine that you inculcate, the more you move away from childish things.

How you speak about doctrine is very revealing as to your spiritual maturity. What you know comes through what you say.

In any illustration, the child represents something. The child here represents the pre-canon era of the Church Age. Some churches had some epistles, but lacked others. Doctrine was being developed and disseminated a little at a time. Each church got a build-up of doctrine. However, no one had the entire realm of doctrine in one place. They depended upon someone with the gift of prophecy to wander in and tell them the mystery doctrine.

The other side of the analogy; when I became an adult, I put away childish things. The interim gifts of prophecy and knowledge were no longer needed once the Bible had been completed. It is like an outdated product being replaced by a newer version or a completely new product.

The completed thing cannot be added to; it cannot be improved upon.

1Cor. 13:11 When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child. When I became a man, I gave up childish ways.

V. 12 is still an illustration; and it is the sealing argument on the cessation of the gifts of prophecy and knowledge.

At the time that Paul is writing this epistle, we see in a mirror dimly. This is the incomplete amount of knowledge. However, then, when there is the complete, we will see face to face. How is this an illustration? What represents what? We see ourselves in one way; and then we see ourselves in another way.

Part of this hinges on the word dimly. A riddle is the word, and it means indistinct, a riddle. As the object of the preposition εν; and it modifies the verb βλεπω. This means the phrase itself is adverbial.

At one time or another, we have said, who am I? This is in the sense, what makes me tick? Why do I do the things I do? We can certainly recognize ourselves. However, this is about how we perceive what is inside of us. What about my attitudes? What about my actions? There is the uncertainty; a dim view of yourself; even an unflattering view. This happens to some of us when we reject Bible doctrine.

When you see yourself dimly, it is without a complete understanding. The second time you see yourself, you see yourself through the eyes of divine viewpoint. You are no longer obscure to yourself but you are mature spiritually.

How does this work in the overall scheme of these verses? Seeing dimly is seeing in the light of incomplete revelation. The canon is not completed. Face to face is a mature understanding from the entire realm of doctrine.

Luke traveled with Paul; so Paul probably saw his gospel; but we have no idea about whether Paul saw the other gospels. In Corinth, they had an incomplete canon; and in Berea, we have the entire canon.

I don't know; this really seems to make a lot more sense if it is looking into a glass. We see God, but not completely; we have this incomplete understanding of Him; but, at the completion of the canon of Scripture, we will see Him as if face to face. All that we need to know will be available to us.

The analogy is seeing something on the other side of a glass (their glass was not like ours). However, then we see something without the glass in between and we see it just as it really is.

Paul brings this to completion by saying, Now I know in part (as he does not have the full canon of Scripture), but then, he would know fully, when the canon of Scripture is complete.

What does the final phrase of v. 12 mean? There are 3 issues involved.

Γινωσκω is the verb. When Paul wrote the second half of this verse. Then he writes a second verb, which is επιγινωσκω. Paul knew in part and later he would know fully.

Usually, the difference between γνῶσις and ἐπίγνωσις is academic knowledge as over against spiritual knowledge, which is deposited into the human spirit. It is applicable knowledge.

Here, these words are the difference between a partial knowledge and a complete knowledge which comes from God. The second issue is centered around the noun εσοπτρον, which means glass, mirror. This is the connotation of seeing ourselves in a mirror. I know [myself] in part; but then I will know [myself] fully.

When completed revelation would come, we would see ourselves just as God sees us. That is the reality of face to face. We are looking at ourselves with the perspective of divine viewpoint.

The Word of God teaches about humanity; it teaches us that we are no damn good. It teaches that we are depraved; we all have a sin nature. That is the beginning of seeing ourselves realistically. We begin to learn faith rest. We develop grace orientation. We learn to see ourselves in relation to the grace of God.

God's plan for your life is cavalierly thrown out; but it means that, every single day, the moment we wake up, we are a part of the plan of God. Whether we walk in this plan or not, it is there. God has a personal plan for us. It is personal and a result of His love.

When you look in the mirror and ask, who am I? wouldn't you rather know that you are in the plan of God. All of the things which life throws at us is just one more moment when the plan of God is working. All of the difficulties, all the successes and all is a part of His plan. He is in control. That is the maturity of v. 11.

1Cor. 13:12 For now we see in a mirror [or, through a glass] dimly [enigmatically, obscurely], but then face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully, even as I have been fully known.

Lesson #931

1Cor. 13:12 July 30, 2009

Thursday

This is the home stretch of 1Cor. 13. These verses have been rather complex. Bobby has 1 or 2 more nights to convince us of the correct timing of the cessation of spiritual gifts.

The temporary spiritual gifts, charity and martyrdom were all compared back in vv. 1–3. Even though martyrdom has happened in many situations, but such a death has maximum impact. However, without love, these activities means nothing.

Vv. 4–8a had the characteristics of virtue love. Without virtue love, we are nothing. Without virtue love, we cannot glorify God. We are not capable or motivated to persevere in the Christian life.

We get a great understanding of virtue love because of the carnal Corinthians.

After naming all of these virtue love characteristics, Paul resumes with vv. 8b–13. Paul sets up a comparison between the permanence of virtue love verses these temporary spiritual gifts. These are communication gifts and believers could not spiritually survive without these communication gifts.

This is one of the great chapters in the Bible because it defines who we are in Christ. Bobby learned things in this chapter that he never knew before. He went a little further and dealt with us and the characteristics which we develop in our own lives.

This book comes out just at the right time. Bobby wasn't working solidly for 10 years on this book; but there were a number of things which interfered. However, the book, The Unfailing Love of God came out just at the right time.

Virtue love never 1) to fall out of, to fall down from, to fall off; 2) metaphorically; 2a) to fall from a thing, to lose it; 2b) to perish, to fall; 2b1) to fall from a place from which one cannot keep; 2b2) fall from a position; 2b3) to fall powerless, to fall to the ground, be without effect; 2b3a) of the divine promise of salvation.

1Cor. 13:8 [Virtue] love never fails. But if there are prophecies, they will be caused to cease; if tongues, they shall cease; if knowledge, it will be caused to cease.

Incomplete revelation is compared with complete revelation. The partial is divine revelation prior to the completion of the canon of Scripture. The progress of mystery doctrine being revealed to the early church.

1Cor. 13:9 For we know in part and we prophesy in part,

When the completeness comes, that which is partial fades away. Those in the church. The complete has arrived; it is here. There is no more need for the gifts of prophecy and knowledge. They have been rendering inoperative by the completed canon.

When Paul gets to the final phrases of v. 12, he sums up his whole argument of the partial and the complete.

1Cor. 13:10 but when the perfect comes, the partial will pass away.

V. 12b Paul is describing himself: For now I know in part; but then I will know fully...

There are 3 issues. The first issue is found in the first phrase of v. 12. Now I know [ginosko] in part, but then I will know fully [epiginosko]. These two verbs summarize all that we have studied. These two verbs can be placed in juxtaposition. They are set up side-by-side so as to compare the partial knowledge with the complete knowledge.

Partial knowledge is imparted from God to us by the temporary gifts in the pre-canon period. Then, in a future time, a complete knowledge. A permanently recorded knowledge complete in every aspect. You cannot add to what you already have.

The transfer of γνώσις to ἐπίγνωσις is not what is in view here, even though their verbal cognates are found here.

The second issue which manifests the complete and incomplete is centered around the noun εσοπτρον, which means mirror, glass. We look into a mirror and see a reflection of ourselves, but we see ourselves only dimly. We do not fully understand our own self. We question ourselves; who am I? When Paul wrote this, he was speaking of an absolute.

In this context of a mirror, the phrase, now I know in part, so there must be an object, which is going to be oneself. Knowing in part is looking into a mirror dimly.

Some take the face to face as being in the presence of God, but that is completely out of context. When Paul was writing this epistle, he had an incomplete view of himself.

We always think of Paul as knowing everything; but he says right here that he did not know it all. There were all of these other people with the gifts of knowledge and prophecy who were revealing a little bit at a time as well.

The more doctrine you have in your soul, the more you see yourself face to face accurately, through the prism of divine viewpoint. You see yourself in the reality of God's Word. Doctrine is the mind of Christ.

We have no idea if Paul saw any gospels other than Luke's; or any of the other epistles. However, he said that he did not know it all. As believers today, we possess the greatest treasure in the world.

They ought to sell of Bible that glows with a mirror.

We get to see ourselves in the mirror of the Word of God, which reveals to us exactly who we are.

Then, I will know fully, just as I have been fully known. Paul would know himself completely when he could look into the complete canon of Scripture. Paul never saw the completed canon; and he probably had all mystery doctrine revealed to him before his death. We have that which Paul only had in part.

The mirror which we have which reflects who we are in Christ.

1Cor. 13:12 For now we see in a mirror [or, through a glass] dimly, but then face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully, even as I have been fully known.

Now we have the payoff.

Jim Meyers, ordained in 1971, missionary in the Ukraine.

It was 46 years ago when he began to listen to tapes. He moved with his family to Arkansas, where he pastored; and then the Soviet Union went broke, and he had the opportunity to go to Belleruse. Ukraine is a country about the size of Texas, but with a lot fewer people. Great freedom there, more than any other European country. A Bible college there; and a good response to the Word of God. There is more positive volition in the country of Ukraine than the United Kingdom, once the center of Christianity. Where there used to be great churches, they are closed or they have become Islamic study centers. Holland was a great center of Christianity, and today, people have no interest in talking about spiritual things. Martin Luther means very little in Germany. In Ukraine, people will talk to you. So many missionaries take in a distorted gospel or a gospel of works. Fluffy Bible teaching, and they think that is the way to do church. People there are very positive toward the Word of God. However, many pastors are not preparing as they should.

Training others to learn the original languages, and how to teach verse-by-verse. There are young men who go out who understand grace. There is a lot of opposition to grace; religion hates grace.

One young man graduated from the Bible college; he wanted to go to Iran and teach; but he could not get a visa, so he went to Turkey to evangelize. He can make 2 or 3 forays into Iran each year. The Iranians do not like to be called Arabs; they do not speak Arabic, and they like to be called Persians. Many of the Iranians fled to the Ukraine 16 years ago, and they received some freedom and asylum.

One who could not get the gospel in Iran, and he fled to the Ukraine and learned the gospel there. He invited Jim to teach a Bible study to those who had left Islam. Jim taught them for a year and they became grounded for a year. The Ukrainian government said, we have too many refugees, so many of these men who were in his Bible study were sent to Canada, France and Spain. God will take His Word and to people who are positive.

There are graduates going out and starting their own ministries. Rehab centers and going to prisons. There is still a church in Kiev, but they do not need Jim any more. There are men there completely capable of teaching Bible doctrine. The job of a missionary is to work himself out of a job.

They will go back in about a week and a half and set things up for a new year in the Bible college. They are very selective for this Bible college and they take just those who want to go into the ministry. 5x a week for those who want to learn the Bible; but for those who want to be trained, that is what the school is for.

They have been able to teach the Word of God in Brazil, where he teaches a conference, where Tim Lipse organized a conference. The excitement is occurring to learn Bible doctrine.

He is holding Bible conferences in Zambia. Unfortunately, there are no Bible teachers who want to go there. In these conferences, there are hungry pastors who need the training. Pray for those to have the vision to teach the Word of God to those who are hungry in Zambia. This is the only nation in the world which calls itself a Christian nation. No influx of Islam, as we have seen in other nations. Muslims do not have the freedom to just move in and take over.

West of the Ukraine is Moldova, and they just had an election, but the Communists only got 45% of the votes; but the opposition did not get a majority either. However, the Communists can no longer impose their will. There was persecution; churches were being shut down; they would not allow facilities to be rented, because of Communist laws.

Commonwealth of Soviet States; most of them want to remain independent. Mother Russia would like to regather these chicks under her wings. We have heard about Georgia; and most of what we heard did not reflect what was going on. It is about the money and the seaports and the oil.

Come to the Ukraine to see what the proposed health plan will end up looking like.

Russia came into Georgia and passed our Russian passports to people with their names on them; and then said, "Georgia, you are abusing our citizens" and then made incursions there.

Jim observes changes, and changes in attitude. Jim was visiting a church and a man stood up and said, "I found a verse for our president, Let his habitation be desolate and let another take his office." in many churches, they are dumbing down the curriculum. They have gone from 5 nights a week to a weekly meeting. One said, our Bible class was too small. It wasn't worth it? You have people showing up and you shut it down? There are still many churches across this nation which stand firm on the principles of grace. Men who are doing a marvelous job.

Jim has just started to turn gray, and he is concerned about who will take his place. But there are young men out there who have the correct orientation who will replace him.

The US seems to be in trouble, and we deserve judgment; but God is not through with us. We are still here. We know we deserve judgment because we have been decadent. Whatever comes, we may have to suffer with those who are under judgment, yet God will sustain us despite that. We continue to publish the Word of God in hundreds of languages and we continue to send these Bibles out all over the world. This is one reason why God has preserved us. The number of missionaries and the quality has really declined, we are still the #1 missionary-sending country in the world.

Lesson #932

1Cor. 13:13 August 2, 2009

Sunday 1

This chapter is a detailed description of the Christian way of life. It is encompassed by the noun ἀγάπη. This is a term we have studied inside and out. Few words are as all-encompassing as is ἀγάπη. Possibly no other words match this.

ἀγάπη begins with God's majestic, unfailing love. God is ἀγάπη; God is love. He has always been perfect love. His love, by definition, is based upon His absolute goodness and benevolence. This love is directed toward us. We are the object of God's love. This love has been extended toward us since eternity past. God's unfailing love is everlasting; and He demonstrates His faithfulness to all people in all generations. Before the creation of the universe, God knew us. We were always in His thoughts. There is no detail of our lives which was not already in God's mind back in eternity past. Before there were angels, God knew and He knew us. He knew when we would be born and when we would die; and everything which is in between. God did not determine our decisions, as we have free will. He did form a personal plan for each one of us. At each step of the way, God's love is manifested to us by His grace. God imputed to us soul life at the moment of our birth; and He also imputed Adam's original sin to our sin nature. His original sin corrupted the entire human race. We are born spiritually dead and physically alive.

We are talking about love here, and it may seem strange that condemnation at birth is love, but it is. This way, all children who die before their ability to choose Jesus Christ, are saved. Being born spiritually dead did not stymie God's ability to love us. God's love is never conditioned upon our merit. We may think that we are pleasing God by what we do, but He loves us based upon what He is, and not based upon who we are.

We have a personal relationship with the God of the Universe; He saved us and no matter how good or rotten we are, we have this relationship at the moment of faith alone in Christ alone. God imputes to us His own righteousness. Jesus Christ on the cross satisfied the wrath of God against all sinners. The key is His perfect righteousness imputed to us. We do not produce enough righteousness to impress God. Once we are justified, once His righteousness is given to us, it can never be taken away. Once we have this righteousness, God has a target for his love. God always seeks the highest and best for us.

We do not have to crawl on ground glass for miles to impress God; and we do not go to some priest and ask him to forgive us. How can any man forgive us. 1Cor. 13 has been a detailed explanation of God's love. We respond with reverence, with respect, with worship. Human terms simply cannot describe God's love. At best, we humanize God's love. This is fallible love.

Bobby promotes God's Unfailing Love of God; there is no cost for God's grace. Do not give it if it is grudgingly or out of necessity.

V. 13 begins with vuv, which is an adverb which means now; he used αρτι before, which also means now. Nuvi weakens the idea of time. A wider span of time is involved here. This is not the specific time of Paul's writing, but a general concept of the time of reading; it takes in the entire Church Age in general. The doctrine comes from the completed canon of Scripture. The word abide is the present active indicative of μενω, which means to abide, to persist, to continue to live.

Bobby will complete this in the next hour.

1Cor. 13:13 So now faith, hope, and love abide [continues to persist], these three; but the greatest of these is love.

Lesson #933

1Cor. 13: August 2, 2009

Sunday 2

We are on the home stretch of 1Cor. 13. Paul began this chapter with the word ἀγαπή. We all have this idea what love it, and normally it is based upon our own emotions and experiences. This is a very fallible approach.

Paul says that a martyr is nothing without love. Then he described the characteristics of love. Then Paul goes to these various spiritual gifts, which seem impressive to the Corinthians, and he tells them how these gifts will all cease.

Paul uses two different words for now, the first referring to now, just at the moment that he is writing; and now, at the moment that you read this, and off into the future. Faith here is πίστις, which has 3 meanings: faith as a non-meritorious system of perception embodied by the word "believe;" confidence, trust, certainty, conviction, an attribute of constancy and faithfulness, reliability; that which is believed, the content of faith, but what is believed.

Peter mentions doctrine being handed down to the church in Jude 3, which indicates that we are speaking of Bible doctrine. 1Tim. 4:6 (...constantly chewing on the words of the faith...). 1Tim. 3:9 Rom. 4:20 Heb. 4:2. Looking at ourselves in the light of Bible doctrine; and this word is a wrap up of this chapter.

ἐλπίς = hope, confidence. Here we have a second phase; a phenomenal relationship with the Lord. Confidence in the spiritual life which God has provided.

When writing something, it is difficult to figure out the beginning and the end. The greatest of these 3 is virtue love. Virtue love is the result of persistent spiritual growth. A believer who abides or remains in spiritual maturity has built virtue love upon faith and upon hope.

Everything which is summarized is in view here. Virtue love can be said to be the greatest of the 3. It demonstrates the Christian life. Maximum use of the spiritual gifts and the glorification of God to the maximum.

What is the link between faith, hope and love? All 3 of these are covered by the verb μένω. They abide; they continue to live; they are permanent fixtures in the life of the believer who is positive toward doctrine.

If these believers get their acts together and build virtue love, then these problems with spiritual gifts will function as they ought. These 3 things are the focus and everything else falls into place. Tongues, the sign gift of the fifth cycle of discipline will be gone when it is no longer necessary. Faith, hope and love remain as the central focus of all of us throughout the remainder of the Church Age. What is left when the gifts cease?

1Cor. 13:13 So now faith [Bible doctrine], hope [confidence and trust in God], and love abide [continues to persist], these three; but the greatest of these is love.

So ends 1Cor. 13.

1Cor. 14 introduction:

This is a complex chapter and we must remember all of 1Cor. 1–13 to follow 1Cor. 14. Paul walked into Corinth, a hornet's nest, and in the next 10–15 years. He wanted to proclaim the Messiah, and, at first, they rejected Paul and his Messiah. He was thrown out of the synagogue there. Paul began to speak to Gentiles about the Lord Jesus Christ. He would do that throughout his entire life. Paul would rather die than not speak the gospel. Acts 18:8. Many of the Corinthians may be believing. The synagogue people would not believe him, but the Gentiles would. The Greeks were raised and saturated with humanistic philosophy and in mystery religions. There is Greek mythology was a part of their education and their religion. The religious services were something else again. These Greek believers, had this great pagan heritage to overcome after believing in Jesus Christ. All of these things were new to them. Their background was quite incredible; it was inundated with demonism and great Greek philosophy, with mythology; and worship services; and these things had a deep influence on the Greeks.

The Dianices cult, was somewhat indicative of many of them. They offered a religious experience quite different from Christianity. There was an experimental similarity. Mystery religions offered an initiation in order to save the soul. The believer is indwelt in salvation when we express faith in Jesus Christ; and they had another sort of initiation.

Torchlight gatherings in Nazi Germany. There was the pounding away of drums. In the mystery cult, there was erotic dancing as well. There was a lot of wine which flowed. This was all quite attractive to some people. They were filled with the spirits. They wanted a feeling or a rush from Christianity, as they had this with their old religion.

There were a variety of cults, and they began to be linked. The priests would excite the emotions with cymbals and drums and gongs. This is what Paul referenced in 1Cor. 13. This is witnessed to in classical literature. There are descriptions of this sort of thing. This could certainly be a demonic demonstration. It was religious deception designed to take people away from God and Bible doctrine. This confused some Corinthians. So, when they began to see the gift of tongues being used, this confused them.

So Paul walks into the middle of this. He knew exactly what was going on in Corinth. This immature believers were trying to distinguish between the spiritual gift of tongues and the cults which they came out of. Paul's background instruction is the background for the next chapter.

Many churches in American and around the world still use this gift falsely.

Lesson #934

1Cor. 14 Introduction August 5, 2009

Wednesday

When Paul first walked into Corinth in 49 A.D., most in the synagogue had no interest. They sent him along; so Paul began to evangelize the gentiles of Corinth. Paul left after 18 months and they got into almost every problem a church could get into. All of us have been, at one time or another, a Corinthian. The Greeks in the city of Corinth were saturated in humanistic philosophy. The great philosophies of the 5th century B.C. had been passed down to them. There was heathen mythology also passed down to them along with the phallic cults. That was all part of the experience of Greek life. All of this was incorporated to some degree into the Greek mystery religions, which were simply cults.

The new converts to Christianity had to overcome all of their heritage; and it still had a great influence over the immature gentile believers there. There was the worship of Dianices. Polytheism is opposed to one God and to the mystery doctrines of the Church Age. In some respects, it had a semblance, or a superficial resemblance to Christianity. Greek cults offered an initiation into a secret experience which was to project an afterlife with the gods. There is also an initiation into Christianity; and then, at salvation, we are filled with the Spirit. The new Christians began to associate with their old Greek religions. There was a ritual in which the idolator was mystically united with a false heathen god, and that uniting was a slight resemblance to Christianity.

There was plenty of demonism in this cultic worship. The demons produced counterfeits to the Christian life. From the 5th century on, it was polytheistic religion. Satan is a genius of religious counterfeiting. He is very much aware of all that God has for us. He does all that he can to bedevil us. All types of religions are his ace-trump. Other religions do not understand grace and they all have some sort of works associated with the grace of God. Greek mystery cults were a religious vehicle for Satanic activity. If Satan could confuse believers with their past, he keeps them from advancing.

There were ways that the Greeks aroused the emotions of the people; and the Nazis were similarly roused; their emotions and patriotism are all revved up. In the Greek, there was erotic dancing and huge quantities of wine were consumed. There would be drums and cymbals and gongs which were used at their services.

The worshipers would finally collapse in a state of ecstasy. Sometimes when they collapsed, they spoke in some mysterious jargon; and they were in a trance-like state. The result of all this was a blend of pseudo-ecstatic orgies; there were demonic miracles, and all of this was evidence of being united and indwelt with the spirit of the gods.

Bobby studied a lot of mythology in college as a classics major. Bobby's impression was the mythology was a cute, harmless literature which revealed ancient people's understanding of the universe. It was not harmless or benign. Many of the great diaspora of the Jews were a result of associating with these kinds of cults.

Possession by the gods was associated with extreme emotion and hysterical activity. In Christianity, the filling of the Spirit was not an experience accompanied by emotion. A believer might respond with some emotion to his salvation.

These Greeks went to the Temple for this sort of an experience. Some of the new believers expected a great feeling, a big rush. The parallel is false. This is why there was some misuse of the gift of tongues. The confusion of the ecstatic state of the mystery cults, with the spirit speaking through the acolyte as being in union with a god; and these Greeks had witnessed this many times in their heathen temples.

There was a control of the vocal cords in heathen temples by the ventriloquist demons. True tongues was evangelizing unbelievers in their own language. When the babblers in the ceremonies, he spoke in an obscure and meaningless blather, in words no one understood; from an emotional state. The speaker and the listener believed that this was a more meaningful experience. They got a feeling of great well-being. This was like a drug for them and this was also a communal activity. This unfortunately is a mistake of many Christians today. Probably no Christians in these Greek cults today; however, feeling good is a gauge for some believers as to how well-off they are spiritually.

Emotion brings with it some highs and lows. Inculcating doctrine is a steadying influence on the soul. It is a stabilizing thought process. Who has a stabilized thought process from your Christian experience and who has a fleeting experience in church. This may seem boring to some people. There seems to be no pizzazz; no excitement. "This place is dead; no one has any fun; no one gets jacked up." Some want to feel the power surging through them. They want a transcendent state which reflects the true enabling of God the Holy Spirit. In that state, the spiritual gifts are clearly seen, confirming their faith. For many, that is real Christianity.

So many times, Bobby has used 1Peter 5:7, casting all your cares upon Him because He cares for you. The fact that you do not have to work it out; that you can leave it in the hands of the Lord. You need to know the promises and the rationales behind them. When you apply those, you are executing the faith rest drill. Those who depend upon emotion for Christianity, all of those cares suddenly come crashing down upon them.

There is nothing boring about Bible doctrine. These are the very words of God. We must renovate our thinking. Without epistemological rehabilitation, you could not be further from the Christian life. We operate in the sphere of love rather than in the sphere of emotions.

Bobby spend months in 1Cor. 13, and everyone has a thrill go up their spine and up their legs, I feel it; I fell the love.

There are so many churches built upon emotion. So many mega-churches are built upon this. They cannot concentrate for 10 minutes on something which does not excite them.

You cannot evaluate your spiritual life on how you feel. We learn to have stable emotions in Berachah because we put them in the right place; they are responders to that which is true.

Bobby had a wedding. The bride grew up in Berachah Church. As he quoted 1Cor. 13, she had a tear in her eye; this was a response. She knew what it meant. It stabilized her and she expressed stable emotions. People think that when someone speaks in tongues, it is a sign of the second blessing, or a sign of maturity or God giving them a blessing because of something in their Christian life.

At the time of writing in Corinth, the gift of tongues did exist; but the emotions which they possessed was related to the cults that they once belonged to.

Emotion is fine in its place. You can respond to doctrine with your emotions because you have renovated thinking. No feelings define your spiritual life whatsoever. You ought to be able to see how the Corinthians confused the new Christian experience with their pagan lives. They saw tongues and they associated it as a way of uniting with God just as they had in their pagan religion.

The first wave seemed to be speaking in tongues, which was not taken into many churches. Then there was the next wave, the vineyard movement; and now we have the praise and worship churches. Emotion is not love; sex is not love. Love comes from your thinking. All the rest has nothing to do with the spiritual life.

There was little difference between the believers at Corinth and their pagan past. After salvation, there must be spiritual growth; not emotion. The Corinthians felt no different than they did in their mystery cults. Doctrine provides stability.

Lesson #935

1Cor. 14 Introduction August 6, 2009

Thursday

Bobby reviews the shortcomings of the Corinthians. Taking one another to court; divided into factions. Incestuous relationships. These Corinthians have the same salvation that we have and positionally, they are new creatures in Christ, although, experientially, they were the same old sinners. They were far from the sphere of love and from the characteristics of virtue love. Paul revealed to them what they should be. Even though they were what they were, this church was filled with spiritual gifts. Because of the abuses, these gifts became a curse rather than a blessing.

These Corinthians overrated the sensational gifts.

Sensational and Less Sensational Gifts

1. They used sensational gifts to assert a false authority over one another.
2. Many of those who spoke in tongues did so for personal gratification. They had a great time. "Look what I can do."
3. They elevated the gift of tongues over edifying doctrinal teaching from prophecy. That is the whole story of 1Cor. 14.
4. These Corinthians arrogantly promoted tongues as the sign of a superior spiritual life and downgraded other spiritual gifts.
5. Their worship services had deteriorated into raucous chaos.

They had more in common with the mystic Greek religions, which meant that these people were a mess. 1Cor. 14 is where it is because the misuse of gifts is the result of all this carnality. How filled with the Holy Spirit are these people if they are doing all of this?

The gift of tongues will now be contrasted with the gift of prophecy. Which is better? Prophecy or tongues? What was Paul's motive? The use of the gift of tongues was not advancing the congregation as a whole one whit. The gift of tongues was providing no spiritual growth and no church edification. Prophecy, on the other hand, edified the entire church. Prophecy edified the church members. All of the gifts were designed to edify the body of Christ. Everyone is given the manifestation of the Holy Spirit for the good of the church. A spiritual gift is useless if it does not edify the body of Christ.

Summary of the Gift of Tongues

1. The prophecy of tongues in Isa. 28, and this explains the purpose of the gift of tongues, a warning of the fifth cycle of discipline.
2. Acts 2 was a warning to the Jews of a pending discipline.
3. Tongues was abused, which began in 1Cor. 13:1.
  - a. Tongues is not necessary for salvation. 1Cor. 12:10–11
  - b. Tongues was not a sign of spirituality. It was a legitimate spiritual gift in the 1st century. Our spiritual gift is not a sign of our spirituality. Spirituality is the status of being filled with the Spirit.
  - c. Tongues should not cause other believers without the gift to think that they are inferior. They were being made to feel inferior because they did not speak in tongues.
  - d. Tongues should not cause the user to think that he is superior to other believers. We are not superior because we speak in tongues.
  - e. Paul tells us that tongues is not the greatest of spiritual gifts.
  - f. Tongues should not be confused with the baptism of God the Holy Spirit. Tongues was dependent upon the filling of the Holy Spirit for its operation. However, it is in no way the same as the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

There is great confusion about the baptism of the Holy Spirit today. Charismatics is a form of evangelicalism.

Charismatic comes from the Greek word χάρισμα and the charismatics emphasize the spiritual gifts in their lives. Confusion reigns on this point of the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

Baptism of the Holy Spirit and Charismatics

1. Charismatics do not believe that the baptism of the Holy Spirit occurs at salvation.
2. For them, it can happen after conversion; after faith alone in Christ alone. They believe this because this is what happened to the disciples on the Day of Pentecost. The believers then received the Spirit and they were empowered to speak in tongues.
3. Because of this, Spirit baptism to them becomes the gateway to the spiritual life. It is the power for ministry and service and it can be bestowed on the believer at any time after salvation. For us, the gateway is the filling of the Holy Spirit. For them, they can get this at any time after salvation.
4. In their own words, Spirit baptism is where the Holy Spirit is poured out, falls on, comes upon, anoints and/or indues the believer with power.
5. So, in the charismatic thinking, Spirit baptism becomes the same as the filling of the Holy Spirit. They use the model of Pentecost.
6. For charismatics, the baptism of the Holy Spirit, is an ongoing experience of empowerment by which the Christian life is manifested and lives.

The baptism of the Holy Spirit is one of the 39 irrevocable assets received at salvation. To distinguish us.

The Power of the Spiritual life: Us versus the Charismatics

1. The filling of the Holy Spirit is a status of the believer. We are in a state of being filled. When filled, we are in the bottom circle. It is the status of a believer whereby the Holy Spirit empowers the spiritual life.
2. Although the filling of the Holy Spirit is not felt or seen, His empowerment is an ongoing activity of the spiritual life. It is an indispensable part of the spiritual life. We must be filled. It is a status. It is a mandate. Baptism brings the empowerment to the spiritual life of the charismatic.
3. It is the filling of the Holy Spirit which is the gateway to the spiritual life. That is the distinction. It is the filling which is the empowerment; not the baptism.
4. The filling of the Holy Spirit is 2 things: it is a status which can be revoked through sin; but it is also an experience of empowerment for the spiritual life. It is not a feeling.
5. Bobby is giving us differences in Biblical interpretation. He is not denigrating charismatics or saying they are horrible people. This is the background so that we can understand where the misuse of spiritual gifts comes in. The baptism of the Holy Spirit is, in no sense, an experience or an empowerment. 1Cor. 12:13. In the charismatic movement, it is.

6. The baptism of the Holy Spirit cannot be revoked like the filling of the Holy Spirit. In the older charismatic movement, you could be baptized more than once. And some thought you were baptized each time you spoke in tongues.
7. Baptism of the Holy Spirit is not the function of a spiritual gift.
8. Baptism and the bestowal of a spiritual gift are two separate absolutes of the 39 attributes given to us at salvation.
9. They are both fixed benefits of salvation. You have got them and you got them at the moment of faith alone in Christ alone; but they are not part of the spiritual life per se. The baptism is related to being united to Jesus Christ. We share everything that He is and have everything which He has. It is not empowerment.
10. The baptism of the Holy Spirit is an identification. All baptisms are identifications. Spirit baptism is being identified with Jesus Christ. It enters us into union with Christ. That is a fixed, irrevocable benefit of the grace of God because of faith alone in Christ alone.
11. The baptism places us into the body of Christ; we become part of the body of Christ; we become a new creation in Christ. This is a new status, not the spiritual life. There is a status and there is a progress.
12. We are positionally sanctified by the baptism of the Holy Spirit. This is called positional truth.
13. Rom. 6:3–5 describes positional truth. We have a position; we are identified with Christ in His death, His burial and His resurrection.

Now let's look at the charismatic distinction.

The Charismatic Distinction

1. Most believers in the charismatic movement see tongues as directly connect to the baptism of the Holy Spirit.
2. Both baptism and tongues are inextricably connected with the power of the Holy Spirit, which we know as the filling of the Holy Spirit.
3. For them, tongues has become the sign of the empowerment of the Holy Spirit. When they see tongues spoken, this is the visual manifestation of God the Holy Spirit. The problem is, tongues no longer exists. Unfortunately, we cannot see a visible manifestation of God the Holy Spirit in the gift of tongues.
4. For charismatics, Spirit baptism is more than being united with Christ; it is access to the power for the spiritual life.
5. Therefore, they mix the positional (Spirit baptism) with the experiential (which is the power for the spiritual life). There is a mixing here of these and tongues; although they are all separate.
6. So the baptism, the filling of the Holy Spirit and tongues are all blended together by charismatics. They are part and parcel of one another and all a part of the spiritual life. This is false spirituality.

What is True?

1. It is true that we are baptized at the moment of salvation. No one is left out.
2. However, baptism is positional; the other two are experiential. Spirit baptism is a status.
3. These 3 are all different in their purposes: baptism places us in union with Christ; the filling of the Holy Spirit empowers the spiritual life; these two are not connected in the experiential realm. In that day, tongues as a spiritual gift was empowered by God the Holy Spirit, but it was not empowered by baptism of the Holy Spirit.
4. There was a connection on that first day and there was a special reason why this happened after they were all believers. In one sense they are right; however, we are concerned with the pattern for today.
5. Baptism, empowerment, and the spiritual gift are not connected in the same way.
6. Baptism, the power of the Holy Spirit and speaking in tongues and the filling of the Holy Spirit are not part and parcel of each other, as taught by charismatics.
7. The baptism of the Holy Spirit is once for all time. The filling of the Holy Spirit continues intermittently as the empowerment of the spiritual life. Tongues was a spiritual gift which was being empowered at one time.
8. The baptism of a fixed benefit for us. The filling of the Holy Spirit is given to us at the moment of salvation and for the empowerment of the spiritual life. Tongues, during the time of Paul, was a spiritual gift which was being empowered by the Holy Spirit. However, the baptism of the Holy Spirit was connected to these things on the day of Pentecost.

Bobby wants us to get this continuity. The charismatic thinking came from passages in the Bible, but wrongly interpreted. What happened to the disciples at Pentecost has become the pattern for charismatics today. So, the connection is baptized, then they were empowered, and then they spoke in tongues. That is the pattern. That is the Pentecost pattern. This is why they are called Pentecostals.

At Pentecost the disciples received the Holy Spirit and they spoke in tongues. The disciples had already believed in Jesus Christ, many years before. John, James and all the disciples; and this happened to them. These were not unbelievers. This was a sometime after salvation that they received the Holy Spirit and they spoke in tongues. What happened to the disciples was a later work of God the Holy Spirit after regeneration. That is all true. However, that was a unique moment in history; and there was a change in dispensation. The disciples received the Holy Spirit at a different time after salvation; because, up to that moment, the Holy Spirit had not yet been given, because Christ had not yet been glorified. The giving of the Holy Spirit indicated that the Church Age had begun. The sign was the empowerment of the Holy Spirit and speaking in tongues. But that was 2000 years ago. What happens today is not parallel to what happened on the first day of the Church Age. The charismatic movement has attempted to duplicate that first day.

This chapter is relevant to us, even though these gifts herein described are no longer extent. The misuse of tongues present in certain charismatic churches today has a familiar ring with Corinth. This is true throughout the entire world.

The regulation of tongues in 1Cor. 14 has its application in this time period.

Lesson #937

1Cor. 14:1–3 August 9, 2009

Sunday 2

Bobby is going to use the charismatic movement and their theology in order to make some points, and to see how 1Cor. 14 ought to be interpreted. They do a piss-poor job of interpreting it. Most congregations have been permeated by this movement, and missionaries as well. Tons of charismatics on the mission fields and in the prison ministry.

The charismatic movement is huge and it is more frequently called the charismatic renewal movement today. Its goal is to get back to the basics, essentially, which is a worthy goal.

Charismatic comes from the Greek work χαρισμα, which means gift. The gifts are the heart of their movement. They focus in on the gift of tongues. The manifestations carry great emotional appeal. Therefore, the importance to us between the edification of prophecy as over and against the misuse of tongues. He will promote prophecy and regulate tongues. The absolute application of edification to the church today.

Today the theology of the charismatic movement centers on the baptism of the Holy Spirit after salvation. It is an endowment of power after salvation. Speaking in tongues is the initial evidence. This is the same pattern as the day of Pentecost of 30 A.D. Spirit baptism that day, then they were empowered, and then they spoke in tongues; and there is no argument about this order. So the charismatics are attempting to renew this day of Pentecost in modern church.

There was an unusual watch night service in Bethany Bible institute in Topeka, KS. Not unlike our New Year's service getting us ready to roll for the next year. Charles Parham had instructed his students that the power to evangelize the world would occur after awhile. He was speaking to believers and he asserted that this gift would be accompanied by speaking in tongues at Pentecost. This was the beginning of the Pentecostal movement. Bob used to call it something else, but that offended too many people.

The charismatics are motivated and they go out to the world. As Midnight approached on that first evening of the 19th century, and one woman was emotionally charge, and she asked Charles to pray for her to get the Holy Ghost. She began to speak unintelligibly, and everyone assumed that this began the Pentecostal movement which spread throughout the world.

It does not take but more than one spark in one person to begin something like this. Bible doctrine also has that power. What happened that night could happen anywhere. This can occur and there can be a great revival and sometimes a great apostasy.

Since that moment, this movement has gone in several different directions, but there has always been some common factors.

There is always a speaking in tongues and always a reception of the Holy Spirit after salvation. You may ask, what is wrong with vitality in the church. What is wrong with that? The power and vitality of the first century church does not come through the spectacular. It still exists. It exists in the form of the filling of the Holy Spirit and the exercise of the spiritual gifts which are current. It all depends upon what Bible doctrine means to you and what it brings to you.

There is nothing more dynamic and more vital than the spiritual life as lived by us, and it does not require us to speak in tongues. God will not leave us in the lurch after the 1st century. People dancing in the aisles of a church does not add vitality to the church. Emotion goes up and then it comes down. You need a straight line of doctrine in the soul. You are then responding to something which is correct.

The filling of the Holy Spirit does not carry the emotional baggage that charismatics assign to it. You do not need a visible manifestation of power in order to believe it.

Furthermore, the pattern of Pentecost is not legitimate today. It was a transitional day, going from the Age of Israel, the Age of the Hypostatic Union to the Church Age. Then, the baptism of the Holy Spirit, the empowering of the Holy Spirit, and tongues were all indications of the beginning of the Church Age. It was a unique day. 1) The disciples received the Holy Spirit after salvation. They were already saved. They had walked the dusty roads of the ancient world with Jesus Christ. The Holy Spirit had not been given to all believers at any time before Pentecost. These were the harbingers of the new age. This way, the world could see that something new was upon them. Pentecost began an indwelling of Jesus Christ.

Where do charismatics go wrong? Their understanding of God the Holy Spirit baptism is the problem.

Charismatic Confusion about the Baptism of the Holy Spirit

1. Baptism of the Holy Spirit for the charismatic is an ongoing experience of empowerment, by which the Christian life is manifested and lived. To them, there is an all encompassing aspect.
2. So Spirit baptism is access to the power of the spiritual life.
3. Tongues is the sign of this empowerment.

However, it is clear from Scripture that baptism is not an empowerment.

True Spirit baptism

1. Spirit baptism puts us into union with Christ, and it is a one-time event.

2. This union with Christ is a state-of-being; it is not an experience. We share everything that He is and He has. It is a position which we hold, a position which will be fulfilled at a later time.
3. Spirit baptism is a fixed benefit of salvation. So, it is a benefit for our lives.
4. This benefit is given one time at the moment of faith alone in Christ alone.
5. Spirit baptism is not dynamic as is the empowerment of the spiritual life.
6. Baptism and Spirit baptism and empowerment are separate occurrences with different purposes. At Pentecost, the baptism of the Holy Spirit appears to be closely connected with Spirit empowerment. Insofar as time is considered, these things occur simultaneously.
7. Baptism and Spirit empowerment are not intimately connected as the gateway to the spiritual life. It can easily be mistaken to be that way. Spirit baptism empowers, manifested by tongues, indicating of vibrant spiritual life.
8. Only the filling of the Holy Spirit when the Spirit was originally received, it was the filling which was the empowerment for the disciples.

Today, whenever we believe in Jesus Christ, we receive God the Holy Spirit. For charismatics, tongues is the Biblical manifestation of Spirit baptism and empowerment. Also, tongues, although visible to charismatics, is no longer in existence. So, what happened in Topeka, KS? Hence the charismatic connection of Spirit baptism and empowerment and tongues is a false connection. The filling of the Holy Spirit is dynamic; baptism of the Spirit is not dynamic; it is a one-time occurrence for every believer.

God the Holy Spirit does not select some believers for Spirit baptism and leave the others behind. However, we all have the baptism of the Spirit and our own spiritual gift or gifts.

Tongues no longer exists, so it can no longer be a sign of baptism or of the power of the Holy Spirit.

An Outline of 1Cor. 14

1. Vv. 1–25 inferiority of tongues to prophecy. Bobby will show the superiority of Bible doctrine to the gift of tongues today.
2. Paul gives the regulation of tongues. Vv. 26–33. “You guys do not even know how to use the gift of tongue and are continually misusing it and misapplying your gift.”
3. Vv. 34–36 a side trip to regulations of women in the worship service.
4. Conclusion in vv. 36–40 and the response to doctrine.

Value edification of Bible doctrine above everything else. That is why these people are the desire the gift of prophecy. Those who speak tongues all the time, Paul immediately sets the priority: Bible doctrine.

1Cor. 14:1 Pursue [virtue] love, and earnestly desire the spiritual gifts, especially that you may prophesy.

V. 2 is a bit of sarcasm. No one knows what you are saying, so the only person you are speaking to is God.

1Cor. 14:2 For one who speaks in a tongue speaks not to men but to God; for no one understands him, but he utters mysteries in the Spirit.

When someone prophesies, there is edification, encouragement and consolation. Everyone needs Bible doctrine. Tongues is secondary, even during the time when this was a legitimate gift.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to people for their upbuilding and encouragement and consolation.

Lesson #938

1Cor. 14:1–3 August 12, 2009

Wednesday

A lady approach Bobby and she had been from a charismatic church. While there, she had been made to feel very inferior because she did not have the spiritual gift of tongues. She earnestly desired it. However, she could not gin up the gift of tongues. She was thankful to find out that she now understood the gift of tongues.

The final verse of 1Cor. 13 should have been, Pursue virtue love. The Holy Spirit sovereignly bestows gifts, so that we do not individually pray to get a particular gift. I think this was meant to be a transitional phrase, as it matches the other imperative which follows and is tied together with it with a conjunction.

Paul spent one entire chapter speaking about the importance of virtue love. Mystery doctrine was incomplete and needed to be revealed, and it was the gift of prophecy which revealed this. Since Paul is repeating this, Bobby must repeat it as well.

This church was trying to produce all of these gifts. In the Corinthian church, if you did not have a certain gift, you were made to feel inferior. Paul stresses the issue and priority of the spiritual life.

This is a reproof; Paul is correcting their misunderstanding.

Paul's 3 Main Points

1. The gift of tongues was not primarily given to benefit believers. It was given for the benefit of unbelievers primarily. It never departed from this. There was a use of it at the church at Corinth. The gift of tongues was first a sign of the fifth cycle of discipline. The purpose was to give the gospel to unbelieving Jews or to anyone else who was listening in their own language. On the Day of Pentecost, the disciples began to speak in all of these various languages. The Holy Spirit utilized their vocal cords to evangelize these Jews all at the same time. There was not church when tongues were first spoken. What they did here was the gospel in their own language. The gift of tongues was very apparent in the church of Corinth because they were in a center of commerce. Tongues was not designed for Bible class or for a worship class where edification from Bible teaching was the focus. Some take tongues to be private personal prayer. One gift speaks to God and one speaks to others. A person who speaks in tongues edifies only himself; prophecy edifies all believers. Tongues was not an edification gift, making it secondary to prophecy. The Corinthians thought that this was the primary gift.

2. The Corinthians already knew that tongues would cease. It was covered in v. 8. Bobby's intention was to convince us that the gift of tongues was gone. Don't make tongues the priority. Do not misuse the legitimate gift of tongues during the time it existed.
3. Paul did not emphasize speaking in tongues in this chapter even though it was a valid gift at that time. It was a great gift and a critical gift. Paul wrote this in 56 A.D. and the gift of tongues would end at 70 A.D. The ineffectiveness of tongues would be contrasted with the effectiveness of prophecy. Prophecy was designed for spiritual growth.

These people should have grown up with the mystery doctrine. He wants to get them not to give up the gift of tongues, but to grow up and use it properly. When they grew up, tongues could be used correctly. Even if tongues existed today, the way it is used ought to be superceded by the teaching of the Word of God. The churches which speak in tongues today misuse it today.

There are things that we need to know about Tongues

1. In this context, tongues means to speak in a foreign language. Some think that tongues is some sort of angelic language. In this context, Paul is speaking of foreign human languages. It was used to communicate the gospel to unbelievers.
2. The speaker of tongues was not in an ecstatic state out of control of his own faculties or in a trance. In the Greek mystery cults, the initiates would fall to the ground and speak in unintelligible language and they would be in a trance. The Holy Spirit does not make a spectacle of such a believer. A believer who spoke in tongues was rational, not out of control. This was not done for the entertainment of the rest of the church or to rev up the church.
3. The believer with the gift could be silent. He had that ability. He was not compelled to speak. He could pick his spots. The gift of tongues was not to be used for one's own purposes. Bobby will clarify that. When it was valid, it must be interpreted in the church or it is nothing more than speaking to God. Otherwise no one understands it. Paul was the master of sarcasm and he can get sarcasm across. "If you are speaking in tongues and no one knows what you are saying, then you are speaking to God only."
4. What a believer says using tongues had to be intelligible or able to be interpreted by others. There was a special gift for this. The tongues languages had to correspond to human languages. The disciples did not speak in angelic languages to all of Jerusalem. A foreign language is worthless unless it is understood by the hearer. There was a very specific use for the gift of tongues. It was not simply an exercise of encouragement. Today, this is how tongues is used today. What is important is edification. Grow to spiritual maturity.

The Holy Spirit works in us whether His power is visibly manifested or not. Otherwise, those without the gift would be 2nd class citizens. That was this lady's problem because of the way others made her feel at this church. God the Holy Spirit works in all of us. Faith is the conviction of things not seen. Those who must see a visible manifestation of God working are of little faith. Gideon wanted to have God prove to him that the Holy Spirit was working in him. Our encouragement does not come from visible demonstrations but by faith in Bible doctrine. We will become certain of His presence and His power. Never think that the Holy Spirit works more in one person than another. He accomplishes exactly what He needs to accomplish in order to fulfill the plan of God. No other subject on earth is like this. We have the Holy Spirit to teach us and He also guides us. He brings to mind those things which we need in the spiritual life. Have you been in an adverse situation and you are at a loss, and suddenly a doctrine which is pertinent comes into your mind, and you relax? The Holy Spirit reminds us of these things.

Bobby is convinced in every way of the Presence of God. He is an integral part of our spiritual life. We do not have to see Him work or prove to ourselves that He is working. God's presence is real and things will come together. Bobby got to Berachah Church based on the plan of God. He has seen God work, but Bobby has not done anything. It has become real as he sees his life unfold.

1Cor. 13 is the spiritual life. Paul picks right up where he left off in chapters 12 and 13. Do not forget the importance of ἀγαπή. Bob went back and did Eph. 1 3 times.

Paul has taught 3 things

1. All of the amazing spiritual gifts bestowed by God the Holy Spirit were authentic objects of desire for believers.
2. These gifts were of different degrees of importance for the whole church.
3. Not that any one believer with one gift was more important to the Lord than another believer.
4. Several gifts are more important to edify the entire body. Tongues was important but prophecy even more so.

1Cor. 14:1 Pursue [virtue] love, and earnestly desire the spiritual gifts, especially that you may prophesy.

1Cor. 14:2 For one who speaks in a tongue speaks not to men but to God; for no one understands him, but he utters mysteries in the Spirit.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to people for their up-building and encouragement and consolation.

Bobby's essay question: what is Paul's intent in moving from 1Cor. 13 to 1Cor. 14?

A Couple Good Answers to Bobby's Question

1. In the pre-canon Church Age, tongues is important, but prophecy is more important and it is linked to love. This prophecy was crucial for spiritual growth and without it, believers could not develop virtue love. All of this is all tied together. This explains why we are moving from virtue love to tongues and prophecy; and Church Age doctrine was taught via the gift of prophecy.
2. There was a misuse and misunderstanding about spiritual gifts; and people misused it and it was ineffective for that reason. Its purpose was to evangelize those who did not speak Greek.
3. The entire church suffered when one gift malfunctioned. Paul first wanted to correct the misuse of the gift of tongues, which required the use of virtue love.
4. Paul uses the ineffectiveness of tongues to communicate the priorities of the Christian life. "I will use your misuse of tongues and then show you the priorities of the spiritual life." All believers could grow through prophecy at this particular time.

This is a perfect transition from virtue love into the use and misuse of two gifts.

Paul looks back to 1Cor. 13, and he says, "Do not forget the importance of ἀγαπή." He exhorts the Corinthians and all of us. Present active imperative of διωδω = to run after, to strive after, to aspire. This is an imperative of entreaty. Underneath it all is the iron which Paul usually has in his imperatives. Paul knows the Corinthians are not pursuing virtue love at all but their own agenda. There is a big power play going on here.

Think about the current debate on health care. It is not about health care; it is all about power. Who is going to control what? And a lot of people know this. This is what was occurring in Corinth. It was all about power.

The idea is, do not be diverted; do not be discouraged; pursue after it. So, how do you pursue virtue love? You metabolize doctrine to inculcate the mind of Christ. This is how it begins. Spiritual growth and spiritual advance and acquiring reciprocal love for God. Then develop the characteristics of virtue love. This is what Paul is entreating all believers to strive for. That is their and our obligation. Fulfill it; pursue it.

He uses another imperative of entreaty. This is similar to 1Cor. 12:29 or so.

Paul uses an adversative conjunction: however, yet, but, on the other hand. This is δε.

The idea is to do both here; you can do something more than virtue love. Pursue virtue love; but, on the other hand, desire spiritual gifts. Pursue it and desire it. Do both. Do not neglect either. This is another two-column advance. We advance in doctrine and we advance in reciprocal love. Virtue love is directed toward people and personal love is directed toward a few.

Advance in the sphere of love. As you grow and pursue love, become motivated to serve and to produce divine good.

Gary's note: These are 2nd person, masculine plural verbs. These are orders directed toward the entire church. The church as a whole is supposed to desire the better gifts, which means these gifts will be given and they will function in the church. The church as a whole should pursue after virtue love and the church, as a whole, should desire the function of spiritual gifts.

In fact, spiritual gifts here is a metonymy for the proper function of spiritual gifts in the congregation.

Paul is imploring them to do both.

What is this Imploring?

1. Pursue love as the greatest good.
2. On the other hand, do not forget the spiritual gifts as you pursue love.
3. Love is critical but the function of one's spiritual gift is necessary.
4. Both love and spiritual gifts are part of the spiritual life package.
5. Paul is giving here a perspective of spiritual gifts along with love.
6. Just because virtue love is so important (it is important), that does not mean that spiritual gifts are not important.

The verb is ζηλω and this is the second half of v. 1. This means to have a desire to possess. Desire to possess the greater gifts is stated back in 1Cor. 12:31. What do you mean, desire what I already have?

Bobby Explains

1. It is vitally necessary for all gifts to function in the body of Christ. You ought to desire to function in the body.
2. The body of Christ lacks when all of the spiritual gifts are not functioning.
3. Remember, virtue love is the individual pursuit of every believer. We ought to all desire to have the characteristics of virtue love.
4. The spiritual gifts are good for the whole body, so they are desirable.
5. Virtue love is an individual pursuit. If you develop the characteristics of virtue love, then, in operation of your spiritual gift, you will be of great benefit to the rest of the church.

The idiomatic Greek comparative. A comparative formula phrase.  $\text{Μεν δε}$  which means but more, more; rather. It is more in the sense of a greater emphasis. One gift is more desirable than another. Particularly desire this one gift: desire what this gift does for you. Prophecy has this place in the body of Christ which is critical. Prophecy is more important for the growth of the entire body, but both gifts are important.

The final phrase is also a 2nd person plural.

Their desire is not just to have the gift, but to utilize the gift. Your spiritual growth is all about being properly taught. The whole spiritual life is wrapped up in this one gift.

This does not mean that everyone will have this gift simply because they desire it. No amount of effort of wishing will acquire this gift. People pray for whatever gift and that is meaningless.

The same is true for the gift of pastor-teacher. It may look glamorous and exhilarating to have all eyes on you. There are all kinds of pressures and problems which go with being a pastor-teacher. It engenders all kinds of opposition.

Bobby has no idea what the criteria is for God giving this or that gift to an individual. It could be that the Holy Spirit knows us very well, and He gives us a gift commensurate with our innate abilities. This is how, in any case, that we serve the Lord and the body of believers.

Desire the one with the gift for maximum spiritual growth. In prophecy, there is so much more benefit to the church than the gift of tongues.

Bobby will present this as if the gift of prophecy is in effect today, as the gift of tongues. But the need for Bible teaching will not cease. The pastor-teacher has replaced the prophet as the primary communicator of Bible doctrine.

People showed up at Berachah and it was exactly what they were looking for. This happened over and over again.

Tongues then was for the spread of the gospel to those who did not understand the language that the gospel was given in (Greek and Aramaic).

Even without the gift of evangelism, we have the responsibility to witness within our circle of contacts.

1Cor. 14:1 Pursue [virtue] love, and earnestly desire the spiritual gifts, especially that you may prophesy.

Bobby reads the next two verses with some explanation.

1Cor. 14:2 For one who speaks in a tongue speaks not to men but to God; for no one understands him, but he utters mysteries in the Spirit.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to people for their up-building and encouragement and consolation.

Lesson #940

1Cor. 14:1 August 16, 2009

Sunday 1

Bobby announces that R. B. Thieme Jr. will pass from death to life this week.

Paul appeals for us to operate in a more excellent way. To pay attention to the previous chapter about love.

For 53 years, we have received information on the sphere of love. As we advance to spiritual maturity, we acquire reciprocal love; the two-column advance; the advance to the high ground of maturity. In the process of doing this, we develop virtue love. The characteristics have already been covered. The tears Bobby sees in the auditorium are from virtue love are those of appreciation and gratitude.

This is the life which we have been informed of for so long. Bobby sees trying the first part of v. 1a to the previous chapter. I see it as a transitional verse. At 18 years old, Bob earnestly desired a spiritual gift. Along with the characteristics of virtue love, desire the best spiritual gifts. Do not forget the spiritual gift as you pursue virtue love. Virtue love is critical for all of us. It is critical for our advance. We advance in reciprocal love and doctrine. Virtue love and spiritual gifts are both part of our spiritual life in Christ.

We develop virtue love characteristic to apply in our associations with other people. We become motivated to serve the whole body of Christ with our spiritual gift. Spiritual gifts are designed to serve the whole body of Christ.

Paul is giving a perspective on spiritual gifts as well as on love. Spiritual gifts are given at the moment of salvation just as the Holy Spirit wills. He distributes spiritual gifts just as He wills.

This does not mean that we ought to long for or pray for a particular spiritual gift. It is too late. We get this at salvation. There is no need to desire a particular gift. At 18 years old, Bob received his spiritual gift.

Here, Paul is saying, acquire the motivation to function in your gift and to grow to use it.

This is a mandate directed to the Corinthians as a whole. They, as a group, are to desire the spiritual gifts in their church, which means the function of these spiritual gifts.

We ought not to desire to possess the gift, but to desire its operation in the church by the already gifted believer who is prepared. The legacy of R. B. Thieme Jr. is the 11,000 hours of teaching. To whom much is given, much is expected. We are well-equipped as the Berachah brigade.

1Cor. 14:1 Pursue [virtue] love, and earnestly desire the spiritual gifts, especially that you may prophesy.

Both of these gifts are temporary and Paul compares them. They were spectacular gifts. Today, many people want to see these gifts in operation; they are moved by the emotion or the spectacular use of the gift.

Tongues were being misused, and the correction for the misuse of the gift of tongues is the function of the gift of prophecy and virtue love.

Many of us have been motivated by the love for R. B. Thieme Jr., and this means we ought to pick up the flag and carry it on to the high ground.

Consolation and exhortation is what happens with the gift of prophecy. Paul first addresses the gifted believer, the one who legitimately speaks with the gift of tongues. The Holy Spirit controls the vocal cords and these words are intelligible to the one who speaks that particular language. When this gift was in operation, the tongues-speaker was fulfilling a particular purpose.

The Day of Pentecost

1. Those who understood the languages spoken on the Day of Pentecost were strangers to Jerusalem. They had come for their worship of the true God. They got to hear the gospel of Jesus Christ in their own language, as they did not speak Aramaic.
2. The locals in this area did not understand what was being spoken to the out-of-towners. They thought they were drunk.
3. The locals did not speak those foreign languages. The languages they were hearing meant nothing to them.
4. Tongues was also a visual and auditory manifestation of the beginning of the Church Age.
5. Only the strangers from distant lands understood the message. The same was true for tongues in Corinth. Nothing had changed.

How Did It Change?

1. Tongues was for those who came to Corinth as traders or visitors.
2. Tongues was not primarily for edification in the local church.
3. Even though tongues was not for education, these new believers who heard the gospel in tongues needed some doctrine after salvation. Rick Hughes gives the kids first the gospel and then some doctrine. Rebound, faith rest, something which they can take with them, until someone with the gift of prophecy could teach them.

4. Tongues could be legitimately used in that way, inside and outside the church. For evangelism and for some basic doctrine.
5. This would only be under very careful regulations. Tongues in the church was useless to those who did not speak the language.
6. Paul says that the languages are not understood by those who do not speak these languages.

Bob spoke in an unusual vocabulary; and people were confused because it sounded like a foreign language. As we advanced, we understood these words. But if you do not understand the language, it has no meaning for you. Bob would be the first to tell you, "I am nothing; it is his teaching which is something."

1Cor. 14:2 For one who speaks in a tongue speaks not to men but to God; for no one understands him, but he utters mysteries in the Spirit.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to people for their up-building and encouragement and consolation.

Lesson #941

1Cor. 14:3 August 16, 2009

Sunday 2

The hospice person says she sees Bob as living a week, although Bobby thinks he is cantankerous enough to live another years.

Bob loved Pauline sarcasm. For one who speaks in a tongue speaks not to men but to God; God the Holy Spirit is speaking through this person; God is doing this. So that is sarcasm. These are gifts of communication, but there were different purposes. When someone stood up to speak in tongues, God's purpose was being fulfilled. Unbelievers who might be in that church heard the gospel spoken to them in their own language. But tongues do nothing for those who hear them but do not understand. So, if no one there knows the language, no one but God understands what is being said. The gifted believer is speaking for his own enjoyment and his own delight; but not to the congregation. Such a believer is really speaking to himself.

No one worships God while making an issue of himself. You cannot worship God while making an issue of yourself. You must focus on God; not on yourself. If, during Communion you are thinking about Christology, then you are functioning as you ought to be; but if you are thinking about yourself, then you are not worshipping God.

Charismatics today, a movement in Christianity today, are sometimes called holy rollers, a derogatory term; and Bobby will not use that term, as they deserve some respect, as they are believers. Charismatics take this verse to indicate some sort of private worship between themselves and God; a personal worship by speaking to God in a different language; speaking to God in prayer. They justify their language as being not understood. Charismatics today fall into the same trap as the Corinthian believers. In the charismatic movement, tongues takes on the personal/praise/prayer function. However, you do not have to speak in tongues to speak to God. If you are in fellowship in any physical position, God hears you. However, they think, "If I pray in tongues, I must be a special person" and they cannot wait to speak out loud in church. A person's prayer is just as potent. The bonus for the charismatic is to do this in a group. This gives them further assurance that God is present with us and in us. However, the Bible promises us and makes it clear that we are empowered for everything. Charismatics want to see this and it makes them think that God the Holy Spirit is working. You do not need a visible manifestation. Heb. 11:1. The problem with all of this is, in Corinth, not everyone can praise God in tongues. This simply sets up one believer as being greater than another. That sets up a huge competition between believers.

Sometimes charismatics call this new language an angelic language, when it is not understood by others. Such a language is not understood except by God and angels. What is the point of speaking in an angelic language? No one here has heard an angelic language before. The gift of speaking in tongues has been researched and listened to, and it is an unknown human language. It is not worship; it becomes a non-cognitive exercise. There is no edification; not even for the speaker.

There is no edification today in a charismatic church, even for the speaker. It is called edification for the speaker even though there is no edification. These people think the Holy Spirit is giving this manifestation in order to bolster our faith. The problem in charismatic churches. There is no manifestation of the grace apparatus for perception. This is just a desire on the part of charismatics for a personal relationship with God other than a renovation of their minds.

In some charismatic churches, tongues has fallen out of favor and some even understand that this church no longer exists in the Church Age. Yet, they replace tongues with an equally false doctrine: a new wave of charismatic. A praise and worship movement; and it occurs with or without tongues. You get a visible manifestation but without tongues. Tongues and healing have been shown to be fake and phoney and very divisive. They do not claim a specific gift but a general mode of worship.

What happens in these churches which keeps them from growing is, this praise and worship movement. They promise a fresh and dynamic approach, which is a style of worship, but it is not about content. It is not about doctrine. It is about what you do, with or without tongues.

Some have come out of this movement and realize that there is no edification which takes place. By and large, there is no teaching of doctrine. It is all style and form, but without substance.

Charismatic services include an upbeat tempo. There would be extended periods of congregational worship and singing; and little or no break in the flow of music. This is a sure way to stir up emotions. Short, memorable simple tunes and catchy melodies. They dislike the stuffy old hymns which are sung in Berachah Church. These stuffy hymns require knowing some doctrine in order to understand and appreciate them. The praise and worship movement is just about the music. It is raising the emotions like a rock band. There is clapping, raising hands, and other sorts of physical movement.

This does have mass appeal. It attracts young people, and there might be many similarities between what young people hear on the radio. They get a visual and auditory stimulus. It is hard for this generation to concentrate on anything.

If Bobby decides what his worship and praise is, then who is leading whom? It turns into total subjectivity; there is no thought in their worship. How can you have true praise and worship without thought? Without doctrine, you cannot praise and worship God.

Most telling in this movement is the lack of the inculcation of doctrine. This means that there is an entertaining church service, but not one of any real doctrinal content and no edification of the body.

What occurred in Corinth is the same problem as what we have today. Jim Meyers gave a report on how this mode of worship in Zambia has weakened this nation. Zambia's constitution makes them a Christian nation. However, there is no doctrine in this Christian nation. There is no edification; only ignorance of doctrine. There is plenty of emotionalism. But there is great hunger for God's Word; and they get no content.

Even charismatics who object, still think that the worshipers will have greater emotion and animation. Do not connect the Holy Spirit with great emotion. There is no visible manifestation of the working of God the Holy Spirit in Berachah from Bobby's standpoint; but Bobby has heard doctrine and he has responded with emotion. He is responding to the doctrine which he knows.

There was an emotional showing in the previous service; but there was no dancing and yelling of praise the Lord. Berachah Church is not about style and dancing; it is all about content and not style. Those who have doctrine in your soul are ready for anything. You can easily hit bottom when dealing with emotion only; and it is somewhat humorous.

Services which proceed without an agenda is not the way to go. Berachah Church has a very well-ordered service.

There is an order in Berachah Church; but this often does not occur in a charismatic group, which can go in any direction, and it can degenerate into a confused mob. That is a substitute for doctrine. Emotion and movement and music all replace doctrine. The vineyard movement is another wave.

Tongues is not private worship; it must include edification. This is the mission of the church; but this was not true in Corinth.

Worship of God is done in Spirit and in truth. Truth must be present for there to be worship. Emotion and locomotion is not worship, even though it may feel like it. You can be sick, ill, and in adverse circumstances. Can't ill believers in a hospital worship God without feeling good? Worship is what is in the soul; it is not something you say associated with your emotions and physical movement. Emotions are meaningful only as a response to what is in your soul.

Emotional outbursts are entirely unnecessary. In the Communion service, concentration is what ought to be what is foremost. There should be a soul response; gratitude does not need a physical manifestation in order to be valid. It is the understanding in the soul which is valid.

Bobby had the time to be alone with Bob for awhile. He expressed appreciation to him as a son and as a congregant. Bobby appreciated what Bob did for him. There was a soul response of appreciation and gratitude for all Bob has done for us. There is no jumping around.

1Cor. 14:2 For one who speaks in a tongue speaks not to men but to God; for no one understands him, but he utters mysteries in the Spirit.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to people for their up-building and encouragement and consolation.

Gla sings.

Joe Griffin studied under Thieme for 25 years and is pasturing in Missouri. His voice and personality caught your attention; but the content of his teaching is what we grew from. His pulpit persona demonstrates just how seriously R. B. Thieme Jr. took his pastorate. His study schedule was rigorous and his teaching schedule was grueling.

Some were taken aback. Bob may not have been their right pastor; and others may have not have been interested in the Word of God.

His off-pulpit persona was quite different.

Sorrow is a human emotion by those left behind. The realization that there will never again be a time of earthly fellowship. Betty Thieme provided a background so that Bob could study and teach.

Bob was proud to pass along the colors to Bobby. The Death Shadow Valley is what David wrote about, which might last for a second or for years. Without doctrine, there is fear, dread and doubt associated with death. The prepared believer has the ability to face and enjoy death. He can move forward with tranquility of soul. Alzheimer's robbed Bob of his memories, but never of his love for the Word. Worship the Lord with super-abundance of happiness. True happiness is an inner resource and it is the unique possession of the mature believer wherein he shares the happiness of God.

Until the late 19th century, there was a confusion as to the type of Greek the New Testament was written in. Some thought it to be a special holy language; later it was thought to be a classical Greek; however, it was shown that this was the common Greek. L. S. Chafer realized the importance of this and he founded a seminary which emphasized the Hebrew and the Koine Greek. Chafer challenged his students to take what he had learned and to build upon that. Bob met this challenge more than any other student and set the standard for others to follow.

We must all go beyond the paying of respects and we need to make Bible doctrine priority 1.

Evangelist Rick Hughes. Colonel Thieme is not dead; but he is alive and well, face to face with his Lord and Savior. He is in an interim body and we will see him again at the exit-resurrection. We want to honor the colonel and we are here because of the faithfulness of Jesus Christ, and He purchased us, allowing us to have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ. He provided our salvation and the means by which we may grow. It is to your advantage that I go away, so that the Helper can come to you. This refers to the Holy Spirit, our divine Advocate and our empowerment. It is not the man; it is the message. This message was delivered in the power of the Holy Spirit. That love which provided the Holy Spirit for us and all of the assets in order to reach the high ground. The Holy Spirit which led us to this ministry. This Holy Spirit caused him to study hour upon hour; that Spirit which brought to him the concept of rebound.

Have you ever wondered, what set Thieme apart from other men? It was the one thing which he possessed which set him apart. Nor was it his narrative ability. What drove him to study and to sacrifice any free time for himself, was his passion. He has passion for us and passion for the Word of God. His volitional enthusiasm for the Word of God was genuine and real. He would often be driven well into the night with one of his elkhounds at his feet. That starter fluid which drove Bob was his love for his congregation. His virtue love motivation made him passionate for the truth. Greater love has no man than one who lays down his life for his friends. This is the motivation which Bob had. He could have traveled and saw the grandest sights and dined in the grandest restaurants, but he spent day after day in a small study, digging into his wonderful books, making us rich in the treasure of the Word of God. We never thought we would have the peace in our lives, but we learned to exploit the riches of the grace of God. He taught us how to use the faith rest drill, how to avoid the pitfalls for emotionalism, and how to use the 10 problem solving devices. It is the truth which causes us to represent Christ in our lives today.

Could you lay aside all distractions in your life, all the details of life in order to pursue the truth of God? He loved God and His Word and he wanted us to have this love-driven passion for God's Word in his soul.

You cannot take someone to where you have not been yourself. He planted the colors in Eph. 3:19. The love of God shown through him like very few pastors. The last wish before the end of the 50 year celebration, it is all about Jesus. He finally came face to face with the One he had loved for many years, and he genu-flexed before Jesus Christ.

We have come to thank God for Bob, Betty and Bobby. The thrust of Bob's ministry and the grace of God. It is all an extension of what he believed and what he taught.

Are there changes that we need to make? If so, then you deal with it. Bob's life can be a motivation for us. It is this testimony which is demonstrated here. You can have a historical impact and an angelic impact. Matt. 25:23; "Well done, good and faithful servant; you have been faithful over a few things, and I will make you ruler over many."

Bobby: the passing of Bob is a time of grieving but one of triumph. We know his death to be a victory. Bob was a man to engender great personal memories. Bob will describe one of his most cherished memories. In Oct. 1981 and he was an officer and home on leave. As was his custom, he stayed in an upstairs bedrooms of his parents home. At 3 am the phone rang, and it was his father, who was just downstairs. He called Bobby to come down because he was having a heart attack. He was sitting calmly at his desk with a pen in his desk and there were note pads in front of him. He was in great pain and he was writing something. "How long has this been going on?" and Bob said, "About an hour." His color was good and his breathing was normal. Bobby took hiim to the hospital, and he stayed in ICU for several days. It was pericardial or something. Bobby went to see what he had been writing for an hour while waiting to die of a heart attack. He wrote several farewell messages to his loved ones. Bobby learned about capacity for love. Bob was more concerned for those he was leaving behind than he was for his own life. Even as he waited for his imminent death, he wanted to represent the love of Christ.

May 2000 was the occasion of his 50th anniversary. We were celebrating all of the doctrine which he taught for 50 years. He again sat down at his desk and wrote another love note to us, his congregation. This note was found in his papers. Bobby reads it. "I may not see my 60th anniversary with you. Bible doctrine made real through the mentor ship of the Holy Spirit is far greater than my own human achievements." Bob conducted countless memorial services and Bobby has done a few. Bob often closed with a story from WWII. This was meaningful for him. It reminded him of those he loved and lost. Bobby repeats the story; the pencil story. There was a man who was very proficient, but he got himself in trouble, and this captain had potential. The Lt. Colonel called him in. The captain came in and expected the worst. The Lt. Colonel had a softer voice, and he explained the gospel to this captain, and that Jesus Christ paid the price for all of his failures. He said, "Captain, that is the solution to all of your problems." "Colonel, I would like to believe what you say." The Colonel picked up the pencil and dropped it. Then he picked it up and held it.

Salvation is about what Jesus Christ and what He did on the cross, not about what your failures. "I give to them eternal life and neither shall any man pluck them out of My hand."

A few years later and this captain had been promoted to a colonel and his battalion had taken many casualties and he was told them to march his people to the rear. In a distance, he saw a jeep and the now-General; and they recognized one another. The Colonel came up to his commanding officer and said, "Sir, God still holds the pencil."

He has left a legacy. We are his legacy. If Bob could return for just a moment, if he could come back and look us in the eye, he would look at the Berachah battalion in the eye and say, "I taught you for years, but you have no idea where I am. Your finite minds could not have understood. I will give you a tour of your eternal home."

Wednesday

What Bobby saw during the memorial was a tremendous amount of consolation, which came from the doctrine resident in our souls. We understand exhortation, but consolation is more difficult to understand but for a memorial service.

Speaking in tongues is speaking a language which was unknown to the speaker.

There were 3 purposes for the gift of tongues:

1. to warn the Jews (Isa. 28).
2. To evangelize unbelievers in their own language, which began on the day of Pentecost, when unbelievers converged on Jerusalem for the feasts. They came to worship and to celebrate. Acts 2.
3. The 3rd purpose of tongues was to teach basic doctrine to believers who spoke foreign languages.

Tongues was primarily utilized outside of the church. However, it was also used in the church at Corinth for evangelizing non-Greek speakers and for communication of basic instruction. Corinth was a seaport town. It was a business town; a town of commerce. All sorts of goods and services passed through Corinth.

Tongues was being misused in Corinth, and Paul points out that no one understands them. No one was interpreting for the Greek speakers. So, for the regular attendees were clueless; they had no idea what was going on.

Paul uses a little sarcasm here to gain some attention. Too much sarcasm is irritating. The Holy Spirit is speaking through the gifted believer. The Holy Spirit is omniscient, and they do not need to hear doctrine in another language. Here is the sarcasm; "You are telling God something that He already knows in a language which He knows.” Edification is not happening in Corinth with the use of tongues. For edification for the assembly of the church, they use prophecy. The prophet received direct revelation in Greek. The real problem was the misuse of this gift. The linguistics of the church at Corinth were simply unintelligible to the church in Corinth.

The real purpose of the church is edification. The same thing is true today. There are many churches which speak in tongues and many of them believe that this gift is alive and well. There is a new wave of this charismatic movement called the praise and worship movement; they are a follow-along movement.

Since tongues no longer exists, any tongues speaking is done by charlatans. Bobby knows that the gift of tongues does not exist. Whatever happens in churches where they supposedly speak in tongues, it is false. However, the principles are exactly the same. If it did exist, the same problem would be foremost. Where it is supposedly practiced today, tongues are a demonstration of God’s presence in the life of the one speaking in tongues (in their own way of thinking). It was being used wrongly in the church now as it was then.

The charismatic church today has moved on past the questionable gift of tongues, which has come under such scrutiny and many have questioned this gift, and claims about tongues have been found to be phoney. When linguists listen to them, there is no known language being spoken. In this new wave of charismatic churches, they are open to all believers with gifts or not. It is still an experience of God’s presence. That is the big thing in this sort of church. It is something to see; it is something to be experienced. They are all about the spectacle. They advertise contemporary worship, not that stodgy old stuff of old hymns with doctrinal content. It is a service where people move from song to song with little breathing in between the music. There is a heavy beat. There is clapping and raising hands and all sorts of other kinds of movement. This is all part of the demonstration of God the Holy Spirit working in them. When people leave a church like that, they feel as if they have had an experience. You can get the same feeling at a rock concert; the primary difference is, less dope in church. Each person is deciding to do whatever the Holy Spirit is supposedly leading them what to do. There is no governor, no dignity and no thought; total subjectivity.

There are all sorts of emotional substitutes. In so many churches, consistent Bible study is too hard, too inconvenient, and not lively enough. Nothing is less boring than inculcating what God has revealed to us in His Word. How can it be more exciting to spent a few minutes writhing in the aisles compared to learning the mind of Christ. Much more dedication to God is required.

There are those today, adult believers, who opt for private Bible studies outside of the church or extra-curricular to the church, led by well-meaning but unqualified teachers. What they teach is not bad, sometimes; but it is not a part of God’s design for the church. The prophet today is the man with the gift of pastor-teacher. He has the completed canon right now and he has the Holy Spirit which illuminates him. He is a man who is prepared.

It is his job to each and to inculcate God's Word to assemble themselves in the local church. This is not the same as those who listen to MP3's or DVD's when there is no other way of getting doctrine. When people opt out, that means the pastor-teacher is not doing his job.

2Tim. 4:2 Proclaim the Word, be instant in season and out of season, reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine. This is instruction for the pastor, and we are to know what the pastor is supposed to do. It is a simple instruction: preach the Word. Undoubtedly, groups that gather like this will be led in a wrong direction by those who are wrong-headed.

Doctrine is being lost today in a dog and pony show. The view of the gift of tongues is for edification inverts the meaning of 1Cor. 14.

Ev + πνευμα = by means of the Holy Spirit. Mysteries here does not refer to Church Age doctrine. All Church Age gifts operated by means of the Holy Spirit; and so do tongues. Bobby can be out of fellowship and be teaching doctrine. His doctrinal teaching might not be any different for us. The same is true for this gift. It operates. They can speak in tongues by the power of God the Holy Spirit. They are able to control this. They can turn it on and off. If they are speaking in the wrong circumstances to the wrong people, it is a mystery. Apparently, there were a lot of those speaking in tongues when there was no one in the church in order to interpret. They were speaking mysteries; no one understood them. They had legitimate gifts, they misused them. So Paul sarcastically states that God is the only one who can understand these people. In v. 9, Paul will call this speaking into the air. These are words without meaning.

Now, it could be that those using their own spiritual gift, it is enjoyable. Bobby has a good time teaching. It is fun. Bobby had the opportunity to elevate doctrine as Bob did. A believer speaking in tongues might be enjoying himself.

However, if Bobby taught simply for personal enjoyment, the approbation or standing in front of a crowd, rather than to teach us doctrine, then it is not worthwhile.

Bobby is going to share here. He likes to sing loudly and vigorously in the shower. It sounds so good. He can really belt out a tune. However, in this way, he is singing to himself and to no one else. It would not be musical to others. The one speaking in tongues was like a person singing in the shower; they were enjoying themselves, but no one else got anything out of it. No one benefitted from this gift except the user, which is not the purpose of this gift. Today, tongues does not exist, but it is still misused for personal worship and prayer. "Well, I am not edifying anyone else, but I am edifying myself." Bobby would rather see us grow than jumping and running about. If we do not worship God in Spirit and in truth, then we are not worshiping Him truly.

The natural conclusion is, tongues is wasted here. It means nothing to the listeners.

Or Bobby teaching communion in a foreign language. It would be meaningless; no one would understand that which is being taught.

Another illustration, Bobby could go out on a mountaintop and teach the word of God to the air. No one is benefitted. It is a meaningless function.

If you are sitting at the church in Corinth and you hear someone burst out in tongues, what meaning is this to you? If you are in the 1st Charismatic Church of Houston, and you hear someone exercising their vocal cords, it does nothing for you. You might as well be at home catching up on your sleep.

When on prophecies, he speaks to men.

1Cor. 14:2 For one who speaks in a tongue speaks not to men but to God; for no one understands him, but he utters mysteries by means of the Spirit.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to people for their up-building and encouragement and consolation.

Lesson #943

1Cor. 14:3 August 27, 2009

Thursday

Bobby got an email today. Freshly-minted Lt. and there was touch football, and Bob played too. The game got a little rough, and he broke his nose. He was uncertain about wearing a uniform the next night, and he did, despite the bandage. Bob called up the players and he presented the game ball. Bob called him to stand up. Then asked to see him after the service. He knew that his name would not be blotted out of the book of life, but he had no idea what Bob said. He showed up, snapped his heels, etc. Bob offered to pay for this emergency room, and he told him what an order. It was a note of irony that Bob's last book was "God's Unfailing Love."

Bob was a very generous man.

Speaking through the gift of prophecy included edification, encouragement and consolation. It was a spiritual gift which did these 3 things. Speaking in tongues had little value in this other area.

Paul wanted to make things clear to Timothy: All Scripture is God-breathed, profitable for teaching, for reproof (or correction), when you are corrected, you are exhorted, and training in righteousness. This parallels v. 3. Great relying upon doctrine in your soul.

In the memorial service, we were exhorted to advance spiritually. Rick Hughes exhorted us to continue to advance. You move forward; you do not retreat. Secondly, you were consoled by the doctrine in your soul. Consolation is an application; it is the faith rest drill. This verse is all about the doctrine the prophet prophecies.

V. 3 begins with a conjunction of contrast: δε.

The Contrast

1. The prophet spoke in the native tongue of the hearers. He spoke their language, and the language was Greek.
2. The speaker in tongues spoke in a foreign language, which spoke to far less people, although he did not edify all. In evangelizing he gave some soteriology. The tongues-speakers add no consolation, edification, etc. Those speaking in tongues just filled with emotion, but it offered nothing to everyone else. It was a wonderful tool of evangelism, but it edified only when it was interpreted. Question: why wasn't someone else interpreting? Had someone done that, it would not have been a problem. However, this was probably part of the misuse of tongues. This was a part of the problem. They were not present or not functioning with their gift. Their was no edification going on for anyone else.

What exactly did the prophet provide for the church that was so valuable. There are 3 things named in this church; and these things have application to the pastor in the post-canon era. There were tongues-speakers, prophets, etc.

The first aspect is οικοδομη which means edification. Thayer definitions: 1) (the act of building, building up; 2) metaphorically edifying, edification; 2a) the act of one who promotes another's growth in Christian wisdom, piety, happiness, holiness; 3) a building (i.e. the thing built, edifice). Educating by speaking to men, using the gift of prophecy. Then we have the standard word ανθρωπος. A dative of advantage, as a specific expression of personal interest. And it is used emphatically.

Οικοδομη

1. This is speaking to men with the interest of building them up. Prophet has a personal interest in those he teaches.
2. This is a generic term for all believers.
3. These believers are being built up. They are being spiritually education.
4. The prophet is speaking for the advantage of all believers for the interest of edification... The content of this prophecy is mystery doctrine.

The Prophet's Job

1. The church is edified by the prophet. Unfortunately, most of the pastor-teachers do not understand this. Very few pastor-teachers do this. They ought to know that edification is their job. They are not to entertain or the major toe tapper in a praise and worship service. The church is educated by the prophet or pastor-teacher.
2. This education is to the distinct advantage of every believer.

What is the Advantage to All Believers?

1. The idea is to build up the soul. It is the edification complex of the soul.

2. This was conjured up by Bob to illustrate the progress of the believer toward spiritual maturity and the results of that building-up. This was to lead a person to spiritual maturity. That is what edification of the soul is all about. Bob illustrated with the edification complex what occurred in your soul.
3. Building the ecs cannot take place without perception, metabolizing and applying the mystery doctrine. Spiritual growth is what is going on. That is what edification is.
4. Edification demands concentration on doctrine. Always under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. It cannot take place without the filling of the Holy Spirit. You must be in fellowship.
5. Edification demands teaching and utilizing the grace apparatus for perception.
6. It also means hearing doctrine which had not been heard before. This was a set of doctrines which was unknown prior to the day of Pentecost and it was progressively being revealed.
7. This was the doctrine which defined Church Age theology. It defined the Christian life. It defined the eternal future of all believers. It defined everything that we need to know as believers in Jesus Christ. When doctrine is taught in connection with grace apparatus for perception, there is always spiritual advance. If you hear it and metabolize it, you are growing. The result is a construction project. You have to do certain things in sequence, otherwise you have a mess. You build floor after floor after floor; it is sequential. There is a progression; that is a building up. It is spiritual maturation and application.

In seminary, there were all of these false systems of the function of a church. This was the purpose of the prophet to edify early believers. This gift is no longer in existence because the completed doctrine of the mystery doctrine is here.

If you are interested in this, get the book. Also in Christian Integrity with the most complete working of it.

The Edification complex of the soul

1. Building the floors of the edification complex. When this term first came out, a lot of people left Berachah. "I did not see any of this; I don't see any of these floors in the Bible."
2. All of these floors are to your advantage.
3. This advantage is the inculcation of Bible doctrine.

This allows for the application to your life. It is all part of the edification complex; it is all part of edification. The gift of tongues is directed toward unbelievers and a few believers who do not speak the language of the church. Which is more important? Duh. Tongues is a gift to be desired, but not like prophecy, which edifies the whole church. Even if tongues did exist, it is being misused by churches today exactly as it was misused in Corinth.

The next word is παρακλησις. It means exhortation. The prophet is speaking to all believers in the interest of edification and exhortation. This is not the spiritual gift of exhortation. Exhortation is a result of the use of the gift of prophecy. It is not about a spiritual gift. It does have the same connotation of meaning. Simply put, this means encouragement. This is corporate encouragement; group-encouragement. This encourages all believers who hear doctrine. There is nothing like doctrine to encourage under any condition. This is also part of being spiritually self-sustaining. Many pastors do not understand encouragement. They think they must run to see this or that person, and be there and let people lean on them. That is not exhortation. Exhortation comes from doctrine which is in the soul of the believer. It allows the believer to have self-encouragement. The content of the message encourages other believers and he was able to stand in front of the congregation without breaking down. You do not always have to lean on other people. We are told today, we must support each other; this is that gift, but by and large, you must be able to encourage yourself.

If you were encouraged, it is about tears and laughter.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to men for their up-building [edification] and encouragement and consolation.

Lesson #944

1Cor. 14:1–3 August 30, 2009

Sunday 1

1Cor. 14:1 Pursue love [which refers back to months of study]; yet desire earnestly spiritual gifts [which is something which everyone who believes in Jesus Christ possesses], but especially that you may prophesy;...

1Cor. 14:2 For one who speaks in a tongue speaks not to men but to God [sarcasm]; for no one understands him, but he utters mysteries by means of the Spirit.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to people for their up-building and encouragement and consolation.

Every believer in the Lord Jesus Christ is affected by prophecy. For many people, prophecy speaks of the future. But this is not for those who are tarot card readers, palm readers, etc. They are, at best, charlatans. At worst, they represent Satan's cosmic system. These various things are potential avenues of demon-influence.

Some Christians do believe today in modern-day prophets with the same gift today; or they are enamored of Biblical prophecy. They flock to prophecy conferences so that they can glean some knowledge of their future. They do not like what is going on today, or society or the people around them; so they want to know what is coming in the future.

Biblical eschatology is designed to bring encouragement and confidence in the eternal future.

Some of us, if not all, have asked questions about the future. We all know that we have an eternal future. So, when is the Lord going to return or who is the anti-Christ and do we know him or what are the signs of the time? It is ignorant to ask, what is the sign of the coming rapture. No prophecy conference will reveal this.

Or those who want to know what are the hidden codes of the Bible; what does it mean between the lines. The Bible tells us all that we need to know. Prophecy was never designed to satisfy curiosity seekers. There is no need to do so. God has provided us all that we need to know in the Bible. Prophecy conferences might be interesting, once; but not year after year.

What Bobby finds encouraging is, when he dies, he is going to heaven. In a few moments or in a few years from now, Jesus Christ will return. We will return with Jesus Christ. We will all return with Him and we will rule for 1000 years. After the Gog and Magog revolution, we will live forever with God. Our purpose in this life is fantastic. We have the opportunity to live a life unknown to any in the Old Testament or to any present-day unbeliever. We can understand God the way that men wish that they could. We have the security of knowing that, when it is all over, we know where we will be. There is no other purpose like this.

Bobby's grandfather said, those who are so interested in eschatology are so heavenly-minded that they are no earthly good. Must be on his mother's side?

We have resources that the Old Testament believers have never had before. The filling of the Holy Spirit. Some had the Holy Spirit which indued them with power, but this power could come and go.

The temporary gift of prophecy revealed the doctrine necessary for the Church Age. However, the prophets then did not have a jump on us in this dispensation. This particular gift left the scene around 90–98 A.D. The Bible was written by that time and all of this was recorded and stands for 2000 years. Itinerant prophets went from place to place to teach Church Age doctrine. The prophet of old has been replaced. Back then, they were told what to say. What they wrote in Scripture was entirely accurate. Bobby makes errors all of the time. However, he makes every effort to teach us accurately. He determines for a passage to have one meaning. Pastors can have a field day with a passage, and go off on wild tangents with it.

Bobby envies the prophet, who got it directly. He has replaced the prophet. Today, the prophet translates to the pastor, but there is no transfer of the ability to know what is not in the Bible.

There was a 3-fold nature to prophecy: edification, exhortation and consolation. Bobby loves bullet-lists. This is what doctrine is all about. This happens every time the Bible is taught.

Οικοδομη, which means to build up in the sense of educating. We began in kindergarten or pre-K or on the parent's knee, and we learned enough to survive. Our education system is horrible. Some go beyond that to another 4 years, and some into doctoral work. The rest of the world is back in the 6th grade insofar as education is concerned. Too many would rather be at recess or at a frat party, etc. However, it is all about building up.

Men is the dative plural of ανθρωπος. This is a dative of advantage. It is a specific expression of personal benefit. This is speaking for our benefit, for the benefit of building us up. All believers to their advantage are being spiritually educated. The content is educating the church in mystery doctrine. These men with the spiritual gift of prophecy were on the move. They were governed by the Apostles. They went throughout the 4 corners of the earth and came into contact with believers in Jesus Christ, and they taught doctrine to believers wherever they were. The 1st century church had to have prophets. Prophets moved about; pastor-teachers stayed in one place. They learned doctrine from the Apostles, from their writings, from the prophets from those with the gift of knowledge.

How else can you understand and execute the spiritual way of life? How else can you grow? How else can you glorify God unless you know how to do it?

The edification complex of the soul is just a way of speaking of spiritual progress and the results of that progress. It is just an illustration. It cannot take place without the metabolization of Bible doctrine. This demands that you grow under the mentorship of the Holy Spirit.

The pastor must study the Bible and teach it. Why don't pastors get this? Why don't they look at this verse and decide, "Edification is my job." From the Bible, he must educate and help all believers in his periphery to grow.

Here is what you will get: orientation to grace and to doctrine. This world does not understand grace at all. Bob was the epitome of grace. He taught it to us every time he was in the pulpit. There is then the renovation of your thinking and attitude. Your attitude is so much of life. When you renovate your attitude, you will represent this spiritual life to the world. Adversity should mean nothing to us. We have the means to solve every problem and adversity in life. In comparison, the gift of tongues is directed toward unbelievers in evangelism and to a few believers who do not speak the language of the local church. Prophecy is for the building up of all believers. If our churches heeded this, our country would not be in the situation that it is in now. Without it, we are going down.

Lesson #945

1Cor. 14:3-4 August 30, 2009

Sunday 2

All Scripture is God-breathed and profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfected, thoroughly furnished to every good work.

We can be encouraged by discipline and correction. This is what Paul is doing. He is being heavy-handed. Corporate encouragement is what is in view here. There is a gift of exhortation, but this is what the pastor and the prophet do. This is for the whole church. They are being encouraged. If you hear doctrine, you will be encouraged. We need to be educated. We need to have something in our souls. Death is not the end; it is the beginning; the beginning of eternal life or eternal condemnation.

There will be a reunion as well; that is encouragement. Would we be encouraged if we had no doctrine in our souls? So many people who attend funerals are in desolation because they believe they will never see their loved ones again.

Exhortation by a prophet; it is an appeal made of us. An appeal for us to advance and to living the Christian way of life. As we advance, there will be more and more encouragement. Then there is the appeal to apply doctrine from our souls. We have to apply doctrine from our souls. For this reason, Bob's memorial service was a wonderful day; a home-going service. There is also an appeal for self-examination. This is so that we might recognize where we are in life and what we need. Also, an appeal to make good decisions. Bobby has made his own share of bad decisions and has seen them in the Word of God. This is what Bible doctrine does for us. When we make good decisions, we get to watch the Lord work. The 5th appeal is for attitude adjustment. We all need some tune-ups every once and awhile. Instead of solving them, we get an attitude. The best adjustment we get is to sit and listen to doctrine. However, we know we have the solution to it. The 6th appeal is for production. When we study spiritual gifts, we are being encouraged. We have at least one spiritual gift. We are being encouraged to utilize it. Bobby is encouraged by this chapter. We should also be encouraged to recognize that our spiritual gift in operation is for the good of the body of Christ. And what we are looking for is, "Well done, My good and faithful servant."

Exhortation is a practical application of a pastor's teaching ministry, and it is directed toward a pastor's whole congregation as he teaches. If doctrine is being implanted in our souls, and when we apply it, it is an encouragement to us.

The final characteristic is παραμυθια = consolation, comfort; comforting believers with doctrine. This is corporate.

Feminine_noun: paramuthia (παραμυθία) [pronounced pahr-ahm-oo-THEE-ah], which means 1) any address, whether made for the purpose of persuading, or of arousing and stimulating, or of calming and consoling; 1a) consolation, comfort. Thayer definitions. Strong's #3889.

Bobby understands the difficulty of military combat. Here, we can often turn to someone for comfort, but there, you may just have yourself when someone is lost. We can have peace and tranquility in our souls. There is our advantage.

Prophesying is receiving divine revelation and making it known to the church.

1. It educates believer's souls and imparts the will and the plan of God.
2. It builds up the edification complex and the characteristics of virtue love.

3. It encourages and comforts under all circumstances.
4. Summary: spiritual gift, motivation and comfort. All 3 happen by the teaching of the prophet then and the teaching of the pastor-teacher today.

In all ways, the teaching of the prophet is superior to the gift of tongues. Tongues is a great gift; but look at what prophecy does for you.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to people for their up-building and encouragement and consolation.

The gift of tongues imparted some basic doctrine to those who did not speak Greek (in that congregation). The gift of tongues edified the entire assembly only if there was someone with the gift of interpretation of tongues. However, this was not the force of tongues. The norm is to speak to someone in their own languages with all of the nuances and all of the understanding of what you need.

In essence, this is a comparison between the indispensability of Bible doctrine to the church and any other solo-edification which exists, either in reality or in someone's imagination. The small bit of personal edification of tongues did not advance the church. Tongues did not do what the application of prophecy did for the whole church. Tongues was very limited in scope.

This is not meant to commend the private use of tongues. "If I speak in tongues by myself, then it edifies me. That is a good thing, right?" But the purpose of gifts is for the common good. 1Cor. 12:7. Tongues were only designed for the common good, and this would be to add to the church or to edify the church by the interpretation of tongues.

Paul is reproving the Corinthians. He is saying, "Listen up, tongues-speakers, no one understands you, so what good are you? Only if someone interprets are you of any use to the rest of the church." This was only designed for those who are foreigners who might be in attendance in the church.

The fact of his gift and the function of this gift is visible proof of the gift of God to him; so there was some encouragement to this individual user. This is the personal use, which is not really the purpose of the gift.

Encouragement is best if gotten from the soul. Tongues is not about learning doctrine by being self-taught. The gift of prophecy is for the edification of the church. The gift of tongues is for evangelization and basic doctrine for the foreigner. The entire church is edified by the prophet. It is not about self-edification.

The body of believers in a specific locale is built-up by prophesying. Today, we grow by being taught the completed canon of Scripture. Did you gain spiritual advance from speaking in tongues? Were you edified, you were not. And when speaking in tongues today in church today, at best, might be some encouragement, even though it is false.

It can also discourage. Imagine the unbelievers who see this. A gift once designed to give out the gospel chases away unbelievers who see this and think that you are a total kook.

1Cor. 14:4 The one who speaks in a tongue builds up himself, but the one who prophesies builds up the church.

Lesson #946

1Cor. 14:5–9 September 2, 2009

Wednesday

Bobby is more and more surprised how much Paul emphasizes doctrine and the Word of God. This chapter has been looked at as a diatribe against tongues, but it is more of a mandate for teaching Bible doctrine in the churches as opposed to a lot of the stuff which goes on in our churches today. The problem of tongues could have been anything which distracts from the teaching of the Word of God.

Bobby reads vv. 5–9. V. 5 sums up everything which has been written thus far. In v. 6, everything is all about communication of doctrine. It is all about edification. Then Paul begins to illustrate in v. 7. When an orchestra warms up with random notes being made, we have no idea what is going to be played. Or if a bugel produces an indistinct sound, then no one will know what to do. V. 9 draws a conclusion. If you are simply speaking in tongues, you are speaking into the air. The cogent point is, tongues alone means no edification in the church.

V. 5 essentially sums up all of 1Cor. 14. When the gift of tongues existed, there was a specific and legitimate use of tongues inside the church. It was used outside the church as well. Tongues also continued to be a sign of impending disaster. Paul wanted to go to the Jews; he wanted to evangelize them. Inevitably, many of them listened; but many rejected the gospel, which resulted in the destruction of Israel.

The minds of the Jews were like flint; he could not chip away at their thinking. Paul could speak in tongues as legitimately, as did many others in the church. Paul used the gift and many other believers used this gift as well. In this verse, it is clear that tongues was used in the church, to present the gospel and to present some doctrine to those who did not speak Greek.

Those who spoke in tongues could communicate with all kinds of people from all over the world. Within the congregation, there were believers who were from all over; and some showed up to the Corinth church and some heard these languages spoken, and they were edified by the message spoken.

What Doctrine they Spoke

1. The first thing that was taught was the gospel. Tongues was a witnessing tool.
2. When connected with witnessing, effective witnessing communicates specific doctrines, e.g., the doctrines of soteriology, hamartiology, Christology. All of this is tied to the gospel.

3. The review of these doctrines was important to believers and foreign believers as well. Communion is a review of various doctrines of soteriology, hamartiology or Christology. Foreigners, Bobby says, made up the majority of this church.
4. Speaking in tongues, if you did not understand that tongue, would do nothing for you. However, if one interprets what is being said, then people will get something out of it. In the church, there needed to be some interpretation of the tongues. Various doctrines spoken in tongues was then revealed to others as well...to the bulk of the church.

Paul was an itinerant Apostle and he traveled all the time, and he went places where Greek was not spoken; and he had this gift and it was critical at this time. Paul could speak in tongues; but he could also prophesy. Which was more important? That is Paul's point.

I wish you all spoke in tongues, is hyperbole. Obviously, the other gifts are necessary. The solution lay in edification.

This was a legitimate gift, but people desired all of the trappings which went with it. They did not have the proper motivation for the use of their gift. Wouldn't people admire me? Wouldn't people think that I am a great Christian? People wanted the gift to feel superior. Like those who try to witness to more people than anyone else.

Anything which you do which is self-centered motivation is the wrong motivation. A spiritual gift should not be discouraging to anyone.

A woman in a tongues-speaking church could not conjure up a little speaking in tongues. It just did not happen, so she felt inferior. Same thing occurred in Corinth. Spiritual growth is what was needed, and prophecy accomplished that. Prophecy edified those in the church.

Tongues versus Prophecy

1. Tongues supplies limited edification and requires interpretation. There are times when missionaries, like Jim Meyers, speak, and someone stands next to them and they interpret. Someone speaks Ukrainian. Jim knows what he is trying to say, but he does not know what the interpreter is actually saying. However, this was not a problem with interpreting someone speaking in tongues. Who controls? God the Holy Spirit.
2. However, prophecy is the greater gift.
3. What we should retain from this is the foremost of doctrine in our own edification. O, that the charismatic churches today understood this. Edification is everything.

Bobby is the prophet here. He has the canon of Scripture and he has the gift. He understands the one meaning and he can communicate that meaning. That is the primary purpose and the primary reason for the church to exist.

Bobby has always hated the complaint that Berachans just sit on their hands and do nothing. We do not show enough love and we do not witness enough, etc.

Paul explains how important ἀγαπή is, and then he explains how virtue love is gotten (by the teaching of Bible doctrine).

1Cor. 14:5 Now I want you all to speak in tongues, but even more to prophesy. The one who prophesies is greater than the one who speaks in tongues, unless someone interprets, so that the church may be built up.

V. 6 continues with a hypothetical situation. If I speak to you in tongues, how does that profit you? Since things are so, if I come to you speaking in tongues, it is not edifying. That is the conclusion of v. 6. Paul will present this in such a way that everyone understands. "If I show up in Corinth and speak in tongues, how are you profited?" The Corinthians fully expected to see Paul again. Paul expected to see them again as well. He is using this as a way to grab their attention. When he comes, he will not be speaking unintelligible words. His purpose to return to Corinth is to teach them. This hypothetical visit of Paul's is expressed as a 3rd class condition; maybe I will do this and maybe I won't.

Conditional clause, and the New Testament is filled with conditional clauses; particularly in this chapter. A conditional clause is an if...then... statement. The if portion is the premise or the protasis. The then portion is called the apodosis or the conclusion.

There are 4 types of conditional clauses in the Greek. In the Greek, a 3rd class condition begins with εἰ and the verb is in the subjunctive mood. If I should come (maybe I will and maybe I won't) [to Corinth]... Paul did not know if he would really make it to Corinth.

If I speak Persian, but you speak Greek, how will that profit you? Speaking an unknown, un-interpreted language would be without spiritual impact. For 18 months, Paul taught the Corinthians, and gave them concentrated doctrine. He communicated doctrine to them.

Now, what is given in many churches is a report about what is going on with the day-care center or a building project. What good is any of this, unless you teach doctrine? There are churches all over this city who are doing matchmaking.

One person in Berachah testified that, he did not see the point of going to church until he landed in Berachah.

1Cor. 14:6 Now, brothers, if I come to you speaking in tongues, how will I benefit you unless I bring you some revelation or knowledge or prophecy or teaching?

1Cor. 14:7 If even lifeless instruments, such as the flute or the harp, do not give distinct notes, how will anyone know what is played?

1Cor. 14:8 And if the bugle gives an indistinct sound, who will get ready for battle?

Lesson #947

1Cor. 14: September 3, 2009

Thursday

Just once, Bobby wishes that everyone would be able to speak in a tongue. Some of you may want to speak in several languages, and it would be interesting to see everyone break out in a foreign dialect. There is the speaking, but it is also the Holy Spirit working through you. Then we could all go forth speaking in tongues evangelizing those who do not speak English; and even teach doctrine to those who do not speak English. There is a bonus; if we all spoke in tongues, no one would be jealous, because everyone is able to do it.

It is quite clear that the Corinthians were jealous of one another because some could speak in tongues and some could not. So, therefore, Paul says, "I wish that all of you could speak in tongues." That would reduce the problems. No one would feel a need to show off; no one would feel left out.

Paul has to do something about this. Instead of all of you speaking in tongues, I wish that you could all prophesy; that you could all speak doctrine.

It is critical that the gift of tongues is interpreted. If prophesy was being used properly, then the doctrine brought taught through the gift of prophecy would edify the whole congregation.

This has great application for us today. Paul makes a conclusion. Since things are this way, which refers back to v. 5, the church cannot function with just 1 or 2 gifts. The whole church cannot have the same gift. If you could all prophesy instead of all speaking in tongues, that would be best. This edifies the entire church. Tongues used properly, if interpreted, has edification value. However, there is not as much value as prophecy.

Paul uses a 3rd class condition, so the Greeks knew that he was being hypothetical. Paul begins this 3rd class condition. If I drop in for a visit, speaking tongues just like you are speaking in tongues, in what way are you profited? Where is the edification in that? What is the value of that? The Apostle has no business being in a church if he simply speaks to them in tongues. There is no value in the tongues-speaking of the Corinthians. The same is true today. There is no value in speaking in tongues today. This gift no longer exists, so there is no value in its use. The second reason is, where tongues is being utilized falsely, as a gift which does not exist, Paul's principle still applies as a corrective principle. These people are using this gift incorrectly. The church is not being edified, so the tongues-speaker should cease and desist. Either then or now, there is no reason for it. In the first place, the gift does not exist. It is a counterfeit today; but, furthermore, even if it was a true gift today, it is used incorrectly. You need to speak in a language which the church understands; do you get it?

During the Dark Ages, there was very little doctrine communicated. There were very few Bibles. People did not have access to Bibles. Many of the priests were trained in Latin, so they could go to their libraries and study the Bible. Some periods of time, teaching the Bible was considered to be heretical. They persecuted those who tried to translate and teach the Bible in the vernacular of any particular region. So the churches were not being edified.

However, there was a bright spot in those dark times; his name was John Wycliffe. He was born in the 1300's. He could read Latin and Greek. He became a don at Oxford University in England. In 1382 he made a translation into English, the first in 1000 years. This caught fire. There was a spiritual awakening at this time. This is the purpose of the church. These men were hunted for teaching the Word of God. It has happened time and time again. Those who would distribute the Word of God were hunted and killed. In China, it is against the law to own a Bible.

In the meantime, the church expelled Wycliffe from his teaching position. 44 years after Wycliffe died, his bones were exhumed and he was burned as a heretic. This is how far it can go. However, simultaneous to this, beautiful churches were built with the money taken from the poor. Cold stone monuments to God. There was no edification. The protestant revolution in the 1500's brought the Bible to the common people.

There is an intense drama of the Angelic Conflict. It makes for fascinating reading. It is a perfect example of Jesus Christ controlling history. Even when believers are persecuted. Wycliffe lived 200 years before the protestant revolt. However, his doctrine was very similar to the early Protestants. Wycliffe was a man who was ahead of his time.

Jan Hus was another pre-reformer. He loved the Scriptures and taught the Scriptures and he was murdered for it. It is all about edification.

Today, the church is moving away from doctrinal teaching. The tongues movement has been a part of that departure and it is a matter of spectacle rather than of doctrine. Clear spoken doctrine always takes precedence, then and now.

Paul reveals what is truly of value, all of which involves understanding; doctrine for the whole church. I cannot benefit you unless I bring you some bit of revelation, knowledge, prophecy or teaching.

Eav + the Aorist active subjunctive. What will it profit you if I do not speak to you, by revelation [the mystery doctrine; Church Age doctrine], knowledge [this corresponds to revelation, which is the gift of knowledge which discerns revelation; what good is it I do not come by way of knowledge?], prophecy [the spiritual gift by means of which doctrine is revealed; prophecy is intelligible to those in the church] or teaching [the function for which prophecy is given].

There are 4 categories here, just as we find in Ephesians. Perhaps these correspond and are the same 4 things.

1Cor. 14:6 Now, brothers, if I come to you speaking in tongues, how will I benefit you unless I bring you some revelation or knowledge or prophecy or teaching?

Vv. 7–11, Paul will give 3 illustrations as to why speaking in tongues won't cut it: musical illustration, a military illustration, and a linguistic illustration. He has lots of fun with all of this.

When indistinct notes are played, the music cannot be recognized. If the bugle is not clear, then no one knows what to do.

There are a great many languages in the world, when you speak to someone in the same language, you convey information. What are you doing in a church where no one understands what is being said? If a tongues-speaker began doing this at work, he would be fired.

The Greeks look down on Barbarians; the Greeks were the pinnacle of culture; and they thought the language of the Barbarians were low-class with a low-class language.

Even if tongues was real today, it would be a right thing done in a wrong way. If language does not communicate, there is not profit in it.

1Cor. 14:7 If even lifeless instruments, such as the flute or the harp, do not give distinct notes, how will anyone know what is played?

1Cor. 14:8 And if the bugle gives an indistinct sound, who will get ready for battle?

1Cor. 14:9 So with yourselves, if with your tongue you utter speech that is not intelligible, how will anyone know what is said? For you will be speaking into the air.

1Cor. 14:10 There are doubtless many different languages in the world, and none is without meaning,

1Cor. 14:11 but if I do not know the meaning of the language, I will be a foreigner to the speaker and the speaker a foreigner to me.

1Cor. 14:12 So with yourselves, since you are eager for manifestations of the Spirit, strive to excel in building up the church.

Lesson #948

1Cor. 14:3–7 September 6, 2009

Sunday 1

Liberal churches have set their theology, but conservative theology is irrelevant to them. They focus on the subjective element of religion. They try to experience God as He relates to the human experience. These churches start with man, not with God, and they try to find God through the eyes of man. They might raise money for charitable causes; they try to make their congregants feel good.

Some churches answer this question with ritual. In those churches, there is also an element of humanism.

The evangelical churches closer adhere to the Word of God and the sermons more closely approximate the Bible. However, too many of these churches put consistent Bible teaching into the background, and they go in for the mega-church concept or attempt to develop a Christ-centered community; but they are unenlightened when it comes to likemindedness. They try to teach doctrine through Sunday school teachers who are unqualified to teach the Bible. Or they have private Bible studies. Some immerse themselves in political activism.

There are charismatic churches who have, generally, a more Biblical approach; and their sermons reflect a respect for the Word of God and they evangelize. However, they often choose emotion over the truth of the Word. They incessantly sing, and they clap and raise their hands and move to the music.

In all of these churches, there is some element of truth, and would that these churches teach 1Cor. 14, and it is in this chapter where the real purpose of the church is defined. Paul compares and juxtaposes these gifts of tongues and prophecy. They are not in conflict with one another, per se; but the whole thrust of this chapter is there is edification of the body of Christ and there is all this other stuff. These other things may have some measure of legitimacy, but it is edification first and foremost. This is the bedrock, the foundation, the single-most important aspect of any church.

1Cor. 14:3 On the other hand, the one who prophesies speaks to people for their up-building and encouragement and consolation.

The gift has changed, but the principle has not.

1Cor. 14:4 The one who speaks in a tongue builds up himself, but the one who prophesies builds up the church.

Self-edification is not the key nor is it the purpose of assembling. Quite obviously, if self-edification was the whole purpose, then you could do this on your own.

Paul certainly wants the use of these gifts, including the gift of tongues; but even more than the church has the gift of prophecy. Prophecy is greater because it edifies the entire church. Churches all over the world do nothing to edify the body of Christ.

The pastor running about dealing with this or that individual is not what a pastor ought to do. Too many pastors become managers of all sorts of people and groups and they do not edify their congregation. Edification is what renovates all believers with divine viewpoint. This inculcates the believer with the mind of Christ. We learn to renovate our thinking. That is what is primary. It does not come from a 20 minute sermon once a week. Do you recall that you went to school every single day? When you went to college, you studied and went to school all week long.

You will not grow because you bowl with other Christians. Various Christian activities do not cause spiritual growth. Speaking in tongues, legitimate or not, does not edify the body of Christ. You do not go to church to see who can say Amen the most times or the loudest. You cannot concentrate when you are moving about or speaking in tongues. Would that churches would study this passage.

1Cor. 14:5 Now I want you all to speak in tongues, but even more to prophesy. The one who prophesies is greater than the one who speaks in tongues, unless someone interprets, so that the church may be built up.

Let's say that Paul comes to Corinth and he speaks in an un-interpreted tongue, it profits no one. What would be reasonable is to speak of some revelation, knowledge, prophecy or teaching. Revelation is Church Age doctrine. Prophecy is about the receipt of doctrinal knowledge into the human spirit. Teaching is the foundation for all Bible teaching. The all-important function of doctrine for the church is established here. The is only profit when someone speaks the truth in a manner in which others can understand him.

1Cor. 14:6 Now, brothers, if I come to you speaking in tongues, how will I benefit you unless I bring you some revelation or knowledge or prophecy or teaching?

3 illustrations of the limitation of tongues in vv. 6–11. A musical analogy, a military analogy and a linguistic analogy.

Lifeless things are inanimate objects. They are made of inanimate material. They are, in one sense, a musical instrument which can become a living thing because of what it produces. They produce a sound as living things do. Music can elevate the soul.

The instrument is a personification of people; it makes sounds and people make sounds. There is the flute here and the harp. Wind and string instruments.

In a concert, the musicians warm up, but there are just a cacophony of sounds, and it irritates Bobby. It makes no sense to him. It is in marked contrast to playing a piece of music. Unless you have a program, you do not know what will be played by listening to the musicians warm up. Tongues, which are not understood, have no use in the spiritual life. They are lifeless. Musical instruments are worthless unless they produce distinct notes.

If they should not produce a distinction in tones... the 3rd class condition indicates that they can produce a melody and they can also produce a series of dissonant notes. This might produce a discordant response in the listener.

Emotion is a responder, and when emotion leads, then we are going in the wrong direction. Prophecy is like a melodious tune played on a harp or on the flute.

Paul is not talking about the divinely intended use of the gift of tongues.

1Cor. 14:7 If even lifeless instruments, such as the flute or the harp, do not give distinct notes, how will anyone know what is played?

Lesson #949

1Cor. 14:7–9 September 6, 2009

Sunday 2

Most of us, at some time, have listened to some kind of music, so that we can related to v. 7. Sometimes the music which we listen to seems discordant to someone else.

Woodwinds and strings in v. 7.

1Cor. 14:7 If even lifeless instruments, such as the flute or the harp, do not give distinct notes, how will anyone know what is played?

Paul uses a second analogy, and it is a military analogy; preparation for battle. In this illustration, Paul is not talking about the divinely intended use of spiritual gifts. He is not denigrating the gift of tongues; he is denigrating the improper use of this gift.

No edification takes place without understanding the meaning of the words. Prophecy is understood because it is a language that they understand.

Next we have a military analogy and he uses them quite often. Paul well understood the military and its importance. Those citizens under the Roman empire were recipients of Paul's epistles understood these illustrations. The Roman army was ubiquitous in those days. Berachah Church ought to well understand the military, and Paul loved it. Paul spent a lot of time with the Roman military, primary as a prisoner, and he was guarded by the Praetorium guard, and he probably enjoyed their company. These are intelligent and well-educated men.

One of Bob's favorite battles is found in his book God's Unfailing Love.

Paul begins a 3rd class condition. He goes to another brass musical instrument this time, but a different application of this instrument. The bugle is used to assemble, to attack, to retreat, etc. It is a command and signal device.

σαλπιγξ (σάλπιγξ) [pronounced SAL-pinx], which means trumpet. Strong's #4536. `

Παρασκευαζω = to equip someone, to get oneself ready for battle.

There has to be order on the battlefield. There has to be planning, orders, and execution. For special operations, the planning is very detailed. A ranger can recite in his sleep, the 5 paragraph field order.

What are the surrounding circumstances? Then a concise mission objective is stated. Then there is the execution of the mission. How will this be done? The various teams, time sequences, rallying points. Your life depends upon this information. Then there is service and support...rations, air support, ammunition. Command and signal. Radio, frequencies, passwords. When a specific bugle sound is given, we know what to do. No matter how many times we hear this, we need to hear this again and again.

We have to know who the enemy is; we need to know what the objective is; we need to know where we go; we need to know about our assets; and we need to apply all of this to combat. Everyday in church, we receive our 5 paragraph field orders.

How do these verses compare?

1. It is distinct versus indistinct sounds of musical instruments.
2. No one will assemble or prepare if the bugle does not produce an harmonious sound.
3. An indistinct signal command causes confusion and misunderstanding as does music without pattern. Nothing can be more difficult for a soldier in the midst of combat. History is filled with armies who have been defeated because orders were not understood, not carried out or garbled when at war.

The soldier must be ready to respond immediately and appropriately. The indistinct bugle destroys the spiritual life. If you do not understand the commands of Scripture, if you reject your 5 paragraph field order, you destroy your spiritual life.

Summary Points

1. Life and death and victory depend upon responding to a distinct sound. You live or die and you accomplish or don't the mission.
2. Spiritual life and spiritual victory depend upon responding to the clear, distinct sound of prophecy for edification, not the indistinct sounds of tongues.

1Cor. 14:8 And if the bugle gives an indistinct sound, who will get ready for battle?

Paul gives a 3rd illustration. "So it is with you..." This is relating to us and our spiritual lives. If the harp, flute or bugle give an indistinct sound, it is to our extreme detriment. This is what Paul intends in his analogy.

The key is, is the sound intelligible and coherent?

Tongue is used in several ways in our passage. It often refers to the spiritual gift of speaking in a foreign language. However, here, it refers to that which is in our mouth, the instrument of speech and communication. You cannot get tongue-tied if you want to speak with clarity.

If our speech is not understood, then we do not know understand what is being said.

Let Bobby be clear

1. Unintelligible speech does not indicate gibberish or ecstatic utterance. The latter refers to phallic cult activities. The latter refers to cult behavior and that is not what Paul is talking about.
2. It does not refer to inarticulate sounds.
3. This does not indicate a language which exists nowhere on earth.
4. Paul is speaking here of the legitimate use of the gift of tongues in a legitimate language.

Summary Points

1. If the tongue is meant to be intelligible, then it must be a real language which is understood by the hearers.
2. The tongue must be interpreted by someone with the gift of interpretation.
3. It is all about edification. It is all about understanding.

Lesson #950

1Cor. 14:9–11 September 9, 2009

Wednesday

You learn to communicate when you write. It helps you to organize your thinking. In writing, you have paragraphs and each paragraph is a separate entity and each one is sequential. Within a paragraph, you have an opening sentence and a conclusion; and you organize yourself in each paragraph. Some enjoy this sort of thing; and Bobby really enjoys it.

Paul was organized in his thinking, in this shows up in his writing. V. 9; in most writing, you can find a sentence with is the thematic summary. However, you often need the context in order to understand the sentence. V. 9 is a standalone sentence. By itself, it would still convey the basic prerequisite for the function of the gift of tongues. For this one, the context is not necessary to understand.

However, this verse is surrounded by illustrations. Vv. 7–8 are illustrations of v. 9. In case the analogies are not understood, v. 9 sets up the one condition which is necessary for the speaking in tongues. This is the corrective for the misuse of tongues in Corinth. However, this sentence should also have an impact. Bobby wishes that he could post this verse in every church where they speak in tongues, whether this is a legitimate gift for today or not.

What passes for tongues today is not clear or understandable language. Even if the gift did exist today, the way it is being used is in violation of v. 9.

Tongues speakers strike out twice on this verse: they speak in tongues as a spectacle or it thrills them or someone else. Even if tongues still existed, and suddenly Bobby speaks in tongues; so what does that do for you. What did you get from that? All you would get is the thrill of knowing it happened. The problem is, you do not need that. You do not need some visual and audio stimulation. A tongues speaker today also strikes out today because they are not a legitimate gift.

Paul is saying, if you did not get it with the previous two illustrations, then let me make it clear. Paul is relating the two analogies of the bugle and the flute. Paul will relate them to a 3rd illustration.

Music must have form, progression and logic. Music which is discordant is not music. So it cannot be enjoyed.

The other illustration is the use of the bugle, where, if it is garbled, no one knows what to do.

Ευσαμος means easily recognizable, distinct. This describes the requirement for tongues. If you came from a charismatic church, is that speech recognizable? Is it distinct? The object of speech is to communicate information. Others must understand what is being said.

If the tongues speaker is speaking to a few in the audience who can speak this language, then there must be someone who will interpret what is being said.

Paul closes the verse with a word-image. You will be speaking into the air. This conjures up some blowhard who talks about no one but themselves. The tendency when with someone like this is to tune them out. You give them the obligatory nod. He ends up speaking into the wind; no one bothers to listen to him.

Summary Points

1. Speaking to God and speaking into the air means that no person is listening; no person is hearing.
2. In both cases, with Paul, this is sarcasm. Tongues is for people; it is for evangelizing.
3. What he really means with this speech is worthless to anyone. Speaking is worthless when it does not communicate anything. Speech has to hit home in your soul.
4. If you reproduce music in an empty room, is it music? If Bobby speaks to an empty auditorium, is it speaking? Bobby did that with the entire book of Philemon. Maybe Bobby's dog was there; perfect example; to him, Bobby was speaking in tongues.
5. No one hears, so these things are wasted. It profits no one. An assembly is all about those who are listening; that is where edification occurs.

There is an application here for Bobby; his job is communicating. The other part is teaching. Until Bobby communicates it to us, it is not edifying. Clarity for Bobby is the issue. The pulpit is not a place to show off. A pastor who tries to show off his intelligence is of no help.

A pastor who is a savant has to learn something in order to teach. Bob used to use some very unusual words and some people complained about this. He loved words and he loved to use words that would challenge. A few of these words improved the vocabulary of those who listened. Expanding the vocabulary expands our ability to think.

Bobby uses a thesaurus a lot. Bobby searches for the right word. The more he expands the vocabulary, the more we understand the doctrine which is being taught. Bobby learned a lot about teaching when he taught the teen class and when he taught soldiers in the army. You can always tell when you are losing your audience. Bobby tries to keep it understandable. He also tries to challenge us. Vocabulary challenges us.

Bobby wrote field manuals and the average recruit was reading on a 2.5 reading level. That was hard to do.

Sometimes you have to use some humor and with teens, now and again, you can use a little slang. Communication is a skill that we all need.

1Cor. 14:9 So with yourselves, if with your tongue you utter speech that is not intelligible, how will anyone know what is said? For you will be speaking into the air.

Now Paul will use a linguistic illustration for a linguistic text. Speech is useless to the hearer unless it is understood.

V. 10 begins with a rare 4th class condition, which is the less probable future condition. This is usually a very distant possibility. It is grammatically identified beings with the particle εἰ then the aorist active optative of τυγχάνω which means happens to be. This is a formula, which means you do not translate the words individually, but the two words combine to form a standard, well understood meaning. Together, they mean perhaps, if it should turn out that way, if perhaps it should occur, it may be. Present active indicative of εἰμι and thus This does not tell how many languages are out there; it just states that there are a lot of them. LITV reads: So it may be many kinds of sounds are in the world, and not one is without distinct sound. Paul's illustration is a real fact based upon the information in the Old Testament. God created many languages at Babel.

As soon as you pass customs in another country, people do not speak your language and you do not speak theirs, which can be very disconcerting, especially when you do not know what to say.

In Africa, there are a great many dialects even in just one country or one area. Yet Paul treats this fact as if it is only remotely possible. He uses this is an hypothetical statement. He did not have to use a 4th class condition here.

Every one of these languages can communicate. Why would Paul do such a thing? The optative mood in Paul's time was almost extinct. The 3rd class condition was much more common; the 4th class condition got their attention.

1Cor. 14:10 There are doubtless many different languages in the world, and none is without meaning,

Lesson #951

1Cor. 14:10 September 10, 2009

Thursday

Bobby's been warned, no more speaking in tongues.

Bobby may seem a bit repetitive about this tongues thing. The Holy Spirit made certain that Paul repeated this concept a few times.

Paul employs a string of 3rd class conditions. There will be 3 consecutive if...then clauses.

V. 6 if I come to you speaking in tongues, then how will that profit you?

V. 7 if they do not produce a distinction in the tones, how will it be known what is played on the flute or the harp?

V. 8 if the bugle produces an indistinct sound, how will one prepare for battle?

The protasis and the apodosis. The premise is maybe true and maybe not true. It is a conjectural statement. The if clause is an hypothesis. He did not expect the flute or harp to play indistinct sounds. He assumes they do in order to make his point; nor did he expect that a bugle would be blown randomly. He offers up a probability which will not occur, most of the time. What is the point? Sound is useless to the hearer unless it is clear.

V. 9 and so it is with you Corinthians, if you just make some unintelligible sound, how will anyone know what you are saying?

Then Paul suddenly goes into a 4th class condition. Nothing in the Scripture is without inspiration. Everything that is done is relevant. When Paul sat at a desk scratching out on a papyrus, every letter and word and clause has meaning. Paul used his own ability to think, so that no matter what he thought, God the Holy Spirit used him. In any case, there is a good reason for Paul to do this. The 4th class condition is a contingency which could happen in the future. It is usually a distant possibility. E<sub>i</sub> + the optative means we are dealing with a 4th class condition. This optative mood is unusual. It caught Bobby's attention and made him ask, why did he do that? In fact, back then, the 3rd class condition was common, but the 4th was not. Now, why did he use this? Paul treats this statement as a very remote possibility.

Bobby often gives the mood of a verb to us.

The 4 Moods of a Greek Verb

1. Indicative mood. This is the mood of reality. A simple assertion; a statement of fact; it is the mood of certainty.

2. Imperative mood. The mood of command or entreaty. This is the mood of volition. A command is given, but we decide whether or not to follow it.
3. Subjunctive mood. This is a mood of mild contingency. It is the mood of probability. This was in all of the previous 3rd class conditions.
4. Optative mood. The mood of strong contingency. The mood of possibility; it can be as vague as a wish.

An interpretive force here: It may be a possibility that there are many kinds of languages in the world and it is also possible that all of them have meaning. Bobby finds this use rather weird. He uses this optative for the specific use of his argument. He wants this statement to be a remote possibility. But, it is not really a remote possibility. This statement about languages is obviously true. One of Bobby's teachers spoke 26 different languages. These languages do have meanings, but they do not have any meaning inside of the Corinthian church. Paul wants them to understand the languages which are being spoken. This follows perfectly after v. 9.

The Corinthians are not stupid, even though they act stupid. They got it immediately. They figured this out. They understood Paul. In Corinth, none of these other languages communicates anything to anyone. So, regardless of what language is being spoken, it is of no consequence. The gift is being wasted. What Paul is doing is, he is illustrating his argument for linguistic meaning instead of the gift of tongues.

Why Paul used the optative

1. The first thing which this does is, it is a grammatical jolt.
2. The use of the optative in New Testament times was disappearing; particularly in the 4th class condition. It was being replaced by the subjunctive mood.
3. So this was an unusual grammatical construction for Paul at this time. In itself, this is notable. They look at this twice and they fit it in to the context.
4. What Paul does here is, through the grammar, he gets their attention for his linguistic illustration. He uses grammar to focus on the linguistic illustration. How often have you been struck by the grammar that you read? Maybe never.
5. Secondly, it is not just grammatical. The scenario described by the optative is also very unusual.
6. Here is what Paul does: he takes a real occurrence in this world, many languages, and some of these are being spoken in Corinth. They know it.
7. What Paul does with the optative, he portrays the speaking and the understanding of those languages as only a remote possibility.
8. In this surprising way, he sets the stage for the Corinthians to realize just how silly it would be to speak all the languages in the world without understanding a word of them.

Summary of v. 10

1. All languages communicate thought. They all have meaning. Whatever language a person thinks in is his default language. The better you know a language, the more you are able to think in that language.
2. When people do not speak one another's language, words become a meaningless sound.
3. Thoughts cannot be communicated without the word meaning of the hearers.
4. Bottom line: what good is the spiritual gift of tongues if the words have no meaning.

1Cor. 14:10 There are doubtless many different languages in the world, and none is without meaning,

v. 11 goes with an if. Barbarians spoke a true language, but it was unintelligible to the Greeks. Paul starts right in with a conditional clause. He reverts back to a 3rd class condition. This makes v. 10 stand out like a neon light.

Paul hypothesizes that he does not know the meaning of a language. Not understanding the meaning of a language is what is being communicated here. This futility is communicated by one word here. Βαρβαρος was transliterated into English as Barbarian. It means stammering, re-duplication of a syllable or a sound. The word sounds like someone who is studying. Onomatopoeic word. The naming of a thing based upon the sound associated with it. This is exactly the way that the Barbarian language sounded like to the Greeks. It sounded as if they were just stuttering. It is what a dog hears. He understands the tone of your voice; a few understand a few words. Dogs hear a sound and they associate it with something; but it has no actual meaning for them.

Barbaros came to mean strange speech; one who speaks a strange language. This meant anyone who did not speak Greek. The Greeks were snobs and they were snobs about their language. The Greeks thought very highly of themselves; particularly of their language. A strange race with a strange language. There is a Greek and there is everyone else.

The Corinthians were Greeks and Paul knew how they thought; and they looked down on everyone else who wandered through that seaport of a town. They just sounded like Barbarians to the Corinthians. Non-Greeks speak a strange foreign language which is inferior to Greek.

It is a dative of disadvantage, and it is a dative of disadvantage to hear a language which you do not understand. This was probably Paul's most effective illustration. "You are nothing but Barbarians. You are saying meaningless stuff." What good is doctrine? It is the most important thing in the world.

1Cor. 14:11 but if I do not know the meaning of the language, I will be a foreigner [or, Barbarian] to the speaker and the speaker a foreigner [or, Barbarian] to me.

Paul makes 2 conclusions in vv. 12–13. He not only slaps them in the fact, but he...

Lesson #952*1Cor. 14 Review September 13, 2009*Sunday 1

Communion Sunday

Prophecy edified the entire church; tongues did not. Tongues were a sign of impending discipline and to evangelize those who did not speak the language of the speaker.

Mystery doctrine brought to all believers by the prophet. That was the all-important purpose of the church. Today, the communication gift of prophecy no longer exists. This gift and tongues ceased to function.

God has provided the gift of pastor-teacher for the post-canon portion of the Church Age. The pastor-teacher takes up the mantle of the prophet. Would today that the whole church understood the importance of edification.

There are analogies then presented; the bugle with an indistinct sound causes confusion and even chaos. The illustration refers to the gift of tongues and its failure to edify the church. When tongues speakers are not understood, words become meaningless sounds. What happens? Spiritual chaos; inertia; reversionism. The same thing is true today as it was in Corinth.

The communication of Bible doctrine supercedes all else. When you go to church and you do not get Bible doctrine, then you have been taken for a ride. There is no profit from such a church.

What good is a spiritual gift like tongues if nothing is communicated to anyone? What good is the gift of pastor-teacher if they communicate no spiritual information.

Lesson #953*1Cor. 14:11 September 13, 2009*Sunday 2

The assembly of believers is for the inculcation of doctrine.

V. 11 shows Paul's sense of humor and sense of sarcasm. He uses the word βαρβαρος transliterated as Barbarian. This was a great insult to the Corinthians. The Barbarians were the dregs of humanity. The Greeks were highly cultured; and Greek was the intellectual language of the world. It was the language of literature, poetry and theater. It was the purveyor of that incredible culture. Even the Bible was written in the Koine Greek.

The Greeks used an epithet to refer to someone who did not speak Greek; they were seen as inferior. If they cannot speak our language, they are inferior people. The term Barbarian was an insult. Βαρβαρος was an onomatopoeic word. The Greeks heard them saying bar, bar, bar; so they were called what they sounded like.

The person speaking this unintelligible language was being called by Paul a Barbarian; and this was an insult to a Corinthian. There is no spiritual importance to speaking with unintelligible sounds. They are speaking in a language which does not edify the church.

The Corinthians could not help but understand what Paul was saying. Paul, as a Jew, was the Apostle to the Gentiles; and Peter, the least intellectual of the Apostles, was an Apostle to the Jews. Paul originally probably looked down on the Corinthians, so this might even reveal, to some degree, his previous prejudice.

1Cor. 14:11 but if I do not know the meaning of the language, I will be a barbarian to the speaker and the speaker a barbarian to me.

Paul makes two conclusions in the next couple verses. One aspect of the communicator of doctrine was exhortation.

These Corinthians are jazzed about the manifestations of the Spirit, so Paul says, “Strive to excel in building up the church.”

An interpretive translation: As the person who speaks a language which is do not understand a Barbarian, and he is a Barbarian to me; so it is with you [you’re Barbarians as well].

Paul begins a clause with ἐπι, a causal conjunction. Here, since is a good translation, as it conveys some contingency. It is firmly rooted in reality with a contingency. Ζηλοτης is next used and it means zealous, enthusiastic. Now, there is nothing wrong with being enthusiastic about the proper use of one’s spiritual gift. Now, they are zealots, but it is not about building up the church; it is in showing off. Here is where the sanctified sarcasm is so apparent. Paul calls them zealots, but their desires are wrong; they are not looking to produce divine good but to elevate themselves before others. They are zealots for themselves. They want to be high muckety mucks in their church. The Holy Spirit has given me this great gift, so look up to me. Their motivation is wrong, and there is a supreme irony in desiring an communication gift, where their real desire is to serve themselves. They are serving no one but themselves; they are zealous to improve their own church stature, but have no interest in elevating the church. It is, “Look at me, and this is what I am doing for the church.”

There is no grace in a notice me zealotry. It is the opposite of grace orientation. We are to focus on them and what they are doing. When you are not grace oriented, you do not understand the grace of God, or what you owe by way of obligation to God. When you do not understand grace, you are in the cosmic system.

We are nothing and we produce nothing and we are nothing; all that we produce spiritually is the grace of God; and we are nothing without the grace of God.

These Corinthians understand their faulty motives and they understand Paul’s sarcasm; they know his personality and his sense of humore; and his sarcasm which is used for their benefit.

This is a plea for the Corinthians to renovate their thinking; and this is a plea that all pastors ought to make to their congregation. They are not to speak in tongues where there is no understanding.

Seek to abound in the edification of the church, since you are so zealous to manifest the Holy Spirit. It is not about individual advancement in this life; it is all about the building up of the church and what serves best all believers.

2nd person plural of ζητεω, which is an imperative of command. It means seek. There are no uncertain terms here. Seek and find it [stop wasting your time with your self-centered ambitions]. Since you want spiritual gifts so much, then seek them for the benefit of the entire congregation.

Seek for the purpose that. We have ινα. The subjunctive is contingency; the subjunction is possibility. Περισσω = to be outstanding, to excel. The imperative is also the mood of volition. Whenever you get a command, you can also refuse it. You can refuse a command. They need the right motivation, and the right motivation is to desire the edification of the entire church. Tongues is not about the edification of the whole church; but prophecy is about the edification of the whole church.

Sarcasm and Conclusion

1. The Corinthians are zealots; they are fanatics in some ways.
2. As such, they are excelling at misusing a spiritual gift. They are zealots to be losers.
3. They speak in languages which no one understands. How edifying is that? But they are zealots to do it.
4. They are arrogantly seeking their own glory to do this. Do you see the foolishness of this? Paul is saying, "Do you understand what you are doing?" People at many times have called Berachans zealots; good. You do not have to act like a weirdo. It is all about motivation. Why are you here and are you consistent?

1Cor. 14:12 So with yourselves, since you are eager for manifestations of the Spirit, strive to excel in building up the church.

1Cor. 14:13 Therefore, one who speaks in a tongue should pray for the power to interpret.

1Cor. 14:14 For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays but my mind is unfruitful.

Lesson #954

1Cor. 14:12 September 20, 2009

Sunday 1

Paul is primarily talking about the here and now; what is being done in Bible class.

To this point, Paul has been comparing tongues to prophecy. Tongues does not edify the whole church; it did not then; and it certainly does not now, as it no longer exists. This is all about communication, and some spiritual gifts communicate.

Tongues had a valid purpose at that time; it was for evangelism and it warned the Jews of the impending 5th cycle of discipline.

You may have stumbled into Berachah thinking that there was going to be some nice message about politics or something which interested you; and, if you are an unbeliever, the only issue to you is the gospel.

In the ancient world, they pretty much knew everyone who attended the church, so they recognized new people.

As we move through these next few verses, we will study prayer in tongues, and charismatics have latched on to this and they pray in tongues.

Clearly, prophecy took precedence over tongues. Prophecy edified the church. Prophecy built up the church; it taught mystery doctrine. Edification is hearing and metabolizing that doctrine for the purpose of individual spiritual growth.

There are results of this edification. There is an individual edification for each one of us. But there are results from this. Thinking with a renovated mind; thinking with the mind of Christ.

Edification encompasses the entire spiritual life. It is how you grow and what you do with your spiritual maturity. Therefore, is it any wonder that Paul commends edification of prophecy over tongues?

Interpretive translation.

1Cor. 14:12: So it is with you, you Corinthians; since you are extreme enthusiasts of spiritual gifts, then seek to excel in those gifts for the edification of the whole church.

The operation of your spiritual gift is a result of edification. This is certainly the case of a pastor-teacher. Any pastor who neglects or rejects the primary mission of edification. It starts with the filling of the Holy Spirit, the illumination of the text, and the understanding of the passage before us. Any pastor who does not understand 1Cor. 14, then he is not operating as he ought to.

Barbarians speak languages which are anathema to the Greeks. They are inferior languages to the Greeks, and they see the Barbarian language as mindless speech with little or no meaning.

1Cor. 14:11: Therefore if I do not know the power of the sound, I will be a foreigner to him speaking, and he speaking will be a foreigner to me.

Paul is insulting them in order to teach them. He catches their attention. They need reproof, and Paul does not let up on this. He understands exactly what their purpose is. Paul moves to a devastating insult in v. 12.

Their desire for spiritual gifts is for self-gratification and not for the edification of the church. About this, they are fanatics. They are fanatics of arrogance. There is a supreme irony in desiring a spiritual gift. The idea is, they need to be desiring to serve others and they are really only interested in benefitting themselves.

There are always those vying to be the top dog in this or that church. Not true of Berachah. Or you teach a Sunday School class, and if it is large, you are a big fish. You might never go into the auditorium.

What are you supposed to be doing? Seek to edify the entire church; seek to function with your spiritual gift with the correct attitude and function.

They speak in languages that no one understands and to the edification of no one but themselves. Paul wants the Corinthians to seek to edify others. They are not to pray that they get the gift of prophecy, but for the edification which comes with the gift of prophecy.

Seek to excel with you spiritual gift. Seek to edify the church; seek to function with the correct motivation. This excelling will be to the glory of God.

Bottom line, this is to be for the edification of the whole church. This is the ultimate of this passage; this is what this chapter is all about.

Summary

1. Seek so that you may edify the whole church.
2. The stress is upon the spiritual gifts which are beneficial for the edification of all believers.
3. By application, excel at your own particular gift for the benefit of all. All of the gifts have a purpose with respect to the body of Christ in the church. You must operate so that the team functions to full capacity.
4. Paul is not showing disdain for tongues; nor is Bobby.

1Cor. 14:12: So it is with you, you Corinthians; since you are extreme enthusiasts of spiritual gifts, then seek to excel in those gifts for the edification of the whole church.

1Cor. 14:13 So then he speaking in a language, let him pray that he may interpret.

This was the most difficult verse of this chapter for Bobby to interpret; he had to make many interpretive decisions.

1Cor. 14:14 For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays, but my mind is unfruitful.

One of Gla's songs was a standard for the offering in the 50's. The hymns are designed to mean something to us. The song must require the engagement of the mind. The doctrine of Singing is about to come up. Singing began from the very beginning and it therefore has a place in worship.

1Cor. 14:15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with the mind; I will sing with the spirit, and I will also sing with the mind.

How can anyone say amen but they have no idea what you are saying? How can you affirm their prayer with I believe it, when you do not know what was sung.

1Cor. 14:16 Else, if you bless in the spirit, he occupying the place of the unlearned, how will he say the amen at your giving of thanks, since he does not know what you say?

1Cor. 14:17 For you truly give thanks well, but the other is not built up.

Lesson #955

1Cor. 14:13–14 September 20, 2009

Sunday 2

John chooses songs which coincide with what is being taught. It is not just about the tune, but it is also about what it says.

Everything that we do is designed for edification. This is so that Bible doctrine can enter into our thick skulls and so that we can renovate our thinking.

Paul now goes to a conclusion. To Bobby, this seemed to mean that he speaks in a tongue, then prays in a tongue, and then interpreting it. Paul is promoting understanding.

$\Delta$ io = therefore, for this reason; so, for this reason; it follows from this. This verse does not promote praying in tongues. Speaking in tongues does not equate with praying in tongues. Especially, it does not refer to unintelligible prayer. The gift of tongues was not an exercise in prayer and praise. Tongues did not consist nor did it ever consist of an unintelligible outpouring of worship of God.

Bobby gave a salvation prayer. This was so that unbelievers might hear and understand the gospel and to hear it in its entirety. If Bobby had that gift, he could have said something in a tongue, in a foreign language, and it would have been entirely legitimate. They would have heard a salvation prayer directly in their own language. The gift of tongues, even in prayer, was not an exercise in prayer and praise. The prayer must be understood. What must be done is to pray for edification from tongues, not to pray in tongues. He is to pray for edification because of the use of tongues; but not to pray in tongues.

This refers to the believer with the legitimate gift of tongues, one who speaks in a tongue. It is legitimate here. The tongues-speaking believer is the subject of the sentence. Then there is the verb, the present active imperative of προσευχομαι = to pray. This is an imperative of permission. The tongues-speaker must have an inclination to do so. What ought his preference be? It is not to pray in tongues, but to pray for something.

Here is what the tongues-speaker ought to pray. ἵνα = that. He may interpret.

Tongues and Public Prayer

1. Speaking in tongues without interpretation is not edifying.
2. Tongues is of no use to the church unless it is interpreted.
3. That includes public prayer.
4. The tongues-speaker prays so that what he says might be interpreted. It needs to be interpreted so that it is of value.

Additional Points on Tongues

1. The one who speaks in tongues ought to pray that someone will be on the scene to interpret what he says.
2. Apart from interpretation, there is no communication. This is why reading the Bible on your own is without merit, as it must be interpreted.
3. Apart from interpretation, there is no edification. Hence, the benefit of tongues, as used in the church, depends entirely upon interpretation. This is true inside of the church; but not necessarily true outside of the church. This is how it was used in Pentecost and elsewhere. They are warned and they also hear the gospel.
4. Tongues is not about being demonstrative; or about demonstrative moments without understanding.

1Cor. 14:13 So then [so, for this reason] he speaking in a language, let him pray that he may interpret.

There are hard interpretive choices here in v. 14: what is spirit? What is mind? Here, there is a contrast between spirit and mind; they are not synonymous here.

This is an illustration of prayer. Paul has on and off been using a 3rd class condition; the grammatical indicator of all 3rd class conditions. This is a probable future event along with an element of uncertainty. He is presenting a condition.

They are praying in the power of God the Holy Spirit; and they are interpreting for themselves as they pray; even though their mind is not being used. In effect, they are understanding. Their mind is being used.

The Holy Spirit controls the vocal cords. The tongues speaker might understand himself; he was still speaking in a foreign language.

Suddenly, Paul is talking about praying in tongues; but before he was just talking about speaking in tongues. Paul can speak in tongues; why can't he pray in tongues? It could be a salvation prayer. Or, this could be a prayer of thanksgiving. Whoever the subject of the prayer is, it needs to be interpreted for it to be effective. Same problem for the congregation, whether this is speaking in a tongue or praying in a tongue.

This is a scenario in the 3rd class condition. However, anyone with this gift can do this. This does not mean that Paul expected this of the Corinthians.

Here is the first of the tough questions. What does πνευμα mean? Here, it does not mean to the human spirit. The spiritual intellect of the soul where doctrine is assimilated. The pastor-teacher teaches us and the Holy Spirit also teaches us at the same time. We believe this and it is dropped into the human spirit and cycled throughout the soul. Without it, we cannot understand the raw material of spiritual information.

Why Does Πνευμα not Refer to the Human Spirit

1. If it were human spirit, then this would be synonymous where the spiritual IQ is present.
2. Spirit would therefore be synonymous with the word mind.
3. The spirit would also be synonymous with the mental process of assimilating doctrine.
4. Spirit and mind are being contrasted in this verse; not equated.
5. So the spirit prays in contrast to the mind, which is unfruitful. One is functioning and the other is not.
6. This does not refer to the human spirit as a part of the inner man.

So πνευμα is not the human spirit. Nor is πνευμα used for the seat of emotions; which would indicate that this gift would be used in a state of ecstatic excitement. The praying person would not be communicating but it would be all about feeling. Pneuma cannot refer to the human spirit or to the seat of emotions.

What Does Πνευμα Mean Here?

1. Πνευμα is the Holy Spirit, which is the 3rd way this can be used.
2. The Holy Spirit accomplishes the tongues-speaking; the filling of the Holy Spirit.
3. The Holy Spirit controls the vocal cords.

4. So any speaking in tongues is always accomplished by means of the filling of the Holy Spirit.
5. If a believer prayed in tongues in Corinth, it must be done in connection with the Holy Spirit.
6. The believer speaking in tongues including speaking in tongues in prayer, is the agent of God the Holy Spirit.
7. He is praying using his spiritual gift by means of God the Holy Spirit. In other words, praying in tongues under the power of the filling of God the Holy Spirit.

The problem is not the legitimate use of the prayer; but this benefits no one because no one understand the words. The Spirit prays. This is all legitimate. It is really happening. But the 2nd half of the verse tells us that this person's mind is unfruitful. These words do have meaning, but they must be understood in order to be edified.

Bobby prays at the end, and some of us may let our minds go into neutral. We might just be waiting for the amen at the end, which signifies that we are cut loose from church.

So many times in charismatic churches, even with false gifts, their minds are unfruitful. The congregation gets nothing from the teaching. "You are utilizing your spiritual gift here, but no one is getting it, so it is useless."

1Cor. 14:14 For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays, but my mind is unfruitful.

1Cor. 14:15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with the mind; I will sing with the spirit, and I will also sing with the mind.

1Cor. 14:16 Else, if you bless in the spirit, he occupying the place of the unlearned, how will he say the amen at your giving of thanks, since he does not know what you say?

1Cor. 14:17 For you truly give thanks well, but the other is not built up.

Lesson #956

1Cor. 14:14 September 23, 2009

Wednesday

Seek to excel for the edification of the church. This verse summarizes the whole thing. The gift o tongues was not designed to edify the whole church; they were for a sign, not to those who believe, but to unbelievers (which is not the church). It warned the Jews of the impending fifth cycle of discipline and it evangelized those who spoke other languages. Tongues can be used inside the church and it was valuable for limited edification. The revelation of mystery doctrine, given directly to the one with the gift of prophecy, edifies the church. That is the purpose of prophecy. This chapter commends the gift of prophecy. Edification is the purpose and the mission of the assembly of the church.

The process of edification results in spiritual advance. It also results in virtue love in the soul. It also involved utilizing our spiritual gift as we move toward spiritual maturity. All of this involves glorifying God and the production of divine good.

In commending prophecy over tongues, Paul used several examples. In v. 14, he will give an illustration of using tongues in prayer. In this verse, Paul cites the two elements which are critical in the process of edification. Also, in this verse, the exercise of praying in tongues involves only one of these things.

Interpreting this verse, we need to know, what is spirit, what is mind, and what is an unfruitful mind?

Before we get to those questions, let's address prayer in tongues. This is new in our experience and we have not come upon prayer in tongues. We know that believers in that era did speak in tongues. Now we see how, not only do we speak in tongues, but legitimately pray in tongues.

Paul writes εαν + present active subjunctive of προσυγομαι and we could translate this, if I pray. Paul is capable of praying in tongues, and he has probably has done it many times in the past. Some may have done this as a prayer of thanksgiving or a prayer at the end of a sermon. Paul could pray in tongues for the right reasons and with the right motivation. He is being hypothetical. He is setting up a scenario. He is putting himself in the place of the Corinthians. They know he can pray in tongues and when Paul does it, he does it right. Paul uses himself as the example. He is proposing a hypothetical. If I pray, my Spirit prays. Bobby says this does not refer to some part of the inner man; this is not the spirit of man; this is not the human spirit. We are born with a soul and we are born with a body, dichotomus. However, in some point of time, we are reborn; and are trichotomus. That is the addition of the human spirit. This is not the same human spirit. It is not the same spirit which assimilates pneumatikos when processing doctrine. In this way, it would be someone synonymous with the mind.

I think that Paul is stating a hypothetical based upon things which the Corinthians have been doing. They have been praying in tongues, which is not legitimate; Paul will explain why, but approaching it in a different way.

It is now usable doctrine. When we are filled with the Holy Spirit, we can utilize the doctrine in our souls. If this is the human spirit, these terms are almost synonymous. Spirit and mind are being contrasted and not equated. These things are being contrasted and juxtaposed; and therefore, spirit can only refer to God the Holy Spirit.

Why this is the Holy Spirit

1. This would be the Holy Spirit in us accomplishing prayer in tongues.
2. This Holy Spirit in us accomplishing this prayer
3. Without the Holy Spirit controlling the vocal cords, there is no praying in tongues. If the Spirit does not pray, it would be a phoney exercise.
4. The legitimate prayer in tongues is the believer as the agent of God the Holy Spirit.
5. So, when Paul says, in this scenario, my spirit prays, he is referring to his praying by means of God the Holy Spirit.

6. This makes his prayer in tongues a legitimate use of the spiritual gift. Praying in the Spirit is not the problem here.
7. This means that he is in fellowship and praying under the power of the Holy Spirit. The problem here is introduced by the 2nd half of the apodosis. There is the premise, the statement of fact; the if clause, which is our premise.

Mind is not used as academic knowledge. The specific understanding of νοῦς; it represents a mental process, the use of the mind. Now these are contrasted. There is the filling of the Holy Spirit in prayer and at the same time, you have a mind that is not engaged; it is unfruitful. There is an unfruitful mental process. Ἀκαρπός which means without fruit, unfruitful; unproductive; of no benefit. Since the mind is not involved, there is no benefit. Your mind is unproductive if you do not use it. There is no comprehension in the prayer. The mind is drawing a blank.

Summary points

1. A believer prays in tongues then in Corinth my means of the Spirit.
2. At the same time, in this scenario, his mind is unproductive; it is not operating; it is shut off.
3. So there is no benefit in the prayer; no benefit of us being in Bible class.
4. The Holy Spirit is active in producing the words, but there is no coordination with the mind.
5. The mind is the intellect of the soul where cognition occurs. That is the νοῦς in this case.
6. This is a legitimate gift in its function. This is a legitimate way to use tongues.
7. In spite of the Holy Spirit using this gifted person to pray, it is unfruitful.
8. It is unfruitful because the mind is not employed, even though the vocal cords are producing intelligible words. Those who hear the prayer, and this is a public prayer. This is a public prayer, inside the assembly of the church.
9. Those who hear the prayer do not understand its meaning. They do not understand the language. The mind is unproductive. It is all about understanding; it is all about the doctrine in the soul.
10. There is never any edification without the function of the mind operating. There can be no understanding without the mind; there can be no application of doctrine; no production, no fruit.
11. Doctrine, even in prayer, must be present and understood and resident in the soul.

Bobby does not know what we do when he prays. He always brings in and presents doctrine in the prayer. It is all doctrine; it is all about edification. It is all good because it is all doctrine. The mind must be engaged or it is worthless to us.

This is the same point which Paul has been making over and over again. The spiritual life goes in neutral when believers in the church have no idea what you are saying.

Closing Points

1. It is true that the tongues-speaker understands what he is praying. It does not have to be interpreted.
2. Unproductive does not mean that the one praying does not understand the words. Paul understands the words, but those who hear do not understand.
3. The one giving a prayer in tongues might very well understand what he is saying. However, it is of no benefit to anyone.
4. Paul has been urging us to know what we are saying. There is no renovation of thinking; there is no doctrine being applied.

What if a clergyman prayed publically in Latin? It has been true in the Catholic church for years. They understand the words because they have been trained in the use of this language. They know the language. However, we do not understand the Latin, so the prayer has no benefit for us. We might even know a few of the words, but it is Latin to us, and we do not know what is being said. Maybe we have been taught Latin; maybe we understand Latin. Without the mind in operation, a prayer in Latin or in any other language is ritual without reality. The ritual is taking place, but there is no engagement of the mind.

1Cor. 14:14 For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays, but my mind is unfruitful.

Now we are ready for v. 15 and Paul says he will pray with the spirit and with his mind. Here is the solution; engage the mind the engage the Spirit. Then, out of nowhere, Paul starts talking about singing with the spirit and with his mind.

This is the first time that Paul addresses singing in church as a part of worship in the Corinthian church. This verse is a corrective of the charismatic singing. It is incorrect, and Bobby will point out why.

1Cor. 14:15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with the mind; I will sing with the spirit, and I will also sing with the mind.

Lesson #957

1Cor. 14:14–15 September 24, 2009

Thursday

Paul reveals two elements necessary to utilize the gift of tongues. There are those who pray in tongues. In order to utilize tongues and the spiritual life, you need the Spirit and the mind. Without them operating together, prayer and tongues has no validity. There is no such thing as private prayer with tongues.

Paul uses himself as the guinea pig, presenting himself as the 3rd class condition. This is his hypothetical hypothesis. Undoubtedly, Paul can pray in tongues. This is a condition which does exist. This whole scene is a demonstration to the Corinthians of the futility of the way that tongues is used in their church.

There was certainly someone speaking in tongues in this church and this epistle would have been circulated to other churches as well, since some of them probably faced the same problems.

Paul pounded them with virtue love so that they would know what to do. Paul is taking them to task on edification.

If I pray, my Spirit prays... Pneuma here refers to God the Holy Spirit.

When Paul says my Spirit Prays, he means

1. The Holy Spirit in him accomplishes the speaking in tongues.
2. This accomplishment is by the power or the working of God the Holy Spirit who is vocalizing a prayer in the Spirit through the believer with the gift of tongues.
3. Without the Holy Spirit controlling to vocal cords, producing the unknown language, there is no tongues without it.
4. The legitimate prayer in tongues, only in the 1st century, acting as the agent of the Holy Spirit under the power of the Holy Spirit.

Paul means that he can pray in the power of God the Holy Spirit. In this scenario is a legitimate use of the gift. The Holy Spirit is prompting the vocalizing of the foreign language, which, against, is a public prayer. However, what is not in place is the mind (the νοῦς). The nous is the intellect of the soul. The general understanding of the mental processes where the thinking occurs. The Spirit is at work, but the mind is not. The Corinthians' minds are missing in this exercise.

My Mind is Unfruitful

1. The mind is disengaged; it is in neutral. This happens when we daydream. Engaged minds are concentrating minds. The mind is not concentrating; it is disengaged.
2. When the mind is disengaged, there is no comprehension, which is the name of the game. Edification is always about comprehension. That is what Paul wants to see.
3. The language of tongues is heard; the words do have meaning in that language; and the prayer is delivered in the power of the Holy Spirit. However, the meaning of the prayer to the hearers is not understood, because of the language barrier.
4. Therefore, the mind cannot be in use. If you don't hear, the mind is not in use. If your mind is not engaged, then there is no concentration. The secret to life is concentration. If you can't concentrate on your work, then you are no good at that thing. Even where doctrine is being spoken, without the mind being engaged, there can be no metabolization, no production in the spiritual life, and no point in being there in church. If you get none of this.

In Paul's scenario, 1 of the 2 elements is not enough.

More points

1. The Holy Spirit is necessary for all spiritual functions.
2. But the mind, the intellect of the soul, is also necessary for all activities of the spiritual life. Your mind and your human spirit must be engaged.
3. This is a tandem in the spiritual life which can never be separated.
4. These two things are necessary for gap. This is the foundation of the spiritual life; not just for prayer or tongues.

Paul must be clear.

1Cor. 14:14 For if I pray in a tongue, my Spirit prays, but my mind is unfruitful.

Paul continues his scenario of prayer. He says, what is the outcome, then? What should you do to correct this misuse of tongues in prayer? What do you do in order to correct the problem of no metabolization? Utilize both the Spirit and the mind.

I will pray with the Spirit and I will pray with the mind; I will sing with the Spirit and I will sing with the mind. Singing is just a demonstration of the happiness of God in your soul. Can you demonstrate any doctrine in your soul by song? Did you even know that is what you are supposed to be doing?

In praise and worship services, people jump from song to song without any interval; it is about the song or the beat, but it is not about the content. The music is designed to arouse; to stir emotions; to wake up the crowd. What is wrong with a little song that makes you feel good; that makes you wake up in the morning. Unleashed emotions can quickly get out of hand and your mind is not engaged.

Church growth for these churches is numbers of bodies as opposed to church growth. "Look at me, God; I can feel it?" So what do you know about God? What do you think about God which is the basis for your feelings? Love exists only with knowing who a person is. If love is based upon emotion, then there is nothing else.

We are mandated to reciprocate His love. Love without knowing anything about the object is nothing. There must be content. The object of love must be understood; it must be known and respected. The person producing love must know the object of their love. If your love is emotion only, then you have nothing. Don't call it love; it is nothing but emotion.

Doctrine must be there for the song part of the service. The lyrics must be doctrinal. You can be filled with the Holy Spirit when singing and your mind can be engaged.

The praise and worship movement do not sing those stuffy old hymns. There is a lot of clapping and physical movement, but there is no edification. The Holy Spirit must be involved and mind must be engaged. The praise and worship movement is not worship at all, because edification is missing in action.

Singing is a warm up, and there is doctrine to get in the music. There would be no singing of a song without doctrinal lyrics. That is the whole point of the song. There is nothing wrong with having your emotions stirred by song. Bobby's are stirred, e.g., This is the Day the Lord Has Made. The words stir Bobby, but the music adds impact.

No matter what happens in this world, God's truth abideth still. What comes first is the mind being engaged. That is the right sequence, which is worship.

This is all the divine inspiration of Paul. Nothing works in the spiritual life without the mind and the Spirit.

Many of the songs they sing are music which was well-known, but the words were written in order to have doctrinal impact. Subordinate and responding to doctrine. That is when worship is worship. Singing and emotion in worship without the content of doctrine is exactly the opposite of the thrust of 1Cor. 14. 2000 years before this praise and worship thing got started, Paul addressed it here in this chapter of 1Corinthians.

1Cor. 14:15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with the mind; I will sing with the spirit, and I will also sing with the mind.

Lesson #958

1Cor. 14:14–15 September 27, 2009

Sunday 1

God the Holy Spirit prays through Paul, but his mind—or his thinking processes—is unfruitful; it is disengaged from the prayer being said. With the mind being disengaged, you are no longer able to understand what is being said; so what good is it?

The Holy Spirit is controlling the vocal cords and a foreign language is being spoken through the person praying. Because the minds of the hearers are disengaged, the prayer is of no benefit to them. It does not edify anyone in the congregation.

There is an application is, there is no meaning in prayer or in anything else unless there is perception. There needs to be comprehension in order for there to be edification.

There needs to be an engagement of the mind and the function of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is necessary for every operation of the spiritual life. At the same time, the mind of the soul, the seat of our comprehension, is also necessary. It is applicable to this narrow range of the spiritual life (to prayer), but to all things.

This is a tandem, where the Holy Spirit and the mind are brought together. Metabolizing doctrine requires the filling of the Holy Spirit as well as an understanding of what has been said. The results of edification, which requires the Holy Spirit and the mind. There is no application of doctrine apart from these two things. It must be a Spirit and a mind-function.

Some people in Berachah have left, when they get no doctrine into their souls; and they go to some holy roller church. They do not make application.

Virtue love is not a feeling; it is an attitude; it is a Spirit and mind operation. The effective use of our spiritual gift is a Spirit and mind activity; always. This information is critical to the Christian life.

1Cor. 14:14 For if I pray in a tongue, my Spirit prays, but my mind is unfruitful.

Paul adds that singing is a part of the service. So, you Corinthians, what do you need to do to correct this problem?

Paul will define what is worship and what is edification. This section defines how to worship in the church. It has application to singing, prayer and to the Communion service. It is partially the mind. It is what you know, stupid. It is not your great body movement or loud singing or vocalization of whatever. It is the mind.

The Mind and the Spirit

1. You pray and sing in the filling of the Holy Spirit. You are either in fellowship or you are not. Utilizing the power of the Holy Spirit in everything that we do is a part of that. You sing with a mind which comprehends divine viewpoint. Did you hear the prayer? How many of you looked at the words of A Mighty Fortress is our God? If you looked at those words, you have an overview of the Angelic Conflict and the solution as well. Martin Luther once through an inkwell at the devil (which was probably symbolic).
2. You must think doctrine to worship.
3. That requires edification from communication. Metabolized doctrine to the mentality of the soul.

The use of tongues in Corinth and the use of the false gift today; when doctrine is not communicated and where the mind is not involved, there is no worship. Now we know that we need to use our minds when singing. You do not worship without both.

The words of the songs which we sing are great words; and they have a greater impact when there is music attached to them.

The words of prayer in church must reflect doctrine and it must not be an emotional rant. But prayer can be abused. The pastor who begins with O Jesus! If it is about emotion and not thinking, then it is not worship. There is no reason to arouse feelings without content. Music today stirs the emotions, but there is no content to it. If you sing and the words are secondary and meaningless, then there is no point in singing. It is not worship. The same for prayer. Like prayers in Latin.

We have now been vindicated; we worship as well or better than any other church. And we have real love; we have impersonal love. We understand that and we can metabolize that.

The verses which Bobby begins with are designed to get us ready. These verses are our lives. It is okay to be emotional, as long as it is based upon doctrine.

1Cor. 14:15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with the mind; I will sing with the spirit, and I will also sing with the mind.

Lesson #959

1Cor. 14:15–16 September 27, 2009

Sunday 2

Introductory points on Singing

1. Singing must be coordinated with lyrics and the lyrics must contain clear doctrine. We might hear a tune which reminds us of something; but this is not necessarily indicative of doctrinal information.
2. The doctrine which we hear in lyrics must resonate with what is in our souls.
3. When doctrine resonates with doctrine in the mentality of our soul, we have comprehension and sometimes an emotional response. We all like to feel good; and this is not the point that we ought to go through life without emotions. Emotions respond; they do not lead. When they lead, the mind is disengaged.

We do not sing a lot of the songs in our hymnal. This is because the words of the hymns are doctrinally incorrect. Now, if you have a favorite hymn that we do not sing; then write some doctrinal words for it. Singing is a great way to learn.

Bobby still recalls many of the songs of his youth and they were not doctrinally correct. Many of us can recall music from a long time ago. Bobby used to sing Beatles songs as well as others. Those lyrics were impressed into his brain. This works.

Children were often taught by means of song. Paul is addressing another form of inculcation. In essence, singing is the same as speaking in tongues of that day. Without engaging the mind, the singing is unimportant.

1Cor. 14:15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with the mind; I will sing with the spirit, and I will also sing with the mind.

Paul then gives an illustration. It has become a tradition in the church to end with the word amen. It is rote to everyone. However, it means I believe it.

Paul focuses on the dichotomy between what is being said and what is meant. Unlike v. 15, this continuing scenario returns to v. 14. There are words which are not understood by others, how do we affix an amen to this prayer. Much of what Paul is doing is a scenario.

Eav + the subjective. The vocal cords are controlled by the Holy Spirit and the speaker understands the prayer. But, there is a problem here. The ungifted person, the non-tongues speaker, who hears the prayer, he does not know what is being said. There is no meaning affixed to this prayer; there is no comprehension of what is being said. Here is a believer who fills the place.

Amen is an interesting word which we do not fully appreciate. We use it all the time, every day. It has a meaning from a long time ago.

Amen

1. Amên (ἀμήν) [pronounced ahm-AIN], which means 1) firm; 1a) metaphorically faithful; 2) verily, amen; 2a) at the beginning of a discourse - surely, truly, of a truth; 2b) at the end - so it is, so be it, may it be fulfilled. It was a custom, which passed over from the synagogues to the Christian assemblies, that when he who had read or discoursed, had offered up solemn prayer to God, the others responded Amen, and thus made the substance of what was uttered their own. This is a particle in the Greek.
2. When translating this word from the Hebrew, the scholars of the Septuagint just transliterated this word.
3. Hebrew: 'âmên (אמן) [pronounced aw-MAIN], which means verily, truly, amen, so be it. It is an adverb in the Hebrew. It is based upon the verb Strong's #539 (which means to support, to confirm, to be faithful). Strong's #543 BDB #.
4. A congregation says amen after the thanksgiving prayer.
5. Amen is a positive response of belief at the end of a public prayer. Here, the public prayer was in tongues, so how can anyone say amen? They cannot affirm what they are hearing.
6. To say amen means I believe it, which is just mouthing a religious word, which is meaningless. Let's just say that Bobby prays over a meal, and prays a thanksgiving prayer, but in tongues. But instead of thanking the Lord for the food, he says, "I hope that the jerk at the end of the table chokes on his meal." He doesn't understand it, but he says "Amen" or let it be so.

You cannot simply say, I believe it when you do not know what it is.

1Cor. 14:16 Else, if you bless in the spirit, he occupying the place of the unlearned, how will he say the amen at your giving of thanks, since he does not know what you say?

1Cor. 14:17 For you truly give thanks well, but the other is not built up.

Lesson #960

1Cor. 14:15–17 September 30, 2009

Wednesday

MP3 of 3 hours of the believer's relationship and responsibility to government.

Rebound is so that we can spend more time in fellowship. It is an indicator of our spiritual maturity. It is the grace of God extended toward us. Our obligation is to continue to grow and to maintain the filling of the Spirit as long as you can.

You need both the mind and the Holy Spirit when it comes to praying.

1Cor. 14:15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with the mind; I will sing with the spirit, and I will also sing with the mind.

A prayer of thanksgiving done in tongues, and Bobby says that this is a legitimate use of the gift of tongues, how will the person who does not know what you are saying, how does he say, amen to what you say? The hearer does not comprehend the prayer in tongues. It has meaning in the language it is given in, but no one around you is edified if they do not understand what is being said.

Basically, this chapter is all about edification, which is all about hearing, metabolizing and applying the Word of God. That is edification. The overall name for this would be, edification. That is what is happening right now. The basis of edification is comprehension. That is what 1Cor. 14:3–5 are all about. This is reciprocal love. This is also Christian production of divine good. In general, it is glorifying to God. Edification is what the spiritual life is all about. If Bobby was teaching a class to prospective pastors, the missing word is edification. What do you think your job is as a pastor-teacher? There is one primary answer to this; a pastor's job is to edify. Edification is the defining word of the spiritual life.

1Corinthians has been one of the great discovery books for Bobby. This is the defining word of the spiritual life. Edification cannot take place unless the words of doctrine are understood in language which can be comprehended. That was not happening in Corinth. But, they spoke in tongues and they did so legitimately. Paul clearly states that the edification of the body of Christ comes from comprehended words. This is why Paul focuses throughout this chapter between what is being said in tongues and what is understood.

The Corinthians are misusing tongues, even though this was an important gift in the early church. It had become a basis for pride and showing off. There was some edification involved in tongues, and one of those circumstances was evangelizing foreign believers. Those who wandered in or were curious or whatever. Undoubtedly, tongues could be used inside the church, although most of the time, this was used outside the church. When you hear the gospel, you are hearing basic soteriological doctrine. What value was tongues for the other believers in the church, who had no idea what was being said. The value was in the interpretation of what was being said. Only when these tongues were interpreted did they get any benefit from hearing the soteriological doctrine being spoken.

When you have the opportunity to witness, some of you say, "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and now I am out of here." Talk with them further about reconciliation or redemption or propitiation. You don't need to use those words.

The gift of tongues was impressive because you got to see the work of the Holy Spirit in someone who did not speak this or that language.

In vv. 14–16, there is the concept of praying in tongues. It is the Holy Spirit Who produces the vocalizing. Without the Holy Spirit, there is no tongues. Productive in comprehension of what is being said. First being in fellowship and secondly comprehending what is being said and implanting this in your soul. That is fundamental to all that we are as believers in Jesus Christ. It is not just about tongues but it is all about edification. This is about our spiritual life completely. How does prayer in tongues provide edification?

1Cor. 14:16 Else, if you bless in the spirit, he occupying the place of the unlearned, how will he say the amen at your giving of thanks, since he does not know what you say?

When you are giving thanks in a tongue, you are doing fine, but the other person is not edified.

Introductory Points on Praying in Tongues

1. The prayer of the one speaking in tongues is a valid prayer to God.
2. His gift of tongues is being utilized by God the Holy Spirit.
3. The Holy Spirit prays in him or through him. He is the agent of God the Holy Spirit.
4. The Holy Spirit controls his vocal cords so that the message in a different language has meaning.

How can you say amen to a prayer you do not understand? That makes no sense. Edification comes only through comprehension. If you listened to Bobby's prayer, you heard some doctrine, and you have heard some thanksgiving for all that God has done for us. In Corinth, the gifted person is speaking in the power of the Spirit. Yet, he can only edify himself. The other man is not edified, which is not what ought to be the case.

The group of men which Bobby assembles with, almost always begin their prayers of intercession with thanksgiving first. They thank God for His grace and for His love and for some doctrine they are learning. This brings to mind the same Bible doctrines as they are mentioned. Bobby is personally edified by thinking because he is thinking Bible doctrine. Therefore, at the end of the prayer, Bobby can silently say, amen. Concentrate on what is being said. A prayer of thanksgiving.

Concentration on the prayer and understanding what you are saying amen to is key to this. V. 17 tells us that we cannot join in on prayer in another language. We need to know what is actually being said.

The first time that Bobby heard amen in the middle of a service, it scared him as a little kid. He thought something was wrong, because no one at Berachah said that. Now, shouting out amen is either an emotional response or someone playing spiritual king of the hill. In any case, no one is edified by this amen. Is there any thought when you pray, including the saying of the amen? If you don't think when you pray, then there is no edification. No thinking makes this simply a ritual. The more amen's you hear, the louder they shout, the less meaningful it is.

1Cor. 14:17 For you truly give thanks well, but the other is not built up.

In v. 18, Paul is not bragging, but stating a fact. "I speak in tongues more than you all." You might think that Paul is belittling the Corinthians but his intent was never to denigrate this gift. Bobby is not denigrating the gift of the tongues. Those who use the gift today are deluding themselves and there is no comprehension of what they are saying.

Now, why would Paul thank God for this gift? Because he uses the gift and within its divinely prescribed parameters. It makes sense that Paul would have many reasons to use this gift. Paul had an occasion to speak to more Jews and to be thrown out of more synagogues than anyone else in history. He had maximum contact with them, and this was a sign gift which warned the Jews. Paul is an evangelist, and this is a part of his mission; and he is a purveyor of the mystery doctrine of the Church Age. He is by far the greatest writer of the New Testament and he used this gift as a part of his church planning. Paul was itinerant; he was a wanderer. He could not complete his mission without it. It is all about edification. Finally, Paul's affirmation gave added authority. Have you ever spoken to someone who is a complete novice in a subject and he is trying to tell you all about it? Paul knows all about what he is speaking. He is an expert. He spoke in tongues more than anyone else in history. What Paul has to say on this subject carried weight. We listen when Paul speaks on this or any other subject. Clearly, Paul has enthusiasm for tongues. But this is all about edification. It is always about edification. Communication is always about edification. If your mind is not engaged, whatever is being said, it is all pointless.

1Cor. 14:18 I thank God that I speak in tongues more than all of you.

Lesson #961

1Cor. 14:18–19 October 1, 2009

Thursday

MP3 special the Christian's responsibility to government.

Whenever you are thankful for something, you thank God. He is the source for our life, our eternal life and our eternal future.

Paul certainly had all of the communication gifts. He also spoke in tongues, which was a communication gift. Paul is in fact the epitome of an itinerant evangelist. He was on foot a lot and on a ship on several occasions; and wherever he went, he used this gift of tongues as a part of his evangelistic ministry. And wherever he evangelized, he also organized a local church. We are still doing what Paul organized in the past. There were many languages which Paul came in contact with and he needed to be able to communicate with such people. So Paul could say, "I speak in tongues more than all of you" because of the nature of his ministry.

There were other things which Paul did with the gift of tongues. Paul ran into Jews all over the Roman world as well. Wherever he went, Paul could speak in tongues, which was the sign of God's great displeasure. Paul had a great burning desire among the people. Here was a man who was a rabbi; he knew all of the prophetic passages. He knew that everything pointed back to Jesus Christ. It was sad for Paul to see his people reject Jesus Christ. Paul, with tongues was able to proceed to one of the more pleasant of tasks, which was tongues. Paul could teach basic doctrine in tongues. There would be new converts and he could give them basic doctrine in their own language. The Apostle Paul spoke in tongues more than anyone else, which is what we would expect. And Paul used the gift correctly and the results of the use of this gift were spectacular. Paul was enthusiastic and he knew the Corinthians were enthused about this gift, but for the wrong reasons. They had forsaken the clear purpose of the gift. "I've got the gift and I am going to just let it rip." What a caricature of the proper use; what a farce. They were smugly superior in their use. The gift of tongues was just one manifestation of the misuse of their gifts.

Paul will place a restraint on the use of tongues, which would apply to all other churches and would apply to us by way of application. What we are to learn is, edification is all-important. We do not have prophecy or tongues today, but we do have the gift of pastor-teacher, and edification through his teaching is what is all-important. Anytime a believer rejects or neglects doctrine, or refuses to concentrate on the Word of God or to make the Word of God his top priority, he fails in his primary obligation to the Lord. We fail daily, but this is a failure in the big picture. Engaging your mind in Bible doctrine is what comes first.

The point of contention which Bobby has run into, what is it with this Bible doctrine all the time? Aren't there other things in the Christian way of life? Bible doctrine is the top priority; it results in edification, in virtue love, in Christian production. You need to get out there and do something.

1Cor. 14:18 I thank God that I speak in tongues more than all of you.

Paul gives us the setting: in the church. Paul is talking about the gathering of believers, and it was probably small groups. No idea how many met, or how many groups there were, and where exactly they met (except, most of the time, it appears as if they were in people's homes). Paul would rather speak 5 words with his mind (speaking what he understands) as opposed to speaking 10,000 words in a tongue. When Bobby sees a passage like this, he understands this to refer to hyperbole. It just smacks you in the face. Speaking with his mind, 5 words is better than speaking 10,000 words spoken in a tongue. It is more meaningful to say the Word of God is alive than to speak for an hour or two in tongues. This is a focus on speaking a few words of doctrinal principle over a mountain of meaningless words. This was the priority of the church.

When Paul spoke in an assembly, bar, bar, bar would not cut it. The Corinthians hated the Barbarians, but loved speaking their language in church. There are so many Christians today who want to do the exactly opposite of what Paul is commending to us. They would rather speak on and on and on in pretends tongues than to hear the power of Bible doctrine.

If I have this gift, I am better than you. That is the thinking of a child. That sort of thing was rampant in the early Corinthian church and today in charismatic churches.

Instead of speaking in the gift of tongues, just get a little doctrine. Do not worry about your own status in the church. Think about your status in the Lord. The focus is on the divine truth that he speaks, so that the Corinthians will stop thinking like children.

With children, you need to communicate with them with very few words.

When Paul says with my mind, Paul is clearly instructing. 5 words of doctrinal instruction is better than 10,000 words which are not doctrinal.

Edification is about inculcation. Paul had it all in perspective. Obviously, tongues is not the real means of spiritual growth. Every gift has a place and a purpose and it all has to start somewhere. Paul was refuting the use of tongues in the church. Paul did not prohibit the speaking of tongues in church, but he required that stuff spoke in tongues were interpreting. There needs to be mental engagement and that only occurs with the meaning of the words.

1Cor. 14:19 Nevertheless, in church I would rather speak five words with my mind in order to instruct others, than ten thousand words in a tongue.

Brothers, do not be children in your thinking. This means being mature; it is an engaged mind; it is a mind with thinks Bible doctrine. There are real and deep thoughts and this is the property of an adult. Mental acuity is adult. The believers in Corinth were essentially children.

Paul is separating the girls from the boys, the men from the women. Paul might as well insert Rom. 12:2 here. And do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renovation of your mind. This is synonymous to, in your thinking, be mature. They are being called to be transformed from human viewpoint to divine viewpoint. That is going from being immature to mature.

Renew your thinking, which is done by the filling of the Holy Spirit and by engaging your mind in the consumption of Bible doctrine. Οικοδομη. Bobby remembers going into chapel and they went there 3 times a week. Bobby loved it to hear the cornucopia of speakers that they had, with all kinds of viewpoint and some were good and some were not so good. Bobby would never forget: Preach the Word and the other was Pray without ceasing. Most of them just did not get it. Every form of some social life with young people.

Bobby was sitting at breakfast and he heard a Christian group of kids pray, "Oh, Lord, let me serve You." He wanted to go over to them and say, "Do you have any idea how to do that?"

Individual believers are the church and we make up the body of Christ. We make up the church and we must be edified.

Every word in the Bible has pregnant meaning; it is filled with meaning. Paul softens his biting, caustic verb which will follow. He says, brothers, γίνομαι μη. You speak to your children in a pleasant tone, but you want them to get it. Paul uses an imperative of entreaty; he is appealing to them. It is like speaking to children. They are spiritual children. Do not become παιδια. These are not children; they are infants. He has already called them νηπιος. They are unable to take in anything but milk. Paul has to spoon-feed them.

Paul's child illustration here is perfect.

1Cor. 14:20 Brothers, do not be children in your thinking. Be infants in evil, but in your thinking be mature.

Lesson #962

1Cor. 14:20 October 4, 2009

Sunday 1

Bobby suggests a slightly different word order: Brothers, do not be children in your thinking, but be mature in your thinking; but, in evil, be babes. This does not mean that we ought to be naive. This is a very edifying juxtaposition which Paul presents. In this context, this is the direct appeal to every believer to advance to spiritual maturity. This is our obligation before the Lord; to not be children in our thinking. This verse defines spiritual maturity and it defines the process of maturity.

Spiritual maturity is a way of thinking. It is a maturity of mind developed through Bible doctrine. Without the mind engaged, there can be no spiritual maturity. Unlike what much of Christianity believes, spiritual maturity begins with how you think, not with what you do. You do not put the cart before the horse. Believers do not get Bible doctrine. Spiritual maturity is the definition of what you do and how you do it.

Rom. 12:2: in the end, it is mature thinking equated with spiritual maturity. And do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renovation of your thinking. Human viewpoint is conforming to this world. Transforming the mind is how you become a spiritual adult. That is the process of becoming mature. That is the process of developing divine viewpoint in the soul. It does not just sit there as academic knowledge, but it is applied to every aspect of your life. There is a choice involved in this transformation from child to adult. God has given us volition, so we have a free freewill. We can make a choice as anyone can.

Present active imperative of one of the verbs to be, γίνομαι+μη which is be not. This imperative is a command. When you command someone, it is in the imperative mood. Here, this is an entreaty. He is allowing for volition. He is speaking as a parent might speak to children. Without a doubt, Paul is speaking to spiritual children. He calls them this very term: παιδια, which means spiritual infants. Paul uses a designation like this throughout this epistle. In 1Cor. 3:1, he calls them νηπιος, which means babies, those who can only take milk but cannot ingest solid food. They are not even out of diapers. They are spiritually irresponsible. At one time, as Paul was there, they are progressing to toddlers. However, during the interim, they are reverting to childhood. There is a lack of mental engagement in Corinth. Without the mind being engaged, there is no spiritual growth. Paul entreats them not to remain in this status.

However, he is not verbally spanking them here; he is trying a different tactic here. This is a tactic often used with children. Paul is the parent and they are the children. Paul is taking the time to sit down with the child.

This is the time out, which is a time during which they need to cease what they are doing. Paul is going to stop them, explain to them what is wrong, and then give them time to think about it.

Children place value upon things which are not good for them; they have propensity to go for that which is not good for them. They have a comparative innocence. There is really no malice intended in their little souls. They unquestionably have a sin nature.

For the young child, there is a naivete which stays with them as long as we can allow them to retain it.

The Corinthians want exactly what is of no benefit to them. Tongues over prophecy; incomprehensible words over edification; arrogance over humility. Paul is a parent to us as well. We are all children who need to learn; who need to be trained.

Children also compete for attention, and when they do not get enough attention, they let us know via the sin nature in their lungs. This is all a part of the immaturity of a child.

In Corinth, this would be the childish believer desiring a gift which God did not give them. Or, a believer who would show off his gift, the gift of tongues, to try to place himself over others, to gain attention for himself.

No one is actually benefitting from the use of this gift. They are acting like children and they want what they do not have; they are napios and paidion and they think themselves to be superior over their brothers. It is like the little child with a new toy who lords it over his siblings. Probably many of these Corinthians had children and Paul is drawing parallels which they may not like. These Corinthians are demanding children, screaming for that which is not theirs. There is a mindlessness; there is a lack of thought. There is no development of a sophisticated spiritual life. There is no sophistication of thought in a child; for a child, it is all about them. This can make a child into an arrogant monster if he does not have any training.

These Corinthians are in a state of emotional revolt, like the screaming child in an emotional tirade. These Corinthians are very irritating to all around them. No doubt you have been in a plane with screaming children, and it is irritating. And this is like being in Corinth. Pastors, prophets and evangelists have been irritated and even run out of town by the Corinthians.

It would be easy for Paul to proclaim these people at Corinth as incorrigible and just let them go. But Paul stays on this child. A parent never throws in the towel and says, "This kid is hopeless; just let him have his way." Paul's love for them is a vested interest in their lives.

How does the Apostle Paul accomplish this? And how can a parent apply this? A child must respect you. A child must have respect for you. You must understand. Authority-orientation is an indispensable characteristic of a mature believer. There is a whole generation which has grown up thinking that material things are indispensable. That is self-centered arrogance. It is a sentence to lifelong immaturity. We have a pack of babies running loose in this country. All they are looking for is what they can get for themselves; and they have no integrity. I want what I want and I want it now.

We walked into Berachah at one time as a child believer. We have engaged our minds and we took it in. Sometimes, we did not like it. There is a whole group who sat in Berachah and decided that they did not like it. Maturity requires that you metabolize doctrine. Otherwise, doctrine is meaningless.

You have to think doctrine; and you have to think with the mind of Christ. Paul is dedicated to parenting these children. They will do whatever it takes in order for their children to do well in life. You must give a child norms and standards and integrity. Otherwise, they will end up in self-centered arrogance.

It is all about divine viewpoint; it is all about the mind of Christ. That is what real life is for us; it is a spiritual life. This is the adulthood which Paul wishes for the Corinthians. Paul does not want his children to learn the hard way. It is easiest to learn this academically, as opposed to learning things by hard knocks.

The congregation of a church is very much like raising a child. "I entreat you to take advantage of the truth of Bible doctrine which is being taught." You must be a part of the pivot which brings great blessing to the nation in which we live.

1Cor. 14:20 Brothers, do not be children in your thinking. Be infants in evil, but in your thinking be mature.

Lesson #963

1Cor. 14:20 Eph. 6:1–2, 4 October 4, 2009

Sunday 2

Bobby has been accused of not having any experience in this or that area; and therefore, is unable to teach about this. Bobby had 2 of the greatest parents; and there are a lot worse people that you could emulate. Bobby can teach and apply the doctrine from what he knows.

Brothers, do not be children in your thinking, but in your thinking, be mature. Be infants in evil. We all began as children; literally and spiritually. When we first walked into Berachah, we knew nothing. The potential for a thought process was there, but there needs to be information.

The watchword for children is “grow up.”

Spiritual parenting is Bobby’s responsibility. The acts of the Corinthians are not glorifying God; they are involved in all sorts of adolescent behavior. It is all about how you think. Mature believers are not in denial; they see the world for what it is. Turning on the news on tv is a great way to see if you are mature. The angelic conflict is in full force. We as believers in Jesus Christ have the solution. We are the solution. Why do you hear TalkRadio and go into work out of fellowship? Why do you wait for hours to have your say? Thinking with divine viewpoint is maturity. You can evaluate your own maturity. We have spent months on virtue love. 1Cor. 13 was the greatest application of doctrine to life; virtue love in the soul.

The little child has no capacity to respond to love with love. You cannot make a child love you. They lack the capability to love you. They can and will respond to parental authority. Or, if there is nothing to respond to, then they react. We exert our authority in a loving way; not with brutality and anger. There must be discipline and care and encouragement. You have got to train your child knowing that he has a sin nature. You have to punish and they must have discipline; and you must respect that. Virtue love is patient and it is kind. It is the very first quality which we study in virtue love.

Virtue love does not lose its temper or abuse its authority. Abuse of authority will cause a child to hate all authority. That is what we have in this country; a contempt for authority.

Love is just as real in discipline as well as in encouragement. Discipline prepares a child for an authority oriented life.

There are no consequences any more in our schools, which means there is no discipline. Do not look for reciprocal love in your children. It is only appreciated for its results. That is when the children appreciate it and they develop a stable, well-disciplined adulthood.

When you bring a child to maturity, oriented to authority, they have the ability and capacity for love. The maturation process requires discipline for enforced humility and for obedience. Parental authority must be just, thoughtful and fair. Authority must be exerted, but never with brutality. It should happen in such a way that a child will decide on his own to obey. Virtue love brings an appeal to the child. The love and discipline brings a later gratitude and appreciation. Obedience must be, at times, enforced with punishment. When you do not punish, you are neglecting the training of your child. You can look around and see what that does to a child.

Paul understood literal children and spiritual children as well. This is our responsibility. Children do not obey naturally. That is a parental responsibility. You must demand and expect obedience.

You must be spiritual maturity as well. Babies raising babies does not work.

Eph. 6:1–3 Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right. "Honor your father and mother" (this is the first commandment with a promise), "that it may go well with you and that you may live long in the land."

Do not exasperate their little souls. Unreasonable demands, petty rules, favoritism, discouragement. It is very easy to discourage a child. Injustice and brutality. You can never afford to be brutal.

The most important training for a child is spiritual. Without spiritual training, Bobby would not be here. It is critical. Bobby thanks God for his spiritual training and he always knew what was right, even when he did not do it. Spiritual training is the greatest training in life. It imposes absolute standards. Do you think you can get divine standards from anywhere else? It imposes divine establishment norms. It imposes self-discipline.

Eph. 6:4 Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord.

The parallel verse is Prov. 22:6: Train up a child in the way he should go; even when he is old he will not depart from it. Training up a child is spiritual training. To receive a child is a responsibility from the Lord. Then it is our responsibility to commit that child to the ways of Bible doctrine.

This is not a promise that the child will not choose a different way. All children have volition, and as they grow to maturity, the cosmic system is strong and tempting. Negative volition often kicks in when a parent exasperates his child. Wisdom, virtue love, and spiritual maturity will last for the lifetime of a child. Whether they use it or not, it is there.

Some of us were trained in Bible doctrine and you forgot all about it when you left the house; and God brought you back. There is nothing for the believer apart from the spiritual life. In all else in life, radiates the discipline and instruction of the Lord. It is always a tempered discipline. It does not provoke and it does not exasperate.

There is quite a controversy alive and well today about spanking a child. Some call it abuse. Bobby is not going to tell you to spank or not to spank; but you must punish a child when they do something and how you do it should be effective. Bobby was never spanked apart from certain guidelines.

Guidelines for Spanking

1. The parent administering the punishment must be in control of himself. Free from emotional outrage and sins of arrogance. You cannot translate to a child rage and emotion when you spank them.
2. Never react in anger and slap a child. That provokes them to anger.
3. You must gather all of the facts which lead to the punitive action. The child will remember. "Wait till your father gets home."

4. The parent must administer punishment on the basis of the nature of the child's transgression. The punishment must fit the crime.
5. The parent must not over punish for petty failures. Then it becomes abuse, unfairness and injustice. Unjust punishment negates the training principle. This is all about training and teaching. This is why you do not do it while angry. It is a part of teaching and training. Bobby never got a spanking unless he knew exactly what he did wrong and had time to think about it. If you don't get it that way, then God gives it to us through spanking.
6. Before the punishment, carefully explain the reason for it. Punishment is counter-productive without the teaching principle of correction. Bob sat Bobby on his knee, and he told him about 3 times what he did wrong. Then, acknowledge. "This will hurt me more than it hurt you." Then he spanked, and then Bobby sat on his knee until he stopped crying.
7. In the administering of the punishment, it must hurt but it must not be brutal nor should it be harmful. A belt buckle should not be used. After the child is 12 years old, forget it. There are other ways after that. You must discipline them to teach authority-orientation.

Some children are great negotiators and try to do a trade-off. Do not listen to them. Do you think that you can reason with a child? You are kidding yourself. Whether it be your child or the Lord spanking you, it is all done for the proper training. God does it for our blessing.

There is another aspect, which is the instruction of the Lord, which is a part of our responsibility as parents. This includes our leadership, and that requires to set an example. It must be more than teaching and punishment. If you do not care one bit for the Word of God, the children will pick up on that. If you only drop them off at prep school, and don't go to Bible class, the kid will pick up on it.

1Cor. 14:20 Brothers, do not be children in your thinking. Be infants in evil, but in your thinking be mature.

Lesson #964

1Cor. 14:20 October 7, 2009

Wednesday

Now in the shadow boxes, there are letters written to Bobby about Bob.

The watchword for all of us is, in your thinking, be mature; but in evil, be infants. We all grow physically; we may or may not grow mentally and emotionally. We must be mature in the spiritual life, but immature with regards to the cosmic system. Babes in evil is a hallmark of spiritual maturity. Divine viewpoint versus human viewpoint. God's plan all wrapped up in this one verse.

The Corinthians are children. They are doing exactly the opposite of what Paul is exhorting here. However, they have accelerated their human viewpoint thinking. Where believers are immature, they are often analogous to real children. They are only aware of themselves and their wants. "I want what I want when I want it." This showed up in their everyday lives in the church. Those who spoke in tongues just knew that they were far superior to their non-tongues speaking brothers. They see themselves as being self important. A baby does not see himself as self-important; he just screams and becomes the most important person in the room. Our churches are operating on an infantile way. They are certainly unresponsive to the teaching of Bible doctrine.

So many believers are trying to dominate their church and those in the church on the basis of their spiritual gift. This is ridiculous, but that is what is going on in the Corinth church. Consistently, they seek their own way, and their sin natures control them. They are relegated to a lifelong immaturity.

A little humility and where does that come from? From a little doctrine. That is the only thing which gets them out of the trap of self-centered arrogance. In Bible class, we are constantly being trained.

In a military unit, we are constantly being trained. We are soldiers; we are spiritual soldiers, and the training never stops. If the training stops, we get stale and we lose our edge.

A believer who does not grow to maturity is, at best, feckless. Children do not respond well to leadership, either to parents or to any other authority in their life; and as a result, they are unhappy, feckless misfits. Believers under these circumstances will not submit to the Word of God; wives will not follow the leadership of their husbands. Husband have no idea how to lead, or to exhibit virtue love in their relationship. As children, no one can tell someone without authority orientation what to do. Whose plan is it? We have volition and we have Bible doctrine.

This is how Paul is treating the Corinthian believers. They are children in their thinking. They are without divine viewpoint. They have no humility and no virtue love.

Paul exhorts them and he entreats them. He wants them to grow up and to learn the Word of God. This requires some authority-orientation. This is the only way they can live a mature spiritual life. We live in Satan's world. We are surrounded by the cosmic system. We are born with a disadvantage. Now we have a chance. Now we have an advantage.

If we are every going to grow out of a spiritual infancy, we must develop authority orientation. A mistaken parent wants his children to love them; but that is the incorrect approach. You need for the child to respect you.

Grow up, for your own sake and for the sake of the One Who bought us. Not becoming mature in our thinking is a bad choice.

Paul treats the Corinthians as children. Bring them up in the discipline and the instruction of the Lord. This is not just for children. This is a guideline for parents as well. This is for us; not for the infant. Children do not have a natural inclination to honor their parents. The instruction of the Lord. The spiritual training is the greatest training in life. There is all kinds of training. As parents, we want our children prepared for life. We would like to see them understand and to be prepared for life. But spiritual training is the most important training that we can give them. Bring them up in the instruction of the Lord, which is the only thing which gives them absolute norms.

It is possible to get some norms from the secular world, but the only way to get absolute norms in this life is by Bible doctrine training.

To bring a child into this world is a responsibility before God. Then you must commit the child to the ways of Bible doctrine through training. They must come to a point where they want to obey. It may not happen every time, but it will happen. They will learn that obedience to parents is often the best course of action. They have to see that this is to their best interest.

For the child, doctrine must be the center of our life. If it is not the center of our life, then it is not the center of their life.

Just trying to be friends with your child on an equal footing means that you are not fulfilling your responsibility as a parent. How does your absolute authority translate to them? They will never truly understand authority orientation until they understand absolutes over relativity.

Leadership requires setting an example. Children do understand hypocrisy. They may not know the name of it, but they understand do as I say, not as I do. Children are parrots when it comes to their parents. What you say has some impact; but your actions have much more impact. If you have little interest in the Word of God, expect them to show in interest in the Word of God too.

In the military, where Bobby was in command, they all looked to get away with whatever they could get away with; where did he have weakness? Leaders who put their feet up on the desk and think they are directing everything look like fools to their underlings.

If a child sees your love of God's Word and your maturity and your relaxed mental attitude under pressure, that impresses everyone. Bobby will never forget his father under pressure. No one was cooler when a fight was to break out; no one was tougher. Bob was always a leader. He understood and he had a relaxed mental attitude under pressure. He lived and he died with the impact of Bible doctrine on his soul.

Virtue love is the secret to life and the secret of parenting. Virtue love in parenting is critical. As a parent, you do not give up your authority; but you still exercise virtue love. If you give a child standards, they have a chance.

Bobby is looking at several who have strayed, and they learned and are in Bible class. Train up your children by living what you want them to be. If you do not have doctrine in your soul, you cannot train them up.

It is not just about getting your kids to prep school. That is important; but you need to train them as well. It is important that you teach your child in the home. Instruction is observing us and our love for Bible doctrine.

In leadership, you do not jam doctrine down their throats. Many a child in Berachah Church has rebelled for that reason. Set the example, convey the importance and teach. Some of you may think that Bobby was in class every time; he was made to attend Sundays and the teen class. But Bob did not jam it down his throat.

You do bring them when they are younger, but at some point, you let them make their own decisions. If you start early and give them doctrine, and teach them the way in which they should go, and you let their free will play out. Bobby did not make all good decisions. Do not worry about the child's love for you. It is training and more training. The child's love, if you do your job, will come later; that is when that happens. Then they can reciprocate parental love. Loving God does not come naturally for believers. After saying, "Father, I believe" is not an immediate capacity for love.

Children have to develop a capacity to love. It is not innate in us or in children. Self-centered arrogance is innate. That is what must be trained and disciplined. They will have a self-centered sin nature. They need to be trained to have some humility. The best way is to get them authority oriented. The opposite of arrogant self-centeredness. In humility, you think about others; not just yourself. You go from self-centeredness to humility.

Your parents being the renovation of your life when they give you doctrine. First there is forced humility and then there is doctrinal orientation. We have plenty of misfits in the spiritual life. Maybe a particular doctrine rubs you the wrong way; that you have a hard time with because it is your area of weakness. The Word of God is absolute authority. The extent to which you are not authority oriented, to that extent you are immature.

All of this is Paul's analogy.

Lesson #965

1Cor. 14:20 October 8, 2009

Thursday

we are only doing the first part of v. 20.

Summary

1. This is Paul's illustration of raising these children in Corinth in the way that they should go. He is aware of Prov. 22:6 he has been training them. He is teaching them to be mature in their thinking.
2. In the illustration, Paul makes a comparison. He compares physical growth in children with the progress of spiritual growth in immature believers. This is especially true in the mentality and the thought process. As you grow up, you can think in great categories. Our mental process becomes more and more sophisticated as we get more experiences in life. As we learn more doctrine and apply it more leads to sophisticated thinking in the spiritual life. Only the mature believer can think with divine viewpoint, which is sophisticated thinking in the spiritual life. We can think with the mind of Christ, which is the thinking of Christ.

3. Just as a child matures through training, child maturing through training under parental authority, and develops a mental capacity in particular a mental capacity to love in such a way that is not competitive and self-centered. The believer matures thinking divine viewpoint under the authority of Bible doctrine as taught by the pastor-teacher. That is our progress of spiritual maturity. A child matures in training, and we do as well.
4. The immature believer who thinks with human viewpoint is going to receive admonition from Bible doctrine as taught by the pastor. Bobby only admonishes us when the Bible tells him to admonish us. Part of our training is receiving divine discipline when necessary. Divine discipline is designed to hurt but also to change our attitude; and the way we think. Discipline from the Lord is about changing your thinking. We are renovated through our thinking.
5. And that is the means of developing the mind of Christ in us and capacity for reciprocal love for God. Thinking in categories of virtue love. It requires thought to reciprocate the grace and great love of God. It is always about the mind. Mature relationships are all about thinking.
6. Training in doctrine, reproof and correction in righteousness develops mature thinking.
7. Maturity is the depth of doctrinal thought. How deep does it go? Is it a surface thing? It is all about depth of thought. When it saturates your entire soul, your thinking is mature. We train for combat all of the time and we are involved in the Angelic Conflict.
8. Maturity is also a mind that understands all aspects of real love. Love is one of the hardest things for us to recognize. Personal love for God and people and impersonal love toward people. The greatest spiritual relationship with God because we know His Word. Parenting is one of the great applications of virtue love. You must have virtue love in order to train them correctly.

a thought process predicated by Bible doctrine. Paul is one of the great examples of thinking which is mature. With divine viewpoint, he is beyond compare.

Do not be children in your thinking, but be children in evil. A spiritual baby thinks with human viewpoint. He has not learned anything else in training. On the other hand, it takes training to be children when it comes to avoiding evil, which we know as the cosmic system.

I want you to grow up spiritual, but I want you to be novices in the realm of evil. So many times in the Christian world, some people just put on blinders so that they do not see evil and sin. He does not want believers to view the human race as good. We are not good; we are depraved. One of the great objects that people have with the Lord Jesus Christ, is the evil in the world. This is because evil is produced by man, but they blame God for evil. People reject Jesus Christ because of evil in this world, even though they are to blame for it. Evil is out there. We both know it. And we cannot hide from it. It is often best to know your enemy. You know him and you cannot combat him unless you know him.

As you view all of this, it is easy to become jaded by it. It is easy to become cynical and caustic and bitter. This is the devil's world and we have always lived in it. The cosmic system has always been visible to us.

Do not let the cosmic system affect us. The more we are affected by it, the more we will think with human viewpoint. 1John 2:15a do not love the world or the things in the world. You are in the world but not of the world. The more you think with divine viewpoint, you begin to see it more and more. Be childish Satan's domain. Do not constantly indulge the sin nature and human viewpoint. That is how you become a cosmic sophisticate.

We must know the real deal. If we know God's plan, then we can recognize Satan's counterfeit plan. Socialism in its conception is good; but it is a part of the cosmic system. This is where good is evil because they do not take into account the sin nature of man. There will be power grabs by those who advocate it. Healthcare today is really a power grab. Human viewpoint may be a large part of our thought process.

Become mature in your thinking. We are supposed to grow up. Many of us have seen the cosmic system and we recognize it for what it is. Or, it takes time for us to grow spiritually and to recognize what human viewpoint is.

Second Summary

1. Be mature means do not neglect or reject Bible doctrine. You cannot renovate your thinking when you listen to doctrine once a month or once a week and eat potato chips and drink a beer while you are doing it. That is why an auditorium is the best way to learn. Neglect of doctrine is the same as rejecting it.
2. Be children. Reject the cosmic system. Reject the evil involved. The cosmic system will eat us alive if we do not rebound. If we indulge the sin nature so that we no longer rebound, we are neck deep in the cosmic system. How many believers are saturated in their souls with divine viewpoint? The extent to which believers in this country think with divine viewpoint, the better our country is. The manifestation of the sin nature is the tendency to misuse spiritual gifts. They use it for self-aggrandizement and self-gratification and self-advancement. When it becomes a demonstration of arrogance; then it becomes human viewpoint. Human viewpoint is always self-centered. Human viewpoint is a good description of self-centered arrogance. Self-centered adults think of no one else but themselves.
3. You can be involved in evil and you can be involved in evil intent.

The Eucharist

the doctrine of man's inability to save himself; regeneration, common and efficacious grace, all of these are found in Titus 3:4–7

Titus was really down at this time, and Paul knew what to say in order to lift him up; to refocus him on Jesus Christ and the cross.

These verses are a masterpiece of revealing the whole canvas of salvation. In v. 3, they had been involved in malice and envy; the Paul, as a Jew, hated the Gentiles; and Titus, as a Gentile, hated the Jews:

None of us is good enough to gain God's righteousness. What is true of man then is true of man now. We have not evolved into better and more perfect creatures. We still cannot save ourselves. We are still the progeny of Adam, and in Adam, all die. Corruption still prevails in our thoughts and our actions. Rom. 3:23: all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God. Man must become a new creature from a source outside of himself. Every person is in critical need.

Titus 3:3 For we ourselves also were once foolish, disobedient, deceived, slaving for various lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, hating one another.

In utter destitution, the gospel is the only hope for those who hear it. The kindness of God, our Savior, and the love of God has appeared. Salvation can only come from heaven and with God alone as the source. At just the right time in history, God's love and benevolence appeared in the Lord Jesus Christ. Rom. 5:15 the free gift shall not be also like the offense. For if by the offense of the one many died, much more the grace of God, and the gift in grace; which is of the one Man, Jesus Christ, abounded to many.

We have as the human race no merit and no standing before God. It is based upon God's perfect character and never upon our own imperfect nature. Jonah resided for 3 days in the belly of the great fish. How else could deliverance come to a man who are hopeless in the absolute darkness of sin and death.

Titus 3:4 But when the kindness and love of God our Savior toward man appeared,

Paul makes a more astounding statement in the next verse. God saved us according to His mercy. No amount of human good can earn God's favor. Merciful God acts for our salvation. In legalism, man depends upon his own righteousness, but man cannot commend himself to God.

We deserve exactly the opposite of the grace which God grants us. God needs something more than the works of man. If God's righteous demands are not met, then God is not God. He merely winks at our condition, and this makes God culpable. This relative righteousness is the same righteousness that God rejects. We are unable to satisfy the just claims of God's righteousness. A sinner cannot free himself from the salve market in which he resides. Perfect God and perfect man; and He accomplished the perfect work of salvation for all mankind. When we believe in the work of Christ, the divine agent of our salvation. He saved us by the washing of regeneration.

Efficacious grace; the Holy Spirit taking our faith and parlaying it into salvation. We regain what Adam lost at regeneration. Regeneration is that work of God the Holy Spirit. Once born-again, always born-again. A believer can never return to the grave of spiritual death.

Titus 3:5 not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us, through the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit,

Titus 3:6 whom He poured out on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Savior,

The results of being justified by grace: we are culpable; we are guilty; but God declares us not guilty. Justification means that God is able to save and bless us without compromising His Own character or attributes. God does not force His inheritance on anyone. These are gifts of God which must be accepted as such.

All of the work in salvation is done by Jesus Christ. God has not called us to a life of leisure or idleness, but we are called to a meaningful life for Him. Before He mandates that we serve Him, we are given the resources by which we can function. The grace of God elicits a response.

Titus 3:7 that being justified by His grace, we should become heirs according to the hope of eternal life.

Titus 3:8 Faithful is the Word, and as to these things, I desire that you strongly affirm that those believing God might be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable to men.

Beginning of the regular service:

What went through your mind while you were taking the Eucharist? If there was a meaningful thought and if you were able to think with divine viewpoint, and if there was appreciation and reciprocal love, then you are not children in your thinking. If your mind was on other things or if you thought about nothing, then you may be said to be a child in your thinking.

1Cor. 14:20 Brothers, do not be children in your thinking. Be infants in evil, but in your thinking be mature.

This is a summation of Paul's many exhortations for the Corinthians to grow up. 1Cor. 14:20 Brothers, do not be children in your thinking. Be infants in evil, but in your thinking be mature. There are many believers today who are children. We can continue to think like a child, as we did when we were infants. No infant has an vocabulary at all. He makes sounds that no one understands, except the parents may think they have a clue. These sounds just communicate their wants and desires.

The Corinthians are children; they think very little about doctrine; but they think all about themselves. They have determined that their status is elevated by speaking in tongues. They were one of the most arrogant, self-centered churches of the ancient world.

Spiritual children misuse their spiritual gifts or they do not use these gifts at all. They have no concept of authority-orientation toward the prophets or pastors teaching them. Children cannot grow without learning.

Many of us have had various mentors in our lives. We have a guide and a teacher and a mentor. Bible doctrine is for instruction in righteousness. Spiritual growth for the baby believer and for the others is necessary. You either forge ahead with doctrinal momentum or you fall behind.

This whole chapter is all about prophecy. Maturity is the depth of your doctrinal thought. Is it a surface thing or does it come from the depths of your soul. Divine viewpoint is the most sophisticated thinking in the human race. Divine thinking is the most sophisticated thinking.

Spiritual maturity or spiritual immaturity is linked to your thinking. Unless you are in complete denial, you ought to understand this. Maybe you ought to stop and think about what is going on in your mind. If you find yourself empty and devoid of thought, that is scary. Some people only think about themselves. They are always following their emotions. However, in this chapter, the focus is always on the mind; on the mentality of the soul. Mature thinking is always related to the thinking of the soul.

Paul reverses the idea of education in the second half of this verse. Be infants in the realm of evil. Think with divine viewpoint, but be a child in cosmic thinking. Believers cannot hide from it. We are not called to retreat from the world. It is best to know your enemy in this world, but do not sleep with the enemy.

Satan is the adversary; he is looking to devour us. He devours us when we think with the cosmic viewpoint. We are devoured with cosmic thinking. The immature believer is the one who indulges the cosmic system, and worse, he becomes comfortable in it. He can become caustic and disillusioned. It is the opposite of virtue love in the mature believer. It is the devil's world and we live in it. We are not of this world. John 17:16 Do not let it affect us as if affects the unbeliever. Do not get caught up in it. Do not love the world or the things which are in the world. The Bible always reveals God's thinking. Things of the world are man's viewpoint. It is based upon his own interpretation of his thoughts and experiences, or simply from the input of the cosmic system. Paul exhorts them not to be worldly; not permeated with evil thinking. Worldly is not a system of taboos. Worldliness is not an overt act or a way of living; it is a mental attitude that reflects the influence of evil in the soul. Do not love the world; do not love the thinking of the world. Worldliness is the failure to see things from God's viewpoint. There are not hundreds of ways to think; there are two ways: divine viewpoint or cosmic viewpoint. Thinking with cosmic viewpoint is worldliness.

Religious thinking blinds us to the grace of God. Everyone of them does this. Only in Christianity are we saved wholly by God and not by any of our works. Satan's cosmic thinking. Satan is capable of good, but he always operates with evil intent. His thinking and actions are opposed to God in every respect. That is his reason for existence; to oppose God.

Cosmic thinking puts us smack dab in the middle of the Angelic Conflict. We become Satan's adversary by thinking like God. The believer's soul is polarized between the two conflicting ways of thinking. Human viewpoint and divine viewpoint. This is the arena in which the Angelic Conflict is fought. Do not be childish. As a child, we are on the wrong side of history. So, Paul exhorts them to be babes in their thinking.

Paul uses different words for children here. Every word that he uses is for a specific purpose. Paidion and napios this is a child without instruction, and, as a result, is foolish. He is the spiritual child. Nêpiazô (νηπιάζω) [pronounced nay-pee-AUD-zoh], which means to be a babe, to be an infant. Thayer only. Strong's #3515.

Summary Points

1. This verse takes us from where we are to where we ought to be.
2. What happens when we do not remain a babe in relation to evil, in relation to malice and evil intent? Arrogance leads to mental attitude sins.
3. Mental attitude sins and arrogance, which is inundation in the cosmic system, are the greatest hindrances to growing up. It is true in the physical realm and in the spiritual realm.
4. If you remain a baby in the cosmic system, you clear the way for spiritual maturity thinking of divine viewpoint.
5. If you become an adult in evil, then you will retard and curb spiritual thinking, and you are without a renovated mind.
6. So remaining a baby in evil and being a spiritual adult in your thinking are two sides of the same coin. You do not have one without the other. These two go together.
7. If you are an adult in evil, then you cannot think with divine viewpoint. If your default approach to life is the cosmic system, then you are lost in the cosmic system. You tend to struggle and manipulate and to fight your way out of this or that jam. You forget the source of your prosperity when you are mature in your cosmic thinking. God is the source of our prosperity.

8. Such a believer manifests evil intent, even though they seem to be doing nice things. "I am such a good person and I am doing so many good things." People are motivated by recognition. If you give grudgingly or of necessity, then the gift is meaningless. You are never blessed by what you give. God does not bless us based upon what we give. Do not connect giving money to expected prosperity from God. Bible doctrine may become a rote thing to you. Bible doctrine is thought. It must be resident in your soul. It must be a part or all of our thinking. What do you think? Do not be children in your thinking. The believer cannot escape malice and arrogance if they are mature in cosmic thinking. We just studied 1Cor. 13, which is one of the greatest aspects of our life; virtue love. This requires us to be mature in our thinking.
9. The life of an immature believer is a life of sin nature domination; it is being a part of the devil's world. That is a loser believer bent on manipulating the world instead of depending upon the plan of God. His cosmic system will outsmart us every time.

The exhortation which Paul is making here is to sidestep the evil of arrogance.

1Cor. 14:20 Brothers, do not be children in your thinking. Be infants in evil, but in your thinking be mature.

Lesson #968

1Cor. 14:20–22 October 21, 2009

Wednesday

Maturity is connected to the mind. Spiritual maturity begins in the mind. It is a way of thinking. Whether it is praying or witnessing or doing something around the church, that is what people associate with maturity. Grow up in the mentality of your soul. Maturity is the depth of doctrinal thought. This is something which you have deep in your soul. This is a believer who responds consistently to Bible doctrine.

Believers in Corinth were completely taken emotionally with the gift of tongues. Emotion is a great thing; it is a wonderful thing. However, you ought not to lead your life with emotion; lead with thinking and respond with thinking. The answer is always divine viewpoint.

Bobby likes to think of divine viewpoint in the mature believer as the most sophisticated thinking that there is in the human race. We see various people as being sophisticated in this world; someone who is knowledgeable, they are artful, fit well in many social circles. The believer wise with divine viewpoint, one who is refined in the manners of the king's court. We are related directly to the King of Kings. There are ways of conducting ourselves; this is spiritual sophistication. Only Jesus Christ thinks exclusively divine viewpoint.

This one verse has to be the center of this book; this is the bottom line for all of it. We must be mature. The sophisticated believer has mastered all of the techniques of the spiritual life.

We will not face any testing in life that we cannot handle. Facing difficult circumstances with Bible doctrine is a pleasure. It is amazing how things work out in our lives when we relax, when we have divine viewpoint, and have a depth of doctrine in our souls.

When you can face the worst circumstances in life, when you handle it with the depth of thought of Bible doctrine, a mature mind, then you are glorifying God, and fulfilling the great purpose for which you are here.

This sophisticated thinking is available only to us. The unbeliever cannot have any part in this. They cannot understand the grace of God; they are not a part of the royal family. You should not expect that from unbelievers.

A natural man, an unbeliever, does not accept the spiritual life. Our thinking is foolish to the unbeliever. This is how they see us. He cannot understand these things because they are spiritually appraised. The unbeliever has no human spirit and no Holy Spirit, so he has nothing to compare your thinking to.

For the believer who fails to metabolize, who fails to utilize all of these assets, is completely unsophisticated. We are members of a royal court. We are born-again into royalty. Understand what the court protocols are. James 4:4 Don't you know the friendship with the world is enmity with God? This is someone who is a believer with Jesus Christ; they become enemies with God. They are immature believers who think with human viewpoint. They are unsophisticated believers. You are at home in the cosmic system. Satan, as the angel of light, who goes about as a roaring lion going about deceiving those whom he can deceive.

It is about your thinking. Human good is the cosmic system. You might give a million dollars to charity or to a church and still be an enemy of God. You are an enemy of God because of the way you think; you have not become mature in your thinking.

The key to whether you are an enemy or a friend of God; whether or not you are a child in your thinking. You will produce because God will place the circumstances into your life.

You have to recognize human viewpoint before you can stop thinking in human viewpoint. Show some responsibility toward the Lord in growing up. The Corinthians are perfect examples of how to be cutthroat toward other believers.

You can utilize your spiritual gift whether you know what it is or not. You will be authority-orientated. Our own country is a perfect example of a people who are authority-disoriented. Israel got involved in idolatry.

Let's not be self-centered like children, who live and die by their whims and emotions and demands. You may not always obey the mandates of Scripture. When Bible doctrine is automatic in your thinking, it is always available because it always resides there. It is how you process the world around you. Every time some stimuli comes into your mind, you begin to process it. How do you think? When that thinking is automatic, and is epistemological rehabilitation.

Impersonal love becomes automatic when you are spiritual maturity. When you have the mental attitude of impersonal love, it is just how you treat people. It just works that way; it is the way you think. When something happens which you do not like, does it do any good? With impersonal love, you not only relax, but it affects everyone around you.

The believer should not be practiced or schooled in evil. Evil is also a thought process. We can do evil. If you think with divine viewpoint, you will not be practiced in evil. It will be your way of thinking. Children must have clarity in life. They have to understand their parameters in life. Their parameters must be simple because they still have immature minds. The parameters for children begin with basic authority-orientation. Spiritual children are the same way. We need to be oriented to basic Bible doctrine.

Someone you think is inferior has authority over you. If you have ever been in the army, you have had someone in authority over you who was a complete jerk. The perfect opportunity to think with impersonal love.

In the military, you will get everything in your life thrown at you in a few years.

Γινωμαί which means to be in a state or a condition. It is a please follow this command. We are told to be in a state or a condition of maturity. It comes down to a choice of whether to be mature or not.

Do you see any advantage is keeping your children ignorant for all of their lives? How about the spiritual life? Does it make sense to want to be spiritually ignorant? The right choice for us is a state or condition of maturity.

A confused person is someone who cannot make a decision, who is unsure as to how to think about something. He has no core values. Like a politician with no core values. What does he do when elected? He has no idea.

The bottom line and solution is, be mature in your thinking. This is for everyone in Corinth and everyone in Berachah.

Today Christians so often use the terminology of being Christ-like or living a Christ-centered life. However, most do not have a clear idea as to what it means. It requires rebound. However, for most, they do penance; they feel sorry for what they have done; they wallow in guilt.

Rebound is designed for us to keep moving. Guilt, there is something wrong with that. Rebound is a license to serve the Lord. The priority is to develop a way of thinking from doctrine in the soul. Being Christlike is thinking His thoughts. His thinking comes from Bible doctrine; God gave us the mind of Christ in writing. You can only know what Christ thinks by knowing the Word of God. Activities which are Christlike require thinking which is Christlike first. Otherwise production of the Christian life is disingenuous. Then it is all about approbation and/or self-elevation.

How many people do divine good, but they keep their mouths shut about it. God knows.

Paul knows that these Corinthians are immature and childish and unsophisticated.

1Cor. 14:20 Brothers, do not be children in your thinking. Be infants in evil, but in your thinking be mature.

Paul probably slept on this overnight, and he thought, "This is great; unlike I have never done before" and so he decides to document all that he can about immaturity. He is an ex-Rabbi. He was a Hebrew of the Hebrews. He knows every Old Testament passage and he has studied it deeply.

So, then he recalls an Old Testament passage which relates.

Bobby's preparation as a pastor was to learn hermeneutics, which is interpretation of the Scripture. Bob calls it ICE, and in seminary, the historical, grammatical method. It is very difficult to interpret an Old Testament quote in the New Testament. They are all divinely inspired.

1Cor. 14:21 In the Law it is written, "By people of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners will I speak to this people, and even then they will not listen to me, says the Lord."

Paul shuffled the words on us. Paul did a little rewriting of an ancient text, and the Jews were sticklers for accurate Old Testament text. Paul takes this text and just throws it around.

Isa. 28:11–12 for with stammering lips and another tongue He will speak to this people. To whom He said, This is the rest; cause the weary to rest; and this is the refreshing. Yet they were not willing to hear.

1Cor. 14:22 Thus tongues are a sign not for believers but for unbelievers, while prophecy is a sign not for unbelievers but for believers.

Lesson #969      1Cor. 14:20–22    Isa. 28–29    October 22, 2009      Thursday

We just completed an exhortation to grow up. How much do you know and how much do you apply. Your mind must be permeated with divine viewpoint. That is what maturity is. The more you know and apply, the more you fulfill this mandate. Paul is entreating those who believe in Jesus Christ to grow up.

The cosmic system dominates when there is nothing but human viewpoint flitting around in your brain. If you possess divine viewpoint, you will not think in terms of the cosmic system. It is easy to be dedicated to human viewpoint, because we are surrounded by it.

99 out of 100 people that we come in contact with, think with divine viewpoint. Bobby is one of the few who associates with mostly those who think divine viewpoint. For a good point in Bobby's life, he was in contact with those who thought with nothing more than human viewpoint.

Maturity in doctrine and immaturity in the cosmic system. One forces out the other. The more you think with one, the less you think with the other. There are times when human viewpoint is the way we think. Do not be discouraged when there is human viewpoint intruding upon your soul. This is a part of the maturation process. The more divine viewpoint you have, the more it will block out the cosmic system. The more consistent you will use the mind of Christ. Divine viewpoint gradually overcomes human viewpoint. Do not be discouraged. One of these days when you tend to fall into human viewpoint, Bible doctrine will take precedent.

Thinking with a mind that is filled with metabolized Bible doctrine. This is the same doctrine by which our spiritual life depends. This is the same doctrine which is contained in the Scripture in front of us. Many believers have no idea what it means to be Christlike. They want it, but they do not know how to get there.

Paul, as an author of Scripture, used his own life to illustrate with. These Corinthians could twist things all up; they were filled with cosmic thinking, and they misused a legitimate gift and they used it with the wrong motivation. They had the wrong objective.

1Cor. 14:20 Brothers, do not be children in your thinking. Be infants in evil, but in your thinking be mature.

Paul will cite proof of their immaturity, and he will use tongues in order to illustrate this.

In v. 21, Paul uses an Old Testament prophecy. How many times we have studied the sign gift of Israel. In Isaiah's day, this was a linguistic sign of discipline. They were not listening to God; they were not listening to the prophet Isaiah. The Corinthians were not listening to the correct prophets; they were off on a tangent.

What is the Reason

1. In the Old Testament, tongues warned of apostasy in Israel and its consequences.
2. Now, the sound of tongues reflects the epitome of spiritual immaturity. No one understood what was being said.
3. This speaking in strange languages represents the lack of comprehension of doctrine as well as the lack of hearing of doctrine. The Jews did not understand the language. They did not understand the very languages that they should understand.
4. Doctrine begins the metabolizing process.
5. How can you hear or comprehend doctrine when the words you hear are those which you do not understand. Their minds are not engaged; their thinking is not renovated. They have no maturity.

6. This is a perfect illustration of the cause and result of immature thinking.

Paul recognized that this was a great passage to apply to the Corinthians.

1Cor. 14:21 In the Law it is written, "By people of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners I will speak to this people, and even then they will not listen to me, says the Lord."

Paul knew the exact quote and he could have recited this quote in the original Hebrew. He probably knew more portions of the Old Testament than anyone else. He did not quote this exactly.

Isa. 28:11 for with stammering lips and another tongue He will speak to this people.

Paul skips over the rest and repose. It is not necessary for his purposes. He just uses the end of v. 12. Paul has clearly shuffled these words. This is not unusual for Paul. He uses the Old Testament liberally in his epistles as he writes.

Isa 28:12 To whom He said, This is the rest; cause the weary to rest; and this is the refreshing. Yet they were not willing to hear.

He has freely used Isa. 28, but there is no doubt that he is using this passage.

Here is What Paul is Doing

1. Paul is not distorting the meaning of the original text, even though he has changed the words.
2. Nor is Paul dismissing the literal meaning of the OT text. The New Testament meaning does not affect the Old Testament meaning.
3. There is an interpretive connection between the Old Testament quote, scrambled word order as it mean, and applies it to the situation in Corinth.

So Bobby has to ask himself what is going on here. This is a theological subject. Hermeneutics is the art and science of interpreting Scripture. This goes to the very heart of how we interpret the Bible. We use the grammatical historical method. We must look carefully at the grammar and the words. We have Isaiah's time and Paul's time, and the same verse. There is a problem here for the grammatical-historical method.

What was in Paul's mind here? Remember about hermeneutics: you must find the one literal meaning that God the Holy Spirit intended for us to understand. The Scripture has one intended meaning for us. God did not mean for this text to be confusing.

A Lesson in Hermeneutics

1. Just because Paul uses this Old Testament verse in a different context, this does not negate the original meaning of this verse. Every text has one intended meaning, as this did to the Jews of Isaiah's time. This was a bit of prophecy, which can often have a near and a far fulfillment. There is another meaning here; the meaning of the New Testament.

2. Nor is the Old Testament meaning slavishly applied in the New Testament. Paul was not intending to use the exact meaning for the Corinthians that Isaiah meant for the Jews. There is not a 1-1 correspondence.
3. Paul's use in the New Testament of Isa. 28 brings a new dimension of doctrine to the Corinthians apart from the Old Testament. It does not change the literal and single meaning of Isa. 28.
4. In other words, Paul is not pulling more from the Old Testament Scriptures than God the Holy Spirit put into them. He is not reinterpreting, revising or changing the meaning of Israel's history or this text.
5. So Paul is not superceding divine inspiration. He is not overriding one divine inspiration. They are both divinely inspired.
6. The Old Testament meaning remains the same. It still exists in the context in which it was written.
7. Paul's quote addressed to the people in the time of the 1st century A.D. builds on the original Old Testament meaning. He is building on the meaning in the New Testament context.
8. So God's one exact meaning and message comes through loud and clear through each passage in its own context. One for Israel and one for the Corinthians.
9. You simply cannot separate the New Testament quote from the Old Testament passage. There still is a connection there.

What is Paul Doing Here?

1. There appears to be more than one sense in the Scripture. Sensus plenior.
2. In other words, passages written of specific historical situations may express principles which apply or pertain to other situations, like Corinth in 62 A.D.
3. An historical moment for Israel brought forward to the New Testament by Paul, now brings a principle of doctrine to the Church Age believers in Corinth apart from the Old Testament used, but still connected as well.
4. We must always interpret the Old Testament in its grammatical, historical sense. What did it mean then? Paul understood what the historical sign was all about.
5. Brining that understanding into the New Testament text, we must interpret the New Testament text in its own grammatical historical sense.
6. What comes out of this is a literal meaning of doctrinal principles of the Church Age that was not intended for the previous dispensation. It has a new literal meaning for the Church Age.
7. This is what makes the New Testament context in which the Old Testament quote is found important. So Paul has a purpose for the way that he uses this Isaiah text.

Paul's Purpose

1. Paul is not changing the meaning of the Old Testament text.
2. Under divine inspiration, the Holy Spirit has one specific meaning in mind. This is not just some random use here. The Old Testament quote has a meaning that Paul knows. It is connected, so there is a different sense to it.
3. You cannot simply detach the meaning.
4. You cannot backtrack or change the original meaning of the Old Testament . Paul does not backtrack and reinterpret the Old Testament quote.
5. Many New Testament texts including this have a meaning which goes beyond its normal, historical sense. So, in our context, Paul is using this to make a specific point to the Corinthians and to us.

Does Paul have a right to change the word order of an Old Testament passage or to apply it in a different way?

Paul's Right

1. Paul is under the inspiration of God the Holy Spirit. This is why he can take the text of Isaiah and use it here.
2. This reference from Isaiah originally given only to Israel is a perfect point of comparison to these deaf and dumb Corinthians.
3. In this comparison, they can learn a valuable lesson in the progress of their own spiritual growth. They were about to go out under the fifth cycle of discipline. There was a lesson for them to learn when they heard foreign languages.
4. That is the importance of hearing this prophecy from the Old Testament which now contains a principle of mystery doctrine for us.

1Cor. 14:22 Thus tongues are a sign not for believers but for unbelievers, while prophecy is a sign not for unbelievers but for believers.

Lesson #970      1Cor. 14:21   Isa. 28:11–12   October 25, 2009      Sunday 1

1Cor. 14:21 In the Law it is written, "By people of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners I will speak to this people, and even then they will not listen to me, says the Lord."

In the middle of this discourse on tongues and prophecy and spiritual maturity and immaturity. He inserts a quote:

Isaiah wrote to Israel in the 8th century B.C. and this was a part of the divinely inspired Word of God. Paul understands the phrase for with stammering lips and another tongue He will speak to this people. To whom He said, This is the rest; cause the weary to rest; and this is the refreshing. Yet they were not willing to hear. He knows that this was written to Israel in the 8th century B.C. He decides to bring this quotation into his message to the Corinthians. The Corinthians received this epistle and this has meaning to them as well as to Paul.

3 questions arose in Bobby's mind:

1. How is Paul using this Old Testament quote in the New Testament. This is debated among theologians constantly. 44% of the New Testament are quotes from the Old? That seems high to me.
2. For what purpose was he using this quote during his era addressed to these people.
3. Finally, what does this mean to the Corinthians and ultimately to us?

Paul is using an historical event from Israel's history, and he is using it as an illustration for the Corinthians. Passages with historical situations may find application in parallel times. This particular prophecy would be fulfilled in 721 and then in 586 B.C. That is a near and far fulfillment, but none of that pertains to Paul's use of this quotation.

This quotation is now being used 800 years later and this same illustration applies to us now in 2009. It is just as applicable to us. Paul brings this passage forward in time and to teach something to the Corinthians. Each passage has an intended meaning for those to whom Paul (or whoever) is writing.

There is a new doctrine being brought out to the Corinthians. Paul will build upon this prophecy. It now sets forth a principle for the believers in Corinth and to believers in Berachah Church.

What is the meaning of this quote to the Corinthians. Now what does it mean?

The Jews, when Isaiah was writing, refused to hear the prophets and they refused to hear their warning about national apostasy. They are apostate and they get some discipline. They drift away and God gives them some more discipline. Many of us are in the same situation. We end up living our lives in a circle, going from a little negative volition to a little discipline. God kept sending prophets, and the Jews ignored them.

This prophecy is the very sign of God speaking to the people of Israel. When you hear foreign languages in the land, you are about to get the fifth cycle of discipline...the worst of all disciplines.

The southern kingdom goes into apostasy during the time of Isaiah. Now they would have to listen. They hear voices speaking strange languages. In the New Testament, the Corinthians were refusing to hear as well. They were demonstrating unbelief.

The original quote dealt only with Israel. This sign of tongues to Israel were those who divine institutions not heed God's warnings. This is a beautiful way to tell the Corinthians just exactly where they are spiritually. This warning was still in effect for Israel, because Israel still existed. In 62 A.D., there still is a nation.

The fifth cycle of discipline was looming large over Israel. Tongues was a sign to Israel for their fifth cycle; but this was not a sign to the church. This was a different sign with a different purpose for the Corinthians. Why did Paul do this? He takes a unique singular use for this passage.

The Jews converged on Jerusalem, and the Holy Spirit descended upon the Apostles, and they began to evangelize unbelieving Jews. They spoke of the gospel of Jesus Christ. At the same time this was a sign to the nation that discipline was on the way. Since then, they have never been restored. However, the covenant promise to Abraham was to a regenerate nation.

Isaiah's words were a sign to the nation of Israel. The far fulfillment, on the Day of Pentecost, and there was a dual purpose: a warning to Israel and evangelization. These were both related; this was Israel's last chance. They could have turned toward Jesus Christ and this would have stayed the discipline. If they did not accept Christ, the other sign then kicked in.

Dual Fulfillment of Tongues

1. This was first the sign of destruction and discipline; this was the fifth cycle of discipline warning.
2. The other part is the formation and the unifying of the church. Anyone who believe in Christ, whether Jew or Gentile, became the church. Did Paul know, in 62 A.D., that 8 years later, the fifth cycle of discipline against the nation Israel would kick into high gear.
3. Tongues had a unifying purpose as well—to unify the Jews and the Gentiles. This is no longer about the national entity; it is about the body of Christ.
4. In Corinth, tongues were used to evangelize Jews or Gentiles. The sign gift was still in effect. It was still the same sign. They heard the gospel through tongues.

The New Testament use goes well beyond the Old Testament use of this passage. Paul changes the meaning of the application. God intended one message. Could another message be given to another people?

There are those who do not understand this and go back and reinterpret the Old Testament, and some of them partially live under the Law of Moses.

These were believers were hearing tongues spoken. They were completely apostate. They misused the gift of tongues. This was a wake up call; a warning about their reversionism. It was a reminder about the real purpose of tongues in 62 A.D. This was not how the Corinthians were using this gift. They do not hear Me, says the Lord.

Believers do not need to be evangelized. Some do not grasp this. They want to be evangelized over and over again. How do you progress in the spiritual life if you are continually concerned whether you are really saved or not?

Tongues is for unbelievers. Believers in the New Testament were not metabolizing doctrine. The point of unbelief for the Corinthians is, they are not listening. No one there is getting the message there, and so there is no advance, no doctrine in their right lobes. Isaiah spoke to the Jews in unbelief. Now they heard the sound of tongues in the church. It was no longer about national discipline; it was all about unbelief (which would lead to discipline).

Isa. 28:11–12 for with stammering lips and another tongue He will speak to this people. To whom He said, This is the rest; cause the weary to rest; and this is the refreshing. Yet they were not willing to hear.

Lesson #971

1Cor. 14: October 25, 2009

Sunday 2

Berachah Church has always been famous for teaching seminary type classes to the congregation. Paul knew exactly what he was doing. He understood what the Old Testament was all about, and he knew what this message would mean to the Corinthians.

The gift of tongues was for unbelievers who needed to be evangelize. It was also a sign that the Corinthians needed to listen to prophecy. Isaiah was a prophet; and the Corinthians needed to listen to prophecy. They both presented or communicated the Word of God. What was Paul doing? Believers in the Church Age needed to heed the Word of God. They did not need tongues for that purpose. There was no communication through tongues.

The people in Corinth heard these tongues, and they did not get it any more than did the people of Isaiah's time. For the Jews of Isaiah's day, it was a sign; and it was a sign to the Corinthians that they needed to grow spiritual. Isaiah 28 they were children because they did not hear from God.

Corinthians and Tongues

1. Prophecy was for believers in Christ and tongues was for unbelievers. Just as Israel hearing tongues was a sign that Israel was apostate. These Corinthians really liked hearing tongues.
2. The Corinthians needed to stop using tongues as some sort of a spiritual marker for believers. The one who spoke in tongues was more important than others in Corinth. They were to stop doing this. There was no edification value in tongues.
3. In Corinth, tongues was a sign; a sign of immature childish thinking centered in human viewpoint.
4. This is the reason for the juxtaposition of believers and prophecy and unbelievers and tongues.

voμoς has a binding principle.

Law can be used to refer to the Mosaic Law. There is a general use, referring to the Pentateuch, meaning the books of the Law. It can also be used to refer to the entire Old Testament. All of the principles which God gave Israel are contained in the Law. In the law, it stands written... Since Isaiah wrote this, we understand Law to refer to the entire Old Testament. So Paul cites the warning which was given to Israel and he applies that warning to believers in the Church Age.

There is an interesting application which can be made here. The gift of tongues was legitimate, but it was being misused. No one was edified in the church by the use of tongues then.

When you know the gift of tongues no longer exists, yet churches all over America are speaking in tongues...what is the problem that this sign reveals? No one understands what they are saying? What is the point? Instead, Brothers, do not be children in your minds, but in malice be like infants, and in your minds be mature. It is all about emotion and it is all about the Holy Spirit being present and visible; but no one understands what is being said, and therefore no one is being edified. No one is hearing the words of God. No one is growing up; they are all being childish.

How can you be mature in your thinking when you have nothing to think about?

Application of Isa. 28:11–12

1. The Old Testament application was with regard to an apostasy problem in Israel. They were in and out of God's will. Then, they often went after false idols or they went in for the phallic cults. Isaiah was one of the great Old Testament prophets. He had great courage and he stood in the face of the king of Israel, and he told them what would happen. Here he was, giving Israel the sign of their own destruction.
2. Paul's use was only with regards to a particular problem in Corinth.
3. For the Jews, when tongues were spoken in the land, it was a warning of national discipline, the coming of the national diaspora, a warning of mass death. Today, the Jews are still scattered upon the earth. And this has happened to them throughout their history. They go out in 70 A.D. until the millennial kingdom.
4. This was a warning to Israel about the fifth cycle of discipline; but this was not applicable to a church, which is an organism. The church cannot go out under the fifth cycle of discipline. Various nations may go out under the fifth cycle of discipline; but not the church as a whole.
5. The Church Age was just getting underway at this time. The church was about 30 years old. That is really not a very long period of time. The church is not going to be terminated as the sign indicated to the Jews.
6. The fifth cycle of discipline is administered only to a nation; not to the church as an entity. We obviously have some serious problems in this country, not the least of which is apostasy. Israel is still a client nation at the time of Paul's writing.

1Cor. 14:21 In the Law it stands written, "By people of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners I will speak to this people, and even then they will not listen to me, says the Lord."

Isa. 28:11–12 ...for with stammering lips and another tongue He will speak to this people. To whom He said, This is the rest; cause the weary to rest; and this is the refreshing. Yet they were not willing to hear.

Bobby wants to stop and address a problem. The problem of mixing the nation of Israel and the church. How far can we go with this? How far does Israel bleed over into the church? How close are we to Israel? Israel would be removed forever in divine history. Hermeneutics is how we interpret the Bible. This gets right down to the very guts of the Bible. Some theologians and some pastors take some Old Testament and incorrectly apply them to the New Testament church. Covenant Theology. This theology removes the major distinctions between Israel and the church. It is a distinction which dispensationalists must make. We are a dispensational church.

A dispensation is a period of human history and it is defined in terms of divine revelation; the Old and the New Testament. It is a series of divine administrations. We have an administration right now which governs our country. This is no different in the Bible.

This is simply the divine viewpoint of history. This is how God views history. He sets up the various eras in history.

The very first dispensation is called the Age of the Gentiles and it runs from Gen. 1:1 through Exodus. Then there is the Age of Israel. We find out how the progress of divine history works through these administrations. After Israel comes the Age of the Hypostatic Union, from His birth to the Day of Pentecost. At the Day of Pentecost, the Church Age begins, and we do not know when it will end. There are different administrations in each of these dispensations. What is your spiritual life all about? Pentecost to whenever, this occurs. With the rapture, there are specifically 7 years. After 7 years, the Lord returns and He brings in the kingdom of Israel. The Millennium lasts 1000 years. After that, we move to the eternal state, and time and history is over. This is the divine outline of history.

There are theologians and pastors who do not agree with this; they take the church as being spiritual Israel. These ages are brought along together.

Preterism believe that all of the Biblical prophecies concerning the end times happened in the 1st century after Christ's birth. Therefore, the rapture is not imminent. There is no Tribulation to follow; it has already taken place. They claim it occurred around the tumultuous times of Rome destroying the Temple, and to them, that is when Israel was supplanted by the church. The church becomes the Israel of God. They see no more place in the divine outline of history for Israel. The problem is, that removes the promises made by God directly to Abraham. These promises were directed toward a race; toward a regenerate man; believers who were from Israel. These were believers with covenant blessings from God. Covenant Theologians believe that we now get these blessings. Those who are in this camp have removed Israel from all promises, and that we are Israel in a sense. This particular quote is supposedly proof of that. There is just one more proof that we are Israel. This is wrong; it is totally false.

But they will not listen to Me and there is probably a time we can recall when we did not listen to the Lord. When you do not listen to the Lord, you are in a situation of great difficulty in your life. They are not listening to the Lord.

In the vopoc, it stands written. This specifically looks back on Isa. 28:11–12. Paul uses the warning of Isaiah to Israel and brings a message to the Corinthians. However, it is not the exact same message which was given to Israel. Paul has altered this message somewhat. Israel refused to listen to the Word of God; they disregarded their prophets. Isaiah was probably the king of the warners. This was one of the great warnings expressed toward Israel.

Instead of seeking prophecy; instead of seeking revelation, they went their own way. These people in the Old Testament had no Bible in front of them. There was no complete Word of God. There were just these men who spoke to them. The Corinthians had Paul. They were listening to foreign languages which they did not understand; no meaning to them and no educational value. The parallel is these people do not listen to God's Word. Both sets of people suffered from unbelief. They were believers, but they had rejected spiritual growth. All that interested them was nonsense language. Tongues is a phenomenon occurring all over the world. And the way the gift is being used is almost exactly the way it was being misused in the past. This parallels the warnings made to Israel. In one regard, it was a devastated nation and a miserable spiritual life.

Paul and How he is using Isaiah

1. The New Testament goes further than the original meaning in the Old Testament context. This is a parallel. Paul takes a quote from the Old Testament and applies. In Isaiah's day, foreigners would speak to the Israelites; but in this epistle, it is Paul adds to the meaning. This is something that the Apostles did frequently. They adapted an Old Testament passage to their own situation. So Paul is using this quote in a different way from the way it was originally intended.
2. Secondly, Paul looks backward into the Law to send a different but similar message to the people of his dispensation.
3. Paul uses this OT quote in a different sense. There is still the sign of unbelief in Corinth.

4. What Paul does not intend is for us to go back into the Old Testament and to read back his new meaning into that text.

Bobby figured that he needed to go into great detail here, so that we do not get lost in some false theology. This is an interplay between Israel and the church, but what the relationship is, is very misunderstood in theology. There are pastors who grew up in this ministry who have redefined the meaning of New Testament passages based upon this model that Paul used. Sensus plenior. What they do is, they find a deeper meaning in the text than what is more obviously here. We have to be careful here whenever we are dealing with the Word of God and how it is interpreted. We do not have the right to find new meanings in Old Testament texts. Paul, as an Apostle, has the right to do some sleight of hand with some of these Old Testament passages. However, we do not.

God intends one meaning to us for every passage of Scripture, and it is the gift of the pastor-teacher to dig out that meaning for us. However, when there is this deeper spiritual message found, that gets into an area where we do not belong; which deeper meaning destroys dispensational differences. This is why Bobby has been so adamant about us finding our right pastor; and only one right pastor. We are not equipped to learn under more than one pastor and having to make the doctrinal distinctions ourselves.

Even if a pastor is wrong in some area—and we all are—we can get enough to grow while under that one pastor.

1Cor. 14:21 In the Law it stands written, "By people of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners I will speak to this people, and even then they will not listen to me, says the Lord."

Isa. 28:11–12 ...for with stammering lips and another tongue He will speak to this people. To whom He said, This is the rest; cause the weary to rest; and this is the refreshing. Yet they were not willing to hear.

Dispensationalism.

1. Dispensations is the divine viewpoint of history.
2. Revelation in the Bible reveals a series of divine administrations.
3. Dispensations are consecutive eras reflecting the unfolding of God's plan for mankind. It is progressive. History progresses.
4. This is the divine viewpoint of history. That is what we need to inculcate into our souls.
5. There are different viewpoints as to how to divide up the dispensations.
6. Age of the Gentiles: Adam and the woman all the way to Moses.
7. Age of Israel is Moses to Christ.
8. Age of the Hypostatic union; our Lord and His mission.
9. On the day of Pentecost, we begin the Church Age.

10. At the end of the Church Age, there is the rapture of the church. The Tribulation is hell, essentially, as Satan is cut loose and he will be the ruler of the world, and what happens will be what Satan would do if he was in charge.
11. Jesus Christ will remove Satan from the earth, and then begin the millennial rule.

The general relationship of how the Old Testament is used in the New Testament is an important subject. The problem is problems arising in the Tribulation, the Millennium and the rapture. This affects how we interpret the Old and New Testaments.

Lesson #973

1Cor. 14:21 November 1, 2009

Sunday 2

Paul could find a passage which meant one thing, and use it in a different way in the New. There are those who have been proselytized people from Berachah Church saying, the Colonel did not go deep enough into the Bible. Bobby says that Bob went deeper than anyone that he every studied.

There is a method of reconciling the Old and New Testaments; and this method is allegorization. Interpreting thing allegorically. Particularly Origen who lived in the 2nd century A.D. The person finds a second meaning underneath the obvious meaning; or he allegorizes the meaning which is given. It is generally some abstract idea.

An example: the dispensation of the Millennium. Some believers believe that there will not be a literal reign of Jesus Christ for 1000 years after the 2nd advent. They see Millennium as a figurative expression; a metaphorical approach. In their view, the present age become progressively worse. These people are saying there is no rapture, only the church; and as we move ahead, things keep getting worse and worse. That is their first tenet. Then, as the church continues a downward trend, Christ returns at the 2nd advent. He comes to judge the wicket and usher in the eternal state. This means that all prophecies of a future kingdom for Israel are being fulfilled spiritually. I.e., they are not fulfilled. A radical departure. This has a tremendous impact on how we interpret the Scripture here and now. In allegorizing the Biblical text, there are a series of symbols providing the believer with a deeper meaning. This is to open up a wider range of interpretations. This method can take the New Testament as a code that provides insight into spiritual meaning. There is this underlying code.

Example Old Testament national Israel becomes a spiritual Israel after the 1st advent. If the church goes directly into the 2nd advent of Christ, where is Israel in all of this? Then there is no national Israel; there is no future for Israel. We become the spiritual Israel; the true Israel. The approach is allegorical. Further, this code can only be perceived by those who are especially enlightened to do so (which is the harbinger of every cult out there).

The greatest problem is, this allegorizing removes the distinction between Israel and the church. Covenant theology in general and in particular covenant eschatology. It is called by some preterism. They assume all the end-time prophecies have already occurred or that they are allegorical. In their view, the Tribulation is finished; it happened in the fifth cycle of discipline in the times of the Roman attack against Jerusalem. Israel was no more, to be entirely supplanted by the church.

They also allegorize the Millennium. It is a symbol of a perfect environment after the 2nd advent; so there is no kingdom as was promised to Abraham and David.

If we hear the church is the spiritual Israel or something like that, then we know we are dealing with apostate believers. This can result even in anti-Semitism. This whole philosophy removes the promises of God. If He makes the promise to us, then He keeps that promise. Preterists transfer all of Israel's promises to the church. To them, there is no more national or racial Israel now or in the future.

Preterists Believe

1. The church now have the promises made to Israel.
2. The church becomes the spiritual nation made up all believers regardless of race. We are the Israel of God.
3. The future of Israel is forever dismissed.
4. This questions God's immutability in relationship to whom He made promises.

There is no question that God has disciplined Israel. Discipline does not mean that God has disowned Israel. In general, this is a non-dispensational approach to God's plan. Dispensationalists keep the universal church separate from Israel. The church is a new era in God's plan, but it does not remove or reinterpret the promises made by God to Israel.

If we are spiritual Israel and somehow God reneged on the promises which He made to Israel because of Israel's failures, then God is perfectly capable of removing us from His promises. This attacks God's immutability and therefore His promises to us. Can't God just dump the church and us along with it, because we are such failures?

Both the church and Israel have futures. The allegorical method does not prove that God has removed the promises for Israel and given them to us. This will not allow a reconciliation with dispensationalism.

Bobby was told in seminary by a brilliant dispensationalists. There is no question that there are allegories in the Bible. The parables of Christ are allegories. However, Christ gave the meaning for His allegories. There is metaphorical meaning in the book of Revelation, but there are literal interpretations which come out of this. Figurative language in the Bible still has a literal interpretation in real judgments.

Some Old Testament practices and mandates are said to apply today. This would be a part of this Preterist movement, logically.

Preterism changes the nature of ecclesiology and eschatology. It is a complete paradigm shift from dispensationalism. In short, it is a total can of theological worms. Yet this is found in close proximity to us today.

1Cor. 14:21 In the Law it stands written, "By people of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners I will speak to this people, and even then they will not listen to me, says the Lord."

Lesson #974

1Cor. 14:21–23 November 4, 2009

Wednesday

1Cor. 14:21 In the Law it stands written, "By people of strange tongues and by the lips of foreigners I will speak to this people, and even then they will not listen to me, says the Lord."

Illative particle, and is translated wherefore, so that, so then. This is a conclusion from the previous verse.

The Corinthians need to understand what happened. The Jews refused to hear the prophets speaking to them in their own language, and so, they paid the price for this. God brought a foreign language to them that they did not understand. That would be a sign of judgment or punishment.

The Corinthians were not taking from this, a warning of the impending fifth cycle of discipline. Isaiah's sign was one of national discipline. However, tongues was not a sign of national discipline about to fall upon them. That was not the reason that it appears in this verse. So there must be a reason that tongues is quoted here.

The Corinthians were taking the blessing of this gift and turning it into a cursing. Using tongues as a mere display of the power of God—a very visible display—but it is being used for a trivial reason, for self-exaltation. It had become a curse to the church and to those who should have used this gift to result in great blessing.

The Corinthians are now being held responsible for how they used these gifts; they were using these gifts against one another.

Tongues were a sign to unbelievers, it was a sign of salvation. It was a sign of the presentation of the gospel of Jesus Christ. It had become a sign of immaturity, confusion, apostasy, immaturity and eventually God's disapproval. Any church today which uses tongues is in the same condition, even though tongues are not even a gift.

We are held accountable. God does not dismiss what we do. We are held accountable for our actions in this life. Those who speak in tongues today are held accountable for this complete lack of discernment. Furthermore, this can lead to national discipline; and we are moving in that direction.

People who speak in tongues today are only elevating themselves. They use the bygone gift to further their own status in the church. Shame on the pastors who are allowing this to happen. The very speaking unintelligibly that no one understands, should indicate to them that they are under a curse; they are duping other believers and they are retarding spiritual growth in that church.

Tongues was a sign to unbelievers; they heard the gospel in their native language.

Prophecy indicated the power and presence of God. It was a presentation of doctrine. A summary of 1Cor. 14 it is prophecy, prophecy, prophecy; all for the edification of the congregation.

Even when tongues is not spoken, there are pastors teaching good deeds, politics, community action; but not Bible doctrine. A lot of pastors know that they are not doing their job. These believers are misusing their gift.

In Corinth, put yourself in their place. There are no Bibles; there is no pastor who is tough enough to stand up and teach. What they do have is some prophets, and they could teach Church Age to the Corinthian church.

Prophecy was a sign to believers; a sign that the Word of God is alive and powerful and designed for the edification of the congregation. These prophets were completely under the control of God the Holy Spirit and spoke as guided by the Holy Spirit. Anyone could stand up and say this. Invisible power, but nevertheless real. With prophecy, the minds of these believers become engaged. With prophecy, there is God the Holy Spirit combined with a mind that is productive.

Tongues was a sign to the unbeliever; and a sign that tongues was being misused. Prophecy is a sign to the believer. It indicates that believers are advancing spiritually.

1Cor. 14:22 Thus tongues are a sign not for believers but for unbelievers, while prophecy is a sign not for unbelievers but for believers.

V. 23 begins with a 3rd class condition.

The problem is, tongues are being used improperly. So unbelievers would wander in, hear all of this chaos, and think that the church is filled with crazy people.

If a church is criticized or ridiculed today, it ought to be for the church functioning in a reasonable way. Not good if the church is screwed up.

3 players: the church gathers; ;ungifted men, and outsiders come in.

Reviewing 1Cor. 14:23

1. This is confusion and misunderstanding. If you have been at a dinner table where everyone is talking at the same time, it is confusion and you have no idea what is being said. Everything is a background of sound, but you rarely get the whole thing. This is like being in any crowd where everyone is screaming and talking.
2. Everyone at this church begins to speak in tongues all at once and no one is listening. They are all trying to speak over one another.
3. Paul wants to represent the great chaos which is being perpetrated; it is a mess. If they could see themselves as God sees their lack of edification, they may see themselves for what they are. They ought to be embarrassed. This is raucous pandemonium in a church. This is not the place for raucous pandemonium.
4. What Paul is doing here is painting a picture of disengaged minds and blathering voices. They cannot understand and they are disengaged. So many people gather today even where there is no instruction and no doctrine. No wonder so few want to go to church. There is nothing there for them. There is onthing going on.

There is great refreshment in the church...where doctrine is taught.

There is a 3rd condition. Ungifted people and unbelievers walk into the wild and crazy assembly of clamorous voices, and it was shocking and confused. They come seeking the gospel, and they see this big show, but they do not hear the gospel or doctrine being taught. It is just like the old days in the heathen temple.

1Cor. 14:23 If, therefore, the whole church comes together and all speak in tongues, and outsiders or unbelievers enter, will they not say that you are out of your minds?

Lesson #975

1Cor. 14:23 November 5, 2009

Thursday

We begin with a 3rd class condition; and as each one joins in, they keep getting louder and louder. Here you have escalating voices, pretty much vying for recognition. The result is, it is pure chaos.

The louder you speak, the more attention you get. These are believers with disengaged minds. They are out of fellowship and out of their minds.

Into this chaotic picture walks 2 types of people. The ungifted and the unbeliever.

First word is idiôtês (ἰδιώτης) [pronounced ihd-ee-OH-tace] these are people who do not participate in their government. Thayer definitions: 1) a private person as opposed to a magistrate, ruler, king; 2) a common soldier, as opposed to a military officer; 3) a writer of prose as opposed to a poet; 4) in the NT, an unlearned, illiterate, man as opposed to the learned and educated: one who is unskilled in any art.

Ἀπιστος the negative + πιστις. Faithless or unbelieving.

The Gospel

1. First, someone hears the gospel. There are those who will walk into the memorial service tomorrow will be απιστος. The truth is important, as it the presentationi of the gospel.
2. Once that message has been implanted into the soul. The Holy Spirit does all of the work here. He knows exactly how to deal with a person who has received the gospel.
3. The Holy Spirit works circumstances in people's lives as well. Sometimes these are circumstances they cannot deal wtih on their own.
4. They recognize their own helplessness, and they recognize that they have a need. They realize that it is impossible for them to gain God's grace.
5. It is always a good idea to pray for the unbeliever; particularly, if they happen to be in the midst of that process.
6. Do not forget to continue to present a witness. Your primary responsibility is to implant the truth of Jesus Christ. This is why you have a witness of your lips and your life.

This is what is happening at the church at Corinth. There are the seekers and the doubters; these are the two types of people referred to here. They need to be evangelized by a clear presentation of the gospel.

So they are there, in the assembly. What do they see? They see bedlam and everyone is speaking all at once and all no one can be understood. This is a church removed from its mission.

These people used to go to the heathen temple and now, they feel rather unsatisfied, so they meander into the church to see what they have to say. But you walk in and your hear all of this discordant gibberish. So many people, unless they are emotionally charged, get nothing from this witness. This does not impress the unbeliever.

Paul paints a picture here and he reveals with the unbeliever would think.

The descriptive verb is minomai. From this word comes mania. It means to be insane; to be disordered in one's mind. If your mind is disorganized, then it is chaotic. What is going on here? It's crazy. Yet there are thousands of believers who think this is good. They see it as edification. No visitor is going to take this seriously. They are not going to look at this and say, "Who are these nuts?" God is not a God of confusion. Confusion in the church is not of God. Bobby wishes that these churches understood this. Based on the criterion of not understanding makes I wrong.

Most of these were Greeks who had come out of polytheism. Minades is the same root as mainomai. In the Greek cults, they ended their services by tearing apart of human victim. This is the image which Paul brings to their minds.

The pastor-teacher was designed to come in and edify the congregation. When doctrine is not being taught and Christians are not being edified, anything could happen. In Corinth, it took the form of chaos. They are seeking a persona, religious experience. They are not looking to be edified.

There would be several services and tongues may have been used to give the gospel in a foreign language. We have the orderly and proper use of the gift of tongues and they present the gospel in their language.

Once the canon was completed, the nature of the church service changed. Berachah Church is not the only church where Bible doctrine is taught. The gift of tongues is being misused when it should not even be used. However, these sorts of churches do not put this craziness on tv. Instinctively, they know that is a bad way of doing things.

Order and doctrinal communication rather than chaos and mania.

1Cor. 14:23 If, therefore, the whole church should assemble together and all speak in tongues, and outsiders or unbelievers enter, will they not say that you are out of your minds?

V. 24 tells us what happens to the unbeliever, in his soul. They are hearing the truth speaking in tongues in v. 23 presents picture of pandemonium

The gospel is a part of the presentation. One of the great definers of the gospel is the book of John. It was written long after this epistle. Prophecy was also a communication of the gospel. Orderly and lucid presentation of the gospel. Bobby presents the gospel and he presents doctrine. This is a picture of real communication.

Even prophecy would not be clear communication if everywhere spoke at once, no one would understand. The next phrase tells us the response: he is...

The great thing about funerals.

1Cor. 14:24 But if all prophesy, and an unbeliever or outsider enters, he is convicted by all, he is called to account by all,

Lesson #976

1Cor. 14:23–24 November 8, 2009

Sunday 1

Communion Sunday. The mandate of Jesus Christ: This do in remembrance of Me. It should be no surprise to any of us that Christianity centers on the Lord Jesus Christ. He is no longer amongst us as He was 2000 years ago.

There were certain Greeks who were going up to the feast; and some came to Philip, saying, "Sir, we would see Jesus." Looking at Him through His Word today; or from 1John 3: We will see Him just as He is. We do see Him in these 3 ways.

The disciples often did not understand the Lord, His thoughts and the meanings of what He said, even though they were right there with Him. However, Paul tells us, “We have the mind of Christ.” Jesus Christ is the central figure of the Bible. The accurate vision of what we see of Jesus today is more important and meaningful than the physical presence of Jesus with His disciples.

“Sir, we wish to see Jesus.” These were Greek proselytes who came to Jerusalem to worship, and they sought out someone with a Greek name—Philip. They perhaps had a desire to see the One Who called Himself the Messiah. They knew He spent time with sinners, prostitutes, Gentiles and tax collectors. They must have been seeking answers to the mystery of salvation. How many others were like these Greeks who wanted to see their Savior? The wise men. The tax collector Zechias in Luke 19. He climbed a tree just to see Jesus pass by.

No person in history is more talked about, more hated, more loved than Jesus. Think about all of the great personalities in Scripture and their finest qualities together. Synthesize these traits and they will point to Jesus and He exceeds this synthesis, as we could improve upon any person in the Bible except for Jesus.

Jesus said, I and the Father are One.

Nicodemus inquired what he must do in order to be saved. He was religious, a good deed doer, a pharisee. But the problem was, he lacked new life. Resurrection makes effective His work on the cross. The risen Christ reveals the truth of all His words.

Stephen revealed impersonal love when he called for God to forgive those who were stoning him. The same impersonal love as Jesus revealed on the cross.

“In My fathers house are many mansions, and I go to prepare a place for you; so that where I am, you may be also.” Christians have nothing to fear in death; we become absent from the body and face to face with the Lord. There is a reality of the return of Christ, Who will meet us in the air.

Blessed by the God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who has caused us to be born to the Living Hope, to obtain an inheritance kept in heaven.

---

The verb minoman means that unbelievers have the impression of mental illness. They do not look upon these gifted believers as crazy, even though they are not. This mirrors the chaos and the clamor of old polytheistic religions from whence these people came.

People seek the truth and they want to see what makes a Christian different from anyone else.

1Cor. 14:23 If, therefore, the whole church should assemble together and all speak in tongues, and outsiders or unbelievers enter, will they not say that you are out of your minds?

Lesson #977

1Cor. 14:24 November 8, 2009

Sunday 2

There is a way that a service should be, and then there were the Corinthians who are bellowing out in tongues, that no one can understand, and they are all speaking at once, and they appear insane. It reminded them of the temple of Aphrodite and what they could not find in the Christian church.

The gospel is a part of the presentation in contrast to no gospel when speaking in tongues. Prophecy was usually speaking mystery doctrine. This was another indictment to believers who are improperly operating in their spiritual lives. It is all about them. It is about how they are noticed. This is an indictment of that. Prophecy is the exact opposite. The gospel must be given and suitable for the understanding of the unbeliever. If it cannot be done in tongues, then it must be done in prophecy.

V. 24 is the proper way to communicate. Believers and unbelievers hear and understand, and the regulars in the assembly hear and advance to maturity.

In their souls, they are convicted. They are convicted by all who are speaking. This connotes a solidarity of message. Several people stand up and speak; there is a solidarity of message; the agreement of the prophesiers of the message. Each man is not presenting his own thoughts and opinions; each one is presenting accurate soteriology and this is a consistent message of a Savior. They gave the same Message.

To the unbelieving world, there are many pathways to God and you just choose whatever pathway and you will end up with God at the end of the day. There is chaos and pandemonium there; there is no clear and concise message there. How many times have you heard that exact same message. Often, this is a way of accepting no formal pathway. The concept of grace is practically unknown. If grace is not a part of the message, then there is no message of solidarity.

"You will not do what you are doing today; every man doing what is right in his own eyes." from Deuteronomy. That describes the drifting, the confused, the chaotic. That is anarchy of soul.

People who are supposedly great thinkers are willing to accept contradictory religions and say, "You end up in the same place." How can these be the same pathway to God? God is not a God of confusion. The great minds of this world come to that conclusion and that is Satan's deception. Religion is always what man does in order to gain the favor of God.

The message of salvation is simple. We speak the same gospel that Jesus Christ did. We speak the same gospel that these prophets spoke. That is the unity and solidarity of our message. There is no other pathway to God except by the Lord Jesus Christ. No other religion speaks grace. That is the difference between true Christianity and everything else.

The ungifted and the unbeliever come out from a variety of temples and they are told they have to do this or do that; but in a church of God, they have the message, believe in Jesus Christ, and you are saved. It makes perfect sense to the hearer that he cannot reach God by himself.

The whole point of Buddhism is, you do whatever you do to be right. There are no absolute standards. What the Buddhist attempts is to become a god himself. That is the saddest thing of all to listen to a message which is so unclear. The ungifted and the unbelievers are confused when they hear a variety of messages. A solid, unified message, which is consistent among all believers. At a memorial service, Bobby makes the gospel clear; and they will do anything not to hear the message. Then there are those who hear what Bobby is saying and cannot take their eyes off him. It clicks.

There are so many relative things in this world. There are so many; and the truth is such a breath of fresh air. This is where the Corinthian Church is missing out.

Bobby did a memorial service this past Friday and they went through this same process. The unbeliever must get the gospel first; no other message makes any sense.

Present passive indicative of elegchō (ἐλέγχω) [pronounced ehl-EHNG-khoh] = to convince someone of something; to point something out to someone; 1) to convict, refute, confute; 1a) generally with a suggestion of shame of the person convicted; 1b) by conviction to bring to the light, to expose; 2) to find fault with, correct; 2a) by word; 2a1) to reprehend severely, chide, admonish, reprove; 2a2) to call to account, show one his fault, demand an explanation; 2b) by deed; 2b1) to chasten, to punish. Strong's #1651.

The subject receives that action of the verb, and they are convicted by all who speak, who present a unified message of solidarity. They are being persuaded by Christ. There is much more to this than what is being said. It goes beyond the prophesiers themselves. It goes far beyond what the witness is. The Holy Spirit acts as a human spirit and makes the gospel understandable to the unbeliever.

The unbeliever does not have the human spirit in order to decipher and understand the gospel. At some point, with the Holy Spirit making that message clear, that is the moment that the Holy Spirit takes that faith and makes it efficacious. What results is our regeneration; He is the One Who does this.

That person may not believe in Jesus Christ when you give them the gospel. But they talk to another believer, completely separate in time and place, and they give them the gospel.

Lesson #978

1Cor. 14:24 November 11, 2009

Wednesday

Veterans Day and medal of honor winners read. Butler and Daily.

Normally prophecy is used to present the mystery doctrine, but it can include the gospel. The gospel is presented to an unbeliever and to the ungifted. The unbeliever is the skeptic. He has heard the claims of Jesus Christ, but he is unconvinced of the message. He came back to hear it again. The ungifted is a seeker, a seeker of truth.

As visitors, these 2 walk into the church, and they hear a cacophony of tongues, they think, "These people are insane." With the prophets, there is no confusion. Salvation is clear and concise. Doctrine is presented apart from contradiction.

Unbelievers that we speak to may think, there are many roads to God; but Jesus says, "I am the way, the truth and the life; no one comes to the Father except by Me." Every other religion sets up man to jump through hoops in order to gain God's favor. There are no absolutes in these other religions; only Jesus Christ presents the one true absolute.

Ελεγω = to convince someone of something; to point something out. This is an enlightenment of the gospel Jesus Christ is the light of the world. This enlightenment for this verse is much more than the prophet. It is the gospel combined with the power of the Holy Spirit. Behind the inherent power of the gospel is none other than God the Holy Spirit.

The communication of God the Holy Spirit is called common grace.

Common Grace

1. This is theological nomenclature for the ministry of God the Holy Spirit in evangelism, in the presentation of the gospel.
2. In common grace, the Holy Spirit is the sovereign executive of evangelism.
3. The Holy Spirit clarifies the gospel.
4. The Holy Spirit uses an accurate and true message to convince the unbeliever. If you can get enough of the salvation package in your presentation, then God the Holy Spirit can use it. An apologist is one who presents a defense for the gospel. He can logically reveal the gospel and address the excuses which are given. When someone asks you a particular question, you should be able to give him a reasonable answer. Everything that we do should be laying the groundwork in order to present the gospel.
5. The Holy Spirit acts as a human spirit to enable the spiritually dead unbeliever to comprehend what he is hearing. Being born-again means that your human spirit is reconstituted.

6. No matter how smart you are in human terms. As an unbeliever, you cannot grasp absolute truth. They know relative truth only.
7. Therefore, human IQ is of no value in terms of understanding the gospel because of our spiritually dead condition. This is equal opportunity.
8. The grace ministry of God the Holy Spirit overarches the lowest and the highest IQ's. He overcomes them.
9. Common grace takes cognizance of the fact that, while the unbeliever spiritual dead and the gospel are mutually exclusive.
10. The Holy Spirit rebuffs spiritual death. The unbeliever does not necessary admit that he is lost.
11. This is the enabling power of the Spirit to comprehend the gospel.
12. Mechanics:
  - a. The gospel is given in some way or another; through the Bible or through what you say to someone else.
  - b. The Holy Spirit acts as the unbeliever's human spirit and transfers this information to the soul of the unbeliever.
  - c. The unbeliever considers these claims.
  - d. Then, if the unbeliever believes, then the Holy Spirit regenerates. The Holy Spirit has a lot of work to do.
13. Without the Holy Spirit, there is no conversion. It is not our faith, but the Holy Spirit Who puts us into Christ.

John 16:8–11: And when he comes, he will convict the world concerning sin and righteousness and judgment: concerning sin, because they do not believe in me; concerning righteousness, because I go to the Father, and you will see me no longer; concerning judgment, because the ruler of this world is judged.

This is the content of His convincing.

1Cor. 14:24 But if all prophesy, and an unbeliever or outsider [an ungifted man] enters, he is convicted by all, he is called to account by all,

Lesson #979

1Cor. 14:24 November 12, 2009

Thursday

For the unbeliever, the gospel convinces. It is the inherent power of the gospel. No one is neutral on the Word of God. It carries inherent power. Behind that inherent power is the common grace ministry of the Holy Spirit. Behind the power of the Word of God is the Holy Spirit. He metabolizes that doctrine for us. For the unbeliever, it is similar. The unbeliever is the recipient.

God is fair, and if someone has positive volition at the point of God consciousness, God will provide the gospel. What the Holy Spirit does is use an accurate and true message. Either through the gift of prophecy or the gift of tongues. He uses the accurate message through us as well.

There is two types of witness; what we say and how we live. We must also keep in mind the stumbling block principle. Do not make an issue of yourself in witnessing for the gospel, including in your life. It is not your reversionistic life. They see in you the stability of your witness. Your children will listen to what you say and watch what you do, and do whatever you do. If the message is there, the Holy Spirit can still use it. The Word of God and the Holy Spirit work in tandem; the tandem of persuasion. There are some great apologists in this world, and that is fine. However, no matter what, you turn it back to the gospel. Your argument might be brilliant, but it is the Word of God and the Holy Spirit which persuades.

Don't ever be afraid to present the gospel. We run into a lot of people every week; and in the course of conversation, there are times when you ought to present the gospel. You might find it is rewarding. You might get the thrill of seeing them receive eternal life.

In the spiritually dead condition, the unbeliever does not comprehend the spiritual impact of what he is hearing. When we present the gospel, the Holy Spirit takes this information and makes it lucid and clear to the unbeliever. It goes to the soul of the unbeliever.

There may be negative volition when a person hears the gospel. The Holy Spirit can work circumstances of adversity in order to reach the individual.

God Himself does not think or act in relative terms. He thinks in absolutes. The natural man is unable to think in terms of the absolute. There is no gray area; it is black or white; this or that. The human race does not think in this way.

Human works is the epitome of man's thinking. But how many works and what kind; and how do they stack up against one's sinful life. Man's standards are changeable, relative standards. This is how man thinks.

The smarter a person is, sometimes, the harder it is for them to grasp absolute truth. The relative is Satan's cosmic system. He must inject relatives into this world, and that is his greatest weapon of deception.

Satan told the woman, "Once you understand good and evil, you will be like God." That is the relative, which is Satan's deception. This deception is mirrored in every unbeliever's thinking. The unbeliever lacks the Holy Spirit, so he cannot comprehend absolute truth.

The unbeliever is convinced of the absoltes of the gospel. The first thing we are convinced of by God the Holy Spirit is sin.

Convincing of Sin

1. Hamartia is a single sin. It is not all of our personal sins. Nor is it a personal sin. We are born sinful by our position in Adam. We are lost at birth because we are born with Adam's nature. We are already apart from God even before we commit our first sin.

2. The singular sin is the sin of unbelief, which means they are without Christ. Universal salvation is not a result of Christ going to the Corinthians. The unpardonable sin is unbelief. That is the issue.
3. It is the Holy Spirit Who convinces the unbeliever of his sinful and lost condition.
4. The Holy Spirit convinces the unbeliever for his need.
5. Hence the Holy Spirit convinces the need of believing in Jesus Christ in order to be saved. Christ and Nicodemus.
6. Concerning sin that sin never the idea of personal sin. He does not convict of personal sin and human contrition does not enter into this.
7. The Holy Spirit convicts of a need; not the reaction to that need.
8. Repentance is not a part of the gospel; it is something which we must do. It is non-meritorious faith in Jesus Christ.

In v. 10, we get the 2nd aspect...

Concerning righteousness

1. After ascending into heaven the righteousness of Jesus Christ was no longer visible to the world. He was the perfect image of God. The only visual mankind had of perfect righteousness.
2. What was left was the testimony of perfect righteousness.
3. Our Lord was righteous without sin. Jesus can only mediate between God and man because He is perfect.
4. Spiritually dead man cannot produce righteousness. "I kept the entire Law" said one, the rich young ruler.
5. It is the Holy Spirit Who makes clear our inability to save ourselves; to produce divine righteousness.
6. Therefore, we understand just how short we fall of the righteousness standard of God.
7. You are convinced that you can never meet God on the basis of your own gospel. It was absolute righteous Christ on the cross who removed the barriers between us and God.
8. We have no personal righteousness then; God must impute His righteousness.
9. No one can God
10. Thus the believer has an eternal relationship with a perfect God. There is no other way. Absolute righteousness can only cohabit with righteousness in heaven. The world thinks, they do enough things, and God will be impressed.
11. The Holy Spirit convinces the unbeliever of his need for Christ. And also the need for him to attain His perfect righteousness.

Then v. 11: concerning judgment

concerning Judgment

1. Satan blinds the world with his relative deception.
2. He is very effective at counterfiting. Sometime you need to take a day and catalogue the relative things which people say.
3. Religion is one of Satan's greatest assets, since it requires man to accomplish human good for salvation.
4. Satan and his angels were judged. In prehistoric times. Arrogance was found in Lucifer and he became antagonistic toward God.
5. If Satan has been judged, then so also are those who reside with him in this camp.
6. There is no middle ground here. You are saved or you are on your way to the final judgment and the Lake of Fire.
7. The Holy Spirit convinces unbelievers of the reality of this final judgment.

John 16:8–11: And when He [the Holy Spirit] comes, He will convict the world concerning sin and righteousness and judgment: concerning sin, because they do not believe in me; concerning righteousness, because I go to the Father, and you will see me no longer; concerning judgment, because the ruler of this world is judged.

Lesson #980

1Cor. 14:24–25 November 15, 2009

Sunday 1

instead of all this madness of people talking all at once in a variety of languages, the preference is that one prophesy. Since they did not have the full realm of doctrine, they need prophets to teach them Church Age doctrine.

In this case, we are not looking at mystery doctrine, but simply the gospel. There are 2 categories of unbelievers here. The skeptic, the unbeliever who is not sure; the skeptic and the seeker. When an unbeliever wanders into the assembly of the church, and they hear the message, they are convinced.

The Holy Spirit common grace ministry to the unbeliever. No matter who gives the gospel. Rick Hughes gives the gospel to a number of people at once. It is a unified message. Whether we present that message or Rick Hughes does, there is a cohesiveness and uniformity of message.

At salvation, the Holy Spirit has a number of other ministries to the one who has just believed. Sealing, baptizing, etc. From here to here, the Holy Spirit is convincing the unbeliever, but this convincing does not ignore the volition of the unbeliever. The unbeliever has volition and they can resist the gospel. It is not our faith which saves us, but faith is required. There is no work that is involved. Common grace = the Holy Spirit's convincing ministry.

John 16:8–11: And when He [the Holy Spirit] comes, He will convict the world concerning sin and righteousness and judgment: concerning sin, because they do not believe in me; concerning righteousness, because I go to the Father, and you will see me no longer; concerning judgment, because the ruler of this world is judged.

Jesus did not die for unbelief. When we are born, we are born sinful. In Adam, all die. From the moment we take our first breath. We are immediately unacceptable to God. Even the most precious baby is not acceptable to God. We are all born with a sin nature. It is passed down. The Holy Spirit convinces the unbeliever of his sinful and lost condition and the need of a Savior outside of himself.

Then concerning righteousness. Jesus departed and His absolute perfect righteousness is no longer visible to the world. He is the only man to have perfect righteousness. That was the last time that we could actually see perfect righteousness right in front of them.

“You mean I cannot please God with all of my great works?” The Holy Spirit convinces us of our inability to manufacture the righteousness required by God.

Thirdly, concerning the ruler of this world, who has been judged. All who follow in the footsteps of unbelief will be judged with Satan.

The final phrase, he is called to account by all. The verb is anakrinô. It is God the Holy Spirit Who does the searching and examining of the soul.

The ministry of the Holy Spirit in common grace has that final and convincing effect. It is a searching examination effect on the unbeliever. We have preconceptions about God and Jesus and our relationship to God; and these preconceptions are cemented in there by us.

We come face to face with our own faulty thinking. There are 2 ways of salvation: our way and God’s way, so we must be convinced of His way.

The Convincing Ministry of God the Holy Spirit

1. The unbeliever is essentially investigated. He is put on trial by the gospel and God the Holy Spirit. You might think of the Holy Spirit as the cross examiner.
2. In this cross examination, the details of this person is made plain.
3. He understands the charges which are made against him in John 16 and his inability to reach God on the basis of his own merit.
4. The consequences of remaining within the camp. He is convinced of the need of something beyond himself. He may not accept this, but it is there. Now some reject the gospel and try to make it on his works. Like the rich young ruler, who convinced him that he was weak in one area of the Law.

Every unbeliever has that flash of recognition, of the truth of the gospel, and they can accept or reject it. God is fair and just. Missionaries have traveled to the most remote parts of the earth. Other places, no one has gone, because God knows that there is negative volition there.

1Cor. 14:24 But if all prophesy, and an unbeliever or outsider [an ungifted man] enters, he is convicted by all, he is called to account by all,

The secrets of his heart are disclosed. To come into the condition of seeing clearly; a condition of being clearly evident; full disclosure. You cannot hide anything. What is revealed to the unbeliever are the secrets of his heart. You would think that someone would know their own inner thoughts. Sometimes we know them and sometimes we will not acknowledge them, sometimes they are suppressed, and sometimes they are there, but we do not know how they really impact us. These are the deepest thoughts, which may or may not be evident to us, but concealed from others. They might be real, but otherwise suppressed. Even if these secrets are denied by the person, they can be revealed. The Holy Spirit is our psychologist.

The need of salvation is like that. It can be denied or suppressed by the unbeliever, even though it has been a concern in the depths of the believer's soul. It is said that man has an inborn sense of God, and that this intuition cannot be acquired by some reasoning process, but the function of a creature and his Creator. We are created by God in His image, and for this reason, we understand God. We are made in the image of God; that shadow image is the invisible image of God. God does not have a body; it is our soul which is made in God's image. There is an intuition there. Man's intuition is acquired spontaneously and incumbently. It guarantees that at some point in your life, he will become conscious of God. Rom. 1:19. His invisible power is clearly seen. Many people have looked up into the stars and think, there must be more to life than just me. Those who reject the gospel are without excuse.

1Cor. 14:25 the secrets of his heart are disclosed, and so, falling on his face, he will worship God and declare that God is really among you.

Lesson #981

1Cor. 14:25 November 15, 2009

Sunday 2

The heart is not the right lobe per se, but the inner thinking, the inner being, the soul. Specifically, this is the mentality of the soul. The secret thoughts reside in the mentality of the soul.

We are all born into the same predicament. What do you think? This is full disclosure about the knowledge of oneself. This is not something which unbelievers want to know; many of them resist this to their last dying breath. This is because this elicits fear. Bobby witnesses fear in the eyes of people at the memorial service. They want to hear eulogies to the person who has died. At a funeral, they have to face death. Death is the greatest fear of the human race. It shakes them down to their bootstraps and it shakes them up.

Each person who departs is an opportunity for friends and loved ones to hear the gospel. The pain and the fear is the point. When it is full disclosure, when the secrets of the heart are exposed, they are convinced.

The Holy Spirit can play a rough game. He does not toy around with us. Apropos to the phrase, the fear of God.

John 16 describes this disclosure. This is the only real chance for the unbeliever to view himself as God sees him. We have a tendency to view ourselves only in a good light. However, by and large, most of us like to see ourselves as nice and good people. We do not like to see ourselves as lost, selfish, condemned. Without Christ, we all fall short of the grace of God.

When we hear and understand it, the grace of God is one of the most liberating things that we can hear. It is a devastating statement to one who is dependent on his own ability to reach God. The gospel can be intimidating and threatening. It is a wonderful thing to see someone hear the gospel and believe, and to know you are able to participate in some way in their salvation.

The unbeliever has to face the fact of the gospel and their utter inability to save themselves. The Holy Spirit works with the information which we provide. Even if you present the gospel, and you are turned down and you are discouraged and even if it hurts, never forget the convincing ministry of God the Holy Spirit. He knows their mind and He knows what it takes to reach them and He does it, always.

We do not have to convince; we just have to present it to them. Present a clear gospel and then walk away.

It is okay to talk to someone about their objections, but do not continually argue; turn it back to the gospel. Unbelievers will throw all of this stuff in your way: evolution, evil, suffering, those who have never heard. It does behoove us to know how to speak to these things; but the key is the gospel. No matter how good your argument, the key is always the gospel.

I am not ashamed of the gospel, it is the power of God to salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew and to the Greek. Don't you want to share the greatest message to anyone who is interested?

The Holy Spirit arranges circumstances by which the unbeliever is convinced. We don't know what they have gone through or what they will go through. We might be the beginning, middle or end of a chain of events which leads to their salvation. The unbeliever might not be keeping track of this series of events and things which are said to him, but God the Holy Spirit is keeping track.

We need to present it fearlessly and confidently.

Bible doctrine has the same sort of effect upon us. Doctrine lays bare our souls and doctrine builds us up. It takes us apart and puts us back together with a new mode of thinking. It breaks us down, our human viewpoint, and builds us up with divine viewpoint planted firmly in our soul. Bible doctrine gives us full disclosure in our souls. We may decide to stray from it. At some point, the Holy Spirit can use the doctrine in our souls to bring us back to its importance. The Holy Spirit brings to mind that which we have forgotten and that which we may have neglected. At times, we might be brought back to a grace oriented life.

Many of us have been rebellious and we have departed from what we knew to be the truth, and then, at some point, we discovered the futility and misery of rebellion. God does not leave us alone; He keeps after us, like a good parent. God turns cursing to blessing. Repercussions from all of our decisions; good and bad decisions. When we advance to spiritual maturity, our attitude and actions change for the best. Some of the difficulties in our lives can be the greatest things which happen to us. If we keep advancing, we may understand the benefit, even though there are still scars. You have doctrine in your soul and you go off in a different direction. You reexamine where you have come from and where you are going to. The grace of God works for all of us.

We must also come to one of the most difficult of all human realizations. Satan's deceptions are incredible, whether in legalism or antinomianism. However, we must distinguish between the relative cosmic system and the divine system of grace and the spiritual life, which is beyond compare.

The Holy Spirit is our power source. He is to lead us into a system of divine grace. We see ourselves as soldiers in that conflict.

V. 25b presents the results of the exposure of the unbeliever's heart because of the convincing ministry of the Holy Spirit. When someone is positive to the gospel, that is the great moment.

It does not depend upon your own striving. Complete acknowledgment is given to the One Who provides salvation.

Salvation is poured out richly and graciously by God the Holy Spirit. It is the Holy Spirit which takes the faith of the unbeliever and makes that faith effective. The Holy Spirit regenerates us and renews us. The unbeliever realizes the way of salvation. He is thankful.

Titus 3:5–6 he saved us, not because of works done by us in righteousness, but according to his own mercy, by the washing of regeneration and renewal of the Holy Spirit, whom he poured out on us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior,

1Cor. 14:25 the secrets of his heart are disclosed, and so, falling on his face, he will worship God and declare that God is really among you.

Lesson #982

1Cor. 14:25 November 18, 2009

Wednesday

1Cor. 14:24 But if all prophesy, and an unbeliever or outsider [an ungifted man] enters, he is convicted by all, he is called to account by all,

The secrets of his heart are disclosed. He arrives at the condition of seeing something plainly. He has a clear vision. He has full disclosure of the secrets of his inner being; disclosure of oneself to oneself. We don't do this; the Holy Spirit does.

Exposed to him are his secrets. These are his concealed thoughts. Are there things in your soul which you would not reveal to anyone at all? These are the doubts, the fears and the uncertainties, which unbelievers live with on a daily basis.

The secrets are discerned by the person. They might be evident to that person. Kruptos means that they are secrets. These can also be thoughts which are suppressed. But they are real and affecting this person. Unbelievers are deeply affected by insecurities. The greatest insecurity of all is the fear of death. If you fear death, that is the greatest fear of life; but the believer recognizes that, if the purpose of your life is over, then you are gone. When it is your time, it's over. People fear that.

Once this life is over, it gets a lot better; and we can look forward to not fearing death. This is a thought deep in their soul. They don't admit this to themselves. God puts a spotlight on these secrets by the gospel of Jesus Christ and the common grace ministry of the Holy Spirit. It is the Holy Spirit Who does the persuading.

That is a sad part for the unbeliever. Deep down, they know they lack something; they may not know what, but they know that they lack it. The unbeliever can listen to the self-revelation of the Holy Spirit. He can acknowledge the need and believe on the One providing that salvation. Or he can reject the cross, and the secret remains hidden and it remains deep in his heart. This means, you must come up with your own solutions, and they must be humanistic solutions.

Bobby sees this at memorial services; they do not want to hear the gospel, and Jesus Christ is calling them to account. This is the negative volition which eternally condemns the unbeliever.

When he hears the gospel, he knows, to some extent, how God sees him. We are nothing in the eyes of God. This is how the unbeliever sees himself, and he recognizes how futile is his life.

He is convicted of judgment, because the god of this world has been judged. The unbeliever has at least one moment of lucidity about himself (or herself). He faces the gospel and the utter inability of us to reach God on our own. The gospel is made absolutely clear. The Judgment Seat of Christ will ask one question, what did you think of Christ? Before the Judgment Seat of Christ, those 3 things will be very clear to the unbeliever. That is why it is incumbent upon us to reveal the gospel.

This is the procedure of the Holy Spirit in common grace: full disclosure to the unbeliever.

Now to part b of this verse. He is convinced he has a need; he knows how short he falls; and the other side of the coin is the redemption solution. That is the actual, physical result.

This is a beautiful description of that moment when the unbeliever is convinced. Realization and relief; now the unbeliever has an eternal future. He is a new believer, and he knows he has been saved. He knows his need of salvation and its response.

We may or may not remember the moment of salvation. What went through your mind when you realized that you were a believer in Jesus Christ with an eternal future. In this case, he falls on his face and he worships God.

Paul uses this imagery falling on his face. Paul is using Old Testament imagery to describe this.

Gen. 17:3 Then Abram fell on his face. And God said to him, Abram was promised a piece of real estate; there was a national blessing. We in the Church Age are a dispensation during the time of Israel's temporary demise; its temporarily being set aside.

There was the universal blessing; being promised Christ and the world.

Joshua 5:14 And he said, "No; but I am the commander of the army of the LORD. Now I have come." And Joshua fell on his face to the earth and worshiped and said to him, "What does my lord say to his servant?" Joshua was face to face with the Lord. He was informed by the Lord that he would attack and conquered Jericho.

Matt. 26:39 And going a little farther he fell on his face and prayed, saying, "My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless, not as I will, but as you will.": this is a sign of obedience, humility, and...

Summary Points for v. 25

1. Fully disclosed the secrets of his heart.
2. Seeing his own helplessness and the grace of God in the gospel. He saw his need and he saw his helplessness.
3. This elected a response of falling on His face in worship. Now he is a believer in Jesus Christ. The unbeliever cannot fall on his face in worship of God.
4. This is a picture of defence to the Lord and gratitude for salvation.

Allah is not God; he is not defined by the essence of God in the Bible.

Then there is the testimony. "God is among you." Some were prophesying the gospel and the Holy Spirit made it plain to his soul. He recognized that these are fellows believers; God is among you.

1Cor. 14:25 the secrets of his heart are disclosed, and so, falling on his face, he will worship God and declare that God is really among you.

We are now in the home stretch of 1Cor. 14. What will follow are special regulations for public worship. These principles govern us as well.

Outline

Vv. 26–29 the regulation of tongues. The Corinthians were wild and crazy about this.

Vv. 29–33 is the regulation of prophecy in the church survey.

Vv. 34–36 special instructions for women in church.

Vv. 37–38 these are the mandates of Christ; they come directly from the Lord.

Vv. 39–40 sum up the entire chapter; prophecy over tongues and do everything with decency and in order.

It would be amazing if churches followed this approach. Post this verse large and every time someone stands up to speak in tongues, the pastor need only point to this verse. Respect and order; the word of God demands respect and order. The pandemonium and emotion is a sign that no doctrine is being taught. No doctrine is being taught and it is worthless. The Jews are seeking the demonstration of divine presence, but most unbelievers look at this mess and say, “God is not among this crowd.”

Lesson #983

1Cor. 14:26–28 November 19, 2009

Thursday

Bobby will slow down for regulations for women in church.

1Cor. 14:26 What then, brothers? When you come together, each one has a hymn, a lesson, a revelation, a tongue, or an interpretation. Let all things be done for building up.

Churches which believe in speaking in tongues seem to miss that edification aspect of tongues.

1Cor. 14:27 If any speak in a tongue, let there be only two or at most three, and each in turn, and let someone interpret.

Tongues, when it did exist, was used inside the church at various time, in the local assembly. It had a limited use for edification in the church. Most of the time, it was used outside of the church to evangelize.

Many people from other locales converged on Corinth, and some attended these churches, for whatever reason.

1Cor. 14:28 But if there is no one to interpret, let each of them keep silent in church and speak to himself and to God.

We are coming to a conclusion, which is said in v. 26a: what is the conclusion? What is the situation now? Paul uses a logical progression, which he often does. He first gives the facts of the case; then he gives the indispensable principle. Then he gives practical directions for applying this principle. This is exactly what Paul does. All of these gifts are present in the service.

There are 5 different aspects to the service, and there are several individuals, and they stand ready to manifest those things in an orderly way. In Corinth, it was just the opposite; there was no order. God is not a God of confusion.

Don't lose sight of the motivation of virtue love. Secondly, do not forget edification, which is the key to 1Cor. 14. Virtue love in chapter 13 and edification in chapter 14.

The early church in Corinth was not as structured as our assembly is today. Because of the spiritual gifts, there was a certain spontaneity. Someone with the gift of tongues or prophecy, would stand up and get to speak. However, what might happen is, 2 or more want to speak at the same time, and there was an abuse of these gifts.

Emotions did run amuck, so the services needed to be tightly regulated as they are today. Berachah Church is probably one of the most tightly regulated services today. Control of the proceedings is always necessary.

The 5 functions which Paul regulates: psalms and you immediately think of the book of Psalms. Here, there is a little different meaning.

Psalm as found here

1. A psalm is a hymn of praise often connected with a musical instrument. The psalms were lyrics put to the music, although the music has long been lost.
2. Psalmos is a hymn which is sung.
3. The song, as v. 15 says, must be done in the filling of the Spirit and in full cognition of the words. If it is about the music, it is emotion; if it is about the words, it is about edification.
4. If someone just stood up and began singing emotionally charged tunes, the result would be the same as everyone speaking in tongues. You must have someone directing the music.
5. So the songs would have to be something prepared for the occasion and then sung. These were not simply spontaneously done. They prepared or suggested something. There are those who write doctrinal lyrics. Some currently do that.
6. This is the meaning of having a psalm in the assembly. It is the musical form of worship. It is done in an orderly and planned way. Music is for edification.

The second aspect is teaching.

Teaching

1. διδῆναι refers to someone who comes prepared to teach some doctrine.
2. This is the sermon phase.
3. This is when the pastor speaks.
4. The subject of the teaching is always the mystery doctrine, which is what is found in the New Testament. They did not have the New Testament at that point in time.

Bobby is certain that Paul wrote other letters to the Corinthians. Bobby has a very good idea as to where we are going.

5. They also received teaching when Paul was in residence with them. Whatever copies of other epistles had been circulated, they also had those to read. They copied and passed them around. This is where the information came from.

Revelation

1. Αποκαλυψις
- 2.
3. This doctrine was only given through prophecy.
4. This was a direct revelation of mystery doctrine. This is no longer a part of our worship service, per se. however, we have it all, but I is in the Bible.
5. This could include revelation of future things, which was the Old Testament sense of prophecy.
6. So those with the gift of prophecy were prepared to impart divinely inspired revelation to the congregation. Only the Apostles wrote divinely inspired writings.
7. This was also the part of the sermon phase of the assembly. Either teaching or revelation. Logistics was important then. It was hard for many to come together throughout the week. There were vocation and transportation problems. Many came from a long distance. Some were slaves. Example of Fredericksburg, and many were farmers, and they would, on Sunday, gather up the family and drive into town, and change and clean up there, and spend all day in worship.

Then we have tongues, which was for the purpose of evangelizing or giving out basic doctrine to non-Greek speakers. This was necessary inside the church. While outside of the church, there was no need for interpretation.

We do not have tongues and therefore, no interpretation of tongues.

1Cor. 14:26 What then, brothers? When you come together, each one has a hymn, a lesson, a revelation, a tongue, or an interpretation. Let all things be done for building up.

Orderliness in the Church

1. This is simply a manual of what ought to be done.
2. In the event that tongues was spoken in the precanon era, 2 speakers was the optimum number during a service. No more than 3 were ever permitted. None without an interpreter. There is the regulation.
3. The rest of the congregation could understand the message and get more out of it.
4. Even when an interpreter was present, only 2 or 3 were allowed to speak 2 is the best and 3 at most.

5. Each one of the speakers was to speak in turn; not altogether. This was not an emotionall, trance-like diatribe. This was not a trance-like ecstatic state. Tongues was tightly controlled and very limited. This would preclude most tongues today; no one is interpreting today. Uninterpreted tongues was useless to the larger portion of the assembly.

1Cor. 14:27 If any speak in a tongue, let there be only two or at most three, and each in turn, and let someone interpret.

If there is no interpretation, then the tongues-speaker is not to speak.

Paul's instructions are simple. Field manuals in the army are so complex, they ought to be thrown out after the first couple pages.

Present active imperative of ζεγωω, which means to keep still, to keep silent. This is a mandate which one would expect for unauthorized speaking in church. The pastor ought to be a regulator of such things. Ζεγωω was the watchword of the previous pastor.

This is rather rude, but Paul does it anyway. They need to keep quiet. How many churches do not do this. "You there, no talking; come see me afterwards." Remember that?

This protects the congregation and the edification of the congregation.

Paul wants to make certain that there are no distractions like random babbling. In a lot of churches, people will get up and wander about during the service. Some use the restroom 3 times in an hour. Or they will chat with their neighbors. Texting is also not allowed.

The mandate is simple: ζαγωω

1Cor. 14:28 But if there is no one to interpret, let each of them keep silent in church and speak to himself and to God.

Lesson #984

1Cor. 14:26–28 November 22, 2009

Sunday 1

This is the final section of 1Cor. 14. There will not be political correctness in this section. Ladies, you need to be in attendance, so we know what God expects of us in the here and now. This is divinely inspired Scriptures, and these are the regulations of the church by which we are governed. The final 2 verses sum up this entire topic of 1Cor. 14.

the idea here is, what are you people doing when you assemble and how can we fix it? Paul will spell out the 5 functions of the assembly. These 5, although they do not apply directly to us, there is an application.

One may bring a psal or a hymn. Now, this does not mean that every person in the assembly has all 5 of these things to go at any time. Each one is a limited number and it is not all-inclusive. Some churches for the gift of tongues try to get everyone to speak in tongues. But not everyone has the same gift. The ψαλμος is a song, and it is done with a specific purpose and done in a specific way. This is the hymn of praise in the assembly with music and it contains the wisdom of mystery doctrine. Any singing without wisdom is a waste of time. When Gla sings, there is doctrinal value in the words that she sings.

There are plenty of churches which can provide us with emotional stirrings. Now, sometimes, there will be an emotional response to this or that doctrine. Each time we are in church, we are taking one more step toward spiritual maturity.

Διδικη is someone with a gift who comes ready to teach some doctrine. If someone comes to teach and they have nothing to teach, then what is it worth? This is the teaching gift of the pastor-teacher.

Bobby studies the Bible exclusively. In those days, there was no New Testament, so where did they get their doctrine? Timothy got his doctrine from Paul; and it was probably from notes and from epistles which are being sent around. So, there was some access to some doctrines. They came prepared to teach.

The 3rd aspect is revelation. Αποκαλυψις, which is the teaching of mystery doctrine. This revelation was only available at that time in the gift of prophecy. He receives a direct revelation by God. This was not available in writing. It might include future things. This was also a part of the sermon phase of the service.

Then there are 2 things not occurring today. Tongues were spoken in churches, which are used to evangelize. When someone translated Tongues was not designed to be an emotional outburst or to get some sort of emotional response from others. This is a real language, not the language of angels. Unless this was a human language, this was useless for everyone.

Then Paul gives the overall purpose for all 5 functions: Let all things be done for edification. Would that churches today understand that. If that happened, churches would be more like Berachah Church and more people would be advancing.

1Cor. 14:26 What then, brothers? When you come together [assemble], each one has a hymn, a lesson, a revelation, a tongue, or an interpretation. Let all things be done for building up [edification].

This is a field manual for basic training. When starting in the military, you do everything as per manuals that you get.

For a church service, 2 speakers of tongues were the ideal amount, and only if an interpreter is there. 3 at the most. There would be a lot more closed mouths and pandemonium in our churches today. There must be order in the church. What is happening today with the gift of tongues violates everything which we find here.

1Cor. 14:27 If any speak in a tongue, let there be only two or at most three, and each in turn, and let someone interpret.

Σεγάω is what Paul said in the present active imperative. There is no, "Maybe you should to this or that." Paul says, "Shut up" and it is a mandate. Disruptive and non-educational speaking in the assembly is to be eliminated. This is a mandate to protect the edification process of the church. Paul wants to make certain that there are no distractions. This regulation is just as pertinent today as it was 2000 years ago.

Verb: sigaô (σιγάω) [pronounced see-GAH-oh], which means 1) to keep silence, hold one's peace; 2) to be kept in silence, be concealed. Thayer only. Strong's #4601.

There are plenty of people out there who are qualified to speak and yet no one wants to hear them speak. This is a tragedy.

1Cor. 14:28 But if there is no one to interpret, let each of them keep silent in church and speak to himself and to God.

Lesson #985

1Cor. 14:28–33 November 22, 2009

Sunday 2

In the time that this was written, the gift of tongues was quite fantastic.

Go ahead and talk to yourself. Bobby can hear what he is thinking when he says it out loud. He does that to see how it sounds. Paul is being sarcastic.

Warnings

1. Remember the previous study; there is no edification value to the church in the private use of tongues. This phrase must be understood with vv. 2, 9, 12: So also you, if you do not give a clear word through the language, how will the thing being said be known? For you will be speaking into air.
2. Speaking in tongues to God is a sarcastic statement. For the one speaking in a tongue does not speak to men, but to God, for no one hears, but in spirit he speaks mysteries (2Cor. 14:2).
3. You think by forming words privately in your soul. Paul is simply acknowledging how to think.
4. Although Paul is not recommending this private talk as a primary mode, it did happen. It is not all just sarcasm; it did happen. It was a useful alternative to disruption and violation of the regulations which has been laid down.
5. Since God is involved in any true exercise of a spiritual gift, then there is a certain communing with God. Worship is worship.

Do Pentecostal churches have only 2 or 3 maximum people speaking? Were the regulations violated? Were tongues only spoken when they could be interpreted? The gift does not mean that you have it all and you don't need to listen. When you hear the Word of God, you must focus on the Lord for edification. The private use of tongues is really counterproductive, and that is Paul's point here. It would be counterproductive for a person to start speaking in tongues, cutting off someone speaking prophecy. The priority in the Bible is always to prophecy; always to Bible teaching. Teaching mystery doctrine; teaching the Bible will always be the priority.

1Cor. 14:28 But if there is no one to interpret, let each of them keep silent in church and speak to himself and to God.

Now we move forward, and there is some passing of judgment going on.

You should at least get a general impression from what is below.

1Cor. 14:29–33 Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said. If a revelation is made to another sitting there, let the first be silent. For you can all prophesy one by one, so that all may learn and all be encouraged, and the spirits of prophets are subject to prophets.

How many people meet as a little group in a house where some unqualified person leads the group, and they have no idea how to study or what hermeneutics are, and when they are stuck, they say, "What do you think?" That is ignorance. No matter what the justification is; this is a woman's group and they really speak to me, that is still the blind leading the blind. There are plenty of churches all over where there are plenty of churches around where God's Word is subject to a discussion.

The pastor is the lead the flock. We are sheep and all together, we are a flock. Bobby is a shepherd who leads his sheep with the Word of God. This is spiritual advance. Bobby is responsible for the spiritual growth of all. 1Peter 5:2–3 Shepherd the flock of God among you, exercising oversight, not by compulsion, but willingly; nor eagerly for base gain, but readily; nor as exercising lordship over the ones allotted to you, but becoming examples of the flock. The work of the pastor-teacher is to be done with great desire. It is a pleasure to do what Bobby does. It is not a drudge. Bobby would have to question his gift if he hated doing this. It is hard work and it carries great responsibility.

Bobby still remembers jumping out of an airplane, and some would say, "I can't believe that we get paid to do this." There should never be the motivation of money. Titus 1:11 1Tim. 5:17–18 Let the elders who take the lead well be counted worthy of double honor, especially those laboring in Word and teaching. For the Scripture says, "You shall not muzzle an ox treading out grain," and, the laborer is worthy of his pay. Deut. 25:4 hard work is how you are remunerated. Bobby eats and he does fine; and he gets paid for it. He is a professional, and he gets paid for it. We should have a work ethic which is compatible with our gift. There should be a desire to see the sheep under one's care to grow and prosper in the Word.

Bobby was concerned whether this congregation could grow under his teaching.

This passage reveals the order of service before the canon of Scripture was completed. When the temporary gifts were discontinued, the field was left to the pastor-teacher. The interpretation of the existing Bible became the domain of the pastor-teacher.

Even then, things were to be done properly and in order.

2 or 3 prophets are allowed to speak, just like the limitation of tongues in v. 27. Mystery doctrine was not received by the prophet on a constant basis. It came to the prophet at a specific time for a specific reason, the doctrine needing to be understood at that moment. There was a rotation system, and no different than tongues.

Now, if someone stood up and said, "This is my area of expertise and he's wrong here, and let me stand up and explain it more accurately." that would be problematic. For them, this was new revelation provided by God the Holy Spirit.

Doctrine was implanted directly into their minds by God the Holy Spirit. Suddenly, someone stands up and gives information directly from God the Holy Spirit. However, this is no less exciting than studying the Bible as it stands today.

It is the message that counts; not the means of delivery. If the means of delivery mattered, then these gifts would still be in existence.

1Cor. 14:29 Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said.

Lesson #986 1Cor. 14:29 Thanksgiving Message Nov. 25, 2009 Wednesday

2 verses come to Bobby's mind, and Thanksgiving eve.

Psalm 65:11. There may have been a time when client nations were scarce, like the Middle Ages.

Psalm 65:11 You crown the year of Your goodness, and Your paths drip with fatness.

We have great reason to be thankful. Plymouth Colony in 1601 (?) And the Pilgrims with Indians; and they offered the Indians a portion of their bounty for that year.

The Pilgrims were Puritans, and they wanted to change or purify the Anglican Church. Henry VIII wanted to divorce Catherine and marry Ann Bolin, so he started his own church, which was not much different from the Roman church, except that it allowed King James to get married.

The Puritans, in their time, were extremely strong believers, and because of their beliefs, they were persecuted. They left England for Holland, and lived there for several years until the Dutch persecuted them. Their characteristic was their love of the Bible. They adhered to the Bible as a matter of faith and practice. They loved a good preacher. They were very artistic in their delivery. They loved logic and grammar, etc. Believers in those days were encouraged to keep diaries of their Christian warfare. This was a diary of their combat experience. They had a well-ordered system of church government. They had a very strong sense of moral consciousness, but they are not the stiff type as they are portrayed. They had a belief in hard work, called the Protestant ethic. They thanked God for the US, for bringing them to a new world, where they had a great deal of abundance.

2 years after this celebration, they held another day of Thanksgiving. After that, Thanksgiving was intermittently celebrated. Sometimes for safe arrival of ships; or battles, or bountiful harvests. Most of all, the celebratory days were toward the Lord and most were set by colonial governors. After the war of independence, no other colony but NY had the custom. Gov. Jay set aside Nov. 11 as the official day of Thanksgiving in NY.

1789 was first year when it was nationally proclaimed by Washington. Later practiced in 1795; Adams called 2 days of thanksgiving.

In 1863, Lincoln set up Thanksgiving as a national holiday. When there is no other resource, then why not turn to the grace of God? That is what Lincoln did. Since then, we have celebrated this as a national holiday.

You should always take the time to recognize how much God has given to the USA and we are still exceedingly blessed by God. We have been given more wealth and prosperity than any other nation on earth. Other nations hate us because of our great advantages. And there is no excuse to the US for hopelessness. We are still the land of opportunity.

Remember from where this all comes.

Psalm 103:2 Bless Jehovah, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits;

This was addressed to the Jews, so that they would keep mindful of what God has provided.

I can do all things through Him, Who strengthens me. A benefit of grace is that, when we are weak, we are strong in God. That is the foundation for our strength. Thanksgiving is a gratitude for God's grace.

Appreciation and gratitude should be a part of every believer who knows a little about what God has done for them. Thanksgiving is grace orientation.

There is nothing worse than ingratitude. The "you owe me" attitude, which is characteristic of the welfare state. There is not grace orientation in ingratitude. Why are we prone to forgetting God's grace the rest of the time? Are we so accustomed to His grace and we take it for granted? Do we take it as a matter of course? Particularly in prosperity, we lose sight of it. We should remember daily what the psalmist provides.

If you were to name the blessings provided for us one by one and watch them move across your horizon and examine them and think about them, you might see your life as a continuous miracle of grace. You might even fall on your face in gratitude. Do not let the fact of His never-failing grace cause us to forget and to become ungrateful. It is the privilege of every believer to render thanks to God.

Psalm 92:1–2 It is good to give thanks to Jehovah, and to sing praises to Your name, O Most High; to make Your mercy known in the morning, and Your faithfulness every night;

We ought to have a continuous attitude of gratitude. God's faithfulness never fails. We ought to be thankful for a little discipline. It just might bring us back into line.

We have just completed a long study of God, and gratitude and appreciation are a focal point, and they are developed by understand Who God is. If you have no capacity for gratitude, then you have no reciprocal love for Him.

If you have no reciprocal love, then you will lack capacity for all forms of love. Every time you bow your head, you thank the Lord for something.

Now we will go back to Corinthians.

When they assembled, they got 2 or 3 sermons at a time. When our workdays got shorter and fast transportation became available, this can be spread out.

For this reason, Bobby decided on 2 back-to-back services, in part for our convenience. He felt that would be better than splitting it up.

In those days of the early church, the speakers alternated. They were still polite and they all had their turn. There was none of this getting louder and louder and all speaking at once; that was not the way for things to be done.

At the time in which this was written, the so-called prophets did not just make up stuff or fudge some information that they thought would help things along. Why would a prophet misused such a gift? Why would it need evaluation? Why would others pass judgment? Just by prophesying, this gift could bring acclaim to the speaker. Therefore, they needed to be evaluated. With no completed canon of Scripture with the standard of accuracy for us. Any pastor or anyone speaking about the truth needs to stand for accuracy.

The check and balance system was made up of others in the church and they were specifically gifted in this realm. This was not a random thing that anyone could stand up and do. There was a gift that the others possessed.

This was called to test the spirits, to see if they were from God. So there was a check and balance system, even for this great gift. There were those gifted in the congregation. However, that gift of discernment That gift is not around anymore.

1Cor. 14:29 Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said.

no class

Lesson #987

1Cor. 14: November 29, 2009

Sunday 1

Although people use the phrase, "I am a spiritual person" but most people have no idea what that actually means. To them, it refers to some ethereal thinking which is not materialistic.

V. 29 is packed with things that we need to know. Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said. The gift of prophecy was a key to spiritual growth. The teaching of mystery doctrine, whether through prophets then or pastors now, will always be the priority. This is the #1 priority. This is how doctrine was brought to the early church.

The Corinthians were so abusive of the communication gifts, Paul needed to set up critical regulations for them to follow. Paul puts the same limitation on the gift of prophecy as there was on the gift of tongues. 2 is idea; 3 at the maximum; and only 1 speaking at a time. The prophet spoke revelation which had never been heard before. Their communications did not come from the written page, but from doctrine implanted directly into their minds by God the Holy Spirit.

This must have been exciting to see and to hear. Revelation coming directly from God.

The Corinthians had a propensity for distorting the truth. Paul had been with them for 18 months. They obviously had prophecy and tongues among them. 2 long epistles were written to them. They had lots of gifts. They used one of the most critical gifts of that time for their own personal thrill. They misused these gifts. A prophet in exercising his spiritual gift would receive acclaim as a very important spiritual person. He would be held to the highest esteem because of his nearness to God.

There are a lot of people who use this to elevate themselves. So this gift is not abused, Paul sets up a check and balance system. In the Corinthian church, there are no checks and balances going on at this time. The check and balance system is stated in v. 29b: Let the others pass judgment. This is so the prophets would not fudge on a topic or compromise divine truth. There was a gift to discern whether someone was speaking from God. This was a check and balance system. This is the gift of discerning spirits.

These were specifically gifted believers. Δισκρινω this is the judicial branch of the assembly of the church. Was this prophet qualified and was the information he was teaching divine truth? This is what they did.

Today, we have a different system of checks and balances. Prophecy is no more; we have it all. We have everything the prophets spoke in those days; it is now written down. Today, we evaluate, is the pastor's message consistent with the Bible.

What makes some deceptive messages mix truth with lies. Any message which does not fit the Bible must be rejected. There are certain obvious indicators to us and there are doctrinal aberrations which we can recognize. If we have any knowledge of the Scripture, we can figure out when there is a false gospel being taught.

Every cult that we can think of comes from some prophet saying that they have new revelation, and they do not. They put their own spin on the Bible for political, moral or personal reasons.

Liberation theology is a good example of this. The Bible is used to prove certain things. They prove from the Bible Marxist economic theory. They will take Matt. 19:21–22 Jesus said to him, If you desire to be perfect, go sell your property and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in Heaven; and come, follow Me. But having heard the Word, being grieved, the young man went away, for he had many possessions. And they conclude that Jesus wanted us to take all of our possessions to the poor. The haves providing for the have-nots. Look at this greedy capitalist who wants to preserve all of his stuff for himself.

Preach to gullible people to soak it up. We should be helping the poor and giving to charity. But our first duty to the poor is the eternal riches of the gospel of Jesus Christ. This is what Jesus is doing here, but taken out of context, that is distorted. Jesus was speaking to a man who believed in salvation by keeping the law. He was a self-righteous legalistic moralistic Jew; he was a good man. These kinds of men were the greatest antagonists to Jesus Christ. This is how Jesus faced a good man who thinks that he is good enough. Jesus used the very Law that this man believed in to refute his thinking.

Jesus used the Law to show this man that he could not gain salvation through his own works. This man cited his relative righteous deeds to Jesus, and he expected to hear, "You are one of the good ones; do not worry about it." This interchange was designed to probe this man's conscience. The Lord Jesus Christ never advanced political causes ever. He was here to bring salvation; to reveal God. Jesus nailed this guy's hide to the wall, showing him how he failed to meet God's standards. He thought that he did not need grace, but he is wrong.

1Cor. 14:29 Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said.

Lesson #988

Matt. 19:21–22 November 29, 2009

Sunday 2

The message which Jesus Christ gave is valid for all dispensations. However, if this passage is taken out of context, it can be misinterpreted.

David used a citation from the Law; the rich young ruler looked for the salvation which he provided for himself. "Look at me; look at all the wonderful things I have done; notice how well I have followed the law."

He had relative righteousness, but not absolute righteousness. This interchanged was also done to probe this man's conscience. If good deeds will put you through the pearly gates, have you done enough? We were all born with a sin nature.

Matt. 19:21–22 Jesus said to him, If you desire to be perfect, go sell your property and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in Heaven; and come, follow Me. But having heard the Word, being grieved, the young man went away, for he had many possessions.

The refute this claim, this man put God before money. He also did not love his neighbor as himself. What did this man do?

What Jew followed every aspect of the Mosaic Law? Not one. So here comes this man who says, "I am keeping the Law" and Jesus shows him that he is not. This was Jesus Christ Who kept the Law perfectly. This made Him acceptable on the cross. Jesus Christ looked this man straight in the eye and challenged him in these two areas. Fulfill the Law and then follow Me. This is grace versus legalism, not socialism versus capitalism.

We are going to see the way that people will distort the gospels. The life of Jesus is easy: salvation, salvation, salvation.

Keeping the Law for Salvation

1. The point Jesus is making is, no one can keep the Law; no one can make it on the basis of good deeds.
2. Jesus hit this legalistic unbeliever where he was most vulnerable; in his pocket book.
3. He hit him where he would most easily get the point.
4. The Law pointed to man's inability to produce perfect righteousness based upon his own efforts. There were legal and spiritual codes in the Law, but the Law pointed out that we needed more than the Law to be saved.
5. No one could keep the Law perfectly apart from Jesus Christ.
6. The Law was never a means of salvation. It was to show how man needs Christ for salvation. How many times have you heard people say, "Keep the Ten Commandments, that is what God wants you to do." This was the point that Jesus Christ was making. "You need Me, not Marxist economic theory." All those things he had done, he would have to admit that he did not do what was needed. He could not accept that. He could not accept that his works were worthless.

The rich young ruler could not depend upon grace; he wanted to depend upon his works. "God smiles upon me; I am one of the chosen ones."

This man demonstrated negative volition in all of these good deeds and legalism. The antinomians understand this more than legalists do. It is a lot harder for Legalists to get this.

1. It was not that he was a greedy capitalist which kept him from being saved.
2. He was grieved because Jesus did not confirm his worthiness for salvation. He wanted confirmation, and he did not get it.
3. He did not hear what Jesus was telling him.
4. This whole scene was being observed by dozens of others.

There is a practical application to this. We can see liberation theology for what it is to assure the accurate doctrine that we hear. We should listen very carefully to the teaching of the Word of God. There is the inculcation of spiritual growth. This also helps us to discern false doctrine. Our concentration is on the teaching. If we understand truth, we can understand falsehood.

We do have some doctrine resident in our soul. The doctrine in our soul is our protection from false doctrine. Not only for application, but for protection and defense against just this problem. God illuminates doctrine in our souls.

The doctrine in our souls is a buffer against false doctrine. The more doctrine that is in our souls, the more we are protected from falsehood. We have a mind that can apply doctrine to the circumstances of our lives for defense. While we listen very closely, an additional application is hearing inaccuracies in teaching by comparing what is being taught with other doctrine in your soul. This is legitimate. This is for defense and how we build doctrinal categories in our souls. We grow as we listen and we are defending ourselves at the same time. We are operating on offense and defense simultaneously.

This is not license for us to compare pastor-teacher with pastor-teacher. Don't do that. You put yourself in harm's way when you do this. We judge or evaluate pastors. There is a vast difference between evaluating the difference of one pastor who is speaking and comparing pastor against pastor.

The ministry is not a beauty or a popularity contest. While we make these doctrinal decisions for ourselves, as to which pastor is teaching accurately, your advance slows or stops. That is the problem with all of that. Your eyes are on your pastor. You are not distracted by self-determining distractions from several sources. If you have inculcated doctrine and have grown and you hear something different from another pastor, you will naturally stop and evaluate and compare. You are comparing pastor nuances of doctrine. You have replaced advancing with idling in your growth.

Here is where your application comes in.

Prophets received attention when they used their gift; the prophet needed direct revelation from God. So, how could they have this when they had the wrong motivation from God?

It was incumbent upon Paul to set up some regulations for prophecy, similar to that which was set up for a check; a check and balance system.

Testing the spirits to see if they are from God. This was to discern if a person was divinely inspired. They were to judge whether this came from God or not. It was extremely important for the assembly. Prophecy was one of the few ways a church got mystery doctrine. This gift of discernment may have been one aspect of the prophet's gift or it may have been a separate gift. Who better to evaluate than prophets testing other prophets? Who would have greater authority? The church would be more likely to trust these guys. This was the check and balance system for accurate teaching.

An application of our check and balance system. Prophets evaluating prophets. Our check and balance system is the post-canon Church Age believer. We are discerning of the doctrine which we hear. This comes from our knowledge of the Bible and the doctrines which are found there. Doctrine is the criterion for discernment. Doctrine builds doctrine which builds discernment of doctrine. Our discernment is empowered by God the Holy Spirit. He empowers our spiritual life. He illuminates basic doctrine in our souls. The doctrine in our souls is a buffer against false doctrine being taught. The more you are taught, the more you are protected from falsehood. You have a mind which can apply doctrine as a defense system. However, without doctrine in your soul, you fall prey to false doctrine.

Bobby began to set ground rules for discernment. The process for discerning, we might misunderstand or abuse. However, it should come easily to us if we have doctrine in our souls. We have cautions. When we listen to doctrine, we may pick up error. Our ears may buzz as we compare doctrines which we have metabolized with other doctrines that we hear. Particularly in the larger categories of doctrines and basic doctrines. The basic doctrines are the very basic tenets of the faith. We ought to pick up immediately at a false teaching about the Trinity or some sort of works salvation or rebound with penance.

Having the capability, does not mean that we have the right to compare pastor with pastor. There is a vast difference between evaluating the doctrines and evaluating the pastors. That is the difference. That is why Bobby keeps repeating, one pastor at a time. You will move toward maturity more quickly.

The example: if you have been inculcating doctrine under one pastor; and you hear something from someone else that is different, you will stop and you will evaluate and you will consider; and you will compare pastors and their teachings. This greatly complicates our lives. When you hear the voices of many shepherds, you can become confused. You have replaced advancing with idling in your growth. In some cases, you never figure it out. Some of us have been and are now confused. We place ourselves in this position.

Any pastor-teacher can make mistakes. But consistent teaching under one doctrinally-oriented teacher, mistakes do not stop your advance.

With doctrine applied from your soul, the errors will be discerned. The Holy Spirit is our Teacher and our Mentor and our Guide. When false doctrine happens, it often becomes just humanism. It is no longer absolute. The Holy Spirit cannot use humanism. That is just putting man and man's opinions before God.

False teachers often depart right at the basics. It will be obvious when departure and error occurs. When it occurs, you hear that, then hit the door and leave.

The pastor-teacher teaching and we are listening. We are metabolizing doctrine and we are defending our soul with the doctrine that we are taking in. That is the check and balance system. That is how it works. The more advanced we become, the better is our discernment.

Beware of the pastor-teacher who says, "I have been wrong all these years about what I have been teaching, and I am going to change things. I have special insight from the Holy Spirit that others don't have." Another caution: this defensive use of doctrine does not mean that you question the pastor-teacher on every little point that you don't understand. A lot of people in Berachah have become spiritual pundits.

Unless a person listens for doctrine, and not solely to be a critic, you will grow. People hold on to their questions, and if you do that long enough, your questions will be answered. This is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. He will not leave us with question marks all over our souls.

If you are in a place of obvious apostasy, and you are with a friend, and you say, "That is pretty wrong" that is okay. Many people have been critics of Bob and he was there 53 years and they were not. Do not become the arbiter of your own doctrine. This is by listening to several similar Bible teachers. Then you sort out the differences. Find one pastor that you can listen to and learn from so that you are not constantly evaluating some nuance from pastors. That is a distraction. That is the optimum means of spiritual growth.

If you cannot grow under Bobby, find a pastor that you can grow under. Do not compare and contrast pastors. Some churches have a plurality of elders, and that also has a deleterious effect. It happened in Berachah, with every assistant pastor Bob had. It was a fight, with every single one of them.

Even in some of the great mega-churches, there are churches within churches.

Don't go overboard on this point. Don't become a legalist and decide to never hear another pastor. Do not put yourself in a position of trying to sort out doctrine and comparing other pastors. Bobby will listen to other pastors out of curiosity. He can hear a pastor in about 5 minutes and know what their theological structure is.

“I get a nice devotional in one place and real doctrine in another.” The application of the doctrine is your devotional. A devotional does not provide spiritual growth. Doctrine in your soul inculcated over a period of time is how you grow. Devotionals are like your morning coffee; it is gone by the afternoon.

Many people left Berachah because they did not like their emotions being curtailed. What you have to have is a pastor that you can grow from.

In the Christian world, there is so much falsehood; false theology and false teachers and arrogance is always encroaching on the truth. This is why Bobby taught that preterism was a false doctrine. He did us a favor of discernment, so that when we hear this stuff, we are able to recognize it. Preterism is covenant theology.

When a believer gets into carnality or corrupted influences, doctrine is not applied. These people who do not discern put themselves in harm's way. When any pastor-teacher makes a big switch in his theology and suddenly repudiates his past teaching, or claims to have a special knowledge, look out. That is when you need to evaluate very carefully from the doctrine which you have. The Holy Spirit will guide you in this evaluation. We can fail but doctrine does not fail.

The check and balance system works.

Old friends denounce other old friends because they do not embrace the new enlightened one.

1Cor. 14:29 Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said.

Lesson #990

1Cor. 14:29–32 December 3, 2009

Thursday

Lambs are confused by hearing the voices of too many shepherds.

The check and balance system of the early church protected the church from false doctrine. Paul has made this correction to the procedures of the early church. Too many used their gifts for the wrong reasons with the wrong motivation.

Paul gives them regulations and points out the resources that they have.

1Cor. 14:29 Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said.

Paul moves to another regulation in v. 30. The problem of interruptions.

These believers are sitting in the assembly. This is very importantly a mandate for order in the assembly. It is addressed to the entire congregation and their actions in the local church. If there is a discrepancy in the prophecy or some disagreement in the assembly or some eager believer (spring-butts; those dying to add whatever revelation they can to the class itself). The idea here is, don't be rude. Paul is addressing people being rude.

This is another assembly regulation. Δε used as a transitional conjunction. Αποκαλυπτω and if to another is revealed. The Holy Spirit has given a new prophecy to someone with the gift and the prophet reveals this to the rest of the congregation. In his soul is divinely inspired doctrine and he gives that doctrine to the rest of the assembly. When it comes from the Holy Spirit, it is correct. Bobby at times wishes that he was a prophet. His job would be much easier. That is how it worked. Once the prophecy has been given, he rises and speaks. That is the premise of the first phrase.

One rises to speak to give a revelation, and Paul says, “Let the first be silent.” Σαγαω means to be silent. No prophet or other person was to jump up and interrupt a speaker of the mystery doctrine. Prophesying was not a debate; it was not to degenerate to a shouting match. If someone detects a problem and he stands up immediately and they are yelling back and forth; and, apparently, the church at Corinth had a few brawls by this time.

The Regulation

1. To stop brawls.
2. To the advantage of all believers in the assembly.
3. The idea is that they might understand the mystery doctrine being presented.

Good order was critical. If someone judged a prophecy as being invalid, the false prophecy would not be refuted until the speaker completed his communication. It is just good manners to wait. Also, the entire statement is given, in context, and it is possible that the prophecy is accurate, when all of it is given.

This is all about good manner. If someone wants attention in the assembly, what better way to get it than by interrupting and making an issue of yourself. Good manners are always the manner of the day. We have two purposes.

We are here to learn doctrine. This is not a debating society. This is a monologue. The most important subject that we learn about.

Paul reveals a better way to handle people and this is for the benefit of the hearers to reduce distractions and disorder. Good order is important to the assembly. There needs to be concentration without diversion.

Don't Interrupt a Sermon

1. This destroys the continuity of the sermon. Bobby works very hard to present a continuous sermon. He wants us to understand in a reasonable a logical way Bible doctrine. Interrupting destroys this logical flow.
2. Such a disruption destroys the train of thought of the pastor.
3. This destroys the concentration of the hearers. It puts some out of fellowship.
4. This is the principle of sitting where we are without distraction. Bobby cannot make us listen or force us to be positive toward doctrine, but he can provide a good environment for it.

5. This is a demonstration of self-discipline and good manners. If anyone has to talk or jump up, this is bad manners and it is self-centered.
6. This principle is all about courtesy and thoughtfulness toward others in the assembly. Virtue love involves manners and orderliness.
7. This courtesy is an overt manifestation of integrity and of humility and of objectivity. You must be objective. Shake it off. Bobby once had a woman during a memorial showing Bobby her displeasure. Courtesy is a manifestation of integrity, humility and objectivity.
8. Courtesy is the absence of self-centered arrogance. If you are not courteous, then it is not about you. If you are discourteous, then it is all about you.
9. Self-centeredness or lack of courtesy is the inherent attitude which causes disruption or disorder.
10. This command or regulation is valid for all churches in all generations of the Church Age.

Civility is part of your virtue love. It is a part of shedding the arrogance of your soul. It has been the history of Berachah to adhere to good manners. In fact, all some people recall just how quiet Berachah Church is.

There is a typical incident which took place in a teen class years ago. It has happened many times since. Bobby happened to pull a transcript of this class. Bobby was there, but not the subject of this. Bob always had an eye out for distractions. He struck fear into all; he was good at it.

One gal Bobby ran into only remembers someone being called down in the teen class. This began with a gal. She was talking and distracting the other kids. Bob decided that this was bad enough to handle. "Many of your teenagers are often accused of doing everything to get attention." Then he fixed a riveting stare on this young lady. "I suspect the type of attention the girl in the green dress is about to get is not very good. Young lady, your manners stink. When I am speaking, it is rude for you to speak. Now if you have something to say to this group, come up here and tell us all about it." Bob would make teens stand up now and again and spout doctrine. "Do you read me loud and clear." Bobby thinks that she is there tonite.

Bobby thanks Bob every day that this congregation is so well-trained. It is all about doctrine; it is not about chatting up the person next to you.

1Cor. 14:30 If a revelation is made to another sitting there, let the first be silent.

Not everyone with the gift of prophecy was to speak during a service. 2 or 3 at the max, in sequence. Each one in sequence. In that sort of modus operandi, it is orderly. This makes clear the orderliness of the speakers and the assembly

The purpose of prophesying is to edify the church. The aorist active subjunctive of μωανω, which means to learn, to be taught. Then the present active subjunctive of παρακαλεω. To be admonished, to be. This is a call to learn and to apply doctrine to the experiences of life. This can only be done if you listen in good order.

1Cor. 14:31 For you can all prophesy one by one, so that all may learn and all be encouraged,

This next verse is about the self-control of the speaker. It is not about the content of the prophecy, which was back in v 39, but this is all about the speaker and his own emotional involvement. The background here is something the Corinthians understood very well. Most had gone to the heathen temples and they came out of that heathen mystery religion. The speakers were often completely out of control. They were not in control of their mental faculties. .

There was a madness which took the souls of these women. I guess in the heathen temples. There is the utterances and the weeping and the wailing. They could not stop themselves. The former-heathen understood this; but this should never be true of the prophet of the church assembly. The environment must be controlled.

The prophet himself must control himself. He controls how he speaks. It is no different how the apostles wrote as divinely inspired men. The Holy Spirit inculcated in the prophet divine revelation. The prophet did not just dictate this information to the rest of the assembly. He used his own persona; he used his own personality. God does this because there are a variety of sheep out there. God arranges for our benefit the pastor with just the right style. How the prophet speaks is controlled by his mentality. He is not trance-like. In this case, the prophet controlled himself.

1Cor. 14:32 and the spirits of prophets are subject to prophets.

Lesson #991

1Cor. 14:29–32 December 6, 2009

Sunday 1

There were so many problems in the Corinthian church. Some were upset over others eating meat. They sued one another; they showed off their spiritual gifts, there was incest; people showed up drunk to the Communion Service. This church was loaded with spiritual malfunction, which can be seen in various forms in churches today. It is hard to tell the difference between unbelievers and believers.

Once you accept Jesus Christ as Savior, you are saved forever; but that does not mean that you will spiritually advance. They were just like unbelievers, except that they had eternal life.

In this 3rd to the last chapter of this book, Paul addresses all of the distortions which took place during the assembly of the church. Paul is not a self-designated busybody wandering around and sticking his nose into other people's lives. The change comes from the renovation of one's thinking was the correct-all.

The communication of Bible doctrine is what is critical for the renovation of one's thinking. Paul first ascribes and then corrects the misuse of the spiritual gift of tongues. Tongues had been diverted from its purpose of evangelism. It had become a means by which some increased their status in the church. They elevated their eyes by means of those in the assembly.

The all-important gift of prophecy was the primary means of bringing mystery doctrine to the church. This was the means of assimilating doctrine for the early church. Divinely inspired doctrine was brought to the ears and souls of the believers in the church. This was revealed directly by God the Holy Spirit. The prophet was presenting the solution for all of the problems in the Corinthian church. Renovated thinking was the means of change.

In 1Cor. 14, Paul is summing up all that is wrong with the church. It centers on prophecy. Prophecy is a temporary gift which is no longer in existence. The prophet received the same Bible doctrine from God the Holy Spirit. Bobby is not divinely inspired; he could make mistakes. The prophets did not make mistakes until they perverted the doctrine. Those who spoke in tongues used it to be big fish in a little pond. Bobby would not have wanted to be a prophet under those circumstances. There are those who claim to be prophets today who have no clue as to what they are talking about. This should have been a privilege for prophets then and pastor-teachers today.

Paul laid down some regulations for all churches of the 1st century, and which can be applied today. These regulations are found in 1Cor. 14:29–31:

There was a system of checks and balances. One prophet could pass judgment on other prophets. That was the gift of discernment. We were told already what our own check and balance system is today. We can detect false doctrine.

1Cor. 14:29 Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said.

The next regulation. When one speaks, everyone else is quiet. There must be good order and good manners in the congregation. This is the most mannerly and well-ordered congregation; other churches have chaos and pandemonium.

In Corinth, there was an abuse of spiritual gifts so that no learning took place. There was not to be an interruption of those speaking prophetically. That gave context to their message and allowed the congregation to concentrate.

1Cor. 14:30 If a revelation is made to another sitting there, let the first be silent.

3 regulations for order and for the number of prophets who speak and for the passing of judgment; in these regulations, there is a lot of ground covered.

1Cor. 14:31 For you can all prophesy one by one, so that all may learn and all be encouraged,

This is one of the most important of the 4. This is the speaker having control over his own emotions. These Greeks (mostly) had come out of wild Greek religions where they had out of control speakers and sexual debauchery, which included temple prostitutes. The inspiration or expression came from another evil source. They could not stop themselves from speaking under these influences. This is something which these Greeks had seen all of their lives. They were used to this and they understood this. However, there must be calm and order for doctrinal communication.

The grace apparatus for perception functioned then; they had human spirits. There should have been a clear channel between the prophet and the Holy Spirit teaching the human spirit. The Holy Spirit cannot teach when there are distractions and chaos. Very little gets through under these circumstances.

The prophet was divinely inspired. He was teaching direct information from God the Holy Spirit. How could he get off track? How did that work if the Holy Spirit was in control of the prophecy? Was he not being influenced by an outside source? Wasn't the Holy Spirit in charge? How did that work?

Πνευμα a very common Greek word from the New Testament. In this context, it must be understood. It must be one of the keys to understanding this verse. Its meaning is important to this context. It could mean God the Holy Spirit; it can also refer to a state of mind; it can refer to the human spirit; it can refer to evil spirits in another context; it can mean breath in another context.

How do we describe and define πνευμα here? There is a connection here, but it is somewhat different. This is the inspiration of one with a spiritual gift. It is close to the concept of a state of mind.

The spirits of prophetesses were influenced by demons, which produced noise and sexual deviancy. They had no control over themselves. That was the spirit outside the prophet himself; however, the prophet was not totally possessed, as the priestesses of the heathen temples. The prophet like the Apostles spoke with divine inspiration. The Holy Spirit did not alter the prophet's human intelligence, vocabulary, style, personality, vocabulary or any other human. When the prophet spoke, he gave the complete and accurate teaching of Bible doctrine. He was not in a trance, but he was in full control of himself and his mental prophecies. Unlike the possession of the priestesses in the heathen temple, everything that made the prophet who he was not altered by his gift and the filling of the Holy Spirit. So, because he is not dictated to by God the Holy Spirit, he is fully able to distort or to abuse his gift.

He must speak from himself. He must be fully in control of himself.

1Cor. 14:32 and the spirits of prophets are subject to prophets.

Lesson #992

1Cor. 14:32–33 December 6, 2009

Sunday 2

The Holy Spirit did not control the self-control of the prophets of that age. The prophet spoke directly from his own human spirit based upon what God the Holy Spirit placed there. What he said came from his mind, vocabulary, speaking style. He functioned in tandem with the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit did not speak through him in terms of making the prophet an empty vessel.

There were regulations here because these men were not completely under a spell. God is not a God of chaos. Is our life chaotic? Are you always in pandemonium in our life? A relaxed mental attitude is the face of adversity and difficulty; that is the opposite of chaos. Our life should have order to it. Look at your closet to determine if your life has order to it. Does the rest of your life look like your closet?

If the spirit of the prophet was out of control, then he would not be using his spiritual gift correctly. He was not up there to put on some sort of a show. Mystery doctrine was the most powerful information that the prophet could speak.

The spirit of the prophets are subject to the prophets. Some think that this refers to being subject to other prophets. ὑποτάσσω this is the present middle subjunctive. Wives are to be subject to their own husbands, but this is not in the middle voice. Here, this is the middle voice, making them subordinate to themselves. This means that he is subordinate to his own mentality. His volition and will must be paramount. He is inspired and in control of himself. His will and mentality are subject to his control. Uncontrolled religious feelings and speech was evil. Paul knows the problems which result when a prophet is out of fellowship and it out of control, then there are problems. The spirit of the prophet can never allow himself to get out of control. In order to speak mystery doctrine accurately and to communicate in an orderly environment, which is the optimum for learning.

The pastor must have control of himself as he teaches divinely inspired Scripture. When studying, there is something in Bobby's mind, and that has to be presented in a focused and logical way. Some pastors are all over the place. They get emotional. They go into a tirade. They work the congregation into an incredibly disruptive state. If the pastor is in control, the congregation will often remain in control. If the pastor is out of control, the more likely the congregation will go out of control.

Those who want the information can get it. No discipline in the world will make someone take in doctrine (or whatever) if they have no interest in it. Being negative cannot be overcome. But, positive believers must be given an organized environment in which they can grow spiritually.

1Cor. 14:32 and the spirits of prophets are subject to prophets.

This next verse tells us that God is not a God of confusion, which is why the prophets needed to maintain control. They were to prophesy one by one. This is how the divinely inspired gift must be used.

Bad doctrine and no doctrine in the soul is also a reflection of chaos in the soul. If the information is not confused, why should be be confused?

The Holy Spirit is not a God of chaos and confusion. The Holy Spirit who inspires and Who guides is not the Greek conception of a god. There was some vestige of identification in this congregation with Greek gods. The Greek gods were a reflection of those who wrote about them.

What was Mt. Olympus really like? The gods wandered around. They could be confused and fooled by other gods and by humans as well. They sired demigods like Hercules and it all got very confusing and disordered. It was no wonder that the Greek mystery religions were so raucous.

God is a God of peace. This is the Greek noun ἡρηνή and it means harmony, order, peacefulness. This is exactly the opposite of confusion here, which establishes its meaning here.

We confuse the issue; it is not the doctrine. Doctrine works just fine; we are the ones which malfunction. This is why metabolizing doctrine is so important. With God, we always know who we are and where we stand and where we are going and how we get there. Satan's cosmic system is filled with confusion. Humanism and human viewpoint are a tangle of confusion. Everyone does what is right in their own eyes. They do not base their lives on the truth and on that which is from God.

There is nothing boring about the spiritual life. One of the toughest things to do is to be unconfused when you face confusing and chaotic situations. When under great pressure, you can lose focus. Bobby, when hungry and tired and too blind to see the paper, was then told to write a field order. That is when training takes over. He did what he was taught.

Satan likes confusion. He wants to keep man confused. The more he can befuddle the mind of man, the more tactical victories he can win in the world. He confused the woman, by just twisting what God said. It is confusion. Had her mind not been confused, she would have withstood Satan. Satan loves to confuse us.

The God of peace and the God of order. The spirit of the prophet must be unconfused and in subjection to the prophet. His spirit produces the communication of divine truth. He must be able to teach systematic theology. Systematic theology is the way truth about God is organized. The prophet and the pastor is capable of total organization and lack of confusion from his own will.

1Cor. 14:33 For God is not a God of confusion but of peace. As in all the churches of the saints,

Lesson #993

1Cor. 14:33 December 9, 2009

Wednesday

We do not need prophets, as we have the completed canon of Scripture. We check the prophets against the Scripture. Two arguments against modern prophecy.

There was very little structure or discipline in the services. The general chaos caused confused and disordered thinking in the minds of the believers in that church.

If you look at all of the small cells in a microcosm, you see nothing but order. God is not a God of disorder, but a God of order.

God is not a God of Disorganization

1. Our life is an organized life. God is not a God of confusion. We have lives of self-discipline; and a life of self-command. It is a life of poise. It is a life of self-control. It is a life of self-regulation and of self-restraint in our thinking and in motivation and in making right decisions and actions. Never think a life or organization is boring. It just means you are capable of making great decisions. It is an asset to not be confused; the whole world is confused.
2. Our lives cannot be disciplined and organized until we develop a fixed scale of values. The military is important for young men and women because it gives them a fixed scale of values. You do not get that in the world. "Be careful out there," to Bobby when he left the military, "No one out there is in charge."
3. The self-disciplined and organized thinking which translates to our fixed values derives to us from God's Word. God's Word never sanctions disorder or lack of self-discipline.
- 4.
5. The very fact of Paul's regulations for prophets is to develop a self-disciplined mind for the congregation. This is Paul's bootcamp regulations. This is his field manual for the prophets.
6. An organized mind means an organized life. One precedes the other. For the prophet, an organized message of doctrine. His mind is organized and hence, doctrine is organized. Organized thinking is critical. You cannot be a good leader if you do not have some organization in your soul. Bobby must be organized in his thinking in order for us to be organized in our own thinking. God's Word is clarity for all of us.

Now let's get an application:

1. As we advance in our spiritual lives, as our thinking is renovated for absolute doctrine in our souls, we are not confused nor do we live a disordered life. God is not a God of confusion. He does not commend confusion to us.
2. We are not confused because we develop a scale of values commensurate with the mind of Christ, which is Bible doctrine.
- 3.
4. The mind of Christ is not vague or bending or blurred, or subject to ambiguity. Our souls have clarity.
5. We may make it ambiguous ourselves. His Word is never the source of confusion. We ourselves are our own source of confusion.
6. Bible doctrine is absolute; it is complete; it is certain; it is conclusive.

7. When we grow in the absolutes of Bible doctrine, which reflects God's thinking, which is His mind, we develop His absolute scale of values. This is divine viewpoint. This is absolute clarity. There is no shadow of doubt.
8. When we have His absolute of values, we do not retain a relative scale of values or situational ethics. They bend to fit the situation. There is no right or wrong in the House or the Senate; there is no sense of the absolute.

We are going to get some regulations for women coming up; and it is clear as to what they say. When we have divine viewpoint, we are not confused.

Satan's cosmic system is one of total confusion and disorder. That system is all around us. That is the world of confused thinking. We are in this world. However, we are not of this world. We do not have to be confused. We are in the world, but we are not of the world. We do not have the thinking of what is outside of the world. Satan's cosmic thinking is humanism and cosmic viewpoint. All of Satan's thinking is relative and we know this because Satan is in opposition to all that God is. Satan desires to instill cosmic thinking in man.

9. To the extent that we lacking divine viewpoint, we are not advancing to spiritual maturity. The more that Satan can befuddle our minds with relativism, the more he pulls us into his cosmic system.
10. When you think in terms of the doctrines of God's Word, you are thinking in terms of absolutes, and not in relative terms.
11. In absolutes, there is no confusion as there is in the cosmic system. God cannot be and never will be the source of confusion.

In these regulations his prophets must not be the source of confusion. The problem of leadership. If we are screwed up, those under us are also confused. The most true in a church where the pastor-teacher is confused; so everyone is confused. Where the pastor-teacher teaches the Word of God, his thinking is organized and his congregation is not confused.

What divine manner is the prophet to reflect in utilizing his gift? God is a God of peace. Peace is the noun εἰρήνη, which means peace, harmony, order. Order is exactly the opposite of confusion of disorder. God always operates in systems of order. Religion is contradictory. All pathways do not lead to God. That would be confusion.

The regulations give to the prophets is to maintain order and peace in the congregation. You cannot learn in a disorderly classroom. There is no discipline and no self-discipline. You must have order.

The prophet must have control of himself by his own will and by his own choice. He mouth is not worked by God. God the Holy Spirit does not make him speak. He utilizes his own vocabulary and his own thinking. He must be orderly and organized. The spirit of the prophet must be under the control of the prophet. The control of himself is so critical that he must be able to produce the mystery doctrine. That is his job. It is all part of his own volition. The prophet is subject to the disciplined influence and his own self control. The mystery doctrine is communicated to and through him. Organized thinking and an orderly conduct.

We can draw 3 conclusions:

1. Tongues speakers were to rotate one after the other, have an interpreter, and without more than 3 speaking at any one service. This is orderly and regulated. Tongues-speaking is rife for abuse.
2. The assembly is to keep quiet, even as great thoughts pop into the minds of those listening.
3. Prophets, and, by application, pastor-teachers are to speak one at a time and to have control of themselves as they speak.

God is not a God of confusion; we are not to be disordered. Points means that Bobby is putting together some thoughts in an orderly, progressive way. Peter explains these things in an orderly fashion in Acts. So it must be with all communicators of doctrine.

Emotion can be a response to Bible doctrine, but doctrine is rational and non-emotional. It is absolute. It is we who are relative and emotional. God never compels or expects anyone to act contrary to organization and He never sanctions disorder. In coherence is not good order. emotionalism is not good order; it is chaos. Both the listeners and the prophets are capable of precluding disorder. If you cannot make application of all this, then you are not listening.

What Bobby does cannot reflect confusion; the same for us; we cannot reflect confusion. What we hear is orderly. Our soul is not confused by Bible doctrine. God is not a God of confusion; He is a God of absolutes, so we are not confused when we have His mind.

Additional Points

1. When anyone claims to be influenced by God the Holy Spirit, no matter who it is, that influence is always organized and rational.
2. It is not frenetic or chaotic. If it is, then it is not of God. 1Cor. 14 is very much against the charismatic movement.
3. Anyone who fosters disorder and chaos like some churches use tongues and praise today, whose mind is not engaged, but whose emotion is, is confused.
4. Under those conditions, there is no doctrinal application or learning, which invalidates the purpose of the assembly.
5. When anyone disturbs the peace of the assembly, or is insubordinate or hypercritical or disruptive, or anything else which is disorderly, they are out of line and under strong delusion. They are imposters. If you have a problem with anyone, go see someone in authority. No interpersonal conflict, which is disorderly.

Maximum edification requires maximum order and peace in the assembly. This mandate is not just for the church at Corinth. It is for all churches at all times.

1Cor. 14:33 For God is not a God of confusion but of peace. As in all the churches of the saints,

This next paragraph is specifically for women, the next 3 verses. Order and self-control in the assembly is critical. Paul decides that he needs to address women in particular.

Bobby reads these verses:

1Cor. 14:34–36 the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says. If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church. Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

Was Paul a repressor of women? Does this even belong in the Bible. Some do not like it. That does not mean it is out.

Lesson #994

1Cor. 14:34 December 10, 2009

Thursday

God works in the form of what seems to be coincidence. Bobby cancelled his subscription because he was so tired of the bias. Bobby's next door neighbor is out of town, so he picked up his paper. He found a perfect illustration of last night.

Mixing old time religion and new age; many in America customize beliefs. Can you believe in Jesus and astrology. The survey, one of the first to tackle things like spiritual energy in trees. Overlap between religions and other supernatural beliefs. According to results, the overlap is considerable. People's personal beliefs after combine various Christian doctrines with various other beliefs like reincarnation and astrology. 22% of Christians believe in reincarnation. Researchers ask if people believe in or have had relationships with consulting a psychic, encountering a ghost, energy in other things, etc. Have you ever had a religious or mystical experience or have you seen a ghost? Nearly half have said they had a mystical experience. 18% claim they have interacted with a ghost. One guy says he does not see a problem with his long-ranging beliefs. "Even in the Bible there are ghosts; the Holy Ghost." He says a bunch of other things.

God is not a God of confusion or disorder. This article is an example of confusion. "I can believe in anything" and it does not strike him as being contradictory. This guy equates the Holy Spirit with disembodied spirits of people. He also mentioned Daniel, who spoke of astrologers. Daniel 2:22 exposed astrologers and diviners as phonies.

These astrologers are incapable of approaching God. This guy wants to equate this with God. Daniel pressed the astrologers, and they could not interpret Nebuchadnezzar's dream. Because of this, Nebuchadnezzar was going to kill these astrologers; they were incompetent. They could not contact God in order to understand the dream. These were very much like eastern mystics today. The 3rd example of the wise men following a star. That was not an exercise in astrology. He wants to mix astrology and Christianity. There were wise men from the east were ancient astronomers. Matt. 2:2 call the star they follow His star. These men were no familiar with astrology but with the Scriptures. They followed His star so that they could worship Jesus. This was not a confounding of astrology and Christianity. These are people trying to reconcile Christianity with other beliefs and practices. Remember, God is not a God of confusion.

How is there a transmigration of souls if God prepares a resurrected body. These are irreconcilable concepts. So many Christians are willing to reconcile opposing concepts.

When you mix in a little falsehood with truth, you are left with falsehood. Woe to those who are clever in their own sight. False religion is relative like the cosmic system. The Bible is divinely inspired. It controls objective and absolute principles.

There are those who take upon a false view and come up with their own religion. This is blatant syncretism. This combines or integrates opposed beliefs the Bible is absolute revelation truth. Eastern religion is relative, humanistic. There can be no synthesis this is the kind of distorted thinking which leads to false gods. 2Peter 3:17 be on guard against unprincipled men who might carry you away. You leave the absolute for the relative when you leave your steadfastness.

Let the women keep silent in the churches, for they are not permitted to speak. This is the Word of God, so it cannot be discounted as a cultural aberration. Paul did not hate women. He had warm relationships with women. There were many in the places where he traveled, so he was not knocking women. He well understood the meaning of Gen. 3:16b ...and your desire shall be toward your husband; and he shall rule over you. 2 other similar passages. חָשַׁק this is the desire to rule or to control.

Gen. 3:16

1. This verse is Hebrew poetry. It is written in individual lines. 4 lines of Hebrew poetry.
2. Parallelism is the chief characteristic of Hebrew poetry. They love that.
3. In parallelism, both phrases, the couplets, are related in meaning to each other. They further define each other. One line defines another. If you don't understand one, then look at another.
4. The key is authority. He will rule over you.
5. Rule in the 2nd couplet describes the meaning of desire in the 2nd phrase.
6. Desire and rule both refer to the same concept. That concept is authority or resistance to authority.
7. This verse paraphrase: her desire will be to rule over her husband; but he will rule over her. This is God's pronouncement of judgment, the curse of the woman after the fall. God continues after this. She will be ruled by her husband. These are married women; that is the limitation of the context. Ladies, do not marry a man unless you respect him and trust him and can follow him. If you can't, you will live in the midst of this curse, exacerbated 10-fold.

Why did God judge the women in this way?

1. This justly affected the woman's first sin.
2. When the woman fell, when she sinned, she realized evil in the form of anti-authority thinking. This is all about authority-orientation for women. It is a part of the thinking of the man and the woman. She disobeyed God and her husband.
3. Satan told the woman, "God doesn't want you to know what is going on, so He does not want you to eat from the tree." The woman's anti-authority thinking is why this woman fell. She does not thank God to Dadim
4. In the judgment that God made in Gen. 3:16, God revealed what this woman would struggle with all of her life. God also provided the solution to the judgment.

How did the woman precipitate an anti-authority revolt in her soul. Satan had fallen already and he

we are going to back up and see the genesis of Gen. 3:16b. How did Satan become the original antagonist of God? What does that have to do with women keeping silent in church? When Satan fell, the ball got rolling. When the man and woman fell, God judged and condemned each one of them. Because of all that, Paul gives church regulations. The roles of men and women today and throughout history.

Bobby is going to cover the Angelic Conflict.

1Cor. 14:34 the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says.

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

1Cor. 14:36 Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

Lesson #995 Angelic Conflict 1Cor. 14:34 December 13, 2009 Sunday 1

1Cor. 14:34 the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says.

Women be silent, subordinate yourselves; you must be kidding? Who is going to buy that today? These are feminist fighting words and these words are unacceptable to them under any circumstances.

Why shouldn't women be elected as deacons and pastors of a church; and why should a woman be subordinate to her husband in marriage? This verse has been disputed since 1965. Many Christian women resent their seemingly subordinate role in the church and the family today. They adopt the attitudes and arguments of anyone who is in opposition to verses like this. The argument is, this is Paul simply reflecting the culture of that day; or that he was just a chauvinist, and that was his inculcation of that culture. Most have heard arguments like this, and the argument, this verse is out of touch, out of synch and out of bounds; and no way would God ordain such a thing. How could that woman-hater the Apostle Paul say this.

For Bible-believing Christians, this passage is not as easily dismissed. How can this be dismissed so easily as cultural bias if Paul is divinely inspired? We, as believers in Jesus Christ, do not have the right to choose which is God's Word and which is not. If it is found in the Bible, then we need to pay close attention to it. Any mandate is to our benefit, even though this may not seem to be to the benefit of the women.

Two questions: does the Bible really say this and to what extent is this passage applicable to us today? We need to understand the actual meaning of this passage, for then and for today (which is the same).

Paul was well-aware of the cultural norms at that time. But he took the heat for saying, There is neither Jew nor Greek, no free and no slave; no male or female; equal opportunity and equal privilege in the Christian life.

Paul goes back to

Gen. 3:16b: your desire shall be toward your husband; and he shall rule over you.

Tshuqah is the word for desire here. To desire to rule over. This comes from the parallelism in this verse. One line which says to desire and the other says to rule. These words define one another. The concept is authority; both legitimate and illegitimate.

Satan was judged as was the woman. The woman's curse was pain in childbirth and the second is her desire to rule. Why did God judge the woman with the desire to rule? What God pronounced justly reflects her first sin. God was simply announcing what was already there. She fell because she was rejecting authority. Authority is the key to both of these passages.

God did not leave this woman under this hopeless curse and He provided the solution to it, the birth of her child, the Savior. This is the answer to the curse and it is Satan's undoing. There will be pain in childbirth, but that same childbirth will be her deliverance.

The key to all of this is the Angelic Conflict. How did Satan come to deceive the woman and to cause all of this problem? What does that have to do with the woman's curse and Paul's regulation.

There is a book they are working on. Bobby always enters into this doctrine with a bit of trepidation. Satan does not like to be revealed for what he is. This is a critical doctrine for understanding why we are here and what our purpose is.

Sometime in eternity past, God created a race of creatures and we have no idea why He did that, which are the angels, and there were numerous angels created, a number that we do not know. Amongst these angels is Lucifer, the highest and more beautiful creature to come from the hand of God. At some point, in eternity past, after the creation of these angels, Satan fell (whether this is 5 minutes after creation or a million years later. Satan had a thought which was in rebellion to God. We know that thought. "I will make myself like the Most High." He knew that he could not do this, but the only way he could do this is to bring God down to his level. Lucifer, in that moment, set himself against the absolute authority of God. This thinking launched the Angelic Conflict. This is the Satanic revolution. This conflict began in heaven with Satan's anti-authority moment. It was not limited to Satan. It was contagious. Satan spread sedition among all angels. Each angel had to make a decision. In that prehistoric time, these decisions were made. A third of these angels fell. All of this has to be pieced together from throughout the Bible.

Bobby has never seen a better presentation than what Bob did. This doctrine has changed the thinking of 1000's of people who have been under this ministry.

So a third of all of these angels became demons, the angels who fell. Διαβον. When they fell, these demons went to war against God. God could not ignore rebellion against Himself. Rebellion against Him is sin. He cannot abide or overlook sin because of His perfect righteousness. Satan could not compromise, even for the most beautiful creature to come from His hand. Satan would have been closest to the throne of God. God had to judge Satan and his angels who had become defiant.

The judgment took the form of a trial, and this was a fair trial, as God is fair and righteous. There was an attempted coup and great arrogance, and God condemned all of the fallen angels to the Lake of Fire. Matt. 25:41 Satan lodged an immediate appeal. He had no illusions about his appeal. Satan could not accept his sentence, and he had nothing to lose by appealing, even if he knew there would be no good. This is an automatic appeal in hopes that this would overturn God's sentence. Satan is a criminal who could not be rehabilitated. God allowed the appeal, for reasons which we do not know why. Satan is not in the Lake of Fire, but roaming about the earth and heaven, in Job 1:7. If Satan can cause God to make a misstep, then God would be on Satan's level. How could Satan appeal? The only thing that Satan could do was to throw himself on the mercy of the court. I am guilty, and then he appealed to divine love. "How can you sentence Your highest creature to the Lake of Fire for just one little offense? After all, You are love." This thinking still resides in man today.

This is the basis for universal salvation. We are all sinners and we are all imperfect; so we cannot be eternally punished. If God grants clemency to Satan, He must set aside His righteousness and justice and use only His love. Satan will try to get God to depend upon just one attribute.

We are comparing the absolute to the relative. God chooses to allow Satan his appeal. It is an appeal which must run its course.

Lesson #996 The Angelic Conflict Gen 2:18 December 13, 2009 Sunday 2

Satan made himself to be out as God, but up until that point in time, there was no reason to invoke God's justice and righteousness. All that they knew up to that time was love. Satan immediately fell back to the way it was before. Justice and righteousness is tough. Satan used the appeal. "All I did was want to be like You." So hell was prepared for the devil and his angels.

Once the appeal was made, God also said, "My attributes are absolute. You have challenged 2 of My attributes as not being absolute, and that would make Me relative." Satan would win this appeal, if he could bring God down to his level.

"I will prove to you and all of the fallen angels that my justice and righteousness and love are absolutes."

"I will show you that all of my attributes are perfect and absolute and there in equal measure." Prior to this, there was no use of God's righteousness and justice. That was not a part of the relationship of God and His creation.

God would now create a brand new creature, lower than the angels, and mankind would resolve this appeal.

We stand condemned; we are born condemned because we are in Adam. We have no perfect righteousness. We have only the righteousness of God, which God's love and justice provided. Condemnation precedes salvation. That is the issue of the whole thing. We are the issue.

God would demonstrate the coordination of His attributes and the equal balance of His attributes at work. How would mankind resolve this appeal? God set it up this way. God created for man an environment which was perfect; and there would be within man the ability to choose for or against God. Man had a soul and he would be tested. There is volition, moral reasoning power and conscience. Man was created in perfection just like Satan. Man had very similar attributes in his soul to angels. We have volition and mental capacity.

Man and angels both had the ability to develop anti-authority mentality. That is the issue that we are dealing with in Gen. 3:16 and in 1Cor. 14:34. The very fact that man had a volition meant that he could rebel. Can you imagine seeing God every day; man saw God and understood God and he still said no. We have never seen God, but Adam saw God and he lived in perfection.

Let this be a lesson to all of you environmentalists: even in perfect environment, you can make bad decisions. If your god is nature. Copenhagen is a worship of god as the environment. They are pantheists. Can you imagine believing in your environment for your salvation? Who do you think holds this world together? This world will never die until God destroys it. Don't watch the television and hope that they will come to some kind of agreement; all it is, is a lot of poorer nations hoping to take money and power from the industrialized nations. Those who reject God and reject Christ, are the enemy. They are not the enemy so that you hope that they end up in hell in a hurry; the idea is, you should never hope that. You are to be a witness for Jesus Christ.

When you know what your sources are and what your logistics are, how can you lose? You are in the midst of the Angelic Conflict. This is Satan's world. This is when Adam and Eve made bad decisions. We are in the world but we are not of the world. We have an eternal future and a spiritual life.

As man was created, the stage was set. Satan had to cause man to rebel; to sin; to fall. That was Satan's entire objective. He wanted man to be as condemned as he was. If man falls, then God would have to consign man to hell as well. Again, God's love would be dismissed for His righteousness and justice.

Satan watched the man and the woman, and they were the first couple. God watched them and he knew what their roles were, and he understood the woman's role in creation, and he focused on the woman. "There is the point where I will initiate my plan."

Gen 2:18 Then the LORD God said, "It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him a helper fit for him." association, response, fulfillment; but 'ezer does not refer to inferiority. The woman completed Adam in every way, and Satan watched all of this very closely. The woman's role was the 'ezer. The woman was to respond to his love and authority. The husband had love and leadership. You cannot love without providing leadership.

The man and the woman are teaching props for the angels.

As a leader, you want to get those under you to follow you; and this requires you to get your subordinates to function in response to your leadership. You have authority; do not misuse it. God set up this whole thing, and the man was set up as the authority and the leader. The helper does not have dominion over the one that she is to help. Face it, man is in need of help. The man is still designated as the one with authority. And that is hard for women, because sometimes they are so much smarter and so much better than the man.

Like it or not, that was the creation order. Different roles and no inferiority is involved. The woman is to be Adam's helper and to respond to Adam; so Satan attacks the woman, to get her to respond to Satan instead.

In a garden, there are trees, and God placed one tree in the middle of it. There were hundreds of thousands of trees that Adam and the woman could eat from. That one tree was the test, the tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil. Adam and the woman were good already; it is Satan who is evil. The man and the woman could eat from this tree and they would recognize evil. The man and the woman were commanded to never eat from this tree.

The issue was in the souls of Adam and the woman. Satan would attempt to seduce this pair away from this one mandate. Do you think that you could keep this one mandate in perfect environment.

The woman was not inferior to Adam, but Satan would get the woman to feel inferior to him. He wanted to get her to respond to his sweet talk. He chose to attack the woman independently through provocative conversation.

Satan plotted to undermine the authority of the man. How many of you have made bad decisions based upon flattery. The woman is more susceptible to flattery and women are more beautiful. Satan's most effective weapon was his thinking and his deception.

"Why would God prohibit you to touch that tree? God just wants to keep you from being as good as Him." is Satan's approach to this problem.

Satan must have been quite a silver-tongued devil to turn her response to him instead of to God and to Adam. The more that she heard from Satan, the more that she was tempted. Satan mixes a little truth and a little deception, and that is his philosophy and the basis of his thinking. Satan's philosophy is automatically in opposition to itself. The woman did not pluck the fruit from the tree until she thought this through. "I am going to be like the Most High." She puts into her mind the sin. There was a separation from Adam and the woman. She wanted a companion in her fall. She wanted someone to be in this mess with her. So she reversed her role and initiated an enticement for her husband. She reversed her roles with her husband. She played the authoritative role until she got him to follow her leadership.

Adam chose the woman in the garden rather than God. The woman was deceived; but the man knew exactly what he was doing. He sinned on purpose. We have the imputation of Adam's original sin, not Eve's. This is related to the virgin pregnancy.

Satan got them into the same predicament that he was in, and figured that he had trumped God. Then God stepped in and said, "There will be a Child."

God's love was shown from the outset; His love in their salvation.

Lesson #997      Gen. 3:16b   1Cor. 14:34   December 16, 2009      Wednesday

To understand where Paul is coming from, we have to understand Gen. 3:16b.

Paul understood the true nature of women as responders. The woman is in conflict over authority. That is what v. 34 is all about, as well as Gen. 3:16. She is rebelling against her husband, who she resents.

Men and women should be very careful who you marry. You had better have virtue love and you ought to know if your opposite number has any virtue love; and you need to know if your husband has any willingness to lead your unit spiritually.

If you cannot respond to your husband, then you will find obey him to be extremely difficult. You need to wait until you are absolutely certain.

Paul has made an issue of authority; not just in marriage; but there is an implication that the woman has rebellion in her soul in the assembly of the church. This situation of anti-authority has a history which we must understand in order to properly place this passage.

It all began in eternity past. It is critical to understand this doctrine of the Angelic Conflict. It is necessary for women to understand this themselves; and this is important for men as well, if they want to understand women.

Doctrine of the Angelic Conflict

done by narrative last time

1. In eternity past, God created a race of angelic creatures; a lot of them. We do not know why He did it. Why did He need to create creatures lower than Himself.
2. At some point in eternity past, the greatest and most beautiful of them all, Lucifer, had a thought; an arrogant thought against the authority of Almighty God. This thought of rebellion set him against God. He became the absolute antagonist against God. "I am going to be like God" describes the arrogance of all kinds of people even today. By deception and subterfuge, Satan would try to bring God down to his own level. He could not attain the essence of God, so he would have to bring God down to be on the same level.
3. His arrogant, anti-authority conflict is what launched the Angelic Conflict. It was revolution. This was the mother of all revolutions.
4. Satan spread sedition among all the angels; and divine authority became an issue for all of the angels. Satan's thinking spread. This comes from direct statement and from theological inference. A third of all the angels succumbed to Satan's anti-authority mindset.
5. Once Satan and his angels rebelled, God could not ignore it. God had to judge Satan and the fallen angels. Rebellion against God is sin, whether originating in angels or in man. God had to judge Satan because it was sin. Satan hopes that he can get God to slip up?
6. The negative volition anti-authority posture of Satan and the fallen angels demanded the function of the righteousness and the justice of God.
7. The result was, God convened a trial of the rebels to judge them.. The indictment was an attempted coup against the Sovereign God.

8. Matt. 25:41 is the outcome: hell was prepared for the devil and his angels.
9. Satan made an immediate appeal. His utter doom had been pronounced, but he could not accept his sentence. He appealed in the hope in overturning God's horrendous judgments; all those who are unbelievers will share in this judgement.
10. God allowed the appeal, and we have no idea why; except maybe for the reason that He created them in the first place? Satan is still free and with some freedom of movement.
11. What were the grounds of Satan's appeal? How could a loving God sentence His highest creatures to such a horrid place? God's essence includes love, so how can God, in His love, carry out such a sentence.
12. That is a brilliant appeal. Satan laid a trap. He set God's attributes of justice and righteousness against His love. Satan wanted to get God to emphasize one attribute over another.
13. Satan crafted his appeal in the hope that God would put love first. If God condemns Satan, then He is not showing love. He wanted justice and righteousness to be subordinated to love.
14. Compromising even one attribute would denigrate God's overall person and character; He would not be God. If God allows love to supercede, then He is brought down to Satan's level and Satan would win his appeal.
15. God did not answer directly; He demonstrates His attributes which coexist without contraction; and this would be through man.
16. God set up a demonstration.
  - a. God created a new creature, mankind, to resolve this issue.
  - b. We are here to resolve the Angelic Conflict.
  - c. God would create a new creature, man, to illustrate absolute righteousness, justice and love. Satan would have to sit back and watch.
  - d. In this demonstration, the angelic realm would observe. Now they would watch. Satan must have been gnashing his teeth.

How would man resolve the appeal?

1. Man and the angels, although created much different, are physically different and of a different stature, were both created in the image of God.
2. We are created with a soul that includes volition.
3. Man could choose
4. Both man and angels had the chance to develop an anti-authority mindset.
5. In a pristine state, man, without a sin nature, could rebel. Adam and the woman are the original test case.

Now we come to the woman in the garden.

The Woman

1. The woman was created for the man. Gen. 2:18
  - a. Here is how the woman is described: she is called ezer, which means helper, companion.
  - b. Ezer denotes correlation, association, response and fulfillment; but not inferiority. She is fully human with a soul. Every bit in the image of God.
  - c. This is the role of the woman in the divine design.
2. She is designated the respond
  - a. She must respond to her husband's authority, love and leadership.
  - b. To fulfill her divinely designed role:
  - c. The helper does not have dominion over the one she is created for.
  - d. So, leadership in the man becomes an issue for the woman. He must lead and initiate.
3. This is the creation order, designed by God, whether you like it or not.
4. Authority and response was the test set up by God. It was a part of the demonstration of the angelic realm and in the middle of the appeal phrase.
5. Satan now has a focused objective, now that this demonstration is clear to him. He is to get mankind to rebel; to sin; to fall. So he looks for an opening. He will look for a scheme to execute the mission.
6. Any good leader always does a reconnaissance. Satan watched the man and the woman, and he understood. He knew it better than we know it and he still does.
7. Satan decide on a course of action. He would attempt to seduce the woman away from responding to the Lord and to Adam. They were her designated authorities.
8. Satan attacked the woman. He attacked her as a responder because she was more susceptible to deception. She has that in her nature of response. He went after the woman because she was a responder.
9. He would initiate a false response from the woman through flattery and decept. This was his first great exercise of it. Satan could walk into any bar and seduce any woman.
10. If she responded positively to Satan's lies, she would violate God's one prohibition. They did not know evil. God warned them not to eat of the tree.
11. Through Satan's masterful dishonesty, she did respond to Satan. She turned her response away from God and her husband and toward Satan.
12. She rejected her role as a responder to divinely given authority. She took the bait.
13. She ate of the forbidden fruit. She immediately knew good and evil when she ate of the fruit. She acquired a sin nature at that moment, and separation from God.
14. Now the woman had followed and Adam was still in his pristine state. Where was Adam? She spent some alone time with the serpent. The woman did not want to be alone in her fall. She was not thinking of her husband's welfare. She was only thinking of herself. She wanted a companion in death.
15. She reversed her divinely appointed role and she initiated an enticement for her husband. She became the temptress; the femme fatale.
16. Adam willingly ignored God's one mandate. He fell, side-by-side with his wife.

17. He chose the woman outside the garden over God inside the garden. No more perfect environment. Perfect environment never keeps anyone from destroying themselves.
18. Adam's sin was one of cognizance; hers was a sin of ignorance; which made a big difference. We had Adam's original sin imputed to us at death. His sin is what kills us.

What did the woman do to precipitate Gen. 3:16?

1. The woman took the man's role and left her role behind.
2. She assumed the role of her husband and played the authoritative role.
3. She should have at least listened to Adam's viewpoint of Satan's deception. She took it upon herself without regard to her husband or his authority.
4. So, she became the initiator of sin to her husband; contrary to God's designed. She initiated sin and he willingly accepted it.
5. The woman's first sin in the garden represented disobedience to God followed by a desire to place herself in authority over her husband. Adam fell in full cognizance; so the greater responsibility is in Adam. She had her responsibility in all of this and this was it. Women in all generations had this same desire which Paul understood perfectly.

Because of sin and because of the fall, women seek to dominate men; and vice versa. But it should be leadership and response. It is neither leadership or response. So God gives her a fitting sentence for her disobedience.

Gen. 3:16b: your desire shall be toward your husband; and he shall rule over you.

1Cor. 14:34 the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says.

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

1Cor. 14:36 Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

Lesson #998

1Cor. 14:34 December 17, 2009

Thursday

The seeds of what Paul wrote are found in Gen. 3:16b, which is your desire will be to your husband [to rule over him]; and he will rule over you. Many men today do not want to lead; they do not know how to lead; and their relationship with their wife is a disaster.

The woman has a predilection to reject her responder role as a woman. This is a basic part of her sin nature. Out of fellowship and without doctrine, this is what the woman will seek. This is the believer as well as the unbeliever. Hence, the war of the sexes.

After the fall, the woman's inclination is to leave her role. She will seek to subordinate him, just as the woman did to Adam at the fall.

It is not the man subordinates the woman; the woman subordinates herself. It is her decision to do that or not. Paul's writing here reflects this sin nature predilection. Let them subject themselves. This is what the woman failed to do in the garden. This is the woman's response; it is her choice. If she does not make the right choice, then she is not responding.

This is why finding the RM is important, as the woman needs to find a man to whom she can respond. In the garden, she responded, as her nature is, but it was to the serpent. She responded to Satan's lies. She went from a wrong response (a response to the wrong person) and she switched roles on the man. The woman assumed the role of her husband as the initiator. She assumed the role. In order to follow a man's leadership, there must be some.

What is not to be found in the Bible is the leader saying, "Subordinate yourself to me!" Lead by example instead and lead by love and lead by respect. You have patience and you have virtue love and you have all the qualities of the filling of the Spirit. If the man cannot lead, that does not mean that all bets are off. Hence, the importance of finding the RM.

There are 2 sides to this coin. The woman disregarded the creation order. She was created as the subordinate to her man, but she responded to the wrong person and then established her own authority over her husband. She did that because she did not want to be alone. She was the first manipulator. She did not want to be in this alone. She took the role of the initiator.

The woman's first sin in the garden represented disobedience to God followed by desire to place herself over her husband. Women in all generations have the same problem; the same predilection and propensity. All women have this. It is an integral part of their sin nature. They want to subvert the authority and leadership of their husbands.

Paul is making a divinely inspired application from his knowledge of the Old Testament. He understood God's sentence of the woman.

Gen. 3:16b: Your desire shall be toward your husband; and he shall rule over you.

God gave the woman a fitting sentence from her disobedience

1. The woman wanted to dominate and to initiate. So God pronounced to her that the proclivity of her sin nature was and is to usurp man's authority.
2. She became the leader rather than the subordinate. She was supposed to be the ezer, the helper. This is outside of the original design of God for husband and wife; it is well beyond her created role.

3. By nature and conception, the woman is a responder and a subordinate; but not an inferior. The woman should always be respected and she has a viewpoint which is different from us; and that viewpoint needs to be respected. The woman completes the man. Respect that and listen to her.
4. However, she chose to revolt. So God announced her tendency to rebel against the authority of her husband.
- 5.
6. This judgment does not give her an excuse. Her desire to rule can be curbed; she cannot claim that it cannot.
7. After the fall, with a sin nature, and constantly under its temptation; you cannot simply say, "I am genetically designed to give in to my sin nature." This is a constant temptation. It is handled by the spiritual life. The moer you grow, the moer good decisions you can make. After the temptation, the woman instinctively rebelled against the man.
8. Her rebellious nature was aroused by Satan. Satan deceived her of her own true role in life. She decided that she needed to step up. His flattery was eivdnet in the garden and still is.
9. Her fall defined her impulse; her inclination toward her husband.
10. But in this stated curse, in God's curse because of the fall, He once again defined the roles of the man and the woman. He defined again what the divine design was.
11. The woman, therefore, understood her problem. In love, God provided for the deliverance of her predilection. Responder; subordinate. That is the key; to maintain this role to divinely designed authority. This mandate is not repression for women. It is not to let them know that they are inferior. It identifies the problem and the solution; for their benefit. The solution is to stay within the confines of God's mandates; to maintain her responder role.

If you do not marry a man you can respect and follow, that will increase your problems exponentially. Part of the plan of God for the woman's life is to be a responder. Some of you don't like it, and Bobby doesn't care. It is not Bobby; he is just telling us what is in the Bible. The desire to dominate the man is the blessing of responding to the divine design.

In the cursing is the blessing. In being a responder is the greatest blessing for the woman. It does not denigrate the woman. It makes the woman most beautiful. The blessing was in a relationship as defined by God.

You will never have a good relationship with your husband unless you recognize the problem and deal with the problem. She and her husband are to function as a corporate witness, the greatest relationship the man and the woman can have.

Men, you cannot react and lead. If you react to her reactions, all you end up with is a war. Reaction brings the two of you nose to nose and it exacerbates her desire to rule over you. Women must always have those characteristics of virtue love; that is when a woman is most beautiful.

From Gen. 3:16 radiates everything. We realize that Paul is fully aware of the woman's curse. Therefore, in this context (v. 34) Paul is dealing with women and their propensity to reject authority in the assembly of the church. Paul makes this application; she has the problem in the home and in the church. It was manifesting itself in the church at Corinth.

In this context, Paul was not addressing society at large or Greek culture, which did repress women. Women were basically slaves. In dealing with Onesimus, Paul dealt with him as a slave; but Paul did not take on slavery in the Greek society. Paul is not trying to change the culture of the Greeks and the Romans; he is showing women right here what the spiritual life does for them. Paul is not an activist. He is teaching the spiritual life.

Paul is not placing constraints on the women in the culture during his time.

Bobby sidebar: Biblical Christianity takes a realistic view of women, but certainly different from the cosmic system. We have seen the Biblical view in this situation.

Let's get a wider view of the Bible and how it views women and compare it to the culture of the Greeks.

What is the Biblical view of women?

1. In Christ, there is no inequality; there is no male or female. Gal. 3:28 one is the role as designated by God and the other is position.
2. The Bible denies inferiority of the women as a gender. Feminist claim that men repress them and see women as inferior, so that they have, therefore, perfect rights to fall into the trap of Gen. 3:16. Feminists want superiority; not equality.
3. Marriage takes place as a matter of choice. The great corresponding companion on an equal plane, but subordinate to their husbands.
4. Women were encouraged to learn right along with the men. Women in the cultures of the time were not usually educated. How could anyone grow in grace and knowledge if they did not learn? Women learned, and because they learned, they also learned many other things. That is an equality that did not exist in the surrounding culture.
5. Women had equal privilege and equal opportunity in the Christian life. No rights of inheritance; they were simply property. Not so in Biblical Christianity.
6. Women actually did prophesy in the first century church, as did the men. Philip's 4 daughters in Acts. How does that fit with the assembly?
7. These women prophesied under specific circumstances which too place outside of the church.

Philip's Daughters

1. These women were not prophesying in the church.

2. Philip was not the pastor-teacher of an assembled church. He was an evangelist. Rick Hughes does most of his work outside of the local church.
3. These girls were helping God in evangelizing women.
4. They may have been teaching women mystery doctrine which was not in the canon of Scripture.
5. This is what some pre-canon women accomplished with that gift.
6. They were under the authority of their evangelist father.
7. They did not prophesy with authority over men, which would have been a direct violation of the mandate in 1Cor. 14
8. They did not have equal authority in the church; prophesying was done by men with the gift.
9. Women have equal privilege and equal opportunity to advance in the Christian life.
10. Biblical Christianity was never an elitest or sexist organization. It is in equal measure for men and women.

1Cor. 11:4 Every man who prays or prophesies with his head covered dishonors his head, women with their head covered puts them under the authority of the men. They prophesied to women outside the assembly of the church.

Prophesying was teaching, and that was done with authority; which is not allowed to women, according to the Scriptures. Authority in the church is very much an issue here.

Some religions see women as inferior, and they maltreat them today.

1Cor. 11:5 but every wife who prays or prophesies with her head uncovered dishonors her head, since it is the same as if her head were shaven.

1Cor. 14:34 the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says.

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

1Cor. 14:36 Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

Lesson #999

1Cor. 14:34 December 20, 2009

Sunday 1

When you think about it, eternal God condescended to confine Himself to a human form, a few pounds of human flesh born on one night. Without that birth, there is no salvation; there is no cross. Without the resurrection, there is no guarantee of eternal life. He came and He died and He left in a resurrection body.

We also have the mind of Christ, which we can apply on a daily basis to our lives. In Christ, we must progress in our thinking with the mind of Christ. After our Lord Jesus Christ was resurrected, He sent the Holy Spirit to each of us, so that we could metabolize Bible doctrine.

We are going from the sublime to the interesting, and the background for this is Gen. 3:16b:

Gen. 3:16b: Your desire shall be toward your husband; and he shall rule over you.

She is called the mother of all living, and she is the prototype for all women, with the same curse. All women come equipped with this same desire to rule over their husbands. The woman was not originally designed that way by God. Women today are not so designed by God. The woman was designed to be a responder. It is bound up in one Hebrew word, 'ezer, which means a helper. She was created by God as that 'ezer, and that is the correct state for all women. The place of women has not changed and will not change even after the fall. Her predilection changed; but not her design.

The woman is not inferior by any stretch of the imagination; 'ezer is simply the role of the man in marriage. She provides that which the man lacks and fulfills the man. Her role as the woman and the wife. Spiritually the first couple was the prototype. She responds to the man's leadership and to his love; and these two components come as a package deal in order for the woman to respond. Just as God is righteousness, justice and love to us, and these characteristics are not working against one another; so is the man's leadership and love applied to a woman and their family of 2 or more.

The woman's sinful desire in all of this is to become the initiator and to become the man in relationship to her husband. She desires to have dominion and she asserts her leadership in the home.

The woman certainly has leadership responsibility with regards to her children; and the woman has a say in the home. The wise man listens to his wife. She is not there to dominate as a dictator; or is the man to ignore the perspective of his wife. This is one of the things that she brings to the table which we, as men, lack.

When a woman fulfills that role, that is her at her happiest.

No man should ever be a dictator. From time to time, the man must listen to his wife; and, from time to time, a firm no is necessary. Parameters must always be set. Leadership means that the buck stops with the leader. No one is a good leader without some training. We are trained to lead; and we face constant places to lead. Husbands are not natural leaders; we need to be trained. We are trained by Bible doctrine in the soul.

The secret of leadership and response is, Husbands, love your wives; and wives, obey your husbands.

Bobby suggests Freedom through Military Victory and look at pg. 50, and see if you have these leadership qualities. 51% of the responsibility goes with the leader, if not more. That is the divine design.

If you have a bf, and you do not respect him and you cannot follow his lead, then you will desire to dominate him and you will dominate him; and that will not be a happy situation. The happiness of marriage is dependent upon leadership, love and response. If marriage counselors knew that, they would be a lot poorer, as they would fix the marriages of those who come to them.

For this reason, you should marry well. You have to determine can you respond to this guy. Is he really the man of your dreams?

The woman brought this curse upon herself by the way that she sinned. She was a failure in marriage because she usurped the authority of her husband; and Adam allowed for that. She brought the curse of Gen. 3:16 upon herself.

How many women have said, loudly, no way will I submit myself to any man. That attitude in itself is a reflection of the problem established at the fall. The woman is wired to be a responder and responding is not her natural state (when out of fellowship).

The context here is husband and wife; not just any man and woman. If God designed the man and the woman in this way, then this is in their best interest. This is the way that relationships are the best.

Husbands, lead; wives, respond.

In 1Cor. 14:34, Paul is applying Gen. 3:16 to function in a church. Where there is authority, the woman often does not respond to it. Paul acknowledges their weakness before authority. He sets up the rules for the local church. The woman often overstepped her bounds in prophesying and praying uncovered (without something on her head). This lack of cover indicated that she was in rebellion against authority. That was the sign of her rebellion. This was the cultural way that women showed themselves to be under authority. However, we have long since dispensed with this custom.

There is a corporate witness for a couple.

Biblical Parameters for the Woman in Church

1. The bottom line is, the woman is never authorized to usurp the authority of the pastor-teacher or the deacon's.
2. She is not to hold an authoritative position in the church over men. Women can teach in a church, but there are parameters.
3. The Bible precludes the ordination of women as pastors.

Paul also addressed this in 1Tim. 2:11

1Tim. 2:11 Let a woman learn quietly with all submissiveness.

1Tim. 2:12 I do not permit a woman to teach or to exercise authority over a man; rather, she is to remain quiet.

1Tim. 2:13 For Adam was formed first, then Eve;

1Tim. 2:14 and Adam was not deceived, but the woman was deceived and became a transgressor.

1Tim. 2:15 Yet she will be saved through childbearing--if they continue in faith and love and holiness, with self-control.

Which takes us to 1Cor. 11:9

1Cor. 11:8 For man was not made from woman, but woman from man.

1Cor. 11:9 Neither was man created for woman, but woman for man.

The pastor-teacher has the authority in the home and the pastor-teacher in the church. In both circumstances, they both exercise their leadership with virtue love. Bobby must exercise his authority with virtue love and he does it with patience and kindness, etc. This is why Paul makes all of these statements.

1Cor. 14:34 the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says.

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

1Cor. 14:36 Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

Lesson #1000

1Cor. 14:34–35 December 20, 2009

Sunday 2

Bobby had a class in seminary about male and female roles in the ministry. He wrote a paper on this, and said, "This is a very interesting perspective that many would not want to hear." Why isn't it important that men and women understand their roles in the divine design. Why is leadership difficult to understand? In all of life, there is a leader and a follower.

Surely, men need regulation; but that is not the subject here. This same authority carries over into the assembly of the local church.

If you do not have some divine viewpoint, then this passage will make you mad. "You have come a long way, baby. You are elevated to your proper position." When you remain in the proper position, it is God's design.

Altogether, the verse should read: As in all the churches of the saints, the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says. This includes all of these churches where women are pastors and women are deacons and women are running all of the committees. The context is in the assembly of the church where the assembly is well-defined. In this regulation, it is toward those in authority in the assembly.

The men are the authority in the church. Where did Jesus' authority come from? It came from what He did and what He said. There must be more to it than simply what you are. Leadership requires virtue love. Bobby as a platoon leader required some acceptance. People wait to see what you are like. How much they can get away with.

There is no other practice other than authority-orientation. This is the way it is, like it or not. Many women do not accept this. Here it is, laid out, and women do not accept it.

This is normative for all times in all churches in all places. Whether you like it or not, that is the way it is.

Bobby says this is lesson #1002.

Bobby cannot just scoot past this portion of the Bible without teaching it, whether it is well-received or not. Men may not accept authority as well.

1Cor. 11:16 If anyone is inclined to be contentious, we have no such practice, nor do the churches of God.

Paul talks about order and peace in the assembly and then he starts talking about the women.

Σιγᾶω = to keep silent. We had this back when there was no interpreter in the church. He is applying keep silent here to a different set of circumstances.

Just as tongues was about improper public speaking... If the woman speaks in church, it is taking away from the authority as applied in the church. The woman is not to teach in the church with authority over men.

This is where the woman went awry in the garden.

Bobby presents the Word of God to us, and then it is left up to us. There is an authority umbrella in this church; it begins with Bobby and continues with the board of deacons; and they are all men. They make the policy and Bobby teaches the Word of God. This reflects God's design. This church is the body of Christ.

It is all part of authority for believers in Jesus Christ. Paul is not being a dictator saying, "You are subject to me." Women make their own choice in this matter; they can be in voluntary subordination or not. They purposely submit to the authority of the leadership of the church.

Paul is a slave to the Lord Jesus Christ; as are we all. Women are not slaves to men nor are they chattel or cattle, to be bought and sold. They are 'ezer's; and this is a wonderful but subordinate rule. We all have some sort of authority over us.

Subjecting oneself is not a demeaning thing. The woman is to understand the natural inclination of her sin nature and how she is not to be reactive but responsive.

It is not the responsibility of the man to make the woman respond to him. He is to give the woman something to respond to. It is up to her to respond. The woman has the inclination to rebel in the assembly. Without doctrine, she will rebel.

In many churches, pastors would be removed to teach this passage. They would be thrown out on their ear.

Paul is citing a legal precedent here; the law of God. This is the will of God even in the Old Testament. This is a reference back to Gen. 3:16. There is nothing new here.

This authority-orientation is also a part of the Mosaic Law, Num. 5:20–29, which affirms the leadership role of the husband from the very beginning.

Num 5:20–29 But if you have gone astray, though you are under your husband's authority, and if you have defiled yourself, and some man other than your husband has lain with you, then' \(let the priest make the woman take the oath of the curse, and say to the woman\) 'the LORD make you a curse and an oath among your people, when the LORD makes your thigh fall away and your body swell. May this water that brings the curse pass into your bowels and make your womb swell and your thigh fall away.' And the woman shall say, 'Amen, Amen.' "Then the priest shall write these curses in a book and wash them off into the water of bitterness. And he shall make the woman drink the water of bitterness that brings the curse, and the water that brings the curse shall enter into her and cause bitter pain. And the priest shall take the grain offering of jealousy out of the woman's hand and shall wave the grain offering before the LORD and bring it to the altar. And the priest shall take a handful of the grain offering, as its memorial portion, and burn it on the altar, and afterward shall make the woman drink the water. And when he has made her drink the water, then, if she has defiled herself and has broken faith with her husband, the water that brings the curse shall enter into her and cause bitter pain, and her womb shall swell, and her thigh shall fall away, and the woman shall become a curse among her people. But if the woman has not defiled herself and is clean, then she shall be free and shall conceive children. "This is the law in cases of jealousy, when a wife, though under her husband's authority, goes astray and defiles herself,

Summary of what we have learned

1. This does not preclude a woman from using her communication gifts and she can use these gifts in the church.
2. But these communication gifts are not to be exercised over the authority of the pastor-teacher or the other administrative leadership. Similarly, the woman is not to teach her own husband.
3. So, they are not to hold authority as teachers of men in the assembly. No woman is to stand in the pulpit and teach. Women can teach, speak in tongues and prophesy; but not over men in the assembly. This is not about women in the classroom or women in college. It is all about authority-orientation. We reflect the divine creative order in the home and in the assembly.

1Cor. 14:34 the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says.

We have completed one regulation, and we will move on to another. The end of v. 35 drives home what Paul had to say in v. 34. Do not speak in the assembly. Apparently the women in Corinth needed to hear this and to hear it with some repetition. This is from Paul, who is divinely inspired; and this represents authority over them. These women were being disruptive and disorderly in the assembly. They were challenging authority in the assembly. Since everything is going wrong, why not this being an example of this?

These women were asking questions, but these questions were really challenges to what was being taught. "Let me ask you something..." and that is a set up. These are the kinds of questions that they are asking. They are teaching contrary doctrines within and without the assembly. They needed to receive this new regulation from Paul.

No learning takes place when there is a constant struggle between authority and leadership in the church.

An anti-authority woman is not interested in learning anything.

1st class condition here, after a bunch of 3rd class conditions. Paul assumes the reality of his premise. Since they desire to learn... Here, everyone is involved, and that makes this Paul's responsibility. Desire to learn and not to dominate. Θελλω = to will, to be inclined to, to desire. Μαθησασθε = to learn from someone as a teacher. They must subject themselves to authoritative teaching.

There are a lot of subjects which can be learned in church; and many subjects are superfluous. Here, we are learning about mystery doctrine and women should express an interest to know mystery doctrine. This is all about how a woman learns, if she has the desire to do so.

She is to learn quietly under the authority of the pastor-teacher; and if she desires to learn and has a legitimate question, then let them ask their own husbands at home. Paul assumes that these women do want to learn something.

This sounds like the husband is smarter and will learn more in the assembly. However, it is often exactly the opposite. Lots of women get it before men do. Positive volition knows no gender.

Men don't ask directions, but women do; men don't ask questions but women do. Many women do not want to wait for answers. Tell me now; let's get this thing settled right now. This also presupposes that the husband is in the assembly and positive and growing. Only then can the husband have some answers and advance.

Sometimes men can be so impatient. "Come on, you did not get that?" What could be more important than sorting out a doctrine for husband or wife. This is a good reason to take notes. There is no guarantee that the husband is ahead of his wife; it is about leadership and spiritual leadership. This is the pillar of leadership in the home. This makes a man think through a doctrine in giving an answer. This is a means of spiritual growth. One of the best ways to grow spiritually is to teach. Men, if you want to grow, then answer the question. If you do not have the answer, then research it. Find the answer. The both of you grow together by this. The woman may come up with the answer before you do.

The only stupid question is the question which is not asked. Paul is not showing disrespect for women; he is talking about leadership and the advantages of leadership. The husband is the leader and the buck stops with him; but these exchanges take place in the home to the advantage of all concerned.

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

1Cor. 14:36 Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

Christmas Message 2009

Gla sings Silent Night, sung in German for the short Christmas truce sung during WWI.

For centuries, European art has portrayed saints and the like with halos over their heads. It is the symbol of a deified Christian. There is no such thing as a halo; it is just an artistic symbol. Bobby has been to Florence, Italy, and he has seen a huge collection there. There are myriads of pictures of the virgin Mary. Or other saints; often looking heavenward. All of those saints are marked with halo over their heads, and not one of them is worthy of a halo except for the Lord Jesus Christ.

Charles Hodge wrote, "All divine names and titles apply to him. Lord of Lords, King of Kings, and by Him all things exist. Even the highest, all the angels are to prostrate themselves before Him. To Him, all men are responsible as to their conduct; and they ought to exercise the same reverence toward Him as toward God the Father.”

So when you see in art, realize that all Hodge described was present in that child. There is an invisible halo for this season.

Gal. 4:

Gal 4:4–7 But when the fullness of the time came, God sent out his Son, born to a woman, born under the law, that he might redeem those who were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of children. And because you are children, God sent out the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, "Abba, Father!" So you are no longer a bondservant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ.

the most righteous human being who has ever lived is born condemned under the Law. All stand in need of the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The 2nd person of the Trinity confined Himself to a few pounds of human flesh and came from heaven to be in the humblest of circumstances; a baby in a stable. Why would God do that? In order that finite human beings would come to understand the infinite and partake of it. Is it any wonder that artists bestow Him with the symbol of glory, the halo.

The eternal clock was set on a moment, a day, an hour and a minute in time. When the time was fully come. This was the perfect advent for the Savior. It was the perfect time for the Savior. Pox Romana at that time. Road systems went everywhere; and they were mostly safe to travel. People and civilizations were connected; communications were open; and there was a fairly common language, the Koine Greek. To that very time, all other religious systems had proven bankrupt. They were all dead ends. This was the right time for the light of the world to appear. It was under these conditions that Jesus came into the world.

The promise was resident in an infant in a manger. The dispensation of the hypostatic union. At that moment, God provided the redemption solution. This was in order that He might redeem those under the law. Man and woman came under the law at that moment and God announced redemption for that period of time.

Gen. 3:15 I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your offspring and her offspring. He will bruise your head, and you will bruise his heel."

The curse between the woman's seed and the seed of Satan. The woman's seed became the focal point of the promise. Seed contains the promise of an offspring.

Gal 4:4–7 When the time had fully come, God sent out his Son, born to a woman, born under the law, that he might redeem those who were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of children.

Satan's head is crushed, a fatal blow. The bruising of the heel is a prophecy of the cross. Christ would suffer a terrible but temporary blow at the cross. Gen. 3:15 guarantees salvation to the human race through the Seed of the Woman.

Gen. 3:15 is called the proto-evangel, the very first time the promise of Jesus Christ is given. This seed is His first Messianic title. God judged man at the fall, but provided for man through the Seed of the Woman. A prophecy of salvation and of how God, in Christ, would enter this world. The seed of the man is not mentioned because it is not pertinent.

For thousands of years, this was the very heart of the gospel; this was the John 3:16 of the Old Testament. This is what Noah and Enoch proclaimed. Believers of the Old Testament basked in this promise and knew that it would come to pass as God promised in the fullness of time.

Behold, a virgin will become pregnant and give birth to a son, and you will call His name Immanuel. This prophecy is why the shepherds and the wise men understood the impact of the star at that birth. They knew that this was the Seed of the Woman.

Before our Lord was born, where had He been for all of these centuries. This was certainly not the beginning of His existence. He was procreated uniquely, and there was no beginning of life for Him. This was the Shekinah Glory of Israel. He was present in the burning bush. He was the Deity above the cherubim. He was God with us, even at that moment. The Son was Deity. His coming to earth was a very short duration. He was sent forth to perform one task and then to return. To those who deny the Deity of that baby, this phrase is entirely meaningless. To them, the Lord Jesus Christ had not preincarnate existence.

The Bread of God comes down from heaven and gives life to the world (John 6:33). .

so God sent forth His Son, and this transcends anything that the world has ever known.

Born of a woman is also a staggering statement. God the Son was formed in the womb of the woman, and He was fully human. There was no uniting with the male seed. The Holy Spirit provided the seed, the matching or fulfilling DNA.

The male seed had to be precluded. Only the Seed of the Woman could be named as our Savior. 1Tim. 2:13–14: For Adam was first formed, then Eve. Adam wasn't deceived, but the woman, being deceived, has fallen into disobedience; Adam deliberately chose to sin, when seeing the woman fallen; and the entire human race fell at that time. Even though the woman possesses the sin nature, she does not genetically transmit the sin nature.

That conception was the only way to become a member of the human race. No miraculous pregnancy, no Jesus Christ without a sin nature, and no salvation. With the seed of the man, Jesus Christ would have been tainted. So Christ was born the Seed of the Woman. He was born sinless, not receiving the sin nature through the seed of Adam.

Has already been studied.

The parallel mandate is v. 35:

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

The Corinthian church seemed to have a great many problems, but these are common to churches throughout. They needed to hear these admonitions with repetition. Paul gets very specific in v. 35. He now deals with a specific question by married women and when and how that question gets answered. This leaves out the unmarried women, but Bobby will get to that.

Paul uses this example for husbands in a leadership role, and this regulation is a perfect way to do so. This verse is for husbands and for wives. If they desire to learn anything [1st class condition] θελω = to be willing, to be so inclined. To learn is μὴνθάνω, which means to learn from someone. What they are to learn is τι, which means anything. You learn all subjects from a teacher. This is speaking about a subject which can be learned from a teacher. In this context, it becomes very specific. In most places, you get good works, humanism, human viewpoint, but you do not get doctrine.

Women must be willing to learn under this teaching authority. That teaching authority falls to the pastor-teacher. The authority of the pastor-teacher comes from the content of his teaching. Women should express a desire to learn mystery doctrine. There are churches all over the place where you can get anything else.

Which one of you really wants to react to the teaching of God's Word?

Authority for women is the subject of v. 35. However, men ought to have the same desire to learn as do women. The regulation points out another authority responsibility.

The husband is to keep his anti-authority woman under control and to keep her from being disruptive. The problem is the home and it is carried over into the church, and Paul wants it to stop. The woman is under the authority of God; and she is under the authority of the pastor-teacher; and she is under the authority of her husband. The man is under 2 authorities: God and the pastor-teacher; the wife is under 3.

The wife has a legitimate question which comes to mind. That is a good thing; it means that you are concentrating; it means that you are listening and putting things together. This is a real question; some questions are asked just for the purpose of getting attention. Some use questions in order to object to a doctrine being taught. In any case, if she has a question, legitimate or not, v. 35 gives the procedure. What does he mean? Write down this question on a piece of paper and ask about it later. The woman needs to follow the instructions of v. 35 and some might object to this because this verse appears to mean that the husband is smarter than the wife; and many times, it is exactly the opposite. This is all about authority; this has nothing to do with one person being smarter than the other.

This presupposes that the husband is in the assembly and that he is growing and that he is paying attention. They ought to be in the congregation learning the same doctrine together. A man not on doctrine cannot answer doctrinal questions. He should be able to at least discuss it intelligently. In this procedure, the primary objective is to keep the assembly from being disrupted.

There is a principle of learning and metabolizing doctrine here. Authority is a key issue in learning. When challenging authority, metabolizing doctrine cannot occur. Our schools are in great trouble because there is no authority in the schools. You can throw money at them all that you want.

The legitimate question is a sign of positive volition. She has a desire to know. She should expect and she should receive feedback from the husband on this concern. This is the way spiritual leadership is maintained in the home.

Leadership is not telling someone what to do and when to do it. And if you do not know doctrine, you cannot lead. Husbands, do not ignore your woman's thirst for spiritual knowledge. The man needs to give her something to respond to. This is the perfect chance to operate inside the authority umbrella applied in life.

Leadership does not mean that you have all of the answers. If you don't know an answer, do not fake it; find out. The only dumb question is the one which is not asked; and it is a dumb response is one who does not try to find out the answer.

This is not just a regulation about a woman asking a question; it is a regulation for the man to show leadership. It could even result in both of you studying together.

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

1Cor. 14:36 Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

Lesson #1002

1Cor. 14:35 December 27, 2009

Sunday 2

There are 2 regulations by the Apostle Paul. If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

The divine design is an orderly assembly doing all things in good order is the way that an assembly ought to be conducted. Paul is also dealing with authority-orientation for the wife in the assembly and in the home. It is not about a man being smarter or more spiritually advanced; it is about order in the church and authority in the home. This is all about authority and leadership. The woman should always be mindful of authority. She is under authority and she is a responder. She must understand her own propensity.

A good leader can tell when rebellion is going on, and they can nip it in the bud. Sometimes you just need to know how to say no.

A good leader, particularly of a woman, should never be brutal, and many times, it does not even require you to raise your voice. This is a regulation for the husbands to exercise leadership and authority in the home; as well as for the wife to respond to that leadership in the home.

This is specifically about women responding to authority and learning doctrine, as well as a hierarchy of authority. The woman must never be seen as inferior in terms of the IQ or their spiritual growth. It is simply about authority and leadership. Good leadership is the solution to a woman's propensity to the trend of her sin nature.

Do not stop the assembly or interrupt the assembly the moment a burning question pops into your head. If a husband can be a spiritual leader in the home, everything else can fall into place. The husband is to also be in the assembly. In the assembly, there should be nothing to break another's concentration, which includes whispering in another person's ear. This is true of any classroom. Respect the authority of both the pastor-teacher or your husband and to be thoughtful toward all.

You are only in class for an hour or two; gut it out; write the question down and deal with it later.

And if you cannot submit to the authority of some guy, then do not marry him. This is one of the many reasons a woman ought not marry an unbeliever. He has nothing to give you.

Many people left Berachah Church when Bobby became the pastor. They did not and could not accept the authority of the teaching of Bobby; and leaving was the right thing to do. Bobby cannot teach unless there is respect for him as a teacher.

Women can get resentful and recalcitrant without authority orientation and without good leadership. That is the nature of the curse.

Believing husbands and wives have a responsibility to be a corporate witness. That is where Gen. 3:16 becomes an issue.

What about authority and leadership under the conditions when there is no husband. The unmarried woman is under authority just as the married woman is. The authority aspect simply applies to all women. Married or unmarried, they are not teachers in the assembly. Some women make better men than men do.

If a woman is patient, the question will be answered; and this is true for everyone. Most questions will be answered. The Holy Spirit will not leave anyone in the lurch when it comes to legitimate doctrine. Sometimes getting an answer is a process. Even when there is a sentence or two to explain something; they don't fully get it until they have the background principles for. It requires, in many situations, building doctrine upon doctrine.

There is another approach; just ask someone else from the assembly, but not during the assembly. Authority and leadership are still important concepts.

There are times that this is disregarded as a cultural norm for that time period. However, this regulation is just as valid today as it has ever been. The regulation remains intact, no matter who objects to it and regardless of women's studies in college.

Bobby continues to qualify this, ask someone else in the congregation. This is not license to get attention to get answers to Bible questions that you really don't want an answer for. Do not use these to accost some guy.

Bobby does not have time to answer every question that comes up. He would be answering questions for days. This amounts to individual instruction. But Bobby has a greater responsibility to teaching us as a group. Bobby does answer individual questions for time to time, but it is not his responsibility.

Bobby answers his own questions as he studies and teaches.

The unmarried woman can put a question to an older woman, in terms of being more spiritual advanced. Some may be able to answer this question. Women often sought out Bobby's mother to ask questions of. She was the daughter of a well-known pastor and the wife of a pastor for 53 years, and she had a lot of doctrinal knowledge.

Titus 2:4–5 is a good place to go; a knowledgeable woman about marriage. As long as it is not several women talking about how bad their husbands are.

Something else which is big today, women's Bible studies for the purpose of answering questions. These are rampant in our churches today. Often this occurs when women rebel against their pastors and have doctrinal conflicts with them; so they use these Bible classes in order to express their rebellion. There used to be women's Bible classes in Berachah and it got so far out of line, that they were in rebellion to the authority of Berachah Church.

"A woman teacher knows my needs more than a man does" is a false assertion of human viewpoint. Too often, women's Bible classes represent rebellion against authority. Doctrine taught with authority always fulfills your needs. As soon as the woman starts teaching doctrine which is in opposition to the pulpit, then you need to get out.

"I don't agree with his doctrine." Then how much Greek and Hebrew did you learn? How many courses in theology did you take. Bobby knows all the wrong roads that many of these doctrines go down. It is about authority. When anyone becomes an illegitimate, surrogate pastor-teacher, then authority becomes the issue. That is what these regulations are all about.

A woman can be a better teacher than a man; but that does not change the authority setup and the principles herein taught. In the assembly of the local church, women are not in authority. The pastor-teacher is. In the institution of marriage, women are not the leaders; they are the responders. That is how it always will be.

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

1Cor. 14:36 Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

Lesson #1003

1Cor. 14:34–38 December 30, 2009

Wednesday

First regulation:

1Cor. 14:34 the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says.

V. 35 reflects the first regulation, but then it adds something.

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

The first regulation keeps the woman from disrupting the assembly or from having a leadership role over men in the church. The 2nd deals with the husband's authority as the spiritual leader in the home. The husband begins with spiritual leadership in the home. When the woman asks a question, answer it. If you can't, then find the answer to that question. Leadership requires initiative.

It is sad when a couple is separated by a spiritual divide, when one is growing and the other could care less. Every one of us has our own positive or negative volition and each couple must take it from there.

These regulations are not demeaning to women. They take into account the curse of Gen. 3:16b.

Angelic Conflict is being dusted off and reworked. We will live just as long as God wants us to live. God has a plan for us. When His plan for us is over, there is no doctor and no treatment which will keep us on this earth. Every day is a day that the Lord has made for us. Pursue that for which you have a passion, and let the Lord sort it out whether that is where God wants you or not.

The Apostle Paul knew the roles of the man and the woman; there is a specific role, and it has nothing to do with superiority or inferiority. The woman's propensity is to usurp leadership in the home or in the church.

The woman understands the problems that she faces and she understands how to deal with them. Not speaking in the church simply precludes the woman from holding a position of authority or presuming the husband's or the pastor's role.

Paul is laying down the law. There was an arrogance problem in the whole community of the Corinthian church. Some of these women wanted equal time to prophesy and teach in the church.

Now Paul appeals to the highest authority.

Are you so arrogant so as to think that you are the origin or the starting point of doctrine? This is what Paul is asking. Are you a special group for God? Do you have some exceptional connection with God above and beyond everything else? Can you Corinthians? Paul is showing these Corinthians just how far off the mark that they are. Paul is making a point here. These Corinthians are acting as if they are above all other authority.

Women were removing their veils in worship? Do they have that right? No, but that is what they were doing. The veil was a sign of being under authority.

Do you Corinthians have the right to get drunk at the Communion table? Can they do all of these things because they are the source of the Word of God themselves? They are not the last word on the mystery doctrine; Paul is. Paul is the authority; and he knows the mystery doctrine. Still, they question his authority. Paul and the Corinthians know the source of all doctrine. The very words which God wants to get across to us are recorded with perfect accuracy.

It is no wonder that this church is in disarray and has so many problems. Paul is simply blasting the Corinthians.

Some of these women were reacting. Some pastors sat down and studied these epistles and then taught them or read the letter. Now, there was not the response, ut oh, I'm wrong. They reacted and many of them rejected. Some of these women thought, "This doesn't apply to us today."

Some pastors teach that this is just a cultural thing and that there is no reason to put any stock in this passage.

Women are leaders in the armed forces; but they cannot be in the church. What about women who are leaders elsewhere? Does this apply to them? Women do not change. Every woman is subject to the curse of Gen. 3:16. Bobby has no authority over those who are believers in Jesus Christ. All women are still under the curse of that original woman. Gen. 3:16 still applies to every woman.

1. Women are responders in every aspect of life; that is the way in which they are designed.
2. All women are still under the curse of Gen. 3:16b
3. This still applies to every woman; not just to believer. It is the nature of the creature.
4. That can affect how a woman approaches leadership; especially when it is over men.
5. Balancing requirements of leadership and maintaining the proper roles in the home of authority orientation becomes more difficult; however, it can be done. This verse does not prohibit secular leadership for women.
6. A leadership position over men in the secular men has its own particular hazards for a woman.
7. It is not necessarily to the best interests of a responding woman.
8. Women who take on these roles in secular life can become very manly in every aspect of life.
9. Leadership in the workplace means wielding authority over all genders.
10. By default, a woman has to reverse her role in order to accomplish leadership. However, she does not have to relinquish her leadership role.
11. But that choice must be made. It is not anti-Biblical to be a leader in secular society.
12. You should know based on the nature of women that there may be repercussions in the woman's soul when she takes on a position of authority. It is a very strong doctrinal woman who can come home after exercising authority over men and not to try to exercise authority at home over her own husband. It must be a strong doctrinal husband who provides leadership in love under those circumstances.
13. The rules are inviolable, even though the Corinthians like to think they are above it.

1Cor. 14:36 Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

What Paul is doing here is not trying to repress women nor are these situational ethics simply because the church has problems in these areas. These are not guidelines nor are they suggestions. These are commands. The Corinthians are not to decide which ones they will accept or reject, as all of us have a tendency to do. These are mandates of God with all the force of His sovereignty. These are as accurate as Grow in grace and doctrine. Paul is not fooling around here. These are normative and must be accepted as such.

Paul assumes the following to be true. He is making the assumption of an apodosis. If the premise is true, then the conclusion is true. Paul wants them to take this as absolute truth. So, who is to do this thinking and this recognizing? Paul left no one out here.

There are the groups who see themselves as prophets or as spiritual. This is pretty much everyone. In order to be spiritual, you must be a believer in Jesus Christ. That is the first part of being spiritual. This is not addressed to the unbeliever. It is not addressed to those who call themselves spiritual because they simply think in other than materialistic term.

“Next time you hear this, ask them, what does it mean to be spiritual?” They may meditate on just about anything; or they might practice yoga or they may have psychic encounters. Anything which is not material, and that is what they are referring to.

You cannot be filled with the Holy Spirit if you are carnal or in rebellion to established authority. If someone sees themselves as spiritual, then there are certain conditions which must be met. Επιγνωσκω. Metabolized doctrine in the soul is the means.

1Cor. 14:37 If anyone thinks that he is a prophet, or spiritual, he should acknowledge that the things I am writing to you are a command of the Lord.

1Cor. 14:38 If anyone does not recognize this, he is not recognized.

Lesson #1      2Kings 22   New Year’s Eve   December 31, 2009      Thursday

Military Communion: This do in remembrance of Me requires concentration on His work. There are 4 great passages on what Jesus has done. Who has delivered us from the power of darkness and has silvered us to the kingdom of His Son...the firstborn of all creation, for by Him are all things created, be they thrones, dominions,...He is the firstborn from the dead. Col. 1:13–20: He has delivered us from the domain of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son, in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins. He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation. For by him all things were created, in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or authorities--all things were created through him and for him. And he is before all things, and in him all things hold together. And he is the head of the body, the church. He is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, that in everything he might be preeminent. For in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, and through him to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, making peace by the blood of his cross.

Psalm 45;2 is a dissertation on His complete grandure. Isa. 52:13. SoS 5;10, 16

His Name is above all names; and His claim is before all claims. He is called the King of Kings.

Paul commend Jesus to us as the celebrity of all celebrities in Col. 1:13. Believers are positionally liberated from Satan’s cosmic system.

Slaves cannot emancipate themselves. Forgiveness can be received by those whoh receive the redemptive work of Christ. Pre-salvation sins are forgiven the moment one believes in Christ. Any kind of salvation that man may profess apart from the redemptive work of Jesus Christ is spurious and comes from beneath and not from above.

Paul cannot hide his enthusiasm for His Savior. He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation. Jesus is the dye which makes the impression. As the image of God, He is God in human form. God is spirit; unseen by human eyes. However, he has revealed Himself, and He did this in 3 ways:

How God Reveals Himself

1. Rom. 1 He is known through nature. His invisible attributes are clearly seen through that which is made, so that they are without excuse.
2. We know God through His Word. He speaks to us of Himself, as He does in Col. 1. Psalm 19:7 The Law is perfect, making wise the simple.
3. God is mostly clearly revealed in His Son. Col. 1:15 Jesus is the exact image of the visible God. He is co-equal and co-eternal with the Father and with the Holy Spirit.

The Firstborn of all creation is an expression of His rank in all creation. The brothers in a family were to take their cues from the eldest son. Jesus is the firstborn and we are His subordinate family. This speaks of His preeminence among all mankind.

However, this does not mean that Jesus Himself was created. John carries us beyond the beginning and carries us to where time began. Jesus Christ cannot be said to come into being at any given moment; and yet He is called firstborn; truly human, yet foremost among all mankind.

Col. 1:16 For by Him all things were created, in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or authorities--all things were created through him and for him.

His finger moved, and all creation came into existence. All creation was created by Him. Everything in this universe were created for Him. When it comes to providing our salvation, we are told His arm was at work. His finger is spoken of for creation; but His arm for salvation. Creation was minor compared to what He did for salvation.

If He can do all of that, then certainly, He is able to provide a new kingdom. Paul goes even further to strengthen the case for Christ's preeminence.

Jesus is also the cohesive power. Col. 1:17: And he is before all things, and in him all things hold together. He holds all things in place, and maintains the movement of all heavenly bodies, and the warmth of the sun. Heb. 2:10 ...so that He can bring many sons to glory.

Our Lord is the preeminent ruler of the universe which He created. There is one body and one Head to the church. Just as the head controls the body and regulates its every move, so is Jesus in the church. Col. 1:18: And He is the head of the body, the church. He is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, that in everything He might be preeminent.

The humanity of Christ becomes the sovereign ruler of the church. He has absolute dominion over us. In His resurrection, Jesus Christ is the sample of what all believers will be like when he returns to claim us for Himself. The graves will be emptied and death will be conquered.

The Bible lesson:

The Word of God is as relevant today as it was when written. This is about 640 B.C. and Josiah is the king.

Josiah was the son of a king named Ammon, who ruled from 642–640 B.C. and ruled only for 2 years because his own staff (?) assassinated him. Josiah was king for 31 years, and he died gloriously in battle at the Battle of Megiddo against Egypt.

4 years after his death, Judah had its first encounter with the Chaldean empire. The people of Samaria had adopted the pagan idolatry and they fell into Syncretism. 2Kings 17. In v. 41, they feared the Lord but they served the idols. Even after they had been removed under the fifth cycle of discipline, they continued to incorporate much of pagan ritual into their worship of God.

Hezekiah was a bright spot. 728 B.C., about 100 years before Josiah's great reign. Both the southern and the northern kingdoms were competing for the worst record in syncretism. But Hezekiah was a man of the Lord. He began a campaign against syncretism in the southern kingdom. He helped to deliver his own kingdom from the fifth cycle of discipline.

They realized their gods did not deliver the northern kingdom, so the southern kingdom began to depend upon their God, Jehovah Elohim.

There was a spectacular deliverance of the Jews when the Rabshakeh threatened them, where Jesus Christ slaughtered 186,000 Assyrians.

How many believers does it take to deliver a client nation? It does not take very many.

However, Manasseh came along and turned around all Josiah's reforms and he even sacrificed his own son to Baal.

Manasseh, after 55 years of prosperity, suddenly in one generation, brought down the kingdom of Judah. He was succeeded by Ammon, who was the father of Josiah, which was the great spiritual awakening of Judah.

Was Manasseh Hezekiah's son?

Josiah claimed the Jehovah Elohim was the only God of Israel.

2Kings 22:1 A son of eight years [is] Josiah in his reigning, and thirty and one years he has reigned in Jerusalem, and the name of his mother [is] Jedidah daughter of Adaiah of Boskath,

Joshua did not turn aside to the left or to the right. Berachah Church starts early with prep school, because some of these young ones need to be prepared early.

Even one believer like Josiah, who stands alone, God honors. Do not ever underestimate the influence of a leader who is dedicated to the Word of God. When there is no hope in sight, God still honors those who trust in Him.

Today, we live in a time very much like then. We are assured over and over of the benign goals of Islam and all religions are placed as equals in this age of multiculturalism. All of this is modern idolatry. There is confusion and apostasy in our nation. Christians have a wide range of beliefs which are dramatically different from the Bible. There are no standards of truth; and there is distortion and evil in our client nation. Along with this is impending discipline of the Lord.

Like Judah, a leader which stands for doctrine, who stands in the gap, can make all of the difference.

Bible doctrine in to soul of individuals is the key.

By 622, Israel observed the Passover, something which had not been celebrated for years. This commemorated the Jews in Egypt. Josiah's reformation had come full circle. One man; one leader. Josiah cleansed the Temple of Baal worship and temple prostitution. He restored the building, which fell into great disrepair.

2Kings 22:2 and he does that which is right in the eyes of Yahweh, and walks in all the way of David his father, and has not turned aside--right or left.

2Kings 22:3 And it comes to pass, in the eighteenth year of king Josiah, the king has sent Shaphan son of Azaliah, son of Meshullam, the scribe, to the house of Yahweh, saying,

2Kings 22:4 `Go up unto Hilkiah the high priest, and he does complete the silver that is brought into the house of Yahweh, that the keepers of the threshold have gathered from the people,

2Kings 22:5 and they give it into the hand of the doers of the work, the overseers, in the house of Yahweh, and they give it to the doers of the work that [is] in the house of Yahweh, to strengthen the breach of the house,

2Kings 22:6 to artificers, and to builders, and [to repairers of] the wall, and to buy wood and hewn stones to strengthen the house;"

2Kings 22:7 only, the silver that is given into their hand is not reckoned with them, for in faithfulness they are dealing.

During this restoration, the book of the Lord was discovered.

2Kings 22:8 And Hilkiyah the high priest said unto Shaphan the scribe, 'A book of the law I have found in the house of Yahweh;' and Hilkiyah gives the book unto Shaphan, and he reads it.

2Kings 22:9 And Shaphan the scribe comes in unto the king, and brings the king back word, and said, 'Your servants have poured out the silver that has been found in the house, and give it into the hand of the doers of the work, the inspectors, in the house of Yahweh..

2Kings 22:10 And Shaphan the scribe declares to the king, saying, 'A book has Hilkiyah the priest given to me;' and Shaphan reads it before the king.

Josiah is deeply moved. He tears his clothes.

2Kings 22:11 And it comes to pass, at the king's hearing the words of the book of the law, that he rends his garments,

2Kings 22:12 and the king commands Hilkiyah the priest, and Ahikam son of Shaphan, and Achbor son of Michaiah, and Shaphan the scribe, and Asahiah servant of the king, saying,

2Kings 22:13 'Go, seek Yahweh for me, and for the people, and for all Judah, concerning the words of this book that is found, for great [is] the fury of Yahweh that is kindled against us, because that our fathers have not hearkened unto the words of this book, to do according to all that is written for us..

They go out to seek the Lord. It is apparent that they are involved in syncretism. Judah has fallen a great deal when it comes to devotion to the Lord. He realizes just how bad things have gotten after reading and studying and understanding the Law.

The absolute standards of the Word of God by which we have perfect standards. This book of the Law became the foundation for their worship.

The Law delivered God's mandates to Israel as a client nation. There were the rituals, the offerings, the blood of Christ, the rebound offerings. This is how Israel was to live with the standards of God.

This was Judah's last chance. Dedication to the Lord or dedication to false gods. This book became Josiah's passion. He insisted that Jews heard the Word of God.

2Kings 22:14 And Hilkiyah the priest goes, and Ahikam, and Achbor, and Shaphan, and Asahiah, unto Huldah the prophetess, wife of Shallum, son of Tikvah, son of Harhas, keeper of the garments, and she is dwelling in Jerusalem in the second, and they speak unto her.

2Kings 22:15 And she said unto them, `Thus said Yahweh, Elohim of Israel, Say to the man who has sent you unto me.

2Kings 22:16 Thus said Yahweh, Lo, I am bringing in evil unto this place and on its inhabitants, all the words of the book that the king of Judah has read

2Kings 22:17 because that they have forsaken Me, and make perfume to other elohims, so as to provoke Me to anger with every work of their hands, and My wrath has been kindled against this place, and it is not quenched.

2Kings 22:18 `And unto the king of Judah, who is sending you to seek Yahweh, thus do you say unto him, Thus said Yahweh, Elohim of Israel, The words that you have heard-

2Kings 22:19 because your heart [is] tender, and you are humbled because of Yahweh, in your hearing that which I have spoken against this place, and against its inhabitants, to be for a desolation, and for a reviling, and do rend your garments, and weep before Me--I also have heard--the affirmation of Yahweh-

2Kings 22:20 therefore, lo, I am gathering you unto your fathers, and you have been gathered unto your grave in peace, and your eyes do not look on any of the evil that I am bringing in on this place;' and they bring the king back word.

2Kings 23:1-7 And the king sends, and they gather unto him all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem, and the king goes up to the house of Yahweh, and every man of Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with him, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, from small unto great, and he reads in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant that is found in the house of Yahweh. And the king stands by the pillar, and makes the covenant before Yahweh, to walk after Yahweh, and to keep His commands, and His testimonies, and His statutes, with all the heart, and with all the soul, to establish the words of this covenant that are written on this book, and all the people stand in the covenant. And the king commands Hilkiah the high priest, and the priests of the second order, and the keepers of the threshold, to bring out from the temple of Yahweh all the vessels that are made for Baal, and for the shrine, and for all the host of the heavens, and he burns them at the outside of Jerusalem, in the fields of Kidron, and has borne their ashes to Beth-Eternal life. And he has caused to cease the idolatrous priests whom the kings of Judah have appointed, (and they make perfume in high places, in cities of Judah and suburbs of Jerusalem,) and those making perfume to Baal, to the sun, and to the moon, and to the planets, and to all the host of the heavens. And he brings out the shrine from the house of Yahweh to the outside of Jerusalem, unto the brook Kidron, and burns it at the brook Kidron, and beats it small to dust, and casts its dust on the grave of the sons of the people. And he breaks down the houses of the whoremongers that [are] in the house of Yahweh, where the women are weaving houses for the shrine.

There is a lot of lip service given to the Bible. The Lord recognizes those who proclaim His Word, whether in a public pronouncement of doctrine or a public reading of His Word.

However, the withdrawal of judgment was not withdrawn over just this. They did not depart from the syncretism of manasseh's time, and that their doom.

How long does God put up with negative volition?

Chaldea and Nebuchadnezzar came in and leveled the Temple.

God always provides for the deliverance of His people. In Babylon, Daniel would be the man standing in the gap. The client nation after those 70 years would be reconstituted. God honors His Word wherever it is found.

The U.S. is not a theocracy and we do not live under the Mosaic Law. However, there are believers in the public eye and they stand for the Word of God regardless of attack. There are teachers and leaders and they preserve the nation. This is the same as Josiah did in his time. He offered the alternative to apostasy. It is the individual heroes today and they count for the preservation of this nation. The invisible heroes, known by God for their advance. Some standing next to them have no idea as to their impact. It is just like the citizens of Judah in the times of Josiah.

Syncretism did not leave Israel even under Josiah. Today, if there are enough invisible heroes, we will be preserved. But there is a point where evil cannot be repaired and it must be cut out.

The US is a client nation to God. We have prospered in our history as a client nation. We have seen prosperity and the blessings of God like no other nation. That is all about advancing believers. Enough advancing believers brings blessing to the nation from God. God blesses a client nation like Israel and like the US, whose foundation is the Word of God.

Do we have some visible heroes proclaiming God's Word who are not being heard? Is there just lip service being given? Are there enough believers for God to pass over our nation, which is filled with so many problems?

The tradition of Bobby making a prediction for 2010. He sees it as grim. The parallels to Judah of 609 B.C. are staggering. Believers are cowed by a handful of skeptics and atheists. We are now multi-cultural, multi-religious and multi-confused. Will we fall from our perch as a client nation?

Bobby's opinion is, syncretism is winning in our country and Christianity is seen as just one religion among others. Even believers in government will not stand up for Jesus Christ. Government buildings can have Christmas trees but cannot support any Christian doctrine. We are past the crossroads. At this moment, we are Judah in spite of Josiah.

There have been times in history when there is no identifiable client nation. There will always be individuals who represent Jesus Christ in the worst of times.

There are still voices crying doctrine in the land. It may take a catastrophic event, an economic event or reversals on the field of battle for us to wake up as a nation.

Never give up and never become cynical and always stand up in the face of opposition. As an advancing believer, you will be given the same consideration of God as Josiah.

A verse for 2010: be strong in the Lord and in the strength of His might. From Ephesians.

Lesson #1004

1Cor. 14: January 3, 2010

Sunday 1

Bobby is going to try to complete 1Cor. 14 today and the book this year.

These mandates like flee fornication and pray without ceasing, they are just as binding and just as important as these others and should be no more controversial.

Authority and leadership are vested in the pastor-teacher in the assembly of the local church and the husband in the home. From Gen. 3:16b, women will have trouble in their very nature with authority and leadership. She will attempt to usurp her husband's role. She will desire to teach and to hold authority in the local church; not just over women, but over men as well. So Paul, in these regulations, is reminding the Corinthians of the danger of all of this. There is nothing inferior or superior with regards to the roles of men and women; there is just roles of authority and subordinate. When God designs a role, then that is exactly what we ought to be doing; it is a mandate. These are limited by the context of these passages.

Finally, Paul is not demeaning women in these matters; he is just recognizing God's design.

What about outside of the home and outside of the church? Some of you do have questions in these other areas. Women may wonder, what if I do hold authority over men outside of the home and church? This passage does not address women in the workplace, the government or the military. This passage is about the home and the church. That is the limitation. Nor does this passage address who is better or who is more capable. Women, believers and unbelievers, are still responders or reactors. That is how the woman was designed.

Vv. 34–35 are mandates, and there are hazards which will influence life in the home and in the church. Women who take on these sorts of roles can become very manly in their approach. The Christian woman must understand the choice that she makes. It is not anti-Biblical to have a position of authority. However, there may be an unintended result of this from this situation. It may be too easy for the woman to continue to exercising authority once she walks through the front door of her home. The woman's priority is always the mandate of the Word of God, despite what society at large has to say. This is simply the world in which we live. This is a caution for the woman to keep in mind her propensity for usurping a man's authority.

1Cor. 14:34 the women should keep silent in the churches. For they are not permitted to speak, but should be in submission, as the Law also says.

1Cor. 14:35 If there is anything they desire to learn, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church.

1Cor. 14:36 Or was it from you that the word of God came? Or are you the only ones it has reached?

Just so you know, these are the Lord's commandments. Not being recognized in v. 38 has nothing to do with loss of salvation.

Protasis of a 1st class condition. Paul is assuming that this is true of the believers in Corinth. He assumes this to be true. If you do not recognize the truth of these things, then you are not a prophet and you are not spiritual. Paul desires for there to be truth in their souls. Paul first of all says, "You have received these things as prophets from God the Holy Spirit. You have received regulations which are a part of the mandates of the Holy Spirit." If Bobby does not accept the mandates of pastor-teacher. Prophets must be able to recognize the truth of Paul's statements, for they are not prophets.

There are others who consider themselves to be spiritual; and this is everyone else. There is no spiritual life apart from the Holy Spirit. "If you do not recognize the truth of God's mandates, then you are not spiritual." Instead of recognizing these regulations, they react instead. When you disobey God's mandates, then you are out of fellowship.

1Cor. 14:37 If anyone thinks that he is a prophet, or spiritual, he should acknowledge that the things I am writing to you are a command of the Lord.

Recognize is the verb επιγνωσκω, which is metabolized doctrine in your soul. This is the operation of forming επιγνωσις in your soul. Epignosko requires spirituality in order to occur. If you are not spiritual, then these regs are a waste of time for you. This is the epitome of authority-orientation.

God has issued commandments. Take them seriously.

1Cor. 14:38 If anyone does not recognize this, he is not recognized.

Lesson #1005

1Cor. 14: January 3, 2010

Sunday 2

There are two negatives along with 2 επιγνωσκω's. What is this recognition which he does not have? He is not recognized as a prophet or as spiritual. This does not mean he is an unbeliever.

Other translations:

(AUV-NT) But if any man does not know this, he should remain ignorant. [Note: The Greek may mean, "If any man does not recognize this (truth), he will not be recognized (in the judgment)"].

(JMNT) Yet if anyone continues being ignorant [of this], let him continue without knowledge [other MSS: he continues being left ignorant]. (or: Now if anyone is habitually without experiential understanding, [this] continues being not known [by him].)

(MSG) If you won't play by these rules, God can't use you. Sorry.

agnoeo (ἀγνοέω) [pronounced awg-no-EH-oh], which means 1) to be ignorant, not to know; 2) not to understand, unknown; 3) to err or sin through mistake, to be wrong. Thayer only. Strong's #60.

We do not have any latitude; and if we take the latitude, then we must take on the consequences.

We are not here to have a life completely about ourselves. Only we can have a life with the correct emphasis or priorities.

Maybe that ought to be your watchword—what am I here for? Understand what your purpose is as a believer in Jesus Christ. Do not fail to meet your obligations.

Paul is not going to try to convince them; he is not going to spend time trying to convince them. It is a dead end if a believer fails to metabolize doctrine. There is nothing that Bobby can do to fix that.

Can any of you say, "I have nothing, I have to take a bus to get here" and we all have a life designed for us. It must be inside the plan of God.

If the Word of God cannot convince you; if His mandates cannot move you, then there is no reason for Paul to attempt to move you with persuasion. Those who reject Bible doctrine and its authority are left to act on their own recognizance.

If you hear things you do not like in Berachah because it conflicts with your lifestyle, then your lifestyle is the problem and it will keep you from God's plan for your life.

1Cor. 14:38 If anyone does not recognize this, he is not recognized.

Now Paul sums up the chapters in 2 sentences.

Do not ban the use of tongues when it is related to evangelism; where the gospel might be spoken to one who speaks a different dialect. These gifts represent communication; even though they are no longer extent today.

Another reason why it is clear that the gift of prophecy and tongues have ceased, this was one of Paul's first epistles, and it began its circulation early. Paul only mentions the gift of tongues in this epistle. It is never mentioned in his later letters, as this gift was disappearing. Would God deprive the church of something necessary for its function? Of course not. What replaced these gifts was the completed canon of Scripture.

All of those people who yell and scream in tongues today are not recognized. The assimilation of this doctrine is the basis for our spiritual growth. It is essential.

1Cor. 14:39 So, my brothers, earnestly desire to prophesy, and do not forbid speaking in tongues.

Paul now echoes v. 33 (for God is not a God of disorder but of peace. As in all the churches of the saints) Good manners; an organized and orderly life. This is another reflection of our metabolized doctrine, and this is the best doctrine for academic discipline.

An army is never a mob. It is very well-coordinated. Everyone is on the same page to accomplish the same mission. Everyone does his job and acts at the proper moment in the proper way. We are an army and we win or lose based upon how orderly we function as a unit.

There are regulations in this chapter about the way we operate. Paul wrote to Timothy to help him with any church like the Corinthian church, "O Timothy, guard that which has been entrusted to you, avoiding arguments of some who have gone astray."

Summary of the Chapter

1. The pastor-teacher should always maintain good order within the church. The believer must maintain good order within his soul.
2. Guard the doctrine and the regulations put forward in the Word of God and put a perimeter around them.
3. Do not put up with meaningless chatter, as was taking place in Corinth with tongues chatter. The same with pastors who teach nothing but humanism. Syncretism.
4. Speak against the pure carnality which is behind it. The background of the Corinthian heathen temples; today, we speak against that which is false. Stand for the truth and do not become a legalist. Remain grace orientated.
5. Pursue edification. Do not allow false doctrine to entice you away from true doctrine.
6. Watch out for false prophets and false pastors who have gone into reversionism and into deviant doctrine.

1Cor. 14:40 But all things should be done decently and in order.

Paul realizes that the Corinthians are denying the bodily resurrection. Corinthian doctrinal deviation. Paul has given them tremendous doctrinal dissertation. However, false teaching was circulating throughout the Corinthian church.

The idea of bodily resurrection seemed preposterous to the Greeks. Most of those in the Corinth church were Greeks, although there were certain a handful of Jews. Most of the Greeks at this time adhere to a philosophy of dualism, which is an anthropology as much as it is a philosophy.

Anthropology

1. Theological anthropology means the study of man and his characteristics in his relation to God. This includes the origin of man. Most other anthropologies come from a completely different perspective.
2. This includes sin as a depravity.
3. The study of man and God as a result of creation.

What was this Dualism?

This was how they thought; this was a carryover from their past.

1. The body is described as material or physical.
2. The soul and the spirit was the immaterial. So far, we are in agreement.
3. In Greek dualism, the material, the body of flesh, was entirely corrupted and evil. Flesh was evil in their thinking, which is similar to Biblical anthropology. We are born corrupted. That nature is passed through procreation; transmitted through our parents.
4. Further, in Greek dualism, the soul, the immaterial, was the source of all things good. This is not unlike Oriental dualism.
5. Good is the inherent property of the soul; evil is inherent to the body.
6. In Greek dualism, the body is evil and the soul is good.
7. Evil is of the body, but not of the soul in Greek dualism.
8. The conclusion of dualism is, sin in human life is to be blamed on the body only, which seduces and stains the innocent soul. The Greek believers in the church at Corinth were stuck in this thinking. The resurrection confused them, therefore.

Greeks and the Resurrection

1. The physical body, to the Greek, was inadequate to fellowship with God.
2. There are believers who accepted eternal life, but they did not quite go for the whole package.
3. For them, God could not have anything to do with the material side of man, inasmuch as it was evil.
4. God would only preserve the good inherent in the soul. So it was the soul that was eternal.

5. Therefore, it was only the soul, the immaterial, the good, which could survive physical death.
6. They considered the body as a prison for the soul. The body imprisoned the soul and the soul was freed from the body at death.
7. The influence of Greek dualism absolutely separated body from soul and left no room for a bodily existence after death.
8. They rejected this out of hand.
9. A bodily resurrection is just another prison for the soul because the flesh was evil and the soul could not escape that evil.

Greek dualism is not Biblical.

The Biblical View

1. Everything that God created was good: body, soul and spirit. God can only create perfection.
2. Adam was created without a sin nature. He had no sin in his body or soul.
3. As created by God, the body was not evil.
4. When Adam sinned, it was not just a bodily sin; it was also a sin of the immaterial part of man. Sin is sin. Everything we do is from the whole of man. This blows Greek immortality out of the water.
5. It was not just a bodily sin, but from the immaterial part. Adam's decision came from his soul. It originated in the mentality of his soul.
6. His was not just a physical, material fall.
7. The results of the fall were that the sin nature corrupted both body and soul.
8. Biblical anthropology confirms that the soul is just as tainted by the sin nature as is the body even though the sin nature is genetically transmitted in the cell structure of the body.
9. Therefore, in Biblical anthropology, the body and the soul could have a future in eternity with God, as long as the sin nature was removed.

Greek Anthropology as Opposed to Biblical Anthropology

1. The Greeks assigned different properties to body and soul.
2. There was immortality in the soul.
3. For the Greeks, the soul was purely rational, inherently moral, separate from all evil.
4. Therefore, all good comes from the source of the soul, according to the Greek thinking.
5. Only the soul is to be preserved; not the body, to Greek anthropology.

This should help us to see what bodily resurrection was not seen by the Greeks as reasonable. Even today, this is not understood, and because of syncretism, some even confused resurrection with reincarnation.

Bodily resurrection was against their thinking; and this was not empirical either; no one had ever seen this (apart from some non-Greeks who had seen Jesus).

Paul will have an airtight argument to convince them. People rejected Jesus Christ, even though He is the exact image of God. Man has never seen God, but Jesus Christ has shown man God. People saw Jesus and rejected Him.

The bodily resurrection is the key to their thinking and to our thinking. Because Jesus was resurrected, so will we be resurrected. That is the empirical argument. Is He really the Savior if He is not resurrected?

There are still skeptics in this world when it comes to resurrection. Over 500 people witnessed the resurrected Christ. They saw Him; they heard Him and they touched Him. With empirical proof of resurrection, there was rational proof of the resurrection. This is Paul's line of argument.

The writers of the New Testament testified as to Who Jesus was and what they knew. Those who saw the resurrected Christ were witnesses to His resurrection. They saw the grave clothes and recognized that they had not been moved when Jesus sat up.

Paul's Conclusion

1. Because the Lord Jesus Christ was bodily resurrected, as many saw, he concludes that we will be resurrected.
2. Because Christ lived in bodily form in heaven, so will we.
3. The resurrection means that we will have a body exactly like His. His resurrected body is exactly the body that we will have.
4. The resurrection body that we will receive is different from our present body. The Greeks thought they we would get the same old body, and that body is evil, so we could not have a relationship with God. Paul states over and over again that there is a body of immortality. That makes the body which is eternal.
5. With this line of empirical truth, bodily resurrection was now possible in the Greek thinking. Now, they will think their way through it. Jesus was raised in a physical body, but this body has brand new qualities; no limitations as we have; Jesus went through doors and the grave clothes, etc. others will witness this.
6. We will have a body like His. Our bodies are harmonious with eternity, in heaven with God.

Rational Proof

1. If Christ did not bodily rise from the dead, then the entire Christian faith is fallacious. Yet these people believe in Christ.
2. A dead God does not reassure us with regards to eternal life.
3. If that is true, then proclaiming the gospel would be without value.

4. Then Christian testimony to the rest of the world would be a total hoax. This would make Jesus criminal that He would have us believe in Him, who did not rise from the grave.
5. And if this resurrection is false, then it is ineffective. It could not be backed by the power of the Holy Spirit. It makes you wonder just how rational God is.
6. If Christ is not resurrected, then no sins have been paid for.
7. Past believers would have perished without any hope of a future life.

This is one doctrine that we cannot do without. If there is no resurrection, let us eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die. Go out, live for pleasure, because there is nothing else.

Lesson #1007

1Cor. 15:1 January 7, 2010

Thursday

Bobby needs rebound tonight more than most nights.

Bobby was tempted to cancel Bible class. Texas is playing for the national championship tonite.

Ann Coulter, a great writer and a great conservative. This is about the Britt Hume advising Tiger Woods. In a movie or on tv, you will never hear the name of Jesus Christ, unless it is an oath. Bobby reads a column by her. Hume's words sent liberals into a dithering rage. Tom Shales demanded that Hume apologize.

Schuster, the separation of church and television. What topic induces this kind of babbling lunacy? Col. 2:14 even quoted by Ann Coulter. You can be washing the dishes or walking your dog, and you can believe that Jesus Christ died for your sins, and you are saved.

In a boiling rage, liberal accuse Christians of being judgmental. Christianity is simultaneously the easiest and hardest religions. Christianity is the best deal.

She gave the gospel 10 times in this one column.

The introduction is continued with a question—what do the Corinthians think about a bodily resurrection? Why were they denying the resurrection? That was their background. That was dualism. The soul would continue forever. The idea of a bodily resurrection to them was absurd to them. The body of flesh was seen as being entirely corrupt. The soul, the immaterial part of man, was the source of all things that are good. To them, all good comes from the source of the soul and all evil emanates from the body. The corrupted body is inadequate for eternity, which is true. But they did not believe that it would be fixable, as the body was repugnant.

This is a form of asceticism.

Because of their background, a bodily resurrection just made no sense to them. It was not logical and there was no proof for such a view. It was not rational nor was it empirical.

Our faith is based upon the cross and resurrection. Those were actual happenings and witnessed by thousands of people. We have a mix of all of those.

Paul's first line of proof will be the empirical testimony of those who saw Jesus. He appeared to His closest disciples, men and women. These same men would become Apostles or dynamic disciples. Paul himself met the risen Lord. There may have even been some in Corinth who saw Jesus. There were 500 others who saw our Lord. Those are Paul's empirical argument. All of these were those who witnessed our Lord.

He also presents a rational argument for our Lord. He approach it in a negative way.

Paul's Rational Argument

1. If Christ did not bodily rise from the dead, then the Christian faith is fallacious.
2. Proclaiming the gospel as Paul was doing and as many other did; even using tongues as many had done—it would be of no value.
3. Christian testimony to the rest of the world would be a hoax. All the witnesses would be perpetrating a false hoax. If Christ is not resurrected, then none of it is true. He would not be God nor would He be a good man. How could Jesus Christ, knowing He is not God, make all these claims and allow millions to die in complete ignorance and foolishness.
4. If Jesus was not resurrected, then He could not have paid for our sins.
5. If Christ were not resurrected, then past believers would have perished without any hope of an eternal life.
6. If Christ were dead, there could be no eternal life. If He is not resurrected, then we will not be resurrected. The Corinthians thought all of these things to be true, and now they see the contradiction in their thinking.
7. The promise of eternal life came with salvation. These Greeks has already believed in Jesus Christ; Paul made certain of that. What Paul was doing was logically progressing his thought from the saving work of Jesus Christ to His work on the cross. You believe in Jesus Christ; now believe that he was resurrected.

You cannot logically believe in the risen Christ without believing in your own bodily resurrection. If there is no bodily resurrection, then Christians are the most pitiful people of all. The Christians did not like to be futile. The believers might as well believe, "Let us eat, drink, and seek pleasure, for tomorrow we die." And we know that will not bring true pleasure. Morality and ethics would be completely situational if pleasure was key to life. If morality is in the way of your pleasure, set morality aside. This could eliminate evil. This is an entirely cynical statement.

Paul is teaching that the resurrection separates Christianity from all other religions. Only the Lord Jesus Christ has ben resurrected. That is how important this chapter is. We cannot have any uncertainty in this doctrine. This is a primary passage on resurrection. This is the most extensive passage on resurrection in the Bible.

Resurrection Passages

1. However, this is not the only place where Paul speaks of resurrection. Without the resurrection, Jesus Christ could not be the Son of God. Rom. 1:3–4: about (around; concerning; with reference to) His Son -- the One coming into existence (birthing Himself) from out of David's (or, Davidic) sperm (seed), down from (in accord with) flesh; the One being bounded (marked off by boundaries and thus defined; separated and thus designated; divided away and determined) God's Son (a Son of God) within power (ability), down from (in accord with) a spirit of separateness (holiness; sanctity [the Holy Spirit - FF Bruce]; a spirit pertaining to being set apart) forth from out of a resurrection (a standing back up again) of dead ones -- Jesus Christ, our Lord,
2. The resurrection is part of the gospel as we see in Rom. 10:9–19.
3. 1Cor. 15:20 2Cor. 4:14 1Thess. 4:14, 16–17: because the Lord Himself will descend from heaven within a shout of command, within [the] Chief Agent's (Original Messenger's) voice, and within God's trumpet, and the dead ones within Christ will raise themselves up (will stand up again) first (or: in first place). Thereupon (after that) we, the living ones, the ones continuously being left around, will at the same time be seized and snatched away (carried off by force) into air, together with them within clouds, into the Lord's meeting (encounter). And thus (in this way) shall we always be (exist) together with the Lord. Bodily resurrection does not depend upon your body being somewhat intact wherever it is placed. If your body is destroyed in war or in an airline explosion, God reconstitutes our body and unites it with the soul. We will have a tangible body. It will be changed in the twinkling of an eye. If we are part of the rapture generation, then we will not taste death. Living at the moment of the rapture, you will not experience death. Bob wanted the experience of death. So many people who are afraid of death pray for the rapture.

Our ultimate future in a resurrection body. We meet the Lord in the air. At the 2nd advent, the Lord comes to earth and sets up His Millennial kingdom. This is one of the differences between the rapture and the 2nd advent.

The Importance of the Resurrection

1. The resurrection is a central claim of Christianity. This is a doctrine that is not negotiable.
2. The resurrection is the promise of eternity with God. That is our confidence; that is our great hope.
3. Resurrection is a basic soteriological doctrine without which Christianity cannot be true. It is a key doctrine.

4. Resurrection is a decisive issue in Christian theology separating the false from the true.
5. Resurrection is our personal assurance of a bodily life after physical death.

Bobby assures us that these will be repeated and a part of our thinking.

1Cor. 15:1 Now I am progressively making known to you folks, brothers, the good news (the message of ease and wellness) which I, myself, announced as glad tidings for you (to you), which you also accepted and embraced, within which and in union with which you also stand,

Lesson #1008 The Resurrection 1Cor. 15: January 10, 2010 Sunday 1

There is the resurrection of believers. Unbelievers are resurrected to judgment. That is the Great White Throne judgment, cast into the Lake of Fire forever. They will have a body. Matt. 25:41 Rev. 20:5–15 This will take place at the end of the Millennium.

Dispensations

1. The Bible breaks down history into increments, and these are called dispensations.
2. The Biblical eras are the progress of human history.
3. The divisions of these dispensations give the divine interpretation of history. God's interpretation is the interpretation of history.
4. The dispensations.
  - a. The theo-centric dispensation the creation of man to the garden.
  - b. They fall, and this begins the era of negative volition.
  - c. The Age of Israel
  - d. The Era of the Hypostatic Union. Jesus is called the first fruits of resurrection. There was never a resurrection prior to our Lord leaving the tomb after 3 days.
  - e. The Church Age:
    - i. The pre-canon era which was the 1st century A.D.
    - ii. The post-canon era. The rapture will end this event, and that day and time is known by no one.
  - f. The Tribulation, which is 7 years, and completes human history. The 3rd resurrection and sequence. Even though this will be a horrible period of warfare, there will still be those who are alive at the 2nd coming of Jesus Christ. All of the Old Testament saints will be resurrected. Isa 26:19–20 Rev. 20:4
  - g. The Millennium is a literal 1000 years. This final group get their resurrection bodies at the end. Those who enter into the Millennium with bodies of flesh must receive new bodies at the end of the Millennium when the old heavens and earth are destroyed.

Christ, the church at the rapture, the Old Testament and tribulational martyrs at the 2nd advent, and the millennial saints, and all unbelievers.

Why Dispensational is Correct

1. Peter makes it clear that at the time of the beginning of the Church Age, David was still in his grave. David is a central figure of the Age of Israel.
2. The dispensation is not yet complete. It still enters its final few years at the rapture. Therefore, there will be a post-tribulational resurrection of Old Testament saints. Believers of the Age of Israel are resurrected at the end of their dispensation. This will happen when the promised kingdom of David comes to be. Jewish believers in the Church Age are not a part of Israel and they are members of the church and will be resurrected along with the rest of us.
3. During the Tribulation, the resumption of the Age of Israel, and at the beginning after the rapture of the church, there will be two Jewish witnesses who will be resuscitated. There have been those who were necessitated in the Old Testament. Jesus can still do this. They will restore the Temple and they will preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. No believers on earth at the beginning of the Tribulation. They will proclaim the gospel for 1260 days. These are probably Moses and Elijah. They will have supernatural powers. They can turn water into blood and withhold water from rain. Mal. 4 Jesus Christ declared this event to still be future. In their gospel presentation, the first converts include the 144,000 of Israel. Here are where the JW's come in, and they see themselves as the 144,000 and there are more than 144,000 JW's, then who will be left out? After 3.5 years, these 2 witnesses will be killed. These 2 are a part of the dispensation of Israel. They could not die again if they had been raised up in resurrected bodies. We will view all of this from our own resurrection bodies.
4. The Messianic kingdom of Israel. The covenants to Israel are not fulfilled until the time of the Millennium, and there is no reason for Jews to have resurrection bodies.

This is an overview of the doctrine of resurrection. To hear a departure from this doctrine is heresy. If you hear a denial, a distortion or a tweaking of this doctrine, remove yourself from that church or that teacher.

Lesson #1009

1Cor. 15: January 10, 2010

Sunday 2

Bobby threw an entire system of theology toward us in the previous hour. This has been developed and debated and has become an entire system of theology. We need to understand that there are a series of resurrections in history; only 1 has occurred and 4 more will occur. The rapture (1Thess. 4); the Old Testament saints and Tribulation martyrs are resurrection; at the end of the Millennium there will be those die and those who do not; and they will all be given resurrection bodies; and then the unbelievers will be raised up for the final judgment.

Many of Bobby's congregation charged into the library to grab the pertinent booklet (The Divine Outline of History).

There are many skeptics to this approach. We need to approach this from the skeptics point of view and from our faith-based view as well.

Was the resurrection of Christ really an historical event? Did it really happen? They might suggest that the poor distraught disciplines, having seen Jesus crucified, began a myth which they perpetrated, and which myth was perpetrated to this day.

We live in an age of tolerance, where all sorts of viewpoints are tolerated. We accept the religion of environmentalism, space aliens, eastern religions; but we also live in an age of irreverent people with regards to the truth. Satan is being very successful at this point in the Angelic Conflict. An age of irreverence and cynicism. Many people today are more receptive to an afterlife via reincarnation rather than via a resurrection. The soul transmigrates through a variety of bodies, animals, human, plants and even inorganic objects. The Hindus believe that this is a way to atone for various actions in life. The worse the life, the lower the life form the reincarnation takes place in. Resurrection is entirely dependent upon Christ. Reincarnation depends upon mystical insight and there is no empirical evidence of reincarnation; it is entirely blind faith; a deception of Satan.

Resurrection is the Biblical viewpoint of the afterlife. Ironically, our age is also one where facts are inaccessible unless accompanied by rational, empirical, and scientific proof of same. This came with the period of enlightenment, around the middle of the 17th century?

The laws of nature are laws put into place by the Creator.

Today in many scientific circles, faith is seen as a relic of the past, and unnecessary today, since we know so much from scientific discovery. They present this as superstition. Thus faith, in these circles, is viewed as ignorance. To them, science is the only real progress and hope for mankind. Science becomes a humanistic religion. Take environmentalism which offers up proofs of our destruction of our planet.

Man-made global warming and climate change. All of the heads of state gathered at a great climate change conference. There is room for doubt that this is man-made. Reputable voices have disputed this man-made global warming. Many put their faith in great scientists like Al Gore or in those who manipulate the data to get their facts and theories proven.

Science has a wonderful place in our world, but not as a substitute for Scripture; and not as a replacement for God. So many bow down to science as an idol. It is rarely admitted that some science is based upon faith; even blind-faith. Unverifiable, speculative facts about the universe and the world in which we live. Based upon previously unauthenticated theories. One discovery changes an entire science.

Evolutionary science is constantly finding so many pieces of evidence which changes everything. Many of the theories assume that there is no God; only the forces of nature (pantheism). These are highly speculative theories and they become the underpinnings of many solid, scientific conclusions.

The origin of the universe; the theories are rampant and truly amazing. How do you explain the incredible orderliness of it all; the stars and their traffic patterns; or the spark of life. No scientist witnessed the origin of the universe or that origin of life. The Big Bang theory; and these theories lie outside of scientific observation and scientific verification. We find some tiny spec of evidence and we interpret it and apply it to the entire universe. Whenever hypotheses from these cannot be verified, science enters into the realm of speculation. Science shines in some sets of observations, but they have great problems when trying to make up stuff based on the assumption of no-God.

Evolution is a prime example of accepting a theory of science on blind faith. This is hypothesized upon the confidence in the veracity of the theories of mankind. If you boil it down, it goes to this premise: from some inanimate piece of material, which came into being in ways that cannot be explained; from this inorganic matter arose life, which is something which has never been observed before.

Scientists never go back to this beginning; they always go back to another point, after this life form has begun. All of this has nothing to do with God; they basically reject Biblical teaching. None of it has ever been observed. It is all speculative. It is based upon small little facts and observations which can be interpreted or misinterpreted; and they never take into account Who God is and What God is capable of doing.

A Creator and Designer makes sense. No building in this world came into being on its own. No building was ever made until it is first designed, then created using energy.

There is theistic evolution and many Christians have bought into this. They allow for God to create life, but that is all that He did. This comes as a result of trying to make creationism and evolution one. We have a choice: blind faith in evolution or what the Scripture says. One of the best examples of this is resurrection. Faith in mankind's unverified or speculative theories. Jer. 17:5 cursed there is certainly faith in Christianity; and it is one of the ways that we perceive our world. Science uses all 3, although they do not admit it. We base much of our life on faith as believers in Jesus Christ. However, it is not blind faith. Humanism demands blind faith in the designs of mankind. Our faith is centered in its observed, verifiable reality. Thousands saw Jesus in His resurrection body. The Lord Jesus Christ is the revelation of God. Heb. 1:1–3. Science cannot find anything as wonderful as the birth, life and death of Jesus Christ. It is all verifiable, rational and empirical fact. We do not live with blind faith, like much of the humanistic world does.

Biblical Christianity is not non-empirical or non-rational. Our faith is more empirical than most of what passes for science today. Bobby looked for verifiable facts for various scientific theories. Since no one has seen the resurrection for 2000 years, there is doubt in the minds of many that it really happened. Facts should be verified by continuing verification and discovery.

Satan always has his challenges to the truth; his deception of the truth. He is the most powerful and created being in this universe.

Bobby is not denigrating the wonderful discoveries of science and technology. The facts are verifiable. If we were in a court of law and everyone in this room saw one event and we all agreed to it, and we all saw the same thing, would that not be accepted as verifiable and accepted as truth? Even Paul met Jesus Christ face to face on the Damascus road.

Lesson #1010

1Cor. 15: January 13, 2010

Wednesday

It is 2000 years since our Lord was resurrected. Why have we not seen a resurrection from that time until this? Empiricism is a major reason for rejecting Jesus Christ; but this is also a major reason why we believe the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

There is not a doctrine present in the Word of God that Satan seeks to obscure more than the doctrine of resurrection. He of course tries to obscure the gospel even more.

We have never seen anyone resurrected. So, we do not know if an out-of-body experience is real or not; but that is not the same as a resurrection. No one has ever seen that before.

Empirically Verifying the Resurrection

1. If we can grant that ordinary historical events can be verified (if they cannot, not real history can exist),
2. Then it is possible for the historicity of the resurrection to be verified in the same way as any other historical event.
3. If the account of an historical event is compared from various eyewitness viewpoints, and the resurrection is so compared,
4. Then a synthesis of truth of the event can be identified and accepted. This is how history works. An historian interviews those who have seen what an event is. An historian can synthesize from the accounts a historical narrative.
5. This is how history is developed. If you do not know the past, then you are doomed to repeat the mistakes of the past.

Let's look at the empirical proofs that make this an historically accurate account.

Eyewitnesses to the Resurrection

1. Paul's experience his his account of that experience. He claimed to see the resurrected Christ on the Damascus Road. Persecuting Christians is what Paul most liked to do. Paul followed up...Acts 9:3-5 which event took place only 5 years after the resurrection. So Paul was one eyewitness, and he repeated this testimony to many people. Paul did not see our Lord's resurrection before the ascension, but he did see our Lord on the Damascus Road.

2. A list given of Christ's several resurrection experiences. These are 3rd party accounts, in 1Cor. 15:3–7 and he wrote this about 25 years after the resurrection. There were people alive at the time that Paul wrote this.
3. Gal. 1:18–19 Paul interviewed eyewitnesses and received confirmation from those who were eyewitnesses to the actual event. Peter, in fact, was at the tomb. Paul had personal contact with those who saw the risen Christ in Jerusalem. They probably compared their experiences. Like any historian, Paul interviews eyewitnesses. This is where 1Cor. 15 came from. We are now 60 years beyond WWII. The historians who wrote these books interviewed as many surviving witnesses as they could. They gathered all of the facts that they could while the WWII veterans are still alive. From these interviews, we can come up with reasonable reconstructions of the actual events. Historicity improves the nearer one is to the actual event. Now, did Paul put his own spin on this resurrection? That is not what Paul did. These are historical facts and Paul was inspired by God the Holy Spirit as he wrote these things down. Paul was not looking for any political bent or movement. These other Apostles were circulating their own eyewitness accounts. The written material occurred as early as 40 A.D. Obviously, discussion occurred as well around this time.
4. Mark is the next empirical proof and it is generally thought that Mark's gospel was written before 50 A.D., and Mark records Peter's account of our Lord's ministry. This makes his gospel a very reliable historical document. Our faith is centered in the historical Jesus Christ and in the well-documented events of His life, His death and His resurrection. There is great empirical evidence.
5. The final evidence comes from Luke, who was an excellent historian. He also gathered his information from other eyewitness accounts.
6. The book of Acts also has a testimony of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.
7. There were hundreds of eyewitnesses, and Luke sought these out and his is the most detailed that we have, and Luke's writings have been accepted to be written around 60 A.D.

Summary of all this

this is the most important history of all historical events. All history is dependent upon this 1 event. Everything before leads up to this event and everything after looks back to it.

1. Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, Paul and Peter were the confirmed writers of these accounts. John, Paul, Peter and Matthew were all eyewitnesses.
2. The documents were written within 25 years of the events. Interviews were conducted.
3. All of the gospel accounts came from eyewitnesses. They were not 3rd or 4th hand and all put into writing within 3 decades of the Christian era. Matthew, Mark and Luke gathered their facts.
4. Therefore, the Biblical documents are contemporary accounts of the resurrection accounts. Many skeptics want to put a late date on the gospel and say they were written a 100 years later and therefore are distorted. This is contemporary first-hand historical documents.

5. These are documents written by those who saw the risen Christ. The historical record is acceptable because of the evidence. Bobby was a classics major in college, and he read much historical accounts. There are only a couple manuscripts of these ancient historians and it is accepted as accurate history. The accounts of the New Testament are literally in the 1000's. Some are in pieces, and a few are whole. Very historical.
- 6.
7. With so many corroborated eyewitness accounts recording the same event, it is absolutely right and correct to believe that the resurrection happened, just as it was described by these men. In a court of law, if a few hundred witnesses all came in and verified the same story, it would be accepted as a factual account. 2 or 3 eyewitnesses are usually enough. Many historical events are accepted on much less evidence than we have here.

Matthew, Mark and Luke can be synthesized to determine the events which occurred. This is one reason that they are called the Synoptics. Jesus slowly went vertical and they saw Him ascend into the clouds.

However, for some people, this is not enough because they have negative volition.

Our faith is based on more than superstition or on blind faith. It is based on the surety of eyewitnesses.

Paul is anxious here and he wants to impart this wonderful doctrine by easing into it. This is much more enjoyable to write about than what he has had to say. He seeks to downplay his own role and focus on the gospel itself. He wants them to understand what He received directly from Jesus Christ. This has great meaning. He is inspired by God the Holy Spirit. This doctrine comes from the highest authority. These people must know the authenticity of this doctrine and its impact.

Not until v. 12 does Paul confront them with their misconception. He eases into this. The Apostle Paul emphasizes the overall significance of the gospel message.

The resurrection is a critical part of the gospel. We can be saved without believing in the resurrection. We are saved by believing in Jesus Christ and all that is related to his death on the cross. However, the gospel is not complete without resurrection. We cannot have eternal life without a resurrected Christ. It is the crux of the gospel.

If He is dead, He is not better than the idols.

Paul begins with a verb. Gnorizô and this includes males and females. He wants to make known the gospel to them. Paul has certainly proclaimed the gospel to them before. Paul is reminding them what he preached to them.

This is a reference back to Paul proclaiming the gospel to them originally. I proclaimed this to you originally.

The Verb

1. The aorist presents paralambanô as already attained.
2. It views the action of the verb in its entirety. The action is seen as a whole.
3. This is a particular type of an aorist; the culminative aorist to review the event of receiving in its entirety but regards it from the recipient's results. They received or accepted what he was teaching. We can gather that he attained this objective. It was accepted by them. It has an existing result; salvation

1Cor. 15:1 Now I am progressively making known to you folks, brothers, the good news (the message of ease and wellness) which I, myself, announced as glad tidings for you (to you), which you also accepted and embraced, within which and in union with which you also stand, εὐογγελιον ὁ the subject which Paul is going to speak about is the gospel. What did he do? Paul had proclaimed the gospel to them in the past. The first thing he did was evangelize to whatever city he traveled to. Then he would plant a church.

Paul prefaces his past actions with the verb γνορίζω which means to make known. He is going to make known at this present time their status.

To receive is παραλαμβάνω in the aorist tense. It is better translated accepted. Paul views this event in its totality. He specifically regards the action as a whole. Those Corinthians to whom he had originally given the gospel. He makes certain that they know that they are already believers and they have already accepted the gospel and they are an existing result. The existing result is, they have accepted it.

The existing result. John 1:12 But to all who did receive [accepted] him, who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God, Paul is focusing on believers; he is not talking to unbelievers. These people do understand. They are clear on at least that part of the gospel. They understand the substitutionary work of the Lord Jesus Christ. They have accepted Him as Savior in a point in time. However, the Corinthians are still confused about a very important aspect of the gospel. Part of the gospel is the resurrection.

Do I need to include the resurrection when I present the gospel? You present the gospel in the way that you get through to someone. Bobby's personal opinion, give as much of the gospel as is possible. Is the resurrection necessary? No. The Corinthians illustrate this. They are saved yet they are still confused about the resurrection. They do not fully understand what it accomplished.

Stand is in the perfect active indicative. ἵστημι is the verb.

Grammar of stand

1. The perfect is the tense of completed action.
2. The perfect tense views the action as a finished product. That is the means or method of salvation.
3. The perfect tense is more intensive than just the existing results.
4. This is a consummative aorist. There is a process going on. It is a completed process with histimi.
5. That process is first preaching then receiving or accepting. Then it is consummated in an intensive standing.
6. Preaching and accepting process.

The Corinthians have believed the gospel. They have heard it. It has become the rock of their salvation, just as it is for all of us. Salvation is completed in them and in us, once and for all time. They are regenerate, they are in union with Christ and now they are standing. It is the gospel which defines their security.

The full gospel defines their security. Paul has evangelized them and they have believed. They simply cannot fall because they stand upon the gospel.

Martin Luther was an ordained priest in the Catholic church, but he was a renegade and he was anti-clerical. He watched all of these priests roll into these villages and they would sell indulgences. They sold these poor peasants indulgences to get them into heaven. He understood salvation by grace. One day he stood before a potentate and he had to defend himself. He was accused of heresy because he preached faith alone in Christ alone. They demanded he recant and he said, "Here I stand; I can do no other."

Salvation was a finished fact. It was unassailable. He could not lose his standing in Jesus Christ. He had expressed faith in Jesus Christ and he knew it. He could not repudiate salvation by grace. He knew salvation was a completed fact.

We stand in the doctrine of eternal security. We stand in the security of being in Christ. He Corinthians heard and accepted it. They had eternal security. In spite of all of their problems, these Corinthians were brothers. They were all royal family of God.

More about γνῶριζω. In the present tense, in this case, is a reminder.

gnôrizô γνῶριζω) [pronounced gnoh-RID-zoh], which means 1) to make known; 1a) to become known, be recognized; 2) to know, to gain knowledge of, have thorough knowledge of; 2a) in earlier Greek it means "to gain a knowledge of" or "have thorough knowledge of" Thayer definitions. Strong's #1107.

You cannot live your life if you are floundering on confidence in the resurrection.

Eternally, the Corinthians are secure. However, temporally, they are not.

When the believer drifts away, he loses confidence and momentum. Some even renounce their faith. Other believers think that they have lost their salvation or they never had true faith to begin with.

How do they recover confidence if they do not feel secure? They try to live in a certain way if they do not feel like they merit salvation. Often, they then try to live a certain way; they try to prove their salvation. They think that one cannot be saved unless they show the proper fruit in one's life. However, there are no works ever in the gospel.

Christ was resurrected and this will be a source of great security and motivation. Eternal security is a part of our motivation. Because He lives, we live. We can grow and progress because of the resurrection.

The Christian world is filled with human good.

Bobby working on his doctorate and with the other PhD candidates, he was the only person to believe in faith alone in Christ alone. He spent an hour defending this with believers who were doctoral candidates.

To question the resurrection is to question one's own eternal security. Questioning eternal life unless one has earned it.

These Greek believers about to get a lesson in their own salvation and the security which they have in Christ.

1Cor. 15:1 Now I am progressively making known to you folks, brothers, the good news (the message of ease and wellness) which I, myself, announced as glad tidings for you (to you), which you also accepted and embraced, within which and in union with which you also stand,

Lesson #1012

1Cor. 15:1 January 17, 2010

Sunday 1

Communion Sunday:

Jesus is called God, One with the Father, the Alpha and the Omega. He is the  $\lambda\omicron\gamma\omicron\varsigma$  Who, in the beginning, was with God and was God. He is the King of Israel and the promised Savior.

The Scripture also declares His complete humanity. He developed physically and mentally from childhood; He had personality, will, and suffered from human limitations. He died physically and was buried.

If any one attribute is removed, His overall essence changes. One nature does not override the other. The human and divine attributes adhere to their corresponding natures, even though they are indivisible. Thus Jesus Christ could not be fully God or fully human if those attributes mixed. Being fully human and fully God is necessary.

Because of these things, the way Jesus functioned as man and God is difficult. Sometimes, He functioned with both natures, e.g., when called Mediator. As a Mediator, He functions as a whole person.

In John 8:58, Jesus said, "Before Abraham was, I existed eternally." The Whole person was involved in everything that He did in the 1st advent. These 2 natures are inseparably united without loss or mingling of attributes.

$\Upsilon\pi\omicron\sigma\tau\alpha\iota\varsigma$  = hypo-static. There are 2 natures, but they combine to make a whole person, and He holds and manifests these 2 natures. As man, He has a body and a human nature, which things are the same of all men. These two natures are seemingly contradictory. The God-man could be simultaneously omniscient and unaware; finite and infinite; weak and omnipotent. He voluntarily limited the use of His divine attributes. Certain attributes of Deity were not used or manifested; but that does not mean they were combined, diminished, abandoned or destroyed.

Philip. 2:6–9: Who, being in the form of God, did not count equality with God something to be grasped. But He emptied Himself, taking the form of a slave, becoming as human beings are; and being in every way like a human being, He was humbler yet, even to accepting death, death on a cross. And for this God raised Him high, and gave Him the name which is above all other names;...

This is all about the doctrine of kenosis. God Himself took the form of a bond-servant. He subordinated Himself to His Father's will.

The purpose of Jesus was to carry out the plan of God, to be obedient to the point of death. His whole person was present on the cross to make atonement for us. We bow to His unequivocal Deity while He still possesses humanity.

He functions as a human being and as God Himself, under the strict conditions presented here.

Only God the Son can completely fulfill the will of God. Only Deity could come before the Father on an equal footing.

To bear our sins, Jesus must be able to die; and if His sacrifice is to be propitious, then He must be sinless. As God He was equal to the Father; He had to be equal to God and mankind, in order to be equal to both parties in the dispute.

His new body needed to be reunited with His soul and spirit. He was the first with a metamorphic human body. He will retain His resurrection body for all eternity; and we are so assured of a resurrection body for all eternity. God and man; in this case, resurrected man in One Person.

It is what is in our own souls to make this ritual meaningful.

When Paul first arrived in the city of Corinth, he evangelized the Corinthians. Paul proclaimed reconciliation. He preached redemption; man was redeemed from the slave market of sin. He proclaimed faith alone in Christ alone. All of this good news, he made known to them at a point of time in the past.

Παραλαμβάνω this indicates that the Corinthians received and accepted the gospel, in the Culminative aorist tense. It views the action of accepting or receiving the gospel from the viewpoint of its existing results. The result was, they accepted the gospel. They are believers because they accepted the message of the gospel which they heard. Paul is reminding them of what is to come.

Paul does not just leave the gospel there. He uses the perfect active indicative of the verb ἵστημι, which means to stand. Perfect tense is used. This is a consumptive perfect, which is a more intensive idea of completion. This is intense. Hearing, absorbing and accepting. Standing is the completed result. They have already accepted the gospel which Paul has preached. They now stand in the salvation. Faith alone in Christ alone. In accepting the gospel, nothing remains to be done in the gospel; it is accomplished. Christ used the perfect tense; a completed action of atonement with results that go on forever. This is the same perfect tense used by our Lord on the cross (finished). The Corinthians stand in their salvation as a completed action.

You have heard the gospel and you have accepted the gospel; and now you stand with eternal results. The Corinthians had some doubts about the future, which is a security problem, but not a salvation problem.

1Cor. 15:1 Now I am progressively making known to you folks, brothers, the good news (the message of ease and wellness) which I, myself, announced as glad tidings for you (to you), which you also accepted and embraced, within which and in union with which you also stand,

Lesson #1013

1Cor. 15:1–2 January 17, 2010

Sunday 2

Paul proclaimed the gospel to the Corinthians and they received the good news and they stood in the gospel. This is a point of this chapter. They stood in their salvation.

The present tense verb in this verse is to make known. He is going to make something else known as the security passage. Paul is going to make known to them the mode of their eternal future. It is fine to understand salvation; that is our eternal future. It is more important to understand and to be confident in our eternal future.

The Corinthians are not thinking correctly; they are not thinking in terms of their own eternal future. They need to stand fast in their own minds. They stand because they have eternal security. However, they have no confidence in that security.

Positionally, they stand in the gospel and they have the security; but in their own thinking, they are not standing firm. Faith alone in Christ alone is the complete means of salvation; and those who do not understand this always have a security problem. The Corinthians need to understand this. There is a lesson here which fulfills a gap in their doctrinal thinking. Without this doctrine, there is no Christianity. It is important that they understand the reality of this doctrine. The way they are thinking, they cannot advance. You have to have confidence in your salvation in order to advance. You cannot continually loop back and try to keep your salvation or question your salvation. Salvation is no longer an issue for the Corinthians.

You must have confidence. This is a doctrine which clears the way. Growing in the spiritual life is difficult at best without eternal security firmly established in your thinking. "I have sinned in a way that I know God hates. All these terrible deeds and these horrid mental attitude sins” God letting us into heaven has nothing to do with us. He did it all, and when we accept the gospel, we stand, perfect tense, in Him.

If there is no salvation and no resurrection body, then we might as well eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die. Paul will give these believers the greatest security that life has to offer. You think that free healthcare is security? It is not. 1Cor. 15 is our security.

1Cor. 15:1 Now I am progressively making known to you folks, brothers, the good news (the message of ease and wellness) which I, myself, announced as glad tidings for you (to you), which you also accepted and embraced, within which and in union with which you also stand, δια + the relative pronoun ὅς. Then the verb σωζω the present passive indicative. Present here refers to persistent action. The passive voice means that we receive the persistent action of salvation. Indicative mood refers to the reality of the action of the verb.

Now, does this salvation only continue if you hold fast to the gospel? That could be disturbing. Does v. 2 undercut the whole doctrine of eternal security? Can you lose your salvation because you are not persistent in holding fast to the gospel. Let’s say, you, on occasion, deny the gospel; can you lose your salvation because you have not held fast to the gospel?

There is an entire group of Christians who believe that you are saved only if you make Jesus Lord of all. If you do not do that, then you were never saved in the first place. Maybe it never really took; so then you have to really prove that you are saved. There are innumerable Christians who think just like that. That is salvation by works.

Salvation is conditioned on your perseverance. If you do not hold fast, you have failed to consummate the work of Christ. For the Lordship salvation crowd, this lack of perseverance means that this person was never really born-again in the first place. For them, reversionism is really loss of salvation or an indication that you were never saved.

Reversionism simply means you revert back to your old ways prior to salvation. In their view, a person who is really saved would never do that. One truly saved will persevere; they will not be in reversionism; they will always come back.

If you deny or recant or drift away, then you are not saved; no real Christian would do that; to their way of thinking. Salvation is, to them, all about perseverance, holding fast, the way by which you are saved.

The salvation of these Corinthians seems to be conditioned on their holding fast. Is that what this means?

Regeneration and eternal life are permanently secured by one act of faith alone in Christ alone. Your continued faithfulness is not your salvation. There is no work of man in persevering. Jesus Christ on the cross mediates our salvation. We stand with results that go on forever.

We have to remember v. 1 so that we do not become confused by v. 2. Eternal life is secured by faith in Christ. There is one point of grammar, which is the 1st class conditional clause. If the reality you hold fast the Word is the reality; that is the 1st class condition. If they persevere, they are saved. This is a conditional clause viewed from the viewpoint of reality. The condition means that they have a choice as to whether or not they will hold fast.

After salvation, we have that choice of holding fast. We are not looking to advance our eternal life; that is a completed fact. Salvation has taken place, so this must be a different understanding of σωζω. V. 1 is what you already have; v. 2 is what you must attain. There is a process of persevering in the course of your life. That is what being saved means.

Paul used the present tense of this verb, but with the passive voice. Paul can use the passive and this would not confuse anyone who understands Greek. This has a meaning to those who read this. The present passive marks a persistent action directed toward us. This is initiated through faith in Christ. This is the accomplished fact of salvation. The persistent action of being saved directed toward someone who is already regenerated.

1Cor. 15:1–2 I want to make quite clear to you, brothers, what the message of the gospel that I preached to you is; you accepted it and took your stand on it, and you are saved by it, if you keep to the message I preached to you; otherwise your coming to believe was in vain.

There is a process after salvation, and this is indicated by σωζω in the present passive indicative. Σωζω is progressive. This is directed toward believers who stand, perfect tense.

In the old vernacular, to make holy. This is true by position, but it sounds very religious. You stand in holiness, and in God's eyes, you stand holy; but are you righteous? Of course not. There is a process of sanctification as a believer.

Persevere in the word is what is meant here; we are to grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. Every time we walk into the church, we are fulfilling this; we are being saved. That is the 2nd concept of salvation.

1Cor. 15:2 through which you folks are also progressively being saved, delivered, and made whole (saved, preserved and restored to your original state and condition), by (in) which Word (expressed message) I, myself, announced the glad tidings for you (to you) – since you are continuously keeping [it] in possession and retaining [it], outside of this exception: you placed your trust randomly and believed without a purpose!

In v. 1, you believe in Jesus Christ, and you are saved. Acts 16:31 is accepting the act which brings you to salvation, if you have believed. The believer, the one who has accepted the gospel, has a standing from the hearing and from the accepting. Once saved, always saved. That is eternal security. You have eternal security from accepting the gospel.

Once the saving work has been accepted, one has eternal security. Every believer is regenerated; born-again, united with Jesus Christ, and all that means; and is sealed by God the Holy Spirit. The believer acquires all the rest of the 40 things which are acquired via faith alone in Christ alone. That is the unassailable position in Christ in which every believer stands.

Then we get to v. 2, and there seems to be a contradiction. Hearing, accepting and standing; and then, ...by which you are also saved... This seems to indicate that holding fast to the Word is what keeps you saved.

The key is found in the tense and the meaning of the verb.  $\sigma\acute{\omega}\zeta\omega$  = to be saved; to be delivered. There is a persistent action of the process of salvation. They are continually receiving the action of the verb. ...by which you are being saved... Is salvation what  $\sigma\acute{\omega}\zeta\omega$  actually means.

The first phrase of v. 2 begins with the preposition  $\delta\acute{\iota}\alpha$  and the relative pronoun  $\acute{\omicron}\varsigma$ , ...through which you are being saved....

The Grammar of vv. 1–2

1. Through which you are being saved...
2. The antecedent in all relative clauses refers to the gospel.
3. The first relative clause refers back to the gospel, which I preached to you; the gospel which you accepted, the gospel is which also you stand; the gospel by which you are being saved
- 4.
5. All 4 of these relative clauses are a sequence of actions, and all in relation to the gospel.
6. So you stand by hearing and going in this sequence.
7. Then it says, the gospel by which you are being saved...

A Sequence of Actions

1. You hear, you accept and then you stand in that rebirth forever.
2. So you stand is predicated on hearing and accepting.
- 3.
4. V. 1 is the sequence by which we arrive at salvation.
5. We therefore stand in the status of eternal salvation.

6. Then, in v. 2, σώζω refers to the persistent action of being saved, directed toward one who has believed; one who stands in the gospel; one who is regenerated.
7. The important thing to notice is, this person who is standing is already a believer, saved and has eternal life. You must understand that in order to understand v. 2. We have to admit, the first clause in v. 2 has a continuing process of salvation for the believer. There is a process for the regenerate person who already has eternal security. The believer is saved and has an eternal place in Christ. Any process which must come to a completion, you must persevere in it. If this process is to be completed, you must hold fast; you must persevere. You are being saved if you hold fast the Word I preached to you. This cannot refer to regeneration. Regeneration and justification are statuses; not processes. You need a moment of faith in Christ for salvation. The believer cannot lose his position in Christ from that. We can be and do almost anything at that point. However, this does not take into account just doing anything.

There are those who say, you must hold fast or you are not really saved or you will lose your salvation. There is obviously a connection here to salvation. In v. 2, σώζω is a process of holding fast or persevering.

Σώζω

1. Σώζω means sanctification. Justification is being made holy. It is a status of absolute righteousness. We will distinguish between holy and holy.
2. Being made holy is the impu of God's righteousness.
3. You stand in His righteousness.
4. We are positionally saved or sanctified as a result of justification; as a result of being made holy.
5. There are 40 assets, 39 which are irrevocable. We are positionally saved and sanctified at salvation.
6. However, σώζω here is a process. Therefore, it cannot be positional sanctification. That is a status and this is a process.
7. Σώζω can only refer here to experiential sanctification.
8. Experiential sanctification is a process of spiritual growth.
9. It is the process. V. 2 is the process of growing to maturity.
10. You are being saved, which means we are becoming increasingly sanctified. The more you advance in the spiritual life, the less time you spend in carnality.
11. You are already justified which is the complete sanctified position. You are completely sanctified before God. He views us as holy.
12. V. 2 is progressive sanctification.
13. In other words, we are being experientially sanctified as we persevere in spiritual growth. That is why it is incumbent upon every believer to grow spirituality.

Specifically, the doctrine of resurrection is a part of all this. Resurrection is a critical doctrine for experiential sanctification. The specific doctrine Paul is referring to is resurrection. We will understand as this chapter unfolds.

...you are being saved unless you have believed in vain.

Why is this true?

1. This is no more important doctrine than... The resurrection focuses on our eternal future. Your eternal future becomes a fundamental part of your confidence and spiritual growth. You have a future, but you need to be confident in that future. When you lie on your deathbed, the one thing you can be assured of, you will have eternal life and you will stand face to face with Jesus Christ. This provides us the greatest confidence. This brings the growth and process of experiential sanctification. How can you advance without any confidence. It is not a very good starting point.
2. You cannot be experientially sound if you reject a primary doctrine upon which the faith hinges. It is a fundamental doctrine. It is related directly to salvation. If you do not believe in the resurrection, your faith is in vain. On the 3rd day, Jesus Christ's dead body was raised from the dead and His soul and spirit became reunited with His body.
3. If this doctrine is not metabolized, then your spiritual growth is hindered. If that is the case, you have believed to no purpose. You have believed to no effect. Gal. 3:4 4:11 vain means your faith is ineffective. You cannot regress in experiential sanctification. It is not ineffective for eternal life but ineffective for spiritual growth.

Principle

1. When a believer rejects this fundamental doctrine, this portion of the gospel, (defined in vv. 3–4), his faith is rendered ineffective.
2. He cannot advance without this.
3. There is no experiential sanctification. Saved yes; progressing, no.
4. This is what Paul calls the kos on a number of occasions. Babies, napios. Paul could not speak to them as advancing believers. They have not even metabolized the doctrine of a bodily resurrection. They are babies; they are not advancing one little bit.
5. They believe in Jesus Christ, but they have rejected a doctrine which is fundamental; a foundation doctrine which provides them security of the spiritual life and the ability to advance in the spiritual life. The purpose of their faith has been removed by bodily resurrection disbelief. This is a wonderful, convincing, solid understanding of what we have. The Corinthians are the worst of the worst. You have eternal life and you must be bodily resurrected whether you believe it or not. Part of the temporal benefit of their salvation is eliminated because they do not believe in bodily resurrection.

They do not believe in the bodily resurrection, but they could not have eternal life apart from having a resurrection body. If Christ is not raised, then they have no salvation. Their faith is ineffective and they have no prototype spiritual life. What spiritual life can they expect if Jesus Christ was not raised from the dead.

Here are the stakes: "You are saved and you got it. Now, you must move ahead spiritually, and that requires you to believe in the resurrection.

This means, there are some principles which are spiritual which are absolutely important to your spiritual growth.

There is also the key here of believing Christian doctrine and not holding on to false gnosticism.

Paul has given the panorama, and now he tells them, this is what the gospel is.

1Cor. 15:2 through which you folks are also progressively being saved, delivered, and made whole (saved, preserved and restored to your original state and condition), by (in) which Word (expressed message) I, myself, announced the glad tidings for you (to you) – since you are continuously keeping [it] in possession and retaining [it], outside of this exception: you placed your trust randomly and believed without a purpose!

The boundaries are given in vv. 3–4:

1Cor. 15:3 For I handed on (or: give over) to you, among [the] first things, that which I also accepted and embraced: that Christ died over our failures (on behalf of our mistakes and sins) – corresponding to the Scriptures –

1Cor. 15:4 and that He was buried, and that He has been, and remains, awakened and raised in (on) the third day – corresponding to the Scriptures

v. 3 has a parallel back to v. 1.

Paul reviews the deliverance in its entirety; it takes the occurrence as a single event, even though it is extended over a period of time. One event, but it is extended over a period of time.

Paul taught the gospel; he did not just say it; he taught it. That will be important. Παραδίδομι. Preaching denotes simply hearing. However παραδίδομι indicates that it was delivered and they received it. He taught the content of preaching; he preached in v. 1 and the content was delivered over an extended period of time. He taught it so that it was inculcated.

It just takes a moment of salvation. However, the entire gospel was delivered to them, which was given to them in many ways and all of its diverse dimensions. Paul taught them the complete realm of the gospel

Paul, in vv. 3–4, will tell them everything which he delivered to them. Tongues was to deliver the gospel to the unbeliever. Paul hammered them with soteriological doctrine. However, they did not get it. They got part of it; they did not get the other part.

1Cor. 15:3 For I handed on (or: give over) to you, among [the] first things, that which I also accepted and embraced: that Christ died over our failures (on behalf of our mistakes and sins) – corresponding to the Scriptures –

Lesson #1015

1Cor. 15:3–4 January 21, 2010

Thursday

A lot of grammar, syntax and etymology. The Bible is divinely inspired in the Greek, not in the English.

The full scope of the gospel is given by 1Cor. 15:3–4 For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received: that Christ died for our sins in accordance with the Scriptures, that He was buried, that He was raised on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures,...

People who are ignorant of Christianity say, “Christianity did not begin until 2000 years ago, and it is certainly not the oldest religion” which simply indicates that they do not know. Christianity began at the very beginning. The Old Testament all looked forward until the Messiah came.

The gospel is Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried and was raised again on the 3rd day in accordance with the Scriptures. Faith in the Person and the work of Jesus Christ. That is the gospel of salvation; He died for us. Faith in His person and work is what brings regeneration. Once we are born-again, we cannot be unborn. We are children of God.

It is His work alone. V. 4 is just as much a part of the gospel as is v. 3. The Corinthians are now having doubts concerning the extent of the gospel. Paul not only proclaimed the message to them, but he also delivered it to them.

Παραδίδομι means to deliver. Bobby sees Paul as stopping for a moment and deciding, what verb should I use? What fits here accurately? Paul wrote it; it came from his mind.

Why did Paul use the aorist and not the perfect or present? Here he uses the aorist active indicative. This is the constative aorist. Paul views this action of delivering as one whole event. He sees this whole event as being extended over a period of time. This means that Paul preached the gospel while he was face to face with these Corinthians. He spent 18 months teaching them.

What is found in these 2 verses is the cross and the resurrection. This is what Paul delivered to them. Faith alone in Christ alone is the gospel which gives us eternal life. That is the content that we need. But v. 4 goes on to talk about the resurrection. He rose up after 3 days in the grave. He became a whole person again with a body, soul and spirit.

Now, do we have to believe that as well? No. But Paul is making this a part of the gospel. V. 14: And if Christ has not been raised, then our preaching is in vain and your faith is in vain [worthless, meaningless].... There is no salvation apart from the resurrection. Without the resurrection, faith is effective for nothing. His resurrection is the guarantee of eternal life. Our faith is worthless if there is no resurrection.

Paul chose the word παραδιδιμι because it is a more comprehensive word. This connotes inculcation and repetition. He hammered them with it. This was not a one-shot deal. Paul did not give an invitation and then left town. He made the gospel clear and he repeated it, frequently. Without a doubt, the Corinthians heard what was proclaimed in v. 1, the content of which is in vv. 3–4.

In v. 1, Paul used ευαγγελιον. In v. 3, Paul intended to give the depth and the breadth of the gospel. The Corinthians understood this.

Paul views the event of accepting the gospel as a whole event, but he views it from the viewpoint of existing results (the culminative aorist). Paul makes it clear. Paul accepted it in the same way that the Corinthians did. The gospel was not a second-hand acceptance. He accepted the gospel through a direct revelation.

Paul did not invent what he is communicating to them. Paul got the gospel straight from the source; from the source. Paul did not have 2nd hand sources from other documents. Bobby will look at other ideas and he will look at notes that Bob had on the same passage. Paul did not have a person to get 2nd hand documents from. His knowledge came directly from the ultimate source. Whenever Paul wrote the gospel, we know that he got it straight.

Paul could speak with confidence, because this came from Jesus Christ. Paul summed up the gospel in a quick phrase.

Paul is writing several years after going to the Corinthian church. Bobby would love to hear Paul expound on Christ dying for our sins. It is that simple.

What happened? Paul first used the aorist active indicative of αποθνησκω, which means to die. When this verb is used in relation to Christ, it refers to His atoning death. What Christ died for is our sins. Υπερ αμαρτια here was Paul who was probably a mass murderer, who committed Christian genocide. Do not ever think that you have sinned more than what Christ died for. Paul was a sinner of sinners. Huper here means in place of, instead of. This is a substitutionary meaning this also indicates the cause or the reason for His death. For the sake of is also the meaning of this preposition.

Rom. 5:8 carries the same phraseology. God loved us impersonally and He demonstrated this impersonal love toward us.

1Cor. 15:3 For I handed on (or: give over) to you, among [the] first things, that which I also accepted and embraced: that Christ died over our failures (on behalf of our mistakes and sins) – corresponding to the Scriptures –

1Cor. 15:4 and that He was buried, and that He has been, and remains, awakened and raised in (on) the third day – corresponding to the Scriptures

Lesson #1016

1Cor. 15:3–4 January 24, 2010

Sunday 1

the basic understanding of the gospel, Christ died for our sins in v. 3. However, we are told in v. 4 that He was raised on the 3rd day.

Faith alone in Christ alone is the means of our salvation. Why would Paul include the resurrection as a part of the gospel? Isn't the cross enough? Is the resurrection a necessary facet of salvation? The resurrection is a part of the gospel, the not necessary to believe in order to be saved. Without the resurrection, the cross is futile.

If Christ has not been raised, then our preaching is in vain. They are worthless words; a faithless message. Without the resurrection, a person could express faith alone in Christ alone, and he would not be saved; because his faith is in a dead god; idols are dead. If Christ is not raised, then we are worshiping an idol. We might as well worship a figuring on a dashboard. The cross is effective for regeneration.

The resurrection is necessary, but it is not necessary for us to know and believe in. This is easy to logically explain; the Corinthians were saved, as Paul called them sanctified; but some of them did not believe in the resurrection.

Whether we believe in the bodily resurrection or not does not determine our salvation; but without the resurrection, there is no salvation; the atonement has no value.

The pharisees spread the false rumor that there was no resurrection; but that the disciples moved the stone aside and stole the Lord's body. The pharisee's purpose in these lies was to undercut the Lord's gospel.

Paul begins in v. 3 by saying this is the first gospel which he himself accepted.

Paul was on the road to Damascus and he was going to kill some Christians in Damascus, and he was doing quite well until a blinding light knocked him off his horse. Paul got the message directly. Gal. 1:12 I neither received it from man nor was I taught it, but I received it as direct revelation from Jesus Christ.

Jesus Christ was separated from God during the cross. He died because of our sins. We cannot face substitutionary spiritual death, which was a unique event in history. God demonstrates His own love in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Men have died to keep others alive for a period of time, like falling on a grenade. Jesus Christ died for all of us; this was unique. He atoned for our sins by His spiritual death.

Atonement

What does this word mean? How does it work?

1. The word atonement in the Hebrew appears in the Old Testament. It refers to the use of animal sacrifices. In the Old Testament, those who owned lambs. They would bring a lamb for an offering, it was an illustration of the saving work of Christ on the cross. The Levitical priest prepared it and put the lamb on the alter, took a knife and slashed its throat, and they stood there with its blood poured out on the altar. The blood which came out of the throat of this animal was the literal blood of this animal. That is the illustration. It was sacrificed for the sin of the offerer. These sins were then atoned for by the death of the animal. The animal blood as it poured from that lamb represented the blood of Christ. Just as the lamb died as a substitute offering, so Jesus Christ died as our substitute on the cross.
2. Atonement in the New Testament refers specifically to the saving work of Jesus Christ and includes some very important soteriological doctrines.
3. Because the work of Christ on the cross was efficacious for all mankind, and He died for all sins, this is called unlimited atonement. This rendered all men and women save-able.

1Cor. 15:3 For I handed on (or: give over) to you, among [the] first things, that which I also accepted and embraced: that Christ died over our failures (on behalf of our mistakes and sins) – corresponding to the Scriptures –

1Cor. 15:4 and that He was buried, and that He has been, and remains, awakened and raised in (on) the third day – corresponding to the Scriptures

Lesson #1017 2Cor. 5:19 1Tim. 2:6 1John 2:2 January 24, 2010 Sunday 2

Paul knew writing Christ died for our sins as being one of the greatest statements ever written.

An entire semester was spent on the Atonement at Bobby's seminary. This is something which Bobby could spend weeks on.

The atonement was a sacrifice illustrated by a lamb or another animal which was slaughtered on behalf of the offerer; for the sinner. They gave the animal to the priest and the animal killed this animal. This was the lamb atoning for the sins of the offerer. The New Testament speaks of the body of Christ. This is substitutionary spiritual atonement. The atonement was carried out because a sacrifice was necessary. Mankind was unable to overcome sin on his own. We are all sinners. We are trapped in sin; we have no way out. This is elaborated upon by The Slave Market of Sin. We have no hope of any relationship with God, because we are born without righteousness. The best we can muster up is a relative righteousness. Even the best of us has relative righteousness. That is not good enough for God. You can see why we are trapped. We cannot be good enough to gain the favor of God. Man cannot meet the standards of God's perfect righteousness. No matter how many works we do; no matter how hard we try, it is impossible to reach God with our works. Legalism; be good; God will have to accept you.

If this was true, then there would be no reason for Jesus Christ. In the mind of God, everything always is. Thoughts do not suddenly appear in God's head; because He always knows all things simultaneously. God knew us before we were born; that is the magnitude of the omniscience of God.

As God contemplated our life, His love was present. He was motivated to something about our hopeless condition. Jesus Christ always was divine. There always was a 2nd person in the Trinity. The Word was with God and the Word was God. Jesus Christ is not just omnipresent; he is also continuing humanity sitting at the right hand of the Father.

One day, we will understand what it means for an omnipresent God to be confined to a point in time.

In grace, the Father sent His Son to meet the demands of His perfect righteousness. We are unworthy of everything. The grace of God gives us everything. Jesus Christ was the Lamb without spot and without blemish. 1Peter 1:19. It was true then and it is true now. He was the Lamb of God Who takes away the sins of the world. God the Father provided a substitute for us; He fulfilled the prerequisites. Because of our sins, God's justice and His righteousness was offended. He was revolted by our sins. The demands of His righteousness and justice that we be condemned, every single one of us. The wrath of God toward man and sin had to be propitiated; satisfied. God did something for us so that we did not have to be punished.

Some object, how can you send Your creatures to an eternal fire? This is an eternal Lake of Fire where they will burn forever. Satan presents this argument. But God is also just and he is righteous. If someone says, "God is love and He will accept me" then ask, "What about His righteousness? What about His justice?" We need to have God's wrath understood.

We cannot total up our previous sins and we have no idea how many we will commit in the future; but Jesus Christ died for our sins, taking upon Himself all of our sins.

Atonement* properly refers to a covering, and it was a temporary measure; the sins of the Old Testament were covered in time, prior to the death of Jesus Christ on the cross. Properly, this word occurs only in the Old Testament and not at all in the New Testament.

God can have nothing to do with sin. He had to turn His back on His Son. Christ died as a substitute for us. This is what He did on our behalf; for our sake. When God judged His Son, that precluded God the Father from judging us. Christ paid the penalty for our sins. Man was to no longer be judged for sin. Substitutionary spiritual death. The idea that this blood was collected in a bowl and taken to heaven and, ostensibly showed to God, is a pathetic idea.

Covenant Theology does not believe that Christ died for all mankind; they believe He died only for the elect; He only took on the sins of the elect.

1John 2:2 He Himself is the propitiation for our sins; and not for our sins only, but for the sins of the whole world. The whole world got their sins paid for. It is fascinating how covenant theology explains away that passage.

There is nothing for us to do; Christ did it all. We were born into this world in a hopeless state. Jesus Christ did more for us. There was an impossible distance between God and us at birth; it could not be bridged or scaled.

The doctrine of reconciliation. He reconciled us with God. All of the hostility; all the enmity of the barrier which alienated God from man, was changed in 3 hours to peace. No peace treaty in the history of mankind took such a short time. The wall between man and God came down.

2Cor. 5:19 God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself, not counting their trespasses against them.

Christ reconciled all of us because our sins are no longer counted against us.

How many times have you heard liberal theologians say, "We are all God's children"? Not without the atonement, we're not.

A slave cannot escape slavery. If we are born into slavery, we have no way of getting out of it. A slave has no rights or privileges. Someone who is already free must liberate you. Only a free man can liberate a man born into slavery. The only person born into this world outside of the slave market of sin is Jesus Christ. He bought our freedom for us. He purchased it. The cross was the cost. Christ purchased the freedom which we have.

1Tim. 2:6 ...the One giving Himself a correspondent ransom (a ransom in the place of and directed toward the situation) over (for) all (everyone; as a masc.: all men; as a neut: all things) - the witness (testimony; omitted by A) [will come] in its own fitting situations (or: the Witness for their own seasons; Testimony to His own particular times)...

We are pronounced righteous and acceptable before God. The barrier is scaled; the slave to sin is freed. We are now acceptable because we have His righteousness.
