1972 Hebrews 1:1–2a Luke 21:20–24

Lesson #1

04/28/1972 5 views/authorship; purpose of Hebrews; outline chapter; doctrine of the Prophets of the Old Testament; doctrine of Heirship

Chapter 1

By way of introduction, one of the big questions has to do with the human author of the book of Hebrews. There are about five different views on who is the human author of Hebrews.

Authorship of Hebrews

The first view is that Luke wrote Hebrews, and this was held by Origen, one of the early church fathers, Calvin, Deilitch, and many others. The reason for this is because the Greek of the book of Hebrews is very polished. In some cases it is almost classical Greek. It is most interesting that the epistle that has the most information by way of Jewish background should also be the purest type of Greek. However there is way too much Jewish background in this epistle for it to be written by a Gentile, and Luke was a Gentile.

The second view is that Clement of Rome wrote Hebrews, and this is held by Eusebius, Erasmus. At one time Origen said that it had Paul's thoughts but Clement of Rome or Luke wrote it. Again, there is too much Jewish background for Clement of Rome.

The third view of the early church fathers was that Barnabas was the human author, and this is supported by Tertullian, and Godet. Barnabas was a Levite with a good Jewish background. He was also the mediator between Paul and Jewish Christians. But a well-known person like Barnabas would not be obscured in this. However, even today

Authorship of Hebrews

Barnabas is considered by scholars to be the leading contender.

A fourth view, one held by Martin Luther, was that Apollos wrote Hebrews. As a Jew from Alexandria and well-versed in the Old Testament he is obviously a contender. However, no ancient tradition or testimony exists in that direction.

The fifth view, which was held by Clement of Alexandria, the Chester Beatty papyri, Athanasius, Jerome, Augustine and others was that Paul wrote it. It is not like Paul, however, to omit his name and the style of Hebrews is too smooth, too literary a Greek for Paul. Paul only wrote in an elliptical style and a very rough style. Paul would quote the Old Testament also from the Hebrew text and whoever wrote Hebrews did not quote Old Testament passages from the Hebrew text, but quoted from the Greek text — from the Septuagint. Obviously there are Pauline ideas here but this is not the Pauline vocabulary.

The conclusion, then, is that the writer is anonymous. As Origen, one of the early church fathers summarized, “God only knows certainly who wrote Hebrews.” That brings us to the fact that it is not the man but it is the message, and whoever wrote Hebrews was deliberately obscured by God the Holy Spirit. The reasons will be obvious when we study it.

The epistle was written in 67 AD, three years before the fall of Jerusalem and the fifth cycle of discipline’s administration. This was the last warning of the coming of the fifth cycle of discipline to the Jews. The first warning came from the Lord Jesus Christ when he prophesied of it in Luke 21:20–24.

The Lord Jesus Christ in the previous context had been warning born again Jews to get out of Jerusalem, to stay away from Jerusalem, during the time of the fulfilment of this prophecy. He said in verse 17, “Ye shall be hated of all men for my name’s sake, but there shall not a hair of your head perish” — and then a very interesting verse, “In your patience possess ye your souls”. You possess your soul by the use of the faith-rest technique.

Luke 21:20 — “And when ye shall see,” the aorist active subjunctive of horaō (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh], indicating that some will see it and some will not. Jesus prophesied in 30 AD and these things would occur in 70 AD The aorist tense refers to the point of time when the Roman armies would invade Judea, which is actually 66 AD The active voice: some believers will see this event. The subjunctive mood: not all believers will see these things, many will die before 70 AD — “Jerusalem compassed,” the present passive participle of kyklōō (κυκλώω) [pronounced koo-KLOW-oh], which means to be surrounded and invested for siege, to be encircled. The present passive voice: they receive encirclement by the armies — “with armies” — the word “with” is u(po, ‘under the authority of armies’, and it is a reference to the Roman army. In fact it refers to the fifth, tenth, and twelfth legions. Three legions were used by Vespasian in surrounding Jerusalem.

In 145 BC the Jews won their independence. They lost it in some measure by 63 BC due to the fact that Pompey invaded the land of Judea and took over for a while. From 63 — 40 BC Herod the Great, however, stood as the ruler of the area. When Herod died in 4 B. C. the country went over to Rome as a Roman province, but it still had a lot of autonomy. This lasted until 66 AD at which time the Romans began to crack down on a revolt and by 70 AD the country lost out completely. It was Nero who was especially interested in trying to destroy and crush the Jews, and before this could happen he died, stabbing himself to death, and as he did he said, “What a pity that such a great artist should die.” He was neither great nor an artist, he was a monster. Vespasian who could not stand Nero had been banished. Nero had been in Greece competing in the Greek music festival. He always won! He played the flute and sang, and Vespasian would put his hands over his ears — he was a general who went along in the staff — and when Nero saw this he said, “That man is ruining my performance, let’s find something for him to do.” He was told the Jewish war was just beginning and Vespasian was sent to command. In that way Vespasian became the next Caesar.

The armies here refer to the Roman army — “then know that the desolation is near.” “Then know” is the aorist active imperative of ginskô (βινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh]. Ginskô (βινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh] means you will know by observing it then. This is a constative aorist for this will be observed for a few months before the siege culminates. The word “desolation” is really “devastation”, complete destruction. “Is near” is the perfect active indicative of eggizô (ἐγγίζω) [pronounced eng-ID-zoh], which means “has come to pass with the result that it is there.” There is no change in it. The only thing believers can do is get out.

Verse 21 — “Then let them in Judea flee,” present active imperative of fugw which means get out and get out now. Don’t waste any time, don’t look back, don’t think about it, just get away. Robertson said that Christians did flee from Jerusalem to a place called Pella before it was too late — Vol. 2, p259 of Robertson’s Grammar.

“let them flee to the mountains” — this is Edom. Moab and Ammon even as it will be in the Tribulation. These are mountains in southern Palestine — “and let them who are in the midst of it [Jerusalem] depart” — ‘depart’ is a present active participle of e)kxorew and it doesn’t mean to depart out, it means to get out without picking anything up along the way — “and let them not [these are believers] enter therein” — do not enter back into Jerusalem for any reason at any time.

Verse 22 — “These be the days of vengeance” — a reference to the fifth cycle of discipline as portrayed in Leviticus 26:27-46, and in Deuteronomy 28:49-67 — “which have been written” — perfect passive participle of graphô (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh]: written in Leviticus and in Deuteronomy. The perfect tense indicates the Old Testament; the passive voice means they were prophesied; the participle indicates the fifth cycle of discipline is a principle — “may be fulfilled” — the aorist passive infinitive of plhrow which in this case means “completed” — the completion of the plan of God. The aorist tense refers to the siege of Jerusalem. The passive voice: the Jews receive the fifth cycle of discipline. The infinitive is God’s purpose to handle the Jews in this way.

Verse 23 — it is no time to have children, to have babies that can't walk — “For there shall be great distress in the land” — hunger and famine. “In the land” is ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] which usually means “upon” but there is a use of it where it means “against” — “there shall be great pressure against the land.” Then the pressure is described as being punitive measures from God — “and wrath upon this people [the Jews].”

Verse 24 — “They shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations” — 92,000 were led captive; about 2-million killed — “and Jerusalem shall be trodden down by the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles is fulfilled.” The times of the Gentiles will end with the second advent.

This was the warning of our Lord; Hebrews is actually the second warning. We know from Hebrews 6:6 that the temple was still standing and this had not occurred as yet.

The recipients of Hebrews: This is addressed to Jewish believers living in Jerusalem three years before the administration of the fifth cycle of discipline. The Jews have exactly three years to build an edification complex in the soul and get out before the Romans get there.

The Purpose of the Epistle

1. To warn believers regarding reversionism and to aid them in recovery of an ECS, and to provide doctrine to aid them in the recovery of the ECS. At that time in history it was imperative that they recover the ECS because if you do not recover one in a time of crisis you forfeit your life as well and the administration of the sin unto death is concurrent with the administration of national judgement. So there are certain times in history when you can't afford to be in reversionism because you get caught in the trap.
2. To deliver believers in Jerusalem from the catastrophe of the fifth cycle of discipline.
3. To clarify the issues of the angelic conflict. The believers in Jerusalem are going to see a great deal of conflict but they are only in a double conflict — a conflict with the Romans, but greater than that is the angelic conflict and the believer's relationship to this great spiritual warfare. Believers are engaged in a spiritual warfare from the time they are saved. Even in time of peace you are in warfare.
4. To lead believers to maturity through the erection of the ECS. The priesthood of the believer is supplied to every Christian at the point of salvation to hasten his movement toward maturity. You cannot dilly-dally along the way in phase two, you must become a mature believer quickly and rapidly. This involves the function of GAP in specific fields of doctrine taught in this epistle.
5. To reveal the glory of the person of Jesus Christ and stimulate while on earth occupation with Christ, or maximum category one love response.
6. To orient the believer to grace principles of the universal priesthood of the believer. The universal priesthood of the believer is the spring from which rivers and fountains and lakes and oceans of grace orientation stem. God has found a way to work for you during the Church Age. This is the intensified stage of the angelic conflict and God has found a way to work for you by providing for you a system.

7. To distinguish between the Jewish dispensation and the Church Age, and the reality of your priesthood and its function is never possible until you become a dispensationalist, recognising the difference between the Church Age and the Age of Israel.
8. To relate the priesthood of the believer to every facet of phase two.

The Outline of Chapter One

1. Jesus Christ as the victor of the angelic conflict — verses 1-4.
2. The Old Testament documentation regarding the superiority of Christ to angels — verses 5-13.
3. The result of the superiority of Christ to angels through the priesthood — verse 14.

Verses 1-4, Jesus Christ the victor in the angelic conflict. It took a lot of things to make Christ the victor. First of all it took the authorization of God the Father.

Hebrews 1:1 Long ago, at many times and in many ways, God spoke to our fathers by the prophets,... (ESV)

Verse 1 — “God” — ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] is literally, “The God.” This epistle begins with the highest and greatest subject in the universe — “The God.” There is no way that man can be the victor in the angelic conflict apart from the plan of God, the decree of God, the authorization of God. We are going to start with Jesus Christ as God, and yet Jesus Christ becomes a man, lower than angels. And yet as a man and as a member of the human race we have the key to the victory. It took a lot of planning to take Jesus Christ, eternal God, coequal with the Father and with the Spirit, and suddenly cause Him to become a member of the human race, the human race being lower than the angelic race. It took a lot of planning for the one who is lower than the angels to become higher than the angels. It is very simply and very easily stated several times in this chapter but there is nothing easy or simple about the plan behind it. And in order to understand the plan you have to understand the planner. It is to our advantage to know how in the great spiritual conflict, how in the angelic conflict. God the Father actually came up with a plan whereby the angels get their comeuppance from a lower creature. Jesus Christ could have slugged Satan and wiped out all of the angels in eternity past before man was created. But you have to remember that God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit all share this magnificent thing called a sense of humour, and the devil who in all of his pride and in all of his genius came up with what he thought was a sure way of getting out of the lake of fire and getting all of the fallen angels off the hook. All God had to do was snap His fingers and the lake of fire would have existed, and all of the fallen angels would have dropped into the lake of fire immediately. But then that is no contest. The omnipotence of God versus the power of Satan is no contest. Satan hasn’t a chance. And so God in His magnificent sense of humour came up with a brilliant, beautiful idea: Why not create something lower than angels, something inferior to angels, and through that lower and inferior creation whip all the angels; totally defeat them, and have one man who will do it. So we are going to go in this particular paragraph of two and a half verses from Jesus Christ, eternal God, made lower than angels, to Jesus Christ the last Adam, the one who in His humanity completely broke the back of the angels and of Satan in the angelic conflict.

But we have to start with, What is God like? Who and what is God? Why could God come up with this marvelous plan? So first of all let us notice that there are two concepts of God in the scripture: the essence of God and the person of God. In essence God is one. He is sovereignty, absolute righteousness, justice, love, eternal life, omnipotence, omniscience, omnipresence, immutability and veracity. Veracity especially will come into the faith-rest picture. Faith-rest has as its object Jesus Christ as the God-Man, and the veracity of Jesus Christ in that certain promises are made, and the thinking of Jesus Christ where the doctrine is. So the promises come from the veracity of Christ, the doctrine comes from the omnipotence of Christ, and the whole person is responsible for providing objects for faith in phase two. In essence God is one, that is, the Father, the Son and the Spirit — all have the same essence. There are three separate and distinct persons who have this identical essence and each one has a part in the plan. The Father is the author of the plan; the Son executes the plan; the Holy Spirit gives power for the plan.

So we begin in the English, though not in the Greek, with the words, “The God.” Actually, “the God” comes at the end of three interesting adverbs. The Greek starts out by saying, Polumerōs (πολυμερῶς) [pronounced pol-oo-MEHR-ocē] kai polutrópōs (πολυτρόπως) [pronounced pol-oot-ROP-ocē] palai (πάλαι) [pronounced PAHL-ahēe] ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] theos (θεός) [pronounced thēh-OSS]. In other words, before we get to the name of God in this verse we have three adverbs. The first one is polumerōs (πολυμερῶς) [pronounced pol-oo-MEHR-ocē] which means “in many parts” .It is actually a reference to the Old Testament which is going to be used for documentation beginning in verse 5. In many parts of the Old Testament Jesus Christ is revealed. In many parts of the Old Testament we have the person who would eventually come in the flesh [incarnation] and would be the basis for breaking Satan’s back in the angelic conflict. Jesus Christ is going to come as the last Adam, but in the Old Testament He was not the last Adam, He did not come in the flesh. He was in Christophanies, he came in different manifestations. he came as an angel; He is the Angel of Jehovah. He came as the man who wrestled with Jacob. He came in many manifestations in many parts of the scripture. He is revealed from Genesis all of the way through to Malachi. Many parts of the scripture talk about Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is the subject of the Old Testament even as He is the subject of the New Testament. And while the New Testament uses Greek and therefore ‘Ihsouj Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOSS] kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], words which are Greek, He is also found by the word Jehovah, by the word El, by the word Elohim, by the word Adonai, and by many other words and designations. So the first adverb does not talk about God as a person, the first adverb talks about the Old Testament. God as a person is nebulous, abstruse, unknown to us, apart from revelation, and the entire first chapter of Hebrews is a very strong proof of the importance of the Old Testament. The Old Testament reveals Jesus Christ in many ways. The Old Testament reveals many wonderful things about Him. The principle of occupation with Christ existed just as much in the Old Testament as it does in the New. They did not have doctrines that we have, the whole realm of the Church Age doctrine was unknown to them, was actually blocked out to them. However, they had enough doctrine, enough information so that the same principle under which we operate — occupation with Christ — was very much available to them. The human race had to exist and continue to exist until the incarnation. The Jewish nation had to exist and there had to come out of the Jewish nation into the human race Jesus Christ as the God-Man, born not only a Jew but born King of the Jews, born not only royalty of the Jews but born as the one lower than the angels, who would break the back of Satan and who would totally defeat all angels in the angelic conflict. Therefore this verse in the Greek does not start with God, it starts with three adverbs, and the first adverb tells us that Jesus Christ is revealed in many parts of the Old Testament. So literally, “In many parts.”

The next phrase “in divers manners” is actually the second adverb, polutrōpōs (πολυτρόπως) [pronounced pol-oot-ROP-ocē] which means “in different ways.” Jesus Christ was revealed in different ways — theophanies, anthropomorphisms, types, tabernacles, the offerings, the holy days. All of the ways in which Christ was revealed are brought out by the second adverb. The first adverb, then, says in every part of the Old Testament from Genesis to Malachi Jesus Christ was revealed — in many parts of the Old Testament. Then the second adverb says in many way Jesus Christ was revealed. These many ways are going to be in contrast to the New Testament where Jesus Christ is revealed in one way.

Then there is a third adverb, palai (πάλαι) [pronounced PAHL-ahēē], which indicates we are talking about Old Testament times. Palai (πάλαι) [pronounced PAHL-ahēē] means “of old.” So we have, “In many parts and in many ways of old, the God.” “The God” is the subject. Why? “The God spake” — aorist active participle of laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh]. Laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] means to communicate. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb is at the beginning of verse 2 — “hath spoken.” “In many parts [of the Old Testament] and in different ways of old the God having spoken” — ingressive aorist tense, “he began to speak.” That isn’t all we have about Christ. When did God begin to speak about Jesus Christ? In the Old Testament. “Having begun to speak”, the aorist is ingressive, God just began to speak then about Christ. And there is a point: Ever since man has lived on the earth God has spoken about Jesus Christ. There are two things that man learned in the garden: who was his right woman and who and what Jesus Christ was. Jesus Christ was his teacher, and also there was a right woman there. The principle remained the same. From the time of the garden and innocence there never has been a time in any generation, in any age, among any group of people where Jesus Christ has not been known, and there never will be. Jesus Christ is the most important subject to the human race; He is the only celebrity for believers. Jesus Christ was the only celebrity in the garden. Once man fell, Jesus Christ was the only celebrity. The seed of the woman is the only Savior. Jesus Christ demands first place in the human race. Why? One of the reasons set forth by Hebrews: Jesus Christ lower than angels, defeated angels. And since the day that Jesus Christ ascended into the presence of the Father in His resurrection body, from that day right down to this moment, from now on, it is a matter of the enemy is defeated and we are in the mop-up stage, and will be until the second advent. The enemy is already defeated.

There are pockets of believers who do not know this in every generation, and these believers get into reversionism. It is possible to be winning a battle and to be defeated in certain parts of the battlefield. That has happened many times in history. It is possible to be on the winning side and still be losing in your corner of the battlefield. That is why reversionism is so bad.

Principle: Reversionism is incompatible with winning the angelic conflict. The devil counterattacks only where reversionism exists. Reversionism is also incompatible with the priesthood of the believer; it is incompatible with the grace of God; it is incompatible with everything that belongs to you since the day you were saved. The big problem in Jerusalem at the time of the writing of Hebrews was that about 95 per cent of the believers were reversionistic, and it was totally incompatible with the angelic conflict, with the priesthood of the believer.

Jesus Christ has always been revealed. “Having spoken unto the fathers” — “the fathers” is dative plural of advantage, patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR], refers to the national ancestors of the Jews, the Jews of Old Testament times — “by the prophets” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental plural of profthtj — “by means of the prophets.” The writers of the Old Testament were all prophets.

Hebrews 1:1 “In many parts [of the Old Testament] and in many different ways of old, the God, having communicated to the fathers by means of the prophets,...” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The Doctrine of the Prophets of the Old Testament

1. There are three categories of Old Testament prophets who wrote. a) Super prophet: Moses. His brother was the high priest — prophet and priest in the same family; b) The office of prophet; c) The gift of prophet. In addition to this there was another category of prophet, those who did not write, like Elijah and Elisha, and they functioned in the process of communicating God’s message to a specific generation.
2. The first section of the Hebrew Old Testament was written by the super prophet, Moses. It is called the Torah and includes the first five books of the Old Testament, and possibly Job as well. There are actually three super prophets in history: Moses, Jeremiah, and Jesus Christ.
3. The second section of the Old testament is called the Nebiim, and that means “the prophets.” The ones who wrote in this section, the human authors, held the prophetic office. They are divided into two groups: the former prophets — Joshua, whoever wrote Judges, Samuel, Kings; the latter prophets — Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the twelve (the so-called minor prophets).
4. The third section of the Hebrew canon is called Kethubim, which means “writings.” Those who were the human authors of this section had the gift of prophecy, not the office. There are three sections: first the prophetic books, Psalms, Proverbs and Job; the second section is called the Megilloth which means the five rolls: Song of Solomon, which was always read at the Passover, the book of Ruth, read at

Pentecost, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, given during Tabernacles, and Esther, given during the feast of Purim; the third section has three historical books. Daniel was not regarded as a prophecy but rather as a historical book, Ezra and Nehemiah was one book, Chronicles was one book. So we have Daniel, Nehemiah, Chronicles.

Hebrews 1:2 but in these last days he has spoken to us by his Son, whom he appointed the heir of all things, through whom also he created the world. (ESV)

Verse 2 — the New Testament revelation. “In these last days” begins with the word ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE]. ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] can mean different things. ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] with the genitive, with the ablative, means “upon” or “in,” but ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] with the accusative means “against” or “toward” or “over upon”, and so on. All prepositions seem to have two or three meanings, depending upon the case of the object of the preposition. We can translate this “In the last of these days” or “Upon the last of these days.” Either way it specifically refers to the New Testament canon, and it should be translated not “in these last days” but “upon the last of these days”, which is a phrase in the Greek for the rest of history. For the rest of history God reveals Himself through the incarnate Christ. The New Testament is the revelation of the incarnate Christ. The Old Testament: Jesus Christ was always revealed as God, and He took upon Himself the form of man, the form of angels, the form of burning bush, a cloud, the Shekinah glory, etc. But when you get down to the New Testament that is after the incarnation. The New Testament was all written after Christ was seated at the right hand of the Father and therefore Jesus Christ is revealed in a different way, in a different language. Now He is the God-Man and this passage will emphasize His humanity because through His humanity He won the victory of the angelic conflict, and humanity is created lower than angels. There is no revelation, by the way, beyond the closing of the canon of scripture. The complete revelation of Jesus Christ takes us right down to the book of Revelation. In fact the book of Revelation is the panoramic history of Christ from the cross to the end of time. The Bible is the only source of revelation with regard to God, and God the Son is the only revealed member of the Godhead. he is revealed in one way in the Old Testament; he is revealed another way in the New Testament. The two are brought together in a very dramatic way, beginning in verse 5 and going through verse 13. This is a very dramatic passage. Why? Because this is the New Testament quoting the Old Testament as documentation for Christ winning the angelic conflict.

Now we come to our main verb — “hath spoken.” This time we have the aorist active indicative of λαλέω (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] which means to communicate. We had it as an aorist active participle, now in the second verse we have it as an aorist active indicative. “The God, having spoken in the Old Testament”: the aorist active participle for communication. Jesus Christ was revealed in the Old Testament; Jesus Christ was revealed in the New Testament — the aorist active indicative. The indicative indicates this is the main verb and this is the ultimate in the revelation of Jesus Christ. Once Jesus Christ as a man breaks the back of Satan then we are ready for the ultimate in revelation. The ultimate in revelation is the New Testament.

“unto us” — we are the recipients and the beneficiaries of things never known before. Moses longed to see our day but never got there. We are alive in one of the most dramatic moments in all of history. We are alive when Jesus Christ has already won the victory of the angelic conflict, as we shall see in chapter two, and having already won the victory it is now a matter of the details of the Church Age: the completion of the body, the calling out of the bride for Christ. Christ could not have a body and a bride until he became a true member of the human race and won the angelic conflict. He won it at the cross and at the ascension. Now He has a bride, and the reason why we have an interruption of the Jewish Age is simply because the bride is not to be taken from the Jews, the bride is to be taken from Jews and Gentiles. The bride will be unique, and therefore once a person believes in Christ in this age he is not a Jew, he is not a Gentile, he is a member of the body of Christ and will some day be the bride and, as a matter of fact, be the next section of the resurrection.

Now, once again, we have en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental, only there is a contrast. We had in the last verse en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of profhthj, now we have en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of huios (υἱός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS] — “adult son.” Notice the contrast. In the Old Testament laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh], aorist active participle; New Testament, aorist active indicative. Now we have a contrast of prepositional phrases. Both are en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental but the object of the preposition: Old Testament prophets. Now, notice here, all revelation is confined to huios (υἱός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS] — “through Son.” Why? Because the Son has now true humanity. He is the God-Man, He is the unique person of the universe. He is different from God; He is humanity. He is different from humanity; He is God. He is unique. And as a man He broke the back of Satan.

There is no pronoun here, there is no definite article here. Notice it says “by means of His Son.” There is no “His”; there is no definite article. The absence of the definite article calls attention to the uniqueness of Christ, and while you can translate it literally “by means of a Son” it really means “by means of Son.” There is nothing that precedes huios (υἱός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS]. In other words, in the Greek this is the antithesis of English. In the Greek the absence of the definite article is stronger and it is like underlining the word “Son.” It is like putting it in caps and underlining it.

The big contrast then: in the Old Testament God spoke through the prophets; in the New Testament God speaks through the unique Son. In the Old Testament the prophets were many voices; in the New Testament the Son is one voice. In the New Testament God has spoken in one way and in one part: Jesus Christ, the Son. This principle alone makes the human author anonymous. This is the one book where the human author had to be anonymous; it is absolutely vital.

Summary

1. There are separate revelations in different passages of the Old testament regarding Jesus Christ.
2. Each revelation sets forth a truth about Jesus Christ.

3. In the Old Testament each generation of believers needed a fresh voice; a different prophet was raised up.
4. But now all truth is set forth in the God-Man, Jesus Christ — John 1:14,17.
5. The Old Testament dealt in shadow revelation but with the incarnation and the manifestation of Christ the shadows are removed.
6. Christ is the reality that removes all the shadows.
7. While the revelation of the two testaments differs in mechanics and content the source is the same — ho Theos; and the subject is the same — Jesus Christ.
8. Therefore all revelation focuses on Jesus Christ who is the victor in the angelic conflict.

At this point we begin with Jesus Christ in the divine decrees. He is the subject of the divine decrees.

“whom he hath appointed heir of all things” — “Whom” is the accusative singular of hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]; the antecedent is Jesus Christ. He is both the subject and the object of divine revelation — “he hath appointed,” the aorist active indicative of tithêmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee], which means to decree. The subject is God the Father, ho Theos; the object is Jesus Christ. As the planner God the Father appointed the Son. The aorist tense: this a point in eternity. The aorist means occurrence. There was an occurrence in eternity: the doctrine of divine decrees. This is brought out in Psalm 2:7. The active voice: the Father appointed the Son as a part of the divine plan, as the focal point of the divine plan. Remember that we are in the plan of God but the focal point, the important thing, in the plan of God is Jesus Christ. The indicative mood is the reality of the appointment of Jesus Christ as the victor in the angelic conflict. Jesus Christ was there when the appointment was made; He was there when the decrees were decreed; and He is also the subject and the basis of it.

And He was to be made the “heir of all things” — the accusative singular of klêronomos (κληρονόμος) [pronounced klay-roh-OHM-oss]. This means “heir and possessor” of all things. The genitive plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] means that as the victor of the angelic conflict Christ is going to be the heir of both angels and mankind. Christ inherits everything in the two systems of things. He inherits all regenerate kingdoms. He inherits the Old Testament saints, the Church Age believers, the Tribulational saints, the Millennial believers, and all elect angels. That is what is meant by all things.

Doctrine of Heirship

1. As the victor of the angelic conflict and as a part of the divine decrees Jesus Christ is the heir of all things — Hebrews 1:2.
2. Sonship means heirship. Heirship is based on Sonship — John 1:12; Romans 8:16,17; Galatians 3:26.
3. Heirship is based on the death of another. We inherit the eternal kingdom of Jesus Christ on the basis of His death — Romans 5:8; 1Corinthians 15:3,4.

4. To inherit from God one must possess the life of God, therefore we do — Titus 3:7; 1John 5:11,12.
5. Therefore salvation is the qualification for joint inheritance — Colossians 1:12.
6. Heirship is related to the doctrine of divine decrees in the sense of sharing the destiny of Christ — Ephesians 1:11.
7. Heirship is also related to the doctrine of election since the joint heirs share the election of Christ — Hebrews 9:15.
8. The principle of our heritage is related to eternal security — 1Peter 1:4,5.
9. Our heritage is provided on the basis of grace — Galatians 3:29.
10. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the down payment on our heritage — Ephesians 1:14.

This brings us now to the principle that Jesus Christ is not only the God of all eternity, along with the Father and the Spirit, but He is also the focal point of history. He is the object of everything that is important to us; He is first in our scale of values; but you can't understand history apart from understanding Jesus Christ and His relationship to the angelic conflict.

1972 Hebrews 1:2b-3

Lesson #2

05/05/1972 Jesus Christ, key to history & sustainer of universe.
Answer is Christ not politics or human good

Hebrews 1:2 but in these last days he has spoken to us by his Son, whom he appointed the heir of all things, through whom also he created the world. (ESV)

We are now down to the last phrase of verse two — “by whom also he designed the worlds.” “By whom” is dia plus the genitive of hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], and it should be translated “through” “through whom [Jesus Christ]. The person whom God the Father appointed in eternity past was Jesus Christ. The appointment includes lots of things, not only God's plan, grace provision, the laws of divine establishment, the spiritual principles of preservation, the spiritual dynamics of history, but at the same time there has to be a person around whom all of these things revolve, and Jesus Christ, before history began and before man began, agreed to become a member of the human race and to solve history.

So we have, then, “he was appointed in eternity past heir of all things”, but “through Him he also designed the ages” — the whole pattern of history. The word “made” here is the aorist active indicative of poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] and it has a rather unusual meaning. It usually means to do or to make or to work, but here it means to design or arrange. The subject is God the Father who designed the ages of the dispensations around the Lord Jesus Christ.

Notice what comes first. In the doctrine of divine decrees Christ was appointed heir of all things, and once the heir of all things historically is provided then and only then did He design the ages. The ages refers primarily to dispensations and the dispensational view is the historical interpretation of history. The word for ages here, aiōn (αἰών) [pronounced ī-OHN], refers to the divine outline of history. The ages were not designed until after the appointment of the heir. The heir is Jesus Christ. He was appointed first in the doctrine of divine decrees, so we actually have an agenda here, an agenda which presents to us the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. The first thing on the agenda is the appointment. God the Father makes an appointment and He appoints Christ the heir of all things. That is the key right there. But after He was appointed the heir of all things then, and only then, were the ages designed, the dispensations. The person comes before the dispensations; the person comes before the ages were outlined. God the Father designed the ages to fit Jesus Christ; to prove that Jesus Christ was necessary.

Hebrews 1:2 “In these last days he has communicated to us by means of a unique Son, whom he has appointed heir of all things, through whom [Jesus Christ] he [God the Father] designed the dispensations.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Now we get right down to what is important in history. Jesus Christ is not only the Savior, but He is the solution to man’s problems historically as well as spiritually. So no matter which way you turn you bump into the fact that apart from the Lord Jesus Christ life does not have meaning. And even those who have not accepted Christ as Savior and will never accept Christ as Savior, their life is meaningless apart from Jesus Christ. There is only one key to history and the key is Jesus Christ.

And God the Father in the doctrine of divine decrees appointed Jesus Christ as the heir of all things. He is the key, and once you have the key then you design the lock. The lock is the pattern of dispensations in which man is given full vent to his volition and never gets anywhere. As man has freedom he blows it. Why? Because he is not capable of handling freedom. Only Jesus Christ can handle freedom. History proves that when you give man his free will and his full vent, and let him go, he doesn’t do anything but foul up history. Every dispensation is designed in its own way to give man his freedom — up to the last one — and in giving man his freedom, to demonstrate that man has no appreciation of his freedom and that the best thing he can do with his freedom is to believe in Jesus Christ, and once he has made that decision to use his freedom to get Bible doctrine.

Hebrews 1:3 He is the radiance of the glory of God and the exact imprint of his nature, and he upholds the universe by the word of his power. After making purification for sins, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high, Verse 3 — the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç] — “who”— has as its antecedent Jesus Christ; “being” — eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] — “always being”, there never was a time when He wasn’t; “the brightness” — Jesus Christ is the brightness. This is a compound noun, a)paugasma. Apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] is ultimate source; a)gasmoj is from a verb a)ugazw which means to view in the clearest light, to see distinctly. Nothing can be better than to see Christ as He is.

A)ugazw is a classical or Attic Greek verb, and when you put apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] with it and put the two together you have what is commonly called “effulgence” .But for some reason “effulgence” just doesn’t click. Except for a few scholarly people with a rather extensive vocabulary effulgence doesn’t mean a thing, and yet that is the best translation. But there are some other ideas that are pretty close: “radiance” is close — “who being the radiance, the shining forth.”

“of the glory” — there is no pronoun here [his]. God not only appointed Christ heir of all things but when he appointed Him heir He gave to Him all the glory. Jesus Christ is the God-Man. In His deity He has glory through essence; in His humanity He was given glory through resurrection, ascension and session. And there is no pronoun. It is not “his” glory but it is “the” glory. It is not a glory that belongs to Him, all glory belongs to Him. He is the flashing forth of the glory. The Greek word for glory is doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah]. Glory is often used for the essence of God — like Romans 3:23, “All have sinned and come short of the glory of God.” That is the sense in which the glory is involved here.

God the Father appointed Jesus Christ the heir of all things, and the divine glory that existed in Jesus Christ and the glory that would be in His humanity blend together. God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit all have the same glory because they have the same essence. However, when God the Father, who in this case is the spokesman in the divine decrees, appointed the Son — Jesus Christ the heir — He would become man and there is no glory in man. Man blew it, and the old sin nature and spiritual death destroyed glory in man. Man does not have glory.

But Jesus Christ came into the world — virgin birth, without a sin nature, without the imputation of Adam’s sin — He lived without any personal sin and the devil through every type of glory at Him, including the rulership of this world. (There is a certain amount of glory in what Satan could offer, but it is absolutely zero compared to the glory that comes through the Father’s plan, the glory that comes through grace) Since the resurrection the Man Christ Jesus is seated at the right hand of the Father. The deity is omnipresent, just like the Father’s, but the Man Christ Jesus is seated at the right hand of the Father and he now has the only glory in all the human race. As this chapter develops we will see that this glory is not just the human race, this glory goes beyond the human race. This glory that Jesus Christ has as a man is greater than the glory of any angel and angels are made out of glory, they are made out of light. The only story, the only message, the only place where this glory is seen today is through the content of the Word of God. It will not be observed visibly until the second advent of Jesus Christ.

God the Father made it very clear that Jesus Christ was appointed the heir of all things. Jesus Christ said while He was on the earth that He understood this doctrine: John 1:18 — “He that seeth me seeth Him that sent me.” In other words, Jesus Christ is the effulgence in another way. With the glory of God and the glory of man, the double glory, He now becomes the manifestation of God and God’s plan. He is the manifestation of God through His human glory, His perfect glory greater than that of angels. He is the manifestation of God also by His divine glory. The plan of God, the wisdom of God, grace of God, are all seen in Jesus Christ, so the key to history is also the very source of all understanding of what glory really is.

“Who being the radiance [or effulgence] of the glory” — the effulgence of glory emphasizes the humanity of Christ, and the glory of His humanity, but the next word emphasizes the glory of His deity — “the express image”, and the Greek noun is xapakthr. It was used originally for an engraving tool, a die, a stamp or a mark, or an impression made with an engraving tool. That is exactly what Jesus Christ is. He is the engraving tool that makes an impression on sinful people, the only one who can. Therefore, how goes history? Well the devil rules the world, therefore history goes very poorly. But in the devil’s kingdom Jesus Christ as an engraving tool touches the lives of individuals through doctrine and in the devil’s kingdom we have engraved the very glory of Jesus Christ — the ministry of the filling of the Spirit, Bible doctrine in the launching pad. So Jesus Christ makes an impact on history even when the devil rules the world. The devil’s kingdom is a kingdom of darkness and the only light in this darkness is the person of the Lord Jesus Christ and the thinking of Christ which is doctrine. So “the express image” is literally “the exact image” — “of his person,” hupostasis. “Who being the effulgence [or radiance] of the glory and the exact image of His hupostasis” — hupostasis means “substance” or “essence.” hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] means under; stasij means to stand or standing. So put together it gives us “standing under.” That is where we get hypostatic union: the humanity of Christ stands under the deity of Christ. Jesus Christ is unique. He is the God-Man.

Next we have “upholding”, a present active participle of phérō (φέρω) [pronounced FEH-row] which means to bear or to carry. In this case it means to sustain. The present tense is linear aktionsart, which means He does it all the time. The active voice means that Christ constantly sustains not just the earth but the entire universe. When Christ was in the cradle He was holding the inverse together; when he was on the cross He held the universe together; while He was in the tomb for three days He held the universe together. He is holding the universe together right now, seated at the right hand of the Father. Jesus Christ is actually the one who holds the universe together. And that isn’t all, He is the creator of the universe — James 1:3; Colossians 1:16; Hebrews 1:10.

But here we see Him as the sustainer of the universe. He sustains the entire universe by the word of His mouth. Now what is more important to an individual, what he thinks or what he says? What he thinks! The principle is: Doctrine is what Christ thinks; the way the universe runs is what He says. It is easy to keep you on this earth — the law of gravity. He just speaks and by His word He holds you on the earth. But to get into your soul with something meaningful in the devil’s world is something else. But what He [Jesus Christ] thinks is more important than what He speaks, and you have what he thinks as well as what He speaks. You live in a universe that is sustained by the word of His mouth, but in your soul you have what He thinks — Bible doctrine, if and when you get it.

“by the word” — the instrumental of hrma (ῥῆμα, ατος, τό) [pronounced HRAY-mah] is the word for “word” here, not logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss]. Why don’t we have logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss]? Logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss] really has to do with thinking; hrma (ῥῆμα, ατος, τό) [pronounced HRAY-mah] has to do with speaking. Hrma (ῥῆμα, ατος, τό) [pronounced HRAY-mah] could also be translated “expression” — “sustaining the all things by the verbal expression of his power.” The word for “power” is dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss], and that is His inherent power. When God the Father made Jesus Christ the heir of all things He did a very interesting thing. He also assigned to Jesus Christ, not only the creation of the universe but the sustaining of it. There is the whole universe around us and one little spot in this universe is the earth. The devil rules that one little tiny spot and Jesus Christ could tell that spot to run into the sun, and that would destroy it, or run into Mars, or into some other galaxy and destroy it. And He could destroy in one second this little tiny planet called earth. And this is the devil’s kingdom, and it is a big kingdom to the devil. It is just a little hunk of nothing as far as the whole universe is concerned.

God has a fantastic sense of humour, in fact this little kingdom is so dull to the devil that he spends very little time here. The devil is in heaven probably right now — very likely mentioning some of us to the Lord! But the one who controls the whole universe can also control your soul, and that drives the devil right up the wall. He can’t stand that. Your life has meaning with doctrine. Without doctrine your life doesn’t mean a thing; it is nothing. The one who makes it possible for the devil’s kingdom to spin around in space is Jesus Christ, and He does it with a word. Now you have to see something: Jesus Christ is more important than anything in your life. There is nothing greater than to be occupied with the person of the Lord Jesus Christ.

“when” — this is part of the participle, there is no “when” here. The participle is the aorist middle participle of poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh]. This time He does something so we translate this, especially since it is in a middle voice, “having himself accomplished.” The “having” indicates the aorist participle; the “himself” indicates the middle voice; and “accomplished” indicates the meaning of poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] in this particular phrase. The aorist tense is the point of time in which Jesus Christ actually came into history as a man and did something that is absolutely unique. The fact that Jesus Christ was on the cross was not unique. In any particular given period of history during SPQR more people were crucified than any other type of death. So crucifixion was very common. In the Sparticus revolt they crucified people for miles and miles. In every road leading into Rome they had one cross next to another. You couldn’t go an and out of Rome without going by all these corpses rotting on the wood. So the idea of crucifixion being unique is not correct, it is the One who was on the cross who was unique, He was the God-Man. The unique thing was that Jesus Christ did in three hours what man has done for six or seven thousand years of history: we die spiritually the moment we are born spiritually, and from then on we show it. Jesus Christ took everything we ever showed, every sin, and every personal sin was poured out; all the sins of the world were judged. They were poured out on Christ and Christ was judged for our sins. So the unique thing about the cross was those last three hours when He was bearing our sins in His own body on the tree. That was different. That had never happened before in history and has never happened since — only once in all of human history. Jesus Christ enters human history twice: once at the cross and once at the second advent. At the cross He did something unique; at the second advent He will do something unique. At the cross Jesus Christ became the only Savior, so now it is more than history, it is the matter of eternal salvation, it is a matter of entering the plan of God. Jesus Christ came for one purpose only: for the purpose of providing for man eternal life. By so doing He made it possible to have that kingdom which will begin at the second advent and be perpetuated forever in a new atmosphere, in a new heaven, new earth, and new Jerusalem. He had to do something to do it, so the aorist tense is that unique point of time. The middle voice is reflexive: He did it Himself. The participle is an aorist participle, and the action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb is “sat down” .When He did this He sat down. But what did He do?

“having himself accomplished purification” — and the word “purged” is kaqarismoj which means to purge. History is man’s activity in the old sin nature. Man demonstrates that he is dead spiritually by sinning personally. Spiritual death is based upon the existence of the old sin nature; man demonstrates his spiritual death by personally sinning. So what is the biggest problem in history? The sins of the old sin nature and the human good of the old sin nature. These are history’s two greatest problems. The sins were judged at the cross; the human good was rejected at the cross.

“for our sins” — the genitive plural of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] has the definite article with it. It refers to the sins of the entire human race under the doctrine of unlimited atonement.

“sat down” — to step down in heaven you have to leave the earth — that is, the human being part has to. “Having himself accomplished purification of the sins he was caused to sit down” — the aorist active indicative of kathizō (καθίζω) [pronounced kath-EED-zoh].

And why did the writer quote them from the Greek rather than the Hebrew text? There are a number of reasons but one is because he is now dealing with a Greek language which is the best and most technical way to express what is contained in the periphrasis. What is contained in the periphrasis is so magnificent that you have a choice of two languages: the Septuagint, the first translation of the Old Testament, or the Hebrew. But the Hebrew is a more ancient language; the Greek of the Septuagint is a more modern language and a language which is the most technical of all. Therefore he quotes from the Septuagint so that no one will miss the power and the dynamics of the Word of God. And this proves the principle of the periphrasis: God's Word, though originally written in Hebrew, Aramaic, and in Greek, the power of the Word can come out in the English. And the language with more words or less words, with technical words, is able to communicate something of the phenomenal things we have here. That is the message of the periphrasis.

“on high” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural of u(yhloj. U(yhloj means “on high”, but it means more than that. It means that right down here is this little planet, and billions of light years away is the third heaven, the glamour spot of the universe. The devil has his little kingdom down here and Jesus Christ has the whole universe.

Translation: “Who being the radiance [the flashing forth] of the glory, and the exact image of his essence, also sustaining the all things by the verbal expression of his power, having himself accomplished purification of sins, was caused to sit down on the right hand side of the majesty in the highest places.”

1972 Hebrews 1:3–4

Lesson #3

05/19/1972 Doctrine of ascension & session, Jesus Christ as God-man

Hebrews 1:3 He is the radiance of the glory of God and the exact imprint of his nature, and he upholds the universe by the word of his power. After making purification for sins, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high, (ESV)

“having himself accomplished purification of sins” — this means that every sin that has ever been committed in the human race has already been purified. This doesn't mean that sinners stop being sinners. It doesn't even mean that sinners are saved. It means that when Jesus Christ was on the cross He was actually judged for every sin that you and I will ever commit. The sin problem has so many tentacles and so many areas. The sin problem causes us to come into this world spiritually dead. The sin problem is the need for salvation. The sin problem is related to so many facets and activities of life that are contrary to the plan of God, the will of God and the grace of God. But every personal sin that you will ever commit in your lifetime — thought, word, or deed — was purified on the cross.

There is no reference here to the resurrection, but it goes on to emphasize the high priesthood of Christ — the result. Jesus Christ as a high priest entered into the real holy of holies, the one in heaven, and there He was seated on the right hand side of the majesty in the highest places.

The Doctrine of Ascension and Session

— the doctrine whereby Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father. This is the flashing forth of His human glory. One of the things that is going to run all of the way through this chapter: Christ in His humanity is superior to any member of the human race; Christ in His humanity is superior to angels; and Christ in His humanity is different as the God-Man from the other members of the Godhead. Therefore, Jesus Christ is the unique person in the universe in every sense of the word.

1. The resurrection body of Jesus Christ was capable of space travel, and through the mechanics of this space travel Jesus Christ came to be seated at the right hand of the Father. The humanity of Christ is a resurrection body traveled through all three heavens and arrived at the throne room which is comparable to the holy of holies. The high priest of Israel, once a year on the Day of Atonement, was permitted to enter the holy of holies twice; but not apart from the shedding of blood: once for himself and once for the people. The people literally held their breath to see if he could come out of this sacred place alive, and they would always breath a sigh of relief when he did so. That is a type of the third heaven. But Jesus Christ as our high priest ascended into the presence of the Father in a resurrection body. Jesus Christ as our high priest is unique. He is different from all members of the human race at this time. He is different from us in that He has a resurrection body. As the high priest — he was appointed high priest on the cross — he offered Himself as a sacrifice. No high priest can have any efficacy to his ministry unless he has a bona fide sacrifice, and Jesus Christ offered Himself and by so doing He established Himself as a high priest forever.

In the ministry of the priesthood the sacrifice is offered outside of the tabernacle. It is at the brazen altar that we have the sacrifice. Then the high priest took the blood of the sacrifice past the first veil, past the second veil, into the holy of holies. Jesus Christ became a high priest because he had the perfect sacrifice: Himself. And as a high priest He had to get off the altar and get into the holy of holies which is the third heaven. The only way to get off the altar if you are the sacrifice and get into the holy of holies is by a resurrection body. So it is imperative to understand the importance of resurrection. Without the resurrection body Jesus Christ could not be our high priest and we could not be a kingdom of priests in this Church Age. Therefore before the Church Age could ever begin Jesus Christ had to be established in the holy of holies forever; He had to be seated on the right hand side of God the Father. He had to be accepted by God the Father and by the acceptance in one person we have both sacrifice and high priest all fulfilled in the unique person of Jesus Christ — John 20:17.

2. Jesus Christ being seated — the session of Christ — documented in many scriptures: Psalm 110:1; Romans 8:34; Ephesians 1:20; Colossians 3:1; Hebrews 1:3, 13; 8:1; 10:12; 12:12; 1Peter 3:22. The session of Christ confirms the acceptability of the humanity of Christ, and not only so, but it confirms the appointment of Jesus Christ as a permanent high priest, setting aside all other priesthoods that have ever been bona fide. Jesus Christ, therefore, by being seated at the right hand of the Father has a confirmation of His ministry which makes our life on this earth meaningful, because in this dispensation we not only have Jesus Christ receiving to Himself a body and then a bride — the believers of the Church Age — but Jesus Christ also has for Himself a priesthood made up of every believer in the Church Age. It is a priesthood that began on the Day of Pentecost and will terminate on earth on the day of the Rapture. Now here is a dignity that we could never earn or deserve or work for. You yourself are a priest. Every believer has been elevated by grace. Who ever earned the right or the privilege of being a priest. The privileges of the priesthood are absolutely fantastic. And by so doing Jesus Christ did two things: He called to the attention of the devil and the great hosts of fallen angels your existence on the earth in the devil's kingdom under a system of double blessing compared to any blessing that any believer in the past could ever receive. We have a kingdom of priests on the earth today. You and I are those priests. Our life, then, inevitably, regardless of discouragement, regardless of catastrophe or tragedy or heartache or difficulty, or a very hopeless outlook as far as life is concerned, has meaning. God has a purpose for your life; you are a priest, you are a part of the kingdom of priests on earth. And that isn't all. You will never get out of this priesthood, your priesthood goes on forever. You are going to have a resurrection body. And you may not function as a priest when you die physically because your soul will be in heaven without the resurrection body. But as of the day of the Rapture you are a priest for ever in the kingdom of priests — the order of Melchizedek, the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ. You are never going to appreciate your priesthood until you get Bible doctrine, and the more doctrine you receive the sooner you will appreciate it.

To be alive on this earth at this time is not perhaps one of the best periods in history. But we do not choose the time in which we come into history and therefore we have to have some stabilizer, we have to have a rudder, something to orient us to the time in which we live. I suppose people that in history have always been disappointed with the time in which they lived, especially if they know anything about history. Ignorance of history makes everything simple: everything is fine! But once you learn something about history you have a tendency to become malcontent with the time in which you live, and especially with a little doctrine and a little common sense, or a little discernment. But you are here, and that's a fact, and you are as a believer also a priest, and that's a fact. And since you are a priest and since you therefore have two links with Jesus Christ — you are a part of the body; you are a part of the priesthood — then obviously it should become very important for you to learn all you can about your priesthood — from doctrine — so that you can begin to function in connection with it. Once you do, then a bad day isn't quite as bad.

So the priesthood of the believer is of the utmost importance; you have to realize that you are a priest. Then there is one other step after that, and that is the highest degree: you are an ambassador. The priesthood is permanent and it is solid and it is great. If you believe in Jesus Christ and that He is sitting at the right hand of the Father, do you realize that He is sitting there because He is a high priest? Do you realize that He is a King right now without a kingdom, that His kingdom literally on earth will not occur until the second advent? He is going to wait for that. But do you realize that He has something right now? He has a spiritual kingdom of priests. If you really believe that Jesus Christ exists and if you really believe that he is at the right hand of the Father and then you stop to realize that you are a priest, do you realize that you are hooked up with heaven? It is true.

Do you know that the angels envy you? The angels all have to gather in heaven for convocations. The book of Job tells us about one. Do you know why the angels envy you? Because every time they go to the throne room there is Jesus Christ seated at the right hand of the Father. They see that He has two arms and two legs and one head. He has hands and feet and eyes — eyes that flash. He has a human resurrection body, and it is the only one in existence. Every time they meet in the third heaven for a convocation they keep peeking over at Jesus Christ. Why? Because they have seen arms and legs on human beings but this is a resurrection body and they know that all of us are going to have the same thing. We need to stop and realize this.

3. The ascension and session of Christ formed the basis of victory in the angelic conflict — Hebrews 1:5-13.
4. The ascension and session of Christ begin a new sphere of the angelic conflict. While the Tribulation is a horrible time on earth and there is lots of obvious angelic fighting the Church Age is the intensified stage of the angelic conflict. So having this priesthood we need to be reminded of the fact that since every believer is a priest he is also with this priesthood in a very intense conflict — Ephesians 1:20-22; 4:7-10. Therefore the believer in the Church Age is involved in the intensification of the angelic conflict.
5. The ascension and session of Jesus Christ begin operation footstool — Psalm 110:1 which is quoted significantly in this connection three times: Luke 20:42,43; Acts 2:33,34; Hebrews 1:13.
6. The second advent of Christ will conclude operation footstool — Daniel 7:13,14; Zechariah 13:2; Colossians 2:15; Revelation 20:1-3.
7. The ascension and session completes the glorification of Christ in hypostatic union. The glorification of Christ in the hypostatic union is very important as far as His high priesthood is concerned. If Jesus Christ is going to be anything forever, if anyone is going to be anything forever, they must have a glory. You can't get into forever without glory, and Jesus Christ as God is forever and He has glory. God the Father is forever; He has glory. God the Holy Spirit is God; as God He has forever glory. But Jesus Christ, from the moment He took humanity He took humanity not in glory. From the virgin birth to the cross there is no glory. Humiliation is the word connected with the incarnation and the first advent. The first advent is humiliation. Glory began with resurrection; glory was manifest by the session of Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ not only has to have a glory because of the resurrection and session but He has to have a glory in His humanity that puts Him way out ahead of any creature of any kind, including the angels. That is why the whole first chapter of Hebrews, beginning at verse 6, is going to document the principle that the humanity of Christ has a fantastic glory that is greater than any glory that the angels have. The angels have a certain type of glory but Jesus Christ is superior to them in His humanity, and His glory is related to the high priesthood. When we get to chapters seven through ten we will see a magnificent searchlight on the glory of the humanity of Christ. It goes without saying that His deity is glory — Colossians 1; Philippians 2.

As long as we are on this earth we are priests, and as priests we do not have a glory of our own. We have no claim to fame. The only glory we have is the glory of Jesus Christ in resurrection body, high priest, seated at the right hand of the Father. That is our glory. The only way we manifest this glory is a big reflector built in the soul, and that big reflector is the edification complex.

8. The ascension and session explain the uniqueness of the Church Age — John 7:37-39.
9. The ascension and session is the key to victory in the angelic conflict.

Hebrews 1:4 having become as much superior to angels as the name he has inherited is more excellent than theirs. (ESV)

Verse 4 — “Being made,” aorist middle participle of ginomai which means to become something. So “being made” is incorrect. It should be translated with the aorist participle concept here, “Having become.” Jesus Christ as God always existed. There never was a time when He didn’t exist; there never was a time when He didn’t have the essence of His deity. But now He became something that He was not before, and this can never be said about the Father and this can never be said about the Holy Spirit. The Father has always been the Father, has always had the same essence, and there has never been any change and never will be. The same is true of God the Holy Spirit. But God the Son became something He was not before. He became mankind. That is why they translated this “being made.” However, “being made” does not bring out into the English the concept of the aorist middle participle. The aorist tense is really a culminative aorist in view of what we have had in verse three. In a culminative aorist we have the point of time, not at the beginning, not constative, not during, but at the end.

Jesus Christ is now seated at the right hand of the Father and He has become something He was never before. As a member of the human race He was made lower than angels; now He is higher than angels. The middle voice is reflexive, it indicates that Jesus Christ is unique. The reflexive means that Christ Himself and only Himself is superior to all angels. You and I are not superior to angels, we are inferior both by creation and function. Christ is superior. Why? Christ became a man and we are talking about His humanity. Humanity sits down at the right hand of the Father. Deity doesn’t sit; deity doesn’t have to sit. Deity coexists and is coeternal with the Father, but Jesus Christ is a man. As a man He is higher than angels. But why not other men? First of all, Christ is minus the old sin nature. Secondly, Christ as a human being always avoided something that we have not avoided: human good. Then, of course, minus the old sin nature He was also minus personal sin.

But even these things, absolutely unique in the history of the human race, do not make Him better than angels. What makes Him better than angels? The resurrection body. He has a human body that is superior to the body of angels. That isn't the way creation was designed originally, that is the way it comes through resurrection. So the middle voice is reflexive indicating the uniqueness of Christ, the uniqueness of His resurrection. At this time Jesus Christ is the only member of the human race in a resurrection body. This will be true until the Rapture. No other member of the human race at this time is superior to angels, only the humanity of Christ. There will come a day when we, too, will be superior to angels. That day has not yet occurred.

“Having become so much better” — tosoutw kreittōn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn]. Tosouō is an instrumental case of vocabulary form tosoutos (τοσοῦτος) [pronounced toss-OO-toss] which means in its vocabulary form “by so much.” It is in the instrumental case here and that means “by means” of something He became more prominent. And then kreittōn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn] is the comparative of kratus, which means “more prominent”, “more superior”. Kratus means inherent power.

Jesus Christ inherited power from His very birth. First of all He was born without an old sin nature, and that gave Him power. He was born without the imputation of Adam's sin, and that gave Him power. He was also born the sin of David, and that gave Him power — the right to rule. But “by so much” — the ascension and session. The instrumental says somewhere in the context there is a subject which is “by so much”, and the subject is ascension.

“By so much [by the ascension and session], having become more prominent [more superior] than angels.” “Angels” is an ablative plural here for comparison. The ablative plural says that the writer is deliberately making a comparison between all angels and one man, one unique man, Jesus Christ. And in His humanity He was more of a man than any man that ever lived. Being more of a man He is compared to all angels. One man is a resurrection body at the right hand of the Father is greater than all of the angels put together. That is the meaning of the ablative of comparison. And that is not all, that is the direction of our priesthood. That is the way we are going. We, too, will have a resurrection body. In the meantime we have something to do, and just living and breathing and taking in doctrine is really doing something.

The trouble is that we live in that Mickey Mouse age when everyone is impressed by doing things. Everyone wants to be doing things — all show and no go. The trouble with most of us is that we are conditioned to the day in which we live: conditioned to cosmic thinking, to human viewpoint. Many have said at different times, “Well I'm really not doing anything for the Lord.” Of course you are! If you are breathing and taking in doctrine, you are doing something. The trouble is you don't know you are doing something. Until you get more doctrine you don't realize how significant it is. By sitting down in a pew and not lifting your little finger, by taking in Bible doctrine as a priest [the first thing that a priest in the Old Testament had to do was spend years in seminary, and memorize the Bible as it then existed] you are doing something. No, you learn and learn, and learn and learn, and you never stop learning. Moses was the man of deeds but he wasn't the high priest. What did the high priest do? He did nothing. He wore the breast plate. What did he do with it? Nothing. He just stood still for God's commands. What else did he do? Very little. He carried the bowl of blood and put it on the mercy seat once a year. The beautiful thing about the priesthood is learning how to do nothing — and do it well! That means grace, grace, more grace. So the biggest function of the priesthood is to listen to the teaching of Bible doctrine.

Doctrine works, but doctrine only works on the inside. Doctrine works in the right lobe, and that is what we need — doctrine in the right lobe — and here is where the priest really gets with it on the earth. Here comes doctrine, hits that frame of reference, gets into that memory centre, becomes a part of the technical vocabulary, sets up categories, norms and standards [divine norms and standards], and doctrine on the launching pad. There is nothing greater. People who run around and say, "I've got to run around and do great things for God," have missed the boat. They've lost track of the emphasis in Hebrews, because Hebrews says you are a priest. And what does a priest do well? Nothing. And how do you do nothing well? You come and you sit in a pew and you concentrate on the teaching, on the content, of the Word of God. And no greater thing can be said for anyone than that.

"having become more prominent" — Jesus Christ as a man is more prominent than all angels, and it also means "more superior" than angels — all angels, fallen and elect.

The word "as" is instrumental of w(soj and should be translated "by so much as." By so much as what? Now immediately you think Christ is going to do something. But not right away. He is not going to do something.

"he hath by inheritance obtained" — there is no "obtained" in the verse. This is a perfect active indicative of klêronomeô (κληρονομέω) [pronounced klay-ron-om-EH-oh] which means to inherit, but in the perfect tense it means He has inherited, and the perfect tense means it is permanent. (Of course, we are going to share His heritage. Remember, we are joint heirs as well as priests) The active voice: Jesus Christ does the inheriting. The indicative mood is the reality of inheritance. Note the impact of klêronomeô (κληρονομέω) [pronounced klay-ron-om-EH-oh]: you don't do anything to inherit. Once again you are doing nothing. And Jesus Christ as our high priest has inherited. He did something on the cross and in the plan of the Father there is action — resurrection, ascension and session — but what is He doing as high priest? What is He doing sitting down at the right hand of the Father? He is doing nothing. How do you do nothing? You inherit. You inherit on the basis of two things: relationship and love; both, or one or the other. But whichever way it is you are not doing anything. What did you do to get into the family of God? You believed in Christ, and that is doing nothing. No matter how you slice it you are an heir forever. So this priesthood has a great aspect: doing nothing and doing it well. That requires doctrine; that requires grace orientation.

"a more excellent" — diaphoros (διάφορος) [pronounced dee-AF-or-oss], an accusative singular neuter. It is in the neuter gender. Christ is not neuter but the principle. The principle of glory belongs to a person but glory as a principle is neuter here. It should be translated “more superior” because it is the comparative form of diaphoros (διάφορος) [pronounced dee-AF-or-oss].

“name” — onoma (ὄνομα,ατος,τό) [pronounced OHN-oh-ma]. We have a tendency to associate name as being someone’s name, but not in the ancient world. The Bible must be interpreted in the time in which it was written. In the time in which this was written name did not mean name, it meant reputation — “he has a more superior reputation.” Not only in His person is He now superior to angels but in His reputation. Every time the angels have a convocation in heaven they all gather, and there they are. And who has the greatest reputation? Jesus Christ. And what is Jesus Christ? Well He is God, but reputation doesn’t go with His deity but with His humanity. In His humanity He has a greater reputation than all of those angels.

“than they” — pitiful translation. We have a prepositional phrase here, para plus autos. Para here with the accusative means “by the side.” Then autos is in the accusative plural and refers to all the angels — “by the side of them.” Whenever the angels get together in heaven for a convocation, by the side of them is one in a human body — there is only one human body at angelic convocations — superior.

Hebrews 1:4 “By so much [ascension and session], having become more prominent than angels by so much as he has inherited a more superior reputation by the side of them.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

He is not only better in His person, He is better in His reputation. Here they are with all the glamour of angels and one resurrection body is there.

Summary

1. The ascension and session of Jesus Christ indicates the Father’s approval of His priestly ministry — death on the cross; He offered Himself as a sacrifice.
2. As a result of the first advent and incarnation Jesus Christ as a resurrected human being has become superior to angels at the right hand of the Father.
3. The resurrected humanity of Christ is superior to all angelic creatures, including Satan.
4. The next paragraph in this chapter — verses 5-13 — demonstrates the superiority of Christ from Old Testament documentation. And that isn’t all. God the Holy Spirit did not see fit to quote those passages from the Hebrew text, they are quoted from the Septuagint, the Greek translation of the Old Testament. It is just like a total divorce from the Levitical priesthood.
5. This Old Testament documentation becomes a shock to the Jews and a put-down to the fallen angels.

1972 Hebrews 1:5–9

Lesson #4

05/26/1972 Authority comes before freedom; Old Testament documentation of superiority of Jesus Christ to angels

Verses 5-13 present the Old Testament documentation of the superiority of Jesus Christ to angels.

Hebrews 1:5 For to which of the angels did God ever say, "You are My Son, today I have begotten You"? Or again, "I will be to Him a Father, and He shall be to Me a Son"? (ESV)

Verse 5 — we start with an exegetical particle gar. Some one could write a doctor's dissertation on the use of gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] in the New Testament, it is a phenomenal subject. The exegetical gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is used to explain further details of the superiority of Jesus Christ in hypostatic union. The great thrust of verses two through four is the fact that Jesus Christ is the God-Man, and many of the things which are described are dealing with the hypostatic union with emphasis on His humanity. Therefore it becomes necessary to document these things from the scripture which existed from old times, that is the Old Testament.

"For unto which" — the dative singular of the interrogative pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç]. This interrogative pronoun has an accent to indicate the difference from tís (τις) [pronounced tihç] without an accent which means "anyone". This word in the dative of the interrogative pronoun means "to which" or "unto which," and it introduces a rhetorical question — "of the angels," and this refers to the super creation, to the angelic creatures — "said he" — aorist active indicative of légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] to indicate spoken communication. Then we have an adverb, "at any time" — poté (ποτέ) [pronounced poht-EH]. The rhetorical question has a quotation, the first of seven Old Testament passages used to document from various aspects and from different angles the superiority of Jesus Christ in hypostatic union over angels and, as a matter of fact, the superiority of the humanity of Christ over angels. There is no question with regard to His deity because in His deity He is infinitely superior to all creatures. In fact he is the source, the origin of all creatures. But as man we now have a rhetorical question to introduce seven Old Testament quotations demonstrating the fact that Jesus Christ is infinitely superior in His humanity to all angelic creatures.

The first documentation is from Psalm 2:7 which contains a part of the divine decrees. "Thou art my Son" — the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], indicating eternal status quo. It is present linear aktionsart — huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS] mou. Huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS] is an adult son, a mature son; mou is the possessive pronoun, genitive of possession. There is an eternal relationship here between the first and second persons of the Trinity, and Huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS] as adult Son refers to Jesus Christ as eternal God, undiminished deity — "Thou art always my Son." Jesus Christ is always God, there never was a time when He wasn't God, there never will be a time. But this is a quotation from the divine decrees. You say, well look, Son indicates that He didn't exist as long as the Father. This is language of accommodation, this is indicating the function of the members of the Godhead in the plan of God, in the divine decrees. In the divine decrees the Father does the planning, and the Son executes the plan as far as the human race is concerned. Therefore this is language of accommodation rather than language of chronological sequence.

“this day” introduces another concept. It is the Greek adverb sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on] and it means “today” or “this day.” “This day” refers specifically to the time when this phase of the plan, always in the mind of God, was put into operation. It refers to the day of the virgin birth or the day of the incarnation. In proving the superiority of Christ over angels inevitably you must start out with His deity. “Thou art my Son” is a quotation from the divine decrees to show that in eternity past God the Father always existed, God the Son always existed, there never was a time when the Father existed before the Son or the Son before the Father, there never was a time when both of them did not exist. Since both of them have always existed it becomes necessary to understand this in terms of that. If you are going to start out proving superiority start out with what Christ always was: Jesus Christ was always God. He was just as much God as God the Father. “Thou art my Son [e]imi]” links the two of them together, right here. Jesus Christ also created angels, he created man, but He now must become a man. There is no question about His superiority in deity but in order to start at the proper place the deity of Christ is brought into focus first. “This day” is an adverb referring to a point of time in history when Jesus Christ became true humanity. Jesus Christ became true humanity in the moment of the virgin birth and this causes Him to be different from the Father — now He is the God-Man, undiminished deity and true humanity in one person forever. But the source of the hypostatic union is still God the Father.

“this day have I begotten thee” — “have I begotten” is the perfect active indicative of gennâô (γεννάω) [pronounced gen-NAH-oh]. Jesus Christ continues forever in the hypostatic union. The perfect tense means that Jesus Christ will be different from the Father throughout all eternity as well as time. Jesus Christ is now the God-Man; He always will be the God-Man, there never will be a time when he will be anything but the God-Man. Therefore He is different from the Father and the Spirit who are God but not humanity. By the way, gennâô (γεννάω) [pronounced gen-NAH-oh] in the Hebrew is jaladh in the qal perfect, and the qal perfect in the Hebrew is equivalent here to the perfect active indicative of gennâô (γεννάω) [pronounced gen-NAH-oh]. The active voice: God the Father is the author of this grace plan. The indicative mood is the reality of the birth of Jesus Christ, the reality of virgin birth, the reality of the incarnation, the reality of the hypostatic union, the reality of the inculpability of the humanity of Christ at the point of His birth because He was born without a sin nature, without the imputation of Adam’s sin; and, therefore, in His volition He must through His free will refuse to sin in the same way that Adam resisted for a certain period of time.

Psalm 2:7 is the divine decrees related to the hypostatic union — Jesus Christ is the unique person of the universe. He is different from God the Father because He is true humanity. He is different from God the Holy Spirit because He is true humanity. He is different from angels because he is the God-Man; He is different from man because He is God; He is different from man because He is perfect man. The very first documentation we have indicates that Jesus Christ always existed as God, that something is unique. “This day” Jesus Christ became a member of the human race. Furthermore, He became a member of the human race without jarring His deity, without compromising His deity and without destroying His deity. The deity of Jesus Christ was no compromised in the moment that He became a true member of the human race. Had He had a true father, and had He had a normal birth, then there would be a compromise of deity and deity could not be deity. Jesus Christ cannot be God apart from the virgin birth. But He did not have a normal type birth, he had a virgin birth. His birth is unique, there is only one virgin birth in all of human history and there will only be one. In this way Jesus Christ became true humanity without compromising His deity. His deity could not remain deity and be compromised by sin, and therefore when Jesus Christ was born into this world it was a virgin birth, there was no old sin nature. Furthermore, there was no imputation of Adam's sin. Therefore Jesus Christ is unique from the moment of His birth, and the uniqueness only is amplified. That means that he is unique at birth, that means He will have a unique life, that means that His death will be unique: both His spiritual death, bearing our sins and His physical death, that means His resurrection will be unique — He is the firstfruits of them that sleep — and it means that from there on everything will be unique — the ascension, the session, the whole bit. Therefore, not only is our Savior unique, as he must be, but so is our high priest. And this is the point at which both are introduced.

Who is our Savior? In eternity past he was God, always God, there never was a time when He wasn't God. But He didn't become man until this word, "this day." "This day" was planned billions of years ago, a day when the Father and the Holy Spirit recognized that Jesus Christ would take upon Himself something that was absolutely unique and things would never be the same again in heaven. For on the basis of what Jesus Christ did there would be human beings in heaven. And that isn't all. On the basis of what Jesus Christ did man who was inferior to angels by physical birth would become superior to angels through the new birth. God the Father turned the universe upside down the day that Jesus Christ was born. Nothing would ever be the same again. God the Father knew that when Jesus Christ was born into the world that the time would come — just thirty-three years from that moment — when all of the sins of the world would have to be poured out upon Him and God the Father Himself would have to judge God the Son.

And all by itself is that accusative singular from the pronoun su, referring to Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is the object of the verb. He is the one who was begotten. Psalm 2:7 is so important that it is actually quoted three times in the New Testament. In Acts 13:33 Jesus Christ is the baby in the manger and at the same time the eternal Son of God. The documentation in that verse is to emphasize the uniqueness of His birth. Here is Hebrews 1:5 the humanity of Christ is superior to all angels. Later on in Hebrews 5:5 the priesthood of Christ is superior to all priesthoods.

"and again" — kai palin. This introduces a new quotation, this time from 2Samuel 7:14 — "I will be to him," future active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. In the first quotation eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] was in the present active indicative. Why? The rest of this phrase will explain it. "To him" is dative singular of a reflexive pronoun autos — "I will be to him and only to him for a father" — we have the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] here plus the accusative of patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR], for "father." This is again language of accommodation but it also show the direction of the incarnation. God the Father is not really a father; God the Son is not really a son, both of them are eternal God, coequal, coexistent, having identical essence but two distinct personalities.

The word “father” indicates one doing the sending; the word “son” indicates one being obedient. “Father” sets up a principle of authority; “son” sets up the principle of obedience, response to authority. Jesus Christ responded to authority before He was glorified in His humanity. In His birth He responded to the authority of God the Father. And this is something that people have forgotten and it is tragic. You cannot have capacity for life until you learn what authority means and how to respond to it. We are not born free. Freedom is capacity for life under the laws of divine establishment, and the best thing we can do is be born under authority. The only way to keep freedom as freedom is to have boundaries for it called authority. Jesus Christ was born under authority — Father-Son; eternal God but He became the Son.

The future tense indicates something — eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. In the first quotation it was present active indicative because eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] there indicates God equal with God. And in eternity past Jesus Christ is equal with God just as much as the first person of the Trinity is God, but in the future tense of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] — future active indicative — it means that in the future, future from 2Samuel 7:14, Jesus Christ would come under the authority of the first person. As God He can't do it. If Jesus Christ is God, how can He ever get under the authority of the other members of the Trinity? He can't as God. He is coequal and coeternal. It is impossible for Him to be under authority as long as He is God, but as man He comes under the authority of the Father. And He had to become a man to get under the authority of the Father. The future tense of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] is the change, Jesus Christ as the God-Man; the present tense of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]: Jesus Christ as God. “I will be (in the future) a father, and you will be a son”, and under that relationship I have the authority and you must be obedient “even obedient unto the death of the cross.” And the night before the cross occurred Jesus Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane said, “Father [recognizing the authority of the first person of the Trinity] if it be thy will let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not my will but thy will be done.”

Authority, authority, authority. Do you realize that there would be no salvation were it not for the principle of authority. Which comes first, freedom or authority? Authority comes first, always. First of all, Jesus Christ became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross, Philippians 2, so that in Galatians 5:1, “Therefore stand fast in the freedom wherewith Christ has set you free.” Authority comes before freedom. You must have authority before you can have freedom. Freedom is born of authority, not vice versa.

Jesus Christ could not go to the cross until something had been established — it was in eternity past. The first person of the Trinity is the Father and the second person of the Trinity is the Son, and the Son obeys the Father. Therefore, this is language of accommodation so that you and I can understand a principle: when Jesus Christ became true humanity the first person of the Trinity was calling the shots. “I have come to do the will of the Father”, Jesus said. The will of the Father is the doctrine of divine decrees. Therefore there a great distinction between two tenses in one verse. In Psalm 2:7, what is the tense? Present active indicative, linear aktionsart for eternal existence in the past. Then, in Hebrews 1:5, the future active indicative to show a time occurred when there was a change.

“and he shall be” — a second future active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]; “to me” — dative singular of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced eg-OH] referring to the Father. Then we have a prepositional phrase again, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative — “for a Son.”

The first two quotations document the superiority of the deity of Christ over angels and the superiority of the hypostatic union of Christ over angels.

Hebrews 1:5 “For to which of the angels did he say at any time, Son of mine are you, I this day have begotten you? And again, I will be to Him for a Father, and He Himself shall be to Me for a Son?” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 1:6 And again, when he brings the firstborn into the world, he says, "Let all God's angels worship him." (ESV)

Verse 6 — “And again” is the third quotation, Psalm 97:7 — de palin. Palin means “again”, it cites a passage; de means continuing the documentation principle. Then we have “when” which looks like an adverb but here is a conjunction — o(tan which means “on the occasion of” .So we have so far, “Again on the occasion when.”

“when he bringeth in” — aorist active subjunctive of e)isagw, a compound verb. E)isagw is a very, very old verb, one of the oldest in the Greek language. It goes back to Homer. In Homer’s time it meant to bring someone into something, like to bring someone into a city, to bring someone into a temple. It is also used to bring someone into a barracks or a house, or an arena. Here it refers to the second advent where Christ is brought back into the world again under operation footstool. It is an aorist tense here. “Aorist” is derived from a Greek word — aoristos, a noun that means unlimited, indefinite, without boundaries, limitless. In other words, aorist is a tense that has no limits. It is without limit of time. It isn’t past, it isn’t present, it isn’t future. So when you have something that is not related to our tense system — past, present, and future — we have to have some way of picking it up. So we can say just a point in time without regard to the past or the present or the future. Therefore you get the concept of a point of time divorced from time and perpetuated. This point of time has no relationship to past, present, or future, it is just taken out of time and is perpetuated. The concept of the aorist, then, is that it is an action as attained rather than an action relate to time. It states the fact of an action, the fact of an event. The aorist expresses the occurrence of the action. And what we have here is a gnomic aorist in which the second advent, while future, is regarded as fixed in its certainty, it is axiomatic. A gnomic aorist means the second advent is going to happen, it is a certainty. The active voice: the second advent is a part of the Father’s plan and a part of the Father’s schedule. The subjunctive mood is used to indicate an indefinite temporal clause, which means a future event certain to come but the time of the event is unknown. The subjunctive mood is not the ordinary subjunctive, just as we do not have an ordinary aorist here. Therefore Translation: “But on the occasion when he again introduces [second advent].” What have we had in the first two quotations? We had Christ introduced the first time — first advent. Now we are on the second advent.

“into the world” — should be to “the civilized world” — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus oikounomh which means “the civilized world” or “the inhabited earth.”

“he said” — present active indicative of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh], and at this point we actually have the quotation. The third quotation has documentation that angels worship Christ. Therefore Christ as the returning King is superior to all angels. Christ was superior the moment He came into the world, but Christ is superior when he returns.

“let all the angels of God worship him.” “Worship” is an aorist active imperative. It is preceded by the phrase panthj a)ggeloi theou — all angels of God worship.” It is an order: aorist active imperative of proskuneō (προσκυνέω) [pronounced pros-koo-NEH-oh] — proj; face to face; kuneō: to kiss. To kiss face to face means to worship. Hence this verb connotes homage, worship, adoration. It is derived, by the way, from a Persian custom of showing homage by kissing the feet or the hem of the robe of a king. This is the recognition of the absolute authority of Jesus Christ. He started out totally under authority; at the second advent He is the authority, and not just for mankind but for the whole angelic creation. And at the second advent Jesus Christ will slaughter the enemy at Armageddon, and all the angelic creatures will be commanded to worship Him — angels worshipping a Man who has just slaughtered millions of the enemy!

Hebrews 1:6 “But on the occasion when he [God the Father] again introduces the firstborn [Jesus Christ at the second advent] to the civilized world, he said, All the angels of God worship him.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

That, again, demonstrates the superiority of Jesus Christ. This is a command to angels.

Hebrews 1:7 Of the angels he says, “He makes his angels winds, and his ministers a flame of fire.” (ESV)

Verse 7 — our fourth documentation. “And of the angels he said.” The problem with this is the word “of.” It is grossly mistranslated. The word “of” is proj, and we have pros plus the accusative which means “face to face with.” So this should be translated, “And face to face with the angels.”

“he saith” — present active indicative of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] — Psalm 104:4, is now quoted. So He is face to face with the angels and He says something to them. He tells them to do things actually.

“Who maketh his angels spirits” — but that is not what we have in the Greek. We have a present active participle of poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] plus the definite article. A more literal Translation: “And face to face with the angels He says, The one making his angels spirits.” He doesn’t say “make the angels spirits,” the one who is speaking is the one who has made His angels spirits. Jesus Christ created the angels and when He did he made them spirits — the accusative plural of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]. This refers to the essence of the angels. He made the essence of angels. Angels are called spirits in Matthew 8:16; Mark 1:27; 6:7; Acts 5:16; 1Peter 3:19; Revelation 16:13. Note that most of the references to angels as spirits are made to fallen angels. For example, fallen angels are called “unclean spirits.” But the word “spirit” itself refers to the essence of angels. This is one reason why they are invisible. Jesus Christ is the creator of angels. So “he says”: what he says is not given here, but what he has done — He has made His angels spirits. He is the creator of angels. And that isn’t all.

“his ministers a flame of fire” — He not only made them spirits but He also made them a flame of fire. The word “minister” here is the word leitourgos (leitourgós) [pronounced li-toorg-OSS] which is used for the function of angels. It should therefore be translated “sacred servants.”

“a flame of fire” — puroj is the word which is used and it is the genitive of pur for fire, and then we have floc for flame. In other words, He not only created angels but He also created their job. He is superior to them; He created their being; He created their function. As a flame of fire the elect angels under the command of God administer judgement, punishment. And, of course, he gave them their function and therefore Christ is superior theirs whom He has given job assignments. They are His servants as well as His creatures, therefore the superiority.

A corrected translation of v. 7 is down below.

Hebrews 1:8 But of the Son he says, "Your throne, O God, is forever and ever, the scepter of uprightness is the scepter of your kingdom. (ESV)

Verse 8 — the fifth quotation, Psalm 45:6,7. “But unto the Son.” This is face to face with the Son, pros plus the accusative of u(oij). Notice that while the angels were addressed in the previous quotation what was said was not given, just what was done to them; how they came into existence, their origin. “But face to face with the Son.” There is no “he saith.” We have looked at one side, the Son is the creator of angels. That is what happens when the Son is face to face with them. He tells them what to do. The Father, whose plan it is, says this to the Son: “Thy throne” — ho (ó) [pronounced hoh] qronoj su — “The throne of yours,” translated correctly, “Thy throne” or “Your throne.” This refers to the throne of Christ in contrast to the function of servanthship of the angels. The angels are sacred servants and the worshippers of Christ. But Jesus Christ has a different function, he is the ruler.

“O God” — ho Theos, vocative addressed to Jesus Christ by God the Father — “the God”.

“is forever and forever” — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] tōn aiōn (αἰών) [pronounced ī-OHN] tou aiōn (αἰών) [pronounced ī-OHN]oj — “unto the ages of the ages,” forever and ever and ever. There is a contrast here. While the angels are servants administering under Jesus Christ, Jesus Christ is the ruler forever and ever. And as a ruler he has a sign of rulership, He has a sceptre.

“the sceptre” — ho hrabdos (ῥάβδος) [pronounced HRAB-doss] — “the rod,” the rod of rulership, the badge of rulership, and correctly translated “sceptre.” A sceptre was a badge of authority for kings. The rod or the sceptre is found in many areas of the ancient world. The shepherd’s staff had the same concept with the sheep. This concept is given in Leviticus 27:32; Micah 7:14. It is possible that the sceptre even originated among pastoral peoples where the shepherd had a staff which was his authority, and the king became the shepherd of the people, and therefore he had a staff.

What kind of a sceptre is this? It is called a sceptre of “e)uquthj” — translated by the word “righteousness,” but that is not correct. E)uquthj does not mean righteousness. “Righteousness” would be dikaios (δίκαιος) [pronounced DIH-kai-oss] or dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay]. E)uquthj means “straightness” — “a sceptre of straightness.” Straightness refers to perfect standards of law and establishment. Jesus Christ will reign forever under perfect laws, divine laws, the laws of establishment. So, “the sceptre of establishment is the sceptre of your kingdom.” The sceptre represents the authority and the One who makes them function.

Hebrews 1:7–8: “And face to face with angels he says, The one making his angels spirits [Christ makes angels spirits; He created them], and his sacred servants a flame of fire [He provides not only life for them but function].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

“But face to face with the Son, Your throne, O God, is forever and ever and ever: and the sceptre of establishment is the sceptre of your kingdom.”

Hebrews 1:9 You have loved righteousness and hated wickedness; therefore God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness beyond your companions.”

Verse 9 — the fifth quotation is continued. So far we have only had Psalm 45:6; now we have Psalm 45:7, the rest of the quotation. “Thou hast loved” — aorist active indicative of agapaō (ἀγαπάω) [pronounced ahg-ahp-AH-oh], mental attitude love. This is a constative aorist. Active voice, the subject is Jesus Christ as the King, holding the sceptre of the establishment. The indicative mood is the reality of establishment, and the basis for the function of establishment is “righteousness,” and that means here morality and justice. So we now have dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay] for the principle. Notice that dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay] refers to justice as a characteristic of the ruler; e)uquthj refers to the principle on which He rules — establishment. There can be no wonderful government of any kind unless, “iniquity is hated” .But the word is not iniquity — aorist active indicative of missew, divine attitude toward a)nomia “lawlessness.” Lawlessness stands for anti-establishment; lawlessness means not just violation of laws, not just criminal activity, but lawlessness means rejection of authority. “You have loved the justice of establishment, and you have hated the lawlessness [anti-establishment].”

“therefore” — dia plus the accusative of houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] means “because of this” — because of the perfect function of the laws of establishment under Christ, because Christ is both perfect and unique, because Christ is righteous and just, because Christ is superior to angels, he will supersede Satan as the ruler of this world — a Man will supersede and angel in the rulership of this world. The emphasis here is no the humanity of Christ — “because of this, the God [God the Father] hath anointed” — aorist active indicative of xriw means to be appointed, to be commissioned — “thee” — accusative singular of a pronoun referring to Jesus Christ as Man. The incarnate Christ is infinitely superior to angels in His deity; He is also infinitely superior to angels in His humanity. He is anointed King. A man will supersede and angel as the ruler of this world. The ruler of this world at the second advent will be Jesus Christ.

And He is anointed with oil — the accusative singular of e(laion. The Bible must be interpreted in the time in which it was written. In the ancient world they did not have commissions in written form, they had them with oil. This is a reference to ceremonial oil used for the appointment of a king. This is the kind of oil that Samuel used to anoint David king over Israel.

Notice this is said to be “the oil of gladness.” That is a pitiful translation of a)galliasij which means super happiness, optimum happiness. Then the word “above” is para which means “above and beyond” here — “thy fellows,” metochos (μέτοχος) [pronounced MET-okh-oss] which means “associates” and it is a reference to angels. Angels associated with Christ in operation footstool. Therefore it should be translated “above and beyond your angelic associates.” In other words, Christ is superior to angels.

Hebrews 1:9 “You have loved the justice of establishment, and you [Christ] have hated lawlessness [of anti-establishment]; because of this the God {the Father, the author of the plan} has anointed you [Christ] with the oil of ultimate happiness above and beyond your [angelic] associates.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Lesson #5

06/02/1972 Superiority (& its results) of Jesus Christ over angels, 6th Old Testament documentation; doctrine of Operation Footstool

The Angelic Conflict continues into the next chapter.

Once again, the fifth documentation demonstrates the superiority of the person of Jesus Christ.

Verses 10-12 — the sixth quotation documenting the victory of Jesus Christ in the angelic conflict. This quotation is from Psalm 102:25-27.

Hebrews 1:10 And, "You, Lord, laid the foundation of the earth in the beginning, and the heavens are the work of your hands;

Verse 10 begins with the word “And” — kai, which introduces the sixth quotation. This is what is called a continuative documentary kai. It continues the documentation and it introduces a new one — the sixth quotation to document from the Old Testament scripture the superiority of Jesus Christ over angels.

“And, thou, Lord” — the word “thou” is the personal pronoun su in the emphatic position and should be translated “you and only you” .“Lord” is kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] in the vocative — “you and only you, Lord.” This vocative of kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] refers to Jesus Christ who is both eternal God and true humanity in one person forever.

And between the two words in the Greek we have a prepositional phrase kat arxaj. katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] is the preposition, and with the accusative of arxaj, katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] often means “with reference to.” And arxaj is the accusative plural from archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAY], the Greek word for beginning. It should be translated “with reference to the beginnings.” It is in the plural. The plural of archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAY] refers to more than one beginning.

The Various Beginnings.

1. For example, the creation of the heavens and the earth was one beginning;
2. the creation of angels was another beginning. The restoration of the earth
3. and the creation of mankind was a third beginning.
4. All of these beginnings are recognized by the plural of archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAY].

So literally, “You and only You with reference to the beginnings, O Lord.” That is the Greek word order.

Immediately you should be struck with something. Kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] is the title of Jesus Christ for deity — kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] means deity. That is why there was a great conflict with the Roman empire. Rome claimed Caesar was lord and, of course, Christianity said Jesus is Lord. This caused many a martyrdom in the first centuries of church history.

Jesus Christ had something to do with all the beginnings in history. Jesus Christ created the universe, including the earth. That was one beginning. Then, sometime after that he created the angels. A long time after that we have the creation of man.

No one knows the age of the earth or of the universe. No traffic problems. Bob wishes that the Lord would do some work on Houston traffic. Bob is upset with slow drivers. No problem with traffic in the universe. God snapped His fingers and then angelic creation. God redesigned the earth for man’s occupation.

Now we have a specific reference to one of the things that Jesus Christ did as creator — “hast laid the foundation of the earth.” “Hast laid” is the aorist active indicative of qeneliow which means to lay a foundation or to build a foundation. We could translate this, “you and only you with reference to beginnings, O Lord, the earth you have founded.”

“and the heavens” — plural; “are” — present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] — “keep on being [existing]”; “the works” — ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon]; “of your hands” — the genitive plural of cheir (χείρ, χειροός, ῆ) [pronounced khīr]. This is what we call an anthropomorphism. Hands belong to the anatomy of mankind, they do not belong to God. God is a Spirit. Here we have ascribing to God some human characteristic in order to make a point. The point is that Christ has more power in His hands than all of the angelic creatures put together. So we have, “are the works of your hands.”

The hands of Christ as an anthropomorphism make a very wonderful study. Here in Hebrews 1:10 and in Psalm 19:1 Jesus Christ created the universe, so the hands of Christ are the hands of the creator. The hands of Jesus Christ were also nailed to the cross — Psalm 22:16; John 20:19-28. These are also the hands of security — Psalm 37:24, “though we stumble he upholds us with His hands”, and the same thing is found in John 10:28. The hands of Jesus Christ are the hands of creation, salvation and security.

Hebrews 1:10 You and only You with reference to beginnings, O Lord, the earth You have founded and the heavens keep on being the works of Your hands R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 1:11 they will perish, but you remain; they will all wear out like a garment,

Verse 11 — we begin again with an emphatic word “They” .This is a)utoi, a nominative plural of a reflexive pronoun. The word refers to the heavens of the previous verse, which is why it is in the plural. Remember that the heavens are the abode of the angels. This is not only a reflexive pronoun but it is intensive at the same time and therefore it should be translated here, “They themselves.” This is a reference to the heavens.

“shall perish” — future middle indicative of apollumi (ἀπόλλυμι) [pronounced ap-OL’-loo-mee] which refers to the future destruction of the heavens at the end of the Millennium. The Millennium is a civilization of perfect environment. Man has always clamoured for perfect environment, man is always trying to find perfect environment. He is trying to legislate perfect environment, he is trying to bring about perfect environment. Man has never succeeded in doing so and never will because in this civilization we have an angel, the devil, ruling the world. Consequently, man cannot bring about perfect environment. But once Jesus Christ bumps the devil and supersedes him as the ruler of this world, he will bring about perfect environment. Then a very interesting thing happens. There is always a revolution or rebel somewhere revolting against something. The reason for it is always given as “we need to improve things.” Revolution has never improved anything, historically speaking.

Even against perfect environment there is a revolution. This is indicated here, “they themselves shall perish.” The heavens are destroyed after that revolution is put down. A part of putting down the final revolution — revolution is always anti-establishment, therefore anti-God — the heavens are destroyed. That is what is mentioned here: “they themselves [the heavens] shall be destroyed” — future middle indicative of apollumi (ἀπόλλυμι) [pronounced ap-OL'-loo-mee]. This destruction of the heavens after the revolution at the end of the Millennium is described in Matthew 24:35; 2Peter 3:10-12; Revelation 20:11; 21:1; Hebrews 12:26,27; Isaiah 34:4.

“but thou” — another proleptic pronoun, su de, and it should be translated “and emphatically you” — “remain unchanged,” present active indicative of diamenw. Diamenw doesn't mean really to remain, it means to remain unchanged.

“they all” — kai pantes (πάντες) [pronounced PAHN-tehç] [pantes (πάντες) [pronounced PAHN-tehç] is the plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs]], refers again to the heavens — “shall wax old,” future passive indicative of palaiōō (παλαιόω) [pronounced pahl-ah-YOH-oh]. This means to be superseded here — “they shall be superseded.” The heavens that are now in existence are going to be superseded by some new heavens. The illustration which is given here: “as doth a garment” .Literally, “as a cloak.”

Hebrews 1:11 But You, and emphatically You (Jesus Christ) will remained unchanged; but they all (the heavens) will be superseded, like a garment.... R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation we are suddenly in v. 12.

Hebrews 1:12 like a robe you will roll them up, like a garment they will be changed. But you are the same, and your years will have no end."

Verse 12 — “And as” — a conjunctive kai followed by an adverb o(sei — “and like.” The word for vesture, peribolaion, means a mantle that you wrap around you.

Bob knew how to do this at one time, to wrap himself in a Roman mantle; you are half-gentleman and half-hippie. The Romans knew how to dress comfortably and gracefully. Everyone then only had 2 garments. They all had the same clothes. The toga and then a harness that might pass for a leather g string; and those were working clothes. Ladies had a garment that went down just above their knees; a much better style then. The Romans spent all of their time in these clothes. What was dressy was the color and the border. Most of the people wore white. They did not wear yellow, green or blue.

The Britans battled naked, and they were tattooed in blue and hard for others to concentrate. For the first 300 years, everyone had about the same food. Whether a Senator or a common man. They really went for turnips. They ate fruit; and about every 10 days, they had a market day; and they would kill a lamb and eat mutton. They drank milk; and the only ancient people who drank water just about. They became famous before they heard of wine; and did not drink for the first few hundred years. They had a good start on everyone else. They lived a simple life and they seemed to have a lot of fun. As they became more complex, they seemed to decline.

Verse 12 — “and like a robe you will fold them up, and they shall be changed” — “they” refers to the heavens. Like a garment the heavens are going to be changed at the end of the Millennium — “they shall be changed” is a future passive indicative of allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-l-LAH]ssw. The future tense indicates replacing a garment. This refers to the heavens, the abode of angels. Jesus Christ will take the home of the angels, the heavens, and fold them up like a garment. While the heavens change, Jesus Christ superior to angels, does not change, and therefore we have the final phrase — “but,” conjunction of contrast, “you keep on being the same” — present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], absolute status quo — ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] autos — “the same.” Jesus Christ remains forever in the hypostatic union.

“and thy years” — the system of dating age in the ancient world — “shall not fail” — future active indicative of ekleipō (ἐκλείπω) [pronounced ek-LIE-poe], which doesn’t mean to fail, it means to fall off or come to an end — “and your years shall not come to an end.”

Hebrews 1:12 “And like a robe you will fold them [the heavens and the earth] up, as a garment also they [they heavens] shall be changed [or, replaced]: but You [Jesus Christ] keep on being the same, and Your years do not come to an end.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

So the heavens are at the mercy of Jesus Christ, but Jesus Christ is never at the mercy of the heavens. Nature is at the mercy of Christ but Christ is never at the mercy of nature. When nature is destroyed the fallen angels are judged and cast into the lake of fire prepared for the devil and his angels — Matthew 25:41. Jesus Christ is untouched by these things, and so, by the way, is everyone in union with Christ.

Hebrews 1:13 And to which of the angels has he ever said, "Sit at my right hand until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet"? (Psalm 110:1)

Verse 13 — the climax of the documentation. “But to which of the angels” — “to which” is the preposition tís (τις) [pronounced tihç] plus the accusative. “But face to face with which of the angels” — pros plus the accusative; “has he said” — perfect active indicative of légo (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]; “at any time.” We have an enclitic particle poté (ποτέ) [pronounced poht-EH].

Now begins the seventh quotation, the climactic quotation from Psalm 110:1 — “Sit down,” present active imperative of kathêmai (κάθημαι) [pronounced KATH-ay-mahoe]. The present tense is dramatic; active voice: addressed to Jesus Christ the God-Man, and addressed specifically to His humanity. So we have the dramatic present to indicate one of the most dramatic moments in history when a human being was commanded to sit down at the right hand of the Father. The active voice: Christ was seated at the place of honour, emphasizing His humanity. And, again, humanity at that point becomes superior to angelic creatures. The imperative mood: Christ was commanded to sit until operation footstool is completed.

“on my right hand side,” literally — “until” — heôs (ἕως) [pronounced HEH-ocē] — “I appoint [or constitute]” — aorist active subjunctive of tithēmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee]. The time of appointment according to the aorist tense is the second advent. The active voice: God the Father produces the action; He does the appointing. The subjunctive mood is not potential here but it is an indefinite temporal clause which is used in the Greek for a future event certain to come but the exact time is unknown.

“your enemies” — the fallen angels plus Satan — “thy footstool” .The Greek says “the footstool of your foot.” The footstool of your foot was a sign of conquest in the ancient world. In the Roman world there were three signs of conquest.

Three Signs of Conquest

1. First of all, prisoners passing under spears was a sign of defeat.
2. The second was to put your foot on the head of the conquered.
3. The third way was for kings. They would sit on a throne and the prisoners had to crawl up under the foot of the king.

That is the one we have here, and this is actually what happens to the demons — the become “the footstool of your foot.” In other words, you rest your foot not on the ground but on a footstool which is someone else’s head.

Hebrews 1:13 “But face to face with which of the angels has he said at any time, Sit down on My right hand side, until I appoint Your enemies the footstool of Your feet.”

Doctrine of Operation Footstool

1. Israel under the fifth cycle of discipline no longer represents Jesus Christ on the earth. Since 70 AD the southern kingdom has been under the fifth cycle of discipline. Many of the Jews to whom this was originally addressed were unbelievers, therefore under a double curse. They were under the penalty of sin, which is death, and they were about to get under the fifth cycle of discipline. The only answer to this is the grace of God — Hebrews 2:1,3. All of this adds up to the principle that the Jews were about to go under a terrible disaster, and at that point the southern kingdom no longer represents the Lord Jesus Christ. In place of that, of course, we have the Church.
2. Israel is replaced by the Church, hence the Church now represents Jesus Christ on the earth. Remember that any Jew who believes in Christ is a member of the body of Christ, or the Church, just as any Gentile. In that way cursing is turned to blessing for Israel during the Church Age. Because of this and the session of Jesus Christ the angelic conflict has intensified during the Church Age. In fact, everything has changed. The Church Age is a radical change in the function of believers because of the intensification of the angelic conflict. In the past angels were teachers of prophets, angels gave the law to Moses??????, angels were teachers in the Old Testament. But angels are now replaced by human teachers — the pastor-teacher. All of this is a part of the intensification of the angelic conflict and all of this started on the basis of the session of Jesus Christ. The various passages which emphasize this include Ephesians 1:22-24; 2:16; 4:4,5; 5:23,24, 30,32; Colossians 1:18,24; 2:19.

3. The body of Christ is being prepared on earth by means of the baptism of the Holy Spirit — 1Corinthians 12:13; Colossians 2:10. At the moment of salvation every believer is entered into union with Christ. Positionally, all believers are now superior to angels.
4. When the body is completed it is removed from the devil's world by means of the Rapture of the Church — 1Thessalonians 4:16-18. Rapture is a technical word for the resurrection of the Church Age believers only. The completed body, through the Rapture, then becomes the bride of Christ. Once in heaven the bride is prepared for the second advent.
5. The preparation of the bride in heaven: First of all the bride enters ultimate sanctification, which means receiving a resurrection body like that of the Lord Jesus Christ — 1Corinthians 15:51-57; Philippians 3:21; 1John 3:1,2. Secondly, the bride is not permitted to have anything old. The old sin nature is removed — 1Thessalonians 5:23. Thirdly, the bride is cleansed from all human good — 1Corinthians 3:12,15.
6. The bride returns with Christ at the second advent — 1Thessalonians 3:13; Revelation 19:6-8.
7. Then comes operation footstool which occurs at the second advent. First of all, Satan is imprisoned for a thousand years — Revelation 20:1-3. Secondly, fallen angels are removed by believers of the Church Age — Zechariah 13:2; Colossians 2:15; 1Corinthians 15:24,25.
8. The removal of Satan and fallen angels, plus the rulership of Christ replacing Satan, changes the environment of the earth. Religion is removed — 1Corinthians 10:20,21. You can't have perfect environment as long as you have religion on the earth. False doctrine is removed (doctrines of demons) — 1Timothy 4:1. Spirituality includes ecstasies for the first time — Joel 2:28,29. Perfect environment on earth. Lion and the lamb lay down together; animals lose their ferocity; lion will eat straw like the ox; weather will be perfect, all over the world. Flowers will grow in great abundance. Sand will be there, but covered with growth. Bob does not care whether it is a rose or a crocus. No one will be on relief. Crime will be detected immediately and punished immediately. Capital punishment is the only reason why a person dies.

Heb. 1:14 Are they not all ministering spirits sent out to serve for the sake of those who are to inherit salvation?

Verse 14 — the result of the superiority of Christ over angels. "Are they not all" — "all" refers to angels. As a result of operation footstool the fallen angels are going to be removed. So what happens to the elect angels? We already know what they are going to do. They are already the servants of believers, and that is what they are going to be forever. You have a guardian [servant] angel now, and you may have a whole plantation full of angels as servants in the future. Angels who are now superior to us are going to be servants. Bob wishes that Abraham Lincoln knew this passage. The principle is: What Jesus Christ did is so great that the elect angels are now the servants of believers on this earth. We will each have a servant angel. What Jesus did is so great that the elect angels are now the servants of believers, those corny, sorry carnal believers. Every type of believer will have a slave angel.

“ministering” — leitourgikoj, which means a subordinate servant. Angels superior to you by creation will take the place of subordination, and be glad to do it. And already they are doing it. You can be subordinate and be happy and blessed. Certain people can do certain things. Bob talks about some Black people who are in subordinate positions and they are happy and content. They enjoy life. The Word of God does not condone slavery; nor does it condone putting people in positions that they are not qualified for. When you believe in Jesus Christ, you learn to be content with your life. You just cannot gild the lily. Freedom means you go into life doing whatever you are capable of. There is a lot of poor white trash too. Some of them are in Washington; and that is a part of our problem. Liberalism always tries to gild a lily. Who wants a gilded lily anyway? Angels, created superior to us; they will be our servants.

“sent forth” — the present passive participle of ἀποστέλλω which here means being sent into action, as subordinate servants — “to minister,” the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of diakonia. “E)ij” here means “for the purpose of” — “for the purpose of ministry.” Diakonia is to row where the bilge is the hardest. Not sure about that. Worst place to be, according to Bob.

“for them” — dia plus the accusative which is “because of them” — “who shall be” is mellô (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low] which means to be about to be.

“heirs of salvation” — the word “heirs” is a present active infinitive of a verb, κληρονομέω [pronounced klay-ron-om-EH-oh], and it means to inherit “salvation,” σωτηρία (σωτηρία) [pronounced soh-tay-REE-ah], which should be translated “deliverance” — deliverance from the devil’s world.

Hebrews 1:14 “Are not they [the elect angels] all subordinate servants, spirits being sent into action for the purpose of ministry because of them [believers] being about to inherit deliverance.”

deliverance from the devil’s world.

Here is the principle of the guardian angel. The guardian angel is a servant to you. Why? Because positionally you are in union with Christ, and Christ is superior to all angels. And since positionally you are in Christ, and since positionally you are superior to all angels, then it follows. If you have a position higher than angels then angels ought to be serving you. Therefore you are served by elect angels at this time, and this is the way it will always be forever and ever. Angels will even provide music for us?

We are set up for the Angelic Conflict, in the next chapter.

1972 Hebrews 2:1

Lesson #6

06/09/1972 Bona fide ritual has meaning; ritual without meaning will be destroyed

The first item of business is to get some kind of report on this trip. Buddy Dano and Bob returned from a hotel in Atlanta, Georgia. Buddy Dano gets up to speak. First time there was a conference Atlanta, Georgia. Took Buddy a long time to learn about the faith-rest technique. And some 50 years to learn about Georgia peaches; the kind without fuzz. Well-attended conference. People drove from as far as 4.5 hours away; Florida, Alabama, Virginia. Really interesting to see souther womanhood and souther gentlemenhood. The south will not rise again; it has already risen. Atlanta was beautiful with Magnolias and mint julips. Various music. A great deal of military represented there. Jerry Webber, came out for doctrine; graduated from the Marine Corps; #1 in his class. Green beret there; and another. Everything necessary was provided for. Nothing was asked for. Presidential suite; the door even said that. He kept walking in that door. Maybe 2 longhairs, but Bob got rid of them the first night. The people growing up today will have no idea what happened at the battle of Atlanta. Terrible presentation on the battle of Atlanta; liberalized (not sure where that was). Book store where he got a few books on Theodore Roosevelt. Perfect example there how doctrine opened up the doors. They were entertainers. Both husband and wife were ex-Catholic; they were entertainers; and we sent them some materials.

Some pastors there. Black man there who graduated from Carter. He was interested in going to Dallas. There are those interested in reaching the Blacks. That is what he wanted to do.

5 year old daughter listening to Adam's Rib. Her question, "Momma, what's a prostitute?" Mom was in a bind and explained to her; and she said, "I won't do that; I will wait for my right man."

Birmingham, Alabama is wide open; many people came from there. Maybe more there than from Atlanta.

Chapter 2

You do it God's way or you don't.

Heb 2:1 Therefore we must pay much closer attention to what we have heard, lest we drift away from it.

Heb 2:2 For since the message declared by angels proved to be reliable, and every transgression or disobedience received a just retribution,
Heb 2:3 how shall we escape if we neglect such a great salvation? It was declared at first by the Lord, and it was attested to us by those who heard,
Heb 2:4 while God also bore witness by signs and wonders and various miracles and by gifts of the Holy Spirit distributed according to his will.
Heb 2:5 For it was not to angels that God subjected the world to come, of which we are speaking.

This chapter as a whole is a phenomenal chapter. You must remember that angels have a relationship to Jesus Christ and therefore function in the plan of grace. You must also remember that members of the human race who are born again have a relationship to Jesus Christ, to God the Father, and therefore have a purpose in this life. Fallen angels have rejected God's grace and are going to spend eternity in the lake of fire. Unbelievers have rejected Jesus Christ as Savior and are also going to spend eternity in the lake of fire.

The first time in human history, we have angels and man on earth at the same time. We cannot see them; they can see us.

Outline of Chapter Two: Four Paragraphs

1. The prologue: The angelic conflict is a warning to the human race — verses 1–5.
2. We have the two Adams and the angelic conflict — verses 6–9.
3. We have the bride and the angelic conflict — verses 10–13.
4. Epilogue: Since mankind was created to resolve the angelic conflict Christ became a man — verses 14–18

Why the Hypostatic Union? Why did He not become the God-angel. There came a time when He became the God-man. This chapter brings together the Trinity, our relationship to them, giving our lives meaning. Life has no meaning apart from the Father, Son and Spirit. There is a higher creation than us, which requires some explanation. Then there is mankind; and our life has meaning.

Some of you are perturbed, etc. It is hard to teach to happy people.

Hebrews 2:1 Therefore we must pay much closer attention to what we have heard, lest we drift away from it.

Verse 1 — “Therefore,” Dia, the preposition, touto, the accusative singular. Dia plus the accusative should be translated, “Because of this.” I would say that this looks back to the first chapter.

Because of What?

1. Because Jesus Christ as the God-Man is the victor in the angelic conflict — we are not victors; angels are not victors. Hebrews 1:1–4.

2. Because of the Old Testament documentation as to the superiority of Christ over angels — Hebrews 1:5–13.
3. Because the angels have been subordinated to believers in time — Hebrews 1:14.
4. Therefore, because of the angelic conflict the human race is warned, Do not reject Jesus Christ. The worst thing we could do is to refuse to believe in Jesus Christ as Savior.
5. Jesus Christ as a member of the human race is the victor of the angelic conflict. Furthermore, any member of the human race who rejects Christ as Savior will share the ultimate destiny of all fallen angels which is the eternal lake of fire.

This prepositional phrase not only begins the second chapter of Hebrews but relates it to the first chapter. The privacy of the priesthood in the church lies in your soul. Christianity is very personal.

Our next word is a personal pronoun which is a special warning to Jewish unbelievers residing in Jerusalem in 67 AD, three years before the fall of Jerusalem. Titus will roll into Jerusalem with his troops and kill a million people; and 97,000 Jews will be taken into slavery. This is one of the great catastrophes of all human history. Luke 21 Jesus warned those listening to Him as well.

The writer has pointed out the great victory of Jesus Christ, but he must stop here and warn the citizens of Jerusalem, those who are in a state of rejection of Jesus Christ. This is their hope to escape this persecution and to have lives with meaning and definition.

“We” is used in a very interesting way here. The writer is going to warn of missing the boat; he is going to present the gospel from the negative side. The writer is a believer; the passage coming up is a challenge to unbelievers. He uses the personal pronoun “we” — the accusative plural of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced eg-OH] — to warn to beware of missing the port of eternal life, because if you refuse to believe in Jesus Christ you are going to be overtaken by a national catastrophe. Believing in Christ not only means your personal salvation but believing in Christ means your personal safety in the coming Jewish war with Rome. So he identifies himself with his people. Whoever the writer is, he is a Jew. He is a believer and he has written one of the most unique of all of the books of the Bible. He is a fantastic person in that as a believer in Jesus Christ he feels the desperate need of the hour, and he identifies himself with unbelievers to bring them this message. He isn’t an unbeliever but at this moment he is speaking to unbelievers, he is identifying himself with them, and he is exercising a function of his priesthood which indicates his maturity. He is willing to take responsibility for his own nation. He is willing to associate himself with unbelievers who are in peril.

“ought” — this is a very strange form. It is taken from a verb which is never used as such — dei, which is what is called an impersonal form to indicate logical necessity. The writer is a patriotic believer, concerned for his people and for their lives.

The logical necessity is for religious types, and of course religious types are the most difficult ones to reach with the Gospel. You have to slap religious people down with many negs because they are negative. The worst people in the world to whom to witness are religious people. They have too many theories and ideas on how they are going to get to heaven. They have built a hundred back doors into heaven through legalism. They all have their own little pet ideas and they will hang on to them if for no other reason than they don't like the set of your jib and they want to argue with you; they want to put you down. The Jews who lived in Jerusalem were generally very religious people.

Exceptions like the Hellenistic Jews who accepted Greek culture.

"For this cause we ought..." religious people always have some big thing going for them, at least in their own opinion. They all have this thing they feel is important. The Jews at this time, in a state of unbelief and in a state of religion, had clung tenaciously to the Levitical priesthood. When people are often uncertain as to their destiny they try to find some tradition on which to anchor it. Therefore they had a temple in which they used animal sacrifices. They had a priesthood. Even though many of the priests were not even related to the tribe of Levi they still functioned. They had lots of ceremonies and religious activities, lots of religious days they had added to the feasts of the Levitical code, and they dabbled in these things and they clung to these things. All through this great epistle we are going to find the writer showing that these things had a purpose in the past, that that purpose is now gone, that there is a new purpose for believers, there is a new purpose in life. And the new purpose in life is related to the fact that the priesthood to which they cling, and the ceremonies and the functions of that priesthood, are all shadows, they're gone, they're out; and that there is now a super priesthood, an eternal priesthood. And as religious types functioning under the temple activities they are very far from these things, and that in the function of their priesthood and going through all of their sacrifices they are actually in the worst possible shape; they are on the way to hell with these things.

Bob talks about ceremonies and the Military.

Ritual of brushing one's teeth? Bob never hears a military tune without thinking of his service and country; loved mounted reviews. A mounted brigade is fantastic. This ritual has meaning. Any ritual related to maintaining our freedom is fantastic.

The Jews had wonderful traditions and rituals of music. They could sing and play instruments. Once Jesus came and died for our sins, their rituals no longer had any meaning. The shadow worshipers were going to hell; they had not believed in Jesus Christ.

The Jews had their ritual and it pulled them together. It gave them national consciousness at a time when Rome was about to bury them again. They related it to their nation, to their freedom, and unfortunately they related it to God. But you can't take the shadows of ritual and get any reality with God. In the past that ritual had reality because Christ had not yet come in the flesh. But once Jesus Christ came and died on the cross for our sins, and was raised again and ascended, now that ritual still used has no reality. It is shadow worship.

Tragically the shadow worshippers were going to hell, they had not believed in Jesus Christ. There were also reversionistic believers who joined them, and by joining them encouraged them to think that they had some reality. But in the year 67 AD the offering of the animal sacrifices had no reality. The man who wrote this book was a Jew. His heart was broken because all of these rituals when they pointed to Christ before He came were wonderful, but now that Christ has come and these people have rejected Him they are left with an empty shell called religion, and they are left with a ritual that has no meaning. This is what this writer sees as he begins with such phrases as Dia touto, "Because of this we ought." And why does he say "we"? Because he is a Jew, a born again Jew, and therefore really not a Jew any more but a member of the body of Christ. He can understand the tragedy of the religious Jew in 67 AD And not only does he understand the tragedy but he has under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit the most fantastic compassion you will ever see in writing. His Greek becomes classical Greek from time to time. This is because he has great compassion. The writer of this book is a man with an edification complex structure and he moved into the supergrace life.

You walk into this chapter and you realize that there are religious people who are going to hell; and they don't even have fun. Marti gras is the last time to raise hell before 40 days of agony.

The word "ought" really should be translated "it is necessary," and it introduces logical necessity for religious people dabbling in shadows of the law and fooling around with the function of an obsolete priesthood when Jesus Christ has come in the flesh, and has come and established Himself as the high priest forever after the order of Melchizedek. And the high priest is seated at the right hand of the Father, and the reality that He has left behind is no longer in ritual in the temple or animal sacrifices or observing the ritual of a holy day, but in taking in the Word — the daily function of GAP. The Jews should have understood this, they had manna every day. God still provides manna but it is in written form — the Word of God. Once manna is put in writing, ritual is unnecessary.

Every morning, people came out of their tents and God gave them another day. There was not a day when manna wasn't there. When they were undeserving in every way, God still provided for them each and every day.

God still provides manna, but it is in written form. How can you relate to ritual if there is no reality in your life. By the time we get out of this chapter, we will separate the sheep from the goats. If you don't love Jesus Christ, then get the hell out of here and let someone occupy your seat who does.

Brotherhood is apostasy. There is a so-called brotherhood, but the key is Jesus Christ, not people. Brotherly love is a farce, an hypocrisy. Love1 is what is key, not love2.

"For this cause it is necessary for us" — to make it personal the writer now identifies himself with the unbelievers of Jerusalem. While the writer has heeded these things the unbelievers of Jerusalem have not. He is saved; they are not. His compassion is overflowing to them.

“to give” — actually we have to words here. The word “to give” isn’t to give at all, it is a present active infinitive — proséchô (προσέχω) [pronounced pros-EHKH-oh]. echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh] means to have and to hold; “give” is the word didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee]. Pros plus the accusative means face to face with. We have pros plus echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh] in the infinitive — to have and to hold face to face. Proséchô (προσέχω) [pronounced pros-EHKH-oh] means “to have and to hold face to face with” It as real as anything will ever be. When you love someone, you give them some face to face attention. Man is designed to embrace face to face. Did you ever embrace back to back? A tame translation would be, “For this cause we ought to pay much more attention.”

This means to have something in your soul, so much so that it is a reality to you. Therefore it connotes everything from concentration on what is communicated to giving undivided attention. The word “give” here means to embrace; it is an infinitive of reality. It is category #1 love, present tense, linear aktionsart, active voice. The believer priest has a face to face reality thing but why does he use it here for unbelievers who are about to depart from this life without Christ. He used it for them because every day they faced the altar of the temple, they faced animal sacrifices, they faced the high priest and the priests in their function in the ritual. And they think that is reality but it isn’t. The reality is with the high priest, Jesus Christ.

The phrase “more earnest” is really one word, a comparative adverb, perisotwōj. The word actually means much, much more than we are doing, and in effect the writer is demanding that Jewish unbelievers stop this ritual for a minute and listen. The tremendous moving ritual is a pageantry of emptiness; it is going to hell in style. There is no reality in it any longer. The reality lies in who and what Jesus Christ is: what He has done for you on the cross and what happened to the angelic conflict when God the Father said, Sit down on my right hand until I make your enemies your footstool.

The phrase “to the things” is one word. It is a dative plural, tōj, and it is a dative of advantage. It is to your advantage, unbelieving Jews, to listen to the Gospel — “which we have heard” — the Jews have heard the Gospel all of their lives. They have the Torah, the Old Testament Scripture. It is an aorist passive participle of akouō (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh]. They have been hearing the Gospel in many different ways. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb, and the main verb is proséchô (προσέχω) [pronounced pros-EHKH-oh] — face to face, have and hold. You have to hear before you can hold face to face. In other words, proséchô (προσέχω) [pronounced pros-EHKH-oh] as addressed to unbeliever Jews is the moment they believe in Jesus Christ. But you can’t hear while you are running around going through all this ritual. They are so involved in ritual that they have lost touch with reality completely.

So we have, “For this cause it is necessary for us to pay more attention to the things having been heard” — aorist passive participle. The passive voice indicates that in the past these people have really received a lot of Gospel.

A casual believer might not be impressed with the writer of Hebrews. Some of you are too filled with salesmanship; but that is not witnessing for Christ. The writer of Hebrews has common sense; he knows what the Jews have already heard. He does not use some goofy system that he just heard the other day.

Some get an edification complex structure and then they stop growing. Once a believer grows into the supergrace life, he never witnesses in the same way twice in a row. He has so much information, he can emphasize what is important to the person.

Buddy Dano walked into that book store like Appomattox. But he scored a great book. People knew Bible doctrine.

Bob thought about many things due to that book; and he realized that the writer of Hebrews is a great patriot. It is a great challenge; the challenge of deliverance.

The application part of the verse. “lest” — the negative mê, which denies subjectivity. The negative mê is a little different from the others like ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] and o)u, and so on. It is a negative which is designed to deny subjectivity. When you use this type of a negative in the Greek and you follow it up with an enclitic particle you develop a negative temporal clause out of it. We have the enclitic particle pote, so we have two words: mhpote, and it should be translated literally, “lest at any time.” But what does it mean? It means the time is short. He now relates the reality of the situation. All of this ritual is meaningless, the time is short, this ritual is about to be wiped out. This ritual which is blinding you is going to be removed, the Romans are going to destroy the temple.

The Romans are going to destroy their worship system; their rituals. But if the Romans can destroy it, then it is not eternal.

“lest we should let them slip” — the word “them” is not there in the Greek. What we have is a verb, an aorist active subjunctive of the verb pararrew. This is a compound. Para means “past” or “by” here. Para is the preposition of immediate source with some tenses, but para means past or by. Rew means to flow; sometimes it means to drift. Para plus rew means to flow past or to drift past or to slip past something. Here it is used in a nautical sense of a ship facing the possibility of a great storm and not able to tack back and forth to enter the harbour. This is the place of safety, this is the place of salvation through faith in Jesus Christ. And these Jews are drifting past, and once they drift past and pass the headland the storm is going to hit them. The headland is 70 AD and this is 67 AD. And going on in the habit of ritual they are drifting past the point of salvation and are going around the headland, and the storm is going to destroy them. The Jews are facing national catastrophe. They are warned not to drift past the only reality, Jesus Christ.

Ritual, religion, makes you drift past reality.

Once you pass the headland, you are right in the middle of the storm.

Hebrews 2:1 “For this cause it is necessary for us to pay more attention to the things having been heard [the doctrine, not the ritual], lest at any time we might drift past them.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation this introduces a very long conditional clause.

1972 Hebrews 2:2–3

06/16/1972 Jews worship shadow, reject the reality of Christ

Bob is finding more and more about the supergrace life; and he almost wanted to have a special on it.

Hebrews chapter 2 is one of the more difficult passages in the Word of God for interpretation as well as application because this passage finds us right in the middle of the angelic conflict at a desperate time in the history of the southern kingdom of Judah.

This was written in A.D. 67, just 3 years before the destruction of Jerusalem, something which is heavily documented. This could have been avoided had the Hebrew people believed in Jesus Christ.

Hebrews 2:1 “For this cause it is necessary for us to pay more attention to the things having been heard [the doctrine, not the ritual], lest at any time we might drift past them.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

They are warned not to drift by their only salvation, the Lord Jesus Christ. They are about to go into one of the greatest catastrophes of human history.

Hebrews 2:2 For since the message declared by angels proved to be reliable, and every transgression or disobedience received a just retribution,...(ESV)

A conditional clause will cover 2 verses.

Verse 2 — we begin with the particle gar, translated “for.” We have to watch these particles in the Greek very carefully. gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] can be used in three general ways in the Greek. First of all, to express a basis or a reason for something. This is called the illative use and it is translated under these conditions, “for.” That is the type of particle we have here at the beginning of verse 2. However, gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is also used to provide an explanation, and when it is, it is translated “that is.” It is also used to express a confirmation or an assurance of something, and then it is translated “indeed” or “certainly” .Here we find an illative use of gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] to express or introduce a reason.

Here is the reason why unsaved Jews should pay more attention to the Gospel than they ever have before — because the time is short, they are about to face great national disaster. In that national disaster, while there are a million Jews living in Jerusalem at this time, 900,000 of them will die horribly, some 90,000 will go into slavery, and the only way to avoid these things is to respond to the Gospel, believe in Christ, and get out of Jerusalem as a result of understanding doctrine.

Our second word is a particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] which introduces a first class condition — “For if,” and whatever follows the word “if” is true, this is a bona fide first class condition. (There is also a debater’s first class condition in which something is assumed to be true for the sake of setting up an argument for debate)

There are about 185 doctrines contained in the Law of Moses. Moses and Aaron were the qualified teachers in Israel. 70 men were qualified administrators; but not teachers. Angels were the teachers of the Jews in the Exodus generation. Ho logos is a specific reference to the angels who taught the people of Israel. Angels acting as teachers; as pastor-teachers. 3 sections to the Mosaic Law. Confirmation: Deuteronomy 33:2 Psalm 68:7 Acts 7:38, 53 Gal. 3:19. The Jews had 2 types of teachers. Moses was one of the greatest Bible teachers of all time. Aaron was a good teacher as well. He was more like a college professor who lives up in the clouds. The Exodus generation had the best of Bible teaching. All of these passages indicate that angels taught the people. In teaching this, they were teaching shadows. The divine establishment section was not shadow. When these doctrines were taught, they were taught in shadow form. All 5 levitical sacrifices taught by the angels. They explained these things to the priests. All of these things were very carefully explained. This is how many thousands of people were taught. So there is also a corps of angels teaching.

There was also the teaching of ritual, which is used to teach many things. This is a bona fide way of teaching. In this protosis, it is true that angels taught doctrine.

During the time of the book of Hebrews, these rituals were no longer valid. The shadows look forward to the cross. The mystery age is a time that the people did not understand. The mystery age was taught by Jesus, as a prophet; Upper Room Discourse and the Gethsemane discourse? Then the apostles took it from there. At this new dispensation, the shadows are over; they are gone. It is no longer right for angels to engage in teaching in the Church Age. No longer necessary.

If the angels taught shadows, then man teaches the mystery and the mystery is even moer so. The Jews are hung up on the shadows. They are still going to the Temple; they are still offering up animal sacrifices. Both the believer and the unbeliever in reversionism are dabbling in shadows. With the believer: crucifying the Son of God afresh; putting Him to open shame — Hebrews 6:6; with the unbeliever: drifting by the port of eternal salvation — Hebrews 2:1. Believers and unbelievers both dabbling in shadows.

The shadows were administered by angels. Now that man is superior to angels and now that the born again believer is positionally superior to angels — though not physically at the present time — how does he get the Word of God today? Not through ritual, not through shadows, you get it through teaching — the pastor-teacher. Bob is no angel.

Human beings are provided a spiritual gift and in the provision of that spiritual gift members of the human race in a body of corruption can communicate things that the elect angels didn't even know of. Remember that the Church Age doctrine is a mystery doctrine, and not only did the people not know about it but neither did the angels. The angels could communicate the Mosaic law, they knew the Mosaic law; but Church Age doctrine they did not know. Therefore it is fitting that in God's plan of grace that men, starting with the apostles and continuing in every generation with pastor-teachers, should communicate things that angels did not even know of. In Ephesians 3:10 we have this fact, that the angels listen in on sermons so they can learn it too. The angels learn from the Church the wonderful things of God. That means that even the function of a Bible class breaks Satan's back in the angelic conflict because Satan always thought he had a chance as long as elect angels were communicating doctrine to believers in the Old Testament. But that is all wiped out now. Now it is strictly mankind. The Word of God is completed, no angels have anything to do with communication. And the power to communicate isn't even angelic power, the power is God the third person, the Holy Spirit. The power to receive in the power of the Spirit. No longer the power of the angels.

Gap in the OT was different; a different system of grace. The Holy Spirit had not yet been given because Christ was not yet glorified.

Angels taught, so only Moses and Aaron were needed, because of all the angels.

“the word spoken” — aorist active participle of laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh]. Laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] means two things. it means to gossip and it means to communicate in a conversational type situation. Here it means to communicate. It is an aorist active participle, therefore it should be translated “for if the doctrine (ho logos) having been communicated through angels” .Not “by angels” — dia plus the genitive means a channel. Dia plus aggelōj in the genitive should be translated “through the channel [or agency] of angels.” Angels were the channel by which God communicated doctrine to the Jews.

Next is “was” — aorist active indicative of ginomai — “became.” The word “was” means to become something that was not in existence before. This is an aorist tense, a constative aorist to cover the whole area of the Old Testament. And the word “steadfast” is the noun which goes with ginomai, the word bébaios (βέβαιος) [pronounced BEB-ah-yoss]. Bébaios (βέβαιος) [pronounced BEB-ah-yoss] means dependable, reliable, inviolable, permanent. The word “permanent” indicates that not only did the angels teach these things but human writers eventually recorded them. And everything that human writers recorded in the Old Testament angels were involved.

So far, putting it all together, this is what we have: “For if the doctrine having been communicated through the channel of angels became permanent [and it did]...” That is the first half of the protasis. There is a second part which is necessary to make the illustration. It has to do with the fact that when there was a violation of the law it was punished.

So we have next, “and every transgression” — kai pasa parabasis (παράβασις) [pronounced par-AB-as-is]. Parabasis (παράβασις) [pronounced par-AB-as-is] is the noun that we need. It means “stepping by the side of.” It comes to mean deviation, transgression, violation of the law — “and every transgression [or violation] of the law” — “and disobedience” — parakoh which does not really mean disobedience, it means refusal to hear doctrine, disobedience or unwillingness to hear. Disobedience means negative volition toward doctrine, unwillingness to hear Bible teaching. And so there were two kinds of violations. First of all there was the direct violation of the law, deviation from it, and secondly there was a violation called unwillingness to hear.

And these “received” — aorist active indicative of lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh]. Lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] is used here in the sense of receiving punishment, receiving discipline — “a just recompense of reward.” The word “just” is the accusative of e)ndikoj which means just or fair. The word “recompense of reward” is not correct. Whatever that word meant 300 years ago it is certainly not correct here. It is a compound noun mishapodosia (μισθαποδοσί) [pronounced mis-thap-od-oss-EE-ah]. It means punishment. fmisthos (μισθός) [pronounced mis-THOSS], the first part of the noun means wages. Apodidōmi (ἀποδίδωμι) [pronounced ap-od-EED-o-mee] is a verb from which the last part of the noun is taken and it means to receive back. So it is literally to receive back wages but it was also used in the unfavourable sense of receiving punishment, and that is what we have here — “received a just punishment.”

This is the protasis:

Hebrews 2:2 “For if the doctrine having been communicated through angels became permanent [and it did], and every violation of the law and negative volition received a just punishment [and it did].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. The victory of Christ in the angelic conflict becomes the spearhead to driving home the importance of Jewish unbelievers in 67 AD receiving Christ. The victory of Christ in the angelic conflict is His session and it becomes a spearhead for driving home to these Jews the importance of getting away from shadows. The shadows are no longer bona fide. Angels administered shadows but in the angelic conflict the angels have been defeated and man is superior to angels. Christ is a resurrection body is seated at the right hand of the Father, He is superior to all angels. Some day we, too, will have a resurrection body like His and physically we will be superior to angels. But in the meantime we have something that no other believer ever had before the Church Age began. We are in union with Christ; this is true of every person who has believed in the Lord Jesus Christ. None of this occurred in the Age of Israel. We are positionally superior to angels because we are in Christ. Angels are only impressed by Jesus Christ; they are not impressed by us? They are impressed with us only because we are in Christ. No angel can ever teach us now, because we are positionally in Christ. And someday, we will be in a resurrection body, and greater than all angels as a result. It is imperative that we wake up to the great principle. The fallen angels don't like this at all. No matter how sorry we are as a Christian, we are still greater than all angels, including Satan.

2. These Jews are enmeshed in the Mosaic law which originated by communication through angels. The Jewish people are tied up in the Mosaic Law.
3. But something more important is here: salvation administered by Jesus Christ, the son of David and our high priest forever. And they are missing it, they are drifting past the port of salvation. Salvation is a reality, all they have to do is believe in Jesus Christ. And all of that stuff in the temple is no good, it is a shadow. The fact that they are dabbling in the shadows at this point makes them apostate.
4. The Jews are dabbling in shadows while the reality is being presented to them. They are fiddling with the shadows but the reality is right there.
5. The angels administer shadow doctrine but Christ administers substance doctrine, reality doctrine.
6. If there was punishment for violation of the Mosaic law, and if that punishment was just and severe, how much more the rejection of Jesus Christ as Savior?

So much for the protasis; we go into the apodosis now.

Hebrews 2:3 how shall we escape if we neglect such a great salvation? It was declared at first by the Lord, and it was attested to us by those who heard, Verse 3 — “How shall we” — “how” is an interrogative adverb, pwj, and it should be really translated “By what means” — “shall we” — there is a pronoun here in the emphatic position, an editorial pronoun. The writer, though a saved Jew, identifies himself with unsaved Jews in order to make the issue clear. With the interrogative adverb we have a rhetorical question which expresses a denial — “How shall we escape,” future middle indicative of e)kfugw. This means to make a clean escape, to get completely away. Fugw means to escape; e)kfugw means to escape out, away from. The future tense envisions both eternity and the catastrophe of the fall of Jerusalem. It is possible to believe in Jesus Christ in 67 AD and not only to be saved immediately to escape the horrible second death but, at the same time, to escape one of the greatest catastrophes in history. All believers who had studied any doctrine, including Luke 21:20–24, got out. The middle voice is reflexive: every individual must make a decision for himself. The indicative mood: since this is a rhetorical question it expresses a denial, and there is no escape for unbeliever from either the catastrophe of the lake of fire or the catastrophe of the fifth cycle of discipline. Again, a rhetorical question expresses a denial when the rhetorical question is begun with an interrogative adverb rather than an interrogative pronoun. Therefore there is no escape.

“if we neglect” — an incorrect translation. Many of the translators, and some still do it, take a participle and translate it like an “if” clause. There is no “if” here, the “if” was back in the previous verse. This is an aorist active participle of ameléō (ἀμελέω) [pronounced ahm-el-EH-oh]. Ameléō (ἀμελέω) [pronounced ahm-el-EH-oh] actually means to disregard, and in that sense to neglect, to be totally unconcerned about something, to pay no attention to something. But it should be translated here, “having disregarded.”

“so great” is an ablative singular from têlikoutos/têlikautê (τηλικοῦτος/τηλικαύτη) [pronounced tay-lik-OO-toss]. The ablative case has the same morphology as the genitive case in the Greek. However, it has a different meaning. It has the concept of source. The ablative case connotes both source and separation. Here we have what is called an ablative of comparison in which there is nothing which can be compared to salvation. “So great” in the ablative means there never was, there never will be, there never can be anything to compare with salvation. “So great” is all right as a translation but it misses the whole concept of the ablative. Here we have a rhetorical question followed by an ablative of comparison and it says, Look, you have something that is greater than anything anyone will ever have, ever could have. Angels could envy you for what you have. There is nothing that will ever compare with it and, that isn’t all, while salvation is eternal life it is the beginning of something so great in time, if you will just get with doctrine it is absolutely fantastic again. The ablative of comparison says this: Look, so you’re saved, and you know you’re saved. But what is this salvation to you? Is it real to you? Is it absolutely unique? How can you ever fail to faith-rest or doubt God on anything when you already have the greatest thing in the world — “so great a salvation.”

With this ablative of comparison we have sôtêria (σωτηρία) [pronounced soh-tay-REE-ah], also in the ablative. The very word for salvation here is in the ablative. The way to translate it: “so great a salvation.” Why is he putting it in the ablative? Why does he have a rhetorical question followed by an ablative of comparison? Because while this is an appeal to Jewish unbelievers Jewish believers are reading this too and they are a bunch of knuckleheads at this point because they are not getting with doctrine. Jewish believers do not fully appreciate what they have from salvation. You have the most at salvation; so after salvation, we have much more than the most. This is unique in human history; unique in angelic history.

No one is every saved by anything that man can do. God knew we needed salvation, and He made it happen. Jesus executed it; and the Holy Spirit revealed it. So, there is no credit which we can take.

Salvation is complete and total grace; and there is more grace that comes after, as we grow. We have everything. What the hell is wrong with you? Don’t ever give your testimony until you understand this. If you are called to give a testimony, stand up and tell a joke, then sit down.

We have things that Moses longed for; and he was one of the greatest Bible teachers who ever lived.

“By what means shall we escape having disregarded so great a salvation.” There is no escape in eternity for those who reject Christ as Savior. There is no escape for unsaved Jews when divine judgement in time takes the form of the fifth cycle of discipline.

Now we go to a qualitative relative pronoun, a nominative feminine singular, hostis (ὅστις) [pronounced HOH-stihs]. It means “which kind” .The antecedent for this pronoun is “salvation” — which kind of salvation?” Next we have “at the first” which is archê (ἀρχή)

[pronounced ar-KHAY] and it means “a beginning.” Then, “began,” and there is no such word here as “began.” Instead we have the aorist active participle of lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] which means to receive — “which was at first communicated” (“Having received a beginning” is the literal translation) — “spoken” is the present middle infinitive laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh]. Laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] is used for angelic communication of doctrine; now laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] is used in the present middle infinitive for Jesus Christ speaking doctrine, but before He went to the cross. Why? Because Jesus Christ taught doctrine as the last Adam. He was born without a sin nature, without imputed sin. He lived a perfect life — the impeccability of Christ. So He even communicated in His perfection before His resurrection body which made Him superior to angels. And laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] is used here as it was used for angels in the previous verse, to indicate Christ communicated something as a man that no angels ever had the privilege of communicating. They communicated shadows; He communicated substance.

“having received a beginning to be spoken” — which should be translated “which was at first communicated” — dramatic present tense. Middle voice: Christ Himself did it as a man. The infinitive: it was God’s purpose that man should take over the communicating in this age. This is a reference to the spoken ministry of Jesus Christ in which the Jews were warned of the temporal judgement of the fifth cycle of discipline and the eternal judgement of the lake of fire for disregarding so great a salvation.

“By which means shall we escape having disregarded so great a salvation; which was at first communicated through the Lord.” We have the same structure as in the previous verse — dia plus the genitive — where we have “through the angels”; now we have “through the Lord”.

“by them that heard” is a preposition hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus an aorist active participle as the object — hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus akouō (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh].

U(po means “under the authority of,” and akouō (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh] means to hear and recognize authority, to hear and to concentrate.

Hebrews 2:3 “By what means shall we escape having disregarded so great a salvation; which was at first communicated through the Lord, and was verified under the authoritative teaching of those having heard.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

“Those having heard” means that the apostles took this up from the Lord and perpetuated it.

Summary

1. Those having heard refers to the apostles.
2. This passage infers that there was one generation between the writer of Hebrews and the Lord Jesus Christ.
3. The unknown writer of Hebrews could not be Paul who received this message direct from the Lord — Galatians 1:11.
4. The unknown writer of Hebrews received his message from the apostles who received it from the Lord.
5. Therefore this passage in its syntax makes a good case for either Clement of Rome, Barnabas, or Apollos being the human writer

Now Bob puts both verses together:

Hebrews 2:2 “For if the doctrine having been communicated through angels became permanent [and it did], and every violation of the law and negative volition [unwillingness to hear] received a just punishment [and it did].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 2:3 “By what means shall we escape having disregarded so great a salvation; which was at first communicated through the Lord [in contrast to the communication by angels], and was verified under the authoritative teaching of those having heard.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This is all a single thought.

V. 4 is a grace warning.

1972 Hebrews 2:4–5

Lesson #8

06/23/1972 Hebrews 2:4–5 Testimony of 2 U.S. Marines just out of basics; grace warning before judgment; doctrine of spiritual gifts; doctrine of civilizations

Corrected translation of vv. 2–3 given.

Hebrews 2:4 ...while God also bore witness by signs and wonders and various miracles and by gifts of the Holy Spirit distributed according to his will. (ESV)

Verse 4 — we have a grace warning to the Jews as they face the fifth cycle of discipline. Remember, there is a principle here. Because doctrine is neglected by a nation a nation which has a doctrinal heritage — the Jews in that day — the laws of divine establishment are neglected. And when the two of them are neglected there is first of all loss of freedom in the inter relationship of the nation, and secondly, loss of freedom and slavery by outside conquest. The Jews had a great heritage of Bible doctrine, a heritage of the laws of divine establishment. As a nation they had been blessed of God as few nations have ever been blessed. And yet, there came a generation of negative volition toward doctrine among believers, and therefore reversionism, the rejection of the laws of divine establishment and therefore confusion. When the laws of establishment are rejected the first thing to go is the military and law enforcement. After this there is nothing left and it is simply a matter of conquest. That is exactly what is about to happen. But before it happens, a special warning. This warning is given, beginning now in verse 4. God warned the Jews in a special way through Bible doctrine.

The first word in verse 4 is the genitive of theos plus the definite article — “The God.” We have what is a part of a genitive absolute with a present active participle. In a genitive absolute — which includes a noun in the genitive case in the present active participle — it is legitimately translated “The God.” “The God” is a reference to God the Father, the author of the divine plan — operation grace. The next word “also” is not found in the original.

“bearing them witness” — also a part of the genitive absolute. It is present active participle from a triple compound verb sunepimartureō (μαρτυρέω) [pronounced mar-too-REH-oh]. Sun is a preposition which means “with”; ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] is a preposition which means here “in addition to”; martureō (μαρτυρέω) [pronounced mar-too-REH-oh] means to testify in court, to witness. When you put it all together it means to jointly testify or to testify at the same time, or to confirm by additional testimony — “The God confirming by additional testimony” .

“both with signs” — instrumental plural of shmeion, which actually means “miracles,” and the instrumental should be translated “both by means of miracles.” The word shmeion doesn’t mean just an ordinary miracle, it means a miracle designed to alert a nation. It is not a miracle, for example, to a small group of people. Many of the miracles which were performed during the time of the Lord Jesus were observed by a few thousand people in one locale. But this is not the type of miracle meant here. Shmeion means a miracle which comes to the attention of the entire nation and is designed awaken a nation to a special need. There were three such miracles [shmeion], that is why it is translated “signs.” The three of them were given in the past and are found in the book of Isaiah. They were prophetic signs, warnings which team up with the book of Hebrews and with the ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ to warn Israel of coming disaster, the catastrophe of the fifth cycle of discipline.

The 3 Signs of the 5th Cycle of Discipline:

1. The first of these three signs or miracles was the virgin birth prophesied in Isaiah 7:14.
2. The second one was the sign of the two deaths of Christ in Isaiah 53:9.

3. The third was the sign of the gift of tongues in Isaiah 28:11.

Immediately we notice something about the word shmeion. It is not a miracle like when a person is blind and now he sees; it is not some man who has never walked and now he walks normally; it is not even like the one about Lazarus brought back from the dead. It is a miracle in the sense of a national warning.

The first of these signs was the virgin birth. There is only one time in all of history when anyone ever came into the world through the virgin birth, and that was the Lord Jesus Christ. The virgin birth made it possible for the humanity of Christ to come into the world without a sin nature, without the imputation of Adam's sin.

In order to go to the cross where the second warning occurred Jesus Christ had to be free from any personal sin, which He was. Therefore He arrived at the cross in the status quo of impeccability. As the God-Man, undiminished deity could not sin; humanity was temptable but impeccable. So the Lord Jesus Christ came to the cross without any sin. And there, because He had no sin of His own, he was made sin for us, or He bore our sins on His own body on the tree. That is spiritual death. After he accomplished our salvation then physical death, He died physically. The virgin birth was a warning to the nation. Thirty-three years later Jesus Christ went to the cross and that was the second warning to the nation. At around 33 AD Jesus Christ was hanging on that cross, and while literally millions of people had been crucified during the course of the history of SPQR, only one of them died twice on the cross — spiritual death for our salvation; physical death because His work was accomplished.

Fifty days after the resurrection of Christ we have the third sign, the gift of tongues whereby the Gospel was presented to the Jews in a foreign language. The Jews were responsible in the Old Testament times for giving out the Gospel. Their failure to do so meant that they would be evangelized in foreign (Gentile) languages, and on the Day of Pentecost Jews in Jerusalem were evangelized in many different Gentile languages.

In each case this is a sign. The first sign probably occurred around 2 or 3 BC. The second sign occurred in 30 AD The third sign occurred between 30 and 70 AD Over a period of forty years the gift of tongues occurred only to warn the nation Israel of the coming disaster and to show them the only solution which is to believe in Jesus Christ. These are the signs. The signs are a special warning to a nation, a unique event, something that warns the nation of coming disaster.

I can see tongues as a sign, but not connected to Isaiah.

We can tell the signs of our own country going down. Hippiesville; males with long hair; the rise of drug traffic. These are standard signs found through Bible doctrine. These are not to be mixed up with the signs of the end of Israel.

There is a second category here called "wonders." This is also in the instrumental plural of the noun teraj. Teraj is a special miracle to focus attention on the person of Christ rather than, for example, signs which are unique miracles to warn a nation of coming catastrophe. The word “signs” is the warning to the entire nation; the word “wonders” is a special miracle designed to evangelize, to focus attention upon who and what Christ is, designed to come at a time when national disaster is impending, and to evangelize those who are facing disaster. The seven credit cards of Jesus Christ found in the Gospel of John come under the category of teraj. The function of the apostles in performing many miracles focus attention upon who and what Christ is, focus attention upon the Gospel. These miracles, however, only occurred when unbelievers with positive volition at the point of God consciousness could observe them and there could be a response to the message. The response to the miracle message was always the same: “Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved.”

Next we have a third one — “and divers miracles” .We have a conjunction kai which separates this from the first two. The word “divers” is the instrumental plural of poikilos (ποικίλος) [pronounced poi-KEE-loss] which means a variety. Then we have the word dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss] which means “powers” — “and by means of a variety of powers.” These powers are actually the apostolic use of grace dynamics. In addition to that, God provided at the beginning of the Church Age, and continues to provide at the point of every believer’s salvation, at least one spiritual gift. And so we have next the gifts of the Holy Spirit. Again, we have the instrumental plural for “gifts,” merismoj which means the impartation of gifts. Then we have “of the Holy Spirit,” an ablative of source. So literally, “by the distribution of spiritual gifts from the source of the Holy Spirit.” Pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] in the ablative means “spirit,” not “ghost” .

“according to his will” — according to the Holy Spirit’s will. “According to” is katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] with the accusative, the accusative singular of qelhsij which is an act of sovereign will. The sovereign will of the Holy Spirit determines your spiritual gift.

Some of you men have the gift of pastor-teacher. God has a marvelous sense of humor when it comes to the assignment of the gift of pastor-teacher. Why does God pick sub-zeroes? You are blessed in a wonderful way having this gift; and a lot of difficulties. God could not pick too many nice guys; not enough nice congregations.

Bob thinks the best way to handle an outfit is to find the worst problem in the outfit, and kill him or make him feel like he was dead. Times have sure changed.

Bob chews out a longhair. “You’re a reflection on your family. Do you have a hearing problem?”

Paul was the greatest Bible teacher of all. He did not earn it or deserve it. He killed a lot of Christians as an unbeliever. No matter how bad the person or the personality, if God makes him a communicator, then he can use that gift. A pastor-teacher who tries being a sweet person, he is not doing his job. A pastor worried about being sweet will raise up a congregation of emotional weepy types.

There is a myth of southern women. Someone talking about parties with northern women and southern women. This is a quote from someone. When the women arrived, the men paid attention to them. The thing about southern women is southern men. There's a point there. Every believer has a spiritual gift. But no woman has the gift of pastor-teacher. Every woman is born with natural communicating talent. Some can become nags, some become teachers, some can communicate better than any man could. Never a woman who could not teach her children well.

There are women in Christianity and they claim to have some kind of preaching gift. But, God never gave those gifts to women. Man has authority over women; this is why their hair is different. This authority is established through divine laws.

The Doctrine of Spiritual Gifts

1. For the Church Age spiritual gifts are the Father's organized witness to the plan of salvation as well as national warning — Hebrews 2:4. This plan anticipates the intensification of the angelic conflict during the Church Age.
2. At the point of salvation, and accompanying his priesthood, every believer receives at least one gift from the Holy Spirit — 1Corinthians 12:11. This gift does not depend upon merit, talent, or human ability; it is a sovereign decision of the Holy Spirit as seen in Hebrews 2:4 1Cor. 12:11.
3. At any point in the Church Age each spiritual gift is necessary for the function of the body of Christ on earth — 1Corinthians 12:27–31.
4. All spiritual gifts function through the filling of the Spirit — Acts 2:4; 1Corinthians 13 amplified.
5. The proper mental attitude toward spiritual gifts is recorded in Romans 12:3.
6. All spiritual gifts were presented after the resurrection of Christ — Ephesians 4:8.
7. There are two kinds of spiritual gifts: temporary and permanent.
  - a. Temporary gifts were necessary to take up the slack until the canon of scripture was completed. Once the Bible was completed, about 96 AD, all temporary gifts were removed — 1Corinthians 13:8–10; Acts 19:11,12 cf. Philippians 2:27; 2Timothy 4:20. Temporary gifts include apostleship, tongues, interpreting tongues, miracles, healing.
  - b. Permanent gifts function after the completion of the canon of scripture and throughout the entire Church Age — Romans 12:6–8; 1Corinthians 12:31.
8. Communication gifts carry both authority and maximum purpose as declared in Ephesians 4:11–13; Hebrews 13:7,17. Communication gifts are limited to males only.
9. Apostasy and reversionism seek to perpetuate temporary gifts — apostleship, healing, miracles, tongues — beyond the closing of the canon of scripture.

The mother does all of the teaching of the child between the ages of 0 and 6; and this is the most important teaching a child will receive. When properly taught, no child breaks away from it. Whatever you are taught in those first 6 years determines the pattern for your life, apart from Bible doctrine.

Hebrews 2:4 “And the God confirming their witness, both by means of signs and wonders, also by means of a variety of powers, and by distribution of spiritual gifts from the source of the Holy Spirit according to his will.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The victory in the angelic conflict. Civilizations, Millennium, and the Angelic Conflict

Hebrews 2:5 For it was not to angels that God subjected the world to come, of which we are speaking. (ESV)

Verse 5 — the ultimate triumph of man in the angelic conflict. This verse has some exegesis and three major doctrines: the doctrine of civilizations, the doctrine of the Millennium, and doctrine of the angelic conflict.

“For unto the angels” — Ou gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] aggelos (ἄγγελος) [pronounced AHN-geh-loss]. Ou is a negative, and you will notice immediately there is no negative in the King James version. There is no negative until you get to “hath not put in subjection.” That “not” is out of place, it goes with gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] and aggelos (ἄγγελος) [pronounced AHN-geh-loss]. It should be translated, “For [gar, an illitive particle] not to the angels” — dative of dignity — “hath he put in subjection” — the aorist active indicative of hupotassô (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-AS-so]. Tassô (τάσσω) [pronounced TAS-soh] means to be in ranks, under authority; hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] — under the authority of, a military word. “For he has not put under the authority of angels the coming civilization” is what it really says.

“the world to come” — the word “world” is not world. Oikoumenê (οἰκουμένη) [pronounced oy-kou-MEHN-ay] refers to a civilization; it means inhabited earth or a civilization. Then we have a present active participle of mellô (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low]. Mellô (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low] means to be about to come — “the coming civilization”.

Hebrews 2:5 “For he has not put under [or, subordinated] the authority of angels the coming civilization [or, world].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

There are only four civilizations and the next one is the Millennium. This is a reference to the Millennium. The Millennium is not the next dispensation, the Tribulation [the end of the Jewish Age] is. Jesus Christ will rule throughout the civilization of the Millennium. The Millennial reign of Christ is both a dispensation and a civilization.

The Millennium is both a dispensation and a civilization. It is the next civilization on the horizon.

The Doctrine of Civilizations

1. A civilization begins a period of human history with believers only, or with innocent persons only, and terminates with a cataclysmic judgement. In the cataclysmic judgement the entire population of the world is destroyed, except for believers, and believers begin the next civilization. So a civilization is like a dispensation in that it is a period of history, but it has different termini with the exception of the Millennium.

2. Each civilization has its own climate, its own environment and characteristics within the species — that is, man has a different life span in each civilization, weather is different in each civilization, animals are different; but each species remains, there is no transmutation. We have the pre-diluvian civilization — the civilization before the flood. It started with two people, man and woman in innocence; it terminates with a cataclysm, the flood. The second civilization is called the post-diluvian civilization. It begins with eight believers — Noah plus seven. It includes the Age of Israel, the Church Age, the Rapture of the Church, the Tribulation and the second advent. So it begins with believers only and it ends with the baptism of fire by which all unbelievers are removed from the world and cast into fire. Then the third civilization is the Millennium, the reign of Jesus Christ for a thousand years. It begins with believers only. These are the “wheat”; the tares are removed. This is perfect environment at the end of which there is another great cataclysm, the destruction of the universe, the removal of the unbelieving population of the Millennium which is cast into the lake of fire with the devil and his angels. The final civilization is the eternal one — believers only.
3. The first civilization is called antediluvian or pre-diluvian. It began with Adam in innocence and concludes with the universal flood which destroyed all the population of the earth but eight people.
4. The second civilization is post-diluvian. It began with Noah’s family — all believers — and concludes with the second advent judgement of the baptism of fire. In this manner all of the unbelievers on the earth are removed at one time. That is the fulfilment of Matthew 25 — “Two shall be in the field; one shall be taken, the other left.” Many related parables; good and bad tares, wise and foolish virgins, etc. The earth will be repopulated by the believers who remain.
5. The third civilization is the Millennium which begins with Tribulational saints who survive the Tribulation — they are alive at the second advent — and it concludes with a rebellion led by Satan personally: the Gog and Magog revolution, at the end of which is the last judgement and the earth is destroyed by fire.
6. The fourth civilization is eternal in nature, it has no end. Therefore it is believers only in resurrection bodies. It begins with the new heavens, the new earth and the new Jerusalem. It has no termination, there will never again be unbelievers in a civilization.
7. Each civilization begins with a divine blessing and terminates with a divine judgement, except the last which has no termination and there is no end to divine blessing for believers in resurrection bodies. It begins with perfect climate.

Texas has a few not days, but it is still paradise. Animals sometimes change with a civilization. Today, you do not pet a king cobra. Bob saw a cobra milked and there was 3 cc’s of venom; enough to kill 25,000 people.

Animals are different and people are different, so some degree.

Hebrews 2:5 “For he has not put under the authority of angels the coming civilization [the Millennium].” This is the son of David ruling in the future, the Millennium. This will be the next civilization.

1972 Hebrews 2:6–9

Lesson #9

06/30/1972 Relative positions of angels, man, Christ; ultimate victory of Christ; mechanics of Operation Footstool

Conference tomorrow. Many extra events. Concert; fly-by; after they have done 2 other places. Choppers and repelling; maybe or maybe not.

Hard to get much from the KJV. Bob reads the 3 verses.

Hebrews 2:5 “For he has not put under the authority of angels the coming civilization, concerning which we communicate.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation Verses 6–9, the two Adam’s and the angelic conflict.

The millennium will not be under the authority of angels. That is the next civilization.

Hebrews 2:6 It has been testified somewhere, “What is man, that you are mindful of him, or the son of man, that you care for him?” (ESV)

Verse 6 — we begin with documentation. “But” is the particle de used as a post positive conjunction, used here in the transitional sense. In other words, this little particle de should be translated “Moreover.” The word “one” is tis (τις) [pronounced tihç], and it means “someone,” referring to the human author of Psalm 8 which was David. When David wrote Psalm 8 he was totally occupied with the person of Jesus Christ and living the supergrace life. David not only lived the supergrace life but he gave a tremendous expression of occupation with the person of Jesus Christ in Psalm 8.

“in a certain place” is an enclitic indefinite particle pou (πού) [pronounced poo] which is used to specify a definite or a specific passage of scripture — Psalm 8:4–6. This passage will be quoted in the next few verses. This is documentation to the fact that the second advent will bring radical changes to this world. The ruler of this world at the present time is Satan. Satan will be superseded by the Lord Jesus Christ as the son of David and as the last Adam. Two created beings have ruled this world. The first Adam ruled during the period before his fall. At his fall he was superseded by Satan. Satan rules from the fall of man to the second advent of Jesus Christ, at which time the last Adam supersedes Satan. Satan as the ruler of this world is established by 2Corinthians 4:4; Ephesians 2:2; John 12:31; 14:30; 16:11. During Satan’s rule Christ is absent from the earth, until He leaves that throne at the right hand of the Father and returns to take over. The second advent includes not only operation footstool, resulting in Satan’s overthrow, but it also confirms the fact that of a coup de tat which will change civilization.

Civilizations and dispensations are not the same. There is some overlap between them, but a civilization always begins with believers only and ends with a great catastrophe which eliminates unbelievers from the world. In the antediluvian civilization the great catastrophe which terminated it was the flood. Only believers survived. We are in the post-diluvian civilization at the present time and will remain in this civilization until the second advent, at which time unbelievers are eliminated from the scene and we begin a new civilization, the Millennial civilization, with believers only. The baptism of fire is the great catastrophe which eliminates.

There will be a coup de tat in the future. Satan will be removed. In the meantime one of the functions of the priesthood, by way of application, is to avoid trying to whitewash the devil's world. This is the devil's world. As believers we have a bona fide function in this world, but it deals with the laws of divine establishment. For example, we have the responsibility of patriotism, of military service, of functioning as believers in this area because it is the military that provides the freedom by which a nation operates. There can be no freedom in our civilization apart from military victory, and the slaughter of the enemy on the battlefield is the guarantee of the freedom of a national entity. Freedom is divine institution #1 under the laws of divine establishment. Capacity for freedom comes through Bible doctrine, through the observation of the laws of divine establishment. This freedom also includes the principle of right-man, right-woman.

Idiocy has struck Berachah; and Bob has never seen so many idiots going in so many different directions. We just about need ushers at every Bible class, and Bob is apt to tell them where to go, and that is not always good.

Children are spoiled because they are not trained under strict discipline. You can give a kid anything and still teach him discipline. Bob spends a lot of time dealing with adults who were never properly raised.

We as believers have a responsibility to our nation. We have responsibility within the framework of family and in the field of freedom. But we do not have any responsibility in trying to whitewash the devil's world. When a nation starts to go mad or disintegrate one of the first things it does is to try to clean up the devil's world. This is where we get the welfare state, all of the platforms for political liberalism, all the anti-establishment concepts. This is where we get the bad music, the decadent culture, and all this type of thing. You can't whitewash the devil's world.

Supreme Court removing the death penalty. Bob wants people executed by skinning them alive with a dull hunting knife...for certain kinds of criminals.

That's why the believer doesn't get involved in social action, and that is why he doesn't try to "get a television" for every minority person within the country. The business of race is ridiculous. The believer's responsibility is not to whitewash the devil's world, and social action is definitely not a part of his responsibility.

These things are clarified as you begin to understand the ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ, both now and in the Millennium. In the Millennium He will overthrow Satan, there will be a coup de tat, and the Lord Jesus Christ will reign forever. Until then it is the devil's world, and the only protection that you have in the devil's world apart from the spiritual assets of grace are in the area of the laws of divine establishment.

Someone in a specific place has testified...

“testified” — should be “has testified” — aorist middle indicative of diamarturomai. Marturomai is the middle voice form for witnessing, martureō (μαρτυρέω) [pronounced mar-too-REH-oh]; dia means because of or through. Here, when you put it together, it means an intense testimony, even an ecstatic testimony. David gave an intense testimony as to who and what Jesus Christ is. Reason: Because he had tremendous Bible doctrine, he had moved beyond the ECS into the supergrace life.

“saying” is a present active participle of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh], and at this point the quotation begins. Légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] is nothing more really than quotation marks. The present active participle indicates that the Word of God liveth and abideth forever. This is linear aktionsart.

“What” — an interrogative pronoun ti. It is followed by the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the absolute status quo verb, to be. Correctly translated “What is.”

Next we have the word for “man,” a predicate nominative, the noun is anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos], a generic term for mankind, male and female. The Hebrew which is used here, by the way, is enosh which refers to man in his frailty, in his weakness, in contrast to ish which means man in his nobility. So here we have anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos] which is used for the entire human race as being totally depraved. It refers to the fact that you and I, and all members of the human race, are born into this world spiritually dead. The moment we are physically alive, that moment is the moment we are spiritually dead to God. We are born with an old sin nature, we do not acquire a sin nature, we do not become sinners by a personal act of sin. The only person who ever became a sinner by a personal act of sin was Adam. Adam went negative toward the prohibition of God and partook of the forbidden fruit, and at that point he became a sinner, and he acquired a sin nature. Adam did not previously have a sin nature, he was not created with a sin nature. God is not the author of sin. God has nothing to do with sin, He doesn't sponsor sin, He doesn't do anything but condemn it. Adam became a sinner by an act of his own volition. Adam acquired a sin nature by sinning; you and I acquired a sin nature by being born. Since all of us are born into this world spiritually dead, possessing an old sin nature, we are all under a concept called total depravity. Personal sin of any category is merely a manifestation of the possession of the old sin nature.

“that thou art mindful” — literally, “that you yourself remember him.” We have the present middle indicative of mimnēskō (μιμνήσκω) [pronounced mim-NACE-koe] which means to remember or call to memory. So here we have, “who is mankind that you yourself remember him.” Man has failed, has done nothing right. Adam was in perfect environment and had everything going for him when he failed.

Hooking up ego with pride. A student came up to Bob and wanted an explanation and he tells them to study and listen to the tapes. This idea of running crying to someone for help because you don't get your own way and you're crying; that's pitiful.

Bob was pretty cynical; so accepting human nature for what it is, was not a difficult thing for him to do. Bob does not hate the human race; he just has a low opinion of them. We as members of the human race; we have few redeeming features. Some of you have a sense of humor; that helps. We are no damn good; and that is putting it mildly. Some of you pompous self righteous jackasses may have trouble with that. We are zeroes in God's sight. Sin and then cover, sin and cover.

We do not merit in any way for God to remember us. God promised to remember and come back, to crush the serpent's head.

When Adam failed, he had everything going for him; beautiful rw, great food, sex every day. Imagine sinning when you have no problems. If you think you have helping God in any way, you are arrogant. God chose the sorriest form of divine creation and yet, God uses us.

“or the son of man” — ho huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS] a)ngropou, a reference to the progeny of Adam. God could have forgotten the whole deal when Adam sinned but He didn't. And in the progeny of Adam He remembers each one of us. He remembered us when we were spiritually dead. It is actually, “a son of man,” there is no definite article. The absence of the definite article in the Greek calls attention to the condition of the human race in spiritual death. There is great emphasis here, the whole progeny of Adam is spiritually dead. That is why Christ on the cross paid in spiritual death.

“that thou visitest him?” — the word “visit” is the present middle indicative of ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE]skeptomai which means to help someone, to come to someone's aid — “or son of man that you yourself come to his aid.” God actually came to the aid of all members of the human race. This is a present middle indicative, He keeps on doing it, there never was a time when He didn't.

Hebrews 2:7 You made Him for a little while lower than the angels; You have crowned Him with glory and honor,... (ESV)

Verse 7 — the first Adam and his failure. “Thou madest him a little lower” is not correct. It is the aorist active indicative of the verb ἐλάττω which means to be made inferior. The verb occurs in an idiom here. The idiom includes a prepositional phrase, para plus the accusative. Also the object of this verb is a straight accusative. Para plus the accusative sets up a comparison in which the object of the preposition is inferior to the object of the verb. This is a very strong idiom. The object of the verb is the accusative of the demonstrative pronoun autos. We also have an accusative form of an adjective brachus (βραχὺς) [pronounced brahk-OOÇ] which isn't even translated. Brachus (βραχὺς) [pronounced brahk-OOÇ] means "for a brief time." Altogether it is: "For a brief time you have made him inferior to the angels."

Summary

1. The angelic creation is superior by creation to mankind.
2. Only at the point of salvation does man begin to become superior to angels, and that is positional.
3. While angels are superior to mankind by creation they have one area in common with man, and that is in the area of free will or volition.
4. It is the free will of mankind which plays a non-meritorious part in resolving the angelic conflict.
5. The free will of the humanity of Christ took Him to the cross and that is where Satan's back was broken. The cross is the basis of the coup de tat which begins the Millennial civilization.
6. The free will of man expresses in a non-meritorious manner what Satan cannot stand — doing the will of God, responding to the grace of God from one's own free will. This is especially true because of the priesthood which is the subject Hebrews.
7. In the future mankind has a resurrection body, and at that point he will be physically superior to angels

"thou crownedst" — the aorist active indicative of stefanow. It means to crown a victor at one of the games. There is another word for crown — diadhma, which means a king's crown. This is a victor's crown here.

"him" is, again, autos and it refers to Adam. When Adam was created he was crowned the ruler of the world. How do we know? The last phrase: "and did set him over the works of thy hands" is not found in the original. We know because of an idiom which follows: "glory and honour" are both datives of possession. The word "glory" is doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah], and "honour" is timê (τιμή, ἡς, ἡ) [pronounced tih-MAY or tee-MAY]. What is a dative of possession? It is a technical grammatical term and it means a dative used in which personal interest particularizes the point of ownership. In other words, the glory belongs to God; He crowned Adam with it. Adam was given both the honour of God and the glory of God when he was created. He was not only created man on this earth, he was also created ruler of this earth. Adam lost all these things; he lost his crown of glory and honour. He lost these through his first sin and his fall, and the result was that Satan became the ruler of this world in his place.

So literally we have" "For a brief time you made him [the first Adam] inferior to angels]; you have crowned him with glory and honour [which belongs to you]." Adam lost the sovereignty of the world to Satan, but Jesus Christ, the last Adam, will regain it again.

There will only be in all of history two men who ruled the world, the first Adam during the period of innocence and then the last Adam at the second advent.

“thou” refers to God the Father under operation grace; “hast put in subjection” — the aorist active indicative of hupotassô (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-AS-so] which means to subordinate; “all things” — accusative plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs], but pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] is in the emphatic position here in this sentence, therefore it should be translated “[emphatically] all things you have subordinated.” The word “under” which is usually hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] is not found here. Instead we have a compound adverb used as a preposition — hupokatô (ὑποκάτω) [pronounced hoop-ok-AHT-oh]. hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] means under; kato/katôterô (κάτω/κατωτέρω) [pronounced KAT-oh,kat-oh-TER-oh] means down — down under, and translated “underneath.”
“Emphatically all things you have subordinated underneath his feet.”

Millennial application comes first; then Church Age application.

“For in that” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] to gar. gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is the illitive particle. The illitive particle is used with a preposition, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] in the locative here, to be translated “For in.” With this phrase you must have an infinitive. We call this an articular infinitive, and we actually have the aorist active articular infinitive of hupotassô (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-AS-so]. And hupotassô (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-AS-so] must now be translated like a preposition. Instead of “in that” it is translated “For in subjecting” or “For in subordinating.” Now “all things” come up, but this time with the definite article. Ta panta is the accusative plural plus the definite article pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] — “the all things.” So literally, “For in subordinating the all things to him [Jesus Christ].”

“he left nothing” — aorist active indicative of afiemí, which means “he omitted,” plus ouden which means “not one thing.” And then we have “not put under” which is not a good translation — anupotaktoj, which should be translated in subordinate — “he [the Father] omitted not one thing in subordinate to him.”

Hebrews 2:7 “For a brief time you made him [the first Adam] inferior to angels; you have crowned him with glory and honour [which belongs to you]. Emphatically all things you have subordinated underneath His feet. For in subordinating the all things to Him [Jesus Christ]. He [the Father] omitted not one thing in subordinate to Him.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 2:8 putting everything in subjection under his feet.” Now in putting everything in subjection to him, he left nothing outside his control. At present, we do not yet see everything in subjection to him. (ESV)

Hebrews 2:8 “All things you have subordinated underneath his feet. For in subordinating the all things to him [Christ] he [God the Father] omitted not one thing in subordinate to him.”

This is the Millennial application. In the Millennium everything is going to be perfect, there will be no revolutions of any kind — until the very end when Satan is loosened, and then there will be a revolution because Satan is the author of religion and he is the author of revolution.

Now we get to Church application. “But now” — Nun de. This is the Church Age, in contrast to the Millennium; “we see” — horaô (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh], present active indicative. This generally means a panoramic view or perception.

“not yet” — this is not a negative, it is a negative adverb oupô (οὐπω) [pronounced OW-poe] — “the all things,” and then we have hupotassô (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-AS-so] in the perfect passive participle. “But now we see not yet the all things having been subordinated to him.”

This Means Three Things:

- 1) During the Church Age the angelic conflict continues and reaches its intensified stage.
- 2) During the Church Age and the Tribulation there will be war both in the angelic and human realms.
- 3) Peace will not occur in either realm until the second advent of Christ and His Millennial reign.

Hebrews 2:8 “All things you [the Father] have subordinated underneath His feet. For in subordinating the all things to Christ He [the Father] omitted not one thing insubordinate to Him. But now [Church Age] we see not yet the all things having been subordinated to Him.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

There will be no insubordination in the Millennium. That is why you have perfect freedom and perfect environment, because authority is recognized and capacity for life is at a maximum. But now in the Church Age things are different. Now we have rebellion, now we have insubordination.

Hippies today have no idea what freedom is all about. Ever male with long Hair is an insult to our military and our land.

Perfect freedom in the Millennium, because there is perfect authority there.

Hebrews 2:9 But we see Him who for a little while was made lower than the angels, namely Jesus, crowned with glory and honor because of the suffering of death, so that by the grace of God He might taste death for everyone. (ESV)

Verse 9 — what do we do in this terrible age in which the devil rules? Answer: “But” — here is a particle used as an explanatory conjunction. The particle is de. “But we see” — but it is a different word, we don’t have horaô (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh] this time. This time we have blepô (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh], present active indicative. Blepô (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh] emphasizes the glance of the eye, causing someone to see something of importance. It doesn't mean just to glance, it means to see something of importance in the glance. The verb we have just used in the previous sentence, horaō (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh], means to have perception as a result of seeing. You see something, you analyze it, you understand it. In the previous verse you see the difference between Christ ruling in the Millennium and the devil ruling in the Church Age. Blepō (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh] is used in verse 9 because something important is Jesus Christ. He is the only celebrity for the believer. He is not only the only celebrity in the Church Age but for the believer he is the high priest. We are a kingdom of priests. Horaō (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh] was used in the previous verse for "not yet all things having been subordinated to him." We understand the system. We perceive through GAP that all things are not subordinated to Jesus Christ at the present time. However, even though we live in the time of rebellion, the time of kósmos (κόσμος) [pronounced KOSS-moss] diabolikuj, we do see Jesus — "Jesus" is in the emphatic position: Jesus and Jesus only. There is only one problem with this verb blepō (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh], it is out of place in the English word order. It doesn't come up just yet. We see Jesus, and only Jesus, is the concept but it doesn't really come up at this stage.

"Jesus" is used for the humanity of Christ. It is the Hellenised form of the word "Joshua" which means Savior. Why? because "neither is their salvation in any other, there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."

"having been made inferior to angels" — "who was made" is the perfect passive participle of e)lattow which means to be made inferior. "Having been made inferior" would be the perfect passive participle. Then we have that idiom again, para with its object of the verb, and when you put it altogether it means "having been made inferior to angels for a brief time [the period of the incarnation]." And again, brachus (βραχὺς) [pronounced brahk-OOÇ] is nor even brought into the translation. Actually, in the Greek word order we do not have as yet, "we see Jesus." It starts out, "But having been made inferior to angels for a brief time." It is referring to the virgin birth and all of the way to the resurrection. That is brachus (βραχὺς) [pronounced brahk-OOÇ], a brief period of time in which Jesus Christ in His human body is inferior to angels. Once in His resurrection body, of course, He is superior.

Next we have "for the suffering of death" mistranslated in the King James version — dia plus the accusative of pathêma (πάθημα) [pronounced PATH-ay-mah] should be translated "because of" the suffering of death. Thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] here is referring to the spiritual death of Christ on the cross. It has a definite article — "because of the suffering of the death." Here is where we get the phrase "we see Jesus." "Because of the suffering of the death, we see Jesus crowned." He isn't crowned yet, but we see Him crowned. We see it coming. We know enough doctrine to know it is coming. So "we see," blepō (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh], goes after "death" and before "crowned." "We see Jesus crowned," perfect passive participle again of stefanow which means "having been crowned."

We glance and see Jesus having been crowned (seeing this now, looking forward to the future)

Jesus is crowned as a man; as God He has always been sovereign. We have the dative of possession of doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah], the dative of possession of timê (τιμή, ἡς, ἡ) [pronounced tih-MAY or tee-MAY], and you put the two together, God the Father gives His glory and His honour to one person in the future, Jesus Christ when He is crowned. He is our celebrity now, He is the world's celebrity in the future.

Hebrews 2:9 “But having become inferior to angels for a brief period of time because of the suffering of the death, we see Jesus having been crowned with glory and honour.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation Principle: The cross must come before the crown. The high priesthood of Christ began at the cross. There would be no high priesthood of Christ if He had taken the crown first — as well as no salvation, of course. So the metamorphosis of the humanity of Christ describes the whole victory of the angelic conflict and our ultimate triumph in union with Christ. We have the virgin birth, we have the impeccability of the humanity of Christ, we have His death, burial, resurrection, ascension and session. And in this panorama we find Jesus Christ going from lower than angels to higher than angels. When the humanity of Christ in resurrection body was seated at the right hand of the Father He was higher than angels.

That brings us to an adverb used to introduce a purpose clause, therefore this purpose clause gets fantastic emphasis. Ordinarily you have hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus the subjunctive for a purpose clause. Here we have o(pw) plus the subjunctive mood. Why? because this is a most emphatic and most unusual. This we see as very special emphasis — “that,” and then we have “by the grace of God” — the instrumental singular of charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic], “grace,” but we have with it theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] [God] in the ablative of source — “by means of the grace from God.” This is what we emphasize here as we get ready to anticipate our priesthood in the angelic conflict. There is no definite article in front of “grace”; there is no definite article in front of God. Why? The absence of the definite article in the Greek is the opposite of the definite in English, it calls attention to the noun involved and gives it great emphasis.

“he should taste” — aorist active subjunctive of geuomai (γεύομαι) [pronounced GHYOO-ohm-ah-ee]. Aorist tense: the point of the cross; the active voice: He did it; subjunctive mood: purpose clause. God's purpose in sending Jesus Christ is directly related to our happiness and blessing in time and in eternity.

Then we have an objective genitive. Instead of putting this in the accusative thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] is put in the objective genitive. Why? To emphasize the importance of the cross in breaking the back of Satan so that a coup de tat will occur in the future and Satan will be superseded, and at the same time blessing you right now in the devil's world. The cross not only breaks the back of Satan in the future but the cross is the basis for entering into the plan of God and living in the devil's world and living in great blessing from God.

“for every man” — or literally, “on behalf of all,” hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the genitive of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs]. hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] is a preposition of substitution with the genitive of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs], and it should be translated “on behalf of all” — unlimited atonement.

Hebrews 2:9 “But having been made inferior to angels for a brief time because of the suffering of death, we see Jesus having been crowned with glory and honour, that by means of grace from God he should taste death on behalf of all.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

This is what we have now. This is the application in the Church Age. We are not going to have world peace in the Church Age. The only way to have any peace at all is to have a strong military and, when necessary, to clobber the enemy. “Brotherhood of man” is the fallacy of Satan. Noting to do with the Word of God.

Tomorrow night will be the conf with the supergrace life.

1972 Hebrews 2:9-10

Lesson #10

07/07/1972 Satan's kingdom, beginning to end; God's plan unstoppable; Jesus Christ, Prince-Leader

Review of v. 9:

Both verses poorly rendered in the KJV. Many technical words in Hebrews; and some words have changed their meaning. V. 9 is explained once again. Blepô is a glance of the eye that picks up something that is very important. Present active indicative so we keep on seeing this. This verse puts us right on the edge of the supergrace life. We are taken up to that edge, but it backs off in order to provide some more information.

Horao used in the previous verse; blepo in this verse. Horao is picking up a panorama view, taking in a lot. Horao is the believer who has erect the edification complex of the soul; or he is very close to that. He has picked up enough doctrine through gapping it.

To pick up something of value, you go to blepo. V. 9 puts us on the edge of supergrace. The principle of occupation with Christ comes into focus.

So many idiots running around, like Jesus freaks, who should not have any mention of Jesus.

We have Jesus here alone, and this emphasizes the humanity of Jesus Christ. When we come to the edge of the supergrace life....growing in grace takes up to the edification complex. Those who do not continue to gap it do not see this.

The priesthood is going to be found in v. 5, and then 7 through 9. We will be able to define maturity with greater accuracy. If the first Adam does not resolve the Angelic Conflict, then the last Adam will. He will pick up the ball which was fumbled by the first Adam. Man will resolve the Angelic Conflict. For that reason, Jesus Christ could not become an angel. He had to become a man. A creature inferior to angels will resolve the Angelic Conflict.

God created something low and slow, and that is man. That is why we have this phrase; Jesus Christ as God is inferior to no one.

When God gave the world to the first Adam to rule, Adam blew it; and Satan took over the world. An angel rules over the world today. A man will rule over the world forever.

Jesus Christ went up through the 2nd heaven and through all of the angels and all of the demons; and no one was able to stop Him. He arrived at the 3rd heaven, and God said, "Sit down at My right hand." Jesus Christ, in His resurrection body, is infinitely superior to all angels. He was inferior to angels for only a short time, when He was on earth, prior to His resurrection body.

Thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] is used for the spiritual death of the Lord on the cross, paying for our sins.

Perfect passive participle translated crown, but that is incorrect. This can mean to crown someone victor in one of the games. Jesus Christ is in super glory which opens up the avenues of the supergrace life.

Glory and honor both belong to God. They are conferred upon Jesus Christ, when He is seated on the right hand of God. Because Jesus as a man ascended up to the 3rd heaven, glory and honor are bestowed upon Him.

Adam was a sucker for choosing the woman outside of the garden rather than Jesus Christ in the garden.

Bob saw things on the news that made him blow up.

Adam could have waited on Jesus to provide for him another woman; but he did not. Operation fig leaf; Adam was a sucker. The devil had a great laugh over this.

Adam sinned and he experienced spiritual death. He did not suffer physical death. The wages of sin is not physical death, or they would have both died right then and there.

The devil's kingdom is made up of people who are spiritually dead. Jesus has to have a kingdom of regenerate people. The Millennium begins with spiritually alive people. Jesus Christ is not going to rule over a bunch of zombies. He will rule over those who are born again. Some in resurrection bodies and some will be in their physical bodies. All unbelievers removed from the earth. Good fish and the bad fish; the wheat and the tares. Every doctrine in the Word of God dovetails with another. You cannot understand Jesus as the only celebrity until you realize that the first Adam blew it. When Adam and the woman were spiritually dead, Satan took over rulership of the earth.

The cross must come before the crown. This is the panorama of going from lower to higher.

Still reviewing v. 9... At the fall, Adam and the woman died spiritually immediately.

Hebrews 2:9 “But having been made inferior to angels for a brief time because of the suffering of death, we see Jesus having been crowned with glory and honour, that by means of the grace from God He should taste death on behalf [or, as a substitute for] of all.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Verses 10–13 is a new paragraph: the bride and the angelic conflict. Here is the completion of the last Adam.

Hebrews 2:10 For it was fitting that he, for whom and by whom all things exist, in bringing many sons to glory, should make the founder of their salvation perfect through suffering. (ESV)

Verse 10 — “For” is the illitive use of gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] to express a ground or a reason for something. Here God assigns a reason for the previous verse. We see Jesus crowned because He is the groom; we are the bride — Church Age believers. He is the high priest; we are a kingdom of priests. He is the crown prince waiting to become the King at the right hand of the Father; we are His ambassadors on the earth.

There is a girl fiddling with her pencil. This is not place for dreaming. What at time to hit an impersonal verb.

“For it became” — it is very difficult to communicate the idiom of an impersonal verb. This is the imperfect active indicative of an impersonal verb prepei. Prepei connotes fitness. The essence of God qualifies Him to do this. The imperfect tense means there never was a time when it wasn’t — when God wasn’t qualified to handle His plan. The plan of God is always complicated to us but it is simple to Him. So in order to bring this out there is no Greek verb that will do it, you have to go to an idiom. When you go to an idiom you have to go to an impersonal verb, and impersonal verbs are designed to establish qualifications of the one who is acting in the verb. The one who is acting in the verb is God the Father. God the Father knows how His plan is operating at all times, he never loses track of it, and it is all going to come out fine. So therefore, probably the best translation with this illitive gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] — “For it was fitting for him” .

“him” is the instrumental of cause, a very unusual use of the instrumental case — autos, a reflexive pronoun. This use of the instrumental rejects the intermediary means by which a result is produced and goes to the original factor producing it. In other words, “him” follows an impersonal pronoun which indicates the fitness of God to handle His plan. God is capable and qualified for handling His plan. This verb is followed by an instrumental of cause. When you get an instrumental of cause it is saying in effect that we just skip all the intermediaries and we go right back to the source of everything. God the Father is the source of everything and He has it well under control. So this is a reference to God the Father as the author of the divine plan, rather than Jesus Christ who is the means of executing phase one of the plan. “Him” refers to God the Father. Translation so far: “For it was fitting for him.”

“for whom” — the preposition dia plus the accusative of the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], and dia plus the accusative means “because of whom.” Then we have ta panta — “the all things.” God the Father who is holding this plan together right now also started it. God the Father is the author of the divine plan and therefore is the original cause of everything.

God is in control of His plan, so that the negative volition of man and the negative volition of angels cannot mess it up.

“and by whom” — now we have dia plus the genitive of hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç] — “to whom”, and then the accusative plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] again — “the all things.” The Father is both the cause and the agent by whom the universe came into existence. The Father is the originator of all things. He used the Son as the means of creation — Colossians 1:16; and as the means of salvation — Acts 4:12. But the Father in the plan is the originating source. As such God the Father keeps control by never becoming incarnate. God the Father never appeared in the Old Testament as the angel of Jehovah; He did not take upon Himself true humanity. God the Father keeps control of the whole situation at all times, he does not have any humanity or any angelic relationship. These two prepositional phrases indicate that He never loses control. He is separate from angels and from man. God never loses His cool; He never loses track of anything.

“in bringing many sons.” “In bringing” is an aorist active participle from agw which means to lead. God the Father has control of things, He is still the leader. It should be translated “having led”. Then we have pollouj u(iouj — masculine accusative plural referring to believers in the Church Age only — “having led many sons”, referring to the bride only, members of the body of Christ, members of the priesthood, and after the resurrection, the bride of Christ.

At this point there are three analogies to the Church to complete the doctrinal picture here.

The 3 Analogies to the Church

1. First, Christ is the head, believers are members of the body — Ephesians 1:22,23; 2:16; 4:4,5; 5:23; Colossians 1:18, 24.
2. Secondly, Christ is the high priest and we are a kingdom of priests — Hebrews 7:25; 10:10–14; 1Peter 2:5,9; Revelation 1:6.
3. Thirdly, Christ is the groom and we are the bride under the analogy of right man/ right woman — 2Corinthians 11:2; Ephesians 5:25–32; Revelation 19:6–8

“unto glory” — prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah]. This brings us to the principle of glory — “many sons to glory.”

This sentence is so long that it gets a little involved at this point. But in the Greek it is very simple because to make sure that you keep track of the thought we go from this point into an aorist active infinitive of teleioō (τελειόω) [pronounced tehl-i-OH-oh] — “to make perfect” is a bad translation. Teleioō (τελειόω) [pronounced tehl-i-OH-oh] means to accomplish an objective, to cross a goal line. It doesn’t mean you are perfect when you cross the goal line either. The goal is operation footstool whereby the last Adam, Jesus Christ, overthrows Satan and supersedes him as the ruler of this world. The aorist tense here is a culminative, it emphasizes operation footstool. Christ is already wearing the crown but He won’t have the kingdom until all the citizens are lined up. The active voice: the Father produces the action as a part of His perfect plan. The infinitive expresses the Father’s purpose and plan — “to bring to the objective” is the best translation. Here is the Father bringing to the objective. You can’t get the cart before the horse. You have to bring the crown prince to the objective first, and the objective of the crown prince is to go to the cross so He will have a kingdom.

So we have next the word “captain” which can be used in many ways. It is used for a company commander in an infantry battalion, for any naval officer who commands a vessel. But this word is an archêgos (ἀρχηγός) [pronounced ar-khay-GOSS], a high, high ranking person, the highest next to the king. It means here the one who is going to be the King. Archêgos is made up of archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAY] and agō and it means “prince-leader.” Archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAY] means “prince”; agō means to lead — “to bring to the objective the prince leader of their salvation.”

“of their salvation” — thj sôtêria (σωτηρία) [pronounced soh-tay-REE-ah] autwn. This includes the genitive singular of sôtêria (σωτηρία) [pronounced soh-tay-REE-ah], an objective genitive, which means “salvation” .It is followed by a possessive genitive, autos. Jesus Christ is the crown prince. He is a man; as a man He is the crown prince. The crown prince means that He is going to rule. He is going to rule as a man; He is going to supersede an angel.

God provides freedom for man in the devil’s world by the laws of divine establishment. There will be wars and rumors of war because of Satan. So God deals with this with the military. Stack up the corpses around you; that is peace.

There needs to be law; internal peace; law and order. The laws of divine establishment counteract all the evil the Satan does.

“through sufferings” — dia plus the genitive of pathêma (πάθημα) [pronounced PATH-ay-mah] which refers to all the pressures and sufferings of Christ getting to the cross. This is in contrast to the previous suffering on the cross bearing our sins.

Hebrews 2:10 “For it was proper for him [God the Father], because of whom the all things, and through whom the all things, having led to glory many sons, to bring to the objective through sufferings the prince leader of their salvation.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Notice some contrasting structures. We have a contrast of prepositional phrases. “To glory” (ours) through sufferings (Christ’s).” That is grace. We receive glory through the sufferings of Christ. Two contrasting prepositional phrases. We go to glory (ours) through sufferings (Christ’s). That’s grace. Notice the contrasting verbs. That aorist active participle of a)gw — “having led”; the aorist active infinitive, “to bring to the objective.” We are led to the objective. That’s grace. Notice also the contrast in the persons who are the object of the verb. “Many sons” are the believers of the Church Age. Object of the believer: “prince leader of their salvation” who makes it possible. So we have in this verse the most beautiful set of contrasting structures you almost have to have every other word in emphasis. So you have an emphasis within an emphasis, you have a series of emphases, you have a series of contrasting structures in verbs, in prepositions, in objects of verbs, and you actually have one of the most phenomenal phrases in all of the Word of God.

Hebrews 2:9–10 “But having been made inferior to angels for a brief time because of the suffering of death, we see Jesus having been crowned with glory and honour, that by means of the grace from God He should taste death on behalf [or, as a substitute for] of all. For it was proper for him [God the Father], because of whom the all things, and through whom the all things, having led to glory many sons, to bring to the objective through sufferings the prince leader of their salvation.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This puts the whole package together. This introduces our High Priest; Who now functions on our behalf before the Father.

1972 Hebrews 2:11–13

Lesson #11

07/14/1972 By grace God is not ashamed of any believer; Bride for Christ; doctrine of ascension & session; doctrine of glory

Hebrews 2:9–10 “But having been made inferior to angels for a brief time because of the suffering of death, we see Jesus having been crowned with glory and honour, that by means of the grace from God He should taste death on behalf [or, as a substitute for] of all. For it was proper for him [God the Father], because of whom the all things, and through whom the all things, having led to glory many sons, to bring to the objective through sufferings the prince leader of their salvation.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 2:11 For he who sanctifies and those who are sanctified all have one source. That is why he is not ashamed to call them brothers,...

Heb 2:12 saying, "I will tell of your name to my brothers; in the midst of the congregation I will sing your praise."

Heb 2:13 And again, "I will put my trust in him." And again, "Behold, I and the children God has given me." (ESV)

Verse 11 — we have gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] used as an explanatory particle. It indicates the reason why the prince leader, Jesus Christ, was brought to the objective through sufferings. The prince leader, Jesus Christ, in His accomplishing of salvation was alone on the cross as the last Adam. It was Jesus Christ Himself who said of the first Adam in Genesis 2:18, "Not good the man to be alone." Having said that, He said "I will manufacture for him a help responding to him." God the Father must have said something similar when the last Adam was alone on the cross bearing our sins and taking our place — "Not good that the last Adam should be alone." So the Father, while judging Jesus Christ for our sins, was also planning for Him a bride, a right woman, which he would manufacture over the entire period of the Church Age. In this verse the body and the bride of Christ is mentioned as being sanctified.

"he that sanctifieth" is a present active participle of hagiazô (ἁγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh]. It refers to Jesus Christ, He is the sanctifier. The Holy Spirit is the agent of sanctification through the baptism of the Spirit — that is mechanics — but the sanctifier is the person into whom every believer is placed at the point of salvation. We enter into union with Jesus Christ, so he is the sanctifier. In other words, He is the right man, He is the groom, as well as being the head of the Church. Hagiazô (ἁγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh] really means to set apart, and in this case we are set apart unto God by union with Christ. Positional truth is the means of providing a bride for the last Adam. When Jesus Christ was on the cross he said, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" He was forsaken because He was paying the penalty of sin. The penalty of sin is spiritual death. He was paying in full. Therefore He was made sin for us, therefore He was also separated from God even as the first Adam was at the point of his sin. So the one doing the sanctifying is the last Adam who is the one presented in the previous verse as the prince leader. Jesus Christ is the one who solved the problem that man created by his sin.

When man, the first Adam, went negative and the fall occurred man entered into spiritual death — the penalty of sin. When he sent into spiritual death he created a kingdom for Satan and at this point Satan began to rule the world. This continued until Jesus Christ broke the back of Satan on the cross. By paying spiritual death, the penalty, for all members of the human race by bearing our sins. In this way Jesus Christ purchased a kingdom for Himself. First we have the cross and then we have the crown. In the first advent Jesus Christ provided a kingdom of regenerate people. He was also alone on the cross. God the Father couldn't have anything to do with Him because He was judging Him; God the Holy Spirit could have nothing to do with Him because He was bearing our sins. Jesus Christ was all alone hanging on this cross. He was bearing our sins and taking our place. He was also forsaken by man, was totally and completely alone, and at some time the Father said, "Not could that the Son should be alone."

When Jesus Christ was resurrected and ascended He was the only member of the human race to have a resurrection body, so He, as it were, ascended alone. There is only one member of the human race right now who has a resurrection body, so He is still alone. The next group to get a resurrection body will be His bride, but the bride is not a bride until the resurrection occurs at the Rapture. In the meantime the bride is a body.

Whenever a man is going to marry a woman he is marrying not only a soul but a body. She is a body when he meets her. But eventually she becomes his body, therefore bride. That is the whole concept of using body as a designation for the Church during the Church Age, but when the Church Age is over the body is going to do exactly what Christ did — resurrection and, as it were, ascension — going into heaven. Then, Christ as the last Adam will no longer be alone, He will now have His bride. Then He comes back with His bride to the earth to take the kingdom of this world away from Satan.

So the one sanctifying is Jesus Christ, the one who makes it possible for members of the human race to be set apart. We are in union with Him and in the future we will have a resurrection body exactly like His. But being in union with Him makes us victorious right now in the angelic conflict. The one being sanctified, then, is the bride which is now the body, the Church Age believer. The only difference in hagiazō (ἀγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh] this time is that the first time we have the present active participle of hagiazō (ἀγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh] and then we have present passive participle of hagiazō (ἀγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh]. The active participle: Jesus Christ, right man, is the initiator; passive voice: believers are the responders. So the one sanctified is Jesus Christ; the ones being sanctified are Church Age believers only. This does not apply to Old Testament saints.

Next we have “all of one” — ec enos pantes (πάντες) [pronounced PAHN-tehç]. Ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] means “out from”, but with pantes (πάντες) [pronounced PAHN-tehç] it means “all from.” Pantes (πάντες) [pronounced PAHN-tehç] is the nominative masculine plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs]. Ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] is the preposition with the ablative of heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn], which means “one.” So: “all from one” . Since it is ablative case: “all from the source of one.” The “one” is God the Father, the author of the plan. Ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative singular, plus the nominative masculine plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] refers to believers of the Church Age only. God the Father is the author of the plan, the source of operation grace, the source of the bride or the right woman for Jesus Christ.

The principle is that in His humiliation of bearing our sins Jesus Christ was definitely said to be alone — prophetically, Psalm 22:1; historically, Matthew 27:46; Mark 15:34. But His glorification demands that He has someone to share His glory. The first man had a glory, he was the ruler of this world. So as the ruler of this world it was not good for him to be alone, and he wasn't . God the Son provided for the first Adam a bride. The last Adam is also going to rule, therefore God the Father provides for Jesus Christ what Jesus Christ provided for the first Adam — a bride. The bride in the first case was a woman, the bride in the second case is all believers of the Church Age.

“for which cause” — preposition dia plus the accusative feminine singular of hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç] — “because of which.” The idiom is usually translated “for this reason”

“he is not ashamed” — present passive indicative of a compound verb, ε)paisxunomai. επί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] means upon or toward; epaischunomai (ἐπαισχύνομαι) [pronounced ehp-ahee-SKHOO-nom-ahee] means to be ashamed, it is an intensified form of the verb to be ashamed. The subject is Jesus Christ. The passive voice means He does not blush, He is not ashamed of His bride. This is referring to ultimate sanctification. When the bride comes back with Jesus Christ he will not be ashamed. Why? Because the bride was formed as a body and at the Rapture we have a resurrection. Now the believer has a resurrection body exactly like that of Christ. Then over the period of the Tribulation, while the body is turned into a bride, all human good is removed and burned. Therefore, when the bride returns with Christ at the second advent He will not be ashamed of believers who comes with Him, and that will include every believer. The worst believer you can think of, and Jesus will not be ashamed of that believer. “He is not ashamed” — present tense, linear aktionsart, it goes all the way into eternity. The passive voice: we receive this from Him — grace. The indicative mood: the reality of the fact that grace found a way not to be ashamed of any believer.

If Bob had a son with long hair, he would not introduce him as his son, but as his daughter.

Bob went with this blonde and they went to a very snooty affair. There is a smooth way to sit down with tails, and still smile. She bragged about Bob going. Bob put on a ragged pair of jeans and patches. When Bob picked her up and she was ashamed of him. He was eventually ejected with some of his football friends. He went down to the beach and went skinny dipping. Bob’s mother was ashamed of him for a week (his father was not).

God is ashamed of us anytime we sin; and even worse when we are in reversionism. But God has found a way to be able to present the very worst believer as his bride, and without being ashamed.

There are a lot of screwballs, some who are the worst weirdos that Bob has seen anywhere and they tell people that they are from Berachah. They can spell it and everything. Bob is ashamed of them.

How can God, Who is perfect, find a way not to be ashamed of all of us? We are sinners and some of us do all kinds of acts of human good. All of that is pitiful. God hates that human good just as much as sin. But the sins are forgiven and erased and the human good is burned up.

“How many of you are going to be embarrassed when you are asked how many you witness to and you say, zero, zero, a big fat zero.” When the rapture occurs, you go. Even if you have one foot in the grave as a reversionist believer during the sin unto death.

You are giving the young people a license to sin. Don’t have to. We’ve got a parking lot. 800 or 900 young people there tonite, and Bob is not afraid of grace or of anyone who is critical of him. Bob’s best friends will tell us that he is not a holy Joe. It is just grace.

God will not be ashamed of Bob. I knew that would be a revelation to some of you.

Bob knows a lot of believers that he is ashamed of; but God will not be.

“to call” — kaleô (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh], present active infinitive, also means to introduce or present. In other words, to call out a name in presentation. He won't be ashamed to introduce any of us. Kaleô (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh] means He is not ashamed to introduce them “as brethren” — members of the family of God.

There are people who hang out at the pastor's conferences. Bob is ashamed of them; and they were real dingalings. He wanted to lock them up during the conference. No common sense, no manners, no sense of responsibility. God will not be ashamed of the dingalings. It starts with positional sanctification and ends with ultimate sanctification.

Hebrews 2:11 “For the one sanctifying [Jesus Christ] and the ones being sanctified [believers of the Church Age] all from the source of one [God the Father, author of the plan]: for this reason he is not ashamed to introduce them as members of the family.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation 38:00

Hebrews 2:12 saying, "I will tell of your name to my brothers; in the midst of the congregation I will sing your praise." (Psalm 22:22) (ESV)

Verse 12 — “Saying” — present active participle of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] to introduce a quotation from Psalm 22:22. This is the same psalm in which we have prophetically, “My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?” The quotation, Psalm 22:1 is followed by all of these verses, bringing us the Psalm 22:22 which is quoted here. The quotation anticipates the session of the Lord Jesus Christ, seated at the right hand of the Father, at which point God the Father provides a bride for the last Adam. He provides a bride first, then operation footstool. In Psalm 22:21a we have the death of Christ, in Psalm 22:1b we have the resurrection. In Psalm 22:22 we have the ascension of the Lord Jesus Christ. The bride comes before the crown; we will be present as the bride. Again, “My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me” that opens up Psalm 22 is prophetic of the cross which anticipates the resurrection, ascension and session of Jesus Christ.

The Resurrection, Ascension and Session of Jesus Christ

1. After the ascension Christ is promised a bride and future rulership of the world.
2. At the Rapture Christ receives His bride; at the second advent Christ receives His kingdom.
3. The cross comes before the crown, the bride comes before the coronation.
4. The Father is perfect; His order is perfect.
5. In the Church Age a bride is being prepared for the last Adam.
6. In the Tribulation historical events are being prepared for the advent of the King.
7. The second advent of Christ will remove the angelic usurper, Satan, and place the rightful heir on the throne, the last Adam, the son of David. He is called in the previous verses the prince leader of salvation, He is called the groom of the Church,

He is called the King of kings, the Lord of lords. Jesus Christ is therefore the only celebrity in the Church Age. The bride has one celebrity, the groom.

Bob would not kiss the bride that belonged to some other guy for all the money in the world. What's wrong with this custom. If the bride has a lick of sense, her lips are for her groom. A bride should have one celebrity in her life, the groom. If Bob was the groom and he saw his bride kissing around, he's end things right there, and dramatically so.

This chapter will celebrate the Lord Jesus Christ as the True High Priest.

"I will declare" — aorist active indicative of apaggellô (ἀπαγγέλλω) [pronounced ap-ang-EL-loh] which means to proclaim. Apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] is the preposition of ultimate source; angeleô (ἀγγελέω) [pronounced ang-ehl-EH-oh] means to announce. It means to announce from ultimate source — "I will proclaim". This is Jesus Christ, as it were, seated at the right hand of the Father. David wrote the Psalm. The subject is Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ, as it were, proclaims this in heaven. He must leave behind on the earth in the devil's kingdom a message in permanent form for His right woman. The message is the content of Bible doctrine written in a permanent form — 1 Corinthians 2:16.

"your name" — the Father's name — onoma (ὄνομα, ατος, τό) [pronounced OHN-oh-ma] means the personality, the character. "I will proclaim your personality, your character, your plan." God the Father is the author of operation grace. The Father's plan is clearly proclaimed in the Word of God, it is reduced to writing, it is in permanent form. The content of scripture is the fulfillment of this verb.

"unto thy brethren" — the members of the family, dative of advantage. The believer has a response to this when he takes in doctrine, so we have the believer's response:

"in the midst of the church" — when this was originally written in Psalm 22 it meant "in the midst of the assembly." Ekklēsia (ἐκκλησία) [pronounced ek-klay-SEE-ah] means "church" today; it meant the assembly of Israel when David wrote it. When they were together David praised the Lord. So this was the original response of David as the writer of Psalm 22, in the middle of the congregation of Israel. But here, now that it has its prophetic significance fulfilled, and in the Church Age, we translate it "in the middle of the church."

"I will sing praise" — future active indicative — "unto thee." And that future tense means after the body becomes a bride. So this is the response when the bride identifies Christ, when the bride is in resurrection body.

Hebrews 2:12 ...saying, I will proclaim Your name to My family for their advantage in the midst of the assembly (of Israel) I will bring praise to You. (Psalm 22:22) R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 2:13 And again, "I will put my trust in him." And again, "Behold, I and the children God has given me." (ESV)

Verse 13 — the documentation continues. We have a quotation from Isaiah 8:17,18. The second and third documentations are from the Old Testament presenting two sides of the angelic conflict and relating them. The quotation from Isaiah 8:17, which comes first, presents the human side. Isaiah 8:18 is the divine side of the same picture. When you have in this verse “And again,” this is a special way of introducing a quotation from the Old Testament — Kai palin, which occurs twice. It is correctly translated “And again.” It means “citation.” The first “and again” — Isaiah 8:17, we have a very rare periphrastic, a future perfect periphrastic. In other words, we have a future active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The periphrastic is made up of a verb followed by a participle. Then we have the perfect active participle of peithō (πείθω) [pronounced PIE-thoh]. The future perfect periphrastic indicates a permanent result in the Church Age of every believer being the bride. How do you become a bride? By believing in Jesus Christ. Isaiah 8:17 is quoted to indicate the permanence of the relationship. You are a part of the bride of Christ forever as of the moment you believed in Him.

“in him” is a prepositional phrase, ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the dative. The object of faith is Jesus Christ. You identify Him as the Savior. In so doing you are not aware of the fact. It is like a young lady meeting a young man, not aware of the fact that he is her right man. First of all she becomes acquainted with him; the realization of this may come later. You don’t start out by saying Jesus Christ is my right man, you start out by believing in Him as Savior. Then as you learn doctrine you become aware of these things.

The divine side is quoted: Isaiah 8:18 — “And again, Behold.” The imperative of horaō (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh] — “see this” .“I” refers to Jesus Christ at the right hand of the Father; “and the children” — paidion (παιδίον) [pronounced pahee-DEE-on], a term of endearment for “dear children” .

“whom God has given to me” — the word “God” is literally, “the God” — ho Theos; “has given” — aorist active indicative of didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee]. The moment you believed in Jesus Christ, that was the moment when God the Father gave you to Jesus Christ as a part of His bride; “me” is a dative singular of possession from the personal pronoun. The dative of possession is personal interest particularized to the point of ownership, and these believers now belong to God but are given to Christ, the last Adam, so that He should not be alone.

Hebrews 2:13 “And again, I will put my trust upon him. And again, Behold I [Jesus Christ] and the dear children [believers of the Church Age] whom the God has given to me [Jesus Christ] for a possession.” (Isa. 8:17, 18) R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

We are getting ready for the doctrine of the Incarnate Christ.

The Doctrine of the Ascension and Session

1. The resurrection body of Jesus Christ was capable of space travel. The humanity of Jesus Christ in a resurrection body traveled through all three heavens, John 20:17, and therefore demonstrated that in His resurrection body the humanity of Christ was greater than all the angelic forces put together.

2. The session of Christ confirms the acceptability of the humanity of Christ in heaven which guarantees the acceptability of the bride in heaven. Jesus Christ is acceptable — Psalm 110:1; Romans 8:34; Ephesians 1:20; Colossians 3:1; Hebrews 1:3, 13; 8:1; 10:12; 1Peter 3:22. We are acceptable because Christ is acceptable; we are in union with Christ.
3. The ascension and session of Christ form the basis for victory in the angelic conflict. The fact that Jesus Christ could go through all of the hordes of angels opposed to Him and get into the third heaven indicates that His human resurrection body is greater than all angelic creatures — Hebrews 1:3–13.
4. The ascension and session of Christ began a new sphere of the angelic conflict — Ephesians 1:20–22; 4:7–10 — therefore the believer in the Church Age is involved in the intensification of the angelic conflict.
5. The ascension and session began operation footstool prophesied in Psalm 110:1 and quoted in Luke 20:42,43; Acts 2:33,34; Hebrews 1:13.
6. The second advent of Christ will conclude operation footstool — Daniel 7:13,14; Zechariah 13:2; Colossians 2:15; Revelation 20:1–3.
7. The ascension and session of Christ completes the glorification of Christ in hypostatic union. Christ was in hypostatic union, but up through the cross we have humiliation. There is no glorification until resurrection occurs three days after the cross. Acts 2:33; 5:31; 1Peter 3:22.
8. The ascension and session of Christ explain the uniqueness of the Church Age — John 7:37–39.
9. The ascension and session of Christ is the key to victory in the angelic conflict — Hebrews 1:4.

The Doctrine of Glory

1. Glory is used in the scripture for the essence of God — Romans 3:23; Ephesians 1:17; Deuteronomy 5:24; Psalm 21:5. So glory has the concept of the perfect character of God, everything that God is.
2. Glory is used for the edification complex of the soul of the believer — Ephesians 3:21; Colossians 1:27; 1Peter 1:8; 2Thessalonians 2:14.
3. The right woman is the glory of the right man — 1Corinthians 11:7, 15.
4. The grace of God is described as glory — Ephesians 1:6.
5. The provision of God's grace is called "the riches of glory" [everything that comes from His perfect character] — Ephesians 3:16; 1:18; Philippians 4:19.
6. Heaven and eternal life are described as glory — 1Timothy 3:16; Hebrews 2:10; 1Peter 5:10; 2Peter 1:3.
7. There are a few passages in the scripture where human glamour is described as glory [should be translated "glamour"] — 1Peter 1:24; Philippians 3:19.
8. Glory is used to describe the wonders of the universe — 1Corinthians 15:40,41.

9. Glory is used to describe the resurrection body of the believer — 1Corinthians 15:43; 2Thessalonians 2:14.
10. Glory is associated with operation footstool in the presentation of the Church as the bride of Christ at the second advent — Hebrews 2:10

1972 Hebrews 2:14

07/21/1972 Blood in animal, man, Christ; difference between birth into & function of priesthood. Spiritual death, 7 points.

Weeded out of the idiotic teachers; they did volunteer. We seem to have a great teaching corps now. Advantage to have children learn Bible doctrine with their peers. This is a very good extension of the training that they are getting at home. It is good training for boys. They can get into a fight and it's okay. They cannot punch yet.

I think this is the beginning of prep school. Whatever this punch is, they drink it, but it will ruin leather. Daily Vacation Bible School. The crisis began with the books left in the seats.

Those of you who are necking in the parking lot, or counseling, whatever, the night watchman to send you home.

Apparently a recent move to the Galleria area; and it is mentioned a few times. Don't leave a Bible behind unless you are going to sit in that seat tomorrow.

Bob says, "Onto better things" just when I am looking down at the DVD of the 3rd season of Better Things.

Hebrews 2:14 Since therefore the children share in flesh and blood, he himself likewise partook of the same things, that through death he might destroy the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil,... (ESV)

The devil does not have the sovereignty or power of physical death, unless God grants him that authority. You must understand this and understand v. 14 to refer to spiritual death.

Verse 14 — "Forasmuch then" is two Greek words, Επει (ἐπει) [pronounced ehp-IH] ουν. ουν is an inferential particle, it demands a conclusion. "Επει (ἐπει) [pronounced ehp-IH] means "since." The word "as" is not found in the original. We really have something that sounds like, "Since therefore." "Since" is the adverb indicating that we are approaching a very important principle, one that needs great emphasis. The word "then" or literally, "therefore," is the inferential particle. Generally it does not occur at the beginning of a sentence but somewhere in the sentence to indicate a conclusion is being reached in the process of developing the sentence.

"the children" — ta paidia is quoted from the previous verse. Paidia is the nominative plural of paidion (παιδίον) [pronounced pahee-DEE-on] and refers to believers both here and in the previous verse. The noun is a term of endearment for children and can very easily be translated “dear children.” The Greeks actually used words to distinguish children at their best and children at their worst. So paidion (παιδίον) [pronounced pahee-DEE-on] means children at their best. “Since therefore the children [born again believers].”

“are partakers” — (“Are” is usually used to translate a passive voice. Here is an active voice but the translation is bad) perfect active indicative of koinwnew. In the perfect tense this means to have a permanent partnership. Koinwnew means to share in common with one another. Here it means a permanent type partnership, a permanent sharing. The active voice means that all the “dear children” have this permanent sharing. The indicative mood is the reality of the fact that all believers are human. The verb is set up in contrast to one which is used a little later on for Jesus Christ for His humanity. This anticipates a few words: metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKKH-oh] which also means to share. Metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKKH-oh] is used for Jesus Christ; koinwnew is used for the rest of the human race. This is because of the impeccability of the humanity of Christ.

“flesh and blood” is incorrect. It is haima (αἷμα) [pronounced HI-mah]toj kai sarkoj. Haima (αἷμα) [pronounced HI-mah]toj is the genitive singular of haima (αἷμα) [pronounced HI-mah], the word for “blood” .It comes first in the text — “blood and flesh” .We have the genitive singular of haima (αἷμα) [pronounced HI-mah] and the genitive singular of sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx]. The blood represents the whole principle of the cardiovascular system. We, as members of the human race, are blood and then flesh. The blood is mentioned first because the blood is related to life. In the approach here we have the physiological approach rather than the soulish approach to man. Why don't we mention the soul here? Because there is a distinction between the human soul of Jesus Christ and the human soul of all members of the human race. All members of the human race have an old sin nature; Jesus Christ is different. So this is brought out by blood and flesh as physiological terms for mankind and koinwnew as over against metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKKH-oh]. Koinwnew indicates our common physiological function. The statement of this passage in the original language eliminates any form of evolution. There never was a member of the human race from the very beginning that did not have blood and flesh. And no one has ever found a way to turn amoeba into blood. Blood comes before flesh and it is something we all have in common.

Putting out a pamphlet on the Blood of Christ in the near future. The precious blood of Christ is related to the animal blood. Animals die by losing their blood. Every time the heart beats, it sends the blood out of the animal's carotid.

This came right out of John Walvoord's theology class; he is going to be surprised to be quoted. Some of you could lose 50 or 60 lbs. and be healthier, but you cannot lose 4 quarts of blood; you'd die. The blood carries oxygen and it does a lot of processing. You can get along without your fat.

One of Bob's friends who ran off weight and then the Marines took off more weight. The blood is mentioned first because the blood is related to life. We all have this in common. The physiological approach rather than the soulish approach to man.

This goes against evolution. Every member of the human race has blood and flesh from the very beginning. I am calling you stupid if you think that evolution has any part on God's plan. Some of you have gone through a geology system. Some went through medicine and you got it that way. Some were just trying to get through, and they got it in the science courses. Some are biochemists. Some have had this all of their academic lives.

Science has great imagination. They have put flesh upon a skeletal structure. Bob learned about blue blood and Baron Deruff was living nearby and Bob learned his first anti-communist lessons; he got out of Russia. When he cut his foot on a shell, he bled red and Bob noticed that.

Blood comes before flesh; and this is something that we all have in common. Oun anticipates a conclusion which has not yet come.

"Since therefore the dear children share blood and flesh" — "since" is the conjunctive adverb that indicates we haven't really got to the point yet. But we will get there. And οὐν is a secondary inferential particle which tells us the conclusion will come in the next breath. Now we have arrived in a very dramatic way — "He also himself." Kai autos refers to Jesus Christ. Kai translated "also"; autos is a reflexive pronoun which has great emphasis. It is a reflexive pronoun used as a personal pronoun for great emphasis — "He himself." And then instead of koinwneo we switch verbs to tell us that we are getting to our conclusion because when you have an adverb used as a conjunction followed by an inferential particle, second class — ουν, followed by a verb which sets up something common in the human race, and then you come to something that is a conclusion and is unique but still a part of the human race, then you get kai autos — "he also himself."

And now we are coming to holy ground because we are coming at this point to meet our high priest who has already been presented as our prince leader. He is the only celebrity in Christianity; He is our one and only celebrity. We start to meet Him first at the cross and then later on in this section, verse 17, as our high priest. Then we will see something He understands about us but we don't understand about Him in verse 18. So we are moving in the direction of a conclusion and at the same time as we have a conclusion we have information that puts the Lord Jesus Christ in the spotlight and for the first time in our passage a direct reference to the subject of Hebrews: the high priesthood of Jesus Christ and the universal priesthood of the believer. And Jesus Christ the high priest demands our attention, and He demands that we move into the supergrace life. There is only one place for a priest to be and that is in supergrace, the normal function of the priesthood of the believer. In this dispensation, the Church Age, God has ordained as a part of His plan that all born again believers function as priests. So right now in this apostate generation very few are doing so. Every believer is a priest. It is one thing to be a priest, it is something else to function as a priest. Only in the function of the priesthood do we see the human entrance into the angelic conflict on the side of the Lord. The only believers who are on the side of the Lord in the angelic conflict are born again believers who have reached supergrace.

Jesus did not function as a priest until He was an adult. We are born as priests, but we do not function as priests until we reach spiritual adulthood, which is supergrace.

In Hebrews 6, you have a whole bunch of dumbheads who do not understand the priesthood and they have to be pulled out of reversionism before they can function as priests.

We are starting here with the celebrity of Christianity, the Lord Jesus Christ, and the fact that Jesus Christ became a member of the human race. But one thing was missing in, the one thing in his soul that kept Him out of the devil's kingdom. To show that you have to have koinwnew. This is for members of the human race who are born spiritually dead and born into Satan's kingdom and there has got to be a difference between koinwnew and what is coming up — metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKH-oh]. Metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKH-oh] is the humanity of Christ because the humanity of Christ is true but unique; koinwnew is the rest of humanity, we are all the same blood and flesh.

Next we have metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKH-oh], aorist active indicative. Meta is the preposition of association; exw means to have and to hold, hence to have an association with, to share in the sense of taking hold, but being unique. This verb is used instead of repeating koinwnew because while Christ shared blood and flesh there was something He did not share. Why won't koinwnew work?

Two verbs here; one of them cannot be applied to Jesus. Metecho means He has blood and flesh; all of the things of the soul; but He does not have a sin nature. That is the one thing that He does not have in common with the human race. It is impossible for there ever to be equality in birth.

What do we have in common, being born into the human race? We have in common and old sin nature, and that means we are born spiritually dead and it means we are born into the devil's kingdom. That is why there is a whole chapter before hand on the angelic conflict. Why the angelic conflict here? Because the angelic conflict finds man behind the eight ball from the moment of birth. We are born into the devil's kingdom. Our citizenship card is spiritual death or the old sin nature. Now here is that marvelous, impeccable, unique person, the prince leader, Jesus Christ. He came into the world virgin born, without a sin nature. Therefore we could not have koinwnew used for Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ was not born with an old sin nature. The virgin birth puts Him into metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKH-oh] instead of koinwnew. Metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKH-oh] means He is blood and flesh, all of the things of the soul, but He doesn't have a sin nature. So He doesn't share everything in common with the human race because he doesn't have a sin nature.

We are born into the kingdom of the devil; our spiritual death is our separation from God, from birth.

That brings up a principle: It is impossible for there ever to be in physical birth equality in birth. In the first place the birth of Jesus Christ is so unique that He is born above us in that he does not have an old sin nature. Koinwnew means to share everything in common, and we do, we all have a sin nature. We were born into the devil's kingdom, and our high priest did something in three hours that makes it possible for us to get on God's side as members of the human race. Not only at the cross are we saved and become the beneficiaries of 36 things, including eternal life, but at that moment we enter the angelic conflict on God's side. We have been delivered from the power of darkness.

We are born again and being born again means we are born into a new kingdom. And that means something of great significance, it means that while we are spiritually immature at the point of being born again we can through the daily intake of Bible doctrine grow up. And since we were born again as priests we can actually function some day under the priesthood we receive at birth. At birth Jesus Christ was born a king but He doesn't function under it yet. There is a lapse between what we receive by birth and the function of it. We were born again as priests but that doesn't mean you will ever function as a priest. The function of the priesthood starts at the supergrace life. The basic operation of the priesthood in getting to function as a priest is Bible doctrine taken in every day.

All priests are born as priests, in the Levitical system. But they do not always grow to an age of majority where they begin to function as a priest.

Our old notes on Hebrews and Ephesians are now obsolete. A lot of you have had a rough life for a long time; and some of you may be kicked around pretty hard. But you are alive and God's objective for your life is spiritual maturity. God brought everyone to Berachah to grow spiritually and to function as a priest.

There is a system and plan by Satan to get us working for him. We may have 1 or 5 or 10 glorious years in supergrace. "Happy am I, oh yes I'm happy," you can't even fool a hippie with that one.

Heliograph? Apaches; and the cavalry could not catch up with them. This system made it possible for the Americans to catch up with them.

Herod used the heliograph, but could not find the Lord Jesus Christ.

"he also himself" ... metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKH-oh] — aorist tense, the point of His birth; active voice: He was born but He was and is the only member of the human race born outside of the devil's kingdom. The devil had no hold on Jesus Christ. Metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKH-oh] means He shared in a unique manner.

You do not have to have a sin nature in order to be true humanity. Two Adams started out with no sin nature. Both were true humanity.

Then we have the word "likewise" — the adverb paraphsiwj which means "in the same manner" .In other words, He was just as much true humanity as we are, except He didn't have a sin nature. Note: You don't have to have a sin nature to be true humanity. There have been two Adam's, the first and the last, without one.

Next we have "of the same," the genitive singular of autos. Because of the virgin birth Christ was born minus the old sin nature and is therefore unique.

Now we get to the purpose. "That" is hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus the subjunctive mood. This introduces a purpose clause — "that he death," the preposition dia plus the genitive of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], literally, "through death." This is a reference to His spiritual death on the cross. In the physical death of Christ we have a very clear statement in the scripture. In His spiritual death our sins were poured on Him and judged, and spiritual death is associated with the blood, not physical death. The blood of Christ refers to His spiritual death, not His physical death. In His physical death His soul went to paradise and His spirit went to the presence of the Father. But in His spiritual death He bore our sins in His own body on the tree. The blood never refers to the physical death of Christ, that is one reason He died with all of His blood in His body. "That through death" — Christ bearing our sins.

Christ died physically because His work was finished. His dying for our sins was not physical but spiritual.

"might destroy" — aorist active subjunctive of katargeō (καταργέω) [pronounced kaht-ahrg-EH-oh]. Katargeō (καταργέω) [pronounced kaht-ahrg-EH-oh] means to render useless, to render powerless, to abrogate, to cancel, to render null and void, to neutralize. The best translation here is "that he might render powerless."

"him that had" — present active participle of echō (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh], "the one having and holding" — "the power" — kratō means "ruling power". So we have, "the one having the ruling power of the sovereignty of death." And again we have thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], referring to spiritual death.

Summary

1. Thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], which occurs twice, refers to spiritual death, and the second time — the ruling power or the sovereignty of death — it refers to the dominion of those who are spiritually dead.
2. Members of the human race are born physically alive and at the same time spiritually dead.
3. Therefore through birth mankind enters into the kingdom of Satan, a kingdom of spiritual death.
4. Satan has and holds the ruling power of spiritual death. He has had this power from the fall of man and will have it until the second advent of Christ.
5. As part of the second phase of the angelic conflict Satan holds man in his power through spiritual death (from birth) just like jailer holds a prisoner until a true legal release is obtained.

6. Jesus Christ as our high priest provided the true legal release by His work on the cross, bearing our sins, paying the penalty of sin — spiritual death.
7. The death of Christ for our sins propitiates the justice of God the Father and reconciles man to God, taking him out of the kingdom of Satan and putting him into what is called literally from the Greek, the kingdom of the Son of his love.

“that is” — present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], “that keeps on being” — τὸν διαβολῶν, the accusative form — “the devil.” In other words, since the fall of man an angel has been the ruler of this world. An angel replaced man, Adam, as the ruler of the world. Satan will be the ruler of the world until he is replaced by the last Adam at the second advent.

Hebrews 2:14 “Since, therefore, the children share blood and flesh, he also himself in a unique manner and in the same manner took hold of the same [shares the same;] that he through death [spiritual] might render powerless the one having the ruling power of the death, that is, the devil.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

It is spiritual death that brings fear upon man. It is true that many people are afraid to die physically but spiritual death is the kingdom of Satan that brings fear into the hearts of men about every subject.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #13

08/04/1972 2 Cor. 13:5–9 Pastor-teacher's life no issue in GAP; every believer to test own life for reversionism

We are going to be moving into the priesthood of the believer and the High Priesthood of Jesus Christ. We came a priest the day that we accept Jesus Christ as Savior. This appointment does not guarantee our function. We have this by birth, but not by function.

We may think that we should not listen to a pastor-teacher because of his life; but that is not right; no more than Bob decides, “I don’t want to teach these knuckleheads; they just don’t deserve it.” There is one general and 40 privates, not the other way around.

In the army, someone might say, “I am not going to obey my general because he does not live a very good life.” What Bob does before he steps into the pulpit and after, is none of your business? What we do before and after is none of his business. For most of us, this is old hat.

2Cor. 13:5 Examine yourselves, to see whether you are in the faith [in the doctrine]. Test yourselves. Or do you not realize this about yourselves, that Jesus Christ is in you?—unless indeed you fail to meet the test! (ESV)

Every believer must determine for himself his own spiritual state. It is not up to us to determine the spiritual state of anyone else.

Be testing yourselves; and how do you do this without being weird? You just ask yourself, when was the last time I went to Bible class. What excuse have I been using.

En + pistis and the definite article. This is what is believed or Bible doctrine. Is God going to leave to dangling so that you will be subjective? In Bible doctrine and you are progressing; not in Bible doctrine, you are retrogressing.

Dokimazo is testing for approval. Epiginosko which is the verb, which is getting over and above knowledge. To know completely; to know exactly; to perceive categorically. Christ in you is positional truth; Christ with you is the edification complex structure. The supergrace believer having fellowship with Christ. When the believer is in reversionism, Jesus stands outside the door and knocks. You are lukewarm as a believer. Reversionistic. Opposite that is the supergrace believer.

Be testing yourselves if [1st class condition, from the supposition of reality] you are in the doctrine, for approval, be perceiving yourselves that Jesus Christ [is] with you.

There is an exception. Aymeti means unless or except. The believer with an edification complex has a capacity for love of Jesus. First of these exceptions is the spiritual moron. They get out of fellowship and stay there. Out of fellowship from the day that he first sins after salvation and he stays there. He is a holy roller or something like this. He never grew. There is the reversionist, who grow spiritually, but then took a dive. Both can end up in the sin unto death.

Neuter plural of adokimos. A technical word for reversionism. The person is worthless, he is unfit.

The indwelling of Christ is the indwelling of Jesus Christ in every person. The Presence of Jesus Christ is Him living inside of us having an edification complex.

2Cor. 13:6 Moreover, I hope you will find out that we have not failed the test [we are bit reversionists].

Two hoti's here. The content of Paul's hope and the second is the anticipated thinking in the mind's of the Corinthians.

Paul then says that his life and the life of any other communicator is not the issue.

2Cor. 13:7 But we pray face to face with the God that you (Corinthians) may not do evil—not that we may appear to have met the test [approved should be visible], but that you may do what is right [the honorable thing], though we may seem to have failed [or, to seem to be like reversionists to you].

There are two negatives here. What evil (kokos) means, is delineated. Negative volition to Bible doctrine, scar tissue on the left bank, opening up on mataiotis, the frantic search for happiness and blackout of the soul, emotional revolt of the soul, reversionism, reverse process reversionism; this is a description of committing evil.

Ouk hina is a negative purpose clause. A reference to we refers to Paul and all other pastor-teachers of that era. Constantive aorist; there would be communicators in every generation.

Not that we are not seen to be approved.

Explanation of 2corinthians 13:7

1. It is not about the pastor-teacher being approved by the believer in the congregation. The life of the pastor is not the benefit; but the message. Isn't that inconsistent? No; you do not deserve to be in Bible class either.
2. Since dokimos is nominative plural, it cannot be the object of the verb; it belongs with the subject.
3. So "we" and "approved" go together.
4. The individual believer's opinion of his pastor-teacher is unimportant. Only what he says is of interest to the members of the congregation.

We only have to know that Bob teaches doctrine and that he has the authority. You may like one day what you think you know about him, and one day you might like him and the next day you might not. The only important detail is, what Bob teaches.

it is a double-standard that the congregation can do whatever they want; but the preachers are supposed to be goody two-shoes. Why should there be a double-standard in the ministry? The issue is, not the type of sins committed.

This passage says, you don't have to approve and you do not have to disapprove.

The honorable thing is to grow spiritually. It is to developed the edification complex.

2Cor. 13:8 For we (pastors) cannot do anything against the truth (Bible doctrine), but only for the truth.

Whatever our lives are, Paul says, we can only do with the doctrine is. We can only act upon the truth.

"What is the difference between us?" Paul asks them, "Sometimes you are good and sometimes you are not; sometimes I am good and sometimes I am not. It does not matter."

"No matter how I fail or succeed in life, my life is not the issue and my life cannot stop doctrine. You can get it and grow up."

A pastor's life, with his sins or failures, does not neutralize Bible doctrine. The pastor can only communicate for doctrine. It does not matter what a person is in life as a pastor-teacher.

Summary

1. The pastor's message is the issue in the supergrace life.
2. Concentrate on the pastor's teaching; and give him privacy in his life.
3. No one earns or deserves blessing from God.
4. The phrase against the truth means the pastor's life is not the issue.
5. The pastor's function is teaching Bible doctrine, which is the issue to us.

2Cor. 13:9 For we are glad when we are weak and you are strong. Your restoration is what we pray for.

1972 Hebrews 2:15–16

Lesson #14

08/11/1972 Hebrews 2:15–16 Spiritual death causes fear/slavery, production of human good & legalism; security in absolutes

Monday: John, Tuesday: James, Wednesday: Revelation; Thursday: Ephesians (whether you like it or not); Friday: Hebrews, 1st Sunday: Colossians, 2nd Sunday: Romans, Sunday evening: about to finish 2Corinthians and start Genesis. Monday morning: 2Peter.

Any jackass who does not like this book or that; it is all the Word of God. You cannot get enough Ephesians.

Hebrews 2:14 "Since, therefore, the children share blood and flesh, he also himself in a unique manner and in the same manner took hold of the same [shares the same;] that he through death [spiritual] might render powerless the one having the ruling power of the death, that is, the devil." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

There are 7 kinds of death; v. 14 is spiritual death. Adam lost out to the ruler of this world through sin. Adam died that day that he sinned. He lived some 900 years after his spiritual death. When he ate, he lost the rulership of this world. Spiritual death was his citizenship paper indicating that he is under Satan. In Luke 1, the unbeliever is said to be sitting in darkness; and Jesus is presented as the light of the world. Spiritual death is the key for understanding this section. It is the sign of citizenship in Satan's kingdom.

Jesus was tempted in all points as us. He was tempted to enter into Satan's kingdom. Thousands of temptations were thrown into His path. He went to the cross being sinless; impeccable, a free man qualified to purchase our freedom from the slave market of sin.

Jesus died spiritually on the cross. When Christ came around to dying physically; salvation was a completed fact. Jesus kept screaming, "My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?” Jesus dies physically because His work was finished. The Lord’s physical death has nothing to do with salvation. That just meant that His work was complete.

Fear from the source of death; and death is spiritual death. People are afraid to die physically, but physical death is what causes fear in the souls of most men.

Hebrews 2:15 ...and deliver all those who through fear of death were subject to lifelong slavery. (ESV)

Verse 15 — the word “deliver” is an aorist active subjunctive of ἀπαλλάσσω ἀπαλλάσσω
- Transliteration: Apallasso; - Phonetic: ap-al-las'-so this means to set someone free; to get the release of someone. Culminative aorist emphasizes the results of what has happened. If the results are absolute and dogmatic, then it is a gnomic aorist. Jesus Christ produced the action of this verb.

This word really means to effect the release of someone, to set someone free. This is what we call a gnomic aorist. It is very difficult to distinguish between the gnomic and the culminative aorist. The culminative aorist emphasizes the results of what has happened. If the results are absolute and dogmatic it becomes a gnomic aorist, and because this deliverance is axiomatic we actually have a gnomic aorist here. The active voice: Jesus Christ produced the action of this verb. The subjunctive mood indicates the continuation of the purpose clause from the previous verse. The devil rules the world by spiritual death, this is the part of doctrine you must know. A king always has a sceptre. The sceptre of the devil as the ruler of this world is spiritual death. The devil cannot rule anyone who is related to God. Spiritual death is no relationship with God, no fellowship with God. So the word “deliver,” the subjunctive mood, is a continuation of that purpose clause that began in the middle of verse 14.

“that he might deliver” — the believer is released or set free from the Satanic rule to become a member of the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ and to become at the same time a servant of Jesus Christ — but a servant with most unusual dignity for he is a priest servant to Jesus Christ.

“them” — masculine accusative plural of the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. The demonstrative pronoun refers to all members of the human race who believe in Jesus Christ. God has provided a way of deliverance. The word “deliver” means to release, set free, effect the release of. On the cross Jesus Christ effected our release from Satan’s kingdom. So the translation so far: “And release from Satan’s kingdom [“them” is not correct. The demonstrative pronoun should be translated “those”] those [persons]” .

“who” — hosos (ὅσος) [pronounced HOS-os]. The demonstrative pronoun is followed by a relative pronoun. This is called a correlative relative pronoun. An ordinary relative pronoun would be hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]. The correlative relative pronoun is used in four ways. it can be used of space and when it is it is translated “as great as” .It can be used of time and it translated “as long as” .It can be used of quantity — “as many as.” It can be used of measure — “as much as” .Here we have quantity and therefore we translate it: “those persons as many as.”

“through fear” — instrumental singular from foboj. In the instrumental foboj means “by fear,” or “by means of fear.” Then we have “of death” and this is nothing to do with physical death, this is fear of something greater. “Of death” is incorrect. This is the ablative singular of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], spiritual death which is Satan’s ruling power over the human race. So literally, “by means of fear from the source of death.” All fear in the human race has its source in the fact that people are cut off from God. That is what this phrase is saying. Why do people in the human race have fears about anything? Because they have no consciousness of an absolute relationship with God. Therefore the kingdom of Satan, spiritual death, is made up of frightened people. All people are frightened until they know their relationship with God. At some time, some fear creeps up on any member of the human race. fear is really used here in the sense of lack of security. How can you have any security in this life and in this world unless you know that you have a permanent relationship with God and you know that you are in His hands and He is taking care of you? That is what wipes out fear. When you are occupied with Christ, how can you be afraid of anything? That is why the Psalmist said, “What time I could be afraid, I will trust in thee.”

A spiritual moron is afraid because he has never learned any doctrine; a reversionistic believer is afraid because he has forgotten doctrine. He is like an unbeliever in that sense. Satan can only capture, as it were, the believer. He can’t take the believer out of God’s kingdom, but he can capture him and neutralize him through fear, by inducing fear. For babies getting started they faith-rest — claim a promise — but when a believer grows up he will be so occupied with Christ he won’t have to claim a promise. And how does a reversionist get out of the hole he has dug — faith-rest! Faith-rest is for reversion recovery; faith-rest is for babies; faith-rest is to get you going in the right direction. But once you have enough doctrine in the supergrace life you are going to be so occupied with Christ that you are going to forget all about claiming promises and will realize how great is His power and how great is grace, and you move right on without even thinking about claiming a promise.

When you grow up, your mind and soul grow up. You are able to bypass various promises.

How many of you read a manual and then decide, “If my date smiles at me 3x then I will kiss her.” You do not follow a manual when on a date. Hebrews finds you as a baby and leaves you in supergrace. Hebrews finds you in reversionism and leaves you with an edification complex structure. In the 3rd and 4th chapters, the writer was dealing with a bunch of idiots; so you go back and claiming promises.

As you grow up, you claim promises day after day, but then, at some point of growth, you don't necessarily need to. You are comfortable in your spiritual life. When you get security, you move on to something else. Believers are responders to the Lord. Once you have enough doctrine in the supergrace life, you move forward without claiming promises.

Rebound is a doctrine as well as a promise. "How many of you in rebound, tell God, 'I am standing on Your promise of 1John1:9)'" You are getting into the doctrine stage, a good stage to get into.

"by means of fear from the source of death" — the ablative of source connotes the root idea of separation and it is accompanied by the implication that the original situation contributed in some way to the present state. Therefore, the present state is fear, the basis for it is spiritual death. Spiritual death has no relationship with God and therefore no absolute security. In every stage of life, they teach that there are no absolutes; but the Bible tells us the exact opposite. God is an absolute and His promises are absolutes.

The goose that lays the golden egg is capitalism. Destroy management and capital, then you destroy the goose. Destroy that and there is no more security.

Fear is not only a mental attitude sin, fear is a condition. The ablative says that fear is a state, a condition in life based upon no absolute security. We have absolute security whether we know it or not. The source of fear is spiritual death, not physical death.

You don't frighten people into a way of life or into a particular behavior pattern. The basis of your security is grace. Who gave you the idea that you can commit a sin and lose your salvation. You cannot sin and fall outside of the plan of God. Our sins never cancel the plan of God. God is a lot greater than your sins and your failures and your idiocy. When God saves us, there is no way that you can cancel it. You cannot change what God has done; that's grace.

Legalist parents, their kids are the worst, most drunken kids on the campus. They got out from under your screwball ideas. It is very relaxing to know you have done all that you can to teach your child and, wherever they are, they are holding their own. There is a lot of difference between grace rearing and legalistic rearing.

In college, the wildest people that Bob knew were kids from fundy homes.

"were" — imperfect active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. "All of their lifetime" is incorrect. It is dia plus the genitive of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] plus the present active infinitive of zaô (ζᾶω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]. This is an idiom which means through all the functions of life — "were through all the functions of life." Then comes the verb, "kept on being subject to bondage." "Subject to" in the nominative plural from the adjective e)noxoj, and it means to be liable to or held in. Then we have douleia which is the genitive singular for slavery.

Hebrews 2:15 “And released [from Satan’s kingdom] those persons as many as by means of fear from the source of death [spiritual] through all the functions of life were held in slavery.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

An unbeliever is in slavery in every function of life, no matter how great he is, no matter how he succeeds.

Summary

1. In other words, while they were alive physically in all the functions of the life they were in slavery spiritually — in slavery to spiritual death, they had absolutely no relationship with God. When unbelievers talk about God, they are really deists; like Voltaire. They do not believe in God; they use Him as a front.
2. Spiritual death is a set of chains that shackle all unbelievers into slavery while continuing in every function of life. Invisible set of chains called spiritual death.
3. Jesus Christ came into the world to break those chains and shackles and give relationship with God. Gal. 5:1 Jesus Christ made us free by the cross. The believer gets shackles back on by submitting to legalism. We are filled up with believers who are legalistic.
4. The result of the cross was breaking the shackles of slavery to fear and spiritual death.
5. In this way, through the cross, Jesus Christ has delivered us from the sovereignty of Satan while still living in the devil’s world.
6. The cross not only provides eternal salvation but freedom from the bondage of Satan’s kingdom.

Hebrews 2:16 For surely it is not angels that he helps, but he helps the offspring of Abraham. (ESV)

Verse 16 — the choice of the incarnation. “For” — gar, is a particle used as a conjunction to express one of four things: cause, inference, continuation, or explanation. Here we have explanation, gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] plus the adverb dhpou, which means “obviously” — “For obviously” .

It is obvious that Jesus did not take upon Himself the nature of an angel.

“he took not on” — present middle indicative of epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] lambánô (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh]. epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] means upon; lambánô (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] to receive. When you put these together it means to assume. The present tense is the dramatic present. The middle voice is reflexive: He Himself [Christ] — “For obviously he did not assume the nature of angels”.

“but” — we have an adversative conjunction, al. The contrast is between angelic and human creation. Again we have epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] lambánô (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh], “he did assume the seed of Abraham.”

Hebrews 2:16 “For obviously he did not assume the nature of angels; but he did assume the seed of Abraham.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. Since man was created to resolve the angelic conflict God stays with His plan. God does not change His plan midstream. If God creates man to resolve the angelic conflict, count on it, God is going to find a man to do it. That Man is the last Adam. Therefore Christ did not become an angel, He became a man.
2. Since the first Adam lost the victory through the fall the last Adam must win the victory at the cross.
3. Abraham is mentioned as the human being for the pattern because Abraham was born a Gentile and became a Jew. Jesus Christ is going to save Jews and Gentiles but Jesus Christ is born of the Jewish line.
4. Abraham is both the founder for the Jewish race and the pattern for Jewish regeneration. Jewish regeneration is described in Genesis 15:6, the hiphil perfect of amen. The hiphil is causative active voice; perfect tense: completed action. It should be translated, “Abraham had believed in the Lord and it was credited to his account for righteousness.” This is amplified in Romans 9:6–15.
5. Therefore Jesus Christ is born to the Jewish race to fulfil the unconditional covenants to born-again Jews.

The choice of Jesus Christ

God killed 2 birds with one stone; broke the back of Satan and provided salvation for us; based upon the cross.

Jesus Christ made a choice when he was still God, coequal with the Father and with the Holy Spirit. The sovereignty of Jesus Christ: he had to choose to become man. The choice was from His sovereignty. When Jesus Christ decided to become a man and not an angel He decided it on His own. Was His judgement good? He is perfect — essence box. After the cross Jesus was glorified through resurrection, ascension and session, and at that point — session — the humanity of Christ became superior to all angelic creatures.

So man inferior to angels by birth, by the new birth becomes superior to angels. Furthermore, it is God who receives the glorify by taking man, an inferior creature, and through grace making him ultimately and eternally superior to angels in every way. That is why we have only one celebrity in the Christian way of life: Jesus Christ.

Hebrews 2:17 Therefore he had to be made like his brothers in every respect, so that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest in the service of God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people. (ESV)

Bob can barely read this translation.

The greatest celebrity in Israel, originally was the High Priest, not a king. Not until the people wanted to be like the other nations.

Verse 17 — the celebrity. The celebrityship is found in the phrase “merciful and faithful high priest.” Do you realize that as the history of Israel developed the greatest celebrity in Israel was always the high priest, that it was never God’s intention for a king to be visible, that Jesus Christ Himself was the King of Israel until the people of Israel elected Saul king of Israel. They wanted to be like other nations. They were different from nations; they were a theocracy; they were ruled by the Lord Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is God; God was invisible to them, but real through doctrine, through the great rituals which portrayed the doctrines of the superiority, the sovereignty of Jesus Christ in their midst. And until the day that Saul was elected king by the people the greatest celebrity in Israel, by design, was to be high priest — though he wasn’t always the greatest person. That was the design.

The high priests generally were flops, they failed. But in the history of Israel God’s design never worked out because doctrine never had its proper place. Therefore the high priest did not have the place of celebrityship, God had to raise up prophets because of Israel’s apostasy. The prophet was often the greatest man but he still wasn’t a celebrity either. Most of the prophets, like Isaiah, were persona non grata with most of Israel. But it was always God’s objective to have the high priest as the visible celebrity of Israel.

In this passage, introducing in verse 17 the primary subject of the book: the celebrity of Israel, the high priest, Jesus Christ who is also the son of David. Celebrityship changed in Israel from the high priest to the family of David when David became the ruler, and the line of David lasted all the way to 586 BC when the Jews went out under the fifth cycle of discipline. And even when there was no king descended from David sitting on David’s throne, when the Jews were in the 70 years of the Babylonian captivity, it was Zerubbabel who was their leader, and Zerubbabel was directly descended from David though not a king. And when they came back, never again did they have anyone sitting upon the throne of David, even though David’s son, Zerubbabel was their leader. Never again has Israel, from the time of the fifth cycle of discipline in 586 BC, had anyone sitting upon the throne because God has said to Israel by this, “My intention was always to have the high priest your celebrity. It didn’t work out because of apostasy. You selected a king. I set aside your king Saul when he got into reversionism and kicked him out under the sin unto death. I put my man on the throne. I brought David out of the sheeppcote and I made him king. But, there again, apostasy led to failure. So you and I, Israel, are going to meet. You revered the king as your celebrity; I recognized the high priest as my celebrity. Now we will meet in the Millennium after the second advent of Christ, and your celebrity the king, the son of David, and my celebrity the high priest, will be the same person. And you will have a celebrity forever. In the meantime Israel, you have rejected the celebrity, but I will raise up the worst bunch of knuckleheads that ever lived — the goi [Gentile] — and a few of the choice ones, the Jews, and they will recognize my Son seated at the right hand as the only celebrity.” Only through Bible doctrine and the supergrace life do you recognize the celebrityship of Jesus Christ.

08/18/1972 Hebrews 2:17–18 Celebrityship of Jesus Christ; corrected translation of Hebrews 3:1–6

Hebrews 2:16 “For obviously he did not assume the nature of angels; but he did assume the seed of Abraham.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Jesus did not become an angel, but He became a human being.

Hebrews 2:17 Therefore he had to be made like his brothers in every respect, so that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest in the service of God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people. (ESV)

Verse 17 — the word “Wherefore” is a relative adverb, hōthen (ὅθεν) [pronounced HOTH-ehn]. It is used both here and at the beginning of next chapter. It has many concepts. It usually refers to circumstances or to time or origin. It can be translated “From which circumstance” or “For this reason,” as in Hebrews 3:1. It is a reference to the circumstances of the incarnation and the resultant hypostatic union. If Christ is to bypass the angelic creation in solving the angelic conflict He must become a man.

The next phrase is “in all things” — katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs]. This prepositional phrase: “From which circumstances he was obligated according to the standard of all things” .We have it changed around in the English but the actual Greek word order is what we have just stated. “According to the standard of all things” refers to the fact that Jesus Christ had to become a man to be our Savior. Therefore He was obligated to be properly equipped to redeem mankind and at the same time to propitiate God the Father. So “it behoved him” is an imperfect active indicative of opheilê (οφειλή) [pronounced oh-fih-LAY] which means He was obligated.

“to be made like” — the aorist passive infinitive of ο(μοιω. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, and Jesus Christ, when he took upon Himself true humanity, this settled it. The angelic conflict was not going to be resolved in the angelic realm, that’s to give Satan the victory. It was going to be resolved in the human realm and this gives the victory to God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Christ began to be like true humanity at the virgin birth and He was just as much humanity in the cradle as He would ever be. This aorist actually indicates the completion of God’s plan at the point of the incarnation. When Jesus Christ was a baby in the cradle the plan of God was completed as far as the victory of the angelic conflict. Jesus Christ was true humanity, the Father would sustain Him all the way to the cross where He would break the devil’s back. In the angelic realm Satan could sin the angelic conflict but when man was created lower than angels to resolve the angelic conflict it looked even easier for Satan. The fall of man made Satan very confident that he could win. But he forgot one principle. At the time of the fall of man the incarnation of Jesus Christ was promised. It was promised that the celebrity of the universe would come into existence as a man and would go to the cross as the seed of the woman and die for the sins of the world, and not only save man but at the same time resolve the angelic conflict.

In this way the Lord Jesus Christ is the only celebrity. So he was “to be made like.” The passive voice: Christ received humanity at the virgin birth, minus the old sin nature. The infinitive expresses the Father’s purpose in the incarnation to provide eternal salvation for the human race and at the same time to resolve the angelic conflict, and to give the universe in the form of the God-Man the only celebrity in existence. So in resolving the angelic conflict regenerate mankind will also be found placed above the angels forever. When Satan appealed in the court of heaven the case of the fallen angels God took it out of the angelic realm in order to win the victory and to resolve the angelic conflict. The angelic conflict could not be resolved by keeping it in the angelic realm. But if God had created a being superior to angels then Satan would have cried “unfair, unjust” .And since his attack and his defence was already the fact that God could not be fair and just and at the same time put angels in the lake of fire if man had been created superior to angels then they would have been no contest, Satan would have made an issue out of this immediately. But Satan could not make an issue out of creating a creature which was inferior to angels.

“unto the brethren” — this is a dative plural from adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS] and it has two connotations. First of all it refers to the human race. He was made a member of the human race rather than being an angel. But secondly, brethren refers to only one segment of the human race, the Jews. Jesus Christ was born in the tribe of Judah, the family of David, and is the fulfilment of the Davidic covenant. He is born a Jew. We have the definite article here to define “brethren” in a restrictive sense of the Jew. The word “that” is a conjunction, hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na], plus the subjunctive that introduces a purpose clause.

“he might become” — aorist middle subjunctive of ginomai. This means to become something that He was not before. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, in fact it becomes a gnomic aorist which means this is axiomatic — what Christ became can never be changed. The middle voice is reflexive indicating Christ Himself and only Himself; this introduces the concept of celebrityship. The subjunctive mood indicates a purpose clause.

Now we meet the only celebrity for the Church Age, the only celebrity in history, the supergrace celebrity, “a merciful and faithful high priest.” Celebrityship will be covered in this passage from the standpoint of the priesthood of Christ. Other passages cover it from the standpoint of His kingship, His sovereignty.

“merciful” is an adjective, e)lehmwn, and this means “compassionate.” Mercy is always grace in action, grace based on maximum love capacity of the supergrace life of the Lord Jesus. Remember, before Jesus Christ became the high priest He was first of all a supergrace believer. Jesus Christ was not born a priest, he was not born in the tribe of Levi. He was born in the Jewish Age and He was not born a priest. He became a priest on the cross through sacrifice rather than through birth. In the Old Testament the kings would sometimes try to offer a sacrifice, like Saul, and would be very severely disciplined for it. Only the priests of the tribe of Levi could offer sacrifice. But Jesus Christ, in offering Himself, was the exception. He is the unique person of the universe, He is the only celebrity, and by offering Himself he becomes a priest at that point. He is also a merciful priest in that He first of all was a supergrace person before He was a priest. The next word is “faithful,” the adjective pistos (πιστός) [pronounced pis-TOSS], which refers to His consistency and His stability. “High priest” is the central subject of Hebrews, the basis from which the celebrityship of the Lord Jesus Christ will be studied. Since a priest must be a man, Jesus Christ had to become a man to be high priest. The only celebrity of the Christian life first of all became supergrace as a person and then He became the priest.

“in things pertaining to God” — ta pros tôn qeon. This is the accusative of qoej, pros plus the accusative, “face to face with God.” ta is the pre-positive definite article — “the things face to face with God.” The high priest must be able to face God. This was the issue on the Day of Atonement when the Jewish high priest once a year, and only with blood, entered into the holy of holies representing face to face with God. He would go into the holy of holies to sprinkle blood on the mercy seat. The principle here, then: the high priest must be able to face God. Our high priest is literally in the presence of God the Father, so He is able to fulfil this principle; again, a facet of His celebrityship.

Why, and under what circumstances, did He become high priest? At the point of propitiation. The next phrase is not only mistranslated but it is a mistranslation which leads to devastating results as far as understanding the appointment of the high priesthood of Christ. Remember that in Israel the first high priest was appointed by God. After that it was a matter of progeny, the sons of Aaron became the high priest. Moses did not have any children in Israel, the only children that Moses ever had were among the Kenites by his first wife. Moses was not appointed high priest of Israel. Aaron his brother had that honour. The sons of Aaron and the grandsons of Aaron succeeded him as high priest. The eldest son was always the high priest. The high priesthood in Israel came through physical birth, through the eldest son of the direct line of Aaron. Here is the Lord Jesus Christ not receiving His high priesthood by birth. He receives it by appointment from God. The question is: When was He appointed?

Jesus became High Priest at the cross at the point of making propitiation.

The answer is right here: “to make reconciliation”, which is an incorrect translation. This is the present middle infinitive of i(laskomai, which does not mean to make reconciliation, it means to make propitiation. There is a vast difference. The reason we have propitiation here is because this is the point at which the celebrityship of Jesus Christ was to be established. He was not a celebrity on the cross, He humbled Himself; but after the cross in resurrection, ascension and session He functions as the high priest. But He was appointed at the time of the cross, at the time when He made propitiation. This is a present middle infinitive of the verb to make propitiation. The present tense is dramatic. The most dramatic moment in the world was when Jesus Christ was appointed high priest. The middle voice indicates that this occurred when He Himself was propitiating God the Father. The infinitive is an infinitive of purpose. It was the purpose of God the Father to appoint Jesus Christ high priest at the point of propitiation, when He “made propitiation for the sins of the people.” The genitive plural of hamartia plus the genitive singular of laos (λαός) [pronounced lah-OSS] gives us what we call an objective genitive followed by a possessive genitive. “For the sins” is objective genitive; “of the people” is possessive genitive. The people possessed the sins, Christ had no sins of His own and was made sin for us. When Jesus Christ was hanging on the cross He had no sins. The sins of the people were poured out upon Him.

Jesus Christ is high priest forever after the order of Melchizedek. Melchizedek was not Jesus Christ, Jesus Christ was in the order of Melchizedek, but Melchizedek had to be a human being. And why Melchizedek? Because Melchizedek was a king as well as a priest. And the order: Jesus Christ was the son of David; Jesus Christ is a high priest. He combines in one person King-priest. He is legitimately the King of Israel; He is also legitimately the high priest forever. At this point, while He was bearing our sins, He was providing salvation or redemption for mankind, but at the same time He was propitiating the Father and this is the Father's appointment of Jesus Christ as high priest. Why? because there were many, many sacrifices in Israel, many kinds of sacrifices, many principles of sacrifices, and they all are fulfilled at the cross. Every sacrifice of the Mosaic code is fulfilled at the cross, and every sacrifice of any kind in the Old Testament lead to the cross and there every one of them was saying in effect, I am a contribution to the celebrityship of Jesus Christ.

Isaiah talks about the celebrityship of Jesus Christ as King; the writer of Hebrews talks about the celebrityship of Jesus Christ as high priest. High priest is used here because Jesus Christ is King of Israel but not the King of the Church. Jesus Christ is the head of the Church, not the King. He is the groom; the Church is the bride. So kingship is a celebrityship concept reserved for Israel, and that is why Isaiah made such an issue out of that. But to the Church the rulership of Christ is presented through His high priesthood. Christ is the head of the Church and at the same time the high priest for a kingdom of priests. But the kingdom of priests is not Israel, the kingdom of priests is the Church only — after the cross. The Age of Israel had to stop with the cross because Christ not only had to have a bride but He had to have a kingdom of priests. Christ had no bride, He was all alone on the cross. Christ had no priesthood, He was appointed high priest on the cross but He didn't have a priesthood. So there has to be the Church Age so that Christ can have a bride and have a priesthood. That is why in the Church Age Christ is the only celebrity because of His high priesthood and because he is the groom.

Hebrews 2:17 “From which circumstance he was obligated according to the standard of all things to be made like the brethren, that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest in the things face to face with the God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Now, since the high priest was going to die physically after bearing our sins the only way that the appointment could be confirmed was by resurrection, ascension and session. That is exactly what we have, with this difference: the high priest carried the blood into the holy of holies after it was offered on the cross. Jesus Christ did not carry His blood to heaven. This is a new type of priesthood, not a blood carrying priesthood. Jesus Christ went to heaven in a resurrection body, not carrying the blood. The Father had already appointed Him at the point of propitiation on the cross, therefore it was not necessary for the reality to carry the blood to heaven. In the substance, in the shadow, that is portrayed on the Day of Atonement; in the reality it is not necessary.

Since Jesus died on the cross, He had to be resurrected in order to continue as our High Priest.

Hebrews 2:18 For because he himself has suffered when tempted, he is able to help those who are being tempted. (ESV)

Verse 18 — the grace provision of the incarnation. “For in that he himself hath suffered.” “For” is the explanatory use of gar; “in that” is the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative neuter of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]. It should be translated, “For in that which.”

“he himself” — “himself” is a separate word not taken up as a middle voice. We have a reflexive pronoun of autos referring to Jesus Christ accomplishing propitiation and becoming the unique celebrity to the Church.

“hath suffered” — perfect active indicative of paschô/pathô/penthô (πάσχω/πάθω/πένθω) [pronounced PAHS-khoh/PATH-oh/PEHN-thoh] which refers to the spiritual death of Christ on the cross. It was through spiritual death that He propitiated the Father. The justice of the Father is propitiated by spiritual death, not by physical death. At physical death He said “Finished” .It was completed, all over before He died physically. It is the spiritual death of Christ which propitiated God the Father. The perfect tense is permanent results of Christ’s suffering on the cross. This includes salvation of man and the resolving of the angelic conflict. The perfect tense can be portrayed as a point at which the action took place, the cross, and the results go on forever. The active voice: Christ offered Himself on the cross, which was His first function as priest. The indicative mood is the reality of the ministry of Christ as the high priest satisfying God the Father. So Jesus Christ suffered on the cross with permanent results. The permanent results: the appointment of Jesus Christ as the high priest.

However, He didn’t get to the cross without some problems — “having been tempted” is an aorist active participle of peirazô (πειράζω) [pronounced pi-RAD-zoh]. Satan challenged Jesus Christ at every step He took toward the cross. Jesus Christ was tempted time and time again. Only three of the temptations, the great ones, are recorded. These are unique temptations. Not only is Jesus Christ our celebrity from every viewpoint of uniqueness, but especially when it comes to temptation. He faced three temptations that we would never face — Matthew chapter four. So “being tempted” indicates that Christ reached the cross in status quo impeccability. His person had to be perfect before He could bear our sins and before He could propitiate the Father and be appointed our high priest on the cross. So this verb actually connotes the qualification of Jesus Christ to suffer for our sins on the basis of His impeccability. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb: “he himself has suffered.” So first of all he was tempted, then he suffered. He was tempted and found perfect, not once did He succumb to temptation.

The rest of this says “he is able to succor them that are tempted.” He is not able to help us because He was tempted, He is able to help us because He was appointed high priest. Remember, the action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. “He was tempted,” that is the aorist participle; “He suffered” on the cross, that is the main verb. Now, on this side of the cross, He is high priest and as high priest He is able to help us.

Human viewpoint of alcoholics anonymous; that you can help others because you have been tempted in the same way that they are.

“he is able” — present active indicative from dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ah-ee]. Jesus Christ as God is able to help us, He is omnipotent; Jesus Christ as Man is high priest, and as the combination of omnipotent high priest he is able to help man. This is present tense, linear aktionsart, He keeps on having the ability. Active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action. Indicative mood: the reality of the fact that the uniqueness of Christ leads to His unique ministry of “succoring” — the aorist active infinitive of bohqw which means to advance to the assistance of someone, to help, to furnish aid, to run to the aid of someone crying for help. The meaning that is involved here is to run to the aid of someone crying for help. When a person cries for help their volition is involved, they want to be helped. In the priesthood, Jesus Christ as high priest can help but He can only help where positive volition exists. “He keeps on being able” — gnomic aorist. It is an absolute fact that if your volition is involved positively, your high priest can help you.

Bob is studying so much that he is talking to himself. Balderdash likes that, as it is a human voice.

“them that are tempted [tested]” — present passive participle of peirazō (πειράζω) [pronounced pi-RAD-zoh], and it should be translated “those being tested” or “those being tempted.” This refers to members of the human race who are tested and fail by entering into personal sin. How does the high priest help there? Rebound, which is a priestly function. The unbeliever can’t rebound and be forgiven, it is a function of the priesthood only.

Hebrews 2:18 “For in that which he himself has suffered, having been tempted [but remaining impeccable], he keeps on being able [He was appointed high priest at the cross] to help those being tempted [tested].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. Satan’s kingdom is the kingdom of spiritual death. We are born into Satan’s kingdom because we are born with an old sin nature and spiritual death.
2. Christ was born free, without a sin nature, through the virgin birth. The significance of the virgin birth cannot be overemphasized, it makes it possible for Christ to come into the world without being in Satan’s kingdom. If you are in Satan’s kingdom you are also in Satan’s slave market, and if you are then you can’t get anyone else out; you can’t redeem anyone else. Christ had to be born a free man in order to purchase the freedom of slaves. We are born into slavery, we are born into the devil's kingdom, but Jesus Christ through the virgin birth was born outside of the devil's kingdom.

3. Christ lived free from the slave market of sin by resisting temptation.
4. Therefore He went to the cross where He satisfied God the Father, was appointed high priest, and purchased our freedom from Satan's kingdom.
5. Therefore, Christ as our high priest is able to help those being tempted and failing, tested and failing or not failing. In other words, Christ is the only one who can help us.

Summary translation of the first six verses of chapter three

It is celebrityship or reversionism. His celebrityship is for supergrace believer priests.

Hebrews 3:1 — For which reason, holy members of the family of God, associates of the heavenly vocation, concentrate on the Apostle, even the High Priest of our acknowledgment, Jesus

We are in full time Christian service We are a kingdom of priests; and we acknowledge the High Priesthood of Jesus.

Hebrews 3:2 — Being faithful to the one having appointed him, as also Moses in his entire house,

Jesus was appointed our High Priest on the cross.

The house of Moses is the dispensation of Israel. This is a reference to the previous dispensation.

In celebrityship, we have the uniqueness of the God-man; but we also have heroship, which is like Moses in his day. This makes him even more outstanding as a hero.

Hebrews 3:3 — For example. this one has been permanently evaluated deserving of more glory than Moses, by so much as the one having constructed and furnished the house keeps having more honour than the house.

Jesus should be evaluated with more glory, as He is the true celebrity.

The one building the house is much greater than the house itself. Also he is greater than the furniture. Moses is not the builder; he is the agent.

Hebrews 3:4 — For every house in constructed and furnished by the agency of someone; but the one [Christ] having constructed and furnished all things God.

Hebrews 3:5 — Now Moses, in fact, faithful [dependable, trustworthy] in all his house, as a noble servant, for evidence of things which are about to be communicated.

Moses was a noble servant; not simply a servant.

Hebrews 3:6 — But Christ as an adult son over his house [the Church]; whose house are we, if we hold fast [if we have in full and secure possession of or if we steer and maintain our course of confidence] [this is the supergrace life] our confidence [in doctrine] and the object of boasting [Christ our only celebrity] of the expectation [phase three brideship] stabilized [by supergrace] until the end. R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

We belong to the Church Age, which is given here. Moses to the Age of Israel, which is found back in v. 5.

We are stabilized by supergrace until we die or until the exit-resurrection.

1972 Hebrews 3:1

08/25/1972 Hebrews 3:1 Corrected translation of Hebrews 3:1–19; believer's function in supergrace

The teaching of various books is getting moved around.

There are 3 or 4 vacant seats. There are going to need to be ushers on Bible class night.

Chapter 3–4:1

Bob has retranslate this chapter, and he will kick this off with a new translation.

Hebrews 3:1 — For which reason, holy members of the family of God, associates of the heavenly vocation, concentrate on the Apostle, even the High Priest of our acknowledgment, Jesus

Hebrews 3:2 — Being faithful to the one having appointed him, as also Moses in his entire house,

Hebrews 3:3 — For example. this one has been permanently evaluated deserving of more glory than Moses, by so much as the one having constructed and furnished the house keeps having more honour than the house.

Hebrews 3:4 — For every house in constructed and furnished by the agency of someone [like Moses in Israel]; but the one [Christ] having constructed and furnished all things God.

Hebrews 3:5 — Now Moses, in fact, faithful [dependable, trustworthy] in all his house [Israel], as a noble servant, for evidence of things which are about to be communicated.

Hebrews 3:6 — But Christ as an adult son over his house [the Church]; whose house are we, if we hold fast [if we have in full and secure possession of or if we steer and maintain our course of confidence] our confidence [in doctrine] and the object of boasting [Christ our only celebrity] of the expectation [phase three brideship] stabilized [by supergrace] until the end. R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:7 “For this reason therefore (according as the Holy Spirit communicates, This day if you will hear and concentrate on his voice”,... R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:8 ...do not go on hardening your hearts as in the reversionistic revolution of the meribah on the day of testing in the desert... R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:9 ...in which place (Meribah) your reversionistic fathers (the Exodus generation) began testing (to determine good of evil) in Him (God) by means of approving Him after testing. And they had a panoramic vision of my grace for 40 years. R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This is all idiomatic in the Greek, so that, if God should pass the test (whatever they make it out to be), that they would recognize it.

Hebrews 3:10 “Because of which reversionism I was disgusted with that generation, and said, They are always being deluded in the right lobe; and they have not learned my ways [systems of doctrine].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Heb. 3:11 “In keeping with the facts, I promise with a solemn oath in my disgust, My name is not God if they shall enter into My rest [which is the supergrace life].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Canaan does not represent heaven; but it does represent supergrace. It is the supergrace life; and you live that only on this earth. Holy rollers flying out of closets to some place they would scramble.

Heb. 3:12 Beware, members of the family of God, that there not be in any one of you a malignant heart of unbelief by revolting from the always living God,... R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:13 “But keep on encouraging self and others on each successive day, as long as long as in whatever place you are located it is called This day; that not one from among you become hardened by the delusion from the sins [the practice of reverse process reversionism].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This verse will change things up like you cannot believe. Never miss an opportunity to come to Bible class. The exegesis of that will stand you up on your ear.

Hebrews 3:13 “Keep on encouraging self and others on each successive day, as long as it is called This day; that not one from among you begin to become negative by delusion from the source of sin.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:14 “For we have become partners of the Christ [our high priest], if indeed we retain the beginning of our essence [daily function of gap under supergrace, doctrine in the soul] stabilized by supergrace until the end.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:14 “For we have become partners [associate priests] of the Christ, if indeed we retain and secure the beginning of our essence [the daily function of GAP to supergrace], stabilized [by supergrace ] until the end [of phase two].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:15 “So long as it is being said [Psalm 95:8], This day if you will hear and concentrate [function in GAP] on his voice [Bible doctrine], do not go on, hardening your hearts as in the reversionistic revolution.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:15 “So long as it is being said, Today if you will hear his voice, stop hardening your right lobes, as in the reversionistic revolution.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:16 For who, having heard, revolted? Did not all coming out of Egypt through Moses? R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:17 “Then with whom was he disgusted forty years? Was it not with the ones having missed the mark [reversionism]? Whose dead bodies had fallen in the desert? Affirmative.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

4 rhetorical questions up until now.

Hebrews 3:18 “Then to whom did he promise with a solemn oath that they should not enter into his rest? Only to those having been obstinate.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:19 “So we perceive that they were not able to enter in because of unfaithfulness [or a lack of faithfulness].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Bob is assuming that we understand the Angelic Conflict and operation footstool and the whole concept of reversionism and the supergrace life. The trouble with this section, the believers who heard this are like the Exodus generation, and in reversionism. The Exodus generation was on the outside trying to get in. The Jews receiving this letter were on the inside receiving the information.

Many of you have traveled and you have looked forward to it. How many of you are happy because you took this trip? You are not happy because of what you have or don't have.

We start chapter 3 with the celebrityship of Christ.

The concept of this chapter is simple. In the first six verses we meet the celebrity of the Church Age. If Christ is truly your only celebrity you are in supergrace. In verses 7–18 we see the sign of reversionism. So this is a chapter of signs. Sign of supergrace: the celebrityship of Christ; sign of reversionism: breakdown of the faith-rest.

Outline

Verses 1–6, the celebrity of the Church.

Verses 7–18, the reversionism of the Exodus generation.

The sign of supergrace is the celebrityship of Christ; the sign of reversion is the breakdown of faith-rest.

Heb 3:1 Therefore, holy brothers, you who share in a heavenly calling, consider Jesus, the apostle and high priest of our confession, (ESV)

Verse 1 — “Wherefore,” the adverb Hothēn (ὅθεν) [pronounced HOTH-ehn]. Hothēn (ὅθεν) [pronounced HOTH-ehn] connotes place, fact, or reason. Here the adverb connotes reason and should be translated, “For which reason” — because Christ is the only celebrity of the Church Age, because Christ is able to help those being tested. The same adverb begins Hebrews 2:17 which introduces Christ as the only supergrace celebrity.

“holy brethren” — adelphoi (αἱ γιοί). The trouble with just giving it the straight “brethren” is because fundamentalism has taken such phrases and distorted them into phrases of good luck, mysticism, and a facade of hypocrisy. When people stop thinking they always have to have a smoke screen, and the smoke screen can be very neatly set up (to show that you’re not thinking) with certain pet phrases, like “brother this” and “sister that,” “blessings on you brother”, “praise God brother”, “hallelujah”, etc., all said in great sincerity. But there is no benefit in that kind of hot air. It becomes a facade, a smoke-screen that hides ignorance.

With a few choice phrases and a look, you can be seen by others as a spiritual giant. We are all born into the family of God; and we are all in the same family.

“Brethren” means we are members of the family of God. We are brethren, we are members of the family of God, we are all born into the family of God, and we are in the same family. “Holy” is all right if you understand that holy means in union with Christ. The only reason that any of us are holy is because we are in union with Christ, not because of what we do or give up. The word “holy” is also used for supergrace believers. However, the context will soon demonstrate we are not talking to supergrace believers. The context includes Hebrews 5:11–14 and it is quite obvious in that passage, as well as others, that this passage — Hebrews chapters 3,4,5, and 6 are addressed to reversionistic believers living in Jerusalem in the year of our Lord, 68 AD. “For which reason, holy members of the family of God”.

“partakers” — nominative plural, metochos (μέτοχος) [pronounced MET-okh-oss] which means partners or associates. It is in the plural to include all of us. The plural puts us all in the same situation: partners of Jesus Christ and we are His associates.

Summary

1. Metochos (μέτοχος) [pronounced MET-okh-oss], the noun, emphasizes then fact that every believer is in full time Christian service. Two people can be drafted from the same city at the same age, and 25 years later, one is in the brig and the other is a vice admiral. This is us in the Christian life.

2. Furthermore, this noun emphasizes Christianity as a relationship in contrast to religion which is slavery to the devil — trying to work your way into heaven by works, works, works.
3. In religion man works to gain the approbation of God. He is stimulated by Satanic doctrine, by Satanic principles.
4. In Christianity God works to bless man. Man works to bless God is religion.
5. Religion is human good; Christianity is divine good.
6. Religion is legalism; Christianity is grace.
7. In Christianity every believer is holy. That is, he is in union with Christ. In religion is every believer is trying to be holy.
8. Because of union with Christ every believer is a partner with God or associate of God. Associate might be better than partner.

“associates of the heavenly calling” — genitive singular of epouranios (ἐπουράνιος) [pronounced ep-oo-RAN-ee-oss], which means heavenly in respect to locality, essence or character. With it, however, is the genitive of klêsis (κλήσις) [pronounced KLAY-sis]. There is a difference between the two. The first genitive, e)pourainoj, is a genitive of description. Heaven is the source of our blessing.

The second genitive, klêsis (κλήσις) [pronounced KLAY-sis], is a genitive of relationship. We are related to God through election. It is translated, “associates of the heavenly vocation.” Klêsis (κλήσις) [pronounced KLAY-sis] means vocation, station in life, position as well as calling. The emphasis is placed on the fact that every believer priest is in full time Christian service. The avenue of this service is determined by knowledge of doctrine in the supergrace status of phase two.

Christ is our high priest; he was appointed on the cross at the point of propitiation. We as a kingdom of priests are appointed at the moment of our salvation. So all appointments go back to the cross. The priesthood comes through the cross, the reality; the substance rather than the shadows of the Levitical offerings. You cannot have a universal priesthood of believers as long as you are dealing with shadow worship. Bona fide shadow worship existed in the Age of Israel; now we have the reality, the cross. When the substance replaces the shadow, then the universal priesthood of the believer replaces the specialized Levitical priesthood. Once that happens there are two breakthroughs in the plan of God. The first is the intensification of the angelic conflict, and it is accompanied by the universal full-time Christian service of the believer.

We now come to the first verb, an imperative commanding us to enter the supergrace life. The people to whom this was addressed are negative toward doctrine. They are truly born again, Jews living in Jerusalem and the surrounding territory, and they are three years from the fifth cycle of discipline. They have gone negative toward Bible doctrine and therefore they have scar tissue on the left bank of the soul. They have also built scar tissue on the right bank of the soul by means of legalism; they have become super religious. The opening of mataiotês (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace] brings through the vacuum false doctrine which attacks the right lobe’s frame of reference, memory centre, vocabulary, categories, norms and standards, and the launching pad, setting up emotional revolt of the soul and the function of reverse process reversionism. This is the condition of the people to whom the writer addresses Hebrews. They must break out of this and he is going to devote part of Hebrews — chapters three through six — to getting them out, comparing them to the one generation that everyone likes to avoid.

These believers to whom this epistle is directed know all about the Exodus generation and how badly they failed in life. This book compares these believers to the Exodus generation.

The first command is to get out of reversionism and get into supergrace, because every priest must have one celebrity: Jesus Christ. He is the only celebrity in the Christian life. We have the aorist active imperative of katanoēō (κατανοέω) [pronounced kat-an-oh-EH-oh]. katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] means against or norm and standard; noēō (νοέω) [pronounced noh-EH-oh] here refers to thinking. It means to think down, to think according to a norm and standard, it also means to think in terms of concentration; you get that from “down”; to think down means to concentrate, bear down with your mind on something. To think according to norms, standards or criteria plus thinking down, comes to mean to perceive, to understand, to concentrate. It means to be occupied with someone in your mind, therefore in your soul.

Loving Jesus Christ comes from the soul and loving Jesus Christ comes only from a supergrace soul. This is why Bob does not want people to come in a sing solo in Berachah who do not know anything. It is phony. It is done by testimony. Such a person is conning God for blessing.

Bob is moving Hebrews to Sunday morning. It is about time that some of you love Jesus.

Everyone in the sophomore stage has tried to use Jesus Christ as a genie. All of the hot air in the world won't advance you one iota.

If someone is in your soul, then you are concentrating on them. The verb connotes occupation with Christ or category #1 love concentration. This is only possible through the daily function of GAP to the point of the edification complex, and then to keep on into supergrace. Occupation with Christ makes Christ the only celebrity.

The aorist is culminative, it demands the function of GAP all of the way to the ECS, and all of the way to supergrace. Supergrace becomes the point at which the believer becomes occupied with Christ. Katanoēō (κατανοέω) [pronounced kat-an-oh-EH-oh]: concentrate, category #1 love response. The initiator is Jesus Christ. He initiates on behalf of the entire Trinity, He represents the Trinity, He is the visible member of the Trinity, He is how we understand the other members of the Godhead. As you take in doctrine and take in doctrine you are going to get to the point of an erected ECS, and once it goes up and you move into supergrace your capacity to love is going to be phenomenal. The active voice is a command to every believer priest. Every believer is to be occupied with Christ. Every believer priest is to occupy with Christ to the point where his heavenly association and vocation are reality. The imperative mood: this is a command to enter the supergrace life. It is impossible to respond to the love of God, to love Jesus Christ, apart from Bible doctrine in the soul.

Next we have the word “Apostle” used for the Lord Jesus Christ — “the Apostle”, it has the definite article. It is the accusative singular of apostolos (ἀπόστολος) [pronounced ap-OSS-tol-os], used in a very different manner than it is with the twelve where it is used for authority; here it is a little stronger than that. Apostolos (ἀπόστολος) [pronounced ap-OSS-tol-os] is used for the highest authority in the priesthood, it is used for the high priest. Jesus Christ is unique among high priests. Therefore apostolos (ἀπόστολος) [pronounced ap-OSS-tol-os] indicates the uniqueness of Jesus Christ among high priests in that He has received the highest commission and greatest responsibility that any high priest ever had from God the Father. All priesthoods which are bona fide in the past must come from God the Father as the source. He does the appointing. He appoints a line of priests through perpetuation — the eldest son. So we have kai, used as a conjunction of apposition, to relate the highest-ranking word, apostolos (ἀπόστολος) [pronounced ap-OSS-tol-os], to the highest-ranking high priest, the unique high priest. And in this way we now have the accusative singular of archiereus (ἀρχιερεύς) [pronounced ar-khee-er-YUCE]. Archiereus (ἀρχιερεύς) [pronounced ar-khee-er-YUCE] emphasizes celebrityship. Aaron was the first high priest of the Levitical priesthood. He wasn’t a celebrity or even a hero, but God graced him out, Bob calls him a mouse. He made him the high priest. Here is a high priest who is a hero because He became supergrace in His humanity, but He is also apostolos (ἀπόστολος) [pronounced ap-OSS-tol-os], He is the only celebrity.

“of our profession” — genitive singular of homologia (ὁμολογία) ψ [pronounced hom-ol-og-EE-ah] which means “acknowledgment” — “the High Priest of our acknowledgment.” Acknowledgment simply is the fact that we recognize as of now, this passage, that every believer is a priest. We acknowledge it as a point of doctrine.

Bob training Bobby. He required Bobby to say, “Acknowledge.”

The word “Christ” is not found in the original, just the word “Jesus.” Why? because here we have the humanity of Christ. When did the second person of the Trinity become Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOSS]? At the point of the virgin birth. The word means anointing, appointment, commission. In eternity past the second person of the Trinity agreed to do these things, but there comes a time when the commission is recognized. David was anointed king by a prophet, Samuel. That was his commission. The virgin birth is the commission of Jesus Christ; He became Christ at that point. At the point that He was commissioned the Messiah came into the world: “Thou shalt call His name [His human name] Jesus.” He became human at the point of His birth but when was He appointed a high priest? Thirty-three years later on the cross when He propitiated the Father, this was the time He was appointed priest.

The one who was appointed priest was a true member of the human race because a priest must be a man to represent man. That is why Jesus Christ was not Melchizedek. Melchizedek was a human being, Aaron was a human being. You had to be a human being to be a priest. A priest is a man who represents himself or others to God and before God. So on the cross when Jesus was appointed high priest you can call Him Jesus but you can't call Him Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOSS] — not in connection with the priesthood because Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOSS] makes Him, the anointed one, King. We are talking about priests, and while He is a King-Priest we are talking about the point of His appointment and therefore it is Jesus and not Christ Jesus. There is no “Christ” in the passage and it does make a difference. It is not a matter of semantics; it is a matter of the Word of God; it is every jot and every tittle being inspired.

Inviting Christ into the heart if reversionism recovery.

1972 Hebrews 3:1–2

Lesson #17

08/27/1972 Hebrews 3:1–2 Principles of occupation with Christ; faithfulness in Christ. One celebrity, Christ; many heroes, such as Moses

This is a move from the week to Sunday.

Bob reads his translation from the Greek:

Hebrews 3:1 “For which reason, holy members of the family of God, associates of the heavenly vocation, concentrate on the Apostle even High Priest of our acknowledgment, Jesus.”

There is a principle involved here. While the believer is appointed to the priesthood at the moment of salvation he does not function as a priest until he enters the supergrace life by way of the edification complex. You are a priest now, your function in the priesthood awaits your entrance into supergrace.

The objective of the Christian life is to enter into supergrace. This is achieved by the constant exposure to Bible teaching, taking doctrine into the left lobe where it is understood objectively by the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. Positive volition or faith then transfers this doctrine into the human spirit where it becomes epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] or useable doctrine. epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] transferred into the right lobe or the heart enters the frame of reference, memory centre, vocabulary and categories, norms and standards, and is place on the launching pad. Once epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is accumulated it also begins the construction of the edification complex of the soul (ECS). First floor: grace orientation; second floor: mastery of the details of life; third floor: relaxed mental attitude; fourth floor: capacity to love in all categories — toward God; right man-right woman; friendship; and then +H which is the penthouse of the ECS. Once the ECS is achieved the believer enters into supergrace where with the continuation of doctrine he has capacity for freedom, for life, for love, happiness, and this is the objective of the Christian way of life. However, once the ECS is partially or almost constructed there is a great danger. The danger is entering into reversionism. Reversionism takes the opposite tack. It is negative volition toward Bible doctrine, producing scar tissue on the left bank of the soul which opens up a vacuum through which comes Satanic doctrine into the heart or the right lobe. Satanic doctrine attacks frame of reference and memory centre, it attacks norms and standards, the vocabulary categories, it attacks the launching pad with human viewpoint, it produces scar tissue on the right bank, it leads to emotional revolt of the soul, it begins the destruction of the ECS which, when completed, causes the person to be in reversionism and to practice reverse process reversionism.

The issue of chapter three is this: Is Jesus Christ the celebrity of your life through supergrace? Or are you in reversionism. The ones to whom this is addressed, Jewish believers living in Jerusalem in 67 AD, were in reversionism and this is their challenge to get out of reversionism.

Become occupied with... is the command.

Hebrews 3:1 — For which reason, holy members of the family of God, associates of the heavenly vocation, concentrate on the Apostle, even the High Priest of our acknowledgment, Jesus,... R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

The Doctrine of Occupation with the Person of Christ

1. The basis for occupation with Christ is the intake of Bible doctrine through the function of GAP. God makes love to the believer through Bible doctrine, and the communication of Bible doctrine is the basis for entering into the celebrityship of the Lord Jesus Christ — Jeremiah 9:24; Ephesians 3:18–19; 4:20. You cannot, you will not ever love Jesus Christ apart from the intake of Bible doctrine. This is the capacity to love Him.
  - a. Specialized priesthood in the Age of Israel; universal priesthood in the Church Age.
  - b. God makes love to the believer through Bible doctrine.
2. With doctrine as the working object of faith the believer has maximum category #1 response causing him to be designated as philos theou — “Friend of God” — James 2:22,23.
3. Occupation with Christ is based upon the glorification of Christ — Colossians 3:1,2.
4. Occupation with Christ standard operating procedure of the Christian life — Hebrews 12:1,2.
5. Occupation with Christ is illustrated by the doctrine of right man-right woman — Ephesians 5:25–32; 1Corinthians 11:7 (the long hair is the sign of responding to right-man).
6. The function of GAP is the believer responding to Christ’s love — James 1:21,22.
7. The sealing of the Holy Spirit guarantees eternal love relationship between Jesus Christ and the believer — Ephesians 1:11–14.
8. Occupation with Christ bring the believer into a total dependence upon grace provision. Grace provision existed in eternity past, it is the believer’s experience linking up with what God did for him in eternity past — Psalm 37:4,5.
9. Occupation with Christ is related to both stability and inner happiness — Psalm 16:8,9.

10. Occupation with Christ is the basis for blessing in suffering. Reversionism intensifies suffering; occupation with Christ minimizes suffering — Psalm 77.
11. Occupation with Christ is based on the believer's entrance into the supergrace life — Hebrews 3:1, 6

That was review; Romans will now be taught in the Friday night class.

The challenge is found in this passage.

Our greatest danger on this earth is reversionism.

The words found at the end of v. 1 belongs in v. 2.

Heb 3:2 who was faithful to him who appointed him, just as Moses also was faithful in all God's house. (ESV)

Verse 2 — the celebrity of the Christian way of life, the Lord Jesus Christ. The word “who” is not found in the original. We start out with the word “was,” the present active participle of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The subject of this participle is the word found at the end of verse 1 — “Jesus.” “Jesus being” (constantly being). “Jesus” belongs in verse 2, not in verse 1.

Then we have the object of the preposition, “faithful,” accusative singular of the noun pistos. Pistos (πιστός) [pronounced pis-TOSS] means faithfulness to the utmost here because of the absolute status quo verb. “Jesus, being trustworthy [dependable, faithful to the maximum]” .There never was a time when Jesus Christ was unfaithful to you; there never will be a time. Under category #1 love Jesus Christ loves you with a perfect love. He is the object of true love in category #1.

Nothing is solid, stable, worthwhile, honourable or good until first of all it is directed toward God. In other words, if you love Jesus Christ with category #1 love, when you are occupied with the person of Christ, then you have capacity to love others. Your capacity for love is dependent upon going God-ward first, then the human part takes care of itself.

Without doctrine, you will sound like a jackass when you talk about how much you love Jesus and how wonderful He is. But it does not mean a thing. Bible doctrine will change all of that.

Some young man ran around trying to get a petition signed to stop Bob from using profanity from the pulpit. Some don't know what fornication means; Bob is tempted to use 4 letter words. Sexually infidelity means fornication. That is what you can do with your petition.

We stack 'em from the ceilings and that is true in Bible class.

After pistos (πιστός) [pronounced pis-TOSS] we have the words “to him” — dative singular of the definite article ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] and should be translated “to the one” [to God the Father]. “Jesus, being faithful to the one.” This is the dative of indirect object to indicate the one, God the Father, in whose interest faithfulness, dependability and trustworthiness existed. Jesus Christ is faithful to us today because first of all He was faithful to God the Father from the time of the virgin birth to the time of the cross. He was faithful in every step of the way, He fulfilled everything that the Father required of Him, including the cross. Faithfulness took our high priest to the cross where He received His appointment.

When we have the ability to love Jesus Christ, then we have the capacity for everything in life.

Jesus is prophet, King and priest, and Savior.

God wanted to give eternal life to man; but how can He do this? He wants to give us His love to the maximum; but that must be accomplished without compromising His righteousness and justice.

The sacrifices were the shadow; and they are fulfilled by the Lord. The people brought the sacrifice; but the person put his hand on the head of the lamb; and the priest then sacrificed the animal.

“that appointed him” — dative of advantage, aorist active participle of poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh]. Poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] means to make, to do, and sometimes when you make something you appoint something. Jesus Christ has never failed and was always faithful.

The aorist tense is gnomic. Gnostic aorist takes an occurrence in eternity past and fulfills it in time at the cross. The aorist tense relates God the Father’s plan in eternity past to the cross in time. The gnomic aorist is an absolute. It is an absolute fact that the Father planned it, it is an absolute fact that the Son executed it, therefore the gnomic aorist means this is without equivocation an absolute fact that cannot be changed by God, by man, by Satan, by anyone or anything. The active voice of the participle indicates that God the Father did the appointing, and the participle itself denotes a principle and at the same time the concept. We also have the fact that the action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb was given in verse one — “concentrate on Christ”, be occupied with Christ. Before we could be occupied with the person of Christ and before He could be our celebrity, first of all He had to be appointed high priest. He was appointed in eternity past, He fulfilled the appointment on the cross. It was a part of the Father’s plan in eternity past, it was executed and fulfilled on the cross. We have one celebrity: Jesus Christ our high priest. “Jesus, being faithful to the one having appointed him.” “Him” is the accusative singular of autos which is a reflexive pronoun, here used in its true reflexive sense — “having appointed he himself.” So often the reflexive pronoun autos is used to demonstrate great emphasis, what is really important.

“as also” — hôs (ὥς) [pronounced hohç] kai sets up an analogy. Before hôs (ὥς) [pronounced hohç] kai we have Jesus Christ the only celebrity; after hôs (ὥς) [pronounced hohç] kai we have heroes. There is one celebrity and many heroes. For example, we are now talking about the Jewish Age, the dispensation of Israel. One of the greatest heroes in the dispensation of Israel is Moses. Here is Moses set up as the greatest of Jewish heroes in the Jewish Age, but remember that Moses was a hero because he was a supergrace believer. Jesus is the only celebrity; Moses and Jeremiah are heroes in their own dispensation or their own house. At this point the faithfulness of Moses is emphasized because the Jews involved are believers in the Church Age in 67 AD. In three years the fifth cycle of discipline will hit Jerusalem. Jerusalem will fall and 900,000 people will be slaughtered in two years, and at the end of that time 90,000 Jews will be taken into slavery. It will be one of the greatest disasters in all of human history. The book of Hebrews is written to these people who are believers in reversionism so that they can recover from reversionism and get out of Jerusalem before this occurs.

Moses was considered by all Jews to be great, that is, all Jews but the Jews of his own generation. He was the most damned, the most cursed, the most despised, the most maligned, the most slandered man of his own generation. He was not appreciated, he was despised, the two-million Jews had a lot of complaining to do, and Moses was their target. But no matter how they maligned him, no matter how they hated him and despised his authority, they stayed under his authority in reversionism.

There were a handful of allies for Moses. Aaron, Joshua, Caleb, his Ethiopian wife, and Eleazar. He was still the great leader and led the Jews for 40 years.

Cæsar, the greatest unbelieving genius; and Paul, the greatest believer genius. Both lived within 100 years of one another. Moses was an administrative genius, a construction genius (building two cities), great public speaker, greatest leader, one of the strongest men who ever lived. Bob admires that he broke the neck of a slavedriver. Great writer. But he is greatest, being the most grace oriented person of all time.

Principle: There is only one celebrity; there are many heroes. What made Moses a hero? Not his human genius. What made him great was not anything that Moses could crank up. It was grace. He was one of the most oriented men to grace of all time. God said he was the meekest man that ever lived. Being meek meant that he was the most grace-oriented man who ever lived. He was a supergrace believer, therefore a hero.

Now we meet a hero. We have been discussing in this passage and in the first two chapters, the celebrityship of Jesus Christ; now we come to heroship. This always deals with a believer. The faithfulness of Moses was emphasized by God when he was criticized and maligned for marrying the second time.

Numbers 12:1 — Moses' wife was an Ethiopian princess, a beautiful woman, and all of the ruling class of Ethiopia at the time of Moses were all white.

Verse 2 — “And hath the Lord spoken only by Moses?” — There are other Bible teachers beside Moses! “Hath he not also spoken by us?”

How about that Miriam! Women Bible teachers! There is no place for them.

And Aaron gets a little nervous now because; “What if they have children,” he says to himself, “if they have children it may be that God will set me aside as the high priest. But God always takes a mealy-mouthed mouse like Aaron and makes him the high priest — so he doesn’t run anything. And God set the precedent. There will always be a stronger man running the priesthood of Israel and there always was. The priesthood of Israel tried to run the country from time to time but they got their butts kicked all over the place. God does not intend for a specialized priesthood to control but to do a job. The specialized priesthood was communication of Bible doctrine through ritual and through teaching. But once you get a universal priesthood God still doesn’t intend for the priest to run the show.

Num 12:1 Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses because of the Cushite woman whom he had married, for he had married a Cushite woman.

Aaron was concerned that Moses’ sons would be handsome and great and take over in the place of his children.

Num 12:2 And they said, "Has the LORD indeed spoken only through Moses? Has he not spoken through us also?" And the LORD heard it.

Num 12:3 Now the man Moses was very meek, more than all people who were on the face of the earth.

Verse 3 — (Now the man Moses was very meek [grace-oriented], above all the men which were upon the face of the earth). Here is a super supergrace believer. Moses had more doctrine in his soul than any man in his time. Moses was the man who communicated doctrine to Israel.

Most people cannot distinguish between pride and the exercise of authority.

Num 12:4 And suddenly the LORD said to Moses and to Aaron and Miriam, "Come out, you three, to the tent of meeting." And the three of them came out.

Verse 4 — The Lord finally called in Miriam and Aaron and chewed them out, and made it very clear who was running the show.

Num 12:5 And the LORD came down in a pillar of cloud and stood at the entrance of the tent and called Aaron and Miriam, and they both came forward.

Num 12:6 And he said, "Hear my words: If there is a prophet among you, I the LORD make myself known to him in a vision; I speak with him in a dream.

Verse 6 — "And he [the Lord] said, hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you. I the Lord will make myself known unto him in a vision, and speak unto him in a dream."

Num 12:7 Not so with my servant Moses. He is faithful in all my house.

Verse 7 — "My servant Moses, not so" — everything they had said about him was wrong — "he is faithful in all my house."

Num 12:8 With him I speak mouth to mouth, clearly, and not in riddles, and he beholds the form of the LORD. Why then were you not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?"

Verse 8 — "With him I will speak mouth to mouth."

Hebrews 3:2 — we have seen in Numbers 12:7 that Moses was en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of o(loj, plus the locative of oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss]. O(loj means entire; oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss] means "house" and refers to a dispensation. Literally then,

Hebrews 3:2 "Jesus, being faithful to the one [God the Father] having appointed him, as also Moses being faithful in his entire house."

The house of Moses is the time in which he lived, the dispensation in which he lived, the generation in the dispensation in which he lived.

1972 Hebrews 3:3–4

Lesson #18

09/03/1972 Hebrews 3:3–4 Christ, only celebrity, constructed and furnished the dispensations, each having supergrace heroes.

Heb 3:3 For Jesus has been counted worthy of more glory than Moses—as much more glory as the builder of a house has more honor than the house itself. (ESV)

Verse 3 — the difference between a hero and a celebrity. "For" — the particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] used to express cause, inference, continuation or explanation. Here gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is used in the explanatory sense and should be translated "For example." The word "this" is a demonstrative pronoun, houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. Houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] is a demonstrative pronoun giving special emphasis to the Lord Jesus Christ as the only celebrity in the Church Age, and it should be translated "this one and only this one" .Jesus Christ is our only celebrity, this is one of the great principles taught in the book of Hebrews.

Early service, very bad manners from a couple of woman. About 6000 people in the pews on Sunday. It is tragic that people cannot understand the importance of the Word of God.

They cannot understand the objective of the Word of God. The objective is for the believer to move from spiritual infancy to the supergrace life.

capacity for life, capacity for love are objective of the Christian way of life. That means entry into the supergrace life.

Doctrine of demons attacks every part of the soul. The idea that you do not need doctrinal distinctions. A system of self-righteousness based upon someone else's unrighteousness. You build up scar tissue. All of this leads to emotional revolt and to reverse process reversionism.

The Jews were occupied with the ancient rituals, the vows, the offerings; and this was a part of their reverse process reversionism. I assume that this is a reference to believing Jews. Moses is a hero because of supergrace. Moses is a hero and Jesus Christ is their Savior. When they go into the sin unto death, they might even renounce Jesus Christ. You leave this life under maximum discipline.

“For example, this one [Jesus Christ]” — “was counted worthy of,” perfect passive indicative of axioō (ἀξιόω) [pronounced ax-ee-OH-oh], it means to be considered worthy of, to be considered deserving of, and it is here a perfect tense. The perfect tense is the permanence of the celebrityship of Jesus Christ. This verb is used to portray for the first time that Jesus Christ is the only celebrity, and the perfect tense is used to show that this is a permanent status quo. In human life celebrities come and celebrities go, but here we have the perfect tense to show that Jesus Christ always was and there never will be a time when He is not a celebrity. Then we have the passive voice: Christ received this permanent evaluation from God the Father when He told Him to sit down at the right hand of the Father. The resurrection, ascension and session of Jesus Christ forms a part of the permanent evaluation of the passive voice. Under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit and under the plan of God the Father the humanity of Christ was resurrected, the humanity of Christ went up to the third heaven, and the humanity of Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father, waiting for operation footstool. The indicative mood is the reality of Christ being permanently evaluated as the only celebrity for believers in any dispensation. Moses was a hero in a certain dispensation, Israel, but Jesus Christ is the celebrity of all time, the only celebrity. Moses was the hero of Israel; Christ is the unique person of the universe. “For example, this one [Jesus Christ] has been permanently evaluated deserving of.”

Putting anything before Jesus Christ is indicative that you have not grown up and you have no capacity for life or love.

Moses is to the Jews as Julius Cæsar is to the unbeliever as Paul is to the Christian.

The word “more” is a genitive singular of pleiōn/pleiōn/pleione/pleon (πλείων/πλείον/πλέον) [pronounced PLI-own,PLI-on,PLEH-one/pleon (πλείων/πλείον/πλέον) [pronounced PLI-own,PLI-on,PLEH-on, a comparative of polus,polos (πολύς,πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS]. Polus,polos (πολύς,πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] means “more.” It is found in the emphatic position in the sentence — “absolutely more,” excluding everyone else. The word “glory” is also in the genitive singular of description — doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah], to indicate that there is a glory that belongs to Jesus Christ that is absolutely unique, one that makes Him the only celebrity. There is not such thing as another celebrity, and anyone who is a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ and who has reached supergrace has maximum capacity to love Jesus Christ, therefore occupation with Christ, therefore recognizes the celebrityship of Christ. Therefore everything else falls into its proper place. This is a genitive of description. When a genitive stands out boldly in its typical significance without shading off into any combination with some contextual idea this is classified as a descriptive genitive. In other words, the descriptive genitive we might call here the genitive of celebrityship and glory has been used to describe.

When you have a comparative somewhere in the context there must be something with which the comparison is made, and we have that now — “than Moses” .When you have a comparative of polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] or a comparative of anything else there must be somewhere a preposition plus the accusative. Para is often used for such a comparative, so para is translated here “than.” “Moses” is in the accusative case, and this is what is called para plus the accusative used for a comparison and is correctly translated “than Moses” .Moses, along with the apostle Paul, stands out as a man of unusual genius. If the writer of Hebrews was addressing reversionistic believers he must pick someone who is an obvious, unusually great man, one of the greatest heroes of all. he can't pick the apostle Paul who is persona non grata with the reversionistic believers of Jerusalem. The apostle Paul is only famous in Jerusalem for the fact that he murdered Christians before he himself was saved. He was a zealous exterminator of Christians. Moses is an illustration of a great hero, a spiritual hero, but Jesus Christ is unique.

The writer points out that Jesus Christ is a greater person than Moses.

Next we have “inasmuch as” — the preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of hosos (ὅσος) [pronounced HOS-os], a correlative relative meaning “as great as” or “as much as.” In the prepositional phrase with katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] it should be translated “by so much as.”

“he who hath builded” — occasionally we find a relative pronoun, like “who”, used in the translation of a aorist participle. We have here an aorist active participle, we do not have a relative pronoun. This was a legitimate way about 150 years ago of translating. Often participles in a foreign language were translated by a relative clause in the English. Our clauses in the English, however, are so fouled up that to improve the translation we stray away from using that relative pronoun in the English. “He who hath builded” is an aorist active participle of kataskeuazō (κατασκευάζω) [pronounced kaht-ask-yoo-AHD-zoh] which means not only to build a house but to furnish it. The builder does the furnishing. Here is the Lord Jesus Christ as the only celebrity. Moses operated in a house.

That house is called the Age of Israel; it is actually divided into three parts. First of all we have the patriarchs from Abraham to Moses. Then we have the law from Moses to Christ. Then we have the dramatic interruption for the Church Age. But there is still some to go on the Age of Israel — seven years — and the Church is going to be raptured and the Jewish Age will then finish up. The first two parts of the Jewish Age are sequential. Then we have an interruption followed by the third part which is the Tribulation. This is a house which really hasn't been finished yet but Moses lived in this house. He was a hero in the house of Israel or the Age of Israel, but Jesus Christ constructed the house. Jesus Christ is the author of the dispensation. Again, that makes Him the only celebrity. But in the house are some heroes and the one on whom the Holy Spirit focuses with this writer is Moses. So we have “the one having constructed and equipped the house”. The aorist tense is a gnomic aorist. That means that in eternity past the Lord Jesus Christ constructed the dispensations. The active voice: Jesus Christ not only constructed but furnished. And it is a participle. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb.

“the house” — oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss]. You would think that since this is the object of the verb it would be in the accusative case, but it is in the genitive case. This is an objective genitive and the reason it is put in the genitive is because what follows the verb as the object of the verb is used in the sense of description. There is no accusative of description but there is a genitive of description, therefore the genitive case is often used as the object of the verb to show possession or description. In this case description. We have already had the description. This is not referring to a house, it is referring to the structure of human history which is the dispensation of Israel. So by putting it in the genitive God the Holy Spirit tells us we are dealing here with a dispensation, not with a literal house. With a literal house you would put it in the accusative case. So how do you know when the Bible is literal or figurative? You know by exegesis, you know by the grammar, the structure of the original language.

“hath” — here is the main verb, the present active indicative of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced ECHKH-oh]. Sometimes it means to have and to hold, here it means to have — “keeps having,” present linear aktionsart. Active voice: Jesus Christ is the subject. Indicative mood: this is the main verb which follows the action of the aorist participle. First of all, in eternity past Christ constructed the dispensation, now He has more honour than anyone in the dispensation in time. He has more honour than Moses because in eternity past He designed the dispensation.

“more honour” — the accusative singular of timê (τιμή, ἡς, ἡ) [pronounced tih-MAY or tee-MAY] which means honour and evaluation, and again we have the accusative singular from pleiôn/pleiōn/pleione/pleon (πλείων/πλείον/πλέον) [pronounced PLI-own, PLI-on, PLEH-on] e/pleon (πλείων/πλείον/πλέον) [pronounced PLI-own, PLI-on, PLEH-on] which is the comparative of polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS].

“than the house” — oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss], and this time oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss] occurs in the ablative of comparison, and again it refers to dispensations.

Hebrews 3:3 “For example, this one [Jesus Christ] has been permanently evaluated deserving of more glory than Moses, by so much as the one having constructed and furnished the house, keeps on having more honour than the house.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This verse says that no matter how you slice it or in what age you find yourself it has always been the same story without exception, Jesus Christ is the only celebrity in history. Jesus Christ constructed the dispensations, He furnished the dispensations with grace provisions. There are heroes within the dispensations. In this Church Age dispensation in which we live any believer who reaches supergrace is a hero, but there is only one celebrity: many heroes; one celebrity.

Heb 3:4 (For every house is built by someone, but the builder of all things is God.) (ESV)

Verse 4 — there is also a difference between the creature and the creator. This is a new distinction. So much for the dispensational distinction which adds to the celebrityship of Jesus Christ. Now for one which is used to approach Jesus Christ from the standpoint of His deity. Obviously Christ is the only celebrity, Jesus Christ is our Savior. He is also God. He is true humanity but He is undiminished deity.

Again we have the particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] beginning the verse. gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is used as a conjunction to express cause, inference, continuation, estimation, and here is the explanatory use for the second time in a row. Why? Because in the previous verse the dispensational aspect is used to present the celebrityship of Christ. Now gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is used again, this time to express the deity of Christ as over against a creature.

“every house” — we have pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss], referring to any dispensation. Now that we have learned that the house here refers to a dispensation, the meaning of a word is determined by its first use in context, it continues to mean a dispensation. But now we go from the dispensation of Israel, a specific, to the generality concept. All of the dispensations are involved at this point.

The Dispensations

1. The first dispensation is the Age of the Gentiles, the first age in history. It began with Adam in innocence, from the creation of man, and concludes with the destruction of the first “united nations” building. God does not care for the United Nations, it is just simply a Satanic tool. Whenever someone is associated with promoting the United Nations it is always the same story: that person is the devil’s own tool. So here is a Satanic operation being pushed today in our age of apostasy. In this Age of the Gentiles there are three parts.
  - a. There is man in perfect environment. Man did not have a sin nature and God provided everything for him. He provided doctrine, sex and food, and man rejected the perfect provision of God. “What’s the matter with some of you, have you never been around?...forget the petitions.” This was the age of perfect environment. Man rejected the perfect environment provided by God.

- b. Negative volition was expressed through food; there was one forbidden food. Negative volition caused the fall and once man has an old sin nature he needs protection, so he gets his protection from the laws of divine establishment.
- c. So we go from the period of perfect environment to the laws of divine establishment. Then, finally, the laws of divine establishment result in nationalism. So these are the three periods in the dispensation of the Gentiles. Nationalism was attacked by the “united nations” and at that point this particular house was removed from the scene of history and
  - 2. the second house was put up — Israel: the patriarchs, the law,...
  - 3. ...then interruption by the Church Age, and the completion of the Jewish Age with the Tribulation. Then we have the third age which is the Church Age — the third house — in which we find ourselves living today. It is easier in principle to be a hero in the Church Age than in any other house constructed by God. Why? Because the Church Age is the age of the completed canon of scripture.
    - a. The Church Age is only divided into two parts: from 30 to 96 AD when the canon was being formed, called the pre-canon period;...
    - b. ...from 96 AD right down to this moment we have the post-canon age. So it is easier to be a hero now and to be occupied with the celebrity, Jesus Christ. Why? Because we have doctrine in written form. In principle this should make it easier, but in this generation we have more believers in reversionism than in all of our past history. This is the age of apostasy, reversionism, rejection of Bible teaching.
  - 4. There is one more house that should be added to round out the scene: the Age of Christ, called the Millennium because it lasts 1000 years. But it is the age of the personal rule of Christ in human history. The personal rule of Christ lasts forever but it is divided into two parts. The first part is the Millennium or the first 1000 years of His reign — the last 1000 years of human history. After that He reigns in eternity forever and ever. Jesus Christ as the only celebrity, as the God-Man, as the King of kings and Lord of lords, is going to return to the earth. He is going to be crowned and He is going to live as the ruler of the world for 1000 years. There will be once again, as at the beginning of history, perfect environment on the earth.

So, “every house” refers to the whole pattern of history from the viewpoint of dispensations. Remember that a dispensation is merely a period of human history from the divine viewpoint, from the standpoint of divine design, divine planning and divine construction. “For every house,” pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss], means every dispensation, “is builded” — the present passive indicative of kataskeuazō (κατασκευάζω) [pronounced kaht-ask-yoo-AHD-zoh], which means to construct and furnish. The present tense is the continuation of dispensations. The passive voice: God uses human agents, human heroes, to administer each dispensation. The one in context is Moses in the specific house of Israel. The indicative mood is the reality of human function, believers in each dispensation who are supergrace heroes. Right now you are a believer priest. Right now God is constructing the Church Age from the lives of believer priests as he has provided for them in grace. The heroes of this dispensation are supergrace believers. So we read, “For every house is constructed and furnished by some man”, literally, “by the agency of someone” — we have the preposition hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative which is used to express agency. We have as the ablative here the indefinite pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç], meaning “someone.” So it should be translated “by the agency of someone” .The agency in this case is Moses. God used many agents during the Age of Israel — Abraham, Moses, Joseph, the judges, the prophets and certain kings. This passage emphasizes, however, Moses as the great hero in his house.

“but” — this is the adversative use of the particle de to set up a conjunction of contrast — “he that built”, kataskueazw here is an aorist active participle. Twice the word is used with God as the subject, once as man. When the subject is God it refers to the only celebrity, Jesus Christ. When man is the subject it refers to a hero of the faith. One celebrity; many heroes. This time the subject of the participle is really Jesus Christ as it was the first time.

“all things” — the accusative plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] used to indicate everything that Christ constructed. History and the dispensations is only one thing that Jesus Christ constructed. This is in the plural to indicate He constructed the universe — Colossians 1:16.

“God” — there is no verb here; there is no definite article with theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. When a Greek wanted to emphasize the meaning of a noun they put the definite article in. If they wanted merely to define the noun it would be ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. But the absence of the definite article in the Greek indicates the quality of the one being defined by the noun. So the absence of the definite article emphasizes quality or essence here, the essence of God. God is the creator and, specifically God the Son is involved at this point. Jesus Christ is the only creator — John 1:3; Colossians 1:16; Hebrews 1:10.

Hebrews 3:4 “For every house is constructed and furnished by the agency of someone; but the one [Christ] having constructed and furnished all things, God.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. Jesus Christ is the author of the dispensations — Hebrews 1:2.
2. Jesus Christ is the only celebrity; Moses is one of many heroes in the Age of Israel.
3. Jesus Christ is the unique person of the universe, the only celebrity. In this passage He is recognized as a celebrity because He is God and therefore infinitely superior to all creatures. Secondly, He is recognized because of His priesthood. Thirdly, because of His Kingship. Fourth, because of His relationship to the plan of the Father and the fact that he is the revealer of the Godhead to man and He is the advocate and the intercessor from mankind to the Godhead — He is the mediator, then.
4. At the point of doctrine there are many grace heroes but only one grace celebrity.

5. Moses was a hero in the house furnished by grace, but Christ is the celebrity who constructed and furnished the house.
6. In the history of grace there are many heroes but there is only one celebrity who is the source of all grace. In other words, the only celebrity is also the source of grace

09/10/1972 Hebrews 3:5 Characteristics of Moses, 1 of the 3 greatest supergrace heroes

A reading of these verses.

Heb 3:5 Now Moses was faithful in all God's house as a servant, to testify to the things that were to be spoken later, (ESV)

Moses is the hero in his house; but Jesus is the celebrity.

Verse 5 — “And Moses” — Kai Mwushj. This is in the emphatic position. We have an emphatic kai plus the Hellenised form of the Hebrew word for “Moses.” This relates back to the prepositional phrase of the previous verse “by the agency of someone.” Moses is emphasized as one of the greatest heroes on supergrace of all time.

3 greatest supergrace heroes would be Moses, Jeremiah and Paul.

The various men that God has used in different ages. God uses any believer who gets into supergrace and stays there.

“verily” — the particle used is an emphatic particle, men, and it indicates that everything before it in the sentence has great emphasis. “And Moses in fact” would be a good modern translation. Then we have the word “faithful,” the nominative singular of pistos (πιστός) [pronounced pis-TOSS] which means not just faithful as we understand the word but faithful with the connotation of dependability. Dependability is a sign of stability. To be consistent in certain things that ought to be done, that have to be done; to be consistent in certain functions of life which are legitimate and bona fide, functions of modus operandi or modus vivendi.

“Moses in fact was dependable [faithful, trustworthy] in all his house” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss] refers to the entire dispensation of Israel. Moses was the one man above all men who was more positive to doctrine than anyone who lived in his dispensation.

Abraham crossed the river, in obedience to God, and this began a new dispensation. The Jewish Age, and he begins the first part of it, which is the patriarchal period.

Why did Moses, receive all of the doctrine, and not Aaron, whose line began the royal priesthood? Moses was positive towards Bible doctrine, more than any other person; and possibly more than anyone who has ever lived. Moses and the Apostle Paul are the two most positive men in history. Moses longed to see our day, and that is because there were many doctrines which would not be given until the Church Age.

What kind of man is Moses from human viewpoint? He was a very attractive man; his physical body and strength was phenomenal. He was a genius in many fields.

Many geniuses are geniuses in one or two fields, and they are weirdos. They do not adjust to anything else. But Moses is a greater genius in more fields than any other man.

Moses was a musical genius, writing the music that the people sang. Long before the Israelites knew how to wield a sword, Moses was a great warrior; and he was a military genius, able to train them.

He constructed the treasure cities of Egypt, their greatest cities.

He set up the administrative system so that Egypt had the greatest period of Egyptian history for government administration. Moses was even a great administrator than Julius Cæsar. His administration broke down when dealing with thousands of Israelites in negative volition.

Moses could whip you in seconds; he could out think you in any way you wanted to challenge him; yet he was the most humble man who ever lived. He is a great man in all of human history. God did not choose to use even 1cc of his human genius unless that was related to his intake of Bible doctrine. Only when he took in Bible doctrine, that God allowed his musical genius to become operational.

Moses, despite being a military genius, was not permitted to lead his troops into battle. Holy rollers often just lift their hands into the air. Give me the old holy rollers who would roll in the aisle and frothed at the mouth and danced in the choir loft. Bob was very impressed with their dancing. He saw something similar in a Frank Buck film of Massai warriors. Old holy rollers were honest and you could respect them, even though they are wrong. He has no respect for holy rollers today, who are dishonest holy roller. They would do better to go back to their snake dances and conga dances.

Take away grace and doctrinal orientation, and Moses is just another genius.

So many geniuses in the United States are often misfits with no common sense.

It is not accident that God chose Moses as a supergrace hero. He was more positive to doctrine than anyone who lived in his dispensation. The two greatest men are Moses and Paul; and they are both Jews.

“Get those girls who walked out and tell them not to come back. Some of you parents need to hang closer to your children; they are not doing so well.”

If Bible doctrine becomes your life, no matter what your expressions of life may be, no matter what your job, then you have the opportunity of being something fantastic. The real secret to success for any believer is measured in terms of his attitude toward Bible doctrine. Whether you have any ambition in life is really inconsequential. You have been left behind in this life in order to honour God in a special way, and it depends entirely on Bible doctrine. “And Moses in fact was faithful [trustworthy, dependable].” Pistos (πιστός) [pronounced pis-TOSS] is used here for his attitude toward doctrine. He was consistent in the intake of doctrine, he was consistent in his desire for doctrine, he realized that the most important thing in his life was doctrine and that everything else was secondary.

We have more than Moses had, since we are in the Church Age. We have the complete system of doctrine before us.

“as a servant” — this is not doulos (δούλος) [pronounced DEW-loss], which means “slave.” There is another word in the Koine Greek which is only used here: therapōn. Then word means a noble servant, not just a slave who does his job but a slave who has nobility of soul and it manifests itself. One of the greatest by-products of being a supergrace hero is nobility of soul from Bible doctrine. The background of the individual makes absolutely no difference. A person who is a supergrace believer is not a product of his environment, he is a product of the plan of God. What we are because of physical birth becomes of no consequence, it is what we are after the new birth.

Scythians were some of the worst people in the world, who drank out of skulls. God can take a trashy person and make him noble; and a rich person can become trashy, without Bible doctrine.

Col. 3 no Scythians. There is no wrong side of the tracks with a supergrace hero.

A whole generation failed because of negative volition toward doctrine. Potentially, every person in this generation can become a Moses. Even as a female, you can become a Moses.

A noble servant is a believer who is pistos (πιστός) [pronounced pis-TOSS] when it comes to Bible doctrine — dependable, faithful, trustworthy, stable. Bible doctrine is more important than anything else and everything else is set aside as secondary.

You think that you can come to church once a week and make it? You cannot. You don't eat physical food once a week.

People in reversionism suddenly want the rapture to come. It is rather humorous in a way when it comes to Bible doctrine.

If you have a great spiritual life, then you can enjoy the secondary things. Moses got remarried and it bugged his sister. He exploited Bible doctrine and the grace of God to the maximum. It drove his sister nuts. She got leprosy for that.

A good servant is one of the greatest things in the world. Bob has lived in a family with servants; they were happy, well-adjusted, and they loved serving. One servant who loved driving, and loved tinkering with those cars. But the liberals got a hold of him and he quit and was no longer happy. The government decides what makes you happy. They don't know what makes you happy. Money isn't happiness; Bible doctrine is happiness; and the laws of divine establishment are happiness. Government cannot take a sow's ear and turn it into a silk purse. Bob knows a lot of happy sow's ears and a lot of unhappy silk purses. The government cannot figure out what to make a person happy.

The Constitution says, life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. You can only pursue happiness with liberty. If the government decides to make you happy, they have to remove the other options from you; they must take away your freedom. "You do not have the ability to figure out what makes you happy." The lib is always unhappy; and he cannot decide how to make himself happy; yet he wants to make this decision for everyone else. People in this country are so stupid and so brainwashed that they will vote for this candidate (McGovern). The business of government is not to take away our freedoms. We need to decide what makes us happy. Let's say Bob thinks that living on the beach with a pair a trunks without being disturbed by a bunch of hippies. Bob's idea of happiness is to swim 4x a day when the waves are up. The government, leave me alone. A government will collect some taxes and there is some responsibility to the military. Government has not right to knock on my door and want to know how many toilets I have or how many children I have. As a beach boy, I might not want others to know that.

People in government are poor businessmen and they don't know anything about real life. Some little mealy mouth jackass from the government is allowed to stop some big business over some problem that he has. You take one generation of Americans who are positive of Bible doctrine, and you will be the closest thing to the super race, no matter what color they are. This will be the greatest people around. Politicians who promise a basic salary would be laughed out of the world.

Only Goldwater could be elected if there were a bunch of supergrace believers. Bible doctrine changes things. We have failed as believers and as a nation.

Moses had positive volition. There were a few others, like Caleb and Joshua. But there was never a man like Moses. He was a fantastic person. So he is recorded so many times in the Word of God.

"for a testimony" — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of marturion (μαρτύριον) [pronounced mar-TOO-ree-on]. This does not mean "for a testimony." If we are going to give it its exact meaning in modern English we have to be very clear — "for evidence." Moses is evidence, evidence for the importance of entering the supergrace life. Moses and his positive volition stands as the all-time evidence of how important it is to enter supergrace, how important it is to be positive toward Bible doctrine. This is divine evidence that it is possible for a person with the greatest handicap in the world, that is, to be a super genius. When a super genius will set aside everything and be positive toward Bible doctrine that is evidence.

“of those things which” — not correct. “For evidence of things being communicated” is the correct translation.

“were to be spoken after” is the genitive plural, future passive participle of laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh]. Laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] is a future tense to indicate in the participle that Moses will stand in every future generation as to what can be done when a person is positive toward doctrine. No one has ever exploited grace like Moses, and like the apostle Paul, but anyone can who is a believer. You have to make up your mind to do it and are going to have to set aside everything to take in doctrine and take in doctrine. The passive voice means that Moses receives commendation as evidence. The participle indicates this will always be true, and it should be translated “of the things which were to be communicated.” Supergrace was to be communicated in the New Testament epistles. Many principles of doctrine were to be communicated throughout the formation of the canon of scripture, and whenever these were to be communicated Moses stands as evidence. This can be accomplished, you can enter into supergrace, you can exploit the grace of God through doctrine. Moses as a grace hero is used as evidence not only against reversionism, and specifically against reversionism in the Exodus generation, but every generation of believers who through negative volition toward doctrine become reversionistic. So Moses is evidence for the importance of supergrace, but the word “evidence” [marturion (μαρτύριον) [pronounced mar-TOO-ree-on]] really here means evidence against. And every believer who ever goes negative toward doctrine for any time, Moses stands as evidence against him. Moses is evidence against his own generation but the future tense of the participle indicates he is evidence against every generation.

Hebrews 3:5 “Now Moses in fact, faithful [dependable, trustworthy] in all his house [the dispensation of Israel], as a noble servant, for evidence of things being communicated in the future.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Lesson #20

09/17/1972 Hebrews 3:6 Christ's house = Church Age; supergrace hero in Church Age

Heb 3:6 ...but Christ is faithful over God's house as a son. And we are his house if indeed we hold fast our confidence and our boasting in our hope. (ESV)

Verse 6 — “But Christ” — the adversative use of the particle de sets up a contrast between Moses as a supergrace hero and the Lord Jesus Christ as the only celebrity — “as a son,” the adverb hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç] plus huios (υἱός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS] is in contrast to the previous verse. Huios (υἱός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS] means an adult son, a mature son.

In the previous verse we saw that Moses was hōs (ὥς) [pronounced hohç] qerapwn, a noble servant, a hero, but Jesus Christ is in contrast to him as the adult son, as the only celebrity in any dispensation. Moses is in the house; Christ is over the house.

“over his own house” — the preposition ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative of oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss]. We had, for example, Moses in the previous verse en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss], and here is the difference, the preposition ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] over en (ἐν) [pronounced en]. ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] means authority over something; en (ἐν) [pronounced en] means in something. So the Lord Jesus Christ is over the house of Israel of which Moses was a hero in the house. Moses is in the house; Christ is over the house, once again establishing the uniqueness of the person of Christ. He is undiminished deity and true humanity in one person forever. He is the only manifestation of God, He represents and epitomises everything that is important in God’s plan under the concept of grace. He is the object of category #1 love, but people do not love Christ apart from the intake of Bible doctrine. Lack of doctrine means lack of appreciation, lack of capacity for loving the Lord Jesus Christ. Capacity for loving Jesus Christ is based upon Bible doctrine in the soul. So Christ is the only celebrity. Once this is achieved through the intake of doctrine and the entrance into the supergrace life then the believer fulfils his priesthood. There is no fulfilment of his priesthood until he is a supergrace believer. The universal priesthood of the Church is based upon being a supergrace hero.

Christ is both over the house of Israel and over the house called the Church. In other words, He is the chief cornerstone, the stone on the corner where two walls come together. One wall is Israel. Jesus Christ is the King of Israel, David’s greater son and a high priest forever after the order of Melchizedek. Christ is also the head of the Church, the groom to the Church, His bride; He is the head of the body. So Christ is the chief cornerstone.

So literally, “But Christ as an adult son over his house.”

The next phrase indicates that we are now discussing not the house of Israel of the previous verse but the house which represents the Church Age; “whose house” — genitive singular of the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], referring to the Church Age. And again we have oikos (οἶκος) [pronounced OY-koss], only this time it represents the Church Age rather than the Age of Israel.

“we are” — present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the absolute status quo verb — “we keep on being.” Since the Church Age is a house over which Christ rules as an adult son it has certain unique features which did not exist in the previous dispensation mentioned in verse 5.

Nine Unique Features of the Church Age

1. Every believer is in union with Jesus Christ, this was never true before. Every believer has been entered into union with Christ as of the point of salvation, this is the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

2. Every believer is indwelt by the person of Jesus Christ. No Old Testament believer was ever indwelt by Christ.
3. Every believer is indwelt by the Holy Spirit. While God the Holy Spirit had a ministry of enduement or empowerment to certain Old Testament saints the universal indwelling of God the Holy Spirit is unique to the Church Age.
4. For the first time in history every believer is his own priest, therefore every believer must function in his priesthood and this demands the supergrace life.
5. We have a completed canon of scripture and in this house or dispensation all divine revelation is in written form. There is no extra-biblical revelation in this dispensation. God does not speak except through His Word. No dreams or visions.
6. We have a clearly-defined grace way of life superior to and superseding anything that has ever existed prior to this dispensation. This is also the dispensation of grace.
7. Therefore every believer is in full-time Christian service, every believer is an ambassador for Christ, every believer represents Christ in the devil's world. In the devil's world there is no Jesus Christ because He is seated at the right hand of the Father, He is represented by you.
8. We have the intensification of the angelic conflict. Never before in human history has there been such an intensification of the angelic conflict. Therefore we live the most difficult of all dispensations, much more so even than the Tribulation (Rev.6–19).
9. All believers are commanded to go for the supergrace life by way of the ECS, and all such commands are based upon the full and only expression of the priesthood. Every believer is a priest, God does not intend for your priesthood to get rusty. Every believer is an ambassador. God does not intend for the corrosion, for the disintegration of your ambassadorship.
10. Our focus should be upon occupation with Christ; and not with production. Production is a manifestation of the supergrace life.

The objective of the Christian is to take in Bible doctrine, and when you reach the supergrace point God will have you occupied with those things that are productive. But we never think in terms of production, we think in terms of occupation with the person, not in doing something for God. God does not depend upon us for His plan to succeed in time. God's plan depends upon God's essence, God's concepts, God's grace; it never depends on us. The fact that we are permitted under grace to be productive to the maximum is simply a manifestation of His perfect plan. All believers are commanded to enter the supergrace life by way of construction of the ECS.

Maybe you feel insignificant; maybe your week seems terrible; and you may not feel like a representative of the King of Kings, Lord of Lords. Christianity never is based upon how we feel.

“if” — “we” refers to all believers. The only people, however, who qualify are believers who enter the supergrace life. Supergrace heroes function under the priesthood and have the privilege of maximum glorification of Christ under the intensified angelic conflict. All believers are the house of Jesus Christ but only supergrace believers become heroes as Moses was. The word “if” introduces a third class condition. Third class conditions are easy to recognize. We start out with eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] in the protasis plus the subjunctive mood of the verb. The conditional clause is divided into two sentences, the protasis and the apodosis.

The 4 Class Conditions

1. The protasis always qualifies what the apodosis says. For example, if the protasis says “If you give me the car I will go to the store.” The store is across the street. The person is qualifying under what conditions they will go to the store. They will go to the store if they are permitted to drive. The Greeks could say this in four ways. They could say, “If you will give me the car I will go to the store” —
2. 1st class condition, and you will give me the car. Sometimes in English you can translate a 1st class condition, “Since you have given me the car I will go to the store.”
3. But in the second class condition you have been told, “No, you can’t go.” So you say, “If you will give me the car (and you won’t) I will go to the store,” which means “I won’t go to the store.”
4. The third class condition means you haven’t asked for the car yet, so the 3rd class condition is potential — maybe yes, maybe no. This time, “If you give me the car I will go to the store” is a bribe: “If you give me the car I will do something for you.”
5. Then the fourth class condition expresses a youngster who has just learned to drive and you don’t allow them to drive yet: “If you will give me the car (I wish you would but you won’t) I’ll go to the store. In the English we have no such exegetical, grammatical systems to make these distinctions, so we have to make them in other ways.

The third class condition indicates the believer’s volition in moving toward supergrace or toward entering into reversionism. This “if” indicates the direction in which you or I will go as believers in the Church Age. The first part of this sentence says, “But Christ as an adult son over his house; whose house we are.” We live in a certain time in history, we live in the dispensation of the Church, we are the administrators of that dispensation. As an administrator, as a believer in the ministry, as an ambassador, as a priest, you are a part of the function of this dispensation. And if you could know the divine interpretation of history your life is of much greater significance than the broad scope of activity historically in our time in this world. What you do is much more important and your first objective after salvation is to reach the supergrace life. Until you reach supergrace you’ve had it, you are just wobbling around. But once you reach supergrace there is a big “if,” and here it is.

“if we hold fast” — “we hold fast” is an aorist active subjunctive of a compound verb, katechô (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh]. katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] is the preposition of norm or standard, it also means “down” under certain conditions. echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHHK-oh] means to have and to hold. It means here to have and to hold according to a norm and standard, to have and to hold down something. It means here to hold fast, or even stronger than that, to keep in one’s memory, to occupy, to have in full and secure possession. There is also a nautical use of this word: to steer toward something or to make a heading, to be on course. All these meanings relate to heading for and maintaining a course toward the supergrace life. In the breakdown of the verbs there is a definite relationship between these compounds. In Hebrews 3:1 we had the aorist active imperative of katanoëô (κατανοέω) [pronounced kat-an-oh-EH-oh]. This is the verb for occupation with the person of Christ as the only celebrity of our dispensation. It used for occupation with Christ on the part of a supergrace believer.

Now in verse 6 we have katechô (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh] used for heading toward and maintaining a course toward supergrace. Verse 1 gave us the objective, now under katechô (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh] we have the course. There are three meanings of the verb that are pertinent here. “If we hold fast” is the simplest translation. It obviously refers to doctrine in the right lobe, doctrine in the ECS, and doctrine in the supergrace area. “If we hold fast” — maybe we will and maybe we won’t — depends upon the function of GAP.

Bible doctrine goes into the left lobe as gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis]. As gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] Bible doctrine is understood objectively but is not useable. James says this is hearing the Word but not doing it. If you are going to do it it must be transferred by positive volition into the human spirit where it becomes epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is useable. First it is cycled into the right lobe or the heart. It enters into the frame of reference with the memory centre, it enters into our vocabulary and categories, into our norms and standards. It becomes swfia or doctrine on the launching pad. It is also used for the construction of the ECS — first floor: grace orientation; second floor: mastery of the details of life; third floor: relaxed mental attitude; fourth floor: capacity for love; and the fifth floor is +H. From +H you enter into the supergrace life which is capacity for freedom, capacity for life, capacity for love, capacity for happiness. That is the objective. “If you hold fast” — keep on taking in doctrine, keep on taking in doctrine — you will reach the objective where you can have the normal function of the priesthood which is the supergrace life.

This also means “if we have in full and secure possession” .And again, it has the same meaning: doctrine in each one of the lobes, doctrine in the human spirit, doctrine in the ECS, doctrine contributing to the supergrace life.

The third meaning is the nautical term: “If we steer for and maintain our course.” This emphasizes the daily function of GAP leading to supergrace. This is the translation we will use. Katechô (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh] is in the aorist tense here. This is the constative aorist which gathers into one ball of wax every time we take in doctrine, every day that we feed our soul on Bible doctrine under the system designed for the Church Age: a pastor-teacher communicating with authority to a congregation of believer priests. The active voice: the believer priest must persist in the function of GAP until he reaches the point where he can function in a normal way. We are born again at the point of salvation. That is the point at which we become priests, but we are, as it were, born into the family of God born into a priesthood and we must become spiritually mature in order for normal function to exist in our priesthood. Normal function does not exist until we enter the supergrace life, then we are able to actually function under the priesthood. The subjunctive mood here indicates a third class condition — maybe we will, maybe we won't. The third class condition indicates, along with the subjunctive mood, that you have volition. You can choose for Bible doctrine or not. You can set aside other things and take in doctrine on a crash basis. You can take in Bible doctrine daily. But every time you come to a Bible class that is a decision you have to make. And if at some point you neglect doctrine, if at some point you fail to take in doctrine, and if you fail to make this decision, then instead of going for supergrace you move into reversionism through the usual process — negative volition toward Bible doctrine, scar tissue on the soul, emotional revolt of the soul, blackout of the soul, reverse process reversionism in practice, reversionism in status quo. All of these things will occur. So there must be a course toward which you steer and a course which, once you are steering in that direction, you must maintain. There are two objectives, nautically speaking, from this verb katechō (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh]. One is to steer, so we set the course and steer in that direction. But maybe to maintain that course you have to even tack in order to maintain the course in spite of contrary winds, in spite of difficulties, storms, and so on.

“the confidence” — “confidence” here is the accusative singular of parrhêsia (παρρησία) [pronounced par-rhay-SEE-ah]. It really means here confidence or assurance or authority, confidence in the authority of doctrine. These meanings are derived from the original concept of this noun which meant outspokenness or boldness of speech, and confidence here is confidence in the authority of Bible doctrine as it is presented to you.

The next phrase has to do with a fulfilment concept. It has to do not with being in the house, the Church Age, but being effective in the house, being effective in our priesthood. If we do “steer and maintain our course with confidence in doctrine” we are going to end up occupied with the high priest, occupied with the person of Jesus Christ the only celebrity of the Church Age. So we have “and the rejoicing of the hope.” The word “rejoicing” is not rejoicing at all, it is the accusative singular of a noun kauxhma which means “boasting” — the object of boasting. It refers to the Lord Jesus Christ as the only celebrity of the Church Age. However, Christ can only become the object of boasting to the believer who has erected the edification complex and has capacity to love Jesus Christ. Capacity to love Jesus Christ comes from Bible doctrine, it comes from taking it in daily.

“of the hope” — this is what is called a descriptive genitive singular of the noun elpis (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS]. Generally, elpis (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] would mean confidence, hope, or expectation. Here it means expectation. This is anticipation of our life with the Lord in phase three. Right now we are here in time. Our whole life is ordered by time. Let's assume for the moment that you are going to enter phase three through physical death, through dying grace. That is what is meant here by “the object of boasting of the expectation.” The expectation of the priesthood is to be with God forever. In other words, there is a time coming when you are going to depart from this world and your soul will vacate your body. You will no longer be in the house called the Church Age, you will be taken immediately to heaven. Your soul will be absent from the body and face to face with the Lord. You will go from whatever you are in this life to perfect happiness. That is our expectation or our hope.

The next word is “firm”, the accusative feminine singular from bébaios (βέβαιος) [pronounced BEB-ah-yoss] and it doesn’t mean firm, it means “stabilized.” This means never leaving supergrace for reversionism.

“unto the end”, an adverbial preposition of time, mechri/mechris (μέχρι/μεχρις) [pronounced MEHKH-ree/mekh-RIHS] plus the genitive of telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss]. It should be translated “until the end” — until the end of phase two.

Hebrews 3:6 “But Christ as an adult son over his house; whose house we are, [if we hold fast, if we have in full and secure possession] if we steer and maintain our course of the confidence and the object of boasting [Christ as the only celebrity] of the expectation, stabilized until the end.”

Stabilized is something that we need in life. It is our soul that is saved and enters into phase III before the Lord. It is our soul that needs to be fed. It is of infinite value to the Lord.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #21

09/24/1972 Hebrews 3:7 Doctrine of GAP (extensive coverage)

Reversionism of the Exodus generation

Heb 3:7 Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says, "Today, if you hear his voice, (ESV)

Verse 7 begins with the word “Wherefore.” This is the beginning of the study of the reversionism of the Exodus generation. In verses 7–11 we have a warning from the Meribah revolution, one of the most serious revolts of all time as far as believers are concerned. The worst thing that can happen to any believer is the status of reversionism. There are basically three kinds, and possibly four, of reversionism. There is phallic reversionism, monetary reversionism, ritual reversionism, and also the negative volition type of reversionism which is really the basis for everything else. In this particular chapter we see one of the greatest illustrations of a generation of believers totally failing. Ordinarily we do not think of believers as failing because of the tremendous benefits of the grace of God. But through the principle of reversionism this failure is not only probable but is very definite reality. Here is what reversionism can do to destroy a whole generation of believers. The word “wherefore” which begins verse 7 is an inferential conjunction, dio (διό) [pronounced DEE-oh] (διό) [pronounced DEE-oh]. It is a compound conjunction made up of dia plus hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç] and it means “for this reason.”

Because of the celebrityship of Jesus Christ, because of the potential heroship of every believer-priest in the Church Age, this following paragraph is given as a warning. There is a potential danger always from reversionism. Every believer is a priest, every believer has unlimited divine operating assets which can come to him through the daily function of GAP and result in the ECS and the function of the supergrace life. The supergrace life for the believer is the area of heroship, it is also the area in which Jesus Christ is the only celebrity.

“as” begins an analogy. The adverb kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kahth-OCE] is used to set up a comparison and should be translated “according as.” Then, in addition to that we have the next phrase “Holy Ghost.” This is a mistranslation of to pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]tw hagion (ἅγιον) [pronounced HAG-ee-on]. Hagion (ἅγιον) [pronounced HAG-ee-on] never means ghost. This was an attempt on the part of translators 300 years ago to use some device to distinguish between the technical and non-technical use of the neuter noun pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]. Sometimes pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] means nothing more than breath or spirit, and sometimes it refers technically to the human spirit as a part of God’s provision of the inner life. Sometimes it is used for the third person of the Trinity, and in an attempt to show that this member of the Trinity was just as much God as the others, but invisible, they set upon the concept of using the word “ghost”; a fairly respectable word some 300 years ago but has now fallen into decline. While the translation device was workable at the time it is a part of the problem of anachronism which obscures certain portions of the Word of God today. So we translate it: “According as the Holy Spirit.” This is a reference to the third person of the Trinity, also a reference to that member of the Trinity responsible for the canon of scripture — its accuracy and the principle by which the canon of the scripture is the only source of Bible doctrine. So here we have the divine author of the canon of scripture, and 2Timothy 3:16; 2Peter 1:21 both indicates the same principle. The writers of the scripture in the Old Testament had the gift of prophecy; the writers of the scripture, New Testament, had the gift of apostleship. These two gifts under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit made it possible to store in writing the very mind of Christ.

“saith” — present active indicative of légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] which means to communicate. So this is the divine side of the preparation of the Holy scripture. Now we have with “saith,” Psalm 95:8–11 quoted. The passage deals with the Meribah revolution, and the repercussions of the Meribah revolution and the reversionism which started it are alive in every generation. First of all in the Meribah revolution there are several things to be understood. All revolution is rejection of human or divinely constituted authority. All revolution is antagonistic to the laws of divine establishment, and the greatest antagonism to authority as constituted by God comes from born again believers in status quo reversionism. The greatest antagonists to authority are believers in reversionism. The source of legalism is believers in reversionism. The source of everything that is anti-establishment and detrimental to humanity comes from reversionism. This is the great lesson of the Meribah revolution.

“Today” is an adverb, sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on], which begins the quotation. The whole principle of beginning the quotation with sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on] — which is translated “this day” — indicates that this passage dealing with a revolution which occurred in the time of Moses is pertinent to us right now. However, this adverb occurred first of all in the Hebrew text of Psalm 95. That means it was pertinent to the generation in which David lived which was 1000 BC or roughly 450 years after the events occurred. It was also pertinent to believers of the first century AD because it is quoted in Hebrews chapter three. That means Hebrews chapter three was written in 67 AD, so nearly 1000 years later the Meribah revolution is still pertinent to the life of the individual believer. It is also pertinent to the 20th century believer to whom it is now being taught and it is also applied to the Exodus generation.

The communist revolution was one of the worst things to occur in human history. Bob wanted to watch McHale's Navy, and he came across the documentary which he thought was exceptional and it will be played at Berachah soon (like the next lesson?).

"Today" is literally "this day"; this is a continuous day. This is a day in which the Meribah revolution is pertinent to every period of human history. It is a warning to believers that their individual and collective reversionism has a detrimental effect upon history.

As a part of this particular passage we have to understand that immediately we go into a protasis, and in this particular protasis we begin with the word "if," introducing a third class condition — eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] plus the subjunctive. Remember that conditional clauses have a protasis and an apodosis. The apodosis is the main clause; the protasis[1] is a clause which limits the main clause and is always introduced with the word "if" to indicate a condition. Eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] is an "if," a third class condition meaning "maybe yes, maybe no." This conditional clause emphasizes your volition as a believer priest and how it relates to Bible doctrine. There is a principle from the word "if" here: The believer can always find time to do what he thinks is important. Man can always find time to do what he wants to do and the believer is no exception. The word "if" is used to introduce the fact you can take in Bible doctrine every day but that is strictly up to your volition. God will provide a way for positive volition.

"if ye will hear" — the aorist active subjunctive of the verb akoúô (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh]. This means to hear and to concentrate and is used here for the function of GAP. It also means to hear and accept the authority of the one who teaches and communicates the Word and it has basically the true Biblical concept of discipleship. The believer in the local church is a student without privilege and without portfolio. He has come to learn the Word and therefore he must set aside all human authority or human ability or human talent and must take in Bible doctrine. The aorist tense here is a constative aorist used for every time the believer functions in GAP. The active voice: Every believer must produce the action of the verb by his daily function of GAP, this is the basic reason for the priesthood. There was no universal priesthood of the believer until there was a canon of scripture available to every priest. Now we have the universal priesthood of the believer and the completed canon of scripture. All doctrine, all divine revelation is in writing. Since it is all in writing every believer priest on positive volition can GAP it daily. The subjunctive mood goes with the third class condition to indicate the potentiality of GAP, depending on whether the believer is positive or negative toward Bible doctrine. There are two things that must be connected here and that is the adverb and the verb. The adverb is "this day," sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on]; the verb is akoúô (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh]. Believers in every generation, from the Exodus generation to the present, must be consistent in the intake of Bible doctrine as it is presented in each generation. The principle concept, then, is that Bible doctrine is absolutely necessary every day. This is how you grow; this is why your soul is saved, so that in phase two you might take in Bible doctrine.

The Doctrine of Gap (Grace Apparatus for Perception)

1. In considering any system of perspicacity by grace we must distinguish between human and spiritual IQ. Human IQ is the number assigned to a person on the basis of dividing their mental age by their chronological age. There is no equality at birth and there is no equality after birth in the field of perspicacity. A person can be as a believer very stupid by the measuring standard of the IQ test. However, this same believer can be so positive toward doctrine that he is given by grace the perspicacity of a genius, and if he sticks with Bible doctrine there is nothing he cannot learn. There is a distinction between human and spiritual IQ, and this distinction is brought forth in 1Corinthians 2:1–16.
  - 1) Some people are smart and they fall for communistic propoganda; it appeals to them and their human viewpoint.
  - 2) The illusion that education is the solution to man's problems. This is why they are trying to get everyone into college. When Bob went to college, the only stupid people who could get in were football players.
  - 3) Some football players figured out that they could take 4 years of ROTC.
  - 4) People on our campuses have no right to be there today.
  - 5) Some think that education will bring equality to all, but that just does not happen; the grades given out are different.
  - 6) A lowering of the standards of discipline in the colleges.
  - 7) Education is not a panacea.
  - 8) However, God is able to take people from everywhere and He makes them equal. At the point of salvation, equality exists.
2. Human IQ is excluded from the grace apparatus for perception. You can be a genius and be stupid about doctrine; you can be stupid in human realms of measuring IQ and be brilliant in the field of doctrine. Human IQ is excluded from GAP — 1Corinthians 1:19-2:16. While human IQ is often considered a factor in learning it is no factor in learning Bible doctrine. To say that human perspicacity overflows into the Christian life is to give all low IQ believers a handicap, and grace excludes human handicaps.
  - 1) If a person sticks with doctrine, there is nothing that they cannot learn.
3. The perceptive lobe in the grace apparatus for perception is the left lobe. However, having information there is not going to cut it. You must have information in the right lobe, which is called the kardia (καρδία) [pronounced kahr-DEE-uh] in the Greek, or heart. It has inside of it a frame of reference with a memory centre. In order the develop and increase your capacity for knowledge you must have vocabulary receptacle and a categorical receptacle. This gives you the ability to think and to advance in your thinking. It takes vocabulary to think; it takes vocabulary to advance in thinking. In addition to that you have norms and standards which undergo change as you become the recipient of information in life. You also have a launching pad which is the area for the unbeliever's common sense. This is the area for application of information you have received, this is the basis for practicing professions. For example, you take information you have learned in medicine, information you have learned in law, in military, in engineering, and so on, and you apply it to a specific project in life. So that the right lobe is really the basis of your functioning in life, and what you really are is what goes on inside of your own right lobe or your own heart. "As a man thinks in his heart, so he is." This is the real person. Now you have a basis for human freedom and something in common with the angels: volition. And you have a positive pole and a negative pole. Your free will is designed so that you can have a part in the angelic conflict. Angels also have this same volition. In addition to that you have emotion, your response to what exists in your right lobe. Emotion is a sounding board, a responder. Emotion is the right woman to the right lobe's right man. In addition to that you have a conscience.

In the concept of GAP it is necessary for Bible doctrine to enter that left lobe. That is the perceptive lobe, the mentality of the soul. Whenever you hear Bible doctrine God the Holy Spirit takes that information into your left lobe and makes it real to you. It is impossible for spiritual phenomena to be real apart from the ministry of God the Holy Spirit, and He makes that objective information so that doctrine in the left lobe is objectively understood but non-usable. This is the person who is the hearer of the Word and not the doer. The doer of the Word is the believer with doctrine in his right lobe. The perceptive lobe is called noûs (νοῦς) [pronounced noose] and its content is called gnôsis (γνῶσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis], and it is translated "mind". The Holy Spirit causes the believer to understand Bible doctrine in the left lobe. This is objective learning but it is not the basis for application. This is known as perceptive comprehension — data understood but not applied.

4. The grace provision for learning Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine must cycle into the right lobe. It cycles through the human spirit and enters the right lobe. God had to set up some way for doctrine to go from the left lobe, where it is non-usable, to the right lobe where it is useable. Doctrine must become operational, useable, and that has set up a grace system for learning doctrine and making it useable. There are nine principles involved:
  - 1) The formation and preservation of the canon of scripture — the doctrine of verbal plenary inspiration whereby God has put our spiritual food in storage to be utilized on a day-by-day basis.
  - 2) The classroom for learning doctrine, the local church. This is divine authorization for doctrinal communication and worship. The classroom is the local church.
    - (1) The local church is not designed for social life. There is nothing about friendly or unfriendly churches in the Bible. The church is not some kind of fraternity or a place to provide a social life to those who are socially inept.
    - (2) The local church is an auditorium, not a sanctuary. When Bob is asked, how many does your sanctuary seat? He answers 1...and only when he is sitting.

(3) Bob likes the ability to see everyone. And he describes people in the back row behind the glass. “Now everyone is looking down in that back row.”

(4) The greatest mistake in Berachah Church is the choir loft behind him.

3) A spiritual gift, the gift of pastor-teacher. This is the divinely authorized communicator.

4) The priesthood of the believer for privacy and freedom of reception of doctrine.

5) Without these, however, we would still not be on an equal basis for the intake of doctrine were it not for the fact that God the Holy Spirit indwells every one of us. So we have the indwelling of the Holy Spirit for the function of GAP — 1Corinthians 2:9-16; 1John 2:27. However, the believer must be filled with the Spirit in order for the intake of doctrine to occur, and therefore we have the command of Ephesians 5:18, “Be filled with the Spirit.”

6) Grace provision for the filling of the Spirit is the rebound technique, as per 1John 1:9.

7) We have the human spirit as the first target for GAP — Job 32:8; 1Corinthians 2:12.

8) We have the provision of the divine laws of establishment whereby the government of a nation protects the freedom and the privacy of the local church.

9) The next provision has to do with human anatomy. It has to do with grace in anatomy whereby the body carries on certain non-meritorious functions making it possible for you to take in the Word of God. For example, we have oxygen getting into the blood.

5. The mechanics of GAP.

1) Under these mechanics we have operation ICE. Operation ICE is the job of the pastor-teacher whereby he communicates doctrine to the local assembly. He does so under the verb didaskô (διδάσκω) [pronounced did-AS-koh]. He is the absolute authority in the classroom, he has the authority in communication. He must communicate, however, a content. His message must contain the tree following:

(1) First of all, when necessary, it must contain isagogics. Isagogics refer to a principle of exegesis and interpretation. The Bible must be interpreted in the time in which it was written. Nothing can be understood in the Bible apart from the background of the time in which it was written. So isagogics interprets the Bible in the framework of its historical setting, and whenever necessary this must be brought in. Therefore the pastor must be a student of the times in which the Bible was written.

(2) Secondly, he must be able to think categorically. He must learn to recognize categories in scripture. He must be able to take various portions of scripture and by comparing scripture with scripture determine their classification of doctrine. And in his content he must emphasize the principle that scripture must be compared with scripture.

- (3) Thirdly, he must be able to analyze scripture, preferably from the original languages. He must be able to emphasize the grammar, the syntax, the etymology of the original languages. And if he is not versed in these things he must depend on someone else so that he is able to present a true analysis of what the scriptures say in the Hebrew, Aramaic and the Greek.
  - (4) This we call "ICE," and every pastor must be familiar with isagogics, categories and exegesis. This is the ICE principle in communication.
- 2) He must so communicate to his hearers that they enter into operation gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis]. This is equivalent to receptive comprehension whereby the believer is positive toward doctrine, concentrates on what is being said, is filled with the Spirit as he listens, and comprehends what is being taught. Comprehension at this stage does not mean agreement or disagreement, it means objective perception. It means an understanding of the doctrines, the principles, the names, the dates, the places, the formulas, the categories involved in a specific passage of scripture.
  - 3) Next we have operation epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. In this area doctrine goes from the left lobe to the right lobe by means of the human spirit. This comprehension demands agreement with what is taught. You cannot learn without at some time agreement with the one who communicates. It may take awhile but sooner or later there must be agreement or you are in the wrong church! Positive volition toward what is taught and what resides in the left lobe transfers it so that it becomes useable. It moves it out. Therefore, this doctrine goes in two areas. It goes first of all into the human spirit, the pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]. Here it becomes epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis], and epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] moves. epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] becomes structural material for the ECS, it immediately cycles up to the right lobe where it is utilized.
6. The frame of reference. What is its function?
- 1) It is the basis for the comprehension of more advanced doctrine.
  - 2) Frame of reference establishes a new conscience in the believer, a conscience whose norms and standards comply with divine norms and standards. The norms and standards in the soul begin to agree with divine norms and standards.
  - 3) It forms the divine viewpoint in the right lobe. The divine viewpoint is out in the launching pad for application to life.
  - 4) It deals with problems of the subconscious and the guilt complex. You do things or think things which are too difficult to accept, so you put that stuff into your subconscious so that you do not think about them.

- 5) It provides a true content for prayer and really turns one into a good prayer warrior.
- 6) It provides accuracy to communicate the Gospel to others — witnessing — and in helping those who are not as far along in the faith as you are.
- 7) It provides discernment to detect false doctrine.
- 8) It provides capacity for liberty, life, love, and happiness.
- 9) It provides capacity to detect what is important in life and what is not important. It gives a true scale of values. This helps a woman to discover your rm or rw; or your correct pastor-teacher.
- 10) It makes possible for God in grace to share His own happiness with you through the erection of an ECS and the entrance into the supergrace life.
- 11) It causes proper function of the priesthood of the believer in the devil's world

Doctrine of the Soul

This was inserted in the middle of the GAP doctrine above.

1. Self-consciousness. You are aware of your own existence
2. Right lobe and left lobe. The left lobe is the nous, which is the place for objective perspicacity. We must have that information in the right lobe.
3. The memory center.
4. We need a vocabulary receptacle and a category receptacle.
5. Norms and standards.
6. Old sin nature; area of weakness produces sins; area of strength produces human good.

“his voice” — we now have an objective genitive, phônê (φωνή) [pronounced foh-NAY] plus the genitive of possession of autos, referring to the voice of the Holy Spirit. Here we have the principle of the communication of Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine is called the Word of God in Hebrews 4:12, the mind of Christ in 1Corinthians 2:16, the voice of the Spirit here in Hebrews 3:7. In this context the voice of the Spirit refers to the Bible doctrine, to the promises, to everything which becomes the object of the faith-rest technique, for the faith-rest technique is born in the believer's right lobe. But the right lobe must have doctrinal content in order for the faith-rest technique to be born.

Hebrews 3:7 “For this reason therefore (according as the Holy Spirit communicates, This day if you will hear and concentrate on his voice” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

1972 Hebrews 3:8; Ex. 17:1–7; Ps. 95:8

Lesson #22

22 10/01/1972 Hebrews 3:8; Ex. 17:1–7; Ps. 95:8 Meribah Revolution

Chapter 3:8 via Exodus 17:1–7; Psalm 95:8

In order to understand the structure and the background of the next paragraph in our passage in this chapter it is necessary to have two things clearly in mind. First, how does a believer enter into the supergrace life? There are two frontal lobes. The left lobe is designed for objective understanding of all information in life. The left lobe is called the mind — noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose]; the right lobe is called the heart — kardia (καρδία) [pronounced kahr-DEE-uh]. The right lobe has a frame of reference and a memory centre, norms and standards called the conscience of the soul, it has a vocabulary and categories and a launching pad for Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine is taught isagogically and enters into the left lobe where as spiritual phenomena the ministry of God the Holy Spirit makes it objective information — perception through the objectivity of the ministry of the Holy Spirit. This doctrine is called gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] in the Greek, it has to be transferred for utilization. James says, “Be not a hearer of the Word but a doer.” First of all you have to hear the Word before you can do the Word. Hearing it is not doing it. It has to be transferred and the system of transfer has to be consistent with God’s grace. Positive volition, called pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] — faith — transfers that doctrine down to the human spirit where it becomes epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. Now for the first time Bible doctrine can be utilized. epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is cycled into the right lobe. It enters the frame of reference, it enters memory centre, it forms a new technical theological vocabulary in your soul. It eventuates in categories of the soul, it takes your norms and standards and makes them comply with divine norms and standards, and it puts divine viewpoint on the launching pad for application.

At the same time this is occurring this same doctrine in the human spirit now becomes building material for the ECS and the supergrace life. This is comparable to Canaan. Canaan is never a type of heaven. Canaan or the promised land is an illustration of the supergrace life, and in the picture found in this passage the Jews of the Exodus generation were first of all liberated from the slavery of Egypt. That is a picture of redemption. Then they were given the opportunity and the promise of supergrace but they never were able to reach Canaan which is analogous to the supergrace life. Instead, they died the sin unto death in the desert over a period of forty years. The reason why they failed is because from the time they were freed from slavery, from the time of the Passover, until the next generation bivouacked at the Jordan these people were in a constant state of reversionism; a state whereby they had to be disciplined and removed.

What is reversionism? Reversionism starts with negative volition and reverses the process of God’s plan and God’s objective for every life. Reversionism is negative volition toward Bible doctrine, negative volition building scar tissue on the left bank of the soul, opening up mataiotês (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace] and allowing doctrine from Satan to attack the various parts of the right lobe. This is called in our passage “hardening of the heart”, and there is a command coming up: “Harden not your hearts as in the Meribah.” That is Satanic doctrine in the right lobe crowding out Bible doctrine and presenting in the launching pad the human viewpoint of life or Satanic viewpoint of life. Then, of course, the trends in the old sin nature go to work and there is scar tissue on the right bank of the soul eventuating in the blackout of the soul which is delineated in Ephesians chapter four. Then there is the emotional revolt of the soul which blocks all the valves of the right lobe. Then there is a destruction of the ECS, bit by bit as doctrine is forced out of the right lobe. Then the practice of reverse process reversionism.

This is the history of the Exodus generation and the Exodus generation is used as an illustration of why believers fail to use their priesthood in the Church Age. Every believer is a priest, that is what Hebrews is all about. The objective of Hebrews is to get believers into the sphere of occupation with Christ. That comes under the supergrace life. The objective of the priesthood is for the daily function of GAP to result in a supergrace life. But you and I are going to fail as the Exodus generation failed if we go negative toward Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine is the spiritual food, the spiritual phenomena, whereby the believer enters into the supergrace life, becomes occupied with the person of Christ, fulfills the purpose for which he remains in this life. The priesthood appointment occurs at salvation but the priesthood does not properly function except in the supergrace life, and that is what this passage is all about.

Hebrews 3:8 do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion, on the day of testing in the wilderness, (ESV)

Verse 8 — the apodosis[2]. “Harden not” is the present active subjunctive sklêrunô (σκληρύνω) [pronounced sklay-ROO-no] plus the negative mê. Sklêrunô (σκληρύνω) [pronounced sklay-ROO-no] is used in a technical sense. It means to be negative toward doctrine. That is where reversionism begins. Negative volition toward doctrine produces every stage and every facet of reversionism. If you are negative toward Bible doctrine it is because of some attitude you have picked up (you can pick it up in a short period of time), some mental attitude sin that crops up in your life, some concept of getting your eyes on people, on things — the frustrations of life, the disappointments of life all do this.

Bob has noticed a lot of people who have begun to go positive toward doctrine. You are moving ahead or retrogressing in the spiritual life.

“your hearts” — the hardening of the heart isn’t something where you freeze up over night, it is something where you get very subtly sloppy in your volition. The hardening of the heart is where a little bit at a time, a little bit at a time, a little bit at a time; and then you begin to think like any unbeliever would think, but no doctrine left. So we have the present tense plus m (μή) [pronounced may]. Linear aktionsart plus m (μή) [pronounced may] plus the subjunctive means this is a command.

Not all commands are given in the imperative mood in either the Greek or the Hebrew. In the Greek language the subjunctive mood carries a strength of the imperative but recognizes human volition. Linear aktionsart to indicate negative volition toward doctrine producing scar tissue, producing blackout of the soul, producing emotional revolt, producing reversionism, producing reverse process reversionism. This should be translated “Do not go on hardening your hearts”. It means you started at some point in a subtle way. And this does not recognize hardness of heart, it recognizes the process of getting there. The hardening of the heart is reversionism, but this is “do not go on hardening your heart.” The active voice plus the negative means the believer priest must discontinue something that he has already started. And the passage was originally addressed to Jews in Jerusalem in 67 AD. In that year the Jews in Jerusalem were reversionistic. They have three years to recover and to get out of Jerusalem before the great catastrophe of the fifth cycle of discipline. So far they have shown no signs of recovery. They are about to be taken out by the fifth cycle of discipline and the sin unto death.

Then there is the subjunctive mood. The subjunctive is a mood of probability; the indicative mood is of reality. The subjunctive assumes unreality, it leads to a list of potential moods and as the meaning of the verb departs farther and farther from reality the subjunctive shades into the optative. This subjunctive is somewhere between the probability of the subjunctive and the desirability of the optative, and therefore it becomes a strong imperative to stop a disaster course, to turn away from a disastrous course, to turn away in your thinking (for the issue here is what you think), to turn away from some sloppy attitude that is knocking you down, some sloppy attitude that is making you negative toward Bible doctrine — “do not go on hardening your hearts.”

Kardia (καρδία) [pronounced kahr-DEE-uh] in the Greek here refers to the right lobe with the frame of reference, the memory centre, the vocabulary, the categories, the norms and standards, and the launching pad. The right lobe has all four areas where doctrine must be resident and it is the objective of the teaching ministry of the Church Age to get Bible doctrine into your right lobe. It is the objective to do this in a local church with a pastor-teacher communicating to a group under the principle of monologue. Nothing is accomplished by dialogue.

People have called from all over the world and they want Buddy and Bob to make their decisions for them. Now, they are being sent a tape. Call tapes and pubs for the right information. Counseling is a farce and letters written by Bob and Buddy have been distorted in all sorts of ways. One thing that is wrong with people is, they will not stand on their own two feet. Seminaries are now teaching counseling. You get away from reversionism by learning Bible doctrine.

Some of you have become sloppy in your self-discipline. You find excuses and avoid Bible doctrine. Someone’s testimony is that they were getting much more from a tape than from television. Television will amuse you right into a crisis. You are not growing and it shows.

Hardening the heart describes the reversionistic believer with emphasis on negative volition toward doctrine. Every stage of reversionism involves negative volition toward doctrine. Reversionism not only means a failure of GAP but it means also in any stage of reversionism when you start to go negative toward spiritual food. When you stop eating your daily manna from heaven, you are going to have a breakdown of the basic techniques — rebound, GAP, faith-rest.

The Word of God tells you, Do not go on hardening your hearts.

Failure in rebound, in gap and/or in faith-rest technique Those are fundamental to spiritual growth. How many of you claim doctrine? Too technical for you? Promises are the bottle or the nipple; but you have to move on from there. Bob is not knocking claiming the promises of God; but some of you have not yet been weaned.

When Bobby was young, Bob promises him things like a train trip to St. Louis to see a live baseball game. He did that to keep Bobby pitching. But Bob no longer does this, because Bobby has grown.

When you grow up, you know the character of God. You either progress or you retrogress.

The adverb “as” takes us to the Meribah — hōs (ὥς) [pronounced hohç], which sets up a correlation in the field of reversionism. The classic example of reversionism is the Exodus generation whose hero, Moses, was mentioned in the first part of this chapter. In this chapter the believer has a choice of supergrace or reversionism, the choice of the celebrityship of Jesus Christ, at which point the character of God is ultimately more important than the promises that emanate from that character.

The celebrityship of Christ or discipline from God — “as in the provocation” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus parapikrasmoj. Parapikrasmoj is a translation of the Hebrew word from which it is quoted. “Provocation” comes from Psalm 95:8.

Exodus 17:1 All the congregation of the people of Israel moved on from the wilderness of Sin by stages, according to the commandment of the LORD, and camped at Rephidim, but there was no water for the people to drink. \(ESV\)

Exodus 17:1 — the Jews had been liberated from Egypt. Egypt is a picture of the slave market of sin. The deliverance of the Jews is a picture of redemption through the cross. The Passover is a picture of leaving the slave market into freedom. As of the Passover the Jews are free, and when God makes you free he always makes you free on a wonderful basis. He not only made the Jews free but He made them very wealthy free people. Now, once the Jews are free they can make a choice. They can move to supergrace, which is going to be Canaan promised to them, or they can move into reversionism which comes from neglecting Bible doctrine. And they chose reversionism, they “hardened their hearts.”

Unless they were in supergrace they were not capable of entering the land, but no reversionistic generation is going to enter the promised land. If you are going to have God’s plan for your life, if you are going to have God’s best, you must have the capacity for God’s best and the capacity for God’s best is supergrace. There is no substitute. You only get to supergrace one way: positive volition on a daily basis. They could have entered the land of Canaan by getting into supergrace, but they chose not to do that.

For any believer, the choice is between advancing to supergrace or retrogressing to reversionism. In reversionism, you will never be happy again.

Here is the big choice now. God has to give some tests for the utilization of Bible doctrine. By the time the Jews reach this test have already undergone tests and have had a lot of doctrine, and all this test is for is to apply doctrine from the launching pad to “no water”. That’s all it is. They were there by the will of God. And they camped in Rephidim, and Rephidim means refreshments in the plural. They had come to a place to stop and have Bible class. But in the place of refreshment the people had no water. All they have to do is apply another water situation. They have just recently gone through a place where there was too much water. God moved it out of the way. Now there is no water and God can bring water for them to drink. If there is doctrine on the launching pad the battle is the Lord’s. And if there is doctrine on the launching pad that doctrine says the very character of God demands that I stay alive. It is up to God to provide. That’s grace.

They have already been where there was too much water, and God moved it out of the way. They are where they are based upon the commandment of the Lord. Now they don’t have enough water. God can handle no water and too much water.

“Have you complained about anything this week?”

Moses is their human authority; and their manners stink.

Exodus 17:2 Therefore the people quarreled with Moses and said, "Give us water to drink." And Moses said to them, "Why do you quarrel with me? Why do you test the LORD?" (ESV)

Verse 2 — “Wherefore the people did strive with Moses.” The verb is riyb (רִיב) [pronounced ree<sup>b</sup>], which means to complain. Complaining is a sign of reversionism. From this word comes a noun, meribah. They complained because there was no water and complaining is an insult to the character of God. Moses can’t provide water. God is the provider; Moses is the leader. And when they go to Moses in their sarcasm and say, “Give us water”, they have rejected God’s authority and they have rejected Moses. Moses is the human authority. They have rejected his authority, they have rejected God’s authority, and their manners stink. And Moses said to make the issue clear, “Why do you complain to me? Why do you tempt the Lord?” Tempt the Lord of what? To remove you. The Lord is tempted to remove reversionists immediately. He never succumbs to that temptation because of grace and because He cannot sin. They think that no water is the source of their danger. No water is not the source of their danger, it is reversionism in the soul that is their danger. The fact that there is no water and that water is necessary to sustain life is not the problem. The problem is no doctrine in the soul. And typical of reversionists they had their eyes on Moses. If they had their eyes on the Lord and were moving along they would respect Moses’ authority and they would go to the Lord from their own souls. But, having their eyes on people, this is the time to put Moses down. There is no water, there is no hope of water, and they are going to put Moses and the Lord down all at the same time.

When God sets up an authority, then that authority must be followed and obeyed. The ones who rejected Moses’ authority were the first to die the sin unto death in the desert. They started a revolution to destroy Moses and God destroyed them.

Not many wise and not many great have been called. This is for authority as well. There are not many people like Paul or Moses.

Saul was all wrong; and yet David said, "I will not slay the Lord's anointed."

Exodus 17:3 But the people thirsted there for water, and the people grumbled against Moses and said, "Why did you bring us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our livestock with thirst?" \(ESV\)

Verse 3 — "... the people murmured against Moses." Was Moses wrong here? No. But even if Moses had been wrong they are still wrong. When God sets up an authority it may be pitiful in your eyes but it is still God's authority. A reversionist always considers any authority as pitiful. He may go along with it so that he doesn't wind up in jail but he doesn't like the authority of the police or the judge, he doesn't like a lot of authority. Why? Because he is stuck on himself. He is having a great love affair with himself and there are no rivals. When a person doesn't accept the authority of others it is because he is so full of pride and arrogance that he only thinks of himself as an authority. And God must put these mad dogs down, and does. These mad dogs are the first ones to die under the sin unto death, the first ones to die in Israel. The ones who rejected authority went. They accused Moses of deliberately leading them to this spot so that he could wipe them all out. What ever gave them this idea? They were slaves to the details of life. Remember they were all wealthy. They superimposed their own low standards on Moses. Moses didn't lead them out their to rob them or kill them. Reversionism breeds a set of mental attitude sins that bring up this kind of stuff out of the sewers of their souls. They are jealous of Moses, bitter toward Moses. They are implacable and vindictive and so they are sitting around their tents having their rap session. They accused Moses, they maligned Moses, the slandered Moses. Moses was a supergrace believer and therefore a target. Why? Who criticizes the supergrace believer? The legalist — the son of the bond woman always persecutes the son of the free woman. That's Abraham, now we are dealing with Moses. Any believer in reversionism, no matter how great he has been in the past, is critical of a believer in supergrace or approaching supergrace. So reversionism and supergrace are divided and the supergrace crowd always are the targets for the reversionist. The reversionists always malign and judge and ridicule the supergrace crowd, or individuals.

Exodus 17:4 So Moses cried to the LORD, "What shall I do with this people? They are almost ready to stone me." \(ESV\)

Verse 4 — Moses didn't say a word to them. Notice, a supergrace believer doesn't try to justify himself to the people. He doesn't go out and try to explain himself to the people. All he does is go to the Lord about it in prayer.

Exodus 17:5 And the LORD said to Moses, "Pass on before the people, taking with you some of the elders of Israel, and take in your hand the staff with which you struck the Nile, and go. \(ESV\)

The elders were to stand with Moses; they are to be on the side of authority.

Verse 5 — God knew that Moses was personally a brave man, so he told him to go out and demonstrate it. This rod with which Moses “smote the river” actually refers to the principle of striking and getting water, striking and using it for different things. This rod represents divine power in human hands. It was the rod of judgement: Exodus 7:20. When the rod of judgement strikes the rock it will represent Christ being judged. The rod that he is to take out in front of them represents judgement, divine power in human hands.

Exodus 17:6 Behold, I will stand before you there on the rock at Horeb, and you shall strike the rock, and water shall come out of it, and the people will drink." And Moses did so, in the sight of the elders of Israel. (ESV)

Verse 6 — “the rock.” The Hebrew word for “rock” is necessary at this point — tsur. This is a sharp, jagged rock, and they have rocks in their hands, “You stand by a sharp, jagged rock.” The rocks in their hands are their maligning. The rocks that they have to stone him are to judge him. They want to kill him with those rocks. The rock Moses stands by represents judgement. It actually represents Christ, the Rock, being judged for us. Moses holds in his hand a rod which also represents judgement. He is told to strike the rock. (The striking of the rock is a picture of Christ the Rock bearing our sins} Strike it, and water will come out of that rock. And Moses did.

Exodus 17:7 And he called the name of the place Massah and Meribah, because of the quarreling of the people of Israel, and because they tested the LORD by saying, "Is the LORD among us or not?" (ESV)

Verse 7 — “And he called the name of the place Massah and Meribah.” Massah means testing; Meribah means complaining.

This particular incident is described in Psalm 95:8 — “Harden not your hearts” — The Hebrew has a verb, the hiphil imperfect of qasah. Qashah means to make stubborn or obdurate. We have with it the negative — “Do not harden” — the hiphil imperfect, and this is a jussive in the hiphil. The hiphil is the causative stem, it carries the same weight as our aorist subjunctive which means to harden — “as in the day of provocation” — Meribah; “as in the day of Massah” — temptation.

Psalm 95:8 do not harden your hearts, as at Meribah, as on the day at Massah in the wilderness,

Psalm 95:9 when your fathers put me to the test and put me to the proof, though they had seen my work.

Psalm 95:10 For forty years I loathed that generation and said, "They are a people who go astray in their heart, and they have not known my ways."

Psalm 95:11 Therefore I swore in my wrath, "They shall not enter my rest."

Heb 3:8 ...do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion, on the day of testing in the wilderness,... (ESV)

Hebrews 3:8 — “Harden” — sklhronw, present active subjunctive. The subjunctive carries the weight of an imperative. This is a prohibitive subjunctive with the negative mê. “Do not go on hardening your hearts as in the Meribah.”

“in the day” — the preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw]. It should be “on the day,” or “on the time” .It is a reference to the first Meribah incident of Exodus 17:1–7.

“of temptation” — at this point we face the genitive of peirasmoj which means testing for the purpose of good or evil. The Jews were tested to see if they had supergrace or reversionism; tested for the purpose of finding out if they were ready to go into Canaan. Supergrace believers can go in. Are you ready to go or not? The no water test was to determine the celebrityship of Jesus Christ as over against reversionism. Therefore, this passage should read so far, “Do not go on hardening your hearts, as in the reversionistic revolution of Meribah, on the day of testing in the desert.”

Principle of the Reversionistic Generation

1. Canaan is a type of the supergrace life.
2. The Exodus generation failed to enter Canaan because of reversionism.
3. Reversionism was manifest by the malfunction of faith-rest. The Jews could not claim the easy promises of faith rest, so they could not go into the land.
4. Reversionism cannot cope with either the charge of the mosquito or the charge of the elephant.
5. The function of our partnership with Christ today demands supergrace, depends on supergrace.
6. Therefore, to reach supergrace we must GAP it daily.
7. Then thrust of this passage is supergrace versus reversionism; blessing versus misery; prosperity versus the sin unto death; occupation with Christ versus pseudo-love fanaticism of the psychopathic personality.

4. Commentary on the Meribah revolution Hebrews 3:7–11

Previous doctrine reviewed from previous lesson.

The Doctrine of Revolution

1. The Word of God does not justify revolution — Romans 13:1–7; 1Peter 2:13,14; Numbers 16.
  - 1) The French and Russian revolutions were illegitimate.
  - 2) The American War for Independence was not a revolution. This was a war for independence. A fight for freedom and not an overthrow of the establishment.
  - 3) We are seeing a bloodless revolution in the election this year. An anti-establishment candidate to the core. One party is endorsing a total destruction of the laws of divine establishment. No interest in the man on the street; this is simply a power grab. Anyone who would vote for that man does not belong in this church.
2. Revolution involves the overthrow of the laws of establishment. It also involves lawless mobs which can neither think nor achieve anything compatible with divine institutions or the laws of divine establishment. A mob cannot think. A mob has a leader or leadership but it does not think for itself and there is always a power grab involved.
3. Revolution means apostasy and reversionism, therefore lack of or lack of the influence of Bible doctrine — Isaiah 1:3–5; 59:13.
4. Revolution is always anti-God — Isaiah 31:6.
5. Revolution is caused by a breakdown of the laws of divine institution in the right lobe. The laws of the divine institution are found in the frame of reference. In the memory centre they are part of the norms and standards of the conscience of the soul. They are located in the vocabulary and the categories of the soul, and the laws of divine institution are on the launching pad of the soul. Reversionism destroys these things. Revolution is caused by the failure of the right lobe, known as reversionism — Jeremiah 5:23. Therefore revolution is involved with emotional revolt, blackout of the soul, reversionism, and revolution itself is the practice of reverse process reversionism.
  - 1) Revolution destroys the souls of men; and they wear long hair.
  - 2) Law and order and authority are thrown away in revolution.
  - 3) God has set up laws. These are the laws of divine establishment.
  - 4) Laws of divine establishment in the military as well. Military requires the strictest discipline.
6. Revolution or revolt against authority always has a primary motivator, and apart from the lust pattern of the old sin nature jealousy is the prime motivator — Isaiah 11:13 cf. 1 King 12:19 and 2Chronicles 10:19.
7. The communication of Bible doctrine is designed to stop revolution — Ezekiel 2:3–10.

8. Heathenism, gypsyism, hippieism, is the result of revolution or the precursor of revolution. The gypsies and the hippies are not only anti-establishment but in that sense they have defied the very laws that protect the freedoms of the human race, and they usually do it from freedom. Gypsies think that they are free, but they are not and they seek to impose controls on others. Hippies are poorly dressed gypsies. So this type of gypsyism and heathenism is the result of revolution — Romans 1:19-26. The result of such revolution is human degeneration — Romans 1:27–32.
9. The principle of revolution is the function of reversionism in the field of approbation and power lust implemented by mental attitude sin clusters from jealousy, destroying the freedom, the rights, the privacy and the property of individuals. Hence, revolution is a Satanic device in the angelic conflict to establish Satan's cosmic kingdom and to superimpose his will over mankind.
10. Reversionism, therefore, is the basic cause of revolution and supergrace becomes the antidote — Hebrews 3:8,9

Heb 3:9 ...where your fathers put me to the test and saw my works for forty years. (ESV)

Verse 9 — begins with an adverb, ο(υ, and it means “in what place” or “where.” It does not mean “When.”

“your fathers” — nominative plural of patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR]. This is addressed to Jews of the southern kingdom of Judah in AD 67. “Your fathers” refers to people in the same nationality. It refers, therefore, to historical background of a nation. The very phrase, “Where your fathers,” is a biblical reminder that there are many lessons to be learned from our own history. Every nation has a history. Every nation has a period of prosperity. This period of prosperity is based on the laws of establishment. Every nation loses its prosperity and loses its freedoms by anti-establishment, by revolution. Therefore people can learn even historically from their own nation provided that history is not distorted by liberalism. Liberalism is always forerunner of revolution. First there is theological liberalism, then comes political liberalism, and then comes the destruction of the nation through revolution. It can be a mental revolution, or it can be a revolution of violence. Generally, both are involved.

Great Britain is an excellent example of this.

First, there is theological liberalism, then political liberalism; and this destroys a nation. Look at one of our candidates for president for how far liberalism takes us.

The Jews of the Exodus generation had freedom based upon their escape for Egypt.

The south in the time of the Civil War was establishment thinking.

Freedom to Blacks, is freedom to go out and steal and riot. They distort and destroy our freedom. We have not been shot at yet or raped because of we still have guns. There is a great turmoil of revolution. This is a shame because there are wonderful Blacks who respond to Bible doctrine. They don't like it any more than we do. It is here, violence. Only the grace of God has held this back.

Bob has ancestors going back to the French and Indian War, and he has a record from all of his ancestors who have fought in every war of the United States. Good men go out and die and parasites multiply and have more parasites. A country of parasites will destroy themselves. Now, you bleeding hearts, you masticate that.

“tempted” — aorist active indicative of peirazō (πειράζω) [pronounced pi-RAD-zoh]. Peirazō (πειράζω) [pronounced pi-RAD-zoh] means to test for the purpose of determining good or evil in an individual or in a group of individual. This is an ingressive aorist. The ingressive aorist is used here to indicate that the reversionistic Jews began to tempt God at the first Meribah. They tempted God to remove them by the sin unto death, they tempted God with reversionism. God must discipline reversionism. The Jews could not enter the land in a state of reversionism, the water tests were used to demonstrate that. The Jews could not enter the land, as illustrated one year from Meribah in Kadesh Barnea. The Jews could not enter the land in a state of reversionism, the water tests of Israel were used to demonstrate that fact. God was tempted to destroy them when it began at Meribah, but the water tests will continue. There will be water tests.

Ingressive, culminative, gnomic, and .

Some of These Water Tests Include:

1. Too much water: the Red Sea — Exodus 14. An impossible barrier of water. God provided in grace. That should have told them something.
2. No water at Shur— Exodus 15:22.
3. The wrong water undrinkable— Exodus 15:23.
4. Plenty of water at Elim — Exodus 15:27.
5. No water at Sin — Exodus 17. The indicative mood is the reality of Jewish reversionism testing God's grace. Not content with the doctrine, the promises, the Jews of the Exodus generation in their reversionism made great demands upon God. They demanded things from God when they already had things from God.

4 water tests + this test at Meribah.

We should notice that there is a difference between peirazō (πειράζω) [pronounced pi-RAD-zoh], the verb which means to test for the good or evil, to test and see what is there, and the verb dokimazw which means to test to prove that someone has passed the test. We also have noun that goes with the verb, a cognate: dokimoj. The word “me” is not found in the original manuscript. It should read “in which place [Meribah]” .They have already had every water test possible. Now at the end of four water tests they had the Meribah test, and they flunked it.

“In which place [Meribah] your fathers began testing to determine good or evil by means of testing to approve God if God passed the test.” That is what is meant by “proved me” which is not correctly translated. The word “proved” is a prepositional phrase. We have en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of dokimoj — “by means of testing” .Dokimoj is testing for approval in contrast to peirazō (πειράζω) [pronounced pi-RAD-zoh] which is testing to see if there is good or bad.

First Summary

1. The reversionistic believer ignores grace because he has no capacity for grace.
2. Capacity for grace cannot be acquired or assimilated through any human activity in life. Only through doctrine in the soul. Bible doctrine inculcation must move towards supergrace. That is the thrust of the book of Hebrews, it is one thing to be married and it is quite another to have no capacity for it. The souls of the people in this country have shriveled.
3. Reversionism comes from negative volition toward Bible doctrine which is the only hope for capacity for grace and loving God.
4. The reversionistic has no capacity to appreciate the source of grace or grace. Our salvation is the source of grace.
5. However, God continues to be faithful even though the reversionist is unfaithful.
6. Reverse process reversionism causes the believer to become fanatical in the objects that they substitute for God. Today in 2020, this negative volition is replaced by politics.
7. Only doctrine in the soul makes Jesus Christ the only celebrity of the universal priesthood of the Church Age.
8. The celebrityship of Jesus Christ is only possible through the consistent inhale of Bible doctrine and the function of gap. This will lead to the supergrace life, which is analogous the entering into Canaan.

1Cor. 10:1–12 covers this. Whoops, put this in the wrong place....

Summary

1. When believers begin to test God to see if God is good or evil they are in a state of reversionism. You don't think that God lives up to His reputation.
2. If God does what they want Him to do they will approve God, but if not they will disapprove Him. We are God's creatures; so He may test us; we do not get to test Him.
3. The Jews of the Exodus generation, the Jews of the Hebrews generation, were in the status of reverse process reversionism.
4. This is the believer who is never content with doctrine but must have some extra natural or ecstatic experience, or God must somehow bribe him with something. He wants more than he is getting from God.
5. The reversionistic tendency began at Meribah, Exodus 17, and continued for forty years, finally ending at second Meribah in Numbers chapter twenty. Both Meribahs are described in Psalm 95 which is being quoted.
6. Therefore they did not enter into Canaan, which is a type of supergrace.

“and saw” — aorist active indicative of horaô (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh]. Horaô (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh] means to have a panoramic view of something. The aorist tense here is culminative. The culminative aorist looks at the forty years during which every day God manifests His grace. Now they are looking back at it. The active voice: the reversionistic Jews saw God’s grace and never responded to it. The indicative mood is the reality of seeing the grace of God, the work of God, for forty years, being indifferent to it and therefore dying the sin unto death which is maximum divine discipline.

“my works” — the accusative plural of the noun ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon]. Ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon] in the plural means production — “my production.” Production is the grace of God. In grace God does the working. God provided every need of the Exodus generation in eternity past.

They had no capacity to love God; they had no capacity for anything. They did not even get along with one another; and they did not respond fully to the authority of Moses.

Reversionism is a constant breakdown of the faith-rest technique. God had to remove the generation age 20 and older at the exodus.

Hebrews 3:9 ...in which place (Meribah) your reversionistic fathers (the Exodus generation) began testing (to determine good of evil) in Him (God) by means of approving Him after testing. And they had a panoramic vision of my grace for 40 years. R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:9 ...in which place (Meribah) your reversionistic fathers (the Exodus generation) began testing God to determine good or evil in Him by means of approving God after testing, if He should pass the test according to the reversionist (no one can pass that test) and they had a panoramic view of My grace provision for 40 years. R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. The reversionistic believer ignores grace because he has no capacity for grace.
2. Capacity for grace cannot be acquired or assimilated through any human function of life. Capacity for grace comes only from Bible doctrine in the soul. Bible doctrine inculcation must move to the point of supergrace.
3. Reversionism begins with negative volition toward Bible doctrine which is the only hope for capacity for grace and loving God.
4. The reversionistic believer, therefore, has no capacity to appreciate grace or the source of grace. The source of grace is Jesus Christ.
5. However, God continues to be faithful even though the reversionist is unfaithful.
6. Reverse process reversionism causes the believer to become fanatical in his pseudo love of objects he substitutes for God.
7. Only doctrine in the soul leads to capacity of love which makes Christ the only celebrity of the universal priesthood of the Church Age.

8. The celebrityship of Jesus Christ is only possible through the consistent inhale of Bible doctrine through the function of GAP. This must inevitably lead, if it is consistent, to the supergrace life which is analogous to the land of Canaan.
9. Reversionism has rejected doctrine, therefore reversionists have no capacity for grace, no appreciation of divine provision and faithfulness. This same concept is covered in 1 Corinthians 10:1–12.

So in principle we have this: Reversionism cannot occupy the land in the day of the Exodus generation because they have no capacity in their souls to appreciate the land. The land was a land of prosperity under an agricultural economy — “a land flowing with milk and honey”, an idiom for prosperity. You have to have capacity for prosperity. The Exodus generation had no soul capacity. And what is the analogy and why is this recorded in the Word today? Because believers have no capacity for their priesthood. Capacity comes from Bible doctrine in the soul and if the soul is shrivelled up in neglect and rejection of doctrine, and you are in reversionism, then you have no capacity for the thing that God has given you. Bible doctrine is the only way that you will ever have compatibility with your priesthood.

The Exodus generation has no capacity; and believers today have no capacity for what God has given us. Children have no capacity for adult things in life. They must grow up first. Same principle as we have here. Bible doctrine is the only way that we will have compatibility with the priesthood.

Heb 3:10 Therefore I was provoked with that generation, and said, 'They always go astray in their heart; they have not known my ways.' (ESV)

Verse 10 — the divine reaction. “Wherefore” — the inferential conjunction dio, a compound which comes from dia plus the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]. It should be translated, “For this reason,” or “Because of which.” “Because of which reversionism.”

“I was grieved” — aorist active indicative of prosoxqizw. The word means to be angry to the point of being provoked, to be disgusted to the point of provocation. It is an anthropopathism for divine displeasure. In other words, God walked another mile and another mile in grace and finally became disgusted. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist. God put up with guff for a long time before He disciplined. That’s grace. But grace doesn’t mean that it is always going to be the same. There comes a time when provocation has arrived. “Because of which reversionism I was disgusted to the point of provocation with that generation.”

There is a point at which God says, best we just see each other in eternity, and you are gone from this world. Things will be better there. God just finally wiped them out.

“that generation” — dative of indirect object and disadvantage.

Hebrews 3:10a ...because of which reversionism I was disgusted to the point of provocation with that generation.... R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

That Generation

1. Reversionism was the spiritual malady of the Exodus generation. They did not have to work; they just had to sit around and listen to their tape recorders.
2. Liberated by God's grace from slavery they failed to appreciate grace provision because they were negative toward doctrine.
3. Their needs were provided in grace for forty years. Their food was provided, their money was provided, their safety and security was provided. They did not have to work for 40 years; they could listen to Bible doctrine instead.
4. Not once did they appreciate what God had provided. They had no capacity.
5. They did not know how to use their freedom, they lacked capacity for freedom. They had no capacity for grace.
6. Therefore in this verse we have the anthropopathism of disgust to express the divine reaction to negative volition

It should be noted that there were some exceptions: Moses, Moses' second wife, Caleb, and Joshua are at least four recorded exceptions.

“and said” — aorist active indicative of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. This légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] is a gnomic aorist for stating an absolute.

“They do always err” — the word “err” means to wander. It is the verb planaō (πλανάω) [pronounced plahn-AH-oh]. This means to wander, to go astray, to be deceived to be seduced in the passive voice. They were seduced away from doctrine, they were deceived in their souls by reversionism, and it all came about because they wandered from doctrine — negative volition toward Bible doctrine. The present tense is linear aktionsart for the function of reverse process reversionism. Negative volition toward doctrine causes all of these things. The passive voice: they received these things as a result of negative volition toward doctrine. The indicative mood is the reality of reversionism in their souls. They were deluded, deceived and seduced.

They are always being deluded, deceived, seduced and misled.

No way to complete this verse this morning.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #24

10/15/1972 Hebrews 3:10b-12 Doctrine of Sabbaths or rests; Canaan = supergrace life the first 9 or 10 verses read.

“They always go astray” some did not function constantly under deceit, but they only functioned at certain times. Iterative present. Negative volition toward Bible doctrine led to this condition. They were constantly indifferent. They carried away a huge amount of wealth. What you really are is what you are in your soul. They had their eyes upon freedom but not upon the source of freedom. We face a similar circumstance in our nation today. The eternal source of freedom are the laws of divine establishment.

A movie from last night; the principle that men fight and die. Hippies only look at the freedom, but not at the source. A private complained that the army was totalitarian and it bothered him.

They do always wander, there are deceived, they are seduced. Indicative mood is the mood of reality. This delusion takes place in the heart. When the right lobe has control of the soul, the man is manly; but when emotion takes over, then everything falls apart. The key to everything is what is in the heart. Plenaô.

Nothing is permanent. Things come and things go. But God is always there. So our occupation needs to be with the source and not with the gift.

“in the heart” — the heart refers to the right lobe, the real you: frame of reference, memory centre, vocabulary, categories, norms and standards, and the launching pad. That is where they were deceived, the mentality of the soul.

“they have not known my ways” — aorist active indicative of the verb ginskô (γινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh] which means to know because of doctrinal instruction in this passage. This is a culminative aorist. They have been deluded over a period of time. It is possible to be saved and to be saved for a long time and not understand how God operates. The negative here is very strong. The active voice means that the individual in reversionism produces the action. The accusative plural of hodos (ὁδός, οὐ, ἡ) [pronounced ho-DOSS] refers to what God is like. There is the source. The accusative plural indicates that God has many ways of blessing you. Many facets of God’s grace exist. The word “way,” hodos (ὁδός, οὐ, ἡ) [pronounced ho-DOSS], originally meant a road or a course of action, but it also means a system of doctrine which explains the road or the highway or the course of action. It was used for teaching in the most comprehensive sense of the word. It was also used for doctrines as a specific system, whether it was in philosophy or whether in the truth. Here it refers to Bible doctrine. “They have not learned my ways through a system of doctrine” .

Hebrews 3:10 “Because of which reversionism I was disgusted with that generation, and said, They are always being deluded in the right lobe; and they have not learned My ways [systems of doctrine].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. The divine indictment of believers in phase two is always related to their ignorance of Bible doctrine from which all evils of phase two originate. When you fail to relate the source of grace with the benefits of grace, you’ve had it. Doctrine in the soul is the missing link.
2. The indictment does not stress the works or production, as is the modern tendency of apostasy, but the ignorance of doctrine.

- a. You have been brainwashed if you think that there are things that you should have done for God. It is all about Bible doctrine in the soul.
- b. When God indicts you, He does not mention your failures. He says you are stupid, ignorant, dumb butts.
3. Because of this, believers of any generation are under perpetual divine discipline terminating with the sin unto death. Maximum divine discipline for any believer.
4. This anticipates the next verse.
5. Remember, the land of Canaan is not a picture of heaven. The land of Canaan is analogous to the supergrace life with its capacities — capacity for freedom, capacity for life, capacity for love, capacity for happiness, capacity for grace.
6. The Exodus generation was in reversionism, therefore they did not enter into the supergrace life or its capacities.
7. Reversionism has no capacity, therefore reversionism cannot occupy the land.

Hebrews 3:10 “Because of which reversionism I was disgusted with that generation, and said, They are always being deluded in the right lobe; and they have not learned My ways [systems of doctrine].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Heb 3:11 As I swore in my wrath, 'They shall not enter my rest.'" (ESV)

Verse 11 — “So” is a comparative particle indicating the manner in which something proceeds — Hôs (ὥς), and adverb which is often used as a conjunction. Hôs (ὥς) [pronounced hohç] is actually a correlative adverb and should be translated here “In keeping with the facts just enucleated.”

“I swear” — aorist active indicative of omnuô (ὀμνύω) [pronounced om-NOO-oh] which means to make a solemn oath, the most serious, the most solemn oath that one can make. The aorist tense is a gnomic aorist. This is an absolute fact. That generation would not enter the land. The active voice: God produces the action of making a solemn oath. The indicative mood is the reality of God’s solemn oath of discipline to reversionistic believers of the Exodus generation, to reversionistic believers of any generation.

Eiserchomai is entering into

“in my wrath” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of orgê (ὀργή) [pronounced ohr-GAY]. Orgê (ὀργή) [pronounced ohr-GAY] is used for indignation. It is used here as an anthropopathism to express in human language the basis of God’s discipline.

Omnuô (ὀμνύω) [pronounced om-NOO-oh] always has an elliptical oath, and we have now the elliptical oath. The elliptical oath is a Greek idiom in which the one who takes the oath takes it in his own name. Literally then, we should have first, “I am not God if.” This is the solemn oath. God is taking the oath and He is saying “I am not God if.”

“if” introduces a first class condition and the protasis of the solemn oath — “they shall enter, future active indicative of eiserchomai (εἰσέρχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahee], which means to enter into something so as to take full possession of it. The analogy is to enter into supergrace with all of the capacities. And of course they failed because of reversionism.

“my rest” — this is the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis]. Katapausisj is a very interesting word for rest, it means a state of complete settled rest, a state of inner and complete happiness and tranquillity. It is used here for Canaan which is a type of the believer in the supergrace life.

Heb. 3:11 “In keeping with the facts, I promise with a solemn oath in my disgust, My name is not God if they shall enter into my rest.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This same discipline of keeping the Exodus generation out of the land is expressed in Jude 5 and in 1Corinthians 10:5.

The Doctrine of Rest or Sabbaths

1. Salvation is described in terms of rest — Matthew 11:28, the rest of eternal life.
2. The land of Canaan is a type of the supergrace life and in this context supergrace is manifest by faith-rest. The rest of Canaan in Hebrews 3:11 is the supergrace life characterized by maximum use of faith-rest with doctrine.
3. We have a third kind of rest, the Sabbath rest of Genesis 2:2,3. The Hebrew verb for this Sabbath rest is shabath, which means to rest, to relax, to have tranquillity. On the seventh day of the earth’s restoration we have everything provided for man and God rested. God rested in the sense that there was absolutely nothing else to be provided for man, rest in the sense of the total provision of grace. That is the concept of the Sabbath rest of God in Genesis 2:2,3 — it is a memorial to the grace of God. Under grace God always provides everything.
4. The fourth Sabbath is the Sabbath of Israel — Exodus 20:8–11; Deuteronomy 5:12–15. This was every Saturday. It came around once a week and it was the last day of the week. The Jews were permitted to work for six days but on the seventh day they had to stop all work. The very change of pace was not only beneficial to them physically and even mentally but it had ultimate benefit in the spiritual realm because it was a reminder of grace. The fact that they had to stop work at the end of every week was a reminder that they could do nothing for salvation, they could do nothing for blessing. It is the provision of God.
5. The Sabbatical year of Israel. This was the big test of supergrace — Exodus 23:10,11; Leviticus 25:3,4; 26:33–37. Every seven years the Jews were supposed to stop work, and if they had been functioning properly under supergrace then this was really a year’s vacation, they didn’t have to work. They lived without work and without it being detrimental to them. This was a great test of whether they had entered into supergrace or not. They had to depend for one year on God’s provision. The failure of the Jews to observe the Sabbatical year was the basis for determining how long they would stay out under the fifth cycle of discipline. From the Exodus down to the first administration of the fifth cycle of discipline to the southern kingdom was 490 years. In that time they had not observed one Sabbatical year. In 490 years they had accumulated seven Sabbatical years, so God in His great sense of humour said to them in 586 BC, “You missed your Sabbatical years, I’ll give them all to you now in slavery.” That is why the first administration of the fifth cycle of discipline was seventy years. This is all taught in the sequence of verses in 2Chronicles 36:20,21 cf. Daniel 9:2; Jeremiah 25:11,12; 29:10.

- a. Some people cannot survive a year without working; it can cause them great problems, psychologically.
  - b. The Jews had to depend upon God for one year for provision. How long would they stay out under the fifth cycle of discipline.
6. There is a moment-by-moment Sabbath for the Church Age. In the Church Age we do not have a Saturday Sabbath. That didn’t work too well, the Jews didn’t learn anything from it. So in the Church Age, since every believer is a priest, God beefed it up. He gave us a moment-by-moment Sabbath, the faith-rest technique. This is also a principle by which the believer enters into the supergrace life. So the moment-by-moment Sabbath or the faith-rest technique is the growing stage, and then the annual Sabbath (taking a Sabbatical year) is supergrace.
7. Illustrations of the moment-by-moment Sabbath or the dynamics of faith-rest.
- a. a) Abraham in Romans 4:17–21;
  - b. b) Moses at the Red Sea — Exodus 14:10–14;
  - c. c) The bones of Joseph in Hebrews 11:22;
  - d. d) Caleb and the giants — Numbers 13 and 14 cf. Joshua 14:6–14; 15:14; Judges 1:20.

So it is inevitable that the daily function of GAP, the daily function of the faith-rest, will eventuate in the supergrace life which is your spiritual Sabbatical year.

Heb 3:12 Take care, brothers, lest there be in any of you an evil, unbelieving heart, leading you to fall away from the living God. (ESV)

Verse 12 — the warning against reversionism. “Take heed” — present active imperative of blepô (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh]. Blepô (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh] means to look. “Look out” or “Beware” here. The present tense means be constantly alert. Active voice: every believer is a priest and therefore has the basis for alertness. The imperative mood is a command to alertness, a command based upon Bible doctrine in the right lobe. The daily function of GAP is the basis for alertness.

“brethren” — adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS] refers to members of the family of God; “lest” — the Greek introduces here a negative purpose clause mh pote plus eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] — “that there not be.”

“in any of you” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of an indefinite relative pronoun, tís (τις) [pronounced tihç] — “inside anyone of you.” Here is the warning. The Exodus generation is the illustration. This was a warning first given by interpretation to the Jewish believers of Jerusalem in 67 AD, three years before their nation went down. Now it comes to us. Therefore we as believers ought to become alert, become aware of the importance of what is important, namely Bible doctrine.

“an evil heart” — the word “evil” here, ponhroj, means malignant, evil, or worthless. What is an evil heart? It is a heart minus doctrine, it is the heart of a believer in reversionism, the heart being the right lobe.

“of unbelief” — unbelief here is the ablative of means, a very strong noun, a)pistia. It is, however, not the ablative of source but the ablative of means. Therefore it becomes a very unusual expression. As the ablative of means the source and the origin of unbelief, or the breakdown of faith-rest, is emphasized. And reversionism is the source of unbelief. Reversionism is characterized by a breakdown of the faith-rest technique — Colossians 2:6; 2Corinthians 5:7; Hebrews 11:6. This is not a rejection of Christ as Savior here. It is tantamount to a rejection of Bible doctrine leading to reversionism. It is the failure of the believer under reversionism to claim either promises or doctrine. Hence, reversionism is further described as withdrawal from God, revolt against God, on the part of the believer. God’s promise was the land of Canaan, analogous to the supergrace life, and the Exodus generation is in reversionism and could not claim either the promise or the doctrines as they went along, therefore they were incapable of entering the land. They had no capacity.

Beware, members of the family of God...a malignant heart of unbelief.

“in departing” — the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental case of an aorist active participle a)fisthmi, and it should be translated “by revolting.” We have the instrumental case here and it should be “by revolting against the living God.” Reversionism is a revolt against God on the part of the believer.

“from the living God” — the word “living” is the present active participle of zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] — “always living God” .Just as reversionism kept the Exodus generation out of the land of Canaan, so reversionism keeps the believer from erecting the ECS and entering into the supergrace life. Just as reversionism put the Exodus generation under the sin unto death, so today the believer is placed under the sin unto death by reversionism.

“always living God.” We do not have the definite article, its absence calls attention to the character of God. The “always living God” means that He is still waiting around to bless you. God wants to give you great things.

Doctrine of reversionism next time.

1972 Hebrews 3:12

Lesson #25

25 11/12/1972 (A month later) Hebrews 3:12 Capacity to receive from God

It is possible that there are no notes for this lesson? This is not included in the notes on Hebrews.

We began v. 12 last time, but did not complete it.

Apparently a long time since Hebrews has been covered. Jesus Christ is the only celebrity in the Christian life. No believer functions fully or utilizes fully until they have entered into the supergrace life. You need all those capacities. It all takes time and lies within the supergrace life. People are supergrace heroes based upon the doctrine in their souls. Moses lived before the completed canon. Always, it is doctrine in the soul. There were other ways of learning it. Angels and prophets both taught man. God, angels and human beings taught people. Moses was a supergrace hero, based upon the doctrine in his soul. His life fulfilled the very purpose for which God designed for him in time.

Grace was always in view, but the Exodus generation did not grab onto it. God is tapping His foot, waiting to provide for us blessing and success, but we refuse it because we lack the capacity for it. Reversionism keeps us from the great happiness that we can have in Christ. God did not save us so that we could have a bad life and be unhappy all of the time. You cannot even dream up what God has for you. What comes first, capacity or prosperity? Capacity comes first. God has unlimited resources and the perfect character to give. God is looking for men of great capacity. Paul was a great man of doctrine. Bob has heard from Paul's critics in the Bible and about his looks, but God gave him a great amount of doctrine.

As believers, we are in full-time Christian service just like Paul and Moses. God has been waiting for 1900 years for a man with great doctrine so that God can drop a million or billion dollars onto his lap. God just needs to find the capacity.

RM/RW can fight like crazy, if they lack Bible doctrine. You need to have capacity. God has yet to find a military leader who can be blessed with military victories. God is looking for military types and for statesmen and for businessmen. Closest thing that we ever got was Teddy Roosevelt. God looks for men and women in every area of life. There is nothing that is more important than capacity. Some of you don't want this kind of teaching and you are not going to change Bob. No one asks you for money or to do something; and you have your privacy at Berachah. Find some other church because you are stupid and superficial.

people have come to Bob about increasing the size of the auditorium; and he wants to get rid of a lot of people here. One guy smokes at Berachah, and rubs it onto the floor. Get in some church where you can smoke all over the place. You do not have the manner or the poise or anything. Bob does not care whether or not we smoke; but not in the building. Atrocious smell. We have a lot of deadwood. I don't know why some of you come. It is Bible teaching all of the way all of the time.

Heb. 3:12 Beware, members of the family of God, that there not be in any one of you a malignant [worthless, evil] heart of unbelief by revolting from the always living God,... R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

People were saved in the hundreds of thousands in a Baptist Sunday school. They went out and got into some form of carnality. At some later time, some campus organization said, "You must ask Jesus into your heart" or "you must make Jesus Lord." As a result, they think that this is where they were saved.

Some never got rebound, so they could not gap it. A reversionist first must experience some growth. He is a spiritual moron who never grew; the reversionist grew and then reverted.

Obadiah is a reversionist; Ahab is a spiritual moron.

"Keep on being alert, members of the family of God..."

You do not mark time in place in the spiritual life. You never stay in the same place. You must be alert always and you must never neglect spiritual food for even a day.

Evil is a status of the soul; it refers to a malignant soul, a soul filled with mental attitude sins. A soul filled with the practice of sins of the tongue. Gossip, maligning, judging. The real evil is the neglect of Bible doctrine. Sooner or later, there will develop a pattern in your life.

Quintessence of human pride to say, "The devil is after me." A frantic search for happiness is not the way to happiness. There is no end to what God can give us. God is rich. He is not poor; and He is not dead. He is rich and alive; but the trouble is, He is also smart. You cannot con God. The only thing that God can do when we are out of line is the knock on the door, which is warning discipline.

This is strange to many of you, the fact that God wants you to be happy. We must have the ability to receive blessing.

It is not a part of the minister's job to counsel. What if they charged? Bob might charge $500/half hour.

Very unusual verse when it comes to the Greek. Ablative is used here. What is the source or origin of the heart? The lack of doctrine in the right lobe. Faith comes by hearing and hearing by the Word of God. Source is apistia. Lack of doctrine and lack of faith.

This passage is addressed to the believer. Adelphos refers to members of the family of God. He does not have maturity; he only has discipline. There is a lack of faith and lack of doctrine.

Gen X did not enter into Canaan because they lacked doctrine. Canaan is not heaven; it is entering into supergrace.

The desert-wilderness is a place of testing. No capacity for happiness, no capacity for blessing no capacity of any kind. Gen X was completely incapable of enjoying the land.

En + apistimi, which means, by means of revolting. This is a revolt against God. A person who has been positive to this point and he grows by faith in Bible doctrine.

The line that you cross is strong delusion. Someone did not hear the classes and had questions on James. Bob teaches and teaches, and this guy that he deserved a private lesson.

When a person grows up, they don't need baby milk anymore. Bob is not going to stop his ministry to catch you up, you are mistaken. You are whiny brats.

Confessing your faults to one another is the sin unto death.

The always living God means that God is still waiting around, wanting to give us great things. He has a fantastic capacity to give. He is frustrated trying to give to us because we are idiots and dumbbells. God wants to make us successful.

Bob was in Miami and they were having a convention. People were working pretty hard. About Wednesday, the convention was over. Bob rode the elevator with a guy on Thursday. "I was too busy before and now I can live it up." Bob knew what he had in mind. He had capacity to work hard and to play had.

Bob chewed on Bobby pretty hard at age 9, 10 and 11. Bob was preparing him to be a teen. He did not have to be watched like a hawk in his teens. You need to discipline your kids when they are young. Bob was preparing him to have capacity for life. So he could go to Mexico or drive the LA. He was being prepared to be able to do things on his own.

1972 Hebrews 3:13a

26 11/19/1972 Hebrews 3:13a Doctrines of revolution, reversionism, one day at a time

Heb 3:13 But exhort one another every day, as long as it is called "today," that none of you may be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. (ESV)

Verse 13 — "But" is an adversative conjunction. It sets up a contrast between the reversionistic believer in revolt with a malignant right lobe and the progressing believer through the daily function of GAP. Remember verse 12 — "Beware, members of the family of God, that there not be in any one of you a malignant heart of unbelief, by revolting from the always living God." There are two principles involved at the end of verse 12. One is revolt and the other is a form of revolt — spiritual revolt called reversionism.

This Doctrine of Revolution is covered here and in Lesson #28; but I have reproduced the doctrine only here. Additional material from that lesson is inserted here.

The Doctrine of Revolution

1. The Word of God does not justify revolution — Romans 13:1–7; 1Peter 2:13,14; Numbers 16.
  - a. History on the House of commons and of Nobles. A discussion of the United States revolution.
  - b. No elections; no representation in the House of Commons by the colonies. This became the basis of there war which took place.
  - c. Revolution was a misnomer. First struggle was to get representation in the House of Parliament. However, as time continued, that proved futile.
2. In the Biblical sense of the word revolution involves lawless mobs which can neither think nor achieve anything compatible with the laws of divine establishment.
3. Revolution means both apostasy and lack of Bible doctrine — Isaiah 1:3–5 59:13. In this sense reversionism is an apostasy and revolution.
4. The Bible teaches that revolution is anti-God — Isaiah 31:6.
5. Revolution is caused by failure of the right lobe which the Bible calls the heart — Jeremiah 5:23. Revolution is always involved in the soul and in the soul's right lobe before it becomes an overt system of violence for overthrowing the establishment. Therefore revolution is involved with emotional revolt of the soul as well as reversionism.
6. Jealousy is a motivator in revolution — Isaiah 11:13 cf 1Kings 12:19; 2Chronicles 10:19. Ephraim was motivated by jealousy towards the Southern Kingdom and that is how there was a revolution in the time of Solomon.
7. The communication of doctrine is designed to stop revolution — Ezekiel 2:3–10. However, that doctrine must be communicated on a basis of the principle of the local church today, a basis where there is freedom to accept or reject the doctrine. Rejection of doctrine always leads to some form of revolution. In the history of the human race wherever people have gone reversionistic revolution and violence is the order of the day.
8. Heathenism is the result of revolution — Romans 1:19-26. The result of such revolution is human degeneration — Romans 1:27–32.
9. The principle of revolution is found in the soul. Approbation and power lust seek to gain power by the destruction of freedom, rights, privacy and property of others. Therefore, revolution is a Satanic device in the angelic conflict to establish his cosmic kingdom and to superimpose his will over mankind. If you reject the freedom, privacy and freedom of others, you have revolution in your soul. Satan is a tyrant; he is a revolutionist.
10. Reversionism causes revolution. Supergrace is the antidote — Hebrews 3:8,9.

The Doctrine of Reversionism (Review)

1. Reversionism must be defined. It is a believer who starts out properly in the Christian life, taking in Bible doctrine and advancing. He constructs an ECS and then moves into the supergrace life. Somewhere along the line, if he goes negative toward Bible doctrine, he begins to retrogress.

- 1) The unbeliever starts out as an establishment person. He recognizes authority and so on. But he goes from this to reversionism. No nation is destroyed under the fifth cycle of discipline.
- 2) First of all, there is scar tissue on the left bank of the soul, scar tissue on the right bank of the soul, emotional revolt, the blackout of the soul, the practice of reverse process reversionism. Remember, a reversionist is a person who loses what he has. He is not the same as a spiritual moron who never took in doctrine. So by definition reversionism where the believer is concerned refers to a believer who constructed partially or completely an ECS and then went negative toward doctrine and then into apostasy. For the unbeliever we have a different situation. He is a person who followed the laws of establishment, but he goes from that down to reversionism. So the unbeliever can also enter into reversionism. The result is a reversionistic nation. No nation is ever destroyed under the fifth cycle of discipline without first of all passing through one generation at least of reversionism.
2. The mechanics of reversionism. The principle: 1Corinthians 10:12. The concept of mechanics: Romans 6:16–23. The believer goes negative toward doctrine; the unbeliever goes negative toward the laws of establishment.
3. The illustrations of reversionism.
  - 1) The Exodus generation — Psalm 77; Exodus 17:3.
  - 2) The generation of Jeremiah — Jeremiah chapters 42–44.
  - 3) In the area of the Church Age one or two stand out. The Corinthian church — 1Corinthians chapters 10 and 11.
  - 4) Also the church of Laodicea — Revelation chapter 3.
4. The principle of reversionism is found in Galatians 5:4, which does not say falling from grace as such but literally translated says, “You reversionists have become null and void, useless, powerless, unprofitable, non-productive, from the ultimate source of the Christ. Whosoever are being vindicated by means of the law, you have drifted off course from grace.” To drift off course from grace describes the principle of reversionism.
5. In reversionism the believer uses mental attitude sins to perpetuate his apostasy — Hebrews 12:15.
6. There are certain Biblical descriptions of reversionism in the Bible.
  - 1) Galatians 5:4 — drifting off course from grace.
  - 2) No one failing from the ultimate source of the grace of God — Hebrews 2:15.
  - 3) Uncircumcised of heart — Jeremiah 9:25, 26.
  - 4) The tortured soul — 2Peter 2:7,8.
  - 5) The unstable soul of 2Peter 2:14.
  - 6) The lukewarm believer of Revelation 3:15,16. Excellent description because the lukewarm water first begins as being hot.
  - 7) The enemy of the cross — Philippians 3:18.
  - 8) Leaving your first love — Revelation 2:4
  - 9) Fallen — Revelation 2:5.

7. Recipients of Hebrews involved in reversionism are described in Hebrews 5:11–14.
8. Reversion recovery is impossible apart from the daily function of GAP in the field of basic doctrine — Hebrews 6:1–3; Revelation 3:19,20.
9. Reversion recovery is impossible so long as one continues to practice the things that make them negative to doctrine — Hebrews 6:4–6; 2Corinthians 12:20,21.
10. Reversionism produces national disintegration — Romans 1:29-32.
11. Reversionism intensifies suffering — Psalm 77.
12. We have a principle under the practice of reversionism called reverse process reversionism. This is the abnormal practice of reversionism.
  - 1) Normally a believer under category #1 love loves Jesus Christ but he accepts an inconsequential person or an idol as a substitute — like in the days of Jeremiah, Baal was the substitute. We have some illustrations of this: Jeremiah 8:9-20; Revelation 3:14–21; 2:4,5, 14,15.
  - 2) Not every male in Berachah can be trusted.
  - 3) In category #3, friendship: You have true friends and false friends. Under reversionism you are going to run with your false friends.
13. Reversionism leads to psychosis — 2Peter 2:15–19. In reversionism and the practice of reverse process reversionism, first of all the believer becomes psychopathic, and then he becomes neurotic or psychotic. Most believers lose their common sense, discernment and their sense of humour. This is illustrated by Baalim in 2Peter 2:15–18.
14. There are categories of reversionism.
  - 1) Phallic reversionism — 2Corinthians 12:21; Ephesians 4:19; 5:5; Colossians 3:5; Revelation 2:14, 20–23.
  - 2) Ritual reversionism. This is a legalistic type — Hebrews 5:11ff.
  - 3) Monetary reversionism — James 4:13,14; 5:1–6; Revelation 3:14–20.
  - 4) Drug addiction type of reversionism — Galatians 5:20 (farmakeia — drug addiction). You can destroy your mentality with drugs and be unable to take in Bible doctrine. Marijuana is harmful. Some of you have sold your souls. Your body was just thrown in. You get beyond a certain point, and you have had it.
  - 5) Anti-establishment reversionism — Romans 1. This destroys a nation.
  - 6) Mental attitude reversionism — James 4. They include jealousy, hatred and bitterness.
  - 7) Verbal reversionism — James 5:9,12.
  - 8) Mental illness reversionism which results from many of these things. Sometimes there is only a treatment by prescription drugs. That brings you back to zero; it does not cure you. In psychotic reversionism, you go to a doctor because you have a mental illness. There are psychos around Berachah and they need treatment. Berachah Church cannot teach Bible doctrine to psychos. Psychos cannot take it in. We cannot undo years of negative volition.

15. Reversionism destroys supergrace living. Just as reversionism kept the Exodus generation out of the land of Canaan, so reversionism keeps the believer from the ECS, the supergrace life, and all the happiness involved. #16?

A pastor is not in the business of making friends. A lot of you don't like it when Bob isn't nice and they bring in psychos or similar. GAP operates from zero up; it does not start at sub-zero.

You might be a believer, and you go negative for a long long time; and suddenly your world falls apart. You cannot come in for a day or two and get mentally repaired. The Word of God was not designed for consistent negative volition; it is for consistent positive volition.

Bob teaches concentrated Bible doctrine during the holiday season. Why double up? This is the time when people decide to take a vacation from Bible doctrine. If you depend upon people and family gatherings for happiness...not going to happen.

Verse 13 — the prevention of reversionism. Notice again, we have the adversative “But.” That sets up a contrast between the reversionistic believer in revolt and the believer who functions daily under GAP.

“But exhort” — present active imperative of parakaleō (παρακαλέω) [pronounced pahr-ahk-ahl-EH-oh] — “But keep on encouraging.” The present tense is an iterative present. The iterative present is designed to take in doctrine on a consistent daily basis, but don't take it in every second of every day. The iterative present needs to be explained for the idiots, who think they take doctrine in every moment. Food requires seasoning to taste good; some good teaching has some seasoning. Parakaleō (παρακαλέω) [pronounced pahr-ahk-ahl-EH-oh] is a flavour-type verb, it means to encourage here, it means to encourage with flavour. You encourage people to eat by flavouring it up. The active voice: the believer produces the action. The imperative mood: this is a command to encourage one another to GAP it on a consistent basis.

Bob adds salt first, and then he tastes it. Believers have all of this stuff in their frame of reference; so they are getting the spice with their doctrine.

“one another” is the accusative plural from the reflexive pronoun ho autou. In the plural it becomes a reciprocal pronoun and that is the use of it here. This means it should be translated “each other.” But with this imperative it means “Keep on encouraging self and others.”

The next word gives us the frequency with which we should feed upon the Word. “Daily” is what we have in the English but that isn't what is in the Greek. We have a preposition, kata, plus the accusative of *e)kasto*j, plus the accusative of hēmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw] which means a twenty-four-hour day. It means here “on each successive day” . The believer must be encouraged every day to take in doctrine.

“while” is an adverb of place or time, achri/achris (ἄχρι/ἄχρις) [pronounced AHKH-ree/AHKH-rece], which means “as long as”. In other words, as long as you have a day you have some time during that day when you can take in Bible doctrine — “it is called” — present passive indicative of kaleō (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh]. The present tense is iterative. The passive voice: the subject receives one day at a time. The indicative mood: the reality of receiving from God by grace one day at a time.

Summary Hebrews 3:13

1. The emphasis of the adverb is that each day is a grace gift from God to the believer priest. God measures your life in days after salvation. You measure your life in years; God gives you one day at a time. Why? Because the emphasis changes. Once you accept Christ as Savior it is one day at a time and it is very difficult to switch your thinking. Bible doctrine must come in and help. You must switch from thinking in terms of anniversaries, in terms of birthdays, in terms of certain special days out of each year, and you must think in terms of every day is now a special day. “Keep on encouraging self and others on each successive day as long as, in whatever day you are located it is called This day.” That’s what it means. It is a conflict that Christians have, thinking in terms of a day rather than in terms of years.
2. The believer should take advantage of every day to take in doctrine on as much of a crash program as possible.
3. Opportunities to take in doctrine are not always available. Therefore, use each day to GAP it to the point of the ECS and supergrace.
4. Therefore, it should be translated “as long as, in whatever place you are located, it is called This day.”
5. The principle of GAPing it daily is both preventative of reversionism and progressive to supergrace. The basis for growing up and the basis for recovering from reversionism.

Reversionist thinks in terms of years; believer thinks in terms of days. We are trained from early childhood to think in terms of years. For the believer, we have to consider one day at a time.

The Doctrine of a Day at a Time begins in this lesson. I changed the numbering.

The Doctrine of One Day at a Time

1. The believer with an ECS and the supergrace life regards every day as unto the Lord — Romans 14:5,6
2. Only the believer has the grace provision to redeem time — Ephesians 5:15–18.
3. The capital for the purchase of time is called “greater grace” — James 4:6. This refers to the supergrace life. God the Holy Spirit provides the basis for supergrace through His gracious teaching ministry of doctrine in the function of GAP — John 14:26; 16:12–14; 1Corinthians 2:9-16; 1John 2:27.

4. Every day we live as a believer in phase two is a gracious gift from God. Time is God's gracious gift to us. The only time we possess to honour God is the number of days in phase two — all provided by grace — Psalm 90:12; James 4:13–15.
5. The fact that the believer lives another day on the earth is a sign of divine grace and faithfulness — Lamentations 3:22,23. The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases; his mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning; great is your faithfulness. "The LORD is my portion," says my soul, "therefore I will have confidence in him." (Lam. 3:22–24)
6. God has provided soul capital in the form of Bible doctrine to make each day count for His glory — James 1:21. The “engrafted word” is Bible doctrine in the soul of the believer through the daily function of GAP. So therefore the importance of acquiring doctrine on a daily basis — Jeremiah 15:16; Matthew 4:4.
7. Every day is a special day in phase two — John 11:9,10.
8. Each day in phase two the believer must avoid mental attitude sins which produce self-induced misery. Why? This is the worst category of the three categories of sin — Proverbs 27:1. Furthermore, mental attitude sins are motivators for all other kinds of sins. These mental attitude sins are the worst day by day enemies. So every day you must have a relaxed mental attitude — 1John 2:9-11.
9. Since there is no suffering in phase three — Revelation 21:4 — God can only demonstrate His grace provision for you now, in time. And it is one of God's objectives in the days you have left on this earth to show you something of great prosperity, to show you something of His provision in adversity, so that no matter what your circumstances may be at any time you can have great happiness through it all — 2Corinthians 12:7–10; Psalm 102:1–3

This doctrine was taught in this and the next lesson. It is put together here rather than split up.

1972 Hebrews 3:13–14

Lesson #27

27 12/10/1972 Hebrews 3:13–14 Doctrine of a day at a time; separation between believers; partnership with Christ

This is a month later. There may be some review of the previous lesson.

We have the reversionistic revolution by Gen X.

Most of you have not been here before and you have no idea what this vocabulary means. We cannot stop to explain each term as we come to it.

A skeleton holding a guide-on on the cover the Reversionism.

You are just occupying a pew that someone else wants. There is just a lot of dead wood in this church that could be moved out. This pulpit is designed to meet the needs of those positive toward doctrine. There are more people who have been here and are gone than are here this morning.

Some are pastor-baiters or think that you should get special treatment from the pastor. Bob hung up on 5 people since he got back from SF. Our objective is to study and learn the Word of God. We need to move to a place of self sufficiency.

Heb 3:13 But exhort one another every day, as long as it is called "today," that none of you may be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. (ESV)

No believer is standing still in the Christian life. You are moving forward or backward. There will be failures on both roads. Phase III is for both groups. Same basic thing, no more sorrow, no more tears, etc.

We have been studying King Saul and he suffered 30 years of divine discipline. David and Saul both took opposite roads. Moses, Joshua, Caleb and a few others took one road, and the rest of Gen X took the other road.

There is a gap between believers. The idea of loving all believers means a lack of mental attitude sins. You can have nothing in common with members of your own family. Bob has one sister with nothing in common; as different as two people can be. Bob hears from his sister about once every 10 years; he is about due. You cannot believe how different we are. Bob lives in North America and his sister in South America, which is a good arrangement.

Believers can be hopelessly divided. Free will explains all of this. Why do we have denominations and differences of opinion. This is because believers are on one road or the other. This divides them.

Moses did not have any children after the Exodus. He has 2 sons that he saw briefly. His sons were never involved in the nation of Israel. Their mother and sons went one way, and Moses went the other. Aaron's sons were those who communicated Bible doctrine. They taught the written Word of God; and this was taught in part by ritual.

Separation between David and Michel; David and Saul. The separation is all about Bible doctrine.

Positive believers encourage one another. There is no violation of the privacy of the priesthood. No violation of the privacy of the individual priesthood.

He autou. This is a repetition of material covered before. Encourage self and others. Never let a day go by without encouraging yourself and others daily. The days are successive, one at a time.

Time for the doctrine of A Day at a Time (which is back here).

The Doctrine of a Day at a Time (2)

1. We are brought up to think in terms of years. Rom. 14:5–6
2. I decided to go back and add to the previous iteration of this doctrine.

Heb. 3:13 “Keep on encouraging self and others on each successive day, as long as in whatever place you are located it is called This day...” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The summary is repeated. It is found here. Now we are with the notes recorded previously.

The rest of this verse is made up of a negative purpose clause which emphasizes the use of GAP in a preventative connotation. The daily function of GAP not only moves the believer priest into supergrace by way of the ECS but prevents the believer from falling into the malignancy of reversionism or the reversionistic revolt against God. Verse 12 gave us the reversionistic revolt against God.

The word “lest” introduces a negative purpose clause, hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus m (μή) [pronounced may] plus the subjunctive in the verb for a negative purpose clause — “any of you.” The word tis (τις) [pronounced tihç] plus ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus the pronoun su — “anyone from among you.” Then we have the verb in the aorist passive subjunctive, “be hardened” — sklhrunç, which means to be hardened. Here it means to become hardened. The aorist tense is a constative aorist. This gathers into one ball of wax every act of negative volition toward doctrine. The constative aorist takes in negative volition today, tomorrow, the next, the next, and so on. And when one is negative like that this is what happens: negative volition toward doctrine, scar tissue in the left bank of the soul, the accumulation of scar tissue opens up the mataiotês (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace] and through this vacuum comes Satanic doctrine into the heart or the right lobe of the believer’s soul. It comes into his frame of reference, clutters up his memory centre, enters into his vocabulary, works into his categories and destroys categorical teaching, changes his norms and standards to comply with Satan’s cosmic system, puts human viewpoint up on the launching pad which causes him to make a frantic search for happiness, putting scar tissue on the right bank of the soul. It leads to emotional revolt of the soul, the practice of reversionism and reverse process reversionism, and therefore it is destructive to the believer.

Sklêrunô (σκληρύνω) [pronounced sklay-ROO-no] means scar tissue. The constative aorist looks at the fact that every time you say no to Bible doctrine, every time you reject an opportunity to take in the Word of God, you in effect have hardened your right lobe. The passive voice: the result of scar tissue is received from negative volition toward doctrine or the daily neglect of doctrine in the part of the believer priest. Some people attend, and you are negative; but you are there in Berachah by some form of coercion. The subjunctive mood indicates the purpose clause, and with a negative it means a negative purpose clause. The purpose is “that you not become hardened.”

The word “deceitful” is the instrumental of a)path, and it doesn’t mean deceitful, it means “delusion.” This is the same concept as “strong delusion” in 2Thessalonians 2:11. It is a reference to reversionism. Delusion of the old sin nature is a part of reversionism, and under this delusion the Exodus generation can only be disciplined to the point of the sin unto death. They have no supergrace capacities to enter and enjoy the land. Hence, the function of the old sin nature under reversionism has deluded them and they will die in the desert over a period of forty years. Saul reigned for forty years, most of it in reversionism. The Exodus generation were free from slavery forty years, most of them in reversionism. Reversionism has no capacity to enjoy freedom. God graced out the Exodus generation and gave the crown to Saul, they had no capacity for these things.

Hebrews 3:13 “But keep on encouraging self and others on each successive day, as long as long as in whatever place you are located it is called This day; that not one from among you become hardened by the delusion from the sins.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

V. 14 is our partnership with God.

Heb 3:14 For we have come to share in Christ, if indeed we hold our original confidence firm to the end. (ESV)

Verse 14 — a statement of our supergrace partnership with God. The first word is a particle, “For” — the particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is a conjunction. It is used to express cause, inference, continuation or explanation. Here is the explanatory use of this particle. It is designed to relate the daily function of GAP in the previous verse with the objective of phase two: partnership with God in the supergrace life. We fulfil our priesthood, our ambassadorship and our partnership only as supergrace believers.

“For we are made” — perfect active indicative of ginomai, should be translated “we have become”; “partakers” — the nominative plural of metochos (μέτοχος) [pronounced MET-okh-oss], which means sharers or associates or partners — “of Christ” is the genitive singular plus the definite article. It is a genitive of relationship and also a genitive of possession. The possession of Christ is based upon eternal relationship with Christ. This should be translated, “For we have become partners of the Christ”

“if” — e)anper. This is a rather unusual compound particle. It is composed of the conjunction, eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN], which introduces a third class condition, plus the particle per. Per is an enclitic particle and it gives the concept of supposing. So we have “if supposing.”

We Will Summarize What Is Coming with this Compound Particle:

1. Eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN]per plus the subjunctive introduces a third class condition. The third class condition relates to the believer’s volition toward Bible doctrine and the supergrace life.
2. In other words, the effectiveness of our partnership with Christ depends on our entrance into the supergrace life.

3. While the believer is appointed a priest at the cross he does not function effectively as a priest and a partner with Christ apart from the possession of the ECS and the entrance into the supergrace life. Notice that “partnership” [metochos (μέτοχος) [pronounced MET-okh-oss]] is used for this reason: it is a synonym for the priesthood of the believer. Christ is the high priest; we are a kingdom of priests. Whenever this passage is talking about partnership it is talking about the priesthood.
4. Also implied. Reversionism destroys the function of both partnership and priesthood.
5. The third class condition, eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHM]per, indicates that the believer’s attitude toward doctrine will determine his status — whether he is a supergrace believer or a reversionist. This is the fork in the road.
6. In supergrace the believer will recognize Christ as the only celebrity as a part of his category #1 love response.
7. By way of contrast, in reversionism the believer will have a total breakdown of the faith-rest technique like the Exodus generation.
8. The believer in reversionism will also end up like the Exodus reversionists, outside the land under the sin unto death. The land is a picture of victory or supergrace in the spiritual life.
9. Canaan, therefore, is a type of the supergrace life.
10. The Exodus generation was kept out of Canaan because of their reversionism. The believer is kept out of supergrace by reversionism.
11. The manifestation of their reversionism was the malfunction of the faith-rest technique. Therefore the faith-rest principle comes into focus as proof of reversionism or proof of supergrace.
12. Therefore the effective function of faith-rest, depending on Bible doctrine and the ECS becomes a demonstration of a supergrace life.
13. Maximum use of faith-rest is exploited in supergrace, claiming both promises and doctrines. Therefore, the third class condition sets up the alternatives which every believer must face: supergrace versus reversionism.

Supergrace book out in January.

“we hold” — the aorist active subjunctive of katechô (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh]. echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHHK-oh] means to have or to hold; katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] means norm or standard — “if we retain and secure.” This means to retain and secure possession of something, to retain and hold fast mentally. It refers to Bible doctrine in the soul through the function of GAP.

“the beginning of our confidence” — the accusative singular of archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAY] plus the definite article. With the definite article it refers to a definite beginning. “The beginning” has to do with the daily function of GAP by which the believer starts to grow. That is the beginning of “our confidence” — genitive singular of hupostasis. Hupostasis means essence, real being, confidence, assurance, steadfastness. The “beginning of our essence” refers to the beginning of the essence of the priest. The believer only is a priest, therefore the believer has the essence of the priesthood. What is it? Positive volition toward doctrine. He takes doctrine into his left lobe, called the mind. Positive volition cycles it into the human spirit as epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. The epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is cycled into the right lobe or the heart, into the frame of reference. The memory centre then scatters it and puts it into your vocabulary, develops categories, norms and standards, and puts it on the launching pad. At the same time this doctrine becomes the basis for constructing the ECS. When the ECS is completed you have +H or the sharing of God’s happiness. This leads to the supergrace life which is more +H — all of the capacities, including the function of the priesthood and the capacity for partnership with Jesus Christ are all involved in the supergrace life. So there must be the securing of Bible doctrine in the soul for these things to exist. The reality or the essence of the believer priest is the doctrinal structure of the soul.

“steadfast” — accusative feminine singular noun, bébaios (βέβαιος) [pronounced BEB-ah-yoss], which means stabilized. This is a reference to the continuation of GAP and the construction of the ECS plus the entrance into the supergrace life. Stability comes to the believer upon entrance into supergrace. Then great danger to the believer is the neglect of doctrine after a partial completion of the ECS.

“unto the end” — this is an adverbial preposition, mechri/mechris (μέχρι/μεχρις) [pronounced MEHKKH-ree/mekh-RIHS], plus the genitive singular of telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss]. This means stabilized by supergrace “until the end”, the end of your life on this earth.

Hebrews 3:14 “For we have become partners [associate priests] of the Christ, if indeed we retain and secure the beginning of our essence [the daily function of GAP to supergrace], stabilized [by supergrace ] until the end [of phase two].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Life is simple; if you are positive toward doctrine, God will provide a means for you to get Bible doctrine. Many of you who have lived in Houston for a long time, and you have not been taking advantage of the teaching of Bible doctrine. It is yours, but it is up to you whether you want it or not.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #28

28 12/17/1972 Hebrews 3:15 Doctrine of revolution

Hebrews 3:14 “For we have become partners [associate priests] of the Christ, if indeed we retain and secure the beginning of our essence [the daily function of GAP to supergrace], stabilized [by supergrace ] until the end [of phase two].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Heb 3:15 As it is said, "Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion." (ESV)

Verse 15 — the rejection of the supergrace partnership is reiterated. The first word is “While” but in the Greek it is a prepositional phrase — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative case of the definite article, which is translated “So long as it is.” Then we have an infinitive which is the object of the preposition. It is a present passive infinitive used as an idiom. This idiom is used as a temporal clause which quotes again Psalm 95:8 in order to apply the reversionistic failure of the Exodus generation to the Jewish believers living in Jerusalem in 67 AD, and in order to make the same application to us who are alive in this 20th century.

We are living in a fool’s paradise; in pseudo prosperity. All of this has some reason and purpose behind it. Mediocrity and failure of our own system of government. All of these things have been made the object of blame. True blame must lie on the individual believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. He in reversionism is rationalizing away all that we have in the Word of God. Mediocrity in government. Many tentacles of the octopus which is destroying us. The real culprit lies within the soul of the individual believer.

We are now approaching the Christmas season; people go in for superficialities as never before. They find a brief happiness in the Xmas tree or the exchange of presents. Might be mid-February before you recover from it. If you are a supergrace believer, then you have capacity for life.

Perhaps today in 1972, we might be 3 years before we face the same crisis that Jerusalem faced. The Kremlin would like to take over the United States in 1776 to defeat us on our 200th birthday. Africans running around and being catered to by mediocre people in the government. These Africans should have been shot. Admiral Zumwalt should go.

All types of services represented when he saw Bobby off. The Navy was the worst looking of all, with beards and long hair. The Navy looked like a bunch of hippies walking around.

Bob had the shock of his life yesterday watching tv. He was games from the 1920's. You could not even see hair. It was phenomenal. Bob realizes just how far down the line that we have come. Today, they look like a viking who lost half of his uniform.

Behind everything is a spiritual condition. There is no counteraction to any of these things in the souls of individuals. The Black peoples, many of them, are dragging this country down. White trash with long hair; ill mannered, mixed up people. Illustrations of this almost everywhere that you look. This type of thing is the most destructive thing that exists; until the evil soul is replaced with the edification complex structure.

“So long as” means as long as these things continue there will be a gradual and a continual destruction of the national entity.

“it is said” — this is the object of the preposition. The preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] has as its object the verb mistranslated “it is said.” But we have a present passive infinitive of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh], it is a part of a temporal prepositional phrase. This is an idiom. The present tense is the retroactive use of the progressive present. It is used to apply something in the past to the present. Something in the past is the failure of the Exodus generation, the failure of the generation of Jews in 67 AD who would be destroyed by the Roman legions in 70 AD. The passive voice is used for the second time to quote Psalm 95:8. The infinitive is part of the idiom and is the object of the preposition. “So long as it is being said” is a better translation.

Then we have the word “today”, an adverb, sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on]. Sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on] begins the quotation. The adverb connotes a continuous day pertinent to every generation of believers. The adverb is used because believers live one day at a time. This also has the concept of generations of believers. The Exodus generation is the generation being observed in the quotation. David made the application in Psalm 95:8. Then in the first century AD a generation of Jews, believers, and after the second generation of believers in Jerusalem reversionism was so rampant that they destroyed themselves.

Jerusalem is not a holy city; and it will not be so considered until Jesus returns.

We are not one nation under God; we are a nation of confused races. The Indians were going to take over until they got their rights. These different races do not exist; you are a citizen of the United States or you are not. If you are a citizen of this country, the color of your skin does not mean anything. We have no concept of freedom. Those who rise to the top do so because they have the freedom to do so. You do not make things by lifting up people from the bottom and trying to force them to be better. Everywhere you turn, you have long-haired feminine males. 63% of the students recognize that drugs are a serious problem in the high schools and junior highs. Houston is the only large city which was protected from organized crime; but the mafia has now moved into Houston. The trash and scam always attract that kind of influence. We are on the verge of a nigger revolution. We are on the verge of some of the most ghastly things that we have ever seen. African Niggers cut off the arms and legs and genitals of those they defeat. That's coming because of the softest attitude towards trash that has ever existed. They are running in packs in Germany. Not safe for an American woman on a post in Germany. They would not let her off the post, and said it was too dangerous for her to go off the base, due to the Black soldiers moving about in packs. Unfortunately, there are in every race who are a great credit to their race. Bob knows some Black people who are as great as anything else. They understand establishment and they appreciate it. A Black man is not safe in their own neighborhoods because of the Black Panthers and the Black Muslims. They even put these people on television. The way that they talk is unbelievable. The Navy has made their caps larger to accommodate African hairstyles.

There are Black young people who understand establishment. We have the most noncourageous presidents in our history. Some of the highest offices in the land; Bobby Kennedy persecuted some great men, an Officer... That is what we all face and it is going to get worse; so Merry Christmas.

“if” — a Greek conjunctive particle eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHM] plus the subjunctive which introduces a third class condition. It emphasizes the believer’s volition related to the teaching of Bible doctrine. The third class condition means maybe yes, maybe no. It all depends upon your volition, your understanding of the situation.

The only hope of our nation is in our souls and in the souls of other believers just like us. Maybe yes and maybe no.

“ye will hear” — aorist active subjunctive from the verb akoúô (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh]. Akoúô (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh] means self-discipline and concentration in the daily function of GAP. Every believer after salvation faces the same issue. His attitude toward Bible doctrine determines which fork in the road he will take. Bible doctrine makes the difference. If he is positive toward doctrine he is going to take the supergrace road. If he is positive toward the Word of God he will grow into supergrace. That is the place of great blessing, the place of prosperity, the solution to our national problems. But if he is negative toward doctrine, then he is going to enter into reversionism. As goes the reversionist, so goes the nation. That was true of the kingdom of Judah is 67 AD, that was true of the Exodus generation, that was an issue that David faced when he wrote Psalm 95, that is an issue in every generation of people. What think ye of doctrine?

Jesus Christ is the issue at salvation but Jesus Christ never becomes an issue to the believer apart from Bible doctrine. You can’t understand Jesus Christ, you can’t love Jesus Christ, you can’t respond to His love, you can’t appreciate His love, you can’t recognize the celebrityship of Jesus Christ, until you have started to take in enough doctrine to know what it is all about. So the reversionist always winds up under the sin unto death. The supergrace believer always winds up in a place of great blessing in the capacities for life. He has capacity for every aspect of life.

A pack of niggars cut of the hand of a sailor and this is virtually unknown except by a Corpus Christy newspaper.

If you want to stop the crime rate, use capital punishment. Hang the criminal in from of his house on a lamppost and leave him up for Christmas. Best Christmas decoration ever. Anyone who peddles dope, kill ‘em. And then take every 10th criminal and execute them as well. Word would get around.

“his voice” — the objective genitive of phônê (φωνή) [pronounced foh-NAY]. It refers to Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine is the source of all blessing for the believer. This is the voice of Jesus Christ. This is the way Jesus Christ makes love to the believer.

“harden not your hearts” — this is where reversionism begins. We have the present active subjunctive of sklêrunô (σκληρύνω) [pronounced sklay-ROO-no]. Sklêrunô (σκληρύνω) [pronounced sklay-ROO-no] is a technical word. How do you harden your heart. It is a present tense again; it means it is a process, not linear aktionsart. The active voice means at certain times you harden your hearts toward doctrine. The subjunctive mood says this is potential. The subjunctive plus the negative indicates this is going on at the time the writer of Hebrews sent this message to the believers of Jerusalem in 67 AD. The same thing was happening to them that started to happen in David's day. However, in David's day they overcame this thing and supergrace saved the day. But in the day in which this was being sent to the Jews they did not repent, they did not get back on Bible doctrine, and the result was the destruction of the nation.

Mechanically, how do you harden your heart? This says, "Harden not your hearts." We have the accusative plural here of kardia (καρδία) [pronounced kahr-DEE-uh]. This is addressed to a lot of believers, it is in the plural. The heart is the right lobe of the soul. The heart has a frame of reference with a memory centre, a vocabulary, categories, norms and standards, and a launching pad. This is the right lobe, this is where you live. "As a man thinks in his heart, so he is." The left lobe is the processing point. Doctrine comes in here and goes into the human spirit (by faith) from where it is transferred to the right lobe where it is used to erect the edification complex of the soul, and the believer enters into supergrace with capacity for freedom, for life, for love, for happiness, for adversity, occupation with the person of Christ, recognition of the celebrityship of Christ, love of Jesus Christ, and so on. This is the place of great happiness and blessing, this is where God feels free to pour out all of His blessings upon the individual.

Hardening the heart means to shut it down. The way it is done is negative volition toward doctrine. Hardening of the heart begins with scar tissue on the left bank of the soul. This opens up a vacuum line which attacks the right lobe. Satanic doctrine, doctrine of demons, comes through this vacuum and attacks the frame of reference, attacks the memory centre, attacks vocabulary, categories, norms and standards, and it attacks doctrine on the launching pad. Then there is emotional revolt of the soul which shuts down the valves, and all of the valves fail to function and there is no feeding of doctrine from one part of the right lobe to the other when emotional revolt occurs. The heart is hardened by negative volition toward doctrine, by emotional revolt of the soul which shuts down all of the function of the right lobe. Therefore "harden not your hearts" is a command to believers. The subjunctive carries the strength of a command but recognizes that your volition is involved. The negative indicates that they are doing it at the present time. They are in reversionism, they are practicing reverse process reversionism, they have destroyed the ECS.

Summary

1. The heart refers to the right lobe of the mentality of the soul where in the function of GAP doctrine becomes part of the believer's life. Doctrine functions in the right lobe and this becomes the believer's life.
2. The first objective of GAP is to get doctrine into the right lobe's frame of reference, therefore moving it into the conscience, the vocabulary, the category compartment, and onto the launching pad.
3. The next objective is the erection of the ECS and entrance into supergrace.

4. The hardening of the heart hinders this, for the hardening of the heart is the description of reversionism with reference to the stages by which the individual goes from negative volition all of the way to reverse process reversionism.
5. Such reversionism is accompanied by malfunction of the faith-rest technique, as at Meribah.

“as in the provocation” — the word “as” is hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç] which relates reversionism to the Exodus generation at Meribah. This relates the failure of the Exodus generation of the Meribah to our situation. The words “in the provocation” is a prepositional phrase — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of parapikrosnoj. Parapikrosnoj means revolution — “as in the reversionistic revolution.” Actually, parapikrosnoj is a translation of Meribah which means revolution, revolt. This is a historical citation to Exodus 17:1–7. It also sets up an analogy: Canaan is a type of supergrace; the wilderness is a type of reversionism. Believers who live in reversionism die in reversionism. Reversionism keeps the believer out of the supergrace life. Reversionism keeps the believer from divine blessing, from the sharing of God’s happiness, from the capacities of life, from occupation with the person of Christ. Therefore reversionism keeps the believer out of the supergrace life.

Hebrews 3:15 “So long as it is being said [Psalm 95:8], This day if you will hear and concentrate [function in GAP] on his voice [Bible doctrine], do not go on, hardening your hearts as in the reversionistic revolution.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The Doctrine of Revolution. We go back to lesson #26 for this.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #29

29 04/01/1973 Hebrews 3:7; Psalm 95:6–11 Games with God 1

This is 4.5 months later; and not sure if there are notes on this lesson.

Hebrews 3:7, going back to this after a few months. I think that this is #29.

No reserved seats in Berachah Church. Don’t leave your stuff behind.

Bob has been on an extensive study, and he has spend a full day on each verse of the first 3 verses of Hebrews 4. He has left out too much stuff. Canaan is not simply a picture of the faith rest life but of the supergrace life.

I am not finding any doctrine of Games with God.

Wherefore is dia + ho, it means because of which.

Moses is a supergrace hero in a reversionistic generation. His cup overflowed to the people of his day. This is why God told him, “Walk away from this people and I will wipe them out.” The same thing will happen in the days of the Apostles. The writer of Hebrews and men like the Apostle Paul who challenged their generation.

God has certain things to say through the writer of Hebrews at that time; and for future generations. At some point, you may have been given something with no strings. When a person receives a no-strings gift, they truly enjoy the giver and there is capacity for love. Occupation with the giver. Reversionism is the believer with no capacity to appreciate grace or salvation.

If you have supergrace capacity, then you will have supergrace blessings. God did the sowing in eternity past; and the supergrace believer reaps this in time. There must be occupation with Christ before the harvest can be enjoyed. Then you have the cup and the cup is capacity, which overflows with blessings. Self cannot provide capacity for self. This is why culture is no substitute for doctrine. Culture is capacity to enjoy life only from human viewpoint; and when the believer tries this, they fall apart as believers. Culture cannot replace Bible doctrine.

Hebrews 3:7 “For this reason therefore according as the Holy Spirit communicates, This day if you will hear and concentrate on his voice”,... R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

As the canon of Scripture is formed, God vindicates His Word. He preserves it forever. The writer of Hebrews took this passage and wrote it in Koine Greek. This passage is found in the OT and in the NT. Psalm 95:7–11 God the Holy Spirit gave this to David when in supergrace. There is something to be learned from the Hebrew and something to be learned from the Greek. God’s message and His meaning was completely recorded by David as God wanted it to be recorded. David, without waving his human intelligence, God’s complete and connected through for man was recorded.

Now starting Psalm 95 I wonder if this can be found in the psalms? I looked and could not locate it.

Bob is finding a lot about faith rest, which is for babies; and supergrace is for adults. No one functions properly in their priesthood as babies. God has done so many things, and this generation is about to miss it.

Psalm 95:6 Oh come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the LORD, our Maker!

This is not a reference to creation; but this is all about something which God keeps on doing, Qal imperfect. Out of doctrine, you manufacture something in your soul. You manufacture a cup that God can pour into.

David goes into Philistia, and hits a low point. But he recovers and becomes a wealthy man; as God keeps on pouring. When God can pour, it is an eternal memorial. There is one thing that you will take with you to heaven.

The One Who has manufactured us out of doctrine.

Psalm 95:7 For He is our God, and we are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand. Today, if you hear His voice,...

It is very rare for the believer to love the Members of the Godhead.

Pasture means the feeding of Bible doctrine; the growth comes from the daily function of gap. God pours for those who have the cup.

This day is a reference to the daily intake of Bible doctrine. Qal imperfect of shamar, which means, this is a continuous process. It refers to the function of GAP from the first phase of GAP. It is possible for doctrine to get into your left lobe, but it goes nowhere else. That makes you a hearer of the Word but not a doer.

Two kinds of negative volition. Primary negative volition, refusal to assemble yourself; and the refusal to believe it. That would be secondary negative volition. Refusing to accept what is taught.

Moses was a great Bible teacher, and the people assembled, but they did not believe him. They did not transfer Bible doctrine to the human spirit.

6 kinds of negative volition?

Psalm 95:7 For He is our God, and we are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand. Today, if you hear His voice,...

All communicators are simply a voice. This is the system by which believers have understood Bible doctrine. This goes back even to Adam. David in his recovery. God has chosen certain people as voices.

Hearing is primary positive or negative volition.

Psalm 95:8 ...do not harden your hearts, as at Meribah, as on the day at Massah in the wilderness,...

Hiphil stem of qashah. How do you cause the hardening of your heart? A modern translation, do not turn on negative volition.

Negative Volition at the Hearing of Bible Doctrine

1. You become disillusion, bitter, frustrated, boredom, discouragement, self-pity, jealous are the ways that you keep yourself from getting Bible doctrine.
2. You react to one or more of these areas by a frantic search for happiness. This is manifestation of having no capacity for life.
3. The frantic search for happiness is you doing it and reaping what you sow.

4. Emotional revolt plus the frantic search for happiness cause 2 things.
5. You might hear what is being taught, but then you say, "I don't know where he got that from? Who teaches that? Where did that come from?"
6. Primary and secondary negative volition.
7. Do not turn on your negative volition, which refers back to hardening your heart. A little negative volition is a lot of negative volition.

Psalm 95:8 ...do not harden your hearts [or, do not turn on your negative volition], as at Meribah, as on the day at Massah in the wilderness,...

This is a reference to the revolution which takes place in the first year (Exodus 17) and the 40th year (Num. 20:1–14).

Meribah is also called Massa. Massa means, reaping what you sow.

The fathers in v. 9 refer to the 1st generation. When they would come into a difficult situation, they would test God; they would play games with God, testing Him one more time. Reversionistic games. "You be nice to me and I will worship You." Tempting means to play games. There are people who do not really like you, but they pour on some sugar. This is the attitude of reversionism. Lack of capacity is playing games.

Psalm 95:9 ...when your fathers put Me to the test [or, played games with Me] and put Me to the test, though they had seen My work [or, grace provision].

Bachan means, to strap it on God. The believers got manna every day; but they wanted a bunch of other things from God. They were going to make the appropriate noises towards God in order to get more stuff from God.

This generation used God. They did not really respond to His love; they just pretended to in order to get what they want. That is playing games with God. A supergrace believer loves God; the reversionist does not.

If you tend to play games with people, then you will likely play games with God. It will catch up to you. Michel played games and it caught up with her and David. She was the loser.

Some of you will never have a permanent set of friends in this life. Sooner or later, it all catches up with you. All of us will have love come our way at some time, and if we have no capacity, we will play games with it and lose it. God says, "I loathe them."

Psalm 95:9 ...when your fathers put Me to the test [or, played games with Me] and put Me to the test, though they had seen My work [or, grace provision].

God gives with no strings. "I have for you acres of money trees; rm/rw, promotion. But all I can do for you in reversionism is basic needs, to keep you alive in order to spank you."

Primary negative volition, they are not here today; secondary negative volition, you are here but you do not believe it.

Psalm 95:10 For forty years I loathed that generation and said, "They are a people who go astray in their heart, and they have not known My ways."

You must gap it every day. The opportunity to hear doctrine every night may be closed down, very shortly. There is no substitute for face to face teaching.

This people goes astray, they stagger, they wander; they go astray in their right lobes. When Bible doctrine is rejected, the brain then acts like a siphon (an Oklahoma credit card) or like vacuum and sucks in false information.

Psalm 95:11 Therefore I swore in My wrath (indignation), "They shall not enter My rest."

An if that introduces an elliptical oath. Whoever is making this solemn promise. It is like saying, "I am not Bob Thieme, if..."

Here, it is, "I am not God, if they enter into My rest." Or, "You strap it on Me, you fool around with Me, you play games with Me, and you will never enter into My rest."

Faith must mix the promises or the truth and take it into the right lobe. Then it can be used by the entire soul. The pouring are the supergrace blessings. "I am not God if they enter into My resting place."

David communicated this as a supergrace believer.

Hebrews 3:7 "For this reason therefore according as the Holy Spirit communicates, This day if you will hear and concentrate on his voice",... R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

This writer is also guided by God the Holy Spirit.

David goes back to the Exodus generation and so does Paul and so does Jude. They are a great illustration of reversionism versus supergrace. Bob recounts all of the warnings being given.

What Are We Being Warned About?

1. God must vindicate His Word in the souls of believers.
2. Supergrace is the means and it is available to believers today just as it was available in 1440 B.C., a warning to David in 1000 B.C.; and to the believers reading Hebrews A.D. 67.
3. God takes what God has provided for us in supergrace in eternity past and here we on in time.

4. Only a relatively small number of believers appropriate supergrace. We are not talking about needs; we are talking about prosperity blessings. Bible doctrine in the soul is the vacuum pump; and it suck divine blessing right into your life.
5. There emerges in each generation some person who demonstrates the failures of that generation by going all out for doctrine. Take Jeremiah, David, Moses. Paul. In every generation, there emerges a supergrace hero with such a fantastic vacuum pump into their present day. Our blessings come now from eternity past; not from eternity future. Some of you move about on motorcycles. Bob talks about using the tube to suck out gas from someone else's gas tank (hopefully, you will swallow some and that will cure you). You need to set up a vacuum. Long before anyone existed, God planted millions of money trees. Success and promotion is right there. Do not let your vacuum pump break down; do not go a day without doctrine.
6. The blessings of those who had supergrace blessings in the Bible what they hadd is available to you. Bob shows the gap setup in the soul.
7. God did a lot of planting in eternity past so that we can not miss all that He has given us.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #30

30 04/01/1973 Hebrews 3:7 Games with God 2; doctrine of negative volition might not be notes on this lesson.

We are continuing with the material from the previous lesson.

If there is an empty seat with a Bible or book in it. Hold it up and Jess with come by to get it. Bob assumes that the couple vacant seats are legitimate ones.

We are in the middle of v. 7.

Today if you will hear His voice... This introduces the 3rd class condition, which focuses on the volition of the believer in the Church Age. Primary positive volition is to show up; secondary positive volition is to transfer the information by faith to the right lobe.

Your attitude towards doctrine determines the sort of life you are going to have. Life involves you making many decisions. These decisions must be made on a daily basis. Frankly, some of you ought to decide to go elsewhere. Some of you are just playing games with God.

Akouô, the Greek equivalent to Hebrew shamah. Constativ aorist and it refers to every single time that you assemble with other believers together. A partnership of association with Jesus Christ.

metakos. Not partakers here, but partners. The partnership is the priesthood of the believers. It is one thing to be a priest; it is another thing to function as a priest. You either hear or you don't hear.

Summary

1. For the believer reaching supergrace, there is the believer who reaches supergrace and receives pouring.
2. As a priest, he begins to harvest what God sows from eternity past. That all occurs in eternity past. That is the believer. He only can reap under supergrace. Certain things that God provides under grace.
3. The harvest of supergrace blessing is potential.
4. The alternative in the potential is reversionism, where the believer reaps what the believer sows. Anytime you do your own sowing, God is not in it.
5. The believer sows frantic search for happiness, negative volition and that leads to the blackout of the soul through the opening of a vacuum to the heart. 3 categories of divine discipline.
6. To reach supergrace, the believer must become a student without portfolio.
7. The true concept of discipleship is the believer accepting the authority and teaching of his right pastor. He must be consistent in his attendance of class and consistent in transferring the doctrine that he learns. Primary and secondary negative volition. The second is to assemble, but not to believe the doctrine. Primary and secondary negative volition. Believers around Berachah, I never heard that, or I don't like the way he said that, or I don't know where he got that from.

If you will hear His voice, the descriptive genitive. The absoluteness of doctrinal teaching. God has to delegate authority, being up in heaven. He must vindicate His Word, wherever it is found. The doctrine is found in the Bible. His authority is called phonê. Then this is transferred to the sheep. He sets up another authority, the pastor-teacher. The sheep accept it or reject it. Sheep in the wrong pasture and more on. Hebrews 13:7, 17

Hebrews 3:7 "For this reason therefore according as the Holy Spirit communicates, This day if you will hear and concentrate on His voice",... R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

The communication is made to David in Psalm 95 and the writer of Hebrews.

Hebrews 3:8 "...do not go on hardening your hearts as in the reversionistic revolution of the Meribah on the day of testing in the desert..." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation we will have to look at, what does it mean to harden the heart. The whole process of hardening will be looked at when we complete this passage.

The Whole Process

1. The believer gets into a reaction state, which is one of a number of things, disillusion, to be completely bored, discouragement, overcome by self-pity, frustration, mental attitude sins, bitterness and jealousy. This is the reaction where the believer begins to react.

2. Then the believers reacts, which is always a frantic search for happiness.
3. The frantic search for happiness is coterminous with or precedes emotional revolt. Some kinds of unhappiness depend upon emotional revolt; other trigger emotional revolt. Sometimes even coterminous.
4. The combination results in either apathy, indifference, rejection or neglect of Bible doctrine. The hardening process almost finished by step 4.
5. Satanic doctrine enters the heart of the believer.
6. Blackout of the soul, is a loss of part or all of the doctrine that you have ever learned.

A customary present, a continuous process. Active voice means the believer reaps what he himself sows. The malfunction of gap is related to the priesthoods.

This doctrine will be covered elsewhere in a subsequent lesson.

The Doctrine of Negative Volition

1. The refusal of doctrine. This is primary negative volition. The forsaking of the assembly of yourselves together. Not listening to your right pastor.
2. The second type is the refusal of faith rest, secondary negative volition. James 1:22–25 Many are not strong enough in their reaction, so they go to church for good luck, but they don't believe it.
3. Refusal to rebound; also a malfunction of gap. Keeps doctrine from coming into the left lobe. Failure to be filled with the Spirit means no doctrine comes into the left lobe apart from what an unbeliever would understand, like divine establishment.
4. Refusal to be consistent. A person only gaps it when there is adversity. They gap it to get something from God or to take away from pressure or discipline. Unstable believer.
5. Negative vulnerability. Even in supergrace, a person can be vulnerable. Reacts to self-pity,
6. Negative emotionalism, negative to doctrine through emotional revolt in some way or another. They get into the tongues movement. Some emotional stimulation. They are in a state of unfaithfulness. The emotion is unfaithful to the right lobe.

Primary negative volition is refusing to assemble; malfunction of gap no filling of the Spirit, then secondary negative volition is not coming in a time of adversity.

Hebrews 3:8 ...do not go on hardening your hearts as in the reversionistic revolution of the Meribah on the day of testing in the desert... R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation bitterness leading to revolt; bitterness leading to reaction; another side of meribah. It means the meribah revolution or the reversionistic revolution.

Someone that you are interested in someone who can do something for you. But you do not have any actual interest in them. Like a mixed up old sugar daddy and a gal starts going with this guy to see if he is worth the risk or not. How long will he last? Her objective is to get a meal ticket. This is how the Greeks used perosmos. To check someone out to determine if they can get something from them.

The Exodus generation tested God to see if they could get anything from Him. They got the routine things of life from Him; but they wanted more. On a day of playing games in the desert, testing God to see what they can get from Him.

A woman just needs to put about 2 cc's of flattery into the man's head. He is like a football, being kicked around.

Women are beautiful; men are not. That men are attractive is an optical illusion.

The adverb, where your fathers, ancestors. They were like their ancestors in the soul. You do not inherit the soul. You inherit the body and the genes. You can inherit the soul in the sense of making the same mistakes that your ancestors do.

You can play games with God, to play games with God, to strap it on God. The Jews and their ancestors were playing games with God. They were hustling animal sacrifices into the Temple. Born again believers in the Church Age. When Christians offered up animals at the Temple, they are playing games. This is like the 40 days of fasting etc. before Easter. Marte Gras is the last time to celebrate before the 40 days.

The pattern of the Jews in Jerusalem is the same as that for those in the Meribah generation. Reversionism is reaping what the believer himself sows. Reversionism recovery and going into supergrace is the only way to get out of Jerusalem in time.

Perazo. They ran a test to see if it was worthwhile. Can God do something for me? If they decided yes, they would then play games with God. An attempt to get something from God. Bob telling how people get into fights today. These people in reversionism are trying God. They say, "We have checked you out and we think we can get something from You," and God says, "Try me."

God tests us. He tests us for doctrine. Where there is a cup, God pours out blessing. Reversionism practices pseudo-love. Reversionists like to play games.

Hebrews 3:8 ...do not go on hardening your hearts as in the reversionistic revolution of the Meribah on the day of testing in the desert... R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

The reversionistic believer has no capacity for love. Those who love God are supergrace believers. The Lord spans the reversionist. En + dokimos. "We will approve God, if He passes the test; we will give Him respect, esteem and our approval. They demanded water and they did not get it.

40 years of eating manna, 40 years of water, 40 years of provision; but a second meribah testing, and they did not pass it. They were bored with God's grace. God sowed in eternity past and they were to harvest in time.

Supergrace blessing is not about needs; it is over and above needs. Food, shelter and clothing is for the reversionist as well. Logistical grace is for all believers; God handles the needs for all believers. As long as you have a reason to be in God's plan, He keeps you alive. Ecology is a farce. God will provide food, shelter and clothing.

Summary

1. Strap on is when they began the games.
2. No capacity for freedom, blessing, etc. You are bored or indifferent.
3. Capacity in the soul comes only from Bible doctrine in the soul.
4. Remember, God must vindicate His Word. In written form and in your soul, in invisible form. The Word of God lives and abides forever.
5. The Exodus generation missed all of that because of reversionism. God continues to be faithful to the faithless reversionist. The reversionist does not love God. God provides for the needs of the reversionist; and He provides them with discipline as well. No discipline in eternity. You get that all now.
6. Jesus Christ is our only celebrity. High priesthood of Christ and celebrityship of Jesus Christ.
7. Reverse process reversionism causes the believer to be bored, frustrated and filled with pseudo-love, which is the basic motivation for playing games. The whole problem is having no capacity for grace. The reversionistic believer priest does not know what to do. The big issue in the Church Age is functioning under your priesthood. No believer functions under his priesthood until he reaches supergrace. Meribah generation found it out the hard way.

If you truly love someone, then you can be disgusted with them, but you maintain your love towards them.

Hebrews 3:9 ...in which place (Meribah) your reversionistic fathers (the Exodus generation) began testing (to determine good of evil) in Him (God) by means of approving Him after testing [if God could pass the test set up by reversionist]. And they had a panoramic view of my grace provision for 40 years. R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

This is all idiomatic in the Greek, so that, if God should pass the test (whatever they make it out to be), that they would recognize it.

Hebrews 3:9 ...in which place (Meribah) your reversionistic fathers (the Exodus generation) began testing God to determine good or evil in Him by means of approving God after testing, if He should past the test according to the reversionist (no one can pass that test) and they had a panoramic view of My grace provision for 40 years. R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 3:10 “Because of which reversionism I was disgusted with that generation, and said, They are always being deluded in the right lobe; and they have not learned my ways [systems of doctrine].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Bob apparently exegetes this passage again. Grace leaves such a believer bored; you are filled with self-pity. A man gives to a woman; but she is bored with him. The gift with no strings is grace giving. The only thing that people who are superficial can understand is giving with no strings.

Summary Remarks

1. If you sow in ignorance, you reap in ignorance. If you sow in ignorance of doctrine/ grace, you reap without benefit of grace or doctrine.
2. No doctrine means no capacity. Capacity is not instantaneous. Doctrine comes a little bit at a time. Available in Berachah more than anywhere else. Bob studied until midnight last night. We has discovered that he does not know half of what is found here. Faith rest is for babies; for those who desire the sincere milk of the Word. Bob previously lost about 70% of the truth from this passage. There is so much here, there is so much available. David is the key to this passage; some of it is by contrast. We are priests; David is not.
3. Reversionism has no capacity for supergrace blessing; so reversionism cannot enter into the land of Canaan and take it. Application to David, the people could not enjoy the land; in the time of Hebrews, the people were about to go under.
4. What was the land? It represents supergrace. The land is a gift from God without strings; and they blew it. You blow a no-strings gift by having no capacity of soul.
5. Where there is not capacity of soul, there is no capacity for life and boredom, instability and unfaithfulness.

Inside some souls is ignorance and abuse; despite having a no-strings gift given.

V. 11 is the last verse for this lesson. Bob had to beat Bobby for awhile; the best thing that he could do was the spank him. It took about 3 years. Those were hard years. Bob loved him; but he knew he could not put a monster out there. After that, Bob had no problems with Bobby. Bob believes that he has a perfect relationship with his son. The paddle became a blessing in his life.

God can only do one thing for a reversionist, paddle the hell out of you. You may not get the message of love, you get the message that something is wrong.

Heb. 3:11 “In keeping with the facts, I promise with a solemn oath in my disgust, My name is not God if they shall enter into My rest [which is the supergrace life].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

God swears by Himself; there is nothing higher upon which He can swear. The future and aorist tense are both very similar. The present and imperfect represent progress; the future and the aorist are punctiliar. Only Caleb and Joshua walked across the Jordan.

1972 Hebrews 3:13

31 04/08/1973 Hebrews 3:13 Prevention of reversionism

Not sure where this lesson integrates into the mix. Bob says v. 13, but he only went as far as v. 11 last session (a week ago). Apart from that, what remains is found in the notes on Hebrews.

We have been studying the supergrace, which is where Moses and David meet.

Heb. 3:12 Beware, members of the family of God, that there not be in any one of you a malignant heart of unbelief by revolting from the always living God,... R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

David was challenged by the concept that once you believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and enter the family of God, God has a purpose for your life. This purpose is blessing. God is glorified by blessing the believer. That is the principle. God is not glorified when He has to spank or to discipline. God is glorified and we are blessed when the believer takes the road of positive volition toward Bible doctrine, consistent persistent positive volition. This is the road where when one reaches it the priesthood begins its normal function. The whole subject of the book of Hebrews is that you are appointed a priest at the point of salvation. That means that every believer is in full time Christian service; every believer is a priest. But his priesthood only has a normal function when the supergrace status is reached. The supergrace status is characterized by: 1) Occupation with the person of Jesus Christ; 2) Supergrace capacity — that is the cup in the soul constructed of Bible doctrine; 3) God is glorified in the angelic conflict when the supergrace blessing begins to flow. That is God pouring into the cup.

In the history of Israel as a nation there are men who hold specific records. Moses is the record-holder for supergrace leadership of all time. It is a very rare thing for a man to be such an outstanding leader when he has a rebellious negative generation of people. Moses led, roughly for forty years, some two-million rebellious type people and yet he is one of the greatest of all. His human genius is not the issue here but the fact that God provided for him through Bible doctrine a cup, and his cup was running over practically all of the time. He is the greatest man in the field of supergrace leadership who ever lived. No one ever had more opposition, no one ever had more problems with people, no one ever had so much static from his own, and yet God kept pouring and pouring and pouring. There are some different supergrace blessings. For example, he finally acquired his right woman which is always paramount in the minds of those who are still in single bliss. But where he holds the record is in the principle of leadership.

Then there is the period when the Jews reached their peak. This is the period of David. And David also holds a supergrace record but it is a different kind. You would think that because Israel had reached an all-time high that his would be leadership also, but instead God did other things for David. God poured in unusual ways for him and David holds the variety record. For example, David was the wealthiest man of his day and one of the wealthiest men who ever lived. In fact, his son Solomon was the wealthiest man in the world and he merely inherited from his father. We have great wealth and great success. God promoted David more than any person who ever lived. David holds the record for promotion. As God said, "David is a man after my own heart." He also holds the record in other areas for variety: anything in a materialistic way, anything that has ever been related to success or happiness, David had it, he had more of it than anyone else.

And then we get down to the end of the monarchy, the nationalism of Israel, and we have another record holder of a most unusual type: Jeremiah. As the fifth cycle of discipline was approaching God used Jeremiah in a very wonderful way. Jeremiah had fantastic message for the approaching of the fifth cycle of discipline or the disintegration of a national entity. During this time you wouldn't think that God was pouring because Jeremiah lost his right woman. In addition to that he lost all of his friends and just about everything he could lose and still stay alive. This went on for a long, long time. Jeremiah holds a record though. Jeremiah must have been past seventy when God started to pour for him in a special way. Jeremiah is the all-time record holder for happiness and blessing after seventy. He holds the record that proves the principle: If you have a cup, God may not pour right away but when He pours He really pours. After Jeremiah left Egypt and went to Babylon and lived under the final years of Nebuchadnezzar's great reign he had the greatest happiness, the greatest blessing that could ever come, and he had it all at the end. Jeremiah is a perfect illustration of when you have a cup you live happily ever after, and eventually it came to that. He holds the record for happiness and blessing in old age.

But there is another record that is also involved from a Jew. The apostle Paul holds the record for doctrine. After Israel is out, as it were, and about to go out again under the fifth cycle of discipline the apostle Paul was the greatest recipient of doctrine in his cup of anyone who has ever lived.

The interesting thing is that the blessings which came to Moses, the blessings which came to David, the blessings which came to Jeremiah, and the blessings which came to the apostle Paul are all available to the believer priest in the twentieth century right now. All of these blessings are available under supergrace. We have it in the canon of scripture and it is available to anyone. It is possible for these blessings to all be yours. That is why the writer of Hebrews is so frustrated on his subject of the priesthood, and that is why when we get to chapter 5:1-10 he is going to stop because he is dealing with reversionism and not people who are positive. It will be chapter seven, verse one, before he gets back on his subject of the priesthood. In fact, he hasn't even mentioned the priesthood yet, he has called it partnership. He is still pressing toward his point and will finally make his point in the fifth chapter and then he will sever off from his point because we have a problem: you can go the road to supergrace or you can go the road to reversionism. The road to supergrace is the road of great blessing (you reap what God sows); the road to reversionism is the road of cursing (you reap what you sow). All of the believers who get on the road to reversionism are going to see the love of God. The love of God is expressed in a beautiful way to the supergrace believer: "We love him because he first loved us." But the love of God is expressed to the reversionist in a different way: "Whom the Lord loves he chasteneth, and he skins alive with a whip every son whom he receives.” There are three areas of divine discipline. There is self-induced misery on this road and there is also divine discipline. The first area of divine discipline is the warning or the knocking [on the door] stage. The second area is the intensive stage. The third area is the dying stage. Inevitably, those who stay on the road to reversionism, like king Saul, die the sin unto death. On the road to supergrace you reap what God sows, on the road to reversionism you reap what you sow: divine discipline. The road to supergrace is the road to Romans 8:28 — “to them who love God” .The only believers who love God are those who have enough doctrine in the soul so that they have now reached the fourth floor of the ECS — capacity for love, category #1. This is really where supergrace blessing begin to flow because doctrine comes into the left lobe, by positive volition it is cycled to the human spirit, it picks up a siphon which takes it into the heart or the right lobe, into the frame of reference, into the memory centre. It becomes a part of your vocabulary. You develop categories and classifications. You have new norms and standards and eventually you have doctrine [divine viewpoint] on the launching pad, and that causes to make an application toward the celebrityship of Christ. The celebrityship of Jesus Christ is a combination of maximum doctrine on the launching pad, plus the ECS — 1st floor: grace orientation; 2nd floor: mastery of the details of life; 3rd floor: relaxed mental attitude of agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay] love; 4th floor: capacity love really begins. There is an application from the right lobe and there is capacity for love coming out of the ECS, and this creates a vacuum that goes all of the way back into eternity past where God has provided two kinds of blessings. Blessings which belong to you on the basis of grace and blessings which belong to you on the basis of supergrace. The blessings that belong to you on the basis of grace do not involve your volition; the blessings that belong to you on the basis of supergrace require positive volition and GAPing it all of the way to supergrace. This depends upon doctrine in the soul. One involves your volition; the other one does not. In both cases, it is a nonmeritorious manner.

There is one other distinction that should be made. There is a difference between a carnal believer and a reversionistic believer. A reversionistic believer is negative toward doctrine and out of fellowship, a carnal believer is positive toward doctrine and temporarily out of fellowship. The carnal believer uses rebound and gets back in fellowship and keeps GAPing it, but a reversionistic believer is negative toward doctrine, does not rebound and stays perpetually out of fellowship.

Heb 3:13 But exhort one another every day, as long as it is called "today," that none of you may be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. (ESV)

Verse 13 — “But” — allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH], an adversative conjunction which sets up a contrast between the reversionistic believer with his malignant right lobe in the status of reversionism and the positive believer moving toward supergrace. This is addressed toward those who are positive toward doctrine. And the word “exhort” is not exhort here, it is the present active imperative of parakaleō (παρακαλέω) [pronounced pahr-ahk-ahl-EH-oh]. While parakaleō (παρακαλέω) [pronounced pahr-ahk-ahl-EH-oh] in some passages means to exhort it also means to encourage. The present tense is linear aktionsart. The active voice: the subject, the believer priest, producing the action. The imperative mood is a command.

“one another” is not quite correct. It is a reciprocal pronoun ho autou in the accusative plural and it means self and others.

“daily” is a prepositional phrase, katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw]. katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative has several translations. Hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw] plus the accusative plural means “on each successive day”, and this particular prepositional phrase reminds us that there are certain things that God gives you whether you like it or not. For example, when you were saved God gave you eternal life whether you like it or not. That is all settled and you cannot change it. Most people want it, unless you are a real weirdo.

“Keep on encouraging self and others on each successive day.” This is a command, an order to every believer priest. How do you do it? No matter what happens in any particular day, no matter what conflicts exist, it is the concept of positive volition toward doctrine. That is the encouragement of self. No matter how bad you feel positive volition toward doctrine in the encouragement of self. The overflow of your grace capacities to others is encouragement to them. The principle is that every believer is going to live one day at a time, and on every day just as you have physical food you need spiritual food.

We need physical food daily; and spiritual food as well.

The encouraging self and others means first of all to beware that you do not fall into primary negative volition. Primary negative volition says, I’m not going to Bible class, I’m not going any more, to hell with them, etc. This, again, is usually a disillusion reaction, an apathy reaction, a boredom reaction, a discouragement reaction, a self-pity reaction, and so on.

One person in Berachah claimed that he could get it all from books; and he lost his self-discipline and he was eventually shipped out.

Almost from the first day, Bob got antagonism from various members from the congregation. He decided to keep cranking out the Word of God; and if he uses a hell or a damn, or brings sex into it...that is how he will communicate.

Once you get to Bible class, however, and you sit down, you have another problem. You have already passed the primary volition test. Next, there is a secondary volition test and that comes when you hear. Your failure to transfer means you are a hearer of the Word and not a doer. Some may remember a pastor from his past and he never taught that. Or someone claims that they have done a lot of reading. “I’ve read 45 books.” And maybe she teaches women. “I hear what you are saying, but I don’t believe it.” You can accumulate a lot of information in the left lobe but it is not useable. To be useful it has to go down to the human spirit from where it is transferred into the right lobe where it is useable and where you become a doer of the Word.

The writer of Hebrews did a very smart thing. He took the combination of David's Psalm 95 about the Exodus generation and applied it to the Jews in Jerusalem in 67 AD. The Exodus generation was 1440–1400 BC; Psalm 95, about 1000 BC; the Jewish believers in Jerusalem in 67 AD. By God the Holy Spirit causing this writer to quote Psalm 95 into the Greek, bringing in the Exodus generation, actually makes it possible for a challenge to be set up for us in the 20th century right now with regard to our priesthood. So he pulls the whole thing together for us: "Keep on encouraging self and others on each successive today while it is designated today". In other words, if you eat every day you also should eat spiritual food every day. "Today" is an adverb, sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on]. Sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on] actually means "This day" .

Principle

1. God has supplied every believer with X amount of time in phase two. But God has provided this time on the basis of days, so the time is given one day at a time.
2. Every day is a grace gift from God to the believer priest. God only gives you one day at a time.
3. Positive volition is measured each day on the basis of attitude toward Bible doctrine.
4. Opportunities to take in doctrine are not always available, therefore each day when doctrine is available through teaching that should be regarded by the believer as a GAP day.
5. The real issue every day is to beware of the malfunction of unbelief in the function of GAP. The malfunction of GAP comes through negative volition.
6. The objective of GAPing it to supergrace in this context is the normal function of the priesthood. Normality in the function of the priesthood comes with the supergrace life. The supergrace life only comes by the daily or consistent function of GAP. GAP is also the preventative of reversionism; GAP is also the basis of recovery from reversionism.
7. The objective of gapping it to supergrace is the normal function of the believer. This is what they ought to be doing. Churches are filling up with people who have no clue; they are abnormal. They march for peace or speak in tongues; they are as abnormal in the spiritual life as homosexuals are in regular life.

Hebrews 3:13a "Keep on encouraging self and others on each successive day, as long as it is called This day..."

Next follows a negative purpose clause which emphasizes the use of GAP to prevent reversionism. The daily function of GAP not only moves the believer toward his supergrace life, the normal function of the priesthood, but prevents malignancy in his life, the malignancy of reversionism. The negative purpose clause begins with the word "Lest." We have a conjunction plus the negative — hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na], which ordinarily is used to introduce a purpose clause. With this we have the negative mê. Hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus m (μή) [pronounced may] means “that not”, literally. So, “that not one from among you.” “Any of you” is not quite correct, this is an indefinite pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç]. The indefinite pronoun is designed to make this a personal impersonal factor. Personally, you may be involved. You may be one of those who has neglected Bible doctrine. But you are in a group, and being in a group you can take this personally without it becoming a personal issue to the entire congregation. That is the purpose of having an indefinite pronoun in the Greek. This indefinite pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç] means not “any” but “anyone”, and it is designed to be impersonal and objective. With it is a prepositional phrase, the preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus the ablative plural of su. ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], means out from among and su in the plural means a group — “out from among you all.” In other words, you are in a group. That is what the plural says here. And being in a group, that gives you the only way you can properly and objectively take in Bible teaching. For example, if this was one on one like a pastor-teacher and a sheep (which is forbidden), then you would have to take everything personally. “Among you” means believers assembled together.

Bob on his critics. One criticism is, Bob lets people come to church in a bikini. SamHankins illustrated this by coming in a barrel. It might be difficult in concentration. If all a person has in a bikini, and is positive, then they should come. How can Bob ever profit from these criticisms, as they come from people who have never heard what he teaches. When Bob calls those in his congregation idiots, the koine English, and you can better understand it.

Bob might get you to stop drinking coffee and you might have a testimony, I used to be an idiot, but now I am an idiot who does not drink coffee. The whole objective is to be objective.

The next phrase, “be hardened” is an aorist passive subjunctive of sklêrunô (σκληρύνω) [pronounced sklay-ROO-no]. Sklêrunô (σκληρύνω) [pronounced sklay-ROO-no] means to become hardened or negative — “that not one from among you begin to become negative.” Why? Because the aorist tense here is an ingressive aorist. In the aorist generally you have what is known as the entirety — the ball of wax. Sometimes the action of the aorist tense is at the beginning. We call that ingressive. Then, the whole ball of wax may be considered. Something is extracted from the ball of wax which is the same, like GAPing it daily. That is what we call constative. Then, the action may be viewed from the results of this ball of wax or at the end, so we call that culminative. So you have ingressive, constative, and culminative aorist. Here we are looking at the beginning of something — “Don’t begin to go negative.” This passage is addressed to believers living in Jerusalem in 67 AD and they have begun to go negative, so it denotes here the entrance into a state or condition, and they are entering into reversionism. And they are entering in the usual way. Something has happened and they are disillusioned, they have become bored, they have become discouraged, they have become overcome with self-pity, they have become frustrated, they are full of bitterness or jealousy. And to one or more of these things they react with a frantic search for happiness. In 67 AD these believers, either through legalism or lasciviousness, have gone into their frantic search for happiness accompanied by emotional revolt and resulting in either apathy, indifference, or antagonism for the Word of God. All of these things, of course, are negative volition toward doctrine. The Word of God, Bible teaching, is neglected. So the aorist tense notices that they are beginning to enter this status.

The passive voice of our verb: the believer begins to be hardened or begins his negative volition toward doctrine when he reacts. Again, he may react to disillusion, to boredom, discouragement, etc., and his reaction is a frantic search for happiness. The frantic search for happiness upsets the soul with emotional revolt. The inevitable result is negative volition toward doctrine, both primary and secondary, and the believer priest to receive hardness of heart through this activity. The subjunctive mood denotes the purpose clause here, and we now have the fact that the believer is becoming hardened.

The frantic search for happiness includes self-delusion. No one ever gets into the frantic search for happiness without being involved in self-delusion. And, of course, the frantic search for happiness involves both self-delusion and sin. So self-delusion plus sin characterizes frantic search for happiness and this is brought out in our next phrase, “through the deceitfulness of sin.” The word “deceitful” is an instrumental case of the verb apath, and it means self-delusion. Then we have the word “sin” which is the ablative singular of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], and hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] means basically to miss the mark. Here hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] means a frantic search for happiness. The Exodus generation tried a frantic search for happiness in operation golden calf, which also illustrates the self-delusion of sin — but not sin in carnality, sin in reversionism. Remember, there is a difference between a supergrace believer’s sinning and a carnal believer.

Hebrews 3:13 “Keep on encouraging self and others on each successive day, as long as it is called This day; that not one from among you begin to become negative by delusion from the source of sin.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Delusion from the source of sin is the frantic search for happiness.

“On each successive day while it is called today” means don’t wait for tomorrow when it comes to taking in doctrine. You come home at night and you’re tired and worn out, and you sit down and say that you really don’t think you can make Bible class tonight. If I did I wouldn’t get anything, I’m too tired, I’d fall asleep. There is always some way to rationalize. So the phrase, “while it is called today”, is very important. It means don’t let a day go by without taking in some spiritual food.

The Pattern of this Verse Can Be Summarized under Eight Points

What is the pattern for hardness of heart?

1. The believer becomes disillusioned, bored, discouraged, overcome by self-pity, frustrated, bitter, jealous. One or more of these factors arise in the life.

2. The believer reacts to one or more of these conditions and enters into a frantic search for happiness. This function is the self-deception or the self-delusion of sin.
3. Delusion from sin results in emotional revolt. Emotional revolt further destroys capacity for love and capacity for life.
4. The combination of frantic search for happiness plus emotional revolt of the soul causes negative volition toward doctrine.
  - a. Speaking in gibberish and relating that to healing makes no sense.
  - b. A vocabulary is related directly to the soul.
5. Negative volition, either primary or secondary, causes scar tissue on the soul which opens the vacuum to the right lobe, into which Satanic doctrine is sucked or drawn. The Satanic doctrine leads to demon influence.
  - a. Easter Sunday is an invention of the Catholics, to get people into church.
  - b. They give them 40 days to dry out.
6. The result is called in Ephesians chapter four the blackout of the soul in which the believer has no doctrinal resources for his priesthood to function. Remember that your priesthood functions only on Bible doctrine.
7. The blackout of the soul is followed by reverse process reversionism.
8. During this entire process the believer reaps what the believer sows. He reaps self-induced misery, he reaps three stages of divine discipline — warning, intensive, dying.

1972 Hebrews 3:14

Lesson #32

32 04/15/1973 Hebrews 3:14 Isaiah 30:29 Partnership of the priesthood

Two guys stand up who are associated with tapes and pubs, but in remote locations.

We have now arrived in the section of the passage which deals with our partnership with the Lord Jesus Christ. It is imperative that we as believers in the Lord Jesus Christ recognize the principle of full time Christian service. In the day of apostasy in which we live a distinction is made between clergy and laymen. This distinction is often based upon erroneous principles and concepts. The distinction does exist in the area of spiritual gifts and does exist in the assembly of the local church. The authority in the local church is vested in the communicator and whenever and under whatever conditions there is a gathering together of believer priests for the teaching of the Word every believer is a student without portfolio. Yet through the fulfilment of this objective every believer in the Lord Jesus Christ reaches the objective God has for him. This objective should begin immediately after salvation. Once you believe in the Lord Jesus Christ there are two roads you can take. One road is a road of progress that leads to the supergrace life. This is a road of functioning daily under GAP. This is the road which fulfils that which we are appointed at salvation.

One of the 36 things we receive at salvation is a priesthood. Every believer is a priest as of the moment he puts his trust in the Lord Jesus Christ. The normal function of the priesthood does not occur until the supergrace life. This means the constant intake of doctrine into the left lobe of the soul, the cycling of that doctrine into the human spirit of the soul, the picking up of that doctrine by a vacuum line that takes it into the heart or the right lobe of the soul, resulting in doctrine in the frame of reference, doctrine in the memory centre, doctrine in the vocabulary and the categories, doctrine in the norms and standards, and doctrine on the launching pad.

Now with doctrine on the launching pad, that sends out a signal and that signal matches the fourth floor of the ECS which is capacity for love, category #1. The two signals together form a vacuum that goes right into eternity past at which point God begins to pour. In other words, supergrace is characterized by 1) occupation with the person of Jesus Christ, 2) by supergrace capacities. That is the cup. That is when God starts pouring. The supergrace capacities include capacity for freedom, for life, for love, for happiness, prosperity, for adversity, and so on. And this is God's objective, to pour. But God never pours without a cup. That is one of the rules of the angelic conflict. Once there is a cup then God begins to pour, and divine prosperity designed for us in eternity past is poured, and we call that supergrace blessings. That is the objective. That is when God is glorified by your life. Most people think that you glorify God by doing something for God, but glorifying God is God being glorified by being able to give without reservation to you. So we have that principle in the supergrace life.

All of this is related in our passage to the priesthood of the believer. We saw in chapter one how Jesus Christ became a member of the human race and in resurrection, ascension and session became higher than angels. We have seen not only this to be a fact and a principle involved in the angelic conflict, but as a result of this there is one man in all of the universe who is now higher than angels: Jesus Christ in resurrection body seated at the right hand of the Father. Ultimately this is the objective for all believers from the beginning of time to the end of time — to occupy a resurrection body, to live in heaven, and to be completely and totally superior to angels. But this superiority will not exist until resurrections occur, and at the present time the only one who has been resurrected is the Lord Jesus Christ Himself. However, in the flesh every believer is designed in this age to be a priest. Every believer is in full time Christian service. There is no such thing as a layman. Whatever you do in life it is your full time service. And it is God's objective to bless to the ultimate, and also to provide adversity where there is absolute blessing in the adversity. God has designed the most wonderful life but God cannot even begin to pour until you come to the party. And no believer priest comes to the party until first of all he has possession in his soul of an ECS and has entered into the supergrace life.

To be a traitor of a country is one of the most awful things that one can conceive, but there is something worse than that and that is to be a believer-priest and a traitor to God. This traitorship comes through reversionism.

There are two roads then, the road to supergrace which is now emphasized in this verse, and the road to reversionism which has been emphasized since chapter three, verse seven. On the road to supergrace the believer reaps what God sows. The supergrace believer comes under Romans 8:28. Romans 8:28 does not apply to any believer except the supergrace believer, and is so stated in its context, “We know that all things work together for good to them who love God.” The “all things” refer to the fact that God has planned it in eternity past for you — money, prosperity, right man or right woman, blessings that are almost beyond human understanding. All of these things were provided, and that is one thing. The other thing is to reach the supergrace life, and when one thing combines with the other thing you have “all things working together for good”, or God pouring. Romans 8:28 is God pouring for the believer who has the cup, the believer who has the supergrace capacity. That only applies to the supergrace believer. To the reversionist God’s love applies in a different way.” “Whom the Lord loves he chasteneth,” and God’s love is expressed in a different way in reversionism. In reversionism you reap what you sow. You reap divine discipline in three categories. You reap self-induced misery. The believer priest is neutralized in reversionism; the believer priest fulfils the very purpose for which he is still alive on this road. The difference: one is positive volition toward doctrine and the other is negative volition toward doctrine. That is the difference we must face as we now come to the supergrace partnership in verse 14.

If you rededicated yourself, then you did nothing but make an ass out of yourself, with the help of some pastor or some youth leader, etc.

Heb 3:14 For we have come to share in Christ, if indeed we hold our original confidence firm to the end. (ESV)

we are re-doing this passage. Some passed a few lessons ago.

Verse 14 begins with a continuative explanatory particle. The particles often reveal a great deal of what is going on in the scripture. gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is a continuative explanatory particle, it is designed to relate the daily function of GAP and the warning against the neglect of doctrine with the believer’s priestly partnership with God in the Church Age. You are in full time Christian service. The moment that you believed in Jesus Christ God did 36 things for you. One of those 36 things was to make you a priest. Another was to appoint you an ambassador. It is your priesthood which is in view right here. The word “priesthood is not mentioned yet because of the reversionism of those to whom this was originally addressed. Priesthood will not be mentioned until chapter five. In the meantime a word to substitute for priesthood is the word that we have now — “partakers”, the Greek word metochos (μέτοχος) [pronounced MET-okh-oss] means “partners.” We are in partnership.

However, that isn’t quite correct. The verb isn’t correct because it says here in the English “we are made.” This is the perfect active of ginomai which means to become something you were not before. Before we were not partners, we were nothing. Now, at the point of salvation we suddenly become something in that God made each one of us a priest. And while the priesthood is not anticipated until chapter 5:1ff, right now it must be understood that the priesthood is called “partnership.” Every believer living on the earth is in partnership with Jesus Christ the high priest seated at the right hand of the Father, and we became this. We were not priests before; now we are priests. We have become something we were not before, and it is erroneously translated “we are made.” To make it even worse, this is the perfect active indicative of ginomai and in the Greek the perfect tense is the tense of completed action. In other words, the fact that we are in partnership, the fact that we are priests, that was an action completed at the moment we believed in Christ. The perfect tense is something that has happened in the past — at salvation — but the results go on. The results in view here: supergrace is the objective of the priesthood of the believer. So we have a completed action. Not only is the action completed but the results of the action are emphasized. Here is what is called the intensive perfect of the Greek. It emphasizes the existing results from the completed action. At the cross the believer was appointed a priest and this is a phase one commission. All believers are appointed a priest. The results in phase two only can be realized through the daily function of GAP, and as you GAP it day by day you will come to recognize and to appreciate your priestly partnership with Jesus Christ for it is a partnership into which you have entered.

Now when you enter into a partnership it is not a religion. Religion knows nothing of partnerships. Religion knows something of hierarchies. Religion dispenses good on the basis of you being good. Religion is a combination of human good inciting human good. But your partnership is not designed to do that. Your partnership is a relationship and therefore if you think you are religious you are wrong. There is no religion in Christianity. Christianity is a relationship, but more than that, Christianity is a partnership. Right now, you have a life of meaning and purpose and definition, even though you might say to yourself, I have a difficult life, I have a miserable life. There is no such thing in God's sight. You are a partner and God is waiting for His partner to come to the party so He can pour. And you ask, "Well, why haven't I been able to come to the party?" It is the simplest thing in the world. You GAP it to supergrace and once you have supergrace capacity it is a party from then on out, the rest of your life is a party. Reversionism is leaving the party. So God has a purpose for your life. God has invited you at salvation, by making you a priest, to a party that won't quit!

Bob's father's parties would last for days. He knew how to throw a party. He drove from Chicago to New York to get some cases of champagne.

Bob went to see an old drinking buddy of his father.

Do you know what it is like when a party is over after it has gone on for two or three days? You have seen how a street is broken up with a trip hammer. Well five of those guys are in your head, one in each one of the compass directions and one going out the top! That is what happens when a party is over, and that is the way reversionism is too. Reversionism is a spiritual hangover. And God says there is no excuse for reversionism. God says, I will never stop pouring, and your capacity is the only thing that counts. Your capacity is based on the intake of Bible doctrine.

Bob wants to thank all 5 of you rounders for understanding that illustration.

Here is the principle. Most people think that Christianity is some painful thing where you must constantly be "suffering for Jesus" so that somehow you will make points for eternity. God intends for you to enter into this partnership — you are already a partner — by receiving from Him all the blessings He designed for you in eternity past.

Isaiah 30:29 “You shall have a song, as in the night [a party] a holy solemnity is kept [that is what God calls His party]; and +H of the right lobe [happiness], as when one goeth with a pipe [flute] to come into the mountain [a party in the hills] of the Lord, to the Mighty One of Israel.”

This is party language and this is what God intends for you. God intends for you to come to the party. How do you get into this party? All you have to do is show your priesthood at the door for God knows your priesthood as of the moment you are saved. God is waiting to bless you. God is thoroughly disgusted with people who have all of these wonderful blessings waiting for them and they won't come to the party. God has for some, great wealth; He has for some, promotion; He has for some, success; He has social and sexual prosperity; He has some adversity too to prove that He can handle that for you and show that you can have perfect happiness in the midst of that adversity. God has a fantastic life but no one really lives the Christian life while they are growing. All have heard the old idiom, “Green behind the ears” to express callow youth, and God cannot bless callow youth. God has fantastic blessings and God never stops pouring, but for some of you He will never start pouring and He will be disgusted with you. And how does God express His love plus His disgust? You go out under the sin unto death. Just think. By missing all of the blessings of God in supergrace, what is the alternative? To die miserably under the sin unto death. You really have to be stupid to want one over the other.

The perfect tense is intensive. We have become in the past with results that will continue — when we come to the party. And what is the book of Hebrews? A manual of instruction on how to come to the party. It is a manual of instructions of what to do with your priesthood. It is a manual of instructions of how to come to the place of occupation with the person of Christ. The book of Hebrews is designed to bring the believer to the celebrityship of Jesus Christ.

The active voice: the believer priest produces the action of the verb when he reaches supergrace. No capacity for divine blessing means no capacity; no cup and God does not pour. The indicative mood is the reality of the partnership without the blessings of the partnership. The writer to the Hebrews is addressing himself to believers in reversionism, people who are not coming to the party but are saved. The partnership is the reality at salvation, the blessings of the partnership come through supergrace.

“For we have become partners of the Christ” — we have a genitive of relationship with the word Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOSS] plus the definite article — “the Christ.”

The Priesthood

1. The priesthood stands because it is based on salvation. You will always be a priest no matter what kind of a priest you are. You may be the world's worst reversionist but you are still a priest, and as long as you are a priest you have the right of recovery and the right of moving to supergrace.
  - a. What you receive at salvation is permanent. No power combine, no government, not even you can take away from what you are given at salvation.

- b. This includes the priesthood.
2. But the blessings of the priesthood demand supergrace capacity.
  3. The principle of partnership is part of the priesthood but the experience of partnership comes from the entrance into the supergrace life. In other words, it is one thing to be a priest, it is another thing to enjoy the blessings of the priesthood. In other words, the normal function of the priesthood begins at supergrace and until you reach the supergrace status you are not even a normal believer. So there is a difference between being appointed as a priest and functioning as a priest.

Therefore a condition is set up. You are a priest, you cannot lose your priesthood. You have eternal life, you can't lose it. God vindicates you on the basis of His righteousness; and now He vindicates us on the basis of a priesthood which you will always have, but the blessings of that priesthood only come to those who enter supergrace.

That is why our next word in our verse is "if." This is a compound particle which becomes a conjunction — eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN]per. Usually eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] is used to introduce the third class condition — eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] plus the subjunctive — but here we have the enclitic particle per added to it to make a compound. Why? Eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN]per plus the subjunctive introduces a third class condition of great intensity, a third class condition of great importance. it means you must sit up and take notice because here is available to you divine blessing beyond your greatest imagination.

God wants to give you that which is perfect for you but you won't hold still long enough to get anything. It is one thing to be a priest, it is another thing to have God pouring to the priest. And God does pour. When David said, "My cup runneth over", that was one of the greatest understatements of the Bible. There are no limitations with God. The limitations lie with the ruler of this world, Satan. Now there are limitations. No one ever sold himself out to the devil and got anything but trouble, but the believer who goes all out for the Lord (and it is so easy. All it means is taking in doctrine once a day) there are no limitations. Is it any more difficult to take in spiritual good each day than physical food?

The bachelor who stays alive by buying cans of tuna and a good can opener. And he is able to keep himself alive on tuna. He is keeping himself alive for his right woman. Then maybe they will have two cans of tuna.

When you hear a doctrine more than once, so what? Bob loves baked beans; and he can eat them all the time.

Without stretching it one of the easiest things in the world is to take in Bible doctrine daily. It is not all that hard. And the repetition of doctrines from time to time doesn't make any difference. It is easy to take in food every day and it is easy to take in spiritual food. God has made it available.

You think you are ready for God's blessing, but you are not. You lack the capacity for blessing. God does pour when you are ready for it.

Now what does eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN]per have to do with this wonderful partnership? The effectiveness of our priestly partnership depends on entrance into the supergrace life. While the believer is appointed a priest at salvation he does not function effectively in this partnership until he reaches supergrace. And this is an intensive 3rd class condition. It emphasizes the volition. It emphasizes the principle that your consistent attitude toward Bible doctrine will determine your spiritual life and the function of your priesthood on this earth. Only the supergrace believer functions under category #1 love — i.e. toward his high priest, Jesus Christ. In supergrace Christ the high priest is recognized as the only celebrity. The 3rd class condition, then sets up alternatives of reversionism versus supergrace with emphasis on supergrace status at this point. In other words, salvation is a simple issue. Your attitude toward Christ determines where you stand in eternity — salvation or eternal condemnation, the lake of fire. After salvation that is no longer the issue, the issue is your attitude toward doctrine, your attitude toward spiritual food. To take it in on a daily basis is the road to supergrace; to reject it is the road to reversionism.

That is why we now have a verb with the compound particle eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN]per — “if we hold”, the aorist active subjunctive from the compound verb katechô (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh]. Katechô (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh] is composed of the preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] for norm or standard and the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh] which means to have and to hold. katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] also means “down.” It means to hold something down permanently, and therefore katechô (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh] doesn’t really mean to hold here, it means to retain — “if we retain.” Now bringing out the per in eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN]per it would be “if indeed”, a little more intensive.

“if indeed we retain the beginning.” Archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAY] is used in many ways in scripture. In this case it has the definite article referring to a specific beginning — “if indeed we retain the beginning.” The beginning has to do with the way we started. No one is ever saved without getting some information about the Gospel, about Christ. And we took that in and the Holy Spirit made it real. And the volition of the soul responded to that and said, Yes, I believe. That is the beginning. The fact that you believed in Christ means that you retained, momentarily at least, enough information to be saved. The retention factor here must be perpetuated. The Gospel is doctrine. After salvation it is still doctrine. Why? Principle: God must vindicate His Word, doctrine, in the soul of the believer priest.

The aorist is the constative aorist. How do we retain? The principle is we take in doctrine today, tomorrow, the next day, and the next and the next, and so on. So we have a constative aorist. The active voice: volition is always involved in all uses of the angelic conflict, this is no exception. You must be positive toward doctrine. The subjunctive mood goes with the third class condition.

“of our confidence” — unfortunately, not correctly translated. The word for “confidence” is the noun hupostasis. It means essence. So what is the concept here? The real essence of the priest is doctrine in the soul. God knows this, therefore God has provided everything to fulfil the hypostasis or the essence of the priesthood. First of all, at salvation every believer was made a priest. After salvation, what does a priest function on? How does he fulfil his partnership? Doctrine. So God has provided from eternity past the doctrine that the believer priest needs, and He provides it on a basis so that you can have it on a daily basis, a consistent basis, so that you can go all the way to supergrace. Therefore God set up a law in eternity past, a law which He does not and has not violated.

In eternity past he decided how it would be done so that he could keep His own essence intact. First of all, there must be the capacity and therefore God provided the spiritual manna for the believer priest to the Church Age — doctrine. And when doctrine comes and fulfils its objective in the soul of the believer priest behind it comes supergrace blessings. The occupation with Christ must come first, and it does. You don't have to worry about it, it always does where doctrine is taken in. After occupation with Christ or the celebrityship you have the capacity which is the cup and behind that is the supergrace blessings so that all things — one thing in eternity past and one thing in time — blend together for good (which is what work together really means. It means they blend for good). Therefore, what is holding you up from great blessing right now?

In eternity past God provided for you, and He provided X number of things to keep you alive. That is simple grace. Then He provided for you X number of blessings whereby you would enjoy life and put the devil right back on his angelic ear. That is the supergrace area. The first factor doesn't depend on anything, God is keeping you alive whether you like it or not. The second factor does depend on your attitude toward doctrine — a non-meritorious attitude, that is always the way of grace, it never changes. Therefore, we must retain the beginning of our essence.

In India, there might be an arranged marriage between a 9 year old boy to a 6 year old girl. What is the problem? They have no capacity for marriage. So they consummate their marriage much further on down the line.

“if indeed we retain the beginning of our essence” — and the retention merely follows God's law: Doctrine before blessing; capacity before fulfilment. You must have the capacity before the fulfilment. The capacity factor is supergrace status. Once you reach that then God will bless you in a fantastic way. Doctrine in the soul is the essence of the believer priest. It begins with Gospel type doctrine and ends up with the whole realm of doctrine.

“steadfast” — this is a noun, the accusative singular of bébaios (βέβαιος) [pronounced BEB-ah-yoss] and it means “stabilized.” Stability results from the consistency and the continuation of the intake of doctrine. The real stability comes from reaching supergrace. Supergrace with the ECS becomes the stabilizer of your life.

Now this should go on until the end of your life. “Unto the end” is a prepositional phrase. We have an adverbial preposition, mechri/mechris (μέχρι/μεχρις) [pronounced MEHKH-ree/mekh-RIHS]. This is called an impersonal preposition. And we have the genitive singular of telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss], the ordinary Greek word for termination or ending — “stabilized by supergrace until the termination or the ending of your life.” There is a time coming when you will depart from this world. If the Rapture doesn't occur first it will be based upon physical death. In heaven there will never be one moment of suffering or one moment of regret. There is no embarrassment in heaven. The alternatives to supergrace are your own self-induced misery leading to discipline.

Some communicators are very legalistic. He gave a message based upon the girlie shows that he had to walk past when he went from his hotel to the Church of the Open Door. "And God will ask you, where were you when you were raptured up?"

There is no embarrassment in heaven. No matter how great you can imagine your life, it is better in supergrace.

Hebrews 3:14 "For we have become partners of the Christ [our high priest], if indeed we retain the beginning of our essence [doctrine in the soul] stabilized by supergrace until the end."
R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. The priestly partnership of the believer has an essence. The essence is doctrine in the soul. What changes your life experientially? Doctrine in the soul. Not decisions you make but doctrine you receive.
2. Why? because God must vindicate His Word in the souls of believers. God is no respecter of persons but God does respect His Word — Psalm 138:2, "He has magnified His Word above His name."
3. The universal priesthood of the believer was designed to operate on doctrine in the soul.
4. Therefore the canon of scripture was completed for the Church Age, was completed for the age of the universal priesthood of the believer. This is the only dispensation in which every believer is appointed a priest at salvation. Therefore the canon of scripture was completed for the Church Age so that every believer would have his spiritual food in writing. This spiritual food is available through the teaching of the Word of God.
5. The stability of this partnership comes through the supergrace life.
6. The supergrace life comes through the consistent intake of doctrine.
7. The supergrace life begins the normal function of the priesthood and capacity for divine blessing. By divine blessing is meant all of the things that God provided for you in eternity past. Materialistic thing; promotional things, God is tapping His foot waiting to provide these things for us in our lives.

v.15 is the rejection of the supergrace life.

1972 Hebrews 3:15

Lesson #33

33 04/15/1973 Hebrews 3:15 Doctrines of GAP; hardening process; revolution

Bob reads the correct translation.

Verse 3 — "... the one who has builded the house has more glory than the house." It is God's desire to construct a house of prosperity and the day that God can prosper you in supergrace is the day that God is glorified, and there is a permanent record in heaven of you having so been blessed in time. In other words, reward in heaven is based upon receiving divine prosperity in time. God isn't glorified by your suffering, God is glorified by your being blessed. A priest is designed to be blessed just as the house should be built well. And if God is the builder the house is built well.

Heb 3:15 As it is said, "Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion." (ESV)

Verse 15 — the rejection of the supergrace partnership by some believers. The partnership is there, the partnership is a reality, but every reversionist is not only in revolt against God as a believer but he rejects the very partnership which he possesses, and therefore never derives any benefit from it.

"While it is said" — the word "while" is a prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of the definite article plus the present passive infinitive of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. It is an idiom. There is also a definite article between the preposition and its infinitive object. Now this is actually an idiom to introduce a temporal clause which quotes from Psalm 95:8. The temporal clause quotes Psalm 95:8 in order to apply the reversionistic failure of the Exodus generation to the Jewish believers living in Jerusalem in 67 AD, and it is recorded in the Word of God to further apply to any reversionistic believer living thereafter. From the time of the writing of the book of Hebrews in 67 AD to the present day. Right down to this moment this particular phrase, this temporal clause, was designed to apply to anyone who is indifferent antagonistic, or in any way negative to Bible doctrine. It is incompatible with your priesthood to be indifferent, negative or antagonistic.

So literally, this passage should start out by saying, "So long as it is being said." This is the best way to translate the idiom. The idiom applies to the Old Testament passage and to every generation from David to the present. And since Psalm 95 goes back to the Exodus generation it applies to the Exodus generation, 1440–1401 BC. It applies to David's day. David wrote and cited the Exodus generation as the illustration of reversionism. It applies to 67 AD to whom the unknown writer of Hebrews applies it. And then being a part of the canon of scripture it goes on applying as long as time exists.

The idiom applies, an Old Testament passage then, to every generation of believers but places the emphasis on the Church Age. Why? Because in the Church Age every believer is a partner with Christ, and that partnership will be defined when we get to chapter five as a priesthood. For the first time in history a radical change has occurred. This isn't the first time in history that a universal priesthood was offered. A universal priesthood was offered to Israel and rejected, just as at one time Moses was the only supergrace believer in Israel and God said I will destroy the rest of Israel and give you the land and give you a new progeny. And Moses turned down that very attractive offer, and in this way again demonstrated the fantastic concept of supergrace blessing.

So the essence of the priesthood is doctrine in the soul. The appointment of the priesthood occurs at salvation but all essence of the priesthood is related to doctrine in the soul. The normal function of the priesthood begins at the point of the supergrace life.

The word “Today” is the adverb which has been used so many times — ha jom in the Hebrew, sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on] in the Greek. It now takes on a new meaning. If today and tomorrow and the next day we do not take in doctrine it constitutes, according to this passage, a repudiation of our priesthood, a repudiation of our partnership with Christ. Therefore the next word is again that conjunctive particle eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] which introduces the third class condition and shows the options of the Christian life. Here the third class condition emphasizes the believer’s volition related to the teaching of Bible doctrine.

“if ye will hear”— the aorist active subjunctive of the verb akoúô (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh]. This is in the constative aorist which gathers up into one ball of wax every time the believer assembles and listens to the teaching of Bible doctrine; taught, of course, by one with the gift of pastor-teacher. The active voice: the believer priest in partnership with Christ produces the action of the verb. The objective is supergrace. The subjunctive mood indicates a third class condition and the involvement of the individual’s volition.

“his voice” — this is actually Bible doctrine. This is the genitive singular of phônê (φωνή) [pronounced foh-NAY]. It is a descriptive genitive for doctrine. Doctrine is said to be the mind of Christ, the voice of the Spirit. Once again this is the concept. This is Bible doctrine taken from the Word and communicated to you. The conditions under which you hear His voice are grace conditions. We must never forget that. It is grace that you have the Bible. It is grace that God has given the gift of pastor-teacher to someone. It is grace that the pastor-teacher can communicate to an assembly. It is grace that assembly exists. And the whole thing is called GAP, the grace apparatus for perception.

The Doctrine of Gap (Review)

1. It is vitally necessary for every believer to shed any inferior attitude toward his own IQ. Some people are very proud of having a high IQ; some people are very disturbed about having a low IQ. It is therefore absolutely necessary to recognize that when you assemble as a believer priest your human IQ is no handicap in the intake of Bible doctrine. Human IQ is the number assigned to someone on the basis of dividing their mental age by their chronological age. The mental age is determined by testing, the chronological age is determined by interrogation and there is a very definite way in which an IQ is established. Spiritual IQ, however, is the amount of Bible doctrine stored in the human spirit, in the right lobe. Also it is based upon how much of the ECS is constructed in the soul. The information on which this is accomplished is strictly a matter of grace perception. The distinction between human and spiritual IQ is the subject of 1Corinthians chapter 2, and from that passage it is demonstrated that a low IQ person can understand as much as a high IQ person in the field of Bible doctrine.
2. Human IQ is excluded from GAP. Everything with which God is related, everyone has the same crack at it — 1Corinthians 1:19-2:16 is the basic passage and it teaches that human IQ, which is a feature in learning academically, has absolutely no connotation in taking in Bible doctrine. In other words, a low IQ believer is not handicapped in learning doctrine. In eternity past God found a way through grace whereby every believer can learn doctrine apart from any human perspicacity ability. For this reason every believer in the dispensation in which we live is not only a priest, not only a partner with God, but he is indwelt by God the Holy Spirit — he has at the point of salvation a human spirit — and the indwelling of then Holy Spirit plus the activation of the human spirit totally sets aside any human IQ concepts. So that a genius believer who is negative cannot learn as much as a very stupid positive believer.

3. When you and I were born again, the moment we were certain grace things were provided for us whereby spiritual phenomenon is learned.
  - a. God the Holy Spirit;
  - b. The activation of a human spirit;
  - c. A classroom (local church) set up in eternity past but not revealed until the Church Age began;
  - d. A person who has the gift of pastor-teacher. All of these things are provided as grace gifts. None of them are earned, none of them are deserved, none of them are based upon any type of human merit.
4. Everything begins with the perceptive lobe or the left lobe in the mentality of the soul. Recalling once again that the soul has self-consciousness by which you are aware of your own existence. That is sometimes called by the first person singular pronoun, egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced eg-OH] in the Greek. It is not pride, it is awareness of your own existence. Pride is a mental attitude sin which is an extension from the ego, but ego itself is never sin. Then the area where you do your thinking, the two frontal lobes. There is your volition, your emotion, your norms and standards or conscience.
5. Involved first of all are the frontal lobes. The two together form the mentality of the soul. Mentality is divided into two frontal lobes and the perceptive lobe in the perceptive lobe. It is called in the Greek noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose], just as the right lobe is called kardia (καρδιά) [pronounced kahr-DEE-uh] or heart. One is called “mind”, one is called “heart.” Mind plus heart makes up the mentality of the soul. The perceptive lobe or the noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose] in the Greek is the basis for all information being processed. Whatever you learn, whatever you have learned by human perspicacity or the grace system for perspicacity, whatever you have learned in all of your life, it all started in one lobe. This is actually the staging area for all information. In the field of human perspicacity you have a number of wires going back and forth between the two lobes. it is processed in one place as objective information and it is passed into the next lobe for utilization. That is human perspicacity and that is not the way God does it. God has given us the Holy Spirit and God has given us a human spirit at the point of salvation. And with the ministry of God the third person and the human spirit as a second staging area it is now possible for us to learn the whole realm of doctrine. That is the command to all believers without exception. God intends for every believer to learn the whole realm of doctrine. It must be communicated; it must be received.

6. The left lobe or the mind becomes the staging area for spiritual perspicacity. The Holy Spirit must control the believer at the point of teaching. This is why rebound is so important and why rebound is the first function of the priesthood and the baby function of the priesthood. It is absolutely necessary for God the Holy Spirit to control the life because this lobe is the concentrating lobe. An initial concentration begins here. Once you concentrate on the information and you understand it objectively, then you have gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] which is nothing more than objective information residing in your left lobe. This information in the left lobe cannot be applied to anything, ever. Your applier is the launching pad. And this is why James said don't be just a hearer. "Hearer" means to objectively understand. A "doer of the Word" is the believer with doctrine in his right lobe. The effectiveness of your life is based upon doctrine in your right lobe. It is possible to have an objective understanding of something but that does not make it a part of your soul's assets. The left lobe information is never cognisance, it is objective understanding in a staging area. Information in a staging area is not a part of the soul's assets. The doctrine must be in the right lobe.
7. This is known historically as receptive comprehension. Receptive comprehension means to understand data but not to be able to apply it. We must remember that receptive comprehension is the first stage of GAP and is vitally necessary but not the end.
  - a. 1066 or 1776 are meaningful dates, but it is not much help to you, even if you know what happened then, but have no effect on your lives.
  - b. Bob watched an operation being done on the inside of his mouth, and he watched all of it, but he could not do it himself.
8. In order to understand the end let's take up, for example, what God has provided in grace so that we can learn doctrine. These are things that God has provided whether you want them or not. Remember, we have grace provision in eternity past. You are alive; that's grace. You have had food today; that's grace. You have shelter, you have clothing; that's grace. Supergrace is dependent upon a consistence in positive volition reaching a status. But grace includes everything that we are now going to outline:
  - a. God has provided for you the Bible, the formation and the preservation of the canon under the doctrine of inspiration. That is grace. You didn't earn it, you didn't deserve it.
  - b. You have a classroom (local church), and that is grace. You didn't earn it, you didn't deserve it.
  - c. The spiritual gift of pastor-teacher. Somewhere, you have a right pastor. You don't earn it or work for it, neither does the right pastor earn or deserve the gift. We learn by monologue, not dialogue. This is grace provision.
  - d. The priesthood of the believer for privacy and freedom of reception of doctrine.
  - e. God the Holy Spirit, the third person of the Trinity, indwelling so that GAP will function apart from, over and above, human perspicacity or human IQ — 1Corinthians 2:9-16; 1John 2:27. And the believer must be filled with the Spirit for this function to occur — Ephesians 5:18. And, again, the filling of the Spirit is a grace function, the rebound technique — 1John 1:9.

- f. The rebound technique whereby any believer can recover the filling of the Spirit in a relatively short time.
  - g. The human spirit given at the point of salvation which is the target for GAP. The human spirit is a distributor of spiritual phenomena.
  - h. The provision of the laws of divine establishment whereby the national entity protects the freedom and the privacy of the local church. This is a place where our own nation has been outstanding over the past 100 years.
  - i. The realm of human anatomy. Without oxygen it would be impossible for us to assimilate, and God provides oxygen. There must also be sugar whereby the neurones in the brain can function, etc. All of this is a grace provision.
9. The whole area.
- a. Operation ICE is the communicating end.
    - i. “I” is for isagogics which interpret the Bible in the framework of its historical setting. The Bible must be understood in the time in which it was written, not the time in which it is being interpreted.
    - ii. The “C” is for categories, Categorical teaching is based upon a very simple hermeneutical principle of comparing scripture with scripture. It develops the concept of the classification of information in the scripture.
    - iii. “E” is for exegesis which is the analysis of each verse within the framework of its context, emphasizing its grammar, its syntax, its etymology, from the standpoint of the original languages. All of these things are put together and they form the communication of information.
  - b. This information goes to the left lobe — operation gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis]. This is, again, receptive comprehension whereby the believer is positive toward doctrine, concentrates on the information in the assembly, being filled with the Spirit he listens, he understands what is taught or re-taught, he comprehends at this stage, but it does not mean he agrees with it. In the left lobe receptive comprehension means you understand what is being taught. Understanding does not mean agreement. The real issue comes, as James points out, not in hearing but in doing the Word. And that is operation epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. Before doctrine is any good to you the doctrine in the left lobe as gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] must be transferred into the human spirit and converted to epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] is objective information, made clear by the ministry of God the Holy Spirit, but which cannot be applied. It is epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] which is applicable, useable. It is epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] which is the basis of all growth. The transfer of the information to the human spirit from gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] is faith. Faith merely says, “I believe it.” Faith sees the truth of it and converts it to epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] . It is secondary negative volition that keeps people from growing. Secondary negative volition is to say no to what you understand. “Yes” no gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] is a non-meritorious function. The word is pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] — “faith.” Pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] is not only used in the Greek for faith, it is also used for doctrine or what is believed, and it is pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] that converts gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] to epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] . Secondary negative volition refuses to convert gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] to epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] , which is a condition of the reversionist.

Who did the teaching to the Exodus generation in view in this passage? a) Moses, the greatest Bible teacher of his day and one of the greatest Bible teachers who ever lived; b) Angels. They were actually taught by angels; c) Aaron, and eventually his sons as they became adults.

So it is non-meritorious positive volition, i.e. faith, which transfers gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] into epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] . Once epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is in the human spirit then epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is working doctrine. First of all epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is picked up by a vacuum line which takes it into the right lobe and distributes it in the frame of reference. The memory centre then picks it up and makes it a part of your new vocabulary. You have to have a vocabulary with which to think. Then the classification of doctrine, or the categories, begins to build. The norms and standards are filled with this doctrine so that they comply with divine norms and standards. The launching pad begins to fill and, as a matter of fact, it is from this launching pad that you get that first vacuum going back into eternity past. At the same time epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is not only siphoned in a vacuum line but it also builds and begins the construction of the ECS. As epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] increases it is taken into the right lobe, it is used for structural material in your ECS, and there comes a time when you initiate from your launching pad through doctrine, from the fourth floor, capacity for love, category #1, which creates a vacuum going all the way into eternity past and, as it were, God pours through that vacuum the supergrace blessings.

In the frame of reference we have some very interesting factors, factors which are extremely important. It is your frame of reference which actually links up with your launching pad and makes you a believer oriented to what is going on. For example, the fame of reference is basic comprehension for more doctrine. The greater your frame of reference and the greater your vocabulary from the frame of reference the easier it is to understand new and more doctrine. When in your frame of reference, for example, you have the supergrace concept, reversionism, the few basic doctrines in this area, and you have a vocabulary and have them down categorically, this means that any new information on any of these subjects, or related subjects like the priesthood, is easily grasped. And when this becomes epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] — like the priesthood — you can relate it immediately. The next few chapters relate the priesthood to either reversionism or supergrace showing the advantages of one and the disadvantages of the other. As a matter of fact they put your whole life on the line and, at the same time, they structure certain areas of your soul.

For example, your ability to love God is based upon Bible doctrine and if Bible doctrine never goes any farther than the gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] stage you do not love God, you cannot love God, you are a fake. Oh you can say, “I love God”, but you really don’t because you don’t have the capacity. Comprehension of more doctrine is based upon epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis], then, is the basis for setting up comprehension of more advanced doctrine. It also establishes a new conscience, it gives you the divine viewpoint, it deals with problems of the subconscious. Right off of your frame of reference is your subconscious and this is a very dangerous spot. This is where you store things to which you react in a guilt way. Information for guilt reaction is kept here. This is once and for all sealed off by a maximum amount of epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] doctrine, so that the problems of guilt reaction are minimised and removed. Your content for prayer, your accuracy in witnessing, your discernment of false doctrine, the beginning of your capacity for life, the beginning of your capacity for love, your ability to identify a true friend as over against a false friend, your ability to identify right man, right woman. All of these plus the normal function of the priesthood all begin at this particular point. Therefore it is imperative to understand the issues connected with it.

This is what it means when it says, “if you will hear his voice”. This and one other thing which we cannot ignore. You must accept the authority of the communicator. If you do not then you will be guilty of one or two types of negative volition. Primary negative volition means you will not assemble. You will “forsake the assembling of yourselves together as the manner of some is”. All believers are priests and are commanded to assemble. Or, in assembly you will have gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] doctrine but you will fail to transfer it, and this is secondary negative volition. And either primary or secondary or a combination of both will keep you from ever growing and will guarantee a life of reversionism, a life of self-induced misery and divine discipline. The “if” indicates that it is up to you as a believer priest.

“harden not” — present active subjunctive of sklêrunô (σκληρύνω) [pronounced sklay-ROO-no] plus the negative mê. The present tense plus the negative mê indicates to stop doing something you are doing. This means that the people to whom this was originally addressed were hardening their hearts, were in a state of obstinacy. The active voice: the believer priest in this case is producing the action of the verb. The believer priest is a Jew living in Jerusalem three years before one of the greatest of all historical cataclysms. Then the subjunctive mood is a prohibitive subjunctive which carries the force of a command but recognizes the involvement of human volition, and recognizing that volition is an issue in the angelic conflict, states it without a command but to show you the danger of the course on which you have embarked. This was true of the born again Jews in Jerusalem in the year 67 AD.

The Doctrine of the Hardening Process (Review)

1. The believer is in a certain type of status which includes disillusion, boredom, loneliness, discouragement, self-pity, frustration, bitterness, jealousy. For one reason or another one or more of these in the life forms a reactor — not response, react. (You respond positively; you react negatively) You react to these things. The reaction is the frantic search for happiness.
2. The frantic search for happiness can be of a number of types. Everything depends upon the condition of the old sin nature as it relates to the soul at that time. All factors of the old sin nature can be involved, or some. For example, if the frantic search for happiness involves sinning, it may be just simply living it up, going out on the town, fornicating, chasing, raising hell, getting skunk drunk, and so on. Or if the area of strength is involved it might be going to Africa as a missionary, etc. If your trend is toward lasciviousness then you are going to go out and fornicate, but if it is toward asceticism you are going to give up everything. If it includes approbation lust you are going to become a holy-roller and go out and speak in tongues, etc. All factors of the old sin nature become involved, and also with them the frantic search for happiness is coterminous with or the emotional revolt immediately follows.
3. There is always then, after the frantic search for happiness, the third stage of hardening the heart — emotional revolt. Under emotional revolt your whole personality is changed. If you are a woman you are no longer feminine. If you are a man you are no longer masculine. The man has a tendency to become effeminate; the woman has a tendency to become horsy and pushy. Other factors involved are multitudinous. They involve such things as getting into the holy-roller activity, finding something to stimulate the emotion, etc. But there is one factor that cuts out doctrine as long as it occurs. Emotional revolt has a principle that goes with it. Emotional revolt demands entertainment. It demands that someone do something for you to entertain you, to make life pleasant. Emotional revolt cannot stand to be crossed or rejected. That is why a lot of people can't stand Bible teaching, because Bible teaching isn't entertainment.
4. The fourth factor is the combination of emotional revolt and frantic search for happiness leads to the signs of negative volition toward doctrine, primary or secondary, or in between, the rebound concept. Negative volition toward doctrine can be apathy. It can be antagonism. It can also be rationalism. But whatever combination you use the result is scar tissue on the soul and the opening of a vacuum which is as harmful as the vacuum from the human spirit to the right lobe is a blessing. This is the tube through which all Satanic doctrine reaches the right lobe. It is called in the Greek mataiotês (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace] and is often mistranslated by the word "vanity". But it is a vacuum line, and this vacuum line draws in Satanic doctrine or the doctrine of demons of 1 Timothy 4:1. The accumulation of doctrine of demons becomes the sup of demons and a believer cannot drink of the cup of demons and the cup of the Lord. As a result of this information going into the right lobe the believer's attitude on everything in life, his norms and standards, completely change and the result is the blackout of the soul.

a. Those in emotional revolt demand to be entertained; but they are terrible to be around.

5. The blackout of the soul. This is the state of no doctrine plus demon influence. No believer can be demon possessed but he is under demon influence. Demon influence is the doctrine of demons so saturating the soul as to form a blackout of the soul.
6. The blackout of the soul is the influence of demons when under negative volition.
7. The blackout of the soul leads to the practice of reverse process reversionism. Reverse process reversionism is characterized as the hardening process. Each one of the points adds a little hardness to the heart, as it were. The hardening process which begins with point #1 terminates with what we have in 2Thessalonians: "Strong delusion." That is the ultimate in hardness.
8. Each one of these points makes the heart a little harder.

"in the provocation" — we have the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of the noun parapikrasmoj which means revolution, revolt. So we will call it "the reversionistic revolution". It refers, of course, to the Meribah. The Hebrew word is meribah but it is translated from the Hebrew to the Greek, parapikrasmoj which is embitterment leading to revolt.

Hebrews 3:15 "So long as it is being said, Today if you will hear his voice, stop hardening your right lobes, as in the reversionistic revolution." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

The Doctrine of Revolution (Review)

1. The Word of God does not justify revolution — Romans 13:1–7; 1Peter 2:13,14; Numbers 16.
2. Revolution involves anti-authority mobs, people who are against authority set up by establishment. Therefore lawless mobs which can neither think nor achieve anything compatible with the divine institutions. Remember, a mob does not think.
3. Revolution by Biblical standards means apostasy, rejection of authority, lack of Bible doctrine — Isaiah 1:3–5; 59:13.
4. So that a conclusion is drawn: Revolution by its strictest definition is anti-God — Isaiah 31:6.
5. Revolution is caused by the failure of the right lobe in the soul — Jeremiah 5:23. Invariably revolution involves as its constituents or personnel a maximum number of people suffering from emotional revolt of the soul, and invariably they are reversionistic.
6. Many revolutions do not start with so-called evil. This is the rationalisation of revolution. The real motivator of revolution is jealousy — Isaiah 11:13 cf. 1Kings12:19 and 2Chronicles 10:19.
7. The greatest hindrance to revolution is the communication of Bible doctrine — Ezekiel 2:3–10.
8. Heathenism is the result of revolution — Romans 1:19-26. And no revolution sweeps a country without being accompanied by degeneration. Revolution always means degeneration of a people. This degeneration is described in principle in Romans 1:27–32.

9. The principle of revolution. Approbation and power lust on the part of some seek to destroy whatever is necessary to gain power. Revolution is always a power grab based upon power lust. It includes the destruction of freedom, rights, privacy, and property of others. Revolution is a Satanic device in the angelic conflict to establish a cosmic kingdom and superimpose Satan's will over the human race.
10. Reversionism causes revolution; supergrace is its antidote — Hebrews 3:8,9, 15,16. First, the temporal revolt is reversionism constructed on rejection of the laws of divine establishment. Both believers and unbelievers can be involved. Secondly, spiritual revolt is reversionism based on rejection of Bible doctrine and it for believers only. So we must distinguish between temporal revolt and spiritual revolt. Temporal revolt is the believer and the unbeliever revolting against establishment, but a spiritual revolt is the believer in a state of reversionism revolting against Bible doctrine and God's plan.

1972 Hebrews

34 04/16/1973 Hebrews 3:16 Doctrine of reversionism

The balance of this chapter is devoted to application. In verses 16–18 five questions are asked the generation involved as the original recipients. The original recipients of this passage are those born again Jews living in Jerusalem in the years 67 AD.

Heb 3:16 For who were those who heard and yet rebelled? Was it not all those who left Egypt led by Moses? (ESV)

Verse 16 — the particle which begins the first question is used as a conjunction to express and explanation. The particle is used in many ways in the Greek — Gar. It could be explanatory as it is here, the illitive or inferential, it could be continuative. It has many uses. The problem here is the word “some” which is an interrogative pronoun in the nominative plural — tís (τῖς) [pronounced tihç]. It should be translated, “For who”, and it refers to a lot of people.

“when they had heard” — aorist active participle of the verb akoúô (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh], one of the most common verbs for the function of GAP, indicating that the Exodus generation definitely had Bible teaching. The aorist tense in the constative aorist which means for forty years as they traveled through the desert they had constant teaching from Moses, from Aaron, from angels. They had phenomenal, excellent Bible teaching. The active voice: they did the hearing. This is also an aorist participle. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb is coming up next: “did provoke.” “For who having heard”. All the Jews of the Exodus generation heard Bible doctrine but only the reversionists provoked. Some were positive toward doctrine in the Exodus generation but you could count them on one hand — Moses, Joshua, Caleb, Moses' second wife, and possibly Aaron. Most of the Jews of the Exodus generation were all born again believers, those twenty and over, and they all went the way of reversionism.

The problem in the translation is “did provoke” — aorist active indicative of parapikrainw which means to revolt. It is again a constative aorist because somebody was always in revolt. People in reversionism are in different stages just as growing believers are in different stages. Parapikrainw is usually a transitive verb which means to provoke or to be made angry, but it is intransitive in its use here. This verse so far should be translated, “For who having heard revolted.” That is the first question posed by the writer of Hebrews. The word “revolt” refers, of course, to reversionism.

Regarding this First Question

1. “For who having heard revolted.” This question refers to the fact that the reversionists of the Exodus generation were all exposed to Bible teaching, and lots of it. Furthermore, they not only had the communication and teaching of Bible doctrine but they had it under the best possible communicators. Moses was an outstanding teacher; angels were excellent teachers. So that every adult person who was liberated from bondage or slavery in Egypt heard consistent, excellent communication of doctrine.
2. The goal of the Exodus generation was Canaan. Canaan is not a type of heaven, it is an illustration of the supergrace life. And furthermore, the capacity to enjoy Canaan demands the supergrace status on the part of the Exodus generation.
3. As with the Exodus generation so with every believer in the Church Age. We have the opportunity for learning doctrine. We have something they did not have, we have the canon of scripture completed, and that means everything we need to know is in writing — preserved in writing forever. Therefore, just as they had the opportunity so we have the opportunity of spiritual growth — the erection of the ECS, entrance into the supergrace life with the celebrityship of Jesus Christ, with supergrace capacity and supergrace blessing.
4. Therefore, as is always the case, reversionism is not a matter of ignorance, it is a matter of negative volition — primary: refusal to assemble; secondary: refusal to transfer from the left lobe to the human spirit by faith.
5. Negative volition toward doctrine, either primary or secondary, inevitably results in scar tissue, blackout of the soul, reverse process reversionism.
6. The question again: “Who having heard revolted?” The answer to the question is simple: all the Jews of the Exodus generation revolted — entered into reversionism, minus five: Moses, Aaron, Caleb, Joshua, Moses' second wife. Out of those, only two out of the five supergrace heroes actually entered the land — Caleb and Joshua.

There is a lot of revision in the doctrine below.

The Doctrine of Reversionism

1. Definition:

- 1) Reversionism is the status quo of the believer in phase two who is negative toward doctrine. Consistent negative volition toward doctrine enters one into the status of reversionism.
  - 2) Reversionism is also recession from any stage of growth in the spiritual life. This means that you may have a partial ECS when the recession begins. You may have a completed ECS. You may be like David and have already entered supergrace.
  - 3) Reversion is one of the two states of phase two, the other being supergrace. There are refinements within these two stages dealing with carnality and spirituality, but these are the two general concepts and the scripture constantly emphasizes these things.
  - 4) The unbeliever in life can also enter into reversionism. His reversionism is recession from the laws of divine establishment. The mechanics of his reversionism as well as the principle of it are found in 2Peter 2:17–22. It is always a recession from establishment and it eventuates in liberalism. All liberalism is a form of recession just as apostasy is a form of recession.
  - 5) Mechanically the unbeliever can also reversionism through rejection of the Gospel. When an unbeliever rejects the Gospel he becomes a candidate for reversionism. In this case he is making a recession from Gospel hearing.
  - 6) Reversion must be distinguished from carnality. The carnal believer is a believer out of fellowship but he is positive toward doctrine. On the other hand, reversionism is negative volition and perpetually out of fellowship. The carnal believer gets back in fellowship; the reversionistic believer does not rebound.
    - (1) The answer in warning discipline is rebound.
    - (2) The answer in intensive discipline is repentance.
    - (3) The answer in the sin unto death, is repentance.
  - 7) The carnal believer rebounds, continues to GAP it to supergrace while the reversionist does not rebound and continues to move toward the sin unto death.
  - 8) Bob cannot think anything worse than someone fornicating with his mother (father's wife?). He rebounded and repented and is okay.
2. The mechanics of reversionism:
- 1) The believer enters a status which produces reaction — disillusion, boredom, discouragement, loneliness, self-pity, frustration, rejection, bitterness, jealousy.
    - (1) Some can suffer disillusion and be okay. Others, it knocks them out.
    - (2) Some suffer from boredom, particular when doctrines are repeated.
    - (3) Bob has a lot of different feelings, but it is his job to stand up in front of them and teach, no matter how he feels. The same is true when those are in Bible class.
    - (4) Too often the response to discouragement is changing one's environment, like changing jobs, or churches, or moving to another part of Texas. People get discouraged in marriage. They react to it and want to change mates.

- (5) Loneliness and self-pity are often first cousins. Often they are found together.
  - (6) Frustration, nothing is going right in business, nothing is going right at home. Things are all screwed up again.
  - (7) It is inevitable that some of us get jilted and you react to the whole system. "If the girls are like that, then to hell with them!"
- 2) The believer reacts to one or more of this list by a frantic search for happiness. A frantic search for happiness can be obvious or subtle. An obvious one is going out and raising hell. A subtle one would be getting what they call the second blessing. There are many ways to react, but whatever the frantic search for happiness reaction is it will be characterized by one thing: the omission from your agenda of any Bible teaching. That will be sure. The frantic search for happiness always upsets the soul — always. The part of the soul that is upset is the emotion. Not everyone is the lusty, hell-raising damn everyone else; some react in other ways and become more religious. No two people have the same idea of happiness.
  - 3) A reaction to one of those mental attitude sins followed by a frantic search for happiness always includes negative volition toward doctrine.
  - 4) The emotional revolt of the soul, which occurs simultaneously or immediately after your brand of frantic search for happiness begins.
    - (1) One flaky gal came to Berachah and tried doctrine for 3 days.
  - 5) Frantic search for happiness plus emotional revolt leads to the next sub point which can be manifest in a number of ways. It is negative volition either in apathy, indifference, or antagonism. There are a number of areas in which negative volition is expressed:
    - (1) 1. Refusal to assemble — primary negative volition;
    - (2) 2. To assemble but to refuse to rebound;
    - (3) 3. Refusal to transfer doctrine by faith into the operational stages, the human spirit and then right lobe — secondary negative volition.
  - 6) Negative volition resulting in scar tissue and opening a vacuum to your right lobe — the mataiotês (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace] — by which the doctrine of demons of 1 Timothy 4:1 enters the heart or right lobe. With the entrance of the doctrine of demons you begin to drink of the cup of demons and you are now in a status called demon influence. This is not demon possession. Demons cannot indwell the body of the believer. They can possess doctrinally your right lobe.
  - 7) This results in a blackout of the soul and the practice of reverse process reversionism.
3. The discipline of reversionism.
    - 1) The warning stage — James 5:9; Revelation 3:20. This is the category of discipline in which rebound plus GAP produces the recovery.

- 2) The intensive stage — Psalm 38:1–14. Not only is the discipline intensified but this is the stage of strong delusion — 2Thessalonians 2:11. In this stage repentance and, in most cases, healing from some disease is necessary for recovery — James 5:14–16.
- 3) The dying stage — Psalm 118:17,18; 1John 5:16. This is related to the doctrine of the sin unto death. Reversionism is the cause of the sin unto death every time. No one ever dies the sin unto death unless they are in the stage of reversionism — Jeremiah 9:16; 44:12; Philipians 3:18,19; Revelation 3:16. Relationship between negative volition toward doctrine in reversionism and the sin unto death is found in 1Chronicles 10:13,14.
4. The principle of reversionism is found in Galatians 5:4 — “All of you reversionists have become null and void [useless, powerless, unprofitable, non-productive] from the ultimate source of the Christ, whosoever of you are being vindicated by means of the law, you have drifted off course from the grace.” So reversionism is drifting off course from grace.
5. Reversionism always rejects the authority of Bible teachers. Good one like Moses — Exodus 16:20; 17:3; Numbers 11:5. Or like Jeremiah — Jeremiah 44:16. Or like the apostle Paul — 2Corinthians 6:11,12 and chapters 7,10,11. To bring it down to today: Every born again believer has a right pastor, and it means rejecting the authority of and the communication of one’s right pastor. So when there is a large number of reversionists there are a lot of right pastor’s being unheard.
6. In reversionism the believer uses mental attitude sins to perpetuate his carnality, and this invariably contaminates others. A reversionist always is characterized by a maximum number of mental attitude sins which contaminate others — Hebrews 12:15.
7. Biblical descriptions of reversionism:
  - 1) Drifting off course from grace — Galatians 5:4.
  - 2) No one failing from the ultimate source of the grace of God — Hebrews 12:15.
  - 3) Being uncircumcised of heart — Jeremiah 9:25, 26.
  - 4) A tortured soul (Emphasizing the self-induced misery that goes with reversionism) — 2Peter 2:7,8.
  - 5) An unstable soul — 2Peter 2:14.
  - 6) Lukewarm — Revelation 3:15,16.
  - 7) The enemy of the cross — Philipians 3:18.
  - 8) Leaving your first love. This emphasizes category #1 love or occupation with Christ — Revelation 2:4.
  - 9) Fallen — Revelation 2:5.
8. Recipients of the book of Hebrews were involved in reversionism — Hebrews 5:11–14.
9. Reversionism recovery is impossible apart from the daily or consistent function of GAP — Hebrews 6:1–3; Revelation 3:19,20.

10. Reversion recovery is impossible when one continues to practice religion — Hebrews 6:4–6 — or when one is involved in the phallic cult — 2Corinthians 12:20,21. In other words, certain conditions can exist in life whereby reversion recovery is impossible. And notice that they go back to the old sin nature's trends: lasciviousness or asceticism (phallic cult or religionism).
11. Reversion leads to perversion. Some people on the reversion road become very abnormal — like homosexuals, lesbians. These people aren't sick, they are sinfully degenerate. When homosexuality is tolerated on a national scale the laws of divine establishment are ignored and the national entity disintegrates — Romans 1:29-32.
12. Reversionism always intensifies suffering — Psalm 77.
13. The doctrine of reverse process reversionism. Reverse process reversionism is departing from a proper and normal relationship in life and picking up an improper and abnormal one. It is a reversal of objects, from the right object to the wrong object. It occurs in every category. For example, category #1 love. The object of our love in category #1 is Jesus Christ, and it is the rejection of that. And, for example, in the days of Jeremiah there is the turn to Baal — Jeremiah 8:9-11, 15,16, 20. Also, this was what happened to the Nicolaitans in Revelation 2:14,15. This is again stated as a principle in Revelation 2:4,5 — “leaving one's first love.” In category #3 love — James 2:1–5.
14. Reversionism in psychosis — 2Peter 2:15–19: certain areas of reversionism and the practice of reverse process reversionism lead to one form or another of psychosis.
15. There are categories of reversionism.
  - 1) Phallic reversionism — Colossians 3:5; 2Corinthians 12:21; Ephesians 4:19; 5:5; Revelation 2:14, 20–23.
  - 2) Ritual reversionism — Hebrews 5:11–6:6.
  - 3) Monetary reversionism — James 4:13,14; 5:1–6; Revelation 3:14–20.
  - 4) Drug addiction reversionism — Galatians 5:20, the Greek word is farmakeia, mistranslated “witchcraft” and means drug addiction.
  - 5) Anti-establishment reversionism — 2Peter 2 and Romans 1.
  - 6) Mental attitude reversionism — James 4.
  - 7) Psychotic reversionism comes from that — Job chapters 3 and 4.
  - 8) Verbal reversionism — James 5:9,12.
16. Reversionism destroys supergrace status and supergrace living. Just as reversionism kept the Exodus generation out of the land of Canaan so reversionism keeps the believer from the ECS and the supergrace life, supergrace capacities and supergrace blessings. And just as reversionism caused the Exodus generation to die under the sin unto death so today it puts believers under the same maximum discipline.
17. The profile of reversionism — Psalm 7:14–16.

“For who having heard revolted?” We are dealing with reversionism. The second question: “Howbeit not all” is allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] ou pantes (πάντες) [pronounced PAHN-tehç] and should be translated “But did not all?” Allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] ou pantes (πάντες) [pronounced PAHN-tehç] is a Greek style brought in from the classical Greek. It is the diatribe style in which a rhetorical question is answered with a rhetorical question.

Then we have “that came out”, the aorist active participle of exerchomai (ἐξέρχομαι) [pronounced ex-EHR-khoh-mai], referring to coming out of slavery in Egypt. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. We translate so far: “But did not all having come out from Egypt” — ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], A)iguptoj. This emphasizes the fact that the entire generation was not only delivered from slavery but they were also born again believers.

“by Moses” — dia plus the genitive should be translated under the concept of agency — “through the agency of Moses.”

First question: “But who having heard revolted?”

Second question: “Did not all having come out from Egypt through Moses?”

This expects an affirmative answer, minus five.

Summary

1. Moses was the grace agent, the grace leader, the supergrace hero of God to deliver the Jews from slavery.
2. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb — “revolted.” They came out of Egypt before they revolted. That is the point. They had freedom before they used that freedom to revolt in reversionism.
3. The Jews were graciously delivered from Egypt before they entered into the reversionistic revolution against God.
4. At the time of the Exodus, 1440 BC, there were approximately two-million adult saved Jews delivered.
5. The very nature of the grace deliverance plus the faithful dissemination of Bible doctrine should have oriented the Jews to the plan of God and the pattern of grace. In other words, grace deliverance demands, logically, more grace afterward — Romans 8:32.
6. The logical conclusion of grace in salvation is supergrace in phase two.
7. At the cross God provided the solution to the greatest problem of all, the sin problem through grace. Now God provides the solution to minor problems through His supergrace.
8. We have more grace as believers when we need it less than we had at the cross when we needed it more.
9. Remember in this concept the analogy to doctrine. The deliverance from slavery in Egypt is an illustration or a type of salvation. The Passover is the appropriation of salvation. Canaan is a picture of the supergrace life. Between the Exodus and Canaan is the issue of attitude toward doctrine — positive or negative, GAP or no GAP. The testing from God in the desert is to bring out the total ability of grace and the complete inadequacy of reversion. The celebrityship of Jesus Christ makes supergrace heroes out of ordinary believers

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #35

35 04/17/1973 Hebrews 3:17–4:1 Challenge to supergrace

First question: “But who having heard revolted?”

Second question: “Did not all having come out from Egypt through Moses?”

Verse 17 — the third question: “But with whom was he grieved forty years?”

Heb 3:17 And with whom was he provoked for forty years? Was it not with those who sinned, whose bodies fell in the wilderness? (ESV)

We have a transitional particle here used without any contrast intended — de. This particle is often used as an adversative conjunction. Here, of course, it is merely a transitional particle. Instead of “but” it should be translated “then”; “with whom” is the dative plural of the interrogative pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç]; and then “was he grieved” is the aorist active indicative of projoqxizw which means to be disgusted. It is an anthropopathism, the same as found in verse 10. It indicates the presence of love coated with disgust. It is a human term ascribed to God in order to explain why God disciplined the Exodus generation. “Then with whom was he disgusted forty years?” The forty years is the length of the Exodus generation’s reversionism, their discipline, and the time of their dying. The answer to the third question is the reversionist of the Exodus generation.

The fourth question: “Was it not with them that sinned?” “Was it not” is a very strong negative used as an interrogative word — ouchi. This particular negative is not only interrogative but it demands or expects an affirmative answer. “Was it not with the ones who missed the mark?” Hamartanô (ἁμαρτάνω) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TAHN-oh] is an aorist active participle which means sin but it has a basic meaning of missing the mark. It means sin in that sense.

“whose” — genitive plural of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]. It refers to the reversionists of the Exodus generation; “carcasses,” — kwlon indicates almost two-million bodies — “fell”, the aorist active indicative of piptô (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh] should be translated “had fallen”. The aorist tense is a constative aorist referring to the entire Exodus generation. Every time someone died in the Exodus generation it was discipline. The active voice: the reversionist produces the action of the verb, and the action of the verb is the sin unto death. The indicative mood is the reality of the sin unto death to the Exodus generation — “whose dead bodies had fallen in the desert?”. And then you have to add to that, “Affirmative.”

Hebrews 3:17 “Then with whom was he disgusted forty years? Was it not with the ones having missed the mark? Whose dead bodies had fallen in the desert? Affirmative.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Heb 3:18 And to whom did he swear that they would not enter his rest, but to those who were disobedient? (ESV)

Verse 18 — “And” is the transitional particle de, and should be translated consistently as “Then” — “to whom,” a genitive plural of the relative pronoun and again it is referring to the reversionists of the Exodus generation — “sware he” — aorist active indicative of omnuō (ὀμνύω) [pronounced om-NOO-oh], which to promise with an oath. It is used for a solemn promise — “that they should not enter into his rest”. “Enter into “ is eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahēe], and refers first of all to the land of Canaan. And Canaan represents supergrace, and since they were minus capacity for supergrace they were minus supergrace. “His rest” — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis]. This is the rest which is analogous to the supergrace life. Other times “rest” is different in the Greek and has a different connotation. “Then to whom did he promise with a solemn oath that they should not enter into his rest”, and then there is an answer. The word “but”, ei (εἰ) [pronounced Ī] m (μή) [pronounced may] in the Greek, means “except” — “except to them that believe not” is not quite correct. It is the dative plural aorist active participle of a)peiqew which doesn’t really mean not to believe. Peiqew means “obedience; the a in front of it means “no obedience”. And it means to be obstinate, to reject authority, to be a rebel in the soul.

Hebrews 3:18 “Then to whom did he promise with a solemn oath that they should not enter into his rest? Only to those having been obstinate.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Principle

1. Reversionism keeps the believer out of the supergrace life.
2. Reversionism also means perpetual discipline for the believer all the way to death. The climax, then, to reversionism is to die before your time under the sin unto death, therefore under miserable conditions.
3. In this sense 1Corinthians 10:5 tells us that the Exodus generation was strewn out all over the desert. They lined the desert with their corpses.
4. Moses was the exception. Moses died viewing the land of Canaan. He did not go into Canaan but he did not die from reversionism — the sin unto death. Moses did not enter into the land because of a failure in his own leadership function. But not the sin unto death.

Heb 3:19 So we see that they were unable to enter because of unbelief. (ESV)

Verse 19 — “So” is a conjunctive kai used in the explanatory sense. In other words, one clause is connected with another clause by kai for the purpose of explaining the first clause. To explain those five questions we now have a conjunction, translated “And so we see”, the present active indicative of blepō (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh]. This is a customary present tense. “And so we see [we conclude, we learn].” The active voice refers to the individuals listening to this being taught. The indicative mood means to understand under the function of GAP.

“that” introduces a Greek conjunction. It is used after verbs of perception to indicate the content of perception, to see what is being understood — hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee]. Conclusion: “And so we perceive that they could not.” This is not a Koine Greek phrase. The morphology here is Attic Greek, and it is the Attic aorist active indicative of dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahée]. It is much more ancient than the Koine Greek. This plus the negative means “they were not able”. The aorist tense, being a constative aorist, takes up the whole forty years. In other words, any years between year one and year forty any or all of these people could have recovered from reversionism and GAPed it to supergrace and still gone into the land. But they didn’t. In other words, God gave them forty years. The constative aorist says an effect that the possibility was always there. They just didn’t avail themselves of the spiritual food. They were inconsistent. They took in physical food but not spiritual food.

“to enter in” — the aorist active infinitive again of eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahée], referring to the land of Canaan, an illustration of supergrace. The culminative aorist tense here means taking the whole ball of wax and coming down to the end. It gives us a conclusion. The infinitive indicates that God’s purpose was still open. The active voice: they were still alive and any time they were alive they could have recovered and moved. They did not recover. The Exodus generation has to be, without equivocation, the worst bunch of idiots who ever believed in Jesus Christ. They had everything in the world going for them but the thing that really counts.

You can have all kinds of human assets, attractiveness, a great personality, intelligence; but if you are without doctrine, then you are behind the eight-ball.

“because of” — preposition dia plus apistia, which is correctly translated “unbelief” and can be translated “lack of faith” or “unfaithfulness.”

Hebrews 3:19 “So we perceive that they were not able to enter in because of unfaithfulness.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

It is not unbelief here. Unbelief wasn’t their problem in the sense that we use the word. Unbelief connotes no salvation. They were saved people. Their problem was not rejection of Christ, their problem was rejection of doctrine. Technically, in our language we use the word “unbelief” for those who do not believe in Jesus Christ when the Gospel is presented. And for those who are believers, those who are born again, rejecting doctrine is called unfaithfulness.

The Exodus Generation

1. The Jews of the Exodus generation are used by the unknown writer of Hebrews to set up an example for the Jews living in Jerusalem in 67 AD.
2. Both generations, the Exodus and the generation of 67 AD, were reversionistic.

3. However, one generation, the Exodus, was out of the land trying to get in, while the other, in 67 AD, was in the land trying to get out. But essentially the condition of soul was the same: born again believers who had neglected Bible doctrine to the point of maximum reversionistic complications.
4. One generation was punished by the sin unto death in the desert, the other was punished by the sin unto death in Jerusalem.
5. Both generations reached the point of the sin unto death in the same manner: negative volition, indifference, apathy, rejection of Bible doctrine.
6. They failed to feed on spiritual food, they failed to GAP it daily, and therefore they failed to utilize faith-rest in the function of GAP

Conclusion from the Whole Chapter

1. Every generation of believers faces the identical issue. After salvation the issue is: What think ye of doctrine? This is the issue of phase two, the issue to which you must have a continuous positive attitude.
2. Why? The principle: God must vindicate His Word. God's Word is available in more languages and in more places than ever before. The only place where God can vindicate His Word in relationship to you is in your soul. It is the Bible doctrine in your soul through GAP that God vindicates in you. That is where God starts pouring.
3. Therefore blessing or cursing depends on your attitude toward Bible doctrine during your stay on this earth.
4. Positive volition toward doctrine leads to supergrace and the normal function of the priesthood.
5. Negative volition toward doctrine leads to reversionism and the sin unto death.
6. Reversionism means cursing; supergrace means blessing.
7. The difference between reversionism and supergrace is doctrine in the soul of the believer.
8. From this doctrine in the soul comes the principle. Under supergrace the believer reaps what God sows, and the reaping is the icing on the cake. God gives you the cake whether you want it or not. On the other hand the cursing of reversionism is the believer reaping what the believer sows. He sows negative volition; he reaps divine discipline

Heb. 12:6 for the reversionist; Rom. 8:28 for the supergrace believer.

The translation for chapter 3 is reviewed first.

Chapters 4–5: Outline.

Chapters Four and Five Go Together, They Should Have Been One Chapter.

1. The challenge to supergrace: 4:1–13
2. Supergrace related to the priesthood of the believer: 4:14–16
3. Introducing the unique high priest: 5:1–10

4. The reversion of the Jews interrupts the discourse: 5:11–14

In verses 1–3 we have the application of Israel’s failure to reach supergrace in the Exodus generation.

Heb 4:1 Therefore, while the promise of entering his rest still stands, let us fear lest any of you should seem to have failed to reach it. (ESV)

Verse 1 — we begin with the word “Therefore” which is a particle used as an inferential conjunction — ουν. It is designed to remind us that the application is the conclusion of the matter as far as the Exodus generation is concerned. We notice from our study of the last chapter that the Exodus generation is a failure generation and therefore a parallel to the generation to whom this was originally written. And it is a part of the Word of God to remind you that you too can be a part of a failure generation when your contribution is simply negative volition toward Bible doctrine.

The Bible is very clear when it tells us not to be afraid of anything. Fear is really a mental attitude anyway, a mental attitude sin — Isaiah 41:10. Over in Timothy, “we have not been given the spirit of fear but of power and of love and of sound mind”. One of the characteristics of the supergrace life is freedom from all of the psychotic, neurotic, sociopathic problems of the soul.

The inferential conjunction, then, states a conclusion from the previous context and turns it into an application. And there is an area where we are commanded to be afraid. The Exodus generation failed, their carcasses were strewn all over the desert. There is nothing wrong with dying but there is everything wrong with the way they died. They died the sin unto death, horribly and painfully and before their time. The same thing is about to happen in one of the great catastrophes of history, the siege of Jerusalem in 70 AD. A lot of believers to whom this was originally written are going to die horribly in that siege.

The woman who ate half of her baby and saved the rest. I think that this is during the destruction of Jerusalem. Rats were a delicacy. They really went through it, they died horribly. Famine rids a society of the weak sisters. Passing laws to let consumers sue people. Bob is a consumer; and if someone is smart enough to chisel him, then bully.

“let us fear” — aorist passive subjunctive of phobeō (φοβέω) [pronounced fob-EH-oh] which means to fear. The aorist tense is a peculiar type of Greek idiom. Here it denotes an action as occurring without reference to its progress. This is what is called an indefinite or unlimited use of the aorist tense. The Greek word α)ριστο)ι means unlimited or indefinite. This particular aorist states the fact of the action without regard to its duration. So here we have what is known as a dramatic aorist. A dramatic aorist states a present reality with the certitude of a past event. It states a result which has been accomplished. Basically this is a dramatic aorist with an ingressive concept. On other words, at this point the writer says under the dramatic aorist, “Other people have failed, you are doing the same thing. Now it is time for you to be frightened about your failure.” “Let us begin to fear” — that brings in the ingressive aorist concept.

As a result of their reversionistic failure they have before them an illustration of what is going to happen — the Exodus generation. The writer says, Now that you have met the Exodus generation it is time for you to be afraid that you, too, will go the same way as the Exodus generation. The passive voice: the subject receives the action of the verb. The subject is the believer priest living in Jerusalem in 67 AD, and he should receive fear as he now realizes the implications of the third chapter of Hebrews. It is time to get frightened.

The subjunctive mood is what is called a hortatory subjunctive, the writer invites the readers to join him in a course of action. The subjunctive carries the weight of a command here but it emphasizes the importance of human volition. The human volition of the believer priest determines whether he continues in reversionism or backs off and recovers and goes toward supergrace.

Actually, the fourth chapter is the chapter of hortatory subjunctives. There are four of them: the one here — “Let us begin to fear”; verse 11 — “Let us labour [be diligent]”; verse 14 — “Let us hold fast”; verse 16 — “Let us come boldly.” Somewhere, somehow you have to become frightened about something important. You are to be frightened about nothing except missing the boat with regard to Bible doctrine.

Communists are anti-God; and they are killed and spend eternity in hell. All of the weird things being done with legislation. We are not to be frightened about that or anything else. Death should not frighten us or even taxes. You’re stupid; you should be frightened about doctrine. Preachers use fear to motivate those in their congregation. Some are frightened by our terrible education system. You realize for the first time that doctrine is important. If you get out of doctrine, then you should be scared as hell, and the devil will chase you back in to Berachah, missing you with his pitchfork only by an inch. If you decide you are going to neglect doctrine, off you go.

The verb itself sounds warning bells in the soul because the believer is commanded not to fear anything in this life, as per 2 Timothy 1:7, and when you get an exception the exception is to act as a warning. Different things frighten different people, so there is in this passage a thing called the secondary cognisance of fear. What you ought to be afraid of is not getting doctrine but if you go into reversionism you are negative toward doctrine so you couldn’t care less about doctrine. So in the warning stage of divine discipline you get things that frighten you so that you will want doctrine again. So in the first stage the Lord Jesus Christ knocks on the door, and the knocking on the door are things that would frighten you; not someone else, but you. So God dumps a whole lot of whatever scares you right in your lap. In that way some will open the door and get right back to Bible class. So the exception is the believer being frightened of missing all the wonderful things God has for him in time.

The rewards we receive are based upon doctrine in our souls. RM/RW, promotion, money, whatever. You must have a cup in order for God to pour. People think that God is giving us a hard time so that we might appreciate heaven. How can God pour for a bunch of travest monks?

“a promise” — this is a part of the genitive absolute. It is therefore a noun in the genitive singular, epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah]. It means a promise of great blessing. God has promised blessing. It refers to the promises that are involved in the principle of Romans 8:28. The promise belongs to the supergrace believer with the supergrace capacity — wealth, promotion, etc., anything that belongs to the over and above category.

Along with the noun in the genitive case we have a participle in the genitive case which finishes up the absolute — “being left,” present passive participle of kataleipō (καταλείπω) [pronounced kat-al-Ī-po]. Kataleipō (καταλείπω) [pronounced kat-al-Ī-po] means to neglect, to leave behind, to leave unclaimed. The noun and the participle are a thought in themselves. They are both in the genitive case, they are not grammatically connected with the rest of the sentence. This is what is called grammatically a genitive absolute in which something is isolated and given maximum importance. The promise being unclaimed is of maximum importance. This participle is in a present tense which is an unusual one: the futuristic present which denotes an event which has not as yet occurred but is regarded as so certain that the tense regards it as already occurring. So the present tense is a futuristic present. God has these things for you, therefore all you have to do is have the cup and God pours. The Exodus generation and the Jews of 67 AD had failed through reversionism and the writer to the Hebrews is saying this is a possibility of very great reality with you. All of God’s promises and all of God’s blessings come through doctrine. They are all related to doctrine and God is waiting to provide them. They are claimed through the cup. God pours when the cup exists. So “a promise being unclaimed” is a genitive absolute — great emphasis.

“of entering into his rest” — the aorist active infinitive of eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahee]. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action in its entirety. It takes an occurrence regardless of its extent or duration and gathers it into one ball of wax. In the Exodus generation we know the duration because it is stated — forty years. The generation of believers in Jerusalem is AD 67, and it is three years for the constative aorist here. No entrance into supergrace; no supergrace blessings. The active voice: the subject, the believer in GAP, produces the action of the verb by entering supergrace which is consistent with his function of GAP. The infinitive mood indicates God’s purpose that the normal function of the priesthood will be under supergrace status.

“into rest” — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis]. In Matthew 11:28 you have anápausis (ἀνάπαυσις) [pronounced an-AP-ow-sis]. Pausis in both cases means rest; katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] means a norm or standard; aná (ἀνά) [pronounced aw-NAW] means again and again. One is eternal life and one is supergrace. So it is a rest according to the norms and standards God has set up, a rest based upon the intake of Bible doctrine, reaching supergrace. Under supergrace the believer reaps what God sows. God sowed in eternity past, we reap it now. God does the pouring, we just simply have a cup running over. Under reversionism the believer reaps what the believer sows, by way of contrast.

“any of you” means “anyone from among you.” The fact that others around you fail does not mean that you have to fail. We have τίς (τις) [pronounced tihç] ἐκ (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] ὑ(mwn — “anyone out from among you”. No one else’s failure has to hold you back.

“should seem” — a bad translation. It is the present active subjunctive of the verb dokéō (δοκέω) [pronounced dohk-EH-oh] which means to have a subjective opinion. It refers to subjective thinking. This is the thinking of the reversionist, the thinking of discouragement, the thinking of self-pity or frustration or disillusion. It is the thinking that comes into your soul when you have been jilted, when you are reacting against someone. So this is the thinking of reaction, the thinking that leads to the frantic search for happiness, the thinking of emotional revolt of the soul. The present tense is linear aktionsart, you keep on thinking that way.

“to come short” — perfect active infinitive of husteréō (ὑστερέω) [pronounced hoos-ter-EH-oh], which means to fall short of something, to fail to attain a goal, to be below standard or to default. It means here to default. It is in the perfect tense, the intensive perfect which places emphasis on the results of the failure to reach supergrace. The results of the failure is default. You have defaulted, you have failed to attain God’s goal for you. The active voice: the believer produces the action of such failure and he reacts. God sets up a goal for you; you default. God has this wonderful thing for you. Why default? We have the verbal use of the infinitive expressing the result of subjective thinking and negative volition.

Hebrews 4:1 “Therefore let us fear, lest at any time a promised blessing being unclaimed of entering into his rest, anyone from among you should think subjectively to the point of default.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. Thinking subjectively to default means to come short of supergrace blessing. This is the ultimate tragedy of phase two, since God has designed supergrace blessings for all believers.
2. God has a plan for your life. This plan has a goal. God wants to bless you in supergrace, God wants to pour, God wants to share His perfect happiness and certain specific materialistic blessings. This passage says you have to be afraid of missing this

You cannot afford to miss the boat. You are on the winning side, you idiot, why not enjoy some of the spoils. Stay with it, there is promotion, there is happiness.

1 [1]Protasis: That phrase or clause in a conditional sentence that sets forth the conditional elements contingent upon the following condition or statement.

2 [2]Apodosis: The phrase or clause in a conditional sentence that sets forth the conclusion or statement resultant from the conditional factors stated in the protasis.

Chapter 4

Heb 4:2 For good news came to us just as to them, but the message they heard did not benefit them, because they were not united by faith with those who listened. (ESV)

Verse 2 — we begin with an adjunctive kai. The word “For” is not “for.” We do not have the particle gar, we have kai. Kai is not a particle, it is a true conjunction. The adjunctive use of kai means “Also.” Then, with that, the particle comes in. It is an illitive particle, it introduces a reason. The reason, of course, is based on fear in the previous verse. Why be afraid? Why ever have an exception to “Fear thou not”? So the whole structure, “For also”, is designed to cause us to understand that there is a reason why we should be afraid about one thing only. If you have received Jesus Christ as Savior you should be absolutely afraid of living in phase two as a member of the family of God and missing the blessing of God pouring for you. God has fantastic supergrace blessings that are only available with supergrace capacity. Supergrace capacity precedes supergrace blessing. In other words, if you don’t have a cup in the soul God doesn’t pour. And when God can’t pour He is disgusted because in eternity past He provided fantastic supergrace blessings for you.

God has acres of money trees and he wants to drop some money on us; but we have no capacity. We should be afraid of not being able to take these supergrace blessings.

Our next problem is that “unto us” is not there in the Greek. All it says is “For also.” Then the next phrase is not correctly translated because we have four words to mistranslate a periphrastic — “was the gospel preached.” We have a periphrastic construction because it is a perfect periphrastic. This is taken from the Greek word frasij which means to combine, and with peri it means to combine around. In other words, you form a concept around a very strong grammatical structure. The perfect periphrastic is composed of a verb and a participle. The verb is the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], the absolute status quo verb. Along with this we have a perfect passive participle from the verb euaggelizō (εὐαγγελίζω) [pronounced yoo-ang-ghel-EED-zo]. The first problem comes in that euaggelizō (εὐαγγελίζω) [pronounced yoo-ang-ghel-EED-zo] in the passive voice means to receive the Gospel, it doesn’t have anything to do with the Gospel preached. This passive voice means in the Greek, as always, the subject receives the action of the verb, and so euaggelizō (εὐαγγελίζω) [pronounced yoo-ang-ghel-EED-zo] means to have received the Gospel or to have been evangelized. The perfect periphrastic is what is called an intensive and consummative structure. This brings out the meanings of the perfect tense in the Greek. The periphrastic indicates the thoroughness of the evangelism of the Exodus generation and the generation to whom Hebrews is addressed, Jews living in Jerusalem in 67 AD. The intensive concept means the evangelism of Jerusalem in 67 AD was complete. In addition to that we have the consummative concept which means there are results in that. The results are that there are many people in heaven as a result of this evangelism.

It adds up to this. The Exodus generation was a totally evangelized generation. Approximately two-million people left Egypt, freed by the grace of God. They were all saved. They were all wealthy and they were all free. The generation to whom Hebrews is addressed are Jews living in Jerusalem three years before the great catastrophe, the fall of Jerusalem to the Roman legions. They, too, have been thoroughly evangelized. The issue is not salvation. The issue is beyond salvation. Salvation is a very periodic, fleeting issue, always. Evangelization is the first issue to the human race. Once an individual is evangelized he never has to be evangelized again.

Psalms 95 uses the Exodus generation, thoroughly evangelized by 1441. The psalm, which takes in David's day which was a thoroughly evangelized generation, then goes to Jerusalem of the apostolic times in 67 AD, and there is an analogy between the Exodus generation and the Jews living at that time to whom Hebrews was addressed. One thing is made clear by the periphrastic: the Gospel is not the issue to the Exodus generation and the Gospel is not the issue to the Jewish generation. Jesus Christ as Savior is not the issue to those who have responded to the Gospel. Bob is certain that everyone there has believed in Jesus. The gospel is not the issue to us, we have believed in Jesus. The gospel is not an issue to the Exodus generation; to those in Jerusalem; or to anyone at Berachah Church. The issue is: What do you think of doctrine?

The Exodus generation flunked. They had the best doctrinal teaching in the world at that time, but they were guilty of secondary negative volition. The same problem occurs to those to whom Hebrews was originally addressed. They, too, have heard the Gospel and are now believers in phase two, very legalistic, and they have said no to doctrine. Their problem is they live in Jerusalem where no longer is there a tabernacle but a temple, and they love to go to the temple and go through the ritual of the temple. They had accepted Jesus Christ as Savior but they still had great respect for the priest. Their respect for the priesthood was so great, and it was ingrained in them and inculcated in such a manner, that they observed the ritual of the Passover even though they were saved and the Passover was no longer pertinent. Therefore they would spend Sundays listening to the teaching of doctrine and spend Saturdays observing the ritual of Israel and they never really went beyond the salvation issue, although they had been saved for a long time. The Gospel was no longer an issue, the issue now was Bible doctrine, and this they rejected.

Most of the people in Berachah are from elsewhere. Some people knocked on Bob's door and say, "I'm here." So many have such a fantastic testimony. You cannot faith rest it the rest of your life. Faith rest is, at best, a sophomore function. The objective is not to just faith rest for the rest of your life; but to get more doctrine. You have to grow, and that means doctrine. Doctrine is the issue; and this is what this passage says to us.

This helps to understand what is coming up. The isagogics are important here. The issue here is not whether you grab a promise or two, the issue is whether you realize the importance of doctrine. It is the only way you are going to get to supergrace. Supergrace is the issue and this book is about the priesthood of the believer and there is no normal function of the priesthood until you get to supergrace. The fact you are a priest doesn't mean a thing until you have the normal function of the priest and that comes through supergrace. This periphrastic says, "Look, you're all saved. That is not the issue." The issue is doctrine. The corrected translation so far is: "For we also have been permanently evangelized."

"as well as them" — the adverb is καθaper which means "even as" or "just as." And you never translate the nominative case "them"; "them" is accusative. So it should be "they." However, we have a nominative masculine plural from a compound demonstrative pronoun. This is κακεινοj. This is made up of two words, kai and ε)kainos (καινός) [pronounced kahee-NOS]. The first word here is the adjunctive use of kai which means "also," and ἐκεῖνος means "they". So you do not translate this "them" or even "they" correctly, it is "they also" — "just as [or, even as] they also." "They also" refers to the fact that the Exodus generation was perfectly evangelized. The periphrastic applies to the Exodus generation even as it applies to the people to whom this passage was originally addressed. So note the parallel between maximum evangelization of the Exodus generation and maximum evangelization of the Jews in Jerusalem in 67 AD. The Jews of the Exodus were saved but generally reversionistic. The Jews of 67 AD living in Jerusalem were saved but generally reversionistic. Reversionism blinded the Jews of 67 AD to the impending disaster of the siege of Jerusalem. And there is a principle that comes out of this very interesting structure of a compound demonstrative pronoun: reversionism cannot interpret history.

"We have been permanently evangelized even as they also were permanently evangelized," is what it says here. Principle: Reversionism cannot interpret history. The Exodus generation could not interpret the time in which they lived and in which they died because they couldn't interpret history. There is a second principle: Jesus Christ controls history, and since He does the easiest way to interpret history is to be occupied with the person who controls history. That leads to a third consideration: The supergrace believer can interpret contemporary history. If a person isn't occupied with Christ obviously he can't interpret history. So reversionism is always blind to impending historical disaster.

Our president is probably a Christian; but reversionism cannot interpret history. The last president to understand history was Theodore Roosevelt; he kept the military up and he kept us out of war. Woodrow Wilson, gets us into war every time. Who is the boy who never gets picked on? The kid who is willing to fight. A common sense president is one who understands that we need a tough military. The same old crap, no matter where you turn. True of the military and true of businesses. Poorly run businesses and the government sees to it that we have to hire a certain amount of this or that color. We are filled up with sob sisters who say that the air is not pure. Bob loves impure air. He loves the smell of Birmingham air; that is the sweet smell of business and jobs. If you don't like the air, get out. No one says you have to live there.

Our freedom is based upon the military establishment; and the food that feeds the weirdo hippies on the dole comes from free enterprise. Destroy the military and free enterprise, and you have nothing left. Texas legislator has a law up to let the consumer sue the person who sells you something. If you are dumb enough to be gyped, then you are too dumb to live anyway. We have been permanently evangelized even as they have been permanently evangelized. The supergrace believer can interpret contemporary history. Jesus Christ controls history and we have the mind of Christ, so we are able to understand historical events as they occur. The reversionist is blind to impending disaster.

We have been evangelized. We have passed that and have believed in Christ but the issue is no longer Christ as Savior. You will hear soteriology from time to time from the scripture, this helps your understanding of grace. But the issue is no longer the gospel but now the doctrine of soteriology as one of the classifications of doctrine in scripture and when you learn it, along with all of the other facets of doctrine, it all has the same concept: to give you the cup in your soul, the supergrace capacity for supergrace blessing.

So now we have an adversative conjunction, “but” — allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH]. This sets up a contrast between salvation as the issue of phase one and doctrine as the issue of phase two. The issue in phase one is Christ: “What think ye of Christ?” The issue in phase two is doctrine: “What think ye of doctrine?” After salvation everything depends on the believer’s attitude to Bible doctrine. To be positive toward doctrine is the road to supergrace, the road to occupation with the person of Christ. The difference between blessing and cursing is the difference between positive and negative volition toward doctrine. The principle: Your attitude toward doctrine determines your blessing or cursing in phase two.

The many believers in England gave them the Victorian era. Great business opportunities; great evangelistic and missionary push. Many American missionaries were protected by the flag of the union jack.

At the end of the 19th century, there was a wonderful group of believers in the US.

We have the greatest prosperity when we did not have income tax and balanced the budget.

“the word” — ho logos, refers to the doctrines of the canon of scripture. They are all gathered up into one word here — “the doctrine.” The word “preached” isn’t there in the Greek. There is a genitive of description noun and it doesn’t mean preach, it means hearing. It isn’t talking, it is listening. It is the genitive singular of akoê (ἀκοή) [pronounced ak-oh-AY], and it means “of hearing”. So it is literally, “the doctrine of hearing”, the doctrine you hear, in other words. Akoê (ἀκοή) [pronounced ak-oh-AY] means hearing, it also means instruction or inculcation. The noun emphasizes the fact that believers cannot learn doctrine directly from the Bible. They cannot classify directly from the Bible. That’s why we have the gift of pastor-teacher.

There is no sharing taking place in Berachah. “You don’t have a thing to give to me.” When you begin to function normally under the priesthood, doctrine is going to change your life completely.

Moses was a great public speaker. He laid it on the line and the people said no.

“did not profit” — the aorist active indicative of ôphelêô (ὠφελέω) [pronounced oh-feh-LEH-oh]. The word means to help, to profit, to benefit. In fact, all of the meanings of the verb apply here. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it gathers up into one ball of wax forty years of great Bible teaching by Moses, by Aaron, by the use of the tabernacle, by angels; all the doctrine that they ever had in forty years. And, by the way, they assembled. They listened. They were constantly exposed to the teaching of doctrine. The active voice: the Exodus generation produced the action of the verb. They did not profit from what they were taught. They refused to transfer doctrine by faith-rest from the left lobe to the human spirit. The indicative mood is the reality of being hearers of the Word and not doers. “Did not Profit” brings up the whole issue of negative volition.

The Doctrine of Negative Volition (points 1-3)

There are six areas of negative volition whereby you can fail to take in doctrine or fail to utilize doctrine or fail to reach supergrace.

1. Refusal to hear. This is the person who fails to assemble. This does not include the Exodus generation, we have already in this passage “the word of hearing did not profit.” This is the person who has rejected today his right pastor and doctrine, or both. That is primary negative volition.
2. Refusal to rebound after assembling to hear the Word. This is the person who assembles but because he is not filled with the Spirit he cannot take in the Word and the Word does not become objective reality in his left lobe. No gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] because he is quenching or grieving the Spirit, or both, while he sits in the assembly.
3. Refusal to use faith in the transfer. This is secondary negative volition. This is the believer who hears the doctrine under the filling of the Spirit and he understands the doctrine in his left lobe. This is the person that James calls a hearer of the Word but not a doer

1972 Hebrews 4:2 James 1:19-25

Lesson #37

37 4/19/1973 Hebrews 4:2; James 1:19-25 Doctrine of negative volition

Hebrews 4:2 “We also have been permanently evangelized, even as they also [the Exodus generation] were permanently evangelized: but the word of hearing [hearing doctrine] did not benefit them, not having been blended with faith [the faith] on the part of the ones having heard.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

#3 is where many people go astray. They do not believe what they have been taught in Berachah. If you come and listen, then it does you no good.

James 1:19 Know this, my beloved brothers: let every person be quick to hear, slow to speak, slow to anger;

James 1:19 — the perfect passage on secondary negative volition, refusal to transfer doctrine from the left lobe to the human spirit. “Wherefore” is really “Know this” — perfect active imperative of oida used as a present tense. “Every man” means “every one”, every believer, every member of the body of Christ, every believer priest — “be” is a present active imperative. The present tense of the imperative is linear aktionsart, “keep on being”. And the first factor is “swift to hear.” That is positive volition for assembling. The adjective “swift”, taxuj, means prompt, speedy. It means to have the mental attitude that goes with the function. Then we have a prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus an infinitive — “swift for hearing.” “Slow to speak” means, in context, you can’t talk and learn at the same time. “Slow to wrath” reflects the mental attitude when you assemble. If you’ve blown your cork you can’t learn anything either. All of this is the first phase of GAP. “Swift to hear”: positive volition at the point of assembly; “slow to speak”: you can’t talk and learn at the same time; “slow to wrath”: your mental attitude is vitally important and involved.

“Know this, my beloved brethren, everyone keep on being swift for the purpose of hearing, slow for the purpose of chatting, slow with reference to mental attitude sins like anger.”

James 1:20 for the anger of man does not produce the righteousness of God.

Verse 20 — “For the anger of the noble believer [the believer who assembles] does not produce righteousness from the source of God.” Righteousness is in view here for several reasons. As far as GAPing it is concerned it is to understand who and what God is.

James 1:21 Therefore put away all filthiness and rampant wickedness and receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls.

Verse 21 — in order to rectify this problem in GAPing it we have the rebound technique. “Having removed all pollution [mental attitude sins] and the overflow of wickedness [sins of the tongue and overt sins] ...”

And then we get back to GAPing it again. “Receive is an aorist middle imperative of dechomai (δέχομαι) [pronounced DEKH-om-ahee] and it means to embrace. It is a constative aorist and it gathers into one ball of wax or one entirety every time that you GAP it. The middle voice connected with dechomai (δέχομαι) [pronounced DEKH-om-ahee] means to welcome and retain. The imperative mood: it is an order.

“Meekness” is the mental attitude toward doctrine, toward the one teaching doctrine in the assembly. This is included by God the Holy Spirit through the writer James to remind you that there is no such thing in GAP as a personality conflict. You either have the right pastor or you don’t. He may rub you the wrong way, that is not the point. What he teaches is the issue. You take it from the Lord.

“which is able to deliver your souls” — you are delivered from scar tissue, from the devil’s world.

James 1:22 But be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves.

Verse 22 — “Be ye” — present middle imperative of ginomai, “keep on becoming”, present tense, linear aktionsart. Active voice: you as a believer produce the action of the verb. Imperative mood: it is an order that you do this, that you transfer. This is the command right here which offsets secondary negative volition.

“doers” is a noun, the nominative plural of poihtj. This does not mean that you have to be running around “doing things for God”. Doing is function in the soul. The function is not necessarily overt, the function in this case is inside of the soul. “Keep on becoming doers of doctrine, both hearers only.” You have to be a hearer first, that is the first stage of GAP. The hearer is a believer who is positive and takes in ICE teaching from his right pastor. He is filled with the Holy Spirit because he rebounds whenever necessary so that he has an objective understanding of doctrine inside of his left lobe. This is a hearer. But you can’t stop there. Doctrine in the left lobe is not useable and volition must handle it. If you are positive faith will transfer it down to the human spirit where it becomes epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. But the big problem with the believers in Jerusalem in 67 AD, and the big problem with the Exodus generation was that they were negative right here. Objective understanding of doctrine is being a hearer, and that doctrine has to go to work. So there is a great barrier that the doctrine has to cross. The barrier is between the left lobe, called the noûs (νοûς) [pronounced noose] or the mind, and the human spirit. The final objective: there is a line from the frame of reference right into the human spirit, and it is a vacuum line which pumps this doctrine right into the heart or the right lobe. So, “keep on becoming doers of the word.” That means you must persist in transferring doctrine from the left lobe to the human spirit.

“not hearers only” — if you have doctrine in your left lobe you can give it back on a piece of paper, you can pass an examination with it, but unless you transfer it you are in a state of self-deceit — “deceiving your own selves”, present middle participle of paralogizomai, which means to defraud or deceive yourself.

“I never heard that before. Dr. So and So never said that; and he was such a nice man.” Some gal called up Bob and he told her where to go after she said what she wanted to know. She called back and said, “I forgive you.” She thinks that she can call Bob and take a half hour of his time. Multiply her by hundreds of jackasses, who think that he needs to sit down and chit chat and be nice, if Bob did that, his congregation would starve to death. It wasn’t that Bob was rude; but she was stupid. Women have the idea that they can get you on the phone and take up your time. Bob hung up on this babe. He is about ready to get an unlisted number. Bob is thinking about removing the telephone from his life.

There were people here who understand a constative aorist. They stick it out and they understand it. You learn to handle your questions like a fish with bones. You separate out the bones and you let them sit there. Bob has a couple questions too. You do not get your answers by prayer; you get the answers by beating your brains out.

James 1:23 For if anyone is a hearer of the word and not a doer [failure to transfer], he is like a man who looks intently at his natural face in a mirror.

Verse 23 — “is like a noble believer contemplating his natural face in a mirror”.

There is a real blessing in looking in a mirror. If you see yourself every day, you do not see any of those changes. If you wait 5 years, then you see many changes.

James 1:24 For he looks at himself and goes away and at once forgets what he was like.

If you look in the mirror every day, you are not shocked. Bob understands that some ladies when they wake up and look into the mirror, they are shocked until they put on some makeup.

Verse 24 — “he observes himself, and departs, and immediately disregards what sort of a person he is”. The whole point is that by looking into a mirror every day you are oriented to what you are. If you only look into a mirror once in a while you are never oriented. A mirror is a basic principle for orientation in life. “He immediately disregards what he looked like.” In other words, he is oriented for the day. Now, much more important is looking into another mirror, and that is the Word of God.

James 1:25 But the one who looks into the perfect law, the law of liberty, and perseveres, being no hearer who forgets but a doer who acts, he will be blessed in his doing.

Verse 25 — “But he that looketh into the perfect law of liberty”. That refers to the Bible, and it refers to GAPing it daily. We have an adversative conjunction here. The word “looketh” is an aorist active participle of parakuptw, a verb for concentration. It means to stoop down and stare vigorously. So it means to concentrate.

“and continueth” — here is the important thing. We have the aorist active participle of paramenô (παραμένω) [pronounced par-am-EHN-oh] which means “and having continued” [Doing this all the time]. This is persisting in taking in Bible doctrine.

“he being” is literally, “he having become” — “the one having become not a hearer of oblivion but a doer of work, this man shall be happy in the action of doing.”

James 1:25 “He that concentrates on the perfect [completed] law [the canon of scripture] of liberty and perseveres (in taking in Bible doctrine), the one having become not a hearer of oblivion but a doer of work, this man shall be happy in the action of doing[Bible doctrine gives freedom to serve God, freedom to function under the priesthood]”

James says “transfer”; Hebrews says, “this is what happens if you don’t transfer. Hebrews looks at it from the standpoint of faith or no faith, from the standpoint of volition in the soul. James looks at the happiness of being a doer of the Word, someone whose doctrine is working for him.

Hebrews 4:2 — “did not benefit them.”

Hebrews 4:2 “The one having looked intently [concentrated] on the perfect law of freedom [Bible teaching], and having persisted, the one having become not a hearer of oblivion, but a doer of work [Bible doctrine going into the various areas of the soul where growth is involved], this one shall be happy in the action of doing [happiness in the function of GAP].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

4. Refusal to be consistent. Here is the person who functions correctly under GAP, but when under adversity he won’t function correctly. When he has any kind of difficulty in his life or when he wants something from the Lord he is always in Bible class. But this person is highly unstable and with a little prosperity he begins to neglect Bible doctrine.
5. Negative vulnerability. This is the believer who reaches supergrace but reacts. here is a believer who GAPs it consistently all the way to supergrace. Once he reaches supergrace he begins to react. He had supergrace capacity, started to receive supergrace blessings, and one day he reacted toward the reaction column — disillusion, boredom, discouragement, self-pity, loneliness, frustration, being jilted, being under some kind of mental attitude sin such as jealousy or bitterness or implacability. These are some of the things that cause reaction. Any time you are bored or disillusioned, or any of these others, you are vulnerable to the whole realm of negation toward doctrine. This is negative vulnerability in which in a frantic search for happiness reaction you lose the ECS, you have blackout of the soul, you lose everything.
6. Negative emotionalism, which is the believer becoming negative to doctrine through emotional revolt of the soul. This is what happens to holy-rollers, etc.

But the Word of God did not benefit them...

“not being mixed with faith” — The verb means to mix together, to blend. The iterative perfect emphasizes the process by which the action is completed. In this case with the negative the process was not completed. Doctrine was available; and assembly was available as well. But this doctrine is not mixed with faith. Therefore, these people did not have the blessings of supergrace.

Ministers seem to have charmed lives. You malign ministers and they get blessed by this. All of Bob's life, he was been greatly blessed by being maligned. If you knew about the blessing, you might slow down. I don't think that I will even emphasize that point.

Bob has heard some of the most unusual rumors about this congregation. "It wasn't split when I left; what have you heard?"

The perfect tense means that God has preserved doctrine. You have been preserved for this moment; and I have been preserved; and what is in Hebrews 4 has been preserved.

Can you imagine if someone told you, 20 years ago, that you would be going to church every night?

There is a reason for positional truth. We are placed at the right hand of God because we are in Christ. Since the day that we were saved, God wants to give us something appropriate to our position. Every time that God can find a believer who sticks to it, and pour and pour blessings, it demonstrates that God can positionally place us in Christ, but He can do it experientially. Through our nonmeritorious volition, God can give us everything offered by the devil's world.

God was very angry with the congregation of the Exodus generation because He had all of these fantastic blessings He was waiting to pour and He couldn't pour. The iterative perfect is a continuous process which is emphasized under recurrent circumstances. The continuous process is GAPing it. The recurrent circumstances" every time doctrine is available through the function of GAP. The completion of the action here is reversionism because of the negative. Iterative means the process by which the action was achieved.

How did they get that way? They didn't blend with doctrine into the soul. Doctrine was available in the Word through those who taught it. The assembly was in existence then, the assembly of Israel in a different dispensation. Now we have the assembly today, only it is the local church which is the classroom. So at every point God has preserved doctrine and those who communicate doctrine. God has a special modus operandi and He deals in a special way with those who communicate doctrine: double cursing or discipline, double blessing where blessing is involved. The perfect tense indicates that God has preserved doctrine in the canon. He has preserved those who communicate it and He has preserved sheep in the pasture to feed. The tragedy is for the believer to be in Bible class and at some future time to go negative, or to keep on going to Bible class to hear the Word but never transfer it to the human spirit, to be a hearer and not a doer. All of the malfunctions lie within the soul.

Grace in phase 1, 2 and 3.

The streets are not paved with gold in heaven; that is in Jerusalem during the millennial kingdom. We are alive and we have food, shelter and clothing. What glorifies God is what He can give us with our volition. God looks to give us great blessings of heaven on earth in the devil's kingdom under the devil's nose. How do you miss this objective? Your whole life is related to doctrine.

“not being mixed with faith” — the passive voice: the believer through the breakdown of positive volition, the breakdown of faith-rest, fails to cycle doctrine to the human spirit, to the right lobe. Doctrine is only meaningful and useful in the right lobe. This is translated: “but the word of hearing doctrine did not benefit them, not having been blended” — not “with” faith, this is the instrumental singular of pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] plus the definite article. It has the definite article and this is what is called an instrumental of manner, it expresses the method by means which the function of GAP is performed; “by the faith” — the definite article always characterizes or defines the noun in the context; “in them that heard it” — the dative plural aorist active participle of akoúō (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh]. This is the dative of advantage. It is to our advantage to listen to doctrine, to take in doctrine, to GAP it daily. It was to the advantage of the Exodus believers to hear Moses communicate doctrine to them. This is also an aorist participle, and the action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb: “did not benefit”. What a tragedy. They heard the doctrine but did not benefit from hearing it. Believers heard doctrine taught before they refused to blend it with their faith. The various ingredients of doctrine are no good in their separate classifications until they are blended with your faith.

Bob hears that there is something called a blender. Now, you might like liver, but, as far as I'm concerned, you are by yourself. Liver without cinnamon is not good. You have to blend them. You think that because this is a bad illustration, that I won't stick with it?

Hebrews 4:2 “We also have been permanently evangelized, even as they also [the Exodus generation] were permanently evangelized: but the word of hearing [hearing doctrine] did not benefit them, not having been blended with faith [with the faith] on the part of the ones having heard.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Exodus Generation and Jerusalem A.D. 70

1. Here is a direct analogy to the Exodus generation of Israel. This also pertains to the apostolic generation of believers in Jerusalem in 67 AD.
2. Both generations were saved. To them, as well as to us, salvation is not the issue. Salvation is only an issue to the unbeliever.
3. The Exodus generation was in reversionism for forty years.
4. The apostolic generation of born again Jews in Jerusalem would shortly have an identical forty years of reversionism — from Pentecost in 30 AD to 70 AD.
5. However, Hebrews was a warning in the 37th year of the reversionistic apostasy of the born again Jews in Jerusalem. The greatest demonstration of the apostasy of these born again Jews is their rejection of the ministry of the apostle Paul in Jerusalem. Paul visited Jerusalem, his ministry was totally rejected. In that way they differed from the Exodus generation. The Exodus generation gave Moses a hearing, and after the hearing they said no. The born again Jews of Jerusalem said no, they would not give Paul a hearing. The Exodus generation had secondary negative volition; the Jews in Jerusalem had primary negative volition.

6. Only supergrace status will provide the basis for deliverance from that great historical catastrophe of the fall of Jerusalem in 70 AD.
7. The reversionistic Jerusalemites are about to reap what they have sowed instead of reaping what God sowed. Negative volition eventuates in reaping what you sow.

1972 Hebrews 4:3

38 04/20/1973 Hebrews 4:3 Doctrines of faith, supergrace

If you are in the holy roller movement, you do not belong here. You cannot be filled with the Holy Spirit if you are a part of the tongues movement.

When we come to the cross and believe in Jesus Christ, that is grace. We simply believe in Jesus Christ and behind that is the grace provision of the cross. That is phase I grace. Two types of phase II grace. That which is not involved with your volition. Logistical grace. There is also what is called in James 4:6, unfortunately called more grace, and we call that supergrace. That is the issue in phase II. Your attitude toward Bible doctrine determines your spiritual growth. Then there is surpassing grace which is phase III. Our passage deals with supergrace.

Psalm 95 is quoted here. It is about the Exodus generation. They had warning, intensive and finally dying discipline.

Heb 4:3 For we who have believed enter that rest, as he has said, "As I swore in my wrath, 'They shall not enter my rest,'" although his works were finished from the foundation of the world. (ESV)

Verse 3 — the word “For” is expegetical use of the particle gar. Here gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is used for additional explanation. it can be translated “For” or “Now you see.”

“we which have believed” is an aorist active participle of the verb pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh]. The aorist tense is a constative aorist which gathers into one entirety a similar series of experiences. Here it refers to those times when the believers of the Exodus generation were exposed to Bible teaching. The concept here is the fulfilment of the second stage of GAP. However, the ones in the Exodus generation were very few who responded, and the issue now is that they failed and that there are always those in the same generation who succeed. The fact that you are rubbing elbows with a nation full of failures, with a government that has failed, with people who have lost their minds and their common sense and establishment, does not mean that you have to fail. So here is the success stream. No matter how a nation fails, no matter how a group of people fail, no matter how a church fails, you do not have to. Just keep right on GAPing it. The aorist participle should be translated, “For the ones having believed.” In other words, success means firstly, that you pass the test of primary negative volition when you assemble. Having assembled you pass the test of negative volition by rebound. You are positive toward the rebound principle of the priesthood. Now the great issue. You listen to ICE teaching, you concentrate, you are controlled by the Spirit because you have passed the first two volitional tests, and you have doctrine in your left lobe. This is a doer of the Word. The great barrier is right here: your attitude toward doctrine once you understand it objectively. Objective information is not workable in formation and in order for this particular information to become functional positive volition, which is always non-meritorious and therefore faith, transfers it to the human spirit where it becomes epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is the issue because epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is picked up by a vacuum line and taken into the right lobe, into the frame of reference, becomes a part of the vocabulary, the categories, the norms and standards, and the launching pad. It is doctrine coming out of this launching pad which creates the first vacuum. Along with that epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] builds the ECS. The fourth floor is capacity for love. Category #1 love also creates a vacuum. So you have maximum doctrine coming out of the launching pad, category #1 love coming from the ECS, and this creates a vacuum going right back into eternity past, and through this vacuum God pours supergrace blessings — wealth, promotion, success, etc., those things which even in the devil’s world are associated with happiness.

The aorist tense indicates the road by which you reach supergrace: the transferring of doctrine from the left lobe to the human spirit, converting gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] into epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. Believing is the converter. The active voice indicates that the believer under the function of GAP produces the action of the verb by faith. He transfers doctrine from his left lobe to his human spirit. The participle is an aorist participle. Not always, but generally, the action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb follows: “do enter into.” You cannot enter into supergrace until you have transferred X number of times doctrine from the left lobe to the human spirit. The real issue, then, is faith.

The Doctrine of Faith

1. Faith is non-meritorious thinking, a non-meritorious system of perception. It is in contrast to meritorious systems of perception like rationalism and empiricism. Faith is something that everyone uses. It is the basis for all of the knowledge, all of the perception which you have right up to this moment. Everything that you have ever learned is based upon a faith base. Anything you learn is based upon faith.
2. In the Greek language we have five words that are pertinent to the study of faith in the Bible. The first of these is a noun called pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. This means faith or faithful or reliable, or that which is believed. With the absence of the definite article with this noun would indicate the quality of the noun. The definite article added to this noun defines it. So we have the difference between the definition and quality. When the definite article comes with this word it means that which is believed and/or doctrine. So this noun can mean everything from the English word “faith” to the English word “doctrine.” Context plus the use of the definite article or the absence of the definite article will determine its exact meaning.

- a. The second word is an adjective, pistos. This means dependable, inspiring trust. It is also used, in the sense of an adjective, faith, believing, the believing ones.
  - b. Next is the verb pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh]. Pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh] means to believe. It is a transitive verb. In the Word of God the object of this transitive verb always has the merit. The subject is non-meritorious. A transitive verb has a subject and an object stated or implied. The subject, for example, in phase one is any member of the human race. The object is Jesus Christ. Anyone believing in Jesus Christ, and the result is salvation. Why? Christ did the work in salvation. He is the object; He has the merit. There is no merit in the subject of this transitive verb. The issue in phase two is a little different. This time the object of faith is doctrine, the subject is the believer priest. The believing is the second stage of GAP. It is doctrine believed that is actually transferred.
  - c. The next verb, often translated “faith,” is just a little off-shade from that. Number four is peithō (πείθω) [pronounced PIE-thoh]. It means really to obey. It has a little different meaning in each one of the tenses. The present tense means to obey. In the aorist tense it means to persuade. In the perfect tense it means to have confidence. But in the present tense it means obedience. It generally what is known an iterative present.
  - d. The fifth one is pistō and is rather rare. It means to show one’s self faithful. It also means to have confidence.
3. The Hebrew etymology. The first of all of the Hebrew verbs from Genesis 15:6 where we get the pattern of Old Testament salvation — aman. The root concept of this verb is a foundation, and it means, for example, in the hiphil stem to use God as a foundation and therefore is a basic word for salvation in the Old Testament. “Abraham had believed in the Lord [or had used God as a foundation] and it was credited to his account for righteousness.”
- a. There are several nouns that go with this verb. In fact, the next three in our etymology are based upon this verb. Eman which means faithfulness. It means to be consistent in whatever you are doing as a believer. That is a masculine noun.
  - b. The next is a feminine noun, Emanah, and this word means truth, steadiness.
  - c. The fourth is amen which means simply truth.
  - d. Then there is an offshoot of this, another noun built on the participle, omen, which means faithfulness. it is often used of God’s faithfulness to us.
  - e. The sixth means doctrine, though not always translated that way. Sometimes it is just translated “truth” — meth. These are all roots of amen, to believe.
  - f. Number seven goes back to the verbs — batach, the basic faith-rest verb. This was originally a wrestling term — the body slam. From that came the live like an adult spiritually. So the object of faith is Bible doctrine — 2Corinthians 5:7; Hebrews 4:1–3; 11:6.

7. Out of the first six points we develop a concept of faith.
  - a. All the believing in the world secures nothing but condemnation from God. Having faith doesn't mean a thing because faith is the basic system of perception. The first things you ever learned you learned by faith. Rationalism and empiricism came later.
    - i. Having the gift of teaching and actually teaching are two different things.
    - ii. We all have faith and lots of it. That is how we learn history. You accepted the facts that you were told. You saw a map and you accepted it.
    - iii. There is not an Italian today with much Roman blood. Italy was a melting pot. They were a tall, blue-eyed, fair skinned people. There are some isolated spots in northern Italy who might have some Roman blood.
    - iv. They say that 75% of everything a person knows is based upon faith.
  - b. However, the tiniest bit of faith in Christ secures eternal salvation, but it must be in Christ. A little more than zero faith.
  - c. Therefore the efficacy of faith lies in the object of faith, not in the amount of faith. It is the quality of the object not the quantity of the faith — Acts 4:12.
  - d. Since Christ did all the work for salvation on the cross the only response to that work is faith in Jesus Christ.
  - e. Therefore, faith is not something we do but faith is a channel whereby we appropriate what God has done for us.
8. The development of faith. After salvation faith must take on muscle and strength. So how do you develop faith?
  - a. The daily function of GAP begins to put strength in your faith — Romans 10:17. But why? Because you have an object for your faith and you believe doctrine as it is taught. This puts strength in your faith.
  - b. The filling of the Spirit also produces faith — Galatians 5:22.
  - c. The function of faith-rest produces faith — Hebrews 4:1–3, and, again, this is related to GAP.
  - d. Once you begin to develop a little bit of faith it has to be tested. Suffering is designed to test faith — 1Peter 1:7,8. Same concept as doing weight lifting. Testing is putting pressure on your muscles to test them. The testing, when successful, develops your strength.
  - e. The quintessence of faith strength is occupation with the person of Jesus Christ — Hebrews 12:2.
9. The victory of faith — 1John 5:4,5.

Hebrews 4:3 — “For the ones having believed” — constative aorist tense. Active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb through the function of GAP. The participle: the action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb has to do with entering the supergrace life.

Next comes the main verb: “do enter into” — present middle indicative of the verb eiserchomai (εἰσέρχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahēe]. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes that which habitually occurs or may be expected to occur. When the believer is consistent in the function of GAP, consistent in transferring doctrine from his left lobe to his human spirit and right lobe, the result is that he enters into supergrace which is the objective of the Christian way of life. Out of the 36 things that happened to us at salvation one of them was that we were entered into union with Christ. Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father as our high priest. When Christ was seated at the right hand of the Father as a member of the human race He was superior to all angels. Now, everyone of us as of the moment of salvation are in union with Jesus Christ. We are seated, therefore, positionally at the right hand of the Father. That is our position in Christ. This is the place of absolute victory in the angelic conflict. That is the thing that broke Satan’s back. The customary indicates that if you GAP it it can reasonably be expected that you will enter supergrace. Once you enter supergrace you have for the first time the capacity — that is the cup constructed out of doctrine — and God in eternity past had all of these blessings for you. And God starts pouring. The more He pours the more He is glorified. God is glorified by blessing you under supergrace. Why? Because if God can take you and keep you alive in the devil’s world, keep you alive in time, and bless you to the maximum on the basis of positive volition toward doctrine and your supergrace capacity, then it glorifies God. Rewards in heaven for people in the pew are based upon being promoted, being successful, being wealthy, having a great sex life, a great social life, etc. This bit about “suffering for Jesus” is Satanic propaganda. God is glorified by blessing us. Rewards in heaven are based upon supergrace in time.

In the middle voice the subject, which in this case is the believer priest, participates in the results of the action. As a result of GAPing and believing the believer enters into the rest of the supergrace life. This is what is called a permissive middle voice in which the believer voluntarily yields himself to the results of the action and is benefitted by the action of the verb. The indicative mood is the reality of entrance into supergrace through believing doctrine which is located in the left lobe and bringing it over into the right lobe via the human spirit.

“into the rest” — the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis]. katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] means norm, pausij means rest, but it really means rest according to a norm or standard. The norm or standard is grace, grace provision. All you do is fulfil Romans 8:28 which is for supergrace believers only. “All things work together for good.” Thing one is all of the supergrace blessings which God provided for you in eternity past. Then you reach supergrace capacity, that is the cup. Supergrace blessings [thing one] are poured into supergrace capacity [thing two] and you come out with supergrace blessings, supergrace prosperity, supergrace wealth, supergrace life, whatever it may be. All things do not work together for good for all believers, only those believers “who love God.” That is the qualifying statement, and the qualifying statement indicates a supergrace believer. So here we have katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis] used for the supergrace life.

As far as the Exodus generation was concerned katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis] was Canaan, and in order to enter Canaan they had to have supergrace capacity. They didn't have the supergrace capacity so they didn't have the supergrace blessing of Canaan. In supergrace the believer is blessed on the basis of reaping what God sowed in eternity past. However, in contrast to that, in reversionism the believer reaps what the believer sows, which is misery. Supergrace, then, is the basis for the function of Romans 8:28.

The Doctrine of Supergrace

1. Supergrace is the final stage of growth beyond the ECS, as far as phase two is concerned. It is the area of reaping what God sows. It is characterized by occupation with Christ, supergrace capacity like, freedom, life, happiness, prosperity and adversity; and supergrace blessings like wealth, success, and so on.
2. Characteristics: The supergrace life is characterized by the cup that runs over — Psalm 23:5. The cup or the supergrace capacity is built upon maximum intake of Bible doctrine through consistent function of GAP. With the cup in the soul you reap what God sowed for you in eternity past. God is, as it were, tapping His foot waiting to provide these things for us.
3. The first distinction arises. Supergrace must be distinguished from God's grace and the distinction comes from words like James 4:6 — "supergrace." Grace is God's eternal provision apart from human volition. God provided certain things for you totally apart from your volition — salvation, daily needs, protection in the angelic conflict. But "more grace" or "greater grace" of James 4:6 is God's provision for the believer based on human volition. The issue in the angelic conflict is supergrace or greater grace. Grace is not an issue because grace is provided for you apart from your volition.
4. The supergrace life is analogous to God resting on the seventh day of restoration.
5. The love problem: Under the love problem God loves every believer with a maximum love because of propitiation. However, the believer's love response varies according to the amount of doctrine in the soul. The supergrace believer loves God, as per Romans 8:28 or 1John 4:19. God's love for the supergrace believer is expressed in blessing, but God's love for the reversionist is expressed in discipline or cursing — Hebrews 12:6.
6. The key to the supergrace life begins with the happiness spectrum. Remember that +H begins with supergrace and it is a spectrum. It starts with tranquillity and goes all the way to ecstasies; it has many, many variations. Certain parts of the happiness spectrum apply when you're under pressure — like tranquillity, others apply when you're under some kind of promotion or prosperity — like ecstasies. The supergrace life is the place of maximum God-given happiness — Philippians 4:4; 1Thessalonians 5:16. This happiness is acquired through the intake of doctrine — 1John 1:4. The same doctrine which provides +H produces the supergrace status.

7. The celebrityship of Christ: The supergrace believer has maximum love and appreciation of Christ — Lamentations 3:22–25; Hebrews 12:2; Colossians 3:1,2. This is called the celebrityship status. Christ is only a celebrity to the supergrace believer. This celebrityship of Christ is always tested at the communion table.
8. The capacity factor: The supergrace believer has capacity in the following categories.
  - a. a) Freedom — Galatians 5:1; James 1:25–2:12; Romans 8:21; 2Corinthians 3:17;
  - b. b) Capacity for life — 1Samuel 17:47; 18:5, 14, 40;
  - c. c) Love. Category #1 love: Deuteronomy 6:6; 30:20; Joshua 23:10,11; 1John 2:5; 4:19. Category #2 love: Song of Solomon 8:6,7; Category #3 love: 2Samuel 1:26
  - d. d) Happiness — Psalm 9:1,2; 21:1; 31:7; 43:4; 97:12; John 17:13; 1John 1:4.
  - e) Capacity for suffering — 2Corinthians 12:7–10.

The availability of supergrace is beautifully described in Isaiah 30:18. The promotion of supergrace is described in Psalm 84, illustrated by 1Samuel 17. The supergrace believer is always God’s man for the crisis.

“as he said” — the adverb “as”, kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kahth-OCE] cites Old Testament documentation; “he said” is the perfect active indicative of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] and means “as he has perfectly communicated.” Now we have a quotation again from Psalm 95:11. This time the quotation begins with the word “as,” a comparative particle hôs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç] which indicates the manner in which something proceeds. it is used as a correlative adverb and should be translated here, “in keeping with the facts.” What are the facts? Reversionism in the Exodus generation.

“I swear” — aorist active indicative of omnuô (ὀμνύω) [pronounced om-NOO-oh], which means to promise with a solemn oath. This is a gnomic aorist referring to an absolute. The active voice: God produces the action in the case of all reversionists. All reversionists, if they persist, wind up under the sin unto death. Why? Because they have missed the only basic issue of the Christian way of life: What think ye of doctrine? The indicative mood is the reality of divine discipline on reversionism. They sow what they reap; they wind up under the sin unto death.

“in my wrath” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of orgê (ὀργή) [pronounced ohr-GAY], used for indignation or disgust. God loves the reversionistic believer but He is disgusted with him. Why? Because God has all these wonderful things to give him and he is not getting them. And He is disgusted because all kinds of fallen angels are watching these idiots. Here they are with all of these wonderful things available but the reversionist doesn’t have any cup into which God can pour.

Then we have an elliptical oath. An elliptical oath always begins with “If” which is preceded by whoever the person is. He takes an oath in his own name. So this idiom should be translated, “I am not God if.”

“they shall enter” — future active indicative of eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahee], referring to the supergrace life, originally to Canaan. The future tense expresses the character of a verbal idea but instead of indicating progress, as does the present and the imperfect tenses, it connotes an aoristic or punctiliar concept. We have here a gnomic future. The gnomic future tense is used to present a statement of fact as an absolute. The active voice: this is the reversionistic believer not entering the supergrace life. The indicative mood is the reality of no supergrace blessings for the reversionist.

“into my rest” — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis], referring to Canaan as an illustration of supergrace blessing.

“although” — kaitoi, which means “and yet.” This is a compound conjunction, it explains the disgust of God.

“the works” — the genitive plural of ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon]. This is the beginning of another genitive absolute. The genitive absolute stands apart in this particular construction as a Greek idiom to show great emphasis. It is composed of a noun and a participle. God’s grace provides something totally apart from anything else this world has to offer. No one in this world can do anything for you that is even comparable to God’s grace and God’s supergrace blessing. The noun refers to the divine provision — “works,” plural. The works for you! God loves to demonstrate in every generation to his majesty the devil who rules this world that He can take care of members of His family. He took care of them from eternity past and does a better job than anything the devil has to offer. No wonder Christ turned down the devil when he offered Him the kingdoms of this world. God the Son had something much greater. And He now has it for you, and He is disgusted because you don’t have it and you should. You don’t have to wait for heaven for blessing.

Now we have the aorist passive participle in the genitive plural of ginomai which means to become — aorist participle, “having become.” This is a culminative aorist. The culminative aorist indicates that whatever God provided for you by way of supergrace blessings it was completed in eternity past. The passive voice: the blessings of supergrace were completed before the world was created. The participle: the action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb, the main verb: “do enter into.” These things were in existence before you entered — “and yet, the works having been brought into existence.” The works are supergrace blessings and they were brought into existence in eternity past — “from the foundation of the world”.

Hebrews 4:3 “For the ones having believed are to enter into the rest of supergrace, as he has said in the past with the result that it stands perfectly communicated forever, In keeping with the facts I have made a solemn promise in my disgust, I am not God if they shall enter into my rest [supergrace blessing]: and yet the works [supergrace blessings] have been brought into existence from the ultimate source of the foundation of the world.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

In other words, God’s supergrace blessings existed long before man was created. God sowed in eternity past so that you and I might reap in time. But God’s sowing in eternity past is only reaped by the supergrace believer. To be a reaper you must be in supergrace, otherwise the reaper becomes a weeper. The reversionist cannot harvest what God has sown in eternity past, he can only harvest what he sows in time. There is a choice: what God sowed in eternity past or what you sow in time.

1972 Hebrews 4:4

39 04/22/1973 Hebrews 4:4 Doctrine of the Sabbath

This is an Easter service:

Some of you showing up once a year during Easter is, at best, confusion for you. We are in the middle of a study; we do not cater to you. You cannot get it in a single study.

Every believer is in full-time Christian service, every believer is a priest, every believer is an ambassador.

Easter Sunday is a farce. Much of this was Romanism combining practices of fertility along with some things which are a part of Roman doctrine. Hunting for eggs is all about being provided with some certain number of children.

Bob gives the gospel clearly.

Bob then explains the supergrace life and all that God might give us. As you take in doctrine, something begins to happen. It becomes reality to you; and that means you are growing. We are not here to suffer for Jesus; we are here to glorify God; and we glorify Him in our success and promotion.

Vv. 1–3 reviewed.

Our volition is key. Psalm 95 is quoted in v. 3. God loves the reversionistic believer as much as He loves the supergrace believer. But He can only express His love through discipline placed on the reversionistic believer.

The reversionistic believer may have several mental attitude sins; jilted, bored, angry, bitter. The reaction leads to a frantic search for happiness. This can express itself in many ways. Some will search for happiness by religion; others will raise hell on the town.

A woman brought you in here, and you will be the same old person always; and the trade-out deal is not going to work. You are hoping that you can impress her so much that she will become a part of your frantic search for happiness. You will become interested in Bible doctrine or not. I know this is a pain in the neck for you. You were evangelized a long time ago, but pressures made you unhappy and you have turned away from all that.

Let's pick up where we were Friday night. Many of you do not have a Bible; that is a handicap.

Heb 4:4 For he has somewhere spoken of the seventh day in this way: "And God rested on the seventh day from all his works." (ESV)

Sunday is the 1st day of the week; and Saturday is the 7th day of the week. You cannot hook those things up together. You may have been brought up in a Christian household and you could not do anything fun on Sunday. What about Sunday? What does it represent? What is this stuff all about? We are all mixed up.

Most people in the Old Testament times, started back to work on Sunday. This makes sense but it does not tell us why. Saturday is when the Jews meet and the 7th Day Adventist meet then, following a dispensation from a long time ago.

Verse 4 — “For” is the explanatory particle gar, which is simply a signal that we are about to have something explained to us; “he spake”, the perfect active indicative of the verb légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. Légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] means to say or to speak. Here it means to communicate because it is referring to an Old Testament quotation. The perfect tense of the Greek verb is the tense of completed action. Whatever has been communicated was communicated in the past, says the perfect tense. This is also what is called in the syntax of the Greek an intensive perfect which views the completed action from the standpoint of its results. In other words, Psalm 95 also had this perfect tense, it is a part of the scripture. It was recorded in the past with the result that we still study it. Now we go a little further back this time, to Genesis 2:2. Genesis 2:2 was recorded in the days of Moses with the result that we still have it today and we still have it in the original languages. When the attention is directed to the results of the action stress on the existing facts is intensified. That is why this is called an intensive perfect. So Genesis 2:2 was communicated to Moses by God the Holy Spirit and became a part of the scripture with the result that we study it as a part of scripture today. The active voice: Moses communicated this originally. The indicative mood is the reality of permanence of the canon of scripture. The Word of God liveth and abideth forever.

“in a certain place” — this is an enclitic indefinite particle, pou, and it should be translated “somewhere”. It refers to Genesis 2:2. For He had communicated in a certain place....

“of the seventh day” is a prepositional phrase, and incorrectly translated. The word peri is translated “of”. It is a preposition and it means “concerning.” There is no word for “day” here, it is simply “concerning the hebdomos (ἑβδομοῦ) [pronounced HEHB-dohm-oss]”. The hebdomos (ἑβδομοῦ) [pronounced HEHB-dohm-oss] refers to the seventh day and is the Greek word for the Sabbath — “on this wise” — the adverb says “in this manner.” Literally then, “For he has communicated somewhere concerning the seventh day in this manner.”

The communication is found back in Genesis 2:2 — “And on the seventh day” — God restored the earth in six days for man’s occupancy — “God ended”, the piel imperfect of kalah means He completed something. The piel stem is an intensive stem and it should be translated “Elohim completed his work.” This means that in six days Elohim took the earth and converted it into a wonderful place to live. In six days He provided everything that man would need in the status quo of innocence. Why did God rest? On the seventh day God rested because He had completed His work.

“which he had made” — the qal perfect of asah means that which He had manufactured. God had manufactured everything necessary, He had restored everything that needed to be restored. And He had actually created for man perfect environment. So we read, “therefore on the seventh day Elohim completed his work which he had produced [or manufactured]” out of chaos — “and he rested,” the qal imperfect of shabath. The word Saturday was originally the Sabbath and it is derived from the fact that God rested. Why did God rest? This is what we call the rest of grace. Everything that man would ever need in innocence before the fall was provided. Perfect environment was provided on restored planet earth and nothing could be added to it. This is what we call grace. God does the work; man does the benefitting. man does not earn or deserve or merit what God provides, and from Genesis 2:2 to Exodus 16 no reference is made to the Sabbath. The Sabbath finally in Israel became a day of rest. Man rested on the seventh day in Israel to remind him that you can’t work for salvation, you can’t work for divine provision, you can’t work for grace. Grace and works are antagonistic, they are not compatible in any way, they are mutually exclusive. Therefore man in Israel only had to rest on the seventh day so he would remember that. Six days God works; on the seventh day, God rests. Why? Because there is nothing else to provide. And what God provided for man in perfect environment God has provided for you in eternity past. Therefore the Sabbath always had this connotation.

Many of you might be wondering, should I be worshiping on the Sabbath? No.

The Doctrine of the Sabbath

1. The original Sabbath of Genesis 2:2 was designed by God to teach grace. God rested because everything was provided in grace for man. There was nothing else He could do. The seventh day was always a memorial to who and what God is and to what God does. It was a memorial to grace.
2. In Exodus 16:14–26 the Sabbath had to be called to the attention of the Jews. And it was called to their attention in a special way. Manna represents divine provision for the believer in time. Manna was the food that God provided for the Jews in the desert. And Exodus 16:14 said, “Look, you will always gather manna on day one, day two, day three, day four, day five and day six. And on day six (Friday) you will gather a double portion because on day seven I will provide no manna and you will not, gather manna.” So this was the first specific reference to the Sabbath day since God rested in the restoration of Genesis 2:2. All of that time man understood this principle without being nudged.

3. The Jewish Sabbath: a day had to be instituted finally. The Jewish Sabbath is the fourth commandment of the decalogue — Exodus 20:8–11; Deuteronomy 5:12–15. It is also mentioned in Leviticus 23:3. It was designed with one purpose in mind: to commemorate grace by doing no work on the Sabbath day. This is in fulfillment of the concept of Genesis 2:2. The Sabbath was never designed to be any kind of trouble or difficulty, it was designed to be a time of rest, relaxation and tranquility, a reminder of grace.
  - a. If you saddled an animal and it remained saddled on Saturday, then you could not remove the saddle.
  - b. If you got mud on your robe, you could wait until it dried, squeeze it once, and let go.
4. Then there is a temporal Sabbath which is mentioned in Hebrews 3:11. This is the supergrace Sabbath. It became obvious in the Age of Israel that observing Saturday could be distorted too easily. The Jews began to set up rules and regulations that were ridiculous and had nothing to do with grace. The Sabbath was not designed for overt activity, it was designed for mental activity — to remember grace. Therefore, God had to change it. So we have the supergrace Sabbath mentioned Hebrews 3:11. This is also known as the moment by moment Sabbath whereby you depend day by day and rest entirely on what God has provided. The moment by moment Sabbath is doctrine in the soul, the ECS, the creation by Bible doctrine of capacity — the cup. The cup represents supergrace capacity based on doctrine, and God pouring and pouring and pouring. That is supergrace and the supergrace Sabbath is a moment by moment Sabbath. In other words, God doesn't bless on one day of the week, God blesses on every day of the week. One thing that happened when the Church Age superseded the Age of Israel is that Saturday was set aside. Saturday was a time of animal sacrifices, a time of a specialized priesthood, the priesthood of the tribe of Levi. It was a time for special activities and a time for assembly worship. But the Jewish Age ended suddenly with the cross, the resurrection, the ascension and the session of Jesus Christ. And as the Jewish Age terminated, very shortly thereafter the Church Age began. Now in the Church Age every believer is a priest, so things are different. Now there is no longer a special day. Why? Because every believer is a priest and the objective is for every believer priest to become spiritually self-sustaining. The priesthood of Aaron is set aside.
  - a. There were a couple of feasts that the Jews had that really bothered them. The Passover they could handle because that was a day which began the feast of unleavened bread. The feast of unleavened bread they could handle. But on the first Sunday, and always on Sunday, they had the feast of the firstfruits and that used to drive them up the wall. The reason was that the feast of the firstfruits speaks of resurrection — the resurrection of Jesus Christ — and it was always on Sunday, and there was one thing the Jews couldn't stand and that was to have a Sunday Sabbath. A Sabbath to them was any day that they worshipped. Often the priest would go out all by himself and wave a sheaf of grain before the Lord, the feast of the firstfruits.

- b. Fifty days from that Sunday there was another observation which always bothered them because fifty days from Sunday is always a Sunday — Pentecost. Jesus Christ was resurrected on a Sunday; Jesus Christ began the Church on the first Pentecost Sunday, fifty days after His resurrection. Jesus Christ was forty days on the earth before He ascended to the right hand of the Father. Another ten days and then the Church began on Sunday. So there has to be a day when assembly worship is authorized, when they all come together, and it was Sunday. We observe the resurrection and the beginning of the Church Age every Sunday. The Jews always had to have a Sabbath day; we have a first day. This is something new, something that begins all over again.

5. In addition to the supergrace Sabbath there was also an eternal Sabbath, which is also a moment by moment Sabbath — Matthew 11:28. This refers to eternal salvation.
6. The Jews already began to crack under observing the of the Sabbath day and all the ritual. So they had to be further reminded. In Leviticus chapter 25 we discover that they had a seventh year, a sabbatical year. On the seventh year they were to stop all sowing, all planting, all harvesting. Under an agricultural economy that looks as though people will starve. But no. God says, “If you will stop on the seventh year and make it a memorial to grace, then grace will provide what you need.” Of course, they never would. God called their bluff right from the start: the Sabbath would never mean a thing to them. They never observed the sabbatical year, and finally, in a period of 490 years of Jewish history they had missed seventy Sabbath years. So God gave them all of the seventy years in captivity. They cooled their heels for 70 years in Chaldea, Persia.
- a. We have perpetuated this concept in another way; the sabbatical year.
7. God knew that they would not observe the Sabbath, or the sabbatical year, so He gave them another one: the Jubilee year. The Jubilee year is found in the 25th chapter of Leviticus and this is what is called the generation test. On the fiftieth year everyone who owned property was to return it. And, again, on the fiftieth year they failed to observe. So the rejection of the Sabbath concept was total in Israel. It was total because they had no doctrine. Sabbath is a ritual, not just a day. Observing a day has ritual connected with it. Sabbath means rest, and the Jews had to stop working because that is physical rest. But that is rest ritual and it is not meaningful unless you have doctrine in the soul to appreciate it. The Lord’s table, the communion table, is not meaningful unless you have doctrine in the soul to appreciate it. And so it was with the Jews in the past. Doctrine in the soul was necessary.
- a. The Jews went overboard observing the 7th day; but did not observe the 7th year or the 49th year.
8. Now in the Church Age the Sabbath is interrupted even as the Age of Israel is interrupted. This is taught in Colossians 2:16,17. As the Church Age interrupts the Age of Israel so the Saturday Sabbath is set aside. Now in the Church Age we start with something brand new. On the Day of Pentecost, the first day of the Church Age and a Sunday, God the Holy Spirit took all believers alive in Jerusalem and entered them into union with Christ. Thereafter, when any person believes in Christ, one of the things he receives is the baptism of the Spirit; he enters into union with Jesus Christ. This means that Christianity is not a religion.

- a. Bible Christianity is anti-religion; religion is the devil's ace trump. People do something to impress God. That is like meeting on Saturday in order to use God as a genie; to impress Him. They think in terms of how man thinks. Man is impressed with works; so God would be.
- b. The heart is key; and God looks upon the heart. The cup that runs over is doctrine in the soul. When there is doctrine there, God can pour with blessing.

The heart or the right is the container for doctrine, and when doctrine is in the right lobe this impresses God. In other words, God is not impressed with people but God is impressed with doctrine. God is impressed with His Word. He has magnified His Word above His name. Therefore, when there is doctrine in the right lobe of an individual God is impressed with that doctrine and God blesses on the basis of that doctrine. The cup that runs over is doctrine in the soul. This is why the Jews failed. There were always a few who succeeded but their failure is emphasized in Hebrews chapter three. The Exodus generation failed because there was not doctrine in the heart, no doctrine in the right lobe. Having no doctrine in the right lobe they couldn't appreciate the Sabbath day, the Sabbath year, the year of Jubilee. They couldn't appreciate the ritual that was followed on those days.

The rabbit is prolific; the rabbit is a sex maniac. It has many baby rabbits. Worshiping the goddess of fertility is related to this, where people went into the temple and had sex with whomever is there. Hunting these Easter eggs. By now or by this evening, your kids will be sick. None of your kids know what the bunny represents or what the eggs means. You might have large sex orgies among the children as a result, if they knew what it meant.

You may not have realized that Christianity is not a religion; it is a relationship to God through Jesus Christ.

So during the Church Age Saturday is out. Not only is Saturday out but so is every seventh year and the year of Jubilee. The Sabbath is all over. Now we are starting all over and so we start with the first day of the week, Sunday, the day the Church began. That is what for the last two-thousand years most people observe Sunday. Once you start assembling on Sunday you pick up on doctrine and you find out that you must regard every day as a gift from God, every day is to be regarded alike. Every day is to be regarded alike. This does not mean that you can no longer have Christmas trees; or how you wasted those 40 days of lent. The special days are always the days when a nation has won its victories in battle. Why? Because it is the military that provides freedom for a nation and no nation ever had freedom apart from its military, that is a divine law. We have freedom because the great army which secured our freedom in WWII. How many battles in American history do you know or could even give the approximate decade.

Bob's favorite holiday was Nov. 11, when the Germans agreed to unconditional surrender. Bob's dad would teach him about the great battles that were fought. Bob could wear his father's wings from WWI.

The Pilgrims were not very smart and very legalistic. Our spiritual heritage came out of Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Andrew Jackson defeated the British after the treaty had been signed. It gave him one more crack at the enemy. Our military is what gives us the freedom to assemble. The prosperity of a nation depends upon its economy.

All of these sabbaths are meaningless today. We are meeting on Easter Sunday. We will meet Monday next, and then Tuesday. That is the objective; and that is what God meant for this life.

Hebrews 4:4b — “And God did rest the seventh day from all his works.” The word for “rest” is the aorist active indicative of katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AHP-ow-sis]. This word means to cease, to desist from all work according to a norm or standard. The norm or standard is God's essence. God in His omniscience knew that there was nothing else to be provided. The original Sabbath day, the day when God rested from restoration of the earth is the key to everything. God had a standard, His own perfect character according to which there was nothing left to provide. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the event in its entirety from the standpoint of existing results. The existing results: Adam had everything he wanted in the garden. The active voice: God produces the action which is the concept of grace. God resting is a sign that everything has been provided. The indicative mood is the reality of God ceasing from His restorative work plus the creative work involved with mankind. So the seventh day became a memorial to the grace of God. Under grace God does the working, God does the providing, and man does the receiving, man does the benefitting. Therefore, God sows; man reaps. Divine blessing always depends on who and what God is, what He does for man, not what we can do for Him.

The final phrase says, “from all of his works,” a prepositional phrase, apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the genitive of ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon]. Ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon] means His production, everything that was necessary; apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] is from the ultimate source of all of His works. When God provided for man in innocence it was equivalent to our supergrace blessings. The capacity for innocence came from the fact that Jesus Christ taught man daily in the garden. The blessings included right woman, promotion [Adam was the ruler of the world at that time], wealth, success, everything that man would ever want.

Hebrews 4:4 “For he has communicated somewhere concerning the seventh day in the following manner, And the God rested on the seventh day from all of his works.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation Innocence is a perfect analogy to what God has available to us today. Just as God provided everything for Adam in six days God provided every blessing would ever need in eternity past. So the issue is this: God is still resting today because in eternity past he provided everything you would ever need. That is why God is resting right now. Furthermore, He has provided a table for us in doctrine so that our cup will run over, and from this point on it is strictly up to you. It depends entirely upon your attitude toward Bible doctrine whether you ever realize this or not. What a tragedy to think that God is tapping His foot waiting to bless you right now, having all of these wonderful things for you and yet not able to give them because you have no cup. Your cup can only overflow if you have a cup in the soul. A cup in the soul is Bible doctrine.

1972 Hebrews 4:5–6

Lesson #40

40 04/22/1973 Hebrews 4:5–6 Potentiality of supergrace

The first 4 verses are read in corrected translation.

Heb 4:5 And again in this passage he said, "They shall not enter my rest." (ESV)

Verse 5 — “And in this place again.” In the original there is no word for “place” and it should literally be “And in this again.” This is the third time in our context that we have had a quotation of Psalm 95:11. It was first quoted in Hebrews 3:11, then in Hebrews 4:3, and now in Hebrews 4:5. This is the passage with the elliptical oath. In fact, this passage is so strong by its repetition that it time to find out exactly why must be repeated again and again. One obvious factor immediately: an elliptical oath puts God’s character on the line. And just as certain as God exists and just as definite as the essence of God He will not pour for those who have no capacity, even though the supergrace provision existed from before the foundation of the world.

This brings us to the elliptical oath — “if,” the word we have first in the oath, introduces the elliptical idiom. Before the “if”, whoever is making the promise puts his own person on the line. In this case God puts Himself on the line. The elliptical oath is therefore an idiom in which one takes an oath on the basis of his own existence: when God is making a promise by His own existence and by His own essence, that no reversionistic believer will ever receive supergrace blessing unless he enters the supergrace life. And God is no respecter of persons. So the idiom, again, must be translated “I am not God if”.

“they shall enter” is the future active indicative of the verb eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ah-ee]. This is the same verb we have been using for entering into supergrace blessings and rest. The future tense is a gnomic future to express an absolute, something that is so definite that even though it is in the future tense it remains true. The gnomic future goes with the solemn oath that God makes. He says, “I am not God if they shall enter into my rest.” This means — the Father is speaking: He is sovereignty, He has made a decision. No supergrace blessings unless you have supergrace capacity; no supergrace capacity without GAPing it on a consistent basis. The righteousness of God is also at stake. If God lets one reversionist receive supergrace blessings then God is not God, we have no salvation. Justice: God would be unfair if He allows one nice, sweet, self-righteous, personable, scintillating believer to have supergrace blessings. But God does not bless on the basis of your personality, on the basis of your attractiveness, on the basis of your self-righteousness, or anything else that you have to offer. Love: It is not incompatible with God's love to refuse supergrace blessings to the reversionistic believer. In other words, God has to express His love to all believers, it is just a matter of how He is going to do it. To those who enter supergrace God expresses His love in supergrace blessings — “all things blend together for good.” But to the reversionistic believer God expresses His love through discipline — “whom the Lord loves he chasteneth”. Eternal life: God still has eternal life, God has always existed, there never was a time when God didn't exist. The fact that he has always existed means there never was a time when these blessings were not prepared for you, but even though they are prepared God will chance being disgusted with you and not pouring in your case. Then there is omniscience: God knew in eternity past that blessing would go unclaimed because of reversionism. Omnipotence: He has the ability to stick by His Word and say absolutely not to any reversionist who tries to twist and distort grace and say, as it were, let me in, let me have some of these things. Omnipresence: Jesus Christ is a personal witness, God the Father is a personal witness, and God the Holy Spirit is a personal witness to anything that you think or anything that you do, and there is no way that any member of the Godhead can be deceived. Immutability: God does not conform to you because you are impressed with yourself. God does not conform to your wishes and your desires whether expressed in prayer or expressed with great sincerity and beautiful theological language. God does not bend Himself or conform to you because you are nice. You may fake out people; but you will not be able to fake out God. God is not impressed with a nice personality. You cannot enjoy wealth, promotion, RM/RW, etc. if God is disciplining you. You have no capacity for life. Veracity: When God gives an oath or a promise you can count on it that it is true.

“they shall enter” is also the active voice in which the reversionistic believers do not reach supergrace. No matter how you slice it, if you do not have doctrine in your soul you cannot in time of disaster, you cannot in any time suddenly run to the Bible, grab a verse and try to claim it. It won't work. God is not blessing under supergrace those who do not have the supergrace capacity. In other words, if you do not have a cup God will not pour. The indicative mood is the principle of doctrine. No supergrace for the reversionist. That is what happened to the Exodus generation. No matter what you have in life it is no fun, it is no good, it is absolutely totally meaningless unless you have doctrinal capacity of the soul. God does not withhold any good thing from those who love Him, but “those who love Him” is the qualifying factor. “He withholdeth no good thing from them that love Him” means God will never stint, He will pour and pour and pour for those who have reached supergrace and for those who have the supergrace capacity. Everything you ever wanted and then some is waiting for you in eternity past, not in the future. You can't die and get it, you have to live to get it. And there is the problem, because living to get it means taking in doctrine, taking in doctrine, taking in doctrine, and then some more, and then you go all the way to supergrace. You cannot glorify God in time unless you have supergrace blessings being poured out. God is glorified by blessing you.

Some of the most boring people travel; and they find no happiness in traveling. Bob used to go to the Virgin Islands before anyone went there. He saw a lot of things there. He realized that traveling to a lot of places was best to leave it to the nebulous... Bob has met people who have been to places he has never been. People have eaten yak butter in Tibet; but hat has never made them happy. Bob is possibly the least traveled person of his family. Bob's father by age 18 had been around the world several times. It is doctrine that makes the difference. God is glorified by blessing us.

"into my rest" — again, we have the prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis]. Katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis] is the object of the preposition. Katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis] refers specifically to the Exodus generation to Canaan, for Canaan equals supergrace blessings. All of the supergrace blessings were in a geographical area for the Jews. Canaan was where they were to get their supergrace blessings, and God timed it so that it would take about a year, and in that year they would have the capacity to enjoy the blessings of Canaan. But by the end of that year when they came to Kadesh-barnea they were not ready, they were in reversionism. So God said no, and He turned them around, and for 39 years these reversionists wandered through the desert until they were all dead. Why? No capacity for Canaan. Canaan was a picture of the blessings of supergrace, not the supergrace life.

Hebrews 4:5 He says, "I am not God if they shall enter into my rest." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

The Failure of the Exodus Generation

1. The quotation is from Psalm 95:11 and describes the failure of the Exodus generation because of their reversionism.
2. The failure of the Exodus generation is analogous to the failure of every believer in any dispensation of time who lives his life on this earth in reversionism.
3. God has grace provision for all believers in time.
4. But this grace provision is not based upon volition. You get it whether you want it or not. God gives us a day at a time, food, clothing, shelter, the necessities of life, and whatever else is necessary. All of that is logistical grace.
5. But God also has supergrace provision based on volition, based on positive volition toward Bible doctrine. There are 50 acres of money trees, and we can claim them or not. Our name is affixed to the supergrace blessing that God has made for us, for every person.
6. Happiness [+H] and supergrace blessing has a principle: God makes love to the believer through Bible doctrine and the believer responds through the daily function of GAP. The believer reacts by forsaking the assembling of himself together with other believers.
7. Grace provision is for all believers in phase two (this would be logistical grace); supergrace blessing is for supergrace believers only.
8. Those who are occupied with Christ have supergrace capacity or the cup into which God pours, but there is no supergrace blessing for any believer in reversionism.

God loves all believers; He simply manifests this love in different ways.

Now we have a new paragraph in which we see the potentialities of supergrace — verses 6–9.

Heb 4:6 Since therefore it remains for some to enter it, and those who formerly received the good news failed to enter because of disobedience,... (ESV)

Verse 6 — the first thing we notice is that “seeing” is not seeing. There are only two ways that you can have the word “seeing” at the beginning of a sentence. One is to have the verb blepō (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh] in one of its forms which means to see. You could possibly have another verb, horaō (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh], but horaō (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh] has more of the concept of a panoramic view. Then you can have gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] — epexegetical gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] used in an explanatory sense, and that, too, can be “for you see”. But the word “seeing” here is a conjunction, epeí (ἐπεί) [pronounced ehp-IH], which doesn’t mean “seeing” at all, it means “since.”

“Since it remaineth” — present passive indicative of apoleipō (ἀπολείπω) [pronounced ap-ohl-IPE-oh]. The verb is a compound verb: a)po, the preposition of ultimate source, and leipw which means to be left over. Therefore, while the active voice of this verb means to leave behind the passive voice means something left over. There is a lot of difference between being left behind and something being left over. If you are left behind you are out of it; if you’re left over, you’re in it. Add to this an inferential particle, oun. This inferential particle forces the conclusion that even though people have failed to enter it in any specific generation, like the Exodus, it’s still open for the next generation. In other words, God still has supergrace blessings for all believers in the next generation, the next generation, the next, and so on. That is why it is important to understand that the passive voice mean to be left over and not to be left behind or left out — “Since therefore it is left over.” Believers in any generation can reap what God sows through supergrace status. That is what is mean here. This is a dramatic present. The dramatic present indicates that this is something that must be emphasized again and again. The indicative mood is the reality of the fact that there never will be a born again believer in all of human history for whom God has not designed and provided supergrace blessings in eternity past. It is all there, and even though others have failed this does not have anything to do with you. You can be in the midst of a whole generation of failures and still get that supergrace blessing.

“that some” — masculine accusative plural of the indefinite pronoun tís (τις) [pronounced tihç]. This indefinite pronoun is used in a lot of ways but it is used primarily to define a category. It refers, for example, to a category in a failure generation. The failure generation was the Exodus generation. “Some” refers specifically to Caleb and Joshua. “Some” refers to Moses and his second wife, but Caleb and Joshua are the best illustrations because they entered the land. it refers to David, to Jeremiah, the apostle Paul. No matter how a generation fails there are always those who get to supergrace and enjoy its blessing. God started pouring for Jeremiah after he was seventy years old, therefore Jeremiah is the greatest illustration ever of how God can bless a man in old age. These all illustrate the point of the indefinite pronoun which says that no matter how a generation fails there is always someone in every generation who realizes that doctrine is more important than anything else in life.

Paul did not have much of anything, but he was filled with supergrace blessing.

“must enter” — aorist active infinitive of eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ah-ee], the word for entrance into supergrace. The Exodus generation was given Canaan as their supergrace blessing. They did not have Canaan because they did not have supergrace capacity — “therein” should be translated “into it” — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the intensive pronoun autos. “It” refers to Canaan as a supergrace blessing based on supergrace capacity. The Jews of the Exodus generation did not enter Canaan because Canaan was a supergrace blessing and because they did not have the capacity. They had doctrine presented to them, they gave doctrine a hearing, but after they gave doctrine a hearing they went negative.

“and they” — reference to the Exodus generation; “to whom it was first preached” — “first” is an adverb, proteron, and it means the entire Exodus generation which heard doctrine.

“it was preached” is not a very good translation. We have the aorist passive participle of euaggelizō (εὐαγγελίζω) [pronounced yoo-ang-ghel-EED-zo] which means to proclaim doctrine, to communicate something good. The aorist tense is a constative aorist that gathers into its entirety all of the Bible teaching that occurred over the forty years. The passive voice: the Exodus generation received doctrine constantly. They received manna; that’s grace. They received doctrine; that’s grace. All of this was designed so they could have supergrace. This doctrinal teaching which they rejected became the basis of their cursing. This is also a participle. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb, “they entered not”. So first of all they turned down doctrine and therefore never acquired the supergrace blessings which God had for them. They rejected doctrine, therefore they did not enter supergrace. No capacity for supergrace means no supergrace blessing. God will not pour unless there is a cup.

“did not enter in” — e)ijerxomai again, only this time it is a culminative aorist which means it gathers together in its entirety every act of negative volition toward doctrine and expresses it as a result. The active voice: the reversionistic generation in which Moses preached produced the action of the verb. The indicative mood is the reality of failure on the part of the Exodus generation. A whole generation of people missed the boat in phase two. Why? What happened?

“because of unbelief” — dia plus the accusative of apeitheia (ἀπειθεία) [pronounced ap-Ī-thi-ah]. Apeitheia (ἀπειθεία) [pronounced ap-Ī-thi-ah] does not mean unbelief. The word for unbelief is apistia, which is not used here. While they are related words they are not the same. Apeitheia (ἀπειθεία) [pronounced ap-Ī-thi-ah] connotes uncompliance of disposition. In other words, a mule-head! It means also obstinacy, bullheadedness, or disobedience in the sense of rejecting authority. Peiqeia means obedience; apeitheia (ἀπειθεία)

[pronounced ap-Ī-thi-ah] means no obedience, it means rejection of the authority of the communicator — “because of obstinacy [negative volition toward authority].”

Bob teaches about 10 hours a week and odds are, he will offend someone every time. So you must be able to deal with authority over you. This is key in Bible teaching.

Hebrews 4:6 “Since therefore it [supergrace blessings] is left over for some [positive types] to enter into it, and they [the Exodus generation] to whom the doctrinal good news was first communicated did not enter in because of obstinacy”. R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The Exodus Generation and Canaan

1. Canaan represents supergrace blessing. To get into Canaan, you must enter with a cup. You must be able to drink from God’s blessing.
2. However, supergrace capacity precedes supergrace blessing.
3. In other words, you must have a cup before God pours.
4. The Exodus generation did not have the cup because they refused doctrine. They never transferred Bible doctrine from God’s communication to their own souls.
5. This means that the Exodus generation lacked occupation with Christ as well as supergrace capacity. Christ was not their celebrity (remember the golden calf incident).
6. However, their reversionism did not hinder the availability of supergrace blessings to the following generation.
7. This is illustrated in the next verse where supergrace blessing was still available 400 years later in David’s generation. Supergrace blessing was available to David, despite all of the failures which preceded him.
8. Therefore, conclusion: The failure of one generation does not close the door to the next generation or future generations. Conclusion: The failure of one generation does not close the door to positive believers in that generation. And supergrace blessings are just as available now as they were to the Exodus generation in the desert.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #41

41 04/23/1973 Hebrews 4:7 Doctrine of the hardening process

First 6 verses are reviewed.

Hebrews 4:7 again he appoints a certain day, "Today," saying through David so long afterward, in the words already quoted, "Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts." Psalm 95:7b (ESV)

Verse 7 — this verse indicates that the use of the Hebrew ha jom in Psalm 95 refers to supergrace capacity preceding supergrace blessing, and it was still open in David’s day.

Not only was it open in David's day but David is one of those people who explored new frontiers in supergrace blessing. For variety of blessing no one has ever exceeded the great record held by David. David is a man after God's own heart, he holds the most phenomenal of all records. God was more impressed with David than anyone else, not because God was impressed with David but, because God is inevitably impressed with His Word. And God must vindicate His Word in the soul of any believer who possesses it. There is no greater possession in life, there is nothing for which we should have greater desire, than the Word of God.

So we begin with the adverb palin which is correctly translated "Again." Palin is used to express the repetition or continuation of something already done, something that is already provided. That something is supergrace blessing provided in eternity past. God is perfect, His plan is perfect. God has provided in eternity past not only grace at salvation for you but grace for you in phase two, supergrace blessings for you in phase two, and surpassing blessings or surpassing grace for you in phrase three.

"he limiteth" — an erroneous translation. God doesn't do any limiting here at all. This is the present active indicative of horizō (ὀρίζω) [pronounced hohr-IHD-zoh]. Horizō (ὀρίζω) [pronounced hohr-IHD-zoh] means to appoint, to set up limits, to mark out, to designate boundaries, and it even means to determine or to decree. The present tense is an iterative present. The iterative present is used to describe something which recurs at successive intervals, the successive intervals being the change from one generation to another. This is sometimes called the present tense of repeated action and the concept is that supergrace blessing is open to every generation. There never was a believer in all of human history who did not have for him designed in eternity past the most phenomenal supergrace blessings. Even though 99 per cent of believers in this generation may fail to acquire them they are still open for you. The failure of one generation never cuts it off for the next. The failure of one generation certainly has an effect upon natural life and definitely has been demonstrated historically to put the generation succeeding behind the eight ball. But this is not true in the spiritual realm. The failure of our parents, the failure of our grandparents, the failure of our forbears does not in any way limit us or keep us from supergrace blessing. Anything that the devil offers today God offers it better in quality and more in quantity, and the capacity to enjoy it. That is what horizō (ὀρίζω) [pronounced hohr-IHD-zoh] means in the iterative present. The active voice: God appoints or decrees the continuation of supergrace blessings for every generation of believers. The indicative mood is the reality of the fact that God has determined as a part of His plan to pour out supergrace blessings to the believers who have the cup in the soul.

Rahab the hooker made it; but Jesse did not. Thousands of acres planted with money trees; rm/rw available for us. Whatever the devil's world offers He offers it better and in a greater quantity.

"a certain day" — tina hēmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw]n. "A certain day" refers to the supergrace life. "A certain day" is the day when you arrive at the point of occupation with Christ because of doctrine in the soul, because of the construction of the ECS. It is the point of celebrityship of Jesus Christ for you. It is the point at which you love Jesus Christ more than you love anything else in life. It is the point at which Jesus Christ who is absent from the earth is more real to you than things on the earth, where you reach the point where you just don't give a damn whether you have anything or not, or whether you live another day or not. But you are interested in one thing and that is who and what Jesus Christ is, and He is personally very important to you, more important than anything else. It isn't put on and it isn't faked. It isn't emotional, it isn't any type of a pseudo love, it is the real thing. It is not emotional; you are not trying to rub the genie the right way in order to gain something. You do not necessarily run around and talk about it. That is tripe based upon emotional nonsense. Tarry in a closet, yap your head off.

Holy rollers are not welcome here; they are not even human; they are emotional catastrophes. They don't know anything about anything.

You love Jesus because you have doctrine in your soul; and it cannot be faked. With enough doctrine, you can enjoy your rm or rw. You get to a place where you don't care about promotion or money; and you get promotions and money. When God pours, you love it. What's money but paper in the pocket? Just a certificate with numbers on it. Next thing you know, billions of dollars. God has a great sense of humor. Now you can enjoy it. God is a perfect host; this is money that you can enjoy. There was a time I would have gone wild; I would have killed my mother for a million dollars. "I can read lips; someone just said, 'I would have done it for less.' " in the devil's world, we have been brainwashed into thinking that certain things will make us happy. We are priests, not children. God decrees a certain day when you wake up. You love Jesus more than anything else in life. Everything else is secondary.

The more God can bless you with the blessings of this materialistic world the greater He is glorified. Principle of doctrine: God is glorified by blessing you. You go back to your last can of tuna fish and shredded wheat. God is glorified by blessing us. Some of you can even laugh at yourself.

Bob does not know the day or the month that he was saved. He knows approximate year; "Don't worry, I'm saved." Some of the greatest things that happen to us happen and you don't even know it. Doctrine in the soul is the only way that you will know it.

"saying" — present active participle of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh], meaning to communicate — present tense, linear aktionsart. The active voice, subject producing the action of the verb: the Psalm, David writing in a Psalm. The participle strengthens the concept of linear aktionsart, and it should be translated "constantly communicating". Why is it constant communication? Because Psalm 95 will never be taken out of the Bible, it will be there for your children, your great grandchildren and your great grandchildren to see. it will always be there.

"David" is another way of saying the Psalms since David is the human author of most of the Psalms, but not all. However, the Psalms are often known as "David". This is the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of David, and it can be translated

“by means of David” since David is the human author of Psalm 95 and since, again, we have a quotation of Psalm 95:7,8.

“Again, he decrees a certain day” [the day at which you arrive at supergrace], communicating by means of David ...”

“Today” — that is the great day. “Today”, sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on], means it is available now. Why do you think you have a day at a time? Because one of those days is going to be different from any day you’ve ever had. The day you hit supergrace will be the greatest day; you have all the God has designed for you. God enjoys giving us things. It is a victory in the Angelic Conflict.

“after so long a time” — meta tosouton xronon. Tosouton means such a long time, or so long. It can be translated “after such a long time” or “after the elapse of time.” After the elapse of time between the Exodus generation and David’s generation, a period of 400 years. After all of the accumulated failures of that 400 years does not hinder the grace of God in David’s day, and David broke all records in supergrace. It was just as available after 400 years of failure as it was at the time of Moses. It is always available, that is the point. It is available to you right now. And some of you just may be selfish enough and smart enough to stay with doctrine and arrive there.

Keep coming, whether you think you have the right motivation or not. The only thing that is going to straighten out anyone’s conscience. You might want to outdo one another when it comes to self-righteousness. Worrying about your motivation in Bible class is operation over think. Doctrine will straighten out everything in your soul.

Bob was a total ass at various times in is spiritual growth.

The writer of Hebrews is saying, God vindicates His Word by citing this passage 3x.

“as” — we have a temporal use of the adverb kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kath-OCE], and then Psalm 95 is quoted again — “as it is said,” the perfect passive indicative of prolégō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. Pro means above, or again here — “after so long a time elapsed; as it has been cited again.” The perfect tense: it has been cited but by now the repetition of it and the teaching of it and the studying of it and the analysis of it ought to begin to break through. That is the perfect tense. The passive voice: we have received the citation of this passage three times now — “after so long a time elapsed; as it has been cited previously [or above].” Hebrews 3:7–9, 15 4:7

Then we have “Today” again — sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on] begins the quotation in the middle of Psalm 95:7. The availability of the supergrace life is based on the daily intake of Bible doctrine to the soul. God gives the believer one day at a time, and you regard every day alike but when that one day hits that is going to be a special day no matter how you slice it — “Today if” — “if” is a third class condition, the conjunctive particle eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHM]. Here is emphasis on the believer’s volition related to the teaching of doctrine. “Today if you will hear” — getting right back to it: doctrine today, doctrine tomorrow, doctrine the next day, and so on, and all of a sudden it is the greatest day of your life — the aorist active indicative of akoúô (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh], the daily function of GAP. The aorist tense is a constative aorist which gathers into one entirety every time the believer assembles to listen to the teaching of the Word of God. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb by GAPing it today, tomorrow, etc. The subjunctive mood is the part of the third class condition which emphasizes the potentiality of this. Some days you won't feel like it, some days you won't want to, whatever it is, but you GAP it anyway. The active voice: you have to produce the action but the subjunctive mood is potential, it depends on volition.

“if you will listen and accept the authority of” — if you will listen and concentrate. The biggest problem in life today is lack of authority, failure to recognize authority, rejection of authority, antagonism toward authority. Authority has been all but eliminated from life and yet authority is the way that you come to love Jesus Christ. “If you will hear his voice” — this is the Bible, the teaching of Bible doctrine. This is the absolute authority of the scripture as contained in the canon in the original languages. This is the descriptive genitive of the noun phônê (φωνή) [pronounced foh-NAY].

“harden not” — present active subjunctive of sklêrunô (σκληρύνω) [pronounced sklay-ROO-no] with the negative mê. It is in the present tense. The present tense is a progressive present, it denotes persistence. And it means persistence in not hardening your hearts toward doctrine. You have to persist in it. The progressive present says you can't just say today I'm going to harden my heart, I'm going to go negative. You have to persist through all kinds of testing and pressure and difficulties. You have to persist, and you can't persist by saying today what you are going to do tomorrow. It is the persistence under all kinds of situations that counts. The progressive present is used to denote persistence. The active voice: the negative believer produces the action of the verb, “harden”. The subjunctive mood is a prohibitive subjunctive with the negative. It carries the force of a command while recognition is given to the involvement of human volition.

The review of this doctrine is actually back in lesson #33. (I know that makes no sense)

The Doctrine of the Hardening Process

1. While the believer is commanded to persist there are certain attitudes, moods, status of soul, that hinder persistence or become antagonistic toward persistence. These attitudes are disillusion, boredom, discouragement, self-pity, loneliness, frustration, bitterness, jealousy.
2. It is not unusual nor abnormal to suddenly discover in your life these enemies of positive volition. The abnormal and unusual thing is to cater to them, and the believer caters to them by reaction. The believer caters to this status by reacting with a frantic search for happiness.
3. The frantic search for happiness always upsets the balance of the soul, and in this upset balance emotion takes over from the heart. The heart becomes hardened because the emotion doesn't respond to it. Remember that the heart of the soul is the right man and the emotion is the right woman, and if the heart initiates and the emotion turns around and takes over the heart hardens. So coterminous with or immediately following is the upset balance of the soul which we call emotional revolt of the soul. Emotional revolt of the soul gives added intensity to the frantic search for happiness. If it happens to be a self-righteous search this is how we get holy-rollers. If it happens to be a lascivious frantic search this is how you get into the phallic cult. These are the swingers.

4. The combination results in a changed attitude toward doctrine. The changed attitude can be apathy, indifference, or antagonism. This leads to some form of negative volition, whether primary or secondary.
5. Negative volition toward doctrine produces the necessary scar tissue of the soul which creates a vacuum to the heart. The heart has already been hardened, now there is a vacuum line going to the heart of the soul. This vacuum line draws in doctrine of demons — 1Timothy 4:1 — which is how we get the cup of demons in the devil's communion table of 1Corinthians 10:21. To drink of the cup of the Lord: supergrace; to drink of the cup of demons: reversionism. This is not demon possession, this is demon influence.
6. Resultant demon influence causes a blackout of the soul. The hardness of the heart shortens out all the systems of the soul. This blackout of the soul is immediately followed by a complete change of life, a spiritual and negative change called reverse process reversionism.
7. Under the hardening process the believer begins to sow that he reaps. First, in the category of self-induced misery, and secondly, in the category of divine discipline.

Hebrews 4:7 “Again, he decrees a certain day [supergrace life], communicating by means of David [human author, quotation: Psalm 95], Today, after so long a time elapsed; as has been previously cited in the context, Today if you will hear [and recognize the authority of] and concentrate on his voice, stop hardening your right lobes.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

1972 Hebrews 4:8–9

Lesson #42

42 05/06/1973 Hebrews 4:8–9 Past failures

Bob asks for the young men in uniform to stand.

You are fed, sheltered, and this is provided apart from volition. Volition is involved in supergrace. This is where God pours. The cup depends upon gapping it to supergrace. The grace that sustains us is totally apart from human volition.

Bob goes through the first 7 verses.

Hebrews 4:8 For if Joshua had given them rest, God would not have spoken of another day later on. (ESV)

Verse 8 — “For if Joshua (not Jesus)”. The word “for” is the conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] used in the explanatory sense, designed at this particular point to show us the fact that even though in the past born again believers have failed to reach supergrace it is still available today, and past failure on the part of anyone is no hindrance to anyone receiving supergrace blessings today.

“if” is a conditional particle used as a second class condition ei (εἰ) [pronounced ī]. Whenever you have this particle and you have with it an aorist tense in the protasis and the imperfect in the apodosis, plus the little particle án (ἀν) [pronounced ahn], this is always the second class condition. In the Greek syntax this is called a contrary to fact conditional clause — “if” and it is not true. The premise is assumed to be contrary to the facts. So the conditional clause states a thing as being untrue: “If Joshua had given them rest [and he didn’t].” Notice that we have the word “Jesus” in the English text. That is because the English word “Jesus” is a transliteration of the Greek word lêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE]. But lêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE], is actually taken from the Hebrew Yeshua or Joshua, and it refers here, as in Acts 7:45, not to the Lord Jesus Christ but to Joshua who succeeded Moses. So it should be translated, “For if Joshua.”

1. This verse is speaking of the generation immediately following the Exodus generation. The Exodus generation is often designated by its leader, Moses. The generation that followed is called the Joshua generation after its leader, Joshua. So this verse is speaking of the Joshua generation which succeeds the Exodus generation and actually entered the land.
2. The Joshua generation entered Canaan but did not have capacity for Canaan as indicated by their incomplete conquest of the land. They did not take all of the land that God had promised them. So the conquest was incomplete. It was the supergrace generation of David that finally came through and conquered all of the land given to them. They had many military failures. As supergrace believers, they would have entered the land and slaughtered the enemy completely.

The conquest of the land was final under David, between 1000–900 B.C.

Bob saw one of the lousiest movies ever, called The Young Lion; and they made it as if killing the enemy was terrible. That was set aside. This was a propaganda film to discourage the killing of the enemy. Believe that and you will be under chains in one generation. If you are a believer with doctrine, you should have immediately gone out and vomited.

Stonewall Jackson made a speech: “Better to die in battle as a hero than by a firing squad for being a traitor.”

Joshua was great, but he had a lot of weak sisters under him.

So we have the phrase, “For if Joshua [and he didn’t, but if he had].” The “if” again indicates that the failure of the Joshua generation was not in crossing the Jordan but the failure to have supergrace capacity as a military people. In moving into the land they had to fight for it. In moving into the land and having the freedom provided under the ten commandments and the rest of the Mosaic law they had to fight for these freedoms. And, of course, they were incompetent in fighting not because they lacked the physical ability, not because they lacked the military training, but because they did not have the capacity of soul. Joshua himself had the soul for fighting but, unfortunately, Joshua had an army staff with a lot of weak people in reversionism. Joshua gave orders to wipe out everyone at Ai but they didn't do it. No supergrace status means no supergrace blessings. Only those believers in supergrace had capacity for blessing in the land of Canaan, and actually the great hero of the Joshua generation was Caleb. Caleb was the old man. He was 85 years old but he marched up the hill and whipped the giants. Not only did he defeat the giants but he killed them all. God poured for Caleb as an old man.

Caleb celebrated his old age by killing the giants, which were not killed when they first went into the land.

“had given them rest” — the aorist active indicative of katapauō (καταπαύω) [pronounced kat-ap-OW-oh]. We have the transitive use of the verb here which means to cause to rest — “For if Joshua had caused them to rest”. That is freedom from tyranny by totally successful military victory. The aorist tense is the constative aorist, it takes an occurrence and regardless of the extent of time or the duration of time gathers it into a single whole. The entire generation of Joshua spent many years fighting and conquering but many of them lacked supergrace capacity and therefore no supergrace blessings in the land. Their parents died the sin unto death outside of the land, but they didn't have supergrace capacity so they didn't have supergrace blessing in the land. The constative aorist plus the second class condition emphasizes a principle: Prosperous environment without supergrace capacity is just as miserable as adversity without supergrace capacity. Environment makes no difference. Either you have doctrine in your soul or you do not. And it is not your environment, it is the capacity of your soul that counts. It is the capacity of soul that makes the prosperous items of life enjoyable, and the people who enjoy prosperity are the same people who hold up in adversity because it is capacity of soul that counts — doctrine in the soul. So this constative aorist plus the second class condition is a reminder of that principle. The active voice: the believers of Joshua's generation failed to produce the action of the verb not because they lacked military ability or physical stamina but because they lacked doctrine in the soul. They failed because of reversionism. The indicative mood is the reality of reversionism in the Joshua generation. However, this state of reversionism did not close the door to supergrace blessing in every generation, as pointed out by the next verse.

Next we have the Greek particle which is always a part of the second class condition. It is translated “then”. It introduces the apodosis of the second class condition. The particle is án (ὅν) [pronounced ahn]. The literal Greek of the apodosis is different from what we have in the King James version. It is oúk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] án (ὅν) [pronounced ahn] peri a)llh e)lalei meta tauta hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw]. The word án (ὅν) [pronounced ahn] means “then” — peri a)llh, concerning another, and then hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw] for “day”. Literally, “then concerning another day.”

Then, “he would not be speaking” — we take ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook], the negative, which is at the beginning — “not”, a very strong objective negative, and e)lalei goes with ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] — “he would not be speaking”. Then it ends up with meta plus the accusative plural of tauta and means “after these things.” Meta plus the genitive means “with,” but meta plus the accusative means “after”. Literal Translation: “Then concerning another day he would not be speaking after these things.” What does it mean?

“Then” means now we go from the failure of the Joshua generation after the failure of the Exodus generation and draw conclusions with regard to every generation. The real key is what we have in our English “would he not have spoken” which is really “he would not be speaking”. It is an imperfect active indicative of laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh]. Here is the key right here. The verb is laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] in the imperfect tense. It has that negative with it. The imperfect tense is what is called an iterative imperfect, it describes the action of the verb as recurring at successive intervals of time. But it has to be successive intervals in past time. God opened the supergrace life to believers in the previous generation, He opened it to believers of the Joshua generation, He opens it in every past generation. So this particular imperfect tells us this: From the time of Adam’s fall right up to the present there has never been a generation to whom the supergrace blessings from God have not been available. This does not mean that other generations have acquired them but it is available. So doctrine was available for believers in every generation: to Adam after the fall, to the Cain and Abel generation, to the Noah generation. There never was a generation that didn’t have enough doctrine to reach supergrace and supergrace blessings. That is the iterative imperfect. The active voice: God produces the action of the verb. If the failure of one generation closed the door to supergrace then God would keep the offer open, as He obviously did in David’s day — Psalm 95:7–11. The indicative mood of this verb says that we have reality, the reality of God keeping supergrace open to every generation. This means that supergrace is open to any believer on consistent positive volition today, and will be in this generation no matter how badly things go historically.

The prepositional phrase, peri a)llhj hêméra (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw], which is peri plus the genitive, is translated “concerning another of the same kind of day.” A)llhj is the genitive of allos (ἄλλος) [pronounced AL-Iohs], and allos (ἄλλος) [pronounced AL-Iohs] means another of the same kind. That means that every generation has the opportunity for supergrace — “concerning another of the same kind of day”, and then the prepositional phrase meta tauta, “after these things.”

Hebrews 4:8 “For if Joshua had caused them to rest [but he didn’t], then concerning another day [of supergrace opportunity] He [the Holy Spirit speaking to David in Psalm 95] would not be speaking after these things [after the failure of past generations].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The prepositional phrase “after these things” refers to the fact that past failure did exist, but past failure did not hinder the availability of supergrace. In other words, when we come to our own generation we have a long history of failure in the past on the part of other believers. This does not in any way hinder us. The failure of past generations definitely has some effect on the next generation, and the only way that can be changed is through Bible doctrine. It means that in the generation of our children the nation will either go down or recover.

The failures of previous generations can affect us today.

Watergate is a big nothing. It is his foreign policy and domestic policy which count. Freedom of the press, but no capacity for freedom. This is a political football. The press did not throw a fit when Nixon gave bushels of wheat to our enemies the Russians. Destroying our educational system by busing. People should go to school with those in their own neighborhood. Nixon's failures are not hooked up with tapping a wire; they are connected to an unrealistic attitude. Business and free enterprise ought to be flourishing.

Summary

1. The Exodus generation failed to enter the supergrace life with its occupation with Christ, supergrace capacity, and supergrace blessings. Because of no capacity God kept that generation out of the land. They weren't even qualified to fight. They lacked qualification not because of their military potential but because of their failure of the soul. Reversionism destroys a people as far as fighting for freedom is concerned.
2. The failure of the Exodus generation, however, did not shut the door to supergrace. The Joshua generation entered the land. However, many without supergrace capacity and therefore they did not completely occupy the land, they did not completely win the land, and for generations afterward they were often enslaved because of their failure of conquest. This is the whole story of the book of Judges. Those they left alive rose up and enslaved the Jews at least 11 times.
3. The failure of the Exodus generation, Joshua generation, the failure of the generations covered by the book of Judges, does not result in withdrawal of supergrace opportunity.
4. In David's generation supergrace was still available — Psalm 95:7–11.
5. For this reason the writer of Hebrews reminds the apostolic generation residing in Jerusalem that supergrace is still available to them in the year 67 AD.
6. Whatever failure of reversionism has occurred between the apostolic generation and the twentieth century it has not hindered the opportunity for supergrace right now. In other words, supergrace is open to you right now.
7. Supergrace living is open to every generation of believers. God provides the doctrine as well as the communicators of doctrine. Supergrace living includes entering into the celebrityship of Jesus Christ. This is the spiritual status that glorifies Him — occupation with Christ, supergrace capacity, and supergrace blessings.

Hebrews 4:9 So then, there remains a Sabbath rest for the people of God,... (ESV)

Verse 9 — we have a conclusion. “There remaineth” is a present passive indicative of the verb apoleipō (ἀπολείπω) [pronounced ap-oh-IPE-oh]. In the present passive indicative this verb means to have something left over, something remaining behind. The present tense of the verb is a customary present, it indicates that which habitually occurs or what may be reasonably expected to occur. Hence, the supergrace life is available to every generation of believers. This is the customary present, it is linear aktionsart. In the Church Age every believer is a priest.

Every believer priest has available to him:

a) Bible doctrine in permanent form, the canon of scripture, the Bible; b) A continual flow of communicators of doctrine, the gift of pastor-teacher; c) A classroom where doctrine can be assimilated, the local church.

To enjoy the priesthood, believers must have available to them the supergrace life.

The passive voice: this verb in the active voice means to go berserk, to go AWOL, to leave behind, but in the passive voice the verb changes its meaning and comes to mean to be left over. The indicative mood is the reality of divine sowing for supergrace blessings for every believer, and this is accomplished in eternity past. So God is waiting to pour. God faces every generation with great and fantastic blessings, as it were, a full load of blessings waiting to pour these things.

“therefore” is the illitive use of the inferential particle ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah], it means to provide a conclusion to the paragraph.

“a rest” — we have not the usual word katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis] here. This has been the word “rest” for the last two chapters. It is used for the supergrace life because the work is accomplished by God. But now we have a different Greek word, it is a synonym with a slightly different meaning — sabbatismos (σαββατισμός) [pronounced sab-bat-is-MOSS]. This word was used by Plutarch in the concept of God has been resting since eternity past with regard to supergrace blessings. The reason it is available to you is because all supergrace blessings were provided in eternity past. Everything God wanted you to have was provided billions of years ago. Katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis] talks about receiving these things and enjoying these things, sabbatismos (σαββατισμός) [pronounced sab-bat-is-MOSS] looks at it from God’s viewpoint. Sabbatismos (σαββατισμός) [pronounced sab-bat-is-MOSS] says, God has been resting before time began because when it comes to surpassing grace blessings, and supergrace blessings, they were all provided in eternity past. Everything you will ever have in eternity was already provided. Therefore these are obviously available. In eternity past God wanted you to share in His perfect happiness, and He combines that with defeating Satan in time. Because by giving you supergrace blessings, by pouring for you, God not only fulfils His desire from eternity past to make you happy but your happiness under these conditions also is the great temporal defeat of Satan. It is a tactical defeat, the strategical defeat occurred at the cross. And God found a way not only to save you but to reward you. The rewards in eternity come from being blessed in time.

“to the people” — dative singular from laos (λαός) [pronounced lah-OSS]. Laos (λαός) [pronounced lah-OSS] is the dative case is a dative of reference, and it is a reference to distinguish those qualified for supergrace. This could also be what is known as an ablative of separation, which accomplishes the same thing. Only the supergrace believer reaps what God sows — Romans 8:28 applies to supergrace. Then we have a genitive of possession from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] plus the definite article, and it should be translated “the God”.

Hebrews 4:9 “Therefore there is left over a sabbatical rest [supergrace blessings] with reference to the people of the God.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Concluding Remarks on V. 9

1. Here is the conclusion of the paragraph. Failure on the part of one generation does not hinder supergrace blessings for future generations.
2. Failure on the part of one believer does not close the door for supergrace blessings for another.
3. Supergrace, therefore, is open in spite of failures in past history.
4. Supergrace is open in spite of your past spiritual failures.
5. God has set up a marker to remind us of this. The marker is the continual existence of the canon of scripture where the pertinent information continues to be available for every generation.

Supergrace blessing still remains for believers in every generation.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #43

43 05/13/1973 Hebrews 4:10–12a Doctrine of inspiration

Bob reviews the first 9 verses of this chapter.

Γνωσις is not useable by the soul. Doctrine has to be believed. Norms and standards which line up with divine norms and standards.

Hebrews 4:10 ...for whoever has entered God's rest has also rested from his works as God did from his. (ESV)

Verse 10 — the principle of supergrace. The word “For” the explanatory use of the particle gar, and in this particular passage gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] should be translated “For you see.” As a result of the study of the first nine verses we can now begin to see forming a very definite conclusion, and that is the use of the Greek particle at this point.

“he that is entered into” — the aorist active participle of the verb eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ah-ee]. Eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ah-ee] is used in this passage for entrance into supergrace capacity. It includes the concept of occupation with Christ [category #1 love maximum], plus entrance into the supergrace capacity and the supergrace blessing. The aorist here is the constative aorist which indicates something of the mechanics. It gathers up into one entirety every time the believer GAPs it, every time the believer takes in doctrine. He starts out zero and ends up 100 per cent — the consistency of taking in Bible doctrine. The active voice in the Greek: the believer produces the action of the verb and he produces it by studying the Word of God daily. This is an aorist participle. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb is that God has ceased from His own works. God has already ceased from His works and therefore you enter into what God has ceased to do it's nothing but blessing. This is the concept of grace.

“his rest” — here is one of three words found in the New Testament for rest. This is the noun katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis]. This word is the act of resting. The act of resting means that God is doing all the blessing and you are doing nothing about it. You are not earning or working or deserving for blessing. There is another word which is used only in Matthew 11:28, 29: anápausis (ἀνάπαυσις) [pronounced an-AP-ow-sis] which is very similar — aná (ἀνά) [pronounced aw-NAW], meaning again, pausij meaning rest, and it means to rest again or it is used for regeneration. Anápausis (ἀνάπαυσις) [pronounced an-AP-ow-sis] is also used for the phase three rest of surpassing grace. We studied in the previous verse a third word which is used: sabbatismos (σαββατισμός) [pronounced sab-bat-is-MOSS], which connotes rest because work is accomplished and it emphasizes the divine side of grace. Supergrace blessing in eternity past is sabbatismos (σαββατισμός) [pronounced sab-bat-is-MOSS]. Surpassing grace of phase three is anápausis (ἀνάπαυσις) [pronounced an-AP-ow-sis] or phase one, salvation. So katapausij is reserved for time, and the blessings we receive in time. Because this supergrace blessing is available to all believers we now have the challenge of verses 11 and 12.

Hebrews 4:10 "For you see, he that is entered into His rest..."

This does not appear to have been completed.

Hebrews 4:11 Let us therefore strive to enter that rest, so that no one may fall by the same sort of disobedience. (ESV)

Verse 11 — “Let us labour” is incorrectly translated. This is the aorist active subjunctive of the verb spoudazô (σπουδάζω) [pronounced spoo-DAWD-zoh]. This means to be eager, to make every effort to be diligent, it connotes a very strong motivation in the soul. This is the ingressive aorist, it must begin to be strong motivation in the soul. Remember, the soul is composed of self-consciousness by which you relate yourself to time, to people, and in this passage, relate yourself to God. You also have the thinking process of the soul, the two frontal lobes. The left lobe in for objective information, the right lobe is where it is used. In both the Old Testament and the New Testament the left lobe is simply translated by the word “mind” and the right lobe is translated by the word heart. The heart is where you do all of your thinking. Like “the fool has said in his heart there is no God,” that’s thinking. Then we have volition which is the great issue in the angelic conflict. We have emotion, the appreciator of what one has in the right lobe — in his frame of reference, in his vocabulary and categories, his norms and standards and his launching pad. The emotion is designed to respond to what is in the right lobe. We have a new motivater based upon Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine motivates properly in the Christian life. The ingressive aorist means that this must have a beginning. The ingressive aorist look at something form its entirety but the action of the verb is at the beginning, and so usually it is translated “to begin” something. Here the word spoudazô (σπουδάζω) [pronounced spoo-DAWD-zoh] means “let us begin to be diligent” — let us begin to have the proper mental attitude. Then active voice: this is the positive believer producing the action of the verb in his attitude toward doctrine. The subjunctive mood is called a hortatory conjunction. A hortatory subjunctive carries the weight of a command but recognizes the volition of the individual involved, it recognizes that volition is a true issue. So from your own free will as a believer priest you must desire the Word of God. “Let us begin to be diligent therefore”. “Therefore” is the inferential particle οὖν which always occurs in the middle of a sentence or at the beginning but is never the first word in a sentence. This inferential particle indicates somewhere in the sentence that a conclusion is being drawn. The conclusion is that every believer is not going to fulfil the purpose for remaining in this life unless he enters the supergrace life with its occupation with Christ, with its cup — which is the capacity for life, freedom, love, adversity and happiness — and the actual pouring of blessings so that you can say with David, “My cup runneth over”. That is the supergrace status. The point here is, that no believer is ever going to enter this status apart from doctrine. To enter this status it takes day after day after day of GAPing it, taking in Bible doctrine. It takes persistence in all kinds of situations. Therefore, “Let us begin to be diligent” means to be motivated, motivated to enter supergrace. So we have the concept of motivation. The motivation must be positive volition.

In the middle of this verse, “let us be motivated therefore to enter into that rest lest,” the word “enter into”, again, is an aorist active infinitive of eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahee], referring to entering into the supergrace life, but this time we have a culminative aorist. There are basically three kinds of aorist tense. The aorist tense basically gathers into one ball of wax. The duration of the time is dependent upon whatever verb is used. it can be anything from almost instantaneous to a long period of time. Since eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahee] is discussing entrance into the supergrace life there must be at the beginning of your Bible study that takes you there — your intake of the Word — the proper mental attitude. So here we have the ingressive aorist. This is the attitude that you carry into GAPing it daily to supergrace; there must be positive volition toward doctrine. And as a result of that eventually you will arrive at the supergrace life and that’s a culminative aorist. So in one sentence here we have the ingressive aorist — “let us be properly motivated” or “let us be diligent” — and “to enter into” is a culminative aorist indicating the result of GAPing it. In other words, when you begin your Christian life and you realize the issue is doctrine, and you realize the importance of doctrine, your motivation is changed. That is the ingressive aorist of this hortatory subjunctive, “let us be diligent”. Then, when you get to the end of the road you will have arrived at supergrace. The ball of wax itself is GAPing it every day to the point of supergrace. That is the concept.

This makes an issue out of something. In salvation the issue is the Lord Jesus Christ. What think ye of Christ? determines your eternal future. "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; he that believeth not the Son shall not see life but the wrath of God abideth on him." Your attitude toward Christ determines whether you are saved or not. To believe in Jesus Christ, at the moment of salvation you receive 36 things. In one second, you believe. In the second you believe in Jesus Christ God gives you these 36 things that you will have forever. But that is only phase one and the issue now is, What do you think of doctrine? Your attitude toward doctrine in time determines which way you are going. If your attitude is positive, as suggested by this first verb "let us be diligent" then eventually you're going to reach supergrace. And when you do you are going to be occupied with the person of Christ, you are going to have supergrace capacity, and God is going to be glorified because with that capacity in the soul God pours and this becomes the tactical victory of the angelic conflict. When God can pour he is glorified because you are blessed exceedingly; but God is glorified and that is the great issue. The way your Christian life goes depends entirely on your attitude toward Bible doctrine. It must be consistent, it must be positive, and it must be daily. This, therefore, leads to the supergrace life, it leads to the rest we have been studying. This is why the Exodus generation failed. They failed because they didn't have the capacity for the land, therefore they didn't enter the land.

"let us be motivated therefore to enter into that rest" — the culminative aorist is employed to view an asset in its entirety but to regard it from the standpoint of existing results. This and the previous aorist then combine to put the daily function of GAP in between them. You start with an attitude, you start with positive volition, and that is the beginning. Positive volition causes you to GAP it today, tomorrow, the next day, the next day, and so on, until eventually you reach supergrace. This is the ball of wax. The mental attitude is at the beginning, and at the end you have the great prosperity that belongs to the believer. The active voice of this infinitive: the believer produces the action, any believer. All believers are in full time Christian service. Every believer is a priest, every believer is indwelt by the Holy Spirit, every believer is indwelt by Christ, every believer is in union with Christ, and therefore the objective can be accomplished for any believer. One of the 36 things we receive at the moment of salvation is entrance into union with Christ. This keeps Christianity from being a religion. Christianity is not a religion, it is a relationship. And, as Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father so positionally we are the right hand of the Father and therefore share in the strategical victory of the angelic conflict. Jesus Christ is eternal life, we share that life; Jesus Christ is absolute righteousness, we share that righteousness. He is the Son, we share His sonship, His heirship, His priesthood, His election. His destiny. In short, we share everything that Christ is because we are in union with Him. Once you are in that relationship you cannot get out, and the issue is not union with Christ, the issue is supergrace versus the sin unto death. It is learning about union with Christ that motivates the believer to GAP it to supergrace instead of to be negative in volition and to end up like the Exodus generation whose corpses were strewn all over the desert.

The infinitive of the Greek here is an infinitive of purpose, it expresses the objective of the action of the verb. The purpose of GAP and positive volition is to enter into the supergrace life. You have been saved and kept on this earth for that purpose. "Therefore let us begin to be diligent to enter into that rest.” The word “that” is a demonstrative pronoun in the accusative — ἐκεῖνος. A demonstrative pronoun is used to refer to something which is very well known by this time in the context, something that has been previously mentioned, and something though previously mentioned must be emphasized. So “that” used for this particular demonstrative pronoun is to emphasize once again the importance of the noun in the accusative case, katapausis (κατάπαυσις) [pronounced kat-AP-ow-sis], which refers to the supergrace life, the supergrace life which is characterized by occupation with the person of Jesus Christ. No one truly loves God until he reaches that point. All divine blessing always comes in the supergrace life and without supergrace capacity blessing, success, happiness, it meaningless to you as a believer. Only when blessings are related to the angelic conflict in tactical victory does it become meaningful. That is the concept right here.

The word “lest” introduces a negative purpose clause. We have a conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus the subjective negative mē, which gives us our negative purpose clause — “that no one.” We have an indefinite pronoun, tis (τις) [pronounced tihç], but plus the negative mē “anyone” becomes “no one”. “That no one fall” — the aorist active subjunctive of the verb piptō (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh], used for reversionism both here and in other passages. Both piptō (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh] and its compounds are used for reversionism. Now we have our first ingressive aorist. The verb piptō (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh] is an ingressive aorist which regards the action at the beginning when the believer has reacted to the usual things. This is an ingressive aorist of reaction. Here we have it again: You are going to be disillusioned at some time, bored by something, discouraged by something, etc. This leads to a great frustration. Then you have mental attitude sins intruding — jealousy, bitterness, being jilted, etc. These are reactor factors. This verb piptō (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh] is related to reactor factors. Here is where piptō (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh] or falling begins. When you fall, by the way, you never lose your salvation. Falling means to go into reversionism. You react to these things. You go on your own little frantic search for happiness. What kind of a frantic search that is depends upon the trend of your old sin nature.

There is no place for holy rollers in Berachah Church. No place for the phonies. Most of those who tend to asceticism usually leave Berachah.

There is a great deal of emotional revolt today. You can tell it with the long hair on males.

“Therefore let us begin to be diligent to enter into that specific rest [of the supergrace life] lest anyone begin to fall”. It is doctrine that protects the believer from reversionism. The active voice: the believer reacting by a frantic search for happiness plus emotional revolt produces the action of the verb. The action of the verb eventuates in negative volition. So, again, we have an aorist tense and this time the ingressive aorist shows reaction to the reactors, resulting in a frantic search for happiness. Then, emotional revolt and at the end negative volition toward doctrine, and that, of course, leads to the reversionism. The subjunctive mood is what is called a potential subjunctive, it introduces the element of contingency, a possible condition. The compound of this verb piptō (πίπτω) [pronounced

PIHP-toh], parapiptô (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh], is used to describe a person who is already in reversionism. This we will study in Hebrews 6:6.

Now let's see if we can chart this. Starting with the reactors: disillusion, boredom, discouragement, self-pity, loneliness, the concept of frustration; the mental attitude sins: jealousy, bitterness, vindictiveness, the experience of being jilted. These are reactors. This time we will have the reaction, the frantic search for happiness, coming right out of it. The frantic search for happiness leads to emotional revolt of the soul. The ones who fool you are the ascetics, whose frantic search for happiness is much different than you would expect.

The emotional revolt of the soul leads to a condition called "obstinacy" in our passage, or negative volition toward doctrine. This obstinacy or negative volition toward doctrine then starts a series of conditions that produce a full-blown reversionistic life. The first of these is scar tissue of the soul. From scar tissue it goes rather rapidly to demon influence, not demon possession. No believer can be demon-possessed. Demon influence is doctrine of demons entering the soul, entering the right lobe. This blacks out the soul, so next we have blackout of the soul. By this time the born again believer is looking at life strictly from the Satanic viewpoint. This eventuates in the practice of reverse process reversionism. This is about as low as you can go, and this also includes divine discipline. Self-induced misery begins at the point of emotional revolt, but you have divine discipline in three categories: the knocking or the warning stage, the intensified stage, and the dying stage. This is the obstinacy which we find as this passage continues.

"after the same example of unbelief" is really "after the same example of obstinacy". Our noun is apeitheia (ἀπειθεία) [pronounced ap-Ī-thi-ah], which should be translated "obstinacy." It is a genitive of description and it should be translated "with reference to the same example of obstinacy."

Hebrews 4:11 "Therefore let us begin to be diligent to enter into that specific rest [supergrace] lest anyone begin to fall with reference to the same example of obstinacy." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

This brings us to the solution, to our very life on this earth. More important than the air that we breathe is Bible doctrine.

Hebrews 4:12 For the word of God is living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing to the division of soul and of spirit, of joints and of marrow, and discerning the thoughts and intentions of the heart. (ESV)

Verse 12 — "For," the explanatory use of gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] to indicate a solution to obstinacy, to show how you can avoid apeitheia (ἀπειθεία) [pronounced ap-Ī-thi-ah] — obstinacy, negative volition.

“the word of God” — ho logos tou theou, doctrine that belongs to God. This is a title for our spiritual food. The Bible contains spiritual food for the believer, nourishment for his soul, blessing for the function of his priesthood.

The Doctrine of Inspiration

1. The general principle of inspiration is found in a Greek noun, *qeo*pneustoj. Pneustoj means breathe and qeo means God. It is translated “inspiration” but it should be translated “God-breathed” — 2Timothy 3:16, “All scripture is God-breathed.” This noun indicates mechanics. The mechanics start with the third person of the Trinity, God the Holy Spirit, and move to the human writers, and eventuate in a canon of scripture. This is accomplished over a long period of time, starting with Moses as a human writer and ending with John in 96 AD. All scripture originates with a member of the Trinity, God the Holy Spirit. This scripture is said to be the thinking or the mind of Christ in 1Corinthians 2:16. God the Holy Spirit communicates to human writers like Paul, for example. He communicates a complete and coherent message. This principle is called the principle of inhale whereby God the Holy Spirit communicates to the soul of a human writer — 2Samuel 23:2,3; Isaiah 59:21; Jeremiah 1:9; Matthew 22:42,43; Mark 12:36; Acts 4:24–26; 25:28. Then the human author, and in the case of the Old Testament the human author had to be a prophet — in the case of Moses, he had the gift plus the office of prophet; in the case of the second part of the Hebrew canon it was the office of prophet, like Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel; in the case of the third portion of the canon of scripture it was the gift of prophecy, like David and Solomon in Psalms and Proverbs. But the Old Testament human author had to be a prophet. The New Testament human author had to be an apostle or one closely associated with an apostle, like Mark in his association with Peter writing the Gospel of Mark. The human authors of scripture exhaled this information in writing. They wrote without waiving their human intelligence, their vocabulary, their personality, their individuality, their personal feelings. God’s complete message to man was perfectly recorded with perfect accuracy in the original scripture [not in translations].
2. The origin of scripture is not human viewpoint. God the Holy Spirit uses human agency and human language — 2Peter 1:20,21.
3. The Word of God is also said to be the mind of Christ, therefore the absolute criterion for believers — 1Corinthians 2:16 cf. Psalm 138:2.
4. Consequently, the Bible as the mind of Christ existed in eternity past prior to being written in human form — Proverbs chapter eight.
5. Pre-canon revelation from God occurred through the Holy Spirit. We also have before the canon was written God revealed Himself — 2Samuel 23:2; Ezekiel 2:2; 8:3; 11:1; Micah 3:4; Hebrews 3:7.
6. There are four categories of Old Testament revelation: the spoken word, “Thus saith the Lord”; dreams as in Genesis 15:12; 31:10–13; Numbers 12:6; Daniel 10:9; visions as in Isaiah 1:1 and 6:1; 1Kings 22:19; angelic teaching as in Deuteronomy 33:2; Psalm 68:17; Acts 7:53; Galatians 3:19.
7. The extent of inspiration includes a number of things.

- a. a) For example, the Bible teaches accurately the historical past before any historical records were kept or an accurate one. Genesis chapters 1–11 is an illustration of what God has provided by way of giving us information regarding the historical past.
- b. b) While the Bible is not a textbook it gives accurate historical information about ancient history. All the historical citations in the Bible are accurate. They are not intended to be a complete history but their accuracy as a part of the canon of scripture is guaranteed by the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. These historical citations are not only accurate and form the basis for background in communicating doctrine but it is the basis of isagogics as the means of interpreting the scripture.
- c. c) There is objective type law. The Bible contains many laws for individuals as well as national life. These can be summarized under the concept of the laws of divine establishment. These laws perfectly express the essence of God. They contain His will for the people to whom they are given. They also give a basis for survival in the devil’s world. Repetition of these laws and subsequent recording of them demonstrate their application to every generation.
- d. d) Dictation. Some portions of the scriptures contain direct quotations from God. The doctrine of inspiration guarantees that the commands, the quotations, are properly recorded, accurately recorded just as they were given from God to man.
- e. e) There is also some devotional literature in the Bible: the Psalms, for example. They are related to the experiences of human life, they are accurate in their relationship, and they portray doctrines pertinent to us today.
- f. f) There is also in the Bible the recording of falsehoods. The Bible in inspiration does not sanction these falsehoods, such as the Satanic lies, but instead it indicates that this is accurate, this is the way they were, this is the way the devil said it. It does not condone falsehood, it records it accurately. The doctrine of inspiration guarantees the accuracy of the lie.
- g. g) Prophecy. Inspiration involves both the selection of prophetic materials as well as their complete accuracy. We do not have a complete and detailed account of everything in the future but we do have enough so that we can put together a very beautiful picture for the believer in phase three.

Heb 4:12 For the word of God is living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing to the division of soul and of spirit, of joints and of marrow, and discerning the thoughts and intentions of the heart. (ESV)

“For the word of God.” First of all it is said to be “quick” — the present active participle of zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]. Zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] in the present active participle is linear aktionsart and should be translated “keeps on being alive.” In other words, Bible doctrine is pertinent to every age, every dispensation, every generation including our own. Bible doctrine is the capacity for life. The linear aktionsart in the participle indicates that Bible doctrine always has been and always will be pertinent to our life. It gives us capacity for life and without that capacity for life there cannot be any happiness. Happiness depends on capacity for life. So the linear aktionsart of this passage indicates that the supergrace is available regardless of anyone's past failures. As long as you are alive the status of supergrace is available. The failure of the Exodus generation does not hinder subsequent generations from entering into supergrace.

“and powerful” — the word “powerful” is energês (ἐνεργής) [pronounced ehn-er-GACE]. It means effective, active, energetic, efficient, effectual. Actually, this word means four things and all of them are pertinent. a)

First of all, energês (ἐνεργής) [pronounced ehn-er-GACE] means effective. Bible doctrine is effective in producing the supergrace status of occupation with Christ. b) A transliteration: energetic. Bible doctrine produces motivation for GAPing it to supergrace. c) It means also efficient. Bible doctrine is efficient in getting believers into supergrace. d) It means effectual. That means that Bible doctrine is adapted to accomplish the intended result of getting all believers into the area of supergrace or the tactical victory of the angelic conflict.

“and sharper” — this is the comparative adjective of tomoj and should be translated “and more cutting.”

“than” — the preposition u(per is a preposition of comparison as translated. And then we have “any two-edged sword” — this is actually one word in the Greek, maxaira. This was the famous Roman sword that was one of the greatest military inventions of the ancient world. This was a very short sword of about eighteen inches long. It had a sharp point and two sharp sides. The Roman recruits were so drilled with this sword that they could use it very effectively. It was light, well-balanced, and did a very excellent job. It was quite in contrast to other swords of the ancient world. The maxaira in the hands of a well-trained Roman soldier was the most effective weapon of its day. The Bible, of course, does not use other words which are found in the ancient world for sword. For example, dolon is never used. This was a sword in a cane. It usually only has a sharp point and is hidden. Bible doctrine is not hidden so God the Holy Spirit did not permit this word to be used. Then there was the r(omphaia, the Greek broadsword which was about six feet long and had one broad edge. it had only one effective edge, and the Bible does not have just one effective edge, all of it is important. Then there was a sword first introduced by the high-ranking generals of the Persian army, called an a)kinakhj. This was a very ornate sword, it demonstrated something of your rank. It was a very beautiful thing but no good for killing anything. It was just gingerbread. And that is just the trouble with a lot of believers, they think the Word of God is just gingerbread. They want all of the “thees” and the “thous” included, and they want nice, sweet flowing words that they cannot understand. But the objective of the Bible is the antithesis of that. It is to be understood. Another type of sword was the cifoj, a sword that had only a thrusting point. The Bible doesn't have a point here and a point there, all of the Bible is important. So God the Holy Spirit has carefully selected the proper word which is maxaira. Every part of the Word of God is important, every part is effective.

This is brought out now by another participle, “piercing” — diikeneonai, a rare verb which means penetrating, breaking through, not being hindered by bones. This means that neither bone nor muscle nor any kind of flesh will prevent the person from being seriously if not fatally wounded.

“dividing asunder” is an adverb achri/achris (ἄχρι/ἄχρις) [pronounced AHKH-ree/AHKH-rece] plus merismoj. It means that swords, like the old weapons, were intended to kill the enemy, were intended to fulfil an objective. And it means penetrating so as to separate. The Word of God as a sword is meant to reach the soul of the individual believer. That is the purpose here. This phrase, achri/achris (ἄχρι/ἄχρις) [pronounced AHKH-ree/AHKH-rece] plus merismoj, was used for killing the enemy and recognizing it as a part of the laws of divine establishment.

So far we have then, “For the word of God keeps on being alive, and effectual [accomplishing its purpose], and more cutting than every maxaira, penetrating ...” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

What is the purpose of the penetration of the Word? So as to separate soul and spirit. There is a vast difference between the human soul and the human spirit.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #44

44 05/20/1973 Hebrews 4:12 Doctrine of the soul

All human freedom is dependent upon the military. Until the return of Jesus Christ, freedom will be based upon the military. The manner in which our military is treated is a perfect example today of our degeneracy.

Bob calls for a testimony for someone to give a testimony; he has a commission in the United States Navy. Last 5 years at Berachah have been some of his most enjoyable years. We do not deserve anything in this life, but God gives us the opportunity to make something of our lives. Our nation is the greatest in the world; there are men still willing to die for this nation. My generation has dropped the ball.

Bob only reviews the translation of v. 11.

Apart from the supergrace life, there would not be....God provided these doctrines nesting in the Word of God; and we are to transfer them from the printed page to our souls.

Quick is living.

Phrase I grace is salvation grace, available in one moment of time. Volition is involved in the provision so sally grace. Phase II grace which involves no volition. Whether we want it or not, God keeps us alive in life. Supergrace does involve some choice in Phase II, and it depends upon attitude towards Bible doctrine. This is the great issue of Hebrews 4.

There are supergrace blessings available to us. Promotion, prosperity, success, but we need a cup so that God can pour. Phase III grace, surpassing grace. This is not volitional. God provides this from death until forever. The normal Christian life is designed for great prosperity and great blessing. It is the only way for believers to be permanently blessed in this life. One must be positive on a consistent basis. God reaps what God sows; all things work together for good. Supergrace capacity + God's provision in Phase II = supergrace blessing.

For those who go negative toward doctrine, there is nothing but discipline leading to the sin unto death. The believer reaps what he sows. He might give into reactor factors; jealousy, bitterness, a mental attitude sins, or being jilted; these are the reactor factors which lead to a frantic search for happiness. That triggers and emotional revolt of the soul. The vacuum sucks in doctrines of demons. At this point, the believer has the blackout of the soul. This is why the Word of God is so important; the most important factor in the Christian life. No hope to glorify God in time.

The word of God keeps on being alive and effectual, sharper than every two-edged sword; and we saw how that sword was incredible. It penetrates as to separate the soul and the spirit.

Verse 12b — the Bible is the only book which actually distinguished between the soul and the spirit.

The Doctrine of the Soul

1. In category mankind the real person is located in the soul. The real person is not what is observed by others around you, or even by yourself when you look in the mirror, the real person is located in the soul — Genesis 2:7. The human body is only a temporary residence for you. The surviving part of a destroyed body is the skull, and it is in the skull where the soul is kept and protected. It is invisible and immaterial.
2. The soul has essence, invisible and immaterial. This is why the Bible says that man was created in the image of God. God has essence which is invisible and immaterial. The invisible and immaterial essence of God is similar to the fact that man's real being is immaterial and invisible. The soul is located somewhere in the cranium and this is the most protected part of the human body.
  - a. The first characteristic of the soul is self-consciousness, which means you are aware of your own existence. Most of you know where you are, even though you can't spell it or pronounce it. Angels have self consciousness; but animals do not.
  - b. Secondly, there is mentality. The mentality of the soul is divided up into two parts. The first part is called in the Greek the noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose], which is generally translated "mind." The other part of the mentality of the soul is called kardia (καρδία) [pronounced kahr-DEE-uh] in the Greek, and is translated in the King James version "heart." Heart and mind make up the mentality of the soul. The left lobe is where information is first received, and there it becomes objective knowledge. This is the only place where things start. This is, however, not the place where knowledge is useable. That place is the heart or the right lobe. Everyone has as the mentality of the soul the final objective for all information which is the heart. The heart has a frame of reference. All information in life to be useable must enter the frame of reference. Then it has a memory centre which does many things with information in the frame of reference. It starts to form a vocabulary, and the greater your vocabulary the greater your thought pattern. Then it develops from vocabulary into sentences, sentences into paragraphs, paragraphs into categories. Categories are the concepts which reside inside of your right lobe. And then you have your conscience, your norms and standards whereby you determine what is right, what is wrong, whereby you evaluate everything and everyone in life. This is also the area of the soul whereby God seeks to instill through doctrine His concepts. And then, of course, there is a launching pad. This is where you make the application, this is where the unbeliever has common sense, this is where the believer has great discernment. And on this launching pad, when it is doctrine, there is the divine viewpoint and this determines a great deal about your activities in life. So the soul possesses self-consciousness and mentality. In addition to that the third factor is volition or free will. Free will was created in man in order to extend the angelic conflict. The creation of man is for the purpose of demonstrating that Satan's objection to the lake of fire is not valid, and to invalidate Satan's objections man was created and given the same free will that all the angels possess. Next we have the emotion, the responder to what you have in the right lobe. If you would say, that in the human body you have male and female hormones — everyone does — then you would also have to say the same thing about the soul. The male hormone is equivalent to the heart or the right lobe, and the female is the emotion. The heart is the right man and the emotion is the right woman. The right woman responds to the right man. So the emotion is designed so that you can have a responder to what goes on in your heart or your right lobe, and that is the normal function of your emotion. As long as the emotion is responding to what you have, regardless of the area of life, it is a bona fide function. It may be in the field of music, it may be in drama, art or literature. It may be in the field of athletics or in the field of relationships with human beings, but whatever it happens to be the emotion is the responder and therefore becomes the enjoyer of the soul. However, when the emotion dominates the soul everything is out of kilter and the soul of the person who is in that status quo is destroyed. There are trends of the sin nature.

3. The soul also has something equivalent to lungs for breathing, for inhale and exhale. The left bank of the soul is designed for taking in things in relationship with God, the right bank is for relationship with the human race.
4. The Bible distinguishes between two inner parts of man. The first inner part is the soul and the second inner part is the spirit. The original man was trichotomous — body, soul, and spirit — according to Genesis 2:7. But the unbeliever is said to be dichotomous. he is called “the soulish man” in the Greek of 1Corinthians 2:14 and also in Jude 19. So that when Adam sinned he lost his human spirit, and one of those 36 things we receive at the point of salvation is the acquisition of the human spirit once again so that the believer is said to be trichotomous — body, soul, and spirit — in 1Thessalonians 5:23.

5. Only the soul, not the body, was made in the image of God — Genesis 1:26,27; 2:7. Again, the image of God means not the same essence that God possesses but the same type of essence, immaterial and invisible.
6. Only the soul, not the body, is saved in regeneration — Psalm 19:7; 34:22; Mark 8:36, 37; Hebrews 10:39; 1Peter 1:9 tell us that only the soul is saved. The body is not saved, we receive in resurrection a new body.
7. Since the soul contains knowledge — Proverbs 19:2 — it is subject to Satanic attack, according to Matthew 10:28; Ephesians 4:17–19. This is important to understand about the soul, that the soul is the source of attack, and therefore Bible doctrine's objective is to so enter the soul as to protect the individual believer from that attack. The more doctrine in the soul the better.
8. The soul, therefore, becomes a battleground during phase two — Psalm 100:33.
9. The soul is also the area of the worst type of sinning — the mental attitude sin. This is taught in Job 21:25; Zechariah 11:8.
10. Since the soul is the worst area of sinning it causes the accumulation of scar tissue. The soul, therefore, with accumulated scar tissue becomes the seat of human misery. The greatest unhappiness you will ever know will be that which resides inside your soul and is of your own making. It is like being a cook and you make foods that make you miserable.
11. The soul is also the area for the capacities of life — capacity for love, for example — 1Samuel 18:1; 1Peter 1:22. It is also the area for capacity for freedom and all of the other capacities that contribute to your happiness.
12. Physical death is the departure of the soul from the physical body — Job 27:8; Psalm 16:10; 2Corinthians 5:8.

Perhaps one of Satan's objection is, you made me to sin; you put that in me, God, and therefore, You are responsible for my sins. Man reveals that free will is really free; and that man can choose for or against God, whether in the fallen or innocence state. Angels learn that nothing is more important than God's Word. They choose to obey God's Word or not; and they see by watching us what is the result of obeying or not.

Heb 4:12 For the word of God is living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing to the division of soul and of spirit, of joints and of marrow, and discerning the thoughts and intentions of the heart. (ESV)

The Bible distinguishes between what you are in the soul and the human spirit. The human spirit is distinguished from the soul in our passage, Hebrews 4:12. In the original creation of mankind the human spirit was the basis of fellowship with God. It was the basis of having relationship with God, and when man sinned the human spirit was destroyed immediately and man was spiritually dead with no possibility of having fellowship with God. So the unbeliever is declared even today to be minus the human spirit — Jude 19;

1Corinthians 2:14. Since the unbeliever does not possess a human spirit it is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit at the point of hearing the Gospel to take Gospel information which enters the left lobe and make that Gospel a reality. Then positive volition toward the Gospel causes the person to believe in Jesus Christ, so that even the very basis for our salvation is not even discernible or understandable until God the Holy Spirit has made it a reality in the left lobe. So the Holy Spirit, therefore, must act as a human spirit in the area of the unbeliever understanding spiritual phenomena.

The human spirit is the target for storage in the function of GAP. When a believer hears Bible doctrine and it goes into his left lobe God the Holy Spirit makes that doctrine objective reality, but non-meritorious positive volition, transfers it to the human spirit where that knowledge becomes epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. It is epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] that is useable. epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is sucked into the right lobe. epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is the basis for the ECS, and epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] is the basis for entering the supergrace life. So the human soul, then, becomes very important as far as the function of the believer is concerned. The spiritual IQ of the believer is determined by the amount of doctrine in his human spirit. GAP only functions when the believer is filled with the Spirit and it is the Spirit bearing witness with our spirit that gives us reality in the Christian life.

So this verse says, “For the word of God keeps on being alive, and effectual [it accomplishes its objective], and more cutting than every maxaira, penetrating to the separation of the soul and the spirit.”

All of the immaterial, invisible parts in humanity are understood through Bible doctrine. That’s why the Bible has its own beautiful type of psychology and that’s why the Bible can define as well as give the answer to every problem in human life.

Next we notice “and of the joints and the marrow.” It should be translated, “both joints and marrow.” The word for joints arroi is the word we use today for joints, and we also have another genitive plural, marrow, which is translated marrow. These two words are descriptive genitives in the Greek. The marrow or the marrow refers to the highly vascular soft tissue which fills the cavities of most bones. Hence, the Bible not only splits hairs but it splits invisible and very fine hairs because all discernment must come from distinguishing one principle from another. Every distinction the Bible emphasizes must be brought to the attention of every believer priest and when the Bible makes distinctions, no matter how small, no matter how great, they are extremely important to each one of us as believers. God has designed each one of us as a priest, we are to represent ourselves on the earth, we are to be spiritually self-sustaining. That is the objective. God not only wants us to be spiritually self-sustaining but He wants us to have the greatest possible happiness. Great happiness was designed for each one of us in eternity past. So the Bible, then, recognizes the most minute of distinctions. Just as there is a difference between the joint bone and what the bone contains by way of marrow so there is a great distinction between certain doctrines in life.

Next we have the word “discerner,” and that is the Greek word kritikos (κριτικός) [pronounced kriht-ee-koss]. Kritikos (κριτικός) [pronounced kriht-ee-koss] has come down to us in the English word “critic”. Kritikos (κριτικός) [pronounced kriht-ee-koss] actually means a judge. So the Bible and Bible doctrine becomes our critic or our judge. It tells us when we are right and when we are wrong, it tells us when we are in the right direction or the wrong direction, it keeps us constantly aware of what we should be doing and should not be doing, what our attitude should be, and so on.

“of the thoughts” — the word for “thoughts” here could be one of three or four Greek words. This is a genitive plural of e)ngumhsij. This is a very complimentary word to us because it implies that all of us at some time in our lives actually have thoughts! Other words do not imply that, such as noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose] and noéô (νοέω) [pronounced noh-EH-oh], and so on. But this means the actual act or function of thinking. This means to take whatever vocabulary you have in your right lobe and to come to conclusions in life. Of course, no vocabulary means not many conclusions. It also indicates that your life and the real you is not what you do but really what you think. What you do is merely coordinated with either by response or reaction to what you think. Once again, the real you is what you think. “As a man thinks in his heart, so he is.”

The Bible is a critic of everything we think and therefore it becomes a critic of our motivation. The word “intents” is another descriptive genitive plural — e)nnioia. E)nnioia, like e)ngumoj means something on the inside. Notice that both of these nouns begin with the word en (ἐν) [pronounced en] which makes them compounds. That is simply the preposition for “inside,” what is going on inside. The first one refers to what you think and the second refers to what motivations are formed from what you think.

“the heart” refers to the right lobe which is the very key to the soul. As goes the heart so goes the soul. The heart or the right lobe is where you do your thinking. It is in the genitive singular and, again, it is a descriptive genitive — kardia (καρδιά) [pronounced kahr-DEE-uh], referring to the right lobe: frame of reference, memory centre, vocabulary and categories, conscience, norms or standards, and launching pad. This is the real you and whatever occurs in that is the real you.

Hebrews 4:12 “For the word of God keeps on being alive, and effectual, and more cutting than any maxaira, for it penetrates so as to separate soul and spirit, both joints and marrow, and a judge of cogitations and intentions of the right lobe.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The Bible, then, is our very life. This is the air that we breathe and this is the most important factor in our lives after salvation. The Bible contains many commands, like commands to love. It is impossible to love, it is impossible to do anything without having the capacity for it, and capacity for the believer comes from Bible doctrine in the soul. This means, of course, that the doctrine must be transferred from the page of the book into your soul before it can be of any use to you at all.

Hebrews 4:13 And no creature is hidden from his sight, but all are naked and exposed to the eyes of him to whom we must give account. (ESV)

Verse 13 — why is Bible doctrine so important? Because God vindicates His Word in the believer's soul. And that is the objective of God in phase two. Remember that God is not a respecter of persons; God does have perfect respect for His own Word. He has magnified His Word above His name — Psalm 138:2. Verse 13 gives us the application of this section: God vindicates His Word only in the believer's soul.

“Neither” — the conjunction kai. This is a transitive conjunction here and it should be translated better by the English conjunction “and.” Kai is a connective conjunction which the power of Bible doctrine to your particular soul, and when you have that doctrine in your soul then God will vindicate His Word. God's attitude toward His Word is expressed in Psalm 138:2. When the believer GAPs it to supergrace God must vindicate His Word by pouring supergrace blessings for that individual. In other words, if you don't have a cup in your soul God will not pour. The cup is Bible doctrine which has been transferred from the page of the Word and has eventually formed a cup in your soul. Once this occurs then God begins to pour. Once these supergrace blessings are poured then God is glorified.

“and there is not” — the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] plus the strong objective negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook]. The word “any” is not found in the original but the word “creature” is — “there is not a created thing,” and the word for created thing is ktisis (κτίσις) [pronounced KTEES-iss], and here ktisis (κτίσις) [pronounced KTEES-iss] applies to the fact that every member of the human race does not become a member of the human race until after he is born and God gives him the very spark of life.

There will be no souls of abortions up in heaven. They only live if you let them live.

“that is not manifest” is incorrect. It should be translated in the form of the adjective, which is a)fanhj, as hidden or invisible — “from his sight” — “there is not a created thing hidden from his sight”. This means that every thought you have ever had, every function of the soul that has ever existed, was known to God in eternity past, long before these functions of the soul actually occurred in your life. So that God is aware of every true and false thought, false motive, of how much doctrine there would be in your soul, and it is God's desire to pour but he cannot pour where there is no doctrine in the soul.

Satan cannot read minds, but he is very smart and can figure out what we are thinking by our actions and expressions. Bob has become an observer of human nature. He knows that some want to jump up out of their seats and run for the door. But while you are here, you play poker. This congregation demonstrates the best of southern manners.

Next we have a particle used as an adversative conjunction — de. Often we have the regular conjunction for setting up a contrast. The adversative conjunction is allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH], but allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] is not used here. Why? Because this is not quite as strong an adversative because it has almost been stated positively in the negative side of the sentence. Therefore it isn't necessary to use a strong conjunction when a particle will do just as well. So God the Holy Spirit has placed an adversative particle here to show that you already get the point but let's hear the other side anyway.

“all things” — the nominative neuter plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs]. The neuter gender of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] here indicates that this is what you think. These are the thoughts that go through the soul. These “all things” also include what you do as a result of what you think — your motives, your deeds, everything that occurs, your sins of the mind, are all included at this point.

“are naked” — the nominative neuter plural of gumnoj. Athletes worked out naked, so this word for naked became associated with going to the gym to work out. You may have decided only an hour ago to come to Bible class, but God knew this in eternity past. The omniscience of God is well aware of every thought you would ever have and every deed that you would ever do, and He knew this in eternity past.

The word “open” is the perfect passive participle of traxelizw. The word means to bend back the head of a sacrificial animal in order to expose its throat. So it means to expose something so that it is understood, to expose a target even. That is exactly what is meant here, that everything was exposed to God in eternity past. The perfect tense is an intensive perfect. It means that this occurred in eternity past with the result that God knew what we would think and made preparation accordingly.

“unto the eyes of him” is an anthropomorphism. God does not have eyes in the sense that we have eyes, but explain a policy, a function of God eyes are used at this point.

“with whom” — pros plus the accusative which means “face to face with whom” — “we have to do”— there is no verb here in “we have to do”. Actually, it is the word “our account”. So it is, “face to face with whom we have an account”. The word is logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss] — “with whom we have our logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss] [or our account, or our doctrine]”. All doctrine comes from God and it is doctrine that makes the difference in our lives. Our accounting or our doctrine is based on what we have in the soul, not what is in the Word of God. And God the Father is no respecter of persons — 1Samuel 16:7; 2Samuel 14:14; Acts 10:34; Job 27:23, 24. Only doctrine in the soul impresses God. Doctrine is His Word and He is impressed with doctrine in the soul. The only way to get doctrine in the soul is GAP, and when we GAP it to supergrace then God is so impressed with that that he pours the blessings. It is doctrine in the soul that becomes the capacity for life. That is when God starts to pour and to pour and to pour, and that is when life becomes exactly what God wanted it to be. When God can pour these things then you have reached the point of glorifying Him, and that is why you and I are here.

Hebrews 4:13 Neither and there is not from his sight all things are naked unto the eyes of him face to face with whom we have an account, or our doctrine R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation (needs to be proofed)

45 05/27/1973 Hebrews 4:14a Doctrines of the High Priesthood of Jesus Christ, ascension, hypostatic union

Bob came back from Portland, Oregon. Article by a Berachan. He is a coach and he wants long hair being removed from the playing field. Tony, "It is not normal for a male to want to put himself into submission, which is what the long hair suggests." Bob was asked if this was a member of Berachah Church.

Memorial Day weekend. We recognize the principles of our freedom.

Supergrace blessing is preceded by supergrace capacity. Reversionism is a hindrance to the supergrace life.

For the first time, the word priest is mentioned.

Ascension makes Jesus higher than all angels. This is the age of tactical victory and every time a believer reaches supergrace, God can bless them and this is a tactical victory. God's objective is to bless every believer priest. So few are blessed because they do not have a consistent attitude towards Bible doctrine.

We have come to the fourteenth verse which is the transition verse and bring us to the very subject, the very purpose for which we have this passage. The word "seeing" is a particle ὁὐν used as an inferential conjunction. This inferential conjunction means that we are now reaching a conclusion. This is the real challenge. Up to this point we have seen reversionism as a hindrance to the supergrace life, a hindrance to everything in life. Now we see the other side of the fence. The celebrityship of Jesus Christ is presented in this verse and this becomes, therefore, the transitional verse for the entire book. The purpose of the book of Hebrews is to bring every believer into occupation with the person of Jesus Christ. The objective is to bring everyone to the point of celebrityship of Christ whereby there is a bona fide and true love for the Lord Jesus Christ based upon Bible doctrine in the soul. At that point begins the priesthood which will be mentioned in this verse. For the first time the word "priest" is mentioned, and when the word priest is mentioned it applies to you.

Every believer is priest in this dispensation and therefore the life of every believer has meaning and purpose and definition as far as God is concerned. Therefore this first word, translated "seeing then" is really an inferential conjunction and should be translated "therefore," indicates we have now come to the most important part of this passage. If Jesus Christ is not the only celebrity in your life it means one of several things: it means that you are negative toward doctrine, it means that you are minus doctrine, it means that you are without benefit of doctrine in your soul. It means that at some time in your life you have been reacting, you have become discouraged and reacted to it. Or you have become bored and reacted to it. Or you have become disillusioned and reacted to it. Or you have been overcome with self-pity and reacted to it. Or you have become lonely and reacted to it. Or you have become frustrated and reacted to it. Or you have been jilted by someone you loved and have reacted to it. This reaction leads to a frantic search for happiness. The frantic search for happiness then triggers emotional revolt and emotional revolt then intensifies whatever reactor factors you have in your soul. As this occurs then you become indifferent, you neglect, you become hostile toward Bible doctrine, and when you do then the mataiotês (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace] is opened up and you have the attack on the right lobe. This attack brings in Satanic doctrine so that the believer comes under Satanic influence or demon influence. Whatever doctrine is left in the right lobe moves over to the left lobe where it is totally non-useable and, at this point, there is the blackout of the soul which is followed by the practice of reverse process reversionism. This, of course, leads eventually to the sin unto death. So matter how you slice it the priesthood does not work under these conditions and the situation is totally abnormal. And under these conditions there is nothing but divine discipline, reaping what you sow and the sin unto death. But under conditions of taking in doctrine on a daily basis, GAPing it, then you get to the point of Romans 8:28 which is for the supergrace believer only, it does not apply to every believer. It only applies to those who love God and the only ones who love God are supergrace believers and no one else. You have to be in supergrace. That is when God starts to pour and then there isn't anything in life that you cannot handle. And that is the objective of the Christian life because that is where the tactical victory begins.

At the cross we have the beginning of the strategical victory. Jesus Christ bore our sins in His own body on the tree. Until the time of the cross Satan's objective was to keep Christ from getting to the cross. But once He died for our sins and took our place, and then went into the grave for three days and rose again and was ascended, once He was seated at the right hand of the Father, we have a completion of the strategical victory of the angelic conflict. The cross broke the back of Satan, says Colossians 2:14, and ascension makes it very certain that Jesus Christ as a man is now higher than all angels. Jesus Christ is the only one in resurrection body. Operation footstool, the next step, will see the return of Christ to the earth at which point He will begin to reign, and at this point Satan and all fallen angels will be removed.

During the interim we have an interruption of the Jewish Age. We live in the Church Age, the dispensation of the Church, and in this particular dispensation God has a very specific purpose. This is the age of tactical victory. Every time a believer reaches the supergrace life it becomes a tactical victory because when a believer is in supergrace then God can do what He desires to do for every believer: give him wealth, success, promotion, great happiness, great blessing. In other words, the believer has a cup and God pours. When God pours blessings into that cup God Himself is glorified. He does the pouring and the believer glorifies God when he reaches supergrace. God's objective is to bless every believer priest in this dispensation and it can only be accomplished through the intake of doctrine, and that is why so few are blessed because so few have a positive consistent attitude toward Bible doctrine. God is glorified when the believer is blessed to the maximum; that is the concept and that is the objective of the Christian way of life.

With that in mind we now move from the inferential particle to see what we have. "Seeing therefore that we have" — present active participle from the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced

EHHH-oh] which means not only to have but it really means to have and to hold. it is a present active participle in the Greek and that means linear aktionsart, something we have because we have been in it every day — taking in Bible doctrine. This is also a dramatic present to indicate the having and the holding of something that is of the utmost importance to us. Because we are born again, because we are children of God, because Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father, because Jesus Christ is our high priest, and because we were commissioned priests at e is God the point of salvation, we keep on having something therefore. The active voice: the subject produces the action of the verb, and you are the subject. Every believer is the subject. The participle, again, indicates linear aktionsart, and it should be translated literally, “having therefore a great high priest.” The adjective megas (μέγας, μεγάλη, μέγα) [pronounced MEH-gas] means uniqueness in this particular case, and absolutely unique person, different from anyone else. Then we have with it a noun in the accusative case, archiereus (ἀρχιερεύς) [pronounced ar-khee-er-YUCE], the word for high priest or chief priest.

“that is passed into” — the perfect active participle of diexomai shows us the strategical victory in the angelic conflict. The perfect tense is a consummative perfect, it emphasizes the results of the completed action of the verb. The work is already accomplished, the victory is already there, and we simply as believers in this dispensation are here for one reason: to exploit the strategic victory of the Lord Jesus Christ on the cross, resurrection and session. We are here for the purpose of exploitation and the greatest function of the priesthood is to exploit that victory. That victory is exploited through entrance into the supergrace life. It is missing the supergrace life which is the subject of chapter three and chapter four.

Then we have an active voice. Jesus Christ, our high priest produced the action. This verb emphasizes the doctrines of resurrection, ascension, and session. Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father in His humanity. As God Jesus Christ doesn't sit any more than the Father sits. As God, Jesus Christ is omnipresent, he is imminent and transcendent, He is everywhere. It is His humanity which sits down. Note, therefore, the contrast with the Levitical priesthood. Aaron's place of ministry was on the earth. Aaron was the chief of the Levitical priesthood, its founder, whereas the Lord Jesus Christ, the founder of our priesthood sits in heaven Aaron ministered with shadows but Jesus Christ ministers with reality. We happen to live in the age of reality.

Bob gives an example of the Civil War of having a strategic victory beaten by a tactical victory. Are we here to entertain ourselves, complain about a few thousands things, eek out a living and then die? We are to exploit the strategic victory of the cross.

The strategic victory has to be emphasized again and again. It is possible to have a strategic victory and to lose out tactically. Christ won the strategic victory at the cross. Why are we here? You and I are here to exploit the strategic of the cross, and the exploitation of the strategic victory of the cross comes through recognition of the celebrityship of Jesus Christ. But until you get Bible doctrine in your soul you don't know what it is all about. Once you get doctrine in your soul you are ready for it, and then you will have it, and you will have the very purpose for which you are alive — to exploit strategic victory — and the tactical victory which exploits it is your blessing in this life. Why does God keep you here right under the nose of the devil? Who is the ruler of this world? Satan himself. What are you doing here, then, in the devil's world? Right under the devil's very nose Jesus Christ can give you blessing that the devil could never provide. This is the devil's world, he has a lot of power, he has a lot of things whereby he can promote his own. This is the devil's world whereby he can make it attractive for a lot of people, but since the day that we were born again and since the day that we became priests we do not owe his majesty the devil a thing. We are here as the guests of the Lord Jesus Christ, as kingdom of priests we owe the devil nothing, and therefore it is our high priest who will provide for us in the devil's word — and does through His Word. That is why verse 12 which have just studied comes before verse 14. It is the Word of God that makes the difference in our souls. And God has a purpose for keeping us here: to, right under the devil's nose, provide everything that Satan can provide for his own and more besides, the very capacity for life, to share the very happiness of God, to receive the blessings of God, to receive the very things you have associated with happiness and to receive them in such a way that God is glorified and you have the best time ever. Heaven on earth is the supergrace life. You can have a relationship with your rw because there is no capacity for life. God gives all kinds of success to those who have capacity. There is a tactical issue.

The Doctrine of the Ascension

1. The resurrection body of the Lord Jesus Christ was capable of space travel. The humanity of Christ in resurrection traveled through three heavens, according to John 20:17.
2. Once He arrived in the presence of the Father the Father told Him to sit down — Psalm 110:1; Romans 8:34; Ephesians 1:20; Colossians 3:1; Hebrews 1:3,13; 10:12; 12:2; 1Peter 3:22, and other passages. This is something that is documented time and time again because the Lord Jesus Christ seated at the right hand of the Father is the final point in the strategic victory of the angelic conflict. The fact that Jesus Christ as a man in a resurrection body is acceptable to God the Father guarantees the acceptability of every person in the Church Age who believes in Jesus Christ.
3. The ascension and session of Christ form the basis of victory, then, in the angelic conflict — Hebrews chapter one.
4. The ascension and session of Christ begin a new sphere of the angelic conflict: tactical exploitation — Ephesians 1:20,22; 4:7–10. And we are involved in the tactical exploitation, it is the objective of keeping us alive that we might reach supergrace, that God might pour those blessings He has for us, that God might pour in the midst of that certain adversities that we might take in stride as a demonstration to all the fallen angels that God can provide for His own and that the Word of God will always be vindicated. For we live under a principle: God must vindicate His Word, and God vindicates His Word in the souls of individual believers as they take it in. So we have a new sphere of the angelic conflict, and since the strategic victory is accomplished we are now under the principle of the intensity of the angelic conflict.

5. The ascension and session begin operation footstool prophesied in Psalm 110:1, quoted in Luke 20:42,23, in Acts 2:33,34. Operation footstool recognizes the final victory of the Lord Jesus Christ at the second advent. At that time angels will be removed from the world. Throughout history fallen angels have been permitted to remain around in order to prove the principle of the angelic conflict. For when Satan objected to being sentenced to the lake of fire the basis of his objection has become the very source of all human history. Man was created to glorify God by resolving the angelic conflict. But God has some wonderful things along the way. In resolving the angelic conflict it is God's intention that every believer priest have perfect happiness and blessing from God, and therefore the Lord Jesus Christ has provided in His departure that we might have this wonderful priesthood into which we might enter into celebrityship of Jesus Christ.
6. The second advent will conclude operation footstool — Daniel 7:13,14; Zechariah 13:2; Colossians 2:15; Revelation 20:1–3. When the Lord Jesus Christ returns he returns with the Church to, the Armageddon campaign, and there is where the Lord Jesus Christ as the greatest soldier in all of history will break His own record in killing the enemy. The record for killing the enemy at this point is 185,000 in one second. There will be over a million people personally killed by the Lord Jesus Christ at the Armageddon campaign. This will pile up the dead their corpses all the way up to heaven. It will take 7 months to bury the dead.
7. The ascension and session completes the glorification of Christ in His hypostatic union — Acts 2:33; 5:31; Philippians 2:9; 1Peter 3:22.
8. The ascension and session explains the uniqueness of Jesus Christ, according to John 7:37–39.
9. The ascension and session is the key to the victory of the angelic conflict — Hebrews 1:4.

No sooner does it state the fact that Jesus Christ is ascended in this passage than immediately we have a very interesting study of Him. We have the phrase "Jesus the Son of God." The word "Jesus" refers to His humanity. This name always emphasizes the humanity of Christ and, of course, His high priesthood. Remember that a priest is a man representing man before God, according to Hebrews 10:5–10. And that is exactly what we have in the name of Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is the high priest who wins the victory, but He is also called the Son of God. So we have the phrase "Jesus the Son of God." The words "Son of God" refer to His deity. He is just as much God as the Father, just as much God as the Holy Spirit, He is coequal and coeternal with them. But at the same time He is man. He has a body, He has a soul, He has a human spirit, so He is a trichotomous being. As the God-Man He came into this world to accomplish the strategic victory. As God He can't die on the cross. As God He is eternal life; eternal life cannot die. He is sovereignty; sovereignty isn't subject to death. As God he is omnipresent; omnipresence cannot reduce itself to one point, like the cross. As God He is immutability; He can't change His characteristics and die on the cross as God.

So He became true humanity, but He had to be humanity minus the old sin nature, humanity minus any personal sin and minus the imputation of Adam's sin. So through the virgin birth He accomplished the first two, and through living 33 years without personal sin He accomplished the last, so that when Jesus Christ came to the cross he came to the cross as perfect man. He is the God-Man, and as He was hanging upon the cross He bore our sins in His own body on the tree. All these sins came from the area of weakness of our old sin nature.

We also have an area of strength which produces human good. He rejected all human good. Human good belongs to Satan and to the devil's world and human good has always been rejected by God. Our righteousnesses are filthy rags in His sight, and right down to the cross and forever after human good has never been acceptable to God. Therefore when Christ took our place and was judged for us He provided this so great salvation. He offered Himself as a sacrifice, the first and only sacrifice of our priesthood. Christ takes our place and becomes our substitute so that when we believe in Jesus Christ we have eternal life, we enter into His plan, we are related to the strategic victory and we are now in line for tactical victory. That is the objective of our life on this earth; the tactical victory of the supergrace life, the tactical victory of occupation with the person of Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is the unique person of the universe. He is different from God in that he is man; He is different from man in that he is God. He is different from all other members of the human race in that He is perfect man and at the same time God. he is different from the Father and from the Holy Spirit in that He is the God-man. Jesus Christ is absolutely unique, no matter how you observe Him; He is the only celebrity of our priesthood.

The Doctrine of the Hypostatic Union (The Uniqueness of the Person of Christ)

1. By way of definition: In the person of Jesus Christ are two natures inseparably united, without mixture or loss of separate identity, without loss or transfer property or attributes, the union being personal and eternal.
2. The scriptural verification: John 1:1–14; Romans 1:2–5; 9:5; Philippians 2:5–11; summarized in 1Timothy 3:16; Hebrews 2:14.
3. The incarnate person of Christ includes His deity. Jesus Christ is God, coequal, coeternal with God the Father and God the Holy Spirit. The incarnation does not diminish His deity; He is, therefore, undiminished deity.
4. The incarnate person of Christ is also true humanity. He is bona fide humanity with a body, a soul, and with a human spirit, but minus the old sin nature. Through the virgin birth Jesus Christ avoided both the imputation of Adam's sin and spiritual death at birth. So Jesus Christ came into the world without an old sin nature. The only way He could have acquired one is to sin as Adam did, though negative volition. But He through free will avoided that.
5. The two natures of Christ are united without transfer of attributes. In other words, the attributes adhere to their corresponding natures. The essence of deity cannot be changed — immutability. The infinite cannot be transferred to the finite. To rob God of a single attribute would destroy His deity and would be blasphemous. To rob the humanity of Christ of a single attribute of His humanity would also destroy His humanity and therefore the hypostatic union. So the two natures of Christ are united without transfer of attributes at any time.

6. No attribute of essence of deity was changed at the incarnation. In fulfilling the purpose of the first advent certain attributes of deity were used, but this does not imply that they were either surrendered or destroyed. There is a false doctrine of Kenosis and under that doctrine it says that certain attributes of deity were surrendered. However, the true doctrine of Kenosis says that Christ voluntarily restricted the independent use of divine attributes in keeping with the plan of the Father. In other words, the humanity of Christ recognized the authority of the Father.
7. This is demonstrated by the three great temptations. You may go forty days without food but the devil is never going to come to you and tempt you to turn stones into bread. Our Lord actually had the power. Why did He refuse? That would be violating God's plan for Jesus Christ agreed to depend upon the provision of the Father. If Jesus Christ had turned those stones into bread as the devil tempted Him to do so then Jesus Christ would have violated the plan of the Father and rejected the authority of the Father, and would be in a state of sin and therefore would not be our Savior. Satan also offered Him the kingdoms of the world. Why? Because he is the ruler of this world. It was a bona fide offer and Jesus Christ refused this. It is God's plan in this dispensation to honor the written Word of God.
8. Therefore, the union of divine essence and human nature of the incarnate Christ must be considered hypostatic and personal. That means that Jesus Christ is now at the right hand of the Father, true humanity. He is eternal God, He does not cease to be God, He does not cease to be a member of the human race. He is true humanity is resurrection body. He will be that way forever. He will be an eternal symbol to everything that is related to grace. In order to save mankind, in order to provide eternal salvation for us, in order that we might live forever and ever with God apart from the lake of fire where all of the fallen angels will be God had to come up with something special, God had to find a way. And grace found a way. There is no way that salvation can be accomplished through any member of the human race. Salvation had to be accomplished by the only one who was qualified to do so: Jesus Christ as the God-Man. Therefore the divine essence of God and His human essence in one person forever is the absolute uniqueness in the universe.
9. There is a false interpretation of the hypostatic union: that deity possessed humanity or that the deity of Christ indwelt the humanity of Christ. Or, as the liberals say. "there was harmony and sympathy." However, the Bible makes it very clear that it is personal. The two natures, divine and human, have been combined in one hypostasis forever. Jesus Christ, then, is undiminished deity and true humanity in one person forever.
10. Therefore, Jesus Christ, the God-Man has one essence forever. The attributes of both divine and human nature belong to the person of Christ always. The characteristics of one nature are never attributed to the other. This means that during His first advent Jesus was weak and at the same time he was omnipotent. He was ignorant and He was omniscient. However, the ignorance of His humanity was quickly overcome by the daily function of GAP and the erection of the ECS —

Luke 2:40, 52; John 1:14. The word “glory” in John 1:14 is the ECS of the humanity of Christ.

11. Why did Jesus Christ, eternal God, coequal with the Father and coequal with the Holy Spirit, have to become a member of the human race?
  - a. Jesus Christ had to become a member of the human race to be our Savior — Philippians 2:7,8; Hebrews 2:14,15. Only as a man can Jesus pay for our sins. He must be able to take upon Himself, as a man, the sins of the world. He cannot take these sins on as God, because there is no equality there.
  - b. Jesus Christ is the mediator. According to the book of Job a mediator must be equal with both parties in the mediation. Party of the first part is God; party of the second part is man. The mediator, if he is going to bring both parties, God and man, together he must be equal with both parties — Job 9:32–33 demands this; 1Timothy 2:5,6 explains it. Jesus Christ was always God, coequal with the Father and with the Holy Spirit; He became true humanity. Therefore He is the mediator between God and man. However, to fulfil the mediation He had to die, and the cross fulfils the mediation. Now man can be brought to God in the basis of Jesus Christ the mediator. So He is not only our Savior but He is the mediator. he is the God-Man. He is coequal with man, He is coequal with the Father, He is superior to all other members of the human race, and therefore He is the only mediator.
  - c. Jesus Christ had to become a man to be a priest. A priest is a man who represents man before God — Hebrews 7:4, 5, 14, 28; 10:5–14. These passages tell us in definition that a priest must be a man representing man before God. The tribe of Levi, the family of Aaron, represented the entire nation of Israel, and they had to be true members of the human race, they had to be born of the line of Aaron in order to fulfil that principle. Jesus Christ is said to be our high priest. To be our high priest He has to become a man, and therefore the importance of His humanity.
  - d. God promised David in supergrace something special that his dynasty would last forever. God promised David that he would have a son who would rule the earth forever, not just Israel which is included but all the entire earth. He promised this unconditionally, no strings attached — 2Samuel 7:8–16. He repeated this promise in Psalm 89:20–37. In order for that promise to be fulfilled Jesus Christ not only had to become true humanity but He had to be born into the direct line of David. And, as a matter of fact, He was. He was descended from David through Solomon on one side and Solomon’s brother Nathan on the other. The line of Solomon goes down through Joseph; the line of Nathan goes down through Mary. Through the virgin birth Jesus Christ is directly descended from David, through Nathan to Mary. Then. on the legal side, Joseph, the legal father but not the real father, is descended from Solomon. So on both sides the Lord Jesus Christ is born by directly in the line of David and therefore He is often called the son of David. In this way God keeps His Word, God fulfils His promise to David when Jesus Christ returns. So it becomes, therefore, necessary for Jesus Christ to become a true member of the human race other wise He could not fulfil the Davidic covenant., otherwise he could not be a mediator, otherwise He could not be our high priest, and otherwise he could not be our Savior. Therefore this is a pivotal doctrine, one that you must master and understand in order to appreciate the celebrityship of Jesus Christ.

12. Everything verbally communicated by Christ during the incarnation came from one of three sources: from His deity, as in John 8:58 where Jesus said, "Before Abraham was I existed eternally"; or from His humanity where He said in John 19:28, "I thirst" — deity doesn't thirst, only humanity; or many times He spoke from His hypostatic union, as in Matthew 11:28 when He said, "Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest," or in John 14:6 where He said, "I am the way, the truth and the life, no man cometh unto the Father but by me." In His hypostatic union He often declared the principle of salvation for the hypostatic union was necessary for eternal salvation.

"Nothing greater than a woman in a dress and a man in a uniform."

So we can see very briefly, then, from this sketch some of the concepts involved in the celebrityship of the Lord Jesus Christ: His strategic victory by being seated at the right hand of the Father, His great uniqueness which makes the intensity of the Church Age in the angelic conflict a reality. And when we see this phrase, as it occurs occasionally, "Jesus the Son of God," we are looking at the hypostatic union, the uniqueness of the person of Jesus Christ.

Now, He is called our high priest, and that leads us now to the doctrine of the high priesthood of Jesus Christ. This, too, is a part of His uniqueness.

The Doctrine of the High Priesthood of Jesus Christ

1. There are three different priesthoods in the scripture. When the word "priest" is mentioned you must remember a priest is a man representing man before God. Each of the three priesthoods mentioned in the scripture corresponds to a dispensation in the past or current. For example, the first dispensation in history was the Age of the Gentiles, and in that age there was a bona fide priesthood. The family priesthood was made up of the head of every family. For example, anyone who was the head of a family was the priest, anyone who was the firstborn became the priest upon the death of his father. For example, Abraham was a priest, Job was a priest, Melchizedek was a priest. (Melchizedek was not Jesus Christ, he was a member of the human race. In fact he was a king and a priest and illustrates the priesthood of Christ) In the dispensation of Israel we have the Levitical priesthood. The family of Aaron in the tribe of Levi was appointed. The elder surviving son was commissioned as a high priest, and the priesthood was commissioned by the Mosaic law. The objective was to communicate written doctrine and to explain the ritual and the shadows under which Israel worshipped and respected the Lord Jesus Christ. There is a special reason why Levi became the priestly tribe.

- a. The firstborn was Reuben. He had three things going for him as the firstborn. He was the family ruler, he was the family priest, he was also the family heir and therefore had the double portion. Reuben, because of reversionism, lost all three.
  - b. The rulership went to the tribe of Judah; the priesthood went to the tribe of Levi; the double portion went to the tribe of Joseph — Joseph has two tribes, Ephraim and Mannaseh. So we have the tribe of Levi and the specialized priesthood of the previous dispensation.
  - c. A specialized priesthood calls for a specialized modus operandi. That is why we have so much ritual in the Age of Israel. That is why they had a tabernacle and that is why they had a temple: so the priests could function and teach and communicate. That is why they had animal sacrifices. That is why they had special holy days like the Passover, the unleavened bread, the firstfruits, Pentecost. These special holy days called for a certain type of ritual. This ritual taught the celebrityship of Jesus Christ before Christ went to the cross. It was a specialized priesthood to communicate information with regard to the Lord Jesus Christ. Now we have the dispensation of the Church. In the dispensation of the Church Jesus Christ is now our high priest and we are a kingdom of priests. That means that every believer in this dispensation is a priest — 1Peter 2:5, 9.
2. As the high priest Jesus Christ is the minister of spiritual things — Hebrews 5:1. Jesus Christ has left us a legacy of spiritual things in the Word of God. The completed canon of scripture is the legacy through which he ministers.
  3. Christ is appointed high priest by God the Father — Hebrews 5:4–10; 6:20.
  4. Christ offered Himself as a sacrifice for the priesthood — Hebrews 9:26, 27. The first function of Jesus Christ as the high priest was to solve the problem of the old sin nature. When Jesus Christ was hanging on the cross the sins of the world were poured out upon Jesus Christ and all human good was rejected. He paid in full, this is the first function of the high priest.
    - a. The high priest offered sacrifices in the Old Testament. On the day of atonement he offered sacrifices out in front of the tabernacle, and later on the temple. Then he took the blood of those sacrifices into the holy of holies twice: once for himself and once for the people.
    - b. Now Jesus Christ has fulfilled that on the cross by taking our place and bearing our sins.
  5. Christ has an eternal and untransmissible priesthood — Hebrews 7:20,21,24. This priesthood will never be changed, never be superseded, and we are a part of it. This is another reminder of the doctrine of eternal security. When we believe in Jesus Christ we are entered at that moment into union with Christ. Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father, we enter into union with Him, His priesthood becomes our priesthood, and His priesthood cannot be superseded or transferred.
  6. Because of positional sanctification, union with Christ, every believer is to function as a priest in this life — 1Peter 2:5,9; Revelation 1:6; 5:10; 20:6. That function is to reach the supergrace life, to come to the place where God pours out His blessings upon you without measure, to share the very happiness which He has provided and to share these blessings which He has stored up for you from eternity past.

7. Christ as high priest performs a ministry of intercession for the believer on earth — Hebrews 7:25. The high priesthood of Christ in the field of intercession is a reminder of the fact that you and I can never be adequate in prayer. We are commanded to pray, we are to utilize prayer, but no matter how good a prayer warrior you are you will never be good enough. There are things that you are not aware of, areas of ignorance that cannot be overcome, and therefore the Lord Jesus Christ as your celebrity, your high priest also makes intercession for you. That is why all prayer offered to God must come through Jesus Christ, that is the channel, that is the authority.
8. The believer priest in phase two possesses a number of sacrifices or functions different or related to the Levitical code by way of illustration.
  - a. We have, for example, the sacrifice of the believer's body — Romans 12:1. This is tantamount to the rebound technique, the principle of 1John 1:9, the first function of the priesthood.
  - b. The second sacrifice is the sacrifice of praise — Hebrews 13:15. The sacrifice of praise is not standing and saying, "Praise the Lord", or "hallelujah". Instead, it is reaching the supergrace life. We can only glorify God as supergrace believers. At that point Jesus Christ becomes our only celebrity and we love Him as He first loved us.
  - c. The third sacrifice was actually twofold: the production of divine good and giving — Hebrews 13:16.
  - d. The final one is obedience to the authority of the local church — Hebrews 13:17. This is the sacrifice of the priesthood, this is the way you learn Bible doctrine

Having therefore, the great High Priest, Jesus, the Son of God,...

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #46

46 06/03/1973 Hebrews 4:14b-15 Doctrine of impeccability

The high priesthood of Jesus Christ is a reminder that every believer is a priest in this dispensation, and that every believer therefore is in full time Christian service. You do not dedicate yourself to full time Christian service, you are as of the moment of salvation. Our purpose is to be prepared for the possible victory of the angelic conflict and to be prepared for great blessing as we take in the Word of God. The primary function of the priesthood is the intake of God's Word that we might reach the supergrace status.

Some of the Greek covered in review for v. 14a.

In verse 24 the translation "having therefore a great high priest, having passed through the heavens", not "that is passed into." The perfect active participle of dierxomai indicates that part of the strategic victory of the angelic conflict. The perfect tense indicates something that happened in the past with results that continue forever. This is a consummative perfect emphasizing the results of the completed action. The active voice indicates that Jesus Christ has accomplished this in the resurrection body and that this is a part of the strategical victory. The whole issue in the angelic conflict after the fall of man is the work of the Lord Jesus Christ. First, on the cross bearing our sins and taking our place. Our sins were poured out on Him and judged. Then having born our sins, having accomplished eternal salvation, He said, "Finished." That is in the perfect tense too, another consummative perfect indicating the results of Christ bearing our sins and Christ being judged for our sins. Then Jesus Christ died physically. Having dismissed His spirit, His spirit went into the presence of the Father, His soul went to Paradise which is a part of Hades or Sheol, and His body went into the grave. Three days later His soul came from Paradise, His spirit came from the presence of the Father, rejoined His body in resurrection, and He was resurrected. Then for forty days after His resurrection He was on the earth, making some seventeen appearances, and then He ascended into the presence of the Father where He was seated at the right hand of the Father. When the Father said, Sit down at my right hand until I make your enemies your footstool, that is the ultimate in strategical victory. That is the point at which Jesus Christ in a resurrection body in His humanity is infinitely superior to all fallen angels. That is the point, therefore, when the Lord Jesus Christ gained the victory over Satan. As Colossians 2:14 indicates, He broke the back of Satan at that time. This is also the subject of Hebrews 2:14,15. So this is the strategical victory.

The strategical victory having been accomplished, the Jewish Age is interrupted ten days later for the Church Age. We live in the dispensation of the Church. Once the Jewish Age is interrupted, then with the high priest at the right hand of the Father, having gained for us a strategical victory, we now live in the intensified stage of the angelic conflict. For up until the ascension of Christ He was the major target for Satan's activities. But with Jesus Christ glorified at the right hand of the Father the major target is now His representation on earth. Therefore we live in the intensified stage of the angelic conflict. We therefore live in a time when the life of each one of us has great meaning and purpose and definition. As never before in history the emphasis is now on the individual believer, the emphasis is on you as a believer priest. As a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ you are a priest, you are an ambassador, and very important. You are therefore in full time Christian service and therefore the weapon for tactical victory in the angelic conflict. The tactical victory, however, depends upon your attitude toward Bible doctrine. If you are positive toward doctrine and GAP it consistently you will eventually get into supergrace with occupation with the person of Christ, our high priest, with supergrace capacity. Supergrace capacity is that amount of Bible doctrine in the soul that gives you a cup. The supergrace blessing. God pours into that cup. God has for you, billions of years ago, prepared wonderful and fantastic blessings, everything you have ever associated as happiness is yours plus the capacity to enjoy it. This is the time you receive God's happiness, this is the time when all of these blessings become yours. This is the objective. And when God pours, since God is the host and does the pouring, he is glorified. This is the tactical victory. God is glorified by the completion of His plan with Christ at the right hand of the Father. God is glorified by pouring for you. When God can give you great wealth, promotion, success, prosperity, when God can pour these things for you then He is glorified and you are blessed. The only way a believer can glorify God in the Church Age is through the constant intake of doctrine until he reaches the supergrace life. This is the objective, and whether you like it or not you were born again to be happy, to be blessed, to have great prosperity.

Hustling around a church, praying, saying nice things....these are acts of human good. It is not the act, but the entirety of the act that makes the difference.

Many believers have been psyched out by the suffering-for-Jesus crowd, the crowd who have rejected Bible doctrine, the reversionistic crowd, those who have gone negative toward Bible doctrine and are under self-induced misery, those who have reacted to their discouragement, to their boredom, to their disillusion, to their self-pity, to their frustration, loneliness, etc. These lead to a frantic search for happiness, there are reactors factors, and that frantic search for happiness always causes emotional revolt of the soul.

When you start negative, you begin to suck in human viewpoint and cosmic system thinking.

Too many people are writing and teaching things from experience and not from Bible doctrine.

Demon influence vs. demon possession. The first, they might take off their clothes; they might have increased strength. In the latter, this can be a believer or an unbeliever. If a believer, they have fouled up so badly that they get into reversionism and reverse process reversionism.

Bob is setting up two armies; Napoleon is concentrated on strategic interior lines. I think that he is explaining the difference between a strategic and a tactical victory. The cross, resurrection, ascension and session...these are the aspects of the strategic victory. Our lives and spiritual growth are all about tactical victories.

The issue from the rest of this chapter and into the next two: Are you going to be in tactical victory or defeat? In Hebrews chapter five, verses 11–16, we see tactical defeat. In Hebrews chapter six, verses 1–6, the tactical defeat is amplified with demonstrations as to how it can turn to victory. The last half of chapter six and for the rest of the book we see the principle of tactical victory. At this point there is a relationship between strategical and tactical victory in the Christian life.

You say, What is strategy? It is the maneuver of troops over a large area to get in position so that their concentration at the point of meeting the enemy is greater than the enemy, whereas tactics are all of the maneuvers on a battlefield. So there is a difference between strategy and tactics historically in the military, much more so historically in the angelic conflict. You are already on the winning side of the strategical conflict with Satan. With the session of Christ operation footstool is the next part of the strategical movement, and in operation footstool Christ will come back to the earth — we will accompany Him — and He will defeat the Armageddon armies seeking to destroy Israel. He will also at the same time eliminate from the earth all unbelievers, He will begin His Millennial reign, He will fulfil the Davidic covenant, and that again is strategical victory. The first and second advents are strategical victories in the angelic conflict. In between the first and second advents we have the Church Age and our tactical participation. So don't ever say, not matter how you have failed, no matter what you have done, no matter how stupid you may feel at this particular moment even, that there isn't a purpose for your life. Don't ever say that your life is meaningless, because it is meaningful. If you are a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ you are a priest, if you are a believer priest God has a purpose for your life and that purpose is tactical victory. Tactical victory means you with millions of dollars, you with business success, you promoted in your profession, you with your right woman or right man having the most wonderful rapport of soul and body, you having social success and prosperity, you having blessing in every field that you have ever associated with blessing, you having materialistic things, you possessing things from God, Jesus Christ making it possible for God the Father to pour out upon you, into your cup, so that your cup overflows. It is no accident that you were appointed a priest at the point of new birth, it is no accident that you are here today as a believer being challenged with the importance of doctrine in your life. It is no accident that God has set up a principle for this dispensation: He must vindicate His Word, and the vindication of His Word occurs in your soul. The vindication of His Word in the Bible is the preservation of the canon of scripture and we have it right now even though Satan has attacked it for centuries. God vindicates His Word, God will vindicate His Word, but His Word must reside in the soul of every believer. No matter what you do in life, no matter where you are, not matter what you are involved in, God vindicates His Word in one specific way, and that is through His Word in your soul, and that means consistency in the function of GAP. The grace apparatus for perception is designed to take in every part of the Word of God. That is the issue in the celebrityship of Jesus Christ. Without the celebrityship of Christ there would be no supergrace life for this dispensation, there would be no pouring as God desires to pour. But these things are available, these things belong to each one of us now. The tragedy of our day is the neglect of doctrine and a maximum number of believers in reversionism.

Government is filled with mixed up liberals. Never has there been so much by way of mixed up people. The whole Watergate is stated in a pompous and self righteous way. That the American people are buying this thing is ludicrous. Our taxes are going to build up nations who are our enemies. We need to have the government off the back of business. There should be laws to keep government out of business. There should be laws where Uncle Sammy should pay.

Teddy Roosevelt was the last president to think like an American. Fortunately, we have 3 volumes of his writing to learn from. All of the things that we have studied take us to an application.

Now we come in verse 14 to the application. "Let us hold fast" — the present active subjunctive of the verb krateō (κρατέω) [pronounced krat-EH-oh]. Krateō (κρατέω) [pronounced krat-EH-oh] as a verb means to seize, to hold fast, to take possession of something. It has a lot of meanings. Here the one that is pertinent is taking possession.

This is a progressive present, it signifies the persistence of a status, a status that we have had for a long time without knowing it, but it is knowing it that makes the difference. The status is supergrace and the priesthood is where it begins. The priesthood does not function properly until we reach supergrace but you are appointed a priest at the point of salvation. “Let us hold fast” means here to take possession of what we have. What we need to do is to GAP it to supergrace so that our priesthood will function. We need to take possession of our priesthood. The present tense indicates that concept. The active voice: the believer priest produces the action by GAPing it to supergrace, by maintaining supergrace through GAP when he gets there. The subjunctive mood is a hortatory subjunctive in which the writer encourages other believers to join him in a course of action, join him in the function of the priesthood in supergrace — join me and take possession of what was given to you at salvation.

The next word is “profession”. This is an objective genitive from the noun homologia (ὁμολογία) ψ [pronounced hom-ol-og-EE-ah]. We are familiar with this word under homologeō (ὁμολογέω) [pronounced hoh-moh-loh-GEH-oh], which means to confess or acknowledge your sin, or using 1John 1:9. The cognate is homologia (ὁμολογία) ψ [pronounced hom-ol-og-EE-ah] and is taken from the verb. Ordinarily, when a noun is taken from the verb, if it means confess it means “let us take possession of a confession”. However, the word doesn’t mean “confess”, it means to acknowledge. So this should be translated, “take possession of the acknowledgment”. The acknowledgment is the fact that at the point of salvation every believer was appointed a priest. You are a priest, you do represent yourself on this earth. You as a priest are designed for the greatest possible blessing. You have been designed for supergrace and the function of your priesthood. That is the issue, that is what is important in this passage. “Let us take possession of the acknowledgment”. This means the believer acknowledges that he is a priest as of the moment of salvation but he cannot take possession of that acknowledgment until he GAPs it to supergrace, until he has a cup in his soul and God begins to pour those supergrace blessings. Here, then, is a command to enter the supergrace life, to use the priesthood, to exploit the priesthood, to recognize the celebrityship of Jesus Christ, to become effective to enter into the tactical victory of the angelic conflict.

Hebrews 4:14 “Having therefore a great high priest, who having traveled through the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us take possession of the acknowledgment.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The hortatory subjunctive is a little different from the imperative mood because it recognizes this: the imperative mood is a command you can obey immediately. If it is a negative command, Stop doing something, you can stop it immediately. If it is a command to do something, it is something you can do immediately. But under the subjunctive mood you can’t do it immediately. You can’t say in one second, “I am in supergrace, I am going to take possession of a possession.” Something is in between: functioning under GAP today, tomorrow, the next day, the next, the next, and so on. There is between the command given and the fulfillment in supergrace an elapse of time in which the believer must be consistent in the function of GAP until he reaches occupation with Christ and supergrace capacity. So the subjunctive recognizes that the volition is involved in going from point X to point SG [supergrace]. You can't do it immediately.

Hebrews 4:15 For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but one who in every respect has been tempted as we are, yet without sin. (ESV)

Verse 15 — the compassion of the Lord Jesus Christ. This verse tells us a great deal about the compassion of our only celebrity. There is nothing that you have gone through but what Jesus Christ endured that same agony of soul, that same suffering of body, that same frustration of desire. The only difference is that during His life on this earth Christ never succumbed to any sin. And that even made it worse. That intensified every temptation, every testing.

“For” is a conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] used to express a cause or a reason — “we have not,” the present active indicative of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHHH-oh], to have and to hold, plus the negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook]. The negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] is an objective negative and therefore this is a very clearly delineated concept without any subjective concepts put in on the side. “We have not and hold not a high priest”. Notice again, we were to have or to hold our acknowledgment. Now we have not, our acknowledgment is obviously the high priest. This sets up the celebrityship of Christ by placing Him in contrast, by the way, with all high priests in history.

“which cannot” — present active participle of dinamai, and this is a tendential present to indicate a status. This is the status of our Lord Jesus Christ. But notice that “cannot” includes a negative and now we have a subjective negative, m (μή) [pronounced may]. Notice that we go from one verb with ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook], an objective negative, to a verb with m (μή) [pronounced may]. That tells us that we are now getting into our personal feelings, and our personal feelings become a subjective concept. And often in our personal feelings we are filled with self-pity or bitterness or resentment or disillusion or frustration. And this negative followed by another type of negative — ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] followed by m (μή) [pronounced may] — indicates God thorough, complete, and total understanding of our status quo under the greatest of pressures. “For we have not a high priest unable”.

The words to “be touched” — aorist active infinitive of sumpaqew, the word from which we get the word “sympathy.” It means to suffer with, to sympathize with. Jesus Christ our high priest has personally endured every affliction, every testing, every pressure we will ever face. The only exception means without sin. The aorist tense is the constative aorist which gathers up into one entirety the life of Jesus Christ on earth in the incarnation. The active voice: our high priest, Jesus Christ, produces the action of the verb. The infinitive relates God's purpose in the incarnation to our lives. God knew ahead of time everything we would ever face or suffer and these circumstances were established so that Jesus Christ would go ahead of us in all of these things.

Notice the phrase “with the feeling of”. It is not found in the original. The word “infirmities” is a)sqenia which really means “weaknesses” — weaknesses and pressures.

“but” — the adversative conjunction de, emphasizing a contrast between the Lord Jesus Christ as our high priest being tempted or being tested and we as believers being tempted or tested.

“was tempted” — perfect passive participle of the verb peirazô (πειράζω) [pronounced pi-RAD-zoh]. Peirazô (πειράζω) [pronounced pi-RAD-zoh] is used in a good sense for being put to the test to discover what a person is like. It is used in a bad sense for temptation in the sense of solicitation to sin. Here it is used in the sense of any kind of testing or pressure. The perfect tense is a dramatic perfect which describes the fact in an unusually vivid and realistic way and at the same emphasizes the results of the action. This is a very dramatic concept, that nothing that you have suffered or ever will suffer was unknown to Jesus Christ. The passive voice: Christ received both the testing and the temptation during the period of his incarnation and not once did He crack. This should be translated “having been tempted.”

“in all points” — preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs], which should be translated “in all things.” Whatever your temptation or testing has been Jesus Christ has already been through it.

“like as we are” is not correct. Again, we have katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative, but this time the word is homoiotês (ὁμοιότης) [pronounced hom-oy-OHT-ace]. This is an idiom which should be translated “in quite the same way”. This phrase indicates He went through it just the way we did.

The only exception comes up with an adverb used as a preposition, chôris (χωρίς) [pronounced khoh-REECE], followed by the genitive of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], the most general term for sin and the principle of sin, and even a definition of sin since hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] originally meant to miss the mark. So it should be translated “apart from sin”. In the areas of temptation Jesus Christ never succumbed. That is the only exception, so He can’t say “I know what it is like to sin” because He never has.

Hebrews 4:15 “For we have not a high priest unable to sympathize with our weaknesses; but having been tempted in all things in quite the same way, apart from sin.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The Doctrine of Impeccability

1. Christ did not have an old sin nature by birth, nor did He commit any act of sin during the incarnation — Hebrews 4:15; 1Peter 1:19; 1John 3:5. By being born of a virgin Jesus Christ by-passed having an old sin nature.
2. Jesus Christ, however, was tempted in every area of humanity — Hebrews 4:15. The unique temptation — Matthew 4:2–11.

3. As with Adam in innocence or sinlessness and Jesus Christ in hypostatic union all temptation to Christ came from without. He didn't have an old sin nature. So the temptation is bona fide without a sin nature. Adam and the woman were both minus the sin nature before they fell, and they still sinned. It doesn't take an old sin nature to sin, all it takes is free will. Sin comes from volition.
4. All temptations to Christ came through His human nature. The human nature of Christ is temptable but the divine nature of Christ is not temptable — James 1:13.
5. Christ resisted the greatest of all temptations at Gethsemane when He faced the cross — Luke 22:42; Matthew 26:39; Mark 14:35,36. When Jesus faced the possibility of the cross He had no old sin nature, no imputation of Adam's sin, no personal sin, and the idea of personal sin was totally repugnant to Him both in His humanity and in His deity; and therefore He uttered the words in great anguish of soul, "Father, if it be thy will, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless, not my will, but thine, be done." And by His own volition He went to the cross, and because He did you and I have eternal life."
6. Christ also resisted the kenosis temptation in Matthew 4:1–11. He resisted the temptation to use His own divine attributes in independence of God the Father.
7. The categorizing of the doctrine involves two factors: the humanity of Christ and the deity of Christ. The deity of Christ is not temptable, not peccable; the humanity of Christ is temptable and peccable.
8. In the hypostatic union Christ is temptable but impeccable.
9. It is possible for the humanity of Christ during the incarnation to suffer all of the physical limitations, all of the adversities and pressures, of any member of the human race apart from sin. None of these sufferings present complications which in any way affect His immutable holiness.
10. The doctrine of impeccability as stated theologically: Christ was able not to sin and not able to sin. Christ is God, God is never the source of evil, temptation or sin. Evil stems from angelic and human volition but never divine sovereignty.

1972 Hebrews

47 06/10/1973 Hebrews 4:16 Doctrine of prayer; praying for believer & unbeliever

We are involved in the angelic conflict; we are in the intensified stage of the angelic conflict. There is a strategic victory which had preceded our dispensation but gives us the very meaning of the epistle which we are studying. When the Lord Jesus Christ went to the cross He bore our sins in His own body on the tree. He took our place and became our Savior. At the same time, when He was on the cross He rejected human good, since both human good and sin come from the same source but a different area of the sin nature. The sins come from the area of weakness; human good comes from the area of strength. Then the Lord Jesus Christ fulfilled one of His priestly ministries which we will study in the next chapter. That was the famous prayer by which He prayed for the perpetuation of His high priestly ministry. When Jesus Christ became our sacrifice, our Savior, when he offered Himself a sacrifice for sin, that was a ministry of the priesthood, that was a ministry of His high priesthood. But there is another ministry which is also important and that is the ministry of intercession, representing us at the right hand of the Father. For this ministry to be perpetuated there had to be the overcoming of death for death terminates the function of any high priest and someone else is appointed in his place. But the Lord Jesus Christ Himself must perpetuate His high priesthood and therefore He prayed. The reference to this prayer is found in the fifth chapter of Hebrews. It is also found in several other passage: Psalm 69 22 19. In this prayer the Lord Jesus Christ, while still on the cross, asked God the Father to raise Him from the dead for the perpetuation of His priesthood. So we are studying the celebrityship of Jesus Christ. We are studying the unique high priest. There is only one high priest in all of history whose ministry was terminated for three days, but He rose again from the dead in answer to prayer.

So the Lord Jesus Christ, then, rose from the dead on the third day and was seated on the right hand of the Father. That was the first phase of the strategic victory of the angelic conflict. This strategic victory is described in the second chapter of Colossians and in the second chapter of Hebrews. Now, once Jesus is seated at the right hand of the Father he is told to sit there until the Father makes His enemies His footstool. This is the end of the first phase of the strategic victory of the angelic conflict. This strategic victory — death , burial, resurrection — is the very basis for the intensification of the angelic conflict. Satan himself has always made Christ and the line of Christ the specific target in the angelic conflict up to this time. Now all of this is changed. Now, Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father and a new dispensation interrupts the Age of Israel — the Church Age — and every believer is now the target, every believer is a priest.

Therefore, at the moment of salvation God the Holy Spirit takes every believer and through the baptism of the Spirit, identifying us with Christ, we are entered into union with Christ as He is seated at the right hand of the Father. We are identified with Christ as He died upon the cross. retroactive positional truth plus current positional truth identifies every believer with the strategic victory of the angelic conflict, and through this identification we are now placed in the position of living on the earth as believers in full time Christians service under a universal priesthood whereby through this identification we are now to move to tactical victory. The tactical victory of the Church Age is reaching the supergrace life through persistence in the function of GAP. Then once the Church, the body of Christ, is completed it is resurrected and becomes the bride of Christ, following the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ. This is the Rapture of the Church. Then the second stage of the strategic victory is the second advent of Christ some seven years later at which time the Lord Jesus Christ will break His record as the greatest warrior of all time in the Armageddon campaign. The second thing he is going to do is to remove Satan and all fallen angels from the earth. Satan will no longer rule the world but will be superseded by the Lord Jesus Christ. Satan and all demons will be incarcerated for a thousand years and all unbelievers will be removed from the earth in the baptism of fire. This is all a part of the second stage of the strategic victory of the Lord Jesus Christ. The final stage will come at the end of the Millennium when Jesus Christ puts down forever the Gog and Magog revolution.

Under the principle of the book of Hebrews our priesthood has great significance. It is related to the intensification of the angelic conflict as we saw in the first and second chapters. It is related to the celebrityship of Jesus Christ and we are commanded occupation with Christ as the first move in the supergrace life.

In the classification of grace there is, first of all, phase one grace which is everything that God provided for eternal salvation. God the Father did the planning, God the Son executed the plan all by becoming a member of the human race, entering into the hypostatic union, going to the cross and bearing our sins in His own body on the tree, and completed salvation before He died physically. When He said, "It is finished" all the sins of the world had been judged in Christ, past, present, and future. So that phase one grace, or salvation grace, was completed on the cross. Now it is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit utilizing the Word to make this information available to all the human race.

Phases of Grace

1. Phase one grace involves volition because it is a part of the angelic conflict. It involves the fact that volition, to appropriate this grace, must be non-meritorious. Positive non-meritorious volition is faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Once a person accepts Jesus Christ this in itself is where tactical victory becomes a potentiality. But remember this positive volition is related to the strategic victory for God the Holy Spirit makes certain of that by entering each one of us into union with Christ. We are in Christ, we share His life, eternal life, His righteousness, His heirship, His sonship, His destiny, His election. But above all, Hebrews emphasizes the fact that we share His priesthood. Therefore our life has meaning and purpose and definition.
2. The next type of grace is phase two grace which does not involve volition. Phase two grace is every step, everything that God must do to keep us alive in the devil's world, to keep us from being annihilated by Satan, by unseen forces. Everything, for example, that is necessary to bring us to this hour and to this assembly. To bring us clothed, to bring us fed, to bring us in some sort of condition so that we can listen to the teaching of the Word of God. That does not involve volition. The fact that you and I are alive: our volition is not involved. The fact that God has provided for us to stay alive is because of the grace of God. Remember that Satan has certain powers of death as we are told from the Psalms. He has certain powers of disease, certain ways by which we could be destroyed, were it not for the fact of phase two grace. Volition is not involved. We are alive because of the grace of God and for no other reason.
3. Then there is another type of grace in phase two or the Christian way of life, and that is supergrace. Supergrace involves volition again. It involves volition because it is a part of the angelic conflict. Persistent positive volition toward Bible leads to the supergrace life, whereas on the other hand, negative volition leads to reversionism.

So that in one case we have tactical victory and in the other case we have tactical defeat. The objective of the priesthood is to take us to the supergrace life for that is the first time that we function in a normal manner as priests.

4. Then there is a fourth type of grace called surpassing grace. Surpassing grace is phase three grace, everything we will receive from the time we leave this earth forever and ever and ever. Again, no volition is involved there because the angelic conflict does not call for it, it is over by the time we reach that stage.

The first objective of Hebrews is to take believers and move them from indifference toward doctrine and some stage of reversionism to the supergrace life so that the priesthood can function, so that there can be tactical victory in the angelic conflict and so that God can be glorified in this dispensation. God is only glorified when he can pour. We start at the cross and we GAP it all of the way to the supergrace life. When we get there we are occupied with the person of Christ, we have maximum category #1 love response. Secondly, we have the cup. That is, we have the supergrace capacity through Bible doctrine in the soul, and having the cup God then begins to pour. God pours and that is supergrace blessing. And that is the objective of the priesthood, so that God can pour for you. He is tapping His foot right now, waiting to bless you. To do that there must be supergrace capacity. This is the only place where all things work together for good. That passage is well known — Romans 8:28 — and glibly quoted, but the fact of the matter is a very simple one. Here we have the principle that the capacity from Bible doctrine in the soul and the things that God has prepared for you by way of great happiness and blessing in eternity past are blended together for good only in supergrace. How do we know that? Because Romans 8:28 is qualified by the phrase “those who love God”. That refers to the believer occupied with the person of Jesus Christ, that refers to entering the supergrace life and the celebrityship status. This is only possible for the believer with doctrine in his soul, with the cup in his soul. God does not pour unless there is a cup. So the purpose of Hebrews, then, is to take us to the point of Romans 8:28.

Why do people fail to take in doctrine? Where is the real problem? The real problem starts with reactor factors. There is disillusion, there is boredom, discouragement, self-pity, loneliness, frustration, jealousy and bitterness, and other mental attitude sins. These are reactor factors, and everyone has an old sin nature and the OSN has trends. It has a trend toward lasciviousness with its obvious expressions and a trend toward asceticism whereby “they give up something for God”. The frantic search for happiness immediately triggers emotional revolt. This immediately shuts down the valves in the heart where we function. First of all, the frame of reference with the memory centre, the vocabulary, the categories, the norms and standards, the launching pad, are all shut down. And doctrine in all of these areas drains right over to the left lobe or the mind where it can't be used. Doctrine in the left lobe is like being a hearer but not a doer. Doctrine is not useable in the left lobe. This causes negative volition toward doctrine, and this causes the scar tissue that opens up mataiotês (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace] through which comes the doctrine of demons. And it comes into a vacuum. Doctrine has been drained out of the heart of the right lobe and the doctrine of demons then functions in all of these areas, so that instead of having the cup of the Lord overflowing you have the cup of demons. A believer cannot drink of the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. This believer, then, is under demon influence. His body is the temple of the Holy Spirit and safe from demon possession but he is worse than a demon-possessed type, he is under demon influence. His soul is under attack. This is our enemy because this leads to hardness of the heart, blackout of the soul, the practice of reverse process reversionism, and then it is just a matter of how long God wants to keep you alive before He takes you out.

Christian college where wacky things are done in the name of Jesus.

Once a believer reaches supergrace he becomes very effective in prayer. Prayer has minimal to fair results in the life of any believer, but prayer is a weapon which is totally useless in the angelic conflict for the reversionist. No reversionist has any prayer that can be heard except the prayer of repentance in one of the three stages of discipline and rebound. That's all he can do, that's the only way his priesthood functions. The priesthood of the believer is designed to function under supergrace under the status of tactical victory. That is the issue.

Maybe you discover that you want to play ice hockey, but you have never ice skated before. Some of you think that, in order to get prayer answered, you just need to be saved. But you cannot do anything until you have prayed.

If you have a glove and a baseball that you are baseball player.

In this tactical victory we must understand that the high priesthood of Christ has been perpetuated, that He Himself offered a prayer by which His own priesthood was perpetuated. This anticipates the middle part of the fifth chapter of Hebrews, especially verses 6–8 where Jesus Christ did something unusual. His priesthood was terminated by His physical death; His priesthood was perpetuated by His resurrection. Therefore Christ is unique as a priest, apart from all of the contrasts with the Aaronic priesthood, apart from the hypostatic union and His impeccability, which all contributes to His uniqueness. But here is something else. Jesus Christ is the only person who, as a high priest discontinued for three days but was resumed by resurrection, is the only resurrected member of the human race, right now. He is the only resurrected person in the human race in the presence of all the members of the Godhead — the hypostatic union of Jesus Christ.

And here is something else. You and I are part of that priesthood forever, so that just before you die physically remember this and apply it. You are only temporarily out of it when you die physically because in resurrection body your priesthood will continue too. That is why we have to get out of here so that the Age of Israel can be completed, and that is why when Christ returns for the second phase of the strategic victory we return with resurrection bodies. Why? Because our priesthood is perpetuated with Him. And what is going to hit the earth in the great coup de tat that knocks Satan out of rulership? It is going to be Jesus Christ in His humanity in resurrection body and His bride in resurrection body. We will all be in resurrection bodies and the priesthood will then be perpetuated forever, and will be continued at that point. The first function of the priesthood is going to be to rid the earth of Satan and demons, to rid the earth of unbelievers, in order that there might be one final perfect environment test, the test of the Millennium.

Heb 4:16 Let us then with confidence draw near to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need. (ESV)

Verse 16 — “Therefore” is an inferential particle, οὖν. This particle, by the way, does not come in the first part of the sentence, it always follows something else. It means to come to a conclusion about the supergrace life, it means that we have something to shoot for. If you keep taking in doctrine and taking in doctrine, you will be a prayer warrior. This inferential particle is designed to draw a secondary conclusion. This isn’t the final conclusion of the book and therefore this particle is used to show you this is just one of the conclusions which anticipates some basic things coming up. So οὖν is a secondary particle, it means a temporary conclusion to keep you going in the right direction. What is one of the privileges of the priesthood? Prayer. When you reach supergrace you can come boldly to the throne of grace and obtain mercy at any time.

“let us come” — the present middle subjunctive of proserchomai (προσέρχομαι) [pronounced pros-ER-khom-ahee],. Pros means face to face; érchomai (ἔρχομαι) [pronounced AIR-khoh-my] means to come or to approach. It means to approach here. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs or maybe expected to occur. In other words, when you reach a certain point in your life, when you have taken in a certain amount of doctrine, even before you reach supergrace, you are going to begin to have an effective prayer life. Therefore, this particular present tense means that when you reach this point by the intake of doctrine, the Word of God, then you are going to be able to walk into God’s presence boldly, with confidence, and know that you are going to be heard. Prayer is a great weapon, a great privilege, and it is one of the most misunderstood and abused. We have a middle voice here and it is the permissive middle in which the subject, the believer priest, voluntarily yields himself to the results of the action in his own interest. In other words, here is a person who prays and he knows what he is doing, so obviously he is in supergrace. The subjunctive mood here is the hortatory subjunctive in which the writer invites the reader to join him in a course of action outlined by the verb. The course of action is prayer. “Therefore let us be approaching” is a correct translation.

The next word “boldly” is not correct because it is a prepositional phrase and it is translated like an adverb. The preposition is meta plus the genitive of parrhêsia (παρρησία) [pronounced par-rhay-SEE-ah],. Parrhêsia (παρρησία) [pronounced par-rhay-SEE-ah], here means confidence more than boldness, and meta is used here with the genitive as a preposition of association. When you are moving in the right direction, positive toward doctrine and moving toward supergrace, or when you reach it, then you approach the throne of grace with confidence. You know what you are doing.

“unto the throne of grace” — this is a so-called dative of indirect object, but it means that we are benefitted. It means whatever the action of the verb is it becomes beneficial to us. It is beneficial to us to get to that throne of grace. And notice that we have the indirect dative of advantage qronoj plus the descriptive genitive, and the descriptive genitive really refers to supergrace here which is where we function the best, or approximating supergrace. How do we know that? Because if it was just grace in general the omission of the definite article gives the quality, but we have a definite article, it is the throne of the grace and it becomes definitive then, and we have, then, the supergrace status.

What can a supergrace believer do with prayer that you can't? "Therefore let us be approaching the throne of the grace with confidence"

"that" — hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus the subjunctive to give us a purpose clause — "we may obtain", the aorist active subjunctive of the verb lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh]. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the event from its entirety but emphasizes the existing results. Once you reach supergrace you are now ready to use a weapon: prayer. You are now in the place of tactical victory and you can use that weapon. You are a priest, you have been since the day you were saved, but your priesthood functions in the normal way once you reach supergrace. One of the functions of the priesthood is prayer. Up until now, who has been praying for you? Jesus Christ makes intercession for you at the right hand of the Father, waiting for you to get there. The active voice: the believer receives mercy as his very own possession. The subjunctive mood designates the purpose clause, and it is potential because supergrace is potential, depending upon your attitude toward doctrine.

And what is it that we receive? First of all, eleos (ἔλεος) [pronounced EHL-eh-os] — "mercy" as it is translated, or benefit from compassion. It even comes to mean the concept of grace in action. Here is a great weapon in the hand of a supergrace believer, he can open his mouth and say, "Father", and benefit.

Then he discovers something. The word "find" means to discover. It is an aorist active subjunctive from heuriskō (εὕρισκω) [pronounced hyoo-RIHS-koh]. It means to discover. You discover "grace," the aorist tense is a constative aorist. Now you discover day by day what grace is all about. Now you are aware of grace as never before. So you discover grace — supergrace. This is your help in time of need — "grace," charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic], "to help in time of need" is a Greek prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] e)ukairon bohqēian, which means "with reference to seasonable help."

Hebrews 4:16 "Therefore let us be approaching to the throne of grace with confidence, that we may receive grace in action and discover grace with reference to seasonable help." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

You're on the panic button; but, you jackass, you don't know the first thing about prayer. Bob is not known as a prayer warrior, but you would be amazed as to how fast help comes when He prays for it. Isn't it nice that, when you call for help, that you get it. You have to watch it when it comes to using Imprecatory prayer.

The poop on prayer; it is not what you think it is; it is what you think it isn't.

The Doctrine of Prayer

1. The approach. How do you approach? What do you say?

- a. All prayer is addressed to God the Father, always — Ephesians 3:14, 1. Never to Jesus or to the Holy Spirit.
- b. In the name of the Son — John 14:13,14.
- c. In the power of the Spirit — Ephesians 6:18.
2. There are three categories of prayer that are addressed to God the Father. He receives prayer from us. He receives prayer from the Lord Jesus. He receives prayer from the Holy Spirit. Prayer from the source of the Son — Hebrews 7:25; prayer from the source of the Holy Spirit — Romans 8:26,27; prayer from the supergrace believer — Hebrews 4:16.
3. There has to be an agenda. First of all if you think you are out of fellowship, rebound — 1John 1:9. Second item: thanksgiving, an expression of category #1 love — Ephesians 5:20; 1Thessalonians 5:18. Then, intercession — Ephesians 6:18. Petition — Hebrews 4:16.
4. Prayer is an exhale of the faith-rest principle — Matthew 21:22; Mark 11:24; Matthew 18:19; John 15:7. Prayer is an exhale of faith, which is directly related to the Word of God.
5. There are eight principles of prayer.
  - a. Prayer becomes more and more effective as the believer functions consistently under GAP — John 15:7.
  - b. Prayer is an extension of the faith-rest exhale toward God — Matthew 21:22.
  - c. Prayer demands cognisance of the will of God. Cognisance of the will of God is based on the intake of Bible doctrine. The more doctrine you know the more effective your prayer life will become — 1John 5:14.
  - d. Prayer must be offered in the status of the filling of the Spirit — Ephesians 6:18. Therefore, God the Holy Spirit is related in this matter and in all other matters of the function of your priesthood. God the Holy Spirit indwells you, he keeps out demons. The only way you can get any influence from the devil is through the soul, your body is clear from demons.
  - e. Prayer is ineffective under any state of carnality. Psalm 66:18 mentions the worst category of sins: mental attitude sins.
  - f. Prayer in complying with the principle of grace demands that the believer grow in grace through GAPing it daily. Therefore prayer becomes an effective weapon in the angelic conflict when the believer reaches supergrace — Hebrews 4:16.
  - g. Prayer is ordained as a function of the priesthood as a part of the divine decrees — Jeremiah 33:3.
  - h. Prayer is directly related to category #1 love and/or occupation with Christ, and/or recognition of the celebrityship status of Christ — Psalm 116:1,2.
6. Nine reasons why prayer isn't answered.
  - a. You are not filled with the Spirit — Ephesians 6:18.
  - b. There is no faith-rest function from doctrine in the soul, therefore no faith rest — Matthew 21:22.
  - c. Mental attitude carnality — Psalm 66:18.

- d. Lust type selfishness — James 4:2–4.
  - e. Failure in the field of authority, lack of obedience — 1John 3:22.
  - f. Noncompliance with the will of God — 1John 5:14.
  - g. The specific mental attitude of pride as a basic mental attitude sin and resultant self-righteousness — Job 35:12,13.
  - h. Lack of compassion (bona fide sensitivity). People are so full of themselves that they are insensitive towards others. Intruding upon the life of others. A person might have perfect manners, but he is totally insensitive to others and he stays and stays and stays.
  - i. Lack of domestic tranquillity — 1Peter 3:7. “I am going to have a good prayer life; I am going to divorce that bitch.” Charley, we may have to post someone on the phone for this.
7. The principle of grace in prayer
- a. Prayer is the privilege and the extension of grace function. Therefore it is impossible to approach God on the basis of human good or human merit.
  - b. The believer priest approaches God in prayer on the basis of our high priest, Jesus Christ, and His merits.
  - c. The Father is propitiated with the work of Christ but is no respected of persons among believers offering prayer. God does not answer our prayer based upon our human activity, our personality or successes or failures.
  - d. God does not hear my prayers because I am fervent, moral, sincere, religious, or self-effacing.
  - e. God hears my prayers because of the function of GAP, the ministry of the Son, the ministry of the Holy Spirit, and reaching the supergrace life.
8. There are four categories of returns on your prayer — four ways in which God can answer your prayer. He can give you a positive and a negative. In each one of these categories you have a petition and a desire behind that petition.
- a. In category #1 God says yes to the petition, no to the desire. Under this category you wanted a million dollars and prayed for it. So God says no, or He says yes to the petition but no to the desire behind it. 1Samuel 8:5–9; 8:19-20 gives a Biblical illustration. The Jews prayed for a king so they could be like other nations. Petition: We want a king. But they lost all their blessings under the reign of Saul.
  - b. Negative on the petition and positive on the desire. You pray for a million dollars but this time you don’t get it but you get happiness. You get the blessing of happiness before you get to supergrace. With supergrace, you would enjoy $1 million. Moses wanted his nephew saved, but stopped praying when God said that He would deliver Sodom with 10 righteous people. There were only 3 righteous, Lot and his 2 daughters. Illustration: Genesis 17:18; 18:23–33; 2Corinthian 12:7–10.
  - c. Yes and yes. 1Kings 18:36,37; Judges 16:28; Luke 23:42,43; John 11:41–45.
  - d. No and no.

48 06/17/1973 Hebrews 5:1 Principles of the priesthood

The birth of the United States army is a great holiday. Nothing is worse than the phony activities of Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter. Easter was all about the rites of fertility and the phallic cult. Our country is so stupid and mixed up about our holidays, but we are not. I trust that some of you are flying the flag over the past few days. The army was the first service to be authorized by the Continental Congress.

Chapter 5

The first ten verses of this chapter are devoted to the purpose of preparation for the study of the priesthood: the importance of the priesthood of the believer. We study, therefore, the unique high priest and in the first five verses the history of every high priest before the Lord Jesus Christ.

Remember that if you are a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ you are in full time Christian service. When you personally trusted in the Lord Jesus Christ God gave you 36 things. These things relate to God, they relate to the angelic conflict, they relate to your function in this world, they relate to your relationship to other people, they relate to everything. The thrust of this passage is the fact that at the point of salvation you were appointed a priest. Every believer is a priest. The universal priesthood of the believer is of absolute vital importance to you personally. The priesthood of the believer does not function normally until you reach supergrace, and once reaching supergrace you have the normal function of this priesthood. Your priesthood causes you to face toward God; your ambassadorship causes you to face toward the world. So that actually you are moving toward two directions at the same time. As goes the priesthood so goes your relationship and your function in this life. God has ordained that you should move in the direction of supergrace and upon arrival you have 1) occupation with the person of Christ, and 2) supergrace capacity based upon doctrine in the soul, and 3) God pours supergrace blessings into your cup. These supergrace blessings as poured include everything from prosperity to wealth, success, materialistic blessings, social blessings, sexual blessings. All of these are related to God's grace in pouring for you and for me. God's grace begins for us in phase one of grace: everything God provided for eternal salvation, everything that was necessary to make it possible for us to have a relationship with God forever. This particular type of grace involves volition, positive volition, non-meritorious type. Therefore, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Our second classification of grace involves phase two grace. This is merely survival and keeping you alive in the devil's world, an impossibility apart from the things that God has provided. Most of these things are like an iceberg, they are invisible, they are hidden from you. You cannot see them but you know they are there because you are alive at this moment. This type of grace has no relationship to volition. The third classification is known as the principle of supergrace, and this involves volition, attitude toward doctrine. Positive volition toward the living Word, Jesus Christ, means salvation. Positive volition on a consistent basis toward the written Word means the supergrace life. Finally, there is surpassing grace or phase three grace and, again, no volition is involved there. Phase three grace is not directly related to the angelic conflict.

The objective of the book of Hebrews is to bring your priesthood to the point of function, which means the point of the supergrace life, to bring you to the point where God can pour because God is glorified in that pouring.

Heb 5:1 For every high priest chosen from among men is appointed to act on behalf of men in relation to God, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. (ESV)

Verse 1 — this is the first of four verses relating to the function of high priest before Christ. Before the Lord Jesus Christ there was the family priesthood. The firstborn son of every family was the ruler of that family, was the priest of that family, and also received the double portion which was the financial wealth of the family upon the death of the patriarch of the family or the father.

The word “For” is a conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] and it is used in a continuative way. It is used for explanation, it is a continuative concept.

“every high priest” — the word “every” is pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] which means every category as well as every individual. The word for “high priest,” archiereus (ἀρχιερεύς) [pronounced ar-khee-er-YUCE], simply means ruling priest or first priest. Iereuj is the Greek word for priest; arxi means ruler. We simply use the translation “high priest”.

“taken” is a present passive participle from lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh]. Lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] means to take, to seize, but this is in the passive voice and that means that the word means to be appointed, to be commissioned, to be recognized or authorized by God. The present tense is an iterative present in the Greek, it is used to describe what recurs at successive intervals in history. Therefore high priests do not exist every moment, there is no linear aktionsart here, but there comes a time when a person is recognized as a high priest. For example, Aaron was Moses’ younger brother. Technically, Moses should have been the high priest of Israel after their liberation. He was the leader, he should have functioned in this area. However, his reluctance to accept the call to be God’s instrument in liberating the people and his subsequent argumentation with God resulted in appointing Aaron as His spokesman. This appointment was set aside from the standpoint of leadership but not from the standpoint of the priesthood, and God appointed the younger brother of Moses, by the name of Aaron, as the first high priest of Israel. Both Aaron and Moses were from the tribe of Levi. Levi was one of the tribes that received the blessing that should have gone to Reuben. Reuben was the firstborn of Israel. The firstborn always had, up until the time of Abraham, three things: the family rulership, the family priesthood, and the double portion — all of the land and all of the wealth became his. Reuben lost all of these things through reversionism. He lost the family rulership to the tribe of Judah, and that brings us down to David. He lost the family priesthood to the tribe of Levi, and that brings us down to Aaron. He lost the double portion to Joseph, and the double portion became Ephraim and Mannaseh, so that technically you have thirteen tribes in Israel.

Now every high priest is appointed is really what lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] means here. The verb means to take but it means to be taken by God or commissioned by God or appointed by God. Principle: Any time God makes an appointment that appointment sticks. It comes from the sovereignty of God but sovereignty must be linked with immutability, immutability must be linked with omniscience. God knows what he is doing. This is one thing that is absolutely necessary in leadership. Leadership must always know what leadership is doing. Leadership does not have to explain itself or to say, "I know what I am doing."

God knows what He is doing and He has done it. God makes appointments and he appointed Aaron high priest. So Aaron obviously was an undeserving type. To handle such a ministry as the priesthood is a phenomenal thing, and to think of Aaron handling that whole situation is something most unusual. Aaron always went with the crowd, as in the golden calf incident. Leadership always stands up to a majority which is wrong. It never caters to a majority that is wrong, and that is exactly what Aaron did.

None of us can go too far back in our heritage and find great culture. The Jews have many things in their background putting them light years ahead of us.

Moses and Joshua coming back to the camp and the people's degeneracy was on full display as they returned. Moses made the people drink the gold they were worshiping.

This is to point out the fact that in the history of high priests the great marking point before Jesus Christ was the high priesthood of Aaron. It began with the Levitical priesthood taken from the name of his tribe, the tribe of Levi, and Aaron became the high priest. He had four sons. His eldest surviving son became the high priest who succeeded him. And they represented themselves and the people to God. Then the eldest son of Aaron had many sons and these sons would be the priests. Other members of the family of Levi would function in connection with the tabernacle and the various aspects of the priesthood. And all of this is brought to a head now under the principle of lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] in the present active participle. This is a concessive participle which recognizes the fact that this is a bona fide point of history and it reviewed only briefly to show a contrast between the high priesthood of Aaron and the high priesthood of Christ, the high priesthood of Aaron's successors and the high priesthood of Christ.

The next phrase is so important theologically that it must not be missed. Melchizedek was a Gentile priest, the king of Salem which is the original Jerusalem. He was also the priest of his people, which indicated the fact that before possibly he was the king he had functioned as the priest and they had taken a spiritual leader as their king and as a result they had great prosperity. So great was their prosperity that Melchizedek ministered to Abraham at a time of Abraham's great need. He ministered to him as a priest although Melchizedek was historically a king-priest.

Bob did get a father's day card from Pastor Sam Ammons, who has a black church in town where he teaches doctrine. He's on the radio and he is proving that you can teach Bible doctrine and not get emotional in order to get an audience.

There are those who erroneously contend that Melchizedek was not a human being at all but a Christophany, the Lord Jesus Christ. They base this on the fact that it says he had no father and no mother. That is not correct. A Christophany is never presented that way. It means no recorded father, no recorded mother. "From among men", then, is important because it demonstrates that Melchizedek was a true member of the human race. The very fact that he was a priest demanded that he be a member of the human race. Jesus Christ is not Melchizedek and Melchizedek is not Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ was not a priest until His birth. He could not be a priest until He became a member of the human race. Therefore, Melchizedek is not Jesus Christ.

"from among men" — ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus the ablative of anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]. Anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos] is a generic term for the human race. So it must be a member of the human race; no one is a priest unless he is a member of the human race. "For every high priest being taken from among men." They are not constantly taken from among men. Remember again that the iterative present means that at certain intervals this occurred. Remember this principle once again. The moment a person dies as a priest he is no longer functioning as a priest. Death is the cessation of the function of the priesthood. This is important because, once again, we are meeting on Sunday, the first day of the week. This is resurrection day, this is the day that Jesus Christ came out from the grave. He went into the grave on Wednesday night and He came out on early Sunday morning in resurrection body. He was three days and three nights in the grave. On resurrection Jesus Christ perpetuates His priesthood. He had to be resurrected in order to go to the right hand of the Father to pray for you and for me and to be our advocate and to fulfil the various ministries of high priesthood. If Jesus Christ had not been raised from the dead you and I would not be priests and you and I would therefore not have purpose and meaning to our lives. But we do.

We are not just peons spiritually, we have been appointed to the high office of priests. The effective spiritual life occurs with the achievement of the supergrace life.

Summary of the High Priesthood

1. The high priest was always taken from the human race, never from angels, never from deity. Priesthood, therefore, is unique to the human race. There is no priesthood among angels, there is no priesthood in the Godhead.
2. The high priest must partake of the nature of the person for whom he acts, for whom he officiates, and for whom he represents.
3. The priest, and in this case the high priest, is to minister to men in things which involve man's relationship to God. In other words, every priest is a man representing man before God and the high priest personifies this to the maximum in the field of leadership.
4. A priest is a man who represents man before God.
5. Therefore, the high priest must be a man or a member of the human race since he is representing man before God.

6. This means that all high priests from the first to the last Adam had to be bona fide members of the human race.
7. Hence, the high priesthood completely by passes angelic creation.
8. Your priesthood demands victory.

Some of you have no background for this information. Bobby is going to teach Hebrews whether the nod-to-God crowd can handle it or not.

God protects the priesthood. Bob looked through a telescope at the moon and it was the duller look into a telescope that he has ever had. Apart from the military, it just does not mean anything.

There are no priests in angelic creation.

It does make a difference how you play the game; you play to win. It is a disgrace to be a loser. No priest should be a loser.

Now this particular synopsis anticipates Hebrews 7:4,5,14,28; 10:5, 10–14 where the humanity of Christ is related to the high priesthood. As God, Jesus Christ cannot be a priest and therefore another reason for the incarnation and the subsequent hypostatic union.

Hebrews 5:1 For every high priest chosen from among men is appointed to act on behalf of men in relation to God, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. (ESV)

The next phrase: “is ordained” — the present passive indicative of the compound verb kaqistemi. katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] means norm or standard; i(stem) means to stand. To stand according to a norm or standard it means to stand on the basis of something outside of yourself. We as believers stand on the basis of something outside of ourselves, we stand on the basis of a commission, an appointment from God. That is exactly what this compound comes to mean: to appoint, to constitute, to commission, to ordain. The present tense is the static present. This is used for that which is assumed to be perpetually existing. It is taken for granted therefore as a fact, and it is a fact which we must take for granted if we are ever going to move to our tactical victory of supergrace. You and I are a priest, our high priest is Jesus Christ. As God the Father appointed Him high priest so God the Father has appointed each one of us a believer priest. And we must take this for a fact, it must be axiomatic, and on the basis of this axiom we move to the tactical victory of supergrace. This is also a passive voice: the high priest receives appointment or ordination from God the Father, we likewise receive it from the same source. The indicative mood is the reality of Jesus Christ as the high priest, appointed by God, the reality of each one of us at the point of salvation appointed a high priest by God.

“ordained for men” — not quite correct. We have the preposition u(per plus the ablative of anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]. Always the priesthood is related to man. This actually means “ordained on behalf of men.”

“in things pertaining to God” — this is a prepositional phrase preceded by a definite article: ta proj ton qeon. Ta is an article used to describe the principles of doctrine. Doctrine is described. This is the phrase “the things.” Pros means belonging to God, face to face with God, or in the presence of God. Then ton qeon — “the God”, a reference to God the Father. “The things with reference to face to face with God” refers to Bible doctrine. We have a high priest who has left a great heritage for us. He is in heaven representing us and since we are on this earth He has left us a great heritage. We possess the things pertaining to God or the things which are face to face with God. Here is a definition of Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine is that which is face to face with God, brought to earth, preserved in a book, and transferred to our souls by Bible teaching. That is exactly what we have. Therefore, you and I possess a phenomenal wealth, a wealth for which there is no classification on the cosmic world. Satan is the ruler of this world and under the cosmic world Satan is dispensing, under the system of the cosmos, great wealth, materialistic things, promotions, certain types of social life, sex life. All of these are things that Satan can distribute and favours which he provides in his system. The cosmic system is filled with these things. When we accept Christ as Savior we do not have to depend upon the cosmic system for anything, and under supergrace God pours these same things which he has had for us billions of years before Satan was created. But how can we possess these things totally apart from the cosmic system? The answer: The link is doctrine, “the things pertaining to God”, the thing about which the cosmos knows nothing. The whole cosmos is opposed.

Your priesthood divorces you from Satan’s cosmos. Satan is the ruler of this world and has set up quite a system of promotion, wealth, success. He has set up materialistic things associated with happiness. As a priest your objective is to have a cup in your soul, God doesn’t pour without the cup. And doctrine or “the things pertaining to God” is the basis for having a cup in your soul. This is how Satan is defeated. The cross was the strategic defeat. The tactical defeat is based on “things pertaining to God”. And God said there will be no slip-up in the Church Age. Every believer is a priest and under his priesthood his first great function is the intake of Bible doctrine. Doctrine is going to make the difference. The high priest was commissioned for man’s benefit in spiritual things. Therefore, the high priest was appointed, ordained, for the benefit spiritually of man. The key to every high priest, then, must inevitably be doctrine. And the key to every priest is doctrine, and the key to your life is doctrine.

Ecology is an evil system. The sovereignty is with the people; not with the federal government. Ecology and liberalism. We are destroying our military; and our economy. Right now, we should take over Libya, because they took over our oil wells. Our industries have been taken of in Cuba and someplace else.

We should be able to go anywhere in the world and be perfectly safe. And if an American is harmed, we destroy that nation. There are people who have only heard derogatory information about the United States. This misinformation is found in China and Russia.

The ascendancy of the United States should mean peace and evangelism throughout the world. These are principles of doctrine and the application of doctrine.

The High Priest was commissioned for the spiritual benefit of man. The key to the priesthood is doctrine. God must have a place to pour. We have a couple hundred men in the military in supergrace, under terrible conditions. As long as there are some supergrace believers in the military, the military will survive. Some for local, state and federal government.

1972 Hebrews

49 06/17/1973 Hebrews 5:1b Ordination Service; doctrine of the priesthood

Bible teaching is the primary purpose of the local church. There are other reasons, and that is what is going on in Berachah. It is the tradition of ordination. Many things in Christianity are traditions of man; but this is one that is Biblical. It is a recognition of the gift of pastor-teacher. The congregation will be witness to this tradition.

Bill Kessler as the chairman of the board of deacons. 3 guys mentioned that I do not know by name. All approved by the board of deacons.

Bob stands up and says that the board of deacons is an excellent functioning body. Drill and training status have been passed. Many applicants for ordination at Berachah. Only these 3 passed the extensive examination, verbal and written.

Dick Witner was ordained in this procedure. He is now serving in Indianapolis, Indiana; and 2 of the young men came from his congregation. It is a credit to his ministry that these two young men did so well. Robert W. Bidlag and Kurt B. Stevens. Also, from Dallas Theological seminary, Dale Brown.

This ritual should be simple and yet clear. It is authorized by the Word of God. When they accept a pastorate, they understand their authority as given to them by the Word of God. There are many good things that a pastor can do, but should not do them. Many people who need counseling, but that the pastor should not do that. Every pastor should be as free from administration as possible. He should not clean up the church, open and closing doors. Legitimate for the congregation to provide for a pastor so his time is free for study. Sooner or later, the pastor-teacher will recognize the importance of guarding his own time. Domestic battles, drug addiction. Counseling is a total waste of time. The people need to respond to Bible doctrine. By sticking to his knitting, the pastor knows where to go from there. Or if anyone entering the ministry to devote his time to the constant studying and teaching of the Word of God. Bob will present them with a copy of the Word of God; the NASB, which is head and shoulders above all others.

There is apparently a translation which speaks of crushed testicles; and Bob agrees that this is not a good thing for a pastor-teacher. It is a passage in Hebrews. Broken stones in the KJV; and it means crushed testicles; and Bob agrees that a pastor-teacher should not be in that condition.

Every high priest refers to the history of High Priests before Christ. 3 types of High Priests before Christ. There is a priesthood in many different nations which are pseudo. Family priesthood, king-priest, and levitical priesthood.

The Levitical Priesthood

1. It began with Aaron, the older brother of Moses. This concept of the priesthood is given in Numbers 16:5 which tells us three things about the Levitical priesthood.
  - a. They were commissioned by God;
  - b. They were responsible to be separated unto God, or holy. This is experiential separation after salvation;
  - c. They were allowed to “come near.” They actually had conversations with God and entered into holy places authorized by God where other members of the nation could not enter. These are the three basic concepts of the Levitical priesthood.
2. The perpetuation of the priesthood through the natural line of Aaron. Aaron actually had four sons: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. Nadab and Abihu are out, they were involved in a reversionistic revolution and were executed by God. The surviving sons are the two orders of the Levitical priesthood. All those who are bona fide to have the title Kohen are descended from Eleazar or Ithamar. Eleazar was the high priest after the death of his father.
3. However, any progeny in either line with physical defects or other defects were eliminated. Leviticus 21:17ff. It is a fact that when a priesthood is based on regeneration qualification is believing in Christ. But when a priesthood is based upon natural progeny, procreation, then of course there are certain eliminating factors.
  - a. "Speak to Aaron, saying, None of your offspring throughout their generations who has a blemish may approach to offer the bread of his God. For no one who has a blemish shall draw near, a man blind or lame, or one who has a mutilated face or a limb too long, or a man who has an injured foot or an injured hand, or a hunchback or a dwarf or a man with a defect in his sight or an itching disease or scabs or crushed testicles.
  - b. No man of the offspring of Aaron the priest who has a blemish shall come near to offer the LORD's food offerings; since he has a blemish, he shall not come near to offer the bread of his God. He may eat the bread of his God, both of the most holy and of the holy things, but he shall not go through the veil or approach the altar, because he has a blemish, that he may not profane my sanctuaries, for I am the LORD who sanctifies them." So Moses spoke to Aaron and to his sons and to all the people of Israel.
  - c. Leviticus 21:17–24
  - d. No facial blemishes, male testicles must be intact. No one ministers the Word of God with crushed testicles, speaking metaphorically. No pastor-teacher lets a woman walk all over him. If he has no testicles, he should not teach.

e. Bob could teach a sermon in crushed testicles; or what are you doing in the ministry, sister.

4. The Levitical priesthood was supported by funds and other means. For example, no Levitical priest ever did any work in the sense of industry, he was supported by those who did. His support came, first of all, by the fact that thirteen cities of Israel were given to them and the revenue of those cities went to the Levitical ministry. One tenth of the tithes paid to the Levites of Leviticus 23:10 went to the support of the priesthood. There was a special tithe every third year for the support of the priesthood, according to Deuteronomy 14:28; 26:12. There was also the redemption money of the firstborn — animals; redemption, firstborn — human beings, and that went to the support of the priesthood. So there were at least five or six sources of income to make sure that the priest could devote his time entirely to the teaching and the functioning of the Word of God as authorized in the Old Testament canon.
5. Except on ceremonial occasions the high priests and the priests of Levi dressed like others. But on ceremonial occasions they had a special uniform.
  - a. It was composed of some slacks that were cut off about six inches above the knees — white linen shorts.
  - b. They wore over the top part of the body a white linen coat, the skirt of which went down to about two or three inches below the middle of the thigh.
  - c. They wore a uniform belt made up of four colours like the linen curtains in the tabernacle — white, blue, scarlet, and purple, each having great meaning in relationship to the person of Christ. The belt in the uniform represented the principle that this man served the Lord Jesus Christ by representing the people of Israel to the God of Israel.
  - d. In addition, there was a white linen cap.
6. The high priest was in command of the priests and had this uniform plus some additional things.
  - a. Over his white linen coat he wore an ephod, a long robe. It was blue, but woven into it was white, purple, scarlet, and blue threads.
  - b. He also wore, hooked on to this ephod, a breastplate made primarily from gold and cloth. The breastplate had a checker board with twelve squares right over the chest, each one representing one of the tribes of Israel, minus Levi.
  - c. Then, on each shoulder, it was hooked on by what is known as Urim and Thummim, two stones which God made to flash yes or no with regard to certain functions in Israel and with regard to the problem of divine guidance.
  - d. Then there was underneath a gold clasp on which was engraved the names of the twelve tribes of the tribes of Israel on each shoulder, and this attached the breastplate to the ephod. The ephod was attached to the coat.
  - e. There was a special type of hat, different from the other priests. Instead of the usual white cap the high priest wore a mitre, a form of a turban.
  - f. Over the top of this turban was a golden crown, and on the front of the crown it said: “Holy To Jehovah.” This was his distinctive head dress. So that he wore the badge of his rank and he carried the final authority over the entire priesthood. He was their ruler, he was the absolute authority, and he supervised all of the functions of the priesthood and was responsible for its function in Israel.

7. The big day for the high priest was always the day of atonement.
  - a. On that day the high priest put on his full dress uniform, performed a sacrifice on the brazen altar, caught up the blood of the animal, and started his march. He marched into the tabernacle, past everything representing Christ on the holy place — past the table of showbread with twelve fresh loaves on the table, past the golden candle stick, past the golden altar, into the holy of holies where if anyone else walked at any time they were immediately killed by God.
  - b. He took this blood and sprinkled it upon the top of the altar for himself. Then he did an about face and marched out. If he marched out and again appeared before the people he was high priest for another year. If they had to haul his body out of the holy of holies then his eldest son succeeded him.
  - c. He offered a second sacrifice and again took a bowl full of blood and started the march. This time the people held their breath. They wanted to know whether they would last another year or not. And with this bowl the high priest walked in and, again, into the holy of holies he sprinkled the blood over the mercy seat, and walked out. When he walked out you could hear a sigh from thousands of people gathered in front of the tabernacle. Often at that time they broke out into song, some song of praise to the Lord.
8. The descendants of the high priest. This is a great and detailed subject. At this point we only need a little information.
  - a. In the Levitical priesthood succession of the high priest occurred after his death and the installation of the new high priest, his eldest surviving son. Upon the death of Aaron, for example, the office of high priest passed to his eldest surviving son, Eleazar — Numbers 20:28ff.
  - b. The line was then promised to pass down through Phinehas, the elder son of Eleazar for a very special reason. God said that Phinehas and his line would be the high priestly line in Israel. Why? Because Phinehas picked up a javelin and actually killed those in Israel who were in revolt. So Phinehas was promised in a very beautiful passage just exactly what he would receive. Numbers 25:10–13. He killed hippies and revolutionists. No finer thing that a man can do but kill communists and revolutionists. There comes a time in human history when it is kill or be killed. Long-haired hippies will not do the job. They are anti-establishment and anti-God. Operation phallic cult. That led to emotional revolt of the soul, intensifying their problems rather than helping their problems. That led to negative volition toward doctrine, and that led to demon influence which led to the blackout of the soul and reverse process reversionism. Verse 12 — “Behold, I give him my covenant of peace [reconciliation].” What does that mean? He will offer the sacrifices pertaining to salvation and to rebound. Verse 13 — “and he shall have it and his descendants after him." And Phinehas will have descendants who will administer animal sacrifices in the Millennium.

- i. Num 25:1–4 While Israel lived in Shittim, the people began to whore with the daughters of Moab. These invited the people to the sacrifices of their gods, and the people ate and bowed down to their gods. So Israel yoked himself to Baal of Peor. And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel. And the LORD said to Moses, "Take all the chiefs of the people and hang them in the sun before the LORD, that the fierce anger of the LORD may turn away from Israel."
  - ii. Num 25:5–6 And Moses said to the judges of Israel, "Each of you kill those of his men who have yoked themselves to Baal of Peor." And behold, one of the people of Israel came and brought a Midianite woman to his family, in the sight of Moses and in the sight of the whole congregation of the people of Israel, while they were weeping in the entrance of the tent of meeting.
  - iii. Num 25:7–9 When Phinehas the son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose and left the congregation and took a spear in his hand and went after the man of Israel into the chamber and pierced both of them, the man of Israel and the woman through her belly. Thus the plague on the people of Israel was stopped. Nevertheless, those who died by the plague were twenty-four thousand.
  - iv. Num 25:10–15 And the LORD said to Moses, "Phinehas the son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, has turned back my wrath from the people of Israel, in that he was jealous with my jealousy among them, so that I did not consume the people of Israel in my jealousy. Therefore say, 'Behold, I give to him my covenant of peace, and it shall be to him and to his descendants after him the covenant of a perpetual priesthood, because he was jealous for his God and made atonement for the people of Israel.'" The name of the slain man of Israel, who was killed with the Midianite woman, was Zimri the son of Salu, chief of a father's house belonging to the Simeonites. And the name of the Midianite woman who was killed was Cozbi the daughter of Zur, who was the tribal head of a father's house in Midian.
- c. However, in the time of Eli the priest, Eli was not descended from Phinehas and the priesthood had switched from the line of Eleazar to the descendants of Ithimar. Eli was actually descended from Ithimar. The descendants of both men are priests. The issue is: Who is the high priest? Eli was set aside when Solomon deposed Abiathar but for some reason in the days of king Saul there had been a switch. So while Eli was a legitimate priest he was not the legitimate high priest. This situation was corrected when Solomon came to the throne. Solomon set aside Ahimelech and put Zadok on the priesthood. Zadok is related directly through Eleazar and Phinehas.
  - d. There was a very evil high priest at the time of the fifth cycle of discipline. When Israel was about to go out the high priest, whose name was Seraiah, was one of the great enemies of Jeremiah. He did everything he could to get Jeremiah killed, to throw him in jail, to get him out of the way. Seraiah was one of those who was captured by the general of Nebuchadnezzar. He was brought into Nebuchadnezzar and executed.

- e. Then we have the son of Seraiah whose name was Jehozadak. He never served as high priest. He lived in the 70 years of the fifth cycle of discipline. But he had a son named Joshua in the days of Zechariah and was appointed high priest, and Zechariah chapter three tells the story and the priesthood was then restored. Then down to the days of Alexander the Great and the descendant of Joshua the high priest was the high priest who made all the priests get into their uniforms and they marched out to meet the army of Alexander as they approached the city. He marched out with a scroll of Daniel, he had the Word of God under his arm, and he unrolled it in front of Alexander and read to Alexander the passages in Daniel dealing with Alexander the Great. And Alexander from that time was a friend of the Jews, he wouldn't allow his army into Jerusalem and wouldn't allow Jerusalem to be touched in any way.
- f. One more mentioned.
- g. Hasmonian family took over the high priesthood and kept it until Herod the Great killed them off.
- h. Priesthood defunct at A.D. 70.

Next we come to a conjunction, hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na], which introduces a purpose clause. Up to this point we have had a brief historical statement about high priests before Christ. Now we have a little bit of purpose and function thrown in by way of amplification — “that he may offer”, the present active subjunctive of prosperô (προσφέρω) [pronounced pros-FER-oh] which has to do with sacrifices on the brazen altar. It means literally to present as gifts or oblations, or to offer sacrifices. The present tense is a customary present which denotes that which habitually occurs or may be reasonably expected to occur. it is habitually the function of the high priest and the few priests gathered with him to offer the animal sacrifices on the brazen altar.

Many times there would be thousands of people standing in line with their sacrifices, so the high priest would begin at dawn and he would handle the sacrifices until he became tired. Then he would be relieved by another priest, and another, and another, and so on. Sometimes for many days sacrifices would be offered on that brazen altar. The customary present indicates that function. The active voice: the high priest produces the action of the verb by communicating doctrine and by the ritual of animal sacrifices. The subjunctive mood is a potential subjunctive used to introduce a purpose clause and to indicate that the purpose in principle was to communicate doctrine, though animal sacrifices were used to do it. However, the subjunctive mood indicates that some people got it and some people never did understand.

“gifts” — the accusative plural dōron (δῶρον) [pronounced DOH-ron] is the object of the verb. This refers to food offerings. The food offerings or meal offerings of Leviticus chapter two present the Lord Jesus Christ as to His celebrityship, His uniqueness, and emphasized the importance of the humanity of Christ in the incarnation.

“sacrifices” — thusia (θυσία) [pronounced thoo-SEE-ah, always is used for animal sacrifices and never for human in the Bible. The animal sacrifices are very clearly specified in Leviticus chapters 1–6, not only as to the sacrifices but to what they signify. Here, all we need to do is to understand that the five basic Levitical sacrifices were related to sin — three to salvation, two to rebound.

“for sins” — the preposition u (per plus the ablative of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] means “on behalf of” — “on behalf of sins” or “for the sake of sins.” There are two problems related to sins, that connected to salvation where all sins were judged; that related to rebound which is the application of the judgement of sin — you simply name the sin because the sin has already been judged. Since it has been judged God is free and has the right and is justified in forgiving you and cleansing you from all unrighteousness.

Hebrews 5:1 “For every high priest taken from the source of mankind is ordained on behalf of men with reference to things [doctrines] face to face with the God, that he might offer both gifts and sacrifices on behalf of sins.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Notice two things about that passage. There is doctrine which has to be communicated verbally, and there is ritual designed to illustrate the doctrine. Sacrifices are ritual. The things pertaining to God is the doctrine he must know. Principle: You cannot communicate what you do not know.

Notice also that the high priest offered for his own sins as well as for the people. The exception and the break in the line will be when the Lord Jesus Christ will only offer for the sins of the world, not for Himself. As our high priest Christ offered Himself for the sins of the world in fulfilment of the Levitical offerings. These offerings, then, are shadows and form a part of shadow Christology and soteriology, and they are fulfilled historically when Christ bore our sins in His own body on the tree.

So the high priests before the Lord Jesus Christ were ordained as members of the human race without blemish to offer shadows, to communicate doctrine pertinent to the cross, pertinent to the strategic victory of the angelic conflict.

Hebrews 5:1 “For every high priest taken from the source of mankind is ordained on behalf of men with reference to things [doctrines] face to face with the God, that he might offer both gifts and sacrifices on behalf of sins.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This changed every 10, 20 or 30 years. We have a new High Priest and He will never die. The Lord’s resurrection is the continuance of His priesthood to eternity.

When a high priest died he no longer supervised the communication of the things pertaining to God or the written Word, and a new high priest had to be appointed. Now we have it easy. We have a high priest, Jesus Christ, in charge of the doctrine, the things pertaining to God, and he will never die. He is in resurrection body, He is seated at the right hand of the Father, and because of that the canon of scripture is completed. And the completion of the canon of scripture is a memorial to our high priest, Jesus Christ; a memorial to the fact that we have a high priest who will be a high priest forever and doctrine is the thing pertaining to God which He supervises as far as communication. The high priest — the only high priest now, the Lord Jesus Christ — seated at the right hand of God the Father, supervises the communication of the written Word through the gift of pastor-teacher. Therefore the gift of pastor-teacher is directly related to the principle of the high priesthood of Christ. This will be emphasized in the thirteenth chapter of Hebrews.

Jesus Christ as a man, after He died physically, was in the grave for three days. His resurrection means the perpetuation of His priesthood. His ascension and session at the right hand of the Father means the superiority of this priesthood over all other priesthoods, and at the same time it means that Jesus Christ fulfils what the high priest of Israel did once a year every moment. For they entered into the holy of holies once a year; He, the reality, enters into the holy of holies constantly, always, He is seated there. No high priest ever sat down in the holy of holies, he would have dropped dead immediately. But Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father in the true holy of holies. And Jesus Christ now makes intercession for us as well as acting as our advocate, and while He is in the holy of holies He has appointed a means of communicating the written Word. That means the gift of pastor-teacher which holds the line on earth during the Church Age.

Some female called Bob and wanted to talk to him; she was a great Bible student, by her own testimony. After 5 minutes of talking to her, realized why God did not allow women pastors. “There is a whole organization designed to answer your questions.” “But I want to talk to you, heh, heh, heh.” “I don’t want to talk to you, heh, heh, heh.” Bang.

Delegation of spiritual authority.

There is a principle which comes out at this point. Since there has been a high priest on the earth (Adam was the first) there has been the delegation of spiritual authority in the realm of communication of Bible doctrine. It is the communication of Bible doctrine which every high priest supervised. It was Aaron’s job to do this, it was Eleazar’s job to do it, and later on it was that great man Phinehas. It was his responsibility not to do all of the teaching but to see that it was accomplished by the priesthood. Now the Lord Jesus Christ is our high priest. We are a kingdom of priests. In fact we are a royal priesthood because Jesus Christ is not only a priest and a prophet but He is also the King, the Son of David who will reign forever. Under these conditions He has delegated the responsibility of things pertaining to God. He has delegated this to the gift of pastor-teacher. This brings pastor-teacher into a new light. A legitimate pastor-teacher is a born again believer and he receives the priesthood at the point of salvation, and along with the priesthood he receives a spiritual gift for communication of Bible doctrine. It is the spiritual gift that gives him the authority on this earth. On this earth we are all priests but God has not delegated the communication of doctrine to all priests, only to those with the gift of pastor-teacher. And that is the last surviving gift of communication of the whole realm of doctrine since the end of the apostolic age. Therefore we are going to discover at certain points in Hebrews that one of the delegated responsibilities from our high priest is the gift of pastor-teacher and the communication of Bible doctrine. And when a pastor-teacher dies physically, then someone steps in the gap and takes his place so that always on this earth there are those with the gift who stand in the gap in every generation. Wherever there is positive volition God has anticipated that in eternity past and has provided the gift of pastor-teacher for that particular area and for that era of human history.

The reason that the high priest supervised as well as personally offered gifts and sacrifices is because the high priest of Israel was totally responsible for all of the dissemination of Bible doctrine. In that way the high priest of Israel illustrates Jesus Christ, our high priest, seated at the right hand of the Father. While Jesus Christ is of a different classification of high priest all high priests throughout history have one thing in common: they were totally responsible for the dissemination of spiritual information of Bible doctrine, and they had many ways in which they accomplished it — certain delegated responsibilities and certain direct responsibilities were involved. Jesus Christ seated at the right hand of the Father has delegated to pastor-teachers this particular responsibility in the priesthood. The priesthood, therefore, on earth functions as the pastor-teacher communicates things pertaining to God. In the history of the high priesthood this, then, is one of the most important facts. This helps to clarify in our dispensation, as well as in any past dispensation, where the responsibility lies with reference to spiritual things.

Hebrews 5:1 “For every high priest taken from the source of mankind is ordained on behalf of men with reference to things [doctrines] face to face with the God, that he might offer both gifts and sacrifices on behalf of sins.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Five Points from Hebrews 5:1

1. The high priest offered for his own sins as well as the sins of the people, which means that the high priest in the Age of Israel had a sin nature and personally committed sins. This could not deter the function of his priesthood under the principle of rebound, and so on.
2. However, there comes into history a high priest who ends all the previous function, modus operandi, modus vivendi, of high priests in history. For about 4000 years there were high priests upon the earth ordained of God but they had different responsibilities. However, all of their responsibilities tied into one factor: Bible doctrine, jurisdiction over the dissemination of Bible doctrine. Then something happened and this was the great warning to the human race. A high priest came into existence, came on to this earth, became a true member of the human race without a personal sin nature, without the imputation of Adam's sin, without committing one act of personal sin. And that high priest therefore supersedes all other high priests, and that high priest is responsible forever for the dissemination of Bible doctrine on the earth in the devil's world, during His own personal reign in the Millennium, and in His reign forever. He has chosen in this dispensation to utilize the pastor-teacher communicating the completed canon of scripture.
3. As our high priest Christ also offered Himself for the sins of the world in fulfillment of every shadow, every type, every ritual which portrayed the cross in past history.
4. These offerings, as shadows, were used to communicate the reality — Christ bearing our sins in His own body on the tree — 1Peter 2:24.
5. Therefore all high priests prior to Jesus Christ were ordained in the human race to deal with shadows, to deal with ritual. Our high priest has set aside all ritual except that pertaining to the memory of Him on the cross and therefore our high priest has terminated all other priesthood's. That is why there is no ritual in the church authorized by the Word of God and that is why all ritual has been replaced by the completed canon of scripture and the exegetical, isagogical, historical interpretation of the canon of scripture.

Heb 5:2 He can deal gently with the ignorant and wayward, since he himself is beset with weakness. (ESV)

Verse 2 — the first word is not found in the original at all. The word “who” is a relative pronoun in the English and there is no relative pronoun in the Greek text. This is simply an attempt on the part of the translator to smooth out the translation of a participle. The word “can” does occur, however it is a present active participle from the verb dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahēe]. Dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahēe] means to be able. The present tense of this participle is a customary present which denotes that which habitually occurs or may be reasonably expected to occur. The active voice refers to the function of the high priest prior to the celebrity high priest, Jesus Christ. Remember that the first four verses of this chapter deal with the high priesthood prior to Jesus Christ. When Jesus Christ became a high priest all other high priesthoods were superseded and the Bible plus the pastor-teacher represents the principle of high priesthood at the present time. The participle is a concessive participle in which the unknown writer concedes that high priests did have a certain ability with regard to those to whom they ministered in the things pertaining to God. The verb now gives us that. So we should translate the word “can” by one word: “able” — “able to have compassion”, is the way this sentence actually begins.

Next we have the present active infinitive of a compound verb metriopaqew. Metrioj means moderation; paqoj means suffering, passion, or feelings, it has different meanings. When you put these two words together in the Koine Greek it means to moderate one’s passions to the point of being gentle, to be moderate in one’s feelings, to be compassionate. And by moderation is meant the removal of anger or stubbornness. It therefore comes to mean, just as translated, to be compassionate. It was possible for the high priests before Jesus Christ to be compassionate. He could never be gracious because only one high priest has been gracious in all of history and that is the Lord Jesus Christ. So it must be understood immediately that while compassion is a very positive asset it is not as great as grace. Compassion is the verb; grace is greater than compassion. Grace is ultimately superior to compassion and grace is the function of our high priest, the Lord Jesus Christ. However, compassion is a noble human virtue under certain conditions and depending upon certain objects. The present tense, again, is a customary present and it denotes that which habitually occurs or could be reasonably expected to occur in any high priest facing his ignorant, stupid, sheep-like congregation. The active voice: the high priest produces the action of the verb through compassion. The infinitive denotes God’s purpose. It is God’s purpose for any high priest or for any delegated authority from the high priest to have compassion on those whom he teaches.

Jesus Christ is our high priest seated at the right hand of the Father. He has delegated to everyone who has the gift of pastor-teacher and who has a congregation. Certain priests have received the gift of pastor-teacher. The pastor-teacher shows compassion by studying and teaching. Compassion is not maudlin sentimentalism, compassion is faithfulness to the Word of God so that you have the Word in your soul. Having compassion means on the part of the one who has the delegated authority great self-discipline in study in the field of doctrine. Therefore, again, the customary present denotes that which habitually occurs. The active voice: the high priest produces the action of compassion, and those to whom he delegates the responsibility produce the action of compassion. The infinitive, again, denotes God’s purpose in the high priesthood which is faithfulness to the Word of God and its communication. “Able to be compassionate” is the way this sentence begins.

Certain priests in the Church Age have the gift of pastor-teacher; and some of them have a congregation. There was a time when everyone who came to Berachah Church were stupid about Bible doctrine. But now, most after the first few classes have faced some pretty heavy shocks. Traumatic experience of lucid communication. You may have said to yourself that I am not compassionate, because I do not teach with sweetness and light. The pastor-teacher is to study and study and study; and his compassion is giving up whatever is necessary to beat one’s brains out to study, prepare and teach.

Many people came to Phinehas with a turtle dove and a pigeon. But he probably told them to get back with a steer, if that was what was required.

The high priesthood was designed not only to communicate doctrine but to be faithful in communicating doctrine as a demonstration of true compassion. True compassion is to provide the food, fulfilling the responsibility of getting the doctrine to the congregation. If you are ignorant, what do you need? Doctrine. Remember that the compound verb metriopaqew means to be moderate in one's feelings also. Who gets compassion? The "ignorant" get compassion — the stupid! This is the dative plural present active participle of a)gnoew. This time the participle is used as a noun. The dative case of this participle is the dative of indirect object which indicates the ones in whose the act of compassion is performed — "able to be compassionate to the ignorant ones."

Bob is very compassionate, he is always providing food. There are times when he sits down at his typewriter and thinks about his congregation and thinks, that son of a bitch, and then throw my books in the trash and walk out. But he does not do that.

The ignorant ones get compassion. No pastor-teacher should be stupid when he stands in the pulpit. In Dallas Theological Seminary, the struck against Greek classes and signed petitions against it. There is only room for one person who knows it all.

A Communicator of Doctrine Giving Compassion

1. Ignorant ones are all born again believers as of the moment of salvation. So "the ignorant" refers to each one of us. The removal of ourselves from the status of ignorance is not completed until we have reached supergrace where we begin the normal function of our priesthood.
  - a. Women are all trying to show people their babies. Show me the kid when he is 20 or 21.
  - b. Bob was once a baby and he was stupid.
  - c. We are all ignorant until we reach supergrace.
2. Even the Levitical offerings took up the problem of ignorance — like sins of ignorance, Leviticus chapter four.
3. The high priest understood the problem of all believers at the point of their salvation and was responsible to alleviate the condition of ignorance.
4. The responsibility was fulfilled through cognisance, study, and communication of doctrine — communication through ritual, communication through teaching.

Heb 5:2 He can deal gently with the ignorant and wayward, since he himself is beset with weakness. (ESV)

"and on them that are out of the way" — a dative plural, present passive participle of the verb planaō (πλανᾶω) [pronounced plahn-AH-oh]. Dative case, indirect object indicates the one for whom the act of compassion is performed. A lot of people are born again with something worse than ignorance — a religious background. Take people without a religious background. When they are born again they are ignorant. But there is something worse than being ignorant, and that is to be deceived; to be religious. And if you came into the Christian way of life with a great religious background — religion being the devil's ace trump, the worst thing that ever happened to this world — then you can't even be ignorant. You're worse than ignorant, worse than stupid; you're deceived. And you have to be undeceived before you can just be plain ignorant. Then, when you are plain ignorant, you can advance through learning doctrine. So what is worse than stupidity? Religiosity. The dative case indicates that even though these people have been deceived, now that they are saved there is hope.

Very difficult for a hippie who is saved. He is worse than ignorant. He is deceived. Doctrine has to teach him like it has to teach all believers.

The present tense is an iterative present, it describes what occurs at successive intervals. It is called the present tense of repeated action. The participle is in the passive voice, the believer receives the action of the verb by delusion. He carried into the Christian life religion as his background, or he carried into the Christian life anti-establishment. He is deceived, and there are two sources of deception, both of them are Satanic counterattacks upon the truth. Truth comes in two general categories: doctrine and laws of divine establishment. Satan attacks doctrine with religion and he attacks the laws of divine establishment with revolution or anti-establishment. When anyone comes in with one or the other of religion or revolution then he is worse than ignorant, he is deceived. Therefore, doctrine has to do two things: teach him as it teaches all ignorant believers at the point of salvation, and also undeceive him, he has to drop the deceits of legalism and/or anti-establishment. So the participle classifies this group as reversionists, that is, they came into the Christian life with a form of reversionism — unbeliever form — which they must shed. This is sometimes called the participle of attendant circumstances. So far we have: "Able to be compassionate to the ignorant ones, and a worse category, the ones being deceived."

The next word is "for", the conjunction epeí (ἐπεὶ) [pronounced ehp-IH] which means "in as much as"; "he himself" — the intensive pronoun autos which is much stronger than the personal pronoun. That's why it is translated "he himself." It refers to every high priest in principle before Christ. Compassion was part of his essence according to the divine requirement for his life as a high priest. But Jesus Christ is superior to every high priest immediately because grace is greater than compassion. Compassion implies one possessing his own human infirmity as well, but grace from the Lord is something even greater.

The word "also" is simply the adjunctive use of kai, and is correct — "is compassed", perfect passive indicative of the verb perikeimai (περίκειμαι) [pronounced per-IHK-i-mahee]. Peri means around; keimai means to lay. It means to lay around, to be placed around, to be encumbered by, to be surrounded by. Here it means to be encumbered by. The present tense is the retroactive progressive present which denotes that which was begun in the past and continues into the present. Every communicator high priest responsible for communication to others was encumbered by his own problems, by his own failures, by his own weaknesses. So in having compassion for you the pastor-teacher who receives his delegated authority from our high priest, Jesus Christ, may have a lapse of compassion for you. Therefore, he realizes he needs doctrine and he goes back to study and communicates to others who need it too. That is what this passage is saying, that the high priest before Christ was encumbered by his own weaknesses, his own frailties. The passive voice indicates that the high priest as the subject receives the action of the verb and therefore when the high priest was studying to teach the people he was also teaching himself. There is a principle. The high priest was responsible along with the other priests in Israel to communicate doctrine. The principle carries over today in the sense that Christ our high priest is absent from the earth and cannot personally teach us, and has delegated that authority to certain types of priests — pastor-teachers. These pastor-teachers also have weaknesses, frailties, infirmities, because of possessing an old sin nature. Therefore they teach themselves while they study to teach the congregation. The indicative mood is the reality of the fact that every high priest before Christ was encumbered with weaknesses.

“infirmity” — the accusative singular from asthénéia (ἀσθένεια) [pronounced ahs-THEH-nigh-ah], which means “weakness.”

Hebrews 5:2 “Able to be compassionate to the ignorant ones, and the ones being deceived; in as much as he himself also is encumbered with weakness [frailty, imperfection].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. The last phrase “weakness” or “infirmity” anticipates why Jesus Christ is the last high priest, the only celebrity, and absolutely unique in His priesthood. Jesus Christ as high priest never had a sin nature, never had the imputation of Adam’s sin, never committed one sin, and in fact was impeccable.
2. Every high priest before Christ was saturated with and encumbered by weaknesses. He possessed an old sin nature.
3. But Jesus Christ did not have either an old sin nature or the imputation of Adam’s sin, and He resisted all temptation to sin.
4. Therefore Jesus Christ is the last and the unique high priest, in His character, in His essence, in His function.
5. The limitation of all high priests in history does not apply to Jesus Christ in fact. Jesus Christ broke the pattern of high priestly limitations in His own ministry and even at the present time at the right hand of the Father.

1972 Hebrews 5:3–5a; Psalm 2:7

Lesson #51

51 06/19/1973 Hebrews 5:3–5a; Ps. 2:7 Pastor-teacher's state of honor

Adam’s Rib is coming out; stuffing party tomorrow. The Berachah parking lot if its version of sin alley.

Winfield, Kansas named after Winfield a pastor; he founded a Baptist church. When dying, he wrote a letter to the church in Scottsdale, Arizona. I bequeaths to them the work that he had done so far. God is calling him home. He founded two different churches. If anyone asked you, what is the connection between these two cities? Both are named after him and he founded a church in each city.

What is the relationship between Melchizedek and Jesus Christ?

Hebrews 5:3 Because of this he is obligated to offer sacrifice for his own sins just as he does for those of the people. (ESV)

It appears that with the book of Hebrews, Bob switched from a once a week study to a night after night study.

Verse 3 — “And” is the transitional and continuative use of the conjunction kai. “By reason hereof” is a prepositional phrase, dia plus the accusative of the intensive pronoun autos — literally, “because of it”. Because all high priests prior to Christ had old sin natures, because high priests before Christ committed personal sins, because of the imperfection and frailty of all high priests before Christ.

“he ought” — present active indicative of the verb ophelê (οφειλή) [pronounced oh-fih-LAY] which is a verb of obligation. The present tense is a static present used to represent a condition which perpetually exists. it existed constantly among all high priests. They had the responsibility or obligation before the Lord. The active voice: the high priest, perpetually under the obligation to offer for his own sins as for the sins of the people, which means that every time he became involved in the spiritual phenomena of doctrine it was beneficial to him first before it became beneficial to the recipients of his priestly ministry. The indicative mood is the reality of the fact that the high priest had to offer for his own sins as well as others, and the application today is the fact that the pastor is first benefitted by the passage he communicates to others. Because of it — the old sin nature — he [the high priest] is under obligation, “as for the people” — kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kath-OCE] peri a(martiwn means “as concerning the people.” Peri plus the genitive means “concerning.” The people are the beneficiaries or the recipients of the priestly ministry. As today, so in those days, the people here refers only to those who were positive toward doctrine. Positive volition toward doctrine involves some ritual as well as attendance, and attention and concentration. But the positive volition concept has never changed, it is always the same. The people are those who are positive regardless of any other factor. But then again, the high priest himself had to be positive.

Bob has his own favorite passages; but he is not called to teach his favorite passages. They are all your favorite books. Bob does not give a damn if he has taught it umpteen thousand times. He will teach what God wants him to teach and he will teach it until it comes out of your ears. People don't come on certain nights because it is not their favorite book. Then don't come at all. It is still God's Word. Like the flea that jumps from one black spot to another on a leopard.

It can't be taught right on Sunday morning? The hell it can't. The pastor-teachers in this audience might want to hit your congregation with your favorite books; but you cannot do that.

If Bob was to pick his favorite passages, he would teach the military sections. Did you notice how excited I got when it came to Phinehas and his javelin? Anytime the Scripture is open, it is the Word of God. The first 10 verses of this chapter used to leave Bob cold; and he would cover the first 4 verses in 10 minutes. This may be his last time in Hebrews, so he wants to pull it all out. Bob could never stand Catholic priests and could not stand movies that glorified them. He hates people wearing goofy looking clothes. He can understand going without a tie. This is really a phenomenal passage.

When cutting the throat of an animal, the priest had to communicate Bible doctrine. The priest taught what was in the canon of Scripture. The prophets taught what was current in that day. The pastor teacher prepares that food that is given to others.

Chefs have a danger of developing a wide birth because of snacking while he is preparing; and those who are trim and those who drank all the time on the job. The chef enjoys it first. We are dealing with the High Priests before Christ.

“so also for himself”, houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] kai peri heautou (ἐαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]. Again we have another prepositional phrase with peri — “so also concerning himself.” This phrase, first of all, is of utmost importance by application to anyone who has the gift of pastor-teacher. If he is not positive toward doctrine, even though he has the gift of pastor-teacher, even though he has the preparation necessary to fulfil that gift, even though he has a command of the languages and has everything going for him, he has no ministry and must inevitably accept substitutes and gimmicks of one kind or another. There is no place in the ministry for the one who does not love God's Word. Positive volition means that a pastor has to go to many, many different kinds of passages and teach them, but first of all he has to study them. The pastor-teacher must first of all prepare that food which is given to others. The chef always enjoys the food first. And the pastor-teacher must study and savour and prepare and classify and relate to other scriptures and analyze the ingredients in order that you might have a spiritual meal. That is what this phrase is saying, and it applies today even though technically it is dealing with high priests before Christ, and specifically the Levitical priesthood.

Then we come to the present active infinitive of prosperō (προσφέρω) [pronounced pros-FER-oh], translated “to offer” — in the customary present tense here, it denotes that which habitually occurs or may be reasonably expected to occur. The active voice: the high priest before Christ produced the action of the verb. The infinitive expresses a purpose. “To offer” indicates his function, but remember that the offering was preceded by explanation. Then came the ritual followed by further explanation. So he spoke twice and carried on the ritual in between — “for sins” is peri plus the genitive of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] which is “concerning sin.”

The office of High Priest is appointed by God. Those who were contrary to this were cursed in a very specific way. A divine appointment to the office of High Priest.

A man in the pulpit without the gift, his job is no good without the gift.

No one had the gall to assume this office. The High Priest is appointed by God only. The individual involved is responsible to God. Double blessing and double discipline. Some people don't know what hit them when they take on a pastorate and they lack the gift.

Bob chews out a "sonny boy" making a comment.

When God the Holy Spirit bestows the gift of pastor-teacher on someone, that person is in a state of honor. God handles the blessing and cursing. God knows what He is doing. So it is not our job to curse and correct a pastor-teacher. Most of Bob's critics have never heard what he teaches. Some guy who teaches Greek wrote a book against Bob, and but has never heard the exegesis of any passage.

Bob has criticisms following him like roaches follow a hippie. Bob is in a state of honor. And he did not earn or deserve his gift. Bob sat on his mother's knee, but she filled up the surrounded atmosphere with smoke. She smoked about 3 packs a day. Might make a good Mother's day message. Bob wants to translate this as a state of honor rather than honor. So there is no honor bestowed upon someone.

Hebrews 5:3 "And because of it [the old sin nature] he is under obligation, even as concerning the people, so also concerning himself, to offer concerning sins." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

The high priest before Christ was habitually obligated to offer sacrifices for his own sins. He himself, a communicator of the Word, also had an old sin nature and shared the human frailties and weakness of mankind. That has always been true of communicators with the exception of the Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, whatever benefit he derived from a portion of the Word of God concerning his own life the benefit should also be derived by those who are positive. So he had the obligation to offer for himself, to offer for the people. This verse anticipates once again the Lord Jesus Christ as the exception to the whole historical precedence of high priests.

Hebrews 5:4 And no one takes this honor for himself, but only when called by God, just as Aaron was. (ESV)

Verse 4 — "And no man" — kai ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] tís (τις) [pronounced tihç]. Tís (τις) [pronounced tihç] is an indefinite pronoun and means "anyone." Kai is a continuative conjunction. Ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] is a very strong negative. Literal Translation: "And no one."

"taketh" — the present active indicative of lambánô (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] means here to seize, to seize power, to seize rank. Instead of being appointed by God, to take it, to seize it illegally. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs or may be expected to occur. No one ever takes upon himself the office of high priest, it is an appointment from God. The active voice indicates that the human race is the subject producing the action, and no one would assume this responsibility or office. The indicative mood is the reality of the importance of the divine appointment to the office of high priest.

The same application goes today. A man may be in the pulpit who does not have the gift of pastor-teacher. He can only be miserable, his ministry can only end in disaster and be a continuous disaster, and no matter how hard he tries or what gimmick he uses he still cannot cut it. On the other hand the worst slob in the world with the gift of pastor-teacher, with enough self-discipline to study, can communicate doctrine to the blessing of thousands. The high priest was appointed by God and no one else. And when God appoints the individual involved is responsible to God. The pastor-teacher is the priesthood today who has the delegated authority from Jesus Christ is a divine appointment with responsibility to God. This is a double-edged sword. When a pastor-teacher is responsible to God this means that God gives him double blessing or double discipline. It also means that anyone who tries to get into the act by their straightening everyone out — there are people who think they know more about the pastorate and how it should be done — suddenly find themselves with the double discipline.

“And no one seizes this honour.” The word “honour” is the accusative singular from timê (τιμή, ἡς, ἡ) [pronounced tih-MAY or tee-MAY]. Timê (τιμή, ἡς, ἡ) [pronounced tih-MAY or tee-MAY] means a state of honour. Anyone who is appointed by God to communicate the Word of God in any dispensation resides in a state of honour. Every criticism, every attack, always bounces back because God can handle anyone a thousand times better than us. He knows what He is doing! He doesn’t need our help. The moment that God the Holy Spirit puts the gift of pastor-teacher in the new believer, at that moment that person is in a state of honour. The reason to translate it “state of honour”, which is what it really means, is because the person doesn’t have honour, he is in a state of honour. Being in a state of honour means that criticism bounces off of them and the critics get hurt by their own criticism. Anyone who is placed in this state of honour by divine appointment must get his discipline or his pat on the head directly from God. The only one who can break through this plexiglass is God the Father.

Bob does not seek out pastors as a group of pastors. Filled with phony stuff. When Bob wants to relax, it would not be around pastors. If he wants to let down what hair he has, then he will let it down.

“unto himself” — dative of reference from the possessive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]; “but” — the adversative allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast; “he that is called” — present passive participle of kaleô (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh]. The present tense is a static present, it is used to represent a condition which is assumed as always existing. It is always true that no one assumes this honour apart from divine appointment. The passive voice: the appointed high priest receives the action of the verb. The is, he receives his commission from God. The participle is a circumstantial participle to set up the precedent for all bona fide high priesthoods from the beginning of time until the first advent of the Lord Jesus Christ.

“of God” — the preposition hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. It should be “by the God.” hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative always expresses agency in a prepositional phrase. God is the agent who makes the appointment.

Then we have an adverb, kaqwspw, which is translated “just as” — “just as Aaron.” Aaron is a great illustration because he is the founder of the Levitical priesthood. He is the illustration and the pattern. The Levitical priesthood began with Aaron. He was appointed by God, he was sustained in that office by operation budding rod. By way of contrast, two men not appointed by God were disciplined for attempting to perform the functions of the high priest. King Saul tried to take over the priesthood. He offered a sacrifice himself. Saul was of the tribe of Benjamin which had nothing to do with the priesthood, and he was disciplined for that — 1Samuel 13:9-14. Uzziah tried it — 2Chronicles 26 — and he became leprous.

The Greek adds an ascensive use of kai, so it should be translated “just as even Aaron was.”

Hebrews 5:4: “No one takes the state of honour to himself, but the one being called by God, just as even Aaron was.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 5:5 So also Christ did not exalt himself to be made a high priest, but was appointed by him who said to him, “You are my Son, today I have begotten you”; (ESV)

vv. 5–10 is a beautiful passage dealing with the celebrityship of Jesus Christ.

Verse 5 — “So also” is the adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] used in the adjunctive sense. The adjunctive use of kai plus the adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] should read “In this manner also”. We have previously had a summary of some of the things pertaining to the high priest prior to the Lord Jesus Christ. Now we move to the Lord Jesus Himself. This is a transitional phrase. And we move from all high priests before Christ to the unique high priest, the Lord Jesus Christ Himself. The adverb refers to that which precedes while the adjunctive conjunction kai sets up a parallel between the fact of the divine appointments of high priests and the Father’s appointment of Jesus Christ, the Son, as the high priest.

“Christ glorified not himself” — “glorified not” is the aorist active indicative of doxazô (δοξάζω) [pronounced dox-AD-zo] plus the negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook]. This is a dramatic aorist tense, it states a present reality with the certitude of a past event. This is an idiom in the Greek, and the idiom is a device for great emphasis at this point. The dramatic aorist emphasizes the fact that now we have a unique high priest and with the coming of this high priest all other priesthoods are defunct, inadequate, useless, and if you take all of the good high priests before Christ and put them all together, next to the Lord

Jesus Christ they are completely and totally out of it. Jesus Christ is now presented immediately by a dramatic aorist as being absolutely unique. Jesus Christ, our high priest, is also appointed by God the Father. He was appointed by God the Father in eternity past as a part of the doctrine of divine decrees. Therefore there is authority in the commission of the priesthood of the Lord Jesus Christ. The active voice: Christ produces the action of recognizing the Father's authority in the matter and not pushing Himself into the office. Jesus Christ who is King and Prophet in His humanity did not press for high priest. He was born of the family of David and was therefore in the line of Judah. There is no priesthood of any kind in the family of Judah, the tribe of Levi has all of the priests — like Aaron. Jesus Christ did not push for this, God appointed Him also priest. He is the only priest in all of Israel's history who is from the tribe of Judah, who is the bona fide King and at the same time is the priest. In the future He will be the high priest of Israel even though he is from the tribe of Judah. This does not exclude the function of the priesthood in the Millennium but now they will function under a high priest from a different tribe.

Bob invites people to leave if they are bored. Just don't come back.

Principle: Under God's grace plan there is no place for inordinate ambition. Grace promotes, God promotes, God appoints, God commissions. You don't have to get pushy. Grace promotion is permanent because it depends on who and what God is. When God appoints he puts you in a state of honour and you couldn't be better off. But if God doesn't promote you, you are not promoted. The indicative mood is the reality of the fact that Christ did not appoint or promote Himself, though His deity possessed the power to do so. Jesus did not need to promote Himself (God the Father promoted Him).

Someone out of Berachah starts a ministry; and he wants to set up a tape ministry from the beginning. Grace promotion is permanent because it depends upon God.

“himself”, again, is the reflexive singular of heautou (ἐαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO] and it is used to emphasize the identity of the person producing the action.

“to be made” — the aorist passive infinitive of ginomai, which means to become. This is a gnomic aorist, it regards the action of the verb as axiomatic. It is a dogmatic fact. The passive voice: the subject, Jesus Christ receives the action of the verb — divine appointment to the high priesthood. The infinitive expresses divine purpose.

“but” — conjunction of contrast, the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH]; “he”, the Father, or literally, “the one”. Grace always glorifies the initiator. That is why you shouldn't push. When you push you get away from grace. Grace is designed to glorify the initiator and the initiator is God the Father.

“that said” — the aorist active participle from laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] which means to speak or to communicate. Here it refers to the verbal communication of the divine decrees as illustrated by Psalm 2:7.

“unto him” is pros plus the accusative of autos — “face to face with him.” When God the Father appointed Jesus Christ in eternity past Jesus Christ was right there with Him, face to face — “having communicated face to face with him.”

Translation so far: “In this manner also the Christ did not glorify himself to become a high priest; but the one [God the Father] having communicated face to face with him ...”

Now we are going to have a quotation from Psalm 2:7, so we will go back and look at Psalm 2:7.

Psalm 2:7 I will tell of the decree: The LORD said to me, "You are my Son; today I have begotten you. (ESV; capitalized)

“I will declare” — the piel imperfect of saphar. Saphar means to speak, to relate, to rehearse, to recount. It means to describe something that has happened previously. Hence, the verb means to reveal something which was previously spoken. David is going to reveal something that was spoken thousands and thousands of years ago. In this case what was previously spoken was that part of the divine decrees dealing with the appointment of Jesus Christ as a high priest at the point of His incarnation.

“I will recount the decree.” The word for decree is choq. It refers to something fixed or appointed. Choq is used for laws, customs, privileges, or decrees.

“The Lord” is the tetragrammaton, which the Jews never pronounced — “Jehovah.” It refers here to God the Father.

“hath said” — qal imperfect of amar. The qal perfect means He spoke it previously, the action was completed in eternity past as a part of the doctrine of divine decrees.

“unto me” — refers to Jesus Christ. How do we know that? He says, been attar, “My Son, you”, and that is a statement of the deity of the Lord Jesus Christ. Christ was always the Son, there never was a time when He wasn’t. There is no verb here: “My Son, you”.

Then comes the appointment: ha jom, “This day”. This does not refer to the day in which this was uttered but the day in which Jesus Christ was born of a virgin into this world. “This day” is incorrect, it is “The day” — virgin birth, not eternity past when this occurred.

“have I begotten” — the qal perfect of jaladh. It is in the perfect tense to indicate that the moment that Jesus Christ was born He was born the unique high priest, He was born King [of Israel], He was born high priest forever, He was born a prophet. Jesus Christ was born in total uniqueness.

Acts 13:32 And we bring you the good news that what God promised to the fathers,...
Acts 13:33 ...this he has fulfilled to us their children by raising Jesus, as also it is written in the second Psalm, "'You are my Son, today I have begotten you.'" (ESV; capitalized)

Theophany v. Christophany.

This verse is quoted three times in the New Testament. The first is Acts 13:32,33 — “We declare” is the present middle indicative of euaggelizō (εὐαγγελίζω) [pronounced yoo-ang-gheI-EED-zo] which is about as strong a word as we could have to announce some good news. it means something of great blessing — “the promise”, now we have the cognate, epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah] which connotes a promise of grace and blessing.

“having become” — aorist active participle of ginomai — “face to face with the fathers [ancestors]”

Verse 33 — “the God [ho Theos] has fulfilled” — the perfect active indicative of εἰκλήρω, intensive perfect, something accomplished in the past with results that are now completed — “the God has brought to completion”

“to their children” — dative of indirect object. It indicates the one in whose interest the fulfilment is performed. Teknon [children] refers to the Jews. So remember that the incarnation was to benefit the Jews, says the dative of indirect object.

“in that he has raised up Jesus from the again” — the word “again” is not in the original, and the word “raise up” does not mean resurrection. Resurrection was in verse 30 but this is incarnation. We have the aorist active participle of anistēmi (ἀνίστημι) [pronounced ahn-ISS-tay-mee] which means to make the scene, to bring on the scene. So we translate it “having brought on the scene.” The verb refers to the incarnation of Jesus Christ, not the resurrection. The resurrection is the subject of the next verse and was the subject of verse 30.

Then we have the quotation which is the fulfilment of the divine decrees — “as it stands written in the second Psalm, ‘You are my Son; this day I have begotten you’.”

“Thou art” is the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], indicating the deity of Jesus Christ. When this was said Jesus Christ was God. Later on at the point of the fulfilment He became man. Notice that the fulfilment of this portion of the divine decrees is first of all to Israel. In Hebrews 1:5, to prove that the humanity of Christ is superior to all angels we have a second quotation of this passage. In Hebrews 5:5, the third quotation, the high priesthood of Christ is superior to all high priesthoods which have existed before it and supersedes all high priesthoods.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #52

52 06/20/1973 Hebrews 5:5b-6 Doctrine of Melchizedek (not a theophany)

Review of first 4 verse.

Hebrews 5:5 So also Christ did not exalt himself to be made a high priest, but was appointed by him who said to him, "You are my Son, today I have begotten you"; (ESV)

Verse 5b — we now see “my Son” — huios (υἱός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS] [deity]; “thou art” — the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], absolute state of existence. This present tense is linear aktionsart to denote that Jesus Christ always was God, always has been, always will be. There was a time when He was not humanity and not our high priest. Then we have an adverb. “Today” is the English word. The adverb sêmeron (σήμερον) [pronounced SAY-mer-on] refers to the point of the incarnation, not the point of the giving of the decree.

“have I begotten” is the perfect active indicative of the Greek verb gennáô (γεννάω) [pronounced gen-NAH-oh], which means to give birth. It is a reference here to the virgin birth. The perfect tense is the intensive perfect which indicates that the action is completed and has results that continue forever. Jesus Christ has been born of a virgin, has become a true member of the human race and therefore will be in hypostatic union forever. The active voice that God the Father who planned it brought this into action. The indicative mood is the reality of the incarnation of the Lord Jesus Christ, the virgin birth beginning that point.

Hebrews 5:5 “In this manner also the Christ did not glorify himself to become a high priest; but the one [God the Father] having communicated face to face with him [the decrees, as per Psalm 2:7], My Son you keep on being, I today have begotten you.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

1. All persons of the Trinity are identical in essence. This means that the first and second persons of the Trinity are coequal and coeternal, they have the exact same essence.
2. The first person of the Trinity is called in language of accommodation, Father. This is simply using a human term to describe the relationship of the first person of the Trinity to the divine decrees. He is the author of the divine plan, He is the authority of the divine plan, He is therefore qualified by language of accommodation, “Father.”
3. The second person, under the language of accommodation, is called “the Son” because He is obedient to the authority of the planner in His humanity. While in His deity he has as much sovereignty as the Father — in essence He is one with the Father — in His humanity He must not only obey but His obedience must be implicit.
4. Therefore, authority and obedience become the issue in the strategic victory of the angelic conflict.
5. For this reason they have been made an issue in the human race through the laws of divine establishment. Authority and obedience is the basis for tactical victory in the angelic conflict, and authority and obedience means authority is in the Word, authority is in the one who communicates the Word as the pastor.
6. The Father’s plan calls for salvation of mankind through the cross.

7. These Son as high priest, in obedience to the Father's authority and the Father's Word [decree], offered Himself as a sacrifice for sins. He obeyed His Father and the decree.
8. The priestly function of Christ begins with the removal of the barrier between God and man. Therefore Christ is the unique high priest, obedient to the Father's authority and obedient to the Father's command in the divine decrees.

Every military involved a great many decisions to obey authority. No one in the military can forget what he learned in close-order drill. Implicit obedience is the key to victory. The strategic victory was based on authority; and our salvation would be impossible apart from Jesus obeying the authority of the Father.

Many fundies like being in a church because it lacks authority. Most people become independent because they want to throw a brick at anything that smacks of authority. And everyone does what he damn well pleases. A pastor is needed for a wedding or a funeral. Without authority and obedience to authority, there is no salvation. So the stream of fundamentalism has gone from bad to worse.

Some of you have wandered in for the summer. Bob knows a teenaged girl came to find a boy friend. Or some have come here to get in trouble. Bob is going to can some of these girls; and first thing you find out is, you need to be here on time. And if I want to sit another 5 minutes and listen to music, then I will do it, because I am in charge. And if any of you guys end up in jail, you can rot in jail; we are not coming to bail you out. Bob does not want to see any man sitting while a woman is standing. And keep your hands off the girls. Around here, you are the protector of womanhood. If Yankees can have good manners, so can you.

We are going to be in some fascinating passages on the 4th of July. I think he read from a passage in Galatians? There is authority in the pastor and authority in his message. If you are going to go to supergrace, you must accept both authorities.

Hebrews 5:5 "In this manner also the Christ did not glorify himself to become a high priest; but the one [God the Father] having communicated face to face with him [the decrees, as per Psalm 2:7], My Son you keep on being, I today have begotten you." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Jesus has killed more in the military than any other man.

He also holds the record for obedience to the Father for 33 years. He never disobeyed His Father.

Hebrews 5:6 as he says also in another place, "You are a priest forever, after the order of Melchizedek." (ESV)

Verse 6 — we have an adverb, kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kath-OCE], used to indicate a comparison. It should be translated "even as", it gives it a little more strength; "he saith" — present active indicative of légo (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh], “he communicates”: “Even as also in another place he says [communicates].” There is more than one passage of scripture that communicates the doctrine of divine decrees. Now we are going to get a second citation from the word of the Father, the divine decrees. Notice it says “in another place” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of hétéros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os], which means another of a different kind. So a different area, a different passage of scripture, is what e(tereoj means here. It is in the Psalms again, this time Psalm 110:4 is cited.

Psalm 110:4 — “The Lord hath sworn.” This is the tetragrammaton for “the Lord”, it refers to Jehovah the Father who is the author of the divine plan, the author of the divine decrees; “hath sworn” is the niphal perfect of shaba which means to swear something, to say it seven times. Seven was considered the perfect number. If you said it seven times it was supposed to be right, and it finally came to mean to make a solemn promise. The niphal stem here is reflexive. The reflexive concept has to do with the fact that in making this solemn promise the reflexive brings out who made it, and the one who made it is absolute truth, eternal truth. The one who made it is omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent, sovereign, absolute righteousness. In other words, the niphal brings out not only what was said but who said it. The niphal stem says in effect that when God says it, it is a fact, it is an absolute. The perfect tense indicates the action is completed.

There are people that you know who are congenital liars and whatever they say, you know it is not true. On the other hand, when God says something, it is an absolute. It is true.

“and will not repent” — the Hebrew is the niphal imperfect of nacham, and again we have a reflexive niphal, and again it emphasizes the person who never changes his mind, and that is exactly what repent means — to change the mind.

“Thou art a priest” — kohen, the word for priest. It is derived from the verb kun which means to stand up, and kohen was the one who stood up at the altar, stood up for the people, stood up and talked, stood up for what God wanted, stood up and represented the people to God.

“after the order of Melchizedek” — literally, “after the manner of Melchizedek.” Melchizedek was one of those people whose name was mentioned in heaven in eternity past. He was an actual person, a Gentile, who ruled a great city called Salem, the ancient Jerusalem. He functioned as a priest under the family priesthood and he was a contemporary of Abraham and not a theophany.

Christophany is an appearance of Jesus after the resurrection; a Theophany, an appearance of Jesus Christ in the Old Testament

The Doctrine of Melchizedek — Not a Theophany.

1. Theophanies are never given formal names.
2. Theophanies are never related to a specific geographical location. Melchizedek was the king of Salem. Salem is a specific geographical location.

3. Theophanies always disclose God as the messenger. Not so Melchizedek.
4. Psalm 110:4 — Christ is the one being addressed; the Father is speaking to the Son. The verses is conclusive. It does not say “You are Melchizedek,” it says “You are a priest after the manner of Melchizedek.”
5. A priest must be true humanity to represent the human race before God.
6. Therefore Melchizedek was a true historical person rather than a theophany. As a historical person he is a king, the king of Salem, he is a priest under the family priesthood system, therefore a perfect illustration, a perfect pattern of the unique priesthood of Christ. Jesus Christ is a king as well as a priest.

“Thou art” — “art” is simply a part of the verb to be and is not found in the original text either here or in Psalm 110:4. You have a proleptic pronoun su. The proleptic pronoun means you and only you. It is in the singular, one person is involved: Jesus Christ. There is not verb. The absence of the verb not only emphasizes the proleptic pronoun but emphasizes the appointment of a unique person to a unique position.

The next word is a noun, hierous (ἱερέως) [pronounced hee-er-YOOCE], the Greek word for priest, followed by eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] ton aiōn (αἰών) [pronounced ī-OHN] which means forever and ever — “You and only you a priest forever and ever.” This phrase is addressed to Jesus Christ. He is appointed a high priest forever and ever by the speaker in eternity past. “For ever” is the duration of Christ’s appointment in contrast to Aaron’s priesthood terminated by his death. The very fact that in the divine decrees the Father said forever and ever indicates that the Father intended to raise Christ from the dead and in fact answered His prayer from the cross to do so. So death does not hinder the priesthood of Jesus Christ. It hindered the priesthood of Aaron. Since Aaron died he has never functioned as the priest. Melchizedek finally died, and when he did that was the end of his priesthood. Death terminates the priesthood for everyone but Jesus Christ, and the fact that He would be a priest forever is the prophecy of resurrection in this paragraph of divine decrees. In resurrection Jesus Christ continued the function of His priesthood.

“after the order of” — we have a preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative singular of taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss]. Taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss] means a rank of troops, the line in which the platoon falls in. It is a military word. It can also be used in the sense of classification — “according to the classification of Melchizedek.” Jesus Christ is in the taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss] of Melchizedek, He is not in the taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss] of the Levitical priesthood, those in the line of Aaron. The classification of Melchizedek is the royal priesthood. It is the one in which we as believers find ourselves during this Church Age. Melchizedek was a king and a high priest. Jesus Christ is the King of kings and is the unique high priest. The symbols of bread and wine are the symbols of one priesthood; the symbols of the other are animals and tabernacles/temples. They are entirely different priesthoods. Melchizedek is a real person; Jesus Christ is a real person. Both of them are in the same priesthood, is what this is saying. They are not the same person.

We have different classifications of priesthoods. Melchizedek is the royal priesthood, and we are in that battalion during the Church Age.

The symbols of bread and wine in the first priesthood; animals and temples are the symbols of the other battalion. You cannot belong to both battalions; you can belong to one or the other. There is the family priesthood; the Melchizedek priesthood, and the priesthood of the Lord Jesus Christ. The other priesthood begins with Aaron, Eliezar, Phinehas, Eli, etc.

Bob discusses the distinctive insignia of each type of battalion. We are royal priests, we may not look like it and we may not act like it. Cohen is an honorable Jewish name; there is nothing more American than having the name Cohen.

Now the Levitical Priesthood is deactivated; just as there are deactivated battalions since WWII. There will be the reactivation of the Levitical Priesthood.

Two boys were young boys together in 1954. Ward Christ and Bobby; they have known each other all of their lives. But they are both different people. They ran into each other in Ranger school. They both got regular commissions. They are both stationed in the same outfit, but adjoining companies. Melchizedek and Jesus Christ are both different people. Every jackass who ever wrote a devotional that Melchizedek was really Jesus Christ. They are in the same outfit; but they are not the same person.

Hebrews 5:6 “Even as also in another place, You [Jesus Christ] a priest forever in the same priesthood [or,outfit] as Melchizedek”. R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

1972 Hebrews 5:7–8

Lesson #53

53 06/21/1973 Hebrews 5:7–8 Jesus Christ's prayer on the cross

Bob received a letter from a Sgt. in the marine corps. In Washington D.C. he saw American flags flying right next to Russian flags. Our flags stand for freedom and theirs stands for oppression and loss of freedom. Alan K. Johnson.

We are here because of Edward Bennet. Advancing with company B, pinned down by machine guns. Circuitous route around a house where the machine gun was. Came into a room with 7 Germans, all of whom he killed with 3 different weapons.

Another guy; killed 20 guys. Several different combat scenarios. Enemies began to back up from their post; and this guy, blown across the room for the 4th time. Still God up and went after it. He fought for 48 hours. He killed 40 enemies soldiers and wounded many more. This is why your little teenage girls can sit and squirm in your pews.

First 6 verses reviewed. Bob knew a guy in CA who thought there was no proper praying without crying.

Jesus is in the real Holy of Holies at this point in time.

When on the cross, Jesus offered up prayers. Also, He died for our sins. These are overlapping constative aorist tenses.

This prayer was screamed from the cross. The agony of bearing out sins is what caused the Lord to scream. The Romans would strip the shirt off a person and whip them and cut up the back. Interrogation by flogging. Jesus was subjected to this and did not say a word. Later on the cross, His bones began to pull apart and still, no screaming.

Hebrews 5:7 In the days of his flesh, Jesus offered up prayers and supplications, with loud cries and tears, to him who was able to save him from death, and he was heard because of his reverence. (ESV)

Verse 7 — the verse begins with the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç] which refers to the Lord Jesus Christ whose priesthood is perpetuated by resurrection. Priesthood was terminated by death but the Lord Jesus Christ was resurrected, and one of the reasons for it, apart from the strategic victory of the angelic conflict, was the perpetuation of His priesthood at the right hand of the Father. Jesus Christ is perpetually in the real holy of holies in heaven at the right hand of the Father making intercession for us.

“in the days of his flesh” now takes us back to the beginning of His priesthood at the incarnation. We have the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative, indicating a time, and this refers to the incarnation of the Lord Jesus Christ as specified in Psalm 2:7.

“when he had offered up” — the aorist active participle of the verb prospherô (προσφέρω) [pronounced pros-FER-oh], one of the primary functions of the Levitical priesthood. The aorist tense here of the participle is very important because He is offering not the usual sacrifice or the one usually portrayed of Himself but He is offering the sacrifice of prayer, indicating that prayer is the ministry of the priesthood, and indicating our function in that particular area. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb: “he did not glorify himself”, verse 5. Before He did not glorify Himself he offered up these prayers. We have the constative aorist here referring to the cross. Remember that the constative aorist gathers up into one entirety a certain type of function. This function is extracted — He did other things at the cross beside this but while He was on the cross He did offer prayer. Sometimes these constative aorists overlap each other and such is the case here, we have an overlapping constative aorist with other functions that occurred on the cross. Instead of the usual prospherô (προσφέρω) [pronounced pros-FER-oh] which is for offering animal sacrifices we have it clearly declared by the accusative plural of dehsij that this is something else. Dehsij is translated “prayers” and that is a legitimate use of the word. This is a very intensive type of prayer, however. It refers to Christ’s prayer on the cross as recorded in several of the Psalms. For example, part of this prayer is recorded in Psalm 69:13–15, part of it is recorded in Psalm 16:9,10, and part of it is recorded in Psalm 22.

“prayers and”, and then we have an adjective, “supplications” — i(kthria, which is derived from someone coming up with an olive branch as a peace sign, or sign of wanting a treaty, or as a suppliant. It refers to the prayer of Christ on the cross. As it were, He was carrying an olive branch to God the Father. This, again, is the supplication of Psalm 22:22–31 which contains the Lord’s prayer request for resurrection. This is not a reference to Gethsemane. In Gethsemane Christ prayed to God but he prayed for avoidance, if possible, of the cross. But this is not a reference to that prayer, this is a prayer for resurrection during the intense suffering of the cross.

Next we have a prepositional phrase, the preposition meta plus the descriptive genitive kraugh which means both crying and screaming, even loud shouting. This is a descriptive genitive, it tells exactly what was associated with our Lord’s prayer. We can tell from the use of the noun and the adjective in the first part of this sentence that it was a very intense prayer, but this intensiveness is now amplified. Meta here with the genitive is the preposition of association, and it can be translated “associated with loud crying [or screaming].” This prayer was screamed at God the Father. We know from Psalm 22 that our Lord did quite a bit of screaming on the cross. The agony of bearing our sins is what brought forth the screams. He didn’t scream because He was in pain and couldn’t take it. On the contrary, He had demonstrated that he could stand up under any kind of physical pain and any kind of soul torture. He stood up under the torture of being lied about in every possible way in a courtroom, He stood up under the Roman system of interrogation with whips.

The Lord’s Prayer on the Cross

1. The prayer which is specified in this passage is found in detail in Psalm 16:9,10; 69:13–15; 22:22–31.
2. Christ was praying this prayer during the time when He was offering Himself for our sins.
3. We have two priestly functions occurring simultaneously: offering Himself as a sacrifice for sins and offering prayer for resurrection from the physical death which would follow the spiritual death of our Lord Jesus Christ.
4. The physical death interrupts the priestly ministry of Jesus Christ. No man ever ministered as a priest after dying. The death of a high priest meant that he was succeeded by his eldest surviving son, under the Levitical code. This was more or less the same under the family priesthood but it was different under the royal priesthood. Under the royal priesthood a person who was a king also functioned as the high priest of his nation.
5. The phase one ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ: He offered Himself for our sins. the phase two ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ as priest: He makes intercession for us at the right hand of the Father. This is vital because one out of every 100,000 believers knows how to pray. It is only after one is thoroughly inculcated in the doctrine of prayer and have reached the status of the supergrace believer priest that you really begin to have an effective prayer life. Christ could not have fulfilled His phase two ministry without resurrection, so He is praying for the continuation of His priesthood while He is functioning as a priest.

6. No priest can function in physical death, whether Aaron or Christ.
7. Christ is a priest. He could not offer Himself for our sins in physical death, He had to pay the penalty of our sins which is spiritual death. The physical death of Christ came because His work was finished for the moment. So when he was bearing our sins that is equivalent to spiritual death because God the Father was judging all of the sins of the human race, past, present, and future at the point of the cross. Once the objective to go to the cross was accomplished the Lord Jesus Christ departed from this earth. But there is another objective that has to be fulfilled and it has to be fulfilled at the right hand of the Father. So He must be resurrected, He must ascend and be seated at the right hand of the Father under the doctrine of session. Once the session is accomplished then it becomes necessary for Him to function and to fulfil a ministry that not one of us would ever be able to fulfil for ourselves or others.

In anticipation of His own physical death and because His work of salvation, or the sacrificial work, was fulfilled the Lord Jesus Christ now prays for His resurrection in order to continue His own priestly ministry, for He is a high priest. Also there is a second word which is the object of the preposition — “and tears.” This, too, is a descriptive genitive. The only difference is it is a descriptive genitive plural in contrast to kraugh which is a genitive singular. This is also the object of the preposition meta and should be translated “associated with a scream”, since it is singular, “and many tears.” This, again, emphasizes the intensity of the prayer.

The question arises: Was the prayer effective? Even apart from our own understanding of the historical resurrection the answer is yes. The next phrase “unto him” is the preposition pros plus the accusative of the intensive pronoun autos, which means “face to face with him” and indicates that the prayer was getting through.

Summary

1. All prayer is addressed to God the Father. This means that God the Father is the only person to whom you can address prayers and be heard.
2. Jesus Christ as high priest is absolutely accurate in the address of His prayer. He addressed it to God the Father.
3. The principle: All prayer must be addressed to God the Father, as per Ephesians 3:14. The approach is in the name of the Son, He is our high priest — John 14:13,14. And all effective prayer is accomplished under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit — Ephesians 6:18.
4. The Son as our high priest offers prayer to the Father in Hebrews 7:25. So does God the Holy Spirit in Romans 8:26,27.
5. Therefore, the precedent of our priesthood is established. As a kingdom of priests we are under the royal priesthood and we must all follow the same procedure. Being in a royal priesthood you always approach God through your high priest, and our high priest is the King-priest, Jesus Christ.

All prayer is offered to God the Father. No believer priest ever prays to God the Son or to God the Holy Spirit. There is a principle here: More failure results from stupidity than carnality when it comes to prayer.

“that was able” is incorrect. The present active participle of dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahēe]. The present tense is a retroactive progressive present, it denotes something begun in the past and continues right up to the present time — the time that the writer writes. God has always been able to answer prayer, both then and now. So, “face to face with the one who has always been and continues to be able” is the way you translated a retroactive progressive present. The active voice: God the Father produces the action of the verb by answering prayer. This participle is the adjectival use of the participle to describe God the Father. One of His functions is prayer answering. The accusative case of the participle is still a part of the object of that preposition proj, so that literally that whole prepositional phrase should be translated, “face to face with the one who has always been and continues to be able.”

Now we have an infinitive, the present active infinitive of sôzô (σώζω) [pronounced SOHD-zoh] which is translated “to save” which actually means to deliver. The type of deliverance is specified by context. The present tense is an iterative present, it describes that which occurs or reoccurs at successive intervals. It is called the present tense of repeated action. At different intervals of time there is deliverance. The active voice of this infinitive: God the Father is the subject producing the action of the verb which is deliverance as an answer to prayer. The infinitive is a verbal noun here. This is not an ordinary infinitive, it came to the Koine Greek from the Sanskrit by way of Attic Greek. This is called the infinitive of purpose for it is God’s purpose to raise Jesus Christ from the dead to continue His priestly ministry at the right hand of the Father. This is used as a noun and therefore when you have the infinitive used as a verbal noun it means that this is a part of the Father’s plan, He always intended for it to happen, and the fact that Jesus prayed for it is for our information, as well as to show that when Jesus Christ on the cross side of His death prayed for something and was answered through death — which apart from resurrection would have been an impossibility for an answer — it was a demonstration of the power of prayer from our only celebrity and high priest, Jesus Christ. His power of prayer is phenomenal because from the cross it was answered through death and resurrection. It also gives us the thrust of our Lord’s prayer on our behalf at the right hand of the Father. It is also God’s purpose to make the resurrection a part of the strategic victory of the angelic conflict. The reason we have supergrace today is because of the victory of the angelic conflict. The back of Satan was broken at the cross. Not only was our salvation provided but this is what broke the devil’s back. Then resurrection, ascension and session completes the first stage of the strategic victory which interrupts the Age of Israel, starts up the Church Age with a new type of priesthood — the royal priesthood — and makes our tactical objective — supergrace, where we have the cup through doctrine and God pours: celebrityship of Christ, supergrace capacity, and supergrace blessings. And under the royal priesthood it is God’s objective that we live like royalty. He wants to give us wealth, success, prosperity, promotion, etc. The royal priesthood demands royal living.

Sanscrit if very important for a person studying Greek.

Our next word is “him”, the accusative singular from the intensive pronoun autos. It refers to Jesus Christ. The intensive pronoun emphasizes more than the personal pronoun. That is why we have it so frequently. The personal pronoun just means “you,” the intensive pronoun means “you yourself.” Here we have “he himself” because the intensive pronoun always has a stronger connotation, and Christ is the victor in that strategic activity — the cross, resurrection and session.

The intensive pronoun always has a strong connotation. The strategic victory has two phases. The abnormal crowd makes up the freaks; they make up all of the phony rules.

Jesus answered a prayer on the cross, and this was answered by the Father with the resurrection and ascension.

God is glorified by promoting us, not for us suffering. We are royal priests and nobility lives within luxury.

Billions of dollars of American money are stolen every year, like our oil fields in Libya. Bob wants universal military service; and we go into Vietnam, Chili, Cuba, etc.

“from death” — preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus the ablative singular of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] for physical death — “the one being able to deliver he himself [Jesus Christ] out from physical death.” Note that Christ did not pray for deliverance from death on the cross but out from death. In other words, while Christ was bearing our sins on the cross, which was one of His priestly functions, He was anticipating another priestly function but death stood in the way. So he anticipates His physical death as the termination of the first phase of His priesthood but He prayed for the perpetuation into the second phase, therefore He prayed for resurrection. He didn’t pray for resurrection because He was not aware of the implications, He prayed for resurrection so we would be aware of the implications.

“and was heard” — here is the dynamics of our Lord’s ministry of prayer. We have the aorist passive participle from the compound verb e)isakouw. eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] means upon or because of; akoúō (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh] means to hear. Christ was heard because of His prayer, therefore the verb means to accept someone’s petition — “and having received the acceptance of his petition.” The aorist tense is a culminative aorist which indicates the results of His prayer, it gathers up the whole concept of His prayer and emphasizes the result. So the culminative aorist followed by the passive voice, the subject [Christ] receives the action of the verb — answer to His prayer. The participle is an antecedent participle. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb, the main verb is found in verse 5: “he did not glorify himself.” The Father glorified Him.

“in that he feared” — the preposition apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the genitive of eulábeia (εὐλάβεια) [pronounced yoo-LAHB-i-ah]. Eulábeia (εὐλάβεια) [pronounced yoo-LAHB-i-ah] means to be careful and watchful in the sphere of respect for authority. It means to be very careful about the authority of someone who has authority. It means maximum respect for authority. It means also reverence but reverence is merely a type of authority and therefore not a good way to translate eulábeia (εὐλάβεια) [pronounced yoo-LAHB-i-ah]. Here is respect for authority. A high priest must have respect for the person of God the Father. The prayer is offered to God the Father. He respects His person. That means His essence. He respects the plan of the person to whom He offers the prayer. And eulábeia (εὐλάβεια) [pronounced yoo-LAHB-i-ah] means respect for the authority of the person and for the authority of the plan of God. Therefore it should be translated, “because of respect for divine authority.”

Hebrews 5:7 “Who in the days of his flesh [incarnation], having offered up both prayers supplications associated with scream and tears face to face with the one [God the Father] who was able in the past and keeps on being able to deliver him out from death, and his petition having been heard because of his recognition of divine authority.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. There is no normal function of the priesthood apart from the supergrace life. We are in a royal priesthood that demands a supergrace life. Here is where prayer becomes effective.
2. Jesus Christ is a royal high priest, He is the King high priest. He was effective in His prayer because of His recognition of the Father’s authority and the Father’s plan.
3. The prayers that are effective demand concentration on who and what the Father is and who and what His plan is. That calls for knowledge of doctrine.
4. The petition for resurrection indicate thorough cognisance of the importance of having started a strategic victory to complete it.
5. In this way and in this prayer Jesus Christ paved the way for the tactical victory of the supergrace life in this dispensation. The supergrace life is for royal priests.
6. Eulábeia (εὐλάβεια) [pronounced yoo-LAHB-i-ah] emphasizes authority, and the supergrace believer has maximum recognition of the authority of Jesus Christ, His person and His work.
7. Blessing and happiness in life must be related to authority and respect for authority. Respect for authority is always involved in two categories: a person who has the authority, and the plan.

You cannot learn or even be saved without some recognition of authority. For your pastor-teacher, you must respect his person and office, not his personality.

Is there a missing lesson on Hebrews where v. 8 was taught? He talks about picking up there the next time Hebrews is taught, but lesson 54 takes up to v. 9.

Hebrews 5:9 And being made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation to all who obey him, (ESV)

First 8 verses reviewed.

Verse 9 — this verses records the result of Jesus Christ learning absolute obedience to authority. The result was the cross where Christ fulfilled His priestly function as offering Himself a sacrifice for our sins.

The word “and” beginning the verse is a continuative use of the conjunction kai and indicates the results of Christ’s suffering to learn obedience. He had to learn discipline of absolute to authority or there would be no salvation. It is always hard for people to realize that if Jesus Christ had not been the most disciplined, the most obedient to authority person who ever lived, He would not have gone to the cross and offered Himself for our sins. This required the greatest of self-discipline and the greatest respect for authority in all of human history. Furthermore, it was contrary to every impulse, every desire, every part of His soul. Nevertheless, He did it. And while we like to think in terms of freedom and the blessings of our royal priesthood it would be totally impossible were it not for discipline. The Lord Jesus Christ didn’t enjoy great freedom, He went to the cross under the strictest system of discipline. The Father was the absolute authority; His plan was also the authority. In obedience to the person of God the Father and in obedience to the plan of God the Father Jesus Christ went to the cross. It was the strictest system of discipline in all of human history. Out of discipline comes freedom. Out of self-discipline and principles of authority freedom exists in the human race so that the angelic conflict might be perpetuated from one generation to another. So this is the continuative use of the conjunction in order to now move to the results of learning discipline and respect for or obedience to authority.

The phrase “being made perfect” is not a correct translation. The aorist passive participle teleioō (τελειόω) [pronounced tehl-i-OH-oh] means something different. Teleioō (τελειόω) [pronounced tehl-i-OH-oh] means to execute a command perfectly, to execute fully, to complete, to bring something to an end, to accomplish a goal or to reach an objective. It also means to complete the process of training through the suffering and the discipline of the previous verse. So its best possible Translation: “and having completed the disciplinary training.” The whole life of our Lord was one of disciplinary training, of extreme self-discipline. Every temptation to sin was also an issue of self-discipline. The Lord Jesus Christ never had the freedoms that you and I had. He had the freedoms and more so, but He did not have the freedoms because His objective was the cross and His objective was to reach the cross in sinless perfection. If He had succumbed to one temptation and sinned He would have acquired an old sin nature, He would have been a sinner in the same way that Adam became a sinner. But the Lord Jesus Christ went through 33 years of intense discipline and it reached its culmination on the cross where He obeyed a command to go to the cross where He bore our sins. He knew how horrible it would be and yet He was carried by His respect for the Father's authority, His respect for the plan of the Father, and by the extreme self-discipline of His own soul. All of this carried Him to the cross. The cross represents from the God-ward side and from the standpoint of our high priest, Jesus Christ, the highest obedience to authority. This is brought out by the aorist passive participle of teleioō (τελειόω) [pronounced tehl-i-OH-oh]. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist which regards the event in its entirety. In other words, the entirety in this case is everything whereby Jesus Christ learned to respect authority, learned self-discipline, learned obedience, obedience unto death. He learned it in childhood, He learned it through doctrine, He learned it through temptation, He learned it through testing, He learned it in relationship with other people, He learned it by living not a normal life but an abnormal life. He was true humanity and could have lived a normal life without sin but He lived an abnormal life without sin and He fulfilled His objective without ever losing sight of His objective. And we now have here the culminating aorist. Here is the constative concept, the punctiliar concept, of the aorist. The culminative aorist regards the event in its entirety — learning obedience to authority through disciplinary training of suffering — but places special emphasis on the existing result: executing our salvation as the first function of His high priesthood. As a royal priest He had a different sacrifice. As a King with a crown on His head He went to the cross and offered Himself in fulfillment of the uniqueness of the royal priesthood. He executed our salvation by offering Himself for our sins on the cross. The passive voice of the participle: the subject, Jesus Christ, receives the action of the verb, namely the completion of His training course of learning discipline by suffering and then fulfilling the result of His training course in obedience to death, the death of the cross. The participle has antecedent action, it is an aorist participle, and the antecedent action is relevant to the main verb, “he became.” So literally, “And having completed the disciplinary training, he became.”

We are not certain about the family priesthood. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were all High Priest for their families.

“he became” — aorist active indicative of the verb ginomai. The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist which states a present reality with the certitude of a past event. The active voice: Christ became the only Savior, which is part of His celebrityship involved here. The indicative mood states reality plus the main verb from the preceding participle.

The next word “author” is also incorrectly translated. Aitios (αἴτιος) [pronounced AHEE-tee-oss] does not mean “author”, it means “source.” The absence of the definite article in the Greek emphasizes the qualitative aspect of the source. The principle of no definite article means that Christ is the only source of salvation.

“of eternal salvation” — sôtêria (σωτηρία) [pronounced soh-tay-REE-ah] aiôn (αἰών) [pronounced ī-OHN] jiou are two descriptive genitives. When a genitive stands out in its typical significance without shading off into combinations with some contextual idea it is classified as a descriptive genitive and this is also the genitive of possession. This was originally addressed for believers, we know that from the genitive. They actually possessed eternal salvation.

“unto all” — the dative plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] is the indirect object, which isn't really the indirect object at all but that is the easiest way to describe it from English syntax. The dative of indirect object indicates the one in whose interest the act is performed. Jesus Christ did this because of us. And all of the time on this earth when Jesus Christ was under discipline He had you in mind.

“them that obey” — the dative plural of advantage, the present active participle from the verb hupakouô (ὑπακούω) [pronounced hoop-ak-OO-oh], a very strong word for obedience. hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] means to be under the command of; akoúô (ἀκούω) [pronounced ah-KOO-oh] means to hear or to obey or to respect the authority of. So “the ones obeying” is the corrected translation. The present tense is an iterative present, it describes what occurs or recurs at successive intervals. That means that throughout history there will always be those who obey. Only our obedience is different. The obedience to the cross on the part of Jesus Christ was offering Himself as a high priest; our obedience is to believe in Jesus Christ, to receive Him as personal Savior in the sense of a gift. The Lord Jesus Christ, our high priest, had a special obedience connected with the cross. Everyone who enters the royal priesthood also has a special obedience. His was the obedience of total ability from His hypostatic union; ours is the obedience of total inability, for obedience specifies the principle but faith indicates the mechanics. Faith is non-meritorious. The obedience of Jesus Christ was one hundred per cent merit, whereas our obedience to the cross as the royal priesthood is zero merit. So anyone related to the cross in any way has to face the issue of obedience. God ordered Jesus Christ: Go to the cross. And when He obeyed that order it took one hundred per cent of everything that He had. But when God commands us obedience to the cross it takes nothing because it took everything. In other words, in fulfilling this verb our high priest gave one hundred per cent and He came to the cross under obedience that required all of His ability to stay there and to take it, to bear our sins. But when we approach the cross it is zero, zero point zero, zero because he took all the percentage. So the doctrine of obedience to the cross is the very basis for our priesthood. Our priesthood gives us freedom but that freedom always and inevitably comes through the strictest obedience to authority. It is God's objective to take every royal priest and through the function of GAP bring that royal priest to the point of supergrace. He not only saves us but in time it is His intention to give us blessing and prosperity exceedingly abundantly above all we could ever ask or think. And when a priest fails here the bottom drops out of everything for that generation. The active voice: people at different times obey and believe in Jesus Christ. That is where you start obeying God. The participle is a modal participle, it signifies the manner in which the action of main verb is accomplished. The main verb: Christ “became the source of eternal salvation” .The modal participle tells us how He accomplished it. The manner of accomplishment: obedience to the cross. The word “obeying him” is a dative singular from the intensive pronoun autos. The intensive pronoun refers to Christ who commands salvation.

While we are learning about all of these great blessings, God designed every priest for nobility. Until that, we are hunchbacks, or crush testicle types.

Bob forgot to look at his watch or a calendar. So he doesn't know when he was saved. If don't think I am saved, I will throw you through that wall. Kept a guy around who thought you had to know the day and time of your salvation. You need someone who is mixed up so we can tell if we are learning anything.

Hebrews 5:9 “And having competed the disciplinary training [to learn obedience], He became to all the ones obeying Him the source of eternal salvation.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

This completes the first phase of the high priestly ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ. The second phase involves His intercessory work on our behalf. To perpetuate His high priestly ministry He has to be raised from the dead and placed in a position to make intercession, namely at the right hand of the Father.

Hebrews 5:10 being designated by God a high priest after the order of Melchizedek. (ESV)

Verse 10 — “Called of God.” The word “called” is an aorist passive participle of the verb prosagoreuw and it does not mean to call. Kaleô (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh] means to call. This verb, prosagoreuw means to designate, to salute in the sense of recognizing authority. It also means to nominate, but it came to mean to designate. The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist which states the present reality from the past quotation of Psalm 110:4. The passive voice: Christ received the action of the verb in eternity past as part of the doctrine of divine decrees. The participle: the antecedent action relative to the main verb, Christ became the source of eternal salvation but first of all He was designated. He was designated in eternity past as a part of the divine decrees and therefore He was commissioned to go to the cross.

“of God” is a prepositional phrase, hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative. hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] mans a lot of different things depending upon what we have by way of object. The ablative case is the object here. We have a definite article, so it means “by the God” — God the Father.

Then we have again, archiereus (ἀρχιερεύς) [pronounced ar-khee-er-YUCE] katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] thn tacin Melxisedek, which means “according to the battalion of Melchizedek.” It is called the battalion of Melchizedek because of the first record of a royal priest. This doesn't mean that he was the first royal priest, but that he is the first one recorded.

Hebrews 5:10 Having been designated by the God, High Priest, according to the battalion of Melchizedek. R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. At this point we have a dramatic interruption. This is the end of talking about the priesthood for awhile. All of a sudden the writer of this epistle stops his great doctrinal dissertation. Reversionism cannot take the royal priesthood. The writer of the epistle has a large congregation which doesn't know what he is talking about because they are in reversionism.
  - a. Reversionism cannot handle the priesthood. They get bitter.
  - b. You cannot react in reversionism and get the priesthood and understand it. Whatever your reactor factor might be. Disillusion, boredom, discouragement.
  - c. God isn't giving me what someone else has. That is reaction; and this is against the royal priesthood.
  - d. We begin in obedience to God. But we react.
  - e. This writer is going to take a detour into reversionism; because you cannot learn what he is teaching, if you are in reversionism.
2. Those to whom this passage was originally addressed are believers — Jewish believers in Jerusalem. The year is 67 AD, the eve of the greatest disaster in Jewish history. Jesus warned about this time in Luke.
3. The Jewish believers are reversionistic, they are not ready for the doctrine of the royal priesthood of the believer nor related doctrines of the angelic conflict.
4. They do not understand the strategic victory of our high priest and how it relates to the tactical victory of the royal priesthood.
5. Before this doctrine can be understood these believers must recover from reversionism. The writer will not go on until he has presented the issue of reversion recovery and how it relates to occupation with the person of Jesus Christ,
6. The fact of this reversionism and the quality of it is now discussed in verses 11–14.
7. This subject of the royal high priesthood of Christ, according to the Melchizedek classification, will not be mentioned again until Hebrews 6:20. This is where this doctrinal discourse will be resumed.
8. Spiritual progress is always hindered by reversionism. As long as we are in reversionism we have compounded our spiritual abnormality.
9. While the royal priesthood demands nobility of life and character, and the possessions that accompany nobility, the reversionistic believer has demonstrated the antithesis and in effect has demoted himself. So the writer must stop and deal with this reactionary reversionistic self-demotion.

Warning Against Apostasy

Hebrews 5:11 About this we have much to say, and it is hard to explain, since you have become dull of hearing. (ESV)

Verse 11 — the interruption because of reversionism. Reversionism is always negative toward doctrine, but more than that, reversionism is negative toward anything related to God.

“Of whom” — the preposition peri plus the genitive of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]. This particular phrase means “concerning whom.” The relative pronoun refers to our Lord Jesus Christ presented as the royal high priest in verses 5–10.

“we” — egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced eg-OH] in the dative plural of indirect object, indicating the believers in whose interest this teaching is performed. The word “have” is not found in the original MSS. It is literally, “Concerning whom to us.”

“many things” — the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] referring to many doctrines — “Concerning whom to us many doctrines.” This is rather awkward English and to smooth it out this idiom means “Concerning whom [Christ] we have many doctrines.”

“to say” — present active infinitive of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. The present tense is iterative, it describes what occurs at successive intervals, namely the assembling and the teaching of doctrine by the right pastor. The active voice: the writer is the pastor who does the teaching here. The infinitive denotes his purpose: to teach and to go on with his teaching and only stop long enough to make an issue out of a problem in the congregation, namely reversionism.

“and hard to be uttered” — this is a verbal compound noun, dusermhneutoj. it means hard to explain, difficult to teach. Advanced doctrine is difficult to teach. There is a waning of interest on the part of many, there is a straggling of spiritual growth, there is some reason people fall out right and left; and therefore it is always hard to explain advanced doctrine. The doctrines relating to our royal priesthood are advanced doctrines. There must be a frame of reference in the right lobe before the doctrine is understood. The reversionist not only lacks a frame of reference but he has also lost whatever he originally learned and it totally handicapped in his attempt to understand these things.

The word “seeing” is a causal conjunction, epéi (ἐπεί) [pronounced ehp-IH], it should be translated here “because”; “you are” — perfect active indicative of ginomai, which means to become: “because you have become.” The perfect tense is an iterative perfect in which the process of a completion occurred at recurrent intervals rather than continuous progress. In other words, the iterative perfect recognizes the fact that these Jews would, for a while, GAP it and then they would peel off and react and have to start over, then again they would peel off into reversionism, and so on. So that at different intervals they have advanced a bit and then fallen off, advanced a bit and fallen off. This is the perfect tense of repeated action. The stress is upon completed action but the character of the action is iterative, and this means that the believers involved already are reversionists but they get there by repeated acts of negative volition, repeated acts of reacting to something. The active voice: the negative believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is the reality of repeated acts of negative volition, repeated acts of reaction, resulting in a completed action of reversionism. They just can’t get up long enough to do anything.

They start to advance and then they retrogress. Your frog is full of buckshot so you croak loudly but you jump high.

Some believers can run 2 miles in 20 minute; but others will spend their entire life running this same 2 miles.

“dull” — the nominative plural from the adjective nôthros (νωθρός) [pronounced noh-THROSS]. This means apathy as well as dullness. With the locative of this verse it indicates another classification of believers in Jerusalem in 67 AD. They are dull, dull, dull when it comes to listening to Bible teaching.

“of hearing” — the locative plural of akoê (ἀκοή) [pronounced ak-oh-AY].

Hebrews 5:11 “Concerning whom [Christ] we have many doctrines to communicate, and hard to explain, because you have become apathetic in the sphere on hearing.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #55

55 06/24/1973 Hebrews 5:12a Obligation to divine viewpoint

A commendation. Derva Shean. An aggressive advance leaving them way ahead of their company. Sounds like he and his men captured around 20 men. He feigned death, and then assaulted the position and captured 4 more men. Unable to locate any more targets in the area, he escorted these men...

Bob knows this person; he is a second generation Armenia. Great persecutions by the Turks.

We find it difficult to project ourselves into a conflict; but we are involved in a spiritual conflict. Even more meaningful than the WWII conflict. In recent years, we have done nothing by way of true victory; slowly but surely, we are seeing the destruction of everything that we hold dear. Add to this that we, as believers, as a kingdom of priests. We belong to the first battalion of the royal priesthood. We are not associated with the family or Levitical priesthood; but we are a part of the universal priesthood. We are to close in on our target of normal Christian living. All of our other passages have been set aside to spend all of our time in Hebrews 5. We are fighting on two fronts, visible and invisible. The unseen conflict of the angels. But this writer must stop and deal with a problem; the problem of being casualties in the Angelic Conflict. Reversionism recovery.

Hebrews 5:11 “Concerning whom [Christ] we have many doctrines to communicate, and hard to explain, because you have become apathetic in the sphere on hearing.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 5:12 For though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you again the basic principles of the oracles of God. You need milk, not solid food, (ESV)

Verse 12 — we begin with the word “For”, the conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] used here to express continuation. These conjunctive particle are quite important as far as understanding the interpretation of a passage. Here we have continuation from what we have previously studied. The word “when” is incorrectly translated, it is the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai and it should be translated “also”; “for the time” is also incorrectly translated because this is dia plus the accusative of chronos (χρόνος) [pronounced CHRON-oss]. Chronos (χρόνος) [pronounced CHRON-oss] refers to time in the sense of one minute following another minute, one hour following another, one day following another. Literally then, “For also because of the time.” The time at which this particular epistle was written is very similar to the time in which we live today. The time refers to the proximity of national disaster.

Summary

1. The phrase here refers to the proximity of the fifth cycle of discipline to the southern kingdom of Judah, headquarters and capital city Jerusalem. This was written to Jewish believers in Jerusalem just three years before their great national disaster.
2. One of the greatest disasters in all of history was the siege of Jerusalem which would occur in 70 AD.
3. The principle of this verse indicates to that people, as it indicates to us as a people, that the time is short. The only preparation for disaster is entrance into the supergrace life and the full function of the royal priesthood of the believer.
4. A nation on the eve of such disaster needs doctrine as never before. It is the objective of this writer to provide that information so necessary for a nation approaching disaster.
5. Supergrace means deliverance for those who reach it, and during the time that this was written and afterward there were many Jews in Jerusalem who through the daily function of GAP reached supergrace and were delivered from one of the greatest disasters in all of human history.
6. God pours in another way under the supergrace life. We have seen supergrace in the sense that after salvation we GAP it all of the way to this condition. Supergrace is characterized by occupation with the person of Jesus Christ our high priest. It is characterized by having supergrace capacity which is the cup in the soul. This is Bible doctrine. It is characterized by God pouring into that cup. God is glorified by such pouring. We are left here to glorify God. We glorify God by receiving from His hand through grace, wealth, promotion, success, all of the things which are designed for us in eternity past. God wins the tactical victory by providing these things. We are a part of the strategic victory because of the death, burial, resurrection, and ascension of Jesus Christ in the incarnation. We are now moving toward the objective which is tactical victory and when we reach it God is glorified, we are blessed. It is this blessing which has another aspect now. In time of approaching or in time of actual national disaster it is the pouring of God that delivers us under the most difficult things of life. And God poured for many of those Jews who listened to what this writer had to say, who heeded it, who GAPed it to supergrace. They were delivered from that great disaster. In the course of action many of these Jews ended up living in Egypt in Alexandria. Many of them moved to Rome, many of them to Ephesus, to one of the Greek Islands. But wherever they went God poured, first of all by deliverance and later on by prosperity. So we have in the generation to whom this was originally addressed those who listened to the teaching of the Word of God, those who reached the tactical victory of supergrace, those who were delivered from this awful disaster and spent a very wonderful life in the prosperity of the far-flung Roman empire.

7. But the reversionist is caught in national disaster, ending his life, ending his priesthood, by the sin unto death. So your spiritual condition is very important in time of national disaster, and it is the believer who has Bible doctrine to the point of supergrace who stands in the gap, just as Jeremiah stood in the gap, and then later on receives that great wealth and blessing. When God delivers from national disaster He doesn't leave you down at the heels, His deliverance is followed by a great period of personal prosperity in whatever part of the geographical location of this earth he finds himself on in that deliverance.
8. National disaster is no time to be caught in reversionism. We are aware of the fact that we are under national disaster conditions. Smoke screens of Congress cannot hide these facts.

Our next phrase says "ye ought." This is a present active participle of the verb opheilê (οφειλή) [pronounced oh-fih-LAY] which connotes obligation. In time of national disaster all believers are obligated to communicate and to converse divine viewpoint, and this is what we have. You are not to be a teacher, a preacher. You are to be a communicator of divine viewpoint because of the time. The time in which we live demands that you take your stand for divine viewpoint as God provides the opportunity. The present tense is a retroactive progressive present in which communicating doctrine begins in the past and continues into the present time. This is called a present tense of duration. This is the time, as it were, to stand up and be counted. This is the time to express as you have opportunity the divine viewpoint of life. This is a very important principle. The retroactive progressive present means to communicate doctrine and keep on doing so.

This is the day in which, surprisingly enough, there is a request on the part of almost every type of news media for your comments. One thing that has come out of all of this is the fact that people are invited to speak their piece and to declare what they feel is the right about something that is wrong. There are letter columns in the papers where each person has a right to express himself on a given subject. "Because of the time ye ought" you have an obligation to communicate divine viewpoint. You don't have to be a preacher, you are not supposed to be a preacher, all you are supposed to do is to communicate — at parties, in conversations, etc.

A letter from a member of Berachah Church wrote to the Texas Tribune. He is going to explain something about a letter Tony someone. Does not even nature herself teach you that long hair on a man is wrong. Jesus Christ had short hair. Jesus is the only man to be born and to live perfectly. To think like an American, the first step might be a trip to the barber shop. A letter from Al Clark.

The active voice of this participle: it is the believer's responsibility to produce the action of the verb as disaster approaches. It is the function of the supergrace believer to take a courageous stand. The participle denotes a purpose. "Being obligated" is the best translation. All believers have an obligation as disaster approaches.

"to be" — the present active infinitive of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], the absolute status quo verb. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes that which habitually occurs or should occur. The active voice: the supergrace believer or the growing believer in the normal function of his royal priesthood produces the action of the verb. The infinitive is an infinitive of command, it is called the imperative infinitive.

The word "teachers" is the predicate nominative plural of didaskalos (διδάσκαλος) [pronounced did-AS-kal-oss] and here it simply means communicators. The word can be used for a pastor-teacher but in this context it is used for the entire priesthood. It means indoctrinators, inculcators, or communicators of divine viewpoint.

Notice that we have an almost identical situation in our time to that of the original context. In the original context of this passage these people in Jerusalem were three years from the great national disaster which would destroy their nation and put 90,000 of them into slavery, and would at the same time cause the casualties to be over 1,000,000. Roughly 20,000 came out as supergrace believers, totally delivered, and prospered for the rest of their lives in other geographical areas. God always pours for the supergrace believer, and no matter how dangerous, disastrous or how difficult the circumstances God's pouring includes this deliverance.

Our next phrase says "you have." This is the present active indicative of the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh] which means to have and to hold, and sometimes, depending upon the noun that goes with it, the object of the verb, it means something else. The present tense here is a progressive present indicating linear aktionsart. We have a special responsibility as believers in time of our nation's decline. "You keep on having" says the linear aktionsart. The active voice: the reversionist produces the action of the verb here. He is not doing what he should be doing. The supergrace believer or the growing believer actually expresses fearlessly the divine viewpoint. It is the reversionist who lines up with the decadence of the national entity. Since this is addressed to reversionism you have a special need. The indicative mood is the reality of the reversionist having to relearn Bible doctrine before he can actually communicate divine viewpoint in time of national crisis.

The word "you have," echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh] plus the accusative singular of xreian means "you require." Xreian means a need. The two words together are blended into a Greek idiom — "you keep on requiring that one teach you again".

"one teach" is a present active infinitive of didaskô (διδάσκω) [pronounced did-AS-koh]. Here is the problem with reversionists, they have to relearn Bible doctrine. The progressive present tense is used to signify the action of the verb in a state of persistence. In other words, once you realize that you are in reversionism and you realize that the only answer is to study doctrine and to take it in and to take it in, and to GAP it to recover, then you must be in a state of persistence. The active voice: the pastor actually produces the action of the verb, and he produces the action through the teaching of Bible doctrine. The infinitive denotes purpose and therefore we could translate this very simply, “you require teaching.”

Hebrews 5:12a “For also because of the time being obligated to be communicators of divine viewpoint, you require teaching.”

The word “again” is an adverb, palin, and it means “once more.” This means there was a time when you came to Bible class every night, a time when you were so positive about doctrine it was almost painful to your friends, and you received the isagogical and exegetical teaching of the Word of God and all of the things that were pertinent to learning doctrine. They went into your left lobe and became objective reality because of the ministry of God the Holy Spirit making these things real. Then there was the great issue. Are you simply going to be a hearer of the Word or are you going to be a doer of the Word? This is not a person running around hustling for Christ. This means that you will believe the doctrine. You make that transfer into the right lobe.

So the issue came up: would you transfer doctrine from the left lobe down to the human spirit where it is useful? And you made that transfer, and with that epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] immediately there was a line that draws doctrine right in to the frame of reference of the heart or the right lobe of the soul. Then this doctrine was picked up by the memory centre and a new vocabulary was developed and with it came categories. Then gradually your whole scale of values in life changed and your norms and standards began to line up with divine norms and standards. Your capacity for life began to develop. You began, therefore, to get divine viewpoint on the launching pad and this was a great time in your life, though possibly you have forgotten it because once you started to react because of disillusion, boredom, discouragement, overcome with self-pity, loneliness, frustration, bitter or vindictive or jealous, jilted in some way. These things caused you to react by that frantic search for happiness, whatever type it was. This always leads to emotional revolt which amplifies, intensifies the reactor factors, and at the same time destroys this beautiful picture you had built up over the years or over some period of time because now you are negative toward doctrine. Now there is a vacuum opening up and through this vacuum comes Satanic propaganda or the doctrine of demons. And now doctrine has drained out of your heart or right lobe back into the left lobe where it is no longer useable. Now your right lobe is filled up with all kinds of weird ideas. As this develops there is the destruction of whatever you had in your ECS and you are now in reversionism. You require teaching once more of “certain things.”

The words “which be” is not which be at all. It is the accusative neuter plural from the indefinite pronoun tis (τις) [pronounced tihç]. The indefinite pronoun means “certain things.” These certain things are described by the phrase “the first principles” .However, the first principles is really the doctrines — logiwn in a descriptive genitive plural, and it refers here to basic or elementary doctrines which have to be relearned. You require teaching once more of certain things, the elementary basic doctrines — “of God.” The ablative of source means “from the source of the God”: theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] in the ablative plus the definite article.

“and are become” — the perfect active indicative of ginomai — “you have become.” The perfect tense is the intensive perfect, it emphasizes a completed action of the verb with existing results. The existing results of the completed action: reversionism. The process of this action started out with your reactor factors, then your reaction — frantic search for happiness, then the emotional revolt of the soul which closed down the valves in the right lobe or the heart, then negative volition toward doctrine, then the attack upon the right lobe through the vacuum through which Satanic doctrine goes, the destruction of the ECS, the blackout of the soul, the practice of reverse process reversionism. All of these things became a part of the picture and the intensive perfect emphasizes this particular function resulting in reversionism. The active voice: the reversionistic believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is the reality of reversionistic failure as specified. Nothing is worse for any believer than to be in reversionism in time of national disaster, you are under double pressure: the pressure of the spiritual conflict and the pressure of the disastrous historical movement that you face. Therefore the most miserable people alive are reversionists today because they cannot help but see something of what is going on, they cannot help but see the disaster course taken by the nation.

Watergate is a ludicrous situation. It is stupidity in high and low places; and it is amplified way out of its proportion. It is a political football. The people in this country are no longer able to think.

The word “such” is not found in the original. The word “have” is a present active participle of echō (ἔχω) [pronounced EHH-oh], and this time it does not mean to require because it is not in idiom with xreian, this time it stands alone — “the ones having need”, and again we have a retroactive progressive present in which this need has existed since they went into reversionism and the need exists right now. Ever since they went into reversionism they have needed to get some kind of spiritual food called milk.

The word for “milk” is a descriptive genitive singular from the noun gala, and this particular noun is used for very simple food. it is actually a metonym for basic doctrine necessary for recovery from reversionism.

1972 Hebrews 5:12b-14

Lesson #56

56 06/24/1973 Hebrews 5:12b-14 Royal righteousness

Bob is amazed how the American public has been so ignored. Totally out of the picture when it comes to what we want for government. 5000 officers in the United States army have been riffed. These are regular army types and they were dropped. This is another example of the immorality of our government. We have allowed any enemy of the United States to take television time on all networks. Bob watched a lousy filthy communist jackass speaking to the American people. On all 3 networks. Bob tried one more station and he found a Spanish speaking B&W movie. This made much more sense than the media of this United States to allow our enemies to speak. No American would be allowed to speak on a Communist network; Bob would not be allowed to speak. We have a government totally dedicated to evil.

Private Kessler, went towards a machine gun; he got within 50 yards of it, and then he went headlong towards it. He killed the gunner and his assistant. Overpowered a 3rd German after a short struggle. This was only one of the things he did. 2 prisoners tried to escape; Kessler stopped them and then captured 2 snipers.

The fight of the supergrace hero against all of the forces of hell.

The commissions of Bob, his father, and Bobby are quite similar. But changes made in Bobby's.

Hebrews 5:12 For though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you again the basic principles of the oracles of God. You need milk, not solid food, (ESV)

Milk is a metonym for basic doctrine. All of the doctrine in their souls have been lost. The solid food cannot be assimilated.

The parallel is to a child who must first have milk before he can start on solid foods.

Verse 12b — “strong meat.” The word “strong” is an adjective in the genitive singular, stergeōs, which means “solid.” The genitive is a genitive of description. Solid food means food assimilated by adults. And then we also have the genitive singular of the noun trophē which means food, not meat. What we have here is not so much a bad translation as a problem of anachronism. Meat used to be “food” 300 years ago in English and the word strong used to be “solid” or food that had great substance.

Hebrews 5:12 “For also because of the time [the national crisis] being obligated to be communicators of divine viewpoint [in time of crisis], you require once more teaching of certain things, the elementary principles of the doctrines from God; and you have become ones having need of milk, and not of solid food.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 5:13 for everyone who lives on milk is unskilled in the word of righteousness, since he is a child. (ESV)

Verse 13 — this is now amplified. We have an explanatory gar. This is used as a conjunctive particle to explain what is meant by the fact that you cannot take solid food into your soul. “Every one” is the nominative singular of pās (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and it refers to the reversionist. Reversionism has reached a new peak in Jerusalem and therefore this particular word is used.

“that useth” is incorrect. The present active participle of metechō (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKH-oh] means to partake or to assimilate. It can be translated “partaking” or “assimilating.” The present tense of the participle is a customary present for that which habitually occurs. The reversionist does not care for solid food, he does not like advanced doctrine. Among other things he isn’t interested in the royal priesthood, it has no more significance to him than positional sanctification has. The active voice: the reversionistic believer is producing the action. The action is partaking of milk only, he cannot take solid food. The participle is an ascriptive participle which ascribes a quality or characteristics to the reversionistic believer. The reversionistic believer is immature and like all immature types, whether in the spiritual realm or in the human realm, they demand entertainment, they demand that which is shallow, the demand the superficial, they cannot take anything that is deep.

The word for “milk” is an objective genitive, again, of the noun gala. The word “unskilled” is incorrect, it is the adjective a)peiroj and it means ignorant or stupid. It doesn’t mean stupid in the sense of not being able to learn, it means ignorant in the sense of being able to learn and having learned, having forgotten, and can no longer apply what was once known.

“in the word” is the descriptive genitive singular of logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss] which means doctrine — “of righteousness”, is “pertaining to righteousness.” We have a descriptive genitive of dikaiousunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay], Dikaiousunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay] describes the principle of righteousness in the sense of nobility. The ordinary Greek word for righteousness is dikaios (δικαιος) [pronounced DIH-kai-oss]. Dikaiousunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay] means not simply righteousness. The word says that if you are in a royal priesthood you must have with your royal priesthood a royal righteousness. A royal righteousness means nobility of character. Nobel righteousness, nobility were always famous for several things — recognizing the privacy of others, recognizing the freedom of others, the rights of others. That is the nobility of our priesthood. We are a royal priesthood and we are going to live like royal priests upon reaching supergrace. We will have every type of prosperity but there is also a prosperity of the soul. Dikaiousunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay] is prosperity of the soul, and prosperity of the soul has its own righteousness, which is right without self-righteousness. It is a divine righteousness. It is doing the right thing but not, as it were, rubbing it into everyone. It is being right without being offensive. Dikaiousunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay] is the soul righteousness of the priesthood. Here it is then: “For every one partaking of milk is ignorant of doctrine pertaining to royal righteousness.”

Has anyone told you they are right and you are wrong; did it make you feel good? This is righteousness without nobility. It is one thing to be right; and another to be noble about it. Being right and rubbing it in and thinking of new ways to rub it in the face of another. That is a total lack of nobility. That is being right and wrong at the same time.

We are born into this battalion; and therefore, we are born into this priesthood. God will not tolerate self-righteousness or lasciviousness.

Bob describes throwing an eraser being thrown at him. Bob was sitting in the back row as usual; and his friend in the front row. Bob filled the eraser with chalk and tossed it back. He ducked and Bob hit the woman right in the face. The girl who turned Bob in was very self-righteous; and she would have been a wonderful legalist today. All righteousness and no nobility. She made it a point of sitting near Bob and watching him, and to tattle on him. It was not gum but fenamint; 15 minutes after the class started, everyone got up and ran for the door. The teacher said what happened and the little girl said what Bob did. He found himself making the usual steps to the principal's office to explain what he did.

We are a royal priesthood; and this dikaiosunê is about being right without being offensive.

Hebrews 5:13 for everyone partaking of milk is ignorant of doctrine pertaining to royal righteousness because he is immature. R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

“for he is a babe” — “he is” is the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]: “keeps on being immature.” This is present linear aktionsart. A baby always looks awful, smells awful and you always have to do something to it. The active voice: it refers to the reversionist. The indicative mood is the reality of his condition; “a babe” — the Greek word is nêpios (νήπιος) [pronounced NAY-pee-os], which means a minor, an immature person, a person who grows physically without maturing soulishly. Here it has the connotation of spiritual immaturity. There is, of course, a definite relationship between the spiritually immature type of person and the person who is non-adult as a member of the human race. When you have a believer in both status's then this compounds the problem. it is very hard for a believer to grow up spiritually and at the same time to be growing up mentally. This is why some people find it so difficult to reach supergrace, because while they are consistent they are overcoming two problems at the same time and not one. This is why it takes so long for some believers to make supergrace, because doctrine must not only overcome spiritual immaturity it must also over come human immaturity.

True sensitivity recognizes live and let live; good manners and thoughtfulness of others.

Furthermore, people who are humanly childish have a very difficult time concentrating. Bob recognizes a woman in the congregation who is chewing on her nails; and she is immature. Doubly difficult for her to reach supergrace because doctrine has to overcome spiritual immaturity and human immaturity. Humanly childish people have a very difficult time concentrating. Human immaturity keeps you sidetracked and hard to grow from there.

The word “for” is an explanatory use of gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] and should be translated “because”; “because he is immature.”

Hebrews 5:14 But solid food is for the mature, for those who have their powers of discernment trained by constant practice to distinguish good from evil. (ESV)

Verse 14 — “But.” We have a conjunctive particle de used to connect two clauses when there is a contrast between the clauses. Here the contrast is between the immature reversionist of the previous verse and the mature supergrace believer of this verse. It is possible to move in to solid food but solid food. Again we have stereoj and trofh — “belongeth.” This is not quite correct, we have the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] which means “to be”, or literally, “keeps on being.”

“to them” — eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] plus “to them” means to possess — “solid food possessed to them that are of full age”. However, téleios (τέλειος) [pronounced TEHL-i-os] means “mature.”

“those” the genitive plural of the definite article which modifies téleios (τέλειος) [pronounced TEHL-i-os] means “the ones.” This is an appositional genitive.

“who by reason of use” is incorrect. We have dia plus the accusative of e(cij), and e(cij) means “skill”, acquired through practice or discipline. It comes to mean self-discipline. Lack of self-discipline is a sign of immaturity. Mature people, humanly speaking, have great self-discipline; immature people do not have self-discipline.

“have” — the present active participle of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh] brings out the basic meaning of this verb. echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh] means to have and to hold.

“there senses” — ajsqhthrion means perceptive faculties. In other words, if you are a mature person when you accept Christ as Savior you have the ability to concentrate. No matter how boring or how difficult you can concentrate. But at the same time you contribute in other ways. You may be saved for a short time but you have excellent manners. You are thoughtful of those around you, you do not wiggle or squirm or move or do something to demonstrate immaturity. You not only have manners but also a recognition of authority, and even though you may not be understanding what is taught at the moment you demonstrate maturity by excellent poise and self-discipline in a teaching situation. This again is a sign of maturity and it makes it easier for you to move on. Your maturity plus the filling of the Holy Spirit causes you to concentrate and in the intensity of your concentration you are able to acquire more information much more quickly than the one who is immature.

“exercised” — the perfect passive participle of gumnazô (γυμνάζω) [pronounced goom-NAD-zo], from which we get the English word “gymnasium.” It means to be trained by extreme self-discipline applied to exercise. The perfect tense is the intensive perfect which indicates the completed action with emphasis on the existing results. The passive voice: the subject receives the action of the verb — mental faculties for perception are acquired through self discipline, and this self-discipline is brought into the Christian life with speeded-up results under the function of GAP. The participle is a modal participle which signifies the manner in which the action of the main verb is accomplished. The main verb means to keep on having their perceptive faculties. We translate it “well-trained.”

“to discern” — this is a prepositional phrase, not a verb: pros plus the accusative of diakrisis (κρίσις) [pronounced KREE-sihs], which means “discernment.”

“the good and the evil” — the word “good” is the descriptive genitive singular of kalos (καλός) [pronounced kal-OSS] and should be translated “noble”; and it is followed by the adjective kakoj, and should be translated “the honourable and the bad [or evil].” The word “honourable” refers to the supergrace function of the royal priesthood; “evil” refers to the function of the priest in reversionism. So the two adjectives describe the two conditions of the royal priesthood. Some have moved toward supergrace and their function is honourable in the royal priesthood. Some, on the other hand, are functioning under reversionism and they are evil or bad.

Hebrews 5:14 “But solid food [advanced doctrine] is belonging to the mature [the growing believer or the one who has reached supergrace], the ones because of self-discipline keep having their perceptive faculties well-trained with reference to differentiating between both the honourable and the evil.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. Only the supergrace believer can distinguish between the honourable function of supergrace and the evil function of the reversionist.
2. The supergrace believer in addition to supergrace blessing knows what he is doing and where he is going. This is something no reversionist understands, and no Christian understands, until he reaches supergrace.
3. Solid food or doctrine in the soul not only gives capacity for love but capacity for life and blessing which calls the believer to emerge into tactical victory of the angelic conflict. And he emerges not only with tactical victory but, attached to it, honour and nobility of righteousness. This is in contrast to legalistic self-righteousness.
4. Only the supergrace believer related to the strategic victory of the cross, resurrection, ascension and session, with the tactical victory of the supergrace status can appreciate where he has been and where he is going.
5. God vindicates His Word in the soul of the supergrace believer. Therefore the supergrace believer is not only noble in righteousness and functions under the royal priesthood but he is a winner.
6. God has designed solid food [doctrine] and the believer to meet in the study of the Word of God to merge with doctrine so that he becomes a winner. Doctrine was always a winner. Satan has tried to knock out doctrine for thousands of years but God has stored doctrine in a container called the canon of scripture, and doctrine has always been a winner. Satan has never been able to knock out the Bible. You cannot merge with doctrine without coming out a winner yourself.
7. God loves a winner. God hates [anthropopathism] losers in the Christian life because they all go out under the sin unto death before their time. There is no excuse for any believer not being a winner.
8. This verse describes a winner, but remember this passage is addressed to losers, to reversionists.
9. The purpose of this section of scripture is to convert losers into winners.

10. God is glorified by winners, and the only winners in the Christian way of life are supergrace types. God is disappointed by losers and He expresses His disappointment by the sin unto death.

57 06/25/1973 Hebrews 6:1a Doctrine of the supergrace life

Congressional Medal of Honor was given to 19 men from the same movement. Bob reads from a green book. He found a Marine, apparently reading this for a friend. Howard B. Lee, in Vietnam.

Chapter 6

In chapter six we deal with the subject of reversion recovery, and the principle of reversion recovery is given in the first six verses. The chapter is divided into two parts. The first six verses deal with the principle of reversion recovery and verses seven through twenty deal with the illustrations of reversion recovery. As we begin in verse one we notice the principle of GAP in reversion recovery — verses 1,2.

Heb 6:1 Therefore let us leave the elementary doctrine of Christ and go on to maturity, not laying again a foundation of repentance from dead works and of faith toward God, (ESV)

We begin with an inferential conjunction dió (διό) [pronounced DEE-oh] which means either “therefore”, “for this reason”, or “because of.” Because the recipients of this epistle are in reversionism, because the time is short, because of the angelic conflict and its strategic victory and therefore tactical implications, and because the recipients of this epistle must recover from reversionism as quickly as possible, a command is given which sets up the principle for reversion recovery.

“Therefore leaving” is the beginning of a command. The aorist active participle from aphíêmi (ἀφίημι) [pronounced af-EE-ay-mee] means several things. It means to leave behind, to depart, to depart from in the sense of graduation here. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist which contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety but emphasizes the results. The action of the verb in its entirety is GAPing it through Bible doctrine so that one graduates from basic doctrine. Being an aorist participle it should be translated “having graduated.” The active voice: a recovery from reversionism produces the action of the verb and the recoveror is relearning basic doctrine pertaining to Christ. The participle has antecedent action relative to the main verb. The main verb is “let us go on” or “let us advance.”

“the principles” — the word “principles” is a descriptive genitive singular from the noun arkhê, which generally means “in the beginning.” Archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAY] has other related meanings, one of them being “elementary”, and that is the use here in the sense of elementary doctrine, basic doctrine. Note, however, that this is not the object of the participle. The true object of the participle is given in this fashion in the accusative form of ton logon. This is “the doctrine” or “the word” and it is in the accusative case. Every major translator has failed to translate this phrase correctly and yet it is simple. dio (διό) [pronounced DEE-oh] a)fentej is how it begins — “Therefore having graduated.” That is the form of the aorist active participle of aphîemi (ἀφίημι) [pronounced af-EE-ay-mee]. Then the very next thing that we have is a definite article in the accusative, ton. But with that definite article the noun is not next to it. After ton we have thj archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAYj] tou Xristou, which is genitive, but ton is accusative. So obviously the object of the participle must be in the accusative. So you have thj a)rhj tou Xristou, descriptive genitive, which means “the elementary of the Christ”. Now, “having graduated from” and the object of this particular preposition is not “the elementary of the Christ,” the object comes next in the sentence — logon, which goes with ton. “Therefore having graduated”, aorist active participle, “from the.” You know “the” comes next because it is in the accusative, but thj archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAYj] tou Xristou is genitive, and then comes the accusative, “the logon” or “the doctrine”. So we have, “Therefore having graduated from the doctrine.” What doctrine? The elementary doctrine necessary for reversion recovery. The object of the preposition is “the doctrine” — ton logon.

Bob has not found any translation which gets this right, including the NASB (which name he could not recall). You cannot put an accusative and a genitive together; that is strictly stupid. Apparently there is a separation between the definite article and the noun it goes with it.

Then we have what kind of doctrine: genitives of description, four of them; thj, the genitive article, it goes with archê (ἀρχή) [pronounced ar-KHAYj] — “the elementary”; tou Xristou — “of the Christ.” Those are all descriptive genitives to tell us that not all basic doctrine is involved but only basic doctrine in the field of Christology. Corrected translation so far: “Therefore having graduated from the elementary [doctrine] of the Christ.” The descriptive genitive is put in the genitive for a reason: to show you that when you have six items coming up this is the title of the item. Thj a)xhj tou Xristou is the formal title of the list, or it is the descriptive title of the list. Those six items all relate to the elementary doctrines pertaining to the Lord Jesus Christ. It isn’t the list but it describes the list. The elementary doctrines of Christ include other things — the incarnation, the hypostatic union, the King-priest, the sacrifice of Himself on the cross, the perpetuation of His priesthood through resurrection, ascension and session, the strategic victory of the angelic conflict, our relationship to the strategic victory through the baptism of the Spirit and the subsequent positional truth. All of these things will be developed along the way but you have to have some basic things on which to start.

First of all we have a command. It is in the present middle subjunctive form and it is translated “let us go on,” and that is not correct: phérô (φέρω) [pronounced FEH-row] means to bear or to carry. It means to bear down, and eventually because it means that, it means to advance. It doesn’t mean to go on, it means to advance. The present tense is a tendential present, it is used of an action which is purposed or intended where it is not actually taking place. That means that they are not bearing down, they are not advancing, they are retreating. So the present tense is used in the Greek to represent the idea of what is intended by the command in the subjunctive mood. Advance is what they are not doing but should be doing. The middle voice describes the subject as participating in the action of the verb. But the subject isn't participating because it is in the tendential present, and therefore the tendential present plus the subjunctive means that this is a command, this is what you should be doing. The subject acts with a view toward participating in the outcome of the verbs action. In this case the believers should learn basic doctrine and therefore participate in the advance toward supergrace. So this is what is called a direct middle, it refers the results of the action directly to the agent with reflexing force and therefore it should be translated, "let us advance ourselves" .If this was an indirect middle it would be "let us ourselves advance."

Question: How do you advance yourself? You advance yourself by relearning basic doctrine specified in context, or any basic doctrine you need to relearn in recovering from your own brand of reversionism. Remember here we are dealing with legalistic reversionism. There are many categories of reversionism, all of them require learning some phase of basic doctrine. The subjunctive mood is a hortatory subjunctive in which the writer commands to reader to join him in a course if action — advancing toward supergrace where the normal function of the priesthood exists.

Next we have a prepositional phrase: "unto perfection." We have a preposition ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative of teleiothj, which means maturity. ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] can mean three different things as a preposition. Here we have ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative of teleiotês (τελειότης) [pronounced tehl-ee-OHT-ace], and this means one thing. It emphasizes motion or direction. But ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the genitive means "on" or "before", because ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the genitive emphasizes contact. The Holy Spirit does not use the genitive here because there is no contact with supergrace — not yet. Then we have ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative which means "over", "before, or "at", and emphasizes position. The position of these people is not in supergrace, therefore no ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative. We have ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative which means toward, up to, over to. It emphasizes direction and is the concept here. So we can translate this, "let us advance our selves on to maturity." Maturity here refers to the supergrace life, the normal place for the function of the royal priesthood. The royal priesthood is associated with royal living, royal wealth, royal promotion, royal success, and royal blessing.

That brings us to the great contrast. We have at this point before these people reversionism versus supergrace, the ultimate issue in the Christian life.

The Doctrine of the Supergrace Life

1. Supergrace is a term that represents maturity, the final stage of growth beyond the ECS, as the objective of the Christian life.
2. Since this objective is strictly a grace action, and since it is the human volition involved in the grace action, it is distinguished from the grace by which you live, the grace that keeps you alive. It is so distinguished in James 4:6 where we have grace preceded by the word meizwn which means "greater" grace, and greater grace is simply, in modern English, supergrace. There are, therefore, four categories of grace involved in the plan for the believer:

- a. Salvation or phase one grace. This is everything that God planned, everything that Christ did on the cross, everything that the Holy Spirit revealed. This is the sum total of the work of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit by which each one of us is saved. This type of grace does involve volition and positive volition is non-meritorious, therefore “Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved.”
  - b. Living grace or phase two grace. No volition is involved. Whether we like it or not we are kept alive on this earth and the means by which we are kept alive in the angelic conflict is strictly divine provision. It may include everything from food, shelter and clothing to keeping a battalion of demons of your back at some given time, protecting you in many ways and assigning to you a personal angel valet to protect you and keep you on this earth as a part of God’s will for your life.
  - c. Super or greater grace. Supergrace involves volition and positive volition is now expressed in a non-meritorious way toward doctrine, the written Word. This appears to be the first stage of spiritual maturity.
  - d. Surpassing grace. This is phase three grace and no volition is involved, the angelic conflict is over. Supergrace, then, is one of the categories of grace involved in the life of every believer. It is the one category of grace that most believers have chosen to omit. This category of grace is the one that the fewest believers in heaven can say that they possessed on earth. It is the one category of grace where the believer is involved in tactical victory. The first category of grace, salvation grace, is strategic victory. The second, and as a result of that, is where God keeps us alive in phase two. Tactical victory is supergrace. Ultimate victory is surpassing grace — Ephesians 2:5. The principle of supergrace is very important because in this generation at least probably one per cent of all Christians will know anything about supergrace, they will never reach it; yet it is the only way in which you and I as believers can glorify God. The reason that believers will not reach it is because they have a lousy, no-good attitude toward Bible doctrine, or they do not have the guts to take it in every day, they always have something else to do. These gutless wonders never know what it is all about and they are suckers for everything that comes along. Make up your damn minds about what you are going to do. “With talk like that, I don’t think I will stick around.” “I don’t really give a damn about that.” Dropping in occasionally is not going to get the job done at all. You cannot grow up on 2 or 3 sermonettes a week. You are in Houston, you might as well get with it.
  - e. Dying grace (not covered)
3. The supergrace life is characterized by the cup that runs over — Psalm 23:5. The cup is supergrace capacity. The cup refers to an invisible cup in the soul, a cup which can only exist through doctrine. This cup is made up of doctrine in the human spirit, doctrine in the right lobe, doctrine in the ECS. The ECS is the thing that holds everything up — like the stem on a wine glass — and that puts it all together, provides storage space for capacity. So that stem is important. Bob teaches about how to drink in a stemmed glass. Bible doctrine in your soul is supergrace capacity. Before you finally reach supergrace, and the stem is completed which is occupation with the person of Christ, occupation with Christ is the key to enjoying what God the Father pours into your cup. The objective of supergrace is to reach this capacity so that the supergrace blessings which were stored for you in eternity past can be poured. And these supergrace blessings run in all varieties of things related even to human happiness. Money, for example, success, promotion, prosperity, are the way that God pours. Why does God have to do it that way? Because, firstly, occupation with Christ gives you the blessing of realizing the source. Secondly, supergrace capacity or doctrine gives you the soul ability to enjoy every materialistic thing in life, and to do it under the devil's nose in the devil's world when the whole system of the cosmos is designed to lure people into its trap in order to provide cosmic blessing. And when God can pour for you He is glorified. He is the host. The ECS holds up the cup, and when the stem snaps the cup tilts and the contents depart. So the characteristics of the supergrace life are:

- a. Occupation with the person of Jesus Christ, maximum category #1 love and happiness. This is related to the living Word.
  - b. Supergrace capacity based upon doctrine. This is related to the written Word.
  - c. The royal priesthood demands royal living, and that is what is poured.
  - d. There was no money or prosperity in the garden. There was good food and sex. But the devil sets up many of the standards after the fall.
  - e. Gold has a great deal of intrinsic value. Gold is found in the earth, and the earth belongs to the devil. But God graces believers out. Every supergrace believer is a thorn in the devil's side; proof that grace will always triumph. Our tactical objective is to reach supergrace; and we will like it.
4. The distinction of grace. Supergrace is distinguished from other forms of grace. Supergrace is that type of grace which is classified verbally by James 4:6 — Greater grace. Grace is God's eternal provision apart from human volition.
  5. The analogy of grace. Supergrace is analogous to God resting on the seventh day of restoration — Hebrews 4:3, 10. He was done providing; nothing left for Him to do.
  6. The love problem. God loves every believer with maximum love. God loves you. He found a way to love you without compromising His character. The doctrine is called propitiation. The believer's love response is something else, and that is where the problem is. The supergrace believer loves God as per Romans 8:28 and 1John 4:19. He has the capacity to love God, that is a part of the stem or the ECS. God's love for the supergrace believer, therefore, is expressed in blessing. But God has to express His love for the reversionist in another way — Hebrews 12:6, "Whom the Lord loves he chastens." The supergrace believer loves God because he has the capacity; the reversionistic believer does not love God and does not have the capacity to respond to God's love.
  7. The key to the supergrace life begins with a happiness spectrum. The supergrace life is the place of maximum God-given happiness — Philippians 4:4; 1Thessalonians 5:16. This happiness is acquired through the intake of doctrine — 1John 1:4. The same doctrine which provides +H produces supergrace happiness.

8. The celebrityship of Christ. The supergrace believer has maximum love and appreciation of Jesus Christ. He is a royal priest with a maximum love of the King high priest — Lamentations 3:22–25; Hebrews 12:2; Colossians 3:1,2. The celebrityship of Christ is tested in your life by the communion table. The communion is a ritual and the test of your love for Jesus Christ, or your love response, is always brought in focus by the communion.
9. The capacity factor is very important. The supergrace believer has capacity in the following categories: Freedom — Galatians 5:1; James 1:25–2:12; Romans 8:21; 2Corinthians 3:17; Capacity for life — 1Samuel 17:47; 18:5, 14, 30; Capacity for love: Category #1 — Deut. 6:6; 30:20; Joshua 23:10,11; Category #2 love — Song of Solomon 8:6,7; Category #3 love — 2Samuel 1:26; Happiness — Psalm 9:1,2; 21:1; 31:7; 43:4; 97:12; John 17:13; 1John 1:4; Suffering — 2Corinthians 12:7–10.
10. The availability of supergrace is glamorized even in Isaiah 30:18 where Jesus Christ under the anthropomorphism of tapping His foot is waiting to give you these blessings. He has stored them up for you in eternity past and He is waiting to give them to you now.
11. The promotion of supergrace is the subject of Psalm 84. The illustration is found in 1Samuel 17.

Hebrews 6:1 “Therefore having graduated from the elementary doctrines of the Christ” — the incarnation, the hypostatic union, the King-priest, the sacrifice of Himself on the cross, the perpetuation of His priesthood in resurrection, ascension and session, the strategic victory of the angelic conflict, our relation to the strategic victory through the baptism of the Spirit and subsequent positional truth, and many other classified areas of Christology and soteriology — “let us bear down [press on, advance] to maturity.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This advance is toward the tactical victory of the angelic conflict and is being held up by the reversionism of the people to whom this passage is being addressed — “not laying again the foundation.”

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #58

58 06/26/1973 Hebrews 6:1b Doctrines of repentance, human good

2 Medal of Honor recipients. Bob reads the corrected translation of the first 6 verses.

Heb 6:1 Therefore let us leave the elementary doctrine of Christ and go on to maturity, not laying again a foundation of repentance from dead works and of faith toward God,

Bob is going to try to cover these 6 verses by the end of the week. Bob reviews some exegesis done previously. The elementary doctrine of Christ includes the incarnation, the sacrifice of Himself on the cross; resurrection, ascension and session; our relationship to the strategic victory, etc.

Most of these prepositions mean different things depending upon the case. Epi + genitive emphasizes contact; + the accusative emphasizes direction.

“not laying again” — present middle participle of kataballō (καταβάλλω) [pronounced kat-ab-AHL-low]. katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] here means “down”; bállō (βάλλω) [pronounced BAWL-low] means to “lay.” It means to lay down a foundation. However, it has a negative with it and therefore it changes its meaning. The tense is present tense, it is called an iterative present which describes what occurs at successive intervals. The laying of the foundation of basic doctrine has occurred before and must now occur again. They must repeat, they must relearn what they have once learned before but have lost through reversionism. This time it must be the last time. That is what the negative mê means, it is a subjective negative and it means “this is your last crack at it and you’d better learn it this time and stay with it or you’re through”, the reason being the condition of history at the time of writing. Then we have an adverb, palin again. The word means the idea of returning or turning back to repeat a course of action, and the reversion recovery demands that they turn around and repeat a previous course of action; that is, they must relearn the basic doctrines, especially certain ones to help them to understand what is coming up in this book.

“the foundation” — the accusative singular from qemelioj which refers to the basic doctrines of Christology which are necessary to understand this epistle. It does not mean all of the doctrines, but certain doctrines must be understood of they are going to understand the royal priesthood and how it differentiates from the previous Levitical priesthood. They must be very clear on which they find themselves. They are in the royal priesthood, not the Levitical priesthood. So they must learn a foundation. No one can understand the royal priesthood apart from mastering certain basic doctrines first. Now follows a list of six items which are absolutely necessary to understand chapters seven, eight, nine, and ten.

“repentance” is the genitive singular of metánoia (μετάνοια) [pronounced met-AHN-oy-ah], and this particular word is a descriptive genitive. It means a change of mind, a change of mind with regard to “dead works”, the preposition apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS], the ablative of ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon], which means “away from dead works.” Ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon] means production, nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] means dead, and it should be translated “of a change of mind away from dead works.”

The Doctrine of Repentance

1. The word for repent used in the Old Testament is nacham. It is generally used in the Old Testament for God, God is the subject. So obviously it doesn’t mean to feel sorry for sin. When God is the subject it is an anthropathism and it means that God changes His policy from time to time and this anthropopathism is used to indicate a change of policy. In Genesis 6:6 God changed His policy about man; Exodus 32:14; Judges 2:18; 1Samuel 15:35; Psalm 90:13; Jeremiah 15:6; 42:10; Amos 7:3, 6.

2. Since God is immutable, therefore unchangeable, these expressions — such as God repents — are anthropopathisms. They are designed to explain changes in policy, divine acts of discipline, in terms of human attitudes or expressions. This is what we call, therefore, language of accommodation: ascribing to God a characteristic He doesn't have to accommodate us so we can understand.
3. We have a Greek verb, metanoéō (μετανοέω) [pronounced meh-tah-noh-EH-oh] which is translated “repent.” Meta means “change; noéō (νοέω) [pronounced noh-EH-oh] means thinking. It means to change your mind about something. Metanoéō (μετανοέω) [pronounced meh-tah-noh-EH-oh], when the subject is man, means a change of mental attitude with limited ability to follow through. When God is the subject in the New Testament metanoéō (μετανοέω) [pronounced meh-tah-noh-EH-oh] means a change of policy with total ability to follow through. We also have an emotional verb which is translated “repent” — metamélomai (μεταμέλομαι) [pronounced meh-tah-MEH-loh-my], which means to feel sorry for something you've done. In other words, this verb has emotional connotations. It should be translated correctly, “regret.” It is often translated “repent” but repent does not mean to regret and regret does not mean to repent.
4. Metanoéō (μετανοέω) [pronounced meh-tah-noh-EH-oh] and nacham are both transitive verbs, they must have a subject and must have an object. The subject changes its mind about the object.
5. Meta noéō (νοέω) [pronounced noh-EH-oh] and its cognate is used in salvation. In each case we have a subject and an object of the verb metanoéō (μετανοέω) [pronounced meh-tah-noh-EH-oh]. In salvation the subject is always the unbeliever, the object is always God. In each case the unbeliever is the subject and the object is Jesus Christ as a member of the Godhead. In a few cases God the Father is the object as the author of the divine plan of grace. Because He is the author of the divine plan some of the passages talk about repentance toward God. Others talk about repentance toward Christ. Actually they are synonymous terms. A change of mental attitude does not save but it is immediately followed by believing in Christ. You change your mental attitude before you believe, you are persuaded before you believe and then you believe in Christ. So repentance and faith are not the same. Faith is necessary for salvation; repentance sets you up for it. Repentance causes you to change your mind so that from your own free will you are willing to make a decision. Cf. Mark 1:15; Matthew 12:41; Luke 13:3, 5; 15:7, 10. The unbeliever does not repent toward sin, he repents toward God — God's message, the Gospel. We also have Luke 16:30,31; Acts 17:30; 20:21; 26:20; Hebrews 12:17; 2Peter 3:9.
  - a. There is no repentance of sins for salvation.
  - b. The sinner changes his mind towards God. Then he believes. Repenting is changing the mind.
  - c. Bob talks about a woman wearing a hat.

6. Salvation repentance is defined as a change of attitude toward God, toward Jesus Christ, prior to faith in Jesus Christ. This change of mental attitude is wrought by God the Holy Spirit. This is the illuminating work of the Spirit, based upon 1Corinthians 2:14 — the natural man cannot understand the things of the Spirit of God, etc. The Holy Spirit acts as a human spirit in the perception of the Gospel — Psalm 16:8–11; 2Timothy 2:25.
7. The verb metanoéō (μετανοέω) [pronounced meh-tah-noh-EH-oh] and the noun metánoia (μετάνοια) [pronounced met-AHN-oy-ah] are also used in the Christian life. For example, in our passage a change of mental attitude toward human good — Hebrews 6:1. It is used as a change of attitude toward doctrine in reversionism — Revelation 2:5, 16, 22; 3:19; 2Corinthians 12:21.
8. Metamélomai (μεταμέλομαι) [pronounced meh-tah-MEH-loh-my] is translated “repent” but it should be translated “regret”, it connotes feeling sorry for something you have done, regretting some act or some thought or some function. There are four uses of metamélomai (μεταμέλομαι) [pronounced meh-tah-MEH-loh-my]:
  - a. regret of a previous action — Matthew 21:29;
  - b. the regret of Judas Iscariot — Matthew 27:3, his regret was strictly emotional with no spiritual connotation;
  - c. then we have God as the subject. God has no regrets regarding saving individuals and giving them spiritual gifts — Romans 11:29;
  - d. the Father has no regrets regarding appointing Jesus Christ as a high priest — Hebrews 7:21.
9. Metánoia (μετάνοια) [pronounced met-AHN-oy-ah] is used in Romans 2:4; 2Corinthians 7:9,10; 2Peter 3:9; Acts 20:21.

What are “dead works” ? A change of mind from dead works.

The Doctrine of Human Good

1. Human good is dead to God’s plan. That is why in Hebrews 6:1 nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] is used. God is not impressed with anything you do in the energy of the flesh. Jesus does not like dead works.
2. Human good is not acceptable to human good at any time — Isaiah 64:6. Menstrual rags.
3. Therefore human good has no place in the plan of God — 2Timothy 1:9.
4. However, when you classify human good you have to be very careful not to step on morality’s toes. We must distinguish between human good and morality because morality is legitimate in God’s plan and human good is not legitimate in God’s plan — Romans 13:4,5. Morality is a part of the function of the laws of establishment and is necessary for the perpetuation and proper function of the human race under the angelic conflict. It is moral to kill criminals. Often human good comes along and does the opposite. Marvin Zindler uncovered something.
  - a. Human good rejects divine establishment.
  - b. Morality supports divine establishment. Establishment produces morality.

5. Human good will not save mankind — Titus 3:5.
6. The believer's human good is revealed and destroyed at the judgment seat of Christ. There will be no dirty clothes in heaven — 1Corinthians 3:11–15. The bride is going to be dressed up in clean clothes and in a resurrection body minus the old sin nature we are not permitted to take along with us human good.
  - a. Bob was taught to avoid good deed doers.
  - b. You do not have to be a Christian to smell out the stench of a human gooder.
7. Human good is the basis for the unbeliever's indictment at the last judgment — Revelation 20:12–15. All the good deed doers and they think their good deeds will get them into heaven.
8. Human good can only produce human boasting — Ephesians 2:9; Romans 4:2.

Now we have some concept of the first item in this list of doctrines.

“and of faith toward God”: “faith” is a descriptive genitive singular, pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. It is used three ways when it is directed toward God. In phase one pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] Christ is the object of faith in salvation. Phase two pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]: the written Word is the object of faith in faith-rest. Along with that, pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] is used for what is believed, or doctrine, and this gives the believer capacity for faith toward God.

This is said to be “toward God” and it is a correct translation because it is epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative, and with the accusative it is motion or direction — “toward God.” The absence of the definite article calls attention to the quality of the noun. The quality of the noun is the sum total of perfect. In essence God is perfect as well as eternal.

Hebrews 6:1 “Therefore having graduated from the elementary doctrines of the Christ” — the incarnation, the hypostatic union, the King-priest, the sacrifice of Himself on the cross, the perpetuation of His priesthood in resurrection, ascension and session, the strategic victory of the angelic conflict, our relation to the strategic victory through the baptism of the Spirit and subsequent positional truth, and many other classified areas of Christology and soteriology — “let us bear down [press on, advance] ourselves to maturity [supergrace], not laying again the foundations of a change of mind away from dead works and of faith towards God.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

1972 Hebrews 6:2a; 5:8

Lesson #59

59 06/27/1973 Hebrews 6:2a; 5:8 Doctrine of baptisms; laying on of hands

Reese Huchins taught his dog to drive?

Bob skipped the exegesis of this verse:

Heb 5:8 Although he was a son, he learned obedience through what he suffered.

Hebrews 5:8 — the word “Though” is a compound conjunction, kaiper (καίπερ) [pronounced KAH-ee-per],. Kaiper (καίπερ) [pronounced KAH-ee-per], when used with a participle means although and therefore kaiper (καίπερ) [pronounced KAH-ee-per], is what is called a concessive conjunction admitting a point claimed in an argument or acquiescent to a point in an argument. It is recognized that Jesus Christ is eternal God even though in the previous verse we saw Him suffering as a man on the cross. Therefore “though” should be “although” as a concessive conjunction. Actually, a concessive conjunction came from the Attic Greeks where they used this as a part of debater’s technique. It is not so used in the Koine Greek, it is used to recognize a point and to bring it in and to introduce it relating here, of course to the celebrity ship of Jesus Christ. We are finding Jesus Christ is His humanity as a royal high priest. As a royal high priest he has to be a man, is a man, functions like a man, and has to learn certain things in the human race. And although it is admitted that Jesus Christ is eternal God, the sovereign and creator of the universe, in His humanity these things were true.

“he were” — present active participle from eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] which means “being.” The present tense is a static present, it represents a condition which is assumed as perpetually existing, and the condition which is perpetually existing is the hypostatic union. Jesus Christ is the God-Man, undiminished deity and true humanity in one person forever. The active voice: Christ produces the action of the verb as our royal high priest. Christ has to be resurrected to continue His priestly ministry and to perpetuated it forever as demanded by the divine decrees. The participle goes with kaiper (καίπερ) [pronounced KAH-ee-per], it is a concessive participle, it recognizes the deity of Christ as a part of the hypostatic union but in this passage is going to deal with something His humanity had to learn — deity learns nothing, deity is omniscient.

“a Son” is a correct translation. We have the noun huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS] without the definite article, which is the antithesis of the use of the definite article in the English language. The definite article in the English language adds emphasis to the quality of the noun; the definite article in the Greek merely defines the noun, but the absence of the definite article emphasizes its quality. Therefore when you translate this literally you get “a Son” but it means a son in the sense of absolute deity. Jesus Christ is eternal God, always was, there never was a time when He wasn’t .He is coequal and coeternal with the Father and with the Holy Spirit, having identical essence with them. it is conceded, then, from the Greek that Christ is eternal God.

“yet” — this is used to translate the concessive participle, and there is no “yet” in the Greek — “learned he”, aorist active indicative from the verb manthanô (μανθάνω) [pronounced mahn-THAHN-oh]. Manthanô (μανθάνω) [pronounced mahn-THAHN-oh] means to learn from someone as a teacher, to learn through instruction. The aorist tense is an ingressive aorist. This signifies the action at its beginning though it regards the verbal idea, sees the action in its entirety. The ingressive aorist signifies the action at its beginning, a state or condition of obedience to authority is signified. It denotes entrance into a state or condition in order to learn obedience to authority. The key to everything in life, the key to victory in the angelic conflict, strategic and tactical involves self-discipline, recognition of authority, obedience to authority, and more self-discipline. You are free to use every form of self-discipline, every system of obedience to authority authorized by the Word of God. Manthanô (μανθάνω) [pronounced mahn-THAHN-oh] means to learn the hard way under a system of absolute discipline, it means to learn by recognition of authority. The ingressive aorist means this recognition of Jesus Christ began at some point. He recognized the authority of His parents, He recognized the authority of Israel, He went into the temple when He was twelve to hear the Word of God by the Levitical priesthood, He recognized every system of authority in life. He was obedient to those authorities. The active voice: the humanity of Christ produces the action of the verb — learning obedience, learning discipline. The indicative mood is the reality of Christ's orientation to the authority of the Father and the Father's plan during the incarnation. "Although being a Son [deity], he [Christ] began to learn."

When a man enters the military, he surrenders his freedom to the military. When a woman enters into marriage, she surrenders her freedom to her husband.

"obedience" is the accusative singular from the noun hupakoê (ὑπακοή) [pronounced hoop-ak-oh-AY]. It connotes obedience to the authority of God the Father who is the author of the plan. He was obedient to the Father, His person, He was obedient to His plan [the Word of God]. This same principle applies in growing up. The pastor teacher is a person with a message, and in getting to supergrace there must be obedience to the person, there must be obedience to the message — recognition of the authority of both. Hupakoê (ὑπακοή) [pronounced hoop-ak-oh-AY] is the quintessence of obedience.

Niles Kinney represents everything about football that was great. They inspired other men under them. They worked out harder than anyone else. Great self-discipline; and great team leadership. He died in WWII. Any lion can grow a mane; it takes a real man to cut it off.

The pastor-teacher is a person with a message. To grow up as a believer, one must recognize the authority of the pastor-teacher.

Then it says, "by the things which he suffered." "By the things" is the preposition apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative plural of the relative pronoun hôs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç] — this means source, and it means "from the source of the things which he suffered." In other words, there are certain principles in life, certain disciplines in life, certain concepts in life that you can only learn through suffering. This is why the military used to put its recruits through the paces; they suffered in training. There is a lot of suffering and self-sacrifice.

"suffered" is the aorist active indicative of paschô/pathô/penthô (πάσχω/πάθω/πένθω) [pronounced PAHS-khoh/PATH-oh/PEHN-thoh]. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it gathers up into one entirety the sufferings of the Lord Jesus Christ during the incarnation. Remember that the aorist tense can be very short or very long. In the case of the Lord Jesus Christ we know that this was approximately thirty-three years. This constative aorist gathers up into one ball of wax the sufferings of the incarnation that caused Jesus Christ to recognize the authority of the Father and acquiesce to His plan. The active voice: Christ produces the action of the verb, suffering during the incarnation, but suffering for a purpose: to learn from obedience, to learn discipline. The indicative mood is the reality of Christ's suffering during the incarnation. This suffering became discipline to prepare Christ for the cross where He performed His priestly function of offering Himself. No suffering, no self-discipline; no obedience to authority. No obedience to authority; no salvation. The discipline from suffering caused Christ to say in Gethsemane, "Nevertheless not my will but thine be done" — Matthew 26:39.

Suffering becomes a discipline, a system of training for absolute obedience in the time of crisis. The time of crisis for the Lord Jesus Christ was Gethsemane when He faced from His free will to go to the cross or not to go to the cross. In His deity He could easily have turned His back and said I will not go to the cross, but in His humanity He had learned obedience through suffering, and therefore was willing to go to the cross for you and for me.

He began to learn is an Ingressive aorist; He suffered is a constative aorist; completing the training is the culminative aorist. The dramatic aorist is the obedience to God's plan.

Having completed His disciplinary training is the culminated aorist. These 4 aorist tenses tell the story of Jesus Christ going to the cross. A phenomenal self-discipline.

Hebrews 5:8 "Although being a Son, he entered into learning obedience to authority from the things which he suffered." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Back to our passage:

Bob first reviews the corrected translation of Hebrews 6.

Stonewall Jackson was one of the most disciplined soldiers ever. He defeated 4 union generals in his valley campaign. He acted under the authority of General Lee. Had Longstreet obeyed Lee, then Gettysburg would have been the end of the war.

The strategic victory of the Angelic Conflict occurred at the cross. Now Jesus is seated next to God the Father waiting on operation footstool. We are a royal priesthood; and there must be in us the nobility of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Great self discipline of a leader of France that Bob does not like; but he must give the devil his due.

Heb 6:2 and of instruction about washings, the laying on of hands, the resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment.

Chapter 6:2 — the third item which has to be laid in the foundation is now before us: "of the doctrine of baptisms." The word for doctrine is the accusative singular of didachh but it has no definite article. The noun is translated like a genitive, which is wrong because it is not a genitive. There is no definite article, so it is not “the doctrine,” and there is no genitive case, so it is not “of.” We have the accusative case. The absence of the definite article emphasizes the qualitative aspect of the noun rather than its identity. Doctrine is the highest quality of anything in this life. Doctrine is more important than life itself. Doctrine in the soul is the basis of all nobility in our universal royal priesthood. So actually the verse begins “doctrine.” We have “doctrine of baptisms”, and now we have a genitive case. This is the descriptive genitive plural from the Greek word baptismoj. It means dipping, immersion, ablution, washing all over.

The Doctrine of Baptisms

1. 3 classic illustrations of how baptism was used prior to the NT.
  - a. Homer’s Odyssey wrote the famous story of Cyclops, with one eye, and a pole being put into his eye was like a piece of metal being put into water.
  - b. Zenophan’s and the 10,000 men who came out of Persia. When the Spartans went off to war and many were recruits, never having been to war before. The only way to do this would be the sacrifice of pigs. A bowl of blood, and the spear would be baptized in blood.
  - c. A ship off over the ocean; and it sinks into the ocean. It is baptized.
2. The etymology of words:
  - a. Baptô means to dip into some food. Also used for dyeing.
  - b. Baptizô
  - c. Baptisma ritual baptism in Matt. 3:7 Luke 12:50 for martyrdom.
  - d. Baptistês which means the one who does the baptism. Matt. 3:1
  - e. Baptismas refers to a woman’s favorite pastime, to wash dishes; that is its primary meaning. Mark 7:4
3. There are 4 baptisms which are real: these are actual identifications
  - a. 1Cor. 10:2 the baptism of Moses. He is identified with the dry sea. Moses said, “Stand still and watch the deliverance of the Lord.” This is an actual identification. The baptism of Moses was very dry. The Egyptians were immersed.
  - b. Matt. 20:2 the baptism of the cross. Our sins were judged on the cross.
  - c. Baptism of the Spirit. Rom. 6 is the longest dissertation of this subject.
  - d. Identified with Christ in His strategic victory. Every believer is identified with the strategic victory.
  - e. Matt. 3:11 the baptism of fire. All unbelievers, who are losers; in the strategic phrase of the Angelic Conflict. This identifies the losers.
4. Ritual baptisms:
  - a. Baptism of Jesus Christ in Matt. 3. He is baptized into water, which represents the plan of God. It is the Father’s authority and the Father’s plan for the incarnation.
  - b. They were identified with the Kingdom of God; and what happened in the Temple then was total apostasy.

- c. Christian baptism. Acts 2:38 the water represents Jesus Christ in His death; and victim goes down in the water. He comes up with the strategic victory recognized.

Item four is “laying on of hands.” The word “and” is really not “and”, it is the particle te (“and” would be kai or de) which means “as well as.” Te is used instead of kai for a reason here. Kai simply means next in the classification; te means this is related to baptisms. We have baptisms, and then comes laying on of hands, and te says these two are parallel classifications. Baptism represents identification; laying on of hands represents identification wherever it is used. So we have another classification, the fourth item in the foundation, and this one also refers to identification.

“laying on” is a descriptive genitive, epithesis (ἐπίθεσις) [pronounced ehp-IHTH-ehs-is]. epithesis (ἐπίθεσις) [pronounced ehp-IHTH-ehs-is] means the imposition of hands, the act of actually placing the hand on something, generally on the head. The word for “hands” is also genitive plural, cheir (χείρ, χειροός, ἡ) [pronounced khīr]. This is also a subjective genitive in which the noun in the genitive actually produces the action. It signifies identification with the laying on of the hand, which is the action, therefore it is related as a subject to the verbal idea of the noun modified. This is translated, “as well as the laying on of hands.”

There are three types of identification expressed by the laying on of hands.

Laying on of Hands

1. Sacrifices as illustrated by Leviticus 1:4. Throughout the book of Leviticus you find the priest putting one hand on the head of the animal and the other on the offerer, and when the sins are mentioned they are transferred to the animal in principle. So it is identifying the sins of the guilty.
2. The principle of blessing. In Acts 19:13 the laying on of hands results in blessing. Paul put his hand on people and they were healed — touching for blessing. That only lasted during the time of the apostles and no one could do it any more.
3. The ordination for the ministry. When the representation of a church puts its hands on the head of a person they are saying that they recognize that the person has the gift of pastor-teacher — the principle of identification in the ordination ceremony.

These doctrines were ritualistic designed to portray the various ministries of Jesus Christ. They were designed to portray certain ministries on the cross — He was identified with our sins — the strategic victory of the angelic conflict and the relationship of every believer in the royal priesthood to this victory. These doctrines were designed to portray that and therefore it became imperative to learn or relearn these doctrines in that connection so the command “on to supergrace” could be fulfilled.

Medal of honor recipient. Took over a gun in position and used it against the enemy. Took place at Salerno.

Jose M. Lopez from Texas. He cut down 10 Germans from a shallow hole that provided no real cover. Several more things. He killed about 100 in total of the enemy. Because of men like that, we have freedom today. That is why we are here tonite.

We never see the enemy in the spiritual warfare.

Heb 6:2 and of instruction about washings, the laying on of hands, the resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment.

Verse 2 — “of resurrection”, a genitive singular from the noun anastasis (ἀνάστασις) [pronounced an-AS-tas-is]. The singular of this noun is a specific reference to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, and His resurrection perpetuates His royal priesthood. As royalty Jesus Christ has to rule forever, therefore the necessity for His resurrection. God had already stated that Jesus Christ was going to be David’s son who would reign forever and ever. You cannot reign while you are physically dead, neither can you function as a priest. As a priest Jesus Christ must perpetuate His ministry. He has a ministry of intercession for every believer, therefore once again the necessity of His resurrection.

The Doctrine of Resurrection

1. Resurrection must be distinguished from resuscitation. In resuscitation a person is brought back from the dead into a body of corruption and will subsequently die again, e.g. Lazarus, but in resurrection a person is brought back from the dead never to die again, the believer is in a body of incorruption.
2. The resurrection is part of the Gospel — 1Corinthians 15:1–4, 12–17. The Gospel has certain limitations to it. Christ died for our sins is a part of the Gospel. Christ was buried and Christ rose again — resurrection. This is the Gospel. For example, note that the universality of sin, the condemnation of man under spiritual death, is not a part of the Gospel. These are all true facts but they are not under the classification of Gospel. Gospel means good news, and Gospel only deals with the solution to the sin problem, it does not deal with the doctrine of hamartiology as such. When it says Christ died for our sins that is spiritual death. man is a sinner by birth, a sinner by function of the old sin nature, and man is also spiritually dead. So there are doctrines in the field of hamartiology which relate to the Gospel. The Gospel deals with the field of soteriology and there is a vast different between hamartiology and soteriology. The first item of the Gospel is the Christ solved the sin problem. He did it as a priest. He offered Himself. The burial of the Lord Jesus Christ is one of those doctrines which is a part of the good news. The burial has to do only with His body, not His soul or spirit. The soul and spirit of Jesus Christ were not buried, but the body was buried because the body is the residence of the soul and Spirit of Jesus Christ in resurrection and because Jesus Christ must have a physical body to rule forever, to be a high priest forever, and to resolve the angelic conflict. The angelic conflict is resolved in the field of humanity, not in the field of angels and not in any other field. So His body was buried, and the burial of His body for three days was definite proof of His physical death. His physical death cuts of His priesthood, cuts of His dynasty, but “rose again” is also part of the Gospel and this perpetuates both His priesthood and His reign in the future. So the resurrection of Christ is a definite part of the Gospel.

3. Theophany and Christophany have the same suffix which is simply a Greek word for manifestation.
  - a. A theophany is the appearance of Jesus Christ prior to the incarnation. He appeared as the angel of Jehovah, He appeared as a wrestler who wrestled with Jacob. Any time that there is a manifestation of Christ prior to the virgin birth is a theophany;
  - b. A Christophany is a resurrection appearance of the Lord Jesus Christ — Mark 16:9-14; Luke 24:13-43; Acts 2:32.
4. The resurrection of Christ is a part of the strategic victory of the angelic conflict — 1Corinthians 15:20-25.
5. The resurrection is necessary for the perpetuation of the Davidic line — Romans 1:3,4; 2Timothy 2:8.
6. The resurrection of Christ is the basis for the believer’s confidence in the future — 1Peter 1:3-5, 21.
7. The resurrection of Christ indicates the completion of the ministry of justification — Romans 4:25.
8. Identification with Christ in His resurrection through the baptism of the Spirit is the motivator for tactical victory of the supergrace life — Romans 6:4. Therefore, tactical victory is the objective of the royal priesthood — 1Corinthians 15:57,58. The heritage of the royal priesthood in life is supergrace status with supergrace blessings.
9. There are two general categories of resurrection found in scripture — “everyone in his own battalion” .
  - a. The first resurrection is made up of Jesus Christ and believers only — Daniel 12:2; John 5:24-29; 1Corinthians 15:20-24; Revelation 20:6, 13.
  - b. The second resurrection is the unbeliever only — Matthew 25:41; 1Corinthians 15:24; Revelation 20:5-15.
10. Every man in his own order:
  - a. Alpha company. The first battalion of resurrection is Jesus Christ — Matthew 28; Mark 16:9-14; Luke 24:1-48; John chapter 20 & 21; Acts 2:31-34.
  - b. Baker Company. There is quite an interval between the first and second battalions. The second battalion is the Church at the Rapture — John 14:1-3; 1Corinthians 15:51-57; Philippians 3:20,21; 1Thessalonians 4:13-18; 1John 3:1,2.
  - c. Charley Company. Then there will be a seven-year interval between the second battalion and the third which is made up of all the Old Testament saints plus the Tribulational martyrs — Daniel 12:13; Isaiah 26:19,20; Matthew 24:31; Revelation 20:4.

- d. Delta Company. Finally, the fourth battalion is made up of the Millennial saints.

“of the dead” is an ablative of source, an ablative plural from nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] which should be translated “from the source of deaths” (plural). In other words, Christ rose from His own death but not from ours. Each one of us will rise from our own grave — “resurrection out from the source of deaths” because each person dies for himself. There might be those in battles against one another, and they will rise in the same place where they killed each other.

Wherever you die, that is where you will be raised up. 3 resuscitations in the OT and 3 in the New.

Next we have the continuative use of the conjunction kai which is correctly translated “and” — “of eternal judgment.” 4 basic meanings (not given).

The word “judgment” is a genitive singular from krima. Krima is a descriptive genitive, it describes the last judgment; “eternal” is also a descriptive genitive from aiōnios (αἰώνιος) [pronounced ahee-OH-nee-oss].

The Doctrine of the Last Judgment

1. The human race is divided in time by his attitude toward Jesus Christ dying on the cross for his sins into two categories: unbeliever and believer. The unbeliever is the unsaved category; the believer in Jesus Christ is the saved category. John 3:36 is the verse which documents this division.
2. The unbeliever is under condemnation — John 3:18. The basis of his condemnation is his refusal to believe in Jesus Christ. Hell will be filled with religious types.
3. The unbeliever has two appointments — Hebrews 9:27, 28.
  - a. It is appointed unto man once to die. Death is an appointment with God.
  - b. After that there is another appointment, the unbeliever meets God again and it is called the last judgment. There is a second resurrection for a second judgment.
4. Therefore the unbeliever has resurrection — Revelation 20:11,12.
5. Once the unbeliever is resurrected he has an indictment — Revelation 20:12,13. His indictment is not sin. The sins of the unbeliever were judged on the cross. He has an area of strength that produces human good. Human good was rejected at the cross, therefore the unbeliever’s human good is recorded and brought up, and human good is the basis of indictment at the final judgment. Good deeds only will be mentioned at the final judgment. Bob gives several examples of good deeds, like joining a church and spending fifty grand for the stained glass windows. The unbeliever’s sins can’t be mentioned because they have already been judged on the cross. The basis of his indictment is works.

6. The unbeliever has a terrible future, Revelation 20:14, which is eternal separation from God.
7. The unbeliever's condemnation, Revelation 20:15, is in the lake of fire which burns forever.

Hebrews 6:2, "The doctrine of baptisms, as well as of laying on of hands, resurrection out from the source of deaths, and of eternal judgment." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Being in reversionism means that you have rejected the authority of your pastor-teacher and of the Bible. You do not snap your fingers and suddenly experience re-growth. All of this takes time.

Heb 6:3 And this we will do if God permits.

Verse 3 — "And", the continuative use of the conjunction kai. Kai connects two major thoughts here and continues the concept. What has to be continued? Many of the believers in Jerusalem are reversionistic and being in reversionism they have just been challenged. Now they must recover from reversionism. But it takes GAP to recover, it takes a constant consistent faithfulness to the Word of God, listening to the teaching of the Word time and time again. Being in reversionism they have rejected the authority of their right pastor as well as his message and this makes it all the more difficult. Getting back into the saddle and studying and learning and growing and recovering is going to take some time. So "and" continues the thought relating it now to time.

"this" — the accusative neuter singular from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. This refers to graduating from the six basic doctrines and other basic doctrines of Christology related to soteriology, and therefore continuing again the advance toward supergrace maturity — "this" relearning of doctrine.

Jews kept returning to the Temple, those who have believed in Jesus Christ. This was their weakness. That is a legalistic frantic search for happiness; and some others might do a lascivious search for happiness. Both operation fornication and operation religion trigger emotional revolt and you move into the blackout of the soul. All of the valves of the heart are frozen. Then you go into reverse process reversionism.

Then there is repentance; they decide to turn it all around.

"we will do" — aorist active indicative of the verb poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh]. Poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] in the aorist tense is an ingressive aorist in which the action of the verb is contemplated from its beginning. This use is commonly employed with verbs which signify a state or a condition and denote entrance into that state or condition. They have now decided to go back, so the entirety is recovery. So at this point we have the ingressive aorist of poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] and it is usually translated "and this we will begin to do". It means to enter into the process of recovery. The active voice: the reversionist produces the action of the verb by entering into his recovery sphere. The recovery sphere is GAPing it to supergrace. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative, denoting a simple assertion. The indicative is the mood of certainty, it represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality and therefore this person has made a real decision. But the aorist tense says he is just beginning.

Bob gives the illustration of being down in a submarine; you cannot just swim up. It takes time to be under pressure and move to the top. If you are on the bottom, you can only go up; but you cannot go up all at once.

“if” is a compound conditional conjunction, εάν (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN]per. Εάν (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] is the conditional conjunction which is actually used for a third class condition but the per added on makes it even stronger. The condition is based on the sovereignty of God in permitting the believer priest to live long enough to recover. So you have to recognize a principle: every time you go into reversionism the time gets shorter every time you revert. The shorter the time in this life the greater the degree of difficulty in recovery. In other words, you may not ever recover because you may not live that long. That is the point here — “if only”: the sovereignty of God is a factor in phase two. Whenever God wants to take us out we are going.

“God”, is literally “the God” — ho Theos, referring to the sovereignty of God. God the Father is the author of the divine plan. He is the one who determines the length of time each one of us is going to live on this earth.

“permit” — the present active subjunctive from the verb επιτρέπω (ἐπιτρέπω) [pronounced ep-ee-TREP-oh] which means to allow, to permit, to order, or to give permission. To give permission is the meaning here — “if only the God gives permission.” The present tense of this verb is a static present used for a condition which perpetually exists. That is, God always determines how long each believer will remain in this life. Every day the believer is on earth is by divine permission. The active voice: the Father produces the action of the verb by permitting the believer to remain X amount of days on this earth as a gracious gift. The subjunctive mood is a potential subjunctive, it goes with the third class condition. Divine permission to remain on this earth is potential. We don’t know whether we have another day or not, only God knows that, it is a matter of divine sovereignty. It takes a lot of time to learn doctrine. The believer will accomplish the tactical objective of supergrace status if God permits him to live long enough to do it. And that is what this verse is all about.

Requesting permission to come aboard a ship. The principle is, you do it by permission. We are under the permissive will of God when it comes to our life on this earth.

Hebrews 6:3 “And this we will begin to do if only the God gives permission.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

First 6 verses corrected translation is given. Quite a number of aorist participles in v. 4.

True sensitivity training is summed up by live and let live.

Luke field almost entirely populated by Texas; an OK who got a lot of ribbing. Lt. Col. Leon Vance. Turns out he did some amazing things. Some sort of pounding. Bob stops momentarily. Successfully ditched his plane into the channel. There was a bomb that did not fall out. He was found floating in the channel.

Lt. Michael on another plane. Amazing as to how many things were not working, he landed the plane without a mishap.

We are in a warfare of a different kind. There is something else that keeps one from getting to supergrace. It has to do with lifestyle. We used to call it a pattern of life. It is superficial to Bob. Style is meaningless to Bob. Homosexual stylists who hate women; and Bob loves the little beauties. You no longer see elegance among women. Even in the depression, even if a woman had one dress, looked elegant in that dress. "If we don't follow the styles, they we can't wear anything." Bob thinks that they would look better.

Going back to v. 1. We are here by permission of the God.

Everything that we need to know about reversionism recovery.

1. This paragraph/sentence requires us to understand the grammatical details. Vv. 4–6. Antecedent action must be understood. We must pick out the main verb and all of the actions which are antecedent to it. Everything stated after the main verb is antecedent to the main verb.
2. There are 5 aorist participles. Aorist middle/passive/active participles. The fifth aorist participle bring in the lifestyle.

In verse one we have already seen the issue which is having graduated from basic doctrines, "not laying down again the foundation." Then we have six representative items for the foundation: a) a change of mind away from dead works; b) faith toward God; c) doctrine of baptisms; d) laying on of hands; e) resurrection from the source of deaths; f) eternal judgment.

Heb 6:4 For it is impossible, in the case of those who have once been enlightened, who have tasted the heavenly gift, and have shared in the Holy Spirit,...

In verses 4–6 we have everything we need to know about hindrances to reversion recovery. By way of beginning verse four, notice several things. This paragraph cannot be understood apart from the grammatical principle of antecedent action related to the main verb. This paragraph, made up of verses 4–6, is really one sentence and it lays it on the line for all believers. The basic principle we must understand in grammar is antecedent action. Antecedent action is always relative to the main verb. We have to identify the main verb and then we have to identify everything that is antecedent to the main verb, everything that occurs before. The main verb is going to come first in the sentence — verse 4 — and everything that is stated in verses 4,5, and 6 is all antecedent to the main verb. The main verb becomes the issue in the Christian way of life as far as the royal priesthood is concerned and the function of the angelic conflict.

There are basically five aorist participles which precede the action of the main verb under the antecedent concept. These aorist participles all follow a very simple principle. First of all we have an aorist passive participle, then we have an aorist middle participle, and then an aorist passive participle, an aorist middle participle, and finally the aorist active participle where the believer does something on his own which is one hundred per cent wrong — a superficial pattern of life which requires neither thought nor anything else, it is just an easy way to go. So the lifestyle of the reversionist is brought in by the fifth aorist participle.

The first participle is phôtizô (φωτίζω) [pronounced foh-TID-zoh], which means to illuminate. This is the first contact that God the Holy Spirit has with you as an unbeliever, and these four participles are the sequence of grace. The second participle is geuomai (γεύομαι) [pronounced GHYOO-ohm-ah-ee] which means to taste. The aorist passive participle is ginomai. Finally, we go back again to geuomai (γεύομαι) [pronounced GHYOO-ohm-ah-ee] for representation of the supergrace life. These are the four participles of the sequence of grace: the illuminating ministry of God the Holy Spirit, salvation and the ministry of the Holy Spirit there. Then the ministry of the Holy Spirit after salvation and the partnership we have with Him in phase two. And then supergrace is the fourth one. These four participles actually form a logical sequence. Then the fifth one is an aorist active participle, the active voice making it stand out like a sore thumb — parapiptô (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh]. These five words are vitally important for us to understand.

Bob wants these written down on a large piece of paper to go back to and refer to.

Lifestyle in its most superficial keeps us from going on and moving to supergrace. You might come to Bible class every night and fornicate every night as well, and not advance at all. You can also be religious and self righteous and never make it to supergrace. Lifestyle is your enemy.

Reference back to the 5 participles above. You can be positive toward doctrine and not make it to supergrace.

The concept starts with the word “For” in verse 4. This is a conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] and it is used to introduce an explanation. This is a warning to wake up. You can be positive to doctrine and still not make it to supergrace.

The word “impossible” is the accusative singular from the adjective adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-naht-oss]. Adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-naht-oss] in the accusative case becomes something interesting. Immediately, when you see the accusative case and you don't see a verb on even the same line with it, then you have to say “Wait a minute.” The accusative is generally the direct object of the verb, but here it is not the direct object at all, it is the subject of an infinitive. This is called an accusative of general reference. An accusative of general reference simply looks like this. The accusative case, a noun or an adjective, is used as the subject of an infinitive. The infinitive here comes in verse 6. The accusative is used with the infinitive. It really is not the subject, we call it the subject to make it simple to understand but it isn’t the subject. Actually, the accusative of general reference is an accusative case used to describe the person connected with the infinitive or connected with the action of the infinitive.

Bob explains why this verse is not underlined in red. It does everything without diacritical markings. It is a brilliant scrambled sentence. It has been so easy for Bob that he wants to go home; he understands it.

Passive voice, middle, passive, middle and suddenly an active voice. That describes the participles here. Impossible to recover as long as you pull this rinky stuff in your lifestyle.

“to renew them again” is a present infinitive, and the adjective “impossible” is the subject of that infinitive, or it describes the character of the person who is doing the action of the infinitive. To “renew again” means to restore again, and it merely means to restore from reversionism. So now we know what our sentence is all about: the impossibility of not recovering from reversionism. It is impossible to recover from reversionism under certain qualifying circumstances. Now immediately, when you hear that, you know something. To make an absolute dogmatic statement in the declarative mood — it is impossible to recover from reversionism — is wrong. This is what this sentence is saying, it is impossible to recover from reversionism. However, in this sentence which is very long, it gives certain qualifying aspects. It is impossible to recover from reversionism under certain conditions, i.e., lifestyle activity. You can have a lifestyle that makes it impossible to ever recover from reversionism. You can rebound to take the heat off occasionally, but rebound isn’t going to get you anywhere when you keep up a certain lifestyle. We now have the subject of one long sentence, verses 4–6. Subject: that qualifying lifestyle that makes it impossible to recover from reversionism, therefore impossible to go to supergrace, therefore impossible to ever be a normal believer. There are those believers who will never be anything but abnormal in the angelic conflict as long as they live because there is something in their lifestyle that keeps them from doctrine. Our breakthrough will be to find out what keeps us from supergrace.

The main verb here: “impossible to renew.” Once again, the adjective adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-naht-oss] has two meanings. As an adjective it has an active meaning which is “powerless” or “impotent.” The passive meaning is “impossible.” It is the passive meaning which is important here. God the Holy Spirit says in effect “Look, if you would just stay with the passive voice you wouldn’t have any trouble.” It is when one gets active. We get an active voice in parapiptō (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh]. What do you have in the first four participles? Passive voice, middle voice, passive voice, middle voice. And that was when you were doing well and everything was fine. Then it was the active voice that blew it, the active voice is “falling away.” Adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-naht-oss] has an active meaning. The active says you did something, you’re impotent spiritually, but in the passive voice it means you can recover from that spiritually. But the passive voice says impossible to recover so long as you follow a certain lifestyle. “Impossible to restore them again” with reference to the basic list, called repentance, is the accusative of general reference as well as the main verb.

Grace uses you; you do not use grace. You can stand where you are filled with the Spirit and never move forward. You move forward with doctrine only.

To amplify the sentence, “for” is the first word in our translation — explanation. The next word is the subject of the infinitive, “impossible” rather than “impotent”, the passive meaning to go with the fact that if you don’t get back on a passive voice, the voice of grace, you are never going to make it.

Then the infinitive “to renew them” — these believers involved — “again”, a part of the verb — “to repentance.” Repentance is not repentance here. Repentance is the first item on the list of basic doctrines. We actually have in the accusative of general reference “impossible to restore them again”, not renew, to the basic list — impossible to relearn the six items while following a superficial modus operandi, a lifestyle that really laughs at grace or uses grace. Grace uses you, you don’t use grace.

Again, the accusative of general reference acts as the main verb, and the action of the five aorist participles precede the accusative of general reference which is the main verb so that the basic structure of this sentence: “for impossible to restore them again to repentance.” “Them” refers to the reversionists. “Repentance” is number one on the basic list. It is impossible to restore the basic list under certain conditions.

Summary

1. The action of the five aorist participles precedes the action of the main verb.
2. The main verb is the accusative of general reference made up of an adjective in the accusative case, “impossible”, plus the infinitive “to restore again”.
3. The adjective which is the subject of the accusative under the concept of accusative of general reference is in the emphatic position. This emphasizes the total impossibility of advancing through learning doctrine and recovering from reversionism under the function of the now-obsolete Levitical priesthood.
4. The subject of the long sentence is bound up in the accusative plural of the definite article.
5. Verses 4–6 is one sentence. What we are studying is our spiritual life or our lifestyle.

A guy in that era goes to the Temple to offer up animal sacrifices in A.D. 67 in order to get a lot of people off his back. But this group of Jews are mixed up and they insult the Lord Jesus Christ by offering up animal sacrifices. This is a religious insult to the Lord. Nothing worse than religion.

The subject of the a sentence is preceded by the explanatory use of the particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] to amplify a third class condition in the previous sentence — “if God gives permission.”

“For Those” —

1. “For those” is the accusative plural of the definite article ο(, also going with the accusative of general reference. It refers to legalistic reversionism practiced in Jerusalem under the lifestyle of offering sacrifices in the temple. It is an insult to our High Priest.
2. This is the use of the article to denote individuals under a specific classification. A lot of them existed in Jerusalem in 67 AD — legalistic reversionists.
3. The accusative of general reference of which the article is a part is the usage of the case in the definite article. The accusative is used as the subject of the infinitive. Or better, the accusative of general reference is used to describe the person or persons connected with the action of the infinitive. That is very important. The accusative of general reference describes the people involved in the action of the infinitive. So not all reversionists are included in this, only those reversionists who make it a lifestyle to enter the temple and offer sacrifices and observing all of the other Jewish activities in the temple are involved. The definite article does not say that all reversionists can’t recover because of their life, it says all reversionists involved in a specific type of lifestyle. All reversionists are not in an impossible situation. The only reversionists who are in an impossible situation are those who have a religious lifestyle, a frantic search lifestyle in some area where they say they love doctrine, give lip service to doctrine, but they don’t care for doctrine and they don’t listen to doctrine, and they react to doctrine whenever they hear it because of their lifestyle. Everyone needs to check their own life and decide if they need to clean something out of their life in order to advance. This is a good illustration because no one in the auditorium has suffered from this form of negative volition. Relax and learn the principle first.
4. The objective of the action of the infinitive is to renew again maturity or supergrace. This involves recovery from reversionism and then pressing on.
5. The adjective adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-naht-oss] indicates that such renewal or reversion recovery is impossible under certain specified conditions. The certain specified conditions are going to be delineated in this sentence by two present active participles that follow the infinitive: “impossible” in verse four; infinitive “to renew” or “to restore again” in the first part of verse six. Then, later on, “to restore again” ... “so long as” or “while”, and then you have two present active participles. One gives the lifestyle, one gives the result of the lifestyle.

Hebrews 6:4 “Impossible for those.” Reversion recovery depends on the daily function of GAP but there can be no consistent intake of doctrine as long as certain types of lifestyle exist. A lifestyle which is in conflict with the daily intake of doctrine is involved here. The royal priesthood of the Church Age can never function in the temple. There is no reality in shadows and as long as anyone dabbles in shadows that keeps them from the reality of doctrine.

“who were once enlightened” — the aorist passive participle of phôtizô (φωτίζω) [pronounced foh-TID-zoh],. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the participle in its entirety. The length of the entirety depends upon the context. It can be a few minutes, it can be a few months, but this entirety is made up of the hearing of the Gospel and the ministry of God the Holy Spirit in illuminating that Gospel message in your soul. The Gospel is spiritual phenomena, the natural man cannot understand the things of the Spirit of God, they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them because they are discerned by the Spirit. So the constative aorist contemplates the action of the participle in its entirety. It takes an occurrence and regardless of its extent or duration gathers it into a single whole. These believers were formerly unbelievers and the first aorist participle applies to them as unbelievers. Grace found them unable to understand the Gospel, so God the Holy Spirit made it clear. This should be translated “having been illuminated” — the ministry of God the Holy Spirit in clarifying the Gospel. The passive voice: the subject receives the action of the verb. The subject here is the believer before he was saved, therefore the believer as an unbeliever. These believers once received illumination as unbelievers. They heard the Gospel, they didn’t understand it, they didn’t understand it.

The participle has antecedent action to the main verb. With this participle is an adverb to indicate that this happened before and can never happen again. The adverb says you can’t lose your salvation. The adverb is hapax (ἅπαξ) [pronounced hap’-ax] — “once.” Hapax (ἅπαξ) [pronounced hap’-ax] was the time in the past, however long it took.

The second of the participles: “and have tasted of the heavenly gift.” This is an aorist middle participle of geuomai (γεύομαι) [pronounced GHYOO-ohm-ah-ee] meaning to taste. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the event of enlightenment or illumination in its entirety but emphasizes the result. This person believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, otherwise he wouldn’t be a believer in reversionism in this jamb.

Greek: the Middle Voice

1. This voice is one of the most distinctive types of phenomena in the Greek language.
2. The middle voice is that use of the verb which describes the subject as participating in the results of the action of the verb.
3. The subject acts with a view toward participating in the outcome.
4. Therefore, tasting is faith in Jesus Christ.
5. The outcome or participating in the results of the verb is salvation.
6. This the direct middle voice. The direct middle voice refers the results of the action directly to the subject, and it refers to the subject with reflexive force. Therefore, “having tasted for themselves” is the correct translation of the direct middle.
7. This middle voice emphasizes human volition in the angelic conflict.

“the heavenly gift” is not quite correctly translated. We have a descriptive genitive singular from dwrea, which means a gift given without strings, a free gift. So we have to translate dwrea, “gracious gift.” This descriptive genitive is also the objective genitive, plus epouranios (ἐπουράνιος) [pronounced ep-oo-RAN-ee-oss] which is the ablative of source and means “from heaven”, literally.

Hebrews 6:4a “and having tasted for themselves the gracious gift from heaven”.

Now we have a progression which is delineated for us by the constative aorist followed by a culminative aorist. Here is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit gathered up into one ball of wax. It took place over a long period of time, it took place over a short period of time. The period of time, the duration of this ball of wax, is unknown because it varies with the individual. But the point is it is a gracious function for God the Holy Spirit to take the message of the Gospel which you have heard and make it real to you. The culminative aorist is the believing in the Lord Jesus Christ. The middle voice indicates that the one who believes participates in the results of the action which is eternal salvation.

“and were made” — the aorist passive participle from ginomai which means to become, and is translated “and having become.” Now we have another culminative aorist. This culminative aorist views an event from its entirety again and regards it from the viewpoint of existing results. This means the 36 things that we receive at salvation, plus something else. But it only takes out some of those 36 things because of qualifying phrases. We now have a second culminative aorist to show that out of those 36 things 5 were performed by God the Holy Spirit and which caused us to become something we were not before. We have become partners with the Holy Spirit. God the Holy Spirit regenerated us, He is the agent of regeneration and we are born into the family of God or born again, canceling out all handicaps which came through the first birth and the life in between. Next we have indwelling. God the Holy Spirit came to indwell us. Thirdly, we have sealing: God the Holy Spirit provides eternal security by sealing us forever. Fourth, we have the baptism of the Holy Spirit whereby God the Holy Spirit relates us to the strategical victory of the angelic conflict. We are identified with Christ in His death, burial, resurrection, ascension, and His session at the right hand of the Father. Then He gave each believer priest in the royal priesthood a spiritual gift. These are five things which are bound up in this culminative aorist. These are five results of salvation. “Having become” — the passive voice means the believer has received partnership with the Holy Spirit, and again the participle is an aorist participle whose action is antecedent to the main verb.

“partakers” is an accusative plural from metochos (μέτοχος) [pronounced MET-okh-oss], and it means partnership or partners — “having become partners with the Holy Spirit.” And “the Holy Spirit” is in the genitive case, the genitive of relationship.

Hebrews 6:4 “For you see, impossible for those having once been illuminated, and having tasted for themselves the gracious gift from heaven, and having become partners with the Holy Spirit.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Lesson #62

62 07/01/1973 Hebrews 6:5–6 Summary of lifestyle compromises

A few hundred people are standing. If there are songbooks on the seats, take them off and sit down. If you think you can save your seat with a songbook, you have rocks in your head. This is apparently the first day of the July 4th conference, but before the actual conference topic begins.

Someone is saving a seat with a purse and Bob had it removed. In A.D. 67, this was all taking place. There would be many who would escape, who are supergrace believers. But many would be killed in Jerusalem. Jesus Christ controls history and there is pouring for the supergrace life. A maximum number of believers today who are in reversionism. Legalistic reversionism back then; but the same fundamentals. Boredom, discouragement, being overcome by self-pity; loneliness. Frustration followed by mental attitude sins. Some shocking experience in life like being jilted, or losing something in some way, like your job, your bf or gf. With emotional revolt freezing all of the valves and forcing doctrine back into the left lobe where it cannot be used. Any believer can be influenced by the doctrine of demons. Various ludicrous ideas; all concepts developed in order to destroy the laws of divine establishment. Continued riffing in the armed forces to allow for more money for foolish social projects.

The holy rollers who are totally against God. Once doctrine of demons takes over, there is blackout of the soul. This is to whom this is addressed. Every believer is a priest. The first battalion, Jesus and every believer who is in union with the Lord. We are a royal priesthood. 2nd battalion are those of Israel; 3rd is made up of the family priesthood. We are a royal priesthood. Our objective is to move to supergrace. This is accomplished through the daily function of gap. The rejection of doctrine removes us to the sin unto death. We can go supergrace or the sin unto death. Supergrace blessings. God gives great wealth, promotion, social prosperity, sexual prosperity. Abraham kept failing to move forward. Abraham was 100 years old when he reached supergrace. God first told Abraham about the blessing for him would happen was back in Gen. 12.

Abraham's pouring and it began about age 100 and he lived about another 30 years after. This is our objective and God has preserved for us some kind of supergrace blessing. We will see a category of grace and a fulfillment of that category. Phase II grace has no volition involved. How long we live is up to God. We have x number of days. Grace keeps us alive in the unseen conflict. Our tactical objective is called more grace, greater grace or supergrace. Great wealth, promotion, all types of prosperity all comes in phase III. Positive volition towards the written word is key. Give away all of your money does not give you rewards in heaven. You cannot bribe God for some blessing. God is not a genie. Many of you will have blessings dumped into your lap.

First 3 verses reviewed. Review of v. 4 and how it is put together.

Hebrews 6:4 "For you see, impossible for those having once been illuminated, and having tasted for themselves the gracious gift from heaven, and having become partners with the Holy Spirit." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Aorist middle and passive participles. We had to have the gospel made real to us by God the Holy Spirit.

Heb 6:5 ...and have tasted the goodness of the word of God and the powers of the age to come,...

Verse 5 — “And have tasted” is the aorist middle participle of the verb geuomai (γεύομαι) [pronounced GHYOO-ohm-ahee] means to taste but it means this time to taste in the sense of appropriation, a different object. The first time we had tasting it was the living Word, Jesus Christ; now it is the written Word which is Bible doctrine. It is the tasting of Bible doctrine at this point that indicates the principle.

What is the logical result of being a royal priest as indicated in the first part of Hebrews chapter five? What is the logical result of being related to a partnership with the Holy Spirit? What is the logical result of being related to the strategic victory through the baptism of the Spirit? The answer is to move to the tactical objective which is the supergrace life. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety, no matter what the duration may be. Tasting is GAPing it every day. So the constative aorist gathers into one entirety every act of GAPing it, every moment in which you take in Bible doctrine. This is GAPing it to supergrace. The middle voice describes the subject as participating in the results of the action. The subject acts in this case by GAPing it. The subject is any member of the royal priesthood, any believer GAPing it to supergrace with a view toward participating in the outcome. In other words, your objective is not only supergrace but your objective on reaching supergrace it to participate through the results. For example, the first result of supergrace is that God is glorified. God is glorified when God can pour. That is the divine side. But the human side says this: the results of supergrace to you are spiritual blessings as well as material blessings, as well as the principle of prosperity, every type of prosperity. All of these things are involved in reaching the tactical objective. God is not glorified in your life by witnessing to twenty-five people a day, by giving your glowing testimony to some group, by the hours you spend in prayer, etc. God can only be glorified in one way in your life and that is by reaching the point of the supergrace life. The supergrace life is the normal status of the royal priesthood and no believer is normal until he gets there. Your production is the result of being in supergrace, the result of doctrine in the soul, not the means of gaining something with God. You don't have to worry about witnessing or prayer or these other things, they are the normal result of certain stages of growth, they are the normal result of the function of the supergrace life.

We have a constative aorist here plus the middle voice showing this objective. The middle voice also indicates the importance of volition in the function of GAP. This is what is called a direct middle which refers the results of the action directly to the subject with reflexive force, and therefore should be translated “having tasted for themselves.” Each one must do it for himself. Furthermore, the constative aorist plus the middle says you must decide today that you want doctrine, you must decide tomorrow that you want doctrine, you must decide the next day that you want doctrine. The participle, again, has antecedent action and the main verb is coming up in verse 6.

Bob on the sorry television. One good war movie and nothing else.

“the good” — the accusative singular from the adjective kalos (καλός) [pronounced kal-OSS] which means “noble.” It has no definite article in the Greek, and when we have an adjective minus the definite article it emphasizes the quality of the adjective, and the quality of the adjective goes with the life we have been given, the commission we were given at the point of salvation. “The noble” is stronger to us in the English; “noble” without the definite article is stronger in the Greek.

“the noble word” — this isn’t logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss] usually used for doctrine, we have instead hrma (ῥήμα, ατος, τό) [pronounced HRAY-mah] which is even stronger than logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss] because it means doctrine removed from its covers. When you want to see doctrine where it is located in the canon it is logos (λόγος, ου, ό) [pronounced LOHG-oss]; when you want to take it out of the cover of the scripture and present it to the soul of the individual it is hrma (ῥήμα, ατος, τό) [pronounced HRAY-mah]. It means doctrine communicated by the one authorized to communicate it. God has ordained that certain royal priests because of the gift of pastor-teacher have the privilege of communicating this. It still means doctrine but it means doctrine communicated.

“of God” — the ablative of source from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], “from God.” All doctrine is from God. “And having tasted for themselves noble doctrine from God.”

“and the powers” — a second accusative as the object of the participle. This one is dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss] which means power or ability, inherent power or ability. It refers to God pouring supergrace blessings to the supergrace believer.

How would you like to be 100 and look 20? You don’t need to respond to that; it was just a rhetorical question.

“inherent abilities of the coming age” refers to the Millennium. The word “world” is not world, it is the genitive singular of aiōn (αἰών) [pronounced ī-OHN]. The word for “coming” is from mellō (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low], the verb which means about to be and in the participial form is used as an adjective and means coming. The present active participle is used in this case. So we have “and inherent abilities of the coming age” which is a reference to supergrace blessings. God has the ability, totally apart from Satan or his cosmic system, to provide great wealth, great prosperity, promotion, great success, anything else that is associated with happiness. This means that in the Millennium God will provide perfect environment on the earth after having despatched Satan and all the fallen angels to the abyss. Therefore the Millennium is the time of unrestrained doctrine and unrestrained blessing accompanying doctrine. Remember that the Millennium is characterized by the fact that the earth will be covered with doctrine as the waters cover the seas. And with that you have accompanying prosperity and blessing in every field of life.

We as believers are members of the royal priesthood and we have these supergrace blessings now through the consistent intake of Bible doctrine. We are not involved in living in human bodies in the Millennium, now is our time for these things. Every time a believer reaches supergrace it means it is a little patch of Millennial blessing in that area of life for that person.

Heb 6:6 and then have fallen away, to restore them again to repentance, since they are crucifying once again the Son of God to their own harm and holding him up to contempt.

Verse 6 — “If they shall fall away,” the aorist active participle of parapiptō (πίπτω) [pronounced PIHP-toh] plus the connective kai — “and having fallen away.” This is a constative aorist which contemplates the entire process of reversionism. This starts with the reactor factors, a frantic search for happiness as a reaction, the emotional revolt of the soul. It includes negative volition toward doctrine, demon influence through the opening of : mataiotēs (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace], it includes the blackout of the soul and/or the hardness of heart. It includes the practice of reverse process reversionism, the various systems of self-induced misery and the dying discipline that all accompany reversionism. And that is all bound up in the entirety, this is the constative aorist. This word does not mean “fallen away”, it means to defect, to commit apostasy, to go astray, and here it is technical for entering reversionism — “having entered reversionism”, “having gone astray”, “having defected.” The active voice: the believer in reversionism produces the action of the verb by entering into reversionism and its various stages. Once more this is the aorist participle whose action is antecedent to the main verb.

Now we come to our main verb. It is an accusative of general reference plus two participles. An accusative of general reference has either a noun or an adjective. In this case adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-naht-oss] is an adjective, it is in the accusative case and is the subject of the infinitive. Remember that adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-naht-oss] is put at the beginning of the sentence. This sentence is one sentence from verse four to verse six and adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-naht-oss] is put at the beginning of the sentence to give it emphasis. Therefore it should probably be translated in the English, “Definitely impossible.” That is the first part of the main verb, the rest of the main verb is an infinitive — “to renew them again”, the present active infinitive of anakinizō which means to restore again — “Definitely impossible to restore again.” This infinitive refers to reversion recovery. The way to reversion recovery is to GAP it back to supergrace but there is something that holds that up.

With this we have the adverb palin — “again.” This goes with the adverb we had at the beginning of the sentence, “having once been illuminated.” That adverb means you can’t turn back. But even though you can’t turn back and become an unbeliever you can fail as a believer, and that is the contrast between the adverb hapax (ἅπαξ) [pronounced hap’-ax] and the adverb palin. Hapax (ἅπαξ) [pronounced hap’-ax] says “having once been enlightened”, once you have been enlightened and believe you can never lose your salvation, so this is assurance with regard to salvation — eternal security; palin says but you can sure foul it up as a saved person. So now we have palin to show where the foul-up is. The present tense is a tendential present, and it is used of an action which is purposed or desired but is actually not taking place as yet. The action which is desired is to move toward supergrace, it has not occurred as yet. It represents the idea of what is intended or what tends toward realization. The active voice: the subject of the infinitive is the accusative plural of the definite article referring to the people — “impossible for those.” “Impossible” is the adjective, the adjective goes with the definite article in the accusative. So the true subject of the infinitive is the reversionist following a certain course of action to specified by the two participles. The infinitive itself is a part of the accusative of general reference, it also expresses purpose.

We have a next a reference to the list of basics. “Unto repentance” is the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of metánoia (μετάνοια) [pronounced met-AHN-oy-ah], the first item on the list of basics, a change of mind away from dead works. Only the first word is used to refer to the entire list of six basics mentioned, so metánoia (μετάνοια) [pronounced met-AHN-oy-ah] is number one on a list of one through six. This time you don’t repeat the entire list, just the first word in the list is necessary. This does not refer to repentance as such but to list of basics.

Next we have the hindering modus vivendi, and it is introduced by the word “seeing.” There is no word “seeing” found in the original MSS, this is merely used to designate temporal participles which portray action which hinders recovery. These temporal participles are also circumstantial participles because they indicate what keeps people from getting with doctrine so that they can recover. This only indicates in principle because one specific thing is involved in Jerusalem. There are many specifics today, as many as we have reversionists who cannot get back with Bible doctrine. “Seeing” is not a good way to translate a circumstantial and temporal participle, it is better to translate it either “so long as” or “while.” The first of these participles: “they crucify afresh”, the present active participle of a) nastaurow [aná (ἀνά) [pronounced aw-NAW] means again; staurow means to crucify]. Christ was crucified once, He never has to die again for our sins. His work the first time and the only time was totally and completely efficacious.

Now how can anyone crucify Christ again? By a reversionistic lifestyle. In this case the reversionistic lifestyle is legalism, religionism. Here are members of the royal priesthood submitting themselves to a priesthood that no longer exists. The present tense is the retroactive progressive present which denotes a practice begun in the past and is continuing up to the moment the writer writes. This practice represents a frantic search for happiness in the field of legalistic reversionism. These believers are offering animal sacrifices in the temple which would be crucifying Christ afresh. Each animal sacrifice represents some aspect of the death of the Lord Jesus Christ. However, historically the death of Christ was completed some years before. The death of Christ on the Christ is the reality which eliminates the shadows of animal sacrifices. Having the reality they return now to the temple to dabble in shadows and to accept an authority that no longer exists, the authority of the Levitical priesthood. The active voice indicates that believers, royal priests, are actually doing this in Jerusalem. The participle, again, is both temporal and circumstantial.

“to themselves” is the dative plural of disadvantage of the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἐαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]. They are themselves involved in doing this and the result is that they are crucifying to themselves “the Son of God”, which emphasizes the strategical victory of the angelic conflict and their failure to relate it properly to the royal priesthood. “The Son of God” refers to the fact that Christ is the God-Man, that He is now at the right hand of the Father waiting for the fulfillment of operation footstool, that He has won the strategic victory of the angelic conflict, that He has broken Satan’s back on the cross, as per Colossians 2:14.

“and put him to an open shame” is the second present active participle, paradigmatic which means to hold in contempt, to expose to ignominy, to expose to contempt, to publicly embarrass someone and therefore to make a public example of contempt. This is the iterative present, it describes what occurs when the believer enters the temple to offer sacrifices. The present tense of repeated action or the iterative present means that every time they do this they again and again expose Jesus Christ to public shame and contempt. The active voice: as a result of offering animal sacrifices they are engaging as royal priests in blasphemy instead of honour to the Lord Jesus Christ. The participle is, again, temporal and circumstantial as per the first participle. So this activity will hinder every effort to recover from reversionism since this function sponsors and encourages negative volition toward doctrine. There is a conflict between learning doctrine and in going to the temple. As long as that conflict exists they will never recover from reversionism and they will die the sin unto death under the most horrible circumstances of history, that great second siege of Jerusalem in 70 AD. These Jews who are born again cannot publicly shame Jesus Christ and at the same time recover from their reversionism. Their action is incompatible with the function of GAP. Any activity which is incompatible with the function of GAP hinders reversion recovery.

Hebrews 6:6 “And having gone astray in to reversionism, for you see impossible to restore them again with reference to the basic list [repentance]; so long as they again and again crucify to themselves the Son of God, even exposing him to public shame and contempt.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. In other words, you cannot move toward your objective while retreating from it. You can’t advance and retreat at the same time. Offering sacrifices in the temple was retreating. You cannot hang on to anything that compromises with learning doctrine and learn doctrine.
2. You cannot move toward occupation with Christ while holding Him in public contempt.
3. You cannot move toward the celebrityship of Jesus Christ and expose Him to public shame.
4. Your attitude toward Christ determines your attitude toward His Word. If you love Christ you take in doctrine.
5. You cannot divorce the living Word, Christ, from the written Word, Bible doctrine. You do not love Jesus Christ unless you love Bible doctrine.

6. The written Word is the very thinking of Christ as well as capacity to love Jesus Christ.
7. There are certain functions, certain types of lifestyle (that which is superficial; that which is idiotic), in life related to the frantic search for happiness which must be eliminated before the believer can recover from reversionism. In this passage it was going to the temple and offering animal sacrifices. Today it is whatever you do that keeps you from taking in Bible doctrine.
8. No believer can persist in learning doctrine under GAP and at the same time enter into either evil or human viewpoint functions which contribute toward apathy or any other form of negative volition.
9. A believer can recover fellowship by rebound but he can never recover from reversionism so long as he has a lifestyle compromise which in effect dishonours our royal high priest, Jesus Christ. We cannot shame Christ and at the same time GAP it to supergrace.
10. Supergrace is incompatible with the believer's frantic search for happiness, and God has provided a totally superior happiness in the ECS and the entrance into the supergrace life.
11. Happiness must either come from God through doctrine or be attempted by the believer through his own ability, schemes, sinfulness and self-induced misery.

X things were blended together with Y things, and the result was working together for good.

A repeat of first few verses of this chapter.

Lesson #63

63 07/06/1973 Hebrews 6:7–8 Doctrine of thorns; agricultural analogy

First 6 verses repeated.

Review Points from Last Time.

1. You cannot move towards an objective and, simultaneously, move away from it.
2. You cannot attain the object of occupation with Christ and still hold Him in public contempt.
3. You cannot move towards the celebrityship of Christ and expose Him to an open shame.
4. Your attitude towards Christ is in tandem with your attitude towards the Word of God.
5. You cannot divorce the written word from the living word.
6. The written word is the thinking of Jesus Christ.
7. There are certain functions in life related to the frantic search for happiness which must be eliminated.

8. You cannot persist in gapping and adhering to evil functions.
9. A believer can recover fellowship but not from reversionism, as long as his lifestyle compromises the Lord Jesus Christ.
10. Supergrace is incompatible with the believer's happiness...
11. Happiness must come from God through doctrine.

Verse 7 — at this point we begin a study of the illustration and application to reversion recovery. In verses 7 and 8 we have the alternatives of the Christian way of life. The background for this is an illustration from an agricultural economy. In verse 7 we have supergrace; in verse 8 we have the alternative to supergrace which is reversionism. Using the illustration of the ground and agriculture we see these alternatives which become a reality after salvation.

The moment we believe in the Lord Jesus Christ we are commissioned immediately into the royal priesthood. However, there is no normal function under that priesthood until we reach the supergrace status. That means from the beginning of phase two we GAP it and be consistent in this until we reach the supergrace status. Once we reach the supergrace status the first great factor is occupation with the person of Christ or maximum category #1 love response. In the supergrace status we have the doctrinal capacity to truly love God. Secondly, we have supergrace capacity, and thirdly, we have the supergrace blessings. Since we are in a royal priesthood as of the moment of the new birth we should live like royalty. That demands supergrace blessings. We should also function in the nobility of royalty and that means the normal function of the priesthood of the believer. With that in mind we see in this passage these alternatives: the supergrace life on the one hand or reversionism on the other — in verse 7, supergrace; verse 8, reversionism.

God has our name on some supergrace prosperity; and these things were created long before man was created. The X things and Y things are combined, so that all things blend together for absolute and intrinsic good. Rom 8:28 applies only to the supergrace believer. This is only when God pours. You must have a cup and God pours into the cup. Since we belong to the royal priesthood, we should live like royalty.

Heb 6:7 For land that has drunk the rain that often falls on it, and produces a crop useful to those for whose sake it is cultivated, receives a blessing from God.

“For” is a conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] used as an explanation. The next word is “the earth.” The noun is gh which means ground or earth, even planet earth from time to time. Here it refers to the surface of the earth, the ground. All believers are pictured in this particular illustration or analogy as part of the ground. The objective of the ground is to grow something, to produce something. The ground producing is a picture of the supergrace life, and the ground failing to produce the normal edible things of life, the pleasant things of life, and instead producing cactus, briars, thorns, and so on. This is the picture of reversionism. The issue is that you are the ground as of the moment that you accepted Christ as Savior. The question is: What does your piece of ground produce?

Do not bother to drop anything tonite; I am not just a dull boy but a mean one.

“which drinketh in” — the aorist active participle pinw. The word means to drink. This should be translated “having drunk.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist which contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety, it takes an occurrence and regardless of the duration or extent of that occurrence gathers it up into one entirety. The constative aorist means every time that you GAP it as a believer. That is drinking in the rain, the ground taking in the rain necessary for growth. The rain is Bible doctrine. The active voice: the ground produces the action of the verb by absorbing the rain. The rain is absorbed through the function of GAP. The participle has antecedent action to the main verb, the main verb: “receives blessings from God”. The blessings from God are supergrace blessings.

“rain” is the accusative singular of huetos (ὑετός) [pronounced hoo-eh-t-oss]. We also have with it the definite article, and the noun and its definite article are separated by a phrase — “coming many times upon it”, literally. So between the definite article and the noun we have an entire phrase: “the coming many times upon it”, literally in the Greek. “The coming many times” is Bible doctrine taught and taught and taught....

The key to the phrase “coming many times upon it” is the present active participle of érchomai (ἔρχομαι) [pronounced AIR-khoh-my]. The present tense is an iterative present which describes what occurs at successive intervals. In other words, the present tense of repeated action. It isn't linear aktionsart, it isn't every moment. You don't get rain every second or the ground would never grow, it comes just often enough as it should. That is in keeping with the iterative present, it means it recurs at certain times. The active voice: the ground produces the action. The ground is analogous to the believer. The participle is known as a circumstantial participle to describe attendant circumstances by which the action of the main verb is fulfilled. In other words, the rain keeps on coming and the ground can accept it or reject it. If the ground accepts it there will be production, if it rejects it there will not. If the ground accepts the rain there will be prosperity, the supergrace concept.; if the ground rejects it there will be no prosperity but there will be a great deal of misery, illustrated by thistles, briars and cactus.

Abraham regained his sexual function as a part of his supergrace package.

The word “oft” in the English is an adverb, pollakis (πολλάκις)[pronounced pohl-LAHK-iss], and it means “many times.” In Palestine the production of the agricultural economy depended upon what is known in the Bible as the early and the latter rains. The early rains were rains that occurred with great frequency between October and December; the latter rains came in March and April. They are often called by the Jews the winter and the spring rains. They came just at the right frequency so that the ground would bring forth under the proper cultivation.

When you reach supergrace, people around you will appreciate it. They will receive blessing by association. Most of you do not come as diamonds in the rough; more like broken milk bottles in the rough.

“upon it” is the preposition ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the genitive of an intensive pronoun autos.

“For the ground having drunk the rain coming many times upon it” — “and bringeth forth”, the present active participle of tiktō (τίκτω) [pronounced TIHK-tow] which means to give birth, or if it is used as in the case of “ground”, to produce something that is edible, something pleasant from the ground. So we will use the word “production”, iterative present again describing the harvest as recurring at successive intervals. The earth represents the believer producing the action of the verb, and the production of the action is supergrace. The active voice: the earth representing the believer producing the action of the verb. The participle is the complementary participle which completes the idea of the action.

“herbs” — and old English word. This is the accusative singular of the noun botanh, from where we get “botany”, and it means useful vegetation, edible vegetation. It is even used for what the animals eat — fodder, herbs, plants, any harvest from the earth. Probably the best translation would be: “and yielding a harvest of vegetative production”.

“meet” is not correct. This is the accusative singular of e)uqhtoj and it means “useful” or useably”; “by them” is the instrumental plural from the demonstrative pronoun ἐκεῖνος, and the man who harvests, the farmer who did the planting. The farmer is not the believer, he is that portion of the human race in the periphery of any supergrace believer. Once you reach supergrace you will know it. Others around you are going to be benefitted by the very fact that you are alive and breathing. The farmer is benefitted when he harvests, and people around you are going to be benefitted by your reaching supergrace. Their benefit will come in many forms. They will not be the beneficiary of your maligning, gossip, antagonism, jealousy, etc. Whoever is your right man or right woman will discover that all of a sudden they are related to a new person with soul capacity for love. They will discover that they have someone who is thoughtful and protective and fulfilling and a sheer total pleasure to be around all the time.

“by whom” is literally “because of whom” — dia plus the accusative of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]. In other words, “for the glory of the one for whom it is cultivated.” We have in the English “it is dressed” — the present passive indicative of geōrgeō (γεωργέω) [pronounced gheh-ore-GHEH-oh] which means to cultivate land, to farm. The customary present tense indicates that which habitually occurs. In the illustration the farmer habitually cultivates the land and that is the concept here. The passive voice: the land or the ground receives the action of the verb. The indicative mood is what we call a declarative indicative which denotes the verbal idea from the standpoint of reality. The land is cultivated, it really is the cultivation of the land and the growth on the land is a reality. There are various stages. This growth would be impossible apart from Bible doctrine. It is the intake of doctrine illustrated by the rain that contributes to this. So literally, “and yielding production [harvest] useable by them because of whom it is also cultivated.”

“receiveth” — now we go from the farming to its analogy. What does God do for the supergrace believer? The supergrace believer receives blessing from God. “Receiveth” is the present active indicative from metalambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh], which means to receive a share in, to obtain, to partake of, to share in something. The present tense is a progressive present of existing results. It refers to a fact which has come to be in the past — supergrace blessings designed for you in eternity past — and is emphasized as a present reality. Here is where the present tense takes the place of the perfect tense in the Greek, a progressive present of existing results. In the past it is a fact, God designed for you supergrace blessing. Whatever God designs is designed to be for you in perfect happiness, perfect capacity to enjoy. Supergrace is the reality for all who will be consistent in the daily function of GAP, and as a result of the daily function of GAP one day you arrive. The active voice: the believer who is faithful in the intake of the Word of God will attain supergrace blessings. The indicative mood is the mood of certainty of reality of unqualified assertion, and this is the declarative indicative which means this is a fact. This is a fact you can count on. You are just like the ground. You keep on taking in and taking in and the time is coming when you are going to be greatly blessed. But always in supergrace blessing your happiness overflows to others.

The word for “blessing” is the genitive of possession, a genitive singular, e)ulogia. You personally possess this blessing just for you. It is in the singular because God has a special supergrace package for you.

“from God” — this is from the ultimate source of God, the preposition από (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of source from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] — “from the source of the God.”

The verse says the ground obtains blessing from the source of God. The ground is every believer, the royal priest. he obtains through the daily function of GAP — the rain coming often. Blessing is supergrace blessing and the source of that supergrace blessing is God.

Hebrews 6:7 “For the ground [the believer positive toward doctrine] having drunk the rain [the believer GAPing it] coming many times upon it, and producing a harvest of crops by them [the Trinity], because of whom [the Trinity] it [the ground] is also cultivated, obtains blessing [supergrace] from the source of the God.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The first of two alternatives: supergrace, verse 7.

This man’s Greek is harder than any other Greek in the NT. He is very difficult. He keeps track of things beautifully. He might throw down a definite article, but then throws in several words, and eventually throws in the noun for that definite article. This is very very close to Rom.8:28. Romans emphasizes the blessing; this emphasizes the priesthood.

Heb 6:8 But if it bears thorns and thistles, it is worthless and near to being cursed, and its end is to be burned.

Verse 8 — reversionism. “But”, the conjunctive particle de is used to emphasize a contrast. This brings together two sentences which in opposition to each other. two antithetical type sentences.

“that which beareth” — the present active participle of the compound verb ekpherô (ἐκφέρω) [pronounced ehk-FEHR-oh]. ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], means out from; phérô (φέρω) [pronounced FEH-row] means to bear, to carry. It comes to mean to bear out or to carry out from the soil. In other words, a seed goes into the ground and it bears out from the soil some kind of a stalk, leaf, fruit or vegetable, etc. It means to grow or produce out of the ground. The present tense is a progressive present of description, it indicates what is now going on. The active voice: the ground does the producing. The participle is a temporal participle, and temporal participles are translated “when” or “so long as”. So literally, “But when it is growing”.

“thorns” — the accusative plural of akantha (ἄκανθα) [pronounced AK-an-thah]. It should be translated “thorn plants.” Here is a piece of ground that is negative, and when you step on this piece of ground you get stuck. This is reversionism. It refers to those around you who get hurt. Notice that a cactus is never bothered by the cactus sticking in him! This emphasizes the fact that reversionists always hurt other people and it doesn’t seem to bother them that they do. In other words, the first thing that we notice about the reversionist is the antithesis to the supergrace believer, the reversionist is always hurting someone else.

“and briers” — the accusative plural of tribolos (τρίβολος) [pronounced TRIHB-ohl-oss]. Tri means “three”, and the noun beloĵ which means “dart”. So this is a three-pronged dart. Actually, tribolos (τρίβολος) [pronounced TRIHB-ohl-oss] was a very thorny weed that grew in Palestine. So literally the verse says, “But when it is growing thorns and thistles”. Thorns and thistles refer to the areas of reversionism where you hurt others.

If you are filled with self-pity, and you do not get the attention that you want, you gig them. 3 thorns. You think about something that someone else has and you don’t; so you gig them. If you are jealous, then you stick them quick.

The Doctrine of Thorns

1. Thorns are associated with the curse of mankind and nature at the time of the fall — Genesis 3:18.
2. Thorns are used to designate divine punishment — Numbers 33:55 Judges 2:3 2Corinthians 12:7.
3. Thorns are used to designate national discipline, the fifth cycle of discipline — Isaiah 34:12.
4. Thorns are related to economic depression and recession under an agricultural society — Jeremiah 12:13.
5. Unconquered people in the land of Canaan were thorns in the side of the nation — Numbers 33:55 Joshua 23:13 Judges 2:3.
6. Thorns are used for negative volition toward Bible doctrine — Proverbs 22:5 26:9.
7. Thorns describe the various stages of reversionism — Hebrews 6:8.
8. Thorns are used for the details of life which cause negative volition toward doctrine — Matthew 13:7,22.

9. Jesus Christ wore a crown of thorns on the cross. This signified that He was being made a curse for us when He was bearing our sins in His own body on the tree — Matthew 27:29 Mark 15:17 John 19:2 cf. Galatians 3:13.
10. The Millennial deliverance of nature from the curse of the fall is expressed by the removal of the thorns — Isaiah 55:13 Ezekiel 28:24.

“is rejected” — adokimos (ἀδόκιμος) [pronounced ad-OHK-ee-moss], which means here, “worthless.” The reversionist is worthless. Reversionism is the status of tactical defeat. God loves a reversionistic believer but He disapproves totally of his reversionism. The believer becomes a casualty in the angelic conflict and he is worthless in the intensive stage of that conflict. God disciplines a worthless believer, first with warning, then with intensive discipline, and then the final stage which is the sin unto death.

“and is nigh” — the adverb eggus (ἐγγύς) [pronounced ehng-GOOS] which means near, and it indicates the approaching disaster of the sin unto death for the reversionistic believer.

“cursing” — the descriptive genitive of katara which is a genitive of reference as well and is used with adjectives like worthlessness. So it means “worthless and near a curse”, the curse being the sin unto death.

“whose” — the genitive feminine singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç]. The relative pronoun has as its antecedent akantha (ἄκανθα) [pronounced AK-an-thah] or the thorns — “whose thorns”, in other words. The sin unto death is not administered by burning, the burning of the thorns is analogous to the sin unto death. The burning of the thorns represents the believer being removed from this life by the sin unto death.

“whose end” — the noun telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss] means termination of this life — “to be burned” — preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of kausij, the noun for the act of burning. “For burning” is the correct translation. Burning is analogous to the administration of the sin unto death to the reversionistic believer.

Hebrews 6:8 “But when it is growing [producing] thorns and thistles it becomes worthless, and near a curse; whose end is for burning”. (R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation)

Summary

1. The two verses express the alternatives of the Christian life on this earth. Verse 7 expresses the principle of blessing under supergrace; verse 8 expresses the principle of cursing under reversionism.
2. The difference between cursing and blessing is the attitude of the believer toward doctrine.
3. In salvation the issue is the living Word, Jesus Christ.
4. However, in phase two of the Christian way of life the issue is attitude toward the written Word, Bible doctrine, from Bible teaching.

5. The obedience of the Cross, faith in Christ, must inevitably lead to obedience to the Word — Hebrews 13:7, 17 — which is that priestly self-discipline whereby the believer concentrates on the teaching of his right pastor.

Lesson #64

64 07/08/1973 Hebrews 6:9-10a Function of pastor-teacher; potentiality of supergrace

Review of 8 verses.

Hebrews 6:8 “But when it is producing [growing] thorns and thistles it becomes worthless, and near a curse [intensive discipline]; whose end is for burning [= the sin unto death]”. R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

When you go negative, you begin to strike out against everything; expressions of your sins; and you stick thorns in others; and this is to test others. But when the test is over, God takes you out of the world. God keeps you alive long enough to test the others going on to supergrace. God is testing the scourge of your bitterness.

When you malign someone or gossip about them, you have gotten into their business; and when you have inflicted some pain, once they move on, you are left behind and God removes you from this world.

V. 7 expresses the blessing of supergrace through doctrine; and v. 8 is going the other way. It is your attitude towards doctrine which is more important than anything else in life. Every decision that you make, that is key to the direction that you are moving in. You will have many opportunities to become involved in things that are fun or improve your materialistic existence; and these things will be made very attractive to you.

Bible doctrine is the only way to supergrace blessing and life. If you go the other way, you might only have salvation and nothing more. Your attitude is determined by the amount of Bible doctrine in your soul.

Abraham and Sarah lost one another along the way. They lost each other in reversionism, but they found themselves in supergrace. Some of you sitting in the back are there because you did not get into Berachah on time. Those who live in the barracks have taken advantage. Take your shower first and then come back. A lot of young eager beavers here, but next time, conference will rope off some seats. About 800 or 900 seats needed for those coming to the conference.

Heb 6:9 Though we speak in this way, yet in your case, beloved, we feel sure of better things—things that belong to salvation.

Verse 9 begins with the conjunctive particle de which is the conjunction of contrast. This conjunction of contrast says, Having chewed you out I now have confidence that you will respond to my authority (the writer's). Every writer who wrote to every local church in the Word of God was the right pastor at the time that he wrote. He was an apostle or closely associated with an apostle, and being such his authority was paramount. This is there this writer has made his point and now moves on. This is called objectivity in teaching. "But beloved we are persuaded better things of you." That is objectivity.

The word "beloved" is a vocative plural from the adjective agapêtos (ἀγαπητός) [pronounced ag-ap-ay-TOSS]. When you have a word like this you have to ask yourself a question. Does the writer love them or does God love them? The answer is simple: God loves them. Always remember that God loves you, you are in this vocative plural. The reason it is a vocative plural is because it was not only addressed to those people in the time at which it was written. And these people had just received a very severe disciplinary thrashing, but now he calls them "beloved" to remind them of the fact that they are the objects of God's love, that God loves them with a perfect love, and even though they have been chewed out they are to profit by it. They have to remember that the love of God is constant and consistent.

"we are persuaded" — the perfect passive indicative of the verb peithô (πείθω) [pronounced PIE-thoh], which has a number of meanings. Peithô (πείθω) [pronounced PIE-thoh] means to receive confidence, to obey, to trust, to recognize authority, to be convinced. Here in the passive voice of the perfect tense it means to be convinced, to be convinced that doctrine will do what nothing else can do. For remember that it is doctrine that has been presented along with the exhortation that is the basis for the exhortation. Doctrine must always be the basis for any kind of exhortation. The perfect tense is the intensive perfect indicating the results. We have received convincing or we have received persuasion or confidence that you will move on — "But beloved we have been convinced." The passive voice: the subject receives the action of the verb and the subject is the writer. The writer is convinced. The indicative mood is the mood of reality and the writer is convinced that the doctrine already presented is enough to make the individuals involved in the southern kingdom of Judah and in the capital of Jerusalem respond by coming back to doctrine and coming back to reversion recovery through the intake of doctrine. 25 min.

"better things" — the accusative neuter plural of a comparative kreittôn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn] or kreisswn. It is spelled two ways in the Greek. It should be translated either "higher things" (in rank), "preferable things" (the things moving you toward supergrace), "more advantageous things" or "better things." But better things means higher things, preferable things, more advantageous things, and all are true. Moving toward the tactical victory of supergrace is moving toward higher things, moving to higher ground, moving toward preferable things. It is preferable to glorify God in phase two, preferable to all of the horrible things of reversionism. It is also "more advantageous things" because it is to your advantage to reach the supergrace life — always to your advantage.

"of you" — the preposition peri means "concerning"; the object is su, the personal pronoun. The genitive plural means "concerning you".

“and things that accompany” — we have the continuative use of kai, and there is nothing else following it. We do not have another noun here, we have simply a participle. “Things that accompany” is a present passive participle of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh] and echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh] means to have and to hold, even sometimes to hold down, to belong to or to attach. So the question is, how to translate this. It should be translated “and things belonging to [attached to] salvation.” The present tense is a static present, it is used to represent something which perpetually exists. The supergrace life perpetually exists for any believer after salvation, and the static present says no matter how you have failed in the past, no matter how you have gone into reversionism, God still has your name attached to X number of supergrace blessings. And all that is necessary is for you to reach capacity. These are the higher things in rank, more advantageous things, and the preferable things concerning you and the things belonging to salvation. One thing that belongs to your salvation are the supergrace blessings.

This is the problem. Between your salvation and the pouring of the supergrace blessings into your life is the consistent daily function of GAP so that you reach the point of occupation with Christ and you reach the point of supergrace blessing. This gap can only be closed by taking in doctrine, and the great hindrance to this gap is reversionism and some of the activities that accompany reversionism, like going into the temple and offering animal sacrifices. In other words, a royal priest putting himself under the Levitical priesthood when the Levitical priesthood is out in the Church Age. So we have the choice and the choice is based upon doctrine and any deviation from doctrine and any decision you make against doctrine.

Bob, because of Bible class, has 2 times missed the movie Zulu. There is a lot of killing of the enemy and Bob loves that. Bob makes decisions for doctrines too. He has stood up and was so sick and dizzy but he shows up to teach. We are constantly faced with decisions and each one of us has our own free will. The decisions which mean the most are those when something attractive is in front of you. Not as impressive if you are sitting around think, “I have nothing to do tonite; I will go the church.”

The most boring passage in the world is better than going out on a date with a stunning woman. Some of you are not convinced.

The passive voice of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh] is very interesting here. With salvation the believer receives the potentiality of supergrace. No one has ever been saved without having his supergrace blessings lined up for him in eternity past. This is why the human writer is optimistic here. The participle echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh] is an ascriptive participle, it ascribes to salvation the potential of the supergrace life blessing and function. Remember that not only is there a life of occupation with Christ, the blessings of materialistic things, the blessings of promotion, wealth, success, prosperity, and so on, but it is also a life of function. It is the true function of the royal priesthood that begins at the supergrace life, therefore the ascriptive participle.

The word “salvation” is the objective genitive singular of sôtêria (σωτηρία) [pronounced soh-tay-REE-ah] which refers to the time when we accept Christ as Savior.

So far in this verse we have the following Translation: “But, beloved ones [every believer, whatever classification], we have been convinced of better things [the supergrace things which are higher in rank, preferable and more advantageous] concerning you, and the things belonging to salvation [supergrace]”.

“though thus we speak” — the word “though” is a conditional particle used to introduce a first class condition — ei (εἰ) [pronounced /]. This is the condition for advancing to supergrace and it means faithful teaching of the Word by a faithful pastor. So we have “if thus.” This is an adjunctive kai, which is translated “also”, plus the adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. It should be translated “if also in this manner we speak.”

Bob is assuming that the pastor has sweated their shadows into the wall. This is the job of the pastor. Some young pastors from Berachah think the pastor needs to get all of the sheep into a pen and kick their butts. That is part of the job, but not all of it. It is an unpleasant part of the job.

“we speak” is the present active indicative of the verb laléō (λαλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] and it means to communicate verbally. It is used here for the communication of doctrine and the accompanying exhortation. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes that which habitually occurs or may be expected to occur if believers are going to reach supergrace. Pastors must faithfully teach doctrine. The active voice: the pastor of the local church produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative. That is, it is used for a statement of unqualified assertion. It is absolutely necessary for the pastor to be faithful in teaching the Word. it is the pastor who teaches the other members of the royal priesthood concerning the tactical objective of the supergrace life. It is the pastor who, warns the royal priesthood of becoming casualties in the angelic conflict through reversionism. It is the pastor who can distinguish between reversionism and carnality. Whereas reversionism has perpetual carnality, growth has occasional rebound type carnality and there must be a distinction.

Hebrews 6:9 “But, beloved ones, we have been convinced of better things concerning you, and things attached to salvation, if also in this manner we habitually communicate [doctrine], and we do.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The blessing of the pastor precedes the blessing of his congregation. His supergrace blessing overflows to his congregation.

Heb 6:10 For God is not unjust so as to overlook your work and the love that you have shown for his name in serving the saints, as you still do.

Verse 10 is parenthetical. it is an explanation of the function as well as the reward of the pastor-teacher. The blessing of the pastor precedes the blessing of the congregation. Obviously the pastor is going to reach supergrace before any member of his congregation, and his supergrace blessing becomes the supergrace blessing of the congregation when they, as he, faithfully stay under the teaching of the Word of God until arrival at that point. The blessing of the pastor is learning and teaching doctrine. Learning doctrine is the only road to supergrace where there is great blessing in time and reward in all eternity, and this is the reason why we are royal priests. We are royal priests because Christ our high priest is going to reign forever. And since Christ is going to reign forever, and since a demonstration of His reign is the perfect blessings of the Millennium, the blessings of the Millennium become ours right now, as we have previously seen in this passage. The blessings of the age to come are our blessing right now under supergrace status!

You have no right to criticize a pastor; you get out without making a fuss. You may be right that the pastor's content is not keeping with Scripture, fine, get out quietly. He still has the authority and you just remove yourself from his authority.

Bob started the ministry thinking that the clergy is not special. But no one can grow on their own. There are all kinds of organizations which have done great work in evangelization. But they are out from under the local church. They must remain evangelical organizations. They cannot bring anyone to supergrace.

“For” is the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar. We are about to get an explanation from the writer, an explanation that goes with Hebrews 13:7, 17. Those two verses summarize the authority of the pastor-teacher.

“God” — literally, “the God” — ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. God knows everything that the pastor-teacher does. The pastor-teacher is directly responsible to God who is responsible for every blessing he will ever have in this life and who is also responsible for every item of discipline he will ever have. The pastor-teacher gets double discipline. Bob has had some fantastic double blessing; and that does not sit well with some people. Discipline or blessing is all grace.

“not unrighteous” — a strong negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] plus the adjective a)dikoj. This says “not unjust.” This says, “the God is not unjust”; He is not unfair to pastors. If a pastor does his job of teaching the Word of God, then God is going to keep him there.

These pastors who have come out of Berachah; and they have been calling and complaining. Big smiley happy people, and some told Bob, “After what you have done, you are not going to last 6 months.” There are all kinds of people in a congregation, but if the pastor does his job, then God keeps him there.

“to forget” — the aorist middle infinitive of epilanthánomai (ἐπιλανθάνομαι) [pronounced ehp-ee-lan-THAN-ohm-ahee]. This is not the usual word for forgetting, it means to disregard and forget, to be thinking about something else and overlook something you should have remembered. Something was more important! The aorist tense is a gnomic aorist, because God is the subject. It is an absolute fact or a doctrine which must be regarded as being axiomatic. “The God is not unjust to disregard”. God never has more important business than a pastor teaching. That is what this verb means. There is nothing more important in the Church Age than a pastor doing his job and God never disregards a pastor teaching the Word of God. The middle voice is a permissive middle, it represents the agent

— God the Father in this case — as sovereignly yielding Himself to the results of the action of the verb to secure results in His own interest. The action of the verb is e never disregards the pastor teaching. So what we actually have here is an anthropopathism — ascribing to God a human characteristic which God really doesn't have to show God's special faithfulness to the pastor who teaches the Word of God.

A gal forgets your date or is late because something else comes up, just walk away. Something is more important than you. Let the skirt think about it.

“your work” — this is not the work of the believer priest, this is the work of the pastor-teacher. It is the objective genitive of ergon (ἔργον) [pronounced EHR-gon]. The word means occupation here, or accomplishment, and it refers to the bona fide occupation of the pastor-teacher which is studying and teaching the Word. The occupation or accomplishment of every pastor should be faithfully teaching the Word so that the believer priest arrives at supergrace and remains there, fulfilling practical function and victory under the royal priesthood.

“and” — this is an adjunctive use of kai, it indicates the pastor's occupation with Christ is necessary to fulfill his teaching — “and labour”, but there is no word for “labour.” It should read “also the love”, not “and labour of love.” We have the objective genitive of agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay]. Agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay] means a relaxed mental attitude. Here it has to do with the relaxed mental attitude necessary for the pastor to keep going in spite of everything.

“which” — the genitive singular feminine of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], and the feminine gender of hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç] tells us that the antecedent is agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay] — “which love”, in other words.

“you have showed” — the aorist middle indicative of endeiknumi (ἐνδείκνυμι) [pronounced en-DIKE-noo-mee]. This is the love that the pastor demonstrates — “you yourselves have demonstrated”, according to the aorist middle indicative. We have to demonstrate as pastors our true love for the congregation and our true love is based upon teaching the Word to everyone. The aorist tense is the constative aorist which contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety — the supergrace life. It takes an occurrence — the supergrace life — and regardless of its extent or duration gathers it into a single whole. Whatever it is that God has for you in the way of supergrace blessings from eternity past the constative aorist gathers it up into one ball of wax. The middle voice is the indirect middle which lays stress on the agent, the pastor-teacher, as producing the action rather than participating in the result. So it is translated “you yourselves [pastors] have demonstrated”. It means to demonstrate. The indicative mood is the declarative used for a statement of fact. It represents the verbal idea from the standpoint of reality, it is the mood of certainty and therefore here it indicates unqualified assertion. It is absolutely a fact that the only way the pastor can show his love for the congregation is by teaching the Word.

“toward his name” — the pastor demonstrates love “toward his person” — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of onoma (ὄνομα, ατος, τό) [pronounced OHN-oh-ma], which means personality, person, as well as name. Here it means “with reference to his person”.

1972 Hebrews 6:10b-11

Lesson #65

65 07/08/1973 Hebrews 6:10b-11 Doctrine of occupation with Christ

Bob spent more than 4 hours on one verse. He was watching tv and it was terrible, so he needed to work on teaching.

3 passages crossing. Hebrews 6; Bob was working on a verse in Rom. 4; and this is the same place where Gen. 17 crosses them. Abraham is sexually dead and he arrives at the supergrace life; and he had sexual prosperity. But, by that time, he was impotent and Sarah was in menopause. Gen. 17:5 quotes in Rom. 4 and implied in Hebrews 6.

Abraham was circumcised at age 100. He was once again able to have sex; and he was a great sexual athlete after that point. Bob has to do the exegesis in Romans and Genesis. Supergrace sex special or something like that for the next few weeks. X-rated for the next few weeks.

An amazing thing happened between Gen. 17 and 18. About Gen 23 etc., Abraham extends his prosperity. He will become the father of many nations. Abraham sired a lot of races as well. Abraham is semitic and so are the Arabs.

Abraham cohabiting with Egyptian resulted in an Arab race. They are sort of a catch-all. Abraham's brother sired some Arab groups. Abraham will later sire many Arab groups. Abraham is the father of the people of the people of Israel; and the Moses the father of nation Israel.

The next doctrine of circumcision is going to be dramatically changed. All circumcision is related to supergrace prosperity in the realm of sex. A new race and a new nation. David will be the greatest king of that nation. All that David had was related to his kingship.

The key to Jeremiah since the 5th cycle; old age prosperity and blessing. Abraham and Jeremiah both received their supergrace blessings in old age. Abraham staggered not at the promises of God; well, you are staggering. 5 men give you the whole history of Israel.

“in that you have ministered to the saints and do minister.”

Heb 6:10 For God is not unjust so as to overlook your work and the love that you have shown for his name in serving the saints, as you still do.

The explanatory use of the conjunctive gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] which began verse 10 changes the subject. Often gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] changes the subject. When you start with gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] and end with de, gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] de often changes the subject or the classification of the subject. And we have a gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] de situation where in verse 10 we are talking to pastors only.

Hebrews 6:10 “For the God is not unjust to disregard the ministry [disregard your accomplishment, your occupation] and also the love which you yourselves have demonstrated toward his name [his person].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This verse refers specifically to pastors.

The Doctrine of Occupation with Christ

1. Occupation with the person of Jesus Christ begins at the supergrace life — maximum category #1 love toward Christ. The basis for this occupation, therefore, is the intake of Bible doctrine through the function of GAP or the consistent and daily function of GAP — Jeremiah 9:24; Ephesians 3:18,19; 4:20.
2. With doctrine as the working object of faith the believer has maximum category #1 love response to God. This classes him to be designated “friend of God”, as in James 2:22,23. “Friend of God” is simply a title for a supergrace believer. And we know that it is different from the saved person. For example, the word “friend” is not agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay] but it is the genitive of philos, and philos is the maximum love type of word. The principle, then, in James 2:22,23: “Abraham became a supergrace believer.” But he didn’t become one over night. Abraham was probably saved at about 20 or 21, it was 80 years later before he reached supergrace. However, there were times when he was almost there and then reverted; he was up and down. Abraham was a very unstable person. He was one of those people who had to live a long time before he finally reached the supergrace life.
  - a. Circumcision is the key to Abraham.
  - b. The Law is the key to Moses.
3. Occupation with Christ is based upon the glorification of Jesus Christ — Colossians 3:1,2. In other words, when a believer reaches supergrace and is occupied with Christ this also glorifies Christ. Christ is glorified by the maximum love, the supergrace love, of the believer. When a believer reaches supergrace he has a special relationship with the Lord which other people can neither understand nor acquire, nor duplicate. It comes through the intake of Bible doctrine, and comes through the consistency, the self-discipline, the concentration of the royal priesthood related to the Word.
4. Occupation with Christ is the standard operating procedure for the Christian life — Hebrews 12:1,2, the bridge between the Old and the New Testaments. Hebrews 11 is Old Testament spirituality leading to Old Testament supergrace; Hebrews 12:3ff, the other side, deals with the Church Age spirituality, the Church Age reaching supergrace. So there is a bridge between the Old Testament and the New Testament, between the Age of Israel and the Church Age. This bridge is built by Hebrews 12:1,2 because it shows us occupation with the person of Christ as it exists in any dispensation.

5. Occupation with Christ is illustrated by the doctrine of right man-right woman — Ephesians 5:25–32; 1Corinthians 11:7.
6. The function of GAP is the believer responding to Christ’s love in phase two — James 1:21,2.
7. The sealing of the Holy Spirit guarantees an eternal love relationship between Jesus Christ and the believer — Ephesians 1:11–14.
8. Occupation with Christ includes total dependence upon supergrace provision — Psalm 37:4,5.
9. Occupation with Christ is related to both stability and inner happiness — Psalm 16:8,9.
10. Occupation with Christ is the basis for blessing in time of suffering. While reversionism intensifies suffering, occupation minimizes suffering — Psalm 77.
11. Occupation with Christ is based on the believer’s entrance into the supergrace life — Hebrews 3:1,6; Colossians 3:16,17.

Occupation in this passage is related to the pastor-teacher. He must be occupied with Christ long before the congregation; he must reach supergrace long before the congregation. He cannot lead to supergrace without getting there himself, and understanding the issue of how to get there and therefore pouring it on as never before when it comes to the teaching of Bible doctrine.

Bob’s next few weeks are going to be very busy. When you put sex together with the spiritual life and prosperity; and that is where it should be related.

A pastor demonstrates his love for his congregation by studying and teaching.

The verb which comes up also indicates that we are not talking to the royal priesthood in general but the royal priesthood’s pastor-teacher specifically — “ye have ministered”, the aorist active participle of the verb diakoneō (διακονέω) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EH-oh]. There are six different verbs which are used “to minister” in the Greek language. I call these the synonyms of service. Diakoneō (διακονέω) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EH-oh] will be listed in last place, it is used for the pastor-teacher teaching the Word and it is also used in the noun form, diakonia, for the deacon handling the administration of a local church. Both of them are specialized, there is no general usage on this one.

Bob was going to the gym and watch a muscle contest. On the day for the contest, Bob made a note to himself. Something came up in the exegesis; and he missed it.

Words for Minister

1. Dulouw, which connotes a slave. It means to work as a slave, to be a slave and to work as a slave. It is often used for the royal priesthood in general; we are the slaves of the Lord Jesus Christ, and in that sense it is our privilege to serve Him at various times and in different ways.

2. Qerapeuw, to serve in a professional sense in medical practice. So it means to serve but to serve professionally, a service that not anyone can do.
3. Latreuô (λατρεύω) [pronounced lat-RYOO-oh], which means to work for wages, also a bona fide service.
4. leitourgeô (λειτουργέω) [pronounced li-toorg-EH-oh], to perform an official service for the state.
5. U(peretew, which means to serve in the sense of steering a ship. This was used for the quartermaster on the bridge, steering a ship, receiving his instructions and following them out. This again requires skill of some kind and is service in that sense.
6. Diakoneô (διακονέω) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EH-oh] is translated “to minister.” It meant originally to wait on tables. Then it meant to go into the kitchen and bring some food to the table. Then it meant to prepare the food in the kitchen and then bring it in — one person doing both things, a combination of cook and maid for service. It finally came to be used for pastors and deacons. It is used for pastors because it is analogous to the pastor studying, like working in the kitchen. Then after he has prepared it he brings it out to the congregation and serves it, and that is like teaching the Word of God. How is it used for the deacons? It is more or less the same idea. The deacon then comes and picks up the plates and takes them back to the kitchen and cleans them. In other words, the pastor has a teaching function and the deacons have an administrative function. There is only one pastor in the local church, there are also deacons, and woe to the pastor who doesn’t get men qualified by spiritual gift to be deacons.

So much for the verb. It’s morphology is an aorist active participle. The aorist tense is a constative aorist which contemplates the action of preparing and teaching the Word in its entirety. In other words, every act of study and teach, study and teach, study and teach, is in the constative aorist. That is the life of a pastor-teacher. it should be translated “having ministered” — aorist participle. The active voice: the supergrace pastor produces the action of the verb. We have the action of them participle antecedent to the main verb, “you have demonstrated love toward God.” So before you demonstrate love toward God you do so by this constative aorist active participle.

“to the saints” should be “with reference to the saints”, this is a dative plural of reference, not a prepositional phrase. The noun in the dative plural is hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] and refers to all believers. Notice that the royal priesthood are called here hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] or saints. The word really means “set apart ones”.

“and do minister” is not correct. It is the present active participle, again, of diakoneô (διακονέω) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EH-oh]. We have just had an aorist participle, now we suddenly have a change to the present tense of diakoneô (διακονέω) [pronounced dee-ak-on-EH-oh]. What does it mean? The present tense is an iterative present which describes that which recurs at successive intervals. It is called the present tense of repeated action to indicate that repeatedly the pastor studies and teaches. The active voice: the pastor produces the action of the verb by teaching the Word of God. But it is the participle that is different, this is a circumstantial participle and should be translated “and under the circumstances continues to minister.” It is easy to reach once or twice, it is difficult to keep it up, to keep it up, to keep it up, and keep going. And the point that he is making is that the pastor has to stay in there, keep teaching, keep teaching, and so we have a circumstantial participle translated “and under the circumstances continue to minister.” “Continue to minister” comes from the present tense and “under the circumstances” is the translation from the circumstantial participle.

Hebrews 6:10 “For the Lord is not unjust to disregard your occupation [pastors], also the love which you yourselves [pastors] have demonstrated with reference to his person, having ministered the word with reference to the saints, and [under the circumstances] continuing to minister [the Word].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Translation reviewed to v. 10.

Heb 6:11 And we desire each one of you to show the same earnestness to have the full assurance of hope until the end,

Verse 11 — the exhortation to reversion recovery. The desire of every pastor is that all the members of his congregation will be utterly and completely and totally devoted to doctrine. It begins the conjunctive particle de which now brings us back to the royal priesthood again and then pastor’s desire for the royal priesthood.

“we” refers to the pastor — not just the writer who is a pastor-teacher but the pastors who are residing in Jerusalem, this is their desire too, or it is the desire they should possess.

“we desire”, the present active indicative from epithumeō (ἐπιθυμέω) [pronounced ehp-ee-thoo-MEH-oh]. This means a very deep, earnest desire. It has a cognate in the noun, epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] qumia which refers to the lust pattern of the old sin nature. This tells us something. These are entirely different words but it tells us that this is the grand passion of any pastor, that his congregation have an earnest and deep desire, that they deeply long for Bible doctrine. It is his most earnest desire for his congregation. The present tense of epithumeō (ἐπιθυμέω) [pronounced ehp-ee-thoo-MEH-oh] is a customary present which denotes what habitually occurs. it expresses the attitude of a good pastor toward his flock. The active voice: the pastor produces the action of the verb. We have a declarative indicative mood denoting an unqualified assertion. Any pastor who is occupied with Christ will have this desire for his congregation.

Now we go back to the priesthood in general: “every one”, the masculine accusative singular of hekastos (ἕκαστος) [pronounced HEHK-as-toss]. The word is much more personal than “every one”, it is “each one individually” in the singular, not the plural. It is the accusative case and the object of the verb. The present active indicative of epithumeō (ἐπιθυμέω) [pronounced ehp-ee-thoo-MEH-oh] takes an accusative as the direct object. But this is more than just a direct object, this is a part of the accusative of general reference. The accusative is used with the infinitive, not really as the subject but used to describe the person involved in the action of the infinitive. So it comes to be the subject of the infinitive and at the same time the object of the verb. “And [de to show that the parenthesis is over and we are back to the general priesthood] we pastors earnestly, deeply, with great passion, desire each one individually.” The desire has an object but the object is not just the accusative of direct object, it is also the accusative of general reference. And here is one of those beautiful structures that only the Alexandrian school could come up with where you have a transitive verb and the accusative is the direct object and, at the same time, it is as it were the subject of the infinitive. It doubles for both. “Each one individually” refers to you personally as a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ.

“do show” — the aorist middle infinitive of endeiknumi (ἐνδείκνυμι) [pronounced en-DIKE-noo-mee]. We have just had it for the pastor demonstrating his love to the Lord. Now here is another demonstration, it means again to demonstrate. This time it is in the aorist infinitive. The aorist tense is an ingressive aorist, used with verbs which signify a state or a condition and denote an entrance into a state or condition. In other words, the pastor longing for you to GAP it to supergrace. He wants you to have a mad passion for doctrine and for you to come right on through to supergrace. That is exactly what the ingressive means. The middle voice is an indirect middle, it lays stress on the agent who is the recovering believer as producing the action rather than in participating in the results of the action. A direct middle always has the subject with the agent participating in the action of the verb, but this is different, it stresses the agent, a recovering believer, as producing the action — or beginning to. The infinitive, therefore, denotes purpose. So here is the point where the writer finds the congregation to whom he addressed the epistle to the Hebrews. The congregation in Jerusalem are sitting under the ingressive aorist and his mad desire, his passionate desire for them, is that they will begin to get with doctrine and come right on through, GAPing it daily to the supergrace life where he is. This is translated, then: “to each one individually to demonstrate.”

“the same diligence” — an accusative singular from spoudê (σπουδή) [pronounced spoo-DAY], a difficult word to translate because there is no true English equivalent. Actually, it means more than anything else devotion to duty, also a total and complete devotion to someone or something. It is used for absolute devotion to a cause; it is used for devotion to a person in love. It means concentration on one thing to the exclusion of the superficialities of life. That is exactly what it means and somehow we do not have an exact English equivalent, apart from the word “devotion.” And it should be translated, “the same devotion.” This is devotion to doctrine. In other words, it is the writer’s desire that the readers show the same devotion to doctrine that he has shown and does show in his teaching. He has personally studied and taught and he has moved all the way to supergrace. Now he is dealing with reversionists and he wants them to begin and to keep on coming. He wants them to have devotion to doctrine, that’s all they need. It is your devotion to the written Word that causes God to provide you with a right pastor-teacher to communicate it to you so you can get to supergrace. That is where the right pastor-teacher is and that is his desire for you, that you too will get to that same spot. The communicator must be devoted to doctrine before the recipient can be devoted to doctrine. That is why in verse 10 endeiknumi (ἐνδείκνυμι) [pronounced en-DIKE-noo-mee] was used of the pastor. He demonstrates his love for Jesus Christ by taking in doctrine and by ministering doctrine. It is the written Word that becomes the issue after the cross.

“to the full assurance” — we have pros plus the accusative of plêrophoria (πληροφορία) [pronounced play-tohf-ohr-EE-ah]. Pros plus the accusative means several things. It often means “face to face with”, it also means “toward” or “to” or “beside”. Here it means “toward”, it is directional — “toward the full assurance.” Plêrophoria (πληροφορία) [pronounced play-tohf-ohr-EE-ah] means not just assurance but it means complete confidence.

Bob loves Christ; he teaches; we love Christ, we listen.

“We continually desire each one of you individually to demonstrate the same devotion to doctrine toward full confidence.” Your direction is to come face to face with complete confidence. If you keep going you will come face to face with supergrace. Supergrace is described by “full confidence” or plêrophoria (πληροφορία) [pronounced play-tohf-ohr-EE-ah]. In other words, the normal Christian life begins with supergrace. Full confidence begins with supergrace.

Next is “of hope.” This is a descriptive genitive singular of elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS], and elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] means confidence or prospect. The prospect or confidence of taking in doctrine consistently is supergrace status, the tactical objective of every believer priest in phase two and the tactical victory of the angelic conflict.

“until the end” — the adverb achri/achris (ἄχρι/ἄχρις) [pronounced AHKH-ree/AHKH-rece] is used as an improper preposition. When an adverb is used as a preposition it is called an “improper preposition.” It should be translated “until the end” — achri/achris (ἄχρι/ἄχρις) [pronounced AHKH-ree/AHKH-rece] plus telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss] means the end of your life on earth, the end of phase two.

Hebrews 6:11 “And we [pastors] continually desire each one of you believers individually to demonstrate the same devotion [to doctrine], moving face to face toward the full assurance of the confidence [supergrace status] until the end [of your life]”. R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

We do not have a definite article before telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss]. The reason is because the quality of the noun is emphasized. In other words, if you are moving toward doctrine in time take away the definite article because you are going to die the most beautiful way in all the world. You are going to die under dying grace. If you had the definite article with telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss] it wouldn’t mean much, but the absence of the definite article calls attention to the high quality of the noun. The high quality of the noun is the glorious privilege of dying grace. The concept goes back to verse 3 where the departure of the believer is always a matter of the sovereignty of God. We will receive as long as God gives us permission. So verse 3 is now explained. This says in verse 11, “until the termination of life on earth”, God’s permission. The last phrase, telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss] minus the definite article actually describes God’s permission. God’s permission is for you to move into, live in, enjoy, and have all the blessings of supergrace as long as you live, and then to depart from this earth under dying grace under the most beautiful and comfortable and delightful of circumstances, where even the dying has as much happiness as the living. In this way we derive maximum benefit from life while glorifying God as a royal priest. A royal priest should go out in a royal way!

1972 Hebrews 6:12–14a

Lesson #66

66 07/09/1973 Hebrews 6:12–14a 1st of 2 immutable things

Heb 6:12 so that you may not be sluggish, but imitators of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

Verse 12 — “That”, the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus the negative mê used to introduce a negative purpose clause with the subjunctive of the verb — “That you be not”, the aorist middle subjunctive of the verb ginomai which means to become. The word “lest” is the best way to translate a negative purpose clause: “lest you become.” The aorist tense of the verb become is a constative aorist, contemplating the action in its entirety. It takes an occurrence and regardless of the extent or duration of that occurrence gathers it into a single whole. With the predicate nominative coming up, nôthros (νωθρός) [pronounced noh-THROSS], it gathers up into one ball of wax what we should never, never do — neglect doctrine for even a day. Nôthros (νωθρός) [pronounced noh-THROSS] is a predicate nominative with ginomai, Ginomai is a verb to be or become and therefore takes not an accusative but a nominative. It means negative volition toward doctrine. With the negative it demands that the royal priest spends time every day taking in the Word of God. The middle voice is the permissive middle. The permissive middle plus the negative represents the agent, the believer priest, as not voluntarily yielding himself to the results of the action of the verb, and not doing so to his own interests. So his failure to take in doctrine shows a lack of interest in his own purpose in being here. The negative mê with the subjunctive is prohibitive, so we have the subjunctive of prohibition. The word “slothful” is the word nôthros (νωθρός) [pronounced noh-THROSS], and again it is in the predicate nominative and is in the plural. We saw this noun in Hebrews 5:11 where it indicated apathy or indifference toward Bible doctrine. As in Hebrews 5:11 so in Hebrews 6:12 it means apathy, indifference, negative volition toward doctrine. So far then we have, “Lest you become apathetic [indifferent, negative, toward doctrine].” This is the one thing that no believer can afford to do.

The basic way in which this apathy develops is through reactors in the life. Reactors are not necessarily sinful but they form the basis of getting into something that is sinful. Disillusion, boredom, discouragement, etc. are not sin but they make you vulnerable for a frantic search for happiness. Self-pity is a sin, a mental attitude sin very definitely. Loneliness is not a sin but it can produce a whole batch of sins when one reacts to it. There are the mental attitude sins like jealousy, bitterness, vindictiveness, implacability, antagonism, also double as reactor factors. Frustration is not a sin but as a reactor factor it can lead to sin. So some of these reactors are actually sins and some are not, but when one reacts to any of these situations he comes to the frantic search for happiness, and the frantic search for happiness perpetuates carnality into the life on a very extensive basis. The frantic search for happiness also leads to emotional revolt. Once the emotion revolts it intensifies whatever reactor factors are involved. This combination always results in neglecting, becoming indifferent or apathetic toward Bible doctrine. It is the negative volition toward doctrine that starts all the trouble as far as Satan getting into the picture. A vacuum is opened up by negative volition that goes directly to the right lobe. The right lobe has already been attacked by the emotion under emotional revolt. Emotional revolt freezes the valves in the frame of reference, in the memory centre, the vocabulary, the categories, the norms and standards and the launching pad. When these valves freeze that forces all of the doctrine back into the left lobe where it is not useable. It can still be understood objectively but it is not useable until it is again transferred. Through the vacuum, which is called mataiotês (ματαιότης) [pronounced mat-ah-YOHT-ace] in the Greek, comes the doctrine of demons which puts the believer under demon influence. The believer cannot be demon possessed but demon influence brings the doctrines of Satan into the right lobe and they replace the places where Bible doctrine existed previously, so that the norms and standards are changed. The vocabulary changes, you get a lot of silly things like loving everyone, and so on, and you get all kinds of applications that are erroneous. As a result of these things there is a total blackout of the soul which is called two different things in the scripture — blackout (darkness) and hardness of heart. This leads to the practice of reverse process reversionism.

Once you get to negative volition toward doctrine then you lose the indwelling of Christ and the Lord Jesus Christ is on the outside knocking. The indwelling of Christ can be lost at frantic search for happiness or the point of emotional revolt, or very shortly after getting into the negative volition factor. You cannot neglect doctrine and get away with it, that is the principle.

Then we have a conjunctive particle de used to emphasize a contrast. — “but.” And here is what we should be doing in contrast to what we shouldn’t be doing as royal priests — “followers”, the nominative plural of mimêtês (μιμητής)[pronounced mihm-ay-TACE] means “imitators”. And we are now going to have an illustration of what we should imitate: Abraham reaching supergrace.

“of them” — the genitive masculine plural of the definite article is a reference to supergrace believers, Old Testament types primarily. At the time of the writing of Hebrews the Old Testament canon was completed and had been circulated for quite a few hundred years. So this category, because of devotion to doctrine, has achieved the tactical victory and believers are commanded to imitate them or to follow them.

In the selection here God the Holy Spirit could have selected a number of different keys. He selected Abraham for a lot of reasons. Abraham is the pattern of Old Testament salvation as well as Old Testament spirituality. Abraham is also extremely well documented in the New Testament. Abraham is discussed in the whole fourth chapter of Romans, both his salvation and his spirituality. He is also discussed in the second chapter of James. He is the subject of Hebrews chapter six and has quite a few sentences in chapter eleven, as well as having everything to do with Genesis chapters twelve and all the way through chapter twenty-five. So Abraham is obviously the perfect illustration to use at this point. In selecting him God the Holy Spirit opens up the whole perspective of supergrace blessing.

From the point of salvation on if a believer remains positive it is possible in a relatively short period of time to reach the supergrace status. The supergrace status is first of all characterized by occupation with the person of Christ, then supergrace capacity — the cup in the soul based on doctrine, and then the; pouring of supergrace blessings. Every Old Testament hero who reached supergrace had a specific and a particular type of key to his whole supergrace blessing life. Supergrace blessings always include wealth. Wealth differs. For example, Abraham was a millionaire but his wealth was counted in sheep and goats and cattle, and so on. Then we have the principle of prosperity, and prosperity has many aspects — materialistic prosperity, possession of things at different types, social prosperity, and sexual prosperity which is the key to Abraham. Then in some cases it is a matter of promotion, like in David's case. But these are basically the characteristics of supergrace blessings. There is also another one that is brought into the picture for all of them at some time: pressure. These men are all great in supergrace under pressure. The key to Abraham is sexual prosperity. Abraham also is the father of a new race. Sexual prosperity is brought out in the Abrahamic covenant as it appears first in Genesis 12:1–3, and especially in Genesis 12:2 where it says "In multiplying I will multiply." This demands sexual prosperity which has two parts: the procreation and the perpetuation of the family, the race, into a nation. Abraham is the father of a new race, he is also the father of many Gentile nations — ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss] means Gentiles, it is never used of the Jews. Abraham is the father of the new race whereas Moses is the father of the new nation. Before Moses there was no nation. With Abraham the key is sexual prosperity; with Moses the key is leadership. Then the nation finally had a good king in David, and the key to David's supergrace is his leadership again, or his kingship. Then when we get to Jeremiah the nation is going out under the fifth cycle of discipline, and does, and old age blessing is the key to Jeremiah. All the way through the big thing has always been that Israel were the custodians of the Word of God. Therefore Paul supergrace blessing is doctrine. There never was a man of doctrine like Paul and there never will be again. These men are all Jews, all related to Israel, and all had different keys to the supergrace blessings.

"through faith" — the preposition dia plus the genitive of pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. And we are going to have a problem with the noun pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. The problem is that pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] does mean faith, but pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] also means what is believed or doctrine. So pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] can be faith in action or it can mean doctrine. Or really what is comes to mean is you keep believing what you hear and you transfer it to your human spirit and to your right lobe, and so faith is the key to doctrine. Without faith the concentration on the teaching of the Word becomes useless because it is faith and faith-rest that transfers it. So faith connotes both faith-rest as a technique, the function of GAP and what is believed, and/or doctrine.

"and patience" — makrothumia (μακροθυμία) [pronounced mak-roth-oo-MEE-ah]. "Patience" is not too good a translation, it means more endurance or consistency, or stability in consistency. You have to be consistent in the intake of the Word of God, you can't get around that. This is where most people miss. They are consistent for awhile and they phase out.

Young women who came to Berachah for doctrine, they find some guy in Berachah barracks and decide he is their RM...mixed up. They always talk a great talk. They talk about how much they like getting doctrine face to face. Next thing you know, they are face to face fornicating with someone. You have to wait awhile; do not put the cart before the horse.

“inherit” — the present active participle of klêronomeô (κληρονομέω) [pronounced klay-ron-om-EH-oh] which means to acquire possession of something, to possess something you don't possess before. The present tense is an aoristic present, it is used for punctiliar action in the present time. Remember that the aorist tense always connotes punctiliar action in past time. So there is an aoristic present which expresses the idea of a present fact, supergrace blessings, acquired without reference to progress. All of a sudden we are there. The active voice: the supergrace believer acquires possession of supergrace blessings, and this is accomplished by consistency, faithfulness, steadfastness, persistence in the function of GAP. That is what counts. The participle is a telic participle, used to express God's purpose in preserving doctrine. God is preserving doctrine so that you and I can move to supergrace, so that every generation of believers will have something on which to move to supergrace. Reaching the objective of the supergrace life with its occupation with Christ, with its supergrace capacities and with its supergrace blessings, is the purpose and is the objective. Therefore God preserves doctrine for that reason.

“the promises” — the accusative plural of epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-eh-EE-ah], used here for divine promises, pledges, anything related to supergrace — all the doctrines that lead to it, all the principles, all the promises. Not only did Abraham have doctrine and promises and messages from God by which he could move toward supergrace but God even told him ahead of time what type of emphasis, what type of prosperity, he would have in supergrace. The word here is “promises” in the plural and it indicates variation of promises to supergrace believers. There is always a key emphasis but there are many supergrace blessings. Supergrace promised blessings to Abraham related, for example, to having a son from his own loins. You and I have many wonderful supergrace blessings for us with our name on it but God hasn't given us an engraved promise as He did Abraham, yet ours are just as definite as his. But with Abraham it was so clear: “You Abraham are going to be the father of a new race. From your own loins will come a son who will be a new race.” Supergrace promised blessings to David related to his kingdom, therefore he became a king. Supergrace promises to believers of this dispensation are compatible with the blessing categories of the time in which we live.

Types of priesthoods reviewed.

Summary

1. The illustration of this principle is taken from Abraham who was in a different dispensation and in a different priestly battalion.
2. Abraham was a family priest not of the royal priesthood of the Church Age. Yet God had great blessings for him. But because we are of the royal priesthood our supergrace blessings are even greater. So while we do not know the key to our supergrace blessings we know that being in the royal priesthood in the Church Age makes them greater blessings.

3. Nevertheless the promises of supergrace blessings applied as much to Abraham as to us. The principle of supergrace belongs to all of us.
4. Note that Abraham is used as the pattern of Old Testament salvation — Romans 4:1–16, 22–25.
5. Abraham is also used as the pattern of Old Testament supergrace heroes as well as Old Testament spirituality. In Romans 4:17–21 we have supergrace. In Hebrews 6:13–15 we have supergrace, as in Hebrews 11:8–19; James 2:21–23. So a character study of Abraham reveals all of the advances and all of the retreats of phase two.

Hebrews 6:12 “Lest you become apathetic [toward doctrine], but instead become imitators of them [supergrace heroes], the ones who through faith and persistence [in GAPing it] acquired possession of the promises [supergrace blessings].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The Certainty of God's Promise

Heb 6:13 For when God made a promise to Abraham, since he had no one greater by whom to swear, he swore by himself,

Now we have come to our illustration of persisting to supergrace, the illustration of staying with it until you get there. Abraham is the pattern of persistence ending in supergrace blessing — verses 13–15. Out of this illustration will come the doctrine of the two immutable things. Verse 13 is the first of two immutable things: the oath of God which is based upon who and what He is, His person; verse 14, the second of the two immutable things, is the promise to Abraham, the supergrace blessing promise. And verse 15 is how Abraham finally arrived at the point of supergrace. In other words, verse 15 is the actual illustration. We will first of all study the two immutable things as they relate to Abraham. Then the rest of Hebrews six will go on and deal with the two immutable things as they relate to the royal priesthood. We are believers in the Church Age; our high priest is a King priest, He is in the same battalion as Melchizedek.

Verse 13 — we start with gar, the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle. We are starting a new subject with gar. Every time you have gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] it means a new subject. So we have the principle of the first immutable thing. Persistence in learning doctrine is the key to reaching our tactical objective of supergrace status in the royal priesthood. The objective is the supergrace life. “For” begins the illustration of Abraham. The word “when” is not found in the original, it is used by the translator to interpret the participle coming up as a temporal participle.

“God” — ho Theos, “the God.” The first person of the Trinity is the one who handles supergrace blessings. God the Father is the author of the divine decrees and all supergrace blessings are related to the divine decrees. Your supergrace blessings were provided for you in eternity past. God has your name of specific supergrace blessings, things that are so wonderful, so fantastic that you wouldn’t want to miss them. Your birthright as a royal priest is supergrace. So don’t be like Esau and sell your birthright for a mess of pottage or a mess of frantic search for happiness. It isn’t worth it. You have before you an inheritance, a birthright, an inheritance in time which when you receive it God is glorified in giving it to you and you are blessed in receiving it.

“made promise” — aorist middle participle of epaggellō (ἐπαγγέλλω) [pronounced ehp-ang-EHL-low]. It should be translated “having promised.” The active voice was used in Homer with this particular verb but in the New Testament the active voice is not used in the participial form, it is always the middle voice in the Koine Greek. The aorist tense is a gnomic aorist, used as a generally accepted fact or doctrine which is regarded as so fixed in its certainty as to be axiomatic. Therefore we are describing something that is an absolute, as though it was an actual occurrence at this moment. The middle voice is used for the subject participating in the results of the action of the verb. God participates in having promised us something. He actually participates in the results. However, this is an indirect middle in which the agent [God the Father] is emphasized as producing the action rather than participating in its results. Therefore you have to translate it in a reflexive way — “the God himself having promised.” The participle being an aorist participle has antecedent action to the main verb, the main verb doesn’t come up until verse 15 where he obtains the supergrace blessings. This is also, by the way, a temporal participle which is why the translator put the “when” in.

“to Abraham” — the dative singular of the indirect object. It indicates the one in whose interest the promise is made by God. It is for Abraham’s blessing that God gave him all of these promises relating to his supergrace experience and blessing. The same thing is true with us. By application, being in the royal priesthood we are much higher than Abraham. Our priesthood is a higher priesthood than Abraham’s priesthood. Abraham’s priesthood was a family priesthood, the lowest of all. Remember that when Melchizedek, a bona fide person, a royal priest, came into contact with Abraham it was Melchizedek who ministered to Abraham, not vice versa. This indicates once again that the priesthood of which we are a part, the royal priesthood, is a superior priesthood in every way to Abraham’s. Yet God blessed Abraham to the maximum. Therefore we have the right to ask ourselves a question” How does this participle apply to us? The answer: In a much greater way. The blessings that are stored up and reserved for us are infinitely superior to the blessings to Abraham. This does not mean that they exclude Abraham’s blessing, they include it. But we have something that is greater in supergrace than any priesthood that has ever existed. When Abraham reached supergrace God poured but the road to supergrace was filled with a lot of setbacks and failures. Nevertheless, Abraham did do one thing well. He persisted. He is, therefore, the illustration of persistence. In spite of many setbacks, in spite of side-trips into reversionism, he stuck with the principle and stayed with it until he made it.

“because” — the conjunction epéi (ἐπεὶ) [pronounced ehp-IH] is used in a causal sense here; “he had” — imperfect active indicative of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh]. This is what is called the customary imperfect, it denotes that which occurs at regular intervals in past time. The active voice: God produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood: this is a declarative indicative used for unqualified assertion. It represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

“no one” — katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the genitive of oudeís (οὐδεὶς) [pronounced oo-DICE]. It should be translated “by no one”; “greater” is a genitive masculine singular, a comparative from me-gas (μέγας, μεγάλη, μέγα) [pronounced MEH-gas]. This is a genitive of description. There is no one in the universe greater than God, therefore He could not promise in the name of another, there is no one higher. This is our first introduction to the doctrine of two immutable things and the first of these is God swearing by Himself because there is no higher person in the universe — “because he had no one greater by whom to swear”, the aorist active infinitive of omnuô (ὀμνύω) [pronounced om-NOO-oh]. It means to take a solemn oath, to confirm a promise by an oath. The constative aorist contemplates the action of taking an oath in its entirety. The occurrence of confirming the promise with an oath is gathered up into a single ball of wax. That is the constative aorist. God could find no one greater than He is because there is no one greater, so He takes an oath “by himself”, on the basis of His own person He is emphasizing that He in His essence is well qualified to make the promise and to keep the promise, no matter how great the problem. It was this thing that Abraham remembered above everything else. God took an oath in His own name that He would fulfill this, and for that reason Abraham at age 99 and sexually dead was not shook.

Circumcision means that God’s oath is greater than anything else in the world. Abraham was circumcised at age 99. Abraham probably had sex for every day for the next 20 years; an important incentive to stay in supergrace.

And Abraham continued in faith and was willing to offer up his own son. Abraham had 9 other children by Keturah. “You see, I’ve got this whole thing figured out.” The worst thing to happen to youth is to be young. Why? They are all too stupid about these things. It is the waiting that counts. It is the persistence. Do not sell your birthright for a mess of pottage. Esau was covered with hair, but that was not important. Esau and Isaac were very different looking; but it was what was in their souls that was important.

“He sware by Himself” — aorist active indicative of omnuô (ὀμνύω) [pronounced om-NOO-oh] again which means to take an oath. He took an oath in the name of His Own Person. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the occurrence of taking an oath in its entirety but regards it from the standpoint of its results. The result, of course, was Abraham’s blessing in supergrace. The active voice: God produced the action of the verb, He took the oath. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative which represents the verbal idea from the standpoint of its reality. It is the mood of unqualified assertion, the mood of certainty, and it is an unqualified fact that God took an oath on the basis of His own essence in making the promise to Abraham. “By Himself” is the preposition katá

(κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the genitive of the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO], and it means “by Himself”, “on the basis of his own person.”

Hebrews 6:13 “For the God when He Himself had promised to Abraham, because He had no one greater by whom to take an oath, he took an oath on the basis of His Own Person.”
R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. Here are two immutable things — the oath of God and the promise. The oath is related to His person and the promise is the content, the message or decrees.
2. The solemn oath emphasizes who and what God is. He is the greatest of all, there is no one greater, He took an oath by Himself.
3. There was no one greater by whom God could take the oath, so He had to take the oath in the name of His own person.
4. With that oath He gave a specific promise to Abraham. The promise has to do with Abraham’s supergrace sexual prosperity.
5. This whole thing has an analogy to the function of the pastor-teacher in our dispensation. The pastor-teacher is divided into two parts, the person and the message. God in effect has put two things into the pastor-teacher: a spiritual gift which becomes the basis for the pastor’s authority (Hebrews 13:7,17); a message, and that is like the promise, the second of the two immutable things. The message is the basis of supergrace blessing to those who respond, who are positive, to the authority of the pastor and therefore concentrate on the message that he gives.

Heb 6:14 saying, "Surely I will bless you and multiply you."

Verse 14 — gives us the promise itself. We begin with the word “Saying” which is a present active participle of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. The present tense is a static present used for that which may be taken for granted as a fact. The active voice: God the Father made the promise, as quoted in Genesis 22:16,17. The participle is a temporal participle and should be translated “When he was saying”, to put it together with the previous verse. In other words, “when He made the promise”.

Now comes the quotation from Genesis 22:16,17 — “Surely.” We have two particles ei (εἰ) [pronounced ī] mē (μή) [pronounced may], and it is an idiom in the Greek used as a formula. It means “assuredly” or “definitely.” In other words, this is an oath formula: definitely in my own name I am doing this. “Definitely” is “I am God” — here is the actual oath. Ei (εἰ) [pronounced ī] mē (μή) [pronounced may], then, is used as the formula to show the oath of the previous verse was actually taken, and before God gave a promise he said, “Just as assuredly as I am God I promise that blessing, you will be blessed”, and so on. In other words, ei (εἰ) [pronounced ī] mē (μή) [pronounced may] is the place where you insert the oath. We have in the English translation “Surely”, but it should be translated “definitely” or “assuredly.”

First 13 verses reviewed.

Heb 6:14 saying, "Surely I will bless you and multiply you."

In verse 14 we have the present active participle of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. This is the static present tense, used for that which may be taken for granted as a fact. When God takes an oath and then makes a promise the promise is equivalent to the decree. While God promised Abraham in time He decreed it in eternity past. The active voice: God the Father made the promise, or decreed. And we have the quotation of the promise of Genesis 22:16,17. The participle here is a temporal participle and should be translated "when he was saying [to Abraham]". Then comes the quotation from Genesis 22:16,17. God first of all took an oath in the name of Himself when he was making this promise to Abraham. A promise is merely a repetition of the decree in eternity past. So the two immutable things can be described this way: The first of the immutable things is the oath God took an oath in the name of Himself and that emphasizes the person of God. Secondly we have the decree — what God said in eternity past — and in time a decree is a promise. The promise began in Genesis 12:2, that Abraham would have sexual prosperity. It was reiterated in Genesis 15:5, then in 17:5, 22:17. It is also quoted in numerous passages like Romans 4 and Hebrews 6. The promise is secure to Abraham because it is based on two immutable things: the person of God [the oath]; the decree of God [the promise].

The word "surely" is one that is so pitifully translated in the KJV because it is a highly specialized idiom made up of two particles — ei (εἰ) [pronounced ī] mê (μή) [pronounced may]. These particles are not really translatable, they merely indicate this is where you put in God's oath. God took an oath in the name of Himself and ei (εἰ) [pronounced ī] mê (μή) [pronounced may] is an idiom to indicate the insertion of an oath. "Just as definitely or just as surely as I am God" — that is the oath which is brought in by the two particles. The two particles are called, therefore, the idiom of oath formula, for an actual promise is being quoted.

"blessing" is a present active participle from eulogēō (εὐλογέω) [pronounced you-lohg-EH-oh] which means to bless or provide benefit. The present tense is tendential which is used of an action which is purposed. The action which is purposed here is supergrace blessing though it has not yet taken place. Abraham was given this promise repeatedly before it actually occurred. The action is purposed but hasn't been fulfilled. Though it hasn't taken place it represents what God intends for Abraham under supergrace status — sexual prosperity and a new race, sexual prosperity and the father of many nations. The active voice: God intended to produce the action of the verb for Abraham when he reached supergrace, which he did at age 99. The participle is a telic participle used to denote a future purpose. So it should be translated, "Just as definitely [or assuredly] as I am God, intended blessing I will bless" — the future active indicative of eulogēō (εὐλογέω)

[pronounced you-lohg-EH-oh]. The future tense with the solemn oath formula, ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] mê (μή) [pronounced may], becomes a gnomic future. A gnomic future presents a statement of fact as a promise which must be considered as axiomatic. In other words, God would keep Abraham alive until he did reach supergrace even if Abraham had to be a thousand years old. But, of course, in the whole structure of the decree the omniscience of God knew billions and billions of years ago that it would take Abraham 99 years to get into supergrace so He could pour. The telic participle plus the gnomic future is a translation and refinement upon the quotation of Genesis 22. So the oath formula in the gnomic presents a statement of absolute fact, and it is used for stating something so dogmatic as to be anticipated in the future without equivocation. So we know something now about the imperfect tense in the Hebrew which is being translated here, that when God said this it was a dogmatic promise. Therefore, while it was only going to be fulfilled in supergrace God knew that Abraham would reach supergrace.

Abraham is the father of the new race; or many nations; and the father of us all (reference to us as believers).

God knew that it would take God 99 years to reach supergrace. Everything that God decreed is based upon His foreknowledge. Sarai is 90 and her name means bitch. Suppose God made a sex-athlete out of you 10 min. after you are saved...where would you be today?

“blessing I will bless” — the active voice of the future active indicative: God produces the action of the promised supergrace blessings — sexual prosperity the key. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative which presents an unqualified assertion. The verbal idea is represented from the viewpoint of reality and certainty. God promised Abraham supergrace sexual prosperity, plus from that prosperity the formation of a new race and becoming the father of many nations. Many Arab nations go right back to Abraham, and he is their original ancestor. The Jewish race goes back to Abraham. Abraham was a Gentile and he did not become a Jew until 99 years of age. Now he was a Hebrew because he crossed over a river (“Hebrew” means to cross over a river) but he did become a Jew at the time he was circumcised. So he lived 99 years without being a Jew. Literally now we have, “when he was saying.” That goes with the previous verse. When he was saying what? Well, after He had taken the oath, that is when He started doing the saying. “When he was saying, Just as certainly as I am God, intended blessing I will bless you.” This is a reference to the supergrace status, the supergrace blessings, which came to Abraham.

Bob could speak of Sarai as Xantippe; but he would know the reference and we would not. The descriptor bitch communicates in 20th century America.

4 categories and 4 statements of involvement:

Categories of Grace

1. Salvation grace (Phase one grace), which is all the Trinity has accomplished to save man. It involves the strategic victory of the angelic conflict. On the involvement side: non-meritorious volition expressed by faith in Jesus Christ or the living Word.
2. Living grace (Phase two grace), everything the Trinity must do to keep us alive in the devil's world. We are in enemy territory, therefore we have to be kept alive. This includes dying grace as well. The involvement side: no volition is involved since keeping us alive in enemy territory is a matter of the sovereignty of God. The only exception to that is when some idiot in reversionism commits suicide. They superimposed their own volition over the sovereignty of God which is a type of reversionism that leads to sudden sin unto death — they administer it themselves.
  - a. They can be truly saved.
3. Supergrace — James 4:6. “More grace” is a mistranslation. The comparative of meγas (μέγας, μεγάλη, μέγα) [pronounced MEH-gas] should be translated “greater grace.” “Greater grace” is supergrace. This is maximum growth resulting in occupation with Christ, resulting in occupation with Christ through doctrine and supergrace blessings. This is the tactical victory of the angelic conflict in contrast to category #1 grace which is the strategical victory of the angelic conflict. On the involvement side: non-meritorious volition of the believer expressed by the daily function of GAP. It involves a positive attitude toward the written Word.
4. Surpassing grace. “Surpassing grace” is the corrected translation of Ephesians 2:7 where we have the phrase “exceeding riches of grace”. This is all that God will do for us in phase three. On the involvement side there is no volition involved since the angelic conflict has terminated for the one involved.

Summary

1. This part of the promise refers to a specific supergrace blessing for Abraham, a supergrace blessing which Abraham could not have until he reached supergrace status.
2. The supergrace blessing is sexual prosperity, it results in the birth of Isaac and in many other things. Abraham's supergrace status included wealth and prosperity, success, promotion, but the key again is his sexual prosperity.
3. The sexual prosperity came to him at approximately 100 years of age.
4. The age which is given in Genesis 17:1 obviously indicates that Abraham persisted. He had many setbacks but he did persist. He kept on GAPing it until he got there.
5. Abraham's sexual prosperity is described in Romans 4:17–21.
6. Abraham's supergrace production is epitomised in James 2:21–23, some 20 or 21 years after the birth of Isaac and 22 years after he reached supergrace.
7. There are other aspects to Abraham's supergrace promise. Abraham has a land and a city. They are really not a part of supergrace, they are a part of category #4, surpassing grace. Abraham will enjoy a land forever and he will have a city belonging to him forever. Jerusalem will be his city in eternity. These come under surpassing grace and they're covered in Hebrews 11:8–19.

Now we have a second participle plus the verb. We have the word “multiplying”, the present active participle of plêthunô (πληθύνω) [pronounced play-THOO-noh]. Eulogeô (εὐλογέω) [pronounced you-lohg-EH-oh] means God pouring for Abraham great sexual prosperity; plêthunô (πληθύνω) [pronounced play-THOO-noh] is the result of this sexual prosperity. The sexual prosperity is the supergrace blessing, there are many results from it. So we now start another study here in the promise, the second half of the promise, “multiplying”. This is the present active participle of the verb plêthunô (πληθύνω) [pronounced play-THOO-noh]. Plêthunô (πληθύνω) [pronounced play-THOO-noh] means the progeny. First of all the new race progeny, Isaac and Jacob. This is where a new race began. The new nations, of course, are Arab nations. Again the present tense is tendential. A tendential present is used of an action which is purpose.

The evolvement of the new race and the many Arab nations is still future from the time God gave the promise but God gives it as though it was taking place at that moment, and a tendential present is how you do that mechanically. In the Greek the tendential present is something future but because it is going to be fulfilled it is put in the present tense, indicating its reality. It represents what God intended to do for Abraham’s progeny, hence God promoted Abraham by making him the father of a new race and Abraham is the father of many [Arab] nations. Moses is the father of the nation; Abraham is the father of the new race. The participle is a telic participle. God is the subject producing the action of the participle. The telic participle is used to denote God’s future purpose for the progeny of Abraham to Isaac and Jacob. This promise comes second because it is based upon Abraham’s supergrace blessing — sexual prosperity. Sexual prosperity will lead to the new race and to the father of many nations concept. To fulfill this promise Abraham required the revival of both his and Sarah’s genitals, but God kept the promise and, again, we have ei (εἰ) [pronounced I] mê (μή) [pronounced may] to indicate that He will. So the telic participle indicates this will occur, and all Abraham has to do is believe this.

“I will multiply” is the future active indicative of plêthunô (πληθύνω) [pronounced play-THOO-noh]. This time we have the verb form instead of the participle. The future tense is gnomic future. Used with a solemn oath formula it presents an absolute fact which is regarded as axiomatic and very dogmatic. The active voice: God produces the action as a result of Abraham’s supergrace blessing in the area of sexual prosperity. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative used for an unqualified assertion.

Hebrews 6:14 “When he was saying, Assuredly [or, decidedly] just as I am God, blessing I intend to bless you, and multiplying I intend to multiply you.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Last night we had the oath; and today the promise. Abraham had specific blessings with his name on them.

The promise represents the decree of God in eternity past. Abraham had some specific blessings with his name on it, just as you and I as believers have some specific supergrace blessings with our name on it. But, of course, the reality only comes with supergrace status and supergrace status only comes by persistence in the function of GAP.

Heb 6:15 And thus Abraham, having patiently waited, obtained the promise.

Verse 15 — the principle of fulfillment. “And so”, the continuative use of the conjunction kai plus the adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. It should be translated “And thus.” It is used to refer to that which has immediately preceded, namely the promise of God. The adverb in the Greek simply says we are not referring to something further up the context, we are referring to that which was just promised. The promise involves two immutable things: the person or essence of God who made the promise, and the word, the decree of God in eternity past. The principle: Our life and our future is based upon the same two immutable things. God promises; God on the basis of His own person takes a solemn oath that He has for you supergrace blessings.

“after he [Abraham] had patiently endured” — the aorist active participle of makroqumew. Makroqumew refers back to verse 12 where we had the noun, makrothumia (μακροθυμία) [pronounced mak-roth-oo-MEE-ah]. In verse 12 it does not mean “patience”, the way it was translated in the KJV, it means persistence. Here it means “having persisted” — the daily function of GAP, being consistent, stabilizing with your attitude toward doctrine, not letting anything get between you and Bible doctrine — “and so having persisted” is the corrected translation. This is a constative aorist, it contemplates persistence in its entirety — today, tomorrow, the next, the next, and so on. The constative aorist gathers up into one ball of wax all of your persistence in learning doctrine. Abraham persisted in spite of many reversionistic setbacks until he finally arrived at age 99. The active voice: Abraham produces the action of the verb by persisting in his intake of doctrine and the use of the faith-rest technique. Faith-rest was the spirituality of the Old Testament. The participle is antecedent action to the main verb which comes up next.

“he obtained” — the aorist active indicative of epitugchanō (ἐπιτυγχάνω) [pronounced ehp-ee-toonng-KHAHN-oh] which means to obtain. epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] means “on” or “upon”; tugchánō (τυγχάνω) [pronounced toog-KHAHN-oh] itself means to “attain”, to “gain.” It means to reach a goal, to attain a goal. it means to cross the goal line. In this case we cross the goal line being supergrace. The aorist tense is the culminative aorist. The participle is a constative aorist — GAP, GAP, GAP, and so on, gathering up into one ball of wax how you get there. Now, we have a culminative aorist as a result. The culminative aorist emphasizes the entirety but emphasizes the existing results. The existing result is supergrace. The active voice: Abraham produced the action of the verb by persisting in the intake of doctrine. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative denoting an unqualified assertion. It indicates the fact of reality and certainty — he finally made it. “And so having persisted [in the function of GAP] he obtained it [the promise].”

“the promise” — the objective genitive of epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah] which refers to the supergrace promise of sexual prosperity and the resultant plêthunō (πληθύνω) [pronounced play-THOO-noh] activity, the multiplication concept.

Hebrews 6:15 For the God when He Himself had promised to Abraham, because He had no one greater by whom to take an oath, he took an oath on the basis of His Own Person [or, in the name of Himself]. R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 6:14 When He was saying, Assuredly just as I am God, blessing I intend to bless you, and multiplying I intend to multiply you.

Summary

1. Persistence in the function of GAP leads to the tactical victory of the angelic conflict — arrival at the supergrace life.
2. The tactical victory includes maximum love for Jesus Christ or occupation with the person of Christ.
3. It also includes the supergrace capacity with supergrace blessings as illustrated by Abraham's sexual prosperity — the resultant birth of Isaac, all of the father of many nations concept.
4. Note that Abraham persisted in spite of many failures, many trips into reversionism.
5. On previous occasions Abraham came very close to the supergrace life only to fall back, only to retreat into reversionism.
6. But Abraham had one thing: he never gave up and he finally made it.

The encouragement of Abraham is the principle of our encouragement. It is the two immutable things which guarantee the supergrace blessings. Now we have in verses 16–18 a dissertation on the two immutable things.

Heb 6:16 For people swear by something greater than themselves, and in all their disputes an oath is final for confirmation.

Verse 16 — “For men” — “For” is the use of gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] to indicate once again a change of subject. This time we are talking about a custom in life. “For men” — the nominative plural of anthrôpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos] refers to mankind. The word “verily” is not found in the original text.

“swear” — present active indicative of omnuô (ὀμνύω) [pronounced om-NOO-oh] which means to take an oath. The present tense is a customary present, it is used to denote an event which occurs habitually in the human race. It is a custom, a precedent kind of thing. The active voice: mankind produces the action in the settling of a dispute. He takes an oath by something higher than himself. The declarative indicative represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. Many, many times some kind of hassle has been settled by someone taking an oath in the name of God, someone greater.

“by the greater” is a prepositional phrase, katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the genitive of the comparative of me-gas (μέγας, μεγάλη, μέγα) [pronounced MEH-gas]. It is correctly translated “by the greater.”

“and an oath” — the word for “oath” is horkos (ὄρκος) [pronounced HOHR-koss] which means a solemn oath verifying something or promising something.

“for confirmation” — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of bebaiôsis (βεβαίωσις) [pronounced behb-AH-yoh-sihs]. It should be translated “with reference to”.

This is the reference use of eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative — “with reference to guaranteeing”, “with reference to furnishing security”.

“to them” is the dative plural of advantage the intensive pronoun autos. The words “the end” is the nominative singular of peraj is “termination”.

“of all strife” — antilogia (ἀντιλογία) [pronounced an-tee-lohg-EE-ah], which is “hostility, dispute, opposition.” Because a principle is involved here it means “opposition”.

Hebrews 6:16 “For mankind customarily takes an oath by the greater [by God]: and to them [the opposition] such an oath with reference to guaranteeing security is the termination of all opposition.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The human custom of settling a dispute by taking an oath in the name of God is well known to the readers of Hebrews because it was a Jewish custom of long standing to do this. This gives rise to the question: By what does God take an oath in His promise of supergrace blessing to Abraham as well as to us in the Church Age, the royal priesthood. The answer is in verse 17.

Heb 6:17 So when God desired to show more convincingly to the heirs of the promise the unchangeable character of his purpose, he guaranteed it with an oath,

Verse 17 — “Wherein” is literally, “By means of which” — the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç] — “By means of which decree or promise.”

“God” — ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] — “the God”. God the Father with emphasis on His person, His essence. Here again we have the two immutable things. First of all we have the word “willing” which is a present active participle of boulomai, and it means to decree just as the noun boulh means a decree. The present tense is a static present representing a condition assumed as perpetually existent. The active voice: God produced the action of the verb in eternity past. The participle is a telic participle denoting divine purpose. And it should be translated “By means of which oath the God sovereignly decreeing.”

“more abundantly” is incorrect — the accusative singular of the comparative perissos (περισσός, ἢ, ὄν) [pronounced pair-ihS-SOSS] which means “beyond this” or “even more.” In other words, beyond the sovereignty and the essence of God He adds a second immutable thing. He decrees it in eternity past and He declares that portion of the decree to the one involved in time. He did this for the Lord Jesus Christ. He said, “Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee”. He said, “Sit down at my right hand”. And all of these quotations from the Psalms are simply quotations of promises from the divine decrees to Jesus Christ. He did the same thing with Abraham. He extracted from the Abraham paragraph in the divine decrees that which belongs to Abraham, and He constantly threw it at him so that Abraham would get on the ball, get off his butt, and get going. Abraham was slow on the uptake.

Here is the interesting thing. God stopped quoting the divine decrees, the paragraph that applied to certain people, when He completed the canon of scripture. So there is a big paragraph in there with your name on it but you're not going to get the quotation. The reason? You have all of the encouragement you need in the completed canon of scripture, you don't need an itemised list. You don't need to ask God what your supergrace package is because you don't know if you want to go that far or not! Just remember that God is perfect, the package is perfect for you. You couldn't be happier.

So the static present represents that which perpetually exists. The telic participle indicates God's purpose, and the accusative singular of the comparative perissos (περισσός, ἢ, ὄν) [pronounced pair-ihs-SOSS] means "beyond this" or "even more." In other words, "even more" is like more grace. God on the basis of His person, on the basis of His Word, is going to fulfill for Abraham — and He did; and will fulfill for you — and He will.

"to shew" — epideiknumi (ἐπιδείκνυμι) [pronounced ehp-ee-DIKE-noo-mee] the aorist active infinitive meaning to demonstrate in addition. In addition to the decree from His essence — "to demonstrate in addition to the heirs of the promise." A couple of things we should notice about "to show in addition" [e]pideiknumi]. The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist which states the present reality of the promise of supergrace. The fact that the writer of Hebrews put this in the dramatic aorist means it is a reality now for those people living then just as it is a reality now for us. There is a paragraph with your name on it in the supergrace file. The active voice: God the Father produces the action of the verb by an additional oath. The infinitive expresses His purpose to give to you as He gave to Abraham, as He wants to give to every believer supergrace blessings.

"the heirs" — dative plural of klêronomos (κληρονόμος) [pronounced klay-roh-OHM-oss]. This is a dative of direct object, it indicates the ones for whom or in whose interest the action of the decree is performed. Here we have a reference to each one of us as members of the royal priesthood read into the picture by the plural.

"of promise" — which means Abraham had a paragraph with his name on it, so do we. "Promise" is genitive singular from the noun epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah]. This is a descriptive genitive as well as a genitive of relationship. We have a relationship with God and God has a descriptive paragraph on exactly what He is going to do for us when we reach supergrace.

"the immutability" — accusative singular from a)metaqetoj, which means immutability or unchangeability. In other words, the paragraph with your supergrace blessings is unchangeable. It is unchangeable because of His person, because of His Word in eternity past.

Then we have a beautiful verb to back it all up: "confirmed it" — the aorist active indicative of mesiteuô (μεσιτεύω) [pronounced mehs-ihT-YOO-oh] which means to guarantee it, not confirm it. It is guaranteed. This is the dramatic aorist which states the present reality of the oath and the word of the decree in eternity past. The active voice: God gave the oath, He swore on His own name and He made a promise to you before you lived. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative and, again, it represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality, certainty and assurance. And it is an unqualified assertion that you as a believer have your name on supergrace blessings as a part of the eternal decrees. The blessings of when you came.

We also have the instrumental once more of horkos (ὄρκος) [pronounced HOHR-koss], the oath.

Hebrews:6:17 “By means of which oath the God, sovereignly decreeing even more to demonstrate in addition to the decree to the heirs of the [royal priesthood] promise [of supergrace blessing] the unchangeableness of his decree [regarding supergrace blessing], he guarantees it [supergrace blessing] by means of an oath.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. Note again that in this passage we are dealing with that portion of the divine decrees pertaining to the royal priesthood. Abraham is merely the illustration, he was in an inferior priesthood.
2. A royal priest should live like royalty. Therefore the promise of supergrace blessing.
3. These promises of supergrace blessings to each believer priest are guaranteed by two immutable things: the oath, which refers to the person of God; the decree, which refers to the promise of God.
4. The double and unchangeable guarantee is backed by who and what God is. (To say that you do not have supergrace blessings waiting for you is to deny the existence of God) The supergrace blessings are just as sure as God’s existence.

In order to understand our passage in Hebrews chapter six dealing with two immutable things and the parallel passage in Romans chapter four we now take up the introduction to both of them in Genesis chapter seventeen. They all meet in one spot called Abraham. The seventeenth chapter of Genesis anticipates the supergrace life. In the first eight verses we have the anticipation of the promised blessings of supergrace to Abraham. The key is sexual prosperity.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #68

68 07/11/1973 Hebrews 6 via Gen. 17:1–22 Doctrine of fatherhood of Abraham

Bob reads Gen. 17.

Verse 1 — “And when Abraham was.” The qal imperfect of hajah means when he became or had passed a certain point. He had become 99 which means he was somewhere between 99 and 100. In the previous chapter Abraham was eighty-six, so there were thirteen years in the elapse between the two passages. That means that at the time this chapter opens Ishmael is thirteen years old. However, at 99 the situation is hopeless because Abraham was now sexually dead.

For 13 years, Abraham has had no sex.

“the Lord appeared” — this is a grace act on the part of the Lord. The niph'al imperfect of raah. The niph'al here is reflexive, “the Lord himself appeared.”

“and said” — qal imperfect of amar, “I am the Almighty God”, but that is not what He said at all. “I” is correctly translated, it is the personal pronoun, first person singular ami. There is no verb. “I am El” which is a title for God’s omnipotence. It is translated “Almighty” but what is left out is the next word, Shadaw. Shadaw is a plural, it has a plural ending, and it is taken from the noun Shadh which means “breasts.” This should be translated “I am a God of many breasts.” The breast is used to denote supergrace blessing, the breast being the source of the first food the child had in the ancient world. The concept coming from this: The land flowing with milk and honey — the milk from the breast is involved. And actually, God says, “I have as many breasts as there are believers in history. Part of the divine decree we have studied is a paragraph with your name on it and your supergrace blessing. The same was true of Abraham a few thousand years ago. He said, “I am the omnipotent God of many breasts.” The breast indicates God’s supergrace blessings for Abraham. They centre around his prosperity in supergrace which is sexual prosperity. The phrase El is the description of God having the ability to do anything. At the time that God announces Himself Abraham is sexually dead. Actually, what this first phrase says is “It came to pass that Abraham was ninety-nine years old, and Jehovah himself appeared to him, and said, I am an omnipotent God of many breasts” — many supergrace blessings — “I have the ability to provide them and I do have the blessings”. This is a command, then, for Abraham to get with the supergrace life. The command is given in the hithpa'el imperative of hâlak<sup>e</sup> (הלך) [pronounced haw-LAHK<sup>e</sup>] — translated “walk.” The imperative mood: it is a command. The hithpa'el stem is reflexive and here it connotes advancing toward an objective. The hithpa'el stem of hâlak<sup>e</sup> (הלך) [pronounced haw-LAHK<sup>e</sup>] means to advance. In the KJV it says “walk before me”, but it means “advance under my supervision”.

“be thou perfect” is the qal imperative of the verb hajah which means to become. And with it the predicate adjective tamim which means to be complete or sound or entire, and it is used to describe the supergrace life. “Advance under my supervision and become mature.”

Literally the verse says: “And it came to pass that Abram was ninety-nine years old, and Jehovah himself appeared to Abram and said, I am an omnipotent God [I have the ability to do anything] of many breasts [many supergrace blessings]; advance under my supervision, and become mature [supergrace in status].”

Verse 2 — the confirmation of supergrace blessings. The first word “and” is the waw — “That.” Then “I will give”, the qal imperfect of nathan means “That I may give.” God has all these supergrace blessings for Abram and he wants to give them to him, and so He is telling him “Advance and get with it”.

“my covenant” — it actually means promises — “between me and you, with the result that.” Then we have “multiply”, the hiphil imperfect of rabah which means “I will cause to multiply.” The hiphil stem is the causative active voice.

“thee exceedingly” — literally, “to the maximum.” We have the repetition of an adverb which means “to the maximum”.

“That I may give my covenanted promises between me and you, with the result that I will cause to multiply you to the maximum.”

The multiplication can only occur one way. Abram does not have a son by Sarah and yet he has a long series of promises. This is the doctrine he has been learning for about forty years. He still does not have the literal fulfillment of that and the last time he got involved in something like that with Hagar it was the end of all sex altogether, and since then he has been totally impotent, incapable of sex. He is sexually dead. God has quoted to Abraham on many occasions that paragraph in the eternal decrees which applied to supergrace blessings and it involves a phenomenal sex life, great sexual prosperity in supergrace that he might be many things:

Promises Made to Abraham

1. That he might become the father of a new race, the Jews;
2. That he might become the father of many Gentile nations;
3. That he might become the father of us all. There are two ways in which he becomes the father of us all. First, he becomes that in the pattern of salvation — he believed in the Lord Jesus Christ and it was credited to his account for righteousness — Genesis 15:6. Secondly, circumcision is going to become the sign of faith-rest by which he enters into the supergrace life.

Abram at this point goes into GAP subordination. He recognizes authority. The manner in which he does so is perfectly normal for the time in which he lived. Verse 3 says he fell on his face, the qal imperfect of nâphal (לָפַן) [pronounced naw-FAHL]. This is recognition of the authority of his teacher, the one who is announcing these things to him. And he recognizes two types of authority: the authority of the person, and in circumcision he recognizes the authority of His Word. At this moment he recognizes the authority of the Word by listening. Later on he will recognize the authority of the Word by his faith-rest activity. From the launching pad of his heart he will faith-rest it by an act of circumcision. Here he falls down and God does the talking, the piel imperfect of dabar which is the rest of the passage until it says that God leaves. This means that God is going to provide the information for his faith-rest.

“God talked with him, saying”, the qal infinitive construct to indicate content follows. The posture of Abraham recognizes the authority of God’s person or essence. The listening at the moment recognizes the authority of what God says. He listens and he concentrates.

In verses 4–8 we have an extrapolation from the divine decrees. This is that paragraph which God decreed billions of years before Abram lived. This was a part of the divine decrees and it had his name on it as Abraham, and it was entitled “supergrace blessings.” Now God communicates it to Abram.

So verse 3 says, “Abram fell on his face while Elohim taught him, saying.”

Verse 4 — “As for me” is where the two immutable things of Hebrews chapter six comes into the picture. Later on in Genesis 22 God will say, “I take an oath in the name of myself.” But here the oath comes in the form of a Hebrew idiom. He uses that first person singular personal pronoun, ani. By so doing this is equivalent to the oath. This is the person. It is translated “As for me” but it actually says “I,” and it could be “Because I am God” instead of “As for me” .And we could take this in its proper idiomatic sense, “Because I am what I am [Because I am God], Behold, my covenant is with you.”

Now the extrapolation begins, “thou shalt be” — qal perfect of hajah — “a father of many nations” — ab [father], hamon [many] goi im [Gentiles]. Abraham was going to be a father of many gentile nations. This makes sense to Abraham, as he is a gentile at this time. Abraham is not a Jew at this time.

The Doctrine of the Fatherhood of Abraham

1. The title “Abraham” is said to be the father of us all — Romans 4:11, 16. It is a reference to the fact that Abraham is the spiritual father, the pattern of salvation and supergrace blessings — Genesis 15:6; Romans 4:1–3, the pattern for salvation. The pattern for supergrace blessings — Genesis 17:1–14.
2. Abraham is also called the father of circumcision — Romans 4:12. That means that Abraham is the originator or the father of a new race.
3. He is also called “father of many Gentile nations” — Genesis 17:4,5; Romans 4:17. It is a reference to Abraham’s progeny from his supergrace sexual prosperity through Keturah — Genesis 25:1–4. He is not the father of the nation Israel, that is where Moses comes in.
4. Abraham gave to Isaac all that he had (Gen. 25:5)

“therefore you shall become a father of many Gentile nations as well.” The many Gentile nations is merely icing on the cake. In other words, as long as the man is alive and in supergrace he is going to be a great sex athlete so obviously he is going to keep having children, but it is the first one that counts. It was the first wife and the first child by the first wife, it is Sarah as the wife and it is Isaac that is the son. This is the brand new race.

Then there is another distinction, there is a constant weeding out. The new race goes through Isaac. Isaac received all that Abraham had and then Isaac is going to have twins. And here is a real problem. Here are twins of two different races — Esau and Jacob. The eldest twin Esau lost out on a mess of pottage. Why? Because he represents reversionism, and the line goes down not only through regeneration but it goes down through supergrace. Jacob finally became Israel toward the end of his life — Prince of God. “Prince of El”, by the way. “I can do it,” God says. Not Prince of Elohim, Prince of El. That “El” is very important. Esau lost out. He was the eldest of the twins and yet he was a Gentile, and from him come other races. Jacob has twelve sons and those twelve were the twelve princes, and from there you have the new race in its formation. This is through the patriarchal period.

Verse 5 — gives us some additional information. “Neither shall thy name be any more Abram.” “Neither shall be called” is the niphil imperfect of qara. Qara means to call and it is in the niphil which is used here in the passive sense plus the negative. And we have an adverb here, “never again.” His name shall never again be called Abram. Ab is the word for father; ram means altitude, high and windy places. His name had been “father of high and windy places.”

“but your name shall become” — hajah, qal perfect. Now we have “Abraham,” which means “father of a multitude.” It means, again, a father of many nations.

“because I have given you” — the piel imperfect of nathan, meaning it took God a long time in human time to do this because Abraham had such a hard time getting to supergrace where he would have the capacity. Doctrine gives the capacity and he didn’t have the capacity up until now — “a fatherhood of many Gentile nations as well” — as well as a new race.

“Consequently your name shall never again be called Abram, but your name shall become Abraham; because I have given you a fatherhood of many Gentile nations as well.”

Verse 6 — “Also I will make thee exceedingly fruitful” — literally, “I will cause you to be prolific,” the hiphil perfect of parah — “to the maximum,” we have the double adverb.

“furthermore, I will give you” — qal perfect of nathan — “nations from your copulation, and kings shall spring forth from you.” This means from all the areas of Abraham’s progeny there will be many kings. Even his reversionistic progeny which is Ishmael will be the source of Arab kings. Then through Isaac and Jacob there will be many kings, the whole Davidic line and the Lord Jesus Christ as well as Saul before David. From Esau there were a famous group of Edomite kings. From Keturah he had all of those men who became kings and had kingdoms. Hundreds of kings to come from Abraham.

Verse 7 now gives us the specifics on the new race. “I will establish,” the hiphil perfect of qum. Qum means to stand. In the hiphil it means to cause to stand and therefore correctly translated “establish.”

“thy seed” — now it is no longer goi im, Gentile nations, it is now a singular, the masculine singular noun from zera. We also have a suffix, the second masculine singular suffix which applies to Abraham. Abraham is the father of the new race. It now refers to why he gave everything that he had to one son only, Isaac.

“for an everlasting covenant in their specific generations” — “I will perpetuate them.” There are Jews today, there never will be a time in all of history when the Jews will cease to exist and, furthermore, you can see why anti-Semitism is anti-God and anti-Christian. Abraham is not only the father of a new race but that race also has father Abraham as their spiritual heritage, as the pattern for their salvation — Romans 4:1–3; as the pattern for their supergrace blessing — Romans 4:17–21.

The seed of Abraham is a line of supergrace blessings, and we can trace the line from time to time. Starting with Abraham. When he reached supergrace at 99 God provided everything, that is the EI part, He had the ability to do so and Abraham became sexually prosperous, the father of a new race and the father of many nations.

Next in line was Joseph. Joseph is a perfect illustration in the line of Abraham in the supergrace promotion and prosperity with emphasis on ruling Gentiles. Joseph was a Jew who was prospered by God and ruled Gentiles. The third in the line is Moses and his supergrace leadership in ruling the Jews at a most difficult time. Moses rules over the Jews at their worst.

Number four is David. Supergrace leadership made David the greatest king in the Jewish nation and the greatest king in history until Christ returns.

Number five is Isaiah because, first of all, he too was from the tribe of Judah, the royal family. He was actually an uncle of one of the rulers and the brother of another. Isaiah had supergrace blessing in the realm of doctrine when Israel was a nation. He was the greatest prophet and Bible teacher when the nation was assembled as a nation. Number six is Jeremiah because his supergrace blessing came in time of national disaster, the fifth cycle of discipline. His greatness in supergrace was under pressure and he then held the greatest record for prosperity in old age. So the first six are all related. Now today we are in the Church Age and Israel is out as a nation under God. So we have a Jew, the greatest of all, Paul, whose supergrace blessing in time of Israel’s dispersion is in the field of doctrine. The Jewish Age was interrupted by the Church Age and Abraham’s progeny, the apostle Paul, holds the record for all time for doctrinal blessing and dissemination. So here are seven men who are the fulfillment of this phrase.

The covenant is first of all said to be an everlasting covenant “in their specific generation”. Notice how every one of these seven were all believers and therefore followed the pattern of Abraham, the father of us all, they all reach supergrace and therefore followed the spiritual pattern of Abraham — they all made it to supergrace, they were all given specific blessings in the devil’s world. Remember once more that everlasting clause demands that Abraham have a spiritual seed. This is to indicate that then spiritual heritage as well as the racial heritage is involved. The spiritual seed of Abraham refers to all born again by faith in Jesus Christ — Romans 4:13, 16, 21–25.

The final verb here, “to be,” is a qal infinitive construct of hajah — “to be to you an Elohim, and to your seed [progeny] after you.”

So that the whole verse seven dealing with the new race, its spiritual heritage and its physical heritage: “Furthermore I will establish my covenant between me and you and your see after you for an everlasting covenant in their specific generations, to be your Elohim and your progeny’s Elohim after you.”

Now here is Abraham with no way to copulate, no way to become the father of anything, and now he is getting the whole historical steps in that condition. Why? This is the Bible class that put him over the line into supergrace. This is the Bible class where the doctrine became his, where he believed it, he took it in one lobe and cranked it out the other lobe in faith-rest. His faith-rest manifestation is going to be circumcision.

Verse 8 — the new nation. “Furthermore I have given,” the qal perfect of nathan, “the land,” erez. He is saying that Abraham is not only going to be a new race but God is going to make a nation out off him too. But they will never be a nation until they get to the land. Eretz relates the new race to a specific geographical location, therefore this race was to become a nation. In the previous verse the new race was related to a specific generation of history. Generations of history followed the spiritual heritage, followed the blessings. This promise from the eternal decree of God indicates that the new race will also be a new nation with a specific geographical location on planet earth.

“wherein thou art a stranger” is not quite correct. The plural from the noun magur is the one which is translated like a verb. It means “residence” really — “the land of your residence” .Abraham is dwelling in a certain land, he has a residence there. He is not a citizen there, he is a pilgrim or a stranger.

“all the land of Canaan, for an eternal possession” — that means that there is going to be a day when there is not going to be any Arabs in the land — “also I will become their Elohim.”

In verses 9-22 we have the ritual anticipation of supergrace blessings.

Verses 9 — “And God said,” qal imperfect of amar plus the waw, an inferential waw. It should be translated, “Furthermore [or therefore] Elohim said to Abraham.”

“Thou shalt keep” — qal imperfect of shamar, which is “You shall guard,” literally. There is why we have a new race. God is going to put in written form on this earth His own Word, and the guardianship of His Word is Israel. “You shall guard my covenant ... you, and your seed after you shall guard my covenant.” The guardianship has a ritual, it has a uniform. The guard wears a uniform and the uniform that he wears is circumcision. That is the way the race is perpetuated. This is a circumcised race from generation to generation until the Age of Israel is interrupted and then, of course, circumcision is not a spiritual issue.

Abraham and Circumcision

1. A covenant to Abraham in verses 4–8 can only be guarded by positive faith response to Bible doctrine.

2. Abraham's positive faith response to Bible doctrine will become evident from the circumcision of his totally useless phallus at age 99, and at a future time by the offering of his son Isaac. At 99 Abraham was incapable of sex but God says I am going to do this, so doctrine was more real to him than the condition of his phallus and he said go ahead and circumcise. Why circumcise if you are never going to use it Abraham? Because I believe the Word. There is Abraham staggering not at the promise of God through unbelief but was strong in faith giving glory to God. He was demonstrating supergrace faith.
3. Circumcision represents the principle of faithfulness to the Word of God as well as the perpetuation of a physical heritage through supergrace sexual prosperity.
4. Circumcision becomes a ritual with both a spiritual and physical connotation to Israel. Abraham was 99 years old and sexually dead when he reached the point of supergrace.
5. In Genesis 17:5,6 the promise of supergrace sexual prosperity is repeated to Abraham at the time of his sexual death — when he was in a totally hopeless condition.
6. However, Abraham was circumcised in his dead phallus, as per Genesis 17:24, 26.
7. At the moment of circumcision Abraham demonstrated maximum faith-rest application from Bible doctrine.
8. Romans 4:18,19 describe in greater detail his totally hopeless situation. However Bible doctrine in the form of a specific promise called the Abrahamic covenant was much more real to Abraham than the totally hopeless, discouraging physical condition of his genitals. In other words, the issue that Abraham faced was the issue that Peter faced in 2Peter 1:12–21, only with Peter the doctrine was the second advent, and while he had seen the second advent at the mount of transfiguration he said that what the Word of God says about the second advent is much more real than what he had seen with his eyes.
  - a. Supergrace is the place where Bible doctrine is more real to you than anything else in life. There is only one thing more real than doctrine and that is the living Word who is the source of doctrine. Jesus Christ is more real.
  - b. Abraham believed God more than his inability to have sex.
9. Consequently there emerges a spiritual concept from circumcision. Circumcision connotes recognition of and positive volition toward the spiritual heritage of Israel. The new race is great but that is a physical thing. The heritage of that new race is doctrine, and that is the all-important thing. Israel has a spiritual heritage: Bible doctrine, the canon of scripture.
10. Every time a male Jew urinated he was reminded of the importance of Bible doctrine.
11. Therefore, the spiritual connotation of circumcision is a reminder that both eternal and temporal blessings from God cannot be acquired apart from Christ, the living Word, and the Bible, the written Word.
12. Abraham's faith in Christ came when he was uncircumcised. Therefore he is the pattern of salvation for both Jew and Gentile. He was saved as an uncircumcised person and this makes him the father of us all. Romans 4:10–12, 23–25.

13. After salvation comes the issue of supergrace. Circumcision has nothing to do with Abraham's salvation, it was the memorial to his faith-rest in a hopeless situation. He arrived at supergrace hopeless, but he believed Bible doctrine. When he arrived doctrine was more real, therefore he submitted to circumcision because he believed doctrine.

There are two immutable things: the oath representing God's person and the actual decree which is represented in the promise. In eternity past God always existed, there never was a time when God did not exist. His essence has always existed, therefore when He makes an oath or a solemn promise in the name of Himself it is because there is no one greater. It emphasizes His person and His ability as we saw in El Shadaw, the omnipotent or almighty God [EI]; Shadaw [the many-breasted one] which means that He has for each one of us supergrace blessings. God also in eternity past had a plan — the doctrine of divine decrees — and He has extrapolated one paragraph of the divine decrees for the promises to Abraham: the two immutable things. The oath points to the person, the promise points to the decrees. These are unchangeable and immutable and they involve you and me.

When someone in your family reaches supergrace, blessing comes to your family.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #69

69 07/12/1973 Hebrews 6 via Rom. 4:17 Doctrine of circumcision

Verse 17 — a parenthesis begins. It is introduced by an adverb, kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kahth-OCE], used in a causal sentence. It is used as a conjunction at the beginning of a sentence, and the adverb actually has four meanings. Indicating a comparison it means “just as”; connoting the degree of something it means “to the degree that”; it has a temporal connotation translated “when”; but the fourth is the one used here, it has a causal connotation and it is used therefore as a conjunction, and here in this context it should be translated “since” or “insofar as.” The adverb actually relates to the previous phrase, hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç] estin (ἐστίν) [pronounced ehs-TIN] patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR] pantwn — “who is the father of us all.” It refers to the spiritual heritage which is divided into two parts. First of all Abraham is the pattern of salvation. Secondly, he is the pattern for receiving supergrace blessings.

“who is the father of us all, (insofar as it is written...” — the perfect passive indicative of graphô (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh] which takes us back to the quotation in Genesis 17:5. The perfect tense is an intensive perfect, it means something that was written in the past with the result that it stands written forever and is used in connection with the verbal plenary doctrine of inspiration. The passive voice indicates the ministry of God the Holy Spirit in the function of inspiration, as per 1Timothy 3:16 and 2Peter 1:20,21. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative, it is the mood of unqualified assertion, the mood of the reality of the canon of scripture in this case, and it indicates once again that God the Holy Spirit directed the writers of scripture so that in the original languages God's complete and connected thought toward man was recorded. In the recording of this particular passage we get once more the same concept. God specifically promised to Abraham. In promise form He told him what he was actually going to have by way of supergrace blessing.

Rom. 4:17 “Who is the father of us all, (insofar as it has been written in the past with the result that it keeps on being written [or stands written] forever...”

Circumcision and Abraham

1. The quotation is from Genesis 17:5, an additional encouragement to Abraham to move toward supergrace.
2. God had previously defined Abraham's supergrace blessings in the original supergrace promise of Genesis 12:2, and later on in Genesis 22:16–18 as well as 17:5.
3. The key to Abraham's prosperity or promise is supergrace blessing in the field of sexual prosperity. It was to result in great blessing in connection with his right woman, then it was to result in a new race, and it was to result in many Gentile nations being fathered by Abraham.
4. The true meaning of circumcision, however, is related directly to the new race which would be started at the point of Abraham's circumcision. Abraham was never a Jew until he was circumcised.
5. Circumcision is a sign of Abraham's supergrace prosperity resulting in the new race.
6. The law was a sign of Moses' supergrace prosperity in relationship to a new nation.
7. Abraham, then, is the father of the new race; Moses is the father of the new nation which came out of the new race.
8. The Mosaic law contains the laws of divine establishment which became the basis of national prosperity. Moses reached supergrace at the time that he went to get the law, and the law was the sign of his supergrace prosperity which would overflow to the nation in coming generations. Abraham's sign of reaching supergrace was circumcision. Circumcision is the memorial to God's grace in the new race; the law is the memorial to God's grace in the new nation.
9. Both circumcision and the Mosaic law therefore are defined in terms of supergrace and the origin of Israel.

Next in the verse we have hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] which merely introduces the quotation. It is a conjunction acting as quotation marks, and it introduces the quotation of Genesis 17:5.

Bob has never been satisfied with previous incarnations of this doctrine, but he is now.

Some additional notes from lesson #70 have been added in:

The Doctrine of Circumcision

1. Circumcision consists of cutting away part of the foreskin of the male phallus. The ritual was the sign that Abraham had arrived at the supergrace life, and he had arrived in a totally hopeless condition. But because he believed the promise and the reiteration of the promise of supergrace sexual prosperity he went ahead and submitted to circumcision. By so doing he dedicated his phallus to the supergrace prosperity, and at the same time the removal of the dead skin was a sign of no more reversionism.

- a. Don't bring me articles on female circumcision.
  - b. Circumcision is the opposite of Leviticus. 12:2–3 (comments from lesson 70)
2. The significance of circumcision.
- a. The true meaning of circumcision cannot be understood apart from Genesis 17.
  - b. Abraham was 99 years old and sexually dead when he arrived at the supergrace life — Genesis 17:1.
  - c. In Genesis 17:5–6 the promise of sexual prosperity in supergrace had been repeated to him. It had been promised first in Genesis 12:2. Then in Genesis 15:5, 17:5.
  - d. In Genesis 17:10–14 Abraham was circumcised as a memorial sign. It is a memorial to category #2 love, and a memorial to the principle of supergrace. It reminds us that Bible doctrine is of the utmost importance. This was a daily reminder of Bible doctrine (the promises of God)
  - e. Abraham through circumcision in supergrace became the father of a new race, even though at the point his phallus was circumcised he was incapable of sex. Doctrine was more important to Abraham than his sexual death; he was unable to have sex; not since Hagar. He assumed that was it. Abraham believed it during a time when it could not be worse; and he was a sex athlete for the next quarter century.
  - f. Abraham is the father of the new Jewish race while, again, Moses is the father of the Jewish nation. Circumcision was a memorial to positive volition towards Bible doctrine.
  - g. Abraham was saved when he was uncircumcised. Gen. 15:6 circumcision was his supergrace paragraph. Abraham realized, "I am unable to have sex, but I will obey God's command to be circumcised." Doctrine was more real to him than any circumstance of life.
  - h. God performed 2 miracles with Abraham:
    - i. He made him a Jew.
    - ii. Abraham was reborn sexually.
  - i. Circumcision is God's memorial to supergrace.
  - j. When the hissing snake began to speak to the woman, Bob learned stuff about women that he never realized before, and he thought he knew everything about them. "I'll tell you one thing; it helped me to understand the little beauties."
  - k. The Jewish races is based upon supergrace prosperity. They continue to glorify God by their existence.
  - l. The devil never got over Abraham reaching supergrace and saying, "Cut."

3. Circumcision and the Mosaic law. Circumcision preceded the Law by 500 years. Circumcision is related to the law in two ways.
  - a. Circumcision relates to the establishment content of the law, including the fact that national stability comes from the right man-right woman relationship and all of the factors it takes. There must be the spiritual factor, there must be the factor of soul, and out of the spiritual factor and the soul factor comes supergrace prosperity. And when right-man or right-woman gets to supergrace, either one of them, it means sexual prosperity.
  - b. Circumcision relates to the Mosaic law in the sense of Codex #2 — the spiritual part of the law and the doctrinal part. Circumcision relates to that because circumcision is the sign, the memorial, to the importance of Bible doctrine.
4. In the doctrine of circumcision the near death of Moses — Exodus 4:24–26. Moses was the be the father of the Jewish nation and that meant that he would be the one used of the Lord to liberate them from slavery. He was about to enter upon this task with one son uncircumcised. What does that mean? The neglect of the parent to circumcise the male child was a sign of rejection of Bible doctrine. Moses' failure to have his younger son circumcised was indicative of carelessness with regard to doctrine. His carelessness almost cost him his life. Circumcision is a memorial to the importance of Bible doctrine; and they knew this every time that a man urinated. Moses failed to circumcise his younger son; and this was carelessly not doing what God required of him.
5. From the race to the nation.
  - a. No Jew could partake of the Passover without circumcision. Circumcision relates the new race to the nation. What was Abraham when he was saved? Uncircumcised. It relates salvation to supergrace. New race, Abraham; new nation, Moses. Circumcision is the link between the new race evolving into a nation and spiritually circumcision is the relationship between salvation and supergrace. That is why no one could ever take part in the Passover unless he was circumcised. The Passover speaks of the death of Christ and the significance: All you have to do is to be saved and you are qualified to go to supergrace. If you don't accept Christ there is no supergrace. Circumcision therefore becomes a great spiritual factor.
  - b. The Jews were placed under the fifth cycle of discipline because they lacked circumcision of soul. Circumcision of soul is found in Jeremiah 6:10; 9:25,26. In other words, the Jews observed the ritual without seeing its meaning. They were circumcised but they did not relate it to salvation or supergrace — no circumcision of soul. In other words, when a nation comes to the point of the fifth cycle of discipline it means that nation is almost totally devoid of supergrace believers and the nation has rejected Bible doctrine. That is called no circumcision of soul.
  - c. Circumcision of soul further connotes that the unbeliever would live under the establishment of the Mosaic law but would reject the spiritual impact of the law which is Christ the only Savior and, after salvation, GAPing it to supergrace.

- d. Circumcision therefore is just as much the spiritual heritage of the Jew in the Age of Israel as the communion table is the spiritual heritage of the believer in the Church Age. And it had just as much significance to them as communion has to us, but with this difference: Circumcision connotes arriving at supergrace whereas the communion is a test to show you when you have arrived at supergrace.
- e. Therefore circumcision connotes the spiritual heritage of supergrace to Abraham's physical and spiritual progeny. The physical and spiritual progeny would be: physical — Jew; spiritual — born again Jew. Circumcision is used to designate the Jew by race and by spiritual heritage — supergrace — Galatians 2:8 Colossians 4:11 Ephesians 2:11 Titus 1:10.
6. Circumcision in the Church Age has no spiritual significance to the believer. In other words, it is not a ritual we use to indicate moving toward supergrace or arriving at supergrace. The fact that circumcision has no spiritual connotation for this dispensation is taught in 1Corinthians 7:18,19 Galatians 5:2,3.
- a. Circumcision relates the Jew to his racial origins and his national origin. But more than that it related the Jew to his spiritual heritage — faith in Jesus Christ and moving from there to the supergrace life.
- b. The origin of the Church on the other hand is entirely different. We do have in a certain sense a new race when people accept Christ in this dispensation. The origin of the Jewish race: circumcision; the origin of the Church race: the baptism of the Holy Spirit whereby we are entered into union with Christ at the point of salvation. The baptism of the Holy Spirit eliminates the spiritual connotation of circumcision for the Church Age.
7. Circumcision, however, is used in the New Testament to illustrate.
- a. For example, circumcision illustrates the function of GAP leading to supergrace — Deuteronomy 10:16; Jeremiah 4:4.
- b. One which is found in both Old and New Testaments: circumcision is used to portray arriving at the supergrace life — Deuteronomy 30:6; Romans 2:28,29; Philippians 3:3.
- c. Also, circumcision is used to illustrate scar tissue, emotional revolt of the soul, and resultant reversionism; this is lack of circumcision — Jeremiah 6:10; 9:25,26; Ezekiel 44:7; Acts 7:51.
8. The distortion. Circumcision was distorted into a system of legalism — salvation by works, spirituality by works — by the Judaizers of the apostolic age of the Church. In the early period of the Church before the canon was completed circumcision became the rallying point for legalism, as per Acts 15:1, 24 Galatians 6:12,13.

Romans 4:17–21 is actually a parenthesis. It interrupts verse 16 and the sentence of verse 16 is resumed in verse 22. In this parenthesis is found Old Testament spirituality, the faith-rest technique as it is expressed at the point of supergrace. We have introduced the principle of dynamics in faith-rest. Dynamics in faith-rest is one of the ways you can always tell when you have finally reached the supergrace life. How can you tell when you have arrived? Bible doctrine is more important, more real to you, than anything else in your life — than your problems, your trials, your tribulations, your adversities, your successes, etc.

Bible doctrine is more real than any person, any situation, in life. When that happens you have reached supergrace. And once Bible doctrine is more real God dumps all these wonderful things in your lap. God gives you the capacity to enjoy them. Circumcision was Abraham's demonstration. From that moment on you have the first of two great dynamics. The second one came in Abraham's life when he offered his son Isaac. Isaac, being circumcised, had never had a chance to use his phallus to perpetuate the race and Abraham said, "I am going to cut your throat boy, but God will raise you up because you are going to be the perpetuation of the promise." ("In Isaac shall your seed be called") So, twenty or twenty-one years after he was circumcised he had the chance to apply circumcision and resurrection. Doctrine was more real when he put his son on the altar and got ready to cut his throat.

Abraham demonstrated a principle: Circumcision must inevitably be as great an illustration of the dynamics of faith-rest as the statement of Peter in 2Peter 1:12–21. To Peter, Bible doctrine, what the Bible said about the second advent, was more real than being at the mount of transfiguration and seeing Jesus Christ changed. And in effect Peter was in the circumcision pattern. Doctrine, the book, the written page, was more real than what he had seen with his eyes. Abraham with his eyes saw a hopeless situation, he couldn't have sex. But Abraham in his soul had doctrine, and doctrine in the soul was more real than his actual status quo. Another Jew, Peter, perpetuated the same dynamics of the faith-rest technique as we saw in Genesis 17.

Now we are ready for it: "Quote" — hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] simply means "quote." "I have made" — perfect active indicative of tithêmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee] which in the perfect tense means to design. The word means to decree, to destine, to appoint, to establish, but here in keeping with the supergrace concept it means to design — "I have designed [or decreed]" .Remember that Genesis 17:5 is being quoted. It was an extrapolation from the eternal decree. So when God says "I have decreed [or designed] something" He is merely quoting to Abraham what He had said in the first place. God has the privilege of quoting Himself! There is no one greater to quote. The point is a very simple one. In eternity past God decreed that Abraham would reach supergrace and have sexual prosperity. We have to watch the perfect tense here because the intensive perfect simply takes an occurrence or a process and sees it at the end with its existing results. That is the ordinary perfect tense. But this is a little different, this is the consummative perfect which emphasizes not the existing state but the process. It goes back to the process, not the result but the process by which the result was achieved. So it is a slightly different type. In other words, the process by which the existing state came into completion. So what is emphasized? GAP is emphasized, taking in doctrine today, tomorrow, the next, and the next. So we don't have the existing results here, we have the process by which Abraham came to the point where Bible doctrine was more real than sexual death.

Circumcision kept Bob from being born in Texas. His dad was going to send Bob to a great circumciser. All these years, this kept him from being born in Texas. Bob did live the first 2 years of his life in Texas, but he was not born here. I guess he was born in CA? Not sure I understood this fully.

When you arrive at the point of supergrace doctrine is going to be more real than anything in your life. The only thing that is more real than doctrine is the person that doctrine introduced you to, your Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Category #1 love will then be maximum in your soul. “We love him because he first loved us.” So it is the process of GAPing it to supergrace that this perfect tense emphasizes. It was supergrace that was necessary for the fulfillment of God’s promise to Abraham. Not all promises have to wait for supergrace but this is one that did.

Rom. 8:28 is related to supergrace as well. If you are in supergrace, sister, then that is Rom. 8:28.

The active voice here brings us back to the sovereignty of God plus His omnipotence and His omniscience. These are all involved. Billions of years ago omniscience knew every move that Abraham would make, and He knew just when Abraham would finally arrive. So in the decree He said sexual prosperity resulting in new race, resulting in many Gentile nations, and a pattern for every believer who ever comes along. If you are a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ it is time you learned all about circumcision. Circumcision is a reminder of the importance of Bible doctrine, and Abraham has left us a spiritual heritage which far exceeds the ritual. We are in the Church Age, we are royal priests, and just as it was important for Abraham to get to supergrace it is ultimately much more important for us to get to supergrace. Therefore, we learn from circumcision the importance of getting there so that we can fulfill the royalty in our priesthood and start to get the royalties of our priesthood. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative, it represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. It is the mood of fact, the mood of unqualified assertion, and the pattern in the same with Abraham as with us, he had to GAP it too.

“I have decreed you (Abraham)” — accusative singular of su used as the direct object of tithêmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee]. Next we have “father” — patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR] in the accusative singular. How can Abraham become the father of a great race if he can’t even be the father of one child, a special race?

“many nations” — descriptive genitive plural of the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] and the descriptive genitive plural of the noun ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss]. And ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss] means Gentiles. In Genesis 25:1–5 when Abraham married Keturah he had six sons, and yet he never lost track of doctrine because with all of these sons from which great Arab kingdoms would come he gave all that he had to Isaac — verse 5. This was the third great supergrace crisis in his life. Circumcision was the first, offering Isaac was the second, but the third was the greatest of all. Here is a man surrounded by children, and he loves children, but he gave all that he had to Isaac.

The Categories of the Fatherhood of Abraham

1. Abraham is the father of us all — Romans 4:11, 16. This refers to the fact that Abraham is the pattern of salvation before he was circumcised and the pattern of reaching supergrace at the point of his circumcision. So “father of us all” is the title of our spiritual heritage through Abraham. The heritage of faith — faith in Jesus Christ; the heritage of faith-rest — Bible doctrine is more real than any situation in life at the point of supergrace.

2. The “father of circumcision” — Romans 4:12. Abraham is the originator of the new race — the Jews.
3. The “father of many [Gentile] nations” — Romans 4:17. It refers to Abraham’s progeny through Keturah in Genesis 25:1–4.

Rom. 4:17 — (Insofar as it has been written, I have decreed you a father of many Gentile nations”) Why does God always hit Abraham with that promise first — the last thing that came into Abraham’s life? Because that is the one thing he could understand. Abraham was a Gentile until he was circumcised. “Hebrew” means to cross over a river but Abraham, until he was circumcised, was never a Jew. And Abraham did not become a Jew until he was 99 years old.

“before him” — an adverb now, katenanti (κατέναντι) [pronounced kat-EHN-an-tee] is a triple compound adverb made up of three prepositions. Since it is an adverb it is used as an improper preposition. This should be translated with the genitive “in the presence of” or “in the sight of”

“whom” — the genitive masculine singular of the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], and this refers to God. God is the antecedent of the relative pronoun — “in the sight of whom God.” No one else knew the great issue with Abraham, but Abraham did, so in the sight of God “he believed” — the aorist active indicative of pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh] is the dynamics of the faith-rest technique at the point of supergrace.

Later on Abraham died in a tent. Why? Because Bible doctrine was more real to him than the fact that there was no city as God promised. But he knew that that wasn’t a supergrace promise. By that time he knew category #4, that was a surpassing grace promise. So he died knowing that in phase three he will get it, and he is still going to get his city. That is the city that is going to be lowered from heaven. This is a culminative aorist, it views the event in its entirety but emphasizes the results. Abraham’s faith is gathered up into one ball of wax. But the culminative aorist looks at the results. The result was that he found himself copulating that night. Abraham’s faith in doctrine, in the extrapolation from the divine decrees, is viewed here in its entirety and it resulted in becoming the father of a new race and many Gentile nations. The active voice: Abraham produced the action of the verb by believing the promise. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative, it represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. This is an unqualified assertion, this is reality in the maximum. Abraham believed the promise at a time when all hope of fulfillment of the promise was gone.

“even God” — God is the objective genitive here, he had believed God. There is no definite article here. The absence of the definite article with theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] emphasizes the essence of God, especially His sovereignty, the source of the divine decree, and the paragraph extrapolated with Abraham’s name in it; the omniscience of God, He knew every turn of the road Abraham’s life would take; and the omnipotence of God whereby after circumcision he had the full and the best use of his phallus of all time. He was now a totally new person.

“who quickeneth” — present active participle of zowpoieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] which means to revive here. Zow means life, poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] means to give. It only has two meanings: either to give life or to revive. He now revives the phallus of Abraham. The present tense is a pictorial present, it is one in which the distinctive force of this tense is used to present to the mind a picture of an event, in this case the revival of Abraham’s use of his sex organ. The process includes Abraham’s power of procreation and the removal of every type of condition in his body which was related to the climacteric, plus the new better-than-ever sex life between Sarah and himself — “the one reviving the dead” .The word “reviving”, the active voice: God performed the miracle giving him procreative power; and the participle is a telic participle. It was God’s purpose after he reached supergrace to do this for him. The telic participle expresses the divine purpose. The word “dead” is in the accusative from nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS]. Here the noun indicates sexual death. It is in the plural to indicate that both Abraham and Sarah were sexually dead.

Romans 4:17 Inasmuch as, it stands written (in the past with results that continue forever), “I have decreed you, Abraham, the father of many gentile nations, in the sight of whom, he believed God, the one reviving his dead genitals; and calling....”

“and calleth” — the present active participle of kaleō (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh]. This is a dramatic present. The active voice: God produces the action of the verb, and what is coming up next is the fact that God actually calls into existence what does not exist. When God becomes more real than anything in life, and life is hopeless, God calls into existence what doesn’t exist. Hopelessness is always related to something that doesn’t exist. In this case, Abraham’s power of procreation did not exist. God simply called it into existence. The participle is a circumstantial participle.

“those things” — the accusative neuter plural of the definite article, a reference to the dormant genitua of both Abraham and Sarah.

“which be not” — the present active participle of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] plus m (μή) [pronounced may]. m (μή) [pronounced may] is a subjective negative and therefore it means Abraham was blue about this — “and calls into being the not existent”, that which does not exist.

“as though” is the conjunction hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç] used to denote an actual quality which has ceased to exist. Again, it refers to the power of procreation necessary for Abraham to have sexual prosperity — “as though they were”, the present active participle of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] means “existing.” The best translation should be, “and calls into existence that which does not exist.” Abraham believed doctrine. Doctrine was more real than his hopeless condition. So God calls into existence what did not exist.

Romans 4:17 Inasmuch as, it stands written (in the past with results that continue forever), “I have decreed you, Abraham, the father of many gentile nations, in the sight of whom, he believed God, the one reviving his dead genitals; and calls into being that which does not exist, as though .”

Lesson #70

70 07/13/1973 Rom. 4:18–19 Doctrine of circumcision (review)

Captain Al Pitts.in Vietnam.

Rom. 4:18 In hope he believed against hope, that he should become the father of many nations, as he had been told, "So shall your offspring be."

Verse 18 — “Who against hope” — the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç] refers to Abraham at age 99. he has just demonstrated that final push, that faith-rest dynamics, which brings him into the supergrace life. His supergrace blessing, as per Genesis 17:5, is going to be sexual prosperity. At this moment, however, he is totally sexually dead — “against hope,” the preposition para plus the accusative of elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS]. “Hope” is a bad translation. It has many good translations, “expectation” and “confidence” are two of them. Para plus the ablative means “from”; para plus the locative means “before”; para plus the accusative means “beyond.” So here we have the word “beyond.

”Elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] here means “expectation” and has nothing whatever to do with phase three. It has to do with phase two, age 99 plus, and the problem he now faces. “Who beyond expectation” — he was beyond the hope of ever having sex again. The prepositional phrase indicates once again his sexual death. There was no expectation of sexual prosperity from the standpoint of his physiological being, yet all of the supergrace blessings with his name on it all point to sex. You can’t be the father of many nations in supergrace, and you can’t be the father of a new race, unless you can perform quite a number of sex acts. And that is not even the point, it isn’t even his capability, it is the total enjoyment of them which was a part of his supergrace prosperity — “Who beyond the expectation [of sex] believed.” Here is the point at which he entered into the supergrace life — the aorist active indicative of the verb pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh].

Recall that in verse 17, quotation from Genesis 17:5, “I have decreed you [Abraham in supergrace] a father of many Gentile nations, in the sight of whom [God] he [Abraham] believed God, the one reviving his dead genitals, and the one calling into existence his sexual power and ability that did not exist at that time.”

That is the background for the relative pronoun “who beyond expectation believed.” The aorist tense of pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh] is culminative. The culminative aorist regards the entirety from the standpoint of its existing results. Here is Abraham GAPing it, GAPing it, GAPing it, and finally he reached the point of supergrace, and when he reached supergrace his supergrace blessing package was all tied up in sex, and that is one thing he couldn't even get close to. He was totally incapable of it, totally impotent, totally without any sexual ability at all. Therefore he believed the Word of God. That is the thing that was important to him. Bible doctrine was more real than anything around him — his total helplessness and hopelessness. The result, then, of the culminative aorist is sexual prosperity even though Abraham is beyond the expectation of sexual prosperity. The active voice: Abraham produced the action of the verb — faith-rest dynamics. This is probably one of the greatest faith-rest acts of all time. He had been taking in doctrine, it was transferred over to his right lobe, doctrine was on his launching pad. Faith-rest says that the doctrine in his right lobe is more real than anything else in life. He all of that supergrace information, that extrapolation from the divine decrees, in his frame of reference. He has the memory centre that puts it all together. He has the norms and standards, he has the vocabulary and the categories, and doctrine on the launching pad. And doctrine on the launching pad is more real than his condition. That is why he submitted to circumcision and that is why circumcision was the sign that when doctrinal is more real than anything in life you have arrived at supergrace. Having arrived at supergrace you are in the best possible situation you could ever be, that is where faith-rest dynamics begins. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. This is the declaration of unqualified assertion. He believed in spite of everything.

“in hope” — elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] again, and once again elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] should be translated “expectation”, only this time we have epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative. Once again, we have that same problem. Many of these prepositions have the different cases for the object of the preposition. For example, epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the genitive means “on” or “upon.” This emphasizes contact. epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative means “over” and emphasizes motion or direction. epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative means “on, over, before” or “at.” This emphasizes position. And here we have epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative, and it should be translated then “at the point of expectation” — at the point of reaching supergrace.

Principle: Nothing is more important than Bible doctrine, and the reality of doctrine being better than anything in life only comes to the individual when that individual reaches supergrace.

There are people wandering the halls looking at pictures. Someone here is in for a big shock.

The Word of God is more important to Abraham than anything else.

All of the promises to Abraham add up to one thing: sexual prosperity at the point of supergrace. And, we say, when he got there how do we know he is going to believe? How do we know doctrine is going to be more real? Because of a word: pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. Pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] has a double meaning. It means faith but it also means what is believed. Doctrine had been taken in and has been put on the launching pad under faith-rest, so supergrace doctrine gave Abraham the strength to believe, and the strength to believe turned right around and claimed the very doctrines which God had enunciated in his direction. So doctrine was more real to Abraham than his hopeless status quo. Supergrace is the place of true faith-rest dynamics. Faith-rest is Old Testament spirituality, but more than that, supergrace faith-rest is the dynamic of phase two as far as both the Old and New Testaments are concerned. This same principle is outlined in 2Peter 1:12–21 — the reality of doctrine; doctrine is more real than anything in life. So faith-rest reaches its peak in the supergrace life. Supergrace faith-rest is called “hope” or elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] — confidence. This confidence is the ultimate in faith-rest dynamics.

Now we have a preposition translated with the word “that” — eij, and eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the infinitive is used to denote a purpose. eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] is translated “that” to introduce a purpose concept. The infinitive: “he might become.” The aorist active infinitive of ginomai, but remember that this infinitive is the object of the preposition eij. The aorist tense of the infinitive is a culminative aorist, it regards the event in its entirety but emphasizes the existing results. Supergrace is the entirety while sexual prosperity in starting the new race, the Jewish race, is the result. The active voice: Abraham produced the action of the verb by entering into supergrace. At that point he had so much confidence in doctrine, and at that point doctrine was so meaningful to him and so real, that his hopeless situation was meaningless. He was not in any way disturbed by his hopeless situation. Therefore Abraham had something in his soul that was greater than what he had in his body. And as an application, remember it is the soul that counts and not the body. The soul can influence the body and does influence the body. It is the soul of Abraham that made all of the difference, and with doctrine more real than anything else in his soul Jesus Christ becomes more real than anything in his life. And at that moment Jesus Christ performed the miracle. Circumcision does not give the ability to copulate but it was at the point of circumcision: the removal of the dead flesh is like the removal of any of the reversionistic trends which had characterized Abraham’s life in the past. The removal of the dead flesh was when God performed two miracles. God, at the point of Abraham’s circumcision, made him a Jew. He wasn’t born a Jew, he became a Jew. The active voice: Abraham produced the action of the verb by entering supergrace and having confidence in God’s ability to keep a promise regardless of how hopeless the situation. The infinitive goes with the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] for purpose. Translation: “in order that he might become.”

Sarah had not arrived to supergrace, but Abraham had. It is all a miracle. Don’t try to explain it by some medical explanation. Do not think that circumcision is the solution to some of your problems. Bob has to head some of you off at the pass.

People reach supergrace when doctrine is more real to them than anything else in life. When Abraham was ready to sacrifice his son, at age 21 or 22, Bible doctrine was clearly the most important thing in his life.

Now we have the fatherhood of Abraham brought out again. The fatherhood of Abraham could be emphasized from one of three principles. a) The father of us all — his spiritual heritage to us; b) the father of circumcision — the new race; c) and the father of many Gentile nations.

At the point of Gen.17:1, Abraham had not had sex for 13 years. But at his circumcision, Abraham became a Jew, at age 99.

Ishmael is not included in the many nations promise to Abraham. Perhaps that is because Abraham's sons after circumcision were the ones who counted.

“according to that which was spoken” — again we have another preposition, kata. It is interesting that in every one of these prepositions the meaning varies depending upon the case in the noun which is the object. For example, here we have katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the perfect passive participle in the accusative case of légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. But katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the ablative means “down”; katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the genitive means “against”; katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative means “according to.” Here we have katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of the perfect passive participle. So it should be translated “according to” — the participle is légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] — “that which had been spoken in the past with the result that it stands spoken forever”, the intensive perfect to indicate that this extrapolation from the divine decrees became a part of the canon of scripture. This is the promise of Genesis 15:5 given by God with the result that it stands forever, and the promise was fulfilled at the point when Abraham at the point of circumcision entered the supergrace life.

The principles of circumcision are reviewed... (so I am going to look back in my notes).

Moses is the father of our nation much like Washington is the father of our nation.

Circumcision is a reminder to us today, as it was to Abraham at age 99, that supergrace is available to every person and that in eternity past God declared the decree. The essence of God the Father had the ability to perform it. His decrees were put down in declaration in the eternal life conference. So the decree has many, many paragraphs; your name in on one of those paragraphs dealing with supergrace blessing. Circumcision is the dynamic of Abraham's faith and the memorial to the fact that every born again believer has a paragraph in the divine decrees on his supergrace prosperity. The passive voice of “according to that which was spoken [in the past with the result that it keeps on being spoken forever]” indicates that Abraham received this doctrine and that the promises given to him were in his soul.

Faith rest only claims promises which you have already believed. It is no good when choosing promises from the Bible that you do not believe.

“So shall be” — the future active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The future tense is a predictive future, it is used for an event expected to occur at a future time, the giving of the promise — first you enjoy the promise, then you enjoy the fulfillment of the promise. There may be some time between the enjoyment of the promise and the fulfillment of the promise which you also enjoy — enjoyment of anticipation and fulfillment. The indicative mood is the deliberative indicative representing the verbal idea from the standpoint of reality, certainty, and unqualified assertion. We are dealing with God’s Word. So you enjoy the promise twice.

“thy seed” — to sperma (σπέρμα) [pronounced SPHER-mah] sou. This is a second masculine singular from the personal pronoun su, and the genitive says, “your sperm”, “your seed”, and it is singular — Abraham. This is something Abraham didn’t have until circumcision. This has a dual connotation: physical and spiritual. The physical seed does not refer to the fatherhood of many Gentile nations, it refers to a new race being born. Secondly, we have Abraham’s spiritual seed. Since Abraham is the pattern of salvation on the Old Testament to all who believe circumcision is not the issue. Abraham was saved uncircumcised, he was not circumcised until he had reached the point of supergrace and that was the elapse of forty or fifty or sixty years.

Once the sperm was there, Abraham was a Jew. He was sitting in the rocking chair and ready to die.

Romans 4:18 “Who beyond expectation [of sexual prosperity] had believed at the point of expectation [the point of entrance into the supergrace life] in order that he might become the father of many Gentile nations, according to that which had been spoken, So shall your seed be.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The hopeless situation becomes a challenge to believe doctrine but this cannot be possible until you get to supergrace.

Rom. 4:19 He did not weaken in faith when he considered his own body, which was as good as dead (since he was about a hundred years old), or when he considered the barrenness of Sarah’s womb.

Verse 19 — “And” is the continuative use of the conjunctive kai — “being not weak” — he is weak physically, he is not weak otherwise, the aorist active participle of astheneō (ἀσθενέω) [pronounced as-then-EH-oh] plus the negative mê. The aorist tense is an ingressive aorist. The ingressive aorist plus the negative indicates that Abraham did not even begin to become weak in faith. He didn’t flinch for a moment even though it was a totally hopeless situation. The active voice: Abraham produced a negative action. He didn’t miss a step for one moment. The participle is the ascriptive use of the participle in which the participle ascribes a characteristic Abraham. When he reached supergrace his faith did not even miss a step, it moved right on. Doctrine was so real to him that nothing else counted. Doctrine was real, therefore the Lord was real and therefore nothing else made any difference. So it should be translated, “And without becoming weak.”

“in faith” — the locative singular of pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. Faith had to transfer doctrine to the human spirit and faith had to apply doctrine that he had in his soul to his own life. So we have pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] used in its dual sense here. It was Arndt and Gingrich who first emphasized to the English-speaking world — they were German — that pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] means faith but it also means what you have believed, it means the whole body of doctrine, it means doctrine you have believed. So it also comes to mean doctrine. So, “being not weak in the sphere of supergrace doctrine.” With supergrace doctrine you are never weak. Doctrine is so real that it is easy to believe. When doctrine is more real than anything else in your life it is easy to faith-rest something. The dynamics of it are tremendous from the outside.

Now we have the main verb, “he considered not” — the aorist active indicative of the compound verb katanoeō (κατανοέω) [pronounced kat-an-oh-EH-oh]. noēō (νοέω) [pronounced noh-EH-oh] always means to think; katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] here means norm or standard. So it means to think according to a norm or standard, to think or to concentrate on a norm or standard. So he concentrated, he contemplated, he actually knew his own state. The constative aorist gathers up into one entirety Abraham’s concentration on his body. He knew that he was sexually dead and he had known it for thirteen years, so the constative aorist gathers up that entire period of time between Genesis chapter 16 and Genesis chapter 17. The active voice: Abraham produced the action of the verb by perceiving and understanding the true hopeless situation. A supergrace believer never buries his head in the sand, he faces reality. Then he looks at the doctrine and the doctrine is always greater than the hopeless situation. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative which regards the verb from the standpoint of certainty, reality, and unqualified assertion.

“his own body” — this refers to Abraham’s physical body at age 99. Literally, “And without becoming weak in the sphere of supergrace doctrine, he had thoughtfully reflected and contemplated the condition of his own body now dead.” This adverb is stronger than “now”, this is h)dh which means “already dead.” The word “dead” is the perfect passive participle of nekroō (νεκρώω) [pronounced nek-ROW-oh] — he was dead in the past with the result that he kept on being dead and there was nothing he could do about it. That is the status of sexual death. The passive voice: Abraham through the advance of age received the action of the verb — sexual death. The participle is ascriptive, it describes his hopeless sexual condition.

“when” — we have an enclitic adverb, pou. It indicates an approximation with numbers so therefore it means approximately — “living approximately one hundred years” is the way it is translated; “being” — huparchō (ὑπάρχω) [pronounced hoop-AR-khoh] which means he was just existent. He wasn’t really living. We do not have biow or zow, both of which would say he is living; he is just existing right now. However, that is his physical condition: living or existing approximately one hundred years.

“neither yet the deadness” — the accusative singular of nekrosis (νέκρωσις) [pronounced NEHK-row-sis] refers to the fact that Sarah, who is now ninety, is well past the menopause.

Romans 4:19 — “And without becoming weak in the sphere of supergrace doctrine, he had thoughtfully and carefully reflected and understood his own body already having become sexually dead, with the result that it was permanently under sexual death, living approximately one hundred years, and the deadness of Sarah’s womb.”

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #71

71 07/15/1973 Rom. 4:20–21; Hebrews 6:18 Reality of supergrace inner resources

Rom 4:20 No unbelief made him waver concerning the promise of God, but he grew strong in his faith as he gave glory to God,...

Verse 20 — what was Abraham’s reaction to all of this? He is now at the point where he must face the issue: doctrine versus reality of experience. Many times in our experience you have hopeless situations. Many times the experience is very real to you to the point of where you are upset, disturbed, where you completely fall apart, you are overcome with self-pity, you are disillusioned, you are discouraged, you are involved in some of the reactor factors. It is this very thing that caused Abraham to take so many side-trips that he failed to reach the point of supergrace when he was younger.

He was bored, he knew some loneliness, he was discouraged; he understood mental attitude sins as reactor factors. He saw these things in Sarah. He was frustrated. All of these are reactor factors. He would get very close to supergrace, but then lose it over a frantic search for happiness. His soul would open up to the doctrine of demons. This is why Abraham failed on so many occasions.

Now he has arrived at the point at which doctrine had thoroughly described certain things. Doctrine is divided into two parts here: a) The decree of God in eternity past. And as with Abraham so also with you, God actually has provided for you a paragraph with your name on it — a supergrace paragraph in the doctrine of divine decrees. It includes wealth, success, promotion, sexual prosperity, social prosperity, and many other things. This was decreed in eternity past. The extrapolation of Abraham’s paragraph is recorded for us in time and becomes a part of the Word of God. For example, in Genesis 12:2 the original declaration of the Abrahamic covenant. This particular paragraph was extrapolated and reiterated to Abraham many times in time. The decree was given in eternity past, the extrapolation of that paragraph is called “promise.” God had promised Abraham three things under the fatherhood of God. Abraham was promised that he would be the father of many Gentile nations. This can only come through sexual prosperity, this must come through his supergrace status. He was also promised to be the father of a single seed, and that single seed is a new race, the Jewish nation. That promise is only fulfilled at age 99. Also he was promised to be the father of us all, and this means that Abraham is the pattern of supergrace and supergrace prosperity. So he had been given in time a promise which was a part of doctrine. This promise was an extrapolation of that portion of the divine decrees relating to the supergrace blessings of Abraham. b) Not only does Abraham have a promise but he also has from God a solemn declaration, an oath, that He will keep that promise. And since God could swear by no greater He made the oath in His own name. Since God is absolutely perfect He has the ability [omnipotence], the character [immutability], to fulfill that promise. So here we have two immutable things: the oath of God and the promise of God. The oath goes back to the person who lived in eternity past and originated the divine decrees. The promise is an extrapolation from the decree itself. One has to do with the person, one has to do with the Word of God. This is the doctrinal content that Abraham has before him as part of the issue.

However, his status quo, his experience at the point of reaching supergrace, is quite different from anything he ever anticipated. Abraham finds himself sexually dead, incapable of sexual prosperity. So he now faces the issue: Which is more real to him on the threshold of supergrace: Bible doctrine and its extrapolation of the eternal decrees — the oath and the promise (two immutable things) — or his status which is sexual death, sexual death of Sarah as well as himself? In other words, a totally hopeless, helpless situation with regard to this particular paragraph.

What is he going to do about it? Is doctrine more real to him than his experience? Is his experience more real than doctrine? This is an issue that you must face many times in your spiritual life. What is more real to you, a hopeless set of circumstances or Bible doctrine? The principle is settled for us in 2Peter 1:12–21 and also now in Romans 4:20 —

“He staggered not” — the aorist passive indicative of diakrinô (διακρίνω) [pronounced dee-ak-REE-no]. This word has a number of meanings, usually connected with discernment, to discern is the general meaning. It is translated “stagger” here which is also a correct translation. It means to doubt, to waver in the mind, to be divided in the mind, to vacillate between two opinions. However, in this case there is no vacillation because we also have with diakrinô (διακρίνω) [pronounced dee-ak-REE-no] the strong negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook]. He did not vacillate between two opinions. The aorist tense is the ingressive aorist which contemplates the entirety of the verb’s action from the standpoint of its beginning. In other words, the constative aorist would simply say that he kept vacillating back and forth. We have ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook], he did not do this, that is the entire ball of wax. But here is the ingressive aorist which means he didn’t even start to vacillate, not even for one moment did he miss a step in his faith-rest technique. He is claiming what he has learned by way of Bible doctrine at this particular point. The passive voice: Abraham did not receive the action of the verb, he didn’t even start to receive it. It was never a problem right from the first moment that he reached supergrace, he was not disturbed by his hopeless situation. You can always tell a supergrace believer, he doesn’t fall apart under the pressure of hopeless situations. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative which views the action of the verb from the standpoint of reality, this is a statement of unqualified assertion, he did not begin to waver.

However, in this sentence the verb does not occur first. This verb is tucked away after a phrase or two, “at the promise of God” is where the sentence begins. And “at the promise” is a prepositional phrase — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah] which means a promise. It also means an unconditional promise and it should be translated “with reference to the promise.” Then “of God” is a possessive genitive plus the definite article, ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] — “with reference to the promise belonging to the God.” The promise belongs to God. God made the original decree in eternity past. God provided Abraham supergrace blessings billions of years before Abraham lived, just as God has provided your supergrace billions of years ago. Whether you reach that point or not depends upon your attitude toward Bible doctrine — “he did not even begin to waver through unbelief.” The word “unbelief” is the locative of sphere, a)pistia. So the verse reads literally, “With reference to the promise of the God he did not even begin to waver in unbelief.”

“but” — the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] indicates a complete antithesis, a contrast between what Abraham did and what he did not do. First we have what he did not do, he did not even begin to waver in unbelief. But he did do something very positive, “but was strong” — the aorist passive indicative of endunamoō (ἐνδυναμώω) [pronounced ehn-doo-nam-OH-oh] [en (ἐν) [pronounced en] means “in; dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss] is “power”] which means to invigorate — “he had become invigorated.” The aorist tense is a culminative aorist. In other words, there was something that kept him from wavering. We have Abraham taking in doctrine, GAPing it, GAPing it, GAPing it, and eventually he reached the point. The culminative aorist regards the entire intake of doctrine but emphasizes the existing result. The result is that he had a strong faith-rest, and in his faith-rest he now sees doctrine as more real than anything in his life. Remember that he has just arrived at supergrace which is characterized by three things: a) Occupation with the person of Christ. The Lord Jesus Christ is more real to him than ever before. b) He has supergrace capacity. He now has the cup in his soul. c) God is getting ready to pour. And Abraham knows that God must pour. He understands the issue of supergrace capacity, and he always knows what God is going to pour because he has received promises — the extrapolation of the divine decree. Therefore, “he had become invigorated.” The culminative aorist views the event of GAPing it to supergrace in its entirety but emphasizes the existing result. The existing result is invigoration of doctrine. Doctrine is more real to him than his hopeless situation. He has now arrived where he can be the father of many nations, where he can be the father of a new race, where he can have sexual prosperity. The passive voice indicates that he received invigoration or power from doctrine. The indicative mood is an unqualified assertion. He has arrived at the point of supergrace and at the point of supergrace Bible doctrine is always more real than any hopeless situation.

“in faith” is an incorrect translation. The instrumental of means of pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] is “by means of faith.” Pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] has two meanings. Pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] means what has been believed, it refers to doctrine in the left lobe transferred by faith through positive volition to the human spirit where it becomes epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis], is transferred to the right lobe into the frame of reference, memory centre and vocabulary. Doctrine is the structure, the edification complex, and therefore pistis (πίστις) [pronounced

PIHS-tih[s] means what is believed as well as faith — both are involved here. He had to believe these things through the function of GAP, now he is utilizing all of the doctrine he has learned — “by means of the faith doctrine.” Pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tih[s]], again, refers to what is believed or doctrine, and it is doctrine that he believes.

Simple things are complex things to those who neglect God’s Word. Bob chews on some people there.

Doctrine in the Word of God is no use to us. The faith-rest technique does not operate out of the Bible, the faith-rest technique operates within the framework of the soul and doctrine with all of its promises. Every promise in the Word is related to a category of doctrine, so doctrine must be blended. X things must be blended with Y things. Y things refer to the right lobe of the soul, and there must be doctrine going from the book into your soul before faith-rest becomes operative. Faith-rest has as its object doctrine, promises, found in your soul. So faith-rest does not operate apart from learning the Word of God.

“giving glory to God” — this is not “giving” here, it is an aorist active participle and, again, the aorist tense is a culminative aorist. We have the verb doxazō (δοξάζω) [pronounced dox-AD-zo] which means to glorify God. This culminative aorist means that he has now reached supergrace, he has GAPed it, GAPed it, GAPed it, he is now culminative aorist at the end of the ball of wax — the existing result. He has now reached supergrace, and having reached supergrace he now possesses in his soul a cup. Now God can pour. This is supergrace capacity. He is occupied with the person of Christ and here are the supergrace blessings, the X things of eternity past from the doctrine of divine decrees. X things blend with Y things, all things work together for good to those who love God. The one who loves God is the supergrace believer, he is now occupied with the person of Christ. So the supergrace blessings are now poured. In this case Abraham is hopeless, all he has is supergrace capacity and in one moment of time at the point of circumcision God poured. God gets the glory because God does the giving. The giver gets the glory under grace. God is glorified by giving Abraham supergrace sexual prosperity. To do so he had to revive the genitals of Abraham and Sarah, He had to give them the capacity for being able to copulate and out of this he becomes the father of a new race — the Jew, he becomes the father of many nations. All of this is his sexual prosperity. Furthermore, because of his circumcision demonstrating his faith-rest, demonstrating that doctrine was more real to him than anything in life, he is the father of us all when he reached the point of supergrace. He is the father of us all in uncircumcision: he is the pattern of salvation because he believed in Jesus Christ; he is the father of us all in circumcision because he reached the supergrace life, and this is the only way you glorify God. Whatever your supergrace blessings happen to be, once you begin to receive them God is glorified. God is glorified in giving and you are benefitted in receiving. So when you glorify God you are benefitted. All reward in the Christian way of life is related to the cup. You must have a cup in your soul, God does not pour unless you have a cup.

“to God” is a dative of advantage of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], it is also a dative of indirect object. It also has the definite article, so it should be translated “the God” — the God who made the promises, the God of the two immutable things. God is glorified by the supergrace status of the believer, the believer's occupation with Christ glorifies God, the believer's supergrace capacity and Bible doctrine glorifies God, so God receives the glory from providing the blessing for the supergrace believer.

Romans 4:20 — “With reference to the promise of the God he did not even begin to waver in unbelief; but he had become strong by means of the supergrace faith doctrine, having given glory to the God.”

Rom 4:21 fully convinced that God was able to do what he had promised.

Verse 21 — the hopeless situation is recognized. “And” is the continuative use of the conjunction kai.

“being fully persuaded” is an aorist passive participle, plêrophoreô (πληροφορέω) [pronounced play-rof-or-EH-oh], which means to be fully convinced. This is a gnomic aorist. This brings together that ingressive aorist plus two culminative aorists, and we now have a gnomic aorist. One ingressive aorist plus two culminative aorists equals one gnomic aorist. The gnomic aorist indicates an absolute, it indicates that this is axiomatic, for once a person gets into supergrace Bible doctrine is definitely more real than anything else — “having been fully convinced.” The passive voice: Abraham receives the action of the verb from doctrine in his soul. In other words, doctrine in his soul is more real than sexual death in his body. The participle has antecedent action to the main verb. The main verb: “he did not waver in unbelief.”

“that” — is a conjunction after verbs of mental activity, and this is a verb of mental activity because he has the doctrine in his soul — “what he had promised.”

“what” is an accusative neuter relative pronoun, hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]. What things, what promises. “What” refers to the fact of sexual prosperity as under the fatherhood of Abraham doctrine.

“he had promised” — the perfect middle indicative of epaggellô (ἐπαγγέλλω) [pronounced ehp-ang-EHL-low] which means to promise. This is an iterative perfect in which the promise God has fulfilled to Abraham is repeated at recurrent intervals. In other words, the perfect tense generally means something that has happened in the past with results that go on. But this promise was given at different times — Genesis 12:1,2; 15:5; 17:5; and chapter 22. The point is, it was given again and again though once was enough to fulfill it. In this case He repeated the promise so we have an iterative perfect to indicate that God encouraged Abraham from time to time to move toward supergrace, to make doctrine his life. The middle voice is an indirect middle which lays stress on the agent as producing the action of the verb rather than participating in the results. It should be translated “he himself.” God Himself had promised. That emphasizes one of the two immutable things, the oath in which He made the promise. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative, it is the mood of certainty, it represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality, it is the mood of unqualified assertion.

“he was” is the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. This is a simple case of linear aktionsart denoting a continuous status quo — “he kept on being able”, and now we have a predicate nominative from the adjective dunatos (δυνατός) [pronounced doo-nat-OSS]. Here is where faith-rest broke down into mechanics. Dunatos (δυνατός) [pronounced doo-nat-OSS] means He had the ability to revive anything in Abraham’s body so that the promise could be fulfilled. He has the ability to do it.

“to perform” — the aorist active indicative of poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] means to revive the organs of Abraham as well as Sarah. The aorist tense again is a gnomic aorist, it is for that which is an absolute. The active voice: God performs the action, providing both the means and the result. When the situation is hopeless God must provide the means and the results. In this case the means was He had to revive Abraham’s sexual organs and the organs of his wife Sarah. The result was he will be the father of a new race, he will be the father of many nations. The means and the result are both involved in a hopeless situation. No situation is totally hopeless unless God must provide both the means and the result, and that is what He does. Because He has made a promise He does provide the means, and Abraham says, “I believe that, circumcise me.” Abraham was 100 and the moment he was circumcised that was the moment when God revived the use of his sexual organs. The active voice: God performed the action. The infinitive is the result of entering into the supergrace life.

Romans 4:21 “Having been completely convinced that, what he himself had promised, he was able also to do it.”

What God promises God can do. That is what circumcision means, what circumcision is all about. it is a permanent grace monument to God’s ability. When God makes a promise, when the doctrine is there, God will always perform it.

This takes us back to Genesis, but then that takes us to...

Heb 6:18 ...so that by two unchangeable things, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we who have fled for refuge might have strong encouragement to hold fast to the hope set before us.

Category #2 love illustrates....

Hebrews 6:18 — Circumcision was perpetuated in the Jewish race. There was not only the covenant of Abraham but there was also the covenant of circumcision, found in Genesis 17:10–14. Abraham was circumcised because doctrine was more real to him than his hopeless situation. This doctrine was so important to him that he went ahead and was circumcised, and all the males were circumcised in that generation, the next, the next, the next, and always it was a reminder that Bible doctrine is more important than anything in life.

This is a transitional verse, it shows the relationship between Abraham and us. This shows us that Abraham’s circumcision was indicative that doctrine was more real than any situation in life. Abraham had his reality in two immutable things. Those same two immutable things belong to us. The first word in verse 18, “That” is the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] which introduces a purpose clause. It is better translated “In order that,” to bring out the purpose clause.

“by two immutable things” — we have dia plus the genitive plural of pragma (πρᾶγμα) [pronounced PRAG-mah]. Dia plus the genitive means “through” as well as “by.”

Then we have with pragma (πρᾶγμα) [pronounced PRAG-mah] an adjective a)metaqetoj. Metaqetoj means “mutable”; “a” mean “not” or “un” changeable. The two immutable things are the way in which God transferred the doctrine from Himself to Abraham’s soul, or God transferred the doctrine from His eternal decree. God must keep His promise. So immutable thing #1 is the person of God. Immutable thing #2 is the doctrine of God — which in this case is a promise — or the Word of God. So we have the person and the Word, two immutable things.

“in which” — literally, “in the sphere of which”, the locative plural; “impossible” — again we have adunatos (ἀδύνατος) [pronounced ad-OO-naht-oss]. We notice now that there are two impossible things, and these are in contrast. The first impossible thing came up in Hebrews 6:4 — it is impossible to recover from reversionism so long as the believer is in legalism or involved in anything that conflicts with doctrine. That is the first impossibility. No one ever recovers from reversionism as long as something in their life conflicts with coming to Bible class and getting doctrine. Anything that keeps the believer away from Bible doctrine means that it is impossible to recover from reversionism.

The second impossibility lies in this passage and therefore must be summarized. It is impossible for God to lie about supergrace blessings for the royal priesthood, even as it was impossible for God to lie to an inferior priest by the name of Abraham — he was only a family-type priest.

God and the Two Immutable Things

1. It is impossible for God to lie, to go against His own decree of eternity past.
2. The impossibility is based upon two immutable things: the oath of God and the decree of God.
3. The oath is presented in verse 13 of Hebrews chapter 6; the promise was presented in verse 14.
4. The oath represents the perfect person making the promise.
5. The decree represents the content of the promise — in this case, supergrace sexual prosperity.
6. Since both are immutable it is impossible for God to welch on His promise. He has an obligation to Abraham, He will keep it.
7. Under grace everything depends on who and what God is.
8. These two immutable things are the basis for our function in the royal priesthood. (Remember, no believer functions under his royal priesthood until he reaches supergrace) Supergrace is the normal function of the royal priesthood.

9. The oath and the promise are no stronger than the person performing them, and the person performing them is the eternal God. Therefore they are unlimited as declared in that paragraph of the divine decrees that has your name on it.

“for God” — this time without the definite article. The absence of the definite article calls attention to the quality of the noun. Therefore, once more, by the use of Greek syntax there is emphasis on who and what God is and on His ability.

“to lie” — the aorist middle infinitive of yeudw. This is the culminative aorist tense, it views the existence of God in its entirety and emphasizes the existing results. God always exists, there never will be a time when He doesn't, and there never will be a time in all of God's existence when God will ever lie. The middle voice is a direct middle which refers the results of the action directly to the agent with reflexive force. It is impossible for God Himself to lie. The infinitive is a part of an accusative of general reference in which God is the subject of the infinitive, or He is portrayed as fulfilling the action of the infinitive, it is impossible for Him to lie.

Therefore, since it is impossible for God to lie, “we might have a strong consolation.” “We might have” is a present active subjunctive of echō (ἔχω) [pronounced EHH-oh] — “we might have and hold.” The present tense is a static present, it is used here for something which is taken for granted as a fact and will always exist as a fact. We have, and we always will have, a strong consolation. The active voice: the subject is the royal priest. Since you are a royal priest you are the subject, you are included in this phrase. The subjunctive mood is potential, the potentiality depends upon your attitude toward doctrine. You as a royal priest can go one of two ways. Doctrine is the great issue after salvation; Christ is the issue in salvation. After salvation it is the written Word that becomes the issue. GAP is the road that takes you to supergrace. Supergrace has: occupation with the person of Christ, supergrace capacity (the cup), and supergrace blessings. This is the road of the daily intake of doctrine. The other road is the road to the sin unto death, the road of reversionism, and it is simply based upon rejection of doctrine: reaction, frantic search for happiness, emotional revolt, the infiltration of Satanic doctrine (called demon influence), and the blackout of the soul and the practice of reverse process reversionism. It eventuates in the sin unto death. So every believer has a choice and his choice determines whether he goes to tactical victory or becomes a casualty in the angelic conflict.

“a strong” — this is an adjective, ischuros (ἰσχυρός) [pronounced is-khoo-ROSS], which means an inherent strength. It refers to Bible doctrine' “consolation” — the word paráklêsis (παράκλησις) [pronounced par-AK-lay-sis] means “encouragement” here. Bible doctrine is our strong encouragement. This is our strong encouragement to move toward supergrace.

“who have fled” — “who” refers to the believer, and it is not a relative pronoun, it is a definite article in the nominative plural; “have fled for refuge” — an aorist participle, so we do not actually have a relative pronoun here — the aorist active participle of katapheugō (καταφεύγω) [pronounced kat-af-YOO-go], which means to take refuge in something, and here the constative aorist means to take refuge in the Word of God. In other words, we keep on having, and it is potential, depending on whether you use it or not — doctrine, doctrine, doctrine, available. One misconception: You cannot get doctrine by reading the Bible for yourself — as the evangelist told you after salvation! You have to have a pastor-teacher, that is why we have them. And you have to go to class, the classroom is the local church. The pastor-teacher is a person, he has a message; so you have the combination of a person and his message. He has the gift and the final authority. He has the message and God will provide for you a pastor-teacher to communicate the message and provide for you Bible doctrine to you so that it enters your soul. No one gets doctrine by reading it for himself, it is the pastor-teacher who communicates it to him. Therefore, between you and the fulfillment is also your right pastor-teacher and your attitude toward your pastor-teacher determines whether you are ever going to get there or not. The active voice: the royal priesthood produces the action of the verb by listening to the teaching of doctrine consistently, constantly. The participle is a temporal participle, and therefore a temporal participle should be translated “while we have fled” or “when we have fled [to doctrine] for refuge”.

“to lay hold upon” — the aorist active infinitive of krateō (κρατέω) [pronounced krat-EH-oh]. Krateō (κρατέω) [pronounced krat-EH-oh] means to see what belongs to us and it refers to supergrace blessing. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views GAPing it, GAPing it, GAPing it from the standpoint of its results. The result is supergrace and laying hold of God’s specific blessings for you. The infinitive is the infinitive of purpose — “for the purpose of attaining the hope,” or as elpis (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] means here, the objective — the objective being the supergrace life. Elpij means the objective here, it also means “attainment,” “expectation.”

“set before us” — present active participle of prokeimai (πρόκειμαι) [pronounced PROHK-i-mahee]. The present tense is a static present. All of us have before us the same thing Abraham had. The only difference is that we do not have specifics in a promise. Why? Because you live in the royal priesthood in the completed canon of scripture. God has not given a specific promise to anyone since the canon of scripture was closed. But whatever Abraham had, and all other supergrace believers, are yours. They are set before us right now, this passage says they are set before us, the static present of prokeimai (πρόκειμαι) [pronounced PROHK-i-mahee]. The active voice: the believer positive toward doctrine produces the action of the verb, he attains these things. The participle is a circumstantial participle. Add it all up, it says simply this: God has for you, and has had since eternity past, since He enucleated the divine decrees, supergrace blessings. These supergrace blessings fall into several categories.

“In order that by two immutable things [the oath and promise of God], in the sphere of which it is impossible for God himself to lie, we [the royal priesthood] might have strong encouragement [doctrine by which we advance to the tactical objective], so long as we take refuge [in doctrine] for the purpose of attaining the objective [supergrace blessing] constantly placed before us.”

Hebrew 6:18 “In order that by two immutable things [the oath and promise of God], in the sphere of which it is impossible for God himself to lie, we [the royal priesthood] might have strong encouragement [doctrine by which we advance to the tactical objective], so long as we take refuge [in doctrine] for the purpose of attaining the objective [supergrace blessing] constantly placed before us.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Lesson #72

72 07/15/1973 Hebrews 6:19-20 The upside-down anchor

Heb 6:19 We have this as a sure and steadfast anchor of the soul, a hope that enters into the inner place behind the curtain,

Verse 19 — here we have the conclusion of the matter in one more illustration. This illustration is the upside down anchor. We begin with the word “Which hope.” The word “which” is the accusative feminine singular from the relative pronoun Hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], and it refers to the hope or the objective which the supergrace life. Doctrine in the soul is the objective, and doctrine in the soul is the only basis by which we can obtain this objective. Remember, Abraham had to believe the doctrine in his own soul and until he had transferred it there he couldn’t do so. He transferred it by two immutable things: the oath of God and the promise of God. The oath is comparable to His person; the promise is comparable to the divine decrees. As far as Abraham was concerned these promises which he believed were in his soul and they were transferred to his soul by the two immutable things. We have that which is comparable to the two immutable things in the function of GAP. The principle, therefore, remains the same and it is a very simple one. Doctrine must be in the soul in order to claim it, in order the faith-rest it, whether the doctrine is a promise or it is a principle. Regardless of what it is it must be in the soul, not in the Bible. You don’t claim promises out of the Bible, you claim promises from your own soul.

And this accusative feminine singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç] refers to the word elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] or “hope” which we had in the previous verse, and while it is translated “hope” it should be translated “expectation.” Or, here we could translate it “Which hope objective.” The hope objective is the combination of doctrine plus the advance of the supergrace life.

“we have” — this time echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHH-oh] is not in the present active subjunctive but in the present active indicative because it is available to every member of the royal priesthood. Here it refers to the paragraph in the divine decrees that has your name in it, a specific paragraph in the supergrace area — “we keep on having.” The present tense here is retroactive progressive present which in this case goes all of the way back to eternity past where the person of God the Father, author of the plan, actually enucleated the plan. The person was first, then came the plan. The person is God the Father, the plan enucleated is the Word of God as it existed in eternity past, not in a book as we have it but in the form we call decrees. The retroactive progressive present means we have always had these things — long before we existed; it denotes what every member of the royal priesthood had in the past with the result that he will always have it. Whether he attains what he has depends entirely on his attitude toward doctrine. The active voice: the believer has confidence in the strategic victory of the Lord Jesus Christ which becomes the basis of confidence in his own supergrace blessing. This is the declarative indicative mood representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality and certainty. The verbal idea here is first of all confidence in the strategic victory of our Lord. It must be remembered that before there could ever be in any paragraph in the doctrine of divine decrees dealing with the royal priesthood of the Church Age, first of all there had to be a paragraph on the royal high priest. There is first of all a large paragraph on His prosperity. His prosperity is only in part right now.

Jesus Christ first of all had to go to the cross and offer Himself as a sacrifice. He bore our sins in His own body on the tree, this is where He broke Satan's back. His resurrection, ascension and session at the right hand of the Father are all a part of the strategic victory. At the point of ascension where the Father said "Sit down until I make your enemies your footstool" is the end of the first stage of strategic victory, and is where the supergrace prosperity of our high priest begins. But it doesn't end there. He has a supergrace prosperity in heaven, but He will have a supergrace prosperity on earth when He returns to rule. He will take the kingdom of the earth away from Satan, He will destroy all of the armies of Armageddon, He will kill the enemy, He will also remove from this earth all demons, and His supergrace prosperity is really the Millennial reign. We share that with Him as His bride. Just as Sarah shared the blessings of Abraham in supergrace so the Church will share the blessings of the Lord Jesus Christ in the Millennium. In the meantime we as members of the royal priesthood in the Church Age declare this principle to Satan by receiving supergrace blessings in time, but only when we get that cup. And the cup is supergrace capacity. It comes from Bible doctrine and only from Bible doctrine. Therefore the Lord Jesus Christ is going to have His supergrace blessings on earth at a future time. The objective right now is for every member of the royal priesthood is to fulfil that supergrace paragraph that is for him and only for him. Supergrace is the normal function of the royal priesthood and God has your name on a paragraph in the divine decrees, associated with supergrace blessing. This all begins with the strategic victory.

This woman calls and said, "I want to know about your church," and Bob gave her the number to T&P, and then she decided that she would have to find a pencil to write this down, and she is not sure that she is interested. "I told her politely to go to hell and hung up." "Getting rid of dead wood is a great past time; not a pleasant one."

Every believer has his name on a supergrace paragraph. There will be men of all walks of life who will receive great supergrace blessings. Business success, military honors, etc.

"as an anchor" — the anchor is very important here because it is sea anchor. "As" indicates a comparative particle, hōs (ὥς) [pronounced hohç]. This sets up the comparative particle of analogy. The analogy here is unique, it is between the use of a sea anchor to stabilize a ship in a storm and protect it from the shoals, and the entrance of the high priest into the holy of holies on the day of atonement. And both of these are illustrations. There are two illustrations set up as an analogy. The first is the sea anchor which was used in a storm so that a ship would not go on the rocks, they would anchor offshore and ride out the storm.

Then we have the tabernacle, and we have the holy of holies — the second veil — and the high priest entering once a year — both are illustrations. This is the system of dual illustration and both of these are analogous to the work of the Lord Jesus Christ as our high priest at the right hand of the Father at the present time.

The first part of the analogy is an anchor. This is agkura (ἄγκυρα) [pronounced ANG-koo-rah] — a sea anchor, and it is called an “anchor of the soul”; “of the soul” is a genitive of possession, psuchê (ψυχή) [pronounced psoo-KHAY]. Again we must be reminded: doctrine has to be in the soul before it can be used. The sea anchor was the stabilizer; doctrine is the sea anchor. Doctrine was more real to Abraham than his hopeless situation. The storm in Abraham’s life was the hopeless situation.

The sea anchor might be at the front or there may be several of them. The parallel is properly to a singular anchor.

Doctrine must be in the soul. Doctrine in the Bible is like the two immutable things for Abraham. Abraham didn’t have a Bible, there was no canon of scripture. Instead, Abraham had the oath which represents the person, and he had the promise which represents the decree. Abraham had his name of one paragraph in that decree just as you have your name in one paragraph of that decree. Abraham had doctrine in his soul, it was transferred by the same two immutable things that are involved in the function of GAP. Doctrine is in the soul, that is the sea anchor, the sea anchor stabilizes the ship. Bible doctrine is the anchor in the believer’s soul keeping the ship from drifting onto the reefs and the shoals of reversionism. Bible doctrine in the soul stabilizes the ship during the storms of life. The first part of the analogy, therefore, refers to doctrine.

We then have two adjectives to amplify the first part of the analogy. The first of these is the word “sure” — asphalês (ἀσφαλής) [pronounced as-fal-ACE], and it means stabilize. It is a nautical term for the stability of a ship. You must be consistent and you must be stabilized in order to reach the supergrace life. Bible doctrine in the soul becomes the sea anchor that stabilizes the believer. Then there is a second word which is very similar to stability but really means “dependability.” It is the word “steadfast” — bébaios (βέβαιος) [pronounced BEB-ah-yoss], which means dependability. Stability and dependability are the two adjectives to describe that consistency necessary for any individual believer to reach the supergrace life. You have to stay with doctrine.

Abraham patiently endured, he obtained the promise and he obtained it at the point of the supergrace life. That is exactly what we have in these two words. You have to be a stable person, you can’t be easily led away from the teaching of the Word of God. You have to be consistent in getting with it, you can’t be constantly involved in the reactor factors just as Abraham was and therefore didn’t get there until age 99. A stabilized and dependable believer is a believer who is consistent in his attitude toward the Word of God and consistent in using his volition in the proper way.

Then we have a connective kai to introduce the second part of the analogy. Kai is simply a conjunction used as a connective link.

The second part of the analogy is entering into the veil. There is no relative pronoun “which”. Instead, we have a present active participle from eiserchomai (εἰσερχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahee]. Eis means “into”; Érchomai (ἔρχομαι) [pronounced AIR-khoh-my] means to enter. It refers to the high priest on the day of atonement entering into the holy of holies. But remember that these are all parts of the same analogy. So it refers not to the sea anchor on the bottom of the ocean holding the ship in place, but here we have it upside down. Our sea anchor is in heaven.

Here is where the Lord Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father. When the Lord Jesus was seated at the right hand of the Father that was the first phase of the strategic victory. That calls for tactical victory down here. So now the anchor is upside down. Why? This is a picture of positional truth or union with Christ. Union with Christ is the way the Church Age began. At the moment of salvation your royal priesthood is related to strategic victory, and your objective is tactical victory. Tactical victory only comes to you through the supergrace life. And remember, the supergrace life is always the same. There is a cup for your soul and that cup is made up of supergrace capacity, and that is doctrine in your soul. And God pours, and Romans 8:28 is fulfilled. X-things are the things that God provided for you in the divine decrees under paragraph supergrace. There is a supergrace paragraph with your name on it. Y-things are the doctrines that it takes to get to supergrace. X-things blend with Y-things to those who love God. Those who love God = occupation with Christ, the first sign of supergrace. So we have “We know that X-things blend together with Y-things for those who love God, for those who are the called according to his purpose.” “Called according to his purpose” is a reference to the divine decrees, and there is a paragraph in the divine decrees with your name on it. And since you are a royal priesthood you ought to live like royalty.

The principle behind this: God does the pouring. God pours into your cup so that your cup runs over. And God gets the glory. You get the benefit of the supergrace blessing. So when God is blessing you with promotion and prosperity and wealth and success, God is glorified by that and you are benefitted.

The high priest, once a year, on the day of atonement had to put on the complete dress uniform of the high priest. It was a very beautiful uniform. All the people gathered because if anything happened to the high priest they knew they were “dead ducks.” They were under the Levitical priesthood and they had to sweat out this day once a year. So he went through the procedure, the animal sacrifices, gathering the blood. He took the blood in first for himself and then for the people, and he always did the same thing, he sprinkled it over the top of the mercy seat to indicate the doctrine of propitiation — the Father’s righteousness is satisfied with the work of Christ on the cross, and because Jesus Christ is +R (absolute righteousness) the Father can love and save members of the human race without compromising His righteousness.

And justice the same way: Jesus Christ was judged in our place, He bore our sins in His own body on the tree, and therefore justice is satisfied. Because righteousness and justice is satisfied God the Father is free to love those who believe in Jesus Christ and to love them with maximum love. All of this was portrayed by the work of the high priest once a year on the day of atonement, and this in effect is what the Lord Jesus Christ did for us on the cross, this is a picture of the strategic victory of the Lord Jesus Christ. Colossians 2:14,15; Hebrews 2:14 tells us that not only was our salvation provided but Satan's back was broken as a part of the angelic conflict.

At the moment of our salvation God the Holy Spirit enters us into union with Jesus Christ who is seated at the right hand of the Father. There is the upside down anchor. At the moment of salvation there is our relationship with that strategic victory. Now the anchor also goes the other way, only this anchor is for tactical victory, this anchor is doctrine. And when this anchor is in the soul the believer has reached supergrace and the normal function of his royal priesthood. So we have the upside down anchor and the anchor from heaven. One of them is the strategic victory of Jesus Christ — the baptism of the Spirit and positional truth by which we are permanently related to the strategical victory. Whereas the anchor going the other way is for phase two tactical victory. So we have an anchor going each way. The one is doctrine going into the believer's soul and the other is the anchor going into the holy of holies.

How are these portrayed? Why do we have a double analogy? It is very simple. First of all the anchor portrays the ship on life's seas in a storm. The anchor goes down to secure the ship during the storm. That is doctrine in the believer's soul, that is your sea anchor. Then you also have an anchor entering the veil, and the anchor going up is our strategic victory. This guarantees we will ride out the storm. So we are related at the point of salvation, the upside down anchor is positional truth, union with Jesus Christ. The other analogy of the sea anchor, is doctrine in the soul which is the point of supergrace blessing.

Hebrews 6:19 “Which hope [doctrine] we have as an anchor of the soul, both stabilized and dependable, and having entered into the room [the holy of holies] behind the curtain.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Jesus Christ our royal high priest has entered into heaven. Remember that the holy of holies is a picture of heaven, and while the holy of holies was in the tabernacle on earth heaven is many billions of light years away. Jesus Christ our royal high priest has entered the reality of heaven. Whereas the Levitical high priest could not even enter the shadow except once a year on the day of atonement by blood, now Jesus Christ after His sacrifice and resurrection enters into the true holy of holies, the reality. The Levitical priest dealt with shadows; the royal high priest deals with reality, seated at the right hand of the Father.

Heb 6:20 where Jesus has gone as a forerunner on our behalf, having become a high priest forever after the order of Melchizedek.

Verse 20 — the word “whither” is an adverb of place, hopou (ὅπου) [pronounced HOHP-oo], which means “where”, and “where” refers to the right hand of the Father which is illustrated by the holy of holies in the tabernacle. The holy of holies is the shadow and the third heaven is the reality, the right hand of the Father.

“the forerunner” — prodromos (πρόδρομος) [pronounced PROD-rom-oss] [pro means before; dromoj is the aorist of the verb trekw, “to run”] means to run in advance, but it is more important than that. It actually is a military term and refers to the point, that advance guard which we call today “the point.” The concept here is that we have one man on the point and that is the God-Man, the Lord Jesus Christ. He has already advanced to the objective. The objective is the right hand of the Father and the strategic victory of the angelic conflict, which in this case is also a tactical victory. So He is the advance guard and He is there entered for us. “Where the advance guard [our high priest, the Lord Jesus Christ, the anchor within the veil] has entered ...”

“for us” — u(per plus the genitive plural of su. He has entered on behalf of us (plural), all members of the royal priesthood.

“entered” should be “has entered”, the aorist active indicative of eiserchomai (εἰσέρχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahēe], the same verb for the second time in two verses, to show that Jesus Christ is the advance guard, Jesus Christ is the anchor inside of the veil. The aorist tense is the culminative aorist which regards the action in its entirety but emphasizes the existing results. Jesus Christ lived on earth as a man. He lived as a royal high priest. He went to the cross, died, was resurrected, ascended, and is seated on the right hand of the Father. The culminative aorist emphasizes the strategic victory of our advance guard, the Lord Jesus Christ. So on behalf of us He has already entered and is seated on the right hand of the Father. The active voice: the Lord Jesus Christ, the royal high priest, produces the action of the verb. And this is a declarative indicative which regards the verb from the viewpoint of reality, where Jesus the advance guard has entered on behalf of us.

There is a parallel between the High Priest entering into the Holy of Holies; and Jesus living here on earth, and then entering into the 3rd heaven, as our advance guard.

Now, at that point and the mentioning of the Lord Jesus Christ we go back to the subject where we left it in Hebrews 5:10 — “Called an high priest of God after the order [or battalion] of Melchizedek.” This time, instead of “called” it is much more personal — “made.” And it is even stronger than that, it is the aorist active participle of the verb ginomai and it means to become. The aorist participle: “having become.” This is a gnomic aorist. The gnomic aorist is for a doctrine which is so absolute as to be axiomatic. The active voice: Christ produces the action of the verb. The participle has antecedent action to the main verb. Before He entered He was already a high priest. Before Jesus Christ accomplished the strategical victory of the angelic conflict He was a priest first. In other words, He offered Himself on the cross as a priest. Just as the animal was offered on the altar in the Old Testament Levitical offerings, so Jesus Christ offered Himself as our high priest.

“after the order of” is incorrect. It is katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss]. katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative means according to the norm or standard of, but it is taxis (τάξις) [pronounced

TAHX-iss] that needs the development. Taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss] means battalion — “according to the battalion of Melchizedek.”

We had an outfit that came to the high walls by Peking; a man volunteered to climb the wall, and the whole 14th infantry climbed the wall killing hundreds of Chinese. They are given the place of honor in many parades. Many battle honors. 1st of the 14th is called the golden dragons.

Melchizedek is a king as well as a priest. He was a royal priest; the Levitical priesthood; and there is the family priesthood, which is what Abraham belonged to. The royal priesthood is always the greatest. Today, there is no Levitical Priesthood. The greatest remains. When Melchizedek came eyeball-to-eyeball with Abraham, Melchizedek did the administering.

Hebrews 6:20 “Where the advance guard [our high priest, the Lord Jesus Christ, the anchor within the veil] has entered on behalf of us according to the battalion of Melchizedek.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #73

73 07/27/1973 (2 weeks later) Hebrews 6:13-20

People have been wondering where Bob has been for the past few days. He reads an article from the Houston Chronicle, one which was given to him. There is a group that was planning to go underground to defeat a communist running Santiago. Leading this group is a Roberto Thieme.

We are going to pick out some things in this chapter which were not fully covered before.

Verses 13–20 (Review)

Billions of years ago in eternity past God the Father had plan for the life of every believer, and that plan includes a supergrace paragraph. In the divine decrees God the Father has taken cognisance of every believer who ever lived or ever will live. This is true of believers who lived before the canon of scripture. Before the Bible was written even there were believers like Abraham and God the Father had a plan for their life. So since Abraham did not have a Bible God the Father extrapolated from His supergrace blessing paragraph certain portions of the paragraph which come down in the Bible to us in the form of promises. He actually spoke personally to Abraham though He does not speak personally to us. And in His personal conversation with Abraham He emphasized these particular promises. So He spoke to him and that of course is the Word of God. It was not in writing, Abraham did not have a Bible. So in order to emphasize that this was what was going to happen to Abraham, and is guaranteed, God also took a solemn oath in the name of His own person. So we have two facets to the supergrace promise to Abraham. First of all the oath of God, and secondly, the Word of God. He made the solemn promise in His own name and then declared the content of the promise.

This was not in writing; but God's oath, taken in the name of His Own Person, functioned as the Word of God in that era. There was no written Bible in Abraham's day.

We have the Bible, the canon of Scripture; and we have a supergrace paragraph just as Abraham did. God spoke to Abraham personally; He does not speak to us personally. Our supergrace paragraph is just as real as Abraham's.

What has been omitted in our study of the last part of the sixth chapter of Hebrews is the fact that you and I today do not have the same exact immutable thing. We have the same principle but we do not actually have God speaking to us. We cannot say we know what our supergrace blessing will be because God isn't speaking to us. Nevertheless, our paragraph in the supergrace life is just as real as Abraham's was.

There is another problem. God is not talking to us personally, and since the first immutable thing is an oath, what do we have by way of saying that there is also a first immutable thing — the oath of God? Since God isn't talking to us, none of us have ever heard God say "Just as I am God" or "My name is not God if this is not true". We hear this same kind of thing as we read Abraham's life but we don't hear it personally. God has not made a personal oath, a solemn oath, to any of us to guarantee our supergrace blessings. So what takes the place of the oath? God spoke personally to Abraham. Abraham lived before the canon of scripture so first of all God said, "My name is not God unless I will do this." He also spoke to Abraham and that is the Word, there was no canon of scripture. Abraham didn't have anything in writing. We now have a Bible and therefore have what Abraham did not have. But we have the exact equivalent and that is the application that comes in the last part of the sixth chapter of Hebrews.

Abraham had nothing in writing; but we do.

First of all, you and I as believers have the Word of God. What you read in the Bible is just as if God is speaking, in fact that is God speaking. And since the canon of scripture is completed God doesn't speak verbally to people any more. The big issue is what takes the place of the oath. How do we have two immutable things that guarantees exactly the same thing to us? What are the two immutable things? The first is the preservation of the canon of scripture. God takes a new type of solemn oath where you and I are concerned, the fact that we have the scripture at all. The preservation of it is God's solemn oath. Just as the Word of God continues to exist in spite of all opposition, just as the Word of God has not been destroyed over the last two thousand years, just as every portion of the canon has been preserved and even translated, just as the Bible is the best seller in the world and written in nearly 1000 languages of the world, this is the equivalent of God's oath. He said to Abraham, "Just as I am God I will do this". He says to us, "The fact that you have a Bible is equivalent to that oath I gave to Abraham." The very existence of the Bible is the equivalent of that oath. So the first immutable thing: the existence of the Bible. The second immutable thing is the content of the Bible, and we have our two immutable things just as Abraham had his. Abraham had the two immutable things and he said, "Circumcise me." We have two immutable things and we know that just as we are saved, just as we have the reality of our salvation, so supergrace prosperity is just as real for each one of us. There is only one difference. While all of us have salvation through faith in Jesus Christ not all of us are going to go to supergrace. For some, if there is a conflict of interest it always goes against the Bible and therefore some are never going to get there.

Bob has heard every excuse there is why someone has not come to Bible class. But it comes down simply to negative volition toward doctrine. “Not a bad idea taxing sin; might get us out of the red.”

Verse 13 — we are talking about God’s promise of supergrace blessing to Abraham, the extrapolation from the divine decrees. In the middle of this verse is the first of two immutable things. The explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] introduces the subject of two immutable things. Persistence in learning doctrine is the key to reaching supergrace. The word “when” is not found in the original, and it should be translated here, “For God himself having promised.” Just as this was an absolute to Abraham it is an absolute to you.

God not only saved you — the Father planned it, the Son executed it, the Spirit revealed it — but there is something more than that. God promised Abraham specifically that he would have supergrace blessing, and as goes Abraham so you go. If Abraham doesn’t have it, you don’t have it. If God’s promise and God’s approach isn’t valid there it is not valid for you. Actually, you and Abraham are all tied up in this thing together. The only difference is that Abraham lived before there was any Bible, he was pre-canon completely. The Bible starts with Moses and Abraham lived 500 years before Moses. Furthermore, Abraham lived in a different dispensation, the patriarchal period at the beginning of the dispensation of Israel and you live in the Church Age. Consequently, there is a different mechanic in making the promise.

“Howard, go chase that dumb butt from those pictures over there.”

The mechanics to Abraham: An oath. God says, “I am God. I swear on my own person that I will do something for you”, and then He gives him the Word. So you have the person and the Word. Now, today in the Church Age, instead of the oath we have the existence of the Bible, the perpetuation of the Bible. The Word of God lives and abides forever. Even though it is under great attack and even though at times it is pressed down to a very small portion of this planet it goes on. The very existence of the Bible is equivalent to the oath of the Father, and the content of the Bible is equivalent to the extrapolation of the supergrace promise to you personally.

A promise is no greater or no stronger than the person who gives it. So, you receive promises all of the time from various individuals, but the promises are no stronger than that individual.

“because he had no one greater by whom to swear [make an oath]” — the first immutable thing. There was no one greater than God Himself — “he took an oath in the name of himself.” When God approached Abraham on this subject He first of all said, “I take a solemn oath in my own name.” There is no one greater than God and therefore God took an oath in His own name. That is to emphasize the person, the person who actually provides for you supergrace blessings. The person is sovereign and He made a sovereign decision to do this. He made a decision to give each believer supergrace blessings and you have supergrace for you. It may stay in the warehouse until you die and you may have to go to heaven and find out what you missed, but He made the decision and it is a good decision because He is absolute righteousness. It is a fair decision; He is just, He has never left anyone out of the supergrace paragraph. The fact that people do not get to supergrace is because they reject the very basis of supergrace which is His Word — the content of His Word or doctrine. He is also love. God has perfect love for each believer and in His perfect love has provided supergrace blessing. He is eternal life, which means He promised this billions of years before we existed. And God is omniscient. He knew that you would believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and become a member of the family of God, and therefore took care of it because of His omniscience. He is omnipotent and has the power, the ability to fulfil the promise when you reach supergrace. And then omnipresence. God is always around. He has a great sense of humour and sees the whole operation unfold. Immutability: God can't change any of His characteristics, He has no intention of doing so. So any time God makes you any kind of a promise He has to keep His word because He can't do anything else. Veracity: He can only tell the truth, He can't tell a lie. So the oath merely amplifies the person who has made the promise.

Verse 14 — “Saying”. Now we get the promise. “Saying” is a static present and it is also a participle or temporal participle, and therefore it should be translated, “When he was saying.” The quotation of the promise given in Hebrews is taken from Genesis 22:16,17 although it could have been taken from Genesis 17:5,6 or Genesis 12 or a number of passages. This one is selected because of its great comprehensiveness.

The word “surely” is very important here because it is a very bad translation of a wonderful Greek idiom which is made up of two particles which are a formula for an oath: ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] mē (μή) [pronounced may]. It means assuredly, definitely, certainly, dogmatically. And all we have is simply the two words. Why is that all we have? Because God is taking an oath in His own name, so the idiom is correctly brought into the English “assuredly or dogmatically, blessing I will bless you”. That means there is a supergrace paragraph for Abraham. “Blessing I will bless” and then “multiplying I will multiply” is a specific. One is a general concept: There is for you Abraham a supergrace blessing. And specifically it is related to sexual prosperity for Abraham because multiplying is something that comes through sex.

We stopped at this stage to look at the categories of grace in the overall picture. The first category was salvation grace [Phase one]. We have the category and we have the involvement. Phase one grace involved all of the Trinity. The involvement is volition — positive volition expressed in a non-meritorious way — or faith in the living Word, Jesus Christ. This, of course, is related to the angelic conflict. Category #2 grace is called living grace, but it also includes dying grace. Living grace is all that God provides to keep you alive on this earth. No volition is involved since this is a matter of the sovereignty of God. He doesn't many, many thing of which we are not aware to keep us alive. There is also in this dying grace for supergrace believers or believers who are not involved in reversionism.

The third category is supergrace or the “more grace” of James 4:6. Supergrace involves volition again — non-meritorious. This time GAPing it, the object of volition is the written Word. We never really get into the perfect relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ in time unless we do it through doctrine. This is the tactical victory. Finally, there is surpassing grace or “the exceeding riches of his grace” in Ephesians 2:7 and no volition is involved because this is the sovereignty of God and His provision for phase three.

Verse 15 — Abraham finally achieving supergrace, the fulfilment of the two immutable things in the life of Abraham. “After he had patiently endured” is incorrect, it is “having persisted.” Abraham kept taking in the Word, he never stopped.

“he obtained the promise” — What promise? The supergrace promise. So the two immutable things are linked together with the supergrace promise. Verse 13: first immutable thing, the oath, emphasizing God’s person; verse 14: the second immutable thing, the content, which places the emphasis on doctrine. In verse 15 we have Abraham, the illustration, achieving. We studied this from 3 different passages.

After going through this principle — the first immutable thing, the second immutable thing, and the fulfilment to Abraham — we now have a theological dissertation on two immutable things in verses 16–18.

Verse 16 — we start again with gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] to show it is a new paragraph and to show it is the same subject but a different approach. First of all in verse 16 we go back to the illustration: “For mankind customarily takes an oath by the greater” — he takes an oath by God — “and to them [those in opposition] such an oath [making a promise in the name of God] with reference to confirmation [guaranteeing security] is the termination of all opposition.” So this is simply an historical illustration to the fact that when people take a solemn oath in the name of God this gives security to the opposition and peace is made between the two antagonistic parties or nations.

Verse 17 — then uses this illustration to amplify the principle. “Wherein” is “By means of which decree” — “the God decreeing [not “willing” as in the KJV]”. This is boulomai which means to make a decree. The present tense is a static present representing the condition assumed as perpetually existing. There never was a time when your supergrace blessing should not exist. Right now in heaven there is a warehouse and there is all of this tremendous supergrace blessing piled up there for you — the prosperity, the promotion, the success, the happiness, whatever it is. They are specific things where you are concerned. The principle applies to every believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. You are involved. This is the story of your life, it is failure or success. Whether we are promoted or not; whether we find RM/RW.

By means which oath the God sovereignly decreeing even more” — God decrees even more — “to demonstrate in addition to the heirs.” Who are the heirs? Abraham is the father of Gentile nations [operation Keturah]. He is the father of a new race [the Jew]. He is also “the father of us all.” How? We are heirs of supergrace promises, and there is father Abraham. Just as Abraham was recipient of a supergrace paragraph, so are you. This is an heirship to be possessed now, not in heaven. There are two kinds of heirship: you inherit in phase three but you inherit in phase two. Abraham is the father of us all and we are Abraham's heirs. That means God has for each one of us a supergrace paragraph.

"heirs of the promise" — the promise is in time. For Abraham it was sexual prosperity. The promise has nothing to do with heaven. This refers to materialistic things without emphasizing what goes with this. What goes with this is a soul saturated with doctrine — persistence. Abraham persisted in taking in doctrine and he got there. You and I are the heirs of Abraham — in time.

Next comes the immutability of His decree. "By means of which oath the God sovereignly decreed even more to demonstrate in addition to the decree to the heirs [royal family of priests] of the promise the immutability of his decree [supergrace blessings], he guaranteed it by means of an oath." God has the power to keep the Bible going forever. The second immutable thing is what is inside. That is why we have the gift of pastor-teacher.

Verse 18 — "That by two immutable things." The two immutable things to Abraham and the two immutable things to you. In principle they are the same, mechanically they are different — we have the Bible, the completed canon of scripture. But the Bible must be taught to us. For Abraham it was an oath and a promise extrapolated from the decrees; for us the existence of the Bible and the teaching of the Bible.

Satan keeps trying to destroy the Bible, and yet, they continue to exist. God can perpetuate His Word forever. The Bible is equivalent to the oath made to Abraham. But we understand that from the teaching of a well-qualified pastor.

Abraham did not have a Bible; so God spoke to him. We do not have the doctrine until the Bible is taught to us.

"we [the priesthood] might have strong encouragement" — to advance and seize our paragraph, to make advance to tactical victory — "so long as we take refuge in doctrine for the purpose of attaining the objective constantly placed before us." Every time the Word of God the objective is placed before us.

Verse 19 — the upside down anchor is also right side up. "Which we have and hold an anchor of the soul." The anchor is said to be of the soul, a genitive of possession. The anchor is also described as a sea anchor of the ancient world and inasmuch as the Bible must be interpreted in the time in which it was written it is quite obvious that the two adjectives which follow, sure and steadfast, are related to sea anchors of the ancient world.

Sea anchors do two things. They give direction and they give stability. They secure the ship from the shoals and they give stability in the storm. And "sure" means stability which comes from getting the bow into the storm. But "steadfast", which means "dependable", keeps the ship off of the shoals.

This anchor of the soul is said to be stabilized and dependable. An anchor of the soul means Bible doctrine in the soul. So here is the Bible, our oath from God, His solemn promise. The doctrine must go into your soul. Bible doctrine in the soul provides stability as well as security.

If there are enough supergrace believers, then the nation will be able to be under the umbrella of those supergrace believers.

There is another anchor here though. This anchor has to go up. The Jews could not enter into the holy of holies. The high priest could go in once a year and if he went in and came out the nation had another year of survival. This was a part of the function of the day of atonement. The holy of holies is a picture of heaven. Jesus Christ our high priest enters into heaven by His resurrection and ascension. He is seated at the right hand of the Father, that is the end of the first phase of strategic victory. Jesus Christ is the anchor, this time it is upside down. This time He is the one who entered in as the anchor. Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father. At the moment of salvation God the Holy Spirit entered us into union with Christ and we not only have the anchor which is doctrine in the soul but we have anchor in heaven. The anchor in heaven is the Lord Jesus Christ.

What is the anchor in the soul of the believer? Doctrine! The written Word. What is the second anchor? It is the living Word, the Lord Jesus Christ Himself. So again we have the living Word and the written Word. With those two anchors we have perfect security in this life as well as perfect happiness. The fact that you and I at the point of salvation were picked up and placed into union with Christ guarantees that we have supergrace blessing. It doesn't guarantee that we will get it. Our attitude toward Christ is the first anchor in heaven. Our attitude toward the written Word determines whether we ever get to supergrace or not. And it has to be a consistent attitude. We cannot be unstable, as so many are, and get there.

Verse 20 — we have one more illustration. “Forerunner” can be translated two ways. The nautical use of prodromos (πρόδρομος) [pronounced PROD-rom-oss] is “pilot ship” — which brings the ship into harbour — or “advance guard”, the military use of it. Jesus Christ is the advance guard for a second great supergrace victory. This is the victory that will come with surpassing grace.

Bob calls this a squeeze operation. We have in the middle, the Church Age, our two immutable things. Principle is the same; the mechanics are different. We can look back to Abraham, or we can look forward to Jesus Christ, Who is our advance guard. We have it from both sides.

Lesson #74

74 08/31/1973 Hebrews 7:1 Types of nobility; doctrine of priesthood

#73 ends above, and #75 begins below. So what is in this lesson?

“If you are a holy roller or a draft dodger or anti-war, you can get out now.”

The superiority of royalty is the subject of this section of Hebrews.

Bob has a letter from a man who knew he was about to die. He listened to 2 tapes a day. There were times when I hated you; I called you some pretty raunchy names. Benjamin A. Hathaway.

We are all members of the royal family of God; and it is about time that we hear about this status. Positionally, we are superior to anything that has walked this earth; but the only way that we can catch up to this is, through spiritual growth.

The Priestly Order of Melchizedek

Hebrews 7:1 For this Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the Most High God, met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings and blessed him,

Chapter 7

The Superiority of Royalty

1. There are many types of royalty and nobility in human history. In ancient times, for example, there was a very wonderful system of royalty called the Spartiates. They had a code that has never been equalled in military, in courage, and in strength. They were royalty by deeds of military courage. They had a discipline that has never been rivalled in all of human history. We also have another system of royalty based upon great mental ability, leadership by brains: the Eutatridai of Athens, some of the most brilliant men who ever lived in the field of handling administration. The Patricians of Rome represented some of the greatest systems of self-discipline and nobility the world has ever seen. Even the Brahman cast of India which lasted for many centuries made up originally a very brilliant, unusual people. If ever we could say in history that there was a Gentile super race, as Hitler kept shouting, it would have to be that Brahman cast. They are the only Arians in history who have ruled for over a thousand years.
  - a. Romanoff in Russia.
  - b. Various French royalty families.
  - c. 1500 in ginnt a man born, from the no sure who this guy is. Father is Philip II of Spain. His mother was Joanna the Mad. Ruler more of Europe than anyone since Charlimaighn. He wound up fixing clocks in a monastery.
2. Going from groups who succeeded and became nobility in history we get a family. Probably the family that impresses in the history of Europe is the Hollenzollen family, a family of great royalty and great success. The Hapsburg family lasted longer than any other of the ruling families of Europe, ruling out of Vienna, ruling what was known as the holy Roman Empire (which was neither holy nor an empire). Then there were the Romanovs which did very well in Russia for a while. France had some famous ruling families.

3. There are famous families in the history of Rome, families of great nobility — the Cornelius family which contributed all of the Skipios. There is another famous Patrician family called the Julius family. One of that family was one of the greatest men of all history, his name was Gaius.
4. There is also another type of royalty and the man who created it was a man of great genius. Napoleon created battlefield royalty. Many of Napoleon's marshals were given titles of nobility on the basis of their tactical success or in making some great contribution to a campaign.
5. Bob names a buttload of royalty. Battlefield royalty.
6. The original nobility of our Anglo-Saxon heritage. Many people are born into royalty but royalty is always developed through ability. This is the key. At one time or another in English history the dukes, the marques, the earl, the viscount, the baron, all represented people who did great things..
7. Edward III created earls. When a heir to the throne of England is born today, he becomes the something and later the prince of Wales. Viscount created by Henry VI. Many are born into royalty. But only a few have the ability to succeed as royalty.
8. Some of the greatest men of our history are those who have come from royalty, People have a tendency in our society to demonstrate their stupidity by failing to recognize the historical impact of royalty. Some of the greatest men in history from the standpoint of genius and impact are people who have come from royalty — ,,,like Gaius Julius Cæsar

We will come to understand the royal priesthood. You may have been born a bastard or so low on the totem pole that you are ashamed of it. Born again means that you walked into the greatest system of royalty.

All of the things that we will enjoy in life from God are based upon royalty and the priesthood. Where does Hebrews 7 fit into the picture? The seventh chapter has nothing to do with the 6th.

We will study in this chapter the peerage of Melchizedek. We will come to understand one of the oldest and most important categories of nobility in all of history. You are a part of that royalty, not on the basis of your ability, but on the basis of who and what Christ is. As we study this chapter we will come to understand the royal priesthood of the Church Age. Nobility of the royal priesthood will last forever. The moment you were born again you walked into the greatest system of royalty the world has ever known, and somewhere along the line you have to come to appreciate it. Two chapters are designed to make you appreciate your nobility: chapter 7, the royal priesthood; Ephesians 4, the system of royalty in supergrace. Believers of the Church Age, having the most enduring type of nobility, need to understand that this nobility is designed so that God can pick you up and give you millions of dollars, promote you, give you material prosperity, social prosperity, sexual prosperity, provide His very own happiness for you. All of these things are related to royalty. Royalty must have royalties, that is the supergrace life. Royalty must have function, that is the function of the priesthood. The royalties come from supergrace, the function of nobility comes from the priesthood.

The question arises: Will believers enjoy the privileges and blessings of being royalty while being still on the earth? The answer is: That depends on you! It depends on your volition, your attitude toward Bible doctrine. The answer to these questions are all found in the book of Hebrews. To enjoy the privileges and blessings of royalty the believer must be consistently positive toward Bible doctrine. The question now is where Hebrews 7 fits into the picture. Hebrews 7 has nothing whatever to do with Hebrews 6. Hebrews 5:11 through 6:20 is a parenthesis to pull believers — to whom this was originally addressed — out of reversionism, for you neither look, nor think, nor act like the royalty you are when you are in reversionism. You are one of the skeletons in the closet of the palace!

Hebrews 5:10 says literally from the Greek, “Having been designated by God high priest according to the battalion of Melchizedek.”

Principles Between Hebrews 5:10 and 6:19,20

1. Those to whom Hebrews was originally addressed were believers living in Jerusalem in 67 AD, three years from the greatest crisis in all of Jewish history.
2. This was on the eve of the greatest disaster in Jewish history, the second administration of the fifth cycle of discipline to the southern kingdom of Judah. It would occur in 70 AD.
3. At the time of the writing of Hebrews believers in Jerusalem and Judah were generally reversionistic, as per Hebrews 6. Hence, they were not ready for the message which we will be studying.
4. The royal priesthood and the supergrace life were not a challenge to them.
5. They did not comprehend the strategic victory of Christ and its relationship to the tactical victory of the royal priesthood.
6. Spiritual growth and progress was hindered by reversionism.
7. The believers who are recipients of this epistle must be challenged to repent, to recover from reversionism. The challenge was presented to them in Hebrews 5:11–6:20. They were assigned to the battalion of Melchizedek, not assigned to the family of Aaron and the tribe of Levi.

Hebrews 6:19–20 We have this as a sure and steadfast anchor of the soul, a hope that enters into the inner place behind the curtain, here Jesus has gone as a forerunner on our behalf, having become a high priest forever after the order of Melchizedek. (ESV)

Bob is drawing battalions on the board. Melchizedek is a king and a priest; a royal priest. We are in union with Christ. We are saved forever and saved as royalty. We are royalty forever. We do not have to open the package way off in the future; we can open it up now.

There are in the field of priesthoods three battalions. All bona fide priesthoods appointed by the Word of God fall into three categories or battalions. We are in the royal priesthood, the only other person in this battalion is Melchizedek who was both a king and a priest — a royal priest. Jesus Christ is also a royal high priest. We are in union with Christ and here is where we get out royalty forever. The second category is the tribe of Levi, family of Aaron, and it is now defunct. The third category is family priesthood. That is where Abraham was, and it was also deactivated. There is no Levitical priesthood and no family priesthood functioning in the world today. There is only one priesthood and the believer is in it, and he is royalty in it, he is nobility. It is one thing to be born into royalty, it is something else to live and to function like royalty.

Abraham believed in the Lord Jesus Christ and it was credited to his account for righteousness — which means: God the Father gave him +R, then justified him. At the same time God the Holy Spirit regenerated him. And that is true for all of the Old Testament saints from Adam right down to the interruption of the Jewish Age. The Jewish Age was interrupted by the Church Age and that was one of the most dramatic and traumatic moments of history — a dispensation is stopped before it is completed — and when it occurred the Levitical priesthood was defunct, deactivated completely, immediately, and in its place a royal priesthood. Now God the Holy Spirit takes every believer and enters him into union with Christ, the baptism of the Spirit which never occurred before. Moses didn't have the baptism of the Spirit, David didn't, Isaiah and Jeremiah didn't. The baptism of the Spirit enters the believer into union with the King priest, the King high priest. Jesus Christ in His person as deity is sovereign forever; Jesus Christ in His humanity was born of the tribe of Judah, the royal tribe; the family of David, the royal family; and therefore in His humanity He is a King. But more than that, He is a King high priest and therefore He is King of kings, He is Lord of lords.

In Hebrews chapter seven we are studying the superiority of royalty; in Ephesians chapter four which will follow we study the royal family.

The Outline of Hebrews Chapter 7 Is Threefold:

1. The superiority of the Melchizedek battalion — verses 1–10.
2. The inferiority of the Levitical battalion — verse 11–19.
3. The superiority of the royal priesthood in the Church Age — verses 20–28.

The Doctrine of the Priesthood

1. A priest is a member of the human race representing the human race before God. The priest is taken from the male population of the human race, he must partake of the nature of the person or persons for whom he acts, officiates, represents. In other words, he must be a bona fide member of the human race — Hebrews 5:1; 7:4,5,14,25. It is also part of the subject of Hebrews 10:5, 10–14.
2. The sphere of priestly function. The priest and the high priest must function in the sphere of spiritual phenomena. Therefore he is appointed for man's benefit in spiritual things. This means the royal priesthood of the Church Age is inevitably and totally related to Bible doctrine.
3. The categories of the priesthood. The first battalion is the royal priesthood. a) The royal priesthood in which Melchizedek is the pattern — Hebrews 7:1–3. b) Melchizedek was both a king and a priest, but without any emphasis but without any emphasis on his parents, his genealogy, his birth certificate or death certificate. c) Melchizedek appeared once to Abraham ministering to him bread and wine, the symbols of Christ's ministry on the cross.

4. By way of contrast, the Levitical priesthood symbolized the cross through animal sacrifices which were discontinued when the Jewish Age was interrupted.
5. The symbols of the royal priesthood remain — bread and wine. We have the symbols of the royal priesthood every time we assemble for the communion service.
6. The office of the royal priesthood is not hereditary but perpetual. In other words you and I are a royal priest but it does not follow that our children are, of course. No one enters into the royal priesthood through heredity. We enter on a spiritual basis — being born again — and it is perpetual, we are royal priests forever.
7. The appointment is not related to physical birth but to the new birth.
8. The second battalion is the Levitical priesthood (review).
  - a. The Levitical priesthood began with Aaron, the older brother of Moses.
  - b. The concept of this priestly ministry of spiritual things is found in Numbers 16:5.
  - c. This priesthood was perpetuated through heredity. Aaron had two surviving sons through whom the entire Levitical priesthood was descended.
  - d. However, physical defects caused the elimination of a priest in the priestly line. He couldn't function at the altar if he had physical defects — Leviticus 21:17–21. Bob gives a list of things of those things which disqualified a person from being a priest.
  - e. The Levitical priesthood was supported by thirteen Levitical cities — Joshua 21:13–19.
  - f. In addition there was a special annual tithe paid to the Levites for their support — a tax — Leviticus 23:10. What a sucker you are; you don't have to give 10%.
  - g. Other support came from redemption money of the first-born — Numbers 18:16.
  - h. The spiritual phenomena of the Levitical priesthood was grace, but limited to shadows. The cross is the reality. The Levitical priesthood dealt with shadows, we in the Church Age deal with reality.
9. The third battalion is the family priesthood in which the patriarch of the family functioned as the priest. Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, were family priests.
10. The royal high priest of the Church Age: the Lord Jesus Christ.
  - a. Jesus Christ is the royal high priest of the Church Age.
  - b. As such He has fulfilled the first function of the priesthood — offerings at the altar. He offered Himself on the real altar which was the cross. He offered Himself for the sins of the world; our sins were poured out upon Him and judged.
  - c. From this function comes the first strategic victory of the angelic conflict: resurrection, ascension, and session — Hebrews 10:5–14.

- d. Our royal high priest, Jesus Christ, was appointed forever in the divine decrees — Hebrews 5:6.
  - e. He was assigned to the first battalion, the battalion of Melchizedek, the royal battalion — Hebrews 5:10.
  - f. He was assigned specifically in the pattern of Melchizedek to prove that the priesthood of which we are a part is infinitely superior to the Levitical priesthood. g) He was appointed with two immutable things — Hebrews 7:21.
11. The royal priesthood of the Church Age includes every believer. You and I are a kingdom of royal priests, now and forever. Our royalty depends upon God's perfect plan, upon the work of Jesus Christ on the cross, and the baptizing ministry of God the Holy Spirit which puts us in the royal palace forever — 1Peter 2:5,9; Revelation 1:6; 5:10; 20:6.
  12. The purpose of the royal priesthood in time is to reach supergrace, the tactical victory of the angelic conflict — Hebrews 6:17–20.
  13. The function of the royal priesthood is delineated in Hebrews 13.

We start v. 1 Sunday morning.

1972 Hebrews 7:1 Gen. 14:1-24

Lesson #75

75 09/02/1973 Hebrews 7:1; Gen. 14:1-24 Superiority of royalty; Melchizedek not a theophany

Chapter 7 is outlined.

1. The superiority of the Melchizedek battalion — verses 1–10.
2. The inferiority of the Levitical battalion — verse 11–19.
3. The superiority of the royal priesthood in the Church Age — verses 20–28.

We begin by seeing the superiority of our priesthood from the standpoint of royalty.

There Are Three References to Melchizedek in the Bible.

1. The historical reference is found in Genesis chapter fourteen,
2. the prophetic reference in Psalm 110:4,
3. and the doctrinal reference in Hebrews chapter seven. Our passage in Hebrews chapter seven deals with the doctrinal implications of the life of Melchizedek.

Heb 7:1 For this Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the Most High God, met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings and blessed him,...

Verse 1 — the conjunction “For”, which is gar, is used to explain the fact that there have been many priesthoods in human history. Three of them were bona fide and authorized by God. But out of all of the priesthoods which have been functional in human history only one of them is meaningful today and forever at the same time.

“this Melchizedek” — the word “this” is a demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], it is used to indicate that he will be the subject, along with others, in the next few verses. Houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] also places a very special emphasis on Melchizedek as being unique in the day in which he lived. The uniqueness in the day in which he lived overflows into the uniqueness of the person of Christ both being in the same battalion. “Melchizedek” in the Greek is Melxisedek. In the Hebrew the compound words are “king” and “righteousness.”

“king of Salem” — the Greek words here, basileus (βασιλεύς) [pronounced bahs-ee-loose], and Salhm, indicates a bona fide historical person. Basileus (βασιλεύς) [pronounced bahs-ee-loose], incidentally, refers always to a human being, it is a king from the standpoint of being a member of the human race. In other words, Melchizedek is an actual historical character, not a theophany. Salem is an actual place.

Melchizedek is not a theophany

Theophanies refer to the appearances of the Lord Jesus Christ in the Old Testament. In addition to theophanies we also have Christophanies which are appearances of the Lord Jesus Christ after His resurrection. There are six reasons why Melchizedek is not a theophany.

1. First of All, Theophanies Are Never Given Formal Names. Melchizedek Is Very definitely a formal name.
2. Theophanies are never mentioned with specific geographical locations, like Salem.
3. Theophanies always disclose God as the messenger. In the case of Melchizedek he is not so indicated in the historical, doctrinal, or any other passage connected with him.
4. The content of Psalm 110:4 indicates that Melchizedek is a genuine historical person. Christ is addressed by God the Father, He does not say to Christ, “You are Melchizedek”, He says “You are a priest after the classification” [or the battalion] of Melchizedek.” Christ is not addressed as Melchizedek because Christ is not Melchizedek and because Melchizedek is not Jesus Christ.
5. A priest by very Biblical definition must be true humanity to represent the human race before God. Melchizedek was functioning as a priest when he met Abraham therefore he had to be a member of the human race. The fact that Melchizedek was a king without genealogy forms the pattern for the royal priesthood in the Church Age. Every believer in the Church Age is spiritual royalty based upon spiritual birth. It is true that in the Old Testament people were saved in exactly the same way, by believing in Christ as He was revealed. And at the time of salvation God the Father gave to each believer +R and justified him. So one of the ministries in salvation in the Old Testament was justification from God the Father. God the Holy Spirit regenerated the person simultaneously. So we can say that at least five things occurred when any person believed in Christ in the Old Testament times.
6. By way of contrast, the Church Age dramatically and suddenly interrupted the Jewish Age. In this interruption God the Holy Spirit does something that He has never done before. The baptism of the Holy Spirit enters every believer into union with Christ. Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father. This makes Him a member of the royal family of God instead of simply a member of the family of God. The Holy Spirit indwells: the sign of royalty. The Holy Spirit seals: security for royalty. The Holy Spirit provides a spiritual gift which is the function of royalty. All of these things add up to the fact that for the first time, and the only time in history, we have a spiritual royalty that exists forever. None of that was true, even of people who were kings, in the Old Testament. For example, we have David who was born again. His function in life was king, he was a ruler. Yet he is not a member of the royal family of God. He is a member of the family of God but he is not in the palace. Cyrus, king of Persia, a Gentile believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. He was born a king and was one of the greatest kings of the ancient world. Yet he is not a member of the royal family.

7. Melchizedek was a true historical person rather than a theophany. As an historical person he was a royal priest, therefore a pattern and an illustration of the present priesthood of the Church Age. With the royal priest it makes no difference who your father is, who your mother is, your birth certificate, your death certificate, or an other factor; ours is not royalty by heritage, ours is royalty by regeneration. So we have an eternal royalty, an eternal nobility. The pattern and the illustration which is used is Melchizedek. But more important than that, Melchizedek as a member of the royal priesthood had an encounter with Abraham who is not only a family high priest as a patriarch but was also the source of the Levitical priesthood. Therefore, in their historical meeting whatever occurred is significant as far as the superiority of royalty is concerned.

Notice that he is called “king of Salem.” Salem is the ancient city of Jerusalem. The name means “city of peace.” It was always a warlike city and therefore had a good name. If you want to have peace the best way to have it is through a strong military. The people who occupied this city had the best military in the world and therefore had peace most of the time. It was not until David’s day that Jerusalem was even captured, and that was nearly five hundred years after the Jews entered the land. The is called the city of peace not to cater to the bleeding hearts but because it is always the strong military that keeps the freedom of such a city protected.

Melchizedek was a royal priest and therefore the battalion derives its name from him. It is known as the Melchizedek battalion. He is called a “priest of the most high God”, which indicates a number of things. First of all, he was born again, he was a believer. He was appointed by God. He was a Gentile. There were no Jews in the world at this time and the only thing that represents the Levitical priesthood is also a Gentile by the name of Abraham who at 99, the point of his circumcision, would become the first Jew. Melchizedek was a king and had political power; he was a believer and had great spiritual power.

“met Abraham” — “met” is an aorist active participle of sunantáō (συναντάω) [pronounced soon-ahn-TAH-oh], a constative aorist that gathers up into one historical meeting all that occurred between Melchizedek and Abraham. This took a little time, at least a few hours, and therefore the constative aorist gathers up into one entirety everything that occurred in that historical meeting. The active voice: Melchizedek produced the action of the verb. He was the aggressor, the one who went to meet Abraham. Abraham had just won some great spiritual victories as well as military victories, and he was still very vulnerable. We are very vulnerable to defeat after great victories. Abraham had just won the greatest spiritual victory of his life to that point and was now very vulnerable to defeat. Therefore Melchizedek aggressively came to his rescue. The participle has antecedent action to the main verb which is found in verse two — “Abraham gave”.

At this point we have another participle, “returning” — the present active participle of hupostrophô (ὑποστρέφω) [pronounced hoop-os-TREF-oh], and aoristic present which expresses the idea of a present fact without reference to progress. It is called punctiliar action in present time. The active voice: Abraham produced the action of the verb, he is coming back from a military victory. The participle is circumstantial, and the circumstantial participle is followed by words which describe his success. Notice how it is emphasized. Although tactically Abraham was very successful, even though he won a battle, in winning a battle, in winning peace, in delivering people from the aggrandizement of a great dictator, notice what is mentioned. You must slaughter the enemy! That is exactly what is mentioned — “from the slaughter”, the preposition apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of koph, and koph is a very strong word. It means that so many of the enemy were slaughtered that never again will they return to disturb the peace of that area.

“of the kings” refers here to a confederation of kings. The kings themselves were not slaughtered but their armies were.

“and blessed him” — “bless” is the aorist active participle of eulogeō (εὐλογέω) [pronounced you-lohg-EH-oh]. In other words, here is a man who has come back from winning a great victory, and in winning this great victory he is now vulnerable. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist which views the event in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results. The active voice: Melchizedek, a royal high priest, produced the action of the verb indicating his superiority over Abraham at a time of Abraham’s great spiritual victory. That is the implication of the active voice. Melchizedek was superior to Abraham as a believer, he was a great king and also a great military leader. Abraham has just emerged a military leader but Melchizedek was spiritually and every other way superior to Abraham, and was and always will be. It is the superior who ministers spiritual things to the inferior.

Gen 14:1 In the days of Amraphel king of Shinar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of Elam, and Tidal king of Goiim,...

Translation of verse 1 — “For this Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the most high God, the one having met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, the one having blessed him.”

All of this is amplified in detail in the fourteenth chapter of Genesis. It gives us the historical incident. Some things are not clear unless we are first of all familiar with Genesis 14 where we have Abraham’s four great victories. In verse 1 all of the men were those who had great kingdoms at the time and they form a combination. The warfare of this chapter is no small time operation, it was a large scale military expedition under the command of Chedorlaomer and when Abraham entered Canaan Chedorlaomer had already conquered the Jordan valley and had subjected it to tribute. When these cities of the valley revolted a military expedition went into Palestine under the command of Chedorlaomer, king of Elam. It would seem from the structure of the language that the king of Shinar occupied first place as far as bringing troops was concerned. The “kingdom of nations” is simply Galilee with larger boundaries, the country north of Jerusalem.

Gen 14:2 ...these kings made war with Bera king of Sodom, Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, Shemeber king of Zeboim, and the king of Bela (that is, Zoar).

Verse 2 — “these made war.” The word “made” is the qal perfect of asah which means they manufactured war, and this is a very important concept. It means to manufacture something out of something, and these kings manufactured war out of their mental attitude sin, out of their old sin nature. And this gives us a great commentary on the source of war. War will always exist until the second advent of Christ. Jesus said “there will be wars and rumours of wars until I come”. People are always going to manufacture an excuse for war, and in verse 2 it says they manufactured war —

“with Bera, king of Sodom, and with Birsha, king of Gomorah, Shinab, king of Admah, and Shemeber, king of Zeboim, and the king of Bela, which is Zoar.”

Disarmament and the National Council of Churches has led to the abuse and destruction of others. This keeps the United States from acting where we could.

Gen 14:3 And all these joined forces in the Valley of Siddim (that is, the Salt Sea).

Verse 3 — “All these were joined to gather in the vale of Siddim.” When it says they “were joined together” it is the qal perfect of chabar and it means they have formed their battle in that area. Chabar is actually the Hebrew word for tactical disposition in the face of the enemy. So we now have forming up a tactical situation, a group of kings under Chedorlaomer about to attack in the vale of Siddim those who have come out to defend the Jordan valley which is now covered mostly by the Dead Sea.

Gen 14:4 Twelve years they had served Chedorlaomer, but in the thirteenth year they rebelled.

What had happened to bring on this battle? Verse four begins retrospective disposition. “Twelve years they served Chedorlaomer.” The word abadh means to be the slaves, but not in the sense that we understand slavery. It means slavery in the sense that they paid tribute, they paid for protection. Then it says that in the thirteenth year they started a revolution — maradh.

Gen 14:5 In the fourteenth year Chedorlaomer and the kings who were with him came and defeated the Rephaim in Ashteroth-karnaim, the Zuzim in Ham, the Emim in Shaveh-kiriathaim, Verse 5 — “and smote”. First of all, they didn’t go and attack the Jordan valley. All around the Jordan valley are some beautiful and high mountains, and in these mountains lived the giants. They attacked these giants, “the Rephaim ... and the Zuzim ... the Emim”, all races of giants that lived at that time. And notice it says he “smote” them, the hiphil imperfect of nacha means that he drove them back into the mountains. The hiphil stem means that he caused them to be slaughtered. Even though they were giants, even though they were strong, they could not hold up against a good military organization. Chedorlaomer leads a well-trained, well-disciplined military organization and well-trained military types can handle the strong man every time. This was a warn-up for the battle of the vale of Siddim.

Gen 14:6 and the Horites in their hill country of Seir as far as El-paran on the border of the wilderness.

Verse 6 — the Horites were also giants and they, too, were defeated.

Gen 14:7 Then they turned back and came to En-mishpat (that is, Kadesh) and defeated all the country of the Amalekites, and also the Amorites who were dwelling in Hazazon-tamar.

The cities being discussed today are under the Dead Sea.

Verse 7 — “And they returned”, the qal imperfect of shu which means gradually they pulled the various segments of this army together. The army had been broken up into many organizations, had gone out and conquered the various giants, and so on. Now they secured all of the flanks in the valley they were about to attack. This shows that Chedorlaomer and his military organization were very wise when it came to tactical situations.

Gen 14:8 Then the king of Sodom, the king of Gomorrah, the king of Admah, the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (that is, Zoar) went out, and they joined battle in the Valley of Siddim

Verse 8 — the five kings of the five cities made their tactical disposition in the vale of Siddim. This is one of the first gigantic military enterprises recorded in history. This occurred between 2100 and 2000 BC. The spiritual as well as the military implications of this battle are absolutely fantastic. There are some other implications, too, that might be mentioned. In verse 10 “the vale of Siddim” was full of slime pits. The words “slime pits” means pits of asphalt. In other words, oil was practically on top of the ground in this portion of the middle east.

The War of the Vale of Siddim

1. The vale of Siddim was a very beautiful green valley which later became the Salt Sea and the Dead Sea. The destruction of Sodom, Gomorah, and these five cities by God actually led to the removal of this valley.
2. Chedorlaomer used great military wisdom in first of all securing all of his flanks.

3. The Horites were cave dwellers who were later exterminated by the Edomites.
4. Notice that after extensive conquests in the area of Abraham, while all of the flanks were secured one was not. Abraham was actually on the flank rear of Chedorlaomer's army as it reassembled.
  - a. This tells us something. God is protecting Abraham. His territory was completely surrounded by this great invading army but it was not invaded. We have the principle of the wall of fire.
  - b. There was no reason why Abraham was not rolled up like a mat.
  - c. Another principle: Jesus Christ controls history.
5. The line of march was from the north, around the east to Edom, and then to the vale of Siddim. They did not march directly through Abraham's country.
6. After plundering all the tribes east and west of the Aribah the gave battle to the kings of the five cities in the vale of Siddim. The king of Sodom is the ruler of that group.
7. The valley is filled with asphalt pits. Manoeuvrability is very difficult and the asphalt pits will make retreat impossible. So the king of Sodom is typical of the degradation of Sodom, typical of any society that permits any type of homosexuality. This society destroys itself, and he didn't have any more sense than to pick a battlefield filled with asphalt pits where he could neither manoeuvre nor retreat.
8. The battle was won by Chedorlaomer. We read in verses 11 and 12 — “And they took all the goods of Sodom and Gomorah, and all their food, and went their way. And they took Lot, Abram's brother's son, who dwelt in Sodom, with all of his goods and departed.” Note that Lot is a reversionistic believer who has chosen to live in this area, and has chosen on the basis of human viewpoint. So we have the plundering of Sodom, the first consequence of Lot's human viewpoint choice in reversionism.
9. Abraham's choice of faith protected him completely from the invasion of Chedorlaomer. He was completely bypassed.
  - a. Principle: Jesus Christ controls history.
  - b. Principle: There is a wall of fire around Abraham.
  - c. Lot's choice of sight rather than faith cost him every materialistic possession at this particular point.

This is the background for Genesis 14:13–24 where Abraham demonstrates four great victories. The first victory is found in verses 13 and 14. It is the victory of mental attitude, the victory of Bible doctrine in the soul to the extent that Abraham was not one of those I-told-you-so types. He was not a gloater. Lot had made his own trouble and produced his own misery but we do not find Abraham as a gloater at this time.

Gen 14:13 Then one who had escaped came and told Abram the Hebrew, who was living by the oaks of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol and of Aner. These were allies of Abram.

Verse 13 — “And there came one who had escaped.” In the Hebrew we have the qal imperfect of bo plus hapalut. Hapalut means someone who is a fugitive who has escaped with his life but is not even secure in his health. He is a desperate man, one who manage to evade all of the asphalt pits and get completely away, and apparently he was someone related to Lot — a servant of some kind — and someone who also knew Abraham and chose to go with Lot rather than Abraham. So we have “the fugitive”, as he is called. At one time in his life he could have stayed with Abraham or he could go with Lot. He had free will, he had volition, and he went off with Lot into the beautiful green valley, into the place of Funsville, into the place which represent the concept of a frantic search for happiness. He went off into reversionism with Lot and he, too, laughed at Abraham and ridiculed Abraham for living where he lived. But when disaster hit he remembers Abraham, the man who was positive toward doctrine, someone who was on the right track. Therefore, where does he go when he has nothing left, when his life is in danger, when he is fleeing for his life? The fugitive goes to Abraham.

“and told Abram” — the word “told” is the hiphil of nagadh. It means he was forced to tell all. In the hiphil stem, the causative active voice, means that there was no place else to go. He was forced — it was almost like compulsion — to run and tell Abraham what had happened. Remember that from the human viewpoint Abraham can do nothing. This is a large army and Abraham does not have any such army. The fugitive knows that but he is desperate, he has escaped, he knows there is nowhere else to go. When the chips are down and the pressure is on people always come to the believer who has demonstrated stability and divine power for the crisis. Men often laugh at the strong believer, until the emergency. In times of distress people always come to the one who is in doctrine, who has stability, who is moving toward supergrace or is in the supergrace life.

Notice the testimony of Abraham — “Abram the Hebrew”. Hebrew simply means to cross over the river, it is not the word for the Jew. The Jew comes at age 99. This is Abraham, the one who crossed over the river. He crossed the Euphrates to live in this land.

This may give us a clue as to how this name came to be assigned to the Hebrew people.

“for he dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite.” He was actually living in a valley which belonged to Mamre the Amorite, “the brother of Eschol, the brother of Aner: and these were confederate with Abram” — they had a treaty with him. They were also coverts of Abram and at this particular point they are his very good friends. He has rejected Sodom. Lot wanted to go to Sodom and have a good social life. Abram stayed back in the hills and God brought to him a wonderful social life. These three people, under the tutelage of Abram, are wonderful people. They are Amorites which is a synonym today for decadence, but at this time they were wonderful friends. Abram stayed where he was, God provided him some wonderful friends.

Gen 14:14 When Abram heard that his kinsman had been taken captive, he led forth his trained men, born in his house, 318 of them, and went in pursuit as far as Dan.

Verse 14 — “Abram heard” — the qal imperfect of shama. In this chapter Abraham is a great man. He hasn’t reached supergrace but he is positive and he is on his way. He doesn’t ridicule, he doesn’t even stop for one minute to criticize Lot — no judging, no gloating, no callousness, no indifference. He is not doing anything that is negative. This is the attitude of grace found in Galatians 6:1,9-10. Abraham under doctrine is only concerned about Lot. So the first victory of Abraham is the victory of Bible doctrine in his soul, a mental attitude free from mental attitude sin. He is not bitter or vindictive or implacable, jealous or gloating, or any of the things that characterize the petty person.

The second victory is a victory in battle. The first was a spiritual victory of mental attitude, the second is the battle victory of Abraham in verses 15 and 16.

In verse 14 — “And when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive” — he has heard what had happened. This is not quite a correct translation — “had been captured” is the niphil perfect of shabah, and it indicates that there will be dire results.

“he armed his trained servants” — wrong, he did not arm his trained servants. The hiphil of ruq means he led out his trained servants. Ruq doesn’t mean to arm them, it means they are already armed, they are already trained. They are under arms and he merely leads them out. The invasion of Chedorlaomer has put Abraham on alert. Abraham believed in universal military training and he had trained everyone in his household — 318, not the entire army but all the people who worked for Abraham; and everyone had some military training, everyone was prepared, everyone knew his equipment, and they were pulled together for battle. He led them out.

“and pursued them all the way to Dan” — the word “pursued” tells us a great deal, especially in the imperfect tense. It means first of all they had to locate the enemy. This means that they had some people to go out on reconnaissance. Once they located the enemy then they had to determine the direction the enemy was going, find out the exact force of the enemy, how they were operating as far as moving from point A to point B. All of these things they learned very rapidly so that Abraham in verse 15 makes a decision. And this is a tremendous bit of moral courage. With possibly only as many as 1500 men he is about to launch an attack on anywhere from 50–100,000 men. He is greatly outnumbered.

Gen 14:15 And he divided his forces against them by night, he and his servants, and defeated them and pursued them to Hobah, north of Damascus.

Verse 15 — “He divided himself against them.” This is a reflexive niphil of chalaq and it doesn’t mean that he divided himself, it really means that he separated his force into groups to attack from various points. He is going to make a night attack. It is interesting that here after a great battle we have a column moving toward Damascus. This is a long column, they are carrying a lot of booty, a lot of prisoners, so they are stretched out. Abraham makes a reconnaissance up and down the column. he is not dividing himself against a concentrated force, he is dividing himself against a column in order to recover a segment of the column, e.g. where Lot is. They are strung out; Abraham has darkness and concentration, so he has everything going for him tactically — surprise, cover of darkness, and concentration. These things make a great deal of difference because now he is going to have his second victory, he is going to win the battle.

“and smote them” — the word “smote” is the hiphil imperfect of nakah which means he slaughtered them. It doesn’t do any good to talk over a table, you talk over the dead bodies of the enemy. Notice that he not only “smote” them but he pursued them.

It does no good to talk over a table; you talk over the dead bodies of the enemy.

Gen 14:16 Then he brought back all the possessions, and also brought back his kinsman Lot with his possessions, and the women and the people.

A victory must be followed by pursuit. Why pursuit? Because those you don’t kill you must scare to death.

Verse 16 — “he brought back”, the hiphil perfect of shub, literally, “he caused to return”. He caused through military action, military training. Notice the principles. God protected Abraham because Jesus Christ controls history, but when the crisis came Abraham became aggressive. And when Jesus Christ controls history and Bible doctrine controls a man in history that man becomes aggressive. He went after the enemy and he used his head. He “caused to return all of the goods”, the materialistic things. Great wealth is implied in the word “goods”; “he also caused to return again” — we have shub again, in the hiphil perfect — “his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people.” This is success; this is victory. Abraham has just had two great victories.

Bob made a point that you do not teach one-on-one. But you witness one-on-one.

Now Abraham is stimulated and he is in great danger for he has just seen more wealth than he has ever seen. The Jordan valley and the five city states were very concentrated in wealth, so we have in verses 17–23, Abraham’s third victory.

3 Victories

1. In the first victory Abraham was the aggressor in that he refused to enter into mental attitude sins. He refused to criticize, he refused to gloat, he refused to run down Lot for his very own decision. That is grace.
2. But the second victory was one of his own military training. Like all good Chaldeans Abraham somewhere had a good military background, and he had been faithful in training his men. But now he is very vulnerable to losing the power, the dynamics of the first two victories, and this is where Melchizedek is coming into the picture, at the time when Abraham needed him the most.

Notice that Abraham has three great friends, all Amorites — Aner, Mamri, Eschol. Now they cannot help Abraham any more because while they are born-again believers they are baby believers, they do not have enough doctrine. Now someone greater than Abraham, a human being, must come into his life. And someone greater than Abraham must minister to him in spiritual things.

Gen 14:17 After his return from the defeat of Chedorlaomer and the kings who were with him, the king of Sodom went out to meet him at the Valley of Shaveh (that is, the King's Valley).

Verse 17 — the attack of the king of Sodom. “And the king of Sodom went out to meet him.” Notice that the king of Sodom did not get caught. He was a fugitive too. The king of Sodom went one way, another fugitive came to Abraham. “Went out” is the qal imperfect of jatsa, which means aggressive action. Notice that when the king of Sodom sees all of this wealth coming back sees a chance to recoup. He is going to go out to make a deal with Abraham. The king of Sodom has nothing but he is going to try to get his people back and give Abraham the wealth, and he is going to immediately by his own ability make himself greater than Abraham. His plot is to make himself greater than Abraham to rob Abraham of the victory by coming out with a deal. He will give Abraham all of the wealth which will make Abraham the greatest man in the world, but he will keep them people. He will tell the people, “I made Abraham wealthy.” In this way he will make himself superior to Abraham and eventually recoup that wealth as well. So it is a Satanic device. Here is a man who is going to try to make himself greater than Abraham. But here comes a man also a king, the equivalent of the king of Sodom in that he is a king but he is greater than Abraham. So a person truly greater than Abraham is going to come at this point and save his neck spiritually.

Gen 14:18 And Melchizedek king of Salem brought out bread and wine. (He was priest of God Most High.)

Verse 18 — Melchizedek to the rescue. “Melchizedek, king of Salem, brought.” He, too, jatsa’d but in the hiphil. In other words, when the king of Sodom — qal stem for jatsa — advanced aggressively to attack, Melchizedek also was caused to advance aggressively to protect Abraham. Why? Because Melchizedek was a spiritual giant, he was a supergrace high priest.

“with bread and wine because [not “and”] he was the priest of the most high God” — the most high God is Jesus Christ. He represents the Lord Jesus Christ.

Principles in this Victory

1. This battle is a second battle — the battle of the two kings. Abraham is out of it. This is the king of Sodom versus Melchizedek. It is almost as if they are battling for the soul of Abraham.
2. The king of Sodom — Satan’s representative — came to rob Abraham of the victory of grace.
3. If the king of Sodom can make the motive of Abraham appear to be desire for the spoils of battle then Satan can still win by obscuring the grace issue.

4. Furthermore, everyone will give the king of Sodom credit for enriching Abraham, and with the people under his command he will regain the wealth. The king of Sodom is brilliant when it comes to politics, perception and intrigue. Beware of the intriguer.
5. God's matchless grace is manifest at this point. Abraham receives reinforcement in the form of a royal priest.
6. We are most vulnerable to defeat after great victory. Abraham is no exception.
7. Melchizedek arrives at the scene to help Abraham resist the devil's counterattack. The timing is perfect.
8. Melchizedek did not arrive while Abraham was talking with the escapee or while Abraham was attacking or pursuing. He arrived after the victory was secure. This is the key time that Abraham needed him.
9. Melchizedek came on the scene while the more deadly enemy, the king of Sodom, pursued Abraham. In other words, God sent Melchizedek when he was needed most. Neither the 318 trained men nor his confederates can protect Abraham. He needs someone greater than himself.

Principle: There will be a time in your life when you face a spiritual crisis or a spiritual attack, and into your life will come someone greater than you are spiritually, and that person will save your neck just as Melchizedek saved Abraham's.

Gen 14:18 And Melchizedek king of Salem brought out bread and wine. \(He was priest of God Most High.\)

Verse 18 — Melchizedek comes to the rescue; verse 19 — the spiritual administration of blessing. Notice that he did not tell Abraham, "Don't". He gave Abraham certain things representative of certain doctrines, he brought Abraham's focus away from wealth and frantic search for happiness and brought it back to the thing that really counts, occupation with the person of Jesus Christ.

Gen 14:19 And he blessed him and said, "Blessed be Abram by God Most High, Possessor of heaven and earth;

Verse 19 — "He blessed him", the piel imperfect of barak. This goes with the aorist participle eulogēō (εὐλογέω) [pronounced you-lohg-EH-oh]. The piel stem in the Hebrew is very intensive and it indicates the fact that he taught him some doctrine as well as administering bread and wine, and in this whole factor — the teaching plus the administration of the elements — took Abraham's eyes off of the wealth and back on to the Lord. Abraham needed to be taught and Melchizedek became his teacher on this occasion. This is a case of where he taught him once and this saved everything for Abraham.

"of the most high God" is literally, "From the most high God," who is Jesus Christ, "possessor of heaven and earth."

Gen 14:20 and blessed be God Most High, who has delivered your enemies into your hand!" And Abram gave him a tenth of everything.

Verse 20 — "And blessed be the most high God, who hath delivered thine enemy into thine hand." When he says "delivered" he is using the piel of magak, and by using this particular word he indicates that so far he has been delivered in contact with the enemy. By using magak he indicates that there is a greater enemy, a more subtle enemy, an enemy related to the angelic conflict, an unseen enemy. You see the king of Sodom but you don't see the motivation behind the king of Sodom. You don't know that the king of Sodom is demon possessed, that he is controlled by Satan himself, and that what he proposes is Satanic activity in order to neutralize the victory. In other words, the angelic conflict follows the military conflict.

Therefore, we read "he brought forth bread and wine." He was the priest of the most high God. He says in verse 20, "God has blessed you by delivering you from your enemies." And then we read, "And Abraham gave him tithes of all." The giving of tithes here means the giving of tithes from the top of each pile. He took and gave Melchizedek a portion of each pile of wealth, the top tenth of every pile.

Gen 14:21 And the king of Sodom said to Abram, "Give me the persons, but take the goods for yourself."

We have three things here: bread, wine, and blessing. The bread is analogous to the humanity of Jesus Christ who is being represented. And long before Jesus said, "I am the bread of life; he that cometh unto me shall never hunger," Melchizedek knew Jesus Christ not only as his Savior, but as a supergrace believer he had great appreciation for Christ the bread of life, the basis for his own eternal salvation. The wine is analogous to the priestly function at the altar and refers to the Lord Jesus Christ on the altar of the cross. It speaks of the blood of Christ which cleanses from all sin or the work of Jesus Christ bearing our sins in His own body on the tree.

The bread and the wine would never be used again until the royal priesthood functioned. Bread and wine are always the royal priesthood and when the Church Age interrupts the Age of Israel there are no longer animal sacrifices of the Levitical priesthood so we go back to bread and wine. Bread and wine speak of the work of the Lord Jesus Christ and they are the signs of the royal priesthood only. The Levitical priesthood deals with that which is inferior and animals sacrifices.

The third factor is the blessing. It is the blessing that has the least amount of emphasis for blessing has to do with the communication of Bible doctrine. The blessing brings into focus certain things. We do not have all that Melchizedek but we have a summary. The most high God is Jesus Christ; He has delivered Abraham in battle. He is the possessor of heaven and earth, therefore Abraham does not have to depend upon this money, this wealth that has been recovered, for the Lord Jesus Christ possesses everything. He has for Abraham some wealth of his own which will come along with supergrace. Melchizedek reminds him of God's faithfulness when he says that He has delivered him.

And when he had finished his doctrinal dissertation it was Abraham who gave to him a tenth off of the top of each pile. Therefore Abraham does something else.

First of all, he tithes to Melchizedek. He also now says no to the king of Sodom because he has been given by Melchizedek bread, wine, and blessing [doctrine]. It is the doctrine that causes him to make up his own mind. Melchizedek did not tell him what to do. Melchizedek gave him pertinent doctrine and he took it from there.

Gen 14:22 But Abram said to the king of Sodom, "I have lifted my hand to the LORD, God Most High, Possessor of heaven and earth,

So Melchizedek, in communication Bible doctrine, did not communicate which course to take because he recognized the freedom of Abraham. Melchizedek gave the doctrine, now it is up to Abraham to use it or not to use it. Abraham uses it, for he says in verse 22 to the king of Sodom, "I have lifted up my hand unto the Lord" — the hiphil perfect of rum. "I have been caused", in other words. He was caused or motivated by Bible doctrine. Translation: "I have been motivated to lift up my hand to the Lord, the most high God [Jesus Christ], the possessor of heaven and earth [He owns everything]."

Gen 14:23 that I would not take a thread or a sandal strap or anything that is yours, lest you should say, 'I have made Abram rich.'

Verse 23 — "Therefore I will not take from a thread, even a shoelatchet, and that I will not take anything that is thine, lest thou shouldst say, I have made Abraham rich." That isn't what it says. Abraham said, "Even from a thread, even to a thong [of a sandal]" — he started out by naming the smallest thing of all that was recovered — "Even if I take all which is yours, then you will say, I have caused Abraham to become rich." He absolutely refused to take anything for himself and therefore Abraham won the third great victory.

But there is another victory. People who win victories like this always have a tendency to get self-righteous, and the greatest victory is the last victory. Abraham now has the doctrine to realize, he doesn't need to take anything from anyone. It would neutralize his motivation, it would destroy him. But the fourth victory in verse 24 is fantastic.

Gen 14:24 I will take nothing but what the young men have eaten, and the share of the men who went with me. Let Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre take their share."

Verse 24 — "Save" means except — "only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men which went with me, Aner, Eschol, and Mamre; let them take their portion."

Summary of the Fourth Victory

1. Abraham in self-righteousness and pride could have imposed his own standards of spiritual maturity on his troops, on his new converts, but they are not as advanced as he is in the spiritual life. So therefore, he has higher standards than they have. He will not superimpose his higher standards on them, that is self-righteousness.

2. If Abraham had demanded that they not take any spoils he would have been guilty of pride and self-righteousness. Notice the great wisdom of a man when he gets squared away doctrinally. He was about to lose his doctrinal perspective when Melchizedek came along. And notice the results of Melchizedek's teaching. Abraham sheds his self-righteousness. When you are occupied with the person of Christ you have the highest possible standards without superimposing them in legalism on someone else who does not have the doctrinal moxie to cope. That is the greatest victory of all. He won a great spiritual victory in the field of motivation. You would think this is the peak, but it isn't. It is lack of self-righteousness, the refusal to force his leadership upon these men who do not have the moxie to cope with it.
3. It is a temptation to impose his high standards and spiritual maturity on those who were not ready or could not understand.
4. Abraham recognized the principle, the reimbursement of his 318 servants, and he recognized that he could not impose high spiritual standards on believers who had not had the same doctrinal benefits and who had not reached the same spiritual peak. Therefore he absolutely refused to make any imposition of self-righteousness on these people.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #76

76 09/02/1973 Hebrews 7:2–5 Doctrines of priesthood and tithing

Hebrews 7:1 For this, Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the Most High God, the one having met Abraham, returning from the slaughter of the kings, and the one having blessed him.
R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

He made it possible for the 3rd and 4th victories. Every believer in the Lord Jesus Christ is a member of a perpetual royalty. We are not simply priests, but a member of the royal family of God forever. Not acquired by physical birth or from ability. It is a grace system of royalty. We have the indwelling of the Holy Spirit as a sign of that royalty.

Hebrews 7:2 and to him Abraham apportioned a tenth part of everything. He is first, by translation of his name, king of righteousness, and then he is also king of Salem, that is, king of peace.

Verse 2 — “To whom” is a dative masculine singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç]. Hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç] refers to Melchizedek. It is the dative of indirect object indicating the one in whose interest the action of the verb is performed. Then we have the adjunctive use of kai — “also.” “To whom [Melchizedek] also Abraham” — Abraham the patriarch, Abraham the founder of the Jewish race, Abraham the one who eventually reached supergrace under dramatic conditions.

“gave” — the aorist active indicative of merizw does not mean to give, it means to apportion, and it is keeping with the historical sequence where he took one tenth off of the top of every pile of recovered booty and gave it to Melchizedek. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist used to view the event in its entirety but to regard it from the viewpoint of existing results.

The existing results are very important here because by giving ten per cent of all of the materialistic things recovered, first of all Melchizedek was recognized as the superior one and the one who provided the spiritual blessing and benefit for Abraham. Secondly, Abraham became a citizen of the city state of Salem, which means that Abraham was the original citizen of Jerusalem and on that very spot where he became a citizen — the citizenship of Abraham under the king of Salem. Abraham had no citizenship, he was a man without a country, he had left Ur of the Chaldees, but by paying his taxes to Melchizedek he becomes a citizen of the kingdom of Salem — by paying his taxes Abraham will some day inherit a city from God: the great Salem of all, the Jerusalem coming down out of heaven. Just very near that spot Abraham offered his son Isaac, so the citizenship of Abraham is also involved — every spiritual blessing as well as Abraham's citizenship.

“To whom also Abraham apportioned.” The active voice indicates that Abraham produced the action of the verb. The declarative indicative represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. This is a statement of dogmatic and unqualified assertion. This is a statement whereby Abraham declares two things: a) Melchizedek is superior to him and is a blessing to him spiritually; b) He not only recognizes the priesthood of Melchizedek and the spiritual benefit but he recognizes the kingship of Melchizedek, and he becomes a citizen of the nation of which Melchizedek is the ruler. Remember that Melchizedek is a king high priest and the tithes go to the king; Abraham becomes a citizen of his country. Also, the tithes go to the priest — spiritual benefits. So there are two great principles and they are tied in together — the citizenship of the kingdom of Salem plus the recognition of spiritual benefit from Melchizedek.

Then we have the phrase “A tenth part of all”, from which we get the English word ‘tithe’, for the English word ‘tithing’ means tenth. The Greek here is dekathn apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] pantwn. These are genitives of description as well as the objective genitive. The genitive case is used with nouns of action to become the object rather than the accusative — “tithes from all”. “All” is in the genitive plural to indicate every pile of booty and Abraham went to every pile, took ten per cent off of the top of it, and that went to Melchizedek.

First Summary

1. From the top of every pile of spoils Abraham distributed a tenth to Melchizedek, but he distributed this (under Genesis 14:20) not just to the high priest but to the king priest. Abraham, in this way, is no longer a man without a country. From this point on he is a man with a country. He is a citizen under the rulership of Melchizedek. In that way he recognizes his temporal authority. At the same time he recognizes his spiritual authority because Melchizedek administered to him bread, wine, doctrine.

2. Abraham was peculiar in that he was actually a family priest from the first battalion plus a representative of the second battalion because Levi was in his line. So Abraham himself is in a rather strange situation, he is a third battalion man because he is a family high priest as a patriarch. In his loins, the Levitical priesthood, the second battalion. Therefore, he is a representative of two battalions of the priesthood and he is recognizing the superiority of the first battalion which is the royal priesthood. Remember that Abraham did two things. He first of all became a citizen of Jerusalem, and therefore he is the first alien to do so. He is also the last citizen of Jerusalem in that all of his life as long as he lives, and forever, he is going to live in a tent in time because of his citizenship in Salem. And God will bring down at the beginning of the Millennium the Jerusalem from above which will be suspended over the earth and will be the portion of Abraham forever.
3. In this historical encounter Abraham represents the Levitical priesthood which is part of the new race progeny. Tithing is taxation. Abraham is a citizen paying his taxes. Abraham is waiting for God to fulfill a promise. The new Jerusalem coming down out of heaven.
4. Therefore, tithing to Melchizedek not only means the superiority of the royal priesthood over the family priesthood, but more important, it represents the superiority of the royal priesthood over the Levitical priesthood.
5. Remember that this was a historical meeting between two human beings representing two priesthoods. But that isn't all. Abraham was a patriarch but he had to have a country, he had to recognize temporal authority. Abraham had no temporal authority to recognize until he met Melchizedek. When he met Melchizedek he said this man is my right ruler and I recognize his authority. And by giving him taxes he recognized his authority.
6. The rest of this verse indicates the superiority of even the name of the royal priest over Abraham and the Levitical priesthood. First of all, the name is represented in the Hebrew because the rest of this verse comments on the Hebrew name, deriving certain prophetic implications. The Hebrew name is Malki tzedek, which means "king of righteousness", but it is literally called Melchizedek. Secondly, he is also a temporal ruler, Melek Shalem.

"first" is an adverb prōton (πρῶτον) [pronounced PRO-ton], meaning sequence of enumeration. In other words, the name of the royal priest will be translated and interpreted

Melchizedek Meaning

1. "being by interpretation" is first of all a present passive participle of hermêneúō (ἑρμηνεύω) [pronounced hair-may-NEW-oh], which means to translate, to explain, or to interpret. Here it means to interpret.
2. The translation does not occur in the passive voice. It only means to interpret in the passive voice, so it is translated "first [Melchizedek] when being interpreted." This is the correct translation. Now we get the interpretation of his name from the Hebrew.

3. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs or may be reasonably expected to occur. It is called the present tense of repeated action to denote the consistency of interpretation when Melchizedek was being examined.
4. The passive voice indicates that the name of Melchizedek is being both translated into Greek and at the same time interpreted.
5. The interpretation is obvious. The Greek noun dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay] refers to God's righteousness or +R. The last part of Melchizedek's name is tsedek, and translated into the Greek that is dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā or dik-ah-yos-OO-nay] — "righteousness", so that his name is king of righteousness.
6. There is a definite precedent involved in this passage. Also, the participle is a temporal participle and therefore translated "when being interpreted."
7. While Abraham is born again — Genesis 15:6 — the line of the Levitical priesthood does not depend upon regeneration but depends upon physical birth, human heredity.
8. However, the interpretation of the name Melchizedek indicates the line of the royal priesthood depends upon the new birth and not physical birth or heredity.
9. Levitical priests were sometimes born again and sometimes they were not. The first one, Aaron, was born again. However, all royal priests have to be born again and justified. This, then, is a superiority. This is the superiority brought out by the name Melchizedek.

"king of righteousness, and after that also" — now we have the second superiority in enumeration. The adverb is epeita (ἐπειτα) [pronounced EHP-ī-tah] which denotes a succession. This is the second point brought out in his title. First his name is a point; now his title is a point. His name is a point in that the royal priesthood must have a spiritual heritage rather than a physical heritage, and there is no physical birth that can put you into the royal priesthood. A second point is brought out by the adverb epeita (ἐπειτα) [pronounced EHP-ī-tah]. And this point, along with de, used as a connective particle, kai used as the adjunctive kai, should be translated "and secondly" or "then also."

"king of Salem" — basileus (βασιλεύς) [pronounced bahs-ee-loose], Salhm which is the equivalent of melek Shalem — "which is", the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç] in the nominative neuter, the neuter indicates a point or a principle is brought out, and the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] — "and then also King of Salem, which keeps on being King of Peace" — eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ἡ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay].

What does eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ἡ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay] mean? It means security and tranquillity here. And we have already seen the principle: Why after winning a great victory did Abraham become a citizen of Salem? Because Salem was basing its tranquillity and peace — temporal concept — on strong military. Therefore Abraham with his small military recognized how God had graced him out, but he recognized that he needed to come under the protection of a great military organization. And came under the greatest; a military organization that lasted all of the way until David's time — 1000 years. And even though the land of Palestine was invaded many, many times Jerusalem remained intact as the kingdom of Salem and it was not conquered until David's day by a stronger military. Therefore there was security and tranquillity.

“which being interpreted King of righteousness, and after that also King of Salem” King of righteousness is the spiritual superiority of Melchizedek, king of Salem is the temporal superiority. Abraham paid taxes to the king of Salem because the king of Salem had a strong military and security, and he wanted to become a citizen of a country which followed the principle of the law of divine establishment.

Now look at the principle. On the basis of his name [Melchizedek] he recognized that the doctrine he gave him was the basis of victory. On the basis of the fact that he had just fought and won a victory and he saw that Palestine and the middle east was a hot spot, he also became a citizen. He became a citizen of the city state of Salem. So these two are put in at the end of this verse to indicate the principles of superiority and the concepts by which men live under freedom.

Notice how the verse is translated:

Hebrews 7:2 “To whom also Abraham apportioned a tenth from all the spoils; first [superiority] when Melchizedek being interpreted King of righteousness, and second, [superiority] also King of Salem, which is being interpreted, King of tranquillity and security.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 7:3 He is without father or mother or genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but resembling the Son of God he continues a priest forever.

Verse 3 — the advantages of being Melchizedek. “Without father” — apatôr (ἀπάτωρ) [pronounced ap-AT-ore], means independent of paternal descent. Melchizedek had a father but his father wasn't a king. This goes with the previous verse. He is a king independent of paternal descent. He isn't a king because his father is a king, he is a king because he conquered a kingdom and became a king by his military ability. There is no paternal genealogy recorded for Melchizedek. The royal priesthood battalion does not depend upon physical birth. This is in contrast to the Levitical battalion which is dependent upon recorded genealogy, being able to place one's line and one's descent from Aaron through Eliazar or Ithimar. The only way to qualify for the royal priesthood is through the new birth — regeneration, and the baptism of the Holy Spirit — which only occurs during the Church Age. Therefore, “without father” means without recorded father, not recorded in a genealogy.

“without mother” — amêtôr (ἀμήτωρ) [pronounced am-AY-tore], which means independent of maternal descent. The mother of Melchizedek was not a queen, therefore he did not become a king by inheriting from his mother. He is without recorded pedigree, without genealogical papers, without any genealogy to prove royalty through his mother's side.

“without descent” — a)genaealoghtoj, without any genealogical papers. So literally, “without recorded father, without recorded mother.” He had a mother and father but they are not recorded in royalty tables of genealogy — without genealogical record is the meaning of the Greek word.

“having” — present active participle of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh] plus a negative, mhth a)xh h(merwn refers to a birth certificate, a knowledge of his birthday. The historical record is silent regarding the time of his birth. His priesthood does not depend upon the possession of a birth certificate.

“nor end of life” — we do not have a death certificate so that we can see the perpetuation of his royal line. So literally, “having neither birth certificate nor death certificate.”

“but made like unto” — perfect passive participle a)fwmoiw. This means to produce a copy, to cause to resemble. Here it should be translated “having caused to resemble.” The perfect tense is an intensive perfect, indicating completion of the action with results that continue. Melchizedek will always be a pattern of Jesus Christ. He is not Jesus Christ, he is a pattern of Jesus Christ. By obscuring his parents, his genealogy, his birth, his death, the royal priesthood cannot be related to any human factor related to physical birth. Here is royalty based on spiritual factors alone and not on physical birth.

“having been caused to resemble the Son of God” — causal participle here. He is not the Son of God. This verb is never used for exact likenesses or for anything except resemblance. The Son of God is used for the deity of Christ in hypostatic union with His humanity. Jesus Christ is in the same royal priesthood battalion as Melchizedek.

Now follows bad punctuation in the KJV. It is Jesus Christ who abides perpetually, not Melchizedek — “but having been cause to resemble the Son of God who remains” — the present active indicative of ménô (μένω) [pronounced MEH-noh],. In the English Bibles we have “abides” but it should be translated “remains.” This is a static present tense used to denote a condition or status as perpetually existing. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative, it represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of unqualified assertion. This is a dogmatic principle that not Melchizedek but Jesus Christ is perpetuated as a priest. The Greek noun hierous (ἱερέως) [pronounced hee-er-YOOCE] refers to the humanity of Christ. This is only used of humanity. Son of God is His deity and here is His humanity. So the combination of Son of God and hierous (ἱερέως) [pronounced hee-er-YOOCE] gives us the uniqueness of our high priest, the Lord Jesus Christ.

“continually” is a prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] to diêneces (διηνεκές) [pronounced dee-ah-nehk-EHS]; diêneces (διηνεκές) [pronounced dee-ah-nehk-EHS] means perpetually.

Hebrews 7:3 “Without recorded father, without recorded mother, without genealogical record, having neither birth certificate nor death certificate; having been caused to resemble the Son of God who remains a priest perpetually.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The Lord Jesus Christ remains a priest perpetually, and the Lord Jesus Christ as a priest was a sign to the Melchizedek battalion and there are four areas of His assignment:

The Priesthoods of Jesus Christ

1. Christ is appointed forever in the divine decrees — Hebrews 5:6; 7:17; Psalm 110:4.
2. Christ is appointed to the royal priesthood — Hebrews 5:10.
3. Christ is assigned specifically to the Melchizedek battalion — Hebrews 6:20.
4. The appointment of Christ was made with an immutable divine oath — Hebrews 7:21.

The Doctrine of the Priesthood (Review)

1. A priest is a member of the human race representing the human race. The priest is taken from the male population of the human race, never from angels. He must partake of the nature of the person or persons for whom he acts or officiates or represents. He is a bona fide member of the human race, and this is true of the Lord Jesus Christ — Hebrews 5:1; 7:4,5,14,28; 10:5,10,14.
2. The sphere of priestly function. The priest and the high priest must function in the sphere of spiritual phenomena. Therefore he is appointed for man's benefit in spiritual things. This means the royal priesthood of the Church Age is related to Bible doctrine.
3. The categories of priesthood are three.
  - a. The first battalion: the royal priesthood of which Melchizedek is the stated pattern — Hebrews 7:1–3. Melchizedek was both a king and a priest but without any emphasis on parents, genealogy, birth or death certificates. Melchizedek appeared to Abraham, ministering to him bread and wine, the symbols of Christ's ministry on the cross as well as doctrine, of course. Under the Levitical priesthood the cross was symbolized by animal sacrifices which have been discontinued. But the symbols of the royal priesthood remain — the bread and the wine continue. The office of the royal priesthood is not hereditary but perpetual. The appointment is not related to physical birth but the new birth. The appointment is related to the ministries of God the Holy Spirit at the point of salvation. The appointment is based upon understanding the interruption of the Jewish Age, the doctrine of the mystery, the doctrine of intercalation.
  - b. The second battalion: the Levitical priesthood which began with Aaron, the older brother of Moses. The concept of this priestly ministry of spiritual things is found in Numbers 16:5. They were commissioned, holy, and allowed to "come near," i.e. to approach, the altar. The priesthood was perpetuated through the natural line of Aaron. His older sons Nadab and Abihu lost out as revolutionists. The surviving sons, Eleazar and Ithamar, formed the basis of the Levitical priesthood. Physical defects caused elimination of a priest in this particular line — Leviticus 21:17–21. The Levitical priesthood was supported by 13 Levitical cities — Joshua 21:13–19. They were supported by part of the taxation of the nation, an annual tithe — Leviticus 23:10. Other support came from redemption money of the firstborn — Numbers 18:16. The spiritual phenomena of the Levitical priesthood was limited to shadows — Hebrews 10:1–4.

- c. The third battalion is the family priesthood in which the patriarch of the family functioned as the priest. Illustrations: Adam, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob.
4. The royal high priest of the Church Age.
  - a. Jesus Christ is the royal high priest of the Church Age.
  - b. As such He has fulfilled the first function of the priesthood by offering Himself on the altar of the cross for the sins of the world.
  - c. From this function comes the strategic victory of the angelic conflict: resurrection, ascension, session — Hebrews 19:5–14.
  - d. He was appointed forever under divine decrees — Hebrews 5:6.
  - e. He was appointed to the royal priesthood — Hebrews 5:10.
  - f. he was assigned to the Melchizedek battalion — Hebrews 6:20.
  - g. His appointment was accompanied by the immutable oath, therefore His appointment is under two immutable things — Hebrews 7:21.
5. The royal priesthood of the Church Age follows the royal high priest. You cannot have a high priest without some priests. The high priest is not alone, every believer in the Church Age is a part of the royal priesthood, appointed by the baptism of the Spirit; again, the badge of royalty, the indwelling of the Holy Spirit; the security of royalty, the sealing ministry of God the Holy Spirit; and the apportioning of spiritual gifts is the recognition and guarantee that supergrace is available for all believers — 1Peter 2:5,9; Revelation 1:6; 5:10; 20:6.
6. The purpose of the royal priesthood of the Church Age is to reach the supergrace life — Hebrews 6:17–20; Ephesians 3:17–21; 4:11–16.
7. The function of the royal priesthood is delineated in Hebrews 13.

Hebrews 7:4 See how great this man was to whom Abraham the patriarch gave a tenth of the spoils! ESV

Verse 4 — the superiority of the royal priesthood. “Now” — the transitional use of the particle de. No contrast is intended, we merely go on now from using the name of Melchizedek and his title and seeing their significance as related to tithing or taxation. “Now consider” — the present active imperative of theôreô (θεωπέω) [pronounced theh-oh-REH-oh], from which we get our English word in geometry, “theorem.” It means to observe. The present tense is retroactive progressive present denoting something begun in the past, continued into the present. Again, it is the present tense of duration. For many centuries believers have observed the superiority of the royal priesthood of the Church Age. The active voice: this is a command to all believers of the Church Age to orient to their dispensation, to orient to the supergrace objective, to orient to the angelic conflict; all of these things we orient to by the doctrines of the mystery. The imperative mood: this is a command.

“how great” — this is a correlative pronoun, phlikoj which denotes a geometrical magnitude. it is distinguished from other words which are arithmetical. And this is a geometrical magnitude, so it is an extremely strong word. Used with it is posos (πόσος) [pronounced POHS-oss] which indicates the celebrityship of Jesus Christ from the standpoint of His high priesthood.

“Now consider how distinguished this man” — not correct. We have a demonstrative pronoun used as a substantive, houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. The use of the demonstrative pronoun here is to indicate not only the celebrityship of Jesus Christ but it is used in reference to someone in the context. The best translation is: “how distinguished this one (this celebrity).”

“unto whom” — now we go back to Melchizedek; “the patriarch Abraham” — “gave,” we are coming back to taxation again, ten per cent: aorist active indicative of didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee]. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist in which the event is viewed in its entirety but regarded from the viewpoint of its existing results. The existing results: Abraham paid taxes to Melchizedek, Melchizedek was superior to him in temporal power, in spiritual attainment. The active voice: Abraham produced the action of the verb. We have a declarative indicative for unqualified assertion. It is a fact: Abraham paid taxes to Melchizedek king of Salem. Note that he paid to Melchizedek King of Salem. The name and the title are both involved. The name has to do with the spiritual superiority and the title has to do with temporal superiority, and both are involved.

“the tenth” is the accusative singular with no definite article — dekatoj is the noun, it means a tenth and it is used for a definite taxation. The absence of the definite article, by the way, calls attention to the qualitative aspects of this word. The tithe was given from the best spoils, the top of the pile — recognition of Melchizedek in two areas of life: spiritual and temporal. By tithing Abraham actually became a citizen of Salem, and at the same time he recognized the spiritual benefits of being ministered to by Melchizedek.

“of the spoils” is ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus akrothinion (ἀκροθίνιον) [pronounced ak-roth-IN-ee-on] which has to do with the top of the heap, the best of the spoil, the finest things there.

Hebrews 7:4 “Now observe how distinguished this one to whom Abraham the patriarch had give a tenth from the best part of the booty.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This is a significant act on the part of Abraham recognizing superiority of Melchizedek king of Salem, priest of the most high God. This was Abraham’s positive response to the one who ministered to him in spiritual things — the bread, the wine, the blessing. Notice that Abraham had positive volition, he listened to the teaching of doctrine. He received the bread and wine as administration of the occupation of Christ, the only case we have of anything resembling communion. And it was a bona fide communion because Melchizedek is in the royal priest battalion. Only in the royal priest battalion is communion possible. Positive volition toward doctrine was Abraham’s third victory which resulted in his fourth victory over self-righteousness. This was also response to the kingship of Melchizedek, the tithing came afterward and was a sign of entering into the citizenship of Melchizedek's kingdom.

Hebrews 7:5 And those descendants of Levi who receive the priestly office have a commandment in the law to take tithes from the people, that is, from their brothers, though these also are descended from Abraham.

Verse 5 — the significance of Abraham's tithing. "And verily" — the continuative use of the conjunction kai plus the nominative plural definite article, plus the affirmative particle men. We have a very interesting thing here. This is something that anyone who has ever studied classical Greek will remember — "On the one hand or the other." Whoever wrote Hebrews was a man with a classical Greek education. Whoever this man was he was someone who graduated from the university of Alexandria which was the only classical Greek university in the Roman world. So we have instead of "And verily", "And those indeed" or "On the one hand".

"that are" is not found in the original — "of the sons of Levi" — ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus the ablative plural of huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὅ) [pronounced hwee-OSS] plus Leui for "Levi."

"receive" — present active participle of lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh], and the present tense should be translated "receiving." The present tense is the static present used to represent a condition assumed as perpetually existing. The active voice: the Levitical line of descent from Aaron receives the action of the verb, except for the physical disqualifications listed in Leviticus 21:17–21. The active voice indicates that they receive it and do it. The participle is a circumstantial participle dealing with the office of priesthood. The "office of priesthood" is one word: hierateia (ἱερατεία) [pronounced hee-e-at-Ī-ah], which refers to the actual office of priesthood in contrast to the priest himself.

"have" — present active indicative of echō (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh], "have and keep having". The customary present denotes that which habitually occurs. The active voice: the Levitical priesthood is under the command to collect the taxes (tithes). The indicative mood is declarative indicating it was the job of the Levitical priesthood in Israel to collect the taxes.

"a commandment" — the accusative singular entolē (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY] means this is a part of the Mosaic law. The same law that authorized the Levitical priesthood also authorized its function to collect taxes. The Levitical priesthood not only ministered in the tabernacle, ministered at the altar with the Levitical sacrifices, ministered on the holy days, but they were also the tax collectors.

"to take tithes" is the present active infinitive of the verb apodektō which has to do with collecting a tenth as income tax. The customary present denotes that which always occurs. The active voice: the Levitical priesthood collected taxes. The infinitive: the purpose in which the infinitive is used is to express the action denoted by the finite verb, and therefore we should translate it "have a commandment a tenth."

“of the people” — incorrect. It should be “from the people”.

“according to the law” — kata, the authorizing agent plus nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], a reference to the Mosaic law.

The Doctrine of Tithing

1. Dealing with the pre-Mosaic occurrences. Twice before the Mosaic law tithing is mentioned in the Bible as a system of taxation, related also to spiritual life. The first is where Abraham gave a tenth of the best part of the spoils to Melchizedek — Genesis 14:20; Hebrews 7:2,6. The second was where Jacob, after his vision at Bethel, consecrated ten per cent of his property to God if he returned home safely. Why did he do that? Because Jacob was far from home, and home was the place where he paid his taxes. So he said, “All right God, I’m going to bribe you to get me home. I’ll pay my taxes now, instead of when I get home.”
2. Definition. A tithe was ten per cent of Jewish income tax where both the unbeliever and the believer paid. Abraham as a believer became a citizen of Melchizedek’s kingdom and that’s why he paid ten per cent.
3. The categories of tithing in Israel. a) To the Levites went ten per cent for the maintenance and sustenance of the Levitical priesthood — Numbers 18:20–21, 24; Hebrews 7:5,9. This may seem to authorize a national church. It does not. You must remember that in the previous dispensation it was the Levitical priesthood who handled all of the national holidays. They offered all the sacrifices at every one of the special feasts as well as the feast of the trumpets, on the first day of each month. b) A tenth was to be used for the sacred feasts and sacrifices — Deuteronomy 12:17–19; 14:22–27. Every third year there was a third ten per cent taxation. This was for a charity tax for the poor of the land (This was not welfare, it was charity) — Deuteronomy 14:28,29.
4. Gospel references — Matthew 23:23; Luke 11:42, are illustrative of references to tithing in the Gospels. Whenever you find a reference to tithing in the Gospels it illustrates the distortion of the law through legalism. The references there all have to do with the condemnation of legalism. The Talmud extension of the Mosaic law distorted the entire concept of tithing. The Pharisees at the time of our Lord extended it to the minutest details of life not required by the Mosaic law.
  - a. How apropos to today, where everything is taxed!
5. Tithing is also mentioned in connection with an income tax evasion — Leviticus 27:30–34. This passage forbids the substituting of one animal for another in the payment of tax. The penalty was one fifth more of your income.
6. The perpetuation of the income tax principle is also mentioned in Matthew 22:17–21; Mark 12:13–17, the concept that income tax is a bona fide function.
7. Tithing is not a part of New Testament giving, it has nothing to do with the Church Age. In 1Corinthians 16:1,2 tithing has never been spiritual giving at all in the Church Age. The amount that you give to the local church is strictly between you and the Lord, it does not have to be ten per cent, more or less. Giving is the expression of worship of the royal priesthood and therefore is not related with tithing, and never can be. Why? Because while the priesthood can receive ten per cent it can never give ten per cent to anyone. The royal priesthood is the highest of all priesthoods and as such it never deals in ten per cent. 2Corinthians chapters 8 & 9 has a detailed dissertation on giving for the royal priesthood. Tithing is never mentioned as related to giving in this dispensation.

“that is” — tout estin (ἐστίν) [pronounced ehs-TIN], which is literally, “that is.” Tout estin (ἐστίν) [pronounced ehs-TIN], however, is an explanatory idiom. It is translated literally in the KJV but it is an idiom. Estin (ἐστίν) [pronounced ehs-TIN] is the present active indicative from eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]; tout is from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], and tout estin (ἐστίν) [pronounced ehs-TIN] means to imply something “which implies” literally, instead of “that is.”

“from their brethren” — not “of” but “from.” This refers to their fellow countrymen, their fellow citizens.

“though” is the conjunction kaiper (καίπερ) [pronounced KAH-ee-per], and it means “although, even though.”

“they come out”, or literally, “having come out”, the perfect active participle from exerchomai (ἐξέρχομαι) [pronounced ex-EHR-khoh-mai]. The perfect tense is intensive, indicating that even though the Jews of the nation of Israel had the same kind of descent as the Levitical priesthood they still pay their taxes to their own fellow countrymen, they pay their taxes to the Levitical priesthood. The active voice: The Jewish people, regardless of their tribe, must pay taxes to the Levitical priesthood. Which means that the Levitical priesthood is regarded superior to the other Jews in the nation. Which means there is no such thing as equality in any nation. The participle is a concessive participle conceding the fact that the people who pay tithes to Levi have the same common origin as Abraham; they are of the same race — Jews; they are of the same nation — Israel, but they are inferior in that they pay taxes to the Levitical priesthood. That is why throughout the history of Israel the Mosaic law set up a system to pay taxes to the Levitical priesthood, because the Levitical priesthood was regarded as superior to the rest and the inferior pays the tithes to the superior.

“of the loins” — the preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus the ablative of of)sfuoj, which refers to seed — the reproductive organs, not the loins.

Hebrews 7:5 And those indeed from the sons of Levi, receiving their priestly office, have a commandment to collect a tenth from the people according to the law, that is, from their fellow countrymen, even though having come out of the genitals of Abraham.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Comparing Priesthoods

The implications of this verse are endless.

1. This verse settles a very important concept of our society or country, i.e. there never was and never will be equality among people of the same race in the same nation.
2. Those who minister spiritual things provide maximum benefit to their recipients, and even though the recipients are the same race and have a common ancestry the spiritual is superior to the temporal — 2Corinthians 4:16–18.
3. Those who minister spiritual things to the people should be supported by those to whom they minister. Principle: the inferior supports the superior — Hebrews 7:7. The application to this in the passage is quite obvious. The Levitical priesthood was superior to the rest of the people by divine appointment in the Mosaic law.
4. The conclusion: All people of the same race, same background, same heritage, same nation, are not born equal.
5. Those who have the same parents, grandparents, and are related in common ancestry, are not born equal. The only exception to this rule is found in the royal priesthood of the Church Age, and in the royal priesthood when you believed you entered into the priesthood of equality, the royal priesthood. You are equal to all royal priests and superior to everything else in the devil's world — by divine appointment, not by action.
6. All believers regenerated in the Church Age have received simultaneously with regeneration the baptism of the Holy Spirit by which they are entered into the palace, the indwelling of the Holy Spirit which is the sign of royalty, the sealing of the Spirit which is the security and perpetuation of royalty, and the spiritual gift for the function of royalty.
7. The Lord Jesus Christ is eternal royalty. The body of Christ is His right woman and His royal family.
8. Here again there is a some grace in equality. Some male believers at the point of salvation receive the gift of pastor-teacher, a sovereign and grace gift from the Holy Spirit. The function of this gift possesses supreme authority over the local church and becomes the basis for all believers reaching supergrace.
9. Returning to the context, this verse prepares the way for the next one where the royal priesthood is declared to be superior to the Levitical priesthood, still in the genitals of Abraham, but represented by Abraham on this historic occasion. Even though the Levitical priesthood is superior to the rest of Israel, everyone who is born again today is a member of a priesthood which is infinitely superior, perpetually superior to the Levitical priesthood of the previous dispensation. Death terminated the function of that priesthood. Death does not stop us, we go right on in our priesthood.
10. Melchizedek whose genealogy is not traceable received tithes from Abraham whose genealogy is traceable. Melchizedek is superior to Abraham as demonstrated by the historic occasion. The royal priesthood of the Church Age is superior to the Levitical priesthood of Israel. Abraham was a citizen of Salem as a result of the action in this particular verse. Chapter 7:6–9

Hebrews 7:6 But this man who does not have his descent from them received tithes from Abraham and blessed him who had the promises.

Verse 6 — “But” is the conjunctive particle de used to set up a contrast; “he whose descent is not counted” is a present passive participle from genealogew. The word means to have his genealogy traced, and with the negative here we have a static present tense representing a condition which never exists and never will exist. The passive voice: Melchizedek receives the action of the verb by not having his genealogy traced from Israel. The participle is circumstantial expressing an attendant set of circumstances or an additional fact that there is no relationship between Melchizedek and the Levitical priesthood; that in effect the Levitical priesthood was always subordinated to the Melchizedek type.

“from them” — the preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus the ablative of autos. This refers to the Levitical priesthood; “received tithes” — the perfect active indicative of dekatê (δεκάτη) [pronounced dehk-AT-ay], indicating that Abraham tithed to Melchizedek. This is how he became a member of his kingdom. The perfect tense is a dramatic perfect. A dramatic perfect is a very rare type of Greek idiom, it actually has a rhetorical application to the perfect tense. It means that since the perfect tense represents an existing state it may be used for the purpose of describing the fact of that state in a very dramatic or vivid way. It is the same concept as the historical present or the dramatic aorist, only it is stronger. It is like the intensive perfect in that it emphasizes the results of the action but it is actually a rhetorical use of the intensive perfect. Therefore this is very, very strong. In other words, it sets a precedent; it stands forever, it will never be changed. Once Abraham became a citizen of Salem, from that moment on always, invariably, the Levitical priesthood — was subordinate to the royal priesthood. Abraham entered into the citizenship because he was benefitted. This is the first time that he had ever been benefitted by another country, and the ruler of that country Melchizedek, a royal priest forever, was beneficial to him spiritually. Abraham finally joined something because of the spiritual benefit and because here was the first time he had ever seen a country which actually had establishment. When Abraham left Ur of the Chaldees he was a man without a country, and he continued to be a man without a country until he became a citizen of Salem. As a citizen of Salem he lived in a tent all of his life because God promised this citizen of Salem that he would have a city forever, and that city will be given to him at the end of the Millennium. It is the new Jerusalem that will come down out of heaven. That is the personal property of Abraham and that will be the payoff of his citizenship. What happens in time has eternal repercussions, that is what this dramatic perfect is saying. The most obvious illustration is the fact that you believed in the Lord Jesus Christ.

This meeting was one of the most dramatic meetings in history because of the results in heaven. Always, the Levitical priesthood is subordinate to the royal priesthood. While the royal priest approached Abraham with symbols, the bread and the wine, these symbols represent a tremendous reality and they are never considered to be shadows. When we gather around the communion table we partake of the bread and the cup. These are not shadows to us, we are looking back to the reality of the cross. The bread and the wine were never said to be shadows but all of the five major categories of Levitical offerings, plus seven or eight other categories of Levitical offering, plus the feasts and the holy days, plus every function of the Levitical priesthood, was a shadow function. So that always superiority belongs to the reality, and we have the reality.

This meeting between Abraham and Melchizedek is extremely important, not only in the immediate life of Abraham but as far as the eternal repercussions are concerned. The phrase “received tithes” means to collect tithes. Melchizedek collected taxes from Abraham — the one whose genealogy is not traced. In verse 3, his father was not on any genealogical table of royalty, his mother was not on any genealogical table of royalty. Melchizedek’s birth certificate has nothing to do with royalty, nor his death certificate. He is not related to royalty by physical birth, he is royalty by conquest. He conquered Salem and held it, and made a great state out of it, one in which Abraham became a citizen. Therefore, it says “the one whose genealogy is not traced from them collected taxes” — the active voice. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative, it represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. Here is a statement of unqualified assertion, this is the statement of dogma on which Bible doctrine is constructed.

“of Abraham” should be “from [the source of] Abraham”, it is an ablative. So the one who is first in the genealogy of the Levitical priesthood is subordinated forever on the basis of this historical meeting. He recognized a principle: the name is Melchizedek — spiritual blessing; the title is King of Salem — temporal. He is a temporal and spiritual ruler and Abraham listened to the teaching of Melchizedek [positive volition] and joined the country of Melchizedek so that Melchizedek’s authority over Abraham was two fold. It was the temporal authority of the King of Salem — he became a citizen of Salem by paying taxes. And Melchizedek became his spiritual leader as well. So he recognized both the temporal and the spiritual authority of Melchizedek. When he did so, in his seed is Levi and specifically the family of Aaron, and therefore they are subordinated to him forever. It is most interesting, in fact almost a paradox, that also in Abraham from Judah and the family of David we have the Davidic line from which the Lord Jesus Christ came. But the Lord Jesus Christ is not subordinate to Melchizedek because it has been specifically stated that Melchizedek is the pattern of the Lord Jesus Christ who is the son of David. And because the Lord Jesus Christ as the son of David is put into the Melchizedek battalion, and Melchizedek is the pattern, this means that Jesus Christ is superior to Melchizedek and fulfills in the pattern the same concept. The Lord Jesus Christ is a temporal ruler forever. He is also the spiritual leader forever. So Melchizedek is superior to everything in Abraham’s line but the Lord Jesus Christ.

We are in union with Christ and therefore we are superior to Melchizedek, and in the same pattern. Jesus Christ has a right woman, the body of Christ. The body of Christ belongs to Jesus Christ forever. You and I are in the body of Christ. In fact, “body” is simply a way of designating positional truth in the relationship with the Lord Jesus. When Jesus Christ was on the cross He was making the sacrifice for the Priesthood. He bore our sins in His own body on the tree. He was very much alone on that cross. As a King, the perfect King, the impeccable King, the son of David, and the sovereign God of the universe, He is a King on His deity side and on His humanity side. This is why He has the title, King of kings and Lord of lords. But He was bearing our sins and was very much alone in bearing our sins — “My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me?” He was totally alone, and yet, God the Father said for the last Adam what God the Son said for the first Adam, “Not good that He should be alone.” Therefore, when He was glorified by being seated at the right hand of the Father, ten days later the Jewish Age which had seven years still to run was interrupted. With that interruption a body is prepared on earth — every believer. The moment you believe you are entered into union with the Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore you are a part of the royal family, not by physical birth, not by inheritance, not by genealogy, not by any human ability, but strictly on the basis of a relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, when God the Holy Spirit enters us into union with Christ we enter not only into the palace but we enter into a priesthood at the same time. There are two functions here. We enter into the palace, that is the temporal function represented by the name King of Salem. And we enter into a spiritual function represented by Melchizedek. The temporal function: we share the reign of Christ forever, therefore we are going to be temporal rulers forever. We are going to rule in heaven, in the eternal state, in the Millennium, because Jesus Christ is a temporal ruler. At the same time we have a spiritual function, the fact that we are a kingdom of priests. We are a royal household, a kingdom of priests, says 1Peter 2:9.

It is important to understand that Melchizedek is superior to Abraham, because they met. But Christ is superior to Melchizedek. Christ is not Melchizedek, He is infinitely superior. And when Christ is raised above Melchizedek in this battalion so is the body of Christ raised above Melchizedek. So we are talking about things to which we are totally superior because of our union with Christ. And if we are totally superior then we only have a very simple responsibility in this life and that is to move to the status of superiority which is supergrace — superiority without self-righteousness.

Melchizedek is historically superior to Abraham, and that tells us something else. The Church Age is an age that is never interrupted. The only dispensation which has never been interrupted is the Church Age. The Age of the Gentiles was interrupted. Why? The “united nations” had to be destroyed. The Age of Israel was interrupted. Why? “Not good that the last Adam should be alone.” The Millennium is interrupted. Why? The releasing of Satan causes the Gog revolution. There is only one dispensation that God would not dare to interrupt. Why? Because the body must be completed.

No nation builds its greatness upon education. The Roman empire lasted for 10,000 years and they looked down on education. We have educated ourselves into total lockdown ignorance. Highly educated people do not support the military; and our monies are sucked up by money to welfare. We are soft on criminals. Compulsory education is the biggest farce in history. It keeps people from maturing. A PhD is not better than a dropout.

There is a good reason for technical and military education. Homosexuality ruined Greece; and that jackass Aristotle led them astray.

Having money is convenient, but it is not royalty. We are a rudderless society because we do not recognize the true value of human achievement. We do not recognize the value of a good strong business. Most people in government could not be successful in business if their lives depended upon it. They are stupid and jealous of big business. Therefore, they try to destroy us. We have never developed a true historical nobility.

How many times have you been ashamed over your education or your birth? We are a nation of snobs. The welfare crowd are snobs; the government is filled with snobs. The only true service is done by police and the military. We have never established true standards in the military.

We have been bailed out by the supergrace types. Jonathan Edwards, George Whitfield. They brought a maximum people to the supergrace life. This is not based upon genealogy. It is wonderful to forget genealogy and snobbery. We are so desperate we try to make heroes out of athletes. No such thing as nobility in the United States.

And we are superior to Abraham and to Melchizedek, but we learn the story of precedence from this. God the Holy Spirit has seen fit to give it a lot of verses. We are royalty, we are a nobility that cannot be changed. We are protected by a nobility. We are protected by the fact that the royal priesthood has bailed us out. A maximum number of believers in some generations reaching the ECS and the supergrace life has bailed us out time and time again. But it isn't based upon genealogy. The thing that bails this country out is the royal priesthood.

When Melchizedek collected taxes from Abraham the thing that is really great is the fact that Abraham subordinated himself temporally as well as spiritually to Melchizedek. It is that temporal subordination that is so important. Why? Because in the battalion of Melchizedek everything is temporal.

God did not give Abraham something special to wear around his neck, and each time he touched it, something special happened.

“and blessed him” — this has to do with the teaching of doctrine. The perfect active indicative of eulogeō (εὐλογέω) [pronounced you-lohg-EH-oh] indicates more than saying, “Bless you brother”! You misunderstand this unless you see another dramatic perfect, for we have the perfect active indicative. The dramatic perfect means he began to teach him. And apparently he taught him not for an hour and fifteen minutes but perhaps all day. It was toward evening when Abraham went around and took ten per cent off the top. When Melchizedek departed he departed with some heavy taxes. But the thing that God the Holy Spirit emphasizes is the temporal authority, the spiritual authority, the surrender to Melchizedek. We have the rhetorical use of the intensive perfect and it emphasizes the long Bible conference and its dramatic results. The active voice: Melchizedek produced the action of the verb by Bible teaching, communication of doctrine. Remember that communication of doctrine is spiritual blessing. The indicative mood is the declarative of unqualified and dogmatic assertion. He didn't say “Bless you”, he taught him doctrine.

Notice that he taught doctrine to someone who possessed promises and had a great heritage: “him that had,” the present active participle of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh]. The present tense is an historical present, it gives dramatic emphasis to a past event viewed with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: Abraham who possessed promises, who had a great deal of blessing under supergrace, who had the beginning of the covenants of Israel, received blessing. You can have everything going for you but you have to have doctrine on a constant basis. You have to be taught Bible doctrine. The circumstantial participle brings up a principle, and even though he kept on having the promises, and even though he was promised many wonderful things, and even though he will be a key person in history, Abraham like everyone else needs one thing: Bible doctrine, Bible doctrine, and more Bible doctrine.

“the promises” is the accusative plural of epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-eh-EE-ah] which means promises of great blessing. They were promises he couldn’t really avoid. But even though you may have guarantees which you can’t avoid you still need doctrine. Doctrine provides the dynamics. Every blessing in life has to be related to doctrine as soul capacity.

We have the promise of a RM or a RW; but what do you need for this? Bible doctrine. Doctrine gives you the capacity; doctrine gives you the dynamics.

Hebrews 7:6 “The one [Melchizedek] whose genealogy is not traced from them [the Levitical priests] collected tithes from Abraham, and blessed him [through doctrinal teaching], the one possessing the promises.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Hebrews 7:7 It is beyond dispute that the inferior is blessed by the superior.

Verse 7 — the axiom of blessing. “And without” — the connective use of kai, adding the whole to the part. In adding the principle to the historical citation you have to have an adverb in the Greek. So kai, adding the whole to the part or the principle to the historical citation, also takes in an adverb, chôris (χωρίς) [pronounced khoh-REECE]. And chôris (χωρίς) [pronounced khoh-REECE] has with it a genitive singular from pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs]. Chôris (χωρίς) [pronounced khoh-REECE] becomes an improper preposition, and kai is used to add a principle to the historical situation, or the whole to the part — the part is the historical situation, the whole is the principle that comes out of it. Then you take an adverb and turn it into a preposition calling it an improper preposition. Then with it you have the genitive case — the genitive of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs], the genitive of antilogia (ἀντιλογία) [pronounced an-tee-lohg-EE-ah]. When you put all of this together it comes out to mean, “And without any dispute [or contradiction].” This becomes an idiom for a dogmatic statement. And why do we need, speaking through the Holy Spirit, and extra dogmatic idiom? For this reason. We are not talking about equality, about brotherly love, etc. We are talking about superiority and inferiority, true superiority and inferiority.

“the less” — the nominative neuter singular elassôn/elattôn (ἐλάσσων/ἐλάττων) [pronounced ehl-AS-sohn/ehl-AHT-tone]. It means “inferior”, “inferior in quality.” It is used here for Abraham in comparison to Melchizedek. He was inferior in quality. This also sets up a principle of authority. The teacher is superior to the student. The inferior in quality is “blessed” — present passive indicative of eulogeô (εὐλογέω) [pronounced you-lohg-EH-oh]. The present tense is a static present, it represents a condition assumed as perpetually existing. The passive voice: the subject, Abraham, receives the action of the verb — Bible teaching or blessing from Melchizedek. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative which goes with the improper prepositional phrase of dogmatism — a Greek idiom — and represents the verbal idea, therefore, from the viewpoint of dogmatic reality.

“of” — the preposition hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative of kreittôn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn]. Kreittôn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn] is the comparative of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] which is inherent intrinsic good. hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the accusative represents authority; hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the ablative, as here, represents agency. There is no need to establish authority because the authority is established by the use of our inferior/superior words, the comparatives. So we have literally, “by the agency of the better in quality.”

“I am superior in brains, authority, etc. You don’t have enough to crank it out day after day like I do. You can get out anytime that you want to.”

Hebrews 7:7 “And without any dispute the inferior [Abraham] received blessing [the teaching of doctrine] from the superior one [Melchizedek].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Here is where the authority of the pastor-teacher in the royal priesthood comes. The pastor-teacher communicates the doctrine and the inferior receives from the superior. That is what we call strict academic discipline.

Principles: The superiority of the royal priesthood is established over the Levitical priesthood. When the Levitical priesthood meets the royal priesthood the Levitical priesthood takes a back seat. (The Levitical priesthood will function again in the Millennium and will be ruled by the royal priesthood) The royal priesthood belongs to the royal family of Christ while the Levitical priesthood belongs to Israel. The royal priesthood of the Church Age is also the bride of Christ while the Levitical priesthood is represented as friends of the groom. The royal priesthood is superior to the Levitical priesthood on two counts from this historical meeting of Melchizedek and Abraham. First, Melchizedek blessed Abraham — taught him doctrine, a spiritual superiority. Secondly, Abraham paid taxes to Melchizedek as a sign of citizenship in the kingdom of Salem. So there is both a temporal and a spiritual superiority.

Hebrews 7:8 In the one case tithes are received by mortal men, but in the other case, by one of whom it is testified that he lives.

Verse 8 — we have a longevity which is superior to the Levitical priesthood. The subject of Hebrews 7 is the superiority of royalty, so verse 8 tells us longevity is the superiority of the royal priesthood also; not just the historical meeting between Melchizedek and Abraham, but we have a longevity.

“And here” — a connective use of the conjunction kai which introduces a result from what has just preceded. Therefore it should be translated “And so.” And we have another adverb with kai, the adverb of place, hōde (ὧδε) [pronounced HO-deh], referring back to verse 5 — “And so under these circumstances”, the circumstances of verse 5.

“receive” — present active indicative from lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh]. The present tense is an iterative present, it describes what recurs at successive intervals — the present tense of repeated action. The active voice: the Levitical priesthood produces the action of the verb by collecting taxes. The declarative indicative is an unqualified statement of assertion that taxes were collected by the Levitical priesthood, giving them temporal power in Israel which went with their spiritual power. The word “tithes”, again, means tenths or taxes — ten per cent taxation.

“but” — adversative conjunction from the particle de to set up a contrast between two clauses. “there” — the adverb ekei (ἐκεῖ) [pronounced ehk-ī] referring to an historical situation, to Melchizedek as a representative of the royal priesthood. This adverb refers back to verse 3 where Jesus Christ the royal high priest is called a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek. Also Hebrews 5:6; 6:20.

“he of whom” is not found in the original. It should be “there, he being the subject of the testimony.”

“it is witnessed” is a present passive participle nominative masculine singular from the verb martureō (μαρτυρέω) [pronounced mar-too-REH-oh], which means to testify or to witness. The nominative masculine singular refers to Jesus Christ as the royal high priest. The present tense of the participle is the historical present employed when a past event is viewed with the vividness of a present occurrence. The passive voice: Christ receives attestation or testimony. He becomes the subject of the testimony of Psalm 110:4; Hebrews 5:6; 6:20. The participle is circumstantial.

“that he liveth” — in other words, there is no death sitting off the priesthood. “That” is used for the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] after verbs of testimony to reveal content. Hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] is simply a conjunction used after a verb of testimony to show the content. The content is that He is alive, the present active indicative of zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]. Christ died spiritually and physically on the cross; He is alive. This is the static present, used for a condition which perpetually exists. The royal priesthood is not terminated by physical death. We have the pattern: Jesus Christ was resurrected. The first part of His priesthood was performed on the cross. The He died physically. Then He rose again. Now He is at the right hand of the Father making intercession for us, as we will see at the end of this chapter. So death does not terminate the royal priesthood but it is perpetuated beyond that. The active voice: the subject is Jesus Christ, the royal high priest whose priesthood is perpetuated through resurrection. The indicative mood is declarative, and unqualified dogmatic assertion.

Hebrews 7:8 “And under these circumstances [of verse 5] mortal men [Levitical priesthood] received tithes; but in that place [verse 3 plus Psalm 110:4] he [Jesus Christ] received attestation [or testimony] that he lived.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. Here is the inevitable superiority of the royal priesthood. It is perpetuated beyond death.
2. The Levitical priest functions until he dies. The royal priest functions forever as illustrated by our high priest who has functioned beyond physical death even as we will.
3. The royal priesthood is the only one that passes the boundaries of time, through death, to function forever. Again, the sealing ministry of God the Holy Spirit is security that you will always be a royal priest.

Verses 9 and 10 give us the application of the axiom.

Hebrews 7:9 One might even say that Levi himself, who receives tithes, paid tithes through Abraham,

Verse 9 — “And as I may so say.” This is a Greek idiom: Kai hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç] epos (ἔπος) [pronounced EHP-oss] e(i)pein. Kai is a connective conjunction; hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç] is a relative adverb used as a comparative particle. Epos (ἔπος) [pronounced EHP-oss] is a noun for a word or that which is expressed in words. E(i)pein is the aorist active infinitive of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. These are all combined in an idiom to limit a startling or shocking statement. “And so to speak” is the best translation. In the aorist active infinitive of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] the aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the event in its entirety but emphasizes the existing result. The active voice: the writer draws a shocking conclusion. The infinitive expresses a conceived result and/or a shocking conclusion.

Next comes a prepositional phrase, dia plus the indeclinable proper noun A)braam — “And so to speak through Abraham.” Then we have another kai but this is the adjunctive use of kai, correctly translated “also”.

“Levi” — here is the shocker. The Levitical priesthood has just been clobbered by this one. Levi is the founder of the Tribe of the Levitical priesthood.

“who receiveth” — this puts them high in Israel, it gives them temporal authority. That is how they finally had a Sanhedrin in Israel, because they collected the taxes. They have temporal as well as spiritual authority. “Who receiveth” is the present active participle of lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh]. That means that they were high in Israel. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes that which habitually occurs in Israel; they collected the taxes. The active voice: the Levitical priesthood customarily received taxes from Israel. This was a part of their superiority in Israel and their authority. This is a circumstantial participle.

“payed tithes” — this is the shocking statement. Levi “paid tithes in Abraham.” This is the perfect passive indicative of dekatē (δεκάτη) [pronounced dehk-AT-ay]. Abraham set up something for the entire human race. The Levitical priesthood had temporal and spiritual authority, and they never lost it even with the monarchy. They only lost it through spiritual decadence. That is, some of them were not even saved and some were reversionistic from time to time. This is a dramatic perfect for a shocking statement — they paid tithes. This describes the historical situation and it is a shocking situation to the Jew. The passive voice with the intermediate agent: When the agent is the medium through which the original cause has effected the action expressed by the passive verb for regular construction is dia plus the genitive plus the passive, and that is what we have here, the passive voice of intermediate agent. The indicative mood is declarative for an unqualified and dogmatic assertion.

Hebrews 7:9 “And so to speak, Levi also, the one receiving tithes, had paid tithes through Abraham.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Final Summation

1. Once again the startling conclusion indicates the superiority of the royal priesthood over the Levitical.
2. The historical meeting of Abraham and Melchizedek forces a shocking conclusion. Abraham subordinated himself spiritually by listening to doctrine. He received bread and wine. Then he recognized the temporal superiority of Melchizedek. By paying taxes he became a citizen. So the meeting between the two forces the conclusion regarding the Levitical priesthood serving in Israel with the highest authority.
3. The royal priesthood serving under Christ is infinitely superior to the Levitical priesthood serving in Israel until the time of their death. The royal priesthood will serve forever. For just as Christ was raised as the firstfruits of them that slept so you and I, either through Rapture, or through physical death will continue our priesthood in a resurrection body. Our priesthood is perpetuated forever.

We will always be royalty in heaven. We will always have this. So many of us do not have a clue about this.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #78

78 09/03/1973 Hebrews 7:10–11a Doctrine of the Body of Jesus Christ

Beautiful dog, 9 month old Timberwolf mix with husky. If you want a good dog; meanwhile, Balderdash has company. Being a bitch, she has a good disposition, different from the human race.

Liberalism is taught in schools and every media system. The men whose records Bob read are why we are free. Men whose names are never mentioned in any history book. Politicians do more to destroy a country than the worst decision that any military decision made in battle. Whether a liberal in the pulpit or in Congress, these liberals are destroying our nation. If Bob survives the next war, he is going to personally find a liberal and punch him in the nose. We are going to be a Navy without ships and an Air Force without planes.

Hebrews 7:10 ...for he was still in the loins of his ancestor when Melchizedek met him.

Jesus Compared to Melchizedek

Verse 10 — “For” is an inferential conjunction, gar, explaining the reason for the foregoing conclusion.

“he was” — the imperfect active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME]. eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] is the absolute status quo verb. The imperfect tense represents linear aktionsart in past time. This is what is called a progressive imperfect which denotes action in progress in past time. This is a progressive imperfect of description which vividly represents the process going on at the time. The active voice: Levi was in the genitals of Abraham the patriarch when he met Melchizedek and paid tithes to him. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality, unqualified and dogmatic assertion.

“yet” — the adverb éti (ἔτι) [pronounced EH-tee], an adverb of time and denotes a past situation. In fact it goes with the imperfect tense which is linear aktionsart in past time.

“in the loins” — the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of osphus (ὀσφύς) [pronounced oss-FOOS], which really means “in the reproductive organs of” — “his father,” the possessive genitive singular of patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR] denotes the ancestor. Abraham is the ancestor of Levi.

“when” — the conjunction ο(τε indicates the historical meeting; “met” — the aorist active indicative of συναντάω (συναντάω) [pronounced soon-ahn-TAH-oh] which means to encounter. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. It gathers the historical meeting between Abraham and Melchizedek into one single whole. Regardless of length or duration it is all pulled together. The active voice: Melchizedek produces the action of the verb. It was the initiative of Melchizedek that ministered spiritually to Abraham at a time of Abraham’s great vulnerability, the attack from the king of Sodom. The indicative mood is declarative emphasizing the reality of the historical meeting.

Hebrews 7:10 “For he was still in the reproductive organs of his ancestor [Abraham], when Melchizedek encountered him.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation Principle: The superiority of the royal priesthood demands permanent changes. Any permanent and lasting changes can only be made by the Lord Jesus Christ.

We now move into another section as to why we are not only members of the royal family but why each one of us is a royal priest. We must begin at this point with the six propositions regarding the change of priesthood. We have seen the change of the royal family. They were simply the family of God. The family of God was made up of Adam and Eve and Moses, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, all kinds of great people; but when there was a break, an interruption of the Jewish Age, there is no longer the family of God, it is now royal family. To get into the family of God you must be born again — regeneration. The agent of regeneration is God the Holy Spirit, and God the Holy Spirit does that for believers in the Church Age. But He does something else. After that, the baptism of the Spirit which never occurred before. The baptism of the Spirit enters the family of God into the royal family. Only in the Church Age do we have royal family. There was no royal family before the Church Age began, there is no royal family after the Church Age is concluded with the Rapture. The only royal family is now.

The royal family also has a royal function. We have already seen that every priesthood that has functioned in this passage has functioned under conditions of rulership. The Melchizedek priesthood: he was a king, a temporal ruler as well as a spiritual leader. In the Levitical priesthood they were temporal rulers, they were tax collectors, they collected the tithes. Levi not only had great spiritual leadership and authority but Levi had great temporal leadership and authority. Until the time of king Saul and the rule of the monarchy, Levi had all of the rulership. The tribe of Levi had its first ruler in Moses. After the death of Moses the temporal rulership went to the high priest, and it stayed there right through Samuel who was descended from Aaron through Ithamar. Samuel himself appointed the first king; he appointed the second king. He appointed Saul; He appointed David. He was the high priest of Israel, he had the temporal authority and responsibility for appointing the king. So there was always temporal authority and leadership as well.

This is true in every priesthood. This is true with the Lord Jesus Christ. He is not only a priest with spiritual authority but He is a King with temporal authority. He is the King of kings as well as our high priest forever.

This brings us to the six propositions regarding the change of priesthood. This anticipates the next paragraph. In verses 11 -19 we are going to see something of this change. Beginning in verse 11 we are going to have an entire new tack. We are going to see the inferiority of the Levitical priesthood, the inferiority of the Levitical battalion.

The Six Propositions Regarding the Change in Priesthood

1. Verse 11 has a very important word: teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis],. It is mistranslated “perfection.” It means the process of completion. Completion cannot be produced by the Levitical priesthood.
2. Since completion, or the process of completion, cannot be produced by the Levitical priesthood it cannot be produced by the Mosaic law. (The Mosaic law is the authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood)
3. Since neither the Levitical priesthood nor the Mosaic law can produce completeness there must be some change to coincide with the change of dispensation. This is brought out by verse 12.
4. Therefore the priesthood begun with Aaron is replaced by the priesthood begun with Christ. The Levitical priesthood is replaced by the royal priesthood. The authorizing agent of the Levitical priesthood, the Mosaic law, is replaced by the authorizing agent for the royal priesthood which is the eternal decrees of God — Psalm 110:4. This anticipates verses 18,19.
5. The Levitical priesthood is earthly, terminated by death, and belonging to an interrupted dispensation. The only dispensation which is not interrupted is the Church Age. Teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis], is so important that God would never think of interrupting it because teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis], is how the royal family is acquired. The royal priesthood is heavenly, perpetuated beyond death by resurrection, and functions under the interrupting and completed dispensation, the Church. The Levitical priesthood is limited to one family. The royal priesthood belongs to one family. The family of Aaron limits the Levitical priesthood but the royal priesthood belongs to one family, the family of God, the body of Christ. The Levitical priesthood is obtained by physical birth; the royal priesthood is obtained by the new birth.
6. Since the purpose of God is the process of completion of the body of Christ to become the bride of Christ through the royal priesthood, the Levitical priesthood must be set aside, deactivated.

Verses 11–19, the inferiority of the Levitical battalion. The Levitical priesthood must be set aside for the superiority of the royal priesthood.

Bob chews someone out for reading off someone else’s notebook.

Hebrews 7:11 Now if perfection had been attainable through the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the law), what further need would there have been for another priest to arise after the order of Melchizedek, rather than one named after the order of Aaron?

Verse 11 — the inadequacy of the Levitical priesthood. The first word is “If”, a conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] plus the imperfect, aorist or a pluperfect. Any one of these makes it a second class condition. A second class condition is sometimes known as a contrary to fact clause. The particle o)n is sometimes used with it and sometimes not — ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] plus o)n which is found in the apodosis; the protasis ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] plus the apodosis o)n. Because the protasis is considered contrary to fact only past tenses of the indicative are used. Therefore the protasis states what is untrue and unreal. So this is what is called the contrary to fact condition, a second class condition: if and it is not true.

“therefore” — the inferential particle οὖν . In historical narratives οὖν resumes the subject once more after its interruption. Therefore, οὖν reaches back to Hebrews 5:4 where Aaron was mentioned as the representative of the Levitical priesthood.

“perfect” — teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis],. Teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis], is sometimes translated “perfect”, sometimes “completion.” With the suffix (sij = process or action) it means the act or process of completion.

So literally, “If indeed therefore a process of completion.”

Process of Completion

1. What is a process of completion?
2. Whatever it is, note the absence of the definite article in from of teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis],. The absence of the definite article calls attention to its quality rather than its identity. Identity is emphasized by the use of the definite article in the Greek, while quality is stressed through the absence of it. (The antithesis of English syntax)
3. Even commentators are inclined to relate this phrase to eternal salvation, and this is where everyone has gone off base.

R.B. Thieme, comment: “I’ve never seen anyone who had the ability to think clearly in exegetical form and avoid the error of someone in the past. A.T. Robertson (page 383) says: ‘The Levitical priesthood failed to give men a perfectly adequate relationship with God.’ Now this is a brilliant Greek scholar, there’s nothing wrong with A.T. Robertson. You can always tell the ‘fundies’ who criticize him, it means they don’t know anything about Greek. A.T. Robertson was a brilliant scholar but he was a victim of being pushed into a little mould. This has to do with salvation, he said. This is what all ‘fundies’ have all said. ‘The Levitical priesthood failed to give men a perfectly adequate relationship with God’ — failed to give them salvation. That is not true. The Levitical priesthood was the means of saving millions of people. So he missed it altogether there.

Kenneth Wuest, in his book on Hebrews, page 132, says: ‘The purpose of the priesthood was to remove the obstacle of sin’ — that was never true — “which kept men from God. The Levitical priesthood could do that in a typical but not in an actual way.’

A.R. Fausett, page 547, said: 'Perfection is the bringing of man to his high estate — salvation and sanctification.' When you throw those two words in you can mean so many things by sanctification it is almost unbelievable. Now I have selected men that I think are good commentators and sound men, and yet, on this particular thing they all run away from the issue. They all think "perfection" must mean salvation."

All right, you're saved, you're not perfect. That breaks down immediately. And it doesn't even mean perfection here, it means the process of completion. Salvation is not a process, salvation is instantaneous. The moment you believe in Jesus Christ you're saved, you receive 36 things immediately. So there is no process there.

Previous Doctrine—the process of completion

4. Let us begin with the suffix, sij. It indicates an active process rather than something as instantaneous. Salvation is instantaneous so because of the suffix alone it couldn't be salvation. Salvation is not a process, it takes place in less than a second.
5. Furthermore, under the ministry of the Levitical priesthood millions of people were saved, so obviously it is not talking about salvation. And one of the strong parts of the Levitical priesthood is that they were good on the Gospel and they were clear on the Gospel. The Levitical Priesthood was good about providing enough information by which to be saved. So, perfection here is not a reference to salvation.
6. So the Levitical priesthood not only brought people to salvation and justification but through the teaching of the written canon of scripture they also led many of these believers to supergrace. People in the past dispensation of Israel actually reached supergrace through the faithful teaching of the Levitical priesthood. Illustration: David.
7. Therefore the process of completion must have another significance in keeping with the context, another significance apart from salvation. And it does.
8. Teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis], means process of completion, and it refers to the completion of Jesus Christ over a period of elapsed time. The period of elapsed time is the course of the Church Age.
9. The issue between the Levitical priesthood or the royal priesthood completing Christ is found in Colossians 2:16,17 — "Consequently, stop allowing anyone to judge you in eating, or drinking, or in matters of a feast, or the new moon, or the Sabbath [all Levitical priesthood functions], which keep on being a shadow of those things about to come; but the body is from the source of the Christ." Which came first? The cross came first. Christ on the cross is alone. Then resurrection, ascension and session. Now comes the body. The Levitical priesthood could not provide a body for Christ. The Levitical priesthood could not marry Jesus Christ, to use the analogy. The body which belongs to Christ is the royal priesthood, every believer of the Church Age.
10. Christ was alone on the cross: "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" He was alone because He was bearing our sins. He was being judged by God the Father in our place. Christ was alone, He was forsaken. And the Father said, Not good that the last Adam should be alone.

11. Christ, the last Adam, is just as completed as the first Adam. The first Adam was completed by the manufacture of a right woman. The last Adam is completed by the manufacture of a body, a mystical, spiritual body called the Church.
12. For this reason, and in this sense, the Church is called the body of Christ.
13. The Levitical priesthood is not the body of Christ. The Levitical priesthood could not complete Christ. The Levitical priesthood is in another dispensation dealing with shadows — Colossians 2:17; Hebrews 8:4,5; 10:1.
14. Therefore, there was a need for a dramatic and, of course, traumatic interruption of the dispensation of Israel. After Christ was brought down from the cross it was still the Age of Israel. The Levitical priesthood could do nothing for Jesus Christ. Three days later Jesus rose from the dead and the Levitical priesthood could still do nothing for Him. For forty days He was on the earth in His resurrection body and then He ascended. The Levitical priesthood could still do nothing for Him. The Levitical priesthood did one thing for Him: at His trial they slapped Him for what they called talking back to the high priest. The high priest is Jesus Christ, and they slapped the true high priest for talking back to the pseudo high priest. That is all the Levitical priesthood can do. They cannot complete Jesus Christ. The Rapture occurs at the completion of the body, but right now it is in the process.
15. The Church Age interrupts to fulfil the process of completion, to fulfil teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-Ī-oh-sis], of Christ.
16. The Church Age was designed by God the Father to complete Christ. Therefore, the Church on earth is called the body of Christ, the process of completion and fulfilment of Christ. The body is teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-Ī-oh-sis],.
17. The Church in heaven after the Rapture is called the bride of Christ. The process has been completed when the bride emerges. First of all the bride must have a body. The body is completed when the Church Age is completed and then it becomes a bride.

Conclusion: Therefore a new priesthood is necessary for teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-Ī-oh-sis],. Christ is royalty on both sides of the hypostatic union. He is royalty in His deity, He is royalty in His humanity; He could not possibly be completed by those “peasants”, the Levitical priesthood. Peasants can’t do it. It takes royalty to complete royalty. And you and I are the royalty to complete Jesus Christ. Every believer is royalty; and this is why we are able to complete Jesus, Who is also royalty.

With nearly 3 minutes to go, Bob begins the doctrine of the Body of Christ. I will keep it at the beginning of the next lesson. He covers most of the first point.

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #79

79 09/04/1973 Hebrews 7:11-13a Doctrine of the Body of Jesus Christ (complete)

Hurricane Delia came ashore on Galveston. “There are a lot of people who called. “From 6:30 on, I answered the phone. As long as the streets are not frozen over, we are meeting here. For those of you who hear this on the tape, before I rebound, I have one sweet thought for you.”

The first point or two was begun in the previous lesson.

The Doctrine of the Body of Christ

1. The Trinity is related to the body of Christ. God the Father placed Christ at the head of the body — Ephesians 1:22 — so the Father is related to the body of Christ. Christ is the head of the body — Ephesians 1:22,23; 5:23,24; Colossians 1:18. Also, the Holy Spirit forms the body of Christ — 1Corinthians 12:12,13. He forms it by His baptizing ministry at salvation. It is the baptism of the Holy Spirit which is so significant because we enter into union with Christ. Christ is royalty in His deity; Christ is royalty in His humanity; Christ is super royalty in hypostatic union, and we are in union with super royalty, we share His royalty. We become royalty spiritually. We are the only ones in all of human history who will be in this status quo. We are royalty because of spiritual appointment by God the Holy Spirit. Furthermore, it is a permanent spiritual appointment because of the sealing ministry of the Spirit. We even wear a badge of royalty, the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.
2. Christ is the Savior of the body — Ephesians 5:23,25,30. This indicates that every member of the body of Christ will live with Him forever because of His priestly sacrifice on the cross.
3. Christ is the sanctifier of the body — Hebrews 2:11; 13:12. Because Jesus Christ is royalty we have been set apart as royalty forever. We are the only royalty perpetuated forever, the only royalty based upon a strict spiritual principle. There is nothing comparable to the royalty of the family of God in the Church Age.
4. The body is also related to the strategic victory of the angelic conflict — Ephesians 1:22,23: “And he subordinated all demons under his feet, and he has given him [Christ] absolute sovereignty above all [believers of the Church Age] with reference to the Church, which is such a royal quality as to be his body, the fullness of the one being filled with reference to all [the royal priesthood of the Church Age].”
5. The body includes Gentile believers of the Church Age only — Ephesians 3:6.
6. The body is the recipient of multifarious spiritual gifts — Romans 12:4,5; 1Corinthians 12:27,28.
7. The communication of doctrine is a gift for the purpose of edification and leading the royal priesthood to supergrace — Ephesians 3:6–8; 4:11,12.
8. Therefore the objective of the body of Christ in phase two is to reach the supergrace life — Ephesians 4:15,16. The objective of the body of Christ at the Rapture is the fulfilment of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Jesus Compared to Melchizedek

Hebrews 7:11a — “If therefore the process of completion were by the Levitical priesthood [but it isn't: second class condition].”

Hebrews 7:11 Now if perfection had been attainable through the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the law), what further need would there have been for another priest to arise after the order of Melchizedek, rather than one named after the order of Aaron?

“were” — teleiôsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-Ī-oh-sis], is followed by the imperfect active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME]. The imperfect tense is progressive. The progressive imperfect is used for continuous action in past time. However, the progressive imperfect denotes action in progress at the time. This is the progressive imperfect of duration which indicates there never was a time when the Levitical priesthood functioned as the completer of the Lord Jesus Christ. In other words, following out the analogy of fulfilment and completion, the Levitical priesthood is not the Lord’s right woman. The active voice must be linked with the second class condition of the Levitical priesthood. The second class condition: the Levitical priesthood produces an action of never completing Jesus Christ, an action which cannot be fulfilled. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality, which is in this case, the Levitical priesthood was never related to teleiôsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-Ī-oh-sis]. The Levitical priesthood belongs to the Age of Israel which was an interrupted dispensation.

The body of Christ is taken from the believers of this dispensation, it is related to Christ forever. Christ is royalty, the body of Christ is royalty. We have in this chapter the superiority of royalty and here is one superiority from the second class condition of the protasis of verse 11.

“by the Levitical priesthood” is dia plus the genitive of the adjective Leuitikos (Λευιτικός) [pronounced lyoo-ih-t-ee-KOSS]. Then we have the noun for the office hierôsunê (ἱερωσύνη) [pronounced hee-er-oh-SOO-nay].

Summary of Completion and the Priesthood

1. The priesthood must relate to its own dispensation. Generally speaking, the family priesthood is related to the dispensation of the Gentiles, the Levitical priesthood to the dispensation of Israel, the royal priesthood to the dispensation of the Church.
2. The dispensation of Israel was characterized by a specialized priesthood based on heredity through physical birth.
3. The dispensation of the Church is characterized by the universal priesthood of the believer based on regeneration; at the point of salvation the baptism of the Spirit entering every believer into the royal family; the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, the badge of royalty; the sealing of the Spirit, security and perpetuation of the royal family forever; spiritual gifts: the function, the action of the royal family as the body of Christ.
4. Therefore, the interruption of the Jewish Age demands a new priesthood. The new priesthood must be compatible with the new dispensation — “but you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood” — 1Peter 2:9.

5. Now comes a parenthesis of great importance. This parenthesis relates to the second proposition regarding the change in priesthood. A change in priesthood demands a change in authorizing agency.
6. Since the process of completion cannot be produced by the Levitical priesthood it cannot be produced by the authorizing agent of the Levitical priesthood. The authorizing agent is, of course, the Mosaic law.
7. Therefore the parenthesis which now begins relates the Mosaic law to the Levitical priesthood. The parenthesis divides the protasis from the apodosis. The protasis is the “if” clause, the second class condition. The apodosis relates to the protasis in conditional clauses. And there is no apodosis until we get to “what further need.”

The parenthesis is often properly introduced with the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] — “for under it,” the preposition epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the genitive singular feminine of the intensive pronoun autos. It should be literally translated: “For on the basis of it [the Levitical priesthood].”

Bob’s excellent Greek teacher taught him that the key to understanding the New Testament is understanding all of the particles.

“the people” — ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] laos (λαός) [pronounced lah-OSS]. This refers to the Jews of the Age of Israel; “received the law” — perfect passive indicative of the compound verb nomotheteô (νομοθετέω) [pronounced nom-ohth-eh-eh-oh]. Nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] means law; qetew comes from the verb tithêmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-â-mee], to appoint. We can translate this, “For on the basis of it [the Levitical priesthood] the people [of Israel] received the enactment of the law.” The perfect tense is a dramatic perfect. The dramatic perfect is a rhetorical application of the intensive perfect tense. Since the perfect tense always represents existing state it is used for the purpose of describing a fact in a very unusual, vivid and dramatic manner. The historical present, the dramatic aorist do the same thing to some extent but the dramatic perfect is much more forcible, and like the intensive perfect it always emphasizes the results of the action, namely the nullification of the Mosaic law, along with the Levitical priesthood. We are not under the Levitical priesthood, we are not under the Mosaic law. They both hang together, they both stand together. At this point the parenthesis ends. It is a very short explanatory parenthesis.

On the other side of the parenthesis we get back to the apodosis. “what further need” — tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç] éti (ἔτι) [pronounced EH-tee] xreia. It should be translated, “What further need would there be”, a technical, rhetorical phrase. “that another priest” — the accusative of the direct object masculine singular of héteros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os] means another of a different kind, a different category; then we have the word for “priest”, hierous (ἱερέως) [pronounced hee-er-YOOCE]. it is used here by the way as the accusative of general reference which isn’t really properly the subject, it goes with the infinitive to describe the one involved in the action of the infinitive. Literally, “for another of a different category of priest”.

“to arise” — present middle infinitive of a)nisthmi. The word means to make the scene, to come on to the scene of history, to be raised into existence, and so on. The present tense is an historical present used for a past event viewed with the vividness and the drama of a present occurrence, although it isn’t a present occurrence. The middle voice is used to emphasize the intransitive use of the verb — to make the scene, to come into existence. So it is translated like an active voice. The infinitive is used to indicate God’s purpose and God’s plan.

“after the order of Melchizedek” — κατά (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss]. Taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss] means category or battalion.

“and not be called” — present passive infinitive of légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] plus the very strong negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] which closes the door. Légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] here means to designate — “and not be designated according to the battalion of Aaron.”

Hebrews 7:11 “Now if therefore a process of completion [of Christ] was through the Levitical priesthood [2nd class condition: but it was not], (for on the basis of it [the Levitical priesthood] the people had received the law,) what further need would there be for a different category or a different battalion of priests to be activated according to the battalion of Melchizedek, and not be assigned according to the battalion of Aaron.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Why not use Aaron’s battalion, a priesthood is there? Instead we have the interruption of a dispensation, we have the deactivation of the second battalion, we have the deactivation of the Mosaic law as an authorizing agent. Neither the Mosaic law nor the Levitical priesthood have anything to do with the Christian life today, with the royal family. So the interruption of the Jewish Age deactivates the Levitical priesthood while at the same time reactivating the royal priesthood which began with Melchizedek and terminated with his death.

A change of priesthood means a change in the authorizing agent.

Hebrews 7:12 For when there is a change in the priesthood, there is necessarily a change in the law as well.

Verse 12 — a change of priesthood means a change in the authorizing agent. We have the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] to carry on the thoughts started by the second class condition. The Levitical priesthood is out.

The next word is actually not found in the English but it should be there. “For when the priesthood is changed”. The word “when” is used to indicate a temporal participle. “For when the priesthood is changed” is the correct translation. The word “priesthood” is the genitive singular of the noun hierôsúnê (ἱερωσύνη) [pronounced hee-er-oh-SOO-nay]. This noun refers to the priestly office, the entire Levitical battalion authorized by the Mosaic law.

“being changed” — present passive participle, genitive case of metatithêmi (μετατίθημι) [pronounced meht-at-IHTH-ay-mee]. The word means to change over, to transfer, to alter, or to replace. The present tense is the aoristic present used to express the idea of a present fact without reference to its progress. The passive voice: the Levitical priesthood receives the action of the verb.

The dramatic interruption of the Jewish dispensation terminated the Levitical priesthood. It also terminated its authorizing agent. Remember that the Levitical priesthood and the Mosaic law stand together and fall together.

“there is made of necessity” — “there is made” does not occur in the Greek text. The next phrase is actually “from necessity”, not “of necessity.” It is the preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus the ablative of anakê (ἀναγκή) [pronounced ahn-ahg-KAY]. This actually comes next. This is a little difficult because for some reason it is all right to lift phrases out of the Greek, following their proper syntactical concept, and rearrange the sentence to make smooth English, provided you do not violate the syntax. But this thing not only violates the syntax — and often translators get into this kind of a bind — in order to make sense in bringing from another language some sense into the situation you have to start juggling things and adding words like “there is made”, which doesn’t occur at this point at all. All we have at this point is actually “from necessity” — “For when the priesthood is changed from necessity”.

Next we have a word not even found, kai. It means “also” — “from necessity also”.

“a change” — now we have the cognate metathesis (μετάθεσις) [pronounced meht-ATH-ehs-iss].

About Metathesis (μετάθεσις) [pronounced meht-ATH-ehs-iss]

1. It refers to a change in the authorizing agent. It indicates that the authorizing agent for the royal priesthood is changed. You cannot use the Mosaic law as an authorizing agent for the royal family any more than you can take Sabbath observance in the Mosaic law and impose it on the royal family. Sabbath observance was for the peons of the family of God, those who were born again in the Age of Israel. We are in the palace, we never observe the Sabbath.
2. The strategical victory of Christ interrupts the Jewish Age.
3. Therefore, Christ is the end of the law for believers of the Church Age — Romans 10:4.
4. A new authorizing agency replaces the Mosaic law.
5. The authorizing agent is related to the entire ministry of God the Holy Spirit to the royal family of the Church Age. The eternal decrees of God authorized a royal priesthood after the strategical victory of Christ being seated at the right hand of the Father. The authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood did not survive the Levitical priesthood. The royal priesthood is based upon an eternal document, not a temporal document, and this eternal document which authorizes our priesthood is a forever document. So is our priesthood.

- a. The divine decrees.
  - b. We are priests forever, as an extrapolation from the Levitical priesthood.
  - c. We will be priests forever.
  - d. David was royalty in time; we are royalty forever.
  - e. “That’s alright, it’s raining outside; if you want to drop everything you have, drop it.”
6. While God the Holy Spirit regenerated every person who believed in Christ during the course of human history, only in this dispensation does God the Holy Spirit baptize every believer into union with Christ, making him a member of the royal family forever.
  7. Members of the royal family — Church Age believers — operate under a much higher authorization — Romans 8:2–4 illustrates that.
  8. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is a sign of royalty.
  9. Every believer by virtue of positional truth lives in the palace. Therefore every believer of the Church Age is and always will be royalty — royalty through the baptism of the Holy Spirit.
  10. Hence, we have a royal priesthood. We have the universal indwelling of the Holy Spirit. We have the command to all members of the royal family to be filled with the Spirit, to walk in the Spirit. Spirituality in the Church Age is a very definite change. So the authorizing agent, the doctrine of divine decrees, is related to the various ministries of God the Holy Spirit to the believer of the Church Age at the point he believes.

“from necessity also a change of the law” — the genitive singular of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] indicates the law as the authorizing agency for the Levitical priesthood.

“is made” — present active indicative from ginomai, and it should be translated “occurs.” The present tense is an historical present in which the past of the deactivation of the law and the Levitical priesthood is replaced by the royal priesthood. And this is so dramatic and so important that the present tense is used to dramatize it. The active voice: the action is produced by the subject which is metathesis (μετάθεσις) [pronounced meht-ATH-ehs-iss], a change. A change occurs. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative representing the verbal idea of a change occurring from the viewpoint of reality.

Hebrews 7:12 “For when the priesthood is changed [replaced], from necessity also a change of law must occur.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Verse 13–15, a royal high priest demands a new authorizing agent. In other words, royalty comes in and cleans house. This is a complete change of administration, and the royal high priest seated at the right hand of the Father means a complete and total house cleaning. So our royal high priest demands a new authorizing agent, the new authorizing agent becomes the basis for the house cleaning.

Hebrews 7:13 For the one of whom these things are spoken belonged to another tribe, from which no one has ever served at the altar.

Verse 13 — again we have the explanatory use of the particle γάρ (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] — “For”; “he of whom” — the preposition ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative of the relative pronoun οἵ. It should be translated, “For the one toward whom.”

What Does this Mean, *for the one toward whom?

1. It is a reference to the Lord Jesus Christ, the royal high priest.
2. Jesus Christ and Melchizedek were both royalty before they were priests.
3. Jesus Christ was born physically into the line of David, so He was born royalty; while Melchizedek acquired royalty through conquest.
4. Neither became royalty through the second birth or regeneration. Melchizedek was born again but at the time of being born again he was not baptized by the Holy Spirit. The baptism of the Spirit never occurred until the day of Pentecost, 30 AD Melchizedek, then, is royalty but not through the second birth. Jesus Christ is royalty but not through the second birth. It is blasphemous to assume that Christ had to be born again.
5. We as believers of the Church Age become royalty through the second birth. The moment we believed in Christ, the agent of regeneration, entered us into the family of God. “Ye are the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus”. But He did something else that made us royalty. Ours is unique royalty. We at the moment of salvation were entered into union with Jesus Christ, so we have royalty by virtue of union with Christ. Furthermore, we have permanent royalty and we are the only permanent royalty in history.

Now the high priests in this battalion do not have royalty on the same basis that we do. However, they have the same authorizing agent — the doctrine of divine decrees, the two immutable things. Both the oath of the Father and the promise of the Father are in the decrees.

Death ended everything for Melchizedek; but not for Jesus Christ, as He was resurrected and He continued as the Royal High Priest.

There Are Three Categories in the Royal Priestly Battalion.

1. Historically: Melchizedek, high priest, became a king through conquest, became a priest by ruling Salem [Jerusalem];
2. Jesus Christ: born a King, appointed a priest by the eternal decrees;
3. believers of the Church Age: became royal priests through the baptism of the Holy Spirit by which they were entered into union with Christ, and became members of the royal family forever.

All members of the battalion in all three categories all had their appointment from the divine decrees, whereas in the priesthood of Aaron, the Levitical order, all of them were appointed and authorized by the Mosaic law. The Mosaic law deals with temporal things, the divine decrees deal with eternal things.

You are an chosen race; you are a royal priesthood

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #80

80 09/05/1973 Hebrews 7:13–14 Doctrine of the Royal Family

Congressional Medal of Honor recipient in Vietnam. Politicians are more responsible for the deaths of men than the worst decision made in battle by a military commander.

Function of the royal family of God; and the function of a military. All freedom is won by means of a military victory.

Review of Hebrew 7 translation.

Heb 7:13 For the one of whom these things are spoken belonged to another tribe, from which no one has ever served at the altar. (ESV)

Verse 13 — “For the one toward whom”, literally. This is a reference to the Lord Jesus Christ, the royal high priest. Jesus Christ, Melchizedek, and the believers in this dispensation of the Church are the only personnel in the first battalion. Jesus Christ and Melchizedek are the only two high priests. Then we have the royal family of the Church Age. These are the three categories. We differentiate in this way. Jesus Christ was born a King, He was born in the line of David.

Mary is not the mother of God. Bob is upset over a movie with a Catholic priest. She was born a sinner; she was not immaculate. Maybe she was well-groomed, but she was not immaculate. She does hold one record. One virgin pregnancy.

Joseph did not want Mary stoned to death; but he was ready to put her away; until he received some Bible doctrine.

Melchizedek became a king by conquest, he was not born a king, he didn't inherit a kingdom. Salem is also a city whose ruler is high priest, so Melchizedek was the king of Salem and the high priest of Salem. And when Abraham went out to meet him he conquered Abraham too, with doctrine. And Abraham became a citizen of Melchizedek's kingdom. This is demonstrated by the fact that he paid taxes to him. Melchizedek became a king by conquest. Jesus Christ became a King by birth and was appointed a priest in eternity past in the doctrine of divine decrees. That leaves one other group, the believers of the Church Age, and we become members of the royal family at the point of salvation through the ministry of God the Holy Spirit.

Jacob promised to pay his taxes in advance if he is taken back into the land.

The Doctrine of the Royal Family

1. Definition: All believers of the Church Age belong to the world's most unique system of royalty. This royalty is founded on strictly spiritual principles of doctrine. The royal family is every believer of the Church Age because in this dispensation every believer is entered into union with Christ, and this is royalty that will last forever.
2. The basis of royalty in the Church Age: The baptism of the Holy Spirit is the basis of royalty. No believer before the Church Age and no believer after the Church Age is qualified for royalty.
  - a. One guy said, "When I get to heaven, I will punch Adam in the face."
  - b. We are royalty because of Adam and his sins. Eternal royalty is formed in one dispensation only. The worst people in Christendom today distort this doctrine; the holy rollers.
3. The precedent for royalty: The precedent for royalty is set up for us by the Greek word taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss] which means category or battalion. The first battalion is the royal priesthood; second battalion: Levitical priesthood; third battalion: family priesthood. The family priesthood is deactivated. The Levitical priesthood is deactivated by the interruption of the Jewish Age. The precedent for setting up a royal priesthood was taken from the only other occurrence, the priesthood of Melchizedek. One time in history is all it took to set a precedent. So Melchizedek, a bona fide historical person is the precedent. The battalion of Melchizedek provides both the pattern and the precedent. It should be noted that Melchizedek acquired his royalty by becoming king of Salem, while Jesus Christ acquired His royalty by being born a King in the line of David. The royalty of the Church Age believer comes at the moment we believe in Christ, again, through the baptism of the Spirit.
4. The relationship to the King:
  - a. When Jesus Christ was alone on the cross God the Father provided for Him a body and a bride.
  - b. Through the baptism of the Spirit every believer is entered into union with Christ.
  - c. Therefore, every believer in the Church Age is called body of Christ.
  - d. Being body of Christ makes every believer of the Church Age personally related to the King of kings.
  - e. Positional sanctification places every believer in the palace forever.
  - f. Positional sanctification places every believer in the palace.
  - g. When the body of Christ is completed the Church Age terminates with a resurrection. And what is the word for the process of completion? Teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-Ī-oh-sis],.
  - h. At the Rapture or the resurrection the body of Christ immediately becomes the bride.
  - i. During the Tribulation the bride is prepared for operation footstool, which is the second phase of Christ's strategic victory.

5. The sign of royalty: The sign of royalty is the unprecedented universal indwelling of God the Holy Spirit. The purpose of this indwelling is to glorify Jesus Christ — John 7:37–39.
6. The security of royalty: The sealing ministry of God the Holy Spirit is designed for the special double security of the royal family. Just being regenerated is security. The you have entered into union with Christ, and that is security. Then you have the sealing ministry of the Spirit to indicate that not only do you have eternal security but you have eternal security as an aristocrat.
7. The function of royalty: The function of royalty is twofold. First, moving toward the objective of the supergrace life. This is the attainment of the tactical goal of phase two. Secondly, the function of royalty is the modus operandi of the priesthood. Not only are you royal family but again, unprecedented, every believer is a priest. The normal function of the priesthood begins at the supergrace life but you are a priest from the moment of salvation.
8. The future of royalty: As members of the body of Christ and the royal priesthood all Church Age believers will return with Christ at the second advent. We will return to participate in the strategic victory at Armageddon. This strategic victory includes the Lord Jesus Christ breaking His record in slaughtering the enemy. His record: Jesus Christ in one second slaughtered 185,000 infantry. He will break this record at the second advent. The story is found in Isaiah 63 and many other passages. Ezekiel says it will take seven months to bury the dead. Revelation 14 says the blood will flow as high as the horse's bridle for 275 miles. Jesus Christ will personally slaughter millions. Then all unbelievers will be removed from the world at that time — the baptism of fire. Then Jesus Christ will be crowned ruler of the world forever, the first 1000 years being a dispensation. After the Millennium the royal family will be with Christ forever.

Next we have a nominative neuter plural of the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], translated “these things”. This demonstrative pronoun is used as a substantive. It is a reference to the doctrine of the royal family related to the priesthood. “These things” is best covered by two phrase from 1Peter 2:9 — “We are an elect (chosen) race, a royal priesthood.”

“are spoken” — present passive indicative of légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. It refers to the context where Jesus Christ is described as a royal priest after the battalion of Melchizedek.

“pertaining” — perfect active indicative of metechô (μετέχω) [pronounced met-EHKH-oh]. It means to share, to partake, to participate, to belong. Here it means to belong. The perfect tense is a dramatic perfect. The dramatic perfect is a rhetorical application of the perfect tense and an intensification of the already intensive perfect. In fact, it is the most realistic way of describing something that is absolutely permanent and can't be changed. The active voice: Jesus Christ, the royal high priest, produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative which states an unqualified assertion, a point of doctrine. “For the one toward whom these things are spoken belongs ...”

“to another tribe” — the word “tribe” is an objective genitive — phulê (φυλή) [pronounced foo-LAY]. Then we have with that, héteros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os], which means another of a different kind — “a different kind of tribe.” The tribe of Levi is the tribe of the priesthood in Israel, family of Aaron. The tribe of Judah is the kingly tribe. Remember that the king and the priest are separated in Israel. It wasn’t always that way. Reuben was the firstborn. Reuben had as the eldest son all three of the advantages of birthright. He had the birthright double portion — the money would go to him. He had the rulership and the family priesthood. But he lost all three. He lost the rulership to Judah, the priesthood to Levi, and the double portion to Joseph who has two tribes in the double portion: Ephraim and Manasseh. The Levitical priesthood is all in the tribe of Levi but the Lord Jesus Christ belongs to another of a different kind of tribe — different from Levi is what it is saying here. Jesus Christ is descended from the royal line of David, through Solomon and through Nathan. The tribe of the Jewish priesthood is Levi, the family of Aaron. Obviously the priesthood of Christ, therefore, could never be related to the Lord Jesus Christ.

“of which” is not quite correct. We have the preposition apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]. It should be translated “from which.”

“no man” — oudeís (οὐδεὶς) [pronounced oo-DICE], literally, “no one”; “gave attendance” — the perfect active indicative of proséchô (προσέχω) [pronounced pros-EHKH-oh] means “has officiated.” The perfect tense is an intensive perfect. No one in the past has officiated with the result that no one has officiated. The active voice: No one from Judah could ever produce the action of the verb because Judah is not the priestly tribe. The indicative mood is the declarative indicative of unqualified assertion.

“at the altar” is the locative of place. thusiastêrion (θυσιαστήριον) [pronounced thoo-see-as-TAY-ree-ohn] refers to the altar of burnt offerings and therefore the Levitical altar. Who approaches the altar of burnt offerings? Only Levi. You either belong to the tribe of Levi, the family of Aaron, or you just don’t officiate at the altar.

Uzziah, in the line of David, tried to act as a priest, and he became leprous. Only the tribe of Levi can officiate as a priest.

Hebrews 7:13 “For the one toward whom [Jesus Christ] these things are spoken belongs to another of a different kind of tribe, from which no one has officiated at the altar [of burnt offerings].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Heb 7:14 For it is evident that our Lord was descended from Judah, and in connection with that tribe Moses said nothing about priests.

Verse 14 — “For”, the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar; “it is evident” — nominative singular neuter of prodhloj, meaning “known to all”.

“that” — we have hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] after verbs of perception, meaning even dummies know this one!

“our Lord sprang out” — but that isn’t correct. It is the perfect active indicative of anatllo which means to descend — “our Lord has descended from”. The perfect tense is an intensive perfect. In other words, He was born in the tribe of Judah and therefore no matter where He went He was always in the tribe of Judah. He never changed His tribe; He couldn’t change His tribe. The active voice: our Lord produces the action of the verb with the result that He is always descended from Judah, not Levi. The indicative mood: unqualified statement of fact, there is no way that our Lord can ever be brought into the tribe of Levi.

“of Judah” — the preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk], plus the ablative, meaning from the source of Judah, or simply “from Judah.” The genealogies of Matthew and Luke are conclusive.

“of which tribe” — the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus accusative of hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç] plus the accusative of phulê (φυλή) [pronounced foo-LAY]. it should be translated “with reference to which tribe”.

“Moses spake nothing” — the aorist active indicative of lalêô (λάλέω) [pronounced lah-LEH-oh] means he communicated nothing. This is a constative aorist which contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. It takes the entire writings of Moses, gathers them into one ball of wax, and you can’t find anywhere in what Moses wrote any authorization for anyone but the tribe of Levi serving at the altar. The active voice: Moses is the human author of the Pentateuch, and he is producing the action. This is a dogmatic and unqualified assertion as indicated by the indicative mood.

“concerning the priesthood” is not found in the Greek manuscript.

Hebrews 7:14 “For known to all is the fact that our Lord has descended from Judah; with reference to which tribe Moses has communicated nothing.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

1972 Hebrews

Lesson #81

81 09/06/1973 Hebrews 7:15–17; Lev. 21:17–21 Qualifications for the Levitical priesthood

A guy with a Vietnam prisoner who grabs a grenade. He gets him into a bear hug and he thereby protects the other men.

Another one and a copter.

Commenting occurring behind the glass; but tells him to come to him and comment.

Heb 7:15 This becomes even more evident when another priest arises in the likeness of Melchizedek,

Verse 15 — we have the continuative use of the conjunction kai, correctly translated “and, even, also”; “it is” — present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], absolute status quo verb. Between the conjunction and the verb is an adverb, éti (ἔτι) [pronounced EH-tee], which means “still” or “in addition.” “It is” is a static present tense, “it is and always will be.”

“far more evident” — the word for “evident” is katadêlos (κατάδηλος) [pronounced kat-AD-ay-loss] — “And it is still much more evident.”

“for that” — the conjunction ei (εἰ) [pronounced I] which is used for an emotional build-up phrase; “after the similitude of Melchizedek” is the preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of homoiotês (ὁμοιότης) [pronounced hom-oy-OHT-ace], which means likeness or similarity, plus an indeclinable proper noun translated like a descriptive genitive — “according the similarity of Melchizedek.”

Notice that Melchizedek is a king priest; Jesus Christ is a King priest. Melchizedek acquired rulership and priesthood by conquest; Jesus Christ received kingship by birth and He received the priesthood by the divine decrees in eternity past. So it is the king high priest where the similarity exists. Both of them were being regarded from the standpoint of their humanity.

“there ariseth” — present middle indicative of anisthmi. The word means to come upon the scene, to make the scene, to rise up, to stand up in history. We have the historical present tense in which a past event is used with vividness of a present occurrence, and therefore it becomes a very dramatic, very intensive statement. The middle voice describes the subject as participating in the results of the action, or the subject acting with a view toward participating in the outcome. This is what is called a direct middle voice which refers the results of the action directly to the agent with reflexive force; a very strong statement. The indicative mood is declarative for unqualified assertion. Notice with the word “another” the word is héteros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os], so while Melchizedek and Jesus Christ and Church Age believers are all in the same battalion they are not the same persons. Melchizedek is a pattern only. He became a king by conquest, he became a high priest by conquest, and all of this is accomplished as a pattern. But as a spiritual giant when he met Abraham historically he demonstrated his superiority by ministering to Abraham, Abraham recognized his superiority by becoming a citizen of his kingdom by paying taxes. This is very significant because it demonstrates the fact that the first battalion is infinitely superior to the second battalion, even on the one historical meeting. That historical meeting sets up the precedent which we studied in the first ten verses.

Now we have another of a different kind of priest. Jesus Christ was born a king; He was the high priest by decree. Melchizedek became a king by conquest, his genealogy had nothing to do with it. Jesus Christ is a King priest by birth and by the two immutable things from God the Father. We are royal family forever, not by physical birth, not by ability, not by any relation except one: baptism of the Holy Spirit.

Hebrews 7:13 “And it is still much more evident: that according to the similarity of Melchizedek another of a different type of priest arises.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Note that this passage distinguishes between Melchizedek and Jesus Christ.

Melchizedek and Jesus Christ

1. Two things are evident. First, this verse is conclusive that Melchizedek was not a theophany. He is a pattern for the royal priesthood in contrast to the Levitical priesthood.
2. hétēros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os] (another of a different kind) demands further that a distinction be made between the royal priesthood of Melchizedek and the royal priesthood of Jesus Christ.
3. The obvious distinction is that Christ was born into royalty while Melchizedek became royalty by conquest.
4. The king of Salem, Melchizedek, was not born the king of Salem, as per verse 3.
5. This verse now comes into focus and related to the context. Melchizedek was not born king of Salem.
6. Jesus Christ is portrayed in this verse as hétēros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os] — another of a different kind — in that He was born a king. We are born again royalty; Jesus Christ was born physically a king.
7. Nevertheless in the battalion everyone is royalty one way or another. Melchizedek was royalty by conquest, Jesus Christ was royalty by the first birth, and we are royalty by the second birth.
8. Note the application to us, the believers of the Church Age: We are not royalty by human achievement, we are not royalty by physical birth, we are not royalty because we are better than everyone else. We are royalty by regeneration plus the baptism of the Holy Spirit.
9. Consequently, three types of royalty exist in the first battalion. The first is royalty by achievement Melchizedek, the second is Jesus Christ, the high priest, and then we have a kingdom of priests made up of believers of the Church Age.

4 out of 5 things done for us by the Holy Spirit are related to our royalty. Family priesthood, Levitical Priesthood, and the Royal Priesthood.

In verses 16, 17 we have categorical superiority of the royal high priest.

Heb 7:16 who has become a priest, not on the basis of a legal requirement concerning bodily descent, but by the power of an indestructible life.

Verse 16 — we begin with the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç]. The antecedent: another of a different kind — “who” [Jesus Christ]; “is made” — perfect active indicative of ginomai, and should be translated “has become.” The perfect tense is the intensive perfect, it emphasizes the existing results of the completed action. So we could translate it in more detail “Who has become in the past with the result that he will always be.” The active voice: Jesus Christ as the subject produces the action of the verb. He is the royal high priest producing the action here. The declarative indicative is for a dogmatic and unqualified assertion.

“not” — first we get the negative, and it is a shut door. It is the objective negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook].

“after the law of a carnal commandment” — katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] nomon entolê (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY] sarkinhj, “not according to the law of physical requirements. “Not according to the law” is the first part, nomon is in the accusative; entolê (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY] sarkinhj are genitives which describe.

Summary

1. We have the strong negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook], a point blank negation, it is objective and final.
2. We have the preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] which refers to the Mosaic law's requirements for the Levitical priesthood — Leviticus 21:17–21.
3. We have the genitive of description entolê (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY], and it extrapolates the specific paragraphs in the Mosaic law which deal with the qualifications of the Levitical priesthood.
4. We have the adjective sarkikos (σαρκικός) [pronounced sar-kee-KOSS] which simply refers to the fact that all qualifications for the Levitical priesthood were physical and not spiritual. There were no spiritual qualifications. You didn't have to be saved, it was the physical birth that counted, minus the defects. They had to have good breeding. This is important because that means whatever came from selective breeding was lost at death. Furthermore, selective breeding carries a tremendous pride and they did practice selective breeding with the line of Aaron. It was very important to them to have the most beautiful physical male specimens.

Leviticus 21 — everything in the Levitical priesthood depended upon physical requirements from birth all of the way through.

Verse 17 — “Speak unto Aaron, saying, Whosoever he be of thy seed in their generations who hath any blemish, let him not approach to offer the bread of his God.” The bread of his God refers to officiating at the altar, to putting bread on the table of showbread, entering. In other words, the function of the priesthood.

Verse 18 — “For whatsoever man he be that hath a blemish, he shall not approach: a blind man, or a lame, or he who hath a flat nose, or anything superfluous [Hebrew: “deformed legs”].”

Verse 19 — “Or a man that is broken-footed, or broken-handed.”

Verse 20 — “Or a crookbacked [hunchback], or a dwarf, or hath a blemish [defect] in his eye, or be scurvy [eczema], or scabs [or other skin diseases], or hath his stones broken [crushed testicles].”

Lev 21:17 "Speak to Aaron, saying, None of your offspring throughout their generations who has a blemish may approach to offer the bread of his God.

Lev 21:18 For no one who has a blemish shall draw near, a man blind or lame, or one who has a mutilated face or a limb too long,...

Lev 21:19 ...or a man who has an injured foot or an injured hand,...

Lev 21:20 ...or a hunchback or a dwarf or a man with a defect in his sight or an itching disease or scabs or crushed testicles.

Lev 21:21 No man of the offspring of Aaron the priest who has a blemish shall come near to offer the LORD's food offerings; since he has a blemish, he shall not come near to offer the bread of his God.

These men represented man to God; and therefore, had to be without blemish, as they represented Jesus Christ.

All of this adds up to the fact that they were very particular about their priesthood on the basis of God's Word. It wasn't just a matter of pride with them. God ordered it; He ordained this. The reason is because they were dealing with spiritual things. When there is the administration of spiritual things there is not to be anything to break the concentration of the people. In other words, no distractions from physical handicaps. There must not be distraction when it comes to spiritual things. No breaking the concentration of those who are there.

Bob illustrates this walking with a bad leg.

In the Levitical priesthood it must be remembered that no matter how great they were in their spiritual lives their qualifications were still all physical. They had to be born in a certain family, they had to be physically without any handicap of any kind. The concept is a very important one: If the requirements are physical they are terminated by physical death. When Aaron died he never again served as a priest. Nor did any other Levitical priest.

Samuel is in the line of Ithamar?

“but” — the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH]. The contrast between the physical requirements for the Levitical priesthood and the spiritual norms for the royal priesthood as represented in the person of Jesus Christ.

“after the power” — katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative singular of dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss], inherent power, and it should be translated “according to the inherent power of an endless life” — zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY] plus akatalutos (ἀκατάλυτος) [pronounced ak-at-AL-oo-toss. Zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY] means “life”; akatalutos (ἀκατάλυτος) [pronounced ak-at-AL-oo-toss] does not mean endless, it means “indestructible”; “according to the inherent power of indestructible life”.

Hebrews 7:16 “Who has become a priest, not according to the law of physical requirements, but according to the power of indestructible life.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary

1. This indestructible life is described in the next verse as eternal life or forever life.
2. Therefore, a priesthood which only possesses physical requirements is terminated by physical death.
3. But a priesthood which is related to eternal life can only be entered by regeneration and never destroyed by death.
4. So not only is the royal priesthood of the Church Age a superior priesthood of nobility in the royal family but it lasts forever.
5. The documentation for the royal priesthood is given in the next verse. This documentation relates Christ our high priest to us and is not part of the Mosaic law.
6. Therefore it is not an extrapolation from Moses but an extrapolation from the eternal decrees that authorizes our priesthood, our royalty — Psalm 110:4.

Heb 7:17 For it is witnessed of him, "You are a priest forever, after the order of Melchizedek."

Verse 17 — the documentation is taken from an extrapolation of the divine decrees and is quoted in Psalm 110:4.

Psalm 110:4 The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind, "You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek."

“For” is the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar; “he testifieth” is not found in the original.

“Thou” — the emphatic use of the personal pronoun su. Because it is proleptic it should be translated “you and only you”.

“a priest forever” — hierous (ἱερέως) [pronounced hee-er-YOOCE] eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] ton aion (αἰών) [pronounced ī-OHN], “priest with reference to the ages [idiomatic for ‘forever’].” This emphasizes and documents the eternity of the royal priesthood. Christ as the God-Man lives forever. We as born again believers, members of the family of God by faith in Christ, live forever in union with Christ.

“after the order of Melchizedek”, or literally, “according to the battalion of...”

Hebrews 7:17 (Translation, quoting from Psalm 110:4) — “For you and only you, a priest for ever according to the battalion of Melchizedek.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

This was first addressed to Jesus Christ in eternity past. Now, since you and I have been entered into union with Christ this applies to us as much as it applies to Him, except that we are a kingdom of priests and He is the high priest. He is not only the ruler of the Church but He is the high priest of the royal priesthood.

1972 Hebrews 7:18–20

Lesson #82

82 09/07/1973 Hebrews 7:18–20 Doctrine of the Mosaic Law

Heb 7:18 For on the one hand, a former commandment is set aside because of its weakness and uselessness

Verse 18 — we have a contrast of authorizing agencies. Superiority has been demonstrated by an historical encounter. Superiority has been demonstrated by the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ as a king — His appointment from the divine decrees. Now this is emphasized in contrasting the divine decrees with the Mosaic law.

We have an explanatory use of the conjunction gar. It is a particle which has a great deal to do with the thought continuity of the Greek language as well as its interpretation. It is followed by the affirmative particle men, used with de in classical Greek. These two particles are used — on the one hand, on the other — to present the alternatives of a situation. So literally, “On the one hand there is.”

“there is” — present active indicative of ginomai — “there comes to pass.” The present tense is an historical present used for a past event viewed with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: the subject produces the action of the verb; the subject is not found until a little later, it is the word “commandment.” This is a declarative indicative for unqualified assertion.

“a disannulling” — athetêsis (ἀθέτησις) [pronounced ath-EHT-ay-siss] which means “annulled”; “a commandment going before” — the word “commandment” is a genitive singular, and with the present active participle, an ascriptive participle which qualifies the noun as an adjective, we get something that goes like this: “a former commandment.” “For on the one hand a former commandment becomes annulled.” “Disannulling”, athetêsis (ἀθέτησις) [pronounced ath-EHT-ay-siss], is a noun for “annulled”.

The former commandment refers to the Mosaic law. The Mosaic law is the authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood. The Levitical priesthood is appointed on the basis of what the Mosaic law says. The Mosaic law is annulled, therefore there is no basis for the continuation of the Levitical priesthood. Therefore people who are in the Levitical line today do not function as priests unless they believe in Jesus Christ, at which point they are no longer Israel but Church. They are members of the body of Christ and that is the only way anyone who has this name — Kohen — can actually become a priest today. Kohen means priest and it was a name given to those generally in the line of Aaron, either through Eleazar or Ithumar.

The dramatic interruption of the Age of Israel annulled two things: the Levitical priesthood and its authorizing agent, the Mosaic law. The reason for the abrogation of the Mosaic law is now described in the prepositional phrase, “for the weakness”, the preposition dia plus the accusative of asthenês (ἀσθενής) [pronounced as-thehn-ACE] which means weakness or powerlessness. Dia plus the accusative should be “because of.” Soit should be translated “because of powerlessness.”

We also have an intensive pronoun autos, it intensifies the demonstrative pronoun and further qualifies what is being discussed. The intensive pronoun here is used as a possessive pronoun and so we have a literal translation, “because of its powerlessness.” The powerlessness of the Mosaic law is the fact that it authorizes an obsolete priesthood. The Mosaic law is still in the Bible, it will always be in the Bible, but it is not functioning today. The priesthood that it authorizes is defunct. Therefore the Mosaic law is powerless. It is powerless to produce a Levitical priesthood functioning today, to get you to keep the Sabbath which is just as defunct as the Levitical priesthood and all of the rest of the Mosaic law. We do not live under the Mosaic law. The Mosaic law authorizes Levitical sacrifices. We need to know about those sacrifices because they are beautiful illustrations and often they help to elucidate with regard to the work of Christ on the cross. But we do not offer those sacrifices because the Mosaic law is powerless. In their day they were meaningful and wonderful, but now they are powerless. The Mosaic law is annulled because of its powerlessness. The annulment of the Mosaic law as an authorizing agent is just as absolute as the putting away of sin at the cross — Hebrews 9:26. The law was conditional, depending on the laws of divine establishment. The new authorizing agent for the new royal priesthood is unconditional, depending on who and what God is. The law depends on human nobility; grace and our authorizing agent depends upon divine nobility. The Mosaic law is an appeal to human nobility; our authorizing agent is an appeal to grace and divine nobility. The law applies to physical birth; grace applies to the new birth. The law is temporal; grace is eternal.

“and unprofitableness” — again we have the accusative, this time from anwfelej which is a part of the same prepositional phrase and should be translated “uselessness.”

Because of the interruption of the Jewish dispensation the law is now useless. It was designed for an interrupted and non-functioning dispensation. The insertion of the Church Age makes the law useless.

Powerlessness of the Mosaic Law

1. The powerlessness of the Mosaic law is based on the fact that it authorized an obsolete priesthood.
2. The annulment of the Mosaic law as an absolute and as an authorizing agent is just as absolute as the putting away of sin.
3. The law was conditional, depending upon divine establishment.
4. The new authorizing agent for the royal priesthood is unconditional, depending upon God, the divine persons of the Trinity rather than the divine establishment.
5. The law demands human nobility; the royal priesthood demands divine nobility.

6. The law applies to physical birth — starting with circumcision, but the royal priesthood applies to the new birth.
7. The law is temporal; the royal priesthood is eternal.

The authorizing agent for the Levitical Priesthood is declared annulled

Hebrews 7:18 For on the one hand, a former commandment from the Mosaic Law becomes annulled because of its powerlessness and uselessness. R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

The Doctrine of the Mosaic Law

1. The Mosaic law is divided into three parts: the moral code —
  - a. Codex #1 — which has the commandments related to the laws of establishment — like in Exodus chapter 20 and Deuteronomy chapter five. This part of the Mosaic law is pertinent today under the laws of divine establishment;
  - b. Codex #2 is the spiritual code, known in the scripture [KJV] as the ordinances. It is a complete Christology designed to present the Lord Jesus Christ as the only Savior and the God of Israel. It includes everything from the structure of the tabernacle, the holy days, the Levitical offerings, and the modus operandi of the Levitical priesthood;
  - c. Codex #3 is known in the KJV as the judgements. It presents divine laws of establishment designed to provide freedom and privacy for Israel. It was designed to protect their property, their rights, their privileges. It included the functions of the divine institutions, many practical and wonderful things such as diet, sanitation, quarantine, soil conservation, taxation, universal military training, and many other things.
2. It is very important to understand the recipients of the Mosaic law. They can be divided into three very simple points.
  - a. It was given to Israel — Exodus 19:3; Leviticus 26:46; Romans 3:19; 9:4;
  - b. It was not given to the Gentiles — Deuteronomy 4:8; Romans 2:12–14;
  - c. Christians — Church Age believers — are not under the law. It was not given to the Church. It is not an authorizing agent for any part of the royal priesthood — Acts 15:5, 24; Romans 6:14; Galatians 2:19.
3. The Lord Jesus Christ fulfilled the law — Matthew 5:17. He fulfilled specifically, Codex #2, by His ministry on the cross. In effect, He actually fulfilled Codex #1 by His impeccability. It can even be said that He fulfilled certain stages of Codex #3 in the field of patriotism and the laws of establishment — Matthew 22:21. But the principle concept is that the Lord Jesus Christ fulfilled the law by His sacrifice on the cross.
4. Therefore, Christ is the end of the law for the royal family, for Church Age believers, for the royal priesthood — Romans 10:4. And in effect there is a conflict between the royal priesthood of the believer and the former Levitical priesthood. The conflict is resolved by the annulment, the abrogation of the law. The law is not in function today.

5. Believers of the Church Age, members of the royal family, are under a higher law. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the badge of royalty. The filling of the Holy Spirit is the fulfilment of the higher law, the superseding law, the law which nullifies the Mosaic law — Romans 8:2–4; Galatians 5:18, 22, 23; 1 Corinthians chapter 13.
6. The limitations of the Mosaic law.
  - a. It cannot justify. The law was never designed to be an agent of justification — Galatians 2:16; Romans 3:20, 28; Acts 13:39; Philippians 3:9.
  - b. It cannot provide life, it cannot perpetuate anything. Everything related to the law died and disappeared — like the Levitical priesthood. The Mosaic law could not perpetuate the Levitical priesthood forever. So it cannot give life — Galatians 3:21.
  - c. It cannot provide God the Holy Spirit — Galatians 3:2. God the Holy Spirit is provided — indwelling only — members of the royal family as the sign of royalty.
  - d. It cannot solve the problem of the old sin nature — Romans 8:3.
7. The present purpose of the Mosaic law.
  - a. Under Codex #1 we have a definition of freedom through the laws of divine establishment. Codex #1 is also designed to convince by divine standard that the unbeliever is a sinner and needs a Savior — Romans 3:20, 28; 1 Timothy 1:8–10.
  - b. Codex #2 is designed to communicate the Gospel by illustration, by analogy.
  - c. Codex #3 provides for the national function of freedom under the laws of divine establishment: freedom through military victory, prosperity through free enterprise.
8. This is in contrast to our passage where the past purpose of the Mosaic law was for an authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood. We saw that in Hebrews 7:11, 12, 8.
9. The Mosaic law is known by other nomenclature. For example, it is called the book of the covenant — Exodus 24:7, 8; 34:27, 28; Deuteronomy 4:13–16, 23; 8:18; 9:9, 11, 15. There is an addendum to the Mosaic law in Deuteronomy 29. The prophecy of the breaking of the covenant is found in Deuteronomy 31, and also Jeremiah 22:9. The book of the covenant is the subject of Jeremiah chapter 11 but is not to be confused with the new covenant of Jeremiah 31.
10. Keeping the law was never a way of salvation, it was the way of human freedom and human prosperity under establishment. It was designed to provide the best possible conditions for the writing of the Old Testament canon, and it did that perfectly. There is constant reference throughout the Old Testament to the Mosaic law.

Hebrews 7:18 “For on the one hand a former commandment [the Mosaic law] becomes annulled because of its powerlessness and uselessness.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Heb 7:19 (for the law made nothing perfect); but on the other hand, a better hope is introduced, through which we draw near to God.

Verse 19 — “For”, a second explanatory gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] to introduce a parenthesis. Now we have a parenthetical concept — “For the law”, ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] which refers to the Mosaic law which is the authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood as well as animal sacrifices, holy days, and other shadows of the past dispensation.

“made nothing perfect” — teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis], means the process of completion. It means that Christ at the time of the cross, all the way through to His ascension, was alone. So ten days later God provided a bride, but the provision of the bride takes the entire course of the Church Age. The point is, this is teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis], — the process of completing the body. The process demands the permanent creation of a royal family, and you and I as believers in the Lord Jesus Christ are royalty forever — not by regeneration but by the baptism of the Holy Spirit which occurred at regeneration. Regeneration enters you into the family of God but the baptism of the Holy Spirit enters you into the palace of the family of God — royal family. We are in union with the person of Christ through the baptism of the Spirit. The phrase “made nothing perfect” is the aorist active indicative of teleiōō (τελειόω) [pronounced tehl-i-OH-oh], the verb. It means to complete, to bring to an end, or to finish a process. “For the law did not finish the process”. We have a very strong negative, oudeis (οὐδεῖς) [pronounced oo-DICE],. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. it takes the occurrence of the function of the law all the way from Moses to Christ and gathers it up into a single whole. The active voice: the law produces the action of the verb, which is accomplishing nothing as far as providing a bride for Christ. The indicative mood is declarative denoting the verbal idea as being actual. It is the mood of certainty and unqualified dogmatic assertion.

“but” — now we have de which goes with men. This is classical Greek. Now we have ‘on the other hand’: “but (close of parenthesis) on the other hand”

“the bringing in” — epeisagōgē (ἐπεισαγωγή) [pronounced ehp-ice-ag-oh-GAY] minus the definite article means “introduction, insertion”; “of a better hope [or confidence].” “Better hope” is the genitive singular from the comparative of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS]. It can be spelled two ways: kreisswn or kreittōn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn]. Kreittōn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn] is a comparative of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS]. We have here descriptive genitives and they are used as adjectives, they qualify what is introduced by the interruption of the Church Age. Hence, this is the descriptive genitive defined by attributing a quality to what is introduced. So we translate it simply, “by the introduction of a better confidence.”

“by the which” — dia plus the genitive of the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç]. It should be translated “through which”. The relative pronoun refers to the better confidence. The better confidence is your confidence. What is your confidence? The moment you believed in Christ you entered the royal family. You are nobility forever, you are a member of the royal family forever. There never was such a thing before in history even in the battalion of Melchizedek where you have a royal high priest. He is dead and it is all over. Melchizedek will be another illustration — a king in time but in heaven he is just another member of the family of God. Not that that is to be sneered at but we have a comparative here. This is better than good is what this comparative says, so we say better than good confidence.

“we draw nigh” — the present active indicative of eggizô (ἐγγίζω) [pronounced eng-ID-zoh]. The present tense is a static present, it represents a condition which perpetually exists in the royal priesthood. We have a better confidence, better than anything that ever went before, better than the Mosaic law. We are more permanent. The Mosaic law is now in a state of annulment but you and I go on forever as royal family. “unto God” — this is dative of indirect object of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] plus the definite article. The definite article is merely used to show that God has been previously brought into the context. The dative of indirect object is used in a very idiomatic sense here. It is a dative of possession in which the personal interest in God is made very special to the point of ownership. We now, as members of the family of God, should have a very personal interest in God, an interest which can only be satisfied and assuaged by the study of Bible doctrine. The royal priesthood possesses God forever.

Summary

1. The better than good confidence is the superior authorizing agent for the royal priesthood. The superior authorizing agent is actually twofold: the decree of eternity past but the ministry of God the Holy Spirit at the point of salvation. So the authorizing agent for the royal priesthood is God the third person of the Trinity, coequal with the Father, coequal with the Son. He is our authorizing agent and He will be forever and ever.
2. God the Holy Spirit as the authorizing agent accomplished His mission in a permanent manner. He took you and He took me at the moment of salvation — and it is known as the baptism of the Spirit — and He entered us into union with Jesus Christ. At the same time He indwelt us, at the same time He sealed us, at the same time He gave us at least one spiritual gift.
3. We as members of the royal priesthood approach God on the basis of union with Christ, which we call simply positional sanctification. We approach with confidence because we are sealed by the Spirit, we are indwelt by the Spirit.
4. We approach with confidence because the ministry of God the Holy Spirit is infinitely superior to the ministry of the Mosaic law. The Mosaic law is the authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood; God the Holy Spirit is the authorizing agent for the royal priesthood.
5. As we have seen in this verse the law does not accomplish the completion of a process, the law accomplishes nothing. But God the Holy Spirit accomplishes everything.
6. We saw that noun epeisagôgê (ἐπεισαγωγή) [pronounced ehp-ice-ag-oh-GAY], translated “introduction.” That noun emphasizes the fact of doctrine that the Church

Age is an interruption of the dispensation of Israel. It is an intercalation period, it is inserted toward the end of the Jewish Age.

7. This interruption of the Jewish dispensation is dramatic and traumatic. The Levitical priesthood could only approach the shadow of good things to come, but we have entered into the reality of good things to come.
8. The royal priesthood deals strictly in reality, the Levitical priesthood in shadows.
9. This means that we as believers in this dispensation approach God on the basis of a royal and eternal priesthood.
10. At the moment of salvation the Holy Spirit regenerated us. He did that for all believers since Adam.
11. But God the Holy Spirit simultaneously with regeneration baptizes us into union with Christ. Therefore for the first time the baptism of the Spirit, and for the first time a permanent royal family exists. In other words, God the Son has finally selected His bride, the Church Age believer.
12. While we are family of God like the Old Testament saints, we are more than family of God. We are royal family, we live in the palace forever.
13. Furthermore, the sign of royalty is the indwelling presence of God the Holy Spirit.
14. The security of royalty is the sealing ministry of the Spirit.
15. Therefore the introduction of a better hope or confidence implies a dispensation without precedent, a priesthood without termination, a royalty through perfect and permanent relationship. We are not perfect but the manner in which we were entered into union with Christ is perfect. The work was accomplished by God the Holy Spirit who is perfect, so we do have a perfect relationship.
16. For this reason Jesus Christ is the only celebrity.

That brings us now to a new section: The superiority of the royal priesthood of the Church Age — verses 20–28. In verses 20–22, superiority is established on the basis of two immutable things. The two immutable things were first presented to us in chapter 6:16–18. The two immutable things are a divine promise — the Word, and a divine oath — a person. So the two immutable things always involve the person and His Word. The oath is always connected with a person, and the promise is connected with His Word. That is the key.

So far we have not seen two immutable things as they relate to our priesthood, we have only seen them as they relate to Abraham. Abraham received a promise on the basis of two immutable things: an oath and a promise, the person and the Word. Now they are going to be applied to the royal priesthood. In Hebrews 6 we had the illustration of two immutable things and the illustration was Abraham. There are two immutable things because God is immutable, and He is immutable in two ways. He is immutable as to His essence, His person, and He is immutable as to what He says. God cannot lie, God cannot waver on a promise. So the two immutable things are both related to who and what God is and what He says; His person and the content of His Word. The two immutable things are the basis for the royal priesthood, making it superior to anything in any previous dispensation. Furthermore, the two immutable things apply to the royal priesthood causing it to last forever without any possibility of annulment. The Mosaic law and the Levitical priesthood were annulled. That will never happen to us. This gives us a permanent royalty and a permanent priesthood.

This also stimulates us to advance to supergrace in time so that we can discover what royalty is like. This can only be accomplished through the classroom of the local church, under the authority of the ministry of the pastor-teacher. (It can be accomplished by listening to tapes because you can't get anything locally, and you can go all the way to supergrace)

Bob talks about some of those who are trying to scratch up a congregation. They make his pants tired.

Heb 7:20 And it was not without an oath. For those who formerly became priests were made such without an oath,

Verse 20 — “And inasmuch as.” This is the transitional use of kai plus a preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the object of the preposition kata, the accusative of hosos (ὅσος) [pronounced HOS-os]. What it really means is “By how much, by so far as.” But we simply say in modern English, “Inasmuch as”.

“not without” — we have a very strong negative, ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook]. Then we have an adverb, chôris (χωρίς) [pronounced khoh-REECE]. A few things about ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook]: First of all, ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] is the particle of summary negation. It is a very proper negative particle for the statement of an absolute and downright negative fact. Ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] denies the reality of an alleged fact. It is therefore a clear cut, point blank, objective, final negative. It is also very objective. It says no objectively, not subjectively. In other words, it shuts the door tight. Whereas mê, the other negative particle, leaves a crack in the door, says no and means yes, that type of thing. The adverb chôris (χωρίς) [pronounced khoh-REECE] is an improper preposition. So “apart from an oath” is actually a prepositional phrase, but chôris (χωρίς) [pronounced khoh-REECE] is really an adverb and not a preposition though it is used as a preposition. And with the improper preposition we have a compound noun horkômosia (ὄρκωμοσία) [pronounced hor-koh-moss-EE-ah], which really means the act of taking an oath — “And inasmuch as not without the taking of an oath.”

What Does this Mean?

1. It is a reference to an oath made at the time of the eternal decrees. When God started to utter this phase of the eternal decrees that involved us, the royal family and the royal priesthood, He swore by an oath [by Himself because there was no greater]. When He came to the Church Age He took an oath on the basis of His own immutable, unchangeable, perfect character. Then, having taken the oath He promised the Church Age, a royal priesthood, a royal high priest, a Savior for the body, and all the rest of it. By union with Christ through the baptism of God the Holy Spirit we share in the oath that God the Father made to God the Son with regard to His royalty, He promised Him a royal family, a royal bride, a royal priesthood, and

He promise this would be perpetuated forever. So at the time of the declaration of the divine decrees pertaining to the appointment of Jesus Christ as a royal high priest God the Father took an oath mentioned in this phrase. And that is why it isn't a regular prepositional phrase. God the Father never took an oath with regard to the Levitical priesthood. The Mosaic law is not a part of the eternal decrees.

2. The extrapolation of the decrees in Psalm 110:4 authorizes the royal priesthood through the appointment of the Lord Jesus Christ.
3. By union with Christ we share in that appointment just as we share in the priesthood.
4. At the time of the declaration of the divine decrees pertaining to the appointment of Jesus Christ as a royal priest God the Father took an oath mentioned in the prepositional phrase "and not apart from taking an oath."
5. God the Father never took an oath regarding the Levitical priesthood.
6. Therefore the superiority of the royal priesthood over the Levitical priesthood.

Hebrews 7:20 "And inasmuch as not without the taking of an oath our royal priesthood was appointed." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

1972 Hebrews 7:21a

Lesson #83

83 09/09/1973 Hebrews 7:21a God's oath, authorization of the royal priesthood

The Jewish Age was interrupted. Jesus Christ is sovereignty royalty. The filling of the Spirit is the badge of our royalty. We are also priests at the same time. We are in the greatest battalion. Melchizedek acquired his royalty through conquest. Jesus was born a king. We are in Melchizedek's battalion. Melchizedek blessed Abraham; that make Melchizedek greater. A review of the verses.

Melchizedek was a priest and a king and a supergrace believer. Abraham liked how Melchizedek ruled and he joined Melchizedek's country. Abraham paid back taxes and all future taxes all at once.

Heb 7:21 but this one was made a priest with an oath by the one who said to him: "The Lord has sworn and will not change his mind, 'You are a priest forever.'"

Verse 21 — a parenthesis. In order to understand this verse there are three things we need to know first.

What We Need to Understand about V. 21

1. First of all, this verse is parenthetical It indicates the superiority of the royal priesthood over the Levitical in relationship to the divine oath.
2. Secondly, the sentence was begun in verse 20 and is completed in verse 22. The sentence of verse 20 is not complete but it will be completed in verse 22.

3. Thirdly, we word order is very different in the Greek text and therefore we will have to follow from time to time the word order of the Greek text in understanding verse 21.

We begin with the word “For” in the English. This is a conjunctive particle gar. It has a number of uses. In fact, all continuity in the Greek language is carried on by conjunctive particles rather than by verbs and the full structure of sentences. gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] is used to express the ground or the reason, the explanation, and to indicate a parenthesis. We also have with gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] an affirmative particle, men, used with the nominative plural of the definite article. So we have another particle, o(i) — the definite article is actually a particle. So we have gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] men o(i), and all of these are used to explain how God giving a solemn oath relates to the Levitical priesthood. God, in eternity past, was carving out the divine decrees and He was declaring that there would be a royal priesthood, greater than the Levitical priesthood, superseding the Levitical priesthood, and being a priesthood forever — a priesthood which doesn’t run around and hustle, but a priesthood which operates in the soul. The whole function of the royal priesthood of the dispensation in which we live is to get doctrine into the soul, not to be running around and hustling and not to be trying to sell the Lord Jesus Christ like you would sell soap or some other product. This is our objective. Then, after getting doctrine into the soul, the next objective is to get to the place where God can bless us. We do this through the intake of Bible doctrine. So the big function of the priesthood in our day is exactly like the big function of the Levitical priesthood in this sense. Their job was to take in doctrine; our job is to take in doctrine. However, their job was to take in doctrine to communicate it; our job is to take in doctrine to get to the place of supergrace status where the Lord Jesus Christ can be glorified. He is glorified when you are made wealthy, when you are made successful, when you are promoted, when you are given materialist things. He is glorified when the supergrace blessings are poured out in your life.

Most of you have been confused that as a Christian, you are supposed to become some great hustler; or fill up your car with young people and drive from point A to point B.

About the only kind of oath that we know of occurs in the courtroom.

“For in fact” is the way we are going to translate men. And then o(i), the definite article, is actually going to be used as a pronoun — “For in fact they [Levitical priests] without an oath.” Now we have an improper prepositional phrase. We do not have anything improper in the English language but we have many improper things in the Koine Greek of the New Testament. And the purpose of improper prepositional phrases is to give special emphasis to something. The word chôris (χωρίς) [pronounced khoh-REECE] is actually an adverb. This is an adverb used as a preposition, therefore it becomes improper. With it we also have the genitive case of the noun horkômosia (ὄρκωμοσία) [pronounced hor-koh-moss-EE-ah]. The word actually means to take an oath. God the Father actually said when He came to this part of the decree, “I promise to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help me, me.” He had to swear by Himself, there is no greater.

“For in fact they [the Levitical priests], without the taking of an oath” — which means that the Levitical priesthood was appointed without God saying, “I swear by myself.” God did not appoint the Levitical priesthood by taking a solemn divine oath. God did not make any oath of any kind. This is in contrast to our priesthood where God took a solemn oath that we would be priests forever after the order of or, as the Greek says, according to the battalion of Melchizedek. So our priesthood is based upon something which is absolutely, totally unusual. God not only appointed you a priest forever but He made it doubly sure by saying, “I swear in my own name.” Now that is your heritage.

So on the one hand we have the swearing and on the other the content of the divine decrees. And God said certain things. He said that after the glorification of Jesus Christ at the right hand of the Father, at the termination of the first stage of the strategic victory of the angelic conflict, there would be a new priesthood, there would be a royal family and that this new priesthood and this new royal family would perform teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis], the process of completion. And it would take at least 2000 years — we do not know how much longer — to finish up teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis]. When teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis], is completed then this particular body will be removed to heaven where it becomes the bride of Christ and where it continues forever.

So we have two immutable things: the person of God the Father and the Word of God the Father. These two things establish your royalty forever. You cannot lose your royalty, you cannot lose what you have. When we come to the Levitical priesthood we are looking at something in contrast. The contrast is quite obvious. “For in fact they [the Levitical priesthood], without the taking of an oath, have become”.

Many famous families of the world have lost their royalty; the Hapsburg’s, the Hollenzon’s, but we cannot lose out. There is no failure on our part that can cancel out our royalty.

“Were made” is what you have in your English Bibles.” This is a perfect periphrastic composed of two things. First of all we have the perfect passive participle plus the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The participle is ginomai. We have both of the verbs to be indicating the long historical record of the Levitical priesthood. We have ginomai in the perfect participle, we also have eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] in the present active indicative. This is called a perfect periphrastic in the Greek. And it indicates that even though they did not have an oath they existed for a long, long time and made a very definite impact in history.

Take, for example, the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The present tense is a customary present indicating that the Levitical priesthood habitually were appointed without divine oath. God never gave His word to perpetuated them. The active voice: the Levitical priesthood produces the action of the verb. They were appointed without any divine oath or sanction personally from God. No Levitical priest was appointed under the two immutable things.

Take, for example, the perfect participle of ginomai. This perfect tense is called a consummative perfect in which not the existing state but the process is emphasized. In the historical process of the Levitical priesthood they were never appointed by divine oath. The authorizing agent was the Mosaic law. Then they were born in the proper line, and they lived until they became mature and then they were actually ordained in a special ceremony, provided they passed all of the physical requirements. It was physical birth that put them in, it was the physical condition that made it possible for them to function. So all the way through it is physical requirements, physical requirements. There is nothing of the divine oath, there is nothing of the divine decree, it is strictly a matter of perpetuation by the usual manner of perpetuating the human race. That is the consummative perfect, it is the one type of perfect which is very rare. In the consummative perfect we have therefore a physical process by which a priesthood is perpetuated.

So literally we have, “For in fact they [the Levitical priesthood], without the taking of an oath have become...”

“priests” — referring to the Levitical priesthood; “but” — now we have the adversative use of a post positive conjunction de. We are going to set up a contrast here. This means to set up a contrast between the Levitical priesthood appointed without a divine oath, appointed on the basis of physical perpetuation, and the royal priesthood appointed with a divine oath, appointed under the authorizing agent of the divine decrees.

The next word is “this.” However, the word “this” is a definite article in the nominative singular and if use with the particle de it means something else. So we have de plus o. It is used as a personal pronoun. One of the purposes of the definite article is to call attention to the noun that it modifies. Here the noun that it modifies is understood, and when it is understood and preceded by the particle de it is a very special and a very emphatic personal pronoun. So we translate, “but he” — reference to the unique person of the universe, the Lord Jesus Christ who is directly related to our priesthood, to our status on this earth, to every blessing we will ever have. He is the God-Man, the King of kings, the Lord of lords, He is a high priest forever in the battalion of Melchizedek. So it is the Lord Jesus Christ who is brought into focus suddenly in a very dramatic way. The putting of these particles together gives great emphasis to who and what the Lord Jesus Christ is.

In the royal priesthood of the Church Age Jesus Christ is the only one directly appointed. Our appointment is related to Him, to the fact that the moment we believe in Christ something different happens in the Church Age — the baptism of the Holy Spirit. This only happens in this dispensation.

We are royalty. Our Constitution calls for a Republic, not a Democracy. Rome is the only nation with 1000 years of marvelous history, and 500 of those years it was a republic.

Some of us have been related to royalty from Scotland, Wales, England. Many of us might have no idea even how to be even a Texan. Suppose you run into royalty. “You do not call a duke, duke.” You do not say, “Hey, duke, what’s going on?” Similar, you would not see to the queen, “What’s going on, queeny.” We do not even say your majesty, as we are not English subjects. We would reasonably call her ma’am.

Royalty is not starving yourself, sitting in a closet and try to see visions. Throwing a faggot on the fire and making some oath, is not royalty. Royalty does run around asking for money; or even throw banquets for money; royalty never suffers for Jesus.

Bob through away about 20 pages of notes on Ephesians. He now has 55 pages of notes and he is only to Eph. 4.

We are royalty forever; we are the bride of Christ. The Old Testament saints are merely called friends of the groom. Royal people can be jerks and you may prove that point. The first function of the royal priesthood is the intake of Bible doctrine.

“but this one [the Lord Jesus Christ] with an oath have become priests” — we have the preposition meta plus the genitive of horkōmosia (ὄρκωμοσία) [pronounced hor-koh-moss-EE-ah]. Now “with” is correct here; “accompanied by” is the concept — “with the taking of an oath.”

Summary of taking an oath in v. 21

1. The oath mentioned here is one of two immutable things.
2. The other is the promise or the content of the decree extrapolated in Psalm 110:4.
3. Aaron’s line became priest through physical birth and physical qualifications. Their authorization was the Mosaic law. No divine oath was involved in the ordination of a Levitical priest.
4. Therefore, the twofold authority of the physical priesthood was a) physical birth (physical qualifications of those from the line of Ithamar or Eleazar); b) the Mosaic law which not only authorized the line of Aaron and the tribe of Levi but, again, specified physical requirements for ordination.
5. Nothing permanent comes from the authority of the Levitical priesthood.
6. The physical death of the priest terminated his function while the interruption of the dispensation of Israel — interrupted by the Church Age — annulled the Mosaic law.
7. On the other hand we have a twofold authority for the royal priesthood.
  - a. God’s oath based upon the immutability of His essence, based upon the perfection of His person; and
  - b. ...the divine decrees, which is what God said at this stage of the decrees, and we have a concept of what he said from the extrapolation in Psalm 110:4.

Literally, then, we have so far in this verse: “For in fact they [the Levitical priests], without the taking of an oath, have become priests; but he [Jesus Christ] by the taking of an oath...”

“by him that said” — not correct. It is dia plus the definite article in the genitive, and it should be translated “through him”, or “through the one saying”. We also have the present active participle of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh].

“unto him” — pros plus the accusative of the intensive pronoun autos — “face to face with him [with the Father].” Jesus Christ as a member of the Trinity was present at the divine decrees in eternity past. So the prepositional phrase indicates that both the Father and the Son were present at the divine decrees. Not mentioned but also present was God the Holy Spirit.

“The Lord” — kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], a title for deity. Kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] stands for the Hebrew Tetragrammaton which we simply call “Jehovah.” Kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] is used here for God the Father, the author of the divine decrees.

“sware” — aorist active indicative of omnuō (ὀμνύω) [pronounced om-NOO-oh], equivalent to the Hebrew shaba which was used for a solemn oath. The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist, it states the present reality of a past event. It indicates that this event took place in the past but it is stated as a present event because it is so dramatic and so pertinent. In eternity past God the Father said these things but it is stated in the aorist in order to show that they are just as important now to us, in fact more so than ever before. It is used to state what has just been realized. The active voice: God the Father produced the action of the verb as a part of the divine decrees. The indicative mood is unqualified assertion of an eternal decree related to us. The Lord made a solemn oath. The first immutable thing is the Person. The second immutable thing emphasizes the promise.

“and will not repent” — you can emphasize that right now for this reason: You may have failed. You may be a failure right now in your spiritual life. God isn’t going to change His mind because you are a colossal failure. It just proves that you have rejected divine authority at some point but it doesn’t change God’s mind. Now here is the principle: The Lord made a solemn oath and will not change His mind. The word here is a future passive indicative of metamelomai.(μεταμέλομαι) [pronounced meh-tah-MEH-loh-my]. Metamelomai.(μεταμέλομαι) [pronounced meh-tah-MEH-loh-my] is used for regretting something that you have done. But when God is the subject, God has no emotion. When you get all full of emotion God is not full of emotion. Why? Emotion is something we need, it is a prop for expressing what is in the right lobe in terms of some form of happiness — that is when it is used right, of course — but God is not weak.

Bob saw a Nebraska boy run for 71 yards for a touchdown; he emoted for hours on that. He used the cut perfectly. Red Grange was the greatest cutter of all time. His last step was a one-step cut. The average great college player makes a 3-step cut. Bob emoted over that. It was something to emote over.

We, on the basis of emotion, change our minds about many things. Some doll decides a guy is a total ass and she realizes that he is an ass. She metamelomai’s him. She phases him out. He doesn’t exist any more in her mind.

We all fail; some of us go down the road at different rates. Blackout or darkness of the soul is the left lobe; hardness of heart is the right lobe.

Emotion is necessary for the frailty of mankind, but God isn't weak, He doesn't need emotion to prop up His love. The omniscience of God does not need emotion. Why didn't the Holy Spirit put in metanoóō (μετανοέω) [pronounced meh-tah-noh-EH-oh] here? The Lord has made a solemn oath and will not change His mind, but it is metamélomai.(μεταμέλομαι) [pronounced meh-tah-MEH-loh-my]. Why? To demonstrate something. We on the basis of emotion change our minds about many things. But why does God the Father metamélomai.(μεταμέλομαι) [pronounced meh-tah-MEH-loh-my]? The answer is very simple. Metamélomai.(μεταμέλομαι) [pronounced meh-tah-MEH-loh-my] means literally to regret, to change the mind in the sense of no regrets. God has no regrets even when we fail. The whole thing in focus here is the fact that we fail — all of us. We have old sin natures, we neglect doctrine, we go on the road to reversionism. But God has no regrets about taking a solemn oath, about appointing you in the divine decrees with Jesus Christ. He has no regrets. That is the issue in this verse.

Lesson #84

84 09/09/1973 Hebrews 7:21b-23 Establishment/ superiority/ royal priesthood

I think Bob read off the correct translation here for v. 21

Heb 7:21 but this one was made a priest with an oath by the one who said to him: "The Lord has sworn and will not change his mind, 'You are a priest forever.'"

We now move into the second immutable thing in this passage, which is what was actually said. The solemn promise, the first immutable thing, represents the essence of God, represents the fact that His person is absolutely perfect and any promise He makes is absolutely perfect. Now for the content of what God the Father said in the divine decrees.

The second immutable thing starts with the word "Thou", the proleptic pronoun su. It can be translated "you and only you." It refers to the Lord Jesus Christ. He was being addressed at this point in the divine decrees. It is referring to the Lord Jesus Christ in His appointment as high priest. First of all, God the Father made a solemn promise on the basis of His perfect character, and now He gives the content.

"a priest forever" — hiereus (ἱερεύς) [pronounced hee-er-YOOCE] eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] ton aiōn (αἰών) [pronounced ī-OHN]. This is the eternal superiority of the royal priesthood. The superiority is involved in one person only. Jesus Christ was addressed alone in the doctrine of divine decrees. The extrapolation of the divine decrees mentions only Him. The extrapolation is in the Old Testament so obviously it could not mention the Church and the body of Christ. The Old Testament knows nothing of Church doctrine or Church Age doctrine. Church Age doctrine is called "mystery" and therefore completely obscured from the Old Testament prophets and from the Old Testament writings. Since this is a quotation from Psalm 110:4, obviously it is addressed only to the Lord Jesus Christ. “You are a priest forever according to the battalion of Melchizedek.” That is the extrapolation. When it is revealed to the Old Testament prophets there is no reference to the Church, the body of Christ. This would come from the Lord Jesus Christ Himself during the last day of His earthly ministry before the cross. In fact, this information was given in that same upper room where the communion service was first authorized by the Lord Jesus Christ. The unique person here is emphasized by the proleptic pronoun. The perpetuation of this priesthood is emphasized by the phrase “forever.” The “order of Melchizedek” gives us a categorical concept. Jesus Christ is not a family priest, not a Levitical priest; Jesus Christ belongs to the royal battalion, the first battalion.

Our parenthesis says in detail,

Hebrews 7:21 “For in fact they [Levitical priests], without the taking of an oath, have become priests; but he [Jesus Christ] with the taking of a solemn oath through the one saying, face to face with him [God the Father], The Lord made a solemn oath and will not change his mind, You are a priest forever.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The verb is definitely left out for two reasons: to give greater emphasis to the pronoun and to emphasize again the principle of forever. Whenever a verb is removed in either the Hebrew or the Greek it gives great emphasis to the words on each side. First of all the Lord Jesus Christ is emphasized and then the perpetuation of His priesthood. You know one thing for certain. Whoever is in the priestly line with the Lord Jesus Christ could not possibly be there unless they had the same kind of life that Jesus Christ has — forever life, eternal life. This is why it is first of all necessary to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ in order to have this type of life. And at the moment of believing in Christ you are appointed into the priesthood. You have forever life so that forever you can be in the royal family and so that forever you can be a priest in the same order as the Lord Jesus Christ. He is not only the King of kings — He will rule many categories in the Millennium and many more in eternity — but there is one category that is absolutely unique: the royal priesthood. And you are a member of that royal family.

Heb 7:22 This makes Jesus the guarantor of a better covenant.

Verse 22 — the first conclusion. “By so much” is a prepositional phrase. It is the preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of the demonstrative form of tosoutos (τοσοῦτος) [pronounced toss-OO-toss]. It is an idiom, it means literally, “Before so much” but it actually means correctly translated, “By so much doctrinal evidence.” So this verse begins our conclusion on the basis of all true conclusions in the Christian way of life: doctrinal evidence. All doctrinal evidence is presented to the royal priesthood on the earth on the basis of Bible teaching. We also have the use of the adjunctive kai which should be translated here, “also”.

Bob laughs at so-called discipleship. But true discipleship is a student acting without portfolio. The modern apostasy is much different from the true meaning.

Next is the word “Jesus” emphasizing the humanity of Christ in keeping with the fact that a priest must be a member of the human race to represent the human race before God.

“was made” — literally, “had become”, the perfect active indicative of ginomai. The perfect tense is the intensive perfect, it takes the action of the verb as completed with emphasis on its existing results. In other words, Jesus had become with the result that He keeps on being. The active voice refers to the Lord Jesus Christ, He produces the action. The indicative mood is the unqualified assertion of a dogmatic doctrinal principle. “By so much doctrinal evidence also Jesus had become a surety”. The word for “surety” is the noun egguos (ἔγγυος) [pronounced ENG-goo-oss], it means a guarantee. The Lord Jesus Christ has become a guarantee of a better testament. The word “better” is that genitive singular, the comparative of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], which is spelled in two different ways, kreisswn or kreittōn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn]. With that we have the genitive singular of diathêkê (διαθήκη) [pronounced dee-ath-AY-kay] for “covenant.” It means a covenant or a contract. Really, the word “contract” came a little later in the Koine language. This was a papyri and a Patristic meaning of diathêkê (διαθήκη) [pronounced dee-ath-AY-kay]. In the Hellenistic use of the word it was a will, but it loses this concept when used as the translation for the Hebrew word berith which always means covenant. Jesus Christ is the guarantee of a better covenant than the Mosaic covenant, the one which authorized the Levitical priesthood. The Mosaic law is a covenant; this is a better covenant. The better covenant, by the way, is the extrapolation from the divine decrees — Psalm 110:4. As with Abraham’s supergrace in Hebrews 6:13–18 so also in the appointment and the guarantee of the royal priesthood. There are two immutable things: the oath representing the person of God, and the Word representing the doctrine of God.

Notice that verse 22 was really a continuation of verse 20, and we have in verse 21 a parenthesis. So the corrected sentence starts in verse 20, and reads: “And inasmuch as not without the taking of an oath our royal priesthood was appointed: by so much doctrinal evidence also [verse 22] Jesus has become a guarantee of a better covenant than the Mosaic code.”

Verse 21 is a parenthesis that sounds like this: “For in fact they [the Levitical priests], without the taking of an oath, have become priests; but he [Jesus Christ] with the taking of an oath through the one saying face to face with him [Psalm 110:4], The Lord has made a solemn promise and will not change his mind, You are a priest forever.”

Hebrews 7:22 Jesus has become a guarantee of a better covenant than the Mosaic code. R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The words “after the order of Melchizedek” do not occur this time. They were simply added because it was found in the other phrases where Psalm 110:4 was quoted. This time the entire Psalm 110:4 was not quoted for a very definite reason. It isn’t necessary. The emphasis in the quotation this time is the fact that the Father made a solemn oath rather than the actual content of what He said.

Now we have the superiority established on the basis of perpetuation — verses 23, 24.

Heb 7:23 The former priests were many in number, because they were prevented by death from continuing in office,...

Verse 23 — “And they truly,” kai o(i men: three particles. It should be translated, “And they [Levitical priests] on the one hand.” The word kai is simply a conjunction; o(i is the nominative plural of the definite article, and the definite article is used for a personal pronoun, “they”; men means “on the one hand.”

“were many” — many in number. We have the nominative masculine plural of pleiōn/pleiōn/pleione/pleon (πλείων/πλείον/πλέον) [pronounced PLI-own,PLI-on,PLEH-one/pleon (πλείων/πλείον/πλέον) [pronounced PLI-own,PLI-on,PLEH-on, a comparative with polus,polos (πολύς,πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] which a concept of quantity. It is used as the subject of a verb, even though it is an adjective, and as an adjective used as a noun — you have to supply a noun. So we translate, many numerically or many in number. “And they [the Levitical priesthood] on the one hand were many in number.”

Why use an adjective? Every time you turn around the Levitical priesthood with all of its greatness at the time that it functioned, and at some times it's failures, cannot even be compared even remotely to the priesthood which we possess at this moment, the priesthood which functions right now. It functions in remembering the Lord at the communion table, it is functioning now in listening to the teaching of the Word of God, and then priesthood that you have is infinitely greater than the Levitical priesthood. And to downgrade it the Greek language has a very interesting way of doing it — an adjective instead of a noun, an adjective which shows a great numerical concept perpetuated over a long period of time, helping in their own generation but of absolutely no use in any other generation or at any future time. This is the Levitical priesthood which is being mentioned.

The word “were” which is our verb actually is a periphrastic perfect in which you have a perfect participle followed by then present tense of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] as the finite verb. Generally, most periphrastics are a combination of a participle and a verb. The verb has to be eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the state of being verb, and the perfect periphrastic is a great intensive concept here. So we have eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] as the present active indicative, and ginomai is the perfect participle. And ginomai plus eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] means, “And they [Levitical priests], many in number, had become priests in the past with the result that they functioned as priests at a certain time.” The word “priests” is the predicate nominative with the periphrastic.

“because” — dia plus the accusative of the definite article. The accusative of the definite article is used as a pronoun, it gives it great emphasis, and so it should be translated “because they”.

Next in the Greek manuscript we have the instrumental singular of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss]. Everything was going fine except that you knew something was going to go wrong because of the fact that you have an adjective instead of a noun, and you have to supply the noun from the meaning of the adjective, and when you have to supply a noun for the meaning a an adjective already you have a peon on your hands by comparison. And that is exactly right, we have a peon priesthood as compared to a royal priesthood and even though the Levitical priesthood was very frequently great and very frequently terrible, no matter what it was it was still a peon priesthood — always was, always will be. Aaron was a peon. His younger brother Moses was the greatest leader that Israel ever had but Moses had no royal connections except that he had been adopted by the queen regent of Egypt. Had he stayed in Egypt Moses would have started a great kingly line and dynasty, but he chose to reject the rulership of the Egyptian empire and to become a peon leader of the Jews.

And that is exactly what the tribe of Levi is. Levi himself was a crude person, always a troublemaker and always in trouble. So you knew that Levi's line was not going to be too good and that the only thing that would ever help it out would be regeneration and doctrine. And that is exactly what happened. And there is always something of the peasant in the line of Levi, but God turns cursing into blessing and He did so by giving them the great spiritual responsibility which was theirs as long as Israel was a dispensation. But no matter how you slice it, whether you are talking about Phinehas or Samuel or some other great priest in the line of Levi, even their greatness must be qualified by a noun, peon. That is exactly what they are compared to the priesthood that would follow. This does not detract from greatness for those who were great in their day but no matter how great they were in their day they were still peons. Therefore there has to be an adjective. You can't describe the Levitical priesthood with a noun when you are starting to compare it with you. You are royalty. You are by the baptizing ministry of the Holy Spirit greater, and will be forever greater. You are under an eternal guarantee which makes you greater forever. This does not detract from those who were great in the Levitical priesthood but it does show the contrast. Grace has done something for you without ever lifting a finger, it was all accomplished for you by God the Holy Spirit.

“by reason of death” is literally “by means of death.” This is an instrumental of means of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss].

“they were not suffered”, but it doesn't say that at all. This is the present passive infinitive of kwluw which means to prevent. It means they were prevented. The present tense is an aoristic present, it is used to express the idea of a present fact without reference to progress. In other words, it is punctiliar action in present time. The aorist tense always portrays punctiliar action in past time, with some rare exceptions, but the present tense is used to portray punctiliar action in present time. And this is a rather unusual use of it because most present tenses in the Greek, as in similar languages, have linear aktionsart. This can also be called a customary present to denote that which habitually occurs. But it is an aoristic present. The passive voice: in this case the Levitical priesthood received the action of the verb which was hindrance or prevention from continuing. Death stopped them in their tracks. The moment they died physically they were all through functioning as a priest, they could only function in time. That means that all of the Levitical priests in heaven, while they were priests on earth authorized by the Mosaic law under the dispensation of Israel, they will never function as priests in heaven. There is just one priesthood in heaven and that is the royal priesthood. Aaron was a high priest on earth, he will not even be a priest in heaven. What they were in time was terminated by death. But no so with us. Death doesn't stop or prevent or hinder, we go right on and on and on forever and ever. In fact, we have the guarantee of that from the eternal decrees as well as the fact that God made a solemn oath.

The infinitive is an infinitive of result. This use of the infinitive actually expresses three points of view in the Greek. First of all, the infinitive of result represents an actual result. Sometimes it represents a conceived result and sometimes it represents an intended result. We have here an actual result, death actually terminated the function of the Levitical priests. With this infinitive we also have a present active infinitive paramenō (παράμηνω) [pronounced par-am-EHN-oh] which means here "from continuing." The present tense is tential. The tential present is used for an action which is purposed though not taking place. They probably wanted to continue but they couldn't. The active voice: the Levitical priesthood wanted to produce the action of the verb but they were hindered by death. The infinitive indicates purpose. It was God's purpose to hinder them from continuing.

Hebrews 7:23: "And they [Levitical priests] on the one hand, many in number, had become priests because they by means of death were prevented from continuing." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Bob wants to dispel something that has lasted too long in your life. You have not made a fool of yourself in some way, so you are made to think that you are some kind of second class Christian. You are not involved in holy rollerism; you don't sell Jesus like one sells soap. Ask them about the gospel some time if you want to hear a lot of stuttering.

Or they are intense, "Brother, we've got to get it done today." Pulled a muscle with that.

What does God want you to do? God wants you to be loaded up with doctrine so that you can only think the divine viewpoint. God has many wonderful things for you, to share His happiness. He has many wonderful things for you and they all come through Bible doctrine. The thing He wants you to do is to think doctrine. That is why we have the communion service, it is designed to think doctrine, to think divine viewpoint in a certain category — the Lord Jesus Christ.

What does the military between wars? Babysitting. Training. Constant. Going to Berachah Church is like being on garrison duty; sometimes it is very dull. When God wants you to function, He will let you know. You will be faced with a circumstance and you will stand up and stand in the gap. God wants us to think doctrine.

It is very hard for people who all of their lives have been trying to make points with God to stop and think; but that is what God wants you to do. The soul is the critical thing, not your body going from door to door, not your body kneeling and genuflecting, not your body out helping the downtrodden; it is your soul thinking that counts. The palace is designed for you to think, and you will never think without doctrine. The equipment for thinking is Bible doctrine.

The beautiful thing is that the moment you die your soul leaves the body and, still thinking, goes right into the presence of the Lord. Your soul is saved. The doctrine you have accumulated right to that moment you take to heaven with you. God intends for your soul to gather all of the doctrine it can. Some people in life may be compulsive eaters and they show it. Believers who are compulsive in taking on doctrine, in a very far different way, also show it. And God has many uses for the doctrine in your soul. God can always take the gold in your soul, Bible doctrine, and bring it out and use it — always. You are to make yourself useable by the intake of doctrine.

The Levitical priest was cut off by death. Aaron, with all the doctrine he had by listening to Moses; Phinehas who had more doctrine than Aaron; Eleazar, a man of doctrine; Samuel, one of the great men of doctrine in the Old Testament; they were priests with a lot of doctrine but when they died they couldn't use it any more. We are going to use ours, and use it and use it and use it. We are a part of the angelic conflict in which no one in the Old Testament was a part.

Hebrews 7:23: “And they [Levitical priests] on the one hand, many in number, had become priests because they by means of death were prevented from continuing.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation we will have a contrast in v. 24.

1972 Hebrews 7:24

Lesson #85

85 09/14/1973 Hebrews 7:24 Doctrine of resurrection

Review of the chapter 7 translation. Death does not stop the function of our priesthood.

Heb 7:24 ...but he holds his priesthood permanently, because he continues forever.

Verse 24 — our first word is the adversative use of the conjunctive particle de. All continuity and development of thought in the Greek language is based upon the use of particles. The particle de sets up a contrast between your priesthood and the priesthood of the previous dispensation. The time from Moses to the time of Christ was the period in which the Levitical priesthood functioned. It functioned as a very wonderful priesthood. Many of the men who were in the Levitical priesthood were spiritual giants, led thousands of people to the Lord, and taught doctrine in such a way that supergrace was reached by their contemporaries. However, the priesthood itself was authorized by the law. The law came in time as an authorizing agent, the Levitical priesthood began in time with the older brother of Moses who was Aaron.

Now when Jesus Christ came into the world and went to the cross and bore our sins in His own body on the tree, that was the beginning of the strategical victory of the angelic conflict. It began with the cross and terminated with Jesus Christ being seated at the right hand of the Father. Jesus Christ was alone on the cross, He was alone in resurrection. Jesus Christ was alone seated at the right hand of the Father. Now a bride is provided by God the Father for the last Adam. To do so there is a sudden halt to the Age of Israel, a dramatic, traumatic halt. That halt and the drama of it is portrayed by the Day of Pentecost on 30 AD, the day the Church Age began. It began in one locale only, Abraham's home town. Remember that Abraham by paying taxes became a citizen of Melchizedek's kingdom, Salem. That, of course, is Jerusalem. And one morning on the Day of Pentecost we have the baptism of the Spirit whereby all believers in that upper room were entered into union with Christ. That is where something new began, the baptism of the Spirit had never occurred before. The baptism of the Spirit is simply being in union with Christ, this is how the royal family is formed. Up to this time we have family of God through regeneration, now we have royal family of God through the baptism of the Holy Spirit which occurs at salvation.

You are royalty; and you don't realize how shocking that is except by standing up here and seeing all of you.

At some point, the pope said, "I am pope and what I say is bul." Papal bul. The clergy is not to be confused with a sort of priesthood.

So we have a contrast between the Levitical priesthood which was a bona fide function in the Age of Israel and the royal priesthood which functions in the dispensation of the Church, and forever because we have indestructible life. Many of the members of the Levitical priesthood were unbelievers and will not even be in heaven, but the ones who are will not be there as priests they will be there as members of the family of God. So now we have two categories from the Age of Israel. David was a king but in eternity David is just a member of the family of God, whereas you are royalty and David is not. Aaron was a high priest but in eternity Aaron is a member of the family of God and you are a royal priest. So they functioned in time only. So God has given you not only eternal life as a believer but indestructible life which means you are a priest forever, you will function as a priest forever.

The priesthood of the Lord Jesus Christ is perpetuated by means of resurrection. At this moment Christ is the only one whose royal priesthood has been perpetuated beyond death because He is in a resurrection body. So we have the conjunction "But this". The word "this" is the definite article used as a pronoun. We should translate this "But on the other hand he [Jesus Christ]", not "this."

"because he continueth" — dia plus the accusative of the definite article, ο(, plus the accusative of the intensive pronoun autos. Altogether, it should be translated "But he on the other hand because he." Autos is an intensive pronoun used as a personal pronoun to identify and emphasize what the contrast is all about. The contrast is simple. Jesus Christ as the high priest is in contrast to Aaron as a high priest. Then we have the word "continueth", the present active infinitive of ménō (μένω) [pronounced MEH-noh], which means to remain or abide. Ménō (μένω) [pronounced MEH-noh], in the present tense is a static present, it represents a condition which perpetually exists. The active voice: Jesus Christ as the high priest produces the action of the verb. The infinitive: this was God's plan in eternity past, that there would be three different types of priesthood in history authorized by God and only one would be perpetuated forever, and that is our royal priesthood. And we are perpetuated in the royal priesthood because of our relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ.

The word “ever” is actually a prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the definite article plus the accusative plural of aiôn (αἰών) [pronounced Ī-OHN]. It should be translated “unto the ages” or better, “forever”.

“hath” — present active indicative of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh]. The static present represents a perpetual situation. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action. The indicative mood is unqualified and dogmatic assertion.

“an unchangeable priesthood” — these words are all in the accusative. First, “unchangeable” is aparabatos (ἀπαράβατος) [pronounced ap-ar-AB-at-oss], it means permanent or unchangeable. It is an adjective. The word “priesthood” simply is our old word hierôsunê (ἱερωσύνη) [pronounced hee-er-oh-SOO-nay], and it refers to the office of the priesthood.

Hebrews 7:24 “But He [Jesus Christ] on the other hand because He remains forever, He keeps on having a permanent priesthood.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

What Christ has, we have.

The Doctrine of Resurrection (review)

1. Resurrection is best defined by distinguishing it from resuscitation. These are two different concepts. Resuscitation means to be dead and to be brought back from death — like Lazarus. Lazarus was dead, three days in the tomb. Jesus Christ performed a miracle with His voice: “Lazarus, out here.” And Lazarus did. But this is not resurrection, this is resuscitation because when Lazarus stepped out he lived for a number of years and then he died physically. In other words, resuscitation means to be brought back from the dead but it means to subsequently die; whereas resurrection means to receive a body, a new house for the soul, which lasts forever. So there is a very definite difference between resurrection and resuscitation. Only one person in history has so far been resurrected. Numerous people have been brought back from the dead — three recorded in the Old Testament and three during the time that Jesus Christ was on the earth, therefore recorded in the New Testament. But these people were all brought back from the dead but subsequently died. They were still subject to death. But the Lord Jesus Christ was given a new body as the house for His soul and His spirit and it is a body of incorruption. So in resuscitation a person is brought back from the dead in a body of corruption, therefore he dies again; but in resurrection a person is brought back from the dead never to die again.
2. Resurrection is a definite part of the Gospel and in the categorizing of the Gospel is so declared — 1Corinthians 15:1–4, 12–17. This does not mean that every time you witness to someone you present all of the Gospel but categorically it is included in that area. The Gospel includes the death of Christ, His burial, His resurrection.
3. Resurrection is also connected with the subject of theophany and Christophany. This, again, is technical and theological and therefore important to understand the distinction. Distinctions are understood by vocabulary.

- a. A theophany is an appearance of Jesus Christ prior to His incarnation, generally associated with the angel of Jehovah, sometimes He appears as a man. The one who fought with Jacob was the Lord Jesus as a theophany. This loosened Jacob up in his mind. He was a chiseler and in his younger days, he tried to solve everything by fighting. When he wanted to solve anything, he would whip them. That should be in Sunday School literature, that the Lord beat the hell out of him.
- b. A Christophany is different in that it is a resurrection appearance of Jesus Christ, it is Jesus Christ in the New Testament in resurrection body. Christophanies are mentioned in Mark 16:9; Luke 24:13–43; Acts 2:32.
4. The resurrection of Christ is part of the strategic victory of the angelic conflict — 1Corinthians 15:20–25.
5. The resurrection is necessary for the perpetuation of the Davidic line — Romans 1:3,4; 2Timothy 2:8.
6. The resurrection of Christ is the basis for the believer’s confidence in the future — 1Peter 1:3–5, 21. Our body wasn’t designed to last more than 100 years. The resurrection body forms a purpose, it is a permanent house for the soul. Physical death is when the soul leaves the body but you are very much alive because the soul doesn’t die, it can’t die. The soul of the believer is going to live in a perfect house forever. This is described as having a body like the Son of God. Therefore the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ has demonstrated that in His body He can travel through space, He can move vertically or horizontally, He can eat or not eat, He can walk through closed doors or open doors. These things we learn from observing the Lord in His resurrection body.
7. The resurrection of Christ indicates the completion of the ministry of justification — Romans 4:25.
8. Identification with Christ in His resurrection through the baptism of the Spirit is not only entrance into the royal family and into the royal priesthood but it also becomes motivation for the tactical victory of the supergrace life — Romans 6:4. Therefore, tactical victory is the heritage of the believer priest in time — 1Corinthians 15:57,58.
9. There are two general categories of resurrection.
  - a. The first category is for believers only, it is found in Daniel 12:2; John 5:24–29; 1Corinthians 15:20–22; Revelation 20:6,13.
  - b. The second resurrection is declared in Matthew 25:41; 1Corinthians 15:24; Revelation 20:5–15.
10. Every man in his own battalion [taxis (τάξις) [pronounced TAHX-iss]] refers to believers. Usually 4 battalions in a ...
  - a. Alpha company: The first battalion is equal to the first resurrection. In 1Corinthians 15:20–23 we actually have a battalion review and “A” company has already passed the reviewing stand — Jesus Christ. It is also called the firstfruits. He has passed the reviewing stand in the sense that He has a resurrection body — Matthew 28; Luke 24:1–48; John chapters 20 & 21; Acts 2:31–34. Jesus Christ is resurrected.

b. Baker Company: “B” company is going to pass the reviewing stand next, and you and I and all believers of the Church Age are “B” company — the royal priesthood. Royalty comes first, RHIP — “royalty has its privileges”. Furthermore, we are necessary for the coronation. So the next resurrection is “B” company, the Church at the Rapture — John 14:1–3; 1Corinthians 15:51–57; Philipians 3:20–21; 1Thessalonians 4:13–18; 1John 3:1,2.

c. Charley Company: Then comes “C” company. That is where the Old Testament saints fall in and the Tribulational martyrs — Daniel 12:13; Isaiah 26:19,20; Matthew 24:31; Revelation 20:4.

d. Delta Company: Then finally, “D” company, the Millennial saints. This will be at the end of the Millennium and that will be the end of the first resurrection. There will be, then, every category of believer since the beginning of time. Christ the firstfruits, then the Church, then Old Testament saints from Adam to the Day of Pentecost plus the Tribulation martyrs, then the Millennial saints.

11. The agents of the resurrection of Jesus Christ:

a. God the Father — Colossians 2:12; 1Thessalonians 1:10; 1Peter 1:21;

b. God the Holy Spirit — Acts 2:24; Romans 1:4; 8:11; 1Peter 3:18. Both God the Father and God the Holy Spirit had a part in the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Hebrews 7:24 “But He [Jesus Christ] on the other hand because He remains forever, He keeps on having a permanent priesthood.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary of Hebrews 7:24

1. In resurrection Jesus Christ in His humanity is no longer subject to death.
2. Therefore He continues to function as high priest. When Jesus Christ went to the cross and bore our sins in His own body on the tree the Father judged our sins in Christ. That was the ministry of the high priest. When He had finished bearing our sin He said He had finished so we would know that salvation was completed. Then He died physically. He was resurrected on the third day, He ascended, and seated at the right hand of the Father He continues His high priestly ministry. So resurrection is the link between the beginning of His priestly ministry on the cross and the perpetuation of His priestly ministry at the right hand of the Father, the second advent, the Millennium, and forever.
3. Christ’s high priesthood is unlike the Levitical priesthood which has many high priests. Physical death terminated the function of the Levitical high priest.
4. However, this verse declares that that is not true with our high priest. Physical death does not terminate His function. There is no provision for a successor to Jesus Christ as high priest. Why? He is the final high priest forever.
5. If our high priest lives for ever, and He does, so must we as members of the royal priesthood. Remember, we are in union with Christ. Death did not terminate His priesthood, it continued in resurrection and continues forever. We are a kingdom of priests, we continue forever.

6. Therefore, in anticipation of the next verse all members of the royal priesthood in the Church Age have eternal life at the moment they believe in Christ — not only eternal life but indestructible life.
7. This is emphasized in relationship to entrance into the royal family by means of the baptism of the Spirit, and its implications are stated in 1John 5:11,12. This life is in His Son.
8. The next verse also divides the sacrificial ministry of Christ on the cross and the intercessory ministry of Christ at the right hand of the Father. Both are priestly functions but both functions are divided by resurrection. The resurrection is the key to the perpetuation of the priesthood of our Lord, just as the resurrection is the key to the perpetuation of our priesthood forever.

Lesson #86

86 09/16/1973 Hebrews 7:25 Two functions of Jesus Christ as High Priest

Our freedom is the result of victory on battlefields. The is why we are here.

Heb 7:25 Consequently, he is able to save to the uttermost those who draw near to God through him, since he always lives to make intercession for them.

Verse 25 — in this particular passage we have the entire scope of the Levitical priesthood. We have the two major functions of our high priest. Once again we should be reminded that we in this dispensation, as believers, are members of the royal family of God. The family of God began when Adam believed in the Lord and it continues down to the end of time. But there is only one royal family: believers of the Church Age. We have been entered into union with Christ by the baptism of the Spirit, we are indwelt by the Spirit as the badge of royalty, and furthermore we are sealed by the Spirit as the security of royalty. The believer is also appointed a priest. We are in the order of Melchizedek, the royal battalion. The Lord Jesus Christ is the high priest and we are called in 1Peter 2:9 a kingdom of priests.

The word “wherefore” brings us to a conclusion. It is an adverb hōthen (ὅθεν) [pronounced HOTH-ehn] meaning “for which reason.” It always takes the preceding paragraph and brings it down to the point of its conclusion. “For which reason also” — we have the adjunctive kai also used. This is a reference now to a permanent priesthood, a priesthood which has two kinds of life: indestructible life and eternal life. Eternal life means that the life goes on forever; indestructible life means that death does not destroy our priesthood, nor is there any way a coup de tat can remove us from the palace.

“he is able” refers to God the Father who is the author of the plan concerning you. You are in the plan of God, and not only for time but forever. And, furthermore, there is no failure on your part that can remove you from God's plan. God's plan calls for you to be a member of the royal family forever. God's plan calls for you to have great blessings in time — material blessings, that which is contrary to the thinking of asceticism and legalism. You are not here to “suffer for Jesus”, to make great sacrifices; you are here for a much more important reason than that. You are here to be blessed by God with promotion, with success, with prosperity of all kinds, to share the very happiness of God in time. In other words, God has designed in His plan the principle of heaven now. This is your heritage as of the moment of the new birth. The heritage of regeneration is royalty and God is glorified by providing these blessings.

Here is a passage in which we see the panorama of our Lord's priesthood. He is the high priest; we are a kingdom of priests. We see the fact that it is perpetuated, that there are two distinct and separate phases to the ministry of our Lord as a high priest. The first one has to do with His strategic victory. He bore our sins in His own body on the tree. God the Father judged our sins when they were poured out upon Christ on the cross. He was forsaken on the cross because He was dying spiritually. Spiritual death is isolation from God. Then, when all of the sins of the world had been judged in Christ — when He as our substitute, taking our place, had been completely judged, as per 1Peter 2:24 — having completed it He said, “Finished”, which means salvation was completed and there is nothing man can do for salvation.

“able” here is a present active indicative of the verb dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahee]. Dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahee] in connection with God the Father is total ability. The present tense is a static present representing a condition as perpetually existing. The active voice: God the Father did the planning, God the Son does the saving. So God the Son produces the action of the verb. He has the ability and He does the work. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality, representing a dogmatic and unqualified assertion — “he keeps on being able.”

“to save” — the present active infinitive of sôzô (σώζω) [pronounced SOHD-zoh], which in this case refers to eternal salvation. The present tense here is what is called an aoristic present, it represents punctiliar action in present time. So this is a moment of time in which you personally believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, for His ability to save you depends upon your free will expressed in a non-meritorious way. Non-meritorious expression of positive volition is faith, for believing is non-meritorious thinking. And the object of faith has the merit. Therefore, once again, He saves when you believe in Him. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb by His work on the cross. This is an efficacious sacrifice, it is the sacrifice of the high priest. The only high priest who is a bona fide high priest today is Jesus Christ, the only kingdom of priests are those who are believers in Christ during this dispensation. The infinitive expresses God's purpose and this purpose has been fulfilled for those who have personally believed in the Lord Jesus Christ.

“them” — the accusative plural of the definite article. The definite article is often used for a pronoun. Here it is so used. “Them” refers to believers of the Church Age, those who are members now of the royal priesthood.

The next phrase is a prepositional phrase and indicates that whenever Jesus Christ does something it is absolutely permanent. This, again, is a part of that great doctrine found throughout the scripture, the doctrine of eternal security. So “to the uttermost” is to add to that principle of eternal security. You are entered into union with Christ at the point of salvation. That is the positional approach to eternal security.

“to the uttermost” is the prepositional phrase that clinches it — eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of pantelês (παντελής) [pronounced pan-tehl-ACE]. Pantelês (παντελής) [pronounced pan-tehl-ACE] actually means for all time. The eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative often means with reference to or for all time. So it is an idiom actually meaning forever — “he is able to save them forever”.

“that come” — present active participle proserchomai (προσέρχομαι) [pronounced pros-ER-khom-ahee],. Proserchomai (προσέρχομαι) [pronounced pros-ER-khom-ahee], means to come face to face with. It sometimes means to approach or to draw near but here it means the ones that come face to face with. We come face to face with God in the principle of believing in Him. The principle from the standpoint of the priesthood: we approach. Again we have the aoristic present to denote punctiliar action in present time. It refers to that moment when we believed in Christ. The active voice: mankind of the Church Age produces the action of the verb by believing in the Lord Jesus Christ. This is a circumstantial participle.

“unto God” is the dative of the direct object of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], and in modern English that would be “to God.” The dative of direct object indicates that we are benefitted by such an activity on our part of believing in Christ.

“by him” is literally “through him”, dia plus the genitive of the intensive pronoun autos. Autos is an intensive pronoun used as a personal pronoun to identify specifically those involved. Those involved are the ones who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The word “seeing” is not found in the original at all. The translator apparently tried to make a smooth sentence, to make a transition between two clauses. He tried to demonstrate that they are connected but they are not connected. He inserted one word which completely destroys the meaning of the verse. In the middle of the verse is the word “seeing” which does not occur in this passage at all. It has been added by a translator and therefore leads to a lot of confusion. Salvation does not depend upon the intercessory ministry of Christ, they are entirely different functions. Salvation was the pre-resurrection ministry of Christ whereas intercession is the post-resurrection ministry of Christ. And by putting the word “seeing” in it looks in the English as though our salvation depends upon His making intercession. By putting the word “seeing” in here we lose track of a great principle. Jesus Christ is a high priest forever whose ministry is not terminated by His death. It goes on beyond His death and continues in indestructible life as well as eternal life. And salvation does not depend upon the intercessory work of Christ on the cross as the English translation indicates. Far from it. These are two separate and individual clauses and both of them describe the ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ on our behalf.

When it says that He saved us this refers to the first high priestly ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ. In order to save us He had to go to the cross. While He was on the cross bearing our sins, taking our place, He was dead spiritually. When salvation was completed on the cross He was still alive, He was still talking. He didn't die physically for our sins, He died spiritually. The wages of sin is spiritual death. When He said "Finished", He then said "Father" in contrast to "My God." "My God": He is bearing our sins, He is being judged for our sins, He is our substitute. But when He says "Father" He is back in fellowship and He says "Father into thy hands I dismiss my spirit", and when He did He died physically. Spiritual death provides salvation; physical death means that His work is finished. At that point the work of salvation is finished. The brazen altar with its animal sacrifices being sacrificed have all been fulfilled by the cross. All of the Levitical sacrifices, all of the sacrifices of regenerate people since the beginning of time were shadows pointing to the cross. The cross is the reality; they have all been fulfilled. The first ministry of the high priest is completed.

Violation of the essence of God; violation of the provision of God; violation of the authority of God. Reference to the 3 things inside of the Ark of the Covenant.

The High Priest went into the Holy of Holies and when he came out alive, that meant that Israel was preserved for another year. The High Priest went into the Holy of Holies with a basin of blood. The Lord Jesus Christ did the same thing, by going to the cross and bearing our sins.

Jesus was questioned by the High Priest and what He said caused Him to be slapped; and Jesus is the true High Priest.

Hebrews 7:25 "For which reason also he [Jesus Christ] is able to save forever them who come face to face to the God through him [Christ]." R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

In heaven, there is only one priesthood, the royal priesthood. We are priests right now. Most of you have an idea about priests from watching Bing Crosby in movies.

The word "seeing" is not there, but something is. Instead we have a doctrine there which indicates a very important principle. In the physical death of Christ His spirit is in the presence of the Father. His soul is in Paradise. His body is in the grave. Physical death for the Levitical priest meant the end of his function. The high priest, once he died, no longer functioned. In heaven no Levitical priest will ever serve as priest. There is only one priesthood and that is the priesthood of the Church Age, the royal priesthood. You will serve as a priest in heaven forever, as well as a priest in time. You are a priest right now, and yet death will not terminate your priesthood any more than it terminated the priesthood of the Lord Jesus Christ. His ministry continues. The strategic victory of the angelic conflict is the cross, resurrection, ascension, and session. When Jesus Christ was seated at the right hand of the Father, that was it. That is the glorification of the Lord. That is the end of the first phase of the strategic victory, and for that reason the Age of Israel was interrupted before its completion and the Church Age is the intercalation dispensation. Now Jesus Christ is alone seated but God the Father provides for Him a bride.

Most of us have prayed for miracles which have not occurred. But Jesus prays perfect prayers for us at all time.

We have an adverb which begins the second part of our Lord's priestly ministry. The adverb is pantote (πάντοτε) [pronounced PAN-tot-eh], which means at all times or always. With that is a present active participle from the verb zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh], which means to live. It is a static present for a condition which always exists. It is the active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb through His resurrection. It is a circumstantial participle indicating that the resurrection separates the first and second priestly ministries of our Lord. His first priestly ministry: His efficacious death upon the cross. His second priestly ministry: His intercession in order that He might pray for you, as He is right now — intercession at the right hand of the Father. He is praying for you. So the translation should not be “seeing he ever liveth” but “always living”. That is the correct translation of the adverb and the participle. And He is always living to pray for you, right now. This phrase divides the death of Christ and His resurrection from His present ministry.

The Lord's second ministry on our behalf is intercession for us.

So literally so far, Hebrews 7:25 “For which reason also he is able to save forever the ones coming face to face to the God through him, always living...” R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Summary of the Continued Priesthood of Jesus Christ

1. The priesthood of Christ does not terminate with physical death as with every priesthood in the past.
2. Jesus Christ is resurrected to continue His ministry as a priest. Resurrection, therefore, divides this verse right down the middle. It divides the cross and His priestly sacrifice from the intercession or His priestly ministry of prayer on our behalf.
3. The first part of the priestly ministry of Christ was the efficacious sacrifice of Himself — the only salvation.
4. This required spiritual death — bearing our sins, taking our place — plus His physical death because the ministry of the first advent was completed.
5. But through resurrection, ascension and session, Jesus Christ continues His priestly ministry of intercession. And notice the change in ministry. His first ministry was sacrifice — our salvation; His second ministry is intercession. Both of the ministries of our Lord are for us — He died for our sins, He makes intercession for us. Everything in the priestly ministry of our Lord is on our behalf. He thinks of us when we never think of Him. He is for us all the way.

“to make intercession” — the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative definite article plus a present active infinitive of the verb entugchanô (ἐντυγχάνω) [pronounced en-toong-KHAN-oh]. Entugchanô (ἐντυγχάνω) [pronounced en-toong-KHAN-oh] means to make intercession. With the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative in the definite article it denotes purpose. eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the infinitive is used for the purpose of expressing purpose. So it should be translated “for the purpose of making intercession.” We have in the present tense a retroactive progressive present which denotes what has begun in the past and continues into present time. So it is a present tense of duration. This is a present tense that goes on as long as this dispensation. Until that moment when we see Him in resurrection body He will be praying for us constantly. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb as a continuation of His priestly ministry. If He died for you, what can He do now? He can do much more than that. But there is nothing greater than dying for your sins and giving you eternal salvation. But there is a much more principle: He is now praying for you. So He was sacrificed for you, now He prays for you constantly. And, again, the infinitive of the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] denotes the concept of purpose.

“for them” is incorrectly translated. It is the preposition u(per plus the ablative of autos, an intensive pronoun. Again, the intensive pronoun is used as a regular demonstrative pronoun to emphasize who is beneficiary. So it should be translated “on behalf of them.”

Hebrews 7:25 “For which reason also he is able to save forever the ones approaching to the God through Him, always living [at the right hand of the Father] for the purpose of making intercession on behalf of them [those who have believed in Him and approach near to Him].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Lesson #87

87 09/16/1973 Hebrews 7:26a Categories/uniqueness of Jesus Christ; principles of taxation

We have been studying verse 25 which includes one word which completely destroys the meaning of the verse. In the middle of the verse is the word “seeing” which does not occur in this passage at all. It has been added by a translator and therefore leads to a lot of confusion. Salvation does not depend upon the intercessory ministry of Christ, they are entirely different functions. Salvation was the pre-resurrection ministry of Christ whereas intercession is the post-resurrection ministry of Christ. And by putting the word “seeing” in it looks in the English as though our salvation depends upon His making intercession. By putting the word “seeing” in here we lose track of a great principle. Jesus Christ is a high priest forever whose ministry is not terminated by His death. It goes on beyond His death and continues in indestructible life as well as eternal life. And salvation does not depend upon the intercessory work of Christ on the cross as the English translation indicates. Far from it. These are two separate and individual clauses and both of them describe the ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ on our behalf.

In concluding our passage we have come to the fact that the superiority of our high priest has been established. So far ahead of all high priests in every possible way is our Lord that only a few things now have to be added. The superiority of Jesus Christ is established on the basis of the uniqueness of our high priest. He has been demonstrated as superior from the fact that He was authorized a high priest by two immutable things in eternity past, in contrast to the Mosaic law which was temporary and is gone. He was also declared to be superior because not only is He a high priest but He is a royal high priest. As a royal high priest He has established a royalty. Every believer in the Lord Jesus Christ in the Church Age is royalty. You are a member of the royal family of God forever. Therefore He is unique in every possible way and, as it were, we ride on the coat tails of His uniqueness.

Heb 7:26 For it was indeed fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, innocent, unstained, separated from sinners, and exalted above the heavens.

Verse 26 — the uniqueness of His person. We have a conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] which begins this verse. It is used as a continuative particle, it is also explanatory. Inasmuch as the Lord Jesus Christ continues to have a priestly ministry on our behalf, inasmuch as He continues to pray for us every day, all of the time, and His prayers are effective because of who and what He is, we read some additional explanation. The Lord Jesus Christ is our high priest forever, He is our Savior forever, He is royalty forever, and we are members of His royal family forever. Therefore, everything must focus on who and what Jesus Christ is. Who is this Lord Jesus Christ?

“such” — a correlative adjective, toioutos (τοιοῦτος) [pronounced toy-OO-toss]. “For such” is literally “For such a category” or “such a type.” It is hard to recognize this principle that uniqueness must also be categorized. Anything that is unique must be presented in such categories to emphasize uniqueness. So this correlative adjective reminds us that we are now on the edge of categorical concepts of the uniqueness of Jesus Christ — Jesus Christ our high priest, Jesus Christ our Savior, Jesus Christ the member of the royal family. Jesus Christ is the one who must be categorized. The words which are found in this verse are technical theological classifications to make us understand the uniqueness of the person of Jesus Christ.

“of high priest” — archiereus (ἀρχιερεύς) [pronounced ar-khee-er-YUCE] is the word for high priest, the high priesthood of the Lord Jesus Christ. “For such a category of high priest.” This is a reference to the previous verse where physical death would not terminate the priesthood of Jesus Christ. He continues to function as our high priest even after death. He is different, therefore, from any high priest who ever lived before Him.

“became us” — is not quite correct. First of all, they did not translate a little conjunction here. Not translated is the adjunctive use of kai. With kai we also have the imperfect active indicative of prepô (πρέπω) [pronounced PREHP-oh]. Prepô (πρέπω) [pronounced PREHP-oh] means to be fitting, to be suitable. With this we also have a dative plural of the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced eg-OH]. All of these words put together mean, “For it was also fitting that we should have such a category of high priest.”

If we are royalty it is fitting that we have a royal high priest. If we are a kingdom of priests it is fitting that we have a king who is unique for that kingdom. So we start with us now and work back up to the uniqueness of the person of Christ. So let’s take a look here at what is meant by this little personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced eg-OH], and prepô (πρέπω) [pronounced PREHP-oh] — “it is fitting that we should have ...” Who are “we.” Before the cross we were nothing except sinners and spiritually dead. By one non-meritorious decision such as “Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ” It is amazing that we went from nothing to the absolute, zero to 100, and we did this by the baptism of the Holy Spirit, which took place at the point of salvation, by which we were entered into union with Christ. All of a sudden because of union with Christ we are royalty, members of the royal family of God. Not only are we royalty but we find ourselves priests. We have done nothing for it and yet there we are. In addition to that we have many other things. We have the fact that we possess eternal life, can never lose it. The fact that we have a tactical objective for the Church Age which is moving to supergrace, moving to the place of phenomenal blessing. All of a sudden we find ourselves with many things. We find ourselves indwelt by God the Holy Spirit, indwelt by God the Son. We find ourselves with some orders and instructions. We find ourselves in the plan of God and with a life that has meaning and purpose and definition. And so we have a right to say, All right, if we are all of these things as the Bible says, and many more beside — many complimentary things — who is the person that makes all of this possible. We are royalty; who is the King? We are in the palace; who sits on the throne? We are priests; who is the high priest? We are saved; who did it? We are in the angelic conflict, but greater is He that is in us than he that is in the world. Who made it possible? Everywhere you turn the answer is exactly the same. The Lord Jesus Christ provided all of these things. It is the Lord Jesus Christ who is the high priest; it is the Lord Jesus Christ who is the King of kings; it is the Lord Jesus Christ who is the Savior. So we go, as it were, from the part to the whole. This is the system of reasoning. And we draw certain conclusions and the word gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] told us that this was going to happen.

Now, putting everything in its proper word order, this is what we have in the passage. “For it was also fitting [or proper] that we should have such a category of high priest.” Why is it fitting and proper? Because now we find ourselves saved forever, we find ourselves members of the family of God, we find ourselves royal family of God, we find ourselves in the palace, we discover that God the Holy Spirit entered us into union with Christ, and that the Holy Spirit also indwells us, that He seals us, that He gives us spiritual gifts, that He has provided all of these wonderful things. We discover that the Father has been propitiated and we have been redeemed, that we have been reconciled to God by the death of His Son. Everywhere we turn we find that all roads lead somewhere. If you are anything, if I am anything, and the Bible says we are, then where do all of these roads lead? Contrary to human viewpoint of life all roads do not lead to Rome. All roads for the believer lead to the Lord Jesus Christ seated at the right hand of the Father.

Now here we are with all of these wonderful things that we can not always evaluate until we learn doctrine, but we are aware of the fact that we must have something. In knowing these few things we forget a principle. If Jesus Christ has improved your life — and He has — who is He? Why did He stop? Where did He stop? He gave you eternal life. Why is He letting you dangle around now? Well, He is really not. You are dangling around, all mixed up and confused, but because of Jesus Christ. It is because after the living Word comes the written Word. And your appreciation for what you have, and learning more about the things that you have now and the things that you can have is a matter of doctrine. Any person who is aware of his salvation has within 30 days of his being saved has the opportunity of making one of the greatest deductions of his life, and it is a simple one: If

Jesus Christ saved me, if Jesus Christ has done this and that and the other thing, who is He? What is He? And what else is He doing for me? Where do we go from here? What is His idea? He is the leader, what is going on?

“For it was also fitting.” You are royalty, it is fitting you should know who is the leader. It is fitting you are a priest, it is important to know the high priest. The leader if the King of kings, Jesus Christ. The high priest is Jesus Christ, He is the royal high priest. In fact, He is more than that. He is the creator of the universe, He is eternal God. He was with God the Father in eternity past when God the Father said to Him, You are a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek. So, now the question will be answered in this passage after this beautiful syntactical approach: “For it was also fitting that we should have such a category of high priest.” The key here is the word “category”. And the word “category” comes from that correlative adjective toioutos (τοιούτος) [pronounced toy-OO-toss]. We have a category that is unique for our high priest. The one who offered Himself as a sacrifice is unique. The one who makes intercession at the right hand of the Father is unique. Between that intercession and His death upon the cross is resurrection, and that is unique. He is the only person in the world up to this time who has been resurrected. Everywhere you turn He is unique. Therefore sooner or later you must come face to face with the fact that you must know who Jesus Christ is, you must know what Jesus Christ is, you must understand your Savior, your King, your high priest, your leader. And of you don’t know your leader how can you follow your leader? How can you take commands from your leader? You have to know Him. So immediately we begin to get categorical terms.

After being saved, people don’t know what to do next. They know that there was a change, but they don’t know the next step. You need to follow your Savior, which is understood by knowing Bible doctrine.

But they don’t look categorical in the English — “holy, harmless, undefiled.” We have three adjectives followed by a perfect passive participle. This lines up for us the categorical uniqueness of our high priest. The three words, “holy, harmless, undefiled”, all refer to the priesthood of Jesus Christ as it functioned on the cross, as it is functioning today; for the three adjectives which we have here not only describe His qualification for dying for our sins but they also express His qualification for having His prayers heard. Jesus Christ was qualified to go to the cross because He was “Holy, harmless, undefiled.” He was qualified to bear our sins in His own body on the tree because He was “holy, harmless, and undefiled”. Jesus Christ is qualified to pray for you right now — as He is — and be heard because He is “holy, harmless, and undefiled.” One thing should be noted before we analyze these three words. They belong to the humanity of Christ, they do not belong to the deity of Christ. And yet we will see that they suggest also the hypostatic union. But remember that Jesus Christ as a high priest is a Man, for by very Biblical definition no one can be a priest unless he is true humanity.

So we have adjective #1, “holy”, which is the word hosios (ῥσιος) [pronounced HOHS-ee-oss]. It has a number of meanings. It is translated “holy”, a legitimate translation. It also means “devout”, it means “pious.” The basic concept of hosios (ῥσιος) [pronounced HOHS-ee-oss] is to be separated unto God. It could also mean concentrating on what God wants, and doing it. In other words, being completely separated by following the plan of the Father all of the way through. So actually, “holy” here comes to mean pleasing to God. He never did anything as a high priest that was not pleasing to God. And immediately you see His uniqueness.

The word “harmless” is a pitiful word, and mistranslated. The word is akakos (ἄκακος) [pronounced AHK-ak-oss], which means totally free from evil, unsullied, pure, impeccable.

The third adjective, “undefiled” is amiantos (ἀμίαντος) [pronounced am-EE-an-toss] which means physically clean, moral, under establishment all the way. Amiantos (ἀμίαντος) [pronounced am-EE-an-toss] means to straight in thinking and not to be covered with erroneous thinking.

The Christian has no right to refuse to withhold his taxes. This does not matter if our taxes are high and ridiculous. 90% of our taxes ought to go to national defense. The federal government should be a weak government with only administrative duties. What should I do about my income tax? Pay it. Pay it with honesty. The government being immoral is not an issue. Not paying taxes is solving a wrong with a wrong. People write in all of the time to Bob and talk about how they should not pay taxes.

We have no right to be seditious. We have no right to rebel against our government.

Hebrews 7:26a “For it was also fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, pleasing to God [or, devout], impeccable, clear in his thinking ...” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

But more than that, He was different from everyone else, not by the three adjectives but more so by the participle which follows — “separate” is the perfect passive participle from chôrizô (χωρίζω) [pronounced kho-RIHD-zoh]. Chôrizô (χωρίζω) [pronounced kho-RIHD-zoh] means to divide, to separate, to disassociate, to withdraw. Here the literal translation should be “having been separated”. The perfect tense is intensive perfect, which means separated in the past with the result that He was always separated. Now notice our Lord. He was perfect. He was virgin born so He didn’t have a sin nature, He didn’t have the imputation of Adam’s sin. Not once did He ever commit a personal sin though He was under greater pressure to sin than anyone who has ever lived. Yet not once, not under any circumstances did He ever sin. Not once did He ever fail. And in His perfection, in His separation from sinners He still did what sinners did: advocated income tax, advocated establishment, rendering unto Caesar the things that are Caesar’s and unto God the things that are God’s. He was clear all the way through. Undefiled means clear-thinking.

“having been separated” — this is a circumstantial participle; “from sinners” is the preposition apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of hamartôlos (ἁμαρτωλός) [pronounced ham-ar-to-LOSS]. “Sinners” refers to the rest of the human race and this prepositional phrase says that Jesus Christ was absolutely, completely, totally unique in every way. He is separated from sinners by His impeccability; He is separated from sinners by His hypostatic union; He is separated from sinners by His resurrection; He is separated from sinners by His ascension and session. And the rest of the passage confirms this — “and made higher than the heavens.”

88 09/17/1973 Hebrews 7:26b-28 Doctrine of the hypostatic union & impeccability

Hebrews 7:26a “For it was also fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, pleasing to God [or, devout], impeccable, clear in his thinking ...” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The Doctrine of the Hypostatic Union

1. Definition: In the person of Christ are two natures inseparably united, without mixture or loss of separate identity, without loss or transfer of properties or attributes, the union being personal and eternal. (This is a classical theological definition — by which is meant that throughout the rest of this particular categorical study various aspects of this definition will be discussed. In fact, in this definition are five separate points in our study.)
2. The scripture which covers the hypostatic union — John 1:1–14; Romans 1:2–5; 9:5; Philippians 2:5–11; 1 Timothy 3:16; Hebrews 2:14.
3. The incarnate person of Jesus Christ includes deity. Jesus Christ, even though He is also man, is just as much God as the Father or the Holy Spirit. In fact, Jesus Christ is God, coequal and co-eternal with the Father and with the Spirit. The incarnation does not diminish His deity, hence He is undiminished deity. The fact that He is humanity does not in any way change His deity.
  - a. All aspects of the Lord’s Deity remain intact.
  - b. It is hard for us to understand perfect mentality making perfect decisions.
  - c. The Last Adam could attain to a sin nature only the way that the first Adam did
4. The incarnate person of Christ is also true humanity. Jesus Christ is a bona fide member of the human race with a body and with a soul. Also add the fact that He was born with a human spirit and retained it because He did not sin personally. He is minus, of course, the old sin nature from birth. He never had an old sin nature, never sinned. He would have had to sin to acquire one. He did not sin, therefore He did not acquire the old sin nature. With the virgin birth Jesus Christ avoided the imputation of Adam’s sin as well as the old sin nature by birth. Therefore He lived perfectly and under impeccability never had an old sin nature. But apart from that He is true humanity.
5. The two natures of Christ are united without transfer of attributes. The attributes adhere to their corresponding natures. The essence of deity cannot be changed — immutability; the infinite cannot be transferred to the finite. To rob God of any attribute of His essence would destroy His deity. This is impossible. To rob the humanity of Christ if a single attribute of His humanity would destroy His perfect humanity. So He is true humanity. He is God. He is the God-Man forever.

6. No attribute of the essence of deity was changed by the virgin birth and subsequent incarnation. In fulfilling the purpose of the first advent certain attributes of deity were used, but this does not imply that they were either surrendered or destroyed, as per the false doctrine of Kenosis.
7. The union of divine essence and the human nature in the incarnate Christ are put together you have a unique person, a hypostatic and personal union. This means that Jesus Christ is different from God in that He is Man; He is different from man in that He is God. This is called in the Greek hupostasis. The word means “standing under”, it means “substance”, it means “essence”, it means taking a thing upon one’s self. Jesus Christ took upon Himself true humanity — Hebrews 1:3. Hypostatic, technically, refers to the whole person of Christ as distinguished from His two natures which are divine and human. Not only do we have hypostatic but we also have the concept of personal. The personal concept refers to the fact that there emerges the unique person of Jesus Christ — always God and therefore always equal with the Father and the Holy Spirit, having the same essence. He always has the same essence, even though He also has a body, soul, and spirit of a human person and is called the last Adam. He has both of these, and this makes an unique person in the human race. As a man Jesus is superior to all mankind; as deity He is so-equal with the other members of the Trinity, and at the same time superior to mankind.
8. The false interpretation.
  - a. The hypostatic union does not imply that deity possessed humanity. This is one of the liberal views, that Jesus Christ had God-consciousness and was so conscious of God that God dwelt inside of Him.
  - b. Or, the deity of Christ indwells the humanity of Christ.
  - c. Some liberals went further and said the union was merely harmony or sympathy (God sympathized with Jesus), and that that is the hypostatic union.
  - d. In other words, all liberal views, erroneous views, ignore the fact that it was a personal union: the two natures, divine and human, had been combined in one hupostasis (hypostasis) or essence forever, so that you could no longer say that the essence of Christ is just deity or that the essence of Christ is just humanity.
  - e. The essence of Christ is both. He is God and He is man, and He is both forever. Jesus Christ as God will always be true humanity, and there never will be a time when He drops His humanity. He is the God-Man, and that is His essence forever. So when we approach the hypostatic union we are talking about the God-Man. He is the only celebrity; He is God and man in one person forever.
  - f. An academic liberal. He is not a conservative; but he is a true liberal, and he will allow for the conservative viewpoint to be expressed. This is a reference to a teacher at U of H.
9. Therefore, Jesus Christ has one hypostasis or essence forever, not two. The attributes of the divine and human nature are in one person. The characteristics of one nature are never attributed to the other nature. This means that during the first advent Jesus could be simultaneously omnipotent and weak, omniscient and ignorant. However the ignorance of His humanity was quickly overcome through the daily function of GAP and moving into supergrace through the ECS, as per Luke 2:40, 52; John 1:14.

10. The necessity for the humanity of Christ, or why the hypostatic union. The problem is that Jesus Christ for all of eternity past was no different in essence from the Father or the Holy Spirit. They are coequal and co-eternal. From the moment of the virgin birth everything is different. Why? Jesus Christ as God is eternal life, and it is obvious that eternal life does not die. So as eternal life Jesus Christ cannot go to the cross and die spiritually or physically. Sovereignty cannot become obedient unto death, and yet Jesus became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Divine righteousness and justice cannot tolerate sin and could not have anything to do with sin, except to judge it. Omnipresence cannot get on the cross, you cannot reduce God to one point. Furthermore, He is immutable and can't change any of His characteristics and make Him get on the cross. Principle: There is no way Jesus Christ can be Savior and be just God. To get on the cross He has to become a man. He has to be a perfect man, and then in impeccability the Father can pour our sins upon Him and judge them. While man can get on the cross and God cannot, once Jesus Christ becomes a man He can get on the cross. And as the God-Man He does get on the cross, but He gets on the cross in hypostatic union.
  - a. Philippians 2:7,8; Hebrews 2:14,15 say very clearly that Jesus Christ had to become true humanity before He could be our Savior.
  - b. Secondly, whoever is the mediator has to have the full essence of the hypostatic union. Mediator means someone who is equal with both parties: someone who is God, therefore equal with God; someone who is humanity and therefore equal with humanity. That is why there is only one mediator. This is emphasized in Job 9:32,33; 1Timothy 2:5,6. Illustration of a tree which was on a mountain top and it died and fell over, reaching over to a nearby mountain. That tree fossilized and became a bridge between the two mountains.
  - c. Jesus Christ cannot be a priest unless He is first of all a man. All priests must be bona fide members of the human race — Hebrews 7:4, 5, 14, 28; 10:5–14.
  - d. Then there is one other factor which is absolutely essential to understand. God the Father said to David that he was going to have a son who will reign forever. He would perpetuate David's dynasty. This is fulfilled in Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is descended from David through Mary, descended legally through Joseph. Mary was descended from Nathan; Joseph was descended from Solomon. Jesus Christ became a man, from the tribe of Judah, in the line, and He is the fulfilment of the Davidic covenant. He will reign forever as a man. This doesn't mean that when He reigns His deity will go outside and park somewhere. He is one essence forever, deity and humanity. Not two people, one person, one essence.
11. Everything verbally communicated by Christ during His incarnation came from one of three sources. Sometimes His deity spoke — John 8:58; sometimes His humanity

— John 19:28; sometimes His hypostatic union, His whole person — Matthew 11:28; John 14:6.

12. Categories of attributes as related to the person of Jesus Christ.
  - a. The first of the categories are attributes of the whole person: redeemer, Savior. Both natures are essential to the function of being Savior and redeemer.
  - b. There are attributes which are true just of His deity, but the whole person is the subject — John 8:58. It was the God-Man speaking but obviously only His deity preceded Abraham.
  - c. There are attributes which are true of His humanity and the whole person is the subject — John 19:28 — “I thirst.” Only humanity thirsts. But the person on the cross was the God-Man, so the God-Man is the subject.
  - d. The person is described by the divine nature but the predicate of the human nature. In Revelation 1:12–18 we have a description of Jesus Christ. It is obvious that the deity of Christ is in evidence, yet He is described as the one who was dead and alive again — verse 18. So death is only possible for the humanity, the human nature is said to have died, but deity produces the action. And it is describing the Lord Jesus Christ in His deity but He is the one who once died.
  - e. Then we have the person described according to the human nature but predicate of the divine nature — John 6:62 where we have the title “Son of Man” which is a title for the humanity of Christ. But get this: “The Son of Man ascending up where He was before” is deity. So human nature, subject; attribute of deity in the predicate.
  - f. Next, the person described according to His divine nature but the predicate of both natures. This time divine nature is the subject but both natures — hypostatic union — in the predicate — John 5:25–27. Christ as the Son of God spoke to those who are spiritually dead, and those who heard — positive volition — lived. But He went on to say that in the future Christ will execute judgement as the Son of Man. Then we have the person described according to the human nature but the predicate of both natures. The best illustration is Matthew 27:46. Christ was speaking from the viewpoint of His human nature, but the pronoun “Me” has reference to both natures. “Why hast thou forsaken Me?” What was forsaken? The God-Man was forsaken. That is as close as you can get to the inscrutability of the fact that when Jesus Christ was on the cross His deity was there too. “Me” is the same one who was in the cradle as a baby. From there, all of the way to the cross, there was no separation of His hypostatic union.

The Doctrine of Impeccability (Review)

1. Christ did not have an old sin nature by birth, nor did He commit an act of sin during the incarnation — Hebrews 4:15; 1Peter 1:19; 1John 3:5.
2. Christ was tempted in the area of His humanity. The unique temptation: Matthew 4:2–11; principle: Hebrews 4:15.

3. As with Adam in innocence, or sinlessness, so Jesus Christ in hypostatic union: all temptation came from without. Neither had a sin nature. Adam was created without a sin nature; Jesus Christ was born without a sin nature.
4. All temptations to Christ had to come through His human nature. The human nature of Christ is temptable; the divine nature of Christ is not temptable — James 1:13.
5. Christ resisted the greatest of all temptations at Gethsemane when He faced the cross in all of its horror and reality — Luke 22:42; Matthew 26:39; Mark 14:35,36. The first Adam failed the volitional test; the last Adam passed it with flying colours.
6. Christ resisted the Kenosis temptation in Matthew 4. He did not use His own divine attributes independently of the Father's plan. He resisted the temptation to use His divine attributes in independence of the Father. He could have turned the stones to bread through His omnipotence but the humanity under the filling of the Spirit refused and depended upon God the Father.
7. The categorizing of the doctrine is very simple. The humanity of Christ was temptable and peccable; the deity of Christ, not temptable, not peccable.
8. In the hypostatic union Christ is temptable but impeccable.
9. It is possible for the humanity of Christ during the incarnation to suffer physical limitations of an unmoral sort. That is, He suffered weakness, fatigue, sorrow, hunger, thirst, righteous indignation and physical death. But none of these sufferings presented complications which in any way affected His holiness.
10. Possi non pericari, able not to sin; non possi pericari not able to sin. Christ was able not to sin and not able to sin. So Christ is God. Christ is never the source of evil under any circumstances. Evil stems from angelic and human volition, never from divine sovereignty.

Heb 7:26 For it was indeed fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, innocent, unstained, separated from sinners, and exalted above the heavens.

Verse 26 — “and made higher,” the aorist active participle of ginomai means “having become.” The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the event in its entirety but emphasizes the existing results. The ascension and session of Christ is seen as the entirety but the results are emphasized here, the result in strategic victory, intensification of the angelic conflict, the need now for a royal family, all of these are results from the culminative aorist. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb in ascension and session, seated at the right hand of the Father, as per Psalm 110:1, 4. The participle has antecedent action to the main verb. The main verb: “for it was fitting”. Before it was fitting the Lord Jesus Christ had to be glorified at the right hand of the Father.

“higher” is a nominative singular comparative from hupsêlos (ὑψηλός) [pronounced hoop-say-LOSS], which actually means “more elevated.”

“than the heavens” — an ablative of comparison plural from the word for heavens: ouranos (οὐρανός) [pronounced oo-ran-OSS]

Hebrews 7:26 “For it was also fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, impeccable, moral, having been separated from the sinners [through resurrection and ascension], and having become more elevated than the heavens [seated at the right hand of the Father as the God-Man].” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Heb 7:27 He has no need, like those high priests, to offer sacrifices daily, first for his own sins and then for those of the people, since he did this once for all when he offered up himself.

Verse 27 — the unique sacrifice. We start out with the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], referring to the Lord Jesus Christ in His uniqueness as the God-Man.

“needeth not” — ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh] a)nakkh. Ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] is the strong, close the door, shut it tight, negative. Then we have the present active indicative of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh] plus the accusative singular of anakê (ἀναγκή) [pronounced ahn-ahg-KAY], a direct object. All of this should be translated, “who does not have need”, or “who never has need.” “Who does not have need” goes better with the prepositional phrase translated like an adverb, “daily.” It is the preposition katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of hêmera (ἡμέρα) [pronounced hay-MEH-raw], the word for “day.” This is literally, “according to the standard of the day”, but it becomes an adverb really which is a good way to translate it — “who does not have daily need”. In other words, the prepositional phrase used as an adverb modifies anakê (ἀναγκή) [pronounced ahn-ahg-KAY], the substantive. But it must be understood He never will have daily need.

“as” is an adverb, hspēr (ὥσπερ) [pronounced HOH-sper], and the adverb sets up a comparison between the Lord Jesus Christ as the unique perfect high priest and the Levitical high priests; “those high priests” refers simply to the Levitical priesthood. The Levitical priesthood had to offer daily sacrifices for themselves. They offered for others as well. This is contrasted with Christ who offered one efficacious sacrifice for sins for all time.

“to offer up” — present active infinitive of anapherô (ἀναφέρω) [pronounced an-af-EHR-oh], a technical word for sacrifices. The present tense is a progressive present used in the sense of description. It is the same as the pictorial present in the Greek, used to present to the mind a picture of events as in the process of occurring. In other words, you are supposed to picture in your mind a Levitical high priest offering animal sacrifices for himself and for the people. The active voice: the Levitical high priest produces the action of the verb. The infinitive is circumstantial.

“sacrifices” — the accusative plural of thusia (θυσία) [pronounced thoo-SEE-ah] is the accusative of direct object and it describes the various categories of Levitical sacrifices.

“first” is a neuter singular — proteroj — used as an adverb. The adverb means first in sequence and very important. First in sequence, he had to offer for his own sins. He can’t function at the altar if he is out of fellowship. He can only function if he gets himself in fellowship and then he can function on behalf of others — “first for his own sins, and then for the people's". The word "people's" is ablative plural definite article followed by a genitive singular definite article, followed by the genitive singular of the noun laos (λαός) [pronounced lah-OSS]. Then we have with all of this the preposition u(per plus the genitive. U(per goes with the ablative plural and it is used as the demonstrative pronoun. With two definite articles, one preposition and one substantive — "and then on behalf of those [sins] of the people." The genitive of reference here is better translated "with reference to the people." The phrase describes the routine of the Levitical high priest who on the day of atonement offered first for his own sins and then for the sins of the people.

"for this he did" — the aorist active indicative of poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] means here to accomplish. We have an explanatory gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] plus a demonstrative pronoun referring back to what has just been said — "he accomplished." We have a gnomic aorist here for an absolute fact. No high priest ever did anything but follow this procedure.

"once" — the adverb "once" is really a little stronger, ephapax (ἐφάπαξ) [pronounced ef-AP-ax]. Now hapax (ἅπαξ) [pronounced hap'-ax] means "once"; ephapax (ἐφάπαξ) [pronounced ef-AP-ax] means "once and for all".

"when he offered up" is the aorist active participle of anapherō (ἀναφέρω) [pronounced an-af-EHR-oh]. The dramatic aorist states a present reality with the certitude of a past event. This is a very dramatic thing, as a matter of fact. Jesus Christ produced the action of the verb on the cross. He did everything in three hours that all of the high priests represented over a thousand years. Because of impeccability Jesus Christ was qualified to offer Himself and therefore the reflexive pronoun which goes with this verb, heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO], emphasizes the uniqueness of the hypostatic union.

Hebrews 7:27 Jesus Christ, Who does not have daily need, as those high priests, who keep offering up sacrifices, first on behalf of their own sins, and then on behalf of the sins with reference to the people [of Israel]. For this he accomplished once and for all, when He offered up Himself [a sacrifice]. R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Jesus Christ did something different. He offered once and for all Himself.

Heb 7:28 For the law appoints men in their weakness as high priests, but the word of the oath, which came later than the law, appoints a Son who has been made perfect forever.

Verse 28 — "For the law." We have the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] — ho (ὁ) [pronounced hoh] nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] refers to the Mosaic law, but more than that, it refers to the law as the authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood.

"maketh" — the present active indicative of kathistēmi (καθίστημι) [pronounced kath-IHS-tay-mee] means to appoint, to authorize. "For the law authorizes" — the customary present, it denotes that which habitually occurs or is expected to occur. This is a customary historic present, this always happened. The active voice: the Mosaic law produces the action of the verb by appointing the Levitical priests and the Levitical high priest. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. Always there was a high priest in Israel, always authorized by the Mosaic law.

“men” — the accusative plural of the direct object from anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos] indicating the fact that all priests are members of the human race — and that includes Melchizedek.

“high priests which have” — present active indicative of echō (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh], they have and they hold it. This is a retroactive progressive present which denotes that which was begun in the past and continues to the present time. It is the present tense of duration, it is always true. The active voice: the Levitical priest produces the action of the verb. It is a concessive participle, it concedes the existence of the old sin nature in every man that the law appointed as a high priest. But God appointed a high priest minus the old sin nature. The only high priest in all of history who was without an old sin nature is the Lord Jesus Christ.

“infirmity” — accusative singular direct object of asthēneia (ἀσθένεια) [pronounced ahs-THEH-nigh-ah] referring here to the old sin nature.

“but the word of the oath” — ho logos de thj o(rkwmosioj means God the Father’s oath-taking. This introduces once again the two immutable things. God the Father in declaring this phase of the decrees took a solemn oath — Psalm 110:4 — “but the word of the solemn oath-taking [by God the Father].”

“which was since the law” — meta plus the accusative of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] which is literally “which came after the law.”

Summary of Hebrews 7:28

1. While the authorization for the priesthood of Christ occurred in eternity past it did not exist historically until after the law, after the function of the Levitical priesthood. There is a reason for that. The Levitical priesthood could make nothing perfect, it could not produce teleiōsis (τελείωσις) [pronounced tel-ī-oh-sis]. Therefore the Levitical priesthood came first in history while the actual appointment in the decrees came first in eternity past.
2. The Church Age accompanied by the royal priesthood interrupts the Jewish Age with its Levitical priesthood.
3. Here now is the completion of the contrast between the Levitical high priests having weaknesses [the OSN] and the King high priest, Jesus Christ having perfection.
4. Not only is there a contrast in the quality of high priests but in the quality of the authorizing agents. And both meet at this point, the two roads cross. The quality of the authorizing agent: God the Father is greater than the Mosaic law; the quality of the high priest: Jesus Christ, minus the old sin nature, is greater than any Levitical high priest with his sin nature.

Now we have to supply the word “authorizes the Son” — the accusative singular from huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS] without the definite article. The absence of the definite article calls attention to the quality of the noun. The quality of this noun: the unique person of Jesus Christ the God-Man, the only celebrity for the Church Age.

“who is” is not found in the original manuscript and not necessary to smooth out the translation. The reason is because “consecrated” is a perfect passive participle, teleioō (τελειόω) [pronounced tehl-i-OH-oh]. It means to be perfect. The perfect tense is intensive, it sees the action of the verb as completed with emphasis on existing results. Jesus Christ as God is perfect, as humanity He is impeccable and perfect, and cannot be anything else. Therefore we have the hypostatic union, the sum total of uniqueness and perfection both together under the intensive perfect tense. The passive voice: Jesus Christ receives perfection forever. The participle is ascriptive which treats this verbal form as an adjective describing a characteristic of the new high priest which is perfection. And not just perfection but perfection forever. So literally, “authorizes the having been perfected Son forever.”

Hebrews 7:28 “For the law appoints men [high priests] having weaknesses [old sin nature]; but the word of the solemn oath by God the Father, which came historically after the law, authorizes the having been perfect Son forever.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

89 11/07/1973 Hebrews 8:1a Doctrine of the High Priesthood of Jesus Christ; priesthood

Bob was apparently at a conference in Hollywood or the Los Angeles area. Many people in uniform there. Got to meet Bobby’s battalion commander. A turn around toward Bible doctrine, in Peoria, in Portland, and several other cities.

A lot of people have an interest in doctrine, and can handle hearing a hell or damn thrown at them. Discipline is better. Maybe he was in Hawaii?

Things are much better in the military service than on the outside. Service-oriented personnel always put on a top-notch conference.

Chapter 8

The Doctrine of the High Priesthood of Jesus Christ (Review)

1. There are three priesthoods in the scripture. The first is in the dispensation of the Gentiles, the second in the dispensation of Israel, and the third in the dispensation of the Church. Each dispensation has a priesthood.
  - a. We become priests at the moment of exercising faith in Jesus Christ.
2. As high priest Jesus Christ is a minister of spiritual things — Hebrews 5:1. Therefore, all spiritual things which pertain to us in this dispensation are related to Jesus Christ.
3. Jesus Christ is appointed high priest by God the Father — Hebrews 5:4–10; 6:20.

4. Jesus Christ offered Himself a sacrifice of the priesthood — Hebrews 9:26,27. In other words, our high priest is greater than all high priests that ever went before because He offered Himself as a sacrifice. Basically He did two things. When Jesus Christ went to the cross as our high priest He solved the problem of the old sin nature. He solved this problem by bearing our sins in His own body on the tree. At the same time He completely disassociated Himself with all human good of any kind.
  - a. In order for God to love us, He cannot compromise any of His essence. He cannot set aside His justice and righteousness in order to save us.
  - b. We have a sin nature, personal sin, and imputed sin.
5. Jesus Christ has an eternal and untransmissible priesthood — Hebrews 7:20, 21, 24. In other words, He will always be the high priest and we will always be a kingdom of priests, always be royalty.
6. Because of positional sanctification — union with Christ — every believer is a priest — 1Peter 2:5,9; Revelation 1:6; 5:10; 20:6.
7. Christ as high priest performs a ministry of intercession for believers on the earth — Hebrews 7:25.
8. The believer priest in phase two possesses a different sacrifice from the Levitical code. In the Levitical code you would take to the altar a lamb or a goat. But not any more. All of the animal sacrifices ended with the operation of the Levitical priesthood, so now we have three basic sacrifices:
  - a. As priests we have the sacrifice of the believer's body — Romans 12:1. This is rebound.
  - b. The sacrifice of praise — Hebrews 13:15. This is based on supergrace capacity and category #1 love response. That, of course, is based on doctrine.
  - c. A third sacrifice is production and giving — Hebrews 13:16. These are sacrifices of the priesthood.
  - d. A fourth one, which is very rarely ever heard of, is obedience — Hebrews 13:17.

There are three basic principles taught in Hebrews chapter eight. The subject of the chapter is the superiority of Jesus Christ as high priest, and this passage denotes three superiorities:

The Three Superiorities of the High Priesthood of Jesus Christ

1. Christ is superior because He has an heavenly ministry — Hebrews 8:1–5.
2. Christ is superior because He has a better ministry — Hebrews 8:6.
3. Christ is superior because He has a new covenant ministry — Hebrews 8:7–13. So we have the three superiorities of the high priesthood of Christ over all other priesthoods.

Verses 1–5, the heavenly ministry of Christ. The first verse talks of the glorification of Christ and acts as a transitional verse between what we have in the seventh chapter and what we now have in the eighth chapter.

Heb 8:1 Now the point in what we are saying is this: we have such a high priest, one who is seated at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heaven,

Verse 1 — “of the things which we have spoken this is the sum” is not correct. The first word “Now” is the Greek particle de used as a transitional particle. This is a conjunctive particle. It is never used first in the sentence, it always follows. It is used here with the word kephalaion (κεφάλαιον) [pronounced kef-AL-ah-yon]. Kephalaion (κεφάλαιον) [pronounced kef-AL-ah-yon] is used by Pindar and Demosthenes not as the sum but as the main point. So de plus kephalaion (κεφάλαιον) [pronounced kef-AL-ah-yon] means “Now the main point.” We have come to the main point in Hebrews and we have a summary of everything. This is a transition summarising what we have had and then going on to what is ahead.

Next we have “of the things which we have spoken”, and it is incorrect. We have a prepositional phrase with the participle as the object of the preposition — epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative plural present active participle of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. The present tense is a static present used for perpetual communication of God’s Word. The passive voice: doctrine of the superiority of Christ as high priest is now being communicated in summary. The participle is telic. The telic participle acts as a transitional one to denote the purpose of what is coming related to what has just been said. It should be translated “Now the main point on what has been said is this.” That is the way the verse actually starts, or “the main point on what is being communicated is this.”

Then, “We have such an high priest.” “We have” is the present active indicative of the verb echō (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh]. It means to have and to hold, to have and possess. The present tense is a static present, we always will have. The active voice: every person who believes in Jesus Christ will always have Christ. We are forever saved. “We keep having such a high priest”, but it isn’t “such a high priest.” It is “such a category of high priest.” There is only one but He falls in a separate category. And the word for high priest: archiereus (ἀρχιερεύς) [pronounced ar-khee-er-YUCE] which means the ruling priest.

Literally then: “Now the main point on what is being communicated is this: We keep on having such a category of high priest”.

“who” — the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç] refers to the Lord Jesus Christ; “has sat down.”

The Doctrine of the Priesthood (Redux)

1. Definition: A priest is a member of the human race representing the human race to God. The priest of the Old Testament was always taken from the male population of the human race but never from angels and never from women. The exception is the Church Age where every women, the moment she believes, becomes a priest too. The priest must partake of the nature of the person or persons for whom he acts. That is, he must be a member of the human race — Hebrews 5:1; 7:4,5, 14, 28. This is one reason why Jesus Christ had to be a member of the human race, As God He could not be a priest — Hebrews 10:5, 10–14.

2. The sphere of the priesthood function: The priest and high priest must function in the sphere of spiritual phenomena. Therefore, he is appointed for man's benefit in spiritual things. This means the royal priesthood of the Church Age is related to Bible doctrine. If you and I are going to have spiritual benefit in spiritual things then as members of the priesthood we must live on Bible doctrine. The only food for a priest is doctrine — Matthew 4:4.
3. The categories of the priesthood (3 battalions):
  - a. The first category is the battalion of the royal priesthood. The pattern of that battalion is Melchizedek who was both a king and a priest. He became a king by conquest; he became a priest by divine appointment. The Lord Jesus Christ is in that battalion. He was born a King, He didn't require kingship by conquest. Salem or Jerusalem is His future headquarters. The Lord Jesus Christ is a King as of birth, descended from David through Solomon. This is the only battalion authorized today. So the first battalion is made up of the royal priesthood and that refers to every believer in the Lord Jesus Christ.
    - i. We are all in full-time Christian service.
    - ii. We are priests every bit as much as Bob is.
  - b. The second battalion is the Levitical priesthood, authorized by the Mosaic law which is now defunct. The Levitical priesthood is no longer authorized. You had to be in the family of Aaron. The concept of the priestly ministry in spiritual things is found for this priesthood in Numbers 16:5. They were commissioned, they were holy, they were allowed to "come near" to the altar. This priesthood was perpetuated through the natural line of Aaron and specifically through his surviving sons. Everything was a shadow. All of the celebrations were shadows of what was to come.
  - c. In the third priesthood, the family priesthood, the patriarch of the family functioned as the high priest. And the second and third battalions are defunct, only the first battalion has survived.
4. We have a royal high priest in the Church Age, the Lord Jesus Christ. He is appointed forever by divine decrees — Hebrews 5:6. He was appointed to the royal priesthood — Hebrews 5:10. He was assigned to the Melchizedek battalion — Hebrews 6:20. His appointment was accompanied by divine oath — Hebrews 7:21.
5. The royal priesthood of the Church Age. All believers of this dispensation are priests — 1Peter 2:5,9; Revelation 1:6; 5:10; 20:6.
6. The purpose of the royal priesthood in the Church Age is to reach supergrace and maximum divine blessing. Everything else is incidental. Hebrews 6:17–20; Ephesians 3:17–21; 4:11–16.
7. The function of the royal priesthood. It will be delineated in Hebrews chapter 13.

Two medal of Honor recipients.

We have started a study of the superiority of our high priest, Jesus Christ. The superiority of Jesus Christ as high priest is the subject of this chapter.

Jesus Is Superior

1. He is superior because of His heavenly ministry: 8:1–5;
2. because of His better ministry: 8:6;
3. because of His new covenant ministry: 8:7–13.

We possess Jesus Christ as a high priest forever. There is no way we can lose our salvation. The relative pronoun “who” refers to the unique person of the universe, the Lord Jesus Christ, our Savior, the King of kings and Lord of lords, the one who is the object of category #1 love, the one who is responsible for everything that will ever be worthwhile in our lives.

Jesus, High Priest of a Better Covenant

Heb 8:1 Now the point in what we are saying is this: we have such a high priest, one who is seated at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heaven,

He is said to be “set” — incorrect. The aorist active indicative of the verb kathizô (καθίζω) [pronounced kahth-EED-zoh] does not mean to be set but to be seated. It should be translated, “who has sat down.” The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the action of the verb in its entirety but it emphasizes the existing results of the strategic victory of the Lord Jesus Christ in being seated at the right hand of the Father. The session is the result and so we have a culminative aorist. The Lord Jesus Christ having been seated is in the place of strategic victory. The active voice: Jesus Christ demonstrated His superiority by sitting down in heaven. This is in contrast to the high priest who always stood as he ministered in the tabernacle. He never sat down. The indicative mood is the unqualified assertion of the principle of doctrine that Jesus Christ has won the strategic victory.

The Doctrine of Ascension & Session

1. The resurrection body of Jesus Christ was capable of space travel, just as ours will be. The resurrection body of the humanity of Christ traveled through all three heavens — John 20:17.
2. The fact that Jesus Christ was seated in heaven at the request of God the Father, and the fact that this is the place of honour, is the subject of many scriptures, including Psalm 110:1 where it was first prophesied; Romans 8:34; Ephesians 1:20; Colossians 3:1; Hebrews 1:3,13; 8:1; 10:12; 12:2; 1Peter 3:22. Notice that this prophecy is more frequently quoted in the epistle to Hebrews because the epistle to Hebrews gives us the power, the glory, the strategic victory, of our high priest, the Lord Jesus Christ. All of these verses confirm the fact of the acceptability of the humanity of Christ in heaven. This guarantees our acceptability in a future day, according to Ephesians 1:6.

3. The ascension and session of Christ forms the basis of victory in the angelic conflict — Hebrews 1:3–13. 4. The ascension and session of Christ begins a new sphere of the angelic conflict — Ephesians 1:20,22; 4:7–10. Therefore the believer of the Church Age is involved in the intensification of the angelic conflict. And this is why the Age of Israel was never completed but interrupted. It will be completed in the future. The first dispensation of history, the Age of the Gentiles, was interrupted never to be completed. The second dispensation, the Age of Israel, was interrupted to be completed at the Tribulation. The third dispensation, the Church Age, will never be interrupted. It will be completed at the point of the Rapture of the Church without interruption. This is because the royal family in heaven is being completed at the present time.
  - a. Louis XVI was a terrible king; brilliant locksmith. Nice guy. Married Marie Antoinette. Not in a place for nice guys.
  - b. Bob uses the term Millennium advisedly, as there is some religious figure out there talking about it. 11/08/1973.
  - c. As a prisoner at Fort Sill, he believed in Jesus Christ when there.
  - d. George V believed in Jesus Christ; so he will be a king in heaven and here.
  - e. Some hearing the doctrine of ascension, so many people go to sleep. Jesus traveled through all of that space, but He sat down, but He sat down alone. He will never be alone after the rapture.
  - f. The ascension means victory; it means that the victory is already won.
  - g. Louis XIV broke the back of royalty in trying to run France. They all looked foppish. He gave them all minor responsibilities.
  - h. We are royal priests forever.
  - i. We are in the intensified attack on the believing population.
4. The ascension and session begins a new sphere of the dispensation Israel; operation footstool. This was prophesied in Psalm 110:1. It was quoted in Luke 20:42,43; Acts 2:33,34; Hebrews 1:13. Operation footstool merely means that all of our Lord's enemies, angelic and human, will be annihilated at the second advent.
5. The second advent of Christ will conclude operation footstool, according to Daniel 7:13,14; Zechariah 13:2; Colossians 2:15; Revelation 20:1–3.
6. The ascension and session of Christ completes His glorification in hypostatic union. He is now in permanent hypostatic union as the God-Man — Acts 2:33; 5:31; Philippians 2:9; 1Peter 3:22.
7. The ascension and session explain the uniqueness of the Church Age — John 7:37–39.
8. The ascension and session is the key to the victory of the angelic conflict — Hebrews 1:4.
9. The ascension and session of Christ after resurrection make possible the second high-priestly function of Christ, namely making intercession for each one of us. Jesus Christ prays daily for every member of the royal family on earth. That means there is one person praying for you every day. He is in heaven, He is at the right hand of the Father — Hebrews 7:25.

Hebrews 8:1 — “Now the main point on what is being communicated is this: We have such a category of high priest who sat down on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

The word “majesty” is a descriptive genitive of megalôsunê (μεγαλωσύνη) [pronounced mehg-al-oh-SOO-nay]. The word emphasizes the total glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ as high priest. He is the only high priest to function in a resurrection body forever.

Compare Our High Priest with the Levitical High Priest

1. The right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens places the Lord in a totally superior place for the function of His high priesthood. He is in contrast to the Levitical priesthood in this sense.
2. The Levitical priesthood: The high priest died and ceased to function as a high priest. Christ as our high priest died on the cross but continues to function in resurrection. The Levitical priesthood was composed of sinners who had to offer sacrifices for their own sins, they had to offer sacrifices for the sins of the people. Our high priest always was, always will be, totally impeccable.
3. The Levitical high priest operated on the earth, while our high priest operates in heaven.
4. The Levitical high priest operated under an inferior authorization from the Mosaic law. He was authorized to function under the Mosaic law, a covenant which has been nullified by the change in dispensation.
5. The Levitical high priest was neither a mediator nor a Savior. Jesus Christ is both a mediator and a Savior.
6. Furthermore, his ministry terminated with physical death in contrast to our Lord’s ministry which continues after death in resurrection and forever.

Hebrews 8:2 a minister in the holy places, in the true tent that the Lord set up, not man.

Verse 2 — Christ has the best temple. The word “minister” is not the usual word for minister which is diakonos (διάκονος) [pronounced dee-AK-on-os], used for the pastor of a church and sometimes for deacons. It means those who wait on tables. The word here is the word leitourgos (leitourgός) [pronounced li-toorg-OSS]. This word was originally used in the Greek language before it came to the New Testament. It was used in a most disparaging, derogatory way. It was used to indicate a government official or one who holds a public office. It was used for a politician and there is nothing that has caused us more trouble than politicians. But in the ancient world the public officials had a great deal more respect than we are able to give to our politicians today. The word leitourgos (leitourgός) [pronounced li-toorg-OSS] had a higher meaning in those days in that it connoted a government official who used his authority properly and served the people. He regarded himself as a servant of the people. It was also used when the Hebrew Bible was translated into Greek — the LXX, the Septuagint. Leitourgos (λειτουργός) [pronounced li-toorg-OSS] was used for the Jewish high priest in the sense of his rulership of the nation. And it is used here in the same idea of the Lord Jesus Christ as our high priest ruling us. There are two concepts in our relationship with God. We are royal family. That means ruler. We are also priests, and that means function. Leitourgos (λειτουργός) [pronounced li-toorg-OSS] brings the two together, a ruler who is also a priest. It was used for the high priest in Israel and therefore it becomes a very significant word when used for the Lord Jesus Christ because it describes Him not as a high priest but as the royal high priest.

Bob sees no reason to use the word reverend except when speaking with a traffic officer.

So He is a minister of the “sanctuary”, the genitive plural of hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss], used for the parts of the tabernacle covered by the tent. The descriptive genitives set up a correlation to the parts of Israel’s tabernacle. The two areas in which the royal family is now located, heaven and earth, are analogous to the two parts of the Jewish tabernacle. They are generally called the holy place and the holy of holies. One is analogous to the believer on earth and the other to the believer in heaven. So it became a shadow pointing to the royal priesthood of our day. And who is the minister of this? The Lord Jesus Christ. He rules today through Bible doctrine. “A minister of the holy places” would be better than “the sanctuary.”

“and of the true tabernacle” — this is a descriptive genitive from skênê (σκηνή) [pronounced skay-NAY], which means tabernacle or tent. A tabernacle means a large tent. We also have a genitive of apposition, alêthinos (ἀληθινός) [pronounced al-ay-thee-NOSS], meaning the real one. Heaven is the real tabernacle, the genuine one. The tabernacle was a shadow pointing to reality. The reality is heaven itself. Jesus Christ is called “a minister of the holy places, and of the tabernacle, the real one”.

“which” — accusative feminine singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç]. The antecedent is also in the feminine — skênê (σκηνή) [pronounced skay-NAY].

“the Lord” — ho (ὁ) [pronounced ho] kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], refers to the Lord Jesus Christ, and it refers to Him as the creator.

“pitched” is the aorist active indicative of pēgnumi (πήγνυμι) [pronounced PAYG-noo-mee]. The word is used in Isaiah 42:5 for the creative activity of God regarding the heavens and the earth. Here again we have a perfect illustration. Pēgnumi (πήγνυμι) [pronounced PAYG-noo-mee] meant to pitch a tent, but when they came to translating from the Hebrew to the Greek when they came to Isaiah 42:5 they used this Greek word. It also means to fix, to put together, or to build. It is a constative aorist and it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety — the action of creating the heavens. The creation of the heavens is gathered into a single whole. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb in creating the heavens — John 1:3; Hebrews 1:10; Colossians 1:16. The indicative mood is the reality and certainty of Christ as the creator, the builder of the true tabernacle, the alêthinos (ἀληθινός) [pronounced al-ay-thee-NOSS], the genuine tabernacle. Moses was the “contractor”, he had men working under him and they built the tabernacle according to the specifications in Exodus, but the Lord Jesus Christ built the genuine tabernacle in heaven.

Therefore we have the phrase, “and not man” — ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]. “Not man” refers to the tabernacle on earth constructed by man. Man had nothing to do with constructing heaven. That is a very significant point. There is no member of the human race who ever lifted a finger to build any part of heaven. Does that tell you something? The people who go to heaven never lifted a finger to be saved. The whole concept of grace is in view. All you have to do is to see the analogy. After all, we are members of a royal priesthood. Our high priest is in heaven and some day we are going to be in heaven, as royal priests, members of the royal family of God. And we are going to serve in heaven forever and ever and ever. So this is important. What did you ever do to construct heaven? What did you ever do to build up the billions and billions of light years of space? Nothing! What did you ever do for salvation? Nothing! What did you ever do to merit anything from God? Nothing! And you understand, therefore, that all of us are nothings made something by God’s grace. It was grace that caused a genuine tabernacle to be built, the whole construction of heaven. Christ did it, the same Jesus Christ who saved us, the same Jesus Christ who makes us members of the royal family forever, and we are in His priesthood forever.

When Bob used to teach Hebrews 8, he would cover it in an hour; he made hash out of it.

Bob had a beautiful lawn in Beverly Hills; what did he do to get it? Nothing. Just like we did nothing to build heaven. So many testimonies are bragamonies, because they think they did some of the work. Ministers are having breakthroughs all over the United States because they have listened to a tape by Bob.

We were designed to enjoy what is going on. We don’t need to take credit for it. Spiritual growth gives you the capacity to enjoy whatever God drops into your lap, RM/RW, a billion dollars, whatever.

The Tabernacle was designed to reveal grace. We cannot use legalism to gain God’s favor.

Hebrews 8:2 “A minister of the holy places, and of the tabernacle, the real one which the Lord put together, and not man.”

1972 Hebrews 8:3

Lesson #91

91 11/09/1973 Hebrews 8:3 Doctrine of the Tabernacle

All of the freedom that we have is based upon victory on the battlefield. Politicians make silly laws; the police and military preserve our freedom.

We must stop and at least get a thumbnail sketch of what the tabernacle is all about. This is merely a summary to teach certain principles related to the tabernacle.

The tabernacle was set up as the basic principle of worship in Israel

Doctrine of the Tabernacle

1. The tabernacle in general as a part of the ordinances or the spiritual code of the Mosaic law. The tabernacle is a picture of the incarnate person of Jesus Christ, the unique high priest, the unique Savior, the unique person. The tabernacle in scripture often speaks of the human body, as in 2Corinthians 5:1,4. It also speaks in terms of a representation of something, as in Hebrews 9:1–11. The tabernacle in Israel, according to Exodus 25:1–9, was specified as God’s dwelling place and the whole concept was the grace principle, God fellowshiping with men. The tabernacle represents the place where we meet the God of heaven. It is God fellowshiping with man and man fellowshiping with God on the basis of salvation. The tabernacle reminds us in a general way that nothing was made by guess or by the will of man or by the plan of man. It was strictly by divine design.
  - a. Many Christians lack common sense.
  - b. This is strictly a divine design thing.
  - c. Bible doctrine has nothing which is speculation or guesswork.
  - d. The Tabernacle is a picture of the believer in union with Christ. Today, every believer is a member of the royal family of God.
  - e. The specifications of the Tabernacle remind us that the plan of God is exact and it existed in eternity past. If God designed a plan for your life in eternity past, why get worried or upset about it. Life is unstable; but God can be trusted.
  - f. God has provided for us the assets of the soul, money, sex, friends, etc.
  - g. God knew your needs before you were born; and you have just discovered them recently.
2. In the 25th chapter of Exodus where the specifications are all given it is strictly what God says and there is no guess work. And so it is with Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine doesn’t put anything in the area of speculation or guess work, it is all laid out very perfectly for us under the principle of grace. God does the work, we stand by and enjoy the benefits.
3. The tabernacle is by way of application a picture of the believer in union with Christ. Remember that only a priest could enter the tabernacle. Today every believer is a priest, every believer is inside the tent. And while the Jews didn’t know it every time a Levitical priest went inside it was a shadow of things about to come, the universal priesthood of the royal family in the Church Age. The principle of the specifications of the tabernacle: Everything is given in great detail as a reminder also that God’s plan is unchanged. God’s plan for man has existed long before we existed. And God has a plan for your life, and that plan is older than you are. That plan means simply this. If God has a plan for your life, and if that plan is older than you are and existed long before you did, what are you worried about? God knew every problem you would ever have and God has made provision for it. The tabernacle represents the plan of God, the decree of God. And the principle of God’s plan is unchanged.

4. The tabernacle was divided into three parts. There was the outer court which represented the earth. Then there was the holy place and then the holy of holies. The holy place represents heaven as it relates to our experience, and the holy of holies represents the very presence of God, the very throne room of God. All of the articles of furniture have great significance.
5. The location of the tabernacle. It was located in the very centre of the camp. And that is important. All around the tabernacle we have tribes of Israel: three tribes to the north, three to the south, three tribes west and three east. That should be a reminder of something. All of us spend time on the outer periphery — north, south, east, or west. All spend time on the peripheral activities but the thing that is most important is Bible doctrine. That is the message of the location of the tabernacle. Your life is nothing without doctrine in the soul, and the fact that the tabernacle represents doctrine as the thinking of Christ, and the fact that it is located in the centre of the bivouac of Israel is extremely important. It is a reminder of the importance of Bible doctrine.
6. Exodus 25, one of several passages dealing with the specifications of the tabernacle, begins by specifying not the outer court as we would but it gives the specifications of the holy of holies. This is to remind us that salvation starts with God and not with man. The first specs that are given in Exodus 25 deal with the holy of holies which represents heaven and the presence of God, and all blessing comes from God, and God did the initiating in grace. The first thing to be described is the holy of holies because in grace God initiates everything. None of us were there; none of us helped.
7. The court is a picture of the earth. It was a perfect oblong, 100 cubits by 50 cubits. God specified exactly what it would be. If we reduce it to English measure it was 175 feet long, 87.5 feet wide, and 8 feet nine inches high. It was always that way and it never changed, a reminder of the fact that God never changes. That is why Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever. In building the outer court there are 60 pillars of brass — not 59. The 60 pillars have to have 60 brass sockets — brass, not gold. There were 20 pillars on the north and on the south, ten on the east and on the west. All pillars were connected by the bar of silver. Hanging upon the pillars were 490 feet of fine twined line, colour white except the gate which was blue. There is always a right place to enter and the fact that you enter where it is blue is a reminder that there is only one way to be saved. There are many lessons which come out of this. For example, the brass sockets: the brass speaks of sin and its penalty. The brass pillar is the cross: Christ judged for our sins. The white linen is for the righteousness of Christ, and once you walk through the blue gate you're behind the white linen which means imputation and justification. Throughout the tabernacle brass always represented judgement — Christ being judged for us, or our spiritual death. Silver always speaks of redemption. While linen speaks of the +R of God, His perfect righteousness. The gate is a reminder the Christ is the only way of salvation. It was 35 feet wide. It was specified — not 34 feet, not 32. God provides exact specifications for everything, including eternal salvation.
8. To go through the gate all you had to do was push on the blue, and there were three other colours that you passed by on the way in. The blue speaks of the deity of Christ. The next colour as you were going in was purple which speaks of the royalty of Christ, the Kingship of Christ. Then there was scarlet for redemption and then linen for the righteousness of Christ. And by the time they had passed through they didn't know it but they were representing the fact that in this dispensation every believer is a member of the royal priesthood. There were four pillars on the gate and they, too, had significance. It is 35' wide, big enough for anyone to go through.

- a. God is not impressed by anything that you do or say. Your testimony often means nothing to Him. God is as impressed with us as the biggest name in Christendom; whoever that is. And that is not at all.
  - b. We would not have the ability to believe without having a brain.
  - c. We learn words first; this comes from others, not from ourselves.
  - d. Your ability to believe is provided for you...your brain, the information, the revelation of the Spirit.
  - e. Multiple choice
9. Materials. These pillars were made of boards, acacia wood, and they were overlaid with gold. That is the order of most of the building materials. Nearly everything was made of acacia wood and that was the only wood used. It was then overlaid with gold. The boards were placed in sockets of silver and each socket weighed 125 lbs, two sockets per board. They were placed in the sockets by a tenon or a projection with fitted into the socket or the slot. In other words, everything had great significance. The entire foundation of the tabernacle weight six and a quarter tons. The thing that is important all the way through is that you constantly find wood overlaid with gold. The acacia wood speaks of the humanity of Christ, the gold speaks of the deity of Christ. And always, everywhere you turn in the tabernacle and see these materials you have something which represents the uniqueness of the person of Christ. They didn't have the doctrine of the hypostatic union as we have it in the Bible and they couldn't read it as we read it. They read it in all of these materials which were constructed. The roof was covered with four different types of covering. They had badger skin as an outer covering, ram skin dyed red, goat's hair and fine linen. The goat's hair was always the white hair of the goat. Everything was secured by tent pins and nails driven into the ground to which cords were attached, and so on.
- a. The estimated cost, before inflation, was US$1,500,000 for the entire construction.
  - b. This is why God told Moses to have Israel ask for 400 years back-wages from Egypt, not so they could make golden calves but so they could construct this tabernacle.
10. The roof of the tabernacle. The badger skin which was the top one was a seal or a porpoise skin really, it wasn't a badger skin at all. It was a very durable leather and it was also used by the Jews for shoes. It speaks of the humanity of Christ. The ram skin dyed red: the rams were sacrificed on the brazen altar and then they were dyed. This speaks of Christ dying for us. Then there was a curtain of goat's hair. It was white, speaking of the perfection of the Lord Jesus Christ. Then you have curtains of white linen speaking of the perfect humanity and impeccability of Christ.

11. The tabernacle had two altars.
  - a. The brazen altar was at the entrance of the first veil and the golden altar was at the entrance of the second veil. The golden altar speaks of prayer, but first of all we have the cross — no one prays until they are saved.
  - b. Both altars were in front of the veils and both altars signified entrance through that veil. The first veil represents salvation by faith in Christ, the second veil is the principle of intercession as a priestly ministry.
12. The laver. The laver stood between the altar and the actual entrance to the tabernacle. This was the place where the priests washed their hands. Every believer today is a priest and our brazen laver is the rebound technique. The brazen altar was made out of brass because Christ had to bear our sins before we could name our sins and be forgiven. And it doesn't cost us a thing to rebound. All we do is name our sins and we are forgiven immediately because Christ was judged for every sin ever named in the rebound technique.
13. The table of showbread. This table was made of acacia wood and overlaid with gold. On top of it is what is called the showbread, one for each of the tribes minus Levi. The showbread is literally "the bread of the face" or "the bread of the presence". The table itself speaks of the Lord Jesus Christ. The loaves of bread represent the supergrace blessings that come from the intake of Bible doctrine. (Doctrine is often analogous to bread) The bread was made from fine flour without leaven. It was baked with a fire and frankincense. All of these things had meaning. The eating of the bread by the priest is a picture of GAPing it in this dispensation. Each loaf was placed under a crown, and that meant that the Lord Jesus Christ was the ruler of Israel.
14. The golden candlestick. The represents Christ the light of the world. It had seven lights. Seven is the number of perfection and also represents blessing. As we have occupation with the person of Christ we enter into the supergrace blessings. This was the only light in the holy place.
15. The oil in the lamp (fuel). This represented the ministry of God the Holy Spirit and the principle by which we become enlightened with regard to the Lord Jesus Christ.
16. The two veils. The first veil is the entrance to the holy place and the second veil is the entrance to the holy of holies. There is great detail as to how they were constructed. Each one of these veils was supported by five pillars — five is the number of grace. All entrance into relationship and blessing comes from the principle of grace. The colours of the veil: blue for deity, purple for the rulership of Christ, scarlet for salvation, the white linen refers to imputation and justification. The veils also had cherubs on them representing the essence box, and everything that is worthwhile is based upon divine essence.
  - a. The tearing of the veil or the splitting of the veil indicated the end of the significance of the holy of holies.
  - b. When Christ was bearing our sins, after it was over He said "Finished." Then, of course, the veil was split.
17. The ark and the mercy seat. These represent propitiation and how God comes to love us without compromising His character.

Going back to verse 2 — the Lord Jesus Christ is said to be a minister of the holy places, “the sanctuary.” As a minister of the sanctuary He is in heaven at the right hand of the Father — “and of the tabernacle” which is in apposition — “the real tabernacle which the Lord put together, and not man.” He gave all the specifications, every detail was specified by the Lord just as with every detail of your life God has provided for it.

Hebrews 8:3 For every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; thus it is necessary for this priest also to have something to offer.

Verse 3 — the sacrifice. Christ is a better high priest because He offered a better sacrifice. This is the comparison between the person of Christ and the animals of the Levitical offerings.

The first word is “For.” This is a conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] used to express a continuation and a further explanation. In verse 1 Jesus Christ is a superior high priest because He is seated at the right hand of the Father. In verse 2 He is a superior high priest because he sits in the real tabernacle. And no one could enter the holy of holies in the tabernacle, only the high priest once a year on the day of atonement when he entered twice.

Now we move into the field of offerings, says gar, and once more we have the phrase “every high priest” — pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] archieus (ἀρχιερεύς) [pronounced ar-khee-er-YUCE], which refers to the Levitical high priests who succeeded one another on the death of the previous high priest. The eldest surviving son who was a priest became the high priest. They also went through an ordination which is now mentioned: “is ordained” — present passive indicative of the verb kathistēmi (καθίστημι) [pronounced kath-IHS-tay-mee] which means to appoint or to ordain. The present tense is an iterative present which describes what occurred historically at successive intervals. The successive intervals means simply the death of the high priest. The first one was Aaron. When he died he was succeeded by his eldest surviving son, Eleazar. And so on down the line. So the present tense here represents successive intervals, this is the present tense of repeated action. No Levitical high priest could minister beyond his death. This in itself is a great contrast for the Lord Jesus Christ continued to minister after His death and resurrection. The passive voice: the Levitical high priest received appointment on the death of the previous high priest. The indicative mood is declarative describing an historical reality.

“to offer” — present active infinitive of the verb prospheō (προσφέρω) [pronounced pros-FER-oh] which means to offer animal sacrifices and refers specifically to Levitical offerings. This, however, is not iterative but a customary present which denotes that which habitually occurred historically. It represents a state or an act assumed to be true in the past, in the future, and in the present when so authorized. Hence, it was historically true throughout the age of Israel. The active voice: the Levitical high priest produced the action of the verb. The infinitive is an infinitive of purpose and it has with it a preposition which denotes purpose. The preposition is e)j. It should be translated “For every [Levitical] high priest is appointed to offer.”

Now we have “both gifts and sacrifices — after eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] we have the word “gifts and sacrifices,” both in the accusative: dôron (δῶρον) [pronounced DOH-ron] and thusia (θυσία) [pronounced thoo-SEE-ah]. Dôron (δῶρον) [pronounced DOH-ron] refers to the food offering; thusia (θυσία) [pronounced thoo-SEE-ah] refers to the animals sacrifices. Basically, this is simply a study of the Levitical offerings[1]. By way of summary: The burnt offering of Leviticus chapter one is propitiation with emphasis on the work of Christ; the food offering of Leviticus chapter two is propitiation with emphasis on the person of Christ; the peace offering of Leviticus chapter three is reconciliation or the removal of the barrier between God and man; the sin offering of Leviticus chapter four is rebound, with emphasis on the unknown sins; the trespass offering of Leviticus chapter five is rebound with emphasis on the known sins.

“wherefore” is an adverb — hōthen (ὁθεν) [pronounced HOTH-ehn], which means “for which reason”; “of necessity” is “necessarily.” “Therefore, it is concluded necessary” would be the best way to translate it.

“That this Man”

1. This is an accusative masculine singular from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. The demonstrative pronoun gives great emphasis and it should be translated “this one.” “Therefore it is concluded necessary that this one.”
2. The demonstrative pronoun refers to the Lord Jesus Christ as different, unique, and superior high priest.
3. The accusative is a part of the accusative of general reference. That means that somewhere there is an infinitive and the accusative acts as the subject of the infinitive, or better yet, it describes the person who enters into the action of the infinitive. The person is the Lord Jesus Christ.
4. In effect, the accusative becomes the subject of the infinitive which comes up next.

“that this one have” — present active infinitive of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh]. This one as a demonstrative pronoun refers to the Lord Jesus Christ. The present tense is an aoristic present for punctiliar action in present time. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action. The infinitive is a result. There are three types of result expressed by an infinitive. The first of these is an actual result, the second is a conceived result, the third is an intended result. Here we have the actual result infinitive.

“somewhat” — tís (τις) [pronounced tihç] means “something”; “also have something to offer.” If high priests on special days like the Passover and like the Feast of the Atonement, and at other occasions, always had to offer special animal sacrifices and if Christ is superior to all those high priests then He has to offer a superior sacrifice. And He does. He offers Himself. Therefore He is superior by the very offering that He brings to the altar.

“to offer” is an incorrect translation. The nominative singular neuter of the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç] means “which”; plus the aorist active subjunctive. It should be translated “something which he might offer.” We have prospherô (προσφέρω) [pronounced pros-FER-oh] again, we have the constative aorist which contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. The constative aorist takes up the last three hours of the cross when all of our sins were poured out upon Christ and judged. The active voice: Christ produced the action, He offered Himself for our sins. The subjunctive mood indicates the potentiality and so it should be translated “which he might offer”.

Hebrews 8:3 For every Levitical High Priest is appointed to offer both gifts and sacrifices; therefore, it is concluded necessary that this one [that is, Jesus Christ] also have something that He might offer. R. B. Thieme, Jr.'s Corrected Translation

Jesus Superior to All High Priests

1. If Christ is a superior high priest to any high priest in the Levitical battalion He must have a superior sacrifice.
2. The implication demands a conclusion.
3. The conclusion is found in the efficacious sacrificial offering of Himself. Jesus Christ offered Himself in hypostatic union as the God-Man.
4. This anticipates Hebrews 9:11–14.
5. Every high priest before Christ dabbled in shadows but the shadows must be replaced by reality. Christ is the reality.
6. Animal sacrifices can only portray, they cannot be an efficacious sacrifice. No animal is an efficacious sacrifice, they can only teach, portray, represent the efficacious sacrifice. That is why the animals bled to death and why Christ did not bleed to death for our sins, He bore our sins in His own body on the tree.
7. Animal blood can illustrate but cannot atone for sin.
8. The reality of the cross is superior to all shadows of the cross.
9. Jesus Christ is infinitely a superior high priest, having offered a superior offering. He could offer no greater than Himself.

1972 Hebrews 8:4–5

Lesson #92

92 11/11/1973 Hebrews 8:4–5 Doctrine of shadows

Nov. 11, 1918 the Krauts gave up.

Readings from the green book. Stood against tremendous odds, killing 25 of the enemy, and apparently making it possible to take Hen Hill. I think this is on Okinawa?

The superiority of Jesus Christ as our High Priest is the general topic.

Hebrews 8:4 Now if he were on earth, he would not be a priest at all, since there are priests who offer gifts according to the law.

Verse 4 — “For” is an affirmative particle and rarely used in this type of a situation: men. This particular particle is one of the commonest in the Attic Greek but it is used very rarely in the New Testament — a total of 182 times. It is generally translated “indeed.” But more than that, it simply says this. In the first three verses we have enough information or enough ammunition to recognize that Jesus Christ is totally superior to any high priest who ever lived or ever will live, that Jesus Christ is absolutely unique, that He is eternal God and has never changed and cannot change. Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, to day and forever. He is also true humanity, perfect humanity, impeccable humanity, and as the God-Man He went to the cross and offered the perfect sacrifice, the only efficacious sacrifice where He bore our sins in His only body on the tree. In addition to all of this, anything that is now said is superfluous. But there is no such thing as a superfluous statement in the Word of God, it all has meaning and purpose and definition. If you have missed the superiority of our high priest in the first three verses you won’t miss in the next two. It all goes together to point out one factor: our objective in living on this earth is to reach the point of occupation with Christ, to reach the point at which these passages have real meaning and purpose and understanding in our lives. Too often we are distracted by other things. We are distracted from the Word of God. We spend our time, as it were, fighting apostasy, becoming involved, social action, getting involved in the devil’s program which is welfare, socialism, and communism; getting involved in things that are totally apart from our purpose in being alive. Each one of us has a soul, each soul has a potentiality of love, and the love of the Lord Jesus Christ who is unseen is the highest peak that the soul can reach. “For we look not at the things which are seen but the things which are unseen, for the things which are seen are temporal but the things which are unseen are eternal.” And we have the privilege as a part of the supergrace life of being occupied with the person of Jesus Christ. And with this status in supergrace everything else in this life which is worthwhile, which is provided through grace, becomes wonderful and meaningful. All of that is tied up in this one particle.

“For if” — the condition particle e(i) introduces a second class condition. The first two words, then, are translated “If indeed.” And since it is a second class condition — that means contrary to fact — we have to recognize that the full translation says “If indeed but it isn’t.”

“he were” is the imperfect active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], the absolute status quo verb. The imperfect tense is a part of the protasis of the second class condition or unreality. Ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] plus the imperfect is used to indicate a second class condition. This is also a customary imperfect which denotes what regularly occurs in past time. The active voice: Christ would produce the action of the verb but it isn’t so. The indicative mood is declarative.

Then we have with this, “on earth” — the preposition epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the genitive of gh which is the object of the preposition. It refers to the land or to the earth. Here it refers to the entire earth.

So far then we have, “If indeed he [Christ] were on the earth” — second class condition, but He isn’t. In other words, if He were functioning right now as a high priest on the earth there would be a serious problem now mentioned.

“he should not be” introduces the apodosis of the second class condition. And in introducing this we should notice several things. First of all, the Greek text includes a negative conjunction oude (οὐδέ) [pronounced oo-DEH] — “not even” instead of “not”. There is also a Greek particle which introduces the apodosis of the second class condition, and that is an. With this we have the imperfect active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. When you put all of this together it is translated in the English Bible “he should not be”, but it is literally “he would not even be a priest”. Why?

“seeing that there are” — present active indicative, again, of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] [third use of this verb in the sentence]. The present tense is a historical present. At the time of writing of this epistle, 67 AD, the Church Age had begun but the Levitical priesthood was still functioning in Jerusalem, specifically in the temple at Jerusalem which would be destroyed in three years. The Levitical priesthood was no longer authorized but would continue for another three years until Rome conquered Judea, followed by Jerusalem, followed by the temple. What this passage means, then, is that Christ would not be a Levitical priest if He were still on earth.

Actually, the writer is setting up a contrast between the function of the Levitical priesthood in the temple and the function of the Lord Jesus Christ at the right hand of the Father. The active voice of this verb indicates that the Levitical priesthood produces the action of the verb by illegally functioning on the earth, while Christ legally functions in heaven. The participle is a temporal participle and therefore it should be translated “while there are priests who keep on offering on the earth”. In other words, as long as the Levitical priests are functioning in the temple this is illegal.

Christ at the right hand of the Father is the legitimate high priest. And when the Lord Jesus Christ was seated at the right hand of the Father, after His resurrection and ascension, this interrupted the Age of Israel. Why? Because there was a new high priest, a legitimate high priest. He is a King priest. The Levitical priests were not related to royalty in any way. The royal family in Israel is the tribe of Judah, the family of David. The Levitical priests and the high priest are from the tribe of Levi and the family of Aaron, the brother of Moses. Therefore, once Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father we find the Levitical priesthood continuing to function and into the Church Age. The writer of Hebrews is writing in 67 AD and for 37 years now this has been going on and it is about to end. And he is pointing out why. This priesthood cannot continue, it is an illegitimate priesthood, it is not recognized by God, it no longer has a function, there is a new dispensation. The new dispensation demands a new priesthood. As a matter of fact it is very interesting to note that even in Jerusalem during that period of forty years you have many believers in Jesus Christ, and all of those believers were members of the royal family of God and were also of the royal priesthood. And they were functioning legitimately in Jerusalem while the Levitical priesthood was functioning in an illegitimate manner. There cannot be two priesthoods authorized by God functioning at the same time on the earth.

So we read, “If indeed [Christ] were on the earth [but He isn’t] he would not even be” — The word “priest” is not found in the original — “one of those who keep offering”.

“offering” — the present tense of prospherô (προσφέρω) [pronounced pros-FER-oh] which means to function at a legitimate altar, and not only to function at the altar but to offer sacrifices portraying Christ. The present tense is retroactive progressive for something begun in the past but continuing throughout the dispensation of Israel by the Levitical priesthood. The active voice: the Levitical priesthood produces the action of the verb. This is a circumstantial participle, it is in the genitive case, the descriptive genitive.

Literally, “If indeed he were on the earth [but he isn’t], he would not even be a priest [of the Levitical order] while there are ones offering the Levitical gifts according to the law.” The Levitical gifts refer to the sacrifices of the temple ritual.

“according to the law” is very important because this prepositional phrase tells us the authorization for the Levitical priesthood, an authorizing agent which was strong enough to keep the Levitical priesthood functioning for over four hundred years. We have katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] for the Mosaic law.

The Levitical Priesthood has been Revoked

1. The interruption of the Jewish dispensation has nullified the Levitical priesthood. Therefore it has set aside the Mosaic law as an authorizing agency.
2. However, the Levitical priesthood, no longer authorized, continued to function in Jerusalem leading astray many reversionistic believers — Hebrews 5:11–6:6.
3. Two points of superiority are not in this context. First, Christ functions in heaven in contrast to the Levitical priesthood on the earth. Heaven is infinitely superior to the earth. Second, Christ functions under the authorizing agency of the eternal decrees which cannot be revoked.
4. The Levitical priesthood, on the other hand, functions under the authorizing agency of the Mosaic law which has been abrogated or annulled.
5. The interruption of the Jewish dispensation countermands the Mosaic law as an authorizing agency.
6. The annulment of the Mosaic law rescinds the Levitical priesthood.
7. Therefore, Christ functions legitimately in heaven under the authorizing agency of the eternal decrees, while the Levitical priesthood functions illegitimately on the earth under an abrogated law.
8. A revoked priesthood is inferior to an established priesthood. Therefore, once again, the superiority of Jesus Christ as high priest.

Now the issue reaches its peak on verse 5 where we have the superiority of the reality over the shadows. The Levitical priests were functioning in the Church Age illegitimately. But what is even worse, they were dealing with shadows after the reality had come. The reality is Jesus Christ, born of a virgin, going to the cross in status impeccability, bearing our sins in His own body on the tree, taking our place, being resurrected, ascended, being seated at the right hand of the Father. This is the reality. Every portion of the tabernacle, and later on the temple, spoke of this particular reality. The reality has occurred, the Levitical priests are still functioning under shadows. This demonstrates the blindness of the blackout of the soul and the terrible distortions that come to those who suffer from scar tissue of the soul. Blackout of the soul and scar tissue of the soul are the fourth and fifth stages of reversionism, and therefore the Levitical priesthood were practicing reverse process reversionism. They were dealing with shadows when the reality was here. They were functioning as priests when they were no longer authorized, except by regeneration.

Hebrews 8:5 They serve a copy and shadow of the heavenly things. For when Moses was about to erect the tent, he was instructed by God, saying, "See that you make everything according to the pattern that was shown you on the mountain."

Verse 5 — "Who" is a nominative plural of the qualitative relative pronoun Hostis (ὅστις) [pronounced HOH-stihs], and it refers to a category here — "Who are such a category as to perform worship service".

"serve" — present active indicative of latreuô (λατρεύω) [pronounced lat-RYOO-oh], which means to perform worship service. The present tense is a customary present which denotes that which habitually occurs in worship function of the Levitical priesthood. They were actually using animal sacrifices, they were actually wearing a certain type of uniform, they were actually standing before a certain type of altar, and all of these things are shadows pointing to the reality. But the reality has come. They are still dealing with shadows even though there is now reality. The active voice: the Levitical priesthood produces the action of the verb, namely the performance of worship functions with shadows. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative which represents the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

"unto the example" means "as a model." This is the dative singular from hupodeigma (ὑπόδειγμα) [pronounced hoop-OD-igue-mah] which means a model or a pattern. The dative is dative of indirect object which indicates the one in whose interest the action of the verb is performed. In other words, it was in the interests of the Levitical priesthood and it was in the interests of Israel for the Levitical priesthood to continue in their own dispensation. This is the way in which doctrine was communicated to the people. Everything connected with the superiority of the person of Christ, everything related to the Saviorhood of Christ, everything related to the new covenant and how Christ would fulfil it to Israel; all of these things were specified in the function of the Levitical priesthood. Therefore it became a model, and the indirect object indicates that it was in the interests of Israel to know these things, it was in the interests of the Levitical priesthood to function in this way.

Next we have the words "and shadow." This is also a dative singular from the noun skia (σκία) [pronounced SKEE-ah], one of the many words in the Greek for shadow. It means a shadow in contrast to reality. We have both the dative of indirect object and the dative of advantage in the use of this word, this noun grammatically. The dative of indirect object indicates, again, the one in whose interest the action of the verb is performed. And, again, it is in the interest of the Levitical priesthood and of Israel in their own dispensation to understand doctrine through the shadows, through the performance of these activities. These activities were not the reality but they portrayed the reality before it occurred historically. In other words, until Christ went to the cross. The Levitical sacrifices were a copy or a pattern or an example of doctrine in the field of soteriology and Christology before they occurred. It was to the advantage of Israel to have this copy, this was the way they learned the pertinent doctrine. As a matter of fact no Jew could be occupied with the person of Christ until he understood the ritual activity which was performed by the Levitical priesthood. Even David himself learned a great deal of doctrine in the field of Christology by watching the function of the Levitical priesthood. This is why David always had a very wonderful relationship with the priesthood and with the tabernacle simply because he came to the place of occupation with Christ through the constant observance of ritual. Ritual was a teaching aid in the Old Testament; ritual is not a teaching aid today. The only teaching we have through ritual today is one factor alone, the communion table, the communion which commemorates the person of Christ. But ritual today depends upon doctrine already in the soul.

“of heavenly things” — this is a descriptive genitive plural from the noun epouranios (ἐπουράνιος) [pronounced ep-oo-RAN-ee-oss] which plus the definite article should be translated “of the heavenly things.” Notice again that here is the superiority of the Lord Jesus Christ who ministered in heavenly things, while the Levitical priesthood only ministered in copies and shadows of heavenly things. Therefore, we have the superiority of the reality over the shadows, the superiority of the heavenly over the earthly. The rest of this verses indicates that Moses received His instructions for the tabernacle, for the Levitical priesthood, and so on, from God the Father who was in heaven.

The Doctrine of Shadows

1. Shadows were used for hospitality in the Old Testament — the shadow of a tree. People in the ancient world would often sit under the shadow of a home or the shadow of a wall of a home and the people who owned the home would invite them in. This was the concept of hospitality and is taught in Genesis 19:8. It indicates the principle of love, the relaxed mental attitude, the spiritual growth of the soul that extends hospitality to a stranger.
2. Shadows are used for life in contrast to eternity — 1Chronicles 29:15; Job 8:9. In other words, the shadow of this life is nothing compared to the reality of eternity for the believer. If life can be so wonderful and still be a shadow, how fantastically glorious eternity must be, and it is something that all of us contemplate with great anticipation. For physical death means absent from the body, face to face with the Lord. It means no more sorrow, no more tears, no more pain, no more death, the old things have passed away. It means having an incorruptible inheritance from God Himself. And all these things cannot be explained except in terms of shadows. Life at its best is a shadow; eternity at its worst for the believer is a reality of great blessing and happiness.
3. Shadows are also used, then, for dying grace. One of the greatest blessings that comes to the believer in this life is the experience of dying grace — Psalm 23:4. Death is a shadow to the believer in dying grace. He knows where he is going, he knows where he has been. No matter how great the pain, how prolonged the dying, he is in the valley of the shadow of death, and therefore the dying does not have that disastrous reality that it portrays for the unbeliever or for the reversionistic believer minus Bible doctrine. So the shadow portrays the principle of dying grace.

4. The shadow is used for protection from the source God. All of us face known and unknown dangers in our lifetime. Life is filled with many dangers for the believer because once you accept Christ as your Savior you enter into the intensified stage of the angelic conflict. There are many invisible and unseen dangers in your life, there are many pressures which the unbeliever does not have. There are many pressures of this life which belong to the human race in common but the shadow of God protects from all — Psalm 17:8; 36:7; 57:1; 63:7; 91:1. This was David's wonderful testimony of how God cast His shadow over him in all circumstances of life. David had that supergrace confidence that the Lord was protecting him.
5. The shadow is also used in a contrasting thought. The shadow is used in the Bible for empty, superficial, and disastrous type living — Psalm 144:4; Ecclesiastes 8:13; 6:12. Cacophonous concept of an idiot = music today
6. The shadow is used for the love protection of right man over right woman. The right woman always is protected by the one she loves, even when he is absent — Song of Solomon 2:3.
  - a. I was about to call you a dumb butt, but that is ot the sort of thing to say on a Sunday morning.
  - b. Being an older woman with a young man like the Graduate makes a woman a dumb butt. You should be protected by your RM's shadow, even if he has died.
  - c. The Duchess of Marborough was better looking at 60 and there was always some fop on the make. She had many offers of many kinds; and she always turned them down in the most beautiful way. "You will never compare to the Duke," she would say. John Marborough was the great, great grandfather of Winston Churchill.
  - d. A young girl avoids all of that fornication by having a RM. SoS 2:3
  - e. Love in memory is a great thing; and it protects from the many disasters of life.
7. The shadow is used for instability — James 1:17. In other words, the instability concept is that a shadow keeps moving. The instability factor comes from the fact that a shadow may be in one spot one moment and it is in another spot the next. So the shadow for instability often portrays the fluffy-headed female who can't make up her mind about which one she loves.
8. The shadow is also used for bad foreign policy — Isaiah 30:2,3.
  - a. FDR giving a third of the world to communism; and he gave weapons over to the Russians.
  - b. Russian submarines go around the United States from their base in Cuba.
  - c. John Birch killed by the Chinese communists. They knew the Truman was a weak sister. They went into Cuba because they knew that Kennedy was a weak sister.
9. The shadow is used for pressure destroying the normal functions of life, as in Job 17:7; Psalm 102:11; 109:23.

10. The shadow is used for the ritual of the Old Testament, a ritual which was meaningful at the time. The people of the Old Testament learned much of their doctrine through the observation of ritual. Therefore, the Levitical priesthood functioned in ritual to teach doctrine. So the shadow is used for the ritual of the Old Testament which has no function or substance in our dispensation, the Church Age — Colossians 2:17; Hebrews 8:5; 10:1.

Now we come in the middle of our verse to an adverb, the word “as” — kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kath-OCE], “as” or literally, “since.” Used in its causal sense it means “since.”

“Moses was admonished” — perfect passive indicative of chrêmatizô (χρηματίζω) [pronounced kh-ray-mat-IHD-zo]. In the active voice this verb means to impart revelation or a warning. In the passive voice it means to be revealed or to receive instruction. Here it should be translated “since Moses had received divine instruction.” Moses is the human writer of the first five books of the Bible, the writer of the Mosaic law which is the authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood. Moses received his instructions from heaven where the Lord now ministers as a royal high priest. The Levitical priesthood ministers in the pattern or the copy, while Christ ministers with the reality. The Levitical priesthood in the past ministered on earth while Christ ministers in heaven. The perfect tense of this verb is intensive. The intensive perfect indicates the completion of the action in the past with results continuing. The existing results indicate the superiority of the Lord Jesus Christ as our high priest. The passive voice: Moses received divine instruction, therefore setting up the principle of an inferior authorizing agent. Moses is inferior to God. The indicative mood is a declarative indicative stating an absolute and unqualified principle of doctrine.

“of God” — not found in the original. Furthermore, it is unnecessary since chrêmatizô (χρηματίζω) [pronounced kh-ray-mat-IHD-zo] in the passive means to receive divine instruction.

“when he was about” — present active indicative of the verb mellô (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low], which means to be about to do something. The present tense is aoristic present which refers to punctiliar action in present time. The aorist itself indicates punctiliar action in the past time, here we have present time. The active voice: Moses produced the action of the verb. The participle is temporal and is therefore preceded by “when.”

“to make” — the present active infinitive of epiteleô (ἐπιτελέω) [pronounced ep-ee-tel-EH-oh] which means to complete something through construction. The present tense is a futuristic present, it denotes an action or event which has not yet occurred but is regarded as so certain that it will occur in the future. It may be contemplated as already coming to pass because it is so certain. Moses, when he received the instructions, had not constructed but he definitely did so at a later time. The active voice indicates that Moses is the contractor. The infinitive denotes God’s purpose in appointing Moses the contractor with specific instructions. The word for “tabernacle”, skênê (σκηνή) [pronounced skay-NAY], means a large tent — literally, “when he was about to construct the tabernacle.”

At this point we have documentation of this. A second sentence is added in this verse. The documentation is a quotation from Exodus 25:40.

We begin with the explanatory use of the conjunction gar, which means “for”.

“for he says” — the word for “says” is a different one, it is a present active indicative of phêmi (φημί) [pronounced fay-MEE]. We are accustomed to seeing légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] but it is not used in this passage. Phêmi (φημί) [pronounced fay-MEE] is in the aoristic present for punctiliar action at that time. The active voice: God the Son who talked with Moses produced the action of the verb. Jesus as God is infinitely superior to Moses, He gave him instructions for the tabernacle which would portray Him. So we have again the superiority of Jesus Christ as high priest. He gave Moses a copy of the very area where the Levitical priesthood functioned. The indicative mood is used for the reality of a quotation which is used to prove a point or principle and to establish what has already been said, therefore phêmi (φημί) [pronounced fay-MEE].

The quotation begins with the word “See” — the present active imperative of horaô (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh] means to understand or perceive. Blepô (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh] also means to see, it means to see with the eye. We are not to see this with the eyes, we are to see this with the mind or to understand it. So the aorist active indicative of horaô (ὁράω) [pronounced hoh-RAW-oh] means to understand with the mind, to perceive, to take note of. The present tense is tential present, it is used for an action which is purposed or about to take place — you are about to understand this. The active voice: Moses is commanded to produce the action of the verb. The imperative mood indicates a command: “be taking note”.

The next phrase should be translated “thou shalt make,” the future active indicative of poiêô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh]. The future tense here is an imperative future, it is a command. The active voice indicates that Moses is the contractor and he must produce the action of the verb. The indicative mood is called a cohortative indicative, it is used to express a command in the future tense.

“all things” — refer to three chapters which are found in the Bible: Exodus chapters 25–27.

“according to the pattern” — katá (κατά) [pronounced kaw-TAW] plus the accusative of tupeos (τύπος) [pronounced TOO-poss] which means “blueprint.” The word “shewed”, the aorist passive participle of deiknumi means “having been explained.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it gathers into one ball of wax the entire specifications of the tabernacle. The passive voice: Moses as the contractor received an explanation and he received it from Christ. The participle is circumstantial, and it is antecedent to the main verb, “be taking note” or “learn”.

“to you” — dative of indirect object. It was to Moses’ advantage to understand exact specifications.

“in the mount” — en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of oros (ὄρος, ους, τό) [pronounced OH-ross] means “on the mountain”. The mountain refers to Mount Sinai.

Hebrews 8:4–5 “Who [Levitical priesthood] perform worship services as a copy and shadow of the heavenly things, since Moses had received divine instruction when he was about to construct the tabernacle: for he communicates, Be taking note, you shall make all things according to the blueprint having been explained to you on the mountain.” (Exodus 25:40)

Summary

1. This verse is a contrast between the copy and the original, between the shadow and the reality, between earth and heaven.
2. In each contrast Christ as our high priest is superior.
3. Christ is the original and the reality now ministering for us in heaven.
4. Furthermore, Christ provided the doctrinal information and authorizing information for Moses.
5. Once again, Christ is infinitely superior as a high priest to any aspect of the Levitical priesthood.
6. A similar contrast has been previously studied in Hebrews 3:1–6.

Why is this information given to us. Not only to avoid the problems of legalism in Judaism, not only to avoid all of the problems that are connected with us as believers when we face false teaching, but to give us what many do not have and that is sound common sense with regard to religion. Religion comes in many forms. Many of you are in love with some form of ritual. You are a sucker; you’re a fool. Nothing more authorized than the Communion table.

Many of you have trouble dealing with the cults. The idiots who won’t go to the doctor when they have a serious illness; or they are involved with divine healers. Bob would die of chagrin if anyone from Berachah went out to see that idiot in an Indian costume in the Astrodome.

Don’t argue with these people. That’s wrong. No member of the human race can bring in the Millennium. Do we run around and argue these people away from this or that?

Lesson #93

93 11/11/1973 Hebrews 8:6 Doctrine of mediatorship

What We Have Studied

1. The importance of the Angelic Conflict and why man was created. Hebrews 1–2
2. The importance of Bible doctrine in the life of each believer. Hebrews 3–4
3. The doctrine of reversionism and why believers go astray but do not lose their salvation. Hebrews 5–6

4. The significance of our life as a believer on this earth. Every believer is a royal priest; a member of the royal family of God forever. In the kingdom of priests, Jesus Christ Himself is our High Priest. Hebrews 7
5. The Superiority of Jesus as the High Priest. Hebrews 8

Hebrews 8:6 But as it is, Christ has obtained a ministry that is as much more excellent than the old as the covenant he mediates is better, since it is enacted on better promises.

Verse 6 — the better ministry of Christ our high priest. We begin with the word “But” which is a conjunctive particle de. As go the particles so goes the change of argument, the development of conclusions, the categorical principles of doctrine which are found throughout the Word of God. Here we have the conjunctive particle used to emphasize a contrast between shadows and reality.

“now” — the adverb nun, used to indicate the dispensation of the Church in contrast to the dispensation of Israel. This adverb is used to indicate that there is an interruption in the Age of Israel, that the Levitical priesthood no longer functions. The Levitical priesthood was based upon human birth but our universal priesthood of the believer is based upon regeneration. We have a universal priesthood and this means that every believer is in full time Christian service. This means that God has a purpose for your life and this means that no matter what you do in life you are in full time Christian service. Therefore, as per Colossians 3:15,16 you do your job as unto the Lord.

The interruption of the Age of Israel deactivates the priesthood which dealt with the copy and not the original, which dealt with shadows and not reality, which dealt with function on earth but never function in heaven.

“he hath obtained” — the perfect active indicative of the verb tugchánō (τυγχάνω) [pronounced toog-KHAHN-oh]. The imperfect tense is the intensive perfect, it indicates a completed action with emphasis on existing results. When special attention is directed to the results of the action stress upon the existing fact is intensified, and here we have the intensification of the superiority of our Lord Jesus Christ as the high priest forever.

The active voice: Jesus Christ as the high priest produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for unqualified and dogmatic assertion of doctrine. “a more excellent ministry” — two words in the Greek are used for the phrase. Both of them are in the genitive case. The first one is a genitive singular comparative from diaphoros (διάφορος) [pronounced dee-AF-or-oss] which means more outstanding or more excellent. With this we have a genitive singular from the noun leitourgia (leitourgία) [pronounced li-toorg-EE-ah] which means a priestly service or a priestly ministry. He has and always will possess a more excellent or more outstanding priestly ministry. Both of these genitives are possessive in that Christ possesses these characteristics forever. He has a more outstanding public ministry, a more outstanding priestly service over anyone who ever existed in the Levitical order. These are also objective genitives to complete that part of the sentence.

“by how much” — an instrumental singular neuter of a correlative relative pronoun, which always indicates something existing categorically, hosos (ὅσος) [pronounced HOS-os]. There are three ways in which this word is used in the Greek. It is used first for space and time, and when it is so used it is translated “as long as.” It is also used for a quantity or a number, and is translated “as many as”. It is used for measure and degree, and translated “as much as”. Here it is translated “by as much as”; “also” is a adjunctive use of kai — “by as much as also.”

“he is” — present active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], the absolute status quo verb — “he keeps on being.” This is a static present which means He always will be, there never will be an exception to this. The active voice: Christ produces the action of the verb as the superior high priest, the unique high priest. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic assertion of doctrine.

“the mediator” — this is a predicate nominative from the noun mesítês (μεσίτης) [pronounced meh-SEE-tays]. This could be translated “mediator”, also it could be translated “referee.” Here it means mediator.

“of a better covenant” — two word are involved in the phrase “better covenant” in the Greek. The first is a genitive singular from kreittôn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn], and it is the comparative of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], and is therefore correctly translated “better”. And with this we have the genitive singular of the noun diathêkê (διαθήκη) [pronounced dee-ath-AY-kay] which can be translated “testament” but is correctly translated “covenant.” Diathêkê (διαθήκη) [pronounced dee-ath-AY-kay] equivalent to the Hebrew berith, and therefore it should be translated here “covenant” rather than “testament. The noun berith indicates what God decrees and the regulations which are based upon divine decrees. The better covenant refers here to the new covenant to Israel which is found in Jeremiah 31:31–34. The old covenant in Israel was the Mosaic law; the Mosaic law authorized the Levitical priesthood. The old covenant was temporal and conditional. The new covenant or better covenant is permanent and eternal. Each priesthood is authorized by a covenant. The Levitical priesthood was authorized by the Mosaic law, the Mosaic covenant. The royal priesthood is authorized by the new covenant to the Church.

Hebrews 8:6 But now He has obtained a more excellent priestly ministry by so much as He keeps on being the Mediator of a better covenant...

The Doctrine of Mediatorship

1. The earliest and most basic concept of mediatorship is found in Job 9:2,32,33. The word “daysman” in Job is the hiphil participle of jackach, and this word in the hiphil [being causative active] means to arbitrate. In the participial form it means an arbitrator. The arbitrator, by the way, is a technical word in the participial form and it means someone who can lay his hands on both. The original form, mokiach, means someone who reaches out and puts his hands on both. This technically means someone who is equal with both parties in the mediation, and this is the problem that Job states — party of the first part, God; party of the second part, man.

Obviously, then, this sets up the hypostatic union for Jesus Christ is truly man and He is God, and therefore He is qualified as the only mediator.

2. A mediator removes disagreement or estrangement between two parties and brings them to a common goal. A mediator interposes between two parties as equal or the friend of each. By so doing reconciliation is effected. Mediatorship results in reconciliation of God and Man. The Father is propitiated by the mediator; man is reconciled on the basis of the work of Jesus Christ on the cross.
  - a. The barrier is made up of sin. All have sinned and come short of the character of God. Solution: redemption and unlimited atonement.
  - b. The barrier is made up of the penalty of sin. The wages of sin is death. The penalty was paid; so that problem is removed.
  - c. We are born physically alive but spiritually dead. The problem of physical birth is solved by regeneration.
  - d. The problem is that we have relative righteousness and God requires absolute righteousness. God is +R, man is -R; +R cannot have fellowship with -R. Solved by the imputation of divine righteousness + justification.
  - e. God has perfect character and cannot have fellowship with a sinner. The problem of the character of God solved by propitiation.
  - f. Position in Adam; in Adam all die. Position in Adam replaced by position in Christ.
  - g. Jesus Christ, on the cross, solved every problem.
3. Jesus Christ must be equal to both parties in order to act as mediator. God is propitiated; and man is reconciled by the work of Jesus Christ on the cross. Hebrews 9:27-28
4. The mechanics of mediatorship are found in 1 Timothy 2:5,6. The two parties, God and man; one God in essence. 3 Persons with this exact essence. A barrier between God and man.
5. Relationship to the Mosaic law. The relationship between mediatorship and the Mosaic law is discussed in Galatians 3:19,20. The Mosaic law served as a temporary measure until Christ could become incarnate. Jesus Christ had to become man, and as the God-Man in hypostatic union He went to the cross and took our place and bore our sins. The Mosaic law was merely a temporary measure until the mediator became incarnate. In the meantime the Mosaic law under the supervision of the mediator was taught by angels to Israel.
6. The identification of the mediator of the new covenant — Hebrews 9:15,16. Christ is identified as the mediator. His mediation was accomplished through His work on the cross.
7. We have relationship of the blood to the mediator in Hebrews 12:24. The blood of animal sacrifices were shadows portraying the work of Christ in bearing our sins and providing reconciliation between man and God.
8. Obviously, therefore, a conclusion is called for and the conclusion is found in our passage, Hebrews 8:6. Christ our high priest is the mediator of a better covenant which deals with realities rather than shadows. The shadow covenant anticipated the coming of Jesus Christ but the new covenant is the coming of Jesus Christ to die on the cross for our sins as an efficacious sacrifice. In other words, He fulfilled His own priestly ministry.

Hebrews 8:6 But now He has obtained a more excellent priestly ministry by so much as He keeps on being the Mediator of a better covenant...

The word “which” is a nominative feminine singular from the categorical qualitative relative pronoun hostis (ὅστις) [pronounced HOH-stihhs] which means “which category of”.

“was established” — the perfect passive indicative of nomotheteō (νομοθετέω) [pronounced nom-ohth-ehh-EH-oh], which means to be legally enacted, to be established by law, to be legislated, to be ordained. While “legally enacted” is closest to the etymology God produces the action here, and in keeping with the consistency of the theological concepts it should be translated “ordained”. The intensive perfect means that the action is completed and emphasizes existing results. When special attention is directed to the results of the action stress upon the existing fact is intensified by the perfect tense. The passive voice: the better covenant receives the action here by enactment of better promises. For example, we are under a better covenant and therefore we have better promises. Our better promises are all designed to take us from phase one, the point of salvation, all of the way to the supergrace life. And we do this by GAP, by the intake of doctrine daily. Through the ministry of the Spirit and the teaching of the Word of God we can reach the supergrace life characterized by occupation with the person of Christ, characterized by supergrace capacity — that is the cup in the soul — followed by supergrace blessings. So we have better promises based upon a better covenant. The same thing is true for Israel in the future.

“upon better promises”, a prepositional phrase — epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative of the comparative adjective kreittōn (κρείττων) [pronounced KRITE-tohn], plus the word for promises, epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah] — “on the basis of better promises. But epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah] means promises of blessing, never of cursing. For example, the believer in the Lord Jesus Christ was designed by God to remain on this earth in order to reach the supergrace status. He has better promises. He has promises of material prosperity, of promotion, promises related to sharing the happiness of God. We have a better covenant; we have better promises. The life of each believer has meaning and purpose and definition because we are born members of the royal family of God.

There is no such thing as a layman.

Hebrews 8:6 “But now He has obtained a more excellent priestly ministry, by so much as He also is the mediator of a better covenant, which category of covenant has been ordained on the basis of better promises of blessing.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

Summary of Hebrews 8:6

1. The better promises are related to the royal priesthood and the royal family. We have blessings for time, we have blessings for eternity.
2. The purpose of Hebrews is to bring the royal priest through the normal function of his priesthood to entrance into the supergrace life.
3. We have in verse 6 the argument for reaching the goal of supergrace. It is very difficult in these days of apostasy for people to understand the objective stated in the New Testament scriptures. The objective is based upon attitude toward doctrine. The objective of doctrine is to bring the believer into the supergrace status, the only place that he in his priesthood can glorify the Lord Jesus Christ.
4. The believer must understand that this is the dispensation of reality in contrast to the dispensation of shadows. The Age of Israel was an age of shadows. In the Age of Israel they had special days. In Romans chapter 14 we regard every day alike and we live one day at a time. They had to have a tabernacle and a temple as their sanctuary; our sanctuary is the body of every believer which is the temple or the sanctuary of the Holy Spirit. They had to portray heaven with earthly things, we portray earthly things with heavenly doctrine through the Word of God.

The launching pad is bringing every thought into captivity for Christ. The objective of the supergrace life is attained by the intake of Bible doctrine. Negative volition to doctrine takes us into divine discipline.

The frantic search for happiness can either be towards lasciviousness or asceticism. They intensify the reactor factors.

Dispensation of reality versus dispensation of shadows. They had special days; we live every day alike. They portrayed heavenly things with earthly shadows.

1972 Hebrews 8:7–8a

Lesson #94

94 11/12/1973 Hebrews 8:7–8a Doctrines of the Mosaic Law, New Covenant to Israel, New Covenant to the Church

Politicians destroy freedom; soldiers gain it.

Hebrews 8:7 For if that first covenant had been faultless, there would have been no occasion to look for a second.

Verse 7 — the word “For” is a conjunctive particle gár (γάρ) [pronounced gahr] and it is used to express inference.

“For if the first” — the word “if” is a conditional particle, it introduces the protasis of a second class condition — if, and it is not true. Conditional clauses are very important in the interpretation of the New Testament. The Greek first class condition; if and it is true — “If thou be the Son of God [and you are].” The second class condition: if and it is not true — “If you will fall down and worship me [but you won’t].” The third class condition has possibilities and it is still open to volition: “If we confess our sins [maybe we will and maybe we won’t]”. The fourth class condition: “If, [I wish it were true but it isn’t] — Peter uses this: “If you are suffering for righteousness sake [I wish you were but definitely you are not].”

Now we have a second class condition — “If that first”. The word here for “first”, prôtos (πρῶτος) [pronounced PROHT-oss] indicates the Mosaic law as the authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood during the dispensation of Israel. “For if that first had been faultless [but it was not].”

The Doctrine of the Mosaic Law (review)

1. The Mosaic law is divided into three parts.
  - a. The first section, Codex #1, is the moral code. It includes the decalogue which relates morality to freedom and makes it possible for us to understand the true concept of freedom. The ten commandments are not trying to define morality or even to define sin as such — for that would be very limited — but they are the clearest and best and foremost delineation of what freedom really is and how it relates to various aspects of life. In addition to the ten commandments we have hundreds of others which form the moral code. The moral code indicates the basis for the function of the laws of divine establishment. Codex #1 defines morality in terms of not only absence of sin but in terms of patriotism, loyalty, capacity for love, relationships in life, and so on.
  - b. The second part of the Mosaic law, Codex #2, is the spiritual code. This is called in the scripture, the ordinances. It is a complete Christology designed to present Jesus Christ as the only Savior. The presentation of the Lord Jesus Christ through the tabernacle is one of the many areas of Codex #2. In addition, Codex #2 has a complete list of holy days, including the Passover, Firstfruits, Unleavened Bread, Pentecost, Trumpets, Atonement, and Tabernacles. All of these portray some aspect of the Person of Christ. In addition, Codex #2 portrays the Levitical offerings, the modus operandi of the Levitical priesthood. And again, basically speaking, all Bible doctrine in the Old Testament was portrayed through ritual as well as through the written page and its communication.
  - c. Codex #3 is the social code known in the scripture as the judgements. It presents the laws of divine establishment which are designed for the freedom, the privacy, and the continuation of the human race in the angelic conflict. It includes the function of the divine institutions plus diet, sanitation, quarantine, soil conservation, taxation, military service, and so on.
2. The recipients of the Mosaic law. The Mosaic law has various names. It is called the covenant, the first covenant, the covenant to Israel, the law, and so on.
  - a. It is therefore specifically given to Israel, not to the Church — Exodus 19:3; Leviticus 26:46; Romans 3:19; 9:4.

- b. It is not given to the Gentiles — Deuteronomy 4:8; Romans 2:12, 14.
  - c. It is not given to the Christians, they are not under the law — Acts 15:5, 24; Romans 6:14; Galatians 2:19.
3. Christ fulfilled the law — Matthew 5:17. He fulfilled Codex #1 by living a perfect life on earth during the incarnation. Impeccability fulfils Codex #1. Codex #2 was fulfilled by His death on the cross. Codex #3 was fulfilled by both the patriotism of our Lord plus His observation of the laws of divine establishment, as per Matthew 22:21.
  4. Christ is therefore the end of the law for the royal family of the Church Age — Romans 10:4.
  5. Believers in the Church Age are under the higher law of spirituality, the law of the filling of the Spirit — Romans 8:2–4; Galatians 5:18, 22,23; 1Corinthians chapter 13.
  6. The limitations of the Mosaic law. There are four specified. a) The Mosaic law cannot justify — Galatians 2:16; Romans 3:20, 28; Acts 13:39; Philippians 3:9. b) The Mosaic law cannot give life — Galatians 3:21. c) The Mosaic law cannot provide the Holy Spirit — Galatians 3:2. d) The Mosaic law cannot solve the problems of the old sin nature — Romans 8:3. The Mosaic law can reveal the existence of the old sin nature, as per the tenth commandment, but it cannot solve any problem regarding it.
  7. The present purpose of the Mosaic law. The Mosaic law is no longer the authorizing agency for the Levitical priesthood. We no longer have the ritual, we now have the reality. With Christ dying on the cross, rising again, being seated at the right hand of the Father, we now have that glorious, wonderful reality which is so beautifully recorded for us in the New Testament scriptures. So since the Mosaic law is recorded in the scripture, what is its present purpose?
    - a. Codex #1 is designed to convince by divine standard that the unbeliever is a sinner and needs a Savior — Romans 3:20, 28; 1Timothy 1:8–10. Codex #1 is also designed to define the principles of freedom as related to the laws of divine establishment, and to define further the responsibility of every individual in the field of freedom, and where freedom and discipline meet.
    - b. Codex #2 is designed to communicate God's grace both in salvation and in rebound.
    - c. Codex #3 is to provide national function and freedom under the laws of divine establishment, to preserve nations under the principle of divine institution #4. The past purpose of the Mosaic law was an authorizing agent for the Levitical priesthood — Hebrews 7:11,12.
  8. The Mosaic law is called the book of the covenant. It is not only known as the first covenant but it is also called the book of the covenant — Exodus 24:7,8; 34:27,28; Deuteronomy 4:13, 16, 23, 31; 8:18; 9:9, 11. In Deuteronomy 29:1 to the end of the book we have an addendum to the Mosaic law. We also have the prophecy of the breaking of the covenant in Deuteronomy 31:16,20. This book of the covenant is the subject of Jeremiah chapter 11, and it is not to be confused with the New Covenant to Israel — Jeremiah 31:31–34.

The keeping of the law is not a way of salvation. It is a way of human freedom and prosperity under the laws of divine establishment but it is not the way of salvation — Galatians 2:16.
