“that he might be the father of all them that believe” – the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative neuter singular of the definite article, plus the present active infinitive of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The present tense is a retroactive progressive present which denotes something happening in the past but continuing into the present time. This can also be a static present, meaning something that perpetually exists. The active voice: Abraham is the one producing the action of the verb. His salvation through faith in Christ produces the action. The infinitive of purpose is used to express an aim or objective which cannot be otherwise denoted by the finite verb. With this is the attributive use of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] in the accusative case.

Plus the noun patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR] in the accusative case which does mean “father” but it also means “pattern.” Plus the genitive plural of reference from the adjective pás (πᾶς) [pronounced pahs] for “all,” and the present active participle of the verb pisteúô (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh]. The perfective present tense denotes the continuation of the existing results, i.e. salvation adjustment to the justice of God by faith in Christ. The active voice: all members of the human race who believe in Christ produce the same action, and that is why Abraham is the pattern. All of us follow identically what Abraham did in order to have the potentiality. The participle is circumstantial for the fact that all salvation adjustment to the justice of God, regardless of dispensation, occurs in exactly the same way: faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. The definite article is used as a relative pronoun whose antecedent is the genitive plural of reference of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs].

“though they be not circumcised” – dia plus the genitive of akrobustía (ἀκροβυστία) [pronounced ak-rob-oos-TEE-ah] should be translated “during uncircumcision.” Abraham is a patter of salvation during uncircumcision.

“that righteousness might be imputed to them” – eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative neuter singular of the definite article, plus another infinitive, this time the aorist passive infinitive of logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-a]. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to a momentary action which occurs in a point of time—salvation. The passive voice: the accusative of general reference, dikaioṣunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-āldik-ah-yos-OO-nay], is the subject of the infinitive and therefore produces the action. Righteousness produces the action. The infinitive of purpose is used to express the aim of the action denoted by the finite verb. The indirect object of autós (αὐτοῦς) [pronounced ow-TOSS] emphasizes identity.

Romans 4:11 In fact he received the ritual mark of circumcision, a seal [a guarantee] of the righteousness from the faith [exercised toward Christ] in the status of uncircumcision; that the same one [uncircumcised Abraham] might be a pattern to all who believe during uncircumcision; that divine righteousness might be credited to them.

When Abraham was Saved—Part II

1. Abraham was saved as an uncircumcised Gentile. He is the pattern for salvation adjustment to the justice of God.
2. When he believed in Christ Abraham received God’s righteousness. This is the basis for justification.
3. This divine righteousness is absolutely necessary for immediate justification, but it is also a prerequisite for future blessing from the justice of God.
4. One of the great future blessings for the ultra-super-grace Abraham was resuscitation from sexual death which made possible the perpetuation of the new race of Jews, and made him the father of many nations as well.
5. This monumental blessing from the justice of God was commemorated by a ritual—a seal. God only seals that which is important.
6. But a seal or ritual has no merit either for salvation or subsequent divine blessing, it is merely an historical marker.
7. Before Abraham could receive the promise of sexual prosperity the potential which comes from divine righteousness had to be converted into capacity for that blessing. Potential = God’s righteousness. Capacity = maximum doctrine resident in the soul.

Then the blessing. The principle: All divine blessing directly from the justice of God includes potential and capacity. Circumcision is not a ritual of potential, it is a ritual of capacity. Abraham received circumcision as a Gentile and became a Jew immediately afterward. Circumcised Abraham is a pattern for spiritual maturity, even as saved Abraham is a pattern for salvation.

Lesson #115

115 05/30/1977 Romans 4:12 Military sacrifices (Chambers; Patton, George V); essentially, a Memorial Day service. Divine justice can only bless +R

Whitaker Chambers has written several anti-communist books. He talks about his son going off to register with his draft board. By registering with the draft, he was claiming his right as a man and as a citizen.

General Patton speaking to men. You won this war because you were better trained, better fed, better armed than any other army in history. The record for your achievements speaks for itself. We killed, wounded or lost 10 Germans for every American kill, lost or wounded. He believes that adequately being prepared would have stopped or shortened the wars. By removing the fire department, we will remove the fires. There is no logic in wars; they are produced by madmen. He continues the fire men and fire metaphor. George Washington said, "In times of peace, prepare for war."

Bruce King, a lieutenant United States Army, Airborne Rangers. He wrote a letter in case he died in Vietnam. I want my parents to understand, "I joined the army by choice; I came here by choice, this is the job I am best qualified to do. I believe in our country and I believe in our system of government. Our country today was not built by the weak. The people in the streets protest because men have died, giving them the right to do this. My life was not wasted.

George V after WWI made a beautiful sentence and sent it to anyone who lost a relative in the war. ...endured hardness and faced danger...giving up their own lives that others might live in freedom. Let those who come after see to it that his name not be forgotten.

We are filled with hypocrisy, liberalism, and weakness. We have become a spineless, evil, pitiful people. Bob called a couple people to talk. He thinks it is like he fell asleep and woke up in Bohemia. Those in Berachah Church still look American to Bob.

Divine Justice can only bless perfect righteousness. Two new words: potential and capacity.

Romans 4:12 ...and the father of circumcision to those not only of circumcision, but also to those walking in the steps of the faith of our father Abraham during uncircumcision.

Verse 12 – the true meaning of circumcision is maturity adjustment to the justice of God. This true meaning is now perpetuated to Gentile believers. "And the father of circumcision to them who are not of the circumcision only” – the continuative use of the conjunctive particle kai, plus the accusative singular of general reference from patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR] used as the subject of the infinitive eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], and a descriptive genitive of peritomê (περιτομή) [pronounced per-it-om-AY], the noun for circumcision, “And the father [pattern] of circumcision.” Plus the dative plural indirect object from the definite article used as an immediate demonstrative pronoun, emphasizing those believers who achieve maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Plus the negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] with the prepositional phrase ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of peritomê (περιτομή) [pronounced per-it-om-AY], and the adverb monon (μόνον) [pronounced MOHN-on] for “only”—“to those who are not only from the circumcision.”

“but who also walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham, which had being yet uncircumcised” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] used to set up a contrast between Jew and Gentile. Plus the present active participle from stoicheô (στοιχέω) [pronounced stoy-KHEH-oh] which means to advance in ranks or to march—“but also to those who advance in the ranks.” The definite article is the dative of indirect object plus the dative of advantage. It is to our advantage to keep learning doctrine, to keep advancing in ranks. Advancing in ranks means you are under authority. All doctrine is learned under authority, it must be learned from someone else. This is a perfective present tense denoting the continuation of existing results from the daily function of GAP. The active voice: believers who are consistently positive toward doctrine continue to advance, continue to produce the action. The participle is circumstantial. It should be noted that this only applies to those who are consistently positive. The advancing in ranks indicates that advance is slow and steady. Arrogance cancels out the smarts. The word for ranks here is the locative of ichnos (ἵχνος) [pronounced IKH-noss]. The subject has changed now from salvation adjustment to the justice of God to maturity adjustment to the justice of God, which was the true meaning of the ritual of circumcision.

The next phrase, “of that faith” is not correctly translated in the KJV. This is the ablative of source singular from the noun pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. The active meaning of pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] is faith; the passive meaning, used here, is doctrine—“to those who advance in the ranks from the source of doctrine.” Doctrine is our means of advancing. No doctrine; no spiritual advance.

“Of our father Abraham” is an ablative of comparison, correctly translated “like our father Abraham.” Plus the possessive genitive plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], referring to the Jews who knew and understood the life of Abraham. Incorrectly translated is “which he had being yet uncircumcised.” We have simply a prepositional phrase with no verbs, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus akrobustía (ἀκροβυστία) [pronounced ak-rob-ooos-TEE-ah], describing the first 99 years of Abraham’s life and it should be translated “like our father Abraham in uncircumcision.”

Romans 4:12 And the pattern of circumcision, not only to those from circumcision [Jews], but also to those who advance in the ranks from the source of doctrine, like our ancestor Abraham in uncircumcision.

Abraham Sets the Pattern for Spiritual Maturity

1. Not only did Abraham set the pattern for salvation adjustment to the justice of God as a Gentile in uncircumcision but he also set the pattern for maturity adjustment to the justice of God as a Gentile in the status of uncircumcision.
2. Abraham's faith in Christ is the pattern for salvation adjustment to the justice of God—Genesis 15:6.
3. Abraham's doctrine resident in his soul through the function of GAP is the pattern of maturity justice to the justice of God—Genesis 17.
4. Abraham is the pattern for adjustment to the justice of God, then, prior to the existence of the canon of Scripture.
5. Abraham, a Gentile, because a Jew after maximum adjustment to the justice of God.
6. Hence Abraham becomes the pattern for Jews and Gentiles in the three adjustments to the justice of God.
7. This emphasizes the fact that all divine blessings from the justice of God must have a foundation or a container. God requires a cup in order to pour in the Chateau deKim. It cannot be a paper cup.
8. The foundation or container for all direct blessing from the justice of God is the imputation of divine righteousness at the point of salvation.
9. The perpetuation of divine blessing, then, is related to the intake of doctrine in the soul.

Some of you will have these points somewhere. This is at least the third time that this doctrine has been given. I have it listed in two other places.

Divine Justice Can Only Bless Divine Righteousness

1. The integrity of God must be consistent. This consistency demands the function and interrelationship of divine righteousness with divine justice in the integrity of God.
2. There must be no compromise or inconsistency. To avoid compromise and inconsistency a principle becomes axiomatic: Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness.
3. Since all divine blessing originates from the justice of God and since divine justice cannot bless sinful man it is necessary for God in grace to provide His righteousness as the recipient of divine blessing.
4. Righteousness demands righteousness and justice demands justice in the function of the integrity of God toward mankind.
5. God cannot accept anything less than perfect righteousness and God cannot bless anything less than perfect righteousness.
6. This dramatizes the importance of the imputation of divine righteousness to the believer at the moment of salvation.
7. Faith in Christ is instant adjustment to the justice of God at salvation.
8. Continuous and persistent learning of doctrine under one's right pastor is the means of maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

9. Remember that God's integrity includes two divine attributes: righteousness, the principle of integrity; justice, the function of integrity.
10. The justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands.
11. Therefore the justice of God cannot bless unless the recipient has a righteousness equivalent to His perfect righteousness.
12. The justice of God can only possess the possessor of perfect divine righteousness.
13. The basis for divine blessing to mankind is the imputation of divine righteousness to the believer at the instant of salvation adjustment to the justice of God.
14. Therefore justification must precede all other blessings from the justice of God.
15. Justification can only occur at the moment of faith in Christ. Justification is the result of imputed righteousness at the moment of faith in Christ.
16. When the believer receives the imputed righteousness of God the justice of God performs a judicial function known as justification—declaring the new believer to be righteous.
17. In other words, God recognizes His righteousness as righteous wherever it is found.
18. The possession of divine righteousness through grace imputation at salvation is the prerequisite to all other divine blessings which come directly from the justice of God.
19. With the imputation of divine righteousness and resultant justification all other divine blessings, temporal and eternal, above and beyond ultimate sanctification are potential.
20. This potential of blessings or advantages from the integrity of God is fulfilled through the daily function of GAP and resultant maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
21. Maximum doctrine resident in the soul is known as maturity adjustment to the justice of God and/or total relationship with the integrity of God.
22. Not only does this status result in blessings or advantages from the justice of God but also capacity to enjoy those blessings (or advantages).

These exact points have been given twice before.

There are some people in Berachah Church who are there for the first time. The whole purpose of the book of Romans is to teach us the integrity of God. This is our point of contact with Him. We are headed toward historical disaster. You are going to panic your way out of life; you will be like a yellow dog, whimpering. Lip service is not enough; it does not match doctrine in the soul.

Lesson #116

116 05/31/1977 Romans 4:13 Capacity for appreciation of great men; doctrine of Abrahamic Covenant; principles of justification and divine blessing

The Promise Realized Through Faith

Romans 4:13 For the promise was to Abraham or his descendants that he should be heir of the world, not through the Law, but through the righteousness of faith.

Verse 13 – the divine righteousness, not the law, is the basis for blessing from the justice of God. The Greek word order is often different, and sometimes significantly different from the KJV, as here in this verse. It starts out with the phrase, “For not through the law” – the explanatory conjunctive particle gar, plus the objective negative adverb ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] denying the reality of the alleged fact, plus the preposition dia with the genitive of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]. Then we have to substitute the verb to be because we have a predicate nominative of epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah], the word for “promise”—“is the promise.” Plus the nominative feminine singular from the definite article used as demonstrative pronoun to emphasize the Abrahamic covenant. A better translation is, “For not through the law is that promise,” referring to a specific section of the Abrahamic covenant. Plus the dative singular indirect object from the definite article, used to indicate the case for the word “Abraham,” the undeclinable proper noun Abraam (Ἀβραάμ) [pronounced ab-rah-AHM]. This is dative of indirect object and dative of advantage. It is for Abraham’s benefit that that part of the Abrahamic covenant was given to him.

Then comes a disjunctive particle ê (ἢ) [pronounced ā] which introduces the second beneficiary of the Abrahamic covenant. Then a dative singular indirect object from the definite article, plus the dative from sperma (σπέρμα) [pronounced SPEHR-mah]—“seed.” “For not through the law is that promise to Abraham, or to his seed.”

The Seed of Abraham

It is threefold.

1. Most important is the first one. The Lord Jesus Christ is several times called the seed of Abraham in the Scripture. Christ is called, first of all, the seed of the woman in Genesis 3:15. He is called the seed of Abraham in Genesis 22:18 cf. Galatians 3:16. He is again called the seed of Abraham in Psalm 2:8 cf. Matthew 21:38; Hebrews 1:2. The line of Christ runs through Abraham and Isaac, not through Lot or Ishmael, says Genesis 15:4. But Christ as the seed of Abraham is not always in view in every context, and definitely not in this one, Romans 4:13 where the seed does not refer to the Lord Jesus Christ.
 - a. Next is a possessive genitive singular from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], used as a possessive pronoun and therefore translated “to his seed.” This helps to eliminate the Lord Jesus Christ.
2. A second use and meaning in the Scripture for Abraham’s seed is the physical seed of Abraham. This includes all of his descendants through Isaac and Jacob or the racial Jew. It also includes many Arab nations as well. The seed of Abraham is both Jewish and Gentile. It refers sometimes just to the Jews, i.e. his racial seed, for Abraham is the father of the Jewish race and the descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob are often in view. Abraham, as the father of the Jewish race: obviously his seed would be all of the Jews, and this is illustrated in Genesis 13:15,16; 28:14; 2 Chronicles 1:9. This is not in view here in Romans 4:13.
3. A third use is the spiritual seed of Abraham, and this is in view here in Romans 4:13. This includes racial Jews who attain salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ. The Abrahamic covenant is a blessing from the justice of God, and to receive this blessing the racial Jews must believe in the Lord Jesus Christ in order to have the imputed righteousness of God and be qualified. The foundation for all divine blessing is the imputation of divine righteousness at the point of salvation and therefore the seed of Abraham in this verse refers to Jews who have believed in the Lord Jesus Christ. There is also a spiritual seed of Abraham among the Gentile believers—Galatians 3:29. Here however in Romans the reference is to Jewish believers only.

“that he should be the heir of the world” comes next—the accusative singular from the intensive pronoun used as the subject of the infinitive. This is the accusative of general reference. However this pronoun, while it is intensive to emphasize the greatness of a person, is here used for the personal pronoun and therefore correctly translated “he.” It can also be translated as a reflexive pronoun, “he himself,” because the intensive is often reflexive. Plus the articular present active infinitive from the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The definite article denotes a previous reference, it is used to point out a person—Abraham, the identity of whom is pointed out in a previous reference.

Paul talks about Abraham, quoting Moses. So these are three great men.

Some of the pettiest people Bob has ever known is college professors. Especially young ones who are working on their PhD. They stumble over Julius Cæsar. He had such a good time that these professors cannot stand him. One of the worst things in the world is being petty over those who are having a good time. This is a stumbling block to so many. Bob is making a particular application to a Harvard graduated professor who is teaching over the summer in University of Houston.

Liberalism is a great evil, whether it is theological liberalism or political liberalism. Truly great people are hated, ridiculed, abused. Here is where Bible doctrine makes all of the difference. Here, Paul, a great man, and he recognizes the greatest of both Moses and Abraham.

When people cannot produce greatness, they criticize it. Paul is not petty with regards to Abraham or with Moses.

“That he should be”, then, has a definite article followed by the present tense. This is the futuristic present which denotes an event which has not yet occurred but is regarded as so certain that in thought it may be contemplated as already coming to pass. The active voice: Abraham produces the action of the verb. The infinitive expresses God’s purpose delineated in the Abrahamic^[1] covenant: “that he will be the heir of the world.” The accusative singular direct object from the noun klêronomos (κληρονόμος) [pronounced klay-roh-OHM-oss], meaning “heir,” plus the objective genitive of κόσμος (κόσμος) [pronounced KOSS-moss].

Doctrine of the Abrahamic Covenant

A. Definition and Description.

1. The unconditional covenant (agreement, disposition) between God as party of the first part in favor of Abraham and his progeny as the party of the second part is the Abrahamic covenant. This is a justice covenant from the justice of God. Unconditional means there are no strings attached.
2. This covenant is a deposition made by God in favor of Abraham.
3. Like all covenants, it is a part of the divine decrees.
4. Abraham is the beneficiary without merit. The source of this blessing to Abraham and his descendants is not any merit in Abraham, but Abraham's adjustment to the justice of God and the fact that God is pleased.
5. The source of this blessing to Abraham and his descendants is the justice of God. The justice of God is free to fulfill this covenant to Abraham at the point of his adjustment to the justice of God through the attainment of his spiritual maturity. It's one thing to be in the covenant (via salvation and rebound); it's another thing to know and understand the covenant (in maturity).

B. The Original Declaration of the Covenant, Gen.12:1-3.

1. "Now JHWH [Jesus Christ] had spoken to Abram, 'Go with reference to yourself from your land, and from your relatives, and from the place of your birth, to a land which I will cause you to see; And I will manufacture from you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will cause your person to become great; therefore, you will become a blessing. And I will bless those who bless you, but the one who despises you, I will curse, and all the races shall be blessed through you.'" The 3rd dynasty of Ur was about to be destroyed. Abraham needed to be moved due to national disaster which was about to come.
2. Verse one emphasizes Abraham's necessary isolation and separation from Ur for the fulfillment of the covenant, for the development of the new race, and for the development of his spiritual advance, plus separation from his family to avoid personal distraction. Land is specified because of coming disaster.
3. Verse two is Abraham's logistical grace support necessary to fulfill this promise. All four categories of blessing were given for the encouragement of his momentum, and in anticipation of his reaching maturity and historical impact.
4. Verse three is miscellaneous because it has three clauses:
 - a. Blessing by association.
 - b. A curse on anti-Semitism.
 - c. Messianic blessing clause.

C. The Land Promise in the Abrahamic Covenant, Gen 13:14-16.

1. "And the Lord said to Abram, after Lot had separated from him, 'Now lift up your eyes and look from the place where you are, northward and southward and eastward and westward; for all the land which you see, I will give to you and to your progeny forever. And I will make your descendants as the dust of the earth; so that if anyone can count the dust of the earth, then your descendants also can be counted."

2. This is amplified in Gen 15:18-21, which gives the dimensions. On that day the LORD made a covenant with Abram, saying, "To your offspring I give this land, from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates, the land of the Kenites, the Kenizzites, the Kadmonites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Rephaim, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites and the Jebusites."
 3. The Jews do not have any right to this land until Jesus Christ returns at the Second Advent. Any land they acquire now must be by conquest, as with all other nations. Until the Second Advent, the Jews only attain land by the principle of seizing and holding, a military principle found in divine institution #4. To date, David had the largest amount of land by conquering the indigenous population of the Jebusites.
 4. This land promised goes from the Nile to Saudi Arabia to the Euphrates to the Mediterranean.
- D. The covenant was confirmed to Isaac, Gen 26:3-4.
1. This had to be done to prove the covenant would not be fulfilled through the line of Ishmael.
 2. This is the doctrine of blessing by association. Nations are blessed because of their relationship with the Jewish nation.
- E. The covenant was confirmed to Abraham's grandson Jacob, Gen 35:12. This is why the title of Jesus Christ is so important as "the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob."
- F. The covenant was confirmed at the time of the Exodus, Exodus 6:2-8. God spoke to Moses and said to him, "I am the LORD. I appeared to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, as God Almighty, but by my name the LORD I did not make myself known to them. I also established my covenant with them to give them the land of Canaan, the land in which they lived as sojourners. Moreover, I have heard the groaning of the people of Israel whom the Egyptians hold as slaves, and I have remembered my covenant. Say therefore to the people of Israel, 'I am the LORD, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will deliver you from slavery to them, and I will redeem you with an outstretched arm and with great acts of judgment. I will take you to be my people, and I will be your God, and you shall know that I am the LORD your God, who has brought you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians. I will bring you into the land that I swore to give to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. I will give it to you for a possession. I am the LORD.'"
1. This was the time for the formation of the Jewish nation. This covenant was the basis on which God delivered the Jews, a race in slavery, and caused them to become a nation.
 2. Six hundred years after the death of Abraham there are still blessings to the Jews, all from blessing to one mature believer.
 3. EL SHADDAI means the many-breasted God, referring to His many grace provisions.

- G. The mechanics of the abraham covenant demanded ultra-supergrace sexual prosperity, Gen 17:1-7; Rom 4:13-18.
1. There is blessing in every generation to the Jews of that generation. The omnipotence and logistical grace support of God are emphasized.
 2. Gen 17:2, "That I may give My covenant between Me and You; I will cause you to be multiplied by maximum use of My power."
- H. The new race and the land are brought together in the covenant, Gen 17:8. "Furthermore, I have given to you and to your descendants after you, the land of your pilgrimage, all the land of Canaan, for an eternal possession; therefore, I will be your God."
- I. Circumcision is the ritual of confirmation and acknowledgment that this is an unconditional covenant, Gen 17:9-14; Rom 4:13-18.
1. Circumcision in Israel is a reminder that God keeps His word.
 2. Circumcision means that any Jew, who believes in Christ, will be the recipient of this covenant forever.
 3. Circumcision illustrates the faith-rest drill and Abraham's dependence on the omnipotence and faithfulness of God.
- J. Amplification of the Covenant after Abraham Passes Momentum Testing, Genesis 22:17-24.
- K. The Covenant and Joseph's Coffin. The Abrahamic covenant became the basis of Joseph having something greater in dying than he ever had in living: Joseph's coffin. His coffin was a doctrinal reminder to the Jews that God would deliver them. It was never placed in the ground, but was carried with the Jews to the Land, Heb 11:22.
- L. God has promised a city forever suspended over the Land, Rev 21:2, 10.
1. This city, the new Jerusalem, extends from the Nile to the Euphrates, and from the Mediterranean to Saudi Arabia.
 2. This city is so beautiful that it looks like a bride. Of course, all brides are beautiful, being animated.
 3. This city is part of Abraham's eternal escrow blessings

This was followed relatively closely in this lesson.

“but through the righteousness of faith” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahI-LAH] sets up a contrast between getting something through the law and getting something through adjustment to the justice of God. The preposition dia plus the genitive of dikaïosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay]—“through the righteousness,” i.e. imputed righteousness from God at the moment of salvation. Plus the ablative singular from pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] used here to indicate the mechanics of salvation: faith, non-meritorious perception. This is the ablative of means used when the expression of means includes the origin. The origin of salvation: faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Faith in Jesus Christ opens up all the doors of blessing.

Romans 4:13 For not through the law is that promise to Abraham and to his seed, that he will be the heir of the world, but through righteousness [imputed] by means of faith.

Justification and Divine Blessing

1. Only the possessor of God's righteousness is justified. Justification means recognized as righteous.
2. Justification must precede all other blessings from the justice of God.
3. Justification only occurs at the moment of faith in Christ as a result of the imputation of divine righteousness.
4. Chronological order is, these things are simultaneous. Logically, faith in Christ, then imputation of divine righteousness, followed by the judicial act from the justice of God called justification.
5. God recognizes His own righteousness wherever it is found.
6. It is the recognition of that righteousness which forms the basis for all blessing from the justice of God.
7. Justification is the prerequisite, then, for all blessing from God's justice. Justification is the advantage, the blessings from the justice of God are classified as advantages.
8. There are no advantages to the advantages without the advantage.
9. Advantage is a judicial procedure resulting from faith in Christ and/or salvation adjustment to the justice of God.
10. Imputed righteousness followed by the judicial function of declaring the new believer righteous or justified is the door that unlocks all the blessings from the justice of God. Only the justified is qualified for blessing.

Lesson #117

117 06/01/1977 Romans 4:14 Never quit (marksman Ad Topperwein); four principles re legalism and grace mechanics; salvation and the Mosaic Law

Ad Topperwein was born a few years after the Civil War. His father died when he was 13 and at that age, he was the champion marksman for young people in Texas. He spent every spare minute fiddling with guns. DocCarver was doing a demonstration in 1888. Ad was very impressed by him. He went to NYC to shoot in Vaudeville. Many shooting galleries in Coney Island. He got a job after that. Winchester arms hired him in 1901. He began to do demonstrations all over the country. He met a woman and married her; and she had never shot before; and she became the best woman shooter, best pistol shot in all of American history. Better than Annie Oakley. At the world's fair in 1904, he shot 35,000 wooden blocks shot without a miss? He went for the world's record in 1907 in San Antonio. He broke a record which is still the world's record today. He shot for 10 days, 7 hours each day. He shot every cartridge that existed in San Antonio. He missed 4 of the first 50,000. Really difficult physically for most of the time. 72,500 with 9 misses. He did not ever quit. That is how it is for those who advance to ultra super grace.

Romans 4:14 For if those of the Law are heirs, faith has been made void and the promise made of no effect. (BLB)

Verse 14 – Paul uses debater’s technique in the form of a conditional sentence which sets up a straw man to emphasize the blasphemous implications and erroneous conclusion of assuming that the Mosaic law can be distorted into a system of works to produce heirship and relationship with God. There is a protasis and an apodosis. The protasis is the “if” clause. This is the statement from which the inference is made. The apodosis is the inference from the protasis. The protasis sets up a condition and the apodosis extracts an inference from it. “For if they which are of the law be heirs.” These are the people who are working through the law for salvation.

It begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle gar which is going to introduce debater’s technique, followed by the conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced I] used to introduce the protasis of a debater’s first class condition. Paul is going to take the position of the legalistic Jew in order to refute his position. Plus the nominative plural from the definite article used as a pronoun, and the preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] with the ablative of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]—“by the law” because this is the ablative of means [origin is implied]. Plus the predicate nominative plural from klêronomos (κληρονόμος) [pronounced klay-roh-OHM-oss] (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]. Translated: “For if they by the law are heirs [and we assume they are].” In other words, Paul is assuming that by self-righteousness derived from keeping the law you can be saved. It is a debater’s technique, it is not true; it is an assumption to refute the assumption.

The conclusion: “faith is made void” – the nominative singular subject pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] with the definite article. The definite article is used as a demonstrative pronoun emphasizing as the means of salvation. The mechanics of salvation adjustment to the justice of God is faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. So we call it “that faith.” Plus the perfect passive indicative of the verb kenoô (κενόω) [pronounced keh-n-OH-oh] which means to make empty, to destroy, to render void. But in the passive it means to be voided. The perfect tense is completed action with emphasis on existing results intensified, hence this is called the intensive perfect. The intensive perfect is the emphatic method in the Greek for presenting a fact or a condition. It is the strong way of saying that a thing is. There is no exact equivalent to the this Greek idiom in the English language, and therefore it is generally translated by saying “void in the past with the result that it keeps on being void” So we have, “that faith has been voided with the result that it is permanently invalidated.” That is cumbersome but it is exactly what it means. The passive voice: faith receives the action of the verb, namely being deprived of its prerogative and consequently invalidated. The indicative mood is potential for a condition which keeps the door open for faith in Christ for salvation, so long as the confused person is still alive. It means these people haven’t believed in Christ and they still have the opportunity.
Romans 3:31 4:14

“and the promise made of none effect” – the nominative singular subject epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah], referring to those blessings from the justice of God which are enumerated in the Abrahamic covenant, and by application to us all the blessings that come from maximum adjustment to the justice of God. The perfect passive indicative of kenoō (κενόω) [pronounced kehr-OH-oh], which means, to empty, to make empty. Plus the connective use of the conjunction kai, the nominative singular from the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun emphasizing the unconditional parts of the Abrahamic covenant which were blessings from the justice of God when Abraham cracked the maturity barrier—“and that promise.”

Plus the perfect passive indicative katargeō (καταργέω) [pronounced kaht-ahrg-EH-oh] which means to cancel or to abrogate. The perfect tense is a consummative perfect, it emphasizes the process which has been completed. However, existing results are not entirely ruled out since the writer has in mind both the past act and the present result. This is very similar to the culminative aorist except that it places equal stress on the past act and the present result. The passive voice: the promise of blessing from the justice of God receives the action of the verb, namely being cancelled. The indicative mood is a potential indicative, the condition used as a part of debater’s technique and exploring the possibilities of an erroneous conclusion. Legalism abrogates blessings from the justice of God. That is the principle that will come out of the debater’s technique.

Romans 4:14 For if they by means of the law are heirs [and we assume they are], then that faith has been voided with the result that it is permanently invalidated, and that promise (from the blessing of the justice of God) has been cancelled.

Legalism v. Grace 10 Principles

1. Legalism and grace are mutually exclusive. They cannot co-exist, one always cancels the other.
2. Legalism abrogates blessing from the justice of God.
3. The law as an instrument of adjustment to the justice of God produces arrogance motivating a system of self-righteousness. Arrogance and self-righteousness are bedfellows, they always travel together.
4. God’s righteousness, which is one half of divine integrity, and man’s self-righteousness are mutually exclusive.
5. There is no place in salvation adjustment to the justice of God for man’s self-righteousness or works righteousness from the Mosaic law.
6. There is no place in rebound or maturity adjustment to the justice of God for man’s self-righteousness or works righteousness from the Mosaic law.
7. Self-righteousness directed toward God is the blasphemous assumption of legalism that the imputation of God’s righteousness is not sufficient and man must add works righteousness from the law.
8. It is blasphemy to assume that either man’s self-righteousness or works righteousness from the law can promote the integrity of God.
9. Divine integrity has eternally existed in the status of infinite perfection. No creature works can add anything to perfect divine integrity.

10. Since integrity demands integrity, holiness demands holiness, righteousness demands righteousness, justice demands justice, self-righteousness or works righteousness from the law is totally excluded from grace mechanics in any of the adjustments to the justice of God.

The legalist is Don Quixote charging the windmills.

If righteousness demands righteousness, where can you intrude by bringing in your self-righteousness into the picture?

Two Systems of Grace Mechanics (Principle #2)

1. There are two systems of grace mechanics. Note that the two systems of grace mechanics are presented in this verse, and two systems of adjustment to the justice of God are implied.
2. "Faith" in Christ as the grace mechanics of salvation adjustment to the justice of God is the first system. The word "promise" introduces the second system: blessings from maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
3. God demands integrity for blessing. This integrity includes imputed divine righteousness at salvation and maximum doctrine resident in the soul for spiritual maturity. Self righteousness is not acceptable to God's integrity. Our self-righteousness is never acceptable to God.
4. God in His grace provides all that His integrity demands. Imputed righteousness at salvation, rebound and spirituality for grace perception, doctrine as the means of maturity adjustment.
5. The integrity of God has always existed in a state of absolute perfection. Man is a creature of time. God's integrity is a part of His eternal existence.
6. Therefore there is nothing man can do in self-righteousness or works righteousness which adds or detracts from the integrity of God.
7. Man's self-righteousness or works righteousness does not glorify God, does not impress God.
8. Quite the opposite: God's righteousness rejects the righteousness of man; God's justice condemns the legalistic works of man.
9. There is no point in history where the integrity of God gains anything from man's self-righteousness or works of the law.
10. God can add something to our integrity but we cannot add anything to God's integrity.

It takes colossal arrogance to think that your self-righteousness impresses God.

Justification by Faith versus Keeping the Law (Principle #3)

1. That faith which saves is the principle by which the human race enters into a relationship with the integrity of God.
2. In salvation adjustment to the justice of God man simply believes in Jesus Christ.

3. There is no merit in faith, only the object of faith—the Lord Jesus Christ.
4. All the believing in the world attains nothing but condemnation from the justice of God. However, the tiniest particle of faith in Christ secures eternal salvation.
5. Therefore faith is not something we do but the channel by which we appropriate what God has done for us at the cross.
6. God found a way to bless us from His integrity without compromising His perfect essence.
7. Under the principle of legalism, self-righteousness or the works of the law, man strives for a status of humanly produced righteousness which he considers pleasing to God.
8. The striving for righteousness eliminates faith in Jesus Christ and thereby rejects the integrity of God.
9. The provision from the integrity of God is grace provision compatible with the essence of God, the attributes of God.
10. Self-righteousness through keeping the law is that principle of works totally incompatible with the integrity of God.
11. Justification by faith recognizes both the integrity of God and the fact that God loves His integrity to the exclusion of human works.
12. The works of the law is a principle of evil, a Satanic design presented to man in the garden as the alternative to perfect environment. The tree of the knowledge of good and evil was the presentation of the Satanic plan, the alternative to perfect environment.
13. Perfect environment is from the justice of God as the result of creation relationship with the integrity of God.
14. The works of the law in the garden was called the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.
15. Good being human good from self-righteousness and evil being the plan of Satan in opposition to God. Hence, under the law of works good and evil are synonymous terms.

The Purpose of the Law (Principle #4)

1. The purpose of the law is to condemn mankind, not commend him.
2. The law eliminates human self-righteousness and condemns its source—arrogance.
3. The law confirms man's sinfulness and resultant spiritual death, therefore the law communicates the need for salvation adjustment to the justice of God.
4. While the law cannot save it can provide awareness of the need of salvation as well as the means of salvation—faith in Christ.
5. In Galatians 3:24 the law is described as a pedagogue or school bus bringing us to salvation. It is not the instrument of salvation, it carries us to the point where we see the issue of salvation.
6. Therefore the law is both the instrument of condemnation and a means of evangelization.

7. The fact that millions of Jews used the law properly in recognizing their condemnation and turning to Christ for salvation dramatizes the fact that the law was not always distorted. In fact, throughout history the Mosaic law has been employed with compatibility with divine purpose—condemning, evangelizing, bring to the point of salvation adjustment to the justice of God.

Lesson #118

118 06/02/1977 Romans 4:15 Trends re Soviets; grace provision for learning Bible doctrine

The news media is obviously at the lowest state ever. The objective of providing news; they try to interpret history and they have no idea how to. Key, we have the concept of trends, trends of our own 20th century.

Bob reads an article from the Baltimore Sun. It explains why the Soviet Union did not attack western Europe on May 1st. Another article where China predicts war between the US and Russia.

There are conflicting views, it appears, regarding Castro and the Russians; but he is merely being used by the Russians as a finessing weapon.

Fidel Castro can revealed amazing charm and he knows how to play to an audience. They are sending out medical teams to small African nations; and the repayment is voting with them in the UN against the US. It is believed that hundreds of Cubans have been killed in Angola.

Anything that is worthwhile in life is going to involve challenges. This does not mean that marriages are happy all the time. Everything worthwhile will have its discouraging moments. As a local church, we can access more information...we are in constant communication with nations all over the world and pretty much every state. Bob is expecting 50–100 groups to be hooked up to Berachah Church. This tells Bob that there are a great many pastors who are not doing their jobs.

The armored force generals are the smartest generals in Russia. There are other ones who are eager to get cracking. They have caught the western powers at a great time of weakness. Every day that we gain, we increase the size of the pivot. The greater the pivot, the more problems there will be for Russia, China and Cuba.

Everything is related to our attitude towards Bible doctrine. There was only one doctrine close to what Bob is teaching, taken from NB1 (this matched up point for point, but Bob added a lot of information to the basic doctrine).

The Grace Provision for Learning Doctrine

1. The formation and the preservation of the canon of scripture. This includes the mechanics of inspiration as well as God's faithfulness in keeping and protecting the written canon. The Bible has always be subject to many attacks and yet the Bible today is the best seller throughout the world. The 20th century has an intact canon of scripture preserved in the original languages so that the meaning of any passage is as perspicuous today as it was in the day of the autograph. This is the principle of grace. We have more information today about the original languages of scripture, more papyri uncovered, more MSS, which tell us exactly what the autographs said. So that today we are in a better position to know exactly what the original said than ever before in history. The pastor goes to this canon of Scripture, which we simply call the Bible.

2. The divine authorization of the local church. The local church is a classroom for learning doctrine, the place of assembly of all believers in a specific geographical location, and it is a classroom which is under very strict discipline. There is only one classroom. Extremely simply organization which has been overdone in may instances. There is the congregation and all worship is centered around learning Bible doctrine. The ones assembled are students without portfolio. The continued existence of this approach is amazing, as virtually every local church goes bad eventually. Only under the concept of the local church is their divine authorization for it and for the set up. God has not set up any other organizations. This may seem a little harsh to most people.
3. A right pastor. The spiritual gift of pastor-teacher provides both the ability and the authority to communicate doctrine via monologue. Bob uses the terms right pastor and right congregation, and that might be a bit of a misnomer. Bob used to take questions; it was an unsatisfactory situation and it did not get the job done. The gift of pastor teacher is a grace gift from God, the sovereign decision of God the Holy Spirit. No one receives the gift because someone is holy or spiritual. All believers are in full-time Christian service.
4. The royal priesthood of the believer. In this dispensation there exists a universal and royal priesthood among believers. The purpose of this priesthood is for privacy of reception of doctrine. This prevents the intrusion of some legalist with his own ideas telling you how to live your life. To have the privilege of growing up spiritually you must have privacy. The royal priesthood is a grace gift that has many privileges - to ensure privacy, to avoid bullying, to give a chance to learn doctrine when you enter the congregation for instruction. Every royal priest must construct his own altar which is Bible doctrine resident in the soul. We have the right to come to Berachah without joining anything or being a member of anything. The key is the response to the authority of the pastor teacher. Privacy is important, from other members of the congregation; and privacy from the pastor teacher. There is no such thing as a one-on-one situation. Giving time to key persons in the congregation is not necessary; there is no reason to stimulate various egos. Every royal priest must construct his own altar in the soul.
5. The ministry of God the Holy Spirit. The aristocracy of the believer's priesthood is related to this ministry. The Holy Spirit at the moment of salvation enters the body of every believer, He enters every believer into union with Christ - "I in you and you in me." The Holy Spirit not only is indwelling the body of the believer for protection in the angelic conflict but He controls the soul of the believer under conditions of the filling of the Spirit. This is God's grace provision for learning doctrine and for having the ability for fulfilling the objectives and to enjoy the blessings that God has for us. For the first time in history, and throughout the entire Church Age, the believer's body is indwelt by the Holy Spirit. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the royal escutcheon of the Church Age. The sealing of the Spirit is the security of the royal family. He makes every believer a royal ambassador. In addition, the filling of the Spirit provides the means by which we learn doctrine. This is the first dispensation which comes with commands regarding the Holy Spirit (walk by means of the Spirit; be filled with the Spirit, do not grieve the Spirit).

6. The provision of the human spirit.
7. Laws of divine establishment. This allows us orderly function in the local church. Those who reject natural authorities will also reject the authority of the pastor teacher and the authority of Bible doctrine. Too many of you are pickers and choosers. Long hair is the only dress code taught in the Word of God regarding men; and men are not to every have long hair. It is the sign that a man has a feminine soul. 1Corinthians 11. Long hair is an evil and it is wrong. The person who has it has a quirk or two. Stonewall Jackson, Robert E. Lee and George Washington lived during periods of time when women never cut their hair. If you want to wear your hair down to your shoulders, make sure your wife has hair down to her gluteus maximus. Bob would never hire anyone with hippie hair or afro hair ever. They are always trying to prove something; or they think they have had a bad deal. Bob knows that they are hung up and only doctrine can straighten them out.
8. Anatomy. We have the means to assimilate Bible doctrine. There are nonmeritorious functions of the human body which allow us to concentrate and to think. We need oxygen in the blood. In inhale oxygen and exhale CO₂. There must be sugar derivatives going into the mouth. Even in our bodies, God has made it possible for us to take in Bible doctrine.

Romans 4:15 For Law brings wrath; and where there is no Law, neither is transgression.

Verse 15 – “Because the law worketh wrath” includes the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, “for” or “in fact.” Plus the nominative singular from the subject nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] with the definite article, referring to the Mosaic law which has been distorted by legalism into a system of self-righteousness. Then the present middle indicative from the verb κατεργάζομαι (katergázomai) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ah-ee] which means to achieve, to accomplish, to bring about, to produce. It was used in the Attic Greek by Sophocles to mean to bear down to the ground, hence he used it to overcome all opposition. It was refined by constant use and gradually it took on a simpler form of working at and finally accomplishing. Here it means to bring about, not worketh. The present tense is a progressive present indicating action in progress or persistence. The middle voice is the indirect middle in which the subject is used as an agent, and the agent produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for reality of condemnation from the law. The law is not an instrument of commendation, it is an instrument of condemnation. The accusative singular direct object of orgê (ὀργή)

[pronounced ohr-GAY] is an anthropopathism referring to anger, wrath. It is used here to indicate divine judgment from the justice of God against self-righteousness by works. The literal translation: “For the law brings about wrath.” When you try to keep the law and produce self-righteousness, instead of getting blessing from God the law brings about wrath. Wrath is used as a human characteristic ascribed to God to indicate judgment from the justice of God.

“for where no law is” – the adverb of place hou (οὐ) [pronounced hoo] which means “where.” It refers to an actual circumstance. Plus the adversative use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de. This is correctly translated “But where.” Plus the summary particle of negation ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] and the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] meaning here to exist rather than to be. The progressive present is strong linear aktionsart. The active voice: the circumstance of no law produces the action of the verb. The declarative indicative mood recognizes an historical reality that there were many parts of the ancient world, and still are today, where people have never been exposed to the Mosaic law and where the law has never been. are these people to be deprived because they have not studied the mosaic law? The answer to that, of course, is no. The law was given specifically to Israel and it did not exist in Gentile nations. Since the Gentiles did not have the law they could not distort the law into a system of self-righteousness.

“there is no transgression” – oude (οὐδέ) [pronounced oo-DEH] parabasis (παράβασις) [pronounced par-AB-as-is]. The negative conjunction oude (οὐδέ) [pronounced oo-DEH] means “also not.” It is used to join negative clauses. Then the predicate nominative of parabasis (παράβασις) [pronounced par-AB-as-is]. It ordinarily means transgression or violation of the law, but it means also contravention or distortion. Here we use “distortion” or “deviation”—“also no distortion of the law exists.” This is not talking about transgressing the law, it is talking about distorting the law.

The Law has a purpose, but it is not brought about to produce salvation or spirituality.

Romans 4:15 For the law brings about wrath [from the justice of God]; but where the law does not exist also no distortion of the law exists.

Lesson #119

119 06/03/1977 Romans 4:16 Arrogance and misery; security; integrity and promises

As goes Abraham, so goes the rest of the human race with regards to adjustment to the justice of God. God’s sovereignty is not our point of contact. God is love, but He loves each member of the Trinity and He loves His own righteousness and justice. God is perfectly rational and He does not require emotion to love.

Our point of contact is always the justice of God. We either adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God will adjust to us.

Adjusting temporally to the justice of God. The intake of Bible doctrine. Supergrace A and supergrace B and then ultra super grace.

Zones of blessing—the blessing comes from the justice of God. Many categories of blessing, which will be studied in the life of David. All blessing and discipline comes from the justice of God.

V. 16 is half a sentence, which is concluded in v. 22. In between is parenthetical.

Romans 4:16 Therefore it is of faith, that it may be according to grace, for the promise to be sure to all the seed, not only to that of the Law, but also to that of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us of all—...

Verse 16 – “Therefore it is of faith, that it might be by grace.” The preposition dia plus the accusative neuter singular from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] is an idiomatic type of statement. Translated literally, it means “Because of this,” but in correct idiom it means “For this reason.” This is an inferential idiom of the strongest type.

Plus the prepositional phrase ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of means from pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs], not ablative of source. The ablative, again, is not the regular case for expressing means, that is the instrumental case. However, when the means is accompanied by an implication of the origin or the source then the ablative is used. The origin or the source of salvation adjustment to the justice of God is faith—“by means of faith.” Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, not keeping the law. “By means of faith” acts as a predicate nominative, the whole prepositional phrase; so we say “For this reason it is by means of faith.”

Faith must always be related to the principle of grace, so we have a prepositional phrase, kata plus charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ig] – “according to grace” or “in accordance with grace.” This is the same pattern as expressed in Ephesians 2:8,9.

“to the end that the promise might be sure” – everything is sure and secure because the integrity of God provides it, not because we provide it. This is eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of the definite article. The object of the preposition is the present active infinitive of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], so we have an infinitive as the object of a preposition. This is because this is one of the idiomatic Koine Greek ways of expressing purpose. This is bad Greek, but bad language is often the most expressive language. This is the static present to denote a condition of security which perpetually exists. When one believes in Jesus Christ he has eternal security, but he has security always—all kinds of security.

Most of us have a phenomenal amount of assets more than any other generation. There is nothing wrong with investments or insurance; just don't think that our security is based on something else other than God.

The word “promise” cannot be the subject of this infinitive without being in the accusative case, so it is the accusative of general reference from epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah]. Wherever the word epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah] and similar words are translated correctly “promise” it is dealing with a subject immediately. “Promise” means integrity. When a person makes a promise it is from their integrity. If they have no integrity the promise is meaningless; if they have integrity the promise is meaningful. A person’s promises are no stronger than their integrity. Promises are cheap, it is integrity that pays off. God’s integrity is perfect, and because it is His promises are always kept.

Next is another accusative, but this time it is the feminine singular of the adjective bébaios (βέβαιος) [pronounced BEB-ah-yoss] and it is a direct object. Bébaios (βέβαιος) [pronounced BEB-ah-yoss] means reliable or permanent. It originally meant standing firm on one’s feet, to maintain firmness or solidity. Hence, in the abstract usage it comes to mean steady, sure, reliable, certain. The adjective bébaios (βέβαιος) [pronounced BEB-ah-yoss] comes also to mean valid or something to be fulfilled—valid and it will be fulfilled.

“to all the seed” – the dative singular indirect object from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and the noun sperma (σπέρμα) [pronounced SPEHR-mah]. It means to Jew and Gentile alike. The dative of indirect object indicates the ones in whose interest the promise of salvation is given. Hence, it is a dative of advantage to both Jews and Gentiles who make salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ.

“not only to that which is of the law” – the negative particle ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] used in the first of two coordinated clauses, and with it the adverb monon (μόνον) [pronounced MOHN-on] which means “not only,” plus the dative singular indirect object from the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun to emphasize the Jews are included in the promise of salvation when they believe in Christ. Plus the preposition ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] – “from the law.” That is, “not only to those from the law [the Jews who were evangelized by studying the law, by hearing the teaching of the law].”

“but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] which sets up a contrast between the Jews under the law and Abraham, the Akadian Gentile, making salvation adjustment to the justice of God when he lived in the 3rd dynasty of Ur. Abraham was saved as a Gentile and did not become a Jew until he was 99 years of age. With the adjunctive use of kai we translated this, “but also.” Plus the dative singular indirect object from the definite article, again used as a demonstrative to emphasize the status of Abraham when he was saved. He was a Gentile. Then ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs], plus the nominative singular relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç]—the antecedent is Abraham. Plus patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR], “father” or “pattern” – predicate nominative, plus the present active indicative from eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be. This is a static present for a situation which will always exist. Abraham will always be the pattern. The active voice: Abraham produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine. The pattern for adjustment to the justice of God is Abraham. Plus the genitive masculine plural from pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs], the genitive of reference referring to that adjective as a qualifying force for both Jew and Gentile. The last word “us” is the genitive plural of relationship from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH].

Romans 4:16 For this reason it is by means of faith, in order that it might be in accordance with grace; that the promise of salvation might be valid to all the seed; not only to those from the law [the Jews who were evangelized by studying the law, by hearing the teaching of the law], but to those Gentiles from Abraham’s faith; who is the pattern with reference to all of us.

Principle

1. Abraham is the pattern of salvation adjustment to the justice of God—through faith in Christ. He believed in Jesus Christ in Ur sometime before he was 75 years old.
2. Abraham is also the pattern for maturity adjustment to the justice of God or maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
3. The link between salvation and maturity is spirituality.
4. Spirituality in the dispensation of the Church is the filling of the Spirit. However, spirituality in Abraham’s time was the function of the faith-rest technique.
5. We now interrupt our sentence for a parenthesis—verses 17-21—which emphasizes the missing link between salvation and maturity.
6. The parenthesis further emphasizes how Abraham is the pattern, not only of salvation adjustment to the justice of God but maturity adjustment as well.
7. A parenthesis is a missing link just as spirituality between salvation and maturity. It is therefore fitting that the parenthesis should be used to delineate this information.
8. Spirituality carries the positive believer toward doctrine between salvation and maturity.

Lesson #120

120 06/05/1977 Romans 4:17a Equality; Old Testament spirituality; promise of Abraham's ultra–supergrace blessings

The 36 things belong to all of us at salvation. The question is, why are we here? In time, we adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God adjusts to us.

Bob believes that he can out think anyone in the federal government. So there is no reason for them to do our thinking for us.

Some of the lowest people on the totem pole are the happiest. And there are ambitious people who are miserable. The answer is not found in adjustment to society. The answer is Bible doctrine in the soul.

At salvation, we are kept alive to either be miserable or to be totally blessed and happy. As we approach the parenthesis vv. 17–21, we have the subject, how to be happy, though saved. Most believers are unhappy and the justice of God is adjusting to them.

The missing link between salvation and spiritual maturity is spirituality, faith rest in the Old Testament and rebound in the New. The second factor is the intake of Bible doctrine. The greatest blessings of life are there for us. This is a preview of what we will be studying.

People think that marriage will make them happy. They see others make mistakes, and they think, “I won’t make the same mistakes,” but they do. There are believers who have been married 3x or 5x. There are believers who have made several fortunes; but they may or may not enjoy it.

Bob discusses Cinderella. They were all beautiful. The prince has to find the perfect one, and that is why these are called fairy tales, because there is no such one in real life.

Christian suicide is up. Every Christian who commits suicide shows an inability to adjust. They cannot adjust to life at all. Life just overpowers them. Typically, life is bigger than any of us. But God made provision for us in life. Our heritage is Bible doctrine. This is what turns everything around.

Bob has covered this passage 2 or 3 other occasions; so, this time, he has to get it right.

When something goes wrong, Bob likes to go to the president of the company. If he can get high enough, he can raise a stink and then he will get service. We are related to the God of the Universe. We can have the greatest security in life. There is not enough money in the world to pay for social security. It is not social and it is not secure.

Verses 17 and 18: faith-rest, the link between salvation and maturity. Faith-rest is the Old Testament system of spirituality.

Romans 4:17 ...as it has been written: “I have made you a father of many nations.”—before God whom he believed, the One giving life to the dead and calling into being the things not even existing,...

Verse 17 –Abraham’s maximum adjustment to the justice of God as an illustration of the other two adjustments. In this verse we start with documentation. “As it is written”—the adverb of comparison kathôs (καθώς) [pronounced kath-OCE] which is used to introduce documentation from the Old Testament Scripture to illustrate a point.

Plus the perfect passive indicative from the verb graphô (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh] which means to write—“As it stands written.” The perfect tense is a dramatic perfect, it emphasizes the results of the action of the verb, or the existing state of the canon of Scripture after its completion. The passive voice: a documentary, Genesis 17:5, receives the action of the verb from human authorship, i.e. it existed because of human authorship of Moses under the ministry of God the Holy Spirit, it is a part of the canon of Scripture.

The declarative indicative mood states the reality of verbal plenary inspiration of the Scripture.

Paul is the greatest mind; but he has no hangups with quoting from Moses.

Abraham's Sexual Prosperity

1. The integrity of God provided for Abraham certain promises and guarantees which became the object of his faith-rest technique.
2. The faith-rest technique was the Old Testament system of spirituality in contrast to the filling of the Spirit for this dispensation.
3. While the justice of God had provided numerous blessings for Abraham when he attained maturity adjustment to the justice of God, one special blessing was reserved for ultra-super-grace. Abraham defeated one of the greatest armies of his day. But God deferred one blessing to late in life for Abraham.
4. This blessing is categorized as sexual prosperity through which Abraham would become a new race, and through this he would become the father also of many nations.
5. The promise of sexual prosperity was first implied in the second paragraph of the Abrahamic covenant—Genesis 12:2.
6. This promise given originally to Abraham in Ur was reiterated to him in the land—Genesis 17:5; 22:16-18.
7. The inviolability of the integrity of God is taught through divine promises from the justice of God—Hebrews 6:13-15.
8. Abraham's sexual prosperity is also related to circumcision found in Genesis 17. God never gives without first of all providing the capacity.

We are at the crossroads of our lives. We can adjust to the justice of God or we can let the tidal wave of life roll over us. No one is greater than life. God always provides something first before the accoutrements of blessing.

Wealthy people and successful and great people are often terribly unhappy unless they have the capacity for life.

Not found in the KJV text but in the Greek is found the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] which ordinarily means "that." But here it cannot be translated unless you want to translate it "quote," which it what it means.

There is only one way to have children—with maximum doctrine.

"I have made thee a father of many nations" – it must be remembered that in Genesis 17:5 Abraham was not the father of many nations, he had one bastard by the name of Ishmael. "Many nations" means many children. For 13 years, Abraham was unable to copulate; it was simply physically impossible. Abraham was not hysterical, despite this promise seeming to be absurd.

God gave him this promise from the functioning part of His integrity: justice. Since we are dealing with the justice of God we have one thing definitely, and that is security. This begins with the perfect active indicative of the verb tithēmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee] which means to put, to place, to establish, to appoint, to destine, to decree. The best would be “I have appointed” or “I have decreed.” This is a consummative perfect which not only emphasizes the existing state from a completed action but emphasizes the process involved in completing the action. The active voice: the integrity of God produces the action of the verb, the promise to Abraham. The indicative mood is declarative, it represents the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Plus the accusative singular direct object from the personal pronoun su—“you,” Abraham in the status of mature adjustment to the justice of God. Abraham is going to have another 80 years (?) of sexual prosperity, first with Sarah and then with Keturah.

There are probably more prosperous people from the families of Abraham. Bob thinks that 60% of the wealthy people in the world came through one of Abraham’s lines.

Plus the double accusative singular direct object from the noun patēr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR], referring to Abraham as the founder of the Jewish race and many of the Arab nations. Plus the objective genitive plural from the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] which means “many” in the sense of great, and the noun ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss] for “nations.” Note that this promise does not apply to the progeny of Ishmael, only the progeny of Sarah and Keturah. Only the sons of Abraham’s sexual prosperity from the justice of God are included.

121 06/05/1977 Romans 4:17b Faith—rest of Abraham re sexual death; security of divine blessings in maturity; seven deaths

After salve, you live in great blessing or great cursing from God. Bible doctrine is the key; life is what you think, not what you do. God’s promise to Abraham, “I have decreed you the father of many nations.” At the time that God said this, Abraham was in sexual death. As far as God is concerned, there are no circumstances which He cannot overcome. The key was the function of doctrine in the soul of Abraham. It is one thing to be filled with the Holy Spirit as a mature believer; and another thing, to be filled as a baby believer. Maturity makes all the difference in the world.

Romans 4:17b ...—before God Whom he believed, the One giving life to the dead and calling into being the things not even existing,...

“before him [or, in the sight of] whom he believed” – the adverb katénanti (κατέναντι) [pronounced kat-EHN-an-tee] which is used as an improper preposition with the masculine genitive singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], referring to God, translated “in the sight of whom.”

Plus the aorist active indicative of the verb pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh] for the function of the faith-rest technique. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it gathers up into one entirety the function of the faith-rest technique of Abraham between salvation and maturity. Spirituality is that link, and spirituality in the Old Testament was the function of the faith-rest technique, and so we have gathered up into one entirety every time that Abraham claimed a promise. There were a lot of times when he didn't but he used the faith-rest technique extensively. As he matured and cracked the maturity barrier he had maximum function of the faith-rest technique whereby his reality was not in the adverse circumstances of life but in the total ability of divine integrity to provide blessing and security under those circumstances. The active voice: Abraham as growing believer was positive toward doctrine and therefore produced the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative indicating the fact that doctrine resident in the soul of Abraham produced the strength for his faith to claim impossible promises in impossible situations.

The mature Abraham believed the promise of Genesis 17:5 when he was sexually dead and totally in a hopeless situation. Doctrine resident in the soul was much more real to Abraham than his 13 years of sexual death. Doctrine in the soul gave him a reality of the integrity of God which was far greater than the reality of his own total helplessness. “As it stands written, ‘I have decreed you a father of many nations,’ in the sight of Him Whom he believed.”

At some time in your life you are going to face a totally hopeless situation. What is being studied today is to prepare you for that. If you are younger than 30, you have not faced a hopeless situation. Now, I realize that you have feelings; and they are being hurt right now. Our government is helping by placing us into a hopeless situation. You have had difficulties, for certain; but you have not been in a hopeless situation; but you will face one hopeless situation. This is the grand opportunity. Sooner or later, the attributes of God must become much greater, much more real to us than anything else in life.

Some of you see happiness as a man or woman you have fallen in love with; or a new job you are about to start. But everything in life is useless and empty if you do not have the clear concept of the integrity of God.

Abraham had cracked the maturity barrier and he was way, way out in front. He was once a young man with great romantic dreams and he married the most beautiful woman. He may have seen her is the key to his happiness; but she cause him more trouble than anyone else (besides himself).

No drug or narcotic can take the place of a relationship with God. The key is, how real is God to you? The things which are the most real to us are totally invisible are totally beyond the realm of human comprehension. Abraham had maximum category #1 love.

Once we were born again, we were designed to reach this point of maturity. But we are impressed by our own abilities or capabilities. In reality, we do not have the capability or the consistency to advance. Every time we have a chance to hear the teaching of the word, and we lose that chance, then we are in trouble. Sometimes, one message is what glues everything together. There are little parts which are picked up from time to time. And everything is in its proper place.

Bob looked up this passage in a commentary and all the great Bible commentators in the past believed this to be the resurrection. They all agreed at this point in Abraham's life, he began to think about the resurrection. But he is not thinking about any of this; he is concerned about his sexual death. He had been sexually dead for 13 years. He could have been thinking about how cruel God is by calling him the father of many nations. What a dirty trick to say this to Abraham, who is sexually dead, married to a woman past menopause.

“even God, who quickeneth the dead” – this is not a passage on resurrection. This is the objective genitive singular from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], the proper name for God, minus the definite article to emphasize the integrity of God, the source of all human blessing. Plus the articular present active participle of zōopoieō (ζωοποιέω) [pronounced dzo-op-oy-EH-oh] [zōo = life; poieō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] = make], and “quickeneth” is the old English for making life. It really means to make life or to make alive. The definite article is used as a relative pronoun referring to God. The present tense is an historical present which goes with the consummative perfect. The historical present tense is a Greek idiom in which a past event is viewed with the vividness of a present occurrence. The historical present tense here is used for something that hasn't really happened but is going to happen, and since God is going to do it, it doesn't make any difference whether it has happened yet or not, it will happen. Something is going to be made alive.

The only thing about Abraham that is dead is his phallus! That is what is going to be made alive. He will be circumcised, and the minute that he is he is going to have great sexual vigour, and he will have a sexual prosperity that will last for nearly eighty years. The active voice: the justice of God produces the action of the verb and provides Abraham with sexual prosperity. The participle is circumstantial. Plus the accusative plural direct object nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS]—dead ones. Both Abraham and Sarah were the dead ones—sexually dead. Nothing is impossible with God and therefore when God keeps His word, whether He does it through normal channels or through overcoming impossibility. It is interesting that Romans emphasizes Abraham's sexual death and Hebrews emphasizes Sarah's—Hebrews 11:11,12. Notice that in both cases, however, both husband and wife had total relationship with the integrity of God. “Abraham believed him [God]”; Sarah “concluded faithful the one who had promised”—she understood the integrity of God.

Abraham lives another 80 years and he has sexual prosperity. But not once during those 80 years even being out of fellowship, and still have great sex. David was still the wealthiest man in the world after sinning with Bathsheba. His blessings from God's integrity were not removed despite his horrible sins.

People are worried to death that someone else would get away with something in life. There are people in Berachah Church right now who have never been here before. Their mouths are open and they don't know what to do.

The doctrine below matches the notes almost exactly, with the exception of the order of two points.

Classifications of Death

1. Spiritual death - Ephesians 2:1; Romans 5:12; 6:23; 1 Corinthians 15:22. Spiritual death is a judgement on the human race at the point of birth. It is being born into the devil's kingdom as citizens. We are born spiritually dead and related to the devil's kingdom and we continue that way until we believe in Jesus Christ at which point this thing is broken. This means that when grace found us we belonged to Satan's kingdom because we were born with spiritual death. Therefore the participle in verse is not only ascriptive but it is linear aktionsart. It is a status that continues and can only be broken by a new birth, and therefore the necessity for the new birth. The new birth breaks spiritual death. Spiritual death is not only separation from God but it is the penalty of sin, and it is totally the penalty of sin. Physical death is not the penalty of sin and it does not have anything to do with the penalty of sin. The only way that physical death is related to the penalty of sin is that since we are born spiritually dead it is inevitable that eventually we will all die. The first use of spiritual death in the Bible is in Genesis 2:17.
2. Physical death - Matthew 8:22; 2Corinthians 5:1-8; Romans 8:38,39; Philippians 1:21. Physical death is the separation of the soul from the body. The only thing that can be done at a funeral is to offer the chance for those at the funeral to believe in Jesus Christ.
3. The second death is the perpetuation of spiritual death into eternity - Hebrews 9:27; Revelation 20:12-15. It refers to the final judgement of the unbeliever in which the unbeliever is cast into the lake of fire forever. So it follows the general concept of separation but it is the eternal lake of fire. The great and the small is a reference to the souls. All the great things that unbelievers have done will be burned and be the basis for their indictment as unbelievers.
4. Reversionistic death; operational death - James 2:26. "Faith without production is dead [non-operative]." This is a reference to the believer's failure to produce divine good, the failure of the believer to reach supergrace, the failure of the believer to GAP it consistently; it is the failure of the believer to get an accumulation of doctrine that leads to the ECS, occupation with Christ, supergrace capacity, supergrace blessing . Also Revelation 3:17
5. Positional death - Romans chapter 6 is the major passage of discussion. It is also found in Colossians 2:12, 20; 3:3. At salvation we are entered into union with Christ through the baptism of the Spirit. The baptism of the Spirit has two aspects. We are in union with Christ as Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father. We are also in union with Christ as Christ died on the cross - current and retroactive positional truth. Positional death is retroactive positional truth or identification with Christ in His death. We are identified with Christ in His death because at the cross Jesus Christ rejected human good. He bore our sins in His own body on the tree but He rejected human good. Retroactive positional truth is simply our rejection of human good through identification with Christ on the cross.

6. Carnal death; temporal death - Romans 8:6,13; Ephesians 5:14; 1 Timothy 5:6; James 1:15; Revelation 3:1; Luke 15:24,32. It refers to the believer out of fellowship through sin. It is simply carnality or the perpetuation of carnality in reversionism. Temporal death just means that death is used to show that when you and I sin we are out of fellowship, we are dead to God in the sense of being out of fellowship. The prodigal son was still a son but he was dead to his father - "This, my son, was dead but now is alive." He was out of fellowship, now he is back in fellowship.
7. Our passage is sexual death which is the inability to copulate - Romans 4:16-21; Hebrews 11:11,12

When Abraham heard the voice of God, he believed it. Abraham and his wife were both restored sexually. They were both mature believers at this time.

“and calleth those things which be not as though they were” – the connective use of kai is used to complete the relative clause. Then the present active participle of kaleō (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh] which means to call. But it means more than that here, it means to designate. God isn’t calling anything, He is designating something that did not exist. He is designating it to exist. If you prefer “call” He is calling into existence something nonexistent. The present tense is the historical present, it views the past action of God with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: the justice of God provides the action of the verb—restoration of the sexual function of Abraham and Sarah. The participle is circumstantial. Plus the accusative neuter plural from the plural definite article used here as a demonstrative pronoun emphasizing sexual death, and correctly translated “those things”—“and called those things.” What things? The sexual functions of Abraham and Sarah. The negative particle mē (μή) [pronounced may] denies the idea.

Then the first of two occurrences of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], the present active participle. It means to exist here, but with the negative it means not to exist—“which do not exist.” The present tense is a retroactive progressive present denoting that Abraham’s sexual death had begun in the past and continued into the present time—Genesis 17:5, the point at which the integrity of God made a promise. The participle is circumstantial. Plus the comparative conjunction hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç], correctly translated “as,” and then once again the present active participle of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. This time the historical rather than the retroactive progressive present, it views the event of Abraham and Sarah’s sexual prosperity with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: the justice of God produces the action, and the circumstantial participle means “as existing”—“and designated [called] those things which did not exist as existing.”

What did not exist was the full sexual apparatus of Abraham and of Sarah. These things did not exist and now it does. Who made the difference here? God does the doing. The justice of God does the doing. This always makes the difference. They now have something that they have not had for a long time. They were an attractive couple, but their marriage was a flop for much of it. In 13 years, they went on and cracked the maturity barrier.

Romans 4:17 (As it is written, “I have made you the father of many nations”). He is our father in the presence of God whom he believed—the God who makes the dead alive and summons the things that do not yet exist as though they already do.

After Sarah dies, Abraham will hook up with Ketera for continued sexual prosperity.

Principles

1. Reality is what God says and does; not in what people say and do. You have to study doctrine to answer this.
2. We start out with people being real to us, and God being unreal.
3. But we must advance to the point of spiritual maturity, which is the place where God is more real than people.
4. When God speaks, this is reality. God speaks through His Word. As we learn the Word of God, God becomes real to us.
5. God’s Word must reside in our souls before we can attain maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
6. At maturity, the justice of God is free to bless us in all categories of blessing in life. Spiritual, temporal, historical and dying. Our capacity is God’s freedom. Our capacity comes from doctrine.
7. When Abraham and Sarah reach that point of maturity adjustment to the Justice of God. Abraham went out to his morning medication; and Sarah says, “What is God doing?” “God is going to give me sexual function. I will get circumcised and then I will come see you.”
8. The result was the full recovery of their powers of procreation. The promises of the integrity of God are fulfilled. Jews and Arabs are being blessed today because they are descended from Abraham.
9. Other attributes of God have become involved in this process.

Romans 4:17 As it is written [in Genesis 17:5], “I have decreed [or appointed] you the father of many nations”. In the sight of Him Whom he believed, even God who gave life to the sexually dead ones, and designated those things which did not exist as now existing.

Lesson #122

122 06/10/1977 Romans 4:18 Abraham looks to reality; Arabs blessed by association with Abraham

After salvation, some people develop a righteousness of their own, and they compete with God when it comes to righteousness. God’s blessing flows to His righteousness, not to our own self-righteousness.

When David’s cup was running over, this was blessing to him after he had achieved spiritual maturity.

Romans 4:18 ...who against hope, in hope believed, for him to become the father of many nations, according to that having been spoken, "So shall your offspring be."

Verse 18 – "Who against hope believed in hope" begins with the nominative singular relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], "who." With it is a prepositional phrase para plus the accusative singular of the noun elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS]. When there is para plus the ablative it means from (ablative of source). When it is para plus the locative case it means by the side of, before, with, in the presence of. But when it is para plus the accusative, as here, it means "beyond." Notice that in no case does it mean "against," as in the KJV where it is mistranslated. The correct translation is, "Who beyond hope."

Abraham is sexually dead, there is no possible way that he could be the father of anything. Abraham was spiritually mature and there was still an outstanding promise from God to be fulfilled. Abram was the father of high and windy places, but he was told by God that he would be the father of many nations. Here is a man who is sexually dead; and there is no possible way for him to be the father of anything. He is a zero. At age 99, because he is in the position to do so. His younger wife, Sarah, was capable of having sex; but not capable of having children. This, humanly speaking, was a hopeless situation.

Abraham's sons by Keturah would each father an Arabic people or nation. And many of these Arabs are living a great, wealthy life; and it is because God made these promises to Abraham. If it were not for Abraham, these Arabs would not have all of this blessing. Abraham would not accept a hopeless situation as hopeless. The integrity of God was too real to him. The integrity of God was more real to Abraham than people.

Then there is a verb, the aorist active indicative of pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh] which means here to believe in the sense of the prolonged faith of the concept of the faith-rest technique. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views Abraham's ultra-super-grace status in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results—ultra-super-grace maximum doctrine, sexual prosperity. It corresponds to Abraham's total adjustment to the justice of God resulting in a complete relationship with the integrity of God. The active voice: Abraham as a mature believer produced the action of the verb. The power in life is in thought; everything else must be subordinate to what you think. Thought is the great thing in life; it is not what you do, but what you think. The only part of Abraham that was still active was his mind. He gave these things a lot of thought. Reality was not in his sexual death; it was in the promises that God gave from His integrity.

There is elpis1, the inability to copulate; and elpis2 the promise of God, which is the antithesis of his inability to have sex.

For Abraham reality was in the promises that God had given from His integrity. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. Abraham's faith-rest technique in spiritual maturity was dynamic, and while he was sexually dead it was an entirely different story mentally and spiritually. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God gives great spiritual power to our thinking. Doctrine in the soul is the basis for that thinking. So the believer has the privilege and opportunity of facing hopeless situations with doctrine. The phrase “in hope” is ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative of ἐλπίς (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS]. This is the second occurrence of ἐλπίς (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] in this verse. The first ἐλπίς (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] is the hopeless situation of sexual death. The second ἐλπίς (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] is the promise from the integrity of God of sexual prosperity which is the antithesis of sexual death. With doctrine in the soul, occupation with Christ, capacity for life from great spiritual maturity, the second ἐλπίς (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] is the reality to Abraham. If there is minus doctrine then the situation is hopeless, always. Being a believer minus doctrine intensifies a hopeless situation as hopeless. Here this should be correctly translated “in hope.” This is hope as a principle, not the actual details. In other words, he had not given up, he was not discouraged.

Summary

1. Sexual death for thirteen years had created a hopeless situation for Abraham at age ninety-nine.
2. There was no way that sexually impotent Abraham could have a son by Sarah or anyone else in fulfilment of God’s promise.
3. Furthermore, ninety-year-old Sarah has passed the menopause and was totally incapable of pregnancy.
4. Abraham would have succumbed to despair and self-pity except for the fact that during those 13 years of sexual death he had gone all of the way from reversionism to ultra-super-grace. He had learned doctrine.
5. At 99 Abraham was an ultra-super-grace believer. That means maximum adjustment to the justice of God, total relationship to the integrity of God.
6. Therefore the integrity of God was more real to Abraham than his completely hopeless situation.
7. Doctrine resident in the soul gave power to Abraham’s faith-rest function while at the same time providing an object for faith-rest.
8. Doctrine resident in the soul made the justice of God more real than sexual impotence.
9. Hence, the promise of an heir through sexual prosperity was more real to Abraham than his sexual incompetence.
10. Abraham, through maximum doctrine resident in the soul considered the source of the promise, the source of doctrine, was the integrity of God.
11. Furthermore, he knew that the integrity of God is perfect and therefore the timing of God’s integrity is perfect.

“that he might become the father of many nations – εἰς (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular from the definite article with the aorist active infinitive of γίνομαι (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my]. We have to have a definite article in front of the infinitive to know the meaning of εἰς (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] as a preposition. With this also is a subject, the accusative singular of general reference from the intensive pronoun αὐτός (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-

TOSS] used to define and emphasize a specific person or a category, and often given a double emphasis by being used as a personal pronoun. Gínomai (vívomai) [pronounced GIN-oh-my] is in the constative aorist tense which contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. It takes Abraham's sexual prosperity with both Sarah and Keturah, and regardless of its extent or duration gathers it up into one entirety. The best way to translate eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] is "in order that." Then the accusative of general reference, "he [Abraham] might become." This is a constative aorist gathering into one entirety years and years of great sexual prosperity resulting also in progeny. The active voice: mature Abraham produced the action of the verb in the status of his sexual prosperity, first with Sarah and then Keturah.

Seven sons were the result of this prosperity from the justice of God. The infinitive is a purpose infinitive. The infinitive is used here to express the aim of the action denoted in the finite verb—"in order that he might become" is the corrected translation. Plus the accusative singular direct object from patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR] which means father, pattern, ancestor. It has another meaning as well. It means "father" here but not just father in the sense of having children, it means father in the sense of blessing. Throughout all of history, including the Millennial reign of Christ, there will always be a fulfillment of this. Plus the objective genitive plural from an adjective and a noun, polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] plus ethnos (ἔθνος, οὐς, τό) [pronounced EHTH-noss]"many nations." It doesn't mean just the ancestor, it means ancestor with blessing. Abraham's ultra-super-grace sexual prosperity became the source of many nations, including Israel through Isaac, and many of the Arab nations through Keturah. Not all of the Arab nations are blessed. The wild-ass Arabs from Ishmael; they have not enjoyed great prosperity.

God's blessing does not come from love; it comes from the justice of God. We require the capacity first and God's blessings are great because we have the capacity to appreciate them.

Now comes the quotation from Genesis 15:5 which verifies the existence of a promise to claim under the operation of the faith-rest technique: "according to that which was spoken" – kata plus the accusative neuter singular from the definite article, plus the perfect passive participle of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. The perfect tense of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] is a dramatic perfect in which it places emphasis on an existing state which is described as unusual and vivid. The results of the action are emphasized, hence the existing state of the promise is the thing that Abraham must see, and he must see it from the integrity of God. That is where doctrine comes in. But he must see beyond his hopeless situation to the fact that the justice of God has never been unfair in any way, it is there for him, all he needs is the capacity. So there never was a moment when he was discouraged. This is the rhetorical use of the intensive perfect. The passive voice: Abraham received the promise of Genesis 15:5. The participle is a complementary participle, it is used to complete the idea of the action expressed in the main verb—"he believed according to that which had been spoken." The promise given in Genesis 12:2 was reconfirmed in Genesis 15:5 and reconfirmed again in Genesis 17:5. Each time the promise was given it was to encourage Abraham who was at a certain stage of growth to keep going, to never become discouraged, and to keep his eyes on the integrity of God because that is the issue. The source of the blessing is always the issue, not the blessing itself. Each time the promise was given or confirmed, the key is the integrity of God.

The quotation: “So shall thy seed be” – this is just the end of the quotation but it emphasizes it all. It begins with the adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] which is used to refer to what precedes, which is why it can be translated “so” or “as follows.” Following the original context of the quotation it is concluded that houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] is used here to refer to what precedes. Plus the nominative neuter singular subject with the definite article and the noun is sperma (σπέρμα) [pronounced SPEHR-mah]. Abraham’s status when this promise was given was “no sperma (σπέρμα) [pronounced SPEHR-mah],” no ability to copulate and produce children, no capacity for a progeny. Plus the future active indicative from the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be. The future tense is a predictive future, it denotes the fact that the promise given was expected to be fulfilled at a future time. The active voice: when the promise of the progeny was fulfilled Abraham would produce the action of the verb, not only in the sex but of maximum sexual prosperity. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality, an unqualified assertion of a dogmatic fact from the integrity of God—“So your seed shall exist.”

Romans 4:18 Who beyond hope of sexual prosperity believed in hope of fulfilment, in order that he might become the father of many nations, according to that which He had spoken, “So your seed shall exist.”

Principle

1. Spiritual maturity is always challenged in the area of the reality of life.
2. Reality is always challenged in life but especially to the believer who has attained maximum adjustment to the justice of God.
3. What is more real to Abraham? His hopeless situation of sexual death or the reality of the integrity of God with divine righteousness as the principle and divine justice as the function?
4. Maximum doctrine resident in the soul makes the decision in favour of the reality of the integrity of God over any hopeless situation in life.

Lesson #123

123 06/12/1977 Romans 4:19–20a Doctrine and dynamics of faith–rest in maturity for the hopeless situation

Basic Principles of the Righteousness and Justice of God.

1. We have direct contact with God through His justice. The integrity of God must be consistent.
2. There can be no compromise or inconsistency in the application of the attributes of God.

3. Since all blessing comes from the justice of God, then God must provide us with His righteousness so He can bless us.
4. Righteousness demands righteousness; justice demands justice.
5. God cannot bless anything less than perfect righteousness.
6. God gives us His perfect righteousness; and then He turns around and blesses us with this righteousness.
7. Once we have God's righteousness, then there are 35 more things which are given to us as a result. The foundation for our blessing comes from having God's righteousness. God does not pour His blessings into a paper cup.

Spiritual maturity is always challenged in the reality of life. What is real to you? Your troubles, your problems, your trials, your adversities? What is most real to us? These problems or the integrity of God? Where is reality in our souls?

Romans 5:1–5 is the key to the whole book of Romans. He said every word in this section is mistranslated. Patience is not patience. Bob will be teaching this on the 4th.

What is most real to Abraham? His sexual death or the integrity of God.

Like is composed of hopeless situations.

Romans 4:19 And not having become weak in the faith, he considered his body already having become dead, being about a hundred years old, and the lifelessness of Sarah's womb.

Verse 19 – “And being not weak in faith.” The connective conjunction kai is translated “and,” but it introduces as a result that which is preceding and so is correctly translated “and so.” Plus the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] which denies the idea in contrast to ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] which denies the fact. In this case we have a negative result, so we have mê (μή) [pronounced may]. Then the aorist active participle of the verb astheneô (ἀσθενέω) [pronounced as-then-EH-oh] which means to become weak. This is an ingressive aorist tense with the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] in which the action signified by the aorist is contemplated at its beginning. In other words, with the negative it indicates that Abraham did not even begin to falter. He had total adjustment to the justice of God, he had maximum doctrine resident in his soul. Mature Abraham had no doubts about the integrity of God. “And so not becoming weak.” The active voice: Abraham produces the action of the verb, he had no doubts. The participle is circumstantial for the fact that reality for Abraham for Abraham resided with the integrity of God. The justice of God and the righteousness of God were more real to him than his adversity. Then comes the locative singular from pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] which means faith. The definite article is used as a demonstrative pronoun to emphasize the strength of Abraham's faith-rest function with maximum doctrine resident in his soul. “And so not becoming weak in that faith.”

Principle

1. Weakness would have been lack of doctrine. On the other hand, strength here is maximum doctrine resident in Abraham's soul. Weakness is lack of doctrine; strength is maximum doctrine resident in the soul or total relationship with the integrity of God.
2. Abraham had attained maximum adjustment to the justice of God. He had spiritual maturity which was consistent with his function of GAP. Here was therefore occupied with the integrity of God.
3. Weakness and strength in the Christian life is therefore measured in terms of Bible doctrine resident in the soul, or lack of it. This is the great issue: What is your attitude toward doctrine.
4. Lack of doctrine is weakness; perception of doctrine or possession of epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] truth is strength.
5. The reason becomes obvious. The more doctrine we have in our souls the closer our relationship with the integrity of God, and that relationship means freeing the justice of God to provide blessing.
6. The more doctrine we have in our souls the more we understand God, and the more awe and respect we have for God and His plan of grace.
7. The more doctrine we have in our souls the greater becomes our capacity for life, for happiness, for blessing, and for love.
8. The more doctrine we have in our souls the greater the reality of divine integrity, the greater our occupation with the person of Jesus Christ.

“he considered not his own body now dead” – the aorist active indicative from the verb katanoēō (κατανοέω) [pronounced kat-an-oh-EH-oh] means to notice, to observe, to look at with reflection, to consider, to contemplate something [kata = intensifies the meaning; noēō (νοέω) [pronounced noh-EH-oh] = to think]. It really means to direct one's whole mind on an object, to apprehend something in its entirety, and it is correctly translated “he completely understood.” With this is the constative aorist which gathers into one entirety Abraham's concentration and comprehension of his hopeless situation. Over a period of 13 years he was totally aware of the fact that he had sexual death. The active voice: Abraham was completely aware of the fact that he was sexually dead, so Abraham produces the cognizance. He wasn't ignoring the problem, he was aware of the problem. The indicative mood is declarative regarding the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

The accusative singular direct object of sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah], his body, was the area of the problem—sexual death. The possessive genitive singular from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO] indicates that it was his body that was the problem. This refers everything back to himself. He accepted the problem as being his.

Then the perfect passive participle from nekrōō (νεκρώω) [pronounced nek-ROW-oh] which means to receive sexual death in this case. The dramatic perfect is used to describe the fact in an unusually vivid and realistic way. It is something that started in the past, 13 years ago, and to the present. The perfect tense says the action is completed. The emphasis is placed on the existing results—from year one to year thirteen, sexual death. The passive voice: the subject, Abraham, receives the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial, recognizing the historical fact of Abraham's sexual death for 13 years.

"when he was about an hundred years old" – the noun hekatontaétēs (ἑκατονταέτης) [pronounced hek-at-on-tah-EHT-ace], which means a hundred years. We know that he wasn't quite at his 100th birthday because of an enclitic adverb, που (ποῦ) [pronounced poo], which means "approximately"—"being approximately one hundred years." The word "being" is the present active participle of huparchō (ὑπάρχω) [pronounced hoop-AR-khoh], which means to exist or to be present. The present tense is a pictorial present, it pictures in the mind Abraham's sexual death in the process of occurrence. The active voice: Abraham produces the action of the verb, meaning that he has almost reached 100. This is a temporal participle, so it is translated with the phrase "when."

Abraham Being Sexually Dead.

1. Many things are blamed on old age and on youth; but age had nothing to do with Abraham.
2. Abraham's dalliance with Hagar indicates that he entered into reversionism.
3. The cause is not the issue. He is a mature believer; and once he reaches maturity, past failures are not the issue. The only issue now is, he is now a mature believer. The issue is the integrity of God. Can the integrity of God meet a hopeless situation.
4. Abraham at age 100 was totally incapable of procreation. He could not copulate.
5. But, at this age, he was a mature believer with maximum adjustment to the justice of God.
6. The resources of grace are greater than the resources of this world.

"neither the deadness of Sarah's womb" – advancement in age was the cause of her sexual death. Here is the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai which means that the conjunction is used as an adverb, meaning also or likewise—"like wise he completely understood." Then the word for "deadness," the accusative singular direct object from the substantive nékrōsis (νέκρωσις) [pronounced NEHK-roh-sis] which means putting to death or deadness. It is a medical term for atrophy of any part of the body. Plus the possessive genitive singular from mêtra (μήτρα) [pronounced MAY-trah]—"womb." "Likewise he completely understood the deadness [barrenness] of Sarah's womb"—total cognizance minus emotional reaction, minus bitterness, minus frustration, but the plus side: maximum doctrine, total relationship with the integrity of God, the integrity of God is more real than anything else.

Romans 4:19 And so, not becoming weak in that faith, he completely understood his own body which had become sexually dead when he was approximately one hundred years old; likewise he completely understood the barrenness of Sarah's womb.

Abraham was not deluded with fantasies. Many people cannot face oppression, without becoming bitter, without trying to avoid the issue. There is no deterioration of his mental processes. He does not try to run away from the problem. He can carry this problem indefinitely because he is totally occupied with the integrity of God.

Romans 4:20 Yet he did not waver through unbelief at the promise of God, but was strengthened in faith, having given glory to God,...

Verse 20 – the dynamics of faith-rest in maturity. “He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief.” The preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] goes with the accusative. The beginning of the prepositional phrase is thn which is the accusative singular of the definite article. The postpositive conjunctive particle is de used as a transitional conjunction to insert an explanation. This dynamic thing has to be explained, so de is “that is”; eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] thn is “with reference to the.” The object of the preposition is epaggelia (ἐπαγγελία) [pronounced ehp-ang-ehl-EE-ah] which means promise. “Promise” means that the integrity of God has provided information within the framework of doctrine which is meaningful to Abraham. God has many promises for us today but these promises are only meaningful as we have doctrine resident in the soul. Then comes the possessive genitive of the proper noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. This promise belongs to God. Plus the verb, the aorist passive indicative of diakrinō (διακρίνω) [pronounced dee-ak-REE-no] [krinō (κρίνω) [pronounced KREE-no] = to judge; diakrinō (διακρίνω) [pronounced dee-ak-REE-no] = to doubt or waver]. With the negative here it means “he did not waver.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it gathers into one entirety Abraham’s hopeless situation of sexual death, but in that terrible situation he continued to have perfect faith. He did not for a moment doubt God. The passive voice: Abraham received the action of the verb: no doubting, no wavering, no staggering in unbelief. The indicative mood is declarative, it regards the action of the verb from the standpoint of historical reality.

The phrase “through unbelief” is simply the locative singular from apistía (ἀπιστία) [pronounced ap-is-TEE-ah] which means “in unbelief.” Unbelief refers to the malfunction of the faith-rest technique. Such malfunction results from either carnality or reversionism. Spiritual weakness is lack of doctrine resident in the soul from the daily function of GAP. Every weakness is the believer’s life is from malnutrition—lack of doctrine.

“but was strong” – adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] used to set up a contrast. He was not weak but he was strong. Plus the aorist passive indicative of endunamoō (ἐνδυναμώω) [pronounced ehn-doo-nam-OH-oh], meaning to become strong [en (ἐν) [pronounced en] = in; dúnamis (δύναμις) [pronounced DOO-nahm-iss] = power]. It means to receive invigoration, or to become empowered in the passive voice, to have power poured in. The power poured in is Bible doctrine. Translation: “he received dynamic capacity” or “he received power.” The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the function of GAP in its entirety but it emphasizes the existing results. The passive voice: Abraham received the action of the verb, he was invigorated through doctrine resident in his soul. The declarative indicative mood is for the reality of maturity adjustment to the justice of God through the daily intake of doctrine.

Principle

1. Doctrine resident in the soul is the dynamic of the Christian life.

2. Without indwelling doctrine through the function of GAP there is no power, there is no fuel, there is no ability to face adversity.
3. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God is accomplished through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.

“in faith” is not correct. Pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] has three categories of meaning. The passive sense is the one used here, that which is believed or doctrine. It should be translated “by means of doctrine.” Here is the instrumental of the definite article with its generic use, i.e. the article with the noun is used as representing a class, a group or a category. It comprehends doctrine resident in the soul as a single word and sets it off from all other people. In other words, when you have doctrine you are strong; if you are minus doctrine you are weak. So the definite article merely puts a plus in front of “doctrine.” The definite article isn’t translated. It individualizes the entire realm of doctrine necessary for individual adjustment to the justice of God. The believer’s power resides in epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] doctrine which is in his soul and his ability to relate that doctrine to experiences and circumstances of life.

Lesson #124

124 06/12/1977 Romans 4:20b–21 Maturity recognizes that the integrity of God is real and able 9 minutes given to the Lord’s table.

“giving glory to God” – the aorist active participle from the verb didōmi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee] which means to give. This is a culminative aorist, it views maturity adjustment to the justice of God in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results. The existing results here is giving glory to God. Only maturity adjustment to the justice of God glorifies God in time and in history. There can be no maturity adjustment to the justice of God apart from doctrine resident in the soul and therefore once again there is an emphasis on the importance of Bible doctrine. The active voice: mature Abraham produces the action of the verb, i.e. glorifying God. Man can only glorify God through a total relationship with the integrity of God or maximum adjustment to the justice of God. This is a complimentary participle used to complete the idea of the action expressed in the main verb, i.e. the pouring of power into Abraham, the pouring of doctrine into his soul. The purpose of becoming strong through doctrine in the soul is to glorify God. With this is the accusative singular direct object from the noun doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah]—“glory.” It refers to the glorification of God through maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Plus the dative of indirect object from the proper noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“God.” God receives the advantage at any time that a person makes total adjustment to His justice. His advantage is that He is free to give every category of blessing to that individual.

Romans 4:20 That is, with reference to the promise of God, he did not stagger in unbelief; but he was invigorated [power was poured into him] by means of doctrine [resident in the soul], giving glory to God.

Principle

1. This principle states the significance of the ritual of circumcision. Circumcision commemorates the dynamics of doctrine resident in the soul of Abraham.
2. With maximum adjustment to the justice of God Abraham had dynamic function of the faith-rest technique through application of doctrine to his experience.
3. Doctrine resident in the soul brings into focus the reality of divine integrity. The integrity of God was more real to Abraham than the hopeless situation of sexual death.
4. Abraham submitted to circumcision as the expression of his faith-rest technique. But it was actually more than that. His circumcision was the removal of flesh from the very place of his sexual death.
5. Therefore the circumcision of Abraham was a demonstration that the integrity of God was more real than any hopeless situation in life.
6. Hopeless situations are a means of blessing to us and glorification of God.
7. God is glorified when the believer is occupied with Christ so that the reality lies in His integrity rather than in the hopeless circumstances of life.
8. Therefore faith-rest takes doctrine resident in the soul and converts it into the mature production which glorifies God. It converts it into spiritual energy whereby the Lord is more real than the adversity.
9. The energy source for production, then, is Bible doctrine resident in the soul.
10. The power or vigour of the believer is therefore directly related to the amount of doctrine resident in his soul rather than legalistic production from self-righteousness

The hopeless situation is brought to us to bless us. It is easier to bless the mature believer in hopeless situations than in any other set of circumstances.

In effect, this is the book of James which emphasizes the production of doctrine resident in the soul under the title of justification by works. But notice the principle. Justification is receiving the very righteousness of God, one half of divine integrity. Righteousness recognizes righteousness and the justice of God, the other half of divine integrity, the functioning half, recognizes that righteousness; and from that recognizes provides through logistical grace the doctrine whereby production becomes a reality. Production comes from doctrine which comes as a result of being justified. So justification by works is the mature production of the believer who has attained maximum adjustment to the justice of God.

Romans 4:20 Yet he did not waver through unbelief at the promise of God, but was strengthened in faith, having given glory to God,...

Rebound adjustment to the justice of God and then maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

Romans 4:21 ...and having been fully assured that what He had promised, He is also able to do.

Verse 21 – the reality of divine integrity in the life of the mature believer. “And being fully persuaded” – the connective use of the conjunction kai, plus the aorist passive participle of the verb plêrophoreô (πληροφορέω) [pronounced play-rof-or-EH-oh], often used as a synonym for plêroô (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh]. = to bear, to carry something that is full, therefore it comes to mean to bring to fullness, to fill completely. But in the passive voice it means to be wholly filled, to achieve complete certainty, hence to be fully convinced. It is talking about the greatest principle in life which is characteristic of the mature believer: total confidence. “And having been fully convinced” or “possessing total confidence.” The constative aorist contemplates Abraham’s mature function of faith-rest in its entirety. Abraham has that total confidence from his maximum relationship with the integrity of God. This is gathered up into a single entirety. The passive voice: Abraham received the action of the verb, confidence from maximum doctrine resident in the soul. The participle is circumstantial, it occurs not only in the case of Abraham but in the case of any person at any time in history who cracks the maturity barrier.

“that what he had promised” – the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], included after verbs of mental activity. The activity that glorifies God and he takes cognizance of it is mental activity. Not overt productivity but mental activity. The dynamics of life is found in mental attitude rather than overt function. Overt function is merely an extension of mental attitude rather than being the centre itself. Then comes the nominative neuter singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç]—“what.” Plus the perfect middle indicative of the verb e)paggelw which means to promise. It is a reference here to a specific promise of Abraham’s sexual prosperity. This is an iterative perfect which connotes a promise being made at intervals rather than continuously. In other words, a mature believer and a person who is advancing doesn’t have to be told or promised at every second. Only when the source is insecure is there a constant demand for a daily promise. Abraham is minus insecurity. The indirect middle voice is one in which the agent, God, produces the action from His integrity. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. This also has a reflexive connotation in the middle voice, therefore it is translated “that what he himself had promised.” This is a reference to a promised blessing from the justice of God. All promises originate from the justice of God.

When some of us end up in heaven, God will be glad to see us; Bob will not be. We are negative masses of protoplasm. Bob invites people who are negative to leave Berachah Church.

Why does God allow these things happen to us? The key is, God is a just God.

“he was able also to perform” – dunatos (δυνατός) [pronounced doo-nat-OSS] estin (ἐστίν) [pronounced ehs-TIN]. The adjective dunatos (δυνατός) [pronounced doo-nat-OSS] comes before eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb. There is a catch in this phrase that God is able. If you do not have doctrine in your soul you have limited the function of the justice of God for blessing you. The only thing that can come to you, therefore, is discipline. Here we have the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The present tense is a static present for a condition which is assumed as perpetually existing. The justice of God has ability, power. The active voice: the justice of God produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. Plus the adjunctive used of the conjunction kai, plus the nominative singular predicate adjective from dunatos (δυνατός) [pronounced doo-nat-OSS] in the emphatic position. It emphasizes God's ability and Abraham's cognizance of God's ability.

Plus the aorist active infinitive from poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] which means here to accomplish—"he is also able to accomplish." This is a gnomic aorist for something that is axiomatic. The active voice: God produces the action from His justice. The infinitive is the infinitive of actual result of having maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

Romans 4:21 And having been fully convinced that what He Himself had promised He is able also to accomplish.

God's promises were fulfilled to Abraham, to Moses, to David. Whether they are fulfilled to us, all depends upon our attitude toward God.

Principle

1. Maturity is the status of total confidence in the integrity of God, not confidence in any system of security or blessing of life.
2. Therefore maturity is the state of true security. The only real security in life comes from cracking the maturity barrier.
3. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God is the place of spiritual dynamics, first in thought, then in happiness, then in blessing, then in confidence, and finally production.
4. Maturity is the status of finding greater reality in divine integrity than in the adversities and sufferings of life.
5. The integrity of God is more real than any person, any circumstance, any situation of life.
6. Abraham's doctrinal concept of the integrity of God is related to a title which came to Abraham—El Shaddai, meaning "the many-breasted one."
7. The justice of God had many blessings in store for Abraham compatible with the capacity derived from doctrine resident in the soul.
8. It was Abraham's capacity from doctrine resident in the soul that caused attainment of maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Abraham is the pattern. As he attained maturity, so we today attain maturity.
9. Under maturity Abraham had both love for the source of blessing and capacity to enjoy the blessing, without losing the perspective of grace in that enjoyment of blessing.
10. This is how mature believers can have power without abusing power, blessing without flaunting blessing, and true thanksgiving or appreciation of the source without forgetting it.

At this point we close the parenthesis which started in verse 17 and goes through v. 21. We go back to the sentence which was begun in verse 16.

125 06/13/1977 Romans 4:22 Potential cf. capacity; doctrine of imputation (revised)

Romans 4:22 Therefore also "it was credited to him unto righteousness."

V. 16 is concluded with v. 22.

Verse 22 – “And” is the connective conjunction kai, and with it is the inferential conjunction dió (διό) [pronounced DEE-oh] which denotes a self-evidence: “And for this reason.” Plus the aorist passive indicative of the verb logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-aí] which means to credit to someone’s account or to impute. “And for this reason it [faith in Christ] was credited to him.” The culminative aorist gathers up into one entirety salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ, but it emphasizes the existing results: the imputation of divine righteousness and resultant justification. So this is instant believing in Christ and the imputation^[2] of righteousness comes from that. The passive voice: faith in Christ receives the action of the verb—the imputation of divine righteousness. The declarative indicative views the action of the verb from the standpoint of absolute and dogmatic reality. This occurred when Abraham was a Gentile. The dative singular of the indirect object from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτοῦ) [pronounced ow-TOSS] refers to Abraham in the sense of a personal pronoun. Then comes a prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay—righteousness. God imputes divine righteousness to the believer as the basis for all blessing directly from the justice of God. Principle: The imputation of divine righteousness is the prerequisite for all direct blessing from the justice of God.

Romans 4:22 And for this reason [salvation adjustment to the justice of God] it [faith in Christ] was imputed to him [Abraham] for righteousness.

After you receive God’s righteousness, what comes next?

The Distinction Between Potential and Capacity

1. Two things are necessary for direct blessing from the justice of God: potential and capacity.
2. Potential is defined as the imputation of divine righteousness at the point of salvation. Hence, the potential occurs at salvation adjustment to the justice of God.
3. Capacity is defined as maximum doctrine resident in the soul at maturity. Hence, capacity occurs at maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
4. Potential simply requires faith in Christ to receive divine righteousness.

5. Capacity, however, requires the daily function of GAP over a period of time for maximum doctrine to be transferred to the right lobe of the soul from the Word of God.
6. Only epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] doctrine in the right lobe produces the spiritual growth necessary for maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
7. At maturity the believer has the capacity both to appreciate the source [= the advantage] plus the variety of blessings [= the advantages] from that source.
8. Blessings from God are meaningless without having the capacity for those blessings. Since the justice of God is fair He never gives us the blessing without the capacity for that blessing.
9. Only the mature believer possesses the capacity for life, for happiness, for love, and for blessing from the justice of God.
10. Money, promotion, power, love, sexual prosperity, leadership ability, professional prosperity, is meaningless without capacity for these blessings or advantages.
11. Therefore the most miserable people in the world are not the have-nots but the haves—those who have without capacity.

The brings us to the revised doctrine of imputation. I had 3 doctrines of imputation, and two were much more basic, and the 3rd (shown below) was much more advanced. There is not much overlap. It would have been better to simply take the notes.

This is covered again in Lessons #330, #331, #332, #333; #334; #335; and #336. Very similar, but not exactly a match to the later studies.

Doctrine of Imputations

- A. Definition and Description.
 1. The English noun is derived from the Latin verb imputari, meaning to reckon, to attribute, to ascribe, to charge to one's account. In human relationship, imputation is used to ascribe to a person a vice or a virtue. In the theological concepts of the word of God, imputation is used as an act of God whereby either condemnation or blessing is ascribed, attributed, reckoned, given, or imposed on the human race.
 - a. Imputation is the function of the justice of God directed toward mankind and related to the plan of God for mankind.
 - b. Imputation functions as an act of condemnation or blessing from the Integrity of God to mankind.
 - c. Therefore imputation may be defined as the action of the justice of God whereby either condemnation or blessing is assigned, ascribed, attributed, superimposed or superinduced to another being; therefore to impute over and above that which already exists. The plan of God advances with each imputation. Every imputation is an advance on a previous imputation.
 2. There are three factors in imputation.

- a. The source, which is God Himself.
 - b. The nature of the imputation-what is being imputed.
 - c. The recipient of imputation-a human being in a specific status quo.
3. Imputation is used in the Bible in both a legal sense for condemnation and in a gracious sense for blessing.
 4. There are two categories of imputation.
 - a. Real imputations, where the justice of God imputes under the principle of antecedence and affinity. What is imputed has an affinity for that to which it is imputed. There are two factors involved: what is imputed from the justice of God; and the home or target for the imputation. In a real imputation, what is imputed is in harmony, agreement, or affinity with the target of the imputation.
 - b. Judicial imputations, where the justice of God imputes what is not antecedently one's own. Therefore, there is no affinity, no home or target between what is imputed and the recipient. Therefore only one factor exists-what is being imputed. Thus, great emphasis is placed on the Source of the judicial imputations, i.e., the justice of God. There is no harmony, agreement, or affinity between the imputation and the object of the imputation, i.e., our sins and Jesus Christ.
 5. In the plan of God, there are two judicial and five real imputations.
 - a. Judicial imputations include personal sins to Christ on the Cross and perfect righteousness to the believer at the point of salvation. This is found also in Isaiah 53:4–12
 - b. Real imputations include: human life to the soul, Adam's original sin to the old sin nature, eternal life to the human spirit, blessings in time to perfect righteousness, and blessings in eternity to the resurrection body. Romans 5:12–21
 - c. 2Corinthians 5:21 a judicial imputation; 3 imputations.
 6. These imputations form the basis for God's plan for mankind. The plan of God begins at human birth, not the new birth, and results in God's glory in eternity future by every person who ever lives receiving either eternal blessings or assignment to hell.
 - a. The emphasis for the believer is on birth-human birth where we receive our immortal soul and the new birth where we receive our human spirit.
 - b. The emphasis for the unbeliever is on death-physical death when they go to Hades and the second death when they are sent to the Lake of Fire forever.
- B. The Working Equation of the Plan of God: $X + Y + Z$. $X [I/HI + I/SD = P1 + D = H1] + (I/ETERNAL LIFE)$
1. This is God's plan for all unbelievers. X radical contains God's will for the unbeliever. The imputation of human life (HI) plus the imputation of spiritual death (SD) [Adam's original sin to the old sin nature], both occurring simultaneously at birth, equals the first potential (P1)-that being condemned at birth we have the potential of salvation. This potential plus doctrine (D-here specifically the Gospel) equals the first hope-absolute confidence that once we believe in Christ we will have eternal life. The plus outside of the bracket is the point of faith in Christ when God the Father imputes eternal life to the human spirit created by God the Holy Spirit (regeneration).

$Y [JI1 + JI2 = P2 + D = H2] + (I/BT)$

2. This is God's plan for all immature believers. Y radical is God's plan for the believer to receive blessings in time which glorify God. Judicial imputation number one-the imputation of all the personal sins of the human race to Christ on the Cross-plus judicial imputation number two- the imputation of God's perfect righteousness to the believer at salvation- equals the second potential-executing God's protocol plan for the Church Age. Judicial imputation number two also sets up logistical grace blessing. Logistical grace is our equal opportunity under election to fulfill the protocol plan of God. This potential plus doctrine equals the second hope- absolute confidence that at the point of maturity we will receive escrow blessings beyond our wildest imaginations from the justice of God which glorify God. The "+" outside of the bracket is the point of spiritual maturity when we receive these blessings.

$Z [I/EL + I/BT = P3 + D = H3] = \text{Plan of God}$

3. Two imputations in the X, two in the Y, two in the Z; with the 7th imputation taking place in eternity. The two imputations combine to give us the potential.
4. Z radical contains God's plan for the mature believer. The imputation of eternal life (the "+" at the end of X radical) plus the imputation of blessings in time (the "+" at the end of Y radical) equals the third potential-to receive escrow blessings for eternity at the Judgment Seat of Christ. This potential plus the pertinent doctrine gives us the third hope-absolute confidence that as mature believers we will receive the most fantastic eternal rewards and blessings at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
5. All three radicals, X + Y + Z, equal the protocol plan of God for the Church. These hopes are the anchors for momentum in the Christian life. These hopes, when acquired, give great confidence toward the present and the future.
6. God is glorified three times in His plan, each time as a result of His imputations. He is glorified every time a person believes in Jesus Christ. He is glorified every time a believer becomes mature.

C. The Real Imputations at Physical Birth.

1. While the imputation of human life and the imputation of Adam's original sin occur simultaneously in time, logically they occur in sequence. Human life is imputed logically before the imputation of Adam's original sin to the Old sin nature.
2. The Imputation of Human Life.
 - a. There are three categories of life: biological life, soul life, and human life.

- b. Scripture.
- (1) Gen 2:7, "Then the Lord God formed man of dust separated from the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a soul having life."
 - (2) Job 33:4, "The breath of God has created me, even the breath of the omnipotent One gives me life." God creates soul life. It takes soul life, not just biological life, for a human being to exist.
 - (3) Eccl 12:7, "Then the dust [biological life] will return to the earth as it was, and the breath [soul life] will return to God who gave it." Death does not separate the human soul from human life.
- c. The Lord Jesus Christ created the biological life of man from the chemicals of the soil. Biological life is created just once in history with the ability to reproduce.
- d. The Lord then breathed into man's nostrils soul life.
- (1) Soul life includes: self-consciousness, mentality, emotions, and volition. The immortal soul is the real person. At the moment after birth, God imputes from His justice the "spark of life," the Hebrew word NESHAMMAH.
 - (2) If God gave you life, and He did, then you have the right to conclude that God has a plan for your life.
 - (3) Soul life will always exist in the soul even in eternity, no matter where you spend it. Soul life exists in three bodies: the human body, the interim body, and the resurrection body.
- e. After the fall of Adam, human life originates under the concept of selection. Selection is the decision of the sovereignty of God to create soul life at birth and to impute that soul life to biological life which has emerged from the womb. Selection is a term relating to the divine imputation of soul life to biological life after birth resulting in the creation of human life. God creates human life by the merging of biological life and soul life. The life of the soul is not a human being until it is joined to biological life. (See the doctrine of Selection.)
- (1) The fact that God imputes life to the soul after birth implies that God has a plan for every member of the human race.
 - (2) It must be emphasized that there is no human life in the womb. Reflex motility is not life. The fetus has no life. God does not impute soul life to biological life until after the fetus emerges from the womb.
 - (3) The home or target for human life is the human soul. All the powers of hell, Satan, and mankind cannot take life out of the soul. That is why the greatest thing in life is the ability to think. Thought is beautiful in any soul; and this is why doctrine is so important. The purpose of divine discipline is to awaken your self-consciousness to the reality of the life which God gave you. Believers can absorb unlimited amounts of doctrine and develop extremely technical vocabularies.

- (4) Human life is never separated from the soul no matter how evil the person. Human life is never separated from the soul whether the person goes to heaven or hell. Once God imputes human life to a soul it resides there forever. The same is true of eternal life and the regeneration of the human spirit. When God imputes, what He imputes is indestructible. Therefore, nothing can separate life from its home, the soul. Even physical death finds the soul leaving the body but human life remains in the soul forever. Only God could invent something as great as human life. There is nothing man can do to separate life from the soul, including suicide. Even God Himself cannot and will not separate human life from the soul.
 - (5) God has a plan for you. You know this because you have life. Only negative volition at God consciousness and Gospel hearing can hinder the fulfillment of that plan. The equation for the unbeliever's life is $X - Y - Z$.
- f. Because of original creation, there is precedence between soul life and biological life as well as affinity. Because of the original sin, there is affinity between Adam's original sin and the sin nature.
3. The Imputation of Adam's Original Sin.
- a. There are two categories of spiritual death of human beings who have sinned.
 - (1) Adam and the woman. They went from a state of perfection to a state of spiritual death. This is classified as the original sin.
 - (2) The spiritual death of all human beings who are born of woman. This is the real imputation of Adam's original sin to the genetically formed sin nature.
 - b. There is the substitutionary spiritual death of Jesus Christ on the Cross. This is the spiritual death of the humanity of Christ that never sinned. Rom 5:8, "But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died as a substitute for us." The Lord described His own spiritual death in Psalm 22:1 and Mt 27:46, "And about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, 'Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani?' that is, 'My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?'" Christ did not die a real spiritual death but a substitutionary spiritual death.
 - (1) When the humanity of Christ was being judged for our sins, His deity remained in union with His humanity per the inseparable hypostatic union. Christ remained perfect and sinless while bearing our sins. Christ had to have a human body in order to be judged for sin. Deity could have nothing to do with sin. Deity and humanity could not separate while Christ was bearing our sins and being judged.

(2) Even though the sins of the Old Testament believer were imputed to the lamb, the lamb was still without spot or blemish. Christ remained sinless while bearing our sins, so that He becomes the Lamb who takes away the sins of the world. If He had committed one sin, there would have been no salvation.

(3) While bearing our sins, Jesus Christ was filled in His humanity with the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit never forsook our Lord while He was being judged for our sins. Jesus Christ retained His impeccability when the sins of the world were imputed to Him, just as when the righteousness of God was imputed to you to moment you believed in Christ but retained your sin nature and still sin.

- c. Simultaneously with the imputation of human life to the soul, the justice of God imputes Adam's original sin to the genetically formed old sin nature. The old sin nature is not in the soul, but has great influence on the soul. God created the soul, but not the old sin nature. It is genetically formed.
- d. Just as there is affinity between the spark of life and the soul, so there is affinity between Adam's original sin and the old sin nature. In fact, Adam's original sin is the origin of the old sin nature, Rom 5:12. When Adam first sinned, the old sin nature was created in the cell structure of his body.
- e. Two factors are involved in this real imputation: Adam's original sin and the old sin nature. There is affinity with antecedence dating back to the Garden. A judicial imputation has only one factor, what is imputed, since there is no home or target.
- f. While the old sin nature originates from the original sin of Adam, it is now transmitted through the twenty three male chromosomes in the sperm which fertilize the female ovum, generally by copulation. The twenty- three female chromosomes are free of corruption by the function of meiosis and polar body as the ovum is formed. The man passes down the old sin nature in his contaminated sperm because he knew exactly what he was doing when he sinned in the Garden. The woman was deceived, Adam was not.
- g. This imputation of Adam's original sin to the old sin nature is a facsimile of Adam at the time of his fall. So each of us at birth is a facsimile of Adam at the point of his sin.
- h. Therefore human birth consists of two simultaneous imputations from the justice of God: life and condemnation.
- i. This is the wisdom of God in doing it this way, for condemnation must precede salvation. Thus those who do not reach the age of accountability are automatically saved, because they have already been condemned at birth. The justice of God is free to save them since they have never had the opportunity to hear or understand the Gospel, or even be aware of God's existence. For example, when a baby dies, God could not save him if He had to wait for him to commit his first personal sin. So He imputes Adam's original sin to his old sin nature and condemns him at birth as a matter of grace.

- j. The imputation of Adam's original sin at birth is the basis for spiritual death, Rom 5:12-21, and not our personal sins.
- k. No one is condemned on the basis of personal sins. All personal sins were collected in eternity past into a prom chip to be imputed to Christ on the cross and judged.
- l. The non-imputation of personal sins to the individual not only implies that God has a plan for your life, but the plan includes salvation. Your personal sins are never imputed to you.
- m. Therefore, personal sin is not the basis for spiritual death, it is simply one of the three manifestations of having an old sin nature. (The other two manifestations are human good and evil.)
- n. We are born physical alive and at the same time spiritually dead. This gives the justice of God the freedom to save those who do not reach accountability.

D. The Virgin Pregnancy of Jesus Christ.

1. All the cells of the human race are contaminated by the old sin nature.
2. The exception is that through meiosis and polar body twenty-three chromosomes are thrown off in the ovum leaving twenty-three uncontaminated chromosomes in the female ovum prior to fertilization.
3. This phenomena in the female is based on the fact the woman was deceived in the transgression, but still guilty.
4. This means that ignorance is no excuse, but does make a difference in what member of the human race is the child bearer, 1 Tim 2:13-15.
5. While both man and woman are carriers of the old sin nature, only the man can transmit the old sin nature through fertilization of the ovum.
6. This usually occurs through copulation, but there is also artificial insemination.
7. Mary was a virgin when she became pregnant the first time. Her other pregnancies were related to copulation, Mt 13:55; Mk 6:3.
8. The virgin pregnancy was induced by God Holy Spirit, who fertilized the ovum of Mary with twenty-three perfect male chromosomes.
9. This means that through meiosis, Mary contributed twenty-three perfect female chromosomes, while the Holy Spirit provided twenty-three perfect male chromosomes.
10. The virgin pregnancy resulted in the virgin birth. Without this there can be no salvation.
11. While Mary was a virgin, she was not impeccable. She is not "the mother of God," only the humanity of Christ. Trinity with eternal life cannot have a mother. That is blasphemy.

12. She received two imputations at birth: human life and Adam's original sin. She had a genetically-formed old sin nature passed down through her father. She was a sinner by imputation and action. But Jesus received only human life, since He possessed no target for the imputation of Adam's original sin. Christ, therefore, was uniquely born, Jn 3:16, because He had no old sin nature. Because of this, He was qualified to bear the sins of the world.
13. At birth, Christ did not have a genetically-formed old sin nature, because parthenogenesis excluded the contamination of the female ovum.
14. Only twenty-three male chromosomes carry the old sin nature for transmission. Only the male passes on the old sin nature, but both the male and female have the old sin nature.
15. The Holy Spirit fertilized the ovum of Mary with twenty-three perfect male chromosomes. Therefore, no male was involved in her first pregnancy.
16. Christ was born a facsimile of Adam before his fall, trichotomous. Just as Adam was created perfect, so Christ was born perfect. Therefore, one of the titles for our Lord is "the Last Adam." There was no sin nature to which the sin of Adam could be imputed.
17. Because of the virgin pregnancy and virgin birth, there is no genetically-formed old sin nature and no imputation of Adam's original sin to the humanity of Christ.
18. A real imputation cannot occur without a home or target, and there must be affinity. Therefore, our Lord was born the way Adam was created. But He still had volition which was able to sin.
19. Christ lived thirty-three years inside the prototype divine dynasphere without committing any sin. Therefore, he arrived at the cross perfect, impeccable, and qualified to receive the imputation of all sins of the human race at the cross and be judged.

E. The First Judicial Imputation at the Cross.

1. There are three factors in a judicial imputation.
 - a. The source, which is the justice of God.
 - b. The nature of the imputation, in which there is no antecedence, no affinity, and no harmony in what is imputed.
 - c. The recipient of that imputation.
2. In the first judicial imputation, there is only one recipient—our Lord Jesus Christ. He was pierced, he was crushed with the sins of the entire human race, and yet, not one of those sins, not one thing of which we were guilty has either antecedent, affinity, or harmony with the impeccable Son of God. The perfect humanity of Jesus Christ received the imputation and the judgment of all personal sins in history while hanging on the Cross. These sins of the human race were not antecedently His own; hence, there was neither affinity, harmony, or congruence between what was imputed and the perfect humanity of Christ in hypostatic union. What is imputed is not earned or deserved.

3. The fact that our Lord was pierced with billions and billions of sins and still remained impeccable is, in itself, one of the most phenomenal things in human history.
4. The justice of God the Father did two things in the first judicial imputation of history. He called for the printout of all human sins from one prom chip in the computer of divine decrees, where they had been programmed in eternity past. He imputed those sins to Christ like javelins, like punches and then He judged every one of them. This is a judicial imputation since the sins of the world were not antecedently His own. Since personal sins of the human race-past, present, and future-were not imputed to the individual, they were reserved for judgment until Christ reached the Cross.
5. There is no affinity between the sins of the world and the impeccability of Jesus Christ. Therefore, in a judicial imputation the justice of God the Father imputes where antecedence and affinity does not exist.
 - a. Romans 5:8, "But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died as a substitute for us." 2Corinthians 5:14- 15,19; 1 Tim 2:6, 4:10; Tit 2:11; Heb 2:9; 2Peter 2:1, 1 Jn 2:2, and other passages tell us that, without exception, every sin in human history- believers and unbelievers-were imputed to our Lord and judged by God the Father on the Cross. This was unlimited atonement.
 - b. 1 Cor 11:24, "This is My body, a substitute for you."
 - c. 1Peter 2:24, "He himself carried our sins in His body on the Cross."
 - d. 1Peter 3:18, "Because Christ also died once for sins, the Righteous One as a substitute for the unrighteous ones, in order that He might bring us to God, having been put to death in the flesh, but made alive by the Spirit." While dying for our sins, He remained the Righteous One, impeccable. The Holy Spirit continued to fill His humanity and His deity remained in union with His humanity while bearing our sins.
 - e. Galatians 3:13, "Christ has redeemed us separated from [outside of] the curse of the Law, having become a curse as a substitute for us-for it stands written, `Cursed is everyone who hangs on the wood.'" Jesus Christ on the Cross was outside of the curse of the Law because He was perfect. While He was being judged for our sins, He was not under the curse of the Law. He was never under the curse of the Law. Through His substitutionary spiritual death, Jesus Christ removed the barrier of spiritual death at birth. We were born under a curse, but it was removed by our Lord.
 - (1) Through unlimited atonement, Christ removed the barrier of all personal sins from the human race.
 - (2) Through regeneration, Christ removed the barrier of physical birth.
 - (3) Through redemption, the barrier of the curse of the Law is removed.

f. Romans 8:31-32, "Therefore, with reference to these things, to what conclusion are we forced? If God is for us, who shall be against us? He who did not spare His own Son, but delivered Him over for judgment as a substitute for all of us, how shall He not also with Him graciously give to us the all things?"

(1) If God the Father accomplished the greater difficulty at the Cross by imputing our sins to Christ and judging them, can God accomplish the lesser difficulty of providing lesser benefit for you after salvation? The accepted fact is the divine judicial imputation of all sins to Christ on the Cross and by comparison produces an inescapable fact that with Christ He has graciously given us all things. If God has done the greater at the Cross, He can certainly accomplish that of lesser difficulty by providing for us after salvation.

(2) Through logistical grace, God graciously gives to us "the all things." The justice of God did the greater by imputing all sins to Christ and judging them, and the justice of God did the lesser by imputing righteousness to everyone who believes in Christ. All blessing that comes to you is graciously given to you by God because of what Christ did on the Cross. Our works are nothing compared to what Christ did on the Cross.

g. Isaiah 53:4ff, "Therefore He carried (like a heavy burden) the guilt of our sinful afflictions; He was crushed by our punishment for sin. He received our punishment for sin."

F. The Second Judicial Imputation at Salvation-Perfect Righteousness.

1. 2Corinthians 5:21, "He made Him who knew no sin [to be] sin as a substitute for us so that we might become the righteousness of God through Him." All the time that God the Father was making Christ to be sin on our behalf Christ did not sin. The action of the aorist participle is coterminous with the action of the aorist active indicative of the main verb. We exchange at salvation our personal sins for the perfect righteousness of God imputed to us, which is our motivation and momentum to advance to maturity.
2. In the judicial imputations, there is no antecedence, target, or home. Therefore, a judicial imputation has one factor, what is being imputed.
3. Judicial imputation number two is one of blessing. Perfect righteousness is imputed to believers at salvation, Gen 15:6.
4. This judicial imputation of perfect righteousness establishes a grace pipeline encapsulated by the integrity of God (His perfect righteousness and justice).
5. On the giving end of the pipeline is the justice of God, the function of divine integrity. On the receiving end is the perfect righteousness of God, the principle of divine integrity.
6. This imputation makes possible the believer becoming the recipient of divine attributes such as the love of God.

7. Grace is the policy of the justice of God in imputing blessing to the resident perfect righteousness of God.
 8. Perfect righteousness demands perfect righteousness; perfect justice demands justice. Perfect God can only demand in man absolute perfection.
 9. What the perfect righteousness of God demands, the justice of God executes. The resident perfect righteousness of God, imputed at salvation, demands logistical grace support in Y radical of our equation, and special blessing in Z radical.
 10. The grace pipeline is always insulated against human works, talent, or ability. Rom 3:20-24, 4:3-5, 22; Mt 6:33; Rom 9:30, "That the Gentiles who did not strive for divine righteousness have attained divine righteousness, that is the righteousness from the source of faith in Jesus Christ."
 11. This perfect righteousness is the basis of the first a fortiori.
 - a. If the justice of God accomplishes the greater at salvation, (i.e., the imputation of perfect righteousness), it follows, a fortiori (with stronger reason), that He will not withhold the less (i.e. the imputation of escrow blessings).
 - b. Greater in a fortiori refers to degree of effort. The object is the special blessings which glorify Christ.
 - c. If God can impute His perfect righteousness to us at salvation, which takes greater effort than blessing us, then He can certainly bless us at the point of maturity, which takes far less effort.
 12. Therefore, the imputation of perfect righteousness establishes the potential for great blessing in time, both logistical and escrow. But it is only potential until it is linked with momentum from perception of doctrine.
 13. The imputation of perfect righteousness at salvation becomes both motivation and momentum in the Christian way of life: motivation to persist in the perception of doctrine, and momentum for continuing the metabolization of doctrine. The result is maximum doctrine resident in the soul producing maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
 14. This means a transfer from logistical blessing in Y radical to escrow blessing in Z radical as the glorification of God in time.
- G. The Real Imputation of Eternal Life at Salvation, 1 Jn 5:11-12. "In fact this is the deposition, God has given to us eternal life; in fact, this life is resident in His Son. He who has the Son has life [eternal life], He who does not have the Son does not have life." Jn 3:16, 36, 6:47, 20:31 all point out that eternal life is a result of faith in Christ.
1. A real imputation has two factors: what is imputed and the target or home for what is imputed. There is always affinity between the two.
 2. Eternal life is imputed at salvation. The target is the human spirit, manufactured by the Holy Spirit at the point of salvation.
 3. The ministry of the Holy Spirit in manufacturing a home for eternal life is called regeneration.
 4. The human spirit is the permanent home for eternal life.

5. Eternal life cannot be removed from the human spirit by God, angel, or man. Just as the human soul is the permanent residence for human life, so the human spirit is the permanent residence for eternal life.
6. At physical birth, human life is imputed to the soul, while at regeneration, eternal life is imputed to the human spirit.
7. This imputation at salvation plus the imputation of escrow blessings at maturity prepares the way for the eternal glorification of God through the imputation of eternal reward and blessing at the Judgment Seat of Christ.

H. The Imputation of Escrow Blessings in Time at Maturity.

1. Scripture.
 - a. Eph 1:3, "Worthy of praise and glorification is God even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with every spiritual blessing in heavenly places in Christ."
 - b. 1 Cor 2:9, "However, as it stands written, `Things the eye has not seen nor ear has heard, nor mind has conceived what God has prepared for those who love Him."
 - c. Prov 8:18, "Riches and honor are with me [Bible doctrine], enduring wealth and prosperity."
 - d. Eph 3:20, "Now to Him who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that works within us."
2. The Mechanics for Blessing.
 - a. The best things which happen to us in life glorify God. These are the real imputations of blessings in time which begin at maturity.
 - b. This imputation is the result of the first a fortiori. If the justice of God provided the greater at salvation (i.e., the imputation of perfect righteousness), it follows, a fortiori, that the justice of God will not withhold the less at maturity (i.e., the imputation of blessing in time to perfect righteousness).
 - c. It took two judicial imputations to make available the real imputation of escrow blessings at maturity. An escrow is a deed or a bond or other written agreement delivered to a third person to be delivered to the grantee upon the performance or fulfillment of some condition. God the Father, as the grantor, deposited into escrow with God the Son greater blessings for time and eternity for each believer. Each believer is a grantee. The condition for the distribution of these blessings is execution of the protocol plan of God. The point of distribution is upon reaching maturity and at the Judgment Seat of Christ. These blessings were deposited into escrow in eternity past, thus making the blessings irrevocable. If the blessings are not conveyed to the believer because he or she fails to fulfill the conditions of the escrow by reaching maturity, then the escrow remains on deposit forever as a memorial to lost opportunity.

- d. As a result of these two judicial imputations, the believer possesses one-half of divine integrity (perfect righteousness) with the potential of escrow blessing from the justice of God.
 - e. The integrity of God is composed of perfect righteousness and justice. Perfect righteousness is the guardian of justice, while justice guards all other divine attributes. When perfect righteousness is imputed to us, it frees God to impute logistical grace blessing and later maturity blessings without compromising His essence.
 - f. The principle is that perfect righteousness demands perfect righteousness and justice demands justice. Perfect righteousness is the principle of divine integrity, while justice is the function of divine integrity. Therefore, what the perfect righteousness of God demands, the justice of God executes. Perfect righteousness in us demands God provide logistical grace, which is everything necessary to advance to maturity. At maturity, perfect righteousness demands blessing from God. Legitimate production never demands anything from God. Perfect righteousness only demands when circumstances are right. At salvation, circumstances are right for logistical grace; at maturity, circumstances are right for the imputation of blessing.
 - g. Perfect righteousness cannot demand special blessing from the justice of God unless the believer has the capacity for that blessing. Such capacity demands spiritual growth to maturity.
 - h. Maximum doctrine resident in the soul fulfills both the spiritual growth and capacity factor for special blessing from the justice of God.
 - i. God cannot accept anything less than perfect righteousness, and cannot bless anything less than perfect righteousness. Therefore, the imputation of perfect righteousness at salvation is absolutely necessary for any blessing from the justice of God whether logistical or special.
 - j. What the perfect righteousness of God rejects, the justice of God condemns. What the perfect righteousness of God demands, the justice of God provides. What the perfect righteousness of God approves, the justice of God blesses.
3. Importance of Justification.
- a. Justification is the result of the imputation of perfect righteousness at salvation. God sees His own perfect righteousness in us and justifies us by virtue of possessing that perfect righteousness.
 - b. Justification is God recognizing perfect righteousness wherever it resides. It is God recognizing His own perfect righteousness imputed at the moment of faith in Christ.
 - c. The judicial imputation of divine perfect righteousness at salvation is the potential for all blessing from the justice in time.
 - d. Therefore, the potential plus the capacity equals the reality of escrow blessing imputed in time. Mt 6:33, "But seek first the kingdom [positive volition at God consciousness and Gospel hearing] and His perfect righteousness, and all these things shall be provided for you."

- e. In Psalm 23:5-6, David described the imputation of special blessing. You have prepared before me a table in the presence of my enemies; You have anointed my head with oil; my cup is overflowing. Only prosperity and grace shall pursue me all the days of my life, and I shall remain in the house of the Lord forever [eternal blessings].
4. The Categories of Escrow Blessing. These blessings apply only to the mature believer in Z radical. These are the "all things" of Romans 8:28, 32.
- a. Spiritual blessings include:
 - (1) Maximum capacity for love; occupation with Christ; capacity for life, love, happiness and blessing; sharing the +H of God. This is where Romans 8:28 belongs, with the mature believer.
 - (2) The ability to cope with any disaster in life; freedom from slavery to circumstances of life.
 - (3) Self-pity is one of the great deterrents to the spiritual life. Such a person only wants instant help, instant solution which applies to them. The only answer is to sit down and take in Bible doctrine. "Everyday is a new crisis; every day is Forever Fernwood." 1977–1978 series.
 - (4) Capacity for love, capacity for happiness; and no object is required in order to have these capacities. Anyone who must be turned on has no capacity for love.
 - (5) Total appreciation of grace.
 - (6) Not enslaved to circumstances. You can be alone and perfectly content and secure.
 - (7) The ability to adapt to changing circumstances.
 - (8) The mature believer can have compassion even for those who are suffering in ways that he has not suffered.
 - (9) Ability to correctly interpret contemporary history and correctly evaluate current events in terms of the Word of God.
 - (10) Grace orientation, which is understanding and functioning under grace principles in life.
 - (11) Flexibility to adapt to the changing circumstances of life.
 - (12) Maximum function of the royal family honor code.
 - (13) A total sense of security in relationship to the plan of God.
 - (14) Dying grace and a total preparation for death, having confidence in God's place, manner and time for your death.
 - b. Temporal blessing.
 - (1) Wealth, received or acquired.
 - (2) Success, prominence in one's sphere of life, promotion.
 - (3) Prosperity socially, sexually, technically, culturally, professionally, mentally, and in the area of establishment.

(4) Leadership dynamics, the ability to assume authority apart from pseudo-motivation and apart from emotional inspiration, plus stability of character.

(5) Mental prosperity.

(6) Good health is not in our genes, but a blessing from God.

(7) The mature believer can expect some of these, though not necessarily all of them. Some people aren't suited to certain kinds of special blessing.

(8) Cultural prosperity; capacity to enjoy the arts.

(9) Maturity is not like Christmas, where these all come at once.

c. Blessing by association.

(1) The mature believer is a blessing to those in his generation, both during his life and after his death, to those who were associated with him until their death. This is often why the wicked prosper.

(2) This can be illustrated by the pastor of a local church. No one exceeds their right pastor's spiritual growth. Those in a congregation are blessed throughout their life by association with a mature pastor.

(3) There are two categories of blessing by association: direct blessing from God and indirect blessing from God, in which the believer shares his blessing, whether it is spiritual or material.

(4) There are six areas of blessing by association.

(a) Spiritual periphery from association with mature believers in the local church.

(b) Personal periphery includes loved ones. When someone in the family reaches maturity, the rest of the family is blessed.

c Professional periphery can include schools, military organizations, teams.

(c) Business periphery.

(d) Social periphery includes friends, clubs.

(e) Geographical periphery can include the city, state, or nation.

(5) Heritage factor. Blessing by association is perpetuated to those with whom the mature believer had association after his death until they die. This is why the wicked prosper, Jer 12:1. Even reversionists prosper because they were associated with the mature believer. Prov 24:19, "Do not be jealous of the wicked."

d. Historical blessing is the salt or pivot principle. If the pivot of mature believers is large enough, then the nation is preserved. No matter what the madness might be regarding the foreign and domestic policy of a nation.

- (1) Periods of prosperity reflect a large pivot.
- (2) Periods of national discipline reflect a small pivot and a large spinoff.

e. Undeserved suffering.

- (1) Suffering is designed to demonstrate the power and provision of God's grace, 2 Cor 12:1-10.
- (2) Undeserved suffering teaches the value of Bible doctrine, Psalm 119:67-68, 71.
- (3) Undeserved suffering is designed to manifest the ministry of God the Holy Spirit, 2 Cor 4:8-11.
- (4) Undeserved suffering is designed to put muscle on faith through the operation of the faith-rest drill, to accelerate spiritual growth, and to keep the believer occupied with his eternal future, Rom 8:36, 5:3-5.

f. Dying blessing.

- (1) Dying grace terminates the life of the mature believer. The curse of death with its fear and pain is removed, causing it to become the greatest experience in life.
- (2) Dying grace is the transition between the real imputation of blessing in time and the real imputation of blessing and reward in eternity.
- (3) The mature believer has the best in life, something better in dying, and better than the best in eternity. Phil 1:21, "For me living is Christ, likewise, dying is profit." Psalm 116:15, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of the mature ones."
- (4) As far as the mature believer is concerned, God delivers him from death until it is time for him to die. Then He delivers him from the usual horrors of dying, Job 5:20; Psalm 33:19, 56:13, 116:8, 23:4. God's decision is based on prior knowledge of all the facts.
- (5) The general characteristics of Christian death include:
 - (a) No appointment with judgment, Rom 8:1.
 - (b) Being face to face with God, 2 Cor 5:8.
 - (c) No more pain, sorrow, death or tears, Rev 21:4.
 - (d) The anticipation of an inheritance which is incorruptible, undefiled, and cannot be lost, 1 Peter 1:4-5.
 - (e) A new home in heaven, Jn 14:1-6.
 - (f) The reality of eternal life, 1 Jn 5:11-12. We do not have the reality of eternal life until our soul is outside the body and in the presence of the Lord.

(g) Death is a promotion and gain, Phil 1:21.

(h) Death is the victory of 1 Cor 15:55-58.

I. The Third Hope Motivation.

1. Imputation provides motivation. Hope three is confident anticipation of blessing at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
2. The mature believer has a special confidence, knowing that he will receive the seventh imputation from the justice of God to the resurrection body.
3. This is the confidence throughout the rest of the mature believer's lifetime. It is a fantastic confidence.
4. Heb 11:13 describes it as saluting eternity as you cross the high golden bridge. It is a reality of eternity while still alive.
5. Rom 12:12, "With reference to that hope [3], be rejoicing."
6. Col 1:5, "Because of the hope laid up in heaven which you previously heard in the word of truth."
7. Tit 2:13, "Looking for that blessed hope," [This is not the Rapture but the imputation of eternal blessing which glorifies God forever] "and appearing of the glory of the great God, even our Savior Christ Jesus."
8. 1Peter 1:3, "Blessed be the God even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to His great mercy has caused us to be born again to a living hope [3] through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." Heb 6:19-20; 1 Jn 3:2-3.

J. The Seventh Imputation = Judgment Seat of Christ .

1. Definition. This is the imputation from the justice of God of the eternal escrow blessings and rewards at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
2. The time: he Judgment Seat of Christ occurs right after the Rapture while the seven years of the great Tribulation are occurring on the earth. The rapture is the completion of the body of Christ.
3. Jesus Christ will be the judge of all Church Age believers at His judgment seat. Jn 5:22, "But not even the Father judges anyone, but He has delegated all judgment to the Son." This explains 2 Cor 5:10, "For we must all appear before the Judgment Seat of Christ, that each one of us may be rewarded for the things done through the body face to face with what he has accomplished, whether good or worthless." Rom 14:10.
4. Five categories of rewards are mentioned.
 - a. Cities, Lk 19:13-26. Some believers will rule cities during the Millennium.
 - b. A special city, Heb 11:10, 13, 16; Rev 21:2, 10-11.
 - c. Analogy to the harvest, Mt 13:3-9, 18-23.
 - d. Crowns.
 - (1) The alpha cross, 2 Tim 4:7-8, is the crown of righteousness, given for the fulfillment of perfect righteousness in time, i.e., receiving the imputation of special blessings to the mature believer.

(2) The bravo cross, Jas 1:12; Rev 2:10 is the crown of life given for advance in Z radical.

(3) The ultra cross, Phil 4:1; 1 Thes 2:19-20; 1Peter 5:4, is the crown of glory for the believer who attains ultra supergrace.

e. Ruling with God, 1 Cor 4:8; 2 Time 2:12; Rev 5:10.

K. Additional points:

1. Two judicial imputations necessary to give us blessing.
2. Our point of contact with God is His justice.
3. Justice is the function of divine integrity; righteousness is the principle of divine integrity.
4. What righteousness demands, justice executes.
5. Righteousness demands blessing when the believer has capacity for that blessing.
6. Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness. This is an axiom and it avoids the compromise of God's essence.
7. God cannot bless anything less than perfect righteousness.
8. God is only free to provide this blessing where there is perfect righteousness and no compromise of God's character.
9. The imputation of divine righteousness is necessary for any blessing from God.
10. What the righteousness of God rejects, the justice of God condemns.
11. The justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands.
12. Justification is the result of the judicial imputation of divine righteousness. God recognizes His righteousness wherever it is to be found.
13. Righteousness is imputed to us at salvation.
14. This imputation is the potential for all blessing from the justice of God. We must have His righteousness and then all of these things will be added to us.
15. Equality is never the issue; freedom is the issue.
16. Doctrine converts faith into reality. Pistis is doctrine. Doctrine is the reality from which we receive the hope. Hope is not uncertainty or ignorance of the future. It is confidence. We don't see the future, but we know what is going to take place in the future. We are absolutely sure that we will receive the 7th imputation at the Judgment Seat of Christ.
17. Hope 3 = the glory of God; this is pleasing God. Hebrews 11:1– The decrees of God come to pass not by things which are visible but by things which are invisible. Without doctrine in the soul, it is impossible to please God.

Romans 4:22 And for this reason [salvation adjustment to the justice of God] it [faith in Christ] was imputed to him [Abraham] for righteousness.

Our personal self-righteousness is not at all appealing to God. He loves His righteousness, not ours. All of the merit is in the object of faith, not in the faith itself.

Israel, pursuing righteousness by law; and they stumbled over the stumbling stone.

Closing Points

1. The imputation of divine righteousness is the prerequisite for direct blessings from the justice of God.
2. God loves His Own righteousness and His Own justice.
3. What righteousness rejects, justice condemns.
4. Divine righteousness accepts imputed divine righteousness.
5. God can only accept His Own righteousness wherever and whenever it is imputed. No other righteousness is acceptable; no other righteousness can compete.
6. Therefore righteousness imputed is the potential for all the direct blessings from the justice of God.
7. While righteousness imputed is the potential; doctrine comprehended is the capacity for direct blessing from the justice of God.
8. Potential is provided through salvation adjustment to the justice of God.

126 06/14/1977 Romans 4:23 General Singlaub; doctrine of imputation (cont.); postulates of integrity with potential + capacity = reality

Flag day, because our flag has such significance with regards to its significance and colors and meaning. First Tuesday night of prep school. Prep school Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and twice on Sunday.

Bob has always liked the LA Times, not because they were first to write him up on the sports page, but because of the family which has owned it. They are quick to present the conservative viewpoint.

Carter sacked Singlaub; reminds them of Truman firing MacArthur? A number of letters are read from this paper.

Bob reviews the doctrine of imputation, quickly. Discussion of the previously given points are gone over quickly. The previously inserted doctrine is not a good match with Bob's teaching of this.

Point 8: Imputation Is the Basis for Direct Blessing from the Justice of God.

1. The integrity of God is the guardian of the attributes of God as well as the believer's point of contact with God. Integrity polices the essence of God. Integrity is the basis for consistency; the basis for the function of divine immutability.

2. There must be no compromise of attributes in the function of the justice of God. Righteousness demand righteousness, and justice demands justice. God is infinite, eternal, self-sustaining
3. To avoid compromise divine justice can only bless divine righteousness.
4. Righteousness is the principle of divine integrity; justice if the function of divine integrity.
5. God cannot accept or bless anything less than perfect righteousness.
6. Therefore, the justice of God, is only free to provide such blessing where God's perfect righteousness resides.
7. Therefore, imputation of divine righteousness is absolutely necessary for any blessing from the justice of God.
8. God love His Own integrity composed of His divine righteousness and justice.
9. Therefore, what righteousness rejects, justice condemns.
10. This fulfills the principle that the justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands.
11. At the moment of salvation adjustment to the justice of God, man receives divine righteousness and resultant justification.
12. God recognizes His righteousness wherever it is found.
13. Justification is simply God recognizing the imputation of divine righteousness at the moment of faith in Christ.
14. Justification precedes all other blessings from the justice of God. The potential is divine righteousness.
15. Therefore, righteousness imputed and resultant justification is the potential for all blessings from the justice of God.
16. White righteousness imputed is the potential, doctrine perceived is the capacity for blessing as well as the reality for that blessing. Potential + capacity = reality. Reality is maturity adjustment to the Justice of God.
17. Potential is provided through salvation adjustment to the justice of God and the imputation of divine righteousness.
18. Capacity is developed through progress; capacity is perception of doctrine.
19. Reality occurs when the growing believer attains maturity.
20. Matthew 6:33 But seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things will be added to you. Seeking is the instant adjustment to the justice of God. This is the imperative of entreaty. The force of urgency or a request. Plus the adverb proton = but first seek. This is seeking the imputed righteousness of God. The people to whom the Lord is speaking are concerned about their day-to-day lives and basic provisions.

Potential + capacity = reality.

The advantages postulates. A large pivot of believers or a growing pivot of believers; and this means that there are advantages in that nation. The loss of the advantage and the advantages means national disaster.

Verses 23 & 24, the purpose of the pattern of Abraham.

Romans 4:23 Now it was not written on account of him alone that “it was credited to him,”...

Verse 23 – “Now it was not written for his sake alone” begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle de used as a transitional conjunction without any contrast intended. It is translated “Now.” Plus the objective negative adverb ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] denying the reality of an alleged fact, and the aorist active indicative from graphō (γράφω) [pronounced GRAWF-oh], the verb to write or to engrave. The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist, it states a present reality with the certitude of a past event. In other words, it is an idiom for emphasis. It is used here for a state which has just been realized or a result which is on the point of being accomplished. It was written in the past but the point is about to be accomplished. The active voice: two human writers of the Scripture produce the action of the verb—Moses, the original writer of Genesis 15:6, and Paul who quotes Moses in this context. The indicative mood is declarative to convey the fact of Genesis 15:6 and Romans 4:3 being both a part of Scripture. Most people cannot understand genius and they are often petty about it. Paul, who is great, recognizes someone else who is great.

Plus the prepositional phrase, dia with the accusative singular from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] used as a personal pronoun to emphasize the greatness of Abraham. Then the adverb monon (μόνον) [pronounced MOHN-on] with the negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] indicating that the action is not limited to Abraham. Abraham’s adjustment to the justice of God did not isolate him from the human race. Instead, Abraham is a pattern for all three adjustments to the justice of God, and furthermore Abraham is a pattern for the principle that potential [+R] plus capacity [+D] equals reality, the blessing of the person who attains maturity adjustment to the justice of God. “Now it was not written for his sake alone.” Grace blessing from the justice of God is available for any member of the human race.

“that it was imputed to him” – the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] is used here for quotation marks. Then the aorist passive indicative from logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-ai], which means to impute. The constative aorist is for an instant action following salvation adjustment to the justice of God. The passive voice: the righteousness of God receives the action of the verb being imputed to Abraham at the moment he believed in Christ. The indicative mood is declarative for the dogmatic fact that the righteousness of God is the first thing that Abraham received and the first thing that is mentioned after his faith because it is the basis for all blessing from the justice of God. Plus the dative of indirect object in the singular, it is the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] this time, used here to set Abraham apart and emphasize the fact that he becomes the pattern thereafter forever in all of history.

Romans 4:23 Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him.

127 06/15/1977 Romans 4:24b– 5:1a Belief in God cf. belief in Jesus Christ; prosperity results in justification

Romans 4:24 ...but also on account of us, to whom it is about to be credited, to those believing on the One having raised Jesus our Lord out from the dead,...

Verse 24 – “But for us.” The first word is the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH]. It sets up a contrast with the previous clause and joins them together. Plus the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai, translated “also,” and the preposition dia plus the accusative plural of the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“But also for our sake.”

“to whom it shall be imputed” – the dative masculine plural indirect object from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], plus the present active indicative of the verb mellô (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low] which means to be on the point of, to be about to; it denotes an action that necessarily follows, and therefore it means here to be destined. The present tense of mellô (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low] is a futuristic present denoting an event which has not yet occurred but is regarded as so certain that in the mind of the writer it is contemplated as already having taken place. The active voice: the justice of God imputing righteousness to future believers produces the action. Paul had in mind all believers who would live in the future. Writers of Scripture were aware of the fact that they were writing Scripture. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic assertion of a principle of doctrine. Then the present passive infinitive from the verb logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-ai]. This is an iterative present describing what recurs at successive intervals. Paul looked down the corridors of time and saw that people would believe in Christ. The passive voice: divine righteousness receives the action of the verb, which is being imputed, to anyone who believes in the Lord Jesus Christ. The infinitive is the infinitive of intended result. It blends the purpose and result into one concept—“to whom it is destined to be imputed.”

“if we believe on him” – the word “if” is not found in the original text. It was added by the translator who interpreted the participle coming up as a conditional participle. In reality it is a temporal participle and so we substitute the word “when” which is the means of translating a temporal participle—“when we believe,” the articular present active participle of pisteúô (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh]. The definite article is a dative plural indirect object used as a personal pronoun referring to Paul and all those who would believe in Christ in every generation thereafter, right down to this moment. The present tense is an aoristic present for punctiliar action in present time, emphasizing the fact that faith in Jesus Christ is instant adjustment to the justice of God. The active voice: future believers from the time of Paul would produce the action of the verb. The participle is temporal. Then a prepositional phrase, epí (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative singular of the definite article used as a personal pronoun for God the Father whose part in salvation is emphasized because He both judged our sins when Christ was bearing them from His justice, and He raised the humanity of Christ from the dead three days later. It is correctly translated, “when we believed on him.” When Christ was on the cross our sins were poured out upon Him and the justice of God the Father judged those sins. So we believe in the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation. But at least twice in the Scripture it is described in terms of simply believing in God, and even God the Father who also has something to do with salvation—He had to judge His Son. So when it says here, “to whom it was destined to be imputed when we believe on him,” this is a reference not to god the Son, the saviour, but to God the Father.

“that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead” – the articular aorist active participle of egeirō (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-Ī-row], used here for resurrection. The definite article is used as a personal pronoun and the object the preposition ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE]. The aorist tense is a constative aorist for an instantaneous action in past time. The active voice: God the Father produces the action of the verb by raising the humanity of Christ from the dead. The participle is circumstantial. With it is a double accusative direct object, Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss]—“Jesus our Lord.”

Then a final prepositional phrase, ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative plural of nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS]—“from deaths” (pl.).

Romans 4:24 But also for our sakes to whom it was destined to be imputed, when we believed on him who resurrected Jesus our Lord from deaths.

Now let’s look at both verses together:

Romans 4:23–24 Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him. But also for our sakes to whom it was destined to be imputed, when we believed on Him who resurrected Jesus our Lord from deaths.

Why does it say here to believe on Him who raised Christ? This is not the only place where the problem exists. The object of faith being God the Father is also found in John 5:24. In each case the object is God the Father. “He who hears My word and believes in Him Who sent me [God the Father] ...” The object of faith in salvation adjustment to the justice of God is elsewhere and universally declared to be the Lord Jesus Christ who is the only saviour. Cf. Acts 4:12. However, what these passages really say is that believing in Christ is tantamount to believing in God the Father who sent Christ, who judged our sins when Christ was bearing them on the cross and raised Christ again from the dead. So when you believe in Christ, in effect you also believe in the Father. This is not delineated where salvation is presented as the issue—Christ is presented as the saviour, the one who was judged for us on the cross. But there are times and there are passages which indicate that when you believe in Christ you also believe in God the Father, whether you realize it or not.

Resurrection and ascension and the Angelic Conflict all come into play here; and Operation Footstool.

Believing in Christ is tantamount to believing in the Father Who sent the Son and judged the Son for our sins. The moment that you believe in Christ, you are eternally saved.

There was one group who would say, “If Christ is not the Lord of all, He is not your Lord at all.”

Romans 4:25 ...Who was delivered over for our trespasses, and was raised for our justification.

Verse 25 – justification is related to the strategic victory of our Lord Jesus Christ. “Who was delivered for our offences”—the nominative singular subject from the relative pronoun hos whose antecedent is the Lord Jesus Christ, “who.” Plus the aorist active indicative of the verb paradídōmai (παραδίδωμαι) [pronounced pah-rah-DIH-doh-my] which means to deliver over, to hand over for judgment, to deliver over for judgment. The constative aorist tense gathers into one entirety the ministry of our Lord on the cross, bearing our sins and being judged by the justice of God. The passive voice: Christ received the action of the verb on the cross, being delivered to judgment. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

Plus a prepositional phrase, dia with the accusative plural of paráptōma (παράπτωμα) [pronounced par-AP-to-mah] which means transgressions: dia plus the accusative means “because of”—“Who has been delivered over for judgment because of our transgressions.”

“and was raised again for our justification” – the continuative use of kai, and then the aorist passive indicative of egeirō (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-Ī-row] used for the resurrection. The aorist tense is a constative aorist viewing the resurrection of Christ in its entirety. This is a momentary action. The passive voice: Christ received the action of the verb being resurrected by both God the Father and God the Holy Spirit. The resurrection is said to be the work of God the Father in Colossians 2:12; 1Thessalonians 1:10; 1Peter 1:21; Romans 4:25. It is also said to be the work of God the Holy Spirit in Acts 2:24; Romans 1:4; 8:11; 1Peter 3:18. It all depends on what action or phase of resurrection is being emphasized. In passages dealing with the mechanical function of resurrection it is said to be the work of God the Father. In passages where the resurrection is glorifying the Lord Jesus Christ it is the work of God the Holy Spirit, for this is His ministry from the incarnation through the entire Church Age. The indicative mood is declarative, the mood of unqualified assertion. The final prepositional phrase: dia plus dikaíōsis (δικαίωσις) [pronounced dik-AH-yo-sis]—“because of our justification.” Not for, but because justification was completed at the cross.

Romans 4:25 Who was delivered over to judgment because of our transgression and was resurrected from the dead because of our justification.

He had to be delivered over to judgment because we are sinners, but He was resurrected because justification was accomplished at the cross. Justification is not accomplished by resurrection, that would be dia plus the genitive. Justification is accomplished on the cross—dia plus the accusative, and was resurrected from the dead because of our justification. Justification was accomplished first.

Principle: Justification is the only means by which God can bless us from His integrity. Therefore justification must be accomplished before the resurrection of Christ from the dead. The testimony that sin had been judged at the cross and the judgment, or IOU against us had been cancelled, emphasizes the saving work of Christ on the cross. It was accomplished en toto before He died physically. Salvation was accomplished while Christ was still physically alive on the cross. Colossians 2:14,15.

The wages of sin is spiritual death. The saving work is accomplished.

Outline of Romans 5

Introduction: Four results of justification, verses 1-5.

Under the term "Much more":

The much more of justification, verses 6-9.

The much more of reconciliation, verse 10-12.

The parenthetical much mores, verse 13-17.

The much more of grace, verses 18-21.

Bob will switch to something else for the 4th of July Conference and then back to Romans.

Peace with God Through Faith

Romans 5:1 Therefore, having been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ,...

Verse 1 – "Therefore being justified by faith" – the postpositive conjunctive particle oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon] denotes that which is introduced is the conclusion of the preceding context, namely Romans chapter 3–4. Plus the aorist passive participle of dikaioō (δικαιώω) [pronounced dik-ah-YOH-oh], meaning to make righteous or to justify or to vindicate. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to a momentary action, namely salvation adjustment to the justice of God and resultant imputed righteousness followed by justification. All of this occurred in a moment of time. This is the basis for all blessing. The passive voice: the believer at the moment of faith in Christ receives the action of the verb, the imputation of divine righteousness which is recognized. The participle is circumstantial. Corrected translation: "Therefore having been justified." The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb is next, it is the verb to have.

Next is a preposition, ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of means singular from pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs]. The ablative is very important here. The word ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] usually means “from” because it always takes the ablative case. But there is also an instrumental ablative called the ablative of means. The ablative of means always is used when the origin or the source is stated or implied. Here the origin or source of salvation is pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] in the singular—just one time you believe in Jesus Christ. In this prepositional phrase we notice the absence of the definite article. This emphasizes the fact that only faith can save, hence this is the unique use of the noun. It emphasizes that there is no merit in faith, the merit is in the object of faith. “Therefore having been justified by faith” is directly related to the last paragraph of the last chapter.

Romans 4:16 For this reason it is by means of faith, in order that it might be in accordance with grace; that the promise of salvation might be valid to all the seed; not only to those from the law [the Jews who were evangelized by studying the law, by hearing the teaching of the law], but to those Gentiles from Abraham’s faith; who is the pattern with reference to all of us.

Romans 4:22 And for this reason [salvation adjustment to the justice of God] it [faith in Christ] was imputed to him [Abraham] for righteousness.

Romans 4:23 Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him.

Romans 4:24 But also for our sakes to whom it was destined to be imputed, when we believed on him who resurrected Jesus our Lord from deaths.

Romans 4:25 Who was delivered over to judgment because of our transgression and was resurrected from the dead because of our justification.

Romans 5:1a Therefore having been justified by faith...

“we have peace with God” – we do not have peace with God. Peace in the sense of reconciliation in Ephesians 2 is instantaneous and one of the 36 things we receive at salvation, but that is not the peace we have here: eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ῆ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay] echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh]men. The KJV translates the word echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHKH-oh]men as though it had an omicron instead of an omega. Why is that so important? The omega indicates the subjunctive mood, and that is what we actually have in the text. The omicron would indicate the indicative mood, and if this word had an omicron there, which it doesn’t, then we could translate it “we have peace.” But it cannot be translated that way because it has an omega, and it is “let us have peace.”

Notice that “peace” comes first and it is emphasized because it comes first. It is the accusative singular direct object from the noun eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ῆ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay], which can be translated “peace,” but that is very superficial. It does mean peace, but it also means harmony, health, welfare, and also prosperity. The noun eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ῆ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay] does not primarily connote a relationship between several people or an attitude but it connotes a state, therefore a status quo describes the connotation. That is, the state of peace, a state of harmony, a state of prosperity, a state of health, a state of blessing. For the believer life can be an interlude of blessing from the justice of God, and that is the idea we have here. It is not “let us have peace,” it is “let us have prosperity and security.” Since we already have eternal security it refers, then, to prosperity. Caesar’s eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ἡ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay] was security.

The Latin pax is an exact equivalent. The equivalent in the Hebrew is shâlôwm (שָׁלוֹם) [pronounced shaw-LOHM]. In Ephesians 2:14-17 we have spiritual prosperity at the moment of salvation where peace there means reconciliation, the removal of the barrier between man and God. Then we have the accusative singular direct object of the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced ECHKH-oh], and this verb is the real problem. The present tense is a tendencial present used for an action which is purposed or attempted though not actually taking place at the moment. When Paul wrote this it was not something they had at the moment but it was a potential because they had been justified by faith. It is God’s intention after justification by faith to bless each believer. The active voice: it is intended that all believers produce the action of the verb. The subjunctive mood is an hortatory subjunctive in which the writer exhorts the reader to join him in a course of action.

Lesson #128

128 06/16/1977 Romans 5:1 Principles of the integrity of God, adjustment to the justice of God and supergrace 2 (SG2) blessings

Outline reviewed.

Peace with God Through Faith

Romans 5:1 Therefore, having been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ,...

Some review of what we have already covered. The omega versus the omicron. “Let us have prosperity.”

“with God” – this is said to be real prosperity because it is prós (πρός) [pronounced pross] plus the accusative singular of the definite article plus the accusative of theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]: “face to face with the God.” When you receive +R from God you have the cup into which God pours blessing. That is your potential. Then as you take in doctrine through the daily function of GAP you develop capacity, and when you have maximum doctrine in the soul you have reality of blessing because reality equals maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Capacity is the issue, and the issue therefore is Bible doctrine.

“through our Lord Jesus Christ” is dia plus the genitive of Kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], indicating the Lordship of Christ or His deity, plus Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς)

[pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE], the title of the humanity of Christ relating it to the cross—saviour, and Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] for the anointed one or the King. Jesus Christ is the means of our salvation adjustment to the justice of God and occupation with Christ is the first blessing we receive after cracking the maturity barrier.

Romans 5:1 Therefore being justified by faith, let us have prosperity face to face with the God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

There are a few doctrines for us to study. We are about to study David (I assume for the July 4th conference). There is an overlap between David's prosperity and Romans 5.

God Is Integrity

1. God is holy, meaning that God is integrity. Holy does not mean a thing to most people. They often associate holiness with self-righteousness. But it is integrity.
2. Bible doctrine portrays the reliability and the integrity of God. There is a sense in which all teaching of doctrine is related to the integrity of God. Doctrine becomes an extension of divine. Integrity.
3. God's infinite knowledge.
4. Since man is a sinner, he has no integrity before God. Man is a sinner; man is spiritually dead. There is no way that man by any of his abilities have a relationship with the integrity of God. He falls short of the glory of God.
5. He can only share divine integrity through Bible doctrine resident in the soul. It begins with salvation through faith in Christ.
6. There are two things which God transmits to us for adjusted to the justice of God.
7. God loves His righteousness with a perfect love; this is half of His perfect integrity. We come under God's love because we have His righteousness. God loving us prior to salvation explains to us anthropopathisms.
8. The integrity of God vindicates man at salvation, rebound and at maturity.

Doctrine of the adjustment to the justice of God, which goes back to the first lesson.

There are blessings which come with maturity adjustment to the justice of God, such as wealth, promotion, power. People are given such things and they have absolutely no capacity for these things. For the believer, God gives the capacity for these blessings before He gives the blessings. Establishment prosperity, professional prosperity, leadership dynamics. Category #3 is blessing by association. Category #4 historical blessing. The mature believer is a spiritual Atlas for his geographical location. For me, living is Christ and dying is gain. The only person who gains anything by dying is the believer who has attained maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

Lesson #129

129 06/17/1977 Romans 5:2 (Intro.) Principles of divine justice can only bless +R and postulates of divine integrity This lesson is a complete review.

Various kinds of prosperity enjoyed by David.

Divine Justice Can Only Bless Perfect Righteousness.

1. The integrity of God is the guardian of the attributes of God as well as our point of contact with God.
2. Righteousness demands righteousness; justice demands justice.
3. These points go back to...
4. Imputation Is the Basis for Direct Blessing from the Justice of God back in lesson #126

However, after 2 points, Bob is off talking about God's love (the attribute and the Anthropopathism. God cannot love anything that is imperfect. Most of the time, the love of God in Scripture is not a reference to God's attribute of love.

Bob went back to the 20 points and completed them.

We complicate our lives through worry. We belong to God and are ambassadors to Christ.

God provides us with food and with clothing. Bob reviews these verses:

Matthew 6:25 "Therefore I tell you, do not be anxious about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink, nor about your body, what you will put on. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing?"

Matthew 6:26 Look at the birds of the air: they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they?"

Matthew 6:27 And which of you by being anxious can add a single hour to his span of life?"

Matthew 6:28 And why are you anxious about clothing? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow: they neither toil nor spin, Matthew 6:29 yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

Matthew 6:30 But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which today is alive and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, will he not much more clothe you, O you of little faith?"

Grass is anything that grows out in the field.

Matthew 6:31 Therefore do not be anxious, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or 'What shall we drink?' or 'What shall we wear?'

These are not even blessings; they are simply logistical grace.

Matthew 6:32 For the Gentiles seek after all these things, and your heavenly Father knows that you need them all.

Matthew 6:33 But seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be added to you.

Matthew 6:34 "Therefore do not be anxious about tomorrow, for tomorrow will be anxious for itself. Sufficient for the day is its own trouble.

Let us have prosperity, according to the hortatory subjunctive.

1977 Romans

Lesson #130

130 06/19/1977 Romans 5:2a Failures of man and the justice of God; doctrine of eternal security (revised)

Romans 5:2 ...through whom also we have access by faith into this grace in which we stand; and we boast in the hope of the glory of God.

Verse 2 – a second result of justification: security. “By whom also we have access by faith” – the prepositional phrase dia plus the genitive of the relative pronoun hos should be translated “through whom.” This is a reference to the Lord Jesus Christ. Then the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai which is translated “also,” followed by the perfect active indicative of the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh] which means to have and to hold, and in the perfect tense “we have had.” The intensive perfect recognizes the completion of salvation adjustment to the justice of God at the moment we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, and it puts emphasis on the existing results of that justification which is eventually mature adjustment. We have the potential for blessing which is the imputation of divine righteousness plus the capacity for blessing which is doctrine resident in the soul, and this equals the reality of blessing from the justice of God. But in addition to blessing we have something which is even more fundamental. Blessing is a result of something but the fundamental concept is security. Behind all of this is the perfect security provided by God. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact related to salvation adjustment to the justice of God.

Then the accusative singular direct object from the noun prosaagōgê (προσαγωγή) [pronounced pros-ag-ogue-AY] which is compounded from the preposition prós (πρός) [pronounced pross], meaning face to face with, and ágō (ἄγω) [pronounced AHG-oh] which means to bring or to lead. To bring face to face with means access, approach, admission into the presence of. It has the connotation of approaching something greater than you are—approaching God or coming into the presence of someone who is greater. The intensive perfect from echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh] emphasizes the fact that salvation adjustment to the justice of God is an accomplished fact, and as a result of that we now have access into the presence of someone who is infinitely greater than we are. “Through whom also we have obtained that access.” The definite article is used as a demonstrative pronoun, emphasizing the fact that we have an access which is the source of our security. Our security is not in the possession of materialistic things or having power in this life. Whatever is structured for human security is not our security.

“by faith into this grace” – the instrumental singular from pistis (πίστις) [pronounced PIHS-tihs] indicates the way of salvation. Faith is the non-meritorious system of perception; the object of faith has the merit. It is the Lord Jesus Christ in whom we believe for salvation.

With that salvation comes access into the presence of God always, and the access is the basis of security. Plus the prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic]—“into grace,” or “into this grace” because there is also another demonstrative.

“wherein we stand” gives us the final connotation for our security, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohc]—“in which.” Plus the perfect active indicative of the verb histêmi (ἵστημι) [pronounced HIHS-tay-mee] which means to stand. This introduces the concept of our security which is both temporal and eternal. The perfect tense indicates that we stand in the past with the result that we keep on standing forever. The active voice: the believer produces the action, he has perfect security[1]. The declarative mood is for a dogmatic statement of fact in which we stand in the past with the result that we keep on standing forever.

At one time, eternal security was the test for orthodoxy. I have two doctrines of eternal security in the two Thieme notebooks, but none match this one. However, with the 3rd point, it began to be matched up more or less with an early doctrine of eternal security.

This Doctrine is reviewed in Lesson #269; and any additional notes from there will be added here.

Eternal Security

1. Eternal security is salvation adjustment to the justice of God. When we make instant adjustment to the justice of God, God gives us God’s righteousness.
 - a. Salvation adjustment to the justice of God is accomplished through faith in Jesus Christ
 - b. The believer receives God’s perfect righteousness imputed. This is the status for us. We are commanded to have prosperity in v. 1. There is no command in v. 2. This is Romans 5:1–2. Eternal security is an unbreakable relationship with the integrity of God. There is no sin or series of sins which you can commit and lose God’s righteousness. God’s righteousness is placed into a permanent container.
 - c. Justification is related to our permanent relationship with God.
2. The non-cancellable relationship with God. Rather let every man be proved a liar. We are more impressed with our failures than we are with the character of God and less impressed with our failures. This is why people are confused about eternal security. They are impressed with their own failures. Lack of integrity in mankind does not cancel the integrity of God. Military honor code. Bob put it together and rewrote it for the... USMA I think; and for the air force. A very fine officer was removed, because he would not go with a woman in USMA. There is a wonderful place for a woman, in the kitchen, in bed, at home; but not in ranks.
 - a. Every rejection of Christ as Savior is maladjustment to the justice of God.
 - b. Salvation adjustment to the justice of God results in receiving one-half of divine integrity. You cannot have perfect righteousness from God and lose your salvation.

- c. The possession of divine righteousness forever precludes you from losing salvation forever.
 - d. The integrity of God cannot be cancelled by the failure of man. The integrity of God is infinitely greater than any failure of man.
 - e. God cannot deny Himself; He cannot deny the existence of His Own perfect righteousness which is in us.
3. The indestructible family. Once you are born into a family, you cannot get out of it. No matter what happens, we cannot get out of our human family. The same thing is true of our royal family. Family Approach: Galatians 3:26; John 1:12. We are born into God's family, we cannot be unborn. 1Peter 1:4–5
 4. To whatever God's seal is attached, it indicates ownership which cannot be changed. Ephesians 4:30 we are sealed until the day of resurrection.
 5. The Hand Approach: John 10:28; Psalm 37:23-24. The believer is held by God's hand, and He will never let go.
 6. Positional Approach: Romans 8:1; Ephesians 1:3-6; Jude 1. Every believer is in union with Christ-Romans 8:38, 39. Punishment from God in life or even in dying changes the picture.
 7. Eternal security is necessary for divine blessing. Rom 8:31–33 What then shall we say to these things? If God is for us, who can be against us? He who did not spare his own Son but gave him up for us all, how will he not also with him graciously give us all things? Who shall bring any charge against God's elect? It is God who justifies.
 - a. No believer who rejects eternal security can expect to grow spiritually. You will never be a mature believer.
 8. Body Approach: 1 Corinthians 12:13, 21. Christ, the head of the body can never say to any member of the body (a believer) that He does not need him. Jesus Christ cannot say to us, "I do not need you."
 9. Grammatical approach. Greek Tense Approach:
 - a. Aorist tense: (once and for all) Acts 16:31.
 - b. Perfect tense: (saved in the past with the result that you keep on being saved forever). Ephesians 2:8,9; Colossians 2:6; Romans 8:1.
 10. God is not willing for any to perish. The Sovereignty of God Approach: 2Peter 3:9; Jude 24.
 11. Logical Approach: Romans 5:9, 10, 15, 17, 20 with 8:32. God did the "most" for us when we were His enemies and will do "much more" for us as His sons. Romans 8:38, 39.
 12. Experiential Approach: 2Timothy 2:12-13. Though a believer may say he no longer believes, God remains faithful, because He is immutable. The Lord Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit indwells the believer and He cannot deny Himself.
 - a. 2 Tim. 2:12 speaks of rewards. "Deny us" (believers) rewards. When a believer denies Christ, he is out of fellowship and therefore not producing.

- b. 2 Tim. 2:13, "believe not"-stops believing. A believer denouncing Jesus Christ, yet He keeps on abiding faithful-He cannot deny the unconditional quality of our salvation.

13. Inheritance Approach: 1Peter 1:4,5, based on Omnipotence. Heirs of God.
14. Sealing ministry of the Holy Spirit Approach: Guarantee for protection and safe delivery at destination (heaven). 2Corinthians 1:22; Ephesians 1:13; 4:30; 2Timothy 2:19.
15. Title Deed Approach: Jude 24, 25; 1Peter 1:5-God will keep any promise made
16. More points from Lesson #269:
 - a. God's integrity remains the same.
 - b. Rejection of Christ at salvation makes God to be a liar.
 - c. It is man who is the liar.
 - d. Salvation adjustment to the justice of God results in receiving the perfect righteousness of God. The importance of the construction of that grace pipeline.
 - e. This eliminates losing your salvation by any act of human good, sin or evil.
 - f. Our sins are not greater than God.
 - g. Even if we are unfaithful, this does not change God's integrity. We cannot lose the righteousness of God; and we cannot lose our relationship with Him. Divine righteousness is always there and always will be.
 - h. Human families can be divided up and destroyed; e.g., Job's family. We are all called family of God. One in the family of God, you cannot get out of the family of God. Just as your human family. We are stamped forever family of God when we believe in Jesus Christ.

Bob's miserable moments of discipline. There were times he wanted to change it and his father did too, but there was no change.

A portion of this doctrine was sort of close to NB1, so I added that doctrine in.

1977 Romans

Lesson #131

131 06/19/1977 Romans 5:2b Boasting in the integrity of God; doctrine of glory

Max Rafferty on public education's purpose. That person who thinks that his teachers found the answers for him and that he left the school with these answers, then his education has failed him. The schools do not exist to pander a certain point of view—even ours. The schools should be teaching, not promoting." He speaks of the children of Baal. Mastering a foreign language. People can speak English, only if we describe their action with great compassion and a lack of veracity.

Bob disdains those who do not think that the Greek grammar is not important. It is not being taught anywhere else in America except from this pulpit.

Romans 5:2 ...through whom also we have access by faith into this grace in which we stand; and we boast in the hope of the glory of God.

“and rejoice in the hope of the glory of God” – the conjunctive kai is used here to introduce a result which comes from that which precedes. It is translated “and so.” Plus the present middle subjunctive of the verb kaucháomai (καυχάομαι) [pronounced kow-KHAH-om-ahee]. This is a deponent verb, active in meaning. It does not mean to rejoice. Instead it means to boast, to glory, to pride one’s self in or about a person, a thing, an organization. Hence to have esprit décor, which means enthusiasm and devotion or honor for a group, or in this case a person. In this case the group is the Trinity. Esprit décor also means a common spirit pervading the members of a group, and members of the royal family of God are related to the Trinity and therefore should share the esprit of the Trinity. As a result of eternal security given to us at the moment of salvation we are called upon to have certain attitudes in the Christian life.

When you have security it should change your attitude in life. To know that you have security eliminates a lot of negative attitudes in the spiritual life in our relationship with the Lord. We never have a fear of failure or that we can lose our salvation—“and so let us boast.” The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes the continuation of existing results. This boasting confidence or esprit decor has come to exist in the past with the result that an understanding of the integrity of God and comprehension of eternal security has resulted, and this is now emphasized as a present reality. The middle voice is an indirect middle which emphasizes the agent, the mature believer, as producing the action. The active voice is also possible here because it is a deponent verb stresses the action. We have, then, a believer who has because of understanding eternal security and knows that he stands permanently in relationship to the integrity of God, has developed esprit décor as a result. This doctrine resident in the soul is absolutely necessary for cracking the maturity barrier. The subjunctive mood is hortatory in which the apostle Paul exhorts the rest of the royal family of God to join him in a course of action. He invites all believers to participate with him in an attitude which can only come from Bible doctrine, and attitude which is described as demonstrating esprit décor. Let us boast, let us glory, let us demonstrate esprit decor.

Next is a prepositional phrase, ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative from elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] which means hope—“in hope.” The hope is a prospect or expectation is related to the integrity of God. In effect, hope is the integrity of God and whatever the integrity of God promises. This becomes hope in the absolute sense. Hence, to boast in hope, to glory in hope, is the first stage of occupation with the person of Christ where the integrity of God comes into sharp focus. The believer’s temporal and eternal security from the integrity of God provides all the logistical support necessary to advance to the high ground of maturity. The result of this security of logistical grace is the actual cracking of the maturity barrier where the believer can have esprit décor in the hope, the glory, the integrity of God.

Both hope and holy are anachronistic, they are obscured by many years. All hope must center upon the integrity of God; and whatever the integrity of God promises. Occupation with Christ is the first blessing for the mature believer.

“of the glory of God” – this is an appositional genitive in which you cut the “of” off. We have the appositional genitive of the noun doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah] which is correctly translated “glory,” though that needs some amplification. Then the possessive genitive from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—glory belongs to theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. Here is the glory of God, referring to the integrity of God.

Romans 5:2 Through whom also we have obtained that access by means of faith into this grace in which we stand, and so let us boast in hope the glory of the God.

Principle

1. The concept of boasting or glorying in hope, the glory or integrity of God, demands amplification. Two words must be understood: hope; glory[2].
2. Boasting or glorying is never commanded toward self. That is a sign of arrogance. But directed toward God it is a part of the progress of the spiritual life.
3. Our boasting in the integrity of God is total lack of arrogance and freedom from ingratitude which so frequently is related to human blessings.
4. Human ingratitude is all too frequent, yet it is sometimes provoked by the arrogance of the benefactor. God gives from perfection. All that we do here has to relate to gratitude on our part. “We find many ungrateful men and we make more.” Human ingratitude is all too infrequent, yet it is sometimes provoked by the benefactor.” God gives from perfection, not from love or arrogance. Our only logical response is gratitude, but we must cultivate gratitude; we must have capacity for gratitude. Thanksgiving is the overt expression of gratitude. Gratitude comes from doctrine in the soul.
5. Once we understand the integrity of God, ingratitude is not a problem. In our relationship with the integrity of God ingratitude does not exist, only gratitude as a mental attitude and thanksgiving as the expression of that mental attitude. Our gratitude, then, is increased in proportion to the doctrine we have resident in our souls.
6. Therefore boasting in God is that gratitude which comes from maximum doctrine resident in the soul. Boasting in God is a virtue; boasting in yourself is not.
7. Boasting in God is that expression of gratitude which manifests capacity for blessing from the justice of God.
8. This same capacity is a blessing in times of adversity. Cf. verse 3.
9. After that, we will boast in God.

The Doctrine of the Glory of God

- A. Definition.
 1. The glory of God refers to the sum total of His divine essence or to some part of divine essence.

2. The Greek word doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah] means brightness, radiance, splendor, magnificence, fame, renown, honor, or glory.
3. The verb cognate means to glorify, to honor.
4. The Hebrew word kâbôwd (כָּבוֹד) [pronounced kaw^b-VODE] means honor, glory, riches, nobility, splendor, and majesty.
5. Glory always has the connotation of honor inherent in a person, distinction, greatness, renown, fame, nobility, or majesty. In Rom 5:2, glory refers to the integrity of God.

B. Glory is used for the attributes of God in total or in part.

1. David in recognizing God's grace and rulership over Israel states the principle of the glory of God in Psalm 21:5.
2. There is a point at which we see God for the first time. Deut 5:24, "Behold, the Lord our God has shown us His glory and His greatness. We have seen that God today speaks to man, and yet man is able to live." Glory refers to His integrity; greatness refers to His other attributes. You see God's glory in Romans 3–5.
3. You cannot see the greatness of God until you can see the glory of God. Seeing the glory of God is seeing the integrity of God through pertinent Bible doctrine.
4. The glory of God has many applications.
 - a. Rom 3:23 says that to fall short of the glory of God is to fall short of His integrity. God's perfect righteousness rejects sin.
 - b. The righteousness of God looks at man's righteousness and He rejects it. But He sees His Own righteousness in man, and He accepts that.
 - c. Eph 1:17, "That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you a spirit of wisdom even from the source of revelation by means of epignosis knowledge from Him." The integrity of God refers to His righteousness and justice. God's glory is the source of the epignosis doctrine in our right lobes which causes occupation with Christ.

C. Other Uses of Glory.

1. Glory is used for the indwelling of Christ and its implications. Col 1:27, "To whom the God decreed to make known what is the wealth of the glory of the mystery among the Gentiles, which is Christ in you, the confidence of glory."
 - a. We have Jesus Christ indwelling us, as well as God's perfect righteousness imputed to us.
 - b. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is the guarantee of our escrow blessings from the justice of God the Father, since these blessings are deposited in Christ, the escrow officer.
2. Glory is used to describe the maturity of the believer. Mature believers form the basis for the recognition of God's glory. Ephesians 1:5-6, "Having pre-designed us with the result of the appointment of adult sons for Himself through Jesus Christ, according to the benevolent purpose of His will, resulting in the recognition of glory from the source of grace, from which He has pursued us with grace in the Beloved."

- a. We recognize the glory of God through the perception of doctrine.
 - b. The integrity of God pursues us in grace for the purpose of blessing us.
3. The riches of maturity are from the glory of God.
- a. Eph 1:17-18, "That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give to you a spirit of wisdom even from the source of revelation by means of knowledge from Him..., that the eyes of your right lobe may be enlightened, in order that you all may have a permanent knowledge, knowing what is the hope of His calling [maximum blessing], and what is the riches from the source of the glory, the inheritance of His saints."
 - b. Eph 3:16, "In order that He might give you according to the riches from His glory, to become strong by means of power through His Spirit with reference to the inner man."
 - c. Phil 4:19, "Now my God shall fill up the deficiency of all your needs according to the standard of His riches in glory by means of Christ Jesus."
4. The mature believer has received this glory, 1Peter 1:7-8. Receiving glory is blessing from the integrity of God to the mature believer.
5. Glory is used to describe the strategic victory of Christ in the angelic conflict.
- a. Heb 2:10, "To have led to glory many sons." God brings many sons to glory by judging our sins, so that, when we believe in Christ, we enter into a relationship with His glory. We receive the imputation of God's perfect righteousness, which is the potential for blessing from the integrity of God. Jesus brings us to glory by dying for our sins.
 - b. 1Tim 3:16, "Christ taken up into the place of glory" refers to the third heaven, the location of the integrity of God.
6. The royal family is called to eternal glory since Christ is seated in the place of glory. The formation of the royal family comes under the phrase, "being called to eternal glory," 1Peter 5:10 And after you have suffered for a little while, the God of all grace Who called you to His eternal glory in Christ will Himself perfect, confirm, strengthen and stabilize you. 2Peter 1:3 Seeing that His divine power has given to us everything pertaining to life and godliness [maturity adjustment to the justice of God] through the full knowledge of Him Who called us to His Own glory and excellence. This is the status of the royal family being called into eternal relationship with the integrity of God.
7. The resurrection body is described in terms of glory, 1Cor 15:43. Our body is sown in dishonor but it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness and it is raised in power. Our resurrection body is raised in glory because we are in the status quo of everlasting life. We will live forever in a state of glory. In 2Thessalonians 2:14, And it was for this that He called you through our gospel that you may attain the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. This means that we have a resurrection body exactly like His.

8. The right woman is called the glory of the right man, 1 Cor 11:6,7, For if a woman does not cover her head (that is, with long hair) let her also have her hair cut off. But it is disgraceful for a woman to have her hair cut off (or her head shaved) and therefore, let her cover her head; for a man ought not to have his head covered (with hair) since he is the image and the glory of God; but the woman is the glory of the man (therefore the man has short hair and the woman has long hair). The comparison means that the man has the authority over the woman, as God has authority over us. 1Corinthians 11:14-15. Does not even nature teach you that, if a man has long hair it is a dishonor to him. But if a woman has long hair, it is a glory to her. Her long hair is a glory to the woman. Long hair on the male is dishonorable. Just because a woman says you look great with long hair, that does not mean that you look great or are great. (Do I seem to be preaching?)
9. Additional uses of glory in the Bible.
 - a. For the wonders of the universe, 1Cor 15:40-41.
 - b. For human glamor, 1Pet 1:24; Phil 3:19.
10. God is glorified and receives glory forever in the function of ultimate sanctification and the deliverance of the ultra supergrace believer, 2Tim 4:18 The Lord Himself shall continue to deliver me from every evil deed and the Lord to Whom is the glory forever and ever. Amen.

1977 Romans

Lesson #132

132 06/20/1977 Romans 5:3a Glorifying in adversity; doctrine of suffering (pts. 1–5)

Trends of the thinking of the day. One interesting thought from the Army Times.

Discussion of Singlaub. Our president is given to fits of anger; and he cannot tolerate dissent among advisors. This can be a great detriment to our national security. His counsel should have been sought and heeded. He remembers, how the Korean War was started because of us withdrawing from there. Penny-wise and pound foolish would be to pull our troops out of there.

We have stabilized that part of the world, allowing Japan to grow into a great economic powerhouse (we do about 50% of the trade in that region with Japan).

Russian plane flew into the United States, flying under the radar. This was the closest that they have come into the United States.

NY Times speaks to the increase of Russian power. A bigger buildup must come.

Russians and China fighting everywhere they meet.

Our naval intelligence are just reading foreign newspapers.

Russians are considering attacking 1980 or 1981 (which is when WWIII is expected to be on).

Now the third result of justification—which is really an introduction to the 5th chapter of Romans—is pressure. One of the great results of justification is added pressure in life, a pressure that never entirely leaves but a pressure which is mitigated by the blessings from the justice of God when we crack the maturity barrier. Verses 3 & 4 are devoted to this result.

Romans 5:3 And not only so, but also we glory in our tribulations, knowing that tribulation produces perseverance;...

Verse 3 – “And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also.” It begins with ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] monon (μόνον) [pronounced MOHN-on] de. The first word, ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] is the objective negative denying the reality of an alleged fact. Plus the adverb monon (μόνον) [pronounced MOHN-on] used as a part of an ellipsis with supplementation of what immediately precedes. The particle de is used idiomatically here to form the translation—“And not only this.” There is no demonstrative pronoun but when you put these three words together you have an idiom, and to correctly translate it does not mean to literally translate it. The word “this” comes from the supplementation concept of the adverb. That is, we do not boast in hope, the glory or the integrity of God alone, but we also boast in something else. It comes with an adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH]—“but,” and with it the adjunctive use of kai—“but also.”

Now we have a repetition of the verb, the present middle subjunctive of the verb kauchaómai (καυχάομαι) [pronounced kow-KHAH-om-ahee] which means to boast, to glory, to pride one’s self in a thing or about a person, to demonstrate esprit décor. The present tense is a perfective present denoting the continuation of existing results from maturity adjustment to the justice of God, but in a different direction this time—in the direction of pressure, adversity, sufferings. The middle voice is the indirect middle, emphasizing the agent (the mature believer) as producing the action of the verb. The maturity adjustment to the justice of God includes the principle of glorying or boasting, or demonstrating esprit décor in time of adversity. Doctrine resident in the soul which attains maturity adjustment to the justice of God at the same time is used for the demonstration of esprit décor in time of adversity. The subjunctive mood is hortatory in which the writer, the apostle Paul, exhorts the readers (us today) to join him in a course of action—the demonstration of esprit décor in the pressures, the tragedies, the heartaches, the adversities.

Then the prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative thlipsis (θλίψεις) [pronounced THLIP-siss] which means pressures, afflictions, distressing circumstances, trials, oppressions, persecution^[3].

Romans 5:3a “And not only this, but also let us boast [demonstrate esprit décor] in pressures.”

Principle

1. There are two areas of great pressure in the life of every believer.
2. The first area is just prior to cracking the maturity barrier.
3. Inasmuch as we grow spiritually from doctrine resident in the soul the doctrine must develop muscle. And so we grow spiritually also from pressure and a certain amount of adversity is necessary for our spiritual advance to the high ground of maturity. That explains the pressure prior to the maturity barrier.
4. There is a second area, just after the R&R period, in super-grace B.
5. The principle: Every spiritual advance is tested by adversity.

The doctrine below comes from NB1 and it is very close; but it was mis-numbered at some point. This is repeated in Lesson #311 and #312. This doctrine not covered again in later lessons (undeserved suffering is covered many times). The doctrine below is very close to the notes being given in lessons #311 and #312.

The Doctrine of Suffering

- A. The general causes for suffering in life - believers and unbelievers.
1. Loss of health, wealth, property, money, loved ones, or anything that you value.
 2. Suffering from people. It's a crowded world. This includes gossip, ostracism, persecution, violence, crime, warfare. You can relate just about any kind of suffering to people. They don't cause it all.
 3. Privation - hunger, thirst, cold, heat, storm, earthquake and other natural disasters, accidents in any variety. Great suffering in Africa, India and Asia. Sometimes this is as simple as lack of food and lack of water.
 4. Suffering from the administration of law - mostly to criminals. This punishment is used as a restrainer of crime.
 5. Social suffering like boredom, loneliness.
 6. Mental suffering - from mental attitude sins, pride, arrogance, jealousy, hatred, bitterness, guilt reaction, neurosis or psychosis, worry, anxiety, fear, etc.
 7. Suffering from rejection of authority. This includes rejection of authority in love. When the woman rejects the authority of a man she suffers. Divorce or separation. Failure in adulthood because of rejection of authority in childhood. Being fired from a job because of rejection of authority.

Dishonorable discharge from the military; being cut from a team; being expelled from school.

8. Suffering from reversionism resulting in reaping what you sow.

B. Basic categories of suffering.

1. In time; For time, we now begin to break up into the categories of the human race. The human race is divided into two categories by John 3:36, believers in Jesus Christ and rejecters of Jesus Christ. The unbeliever suffers in time for rejection of the laws of divine establishment. He suffers through reversionism and other factors of self-induced misery. The believer also suffers in time.
2. In eternity. In eternity the unbeliever suffers forever the most intense of all sufferings, the lake of fire forever - Revelation 20:12-15.
3. There will be no suffering for the believer in eternity - Revelation 21:4. There is not even embarrassment in eternity. Some pastors use this as a lever to get you to do something. There will be no regrets in eternity. Otherwise, all of us would have regrets in eternity.

C. The premise for Christian suffering.

1. All suffering is designed for blessing - 1Peter 1:7,8; 4:14.
2. The exception is divine discipline - Hebrews 12:6, for carnality and for reversionism.
3. The exception is removed - 1Corinthians 11:31 - for carnality: rebound; for reversionism: recovery through the consistent function of GAP.
4. Cursing is therefore turned to blessing - Romans 8:28. So the premise: All suffering is designed for blessing. The exception is divine discipline. Exception removed: the result is cursing turned to blessing.
5. Carnality is not using rebound; and reversionism occurs when carnality is continued for a period of time.

D. The categories of Christian suffering. There are two types of Christian suffering: a) Disciplinary suffering, called deserved; b) Suffering for blessing, called undeserved. There are ten categories of deserved [disciplinary] suffering:

1. Suffering from the justice of God. Suffering from divine discipline [deserved] - Hebrews 12:6. This is the only way God can express His love to the carnal or reversionistic believer. For carnality - Psalm 38; for reversionism - Ecclesiastes. Psalm 38 was written by David after operation Bathsheba. He was a supergrace believer and he stayed a supergrace believer. What he did with Bathsheba was carnality, not reversionism. So he suffered a lot of discipline. In Psalm 38 he got around to rebounding which is how he broke out of carnality. This is a perfect illustration of divine discipline to a supergrace believer for his carnality. Suffering for reversionism is under a different system. There is warning discipline, sharp pains to let you know that something is not right. "Behold, I stand at the door and knock." If that doesn't work there is intense discipline. Then if that doesn't work there is dying discipline - a horrible death. The entire book of Ecclesiastes is a perfect illustration of this type of discipline.

2. Suffering by association. Indirect suffering from the justice of God. One has to be carnal, one has to be reversionistic, or both has to be reversionistic, or both have to be carnal. You cannot disassociate from husband or wife (or children). The key is to disassociate with a problem crowd to reduce your suffering. This is a principle found in 1Corinthians 12:26; Romans 14:7, illustrated by 1Samuel 21.
3. Suffering caused by having the wrong (erroneous) priorities - again two illustrations: Ecclesiastes and Song of Solomon. If doctrine is not your #1 priority, then you are going to suffer.
4. Suffering from guilt complex. This is isolated from other mental attitude sins which also cause suffering because a guilt complex is compounded suffering that you bring on yourself by reacting to your own failures - major source of suffering for the Christian. A guilt complex is the dumbest thing in the world. No need for it, if you have 3 or 4 doctrines in your soul. Some churches let you confess your sins publically, so you stand up and unburden yourself. That is insane to let people stand up and confess their sins. 1Timothy 1:5,6,19,20; 3:9; 4:1,2; Titus 1:15.
5. Suffering through national disaster, which is always discipline to the nation. We suffer to a greater or less degree. Five cycles - Leviticus 26. Illustrations - Isaiah 33, 59; book of Hosea. You may be advancing, but if your nation is under discipline, then you will be a hurt as a part of it (you will be delivered, but there will be suffering in the crisis for you). People used to be required to take a course on the Constitution. People know Marist doctrine; but they do not know that they have the greatest form of government from the beginning.
6. Suffering from rejecting the principle of right man, right woman. This is the type of suffering that can continue for the rest of one's life because he has married the wrong person. It can be suffering for blessing or suffering for cursing: doctrine or carnality and reversionism. Ezekiel 16,23; Jeremiah 12:7; 15:7-12, 17,18. We can reject the doctrine and marry the wrong person; or we can marry the right person, but we lack the capacity. Some of you single types can hardly wait to get married; and you can hardly disguise the fact. Some of you need to scamper out of your hole, get some doctrine; and then go scamper back into their little hole. Let me give you an historical example. A lady sees two hippie types working on the parking lot, digging. She runs out and tells them to cut their hair because the Colonel does not like long hair. Miss Impudence who has the gall to go out and express her weirdoism. Another church claims to be associated with Berachah and Bob would never claim them. The password is no longer Berachah; the counter sign is drop dead.
7. Suffering from failure to isolate sin [chain sinning] or we suffer by reacting to a sin committed by someone else. You cannot afford to react to someone else's pomposity or jealousy or gossiping; life is too short. Hebrews 12:15.
8. Suffering from temporary loss of grace norms [when you get into legalism] - Jeremiah 2:24,25.

9. Suffering from historical disaster, war and revolution are two illustrations.

10. Suffering from reversionism - Psalm 77.

E. There are ten categories of suffering for blessing [undeserved suffering].

1. We often suffer to glorify God in the angelic conflict. There are other types of suffering for blessing that are related to it. Job; Luke 15:20,21; 1Peter 1:12; 3:17. This is a noble and honorable type of pressure.

2. Suffering to learn obedience and self-discipline - Hebrews 5:8. Our Lord Jesus Christ put Himself under discipline - Philippians 2:8. All of you should get a good kick in the teeth when you do not deserve it. Even if this comes from legitimate authority. Authority can be abusive, but this is the only system which allows us to live with freedom. When parents exercise authority, they teach their children orientation to life. School was a place where authority used to be taught. Sometimes the older kids teach some authority to the younger ones. What is wrong with football today is the lack of authority orientation.

3. Suffering to demonstrate the sufficiency of grace - 2Corinthians 12:1-10.

4. Suffering to eliminate the occupational hazard of pride and arrogance, and to relate it to the sufficiency of grace. You can never become an arrogant person without suffering horribly. If the purpose of the suffering is to eliminate arrogance it is suffering for blessing - 2Corinthians 11:24-33; 12:1-10.

5. Suffering to develop faith-rest technique - enough faith to function in the faith-rest technique. You must have pressure for any kind of development. The trigger mechanism by which you apply doctrine in your soul to experience is faith, faith-rest; and it has to be developed, it has to be strong - 1Peter 1:7,8.

6. Suffering to accelerate the construction of the edification complex of the soul and to enter into the supergrace status - James 1:1-6.

7. Suffering as a means of witnessing for Christ - 2Corinthians 3 & 4. Undeserved suffering + us being ambassadors for Christ.

8. Sometimes suffering is very specialized. You suffer a special type of suffering ahead of someone else, using doctrine all the way, in order to be able to help some weaker believer when they go through the same thing. This is a specialized type of suffering in which God uses some stronger believers to encourage weaker believers - 2Corinthians 1:3-5.

9. Suffering to learn the value of Bible doctrine. This is for the silly person who won't come to doctrine until he has tried everything else and then says nothing else works so he might as well try doctrine. Psalm 119:67,68,71. Some people in the congregation have tried the outside world and have tried going to other churches.

10. Suffering for the advance and impact of doctrine - 2Timothy 1:12-14.

F. The concept of family suffering.

1. Scripture for family suffering: Exodus 20:4-6; Deuteronomy 5:8-10.

2. The four-generation curse is specifically enumerated in two other passages - Exodus 34:3-7; Numbers 14:8 - where a curse in one generation goes down to the next, and the next, and the next. If you repeat the sins of your parents, this continues.
 3. There is an entire chapter on the mechanics of this curse - Proverbs 30:11-17.
 4. The law of culpability - Proverbs 24:16. You are never included in the discipline of the next generation unless you become culpable under the same principle.
 5. The problem of children. This includes two basic principles:
 - a. Fairness toward children - Deuteronomy 21:15-17;
 - b. If bona fide discipline in the home fails, and occasionally it does, then the Bible says that when those children step out of line as teenagers they should be executed - Deuteronomy 21:18-22. This is how we avoid historical disaster with a bad generation. This could use some updated application. Such teens can become a liability to society.
 6. Doctrine breaks the four-generation curse. This is a combination of four verses: Psalm 100:5; Deuteronomy 7:9; 6:6-13; 11:18-21, in that order. After the four generations, the slate is wiped clean. But temptation and weakness does not mean culpability. Deuteronomy 24:16 tells us that it can skip over a generation. Bob has done a series on family suffering in the past.
 7. The children's gimmick - Jeremiah 31:15; Number 14:31. This is where the parents suffer because they use their children as an excuse. They used their children as an excuse not to enter the land even though God promised them to enter the land. People today use their children as an excuse not to come to Bible class. That means family suffering. Whenever you use your children as an excuse not to do something that is commanded by the Word you are going to produce suffering in your life. Children also use their parents as an excuse as well.
 8. The triumph of children with doctrine. It is possible that every category of suffering enumerated in the first six points can be eliminated by children moving to supergrace before they become adults. This was the case in Lamentations 3:21-31. This I call to mind for I have hope; your compassions are new ever morning. Great is the integrity of God.
- G. The concept of economic suffering. When there is freedom in the economy ad runs its normal course of supply and demand of free enterprise you are going to have periodic depression. The doctrine is that depression is an enema that eliminates the unfit people in a nation. A nation is weakened by not destroying what is weak from time to time. A house gets dirty if you don't clean it; a nation gets weak if certain types of natural disaster, like economic depression, do not come along and eliminate the weak. It has nothing to do with race or any other factor, it has to do with the law that if you do not have a periodic depression then your nation will eventually be so weak that it will destroy itself. Welfare is a weakener of a nation.
1. Inflation is a part of the fourth cycle of discipline - Leviticus 26:26.

2. Since depression should be a periodic thing the importance of solvency in a depression is the subject of Genesis 41. All believers with doctrine should be hooked up with solvency. We should have more assets than debt.
 3. Depression also strengthens spiritually for it acts as a test for the faith-rest technique especially for advancing believers- Genesis 12:10; 1Peter 1:7,8.
 4. Doctrine resident in the soul is the answer to depression rather than money in the pocket - 2Chronicles 20:9.
 5. Divine viewpoint is necessary to survive economic disaster - Psalm 33:17-20. Welfare and the welfare state contributes to national arrogance. No guarantee income is going to stave off economic disaster. Our educational system in TX is at an all-time low. People cannot pass the simplest of tests. Society requires competition. We are asking for one of the greatest economic disasters in history. It has nothing to do with race or your background. It is honorable to work, no matter what kind of work it is. Charity is not evil; welfare is. The only thing that will stave off a depression is war. But a depression means that many will have to work hard for low wages and they will suffer under that. Divine viewpoint is necessary to survive.
 6. Depression is a part of divine discipline both to the nation and the individual reversionist under the influence of evil - Psalm 105:16; Jeremiah 11:22.
 7. False teaching in time of depression intensifies that depression. Government try to use their authority and power to stave off these things; an economic depression is designed to remove the weak. Just like those animals who trek over a long distance. The weak members of the group will be eaten on the way. Herd animals depend upon the speed and strength and wiles. A nation is destroyed by its weak (this does not eliminate the concept of charity; what is not commanded is the welfare state where people who can work do not, but sit at home and collect a check. Sometimes people have to die in order for a nation to move ahead. This is a divine law. - Jeremiah 14:13-16,18.
 8. God protects the supergrace believer in depression. - Job 5:20; Romans 8:35.
 9. Bible doctrine resident in the soul is the solution to depression. Consequently, advance to supergrace restores the economy. A growing pivot is the solution - Isaiah 37:30,31.
- H. God can only demonstrate His love to the believers through suffering in time - 1Peter 4:14,16. Whatever suffering is going to come to you it will only occur in phase two, time. Phase three, eternity, is minus suffering. 1Peter 4:14–16 Love demonstrates through suffering. Divine provision for suffering is greater than anything in life.
1. There is no suffering for believers in eternity - Revelation 21:4.
 2. Furthermore, there is no suffering too great for the plan of God. The plan of God can meet any suffering in life.
 3. Divine provision for suffering is greater than any pressure of life.

4. Supergrace is the status in which to experience this principle. You are fully prepared for suffering in supergrace; you are not prepared for suffering until supergrace.
5. The supergrace believer is qualified through doctrine resident in the soul to weather any storm of life.
 - I. The unique sufferings of the Lord Jesus Christ on the cross - Isaiah 53. Since Jesus Christ reached supergrace at a very early age obviously all of the suffering that he had was suffering for blessing. He was perfect, born minus the old sin nature, minus the imputation of Adam's sin. He lived a life of perfection - doctrine of impeccability. All of the suffering that came to Him was undeserved, for blessing. But the intensification of suffering when He reached the cross was absolutely unique. Christ is unique; His sufferings are unique.
 - J. A special category of suffering for the pastor teacher (which was for the prophet in the past).
 1. To perpetuate occupation with Christ. Without that, many occupational hazards. 2Tim. 2:8
 2. Suffering necessary for the pastor to teach it. 2Tim. 2:9
 3. To recognize grace objectives. 2Tim. 2:10
 - K. Suffering for the ultra super grace believer. A mantle for undeserved suffering. It is called fellowship with His sufferings. Philippians 3:10
 - L. Suffering as related to being a mature believer. Romans 8:19–30
 - M. The suffering of nature.

1977 Romans

Lesson #133

133 06/21/1977 Romans 5:3b–4 Doctrine of suffering (pts. 6–10); courage under adversity

The points found here on suffering will be placed with the doctrine above.

There is public money being given to save the toads in Sharpstown. It is so ludicrous that you cannot believe it.

We are really in trouble because we are divorced from reality. Liberalism and fine southern ladies like Anita Bryant are besmirched by homosexuals. We are going to have a tremendous crisis which is coming very soon.

False teaching causes the disaster; and the disaster intensifies the false teaching.

Romans 5:3 And not only so, but also we glory in our tribulations, knowing that tribulation produces perseverance;...

“knowing that tribulation worketh patience” – the nominative masculine plural of the present active participle from the verb form oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da], a perfect tense used as a present tense. It means to know something about someone, to know something about something, to come to know, to understand. The present tense is a perfective present denoting the continuation of existing results of maximum doctrine resident in the soul of the one who has made mature adjustment to the justice of God. The active voice: the mature believer produces the action of the verb through the doctrine resident in his soul. The participle is circumstantial. The nominative plural of the participle refers to those believers who have attained maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The conjunction which follows, hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], is used after verbs of cognizance. It gives the content of that perception.

Plus the nominative singular definite article which is used as a demonstrative pronoun to indicate a specific affliction, trial, pressure, adversity, or some sort of distressing circumstance. The nominative singular subject thlipsis (θλίψις) [pronounced THLIP-siss] means pressure, affliction, persecution, mental distress, etc.—“that pressure.”

Plus the present middle indicative from κατεργάζομαι (katergázomai) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ahée] which means to achieve, to produce, to create, bring about, prepare someone for something. The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs to a mature believer. The middle voice: this is a deponent verb and therefore is active in meaning, and pressure, persecution, oppression, trial, afflictions, distressing circumstances produce the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for an unqualified statement of fact. “Patience” here in the KJV is not patience. This is the accusative singular direct object of the noun hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY]. The word can mean patience but that is a rare meaning. It means endurance, fortitude, steadfastness (honorable courage). Here we have an active connotation of a noun, and while “patience” in the English language connotes a passive attitude in the Greek it has an active attitude. It means courageous endurance, that which defies evil, honorable courage. It means here courage under pressure. It also is used for heroism in the face of bodily chastisement or physical torture. Hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY] is the basic attitude of the mature believer. He has courage and integrity under pressure. Hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY], by the way, has two directions. One is toward God. It means courage, honor and integrity from resident doctrine to depends upon divine solutions while using divine viewpoint in life. It is also directed toward man and toward the world where, again, it connotes honor, courage, integrity under pressure, persecution, oppression, adversity.

Dimothesenes was jeered for his first speech. He went to a beach house. He ran for miles on the beach to build up lung power. He would speak to the waves of the beach with pebbles in his mouth. He went back to the assembly and he was a masterful speaker.

Romans 5:4 And not only this, but also let us boast in adversities; knowing that that pressure [persecution, oppression, trial, affliction, distressing circumstances] brings about one for courage, honor, integrity in the pressures of life.

Maximum doctrine resident in the soul + adversity = courage, honor, integrity under pressure.

Principle

1. It takes pressure, suffering, adversity, testing, distressing circumstances, to utilize the integrity of God in developing that courage, honor and integrity. All of the little sufferings prepare the believer for the big one.
2. The justice of God must provide for every believer who is growing, undeserved suffering, both as a part of our advance to maturity and then as maturity as a total appreciation of the integrity of God.
3. The objective is hope—as seen in the next verse.
4. Under great adversity Bible doctrine resident in the soul of the mature believer not only produces the courage, the honor, the integrity under pressure, but while it is doing so it intensifies hope which is occupation with the person of Christ. Cf. 1Peter 1:6,7.

Romans 5:4 ...and perseverance, character; and character, hope.

Verse 4 – “And patience, experience.” The connective conjunctive particle de plus the nominative singular subject hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY], plus the implication of the repetition of the verb from the previous verse. It isn’t here but the elliptical form demands its use—the insertion of the present middle indicative of κατεργάζομαι (katergázomai) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ahee] meaning to bring about. The present tense is a customary present, denoting what habitually occurs when the mature believer faces pressure, adversity, trial, suffering. Again, the deponent verb connotation: courage, honor, integrity under pressure. Hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY] produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for unqualified statement of fact. Plus the accusative singular direct object from the Greek substantive hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY]. It means the quality of being improved, hence the character of integrity. Translated “proven character” or “demonstrated integrity.”

“and experience, hope” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de connecting the two clauses in a sequence of cause and effect. Plus the nominative singular subject hupomonê (ὑπομονή) [pronounced hoop-ohm-ohn-AY]. This would ordinarily be an adjective but the Greeks used adjectives for substantives. It means proven character or demonstrated integrity. Plus the accusative singular direct object from the noun elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS], meaning hope^[4] in the sense of blessing from divine integrity. Remember that elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS] also means prospect, expectation, therefore the connotation of direct blessing from the justice of God as a result of maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

The Doctrine of hope does not match what I have in either notebook. The Doctrine of Hope below came from the second notebook; but there is very little overlap. Bob covers this in Lessons #363–#368; and those lessons match up more closely with this doctrine. Bob revises this doctrine again in the 400s as well. Therefore, I removed the Doctrine of Hope from here. The doctrine here is placed with Lesson #363. It matches up better with Bob’s teaching at that point.

Romans 5:5 And hope does not make us ashamed, because the love of God has been poured out into our hearts through the Holy Spirit, the One having been given to us.

Verse 5 – “And hope maketh not ashamed” is a mistranslation. It begins with the connective use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de, plus the nominative singular subject with the definite article, elpís (ἐλπίς) [pronounced el-PIS]. The definite article is used to indicate a previous reference in the context and is referring to the same hope, the hope that has to do with the integrity of God and resultant blessings from the justice of God.

Plus the present active indicative of verb kataischunō (καταισχύνω) [pronounced kat-ahēe-SKHOO-noh] plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. It means to put to shame, to dishonor, to disgrace, to disappoint; and with the negative it means “never disappoints.” The present tense is a static present representing a condition which perpetually exists and is taken for granted as a fact. With the strong negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] it means that there is no way that the integrity of God can ever disappoint. The active voice: hope or the integrity of God produces the action: never disappointing. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. “And the hope [integrity of God] never disappoints.”

Lesson #135

135 06/23/1977 Romans 5:5b Doctrine of hope (pts. 6–9); disappointments in men, not in God

Bob realizes that he only gave us part of the doctrine of hope. So we will go back to it.

Romans 5:5 And hope in the integrity of God never disappoints...

Righteousness and Justice and Disappointment

1. So great is the integrity of God, so perfect, so stabilized in its immutability, so powerful from its omnipotence, that it is impossible to be disappointed in any relationship you have with the integrity of God.
2. Therefore when disappointment comes it is when the believer fails, or his friends fail, or his loved ones fail; but God cannot fail.
3. Under grace man cannot do anything or perform anything by which he could be disappointed in himself. Under grace man does not depend on man, so he is not disappointed when man fails and turns against him.

4. Under grace the believer depends upon the integrity of God which is the source of all blessing and no disappointment.
5. The righteousness of God is satisfied with the righteousness of God imputed to the believer at the moment of salvation.
6. The righteousness of God demands blessing for the believer; the justice of God provides what righteousness demands.
7. In carnality and reversionism the righteousness of God demands punishment which the justice of God administers.
8. When the believer is in fellowship under the ministry of the Spirit and positive toward doctrine, as demonstrated by the daily function of GAP, then the righteousness of God demands blessing from the justice of God. The justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands.
9. Righteousness is the principle of divine integrity while justice is the function of divine integrity.
10. Therefore either the believer adjusts to the justice of God or the justice of God will adjust to him.
11. This is the difference between blessing and cursing from the justice of God.
12. Adjusting to the justice of God after salvation demands not only rebound but also the daily function of GAP.
13. The justice of God adjusts to the believer in discipline and punishment when the believer fails to utilize the rebound technique and when he rejects or resists the teaching of the Word.
14. Therefore the believer in carnality or reversionism is disappointed in himself, his friends and loved ones, is disappointed in life and frustrated by life.
15. But the believer who is positive toward doctrine and advancing toward maturity, or the believer who has attained maturity adjustment to the justice of God, is never disappointed in his relationship with the integrity of God, and is never vulnerable to disappointment when friends and loved ones fail.

David as an army commander was completely free of pettiness. Our armed forces are the exact opposite today. Pettiness is the order of the day; and the system of grading and evaluating is stupid. Many men of great ability and genius are not being moved ahead or being evaluated improperly. One bad OER will sink a person from moving ahead. This guarantees that only the stupid and the imbecilic can ever reach the top. The Eisenhower crowd. Only on occasion did the Pattons or the MacArthurs break through. Thousands of men died as a result of this. Example of this in Walk in the Sun. Mediocrity ruled. When FDR came into power, our military began to go down.

After the Germans were losing the war against the Russians, outnumbered 1000 to 1; but they developed a system of defense that has not been seen before.

Romans 5:5 And hope does not make us ashamed, because the love of God has been poured out into our hearts through the Holy Spirit, the One having been given to us.

The justice of God never provides blessing without first of all providing the capacity for that blessing. With capacity from doctrine resident in the soul the blessing can never disappoint. No blessing in life can be a disappointment because the capacity comes first. Therefore occupation with the source removes the disappointment. Both capacity for blessing and occupation with Christ have the same source: maximum doctrine resident in the soul.

“because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts” – the love of God is disseminated everywhere in our right lobes, if we have the doctrine. It is the doctrine that makes this possible. “Because” is a causal conjunction, hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee]. Then the nominative singular subject of the agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay] which here is category #1 love directed toward God— the objective genitive from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. It is a mental love strictly, it has no emotion connected with it. “Because the love for the God”—occupation with Christ as a result of maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Plus the perfect passive indicative of ekchéō (ἐκξέω) [pronounced ek-KHEH-oh]—“has been poured out,” means saturation of doctrine, the daily function of GAP. The perfect tense is a dramatic perfect, it is the rhetorical use of the intensive perfect, the action has been completed, the results are found in the daily function of GAP. The passive voice: love for God receives the action of the verb. The subject is love for God and it receives the action of having been poured out. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the believer’s love for God being poured out.

Bob tells us where he gets this or that while he is teaching.

Notice where it is being poured out: en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of kardia—the right lobe is the place where epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] doctrine is stored. It is the place of spiritual growth, the place where we become aware of the integrity of God and have an awe and respect for it, and where it turns to hope, the first stage of occupation with Christ or awareness of the integrity of God through resident doctrine. Love is a gradual process directed toward God.

Romans 5:5a-b And the hope [relationship with the integrity of God] never disappoints because the love for the God has been poured out in our right lobes.

Two problems—what is the meaning of love and what is the sequence of love? How does the Holy Spirit produce this?

Before we finish up with v. 5, we need to think about love. The love for the God. Where is the love in Berachah Church? Where is the sweetness and light?

The doctrine below contains the doctrine of Love, but it is extremely massive.

Doctrine of Love

(This doctrine is an amalgamation of the following: Doctrine of Love, Doctrine of Love as related to Momentum Testing, Doctrine of The Impact of Impersonal Love, and the Doctrine of Virtue-Love as a Problem solving Device.)

A. Definition.

1. Love is maximum concentration. It is the quintessence of separation. Love is the most separatist system in the universe. So love has nothing to do with sweetness and light.
2. Man is capable of love. Man's concepts and capacities for love are as variable as the number of people on earth. Human love is not an absolute. It varies from zero integrity to maximum integrity.
3. Love has three objects: God, other people, and things.
4. Love becomes soulish predilection. It is the expression of awe, admiration, devotion, craving, delight, affection, or passion.
5. Love is the embodiment of soul function and concentration toward someone, so as to exclude them from the masses. That exclusion is called intimacy. Intimacy expresses the concentration of love.

6. This means capacity to love is related to capacity to concentrate. It's related to the character of the individual, their amount of integrity, and their environment. No one is consistent in their capacity for love. Love is a thought and the expression of that thought. Climate can affect concentration, which affects thought, and therefore affects capacity for love. Working up your emotions is not helpful when it comes to love for God. Ability to love God is based upon the doctrine in your soul. Love is a mental attitude.
7. We do not love God when we are born again no more than we love our parents at birth. Until you have doctrine, you do not have capacity.
8. Love is related to our norms and standards, and our concepts of reality. Love is an expression of our scale of values. A scale of values is a system of concentration. The thing on which you concentrate most is the thing you enjoy the most, and is first on your scale of values.
9. God is not common; He is a separatist. Doctrine isolates God with His perfect integrity. So a good lover is an isolationist.
10. When your scale of values changes from the teaching of doctrine, then your capacity for love develops. Your capacity for love makes you enjoyable to be around because of your personal love for God.
11. All love is meaningless and disappointing unless we have personal love for God first. This love for God makes other loves real. Stimulation of emotion is not loving God. Maximum doctrine in the soul is love for God. Rom 5:5 says the love for God is poured out in us through doctrine in the soul.
12. Love in itself and the capacity for that love is doctrine in the soul, so that perpetuation of love is the perpetuation of your relationship with God.
13. Only doctrine in the soul gives any stability to love. Do you really love anyone, or have capacity for love? Love is a thought, not an emotion.
14. New believers are incapable of love. There must be capacity before there is function. Until you have doctrine in your soul, you don't have concentration, and therefore you cannot love. Doctrine gives integrity, concentration, the royal family honor code, spirituality, and stability, which all in effect add up to genuine love.
15. Personal love for God means you now have the ability to love your right man or right woman or friends. Your thoughts isolate on God, your right man or right woman, or your friend. Love is a separatist system. Love is snooty.
16. Love is devotion after thought, maximum esteem, and loyalty to the object of love. Attraction is merely a preliminary to love.
17. Passion is a combination of the function of certain glands plus the function of the emotional pattern of the soul. Passion accompanies true and pseudo-love, and therefore proves nothing.
18. Once you love God, then you learn to isolate category #2 and category #3 loves. You develop a scale of values. At that point, it is wonderful for you to have friends (good for them and you). You have the ability, the capacity to make love meaningful.

19. It takes awhile for a person to find an idea of what life is all about. You normally don't develop a reasonable scale of values until you turn 30. Now, don't get upset--I am sure you are all exceptions to this.
20. Bob gives some general short descriptions of love novels in various cultures. Bob says you cannot pour in until what is in there has been poured out. Apparently he demonstrates that.
21. The thinking part of your mind must control the emotional part.
22. Introductory Principles.
 - a. Personal love for God is virtuous; personal love for human beings is virtue dependent.
 - b. When God is the object of the believer's personal love, it is classified as virtue-love (ἀΓΑΠῆ).
 - c. When human beings are the object of the believer's personal love, it is classified as virtue dependent love.
 - d. Personal love as a virtue can only exist where the spiritual skills (filling of the Holy Spirit, cognition of doctrine, execution of the protocol plan of God) are functioning. e. Impersonal love for all mankind is the basis for problem solving in human relationships. Not only is virtue-love a problem solving device for the Christian life but at the same time it provides capacity for love, life, happiness, thanksgiving.
 - e. Scripture.
 - (1) 1 Jn 2:5, "Whoever guards the Word, truly in him, the love for God has been perfected." You guard the Word by always keeping it as your number one priority
 - (2) Jude 21, "Keep yourselves in the love for God." You do this by keeping Bible doctrine as your number one priority.
 - (3) In Matt 22:36, our Lord was asked what was the great commandment in the Law. He answered in Matt 22:37, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all of your thinking." Love for God starts in the right lobe of the soul with doctrine, but it moves throughout your entire soul.
 - (4) Jam 1:12, "Blessed is the person who perseveres under testing, because when he becomes approved, he will receive the crown of life which the Lord has promised to those who love Him."
 - (5) Jam 2:5, "Listen, my beloved brethren, did God not choose the poor in the world's estimation but rich in doctrine and heirs of the kingdom which He promised to those who love Him?"
 - (6) Eph 6:23, "Harmony among the brethren and virtue-love with doctrine from God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ."
 - f. Personal love for God the Father emphasizes the virtue of the object. Emphasis on the virtue and integrity of God as the perfect and virtuous object eliminates arrogance in the subject and brings about the genuine humility that goes with doctrine circulating in the soul. When the believer loves God the Father, his motivation is compatible with the virtue of the object, not the merit of the subject.

- g. This means that all personal love that has virtue begins with God as the object. There is no virtue in personal love as it relates to human beings; this applies to friendships, to romance, and to marriage. Personal love is related to the human race in a virtue dependent system for its validity and for its reality.
 - h. There are two ways of inserting virtue and integrity into personal love for mankind: adherence to the laws of divine establishment, and for the believer, Bible doctrine in the soul and the execution of the protocol plan of God.
- B. God loves the believer. At the point of salvation, every believer passes the point of propitiation, placing himself under maximum divine love, 1 Jn 2:2. Because of the imputation of God's own perfect righteousness, God can love every believer with maximum love in spite of the believer's spiritual status, 1 Jn 2:9-10.
- C. Categories of Love.
- 1. The love of the Father for the Son, Jn 15:9.
 - 2. The (impersonal) love of God for the human race, Jn 3:16.
 - 3. The (personal) love of God for believers, 1 Jn 4:19.
 - 4. The (personal) love of believers for God, Rom 8:28. This includes personal love for God the Father, occupation with Christ, and fellowship with the Holy Spirit, 2 Cor 13:14, "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ and the love for God [the Father], and the fellowship with the Holy Spirit be with all of you."
 - 5. The (impersonal) love of believers toward other believers, Jn 15:12ff.
- D. The Problem with Human Personal Love.
- 1. There are two categories of personal love: romance and friendship. Romance is an intimate personal love for the opposite sex. Friendship is personal admiration in either sex.
 - 2. Personal love is based on attraction to the object, or admiration directed toward someone else from your own standards or chemistry. "I love you" means the emphasis is on the object who is attractive or admirable to you. With no emphasis on the subject in personal love, there is built-in trouble. Any idiot can fall in love.
 - 3. So personal love is a problem manufacturing device which can only be solved by impersonal love, a problem solving device. But impersonal love doesn't even occur in your life until you reach spiritual self-esteem, the first stage of spiritual adulthood. And even then it's wobbly and weak. Not until you reach spiritual autonomy is impersonal love stable. Not until spiritual autonomy do you have maximum use of impersonal love. In momentum testing you use impersonal love as a problem solving device.
 - 4. By falling in love or making a friend, you have created a problem. The object of your love is not perfect. Sooner or later, that object will be a source of people testing, whether irritation or antagonism. One of the biggest problems in life is to fall in love or make a friend. People testing comes from falling in love.

5. Without understanding this pertinent doctrine, you will idealize the object of your love, creating a monster. Since no one is perfect, personal love doesn't have a chance if there's any idealization of the object.
6. No one is perfect. People we love disappoint us, frustrate us, turn against us because we're not perfect; or they hurt us in some way, causing suffering.
7. Sometimes it's our fault because we are arrogant, jealous, bitter, selfish, possessive, sulking in self-pity, or competing inordinately; or it can be the fault of the object for the same reasons. So personal love really doesn't seem to have a chance because none of us are perfect.
8. The problem is that neither the subject nor the object is perfect. Therefore, we conclude that when God commands us to love all believers And mankind in general, He cannot and does not mean personal love. It is impossible for a person with an old sin nature to love successfully with personal love unless the object is perfect. The only case where the object is perfect is the believer's personal love for God from metabolized doctrine.
9. The only personal love that has virtue is the believer's personal love for God, because God is perfect.

E. The Believer's Personal Love for God.

1. 1 Jn 4:19, "We love because He first loved us."
 - a. This verse establishes precedence-God loved us first.
 - b. God has three categories of love: personal love for the other members of the Trinity and for all believers because they each have the same righteousness, impersonal love for all mankind in the status of spiritual death, and divine self-esteem-God's love for His own perfect righteousness.
 - c. Personal love is only a virtue when directed toward God.
 - d. Personal love for God the Father is motivational virtue for the protocol plan for the Church.
 - e. The virtue of personal love is always found in the object of love. The only personal love that has virtue is personal love for God.
2. All three categories of personal love for God (2 Cor 13:14) are problem solving devices.
 - a. The filling of the Holy Spirit is problem solving device number two as well as the first spiritual skill. Personal love for God the Holy Spirit or fellowship with the Spirit is the means of loving both God the Father and God the Son. Rom 5:5, "And confidence does not disappoint us, because the love for God has been poured out in our hearts by means of the Holy Spirit who was given to us."
 - b. Personal love for God the Father is problem solving device number six as well as the motivational virtue for the protocol plan of God for the Church.

- c. Occupation with Christ is problem solving device number ten as well as the priority solution to the problems of life.
3. Personal love for God can only exist through the spiritual skills: the filling of the Holy Spirit, cognition of Bible doctrine, and execution of the protocol plan of God.
 - a. For Church Age believers, personal love for God occurs from the combination of the filling of the Spirit and the metabolization of doctrine which results in reaching gate #5 of the divine dynasphere.
 - b. Cognition of doctrine can only occur when the believer is filled with the Spirit under the following conditions.
 - (1) Being filled with the Spirit when hearing Bible doctrine taught by the spiritual gift of pastor-teacher.
 - (2) Being filled with the Spirit when hearing Bible doctrine in conversation or when reading Bible doctrine in a book.
 - (3) Being filled with the Spirit when Bible doctrine is metabolized or converted from gnosis into ἐπίγνωσις.
 - (4) Being filled with the Spirit when Bible doctrine is being circulated in the seven compartments of the stream of consciousness.
 - c. Personal love for God comes from the metabolization of doctrine, Phil 3:7-8; Phile 9; Col 3:1-2; 2 Tim 1:13; 2Peter 3:18. If you do not love the Word of God, you do not love God.
 - d. Maximum love comes from the edification complex of the soul, which is built from maximum metabolization of doctrine. The edification complex of the soul gives phenomenal response to God's love, Eph 3:17,19; Phil 1:20-21; 1 Jn 4:17-18.
 - e. Inasmuch as the object of category one love is God, and God is invisible, we must see God somehow. We can only see Him through His Word. Therefore, it is impossible to see or love God apart from knowledge of Bible doctrine, Psalm 119:165,167; 1Peter 1:8.
 4. Personal love for God the Father is most effective in spiritual adulthood, because spiritual adulthood implies that we have a maximum amount of Bible doctrine in the stream of consciousness.
 - a. Spiritual adulthood begins with cognitive self-confidence, that is, spiritual self-esteem.
 - b. Spiritual adulthood continues with cognitive independence, which is the status of spiritual autonomy.
 - c. Spiritual adulthood reaches its peak with cognitive invincibility, which is the status of spiritual maturity.
 5. Rom 8:28 does not apply to every believer, but only to those in spiritual adulthood. "We know, therefore, that to those who love God, He works all things together for good, even toward those who are elected according to a predetermined plan."

- a. Emotion and stimulation is never love. You must have capacity for love. Personal love for God is the basis for happiness and enjoying life, as well as for capacity for life, Deut 30:16, 20.
 - b. When a believer finally has enough doctrine, and therefore capacity in the soul to love God the Father, then God the Father begins to work everything in his life toward a goal-absolute good.
 - c. Love was designed to go with capacity and integrity in the soul. Love is based upon your integrity, virtue, and capacity.
 - (1) Personal love is very selective. The object is something or someone to which you are attracted.
 - (2) Personal love in the human race has attraction but no built-in virtue. Personal love depends on impersonal love. If you have impersonal love for all mankind, then you have the capacity for personal love for a selected few. The secret to personal love is impersonal love.
 - (3) Bible doctrine in your soul is how you develop impersonal love for others.
 - d. The predetermined plan is the protocol plan of God.
6. 1 Cor 2:9, "But just as it stands written [Isa 64:4], `Things which the eye has not seen and it has not entered into the heart of mankind all that God has prepared for those who love Him."
 7. Deut 6:4-6, 12, "Hear, O Israel, the Lord is our God, the Lord is unique. And you shall love the Lord your God with all of your heart [right lobe of the soul-the stream of consciousness], with all your soul [self- consciousness, mentality, emotions, left lobe of the soul], with all your strength [soul strength-your capacity, tranquility, contentment, happiness]. And these doctrines, which I am commanding you today, shall be in your heart [metabolized doctrine]. ...Then watch yourself, lest you forget the Lord who brought out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery."
 - a. Personal love for God is a response to the love of God. Therefore, it is related to God, Heb 12:2. In the Church Age, it is called occupation with Christ.
 - b. Personal love for God was commanded to all Old Testament believers, Deut 6:5, 10:12, 11:1,13.
 8. Neglect or negative volition toward Bible doctrine results in blackout of the soul plus scar tissue of the soul, which means no personal love for God. Eph 4:18, "They [believers in Christian degeneracy] have been darkened in their thinking, and they have been alienated from the life of God because of ignorance that is in them and because of scar tissue of the heart."
 - a. When you fail in the spiritual life, you have no capacity for love, no capacity for tranquility, no capacity for life.
 - b. The believer who doesn't love Jesus Christ is under a special curse (ANATHEMA MARANATHA) as stated in 1 Cor 16:22, "cursed till our Lord comes."

c. Christian degeneracy is the antithesis of love for God. Jn 5:42, "You do not have the love for God in yourselves." This statement is true of all believers who fail to give Bible doctrine number one priority in their lives.

d. 2 Thes 3:5, "May the Lord direct your hearts into the love for God." Love for God is always connected with the right lobe of the soul.

9. Like the right man in category two love, Jesus Christ is the aggressor in category one love. He initiated this love in eternity past under the principle of grace, Eph 5:25-27; 1 Jn 4:8-10.

10. Category one love is the true motivator for Christian service.

11. Divine love is initiated through grace. Therefore the capacity of the believer for personal love for God is intensified by orientation to grace. You naturally take in the Word because of your occupation with Christ. Nothing is forced. Dan 9:4; Psalm 31:23, 119:132; 1 Cor 2:9.

12. Personal love for God also provides courage in battle, Josh 23:10-11.

F. The mandate to love all means impersonal love, not personal love.

1. When you attend church and the pastor or the song leader tells you to turn around and tell the person behind you that you love them, is he fulfilling God's mandate to love everyone? Of course not! The man's an idiot and is encouraging the practice of idiocy.

2. To tell someone you don't know or can't stand that you love them is hypocrisy at best. This is sin, human good, or evil.

3. So it becomes apparent that personal love is a problem maker, not a problem solver; and not the kind of love which God commands as a part of the modus operandi of the Christian life.

4. There must be some kind of love that fulfills the divine mandate, and there is. There are two Greek words for love in the New Testament: PHILEO and AGAPAO. God uses AGAPAO for His mandate to love everyone, which means the impersonal love you attain in spiritual adulthood. PHILEO is used for personal love.

5. AGAPAO is a specialized soul love which requires the filling of the Holy Spirit. PHILEO, being a complete and total soul love and rapport, must develop over a period of time.

6. God does not command us to do something that is impossible: to have personal love for everyone. But the mandate requires something that is virtuous, magnificent and unusual. Only impersonal love has virtue and problem solving characteristics. It is the professional love of the Christian, resulting from living in your palace, being filled with the Holy Spirit, learning, metabolizing, and applying doctrine; the love which comes from spiritual adulthood. It is impossible to fulfill this command in spiritual childhood, because we don't yet have the doctrine and ability to comprehend the kind of love that requires us to love all mankind without becoming idiots.

7. This love is called impersonal because it means the subject has the ability to accept all people as they are. It is a professional love from the filling of the Holy Spirit. In personal love the emphasis is on the object. In impersonal love the emphasis is on the subject. When love emphasizes the object, it is personal. When it emphasizes the subject, it is impersonal. The greater the virtue of the subject, the greater the scope or range of the objects. You are commanded to love all the brethren, your neighbors (those in your periphery), and everyone.

8. You never have impersonal love until you first love God personally at gate #5, the only personal love with virtue. This therefore becomes your motivational virtue, for you must be motivated to love everyone. You have no natural motive in your sinful self to love everyone. Actually, the smarter you are, the more selective you are and the fewer people you will love personally.
9. Once you personally love God you reach spiritual self-esteem. Without love for God, any positive attitude toward self is merely self-righteous or self-confident arrogance. Until spiritual self-esteem acquires muscle from providential preventative suffering, spiritual self-esteem is still vulnerable to arrogance. But once you reach spiritual autonomy, you acquire the virtue-love of gate #6, impersonal love toward all.
10. Long before you reach this point of spiritual autonomy, you must metabolize the doctrine of positional sanctification, and make the correct application that your background, race, color of skin, I.Q., culture, or personality is not an issue. The application is that you are simply a person for whom Christ died. You must make this same application to others. Sooner or later, you must shed your prejudices if you are to grow in grace. How others regard you is not an issue; you regard yourself as a person in God's plan. With this viewpoint you advance to spiritual self-esteem.
11. So impersonal love is the professional love of the royal family of God. Impersonal love is a functional virtue of spiritual self-esteem, spiritual autonomy and spiritual maturity. Each category of suffering for blessing will test and strengthen impersonal love. When you can handle being the victim of others' mental attitude sins with impersonal love, then you will know that you have spiritual autonomy.
12. The love we are commanded in the Bible is based entirely upon our spiritual integrity, upon the royal family honor code, upon the execution of the protocol plan of God, upon consistent perception and metabolization of Bible doctrine resulting in integrity. The object of impersonal love can be anyone: someone who is antagonistic, an enemy, someone that despises you, someone who is trying to destroy you. This is one of the greatest concepts of Christianity and is never understood. It is impossible to love everyone personally.

G. Definition of Impersonal Love as a Problem solving Device.

1. Introduction.
 - a. Impersonal love is that problem solving device of Christianity which is defined as unconditional love toward all mankind.
 - b. Being impersonal, this category of love emphasizes the virtue of the subject rather than attraction to an object or rapport with an object.

c. Impersonal love toward all mankind is the ultimate expression of virtue. It is also the ultimate expression of humility. Without enforced and genuine humility, people are disoriented to life. Lack of humility creates numerous and often tragic flaws in life.

d. Impersonal love for all mankind is therefore the ultimate expression of virtue, humility, objectivity, and is the basis for being receptive to Bible doctrine, which is the basis for growing in grace through postsalvation epistemological rehabilitation.

e. Personal love for people is optional. The Bible never commands personal love for people. But in the protocol plan of God for the Church Age, impersonal love is mandated by God as a part of His plan, His will, and His purpose for your life.

f. Impersonal love as a problem solving device is mandated in all dispensations under the one phrase, "Love thy neighbor as you love yourself," Lev 19:18; Mt 19:19, 22:39; Mk 12:31; Rom 13:9; Gal 5:14. Impersonal love is a must in your life if you are to have a life full of purpose, meaning, and definition.

g. Our Lord said in Jn 15:17, "I command you these things, that you might love each other." Jesus said this to the disciples, most of whom were believers, after they had been together for almost three years. They had developed personality conflicts, took sides, and were critical of each other. So this command from our Lord is brought into the Christian life.

h. You cannot have impersonal love for people until you are properly motivated, and you cannot be properly motivated until you love Jesus Christ. People who love Jesus Christ concentrate on the teaching of the Word of God, the mind of Christ.

i. Impersonal love is unconditional. It emphasizes the virtue of the subject rather than the attractiveness or repulsiveness of the object.

j. Impersonal love is a problem solving device in human relationships.

k. Impersonal love is the basis for having the capacity for love for a few people.

2. Definition of Impersonal Love.

a. Impersonal love emphasizes the virtue, honor, integrity of the subject. Impersonal love is a virtue which cannot be duplicated in any phase of personal love among human beings.

b. "Impersonal" is an adjective which means without personal reference or connection, not primarily affecting or involving the emotions of a person; a professional attitude, like the attitude of a doctor.

(1) So impersonal is a very important word which you should highly value. For without impersonal love, you will never have any good human relationships. You will change friends, partners in romance, and spouses in marriage simply because you have no basis for perpetuating any of those relationships apart from virtue.

- (2) In fact, morality will not hold together human relationships; morality is the cause for their breakup. Morality doesn't solve the problems of human relationship.
 - (3) Only virtue can solve the problems of human relationship. Virtue can only be produced by perception, metabolization, and application of Bible doctrine.
- c. The noun "impersonality" is the quality or state of not involving personal feelings or emotions in relationship to an object. Emotion is designed to appreciate the relationship but it is never designed to establish a relationship. Impersonality is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit in the person who has learned the doctrine and has come to cognitive self-confidence and/or spiritual self-esteem.
- (1) It therefore becomes obvious that virtue in the Christian life is totally devoid of emotion. You can respond to virtue emotionally, but there is no place for emotion in the protocol plan of God.
 - (2) Emotion has no ability to rationalize, to think, to apply doctrine, or to solve problems. Emotion is designed for our pleasure and enjoyment, but it was never designed for emotional sins such as fear, worry, anxiety, anger, violence, and murder.
 - (3) Emotion is not a part of the Christian way of life. Emotion is a normal function of the human soul when you respond to something you enjoy. Emotion is abnormal when sinning.
 - (4) The only base for true love is impersonal love, and it brings with it a wonderful emotion that is always subordinate to principle.
- d. Impersonal love is defined as that problem solving device of the protocol plan of God for the Church which produces unconditional love toward all mankind.
- e. Being impersonal, this category of love places emphasis on your honor, your integrity, and your virtue (not morality), rather than the attractiveness of the object.
- f. Impersonal love for all mankind is the ultimate expression of maximum metabolized Bible doctrine circulating by means of the Holy Spirit in the seven compartments of the stream of consciousness of the heart. You must have objectivity and grace orientation of the spiritually adult believer. It is the expression of virtue in human interaction. It is the ultimate expression of humility in spiritual self-esteem. The advance to spiritual adulthood is required before this virtue usually gels.
- g. Spiritual adulthood exists in three categories.

- (1) Spiritual self-esteem, which is cognitive self-confidence, is the beginning of the most effective part of impersonal love.
 - (2) Spiritual autonomy, which is cognitive independence, is the perpetuation of the effective function of impersonal love. Impersonal love has no strings attached to it; it makes no demands.
 - (3) Spiritual maturity, which is cognitive invincibility, is the ultimate expression of impersonal love. Spiritual maturity guarantees that your relationships with people will be absolutely fantastic, and they will never irritate you. Therefore, if people can irritate you under any set of circumstances, you have not yet reached spiritual maturity.
- h. So while personal love in human interaction has no virtue, impersonal love is the maximum expression of Spirit filled virtue toward other people.
 - i. Personal love relationships exist in the three categories of friendship, romance, and marriage. Personal love in human relationship is not a virtue in itself; it is virtue dependent for success in all three categories.
 - j. Therefore, all problems related to human love demand the function of impersonal love for solutions as well as capacity. Your capacity for love increases as your impersonal love increases. Your personal love has no staying power with anyone until you reach cognitive self-confidence when you no longer feel threatened by anyone.
3. Impersonal love is related to humility.
 - a. The status of impersonal love for all human beings is also the status of true humility.
 - b. Arrogant people are constantly seeking unconditional love from others, but all they offer in return is conditional love. The greater your arrogance the more conditions you put on someone's love. Most men do this to the woman they love.
 - c. The lust pattern of arrogance covets the following: wealth without honor, success without integrity, promotion without ability, approbation without achievement, love without virtue, sex without happiness, and ministers covet someone else's pulpit and congregation. If you want any of these things, you are not a candidate for impersonal love.
 - d. Impersonal love is a problem solving device in human relationships because virtue resides in the subject. It is as great in your relationship to other people as occupation with Christ is in your relationship to God. You will love those who are known or unknown, friends or enemies, attractive or repulsive, honorable or dishonorable, loving or hateful, appreciative or antagonistic, rich or poor.
 - e. Impersonal love is absolutely necessary to get a hearing in the supreme court of heaven.

- f. Impersonal love is unconditional because of the grace orientation from Bible doctrine resident in the soul. Therefore, impersonal love perpetuates its own honor, its own integrity, its own virtue in every stage of your spiritual life, and it does so without retaliation, revenge, prejudice, discrimination, arrogance, hatred, self-righteousness, self-pity, jealousy, implacability, vindictiveness, slander, gossip, maligning, controlling, and without judging.
- g. Personal love minus the virtue of impersonal love is the weakest and most unstable status quo in life. It is vulnerable to the entire realm of both the arrogant complex of sins and the emotional complex of sins.

H. Scripture.

1. Gal 5:14, "For the entire Law is fulfilled in one doctrine, 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.'" This mandate is found first in Lev 19:18, and quoted in Mt 19:19, 22:39; Mk 12:31; Rom 13:9; Gal 5:14.
 - a. The verb "love" is the future active indicative of AGAPAO. The imperative future tense is used instead of the imperative mood to express a command (Hebraism).
 - b. The believer is commanded to produce the action of the verb which he'll do when he has attained spiritual self-esteem, and more so in spiritual autonomy. He will not be able to fully comply until he reaches spiritual self-esteem, and then it will be unstable until he reaches spiritual autonomy.
 - c. The potential indicative of obligation is contingent on the attainment of spiritual adulthood.
 - d. "Neighbor", the Greek word PLESION, simply refers to anyone in your periphery or vicinity, anyone with whom you have contact in any day.
 - e. The Greek reflexive pronoun SEAUTOU refers the action back to yourself. But you don't love yourself unless you first love God; otherwise, it is arrogance.
 - f. So loving self refers here to the believer with spiritual self-esteem at least. To obey this command for impersonal love requires you first have spiritual self-esteem, which when combined with providential preventative suffering, produces spiritual autonomy, a dynamic, tranquil state, from which you can fulfill this command.
2. Jn 15:12, "This is My mandate, that you love each other as I have loved you." How did Jesus love us? Personally? No! Impersonally, because we were imperfect. Because of His personal love for God the Father and His impersonal love toward all the human race, He went to the cross and was judged for our sins. Once we believe in Christ, then we receive God's perfect righteousness, which God always loves. Now Christ loves us personally, directed toward the divine righteousness in us.
3. Jn 15:17, "I command you these things, that you might love each other."
4. 1 Jn 3:23, "Furthermore, this is His mandate, that we believe in the person of His Son, and that we love each other as He commanded us."

5. 1 Jn 4:7, "Beloved, let us love one another, because virtue love is from God."
6. 1 Jn 4:11, "Beloved, if God loves us [and He does], we also have become obligated to keep on loving one another." In order to execute this mandate, we must have personal love for God the Father. You cannot have impersonal love for all mankind until you have personal love for God the Father.
7. 1 Jn 4:20, 21, "If someone should allege, 'I love God,' and yet he hates his fellow believer, he is a liar. For he who does not love his fellow believer whom he has seen is not able to be loving God, whom he has not seen." Even our love for God is based on the virtue of impersonal love from Bible doctrine. "Furthermore, we have this mandate from Him, that he who loves God should also love his fellow believer." First comes your personal love for God, from which comes your spiritual self-esteem, and when combined with providential preventative suffering to produce spiritual autonomy, you have the ability to love all impersonally.
8. 1 Jn 4:9-12, 16. "By this the virtue love of God was manifest in our case because God [Father] has sent His unique Son into the world, in order that through Him we might be saved. By this virtue love exists, not because we love God, but because He loved us [impersonal love for all mankind], and He sent His Son to be a propitiation for our sins. Beloved, if God loved us [and He does], we also become obligated to keep loving each other [impersonal love]. No one has seen God at any time; if we love each other, God resides in us and His virtue love has been fulfilled by us. Furthermore, we have come to know and we have believed the virtue love which God keeps having for us. God is virtue love."
9. Eph 1:5, "By means of love [God's virtue love as a problem solving device], He has predestined us for the purpose of adoption to Himself, according to the grace purpose of His will."
10. Love is commanded not for unity, but for stability in the angelic conflict. Therefore, the filling of the Spirit is the trigger. Impersonal love knocks out Satan's dynamics, 1 Jn 3:4.
11. Our Lord's description of impersonal love is given in Lk 6:27-37.
 - a. Lk 6:27, "But I say to you who are listening to Me, keep on loving your enemies, do good to those who hate you," These mandates cannot be fulfilled by any human power. These can only be fulfilled by the divine power of Bible doctrine circulating in the stream of consciousness and the filling of the Spirit.
 - b. Lk 6:28, "bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you." There is no human strength capable of fulfilling these mandates.
 - c. Lk 6:29, "To the one who strikes you on the cheek, offer him the other also; furthermore, from the man who takes your coat, do not keep back your shirt."
 - d. Lk 6:30, "Give to everyone who asks you, and stop demanding the return of your goods from him who takes them." This is a dynamic of spiritual power and cannot be accomplished through personal love.

- e. Lk 6:31-37, "And just as you desire that men do to you, do to them likewise. Furthermore, if you love those who love you [and you do], what credit is that to you? Even sinners love those who love them. Even if you do good to those who do good to you [maybe you will and maybe you won't], what credit is that to you? Even sinners do the same. If you lend to those from whom you hope to receive it back, what credit is that to you? Even sinners lend to sinners expecting to be repaid in full. But love your enemies, and do good, and lend, without expecting to get anything in return; and your reward will be great, and you will be sons of the Most High; because He Himself is loving to the ungrateful and the evil. Be merciful, as your Father is merciful. Stop judging and you will never be judged; stop condemning others, and you will never be condemned; be forgiving, and you will be forgiven." Just because people do good to you does not mean that you appreciate it. Capacity for appreciation is limited.

12. Paul's description of impersonal love. Rom 12:14-21, "Bless those who persecute you; bless and curse not. Rejoice with those who rejoice, and weep with those who weep. Be thinking the same things [divine viewpoint] toward each other; do not be thinking in terms of arrogance, but associate with the humble people. Stop being wise in your own estimation. Never pay back evil for evil to anyone. Respect what is honorable [laws of divine establishment] in the sight of all men. If it is possible, as much as depends on you, live in harmony with all mankind. Beloved, stop avenging yourselves, instead give place to the punishment of the justice of God, for it is written, 'Punishment belongs to Me, I will repay,' says the Lord. So if your enemy is hungry, feed him, and if he is thirsty, give him a drink; for by doing this you will pile coals of fire burning on his head. Stop being conquered by evil, but conquer evil by means of the [absolute] good."
13. Impersonal love is related to spiritual self-esteem.
- a. Lev 19:18, "You shall not take vengeance or bear a grudge against the sons of your people, but you shall love your neighbor as you love yourself." "As you love yourself is a reference to spiritual self-esteem, not arrogance.
 - b. Mt 19:19; 22:39, "You shall love your neighbor as you love yourself."
 - c. Mk 12:30-31, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your thinking, and with all your ability. The second is this, 'You shall love your neighbor as you love yourself.' There is no other commandment greater than these."
 - d. Jn 15:17, "I command you these things, that you love each other."
 - e. Heb 13:1, "Let brotherly love continue."
 - f. 1Peter 1:22, "Since you have in obedience to doctrine purified your souls from non-hypocritical love [virtue-love] of the brethren, fervently love each other from your hearts."

g. 1 Jn 4:7, "Beloved, let us love each other, because love is always from God; and every one who loves has been born from God and has come to know God."

h. The royal law is found in three dispensations: the Old Testament dispensation of Israel, the dispensation of the Hypostatic union and the dispensation of the Church Age, and in each case it is something different. The royal law cannot be executed by believers in the Old Testament on the same high eschelon as you in the Church Age. The royal law says, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself. James describes impersonal love as the royal law of the Church. Jam 2:8, "If, however, you are fulfilling the royal law [You shall love your neighbor as you love yourself] on the basis of the Scripture, in this you are doing well." The doctrine of impersonal love is a royal law for the royal family of God. Gal 5:14, "For the entire Law is fulfilled in one doctrine, 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.'"

(1) In both of these verses, impersonal love for all mankind is related to the believer's status quo in spiritual self-esteem.

(2) The royal law for the royal family of God is mandated.

(3) The royal law of impersonal love implies that spiritual self-esteem is necessary; for a part of impersonal love is that you never feel threatened by hostility, by hatred, by enmity, by any form of antagonism, or anything that is done to you unjustly, and this is also a part of spiritual self-esteem.

(4) The royal law of impersonal love implies that spiritual self-esteem is necessary and a prerequisite for being consistent in the fulfilling of this divine mandate.

(5) Rom 13:8, "Owe nothing to anyone except to love one another; for when he loves the other, he has fulfilled the Law."

I. The Solution of Impersonal Love in Spiritual Adulthood.

1. Impersonal love is just the opposite of personal love, for the object is of no consequence. The object can be repulsive, ugly, obnoxious, totally antithetical to you in every way.

2. Impersonal love emphasizes the integrity and character of the subject. To be a problem solving device requires that the subject have virtue.

3. Having virtue means first arriving at spiritual self-esteem. And after passing providential preventative suffering, you attain spiritual autonomy. And in spiritual autonomy you finally reach the maximum application of impersonal love.

4. As you face momentum testing in spiritual autonomy, you use impersonal love as a problem solving device. You will apply impersonal love toward those who hate you, who are rude to you, who malign and slander you, who are obnoxious, who are trying to make life miserable for you, who hate you. Impersonal love is the application to people testing where people either love or hate you. So spiritual autonomy is the place of greatest tranquility because of impersonal love.

5. When spiritual autonomy passes the four momentum testings, you arrive at spiritual maturity. In spiritual maturity, you have the greatest of all advantages in life: you can handle the problems of personal love.
6. Impersonal love is a functional virtue, developed in the stages of spiritual adulthood. At the point of spiritual self-esteem, there is a little impersonal love. At the point of spiritual autonomy, there is fantastic impersonal love. In spiritual maturity, there is even greater impersonal love. The happiness, tranquility, and power that comes from impersonal love in spiritual maturity is almost beyond description.
7. The advance to each stage of spiritual adulthood occurs through a category of suffering for blessing. Therefore, it is inevitable that each category of suffering for blessing will test and strengthen impersonal love.
8. You cannot be a leader, an executive, or a professional without impersonal love.
9. In spiritual self-esteem, impersonal love is very wobbly and unstable. But spiritual self-esteem is protected from arrogance by providential preventative suffering. In spiritual autonomy, through the momentum testings of people and system testing, impersonal love becomes very powerful, a great dynamic in your life, and a source of great happiness. You will have greater happiness from impersonal love toward all than from personal love toward some. Evidence testing is a challenge to spiritual maturity. When all your friends and loved ones turn against you, you really need strong impersonal love.
10. Spiritual self-esteem has personal love for God as a motivational virtue in gate #5. But it has not as yet fully attained impersonal love. Only after you pass providential preventative suffering to attain spiritual autonomy do you have impersonal love for all. Spiritual autonomy possesses the spiritual muscle to fulfill all the divine mandates regarding impersonal love for all mankind.
11. Impersonal love requires obedience to the mandates of the protocol plan of God.
12. You cannot execute God's commands in the energy of the flesh. Personal love is an energy of flesh modus operandi. Whether it's good or bad personal love depends on the persons involved. But no part of God's plan is fulfilled by personal love toward others.
13. Spiritual autonomy must pass through the valley of momentum testing to attain spiritual maturity. The impersonal love of spiritual autonomy is tested and used in three out of the four categories of momentum testing: people, thought, and system testing.
14. So it is imperative that we understand how impersonal love differs from personal love. It is imperative that we understand how impersonal love is tested in the life of the believer who has attained spiritual autonomy.

15. Impersonal love is unconditional. Being unconditional, impersonal love emphasizes the virtue and the spiritual status of the subject, rather than any rapport with an object. Impersonal love is unconditional with regard to its objects, and therefore so powerful that the object is not the issue. Impersonal love is so powerful that there's no person in the world whom you cannot tolerate.

J. The Integrity of Impersonal Love.

1. Impersonal love has all the integrity in human relationships.
2. Since impersonal love is unconditional, it emphasizes the subject rather than the object.
3. Spiritual autonomy gives the power to love all, everyone in your periphery, the brethren, all mankind. It is an unconditional love toward the object, since the conditions are fulfilled by the subject. So it makes no difference who or what is the object.
4. Impersonal love is a problem solving device and the foundation for all successful personal relationships in life. Your romance and friendships will be short-lived unless you have the base of impersonal love to solve the inevitable problems caused from imperfect people. Impersonal love is the stabilizer of personal love.
5. Impersonal love is the only category of human love for people which has built-in virtue, as well as being a problem solving device in spiritual autonomy. Personal love has no built-in virtue. So only impersonal love can perpetuate a relationship through all the foibles of mankind.
6. Impersonal love is a spiritual function of the royal family of God, and cannot be duplicated by the unbeliever or the believer out of fellowship in the cosmic system.
7. Impersonal love can only be attained through consistent residence in your very own palace, the divine dynasphere under the enabling power of the Holy Spirit, and momentum from metabolized doctrine.
8. Impersonal love is the sign of spiritual adulthood, since all three stages possess it in varying degrees. In spiritual self-esteem, there is impersonal love but it is unstable. In spiritual autonomy, impersonal love is stabilized and functions magnificently. In spiritual maturity, impersonal love is maximized.
9. Impersonal love is a professional function of the royal family of God in spiritual adulthood.

K. The Contrast Between Impersonal Love and Personal Love.

1. Personal love emphasizes the attractiveness of the object. Impersonal love emphasizes the virtue of the subject.
2. Personal love is optional in the Christian life; it is not commanded. Impersonal love is the imperative of the Christian life, the divine mandate for the function of the protocol plan. Personal love is optional; impersonal love is imperative. Impersonal love is a mandate from God. Personal love is optional toward people. Having a lover or a friend isn't necessary. It doesn't add one thing to your spiritual life. In fact, it is better to advance to spiritual maturity before you even try to have a personal love relationship.

3. Personal love emphasizes rapport with an object; impersonal love emphasizes the virtue of the subject. Impersonal love emphasizes the virtue, the integrity, and the spiritual adulthood of the subject. Personal love emphasizes the attractiveness, the desirability of the object.
4. Personal love is conditional; impersonal love is unconditional. Impersonal love as unconditional love means that no merit is assigned to the object. No characteristic of the object, whether attractiveness, rapport, or worthiness, is the motivation for impersonal love.
5. Personal love is virtue dependent for its effectiveness; impersonal love is doctrinally dependent for its effectiveness. The effectiveness of impersonal love in the spiritual life is dependent on personal love for God. Without personal love for God the Father, there is no impersonal love for all mankind. This is illustrated by the staying power of Jesus Christ on the Cross. Impersonal love is sustained by personal love for God the Father and Bible doctrine in the soul. Personal love is sustained by rapport and mutual admiration.
 - a. The personal love of Jesus Christ in His human nature in hypostatic union is totally compatible with the integrity of God, both the righteousness, justice, and love of God.
 - b. The impeccability of the human nature of Jesus Christ in hypostatic union had perfect personal love for God the Father and His plan of salvation for the human race. This is expressed in Heb 10:9, "behold, I have come to do Your will." Our Lord came to do the will of the Father in the human body which the Father had prepared for Him. This is also expressed in the prayers in Gethsemane, "My Father, if it is possible, may this cup be taken from Me; yet, not as I will, but as You will," Mt 26:39 cf. verse 42, "My Father, if it is not possible for this cup to be taken away unless I drink it, may Your will be done."
6. Personal love is subjective and possessive; impersonal love is objective and grace oriented.
7. Personal love is the expression of the believer's ego; impersonal love is the expression of the believer's doctrinal orientation (metabolized doctrine in the stream of consciousness).
8. Personal love is directed toward a few; impersonal love is directed toward all mankind.
9. Impersonal love is a virtue from God, attained from the fulfillment of the protocol plan of God. Personal love is the expression of man's ego and does not require virtue.
10. Impersonal love is manufactured inside the divine dynasphere from metabolized doctrine. Personal love is manufactured from the mentality, emotion, self-consciousness, lust arrogance, good and evil desires, and the wisdom or vanity of mankind.

11. Impersonal love is a virtue directed toward the entire human race, friend or enemy, known or unknown. Personal love is directed toward a few.
12. Impersonal love requires the fulfillment of the protocol plan of God. Personal love requires nothing.
13. Impersonal love is a problem solving device as well as the base for great human relationships. Personal love is a problem making device, and a good way to break up any good relationships.
14. Impersonal love solves problems. Personal love manufactures problems.
15. Impersonal love is a relaxed mental attitude toward all mankind. Personal love is an intense and possessive attitude toward a few.
16. Our Lord said further in Lk 6:35, "Love your enemy." This obviously refers to impersonal love. When you can love an enemy impersonally, you're prepared to be a great leader in any area, a professional able to handle the public.
17. Impersonal love is the function of spiritual autonomy. This means it is unconditional toward the object. This means you drop all prejudices toward others' race, culture, I.Q., background. For one of the great functions of impersonal love is tolerance. And once you have spiritual self-esteem, you'll drop all former standards of superiority or inferiority regarding people and yourself. And with spiritual autonomy, you'll discover in your impersonal love a great tolerance, having no prejudice, no arrogance, no possessiveness, no meddling in other's business, no further attempts to smother, mother, or control everyone around you. You are courteous, objective in the face of hostility and antagonism.
18. While personal love for people can be a distraction to your relationship with God, impersonal love for all mankind is a manifestation of your personal love for God the Father, and your occupation with the person of Jesus Christ as the highest motivation in life.
19. Relationship with self is stabilized and poised through impersonal love, while relationship with self is disconcerted and upset by the traumatic experiences of personal love in either romance or friendship. This trauma results in disorientation in every area of life, and that includes your relationship with God and with others.
20. In application, if you are truly professional, you do not reveal your personality. You are so keen on doing your job that what is seen is far greater than personality; it is virtue. For you do not have to have a good personality to do your job as unto the Lord. Focusing on your personality or trying to improve it is totally unnecessary, for personality is not even an issue in life. Only in degeneracy does personality become an issue. For some people are emotional and gushy; others are hard and tough; others are kind and thoughtful. But none of this makes any difference! Because once you have virtue, you will succeed in any category of life: business, a profession, love, friendship. Impersonal love is far, far greater than personality. Jesus did not command you to have a pleasing personality toward your neighbor, but a professional attitude toward your neighbor.

21. Summary.

- a. Impersonal love is unconditional love directed toward all mankind as a result of maximum metabolized doctrine circulating in the stream of consciousness of the right lobe.
- b. Being unconditional, impersonal love emphasizes the virtue of the subject rather than the status quo of the object.
- c. Being unconditional, impersonal love is the virtue and integrity of the subject overcoming all problems related to the object.
- d. Impersonal love is the spiritual status quo of the believer in spiritual adulthood in which the integrity of the subject exceeds the unattractiveness of the object.
- e. Impersonal love possess both virtue and problem solving capabilities.
- f. Personal love is limited to a few persons; impersonal love is directed toward the entire human race.
- g. Personal love is often motivated to succumb to the sins of the arrogance complex as well as the sins of the emotional complex. Impersonal love is the status of virtue, honor, and integrity in relationship to all mankind.
- h. Impersonal love is motivated by love for God, occupation with Christ; therefore, it is non-discriminating. Personal love is motivated by attractiveness to a few; therefore, prejudiced and discriminating.

L. Summary of Impersonal Love versus Personal Love.

1. Personal love always emphasizes the object of love, its attractiveness, rapport, compatible standards with the subject.
2. Impersonal love emphasizes the subject, who must have a virtue and integrity that is so strong that it reaches out to the entire human race. The human race can be obnoxious or attractive, beautiful or ugly, someone who hates or loves you; it makes no difference because the virtue of the subject is stronger than any handicap in the object. It is the most tranquil and marvelous system in the world, reaching its peak in spiritual autonomy.
3. Personal love is conditional; impersonal love is unconditional.
4. Personal love is directed toward a few; impersonal love is directed toward all.
5. Personal love toward human beings has no built-in virtue. Impersonal love contains built-in virtue and therefore has capacity for true love in friendship, romance, marriage, and all interaction with human beings. Impersonal love is the functional virtue of all human relationships as well as the major problem solving factor of spiritual autonomy in facing momentum testing.
6. Personal love is based on the attractiveness or rapport with the object; impersonal love is based on the virtue, honor and integrity of the subject. That doesn't exclude rapport or attractiveness, but it gives you a problem solving basis for dealing with the perpetuation of a relationship once started.
7. Personal love is a possessive and subjective attitude toward a few. Impersonal love is an objective and relaxed mental attitude toward the entire human race.

8. Personal love is the expression of man's ego. Impersonal love is the expression of man's virtue.
9. Personal love is vulnerable to arrogance and hypersensitivity. Impersonal love is free from arrogance, jealousy, hatred, bitterness, implacability, being controlled by guilt, self-pity, and revenge motivation.
10. Personal love discriminates; impersonal love is non-discriminating.
11. Impersonality is the quality of not involving one's personal feelings or emotions toward the object. Hence, there's no reaction to personality conflict, which is one of the major problems in momentum testing. The only way to avoid reacting to people in life is with the function of impersonal love.
12. Impersonal love is the function of virtue, rather than antagonism toward all.
13. Impersonal love is the sum total of the believer's honor, integrity, and objectivity acquired at the start of spiritual adulthood in spiritual self-esteem, but becoming stronger in spiritual autonomy, and functioning beautifully in spiritual maturity.
14. Impersonal love is the function of your royal ambassadorship.
15. Personal love is weak because it depends on rapport with an object. But impersonal love is strong because it depends on the virtue of the believer in spiritual self-esteem, spiritual autonomy, and spiritual maturity.
16. The emphasis of impersonal love is always the honor, virtue, integrity of the subject who's a spiritual adult. So that the obnoxiousness or antagonism of an object is never an issue.
17. Impersonal love is unconditional; therefore, it's tolerant, unprejudiced, thoughtful, considerate, no matter how great the stress of antagonism.
18. Impersonal love is the total objectivity of spiritual autonomy, because it is never distracted from its virtue by hatred, antagonism, malice, or prejudice from someone else. (Spiritual autonomy can fail, but recovery should be quick and momentum continued.)
19. Impersonal love does not involve one's feelings in personal conflict, and does not react to hostility or antagonism from others. That in itself makes life very tranquil!
20. Since the object of impersonal love is all believers, your neighbors, and the entire human race, it has to be both virtuous and unconditional. Unconditional means no merit is assigned to the object.
21. Impersonal love is the mandate of the Christian way of life, while personal love is optional.

M. Divine Love and Partiality.

1. The love of God as a divine attribute is complete and total from eternity past.
2. This means God does not fall in love. He is not attracted to you or me. He does not maintain his love. It is part of His eternal being.
3. The attribute of divine love makes it impossible for any member of the Godhead to compromise His integrity. That is why Christ had to go to the cross. The justice of God is the most important thing we deal with in life. Integrity is always more important than love (as this point will define).

4. Therefore, the divine attribute of love is always linked to divine holiness and never functions apart from divine holiness (justice and righteousness). Therefore, divine love can never be divorced from divine reason.
 5. Because of this, all divine government and all of God's administration to His creatures is related directly to His justice. The justice of God has absolute authority over all creatures. In the garden, God set up a perfect system of justice. God mandated "no" regarding the tree of good and evil. Divine justice was the issue in the garden. Spiritual death was the result of rejection of divine integrity. If it had been a love relationship, there would have been no tree of good and evil.
 6. Because of God's infinite perfection and the very nature of all His attributes, justice functions with total impartiality regardless of whether it involves blessing or cursing. 2 Chr 19:7, "Let the occupation of the Lord be upon you; be very careful what you do, for Jehovah our Elohim will have no part in unrighteousness, or partiality, or taking a bribe." Cf. Rom 2:11.
 7. God used His integrity to judge Christ on the cross rather than succumbing to the partiality of His love. Therefore, neither will He deal with us in partiality. We deal with God's justice and integrity. He loves us personally only because we have His divine righteousness.
 8. Job 4:17-21 says a man cannot be just unless he has an equivalent righteousness with God's divine righteousness. Imputation of divine righteousness to believers is the function of the justice of God, not His love. Imputation explains justification. The Lord could crush us at any time. We continue living and breathing by courtesy of the integrity of God.
 9. Ps 19:9, "The judgments of God are always righteous."
 10. Ps 89:14 says God's integrity is the foundation of His throne. So God's dealing with us is, from our viewpoint, grace and doctrine, but from God's viewpoint, it is His integrity.
- N. The Pattern of Impersonal Love-Divine Love. Also see the Doctrine of Divine Love for more details. God's attribute of love is the pattern for the believer's function in impersonal love.
1. Definition of Divine Love. (See the Doctrine of Divine Love.)
 - a. God is infinite and eternal. All the attributes of God must relate to each other without contradiction. God is sovereign, perfect integrity (justice and divine righteousness), love, eternal life, omniscience, omnipresence, omnipotence, immutability and veracity.
 - b. Being eternal means God's love is eternal. Being perfect means God's love is perfect. Being immutable means God's love is unchangeable. It cannot be corrupted or changed because we fail. Being holy, God's love is righteous and just.
 - c. Since God always has been love and always will be love, He never falls in love. God's love is in no way subject to corruption.

d. Because God is immutable, His love does not increase or diminish. Therefore, God's love cannot be changed by any form of human failure or vacillation.

e. God's love exists with or without an object, unlike human love, since it's an integral part of His essence. God's perfect and eternal love has always existed without any creature object. God doesn't ever fall in love. God's love is totally stable. It does not fluctuate, discriminate, respond to creature merit, or react to creature failure.

f. This means God's love is not sustained by attraction, by rapport, by any worthiness in man. Man is spiritually dead, and his morality, human good and self-righteousness does not impress God and is not the way of salvation.

g. God's love is virtuous, since it cannot be divorced from His integrity or any other attribute. This means that being holy, God's love is perfectly righteous and just.

h. Being virtuous, God's love is devoid of sin, human good, altruism, or evil; it is free from hypocrisy or flattery or any form of patronization.

i. In summary, God is love. God is perfect; His love is perfect. God is infinite; His love is infinite. God is eternal; His love is eternal. God is honorable; His love is honorable integrity, based on the coexistence of His holiness and His integrity.

j. It is concluded that God has three categories of infinite, eternal and immutable virtue-love.

(1) Divine Personal Love. God is love. God has personal love which can only have as its object perfect righteousness. So God the Father has personal love for God the Son and God the Holy Spirit.

(2) Divine Spiritual Self-Esteem. God the Father loves His own perfect virtue, justice and righteousness, and therefore has perfect spiritual self-esteem; this is also true of God the Son and God the Holy Spirit.

(3) Divine Impersonal Love. This is directed toward an object having no merit: spiritually dead mankind. God selects man by giving him human life, simultaneously imputing to his old sin nature Adam's original sin. So we are born spiritually dead to God. Yet God has an impersonal love that provides the basis for the solution to the problem of spiritual death, sending God the Son to the world to provide salvation. God "loved the world" which is spiritually dead. So God's impersonal love is directed toward unworthy creatures who have neither holiness, virtue, nor integrity.

2. The Problem of Man's Spiritual Death.

a. When man became spiritually dead, there was no way God with perfect integrity could ever personally love spiritually dead man. But from His spiritual self-esteem comes the virtue of the subject in loving mankind impersonally.

- b. God never changes; His love never changes. Hence, God has impersonal love toward all creatures. Because all three Members of the Godhead have perfect virtue, integrity, immutability, we have this perfect, stabilized structure of love. With or without an object, God's love never changes, increases, or decreases. It is totally stable.
 - c. Only after man believes in Christ and receives the imputation of God's perfect righteousness can God love him personally. But before man can even be offered salvation, God must love him impersonally as His motivation to provide salvation for him. "For God so loved the world" which was spiritually dead! That's impersonal love. Impersonal love has virtue in the subject only. God does not love anyone personally until after he believes in Christ and receives the perfect righteousness of God the Father.
3. Divine Love as our Pattern.
- a. God the Father loves both the Son and the Spirit with a perfect, infinite, and eternal love because they Both possess perfect righteousness. God the Father also loves His own perfect righteousness, which is the pattern for our spiritual self-esteem; this is true also of the Son and Spirit. Here is personal love and the pattern for spiritual self-esteem. Not here is impersonal love.
 - b. God the Son has perfect self-esteem in loving His own perfect righteousness, and also personal love for the perfect Father. That personal love for God the Father became the Son's motivation for coming into the world as the fulfillment of the Father's plan; He was willing and obedient.
 - c. As God, Jesus Christ possesses perfect and eternal righteousness plus perfect and eternal love and self-esteem. This combination means that Jesus Christ as God resolved all problems from His deity.
 - d. So the motivation of God the Father was impersonal love toward the entire human race, so that "He gave His uniquely-born Son." God's impersonal love for all mankind, being spiritually dead and in a state of total depravity, is demonstrated in sending God the Son into the world as Savior, Jn 3:16; Rom 5:8. 1 Jn 4:10, "By this virtue-love exists, not because we have loved God, but because He loved us [impersonal love], and He sent His Son to be a propitiation for our sins."
 - e. The motivation of God the Son was personal love for the Father and resultant obedience to His plan, so that He willingly came into the world. It was not until Jesus Christ arrived at the cross and was judged for our sins that we see the tremendous dynamics of His impersonal love for all. He was judged for the sins of the entire human race, a totally unworthy object.

- f. Since the virgin birth, the First Advent and the incarnation, Jesus Christ is also true humanity and undiminished deity, combined in the Hypostatic Union. The humanity of Christ was given a prototype divine dynasphere. He was filled with the Spirit from birth, and continued to reside in the divine dynasphere during His First Advent, Heb 12:2; Phil 2:5-9.
- g. From metabolized doctrine, our Lord had perfect spiritual self-esteem, spiritual autonomy and spiritual maturity. He never lost His poise or His sense of destiny during the First Advent. He was motivated by perfect personal love for God the Father and for His plan.
- h. Therefore, He was motivated to go to the cross and bear our sins, 1Peter 2:24. His motivational virtue is expressed in Mt 26:39; Mk 14:36; Lk 22:42 when He said, "Father, if it be Thy will, let this cup pass from Me. Nevertheless, not My will, but Thy will be done." This was a direct application of gate #3 of the prototype divine dynasphere.
- i. At gate #6, the humanity of Christ had perfect impersonal love for all those who maltreated and maligned Him during the seven trials and the resultant crucifixion. His functional virtue of impersonal love was expressed in picking up His cross. So are we also commanded to pick up our cross and carry it, meaning to function under impersonal love

4. 4. Application.

- a. Love is no stronger than its subject. So there is no virtue in personal love among human beings, all being imperfect. The only virtue that can exist in a relationship is that provided by impersonal love.
- b. Human personal love is weak and vulnerable to destruction through arrogance in either the subject or in the object. The entire arrogance complex is the greatest deterrent to human love. Consequently, human personal love has no built-in virtue and must depend on virtue from a source outside the person. Here is where spiritual self-esteem comes in.
- c. Spiritual self-esteem comes from personal love for God, our motivational virtue. Spiritual self-esteem is the beginning of impersonal love because it has virtue. When combined with providential preventative suffering to advance to spiritual autonomy, you have the strength to love everyone impersonally. spiritual autonomy has tremendous virtue, so that it can love impersonally. The source of virtue is impersonal love toward the entire human race.
- d. So the pattern becomes obvious. Just as God has impersonal love for all mankind, so the adult believer has acquired impersonal love for all mankind through the momentum of spiritual adulthood, not just from metabolized doctrine, but from metabolized doctrine applied in suffering for blessing: providential preventative suffering, momentum testing, and evidence testing.
- e. God as the subject of love is perfect virtue. God's love becomes the pattern for impersonal love. Love is no stronger than the subject.

When God is the subject and mankind is the object, God has perfect impersonal love toward all.

- f. When God is the subject and the believer is the object, God has perfect personal love because he possesses God's perfect righteousness. This means we now have a stronger position with God than ever before. He has put in our lap an absolutely fantastic plan to bring us things that stagger the imagination.
- g. God's personal love for all believers results in the provision of the escrow-election rationale in eternity past, or the portfolio of invisible assets, i.e., computer assets, with the provision in time of equal privilege and equal opportunity for the fulfillment and execution of the protocol plan of God.
- h. Three reasons for the imputation of divine righteousness:
 - (1) Provides instant justification.
 - (2) God's love toward you changes from impersonal to personal.
 - (3) God's justice now daily imputes to the divine righteousness in us our logistical support. Every day we need support to stay alive in the devil's world. It makes no difference what the historical circumstances, you cannot be removed from this earth until the sovereignty of God says so!
- i. Even when you sin, God still loves you personally because you still have the divine righteousness of God.
- j. Impersonal love is manufactured for us inside the divine dynasphere. This divine dynasphere is the basis for equal opportunity under the plan of God.
- k. God has provided a way for believers as human subjects to function under impersonal love and to advance in and execute His plan. We are sustained and kept alive to fulfill the protocol plan of God.

O. Human interaction demands problem solving devices.

- 1. Personal Love and Personal Hate.
 - a. The instability of personal love is the source of many problems, most of which are self-induced; e.g., problems of conflict and antagonisms, or arrogance and jealousy, of guilt, of self-pity and hypersensitivity, of disorientation, marital problems, interaction problems, problems with people, problems with yourself. More people are motivated and manipulated by guilt than almost anything else.
 - b. Personal love in romance is the producer of jealousy, vanity, bitterness, hatred, self pity, implacability, guilt, revenge. For example, falling in love with a member of the opposite sex is often a matter of libido. Being attracted to someone or being motivated by libido is devoid of virtue. Libido is all too often devoid of conscience, and is therefore minus virtue and integrity, without a sense of responsibility, selfish and self-serving. For this reason, personal love in romance or marriage often has no stability and no perpetuation.

- c. Personal love minus the virtue of impersonal love to provide the capacity often reaches its peak at the altar or shortly thereafter, making a mockery of marriage.
- d. Personal love complicates life by combining the problems of two people, an amalgamation which intensifies their stress in life.
- e. The weakness of personal love for another is based on the existence of too many factors for its success and perpetuation, namely, the continued attractiveness of the object, there must be continued rapport; hence, familiarity breeds contempt.
- f. Lack of reciprocation in personal love intensifies frustration, causes disillusion, results in reaction, which brings on the tragic flaw syndrome.
- g. The pressures of human antagonism, hostility, animosity demand a problem solving device. The problems of personal love, romance, and friendship demand a problem solving device.
- h. In both cases, the problem solving device is the function of impersonal love on the part of the spiritual adult.
- i. Wrong priorities and wrong emphasis in life results in the believer becoming a loser. The loser manufactures his own problems but has no problem solving devices to cope with life. Inevitably, the believer with no problem solving devices becomes a casualty in life, gets all his kicks from sublimation, avoids reality, becomes divorced from reality, and all too often becomes psychotic or neurotic.
- j. In providential preventative suffering, "insults and persecutions" (2 Cor 12) demand the use of impersonal love, as preliminary people and system testing. Three out of the four momentum testings all require impersonal love: people, system, and thought testing. In evidence testing, Job in spiritual maturity was being entered as evidence for the Prosecution in the angelic conflict, and only succumbed and failed when he listened to his three friends who gave wrong doctrinal application. So even in evidence testing when you're spiritual maturity, impersonal love is the solution.
- k. You'll never get away from the fact that you have no permanent, stable solution to the problems of human relationship until you reach spiritual adulthood. From time to time in spiritual childhood you may have a taste of impersonal love until someone stronger than you blows it away. So until spiritual adulthood, you must fall back on rebound, the faith-rest drill, and hope two.
- l. Impersonal love is a problem solver in antithetical categories of human relationship. It's a problem solver for love and hate, for friends and enemies, for admiration and animosity.
- m. Impersonal love is the unconditional guarantee of believers who, in spiritual adulthood, are able to maintain a perfect, honorable, and virtuous relationship with both friends and enemies.

- n. Richard Lovelace's poem, Going to the Wars, ends with the line, "I could not love thee, dear, so much, loved I not honor more." His impersonal love was his greater love for honor. His personal love for a woman was based on the integrity and virtue of his impersonal love.
- o. Impersonal love means you have virtue, a problem solving device, and are able to handle people honestly, justly, and fairly. Therefore, you have the ability to have a very happy love relationship because, though you're both imperfect, impersonal love gives you the ability to handle the inevitable problems.
- p. Impersonal love brings virtue to all the problems of love and hate, enmity and friendship, attraction and animosity.
- q. The object of impersonal love can be known or unknown, friend or enemy, beautiful or ugly, attractive or repulsive, honorable or dishonorable, good or evil, believer or unbeliever.
- r. Impersonal love perpetuates its own honor, virtue, integrity without retaliation, reaction, prejudice, discrimination, or revenge.
- s. Impersonal love cannot be corrupted or deceived by flattery, human approbation, emotional rapport, or the exploitation of arrogance and personal ambition.
- t. Impersonal love is free from arrogance, jealousy, bitterness, vindictiveness, fear, hatred, implacability, self-pity, guilt reaction or revenge.
- u. Impersonal love cannot be destroyed by hatred, persecution, unjust treatment, vindictiveness, or any category of antagonism. Why else do you suppose that the Bible commands you never to go to court over slander? Because there is no impersonal love when you are motivated by revenge. You are to put it in the Lord's hands, leaving it with the Supreme Court of Heaven.
- v. Impersonal love is even obvious in the eucharist. Our Lord demonstrated impersonal love when He went to the cross and was judged for the sins of the entire world. The communion elements recall to mind both the motivational and functional virtue of our Lord's humanity in His prototype divine dynasphere. The bread reminds us of our Lord's personal love for God the Father, the Author of the plan for the incarnation, as His motivational virtue. The cup reminds us of our Lord's impersonal love for all mankind and His bearing all our sins on the cross. He didn't want to go to the cross, but He was obedient because He had personal love for God the Father. And He received the judgment for all our sins because He had impersonal love for all mankind. Gate #5 is the bread; gate #6 is the cup.
- w. Impersonal love disregards all malice, hatred, vindictiveness, and slander; and substitutes tolerance, patience, the function of spiritual autonomy.

2. Sensitivity Versus Hypersensitivity.

- a. This is a problem of relationship with self and people. Every person in relationship with self has an area of vulnerability. If you are sensitive about what people think of you, then you will become hypersensitive in relationship to arrogance and no virtue; and that hypersensitivity is directed toward yourself. You will be insensitive to the situation, thoughts, feelings of others. Then you become thoughtless, rude, indifferent, cruel with all the mental attitude sins of gate #1 cosmic one.
- b. When your area of vulnerability is touched, you lose your self-esteem, self-confidence, and poise, and become a reactionary to the persons and environment which produced it.
- c. Reaction in hypersensitivity results in loss of virtue. You no longer love God, have impersonal love for man, nor spiritual self-esteem.

3. Sensitivity.

- a. Sensitivity is the manifestation of virtue-love and its problem solving capabilities in the three areas of relationship: with God, others, and self.
- b. Sensitivity is the normal function of virtue in relationship with God, man and self.
- c. Impersonal love is characterized by sensitivity, the expression of thoughtfulness, courtesy, good manners toward others, willingness of accommodate oneself to an individual or group of individuals whether in business, social, or spiritual life.
- d. Sensitivity is the function of thinking in the adult believer. It is the function of spiritual self-esteem, spiritual autonomy, and spiritual maturity. The base for sensitivity is genuine humility, adding the superstructure of impersonal love which reaches its peak in spiritual autonomy.
- e. Sensitivity is invisible but very dynamic under the pressure of people and system testing.
- f. Sensitivity is the dynamic expression of genuine humility by the spiritual adult.
- g. Sensitivity as the expression of impersonal love is a problem solving device in people, thought, and system testing.
- h. Sensitivity contributes to the principle of spiritual autonomy in a very special way. It gives spiritual autonomy the ability to handle personally three out of the four momentum tests. But you can always tell when you're losing under testing when you become hypersensitive.

4. Hypersensitivity.

- a. Hypersensitivity is as arrogant as sensitivity is based on humility. Hypersensitivity is the function of arrogance, a problem manufacturing device, a source of great suffering under the law of volitional responsibility.

- b. Hypersensitivity is arrogant preoccupation with self, and distorts human relationships into a system of self-manufactured suffering and misery.
 - c. Illustration: marriage, which has only three problems: I, You, and We. "If I am hypersensitive, then you will find it very difficult to please me and you will find me very unstable." This is the problem of We and Me. Or, "if you are hypersensitive and I am thoughtful, my thoughtfulness is totally wasted because We will never get along."
 - d. Hypersensitivity injects self as a false issue into every relationship of life. Self is involved in relationships, but the issues should always be true ones, not false ones.
 - e. Hypersensitivity is devious. It seeks to control people, as the arrogance of the weak controlling the strong.
 - f. Obsessed with the arrogance of self-importance, hypersensitivity superimposes unsolicited advice and opinions on others and thus violates the privacy of those in one's periphery.
 - g. While wearing their feelings on their sleeve, the hypersensitive are insensitive to the attitudes of others. It is amazing how the arrogance of hypersensitivity is totally sensitive to the opinions of others around him about himself, and yet is totally insensitive toward others.
 - h. When confronted with superiority, hypersensitivity seeks to destroy it. When confronted with inferiority, hypersensitivity seeks to bully and dominate it. Here's a frequent reason for unfairness from authority in system testing.
 - i. Hypersensitive believers are unteachable. They always make an issue out of themselves rather than the content of doctrine. This negative volition toward doctrine creates the tragic flaw syndrome which sponsors self-induced misery.
 - j. Hypersensitive believers cannot achieve spiritual adulthood in the protocol plan of God. Therefore, they cannot attain impersonal love. They are hopelessly entangled in suffering of their own making, and they become the aggressors against which mature believers practice.
5. The person who controls your life controls your happiness unless you control your life in the protocol plan of God.
- a. In personal love the object of your love controls your life and becomes the custodian of your happiness. In personal animosity the object of your antagonism controls your life and happiness.
 - b. If you surrender the control of your life to someone else through personal love or hatred, you will blame that person for every bad decision you make and the unhappiness which results. Therefore, you destroy your relationship with yourself through divorcement from reality and failure to take responsibility for your own decisions.
 - c. Personal love without virtue means surrendering your happiness to the object of your love. They now control your life and happiness.

d. Reaction to others means you have given control of your life to someone else. Only virtue-love can protect you from this.

e. Your happiness must not depend on others, but this cannot be avoided unless you have virtue-love from metabolized doctrine.

6. Maladjustment in relationship to self.

a. There are typical characteristics of the psychopathic personality: imbalance, instability, egocentricity. The key defect is lack of regulation of the emotional life by subordinating it to the intellect.

b. In normal persons, the mentality knows if the emotional responses are adequate or not; and is able to maintain sound balance, so that emotions are used for enjoyment of thought.

c. The action of this regulating factor is diminished or abolished in the psychopathic personality.

d. He lacks the ability to realistically evaluate the object of his emotional reactions.

e. Drive toward a false object becomes so intense that reason no longer governs one's actions.

f. He loses all objectivity, intellectual reasoning abilities as he pursues the false object with pseudo-love or hatred fanaticism. Once you become liable to your own emotions you have cut off all reality in your life.

g. Psychosis is manufactured by you, not by outside pressures.

h. The normal person's emotional life is controlled by his intellectual life.

i. The psychopath is unpredictable; you can never trust him. He is preoccupied with self-gratification. His love or friendship lasts only as long as it is to his advantage. Many are very religious.

P. Problems That Result From Lack of Impersonal Love.

1. Impersonal love is a major problem solving device in the Christian way of life. Since contradictions cannot exist in the Christian way of life, the believer cannot account for his thoughts or his actions in undefinable terms; hence, the importance of the Word of God which defines every part of God's will, plan, and purpose for our lives. Therefore, the importance of consistent postsalvation epistemological rehabilitation, which is tantamount to cognition and inculcation of Bible doctrine.

a. This means that Bible doctrine must circulate in the seven compartments of the stream of consciousness. This means that the rate of learning must always exceed the rate of forgetting.

(1) This implies two problems.

(a) Distraction from cognition and inculcation of Bible doctrine results in forgetting what one has learned. You cannot apply what you do not know or have forgotten. This occurs under blackout of the soul and scar tissue of the soul.

- (b) You cannot cram for a problem by trying to learn the whole realm of doctrine in one day. The believer must pace himself on a daily basis with regard to learning doctrine, so that the rate of learning will exceed the rate of forgetting.

(2) In the final stage of Christian degeneracy- reversionism-the rate of forgetting doctrine always exceeds the rate of learning Bible doctrine. The stages are reaction, a frantic search for happiness, operation boomerang, emotional revolt of the soul, locked-in negative volition, blackout of the soul, scar tissue of the soul, and reverse process reversionism.

(3) When the rate of learning of Bible doctrine exceeds the rate of forgetting Bible doctrine, the believer advances in the plan of God for the Church Age. When the rate of forgetting Bible doctrine is greater than the rate of learning, then the believer retrogresses and accumulates garbage in the subconscious of the soul's right lobe and enters into the three stages of Christian degeneracy: self-fragmentation or implosion, polarized fragmentation or explosion which results in trends toward either legalism or antinomianism, and reversion which results in either moral or immoral Christian degeneracy.

- b. No believer can execute the protocol plan of God and glorify God nor account for his thoughts, motives, or actions in undefinable terms. Ignorance is not bliss; it is the disaster of the Christian way of life.
- c. Many of our problems in the Christian life are the result of either ignorance or the malfunction of impersonal love.

2. Unrealistic Expectations.

- a. Very few people are loved the way they want to be loved or treated the way they want to be treated. Because of this, people develop a subjective arrogance. This interposes frustrations which distract from Bible doctrine and destroys the true focus of the Christian life, which is occupation with Christ. This, in turn, destroys all human relationships, whether friendship, romance, or marriage. As long as people react to others who do not love them the way they want to be loved, it is impossible for any virtue to exist. This inevitably leads to eyes on self, eyes on people, and eyes on things.
- b. The focus that is substituted for occupation with Christ is eyes on self, eyes on people, or eyes on things. The resultant fragmentation results in two great areas of disaster: the arrogance complex of sins and the emotional complex of sins.
 - (1) Eyes on self is arrogance. This makes you selfish, self-centered, and totally unacceptable.
 - (2) Eyes on people is lust. This is where you become frustrated by comparing yourself with others, thinking that others are getting better treatment, and are the recipients of a better category of love.

(3) Eyes on things is covetousness.

- c. These three categories result in a phenomenal outbreak of sins related to arrogance. This is why people in relationships with other people are jealous, bitter, become implacable, and turn to self-pity. This is why they slander and malign other people. This explains lasciviousness, inordinate ambition, and inordinate competition, coupled with a modus operandi that destroys or distorts love in the human race.

3. Role Model Arrogance.

- a. Role is defined as the proper or customary function of a person. Society and people in general have assigned certain customary functions to certain activities in life, e.g., to politicians, ministers, husbands, wives, teachers, public servants, peacetime military personnel, and the successful and famous. These people are expected to function in a certain way; if they do not, others protest loudly. All this means we are saturated with double standards in life.
- b. When anyone departs from his role model, he is condemned, rejected, criticized, and maligned. Yet those who criticize are sinning also and operate under a double standard. Such criticism implies that certain sins are worse than others, when in the eyes of God all sins are the same except for the seven sins in Prov 6:16-19.
- c. Individuals and society in general like to see everything in its proper place, and resent any deviation in assigned thought, action, or personality. This is especially true of legalistic believers, crusader arrogance, and self-righteous arrogance.
- d. So if anyone deviates from his proper place, society rises up and condemns and destroys the person who stepped "out of line." Yet in reality, this is a case of the pot calling the kettle black, i.e., one sinner condemning another sinner. Therefore, society has developed a double standard: one standard for the role model, and one standard for self. Of course, self always remains uncondemned while there is the constant criticism, slander, and maligning of other people.
- e. The individual excuses himself for his own sins and failures, but condemns the role model for the identical sins and failures.
- f. Among Christians, role model arrogance manufactures hypocrisy and legalism, two of the characteristics of self-righteous arrogance.
- g. Role model arrogance causes believers to fail because of lack of impersonal love for all mankind and lack of occupation with Christ.
- h. Role model arrogance manufactures hypocrisy in the clergy and legalism in the congregation. Role model arrogance ignores the basic doctrine that all believers after salvation continue to have the sin nature and continue a rate of personal sinning which is compatible with their ignorance of Bible doctrine or lust pattern of the sin nature.

- i. In the role model arrogance and the feet of clay syndrome, you cannot impose impossible perfect standards on others while you ignore the fact that you too have sinned and are possibly committing worse sins than those which you condemn in the role model.
- j. Both clergy and congregation are distracted from what is important in the role model syndrome. What is important is cognition of the mystery doctrine of the Church Age and the execution of the protocol plan of God.
- k. Without consistent perception of Bible doctrine resulting in the development of impersonal love of all mankind, the freedom of self-determination is destroyed, and both the privacy of the priesthood and the environment for cognition of Bible doctrine are replaced by some form of spiritual tyranny.
- l. Role model arrogance distracts congregations from doctrine by emphasizing the personality of the pastor or the evangelist rather than the message. The principle is that it's not the man; it's the message that counts.
 - (1) No one, including pastors, is perfect, whether pastor or congregation. Doctrine teaches us how to handle our sins under the rebound technique and to respect the privacy of the priesthood.
 - (2) However, human interaction is fragmented in every area of life today: within congregations, within the clergy, and in all human interaction.
- m. No one is perfect. But with Bible doctrine as the number one priority in your life, you learn to love God the Father, and you learn to insert the virtue of impersonal love into human relationships. From knowledge of Bible doctrine you find your true role model who is perfect, i.e., our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. He is our only role model.
- n. When you combine unrealistic expectation with role model arrogance, you have established false standards for your life. You have developed an arrogant system of mores which hinder both the execution of the protocol plan of God and create spiritual failure by making the believer a loser. Legalism makes you a loser every time. Losers do not glorify God in time.
- o. The purpose of the protocol plan of God for the Church Age is to create invisible heroes, mature believers who are winners in life; not people who are involved in unrealistic expectations and role model arrogance.
- p. So role model arrogance and unrealistic expectation combine to form intensified problems.

(1) The intensified problem of the double standard, people justify their own sins while condemning the sins of others.

(2) The intensified problem of legalistic arrogance is a device used to condemn others.

q. Role model arrogance plus unrealistic expectation always has three inevitable results.

(1) Your eyes are on yourself. You have a double standard used to justify yourself and to rationalize sin into a system of relative rather than absolute concepts.

(2) Your eyes are on people, resulting in legalism, gossip, maligning, slander, and the whole area of arrogant reaction, i.e., bitterness, vindictiveness, revenge motivation, revenge modus operandi

(3) (3) Your eyes on things is tantamount to resenting and criticizing others because they possess things or prosperity that you do not possess.

(a) In your thinking, you become a Christian socialist. You conclude that if anyone has something you do not have, there must be something wrong with them. You resent those who have worked hard and have accumulated wealth. You resent the successful. This guarantees that you will be a loser all your life.

(b) One of the terrible results of having your eyes on things is the arrogant frustration of seeing the wicked prosper, as often happens in life. The Bible answers this question, why do the wicked prosper? However, this question, unanswered, distracts the believer from the protocol plan and his very own portfolio of invisible assets.

(c) The prosperity of another person should never distract the believer from Bible doctrine, from personal love for God the Father, from impersonal love for all mankind, or from occupation with the person of Christ.

(d) There are several reasons why the wicked prosper.

(i) They prosper because they are identified with an invisible hero; e.g., a father, mother, brother, sister, boss, or someone with whom they have a relationship, who advanced to spiritual maturity and became a winner. Association with an invisible hero while alive and even after his death down to the third generation means that a very wicked person, believer or unbeliever, can prosper.

(ii) The wicked believer prospers because of logistical grace, sent down the grace pipeline from the justice of God to the indwelling righteousness of God in every believer, winner or loser.

(iii) The wicked prosper because there are evil persons in an evil society.

(e) However, the prosperity of another person should never distract you from Bible doctrine. Never let someone else's success or prosperity, whether they are good or evil, become a distraction to you.

(f) This principle applies to members of the clergy. They should never covet another person's ministry or congregation.

(g) The only prosperity in life that counts originates from the protocol plan of God and subsequent distribution of escrow blessings for time and our daily logistical grace blessings.

4. The Problem of Iconoclastic Arrogance.

a. Iconoclasm is the function of destroying an icon or an idol. Iconoclastic arrogance is defined as subjective preoccupation with other people. This results in the creation of a role model or an icon. More than anything in the world, iconoclastic arrogance demonstrates the fact that people are divorced from reality because they will not take the responsibility for their own decisions.

b. Iconoclastic arrogance has four functions.

(1) An excessive admiration or personal love creates an idol out of a person.

(2) This is followed by the idol showing their feet of clay (doing something wrong).

(3) When the idol does something wrong (real or imagined), there is a reaction by those who created the idol. They become disillusioned or disenchanted.

(4) Then iconoclastic arrogance seeks to destroy the image the person has created. You created the idol, now you do not like the idol, so you seek to destroy the idol.

c. Iconoclastic arrogance is divorced from reality in human relationships because of either ignorance or rejection of Bible doctrine, because of entrance into one of the three stages of Christian degeneracy, or because of lack of impersonal love for all mankind on the one hand and lack of occupation with Christ on the other hand.

d. The illusion created by arrogance becomes the delusion destroyed by arrogance. Arrogance takes an ordinary person and from deluded idealism or romantic illusion fashions this person in his mind into an ideal of perfection. The idol of perfection created by this arrogance can be a spiritual image, a personality image, a hero image, a romantic image, or a beautiful image. This is not admiration but something excessive.

- e. The arrogant reaction of disillusion or disenchantment becomes vindictive, implacable, bitter, hateful, and motivated to revenge and to destroy that person. Iconoclastic arrogance destroys friendship, romance, marriage, business, professional relationships, Christian fellowship, and a spiritual leader of some kind. This results in rejection of Bible doctrine. The sooner a congregation has attained impersonal love, the sooner it will overlook idiosyncracies, mannerisms, habits, and failures of those in spiritual leadership.
 - f. Iconoclastic arrogance is a major cause for apostasy among believers. Disappointment with friends, loved ones, or those in authority over us is normal, but disenchantment and disillusion from idolizing that person is failure on our part. We must take responsibility for our own thoughts, actions, and decisions.
 - g. The arrogant iconoclast never blames himself for what he has done in creating the idol and then destroying it, but in irrationality, he blames the idol for existing by his own fantasizing. Arrogance never takes the responsibility for being arrogant; for arrogance is responsible for creating the idol and for destroying it. Arrogance destroys what arrogance creates.
 - h. The arrogance of idolizing and rejecting your very own icon is tantamount to the vanity of transferring the blame for your own failures to other people. The feet of clay syndrome is the arrogant irrationality of rearranging the doctrine of sin to be compatible with your own self- righteous arrogance.
 - i. Three problem solving devices are necessary to bring the believer back to reality and recover from the devastation to the spiritual life: personal love for God the Father, occupation with Christ, and impersonal love for all mankind.
 - j. When any believer combines unrealistic expectation with role model arrogance and subsequently becomes involved in iconoclastic arrogance, that person has established false standards for life and entered into a subtle system of arrogance which prevents cognition of Bible doctrine and hinders the execution of the protocol plan of God.
5. The Principle of Changing People.
- a. Impersonal love never implies controlling or changing people to conform to your standards. You cannot change people to conform to your personal standards and expectations.
 - (1) Part of the problem created by power and approbation lust is the function of the legalistic believer trying to control and change the lives of other believers to conform to his or her personal standards.

(2) The only changes that count in the Christian life are changes made by Bible doctrine resident in your soul. Only Bible doctrine changes lives.

(3) Self-righteous arrogance is the motivation for legalism which always tries to control others apart from the Word of God. The teaching of Bible doctrine is the only protection against this.

(4) You cannot change people by imposing impossible standards on them under the role model syndrome.

b. You cannot make a role model out of some person without becoming disappointed, frustrated, and react, because sooner or later they will violate your personal standards and expectations. The only true role model we should have is the one we develop in spiritual adulthood in our occupation with Jesus Christ.

c. You can only change one life-your own. You cannot change other people in your periphery but you can change yourself, and that's the issue.

d. You can only change one person-yourself. Only by changing yourself can you avoid unrealistic expectations and role model arrogance.

e. If you succeed in controlling others, you lose control of your own life by establishing a clique.

f. You cannot change others; you can only change yourself. Only Bible doctrine changes us, not the power of self-improvement.

g. Only by changing yourself (through perception, metabolization, and application of Bible doctrine) can you avoid self-righteous arrogance, crusader arrogance, or forming a clique.

h. Changing self is defined as attaining the spiritual skills- the filling of the Spirit, cognition of Bible doctrine, and execution of the protocol plan of God for the Church.

i. Changing self is a matter of consistent cognition and inculcation of Bible doctrine (postsalvation epistemological rehabilitation; i.e., the daily perception, metabolization, and application of Bible doctrine in your right lobe). This describes the life beyond gnosis, which is converting gnosis into ἐπίγνωσις.

j. Changing self is a matter of learning and using the problem solving devices of the protocol plan of God. This includes your personal love for God the Father, impersonal love for all mankind, and occupation with Christ.

k. Changing self is the development of virtue-love from metabolized doctrine circulating under the filling of the Spirit in the seven compartments of the stream of consciousness.

l. Legitimate control of others is based on certain principles.

(1) Divine institutions that have an authorized system of authority-marriage, family, government.

(2) The function of legitimate authority in other areas of life-teachers, coaches, etc.

(3) The communication of Bible doctrine through the privacy of your own priesthood.

m. Self-righteous arrogance motivates all kinds of legalism.

(1) The vanity of the unique experience which glorifies empiricism over Bible doctrine.

(2) Erroneous emphasis on human achievement, human talent, human ability, and divorcing Christian service from the spiritual skills.

(3) Self-righteous arrogance becomes irrational when the believer commits some sin and then shocks himself. This results in conceited conclusions that Bible doctrine does not work or that you have lost your salvation, or that the plan of God has failed because you have failed.

(4) Self-righteous arrogance, motivated by legalism, establishes false standards and seeks to force these false standards on other believers. A personality flaw emerges which motivates various functions of legalism, such as: seeking to dominate people, policy, and authority in one's periphery, establishing non-biblical standards and seeking to impose these standards on others, attacking the teaching of Bible doctrine-the content, the communicator, and the emphasis of doctrine. This results in self-righteous arrogance seeking to superimpose personal and false opinions over the Word of God. If the pastor's teaching does not concur with their false and legalistic concepts, then self-righteous arrogance attacks the pastor, seeking to discredit the person and his ministry.

6. Impersonal love is a problem solving device.

a. There are three categories of virtue-love which resolve the problems of unrealistic expectation and role model arrogance.

(1) Personal love for God the Father.

(2) Impersonal love for all mankind.

(3) Occupation with the person of Christ.

b. Personal love for God the Father provides motivation for the function of impersonal love toward all mankind. This results in a grace orientation followed by a grace attitude toward all with whom you have contact. This is the key in human interaction.

c. Occupation with Christ as the priority solution changes your mental attitude about yourself so that you change your mental attitude about people who are not treating you the way you think you ought to be treated or loving you the way you think you should be loved.

- d. Impersonal love is the result of personal love for God the Father and occupation with the person of Christ. It is the result of the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit as you are exposed to Bible doctrine.
 - e. Impersonal love provides the solution to unrealistic expectation and the role model syndrome so that the adult believer can pass people testing, system testing, and thought testing in both providential preventative suffering and momentum testing.
 - f. Impersonal love for all mankind gives the spiritual adult the ability to overcome any form of hurt, frustration, anger, bitterness, implacability, and hatred toward others who have failed as a role model, or who are not treating or loving you the way you want.
 - g. The greater the preoccupation with self, the greater the expectation from people. The greater your romantic notions, the more you anticipate from the opposite sex in both romance and marriage. The higher your standards, the greater perfection you assign to a role model.
 - h. It is a fact of life that very few people are actually loved the way they want to be loved, or treated the way they want to be treated. It is a fact of life that most people are disappointed in the role models they have established in their own thinking. While their attitude may be totally unrealistic in its expectation, nevertheless it defines the extent of the problem.
 - i. When the feet of clay are discovered in the role model, the image is smashed from the motivation of disappointment, frustration, shock, and bitterness. It never occurs to people that the role model syndrome is the fault of the subject, not the fault of the object.
 - j. The only role model mandated for the Christian is the person of Jesus Christ in hypostatic union.
 - k. So the believer must learn to take the responsibility for his own bitterness, vindictiveness, disappointment, and implacability when he smashes the idol under the feet of clay or role model syndrome.
 - l. The solution is not found in reaction to people who do not treat you the way you want to be treated, or who do not love you the way you want to be loved. The solution is not found in the arrogance complex, i.e., self-centeredness, jealousy, bitterness, vindictiveness, implacability, revenge motivation, revenge modus operandi, hatred, anger, or self-pity.
 - m. The principle is that you cannot change people to conform to your standards and expectations. But you can solve the problems related to the frustrations that come to you from unrealistic expectations, but only through the use of virtue-love as a problem solving device.
7. The Morality Distortion-The Problem of True and False Morality.
- a. There are two basic categories of morality.

(1) True morality, which is based on the laws of divine establishment, i.e., on the Mosaic Law. The Mosaic Law (Codex three) is the greatest commentary on establishment and true morality that has ever existed. It is designed for both believers and unbelievers.

(2) Pseudo morality, in which various systems of hypocrisy, self-righteousness, legalism, and tyranny become substitutes for virtue, honor, and integrity, which God commanded for believers only.

b. True morality, designed for both believer and unbeliever alike, is the system for guarding human freedom, privacy, property, and life. Freedom is no stronger than the people who live under it.

c. True morality is the basis for the function of the four divine institutions: volition, marriage, family, government.

d. Pseudo morality is the product of self-righteous arrogance and the ignorance of Bible doctrine, the rejection and maligning of God's grace policy by contradicting true morality through a system of human works, which are classified in three areas.

(1) Salvation by morality. Salvation by keeping the Law. Rom 3; Galatians.

(2) Spirituality by morality. A moral believer is not necessarily spiritual at all. In fact, a moral believer could have moral self-righteousness and be in moral Christian degeneracy.

(3) Blessing from God by morality. The myth is that if you work hard, tithe, do this thing or that thing, then God will bless you.

e. Self-righteous arrogance and legalism is blind to the fact that the protocol plan of God for the Church produces something far greater than morality. This something far greater comes through integrity, honor, virtue developed by the spiritual skills.

f. Morality is the function of the human race. It is not the issue in the spiritual life. The issue in the spiritual life is far greater than morality; it is what the power of God the Holy Spirit and Bible doctrine in the stream of consciousness does for us.

g. The key to true morality is a part of our understanding of the Christian life; for the key to true morality is humility. The key to Christian honor, integrity, and virtue is the attainment of those spiritual skills.

h. Christianity does not reject morality but recognizes the difference between pseudo morality and true morality.

(1) The self-righteous arrogance of the Puritans is not the Christian way of life. Under the grace of God, the provision and inculcation of Bible doctrine produces virtue-love which is far greater than morality, and is minus hypocrisy.

(2) Anything the unbeliever can do is not the Christian way of life. The Christian way of life is a supernatural way of life (the perception, metabolization, and application of doctrine) and demands a supernatural power for its execution.

- (3) The believer's supernatural lifestyle means that all standards and all virtues are acquired through the grace provision of God; hence, the elimination of any system of human arrogance or human ability.
- i. Pseudo morality is morality arrogance, in which the ignorant and self-righteous believer substitutes his own standards or his own morality distortions for the function of virtue-love in three categories—personal love for God the Father, impersonal love for all mankind, and occupation with Christ. It takes a lot of ignoring and rejection of Bible doctrine for the arrogance of self-righteousness to substitute human morality for divine virtue.
 - (1) Therefore, self-righteousness combines with arrogance to establish false standards and to substitute crusader arrogance by seeking to impose Puritanical standards on others. This results in crusader arrogance or the arrogance of Christian activism, institutional arrogance—which attacks the purpose, policy, and authority of an organization, or social engineering, in which the believer seeks to improve or white wash the Devil's world instead of executing the protocol plan of God for the Church.
 - (2) Arrogance is not substitute for impersonal love. Arrogance is a Puritanical, domineering, oppressive type of thing, a tyranny which is a contradiction to the protocol plan of God for the Church.
 - (3) The over-achievers in legalism are full of their own self-importance, and they try to superimpose their standards on others.
- j. Divine power and human power are mutually exclusive. Impersonal love belongs to divine power while self-righteousness arrogance, legalism, and even personal love among human beings belongs to personal power. For the believer, human power, talent, ability, works is not the way of blessing from God.
- k. Impersonal love for all human beings never contradicts the protocol plan of God for the Church. Impersonal love is the basic solution to many problems, especially marriage.
- 8. Impersonal love is the basic solution to the problem of marriage. (See also the Doctrine of Marriage.)
 - a. Marriages fail because people are no better in marriage than they are as people. Marriages fail because people are failures as human beings.
 - b. Marriages fail because people get married for the wrong reasons, therefore, they make wrong decisions concerning the spouse.

- c. Marriages fail because people think marriage is the solution to all problems in life. If anything, marriage is a problem manufacturing device.
- d. Marriage is not designed for happiness; it is designed for virtue. Virtue is designed for happiness. Therefore, happiness in marriage demands virtue-love.
- e. You cannot change your marital problems by changing your spouse to conform to your personal standards or your unrealistic expectation. Therefore, marriage is more than finding the right person; it is being the right person. A happy marriage is always a long conversation that seems to be too short.

9. Summary.

- a. Personal love manufactures problems; impersonal love solves problems. Just make a friend and you have problems. Get involved in a romance and you have more problems. Get married and you have the ultimate in problems. Impersonal love solves problems.
- b. The object of impersonal love can be a friend or enemy, a virtuous or evil person, a worthy or an unworthy person, beautiful or ugly, attractive or obnoxious, known or unknown, honorable or dishonorable, appreciative or antagonistic.
- c. The emphasis of impersonal love is on the virtue, the honor, the integrity of the subject. This virtue, honor, and integrity is derived from your consistent cognition, inculcation, perception, metabolization, and application of Bible doctrine. Impersonal love as a problem solving device is stable and consistent. By the time you reach spiritual autonomy, it is dynamic. It is not influenced by arrogance or prejudice or any other form of reaction.
- d. Impersonal love perpetuates its own honor, its own integrity, its own virtue through every stage of spiritual adulthood, doing so without reaction or antagonism, without prejudice or discrimination, without self-righteousness or self-pity, without jealousy or implacability, without vindictiveness or slander, without gossip or creating the public lie, without retaliation or revenge.
- e. As a problem solving device, impersonal love is not influenced by the arrogance complex of sins or the emotional complex of sins. Therefore, impersonal love remains consistent whether confronted by friendliness or by antagonism, admiration or animosity, love or hatred, compliment or slander; it makes no difference.
- f. Impersonal love for all mankind becomes the virtue, the honor, the integrity required for personal love in friendship, romance, or marriage.
 - (1) Personal love for mankind has neither inherent nor acquired virtue. For personal love directed toward the human race is dependent upon the virtue acquired from impersonal love for its capacity, success, and happiness in human relationships.

- (2) Since personal love for mankind has no inherent or built-in virtue, it becomes vulnerable to the tragic flaws of life, which are related to arrogant subjectivity and hypersensitivity.
 - g. Personal love minus impersonal love results in all the sins of arrogance, all the irrationality of the emotional complex of sins: vanity, jealousy, bitterness, hatred, self-pity, guilt reaction, implacability, revenge function, inordinate competition, and everything that makes life miserable for others as well as for yourself.
 - h. If a person cannot cope with his own problems, he definitely cannot take on the problems of a friend, or a romance, or a marriage without creating unbearable stress in his life. Personal love minus virtue complicates life by combining the problems of two people which then becomes a fusion of intensified stress.
10. The Problem of Personal Love.
- a. Personal love for mankind falls into three categories, all of which are optional.
 - (1) Friendship is an optional love minus sex.
 - (2) Romance is an optional love between a man and a woman minus sex.
 - (3) Marriage is an optional love between a man and a woman plus sex.
 - b. Optional love means that the Bible does not command the believer to enter into these personal love relationships. Personal love is an option in life. In other words, you are never commanded to have a friend, to have a romance, or to have a marriage. Those are options you choose for yourself.
 - c. Personal love is the option of life in friendship, romance, and marriage. Impersonal love is the imperative in the Christian way of life. You are commanded and ordered by the Word of God to love the believer and everyone else.
 - d. Personal love is discriminating and selective because it is based on rapport with the object. The more particular you are in personal love, the better. Impersonal love is nondiscriminating.
 - e. Any idiot can fall in love or make a friend. Yet impersonal love requires the advance to spiritual adulthood before it becomes an effective problem solving device. It actually begins just before spiritual adulthood is reached. But it really begins to function in spiritual self-esteem, spiritual autonomy, and spiritual maturity.
 - f. It is the mandated impersonal love for all mankind that is the problem solving device in human interaction and in human relationship. Therefore, impersonal love for all mankind is unconditional. It emphasizes the virtue resident in the subject from Bible doctrine.

g. Without the virtue of impersonal love, personal love in the human race is vulnerable and weak. It is influenced by too many factors which hinder its perpetuation.

- (1) Your involvement in personality conflict means you are weak.
- (2) Legalism leads to moral degeneracy, and it means you are weak.
- (3) Unfaithfulness leads to immoral degeneracy.
- (4) Lack of concentration on an object.
- (5) Lack of reciprocation. When instinctive, reciprocation doesn't function very well. But when trained as a part of culture, reciprocation from the right motivation is a wonderful thing.
- (6) Lack of mental, physical, or spiritual rapport.
- (7) Loss of attractiveness on which a relationship was originally based. People change in their looks over time, and if personal love was based on attraction, it won't last.

h. So personal love in friendship, romance, or marriage cannot be sustained or perpetuated without the problem solving device of impersonal love. All human and personal love relationships depend on virtue for their success as well as their perpetuation; i.e., personal love for God the Father as a motivational virtue, impersonal love for all mankind as a functional virtue, and occupation with Christ as the priority virtue.

i. Personal love minus impersonal love is weak and vulnerable to being destroyed by arrogance, jealousy, pettiness, vindictiveness, implacability, hypersensitivity as arrogant subjectivity, anger, hatred, fickleness, a change of environment, or a change of values.

11. What Psychology Offers.

a. The problems in the Christian life are many, such as distraction, fear, rejection, dying, timing, and marriage. Each one of these categorical problems includes numerous adversities, catastrophes, pressures, and problems related to life on planet earth.

b. These problems include needs. Prof. Gates summarizes human needs, and defines psychological problems in terms of urges.

- (1) To collect and horde.
- (2) To excel and succeed.
- (3) To fight persistent interference.
- (4) To fight for its own sake.
- (5) To be submissive.
- (6) To secure sympathy.
- (7) To hunt and destroy.
- (8) To relieve suffering.
- (9) To beget children.
- (10) To care for and protect children.

(11) To be in a group of the same species.

(12) To secure social approval.

(13) To avoid social disapproval.

c. None of these are mandated by the Word of God except for the caring and protecting of children. These psychological urges provide no solution to anything.

d. Yet Prof. Gates provides psychological solutions to these problems.

(1) To secure food when hungry.

(2) To drink when thirsty.

(3) To secure air when breathing is difficult.

(4) To secure rest when fatigued or sick.

(5) To sleep when drowsy.

(6) To secure warmth when cold.

(7) To secure coldness when overheated.

(8) To secure action when well or rested.

(9) To mate when sexually aroused.

(10) To escape when injured or frightened.

(11) To get rid of painful or disagreeable substances or conditions.

e. Dr. A.H. Maslow, a motivational psychologist, has classified the needs of mankind in a categorical hierarchy.

(1) Physiological needs are for food, drink, shelter, and relief from pain. These are major needs in primitive societies. These needs become dominant during wars, floods, famines, or other catastrophes.

(2) Needs for safety and security follow once physiological needs are satisfied. Then man becomes concerned about whether these needs will be satisfied and perpetuated in the future.

(3) Social and love needs, the motivation to belong to something, develop once safety and security are resolved and physiological needs are satisfied. Then people become concerned about relationship with each other.

(4) The need for autonomy and self-esteem develops when you are satisfied with the first three levels of needs. Now the person wants to be accepted for what he is rather than for what he can do for others.

(a) Love and social needs are good, but when they carry with them dependency on others for approval of one's thinking and behavior, the human maturing process becomes frustrated.

(b) Hence, there is the call for autonomy in one's behavior, the freedom to exercise independence in thinking, the desire to be respected for oneself. Sooner or later, everyone wants to be loved for what they are; the more obnoxious they are, the more the old sin nature wants to be accepted for what it is.

- (c) To feel adequate, one must be respected for himself rather than for his authority or success in life. But when a leader falls into this, wanting to be respected for what he is and not for his rank, he has canceled out his leadership.
 - (d) Related to autonomy are needs for feeling adequate. Related to self-esteem are needs for recognition, status, and appreciation for what one is rather than for what one has accomplished. Often people spend all their life trying to succeed. Once they do succeed, then they want to be appreciated for what they are, not for what they've accomplished. Yet such a person is often a workaholic with no personality at all.
- (5) The highest level of need according to Dr. Maslow is for self-actualization. Even with the fulfillment of the four lower needs, a person craves total fulfillment of self, the fullest achievement of his capacity, and the complete realization of his potential. This is classified as the "full flowering of psychological health." While the lower needs never disappear, this is considered the ultimate in psychological living.
- (6) Dr. Maslow classifies the attributes of the self-actualized person.
- (a) He is realistically oriented; he sees the world as it is. (That comes fairly close to doctrinal orientation to reality.)
 - (b) He is highly accepting of self, others, and the world in general without hypocrisy or prejudice.
 - (c) He is spontaneous in behavior, not herdbound by convention. (#2 and #3 are contradictory.)
 - (d) He is problem centered rather than self-centered, possessing a wide frame of reference for the task at hand.
 - (e) He is detached. He enjoys privacy yet is not lacking in affection. (This is similar to impersonal love.)
 - (f) He is autonomous and independent of his environment, gaining maximum satisfaction from his own continuing growth rather than from the opinion of others. (Yet how can you want to be respected for what you really are, if you don't care about others' opinions?)
 - (g) He has intimate relationships with a few specially loved people, rather than casual ties. (No, that is too intense for such a person.)

(h) He distinguishes between means and ends, focusing his sights on ends.

(i) His sense of humor is philosophical rather than hostile. It is not smutty or based on hurting others, or making people feel inferior. (This is good, and should be adopted by Christians.)

f. Dr. Douglas MacGregor summarized Maslow's theory in two sentences. "Man is a wanting animal. As soon as one of his needs is satisfied, another appears in its place." That is an accurate description of the old sin nature, and it describes too many believers who always want something. Dr. MacGregor continues, "This process is unending. It continues from birth to death."

Bob essentially covered point 1 in about 30 minutes, and then returned to the exegesis.

Romans 5:5 And hope does not make us ashamed, because the love of God has been poured out into our hearts through the Holy Spirit, the One having been given to us.

“by the Holy Ghost which is given to us” – dia plus the genitive of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] and hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss], correctly translated “though [or by] the Holy Spirit.” The third person of the Trinity teaches us doctrine. When the doctrine goes into our hearts the Holy Spirit converts it into epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. The same Holy Spirit who converted that doctrine into cognizance in our souls converts it into love going out through the launching pad. Love resides in the heart or in the soul; love is expressed from the heart or the soul through the launching pad. It goes in doctrine and comes out love, and both ways it is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. Then comes the genitive singular from the definite article used as a relative pronoun, plus the aorist passive participle of didômi (δίδωμι) [pronounced dihd-OH-mee]. This is a constative aorist referring to a momentary action in past time, the moment of salvation adjustment to the justice of God. God the Holy Spirit came to dwell inside of us. The passive voice: the indwelling Holy Spirit received at the moment of salvation is the concept. The participle is circumstantial.

Plus the dative plural indirect object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]. The dative of indirect object indicates believers in whose interest the giving of the Spirit occurred at the moment of salvation.

Romans 5:5 And the hope never disappoints; because the love for God has been poured out by the Holy Spirit who was given to us.

This verse emphasizes the ministry of the Holy Spirit related to our thinking, the ministry of the Holy Spirit in perception of Bible doctrine, the ministry of the Holy Spirit in the application of our thinking to life, assessing through reality and applying the Word of God, superimposing the reality of God over the reality in life. For this is the stability in life when the reality of God's Word (divine viewpoint) is superimposed upon the reality of life. John 14:26, we have a helper to teach us all things and cause us to remember.

Lesson #137

137 06/26/1977 Romans 5:6–8a Helpless beaver analogy; motivation of man cf. of Jesus Christ to die for man Short break coming up to move into David.

Romans 5:6 Yet indeed Christ, of us still being without strength, according to the right time, died for the ungodly.

Bob goes directly to the translation without really bringing in much grammar:

Romans 5:6 Yet in fact, Christ, while we were weak, yet he died at the right time in place of the ungodly.

The word yet occurs twice.

Verse 6 – the much more of justification deals with the subject of salvation, but it doesn't isolate salvation as a separate entity but it relates it to the function of the Christian way of life and/or phase two of the plan of God. Literally this passage says from the Greek, “Yet for Christ, we being weak, yet at the right time on behalf of ungodly ones he died.” Notice that the word “yet” occurs twice. This is a key to understanding this verse in its proper context. It begins with éti (ἐτι) [pronounced EH-tee] gar in the Greek, and it is followed by Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]. The postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used as a strong affirmation of a self-evident conclusion. Therefore it should be inferential and the inferential gar is generally translated in the English by the words “In fact.” The adverb of time éti (ἐτι) [pronounced EH-tee], means “yet.” Then the nominative singular subject Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]—“Christ.” The absence of the definite article emphasizes the qualitative aspect of the proper noun, the unique person of the universe is mentioned as the subject. Jesus Christ is the God-Man, therefore He is absolutely different from anyone else in the universe. “Yet in fact Christ.”

In contrast to Christ, the next phrase is “we being weak”—this is a genitive absolute. A genitive absolute includes a noun, a participle, and often a pronoun, all in the genitive case. They are not grammatically connected to the rest of the sentence. In thought they are related but grammatically they are unrelated. The purpose is to emphasize a situation:

“we being weak.” The present active participle of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] is in the genitive case, it is a retroactive progressive present tense denoting what has begun in the past and continues through the present time—“we keep on being.” The active voice: mankind produces the action. This is a temporal participle which is translated “while we were.” Plus the possessive genitive plural of the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] which is translated “we were weak.”

The personal pronoun emphasizes the fact that if we are ever going to understand what grace is all about and haven’t understood it through the cross we aren’t going to understand it in the Christian way of life. “We” is extremely emphasized here to the point of where we must understand and accept this truth before we advance any further. We are weak. In the sight of God we are helpless, hopeless, useless, and are totally unable to solve our own problems. So we have the genitive plural of asthenês (ἀσθενής) [pronounced as-thehn-ACE] —“weak, powerless.” It is a reference to lack of inherent or acquired assets with which to enter into a relationship with the integrity of God. There is no plan or system of self-righteousness by which we can impress God. In status quo unbeliever we are under spiritual death and have no relationship with the integrity of God.

A guy with Paddy the beaver. He was a helpless, dying little beaver and this guy brought him back to life and fed him and made a home for him. This guy got him started until he was accepted by the other beavers.

We are totally helpless; we are useless. We often bolster one another us and we say that we have done well here. We forget that there is another viewpoint; the viewpoint of the One Who made us. This man knew more about beavers than Paddy the beaver did; so that he was able to revive him.

4 descriptions of the unbeliever here in this passage.

The second word here to describe us, “ungodly,” is asebês (ἀσεβής) [pronounced as-ehb-ACE]. It means godless, impious. It is a technical term for unbelieving humanity, emphasizing spiritual death or no relationship with the integrity of God. In verse 8 we are also called hamartôlos (ἁμαρτωλός) [pronounced ham-ar-to-LOSS]—“sinners,” and adjective used as a substantive and it emphasizes man’s failure to conform with the perfect righteousness of God. It presents the problem of God’s integrity where relationship with us is concerned, for the integrity of God is made up of His righteousness and His justice. There is no way that perfect God can have a relationship with sinful man. In verse 10 we have the fourth description of man—“enemies,” echthros (ἐχθρός) [pronounced ehkh-THROSS]. It emphasizes a varier between man and God, a barrier which can only be removed under the principle of reconciliation.

A genitive absolute is a complete break from the rest of the sentence. It is grammatically unconnected.

“Yet in fact, Christ, while we were weak.” Then we have a repetition of the adverb éti (ἔτι) [pronounced EH-tee]. It emphasizes not what we are but what Christ did for us. So it is repeated, “yet he.” Then the verb is taken from the end of the verse because here is where the verb comes in with the subject “he” [Christ], the aorist active indicative of the verb apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]. It emphasizes the intensity of our Lord’s spiritual death on the cross. It is used with the substitutionary preposition hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] and therefore it refers to His spiritual death. The aorist tense of apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh] is a constative aorist, it gathers into one entirety the three hours on the cross when all of our sins were poured out upon Christ and when the justice of God was judging our sins. This judgment included Christ not only bearing our sins but it included everything necessary for salvation. The active voice: Christ produced the action of the verb by being judged in place of us. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. Next comes “in due time”—the preposition kata plus the accusative of kairos (καιρός) [pronounced kī-ROSS], an idiom meaning at the right time. God’s timing is always perfect, so this was the right time.

Principle

1. The judgment of Christ for our sins on the cross occurred exactly at the right time in history.
2. God is perfect, therefore His timing is perfect.
3. God is never early or late, He is always right on time.
4. God’s time is the only time; God’s timing is the best time.
5. Man is imperfect; man’s timing is imperfect. The only way to be on God’s time is to adjust to the justice of God so that time is related to the integrity of God.

“for the ungodly” – the preposition hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus the ablative of asebhês (ἀσεβήζ) [pronounced as-ehb-ACE]. Since hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus the ablative is substitutionary it can be translated at least four ways: “for the sake of the ungodly”; “in behalf of the ungodly”; “instead of the ungodly”; “in place of the ungodly.”

Romans 5:6 Yet in fact, Christ, while we were weak, yet he died at the right time in place of the ungodly.

The connotation is substitutionary atonement.

Verses 7 & 8, the analogy of motivation.

Verse 7 – human motivation in physical death; verse 8—divine motivation in spiritual death. This is a representative analogy rather than an exact analogy. Human motivation in physical death for another in verse 7 is compared to divine motivation in spiritual death for the entire human race in verse 8.

Romans 5:7 For rarely will anyone die for a righteous man, though on behalf of the good man perhaps someone would even dare to die.

Verse 7 – “For scarcely for a righteous man will one die.” The first word is an adverb of function, molij. It indicates that it can be done and it has been done but it is rare. It should be translated, “Only rarely.” Plus the explanatory postpositive conjunctive particle gar, plus the substitutionary prepositional phrase hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus the ablative of dikaïos (δίκαιος) [pronounced DIH-kai-oss] used here for human righteousness, human integrity or human honor. It should be translated “in behalf of a righteous person.” The subject is the nominative singular of tis (τις) [pronounced tihç], an indefinite pronoun which is really definite because it represents a category but not referring to any one individual or person. Plus the future middle indicative of apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]. The predictive future anticipates or predicts an event which is expected to occur at some time in future time—someone will give his life for someone else. The middle voice is a permissive middle representing the agent as voluntarily yielding himself to the results of the action. The indicative mood is a potential indicative of obligation or impulse. For a person of integrity people are often willing to die. However, Christ was not dying for those who had integrity, He was dying for those who are called weak and hopeless, and called sinners. Christ had the integrity in dying for us.

“yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die” – the inferential use of the postpositive gar, translated “indeed.” The inferential use of gar expresses a self-evident conclusion. We have another self-evident prepositional phrase. This time hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus the ablative of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], an adjective used as a substantive and it means “a good person.” Then the adverb of probability, taxa, translated “probably.” Plus the indefinite pronoun again, referring to a category, “someone.” Plus the ascensive kai, “even.” Plus the present active subjunctive of tolmáō (τολμάω) [pronounced tol-MAH-oh] which means “to be brave enough.” Two verbs here: tolmáō (τολμάω) [pronounced tol-MAH-oh] and apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]. Tolmáō (τολμάω) [pronounced tol-MAH-oh] is in the present active subjunctive. The iterative present describes what recurs at certain intervals, hence the present tense of repeated action. It doesn’t happen all the time but it does occur. The active voice: category brave person produces the action. The subjunctive mood is potential. Then the aorist active infinitive of apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]. The constative aorist refers to a momentary action. Or it can be a dramatic aorist which states a present reality with the certitude of a past event and indicates that whenever a person gives his life for someone else it is an honorable, dramatic thing historically. The active voice: the brave person produces the action. The infinitive is the infinitive of conceived result. It is assumed as a consequence of nobility or courage.

Romans 5:7 For only rarely someone may die in behalf of a righteous person; indeed in behalf of a good person someone might even be brave enough to die.

First principle: perfect love can only have a perfect object. This is because they God is demonstrating love toward us. That is love1. Love2 is when it says that God loves us. God is love without having any object of love.

Second Principle:

1. God's love is infinite perfection; therefore, God's love can only go in the direction of infinite perfection.
2. God's love is not the point of contact with creatures.
3. Only infinite holiness or divine integrity can act toward other beings.
4. Man's point of reference is not the love of God but the justice of God. Everything that we will ever have is related to God's integrity.
5. The integrity of God is perfect, which demands perfection.
6. Where perfection does not exist, the justice of God must condemn and punish.
7. The justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands.
8. The righteousness of God demands righteousness; so the justice of God can only bless where divine righteousness is imputed.
9. Where does the love of God fit into the picture, as in our phrase.
10. It is in Himself. Spiritually or personally, the spirituality or personality is supreme. But with man, it is His justice which is supreme. So the divine attribute of love is demonstrated, but excluded as a point of divine contact with man.
11. Love expresses motivation, but does not function toward man.
12. Grace is the result when love meets the terms of righteousness and justice.
13. God is not arbitrary.
14. The demonstration of God's love is how justice and righteousness were satisfied at the cross.
15. God's love is demonstrated for man on the cross. But God's love is not the point of contact with man.

Lesson #138

138 06/26/1977 Romans 5:8b–9a Love 1 & 2; anthropopathisms; demonstrated divine love

Romans 5:7 For only rarely someone may die in behalf of a righteous person; indeed in behalf of a good person someone might even be brave enough to die. This verse is given again.

Romans 5:8 But the God demonstrates His Own love to us...

Maybe I missed it, but I don't think v. 8 was covered in lesson 137. Somehow, I got turned around. The set of points boxed up below, I have not come across. The first words given for v. 8 is eis + hēmas.

Bob repeats some points which I did not get in the previous lesson. This is all about God's love, which must have its destination or object of perfect righteousness. God is unsustained by Himself or by any other source. His eternal love has always existed. Therefore, His love is directed toward the other Members of the Trinity and toward His Own righteousness. Another set of points. All related to the righteousness and justice of God. Our point of contact is not the love of God. The demonstration of love is the integrity of God. The efficacious work of Christ on the cross reveals God's justice and the motivation of love. Love is a motivator but love is not our point of contact. Because of God's integrity, the Lord's death on the cross was our only way for salvation. Divine goodness cannot dispense with divine justice. Divine goodness is subject to divine justice. Love is not an anthropopathism in this passage. Demonstration of an attribute is a bona fide function of divine love. God does not actually possess these human functions. Hatred is a sin; and yet this is ascribed to God. Romans 9:13 God is not angry; God never repents. God does not scorn anyone, but this is applied to God in many places. Along the same lines, God does not love us. God does not even love a cheerful giver.

Bob reviews another doctrine and this is listed in the previous lesson. I did not hear the doctrine taught below.

Principle

1. The first clause, "rarely someone may die in behalf of a righteous person," emphasizes the person who is delivered by the death of another; while the second clause, "someone might even be brave enough to die," emphasizes the person who dies for another.
2. A righteous person is sometimes delivered by the death of another, while a courageous person will be brave enough to die for someone else.
3. In human sacrifice for another only two things can be emphasized: the character of the person who is delivered and the character of the person who delivers/dies.
4. Maximum human sacrifice entails forfeiting one's life to deliver another.
5. Therefore there can never be an exact or real analogy between someone giving his life to deliver another and the work of Christ on the cross. It is not a real analogy, it is a representative analogy.
6. Only a representative analogy is possible. In the sacrifice on the cross for sinners only the character of Christ is emphasized.
7. Those delivered through salvation have no character, no righteousness of their own, and no attributes in the sight of God.
8. This anticipates the completion of the analogy in the next verse.

Romans 5:8 But God demonstrates His love to us, that of us being still sinners, Christ died for us.

Verse 8 (these notes may belong with the previous lesson) – the completion of the analogy. "But God commendeth his love toward us" begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle de, emphasizing a contrast between divine motivation in this verse and human motivation in the previous verse. The subject is the nominative ho theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—"the God." Plus the present active indicative of the verb sunistaō/sunistanō/sunistēmi (συνιστάω/συνιστάνω/συνίστημι) [pronounced soon-ihs-TAH-oh/soon-ohs-tah-AHN-oh/soon-ohs-TAH-ay-mee]—it means here to display or to demonstrate. The retroactive progressive present denotes what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. The love of God is still demonstrated through the work of Christ on the cross. The active voice: God produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. Then the object of the verb in the accusative singular of agápē (ἀγάπη) [pronounced ag-AH-pay]. Plus the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO] which refers the action expressed by the verb back to its own subject.

The manner in which God expresses His own love toward us is now expressed in terms of the cross. The cross demonstrates the dying love but the cross is not the point of divine love, the cross is the point of divine justice.

The portion of v. 8 covered in this lesson begins here:

Preposition: eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE], which means into, to, toward; unto, in order to, for, for the purpose of, for the sake of, on account of; on what basis. Strong's #1519. This is connected to the 1st person plural pronoun; accusative case of hēmas (ἡμᾶς) [pronounced hay-MASS] which means us, to us. Strong's #2248 (accusative plural of Strong's #1473). Salvation is a function of divine justice but a demonstration of divine love.

God's Love Coming as Far as Divine Integrity

1. What the God demonstrates to us, eis + hēmos, refers to the entire human race. Salvation is the function of divine justice and a demonstration of divine love.
2. The demonstration of God's love is how divine righteousness and divine justice were satisfied by the work of Christ on the cross.
3. Divine righteousness demands that the love for the Son be set aside when Christ was bearing our sins.
4. The function of the justice of God when Jesus died for our sins, is a demonstration of God's love in relationship to mankind.
5. Divine love functions only with divine justice; and never by itself. God's love must have a perfect object, and we are not. Righteousness looks at sin and rejects it. Justice judges our sin. When justice gives us perfect righteousness, then love can go past the wall to love us.

“in that while we were yet sinners” – a second genitive absolute, and we have the same combination, hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] éti (ἔτι) [pronounced EH-tee]. The causal use of the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], and then we find this absolute made up of a noun, a pronoun and a participle, all in the genitive case, none of which is grammatically connected with the rest of the passage. There is the present active participle of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], a temporal participle and therefore translated “while we were.” This is a retroactive progressive present denoting something in the past continuing into the present time. The active voice: mankind produces the action. Plus a genitive plural from the adjective hamartōlos (ἁμαρτωλός) [pronounced ham-ar-to-LOSS]—“in that while we were still [or, yet] sinners.”

“Christ died for us” – a demonstration of divine love expressed through the function of the justice of God at the cross. The nominative subject from the proper noun Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]. The absence of the definite article emphasizes the high quality of the person. Plus the aorist active indicative of the verb apothnēskō (ἀποθνήσκω)

[pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], used for the spiritual death of Christ on the cross; “for us” is hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] plus hêmōn (ἡμῶν) [pronounced hay-MOHN], a preposition of substitution plus the ablative of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], and it means “in behalf of us.”

The aorist tense of apothnêskō (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh] is a constative aorist, it gathers into one entirety approximately three hours of the cross. The active voice: Christ then produced the action of spiritual death. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of an absolute fact.

Romans 5:8 But the God demonstrates his own love to us, in that, while we were still sinners, Christ died instead of us.

Romans 5:9 Therefore much more, having been justified now by His blood, we will be saved by Him from wrath!

Verse 9 – This is our first much more in Romans. “Much more then” is the dative singular from the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS]. When a dative singular adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] is used with comparative adverb mallon (μᾶλλον) [pronounced MAL-lon] it intensifies the concept to a greater degree—“much more,” plus the inferential transitional conjunction oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon]—“therefore.” It denotes that what is introduced at this point is an inference from what precedes. This phrase means that we have a conclusion from the principle of justification, and we have a conclusion regarding the consequence of justification.

A fortiori is simply a logical argument which says that if the greater benefit has been given the less will not be withheld. That is the principle of these much mores. If Christ died for His enemies, and He did, He will surely deliver His friends, and He does. If the justice of God judged our sins in Christ, now that we are in Christ the justice can do something wonderful.

A Fortiori Introduction

1. We have an a fortiori presentation. If the greater benefit has been given the less will not be withheld.
2. If Christ died for His enemies He will deliver His friends.
3. We go from the greater blessing from the justice of God to the less (there is no word lesser).
4. You go from the greater to the less.

We will pick this up tomorrow for the logic.

A Fortiori Logic

If the greater benefit has been given; then the less benefit will not be withheld. That is a fortiori reasoning. The most is that God has given us salvation. Now, if God has given us the most, then He will not withhold blessings in time, which is the less.

1. "Much more therefore" is a conclusion from the principle of justification to the consequence of justification.
2. This is a conclusion from doctrine of the incredible to doctrine which is self-evident.
3. The conclusion is intensified by the fact of antithesis. The incredible came when we were enemies; the self-evident comes to us as royal family of God. As enemies we were justified by His blood; as royal family we are preserved from His wrath.
4. This is generally the conclusion which is approaching the subject from the greater to the less.
5. However, this is a fortiori which argues that if the greater benefit has been given the less will not be withheld. A fortiori is Latin which means "with stronger reason."
6. If Christ died for His enemies it follows that He will deliver His friends.
7. Or, as stated in this verse, If we were justified by the blood of Christ, it follows a fortiori that we will be delivered from the last judgment.
8. If the greater benefit has been given the less will not be withheld.
9. A fortiori can be summarized throughout the chapter as follows: If God can do the greater, it follows a fortiori that God can do the less. In other words, the less is not more difficult than the greater.

The greater is the salvation work of God. This is an accomplished fact. The less is God providing your needs in time and God blessing you with maximum blessings in time.

It is easy for God to bless us; it is easy for Him to make us a millionaire or to give us sexual prosperity; because He has already done the more difficult thing.

Romans 5:9 Therefore much more, having been justified now by His blood, we will be saved by Him from wrath!

"being now justified by his blood" – the aorist passive participle of dikaioō (δικαιόω) [pronounced dik-ah-YOH-oh]. It means to declare righteous, to vindicate, to justify. But here it means to declare perfect righteousness. This is a constative aorist, it gathers up into one entirety salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ and it adds the principle of imputation of divine righteousness and resultant justification. The reason that God can bless us at all is because the justice of God sees us with God's righteousness and says we are vindicated. We are never vindicated because of self-righteousness. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb. He receives the righteousness of God and then God vindicates him. Justification is a legal pronouncement. This is a circumstantial participle that takes us back to the moment of salvation adjustment to the justice of God. With this is the temporal adverb nun (νῦν) [pronounced noon]—“now”; “having now been justified.”^[5]

See the Doctrine of Justification (covered in this lesson and a previous lesson). Most of these reviews involve a handful of points, covering such doctrines in 10 minutes or less.

Then the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental singular of haima (αἷμα) [pronounced HI-mah]—“by blood,” and the genitive singular of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτοῦ) [pronounced ow-TOSS] used as a personal pronoun—“by his blood.”

Principle: Perfection can only bless perfection, and perfection can only judge imperfection. Therefore the justice of God condemns sins and it blesses perfection. But since there is no perfection in the human race God had to provide it, and that is what happened at the moment we made salvation adjustment to the justice of God. How was it possible for us to get that righteousness which God imputed? How can the justice of God give us the righteousness of God by simply believing in Christ? The answer is “blood”—“justified by his blood.”^[6]

See the Doctrine of the Blood of Christ.

This is how perfect justice can give us perfect righteousness so that we have the potential for all divine blessing.

“we shall be saved from wrath through him” – the future passive indicative from the verb sôzô (σώζω) [pronounced SOHD-zoh] means here to deliver. In fact, it always means to deliver. It can be a spiritual delivery; it can be a physical delivery. Here it is a physical delivery from the lake of fire. The future tense is predictive, it predicts a future event which has not yet occurred. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb—deliverance from the lake of fire. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. No one who has believed in Christ will ever even come close to the lake of fire which is described in the prepositional phrase apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of orgê (ὀργή) [pronounced ohr-GAY] which means punishment, wrath, and refers to the punishment which comes from the justice of God or the last judgment. Then dia plus the genitive of autós (αὐτοῦ) [pronounced ow-TOSS]—“through him.”

Romans 5:9 Much more then because we have now been declared righteous by His blood, we will be saved through Him from God’s wrath.

1977 Romans

140 06/28/1977 Romans 5:10a Wide gap between God and man; reconciliation

The 1977 4th of July special fits in right here, after this lesson.

Being born again means that we are in a plan, but this does not mean that we understand the plan or know what to do. We are all raunchy in God's sight. We are absolutely nothing and all of us are nothing.

God is not interested in our opinions. And whatever we may think, our thoughts are not a part of the plan of God. God does not share the attitude of the majority or the attitude of anyone.

Romans 5:10 For if, being enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of His Son, much more, having been reconciled, shall we be saved in His life!

Verse 10 – the a fortiori of reconciliation. The protasis: “For if, when we were enemies” – the conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced ɪ] introduces the protasis of a first class condition, a supposition from the viewpoint of reality. With it is the postpositive conjunctive particle gar used as an explanatory conjunction—“for if.” Plus the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. This is the present tense of duration, it denotes what has begin in the past and continues into the present time where the unbeliever is concerned. The active voice: the unbeliever produces the action. The participle is temporal. Bob is going to continue with giving the grammar of the Greek.

Plus the predicate nominative of echthros (ἐχθρός) [pronounced ehkh-THROSS]—“enemies.” The unbeliever is the enemy of God; he is hostile. Sin makes him hostile; having the old sin nature makes him hostile. It is “while we were enemies” – temporal participle.

God is not a snob. A snob never gives anything to anyone else unless he has a reason for doing that. Beware of the snob, as he has destroyed his character to give you anything. God has infinite greatness; He never has to prove anything. God is fair. He will never give us the fantastic blessings that He gave to Moses or Paul because you do not have the capacity for those things yet. As far as God is concerned, you have not capacity without Bible doctrine.

“we were reconciled” – aorist passive indicative of the verb katallássō (καταλλάσσω) [pronounced kat-al-LAS-so]. It means to change to hostile parties into a state of peace or reconciliation. It is derived from the preposition kata and the verb allássō (ἀλλάσσω) [pronounced al-LASS-so] which means to change; kata means in the direction of something. Kata plus allássō (ἀλλάσσω) [pronounced al-LASS-so] means to change toward someone. Man's spiritual death from his sinfulness is the hostility with God which is changed by reconciliation. The righteousness of God rejects man's sinfulness, the justice of God condemns man's sinfulness, and a hostility exists. This is a culminative aorist tense, it views salvation adjustment to the justice of God in its entirety but it emphasizes one of the existing results. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb at the moment of faith in Christ. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine.

“to God” – the dative of reference from the proper noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. With the definite article this refers to someone we should know and understand. As the dative of indirect object it emphasizes God as the one in whose interest reconciliation is performed. We were reconciled to the God, the dative is always directional.

Adam and the woman decided to adjust to one another and thought that this was the correct way to adjust. Helping mankind does not cut any ice with God. Reconciliation is manward; propitiation is Godward. Reconciliation removes the barrier between man and God; this is what God does.

“by the death of his Son” – dia plus the ablative of means from thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] is “by means of the death.” Thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] is used here for spiritual death, Christ being judged for our sins by the integrity of God. The instrumental case expresses impersonal means. The ablative case is used to express means where the origin or the source is implied. Christ is the source of reconciliation. Plus the genitive of relationship of huios (υἱός, οὐ, ὁ) [pronounced hwee-OSS], and with it the possessive genitive from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS]—“his Son.”

God did not express love toward His Son on the cross; He expressed judgement. It was His Son Who took our place. God took His Son Whom God always loved; and He poured out our sins on His Son. This should inspire awe and respect. He did the most for us on the cross; everything after this is easy.

Principle

1. One of the salvation functions of the spiritual death of Christ on the cross was reconciliation. And God could not find in the human race in thousands of years of history one person who was qualified to step out of the box of sin and go to the cross. Help had to come from heaven.
2. In spiritual death on the cross the sins of the world were poured out on Christ and the justice of God judged those sins. God solved our sin problem even before we ever sinned.
3. Reconciliation emphasizes the function of divine integrity toward mankind in salvation, just as propitiation emphasizes satisfaction of integrity in salvation.
4. So far we have had just the protasis of a first class condition. Certain conclusions will be drawn from this protasis. The protasis develops a fortiori: the greatest thing was done at the cross—reconciliation.^[7] Having accomplished reconciliation, everything else is easy.

“Tomorrow night, the doctrine of reconciliation. Bring your old notes for a laugh.”

At this point, Bob returns to teaching the David series, lessons 197–212; after which, he returns to the Roman series.

141 07/11/1977 Romans 5:10a Personal sins are not imputed to us; doctrines of enemyship (review) and reconciliation (revised)

Our president is getting us in Texas using more coal. Let's all go back 100 years, that seems to be the trend.

Wings Magazine article. The cat and duck method. They suggest using a cat to determine if you are level or not. Throw the duck out and follow it to the ground.

Romans 5:10 For if, being enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of His Son, much more, having been reconciled, shall we be saved in His life!

We begin as enemies of God. The adjective is the masculine plural of echthros (ἐχθρός) [pronounced ehkh-THROSS], which means, enemy, adversary, foe. A fortiori logic here.

The Doctrine of Enemyship

1. The Bible specifies by definite category certain stated hostilities or alienations whereby two parties are estranged. Some of these categories have to do with theology and some do not. Many times in the Bible it talks about a woman hating a man, e.g. David's first wife came to despise him, but these are simply historical occurrences which advance some principles of doctrine in the scripture but are not doctrines themselves. So definite categories refer to those areas where a certain category of the human race, a segment of the human race or an individual in the human race, is an enemy of God or an enemy in principle to some concept of doctrine. The fact that there is no reconciliation and the enmity is stated by nouns and so on is what we are going to study theologically in this categorizing. So just because we have passages like "If thine enemy is hungry feed him, if he thirst give him drink, we are not covering those categorically because their theological implications do not fall into the concept of enemy ship.
2. Satan and fallen angels are the enemy of believers - 1Timothy 5:14; 1Peter 5:8 - "Be stabilized, be on the alert, your enemy the devil prowls about like a roaring lion seeking someone to devour."
3. Demons are the enemies of God - 1Corinthians 15:25; Hebrews 10:13 - "He sat down on the right hand of God. From that time on he is waiting until his enemies [demons] have been allotted the footstool of his feet." The principle: God has very definite enemies in the fallen angels under Satan.
4. Unbelievers are the enemies of God - Romans 5:10; Colossians 1:21 - "And you being at one time in a state of alienation and hostile in your thinking and evil in deeds"
5. Both categories of enemies of God, demons and unbelievers, will be judged and cast into the lake of fire. All the enemies of God are consigned to the lake of fire in eternity - Hebrews 10:27.

6. The carnal believer is the enemy of God - Romans 8:7,8. "Because the carnal mind is hostile with reference to God, for it is not subordinate to the law of God for it is not able to do so. And they that are in the flesh are constantly unable to please God."
7. God and the reversionistic believer:
 - a. God is also the enemy of the reversionistic believer - 1Samuel 28:16, "...therefore he [the Lord] has become your enemy." When a believer is about to die the sin unto death he dies as the enemy of God. The sin unto death is administered as an enemy. Therefore the sin unto death is the most awful punishment that can ever occur in the life of the believer, but remember that it occurs while the believer is living. But the moment he dies the punishment is all over.
 - b. The reversionistic believer is the enemy of God - it works two ways - James 4:4.
 - c. The reversionistic believer is also the enemy of the cross - Philippians 3:18.
8. The pastor who counters legalism with true doctrine is considered the enemy of the legalist. When a pastor teaches grace and stands on the principle of grace, legalism despises him - Galatians 4:16 Have I therefore become your enemy by telling you the truth?

The apodosis, the conclusion based on the protasis: "much more" is the dative singular from the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] plus the comparative adverb mallon (μᾶλλον) [pronounced MAL-lon]. This becomes an idiom meaning "to a greater degree," and is translated "much more."

"being reconciled" – aorist passive participle from katallássō (καταλλάσσω) [pronounced kat-al-LAS-so], and is translated "having been reconciled." The culminative aorist tense views salvation adjustment to the justice of God in its entirety but emphasizes the existing result, namely reconciliation. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb at the moment he believes in Christ. This is circumstantial participle.

Here, man is reconciled to God. For if while we were enemies, we were reconciled to the God.... Reconciliation removes the barriers between man and God.

Dia + thanatos (ablative of means); by means of the death; the reference to the spiritual death of Jesus Christ. The huios.

Introductory Principles

1. One of the things accomplished on the cross is reconciliation.
2. In the Lord's spiritual death, the sins of the world were poured out on Jesus and these sins were judged.
3. Reconciliation emphasizes the function of divine integrity toward mankind in salvation. Propitiation emphasizes the satisfaction of God.
4. This is the protasis of a first class condition. From this will come the apodosis.

Although the Doctrine of Reconciliation Comes, in Part, from this Lesson, the Notes Given in Romans is much less than the doctrine below. The doctrine from NB2 is 15 pages long, and a typical hour-long message is around 5–6 pages of notes total.

Doctrine of Reconciliation

A. Definition and Description.

1. Description.

- a. Reconciliation is stated as a doctrine in 2 Cor 5:18, "Now all these things are from God who has reconciled us to Himself through Christ, and has given to us the ministry of reconciliation." Ephesians 2:16; Colossians 1:20-21. eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ἡ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay] is the Greek word which technically refers to the doctrine of reconciliation.
 - (1) "Peace" and "reconciliation" are synonymous terms in such passages as Ephesians 2:14-15, 17, 4:3, and 6:15.
 - (2) Part of the salvation work of Jesus Christ on the Cross is reconciliation, Ephesians 2:16, 4:3; Colossians 1:20.
- b. All believers are reconciled to God the moment they believe in Christ, but the work of reconciliation actually took place on the Cross.
- c. The peace offering of the Levitical sacrifices portrayed the doctrine of reconciliation, Leviticus 3, 6:37-38, 7:11–38 8:15.
- d. Peace or reconciliation between God and man must be ratified in every individual case through personal faith in Jesus Christ. The means of ratification is personal faith in Jesus Christ. Acts 16:31, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and you shall be saved; and if anyone in your household believes in Christ, they too will be saved."
- e. Peace or reconciliation between God and man has a unity application which is called peace. Peace between God and man leads to individual peace between man and man and the elimination of personality conflicts.

2. Definition.

- a. The doctrine of reconciliation is defined as that category of soteriology (the biblical doctrine of salvation) which explains the removal of the barrier between God and mankind through the salvation work of our Lord Jesus Christ on the Cross.
- b. In this definition, mankind is reconciled to God, not visa versa. God is never said to be reconciled to mankind. In propitiation, God is satisfied with the work of Christ on the Cross. In reconciliation, man is reconciled to God by the work of Christ.
- c. Not only is there a barrier between God and man at physical birth, but there are barriers between man and man caused by man being born spiritually dead (see point O). Real spiritual death is separation from God in a state of total depravity and helplessness. From our old sin nature we develop flaws, weaknesses, and either inferiority complex arrogance or superiority complex arrogance.

- d. Many of these barriers are legitimate and cannot be helped. But because we all have an old sin nature, we become defensive and feel threatened by other cultures, races, social strata, political or ideological concepts. So when a person has no human or spiritual self-esteem, these barriers become the basis for trying to justify one's existence and environment as over against another person's existence and environment. The result is that we clash.
- e. The reconciliation of man to God through the salvation ministry of our Lord Jesus Christ provides the basis for removing the barriers between God and man and, at the same time, between man and man. There is a definite relationship between spiritual self-esteem and the removal of these barriers experientially in our lives.
- f. Reconciliation is defined in 2 Cor 5:19. "Namely, that God [Father] by means of Christ [agent of reconciliation] was reconciling the world to Himself by not imputing their sins to them, having deposited in us the doctrine of reconciliation." Instead, our personal sins were imputed to Jesus Christ on the Cross and were judged by God the Father. The imputation of sins to Christ becomes a major factor in the removal of all barriers between us and God. Imputation is a major factor in the removal of all barriers between us and God.
- g. Reconciliation is a very important subject in the New Testament, and it has its very own vocabulary.
 - (1) The Greek verb katallássō (καταλλάσσω) [pronounced kat-al-LAS-so] means to change someone from a state of hostility into a state of tranquility and peace, from enmity to reconciliation. God is the subject in the active voice; man is the subject in the passive voice.
 - (2) The Greek noun katallagê (καταλλαγή) [pronounced kat-al-lag-AY] means reconciliation.
 - (3) The Greek compound verb apokatallássō (ἀποκαταλλάσσω) [pronounced ap-ok-at-al-LAWS-so], an intensified form of the verb, is found in Ephesians 2:16 and Colossians 1:22. It means to transfer from a certain status (real spiritual death) to another quite different status (eternal salvation). The compound verb emphasizes the fact that only God is the source of reconciliation. Man can do absolutely nothing in reconciliation. Only God can remove the barrier between man and God.
 - (4) The Greek noun eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ἡ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay] is translated "peace." It is a synonym for reconciliation, emphasizing the saving work of Jesus Christ on the Cross as removing the enmity between man and God, i.e., the removal of the barrier between man and God. In Romans 5:10, it says

"For if while we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son, much more, having been reconciled, we shall be delivered by His life."

- B. All Church Age believers, as royal ambassadors, have the ministry of reconciliation under two categorical functions.
1. The spiritual gift of evangelism, Ephesians 2:17.
 2. The function of witnessing. Every believer is mandated to witness in 2Corinthians 5:18-20. We have a responsibility toward those who are not reconciled to God, Ephesians 6:15.
 3. The ministry of reconciliation is tantamount to the function of witnessing for Christ. 2Corinthians 5:19-21 Namely, that God [Father] by means of Christ [agent of reconciliation] was reconciling the world to Himself by not imputing their sins to them, having deposited in us the doctrine of reconciliation. Therefore, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God were making His appeal through us. We invite you on behalf of Christ to become reconciled to God. He [God the Father] caused Him [God the Son] who knew no sin to be made sin as a substitute for us in order that we might become the righteousness of God in Him.
 - a. God deposited the doctrine of reconciliation in us as believers because we have utilized the divine solution to the problem of the barrier between God and man.
 - b. This deposit is the daily perception of doctrine relative to the doctrine of reconciliation, so that you can go to others and invite them to be reconciled to God. We depend on God the Holy Spirit rather than salesmanship gimmicks.
- C. The salvation work of Christ on the Cross is the basis for reconciliation.
1. Eph 2:15-16, "And He [Jesus Christ] abolished in His flesh the enmity, the law of commandments given in decrees, in order that He [Jesus Christ] might cause to create the two [Jew and Gentile] into one new man in Himself since He made peace, that He might reconcile them both [Jews and Gentiles] to God in one body by means of the Cross, having put to death the enmity in Himself." "In His flesh" indicates that God the Father could only impute man's sin to the humanity of Christ.
 2. Romans 5:8-11 But God demonstrates His love [impersonal love] toward us in that while we were still sinners, Christ died on behalf of us [substitutionary spiritual death]. Much more then, having been justified by His blood [reconciliation], we shall be delivered from wrath through Him. For if, while we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son [and we were], much more, having been reconciled, we shall be delivered by His life. And not only this, but also we glory in God through our Lord Jesus Christ through Whom we have received reconciliation.
 - a. Reconciliation is totally the work of the integrity of God and the function of Christ bearing our sins on the Cross.

b. Reconciliation emphasizes the integrity of God as well as the eternal security of the believer. Since we have been reconciled to God and possess His perfect righteousness, there is nothing we can do, think or say to cancel God's work of reconciliation.

c. What Jesus Christ accomplished for all mankind on the Cross is reconciliation.

D. Peace as a Synonym for Reconciliation.

1. Peace is not only a synonym for reconciliation, but is the only way to completely understand what God did for us, and that there was nothing we could do for salvation.

2. Peace is a synonym for reconciliation, since being reconciled to God through faith in Christ establishes peace between God and the believer.

3. Peace means that we have His righteousness and His life.

4. Col 1:19-22, "For it was the Father's good pleasure for all the fullness to dwell in Him [fullness in the deity of Christ is divine essence, in the humanity of Christ is His impeccability in the prototype divine dynasphere], and through Him [humanity of Jesus Christ] to reconcile all things to Himself [God the Father], having made peace through the blood of the Cross, through Him [God the Son] whether things on earth [man] or things in heaven [angels]. And although you were formerly alienated and hostile in your mind through evil works, yet He has now reconciled you in the body of His flesh through death [substitutionary spiritual death], in order to present you before Him [God the Father] holy and blameless and beyond reproach [ultimate sanctification]."

a. The manner in which Jesus Christ "reconciles all things to Himself" begins in an overt way. We believe in Jesus Christ as we see Him, but our faith in Him comes from our mind, from what we think. When we were behind the barrier, under real spiritual death, all our thinking was alienated from God and hostile.

b. Yet God the Holy Spirit was able to make the Gospel clear to our thinking, that the only way of salvation is faith in Jesus Christ. Believing in Christ was the first constructive thinking in all of our lives!

c. You expressed alienation and hostile thinking to God through evil works, good deeds, human power, human ability, human talent.

d. You will be presented "holy, blameless, and beyond reproach" in resurrection body in heaven. Only God's plan is capable of accomplishing this astounding feat.

E. The Barrier between God and Man.

F. The barrier problems of the unbeliever are removed by Christ's work.

1. Real spiritual death

2. Jesus Christ's substitutionary spiritual death

3. Personal sins

4. Unlimited Atonement

5. Curse of the Law: impossible for man to fulfill the morality of the Law.
6. Redemption: Jesus Christ paid for our freedom by being made a curse for us.
7. Holiness of God (+R, Justice)
8. Propitiation, God the Father satisfied with the work of Christ
 - a. Each one of these items shows what God has done for the entire human race. So now there is no barrier, only an invisible line. Man steps across that line and procures eternal salvation by simply believing in the Lord Jesus Christ, because on the Cross all the work for salvation was accomplished entirely by Him.
 - b. These barrier points are the issue in presenting the Gospel. For example, sin is no longer an issue. All sin was already judged.
 - c. Real spiritual death.
 - (1) Under the doctrine of selection, human life is imputed to the human soul. God has a purpose for each member of the human race. This is proven by the fact He gave you human life.
 - (2) Simultaneously, Adam's original sin was imputed to the genetically formed old sin nature, producing real spiritual death. Gen 2:17; Rom 5:12, 6:23; Eph 2:1.
 - (3) Spiritual death means total helplessness to have a relationship with God.
 - (4) The old sin nature, spiritual death, and the imputation of Adam's original sin form a barrier between God and man, which prevents man from ever having any relationship with God.
 - (5) Real spiritual death is solved by the substitutionary spiritual death of Jesus Christ on the Cross. This means Jesus Christ received the penalty for all our sins when they were imputed to Him and judged, 1Peter 2:24; 1Peter 3:18; 2 Cor 5:21.
 - d. Personal sins.
 - (1) The manifestations of this barrier come in the form of personal sins. When tempted by the old sin nature, our volition chooses to sin. Rom 1:18-32, 3:9-23; Gal 5:19-21; 1 Tim 1:14-16. Gal 6:7 tells us that we manufacture our own misery through our own self-determination.
 - (2) When Christ received the imputation of our sins, He removed the barrier between God and man. This is reconciliation for all mankind. As God, Jesus Christ can have nothing to do with sin. Sins were imputed to Christ's humanity and judged. This is why the sins of the world were carried "in His body."
 - (3) All personal sins were judged and removed from the barrier under the doctrine of unlimited atonement as taught in 2 Cor 5:14, 15, 19; 1 Tim 2:6, 4:10; Tit 2:11; Heb 2:9; 1 Jn 2:2.

- e. The curse of the Law is found in Eph 2:15; 1 Tim 1:8-11; Rom 3:9-23, 4:15, 5:20, 7:14; Gal 3:10-11.
- (1) In effect, the curse of the Law puts us in the slave market of sin. Our freedom from the slave market must be purchased.
 - (2) The doctrine of redemption teaches that we are redeemed from the slave market of sin by the saving work of Christ on the Cross, Psalm 34:22; Gal 3:13; Eph 1:7; 1Peter 1:18-19; Tit 2:14.
- f. The holiness or integrity of God is composed of His justice and perfect righteousness.
- (1) Rom 3:23, "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." The glory of God refers to His perfect righteousness (+R).
 - (2) We have -R; God has +R. -R can never have fellowship with +R.
 - (3) The doctrine of propitiation removes the barrier of the holiness of God. God the Father is satisfied with the work of God the Son. When Christ's work was finished, God the Father gave His approval under the doctrine of propitiation. God the Father is never satisfied with any work man can do; He is only satisfied with the work of Christ on the Cross.
- g. Therefore, there are four doctrines which describe reconciliation for the entire human race: unlimited atonement, expiation, propitiation, and redemption. The entire human race is the recipient of these doctrines, which completely wipe out the barrier between God and mankind. There is peace between man and God because of these four doctrines.
- h. Therefore, since no barrier exists, any person can step over the line and enter into a relationship with God or be reconciled to God through personal faith in Jesus Christ.
- i. So since peace exists, the peace treaty must be ratified. Therefore, "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Eph 2:8-9, "For by grace are you saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is a gift of God, not of works lest any man should boast."
- j. So all we do is simply believe in Jesus Christ. The work for salvation has already been accomplished.
- k. 2 Cor 5:19, "Namely, that God [Father] by means of Christ [agent of reconciliation] was reconciling the world [unlimited atonement] to Himself by not imputing their sins to them." Our sins were never imputed to us for judgment; they were all imputed to Jesus Christ. He is our substitute; He took our place.
- l. Col 1:20, "And through Him [Son], to reconcile all things to Himself [Father], having made peace through the blood of the Cross through Him [Son], whether things on earth or things in heaven." The blood of the Cross refers to the saving work of Christ on the Cross. It includes all four doctrines.

9. The barrier problems of the believer. When any member of the human race believes in Christ, certain additional things occur which forever remove the barrier between God and the new believer. Barrier Problems for Believers
10. Barrier Problems Removed by Work of Christ on Cross for Believers *
Physical birth: born alive but eternally dead. * Regeneration: born again with a human spirit but eternally alive. * Relative righteousness, self-righteousness. * God imputes His perfect righteousness to us with 3 results: justification, logistical grace, God's personal love. * Position in Adam. * Positional sanctification in Christ.
 - a. In physical birth, we are born with the genetic transfer of the old sin nature, Rom 5:12. This part of the barrier cannot be removed apart from faith in Christ.
 - (1) Regeneration is the work of God the Holy Spirit at the moment we believe in Christ. The Holy Spirit creates a human spirit, and God the Father imputes eternal life to that human spirit. This is "the renewal of the Holy Spirit" taught in Tit 3:5. Also see 1Peter 1:23 and Jn 3:1-18.
 - (2) When we are born into this world, soul life is imputed by God the Father. When we believe in Jesus Christ, we are said to be born again because eternal life is imputed to our Spirit-created human spirit, Jn 3.
 - (3) As believers we now have two categories of life: soul life and eternal life.
 - (4) Regeneration along with expiation removes every barrier with regard to physical birth, i.e., that we cannot live forever.
 - b. The second problem is that we have relative righteousness. "All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags in His sight," Isa 64:6.
 - (1) Our human self-righteousness as a barrier is removed by two grace functions from God.
 - (a) The imputation of divine righteousness, resulting in justification and permitting God to love the believer personally. Romans 3:22,
 - (b) The imputation of logistical grace to that perfect righteousness.
 - (2) This second item is removed by simply believing in Christ, at which time we receive the imputation of divine righteousness, Rom 3:22; 1 Cor 3:30; 2 Cor 5:21; Phil 3:9. Rom 5:1, "Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

(3) The imputation of divine righteousness instantly results in justification, Rom 4:1-5, 25, 5:1, 9, 8:30; Gal 2:16; Rom 3:11; Tit 3:7.

c. Our position in Adam is also resolved when we believe in Christ. 1Corinthians 15:22, "in Adam all die, but in Christ shall all be made alive."

(1) At salvation, God the Holy Spirit enters every believer into union with Christ; this is the baptism of the Holy Spirit. This makes us royal family and the heirs of God. This removes our position in Adam. In Adam, all die; and in Christ, shall all be made alive.

(2) So our position in Adam is replaced by position in Christ through the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

d. Three doctrines tell us what is accomplished for believers only in reconciliation: regeneration, imputation of divine righteousness plus justification, and baptism of the Holy Spirit.

e. Therefore, God has established the basis of unity among believers in reconciliation.

(1) God the Holy Spirit has established the basis of unity among believers by regeneration, giving all believers the same eternal life.

(2) God the Father imputing His righteousness establishes the basis for unity among believers, giving all believers the same +R.

(3) God the Holy Spirit entering each believer into union with the person of Christ has established the basis for unity among believers.

f. So at the very moment of salvation, there exists peace with God. Therefore, being entered into the royal family of God, these doctrines that establish our reconciliation with God provide the basis for peace among members of the royal family.

G. There are two categories of doctrine in the mechanics of reconciliation.

1. What Christ accomplished on the Cross for all mankind.

a. The removal of spiritual death as a part of the barrier between God and man by unlimited atonement.

b. The removal of our personal sins as a part of the barrier between God and man by the substitutionary spiritual death of Christ.

c. The removal of the curse of the Law as slaves to sins by redemption.

d. The removal of the holiness of God by propitiation.

2. What Jesus Christ provides through the Cross for those who believe in Him.

a. Regeneration removes the problem of physical life.

b. The imputation of God's perfect righteousness solves the problem of relative or self-righteousness.

- c. Positional sanctification in Christ solves the problem of position in Adam.

H. Reconciliation is the means of establishing unity in the Royal Family.

1. Reconciliation is also defined as the means of establishing unity in the royal family of God. Eph 4:3, "Be diligent to guard the unity of the Spirit by means of the bond of peace."
2. Since all members of the royal family of God have been reconciled to God at the moment of salvation, it follows logically that all members of the body of Christ should be reconciled to each other. If we have been reconciled to God by the work of Christ on the Cross, we should utilize experientially what has been provided in grace to be reconciled to each other. We should be reconciled to each other through the filling of the Spirit after salvation (problem-solving device number two) and post- salvation epistemological rehabilitation. Persistence in the perception of Bible doctrine should eliminate personality conflicts because it provides understanding and use of the other problem-solving devices.
3. Reconciliation toward each other means there is no place for personality conflict in the Christian way of life. You are not to form opinions about antagonisms that occur between two other Christians.
4. Whenever personality conflicts exist between two Christians, one or both are completely out of line, needing rebound.
5. When you advance to the point of using the last seven problem- solving devices, these problem-solving devices should eliminate personality conflict. God does not mandate personality conflict in the Christian life.
6. Like the problems in marriage, the problems in personality conflict are caused by arrogance, which includes jealousy, bitterness, vindictiveness, implacability, fear, hatred, anger, self-pity, guilt, gossip, slander, and maligning.
7. Therefore, when you find yourself in personality conflict with another believer, look to your own life. There is some sin keeping you out of the divine dynasphere. There is some system of sinning that is keeping you from the filling of the Spirit and from the execution of the protocol plan of God.
 - a. Always look to yourself; do not blame the other person.
 - b. Because no matter how obnoxious a person is, you should be able to handle it under the filling of the Spirit with grace orientation, doctrinal orientation, personal love for God the Father, impersonal love for all mankind, +H, a personal sense of destiny, and occupation with Christ.
 - c. You can't get involved in personality conflicts and reach spiritual adulthood. You will never be an invisible hero with personality conflicts.
 - d. Once you believe in Christ, personality conflict is inexcusable in the protocol plan of God.
 - e. No one can learn doctrine and have a personality conflict with their pastor.

f. Personality conflict is usually irrational. Whenever you have a personality conflict with someone else, this is a warning that there is something wrong with your spiritual momentum.

g. Personality conflict is nothing more than people testing as a part of momentum testing.

8. The greatest personality conflict in history was the attitude of people toward Jesus Christ while He lived on earth, and especially while on the Cross; this includes both the Romans and the Jews.

I. Parties in Reconciliation.

1. The first party in reconciliation is God the Father.

a. God the Father imputed the sins of the entire human race to the humanity of Jesus Christ on the Cross and judged every one of them. This is unlimited atonement which removes the barrier of personal sins.

b. God the Father was satisfied with the saving work of Christ on the Cross. This is propitiation which removes the barrier of the holiness of God.

c. God the Father imputed His own righteousness to every believer at salvation, proclaimed us justified, so that now we can live with God forever. This removes the barrier of man's self-righteousness and relative righteousness.

d. God the Father imputed eternal life to the believer's human spirit created by the Holy Spirit at salvation, called regeneration. This removed the barrier of man's physical life with spiritual death.

e. God the Father is the reconciler as per the active voice of KATALLASSO. Mankind is reconciled to God; God is never reconciled to man. It is blasphemous to assume that God steps across any line to come to man; it is man who must Cross the line to come to God by faith in Jesus Christ.

2. The second party in reconciliation is God the Son, the agent of reconciliation. The agent of reconciliation is our Lord Jesus Christ, Eph 2:13-17. "But now in Christ Jesus you who were formerly far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ. For He Himself is our reconciliation, who made both Gentiles and Jews one [new spiritual species], and broke down the barrier of the dividing wall, by abolishing in His flesh the enmity . . . that in Himself he might make the two into one new man, establishing reconciliation."

a. It was the work of our Lord Jesus Christ that removed the barrier between man and God, making reconciliation possible.

b. During His last three hours on the Cross, our Lord's humanity received the imputation of every personal sin in the history of the human race, all of which were judged in Him. This is both substitutionary spiritual death and unlimited atonement.

c. Through His efficacious and substitutionary spiritual death on the Cross, Jesus Christ satisfied (propitiated) God the Father.

- d. Since personal faith in Jesus Christ removes the barriers between man and God, our Lord is the agent of reconciliation. Jesus Christ is the efficacious object for faith in eternal salvation.

- 3. The third party in reconciliation is God the Holy Spirit.
 - a. The unbeliever is dichotomous, having only a body and soul; he cannot understand the Gospel or any spiritual phenomena. Therefore, the Holy Spirit must make understandable to him the Gospel when it is presented. So the Spirit acts as a human spirit, making this spiritual phenomena understandable. This is the doctrine of common grace.
 - b. When the person believes in Christ based upon this information, the Holy Spirit makes his faith effectual for salvation. This is the doctrine of efficacious grace.
 - c. In the doctrine of the convicting ministry of the Spirit, mankind, under real spiritual death, listens to the Gospel while the Holy Spirit makes it perspicuous in common grace.
 - d. Since peace or reconciliation is always ratified by personal faith in Jesus Christ, it is the ministry of the Holy Spirit in efficacious grace to make the faith of the spiritual death person effectual for salvation. In real spiritual death and total helplessness, mankind believes in Christ, while the Holy Spirit in efficacious grace makes that faith effectual for salvation.
 - e. In regeneration at salvation, God the Holy Spirit creates a human spirit for the imputation of eternal life; this removes the barrier of physical birth.
 - f. Through the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation, He creates a new spiritual species, the basis for Church Age believers being able to utilize 100% of available divine power. At the same time, this baptism of the Spirit provides the basis for the election of the royal family of God. This provision of positional sanctification removes the barrier of position in Adam. "In Adam all die; in Christ shall all be made alive."
- 4. The fourth party in reconciliation in mankind who is the beneficiary of reconciliation.
 - a. Mankind is reconciled to God through the saving work of Jesus Christ on the Cross. Mankind is the recipient but never the reconciler; God is the reconciler.
 - b. What Jesus Christ accomplished for mankind on the Cross is reconciliation. Also, what Jesus Christ provided on the Cross for all believers is reconciliation.

J. Scriptural Documentation for Reconciliation.

- 1. Real spiritual death is taught in Gen 2:17; Rom 5:12, 6:23; Eph 2:1. This barrier is removed by substitutionary spiritual death: 1Peter 2:24, 3:18; 2 Cor 5:21.

2. Personal sins are taught in Rom 1:18-32, 3:9-23; Gal 5:19-21; 1 Tim 1:14-16. This barrier is removed by unlimited atonement: 2 Cor 5:14, 15, 19; 1 Tim 2:6, 4:10; Tit 2:11; Heb 2:9; 1 Jn 2:2.
3. The curse of the Law is taught in Eph 3:15; 1 Tim 1:8-11; Rom 3:9-23, 7:14, 4:15, 5:20; Gal 3:10-11. Redemption is the solution to the curse of the Law: Psalm 34:22; Gal 3:13; Eph 1:7; 1 Peter 1:18-19.
4. The holiness, perfection, virtue of God, Rom 3:23, is solved by propitiation, Rom 3:22-26; 1 Jn 2:2, 4:10.
5. The problem of physical birth is solved by regeneration, Jn 3:16, 36; Tit 3:5, 1 Peter 1:23.
6. The problem of man's self-righteousness, Isa 64:6, is removed by the imputation of divine righteousness, Rom 3.
7. The problem of position in Adam, 1 Cor 15:22a, is solved by the baptism of the Holy Spirit, 1 Cor 15:22b.

K. Peace or reconciliation is portrayed through the Levitical offerings.

1. All Old Testament teaching is related to the ritual plan of God for the dispensation of Israel.
2. The peace offering teaches reconciliation, Lev 3; 6:37-38; 8:15.
3. In Lev 2:13, eating salt represented peace between two enemies. God eating salt is a picture of propitiation. Man eating salt is a picture of reconciliation.
4. Reconciliation was prophesied in Isaiah 57:17-21. "Because of the iniquity of his unjust gain [function of evil in Judah], I was angry [anthropopathism to express the divine attitude toward evil in client nation]; I struck him [anthropomorphism to express divine judgment toward evil]; I hid My face [anthropopathism to express divine rejection of evil]; therefore, I was angry, but he went on turning away [continual apostasy] in the way of the right lobe [mental attitude of black-out of soul, life in cosmic system]. I have seen his ways [barrier], but I will heal him [reconciliation]. I will lead him and restore comfort to him and to his mourners [perpetuation of pivot in Judah], creating the praise of his lips. Peace [reconciliation] to him who is afar off [gospel to Gentiles through Israel as missionaries] and peace to him who is near [evangelism in Israel],' says the Lord. 'Therefore I will heal him [remove the barrier as a result of positive response]'" The wicked are the reversionistic unbeliever.

L. Apostolic Emphasis on Reconciliation.

1. Acts 10:34-36. Then Peter opened his mouth and said, "I most certainly understand that God is not one to show partiality, but in every nation the person who reverences Him and accomplishes the purpose of imputed righteousness is acceptable to Him. The doctrine which He sent to the sons of Israel, preaching peace through Jesus Christ: He is Lord of all."
2. Preaching peace has nothing do with the removal of war. It teaches the removal of the enmity between man and God through the agency of Jesus Christ. Furthermore, this peace is ratified by personal faith in Christ.

M. Panorama of Reconciliation, 2 Corinthians 5:18-21.

1. Verse 18: Now all these things [baptism of the Spirit, new spiritual species, great power experiment of the Church Age] are from God [Father] who has reconciled us to Himself through Christ [agent of reconciliation], and has given to us the ministry of reconciliation.
 - a. The ministry of reconciliation is designed in exactly the same way that reconciliation itself was designed. It was designed to be solely the work of God, not to be the work of man at all. Man's ability is never the issue.
 - b. Since we have been given the ministry of reconciliation, this means that every believer must accurately understand exactly how he was saved and the Gospel. We are to understand that the only issue is Jesus Christ, and then we can declare this. Our responsibility is to make the issue clear, which you can do once you understand what Christ did for you.
 - c. So once you understand the doctrine of reconciliation, your witness will be effective because God the Holy Spirit will do the work, using the doctrinal facts you communicate to others. Every believer is to be a carrier and communicator of Bible doctrine.
 - d. We must give correct facts to those to whom we witness. God the Holy Spirit takes those facts and acts as the unbeliever's human spirit. When the unbeliever understands it, then he can make a choice.
2. Verse 19 briefly mentions the doctrine of reconciliation because it is the basis of grace orientation. Jesus Christ did the work, we are reconciled to God the Father, the Holy Spirit reveals it, and we are merely the recipients. Namely that God [the Father as reconciler] by means of Christ [agent of reconciliation] was reconciling the world to Himself [unlimited atonement] by not imputing their sins to them, and He entrusted to us the doctrine of reconciliation.
 - a. Note that God "was reconciling the world," not just the elect. This is unlimited atonement. Christ did not die spiritually just for the elect.
 - b. Reconciliation is a major doctrine in orienting to grace and to understand the importance of your scale of values. Your priorities must put relationship with God before relationship with people.
3. Verse 20: Therefore, we are ambassadors for Christ as though God was making an appeal through us; we invite you on behalf of Christ: become reconciled to God.
 - a. Being an ambassador is one of our two royal commissions in this unique Church Age.
 - b. Notice that you cannot simply live your life in such a manner as to represent Christ. No; you must communicate the Gospel in a language understandable by the recipient. You must speak to others.
 - c. Man becomes reconciled to God, not vice versa. God the Son removes the barriers between God and man through His salvation work on the Cross, therefore establishing peace. The peace is ratified through personal faith in Jesus Christ. Man is reconciled to God through faith in Jesus Christ; no work, action, or human system will work.

4. There are two categories of reconciliation mentioned in verse 21. He [God the Father] caused Him [God the Son] who had no sin [impeccability of Christ] to become sin for us that we might become the righteousness of God by means of Him. The first category of reconciliation is that Christ became sin for us. The second category is what Jesus Christ provides through the Cross: the imputation of divine righteousness so we can live in the presence of God forever.
 5. God chose not to impute our sins to us, so that they might all be imputed to Jesus Christ on the cross.
 6. Without this imputed divine righteousness, God cannot bless us.
- N. The Principle of Expiation.
1. Colossians 2:14 And having canceled out the debt consisting of the decrees against us [sin, good, evil] which was hostile to us, even He [God the Father] has taken it out of the way having nailed it to the Cross. This is the principle of God judging our sins on the cross.
 2. Psalm 22:1-6, "I am a worm..." This was the worm crushed for his blood which was used to make the famous red dye of the ancient world.
- O. Reconciliation has removed all racial prejudice or discrimination, Eph 2:13-18.
1. Every time you have racial prejudice, you blaspheme God's work of reconciliation.
 2. The great power experiment of the Church Age and the new spiritual species breaks down the barriers of prejudice. There is no racial prejudice in the royal family.
 3. When you have racial prejudice, you blaspheme the work of Christ. Ephesians 2:13-15, "But now in Christ Jesus you who were formerly far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ. For He Himself is our reconciliation, who made both Gentiles and Jews one [new spiritual species], and broke down the barrier of the dividing wall by abolishing in His flesh the enmity, ...that in Himself he might make the two into one new man, establishing reconciliation."
- P. The Principles of Reconciliation.
1. Reconciliation is the removal of the barrier between God and all mankind through the salvation ministry of Christ on the Cross. This sets up the pattern for our lives: all of our lives we are helpless and dependent on the grace of God and all that our Lord Jesus Christ has provided for us.
 - a. Under grace, God has provided everything we need in our lifetime. Under humility, we need to recognize our helplessness and God's fantastic provision.
 - b. This means that there is nothing we can do to gain the approbation of God. All divine approval is based on grace: what God has done for us. We are all too impressed by what we or others are doing for God.

Getting your eyes on other people is not a part of the plan of God.

c. We should be impressed with God, which has three problem solving devices: personal love for God the Father, occupation with Christ, and fellowship with the Holy Spirit. You should be impressed with the grace policy of God after salvation.

2. The direction of our Lord's salvation ministry on the Cross is threefold
 - a. Toward man-the doctrine of reconciliation.
 - b. Toward God-the doctrine of propitiation.
 - c. Toward sin-the doctrine of unlimited atonement.
3. In propitiation, God the Father is satisfied with the salvation work of Christ on the Cross. If God the Father is satisfied with what our Lord did, then God the Father can be satisfied with us when we are executing His plan, purpose, and will.
4. In reconciliation, mankind is reconciled to God, and never vice versa. God is never reconciled to us. This is why you cannot be saved by inviting Christ into your heart.
5. In unlimited atonement, all personal sins of history were imputed to Christ on the Cross and judged by God the Father.
6. There are two categories of reconciliation.
 - a. What Jesus Christ accomplished on the Cross for all mankind in reconciliation.
 - b. What Jesus Christ provided through the Cross for all believers at salvation.
7. In addition to the barrier between God and man, there exists a number of barriers between man and man.
 - a. Racial barriers. There has been racial prejudice since the Flood. There will always be racial prejudice where unbelievers exist and old sin natures are out of control.
 - b. Religious barriers. There are many world religions. Impersonal love handles the problem of religious barriers without succumbing to or being influenced by religion.
 - (1) Christianity is not a religion. Religion has its source in Satan. It is man by man's works trying to gain the approbation of God. In Christianity, God seeks man through the saving work of Jesus Christ on the Cross.
 - (2) Any system of salvation by works or spirituality by works is the infiltration of religion into Christianity.
 - c. Cultural barriers. We have all grown up under different cultures.
 - d. Social barriers. Sometimes these are only in the minds of people; sometimes they actually exist in historical reality.
 - e. Political barriers. We disagree violently on politics.
 - f. Personality barriers.

- g. Ideological barriers. Believers are socialists, capitalists, empiricists, rationalists, and every other kind of ideology.
 - h. Language barriers.
 - i. Sexual barriers.
8. The doctrinal principle of reconciliation is the fact that Jesus Christ, being judged for our sins on the Cross, removed the barrier between God and man, and provides for man's reconciliation to God through faith in Christ. The doctrinal application of reconciliation is the fact that, for believers, barriers between man and man have been removed in the mechanics of the protocol plan of God.
- a. Therefore, by application, reconciliation is the means of preserving unity among the brethren. In positional sanctification, the baptism of the Holy Spirit removes all barriers between believer and believer. In experiential sanctification, the spiritual skills become the means of the unity among believers in post salvation modus operandi.
 - b. Hence, reconciliation to God by faith in Jesus Christ is the basis for removing two barriers.
 - (1) The barrier between man and God, a reality at salvation, is removed the moment we believe in Christ.
 - (2) The barrier between believer and believer, a potential, is removed by consistent postsalvation epistemological rehabilitation.
 - c. The major application of this doctrine to experiential Christianity is the function of personal evangelism.

Lesson #142

142 07/12/1977 Romans 5:10b–11a The barrier; doctrine of reconciliation (cont.); love 1 re Adam

A skillful doctor took a tumor out of Bob's back the size of an orange. "I have been told that when a man has a bit of discomfort that he is as awful as grizzly, so be advised."

Apparently, Bob brought a container with the growth in it?

A prayer from a confederate soldier. What he asked for and what he received. I asked for things that I might enjoy life; and I was given life that I might enjoy all things. We can be punished in time for personal sins; but not in eternity. Our sins were imputed to Jesus Christ, so that we might receive salvation adjustment to the justice of God.

One sin was imputed to us: Adam's original sin. He knew what he was doing. As a result of this, all men are under spiritual death. Because all of our sins are imputed to Jesus Christ, we have the opportunity to be saved.

Unlimited atonement means that Jesus on the cross was judged for all of the sins of the entire world. The justice of God judged all of those sins. Limited atonement is a false doctrine, says Jesus paid the sins for believers only. 2Corinthians 5:14, 15, 19 Jesus did not die for our sins only, but for the sins for the entire world.

The redemptive work of Christ on the cross. 1Peter 1:18–19 Sin is knocked out by unlimited atonement.

Spiritual death is the result of sin. Removing the penalty of sin is the doctrine of expiation. Colossians 2:14 I have gone back into the notes for the Doctrine of Reconciliation to continue Bob's teaching for this lesson. With occasional references listed here.

God had actual love for man in the Garden of Eden; but this could change, if man ate from the tree. For man to live under love, he must live under integrity. It is demonstrated millions of times that man cannot live under love; man must live under integrity. Man had everything he wanted or needed in the garden. He could not handle it; too much Christmas.

The first act of divine integrity after the fall was spiritual death. The line between innocence and spiritual death. In innocence, love was our point of reference with God. After the original sin, integrity becomes the point of reference between man and God.

Sooner or later, we would have done the same thing as Adam. Perfect love is too much for us. Bob will give us an illustration we won't believe. Think of the person that you love the most. How would you like to be together forever on the same small island with that person with perfect food and a perfect life. How would you like to live together for a thousand years. You don't want that. Some of you ladies have something better than that. You have a man who loves you with integrity.

One man and one woman with a direct line to the love of God cannot survive forever. Bob says, "Thank God for the fall of man." Since God has switched to the integrity as a point of reference. We can be happy forever. The human race has more from the integrity of God than we could ever have from the love of God.

If you can choose between integrity or sweetness and light, choose integrity. Integrity is forever. We did not plan it this way; but it is wonderful that God did.

Internally, God can only love His Own righteousness. The importance of God's integrity has somehow been put in a file and filed away by the fundies. Justice and love of God are both directional; justice can go toward the perfect and imperfect; love can only go toward perfection.

When Adam took the fruit from the woman. The impartiality from the justice of God. There was no excuse from the woman, even though she sinned in ignorance.

Romans 5:10 For if, while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by means of the death of his Son [and we were], much more, having been reconciled,... This is the Protasis; and the conclusion comes next.

Much more, being reconciled... exegeted once again.

The final phrase of v. 10: “we shall be saved by his life” – future passive indicative of the verb sôzô (σώζω) [pronounced SOHD-zoh] which means to deliver. The future tense is a predictive future, it prophesies ultimate sanctification as occurring in eternity. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb, namely a resurrection body minus the old sin nature and human good. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Plus en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY]. The instrumental, the dative, and the locative all have the same suffix, the same form. So it becomes a matter of interpretation. Sometimes, rather than “by his life” it is “in his life.” It is having a resurrection body like His resurrection body, for zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY] refers here to the resurrection body—“we shall be delivered in his life.”

Romans 5:10 For if, while we were enemies, we were reconciled to the God by means of the death of his Son [and we were], much more, having been reconciled, we shall be delivered in His life.

Amplified by the doctrine of resurrection.

In eternity, we will have a resurrection body, no matter how good or bad we are in this life.

Romans 5:11 And not only so, but also we are rejoicing in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

Verse 11 – the temporal implication of the much more of reconciliation. “And not only so, but we joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ.” This is temporal, it has to do with time. This has to do with happiness, prosperity and blessing in time.

It begins with a negative plus an adverb, ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] plus monon (μόνον) [pronounced MOHN-on], plus the postpositive conjunctive particle de, should be translated “And not only this.” It is an idiom. Not only do we have something in eternity but we have something in time. These three words are very important. It is an idiom which means that something that precedes has been stated as an absolute, as a perfect blessing, but it is not the only one. The fact that the believer is going to have a resurrection body is not the only blessing in life—there is something first! And not only this is how we should understand these particles. This is an idiom. There is something which happens first, even before the resurrection body.

“but we also also” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] plus the adjunctive use of kai, is “but also.” Also there is blessing for the believer in time; there is prosperity in time; “joy” – the nominative plural, present middle participle of kauchaomai (καυχάομαι) [pronounced kow-KHAH-om-ahee], which means to boast, to glory, to have esprit décor. In other words, to have a spirit pervading the core of mature believers. Not only this, but we also have esprit décor because we are not left on this earth to grind out some system of suffering. We are left here to attain maturity adjustment to the justice of God, and from that attainment to have what is extremely important: a prosperity which only the justice of God can give us but which glorifies God, not us. The present tense is a customary present, it denotes what habitually occurs among mature believers, those who have a total relationship with the integrity of God. The middle voice: it is a deponent verb which is middle in form but active in meaning. The mature believer produces the action. Only the mature believer has a Holy Spirit esprit décor. The participle is circumstantial for anyone who reaches this point.

“in God” – en (ἐν) [pronounced eh] plus the locative of the proper noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], plus the definite article which doesn’t emphasize anything but it is used with the proper noun to show us that the person involved is unique and it is someone with whom the readers are familiar.

“through our Lord Jesus Christ” – the preposition dia plus the genitive of kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] and Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], plus the possessive genitive plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]. This should be translated, “And not only this, but also we have esprit décor in God through our Lord Jesus Christ.”

Our use of the definite article is much different than its use in the Greek.

Principle

1. Esprit décor in God is synonymous with occupation with the person of Jesus Christ. Occupation with Christ is the first characteristic of maturity adjustment to the justice of God. It refers to cracking the maturity barrier.
2. Our Lord Jesus Christ is mentioned as the only saviour, the one bearing our sins and being judged for them by the integrity of God.
3. Reconciliation is teamwork between God the Father judging our sins at the cross and Jesus Christ bearing our sins or being judged for our sins on the cross.
4. Reconciliation involves both the bearing of our sins by Christ and the judgment of those sins by the Father.
5. Therefore we have esprit décor in God [the Father] and our Lord Jesus Christ.

Romans 5:11 And not only so, but also we are rejoicing in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

“by whom we have now received the atonement” – incorrectly translated. The preposition dia plus the genitive from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]—“Through whom.”

The problem is in the accusative singular direct object from the noun katallagê (καταλλαγή) [pronounced kat-al-lag-AY], mistranslated “atonement” with the definite article to denote previous reference in verse 10. It should be “Through whom we have now received the reconciliation.” There is no reference to atonement here. Reconciliation is totally the work of God. It is God who removes the barrier between God and man, and specifically it is the function of the integrity of God and the work of the Son of God on the cross.

The verb is the aorist active indicative from lambánô (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh]. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to a momentary action—salvation. Reconciliation was instantaneous and is permanently received when we believe in Christ. The active voice: at the moment of salvation mankind becomes involved in the action of the verb, he receives reconciliation. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of Bible doctrine, one on which a fortiori will be built.

Romans 5:11 And not only this, but also we glory in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through Whom we have now received the reconciliation.

Principle

1. Salvation adjustment to the justice of God does not depend on who and what man is. Always it depends on who and what God is. We have nothing attractive in any way to God, interior or exterior. Whatever we possess is not anything that God could be impressed by.
2. Since our point of contact is the justice of God all facets of salvation are related to the integrity of God.
3. The more we understand the integrity of God the greater becomes our esprit decor.
4. To understand the integrity of God demands maximum doctrine resident in the soul. This can only occur through the daily function of GAP.
5. Therefore learning doctrine under strict academic discipline is the only way of boasting or glorying in God—demonstrating esprit decor.
6. In human modus operandi the function of the mind often depends on the state of health in the body.
7. But in the spiritual realm the antithesis is true. It is doctrine resident in the soul that determines everything else in life for the believer. This fulfills one of the principles of the Magna Carta. We will not refuse the justice which is due to any man.

Death in Adam, Life in Christ

Romans 5:12 Because of this, just as sin entered into the world through one man, and death through sin, so also death passed to all men, because all sinned.

Verse 12 – the necessity for reconciliation. We have here the principle of God’s justice imputing to us Adam’s original sin, rather than God’s justice imputing to us our personal sins. When Christ was on the cross this is the first and only time in all of history that all personal sins in the human race were actually imputed, and they were imputed to the one who had no sin, the Lord Jesus Christ. This imputation made it possible for God to judge those sins.

“Wherefore also” – the preposition dia plus the accusative neuter singular from the demonstrative houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] means “For this reason.” It is a prepositional phrase which is used in order to go back to what precedes and to draw an inference from it. We go back to vv. 10–11 to draw a conclusion.

“as by one man’s sin” – the comparative adverb hōste (ὥστε) [pronounced HOH-steh]r used in the protasis of a comparative clause, “just as.” Then the prepositional phrase, dia plus the genitive of the numeral heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, eh] plus anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]—“through one man.” The one man is Adam. The justice of God deals with Adam in such a way that the justice of God reserved our personal sins for the cross, and our salvation as well as Adam’s. Plus the nominative singular hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] with the definite article. With the definite article it means “the sin” and it does not refer to personal sins, nor to the old sin nature; it refers here to the original sin of Adam. Twice we see hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] in this verse, once for the original sin of Adam and once for the principle of personal sin. “For this reason, just as through one man the sin”—a reference to Adam’s original sin when he took the fruit from the woman.

“entered into the world” – the aorist active indicative from the compound verb eiserchomai (εἰσέρχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ah] means to enter into. The aorist tense is a constative aorist which refers to a momentary action, that instant of time when man switched from the love of God as his point of reference to the justice of God by eating of the forbidden fruit taken from the hand of the woman. The active voice: sin produced the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Plus the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of kósmos (κόσμος) [pronounced KOSS-moss], referring to the world as restored by the Holy Spirit in 6 days. This is the cosmos which had been restored for man’s occupancy. This is not the Kósmos (κόσμος) [pronounced KOSS-moss] which Satan rules, that came after the original sin.

Love, Integrity and Original Sin

1. Sin was in existence in the angelic race long before Adam, but sin entered the restored planet earth through the negative volition of the man and the woman in the fall.

2. The relationship was temporal because innocent man did not possess the righteousness of God. The love of God was the point of reference in the garden.
3. Man came from the hand of God as a perfect creature with the potentiality of becoming imperfect—free will.
4. After his fall he came under the integrity of God—righteousness and justice.
5. Note that the love of God could not restrain the fall, but the integrity of God acts as a tremendous restraint on man.
6. Until man had something permanent, like the righteousness of God and eternal life, it was going to be a temporal relationship.
7. The relationship was perfect but it did not have permanence. We have a relationship and permanence—eternal security. The capacity for perfect environment was provided through doctrine resident in the soul; Jesus Christ taught every evening.
8. Grace is always key to our relationship to God. Grace in God's love prior to the fall; and grace in God's integrity after the fall.
9. Our point of reference changes after the fall; but God's grace remains constant.
10. The first state of man had no permanence; the second state of man can be permanent.

The word hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] is in the singular, and in the singular hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] can be used three ways: for Adam's original sin in the garden; for the old sin nature; for the principle of personal sin (sing.), not sins (pl). The original sin also gave the nature to sin. When Adam made the decision to sin it was a trend in his soul. We were born with a trend; Adam acquired it. The first time Adam sinned he started a trend, and that trend comes down to us in our personal sin.

“and death by sin” – the conjunction kai is used to introduce a result which comes from something that precedes, so we translate it “and so.” Then ho thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] which is used here for spiritual death. Plus the preposition dia with the noun hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] with the definite article—“and so the death [spiritual death] through the sin [of Adam & the trend thereafter].” So sin in the singular combines two of our concepts of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], the original sin plus the trend that was developed at the same time.

Romans 5:12a For this reason, just as through one man [Adam] the sin [nature] entered into the world, and so the death [spiritual] through the sin [nature].

Spiritual Death Principles

1. Spiritual death is lack of relationship with the integrity of God—cut off from the divine attributes (cut off from the righteousness and justice of God). .
2. Spiritual death is the antagonism of the integrity of God toward mankind.

3. Spiritual death is divine righteousness rejecting both the principle of the old sin nature [the trend] as well as the function.
4. God does not like the sin nature and He does not like the trends of the sin nature.
5. Righteousness demands righteousness. Spiritual death is the justice of God judging, condemning the old sin nature, its function and personal sin.
6. Justice demands justice. The justice of God executes what the righteousness of God demands.
7. Spiritual death is an impassable barrier between God and man established by the integrity of God at the time of the original sin.
8. Spiritual death is an impassable barrier perpetuated in human history, a barrier which can only be removed by the integrity of God.
9. The removal of the barrier demands both the function of the justice of God in removing our sins when Christ was carrying them on the cross, and the imputation of divine righteousness to anyone in the human race who will believe in Christ.

“so death passed upon all men” – the connective use of the conjunction kai plus the correlative conjunction houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]—“and so.” Plus the nominative singular subject of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss]—spiritual death, never physical death in this passage.

Plus aorist active indicative from the verb dierchomai (διέρχομαι) [pronounced dee-AIR-khom-maī] [dia = through; érchomai (έρχομαι) [pronounced AIR-khoh-my] = to go], to go through, to pass through, and it comes to mean to spread—“so death spread.” This is spiritual death spreading. The aorist tense is a gnomic aorist for a fact of doctrine so fixed in its certainty as to be absolutely axiomatic. The active voice: spiritual death produces the action of the verb spreading through the whole human race. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. Plus another prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural of pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]—“to all men.”

Romans 5:12a-b For this reason, just as through one man [Adam] the sin [nature] entered into the world, and so the death [spiritual] through the sin [nature]. And so the (spiritual) death spread to all men.

Spiritual death at the Time of Birth

1. Spiritual death is perpetuated through physical birth. We are born physically alive and spiritually dead.
2. At the moment of human life the human race is also spiritually dead—no relationship with the integrity of God, no possibility of blessing from the justice of God.
3. The barrier is so great that man cannot move it, break through it, climb over it, tunnel under it.

4. The justice of God put that barrier there so that the barrier could be removed by the justice of God. Love cannot put that barrier there in the first place; nor can love take it away.
5. An act of judgment from the justice of God put the barrier there, and an act of judgment from the justice of God must remove the barrier.
6. Such was the judgment of our sins on the cross. The justice of God judged our sins on the cross; the justice of God judged what the justice of God had condemned.
7. Adam's sin was a corrupting principle which transmitted itself to the entire human race. Adam had two feet and one head. He acquired an old sin nature through his sin; and his progeny have sin natures.

“for that all have sinned” – the preposition ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the relative pronoun hos is “on account of which” and translated in its correct connotation “because.” Plus the nominative masculine plural subject from the adjective πᾶς (πάς) [pronounced pahs], referring to the entire human race. Plus the aorist active indicative of the verb hamartanō (ἁμαρτάνω) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TAHN-oh].

Principle

1. The constative aorist [of hamartanō (ἁμαρτάνω) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TAHN-oh]] contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety.
2. The constative aorist gathers into one entirety the entire human race. Hence, when Adam sinned we all sinned.
3. Adam is the seminal head of the human race, we were all in Adam when Adam sinned.
4. Illustration: Just as Levi was seminally in Abraham when Abraham paid tithes to Melchizedek, so the entire human race was in Adam when Adam sinned.
5. One decision involves a lot of people. Adam made one decision, it involved the entire human race. When FDR declared war on Japan and then Germany, we were in the war as a country.

The active voice: the human race seminally in Adam produces the action of the verb. The decision that Adam made would have been our decision, we would not have done it any differently. The indicative mood is declarative, it represents the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Adam, when he disobeyed, made a decision for the entire human race. Now each member of the human race must make a decision regarding another tree: the cross. One man's decision places all of us under spiritual death, but our own decision of faith in Christ provides us an eternal relationship with God and we have something better than Adam lost.

Romans 5:12 For this reason, just as through one man [Adam] the sin [nature] entered into the world, and the death [spiritual] through the sin [nature]; consequently the death [spiritual] spread to all men, because all sinned [the moment Adam sinned].

Principle

1. The reason we are born with an old sin nature and under spiritual death is because we would have done what Adam did.
2. In this sense Adam is a better man than any of us.
3. If he failed, we would have failed. He did fail and the justice of God involves all of us.
4. We are under the justice of God and that same justice provides blessing where the curse and condemnation of sin existed in the human race.

1977 Romans

Lesson #144

144 07/14/1977 Romans 5 via 1Timothy 2:9–15 "Perfection" = "innocence"; femininity re authority, reaction and response; capacity

We Hold These Truths by Larry McDonald; and Dan Smoot wrote the introduction. If the Constitution does not mean what it says, then we have no Constitution. At least 80% of what government is doing is illegal. It is okay to speak of these things theoretically, but those who agree with his evaluation say that they must be practical politicians. He is surprised that a Congressman writes this.

This is another article. All rights are extensions of property rights. The law can protect only what it can define. This same article points out that Marx's defined end point, the state disappearing, is in error. Tyranny never disappears or lessens.

A letter from a gal on the use of perfection as opposed to innocence to describe the circumstance for Adam and the woman on earth prior to the first sins. Everything that Adam needed came from God's love. Love can minister to perfection; but it cannot minister to imperfect, sinful man. Only justice can.

Bob is going to take us to 1Timothy 2:9–15:

This is how a woman can be charming and great. Feminine pulchritude, feminine royalty; the woman in the local church, the woman in creation, the woman in the fall, the woman in metamorphosis, the woman in godliness.

Beware of the ambitious woman. She can never see life from the standpoint of objectivity. The woman has little authority in life, except over the children. The woman does not have authority in the home. Once a male child is a man, the woman can no longer teach him. The ambitious woman is the one who wants to be well-thought of in life. Women can get out of line when they do not have strong authority; or the proper authority.

Paul thought he should focus on the woman before he gets to the fall.

I will take the translation from Bob's 1Timothy series (not sure if I have vv. 14–15?); some of the notes, if they are about the same, are also taken from this series.

gunê (γυνή) [pronounced goo-NAY] stands for woman. The first verb is kosméō (κοσμέω) [pronounced kohç-MEH-oh], from whence we get cosmetics. The woman is commanded to adorn herself. There is no excuse for the woman not to be beautiful. Customary present tense also tendential for an action not done yet. When a woman goes on a rampage, she loses all beauty. She gets angry or goes on a rampage, this often changes the features of the woman. She is a responder in life; and some responses destroy her. Bible doctrine changes all of that. If inner beauty is there, they stay beautiful. The active voice: Christian women at Ephesus are to produce the action of the verb and, of course, it refers to all Christian women, this is a part of the Word of God. The infinitive is the imperative infinitive used to denote a command.

The man took in doctrine and the woman did not. Their relationship was with the love of God, and not God's justice. When they sinned, the justice of God steps in and judged them.

It is not the physical appearance of the woman, but the condition of her soul. The actual physical appearance is not what the passage means. This is all about beauty of soul. Cosmetics is not just emphasis but it is for a disguise. They hide more than they show. The woman who does the best work with cosmetics knows what to show and what to hide. When those are backwards, he has Halloween.

There is no such thing as a Christian woman who needs to be ugly of soul.

If a woman is called on to become beautiful, this means that she is not born beautiful. The Word of God demands the inner beauty of soul. When men talk about the beauty of women, they all have different ideas and in discussions that Bob has been in, do not mention the woman's soul. The real issue is doctrine in the soul.

You do not have to be ostentatious; but you should dress with respect. No woman can have true beauty without respecting the authorities of what she is under. Femininity is related to her subordination to authority. When submissive, this brings out all of the woman's beauty. But the woman is no good when she loses this submissiveness.

No woman can truly love a man whom she does not respect. She must not confuse feeling sorry for a man with love.

Somewhere in the garden, the woman went on some sort of ego trip or she lost some respect for Adam and even for the Lord Jesus Christ in the garden.

Eve was at least socially unfaithful. Jesus Christ was her authority; and Adam was also her authority. She was socially unfaithful to Adam, her right man.

1Timothy 2:9 Likewise I have made a command decision that women should make themselves beautiful by respectable, well-arranged clothing, associated with respect for authority and good judgment (or common sense); not with emphasis on high fashion hair styling, golden jewelry or either pearls or expensive clothing.

These things are not forbidden; they are not to be emphasized. If you emphasize the superficial, you knock out the true issues of the soul.

The pulchritude of royalty is next:

1Timothy 2:10 But what becomes fitting for women being promised super-grace status [or maturity] through intrinsic good accomplishments.

This moves into parentheses. Women will be in a church and often they have a reaction to the pastor-teacher and they think that they are smarter than the pastor-teacher. Any church is a challenge.

V. 11 begins the parenthesis. The vocative singular begins the sentence and the parenthesis. We also have the absence of the definite article which emphasizes the quality of woman. The absence of the definite article reminds us of the fact that this passages designed so that the woman will be exactly what God intended her to be - the most wonderful thing in life. However, her response can be active or passive. Active response explains the beauty of the woman's aggressiveness in love. This aggressiveness only becomes distorted into something which is non-feminine when the woman reacts in her aggressiveness rather than responding in her aggressiveness.

A woman's response can be active or passive; and her reaction can be active or passive. When the woman reacts, it destroys her beauty.

A woman left Berachah and she came back. "I feel like I have not been away and I understood everything." But she had been out for a few years and missed a lot. The verb "Let learn" is the present active imperative of manthanô (μανθάνω) [pronounced mahn-THAHN-oh] The present tense of the word "learning" is both iterate and tendencial. The iterative present describes what recurs at successive intervals. Learning doctrine in the assembly of the local church occurs at successive intervals. The tendencial present indicates the action which is purposed is not taking place at the moment that Paul writes to Timothy.

Everything in Timothy is about the woman; everything in Romans is about the man.

hēsuchia (ήσυχία) [pronounced hay-soo-KHEE-ah]. Women are less inclined to accept authority. Whether it is her husband, a pastor-teacher, a doctor, etc. Lovers have quarrels because a woman responds to a man in a marvelous way and reacts to him in an intense way. When a woman is reacting, she is responding; and vice versa. How can a woman respond to Bible teaching? By not reacting. When a woman leans over and talks to someone, she is not concentrating. No one can concentrate and think about other things at the same time. There are two kinds of silences; one is verbal and one is mental.

A trash can filled to the brim, you have no room to let in a nice chateaubrion. As a responder, a woman is the most marvelous person in the world. In silence is such a beautiful phrase. The Holy Spirit can take γνώσις and convert it into ἐπίγνωσις. This is a silence of soul so that a thought can come through. You cannot learn if you talk during Bible class. This word means inner tranquility and keeping quiet. A soul cleared out and ready to concentrate.

When women react, they generally talk. If they do not talk, they turn it inward and pound themselves to pieces. Angry words from some of the sweetest people regardless of the circumstances. Being in a church means nothing to a reacting woman. Such women become vulnerable to reversionism. Most conspiracies in a church start with women, who require a weak man to move it forward.

With all subjection is en plus the word pas. Pas means not only all but entire. These are both in the instrumental. With pas is hupotagê (ὑποταγή) [pronounced hoop-ot-ag-AY], and the best translation is "with entire subordination." This is a military word. There is a corresponding verb.

1Timothy 2:11 Women be learning in silence with complete [or, entire] subordination (to authority).

The woman in the garden failed to meet this principle. Love has no restrain; they was their responding motivator. Women respond better to justice than they do to love. They respect the power and authority that comes from justice. Divine love is not a restrainer. The woman cannot resist Satan because she has no inner resources. She hooks up with this stranger. She rejected the authority of Christ and the authority of her husband. When a woman reacts, she loses all respect for all categories of authority. Only justice can bring her back into line; but not love.

She gives a false interpretation. You cannot eat it and you cannot touch it. Before the fall, she thought that you can die a spiritual death or if you touch. When she ate and did not die, then she handles the fruit.

Clothing of the soul is necessary for spiritual advance. She failed to advance.

We have the present active indicative of epitrepô (ἐπιτρέπω) [pronounced ep-ee-TREP-oh] which means to permit, plus the strong negative ouk. Translation: "But I do not permit." The present tense is a static present for a condition which perpetually exists in the Church Age. The active voice: Paul is speaking and producing the action of the verb. Here is the first of several indication in the epistles that Timothy is having a hard time from the ladies. Timothy did not know how to cope with insubordinate women. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of historical reality. The strong negative is a command of unqualified assertion.

The wife goes around looking for a job; and let's say that she has a lot of authority in the business world. But she shifts gears every night. But she changes back. But, she brings her authority back with her, eventually. By teaching over men and women, the woman loses her femininity. The worst thing to happen to a woman is to lose her responsiveness. Without her responsiveness, there is no priest nation.

1Timothy 2:12 But I do not permit a woman to teach, nor do I permit her to exercise authority over a man, but to be in silence.

Aorist passive indicative of plássō (πλάσσω) [pronounced PLAS-so], which means, to form, to mold.

1Timothy 2:13 For Adam was formed first, then Eve;... (ESV)

Aorist active participle of verb: apatáō (ἀπατάω) [pronounced ap-at-AH-oh], which means, to deceive. The name of Satan's dialogue is deception. Listen, ladies, you can be deceived while you are being flattered. And Satan flattered the woman. "Go ahead and eat; and you can be just like God." All of us have been flattered, but it was really deception. The woman with doctrine would not be flattered. There was only one sin in the garden, and that was taking from the tree. Satan flattered her and appealed for her vanity.

The aorist active participle of verb: exapatáō (ἐξαπατάω) [pronounced ex-ap-at-AH-oh], which means, to deceive, to beguile, to seduce wholly. Adam was not deceived. He was not vulnerable to deception. The woman knocked Adam off his perch; but the woman did. That woman, being deceived.

The woman was deceived and she became the first sinner (the transgressor). She was vain; she was ignorant; she was rejecting authority. When a woman reacts, she rejects authority.

There is a difference between the man and the woman.

1Timothy 2:14 But although that woman had been completely deceived, she had come to be [in the transgression] with the result that she remained in the transgression.

"she shall be saved" - future passive indicative of sôzō (σώζω) [pronounced SOHD-zoh]. The future tense is a gnomic future, which is a statement of fact expected as a result of the first advent of Christ. The first advent was future but it was regarded as absolutely occurring. Even though it is future in God's plan Christ will come in the flesh. The passive voice: the woman receives salvation through the virgin birth, the incarnation of Christ, His impeccability, and His death on the cross. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of dogmatic, unqualified reality. The reality doctrine here is the virgin birth of Jesus Christ.

1Timothy 2:15a In fact, she will be delivered (or saved) through childbearing (the virgin birth).

The virgin birth allows the Lord to come into the world apart from copulation. He was free from the imputation of Adam's sin. Jesus was tempted in greater ways than we will ever be tempted. The woman was tempted and deceived; the man sinned knowingly; and the sin nature is passed down through the man.

The virgin birth is an extensive study, so we won't go into it.

The woman's variables are intensified. She responds all of her life and she cannot live beyond her capacity. If she tries, she goes into reversionism. This is what the woman did. She tried this, tried that, etc. Everyone needs to find out what their capacity is and not go beyond it. Feminine godliness is the answer for all the variables. Her happiness demands that she has doctrine. When she moves past her capacity, she loses her femininity. This results in disaster. If a woman tries to order people about. The woman is past her capacity when she dialogues with Satan. She was an easy victim, lacking the doctrine necessary to meet the challenge.

If they persist in doctrine and love. Doctrine and love (reference to the filling of the Spirit). Those together = cracking the maturity barrier. With stability of mind means that she stays with her own capacity. The woman can be happy and have others be happy around her.

Sooner or later, you ladies must decide what your capacity is. You cannot reject it and you cannot move beyond it. Don't do it, ladies.

1977 Romans

Lesson #145

145 07/16/1977 Romans 5:13 Sin and salvation preceded the Law; imputation of sinful trend of Adam cf. personal sin

Man was created perfect by God. Origin of sin in the human race is on Adam's shoulder. Everything that God provided in the garden was perfect. Only negative volition could destroy that negative environment. God does not tempt nor does He sponsor sin.

God can bless us as believers because we have His righteousness. All blessing in the garden came directly from the love of God. But the love of God cannot sustain man in temptation. The love of God was the point of reference to man. Love can only bless man; love cannot punish or curse man.

God loves the other members of the Godhead; and God loves His Own integrity.

When man fell, justice is applied; and from then to now, justice is our point of reference with God. This also brings with it eternal security.

Romans 5:13 For until the Law, sin was in the world; but sin is not imputed, there being no law.

Verse 13 – “For until the law sin was in the world.” The explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, and with it an adverb used as an improper preposition: achri/achris (ἄχρι/ἄχρις) [pronounced AHKH-ree/AHKH-rece]. The object of the adverb is the genitive of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]—“law.” It is translated literally, “For until the law [was given].” The verb is implied by the nature of the syntax. The subject is the nominative singular of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah]. The old sin nature is Adam's sinful trend. He established this trend for the entire human race.

After five years of theology heard nothing about Adam's trend. He heard one time from one professor that the sin of Adam was imputed to us. Personal sin is the result of Adam's sinful trend.

Then the perfect active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], meaning to be, to exist, sometimes even to come to be. The imperfect tense is the imperfect of duration, it contemplates the process of sin as having gone on in the past up to the time denoted by the context, but without any necessary inference as to whether or not the process has been completed. The active voice: the sinfulness of man produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine. "For until the law sin was in the world." This means that the principle of sin continued from the fall of Adam to the time of Moses, and that every person who ever lived committed personal sins during that time. With or without the Mosaic law sins have always been committed. In other words, the Mosaic law is not a restrainer of sin, it is a declarer or a communicator of sin. It defines sin for us but it doesn't restrain us from sin. It defines sin and relates it to its penalty. Personal sin is the principle of doing things that are sinful, and then it is the practice of doing those things. So that sin in the singular always deals with the principle. Sin in the plural (sins) is the practice.

"in the world" – en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of κόσμος (κόσμος) [pronounced KOSS-moss]. The principle of sin was there, the function and practice of sin was there, and the law didn't hinder it. Furthermore, people were saved, and the law didn't provide it. With or without the Mosaic law all of us were born spiritually dead.

Legalism was the basis for the persecution of Paul and others. Legalism came from the distortion of the Mosaic Law. The purpose of the law is not to save. It demonstrates that there is an answer to the sin problem.

The purpose of the law is related to the priest nation. God deals very harshly with the priest nation when we get out of line.

Sin and original sin and Adam's sinful trend all existed prior to the Law; and they all continued after the Law.

The imputation of Adam's sin is the basis of our condemnation. Therefore by the justice of God imputing the sin of Adam to us and giving us spiritual death He could bring us out of the pit of spiritual death by taking our personal sins, unjudged by the justice of God, and putting them on the cross so that the justice of God can judge our personal sins and we get out of the jamb. This is perfect justice.

Imputation of Adam's Sin is the Basis of Our Condemnation

1. Personal sin existed in the world from Adam to Moses but personal sin was not the basis for condemnation from the justice of God.

2. The basis for condemnation from the justice of God is the imputation of Adam's sin plus the receiving Adam's trend toward sin (the old sin nature). All sinners commit sin from the status of spiritual death.
3. Our personal sins are the manifestation of spiritual death, but they are not the cause of spiritual death.

Personal sin is not the issue in salvation; personal sin is an issue in the life of the believer; but renouncing sin as an unbeliever would gain us nothing. Condemnation of man occurs at birth; we are born with a sin nature and with Adam's original sin imputed to us. All sinners commit sin from the status of spiritual death. We were spiritually dead prior to committing our first sin. Our personal sins are the manifestation of spiritual death; but not the cause of spiritual death.

“but sin is not imputed when there is no law” – the nominative singular subject from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah]. The singular gives us three possibilities: imputed sin, the old sin nature, or the principle of personal sin. Here we have the principle of personal sin. The negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] plus the present passive indicative of ellogéō (ἐλλογέω) [pronounced el-log-EH-oh] which means to impute. The historical present tense views the past event with the vividness of a present occurrence, giving it great emphasis. The passive voice: personal sins receive the action of the verb—non-imputation. Our personal sins are not imputed to us. Sin in the singular can also refer to personal sin but it does not refer to personal sin as individual sins but as personal sin as a principle. The indicative mood is declarative viewing the action of the verb from the viewpoint of reality.

Plus the genitive absolute composed of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] in the genitive as the subject plus the present active temporal participle eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. There is also a negative and it should read, when the law did not exist.”

Romans 5:13 For until the law the sin nature was in the world, and imputed sin was in the world; but personal sin was not imputed when the law did not exist.

Paul is taking the sting out of the Law. The human race existed without the Law, and people were condemned without the Law and they were saved without the Law. All of these various things took place without the Law.

Adam's Sin Imputed to Us at Birth

1. This verse emphasizes the fact that all the human race sinned when Adam sinned.
2. The basis for man's condemnation from the justice of God is the imputation of Adam's sin, as well as the possession at birth of the old sin nature or Adam's trend to sin.
3. Therefore we are born spiritually dead as a judgment from the justice of God.
4. Imputed sin and inherent sin is the basis for our condemnation rather than personal sins. At birth, we are condemned. Our trial occurred in Genesis 3. Adam's trial was our trial. The wages of sin is death. We are born dead. We are born condemned.

5. While personal sin existed in the human race from Adam to Moses it was never the basis for condemnation. Our personal sins are judged once on the cross.
6. Adam's sin was imputed to the human race.
7. The personal sins of the human race are never imputed to the individual but all are imputed to Christ on the cross.
8. At the cross personal sins—past, present, and future—were imputed to Christ and then judged by the justice of God as grace provision for our salvation.
9. Condemnation came to the human race at birth through the imputation of Adam's sin and the possession of Adam's sin nature.
10. All members of the human race, except the humanity of Christ, are born spiritually dead—Ephesians 2:1,5. We arrived at spiritual death without committing a personal sin.

At salvation, the imputation of Adam's sin is replaced by the imputation of God's righteousness. Our condemnation by the justice of God is overwritten by justification by God's righteousness.

Adam's Sin Imputed to Us at Birth Part II

1. Spiritual death, condemnation from the justice of God, was not because of personal sins but because Adam sinned.
2. The imputation of sin is the doctrine of the imputation of Adam's sin to the human race, an act of the justice of God following the trial in the garden.
3. It is not the imputation of personal sin to the human race.
4. In other words, personal sin is not the issue in salvation. Cf. Romans 5:12.
5. It is imperative to understand that personal sin is never imputed until the cross.
6. On the cross Christ not only bore our sins as a result of imputation but was judged for our sins as the means of salvation.
7. In other words, the justice of God judged Adam's sin in the garden and our sins on the cross.
8. So Adam's sin was imputed to us at birth with resultant spiritual death. We acquired the old sin nature which also results in spiritual death. All personal sins were imputed^[8] to Christ so that we could be born again as justified and possessors of eternal life.
9. Two instant adjustments to the justice of God: salvation and rebound.

This is very elliptical, suggesting that Paul had become very excited about what he was understanding at this point.

The basis of God's perfect justice is not our personal sins. He imputed to each one of us at birth is Adam's sin. This is the reason that we are born condemned. The sin nature is also a part of our being at the moment of birth. Many people think that, if they never sin during this life, that they will be acceptable to God. But we are condemned on the basis of Adam's sin and the basis of having a sin nature. All of our personal sins are poured out upon Jesus Christ when He was on the cross. These sins were imputed to Him and He paid the penalty for all of these sins. This allows for us to have this so great salvation. We have the potential of this salvation also at birth.

The Doctrine of Imputation (from Notes)

I have several doctrines of imputation available to place here, but none of them match what Bob is teaching here. Also, when I placed one of them back in Romans 4, there was very little match up between that doctrine and Bob's teaching. So here, I just took notes.

1. Imputation connotes attributing or ascribing; imputation can ascribe either cursing or blessing, since imputation comes from the justice of God, both avenues are open. The justice of God can curse or bless. Cursing imputes sin and discipline; and blessing is different.
2. Two types of imputations: real and judicial. Real are things which are antecedently belonging to the receiver of the imputations. When an imputation is done where something is not antecedently the receptors.
3. The sin of Adam is imputed to the human race. A demonstration of the wisdom of God.
4. The sins of the world were poured out on the Person of Jesus Christ. This was a judicial imputation. This makes possible to have God's righteousness imputed to us. God can bless us IF we are good as God is. We are sinners by nature, sinners by the imputation of Adam's sin, and by our personal sins, and by the possession of the sin nature. We have no way by which we can gain the respect of God or God's blessing. God provides us with His perfect righteousness, so that He is able to bless us. No one possesses God's righteousness until God imputes it to us. 1Peter 2:24 2Corinthians 5:21 (?) Personal sin can be punished without imputation. That punishment is not judgment; punishment for personal sins is done for blessing. If we were judged for a personal sin, we would be immediately cast into the Lake of Fire. All of our personal sins were poured out on Jesus Christ.
5. The story of the cross is the pouring out of our sins onto Jesus Christ. On the cross, all of our sins were judicially imputed to Jesus Christ. The justice of God can only give blessing where perfection exists; and our sins were imputed to Him so that His righteousness might be imputed to us. And we have the ability to be blessed in many other ways, because we possess the Lord's righteousness. Isaiah 53:10–11 Yet it was the will of the LORD to crush him; he has put him to grief; when his soul makes an offering for guilt, he shall see his offspring; he shall prolong his days; the will of the LORD shall prosper in his hand. Out of the anguish of his soul he shall see and be satisfied; by his knowledge shall the righteous one, my servant, make many to be accounted righteous, and he shall bear their iniquities.

6. The righteousness of God is imputed to the believer. Romans 4:3–5 For what does the scripture say? Now Abraham had believed in the God [the Lord Jesus Christ], and it [faith in Christ] was credited to him [Abraham] for righteousness [= ½ of divine integrity]. (Genesis 15:6) But to him who works for salvation his compensation [reimbursement] is not credited according to grace, but according to debt. But to him who does not work for salvation but believes on Him Who justifies the unbeliever, his faith receives credit for the imputation of divine righteousness.
7. Abraham is the pattern for all of us. Philippians 3:9 Also that I might be discovered in Him not having my own righteousness from the Law but that righteousness which is imputed by means of faith in Christ, the righteousness from the source of God at the point of faith in Christ.
8. The gentiles who pursued righteousness through faith in Christ, attained the righteousness of God. The Jews who tried to earn it from the Law did not receive the righteousness of God.
9. Romans 4:22–25 imputation is the basis for all direct blessing from God. Matthew 6:23.
10. Several imputations given in this doctrine:
 - a. Genesis 15:6 Now Abraham had believed in the God [the Lord Jesus Christ], and it [faith in Christ] was credited to him [Abraham] for righteousness. Salvation is imputed on the basis of faith in the Revealed God.
 - b. Isaiah 53:5 But He was pierced for our transgressions; He was crushed for our iniquities; upon Him was the chastisement that brought us peace, and with His wounds we are healed. Our sins were imputed to Jesus Christ.
 - c. Romans 4:3–5 For what does the scripture say? Now Abraham had believed in the God [the Lord Jesus Christ], and it [faith in Christ] was credited to him [Abraham] for righteousness [= ½ of divine integrity]. (Genesis 15:6) But to him who works for salvation his compensation [reimbursement] is not credited according to grace, but according to debt. But to him who does not work for salvation but believes on Him Who justifies the unbeliever, his faith receives credit for the imputation of divine righteousness.
 - d. 2Corinthians 5:21 For our sake He [God the Father] made Him [Jesus Christ] to be sin Who knew no sin, so that in Him we might become the righteousness of God.
 - e. Philippians 3:9 Also that I might be discovered in Him not having my own righteousness from the Law but that righteousness which is imputed by means of faith in Christ, the righteousness from the source of God at the point of faith in Christ.

Romans 5:14 Nevertheless death reigned from Adam until Moses, even over those not having sinned in the likeness of the transgression of Adam, who is a type of the coming One.

Verse 14 – “Nevertheless death reigned from Adam to Moses.” Death had to reign from Adam to Moses because the sin of Adam was imputed to every member of the human race at the point of physical birth. This verse begins with the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] used to set up a comparison between two clauses. Sin was not imputed where there is no law, nevertheless there is still the penalty of sin. The Mosaic law was given at the time of Moses. From Adam to Moses, as thereafter, spiritual death reigned because of the imputation of Adam’s sin to each person at the point of physical birth. Then the aorist active indicative of the verb basilissa (βασίλισσα) [pronounced bahs-IHL-ih-s-SAH], meaning to rule or to reign. The constative aorist tense gathers up into one entirety the fact that spiritual death applies to the entire human race from Adam to Moses. It actually applies all the way through history.

The active voice: ho thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], spiritual death, produces the action of the verb. Spiritual death rules in the human race, and it refers to the fact that spiritual death is the penalty of Adam’s sin and we are all under spiritual death. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. With this is a prepositional phrase apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the proper noun Adam (Ἀδάμ) [pronounced ad-AM], and then an improper preposition méchri (μέχρι) [pronounced MEHKH-ree] plus Môseus/Môsês/Môusês (Μωσεύς/Μωσῆς/Μωῦσῆς) [pronounced moce-YOOC, moh-SACE]—“until Moses.”

Spiritual death and the Imputation of Adam’s Sin

1. Since Adam’s sin was imputed to the human race, the human race receives condemnation from the justice of God, namely spiritual death.
2. In spite of the absence of the divine norm, the Mosaic law which defines personal sin, personal sin was not the issue in spiritual death.
3. Spiritual death, condemnation from the justice of God, comes from the imputation of Adam’s sin, not from personal sins.
4. Therefore, the Mosaic law which defines personal sin in the light of the essence of God is not the issue in the condemnation of mankind as was emphasized by the Judaizers and legalistic Jews.
5. Death rules because every member of the human race received by direct imputation Adam’s sin, and at the same time at physical birth received an old sin nature.
6. Personal sin was never imputed until the cross, and at that time it was imputed for the purpose of judgment from the justice of God.
7. Every member of the human race from Adam to Moses was under the penalty of sin which is spiritual death.
8. Such condemnation from the justice of God was based on imputed and inherent, but not personal, sin.
9. Personal sin is a fact in every person in the human race, but personal sin was not the basis for condemnation.

10. Adam's sin is the basis for condemnation for Adam is the federal head of the human race.
11. Spiritual death is the ruler of the human race.
12. The universal rule of spiritual death implies the universal rule of imputed and inherent sin.

“even over them that had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression” –

some person will say they sinned in different ways, so is that fair? This will answer that question. The conjunctive particle kai is used as an ascensive adverb, meaning “even.” Then the prepositional phrase ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative plural from the definite article, and then ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the accusative having a directional concept for sin—“even over those.” The definite article is used as a demonstrative pronoun. Then the negative plus the aorist active participle of hamartanō (ἁμαρτάνω) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TAHN-oh]. This is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. The active voice: people living between Adam and Moses produce the action. The participle is circumstantial—“who have not sinned.”

The phrase “after the similitude of Adams' transgression” – ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the locative of homoíōma (ὁμοίωμα) [pronounced hom-OY-oh-mah], which means, likeness, which means “likeness” or “in the likeness.” Plus the possessive genitive of parabasis (παράβασις) [pronounced par-AB-as-is] which means “transgression.” So, “even over those who had not sinned in the likeness of Adam's transgression [original sin].”

Adam's Sin is Imputed to All

1. Adam's sin was negative volition, direct disobedience to the command of God, regarding the prohibition of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. God set up a test for man in his perfection. The test was for his volition which was free.
2. One thing man did not need in the garden was garden was to understand good and evil, the policy of Satan.
3. While many members of the human race do not have the duplicate, the exact sin that Adam had, we do have the facsimile and the justice of God recognizes the facsimile under the principle of guilt. In other words, everyone does not express sin in the same way.
4. All are just as guilty and under the penalty of sin (spiritual death) because of the imputed sin of Adam and because of the old sin nature.
5. Therefore the entire human race was in Adam when Adam sinned.
6. Condemnation does not originate from personal sin but from imputed or inherent sin.
7. Personal sin is the result of spiritual death rather than the means of spiritual death in the human race.
8. Personal sin is the direct result of being born with the imputation of Adam's sin plus the old sin nature. All personal sin comes directly from the old sin nature.
9. Not only sin but good and evil emanate from the old sin nature.

10. Sin, good, and evil however, are not the basis for spiritual death. They are the result of spiritual death.
11. Between Adam and Moses personal sins were not imputed for condemnation though personal sins existed in abundance.
12. Imputed and inherent sin is the basis for condemnation, never personal sin.

1977 Romans

147 07/17/1977 Romans 5:14b Doctrines of the virgin birth and divine attributes (partial)

The hyper-Calvinist says that our point of contact with God is His sovereignty. Fundamentalist viewpoint today is that our point of contact with God is love. This is true in perfection, but not with a fallen man. Most of the time where God is the subject and love is the verb, love is an anthropopathism.

The a fortiori concept.

When people speak of the human race as being one, this should help us to understand when God is spoken of as being one.

Romans 5:14 Nevertheless death reigned from Adam until Moses, even over those not having sinned in the likeness of the transgression of Adam, who is a type of the coming One.

“who is the figure of him that was to come” – the nominative singular relative pronoun hos which has as its antecedent Adam. Plus the present active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. This is a dramatic present tense, a past event is viewed with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: Jesus Christ as the last Adam is the one who is destined to come. Adam keeps on being the type rather than the figure. The word for figure is a predicate nominative from tupos (τύπος) [pronounced TOO-poss], and with the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] we have “who keeps on being a type.” The static present establishes forever the fact that there is a typology. Adam is the type, Christ is the antitype. The reason for this typology is the fact that Adam was created perfect from the hand of God, whereas Christ was born perfect by the grace of God. So we have only two people in all of history who were perfect at their beginning. The beginning of the first Adam was creation, whereas the last Adam was born perfect. Thus the static present to indicate that this will always be a type and antitype. The present active participle of mellō (μέλλω) [pronounced MEHL-low] is a little misleading here, it means to be about to be, to be on the point of, and also to be destined. It denotes an action that necessarily follows a divine decree. Corrected translation: “who is a type of him [Christ] who was destined to come.” Notice the past tense, “was destined.” Even though it is a present tense it is a historical present and it can be translated with the past tense. The participle is circumstantial referring to the first advent of Christ.

Romans 5:14 Nevertheless the spiritual death rule from Adam to Moses, even over those Who had not sinned in the likeness of Adam's transgression, who is a type of Him [Christ] Who was destined to come.

Principle

1. Adam is a type of Christ from the standpoint of federal headship of the human race.
2. Only two men in human history, Adam and Christ, are federal heads. Adam is the federal head of mankind and Christ is the federal head from the new birth.
3. The first Adam was created perfect and sinned, bringing condemnation to the human race. The author of sin is Adam.
4. The last Adam was perfect and was judged for our sins on the cross, bringing salvation to the human race.

Notice that neither the first Adam nor the last Adam started with an old sin nature. Both were minus anything related to sin; both had free will. The choice of the first Adam was negative, putting the human race under sin; the choice of the last Adam was positive, putting the human race in the category of salvation. The first Adam, then, acquired the old sin nature or the trend to sin through his own original sin. The last Adam was impeccable and never had an old sin nature, even though He was tempted far beyond anyone else who has ever lived. Because of the impeccability of Jesus Christ He was qualified to go to the cross as the last Adam and be judged for our sins. There was no imputation of our personal sins until the cross, and then they were imputed to Christ on the cross and judged by the justice of God. Therefore we have type and antitype. Adam is the author of spiritual death; the last Adam is the author of eternal life—1Corinthians 15:22, 45.

Bob covers the doctrine of the Virgin Birth again (previously covered in lesson #5). Whatever notes given here will be placed with that doctrine. Doctrine of the Virgin Birth Receiving things which are associated with blessing; but without the capacity, you cannot enjoy these things. The Doctrine of the Virgin Birth. Divine attributes are touched on in this lesson, but the related notes for this are back in lesson #6 (so that I do not repeat these doctrines over and over again).

Lesson #148

148 07/18/1977 Romans 5:15a A FORTIORI capacity for blessing; first cf. last Adam; false points of contact with God

Translation checked.

God keeps us alive to give us maximum blessing. We are told that our lives must be horrible or embarrassing or painful. All of these things are false. We cannot glorify God without spiritual growth. We must fulfill the reason to be alive in this life. We look to become spiritually mature. We think that we must do everything as if it belongs on us. The objectives in the Word of God demand potential + capacity = reality. God wants our capacity commensurate with the blessing given us by God.

There are some very heavy chapters on Adam's original sin and our sin nature.

Romans 5:15 But so also the gift is not like the trespass. For if by the trespass of the one, the many died, how much more did the grace of God and the gift in grace, which is of the one man Jesus Christ, abound to the many!

Verse 15 – the a fortiori of capacity for blessing, hence the a fortiori for blessing in time. “But not as the offence, so also is the free gift.” The adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-l-LAH] sets up a contrast. It is emphasizing here the difference between the first and the last Adams, between the type and the antitype; in other words, between Adam and Christ. Then the strong negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] used with the indicative to deny the reality of an alleged fact, plus the comparative particle hos with this negative, indicating the manner in which something does not proceed.

Then the nominative singular subject paráptōma (παράπτωμα) [pronounced par-AP-to-mah] which is used technically for Adam's original sin and correctly translated “transgression.” It is used with the definite article as a demonstrative pronoun and can be translated “But not as that transgression [the original sin of Adam].” The adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] refers to what precedes in setting up a set of comparative clauses.

Plus the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai—“also,” plus the predicate nominative of the noun charisma (χάρισμα) [pronounced KHAHR-ees-mah] which means a grace gift, or a gracious gift. It refers to the salvation work of Jesus Christ on the cross being judged for our sins. In other words, a contrast is being set up between the first and the last Adam. “But not as that transgression [the original sin of Adam], so also is that gracious gift [the work of Christ on the cross].”

Christ versus Adam

1. As noted in the previous verse Christ as the antitype to Adam's type is impeccable, perfect in His humanity, not a sinner. Christ is not a sinner in any sense of the word. The first Adam was not a sinner but became a sinner.
2. Christ did not have a sin nature, did not have the imputation of Adam's sin, did not have any personal sin, in contrast to the first Adam.
3. The typology of the two Adams, then, can only be carried a certain distance. It cannot be carried into their persons because as persons they were quite different. Adam was unique because he was created perfect and fell. Christ was unique because He is the God-Man and remained in His humanity impeccable. So there has to be some basis for setting up type and antitype. The answer is simple. Each one is a federal head of the human race.
4. Adam is the federal head of the human race through physical birth, while Christ is the federal head of the human race through spiritual birth.

5. This is why we must be born again to have an eternal relationship with the integrity of God.
6. Here the analogy ends and the contrast begins. The first Adam brought condemnation on the entire human race, while the last Adam brings salvation to the human race.
7. Because of the first Adam the justice of God condemns man, but because of the last Adam the justice of God is free to provide blessing for man—beginning at salvation through imputed righteousness and justification.
8. Therefore, while the human race is born in Adam the human race is born again in Christ. The noun paráptōma (παράπτωμα) [pronounced par-AP-to-mah] refers to the judgment from the justice of God on Adam and therefore on the human race. The words paráptōma (παράπτωμα) [pronounced par-AP-to-mah], belonging to the first Adam, and charisma (χάρισμα) [pronounced KHAHR-ees-mah], which belongs to the last Adam, are set up in contrast.

But not as that transgression, but so it the gracious gift.

The Concept

1. That blessing from the justice of God, i.e. the imputation of divine righteousness and resultant justification, is potential for blessing in time that means great reward in eternity.
2. Remember that the point of reference for the human race is the integrity of God—righteousness and justice. We do not have a point of contact with omnipotence or with God's love.
3. Righteousness demands righteousness and justice demands justice. When God works on our behalf it is because these things have been fulfilled.
4. Justice executes what righteousness demands.
5. Therefore our point of contact is always the justice of God. We are never going to be given anything from God which compromises His character, but we are going to be given wonderful things which glorify His person. Everything depends upon our potential, and our potential depends upon the doctrinal content of our soul.
6. The justice of God gives us the righteousness of God at the moment of salvation, the point of faith in Christ.
7. As a result the highway for blessing is open. From justice to righteousness is the highway through which all of these blessings come to us.
8. All blessing from God originates with divine justice and terminates with divine righteousness imputed.
9. Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness.
10. This is the potential principle for all blessing from God. All blessing from God to the born again believer must be related also to the potential principle—the fact that we have God's righteousness. But He will never give us anything unless we have the capacity, and therefore capacity becomes a big issue. Principle: If God provided the greater in justification it follows a fortiori that He will provide the less in temporal blessing from the justice of God. Furthermore, the provision of temporal blessing glorifies God, and for any born again believer to have any of the blessings of life in the devil's world it is glorifying to God.

*Bob was in a situation where he had to clear everything that he did with many men before taking it to the general. So, the omnipotence of God must clear everything with the justice of God. The justice of God is the guardians of all assets of God. Omniscience only functions through the justice of God. So an instant cure is only possible if this is cleared through the justice of God.

Adam's fall causes the justice of God to curse us at birth. The fall of man is imputed to us at birth; and we are cured until we are born again. One source for cursing and blessing.

“For if through the offence of one many be dead” – the conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] introduces the protasis of a first class condition, a supposition from the viewpoint of reality. This protasis forms the basis for the a fortiori of capacity for blessing. With this conjunctive particle is the postpositive conjunction gar which expresses an explanation. Then the instrumental singular of paráptōma (παράπτωμα) [pronounced par-AP-to-mah], meaning transgression, is technical and specific here for the sin of Adam. The instrumental here with the definite article expresses the means to indicate a demonstrative pronoun. The definite article, by the way, is almost always used as a demonstrative pronoun in the Attic Greek, which Paul uses here. The demonstrative calls attention with special emphasis to a designated object, i.e. the fall of man, the original sin of Adam. “For if by that transgression [Adam's original sin].”

Plus the possessive genitive singular from the definite article carrying the full force of a demonstrative pronoun, as per Attic Greek. With it is the genitive of the adjective numeral heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn], showing that one person determined the course of the human race at a certain point in history. It refers to Adam and it is translated “of that one.” Plus the nominative masculine plural from the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS], used as a substantive to include the entire human race. The only exception was the virgin birth.

The aorist active indicative of the verb apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], died.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it gathers into one entirety the implication of Adam's sin to everyone born into the human race. The active voice: the human race produces the action of the verb at the instant of physical birth. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine, namely the universality of spiritual death in the human race.

“much more the grace of God” – the dative singular adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] – “much,” and the comparative adverb mallon (μᾶλλον) [pronounced MAL-Ion] – “more.” This is actually an idiom of greater degree and “much more” is used to introduce a fortiori logic. If the greater function of the justice of God has occurred the less will not be withheld.

If God can do the greater, then God can accomplish the less. The greater thing is salvation. But blessings in time is much easier for God to give to us. What is holding it up? Why haven't I yet arrived? The key is capacity. It would be a crime for God to give us blessing before giving us the capacity for that blessing first. If God did the just thing regarding Adam and his sin; then it follows that God will do the just thing regarding us after salvation.

Principle: God provides more in grace than man had in innocence before the fall. God provides more in the imputation of divine righteousness than He did in the garden where no righteousness had been imputed.

1977 Romans

Lesson #149

149 07/19/1977 Romans 5:15b A FORTIORI salvation provides the believer with more than Adam lost at the Fall

Translation checked.

There was no imputation of Adam's sin to Jesus. The typology of the two Adams can only be carried so far. We have compared the transgression of Adam with the gift from the grace of God.

Romans 6 means that you must understand just what God has done for us in order to appreciate what retroactive positional truth is. Grace increases and that is something that we ought to know about and have.

Believers run the gamut from imbecile to great. The 6th chapter of Romans is one of the most difficult chapters in the Bible. It starts about by saying, "Should we sin so that grace might increase?" If you don't sin to increase grace, what do you do in order to increase grace? When is grace static and when does it increase? It behooves us to stick around and find out what it is. The only people who have spent any time in this chapter who just skim off a little water and dunk you in it. However, there is no water baptism in the book of Romans.

We have security for those who succeed or fail. We will all wind up in the same place, although we will not have the same amount of reward.

Romans 5:15 But so also the gift is not like the trespass. For if by the trespass of the one, the many died, how much more did the grace of God and the gift in grace, which is of the one man Jesus Christ, abound to the many!

God provides more for us in grace than Adam and the woman had in the garden. We have not lost anything; and Satan has not destroyed anything that we will never see again.

"and the gift by grace" – the word for "gift" here is dōreá (δωρεά) [pronounced do-reh-AH]. The word charisma (χάρισμα) [pronounced KHAHR-ees-mah] always indicates the ability related to the gift; dōreá (δωρεά) [pronounced do-reh-AH] has an entirely different connotation. This is the nominative subject dōreá (δωρεά) [pronounced do-reh-AH] referring to the incarnation, the hypostatic union, impeccability, followed by the justice of God judging our sins when they were imputed to Christ on the cross. It also includes redemption, reconciliation, propitiation, for these are the greater which have been given while the less becomes imputation and justification. The gift is the uniqueness of the person of Christ—“much more the grace of God and the gift by the grace, by the one man, Jesus Christ.” The words “the gift by the grace” is en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental of charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic]. We not only have grace as a principle but grace as a means of providing. So we have the principle of grace and the action of grace combined to put this together.

Next the ablative of source from heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] – “one,” and the noun anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos] – man: “by the one man,” and then “Jesus Christ.”

Principle: If God did the most for us when we were spiritually dead in Adam He can only do much more than the most for us now that we possess divine righteousness and resultant justification. That is because when the most was done for us we were related to the wrong man—Adam. But now we are related to the right man—Jesus Christ.

We are related to Adam by birth; and we have committed the same sin that Adam sinned imputed to us. Furthermore, we have Adam’s sinful trend. However, now there is something new—we are related now to the last Adam as opposed to the first Adam.

The greatest thing has been done for us while we were in spiritual death. Therefore, God can do much more than the most for us while we are related to the last Adam.

The ablative of means expresses the origin. This is where the a fortiori logic comes in.

“hath abounded unto many” – eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural from the definite article, plus the accusative plural of polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS]. The only qualification is instant adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ. It should be translated “to the many.” That is, the many who believe.

The verb means to increase or superabundant. It is the aorist active indicative of the verb perisseuō (περισσεύω) [pronounced per-iss-SUE-oh]. It is used in a transitive sense. It means to make over rich, to provide in superabundance, to increase beyond imagination. We can translate it, “has provided superabundance for the many” or “has provided over-richness for the many.” The many are the believers. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the work of Christ on the cross in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results.

Interesting that this is an aorist and not present tense.

The existing results are three fold: a) the potential which comes at salvation, the imputation of divine righteousness and resultant justification; b) the capacity, the provision of Bible doctrine; c) the reality is maturity adjustment to the justice of God resulting in superabundance of blessing from the justice of God. The active voice: Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb. He has provided superabundance for the many who believe. The indicative mood is declarative viewing the action of the verb from the viewpoint of reality. We are made overrich; God overdoes, as it were. This phrase emphasizes the potential and the capacity.

Romans 5:15 But not as that transgression [Adam's original sin], so also is that gracious gift [the work of Christ]. For if by the transgression [the original sin] of [that] one [Adam] the many died [spiritual death (and they did)], much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, by the one man, Jesus Christ, who has provided superabundance for the many [who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ].

Greater Blessings than in the Garden

1. The believer in Christ through salvation adjustment to the justice of God has been placed in a greater position than that which was lost by Adam in the garden.
2. God provides more in grace adjustment to the justice of God than man ever possessed originally in the garden, with all of its perfection.
3. The gift of grace, Jesus Christ, provides the a fortiori link.
4. The justice of God did the most in judging our sins when Christ was carrying them on the cross.
5. If the justice of God did the greater at the cross it follows a fortiori that the justice of God can do the less—temporal and eternal blessing for the mature believer.
6. The sin of the first Adam results in the condemnation of the human race.
7. But now the grace gift of God provides more for the many than was lost originally.
8. The work of Christ on the cross provided man with more than Adam had before the fall.
9. Hence, the believer is not restored to the status of Adam before the fall, he is restored to something far greater than Adam ever had. The believer is restored to super-paradise in the devil's world.
10. This constitutes a double a fortiori. If God can do the greater at salvation He can do the less after salvation. If God can do less after salvation He can do greater than less again and again and again.
11. So salvation adjustment to the justice of God, which is less than the work of Christ, becomes greater once more through maturity adjustment to the justice of God. It increases, it expands, from less to greater.

Man has done his worse; and therefore, God has done His best.

Because salvation makes us God's children, God is able to make great things happen for us. We are in the driver's seat for the most fantastic blessings (but we can also face great discipline as well).

150 07/20/1977 Romans 5:16 Good production of the old sin nature; one sin of Adam lead to condemnation of all, one bearing sins leads to one justification

There is a huge amount of good done from the sin nature. The sin nature rules the life of unbelievers. The sin nature is the source of all the disasters of history. This is coming up in Romans 6.

We are on the verge of some amazing things.

The parenthesis we are studying is vv. 13–17. But it will become even more complicated and difficult.

Romans 5:16 And the gift is not as through one having sinned. For truly the judgment from one was unto condemnation; but the gift is out of many trespasses unto justification.

Verse 16 – “And not as it was by the one that sinned.” It begins with the emphatic use of the conjunction kai—“In fact,” the objective negative adverb ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo], denying the reality of an alleged fact, plus the comparative particle hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], plus the preposition dia with the genitive for the adjective numeral heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehñ], plus anthrôpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos] which is implied but not given—“In fact, not like through one [Adam].” Plus the aorist active participle of the verb hamartanô (ἁμαρτάνω) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TAHN-oh]—“who sinned.” The aorist tense is the constative aorist and it refers to a momentary action in past time, i.e. the original sin of Adam. The active voice: Adam produced the action. The participle is circumstantial.

“so is the gift” – the word for gift is the nominative subject dôrēma (δῶρημα) [pronounced DOH-ray-mah] and it refers to the Lord Jesus Christ as the last Adam. “In fact, the gift is not like the one who sinned.” The gift is the Lord Jesus Christ. In other words, the last Adam is not like the first Adam. Therefore the intention of this verse is to provide the a fortiori factor for the parenthetical much more.

“for the judgment was by one to condemnation” – the postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used in an explanatory sense, plus the affirmative particle men which usually works with an other particle, de—Classical Greek, “for on the one hand; on the other hand.” This is called the correlative use of the affirmative particle, it sets up a contrast between the gift, the Lord Jesus Christ, and the first Adam. Plus another subject in the nominative singular krima (κρίμα) [pronounced KREE-mah] which usually means action or the function of a judge, but here it means a judicial verdict—“for on the one hand the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in condemnation.” In other words, the judicial function of the justice of God produced the verdict. The verdict came as the result of one transgression and it led to the condemnation of the entire human race.

We have ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative from heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] again—“by one [transgression].” The ablative of means is used here when the expression of means is accompanied by the implication of origin or source. We have the origin or the source of our condemnation, Adam’s sin.

Plus eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] with the accusative of the noun katákrima (κατάκριμα) [pronounced kat-AK-ree-mah]—“punishment” or “doom.” Actually condemnation was in the verdict, therefore katákrima (κατάκριμα) [pronounced kat-AK-ree-mah] means carrying out the sentence of punishment—“resulting in condemnation.”

Many Condemnations from Adam’s Original Sin

1. It means, first of all, from one to many. From one transgression [Adam’s sin] to many condemnations. From one transgression many spiritual deaths.
2. The gift which is the saving work of Christ on the cross is the means of establishing a fortiori in this section.
3. The gift resulted in many transgressions or sins being judged for one justification.
4. The first Adam committed one sin and the entire human race came under condemnation because of that one sin.
5. The last Adam was judged for all sins and the entire human race is eligible for justification. This sets up a fortiori in the context.
6. This is a restatement with amplification of Romans 5:12. All sinned when Adam sinned.
7. But because of one man’s work on the cross the entire human race is eligible for justification.
8. From one comes many sins, from many sins comes one justification.

No one has walked on this earth with the genius of Paul. The way he builds this up is incredibly genius. We do not see people who can think this brilliantly.

Romans 5:16a For on the one hand the judicial verdict came from one transgression resulting in condemnation...

“but the free gift is of many offences unto justification” – the adversative conjunction de, “but on the other hand,” is used with the previous affirmative particle men. Plus the nominative singular subject charisma (χάρισμα) [pronounced KHAHR-ees-mah]—“gracious gift,” referring to the saving work of Christ on the cross, bearing our sins and being judged for them by the justice of God. Plus the nominative neuter singular of the definite article which is used as a demonstrative pronoun to place special emphasis on the one act of Christ being judged for our sins. That is why we can call it “that gracious gift.”

What two people did in history is all that really counts. One person sinned and put us all under condemnation. One Person, Jesus Christ, provided us, through his payment for sins, has provided us with greater blessing than is found in the Garden of Eden.

Then the prepositional phrase ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative plural of polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS]—“by [or, because of] many [transgressions].”

“unto justification” – the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative dikaiōma (δικαίωμα) [pronounced dik-AH-yo-mah] which means a statute, and ordinance or commandment: “resulting in condemnation.” The condemnation is spiritual death. It was Paul who so exploited the word dikaiōma (δικαίωμα) [pronounced dik-AH-yo-mah] that new meanings were derived from it. In the plural it denotes commandments or statutes, but Paul was one of the first people in history to use dikaiōma (δικαίωμα) [pronounced dik-AH-yo-mah] in the singular, and he used it in the singular to emphasize to the Gentiles that there is a divine order to be embraced, not a series of commandments to keep. The Jews had given the impression that you had to keep a series of commandments, and by switching this to the singular he showed that there is one divine order to be embraced. The word dikaiōma (δικαίωμα) [pronounced dik-AH-yo-mah] means a right act, the fulfilment of a legal requirement. And from this came another meaning: a sentence of justification. From this comes the meaning in our context: a judicial act of justification. So this is translated, “resulting in a judicial act of justification.”

Romans 5:16 In fact the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through one who sinned; for on the one hand the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in condemnation [spiritual death], but on the other hand that gracious gift [incarnation and work of Christ] was given because of many transgressions, resulting in one judicial act of justification.

You have an idea about one person is a good person and someone else is a bad person; and it comes down to the sins which you like and don't like. But you think this because your thinking is mixed up. We are all dead because of one sin. God knew that, in the human race, we would branch out, we would special. Someone may come to you and say, “What's your major and what's your minor?”

Now, there are crimes, and such people need to be removed from society. Other than that, there is no one person who is no better than anyone else. We are spiritual death from what Adam did. None of us are any better than anyone else, from the standpoint of God's justice. God has perfect standards; each one of us is stamped as sinful.

There is one sin that condemns us; and one act which justifies us. One sin and one justification. Every time that we sin after salvation, the sin nature is on the throne; and when we name our sins, we are back in fellowship. But our personal sins are not the basis of our condemnation. You're in jail and you don't know why you're in jail; or you are out of jail and you don't know what to do about it.

Or you are watching a program that you can't stand and all you have to do is press the button but you don't. That is just about where Christianity is today.

Romans 5:16 In fact the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through one who sinned; for on the one hand the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in condemnation [spiritual death], but on the other hand that gracious gift [incarnation and work of Christ] was given because of many transgressions, resulting in one judicial act of justification.

Out of this verse is going to be a massive number principles which come out of this.

Everyone has used the words, he is bad, he is good. But according to divine justice, this is not the case.

1977 Romans

Lesson #151

151 07/21/1977 Romans 5:16 Principles; function of and superiority of divine justice to love 1

Roman 5–8 is probably the heart of the Christian life.

Bob has access to many famous people who have written commentary and he cannot believe how much they jump around and dodge important questions.

Romans 5:16 In fact the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through one who sinned; for on the one hand the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in condemnation [spiritual death], but on the other hand that gracious gift [incarnation and work of Christ] was given because of many transgressions, resulting in one judicial act of justification.

Christ did not simply solve one transgression; he solved all the transgressions.

Adam's sin is imputed to everyone; and this was all handled at one point in time. Our many sins might be poured out on the cross and judged. One basis for entering into death and one way of coming out. From the time in the garden to now. We are put into spiritual death by one thing and one thing will take us out.

The Justice of God Replaces the Love of God

1. The integrity of God is composed of His righteousness and justice. Righteousness is the principle of divine integrity, justice is the function of divine integrity.
2. What the righteousness of God demands the justice of God executes.
3. Man's point of contact is the justice of God. It has been since the fall of man.
4. The justice of God is the source of both blessing and cursing. However, cursing precedes blessing.
5. The original sin of Adam was Satan's challenge to the justice of God. Could the justice of God replace the love of God in God's relationship with man, and could the justice of God bless mankind? Man's point of contact with God in the perfect environment of the garden was the love of God. The love of God did not prevent the original fall, but once the fall occurred the point of reference changes from love to justice. The justice of God was never an issue until man sinned. The wages of sin is spiritual death. Justice was only implied when Adam was warned not to eat from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

6. The justice of God was never the issue with man until man sinned.
7. In the garden of Eden man's point of reference was the love of God. The absence of sin in the garden made it possible for the love of God to be Adam's point of contact.
8. But when Adam sinned the point of contact changed from the love of God to the justice of God.
9. The one sin of Adam changed the entire structure of God's relationship to man.
10. One sin and divine love was phased out as the point of reference for mankind.
11. One sin and the justice of God became the point of reference to condemn. Not only that one sin but all mankind in that one sin. Adam's sin was imputed to all mankind by the justice of God at the point of physical birth. By so doing our personal sins are reserved for the cross and the means of salvation. All mankind was condemned by Adam's sin.
12. Innocence was the period of human history when the love of God was the point of reference for mankind.
13. The original sin of Adam changed the point of reference from the love of God to the justice of God.
14. The garden was the place of God's love but justice placed man in sin under spiritual death and total separation from the love of God. That is why man was expelled from the garden.
15. All functions of God after the original sin must be related to the justice of God—condemnation of one man, condemnation of all mankind, salvation provision for all mankind in the gracious gift of Jesus Christ, the justice of God judging all sins while Christ was bearing them on the cross.
16. From all these condemnation functions from the justice of God came the blessing functions of the justice of God. Divine justice is the source of blessing and cursing. Having a child is a matter of God's justice. The serpent crawling on the ground is a matter of justice. Every time you see a serpent, a man going to work, a pregnant woman, you are seeing outside of the garden the results of God's justice. Bob has never known a woman to be under her husband, that is judgment; having a child is judgment; even having salvation is judgment.

What comes from love can be lost. Do not knock justice. Justice is our life; justice is our point of contact. Grace is a matter of justice; someone had to pay; every sin of the human race has been poured out upon Jesus Christ and judged.

The greatest virtue in the human race is integrity. Romans 6:11–13 In the same way, you too must continually consider yourselves dead as far as sin is concerned, but living for God through the Messiah Jesus. Therefore, do not let sin rule your mortal bodies so that you obey their desires. Stop offering the parts of your body to sin as instruments of unrighteousness. Instead, offer yourselves to God as people who have been brought from death to life and the parts of your body as instruments of righteousness to God.

The paradise that we will go into will be far greater than the garden. God gives us something that our volition will hold up in God's new system. Even the command to love is based upon integrity; justice. The worst things a Christian can do is malign and judge. Integrity counters. Bob would rather be in the devil's world under the justice of God rather than be back in the garden where Adam was. "You can have the Garden of Eden; something far greater has come along."

The average fundy today is not alive unto God. Romans 6 you have to know something in order to be alive unto God.

Romans 5:15 But not as that transgression [Adam's original sin], so also is that gracious gift [the work of Christ]. For if by the transgression [the original sin] of [that] one [Adam] the many died [spiritual death (and they did)], much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, by the one man, Jesus Christ, who has provided superabundance for the many [who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ].

The same God Who imputed Adam's original sin to us provides us with a superabundance. Jesus became a curse for us. What the first Adam fouled up for us, the last Adam made things far greater.

Romans 5:16 In fact the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through one who sinned; for on the one hand the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in condemnation [spiritual death], but on the other hand that gracious gift [incarnation and work of Christ] was given because of many transgressions, resulting in one judicial act of justification.

Bob defies us to get that out of the messed up, fouled up King James version. Two verses which tell us where we are and where we are going.

Condemnation and Justification of the Human Race

1. The justice of God functions in the direction of the first and last Adam to provide for us blessing for our point of contact or point of reference.
2. The justice of God took over in the human race. The justice of God took over when Satan fell as well.
3. At the time man's fall the function of the justice of God was judgment on Adam and condemnation on the human race, the seed of Adam.
4. From the source of one man's sin condemnation from the justice of God came upon the entire human race. We are not condemned because of the sins we commit, we are condemned to spiritual death because of the sin that Adam committed.
5. The mechanics of this condemnation is twofold: a) Direct condemnation through the imputation of Adam's sin; b) Indirect condemnation through the perpetuation of the old sin nature.

6. Furthermore, from man's old sin nature comes man's personal sins which are also condemned by the justice of God.
7. For the justice of God must execute what the righteousness of God demands, and the righteousness of God demands the condemnation of all personal sins in the human race.
8. Therefore the "gracious gift."
9. Since man is born spiritually dead because of imputed and inherent sin the accumulation of personal sins in the human race were not judged between Adam and Moses, nor at any other time until the cross.
10. Then all sin, past, present and future, including those committed in the Millennium, were poured out on Christ at Golgotha and judged by the justice of God.
11. From the source of one act of sin comes condemnation from the justice of God.
12. From the judgment of many sins comes one act of justification from the justice of God.

From the source of one act of sin comes condemnation from the justice of God. From the judgment of many sins comes one act of justification from the justice of God.

The Basis for a Fortiori Argument

1. Justification and condemnation are two functions from the same source: the justice of God.
2. The human race is condemned for one sin but salvation is provided for all sins.
3. If one man's sin brings condemnation to the human race—and it does—much more one man's being judged on the cross brings justification to the human race—and it does.
4. One transgression condemned man in the garden.
5. Many transgressions were condemned in Christ on the cross.
6. The key to the garden is one transgression; the key to the cross is many transgressions.
7. The justice of God judged one transgression in the garden bringing condemnation to the human race.
8. The justice of God judged many transgressions on the cross bringing salvation/justification to the human race.
9. Therefore justification is much more than condemnation because justification deals with all the sins of the world, while condemnation dealt with only one sin—the original sin—in the world. When we understand this, we get a good idea where we are going.
10. This explains the a fortiori logic in the parenthetical much mores of vv. 15 & 17.
11. Justification is the greater work of God. The justice of God judged one sin at the fall of man, but all sins at the cross.
12. If God provided the greater in justification, it follows a fortiori that God can provide the less of capacity for blessing from the justice of God and the reality of blessing from the justice of God.

13. Verse 16 explains the a fortiori of both verses 15 & 17 where we have much more.
14. In verse 15, if the justice of God provided the greater in justification it follows a fortiori that the justice of God can provide the less—capacity for blessing from the justice of God. We can have a paradise in the devil’s world; and even a greater life in eternity.
15. In verse 17, if the justice of God provided the greater in justification it follows a fortiori that the justice of God can provides the less—reality of blessing.

Bob repeats vv. 15–16. The words much more set up a fortiori reasoning.

1977 Romans

152 07/22/1977 Romans 5:16–17a "Greater" and "less"; justice condemns before it blesses

Bob had a hunk of tumor cut out of him, and commends the congregation of their good manners and concentration. “This only goes to show that you can do this all of the time.”

Romans 5:16 In fact the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through one [Adam] who sinned; for on the one hand the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in condemnation [spiritual death], but on the other hand that gracious gift [incarnation and work of Christ] was given because of many transgressions, resulting in one judicial act of justification.

Bob goes over some basic points on God’s integrity and Adam’s original sin. When Adam sinned, the point of contact changed from the love of God to the justice of God. Our personal sins are saved for the cross, for Jesus to pay the price for them.

We do not have perfect environment. We are in the devil’s world. Production is not the key. God will be gone for this week and he expects everyone to catch up to where we are so that we can understand Romans 6.

A review of Condemnation and Justification of the Human Race.

Romans 6 was written by a genius. Bob’s Greek professor in college said that Paul was the last great mind in history.

God will give us a greater environment than the garden in Satan’s domain.

A review of The Basis for a Fortiori Argument.

God judged one sin and put that sin on all of us; but judged all of our sins in Christ Jesus. That is a much bigger thing.

It is easy for God to bless us; but why give us blessing if we cannot appreciate it?

Bob's tumor had to be separated from his muscle; and this required a doctor 2.5 hours and a great deal of knowledge to do it.

Bob expects to see a whole different congregation after Romans 5–6. Some will peel off; and there are others who are ready for it.

Principle

1. "Much more" sets up a fortiori logic.
2. In this context much more refers to the fact that the greater is justification, while the less is both capacity for blessing and the reality of it.
3. Providing capacity for blessing and the reality of blessing from the justice of God is nothing compared to providing justification.
4. If one man's sin led to condemnation of mankind and mankind since that one sin multiplies sins into billions ad infinitum, then it follows that justification is the greater blessing and prosperity in time is the less.
5. If God gave the greater He will not withhold the less.

Romans 5:17 For if, by the trespass of the one, death reigned through the one, how much more will those receiving the abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness reign in life through the one, Jesus Christ!

Bob examines each and every word for our benefit. The old tapes are not that good.

The first Adam is much smarter than any of us. The only difference between him and us is, we would not have lived that long before sinning.

Verse 17 – the a fortiori of eternal blessing from the justice of God. Blessing doesn't stop in time for those who crack the maturity barrier, it has an eternal future that staggers the imagination. "For if by one man's offence death reigned by one" – it begins with the conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] which with the indicative introduces the protasis of a first class condition. Plus the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, it explains a fortiori logic relating to our future eternal blessing. Plus the instrumental of means from the definite article with the instrumental of paráptōma (παράπτωμα) [pronounced par-AP-to-mah], the word for transgression, but it refers to Adam's sin. Plus the possessive genitive of the definite article with the possessive genitive of the numeral heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn]. Adjectives in the Greek are often used as substantives and the meaning changes slightly. heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] here refers to Adam.

Then comes the subject, ho thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], used when one death is going to be differentiated from another, but when you have both deaths of Christ you have an adjective, nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] in the plural. In the plural it becomes nekroi and it means deaths, usually with the preposition. Ek nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS]—"from deaths," used in resurrection. It becomes a noun. So ho thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] refers to spiritual death here. So we have the nominative singular translated “the deaths.” “For if by the transgression of the one the death [the condition into which we were born, spiritual death].”

Death “ruled” – the aorist active indicative of basilissa (βασίλισσα) [pronounced bahs-IHL-ih-s-SAH] which means to rule, to reign. This is a culminative aorist tense, it views spiritual death from the justice of God in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results—because everyone is born spiritually dead spiritual death rules in the human race. The active voice: spiritual death produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of the first class condition. Plus the prepositional phrase, dia with the definite article and the genitive of the numeral adjective heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] used as a substantive. Dia plus the genitive means “through”; dia plus the accusative means “because of.” So it is “death ruled through the one [the first Adam],” and it did.

Condemnation → Justification → Salvation

1. One man’s transgression in the garden resulted in the justice of God condemning the human race with spiritual death.
2. Remember that man’s point of reference in the garden was the love of God, not the justice of God. There was no need for there to be justice in the garden. Adam lived in perfection. He was perfect and his environment was perfect.
3. The love of God makes no provision for sin, that which conflicts with the function of the justice of God.
4. Furthermore, the justice of God cannot make provision for sin in salvation until the justice of God first condemns sin. There had to be one sin in order for God to first condemn that sin.
5. Therefore the justice of God had no relationship with man in the garden until man sinned.
6. Then man entered into a relationship with the justice of God. It was a relationship of condemnation—spiritual death.
7. The principle: Justice condemns before justice blesses. You may wonder, why do I have to die? Justice condemns before justice blesses.
8. Condemnation precedes salvation/justification. Justification is the greatest thing that God could do for us; but He had to condemn us first.
9. Spiritual death rules in the human race through the fall of Adam. We do not have to commit a single sin in order to be spiritually dead. Satan is the ruler of this world but the ruler in mankind is spiritual death. All of our personal sins are gathered together and poured out on Jesus Christ. Adam sinned, and we went along with it. So we are born spiritually dead. We are dead by one act of sin and justified by one act of death by Jesus Christ.
10. This was the function of the justice of God. What Christ did to overcome this is “the most.”
11. If God has done the most for us in justification it follows a fortiori that He can do the less in eternity.

153 07/24/1977 Romans 5:17b [A FORTIORI SPECIAL Lessons 153–168] A FORTIORI re weak cause (sin of Adam) cf. strong cause (justification)

We are studying the great genius of the Apostle Paul. The development of this is, one sin of Adam, the justice of God became the point of reference. The wisdom of God allows one sin to place every single one of us into sin. Adam is the federal head of the human race. More than that, each one of us would have done that same thing. Our personal sins are held in reserve for a special imputation at the cross. One source of our condemnation is Adam's original sin; and one source for salvation.

If God has provided the greatest thing for us already—salvation—then He will not withhold the lesser thing from us, which is blessings from God. We are not given any of the blessings of God until we have the capacity to enjoy them.

Adam lost paradise or perfect environment. But this was lost through one sin. As a result, we are now in the devil's world. Potential + capacity = reality. There will be secondary potential in Romans 6 (starting in August—apparently the very end of August).

There has been the philosophy of fixing the world or making the world better so that Jesus Christ will return. But we do not have the genius of Satan. We find ourselves involved in many different activities where we feel like we are doing something. But we are simply eating voraciously from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

The original relationship with God did not require man to have any knowledge of good and evil.

The type of tree was never the issue.

This parenthetical set of verses is all about the motivation and the justice of God and the great wisdom of divine justice. There is a secondary potential. The baptism of the Holy Spirit acts as an insulation between us and tree of good and evil. You could not be given a few million dollars... The dignity of the human race is the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. There is legitimate production in the Word of God. All potentials are given to us at the moment of salvation. God gave us 36 potentials at salvation. In our souls, we must have an environment for blessing. We must be able to handle authority and wealth and your rm or your rw. There are millions of divorces between rm/rw in the United States today.

Romans 5:17 For if, by the trespass of the one, death reigned through the one, how much more will those receiving the abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness reign in life through the one, Jesus Christ!

Bob reviews the vocabulary quickly which we have already covered for v. 17.

There are some descriptive words of the blessings which are to come (crowns, cities, etc.).

Bob reviews the last set of principles from lesson #152.

“much more” – the dative singular from the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] is used idiomatically because we have a comparative adverb mallon (μᾶλλον) [pronounced MAL-lon]. In other words, the greater has already been accomplished.

Many of the adjectives are used as nouns; and as nouns, they often assume a slightly different meaning. Nekros is an adjective; but in the plural, for the two deaths of Christ on the cross, it is used as a noun. Often this comes when there is a plural.

Mallon can be translated as much more, to a greater degree.

Romans 5:17a-b For if by the transgression of one [Adam’s original sin in the garden], the (spiritual) death ruled through the one [through the first Adam] [and it did], much more...

A Fortiori Logic (#2)

1. Here is the beginning of a fortiori logic—with stronger reason, to a greater degree.
2. If the greater function of the justice of God has occurred the less will not be withheld.
3. If God can do the greater it follows a fortiori that God can also accomplish the less.
4. If God did the just thing in condemning Adam and the human race, it follows a fortiori that God can do the less in rewarding from His justice blessing in time, blessing in eternity.
5. If a weak cause [the sin of Adam] passively committed by the human race while seminally in Adam has brought spiritual death, much more certainly will a strong cause [the imputation and justification received at salvation] provide the a fortiori for eternal blessing as well as temporal blessing from the justice of God.
6. If we have received the greater in imputation and justification, it follows a fortiori that God’s justice will not hold back the less: which is blessing in time, eternal blessing and reward for the mature believer.
7. If God did the most for us in time [great blessing for the mature believer] He will only do much more than the most in eternity.

Lesson #154

154 07/24/1977 Romans 5:17c A FORTIORI of eternal blessing from the justice of God

Bob knew a famous book called Romans Verse-by-Verse by a man considered to be the greatest expert in the book of Romans. Two sentences on v. 17.

Romans 5:17 For if, by the trespass of the one, death reigned through the one, how much more will those receiving the abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness reign in life through the one, Jesus Christ!

“they which receive abundance of grace and the gift of righteousness” – the greatest problem with this is a misplaced prepositional phrase or two. For example, there is the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY]. The problem is that it modifies the verb lambánô (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh], not the verb basíliŝsa (βασιλίσσα) [pronounced bahs-IHL-ihs-SAH]. Basíliŝsa (βασιλίσσα) [pronounced bahs-IHL-ihs-SAH] means to rule, lambánô (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] means to receive. It should be translated, “much more they who receive in life,” a very important change. In the KJV the prepositional phrase is attached to the wrong verb. In the English of the KJV it says, “they shall reign in life.” That is incorrect, it should be “they who receive in life.”

“which receive” – the articular present active participle of the verb lambánô (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh]. The definite article is used as a relative pronoun referring to the believer who not only attains salvation adjustment to the justice of God and resultant righteousness but also attains maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The present tense is a customary present tense. This always happens to everyone who cracks the maturity barrier and/or attains maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The active voice of the participle: the subject produces the action of the verb, and the subject is the person who first of all attains salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The blessing has to be encapsulated in an environment, which is our environment in this world. The encapsulation is the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

Then over a period of time he develops a capacity, rebounding and taking in doctrine, and attains maturity adjustment to the justice of God. So it is the believer who attains that maturity adjustment who produces the action of this participle. The participle is circumstantial with the customary present indicating the reality of the fact that in every generation there are those who crack the maturity barrier and who receive directly from the justice of God the most fantastic blessing.

Next is en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY] used for the function of life. Zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY] almost always refers to the function of life, but there is a synonym, bios (βίος) [pronounced BEE-oss], which is used for the pattern of life or the manner of life. So far: “much more they who receive in life the abundance of grace.” Note: That is in life.

“the abundance of grace” – with the accusative singular direct object is the definite article and with it a noun, the accusative singular direct object from perisseía (περισσειά) [pronounced per-is-SIGH-ah]. It means abundance or surplus. Plus the genitive singular of charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic]. When the believer cracks the maturity barrier he has a surplus of grace in the sense of unusual blessing—“the surplus of grace.” This is a reference to those direct blessings from the justice of God to those who crack the maturity barrier. Remember: Divine justice can only bless perfect righteousness. Blessing from the justice of God must go in the direction of perfection, it condemns anything less than perfection.

The points below are reviewed in Lesson #225.

Divine Justice Can Only Bless Divine Righteousness (2)

1. The integrity of God is composed of divine righteousness and justice. Justice is the guardian of the attributes of God as well as the believer's contact with God.
2. There must be no compromise in the function of the attributes of God. Hence, righteousness demands righteousness and justice demands justice.
3. To avoid compromise and inconsistency a principle of doctrine becomes axiomatic: Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness.
4. Righteousness is the principle of divine integrity; justice is the function of divine integrity.
5. God cannot accept anything less than perfect righteousness and God cannot bless anything less than perfect righteousness.
6. Therefore the justice of God, the source of all direct blessing from God, is free to provide such blessing where His perfect righteousness resides. We must have the primary imputation/potential; the righteousness of God. His perfect righteousness is imputed to us at the moment of salvation.
7. Hence, the imputation of divine righteousness is absolutely necessary for any blessing from the justice of God.
8. God loves His own integrity composed of His righteousness and justice.
9. Therefore what righteousness rejects justice condemns. What righteousness accepts or approves divine justice blesses.
10. This fulfils the principle: the justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands.
11. At the moment of faith in Christ mankind receives the imputation of divine righteousness and resultant justification.
12. God recognizes His righteousness wherever it resides. No matter how crummy you are.
13. Justification is simply God recognizing the imputation of divine righteousness residing in us; which we receive at the moment of faith in Christ.
14. Justification precedes all other blessings from (the justice of) God.
15. Therefore righteousness imputed and resultant justification is the primary potential for all blessing from the justice of God.
16. While righteousness imputed is the potential, doctrine perceived through the function of GAP is the capacity for blessing as well as the reality.

Bob threw away all of his old notes on Romans. He blushed because he missed so much. Everything he said was accurate, but it barely scratched the surface.

Capacity is increased by the intake of Bible doctrine.

If the greater is given, then the less will not be withheld.

Adjectives when put into the plural are often nouns.

The crowns and the rewards and the cities are all rewards which are not literal, but this is language of accommodation.

After death there is an intensification of blessing beyond description.

We all receive logistical grace. There is a building provided; we have Bible provided for us. We need food and shelter.

Logistical grace is not a surplus of grace. We are all under grace. We are preserved by grace.

“and the gift of righteousness” – the connective use of kai, plus the objective genitive singular from dōreá (δωρεά) [pronounced do-reh-AH] which means gift or bounty. Plus the descriptive genitive singular from the definite article and the descriptive genitive singular of dikaiousunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay]. That is God’s righteousness, the basis for receiving all this blessing.

Principle

1. If the justice of God provided in life the greater, namely the gift of righteousness and direct blessing from the justice of God to the mature believer, it follows a fortiori that He can do the less which is reward in eternity.
2. If God can bless the mature believer in phase two or time it follows that He can reward and bless the same believer in eternity.
3. The more difficult is blessing from the justice of God in time (than in eternity). In eternity there is no opposition from Satan, from the old sin nature, from false doctrine, etc.
4. The easier is the blessing for the mature believer in eternity. That is why we have this phrase, “shall reign by one, Jesus Christ.”

Some of you got it and some did not. And some of you are faking me out by shaking your heads.

Romans 5:17 For if, by the trespass of the one, death reigned through the one, how much more will those receiving the abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness reign in life through the one, Jesus Christ!

“shall reign by one” – future active indicative of basíliсса (βασιλίсса) [pronounced bahs-IHL-ihs-SAH], meaning to reign or to rule. The future tense is a predictive future, it indicates an event which is expected to occur in the future—eternity, Revelation 20:6. The active voice: believers who have attained maturity adjustment to the justice of God in time produce the action of the verb in eternity. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine.

The preposition dia with the genitive of the definite article, the genitive of the adjective numeral heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] used as a noun or a substantive—“through the one.” Then, so that there will be no doubt as to who that one is, the genitive of apposition lêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], “Jesus Christ.”

Romans 5:17 For if by the transgression of the one [Adam’s original sin] the [spiritual] death ruled through the one [Adam, and it did]; much more they who receive in life the surplus of grace [blessing from maturity adjustment], and the gift of righteousness, they shall reign through the one, Jesus Christ.

155 07/29/1977 Romans 5:12 Breakthrough on old sin nature re genetics; (Intro) doctrine of imputation must have direction

Bob is going backwards to v. 12. He does not believe that we have extracted all that is there in vv. 12–17. The order of the day is concentration.

A year ago when Bob talked with Dr. Davidjohn about genetics. He asked which of the 24 males genes contains the sin nature.

The sin nature is with the body of corruption and remains with the body at death.

Old sin nature & Genetics

The notes below come from Lesson #155 and #156 (and #157), where that lesson is reviewed.

Imputation must have direction. Everything must have a home; and imputation must have a home. There are three parts to this doctrine.

- a) At human birth
- b) At the birth of Christ
- c) At the new birth

Imputation must Have Direction at Human Birth

1. Human birth consists of physical life and spiritual death occurring simultaneously. There is no (soul) life in the blastocyst, in the embryo, or the foetus. As long as these are in the womb there is no life. There is reflex motility, movement, but there is no life. No one has life until it is imputed. Life begins when the foetus emerges from the womb and God gives to that foetus neshamah, spark of life or breath of life. Bob says that this is physical life.

2. God cannot impute life without that life having a place to go. In other words, God does not impute life to a blade of grass or to a stone, or to a piece of bread. The home or the direction of human life is the soul. So God imputes to the format soul of the foetus when it emerges life. All imputations must have a home. The home of human life is the (format) soul, therefore God imputes life to the (format) soul. An imputation must have a place or a home to go to. The home of human life is the soul; and life is imputed to the soul.
3. The old sin nature is not a part of that home, though it influences the soul in all of its trends. An accurate and Biblical name for the old sin nature is "Adam's trend." Adam's trends are three: toward sin, toward good, toward evil. While the old sin nature influences the soul it is not a part of the soul. The soul is the home for life; and the sin nature is a genetically designed home. The old sin nature is not a part of the soul; it is a part of the body. So it does not go to heaven. The old sin nature is material.
4. The old sin nature [also, Adam's trend, the body of corruption, contamination] is the ruler of mankind, every person who enters the world. Satan is the ruler of this world but the old sin nature is the ruler of people. The justice of God imputes Adam's sin to each one of us to the sin nature. Bob believes that he has the answer to this now.
5. At birth the justice of God imputes Adam's original sin to its home—the old sin nature, which is genetically formed. Imputation must have direction.
6. The home for the imputation of Adam's sin is the old sin nature. Without the old sin nature the justice of God could not impute Adam's sin to us at birth. Without having an old sin nature, and therefore the imputation of Adam's sin to us, our personal sins would have to be imputed to us and Christ would have died in vain. It isn't that way but these are the implications. If Adam's sin cannot be imputed to us our personal sins cannot be imputed to Christ at the cross. Adam's original sin was not imputed to Jesus because there was no target for it (no sin nature).
7. The old sin nature is acquired genetically, while Adam's sin is acquired by imputation. Through imputation and genetics when we are born we are a facsimile of Adam after he sinned. After the fall he immediately had, besides spiritual death, and old sin nature. And through direct imputation and through the function of genetics the moment we are born we are duplicates of Adam. We combine Adam's original sin with Adam's trend. These meet in us at the point of life.
8. The old sin nature is transmitted through 23 male chromosomes which fertilize the female ovum. A cell has 46, and 23 is obviously half. When cells split through mitosis there are 46 chromosomes in each, but when a cell has half—23 chromosomes—the process is called meiosis. The meiosis by which the female ovum has a similar 23 chromosomes is known as polar body, a genetic process by which corruption or contamination of chromosomes is thrown off in the ovum in preparation for its fertility. In other words, before the female ovum comes through the fallopian tubes it is prepared by a process so that a woman has a unique trend. Every cell in the body of the male is contaminated, the old sin nature is in every one.

The reason we have different kinds of sins is because we have different trends. The genes combine in different ways so that you have red hair or black hair, for example. Polar body in any text book on genetics is the virgin birth, and most people who study and ridicule the virgin birth actually have it in every text book where it discusses polar body. The woman is unique, she has one cell that is free from the old sin nature or Adam's trend, and that is the one cell which through the function of polar body throws off the genetic impurities until there are 23 chromosomes in that ovum to be fertilized and they are pure, free from the old sin nature. The woman is a carrier of the old sin nature but she cannot transmit it. The man is the transmitter of the old sin nature. Polar body is essentially the virgin birth. The woman has one cell that is free from the sin nature; or from Adam's trend. This one cell throws off the genetic impurities. They are free from the sin nature. The woman is a carrier but she cannot transmit the sin nature. This is why the man has the authority. That one ovum is free from the old sin nature and this is the only cell that is.

9. The justice of God imputes Adam's sin to Adam's trend, resulting is instant spiritual death. Romans 5:12. The imputation of Adam's sin + Adam's trend = spiritual death. (Spiritual death is not separation from God, that is an over-simplification.) Spiritual death is the imputation of Adam's sin to Adam's trend (the old sin nature). Spiritual death is not separation from God; it is condemnation from God. God is associated with us, as He is condemning us. His justice condemns us.
10. In other words, imputation must have a direction. When God imputes the spark of human life to the soul He also imputes the sin of Adam to the old sin nature. So at birth there are two homes. At the point at which God imputes human life to the soul the justice of God imputes simultaneously Adam's sin to the old sin nature. The result is obvious: we have both physical life and spiritual death. These occur simultaneously at birth and they continue side-by-side until a person is born again or a person dies.
11. Therefore by these two imputations every member of the human race is a facsimile of Adam after he sinned. His original sin plus his old sin nature is spiritual death, not the sins he commits afterward. The cross is the issue with personal sins.
12. Spiritual death is Adam's original sin united with Adam's trend and given to us at birth. Personal sin is not the basis of spiritual death but one of the three manifestations of spiritual death, the other two being good and evil. Adam had a trend toward good, which resulted in operation fig leaves. Every bureaucracy is operation fig leaves and they all claim to be doing what is best for you. Personal sin is not an issue in the gospel because our personal sins are not imputed to us.

Bob could not answer the question, why did not God impute the sin nature to Jesus Christ at birth? He could fake around and make up some words, but he could not truly answer this question. Why does God impute Adam's sin to us, but not to Jesus? And the justice of God could not do anything wrong or unfair. Why did He do it that way?

Adam's spiritual death was his original sin combined with the sin nature, which formed (in his body?). As a result of being spiritually dead, Adam committed additional sins. Those sins were not imputed to him.

We were spiritually dead immediately, because we had Adam's original sin imputed to our sin nature. As a result, we commit thought, acts of evil and human good.

Imputation must Have Direction at the Birth of Christ

1. All cells in the human race are contaminated by the old sin nature. One exception: through meiosis and the function of polar body the 23 chromosomes of the ovum are uncontaminated and are free from Adam's trend.
 - a. The prep school illustration of the sin nature and the trends are fine for the kids.
 - b. Bob does not want to see any teacher teach genetics to the kids.
2. While the woman is a carrier of the old sin nature she cannot transmit the old sin nature genetically.
3. Only the male can transmit the old sin nature with the 23 chromosomes obtained by meiosis, used to fertilize the ovum. This is why men rule the world, and the hand that rocks the cradle rocks the cradle.
4. The virgin Mary was a carrier of the old sin nature. She was not perfect; she had a sin nature. Mary was born with the imputation of Adam's sin. But she possessed periodically that one pure cell. That ovum was fertilized by the Holy Spirit.
5. At the birth of Christ there was no imputation of Adam's sin. This is because imputation must have a home, it must have a direction; and genetically there was no home there. The male 23 chromosomes were not there.
6. The pregnancy, parthogenesis: The Holy Spirit provided 23 perfect chromosomes which fertilize the 23 uncontaminated chromosomes in the ovum of Mary.
7. Adam's sin could not be imputed to Christ because there was no home, no direction, no old sin nature. Christ had to have an old sin nature formed genetically from those 23 male chromosomes for the imputation of Adam's sin, and they were not there. So for this one time only in history the justice of God could not impute Adam's sin to a person at birth—male child, the Lord Jesus. Jesus was born as Adam was created
8. Because Adam deliberately sinned and the woman was deceived in the original sin in the fall of mankind, the woman is a carrier but only the man can transmit the old sin nature. While both the man and the woman were in the transgression there is difference in their approach. The woman was deceived but she did it. The man knew what he was doing and deliberately sinned. This difference sets up a principle. They had sex in the garden; and this was a perfect fusion of their pleasure and their love. This might be classified as paradise contraception. Who could only have the one pure cell: "I did not know what I was doing."
9. The woman is a carrier of the old sin nature, she cannot transmit it. The old sin nature contaminates every cell in her body, she has a body of corruption. The one exception is the ovum prepared for fertilization through the function of polar body.

10. Because of parthogenesis [virgin birth] there was no genetic formation of the old sin nature, no imputation of Adam's sin, and no spiritual death at birth of Christ. So at birth Christ did not have an old sin nature and therefore Adam's sin could not be imputed. Therefore Christ was the only person in His humanity ever born without spiritual death, because spiritual death is not separation from God, spiritual death is the imputation of Adam's sin plus Adam's trend. When Christ was born, there was no facsimile Adam.
11. When God the Father gave life to the soul of Christ divine justice did not imputed Adam's sin—no direction, no home, no target, no old sin nature.
12. Christ then lived a perfect life, resisting all temptation. Only through personal sin could Christ have acquired the old sin nature. Adam and the woman both acquired the sin nature by personal sin.
13. Therefore when Christ was on the cross all sins in the human race were imputed to Him and judged by the justice of God. This is the basis of salvation adjustment to the justice of God by faith in Jesus Christ.
14. This is the basis for salvation adjustment to the justice of God.

We are condemned due to the imputation of Adam's sin; and justified by the imputation of the righteousness of God. Jesus could accept our sins because of His volition. He had to agree to have our sins imputed to Him. We have to accept his righteousness the same way, by means of our volition.

We all have different trends; and lust is different because our sin natures are different. Some lust for money, some for power, some for men or women.

A fortiori is all about effort. More effort to pay for our sins.

Imputation must Have Direction the New Birth

1. At the moment of salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ God's perfect righteousness is imputed to the believer so that blessing from the justice of God can have a home, a direction, a target. All imputations have to have a home or direction. Adam's sin condemns us; but Jesus solved this on the cross. All personal sins were imputed to Jesus Christ judged by the justice of God. There is only one sin which sends us to hell—sin because they do not believe in Me. When you reject Jesus Christ, you provide no home for justification.
2. Divine justice can only bless perfect righteousness. At the moment of salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ God's perfect righteousness is imputed to the believer so that blessing from the justice of God can have a home.
3. Therefore blessing from the justice of God has a home—the imputation of God's righteousness, i.e. justification. When God gave us His righteousness, He put on His judges hat and said, "Vindicated."
4. However, blessing from the justice of God remains potential until the believer attains capacity for blessing through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.

5. Even doctrine must have a home; and the home is the heart or the soul's right lobe.
6. Potential + capacity = reality (blessing in time)
7. 2 a fortiori principles must be reviewed and revised:
 - a. If God provides the greater, looking at the degree or effort.
 - b. If God provides the greater, blessings in time, He will not withhold blessings in eternity. Paul accomplishes the reality of heaven using a fortiori.
8. The concept of the baptism of the Holy Spirit cancels the sovereignty of the sin nature in life.
9. The genetic home for the sin nature rules all man's thoughts and functions in life.
10. Through the baptism of the Holy Spirit, we have positional separation from Adam's trend.
11. Positional separation from Adam's trend abrogates the sovereignty of the sin nature in life.
12. The sin nature has trends toward sin, good and evil. By retroactive positional truth, rulership of the old sin nature in life is broken.
13. Provisional separation from Adam's trend is the secondary potential. This leads to another reality; a greater environment in life as over-against Adam in the garden. Adam's fall is a blessing to us. Grace under the justice of God provides more than from the love of God.
14. Capacity remains the same. Food goes to the stomach; that is the target; the home. It produces energy, growth, etc. Doctrine does the same thing, going to its home in the right lobe.
15. Doctrine in the soul is experiential separation of the rule of the sin nature in life.
16. Environmentally, we are removed from the power of the sin nature. Attaining these blessings glorify God.

Bob is preparing us for the genius of Romans 5. We produce a fortiori after a fortiori. An agricultural analogy is used as to what can be imputed to you.

The crowns are used to represent great eternal wealth, although we do not know what exactly that will be. That is language of accommodation.

God put cherubs to guard the garden because we cannot go back to perfect environment and this would not be good for us anyway.

1977 Romans

156 07/31/1977 Romans 5:12a (Review of lesson 155) Results of the Fall; doctrine of imputation must have direction (cont)

Bob sees Romans 5 as one of the most critical chapters in the Word of God. Bob realizes that this is not simply salvation material. Bob thought that he extracted a great deal of material from the past 6 verses, to review and revise. Romans is the advance to maturity for the gentiles and Hebrews is the advance to maturity for the Jews.

This second trip through is going to be even more rewarding. This will be also covered in the ladies class as well.

Bob is going to go back and review what he covered on Friday, while he revises the doctrines of the sin nature and imputations.

While reviewing, additional notes will be placed back with lesson #155. Most of the lesson was devoted to reviewing the three main doctrines given in the previous lesson. Many additional points are added to the final doctrine in lesson #155.

Imbeciles decide which sins are worse than others; but they are all sins to God. A lust is simply a predilection for trends. We have variations of sin, variations of good, and variations of evil. All of the variations separate believers. However, one is not better or worse than another.

The justice of God does not give us blessing which we cannot appreciate. Potential + capacity = blessing in time.

The less is blessing in time; the greater is justification at faith in Christ. Gold is a standard for time, along with precious stones. That is all about the Millennium; but these are not for heaven.

The trouble with Paul is, he was a genius; and the trouble with fundies is, they are stupid.

105 minutes in, and we come to the exegesis.

We are going to stockpile for the first a fortiori principle. Paul will use the comparative clause and the conditional clause. Dia + heis + anthropos = through one man. Harmartia is used with the definite article; which means this is something which you are now familiar with. Eiserchomai = to enter. This is Adam's original sin + Adam's trends which enter in. Adam produces the action of the original sin. It enters into the devil's world. Eis + kosmos, which is the devil's world. Then Satan became the ruler and Adam's trend reigned in the life of man.

Romans 5:12 For this reason, just as through one man [Adam] the sin [of Adam] entered into the world,...

Principles

1. Man was created a perfect creature by a perfect God.
2. Divine provision for man had everything that man needed. The love of God was the point of reference for man. When man sinned, crossing the line, the justice of God kicks in and condemns man. Blessing would also come from the justice of God.
3. The relationship with the love of God was temporal. Man did not possess imputed righteousness. As long as man refrained from that tree, it was temporal. Perfect environment has no children. We know we have eternal security. But what cinches everything is having the righteousness of God. Then eternal life has a home (in God's righteousness). God kept giving Adam Bible doctrine and He gave him the woman. The love of God can only give one day at a time. But with imputed righteousness, after sin, we have permanence.

4. Man in the garden, there was no permanence with the love of God.
5. Capacity for perfect environments came with daily conversations.
6. Relationship with God under perfect environment.
7. Good, evil and sin were not taught at that time.
8. The sin of Adam entered the world through the original fall.
9. The woman was deceived by Satan. She was genuinely ignorant and she underestimated the brilliance of the serpent. And she underestimate her man. The man is still her master. This is why the man has authority over the woman; after salvation, he still has it. The woman sinned.
10. Adam sinned by taking the fruit from her hand. Beware of what you take from the hand of the woman.
11. At the moment of negative volition, both died spiritually.
12. Their spiritual death included the existence of the old sin nature and its first trend, which was for good. They were naked, they recognized the fact, and realized that they had a social problem. Good and evil start with social problems. What are they going to do. They decide to adjust to one another. They conclude their first thought of evil. They think that they are right with God because they are right with one another.
13. While Adam and the woman had sex in the garden, there was no propagation. There was no male 23 chromosomes. Children came as a result of sin.
14. Sex in the perfect environment of the garden was a combination of perfect companionship and perfect sex and satisfaction.
15. This relationship was added to with negative volition.
16. When man sinned, the justice of God became his frame of reference. This included spiritual death and an assortment of punishments.
17. A new function was added to sex as a divine judgment; children. This had to happen in order for man to be redeemed.
18. These man Adams will all receive the imputation of Adam's sin.
19. This sin needs a home, which is the sin nature.
20. Both Adam and Eve had a sin nature after the fall. The man could pass along the sin nature; the woman could not.
21. The woman was a carrier; the man was a carrier. The man is also a transmitter.

The cancellation of the B1 bomber greatest mistake since Pearl Harbor.

Lesson #157

157 07/31/1977 Romans 5:12b Spiritual death; true reason for fig leaves; provisions of love
1 cf. to the justice of God

Romans 5:12a For this reason, just as through one man [Adam] the sin [of Adam] entered into the world,...

Romans 5:12b “and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men”

The imputation of Adam’s sin + Adam’s trend = the old sin nature.

Romans 5:12 For this reason, just as through one man [Adam] the sin [of Adam] entered into the world, and the [spiritual] death through the sin [nature]; consequently the [spiritual] death spread to all men, because all sinned [when Adam sinned].

Principles

1. Spiritual death is Adam’s original sin united with Adam’s trend at birth. At birth we are born physically alive because of the imputation of life to the soul, but at the same time the imputation of Adam’s sin to the old sin nature gives us spiritual death. In those 23 chromosomes, all the weaknesses of the human race are to be found.
 - a. Personal sin is not an issue in spiritual death.
 - b. The imputation of Adam’s sin is the basis of our condemnation.
 - c. The sin nature is the home for Adam’s original sin; and it is separate from the soul.
 - d. Justification means that we are cleared for blessing from the justice of God.
2. Obviously then, spiritual death entered the world through Adam’s original sin.
3. Spiritual death is the imputation of Adam’s sin to Adam’s old sin nature or Adam’s trend. In other words, Adam’s original sin is combined with Adam’s trend to produce the facsimile of Adam after the fall and/or spiritual death.
4. Imputation must have a direction for the justice of God to function.
5. At physical birth the justice of God imputes Adam’s sin to Adam’s trend resulting in instant spiritual death.
6. At physical birth life has a home in the soul while the imputation of Adam’s sin has a home in the old sin nature.
7. Therefore by the imputation of life and at the same time the imputation of Adam’s sin at birth the human race is a facsimile of Adam after he sinned.
8. Spiritual death is Adam’s original sin united with Adam’s trend at birth.

Spiritual death is total condemnation. We either adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God adjusts to us.

Romans 5:12a For this reason, just as through one man [Adam] the sin [of Adam] entered into the world, and the [spiritual] death through the sin [nature]; consequently the [spiritual] death spread...

The imputation of Adam’s sin to Adam’s trend. The only exception is with Jesus Christ.

The spiritual death spread. Imputation must have a direction.

Another review of: Imputation must Have Direction at Human Birth (#155)

Bob is counting on us arriving in heaven without a sin nature.

There was no target for Adam's original sin in Jesus. The last Adam would have to commit a sin in order to get a sin nature.

...to all mankind reads us into the picture. The linking of the sin of Adam with the trend of Adam makes us spiritually dead.

Romans 5:12 For this reason, just as through one man [Adam] the sin [of Adam] entered into the world, and the [spiritual] death through the sin [nature]; consequently the [spiritual] death spread to all men, because all sinned [when Adam sinned].

Adam made a decision for all of us; but we would have all made that same decision. This is confirmed by God imputing Adam's original sin to us. All personal sins were imputed to the Last Adam. We were all in Adam when he sinned. Adam had all the genes which make up the human race. The sin nature is genetically formed, which answers all the questions about the material and immaterial. When Adam sinned, every cell was corrupted.

Adam and Eve were not putting on clothes because they were naked, they were covering their bodies of corruption. This is a trend. Every cell is corrupted by the old sin nature genetically. It is the entrance of the sin of Adam into the world that led to two factors. a) Satan becoming the ruler of this world; b) The old sin nature rules through spiritual death. The old sin nature is the sovereign of life.

Adam and the woman had perfect bodies and they had sex but no children. But every cell was corrupted by the sin nature. Once a month, a woman has a perfect cell.

When Adam sinned, every cell of his body was corrupted.

Question: If Adam had not sinned, would he have had eternal life? The answer is no. If Adam had not sinned at this time he would still be on a daily contract with God. His contact is renewed for another day when at sundown he passes up the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Had he not sinned he would still not have had eternal life, he would merely go on day by day with perfect environment which could only continue as long as he rejected the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Good and evil is the enemy of perfect environment. It is the policy of Satan that inevitably destroys good environment. It was something that Adam did not need in the garden, his provision was perfect, and it was from the love of God, therefore no grace. Two things were missing from the garden: the function of the grace of God and the justice of God as the point of reference. These two are greater factors than existed in the garden. As long as the love of God was the point of reference and the source of Adam's perfect environment, the source of his perfection, there was no place for either the justice of God or the grace of God. These are the two factors that add up to the first a fortiori of divine blessing. Adam had no security in the garden, he had to behave a day at a time. We have a security, for our behaviour is not even an issue—at least in this subject.

In the garden the love of God provided everything perfectly for Adam. Both Adam and the woman were perfect persons and they lived in perfect environment provided through the love of God—a perfect age, a perfect epoch. Two things were missing because they were not necessary at that time: the justice of God and grace. There was no need for grace as the policy of the justice of God in blessing. There was one issue, and that was a divine prohibition regarding the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Good and evil at the present time is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life. This is important because by combining a function and a policy together you have the counterfeit of the integrity of God. Righteousness is the principle of divine integrity and justice is the function of divine integrity. Policy and function is Satan's attempt to duplicate the integrity of God. All of this was a test for perfect volition. Perfect volition only becomes imperfect volition by the disobedience to the divine prohibition. And there was a day by day contract. In answer to the question, Could Adam and the woman have eternal life in the garden? the answer is no. As long as they refrain from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil they could have one day at a time. It is impossible to have eternal life without the function of the justice of God as the source in the essence of God and the policy of the essence of God in blessing, which is grace. The woman's sin could not be imputed to the human race because it was a transgression of ignorance. A transgression of ignorance cannot be used as a real imputation. Immediately the man and the woman sinned they came under a new system. No longer would the love of God be the point of reference or the point of contact for the human race, it goes to something which can provide greater, and that is the justice of God. So the justice of God goes immediately into action and it has two functions: cursing and blessing.

Vv. 13–17 is the a fortiori of prosperity. Vv. 13–14 is the stockpiling of the a fortiori.

Principles Anticipating Romans 5:13

1. This section is related to Romans 5:1. We as believers are commanded to have prosperity. The subjunctive mood is used where some people do not always do what is said to do. The hortatory subjunctive cannot be fulfilled until there is consistent learning and perception of Bible doctrine. We are commanded to be prosperous. We are ordered to be prosperous face to face with the God. As we grow spiritually, God becomes more real to us than people that we can see.
2. The hortatory subjunctive of Romans 5:1 is ordered of all believers.
3. This passage, vv. 13–17, develops through a fortiori logic. The details.
4. A fortiori is a Latin phrase meaning with stronger reason. When you have a reality with which you are cognizant, you can take that principle. If the greater has been accomplished, the less will not be withheld.
5. If the greater benefit justification has been given at salvation, it follows a fortiori that the justice of God will not withhold the less, blessing and prosperity in time in the devil's world, which is greater than the blessing in the garden. The justice of God can provide more for us than the love of God can. Love cannot provide salvation because love cannot judge. The justice of God can do much more than the love of God. It became obvious at the cross. Therefore, the justice of God becomes a stronger factor. Technically speaking, there was no grace in the garden. To have grace, you must be undeserving, meaning spiritually dead. God can do more for us now and eternity than God can do in the garden. If Adam did not sin, we would be seminally in Adam.

6. Furthermore, blessing and prosperity in time glorifies God.
7. If God can do the greater, it follows that God can do the less. This is not quality or quantity. It is all about effort. It is about logic. If the strength provided the most, then the strength can provide the least. Logic is a lost art in the United States and everywhere else. We are in the rarified air of Paul's logic.
8. The greater is more difficult; the less is easier to provide. If I can do 100 pushups then I can do 10 pushups. A fortiori is about the degree of strength involved in accomplishment.
9. In v. 15, the a fortiori contends as follows: if God provides the greater at salvation for justification, then God can provide the less, blessing and prosperity in time.
10. In v. 17, the a fortiori contends: if God provides the greater, blessings in time it follows that God will provide the less, blessings and prosperity in eternity.
11. In warming up to the subject, we have seen the a fortiori logics; and these are all warm-ups. If we were justified by the blood of Christ, then deliverance from the last judgment is the less.
12. In v. 9, if we are justified by the blood of Christ then we will be delivered at the last judgment.
13. V. 10—if the greater has been given, then the less will not be withheld.
14. If the justice of God can do the greater, then the justice of God can do the less. This section that we are studying is the crux of the matter and this explains the mechanics of grace and what is required of the believer in time.
15. This sets the stage of the Christian way of life. This eliminates all the superficialities of legalism.
16. God is glorified when His justice can provide blessings in time.
17. This blessing in time is parlayed into blessings in eternity which glorify God.

This has become far more important because we have taken in many peripheral doctrines which lead to this.

Bob does not think he was found a greater passage. This is of extreme importance.

Could glorifying God simply mean the greater revelation of His attributes? Could this be not a devotional focus but an understanding of Him which is emphasized.

158 08/01/1977 Romans 5:13 Real and judicial imputations; spiritual death; target of personal sins

Balderdash only growls for so long and then he bites. Bob took him to the vet, but had to calm him. He bit Bob's hand down to the bone.

We are in the midst of stockpiling doctrines by Paul for a fortiori logic.

Bob reviews Principles Anticipating Romans 5:13 from Lesson #157.

Bob has never found such an important concept.

For until the Law, sin was in the world.

All of this goes back to v. 12. Human life requires a home, which is the soul. There was no human life in the blastocyst, the embryo or the foetus. The woman is a carrier of the sin nature, but only the man can transmit it. Adam's original sin was antecedently ours.

There is a format soul, and life goes to that format soul. When the foetus emerges in the case of Christ, there is no target for the sin nature. Adam's original sin and his sin nature was Adam's spiritual death. Genetically, the sin nature is passed down. By the imputation of Adam's original sin to the sin nature (or Adam's trend) = spiritual death. But that is not the case with the Lord. Because of a judicial imputation, we have all the sins of the world, past, present and future, poured out on Christ. The moment that we believe in Christ, the justice of God makes a judicial imputation. Only real imputations have a home or target; and judicial imputations do not. A judicial imputation requires volition. Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness.

The imputation of Adam's sin + capacity = reality, which is blessing in time. It is not what we do for God; but what God does for us. Only God can glorify God.

Grace has picked up the ball for us. In the garden, love was the provider. There was no sin apart from eating from one particular tree. Dying, you will die. Adam and the woman interacted with the love of God; everything that they had was perfect. Man had no security in the garden because he was on a day by day contact. Adam had no sin nature; there was no long list of sins.

Justice has its strength in grace. Grace with justice provides more for man in time than love could in the perfect environment of the garden. A perfect foundation demands a perfect superstructure. Human self-righteousness; human experiences—these things do not glorify God at all. This is not something that we strain at. The superstructure is blessing in time from the justice of God. In order for God to give these blessings, there must be the capacity. We can have the accoutrements of blessing and still be miserable. God first gives the capacity. So many will have misery in this life as believers do. In eternity, all will have a resurrection body, minus the sin nature, which is a part of the security.

For those who crack the maturity barrier and reach the various stages of maturity, these are parlayed into blessings in eternity. These blessings stagger the imagination. The foundation is the resurrection body minus the old sin nature.

Justification + blessing in time in v. 17 = blessing in eternity. Who gets the credit? The justice of God. There is no place for you to horn in and take some credit.

Then the adverb achri + the genitive of nomos. Nomos refers to the Mosaic Law, which defines an epoch of history. This covers a period of history. But so many Jews had distorted the Law into a legalistic system. From Adam to the Law. For, unto the Law...

Hamartia = personal sin, as defined by the Mosaic Law. Imperfect active indicative of eimi. The imperfect tense of duration, contemplating personal sins as a continuing process. It does not indicate whether this action has been completed. The person chooses to commit these sins. We are spiritually death because we have Adam's original sin imputed to the sin nature. Adam's trend is in every cell. But Jesus Christ could not have died except to exhale His life. Jesus was unique in every sense of the Word. The sin nature is in these trends. Our weakness in the field of sin, good or evil. The contamination is complete apart from those 23 perfect chromosomes from the woman. The real imputation occurs when Adam's sin is imputed to Adam's trend, which we have. It is imperative for personal sins to be reserved for a judicial imputation. The sins which Christ received were all sins from us which were judged by God the Father. Because of one judicial imputation, God is able to make a second judicial imputation of the righteousness of God, imputed to every person. The only way to avoid spiritual death is for this to occur. This is how the justice of God provides for us something that is far superior than what man possessed in the garden.

Personal sins from Adam's trend produce the action. The old sin nature rules life through spiritual death. The sin nature is the sovereign of life. Just as some have different eyes, different physical characteristics, that we also inherit certain weaknesses, which are a corrupting factor. The sin nature does not reside in the soul, it affects the thinking of the soul. A declarative indicative, for a statement of fact.

Cosmos is now the devil's world. Satan wants to create good greater than any system of good that God can produce. Satan is embarrassed by the fact of Adam's trends; meaning that he has very poor material to work with. Man, with his sins and with his human good and his trend toward evil frustrates Satan. Man by man's efforts cannot fix his environment. But Satan has been able in the United States to have people in the United States where they are producing socialism and a good environment. Evil flourishes better in a climate of do-goodism. Christianity seems to be helping Satan along. The Christian way of life has been corrupted by Satan, starting with the Methodists, and going into social action.

Satan set up a system from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil; and this has become federal encroachment.

For until the Law, personal sin was in the world...

Spiritual Death, Adam's Original Sin, and Adam's Trend

1. This emphasizes personal sin combined with Adam's trend which is formed in each one of us individually. We were seminally in Adam when He sinned. Adam's original sin hones in on Adam's trend forming a real imputation.
2. Personal sin is not the basis for spiritual death from Adam to Moses or from Moses to Christ. Personal sin is never the basis for spiritual death. It is only Adam's one sin.
3. Personal sin is one of three manifestations of spiritual death. It is the result not the means of spiritual death.
4. The other two manifestations of spiritual death is the thought function of human good and the thought function of evil.
5. While the Mosaic Law was not introduced until the time of Moses, the pattern of spiritual death functioned from Adam to Moses. The Mosaic Law defines personal sin.
6. With or without the Mosaic Law, man is spiritually dead. Spiritual death is the combination of Adam's original sin with Adam's trend. We are spiritually dead without committing any personal sin.

Spiritual Death, Adam's Original Sin, and Adam's Trend Part II

1. At the physical birth of every person, save one, God imputes Adam's original sin to the sin nature. Both the man and the woman carry the sin nature.
2. Spiritual death is the imputation of Adam's sin to Adam's trend. At birth, we are a facsimile of Adam.
3. This combination results in a facsimile of Adam after the fall.
4. The imputation of the soul at birth is physical life.
5. We are born physically alive and spiritually dead.
6. The sin nature is acquired genetically. The combination of Adam's sin along with the sin nature, means spiritual death. A judicial imputation is one which is indecently our own; a real imputation is something that has a normal target or home. A real imputation simply happens; a judicial imputation requires volition.¹
7. The home for physical life is the soul; the home for Adam's sin is Adam's trend.
8. Since Adam's fall, the old sin nature has been the sovereign of life through spiritual death.
9. Because the old sin nature is the sovereign of life, personal sin has existed in the world from Adam's fall until this moment.

For until the Law, personal sin was in the world...

The Pattern

¹ I am adding that final sentence.

1. While personal sin has been in the world since the fall of Adam, this is not the basis for condemnation from the justice of God.
2. The basis for the condemnation from the justice of God is Adam's original sin which has been imputed to Adam's trend, which we all carry.
3. The old sin nature is transmitted through Adam. From the male chromosomes.
4. Whether personal sin is defined by the Law or not, the condemnation is there already because Adam's sin has already been computed.
5. Therefore, condemnation from the justice of God originates because of the imputation of Adam's sin to the human race and not by personal sins.
6. Personal sins are the manifestation of spiritual death. We are already spiritually dead when we commit our first sin.
7. Spiritual death = the imputation of Adam's original sin to Adam's trend.
8. The target is the old sin nature.
9. The issue and emphasis to homo sapiens is not personal sin but Adam's sin.
10. The justice of God imputes Adam's sin to Adam's nature and this is spiritual death. All of this is instantaneously. God does the greater instantaneously while He accomplishes the less over a period of time.

We keep stockpiling doctrine through v. 17.

The nominative singular hamartia, which is the principle of personal sin. There is a contrast in the two clauses. The objective negative adverb ou. Our personal sins are imputed to us for condemnation. Pastors often go to Romans because they think it is simple. That they go to all of these various passages, where they do not fully understand what they are quoting. Over-simplification + stupidity = distortion and confusion.

Present passive indicative of ellogeô, which means to impute. Historical present presented with the vividness of a past occurrence. There was never a time in history where your personal sins were imputed to you. The average sloppy thinking of people today is that our personal sins are the reason for our spiritual death and our liability.

A genitive absolute links up a noun and a genitive are linked up to make a point. Nomos in the genitive is used as the subject. The present passive participle of eimi, but it does not mean to be here, but to exist. The negative mê with the participle. The negative mê denies the idea; ou denies the reality. It takes for granted that the Law did not exist from Adam to Moses.

For until the Law, personal sin was in the world but personal sin was not imputed when Law did not exist...

Analysis of Romans 5:13

1. The basis for all human condemnation from the justice of God is the imputation of Adam's sin. Your personal sins are not an issue. Personal sin is an issue in salvation only because Jesus Christ paid for them.

2. We are condemned on the basis of Adam's sin.
3. Personal sins are the result of having a sin nature, not the cause. Personal sin is a manifestation of spiritual death along with the production of human good. There are more born again believers destroying the United States from their confusion about the truth. Believers distort freedom.
4. Other manifestations of spiritual death include the production of human good and evil.
5. While personal sin existed from Adam to Moses, it was not the basis for our condemnation.
6. The personal sins of the human race were not imputed to anyone until the cross. This does not mean that we are not punished for personal sins.
7. At the cross, the personal sins of mankind—past, present and future—are imputed to Jesus Christ. There was no natural home in Jesus Christ for these imputations.
8. One imputation condemnation; one imputation justification. The link between them is the imputation of all personal sins to Jesus Christ on the cross.
9. One imputation for condemnation; one for justification. First one we are born; second one we are born again.
10. Between the imputations, all personal sins in history were collected and imputed to Jesus Christ and judged.
11. Condemnation comes to the human race at birth and justification comes at the new birth.

The exception will be studied tomorrow night.

1977 Romans

Lesson #159

159 08/02/1977 Romans 5:14a Pattern of spiritual death; Jesus Christ the exception to genetic contamination by the old sin nature

Real vs a judicial imputation. A real imputation has a direction, or a home or a target. The Lord created the soul. The home for the imputation of Adam's sin was the genetic home for the sin nature. Bob leaves out that a real imputation is automatic; it is not dependent upon volition.

The man and the woman both carry the sin nature; but only the man can transmit it.

The grace imputations are always judicial. This comes from the justice of God without having a home. The personal sins of the human race were imputed to Jesus Christ on the cross. They were not antecedently His Own. All judicial imputations are grace imputations; all real imputations are condemnation type except for the giving of life.

Romans 5:13 For until the Law, personal sin was in the world, but personal sin was not imputed when the Law did not exist.

Bob reviews Analysis of Romans 5:13.

If we were judged for our sins, then we would be thrown into the Lake of Fire. Perfect people + perfect environment = a perfect paradise, which was a day by day contract maintained by the love of God. Man did not have eternal life and he did not have any sin; and there was no grace. Grace is the factor that makes it possible for us to have in time something greater than Adam and the woman had in the garden. One of the conditions of perfect environment was children. This circumstance remained as long as the man and the woman did not sin against God. As long as they were positive, God maintained that perfect environment.

There was no function of justice and no function of grace in the garden. The justice of God has a twofold purpose, introducing grace and justice to man.

Bob blushes about what he taught in Romans before; he doesn't really blush, because he needs his blood for other things. Bob is giving something that is not found in any book on Romans.

We can have greater than what Adam had in the garden. You can either come along with this or not. Bob's last night in CA spent the whole day writing longhand. First time he did this since he learned typing in high school. Bob was going to lose all of these things unless he wrote them down.

The old sin nature is not in the soul; it never was and it never could be. "Go to T&P; and no one is going to say, 'Ah, you weren't here, huh?'"

Imputation of the Sin Nature: Jesus Christ Is the Only Exception

1. All the cells in the human race are contaminated by the old sin nature with one exception. We have a body of corruption. Our actual cells are contaminated by the old sin nature.
2. Through myosis (myosis splits the cell) and the function of polar bodies. Half of the cells remaining, this is myosis; and these are 23 pure chromosomes, minus the old sin nature. About once a month, the woman has one cell free of the sin nature. The virgin birth is found in every biologic textbook.
3. The ovum prepared for fertilization is uncontaminated, no Adam's trend, no old sin nature. The reason it is theologically uncontaminated because the woman is a carrier but not a transmitter of the sin nature.
4. The woman cannot transmit the old sin nature.
5. Only the male can transmit the old sin nature. The 23 chromosomes from the male transmit the sin nature.
6. The virgin Mary was a carrier of the old sin nature. At that one moment, she possessed the one pure cell. The Holy Spirit provided 23 pure chromosomes to fertilize the uncorrupted set of 23 chromosomes in Mary. Physical death is a result of spiritual death just as sin is a result of spiritual death. Jesus had a perfect body, genetically speaking. There was only one way for Him to be contaminated and that would be by committing a sin. When the foetus emerged from the womb, God gave human life to that soul, and this was a perfect person. Adam's original sin could not be imputed as there was no home for that. Until this past week, Bob did not understand why Jesus did not have a sin nature at birth. Spiritual death always strives to better itself. Satan cannot get all the good that he wants because of all the other trends in the sin nature. This frustrates Satan. Satan is trying to produce the Millennium before it occurs. Congress is trying to legislate perfection, but it cannot because of the trends of the sin nature.

7. Because of this, at the birth of Christ, God the Father imputed human life to the soul of Jesus Christ but He did not impute Adam's original sin. God provides the soul for human life. Life goes to its genetic home, the soul.
8. For imputation must have a direction; and no sin nature could be formed in Christ because of pathogenesis.
9. No copulation eliminated the 23 male chromosomes by which the sin nature is transmitted. Christ was born as Adam was created. Body, soul and spirit, perfection.
10. Because of the virgin birth, no imputation of Adam's sin.
11. No spiritual death at birth therefore.
12. Christ then lived a perfect life, resisting all temptation. Christ would have to sin in order to get a sin nature.
13. On the cross, all of our sins were imputed to Jesus Christ and judged by God the Father. Jesus was forsaken because He was made sin for us. 2Corinthians 5:21
14. This is the basis for salvation adjustment to the justice of God.

This clears the decks for v. 14.

Nevertheless, death reigned from Adam to Moses.

Alla sets up a contrast. The aorist active indicative of basileuô which means, to reign, to rule. Spiritual death rules the human race, but not because of personal sins but because of one sin. Adam's original sin to its genetic home at birth. The Mosaic Law defines what sin is. Spiritual death is based upon one sin. The Mosaic Law is eliminated as an issue in spiritual death. Spiritual death is Adam's original sin combined with Adam's trend, the sin nature. At birth, there is a facsimile Adam produced in each one of us. This combination is accomplished by a real imputation.

Adam's original sin always follows Adam's trend. If there is a sin nature, then Adam's original sin zeroes in on that nature at birth. God can have nothing to do with good, evil or sin. No corruption of the chromosomes until Adam's one sin. The rulership of the planet was given to Satan and the rulership of human life to the sin nature. We learn of something in Romans 6 which breaks the sovereignty of the sin nature.

Ho thanatos, the subject, and this refers to spiritual death. The definite article assumes our familiarity with spiritual death by this point in Paul's epistle. This gives no quality to the noun; it just indicates something with which we are familiar.

English grammar is an insult to English intelligence. Most people learn English grammar because they learned Latin.

Spiritual death ruled from Adam to Moses, which was an epoch where there was no Mosaic Law. Spiritual death rules actively and passively.

apo + Adam. An Indeclinable noun is one of the higher honors given to any person. Paul is giving him respect as our original parent. Improper preposition macri. Paul and Moses were both in a genius class. Add in Cæsar and Napoleon, and you have named the greatest brains in human history. Paul gives the correct, right and proper respect for his original ancestor, and he turns around and says, this is the greatest of them all. He does this with the improper macri with the genitive form of Moses.

From Moses to Christ, we have the Law.

nevertheless, the spiritual death ruled from Adam to Moses...

Principle

1. The imputation of Adam's sin to Adam's trend constitutes spiritual death.
2. Spiritual death has the imputation of Adam's sin + the formation of Adam's trend.
3. Adam's trend rules in human life.
4. This trend is formed genetically in each one of us.
5. Since the chromosomes contain many genes, we all have likewise trends of weaknesses in the field of corruption.
6. These trends or weaknesses explain the variety of sins, the variety of goods and evils, and the variation of lust patterns.
7. 3 categories of sin: mental, verbal and overt.
8. In spite of the absence of the divine norm, personal sin is not an issue in spiritual death.
9. The Mosaic Law which defines personal sin is not the issue. It is emphasized by the Judaizers.
10. Spiritual death, condemnation from the justice of God, combines Adam's original sin and its genetic home, the old sin nature.
11. Again spiritual death rules in the human race in the body by the sin nature and passively by the imputation of Adam's sin.
12. Reality in the human race as... Personal sin is not imputed or the basis for our condemnation.
13. Adam's original sin is the basis for condemnation from the justice of God.
14. Spiritual death rules through the function of the old sin nature.
15. The sin nature rules The triad of its trends.
16. The woman was deceived; and the man also sinned, but from cognition.
17. Ignorance is no excuse before the justice of God. The woman is just as guilty.
18. However, because of cognizance in the transgression, man transmits the sin nature.

160 08/03/1977 Romans 5:14b–15a Variations in old sin natures; first cf. second Adam; A FORTIORI of parlaying

Romans 5:14 Yet death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over those whose sinning was not like the transgression of Adam, who was a type of the one who was to come. (BLB)

Next phrase begins with kai, used as an adverb, even. Epi + accusative plural meaning, even over those. Mê + hamartanô. Aorist active indicative. Epi again + the locative of homona. Position is emphasized here, where motive was emphasized before. In the likeness. Epi + the genitive emphasizes contact.

Parabasis refers to Adam's original sin. Even over those who had not sinned in the likeness of Adam's sin.

Principle

1. Adam's sin was a rejection of the authority over him.
2. A rejection of God's authority; and this was the only way for him to lose the garden.
3. One thing that Adam did not need in the garden of perfect environment is cognizance of good. It is an attempt to counterfeit divine good but by a man.
4. All sin is objection to God's authority. All sin is not the same sin that Adam committed. The trends were all there, but Adam just did not get around to committing all of them. Often churches are divided into groups of people who sin this way, and those who sin in another way. There is really a difference of sinning, aristocratic sinning and the sins of the peasants. We have a tendency to look down our nose at those who do not share our trend. All of this is a false system of divisiveness.
5. We do not have to duplicate the sin of Adam to be just as guilty.
6. Adam's original sin is the basis of our condemnation; not our own personal sins.
7. Without duplication of Adam's original sin, we are just as guilty as Adam because his sin has been imputed to us at birth. Real imputations have a target or home; judicial imputations do not.
- 8.
9. The entire human race was in Adam when he sinned. Genetically we have Adam's trend.
10. The entire human race is guilty because of one imputed sin which combines with Adam's trend to form spiritual death. Personal sin is not the basis for condemnation at birth.
11. The imputed sin of Adam is always the same; the personal sins of mankind are varied.
12. The variations of personal sin have nothing to do with our condemnation.

13. By imputation, Adam's sin is combined with the old sin nature resulting in spiritual death.
14. Personal sin is the result of spiritual death but not the means of spiritual death and condemnation in the human race.
15. Between Adam and Moses, personal sins were not imputed to the human race.
16. The variety of personal sins and their relative evil is not the basis for our condemnation.
17. Personal sins, human good, and the pattern of evil are all manifestations of spiritual death; but not the means of spiritual death.
18. Spiritual death is Adam's original sin + the old sin nature.
19. The trends and personal sins and the acts of human good under the umbrella of evil is the result of imputing Adam's sin to Adam's trend.
20. The imputation of Adam's sin + the sin nature = spiritual death.

Our nation is all about doing all kinds of good things for people. The welfare state is a principle of evil. The Indian bureau is also a waste. No place for these bureaus. You are an American citizen or not. We should have the best environment of freedom. Look out for people who want to do you a favor. You cannot do good and impress the Lord. The only answer to spiritual advance is the constant intake of Bible doctrine, resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God. No good has ever come from someone trying to do Bob good. Those who are trying to be helpful are just attempting to improve the devil's world. Adam and the woman thought that if they adjusted to one another, that would make their sin okay before God.

Their fig leaves which the two had did not keep them from blaming one another.

Some people do not want to be nice to you, but they grit their teeth and do it for Jesus. If we have any tendency to rationalize our own sins, we lose the concept of rebound.

Neuter singular relative pronoun hos + eimi. A static present; active; indicative. + predicate nominative of tupos. Who is a type... Mello is an action which follows the divine decrees. Aorist participle. Of Him who was destined to come.

Romans 5:14 Nevertheless, the spiritual death ruled from Adam to Moses, even over those who had not sinned in the likeness of Adam's transgression, who is a type of Him who is destined to come. (Revised)

Principles

1. Here there is some limited typology, but important. Only two perfect men have lived, the first and the last Adam.
2. The first Adam was created perfect, but through the exercise of his own free will, a free will being perfect and having the option for sin.
3. Continuing the analogy, the last Adam was born perfect and through the exercise of His Own free will, He remained perfect. Only personal sin can acquire the sin nature for those who are perfect. He arrived at the cross impeccable. Christ was born into a fallen world.

4. One imputation Adam's sin brought condemnation. One imputation of God's justice brings justification.
5. Between the two imputations is the first advent of Christ, parlaying condemnation into justification.
6. The parlaying of condemnation into justification, sets up a pattern for the grace of God whereby God parlays temporal blessings into eternal blessings (anticipating v. 17).
7. The cross parlays imputation of Adam's sin and resultant condemnation to resultant justification.
8. Justification sets up two principles of a fortiori logic.
9. We begin with the a fortiori of temporal blessing is the great issue.
10. If the greater is the gift of eternal life, if God gives the greater through grace, He will not withhold the less. God never changes principles. Grace in eternity just as it is grace now.
11. If the greater is the parlaying spiritual death into spiritual life, it follows that if God gives the greater through grace, He will not withhold the less through grace. The less is not less in quality; it is less in terms of degree of accomplishment.

If God gives the greater through grace, He will then give us the less. It will be grace in eternity just as much as it is grace now. All of these imputations are judicial from the justice of God. The function of the love of God cannot do this. We are under a better system; justice uses grace, which gives us greater blessings than what Adam had, giving us also greater security.

The repetition will keep us in line with grace. There are people born in the gutter and trying to chin themselves on the curb. They try to crawl out and someone kicks them back. Justice is on one end of the street and on the other end is righteousness. The grace system tells us that we do not earn it or deserve it. Christ being judged for our sins is more effort. Justice does not go around throwing out blessing; but love can throw out blessing all over the place, as there is no sin involved. The recipients of blessing had not yet sinned. No grace was necessary; they were not deserving or undeserving. Justice was not in the picture yet. Bob would want to get the show rolling. Let's sin and get cracking.

All of our blessings are encapsulated in the justice of God.

If you are going to do anything well, integrity is the issue. We are suffering in our country from lack of integrity in business, in government, in professional areas, which has sprouted up everywhere. The profession of law has profited by this. They establish integrity contractually.

We can nibble on v. 15. This is the first a fortiori, which is blessing in time.

Alla (differentiating between the first Adam and the last Adam); + the negative adverb ou, denying the reality of an alleged fact. Hos is something in the manner that it does not proceed. By seeing how it doesn't, we will see how it does. Paul gets so excited, he goes from one elliptical clause to another. + the nominative singular of paraptoma. But not as that transgression...

What precedes is the original sin of Adam. The work of Christ on the cross brings judicial justification. Charisma with the definite article, to emphasize the work of Christ on the cross.

But not as that transgression, so also is that gracious gift (the saving work of Christ on the cross)....

Adam's original sin is imputed to its genetic home. There were 23 chromosomes a perfect cell. Occasionally, a woman will have a perfect cell. It will have 23 chromosomes. The only cell free of the sin nature. No genetic formation of the sin nature. So no imputation of Adam's sin to Jesus Christ.

Our personal sins would not be imputed to us; but they were saved up for the cross.

Romans 5:15a But not as that transgression, so also is that gracious gift (that is, the saving work of Christ on the cross)....

The two judicial imputations provide for our salvation. This sets up the perfect, the ultimate in a fortiori.

1977 Romans

Lesson #161

161 08/04/1977 Romans 5:15b Imputation of Adam's sin + old sin nature = spiritual death; grace gift; source of physical death

Bob about talking and unnecessary movement.

vv. 12–14 read.

Romans 5:15a But not as that transgression, so also is that gracious gift (that is, the saving work of Christ on the cross)....

There is no home for divine righteousness in anyone. It is based upon the glory and the power of the giver. This provides a home for blessing in time and blessing in eternity. Condemnation to salvation to justification.

Principles

1. The first Adam committed the transgression which brought to mankind the old sin nature and spiritual death. Adam had a relationship with the love of God. He had a perfect body and a perfect soul. The love of God provided perfect persons and perfect environment = a perfect paradise. It is not innocence; it is perfection. But in providing the soul for human life, God had to provide a perfect volition, which includes a test. Man had a contract. There was no way in the garden that man could have eternal life. Man could be perpetuated on a day-to-day basis. The tree of good and evil describes Satan's policy. When he took over the world, but he was not fully cognizant of sin. The woman takes the fruit off the tree, not knowing what she was doing. We get to the one who did know what he was doing. Adam took the fruit from the hand of the woman. There was no morality involved in the original sin. This was negative volition to a divine prohibition. The old sin nature and spiritual death were simultaneous. Since original sin was followed by spiritual death and the old sin nature. We are born with life being imputed to the soul; and we receive the imputation of Adam's original sin to our sin nature.

2. Spiritual death is the combination of Adam's sin with the old sin nature; producing a facsimile of Adam right after the fall.
3. The sin nature is the home for Adam's original sin.
4. The old sin nature is genetically formed in the body for the reception of Adam's sin. This explains why we are called fleshly or a body of sin. The old sin nature is found in the body; and is genetic. The genetic contamination produces different weaknesses and different strengths. It varies with individuals. It takes personal sin out of the limelight of spiritual death. All of our personal sins are imputed to Christ on the cross; but nothing to do with spiritual death. Personal sin is an issue in salvation and it is also an issue in the life of the believer (and unbeliever, in fact, when it comes to life). Spiritual death is the means by which the sin nature is the lord of this life. We will never understand Romans 6, where we discover positionally and experientially how this genetic monster is broken. The old sin nature is the sovereign of the life of unbelievers; and this is true of believers out of fellowship. The old sin nature is placed by the 23 male chromosomes contributed by the man.
5. Since the Holy Spirit fertilized the ovum of the virgin Mary, Jesus did not have a sin nature. There was no place for the sin to go.
6. There was no genetic home for Adam's sin. Jesus had a similar makeup to Adam; and Jesus faced temptations which we cannot imagine. Therefore Adam's sin was not imputed to Christ because there was no home for it.
7. Christ was born as Adam was created.
8. Through transgression, Adam became spiritually dead. But Christ did not sin.
9. So the gracious gift, charisma, was not like the transgression.
10. Christ, as the antitype to Adam's type, was impeccable and perfect because there was no genetic home for Adam's sin.
11. During life, Christ did not commit any personal sins.
12. So while the typology exists to a limited extent, analogy ends where antithesis occurs. Jesus Christ brings salvation by a judicial imputation; by imputing divine righteousness
13. Divine righteousness imputes Adam's sin to each person at birth; divine justice imputed God's righteousness to every believer at salvation.

Medicine is going back in time 200 years. The intensification of human good is evil. When you intensify it, the freedom of a good many people is destroyed.

Bob is tenderhearted and cannot stand to see the confused looks on peoples' faces. Imputation of Adam's sin covered in about 5 minutes in theology class and he answered 3 questions correctly on the sin nature in class. Bob has never seen so much confusion in his congregation. This is because so many of you were not here.

Principles

1. That gracious gift is a potential for all blessings of time and all blessing of eternity.
2. Since the fall of man, the point of reference has gone from the love of God in the garden to the justice of God in the devil's world.
3. Half of divine integrity.
4. Justice is the function of integrity; righteousness is the principle.
5. Justice executes what righteousness demands.
6. Man's point of reference is the justice of God; the source of both blessing and cursing. Love is only a point of reference for blessing. Justice is a source of cursing and blessing. Justice adds what love could not. It adds grace as a power factor; it adds security to all of us.
7. The cursing or condemnation of the justice of God is Adam's sin being placed with Adam's nature.
8. Blessing from the justice of God comes from the imputation of God's righteousness.
9. At the moment of salvation through faith in Christ, the justice of God imputes the righteousness of God to each believer. This is the basis for all blessings in time and eternity.
10. A highway of blessing is opened between the justice of God at one end and the righteousness of God at the other end. As long as you are alive.
11. This anticipates the two a fortiori. The second sentence in v. 15 gives us the a fortiori approach in time.

The protasis provides the approach; and the apodosis. Bob's approach was too superficial before. God uses human genius. There is so much emphasis on Christian dummies that we lose track of God's use of human genius. The genius of Paul is a system of a fortiori logic. We are here to be blessed. I know it sounds strange. This is why we are left here and that is important. Justice fires blessing to God's righteousness. That is the only thing that glorifies God. When we see that we have been blessed by God, this does not mean that we are great at business; it means that God is blessing us. There are a lot of people who are really enjoying what they have as a blessing from God. Once we become a mature believer, we act like a mature human being. There is even hope for our ten kooks. Even a kook can glorify God.

For if through the offense of one, many be dead...

Ei + the indicative (a 1st class condition from the supposition of reality). The conclusion is true or false depending upon whether or not you profit from it.

Principle

1. The assumption here is a supposition from the viewpoint of reality.
2. The assumption of the protasis indicates the reality of spiritual death through the imputation of Adam's sin to its genetic home, which is in the cells/chromosomes of the body. There are spiritual repercussions. As personal sins do not cause spiritual death and physical death and spiritual death are different. Physical death is a result of having a body of corruption. There is no healing in the atonement.
3. Next in this protasis post-positive particle gar. This expresses an explanation; this is a gar of amplification.

For you see if... The paraptoma, which is a technical word, and the definite article is used to indicate the original sin of Adam; or that transgression of Adam. Using the definite article in order to designate a technical principle is Attic Greek.

The instrumental of means is all about impersonal means. The direction, the target, the home and Adam's sin nature is transmitted by Adam's 23 chromosomes.

The possessive genitive singular carrying the full force of a dramatic pronoun. Also the adjective singular heis, referring to Adam. The adjective is used as a noun, which is also Attic Greek. Then the aorist active indicative of apotheneskô. This is used for spiritual death. The human race died.

In every birth in history, the same things happen—life is imputed to its home; and Adam's sin is imputed to its home. This starts with the birth of Cain all the way to the Millennium. The human race produces the action of the verb at the instant of birth. Declarative indicative.

But not as that transgression, so also is that gracious gift, for if by the transgression of that one, the many [the human race] died...

Lesson #162

162 08/05/1977 Romans 5:15c Human race facsimile of Adam; no eternal life in the Garden of Eden; greater effort

But not as that transgression, so also is that gracious gift, for if by the transgression of that one, the many [the human race] died...

The is being taught for the first time anywhere. "If you are new to this church, welcome." We are not speaking in tongues; it just seems that way.

The obnoxious is the abstruse and the abstruse is the obnoxious. We have been building up to this for 6 or 7 hours.

Good and evil is the policy of Satan; and these things are not needed under perfect environment. As long as the love of God was the point of reference, there was no place for the justice of God or the grace of God.

Flesh, corruption are both synonyms for the sin nature. Men and women carry the sin nature; but only the man can transmit it. Hence, the importance of the virgin birth. All personal sins can be collected and put onto Christ, having no sin and no sin imputation. Adam's sin is a real imputation, and a real imputation must have a home.

Adam existed in two ways, prior to the fall and after the fall. Before the fall, Adam was perfect and his cells were perfect. Physically and mentally he was perfect. As long as Jesus remained perfect, there was no home for a sin nature.

A judicial imputation takes place on the cross, where all of the sins were saved up and put onto Christ.

There are no good seminaries around anymore.

Adam had no security in the garden. Behavior, which has been made a great subject; but it is not the major issue. Issues major always affect issues minor.

A protasis provides information for a premise. Here, we have a true statement.

But not as that transgression, so also is that gracious gift [the incarnation and sacrifice on the cross], for if by the transgression of that one, the many [the human race] died [and they did]...

What happens to the human race at birth? The same thing happens; human life is imputed to its home, the soul. Adam's original sin is imputed to its genetic home, which is the sin nature. This is genetically formed and not formed by God? We are facsimiles of Adam and we have the same sin. At the moment of birth, we suffer spiritual death. Adam's nature rules human life. Its rule is only turned back by the filling of the Holy Spirit. The exception of the Lord Jesus Christ, where there is no genetic form for the old sin nature. This one 23 chromosomes from the woman is perfect; and it is combined with the 23 chromosomes provided by the Holy Spirit. There is no contamination by the sin nature. No way that the sin of Adam can be imputed to Jesus Christ.

Preparing for the Apodosis

1. We are analyzing the protasis which is in the middle of v. 15. This is the premise of the a fortiori condition. It feeds the principle to the apodosis. A protasis leads us to a conclusion. This is why we are alive after salvation.
2. If God did the most for us while we were spiritually dead, He can only do the less for us once we belong to Him. Orthodoxy cannot penetrate beyond the superficial.

Orthodoxy is too often superficiality. This states 1% of what is here in this passage. This sets up a veneer of superficiality. The meaning of this passage is found in the human author, going from the known to the unknown.

- a. All of the passages dealing with heaven are very abstruse.
 - b. What is the scale of value for heaven?
 - c. 100 fold or 10 fold tell us nothing about heaven.
 - d. Or we can go to the number of cities. In reality, there are no cities in heaven. So what does this mean?
 - e. We are describing the infinite, the eternal.
 - f. Crowns are used to describe it. But, again, this is language of accommodation.
3. Outside of our Lord, there has never been a genius like Paul and God the Holy Spirit is not above using Paul's genius. This has eluded Bob for 30 years. Bob has never interpreted this apodosis until last Thursday in CA.
 4. Men raved over a commentator on Romans; and he gave a few sentences on vv. 15 and 17.
 5. A fortiori is the genius of the Apostle Paul, and he takes two a fortiori with the most reality than we can extrapolate about eternity. We have a lot of stockpiling to do.

The have pollus and mallon. A fortiori goes from the greater to the less. If the greater has been accomplished, then the less will not be withheld. We think in terms of quality; but this is logic. We are looking at degree of energy or degree of effort. If we have blessings in time, it follows that we have blessings in eternity.

To a greater degree means much more. The subject is the nominative singular of charis. Adam and Ishah in the garden were perfect. Perfect environment; perfect relationship. This is a day-to-day contract; no grace involved.

The following doctrine is reviewed in Lesson #163; so some additional notes from that lesson may be included.

Much More the Grace of God

1. In a fortiori logic, if the greater has been given, the less will not be withheld.
2. The contrast between the greater and the less is not quantity or quality, but it is all about degree of effort for accomplishment.
3. The greater takes more to accomplish than the less. By the time that we get to heaven, there is no effort, by comparison. The contrast is not quality or quantity. The greater takes more to accomplish than the less. It is all about degree of effort in accomplishment. When people are not trained to think logically and they do, that is known as common sense.
4. If God did more to justify Adam. We are condemned before God; and we are born again, justification. If God did the greater, then He can do that which is less.

5. Because of an a fortiori, the stronger reason, it is easier for God to bless the human race. It is more difficult for Him to curse.
6. If God accomplished the greater in justification then He as able to accomplish the less (blessing us in time).
7. God provides more from His justice to mankind than He did to Adam and Ishah in the garden from His love.
8. There was no such grace in the garden. God's love was the frame of reference. Grace comes at the fall and thereafter.
9. When love is the frame of reference, then love does produce what grace does.
10. Only when justice of God is the point of contact, can maximum grace produces maximum blessing.
11. Justice provides more than love can. innocence versus perfection.
12. With the justice of God as the point of reference, grace becomes the basis for the stronger reason. The grace factor becomes the a fortiori factor.
13. In other words, in the garden, the love of God was the point of reference. As long as there was no sin, the status quo continued.
14. As long as the potential of sin was unfulfilled, the love of God provided perfect environment for perfect persons.
15. The point of reference is now the justice of God.
16. The justice of God blesses through grace. The justice of God condemns through judicial imputations.
17. The grace factor sets up a fortiori. The total condemnation of spiritual death provides the area of function for grace to provide justification.
18. The grace factor is the work of Christ on the cross paying for our sins. Our personal sins are imputed to Jesus Christ, resulting in salvation and a second judicial imputation. This is the basis for all those maturity blessings.
19. It is easier for God to bless due to the grace factor of the cross.
20. If God did the greater in justification, that God will do that less in temporal blessings and prosperity in time.
21. Because of the cross, it is easier for God to bless than to curse.
22. Because of two prior condemnations, the greater has already been accomplished.
23. Therefore, God has provided more in grace than man had in the garden before the fall.
24. God provides more through the imputation of divine righteousness and justification than could have been given in the garden. A part of the integrity complex.
25. With the justice of God as the point of reference and the grace of God as the mechanics of blessing, with a stronger reason, the mature believer has something greater in the devil's world than he could have ever had in the Garden of Eden.

Going back to the Garden of Eden would be a travesty. Man could not be anything other than unhappy in the garden, being spiritually dead. Human good tries to provide perfect environment for those in spiritual death. This is the United States of America in contemporary history. Guarantee this and guaranteed that. Guarantee to remove the obnoxious; guaranteed for peanut head to make peanut head decisions. This will guarantee that we will destroy ourselves. We will destroy our own selves before the communists can do it. Satan has found the United States to be a joy to him.

1977 Romans

Lesson #163

163 08/07/1977 Romans 5:15d The greater blessings are available after the Fall than before it

Human life was imputed to you by God. There is no soul life in the womb. There must be a direction, a home, a place for something to automatically go to. At the same time, the sin nature was a genetically formed part of the physical body.

The process of myosis and polar bodies, the woman's 46 chromosomes throw off 23 corrupted ones and there are 23 uncorrupted chromosomes. If this is not the case, the there can be no proper pregnancy?

In a judicial imputation, there is no formed target, direction or home. Condemnation cannot be turned into justification without someone doing some work.

All of the sins of the human race are accumulated and put aside for the cross. This is a judicial imputation of the sins of the human race to Jesus Christ.

God the Holy Spirit fertilized the pure ovum; so no sin nature was formed. Justification in our passage is the first of two great a fortiori systems of logic. If the justice of God can provide the greater, it follows that He will not withhold the less. That is blessing in time; and if God provides blessing in time, then He will also provide blessing in eternity. We remain in time in order to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ. Production is not the issue in growth or glorification. No personal sin is imputed to us.

When we are resurrected, there will be no embarrassment in heaven. We will not all be the same, except with regards to ultimate sanctification.

Corrected translation going back to v. 12.

There was no grace in the garden. The relationship which we had with God was based upon His love. Adam and the woman were perfect persons in perfect environment. Nothing was corrupted.

Satan believes that, in his genius, he can produce perfect environment.

By refraining from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, the man and the woman had one more day on earth in perfect environment. The justice of God both curses and blesses, based upon man's volition with regards to the various adjustments to the justice of God.

Justice + grace can do more for man out of the garden than the love of God could do in the garden. It is impossible to go back to perfect environment. There are many organizations dedicated to producing that perfect environment.

Spiritual death rules; and spiritual death = the imputation of Adam's original sin to Adam's trend.

But not as that transgression, so also is that gracious gift [the incarnation and sacrifice on the cross], for if by the transgression of that one, the many [the human race] died [spiritual death at birth] [and they did]...

A review of the principles found in: Much More the Grace of God found in lesson #162.

And the gift by grace... Kai is used to bring in an appositional phrase. Then the noun dorea. God the Father gave life to the humanity of Jesus Christ. There is the exclusion of the 23 chromosomes, which removes the corruption of the sin nature. For the first time, in all of history, there was an embryo, blastocyst, then foetus, there was no corruption in the womb. There was no genetically formed old sin nature, so there was no home or target for Adam's original sin. This is why He is called the last Adam.

Jesus lived 33 years without any imputed sin. The virgin birth eliminates imputed sin from the life of Jesus Christ.

En + the instrumental of charis = by grace.

The Target as a Result of the Justice of God

1. If God did the most for us when we were in Adam, then He can do much more than the most for us because we have His righteousness. None of the blessing comes because we work for God.
2. The grace of God provided justification at the cross.
3. Justification means that the justice of God is free to bless us, because of that imputed righteousness.
4. With the imputation of divine righteousness to the believer, blessing has a home or target.
5. Perfect justice is the target.
6. A fortiori explains the target.

Plural of pollus. Apostolical genitives Christ and Jesus.

To the many is the object of the verb. Perisseuô = to be present in abundance, to have an overflowing abundance of things. Aorist tense; a reality of greater blessing for us in the devil's world.

Three existing results stated in this. Potential + capacity means blessing in time. We have blessings enshrouded in integrity. Integrity is the basis of security in life and the basis for great love.

In the security of the blessings in time, these are not our security or our motivation.

But not as that transgression [Adam's original sin], so also is that gracious gift [the incarnation and sacrifice on the cross], for if by the transgression of that one, the many [the human race] died [spiritual death at birth] [and they did], much more the grace of God...

Principles

7. The believer in Jesus Christ has been placed in a greater position than Adam had before the fall.
8. The great thrust of a fortiori. God provides more for for great blessing. Most people saying, The greater good for the create
3. The gift of grace from Jesus Christ provides the greater.
4. The personal sins are pour out on Jesus Christ. Personal sin is a result of the old sin nature.
- 5.
6. This provides the basis for the imputation of divine righteousness and imputation.
7. If the justice of God provides the imputation of righteousness to us at salvation, He can provide the less for us.
8. The sin of the first Adam
9. The imputation of our personal sins to Christ on the cross produces salvation.
10. The imputation of salvation provides justification.
11. Justification is the primary potential and the primary for divine blessing from the justice of God in time.
12. This blessing comes to the mature believer in time. This is the only way to glorifyjc in time.
13. The believer possesses blessing far greater than the garden.
14. If God can do the greater at salvation, He can accomplish the less for the mature believer in time.
15. If the justice of God can do the greater, then it follows that the justice of God can accomplish the less.
16. God can do greater than less, again and again.

But not as that transgression [Adam's original sin], so also is that gracious gift [the incarnation and sacrifice on the cross], for if by the transgression of that one [Adam's sin in the garden], the many [the human race] died [spiritual death at birth] [and they did], much more the grace of God, even...the gift blessings in time for the many.

There is a series of spiritual blessings, like occupation with Christ. From that comes capacity for life and love and happiness. Blessings given. Also abilities that we have never had before.

Temporal blessings. Advancement; social prosperity; sexual prosperity.

The dumbest and weirdest things happened after rm/rw. They looked at their mate, and decided, nope, that is not it; and they went out to find their rm or rw. But these were rm.rw on many occasions, but there was no capacity of doctrine in the soul. Without that, they are the most miserable in town. Social prosperity; mental prosperity. Cultural prosperity. Establishment prosperity. Professional prosperity. Investigation in medicine. Blessing by association. Direct blessing from God or indirect blessing. Many types of blessing by association peripheries. Salt of the land = the mature believer. Those who have adjusted to the justice of God.

The Hatfields and the Carters are the spinoff. The mature believer affects his generation in history.

Romans 5:15 But not as that transgression [Adam's original sin], so also is that gracious gift [the incarnation and sacrifice on the cross], for if by the transgression of that one [Adam's sin in the garden], the many [the human race] died [spiritual death at birth] [and they did], much more the grace of God, even...the gift of grace by the One Man [Jesus Christ] Who has provided superabundance [the blessings from the justice of God to the mature believer] for the many [that is, for the mature believers]. 1977 Romans

164 08/07/1977 Romans 5:16 Parlaying the condemnation into justification; keys to verse 16

Parlaying the condemnation into justification.

The emphatic use of kai. + the objective negative adverb ou(k). + the comparative hos. This indicates that manner in which something does not proceed. Dia + heis. + the subject dorêma. Then the verb aorist active participle of hamartanô. The aorist can last for a few seconds; a long period of time, or a series of the same acts. In fact, the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like the one [Adam] who sinned...

The Concept

1. The one who sinned was Adam, which took place in the garden where the environment was perfect. He was created perfect, but he sinned and became spiritually dead and having committed the personal sin.
2. Adam in his pattern started out with negative volition, which was the first sin, which was the real imputation. Adam's original sin caused simultaneously the sin nature and spiritual death. Jesus was like Adam before the fall. He are born like Adam after the fall.
3. At birth, the original sin of Adam was combined with the genetically formed sin nature, making Adam spiritually dead. Adam passes on his sin to the entire human race.

4. Jesus Christ is not like what occurred to Adam, as He is born without a sin nature. The result was a pregnancy without any sin attached.
5. There was no genetic home for Adam's original sin in Christ. No imputation of Adam's sin at the birth of Jesus Christ.
6. Adam was born perfect.
7. Adam used sin...
8. In the Garden of Eden, man's point of reference was the love of God.
9. The justice of God was not the point of reference in the garden. Grace was not a factor. Man was no, as of yet, undeserving.
10. Grace + the integrity of God would be the means of providing something better after the fall.
11. All of this stockpiling of Bible doctrine brings us to the eternity in heaven.
12. If the justice of God provides the greater in sal, then He will not withhold the less.
13. This blessing in time is more permanent than what mankind in the garden had. Eternal life was not available in the garden.
14. As long as man refrained from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, he had continued life. What we have through the two a fortiori's is total happiness.
15. The potentiality of failure means the loss of everything. No security.
16. But now, the imputation of divine righteousness ...brings blessing and security in time; which can be parlayed into eternity.
17. In anticipation for the next verse, temporarily blessings are turned into...
18. An analogy, just as the justice of God functions the principle of grace, that same justice of God parlays temporal blessing into eternal blessing.
19. The foundation of eternal blessing is divine righteousness.
20. The foundation for eternal blessing is the resurrection body minus the sin nature, or ultimate sanctification.

Romans 7:16a In fact, the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like the one [Adam] who sinned...

We are talking about God's plan for your life; a way that you can be blessed. We are talking about the obvious; and you are thinking about something else.

If you are working together, one person write down the odd numbered points; and the other write down the even numbered points. Some of you, by doing this, you have not the foggiest.

Bob knew a man who was a millionaire in Dallas and he always wore the same old leather jacket to church so that he did not appear to be too successful. He was worried that he seemed to rich. He was propagandized rather than indoctrinated; and he was ashamed of his prosperity. Blessing from the justice of God glorifies God.

The greatest lovers put integrity first before love. Everything that counts comes from the justice of God. For just as the sin nature rules human life through spiritual death, so the grace of God, working from the justice of God, provides a basis for a new rulership in life.

Gar, as an explanatory conjunction. It amplifies the previous statement. Jesus Christ is not like what occurred through one Adam who sinned. Affirmative particle men, used with the particle dé + the definite article and a judicial verdict.

Paul starts to drop his verb, ellipsis.

Romans 7:16a In fact, the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like the one [Adam] who sinned; for on the one hand, the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in universal condemnation...

Principles

1. There is one condemnation in the human race which takes place at birth. It is imputed to our sin nature. The justice of God imputes Adam's sin to each one of us.
2. This imputation combines Adam's original sin with Adam's trend, the genetically formed old sin nature, resulting in condemnation. This one transgression causes a number of spiritual deaths.
3. When Adam sinned, spiritual death and the formation of the sin nature.
4. After the fall, Adam had spiritual death, which was his original sin + all of his trended; a contamination called the body of corruption.
5. When we are born, we are spiritually dead.
6. We are born a facsimile of Adam after his fall. We are all born like the first Adam after the fall.
7. Hence, one transgression results in a massive number of spiritual deaths. One justification results in the imputation of many spiritual blessings.
8. Adam's sin is imputed for condemnation; God's righteousness is imputed for our justification.
9. Between these two imputations is the imputation of all the sins of the human race to Christ on the cross.
10. There on the cross these sins were judged. A judicial imputation.
11. One man's sin imputed at birth means condemnation.
12. Because of one man's work on the cross imputed, we are justified. This makes the entire human race eligible.
13. From one sin comes many condemnations. From many sins, many justifications.
14. The first Adam brought sin into the world; the last Adam bring justification to the world.

Dé on the other hand. Charisma = gracious gift. Nominative neuter definite article. Calls attention to this one great gift of grace.

The implied use of a verb.

Ek + pollus + paraptoma (transgression). Legitimate but rare to render this because of many transgressions. Eis + dikaioma. When referring to one commandment, he used the singular of dikaioma, which had not been done before. Christianity is not a system of commandments. It means a right act in the fulfillment of a legal requirement, a sentence of justification, a pronouncement of justification. This is a coined work.

Romans 7:16 In fact, the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through the one [Adam] who sinned. For on the one hand, the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in universal condemnation; but on the other hand that gracious gift was given because of many transgressions resulting in a judicial act of justification.

There are several keys in the stockpiling of great doctrines. We cannot take up every single doctrine found here. There are 8 or 9 to be studied.

Instead of learning all the doctrines, we will learn the keys. In football, we did not know the plays of the opposition, but we learned keys to look for. We could watch for these keys and act accordingly.

Key: Integrity of God

1. Righteousness and justice form the integrity of God.
2. Principle of divine integrity and the function of divine integrity.
3. A simple pattern: righteousness demands righteousness; justice demands justice.
4. Man's first contact with divine integrity occurred at the fall, where the function of the justice of God was condemnation.
5. With the added factor of grace, the justice of God provides condemnation and justification.
6. The original transgression of Adam changed the point of reference; two spheres of sovereignty in life. The sin nature is the ruler of human life.
7. Justice became the issue when the fall of Adam made justice the issue.
8. The justice of God was never an issue until the fall of Adam.
9. In the garden, man's point of reference was the love of God, providing perfect environment for perfect persons.
10. Man was a perfect creature at the hand of God.
11. Many could only sin and lose his contract.
12. Neither the justice of God or the grace of God was necessary in the garden because of the absence of sin.
13. Adam's original sin changed God's relationship to mankind.
14. One sin from Adam and divine justice replaced divine love.
15. Justice of God could only condemn Adam, and perpetuate that condemnation.
16. Man was expelled from the garden and placed under the justice and grace principle to be much more than the garden.
17. By closing the gates of the Garden of Eden, a temporary paradise, and open the gates of heaven, a permanent paradise. There was no way that man and woman in the garden could ever go to heaven. Their bodies were made perfect for this earth's atmosphere. They could not go to heaven. By closing the door to the Garden of Eden God could open the door to heaven.

18. So the justice of God which condemned became the source of blessing.
19. The justice of God as our point of reference has a twofold function: cursing or blessing; condemnation or blessing.

Romans 7:16 In fact, the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through the one [Adam] who sinned. For on the one hand, the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in universal condemnation; but on the other hand that gracious gift [incarnation and atonement] was given because of many transgressions resulting in a judicial act of justification.

In those 4 imputations, we have a total summary of the plan of God for man.

Key: the Function of the Justice of God and its Implications

1. The sequence of the function of divine justice remains the same as at the time of man's fall. Condemnation then justification. This pattern continues.
2. In the pattern of grace, cursing always precedes blessing.
3. Adam's original sin was condemned by spiritual death and the attainment of the old sin nature. Acquired simultaneously by Adam.
4. With Adam, this was a simultaneous function resulting in a formula: Adam's sin + Adam's nature = spiritual death.
5. The condemnation is continued at physical birth. All of the cells of Adam are contaminated; ditto for the woman, save one.
6. This genetical provision provides a home and a target.
7. When God imputed life to its home in the soul, He imputes Adam's sin to its home in the sin nature.
8. Simultaneously, man possesses human life and spiritual death.
9. God's justice does not make an issue of a personal sins in condemnation.
10. These personal sins which are a result of spiritual death become the issue in salvation rather than in condemnation.
11. These personal sins are imputed to Christ at the cross.
12. Again, a real imputation attributes to one what is antecedently its own.
13. At birth, there were two real imputations. Human life to the soul and Adam's sin to the old sin nature. The soul is immaterial; and the old sin nature is material.
14. A judicial imputation ascribes to one what is not antecedently his own. The sins of the human race were imputed to Jesus Christ on the cross.
15. At salvation personal sins become the issue.
16. Adam's sin is the issue in condemnation; the sins of the world are the issue at salvation.
17. Just as at birth, so the cross. This time a judicial imputation where our personal sins are poured out on Christ.

18. The judicial imputation of sins results in the judgment of sins on the cross.

Our third key coming up next time.

One of the most interesting things in the House, #8128, sponsored mostly by Californians and some from New York. It is one to prevent the sale, importation, etc. of handguns. It is a bill to confiscate all handguns throughout the United States. Their rationalization is handguns are more involved in crimes than long guns. And that guns in the home are not as effective as we think they might be.

Washington D.C. has the most rigid gun laws and it has not curtailed crime at all. First a voluntarily delivery and there will be so much time to turn them in. If you don't, $5000 fine and 5 years in jail.

Romans 7:16 In fact, the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through the one [Adam] who sinned. For on the one hand, the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in universal condemnation; but on the other hand that gracious gift [incarnation and atonement] was given because of many transgressions resulting in a judicial act of justification. (Revised)

There are almost more doctrines to be analyzed than there are words in this corrected translation.

Third Key: Second Function of the Justice of God (Blessing)

1. Because man is born spiritually dead, the accumulated personal sins were not judged until Christ went to the cross.
2. All sins, past present and future were imputed to Christ on Golgotha. They could not be imputed to Christ if they were previously imputed to us. We are condemned based upon one sin. Because of that, our personal sins were not imputed to us. The judicial imputation.
3. From the judgment of many sins comes one act of justification, the first blessing from the Justice of God.
4. When anyone believes in Christ, the justice of God performs a judicial imputation.
5. The righteousness of God is imputed to us resulting in a judicial verdict called justification.
6. This judicial verdict becomes the basis for all blessings from the justice of God. The righteousness of God is the foundation; on that foundation must be built that which glorifies God. All of the false systems. The foundation is divine righteousness imputed. The reality of blessings in eternity. Ultimate sanctification in eternity.
7. Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness. The possession of divine righteousness through this judicial imputation. It is the foundation and the potential for all future blessings in time.
8. These blessings from the justice of God follow the grace principle of imputation of blessing. God's justice is at one end of the pipe and at the other end is God's righteousness. There are no works involved, no ecstatic experiences, etc. this results in the glorification of the Lord.
9. Grace is the policy for justice of God in providing blessing for the believer in time and in eternity.

We have a stockpiling of doctrines in this verse. We see the basis for

The Fourth Key: A Fortiori Logic

1. The justice of God is the same source for justification and condemnation.
2. The human race is condemned by one sin; and salvation is provided for all sins.
3. If one man's sin brings condemnation to the human race, it follows that one man's condemnation for all sins brings justification to the human race. The first Adam brought condemnation.
4. One transgression condemned Adam in the garden; many transgressions condemned Christ on the cross.

5. The key to the condemnation of all of us is the one sin of Adam. The key to the condemnation on the cross is many sins. All sins condemned Jesus.
6. The justice of God judged many transgressions on the cross to bring salvation and justification by the cross.
7. Justification forms the basis for a fortiori logic in this context.
8. Condemnation involved one man's sin; justification involved many sins.
9. One sin versus billions and billions of sins. But the key is the effort involved. Love is not the basis for our contact with God; it is God's justice. When the justice of God judged our sins on the cross, this was the greater provision of grace.
10. Justification is greater than condemnation. Justification deals with all of the sins of the world. Condemnation deals with one sin.
11. Justification is the greater work of the justice of God. If God provided the greater in justification, it follows that the justice of God can provide the less. Greater blessings than the blessing of the Garden of Eden.
12. If God can provide the greater, then God can provide for us the bridge to blessings in time. The bridge is the capacity factor, which is capacity to enjoy those blessings. So God builds bridges. Justice is the source; and the policy is grace. The logistical grace that we receive is a part of this bridge.
13. If God provided the greater and capacity, it follows that the justice of God will not withhold the less...blessing in eternity by surpassing grace. If God provides the greater, the blessing in time and the capacity, it follows that God will provide blessing in eternity. If you are standing on one bank and looking at a bridge...
14. A fortiori logic.
15. This concept about the greater and the less. This context uses much more, with the greater being justification and the less being capacity for blessing.
16. If God provides the greater, then He will not withhold the less.
17. All of this will be gathered into a great a fortiori related to eternity and eternal blessings.
18. The next verse sets up the a fortiori system. Temporal blessing to eternal blessing.
19. Grace is the policy for the justice of God in providing blessing in time and eternity. When the justice of God condemns, that is what we earn and deserve. In justification, that is grace.

The first six points is a summary of all that we have been studying.

A bridge has an embankment on both ends. You did not cross a bridge and drop into the water. The very thought that a bridge is there tells you that there is another side. In SF, on the golden gate bridge, there is a heavy fog, and you cannot see the other side. But you know the embankment is there, even if you cannot see it. Bob has never seen someone holding a sign, "Stop, you are going nowhere." A fortiori is a system for setting up reality. The bridge sets up a reality. Logic establishes eternity and heaven. They are parts of the same concept. One is spacial and the other is infinite beyond human comprehension. We do not have to understand how everything works in order for those things to be real. Like driving an automobile. You can't see the great; but the great can't see you either. Bob talks about all the different wines. You might be in France looking at the grapes, you might not be able to see Houston where a bottle of that is being opened up. There was a real grape at that time as evidenced by the bottle.

Bob talks about standing with some hippie in Sausalito looking over the bridge. You only need to have one side established in order to fix the reality of the other side. You can be on either end and know that the other end is still there.

Paul was the greatest genius in history. The second a fortiori is next time.

1977 Romans

Lesson #166

166 08/09/1977 Romans 5:17a Old sin nature: the woman's and at physical death; Greek grammar; genius

v. 17 is the last verse that is being revised.

The world is filled with idiots. An article in the Houston Chronicle. This is made quite obvious from the Word of God. A mother and a daughter can sue a doctor over injuries or problems which occurred before the woman was conceived. She claims that he blood chemistry was changed by a blood transfusion. "This is why we have people like we have in the Senate, in the House of Representatives, in the White House and numerous other places where People have gone power mad with very little brain power to do the job." The judge who made this decision should be defrocked and should be stacking bricks.

A letter sent out from Jesse Helms. All of these weird and hideous activities and these bills to confiscate all handguns, if passed. To get law-abiding citizens away from any way to protect themselves.

It would be nice to pick up a newspaper and read 25 articles which are just common sense.

Perfect persons + perfect environment = the Age of Perfection. There had to be a test. There was no grace in the garden and no justice of God. As long as man was perfect, as long as he refrained from one tree, things continued in perfection under the love of God.

"What about Eve? Did Eve have an old sin nature?" Her sin nature was not of any significance apart from nagging Adam for 4 or 500 years. The woman was deceived, but Adam was not deceived. The woman was just as guilty, but she was deceived. The woman's sin could not be imputed because she did not know what she was doing. The woman was guilty. Only the man can transmit it. The woman's holds the world record. She holds the record. She is the first sinner with the sin nature. This does not mean that she wasn't smart, but Satan was smarter. Every now and again I have to answer a question. Bob went through 15 years of a ministry, and there were people who asked 1000 questions every night. We have passed the point of no return with regards to questions.

Bob did not understand a great many things until he had a number of breakthroughs this past month. The Holy Spirit indwells the body and it fills the soul.

Bob explains spiritual mitosis, where they take a point and divide it up in order to get two points. Bob understands everything now. He's not going to tell us these things all tonite; but then you might not come back tomorrow night.

Satan rules the world and the old sin nature rules the human race. There are two overworked terms, and innocence is one.

There would be problems with a dual imputation, there would be no establishment of authority in life. This does not mean that men rule over all women; and try to practice that on a limited scale. But the woman's sin is not imputed to all women and the man's sin to all men.

The soul is the home for human life. Life is imputed to the soul; and the genetically formed home combines Adam's sin with Adam's trend. That is spiritual death. Separation from God is an over implication of spiritual death. But God is never separated from us; He is just connected to us in a different way. By imputing Adam's sin to each one of us, He is able to gather up all of our personal sins and save them to be imputed to Jesus Christ. Personal sins have no target; no place to go to naturally in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The justice of God sets up a pipeline with God's justice at one end and God's perfect righteousness. Two imputations at birth, life and death. Two imputations at salvation. We will soon see other a fortiori things happening. God has parlayed out from the fall of man.

Vv. 12–16 reviewed.

When capacity is so saturated that blessings of God are the result.

We are stockpiling doctrines in this passage, particularly v. 16. A translation from blessing in time to blessing in eternity.

Romans 5:16 In fact, the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through the one [Adam] who sinned. For on the one hand, the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in universal condemnation; but on the other hand that gracious gift [incarnation and atonement] was given because of many transgressions resulting in a judicial act of justification. (Revised)

Adam became spiritually dead with an old sin nature. The sin nature is genetically formed in the body. Jesus, when born, was a facsimile of Adam before the fall; when we are born, we are a facsimile of Adam after the fall.

By myosis and the function of polar bodies, 23 chromosomes threw off the contamination of 23 corrupted chromosomes. No genetically formed old sin nature in Jesus; and no home for Adam's sin. Christ was born as Adam was created. We are born as Adam after the fall; and Adam's original sin is imputed to us to Adam's nature or Adam's trend, the sin nature.

Jesus could not die from the diseases as we can die. Jesus can only die physically by an act of volition. The sin nature is in the body; not in the soul. Never was in the soul; never will be in the soul. When there is no physical life in its home, the sin nature ceases to function and disintegrates with the body of corruption. All of this stockpiling of doctrine. If the greater can be accomplished, the less can be given, because there is less effort involved. Do not think quality or quantity.

It is legitimate to add a verb into a sentence, if that verb was already used; or if it is the verb to be. That is not adding to the Word of God. There is not some special curse that will come down on you.

Romans 5:16 In fact, the gift [Jesus Christ] is not like what occurred through the one [Adam] who sinned. For on the one hand, the judicial verdict came by one transgression resulting in [universal] condemnation; but on the other hand that gracious gift [incarnation and atonement] was given because of many transgressions resulting in a judicial act of justification. (Revised)

We are not spiritually dead because we have sinned, but because Adam sinned and at birth, Adam's birth was imputed to Adam's trend. Bob briefly mentions the four keys which were developed. Grace is the policy of the justice of God. The basis for a fortiori logic is then set.

Apparently the Oilers did horribly against the Oakland Raiders. So, we have had spiritual blessings; not blessings for our sports' teams. Infiltration of reversionism in athletics.

Starting v. 17. Always with an a fortiori, you have a conditional clause. It has a protasis and an apodosis. This always gives us a conclusion. Four conditions reviewed.

Protasis of a 1st class condition. + gar, setting up a relationship between the stockpiling of doctrines in vv. 12–17. This amplifies the previous verse. In logic, we consider the terms of logic. We consider of what requires the most effort, which is in the first part of a fortiori logic. When you try to insert quality or quantity, they you lose the logic. "If God does the most for us in salvation, then what can He do for us now? Much more than the most." This is legitimate and to be found in the old Romans tapes, but it is superficial.

If dear old doctor so-and-so could talk to us from heaven, he would say, "Get my book out of circulation." He offered up around 3 sentences in v. 17 and he had more sentences for the next verse, but none was related to the verse in question.

Bob was involved in many different campus groups; but it is generally an eclectic group, who accept this or that. Their relationship to the Christian life is often accidental. Many of you have given your lives and your personalities and your energy. Production is the result of spiritual progress or the result of glorifying God.

If you don't get those blessings from God, you will have nothing but a resurrection body to celebrate in heaven. These tapes are going to put out as a special from T&P.

The Word of God is designed to be understood; it is not designed to be abstruse. The most difficult passage for Bob is this passage and the next chapter. It is difficult to catch the genius of Paul.

Instrumental of means of the definite article and of paraptoma, which is so familiar, that a definite article to placed in front of it. This is the same transgression that we have been talking about.

Also a possessive genitive of another definite article + heis, used as a noun. This refers to one person, Adam. Then thanatos used for spiritual death (= Adam's original sin + the sin nature or the trend of Adam). Aorist active indicative of basilouô.

For if by the transgression of the one, spiritual death ruled through that one (and it did)...

Dia + the genitive of the definite article + heis. This refers back to Adam.

1977 Romans

Lesson #167

167 08/10/1977 Romans 5:17b Eighteen point summary of verses 12–17; A FORTIORI of divine blessing (Special—16 lessons)

Romans 5:17a For if by the transgression of the one [the original sin of Adam], spiritual death ruled through that one (and it did)...

Man, God, the Garden and Spiritual Death

1. Man's point of reference with God in the garden was the love of God. Man and the woman were both perfect and they lived in perfect environment. Age of Perfection. When people are perfect, they are not deserving or undeserving; so there is no grace in the garden. Since they are perfect, the justice of God is not involved.
2. When man partook of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Then point of reference changed to the justice of God. Righteousness demands righteousness; justice demands justice.
3. One man's transgression resulted in the justice of God condemning the entire human race. The two imputations at birth are real imputations. Human life is given to the soul; and the sin of Adam is imputed to the sin nature. There is only one sin which condemns us. That condemnation is spiritual death.
4. The love of God provided perfect environment for perfect creatures in the garden. Innocence is a misnomer.
5. Man could only lose his contract with God by sinning. He could perpetuate his life as long as he did not sin by eating from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. "Dying, you will die." Physical death is a result of being contaminated with the sin nature in the body. Dying is the sin of Adam; and you will die is spiritual death. The man and the woman are both carriers of the sin nature; but it is only transmitted by the male.

6. The love of God made no provision for sin in the garden, because sin was not an issue under the love of God. The sin nature has a trend toward sin, good and evil. More about that in Romans 6. Only the justice of God deals with sin. This is the most fouled up passage in the commentaries. Attempted interpretations were idiotic. Most people, when they come to a hard passage, so they pick out a word here or there and talk about those words. This does not correctly interpret the passage. We are almost divorced from reality at this time. But Paul lived in a time of brilliant thinking, and this comes across in the writing of Romans.
7. The justice of God could not make provision by salvation until the justice of God condemns Adam's sin in the garden. And the entire human race by the imputation of Adam's sin to everyone. Two real imputations at birth.
8. The justice of God had no relationship to man in the garden until man ate the forbidden fruit.
9. At the fall, man entered into a new relationship with God. If man was spiritually dead, God continues to have a relationship with man. We may not like that; but it is still a relationship. God gave us life and God keeps us alive. The very air that we breathe, the very life that we live, that is still from God. If spiritual death was separation from God, then we would not be living, breathing or even existing. Every person who is born has a relationship with God. God also imputed Adam's sin to our sin nature. This might be classified as an uncomfortable relationship with God. We can only improve our situation by being born again. Not every death of the seven deaths in the Bible are separation. The relationship that we have with God at birth is being under judgment.
10. The justice of God curses and blesses, its dual function. Justice must condemn before justice can bless.
11. In the function of the justice of God, condemnation precedes justification. All of you have been born again. This means that you were born once before. The justice of God always condemns us at birth; and this happens before God blesses us. There are two factors. The divine attribute is justice and the policy is grace.
12. At birth there are two real imputations. Human life to the soul and Adam's sin to the sin nature. God cannot be the Author of sin or the origin of sin. The author of sin is the old sin nature, which resides in the body. The origin of sin belongs to Adam.
13. As a result, we have physical life and spiritual death at the same time.
14. Spiritual death rules in human life with its trends toward sin, good and evil.
15. The original blessing from the justice of God is judicial imputation of divine righteousness at the moment of salvation.
16. This judicial imputation is possible because of a previous judicial imputation. All of the personal sins of the human race have not yet been imputed. They were collected and poured out on Jesus Christ and judged. All of these are functions of the justice of God. We start with condemnation at birth and we go to justification at salvation. There are two imputations. A judicial imputation of God's righteousness to us. That is justification.

17. By way of the cross, man goes from spiritual death to salvation.
18. Retroactive positional truth, which positionally destroys the sovereignty of the old sin nature. The sin nature is the sovereign of human life, ruling through spiritual death.

There has been tremendous work done in the preservation and propagation of correct manuscripts. Some of the greatest men in the field were killed in WWI; great scholars in the field of etymology were drafted and killed. Bob profits from the study of great men before him. Paul uses words here with highly technical meanings. The correct interpretation of this verse has not been found yet.

Some of you here showed up and I have not every seen you before. For this hour, I have a relationship with you. There will be a time when the unbeliever has no relationship with God. Spiritual death is not separation from God. Hell is the end of your relationship with God.

Romans 5:17a For if by the transgression of the one [the original sin of Adam], spiritual death ruled through that one (and it did)...

Dative singular adjective from pollus; + mollus, meaning to a greater degree = with stronger reason = a fortiori. Often, technical words around found in the Greek and Latin. The English is not used at all. It is a technical Latin phrase for a principle of logic. If the greater has been provided, then the less will not be withheld.

If the understanding is lacking, then Paul's reasoning is not fully interpreted. The human author uses his genius to write Romans and the Holy Spirit has allowed to see into his mind. His genius must become our information. You have to be a genius to originate this passage. If the greater has been provided, then the less will not be withheld.

The source of divine blessing is the justice of God. This is all amount of effort. Blessing in time and blessing in eternity are easy for God to do. It took an incredible amount to provide us with salvation. God the Father had to judge God the Son; this represents the greatest degree of effort imaginable. How does God demonstrate His love? He judges His Son on the cross. This whole much more is something that we see logically. We are on one side of the bridge and we know that there is an embankment on the other side of the bridge.

The second half of the verse is very fouled up. Put a circle around in life (you are not going to drop dead from doing this). It is out of place. There are two verbs and in life is placed with the wrong verb. Bios is used for the pattern of life and zoê is used for the function of life.

The definite article is used as a relative pronoun. Capacity is the link between potential and blessings.

The definite article is used originally for a demonstrative pronoun. Perissêa = abundance, surplus. Ablative singular of source of charis.

Kai + dorea (a bounty of blessing) + definite article + dikaïosunê.

If the justice of God can bless the mature believer in time, then God can accomplish the less by providing blessing in eternity.

Basileus = to rule. "Some will rule 100, some will rule 10, and the girl turning around in the back will not rule any."

Blessing in time will be parlayed into eternity.

Romans 5:17 For if by the transgression of the one [the original sin of Adam], the spiritual death ruled through that one (and it did), much more, they who receive in life this surplus from the grace and the gift of the righteousness of God, much more they will rule by One Jesus Christ. (Revised)

Words of accommodation is for dummies. The reality of eternity and blessings which are far, far greater are taught here.

1977 Romans

Lesson #168

168 08/11/1977 Romans 5:17 Principles on the concept of eternity: judgment seat of Christ

Richard L. Lesher is the president of the chamber of commerce. Pity the Navaho who must install an intercom even though he works alone. In Chicago, squeak toys were confiscated for squeaking too loudly. We have been told to provide smooth and rough floors for the same area; paint and no paint for the same area. Various projects are shut down for this or that animal or plant.

There was no justice in the Garden of Eden. Adam had a day by day contract with God in the garden. The first thing that the justice of God did was to condemn Adam. Both the man and the woman were spiritually dead. The justice of God is the source of both cursing and blessing. Condemnation must precede blessing.

It is easy for God to provide us with great blessings. It was much more difficult for God the Father to judge God the Son.

Perfect environment is not the solution to man's problems. The blessings from God can be enjoyed in historical prosperity or historical adversity.

Romans 5:17 For if by the transgression of the one [the original sin of Adam], the spiritual death ruled through that one (and it did), much more, they who receive in life this surplus from the grace and the gift of the righteousness of God, much more they will rule by One Jesus Christ. (Revised)

This time, the greater is the whole formula. Eternity is a totally unknown factor. We can only learn about heaven and eternity is by going to language of accommodation. The whole point is, when you crack the maturity barrier, you know that there is something on the other side, just like a bridge has to go from one embankment (which you can see) to another embankment which you know is there, but you cannot see.

Abraham lived in a tent with Sarah; but they died knowing that that city was coming. That same a fortiori blessings. Abraham had everything, and he still lived in a tent. He knew that, even though he had the great things in life, he still knew that there was something far greater promised him.

Nothing that we do is the basis for our reward of heaven. The only thing that glorifies God and is rewardable is Bible doctrine in the soul and maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

There is one more factor to study for v. 17. The greatest verse of ellipsis and aposiopesis (a sudden cut off of the language or words) and brockilogia (the study of what an author meant by his writing; I could not find this word) in the Bible.

Summary Points of Verse 17

1. We have just seen blessing in time in vv. 15 & 17; and we have seen a hint of blessing in eternity. These two blessing paragraphs we have noted before. Mature blessings to come from the justice of God are supergrace 2 blessings (blessings for time). Category 3 is blessings by association, people in your periphery who are blessed in association with you. When you crack the maturity barrier and maintain that status quo and you continue in maturity, then you move into the sphere of surpassing grace. What is greater than grace, surpassing grace; and surpassing surplus grace in eternity.
2. Where, when how can we have these things? The judgment seat of Christ, for these surpassing grace functions. 2Corinthians 5:10 For we must all appear before the Judgment Seat of Christ that each one might be rewarded for the things done by means of the body, face to face with what he has accomplished, whether good or worthless. Bob could almost write a book, how does it feel to be a peon in heaven? Even if you die the sin unto death, there is standing in a resurrection body minus the old sin nature, and there is no more sorrow, no more tears.
3. The reversionistic believer will lose all of the rewards of eternity, 2Timothy 2: Faithful is the word: if we die with Christ, if we endure, we will also live with Him. If we repudiate Him, He will deny us reward...
4. The Judgment Seat of Christ eliminates any necessity for one believer to judge another believer. Romans 14:10–12 Why do you judge your brother? Or you again, why do you regard your brother with contempt? This is regarding someone as not being as spiritual as yourself. They're not spiritual; they put a little gin in their ice cream soda. Every knee shall bow. The Lord will do all of the judging. "If He is not Lord of all, He is not Lord at all" and that is weird. Now, if you have to write up a report of someone as a supervisor. Those who are in authority need to be able to evaluate those under them. When Bob has a believer under his command, he gives them the roughest fide of all. If a believer gets a good report from Bob, then they did really well.

5. The daily function of gap is the way to break through the maturity barrier. The only way to receive blessings from the justice of God. James 2:10–13

Some frustrated gossiping old biddy in a church is not in charge of anything; and she can ruin an entire church. Many people try to attack and destroy authority.

1977 Romans

Lesson #169

169 08/12/1977 Romans 5:17–18a (Principles) Grace factor and the justice of God; imputation of the sin of Adam (1–11)

Bob gives the “talk” before silent prayer.

We have Adam in the garden before the fall. Adam and the woman created as perfect people + perfect environment = a perfect age, a perfect dispensation. Not the age of innocence; the age of perfection. No need for God’s justice or God’s grace.

Satan rules through spiritual death and looks to duplicate the garden. There was a day by day contract. They enjoyed one day at a time. No eternal life apart from the function of the justice of God.

The woman took and ate the fruit, being deceived. Adam saw this and took the fruit from her hand, eating it. Both of them had an initial personal sin. The woman transgressed in ignorance; the man transgressed in cognizance.

We are not blessed for working around a church or handing out tracts, or blessed because we pray. Legitimate works and pseudo works bring no blessing from God. What we do that is legitimate should be a result of spiritual growth. A perfect God can only give blessing to a perfect home, which is God’s righteousness.

Some of you are not getting it. We are 17 lessons into the new section, and you know nothing more today than you knew 17 lessons ago.

There is a dual rulership in our lives. Satan rules the world; and the sin nature rules over us. In the Lord’s spiritual death, all personal sins were imputed to Christ on the cross. Both tyrannies are destroyed by retroactive positional truth in Romans 6.

Rightly dividing the Word of Truth also involves us knowing judicial and real imputations.

Grace is operational only when man is undeserving. What do you have to do to be undeserving? Be condemned by the justice of God.

The fourth paragraph in chapter 5 (verses 18-21) is the grace factor related to the justice of God. Remember, there was no grace in the garden. Grace could only be operational when man is undeserving. In the garden man was not undeserving, man was perfect. Therefore the grace factor only operates with the justice factor. What do we have to do to be undeserving? Sin is not the correct answer. All we have to do is have the justice of God condemning us, then we are qualified for grace. Grace always follows the principle that cursing is turned to blessing. Cursing comes first because those who are candidates for grace are undeserving.

Romans 5:18 So then, just as through one trespass, it is unto condemnation to all men, so also through one act of righteousness it is unto justification of life to all men.

Verse 18 – the antithetical functions of divine justice. The justice of God is the source of condemnation, cursing and blessing. “Therefore” – ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah] oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon]. Ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah] is an inferential illative participle, never used at the beginning of a clause and therefore it indicates that this is the conclusion of verse 12. There is a parenthesis beginning in verse 13 and terminating with verse 17. Ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah] closes a parenthesis. (There are half a dozen illative particle that start a parenthesis, or certain other principles such as a clause beginning with hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na].) The word oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon] is an inferential particle denoting that what it introduces is the result of an inference from verse 12 with logical help from the parenthesis. This is translated “So therefore,” and it must be connected with verse 12.

“as by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation” – the relative adverb hōs (ὡς) [pronounced hohç] is used as a comparative particle indicating the manner in which something proceeds. The preposition dia plus the genitive of the adjective numeral heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn], plus paráptōma (παράπτωμα) [pronounced par-AP-to-mah] for “transgression”—“So therefore as through one transgression”—Adam’s original sin. Then there has to be a verb—ellogéō (ἐλλογέω) [pronounced el-log-EH-oh] which means to impute—because we are dealing with ellipsis. We have heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] plus pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs] plus the accusative plural from the noun anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]—“to all mankind.” Plus another prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular from katákrima (κατάκριμα) [pronounced kat-AK-ree-mah], which means a result of imputation. When you have a judicial imputation you are judged. Katákrima (κατάκριμα) [pronounced kat-AK-ree-mah] is the judgment—“resulting in condemnation.” “So therefore as through one transgression [Adam’s original sin] imputed to all mankind resulting in condemnation.” Condemnation is a reference to physical birth.

This is reviewed in Lesson #170 (but all notes are placed here).

Imputation, Spiritual Death, and Adam’s Original Sin

1. Human birth consists of physical life and spiritual death occurring simultaneously.

2. Life begins when the foetus emerges from the womb and God imputes human life to the divinely prepared home, the soul. This is a real imputation since God prepared that home for human life. The soul is later corrupted by the old sin nature. The old sin nature is not in the soul but it corrupts the soul.
3. All real imputations have a home, a place to go, a direction. A real imputation involves receiving what is antecedently one's own. The reason it is antecedently one's own is because there is a home for it. A real imputation does not involve volition. Christ dying for us is accepting the imputation of our personal sins, which He paid the penalty for.
4. This is in contrast to judicial imputation which does not have a home and receives what is not antecedently its own. So a judicial imputation emphasizes the fact that the origin is the justice of God. There is no home, no target. So when an imputation comes from the justice of God and there is no home then God must judge the area where there is no home, or the person involved. The person taking on a judicial imputation must agree to it in a judicial imputation.
5. God prepared the soul as the home for human life, but He did not prepare the old sin nature.
6. The old sin nature is not a part of the soul and it is not from God. It is genetically formed. It has a trend toward good, evil and sin.
7. While the old sin nature influences the soul it is not a part of the soul.
8. The source of the old sin nature is Adam's original sin at the fall.
9. Adam received an old sin nature as a result of his original transgression and spiritual death.
10. At the fall Satan became the ruler of the world and the old sin nature became the sovereign of human life ruling through spiritual death.
11. At physical birth the justice of God imputes Adam's original sin to its genetically formed home. This is a real imputation.
12. So that in the human race spiritual death or the condemnation in this verse is the imputation of Adam's sin to Adam's genetical trend, forming immediately at birth a person who is Adam's facsimile.
13. Spiritual death is a combination of Adam's sin and Adam's old sin nature.
14. The old sin nature is acquired genetically, while Adam's sin is acquired by imputation.
15. The Old sin nature is transmitted through the 23 male chromosomes which fertilize the female ovum.
16. The meiosis by which the female ovum has a pure 23 chromosomes is known as polar body, a genetic process by which corruption or the contaminated chromosomes in the woman are thrown off in preparation for fertilization. The impurity is transmitted by the man who sinned in cognizance in contrast to the woman's original sin which was ignorance.
17. At birth the justice of God imputes Adam's sin to Adam's sin nature. When we are born and given life, we have genetically Adam's trend.

170 08/14/1977 Romans 5:18b Imputation of Adam's sin (cont.); parthenogenesis of Jesus Christ

Only blessings in time glorify God. Potential + capacity. God's blessing comes to us on the basis of grace; we are not blessed based upon our works.

When man sinned, God immediately condemned him. His personal sin was the origin of the old sin nature.

The 17 points of Imputation, Spiritual Death, and Adam's Original Sin from Lesson #169 are reviewed.

Good and sins can be intensified to the point of evil. If there are a few homosexuals here and there, that is simply sinful behavior and lusts. However, when they become a political movement, that is evil.

We are identified with Jesus in His burial and resurrection, so we separate from good and evil. Right now there is a law before the House to confiscate all handguns. We have laws passed which have destroyed our whole concept of automotive function.

Most people today accomplish acts associated with Christianity, but they do them in the power of the flesh.

Romans 5:18a So therefore as through one transgression imputed to all mankind resulting in condemnation...

God, by His righteousness, imputes Adam's sin to our sin nature at birth.

Principle #2

1. The condemnation is spiritual death. Spiritual death comes through the imputation of Adam's sin to Adam's nature.
2. This is known as spiritual death or condemnation.
3. Therefore while God imputes life to the soul simultaneously the justice of God imputes Adam's sin to the sin nature. This is the condemnation of spiritual death. Our relationship with God at physical birth is spiritual death. Our relationship with God at the new birth is justification.
4. Life has a home in man's soul, while Adam's sin has a home in the genetically-formed old sin nature.
5. Mankind is under the condemnation of spiritual death or the imputation of Adam's sin to Adam's trend. We are born condemned; we are born again justified.

Next Set of Points

1. The condemnation is spiritual death, which is the imputation of Adam's sin to Adam's nature.
2. This is known as spiritual death or condemnation. This is not separation from God. We are in contact with the justice of God. This contact is not to our advantage. God condemns us before we can be justified.
3. Therefore, at birth, as God imputes life to the soul, the justice of God imputes Adam's sin to Adam's nature.
4. Life has a home in man's soul and Adam's sin has a home in Adam's nature.
5. We are born condemned and born again justified. There was no natural home for our sins in Jesus Christ. The sin of Adam simply went to its home, which is Adam's trend, genetically form in each of us. First there is imputation and then there is justification.
6. If God gives you blessings without the capacity, you would be miserable with those blessings. Your right man or right woman will make you miserable if you lack the capacity. If you don't believe it, you seize those things and see what happens, that you will not be happy.
7. Since spiritual death is Adam's sin attached to Adam's trend. Our personal sins are meaningful to Jesus Christ on the cross. He received them by imputation. Personal sin is also an issue post salvation. Personal sins are not imputed to us. Only one sin is imputed to us at birth.

This is why as through one's transgression condemns us.

Someone that Bob talked to said he liked to teach Romans first so that he could give his congregation the basics for witnessing.

Both Romans and Hebrews can take a person to maturity.

Romans 5:18 So then, just as through one trespass, it is unto condemnation to all men, so also through one act of righteousness it is unto justification of life to all men. (BLB)

There are no verbs in v. 18. There is an aposiopesis here.

“even so by the righteousness of one” – the correlative adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] refers to what precedes, plus the adjunctive use of kai: “so also.” We have seen condemnation, so let's see justification. Then a prepositional phrase dia plus the genitive of an adjective and a noun, heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] and dikaiôma (δικαίωμα) [pronounced dik-AH-yo-mah], the numeral “one” and the judicial act of “condemnation.” In verse 16 it was used for the result of the work of Christ on the cross, but here it emphasizes the imputation of all personal sins in history to the Lord Jesus Christ. So fare we have “so also through one sentence of condemnation”—a judicial act of justice whereby the justice of God judged all personal sins on the cross.

The spiritual death is where Jesus screamed My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me? None of us can be forsaken as Jesus was by His Father. Also by angels and by the Holy Spirit, and by man.

Adam's Trend Inherited

1. All cells in the human race are contaminated by the old sin nature, with one exception. All chromosomes in those cells are contaminated, with one exception.
2. Through meiosis and the function of polar body a female ovum being prepared for fertilization 23 contaminated chromosomes are thrown off but the 23 remaining chromosomes are free from Adam's trend. Therefore the ovum prepared for fertilization is uncontaminated. It has no old sin nature. The woman carries around a single pure half cell of 23 uncontaminated chromosomes.
3. The woman is a carrier of the old sin nature but she cannot transmit it.
4. The woman is a carrier of the old sin nature but the ovum prepared for fertilization is the exception to this contamination.
5. Therefore in copulation and resultant pregnancy 23 male chromosomes used to fertilize the ovum genetically transmit the old sin nature.
6. The virgin Mary was spiritually dead and a carrier of the old sin nature.
7. However, in parthogenesis she possessed that one pure cell fertilized by the Holy Spirit.
8. As a result God the Father could not impute to the Lord Jesus at birth Adam's original sin. There was no male involved in copulation. It was a virgin pregnancy followed by a virgin birth. Therefore Christ was born a facsimile of Adam before the fall. Adam was created perfect; Christ as born perfect.
9. No home, no target for the imputation of Adam's sin in Jesus. Due to the virgin birth.
10. Because of the virgin birth, there was no creation of the sin nature in the body of Christ. No spiritual death in Christ.
11. Jesus Christ lived a perfect life, resisting all temptation, arriving at the cross sinless.
12. The sentence of condemnation.
13. This is the judicial act of the justice of God imputing our personal sins to Jesus Christ on the cross.
14. The justice of God took all of the personal sins of history and judged them. That is what is meant by saying that Christ died for our sins.

1977 Romans

Lesson #171

171 08/14/1977 Romans 5:18c APOSIOPESIS; real and judicial imputations; antithetical functions of the justice of God

Romans 5:18 (so far): So therefore, as through one transgression imputed to all mankind [resulting in condemnation] so also through one sentence of condemnation resulting in...

Paul is very stimulated in his writing. These real and judicial imputations and their tremendous implication.

Aposiopesis is writing without verbs and modifiers; so he is writing a sentence where we must fill in the gaps with the words that the recipients would understand. There are no verbs in the verse and no clue except by looking at previous sentences.

Fundamentalists do not understand some of the simpler principles of exegesis.

Bob talks about the imputations. Two imputations at birth: human life imputed to the soul; and Adam's original sin imputed to Adam's trends. Indwelling of the Spirit stays with us; the filling comes and goes. This does not represent any new points; but this does not match with any previous doctrine given.

Koine Greek is far more expressive than modern Greek or classical Greek. They have many shading of expressions. We just have two prepositional phrases for this ver.

Romans 5:18 So then, just as through one trespass, it is unto condemnation to all men, so also through one act of righteousness it is unto justification of life to all men. (BLB)

“the free gift upon all men unto justification of life” – literally this means “to all mankind resulting in justification of life.

“upon all men” – eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative plural from the adjective páς (πάς) [pronounced pahs] and anthrôpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos], “to all mankind.” This phrase takes propitiation, the Godward side, and reconciliation, the manward side, and glues them together with the concept of atonement. ...to all mankind resulting in justification in this life...

“unto justification” – eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular from dikáïōsis (δικαίωσις) [pronounced dik-AH-yo-sis], “resulting in justification,” plus the adverbial genitive of time from zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY] plus the definite article, “in this life.” The genitive of time does not signify a point of time or duration of time, it rather indicates a distinction of time. Hence, the genitive of time refers to this life rather than eternity. Salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Christ and resultant justification must occur now. Cf. 2Corinthians 6:2. “God’s righteousness was imputed” is inserted into the ellipsis from the context.

Romans 5:18: So therefore as through one transgression [Adam’s original sin] imputed to all mankind resulting in condemnation, so also through one sentence of condemnation [judicial act of imputation of personal sins to Christ on the cross] God’s righteousness was imputed to all mankind resulting in the justification in this life.

This is going to be covered in keys.

All judicial verdicts result from the justice of God

The Keys: Imputations

1. We have antithetical verdicts falling into two categories: real and judicial imputations.
2. Real imputations have a target or a home; judicial imputations do not have a target or a home.
3. In the first half of v. 18 is the real imputation that brings condemnation to mankind.
4. When God gave life to the soul, He placed the old sin nature into us; which is the home for Adam's original sin. The woman's personal sin with a sin of ignorance. Adam committed a transgression of cognizance.
5. This results in condemnation or spiritual death.
6. The imputation of Adam's sin + Adam's nature = spiritual death.
7. Man's point of reference is the justice of God, not the love of God.
8. The order of grace requires condemnation to occur first. We must be condemned before we can be redeemed, which is an act of grace. Cursing must precede blessing; condemnation must precede grace. Reward in eternity boils down to the amount of doctrine in your soul. The soul is the home for human life. Life in heaven or life in the Lake of Fire; still the life is in the soul.
9. This is all about the last half of this verse are two judicial blessings. ...through one sentence of condemnation [judicial act of imputation of personal sins to Christ on the cross] God's righteousness was imputed to all mankind resulting in the justification in this life. These imputations are necessary for our salvation.
10. The first judicial imputation; all personal sins of the human race were imputed to Jesus Christ on the cross. That is condemnation. Personal sins are not imputed to us. They were imputed, instead, to Jesus. There is a verdict to follow.
11. The second judicial imputation—the righteousness of God is imputed to the new believer regarding the blessing. The justice of God is the point of reference after the fall of man, so blessing must come from the justice of God. The pipeline in encapsulated by the integrity of God. There are a great many things which we construe as blessing which are logistical grace.
12. On one end of the grace pipeline is the justice of God (the origin of blessing) and on the other end is the righteousness of God.
13. Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness.
14. As a result, our blessings are permanent. Even when David committed that great sin, he continued to have these blessings which He had already been given. Things are removed if you go into complete and total reversionism. We have the blessings and we have the security from God. All blessings to the mature believer are encapsulated by divine integrity. God's righteousness was imputed to all believers, resulting in justification in this life.
15. This comes from lesson [#172] The very last word in the verse, the adverbial genitive of time: Both cursing and blessing are the functions of divine justice.
16. We are born into condemnation; we are born again through justification.
17. This occurs because all of our personal sins were poured out on Jesus Christ.
18. Justification belongs to all of those who believe in Jesus Christ.

19. Condemnation of the human race.
20. The positive volition results in justification.
21. The first Adam made a negative decision which resulted in our condemnation; and the last Adam made a positive decision, which potentially results in our justification. God's righteousness was imputed to all mankind, resulting in justification in this life.

People are always trying to do something in order to get God's blessing. They do these things, but these things are not the source of blessing from God. You are not blessed for your production (legitimate or human good).

The ultimate source of all blessing and cursing is God. Bob cannot even guess what these people want. He would probably drop dead if he knew what you wanted. Production is not the means of glorifying God.

Bob saw his sister and "I'll be doggoned, we get into a pretty quick..." She finally glared at him, with her blue-green eyes flashing, and said, "Bless you, brother." She turned and pivoted and walked out of there.

Bob starts talking about running out of ideas so finally the sheriff builds a church in the town; he goes into the saloon with his 6 guns and said, "There is going to be a church in this town!"

How do you get blessing from God? Doctrine in the soul. Production is a result and never a means.

Where does she get all of that stuff?

We start with point #15 next lesson:

1977 Romans

Lesson #172

172 08/15/1977 Romans 5:18–19a (Principles) Disobedience and results in women and men; "socio-biology" and the old sin nature

Brachylogy Is the completion of a sentence/thought of someone who has left many words out. From Wiki-dictionary: brachylogy (uncountable) Concise speech; laconism. (rhetoric) Any of several forms of omission of words, including the omission of an understood part of a phrase, as, the omission of "good" from "(good) morning!"

We are still working on v. 18:

Romans 5:18: So therefore as through one transgression [Adam's original sin] imputed to all mankind resulting in condemnation, so also through one sentence of condemnation [judicial act of imputation of personal sins to Christ on the cross] God's righteousness was imputed to all mankind resulting in the justification in this life.

We are completing one of the keys, imputations, from #171.

Volition is the key to a judicial imputation. This is why our sins could be poured out upon Jesus Christ, because He chose that to happen. This is also why not every person is justified as a result, because that would be a judicial imputation, which requires our volition.

More Points

1. At the moment of salvation, God's perfect righteousness is imputed to every believer. This is a judicial imputation, which is the end of the line for a fortiori.
2. Justification begins on earth and continues forever.
3. Divine justice can only bless perfect righteousness. There will never be a blessing from God that you have earned, deserved or worked for. These are all results and not the means of blessing.
4. Therefore, blessing from the justice of God has a home.
5. Justification means qualification for blessing.
6. However, blessing from the justice of God remains a potential until the believer adds capacity to that potential.
7. The missing link is spiritual growth. When that happens, you begin to glorify God. The potential is the imputation of divine righteousness. Reality are the blessings which come down the grace pipe.
8. Remember the two a fortiori principles. If the justice of God provides the greater, it follows that the justice of God can provide the less, which is blessings in time.

Romans 5:19 For as indeed through the disobedience of the one man, the many were made sinners, so also through the obedience of the One, the many will be made righteous.
(BLB)

Verse 19 – the antithetical decision of the two Adams. We have a conditional clause with a protasis and an apodosis. This presents the two decisions of history in a dramatic way. The protasis is a first class condition so the supposition is from the viewpoint of reality. We take the reality of Adam's negative decision and see how God has added to that decision—first of all, condemnation which puts man out of the garden, but from that condemnation comes the function of grace. From the function of grace comes something far greater than the perfect environment of the garden enjoyed by perfect persons. What is better than perfect environment? Cracking the maturity barrier and receiving blessing from the justice of God. The protasis here deals with the first Adam's decision whereas the apodosis which makes inference from the protasis gives us the decision of the second or last Adam.

“For as by one man’s disobedience many were made sinners” – the postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used in an explanatory sense, and the comparative adverb hōsper (ὥσπερ) [pronounced HOH-sper]: “For as.”

Then a prepositional phrase, dia plus the genitive of paraclêtos (παράκλητος) [pronounced pahr-AHK-lay-toss] which means disobedience, but it means a certain kind of disobedience. This is used primarily for female disobedience. It means actually, not willing to hear, therefore disobedient. It is a feminine word. Next is an ablative of means from the numeral heís, mia, hen (εἷς, μία, ἓν) [pronounced hice, Mee-ah, ehn] plus the noun anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos], which means “mankind.” The ablative of means is used when the expression of means is accompanied by the implication of its origin or source. The feminine noun indicates something else: that Adam also rejected authority. Man is feminine when he rejects authority.

A lot of people would not be homosexual if they respected authority.

The man did not take the fruit off the tree; he took it from the hand of the woman.

Every homosexual was born of Adam and Eve. They have been conditioned in their souls because they are rejecters of authority. A true man is manly in his soul and he accepts the authority over him; and he accepts his responsibility for what goes wrong.

“For as through one man’s disobedience”

The Original Sin of Adam

1. This is a reference to the original sin of Adam in the garden.
2. Note the character of the original sin—disobedience to the authority of God.
3. God was the authority as creator and the provider of perfect environment. The perfect reference for provision was the love of God.
4. Neither justice nor grace was involved in the pristine perfection of the garden of Eden.
5. Adam’s original sin changed all that and man’s point of reference became the justice of God.
6. The first function of divine justice was condemnation, for righteousness demands righteousness and justice demands justice. The justice of God executes what righteousness demands.
7. Adam’s original sin resulted in both immediate spiritual death and the immediate acquisition of the old sin nature. The old sin nature originated from Adam’s disobedience. The old sin nature is a rejection of authority.
8. Adam’s perfect body became a body of corruption and the flesh was contaminated by Adam’s trend known as “the old man” or “the old sin nature.”
9. Adam’s sin nature was perpetuated at physical birth through genetics.
10. The genetically formed old sin nature is the home for the imputation of Adam’s original sin to each member of the human race at birth—a real imputation.

11. A real imputation rather than a judicial imputation. A real imputation involves the justice of God attributing what is antecedently one's own, while a judicial imputation does not have a home, a target, a direction in the sense of ascribing to one what is antecedently his own.
12. Spiritual death is the combination of Adam's original sin combined with Adam's trend by means of a real imputation.
13. There are several results of spiritual death: a) the old sin nature becomes the sovereign of the human race/human life, ruling through spiritual death; b) man's modus vivendi follows the trend of Adam's sin toward good, toward evil, as well as toward sin; c) Satan became the ruler of this world.

A time magazine with the concept of socio-biology. All acts, even altruistic ones, Morality and are securely rooted in the genes. Morality and justice, far from being the triumphant product of human progress, evolved from man's animal past, and are securely rooted in the genes...Sociobiologists-whose growing ranks include some 250 biologists, zoologists and social scientists-argue that without consideration of biology, the study of human culture makes no sense. Indeed, sociobiology has significant implications for most areas of human concern-from education to relations between the sexes. Says Harvard Physicist Gerald Holton: "It's a breathtaking ambition . . . as if Sigmund Freud had set out to subsume all of Darwin, Joyce, Einstein, Whitehead and Lenin." Robert Trivers, a Harvard biologist and leading sociobiology theorist, makes a bold prediction: "Sooner or later, political science, law, economics, psychology, psychiatry and anthropology will all be branches of sociobiology."

These and other claims by proponents of sociobiology have made it one of the most inflammatory doctrines to emerge from the campuses in decades. Since 1975, when Harvard Zoologist Edward Wilson's mammoth 700-page book Sociobiology: The New Synthesis brought the new science to public attention, the controversy has spread beyond Harvard-where it originated-dividing faculty departments and disrupting academic conventions. Angry opponents denounce "soso biology" as reactionary political doctrine disguised as science. Their fear: it may be used to show that some races are inferior, that male dominance over women is natural and that social progress is impossible because of the pull of the genes...

Edward Wilson has been picketed, and at Harvard, the left-wing Committee Against Racism has called sociobiology "dangerously racist." The committee also charged that the new science would give comfort to the supporters of Psychologist Arthur Jensen, a leading proponent of another controversial theory: that racial differences in IQs have a genetic basis. Wilson angrily called that attack "slander," and even Lewontin came to his defense, conceding that "sociobiology is not a racist doctrine." But he added, "Any kind of genetic determinism can and does feed other kinds, including the belief that some races are superior to others."...

Sociobiologists call their doctrine "the completion of the Darwinian revolution"-the application of classic evolutionary theory and modern studies of genetics to animal behavior. Darwin's theory, now virtually unchallenged in the world of science, holds that all organisms evolve by natural selection—those that are better adapted to the environment survive and reproduce; the rest die out. Thus organisms are constantly perfected by the cruel competition to survive. Sociobiologists believe the behavior that promotes survival of the winners in the evolutionary game is passed on by their genes.

Time Magazine always has good writing. If he was not given this magazine, Bob would have gone out and bought it. This first time he has thought about that since there was a picture and comment from him about Barry Goldwater (Bob was also mentioned in an article about Dan Quayle—this article castigates both him and Quayle).

4 imputations: human life imputed to the body and Adam's original sin imputed to the old sin nature. The old sin nature is in the body; and it influences the soul. Then two judicial imputations: our sins are imputed to Jesus and His righteousness is imputed to us.

1977 Romans

Lesson #173

173 08/16/1977 Romans 5:19b "Socio–Biology" (cont.); obedience; four imputations

Romans 5:19 For as indeed through the disobedience of the one man, the many were made sinners, so also through the obedience of the One, the many will be made righteous.

“many were made sinners” – the nominative plural subject from the adjective polus, polos (πολύς, πολλός) [pronounced poll-OOS] used as a substantive, a noun with the definite article, and refers to the entire human race with the exception of the Lord Jesus Christ. Plus the predicate nominative plural from hamartōlos (ἁμαρτωλός) [pronounced ham-ar-to-LOSS], an adjective used as a substantive meaning “sinful ones.” It is a reference to the possession of the old sin nature transmitted by copulation.

Plus an aorist passive indicative from the verb kathistēmi (καθίστημι) [pronounced kath-IHS-tay-mee] which does not take an accusative case object. This is a compound verb [kata = the preposition ‘down’; histēmi (ἵστημι) [pronounced HIHS-tay-mee] = the verb to stand] meaning to stand down, to set down, to put in place. But in the passive voice here it means to appoint—“the many [human race] were appointed sinful ones.” We are not sinful ones by sinning, we are sinful ones by appointment. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it gathers into one entirety the action of the verb. It takes the occurrence which is the imputation of Adam's sin to each member of the human race at birth and regardless of the duration of history it gathers every birth into this entirety. There are two imputations in this aorist tense: the imputation of human life to the soul; the imputation of Adam's original sin to the old sin nature, and that is condemnation. So that when we are born we are born as facsimiles of Adam after the fall. The passive voice: mankind at birth receives the action of the verb. This is called in this passage an appointment. Life is an appointment with death. At the moment of physical life we have an appointment with spiritual death. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine, the imputation of Adam's sin at the point of physical birth resulting in “sinfulness.” The appointment to a state of sinfulness is the actual imputation of Adam's sin to its genetic home, the old sin nature at birth.

Bob read to us about sociobiology the other night. The sin nature is located in the human cells. This viewpoint has been attacked for many reasons. It implies that education does not help people to achieve anything in life. It implies that environment is not much help. It also implies that some people and some races are better than others.

Bob quoting from this article on sociobiology (Bob did not quote all that is below):

Many recent theorists-such as Nobel-prizewinning Ethologist Konrad Lorenz and Scots Biologist V.C. Wynne-Edwards-have focused on the group or species as the primary unit of selection. Darwin wrote that it was the individual organism. But Sociobiologists believe it is the genes themselves that conduct the life-or-death evolutionary struggle. This gene-based view of life is compatible with a finding made independently by researchers in a widely divergent branch of science. Rutgers Biochemist George Pieczenik has discovered patterns in DNA coding that he sees as evidence of selection occurring at the molecular level (TIME, April 4). "What this means," he says, "is that the DNA sequences exist to protect themselves and their own information. It's not the organism that counts. The DNA sequences don't really care if they have to look like a lowly assistant professor or a giraffe."

Yet sociobiology did not arise from molecular studies but as an answer to a century-old gap in Darwinian theory: Darwin could not fully explain why some organisms help other members of their species. His theory held that every organism fights for its own survival and chance to reproduce, not that of others. Since altruistic behavior reduces an organism's chances to survive, evolution should be expected to breed it out of all species. Still, some birds risk their lives for the flock by crying out to warn of the presence of a predator-thus chancing attracting the attention of the enemy and being singled out for attack. Dolphins sometimes try to save injured dolphins from drowning. Social insects serve the entire community, some going so far as to give their lives to protect the colony from invaders.

Sociobiology tries to resolve the dilemma. Its solution: altruism is actually genetic selfishness. The bird that warns of an approaching hawk is protecting nearby relatives that have many of the same genes it has-thus increasing the chance that some of those genes will survive. Sterile female insects work and give their lives to promote the spread of genes they share with their sisters. [R. B. Thieme, Jr.: altruism is the natural attempt to assuage a guilt complex]

Some 20 years ago, British Biologist J.B.S. Haldane anticipated the gene-based view of sociobiology when, tongue in cheek, he announced that he would lay down his life for two brothers or eight cousins. His reasoning: the survival of two full siblings (each with about half of his genes identical to Haldane's) or the group of cousins (each with about one-eighth of his genes the same as Haldane's) made the decision genetically acceptable.

According to sociobiologists, evolution produces organisms that automatically follow this mathematical logic, as if they were computers, totting up the genetic costs or benefits of helping out relatives who bear many of the same genes. If aiding the relatives increases the chances that familial genes will prosper and propagate, the organism will act altruistically-even to the extent of giving up its life, as a parent may, for example, by rushing into a burning house to save a child. Yet in humans, this genetic push is less binding; sociobiologists believe that human social behavior is largely controlled by facultative genes-the ones that can be influenced by environment to change their effects. Thus there is room for cowardly and selfish-as well as unselfish-behavior.

British Biologist William Hamilton in 1964 explained how altruism could help an individual spread his genes; he argued that the principle explained the social life of insects.

In all ants, bees and wasps, daughters of the queen share an average of three-quarters of their genes (see diagram). Because the daughters are more related to each other than they would be to their own offspring, said Hamilton, it is in their genetic self-interest not to breed but to assist the queen in producing more daughters.

Thus the females evolved as sterile workers who cooperate socially for genetically selfish reasons.

Some years later, Trivers reasoned that if Hamilton was right about the social insects, worker ants would spend three times the energy rearing sisters as rearing brothers, because the workers are three times more closely related to their sisters than to their brothers. Trivers and his associate, Hope Hare, then analyzed thousands of ants of 20 different species and confirmed the 3-to-1 female dominance-the strongest evidence so far that organisms act as if they understand the underlying genetics.

Still, there are problems in explaining all altruism as a direct investment in one's own genes. For example, some birds give warning cries for the flock even when their young and close relatives are absent. Trivers proposed a solution in a 1971 paper on reciprocal altruism that has become a central text for sociobiologists. "In other organisms," Trivers wrote, "the evidence that altruism is genetic is rather overwhelming. It is therefore irrational to argue that the first species in which altruism has no genetic contribution is human beings." Using game theory, he concluded that natural selection produces individuals that exchange favors-in effect saying, "You scratch my back; I'll scratch yours." In other words, the favor will eventually be returned, thus improving the outlook for the genes of the first altruist. According to the theory, human charitable acts are therefore rooted in biology and gene selfishness. This theory could explain human loyalty to nation, corporation or church; these institutions can provide benefits to members that increase the chances for them to survive and propagate.

Some philosophers and theologians have been dismayed by the theory. So was one young man who had won a Carnegie Gold Medal for saving a drowning victim; he wrote Wilson a troubled letter. Recalls Wilson: "He found it difficult to grasp the notion that somehow his act was preordained through genes. I convinced him that the impulse and emotion behind his rational choice, though genetically determined, in no way detracted from the rationality and value of his altruistic act."

For many, such explanations of noble deeds are cold comfort. But Harvard Anthropologist Melvin J. Konner sees a bright side to reciprocal altruism. Sociobiologists, he says, "have in fact uplifted [human nature] by showing that altruism, long thought to be a thin cultural veneer, belongs instead to the deepest part of our being, produced by countless aeons of consistent evolution."

In Trivers' model, non-backscratcher (who refuse to play the game) and overt cheaters (who accept favors but never return them) are long-term losers in the evolutionary game. Yet subtle cheaters who pretend to cooperate but do not are winners. As a result, Trivers believes, humans survived by evolving a complex psychology and set of emotions to keep the altruist from being exploited by cheaters: indignation, guilt, gratitude, sympathy and moralism.

Indeed, to sociobiologists deceit is a crucial factor in evolution. Some birds, like the nighthawk, can feign a broken wing to lure predators away from a nest. In some avian species, a female that has been inseminated by a departed male may try to hide the fact, thus tricking a new male into investing his time and resources in offspring-and genes-that are not his. In the long run, however, natural selection sharpens up both the ability to cheat and the ability to detect cheating. Trivers and Dawkins suggest that the need for deceit-and for its detection-may have been responsible for the rapid enlargement of the human brain during the Pleistocene era.

Sociobiologists believe that self-deception is also a product of evolution, simply because a cheater can give a more convincing display of honesty if he lies to himself as well as to his neighbor. Says Zoologist Richard Alexander of the University of Michigan: "Selection has probably worked against the understanding of such selfish motivation becoming a part of human consciousness." Adds Trivers: "The conventional view that natural selection favors nervous systems which produce ever more accurate images of the world must be a very naive view of mental evolution."

Of all sociobiologists, Trivers has been the boldest in applying the gene-based view to humans. In part, that accounts for his rise-in just ten years -from an author of children's texts to a biology guru at age 34. The son of a Foreign Service officer, Trivers entered Harvard on a scholarship in 1961 to study math and prepare for a career as a civil rights lawyer. He was a bright, moody, private person who turned up at all the civil rights demonstrations and student protests. But his marks were so mediocre ("I was more interested in chasing women and the real world than in math") that his Harvard scholarship was canceled and he was turned down after graduation by two law schools.

Abandoning a law career, he took a job writing children's textbooks for the Educational Development Center in Newton, Mass., and while working on an animal volume was struck by a photo of baboons disciplining their young. It looked so much like human parents dealing with their children, recalls Trivers, "that it was possible to imagine language as just so much froth on the ocean, and that there was something else underlying human discipline. It occurred to me that to understand human behavior, it would be very helpful to examine the behavior of other organisms."

At the time, Trivers knew little about evolution and nothing at all about biology, but he plunged into the literature and sought out mentors. "Once I learned what natural selection was," he says, "it was clear that for one hundred years since Darwin, almost no work had been done in applying Darwin's reasoning to social behavior. It was an incredible opportunity to be able to move into this enormous vacuum."

Excited by his new interest, Trivers borrowed money and went back to Harvard as a special student in biology, gaining his Ph.D. and a faculty appointment in 1972. Zoologist Ernest Williams, one of his teachers, describes him as a brash, brilliant student who turned in papers with slashing attacks on well-known biologists, some of whom have not forgotten-or forgiven. Brashness is still part of Trivers' character. He derided an anthropologist (who, incidentally, admires his work) as too old to understand the implications of sociobiology. The anthropologist was then 38.

The second of seven children, Trivers admits that the problems of growing up in a large family and the arguments he had with his father helped to point him toward his theory that parent-child conflict is biologically certain. Trivers believes that the child shows a selfish interest in itself and seeks to get more than its fair share of the energy and resources of parents. But the parent has only a partial genetic interest in each child and thus is preoccupied with sharing resources. The result, according to Trivers, is biologically certain conflict between the child, who tends toward selfishness, and the parent, who insists that the child share.

Another example of the conflict, in a variety of mammals, is weaning. When the benefit to the child begins to be outweighed by the cost to the mother (reduced ability to bear or care for other offspring), the mother will deny milk, though the offspring will continue to demand more. But parents have an edge. (Says Trivers: "An offspring cannot fling its mother to the ground at will and nurse.") So evolution has provided a defensive weapon for the offspring: psychological warfare. Some fledgling birds will scream with hunger-even when they are reasonably well fed-to induce the parent to bring more food. Dogs withhold tail-wagging to get more food. Children withhold or provide smiles-as a means of reinforcing maternal behavior they need. Says Trivers: "Strong selection pressures tend to favor the infant's efforts to express its own self-interest. Once you explore the stratagems of parent and child, I think you can see that the child is not just an empty vessel to be filled by the parents but a sophisticated organism capable of acting in its own self-interests from early on."

So early, Trivers thinks, that the action may actually begin before birth. He believes there are "chemical tactics" that the fetus uses on the mother to increase its size and fitness while still in the womb. Even more surprising is Trivers' theory (for which he admits there is yet no evidence) of genetic conflict between egg and sperm before conception: under some conditions, the egg may try to repel sperm with female-producing X chromosomes in order to be fertilized into a boy rather than a girl.

Parents, as well as children, have genetic interests that emerge as manipulation. One of Trivers' examples: a parent may be overprotective in order to keep a grown child at home helping with the other offspring-something that promotes the self-interest of the parents and the younger kids but diminishes the chances of reproductive success for the older child. Says Trivers: "Humans are caught in an intense co-evolutionary struggle with their closest relatives. Parents, siblings and offspring are our allies as well as our opponents."

In fact, sociobiologists believe, conflict-both in the family and with outsiders-is the essence of life. But they do not think that man is at the mercy of an irresistible aggressive instinct, as Lorenz (On Aggression) and Author Robert Ardrey (The Territorial Imperative) insisted in their popular books more than a decade ago. For sociobiologists the trick in becoming an evolutionary winner is to hit just the right level of aggression. Too little, and the organism may be muscled out by competitors. Too much, and it may die in battle without reproducing, or use up time and energy in fighting while competitors steal its food or mate. Aggression, in other words, pays off only when the cost-benefit ratio makes it a workable strategy.

Sociobiology seems to have an explanation-usually a deflating one-for nearly every human phenomenon. Maternal love is a genetic investment policy. Friendship and law are probably rooted in reciprocal altruism and its calculus of self-interest. The socialization of children, at home and school, is as much forced indoctrination in reciprocal altruism as it is genuine teaching. Ethnic pride (as well as racism) can be viewed as an irrational generalization of the biological tendency to distrust strangers and prefer the company of individuals who look like ourselves. Says Wilson: "We are likely to see some of our most exalted feelings explained in terms of traits which evolved. We may find that there is an overestimation of the nature of our deepest yearnings."

Sociobiologists argue that those yearnings are so encrusted with self-deceit and rationalizations that only a rigorous evolutionary [we would say Biblical] analysis will make them clear. Wilson, in fact, calls for "ethics to be removed temporarily from the hands of the philosophers and biologicized." Though Wilson is hazy about what a biologicized ethic might be, he suggests there could be different moral strictures for males and females, old and young. An ethic of children, he says, might account for their genetically based resistance to parental control, as well as for the tendency of teen-agers to band together and set their own rules.

Wilson, 48, curator of entomology at Harvard's Museum of Comparative Zoology, is currently writing a book on the evolution of ethics in relation to sociobiology. A specialist in the social insects, he wrote The Insect Societies (1971), then put in three years of 90-hour weeks working on his sociobiology text. Says he: "I wanted to synthesize and draw the boundaries to shape sociobiology into a discipline."

In the spectrum of current theories about human behavior, that discipline falls between the thinking of Harvard Psychologist B.F. Skinner, who regards people as pliable beings whose behavior can be almost entirely shaped by their environment, and Lorenz, who believes that man is a prisoner of his aggressive instincts. Like Freudian psychology, sociobiology stresses the innate but allows for the influence of environment. Indeed, sociobiologists concede the possibilities of a Freudian connection. Trivers says that he can think of 16 ways the discipline could "revitalize" the teachings of Freud, who also had something to say about inevitable parent-child conflict and the role of self-deception.

Many social scientists are now contributing to the development of sociobiological theory. Anthropologist Napoleon Chagnon of Penn State University (TIME, May 10, 1976) reports that the Yanomamo tribes of southern Venezuela and northern Brazil seem to be engaged in almost continuous war over the right to reproduce. The tribes "invest" more heavily in raising boys, practice female infanticide and constantly raid other settlements for women. Anthropologists Lionel Tiger and Robin Fox (The Imperial Animal) insist that evidence points to a "biogram," or biological program, guiding human behavior.

Harvard's Irven DeVore, already one of America's leading anthropologists when he converted to sociobiology, now says he will go back and redo all of his major primate studies. He has gone to Africa this summer to conduct the first real test of sociobiological theory on primates.

Donald Campbell, former president of the American Psychological Association, believes that psychology must adapt itself to evolutionary theory, if not sociobiology. He thinks religious teachings have evolutionary importance—an idea a few theologians have picked up from sociobiology. Says Unitarian Ralph Burhoe of Chicago's Meadville/Lombard Theological School: "The truths in religion have been selected because they are necessary and essential to man." Though no sociobiologist has yet worked out a full theory of religion, the general view is that the golden rule about love of neighbor evolved out of reciprocal altruism.

All told, sociobiology seems to have won the first round with its critics—largely because their accusations were overblown and based on emotional response rather than hard evidence. "Our rhetoric was at fault," admits Biologist Stephen Gould, an opponent of sociobiology. Lewontin adds glumly: "Other people may have listened more if we had presented our arguments differently."

Still, Trivers agrees that the critics have a point in being concerned about the social implications of what sociobiologists preach. "Social theory," he says, "ought to be looked at from the standpoint of what its implications are. It's not like particle physics." Wilson's book, for instance, raises some unsettling questions that most social theorists shy away from: Is it possible that social classes reflect genetic differences? Do the upper classes gradually accumulate a separate and superior gene pool? After stating that the idea has "plausibility," Wilson goes on to say there is "little evidence" of its truth: culture moves too fast, and even the 2,000-year-old castes of India are not genetically different in any measurable way. Still, Wilson believes there is a "loose correlation of some of the genetically determined traits with success." Such beliefs worry many readers, so Wilson often devotes himself to reassuring audiences that sociobiology is not threatening. He says, for example, that only about 10% to 15% of human social behavior is genetically based. (After this less-than-scientific guess, Sahlins replied with some dry academic mockery that human behavior cannot be reduced to 10% biology, 5% physics, 3% chemistry, .7% geology, 81% symbolic logic and .3% the action of heavenly bodies.) [that is called debating with a sense of humor]

Wilson also stresses that genes need not always be obeyed.

He notes that man has "a genetically inherited array of possibilities. Some of these possibilities set limits on man's aspirations, others do not, and the search should be for where biology pushes mankind and where man can resist the push." He also admits that "genetic constraints evolved during the millions of years of prehistory, under conditions that to a large extent no longer exist." It would be foolish, he says, to rear as many healthy children as possible in today's crowded world, no matter what the genetic push.

Despite the weaknesses in sociobiological doctrine that required these concessions, opponents have been slow to mount a scientifically based counterattack. A major reason for the delay: few critics feel competent to cut across all the disciplines involved, from ethology and mathematics to anthropology and game theory. But a more sophisticated opposition is beginning to take root in the academic community.

Anthropologist Sahlins in The Use and Abuse of Biology, the only anti-sociobiology book published to date, contends that kinship patterns among humans do not—as sociobiological theory predicts—always follow bloodlines. He also argues that Trivers' theory of reciprocal altruism simply does not work: an individual may help himself by behaving altruistically, but he also helps one of his competitors. Thus there is no net advantage to altruistic behavior, and it should be selected against by evolution.

Another common objection: human sociobiology is long on theory, short on proof. Some sociobiologists concede that large chunks of the theory may have to be modified as studies proceed.

But the strongest argument against sociobiology is that it underrates the emergence of the human brain, consciousness and culture. Said Columbia Anthropologist Marvin Harris to an M.I.T. audience last year: "Sociobiologists tend to drastically underestimate the result to which human cultures represent an emergent novelty." His point: even simple organisms show great variation in behavior, but only the genes can pass it on. Among humans, learning can be passed on by culture, thus overwhelming the genetic contribution to behavior.

The fear of many of sociobiology's opponents is that it will prove nothing but leave a heavy political impact anyway. Sahlins fears it may disappear as a science but go on and on in the popular culture.

Indeed, few academic theories have spread so fast and with so little hard proof. Apart from the Hamilton-Trivers work on altruism, there has been little to impress the skeptics, and no hard evidence has been presented to show that genes influence human cultural behavior. The power of sociobiology comes from its astonishing promise to link the physical sciences with the human sciences and to bring all behavior from Drosophila to Homo sapiens under one great discipline.

What is more, sociobiology may have appeared at the right cultural moment. The 1970s have brought with them growing impatience and disillusionment over failed educational and environmental experiments designed to alter social behavior. The concept of social theorists that man is infinitely malleable and perfectible has fallen into disfavor. At such a time the emergence of a doctrine preaching that man is caught in history, able to exercise free will only within the limits set by his genes, may do very well indeed.

This article and this science has stumbled across a doctrine about the same time that we did in Bible study. Every single cell in the body is involved. The only problem with this study is, of course, the evolutionary aspect of it.

This explains that the Lord could not die of a disease or in the usual ways of physical death. His blood coagulated almost immediately on the cross. He had perfect cell structure. He had to exhale but not inhale. He chose from His volition to no longer breathe, something that we cannot do.

They begin with a false premise and come to a correct conclusion.

Science is merely observing God's faithfulness.

When we die, our soul leaves our body; and the sin nature is not in the soul, so it does not travel with the soul.

Some denominations are formed on the basis of certain sins being acceptable and others not being acceptable.

The laws of human behavior in Beverly Hills, you never kiss and tell and you never welsch on an obligation.

When Bob was being raised, schools taught a mostly environmental theory, about how your environment caused so many things in your life.

The combination of genes results in a variety of ways, providing so many different ways to sin and so many different trends.

Homosexuality is a sin, but it can be parlayed into evil.

The evolutionary premise will eventually lead you astray. But sociobiology admits that evil is in the genes.

Time Magazine represents some of the best thinking of liberalism today.

We go from a premise to a conclusion; and there is an antithesis which establishes it all.

The contrast will be through obedience and disobedience.

Feminine singular noun hupakoê (ὕπακοή) [pronounced hoop-ak-oh-AY], which means, obedience, compliance, submission; obedience rendered to anyone's counsels, an obedience shown in observing the requirements of Christianity. Strong's #5218. You may not like the people over you and they have a policy; you have to go along with the policy which is set over you. Never try to break the authority.

If you are going to leave a church, you just slip out and find a church that suits you. And tapers are not to take their tapes to the pastor and demand changes. The principle of authority stands, but you do not disobey it. If you disagree enough, then you quietly leave.

We do not rebound human good because this was not imputed to Jesus on the cross.

Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the Law by becoming a curse for us.

And being found in the appearance of a man, He humbled Himself...

Jesus obeyed the Father's will by going to the cross.

Our personal sins cannot be imputed to us, because they were imputed to Jesus Christ on the cross. The justice of God imputes to us the righteousness of God.

1977 Romans

Lesson #174

174 08/17/1977 Romans 5:19c Real and judicial imputations; before and after the Fall; two encapsulations

Imputations is not a fully explored topic. Life is imputed to us at birth and the target is the human soul (the format soul). God is the giver of all life. At the same time, Adam's original sin is imputed to its genetically formed home, the old sin nature.

Sociobiology has many points of intersection with what we are studying.

All of our sins were imputed to Jesus Christ, a judicial imputation, of our sins; and He paid the penalty for our sins. God is able to provide a second imputation of God's righteousness to us, at the moment that we are born again. This imputation sets up a pipeline between the justice of God and the righteousness of God. Blessing and discipline can flow through that pipeline. All relationship since the fall is the justice of God.

The 35 or 36 things go through the pipeline at salvation. Then logistical grace becomes a part of our lives. We attain spiritual maturity through spiritual growth. This pipeline is encapsulated by the integrity of God. There is no self-righteousness and no work or no emotional experience etc. will be the blessing from God.

Bob gets letters. He has an organization. If he sat down and read and answered every letter, and many of them are arrogance. Some will say, "I think that you have been teaching this..." and then type 3 or 4 pages after that. They expect me to read all of that. Bob never sees these letters; he never intends to. "They are paid to read them; I'm not." Apparently, this is a result of many letters of people who are getting the most of the simple points that Bob is teaching mixed up.

There was no innocence in the garden. How can you have sex every day and be innocent? How can you have Bible class every day and be innocent? Man's point of reference in the garden was love, not justice.

Jesus Christ paid for our sins; but He also reject good and evil from the cross. Many of you are connected to organization which are looking to good things in the world, and this is not our job as a believer. Bob's father told him, "When you get into deep water, close your mouth."

Christ in His death and burial was completely separated from good and evil.

Romans 5:19 For as indeed through the disobedience of the one man, the many were made sinners, so also through the obedience of the One, the many will be made righteous.

"so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous" – the object of the verb is the nominative plural of dikaios (δικαιος) [pronounced DIH-kai-oss], an adjective used as a substantive and it means "righteous ones." It is a predicate nominative because kathistēmi (καθίστημι) [pronounced kath-IHS-tay-mee] takes the nominative case rather than the accusative for its object. Certain verbs do not take an accusative. It describes every believer as a righteous one. This means to appoint.

The human race here is hoi polloi.

Imputation of Righteousness = Justification; the Pipeline

1. Dikaios (δικαιος) [pronounced DIH-kai-oss] refers here to the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation.

2. Justification means potential for blessing from the justice of God. These are the temporal blessings that glorify God.
3. There is a pipeline of blessing from the justice of God. On one end is justice and on the other end imputed righteousness.
4. All blessing from the justice of God flows through the grace pipeline. Justice is the origin and imputed righteousness is the recipient.
5. Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness. This is a judicial imputation.
6. The encapsulation of grace in the grace pipeline provides more for man in the devil's world than Adam lost in the fall and subsequent expulsion from the garden.

There are these environmentalists who are trying to fix the environment; and these same people do not want to kill criminals. When you improve the environment for criminals, you ruin the environment for law-abiding people.

Romans 5:19 For as through one man's disobedience [Adam's] the many [the human race] were appointed sinful [the OSN ruling human life through spiritual death], so also through one man's obedience [Christ] the many shall be appointed righteous [imputation of divine righteousness and subsequent justification].

The Keys: the Two Encapsulations

1. The encapsulation of spiritual death, which is condemnation from the justice of God. Justice is on one end and the old sin nature is on the other end. What is God going to send down that pipe? Not blessing. Only one thing can be sent down that pipe, the sin of Adam. That is the encapsulation of spiritual death; the condemnation from the justice of God. The first thing that we just receive: condemnation. The justice of God must first condemn us; and this makes us applicable for grace. The justice of God can do nothing for us until it first condemns us.
2. The imputation of maximum blessing in time to its grace-prepared home of imputed red divine righteousness and maximum doctrine acquired is the encapsulation of the integrity of God, grace blessing from the justice of God.
3. Grace blessing at salvation; logistical grace after salvation; and supergrace blessings after the attainment of maturity are the categories of blessing. Salvation and maturity blessings pass through the pipe. Logistical grace merely keeps you standing there. It is divine support to keep you at the pipe.
4. There encapsulations are formed around the decisions of the first and last Adam.
5. Adam brings sin into the world; Jesus brings divine righteousness into the world.
6. Positive and negative decisions.
7. By one man's disobedience all men are condemned.
8. Sovereign of
9. By one man's obedience, everyone has the potential of divine imputation of divine righteousness.
10. Under this justification, the power of the sin nature as the power of life is broken through retroactive propositional truth through the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

11. The potentiality for fantastic blessing for the justice of God ...maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
12. What the first Adam lost at the fall, the last Adam recovered at the fall.
13. The justice of God provides more than Adam and the woman possessed in the Garden of Eden.

There is always an advantage to playing on your home field. When we walk onto that field, we are dead. Life went in when we breathed and we cried; we were already on the home field of the justice of God. That is the advantage. God must first condemn us before he can do anything for us.

Some people never adjust to the justice of God because they reject sin or they are told that they are good or their works are respected. Bob has known a lot of religious people and he has encountered every type of self righteous type. Bob is 60 years. "We are about to vomit salute you." Bob has been on many Bible campuses and there are every kind of self-righteousness to be found there. God's righteousness and human self-righteousness are mutually exclusive. Sooner or later you must realize that you cannot receive blessing from God except through grace. You can be saved and still cling to your self-righteousness. There is a total condemnation, but as soon as we receive Christ through faith, we are totally saved. We go from total condemnation to total salvation. Grace is the policy of the justice of God; not of the love of God.

Lesson #175

175 08/18/1977 Romans 5:19 Keys: freedom through respect for authority; original sin = disobedience to divine authority

Our president supports human rights when it is convenient. He is one of the most inconsistent presidents that we have every had.

The Russians are doing eavesdropping on people in the US; and we are likely doing the same kind of eavesdropping in the United States as well. Bob reads a few more articles.

Corrected translation given.

God's integrity reviewed along with the imputations.

Romans 5:19 For as through one man's disobedience [Adam's] the many [the human race] were appointed sinful [the OSN ruling human life through spiritual death], so also through one man's obedience [Christ] the many shall be appointed righteous [imputation of divine righteousness and subsequent justification].

There are several keys that must be noted. The original sin is a key to this passage.

Keys: Adam's Original Sin

1. The woman disregarded Adam's authority in order to talk with the serpent.
2. The woman reject the authority of her husband and the Lord Jesus Christ in escalating the dialogue with the serpent. Adam had a dual authority in two ways, as ruler of the world and authority over the woman. Satan uses agents; and he got her to remove the fruit from the tree.
3. All of this was accomplished in ignorance. The sin of ignorance did not exclude her from the nature of this transgression. She was the first human to sin.
4. The man disobeyed the authority of God when he became involved in the woman's transgress, taking the fruit from her rather than from the tree.
5. In this crisis, he did not use his authority properly. Adam, having free will, opens the door to weaknesses.
 - a. What appears to be the case is, Adam acted from love and not from justice when interacting with the woman.
 - b. In justice, Adam would have stood back and waited to hear from God on this matter.
 - c. However, because he was so strongly in love with the woman, he took his stand with her, rather than to allow her to remain condemned by herself.²
6. Unlike the woman, the man was not deceived.
7. Adam became spiritually dead by eating the fruit.
8. Adam's sin was a sin of cognizance. There is no life in the womb until God imputes this life. The sin nature is in the cells of the body; and God imputes Adam's original sin to his sin nature. The man is the transmitter of the old sin nature.
9. Transmission is accomplished genetically. Man has a body of corruption.
10. God is not the author of sin. The sin nature and soul are separated.
11. The sin nature influences the soul but it is not a part of the soul. The thinking of human good and in the concepts of evil.
12. What God originates and what man originates from sin are always kept separated. The soul is created by God; the sin nature by man.

The only president in our recent history who has used his authority during a crisis. Teddy Roosevelt did; George Washington did; but Abraham Lincoln did not. He said that slaves were not his equals; but he implied that of his opponent in the debate as well. We often blame our government on FDR, but this really began with Lincoln.

Our admirals in the Navy were comparable to the great German generals. Too many political appointments in business today; and they cannot handle the authority that goes with the job.

Freedom is Stabilized through Respect for Authority

1. Satan sponsored the first feminist movement and through it he became the dictator of the world. The sin nature became the ruler of life and Satan ruled over the earth.

² I added these points.

2. Satan used the woman to overthrow the man's leadership in the world.
3. The woman became a pawn in the hand of Satan rather than a responder to the man.
4. The historical trend of evil can be traced by to the woman. Civil rights destroy human freedom and human rights.
5. When the so-called rights of woman were obtained, she actually lost her rights and her basis for those rights.
6. Only Bible doctrine resident in the soul provide freedom from the tyranny of Satan. The world is ruled by Satan and human life is ruled by the sin nature. Good and evil is the policy of Satan; and the function of the sin nature in life. Sin embarrasses Satan. If man has the volition then he can resist Satan.
7. Only doctrine in the soul and the function of divine establishment in the soul can provide freedom from the
8. It takes authority to maintain freedom.
9. Human power and authority always lean toward freedom or toward tyranny. An unbeliever as a ruler with establishment principles can better maintain freedom than a believer ignorant than a reversionistic believer ignorant of establishment and constantly functioning under good and evil. Don't feel any confidence of born again believers in government.
10. Cognizance is conservatism; ignorance is liberalism, where doctrinal and establishment principles are concerned.
11. The ignorance of liberalism suffers from guilt complex through their concentrated efforts in human good intensify evil. It is often sinfulness + good which results in evil. Our freedom is dying from the self-righteousness of do-gooders. This intensifies evil.
12. The power and authority of evil...if continued unchecked, the destruction of the nation. Only the enlarged pivot can stop it.
13. When politicians try to perform human good for the greater benefit, they destroy the collective purpose of life.
14. They take the freedom and blessing from the very masses which they purport to help. Examples of the French and Russian revolutions. The more power that he has, the greater evil he will do.
15. Human good parlayed into evil becomes the abuse of power and authority.
16. Jesus Christ, the last Adam, demonstrated ...blessing from the only source, the justice of God.
17. The first Adam was disobedience to divine authority; that last Adam was obedient to divine authority, resulting in blessing.

Romans 5:19 For as through one man's disobedience [Adam's] the many [the human race] were appointed sinful [the OSN ruling human life through spiritual death], so also through one man's obedience [Christ] the many shall be appointed righteous [imputation of divine righteousness and subsequent justification].

Final Point

1. How many issue in life hang by the slender thread of power, authority, and self-discipline?
2. Disobedience to divine authority snapped this thread in the garden and man came under the condemnation of spiritual death. Man's point of reference was the love of God. There was no grace in the garden and no righteous and no justice. The age of Eden was the perfect age. No place for grace; grace only goes where man is undeserving. There is no way that the justice of God could become an issue. Man himself would have to create sin in the human race. Man had a daily contract. If man did not eat from the tree, Jesus came and taught him Bible doctrine. Man had a perpetuation of perfect environment; but not eternal life. We have something far greater than Adam.
 - a. Man's personal sin produced a sin nature and spiritual death. Our sin nature produces our personal sin.
 - b. The Age of Eden was over.
 - c. We have a new point of reference, the justice of God, and a new policy, which is grace.
 - d. We are under a total condemnation; we are undeserving; and this qualifies us for the grace package.
3. The justice of God, the source of condemnation, becomes out point of reference. Both the Adam and the woman had a sin nature and spiritual death. Authority is the issue.
4. The obedience of Christ provided us more than we lost in the garden, in time and in eternity.
5. In the garden, man functioned with the love of God as his point of contact. Free will was flawless until it violated prohibition. Everything in man was flawless until the original sin.
6. Perfect creature man.
7. With divine love as a point of reference, no sin destroyed this rapport; and no punishment restrained mankind.
8. Instead, perfect people + perfect environment = day by day contract with the love of God. This would be cancelled with the violation. Each day was created as a contract period. God came in the evening, as the end of the contract day. This is why the Jews started a new day with the evening. Genesis 2:17
9. Neither the love of God or the resultant blessing restrained our original parents and the time came when they sinned. We have something better than the garden in the encapsulation of blessing from the integrity of God.
10. At the fall, divine justice became man's point of reference administering both spiritual death and his progeny to the human race.
11. Divine justice the source of condemenation, is also the source of far greater blessing.

We do not face the same temptations that Jesus faced (like turning stones into bread).

Ladies do not like repetition unless it is a statement of your undying love.

1977 Romans

Lesson #176

176 08/19/1977 Romans 5:20a Grace factor since the Fall; doctrine of and purpose for the Mosaic Law

There was no application of the justice of God in the garden until Adam and the woman sinned. In order for there to be grace, the recipient must be completely undeserving. Grace excludes even legitimate works.

If you are given a million dollars and you have no capacity for it, then it will make you miserable. God is fair and because His justice is perfect, God always gives these blessings to those who have the capacity for them.

All doing is excluded from the justice of God. We cannot work for blessings. Spiritual growth happens through doctrine in the soul; not by works.

Romans 5:20 Now the Law entered so that trespass might abound; but where sin abounded, grace over abounded,...

Verse 20 – the grace factor since the fall. The first sentence of this verse deals with the Mosaic law as an instrument of condemnation. Remember that you have to be condemned before you are a candidate for grace. “Moreover the law entered, that the offence might abound” – “moreover” is the postpositive conjunctive particle de used as a transitional particle and translated “now.” Then the word nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], nominative singular subject, is the word “law” and is minus the definite article to emphasize the qualitative aspect of the noun. Since the law came from God the law is perfect. There is nothing wrong with the law,^[9] but like anything that comes from God it can be distorted. It is incorrectly applied.

A 12 year old kid asked Bob about artificial insemination the other night. Whether it is artificial or whether it is, what we call in the sports world, participation,...

There is nothing wrong with the Law, or with Adam or the woman at creation. All are created perfectly. So far, we have: now the Law...

The Doctrine of the Mosaic Law was originally covered back in Lesson #55; therefore, I will go back there and insert any additional notes given here in this lesson (assuming that there is a reasonable amount of congruence between the two studies).

The verb here is not “entered.” This is the aorist active indicative of pareisérchomai (παρεισέρχομαι) [pronounced par-ice-EHR-khom-ahee]. Eisérchomai (εἰσέρχομαι) [pronounced ice-ER-khom-ahee] does mean to enter but pareisérchomai (παρεισέρχομαι) [pronounced par-ice-EHR-khom-ahee] does not. It is a dramatic word which means to enter the stage in the role of a minor actor to play a minor part. So the law is a minor actor playing a minor part in life. “Now the law came in as a minor actor to play a minor role,” or we can just simply translate “Now the law came in as a side issue.” The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist, it states a present reality with the certitude of a past event. This idiom is a device for emphasis and it states what has just been realized from the preceding passage. We saw that spiritual death existed all of the way from the fall of Adam to the giving of the law at the time of Moses. All of that time personal sins were not imputed, and yet everyone was condemned because Adam’s original sin in the fall was imputed to its genetic home the old sin nature at the point of physical birth producing spiritual death with physical life. Now, from Moses to Christ, the law is there but personal sins are still not the basis for spiritual death. One sin is the basis for spiritual death and all personal sins were collected and became the judicial imputation of sin at the cross. This is a middle voice here but it is a deponent verb, hence middle in form but active in meaning. The Mosaic law produces the action of the verb, it enters history as a minor actor playing a minor role, namely the augmentation and condemnation from the imputation of Adam’s sin to its genetic home. The Mosaic law is an augmentation and that is the end of it right there as far as its role in connection with spiritual death.

“that the offence might abound” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] introduces the final clause which gives a purpose, aim, goal, objective. Plus the nominative singular subject paráptōma (παράπτωμα) [pronounced par-AP-to-mah], technical in this section for Adam’s original sin.

The verb is the aorist active subjunctive of pleonázō (πλεονάζω) [pronounced pleh-on-AHD-zo] which means to be present in abundance, to have more than is necessary. It also means, as here, to be augmented, to enlarge, to increase—“in order that the transgression of Adam might be augmented [enlarged].” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to a fact or action extended over a period of time in human history. The constative aorist gathers into one entirety this function of the Mosaic law. So from the time the law was given until the end of time it acts in a minor role. The active voice: Adam’s original sin produces the action of the verb. The subjunctive mood is a potential subjunctive which is qualified by the element of contingency. In other words, the potential depends on the proper use of the Mosaic law. Now the law came on stage as a minor actor so that the transgression of Adam might be augmented...

Paul on the Law and Greek Drama

1. Paul who is the human author under the ministry of the Holy Spirit draws an analogy from Greek drama to describe the purpose and place of the law in the plan of God.
2. The law is analogous to an actor who enters the stage to play a minor role.
3. The law reveals condemnation in terms of the existence of the old sin nature. There are trends in the sin nature; and a temptation to one person is not a temptation to another.
4. This anticipates Romans 7:7 where Paul states that he was not even aware of the existence of the old sin nature apart from the tenth commandment. He comes to understand the sin nature through the Law.

5. While the law is a minor actor on the stage of life Paul recognizes its true function and purpose--Romans 7:12 (the Law is holy, righteous and good)
6. The Mosaic law also reveals the person and work of Christ, therefore the law receives an Oscar for the best supporting actor in history.
7. The imputation of Adam's sin which produced the condemnation of spiritual death is augmented through the law's revelation of personal sin.
8. Personal sin is not a means of spiritual death but the result of spiritual death, even the manifestation of spiritual death.
9. The transgression of Adam is imputed to the human race at birth for the condemnation of spiritual death.
10. As a result of spiritual death Adam's transgression is augmented by our personal sins. Augmentation leads to cognizance.
11. These personal sins are the results of spiritual death, but not the means. The imputation of Adam's sin is what condemns us.
12. Augmentation: our personal sins are not imputed to us but are reserved for the judicial imputation to Christ on the cross.
13. Summary: Adam's transgression is our spiritual death through a real imputation at birth, but the augmentation of personal sins is our salvation through a judicial imputation at the cross.
14. The imputation of Adam's sin at birth is a real imputation because it has a home, the genetically formed old sin nature.
15. The imputation of our personal sins to Christ is judicial because Christ did not have an old sin nature, nor any personal sin.
16. Therefore the imputation and judgment of our personal sins on the cross is the basis for eternal salvation and justification.
17. The mosaic law enters history as a minor actor to distinguish between Adam's original sin as the basis for our condemnation and personal sin as the basis for our salvation. Our personal sins are not an issue with regards to spiritual death. Only one sin is imputed to us at the point of birth. It is a real imputation.
18. In other words, spiritual death is the real imputation of Adam's sin to mankind at birth while salvation is the judicial imputation of our personal sins to Christ on the cross. Inasmuch as our personal sins were never imputed to us, they were reserved. One sin, Adam's original sin, was imputed to us at the point of birth. The old sin nature is a part of the body. Jesus had no genetically inherited sin nature.
19. The Mosaic law demonstrates that we are spiritually dead at birth through defining personal sins in terms of the result of spiritual death.
20. Not only does the Mosaic law define the old sin nature as a part of spiritual death and resultant condemnation, but at the same time the Mosaic law defines personal sins as the increase or the augmentation of Adam's original sin.
21. The imputation of Adam's sin condemns but the imputation of the augmentation [all personal sins] to Christ provides salvation and resultant justification.

177 08/21/1977 Romans 5 via Romans 8:32 Common sense in government; A FORTIORI summary; two real and two judicial imputations

If God can do the greater, than He will do the less. If God can provide the greater in justification, then He is able to provide the less, which is blessing in time and in eternity. Romans 8:32 is all about a fortiori.

Romans 8:32 He who did not spare his own Son but gave him up for us all, how will he not also with him graciously give us all things? (BLB)

This answers the question, If the God is for us, who can be against us?

The perfect love between God the Father and God the Son; and this was set aside on one occasion only.

God is not the Author of sin; He cannot tempt to sin. The old sin nature takes up residence in the cells of the body.

Huper + an adjective (pas) + egô = but on behalf of all of us, He delivered Him over to the judgement. + the intensive pronoun: The God Who did not spare even His Own Son, but on behalf of all of us, He delivered Him over to judgment...

This is the build up for a fortiori logic.

Because of computers, young people are unable to think anymore.

Calvin Coolidge "My policy as president is to do nothing." The idea was for the government to do nothing and it was a great period of prosperity. He ran on that ticket and he stuck with that ticket. He promised to do nothing and he did; and nothing but prosperity came.

Everything provided for us today by politics is false.

Our softness toward communism; and hardness toward Rhodesian is why we are so mixed up today.

The next phrase is: ...how shall He not give us... This is presented in a way that indicate, I cannot believe how you are not getting this. People need to be able to apply Bible doctrine to current events; historical events. You have to be able to think straight. You have to be able to think in terms of the correct application of Bible doctrine to life. Common sense and logical thinking has almost disappeared.

The justice of God has been satisfied at the cross. Good and evil were not judged (to be reserved for Romans 6). The conclusion: If God is for us, who will be against us? If God has provided the greater at the cross, how can He not provide the less?

Bob is reminded of a guy Truman, who flew him out of Idlewild Airport in NY, saving him from going to New York. He was flying in Costa Rica and his plane exploded the day before. How shall He not with Him give with grace? All blessing is fulfilled with potential + capacity. All blessing goes through that pipeline, which is encapsulated by the integrity of God.

How shall not He, with Him, give us all things, in grace? This is the less in the a fortiori reasoning.

The Four Imputations

1. Real imputation of human life to the soul.
2. Real imputation of Adam's original sin to the sin nature.
3. Judicial imputation of all of our personal sins to Jesus Christ.
4. Judicial imputation of the righteousness of God to us when we are born again.

The God, Who did not even spare His Own Son He, Who delivered Him over to judgment, how shall He also not with Him give us all things in grace.

And if God is for us, then who will be against us? God is for us at the moment of being saved. Our blessing in time will be greater than what Adam had in the garden. We do not need the cherubs to guard the gates.

1977 Romans

Lesson #178

178 08/21/1977 Romans 5:20b Purpose of the Mosaic Law (cont.); personal sins augment Adam's original sin; concepts of grace

Going back to vv. 12–19:

Romans 5:20 Now the Law entered so that trespass might abound; but where sin abounded, grace over abounded,... (BLB)

Romans 5:20 Now the law came in as a side issue [like a minor actor to play a minor role], in order that the transgression of Adam might be augmented [enlarged]. But where personal sin increased [overflowed in great abundance], grace increased in superabundance.

Bob goes back to review and complete Paul on Greek Drama (which notes are place back in lesson #176).

The Doctrine above from Lesson #176 is gone back to in order to complete it.

The past generation of evangelists made such a big deal out of personal sins, that most Christians are confused by that issue. There is nothing which keeps us from Christ except for negative volition. It is a false issue to introduce the renunciation of sin to salvation; or how giving up sins as a part of salvation. This is not a part of God's plan at salvation. You grow out of sin.

I think one of the problems with the notes is, Bob went back to lesson #176 from #178.

Personal sins are an augmentation; but no personal sin is greater than the grace of God. Every personal sin has already been judged when Christ was judged.

Romans 5:20 Now the Law entered so that trespass might abound; but where sin abounded, grace overabounded,...

“But where sin abounded” – the adverb of place, hou (οὗ) [pronounced hoo] used to indicate a circumstance, not an actual place. Plus the postpositive conjunctive particle de which sets up a contrast between the increase of Adam's sin through personal sins or the augmentation and the super increase of grace. In other words, grace is always greater than any historical augmentation spiritual death. Spiritual death occurs at birth; personal sins are merely a manifestation of spiritual death, an augmentation. No augmentation of personal sins is ever greater than the grace of God. Then comes a nominative singular subject hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], used here for personal sin in contrast to paráptōma (παράπτωμα) [pronounced par-AP-to-mah], Adam's original sin. “But where personal sin” is a better translation; “abounded” – the verb of augmentation, the aorist active indicative of pleonázō (πλεονάζω) [pronounced pleh-on-AHD-zo], used here to connote the increase of personal sins through the sovereignty of the old sin nature in life. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the imputation of Adam's sin to the old sin nature at birth, resulting in spiritual death, but it regards it here from the viewpoint of its existing results—personal sins. The active voice: personal sin produces the action of the verb by increasing as history continues. The indicative mood is declarative which views the action of the verb from the viewpoint of historical reality, the increase of personal sins throughout human history. Translation: “But where personal sin increased [overflowed in great abundance], grace did much more abound.”

“grace did much more abound” – nominative singular subject with the definite article, hē (ἡ) [pronounced hey] charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic]. The definite article is used here to indicate a principle familiar to the readers. Plus the aorist active indicative of the verb hyperperisseúō (ὑπερπερισεύω) [pronounced hoop-ehr-per-is-SYOO-oh] [hupér (ὑπέρ) [pronounced hoop-AIR] = over and above; pleonázō (πλεονάζω) [pronounced pleh-on-AHD-zo] = increase] which means to increase in greater abundance, to superabound—“grace increased in superabundance.”

Grace is always ahead of personal sin. The aorist tense is the culminative aorist, it views the superabundant supply of grace in its entirety but emphasizes it from the viewpoint of existing results, namely the imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross resulting in salvation. The active voice: grace produces the action of the verb in superabounding or increasing in superabundance. This is one reason that Bob uses the term supergrace as a name for spiritual maturity.

There are 3 a fortiori blessings which all add up to a principle related to blessing in time and blessing in eternity. If the justice of God provides the greater in the judicial imputation to the sins on the cross, then God can provide blessing in time. If the justice of God provided the greater in justification, it follows that will not withhold the less.

If the justice of God provided the great, blessings to us in time; He will not withhold the permanent blessings in eternity. These blessings in time are parlayed into something far greater in eternity.

Romans 5:20 Now the law came in as a side issue [a minor actor to play a minor role], in order that the transgression of Adam might be augmented [enlarged]. But where personal sin increased [overflowed in great abundance], grace increased in superabundance.

Analysis

1. Personal sin is the augmentation of spiritual death.
2. Spiritual death is the combination of Adam's original sin imputed to its genetic home, the old sin nature.
3. The old sin nature becomes the sovereign of human life ruling through spiritual death.
4. One of the three trends of the old sin nature is personal sin, in all three categories.
5. The law came in as a minor actor to define personal sin as an augmentation to spiritual death. Adam's personal sin is multiplied many times in history through the function of the old sin nature.
6. But while Adam's original sin has been parlayed into many personal sins they are more than covered by grace.
7. This is because personal sin was never imputed to the sinner. Instead, personal sin was imputed to Christ on the cross.
8. The judicial imputation of personal sins to Christ on the cross indicates that the increase of sins is more than matched by the super-increase of grace.
9. Man cannot create a problem which God cannot solve/has not solved. In eternity past, grace solved all of the problems.
10. The justice of God which condemns us is the same justice of God which blesses us.
11. The grace factor is the difference. Man's volition brought sin but God's sovereignty brought grace.
12. The reality of sin means the greater reality of grace. God's grace is greater than sin.

We need to go back and check out some principles of grace.

Grace is all that the justice of God is free to do for man on the basis of the saving work of Christ on the cross. Because of the complexities of the character of God, God's character must be consistent and uncompromised in blessing mankind.

One of the more basic doctrines of grace was found. With less than 15 minutes remaining, Bob will barely cover a few points.

The Doctrine of Grace

The plan of God, operation grace, was provided for man before man was created. Therefore man cannot earn and cannot deserve this grace. Under grace God does the work and man is only the beneficiary. Under supergrace God does the pursuing and man does the benefitting.

1. Grace is all that God is free to do for man on the basis of the cross. God is free to express His love through grace and He does this without jeopardizing His essence. No one can truly give apart from freedom and God gives out of total freedom because of the cross to us. Grace is the work and the plan of God on behalf of man beginning at the cross. It is God's plan and God's policy for mankind. It is a plan, a policy, a function, a mechanic, a divine modus operandi, a divine modus vivendi.
2. Under the principle of concept grace depends upon the essence of God, therefore grace depends on who and what God is. Grace is what God can do for man and still be consistent with His own character.
 - a. The Marshall Plan is total divorcement of common sense. It is weird that we would give billions of dollars and millions of bushels of wheat to countries which hate us.
 - b. How many times have you been gracious to a person and they have turned against you?
 - c. God provided Satan when a great many benefits and Satan turned against God. Generosity is not reciprocal.
 - d. This is why the justice of God is our point of reference and our source of all blessing. The justice of God is the guardian of all divine attributes.
3. No attribute of God's can be compromised when blessing man.
4. Because of the Lord's propitiatory work on the cross, God the Father is free to bless man. The grace pipe keeps out man's legalism.
5. God is free to express His love in the plan of grace.
6. Grace therefore is the policy of the integrity of God in blessing the believer.
7. Grace is the specific policy of the justice of God in blessing the mature believer.
8. Justice is the point of reference; and grace is the policy by which justice blesses the believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. Points #3–8 did not match the points below.
9. The believer must sort out the difference between grace and legalism. Legalism is man's ability and works intruding upon the plan of God. Man's works cannot coexist with God's works. Such an implied coexistence is blasphemy. Grace excludes human works.
10. Grace, sanctification, and the angelic conflict all meet in the plan of God. The greatest thing God can do for a believer is to make him exactly like His Son, Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is the only celebrity of the Church Age. Ultimately it is the objective of God's plan to make everyone like His Son. Man was created to, resolve the angelic conflict and since man was given free will it is inevitable that he would fail. Adam through his free will sinned. Jesus Christ had to become a human being and not an angel in order to resolve the angelic conflict - Hebrews 2:14-16. In other words, the first Adam lost the victory through the fall and the last Adam wins the victory through the cross - Colossians 2:14. Grace found a way to take man created inferior to angels and make him superior, and this is accomplished in all three stages of the plan of God for mankind.

- a. Stage one is positional sanctification in which the believer enters into union with the glorified Jesus Christ. Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father, this is an application of current positional truth. Every believer is in union with the Lord Jesus Christ therefore believers are positionally higher than angels. When Christ was seated at the right hand of the Father in His humanity He is higher than angels, we are in union with the God-Man, Jesus Christ, and we are now positionally superior to angels.
 - b. Stage two is our life on this earth and under the construction of the edification complex of the soul and the entrance into the supergrace life it is possible for our experience to represent in an effective way what was provided for us at the point of salvation. In other words, the supergrace life is the only normal Christian life which expresses the priesthood of the believer. Believers who do not grow up never live the normal Christian life. So stage two is designed through grace whereby God can take a believer living in the devil's world in the intensified stage of the angelic conflict and make it possible for this individual to adequately represent the Lord Jesus Christ.
 - c. Stage three is comparable to phase three in which the believer receives a resurrection body exactly like that of the Son of God, minus the old sin nature, minus human good. As a result he is exactly like the Son of God fulfilling Philippians 3:21, and this is the ultimate.
11. Every believer has tasted the grace of God at least once - Hebrews 6:4; 1Peter 2:3. At the moment of salvation every believer receives from God 36 things and he never loses these things. This grace package of salvation cannot be cancelled or destroyed either by God Himself, by angels, or by mankind. Among the 36 things received by grace at salvation we have the principle of propitiation in 1John 2:2 whereby the believer regardless of spiritual status is always under maximum love from God. But grace can only find a place to lodge where there is capacity for grace and capacity for grace only comes through the supergrace life.
 12. The occupational hazard for believers is disorientation to grace in the field of reversionism. Under these conditions, in Galatians 5:4, reversionism is called "falling from grace," and in Hebrews 12:15 it is called "missing grace." So reversionism is a great danger after one has erected and EDIFICATION COMPLEX STRUCTURE.
 13. The divine attitude in grace: God is constantly waiting to pour out His grace to every believer in phase two - Isaiah 30:18,19.
 14. Grace in phase two is found in such passages as Psalm 103:8-12; Romans 3:23,24; 4:4; 5:20; Ephesians 2:8,9; Hebrews 2:9.
 15. Grace in phase two is the believer in time.

- a. The prayer of the supergrace life - Hebrews 4:16. You will use prayer to the maximum once you enter the supergrace life.
 - b. Grace is suffering - 2 Corinthians 12:9,10. Supergrace suffering is designed for greatest possible blessing.
 - c. Grace in growth - 2Peter 3:18.
 - d. Grace in stability in phase two - 1Peter 5:12; Hebrews 13:9.
 - e. Grace as the modus vivendi - 2 Corinthians 1:2; Hebrews 12:28.
 - f. Grace in the production of divine good - 1 Corinthians 15:10; 2 Corinthians 6:1.
16. Grace and giving - 2 Corinthians 8:9; Philippians 4:14-18. Grace orientation is the bona fide motivation for the thought pattern involved in giving.
17. Grace in suffering - 2 Corinthians 12:7-10.
18. Some axioms concerning grace.
- a. God is perfect; His plan is perfect.
 - b. A perfect plan can only originate and function from a perfect God.
 - c. If man can do anything meritorious in the plan of God it is no longer perfect.
 - d. A plan is no stronger than its weakest link. For this reason grace excludes all human merit, all human ability. Grace also excludes any form of human good.
 - e. Legalism and human good is always the enemy of grace.
 - f. Therefore works of human righteousness have no place in the plan of God.
 - g. All human good is associated with the greatest mental attitude sin of pride. Reversionism is characterised by pride, jealousy, and other mental attitude sins.
19. There are four areas of pride which reject God's grace. This explains Satan's pride, human pride, why pride is the worst and most devastating of mental attitude sins.
- a. The pride of the believer who rejects the doctrine of eternal security. To say that you can commit a sin that is greater than the plan of God is blasphemous. Hebrews 12:28.
 - b. The pride of the believer who succumbs to pressure and adversity. He thinks his pressure and suffering is greater than the grace provision of God - 2 Corinthians 12:8-10.
 - c. The pride of pseudo spirituality, the believer who thinks his human systems of spirituality are greater than the ministry of God the Holy Spirit. These systems usually include some system of personality imitation, observation of taboos, confusing the means and the result, assuming that witnessing to 10 people a day is the filling of the Spirit whereas in reality the filling of the Spirit results in effective witnessing, relativity which says in affect "My sins are more refined than your sin, therefore when I compare myself with you I'm spiritual and you are carnal," the operation of the holy roller who thinks that their pseudo tongues somehow has spiritual content.

d. The pride of the believer in emotional revolt of the soul who assumes that his feelings and his emotions and his experiences are more important than Bible doctrine - 2 Corinthians 6:11,12.

20. Grace is related to the divine assets of John 1:12,16,17; 1 Corinthians 1:4,5; Ephesians 1:6,7.
21. The principle of supergrace is taught in James 4:6 were it is called "greater grace."
 - a. The supergrace of the Lord Jesus Christ - John 1:14,16,17.
 - b. The supergrace of the believer in phase two - Philippians 4; James 4; Ephesians 3:19,20, 2 Corinthians 12:8-10.
22. Notice a progression of grace in our context. In Ephesians 1:6 we have "his grace." In verse 7, "the riches of his grace." In 2:7, "the exceeding riches of his grace." There is a principle involved here. Once grace starts pursuing you you go from grace to the riches of His grace to the exceeding riches of His grace.

The translation is repeated.

1977 Romans

Lesson #179

179 08/22/1977 Romans 5:21a Doctrine of the old sin nature (revised); Jesus Christ minus an old sin nature and imputation of Adam's sin

Romans 7:20 Now the Law came in as a side issue (as a minor actor playing a minor role) in order that the original sin of Adam might be augmented, but, where personal sin increased (augmentation from the old sin nature), the grace of God in super abundance.

The Triumph of the Grace Factor

1. Adam's original sin imputed to man's sin nature.
2. Spiritual death is the combination of these two things. Human life is imputed to the human soul; and the life resides in the soul forever. The life will always be there. At the same time, Abomination of Desolation is imputed to its home.
3. The justice of God condemns man at birth due to the presence of Adam's original sin. This condemnation is necessary for us to be the subjects of grace.
- 4.
- 5.
6. Spiritual death occurs first, it occurs at birth.
7. Man's personal sins occur after spiritual death.
8. Two rulerships will be mentioned in this verse. The rulership of the old sin nature of human life ruling through spiritual death. The rulership of grace through the imputation of divine righteousness to those who possess eternal life.

Hamartia = a personal sin or Adam's trend. The definition suggests that it is a category of sin separate from all other categories. In order that, just as the sin nature...

Verse 21 – the triumphs of the grace factor. This verse is set up with a protasis and an apodosis. In the protasis we have the rulership of the old sin nature; in the apodosis we have the rulership of grace. “That as sin hath reigned unto death” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] introduces a final clause used to indicate divine purpose. God’s purpose, plan, goal is stated, i.e. the communication of the temporal objective of the justice of God toward the believer is stated in the comparative sentence. Then the comparative conjunction hôsper (ὥσπερ) [pronounced HOO-sper] introduces the protasis. A comparative clause introduces analogous thought for the purpose of elucidating or emphasizing the thought expressed in the principle clause. The principle clause is the last sentence of the previous verse. This comparative clause is designed to emphasize the triumph of the grace factor as the policy of the justice of God. Next is the nominative singular subject hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] for the old sin nature or Adam’s trend, plus the generic use of the definite article which comprehends the old sin nature as a category and separates it from all other categories of sin, such as personal sins or Adam’s original sin. So this begins, “In order that just as the sin nature.”

Bob changes things up for the Doctrine of the Sin Nature in lesson #88. Additional notes are found there. This appears to be a Frankenstein doctrine.

180 08/23/1977 Romans 5:21 Doctrine of the old sin nature (revised and cont.); weaknesses; TV journalists anti-business

Bob is going to a football reunion, some guys whom he has not seen for 40 years.

Excellent articles in the TV Guide. Journalism and business; scorpions in a bottle by Pat Buchanan. Network newsmen are ignorant of businesses. It is an axiom to cover the CEOs with indictments, in the courts or in public opinion. 60% have a negative opinion of businesses; and more think negatively about the oil companies. Our oil companies and automobile companies are generally very well run and if left alone, our economy would be 1000% improvement in our economy. The various foundations came from the profits of large companies.

When the trend toward good is intensified, there is more evil.

Lesson #181

181 08/24/1977 Romans 5:21b–6 (Intro.) Rulership of grace through the imputation of +R; Lordship of Jesus Christ; integrity of God

Going all the way back to Romans 5:1

Romans 5:21 ...so that, just as sin reigned in death, so also grace might reign through righteousness, unto eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. (BLB)

Then the aorist active indicative of the verb basileúō (βασιλεύω) [pronounced bas-il-YOO-oh], meaning to rule or to reign. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the imputation of Adam's sin to its genetic home, the old sin nature at birth and resultant spiritual death in its entirety. The active voice: the old sin nature produces the action of the verb by ruling human life through spiritual death. The indicative mood is declarative viewing the action of the verb from the viewpoint of reality. The old sin nature is the reality as the ruler of human life. The means by which the OSN rules: en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative singular of the definite article and the locative singular of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], used here for spiritual death—"That just as the sin nature[10] has ruled in the sphere of spiritual death."

Now the apodosis: "even so might grace reign through righteousness" begins with the adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] which introduces the apodosis of comparison, plus the adjunctive kai, "also," and translated "so also." Then the nominative subject charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-iç]—"grace," plus the subject with the generic use of the definite article which contemplates grace as a category separate from all other categories of modus operandi. With this we supply a genitive "of God." Plus the aorist active subjunctive of basíliсса (βασίλισσα) [pronounced bahs-IHL-ihs-SAH]. This is a constative aorist, it gathers into one entirety the rule of the grace of God instead of the rule of the old sin nature in the life of a mature believer. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God substitutes the rule of the old sin nature, and the substitution is the grace of God. Adam's sin nature ruled through spiritual death but the grace of God rules through the imputation of God's righteousness and a result from that which is maturity. All believers have the imputed righteousness of God but few believers crack the maturity barrier. Note that both rulerships come through imputation. The active voice of the verb: grace produces the action of the verb, beginning with the primary potential for blessing which is the imputation of divine righteousness. The subjunctive mood is potential, it implies a future reference—maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The fulfillment of the potential depends on the individual believer's attitude toward Bible doctrine—"so also the grace of God might rule." This depends upon your volition. If you are negative, then the grace of God will sustain you, but it will not rule you in the spiritual life. There is only one way to grow spiritually. You do not grow by production.

"through righteousness" – dia plus the genitive singular of dikaioσύνη (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay], the judicial imputation of divine righteousness to the believer at salvation. Imputed righteousness is the recipient of grace blessing.

"unto eternal life" – incorrect. This is eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular from the adjective aiōnios (αἰώνιος) [pronounced ahēe-OH-nee-oss] and zōē (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY], "eternal life," but eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative means "because of." When God gives us something in time He intends for it to be permanent and therefore to be carried over into eternity. The person who cracks the maturity barrier in time has phenomenal blessing in time, but he has even greater blessing from that in eternity. Blessing in time for the mature believer is parlayed into blessing in eternity for that same mature believer. Imputed righteousness is the potential, and the potential has to be realized. The only way that the potential can be realized is to give something to believers at salvation that was never given in the garden, something that makes it permanent: eternal life. There was no eternal life in the garden or even the potentiality of eternal life.

There are some fundies who believe that the original sin was sex; but the two people had perfect environment, which included the perfect relationship, mentally, spiritually, and physically.

Adam and the woman made their first option for grace by believing in the Lord.

Most people are straining; they are agonizing their way through life. The rulership of grace in our life does not begin until we crack the maturity barrier. Things might get tough before we get there.

“by Jesus Christ our Lord” – dia plus the genitive of Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] and egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]. Dia plus the genitive of Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] means “through Jesus Christ.” However, the genitive of kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] and the genitive of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] are possessive genitives—“our Lord.” He is Lord the moment a person believes in Christ—“our Lord,” no matter who that believer is. Egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] is genitive plural—all believers; anyone who has the imputation of divine righteousness also has the Lordship of Jesus Christ.

There used to be these camps in Texas, and people got ticks and bad doctrine. They kept saying, “If Lord is not Lord of all, then He is not Lord at all.” Christ is our Lord, no matter what we think. You are better off having a pizza (Bob has never had one before).

Napoleon and a guard. The guard was asleep and Napoleon took his musket and stood guard for him for a little time. When he woke up, Napoleon jabbed him a little, and make him get down on his hands and knees and eat dung (otherwise he would face a firing squad). Then Napoleon forgave him and gave him his musket and then he made Napoleon get down and eat dung (not realizing that this was really Napoleon). Napoleon let him live anyway and he was a very old man. He was asked if he had ever met Napoleon and he said, “Yes, in fact, we dined together.”

Romans 5:21 ...so that, just as sin reigned in death, so also grace might reign through righteousness, unto eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. (BLB)

Romans 5:21 But just as the sin nature has ruled in the sphere of spiritual death, so also the grace of God might rule through imputed righteousness because of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Principle

1. The Lordship of Christ is accomplished through two judicial imputations: the imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross and the imputation of God's righteousness at salvation.
2. Since Christ is the object of the first judicial imputation it follows that Christ is the means of receiving the second judicial imputation, i.e. righteousness.
3. Through the imputation of Adam's sin to its genetically formed home, the OSN, man is spiritually dead. This is a real imputation in contrast to a judicial one. Through the imputation of these sins to Christ on the cross we not only receive God's righteousness and eternal life but He is Lord. There is no decision that settles it all.

Romans 5:21 But just as the sin nature has ruled in the sphere of spiritual death, so also the grace of God might rule through imputed righteousness because of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Some Final Points

1. The old sin nature is the sovereign of human life ruling through spiritual death.
2. The old sin nature is both material and immaterial. The latter is material which we cannot define. We call it spirit not understanding how it is structured.
3. The material part of the sin nature is the contamination of all human cells.
4. The immaterial part is the function of its trends toward sin, good and evil.
5. At the moment of salvation adjustment to the justice of God, there is the potentiality of grace becoming the sovereign of human life.
6. There is the potentiality therefore of glorifying God.
7. Spiritual death provides a palace for the old sin nature to rule human life. Eternal life provides a new palace for grace to rule human life.
8. The imputation of divine righteousness is the primary potential; when implemented by maximum doctrine in the soul, results in maximum blessings from the justice of God.
9. Furthermore, a grace operation which glorifies God the Father and God the Son in time.

The imputation of Adam's sin sets up the rule of the sin nature over us in life. No doctrine means the grace of God will not rule us. Grace replaces the imputation of cursing with the imputation of blessing.

Final Points

1. Grace ruling through righteousness is a reference to the pipeline of blessing prepared at salvation adjustment to the justice of God.
2. Man's point of reference is the justice of God and grace is the policy of the justice of God in blessing mankind.
3. Justice is the point of reference for mankind. Grace is the policy of the justice of God;

4. This blessing is mechanically enculsated in the integrity of God.
5. On one end of the pipeline is the justice of God and the righteousness of God.
6. Just as ruling thorough spiritual death; potential
7. Four imputations make it possible for the grace of God to rule in the life of the believer.
8. Two real imputations: human life to the human soul and Adam's sin to its home, the old sin nature. The soul is formed by God.
9. The imputation of Adam's sin to his sin nature...condemnation from the justice of God. The condemnation activates the grace of God. Condemnation is the key to us having something greater.
10. Condemnation must precede justification.
11. One judicial imputation takes place on the cross, the imputation of our personal sins to Jesus Christ.
12. When anyone believes in the Lord Jesus Christ, the justice of God sets up the potentiality for grace blessing.
13. The potential is the righteousness of God in our souls; the reality is blessing in time, which glorifies God.

We have a summary of doctrines necessary to understand chapter six.

Preparation for Romans 6:

1. The integrity of God is the part of God's essence known as holiness. Holiness infinitive construct composed of righteousness and justice.
2. Justice in the integrity of God is man's point of reference after the fall and throughout all human history.
3. Prior to the fall in the Garden of Eden, the point of reference was the love of God. Two perfect persons + perfect environment.
4. Man's point of reference was love, so there is no justice or righteousness and no grace.
5. However, the warning the justice is around the corner was found in Genesis 2:14.

6. However, in the integrity of God, righteousness demands righteousness and justice demands justice.
7. In righteousness, the divine love for holiness for the integrity of God is revealed. In justice, the divine hatred for sin, human good and evil is revealed.
8. What righteousness demands, justice executes. Righteousness rejects man's sinfulness, man's human good and man's evil. Justice condemns those things.
9. At the cross, the personal sins were imputed to a perfect Jesus Christ and judged by the justice of God.
10. Therefore, the integrity of God supercedes the love of God blessing us...
11. The imputation of divine righteousness after salvation, is the blessing from the integrity of God.
12. Justice can only bless where perfect righteousness exists.
13. Self-righteousness is excluded from any phase of the plan of God.
14. Imputed divine righteousness and self-righteousness are mutually exclusive.
15. Self-righteousness brings cursing from the jog while imputed righteousness is the source for blessing.
16. The Mosaic Law produces a self-righteousness which is hostile and antagonistic to the imputed righteousness of it.
17. The true purpose of the Mosaic Law is not to produce self-righteousness, but to condemn man.
18. The only benefit that can come from God comes through the adjustment to the justice of God.

Lesson #182

182 08/28/1977 Romans 6 (Intro.) Concepts and principles related to the integrity of God and man; only God can glorify God

Bob has returned from the gathering of the athletes.

Adam and the woman in the garden, the warning of justice in Genesis 2:14. The integrity of God superseded the love of God. Justice can only bless where perfect righteousness exists. Self-righteousness brings cursing from the justice of God.

Chapter 6

A Doctrine Bob Thought We Covered but Did Not

1. The failure of certain ones in the human race does not abrogate the integrity of God. Past failures of anyone or our own failure.
2. God's integrity is not cancelled because some people do not believe in Him.
3. God's integrity is not cancelled because some believers fail to utilize logistical grace.
4. What mankind lacks never cancels God's integrity. God never lowers Himself to the level of any man.

5. Salvation adjustment to the justice of God results in salvation and imputed righteousness; but salvation maladjustment to the justice of God results in condemnation. Any system of salvation by works. This is the principle of grace.
6. The justice of God is source of blessing and cursing but the justice of God is never neutral doing nothing.
7. Therefore, whether justification or condemnation, the integrity of God is maintained. Glorification of God demands the maintenance of the integrity of God.
8. The function of the justice of God maintains the integrity of God.
9. Since God is infinite, eternal, invisible and incomprehensible, it is necessary for mankind to reveal Himself to mankind. He does this only through Bible doctrine. Knowledge of doctrine versus ignorance of doctrine is the fundamental issue of life.
10. The content of the Bible reveals and vindicates the integrity of God. Obviously it never vindicates people or human function. Grace is always the policy of the justice of God.
11. Through comprehension of doctrine, we learn of the integrity of God and we learn to adjust to the justice of God. Salvation is a one-time decision; but rebound is periodic; and the intake of Bible doctrine is also periodic.
12. Maintaining maturity adjustment to the Justice of God through gap.
13. Man by man's efforts seeks to acquire human integrity by activity. This maligns God and insults grace. There is establishment integrity. All education requires discipline and authority. Without authority in teaching, the kids do not learn.

Chuck Older was there at that athletic reunion, and he was the judge for the Manson case. He learned great integrity. "Charles Herman Older (September 29, 1917 - June 17, 2006) was an American who was the third highest scoring ace of the American Volunteer Group (the "Flying Tigers") and later the judge in the Charles Manson murder trial. Hanford, California, U.S. West Los Angeles, California, U.S."

Bob was not swatted as hard as the others as he was going to get it from his father later (and sometimes at the school). About half of Bob's class had genius IQs and they kept testing and retesting them to figure out what happened.

They ostracized or beat up anyone who smoked pot. They regulated themselves on this kind of thing. Bob smoked a half a pack of his father's murads (Turkish cigarettes) and decided that he did not like the feeling. No one had long hair. They all had short hair.

The Integrity of God Principles

1. The integrity of God is infinite, absolute and eternal and part of His perfect essence.
2. The integrity of God is not the absence of sin or evil, and the sum total of His perfection; the perfection of His attributes.
3. The integrity of God is not maintained by His will or His sovereignty. It is His immutable self. Man has to make decisions for or against integrity. People can have integrity today and lose it by tomorrow. Integrity in the human race is maintained by decision. God never has to make a decision about being honest or dishonest; or righteous or unrighteous. We can have integrity today; but tomorrow we don't. We might not accept a bribe on one day, but then accept one the next. We are unstable as creatures; but God cannot be unstable. Therein lies our security.

4. The integrity of God is not maintained by the self-righteousness of man. "You have dishonored the Lord." But the Lord is not subject to dishonor. You can dishonor yourself but not God. This does not sweep away morality. This idea that you fail means that God fails. We are arrogant if we think that we can dishonor God.
5. It is blasphemous to assume that self-righteousness or unrighteousness promotes divine integrity. We can promote soap and a certain kind of automobile or ourselves, but we cannot promote God.
6. Divine righteousness totally rejects man's self-righteousness.
7. God in grace provided all that His integrity demands of the human race. That comes in the 4 imputations. Most pastors teach one-shot things; but you cannot do that where there is verse-by-verse and line by line teaching. Romans is the most important section of the Word of God.
8. Consequently, there is nothing that man can do to destroy or compromise the integrity of God. In fact, every time we get out of line, God disciplines us. The reversionistic believer gets warning discipline; then intensive discipline and then dying discipline.
9. The essence of God includes His integrity and this integrity stands eternally without help from mankind. God does not need our help; we need His.
10. God does not need our help, we need His help. God does not need our righteousness; we need His righteousness.
11. Imputed righteousness at salvation is the beginning of blessings from the justice of God. Once we have His righteousness we have a basis for blessings.
12. Imputed righteousness is where God begins to share His integrity with mankind.
13. God found a way to bless mankind without compromising His essence.
14. God did not do this from human sentimentality or emotion; and God is not emotionally attracted to good personalities. This is not prominent in Berachah Church where maintained their stinking personalities.
15. Man often concludes that his self-righteousness pleases God; but all of our righteousnesses are as filthy rags to God.
16. Man's sinfulness and man's self-righteousness does not advance the glory or plan of God.

Example of human integrity: Bob's grandfather cofounded Lincoln's Life Insurance, and in order to maintain the company, he and the cofounder had to put up 2 million each when the Great Depression hit. He never failed to meet a payroll. Everyone who retired from that company retired with a great pension. There were no laws concerning this.

Some people had integrity during the depression; some killed themselves if they could not pay; and others made the promise to pay back by the end of life. It is all about volition.

Only Divine Integrity Glorifies God

1. Man in grace can only glorify God with what God has given him.
2. God's authority is based upon His authority. All authority in life is based upon integrity and the malfunction of authority in life reveals a lack of integrity. Authority must be established on the basis of integrity. Integrity knows when to punish and when not to. All men who have used their integrity properly apply their authority correctly.
3. Maladjustment to the justice of God means
- 4.
5. No nation can possess freedom, prosperity from the integrity of God.
6. Social, economic and political reform apart from the integrity of God is useless. You cannot make people nice to each other.
7. This intensifies the problem with degeneration, chaos, revolution, historical catastrophe.
8. Political and theological liberalism seek reform apart from the integrity of God. Nothing is permanent apart from the integrity of God.

Douglas MacArthur was one of those. He saved Australia, who wanted to surrender to the Japs in War2. Robt E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson both had great integrity. Jackson had deserters shot. He was heavily disliked as a professor at VMI. Integrity made him tick.

Everything is life is integrity. Bob and his friends enjoyed talking about their favorite teachers and the best ones always had integrity.

Bob remembers a youth from Berachah who went off on drugs. Bob braced him in the teen class.

The brain is a material thing; but behind it is an immaterial thing, the soul. Your whole concept of discipline and authority from youth.

Individuality is expressed after you accept authority. No maladjusted soldier ever becomes a great soldier.

We first must learn how to do it God's way.

1977 Romans

Lesson #183

183 08/28/1977 Romans 6:1 Integrity of God is not arbitrary; four imputations; results of real imputations

The Mosaic Law is incapable of making man righteous before the integrity of God. Therefore, the Law cannot justify; only the justice of God can justify. Justification is a judicial act or verdict from the justice of God recognizing the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation. Justification recognizes this divine righteousness and vindicates the one who possesses it. Justification is not forgiveness. Forgiveness is subtraction; and justification adds righteousness. Justification is the basis for the a fortiori blessings from the justice of God. If the justice of God can provide the greater, then God can provide the less, which would be blessings; and that means that God would allow for blessing in eternity.

The four imputations.

No bacteria until after the flood. That caused the deterioration of cells more quickly.

Spiritual death is not some sin or series of sins that we commit; it is Adam's original sin imputed to our sin nature. The old sin nature is an ex-husband. He is still around; but she, in the meantime, has married her ideal man. When this takes place, the first husband is dead to the woman.

Outline: Four Paragraphs.

1. A rhetorical question about the old sin nature, verse 1.
2. The answer, verses 2-14.
3. A question about personal sin, verse 15.
4. The answer, verses 16-23, the potentiality of carnality and reversionism.

Dead to Sin, Alive to God

Romans 6:1 What then will we say? Shall we continue in sin that grace may abound?
(BLB)

Verse 1 - "What then shall we say?" The nominative neuter singular from the interrogative pronoun tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç], plus the postpositive inferential conjunctive oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon], a particle which is used in the formula question, a question which occurs seven times in Romans-3:5; 4:1; 6:1; 7:7; 8:31; 9;14, 30. So far we have "Therefore what." Then the future active indicative of the verb légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh]. The future tense is a deliberative future, used for a question of uncertainty is raised or expressed. Here we have a rhetorical question taking the place of a direct assertion. The rhetorical question here is going to introduce a false conclusion so as to set up what is really true.

Bob does not want us to feel talked down to here; he wants us to feel totally stupid.

These rhetorical questions are set up as a formula. The bluff of the pseudo-intellectual. Paul is dealing here with the Jewish segment of the Roman church. He will ask, what conclusion can we come to? And then he will come to a false conclusion.

There is the final verse of the last chapter:

Romans 5:21 But just as the sin nature has ruled in the sphere of spiritual death, so also the grace of God might rule through imputed righteousness because of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

“Shall we continue in sin” – the present active subjunctive from the verb epiménō (ἐπιμένω) [pronounced ep-ee-MEHN-oh] means to continue, to stay, to remain, to persist in. We translate: “Are we to continue.” The present tense of duration denotes what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. Used with the subjunctive it will have a slightly different meaning. The active voice: mankind produces the action of the verb in remaining under the sovereignty of the old sin nature after salvation. The subjunctive mood is the deliberative subjunctive used in debater’s technique for a rhetorical question which states an erroneous conclusion/assumption in the form of a question. This is so that the question can be refuted and the false doctrine can be replaced by true and accurate doctrine. There is also the locative of sphere from the noun hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] in the singular which refers to Adam’s original sin, the old sin nature, and also the principle of personal sin. In the plural it refers to actual personal sins. Here it refers to the old sin nature or Adam’s trend. With this is the locative singular of the definite article used here generically to refer to the old sin nature’s rulership of human life through spiritual death. “Are we to continue in the sovereignty of the sin nature?”

“that grace may abound” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] introduces a final clause/purpose. Plus the subject, the nominative singular of charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic]—“grace” with the definite article to denote a previous reference. The previous reference being Romans 5:20,21 which has been distorted into a false conclusion by some. Plus the aorist active subjunctive of pleonázō (πλεονάζω) [pronounced pleh-on-AHD-zo] which means to abound, to increase, to augment—“in order that the grace of God might increase.” The constative aorist tense is used for a fact or action extended over a period of time but gathered up into one entirety. It gathers up into one entirety the concept of Romans 5:20, 21 now deliberately distorted to anticipate the false conclusion. The active voice: grace allegedly produces the action of the verb. Since this is a false conclusion it is an allegation rather than a fact. The subjunctive mood is the potential subjunctive for an allegation rather than a fact.

Romans 6:1 Therefore what are we to conclude? Are we to continue in the sovereignty of the sin nature in order that the grace of God might increase?

Two questions are set up by Paul to take the people to a false conclusion, which he will correct. The false conclusion is set up as debater’s technique. This takes into account that there are some kooks in the audience. There are a limited number of places where kooks can go. Anyone can go into a church. Kooks can be embarrassing to people who are ambitious. The false conclusion occurs in the mind of the believers who relate grace to personal sin rather than to the blessing of God. Grace belongs to the justice of God. Grace provides mankind more than what is lost in the garden. What man has recovered was noted in the two a fortioris. What the love of God could not do for man, the justice of God can do. Man has more after the fall than Adam possessed in the garden. If the justice of God can provide righteousness for us, then God will not withhold the lesser, blessings in time. Same for blessings in eternity.

All local churches over 5 people have at least one kook. As long as they do not cause problems, they can stay. Otherwise, Bob can suggest another church.

Following a logical argument is beyond their ability to get. They are disoriented to life. A kook is someone who just cannot get it. There are only about ten kooks in Berachah. He never looks for them, but they look for him.

There were quite a number of kooks at the Roman church. Paul anticipates that they will draw false conclusions. They relate grace to the old sin nature. How can you do this? It is easy if you are not following the argument and the line of reasoning. Grace belongs with the justice of God; it does not belong to the sin nature. Grace is the policy of the justice of God in blessing mankind.

Since the fall of man, the grace of God has been the policy of God; and the justice of God is our point of reference with God.

1977 Romans

Lesson #184

184 08/29/1977 Romans 6:1 Principles; abrogation of the rule of the old sin nature; sin not the source of the increase of grace

June 1977 of the Freeman (a magazine?). Article: How did we lose our freedom? Federal and state regulations has cut our freedom. Unfortunately, our courts have backed away from protecting our freedoms. The advancement of the public welfare is what is often presented. Final responsibility for our freedom lies with the courts. Our freedoms have been left to the elected representatives responding to special interests.

Romans 6:1 Therefore what are we to conclude? Are we to continue in the sovereignty of the sin nature in order that the grace of God might increase?

A set of notes referred back to.

Grace Is Not Sponsored by the Sin Nature

1. Bible doctrine corrects sketchy thinking. Believers who heard the teaching of the previous chapter. If grace counteracts sin, grace is not the source of grace.
2. After the sin nature and personal sin have disappeared, grace will still be around.
3. Grace does not require the sponsorship of sin.
4. Through Adam's fall, the old sin nature with its trends toward sin, good and evil, came into existence.
5. Man and woman are both carriers of the sin nature, but only the man perpetuates it.
6. This is accomplished through the 23 males chromosomes which

7. The genetical formulation of the old sin nature and producing the body of corruption is the basis for imputation of Adam's original sin in birth.
8. At birth, Adam's original sin is combined with the old sin nature.
9. Another result is the old sin nature's sovereignty over human life.
10. The sovereignty of the old sin nature has been broken by the justice of God using the grace factor.
11. Grace originates from the justice of God, not from the sin nature or from personal sin.
12. The power of the old sin nature has been broken by the grace policy of the justice of God.

Motion and action in the womb; but there is no soul-life. When the fetus emerges from the woman at birth, God gives life to us. Life is given to the format soul. God provides the soul and God provides the life. This is a real imputation. A real imputation ascribes to someone what is antecedently his own. Life goes with the soul. The soul has what belongs to it. The life remains in the soul. There is no soul sleep. This is permanent, no matter where we end up. This is a permanent condition. Simultaneously, Adam's original sin is imputed to its permanent home, the sin nature.

Perfect person + perfect environment = a perfect age. Everything was provided for man from God's love. There was no grace. Grace goes from the justice of God to undeserving people. No grace and no justice. The tree of the knowledge of good and evil had a big sign on it saying, "No." Each day was a new contract. Each new day began at sundown. This continued until man violated God's single negative command. There was no morality involved in the first sin. When the woman committed this personal sin, she has a sin nature and spiritual death. The whole issue was volitional. The man took the fruit from the hand of the woman. The personal sin of Adam + the sin nature = spiritual death. When Adam's original sin is imputed to us, we have instant spiritual death.

At the moment of the fall, Adam had one personal sin and one sin nature. This is exactly what we have at birth. We have the personal sin of Adam. In time, we commit personal sins, but that is the result of spiritual death.

Whereas by one man, sin entered into the world. Adam's personal sin is the basis for our spiritual death.

No imputation of Adam's sin at birth for Jesus as there was no natural home for it. There was no natural attraction. Because we have spiritual death, the justice of God can provide salvation for us. If we believe in Jesus Christ, God can then impute the righteousness of God to us. That sets up the pipeline between the righteousness of God and the justice of God. This pipeline remains empty until the believer cracks the maturity barrier, supergrace A and supergrace B.

The whole system of eating and sleeping is nonmeritorious. There are a lot of people running around and doing things for God. But God does not make deals. Grace is a no-deal situation. We grow to maturity spiritually the same way. Bible doctrine is our nourishment for spiritual growth just as food gives us physical growth. Everyone has this system of eating. We can take in a variety of foods; and that can change things. Only true doctrine causes the believer to grow.

Romans 6:1 Therefore what are we to conclude? Are we to continue in the sovereignty of the sin nature in order that the grace of God might increase?

More Points on Romans 6:1

1. Grace is a genius thing; a genius thing is not a convenient thing.
2. We do not have to live under the rulership of the old sin nature in order for grace to increase. At the fall of man, two rulerships came into existence: Satan over the world and the sin nature over man.
3. Grace increases over the advance to maturity by the intake of Bible doctrine; that is the only way to grow up spiritually. Grace increases by the advance to maturity.
4. Satan is the ruler of the world and the sin nature is the ruler of man.
5. The source of grace is the justice of God.
6. The justice of God made 4 imputations to provide for the increase of grace.
7. 2 real imputations at birth; and 2 judicial ones.
8. At the cross was a third imputation.
9. The fourth imputation occurs when we believe in Jesus Christ.
10. Justification is the grace provision from which all grace increase is accomplished. The increase of grace is the 5th imputation.
11. Justification is the grace provision from which all grace increase is accomplished.
12. The sin nature and personal sin cannot increase grace.
13. Grace can abound by spiritual growth; not by sinning. Antinomianism today; to sin a great deal.
14. The increase of grace follows the pattern from saving grace, to logistical grace, to supergrace, the ultra supergrace, to dying grace and to eternal grace.
15. Increasing the sovereign rule of the old sin nature does not increase grace.
16. The rulership of the old sin nature in the life of the believer is incompatible with the increase of grace in the life.
17. Grace is the policy of the justice of God.

We belong under one man's ministry.

Romans 6:1 Therefore what are we to conclude? Are we to continue in the sovereignty of the sin nature in order that the grace of God might increase?

More Points on Romans 6:1

1. In anticipation, the baptism of the Holy Spirit received at salvation and resultant retroactive positional truth has positionally abrogated the sovereign rule of the sin nature in the life of the believer.

2. Rebound adjustment to the justice of God increases grace.
3. Potential is both justification and the baptism of the Holy Spirit.
4. Capacity is always the same, maximum doctrine in the soul resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
5. The increase of grace is the reality of blessings in time from the justice of God plus (what we are going to study) the encapsulation in the devil's world to provide both security and enjoyment of blessings from the blessings of God.
6. The sin nature's rule over human life is incompatible with the royal family on earth.
7. Grace does not increase through the function of the sin nature, which includes sin, good and evil.
8. The continued sovereignty of the sin nature after salvation results in reversionism and the modus operandi of evil.
9. This does not increase grace. Sinning increases discipline. The justice of God curses and blesses. Sinning increases cursing, discipline and punishment.

It is easy to slip now and again. But you do not lose those blessings through sin. The perfect illustration, the baptist enigma David and Bathsheba, who lost none of his great blessings. He was disciplined, but when the smoke had cleared, he was a mature believer with all the accoutrements of blessing. If you are only restrained by fear of punishment, that is not much different to the unbeliever who does not sin to keep from being arrested.

Lesson #185

185 08/30/1977 Romans 6:2 (Intro.) Review of the doctrine of the old sin nature (revised in lessons 179–180)

Romans 6:1 Therefore what are we to conclude? Are we to continue in the sovereignty of the sin nature in order that the grace of God might increase?

Bob sees last night as one of the worst times ever. We are going to have to relearn some doctrines. Current positional truth, retroactive positional truth, baptism of the Holy Spirit, and Bob is going to review the doctrine of the sin nature, which goes back to lesson #88. Almost all of the notes from this lesson are found there (some additions were made to the doctrine).

1977 Romans

Lesson #186

186 08/31/1977 Romans 6:2a Principles of divine justice can only bless +R; Paul refutes false claim; a credit to others

Several points of review. Wherever you find chromosomes, you find genes; wherever you find genes you find the sin nature. The old sin nature exists in the cells of the body. It is called a mortal body and a body of corruption.

Production is the result of spiritual growth, not the means of spiritual growth. Rebound is instant adjustment to the justice of God.

Bob is not going to cater to a one-shot ministry where things are handled in one day. There are apparently a lot of people wandering through Berachah Church. “If you don’t plan to come here day after day, then you need to go back to your Baptist church.” You will not be asked to knock on doors or to tithe. Some of you show signs already that you do not belong here. Bob does not have to report to anyone how many people have shown up. “Once again, church tramp, tramp on.”

Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness. There must be no compromise to the function of the attributes of God. Justice requires justice. When you receive blessing from God, there is security and stability associated with it. God will not bless until you have the capacity to enjoy it. How bad you are is not an issue. How bad you used to be is not the issue.

The word yield means to be operationally ready to go under the commands of a superior officer.

We begin the rebuttal to the false assumption:

Romans 6:2 Never may it be! How shall we who died to sin still live in it?

Verse 2 – a categorical denial of the false assumption. “God forbid” in the Greek is mê (μή) [pronounced may] The 3rd person, present deponent optative genoito (γίνοιτο) [pronounced GEE-noyt-oh]. There is no word for “God” in there. But this is not really an erroneous translation because you never translate an idiom literally. This is an idiom. When the KJV was translated “God forbid” was really just a strong negative, that’s all. This was the correct translation at that time. Good translations could be, hell no; definitely not; NO!

The qualifying negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] is used in a prohibitive sense in an independent clause to express a negative wish. But it is just one of two basic negative adverbs. One is ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] and the other is mê (μή) [pronounced may]. ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] always denies the fact; mê (μή) [pronounced may] denies the idea. Therefore mê (μή) [pronounced may] is used with the subjunctive; ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] is used with the indicative. mê (μή) [pronounced may] always denies the idea or the principle behind it. So we have mê (μή) [pronounced may] denying the idea plus the optative which always expresses a wish—the aorist active optative of gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my] which means to become or to come to pass. This is a gnomic aorist tense, it is used for the certainty of refuting a false allegation. The active voice: a false assumption produces the action of the verb. The optative mood is the voluntative optative for the expression of a negative wish. In this expression, the phrase mê (μή) [pronounced may] genoito (γίνομαι) [pronounced GEE-noyt-oh, we have the optative of wishing which strongly deprecates the false assumption stated in the form of a rhetorical question and says in effect, "I will refute it." The literal translation is, "Let it not be so." This implies everything that the idiom is not. That is why you do not translate an idiom literally, or when you do you lose the meaning of that particular sentence. So Paul uses the Greek idiom to express his abhorrence of an inference and a false conclusion which aids and abets legalism.

Points

1. Reputation of such an allegation emphasizes a principle: God's integrity does not depend upon the ability, the self-righteousness or the talent of man.
2. Divine justice functions for blessing through the policy of grace.
3. Grace is the policy of the justice of God in providing blessing for the believer in time and in eternity.
4. Grace always emphasizes the production of God and de-emphasizes the production of man.
5. In emphasizing the production of God grace calls attention to man's point of reference which is the justice of God. Grace always emphasizes the justice of God in emphasizing God's production.
6. Under grace everything depends on who and what God is. Everything depends on the justice of God being free from compromise in blessing man.
7. This strong idiom denies the allegation that the multiplicity of sins increases the amount of grace. The idea that I was such a sinner that God needed to use more grace on me.

Shallow teaching that our failures and successes bring credit or disgrace to God. These things do not bring credit to God or disgrace. We can do neither.

Bob has never seen so many washboards in all his life. We depend upon God; He does not depend upon us. Our successes or failures do not advance or hinder God's plan or God's integrity by what we do. When we think it all depends on us, that eliminates us from the playing field.

Emphatically not! We who have died to the old sin nature, how shall we still live in it?

1977 Romans

Lesson #187

187 09/01/1977 Romans 6:2b Baptism of the Holy Spirit cancels the sovereignty of the old sin nature; increase of grace through spiritual growth, not sin

No one else's tracks and books are allowed in Berachah or any political material. We do not want anyone to be subpoenaed or propagandized or politically swayed. If you use this church for another purpose, then you are not welcome, but you will be excommunicated forthwith.

There will be a rhetorical question asked and this is not a true question where an answer is expected. A point will be made from it. Grace is never advanced through sin; and God solves all problems as related to the sin nature and to personal sin.

Adam's original sin was a trespass of cognizance. He is always the basis for our spiritual death. Satan being the ruler of the world is not an issue in Romans. We are dealing with the problems of the sin nature.

Grace is advanced and increased in relationship to blessing coming from the justice of God; it is not increased by sin.

You can do all kinds of great things for God, but this does not advance you nor does it necessarily glorify Jesus Christ.

Saving grace to logistical grace to supergrace to ultra supergrace to dying grace to ultimate grace; this is grace all the way. No reference to the sin nature or to production.

Grace is related to God blessing of the believer; to the justice of God; it is unrelated to the sin nature. The modus operandi of the sin nature—sin, good or evil—does not advance the grace of God.

Emphatically Not

1. The allegation of the first verse and the erroneous conclusion and the emphatic denial raises the question, what increases grace? If human good, sin or evil do not increase grace.
2. It is definitely not any act of the sin nature.
3. The grace function, which provided our so great salvation, also abrogated the sovereignty of the old sin nature over our life. Grace is propitiation, redemption. But grace is static with regards to the sin nature.
4. The grace of God increases when the believer advances.
5. The formula for the increase of grace: potential + capacity = reality. The pipeline of grace is encapsulated by the integrity of God. Through that pipeline passes the increase of grace, at salvation and at maturity. What righteousness demands, the justice of God executes. When the righteousness of God demands blessing, the justice of God provides that blessing. Grace is related to blessing; not to sinfulness and not to evil. The capacity is maximum doctrine in the soul.
6. As the believer grows spiritually, grace increases. When the believer attains maturity adjustment to the Justice of God, grace is given. When Abraham went into Hagar's tent, he was a mature believer. When he exited, he was still a mature believer. He did not lose his wealth, success, prosperity. David and Bathsheba, the same thing. David fornicated. Did he lose his wealth, his throne, or what did he lose? Both men were disciplined, but these acts of discipline did not remove blessings which came down the grace pipe.
7. The very fact that there is security in salvation; there is also security in the spiritual life. There is no sin that the believer can commit which changes these things.

The Panama Canal was purchased by the United States, and, therefore, it belongs to the United States. Reality is even mature believers sin. And when a mature believer sins, his discipline is even worse than it would be for babies who sin.

Bob is thinning out the congregation for a great winter offensive. There are those who do not understand God's grace or the importance of Bible doctrine.

Arrogance eliminates wisdom; arrogance eliminates smarts. The very place where your life it is where your growth is. You fill up your soul with doctrine.

Romans 6:2 Never may it be! How shall we who died to sin still live in it?

“How shall we that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?” The nominative masculine plural from the qualitative relative pronoun hostis (ὅστις) [pronounced HOHS-tiss]. It has an antecedent which is the editorial suffix “we” from verse 1. The literal translation of hostis (ὅστις) [pronounced HOHS-tiss] is “we, the very ones who.” But we shorten that to “we who” in order to make better English. Then the aorist active indicative from the verb apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh] which refers to retroactive positional truth as a result of the baptism of the Holy Spirit. This is retroactive positional death—“we who are dead,” very much alive but dead to something. Corrected translation: “We who have died.”

The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to a momentary action which occurs at salvation, the baptism of the Holy Spirit and subsequent retroactive positional truth. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb at salvation by faith in Christ. The action is very simple. The believer dies to the rulership of the old sin nature. The old sin nature is still alive in us in the cell structure of the body and we are still alive on this earth. But retroactively or positionally we have died to the old sin nature which we carry in the body. The believer dies, then, to the old sin nature's sovereignty in human life through the baptism of the Spirit. The indicative mood is declarative, used for the statement of a correct doctrinal conclusion in contrast to the false conclusion of the previous verse. Then the dative singular indirect object from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] after the verb, used for the old sin nature or Adam's trend. With it is the definite article which denotes a previous reference in the context. Since the old sin nature has been previously used in the context the definite article merely indicates this is the same sin nature, previously mentioned in verse 1. “We who have died to the sin nature.”

Then comes the interrogative particle pôs (πῶς) [pronounced pohç] which introduces a rhetorical question used to challenge an erroneous assumption. Plus the future active indicative of the verb zaô (ζῶω) [pronounced DZAH-oh], to live. The future tense is a deliberative future used in a rhetorical question taking the place of a direct assertion. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb at the moment of salvation through the baptism of the Spirit. The indicative mood is the interrogative indicative for a rhetorical question used to make an assertion. Plus the adverb éti (ἔτι) [pronounced EH-tee] which denotes a continuing situation and means “still.” “How shall we still live.” Plus the prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτοῦς) [pronounced ow-TOSS] used to emphasize the identity of the old sin nature as the sovereign ruler of human life through spiritual death—“in it,” i.e. in the power of the old sin nature.

Romans 6:2 We who have died to the sin nature, how shall we still live in it?

Principles

1. The old sin nature, the sovereign of human life, is no longer the controlling factor in the life of the believer. Positionally the old sin nature is dead, its power has been broken.
2. Living in the old sin nature refers to continuing under the rule of the old sin nature and following its trends—sin, good, and evil.
3. After salvation the old sin nature still resides in those contaminated cells of the body, but through the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation the power, the sovereignty, the authority, the rulership of the old sin nature has been broken.
4. Obviously because of its genetic origin the old sin nature is not eradicated until either physical death or resurrection, whichever occurs first.
5. Though still present in our body of corruption the old sin nature has been robbed of its power to rule our lives. The only reason it still rules is because we exercise our options in favour of it.
 - a. Some believers have a face lift or plastic surgery and many times, this is all about fighting the negative effects of the sin nature.
 - b. Far preferable to fight the effects of the sin nature in your soul.
 - c. A woman who has remarried and keeps going back to the first husband is the believer who keeps returning to the control of the sin nature after being born again.
6. A new power, the power of the Holy Spirit, has replaced the power of the old sin nature, so that we have an option to go with the old sin nature or to go with the Holy Spirit.
7. The rhetorical question introduces the point of doctrine that there is a new life for the believer on earth, a modus vivendi which is free from the sovereignty and the power of the old sin nature.
8. One of the applications, then, of the baptism of the Holy Spirit is retroactive positional truth. Retroactive positional truth has broken the power of the trends of the old sin nature.
9. While imputed righteousness and subsequent justification is the basis for temporal blessing after salvation, the salvation ministries of the Holy Spirit provide the basis for breaking the old sin nature’s rulership of human life.
10. These salvation ministries of the Holy Spirit are designed to provide the environment for temporal blessing from the justice of God at spiritual maturity.
11. Obviously the environment cannot be the same as the garden of Eden, since at that time man and woman were perfect people in a perfect environment.

12. Both perfect people and perfect environment were both destroyed by the fall of Adam and the woman.
13. Now the devil rules the world and cannot provide perfect environment for mankind, though he brings all of his genius into focus on the problem. He is the ruler of this world and he brings all of his genius into play when it comes to creating perfect environment, and destroy the second advent of Jesus Christ. All concepts of perfect environment in the devil's world originate from Satan. People are so different to the United States because the devil has sold them on the concept of better environment. Satan has the genius to start various acts of human good, but he is not smart enough to provide perfect environment.
14. Now that the sin nature is the sovereign of human life all attempts of environmental improvement merely intensify and become evil.
15. The intensification of human good is evil. The intensification of sinfulness is evil.
16. Therefore the salvation ministries of the Holy Spirit are specifically designed to provide the best environment for temporal blessings from the justice of God.
17. The environment provided by the salvation ministries of the Holy Spirit are necessarily internal since the Holy Spirit does not improve or whitewash the devil's world.
18. By internal is meant that these ministries of the Holy Spirit are related to both the body and the soul. They relate to the body where the old sin nature dwells; they relate to the soul where doctrine must find residence.
19. Remember that the old sin nature dwells in the human body genetically and influences the human soul toward sin, good, and evil.
20. From its genetic headquarters in the human body the old sin nature constantly seeks to rule the soul of mankind.
21. But the Holy Spirit's five ministries at salvation frustrate this activity of the old sin nature. These five ministries of the Holy Spirit are designed to provide an encapsulated environment in the devil's world, an environment which is actually better than what Adam had in the garden.

Homosexuality is a sin; but when they get society to accept them as legitimate, they have parlayed a sin into evil. Attacks on big business and establishment are attempts of human good to improve things, and the result is evil.

1977 Romans

Lesson #188

188 09/02/1977 Romans 6:2 Imputation of eternal life to spiritual birth; doctrine of the salvation ministry of God the Holy Spirit

Romans 6:2 Never may it be! How shall we who died to sin still live in it?

The Salvation Ministry of God the Holy Spirit

1. In order to provide a spiritual environment in the devil's world where the old sin nature rules human life, God the Holy Spirit has provided five separate ministries at the point of salvation so that we can have an environment better than the original environment of the garden of Eden. Remember that in the garden we had perfect persons, perfect environment and a perfect age. We need something much greater than what our original parents had, but there are two problems. Since the fall of man Satan is the ruler of this world and the old sin nature is the ruler of human life ruling through spiritual death. So the change is dispensation from Israel to the Church was designed to provide a royal family for the Lord Jesus Christ seated at the right hand of the Father, a royal family to go with His battlefield royalty. Jesus Christ is God and therefore has His eternal royalty, and as eternal royalty He has a royal family in the Father and in the Holy Spirit. Jesus Christ in His humanity is the son of David, and therefore He has a royalty and royal family as well in the line of David, the dynasty of David. But Jesus Christ as King of kings and Lord of lords—His battlefield title—did not have a royal family. And so the age of Israel is interrupted and a new dispensation begins in order to call out a royal family for the Lord Jesus Christ. As members of the body of Christ we are a part of that royal family, and we have therefore the privilege as members of that royal family to have certain things which no believer had at salvation in past dispensations. The environment for the royal family of God in the devil's world during the Church Age is actually provided by these five ministries of God the Holy Spirit at the point at which we make salvation adjustment to the justice of God. This is an encapsulated environment in the devil's world and the provision for this comes from five specific ministries. This is environment for the royal family of God to grow from spiritual babyhood to spiritual maturity which is the only way we can glorify God. The emphasis in the Word of God is not on production but on spiritual growth. The emphasis in apostasy is on production, and the implication and allegation is that whenever we do certain things for God, God is going to bless us. That is not only legalism but it is blasphemy. We cannot do anything for the blessing of God. The blessing of God is based upon what God has provided, and God has provided an encapsulated grace pipeline with the righteousness of God on the receiving end and the justice of God on the originating end. And so each ministry of the Holy Spirit at salvation in some way creates that encapsulated environment so necessary for the breaking of both Satanic power and the old sin nature's sovereignty over human life.

2. Five Holy Spirit functions follow:
3. Regeneration is the one ministry of the Holy Spirit that occurs in every dispensation. Regeneration merely means to be born again, to be born a second time. It is the true concept of following Jesus, and the Lord Jesus Christ explained that to follow Him was not to say what He said or to try to adopt His mental attitude about things. Nor is discipleship following Jesus as it is loosely used today. Following Jesus is described in Matthew 19:28, "And Jesus said unto them, Truly I say unto you that you who have followed me, in regeneration ..." John chapter 3 explains regeneration. The target for the imputation of Adam's sin is the genetically-formed old sin nature. The target for eternal life is the spiritually formed birth. The Holy Spirit actually provides a birth which is totally spiritual. The first ministry of the Holy Spirit is regeneration—Titus 3:5-7.
 - a. At your real birth, you received life from God.

- b. At regeneration, you had to be born again. Jesus had to explain to Nicodemus what being born again meant.
 - c. Man will always have human life, even those who are not regenerate.
 - d. Regeneration must be related to eternal life. By the washing of regeneration. One of the first things that is done with a baby is it is washed. You can't go through life with that stuff hanging on. This is by the renewing of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit provided a home for eternal life.
4. The baptism of the Holy Spirit.^[1] The baptism of the Holy Spirit takes each one of us, having received the righteousness of God and eternal life, and enters us into union with Christ as He is seated at the right hand of the Father, and retroactively united with Christ in His spiritual death, in His physical death, and in His burial.
- a. We will have this doctrine before we cover Romans 6:3
 - b. Water is very beneficial to the body; and Bob showers at least twice a day.
 - c. Water baptism has not been a legitimate ordinance of the church since A.D. 96. Water baptism teaches retroactive positional truth (?). Baptism can be divisive. Even in Paul's day, people would proclaim who baptized them.
 - d. The baptism of the Spirit is what...
 - e. Human life is encapsulated in spiritual death. Therefore, there must be a life given to us with no encapsulation.
5. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit's and indwelling and filling are two different things. Filling is a command, e.g. "Walk in the Spirit." But we are never commanded to be indwelt. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit, a ministry at the point of salvation, has to do with the body of the new believer. The body contains the cell structure, the cell structure are all contaminated; so the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is to counter the function of the old sin nature where the old sin nature resides. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is never lost, and at salvation the body of corruption is changed and becomes the temple of the Holy Spirit. The filling of the Holy Spirit always refers to the soul. You can lose the filling of the Spirit; you cannot lose the indwelling of the Spirit. When you lose the filling of the Spirit you have one of two conditions: grieving the Spirit – Ephesians 4:30; quenching the Spirit – 1Thessalonians 5:19.
- a. You can glorify God in your body.
 - b. Grieving the Spirit is sin. You can recover by rebound.
 - c. Quenching the Spirit is reversionism; and that takes time to recover from that.
 - d. We had the prophecy of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in the book of John. Many were filled with the Spirit in the OT.
6. The sealing of the Holy Spirit—Ephesians 1:13; 4:30; 2Corinthians 1:22. A seal guaranteed a transaction. The Holy Spirit guarantees that we are saved. We are sealed with that guarantee. This indicates both eternal security and this is the escutcheon of the royal family of God forever. No one was ever sealed by the Spirit before the Church Age. There are certain sealings after the Church Age, like 144,000 evangelists. But this is a specific seal dealing with a specific subject, the fact that we are royal family of God forever. The sealing also indicates the identification of ownership; we are owned by God as of the moment we believe in Christ. This also emphasizes positional sanctification or our relationship with God forever. Sealing ratifies the fact that God has a plan for our life and that we are in the divine decrees, and that God has taken it upon Himself to give us logistical support so that we can fulfil the objectives related to this principle.

- a. The sealing of the Spirit is the promise of super-grace blessings for the royal family – Ephesians 1:13.
 - b. Reversionism is incompatible with the sealing of the Spirit – Ephesians 4:30.
 - c. The sealing of the Spirit is the down payment or guarantee of security for the royal family – 2Corinthians 1:23.
7. The distribution of spiritual gifts – 1Corinthians 12:11. All spiritual gifts are sovereignly bestowed by the Holy Spirit at the moment of salvation. Many spiritual gifts are not mentioned in scripture. The only ones that are, are ones that pertain to the function of the local church and a few extra ones to make us realize that these gifts do exist. The reason that the gifts related to the local church have to be mentioned is so that there can be proper administration in the local church. The other spiritual gifts do not have to be mentioned for the only thing it takes for a spiritual gift to function is spiritual growth. So the believer's concern is not what his spiritual gift is, it is his concern to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and saviour Jesus Christ.
- a. The gift of evangelism is outside the local church; so an evangelist should not be the pastor of a church.
 - b. Females do not have the gift of pastor-teacher. Women are barred from this spiritual gift.
 - c. Spiritual gifts provide an environment for spiritual growth.

Divine encapsulation of the blessing pipeline between the justice of God and the righteousness of God. 35 more things pass through the pipe, given at the point of salvation. Our study above is of 5 of these things, five things supplied by the Holy Spirit at salvation.

Blessing is our side of it; glorification of God is His side of it.

Then our advance needs to be spiritual. The things which we receive at salvation are not experienced. We do not feel them; we do not experience them. There is no speaking in tongues connected to the Christian way of life. The baptism of the Holy Spirit is not something which you feel.

When Bob was saved, he had no feeling, apart from suffering a hangover.

If you think that doing great things with your voice is spiritual, then Bing Crosby even more so.

When you throw the sin nature a few crumbs, remember, that it is just a beggar now.

189 09/04/1977 Romans 6:3a Doctrine of seven baptisms; water baptism; baptism of the Holy Spirit

Verses 3-5, ignorance of categorical indoctrination.

Romans 6:3 Or are you unaware that as many as have been baptized into Christ Jesus have been baptized into His death?

Verse 3 – the challenge, “Know ye not.” The disjunctive particle ê (ἤ) [pronounced ā] is used to separate related or similar terms. It is translated “or.” Then the present active indicative of the verb agnoeô (ἀγνοέω) [pronounced ag-noh-EH-oh] which means to be ignorant—“Or are you ignorant.” The perfective present tense denotes the continuation of existing results. Here it refers to the fact of ignorance which has come to be in the past but this same ignorance of doctrine is emphasized at the moment as a present reality. Right now they are ignorant where they should be cognizant. The active voice: the believer in the Lord Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb, namely being ignorant in the field of extreme importance to our experiential advance. The indicative mood is an interrogative indicative in which the reality of Christian ignorance is enquired about when the indicative is used to ask a simple question.

The principle is obvious. Ignorance of doctrine is the most serious problem in Christianity, in the first century as well as in the twentieth century. Cognizance of doctrine is the only means of spiritual growth, the only way to acquire capacity for divine blessing from the justice of God, and the only way to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ in time. Everything hinges on inculcation of Bible doctrine through the consistent function of GAP. The first phrase, “Are you ignorant?” is a challenge to learning Bible doctrine.

“that so many of us were baptized into Jesus Christ” – the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] is used after verbs of thinking or non-thinking. Here it is used after a verb of ignorance or non-thinking to indicate the failure of cerebration and therefore the failure of application to the Christian modus vivendi. With it is a correlative adjective hosos (ὅσος) [pronounced HOS-os], the nominative plural used as the subject. The adjective is used for a substantive to refer to all believers in Christ and is translated, “Or are you ignorant that all those who” or “that all of us who.” Plus the aorist passive indicative of baptizô (βαπτίζω) [pronounced bap-TID-zoh] which is transliterated “baptize.” This is not water baptism here, but Spirit baptism.

Baptism, early on in the Church Age, taught retroactive positional truth and current positional truth. The only ceremony which continues in the post-canon period is the Lord’s table; but not baptism.

The aorist tense is a constative aorist for a momentary action at the instant of salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Christ. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb at the moment of salvation adjustment to the justice of God. The justice of God at the beginning imputes the righteousness of God to our souls. It is obviously, then, not an experience but a part of the salvation ministry of the Holy Spirit. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine; all believers receive the baptism of the Holy Spirit at the moment of faith in Christ.

We are blessed because God establishes this grace pipeline. It has almost been washed away by the heresy of water baptism in today's world.

“into Jesus Christ” is eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE]—“Or are you ignorant, that all of us have been baptized into Christ Jesus.”

None of the things given to us at salvation; the 36 things we receive are not seen and are not felt.

All personal sins were imputed to Jesus on the cross. In the spiritual death of the Lord, there was a non-imputation which occurred at the same time. Good and evil, the policy of Satan, were not imputed. They were rejected in the imputation. The human sin nature has 3 trends: sin, good and evil.

Was Adam's original sin imputed to Christ at the cross? Of course it was! This was a personal sin. The woman's sin was also imputed to Jesus Christ on the cross. All personal sins were imputed for judgment at the cross.

Sin is regarded as separate from good and evil. There is a race between true perfect environment and Satan's version of perfect environment. Satan is in the good and evil business. Good and evil are as great an issue as sin.

The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the Holy Spirit entering into the body. This creates a new system regarding the control of the sin nature of the soul. When we get to v. 13, we will study a new doctrine of the filling of the Spirit.

The baptism of the Spirit is taking every new believer and putting them in union with Christ, a permanent identification which separates Christianity from all other religions. We have a relationship.

The Age of Israel is halted, and the Church Age is inserted. The Age of Israel will continue to its conclusion, which is the 2nd advent of Christ.

In all ages, the family of God is formed by having faith in Jesus Christ (or in God as He has revealed Himself). The baptism is unique in the Church Age. The tongues movement is a vicious attack on the baptism of the Spirit. The baptism of the Spirit is not an experience; it is not something that you feel.

The baptism of the Spirit is every person being put into Jesus Christ, as we have all been baptized into one body. Since Bob is going over many of the points of this doctrine, I am going to insert an early version of the Doctrine of the Baptism of the Holy Spirit (these notes will not match up exactly):

This is reviewed in Lesson #238 (and any additional notes from that lesson will be placed here). This does not really match up with Bob's second run at this.

This doctrine is being reviewed in Lesson #270 and any additional notes from the study are placed below. There was only one existing doctrine in the notebooks. Not well matched to the doctrine below. Next time this is done, perhaps a new set of notes ought to be done. Well, so far, I am finding all of the points here; but just in a different order.

The Baptism of the Holy Spirit

1. This is the salvation ministry of God the Holy Spirit. Prior to the Church Age at salvation God the Holy Spirit was the agent of regeneration. Now, He is not only the agent of regeneration but He performs other functions as well, other functions which make the Church Age believer unique. You, as a Church Age believer, have been entered into the holy of holies. That is unique because in the previous dispensation everyone had to stay out. The holy of holies is Christ at the right hand of the Father and you have been entered into union with Christ. So positionally you live in the holy of holies, and the means by which this is accomplished is the baptism of the Holy Spirit. That is why you didn't feel or experience the baptism of the Spirit. That is entrance into the royal family. And that isn't all. Our bodies are indwelt by the Holy Spirit and nobody was ever indwelt by any member of the Trinity in the Old Testament. Always before man was building something to represent what God did - a tabernacle, an altar, a laver, a table of shewbread, a lampstand, a golden altar of incense, an ark of the covenant, later on a temple. All of these things are shadows pointing to the reality, and once the reality comes God does His own building. He builds instantaneously a temple, a temple inside of the believer. Your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit who is in you, inside you. That never happened before.
 - a. And what does God want to do with that temple? He wants to fill it with human treasures from the divine source of grace, something to match the third person of the Trinity living inside of you. What could match it? Something on the outside - your blessing, your promotion, your prosperity. Whatever form it was designed to be in eternity past, it is definitely there. Then you were sealed by the Holy Spirit at the point of salvation. That is the security of your royalty. And you were given a spiritual gift, the guarantee of the provision of royalty.
 - b. The baptism of the Spirit, then, is unique, along with the other salvation ministries of the Spirit - except regeneration.
 - c. 1Corinthians 12:13 all of us were made to drink from one Spirit.
2. The prophecy of the baptism of the Spirit was given first of all in John 14:20, then in Acts 1:5. It was accomplished by Jesus Christ just before the conjunction of the ages or the interruption of the Age of Israel and the beginning of the Church Age - Acts 1:5 is very important in that connection.

3. The definition and the mechanics of the baptism of the Spirit is important today simply because of that form of apostasy called the tongues movement. By definition the baptism of the Spirit is a part of the salvation work of the Holy Spirit, instantaneous, not felt or experienced in any way, whereby He takes you and me when we believed and enters us into union with the Lord Jesus Christ. The mechanics of this are taught in 1Corinthians 12:13. The mechanics are related to the concept of the body of Christ.
4. The baptism of the Spirit and the essence of the royal family are linked and related forever. The baptism of the Spirit unifies all members of the body of Christ, according to Ephesians 4:5. It is something we have in common, it is something we all have and always will have and there never will be a time when we lose it. And we are all inseparably linked together. All members of the royal family have the same baptism, the baptism of the Spirit, and it provides equality in the royal family which did not exist under physical birth. The moment we are born physically into the world we are immediately in a system of inequality. The devil could never overcome that, but he keeps trying.
5. The baptism of the Spirit is related to spiritual sanctification.
6. The baptism of the Spirit occurs at the moment of salvation - Colossians 2:12. Therefore the baptism of the Spirit is not an experience of any kind. It is not speaking in tongues, it is not ecstasies, it is something that happens instantaneously and has no connotation of emotion, of stimulation, or anything else that the holy-rollers erroneously peddle today. One Lord, one faith, one baptism.
7. The baptism of the Holy Spirit first occurs in the Church Age; and not before. The baptism of the Spirit interrupts the Jewish dispensation and begins the Church Age. We see this in Hebrews 9:26 where Christ offered the efficacious sacrifice that interrupted the Jewish Age before its completion and began the Church Age which is the dispensation for the royal family of God. The baptism of the Spirit, therefore, is the interrupter of the Jewish Age and the beginning of the Church Age - Matthew 16:18 (the future tense of I will build means that the church was not yet in existence); Acts 1:5; 2:3; 11:15-17 which says the baptism of the Spirit occurred in Acts 2:3. Retrospectively, Peter recognizes that the baptism of the Spirit occurred on that Day of Pentecost.
8. Colossians 2:10–12 Therefore the baptism of the Spirit is the unique ministry of God the Holy Spirit where every believer is placed into union with Jesus Christ. This is from where we get the phrase in Christ.
9. The baptism of the Holy Spirit is one of seven Bible baptisms. The Bible baptisms are divided into two parts, those which are real and those which are ritual. There are four real and three ritual baptisms.
 - a. A real baptism is an actual identification whereas a ritual baptism is simply a representative identification, and in that ritual water always represents something very important. Of the real baptisms there is the baptism of Moses - 1 Corinthians 10:2, the people of Israel identified with Moses in crossing the Red Sea to safety. There is the baptism of the cross in Matthew 20:22 where our sins were identified with Christ in the function of His efficacious saving work (this is called the baptism of the cup) . Then there is the baptism of the Spirit whereby we are identified with Christ forever, identified with the real holy of holies - 1 Corinthians 12:13. Finally, there is the baptism of fire in Matthew 3:11 and in many passages in which the Tribulational persons who are unbelievers are cast into fire at the end of the Tribulation which is really the end of the Jewish Age.

- b. There are three basic ritual baptisms. Again, water is always used to represent something in the spiritual realm.
 - i. In the baptism of John - Matthew 3:1-10 - water represented the kingdom which he preached, and those who believed were entered into the water. He had no ritual of the temple, he lived in the Jewish Age, therefore baptism was given to him as a special ritual. This is the only shadow not authorised by the Mosaic law but authorised by a special addendum from God. God personally did something for John the baptist that he has never done for anyone else. He permitted him to have a ritual which would be meaningful to these people who were very close to the interruption of the Jewish Age. The water represented the kingdom which he proclaimed.
 - ii. The Lord Jesus Christ Himself was baptized by John. And it is interesting that our Lord is never related to the shadows which portray Him at the temple. He is never related to these things because at the time they were ritual without reality. Therefore in Matthew 3:13-17 our Lord turned His back upon the shadow, the temple, and walked down to John and asked John to baptise Him. John refused because he understood his own ritual and he also identified the Messiah and knew that He was sinless and did not need salvation and was in effect the saviour, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world. So he said no, and our Lord explained that this was another addendum to the addendum and that the water would have a different meaning. It was simply our Lord's volitional ritual by which He agreed to go to the cross. The water, therefore, represented the divine decrees and the Father's plan, and the humanity of the Lord willingly accepting this plan, though for Him it was the most excruciating misery that anyone ever suffered in history. Therefore once again we have a ritual baptism, a water baptism, and the meaning of the water is dependent entirely upon its declaration in scripture and has no meaning apart from that.
 - iii. There is also what we call Christian baptism. This is found in Acts 8:36-38; 16:33, and a host of passages in the book of Acts where baptism was practiced after the Church Age began. The water represented the individual identified with Christ in his death, and when the candidate came out of the water it was a picture of identification with Christ seated at the right hand of the Father. So it portrayed identification with Christ in death, burial, and resurrection. There is no reference to water baptism in the epistles, except in an unfavourable reference in 1 Corinthians 1 where there was a lot of squabbling. The purpose of water baptism was not to enter into controversy but it was to understand some very important principle of doctrine. It was to portray the baptism of the Holy Spirit. There is no record that there is any significance in the perpetuation of baptism after the canon of scripture is completed.

- iv. No authorization at this time for baptism in the Church Age.
- 10. The baptism of the Spirit is not an experience but it is the basis by which we enter into the holy of holies.
- 11. The first part of Hebrews 10:10 says we have been sanctified in the past with the result that we remain separated toward God forever. We have been earmarked as unique. We are royal family. The baptism of the Spirit is unique to the Church Age and the baptism of the Spirit is only used for royalty, for royal family only. It was not used in the Old Testament, it will not be used in the Tribulation, it will not be found in the Millennium.
- 12. We are made complete in Christ by the baptism of the Spirit? We have a position in Christ which is never improved. In Him, you have been made complete at salvation.
- 13. A circumcision not accomplished by hands.

The Scripture speaks of seven baptisms. The word has been transliterated; and this does not tell us what the verb means. Notes were inserted about Baptism and about the kinds of baptisms found in the Scriptures.

The Doctrine of Baptism

The verb "baptize" and the noun "baptism" are Greek words that are not translated but transliterated. We know the etymology because of the use of the word in ancient Greek literature. They are words which have come down to us through three different Greek languages over a period of 1000 years. Before these words got into the New Testament they were a thousand years old. So we know exactly what they mean. The Greek word for baptize means to identify one thing with another, to identify with "something else."

Homer, in the IX book of The Odyssey, used the word baptize in his analogy of the spear entering the eye of the Cyclops and with the immersing of hot steel in water by the smith: the steel was identified with the water.

Herodotus used the word baptize in baptizing a new spear in the blood of a pig which had been sacrificed to the god of war: the spear was identified with its intent, to draw blood. When the Spartans went to war they always took an oath to kill the enemy and in doing so they plunged it into the pig's blood. That was called the baptism of the spear. It was now a warrior's spear, it had touched blood. So the point of the spear, which is something, goes into something else (pig's blood) which has been offered as a sacrifice to the god of war.

Euripides used baptize in identifying a sunken ship with the sea. The "something else" was the bottom of the sea. He said the ship was baptized in the sea. Thus, the connotation of the word is always identification with "something else" and that is what baptizo means. It means to put something into something else, and that is all.

We know this because there are seven baptisms found in the Bible. Four of them are dry and three of them are wet, but in each of these baptisms something or someone is identified with something else. That is what baptizo really means. "Baptize" is not an English word, and the only way to translate it is give it its proper meaning: to identify, to identify something with something else.

To summarise: Baptizo or baptise means to identify. That is the translation of the noun and "to identify" is the verb. This was true in the days of Homer. Homer used these words in the sense of identification. Then in the days of the great Greek historians of the fifth century BC, Herodotus and Thucydides used it. Euripides used it. And always with great consistency the verb and the nouns have meant identification. They connote identification. Something is identified with something else. Homer talks about the crafty Ulysses putting the sharpened beam into the eye of Cyclops. he says the plunging of the beam made a hissing noise like a man who smelt iron when he dips the iron into the water, and he used the word bapto, identifies it, so that the iron is tempered. So the word has been used extensively so there was never any excuse for a transliteration. The translation should be "identification."

Baptize means to identify: To be made one with. It means something so identified with something else that its nature or character is changed, or represents a real change that has already taken place.

There is nothing gained by baptizing a believer today. It divided believers then as it does today. Paul was appreciative that he only baptized a few people.

Water baptism is divisive and it will not advance believers in this era. If water is necessary for the baptism at hand, water will be mentioned. If there is no water, then it is not a water baptism.

This following doctrine is also inserted from NB1:

The Seven Kinds of Baptism in the Scriptures

There are seven baptisms in the scriptures (Four real, three ritual)

1. Real Baptisms: (Actual Identification)
 - a. Baptism of Moses - 1Corinthians 10:1,2. The children of Israel are identified with Moses and the cloud as they pass through the Red Sea. The only ones who were immersed here were the Egyptians and they all died.

b. Baptism of the cross or cup - Matthew 20:22; 2Corinthians 5:21. Jesus Christ drank the cup filled with our sins - identified with our sin and bore it on the cross. He was made sin for us - 1Peter 2:24.

c. Baptism of the Holy Spirit - (Believer), 1Corinthians 12:13. The believer at the point of salvation is placed into the body of Christ. He is identified then as a believer, as a Christian - Acts 1:5; Romans 6:3,4; Galatians 3; Colossians 2:12, Ephesians 4:5.

d. Baptism of fire - (Unbelievers), the baptism of judgement on all believers: Battle of Armageddon, Matthew 25:31, 33; 3:11; Luke 3:16; 2Thessalonians 1:7-9.

2. Ritual Baptisms: (Representative Identification) Water is used. Water is symbolic of something else, but the individual is really identified with the water. None of these baptisms are legitimate today. What was happening was teaching.

a. Baptism of John - Matthew 3:6, 11a. Water is symbolic of the Kingdom of God which John preached. People, when baptized by John were indicating, in effect: "I have previously believed in Christ, I am now symbolizing that identification with His Kingdom by baptism." This represented the kingdom that would be offered to the people by the King. The only ritual involving water was the priest washing his hands to indicate rebound. There is no blessing or spiritual growth from this baptism unless the person being baptized understands what is taking place. John's baptism ended with his beheading.

b. Baptism of Jesus. Unique Baptism. Water was used. Jesus Christ was NOT a sinner. Water is symbolic of the Father's will. Jesus Christ identified Himself with the Father's will in the execution of salvation - Matthew 3:13-17. We cannot "follow the Lord in baptism" as to His purpose (securing our redemption) but can duplicate the mode of His baptism. Jesus submitted to baptism; in fact, He demanded it. John hesitated, because the Lord was impeccable. Jesus was not a sinner saved by grace. So to John, this baptism made no sense. But in this case, the baptism of Jesus means that Jesus is entering into the plan of God.

c. Baptism of the believer in the Church Age - Matthew 28:9. Water represents the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. Believers are identified with Christ in His death, burial, and resurrection. It symbolizes retroactive and current positional truth (identification with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session). It is the ritual of the real baptism of the Holy Spirit. It is thus a picture of Spirit baptism. No reason for any person to be water baptized since A.D. 96. When Bob was baptized, he did not understand what it meant; or what it stood for. Water baptism was followed in the book of Acts because the book of Romans had not yet been written. It was a teaching device at that time. It is doctrine that advances you, not some ceremony or act. Romans explains what takes place in such lucid terms that baptism is never necessary to be used again.

The person going into the water is identified with the water, and he is saying in effect, "I am identified with Him in His death." Prior to Romans 6 being written, baptism was used in order to teach believers of that era.

The person coming out of the water is identified with the air which represents: Identification with Christ in His resurrection; The believer giving testimony to current positional truth - allowing His resurrection life to live through us.

Ritual without reality is meaningless. Water baptism is the ritual (picture) of the real (Baptism of the Holy Spirit). The believer needs doctrine before baptism, i.e. positional truth: retroactive positional truth, current positional truth, experiential positional truth, human good versus divine good. He should understand the difference between relationship and fellowship.

The believer was baptized in the early church very soon after salvation. Reason: Because as soon as the individual was saved he was given a long lesson in Bible doctrine. Immediately upon understanding the basics the individual was baptized. An individual should never be baptized until he understands the doctrine behind the ritual.

There was a beginning date for the church; and there must be a nucleus to start. All believers in Jerusalem were hit at the same time with the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

We are the petros; but Christ is the petra (πέτρα) [pronounced PEHT-ra]. "On this rock I will build My church."

The Jews could not comprehend gentiles becoming royal family. So there needed to be manifestations of the Spirit like speaking in tongues among the gentiles. Paul said, "Who was I to stand in God's way?" Or maybe that was Peter?

Ephesians 4:5 One Lord, one faith and one baptism. This is not to be a plague next to the baptistry.

Galatians 3:26–28 ...for in Christ Jesus you are all sons of God, through faith. For as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is no male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus.

Colossians 2:9–12 For in him the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily, and you have been filled in him, who is the head of all rule and authority. In him also you were circumcised with a circumcision made without hands, by putting off the body of the flesh, by the circumcision of Christ, having been buried with him in baptism, in which you were also raised with him through faith in the powerful working of God, who raised him from the dead.

190 09/04/1977 Romans 6:3b Doctrine of positional truth; baptism of the Holy Spirit; Church Age believers get double +R and eternal life

Romans 6:3 Or are you unaware that as many as have been baptized into Christ Jesus have been baptized into His death?

“were baptized into his death” – in the Greek the word order is reversed, “into His death were baptized.” It begins with the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], referring to the spiritual death of Christ on the cross, that time when the sins of the world were judicially imputed judged by the justice of God. This is the basis of propitiation and reconciliation in salvation. The accusative singular of the definite article in front of the noun is used to denote a previous reference. The definite article may be used to point out an object such as spiritual death which has been discussed and defined previously, as in Romans 5:14, 17, 21.

Plus the possessive genitive singular from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS] used here as a possessive pronoun to emphasize the uniqueness of the spiritual death of Christ on the cross. This unique spiritual death was taking all of the sins of the world by imputation and being judged for all of them, and at the same time rejecting good and evil, therefore separating them from the efficacious work of the cross; “were baptized” – the aorist passive indicative of the same verb, baptizô (βαπτίζω) [pronounced bap-TID-zoh], used again for the baptism of the Holy Spirit. The aorist tense is a constative aorist for that momentary action at the instant of salvation adjustment to the justice of God and/or faith in Christ. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb at the moment of salvation.

Romans 6:3 Or are you ignorant that all of us who have been baptized into Jesus Christ, into his spiritual death were baptized?

Principle #1

1. Note that the baptism of the Holy Spirit specifically enters the believer into union with Christ, forming positional truth.
2. This verse emphasizes union with Christ in His spiritual death on the cross. The next verse will emphasize union with Christ in His physical death and burial.
3. with Christ in His death, then, has a two-fold connotation: a) All personal sins were judged at the cross; b) Good and evil were not judged because of non-imputation.
4. Personal sin had to be judged for the grace provision of salvation but good and evil could not be imputed and could not be judged for salvation, and will not until the end of the Millennium.
5. Therefore, good and evil continue as a part of the angelic conflict until the end of human history, i.e. the end of the Millennium.
6. So first the old sin nature’s ruling power over human life has been broken and we are identified with Christ when He destroyed the sovereignty of the old sin nature over human life.

7. Second, because of the baptism of the Holy Spirit each believer is positionally separated from good and evil as well as rejects human good and evil.
8. Being separated positionally from good and evil the believer can walk in newness of life which is the environment for those a fortiori blessings noted in the previous chapter.
9. Those blessings received from the justice of God at maturity, plus the environment provided through the baptism of the Spirit, results in the mature believer possessing greater blessing than Adam and the woman had in the garden, and having an encapsulated environment for those blessings.

Principle #2

1. The newness of life provided through the baptism of the Spirit also includes positional freedom from producing good and evil. Not only are we free from the tyranny of good and evil but we are also free from having to produce good and evil.
2. The believer has no obligation to improve the devil's world through social action, socialism, welfare state, communism, environmentalism, or any social gospel, social action, getting involved, etc. We get the righteousness of God double; because we are in Christ. We are something special. We are taken at the moment of salvation. We share all that He has; this little addition is why we are royal family. We share everything that is Christ's due to current positional truth.
3. The human race is protected from Satan's policy of good and evil through the laws of divine establishment which promote freedom instead of improvement at the cost of freedom. The greater good for the greater number is evil.
4. In addition to the laws of divine establishment the believer is insulated from good and evil positionally^[2] through the baptism of the Spirit.
5. The newness of life mentioned at the end of the next verse includes freedom from the production of human good and evil.
6. While the production of divine good is not the means of blessing and reward from the justice of God, it is the spiritual result of spiritual advance to maturity. The more the believer grows spiritually the more becomes his production, but it is always a result, never a means. Spiritual growth is always the means; production is always the result.
7. Divorced from the useless activity of human good and the function of evil, the life of the believer can be devoted to glorifying the Lord Jesus Christ through maximum knowledge of Bible doctrine, which means the consistent function of GAP. As a result of this comes maturity and maximum blessing from the justice of God. It is that maximum blessing from the justice of God which glorifies God in the angelic conflict. Take in doctrine and wait for the Lord to open up ways to produce for Him.
8. It becomes necessary for us to become thoroughly cognizant of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil—Satan's policy as the ruler of this world. It is also the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life.
9. Because our original parents became involved with that tree, contrary to divine prohibition, they became spiritually dead. Satan became the ruler of the world. The old sin nature became the ruler of human life.

Romans 6:3 Or are you ignorant that all of us who have been baptized into Jesus Christ, into his spiritual death were baptized?

By the baptism of the Holy Spirit, the believer is moved from being subject to the sin nature.

Bob reads the first 11 verses of Romans 6.

There was only one doctrine of positional truth, from NB1. That is what is below. Some of the notes given from Bob were integrated into the existing doctrine.

The Doctrine of Positional Truth is reviewed in Lesson #238. This is not really matching up very well with the notes there.

The Doctrine of Positional Truth ["In Christ"]

1. Positional truth is being placed in Christ by the Holy Spirit, differentiating believers in the Church Age from all other believers.
2. The mechanics of positional truth are found in Acts 1:5; 1Corinthians 12:13 [mechanics]; Ephesians 4:5 [principle]. In other words, at the point of salvation every believer receives 36 things. Five of these are directly accomplished by God the Holy Spirit, one of which is the baptism of the Spirit whereby He takes us and enters us into union with Jesus Christ. This is what is different in the Church Age and what separates us from religion.
 - a. The non-imputation of good and evil at the cross is a part of this.
 - b. Adam's original sin is imputed to every person.
 - c. Eternal life given to us.
 - d. There are blessings in time and blessings in eternity; and this is based upon having the righteousness of God imputed to us.
 - e. This is one of the first things that the believer learns.
3. Positional truth belongs to the carnal as well as the spiritual believer, to the supergrace believer and the reversionist - 1Corinthians 1:2, 30.
4. Positional truth protects the believer from divine judgement in eternity. Being in union with Christ means that we share His life [eternal], His righteousness [+R, which means it is impossible for us to be judged at the great white throne], His sonship, His heirship, His priesthood, His election, His destiny, His kingship. Romans 8:1.
5. Positional sanctification qualifies the believer to live with God forever. If you are going to live with God forever there are certain things you must have: eternal life, +R - 1John 5:11,12; 2Corinthians 5:21. The believer enters into union with Christ, he shares the life of Christ, the righteousness of Christ, therefore he is qualified to live with God forever, he has the same kind of life that God has, the same kind of righteousness that God has.

- a. The baptism of the Spirit is unique; it is something that Moses and Abraham did not have.
 - b. With the privileges of royalty, God expects more. We have never seen so many believers acting like peasants rather than like the royalty that we are.
6. Positional truth explains both election and predestination. The principle is that in eternity past Jesus Christ was elected by God the Father, so Christ is elected. In electing Christ He also gave Him a destiny. When we enter into union with Christ we share the election of Christ, we share the destiny of Christ; therefore we are pre designed, foreordained by virtue of union with Christ. Remember that Christianity is a relationship: union with Christ, not a religion.
 7. Positional truth produces a new creature in Christ - 2Corinthians 5:17.
 8. Positional truth guarantees the eternal security of the believer - Romans 8:38,39.
 9. Positional truth exists in two categories: retroactive and current. When Jesus Christ died on the cross the sins of the old sin nature were poured out on Him and judged, human good was rejected. When we accept Christ as saviour we enter into union with Christ as He is seated at the right hand of the Father. But we also enter into union with Christ as He was upon the cross. We are identified with Christ in His death, we are identified with Christ in His resurrection and ascension. Retroactive positional truth is identification with Christ in His death - Romans 6; Colossians 2:12; 3:3. Current positional truth is identification with Christ in His resurrection.
 - a. Retroactive positional truth is being identified with the physical and spiritual deaths of the Lord and being identified with Him in His burial.
 - b. Current positional truth: identified with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session.
 - c. Both of these are involved in what we are studying.
 10. The implications of current positional truth. They all have to do with the fact that we share what Christ has. Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father, we share everything that Christ has and is.
 - a. Christ is eternal life - 1John 5:11,12.
 - b. Christ is absolute righteousness - 2Corinthians 5:21.
 - c. Christ is elected, we share His election - Ephesians 1:4.
 - d. Christ has a destiny, we share His destiny - Ephesians 1:5.
 - e. Christ is the Son, we are in union with Christ, we share His sonship - 2Timothy 2:1.
 - f. Christ is the heir, we share His heirship - Romans 8:16,17.
 - g. Christ is sanctified, we share His sanctification - 1Corinthians 1:2.
 - h. Christ is a King, we share His kingdom - 2Peter 1:11.
 - i. Christ is a high priest, we share His priesthood -Hebrews 10:10-14.
 11. The characteristics of positional truth.
 - a. It is not an experience, it is neither emotional nor ecstatics.
 - b. It is not progressive, it cannot be improved in time or in eternity.
 - c. It is not related to human merit or human good. Grace escalates divine good and excludes human good.

- d. Positional truth is eternal in nature, it will last forever.
- e. Positional truth is known only to the Word of God. This requires the function of GAP.
- f. Positional truth is obtained en toto at the moment of salvation. It is accomplished by means of the baptism of the Spirit, one of the 36 things we receive at the point of salvation.

By the time that we get to vv. 11–13, we will know how to live like royalty. These tongues people are acting like peasants. We will get newness of life, which is a spiritual aristocracy. How can you run around and be weirdo all of your life. We are challenged to become normal Christians rather than weirdos and cuckoo clocks.

Until we learn the policies of God's plan, we should keep our mouths shut. Deal with safe topics, like the weather. The weather is good; or the weather is bad today. But don't slip up and say, "The weather comes from God, you know."

The Corinthians, who were way out of line, they still were in Christ.

A new creature is dealing strictly with positional truth. It has nothing to do with giving up things that are obnoxious to society (and doubly obnoxious to fundies).

Bob goes back to the doctrine of positional truth to finish it off.

1977 Romans

Lesson #191

191 09/05/1977 Romans 6; Gen. 2:9, 16–17; 3:1–6 Tree of the knowledge of good and evil; human good; morality; trees in the Garden of Eden

We have a double portion in the field of life and in the field of righteousness.

Good and evil were not imputed; they were rejected. Positionally, we have rejected good and evil, which is the policy of Satan for human life. In the Lord's physical death and burial, He was completely separated from good and evil. We are separated from good and evil positionally because we are identified with Christ in His death, burial and resurrection.

To watch a ball going over a net back and forth is his idea of nothing to do. He quit golf and tennis at age 11. He could never understand why people like these sports so much. He could see it being okay if you could pull out a gun and shoot the net.

Genesis 2:9, 16; 3:1-6. "And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree" – in some case it was an individual tree and in other cases it was a group of trees – "being desirable to the sight"—designed for the soulish pleasure of the man, stimulation to the soul through observation, a reminder that God had provided everything for our original parents. There were four categories of trees, which were not provided in grace because there was no grace in the garden; grace comes after condemnation: a) designed for blessing, total stimulation through observation; b) designed for food, to satisfy and stimulate the human body (Bob likes to call these the chocolate trees³); c) the tree of lives in the middle of the garden, the tree that gave them their capacity for life and their enjoyment of perfect environment and of the Lord. This tree was actually the tree of positive volition and as they partook of this tree they had great capacity to appreciate all that God had provided. The only thing that would keep them of eating of this tree would be eating from the next tree, which was the tree of the knowledge of good and evil; d) the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Notice that sin was not an issue in the garden. Sin cannot be an issue when people are perfect.

There was no cancer and no bacteria. They had perfect health and perfect food. The trees were absolutely perfect all the way around. There was stimulation of the appetite and of the sight.

The trees are not in the garden out of grace. There is no grace in the Garden of Eden. There was no sin and no grace in the garden.

There had to have been a volitional test in the garden in order to resolve the Angelic Conflict. At the end, everything in the Angelic Conflict will be completely and totally resolved.

A perfect person can choose to create his own reality by going against God. Perfection was there and it was man himself who created the imperfections that existed.

Ponce DeLeon's fountain of youth was also found in the Garden of Eden (the tree of life).

Bob talks about the idea that perfection lasted for 1000 years like the Millennium.

The tree perfectly portrays, then, man's relationship with God in the garden. It was not a grace relationship but a God's love to man's perfection relationship. There was no sin, there was no grace, there was no involvement of the integrity of God. The whole system was love. Perfection was there and it was man himself that created the imperfections. The world was in a state of perfect environment and was restored for man's occupancy and for man's rulership. It was the dispensation of perfect environment.

Our problems in this life are related to good and evil. Some believers think that good and evil are related to the Christian way of life and that they are going to be rewarded.

Verse 16 – "And Jehovah Elohim commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden you may freely eat; but from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, you will not eat from it." That is a prohibition. Notice that good and evil is the policy, and the one thing that man did not need under perfect environment, the one thing he did not have to understand, was good and evil. Knowledge of good and evil was not necessary for a relationship with God in the garden. This tree was a test in the garden. There was no sin in the garden.

³ They tasted good and they were good for you.

“ . . . because that day you eat from it dying you will die.” “Dying” here refers to the old sin nature, it refers to spiritual death. The moment the old sin nature entered the cell structure of the body of Adam ageing began, but because of the perfection of the cell structure, from being in the garden, it took 930 years for him to die. Physical death is the result of ageing in the cell structure. All that was required for man in the garden to die was to commit one personal transgression. The woman’s transgression was a transgression of ignorance; Adam’s transgression was a transgression of cognizance. Therefore Adam’s sin is the only one that could be imputed to us. A sin of ignorance involves the woman in the guilt, but a sin of ignorance could not be imputed. Therefore we have the imputation of Adam’s sin, and that is the only personal sin ever involved in spiritual death. Our sins are never involved in spiritual death, spiritual death comes at birth when Adam’s sin is imputed.

3:1—“Now the serpent was also more crafty/clever than any lower creature in the field which Jehovah Elohim had manufactured. So he said to the woman, Is it really true that Elohim has said, You shall not eat from every tree of the garden?”

Verses 2,3 – “And the woman replied to the serpent, We may eat from the fruit of the trees of the garden; but from the fruit of the tree which is in the middle of the garden, Elohim has said, You shall not eat from it”--and that is what He did say, but she adds to what He said—“neither shall you touch it,” which He did not say. All of this time she hasn’t even touched it because she has been thinking, If I touch it I’ll die, “lest you die.”

Verse 4 – “And the serpent said to the woman, Definitely you will not die”—Satan always says that God is a liar. That is the whole principle of the angelic conflict. God can only give that which is true, and therefore it is truth which causes us to grow. We never grow by doing things, we grow by learning truth.

Verse 5 – “For Elohim keeps knowing that in the day you eat from it that the eyes of your soul shall be opened and you will become like God.” That is how he appealed to her. He suggested that the only way that God could keep her down and under His thumb was to keep her away from that tree. If she ate of it she would be as smart as God!—“knowing good and evil.” God knows all about good and evil. The woman in her relationship didn’t need to know about good and evil. See the emphasis: not mention of sin. Violation of the prohibition is the original sin.

Verse 6 – “And when the woman saw that the tree was good^[3] for food, and was an object of desire to the eyes, and to cause one to be knowing, she took from the fruit, and ate, then she gave to her husband with her; and he ate.”

Cæsar was a wench, but he did more for Rome and the world at large than any other man. People can have integrity, despite the fact that they sin. Establishment and integrity are fundamental to character. Establishment and integrity demand the suppression of crime. Crime violates the freedom, property and privacy of others. This means that a criminal cannot have integrity.

The Doctrine of Human Good is covered (this is a repeat), and it has already been done in this series. Human Good from Lesson #46.

Lesson #192

192 09/06/1977 Romans 6 Brain cf. mentality; anti-gun legislation; principles re human and satanic good and evil

South Africa reserves the right to use its nuclear potential for other than peaceful purposes, as is found in the news. He names Carter specifically.

First prayer in Congress:

Adams then quotes from part of Psalm 35 to his wife Abigail: "Plead my cause, O Lord, with them that strive with me; fight against them that fight against me; take hold of shield and buckler, and stand up for my help; draw out also the spear, and stop the way against them."

As recorded by Headley, Duche' prayed:

"O Lord, our Heavenly Father, high and mighty, King of kings and Lord of lords, who dost from thy throne behold all the dwellers on earth, and reignest with power supreme and uncontrolled over all kingdoms, empires and governments, look down, we beseech thee, on these our American States, who have fled to thee from the rod of the oppressor, and thrown themselves on thy gracious protection, desiring henceforth to be dependent only on thee - to thee have they appealed for the righteousness of their cause - to thee do they now look up for that countenance and support which thou alone canst give. Take them, therefore, Heavenly Father, under thy nurturing care, give them wisdom in council, and valor in the field. Defeat the malicious designs of our cruel adversaries. Convince them of the unrighteousness of their cause, and if they still persist in their sanguinary purpose, O let the voice of thine own unerring justice sounding in their hearts constrain them to drop the weapons of war from their unnerved hands in the day of battle.

Be thou present, O God of wisdom, and direct the councils of this honorable Assembly. Enable them to settle things on the best and surest foundation, that the scene of blood may be speedily closed - that order, harmony, and peace may be effectually restored, and truth and justice, religion and piety may prevail and flourish amongst thy people. Preserve the health of their bodies and the vigor of their minds. Shower on them and the millions they here represent such temporal blessings as thou seest expedient for them in this world, and crown them with everlasting glory in the world to come. All this we ask in the name and through the merits of Jesus Christ thy Son, our Savior. Amen."

This was one of those moments in history that captured the moving of God's Spirit. Washington was there with Patrick Henry, John Randolph, Richard Henry Lee and John Jay along with John and Samuel Adams of Massachusetts. In all, 56 delegates from every colony except Georgia attended. John Adams wrote "It was enough to melt a heart of stone. I saw the tears gush into the eyes of the old, grave Pacific Quakers of Philadelphia." Amazingly, Jacob Duche, who had been used so mightily in that hour and throughout the year of 1775, when he saw things go badly in 1776 and 1777, turned away from his country, ran to the British, and fled Philadelphia for England. But let us remember that God reigns, not mankind. The Scripture read by Duche, ordained by God, and then spontaneously prayed, inspired a group of patriots who began their deliberations on their knees. This is what must happen again - oh may the Spirit of God fill delegates and move our Congressional halls again!

We don't hear prayers like that anywhere else these days.

A distinction should be made between Satanic (or human good) and morality, which is establishment good. This is all found in Romans 13:1-7. A corrected translation is read.

The last few points of the doctrine of Human Good from Lesson #46 are completed.

Satan has people working under his program to achieve the Millennium before God can. The key is not knowing specific people on a football team; so you only have to read what is happening on the field based upon their numbers. The parallel is, we understand Satan and his plan and we can figure out what he is doing. Apparently there is a change where certain players on the team have certain numbers. #1-19 is a quarterback or a kicker. This is rightly divided the game of football.

"We have fall in Texas one day before Thanksgiving."

Evil is a factor that the believer must constantly face. We are to understand as believers what was judged on the cross. What was not dealt with on the cross was our greatest enemy, which is evil. Therefore, we must deal with it through the provision of logistical grace.

Religion, which is evil, has infiltrated the local churches. We will see our members mentioned in v. 13. We are to put ourselves under orders to our... The specific part of the body that is always a sucker for evil is the brain. Mentality is the soul; mentality and the brain work hand-in-hand. The brain is the computer. This computer is filled with concepts of evil concepts (good and evil in the brain). This is physiological; and the mentality is in the soul, which is not a part of the body. We face evil constantly because of the genetic presence in the brain. We have collected all kinds of good and evil in our brains. We accept this data unless there is doctrine in the soul to counter it.

Hebrews 5:13-14 For everyone partaking of milk is ignorant of doctrine [Adam's original sin is imputed to the sin nature at birth. That human life always remains in your soul and your soul remains intact. A brain could go right through your brain turning it into goo, and the brain is destroyed but the soul is not shattered or divided up and that soul still have life in it. That soul is not even bruised, even if you fell face first on a claymore mine. You cannot blow up a soul. You can use your toe to shoot off a shotgun pointed at your head and you can destroy your brain but not your soul. These imputations all of a purpose and they offset good and evil.] pertaining to righteousness. [our point of reference since the garden has been the righteousness of God. When man fell, the justice of God did two things. Abraham did not lose his maturity blessings when he went into the tent of Hagar. Same for David. Both retained their blessings and both were disciplined. At salvation, 36 things comes through the pipe. But the outstanding blessings come at the point of maturity. Solid food, advanced doctrine, belongs to the mature believer.] because of self-discipline, they keep having their perceptive faculties [which pour into the computer Bible doctrine, which changes the information about good and evil.

Hebrews 5:12–14 For also because of the time [national crisis] being obligated to be communicators of divine viewpoint [in time of crisis], you require once more teaching of certain things, the elementary principles of the doctrines from God; and you have become ones having need of milk, and not of solid food. for everyone partaking of milk is ignorant of doctrine pertaining to royal righteousness because he is immature. But solid food [advanced doctrine] is belonging to the mature [the growing believer or the one who has reached supergrace], the ones because of self-discipline keep having their perceptive faculties well-trained with reference to differentiating between both the honorable and the evil.” R. B. Thieme, Jr.’s Corrected Translation

1Corinthians 13:5

We are born with this stuff. Most born again believers spend their lives fueling their brains with good and evil, after getting involved in so-called Christian works.

Bob has had the greatest breakthroughs in the past 3 weeks.

We all have a problem; we all of the sin nature in every cell of our body; 46 chromosomes, which explain why we are different from others. The frustration of Romans 7:19. Desiring to do the good, and yet the evil is always present. The only way to counteract this is by having Bible doctrine in the right lobe. Even legitimate things are distorted.

Some people are so dumb that they cannot do evil on their own, but they have to imitate others who are doing evil. They don’t know what it is all about. They think that they are helping someone. Beloved, do not be imitators of the evil, but be imitators of the absolute good.

How can you have your prayers answered, if your soul is always pushing good and evil?

He who keeps the royal command...for a wise right lobe knows the proper time and the correct procedures.

False doctrine creates an evil. Evil is a distortion of doctrine. Establishment came first and is the protection of the unbeliever. Evil has become something that we have come to accept. Like social security and almost any form of welfare. Governmental abuses of power here. The rise of bureaucracies created by all three branches. But they are supposed to be the servants of the people and not the masters of the people.

Industry has been chosen to pay the way for every branch of government. Labor will make industry pay for their attempt to grab the power.

Bob talks about some bill (HB1096) which is being presented to reduce the freedom to own guns. All kinds of evil; turning law-abiding citizens into criminals, turning human good into evil.

The Second Amendment says that the people have the right to bear arms; not the militia.

Satan constantly tries to violate the laws of divine establishment. Of the 40 million Americans who own guns, only a small percentage, less than 1%, actually violate the law. The Sullivan Law sends people to jail in NY for using guns to protect themselves.

Killing is a matter of volition in the soul. It is the function of the brain; it is an emotion. They should have anti-emotion legislation.

The old sin nature cannot be legislated out of existence. Keep folding your arms. The person who is not armed is impoverished.

Luke 11:20–21 “If I, by the finger of God, cast out demons. Then the kingdom of God has come to you.” Then Jesus gives an example of a strong man guarding his own home who uses arms to protect his home and things.

1977 Romans

Lesson #193

193 09/07/1977 Romans 6:4a Review of verses 1–3; distortion of "yield" and grace

We have studied the integrity of God, which is made up of God's righteousness and justice. In the garden, man's point of reference was the love of God. After Adam's sin, the point of reference became God's justice. Everything that Adam and the woman needed was provided for; but there was one tree, the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. This tested their volition. Our original parents did not need to know anything about good and evil. Man and God renewed this contract on a day-to-day basis. Physiology was changed; and the sin nature became a part of the human body.

The fall of man caused a brand new ball game. The justice of God provides both cursing and blessing. It is always one sin that is imputed to us for spiritual death.

The two imputations at birth—human life to the human soul (and this continues forever). At the same time, Adam's original sin is imputed to the sin nature. Our personal sins are not imputed; they are held in reserve for the cross, where they are imputed as a judicial imputation.

The cross makes 3 adjustments to the justice of God. The first is the imputation of eternal life to its divinely prepared home (which takes place when we believe in Jesus Christ). The righteousness of God of imputed by the justice of God, setting up the grace pipeline, having the justice of God on one end and the righteousness of God on the other.

The integrity of God never changes. He is immutable.

With these imputations, we will have the choice to place ourselves under orders or under a system of authority; or whether we continue with the authority of the sin nature. If you function under the control of the sin nature, then you acts in accordance with good and evil, which is programed into the brain. To counter this, ths process has to reverse. The daily function of gap has to reprogram the brain so that divine viewpoint prevails in our lives. Anything that we can do, any system like the welfare state or socialism, comes from the sin nature. Improving the devil's world is not our function in life.

Man can do nothing to compromise the integrity of God. God does not need our help; we need His help. We need His righteousness and His grace provision.

Only God can glorify God; we can only glorify God by using what He has provided.

When man is not influenced by Bible doctrine or by divine establishment, then he drifts toward theological and social liberalism.

The integrity of God is not arbitrary. God is God. He must reject self-righteousness; He must reject good and evil. Justification is not simply subtraction (of sin); it is also addition (the righteousness of God imputed to us).

- V. 1 question about the sin nature
- vv. 2–13 is the answer to that
- vv. 14–15 distortion of grace
- vv. 16–23 are the options in the Christian life.

Grace is associated with the integrity of God; it is not associated with our sins. All personal sins were not greater than grace. They were imputed to Jesus Christ, and for three hours, He screamed because of them. The love of God the Father for His Son had to be set aside, so that our sins could be paid for. This was not a blessing for Jesus Christ to receive all the sins of the world and to receive the as a judicial imputation and to be judged for them. Grace is never increased and never multiplied by sin. What would you do logically? You would sin! Grace is increased by the intake of Bible doctrine; it is increased by the reprogramming of the brain.

More than any other book, Romans brings out the genius of Paul. To understand Romans, you must understanding the thinking and genius of the human author.

Fundies never realize that some of their hymns are against God; are anti-grace. Putting information into the computer and getting good and evil to come out of the brain.

Your brain can take 100 bullets and they will destroy the brain but not the soul.

Bible doctrine eliminates sloppy thinking, which is the false conclusion that sin increases grace.

Grace is the policy of God; and it is a genius policy. Too many want legalism and grace to stand side-by-side. To understand grace, you have to understand a lot of doctrine. And what we cannot understand, we reject (being good Texans). Grace increases only through spiritual growth.

We are recipients of a double portion, having the eternal life of God the Father and of God the Son. If there is anyone who should understand Romans 6, it should be those listening to this lesson.

Romans 6:3 Or are you ignorant that all of us who have been baptized into Jesus Christ, into his spiritual death were baptized?

Water does not baptize us into Jesus Christ. The baptism of the Holy Spirit baptizes us into Christ. All personal sin was judged at the cross; good and evil was not judged. God and evil must continue to the end of the Millennium. The ruling power of good and evil has been broken. While Satan is the ruler of this world, the sin nature is the sovereign over the person. The believer has a newness of love. This is re-programming our brain. Blessings received at maturity are greater than the blessing of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden.

The newness of life has positional freedom. The human race is protected from the policy of good and evil. We are insulated against this by the newness of life. Divorced from the useless activity of good and evil, the believer can continue with maximum blessing. We need to be thoroughly cognizant of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Through this, Satan pulled the great coup d'état in this world.

Romans 6:4 Therefore we were buried with Him through baptism into death, so that, just as Christ was raised up out from the dead by the glory of the Father, so we also should walk in newness of life.

Romans 6:4 – “Therefore we have been buried together with him.” The idea of being buried with a dead person may not appeal as a living person. This is a spiritual concept, a principle that occurred at salvation. The aorist passive indicative of the verb, suntháptō (συνθάπτω) [pronounced soon-THAP-toe] means to be buried with someone. We are united with Christ in His death. Why is it burial and not simply death? His body was uncontaminated in His body, because the Holy Spirit saw to the perfection of the cell structure of Jesus Christ. When His body went into the grave, He was without a sin nature for his entire life. Not once was He under the sovereign rule of the sin nature. We are, through union with Jesus Christ, free positionally from the sin nature as the Lord is. This is true while we are in fellowship. The aorist tense is a constative aorist which refers to a momentary action that occurred at the point of salvation, a momentary action that is related to our Lord's physical death and burial on the cross. He died physically and was buried shortly thereafter. In Christ's physical death He was still perfect in Himself, impeccable. He still had a cell structure totally free from the old sin nature, therefore He had no trends toward sin, toward good, toward evil, which are the trends of the old sin nature. He did not have a body of corruption. The judicial imputation of all sins had occurred, they had been judged by the justice of God as a part of the spiritual death. At the same time as the saving work on the cross occurred, good and evil as the policy of Satan and the function of the sin nature had been rejected. Good and evil was not judged on the cross, for good and evil must continue as an issue in the angelic conflict throughout all human history. In His death and burial Jesus was totally separated, totally free from good and evil. Through retroactive positional truth we are identified with Christ in His death and burial through the baptism of the Spirit. We as believers, then, are positionally separated from good and evil. Since good and evil had been rejected positionally they also can be rejected experientially through a phrase which simply says, "Walking in newness of life." Hence, the positional break with good and evil makes possible the experiential victory over good and evil in the devil's world. Identification with Christ in His physical death and burial is positional separation from good and evil. Identification with Christ in His physical death and resurrection is positional victory which breaks the power and the authority of good and evil, both as the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and as the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life. The passive voice of the verb suntháptō (συνθάπτω) [pronounced soon-THAP-toe]: the believer receives the action by being identified with Christ in His physical death and burial. The result of this identification is a positional manumission from good and evil. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. The reality is the baptism of the Holy Spirit, one of the 36 things which occurs at salvation, never seen, never felt, nor experienced; it is the basis for retroactive positional truth.

1977 Romans

Lesson #194

194 09/08/1977 Romans 6:4a Church Age believer's identification with Jesus Christ's spiritual and physical death; burial & rejection of good and evil

Bob reminds us that this is the most important thing that we do, despite the fact that the Dallas Cowboys just kicked off to the Stealers.

It took 980 years for Adam's body to wear out. He lived under much better conditions. The body has the corruption. The soul is in the body residing there as a temporary residence. The soul leaves the body on death.

We carry around our own computer and we have to program our computer. Whether you know it or not, since you learned to talk and became aware of your own existence, you have been a computer operator. No matter what path that we digress into, we always come down to the fact that Bible doctrine is more important than anything else.

In the spiritual death of Christ, we have the judicial imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross. Non-imputation of good and evil. These continue to be issues in human history. The issue in salvation is not how many sins that we have done, but the issue is Jesus. Personal sin is not an issue in salvation. This is only an issue to Jesus Christ, as He was the recipient.

Grace is never sponsored or increased by sin.

Apparently people attended funerals and the concubines and wives were killed with the husband who died. The British Empire was the greatest thing to happen to India. Up to 1910, the British empire was the greatest thing to happen to world history at that time. Millions of Indians saved and millions of Africans saved as well. The British in England in Africa and they ended cannibalism. The British saw the killing of the women in India, so they ended that.

We are said to be buried with Christ right here. Since this is a fact that started at salvation, it becomes obvious that this is not a literal burial (added to the fact of an elapse of 1900 years).

What does physical death and burial of Jesus Christ mean? Jesus still had a cell structure totally free of the sin nature, even in death. His cell structure was perfect even there. And when He was buried, He still had a perfect cell structure. Does it decompose? Possibly not, as there was no sin nature. Possibly yes, because the blood coagulated so that blood and serum exited the Lord's side when He was stabbed while still hanging on the cross.

Positionally, we are separate from good and evil.

A repeat of points about good and evil; and how there are these born again believers in Congress supporting legislation which is nothing more or less than good and evil. The UN is a good and evil factory.

Many of you are supporters of what the Bible would classify as good and evil.

Romans 6:4 Therefore we were buried with Him through baptism into death, so that, just as Christ was raised up out from the dead by the glory of the Father, so we also should walk in newness of life.

Some of the notes will come from the previous paragraph.

With this verb, "we are buried together," we have an instrumental singular of association from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτοῦ) [pronounced ow-TOSS], referring to the Lord Jesus Christ. The intensive pronoun is designed in Koine Greek for emphasizing identity, for emphasizing someone who is important. No one is more important to us than the Lord Jesus Christ our saviour, the unique person of the universe. In the Greek New Testament it is legitimate to translate an intensive pronoun not as "the same," but by using a personal pronoun. So we employ here the personal pronoun to give it the force necessary. The Lord Jesus Christ is in view. In the instrumental of association a second party must furnish the association. The second party is the Holy Spirit who furnishes the association by one of His five ministries at salvation: the baptism of the Spirit. Then a prepositional phrase, dia plus the genitive of baptisma (βάπτισμα) [pronounced BAP-tis-mah], "baptism"— "through baptism."

“into death” – eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], a reference to the physical death of Christ on the cross which immediately preceded His burial. Plus the accusative singular of the definite article used as a possessive pronoun—“into his death.”

Principle

1. Identification with Christ in His spiritual death on the cross means rejection of good and evil. Good and evil has not been imputed, it is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world, the function of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life, the old sin nature rules through spiritual death.
2. Identification with Christ in His physical death on the cross means separation from good and evil.
3. The justice of God separated personal sins from good and evil at the cross.
4. Only personal sins were imputed to Christ on the cross for judgment and salvation provision.
5. Good and evil were rejected for imputation that good and evil might continue to be the issue in history in the angelic conflict.
6. Good and evil will be judged in the future, both at the beginning of the Millennium when Satan is judged and at the end of the Millennium when the Gog and Magog revolt/revolution is suppressed. At that time also human good will be used as the basis for the indictment at the last judgment.

Sometimes, the evangelist spends so much time talking about sins that he obscures the way of salvation. Evangelism is a tragedy and a travesty today.

In the final judgment, our sins are not trotted out; but the books of works are opened and those are trotted out. The unbelievers good works are the basis for their condemnation.

Then comes a protasis and an apodosis. “that like as Christ was raised up from the dead” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] introduces a final clause, denoting a purpose, an aim, an objective: “that” or “in order that.” Then comes the conjunction which introduces the protasis of a comparative clause, hōsper (ὥσπερ) [pronounced HOO-sper]. The apodosis will be introduced by houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], generally translated “and, so” or “just as,” and “so” for the apodosis. Plus the aorist passive indicative of the verb egeirō (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-Ī-row] for “resurrection.” It means to raise up but in the passive it is used for the resurrection of Christ.

Hence, “in order that as Christ has been raised up.”

This is a culminative aorist tense, it views the resurrection of Christ in its entirety but emphasizes the existing results which, in this context, are related to the baptism of the Holy Spirit and the believer’s identification with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session. In other words, our identification with Christ who is seated at the right hand of the Father. The passive voice: Christ receives the action of the verb through two agencies. God the Father had a part in the resurrection of Christ—Colossians 2:12; 1Thessalonians

1:10; 1Peter 1:21. God the Holy Spirit had a part in the resurrection of Christ—Acts 2:24; Romans 1:4; 8:11; 1Peter 3:18. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine—the fact of the bodily, physical, literal resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. The baptism of the Spirit gives us a spiritual identification. It is true that in the future we will have a body exactly like that of our Lord.

Two general resurrections: Alpha company is Jesus, Who has already be resurrected. Then Bravo company, which is us, believers of the Church Age. We are the royal family, so logically we would be next. Charley Company will pass in review at the end of the Tribulation. Delta company will be those who lived through the Millennium.

The resurrection of Christ is in view here with the aorist passive of egeirō (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-Ī-row]. Christ is the one resurrected at this time. At this moment in history only the Lord Jesus Christ has a resurrection body. Our identification with Him is a spiritual identification, just as our identification with Him on the cross and in the burial of our Lord was a spiritual identification. These spiritual identifications are brought about through the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

“from the dead” – ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative plural from the adjective nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS]. Nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] was a noun from the time of Homer and an adjective from the time of Pindar. The noun denotes a dead person or dead body, e.g. “dead ones.” While the adjective means dead and is used of both man and animals, in the Septuagint nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] is used for the Hebrew meth and muth, and this tells us that when it is used as a noun it means deceased as well as a dead body. So you can have two translations: “raised from dead ones” or “raised from deaths.” Nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] is also used for inanimate objects, especially idols which were called nekroi or “dead things.” In the New Testament nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] is used as a noun meaning “dead” in distinction from the living. If this prepositional phrase, ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS], had a definite article then it would mean that Christ was raised up or resurrected from among dead ones. But there is no definite article. We have simply ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] nekron without the definite article where you go to the use of Pindar instead of Homer—“from deaths.” Since this phrase is referring to our Lord’s resurrection it is referring to His resurrection from two deaths: the spiritual death which is the imputation of all of our personal sins to Christ on the cross and the physical death which occurred because His saving work was finished while He was still alive— tetelesthai (τε-τελέ-σθαι) [pronounced teh-tehl-EH-sthigh].

Romans 6:4a “Therefore we have been buried together with him through the baptism of the Spirit into his death: in order that as Christ has been raised up from deaths.”

Lesson #195

195 09/09/1977 Romans 6:4b Brain (computer) re drugs and programming with doctrine; "newness of life"

Romans 6:4 Therefore we were buried with Him through baptism into death, so that, just as Christ was raised up out from the dead by the glory of the Father, so we also should walk in newness of life.

“by the glory of the Father” – the prepositional phrase, dia with the genitive singular from the definite article, plus the genitive singular of doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah]. This is the generic use of the definite article with the noun doxa (δόξα) [pronounced DOHX-ah] to comprehend all the attributes of God (= glory of God). They are gathered together into a single whole here in distinction to all other attributes of rational creatures, whether angelic or human. The possessive genitive singular from the definite article with the proper name is not unusual. Frequently the definite article is used with the name of God whose identity is clear in the context and familiar to the readers. So it is assumed that God the Father is well known to the readers and next is the possessive genitive singular from patēr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR] for the first person of the Trinity—“through the glory of God the Father.” Glory refers here to all of the attributes of God. This verse emphasizes the function of God the Father in raising Christ from the dead, as also does Colossians 2:12; 1Thessalonians 1:10; 1Peter 1:21.

Eternal life is imputed at the new birth just as soul life is imputed at birth.

Now we have the apodosis of this comparative clause which begins with the phrase, “even so we also should walk in newness of life.” This apodosis is designed in a comparative clause in order to introduce us to the fact that it is possible for us as members of the royal family of God to have an experiential victory equivalent to what God has provided positionally. But this depends on certain distinctions which are important to us, distinctions which recognize the difference between a real and a judicial imputation. At birth we have those two real imputations which provide spiritual death. Human life is imputed by God to the soul. At the same time Adam’s original sin, the only sin that is involved in spiritual death, is imputed to the genetically-formed old sin nature. We have as a result of this, spiritual death. But because only one sin is involved in our spiritual death this reserves all personal sins in the history of the human race for that judicial imputation which is the greater part of the saving work of the Lord Jesus. His saving work on the cross includes the judicial imputation of all sins and the judgment of those sins. As we approach the cross, salvation adjustment to the justice of God, personal faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, there are two imputations which are extremely important. One is judicial and one is real.

The judicial imputation: the justice of God imputes the righteousness of God to each one of us, setting up a grace pipeline. All divine blessing comes through the grace pipeline and is encapsulated by the integrity of God. Justice is on one end, righteousness is on the other, so that there can be no penetration into this pipeline with anything that is false—any legalism, any system of good, any system of legitimate good, no personality change, no talents, no ability of any kind. The pipeline is the source, then, of the salvation blessings as well as blessings related to maturity adjustment to the justice of God. It is protected by the integrity of God in such a way through this encapsulation that we have security with these blessings. Any blessing that flows through this pipe is secured by the integrity of God, not by any personal maintenance of self-righteousness, morality or system or function of the individual. There is nothing we can do, it is what God has accomplished. Therefore this pipeline is encapsulated to guarantee that the other 35 things that we receive at salvation and which flow through this pipe and are received by the righteousness of God are permanent. Then there are no other blessings which flow through the pipeline until we crack the maturity barrier. Then the pipeline is opened again by the justice of God. In the meantime we are sustained by logistical grace—everything that God provides for us to take in doctrine.

The apodosis of the comparative clause states the application of retroactive positional truth. It is introduced by the adverb houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. The adjunctive use of kai is translated “so also.” The comparative clause introduces analogies through the purpose of elucidation. However, the believer must understand the doctrine of the protasis in order to comprehend the application of the apodosis. So from the doctrine of the baptism of the Holy Spirit and subsequent retroactive positional truth stated in the protasis comes the application of walking in newness of life. The word “we” is found as a separate personal pronoun as the subject. It is the nominative plural subject from the pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], the personal pronoun which also emphasizes the difference between the body and the soul. It refers to the life, the real you.

“should walk” is the aorist active subjunctive of the verb peripateō (περιπατέω) [pronounced per-ee-paht-EH-oh]. The word was derived from the concept of pateō (πατέω) [pronounced paht-EH-oh] for motion and peri which means motion away from a centre. In other words, this centre is one foot on the ground and the other foot is in the air and then suddenly down and in motion. It had a connotation of motion and thrust, and others such as energy, balance, orientation, purpose, all of the things necessary for walking. Here we are interested in an individual walking and what is meant here in this verse. All of the factors in walking are involved in the Christian way of life. We are given the ability for a new type of walking.

A spiritual birth means a spiritual type of walking. The energy is spiritual from the Spirit and from the Word. The balance and coordination is spiritual from the Word, the orientation is spiritual from the Word, and the purpose is spiritual from the Word. All of these also relate to the body part where the old sin nature dwells, and the emphasis here is that in a spiritual walk the spiritual controls the physical, for the physical or the corporal is where the old sin nature dwells.

Adam and the woman had the potential of violating the potential of God.

Because of our retroactive identification with Christ in His physical death, in His spiritual death, and in His burial we have two categories from these three activities. First of all we are identified with Christ in His spiritual death, the imputation of personal sins, but at the same time the non-imputation of good and evil—the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life. Good and evil were rejected in spiritual death. Positionally we have rejected good and evil. In physical death and burial Christ was separated from good and evil so that our identification with Christ in His physical death and burial we are also totally separated from good and evil positionally. These positional factors must be brought into the experiential realm.

Because of rejection of good and evil and because of separation from good and evil positionally we are now, because of this positional factor, able to walk in newness of life. Newness of life means freedom from the sovereignty of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life. The culminative aorist tense views the Christian life in its entirety but regards it from the standpoint of existing results—the potential for newness of life as the result of the baptism of the Spirit. The active voice: the nominative plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] produces the action of the verb. In other words, “we” refers to all believers in the Lord Jesus Christ. This is a potential subjunctive mood which separates the baptism of the Spirit as a secondary potential from the reality of environment for mature blessings by freedom from the rule of the old sin nature. The link which keeps the baptism of the Spirit from providing grace environment for the believer’s mature blessing is capacity. Translation: “so also we might walk.” The potential subjunctive indicates the fact that whether you ever reach newness of life or not is dependant entirely on your attitude toward Bible doctrine. Doctrine is the basis of newness of life.

The one of the most detrimental things to the body is the use of drugs. From marijuana on, all of these things are vicious. They cannot destroy the soul; but they destroy the neurons of the brain. Drug addiction can no more destroy the soul than a claymore mine set next to the head. You can scatter your brains all over. The computer gets destroyed, but it will not destroy the soul. We have a soul; and there is life in the soul; and the home for human life is that soul. That life will never leave your soul. That life remains in your soul forever. When God does something for a person, saved or unsaved, it is permanent. We have life; we always will have life; and the issue is, where will that life take us?

There will be nothing that can be done for the unbeliever after death. They will have that same life after death, but they will be in maximum pain for all eternity. Every soul in life can make the choice. This time, the tree is the cross; before, it was the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

At the Judgment Seat of Christ, all of our good deeds will form the basis for our indictment.

We have a second righteousness. We are made the righteousness of God in Him (2Corinthians 5:21).

“in newness of life” – the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative singular of the adjective kainótēs (καινότης) [pronounced kahee-NOHT-ace] which means not “newness” but it means unusual or astonishing. It really doesn’t mean “newness,” it means unusual, astonishing, extraordinary. There are two basic adjectives for “new,” neos/neōteros (νέος/νεώτερος) [pronounced NEH-os,neh-OH-ter-os] and kainos (καινός) [pronounced kahee-NOSS]. Neos/neōteros (νέος/νεώτερος) [pronounced NEH-os,neh-OH-ter-os] is an adjective which connotes what has not occurred before, whereas kainos (καινός) [pronounced kahee-NOSS] connotes what is new in the sense of being remarkable, unheard of. “Newness” is all right because anything that is unusual or astounding is also new. So we can stay with “in newness of life” but it must be understood that behind this newness is the unusual, the astonishing, the extraordinary. Plus the descriptive genitive singular of zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY]—“life.”

Potential + capacity = reality. Potential = the baptism of the Holy Spirit and resultant retroactive positional truth which breaks the ruling power of the old sin nature in human life. Capacity = maximum doctrine resident in the soul resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Reality = the grace environment of maturity blessings from the justice of God, an encapsulated environment, something new.

Romans 6:4 Therefore, we have been buried together with him [Christ] through baptism of the Spirit into his [physical] death: in order that as Christ has been raised up from deaths [spiritual & physical] to the glory of god the Father, so also we might [potential] walk in newness of life.

The potential depends upon attitude toward doctrine.

Newness of Life

1. Newness of life is the grace environment provided through the baptism of the Spirit for the blessings of the justice of God to the mature believer.
2. Newness of life provides something better than Adam had in the garden of Eden.
3. Newness of life is freedom from the policy and the plan of Satan as the ruler of the world.
4. Newness of life is freedom from the sovereignty of the old sin nature as the ruler of life.
5. Walking in newness of life is the modus vivendi of the mature believer.
6. Hence, newness of life is a descriptive term for the blessings, the security, the grace environment of the new believer.
7. Therefore, newness of life is the modus operandi of the mature believer.
8. Newness of life does not refer to the status quo of the immature believer, the baby or the adolescent (sophomore). It only refers to the one who has cracked the maturity barrier.
9. Newness of life refers to life on the other side of the maturity barrier.
10. Note that the newness of life is potential (the potential subjunctive of peripateô (περιπατέω) [pronounced per-ee-paht-EH-oh]) and this potentiality can only be converted into reality through the capacity factor—maximum doctrine resident in the soul. You cannot lose what God has given you through the grace pipeline.
11. The principle: The believer does not grow spiritually through production but through the perception of doctrine.
12. Therefore there is no substitute for Bible doctrine resident in the soul.

David has blessings from God that he did not lose. We fail God, but He never fails us. His integrity is involved and the grace pipeline is encapsulated. Both David and Abraham were blessed, including material blessings, which they did not lose even under temporal discipline from God.

Bob realizes that what he is teaching can be problematic for the weirdos, six of which are in attendance that night. They will figure out that they need to reach maturity as quickly as possible so that they can involve themselves in some great sins that they were thinking of. There is security in what God provides after salvation. Solomon was a mature believer when he took the throne, but he took a nosedive into discipline. He even lost his right woman (which is the Song of Solomon). Both Solomon and David were kings by the grace of God. They were kings as mature believers and they retained their kingship. Whatever comes down through the grace pipeline, you keep.

1977 Romans

Lesson #196

196 09/11/1977 Romans 6:5a Evil U.S. government policies; doctrine of retroactive positional truth

A review of imputations. 3 adjustments to the justice of God. All blessings come through the integrity of God pipeline but the righteousness of God is imputed to us.

in current positional truth, we are entered into union with Him.

Romans 6:5 For if we have become united in the likeness of His death, certainly also we will be of the resurrection,...

Verse 5 – positional truth in a conditional sentence. Conditional sentences are designed with a protasis [the “if” clause] and an apodosis [the conclusion]. The protasis is always an assumption from reality—1st class reality; non-reality—2nd class condition; a possible assumption, contingency assumption—3rd class condition; a wish in the assumption—4th class condition, and an apodosis is a conclusion from the wish. Here we have a 1st class condition, an assumption from the reality of Bible doctrine, and from this the apodosis draws the conclusion. The protasis: “For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death” – it begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle gar. This particle is used to explain retroactive and current positional truth in a conditional sentence. Then comes the conditional conjunction ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] plus the indicative mood—“if,” used to introduce a first class condition, a supposition from the viewpoint of reality. This is an actual truth. In the premise we have retroactive positional truth, and in the conclusion of the apodosis we have current positional truth. Plus the perfect active indicative of the verb gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my] which means to become, to come to pass. It is used here of a person who has changed their nature by entering into a condition, so it is translated literally, “For if we have become.” The perfect tense of gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my] is the intensive perfect, it indicates the completed action with emphasis on existing results. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb through the baptism of the Spirit at salvation. The intensified result follows our faith in Christ, the baptism of the Spirit puts us in union with Christ in His death, His burial, resurrection, ascension and session. The indicative mood is declarative to indicate a reality of doctrine. This is a fact that occurs during the Church Age for each one of us as members of the royal family of God.

“planted together in the likeness of his death” – the predicate nominative plural from sumfutoj. The word means to be united with something, to grow together with something. Here it means intimately united. This is a reference to retroactive positional truth or identification with Christ in His death and burial. Plus the dative singular indirect object from homoíōma (ὁμοίωμα) [pronounced hom-OY-oh-mah], which means, likeness, and it does mean “likeness,” but it also means “form” or “copy.” It has a definite article in front of it to denote a previous reference in the context. i.e. the baptism of the Holy Spirit. Plus the descriptive genitive singular of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], referring to death, the spiritual death of Christ on the cross where the sins of the human race were imputed to Christ and judged. Plus the definite article, denoting again a previous reference to spiritual death in the context (v. 3), and the possessive genitive singular from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], used as a possessive pronoun to emphasize the uniqueness of the spiritual death of Christ on the cross. First of all, the uniqueness of His person. He was unique from the standpoint the virgin pregnancy. He did not have the imputation of Adam’s sin. It was the unique spiritual death referred to by thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] in which our Lord was judged for our sins, but at the same time rejecting by non-imputation the good and evil as the policy of Satan and the function of the old sin nature.

Translation of Romans 6:5a: “For if we have become intimately united to the likeness of his death [and we have through retroactive positional truth].”^[4]

Indiana was going to leave the union, so Lincoln bribed states. To gain the freedom of some, he took away the freedoms of many.

We are close to losing all of the freedom that we have enjoyed; and this is the intensification of human good. When human good is intensified, it becomes evil.

South Africa has always been a great nation and closer to being a Christian nation than any other nation. With our facade of goodness, we are trying to destroy South Africa.

Certain kinds of sins can come along and be parlayed into evil. Athens in the 5th century B.C., but they tolerated the sin of homosexuality. To recognize is and to give is status in society is to parlay it into evil. We can take a multitude of good or sin, and intensify it into evil. Reviewed in Lessons #202 and #239.

Doctrine of Retroactive Positional Truth

- A. Definition and Description.
1. Retroactive positional truth is identification with Christ in His two deaths and burial through the mechanics of the baptism of the Spirit.
 2. Identification with Christ in His death includes both His spiritual death and physical death.

3. The spiritual death of Christ on the cross is related to the judicial imputation of all personal sins, which is the basis for salvation. This is efficacious substitutionary atonement.

4. However, the emphasis in retroactive positional truth is on what was not imputed to Christ on the cross: our human good and evil.

5. In the spiritual death of Christ, both human good and evil were rejected from judgment by the justice of God. They were also separated from Christ's efficacious sacrifice. Being identified with Christ, we have positionally rejected and been separated from human good and evil.

a. Intensification of human good results in evil.

b. Certain sins can be parlayed into evil.

c. Evil destroys the moral fiber of a people, so that they are unwilling to fight for freedom. Thus a nation is destroyed from within before they are destroyed from without.

d. When freedom, the establishment protection against human good and sin, and doctrine, the spiritual protection against human good and sin, are gone, then sin and human good are parlayed into evil.

e. While sin was being judged, Christ was rejecting human good or evil as the solution to the problem between God and man.

6. Human good and evil have a dual function in life. They are both the policy of Satan and the function of the old sin nature which rules our life.

7. Through retroactive positional truth the believer is separated from good and evil positionally, so that the rulership of Satan and the sovereignty of the old sin nature are broken positionally.

8. Therefore, retroactive positional truth coupled with current positional truth is the basis for abrogating the sovereignty of the old sin nature ruling human life by means of spiritual death. And at the same time, the baptism of the Holy Spirit (the mechanics for retroactive positional truth and current positional truth) establishes the sovereignty of the Lord in the life of the believer. We do not establish the sovereignty of the Lord. This brings up a heresy that if Christ is not Lord of all, He is not Lord at all. We are unable to make Christ the Lord of our life. Under grace, God does the work; not man.

B. The principle of retroactive positional truth is related to two formula's of blessing from the justice of God. This is the basis for the blessing from the justice of God. Romans 5:12-17.

1. Primary potential one plus capacity equals reality of blessing in time, ($P1 + C = BT$). Potential two plus capacity equals reality of encapsulated environment, which is ($P2 + C = EE$).

2. The first potential, P1, is the imputation of God's perfect righteousness at salvation and subsequent justification.

3. Capacity, C, is maximum Bible doctrine resident in the soul through the daily metabolization of doctrine.

4. The reality of blessing in time is the imputation of our escrow blessing to us at the point of spiritual maturity.

5. The second potential, P2, is the baptism of the Spirit with its resultant retroactive positional truth. This destroys the ruling power of the old sin nature.

6. The second capacity is still maximum doctrine in the soul.

7. The second reality is the reality of an encapsulated environment, a grace environment for the enjoyment of our escrow blessings, regardless of the historical environment. We have total security with regard to the blessings and the environment in which to enjoy those blessings. This is an even better situation than in the Garden of Eden, where the blessing could be and eventually were lost by man.

C. Retroactive positional truth is part of the believer's completeness in Christ, Colossians 2:9-12. For in Him all fullness of deity [that is, all divine attributes] dwell permanently in bodily form, and you are in Him, having been completed, the one Who is the sovereign Head of princes, angels and authorities. In fact, in Him, you have been circumcised by a circumcision not made with hands, but by the renunciation of the body [the body is the location of the old sin nature] of the flesh [the flesh is a reference to the old sin nature] [this is our identification with Christ in His deaths]; having been buried with Him by means of the baptism of the Spirit, the same by which you have been raised up with Him by faith from the operational power of God Who raised Him from the deaths.

1. The believer is positionally separated from good and evil through retroactive positional truth.

2. Retroactive positional truth is also rejection of good and evil as the function of the old sin nature.

3. Through current positional truth the believer is positionally higher than angels. You are perfect positionally. Now we must bring our experience to the point of our position in Christ.

4. The believer's completeness in Christ has broken the power of Satan as the ruler of this world and the old sin nature as the sovereign of this life.

5. This is all positional; and must be brought to the point of reality.

D. The believer's mental attitude is related to retroactive positional truth, Colossians 3:1-4 Therefore, if you have been raised with Christ [and you have], keep on investigating the above-things [that is, learn doctrine]; things where Christ is, sitting on the right hand of God; keep thinking objectively about the above-things of doctrine and not about the things which are on earth [Satan's policies and the trends of the old sin nature] for you have died [retroactive positional truth]; your life has been hidden encapsulated in the Christ by means of God. When Christ, Who is our life, has been revealed, at that time [the second advent], you also will be revealed with Him in glory [that's the time what we will come back with our rewards for cracking the maturity barrier].

1. Thought requires energy

2. You must have words and know the meaning of words in order to think.

3. You must have content in order to think.

E. Colossians 2-3 has the same marriage analogy.

F. Retroactive positional truth breaks the power of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life, Romans 6:1-5, the passage which we are studying. We have rejected, been separated from and divorced from the old sin nature. Therefore our ex-husband no longer has any authority over us. V.5, "If you have become intimately united to the likeness of His death [and you have],..."

G. Summary.

1. Retroactive positional truth is identification with Christ in His spiritual death and physical death, and in His burial.
2. Identification with Christ in His spiritual death emphasizes the non-imputation of good and evil, hence, the rejection of good and evil as the policy of Satan, and as the function of the old sin nature.
3. Identification with Christ in His physical death and burial connotes separation from good and evil, therefore, abrogation of both Satan's power and authority, as well as the old sin nature's trends in its power and authority.

1977 Romans

Lesson #197

197 09/11/1977 Romans 6:5b Brachylogy of Paul's genius; doctrine of current positional truth

Here is where we are so far: Romans 6:5a: "For if we have become intimately united to the likeness of his death [and we have through retroactive positional truth]."

The result is we have a better environment than Adam and the woman had in the garden. Good and evil were not imputed at the cross, but they were rejected. Positionally, we are totally separated from good and evil. The mature believer has a better environment in the devil's world than Adam and the woman had in the garden. This is a down payment for me blessings in eternity.

Romans 6:5 For if we have become united in the likeness of His death, certainly also we will be of the resurrection,...

"even so we should also walk in the newness of life" – the rhetorical ascensive of the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH]. Ordinarily this is an adversative conjunction but here is the rhetorical ascensive use of it which combines with the adjunctive use of kai, meaning "and not only this but also."

Plus "we shall be," the future passive indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. This is not the predictive future for the possession of a resurrection body, though that is a true doctrine. Just as identification with Christ in His death is a part of the Baptism of the Spirit so is the phrase “we shall be intimately united in the likeness of his resurrection.” This is not our resurrection which is a literal fact but not taught here, this is current positional truth being taught. So the future tense is not a predictive future, it is not predicting the future of our resurrection body which occurs at the Rapture of the Church. People think because there are difficult times, that the rapture is coming. Do not fall for that sucker’s dream; things are bad, so the rapture is about to occur. Point in fact, the rapture could occur at any time. There is no prophecy to occur prior to the rapture. We cannot say or speculate when it might occur.

We can match up powers of influence with the kings of Revelation, for illustrative purposes, but nothing more. There have been others identified

People are speculating about life on other planets and wars with other creatures from other planets. But our planet is going to continue.

Between those who are worried about interplanetary things and what is happening in the world today.

John Tower (a Texas Senator) is voting against giving away the Panama Canal.

Bob has declared war on weirdos and creeps, to protect our privacy, to come to Berachah and not be annoyed.

There is a logical result, which is current positional truth; and a future result, which is the rapture. That is a true doctrine but it is not taught in this context. Rather, we have a gnomic future for a statement of fact or doctrine which may be rightfully expected under the conditions of current positional truth. Hence, this is a logical result rather than a chronological result. The future tense in the Greek is used obviously for chronological things but it is also used for logical factors as well. The passive voice: the believer through the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation receives the action of the verb, namely current positional truth. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine—current positional truth. There is also a genitive of reference from a personal pronoun used as a possessive pronoun and translated “his,” and with it the genitive of reference anastasia (ἀνάστασις) [pronounced an-AS-tas-is] for resurrection. It refers to the literal resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ and we are identified with that resurrection.

Romans 6:5 For if we have become intimately united to the likeness of His death [and we have through retroactive positional truth], not only this, but also we shall be intimately united to the likeness of His resurrection [current positional truth].

Note that the apodosis is very elliptical. We have “we shall be of his resurrection”—an ellipsis. The idea is not fully expressed grammatically and is left to the reader to supply the self-evident omissions to make it a correct sentence. This ellipsis indicates Paul’s great excitement. The protasis is not elliptical. So we can fill in the apodosis from the words in the protasis. This is called brachylogy. This can also be called aposiopesis.

This is pure classical Greek which talks about the mental stimulation of Paul when it comes to current positional truth. Whenever Paul turns on this afterburner to his genius, he goes into brachylogy, which is correct Greek. Adding these words are not addition to the Word of God.

This verse means that the policy of good and evil, both as to its policy and as to its function, it destroyed through the baptism of the Holy Spirit. This is a positional destruction. We are identified as believers with Christ in His death, in His burial, and in His resurrection. Being intimately united with Christ in His death we have positionally rejected good and evil, we are positionally separated from good and evil. But being united with Him in His resurrection we have the basis for newness of life. Newness of life = the status quo of the mature believer. It is the reality of blessing in time plus the reality of encapsulated environment in the devil's world. The old sin nature is not eradicated, but rather we have freedom from the power and the tyranny of the old sin nature as the ruler of our lives.

Just as the blessings are potential and so is the encapsulated environment. In each case, we have the capacity. But we have two different realities from these two potentialities. This is a potential until we break the maturity barrier.

Satan has a system of phony integrity. Pseudo integrity; it is good and evil.

We have greater security in this life than Adam and the woman had in the garden. The garden of Eden is now closed. We have blessing by moving forward, not backward. The sin nature is not eradicated, but we have freedom from the old sin nature. We possess truth which is divided into categorical concepts.

I could not find the following doctrine in NB1 or NB2. So I wrote the notes from scratch. This doctrine will be returned to on many occasions and this will be filled in as that occurs.

This is reviewed in Lesson #204. We will review this again in Lesson #269.

The Doctrine of Current Positional Truth

1. Definition and description:
 - a. Current positional truth is identification with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session.
 - b. In contrast to retroactive positional truth (which is identification with Christ in His spiritual death, physical death and burial), which puts us in union with Christ as He is seated on the right hand of the father. Identification with Christ in His death represents the rejection of good and evil, which is the policy of Satan and the old sin nature. In retroactive positional truth, we are separated from good and evil, but it does not give us anything to grasp for or to hold onto. We reject good and evil through retroactive positional truth; but current positional truth gives us something new that can be exploited in grace. When God takes away the old, He substitutes the old. The old is removed by retroactive positional truth; and substitutes with the new in current positional truth. 35:00

- c. Two factors are emphasized:
 - i. The blessing factor is Potential₁ + capacity = blessings in time.
 - ii. Secondary potential (baptism of the Holy Spirit) + capacity = encapsulated environment. No instability of historical occurrences can disturb the encapsulated pipe. There may be great adversity in the United States, but no loss of blessing occurs, even with such problems.
 - d. Current positional truth establishes Church Age believers as royal family. Old Testament saints are family of God; believers in the Church Age are royal family of God. The baptism of the Holy Spirit is unique to the Church Age. It is designed for current and retroactive positional truth, but it also establishes a royal family. We share the life of Christ (eternal life) and the righteousness of God. But we also receive these things from the Father. A double portion of eternal life and of +R. This means that more is expected from us. Only negative volition toward doctrine will keep us from these blessings. The baptism of the Spirit places us into Christ.
2. We need to relate to the primary potential, which is the imputation of divine righteousness the secondary potential is the baptism of the Holy Spirit. Current positional truth is one of the two results of the baptism of the Holy Spirit. All cursing and blessing comes from the righteousness of God. Divine righteousness is given to us in two ways; the double portion. 2Corinthians 5:21 describes the double portion righteousness; different from the righteousness which we receive in Romans.
 3. We must relate current positional truth to the secondary potential. The relationship is accomplished by the protasis and apodosis, one is retroactive positional truth; and the other is current positional truth. Romans 6:8–10
 4. Current positional truth must be related to the possession of eternal life. Eternal life is another double portion for the Church Age believer. We as royal family have a double portion. One is an imputation and the other is . All Old Testament believers have eternal life. We are first born again; and then we have a spiritual birth. Human life was imputed to the human soul. The Holy Spirit provides the new birth for the imputation of eternal life and by position. We have the double portion of eternal life and of righteousness, one from the Father and the other through the Son. 1John 5:11–12 John 3:36 we have two imputations of divine righteousness. Jesus Christ was elected by God the Father as a part of the eternal decrees; and we are elected by virtue of being in Christ. Holy and blameless match up with the position and the actual state of being.
 5. Our election is that we are in union with Christ. Current positional truth, we are seated with the Father in Christ. Jesus was born into the dynasty of David. We share the Lord's election and His destiny.
 6. Current positional truth is related to the royal family of God. The Lord is divine royalty as being equal to God. In His battlefield royalty, He is King of Kings, Lord of Lords; but He has no royal family. We are the royal family. The intercalated Church Age provides the environment for this to take place. This time frame allows time for the royal family to be assembled.

7. Current positional truth must be related to the royal priesthood Hebrews 10:10–14
8. Current positional truth must be related to positional sanctification. To the church of God to those who have been sanctified in Christ Jesus, but from Him you have become righteousness and sanctification. 1Corinthians 1:30 equality on resides where there is human freedom provided by establishment.
9. Current positional truth must be related to God's personal possession forever. 1Peter 2:9–10 But you are a chosen race; You are a royal priesthood; you are a holy nation; You are a people for God's Own possession...in order that you might proclaim His excellencies Who has called you out of darkness into His marvelous light, for you were once not a people, but now you are the people of God; you have not received mercy, but now you have received mercy. Mercy is the two judicial imputations at salvation. We can only be equal before the law, ideally speaking. All of the legislation that has been passed to achieve equality; and it has not. We are higher and greater than others by virtue of positional truth. We are a people of God's Own possession.
10. The function of God's grace I may need to check lesson #198
- 11.

Boston was pushing integration in the south and they found out that it applied to them, and they are having riots and demonstrations today because of it. The cowardly state, Rhode Island, backed down. They were a slave state. It is always easy to tell other states how to run their business.

There is no such thing as racial equality. By creating evil out of good, you destroy a state. By creating evil from God, our education system has been shot down.

Bob heard that the federal government is now messing with the trucking business. They say that you drive on federal roads. But those are taxpayer roads.

A man has 3 sons, one smart, one strong and one idiot. The smart one goes into business; the strong one into the military; and the idiot goes into the federal government.

We are God's personal possession. All of us collect troubles and problems. The existence of the old sin nature guarantees trouble. Our life has a purpose, meaning and definition.

1977 Romans

Lesson #198

198 09/16/1977 Romans 6:6a Intelligent comprehension; importance of repetition and retroactive positional truth; encapsulation

Largest conference in midwest.

Our Lord went to the cross and He was qualified to accept the personal sins of mankind and pay for them. Imputation of divine righteousness at the second birth, setting up the encapsulated pipeline.

Water baptism took place prior to the completion of the canon. It was a training aid.

Verses 6-8, the implications of positional truth. In the first five verses Paul makes the simple statement of the doctrine: retroactive and current positional truth. Then we have the implications of the doctrine. There is no application until the implications are understood. Current positional truth emphasizes that we are different from all other believers in other dispensations. We are royal family of God rather than the simple nomenclature "family of God." The difference is what happens at the new birth.

Romans 6:6 ...knowing this, that our old man was crucified with Him, so that the body of sin might be annulled, that we are no longer enslaved to sin.

Verse 6 – "Knowing this." If we had known these things Paul wouldn't be giving them to us, so when it says "knowing this" and it is talking about something we do not know we have to assume that we are ignorant and then take it from there. Obviously the Romans to whom he addresses these things didn't know anything about it. This is the present active participle of the verb ginôskô (γινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh], it denotes intelligent comprehension of an object or a matter; whether this comes for the first time or comes afresh after consideration and finally deciding if the person was right all along. There is a difference between intelligent comprehension and parrot memorization. The verb is apropos at this point. Ginôskô (γινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh] is often used as a tongue-in-cheek verb, i.e. it is used on those who have rejected information, but they are finally brought around to accepting the doctrine at a later time. It can be translated "to come to know, to perceive, to learn again." The verb ginôskô (γινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh] denotes knowledge of what really is. It never denotes false knowledge, pseudo knowledge, pseudo intellectualism. It connotes verification by observation, hence to know from reflection on the facts or, in this case, reflection on true doctrinal principles. So it finally comes to mean in this case to know from reflection on the doctrine of retroactive positional truth plus current positional truth. The imperative concept is here, we have to learn again. In the participial form this would be "knowing, comprehending, perceiving." The present tense is a perfective present tense, it denotes a continuation of existing results from the perception of retroactive and current positional truth. It implies perception of this doctrine in the past but it emphasizes renewing it, reviewing it, and hearing it again and again until suddenly it breaks through and everything falls into place. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb through constantly exposing himself to repetitive doctrinal teaching. The participle is circumstantial or imperative. This is a command that demands intelligent cooperation. This is because we have to be read into the picture. We understand that this "Knowing this" is a command that requires us to think while we are executing the command.

The word "this" is the accusative singular direct object from the immediate demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], meaning "this," and is used here for what is relatively near in context, relatively near in thought—retroactive positional truth. The participle, while it is circumstantial it is primarily a strictly Koine Greek concept. In the Koine Greek there is a strange phenomenon, at least to the Classical Greek thinker, and that is what is known as the imperative participle. Instead of using repetitions of imperatives the participle is substituted. The imperative participle is found as a peculiarity of the Greek of the New Testament. The best translation would be, “Be knowing this.” We are commanded to learn.

Retroactive Positional Truth Principles

1. Retroactive positional truth is that phase of the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation which identifies the believer with Christ in His spiritual death on the cross, physical death on the cross, and burial after He was taken down from the cross.
2. In the spiritual death of Christ on the cross all the personal sins in human history were judicially imputed to Christ and judged, but at the same time the other two trends of the old sin nature were not imputed.
3. Good and evil is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life.
4. Good and evil were not imputed at the cross. Hence, in the spiritual death of Christ on the cross they were rejected, rejected to remain an issue in the angelic conflict, rejected to be perpetuated in human history as an issue every believer must face, and either overcome through the intake of doctrine or be entrapped by ignorance of doctrine and therefore lose out in glorifying God in time. Good and evil pretty much describes Christianity in the 20th century.
5. We are identified with Christ in His spiritual death, which means the positional rejection of good and evil—Satan’s policy and the old sin nature’s function.
6. All believers have positionally rejected good and evil. All of the systems of discipleship and programs of churches are mixed up, and many actually function in the realm of good and evil.
7. In the physical death of Christ on the cross and His subsequent burial in the tomb He was totally separated from good and evil—burial connotes His humanity. His body was in the tomb, His soul was in Paradise, and His spirit was in the presence of the Father. In the presence of the Father His spirit was separated from evil. In Paradise there was no evil, and therefore His soul was separated from evil. In His body there was not one cell with then old sin nature, and therefore separation from evil was there in the body in the tomb.
8. We are identified with Christ in His physical death and burial, which means positional separation from good and evil.
9. All believers have been positionally separated from good and evil since the day they believed in Christ.
10. This, therefore, is the implication of retroactive positional truth which must be understood for both implication and application.

Bob explains encapsulation by using weather as an example. He is in Houston, where the humidity makes the hot weather much hotter and the cold weather much colder. He hears people who come to visit Houston complain about it, but that does not bother him, because he is encapsulated. We will find out, that no matter how horrible things become. The United States is caught between a socialistic government in Canada; and south of us is Mexico and below that. But believers who crack the maturity barrier, no matter how bad the historical climate, we are encapsulated. This is the meaning of the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

History crushes the immature believer; history crushes good and evil. Satan keeps having this policy of good and evil, and every time he gets something going it crushes everything. Good and evil destroys people. Good and evil is destructive. This is Satan's embarrassment. He cannot control it.

In contemporary history, environment is getting bad all over. Why are so many people here in Houston? There is an encapsulated environment in Berachah Church.

Bob used to love body surfing. He did it all of his life until leaving CA. The key is riding the crest of the wave. You get at the bottom of the wave and you get knocked all over the place.

1977 Romans

Lesson #199

199 09/18/1977 Romans 6:6b Doctrine of the old sin nature (review lessons 179–180)

Romans 5 might be understood to be directed toward all believers (it is true of believers in all dispensations). Romans 6 is directed to royal family believers.

The brain can be destroyed and yet, the soul remains intact. This is true in time and in eternity.

Adam's original transgression is imputed to the sin nature. This one sin gives all of us spiritual death. Nothing that we do condemns us. These are both real imputations (life to the soul and Adam's original sin to our sin nature).

The pipeline that God establishes, with justice on the giving end and righteousness on the receiving end. Identification of Christ in His spiritual death. The sin nature is the ruler of man in this life. It is found in every cell of the body. This control has been broken forever by retroactive positional truth.

We are also identified with Jesus Christ in His ascension. This gives us a double portion as members of the royal family. This is current positional truth.

Most people their concept of the Christian way of life is not.

Hebrews has the objective to bring us to maturity; but so does Romans through imputation and royal family concepts.

Romans 6:6 ...knowing this, that our old man was crucified with Him, so that the body of sin might be annulled, that we are no longer enslaved to sin.

“that our old man was crucified with him” – the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] is correctly translated “that.” This conjunction is sometimes used just for quotation marks. It is frequently used to indicate the content of what is thought, the content of thinking, perception, and that is the use here. “Be knowing this, that.”

A review of Retroactive Positional Truth Principles from the previous lesson.

There was no grace in the garden because there was no need for it. Grace is the divine policy by which the justice of God blesses the believer in time and in eternity.

In this life, we can enjoy better environment than Adam and the woman had in the garden. But this better environment requires capacity.

Then we have the content of what we should be knowing from that imperative participle. The nominative singular adjective palaios (παλαιός) [pronounced pal-ah-YOSS] is correctly translated “old,” but meaning necessarily literally old. It means old in point of time, being in existence for a long time, which perfectly describes the sin nature. The sin nature has been in existence since the fall of mankind. Then the nominative singular subject from anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos], used quite frequently not for male but for the entire human race, mankind. Plus the possessive genitive plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], translated “our,” meaning it belongs to us. We possess it from birth. The moment that we are born, we have the sin nature. This is passed along to us by our father.

The verb, “is crucified,” is the aorist passive indicative from the verb sustaurōō (συσταυρόω) [pronounced soos-tow-RO-oh] [sun = with; starow = to crucify], which means to be crucified with another. We might translate it “co-crucified.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to a momentary action at salvation, namely the baptism of the Holy Spirit resulting in retroactive positional truth. The passive voice: the subject, the sin nature, receives the action of the verb—co-crucifixion with Christ. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine.

“that the body of sin might be destroyed” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] introduces a final clause: purpose, goal, objective. Here it denotes purpose—“in order that.” Plus the nominative singular subject sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah]—“body,” referring to the human body where the old sin nature dwells. That’s why the body is called “the body of corruption,” and that is why the body decomposes when the soul leaves at physical death. The genitive of reference is in the singular of the word hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], referring to the old sin nature. The definite article used with it denotes previous reference to the sin nature in context, plus employed as a possessive pronoun meaning “it”—“in order that the human body with reference to its sin nature.”

Plus the aorist passive subjunctive of the verb katargeō (καταργέω) [pronounced kaht-ahrg-EH-oh] which means to render useless, to render inoperative, to render powerless, to release from an association with something or someone. Here we translate it “might be rendered inoperative/powerless.” This is a culminative aorist tense, it views the doctrine of retroactive positional truth in its entirety but it emphasizes it from the viewpoint of existing results, namely the ruling power of the old sin nature is broken.

Note that the body is not rendered inoperative but the old sin nature which is in the body is rendered powerless. The ruling power of the old sin nature is positionally broken, not experientially. Experiential breaking of the power of the old sin nature comes in verses 11-13. The passive voice: the body as the throne room for the old sin nature receives the action of the verb, being rendered inoperative or powerless. This sovereign power is broken positionally. The subjunctive mood is the potential subjunctive, used with hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] to indicate a divine purpose, qualified by the element of contingency. The potential subjunctive implies future reference, hence the future reference is perception and application of retroactive positional truth. One more word is needed here, and that is tês (τῆς) [pronounced tayc]. a definite article in the form of a possessive genitive. It is used as a possessive pronoun, which is why it is translated “its sin nature.”^[5]

Romans 6:6a-b Be knowing this, that our old man [OSN] has been co-crucified together with him, in order that the human body with reference to its sin nature might be rendered powerless [inoperative],...

We would do well to review the doctrine of the old sin nature.

What happens to the sin nature at salvation is where we will begin next time.

Lesson #200

200 09/18/1977 Romans 6:6b Doctrine of the old sin nature (cont.); indwelling of the Holy Spirit in the body; weaknesses and self-righteous critics; adjusting to people cf. God

Bob goes right into the Doctrine of the Sin Nature.

We suffer from self righteous hypocrisy as a country and we function in evil because of our relationship to Rhodesia and South Africa.

Romans 6:6a-b Be knowing this, that our old man [OSN] has been co-crucified together with him, in order that the human body with reference to its sin nature might be rendered powerless [inoperative],... (7 minutes remain)

For the principle below, the first few points line up, then Bob sounds like he is giving a different doctrine. In Lesson #201 Bob reviews these points (and expands them).

Solving Sin, Good and Evil: Principles Regarding Romans 6:6

1. The fall of man resulted in two historical changes relative to the human race: a) Satan became the ruler of the world, replacing Adam in that role; b) The old sin nature came into existence as the sovereign of human life, ruling through spiritual death.
2. The old sin nature is located in all the cells of the human body. In its location it has three trends: toward sin, human good and evil. Every cell possesses 46 chromosomes, every cell being corrupted by the sin nature.
3. Personal sins of the human race were judicially imputed to Christ on the cross and judged, therefore providing eternal salvation for anyone who believes in Jesus Christ.
4. The other trends—good and evil—were not imputed to Christ on the cross. Good and evil must continue as the issue in the angelic conflict until the end of history which is the end of the Millennium.
5. The co-crucifixion of the old sin nature at the cross must be examined categorically in relation to its trends. When it says “our old man has been crucified together with him,” that means co-crucifixion. This must be examined categorically.
6. The trend toward personal sins: All personal sins are judicially imputed to Christ on the cross, and because of this we have the instant solution to carnality in the rebound technique.
7. The trend toward good and evil: Good and evil were not imputed to Christ on the cross.
8. It all adds up to the fact that the sovereignty of the old sin nature over human life, therefore, has been made powerless through retroactive positional truth. Know this that our old man has been crucified together with Him, that it might be rendered powerless.
9. The imputation of all personal sins of the human race to Christ on the cross means that the believer through the rebound technique is instantly forgiven sins, cleansed from all unrighteousness, restored to fellowship and filled with the Spirit. In other words, because all personal sins were judicially imputed to Christ on the cross and judged it is possible after salvation when we commit sins we cite these sins, and since these sins have already been judged they are instantly forgiven. And at the same time the unknown sins which have accumulated are likewise forgiven because they were judged on the cross also. The issue of good and evil is solved by non-imputation at the cross. Good and evil is the policy of Satan in this world. Sin is not a part of his policy, it is an embarrassment to Satan because he is trying to produce the conditions of the Millennium before the Second Advent of Christ. This is a part of the angelic conflict. It is the race to the Millennium. If Satan could find a way to eliminate sin and to saturate the world with good and evil in his genius, this would mean defeat for the Lord in the angelic conflict. But there is no way that it can occur because Satan cannot control sin in the world. His objective is to saturate the world with good and evil. Eating of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil permitted good and evil to be the Satanic policy and the old sin nature’s function. There is no instant solution, but there is a solution. The solution has to be divided into two parts: the positional part at salvation and the experiential part in the Christian life. The positional part is accomplished for us. God the Holy Spirit enters us into union with Christ in His spiritual death, in His physical death, and in His burial. In spiritual death good and evil have been rejected—non-imputation. They had to be non-imputed for a solution to exist. The very imputation which solves the sin problem cannot be used for good and evil, and in the wisdom of God they were not imputed. Therefore in Christ's physical death and burial He was totally separated from good and evil so that positionally we have rejected good and evil, and positionally we are totally separated from good and evil. There must be a positional solution in order to have an experiential one. All three trends are resolved by the cross. God uses antithetical solutions for these three trends. God had to do two antithetical things at the cross. He imputed our sins to Jesus Christ on the cross, but He did not impute good and evil to the Lord.

10. Retroactive positional truth means identification with Christ in His spiritual death where we have the imputation of personal sins, His physical death and burial.
11. The non-imputation of good and evil at the spiritual death of Christ is tantamount to rejection of good and evil. Therefore positionally the believer has rejected good and evil, though not experientially. There is not instant solution to good and evil.
12. Good and evil is the policy of Satan as the ruler of the world and the function of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life.
13. Identification with Christ in His physical death and burial connotes total separation from good and evil. Therefore positionally we as believers are separated from good and evil. This is positional, but not experientially.
14. This verse indicates that positionally the power and the authority of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life has been broken, rendered inoperative, abrogated. The last phrase of this verse provides another result of retroactive positional truth, namely manumission from enslavement to the old sin nature as the ruler of human life.

Lesson #201

201 09/19/1977 Romans 6:6c Retroactive positional truth re the old sin nature, personal sins and good and evil

Jesus said, "You must be born again," because of what happened at the fall and at our own birth. Because of that one sin, Adam's original sin, we stand condemned at birth. All of our personal sins were poured out on Christ on the cross.

Grace excludes any system of human works. The grace pipeline is encapsulated going from God's justice to His righteousness. No human good, no personality change and nothing else can intrude on the blessing from God's justice to His imputed righteousness which we have. We are resurrected with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session, which is current positional truth; and this is what we will study next.

Bob reviews Principles Regarding Romans 6:6 from lesson #200.

Bob was called in when he was officer of the day, and there was an officer and a woman who went crazy in the officer's club. No one wanted to handle this, and someone thought to call the officer of the day. The problem included obnoxiously drunk officer and a female as well. No one else wanted to touch this. Field grade officers disappeared. Bob use an antithetical situation. He took the guy outside and beat the hell out of him. Bob did not want to put him on the report and charge him. The woman Bob did not touch. Bob got her to the door and into a car to take her wherever off the post. Officially, nothing had never been done. No family disgrace. The lady was no compromised. The general was happy with the way that it was handled. Now, suppose that I beat up the woman and escorted the officer to the car? This is why God did not judge good and evil in Jesus Christ. This worked out very nicely. This dealt with two categories, a male and a female.

Satan is trying to produce the conditions of the Millennium before the 2nd advent of Christ. He promotes good and evil; not necessarily sin. There should be a good human illustration here, as related to the movement of communism in the United States. Russia attempts to subvert the United States through all varieties of degeneracy; things which are not allowed in the Soviet Union (or in China).

So God needs to solve the sin, good and evil problems, but they are solved in antithetical ways. There must be a positional solution in order to have an experiential one.

Literal translation of Romans 6:19 For just as you have put your members under orders as slaves to impurity resulting in lawlessness, so now, put your members under orders as slaves to the righteousness of God resulting in experiential sanctification. This is the solution to good and evil.

Bob spits out the word "obey" in the marriage ceremony and she smiles and says, "I do." Positionally, she has agreed; experientially, it is a long fight with a short stick. There is no instant solution.

Romans 6:6 ...knowing this, that our old man was crucified with Him, so that the body of sin might be annulled, that we are no longer enslaved to sin.

"that henceforth we should not serve sin" – the articular present active infinitive from the verb douleúō (δουλεύω) [pronounced dool-YOO-oh] which means to be a slave. It means to serve as a slave, to obey as a slave. The definite article is in the genitive singular, του, used as a substantive to introduce a purpose clause for the infinitive—"that we." The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes the continuation of existing results from retroactive positional truth. It refers to the fact which comes to be in the past at salvation, but is emphasized as a present reality. As the present reality we should not be slaves to the sin nature. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb positionally as a challenger to experiential sanctification. The infinitive is an infinitive of purpose. With it is a strong negative adverb, mēketi (μηκέτι) [pronounced may-KEHT-ee], "no longer"—"that we should no longer be slaves." The word "we" is the accusative of general reference from the first person plural pronoun εγώ (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], and correctly used as the subject although actually the accusative of general reference describes the believer as a person connected with the action of the infinitive. Then the dative of indirect object from the noun hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] in the singular, referring here to the old sin nature. The definite article precedes it to denote a previous reference in the context—“that we should no longer be slaves to the sin nature.”

Romans 6:6 Be knowing this, that our old man [OSN] has been co-crucified together with him, in order that the human body with reference to its sin nature might be rendered powerless [inoperative], that we should no longer be slaves to the old sin nature.

Antithetical Solutions for Sin, Good and Evil

1. Retroactive positional truth has positionally manumitted us from the tyranny of the old sin nature's rule in the human life. A positional manumission.
2. This means that personal sin is handled through the rebound technique since all personal sin was judged at the cross.
3. This also means that good and evil have been positionally rejected and a total state of separation exists positionally.
4. Good and evil is a terrible trap which detracts the believer from the only system for glorifying God in time—cracking the maturity barrier. This is an instant recovery from sin; but not from good and evil.
5. Good and evil distracts from the true function of the spiritual life: the daily consistent perception of doctrine, resulting in spiritual growth and maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
6. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God is the basis for temporal blessing from the integrity of God and glorification of Christ in the angelic conflict.
7. The pipeline of blessing is encapsulated by the integrity of God with justice on the giving end and imputed righteousness on the receiving end. Divine justice only gives to perfect righteousness. We have that righteousness and therefore we have potential blessing from God.
8. Blessing only flows through this pipeline when there is capacity through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
9. Between the potential of imputed righteousness and the reality of blessing in time is the missing link—capacity from doctrine resident in the soul.
10. Good and evil detract from developing capacity for blessing through perception of doctrine.
11. This should be obvious from the fact that good and evil are the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life. Obviously, neither Satan nor the old sin nature want to lose their rulership.
12. Therefore the Lord has broken the power of the sin nature with its function of good and evil through retroactive positional truth.
13. Therefore positionally the believer is free from the slavery of the old sin nature.

Bob repeats these points.

202 09/20/1977 Romans 6:7 Freedom from slavery to the old sin nature; doctrine of retroactive positional truth (review); Sam Ammons

Bob had a talk with Sam Ammons from Liberty Baptist Church; he had a great viewpoint on racial relations. He said, as long as we have welfare, this will keep the Black families away from God. Since he is here tonite and this is unknown to him, Bob calls him to the front.

Someone wants to write a dissertation on Bob's ministry. Sam wants them to talk to him. The rest of the Apostles did not stand out like Paul did. Bob stands up tall over the rest of us. If he wants to get turned off, he says he studies under the Colonel. Without doctrine, Sam could not have stood up under the pressures. Students became critical of him and he started with the doctrine of Ham. Now he has a strong class on the campus. The Black race is not downtrodden because we were slaves. Black churches are emotional. It is too bad that we don't have as many teachers as we have singers. We can pack a house for music, but not for doctrinal teaching. Service last two hours. He lets them sing for an hour and he teaches for the other hour.

Sam is on the TSU campus. They recently lost a game, and they think the problem is, they haven't got the coaches to Sam's class yet.

First six verses read in the corrected translation.

We are spiritually dead not because we have sinned but because Adam sinned. Our personal sins were gathered up and poured out on Jesus Christ on the cross.

When we believe in Jesus, we receive the righteousness of God imputed. This pipeline is encapsulated by the integrity of God.

God prepared the soul for human life; and God the Holy Spirit prepares the believer of eternal life as well.

No matter what the external circumstances happen to be, which circumstances are often highly unstable; our lives must be, in contrast, very stable.

The sin nature has three trends. Sin was imputed to Jesus Christ; but good and evil were rejected at the cross.

We have a double portion of God's righteousness and a double portion of eternal life. All of these things we have noted in some detail

Romans 6:7 For the one having died has been freed from sin.

Verse 7 – “For he that is dead is freed from sin.” It begins with the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar—“For,” but really meaning “For you see.” It amplifies the statement of the previous verse and gives an explanation. Then the articular aorist active participle from the verb apothnêskō (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh] referring to retroactive positional truth or identification with Christ in His spiritual death, physical death, and burial. This death is synonymous with the co-crucifixion of the previous verse. This verb is also synonymous with becoming intimately united to the likeness of His death, v.5. The definite article is used as a relative pronoun, referring to the believer at the moment of salvation adjustment to the justice of God. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. This constative aorist refers to the momentary action of the baptism of the Spirit at salvation and resultant retroactive positional truth. The justice of God relates to us in two ways: He judges/condemns us; and He blesses us.

Love as a divine attribute only has 2 outside directions. The Father loves the Son and the Spirit. Internally, God loves His righteousness and God loves His justice.

There are many passages which speak to God’s love; but those are anthropopathisms, where God’s policy is explained to us by means of human perspective or by human frame of reference.

So, again, the constative aorist simply gathers up into one entirety our union with Christ in His spiritual and physical death and burial. Spiritual death: the non-imputation of good and evil means rejection. Positionally because we are in union with Christ in His death we have rejected good and evil. Physical death and burial: separation from good and evil, and therefore because we are in union with Christ in His death and burial we are positionally separated from good and evil—not experientially, only positionally. It is the positional rejection and separation from good and evil that breaks the power, the sovereignty and the authority of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life ruling through spiritual death. The active voice: the believer at the instant of salvation produces the action of the verb through retroactive positional truth. The participle is circumstantial for the baptism of the Spirit at salvation and resultant retroactive positional truth. So we have, “For he who has died.” The circumstantial participle is talking about the baptism of the Holy Spirit which is identification with Christ in His death, resurrection, ascension, and session. Here we are talking about retroactive positional truth. This is not a literal death, this is retroactive positional truth or being intimately united with Christ. Through it all believers of the royal family of God have positionally rejected good and evil and have been totally separated from good and evil. This means not only the Christian abrogation of Satan’s policy but the cancellation of the power and the authority of the old sin nature over our lives as believers.

Principle

1. A dead person is discharged from the obligations of his former sphere of life. We understand this as a principle but experientially, of course. This is why the word “death” is used in this context. It is not a literal, physical death we are discussing but it is identification with Christ in His death. A dead person cannot pay a debt, etc., or have any relationship with anything in human life. A dead person is discharged from the obligations of his formal life.

2. As unbelievers we were under the authority of Satan as the ruler of this world, and under the authority of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life. There is no way, by our own actions, can be get away from the sin nature as the sovereign of our life. We can produce human good, we can do evil; we can sin; but we cannot get outside of any of those realms.
3. Both the power of Satan and the old sin nature have been abrogated through the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation.
4. This passage, then, emphasizes the annulling of the power and the authority of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life. In other areas of scripture Paul discusses the annulling of the power of Satan but in Romans the emphasis is on the old sin nature.
5. Positionally, the power of the sin nature has been broken. Experientially, the old sin nature controls to the extent that we fail to understand and utilize the provision and support of logistical grace.
6. Logistical grace does not come through the encapsulized pipeline. The pipeline is closed until we reach spiritual maturity.

“is freed” – perfect passive indicative of dikaioō (δικαίω) [pronounced dik-ah-YOH-oh]. It means to justify and to vindicate. In the passive voice, however, it has a different meaning. There it means to be acquitted, to be pronounced righteous, to be made free, or to become free. So it does have a freedom connotation but only in the passive voice of the verb. We translate it, “has been acquitted from.” Paul uses the verb in its legal connotation of a judicial decision of acquittal. There is a preposition coming up which strengthens this. It will be followed by the preposition apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO], and when used with apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] in the passive voice it definitely means to be acquitted. This is a judicial decision of acquittal. It is tantamount, then, to positional freedom from slavery to the old sin nature as the ruler of human life. Through retroactive positional truth the justice of God has acquitted positionally the believer from the power of the old sin nature.

“For he who has died [retroactive positional truth] has been acquitted from...”

The perfect tense is a dramatic perfect which is the rhetorical application of the intensive perfect. When special attention is directed to the results of an action emphasis on the existing action is thereby intensified. In the Greek this is the emphatic method of presenting the fact of retroactive positional truth. This is a Greek idiom for saying that positional truth is, always will be, and never can be cancelled. Positional truth cannot be cancelled. No matter how much we saturate ourselves with good, sin or evil, we cannot cancel positional truth. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb through the baptism of the Holy Spirit. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. Through the baptism of the Holy Spirit and resultant retroactive positional truth the believer is dead to the sin nature and therefore has no further obligation to the authority of the sin nature. That means he has no obligation to sin and we have no obligation to perform human good (this is the apostasy of fundamentalism today), and we have no obligation to become involved in evil (today, this is called getting involved; in previous generations, this was the social gospel).

“from sin” – the preposition από (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative singular of the definite article, plus the ablative of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah]. The definite article comes first after the preposition and we have a generic use of the article. It specifies a category, hence it gathers all of the sin natures of believers into that category and distinguishes them from all other sin natures. The ablative singular of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] refers to the sin nature of the believer only, not the sin nature of the unbeliever. The sin nature of the believer continues its residence in the cells of the human body. But when he dies the soul leaves the body of corruption which then disintegrates. The power of the sin nature has been broken, so we translate “from the power of the sin nature.”

Our sin nature has been taken out of the category unbeliever; and it has been placed in an entirely new category. The brain is a part of the body. The brain is a giant computer programed for sin, good and evil. We continue with the sin nature in our body. But when we leave our body, we leave the sin nature behind.

Romans 6:7 For he who has died [baptism of the Spirit and resultant retroactive positional truth] has been acquitted [positional deliverance] from the power of the sin nature.

1977 Romans

Lesson #203

203 09/21/1977 Romans 6:8 Evil of Edward II vs. integrity of Andrew Harclay; truck industry; current positional truth

Edward I might be the greatest of all English kings, Edward II, his son, is the worst. He had no integrity, no common sense, an emotional wreck, he had favorites to whom he gave great power. He is a ruler without integrity, without honor, without anything. Andrew Harclay was born in the early 1270s. He was a person of great integrity himself, although it is doubtful that he showed political acumen in all that he did. Someone else is mentioned who gained the independence of Scotland. The Scots would come over the boarder and then escape with their booty.

A political situation in Wales. The Welsh barons stood up against the king. The king blamed this on the Earl of Lancaster, who was possibly the second most powerful man. Many of the Welsh barons went north and they formed a revolutionary army against Edward II. Most people went to that side, but Andrew Harclay refused to. He apparently did well, and was made the Earl of Carlisle. He begged the king for an army to deal with Scotland. Robert Bruce noticed where they were invading. The English armies depended upon a system of supply, but there was nothing to forage thanks to King Edward II. The British were going to send up ships north, but the winds were against them.

The army was starving to death. The Scots followed them. Edward II disbanded this army about the time that the Scots invaded England.

By this time, Andrew, who had integrity but was politically naive. The Scots controlled the north country and ... He recognized that Edward II could not defend the north area. 12 men to be named by Bruce and Harclay to compromise on this, to bring peace.

Then Andrew gathered all the royalty and brought them together. One of these men went after Andrew, and Edward II was outraged by everything and he decided that he should be hung. Andrew realize that he was going to lose out completely. He had resigned himself to death. He confessed his life and said he had not committed any treason. The king told the judges to sentence him to death and to execute him by dividing him up.

Edward II then entered into the same agreement with Robert Bruce, except at twice the cost.

There are relatively few people who have the ability to exercise authority. Everyone thinks that they can do it, but few can really do this. Harclay is a true tragedy of history. He was right and loyal. He was also a born-again believer. He did his job honorably and right.

The situation of England, Scotland and Wales parallels to the situation taking place in the United States today. It is important that we understand the integrity of God and our relationship to the integrity of God. The more we understand God's perfect character, the more we will understand how things go so badly in history. The mature believer takes on the same characteristics of God. There is no period when people are completely wrong in their thinking, unreality at best, insanity at worse. History repeats itself.

The average person today do not know about any of these people. But this combination of situations has occurred many times.

Next to the Word of God, there is nothing more important to study than human history. Even the unbeliever can pick up trends.

Edward Given's five volume set on England (I think the English empire?).

It is large trucks which bring to us all of the great things that we enjoy in life. This is the greatest industry in the United States. They depend upon gas and good highways. The railroad ceases providing for us. What we have in the stores depends entirely upon the trucking industry. No one thinks of free enterprise as the basis for the vigor of this nation. The federal government is doing everything possible to destroy free enterprise. Calvin Coolidge was the last great president. It was his policy to do nothing. He traveled; he stayed out of the way; and did things the president should do. His policy was to lay off of free enterprise. Great peak of prosperity under him. He did absolutely nothing.

We live in a time of total imbecility and fundamentalist Christianity is leading the way in new frontiers of imbecility. The solution is being completely choked out. Bob sees his name on a book, what is wrong with him, by and author who Bob does not know. Seeing this criticism is a great encouragement to him.

Those who teach doctrine are being maligned. Today, it is only the teachers; but as things are going, it will be all of you next (referring to his congregation). “Some of you won’t hold up for five minutes. You looked at doctrine as being a fetish or good luck.”

People and their mad dash to be entertained. The other night Saturday Night at the Movies, the time today was parallel to what is happening today. People are mad for entertainment; and entertainment takes precedence over everything else in life.

The only way that we can deal with the United States as it is, is by assembling for Bible doctrine. We shed the troubles and difficulties with rebound. The solution for this nation is believers. As goes this group and other groups like it. As goes the believer, so goes the nation.

Romans 6:8 Now if we died with Christ, we believe that we will also live with Him,... (BLB)

Verse 8 – current positional truth. “Now if we be dead with Christ.” Current positional truth is introduced as the apodosis of a conditional sentence. The protasis states the reality of retroactive positional truth and the apodosis states the doctrinal inference and the reality of current positional truth. The protasis always gives an assumption on which the conclusion is found in the apodosis. This begins with the conditional conjunction ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] with the indicative, and this is the way we know this is a first class condition. This introduces the protasis of a 1st class condition which is a supposition from the viewpoint of reality. It implies that retroactive positional truth is a reality which has now been realized and therefore it does exist. The 1st class condition proclaims the reality of the premise, namely the baptism of the Spirit at salvation is true for each one of us, and retroactive positional truth is also a reality at that time.

Now if we be dead” – aorist active indicative of apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], referring to the fact that we are identified with Christ in His death and burial. This is a constative aorist which contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety, it refers to the momentary action of the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation, resulting in retroactive positional truth. The active voice: the believer at the moment of salvation through faith in Christ produces the action of the verb, he dies with Christ. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of retroactive positional truth and subsequent identification with Christ in His spiritual death, physical death, and burial.

Then comes a prepositional phrase, sun (σύν) [pronounced soon] plus the instrumental of association of the proper noun Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]. The instrumental of association is extremely important here. To have association a second party must furnish the means of that association. The second party is God the Holy Spirit who at salvation enters us into union with Christ. Association, then, is established through the baptism of the Spirit. The absence of the definite article in front of Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] emphasizes the qualitative aspect of the noun, hence the uniqueness of the person of Christ. It is a reminder of His hypostatic union. It is also a reminder of the uniqueness of His humanity alone in impeccability. “Now if we had died with Christ [and we have].” This is a statement of retroactive positional truth.

“we believe that we shall also live with him” – the present active indicative of the verb pisteúō (πιστεύω) [pronounced pis-TOO-oh] is used here for perception. It means to believe, but it is used here in the sense of the daily function of GAP, as a system of perception, for faith is the way we learn in life. This is a reference to the perception of doctrine or the reality of doctrine going from the left lobe of the soul into the human spirit and then into the right lobe. This is correctly translated “we believe.” It is a retroactive progressive present tense, it denotes what has been perceived in the past and continues into the present time because gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] has been converted into epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis]. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb by utilization of a non-meritorious system of perception, i.e. faith. The indicative mood is the verbal action from the standpoint of reality, for a dogmatic statement of confidence in doctrine and therefore a conversion of gnōsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] doctrine into epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] doctrine. Plus a conjunction, hōti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], used after words of cognizance or perception. Sometimes it is used to merely indicate that what follows it is thought, is perception, is understanding. That is what we have here. With the adjunctive kai plus the future active indicative of suzāō (συζάω) [pronounced sood-ZAH-oh] [sun = with; zāō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] = to live], living with or living in association with—“we also believe that we shall live in association with him.” There is a future tense here, the ethical future which portrays a logical result. In other words, the future tense usually has a time connotation, but not this one. The ethical future has no time connotation whatever, it is strictly a logical result being portrayed. Since the believer is identified with Christ in His death and burial it is a logical conclusion that he is identified with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb, identification with Christ in His resurrection and/or current positional truth. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of both retroactive positional truth and its relationship to current positional truth. Plus the instrumental singular of association from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], used as a personal pronoun and emphasizing the identity of the Lord Jesus Christ—“with him.”

A lot of Greek comes right out of the Sanscrit.

Romans 6:8 Now if we have died with Christ [and we have], we also believe that we shall live in association with him.

Principle

1. While retroactive positional truth centers around positional rejection and separation from good and evil as the policy of Satan and the function of the old sin nature, current positional truth relates the believer to the function of the royal family of God. In other words, they have separate function. Retroactive positional truth rejects positionally and separates us positionally from good and evil. But current positional truth relates us to the King of kings and Lord of lords. The Age of Israel was interrupted because Christ sat on the right hand of God; and this was His second form of royalty. When He received His battlefield royalty, He then required a royal family. Holy Spirit is the agent of regeneration. Every believer has at the moment of salvation the righteousness of God and eternal life. We have double righteousness as royal family; and we have a double portion of eternal life.

2. Current positional truth implies that the life of the believer as royal family has meaning and purpose and definition.
3. In the absence of Jesus Christ from the earth during the Church Age and Tribulation the believer represents Christ as a royal ambassador. Believers in the Church Age are royal ambassadors.
4. This explains also the ministry of God the Holy Spirit in terms of ambassadorship, for not only does He indwell and fill us but He is the means of our perception of our instruction.
5. During the Church Age, then, while Christ is absent spirituality is designed to produce the character of Christ, to possess integrity from God. In other words, spirituality is not an emotional activity but a rational activity of perception of Bible doctrine. Cf. Galatians 4:19, 5:22,23; Ephesians 5:1.
6. During the Millennium when Christ rules on earth spirituality will have a different objective, namely therefore to appreciate Christ. There are no ecstasies related to spirituality in this dispensation. Ecstasies are reserved for the millennium when Christ is on earth is to be appreciated both rationally and emotionally. Of course, the emotions are always under control when there is rational appreciation.
7. A second objective of current positional truth, and closely related to the first (ambassadorship), is the advance to maturity. We are here not only to represent Christ as ambassadors but we are here to advance to maturity so that we can receive from the justice of God those blessings which glorify the Lord Jesus Christ.
8. This advance to maturity is accomplished only through maximum doctrine resident in the soul, and therefore the daily function of GAP is necessitated.
9. Again, the filling of the Spirit plays an important part in the function of GAP. It becomes obvious, then, that experiential sanctification (cracking the maturity barrier) and ambassadorship for Christ are closely related. In fact, they are inseparably related by the subject of current positional truth. Current positional truth advances us to maturity, glorifying the Lord Jesus Christ, and fulfilling our ambassadorship.

Lesson #204

204 09/22/1977 Romans 6:9a Leadership quotes; relaxed mental attitude vs. social mixing; doctrine of current positional truth (review)

A reading Malice in Blunderland. Flip Wilson's Law, you can't hit the jackpot unless you put a few nickels into the machine. Most people are not ready for innovation; cannot stand innovation and are suspicious of innovation.

Tom Jones Law: Friends may come and go, but enemies accumulate.

Wyler's Law: Nothing is impossible for the man who does not have to do it.

An executive has almost nothing to do but determine what needs to be done. A job he could have done himself in 20 minutes, but has spent two days finding out what the problem was after 3 weeks of discussion.

A look back at current positional truth, which is found back in Lesson #197.

We are the first dispensation with a completed canon of Scripture. No matter how much false doctrine is communicated. Bob did not invent the rules; he just discovered them. Sheep are hardbound; and they need to be under the guidance of a shepherd. If not for that, they would be gathered under rocks and crevices. In the latter case, if he looks to the right and says, God willing, then they do the exact same.

Loving all the brethren is one thing; but we do not have a social life with every believer. You do not run around with all the people that you work with in a large business. Sometimes, there are relationships with some individuals. Just because we meet together for an hour in the shop, this does not mean that we are going gush over everyone else. The weirdest people are nice to each other simply because they have been beaten into submission with false doctrine. You don't have to be nice to every believer, or speak to them, etc. Some come from intense Christian backgrounds to Berachah; and they don't realize that the cuffs are off. They keep their hands in the same place but they eventually discover this freedom.

You cannot teach five people without two of them misconstruing what you've said.

Louis XIV acted like royalty; he fought like royalty. As a baby, he was just a baby. But as an adult, he learned exactly how to behave like royalty.

We won't act like royalty until we get enough doctrine in our souls.

The wages of sin is death. This gets mixed up. It is not wages; it is rations.

When we believe in Jesus Christ, we have His life. We have eternal life as a double portion, one from the Father and one from the Son. 1John 5:11–12 You can look at this from the standpoint of imputation or from position.

Verses 9-12 is where we get into the application and execution of the things learned in the first eight verses: the application through cognizance of pertinent doctrine.

Romans 6:9 ...knowing that Christ, having been raised up out from the dead, dies no more. Death no longer rules over Him. (BLB)

Verse 9 – “Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead.” It begins with the nominative masculine plural from the perfect active participle, perfect tense used as a present tense, of oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da]. The perfective present is used for doctrine which is learned in the past but emphasized as a present reality. And this perfective present assumes that you are thoroughly cognizant of what has been taught in verses 1-8. The active voice: the believer has the knowledge of the pertinent doctrine to which application is now given. The participle is circumstantial for cognizance of doctrine, specifically doctrines pertinent to the baptism of the Spirit, and now at this point, current positional truth.

Plus the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], used for the content of what has been learned through the function of GAP, plus the nominative singular subject from the proper noun Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], minus the definite article. Then the aorist passive participle from egeirō (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-Ī-row] which means to be raised. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it refers to a momentary action in past time, namely the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The passive voice: Christ receives the action of the verb through the function of God the Father and God the Holy Spirit. The participle is a causal participle denoting the ground or action of the main verb coming up. It should be translated, “Knowing that because Christ has been raised from the dead”—ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative plural of nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS]. This is the ablative of source indicating that He was resurrected from the source of two things which held Him. One held Him for three hours—spiritual death; one held Him for three days—physical death in which His body was in the grave, His spirit was in the presence of the Father, the soul was in Paradise. The absence of the definite article with nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] indicates the qualitative aspect of our Lord’s two deaths. It matches, first of all, the anarthrous construction of the word “Christ,” and it parallels it indicating that the one who hung on the cross was unique, and therefore His two deaths were absolutely unique.

“dieth no more” is incorrect. The correct translation: “he can never die.” This is the adverb oukēti (οὐκέτι) [pronounced ook-EHT-ee], meaning “no more” or “never.” It is used here logically and means “never” rather than “no more.” Then the third person singular present active indicative from the verb apothnēskō (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]—“he can never die.” This is a static present for a condition which perpetually exists. Christ is never subject to death, He cannot die either spiritually or physically again. The resurrection body is a guarantee against death. The active voice: Christ produces the action. The indicative mood represents the verbal action from the viewpoint of absolute dogmatic reality. In other words, the indicative mood says a statement of doctrine is formed.

“death hath no more dominion over him” – now the two deaths of nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] are gathered into one nominative singular subject, thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss]. It refers especially to physical death since Christ was never subject to spiritual death by being under the dominion of the old sin nature, He received the imputation of our personal sins from our old sin natures, and therefore the emphasis at this point is on the fact that physical death has no claim over Him, the old sin nature never had one. Physical death is the result of spiritual death or the genetical possession of the old sin nature, along with the imputation of Adam's sin. Spiritual death equals the imputation of Adam's sin to Adam's trend or old sin nature. If physical death no longer has any control over the resurrection body of Christ, neither does the old sin nature have any more sovereignty in the life of the believer who is identified with Christ in His resurrection. Spiritual death = the imputation of Adam's sin to the old sin nature. The second death is the perpetuation of spiritual death into eternity. These two are not in view here, it is physical death which is in view this time. Physical death no longer has any control over the resurrection body; neither does the old sin nature have any more sovereignty in the life of the believer who is identified with the resurrected Christ. So positionally, not only has the power of the old sin nature been broken—retroactive positional truth—but the power of physical death has been broken through current positional truth.

Lesson #205

205 09/23/1977 Romans 6:9b–10a Physical death; results of current positional truth; intensification of good and evil in the Middle Ages

Romans 6:9 ...knowing that Christ, having been raised up out from the dead, dies no more. Death no longer rules over Him. (BLB)

Death is the way that blessings in time are transitioned into blessings in eternity. This is the 5th category of blessing under SG2. Physical death is no longer the ruler; physical death is the result of having the sin nature. In past time, the cells and chromosomes did go through an aging process; but bacteria became a bigger thing after the flood. There are many potentialities. The manner in which you die is not the issue; but the status in which you die. For the unbeliever, physical death is the worst thing that could ever take place in the person's life.

The verb here is the present active indicative from the verb kurieúō (κυριεύω) [pronounced ko-ree-YOO-oh] which means to be lord or master, to be in control. It has the connotation of rulership but it isn't as strong a word as basileúō (βασιλεύω) [pronounced bas-il-YOO-oh] which is used for the ruling power of the old sin nature. basileúō (βασιλεύω) [pronounced bas-il-YOO-oh] is used for a king ruling, absolute authority ruling; kurieúō (κυριεύω) [pronounced ko-ree-YOO-oh] is used for a husband ruling his wife, but the husband himself is subject to a higher authorities. basileúō (βασιλεύω) [pronounced bas-il-YOO-oh] is used for the old sin nature's rule over life. The old sin nature is the absolute authority over human life from the point of physical birth because of the imputation of Adam's original sin to the genetically-formed old sin nature. So from the very start in life we have an absolute ruler—the old sin nature. But kurieúō (κυριεύω) [pronounced ko-ree-YOO-oh] is slightly different. A husband, for example, who rules a wife might find himself as a private in a platoon, which means he has authority over him, he is under authority. So the word implies authority somewhere, but not everywhere. basileúō (βασιλεύω) [pronounced bas-il-YOO-oh], on the other hand, means to have authority everywhere, the absolute and highest authority. Physical death is not the absolute ruler—kurieúō (κυριεύω) [pronounced ko-ree-YOO-oh]; spiritual death is, however.

There is also a temporal adverb, oukéti (οὐκέτι) [pronounced ook-EHT-ee], this time meaning “no longer”—“death is no longer master/lord.” The verb itself is a static present tense, representing a condition which perpetually exists. The active voice: physical death does not produce the action with the temporal negative adverb oukéti (οὐκέτι) [pronounced ook-EHT-ee] being involved. The indicative mood is declarative, a dogmatic statement of doctrine.

With this is an objective genitive singular from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS], used as a personal pronoun referring to the Lord Jesus Christ. We are in union with Christ and this will be the significance of this statement—“death is no longer master or lord over him.”

Romans 6:9 Knowing that because Christ has been raised from the deaths he can never die; physical death is no longer master or lord over him.

Current positional truth and retroactive positional truth Romans 6:9)

1. Retroactive positional truth destroys the sovereign authority of the old sin nature over human life ruling through spiritual death. Current positional truth, on the other hand, destroys the limited authority of physical death in human life.
2. Understanding the doctrine of current positional truth leads to application which we will find in verse 11.
3. Instead of being ruled by the old sin nature located in the cells of the human body and influencing our souls toward sin, good and evil, we now have a new sovereign: the Lord Jesus Christ. We are identified with Him in His deaths, in His burial, resurrection, ascension and session. And remember that because of positional truth Jesus Christ is lord at the moment we believe in Him.
4. Before salvation and the baptism of the Holy Spirit our lives were under the absolute rule of Satan who is the ruler of this world. We were under the rule of the old sin nature which was the ruler of life, and under the limited rule of physical death. So that we were in slavery, under slavery to every category of evil that could exist, and as such our lives could never have any great happiness or richness of blessing. All of that, of course, has been changed.
5. Now both retroactive and current positional truth have abrogated the authority and power of these former rulers. The power of the old sin nature is broken through retroactive positional truth and the power of physical death is broken through current positional truth.
6. Therefore having studied these things by principle and by implication, we are now ready for application, verses 12 & 13 specifically. At this stage the implication is obvious. It is our relationship with Christ, our union with Christ, the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation, resultant retroactive and current positional truth which is the basis for the freedom from the slavery to the old sin nature and to physical death.

7. Remember that the baptism of the Holy Spirit which occurs at salvation is not an experience, but is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit entering us into union with Christ so that we are intimately united with Him in His spiritual death, physical death, burial, resurrection, ascension, session.
8. The baptism of the Spirit has two directions: identification with Christ in His deaths and burial, and identification with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session.
9. Having been positionally liberated from the sovereignty of the old sin nature as an absolute ruler, and the authority of physical death as an under ruler, we must recognize and apply doctrine for the experiential victory commanded in verses 11-13.

Romans 6:10 For that which He died, He died to sin once for all; but that which He lives, He lives to God. (BLB)

Verse 10 – “For in that he died” includes a cognate accusative neuter singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], translated “which.” There is antecedent for the relative pronoun in the word “death/thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss],” found in the last phrase of the previous verse. The explanatory conjunction gar, “for,” plus the aorist active indicative of the verb apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], referring to the spiritual death of our Lord on the cross in which all personal sins were judicially imputed to Him and judged on the cross. The whole human race can therefore have eternal life by simply believing in Christ—“For the death which he has died.” The aorist tense is constative, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. It takes all the personal sin in human history and imputes them to Christ on the cross, and then the justice of God judges those personal sins, and the three hours involved are gathered up into one entirety. The active voice: the subject is determined by the cognate accusative as spiritual death, i.e. the spiritual death of Christ on the cross. Hence, Christ is being judged for our sins on the cross and that is the subject. The declarative indicative mood is for the reality of the judicial imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross.

“he died unto sin once” – aorist active indicative of apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], referring again to the spiritual death of Christ on the cross. This time we have the culminative aorist tense, it views the judicial imputation of all personal sins in their entirety but it emphasizes the existing results which includes eternal salvation for anyone who will believe in Christ. The active voice: Christ produces the action of the verb being judged for our sins. The declarative indicative: this is an unqualified statement of doctrine. Christ was bearing our sins and being judged by God the Father on the cross. Then a dative of reference singular from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], used here for the old sin nature—“with reference to the sin nature.” The definite article is used here, the generic use. In other words, the article is used to represent a category, namely the old sin nature.

Then an unusual but strong adverb, ephapax (ἐφάπαξ) [pronounced ef-AP-ax], “once for all.” This adverb separates the spiritual death of Christ from the physical death of Christ on the cross. “For the death which he has died, he died once for all with reference to the sin nature.”

Principle

1. The spiritual death of Christ was judgment from the justice of God for all the personal sins of the human race. The justice of God imputed these sins, then judged them.
2. Between the spiritual death and physical death of our Lord is the adverb ephapax (ἐφάπαξ) [pronounced ef-AP-ax], “once for all.”
3. The physical death of Christ was an act of His own volition. He expelled His breath and dismissed His spirit into the presence of the Father. As His spiritual death was unique, so was His physical death. He did not bleed to death. He had no problem when it came to coagulation. When he was pierced by the soldier’s spear, that revealed that most of His blood remained in His body.
4. The judicial imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross is the crux of our Lord’s spiritual death.
5. At the same time of the judicial imputation of all personal sins to Christ on the cross other aspects of trends of the old sin nature, namely good and evil, were rejected and were definitely not a part of that imputation. This means, again, the non-imputation of good and evil is tantamount to the rejection of good and evil. The rejection of good and evil by our Lord is shared by us positionally since we have been entered into union with Christ through the baptism of the Spirit.
6. Remember that good and evil is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life.
7. Hence, the significance of retroactive positional truth which identifies the Church Age believer with Christ in His spiritual death, thereby constituting the believer’s positional rejection of good and evil.

The baptism of the Holy Spirit did not take place until A.D. 30. Until AD 30 there was never identification with Christ. Until AD 30 there was always good and evil in the world, but good and evil were never concentrated and rapidly disseminated as they have been since AD 30. Because of a radical change in history after our Lord’s crucifixion in which history began to speed up, in which momentum began, good and evil was concentrated as never before in history in the latter part of the Roman empire. Givens “Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire.” He takes this from Marcus Aurelius up to the 15th century. This is a monumental work done in the 18th century. He demonstrates the concentration of good and evil. A concentration that had not existed as well organized at the decline of the Roman empire, right up to the point in human history.

Rome set up a system to allow for good and evil to be concentrated, and that started your problem. Rome had a decline of their military and a decline of good thinking. There were all of these peoples who were drawn to the center of this good and evil. Rome became a vacuum. And these people became malcontent where they were and a vacuum seemed to draw them westward. It led to a horrible time in history. The medieval times was a disastrous period of history. A time of great darkness. One bright spot was the Persians such as existed in the days of Daniel.

The average lifespan was 28–31 years of age. Great plagues. People died like flies. Low point in history was at that time. The knights are often Romanticized. Even the most famous men were 5'6" or so. Men were 5'2" to 5'4". When Romanism became a distorted force. This history bored Bob except for the tutor period. Nothing duller than a knight running around in armor and not bathing and eating with his armor. This was the low period of all of history. In the reformation, there was the return to Bible doctrine. Western civilization began to emerge and show some light. Always light here or there when there were pockets of doctrine.

Huguenots made a great contribution to the colonies and to Prussia.

As the Church Age began, history changed rapidly. In the ancient world, if you managed to escape, you could flee from concentrated evil. But the time came when that was no longer true. There was no place to go except inward with Bible doctrine. Concentrated good and evil. Concentrated sin and evil. We might be ready for the rise and decline of the United States. Medicine has been set back 100 years, in order to let in people to achieve quotas. The federal government has destroyed all real exploration by some companies. It is better to have better and fewer doctors. Everything is heading toward a medievalism in the United States.

Paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-meet/par-is-TAHN-oh] is going to be key to this chapter and to staving off medievalism.

1977 Romans

Lesson #206

206 09/25/1977 Romans 6:10b Our position in Christ; blessings secure for the believer though disciplined for carnality (David)

Imputation and position describes the Christian way of life. A real imputation has affinity and antecedent. The old sin nature is carried by the man and woman, but passed along genetically by the man.

In order to live with God forever, we must have the same life that He has (eternal life) and we must be as good as God is (perfect righteousness).

In Romans 6, we find out that we have a double-portion of eternal life and of righteousness. The grace of God is a policy.

Romans 6:10 For that which He died, He died to sin once for all; but that which He lives, He lives to God. (BLB)

“but in that he liveth” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de is used here to emphasize the contrast between the spiritual death of Christ and His physical death on the cross. The spiritual death is related to His saving work and the physical death is related to His subsequent resurrection. Plus the accusative neuter singular relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], whose antecedent is resurrection life. Plus the present active indicative from the verb zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh], used here is relationship to resurrection, the resurrection life of Christ in His hypostatic union. There is a static present tense for a condition which perpetually exists—“but the life which he lives.”

In His humanity Christ will always have a resurrection body, and that resurrection body is no longer subject to any type of corruption or death of any kind. The active voice: the subject produces the action of the verb. The subject is determined by a cognate accusative and we translate, therefore, “the resurrection life which he lives.” When an accusative of the direct object contains the same idea signified by the verb it is called a cognate accusative. Hence, the limits set by the accusative are co-extensive with the significance of the verb, producing a subject as well as an object of the subject. The declarative indicative is for a dogmatic statement of Bible doctrine.

“he liveth unto God” – again, the present active indicative of zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh], this time in the present tense of duration denoting what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. What was begun in the past: the resurrection of Christ, His ascension and session at the right hand of the Father. It continues for ever as His status quo and becomes the basis for His third category of royalty in which we share. When the Lord Jesus Christ was seated at the right hand of the Father He was declared to be the King of kings and Lord of lords. This is the third category of royalty which belongs to Him.

One category of royalty is shared by the Father and the Holy Spirit. Jesus Christ is called the Son of God in the royalty of His deity. He has a family: God the Father and God the Holy Spirit. Jesus Christ is royalty—Jewish royalty—by birth. He is called the son of David by His title. His royal family is the dynasty of David. But when He was declared to be the King of kings and Lord of lords, the battlefield royalty of the angelic conflict, there was no royal family. Therefore the interruption of the Jewish Age and the beginning of the Church Age. In this this Church dispensation we now have royal family, and the significance is that we have greater opportunity, greater blessing, greater everything than anyone who ever lived in the past or anyone who will ever live in the future. But it becomes a matter of being definitely briefed by Bible doctrine with regard to these things, and the maturity adjustment to the justice of God today has far greater repercussions than at any time in history.

The present tense, then, means that He will always be in this status and this is a guarantee of our blessings as far as maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The active voice: the resurrected life of Jesus Christ in hypostatic union produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. There is also a dative of reference from the definite article to denote a previous reference, and the definite article may be used to point out an object which has been clearly presented before and is now well understood by the readers—the dative of reference for the noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], referring to God the Father. It should be translated, “he lives with reference to the God.” Due to the resurrection, ascension and session of Christ He is alive with reference to God the Father in the realm of His humanity. The deity of the Lord Jesus Christ is not an issue. He has always co-existed and been co-eternal with God the Father. There never was a time when God the Father and God the Son did not live together, always, forever, and eternally. The deity of Christ, then, is never the issue, it has always existed in co-eternity with God the Father and God the Holy Spirit. This statement must be related to positional truth, i.e. retroactive and current positional truth. Retroactive positional truth breaks the sovereign authority as the ruler of human life, whereas current positional truth demands that the believer live with reference to the God. We are to walk in newness of life.

Romans 6:10 For the death [spiritual] that he [Christ] has died, he died once for all with reference to the sin nature; but the resurrection life which he lives, he lives with reference to the God.

Principle

1. This statement must be related to the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation and subsequent positional truth.
2. Since we have already noted that positional truth is categorized into retroactive and current it must be related to these two doctrinal aspects.
3. The datives of reference are in contrast in this verse: our Lord’s death to the old sin nature and His life, with resurrection, to God. He died once for all with reference to the sin nature, but in that He lived, He lived with reference to the God.
4. We have previously noted that identification with Christ in His death is the basis for the rebound technique solving the problem of all personal sins and carnality after salvation. This is solved temporally by rebound.
5. We have also noted previously that the non-imputation of good and evil at the cross is the positional basis for rejection of good and evil.
6. Because of the resurrection, ascension and session of Christ the believer in Christ is identified with Christ who lives his life with reference to the God. So positionally, at least, we live our lives with reference to God. But that is positional and not necessarily experiential.
7. Therefore current positional truth demands that the believer live his life with reference to God.
8. Union with Christ demands a new way of life for the believer in time, a way of life related to grace and doctrine.
9. Positional truth demands a new way of life compatible with the relationship between the resurrected humanity of Christ and God the Father.
10. Current positional truth establishes the principle that the Christian way of life is the supernatural way of life with a supernatural means of execution. This does not imply any extra-natural phenomenon (as holy rollers do).

11. Anything that the unbeliever can accomplish in his modus vivendi is not the Christian way of life.
12. Therefore when the believer is under the influence of the old sin nature, performing the trends of the old sin nature, he simply imitates the unbeliever. Imitation of the unbeliever is not the Christian way of life.

Man has made two false assumptions: (1) that we ought to return to the environment of the garden. (2) Adjustment to one another (as men) is equivalent to or key to adjusting to God.

There are several believers in Congress and as presidents. The worst people that we have today are born-again believers who are liberal. There is no match between their position and their actual actions. They are involved in good, which becomes evil.

Our government is trying to keep the scum of the earth alive. As a result, we are not the country that our forebearers established.

You have various things that you want, and you attempt to get these things apart from having the capacity to appreciate them. The grace pipeline is the only answer for this. Any blessings that flow through this pipeline to the mature believer; and they go to the righteousness of God, which is the other end of the pipeline.

You cannot lose what God blesses you with. David is an example of this. When he was disciplined, he retained the blessings from God, but he was not happy with it. That is security in life. All security is based upon the integrity of God. For those who advance spiritually, God provides the means and opportunity of production. None of us have security of anything in life by anything that life offers us. Our only security is from the justice of God. If God be for us, who can be against us?

Bob predicts that we have not come anywhere near to our saturation of good and evil in the United States.

Grace cannot increase through the sin nature.

1977 Romans

Lesson #207

207 09/25/1977 Romans 6:11 Rogers' Ranger Orders; Roman Empire Commodus cf. Pertinax; Socrates on emotion; conclusion from positional truth; resistance from temptation

The one desiring power, according to Edward Given, was not born in this way. He was a weak child who had an attendant who apparently affected him or a long period of time. No sense of responsibility and he was anti-education with the training that would have prepared him for the throne.

Pertinax did not bring his own family in to rule. He educated his son with simplicity. He lived with the virtuous part of the Senate. He went on to change Rome. He was as good as Commodus was evil. Both failed to make the proper application of history. Everything the Commodore did was good, but both of them failed to make the correct application. Pertinax knew what needed to be done, but tried to do too much all at once. Rome never recovered from the assassination of Pertinax.

In colonial days, we were a people of great common sense; and it was clear that we would become a great nation. Roger's Rangers who helped us greatly in the French and Indian war. He wrote 19 standing orders that all his rangers needed to follow. His first order was "Don't forget nothing."

Taken from:

<https://sofrep.com/specialoperations/robert-rogers-brilliant-flawed-first-american-special-operator/>

Rogers Standing Orders:

1. Don't forget nothing.
2. Have your musket clean as a whistle, hatchet scoured, sixty rounds powder and ball, and be ready to march at a minute's warning.
3. When you're on the march, act the way you would if you was sneaking up on a deer. See the enemy first.
4. Tell the truth about what you see and what you do. There is an army depending on us for correct information. You can lie all you please when you tell other folks about the Rangers, but don't never lie to a Ranger or officer.
5. Don't never take a chance you don't have to.
6. When we're on the march we march single file, far enough apart so one shot can't go through two men.
7. If we strike swamps, or soft ground, we spread out abreast, so it's hard to track us.
8. When we march, we keep moving till dark, so as to give the enemy the least possible chance at us.
9. When we camp, half the party stays awake while the other half sleeps.
10. If we take prisoners, we keep 'em separate till we have had time to examine them, so they can't cook up a story between 'em.
11. Don't ever march home the same way. Take a different route so you won't be ambushed.
12. No matter whether we travel in big parties or little ones, each party has to keep a scout 20 yards ahead, 20 yards on each flank, and 20 yards in the rear so the main body can't be surprised and wiped out.
13. Every night you'll be told where to meet if surrounded by a superior force.
14. Don't sit down to eat without posting sentries
15. Don't sleep beyond dawn. Dawn's when the French and Indians attack.
16. Don't cross a river by a regular ford.
17. If somebody's trailing you, make a circle, come back onto your own tracks, and ambush the folks that aim to ambush you.
18. Don't stand up when the enemy's coming against you. Kneel down, lie down, hide behind a tree.
19. Let the enemy come till he's almost close enough to touch, then let him have it and jump out and finish him up with your hatchet.

Rogers Standing Orders:

Bob read all of these. This is why such a small body of men could make such an impact on this nation's history.

Romans 6:11 So also you, consider yourselves to be dead indeed to sin, but living to God in Christ Jesus. (BLB)

Verse 11 – “Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin.” There is an adverb here which separates the doctrines from the application—houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]. It refers to what precedes and by this now makes the application. It is translated “So.” In other words, having assimilated doctrine and its implication it is now time for application. Then the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai, “also.” In other words, these two words bring in a simple concept: doctrine demands application. The effectiveness of doctrine in your life is twofold: a) spiritual growth; b) application to contemporary history. Here we are dealing with application to contemporary history. Doctrine demands application.

Next is the present middle imperative from the verb logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-a] which means to calculate, to take into account, to evaluate, to estimate, to think, consider, ponder, have in mind, to be of the opinion. In other words, it is a verb of application. In this case we follow the Attic Greek of logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-a] which connoted thought according to strict logical rules, and therefore meant to deliberate or to conclude or apply information.

There have been people in Berachah who are unable to think because of the use of drugs.

Plato actually assigned a meaning to this verb—non-emotional thinking. Emotion may result from thinking but emotion must never be allowed to destroy thinking. “So also all you yourselves conclude [think doctrinally].” In other words, the application of doctrine. The present tense is an aoristic present for punctiliar action in present time. This is a direct middle voice referring to the results of the action directly to the agent or the believer with reflexive force. The imperative mood is an entreaty rather than a command, and entreaty which does not convey the finality of a command but has the force of urgency. It is always an urgent principle that we must begin to think in terms of doctrine, and when we have a conflict in our soul between how we feel and what the Word of God says we must always go with what the Word of God says, rather than how we feel. Emotion must never destroy our ability to reason and to think. Our highest form of emotion must come from the stimulation of thought, rather than the destruction of thought. Doctrine means reason, thought, following a system of thought for spiritual growth as well as for application. Then we have the word “yourselves” again.

Socrates was famous for being nearly nagged to death by his wife, Xantippe. He stayed out of the house and hung out at the gym which was next door to... People thought that their great talents here or there; and Socrates proved them otherwise.

People wanted to be rid of Socrates, and he did not mention the gods. He was hauled into court for being an atheist. Account of the trial by Plato. Because the Athenians killed Socrates, Plato said that their emotions kept them from advancing and he said that their future was uncertain. He developed a concept. He took the word logos and coined a word used before him, logizomai. He used this verb to refer to non-emotional thinking.

This time, instead of being a part of the reflexive middle, we find it as a reflexive pronoun, the accusative plural of general reference from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO]—“yourselves.” The accusative is used with the infinitive and it is not actually the subject of the infinitive coming up but it describes the persons connected with the action of the infinitive, i.e. all believers. Hence, it is translated as the subject of the verb to be, the present active infinitive of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. By making it the subject of the infinitive, immediately we have an issue: you have to get doctrine for yourself. You cannot hire someone to come in and takes notes for you. There is no substitution for taking in Bible doctrine.

Take one of the most fantastic things in life, a woman. But without authority, she becomes a monster. Everything in life that is worthwhile is involved with authority.

Logizomai (λογίζομαι) [pronounced log-IHD-zohm-ai] is authority, the application of doctrine to experience; doctrine is the authority in our lives. With this authority we have to have an infinitive, and that is why we have the accusative of general reference. With the present active infinitive of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] is heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO] as the subject—“So also on the one hand all of you yourselves conclude yourselves to be dead.” Notice that a verb of application also exercises authority, for the infinitive is under the authority of the main verb. That is the static present of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] for a condition or circumstance perpetually existing from retroactive positional truth. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb through being identified with Christ in His death. The infinitive is an actual result of the baptism of the Holy Spirit which occurs at the point of salvation.

With this is an accusative plural direct object of the infinitive from the adjective nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] used as a substantive to describe retroactive positional truth breaking the sovereignty and authority of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life. Plus the affirmative particle men, used correlatively with de in the style of Attic Greek, meaning on the one hand and on the other hand. Plus the dative of reference singular from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], previous reference to the old sin nature. “So also, on the one hand, all of you yourselves conclude yourselves to be dead with reference to the sin nature.”

Principle

1. The conclusion called for in this verse demands complete understanding of certain related doctrines, such as the baptism of the Spirit, retroactive and current positional truth.
2. In this section of the verse retroactive positional truth is in focus. Retroactive positional truth means identification with Christ in His spiritual death, His physical death, and burial.
3. Identification with Christ in His spiritual death relates to the non-imputation of good and evil at the cross. Hence, rejection of good and evil as the policy of Satan and the function of the old sin nature.
4. In the spiritual death of Christ on the cross all personal sins were imputed to Christ and judged, but good and evil was neither imputed nor judged at the cross.
5. In the physical death of Christ and His burial there was a total separation from good and evil. The body of Christ was in the grave, separated from good and evil. The spirit of Christ was in the presence of the Father, separated from good and evil. The soul of Jesus Christ was in Paradise, separated from good and evil.
6. By identification with Christ in His physical death and burial the believer is positionally separated from good and evil.
7. Positionally, then, the believer has both rejected and separated himself from good and evil. Hence, the power and authority of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life is broken positionally.
8. This opens the way for the experiential victory over the old sin nature whose power has been abrogated. Remember, you cannot apply what you do not understand.

“but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord” – the conjunctive particle de is used to connect one clause with another, as per Attic Greek: “but on the other hand.” Plus the present active participle from the verb zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] meaning to live. The present tense is the present tense of duration which denotes something begun in the past and continuing into the present time. The active voice: the believer in Christ through the baptism of the Spirit and current positional truth produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial for current positional truth. Plus the dative of reference from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], “God,” plus the definite article used for God whose identity is clear to the readers. A prepositional phrase follows, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of two proper nouns for God the Son, Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE]—“in Christ Jesus.” The phrase “our Lord” is not found in the original manuscript. Translation: “but on the other hand living with reference to God in Christ Jesus. The prepositional phrase, “in Christ Jesus” emphasizes positional truth or union with Christ which is the essential description of Christianity. We have not a religion in Christianity but a relationship.

Romans 6:11 So also on the one hand all of you yourselves conclude yourselves to be dead with reference to the sin nature, but on the other hand living with reference to the God in Christ Jesus.

Summary

1. The conclusion from positional truth, whether retroactive or current, is stated as application to these doctrines.
2. Anticipating Romans 7:1-4 where we have an illustration of a woman who has divorced one husband and is now married to another husband. This is what actually happens to us as believers at salvation. The old sin nature is the husband up to the point of salvation, it rules human life with its trends toward sin, human good, and evil. But the moment we believe in Jesus Christ positionally we are divorced from the old sin nature and positionally we have a new husband, we are in union with Christ. Retroactive positional truth divorces us from the old sin nature positionally. Current positional truth enters us into union with Christ. So the old sin nature is the old husband; Jesus Christ is the new husband.
3. The first husband is the old sin nature with trends toward sin, good and evil. Positionally, the old sin nature is aced out; it is out of the picture. But the believer keeps asking it back inside.
4. The woman is the believer in the Lord Jesus Christ.
5. The second husband is the Lord Jesus Christ—"in Christ Jesus."
6. Salvation is divorcing one husband and marrying another; dying to the old husband and becoming alive to the new husband. The believer is positionally dead to the old husband; he is positionally alive to the new husband.
7. The authority of the old husband, the sin nature, was broken by death—retroactive positional truth.
8. The authority of the new husband—Christ—becomes a reality at salvation through the baptism of the Spirit and resultant current positional truth.
9. The believer is the bride, dead to the first husband but alive to the new husband.
10. The old sin nature husband is still around, still seeking to regain his control over the wife, the believer. But union with the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ, has broken the first husband's authority over the former wife.

You can't counsel a dumb woman. You do not let your ex inside your door.

When the old sin nature knocks on the door, you do not let it in.

There are two concepts of resistance of temptation. The first is the unbeliever concept. The unbeliever resists temptation and lust from the old sin nature in three ways: a) restraint—law and law enforcement; b) disapproval—the establishment influence of society disapproves, and this becomes a restrainer; c) inability—lack of capacity, lack of money, lack of ability to follow some lust pattern in the field of sin or good or evil.

The believer has these three, but he has three additional areas of resistance to temptation: a) the Holy Spirit—temptation is resisted through the filling of the Spirit, Galatians 5:16; b) doctrine—maximum doctrine resident in the soul produces application resistance of temptation, Psalm 119:11; c) fear—respect for divine authority related to the function of the justice of God. Understanding divine discipline is also a restrainer, as per Hebrews 12:6.

208 09/26/1977 Romans 6:12 Madame Roland and the French Revolution; option re the old sin nature; doctrine of logistical grace; right pastor–teacher

Madame Roland would have been considered a moderate and she just wanted to improve France. She obviously and frankly through human good wanted to improve the situation. She was in the revolution. She saw with the Jacobeans that all of her human good reforms had been turned into violence.

Loyalists would be rooted out and killed. Any suspicious types to be put into jail. The mob headed by the Jacobeans was lawless. Many did not oppose the Jacobeans because they were so quick to kill. Madame Roland deeply felt the peril. Jacobeans wanted to send their enemies to the scaffold. Madame Roland did die at the guillotine. She was responsible for rousing up the mob in the first place; and she thought that she cause was so important and so right. Very self righteous. She actually brought about terrible violence to those who were completely innocent. She was a woman who believed in human good; and did not understand its repercussions and its attachment to evil.

Human good eventually results in evil.

The first 11 verses are read.

We are entered into Christ by means of current positional truth.

Romans 6:12 Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body, in order to obey its desires. (BLB)

The sin nature cannot be removed from the human body; but whether it reigns or not is what we deal with.

Verse 12 – since living with reference to the God constitutes the fulfilment of the principle potential + capacity = reality, it is necessary for the rulership of the old sin nature to be experientially cancelled or abrogated. Positionally it was accomplished at the point at which we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ. “Let not sin reign in your mortal body” – it does not talk about the exclusion of the sin nature from the mortal body, but its rulership must be cancelled. Until the day that we die the old sin nature will continue to live in every cell of the human body. This begins with the inferential particle oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon], it denotes that what it now introduces is an inference from what has preceded: the positional victory over the old sin nature through retroactive positional truth. What follows as an inference is the experiential victory over the old sin nature, or how Jesus Christ experientially becomes the ruler of your life. Experientially the Lord Jesus Christ, your saviour and Lord positionally, is not necessarily experientially your sovereign. There is a vast difference between positional victory over the old sin nature and experiential victory. The experiential factor deals with your occupation with the person of Christ. This only comes through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.

Next is the negative particle mê (μή) [pronounced may] used as a part of an imperative of prohibition, and used with a verb in order to set up the imperative of prohibition expressing a negative command. The negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] denies the fact; the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] denies the idea. The nominative singular subject hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] refers to the antagonist, the old sin nature, with the generic use of the definite article which indicates the old sin nature as a category—the sovereign of human life ruling through spiritual death. “Therefore, do not let the sin nature.”

Plus the verb, the present active imperative of basilissa (βασίλισσα) [pronounced bahs-IHL-ihS-SAH], the word which is used for absolute sovereignty. The word here means to continue ruling, i.e. ruling after salvation. Positionally the power of the old sin nature is broken; experientially whether this becomes a reality depends upon the believer’s attitude toward doctrine, the rebound technique, and other similar things. The progressive present tense has very strong linear aktionsart, and with the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] it means to stop a course of action which is already in progress. The active voice: the believer in Christ executes the negative command based upon positional provision of retroactive positional truth, plus the experiential provision of logistical support/grace in advancing to maturity. This is the imperative mood of prohibition in which the prohibition in the present imperative demands that an action then in progress be stopped. Paul is obviously speaking to believers who in ignorance of Bible doctrine are totally disoriented to God’s plan and have permitted the old sin nature to rule in their lives.

Some believers will try very hard to reduce their sinning, but they continue in a life of good and evil.

Then a prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] with the locative neuter singular from the adjective thnētós (θνητός) [pronounced thnay-TOSS] which means mortal or subject to death. The adjective is used to describe the existence of the old sin nature in the cell structure of the human body and thus providing the process which leads to death or vulnerability to disease leading to death. In other words, the corrupting influence, the ageing influence of the human body is the presence of the old sin nature. It is not only the ruler of human life through its trends but it is the basis for ageing and disease.

Next is the locative of sphere from sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah], used for the human body where the old sin nature is located, plus the possessive genitive plural from the pronoun su—“our body.” Literally, “Therefore stop permitting the sin nature ruling in your mortal body.” The command to stop permitting indicates that we have some control over the matter, that our volition is very definitely involved. The sin nature is located in the cell structure of the body; life is located in the soul.

“that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof” – the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the articular present active infinitive hupakouō (ὑπακούω) [pronounced hoop-ak-OO-oh] which means to obey. Eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the infinitive usually indicates a purpose clause, so we translate it “that you should obey”—recognize authority and place one’s self under it. Here we have the retroactive progressive present denoting what has begun at birth and continues into the present time, even after the new birth, i.e. the rulership of the old sin nature. The active voice: the old sin nature produces the action of the verb through ruling human life. The infinitive of purpose with eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] expresses the aim of the action denoted by the finite verb.

Plus the instrumental plural of manner from epithumia (ἐπιθυμία) [pronounced ep-ee-thoo-MEE-ah], with the instrumental plural of manner of the definite article used as a possessive pronoun. The instrumental of manner expresses the method by which an act is performed or an end is achieved. The old sin nature dominates the lust pattern in its trends toward sin, good, and evil. It should be translated “that you should obey the same [OSN] with its trends.” The trends are the means by which the old sin nature functions as the sovereign of human life. The objective genitive singular from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] is translated “the same.” This is the attributive use of autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] emphasizing the old sin nature.

Romans 6:12 Therefore, stop permitting the sin nature ruling in your mortal body, that you should obey the same [the sin nature] with its trends.

Stopping the Sin Nature from Ruling in Your Mortal Body

1. Notice that this is a negative command. This is something that has to be shut down, turned off. This negative command of prohibition indicates that the believer has an option after salvation regarding the rulership of the old sin nature.
2. As a result of the baptism of the Spirit at salvation and resultant retroactive positional truth the sovereignty and the authority of the old sin nature as the ruler of life has been broken positionally. This is true for every believer. The fact of the abrogation of the old sin nature’s power means that experientially there can be and should be a change.
3. The option, then, is the issue. How and where do we exercise our options? What is the exercise of the function of our options?
 - a. The option lies on the experiential side of Christianity.
 - b. The option is related to experiential Christianity, not positional Christianity.
 - c. Positional Christianity gives us the opportunity to exercise our options, but the option is exercised in the field of Christian experience.
4. This option is exercised in at least two ways. They can be described simply as maturity adjustment to the justice of God. We have two opportunities to exercise an option, both are continuous.
 - a. One of them as to do with an instantaneous recovery from carnality. Because sins were imputed and judged at the cross when we are out of fellowship we can name our sins and immediately we are forgiven—rebound adjustment to the justice of God. So we exercise our option first of all by grace orientation with regard to rebound.
 - b. The second area is one where the option must be exercised and that has to do with Bible doctrine. This is maturity adjustment to the justice of God as the second use of constant volition. We must exercise our option for doctrine every day so that through the function of GAP we can grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and saviour Jesus Christ. And once we crack the maturity barrier then experientially the old sin nature is not in control, we are living “newness of life.”

5. While the above is the principle the functional concept is the utilization of logistical grace, which includes rebound, subsequent filling of the Spirit, the daily function of GAP or consistent positive volition toward Bible doctrine.
6. The concept will be amplified in the next verse in studying the principle of yieldedness.
7. In the meantime we should be cognizant of the fact that logistical grace has provided everything necessary for obedience to this command to stop permitting, and the command in the next verse to yield.
8. The execution of divine commands would be impossible without the support of logistical grace. Therefore at this point we have to conclude that logistical grace makes it possible for experiential victory over the old sin nature.^[6]

Given all this, we need to review the Doctrine of Logistical Grace (the doctrine below was put together from a number of different lessons all around this time; and the amount of time spent on this doctrine was around 20 minutes in this class; just the basic definition was covered):

The Doctrine of logistical grace is also covered in Lesson #318, Lesson #547. Any notes from there are placed here. It appears that this doctrine will be covered 3 or 4 more times in the book of Romans.

Doctrine of Logistical Grace

- A. Definition and Description of Logistical Grace.
 1. Logistics is a military word which refers to the military science of supply, provision, and planning of troop movement.
 - a. Logistics is the provision, movement, and maintenance of all resources and services necessary to sustain military forces. Logistics involves the national economic capacity and the nation's capability to support its military forces.
 - b. Logistics is also defined as the military science of planning, handling, and implementation of personnel under every possible military condition.
 - c. Logistics includes the design, development, acquisition, storage, movement, distribution, maintenance, evacuation, and disposal of material. It includes hospitalization of personnel, and the construction and maintenance of housing facilities.
 - d. Logistics must be distinguished from administration. Administration is the management of all services and resources necessary to sustain military forces. Administration implies management, and management is the function of logistics. Therefore, the two become inseparable.

- e. Hence, logistics is a technical military term for sustaining troops in every form of military activity and maneuver, i.e., in the barracks, in the field, in the battle, before the battle, and after the battle.
 - f. Logistics is the science of supporting troops in advance, retreat, evacuation, reconnaissance, attack, exploitation, and pursuit. The battle of Dunkirk in World War II is a dramatic illustration of the importance of logistics.
 - g. From this military nomenclature comes a Bible doctrine based on analogy. Logistics always plays a very important and dramatic part in warfare, but logistics plays an even greater part in your life as a believer. Every believer is alive today because of logistical grace.
 - h. The word "logistics" comes from two Greek words.
 - (1) Logistes (λογιστης), an inspector of accounts, an auditor, a calculator.
 - (2) Logismos (λογισμός) [pronounced lohg-is-MOSS], a thinker.
2. Logistical grace is defined as divine planning, divine support, divine provision, and divine blessing for the execution of protocol plan of God by the royal family for the fulfillment of God's will, purpose, and plan for your life. This keeps us alive from salvation to spiritual maturity.
3. Logistical grace includes three factors of divine provision.
- a. Life support is provided for every Church Age believer. This explains how and why we are alive every moment. The only reason we are alive is because of logistical grace. We do not earn or deserve it; there's no work we can accomplish to keep ourselves alive.
 - b. Blessing is provided for every Church Age believer, both winners and loser. This dramatizes the justice of God, in that the justice of God sends life support and blessing to the indwelling righteousness of God in both winners and losers. This emphasizes grace. You are alive only because of the grace of God, not because of anything you do. Winners utilize logistical grace, losers coast on it, but never utilize it.
 - c. Divine provision for every Church Age believer to execute the protocol plan of God. All doctrine comes from the prepared pastor-teacher. If you have persistent positive volition, you will find doctrine and your right pastor-teacher.
4. The basis of logistical grace is divine integrity.
- a. God is infinite, eternal, and absolute holiness, which may be classified as divine integrity or absolute unchangeable divine virtue.
 - b. The integrity of God is composed of His perfect righteousness and justice. God loves His own integrity. Four principles related to the integrity of God apply:
 - (1) What the righteousness of God rejects, the justice of God judges.
 - (2) What the righteousness of God accepts, the justice of God blesses. This is the basis for logistical grace.

(3) The justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands. The righteousness of God in accepting certain things demands blessing from the justice of God. This is the basis for logistical grace.

(4) At the moment of salvation, the righteousness of God is imputed to the believer by the justice of God. The righteousness of God demands blessing from the justice of God whether we fail or succeed as Christians. This is why God provides logistical grace to both winners and losers.

c. Christians who fail to execute the Christian life still have the forty things they received at salvation, one of which is the righteousness of God. This means God will support and sustain you regardless of how deserving or undeserving you are.

d. At the moment of salvation through faith in Christ, the righteousness of God is imputed to us. This is true in every dispensation. There are three results from the imputation of divine righteousness to the believer.

(1) Justification. God looks at His righteousness imputed to us and declares us to be righteous. We receive instant justification, Rom 5:1.

(2) God's love changes from impersonal love to personal love toward His perfect righteousness imputed to us. God can now love us personally.

(3) We receive logistical grace.

e. In the function of the policy of grace, there can be no compromise of divine attributes. God has found a way, through logistical grace, to bless each believer without compromising His attributes.

f. God's perfect righteousness is the principle of divine integrity, while God's perfect justice is the function of divine integrity. That is the basis for logistical grace.

(1) God cannot accept anything less than perfect righteousness as the object of divine blessing.

(2) Therefore, God cannot bless anything less than His own perfect righteousness.

g. The indwelling righteousness of God is the recipient of all life support and all blessing from God. The grace pipeline excludes human merit and ability from all blessing.

h. The justice of God is the source of life support and blessing. Divine justice is the point of reference with mankind since he sinned.

i. Between His perfect righteousness and justice, God has found a way to administer logistical grace blessing to every Church Age believer.

j. The principle of logistical grace demands that divine justice provide life support and blessing to the indwelling righteousness of God.

- k. Therefore, the grace pipeline is established between the two attributes of divine holiness or integrity. This pipeline excludes man's works and ability; man doesn't earn or deserve any of these things.
 - l. Rom 3:22, "Even the righteousness of God through faith in Jesus Christ for all who believe."
 - m. Mt 6:33, "Seek first the kingdom of God and His [imputed] righteousness, and all of these things shall be added to you."
 - n. 2 Cor 9:8 defines logistical grace for us. "And God is able to make all grace abound to you, that always having all sufficiency in everything [logistical grace support and blessing], you may have an abundance for every good of intrinsic value production."
5. The basis for logistical grace includes both the possession of divine righteousness imputed at salvation plus the human spirit created by the Holy Spirit at salvation.
6. Besides providing life support and blessing, logistical grace is for the perception and execution of the protocol plan of God. Everything is provided, so that every believer has equal privilege and equal opportunity to execute God's plan and glorify God. As a part of this aspect of logistical grace, the following assets are given to us.
- a. The creation of a human spirit at the moment of salvation.
 - b. The teaching ministry of God the Holy Spirit in operation Z inside the divine dynasphere.
 - c. The provision in every generation of X-number of male believers with the gift of pastor-teacher. This gift is a part of logistical grace to communicate Bible doctrine to you.
7. Logistical grace is imputed through the grace pipeline.
- a. At one end of the pipeline is divine justice, the source of divine blessing to all believers, winners or losers. At the other end of the pipeline is divine righteousness, the recipient of divine blessing given to every Church Age believer, winner or loser. This pipeline cannot be destroyed; it does not suffer from any "metal fatigue."
 - b. Since the source of all logistical grace blessing is the justice of God, this means God is fair in supporting winners and losers alike. Since God is perfect, it is impossible for God to provide blessing for imperfect believers. We are not blessed because of what we do for God, but because of what God has done for us.
 - c. Therefore, the pipeline excludes all human ability, morality, talent, giving, sacrifice, service, or any other patronizing function of legalism as the source of divine blessing.
 - d. The existence of this pipeline after salvation means that God is free to bless all believers, winners and losers, spiritual or carnal, without compromising His own divine attributes. God found a way to bless us through the divine policy called grace. God cannot accept anything less than perfect righteousness and cannot bless anything less than perfect righteousness.

- e. Consequently, the justice of God sends His grace blessing down the pipeline. All life support and blessing to both winner and loser comes this way. This means that in logistical grace, the justice of God is the source of all divine support and blessing, and the righteousness of God is the recipient of that divine support and blessing.
8. Divine justice can only bless perfect righteousness.
- a. The integrity of God is both the guardian of the divine attributes and the believer's point of contact with God.
 - b. In the function of divine grace there can be no compromise of divine attributes. God has found a way to provide logistic grace for the believer without any compromise of His attributes.
 - c. God's perfect righteousness is the principle of divine integrity. God's perfect justice is the function of divine integrity. Therefore, God cannot accept anything less than perfect righteousness as the object of His divine blessing. And man's righteousness is unacceptable to God.
 - d. God was motivated by impersonal love to solve the problem of how to bless man. And God solved the problem through His justice.
 - e. From the moment of salvation through faith in Jesus Christ, perfect divine righteousness resides in every member of the royal family, Rom 3:22. This means the believer is qualified to receive life support and blessing whether he succeeds or fails in the Christian life.
 - f. In this way, logistical grace avoids any compromise of divine attributes. In this way, logistical grace is compatible with the integrity of God.
 - (1) God's righteousness demands righteousness; God's justice demands justice. What the righteousness of God demands, the justice of God executes. The righteousness of God demands that justice discipline us when we sin. When filled with the Spirit, the righteousness of God demands that we be blessed.
 - (2) The righteousness of God is the principle of divine holiness, and divine justice is the function of divine holiness.
 - (3) What the righteousness of God rejects, the justice of God condemns.
 - (4) What the righteousness of God accepts, the justice of God blesses.
 - (5) The justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands.
9. Biblical Documentation.
- a. 2Peter 3:18, "But grow by means of [logistical] grace and the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ."

- b. Logistical grace is support and supply for growth, Phil 4:5. "Near" means interposition, within supporting and supplying distance.
- c. The Lord is within supporting distance, Deut 33:27; Phil 4:19; Psalm 37:25; Eph 1:3; 2 Cor 9:8.

B. The Testimonies of Logistical Grace.

1. The anthropomorphic testimony is found in Deut 33:27. "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms."
2. The Biblical definition of logistical grace is found in 2 Cor 9:8. "And God is able to make all grace abound to you, that always having a sufficiency in everything [logistical grace support], you may have an abundance for every good of intrinsic value production."
 - a. The context for this verse is giving. If your attitude is right, God will provide for you to give. In fact, we are really God's stewards with the money He entrusts to us.
 - b. How is God able to make all grace abound in giving us things? Logistical grace is the answer.
 - c. Note that this sufficiency is not qualified by occurring during prosperous times. You have a sufficiency in all circumstances, including maximum historical disaster. There is no historical situation or circumstance to which this does not apply.
3. David gives the testimony of old age to logistical grace. Psalm 37:25, "I have been young but now I am old; yet I have never seen the righteous forsaken [logistical grace given to imputed righteousness] nor His seed begging bread." This means that logistical grace blessing to you can extend as far as the third generation.
4. The testimony of the shepherd is found in Psalm 23:1-6. "The Lord is the One shepherding me; therefore, I cannot lack for anything. He causes me to lie down in green pastures of choice food [life support]; He leads me to waters of refreshment [life support]. He restores my soul [rebound]; He guides me in paths of righteousness [problem solving devices] because of His reputation. Also, when I walk through the valley of the shadow of death [dying grace], I cannot fear evil because You are with me. Your rod [divine discipline] and your staff [divine deliverance], they comfort me. You have prepared before me a table in the presence of my enemies [logistical grace]; you have anointed my head with oil [promotion]; My cup [escrow blessings for time] is overflowing. Only the good [prosperity of escrow blessings] and grace [logistical grace] shall pursue me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."
 - a. It is impossible for anyone who has imputed divine righteousness to lack anything because the justice of God sends life support and blessing to all believers, both winners and losers.
 - b. Grace depends on God's reputation, not ours.
 - c. You do not fear anything under dying grace.

- d. The rod was used to "spank" the sheep for discipline. The staff was used to rescue sheep from danger. Both discipline and deliverance are a comfort to the believer who knows doctrine.
- e. As long as you live, logistical grace will pursue you.
- 5. The testimony of Paul is found in Phil 4:19. "My God shall supply all your needs [logistical grace support] according to His riches in glory in Christ Jesus." God will never run out of riches to support you. "Riches" refer to God's virtue.
- 6. The testimony from our Lord is addressed to the apostle Paul in 2 Cor 12:9. "Then He assured me, 'My grace [logistical grace] has been and still is sufficient for you. For the power is achieved with weakness.' Therefore, I will boast all the more gladly about my weaknesses in order that the power of Christ may reside in me."
 - a. "Weakness" refers to grace orientation as a problem solving device. It refers to humility, lack of arrogance, and to suffering for blessing in the three categories of providential preventative suffering, momentum testing, and evidence testing.
 - b. Weakness is our part; in the grace policy we rely on God's strength to us.
 - c. We boast in the sense of cognition of Bible doctrine, in the sense of esprit-de-corps; not in the sense of arrogance. We boast in the sense of cognitive self-confidence in spiritual self-esteem, cognitive independence in spiritual autonomy, and cognitive invincibility in spiritual maturity.
 - d. "That the power of Christ may reside in me" is a reference to the fact that Jesus Christ indwells his body and occupation with Christ as the ultimate problem solving device. It is also a reference to our spiritual growth, following the pattern of the humanity of Christ in the previous dispensation of the Hypostatic Union. The pattern of our Lord's spiritual growth was as follows.
 - (1) Spiritual self-esteem plus providential preventative suffering resulted in our Lord's spiritual autonomy.
 - (2) Spiritual autonomy plus momentum testing resulted in our Lord's maturity.
 - (3) Spiritual maturity plus evidence testing resulted in our Lord's strategic victory in the Hypostatic Union. His strategic victory included His impeccability, His saving work on the cross by means of His spiritual death, followed by His physical death, burial, resurrection, ascension, and session at the right hand of God the Father.
- 7. The testimony of the prophet Jeremiah is found in Lam 3:20-25, written as the fifth cycle of discipline was being administered. "Surely my soul remembers and is humbled within me [Jeremiah's grace orientation]. This I recall to mind; therefore I have hope [faith under pressure]. The Lord's gracious functions never cease [perpetuation of logistical grace even to enslaved believers]; His compassions never fail. They are new every morning; great is Your faithfulness. 'The Lord is my portion,' says my soul [logistical grace rations]; 'therefore, I have faith under pressure [in Him].' The Lord is good to those who trust in Him, to the soul who seeks Him."

- a. What gives Jeremiah faith under pressure? He applies logistical grace to the situation.
- b. The integrity of God is the basis for logistical grace support and blessing, not the worthiness of the believer.
- c. Even as they march to Babylon, enslaved under the fifth cycle of discipline, the Jews are reminded every morning that they wake up that God is giving logistical grace to them. Since they are still alive, God has a purpose for their lives.
- d. The Jews failed God so that the nation has fallen. Yet the faithfulness of God never changes, for His grace continues to provide for them in disaster.
- e. The verb for "trust" in verse 25 is qal active participle of QAWAH, referring to a rabbit finding refuge in the cleft of a rock. This connotes the use of the problem solving devices.
- f. The Lord becomes very important to many believers in times of disaster; whereas in times of prosperity, the Lord isn't nearly as important to many casual believers. Casual attitudes toward the Lord disappear when disaster comes.
- g. For those who do seek the Lord and trust in Him through the use of the ten problem solving devices, they will have a fantastic and magnificent life.
- h. Logistical grace is the basis for the perpetuation of the believer's life in time no matter what disasters may come. God sustains the life of every believer on planet earth in spite of Satanic opposition, the policy of evil, opposition from others, and our tendencies for self-destruction. We have a propensity for self-destruction; yet God keeps us alive in spite of ourselves and in spite of others.

C. Logistical grace keeps the believer alive.

1. No believer can live on this earth apart from logistical grace support. Hebrews 2:14, "That through death He might render powerless him who has the power of death, that is, the devil; and might deliver those who, through fear of death, were subject to slavery all of their lives." One of the greatest enslavements in life is fear of death.
2. At salvation, we have divine righteousness. We must be sustained in our advance to maturity.
3. Logistical grace plays a fantastic role in keeping winners and losers alive.
 - a. Ps 33:18, "Behold, the eye of the Lord is on those who respect Him, on those who wait for His grace to deliver their soul from death, and to keep alive in depression."

b. Ps 56:13, "For you have delivered my soul from death, indeed my feet from stumbling, that I may walk with God in the light of life." To walk with God in the light of life means you know about logistical grace so that you appreciate it and therefore utilize it.

c. Ps 116:8, "You have rescued my soul from death."

4. Under logistical grace, God can and does prolong life.

a. Psalm 79:11, "According to the greatness of Your power, You preserve those who are doomed to die."

b. Prov 14:27, "Reverence for the Lord is a fountain of life, that one may avoid the snare of death."

c. Psalm 68:19-20, "Blessed be the God who daily bears our burdens [logistical grace], the God who is our deliverance. God is to us a God of deliverances, and to God belongs the escape from death."

d. Under logistical grace, God preserves us from death.

D. Logistical grace includes six (or more) categories of support (some of these points are found elsewhere in this doctrine).

1. Life-sustaining support is provided by God. God sustains the life of every believer on earth. No believer can depart from life apart from God's will. Therefore all the forces of hell cannot remove one believer apart from God's permission. God also provides all that it takes to support life. Psalm 48:14, "This God is our God forever and ever; He will be our guide even unto death." Lam 3:20-25.

2. The provision of an auditorium of some sort for a local church. Too often, taper groups wander around; they stop the tape, etc. Bible doctrine is the hub of all worship. The local church will continue until the end of the Church Age. In the meantime, the local church will be the classroom. Even though there is apostasy in every generation, that does not cancel the principle. There is no substitute for the local church. God does not change his policy because some local churches have failed. God does not transfer His plan to service organizations.

3. The provision of a pastor-teacher via monologue. Bob is beginning to think that seminaries are useless. We need theology but seminaries are not teaching it anymore.

4. The royal priesthood is provided for the believer to operate in privacy. This allows every believer to live and let live. Freedom from bullying and privacy of perception. The priest must live his own life as unto the Lord.

5. Temporal needs such as food, shelter, clothing, transportation, environment, time, a job, etc. are provided by God, Mt 6:33; Phil 4:19.

6. Security provision is taught in the doctrine of eternal security. Your security is from God. This includes the assignment of guardian angels, and the provision of the laws of divine establishment for freedom to advance to maturity. If positive to Bible doctrine, God provides the security for you to make that advance, as in the wall of fire. 1Peter 1:5, "We are kept by the power of God."

7. Spiritual riches are provided by God, such as our portfolio of invisible assets, the ten problem solving devices, and the unique factors of the Church Age. It also includes the provision of doctrinal teaching from your right pastor, privacy and security necessary to maintain positive volition, the royal family honor code, and discernment to see distractions and set them aside. Spiritual provision of an evangelist, a pastor, the privacy of your priesthood, the Canon, and a local church are all provided for you. Eph 1:3, "Who has blessed us with every spiritual blessing."

8. Blessings are given to every believer, both winners and losers. These are not to be confused with escrow blessings which are far greater.

9. God preserves us from death.

E. The Logistical Grace Rationale, Mt 6:25-34, the "not to worry" passage. "For this reason, I say to you: stop worrying about your life as to what you shall eat or what you shall drink, nor for your body as to what you shall wear. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing? Look at the birds of the air: they do not sow, neither do reap, nor do they gather into barns. And yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of greater value than they? Now which of you by worrying can grow eighteen inches? And why are you worried about clothing? Observe the lilies of the field and how they grow. They do not work, neither do they spin. In fact, I say to you, that even Solomon in all of his glory did not clothe himself like one of these. And if God keeps clothing the common grass of the field [and He does], which is alive today and tomorrow is thrown into the furnace, will He not do much more for you, believer of a little faith? Therefore, do not worry, thinking 'What shall we eat?' or 'What shall we drink?' or 'With what shall we clothe ourselves?' For all these things the Gentiles search for eagerly; furthermore, your heavenly Father knows that you have need of them. But seek first the kingdom and His righteousness [basis for logistical grace is possessing the righteousness of God], and all these things [logistical grace support] shall be provided for you. Therefore, do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will take care of itself [under logistical grace]. Each day has enough evil of its own."

1. In this passage, there are four commands not to worry. We are commanded not to worry because God, in logistical grace, will provide for us, regardless of our spiritual status. Remember that logistical grace is for winners and losers.

2. The principle from the first command is that there is no meter on God's grace. You cannot measure God's grace.

3. Are you more important than a bird? If so, then not to worry! 4.

4. Fear, worry, anxiety, apprehension is rejection or ignorance of God's logistical grace provision. Yet God continues to support even those who worry.

5. God provides logistical grace support for winners as well as losers. Losers worry. Worry is fear.

a. The more things you surrender to fear, the more things you fear. The more things about which you worry, the more things you worry about.

- b. The extent to which you surrender to fear, you increase the power of fear in your life. The extent to which you surrender to worry, you increase the power of worry in your life; yet God still keeps you alive.
 - c. The more things that acquire the power of fear in your life, the greater your capacity for arrogance and becoming a loser. The more you acquire the power of worry in your life, the greater your capacity for worry and becoming a loser; yet God still supports you.
6. The application of verse 34 is that you can so live in the past that you do not live today. Grace gives you the ability to live one day at a time, not handicapped by the past and not distracted by the future.
7. Logistical grace emphasizes the principle of living today, and therefore fulfilling the principle of living one day at a time, and each day as unto the Lord.
- F. The A Fortiori of Logistical Grace, Rom 8:31-32. "Therefore to what conclusion are we forced? If God is for us, who is against us? The God who did not even spare His own Son, but on behalf of us all He delivered Him over to judgment, how shall He not also with Him in grace give to us the all things?"
- G. The Issues of Logistical Grace.
- 1. Logistical grace is the basis for stability in time. 1Peter 5:12 I have written you briefly exhorting and testifying that this is the true grace of God. Stand fast in it.
 - 2. Logistical grace is designed for momentum in the plan of God. Heb 12:28, "Therefore, because we have received to ourselves an unshakable kingdom, let us keep holding grace, through which we might render acceptable service to God with reverence toward Christ and respect toward doctrine."
 - 3. Logistical grace continues in reversionism. 2 Cor 6:1, "Do not receive the grace of God in vain." Gal 5:8, "You have drifted off course from grace." Heb 12:15, "See that no one falls back from the grace of God."
- H. Logistical grace provision for learning Bible doctrine and advancing to maturity.
- 1. In the perpetuation of human life in time, God sustains the believer's life in spite of all Satan's opposition, no believer can continue in life without God's logistical grace. This demands recognition that undeserved suffering cannot trap the believer with desperation and despondency. Undeserved suffering is a blessing. This transcends the adverse circumstances of life. Job 5:20; Psalm 33:19, 56:13, 68:19-20. Death is a matter of the sovereignty of God. God can and often does prolong the life of the believer, Psalm 102:19-20, 23-24; Psalm 118; Prov 14:27.
 - 2. The formation and preservation of the Canon includes the mechanics of inspiration and the faithfulness of divine integrity.
 - 3. Laws of divine establishment and authority:
 - a. Freedom and privacy of the local church.
 - b. There is just one elder, the pastor-teacher. That is the authority in the local church.

- c. The people who reject divine establishment authorities (woman rejecting husband; worker rejecting boss) will also reject the authority of the pastor-teacher.
 - d. Rejection of pastor-teacher means rejection of the doctrine that he communicates.
 - e. Laws of divine establishment provide freedom and separation of church and state as well as the state's protection of the freedom of the local church.
 - f. The establishment freedom secured by the military. This is the basis of religious freedom.
 - g. No religious person should reject military training as a result.
 - h. Laws of divine establishment inculcate respect for authority, Hebrews 13:
4. The laws of divine establishment provide freedom and authority as part of logistical grace.
- a. Freedom is the basis for resolving the angelic conflict.
 - b. Freedom is an extension of the function of the soul.
 - c. Freedom is the status of human volition as the uncaused cause of human function. "Live and let live" is the axiom of freedom and the royal family honor code.
 - d. Privacy is the environment for the function of freedom. Property is the legitimate possession of the believer from blessing.
 - e. Freedom cannot exist without the umbrella of authority. Freedom and equality cannot coexist. Freedom is the reality of life and guarantees inequality.
 - f. Freedom is the motivation for grace orientation.
 - g. Freedom is the policy of God in the creation of the human race to resolve the angelic conflict.
 - h. Freedom is common sense, orientation to reality, the basis for establishing the logistical grace rational.
 - i. Freedom without authority is anarchy, authority without freedom is tyranny.
5. God has given divine authorization to the local church as the classroom for learning the Word of God. God will always provide enough local churches for believers to learn doctrine, whether by means of face-to-face or non-face-to-face teaching. Academic authority is mandatory, and there must be consistency.
6. A right pastor is provided for everyone. No one ever deserved the right to be a pastor. All kinds of personalities have the gift.
7. The royal priesthood of the believer is provided for your privacy. Royalty allows you to live your life before the Lord without being bullied by other believers spiritually. The royal priesthood makes it possible for the believer to be informed without being distracted by the criticism, maligning, or judging of others.

8. The ministry of the Holy Spirit in the metabolization of doctrine and His enabling power for function inside the divine dynasphere.
- I. Logistical grace is for the positive and negative believer, Num 20:1-12; 1 Kg 19.
- J. Additional points in Romans but not in these notes:
 1. Rejection of logistical grace Galatians 5:8 You reversionists have become a casualty from Christ whoever are being vindicated by the Law (legalistic reversionism); you have drifted off course from [logistical] grace. Hebrews 12:15 See to it that no one falls back from the grace of God [logistical grace], that not one root of bitterness sprouting up cause trouble, and through this evil, many be contaminated.
- K. Eph 815ff, 1032 4/2/89; 1/23/78; 8/14/78; 5/27/79; 5/28/80; 2/20/83

Bob heard testimonies in CA of those who were not eating or starving their family so that they could give more money to the church. God does not honor that kind of giving.

Everyone has their right pastor. Bob is not everyone's right pastor. If someone is your right pastor, then listen to that pastor; don't order tapes (unless he has said that it is okay). Every pastor is responsible for his own sheep.

There is a security provision: guardian angels, guardian angles on duty. Protection.

1977 Romans

Lesson #209

209 09/27/1977 Romans 6:13a Horatio Hornblower; authority; "yield" = place yourself under orders: military analogy

The stories about Horatio Hornblower, for the most part, are true. The set of books on him were all based upon the truth, but some fiction was inserted. He told the Brits that they needed to go from wood to metal ships and from sails to steam. He was thought crazy to have such ideas. Hornblower died reading the book by Givens on the Roman empire.

Some of his exploits are still unknown, as they were done in secrecy.

Bob is stalling here, and he knows that, when you hear this information, you might not be able to take it.

Romans 6:13 Neither yield your members to sin as instruments of unrighteousness, but yield yourselves to God, as living out from the dead, and your members to God as instruments of righteousness. (BLB)

Verse 13 – “Neither” is the negative disjunctive particle mêde (μηδέ) [pronounced may-DEH], used for the continuation of a preceding negative. In other words, the negative came from verse 12 where we had “and not.” The next word is “yield,” so the time has come to deal with a word which has misled more believers than any other word, the present active imperative of the verb paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh]. This word has never really been carefully examined by the average pastor, or even the average professor, but a few scholars have taken the time to do some digging. Paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] is a military word, and the word “yield” is not used in military language.

What is really going to be shocking, yield in the spiritual realm is about as nebulous as you can get. What exactly are you yielding to or what does it mean? Someone goes and throws a faggot on the fire and say, “I yield my life to God.” What does the person do next? Has he reached the top? Is it time to die? Some think that this means to surrender, because that is defeat; and this is not a word of surrender.

We get most of our help here from Polibius, the historian, who used the word and helped us to understand it in a sentence which is extant today. It begins, tous hippeis, and it means the cavalry. The cavalry means military, mounted military. His next word was ephekateran [ἐπί (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] = upon; ekataran = both], plus tokeras meaning wings or horns. One word has been left out so far, paristhsan, which is the aorist active indicative of paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh]. It was used in a technical sense of ordering people who were accustomed to take orders, trained to obey orders, and making a tactical disposition of them so that the enemy was defeated. So we can translated, “He set the cavalry on both wings,” or “He ordered the cavalry on both wings,” or “He made tactical disposition of the cavalry on both wings.”

Xenophon, another historian who wrote on military subjects, used paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] for a demonstration. In other words, to make the enemy think you were going to attack in a certain area. For example, one time when the Spartans were fighting the large Persian army there was a weak spot in the Persian army in the right centre. So they made demonstration to the left wing and the right wing of the Persian army and the Persians panicked and sent even more people to the wings, and the Spartans came in with their main attack. Paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] is used to move large bodies of troops in a tactical situation. The implication is that these troops are trained, organized, recognize authority, and have the ability to obey, to respond to a command under pressure. That is what we have in “yield,” the connotation of responding to a command under pressure because you recognize authority, because you are trained to take commands, to obey commands.

Aristophanes, the famous comedian, used it in the connotation to be on hand. Demosthenes used it in a military connotation to stand by or to stand fast. We cannot ignore what these men say because it has great bearing on the use of the word. This means that you are standing fast, awaiting your chance to enter into the battle. We cannot ignore how these writers use this word.

In the New Testament there is a transitive and an intransitive use of the verb. Both are military, however. In the transitive it means to place yourself under the command of someone or to put yourself under orders to someone. When you put yourself under someone you are in a system of authority and you are under the authority of someone else. To place yourself under orders was an old military way of saying, Reporting for duty. Once you place yourself under orders or report for duty you do numerous things. You obey commands every day. This word does not mean to yield, it means to place yourself under orders, to report for duty. You are given more commands than you can obey every day. You have more paperwork than you are able to deal with. Your days are filled with decisions, under the authority of someone else.

Most fundies run around without authority over them, learned a few words to say from time to time, like God willing. This means, to place yourself under orders, to report for duty. This is linked to a constant stream of orders being given and you obeying those orders. You are placing yourself under a new authority, separated from the sin nature (which used to rule over you). This is an order which recognizes that the power of the sin nature has been broken; and now you walk or march in newness of life.

All of us are under orders to God. Since we are a large organization, God has delegated authority in the human race. So we cannot just walk into God's office. There are a series of men which must all grant you permission to get into the top office. You may pray a lot, but you don't get through very much. We are all under authority.

We lose track of the fact that Christianity is a tougher military organization than any other that exists. We often lose the benefits because we do not have self-discipline; nor do we control our emotions, nor do we start out knowing anything. The blessings which accrue are phenomenal and these blessings may not be apparent while you are in Bible class.

Military enlistment, military authority. Stop placing your members under orders to the sin nature as weapons of unrighteousness. That is the direction that we are going in.

The intransitive meaning is a military term for making a demonstration, which is not pertinent. So it is linked, then, to military service, to obedience, to self-discipline, to a constant series of orders being issued and obeyed. Inasmuch as the old sin nature's sovereignty over human life is broken through baptism of the Spirit and resultant retroactive positional truth the believer must not place his members as members of unrighteousness in the service of the old sin nature. This is our first true command to experientially break with the function of the old sin nature and to place ourselves under a new authority. This is an order to recognize that the power of the old sin nature has been broken and now to get under the new system of authority which was previously noted at the end of verse

4—“walk in newness of life.” All of us are under orders to God, but since we are a large organization God has delegated authority in the human race.

The sin nature tells you to go out and sin or do some good or do some evil. The sin nature no longer has authority over you any more. The Holy Spirit has torn the chevrons off the shoulders of the sin nature. Positionally, we have rejected the sin nature. The old sin nature no longer has chevrons on the arm or the sleeve. It no longer has rank of the arm; and we no longer have to obey. We no longer have any responsibility to the old sin nature. Later, we will know that the sin nature is the former husband and it will do everything that it can to get us back.

Translation: “Stop placing your members under orders to the sin nature as weapons of unrighteousness.”

The present tense is a progressive present for a continuous action which must be halted. Once a person receives Christ as saviour he should regard that as his enlistment. Christianity is a system of authority and discipline. Paul is saying, Stop resisting the authority and discipline. The active voice: the believer is commanded to stop or halt. This is a negative prohibition which comes from mêde (μηδέ) [pronounced may-DEH] plus the present active imperative of paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh]. The imperative is the imperative of prohibition used for a prohibition in the present imperative which demands that the action be stopped or halted.

Next, the accusative plural direct object from mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss], meaning members of the body. By members of the body we usually think of limbs, like our hands. This can be our hands, our tongues, our brain. Our members contain the old sin nature. We have been accustomed to obedience to the old sin nature. It has been the way of life for all of us from birth to regeneration, but we are talking about after regeneration here. We continue to obey the sin nature; and Paul says, “Stop it.” So mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss] means parts of the body, not the soul. Plus the possessive genitive plural from the personal pronoun su—“your members,” not someone else’s. Don’t worry about the members of someone else.

Bob talks about two men who were friends from back in the service, one was the other’s drill sergeant. They are talking and reminiscing and the one goes toward the restroom and he hears, loudly, “Rear march,” and he does. He obeys almost out of instinct. That is what happens when the sin nature begins to issue orders to you.

Next comes the dative singular indirect object from the noun hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah]—“to the sin nature.” Also the generic use of the definite article for something specific in a category: the old sin nature.

There are two ways in which the believer puts himself under orders to the old sin nature. One is carnality in which we succumb to the trends of sin, good and evil. Then we have reversionism which intensifies either sin or human good, or both, into a system of evil: the function of evil, endorsement of evil.

Then the accusative plural direct object from hoplon (ὅπλον) [pronounced HOP-lon]. It comes from the Greek word for light infantry, “hoplite.” Hoplon (ὅπλον) [pronounced HOP-lon] was the weapon of the hoplite (= a light infantryman). Hoplon is a reference to the weapons of the soldier. And so we have the word “weapons.” The weapon is the object of prohibition along with the descriptive genitive singular from adikia (ἀδικία) [pronounced ah-dih-KEE-ah], generally meaning “wrongdoing.” It is also used for the function of evil and reversionism – “weapons of wickedness.” These include not only sinfulness but the functions of good and evil as the other trends in the old sin nature. The functions can exist in either the status of carnality or reversionism, depending on the use of rebound or the lack of use of rebound.

Translation so far: “And stop placing your members as weapons of wickedness under orders to the old sin nature.”

A weapon of wickedness is your tongue as you begin to gossip or malign someone. Or your mind begins to fill with mental attitude sins toward others.

Before we get to the positive side, we need to put in a lot of time on the negative side.

1977 Romans

Lesson #210

210 09/28/1977 Romans 6:13 Doctrine of rebound (revised 1–3); Elihu Root on government and the U.S. Constitution

Elihu Root, speaking in 1913; warned of socialism as an assault against the individual. In his day, the federal government was still the servant of the people. Abraham Lincoln was the first person to violate this. It took a great deal of discernment to recognize that had happened. Lincoln paid Indiana a great deal of money to keep them in the union. This set a terrible precedent.

There is no such thing as a federal money. A dictator never permits an expression of public will that would displace him. He only goes out through only a revolution. Law cannot give to depravity the rewards of virtue, to indolence the rewards of industry, to indifference the rewards of ambition, or to ignorance the rewards of learning. The utmost that government can do is measurably to protect men, not against the wrong they do themselves but against wrong done by others and to promote the long, slow process of educating mind and character to a better knowledge and nobler standards of life and conduct. We know all this, but when we see how much misery there is in the world and instinctively cry out against it, and when we see some things that government may do to mitigate it, we are apt to forget how little after all it is possible for any government to do, and to hold the particular government of the time and place to a standard of responsibility which no government can possibly meet.

Government cannot solve social, political, economic or problems. It is not only useless but detrimental for government to try to do too much. Government primarily dealt with criminals and preserving freedom. Interference with individual freedom government should be jealously watched and protected.

In the nature of things, all governments must be imperfect because man is imperfect. It is hard to succeed and easy to fail in regulating liberty. He said these things around 1913.

A review of rebound, which does not match up with either doctrine found in NB1 or NB2.

God created the soul; but God did not create the sin nature. God is the source of the human life. We are born physically alive and spiritually dead. We are condemned based upon Adam's original sin. The judicial imputation of our personal sins to Jesus Christ on the cross. We can adjust to the justice of God through salvation or not.

Don't wait around for auto-flagellation. There is only one way to be forgiven of your sins temporally. Nothing is added to confession. You don't make it up to other people or confess to others. You don't try to beg for forgiveness or promise never to commit this sin again.

Without the grace provision of rebound, the believer could not exploit the positional victory over the sin nature. Rebound must be related to man's point of reference with God.

Blessing of salvation, blessing of restoration to fellowship; and a set of blessings from paragraph SG2.

1977 Romans

Lesson #211

211 09/29/1977 Romans 6:13; via 1John 1:9; 1Cor. 11:31 Doctrine of rebound (4, 5); tattling; "Three Musketeers"

A few nights ago, we reflected on truth being stranger than fiction; such as Hornblower being a real person. He was probably in the top five greatest admirals in British history.

"The Three Musketeers" along with the fourth; and the fourth actually existed. Charles DeBatts...the count of... Very little in English about him, but there is one book. Dartanian is the 4th Musketeer, apparently a different name than in the Alexander ___ novels.

When we started the book of Romans, it seemed that this would be a simple book about salvation. This is undoubtedly the most difficult and deepest of all the books. It reflects the pure genius of Paul. This book will be a divider of the Berachah congregation. If you are not into the depth, Bob recommends that you move on to another church. Others of you will find that Romans puts everything together for you.

Bob has never implied or suggested that if you don't think that you are married to the wrong person then you should divorce them. Bob will speak thousands of words a week; and somewhere in all of those words, you will find your excuse.

We are now getting down to specific commands that must be obeyed. Everything in life that is worthwhile is related to authority and order.

We are going back to the doctrine of rebound in the previous lesson. Since I did not put together a clear, point-by-point doctrine, additional notes will be placed here.

The brain is a part of the human body and not a part of the soul. The mentality programs the computer. There is no soul sleep. The life that is in the soul continues forever. Adam's original sin is imputed to the genetically formed sin nature. God does not solicit to sin and He therefore is not the creator of the sin nature.

Our sins were imputed to Jesus Christ; and there was no affinity between Him and our personal sins. At the point of our salvation, we receive from the justice of God the righteousness of God. That is the divine imputation of God's perfect righteousness. Through this pipeline passes the 34 or the 36 things of salvation and then the pipeline is shut down until we reach maturity, when it opens up again.

In the spiritual death of Christ on the cross, all of our sins were judicially imputed to Him. The sin nature had 3 basic trends: sin, good and evil. At the cross, all the personal sins were imputed by the justice of God to Jesus Christ and judged. Good and evil were not imputed or judged. They remain the issue of the Angelic Conflict. Good and evil is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world. Good and evil was not imputed. When we believe in Jesus Christ, the baptism of the Holy Spirit takes place.

In the Lord's physical death and burial, good and evil are rejected; and positionally, we have rejected good and evil.

The basic deterrent to spiritual growth, is unconfessed sin; and there is not maturity adjustment to the justice of God. This is Romans 6:1–14.

The grace mechanics of the rebound technique are found in 1John 1:9. Homologeô; people do not go around saying the same thing. It is for speaking in the courtroom and you cite a previous case. There is no emotional connotation. It means to name, to acknowledge; to admit. Bob does not like the word confess because it sounds too much like there is more happening here than admitting or acknowledging. Aorist tense. This is an instant adjustment to the justice of God. You name it and it is over. You do this to God; not to other people. No human good and no evil is mentioned here. This is just sin.

You only confess what has been judged. Our sins have been judged. We have a relationship with God. To people who are immature, God is not very real.

We have the right to go to God with our own sins; but not with anyone else. Bob remembers a little redhead and her name was Colleen Moore and she got Bob into more trouble than anyone else. A tattletale. Redheads were a lot of trouble for Bob. Bob thinks that she must have been in love with Bob. Bob can still hear her voice, "Miss Hayner." That teacher used to tape Bob's mouth. Bob endured all of this because of a little redhead named Colleen Moore. Had he not done these things, she would not had such a good time.

Because the sins that we name have already been judged, God has no choice but to forgive them. No matter what you have done, God forgives the sin. Declarative indicative. This is a dogmatic statement of doctrine. There is a dual predicate nominative: faithful and just. God cleanses, purifies; aorist tense, active, subjunctive mood goes with hina for the subjunctive clause. (Bob goes through most of 1John 1:9, word-by-word).

How you feel about that sin is unrelated to being forgiven. God has already judged that sin, so it is all about how He feels about it. The judgment of our sins has been completed; it is finished.

Bob is at odds with the Christian world here. They all want us to do something or to feel something and enjoy some self-flagellation. The authority for emotion is the right lobe.

1Corinthians 11:31 is another verse on rebound. ...for if we were discerning ourselves, we would not be being judged,...

diakrinô (διακρίνω) [pronounced dee-ak-REE-no], which means, to separate thoroughly, (literally and reflexively) to withdraw from, (or by implication) to oppose; (figuratively), to discriminate. Psalm 51:3–4 Picking up with point 6 next time.

1977 Romans

Lesson #212

212 09/30/1977 Romans 6:13; via Matthew 18:23–35; 1Cor. 5:1; 2Cor. 2:5–11 Explanation of 1Cor. 5:1ff and 2Cor. 2:5–11; doctrine of rebound (6–11)

Gaius Julius Cæsar made out his will, and this benefitted Rome for the next 300 years. He had several wives and children, but no real heirs. He still had a bloodline which was related to his sister Julia. Her daughter married a commoner. Octavius was the son and Octavia is the daughter. Octavius is the grand nephew. Cæsar made sure that Mark Anthony would have nothing to do with ruling Rome. What had to be done is the person with power must adopt someone. Often this was within your own family.

A woman that Octavius had loved, Livia Drusilla. The trouble is, he was married to the other famous family, married to Tiberius Claudius Nero. She had by him two famous sons, Junior and Drusis. Since Octavius was the ruler, he told Tiberius to divorce her so that he could marry her.

Tiberius' family died out; so he adopted Germanicus. Germanicus had 9 children by Agripina, the granddaughter of Octavius. The Claudia and the Julian Cæsars were, by this, two ruling families joined.

Adoption meant that you used the legal power of the one who adopted you. Lucius Domicious Hanabarbas, who was crazy. Claudius, 4 years before Romans was written, and he adopted Lucius, and gave him the name Nero Claudius...etc. The wife poisoned Claudius and Nero came to the throne. This is how important adoption is. He uses this word of ultimate significance which Paul uses in Romans 8:15.

God the Holy Spirit has adopted us, even though we are not related to God in any way. Four years before Paul wrote Romans Nero came to the throne, one of the worst and most brutal rulers. Romans were a very cruel people. The Hannibarbi people were very vicious. He carried the blood of many ruling lines. Paul was in the forefront of understanding adoption. Nero was adopted and this is why Claudius died, who was great. Not as great as Julius or Augustus. Their reigns are known in the Bible as the fulness in time. Tiberius was a great administrator. All of this came to a disastrous end, and there is a...

What came out of this for Paul. Paul, at one time, was a man of wealth. Paul is preparing us for a new doctrine that we are going to take. We were learn a lot about undeserved suffering. Paul will die by the imputation of martyrdom. But we do not understand this through the 20th century practice of adoption. The whole system of government went wrong because Caligula was ruling, but he did not adopt anyone. When Nero became the ruler, he executed Britannicus. Nero would have parties and rape several women at each party. He was a weirdo all the way. Agrippina was to take this brat of hers and to adopt him, and that was Nero. All of this takes place about four years before Paul writes Romans. Nero in 68 A.D. will kill Paul; and Nero will die horribly months (years) after that time. Paul was the greatest Roman. Adoption is a key word used by Paul. It takes an inconsequential person like Nero or Caligula; and adoption is what gave them so much power. This was a word of great significance. We are the people who are no good from the standpoint of God's perfect character.

Only Church Age believers have been adopted; only Church Age believers have this relationship with the Holy Spirit. Adoption means, above all, is a planned life.

The man who came to power four years after Paul wrote Romans would be the man who would make Paul a martyr. Bob is covering the Doctrine of Adoption (which he will cover again in lessons #305–306); at which time I will more carefully take the notes. The notes below come from the first chapter of Ephesians (1972?). Not sure what sort of overlap there will be (surprisingly enough, I did not find the doctrine in NB1 or NB2). This was close to the doctrine given by Bob in this lesson. Some points from Lesson #560.

The Doctrine of Adoption

1. Isagogics: the Bible must be interpreted in the time in which it was written. The noun húiothesía (υἰοθεσία) [pronounced hwee-oth-es-EE-ah] refers to a Roman custom in Paul's time. In the Roman empire the son was placed under slaves and teachers during his minority. At around age 14 he had graduated from a system of intensive training and discipline which was administered by slaves, those who taught him. He was then recognized as an adult member of the family. The ceremony was called húiothesía (υἰοθεσία) [pronounced hwee-oth-es-EE-ah], the word "adoption" in our passage. The basic concept of the ceremony was freedom to function as an adult citizen in the Roman world. This custom is taken by Paul. There is no concept here of adopting someone outside the family, it is recognition of someone inside the family, that they have now grown up.

2. We must relate the etymology to the isagogics. The word huiothesía (υἰοθεσία) [pronounced hwee-oth-es-EE-ah] comes from the Greek word huios (υἰός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS] which means adult son, and thesia come from tithêmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee] which means to appoint or place. Huiothesía (υἰοθεσία) [pronounced hwee-oth-es-EE-ah] means, then, to be appointed an adult son as a member of the family. It refers to one of the 36 things that every believer receives at the moment of salvation, and it has to do with the believer's freedom. At the moment you believe in Christ spiritually you are brephos (βρέφος) [pronounced BREHF-oss], a child on mother's breast. But you are at the same time in union with Christ who is the Son of God, huios (υἰός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS], and being in union with Him positionally you are huios (υἰός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS]. You are a child spiritually, experientially, but positionally you are an adult son. This indicates that every believer, no matter how he fails, is still another huios (υἰός, οὐ, ό) [pronounced hwee-OSS] of God; he is in union with Christ.
 - a. Example of Gaius Julius Cæsar who had three wives. He had no sons as heirs. Daughter Julia married to Pompey. She died in childbirth. Cæsar still had a bloodline in his sister Julia. She had a daughter who married Gaius Octavius. Octavius and Octavia were the sons and daughters. Octavius is the grand nephew of Cæsar. Mark Anthony was overly arrogant, emotional, and Cæsar made certain that he would not rule Rome. Cæsar named Octavius as his heir. Roman adoption often takes place, and the person that you adopt has your power and authority. You recognize the adopted person as having the same power as you. Octavius became the heir and he still had to fight to get there. And his name was Gaius Julius Cæsar Octavius (?). He had a second wife, Julia, she was married thrice. Once for love, but her father forced her to marry someone else and they produced many children. The most famous one of this group was Agrabina. There was a woman that Octavius loved, Drusilla, but she was married to Tiberius Claudius Nero and she had two famous sons by him. Drusis was the second, handsome and charming. Two families closely allied, the Claudians and the Julians. Her next husband adopted the two sons. Germanicus was a great general and Tiberius envied him. He had to go to his brother's line for an heir, so he adopted Germanicus (a military genius). He had nine children, and they were to be a source of some interest. Caligula had a sister who married into the Hanabarbas, and Agrabina was the sister of Caligula, and they had a son, Lucius Domicius Hanabarbas. When the adoption system broke down, Caligula was absolutely insane and named no adoptive sons. Adoption was one of the more important words when it came to Roman rule.
 - b. Caligula did not adopt an heir and someone was chosen at his death. I think Claudius was made ruler. He did adopt a son, Lucius Domicius Hanibarbas, and he was called Nero.
 - c. Paul uses the word of ultimate genius. Nero, one of the most brutal rulers, came to the throne in the time of Paul. Excessively cruel.

- d. Paul was a great genius. He had been wealthy; but he had other supergrace blessings to take the place of it.
- e. 10 years later, Paul would do what?
3. The mechanics of adoption. Positional truth in Ephesians 1:4,5 gives us the mechanics. By means of the baptism of the Holy Spirit every believer enters into union with Christ. Positional truth is the mechanics of adoption. The word tithêmi (τίθημι) [pronounced TIHTH-ā-mee], the verb from thesis (θέσις) [pronounced THEH-sihs], is fulfilled by the baptism of the spirit - 1Corinthians 12:13. At the moment of salvation every believer is an adult son.
- a. Even as He has chosen us for Himself in Him before the beginning of the world that we should be saints [royal family] and blameless before Him; in love, having pre-designed us for the purpose of adoption [which is a part of the salvation ministry of the Holy Spirit] as adult sons for Himself [which includes the power and position of a permanent royalty] (Ephesians 1:4–5)
- b. God took all kinds of people and adopted us into the royal family. We are God's heirs.
4. The time of adoption is the point of salvation - John 3:3,7; 1:12; Galatians 3:26; Titus 3:5. The son is like a slave until he turns 14 and then he will be given a toga and he will be recognized as an adult son. As a slave, that parallels our lives as unbelievers. We only glorify God through reaching spiritual maturity. The mechanics are the believer is put into union with Christ.
- a. The son is under the authority of these various tutors appointed by his father and he is, in effect, a slave to them.
- b. At age 14, he is given to toga virilus. Rome is how we understand these passages and doctrines.
- c. God has given us power and authority, in adopting us a sons.
5. Adoption anticipates blessings, power and authority. Romans 8:23
6. God has a personal adoption of His royal family; and a national adoption (of Israel, with the 4 covenants).
7. Adoption tells us that Israel has a future. Isaiah 66:22 Exodus 4:22 Isaiah 5:26–30 10:22–23 14:1–4 60:4–6 Joel 2 Zechariah 10:10–12
8. The implications of adoption are freedom to have relationship with God and serve Him - Galatians 4:5. Remember that adoption as well as salvation in general gives us freedom toward God, not freedom in the human race. Therefore full time Christian service is nothing more or less than the believer free to have relationship with God - Romans 8:15.
- a. Galatians 4:1–5 Now I say, as long as the heir is a minor, he does not differ from a slave in the household although he may be in the future lord of everything. But he is under guardians and stewards until the date set by his father, until the date when he receives adoption, he is under guardians and stewards (teachers and bodyguards and the ones who trained him). So also we, while we were children, we were held in bondage in slavery to the rudimentary principles of this world. But when the fullness of time came, God sent His Son, born of a woman and under the Law, in order that he might redeem those who were under the Law that we might receive the adoption of sons.

- b. They must be born again in order to take part in the adoption. There is no theocracy and no client nation of Israel throughout the Church Age.
9. There is also a future aspect of adoption - Romans 8:23, the resurrection body, minus the old sin nature, minus human good. In other words, the future aspect of adoption is ultimate sanctification.
10. Israel, as a nation, has a very special adoption. Israel has a future national adoption. Paul will be adopted as a Church Age believer; and as a Jew.
11. More points on adoption:
 - a. Adoption takes place at the 2nd advent. At that time, God will weed out the unbelievers. Baptism of fire. Ministry of the wheat and the tares. Related to the doctrine of adoption. Only the wheat goes into the kingdom. Good fish v. bad fish. Only those who are believers are in the adoption. Having a relationship by blood but missing the boat by not believing in Christ is sadly missing the beat.
 - b. The concept of heritage is meaningless unless you live up to that heritage.
 - c. Bob is a descendant from Benjamin Harrison as one of the signers of the declaration of independence. Bob is also related to one of the presidents.
 - d. You cannot be dumb and carry a burden. Dumb people, nothing bothers them.
 - e. There is family (Abraham, Moses, David) and there is royal family (us).
12. Adoption is the father recognizing his son as an adult.
13. The second is adopting a slave or a relative who is not a son.
14. Too often the Jews think in terms of a achievement and natural ability; or they think they have a relationship based upon being related to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.
15. We are adopted into a royal family.
16. Biblical theology has complete botched this. Neo-orthodoxy. We have to think in the time, the customs, and the history that we are studying.
17. Many Jews will miss their adoption because they do not believe in Jesus Christ as their Savior.
18. The Jews are very occupied with Hitler and the murder of 6 million. The communists do terrible things to the Jews and the Arabs do cruel things to the Jews. Why these things?
19. The adoption refers to Israel as the firstborn. Isaiah 66:22 Exodus 4:22 Deuteronomy 7:6
20. This means that Israel has a future in time and future in eternity.
21. With a spiritual heritage such as this, it would be a tragedy for any Jew to miss the adoption. "Our of Egypt I called My son." Adoption. The is the day a nation went forth.
22. The immature child. Galatians 4:12 the greatness in Israel is in the future. Listen, O Israel, sons I have raised but they have rejected Me. An ox knows his owner and a donkey knows his manger. My people do not understand. Sons who have abandoned the Lord. They have turned backward from Him.

23. Isaiah 1:2–4 Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth; for the LORD has spoken: “Children have I reared and brought up, but they have rebelled against me. The ox knows its owner, and the donkey its master's crib, but Israel does not know, my people do not understand.” Ah, sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, offspring of evildoers, children who deal corruptly! They have forsaken the LORD, they have despised the Holy One of Israel, they are utterly estranged.

Swatonius is quite the historic writer; you will not fall asleep for his writings.

Your entire life depends upon adoption. We have emphasized in dying grace the great blessing which has come; and there is also the glory that is associated with our deaths (if we are adult sons in Christ). When you think of a glorious death, you think of the death of Stonewall Jackson. A glorious death. He was a mature believer. He died in an aura of great glory.

Bob is exegeting Rom 8:15 For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father.

The word is krazô (κράζω) [pronounced KRAD-zoh], which it does not mean to cry; but it means to shout out. Paul as a genius had a vocabulary for Roman systems and customs; and vocabulary for Jewish thinking. Adoption is a Roman custom. The son would, having reached a majority age, would throw his toga (?) into the air. He says father in Greek and in Latin. Paul uses abba instead, which is Jewish. Abbâ (Ἀββᾶ) [pronounced ab-BAH] is the first word that He uses (this is Aramaic; the spoken language of the Jews); and then Paul uses the Greek word for father, which is, patêr (πατήρ) [pronounced pat-AYR].

This wonderful plan or wonderful relationship with God. Bob gives the corrected translation of Romans 8:15, which we will cover in a couple of chapters.

Paul is able to think in two languages.

1977 Romans

Lesson #213

213 10/02/1977 Romans 6:13 Doctrine of the filling of the Holy Spirit (1–3); brain cf. soul and influences between them

Translation of Romans 6:13 so far: “And stop placing your members as weapons of wickedness under orders to the old sin nature.”

The doctrine below is reviewed in Lesson #214.

Soul, Body, and Imputation Principles

1. The cell bodies or neurons of the brain are collected together, forming islands or blankets of grey matter. The branching connections form what is called "white matter" in the brain.
2. The brain is matter. The brain is not a part of the soul, although there is a close relationship. The brain belongs to the body whereas the two frontal lobes with the mentality belong to the soul. The entire brain system vibrates with an energy held in very disciplined control, while millions of messages flash back and forth as functional targets within the brain.
3. Sensory and motor mechanisms play roles in the integrative action of the brain. The brain is a giant computer programmed by the sin nature; and reprogrammed by the intake of Bible doctrine.
4. The old sin nature resides in the brain as a part of the body; it does not reside in the mentality of the soul, nor in any part of the soul. Bob is not covering all parts of the brain in detail.
5. Therefore the commands of this verse (And stop placing your members as weapons of wickedness under orders to the old sin nature.) exist because of the relationship between the brain which is matter and the soul which is immaterial. This is a mistake of the medical community which do this.
6. The brain is the mechanical expression of the soul's consciousness. Some believe that self-consciousness belongs to the brain; but it belongs to the soul.
7. Just as we would distinguish between the driver of a car and the engine of a car, so we must distinguish between the soul of man and the brain. The soul is immaterial.
8. The brain is a part of the body of corruption controlled by the old sin nature from birth.
9. The brain is a giant computer controlled by the old sin nature with its trends toward sin, toward good, and toward evil.
10. For the believer the brain continues to be programmed for good and evil as the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life.
11. Under spiritual death the brain rules the soul since the old sin nature is located in the brain as a part of the human body.
12. At regeneration the power of the old sin nature has been broken through the real imputation of eternal life to its home or target (spiritual birth) and the judicial imputation of divine righteousness to the believer. These two imputations break the power of the old sin nature.
13. Add to this the baptism of the Holy Spirit and for the first time the human soul is in a position to be free of its sovereign of human life.
14. By the intake of Bible doctrine new information is fed into the brain computer. The new information programs it to the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ.
15. Only Bible doctrine resident in the soul can fulfil experientially what has been accomplished positionally through the baptism of the Spirit.
16. Only Bible doctrine resident in the soul can reprogram the brain's computer so that the believer is free from good and evil. This is the only method of spiritual growth.

17. To place ourselves under orders to God and our brain members as weapons of righteousness to God we must therefore reprogram the giant computer with Bible doctrine in the soul.

Your brain is computerized for good and evil; and you might hear something that drives you crazy, makes you angry. Bob says something about our Christian president, and his computer is overloaded with good and evil programs. Our tax dollars are used in order to make us conform to some federal policy.

If your brain is reconfigured for divine viewpoint, with your new husband, you will think quite differently.

Translation of Romans 6:13 so far: "And stop placing your members as weapons of wickedness under orders to the old sin nature."

You can reprogram the giant computer with grace apparatus for perception.

The Doctrine below comes from Romans and from Spiritual Dynamics (1992) This includes the Deity of the Holy Spirit, which may not be a part of the notes in this series. The points are mostly found here, but differently organized.

The doctrine below is continued in Lesson #214 (the notes are kept here) Reviewed again in Lesson #275 , #276 & #277 (notes are all here and they matched up reasonably well, apart from the numbers). The points are here; but not numbered the same way.

Doctrine of the Filling of the Holy Spirit

A. Definition and Description.

1. The filling of the Spirit connects the spiritual life with spiritual maturity.
2. This takes place in the soul. We are indwelt by the Holy Spirit in the body; but filled in the soul. When we sin, the Holy Spirit is grieved; and this is dealt with by rebound.
3. The filling of the Spirit is the first power option in the Christian life (the second power option is doctrinal orientation to life) and the second problem solving device for the execution of the protocol plan of God.
4. This is the spiritual dynamics for spiritual advance.
5. Scripture.
 - a. 1Thessalonians 5:18-19 says, "In everything give thanks; for this is the will of God for your benefit in Christ Jesus. Stop quenching the Spirit." When you quench the Holy Spirit by the sin nature controlling the soul, by stress in the soul producing sin, by false doctrine in the soul, or by using defensive mechanisms instead of the problem solving devices, you have no divine power at your disposal. Therefore, the importance of the recovery of the power of the Holy Spirit.

- b. The recovery of the power of the Holy Spirit is the subject of Eph 4:30, "Furthermore, stop grieving the Holy Spirit of God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption." These believers were commanded to stop grieving the Holy Spirit which they were doing. This was a wake up call to get back on track and start living their own spiritual life.

6. Spirituality or the filling of the Holy Spirit links salvation adjustment to the justice of God to maturity adjustment to the justice of God. To make it from salvation to maturity requires the filling of the Holy Spirit and the daily intake of Bible doctrine. We already have perfect righteousness judicially imputed at salvation.
7. The filling of the Holy Spirit is God the Holy Spirit controlling the soul of the believer. Descriptions of the filling of the Holy Spirit in Scripture.
 - a. Walking in the Spirit, Gal 5:16.
 - b. Walking in the light, 1John 1:7.
 - c. Imitating Christ, Ephesians 5:1.
 - d. Epistles of Christ ministered by the Spirit, 2Corinthians 3:3.
 - e. Partakers of the divine nature, 2Peter 1:4.
 - f. Be filled with the Spirit, Ephesians 5:18.
8. The believer starts the Christian way of life with the Holy Spirit controlling the soul. We have the indwelling of the Holy Spirit and the filling of the Holy Spirit simultaneously at the point of salvation. As soon as we sin, the old sin nature controls the soul. When we rebound, the Holy Spirit again controls the soul. Carnality is loss of the filling of the Holy Spirit. Carnality is neglect of rebound, causing sin to multiply. Sin minus rebound equals carnality. The filling of the Holy Spirit is recovery through rebound adjustment to the justice of God. Prov 1:23; 1John 1:9.
9. At the moment of salvation, the Holy Spirit indwells the body of the believer. Because the body is the headquarters of the old sin nature, the Holy Spirit sets up His headquarters in the body for counteraction. The battlefield is the soul. This counteraction is spearheaded by the filling of the Holy Spirit. We are always indwelt by the Holy Spirit. The filling of the Holy Spirit means God the Holy Spirit controls the soul. He does not control when we sin (grieve Him) or perform human good or evil (quench Him). When we rebound (1John 1:9), the Holy Spirit controls our soul again. Quenching the Holy Spirit is lack of rebound when in reversionism.
 - a. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is documented in Romans 8:9; 1Corinthians 3:16, 6:19-20; Gal 3:2, 4:6; Jn 7:37-39, 14:16-17.
 - b. "Anointing" or "unction" of the Spirit is found in 1John 2:20,27. These terms are synonymous with the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, but not with the filling of the Holy Spirit, Acts 4:27, 10:38; 2Corinthians 1:21.
 - c. The objective of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is to break the sovereignty of the old sin nature's rule over human life experientially. The baptism of the Spirit breaks it positionally, Galatians 5:17.

- d. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the principle of victory over the old sin nature, while the filling of the Holy Spirit is the function of victory over the old sin nature.
 - e. The filling of the Spirit is the means to execute the Christian way of life.
 - f. While the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is permanent, the filling of the Holy Spirit fluctuates due to the trends of the old sin nature and the function of our volition toward those trends. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit involves the body of the believer; the filling of the Holy Spirit involves the soul of the believer.
10. Since the filling of the Holy Spirit is functional, it is the means of executing the objectives of the Christian way of life. Anything you do in the energy of the flesh is not the Christian way of life.
- B. The filling of the Spirit is one of the seven ministries of God the Holy Spirit to us at the moment of salvation. There are salvation and post-salvation ministries of the Holy Spirit.
- 1. We do not earn and we cannot deserve the ministry of God the Holy Spirit to us. Ephesians 4:30, "Furthermore, stop grieving the Spirit, the God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption."
 - a. See the Doctrine of Sins Against the Holy Spirit.
 - b. See the Doctrine of the Deity of the Holy Spirit.
 - c. See the Doctrine of the Sealing Ministry of the Holy Spirit.
 - 2. The Holy Spirit plays a far greater role in the Church Age than any other dispensation except the dispensation of the Hypostatic Union. The Church Age is the only dispensation in which every believer is a priest, an ambassador for Christ, and entered into union with Christ. The precedence for the Christian way of life comes from our Lord's ministry on earth, not the Mosaic Law.
 - 3. There are seven ministries of God the Holy Spirit to the Church Age believer at the moment of salvation.
 - a. Efficacious grace. God the Holy Spirit takes the faith alone in Christ alone of the spiritually dead unbeliever and makes it effective for salvation. The call of God to believe in Christ comes from God the Holy Spirit making the gospel clear to the unbeliever-common grace. The Holy Spirit put His seal on our efficacious grace, guaranteeing that our non-meritorious faith in Christ is effective for salvation. You are saved by grace through faith alone. Eph 1:13, "In whom also when you heard the message of truth, the gospel of your salvation-in whom also when you had believed, you were sealed by means of the Holy Spirit with reference to the promise." The sealing ministry of God the Holy Spirit is His signature guarantee of five different things.
 - (1) The guarantee of the ministry of efficacious grace.
 - (2) The guarantee that you have eternal life.
 - (3) The guarantee that you have eternal security in time.

(4) The guarantee of your very own portfolio of invisible assets.

(5) The guarantee that you will have a resurrection body forever.

- b. Regeneration or being born again. Mankind emerges from the womb with biological life and spiritual death. At the moment of birth, God creates the immortal soul life and imputes to biological life. Jesus said to a religious Pharisee, "You must be born again." The Holy Spirit creates a human spirit at the moment we believe in Christ. At that moment, God the Father imputes His very own eternal life to that human spirit. That is being born again. Human life puts us in a hopeless status-spiritual death; regeneration makes us spiritually alive. Regeneration is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit at salvation in creating a human spirit, which causes the believer to become instantly trichotomous-body, soul, and spirit, 1 Thes 5:23; Phile 25. The soul is the residence of human life; the human spirit is the residence of eternal life.
- c. The baptism of the Spirit is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit in taking every new believer and entering him into union with the person of Jesus Christ. We are in union with Christ forever. This is how the Holy Spirit makes Christ Lord. You cannot make Christ Lord. This is positional sanctification. At the same time as entering us into union with Christ, a new spiritual species is created. Race, culture, and gender are no longer an issue. This adds up to equal privilege and equal opportunity to execute the plan of God for the Church. In addition, we are royal family of God and have the eternal life of Christ. We have a double portion of eternal life. We are also the sons of God. We are joint-heirs with Christ. We share His election and His destiny. Acts 1:5; 1 Cor 12:13; Gal 3:26-28; Eph 4:4-5. The baptism of the Spirit is not an experience, not an emotion.
- d. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit, 1 Cor 3:16, 6:19-20; 2 Cor 6:16. The Holy Spirit dwells in the body of every believer as of the moment of faith in Christ for the purpose of making the body of the believer a temple of the Holy Spirit. Your body is made a temple of the Holy Spirit for the indwelling of Christ. Just as in the Age of Israel, Jesus Christ dwelt in the Tabernacle and later the Temple as the Shekinah Glory as a guarantee of blessing to Israel, so He now indwells the body of each believer as a guarantee of escrow blessings for time and eternity.
- e. The filling of the Holy Spirit occurs at the moment of salvation by God the Holy Spirit entering us into our very own palace-the operational divine dynasphere. Our Lord was entered into the prototype divine dynasphere at the point of physical birth, since He was filled with the Spirit from birth. The divine dynasphere is a part of our portfolio of invisible assets. There are eight gates in the divine dynasphere:
- (1) Gate one is the filling of the Holy Spirit.
 - (2) Gate two is basic Bible doctrine.

(3) Gate three is enforced and genuine humility, objectivity, and teachability. God makes war against the arrogant believer but He gives grace to the humble believer.

(4) Gate four is momentum from perception, inculcation, and metabolization of Bible doctrine circulating in the seven compartments of the right lobe of the soul.

(5) Gate five is spiritual self-esteem.

(6) Gate six is spiritual autonomy.

(7) Gate seven is momentum testing.

(8) Gate eight is spiritual maturity.

f. The distribution of spiritual gifts occurs at the moment of salvation. The Lord Jesus Christ was involved in the initial distribution of spiritual gifts at the beginning of the Church Age, Ephesians 4:7-8. But subsequently, God the Holy Spirit distributes all spiritual gifts. All of these gifts are necessary for the function of the team. These gifts only function under the filling of the Spirit plus the metabolization of doctrine.

g. The sealing ministry of the Holy Spirit, Ephesians 1:13-14 4:30. This is a guarantee of His ministry of efficacious grace, of eternal life, of eternal security, of our portfolio of invisible assets, and of a resurrection body.

C. The ministry of God the Holy Spirit to the Church Age believer is the same ministry that He had to our Lord Jesus Christ during the First Advent.

1. The first power option of our spiritual life is the same filling of the Spirit that occurred for the first time in history in our Lord Jesus Christ. The relationship of God the Holy Spirit to our Lord Jesus Christ in the incarnation set the precedence for Church Age believers. During the dispensation of the hypostatic union, our Lord's humanity was sustained by the filling of the Holy Spirit. This was prophesied in the Old Testament.

a. Isaiah 11:2, "And the Spirit [God the Holy Spirit] of the Lord [God the Father] will rest on Him [Jesus Christ], The Spirit of wisdom and understanding, The Spirit of counsel and power, The Spirit of knowledge and occupation with the Lord [God the Father]."

b. Isaiah 42:1, "Behold, My servant, whom I sustain; My chosen one in whom My soul delights. I will put My Spirit upon Him; He will bring forth justice to the nations." The fulfillment of this prophecy is declared in Jn 3:34, "For He [God the Holy Spirit] whom God [the Father] has sent speaks the doctrines from God; for He does not give the Spirit by measure." Mt 12:28, "If I cast out demons by the Spirit of God [and I do], then the kingdom of God has come to you."

c. During the First Advent, our Lord's humanity was filled with the Spirit as a part of the doctrine of impeccability. Lk 4:14, "And Jesus returned to Galilee in the power of the Spirit." Our Lord prophesied in Jn 14:16-17, 26; 16:13-14 that the disciples would have the Holy Spirit to teach them when the Church Age began. In the context of Lk 4:17-21 our Lord read from Isa 61:1, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me." Then He declared, "This Scripture is fulfilled in your presence today."

- d. During His earthly ministry, our Lord offered the filling of the Holy Spirit to the disciples, knowing that they would need this power because of their key role at that time and in the future. None of them accepted the offer and asked for the Spirit. Lk 11:13, "If you then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give the Holy Spirit to those who ask Him?" Ten days before the Church Age began, on the day of our Lord's ascension, our Lord gave the Holy Spirit to the disciples without their asking. This established a precedent for the Church Age. Jn 20:22, "And when He had said this, He breathed on them and said to them, 'Receive the Holy Spirit.'"
2. At the moment of salvation through faith in Christ we have four principles involved in our relationship to the Holy Spirit.
 - a. Every believer is indwelt by God the Holy Spirit and cannot lose that indwelling presence of the Spirit all the days of his life on this earth. Our body is a temple of the Holy Spirit, in order to provide the indwelling presence of God the Son. God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit indwells every believer during the Church Age.
 - b. Every believer is simultaneously filled with the Holy Spirit at the moment of salvation and loses that filling the first time he sins.
 - c. However, the believer recovers the fellowship of the Spirit, the filling of the Spirit, through the rebound technique.
 - d. The filling of the Spirit is tantamount to residence inside your very own palace-the operational type divine dynasphere. Fellowship with the Holy Spirit is synonymous with the filling of the Spirit.
 3. As the believer understands the ministry of God the Holy Spirit in two dispensations, his love for the Holy Spirit increases by quantum leaps. Our Lord constantly made choices for the function of the two power options in the function of His spiritual life. The two power options-the filling of the Spirit and metabolized doctrine-played a major role in our Lord's earthly ministry.
 - a. Jn 1:14, "The Word became flesh and He tabernacled among us and we beheld His glory, as of the uniquely born One from the Father, full of grace [grace orientation] and truth [metabolized doctrine]."
 - b. Heb 9:14, "How much more then shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered Himself without blemish to God, cleanse your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?" The one offering that was greater than all the Levitical offerings was the offering of our Lord Jesus Christ on the Cross. Our Lord offered Himself and remained filled with the Spirit while bearing the judgment for our sins. The filling of the Spirit gave Him the power not to resent any sin that was imputed to Him for judgment.

- c. Our Lord on the Cross established a precedence or our life in the Church Age, as explained by Heb 12:2, "Be concentrating on Jesus, the founder and perfecter of our doctrine, who because of His exhibited happiness, He endured the cross, disregarding the shame, then He sat down at the right hand of the throne of God." You cannot separate loving Jesus Christ from loving God the Holy Spirit. We have a far greater power in the filling of the Holy Spirit, so that we do not have to react to injustice.
 4. Our love for God the Holy Spirit begins when we metabolize the doctrine of the ministry of God the Holy Spirit at the point of our faith in Christ, when we begin to learn what God the Holy Spirit did for our Lord Jesus Christ, when we begin to learn how the first power option (the filling of the Spirit) that has been given to us is the same power option that sustained our Lord on the Cross. The ministry of the Holy Spirit for us at salvation adds to our love for Him. Your capacity to love God the Holy Spirit is directly related to your capacity to love God the Father and God the Son.
- D. The Deity of the Holy Spirit.
1. The deity of the Holy Spirit is established in Trinity passages which reveal the coequality of the Spirit with God the Father and God the Son, 2Cor 13:14.
 2. In the Old Testament, God the Holy Spirit is called Jehovah, Isaiah 6:8-9 cf Acts 28:25; Jer 31:31-34 cf Hebrews 10:15.
 3. Certain divine attributes are ascribed to the Holy Spirit which emphasize His deity.
 - a. Omniscience, 1Corinthians 2:10-11.
 - b. Sovereignty, 1Corinthians 12:11.
 - c. Omnipotence, Gen 1:2.
 - d. Lordship, 2Corinthians 3:17.
 - e. Omnipresence, Psalm 139:7.
- E. Scriptures Related to Spirituality.
1. Positive side.
 - a. Ephesians 5:18, "Stop being intoxicated with wine by which is dissipation [a lifestyle of self-absorption to try and solve the problems of life], but keep on being filled with the Holy Spirit."
 - (1) Dissipation refers to a disorderly lifestyle, an excessive lifestyle of dependence on the wrong things to solve the problems of life. Loss on control of oneself means loss of clear rationality with regard to the options of life, which is detrimental to your spiritual life. Hence, dissipation is loss of true self-orientation in life.
 - (2) This is an analogy by antithesis. The present passive imperative of the Greek verb plêroō (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh] means to be filled, to be controlled. It means to fill up a deficiency. The filling of the Holy Spirit fills up our deficiency of power to execute the spiritual life.

- (a) At the time of writing the present tense was a tendential present, which indicates an action that is mandated but is not actually taking place. For the rest of the Church Age believers it becomes a durative present tense, which is used for an action or state of being in the past continuing into the present; hence, present linear aktionsart.
 - (b) The passive voice indicates that the Church Age believer is acted upon by God the Holy Spirit inside the operational type divine dynasphere.
 - (c) The imperative mood is a command, a demand on the volition of the believer.
- (3) The Greek preposition EN plus the instrumental of agency can be translated "keep on being controlled by means of the Spirit."
- (4) The believer is filled with the Holy Spirit when two synonymous conditions occur: the Holy Spirit controls the soul of the believer and the believer resides in his very own palace-the divine dynasphere. Spirituality is the filling of the Spirit.
- b. 2 Cor 3:17ff, "Now the Lord is the Spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is [spiritual] freedom. But we all, with an unveiled face beholding as in a mirror the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from glory [the humanity of Christ under the filling of the Spirit] to glory [the Spirit filled life of the believer who executes the protocol plan of God], as it were from the Lord, the Spirit."
- (1) The Holy Spirit is God. He is deity. He is the Lord.
 - (2) The Holy Spirit provides spiritual freedom from the control of the sin nature when we are filled with the Spirit.
 - (3) We have an unveiled face when we are filled with the Spirit and learning the mystery doctrine of the Church Age. The Bible is a mirror in which we see ourselves as God sees us through the objectivity provided by the filling of the Spirit.
 - (4) The glory of the Lord is humanity of Christ in hypostatic union. We are being transformed into the same image as the humanity of Christ under the filling of the Spirit through seeing ourselves in the word of God through the ministry of God the Holy Spirit.
- c. Eph 3:16, "that He may give you, on the basis of the riches of His glory [your portfolio of invisible assets and the unique assets of the Church Age], to become strong by means of power through His Spirit in your inner being." This is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit metabolizing doctrine in your inner being, circulating that doctrine in the seven compartments of the stream of consciousness, and giving you the ability to make right decisions from a position of strength. We acquire strength through the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit inside the divine dynasphere. This is what our Lord prophesied for the Church Age in Jn 14:26, 16:12-14. This was Paul's great teaching in 1 Cor 2:9-16.

- d. Gal 5:16, "Keep on walking by means of the Spirit."
- (1) This does not mean spirituality by works, by legalism. The positive side clarifies the difference between the means and result in spirituality. In spirituality, the Holy Spirit is the grace provision, Acts 1:8. The means after salvation is rebound. The result is the filling of the Spirit and the function of the Christian way of life.
 - (2) Spirituality and spiritual growth are related but they are not the same thing. They are two aspects of the Christian life. Spirituality is an absolute based on the filling of the Spirit. Spiritual growth is a relative concept based on the amount of doctrine circulating in our stream of consciousness. As we advance in spiritual growth, much of the time we are spiritual and sometimes we are carnal.
 - (3) As an absolute, spirituality or the filling of the Spirit is the ministry of God the Holy Spirit to the believer's soul providing not only the teaching of the Word but providing metabolized doctrine circulating in the seven compartments of the stream of consciousness.
- e. Gal 5:1, 13-18, 22-25 is a dissertation on the importance of the filling of the Spirit as far as the execution of the spiritual life.
- (1) Gal 5:1, "It is for [spiritual] freedom that Christ has set us free; therefore keep standing fast and do not become entangled again in the yoke of slavery [carnality]."
 - (2) Gal 5:13-18, "For you were called to freedom, brethren; do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh [sin nature], but through virtue-love serve one another. For the entire Law has been summed up in one doctrine, in the statement, 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' But if you bite and devour one another, take care lest you be consumed by one another. Therefore, I command you, keep walking by means of the Spirit, and you will not carry out the lust patterns of the sin nature. For while the flesh [sin nature] desires what is contrary to the Spirit, and the Spirit is totally opposed to the sin nature; for these two are constantly opposed to each other, so that you do not do the things you wish. But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the Law." The Christian way of life cannot be based on the Mosaic Law. The Mosaic Law was never designed to be a spiritual way of life. The best the Mosaic Law can do is make you very legalistic.

- (3) Gal 5:22-25, "But the production of the Spirit is virtue-love, happiness, prosperity, patience, integrity, generosity, faithfulness, humility, self-discipline; against such there is no law. Now those who belong to Christ Jesus have crucified the flesh with its passions and desires. If we live by the Spirit, let us advance in our spiritual life by means of the Spirit."
2. Negative side.
 - a. Ephesians 4:30 Stop grieving the Holy Spirit, the God by whom you have been sealed for the day of redemption. This is the retroactive progressive present active imperative of the Greek verb lupeō (λυπέω) [pronounced loo-PEH-oh]. Grieving the Spirit is carnality or life in cosmic one. This is a command to stop sinning and persisting in cosmic one without rebound. This command emphasizes the fact that spirituality and carnality are mutually exclusive. They are absolutes, 1John 1:6-7; 1John 2:10-11.
 - b. The command to not live in cosmic two is found in 1Thessalonians 5:19, "Do not quench the Spirit."
 3. The positive and negative commands emphasize imitation as the issue in the spiritual life. We either imitate God or people, Ephesians 5:1.
 - a. Believers filled with the Holy Spirit imitate God, Gal 5:22-23.
 - b. Carnal believers imitate unbelievers, 1 Cor 3:3; Gal 5:19-21; 1 Jn 1:6.
- F. The filling of the Holy Spirit is related to spirituality, growth, and victory over the sovereignty of the old sin nature, 2Peter 1:2-5. The metabolization of doctrine after the filling of the Holy Spirit supplies your integrity, and your integrity supplies knowledge for growth and passing momentum tests.
- G. Since spirituality is the modus operandi of the royal priesthood, it is not subject to the Mosaic Law, Rom 8:2-4.
 1. Rom 10:4, "For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to everyone who believes." The Law demands perfect righteousness; believing in Christ provides for us this requirement of the Mosaic Law.
 2. Gal 5:18, "If you are led by the Spirit you are not under the Law."
- H. The Results of the Filling of the Holy Spirit.
 1. Christ is magnified in the inner life of the believer, 2Corinthians 3:3 (we become a living epistle); Ephesians 3:16-17; Phil 1:20-21.
 2. The filling of the Holy Spirit is the basis for the perception, metabolization, and application of Bible doctrine, Jn 14:26, 16:12-14; 1Corinthians 2:9-16; 1John 2:27.
 3. The believer is guided by God only while filled with the Holy Spirit, An encapsulation. Romans 8:14-16.
 4. The true function of worship for the royal family, This is not a physical position; or music of some sort. Worship is an inner attitude, which includes the filling of the Spirit. Bible doctrine is the second factor of worship. John 4:24; Phil 3:3.

5. Effectiveness in the believer's production; e.g., in witnessing, Acts 1:8; in prayer, Ephesians 6:18.
 6. The glorification of Christ in the human body, John 7:39 cf 16:14; 1Corinthians 6:19-20.
 7. Imitation of God, Ephesians 5:1; Gal 4:19 cf 5:22.
 8. Partnership with the divine essence, 2Peter 1:4. Our partnership with Christ as royal family only functions when we are filled with the Holy Spirit, Phil 2:1-2.
 9. We require the filling of the Holy Spirit in order to represent Jesus Christ here on earth. Emotion is not the fuel for the spiritual life; the Holy Spirit is our fuel. We all have emotion and we use it for different things.
- I. There are no ecstasies associated with the filling of the Spirit in this dispensation.
1. 10 days after the ascension, the Age of Israel was suddenly stopped.
 2. Christ is absent from the earth in the Church Age. Christ is on the earth in the Millennium. Vast difference.
 3. Believers represent Jesus Christ at the right hand of the Father.
 4. Filling of the Spirit designed to grow spiritually.
 5. Emotion is not the filling of the Spirit; emotion is not the fuel for the spiritual life. The filling of the Spirit is not emotional in the Church Age.
 6. Two warnings against emotion and ecstasies for the royal family of God. Romans 16:17-18 keep an eye out for those people who are causes dissensions; mark such men and avoid them. They are slaves to their own emotions. 2Corinthians 6:11-12 Oh you Corinthians, our mouth has been open face to face with you (teaching in the local church) because our right lobe has been enlarged. You have not been hindered from learning doctrine from us; you have been hindered by your own emotions.
 7. Emotions are designed to respond to teaching in the right lobe.
 8. Only in the Millennium, emotions will be associated with the Lord Jesus Christ.
 9. Believers in the Millennium are said to be indwelt by the Spirit. Jer. 31:33 Ezekiel
 10. They are also filled with the Spirit Isaiah 32:15 44:33 zech 12:10
 11. The filling of the Spirit in the Millennium only is characterized by ecstasies. Joel 2:28-29.
- J. When is spirituality characterized by emotions or ecstasies?
1. In the Church Age, the believer represents the absent Christ, who is now at the right hand of the Father.
 2. Therefore, the purpose of the filling of the Holy Spirit during the Church Age is related to the fact that Christ is absent.

3. Therefore, the character of the filling of the Holy Spirit during the Church Age is different than the character of the filling of the Holy Spirit during the Millennium when Christ is on the earth.
 4. Hence, the function of the filling of the Holy Spirit during the Church Age is designed to provide the ability to learn doctrine and to apply doctrine as the fulfillment of the Christian way of life.
 5. In this way, the Church Age believer fulfills his ambassadorship, representing Christ who is now at the right hand of the Father. We need special power to do this, and the divine power of the Holy Spirit is the basis on which we operate.
 6. Emotion is not our energy. We all have emotion as part of our capacity for life, but emotion is not the filling of the Holy Spirit or the fuel for the Christian way of life. The filling of the Holy Spirit is never emotional in the Church Age.
 7. There are two warnings against emotion and ecstasies to the royal family of God.
 - a. Romans 16:17-18, "Keep an eye out for those who are emotional and contrary to doctrine you've learned. They deceive the stupid by flattering speech."
 - b. 2Corinthians 6:11-12, "You are hindered from growth by your own emotions."
 8. Emotions are designed to respond to knowledge in the right lobe, but emotion is not a Church Age characteristic of the filling of the Holy Spirit. However, it is normal to emote over doctrine you learn.
 9. Spirituality is not defined in the Church Age by emotions.
 10. Only in the Millennium when Christ is present on earth does emotion and ecstasies characterize the filling of the Holy Spirit. For in the Millennium, the filling of the Holy Spirit is designed to appreciate Christ, and therefore, emotions and ecstasies are legitimate. Joel 2:28-29.
 11. Believers in the Millennium are said to be indwelt with the Holy Spirit, Ezek 36:27, 37:14; Jer 31:33.
 12. Believers in the Millennium are also filled with the Holy Spirit, Isa 29:19, 32:15, 44:3; Ezek 39:29; Zech 12:10.
 13. Legitimate use of emotions. We have things in our memory center and we can enjoy many different things emotionally. Nothing more beautiful than a woman who responds to the authority legitimately over her; and nothing more ugly than a woman who rejects all legitimate authority.
 14. When there is chemical stimulation of the brain, the emotion can get completely out of control.
- K. Pseudo-Spirituality (this is acting in opposition to true spirituality, or attempting to find a substitute for true spirituality, which is the filling of the Spirit).
1. The believer must be able to distinguish between personality and spirituality. Spirituality is not personality. Yet too often a sweet personality passes for being someone spiritual. Watch out for these types.

2. Spirituality by personality imitation consists of imitating someone who is sweet. People who do this are stupid. They imitate such superficial things as mannerisms, dress, the absence of cosmetics, neglect of grooming; pious speech such as "amen," "praise God," or "God willing;" or mannerisms such as poor posture or expressions of sincerity. Developing a pleasing smile or attitude. You must distinguish between personality and spirituality.
3. The omission of cosmetics is seen by some as spiritual. This all has to do with being presentable or not.
4. Having long hair and a beard has nothing to do with spiritually. Being a hippie is not spiritual; being a Jesus freak is not spiritual.
5. Uttering spiritual language does not make you spiritual.
6. Spirituality by "yielding" is a concept that has arisen from the mistranslation of Romans 6:13. "Yielding" is meaningless. It assumes spirituality by dedicating your life, witnessing, or constant prayer. But production is the result of the filling of the Holy Spirit, never the means. Bob explains throwing a faggot on the fire.
7. Self-crucifixion is alleged to be spirituality. But there is no such thing as experiential self-crucifixion. This is a false interpretation of Romans 6:1-13. This is nothing but extreme asceticism. Identification with Christ in His death, burial; and that is retroactive positional truth.
8. Spirituality by obeying taboos such as giving up cards, drinking, movies, dancing, smoking, mixed bathing, etc., has no substantiation in Scripture.
 - a. A taboo is something forbidden by tradition, social usage, or by some form of authority. A taboo is a prohibition set up by a religious group, but is not forbidden by the Word of God.
 - b. Hence, a taboo is a superimposition of legalism on the Word.
 - c. Taboos are the customs of legalists, such as "don't have fun on Sundays."
 - d. Anything an unbeliever can do is not the Christian way of life. To offend people because they are legalistic is to be just as wrong as the legalist. Evil is always offended by anything related to grace.
 - e. It is not our objective to superimpose our own idea of right and wrong on others. We have personal taboos, and others have their own. We are each to live our own life as unto the Lord without superimposing our personal standards on other believers. The principle is live and let live.
 - f. When people are positive to doctrine, don't get in their way with taboos and bullying. The exception to this is the right of parents to superimpose standards on their children. That includes a dress code and everything else.
 - g. The results of legalistic bullying.
 - (1) If someone can bully you into setting up a system of taboos for spirituality, you will become a legalist and a bully also.

(2) If you reject and react to taboos, often you take it out on doctrine and become a reversionist.

9. Spirituality by relativity says that a person is spiritual because his sins are more respectable than someone else's. In a typical comparison, a subtle type of sinfulness is compared to a shocking type of sinfulness, resulting in a false rationalization. Included in this rationalization is the delusion that there are degrees of spirituality.
10. Spirituality by ecstasies is based on the fact the emotions are not under the authority of the mentality of the soul, which is called the emotional revolt of the soul. As a result, ecstasies and stimulation have no meaning, no foundation, no relationship to reality, and no relationship to spirituality; e.g., the tongues crowd, the holy-rollers. What is regarded as ecstasies is actually a stage of reversionism. This problem exists in believers accustomed to using their feelings for their criterion, and who do the same in their spiritual life.
11. Spirituality by ritualism alleges that spirituality is the consistent observance of certain rituals like baptism and communion.
12. Program spirituality says that becoming involved in church programs determines one's spiritual status. This includes such things as giving, attendance, participation in prayer meetings, bringing visitors, and teaching Sunday school. Program churches are designed to carry weak pastors. This system caters to approbation and power lust.

L. Spirituality is the link between salvation and maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

1. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God is gained through postsalvation epistemological rehabilitation; i.e., the perception, metabolization, and application of Bible doctrine inside the divine dynasphere.
2. This process depends upon the ministry of the Holy Spirit in making doctrine understandable to the believer.
3. This means the filling of the Holy Spirit is absolutely necessary for the perception of Bible doctrine, Jn 14:26, 16:12-14; 1 Cor 2:9-16; 1 Jn 2:27.
4. Without Bible doctrine resident in the soul, there is no maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
5. Without the filling of the Holy Spirit for the teaching of Bible doctrine, there is no perception and therefore, no growth.

M. Oil is used for the ministry of the Holy Spirit. 1John 1:20-21.

1. Oil is used as an analogy to the filling of the Holy Spirit. It lubricates. Friction wears out machines; oil eliminates friction.
 - a. By way of analogy, the filling of the Holy Spirit makes it possible for us to assemble with other believers in a local church, where no two are in the same stage of spiritual growth.
 - b. Certain people will be obnoxious to you. However, the filling of the Holy Spirit protects you from getting your eyes on people, and He gives you understanding and toleration of others.

2. Oil in the ancient world was used for healing as a medicine.
 - a. By way of analogy, the filling of the Holy Spirit produces an understanding of others and a tenderness toward others as you realize they have problems also. Consequently, a breach is healed before there is any further difficulty.
 - b. The filling of the Holy Spirit also heals your bitterness, anxieties, and fear as you grow with doctrine.
 3. Oil is used for light. This refers to the ministry of the Holy Spirit in illuminating the Word of God.
 4. Oil propels or accelerates, as in diesel fuel. Therefore, the filling of the Holy Spirit is necessary for advance to maturity.
 5. Oil invigorates; it provides energy for athletes (rub down). The filling of the Holy Spirit gives energy for the execution of the Christian way of life.
 6. Oil warms. The ministry of the Spirit provides the function of the Christian way of life. We are different people when we are controlled by the Spirit.
 7. Oil adorns; it is used for grooming. Likewise, the Holy Spirit produces in us a beauty, an animation, a thoughtfulness, and an energy which we would not otherwise have. The filling of the Holy Spirit produces in us everything worthwhile, thereby advancing us in the right direction with concentration, poise, and good manners.
- N. The Importance of the Power of the Spirit, 1Kings 19:1-18.
1. The filling of the Holy Spirit comes through rebound. After you rebound, Bible doctrine must be the number one priority in your life. Without that priority, you can lose your advance overnight.
 2. Zech 4:6, "'Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit,' says the Lord."
- O. The old husband and the new husband are discussed in lesson #214 as a part of this doctrine. I did not get these notes, but this will be covered in Romans 7.

Lesson #214

214 10/02/1977 Romans 6:13b Doctrines of the filling of the Holy Spirit (4–9) and pseudo–spirituality

Human life is imputed to the soul at birth. This is a real imputation. There is a natural target or home for what is being imputed. Volition is not an issue. We are born physically alive and spiritually dead. The three imputations are the basis for our salvation; and salvation cannot occur without these three preceding imputations.

In Romans 7, we will have divorce from the first husband and being married again to the second.

A review of Soul, Body, and Imputation Principles from the previous lesson, and any new notes will be placed there.

We will go back and pick up the rest of the points of the filling of the Holy Spirit. Notes will be found in Lesson #213. The bulk of the notes for this lesson are found in those two doctrines in the previous lesson.

Romans 6:13 Do not present your members to sin as instruments for unrighteousness, but present yourselves to God as those who have been brought from death to life, and your members to God as instruments for righteousness. (BLB)

“but yield yourselves unto God” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH] sets up a contrast between the negative and the positive command, plus the aorist active imperative of paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh], the military term which means to put yourself under the command of someone, the verb which first of all connotes authority.

1977 Romans

Lesson #215

215 10/06/1977 Romans 6:13c Guadalcanal; distractions from Bible doctrine; "deaths"

7 August 1942 (?) Coordination of Navy, Marines, Air Force and the Army. This is called the Guadalcanal campaign. This started a terrific battle in Washington. In the first place, the president of the United States determined with Britain that most of the operation would take place in Europe, and less important in the Pacific. That was stupid. MacArthur and Chester Nimitz had a line between them, the Solomon Islands. They wanted to go up north island by island. Nimitz was going to be in complete charge. MacArthur wanted us to go to Rabaul. This was more important than the Singapore and Manila falls.

FDR told Marshall, “You decide.” The famous coast watchers of the Solomon Islands. Mostly these were Australians, with one American. These were tough. They went behind enemy lines; in fact, when the Japs moved in, they just stayed there.

The Coast Watchers saw that the Japs were building an airfield where they took over. Very much like the 13th verse of Romans 6. We pulled everything together to explain it. When a base is established, the United States would be cut off from Australia.

MacArthur was insistent here. Real, raw courage as you will never find it, Lonely Vigil by Walter Lord. One of the greatest eyeopeners of that phase. All of the Coast Watchers lived very close to the Japs. They would be attacked, but they would just hide, and then come out later and continue to attack the Japs.

V. 13 is like giving a command, but you need to have all of the training in order to obey it.

You must know how to rebound; and you must know the significance of the filling of the Spirit. Without that, there is no advance, no human energy, no divine energy. We cannot understand doctrine unless we are controlled by the Holy Spirit. There is no middle ground; you understand rebound by grace, or you do not advance.

Romans 6:13 Do not present your members to sin as instruments for unrighteousness, but present yourselves to God as those who have been brought from death to life, and your members to God as instruments for righteousness. (BLB)

This material has been covered before. It is an explanation of yield yourself unto God.

You must be grace oriented in order to be authority oriented. “If I don’t start numbering things, you don’t think it is worth writing down.”

Bob apparently just did a conference in Kansas. Very responsive and well-disciplined.

“but yield yourselves unto God” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast between the negative and the positive command, plus the aorist active imperative of paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh], the military term which means to put yourself under the command of someone, the verb which first of all connotes authority. The visible manifestation of divine authority is Bible doctrine. Paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] also means that when you are under authority you must have discipline, the ability to respond the same way today, tomorrow, the next day, the next, and so on. Positive volition toward doctrine. Distraction is the enemy of discipline.

Some guy or gal comes into town, and you put doctrine aside for a night. That is distraction and distraction keeps you from advancing. Anything that comes along and you are long gone. Our way of life has to be doctrine. Do not ever assume that you can go without it. You do not reprogram your brain which has been operating on sin, good and evil for the past 20 years. You do not make one-shot decisions.

Let’s say, you find that you have the gift of pastor-teacher. Do you make a one-shot decision to be a great pastor-teacher? You are in preparation every single day. Bob used to hear these testimonies. Hundreds of idiotic testimonies of young people who made a one-shot decision for the Christian life. Every single day, you make decisions and you wade through all the distractions. The more you go for doctrine, the more distractions that you will face. Doctrine needs to be #1 in your life.

You do not get direct orders from the commanding officer; it comes down through channels. God does not tell you what to do directly. The Scripture has to be in place, which requires a number of people to be involved; which takes you to the pastor-teacher who teaches it to you.

The aorist tense of paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. The action of the verb is to makes a decision today, tomorrow, the next day, and every day that God gives you on this earth to function under GAP. The constative aorist here refers to action over a period of time, a constant daily decision. The period of time is from the day of salvation until the day that you die or are resurrected, whichever occurs first. The active voice: the believer is commanded to produce the action of the verb. The imperative mood is the imperative of command. It is an order for the intake of doctrine on a daily basis, but doctrine taken in on the basis of your decision.

The accusative plural direct object from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO] follows. When the action expressed by the verb is referred back to its own subject the construction is called reflexive. It is translated by a reflexive pronoun, “but put yourself under orders.” You have to do it.

The dative of indirect object of the proper noun for God, theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], comes next, and with it the generic use of the definite article to emphasize the uniqueness of God—“to the God.” The believer places himself under orders to God by his attitude toward the teaching of the Word. Production is the result of spiritual growth through the function of GAP. The production is never the means of either growth or blessing from the justice of God. Even legitimate production commanded in the Word of God must be the result of spiritual growth. God has made the system of teaching doctrine a system of authority. To obey this command, put yourself under orders to the God, means you maintain the filling of the Spirit.

“as those that are alive from the dead” – the comparative particle hōsei (ὡσεῖ) [pronounced hoh-SIGH] which means “as” and sets up a comparative clause, and with it the present active participle of zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh], meaning to be alive. It should be translated, “as those who are alive.” The present tense is static a condition assumed as perpetually existing. We are alive because of current positional truth, and it is perpetual. The active voice: the believer through retroactive positional truth produces the action. The participle is circumstantial through the baptism of the Holy Spirit, retroactive and current positional truth. All of this comes to pass.

Then ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative plural of nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] which can mean either dead or deaths, depending on another factor of grammar. There is no definite article here and the absence of the definite article determines the meaning of this adjective substantive. Minus the definite article it means “deaths,” because the absence of the definite article calls attention to the qualitative aspects of Christ’s death, i.e. the two deaths on the cross. With the article it is “dead ones.” So this is correctly translated, “as those who are alive from deaths.” Christ’s deaths, because we are identified with Him in His deaths at the moment we are saved through the baptism of the Holy Spirit. We are alive from deaths because we are identified with Christ in His spiritual and physical deaths. This identification makes us separate from good and evil.

Principle: Positional victory is the basis for experiential victory. Positional victory provides the opportunity for the expression of positive volition, the application of retroactive and current positional truth. The ruling power of the old sin nature over human life has been broken positionally so that the believer is no longer the slave to his sovereign authority from birth.

“and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God” – the connective conjunction kai, “and.” Plus the accusative plural direct object from the noun μέλος (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss]—“members.” Those members include the brain. The old sin nature is in the brain and all of the cells of the body.

Plus the possessive genitive plural from the personal pronoun su. Plus the double accusative plural of hoplon (ὄπλον) [pronounced HOP-lon]—“weapons.” Plus the descriptive genitive singular of dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay]—“righteousness,” the only reason we have any blessing from God, starting at salvation. Plus the dative indirect object from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“to God.”

We cannot break through this screen with anything that we do, including personality change, great promises, prayer, etc. We receive what we receive is based upon having God’s righteousness. It is God’s righteousness which is key to our spiritual life. We do not lose God’s righteousness because we lose our own righteousness.

David did not lose all of his blessing because of his great sins. He did not lose God’s righteousness.

1977 Romans

Lesson #216

216 10/07/1977 Romans 6:13 Guadalcanal campaign part II Grace pipeline; anatomy of and re-programming of the brain from good and evil to Bible doctrine

In order to understand this verse, we need a large number of doctrines. The Japs took over the Solomon Islands, to cut the US off from Australia. There were the coast watchers who hid behind the lines.

Great cooperation of forces in the Guadalcanal campaign. Differences at the top, but the men cooperated with one another well.

Yamamoto was the smartest Jap of all and he knew they needed to take this islands back. Japs began to fly men in there to land at night.

One guy repaired 1st, 2nd and 3rd degree damaged machine guns when in the midst of a battle; the only time that this has been done.

One guy who killed off 75 Japs and many were put on the run. He could not leave his gun on its swivel base. He had to hold it and lean over to kill them all.

Comparison of ships lost. We were handling destroyers very badly; we lost about 14 of them; and changed our approach to dealing with destroyers.

This was our first great victory in the Pacific.

Half or more of the class is given over to the Guadalcanal campaign, including medal of honor recipients.

There are many pitfalls and distractions in the Christian life. V. 13 was already exegeted.

Romans 6:13 And stop placing your members as weapons of wickedness [good and evil] under orders to the sin nature: but place yourselves under orders to God as those who are alive from deaths, and your members as weapons of righteousness to the God.

Imputations, God's Righteousness, and Our Personal Sins

1. The grace pipeline is established for blessing for the believer. God's righteousness is imputed to every believer at the moment of salvation. The justice of God cannot give blessing to -R. It can only bless God's perfect righteousness.
2. The pipeline is encapsulated by the integrity of God.
3. Righteousness is the principle of divine integrity; justice is the function. Divine righteousness is the guardian of God's integrity.
- 4.
5. Since justice is the only source of blessing to mankind, justice must have a target for that blessing.
6. The target is the righteousness of God given at salvation. An affinity between divine justice and imputed righteousness.
7. All blessing from the justice of God must have a divinely prepared target or home. This is justification (which is the imputation of divine righteousness).
8. Human life is given to the soul; a natural affinity there. Adam's original sin is imputed to a genetically prepared home in the human body, the old sin nature. This sin, Adam's original sin, is the only sin that condemns any of us. We are not condemned by our personal sins. Our personal sins are only an issue in the saving work of Jesus Christ. There is no affinity between ourselves and God's righteousness except as prepared by God.
9. All blessing from the justice of God are a real imputation.
10. So to make our members weapons of righteousness,
11. Because of current positional truth, we have the right and privilege of growing in grace.
12. This can only be accomplished by the teaching of Bible doctrine. Maturity is a series of decisions over many years. Consistent, whether a topic interests you or not.
13. When we reach maturity adjustment to the Justice of God, our members become weapons of righteousness to the God.

14. When this takes place, God fill the grace pipeline with the most fantastic blessings from His justice.
15. The flow of these blessings through the grace pipeline is the ultimate in glorifying Jesus Christ in itime.
16. Obviously, the old sin nature with its trends toward sin, good and evil, is a hindrance to advance.
17. This can make our members weapons of wickedness.
18. We can be confused about the Christian way of life.
19. By persistent positive volition toward Bible doctrine ith rebound, the believer voices the pitfalls of spiritual advance.

The ultimate in imputation is divine blessing from the justice of God.

Romans 6:13 And stop placing your members as weapons of wickedness [good and evil] under orders to the sin nature: but place yourselves under orders to God as those who are alive from deaths, and your members as weapons of righteousness to the God.

The Brain and the Soul

1. Members of unrighteousness or wickedness...those parts of the body where the sin nature resides.
2. This includes the brain. Not the same as the mentality of the soul.
3. The brain has neurons, which are male cells.
- 4.
5. The brain is a part of the body; the mentality is a part of the soul.
6. The brain is a computer and a messenger to the self consciousness.
7. The brain is that vastly complicated part functioning like a computer to make thought possible.
8. The neurons of the brain have their own electrical charges transmitted on axons.
9. Muscle tone, pasture, sleep rhythm, breathing, coughing, etc. is controlled by the brain. This proves that you have a brain.
10. In other words, the brain is the part of the human body which regulates the rest of the body. You need a go-between the computer and the one preprogramming the computer.
11. The sin nature resides in the brain but not in the soul.
12. Howeverkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkka
13. Until regeneration, the brain is a vast computer filled with good and evil. That is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world.
14. Only Bible doctrine can offset this computerized data.
15. To make the brain a weapon of righteousness requires maximum foc in the soul by he members

The Brain

1. Grey matter and white matter of the brain.
2. The brain keeps everything in disciplined control. Like a well-trained army. Millions of messages flash back and forth.
3. Sensory and motor mechanisms play roles in the integrative action in the brain.
4. It is not Bob's objective to discuss the brain hemisphere. The interpretive cortex. The sin nature resides in the brain and it uses all of these functions of the brain. We need to wake up every day and reprogram out computer.
5. The command of this verse is negative and positive. To get out of the sin nature control and... Every process of the brain must correspond with the nervous system, says one who thinks that there is no soul.
6. The brain is the mechanical expression of the soul's self consciousness. We know that we exist.
7. Just as we would distinguish between the driver of an auto.
8. The brain is a part of the body of corruption controlled by the body of corruption since birth.
9. Sin, good and evil.
10. The brain continues to be programmed for good and evil....
11. The brain rules the soul under the
12. X
13. Add the baptism of the Spirit and the soul is ready...
14. By the intake of Bible doctrine, new information is fed into the computer, reprogramming it for the plan of God.
15. Accomplishing experientially.
16. Reprogram the brain computer
17. We must reprogram the giant computer with Bible doctrine to fulfill v. 13.

When in Kansas, a couple brought Bob a letter. They had lost their first child at a young age. They did not fall apart. You cannot go to the mission field if your brain is programmed to produce good and evil.

We are moving rapidly into great historical crisis.

1977 Romans

Lesson #217

217 10/09/1977 Romans 6:14 General Keegan on U.S. crisis; old sin nature = husband #1; Law = marriage counselor; Jesus Christ = husband #2

Bob spoke to a large audience in Lubbock the other day. General George Keegan just retired. He learned things today which confirmed what he has said. No president in our history has ever been surrounded by such evil. The very functions of our services have been limited. Free enterprise and capitalism is under terrible attack; attacks that you cannot believe.

Our military establishment is being reduced to absurdity. Everywhere you turn, there is that same old Marxist song. What Bob heard from Keegan would be frightening to any believer who has no doctrine. The press is on the side of the Marxists. The press has information that they are not reporting today. They are deliberately deceiving the American public.

The American people no longer think like Americans. It is very refreshing to interact with people who fought at a time when we were truly great. Today the average person on the street is no more an American than the average person you see in Moscow.

For some of you, you are too far gone. You will say, doctrine doesn't work. The time will come, sooner or later, when things are going to pop in this nation. We are already lost.

A man high up in England said that their socialist government has destroyed free enterprise; they cannot compete on world markets. "England is dead right now. Socialism has strangled most nations of this world."

An historical trend is a trend of history; it is not just one person. The average person on the street is filled with good and evil.

Verses 14 & 15, a question dealing with the problem of distortion. Distortion in thinking is a sign of erroneous thinking. These verses reflect the principle that history repeats itself. When there is divorcement from reality there is distortion in thinking, and when there is distortion in thinking there is erroneous thinking and inability to see the historical trend and to reverse it. Once the trend begins to gain momentum there is only one way a trend in history can be stopped. That is by intervention from the One who controls history, the Lord Jesus Christ. The trends in the United States have gained such momentum today that they cannot be stopped by any normal means or any normal situation. Our only hope at this particular moment lies in the spiritual solution entirely. We are to a point where they cannot be reversed apart from the Lord Jesus Christ controlling history.

Romans 6:14 For sin will not rule over you, for you are not under law, but under grace.

Sin here does not refer to personal sin. The activity of the day and the policy of Satan today is good and evil.

There is an affinity between human life and the soul; and wherever we exist, we will continue to have life in the human soul. At the same time, Adam's original sin was imputed to its genetically prepared home, the sin nature, the subject of our verse. Adam's original sin has an affinity for the sin nature. Adam's sin is the source of the old sin nature in mankind. Although the woman sinned first, she sinned from ignorance. Adam's sin is the principle for setting up the sin nature.

We are not condemned from our own personal sins, but because of Adam's original sin. Therefore, all personal sins in history is not an issue in our condemnation or in our salvation. In salvation, the issue is, what do you think of Christ? The first Adam is the source of our condemnation; and last Adam is the source of our salvation. Personal sin is raised so much by our clergymen today. But there is not much difference between current clergymen and the croaking of a frog.

One sin is the basis for our condemnation; our personal sins do not condemn us. Personal sin is an issue to the Lord Jesus Christ; because all of our personal sins were imputed to Jesus Christ on the cross. The moment of faith in Christ, two more imputations occur. The justice of God imputes a judicial imputation to each one of us, the righteousness of God. That establishes a grace pipeline and it sets up a security. All divine blessings through that pipeline throughout a person's life. The justice of God can only bless the righteousness of God. The two form the integrity of God. Righteousness is the principle of divine integrity; and justice is the function of divine integrity. Nothing can penetrate this pipeline. At the same time, eternal life is imputed as a real imputation. This is regeneration or the new birth.

At the point of salvation, the Holy Spirit enters us into union with Christ, which is the baptism of the Holy Spirit. There is retroactive positional truth where we are identified with Jesus Christ in His death (and, positionally, we have rejected good and evil). Being in Christ in His death and burial rejects good and evil. Then we are in Christ in His ascension and glorification at the throne.

There is a divorce at the point of salvation. The believer divorces the first husband, the sin nature; and the second husband is Jesus Christ. The first husband tries to get the wife back. The old marriage counselor is the Law; and the new marriage counselor is grace (or the Holy Spirit?). Grace is the system by which the justice of God provides blessing to the believer.

Grace is the policy by which the second husband blesses the believer.

Slaves to Righteousness

Verse 14 – the principle of victory over the old sin nature. Three words found here: “Sin,” the culprit; “law,” the marriage counselor of the first marriage; “grace,” the policy by which the second husband is going to bless those who are believers. This blessing is both personal and by association, and historical.

“For sin shall not have dominion over you” – the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar, then the culprit, the nominative singular subject from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], referring to the old sin nature, not personal sin. Then we have the slavery, the lordship: the future active indicative of kurieúō (κυριεύω) [pronounced ko-ree-YOO-oh] which means to lord it over, to rule over or control. The future tense is a progressive future, it denotes the idea of progress in future time. The progress in future time comes from the consistent use of the rebound adjustment to the justice of God when necessary, the persistent function of GAP while on the road to maturity adjustment to the justice of God. During the time from salvation and moving toward cracking the maturity barrier we are under the support of logistical grace, the support of positional truth; positionally the power of the old sin nature has been destroyed. The active voice plus the negative means the old sin nature does not lord it over or control the believer's life. The indicative mood plus the negative ou (ou) [pronounced oo] is a potential indicative of obligation expressing the contingent element, i.e. persistence in the use of logistical grace to overcome the attacks of the first husband. The future active indicative is followed by the objective genitive plural from the personal pronoun su. The personal pronoun is used because Christianity is personal, it is a personal relationship between you and God—"For the sin nature will not lord it over you." Therefore, that which is adverse in your life, the tyranny of the old sin nature, has been broken so that a new lordship can be established.

In marriage, the man owns 100% of the stock. When you do get married as a woman, remember that the man owns 100% of the stock. There is nothing that says that you have any stock in the corporation. Nothing says that you must get married.

The husband, as the ruler, calls the shots. The unbeliever is born spiritually dead. The marriage counsel, the Mosaic Law, points to the Lord Jesus Christ as the solution. In the second marriage, the Lord Jesus Christ is now kurios and He owns 100% of the stock. This should help you ladies when it comes to marriage and what it is all about.

The woman loves the man, and is willing to be under the man's authority. The moment that you say I do, he becomes your Lord and ruler. Women are so poorly mannered and they are gossipy and trouble makers. They are not controlled by their husbands.

No one is free from authority. Authority is a protective thing; it is a desirable thing. Bob is delighted to be under the authority of God. Our country has many groups and authorities.

The Sin Nature Will Not Lord it over You

1. The potential indicative of obligation is the key to understanding this phrase. Positionally the power and the authority of the old sin nature is broken, but experientially the victory of the old sin nature is contingent on the use of the rebound technique plus a daily option for Bible doctrine—GAP. Eventually, if this persists there will be the maturity adjustment to the justice of God which is the basis for great blessing.
2. Retroactive positional truth emphasizes the non-imputation of good and evil. Hence, the rejection of good and evil which is the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of life.
3. Furthermore, the believer is not only identified with Christ in His spiritual death on the cross, but the believer is also identified with Christ in His physical death and burial which is total separation from good and evil. Good and evil is destroying our country.
4. Therefore the power of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life has been broken through identification with Christ in His spiritual death, physical death and burial.
5. It is current positional truth, however, which relates the positional victory to the experiential victory. The fact that we are positionally dead to good and evil does not mean that we are experientially dead to good and evil. Just as in a divorce, the first husband may cause a lot of trouble and change the woman's mind.

6. We are also identified with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session. This emphasizes the new life, noted in verses 4, 8, 10, 11, 13.
7. In verse 17 we will see more of this new life—"that system of doctrine with which you were entrusted."
8. The new life must be a life of assimilation of Bible doctrine which is the only source of spiritual growth and advance to maturity.
9. The new life is the fulfilment of the formulae:
 - a. potential + capacity = reality of blessing in time. The primary potential is justification, the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation. The capacity is maximum doctrine resident in the soul. The reality of blessing in time: doctrine produces maturity adjustment to the justice of God and blessings in time are the result of maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
 - b. The second formula is a secondary potential, the baptism of the Spirit, plus capacity—maximum doctrine resident in the soul resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God. This equals the reality of encapsulated environment. The environment for blessing from the justice of God is encapsulated so that historical disaster or any other historical climate has no adverse effect on those blessings.
10. In seeking to continue the enslavement of the believer after its power is broken the old sin nature distorts the Mosaic law into a system of human good. This system of human good becomes legalism; legalism is evil.
11. It is the tendency of reversionism to distort the law into a system of works and good which produces an evil called "religion." Christianity is not a religion, it is a relationship with God through Christ.
12. Religion is the devil's ace trump. Religion and legalism distort the Mosaic law into a system of good deeds to gain the blessing of God.
13. Therefore the next phrase becomes important to us, for it emphasizes the fact that the believer is not under the authority of the Mosaic law but comes under a new principle of blessing: God's grace. Grace is the source of our blessing in the sense that grace is the principle by which divine justice provides blessing for each one of us as believers.
14. Being under the authority of grace means the utilization of grace for victory over the power of the old sin nature, such as rebound, the perception of doctrine, and continuing to live so that we can crack the maturity barrier which is the result of logistical grace. We are all kept alive through the principle of logistical grace.

"for ye are not under the law, but under grace" – the postpositive particle gar, "for," followed by the present active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] which denies the reality of an alleged fact or an assertion of fact. Then a principle of authority, the preposition hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the accusative of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]. There is no definite article, it is anarthrous construction and it emphasizes the qualitative aspect of the law. In other words, there is nothing wrong with the law in its proper usage. Only its distortion by legalism becomes a problem. The law in itself is holy, just, and good; it is from God and is perfect. The law, however, has limited objectives related to the unbeliever. Once a person becomes a believer he is not under the authority of the law.

Plus an adversative conjunction ἀλλά [pronounced ah-l-LAH] emphasizing a contrast. There is a contrast of authority, and so we have a new one, the preposition ὑπό [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the accusative of charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-icē]. This is our new principle of authority for blessing. Again, there is the absence of the definite article, emphasizing the qualitative aspect of charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-icē] or grace. Both the Mosaic law and the principle of grace are from God, and when properly used result in great blessing to the believer.

Romans 6:14 For the sin nature will not lord it over you; for you are not under law, but under grace.

Principle: While the Mosaic law has a definite purpose it does not include either salvation or victory over the old sin nature.

The Law can teach the existence of the old sin nature; but it cannot tell you how to overcome the sin nature.

The Law acts as a marriage counselor for the unbeliever married to his sin nature.

Grace solves the problem, through salvation and then through maturity adjustment to the Justice of God. There are concepts of freedom and concepts of morality taught to us by the Law. Morality cannot save and morality cannot provide anything in the spiritual realm. The misconception of fundies today is, if you live a moral life, you are a great Christian; and if you violate their standards, you are a horrible Christian and possibly not even saved.

The Law says, "You have a bad marriage, but I cannot solve the problem."

We face the same issue. There must be in the right lobe of the soul Bible doctrine. That Bible doctrine re-programs the giant computer known as the brain.

1977 Romans

Lesson #218

218 10/09/1977 Romans 6:15 Distortion of grace; maximum Bible doctrine results in increase of grace; Wilson vs. T. Roosevelt

10 minute Eucharist.

Review of the first 14 verses:

Slaves to Righteousness

Romans 6:15 What then? Shall we sin because we are not under law, but under grace? Never may it be!

Verse 15 – a question regarding the distortion of grace. “What then? shall we sin, because we are not under the law, but under grace?” It begins with the nominative neuter singular from the interrogative pronoun tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç], means “what.” Plus the inferential particle oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon] forming up with the interrogative and setting up a principle, an interrogative and elliptical idiom. It means, “What then are we to conclude?”

Then the question: the aorist active subjunctive from the verb hamartanô (ἁμαρτάνω) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TAHN-oh]. It means literally, “Shall we sin?” The constative aorist refers to a momentary action, hence an occasional act of sin. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb through either mental, verbal, or overt sin. The deliberative subjunctive mood is used here as a rhetorical device. Rhetorical questions in the Koine Greek represent an attitude of mind. Here the rhetorical question represents the false assumption in the form of a question.

We have already seen that sin does not advance the grace of God, for that was the first half of the chapter based upon the question in verse one. The grace of God can only be advanced by the justice of God, for grace is a policy from the justice of God. Grace is the perfection and perfect character of God Himself. Then we have the causal use of the conjunctive particle hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] which should be translated “because.” Plus the present active indicative of the verb eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] which denies the reality of the alleged fact. And we have a repetition of what we had in the closing phrase of the previous verse: the preposition hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus the accusative of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]—“under [the authority of] law.”

“but grace?” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] setting up a contrast of authority, and then hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] plus charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-iç].

Grace, Good, Evil, Legalism, Antinomianism (Distortions of Grace)

1. Grace is never increased and never advanced by any function of the old sin nature, whether sin or good or evil.
2. Grace originates from the justice of God. Grace is the policy of the justice of God in providing blessings for mankind.
3. Grace does not motivate the sin since grace is from God. Grace is the policy of God.
4. As a divine policy, therefore, grace cannot motivate to sin or carnality. Grace cannot motivate to good or evil.
5. Therefore being under the authority of grace means using grace provision in order to head off the trends of the old sin nature, whether sin and especially good and evil which seem to be the downfall of Christianity in the 20th century.
6. The old sin nature does not sponsor grace. God is the author of grace; God is the user of grace; grace is God’s policy, not the policy of the old sin nature. The old sin nature’s counter attack comes in the field of good and evil, but grace is strictly from God.

7. Therefore we have in this verse a rhetorical question which is a false assumption of two antithetical failures. One of these failures is legalism and the other is antinomianism.
8. To the legalist grace always appears as a license to sin. To the antinomian grace always appears as an excuse for sin.
9. Neither position is correct. In fact, both legalism and antinomianism are distortions of the grace of God.
10. Such distortions can only be corrected through cognizance of such doctrines as we have noted in the basic imputations and the baptism of the Holy Spirit.
11. Neither legalism nor antinomianism can break away from the ruling power of the old sin nature over life because both are distortions.
12. Only the divine provision and the divine support of logistical grace can exploit the positional victory over the old sin nature.

Such a question demands an answer, and in this verse there is the negative answer. The positive answer is given in a separate paragraph, beginning in verse 16. Our answer is a very strong negative which is translated “God forbid,” made up from two Greek words which are an idiom: mê (μή) [pronounced may] plus genoito (γίνοιτο) [pronounced GEE-noyt-oh] which is the aorist active optative from gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my]. The literal translation of the idiom is “Let it not be so.” The negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] is a qualified negative used in the prohibitive sense in an independent clause to express a negative wish. While the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] denies the fact, the negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] in our context denies the idea. The aorist tense of gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my] is a gnomic aorist used for the certainty of refuting a false allegation. In other words, the idiom says this is false, this is wrong, this is out of line. The active voice: the false conclusion produces the action and is being denied by the idiom. The optative mood is a voluntative optative for the expression of a negative wish. This is a very strong negative idiom which deprecates the erroneous assumption stated by the debater’s rhetorical question. There is no word for God here. Hell no sometimes offends people when it is said in church. Translation: “Emphatically not.” Grace always emphasizes the function of divine justice, not divine love. The negative idiom denies the allegation that even occasional sin, human good, or the function of evil in the believer increases grace. The grace of God increases in direct proportion to the development of the believer’s capacity for blessing through maximum doctrine resident in the soul. Only justice can increase grace; nothing that the sin nature produces increases grace. The sin nature rules as sovereign through spiritual death.

One thing that Bob has noticed in the anti-communist movement. The problem is well-expressed and well-defined. The problem is not worth defining without expressing a solution; and the solutions presented are nearly always too superficial.

Romans 6:15 What then are we to conclude? Shall we sin because we are not under law, but under grace? Definitely not.

Principle

1. Maximum indoctrination results in grace increase. Notice that grace is related to the intake of doctrine, not our failures and disasters.
2. Grace is the policy of the justice of God, in providing blessing for the believer in time as well as in eternity.
3. God's integrity does not depend on man's sinfulness or the production of human good, or the function of evil.
4. The integrity of God is not sponsored by the function of the old sin nature or its trends.
5. Acts of personal sin do not increase grace blessing from the justice of God, but rather increase discipline and punishment from the justice of God.
6. Being under the authority of God's grace does not encourage us to acts of personal sin but we are motivated to press on to maturity through the consistent intake of Bible doctrine.
7. Being under the authority of grace means utilization of grace. Utilization of grace means utilization of grace provision for victory over the old sin nature. This means advance to maturity where we both glorify the Lord Jesus Christ and receive those maximum blessings from the justice of God. Those blessings are described as "exceedingly abundantly above all we could ask or think."
8. Therefore, remember that sin originates from the old sin nature. Human good and evil originate from the old sin nature. Grace originates from the justice of God.
9. Remember that the justice of God is the source of both cursing and blessing to each one of us as believers.
10. Therefore the believer cannot perform an occasional act of sin with impunity. There is always discipline. The believer cannot perform an act of human good with impunity. There is condemnation of that human good from the justice of God. And there cannot be a series of sins resulting in evil, or a series of human good acts resulting in evil, without divine punishment both to individuals involved and for the nation in general. In other words, we never function under the old sin nature with impunity.
11. Being under the authority of grace rather than the law does not imply that the justice of God no longer administers punitive action for the believer who chooses to sin, perform human good, or to become involved with evil.
12. Divine justice punishes sinfulness and divine justice blesses growth in grace.
13. Therefore, freedom from the Mosaic law does not imply immunity from punishment or discipline.

We are familiar with the concept of freedom through military victory. During the presidency of Woodrow Wilson, a man with ideals but had few ideas. The United States under Wilson had only 80,000 troops which constituted our standing army; a very small army. Wilson was a history professor from Princeton. Therefore, the shrinkage of the military.

He had a great senior officer, Leonard Wood. He took over the platoon and kept them alive after the Apaches attacked. He was involved in the last of our Indian wars (and captured Geronimo).

Wood was involved with the rough riders associated with Theodore Roosevelt. He rose rapidly and became a major general in TR's army. He was appalled by Wilson's attitude. He warned us that lack of military preparedness is a sure way to military conflict and loss.

The pacifist policies of Wilson were deprecated by these people. They believed a crisis was coming in the near future in 1915 and they asked for training under General Wood. He needed 30 people at least. He got 1200 people.

Wilson would not participate or the VP. Teddy Roosevelt was invited and he accepted with great enthusiasm. Wood required his speech up front, which Teddy agreed to. He was allowed to speak; but he allowed the original speech to go to the press. Wilson said this would never happen again. The 1200 became the civilian soldier. Preparation is necessary for anything in life. Preparation is necessary in the spiritual realm as well.

1977 Romans

Lesson #219

219 10/10/1977 Romans 6:16a Authority: legitimate, of Caesars and attacks on authority of management

A pastor on the west coast said Romans 9–11 was designed for us to understand in heaven. It is a little complicated and not one of the easier passages in Scripture.

Life begins after we emerge from the womb. God takes human life and He imputes it to the human soul. This imputation is permanent. All imputations have a permanence about them (unless one is overwritten). Bob may add human life to the soul.

Human life is not adequate to spend eternity with God. For Christ to be experientially the Lord of our life, that would be equivalent to spiritual maturity.

Verses 16-23 form the final section of Romans 6, the options of the Christian life. We have opportunities to use our volition.

Romans 6:16 Do you not know that to whom you yield yourselves as slaves for obedience, you are slaves to him whom you obey, whether of sin to death, or of obedience to righteousness?

Verse 16 – “Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey.” The present active indicative from the perfect stem oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da], plus the negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook]—“do you not know.”

That is a challenge that there is something to learn, something to understand. This is the basic concept of life. You must understand authority in life, and the extent to which you buck authority in life is the extent to which life destroys you. The present tense is a tendencial present used for an action purposed or attempted but not taking place. But it must take place. It is imperative that it take place, for when Paul wrote to the Romans a crisis was in the making. The Roman empire was a republic for five hundred years. But when a republic degenerates into a democracy, and democracy degenerates into anarchy, then always a strong man comes along and brings order out of chaos. The strong man was Julius Caesar who converted the republic into an empire, though it was not really his intention. It becomes inevitable though in order to stop the violence and anarchy. Then the empire had a series of successes.

All of the emperors were unbelievers but that is not important, for the ruler of a country does not have to be born again. These men were all unbelievers but they were the authority. Remember what Jesus said: “Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar’s, and unto God the things that are God’s.” There is no conflict there. There is a division: one dealing with establishment and one dealing with the spiritual realm. The empire became a system of authority set up by Caesar. Believers not only lived under this system but they thrived under this system. Christianity advanced under this system. It is a basic principle that every believer must recognize, for Christianity cannot evangelize without freedom and establishment. Christianity cannot teach doctrine without the protection of law and order. Freedom and establishment must go together. Freedom is abused unless there is a system of authority. “Do you not know?” They had to recognize that they had a problem. That is why Paul wrote in this way to these people, for they were about to destroy everything that had been gained. They were about to lose everything because they had actually come to the attitude of anti-government authority. They refused military service and establishment principles, unless it suited them.

All of us have been under authority which we consider to be unfair or incompetent.

Violence is not the solution; and Bob admits that he has wanted to take out a few members of the congregation. The message is the issue and that establishes the pastor’s authority.

The tendencial present means something that is not occurring, not taking place. They are not understanding the issue. The negative represents the idea of what is intended. They should be under governmental authority as believers, but they are rejecting governmental authority. The active voice: believers are not producing the action of the verb, though they should be. The indicative mood is an interrogative indicative, it is asking a question. Plus the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] after words of perception, or in this case what they should understand and do not.

Next is a dative masculine singular indirect object from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], followed by a present active indicative from paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] —“Do you not know that to whom you place yourself under orders.” Paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] is a military term for recognition of authority. The present tense is a pictorial present which presents to the mind a picture of events in the process of occurrence. The active voice: the believer places himself under the command of either the sin nature residing in the human body or under orders to God as a member of the royal family of God and therefore possess the double portion of blessing at salvation.

Management is essential; and the federal government is attempting to destroy management. We have lost track of what authority is so that the most basic concepts have now been destroyed.

Lesson #220

220 10/11/1977 Romans 6:16b Paratroopers and elite troops; opting for proper authority; happiness in obedience.

Jokes about parachutists.

The French has the greatest paratroopers in the world. Of all the elite corps, they are the ones most misused. Small elite groups often survive in spite of this; but so many of them are not properly used. Divisions are better supported by air support and artillery. Darby's Rangers were destroyed at Anzio.

The French have had elite troops longer than any other nation. Apparently, elite troops are often sacrificed.

The greatest elite troops today are the fundamentalists who are taking in Bible doctrine. Those who are consistently positive toward Bible doctrine. Elite troops are designed to do the impossible as if in a disciplined way. 14. We will never be sacrificed by our commander-in-chief.

We all accept authority in different fields. If we are going to have our appendix removed, we accept the authority of a doctor. Somehow this seems to slip away when it comes to the spiritual realm. There is no spiritual advance apart from recognizing the authority of the local pastor-teacher. Bob accepted the authority of three men prior to his going into a seminary. All of them were great teachers in his own opinion. Bob would not have made those strides without accepting their authority. None of us can live without authority; we cannot survive without authority. How could we get across town in an automobile. Authority allows this to take place.

All great lovers have great self-discipline. A man cannot be a great lover without having great self-discipline and knowing how to use his authority. Most men are poor lovers because they have rejected authority all along the way.

Romans 6:16 Do you not know that to whom you yield yourselves as slaves for obedience, you are slaves to him whom you obey, whether of sin to death, or of obedience to righteousness?

Options of the Christian life between vv. 18–23.

We stopped at the word paristimi. Present active.

The first portion of the double portion comes from God the Father, the second from God the Son through the agency of God the Holy Spirit. All believers in history receive the first portion at salvation adjustment to the justice of God. In other words, the moment that you believe there are two imputations which comprise the first portion. The first of these imputations: the justice of God imputes as a judicial imputation divine righteousness to every believer. That sets up the grace pipeline for blessing. At the same time there is a real imputation: eternal life is imputed to its designated target or home prepared by God which is regeneration—eternal life imputed to the new birth. Human life was imputed to the soul at physical birth. At the new birth eternal life is imputed to regeneration prepared by God the Holy Spirit. This is the first portion from God the Father.

The second portion at salvation comes from God the Son through the agency of the Holy Spirit. All believers of the Church Age are royal family of God, and at the moment of salvation God the Holy Spirit enters us into union with Christ, seated at the right hand of the Father.

This is current positional truth in contrast to retroactive positional truth which deals with the old sin nature. Current positional truth deals with the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Lord Jesus Christ is seated at the right hand of the Father. He has perfect righteousness and eternal life. We share everything that Christ has, but righteousness and eternal life are involved in the second portion of the double portion for royal family. At the point of entering into union with Christ we receive His life—eternal life. We receive His righteousness—perfect righteousness. 2Corinthians 5:21 is not the imputation of divine righteousness, as in Romans 3,4,5, it is righteousness we have by being in Him. So since one system of righteousness is imputed—the Father's righteousness is imputed from the Father's justice and we have the righteousness of the Lord Jesus Christ—we have something no one ever had before the Church Age began, a double portion of divine righteousness. This is very significant because it means that our blessings are concentrated. Royalty always has privileges. We have privileges based upon the fact that we have a double portion of divine righteousness. More than that, we have the eternal life of the Lord Jesus Christ, and then we have the eternal life of the Father which was imputed. This tells us that there is no excuse for any believer not reaching maturity.

This double portion is a challenge to find the authority which is doctrine, to find the one who communicates it as our own right pastor, and to stay with it until we have cracked the maturity barrier. By that time there will be no problem with regard to authority. Mature believers never have an authority problem. Mature believers do not have any problems with authority. You lose authority when you use a tape recorder. "Do you think I would let you go out for a drink of water or to have a little chat?" When you are in familiar circumstances, there is no discipline there.

There is some merit in FX type groups.

The potential indicative is the potential indicative of obligation. This has the idea of contingency in the indicative to indicate that we have an option. Not only do we have an option but every day in that day He gives us some opportunity for exposing ourselves to the teaching of our right pastor under the principle of authority. The word “yourselves” is the accusative plural from the reflexive pronoun heautou (ἑαυτοῦ) [pronounced heh-ow-TOO] used as the direct object of the verb. When the action expressed by the verb is referred back to its own subject the construction is called reflexive. You must submit to authority as an individual and not because you are bullied into it by others—with the exception of children, of course.

“servants to obey” – incorrect. When you walk into a church you are not a servant. This is the double accusative plural from doulos (δοῦλος) [pronounced DEW-loss], a slave. This is the ideal circumstance in life; he does not have to worry about sustenance. That is God’s job. As a slave, Bob’s authority is over his congregation; that is his delegated authority. God can remove Bob instantly or He can sustain him.

There is nothing wrong with being a waiter; nothing wrong with being in service to others. There is no disgrace in any of this. No disgrace for being a maid or a housekeeper. You belong to a good society, because that blessing overflows. So what if you are yardbird 3rd class? There is only something wrong if you have a problem with authority. There is no job or no service in life where you have authority.

All happy societies in history have class distinctions. When you break down class distinctions, you are breaking down authority structures.

Everyone is a slave to someone. There is someone with the authority over all of us who can demote us or promote us. Doctrine, sooner or later, brings you to the place where you accept authority and you like it. Some of you ladies consider yourselves superior to your husbands. You can never be subjective and be happy. As long as you resent authority in life, you have lost out on happiness.

We are all under authority and we are promoted or demoted by higher authority. If God doesn’t promote you, you are not promoted. If God doesn’t provide the success, you are not successful. If God doesn’t provide the happiness, you are not happy. But you will never develop the capacity for blessing until you develop the capacity for authority. Authority eliminates the hang-ups. We are on the experiential side of this chapter. When a dog learns how to behave, he is happier because he receives more approbation. Once you have accepted Christ, that’s it. You cannot undo salvation.

Then God rubs our noses in it. Then the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of hupakoê (ὑπακοή) [pronounced hoop-ak-oh-AY] which means “obedience,” and eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative here means “for the purpose of.” So the corrected translation: “Do you not know, that to whom you put yourselves under orders as slaves for the purpose of obedience.” The purpose for slavery is obedience. You are at someone else’s disposal. But the greatest happiness in life is being at someone else’s disposal because it is the source of blessing and refreshment in human life. Always in the spiritual life there is no such thing, then, as emancipation; everything is always manumission in the sense that we have options every day of our life for the Lord Jesus Christ—for Him or against Him.

1977 Romans

Lesson #221

221 10/12/1977 Romans 6:16c Jackson, etc.: spiritual preparation for disaster; reversionism and sin unto death under the rule of the old sin nature

Douglas Freeman is a great historian and particularly on the confederacy. Second volume of Lee's Lieutenants is really well-written. A story of a military man who was picking up his guts off the ground and stuffing them back into this body. He survived.

A letter from Thomas Jonathan Jackson to his wife about the life to come.

Jeb Stuart speaking of God's hand in his report of the most famous calvary raid.

It is unclear whether Freeman was a Christian, but he picked up much of the Christian influences with the various histories that he writes about.

Romans 6:16 Do you not know that to whom you yield yourselves as slaves for obedience, you are slaves to him whom you obey, whether of sin to death, or of obedience to righteousness? (BLB)

“his servants ye are to whom ye obey” – the present active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The present tense is a retroactive present which denotes what has begun in the past and continues up to the present time. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb, either by putting himself under orders to the old sin nature or by exercising the option of grace and placing himself under orders to God through the daily function of GAP. The indicative mood is declarative representing the issue from the viewpoint of reality.

Plus the predicate nominative plural from doulos (δοῦλος) [pronounced DEW-loss], “you are slaves,” and the dative of indirect object masculine singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], “to whom.” This is not only a relative pronoun but it has a direction indicated by the verb, the present active indicative of the verb hupakouō (ὑπακούω) [pronounced hoop-ak-OO-oh] which means to obey, to be under the authority of, to be subject to, to render obedience. It always has the connotation of obedience to duly constituted authority—“you are slaves to the one to whom you habitually render obedience.”

The option: the old sin nature versus under orders to God through the intake of doctrine. This is a present tense of duration for what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. Since the day that you were saved you have exercised an option: either you were the slave to the old sin nature or you were the slave to the Lord through Bible doctrine. The active voice: the believer produces the action in exercising the option on a daily basis. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality, the reality being the exercise of your option.

The cognizance of the options of authority becomes important at this point, and they are presented in the closing part of the verse. The first option is the old one, and it is expressed under the phrase “whether of sin unto death.” “Whether” is one of several disjunctive particles, êtoi (ἤτοι) [pronounced AY-toy], and it should be “either.” The other disjunctive particle comes up at the beginning of the next phrase, it is “either, or.” Plus the objective genitive singular from the noun hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] for the sin nature in this case.

Then the prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], referring to the sin unto death^[7]—“either to the sin nature resulting in death.” The sin unto death is maximum discipline for believers only. The sin unto death is the means by which reversionistic believers are transferred from time to eternity. Dying grace, disciplinary death (sin unto death); and reversionistic superimposition of human will over divine will; resurrection or the rapture. The reversionist is maladjusted to the justice of God.

At salvation, we adjust to the justice of God by believing in Jesus Christ. When you sin or fail, rebound is made on a daily basis. You simply name your sins to God. This is a temporal adjustment to the justice of God.

People do recover from the sin unto death. David writes about this in Psalm 118. Jeremiah 44:12. You can contemplate the sin unto death with fear and anxiety. This puts you on the bottom rung of heaven.

Beyond ultimate sanctification, there is no equality in heaven. All believers will have a body like the Son of God. But that is where equality ends. Some believers will have 20 cities; some will have 100. There are inequalities among believers now in time; and the same will be true in eternity future. The tragedy is, there is almost no one at the top side.

No one knows how to discipline more appropriately than the Lord. We are all susceptible to one area or another.

All true motivation is positive. We are often kept from criminal acts because we do not want to be arrested. The only thing that restrains is force of law. And for bullies, whatever it takes to hurt them, that will solve the problem. Bob’s father told him, you will always be bullied until you hurt them. He told him the key is to having a baseball bat behind the bushes. One kid shot Bob, and he put Bob in a wagon, took him home and rang the bell and ran. Mother saw him and fainted. Next time, Bob got him in the knee. You hurt him and that solves the problem. This is how you handle criminals.

Principles from Romans 6:16

1. The believer who continues under the rule and authority of the old sin nature after his positional deliverance at salvation is under that category beyond carnality called reversionism. This is going back to the first husband, the sin nature.
2. Reversionism is a synonym for apostasy and is defined as the place of total failure for the believer. Reversionism is rejection of Bible doctrine.
3. Reversionism means to be controlled by the old sin nature with its trends toward sin, toward good, toward evil.
4. To be dominated by the old sin nature after salvation means failure to attain maturity adjustment to the justice of God, and therefore failure to receive the blessings of maturity by which we glorify God, and by which the justice of God demonstrates the importance of the divine plan in the angelic conflict.
5. To be dominated by the old sin nature after salvation means that the justice of God must discipline and punish rather than bless.
6. The justice of God is the source of both cursing and blessing.
7. Condemnation from the justice of God does not remove the imputation of salvation.
8. Nor does condemnation from the justice of God erase the double portion aspect of possessing the righteousness of Christ and the eternal life of Christ from the baptism of the Spirit.
9. Condemnation from the justice of God to the reversionistic believer does imply divine discipline in three categories: warning, intensive, dying.

The second option is the new one: “or obedience unto righteousness” – the disjunctive particle ê (ἢ) [pronounced ā], “or,” which gives the alternative to habitual obedience to the old sin nature. The objective genitive singular hupakoê (ὑπακοή) [pronounced hoop-ak-oh-AY], meaning obedience. Then the prepositional phrase which sets up a contrast, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of dikaiosunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay]—“because of [imputed] righteousness.”

Romans 6:16 Do you not know, that to whom you put yourselves under orders as slaves for the purpose of obedience, you are slaves to the one you are slaves to the one you habitually render obedience; either to the sin nature resulting in death, or obedience because of [imputed] righteousness [and resultant justification].

Principle: The believer who does not exercise his options for placing himself under orders to God is the believer who fails to adjust to the justice of God after salvation.

Rebound adjustment to the justice of God and the daily function of gap is what comes next. To place yourself under the power of the sin nature, is to place yourself under double slavery rather than double blessing.

1977 Romans

Lesson #222

222 10/13/1977 Romans 6:17a Marriage analogy of slavery to the old sin nature or Jesus Christ and husband; volition

Bob is a Hamiltonian not a Jeffersonian. Jefferson said, “Let your gun be your constant companion on your walks. Exercise to the body and independence to the mind. No free man should be kept from the free use of his gun.” (Not an exact quote).

Authority is not the same as power. There can be no proper freedom in this society apart from legitimate authority.

When there is a message on RW, then many will show up, up to age 80.

Those teaching prep school are finding out that they are learning a lot more by teaching it. There are pseudo motivations for coming to Berachah (praying to God for RM or RW or a million dollars). Whereas the Baptists used to tithe for these things; some of you give your time.

The decision for obedience to God.

Bob has the Saint Petersburg Times an article from page 10E. Moderator’s first question: Patriotism is something we don’t hear much about these days; why don’t we hear more about it. Some good responses from teens. “We do not realize how many freedoms that we have.” Mike talked about military victory to maintain freedom. Sounds like a taper. “How do you explain patriotism to others when the president pardons all of the draft dodgers.” Two related the Bible to patriotism. “If you are a believer going into the military, be the best killer of your enemy.” These kids are definitely on doctrine.

Romans 6:17 But thanks be to God that you who were slaves of sin have now become obedient from the heart to the pattern of teaching to which you were committed. (BLB)

Verse 17 – “But God be thanked.” This is not the literal translation but is the accepted idiom. It is the postpositive conjunctive particle de which here means “now,” indicating an important principle: that by the time we reach this verse we have something to be grateful for as far as appreciation of the provision of grace. Then the nominative singular of exclamation, the noun charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic]. When it is desired to stress a thought with great distinctiveness the nominative is used without the verb—obviously a part of an idiom. It is literally, “Now grace.” While charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic] means grace it also has the connotation of thanks or gratitude. Plus the dative singular indirect object from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] with the definite article. It literally means, “Now grace belongs to the God.” It is an idiom for gratitude. At the point the people who have followed through and have learned all the lessons recognize that grace belongs to God, but the idiom means “Now thanks to the God.” The true basis for thanksgiving is being the beneficiary of grace, beginning at salvation.

Then comes the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] used after an idiom of gratitude to express the content of that gratitude, the purpose, the means of that gratitude—“that,” plus the gratitude concept.

“ye were the servants of sin” – imperfect active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be. The imperfect tense is unusual here. The imperfect differs from the aorist in representing a process rather than a concept of aktionsart. The aorist is aktionsart in past time; the imperfect tense is a past time tense also, but it is linear aktionsart in past time. The imperfect tense also differs from the perfect in representing a process which carries no sense of completion. The imperfect represents a process without attainment. So we have what is known as the inceptive imperfect which simply denotes linear aktionsart in the sense ‘you kept on being’ without any time connotation as to when it terminated. The positional termination is salvation; the experiential termination, maybe never. After salvation most believers go on living under slavery to the old sin nature, and they do so for only one reason: ignorance of Bible doctrine. The active voice: believers, as unbelievers, produce the action of the verb, and sometimes believers after salvation produce the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of slavery to the old sin nature, beginning at birth.

The word “servants” is the predicate nominative plural from doulos (δούλος) [pronounced DEW-loss], which does not mean servant, but slave. Plus the genitive singular of relationship from the noun hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] which, used in the singular here, is referring to the old sin nature. This represents the true status quo of all unbelievers. It is caused by the two imputations at birth: the imputation of human life to the soul and Adam’s original sin to the genetically formed old sin nature—“Now thanks to the God that you kept on being slaves of the sin nature.”

“but” – here is the change, the postpositive conjunctive particle de, used this time to connect clauses which there is a contrast; “ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered to you.”

The analogy: a form of slavery called marriage (chapter 7:1-6). We have the first husband. The husband is the lord and master in marriage. The old sin nature is the first husband. The wife is the unbeliever. The marriage counselor is the Mosaic law. In the second marriage which occurs at salvation we have a second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ. The wife is the believer and the marriage counselor is God the Holy Spirit. The culprit is the old sin nature and as unbelievers we are, in the role of the wife, slaves. Before salvation all of us were married to sin nature, all of us were under the lordship of the sin nature as the ruler of life. It rules through spiritual death. The postpositive conjunctive particle de emphasizes a contrast between our status quo as unbelievers and our status quo as believers at the moment we believed in Christ. The spiritual birth gives us a new relationship. The principle: two real imputations at physical birth resulted in our first marriage—slavery to the old sin nature. This particle de acts as an adversative conjunction to give us the source of gratitude, not the source of our problem. The emphasis in this passage is going to be on the new marriage. We did not make a mistake when we believed in Christ! If we are married to Christ and divorced from the old sin nature, that immediately becomes the basis of everything we do in life. Analogy: when you are divorced from your first husband that is the end of the line. Divorcement means death, just as if he was no longer among the living. Since you know that you are married to Christ you have to make decisions accordingly. You can’t be married to one man and go back to an ex-husband.

Therefore you as a believer make constant decisions to cut off the old husband. How do you do it? Two ways. When you sin, you rebound. When you perform good and evil there is no rebound technique for that is a part of the angelic conflict, so you have to say no to good and evil, and you can't say no until you are smart enough to say no. You are never smart enough to say no until you know the doctrine of reversionism, the doctrine of good and evil.

When you go into a marriage, it is a lifetime of learning. You need to learn authority; you need to learn submission. When a woman walks into a marriage, you pay attention to the man. You have to learn your husband; you have to penetrate beyond the facade and find out what the person is really like. The woman has to do more learning than anyone else in a marriage. A woman cannot survive without learning. No one become a student without volition and determination. You have to keep learning and keep trying. You made the decision which got you there; you have to make all the decisions after that.

1977 Romans

Lesson #223

223 10/14/1977 Romans 6:17b Authority in marriage; rejection of first husband, the old sin nature, made experiential by GAP

Romans 6:17 But thanks be to God that you who were slaves of sin have now become obedient from the heart to the pattern of teaching to which you were committed. (BLB)

The first husband is the sin nature; the second husband is Jesus Christ. The first wife is the unbeliever; the second wife is the believer. The marriage counselor in the first marriage is the Law; the marriage counselor in the second marriage is grace.

Women who say I do place themselves under an authority which will be removed at death or at the Biblical approach to divorce. To be a slave to a man requires cognizance. A society of homosexuals is a society which has ceased to exist.

The woman has to learn how to please a man; and she does not know how to do this automatically. The dowdy female who knows how to please her man is miles ahead of the very attractive woman who impresses dozens of men.

Bob is going over the first few verses of Romans 7. Once you believe in Christ, you are divorced from the first husband and married to the second. When we are divorced from the first husband, it is just as if he is dead. Therefore, when he knocks on the door at night and he wants to come in, and if you let him in, you are the world's dumbest female. This man no longer has any relationship with you. It is over. The old sin nature is alive and in you as long as we live in this world. Romans 7 is the battle of the two husbands.

All of your life, you have wanted to be a big shot. You have wanted to make decisions. Well, this is your life now. You are making decisions day in and day out. The must make decisions for doctrine and you make decisions regarding sins and rebound.

This divorced woman needs to make many decisions against her first husband and for her second husband.

Now back to Romans 6:17:

The spiritual woman is the balm of Gilead. If a woman accepts the authority of her husband and operates under that authority, she is a blessing to all of us. The greatest creature in the world is the woman who accepts authority.

“Now you kept on being slaves to the sin nature” is not the basis for thanksgiving. It is “Now thanks be to God that you have obeyed.” The thanksgiving goes with the phrase “ye have obeyed,” the aorist active indicative of hupakouō (ὑπακούω) [pronounced hoop-ak-OO-oh]—“thanksgiving for obedience. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. How do we obey the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ? We obey Him by pleasing Him by the daily intake of Bible doctrine. It takes the daily function of GAP and regardless of its extent or duration the aorist tense gathers it up into one entirety. The constative aorist is the fact and action of the inculcation of Bible doctrine through the consistent function of GAP. The active voice: the believer as the wife of the second marriage produces the action. The declarative indicative is for the reality of the daily function of GAP, resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Remember that is addressing this phrase to those Roman believers who formed the pivot which preserved the Roman empire in the days of Nero. They had a large pivot of mature believers, those who had cracked the maturity barrier, and Paul is thanking God for this large pivot. There is a relatively small spin-off of reversionism. Therefore in Nero’s day the Roman empire was preserved and would go on from there to greater things in the period of the Antonine Caesars, the greatest period that Rome would ever know, and it was based on the pivot. This pivot was now forming.

“from the heart” – ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative of kardia, the right lobe where Bible doctrine must be stored for epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] doctrine. This is the ablative of means. The ablative is not the usual case for expressing means but whenever the means also includes the concept of origin, then the ablative is used instead of the instrumental case. That is why the translation here is “but by means of the right lobe.” Note that you do not obey your second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ, by means of works. It is by means of thought, not works.

“that form of doctrine” – the accusative singular direct object from tupos (τύπος) [pronounced TOO-poss], meaning form, pattern, figure, mold or stamp. It is derived from the Greek verb tuptw which means to punch someone and to make an impression. It means an impression left by a blow, hence what is formed or what leaves its impress is called tupos (τύπος) [pronounced TOO-poss]. Here we use the word “pattern.” With it is the possessive genitive singular from didachē (διδασχῆ) [pronounced dihd-ahkh-AY] which denotes the fact that the believer through the function of GAP possesses doctrine. Didachē (διδασχῆ) [pronounced dihd-ahkh-AY] means teaching, doctrine or instruction. So we can call it a pattern of teaching or a system of doctrine.

“which was delivered unto you” – the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative singular from the relative pronoun hos. It should be translated “into which system of doctrine . . .” Plus the aorist passive indicative from the verb paradídōmai (παραδίδωμαι) [pronounced pah-rah-DIH-doh-my] which means here to be delivered, to be handed over. After salvation believers are handed over to a system of doctrine. This is the most important thing after salvation, it is what the believer is handed over to. This can also be translated “you were committed to doctrine.” In other words, the believer after salvation is committed to a system of doctrine for the glorification of the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ, and manumission from the tyranny of the first husband, the old sin nature. This is the constative aorist tense for a fact or action extended over a lifetime on earth. From the moment of salvation until the end of your life on this earth, whether it is by the Rapture of the Church or by physical death, the constative aorist gathers up into one entirety the most important thing in your life, a system of doctrine that you have to learn. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb after salvation by being handed over to a system of doctrine for growth and glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ. The declarative indicative is for a dogmatic statement of fact. The believer is handed over to a system of doctrine for maturity adjustment to the justice of God with resultant blessings from the justice of God.

Romans 6:17 Now thanks to the God that you were [kept on being] slaves to the sin nature, but [this is what is new] now you have obeyed by means of the right lobe a system of doctrine [pattern of teaching] into which [system of doctrine] you were committed [delivered, handed over].

Before but is the first marriage; after the but is what is new.

Principle

1. Salvation has both temporal and eternal results.
2. The eternal results are noted in many passages dealing with operation phase three.
3. In this context the emphasis is on the fact that after salvation God has delivered us over to a system of doctrine as the only means of spiritual advance to maturity, and the only way to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ.
4. The fact that God has delivered us over to a system of doctrine emphasizes the principle that we should daily exercise our options for the perception of doctrine. We are married to Christ; how do we please Him? By taking in doctrine consistently.
5. Since learning doctrine is the greatest thing we do in this life we should demonstrate positive volition toward God’s plan by the daily function of GAP.
6. Self-determination must be related, then, to learning doctrine as the essence of the Christian way of life. We were not delivered over to a system of works or to a system of legalism; it is a system of doctrine.
7. Committal to Christ means receiving the delivery of Bible doctrine as taught by one’s right pastor-teacher.
8. Note that this verse emphasizes our former status as unbelievers in terms of the old sin nature rather than personal sin.

9. Note also that obedience comes from doctrine resident in the right lobe rather than emotional stimulation by persuasive personality.
10. The system of doctrine must be resident in the right lobe for obedience to Christ. This system of doctrine is the means by which we fulfil the command of verse 13—to put ourselves under the command of God and to place our members under His command.
11. The system of doctrine was handed over, delivered, to the believer. This delivery of doctrine is the only means of spiritual growth, the only means of glorifying the Lord Jesus Christ, the only grace system for living the Christian life. Nothing in Christianity can ever be divorced from Bible doctrine. Rejection of doctrine, ignorance of doctrine, are the most serious offences against our Lord Jesus Christ.

Lesson #224

224 10/16/1977 Romans 6:18 Legitimate slavery (as in marriage); rejection of the rule of the old sin nature for enslavement to +R

This passage is all about two marriages. First marriage is to the sin nature and second is to God the Father. The first marriage is not broken up by death.

V.17 is a system of doctrine which solves the life's problems.

Romans 6:17 Now thanks to the God that you were [kept on being] slaves to the sin nature, but [this is what is new] now you have obeyed by means of the right lobe a system of doctrine [pattern of teaching] into which [system of doctrine] you were committed [delivered, handed over].

Romans 6:18 And having been set free from sin, you have become slaves to righteousness. (BLB)

The analogy is going to be found in Romans 7, which corrected translation is now found in the index.

Verse 18 – “Being made free from sin.” The postpositive conjunctive particle de is used as a simple transitional conjunction without any contrast intended. It is simply linking the previous verse. Plus the aorist passive participle from the verb eleutherōō (ἐλευθερώω) [pronounced el-yoo-ther-OH-oh] which means to be free—“And having been set free.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it takes the occurrence of salvation adjustment to the justice of God, which through the baptism of the Spirit provides positional freedom, and linking it to maturity adjustment to the justice of God, gathers it up into one entirety. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb through the three adjustments to the justice of God—salvation, rebound, and maturity. The participle is an instrumental participle denoting the manner in which the action of the main verb is accomplished. The action of the aorist participle precedes the action of the main verb. The main verb: “you became slaves.” “And by having been set free” is a correct translation. By having been set free positionally and experientially “from sin” – the preposition από (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the definite article, plus hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah]. The definite article denotes something previously defined in context, namely the old sin nature—“from the sin nature.”

Principle

1. The old sin nature is the sovereign of human life ruling through spiritual death.
2. This rulership of the sin nature over human life begins at physical birth through two real imputations: the imputation of human life to the divinely prepared home, the soul; the imputation of Adam’s original sin to the genetically prepared home, the old sin nature.
3. The rulership of the old sin nature over human life terminates positionally at salvation through the baptism of the Holy Spirit and subsequent retroactive positional truth.
4. The rulership of the old sin nature over human life terminates experientially at maturity adjustment to the justice of God through a system of doctrine resident in the soul.
5. This system of doctrine in the soul reprograms the giant computer called the brain where the old sin nature resides. The computer saturated with good and evil becomes saturated with the policy of God. In other words, at maturity we have a reprogramming of the brain with divine viewpoint for the function of grace.

“ye became the servants of righteousness” – the aorist passive indicative of the verb doulōō (δουλόω) [pronounced doo-LOW-oh], meaning to be a slave, to become enslaved. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the positional and experiential freedom the sovereignty of the old sin nature in its entirety but it regards it from the viewpoint of existing results, namely the mature believer enslaved to righteousness. That means that sooner or later it must be recognized that the justice of God is the source of all blessing as well as cursing in your life. Remember the principle: God’s justice can only bless perfect righteousness. Every blessing we have comes because we have God’s righteousness, not because of our own righteousness. We are never blessed because of what we do. The person moving toward maturity has dedicated to the principle he received at salvation, or at the marriage ceremony, i.e. the imputation of divine righteousness. You became enslaved to righteousness. The passive voice: the mature believer received the action of the verb, the exploitation of imputation. He exploits the imputation of divine righteousness by a system of doctrine. You have received righteousness at salvation but only a system of doctrine will exploit the fact that you possess a grace pipeline directly from the justice of God to divine righteousness in you. The only way that you can exploit what you received at salvation is through perception of Bible doctrine. There is no other way. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine regarding the mature believer. The indicative mood is also the way of denoting the main verb.

“of righteousness” – dative singular direct object, but it also has the definite article to denote something which has been defined in the context. This is dikaioσunē (δικαιοσύνη)

[pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay], the righteousness of God. With the definite article it is translated “to the righteousness [of God].”

Romans 6:18 And by having been set free [both positionally and experientially] from the sin nature, you became enslaved to [the] righteousness [of God].

Principle

1. The righteousness of God is the principle of divine integrity, while the justice of God is the function of divine integrity.
2. Righteousness demands righteousness; justice demands justice. What righteousness demands, justice executes. That is the basis for all blessing in the spiritual life.
3. Therefore, again, what righteousness demands justice executes. Justice is the point of reference for the human race since the fall of man and resultant spiritual death.
4. Divine justice can only bless perfect righteousness. Therefore being enslaved to the righteousness of God is that mature status of the believer which glorifies God, and receives maximum blessing from the justice of God.
5. Slavery to the righteousness of God is the mature status of maximum blessing from God and maximum glorification of God in history.

1977 Romans

Lesson #225

225 10/17/1977 Romans 6:18–19a Importance of imputed +R; slavery: legitimate and to +R; freedom from the old sin nature rule

Our point of reference is always the justice of God. Points given earlier: Divine Justice Can Only Bless Divine Righteousness \(2\) (Lesson #154); but found elsewhere as well)

Romans 6:18 And by having been set free [both positionally and experientially] from the sin nature, you became enslaved to [the] righteousness [of God].

Jesus said: “But first seek the kingdom and His righteousness, and all these things will be added to you.”

Divine righteousness establishes the grace pipeline. Every blessing hangs on the fact that every believer has divine righteousness imputed to him at salvation. Since there is no blessing apart from the justice of God, there is nothing given to us apart from our imputed divine righteousness.

We are divorced to the first husband (the sin nature), we became enslaved to the righteousness of God.

Romans 6:18—the Believer Being Enslaved to God’s Righteousness

1. To be enslaved to the righteousness of God is to become a mature believer. Three adjustments to the justice of God: salvation, rebound, maturity. You are not enslaved by throwing a faggot on the fire or dedicating yourself to something.
2. Under this status, divine justice can only bless divine righteousness.
3. Because man is weak, hopeless, helpless, useless, he needs slavery for security.
4. The only security in slavery is bondage to the righteousness of God.
5. This slavery to God's righteousness is divine blessing passing through the grace pipeline. The grace pipeline has justice on the giving end and righteousness on the receiving end.
6. There is no greater security than the encapsulation of divine integrity.

Romans 6:18 — Being Freed from the Old Sin Nature

1. At salvation we are positionally freed from slavery to the sin nature. Good and evil were rejected at the cross. The Lord's Person was completely separate from good and evil. He was totally impeccable. No genetically formed sin nature. In His spiritual death, rejection of good and evil. Identification with Christ in His death is our divorce from the old sin nature.
2. The believer is experientially freed from the old sin nature through maximum adjustment to the justice of God. This is attained through maximum doctrine in the soul.
3. V. 18 describes the mature believer's relationship with God. He transfers from enslavement to the old sin nature to enslavement to the righteousness of God.
4. The righteousness of God is half of divine integrity which completes the grace pipeline at salvation.
5. The grace pipeline is established by the judicial imputation of divine righteousness at salvation.
6. Blessing of maturity type slavery always comes from the integrity of God.
7. Such slavery involves discipline, we are disciplined as slaves. When we are blessed, we are blessed as slaves.

To maintain slavery, this must be done by freedom. We must make daily decisions with regards to Bible doctrine. We must choose daily to exercise our option to stay under slavery.

This principle is challenged in v. 19. V. 19 is two sentences and the first belongs back with v. 18. When a woman marries a man, she is exercising her option for slavery. The woman is willing to enter into this state of slavery when it is love.

If a man kicks a woman around, it requires no brains and no love. In marriage, the woman should spend her time pleasing her man, which is 25 hours a day. The new low is female sports' announcers.

Romans 6:19 I speak in human terms on account of the weakness of your flesh. For just as you yielded your members in bondage to impurity and to lawlessness unto lawlessness, so now yield your members in bondage to righteousness unto sanctification.

Verse 19 – the challenge of the new option. The first sentence is the explanation as to why slavery is used as an illustration. It is the perfect illustration of security as well as being the perfect illustration of the woman's role in marriage. "I speak to you after the manner of men" is obviously a literal translation, and obviously not the correct translation. This is the present active indicative of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] which is used quite frequently for idioms in the Greek—"I speak." It means to speak or to communicate and it is in the customary present tense to denote what habitually occurs when illustrations are taken from human life and inserted into the record of scripture. The active voice: Paul as the human author uses the illustration. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the standpoint of absolute and dogmatic reality.

Paul added the accusative singular direct object from anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos], and by adding it—meaning human or belonging to man—he indicates that this is an idiom. "I speak according to man" is an idiom meaning, "I use a human illustration." Slavery is not being taught in this passage, slavery is being used as an illustration. Slavery was practiced in the time of the Roman empire and the Bible must be interpreted in the time in which it was written. Note that while slavery was both a social problem and a political institution in the Roman empire Paul did not condemn slavery or subject it to any type of excoriation, he is simply pointing out the fact that it makes a perfect illustration. The solution to slavery was not through political reform, and therefore Paul did not beat the drums for abolition of slavery.

Emancipation is when the government determines that slavery must be ended. Manumission means the slave owner frees his slave on the basis of his own choice.

The idiotic female at Wheaton College who walked up to a guy and said, "The Lord has told me that we should be married."

Saturday Night Specials being outlawed is typical of the stupid, sloppy liberal thinking that exists today. That discriminates against poor people.

It was the people in Massachusetts who were responsible for all the anti-slavery stuff that led to the Civil War.

"because of the infirmity of your flesh" – dia plus the accusative of the definite article with the accusative of asthēneia (ἀσθένεια) [pronounced ahs-THEH-nigh-ah] which means "weakness," and with the definite article it denotes a previous reference to the weakness of the old sin nature which is synonymous with its trends toward sin, toward good, toward evil. It is literally translated, "because of the weakness." Then a genitive of apposition in the plural from the personal pronoun su and sarx (σὰρξ) [pronounced sarx]—"your flesh [old sin nature]." The believer's weakness is the old sin nature, and while the power of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life has been broken through the baptism of the Spirit and resultant retroactive positional truth, experientially the old sin nature continues to be the weakness of the believer in time. Hence, there are three categories of weakness in the believer: our trend toward sin, our mutual trend toward good, our mutual trend toward evil. Sin is related to the doctrine of carnality, while good and evil is related to the function of reversionism.

Slavery Options Following Salvation

1. This is the first of two sentences in this verse. It actually belongs to the previous verse as an explanation as to why slavery is used as the illustration.
2. Because the believer still possesses the old sin nature after salvation human illustrations like slavery, marriage and divorce must be used to communicate the doctrine.
3. In this illustration Paul is neither condoning nor condemning slavery, he is simply using a common occurrence in the Roman empire to illustrate a point of doctrine.
4. After salvation the believer has an option. He can continue under the slavery of the old sin nature or he can transfer to the new slavery: God's righteousness, which was judicially imputed at salvation.
5. Salvation provides an option in slaveries. Slavery to the old sin nature results in discipline and punishment from the justice of God.
6. Slavery to God's righteousness results in blessing and promotion from the justice of God.
7. Blessing and promotion from the justice of God glorifies the Lord Jesus Christ in the angelic conflict.
8. Therefore glorification of Christ becomes the challenge of exercising a new option.
9. Domination by the old sin nature is a slavery to misery, depression, disaster, oppression. But spiritual maturity (slavery to righteousness) is a slavery to blessing, security, reward and promotion.
10. This slavery fulfils the doctrine: If God doesn't promote you, you are not promoted; if God doesn't bless you, you are not blessed; if God doesn't provide it, you have nothing even though you have everything. Everything becomes nothing unless it comes down through the grace pipeline.

1977 Romans

Lesson #226

226 10/17/1977 Romans 6:19b Ranger Field Manual, RBT3; professional Christians; benefits of slavery

There is a Ranger Field Manual which has just come out, written by R. B. Thieme, III Bob reads some passages. It is the best unit for rapid deployment, where there is little time allowed.

Sooner or later, believers must become very professional with regards to what we are called to do. The fundamentalist world has lost its ability to be professional. It is a sign of the times in which we live. The words professional Christian means that a believer needs to know what is required of him and how to get there. Romans is to give us a professional attitude, for us to know that we have objectives, and that we have a way to accomplish them. The Ranger becomes a good analogy. It requires motivation to become a Ranger, and motivation to stay in the Rangers. Systems of authority and tremendous training and great motivation is required of the Rangers; and this is properly applied to believers as well.

One infantryman can carry a weapon which will take out a tank or a plane. Bob likes the whole concept of light infantry.

We need to get back to the professional Christian, who is prepared and trained in the Christian realm.

Adam's original sin had no morality associated with it. It was simply a violation of a divine prohibition. The sin nature which we have is an authority violator. Authority is the great issue in the original sin.

Bob reviews vv. 12–18, with a great deal of commentary inserted.

We are in the same boat; but our sins are different. We all have different areas of weakness and areas of strength.

There are no sins in hell. All of the sins were poured out on Jesus on the cross. They were imputed to Him.

We have two categories of life: human life and eternal life. The latter is that supercharger, when we die or depart via the rapture.

The great Christians are all haves, not have-nots. People think that there are better countries to go than the United States. Sure things are bad here; but it is the best place in the world. Where would you go? You name it and it is a pile of junk compared to our country. There is nothing that comes close to it, with all of our troubles and problems. A lot of people want to know what is around the next corner. It is higher, and deeper and thicker.

The have to know what you are doing, you have to know the objectives, you have to know the game plan, etc. in order to move forward.

We have perfect security, no matter how bad history gets, we have an encapsulated environment and protected blessing. Timing is everything; and that is why doctrine is so important.

Slavery is an encapsulated environment. When you are enslaved, who provides the food, the shelter, the routine, the work and the shelter? The master. That's my doctrine called "Bwana does it all."

You women need to be certain that you are comfortable being a slave to the man that you are about to marry.

A man's ministry does not stand or fall based upon what people think. It depends entirely upon Who and What the Lord is. The security is in the slavery (v. 17).

We are now halfway through v. 19....

Romans 6:19 I speak in human terms on account of the weakness of your flesh. For just as you yielded your members in bondage to impurity and to lawlessness unto lawlessness, so now yield your members in bondage to righteousness unto sanctification. (BLB)

“for as you have yielded your members servants to uncleanness unto iniquity” – this begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, used here in the explanatory sense of a comparative clause. The comparative clause is introduced by an adverb used as a conjunction, hōsper (ὥσπερ) [pronounced HOH-sper], “for just as.” Hōsper (ὥσπερ) [pronounced HOH-sper] introduces the protasis of a comparative clause. Plus the accusative plural direct object mélōs (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss], used for parts of the human body.

The verb is the aorist active indicative of paristēmi/paristanō (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh] which means to place yourself under orders, recognizing authority. This is a constative aorist for a succession of events over a period of time. It takes every act of obedience to the old sin nature and gathers it up into one entirety from the point of birth to regeneration. That is the period of time we are under orders to the old sin nature. The aorist tense gathers up into one entirety every function whereby we are obedient to the old sin nature. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb as an unbeliever. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality, the reality of the first marriage. Plus the possessive genitive plural from the personal pronoun su—“your.” The word doulos (δοῦλος) [pronounced DEW-loss] is a double accusative plural direct object, and it means “slave.” With it is the dative singular indirect object akatharsia (ἀκαθαρσία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced ak-ath-ar-SEE-ah], meaning “impurity,” and it refers to the old sin nature's trends toward sin—“for just as you have put your members under orders as slaves to impurity.”

“and to iniquity unto iniquity” – the connective use of the conjunction kai followed by the dative singular indirect object from anomia (ἀνομία) [pronounced an-om-EE-a], meaning “lawlessness,” but it refers to the old sin nature's trend toward human good. Human good is lawlessness to God. Then it is repeated. This time it is lawlessness repeated as part of the object of the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of anomia (ἀνομία) [pronounced an-om-EE-a], translated “resulting in lawlessness.”

Lawlessness resulting in lawlessness is the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Now comes the apodosis in which an option is given for the believer in time.

The unbeliever is a slave to the first husband, the sin nature. The believer has an option to place himself under orders to the Lord Jesus Christ rather than to the sin nature. When you go back to the sin nature for sin, good or evil, you are placing yourself under discipline.

1977 Romans

Lesson #227

227 10/18/1977 Romans 6:19c "The Desert War" Time-Life publication; sanctification in phase 1, 2, 3 and results

Time Life books has a set of books dealing with WWII and the 4th volume deals with the Desert War. Rommel was good with division level and some other level, but he was not the brilliant man that he was made out to be. He was not a bad officer; he just was not that good.

Eisenhower sends George S. Patton into the desert. He cranked up a strong system of discipline, and the men were fighting mad, mostly at Patton. Patton fined men not wearing the proper helmet. At the restroom, he even yanked open doors to check on helmets.

A Ranger attack, and they opened up a pass; and killed and took many prisoners. This force is often squandered; and their superiors often did not know how to use these elite troops. You do not take elite troops and put them into a situation without the support of combat arms. Darby's Rangers were devastated in Italy. Merrill's Marauders also mentioned.

Emotion, without being in submission to the right lobe, is a great disaster.

Bob goes back to v. 17.

Christianity is a profession; it is called the profession in the Bible. If you are an engineer, then you need to understand all the mathematics and engineering design that you can. Everywhere that we turn today, there is a lack of professionalism. Knowledge controls emotion. Never in all of history has the police officer been so abused. The police officer must maintain his professionalism. Some do go holy roller, and the police are judged by the 1%. But you always judge based upon the 99%.

Romans 6:19 I speak in human terms on account of the weakness of your flesh. For just as you yielded your members in bondage to impurity and to lawlessness unto lawlessness, so now yield your members in bondage to righteousness unto sanctification. (BLB)

“even so now yield your members servants to righteousness unto holiness” – this begins houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] nun (νῦν) [pronounced noon], correctly translated “so now.” “So” is the rest of the analogy. Houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] introduces the apodosis of a comparative clause. “Now” means right now as believers, as those who are born again, as those who are ambassadors for Christ.

Then the aorist active indicative of paristêmi/paristanô (παρίστημι/παριστάνω) [pronounced par-IHS-tay-mee/par-is-TAHN-oh], the military word recognizing authority and being obedient to that authority, and translated “put yourself under orders.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist which gathers up into one entirety the manner in which we put ourselves under orders to God. We do it through the daily function of GAP which leads to maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The active voice: the believer who is constantly positive toward doctrine produces the action. The imperative mood is an order. Plus the accusative plural from mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss]—“members.” Translation: “so now put your members under orders.”

There is also a double accusative here. It is usually translated by the word “as” and whatever the word is—doulos (δούλος) [pronounced DEW-loss], “as slaves.” Slavery describes the function of the believer who is correct, or the professional believer. Plus the dative singular indirect object dikaioσunê (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay], “righteousness,” the key to all blessing from God. On the giving end of grace is justice, and justice cannot give to any type of imperfection. Therefore, righteousness is the key—the imputation of the righteousness of God. This imputed righteousness forms the grace pipeline through which all blessings flow from the justice of God to the believer. The definite article before the noun denotes a previous reference to the righteousness of God, therefore it is translated correctly, “to the righteousness.”

With it is a prepositional phrase, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] with the accusative singular of hagiasmos (ἁγιασμός) [pronounced hag-ee-as-MOSS], which is correctly translated holiness, consecration, or sanctification—“resulting in sanctification.” This is experiential sanctification, which is synonymous with maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

Sanctification is used in three ways: (1) salvation sanctification; (2) maturity sanctification; and (3) eternal sanctification.

Paul calls the carnal believers in Corinth sanctified, in 1Corinthians :2.

Phase II sanctification is called godliness; this is experiential sanctification. Agents of sanctification: Word of God and Holy Spirit in phase II sanctification.

Romans 6:19 I use a human illustration because of the weakness of your flesh [the old sin nature]; for just as you have put your members under orders as slaves to impurity [the old sin nature’s trend toward sin] and to lawlessness [the old sin nature’s trend toward good] resulting in lawlessness [the old sin nature’s trend toward evil] so now put your members under orders as slaves to the righteousness of God, resulting in experiential sanctification.

Principle

1. Experiential sanctification is described as the believer placing himself under orders as a slave to the righteousness of God—through the intake of Bible doctrine. The word yield is an obscure word. The various things that we do, like tithing or witnessing, and the end result is, we get blessed by God. This is refuted by the encapsulation of the grace pipeline. This is a rejection of the integrity of God. The believer places himself as a slave under orders to the righteousness of God.

2. This is a statement of principle rather than the mechanics of experiential sanctification.
3. The mechanics or the execution of placing one's self under orders to God involves the filling of the Spirit which, in turn, involves rebound adjustment to the justice of God when necessary, plus the daily function of GAP, eventuating in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
4. The principle deals with the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation, resulting in the creation of a grace pipeline with divine justice on the giving end and divine righteousness on the receiving end. Don't think that self-righteousness or some system of works gets you blessing from God. What other believers think of you is irrelevant.
5. This fulfils the doctrine that divine justice can only bless divine righteousness.
6. This grace pipeline is encapsulated with the integrity of God, composed of His righteousness and His justice. Again, righteousness is the principle of divine integrity; justice is the function of divine integrity. Righteousness demands righteousness; justice demands justice; what righteousness demands, justice executes. When we crack the maturity barrier righteousness demands blessing; justice executes by pouring the blessings of paragraph SG2 through the pipeline. That is when God is glorified by your life.
7. The encapsulation cannot be penetrated by any form of human good, human righteousness, human production, human personality change, human talent.
8. The grace blessings from the justice of God are insulated against any form or function of human legalism.
9. Therefore, grace blessing glorifies God.

Romans 6:19 I use a human illustration because of the weakness of your flesh [the old sin nature]; for just as you have put your members under orders as slaves to impurity [the old sin nature's trend toward sin] and to lawlessness [the old sin nature's trend toward good] resulting in lawlessness [the old sin nature's trend toward evil] so now put your members under orders as slaves to the righteousness of God, resulting in experiential sanctification.

Principle

1. The first part of this verse emphasizes what we are through physical birth: under orders to impurity and to lawlessness resulting in lawlessness.
2. At physical birth the two real imputations result in physical life and simultaneously spiritual death.
3. The real imputation of human life to its divinely prepared human home, the soul, plus the real imputation of Adam's original sin, the genetically prepared home, the old sin nature, results in spiritual death which in our context is under the analogy of the first husband. Spiritual death is the first husband. As long as you are married to your first husband, you cannot have anything to do with your second husband.

4. This means that every member of the human race has placed himself under orders to the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life, ruling through spiritual death.
5. Therefore mankind follows the trends, slavery to impurity or personal sin, slavery to good and evil or lawlessness.
6. But salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Christ changes all that, and the change is not death but divorce.
7. The change occurs through two salvation blessings from the justice of God.
8. The first blessing is the imputation of divine righteousness providing the primary potential from the justice of God and the grace pipeline.
9. The second blessing is the baptism of the Holy Spirit providing the secondary potential for the encapsulated environment in which those mature blessings are enjoyed in any stage in history.
10. Two key words should be noted in the last half of this verse: righteousness and sanctification.
11. Righteousness occurs at salvation adjustment to the justice of God, while sanctification is fulfilled at the point of maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
12. At salvation the believer becomes the slave to imputed righteousness, while at maturity the believer becomes the slave to sanctification.
13. A comparison to the former slavery is the challenge to exercise a new option.
14. By advancing to maturity the believer places himself under slavery, the slavery of both temporal and eternal blessings.

If you lived during the French revolution with the grace pipeline and you reached experiential sanctification, then your blessing from God is just the same as it would be in a time of peace and prosperity.

The word doulos removes any concept of human greatness. This keeps the believer from pride and inordinate competition with other believers.

1977 Romans

Lesson #228

228 10/19/1977 Romans 6:20; 7:1–7 Taxpayer's complaint; unbeliever a slave to the old sin nature, excluded from +R of God

As of 1974, the number of people supported by taxes exceeds the number of those paying taxes.

We are married to the old sin nature as the first husband from birth. We are anticipating the analogy found in Romans 7. The word found in the passage means slave, not servant.

Verses 20-21, the old sin nature's sovereignty over human life.

Romans 6:19 I use a human illustration because of the weakness of your flesh [the old sin nature]; for just as you have put your members under orders as slaves to impurity [the old sin nature's trend toward sin] and to lawlessness [the old sin nature's trend toward good] resulting in lawlessness [the old sin nature's trend toward evil] so now put your members under orders as slaves to the righteousness of God, resulting in experiential sanctification.

A preacher on the radio said the Romans was not meant to be understood in this life. We might take a break with something amusing and easy and helpful.

Romans 6:20 For when you were slaves of sin, you were free from righteousness.

Verse 20 – “For when ye were the servants of sin.” The explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar, “for.” With it is the temporal adverb hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] used as a temporal conjunction—“For when.” An even better translation: “For as long as.”

Then the imperfect active indicative of the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The imperfect tense is the imperfect of description which represents what is going on in past time from physical birth. This is strong linear aktionsart. The active voice: mankind is producing the action of the verb from physical birth until salvation. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Plus the predicate nominative doulos (δοῦλος) [pronounced DEW-loss]—“slave.” Plus the genitive singular of relationship from the definite article to denote a previous reference, and the genitive singular of relationship from the noun hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], for the old sin nature—“For as long as you were slaves of the sin nature.” Slavery to the sin nature falls into two categories: from birth to salvation, and the potential after salvation which is going back to the first husband in the analogy which is unfaithfulness to the second husband, the second husband being the Lord Jesus Christ.

“you were free from righteousness” – the imperfect active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. This is the imperfect of duration. As long as you were married to the old sin nature you were constantly in a status quo, and that status quo was you were actually free with reference to the righteousness of God. The word “free” here means exclusion. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb, looking back at the first marriage to the old sin nature, unbeliever days. The indicative mood is the reality of the fact that spiritual death is an exclusion from the principle. No one in spiritual death can ever be blessed because they so not have on the receiving end of the grace pipelines the righteousness of God.

Next is the predicate nominative masculine plural eleútheros (ἐλεύθερος) [pronounced el-YOO-ther-oss]. It's in the plural because spiritual blessings flow through the grace pipe: Temporal blessings, category #2; blessing by association, category #3; historical impact, category #4; and eventually, dying grace. Eleútheros (ἐλεύθερος) [pronounced el-YOO-ther-oss] is in the plural to indicate exclusion of all five categories. No unbeliever ever received direct blessing from God. Then the dative of reference singular from both the definite article and dikaioσύνη (δικαιοσύνη) [pronounced dih-kai-oh-SOON-ā/dik-ah-yos-OO-nay], referring to the imputation of divine righteousness.

Unbelievers can receive indirect blessing from God; blessing by association.

The vocabulary of Romans is simple; but the structure is complex. Bob has not read anything as difficult in the Greek as Romans. By comparison, Revelation is pitifully easy.

The word for freedom really mean exclusion here. We live in a free country, but we are still excluded from doing many things.

Romans 6:20 For as long as you were the slaves of the sin nature you were excluded with reference to [the] righteousness [of God].

This means no grace pipeline, no potential or reality of grace blessing from the justice of God. The righteousness of God is used here as the principle of receiving blessing from God which glorifies God.

Principle

1. As unbelievers under the rulership of the old sin nature we were slaves to the old sin nature and its trends toward sin, good, and evil.
2. There is no possibility of blessing from the justice of God through the grace pipeline encapsulated with divine integrity. This is because God's righteousness must be on the receiving end, and God's righteousness is not imputed until we believe in Jesus Christ.
3. Hence, the unbeliever is excluded from the benefits related to the imputation of the righteousness of God.
4. The benefits of imputation or justification include not only immediate salvation but the potentiality of great blessings in time and in eternity.
5. Hence, slavery to the sovereignty of the old sin nature ruling human life through spiritual death excludes any possibility of fulfilling this formula—potential plus capacity equals reality of blessing in time.
6. The unbeliever is excluded from the righteousness of God imputed, and all it means to the believer.
7. But salvation adjustment to the justice of God through faith in Christ changes all this. The imputation of divine righteousness at salvation provides the potentiality for great blessing from the justice of God in time, and even greater blessing from the justice of God in eternity. At the same time salvation means divorce from the first husband and marriage to the second.
8. We as believers have the opportunity in time to place our members under orders as slaves to the righteousness of God, resulting in experiential sanctification.

Miscellaneous comments: There is a breakdown of establishment when the welfare state takes charge. Medicine bottles with caps you have to squeeze and push and pull; and this is because five children opened up an aspirin bottle and ate too many.

229 10/20/1977 Romans 6:21 Establishment vs. total depravity; doctrine of the Last Judgment (second death)

Fundamentally there are two approaches to life. The first is that man is inherently good, and the second is that man is inherently bad. The concept that man is good leads to a greater intensity of evil, and it leads to more problems historically. Then the attitude that man is not to be trusted, is inherently evil, tricky, and therefore there must be some safeguards. The tax people pass a great many laws and this is because some people are just crooks and they will give any excuse not to pay taxes.

Bob wants to go on record that income tax is a legitimate function. Many Christians write letters to Bob about this. Just because we have bad management of money, that does not, in any way, change the principle. No excuse for a believer to be dishonest and a cheat. This is the principle of total depravity.

Social life demands a great deal of hypocrisy. Hypocrisy is dominant in local churches today as well.

Let's say someone comes up to you and says, "How would you like to make some money?" If you accept that and think that they are okay, that is your mistake and you deserve to get fleeced.

Because of this, God has given us a system known as authority. Authority converts all of us into nice people and honest people in certain circumstances. All women are totally depraved and, therefore, need an authority.

The law allows us to be depraved people and live side-by-side other depraved people and have privacy and protection.

The sin nature is the first husband and he is constantly trying to get us back. Julius Cæsar was allegedly the greatest lover who ever lived; and he was a man with a definition sense of authority. The man who rejects all authority, he is no lover. The secret to obedience is mental attitude acceptance of authority.

All the laws of divine establishment take cognizance of the principle of the universality of sin and the fact that we are born with that old sin nature, and that the old sin nature has trends toward sin, toward good, and toward evil. All law is designed with that in mind. Authority is the system by which the doctrine of total depravity is a reality, but authority converts all of us totally depraved types into nice people, right people, honest people, in certain circumstances. That is why we have the laws of divine establishment.

Romans 6:21 What fruit, therefore, did you have then in the things of which you are now ashamed? For the end of those things is death. (BLB)

Verse 21 – “What fruit had ye then in those things whereof ye are now ashamed?” The nominative neuter plural from the interrogative pronoun tís (τίς) [pronounced tihç], used strictly for a direct inquiry, especially when it is followed with the inferential conjunction oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon]. This is an inferential conjunction denoting that what is introduced is an inference from what precedes. Plus the accusative singular direct object from karpos (καρπός) [pronounced kahr-POSS]—“fruit, production.” It means benefit and profit. Here the meaning is benefit. The previous verse tells us we were excluded from benefits.

Plus the imperfect active indicative of the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHHH-oh]. “What benefit were you having.” The progressive imperfect tense of the description represents what was going on in past time, in the first marriage. No benefit in the first marriage from birth to salvation. The active voice: the unbeliever as the wife of the old sin nature produces the action of the verb. This is an interrogative indicative in which the viewpoint of reality is implied in a fact enquired about when the indicative is used for asking the simple question.

Then the correlative adverb tote, referring to the previous marriage, “at that time,” the time between physical birth and regeneration. “Therefore what benefit were you having at that time?” Plus the prepositional phrase, epi (ἐπί) [pronounced eh-PEE] plus the dative plural from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç]—“over which.” There is no “those things” in the Greek text. Because of the elliptical nature of the text something must be added for clarity in translation, hence we add “from trends, over which.” Plus the present active indicative from the verb epaischunomai (ἐπαισχύνομαι) [pronounced ehp-ahee-SKHOO-nom-ahee]—both passive and middle form, and it means to be ashamed. With it an adverb of time, nun (νῦν) [pronounced noon], “now”—“you are now ashamed.” The present tense is a descriptive present of epaischunomai (ἐπαισχύνομαι) [pronounced ehp-ahee-SKHOO-nom-ahee] to indicate what is now going on—embarrassed, ashamed of the past. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb, shame, and he receives the shame from a knowledge of doctrine. The indicative mood is a potential indicative of obligation. The potential indicative means that everyone doesn’t understand this doctrine, but it could mean that you are in the process of learning it. The answer to such a question is obviously no benefit.

“for the end of those things is death” – this is not physical death here. This is the postpositive explanatory particle gar, plus the nominative singular subject telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss], meaning end or conclusion, plus the descriptive genitive plural from the remote demonstrative ekeinos (ἐκεῖνος) [pronounced ehk-Ī-noss] which implies that the Roman believers have experienced enough growth to have some experiential victory over the old sin nature’s sovereign power in human life. Plus the predicate nominative singular from thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss]—“death,” used here for spiritual death in time parlayed into the second death in eternity. This is a reference to the great white throne judgment of Revelation 20:12-15. Since all personal sins were imputed to Christ on the cross and judged this implies the judgment of good and evil. No sin will ever be judged at the final judgment.^[8] A spiritually dead person of Ephesians 2:1 can only produce dead works of Hebrews 6:1. Dead works cannot please God in time—Romans 8:8, or in eternity—Revelation 20:14-15.

Romans 6:21 Therefore, what benefit were you having at that time from old sin nature trends over which you are now ashamed? For the end of those things [OSN trends] is death.

I screwed up; I already had this doctrine recorded elsewhere in these notes. The notes here followed Bob's doctrine. This doctrine is repeated in Lesson #268.

Doctrine of the Last Judgment

- A. Definition.
1. The Last Judgment is the alternative to salvation. In effect, it is facing God's judgment in eternity because you would not face God's judgment in time.
 2. The Last Judgment is the expression of the integrity of God toward those who reject Christ as Savior.
 3. It is the culminating judgment of human history in which every unbeliever of the human race is judged and sentenced to the lake of fire. They will stand before Jesus Christ who is the supreme court judge of heaven, John 5:22.
 4. This is also called the second death or the Great White Throne Judgment, Revelation 20:12.
- B. There are two basic categories in the human race based on God's justice.
1. The believer has accepted and adjusted to divine justice in time, John 3:18, 36; Acts 4:12.
 2. The unbeliever must face divine judgment in eternity, since he was negative to divine justice in time.
 3. Attitude toward Christ determines classification in the human race. Idiots, morons, babies, and those who never reach the age of accountability are automatically saved by the justice of God.
- C. In the Last Judgment, only the unbeliever is under the indictment of rejection of Christ as Savior, John 3:18, 16:9; Revelation 20:15. The Book of Life is the roster of believers only. The unbeliever is not found in the Book of Life because he has not been given eternal life for faith in Christ. He has committed the "willful sin" or "unpardonable sin" of unbelief in the person and work of the Lord Jesus Christ, Hebrews 10:26.
- D. No believer is involved in the Last Judgment, Romans 8:1. "There is, therefore, no judgment to those who are in Christ Jesus."
- E. The unbeliever has two appointments with God.
1. Hebrews 9:27-28, physical death.
 2. The second death or the Last Judgment. This is spiritual death or separation from God forever. Hebrews 9:27, "For just as it is destined for man to die once, but after that the judgment."
- F. The second appointment of judgment is preceded by the second resurrection, John 5:24-29; Dan 12:2.
1. All unbelievers are resurrected at the end of the Millennium in order that they may be judged by Christ and cast into the lake of fire. They are resurrected from the fire of Hades to go into the eternal lake of fire. So the Last Judgment follows the second resurrection.

2. Dan 12:3, "And many of those who sleep in the dust of the ground will awake to eternal life [first resurrection for believers only], but others to disgrace and eternal rejection."

G. The Basis of Indictment of the Unbeliever.

1. No sin is mentioned as the basis of judgment, but rather the unbeliever's human good and his righteousness based on his good works, which God rejects as not good enough to match the perfect righteousness of God required for eternal life with God.
2. At the Last Judgment, two books are opened.
 - a. The Book of Life lists the names of believers only. Therefore, this book is closed because all the names of unbelievers have been blotted out, and so it is not an issue at the Last Judgment.
 - b. The Book of Works lists the name of every person who has rejected Christ as Savior. All his works are listed there. They are all added up, and they total relative righteousness. God is perfect righteousness and cannot have fellowship with anything less. This is the basis of judgment.
3. So the unbeliever is judged on the basis of his works, not his sins, Romans 2:5-6; Revelation 20:12-13.
4. Jesus Christ was judged for the sins of believers and unbelievers; this is the doctrine of unlimited atonement, taught in 2Corinthians 5:14,15,19; 1Timothy 2:6, 4:10; Tit 2:11; Heb 2:9; 2Peter 2:1; 1 Jn 2:2
5. The unbeliever is judged because he has rejected Jesus Christ as Savior. Jn 3:18, "He who believes in Him is not judged, but he who does not believe is judged already because he has not believed in the name of the uniquely born Son of God."
6. Jn 16:9 says that the convicting ministry of the Holy Spirit does not address your personal sins, but only the one sin which could not be judged on the cross. "Concerning sin, because they do not believe in Me."
7. The dead were judged according to the good deeds; the books of works. These good deeds add up to negative righteousness.
8. All of our sins were judged on the cross.

H. The Eternal Status of the Unbeliever.

1. The unbeliever faces "the second death," Rev 20:14, also called "dying in your sins," Jn 8:21,24. Unless you believe that I am Messiah, you will die in your sins.
2. The unbeliever will live forever in the lake of fire, Rev 20:14-15; Matt 25:41.
3. The unbeliever does not have his name in the Book of Life, Revelation 20:15; only in the Book of Works, Revelation 20:12-13.

- a. Man's works are not adequate to live with God forever. Only the righteousness of God is adequate. The righteousness of God is imputed to all believers at the moment of faith in Jesus Christ.
 - b. Rom 2:22, "Even the righteousness of God through faith in Jesus Christ for all those who believe."
 - c. The cross separates the entire human race into believers and unbelievers.
4. To live with God forever, you must be as good as God is (have perfect righteousness), and live as long as God does (have eternal life). The unbeliever has neither. Therefore, he lives forever with human life in his soul in the lake of fire in a resurrection body designed especially to suffer maximum pain.
 5. God gives the unbeliever an indestructible body and soul to suffer with forever, Revelation 14:11.
- I. (From Lesson #268) We are born condemned.
1. All people are born condemned at birth.
 2. We have a choice to believe in Jesus Christ; and the rebirth will take away the second death.
 3. We are condemned at birth; but judged at a later time (which judgment is potentially set aside by the spiritual death of Jesus Christ).
 4. God makes no exception for people who have nice personalities.
 5. This is perfectly fair because every person can choose to believe in Jesus Christ.
 6. The name of the plan of God is security. There are two kinds: eternal security and temporal security (which you get at spiritual maturity).
 7. Salvation is the work of God and the first time that you believe, you are saved.
- Revelation 674; 8/18/76; Romans 3/1/77; 10/20/77; 11/28/77; Ephesians 778 3/3/88

Benefits from the Justice of God.

1. There is no benefit from anything whose termination is the second death or the Lake of Fire.
2. No benefit until we believe in Jesus Christ.
3. At salvation, there are 36 permanent benefits which are never removed.
4. Thereafter, many benefits accrue under the function of gap.
5. The grace pipeline is filled with blessings for the mature believer.
6. Such benefits not exist for the unbeliever...
7. No benefits from the first husband.
8. No benefits until mankind exercises his faith in the grace of God.
9. At the moment of salvation, the believer receives the righteousness of God.
10. Blessings from the justice of God to...
11. The interim blessings are classified as logistical grace blessings.

1977 Romans

Lesson #230

230 10/21/1977 Romans 6:22 Results of divorce from the old sin nature at salvation and slavery to Jesus Christ

Everything that we are studying depends upon us having a good understanding of imputations.

Human life has an affinity for the soul, so imputing human life to the soul is a real imputation. We have simultaneously at birth Adam's original sin imputed to us (so we are spiritually dead) and human life.

Our personal sins are not imputed to us but to Jesus Christ. We either adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God adjusts to us.

In our analogy, the sin nature is the first husband; the wife is the unbeliever; and the marriage counselor is the Mosaic Law. In the second marriage, the husband is Jesus Christ and the wife is the believer; and the marriage counselor is...

Sophia likes slavery, where Sophia Loren does not mind being a slave to her man, even though she claims to be a feminist.

Bob goes back to read vv. 17–21. The left lobe is a staging area. Information can be repeated from memory.

At salvation, we receive 36 things, 2 of which are imputations. Eternal life is imputed to its divinely prepared home, regeneration. Judicial imputation of divine righteousness imputed to us, which is the basis for blessing from the justice of God. This is known as the principle of righteousness. All divine blessing to the mature believer is a real imputation. There is an affinity between the justice of God and the righteousness of God, which we possess. God is glorified by blessing us. The blessings are not given until there is capacity. Capacity is the system of doctrine in the soul which provides capacity. You can have wealth, promotion, success, all types of prosperity; but it will not make you happy apart from the capacity to appreciate it.

To receive blessing and to live in a time of historical disaster, there must be blessings that come through an encapsulated environment. No matter what the historical climate is, they are encapsulated. God provided something greater for us.

Every believer's soul is a battleground, where the old husband, the sin nature, tries to get his wife back.

We are ready to look at the benefits. There is an unsaved status and a saved status. The sin nature is the husband or the lord in the first marriage; the marriage counselor for the second marriage is God the Holy Spirit, which requires the ministry of the Holy Spirit.

Romans 6:22 But now, having been set free from sin, and having become slaves to God, you have your fruit unto sanctification, and the end is eternal life. (BLB)

Verse 22 – the benefits of freedom from the old sin nature; the benefits of the divorce which occurred at salvation. “But now being made free from sin” – the same identical phrase in the Greek in verse 18. The postpositive conjunctive particle de used as an adversative conjunction to emphasize a contrast with the previous phrase which emphasized the second death as the end of the rulership of the old sin nature over human life. So we have a contrast between unsaved status of mankind and salvation status of mankind, a difference of rulership, a difference of lordship. The old sin nature is the lord or the husband in the first marriage; the Lord Jesus Christ is the Lord in the second marriage. With this is an adverb of time used in two forms, nun (νῦν) [pronounced noon] and nuní (νυνί) [pronounced noo-NEE]. Nuní (νυνί) [pronounced noo-NEE] is simply the more emphatic of the two and is translated here “but now.” Next is the aorist passive participle of eleutherōō (ἐλευθερώω) [pronounced el-yoo-ther-OH-oh], which means having been freed or having been set free. It has to do with divorce. The aorist tense is a constative aorist which contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. Here it refers to a momentary action, salvation with emphasis on the baptism of the Spirit which divorces us from the first husband. The passive voice: the believer receives the action instantaneously at the moment of salvation. This is a circumstantial participle. A prepositional phrase follows, apó (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] with the definite article denoting a previous reference in the context. “But now, having been set free from the sin nature [OSN’s sovereignty].” This is positional deliverance accomplished through the baptism of the Holy Spirit, both retroactive and current positional truth.

Principle

1. Positional freedom is tantamount to divorce from the old sin nature, and this is accomplished through retroactive positional truth. First of all, rejection of the old sin nature’s function—good and evil; secondly, separation from good and evil.
2. Retroactive positional truth identifies the believer with Christ in His spiritual death where non-imputation of good and evil signifies rejection of good and evil.
3. Being identified with Christ in His spiritual death means that positionally we have rejected good and evil as the policy of Satan, and the function of the old sin nature as sovereign of human life.
4. Retroactive positional truth identifies the believer with Christ in His physical death and burial in which He was totally separated from good and evil.
5. Being identified with Christ in His physical death and burial means that we are positionally separated from good and evil as the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world, and the function of the old sin nature, ruler of human life.

“and become servants to God” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de, this time simply used to connect two clauses where a contrast is intended. The contrast is between the first and the second marriages. Plus the aorist active participle of doulōō (δουλόω) [pronounced doo-LOW-oh], which describes the woman’s part in marriage. The culminative aorist views the salvation action in its entirety but emphasizes the result, i.e. a new marriage. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb at salvation through the baptism of the Spirit which makes Christ Lord of every believer. The participle is circumstantial.

When you believed in Jesus Christ, He became your Lord, whether you make some experiential decision at some emotional point in time.

With this is the dative singular indirect object from the proper noun for God, theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. The definite article is used to portray the fact that God is a separate category from all other categories with which we are familiar—“and having become slaves to the God.”

Bob goes back to his translation of Romans 7:1–7.

Romans 6:22a But now having been set free from the sin nature, and having become slaves to the God,...

Principle

1. Salvation is a transfer of slavery from the first husband, the old sin nature, to blessing and security of the second husband who has integrity.
2. The judicial imputation of divine righteousness, and the real imputation of eternal life to its divinely prepared home of regeneration, brands the believer as a slave to the second husband forever.
3. Because of current positional truth Jesus Christ is Lord of every believer, regardless of his experiential status.
4. While freedom is necessary for the function of the angelic conflict it is not necessary in the marriage relationship of the second marriage.
5. All great relationships in life include the concept of slavery, whether relationship with God or a woman's relationship with a man in marriage.
6. Such slavery means security. Security means blessing. There is no real blessing unless there is security.
7. Such slavery is the basis for God providing more than Adam and the woman lost in the garden.
8. Our slavery requires a rigid schedule of learning Bible doctrine under the principles of GAP.

“ye have your fruit unto holiness” – present active indicative of the verb echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EHHH-oh], meaning to have or to have and to hold. The present tense is a retroactive progressive present, denoting what has begun in the past with the believer's positive volition toward doctrine and continues into the present time with that same positive volition, moving through every distraction in life, recognizing that this is the only way that the objectives are obtained, and moving toward the objectives regardless of any other factor. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb through consistent and faithful perception of Bible doctrine. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal concept from the viewpoint of reality.

Plus the accusative singular direct object from karpos (καρπός) [pronounced kahr-POSS], translated “fruit,” but generally it means “benefit.” Plus the genitive plural from the personal pronoun su, translated “your benefit.” What is the benefit? eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of hagiasmos (ἁγιασμός) [pronounced hag-ee-as-MOSS], translated “sanctification,” provided it is understood that sanctification here refers to cracking the maturity barrier through the consistent function of GAP, maximum doctrine in the right lobe, or the completed edification complex through doctrine. This fulfils the principle: potential + capacity = reality.

The association with a mature believer, there is great blessing. You provide for your children by being a mature believer before you die.

A large pivot and a small spinoff will turn our nation around.

Principle

1. The benefit of slavery to God is experiential sanctification or maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
2. This attainment of spiritual maturity involves two basic factors, i.e. the filling of the Holy Spirit—rebound adjustment to the justice of God, plus the daily function of GAP resulting in maximum doctrine resident in the soul and a completed edification complex.
3. Hence the result: maximum glorification of God, and simultaneously maximum blessing from the justice of God.
4. This maximum blessing from maturity adjustment to the justice of God is insulated against historical adversity by means of encapsulation of environment.
5. Hence, benefits with reference to sanctification or maturity adjustment to the justice of God is maximum blessing flowing through the grace pipeline to the mature believer.

“and the end everlasting life” – we get to use the life that was given to us by imputation at salvation. The postpositive particle de—“and,” plus the nominative singular subject from telos (τέλος) [pronounced TEHL-oss], the goal, the end, the final objective of life on earth. Then the accusative direct object of the verb to have and to hold.

Romans 6:22 But now having been set free from the sin nature [the 1st husband], and having become slaves to the God, you are having benefit with reference to sanctification, and the end of life on earth, eternal life.

This does not imply that eternal life only belongs to the mature believer. It just means that eternal life is going to be more rewarding, more beneficial, more blessing, for the mature believer. But eternal life belongs to all believers in Jesus Christ. It is a real imputation at the point of salvation to all believers. But the ones who are going to enjoy it the most are those who crack the maturity barrier in time.

Principle

1. Spiritual benefit and blessing from the justice of God comes from being slaves to God. The slave recognizes authority; and we recognize this authority by taking in Bible doctrine.
2. This transfer of slavery from the old sin nature to God occurs at the moment of salvation.
3. No longer does the sin nature provide rations and pay. Now the justice of God provides rations and pay.
4. Blessing from the justice of God occurs at maturity adjustment to the justice of God by means of the daily function of GAP and maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
5. Hence, the believer receives benefit from advancing to spiritual maturity.
6. At the end of life on earth there follows eternal life and the parlaying of blessings in time into blessings of eternity.
7. The plan has both temporal and eternal security as well as temporal and eternal blessing. Where God blesses there is always security. Security is a part of every divine blessing.

1977 Romans

Lesson #231

231 10/23/1977 Romans 6:23 (Corrected translation verses 1–22) Rations from the old sin nature: spiritual and second deaths

Our last day on the Romans 6. We need to seek out clues as to how each passage should be interpreted. We fail to understand too often that the passage itself gives us the key to interpretation. The first key was given awhile ago, the doctrine of imputations. When it comes to God, only one characteristic is pertinent. God is love, eternal life, omnipotence, veracity; etc.; but our contact with God is His integrity. Righteousness is the guardian of divine justice and justice is the guardian of all God's attributes. We either adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God adjusts to us.

Human life was given to us by God as a real imputation and the imputed factor is human life. There is the human soul which is made by God. The human soul is perfect. Human life was imputed to the soul at birth. No matter what happens, your soul is going to remain alive. As the soul departs from the body, the soul still has human life in it.

At the same time, Adam's original sin is imputed to the genetically formed old sin nature. Adam's original sin is the source of our condemnation. None of our personal sins are a source of our condemnation, as Jesus Christ died for our sins. Jesus Christ accepted our sins as a judicial imputation. There was no natural antecedent for the sins of mankind. None of our sins were antecedently His Own.

God prepared regeneration so that we might have eternal life imputed to us. The justice of God as the originator, and divine righteousness is imputed to us. This grace pipeline is established by the integrity of God.

There is retroactive positional truth and current positional truth. All of our sins being imputed to Jesus Christ leaves good and evil behind, but they have been rejected by God. Good and evil is the policy of Satan in this world.

We move to a new interpretation analogy. Slavery of marriage is set up. Marriage and divorce looks backward into what we have been studying; and it looks forward to what will be studied.

Romans 6:1–22 are reread and explained.

We are heading toward historic disaster, and this is obvious even to very stupid people.

The primary potential is Romans 5 and secondary potential is Romans 6.

We must have blessings in time in order to have blessings in eternity. There is no equality in time and no equality in heaven.

V. 23 is often quoted, but it is rarely quoted in accordance with its meaning in context.

Romans 6:23 For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord. (BLB)

Verse 23 – the key to this verse is the last phrase of verse 22, “eternal life.”

“For the wages of sin is death” – the inferential use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar. When gar is used inferentially it is translated not “for,” but “certainly.” Plus the nominative plural subject opsōnion (ὀψώνιον) [pronounced op-SOW-nee-on] which means ransom money paid to a soldier. This is the subsistence allowance, the ration. In other words, it is used literally for what is appointed for buying food. Hence, the maintenance or sustenance allowance in the military. We will translate it “subsistence pay.”

With this is the ablative of source singular from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] with the definite article, referring to the old sin nature, the first husband. The definite article is used for what has previously been defined and understood from the context. The idea of separation in the ablative case may be accompanied by the implication of the original situation which in some way contributed to that separation. The separation here is the divorce from the first husband, the old sin nature, and the marriage to the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ. The original situation was the fall of Adam, his original transgression of cognizance that contributed to the present state of the old sin nature’s rulership over human life through spiritual death. “Certainly the subsistence pay from the sin nature.” Implied but not stated in the context is the verb to be.

Plus the predicate nominative singular from thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss]—“death,” the subsistence pay of the old sin nature. The word for subsistence pay is in the plural. The rations from the sin nature is death. The old sin nature issues rations every day, a subsistence every day that a person is alive as an unbeliever. Spiritual death from the sin nature is our daily rations.

“but” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de which is used to connect two clauses which are generally antithetical, and the nominative singular subject of charisma (χάρισμα) [pronounced KHAHR-ees-mah], meaning free gift, free benefit. The word is taken from charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic] or grace, hence it means proof of grace, gift or benefit—“but the grace benefit.” Because grace is absolutely unique the definite article is used to show that grace is a category which is quite different from any other category and must be separated from all other categories. So it is “the grace benefit.” Plus the ablative of source from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] with the definite article, and again, God is unique. His policy is unique; His person is unique, and therefore the definite article indicates a specialized category which is unique. Again we have the ablative of source indicating the fact that the origin is involved.

Then the implied verb to be plus the predicate nominative from the adjective aiōnios (αἰώνιος) [pronounced ahee-OH-nee-oss] and the noun zōê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY]—“eternal life.” Eternal life was made to participate in, not simply to be admired. Eternal life should be exploited. The exploitation of eternal life is not to put your salvation on the shelf and then go out and do whatever you want, and say goodbye to God until eternity. There is only one way to grow up, and that is taking in doctrine daily.

True blessing is designed for our lives in spiritual maturity. The believer who remains out of fellowship may live a horrible life in time; but he has eternal security and eternal life.

Everyday that we have human life, we continue to have eternal life. God’s purpose here is for us to have blessings beyond our imagination. The minimum guarantee is the resurrection body in eternity.

You might think that you are doing a great job, passing out tracts, rolling in the aisle, or whatever; and you might impress others, it does not follow that you are impressing God.

Just as good wine should be enjoyed; eternal life is also to be exploited and enjoyed. There is only one way to grow up, and that is taking in doctrine.

“through Jesus Christ our Lord” – en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] Kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss], referring to positional truth: “in Christ Jesus our Lord.”

Romans 6:23 Certainly the subsistence pay [rations] from the sin nature is death; but the grace benefit from the God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

We have eternal life as an imputation; and we also have His eternal life by virtue of union with Jesus Christ (as we are in Christ). Since we have a double portion, there is more expected of us than anything in the past. We are expected to exploit grace.

Principle

1. The Greek word for rations or subsistence pay is in the plural, indicating that there is more than one type of death involved for the unbeliever: spiritual death in time and the second death in eternity. In time we have spiritual death as unbelievers; in eternity the lake of fire. The old sin nature pays rations forever to those who stayed married to him.
2. Notice that there is a contrast between the plural “rations” and the word “grace benefit” in the singular. While the old sin nature simply pays a subsistence allowance to its slave, God in grace gives grace benefits. Rations imply earning or deserving something; grace benefit has the connotation of unearned sustenance.
3. Hell is earned and deserved but heaven cannot be earned or deserved.
4. Hell depends on the work of man; heaven depends on the work of God.
5. Note the emphasis on the possession of a double portion of eternal life. The first portion: the real imputation of the Father’s eternal life to its divinely prepared target, regeneration—John 3:18, 36. The second portion is the possession of eternal life belonging to Christ through the baptism of the Spirit and subsequent current positional truth—1John 5:11,12; Romans 6:23.

1977 Romans

Lesson #232

232 10/23/1977 Romans 7:1a Virgin birth; old sin natures of Mary and virgins; doctrine of imputations (real and judicial)

The Battle of the Bulge (I assume a movie) is very accurate, but with the names changed.

There is a holiday tomorrow, the recognition of the attainment of freedom through military victory. Medal of Honor citation. He had to cover 30 yards of ground without any cover.

The Justice of God Is the Source of All Imputations.

1. Imputation is attributing or ascribing something to someone.
2. The justice of God is the sources of cursing and blessing, condemnation and salvation.

3. Imputation is a part of the executions of the justice of God.
4. This function is based upon cognizance of the integrity of God.
5. Integrity of God is made up of justice and righteousness.
6. There are two categories of imputations found in the Scripture: real and judicial.
7. Real ascribes to one what is antecedently his own.
8. A judicial imputation ascribes to someone what is not their own. No home or object.
9. The justice of God is the source of all imputations, whether real or judicial.

Imputations at Birth

1. Physical life and spiritual death occur at the same time at birth.
2. Life cannot exist until the imputation of life outside the womb.
3. Life in the womb is reflex motility.
4. Life is imputed to the human soul.
5. Human life residing in the soul remains forever. Human life cannot be separated from the soul.
6. There is no soul sleep or soul death. Life remains in the soul, whether the person is in heaven or hell.
7. The home for Adam's sin since the fall.
8. Adam's original sin was acquired by a real imputation. The old sin nature is transmitted through the 23 male chromosomes.
9. Justice of God imputes Adam's original sin to the sin nature.
10. Adam's original sin or transgression is a real imputation because it has a home or a target.
11. A real imputation must have direction. At birth, Adam's original sin is imputed to the genetically formed sin nature.
12. The result is physical life and spiritual death from birth.
13. These two real imputations at birth make every person of the human race a facsimile of Adam at the fall. Personal sin is not the basis for our condemnation.
14. Personal sin is a manifestation of spiritual death.

These are keys to understanding Romans and many other passages in the Bible. These imputations are the key to everything.

Imputation and non Imputation at the Birth of the Lord Jesus Christ

1. All the cells in the human race are contaminated by the old sin nature.
2. There is one exception; through myosis and the function of polar bodies, 23 chromosomes are thrown off, leaving 23 uncontaminated chromosomes. The woman carries one cell free of the sin nature.
3. Only the man can transmit the sin nature.

4. The virgin Mary was born spiritually dead and she was a virgin for her first birth. But, she was not perfect. All of us have known real and alleged virgins. They are not sinless. Behind this facade of virtue is an old sin nature. Accurately, Mary was a woman like any other woman, with her good points and her bad points. She had committed sins, but fornication was not one of her sins. Prior to her own salvation, she was spiritually dead. Mary was royal family in Israel. She was married to an aristocrat as well.
5. The virgin Mary possessed one pure cell free from the contamination of the sin nature.

Jesus was impeccable so that He could be judged in our stead. All of the personal sins were collected on the cross and laid upon Jesus Christ. He carried the sins and He carried the penalty. Isaiah 53.

Additional doctrines covered.

We might say that each marriage has children. The first marriage have the acts of sin, human good and evil. For the second marriage, these are the blessings which flow through the grace pipe from the justice of God to the righteousness of God. 5 sets of blessings.

Chapter 7

Outline: Four Paragraphs of Romans 7.

- 1) The key to interpretation: the two marriages (with a divorce in between), verses 1-6.
- 2) The function of the law as a marriage counselor, verses 7-14.
- 3) The attacks of the first husband, verses 15-21.
- 4) The great inner conflict, verse 22-25.

Released from the Law

Romans 7:1 Or are you ignorant brothers (for I speak to those knowing the law), that the law rules over the man for as long as the time he is alive? (BLB)

Many people think that they are marrying for love and they have found their rm or rw; and it turns out that they do not. The Law straightens this out.

Verse 1 – the lordship of the law. The Mosaic law not only is a marriage counselor, but a tough one. It walks in and says you have a bad marriage. The law is the authority from God that says so. “Know ye not” – really, “How stupid are you?” The verb is not a verb of knowledge, it is a verb of ignorance. It begins with the disjunctive particle ê (ἤ) [pronounced ā], used in an interrogative sentence to introduce a rhetorical question. The particle relates to Romans 6:14 and it implies that the writer Paul is skeptical about Romans believers—that they are stupid as a general rule. Then the present active indicative of agnoeō (ἀγνοέω) [pronounced ag-noh-EH-oh] which means to be stupid. The purpose of Romans 7 is to take your stupidity about the inner conflict, take away all of the philosophical and psychological terms, the syndromes, the relationship to environment, the human viewpoint, and find out what that conflict really is. As long as you cherish any psychological human viewpoint with regard to the inner conflict after salvation you cherish irrational arrogant notions about your own self-importance. All of these things are to be dispelled. "Or are you stupid?" Bob sees Romans 7 as an enema preparing you for Romans 8. The descriptive present tense indicates what is now going on. Stupidity is now occurring. The active voice: believers in this case who are Jewish and influenced by the law, living in Rome, are fulfilling the action of the verb and taking Gentile believers along with them. The indicative mood: the interrogative indicative assumes that there is an actual fact which may be stated in answer to the question.

Points in Preparation for Romans 7

1. The information of this chapter is related to the information of the previous chapter, but with a different emphasis. Positional truth in the previous chapter; and this chapter deals with the two husbands.
2. The woman, the believer, has died to her first husband by divorce. The first husband is trying to make inroads with the ex-wife.
3. At salvation, the believer is no longer under the sovereignty of the sin nature.
4. The first husband is no longer in a state of marriage. The second husband is the Lord Jesus Christ. The first wife is the unbeliever; the second wife is the believing person.
5. The authority of the former husband was broken at divorce. The wife is married to a new husband, current positional truth.
6. The first husband is still alive and still making those noises.

The vocative plural is describing a condition that exists among believers—adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS], "brethren, believers." Picking up the concept of Romans 6:14 we now go to the Mosaic law as the marriage counselor. Remember that the disjunctive particle picks up the thread of this verse and develops true information regarding the old sin nature as the first husband under the teaching of the marriage counselor. "Or are you stupid, brethren."

1977 Romans

Lesson #233

233 10/28/1977 Romans 7:1b "Panzer Battles"; Mosaic Law a marriage counselor for the unbeliever; counseling

Bob picked up a paper in Miami and he checked the Sports Page. He likes the auditorium there; he could look out and see everyone.

Bob came across an article about him in Miami.

Hitler is discussed; his brilliance and clear headedness; and his ability to almost put those around him under a spell. Not sure who this writer was. Maybe the Panzer general?

Everything this man says reeks of genius; but he was unable to relate anything to the principles that we are familiar with. Panzer Battles, 1939-45 by F.W. Von Mellenthin

The Germans were mad dogs and so were the Russians. We should have first destroyed the Germans and then the Russians.

The principles in this next chapter are going to change our lives. Bob is going straight through the next two chapters with no stopping and no holiday windings. . Don't get subjective when going through these chapters.

When you remain vulnerable for questions, they are not even worth a sneer.

A woman writes to Billy Graham, and she was saved, and she does not think that she loved her new husband and thinks she should be with her first husband.

Apparently, all those around Billy Graham answer these letter.

Speaking of T&P, "We don't raise salaries; we just let them read the letters."

if we are subjective, then we will not be able to make through all of chapter 7.

Bob reviews the outline.

Released from the Law

Romans 7:1 Or are you ignorant brothers (for I speak to those knowing the law), that the law rules over the man for as long as the time he is alive? (BLB)

How far we are: Or are you ignorant, brothers,...

Principle

1. The information of this chapter is related to the information of the previous chapter but with a different emphasis. In Romans 6 the emphasis is placed on positional truth, while in this chapter the emphasis lies with the battle between two husbands. As believers we all have an ex-husband, the old sin nature. As believers we have a new husband, the Lord Jesus Christ.
2. Anticipating the key illustration of Romans 7:2-4, the woman, the believer, has died to her first husband through divorce. The death is divorce, the husband is still very much alive.
3. At salvation the believer through the baptism of the Spirit is no longer under the sovereignty of the old sin nature. Retroactive positional truth constitutes a divorce. Identification with Christ in His spiritual death is rejection of the first husband; identification with Christ in His physical death and burial is separation and divorce from the first husband.

4. Hence, the first husband, the old sin nature, is no longer is a state of marriage. The wife of the first marriage is the unbeliever and the wife of the second marriage is the believer. The second husband is the Lord Jesus Christ. The wife of the second husband: each one of us comes into the picture at this moment. “for I speak to those who know the law” – he refers to the fact that they know the law but they do not understand the point. Not understanding the point they do not really understand the law. Salvation dissolves the first marriage. The authority or the marriage counselor for the first marriage is the Mosaic Law; and the Holy Spirit for the second marriage. The authority of the old husband, the sin nature, is broken at salvation. The believer at salve becomes dead to the first husband. The believer to the 2nd husband becomes alive.

If the Mosaic Law has led you to salvation, that is the end of the Law for the new believer.

The remainder of the Greek exegesis is missing in the existing notes; but Bob does go over it.

Principle

1. The law is a marriage counselor for the first marriage. The marriage takes place by two imputations.
2. The Mosaic Law reveals to the unbeliever that he is a sinner by action, a do-gooder and that he produces evil.
3. Personal sin must have a source; the source is the sin nature.
4. Paul will demonstrate that he become cognizant of the old sin nature through the Law.
5. 1Timothy 1:2–10 There is nothing wrong with the Mosaic Law. The law applies to certain groups of people. Good translation here. 38:00

The law was distorted among the Jews, so to the sin nature. Freedom from the old marriage. The eality of the new marriage is found in Romans 6:8. The contrast of marriage counsels or 2Corinthians 3:6. Judaizers and legalistic gentiles distorted the Law into a spiritual way of life.

When you go to a pastor-teacher with a problem, you are demoting him.

The Doctrine of Life's Restraints

1. Restraint under the first husband..
2. Social restraint.

Romans 7:1 For are you ignorant, brethren, (for I communicate to those who know the law,) that the [Mosaic] law lords it over mankind [as long a time as he lives.

234 10/30/1977 Romans 7:2; Deut. 24:1–4a; Matthew 5:32 Old Testament divorce (death to old spouse); salvation = divorce the old sin nature and marry Jesus Christ.

“The Portrait of Jenny”, a movie for Saturday night, was an allegory. Bob explains what was taking place. This portrayed through an allegory what the relationship is between a man and a woman.

We are coming to a place in Romans that even great Bible teachers have missed. Most read this as a dissertation of marriage and divorce, and they completely miss the point.

This is the second marriage when an unbeliever becomes a believer. We see the triumph of the second husband in Romans 8. We could go back to Romans 6 and, in about an hour’s time, explain how this applies.

Do not apply this passage subjectively.

We need to understand the interpretation of this passage first, so that we can understand it. Most people think that this passage teaches marriage and divorce. Most people understand marriage and divorce; so it becomes a very good illustration for what Paul is teaching.

Romans 7:2 For the married woman is bound by law to the living husband; but if the husband should die, she is cleared from the law of the husband. (BLB)

Verse 2 – “For the woman which hath an husband.” The word “hath” is not found in the original. The explanatory conjunctive particle gar, introducing the illustrative analogy which is the key to interpretation of Romans chapters 6,7,8. This is the analogy which is used throughout. Plus the nominative singular subject, hê (ἡ) [pronounced hey] gunê (γυνή) [pronounced goo-NAY], “the woman,” but with the generic use of the definite article it denotes a distinctive class of woman, the married woman, the wife. Plus the appositional predicate nominative singular from the noun hupandros (ὑπανδρος) [pronounced HOOP-an-dross], meaning subject to a man, under the authority of man—“For the wife under the authority of her husband.”

The Woman Under Authority in Marriage

1. Marriage has a system of authority. The man is the ruler over the woman. The woman does not have any authority over the man whatsoever. If she tries to exert any authority over the man, what she does is bad for the marriage and for society. This does not mean that the man is a tyrant.
2. If a woman is not willing to submit to the authority of a man she should not marry him.
3. No woman can achieve femininity or attractiveness when she has rejected the authority of her husband. The woman is a responder; she needs to have one in authority over her (the man).

4. A woman who rejects such authority becomes a monster, but a woman under such authority is the most attractive of all of God's creatures.
5. A woman has a greater influence under authority than when she exercises authority.
6. Therefore the difference between beauty and ugliness in a woman is found in that one word, "authority," and how she handles it.
7. As responders women were never designed to be independent of authority. A woman is designed to have authority over her children.
8. No woman's beauty is complete until she has accepted the authority of the man she loves. Then her influence becomes phenomenal. When society is filled with feminine women, the result is men who are inspired by their women.

"is bound by the law to her husband" – the perfect passive indicative of the verb deō (δέω) [pronounced DEH-oh] means to bind or to tie, and is used here for binding by law and duty. The dramatic perfect tense describes a fact in a real and vivid way. In fact, the action is completed and we have the existing results, the state of marriage, emphasized. The passive voice: the wife, the subject, receives the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of absolute reality.

The instrumental of means from nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] is used for the Mosaic law as the marriage counselor, as per Deuteronomy 24:1-4. The dative singular indirect object from anēr (άνήρ) [pronounced ah-NAIR] refers to the husband—"has been bound to her husband by law." "so long as he liveth" – the articular present active participle of zaō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]. The definite article is used as a personal pronoun, translated "he." The present tense is static for a doctrine taken for granted as a fact: the authority of the man in the divine institution of marriage. The active voice: the husband produces the action of the verb in the marital state. The participle is temporal, therefore it is translated "while he is living." Living can refer to either physical life as opposed to death or marriage as opposed to divorce. Death is used for divorce as well as physical death.

The doctrine below is reviewed in Lesson #235.

The Divorce Analogy

1. The wife of the first marriage is the unbeliever, while the wife of the second marriage is the believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. Throughout this passage the same principle accrues: the first husband, the old sin nature; second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ. Marriage counselor of the first marriage: Mosaic law; marriage counselor of the second marriage: God the Holy Spirit.
2. In this phrase the wife is the unbeliever married to the old sin nature from birth. She is bound to her husband while still living.
3. The rulership of the old sin nature begins at birth with the imputation of Adam's sin to the genetically formed old sin nature.
4. The Mosaic law is the marriage counselor who advises the unbeliever of his status of spiritual death from birth and the continued rulership of the sin nature from birth to the point of regeneration.

5. As salvation adjustment to the justice of God, the believer becomes married to Jesus Christ. Codex #1 of the Mosaic law points out the problem, while codex #2 presents the solution to the problem.
6. At salvation the believer is divorced from the first husband, the old sin nature, and married to a second. She is now under the authority of Jesus Christ and no longer the sin nature.
7. The baptism of the Spirit and resultant retroactive positional truth provides the mechanics for the divorce analogy.
8. Three identifications are involved in the divorce analogy:
 - a. identification with Christ in spiritual death is rejection of good and evil, the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of life. In the analogy, a woman, before she divorces a man rejects him in her soul;
 - b. identification with Christ in physical death is separation from good and evil, the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life. In the divorce analogy, after a woman rejects a man the next stage is separation, tantamount to separation from the first husband;
 - c. identification with Christ in His burial. This is divorce from the old sin nature. Divorce is comparable to death.

Next set of points:

Principle

1. Between physical and spiritual birth, the unbeliever is under the authority of the sin nature and the Mosaic Law as the marriage counselor.
2. Divorced from the old husband by retroactive positional truth; married to the Lord by dpt.
3. This does not mean that the sin nature dies.
4. This does not imply that the Mosaic Law attempts to interfere. It is still there.
5. Until salvation, the sin nature is the ruler in marriage.

The authority of the old sin nature, the first husband, has been abrogated, rendered nul and void by divorce. The believer wife has divorced the old sin nature, so the old sin nature is dead to the wife, the believer in Jesus Christ.

“but if the husband be dead” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de connects one clause to another where there is an antithesis. The contrast exists between the first and the second marriage. The conditional particle eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] introduces the 3rd class condition—“but if.”

Plus the nominative singular subject ho anêr (ἀνὴρ) [pronounced ah-NAIR], which includes the generic use of the definite article representing man as a special class, i.e. the husband of a wife, and it is a reference to the old sin nature who after salvation is the ex-husband. Then the aorist active subjunctive of apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh], used here not for physical death but for divorce. The aorist tense is a constative aorist which contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety, and the action of the verb is the divorce from the first husband, the old sin nature. This divorce includes identification with Christ in His spiritual death or rejection of the husband, identification with Christ in His physical death or separation from the first husband, identification with Christ in His burial which is the actual divorce from the first husband, the old sin nature. The active voice: the first husband produces the action by being divorced by the baptism of the Spirit and resultant retroactive positional truth. The subjunctive mood is potential, and the potential concept is based upon whether an individual believes in the Lord Jesus Christ or not.

“she is loosed from the law of her husband” – the perfect passive indicative of the verb katargeō (καταργέω) [pronounced kaht-ahrg-EH-oh], meaning to render nul and void, to cancel, to abrogate, to abolish, to wipe out, to set aside. Here it means to be released from a former association—“she has been released.” The perfect tense is completed action in the past and results continuing, the present result being union with Christ, a new husband. The passive voice: the wife receives the action of the verb, the first marriage is nul and void by divorce and therefore she is released by the law from her first husband, the old sin nature. The indicative mood is declarative for the reality of divorce and release from the first husband. Then the prepositional phrase ἀπό (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus ablative of means of νόμος (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], and the ablative of source from the noun ἀνὴρ (ἀνὴρ) [pronounced ah-NAIR]—“she has been released by the law from her first husband.”

Deuteronomy 24:1–4

Deuteronomy 24:1 “When a man takes a wife and marries her, if then she finds no favor in his eyes because he has found some indecency in her, and he writes her a certificate of divorce and puts it in her hand and sends her out of his house, and she departs out of his house,...

One school of thought: the husband determines what is disgraceful. Then there is the Hilel school, to cover anything that was displeasing, including between a poor cook or poor housekeeping. Samar and Hilel interpretations given.

The noun is used for any sexual sin which made the woman unfaithful. Jesus interpreted this in Matthew 5:22.

Deuteronomy 24:2 ...and if she goes and becomes another man's wife,...

Deuteronomy 24:3 ...and the latter man hates her and writes her a certificate of divorce and puts it in her hand and sends her out of his house, or if the latter man dies, who took her to be his wife,...

Deuteronomy 24:4 ...then her first husband, who sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after she has been defiled, for that is an abomination before the LORD. And you shall not bring sin upon the land that the LORD your God is giving you for an inheritance.

Dying or divorce is considered equivalent. The divorce is as if the husband is dead. The woman is free from the second husband; but she cannot go back to the first husband, because they are dead to each other.

Romans 7:2 For a married woman is bound by law to her husband as long as he lives; but if her husband dies, she is released from the law of the marriage.

1977 Romans

Lesson #235

235 10/30/1977 Romans 7:2–3 (Review of verse 2) Results of positional truth; Paul retrieves wandering minds regarding divorce

V. 2 is the key to understanding most of this passage. Bob redoes this verse. The woman is under the authority of a man in marriage and if she is not willing to submit to the man in marriage, she should not get married. A woman has a great influence under authority than when she exercises authority. As responders, women were not designed to be independent of authority. No woman's beauty is complete apart from her relationship with her husband.

The Divorce Analogy (from the previous lesson) is reviewed; any additional notes will be placed there.

The divorce is retroactive positional truth. Death refers to divorce, as death refers to many other things in Scripture apart from physical death.

Deuteronomy 24:1–4 is reviewed. The wife who divorces her first husband is dead to him and he to her. This is the marriage counselor.

Romans 7:2 For the wife under the authority of her husband has been bound to her husband by law while he is living. But if the husband has died, she has been released by the Law from her first husband.

Romans 7:3 So then, if she is to another man, the husband being alive, she will be called an adulteress; but if the husband should die, she is free from the law, so as for her not to be an adulteress, having been to another man. (BLB)

Paul is a genius and he is going to have quite a laugh over this.

Socialism and welfare is not divine establishment. This is an example of good and evil. It is good and evil that leads the average Christian astray.

Verse 3 – how the illustrative principle does not work. (In verse 4: how the principle does work) “So then if while her husband liveth” – the inferential illative particle ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah]. It denotes a transition from one thing to another by natural sequence, and it also denotes logical inference. It can be translated “therefore” or “consequently.” It is followed by a redundancy to us, the inferential conjunction oun (οὐν)

[pronounced oon], also translated: “therefore.” If it was translated literally it could be “Therefore, therefore” or “Consequently therefore.” Immediately we are struck with the fact that Paul is laughing. But he is also advancing the argument from the negative standpoint. The correct translation is “Therefore if.”

Paul is going to explain what it isn’t and then we will understand when he tells us what it is.

The noun in the genitive case is the subject of a participle in the genitive case. This is the genitive absolute, it is not grammatically connected with the rest of the sentence. The genitive singular of anêr (ἀνὴρ) [pronounced ah-NAIR] is the subject of the participle, used for a noble person in contrast to an ordinary person who is anthrôpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos].

Many get married because of attractiveness, but when you discover who that person is behind the attractiveness, that changes things.

Then a genitive present active participle from zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]. The retroactive progressive present denotes what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. She is married, doesn’t like it any more, and would like to get out from under the situation. She has discovered that her monster was a tyrant. The active voice: the husband produces the action of the verb by existing as the husband. This is a temporal participle translated “Therefore, if while her husband is living.”

What follows is not the way the illustration works. This is digression but there is a purpose for it. He is following their thinking. This is not Paul’s illustration, but he is going off on a tangent, following the thoughts of his audience. You cannot talk about marriage without people going off on a tangent in their thinking.

Much of Paul’s audience have been married and remarried many times. This is because slave women have been brought into Rome from other countries.

Principle

1. Positionally the divorce is final—the divorce between the old sin nature and the unbeliever. Both the ex-husband is dead to the wife and the ex-wife is dead to the husband. Positionally we are dead to the old sin nature.
2. The death or divorce of the first marriage is comparable to retroactive positional truth, while the new marriage to Christ is comparable to current positional truth.
3. Salvation adjustment to the justice of God not only divorces the believer from the first husband, the old sin nature, but unites the believer to the new husband, the Lord Jesus Christ.
4. At salvation the believer is positionally delivered from the power and sovereignty of the old sin nature through retroactive positional truth.
5. At salvation the believer becomes subject to the power and sovereignty of the Lord Jesus Christ through current positional truth. Therefore, at least theoretically, we are living to please our new husband. But our new husband has policies and they must be understood; they must be communicated and He has delegated authority which must be accepted before we can ever please the second husband. There exists them temptation to go back to the first husband.

6. The analogy of the context, then, is obvious. The believer is analogous to a married woman who prior to salvation has been under the authority of the first husband, the old sin nature. But now, after salvation, the believer is placed under the authority of the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ.
7. All of this positional. It does not become experiential until the believer cracks the maturity barrier. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God through maximum doctrine resident in the soul makes the believer's experience equal to his position, but experience never equals position until the maturity barrier is cracked.

“she be married to another man” – the aorist active infinitive of gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my] means to become. It is used here for the wife who has changed her nature to indicate entering a new condition. Hence it means to belong to another. This includes belonging to another mentally as well as physically. It does not imply marriage here, but intimate relationship with another man other than the husband. Translation: “she has become intimate.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates mental and physical intimacy in its entirety. Mental intimacy and spiritual intimacy with the old sin nature is involved and it is gathered up into one entirety. The active voice: the married woman produces the action of the verb with a man other than her husband and, by the analogy, with other than the Lord Jesus Christ. The subjunctive mood is potential, part of the 3rd class condition which qualifies the illustration with contingency, and implies here a future reference.

Plus the instrumental of association, and we have the same noun, anêr (ἀνὴρ) [pronounced ah-NAIR], but here it is not used as the husband. Anêr (ἀνὴρ) [pronounced ah-NAIR] is used here for a man who is admired other than the husband. With it is an adjective in the instrumental singular of association—héteros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os], meaning another of a different kind. Translation: “she has become intimate with another man.”

In the instrumental of association a second party must furnish the means of association. So the other man has made the proper noises and she has responded. Third class condition: maybe she will and maybe she won't. One thing is sure. The congregation to whom this was originally addressed in Rome have already wandered into this area of thinking, so the genius of Paul wanders with them. The principle: When a sheep wanders from the flock you have to go out, or send the dog out, to get the sheep to wander back into the flock. You have to go out and get the sheep, it will not wander back of its own accord. So the audience has wandered into thinking, and Paul just takes a little short trip with them to bring them back in. The short trip is verse 3 in which he discusses the iffy possibilities of the situation.

“she shall be called an adulteress” – the future active indicative of chrêmatizô (χρηματίζω) [pronounced kh-ray-mat-IHD-zo], which indicates that Paul is minding his own business, not exhorting anyone. The KJV translator is suggesting kaleô (καλέω) [pronounced kal-EH-oh], which means to call, implying minding someone else's business. Chrêmatizô (χρηματίζω) [pronounced khray-mat-IHD-zo] does not mean to call anyone anything, and the verb should be translated "to classify"—"she shall be classified." He is illustrating, not sticking his nose into anyone's business. The future tense is a gnomic future for a statement of fact which may be rightfully expected under these conditions, but a statement of fact which does not excoriate anyone. Paul is sticking with a principle. Paul is bringing his audience back to objectivity. The active voice: the married woman who is unfaithful to her husband produces the action of the verb. However as noted in the title of this verse this is how the illustrative principle does not work in the analogy, but this presents a principle: you cannot learn doctrine while under subjectivity. The more hang-ups you have the more difficult it is to learn doctrine when doctrine crosses the sensitivity areas of your hang-ups. The indicative mood is declarative, expressing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

Then the nominative of classification from moichalis (μοιχαλίζω) [pronounced moy-khal-IHS]—"adulteress." Since the nominative is by nature the classification case it is not unusual for this classification to remain in the nominative. This can also be called the independent nominative, and that is a grammatical paronomasia. "So then, if while her husband is living she has become intimate with another man she shall be classified as an adulteress."

Principle

1. While this information is necessary for the analogy it is not the way the principle works out in the passage.
2. In retroactive positional truth the wife is divorced and/or dead to her first husband, the old sin nature.

So Paul first deals with the possibility that her husband is not dead; and she would be classified as an adulteress. But that is not what is actually being said/illustrated here.

"but if her husband be dead" – the postpositive conjunctive particle de sets up a contrast again; it joins two clauses that are antithetical, or where a contrast is intended. The contrast is between the principle which does not work and how the illustrative principle does work out. The conditional particle eán (ἐάν) [pronounced eh-AHN] introduces the protasis of a 3rd class condition, the condition of probability. With it a supposition from the viewpoint of probability. The subject is the nominative singular from anêr (ἀνὴρ) [pronounced ah-NAIR] with the definite article, and correctly translated "but if her husband."

Then the aorist active subjunctive of apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]. This is the constative aorist contemplating the action of the verb in its entirety, and this use of the aorist refers to the momentary action at salvation where the divorce occurs. The active voice: the first husband produces the action of the verb by dying and/or being the object of divorce. The subjunctive mood is for a potential subjunctive in a 3rd class condition—"but if her husband has died [physical death or divorce]." This is analogous to the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation and resultant retroactive positional truth.

“she is free from the law” – present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] for “she is.” The present tense is a static present for a condition or circumstance perpetually existing. He is dead after the divorce is final. It is finalized instantly at the moment of salvation. The active voice: the wife, analogous to the believer, produces the action. She is dead to her first husband. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the standpoint of dogmatic reality. Plus the predicate nominative feminine singular from the adjective eleútheros (ἐλεύθερος) [pronounced el-YOO-ther-oss], describing the result of divorce or death; it refers to freedom, having the connotation of being independent and not bound. In this case obviously from the husband, but also from the marriage counselor. In the second marriage there is a new counselor, the Holy Spirit. Then ἀπό (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the nominative from nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]—“free from the law.” The definite article can be used here as a demonstrative pronoun—“from that law.”

“so that she is” – this is a result clause made up of an infinitive plus a definite article, tou + the negative + the infinitive εἶναι (εἶναι) [pronounced ī-nī or ī-nah-ee] (Bob mentions “eis” several times, but it is not found in any of the manuscripts which I refer to). This is used for a conceived result that follows the nature of a case, or is assumed logically as a consequence. The infinitive is the present active infinitive of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], “she is no adulteress.”

The accusative singular of general reference for a subject of the infinitive, αὐτός (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] is the intensive pronoun in the accusative case for the infinitive must have a subject. It is the feminine form of αὐτός (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] and it should be translated “the same one,” the same one who was divorced from her husband. That same one may now have an intimacy with a man without being classified as adulterous. Plus the negative adverb μή (μή) [pronounced may] which denies the idea that she could now be so classified. Then the present active infinitive of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the customary present plus the negative denotes what does not habitually occur. This classification is not possible and in this way Paul has taken his wandering mind congregation and brought them right back to the subject. The active voice: the wife does produce the action of the verb. The infinitive is conceived result which follows the nature of the case. It is assumed as the logical consequence from the previous illustration, verse 2. So she is not an adulteress, the accusative singular of moichalis (μοιχαλῖς) [pronounced moy-khal-IHS].

Principle: The actual case in the analogy is now presented. The believer is married to Christ through current positional truth and is not an adulteress because of that relationship with Christ. This is where the minds went. Paul anticipated subjective minds wandering off into the wrong direction.

“though she be married to another [man]” – the aorist active participle of the verb gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my] which means to become. The culminative aorist views the event in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results, namely current positional truth, marriage to the second husband immediately following the divorce. The active voice: the wife of the first husband now dead produces the action of the verb, being married to a second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ. This is a concessive participle, therefore translated “though she has become.” Then is added the word “married” to clarify the analogy, to héteros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os] anêr (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ah-NAIR], “another man,” the Lord Jesus Christ.

Romans 7:3 So then if, while her husband is living, she has become intimate with another man, she shall be classified as an adulteress; but if her husband has died [or divorced] she is freed from that law; so that she is not an adulteress, though she has become married to another man.

Interpreting Romans 7:3

1. As far as the analogy is concerned the first husband, the old sin nature does not actually die. Death here is divorce.
2. This is the presentation of the illustrative principle, and noting the fact that their subjectivity intrudes—people wander from the subject, and therefore this is not the working out of the principle at the beginning of the verse. This pattern must be understood for the interpretation of this verse.
3. Actually, it is the wife who dies/divorces the first husband at salvation.
4. The wife or the believer does or divorces through the principle of retroactive positional truth. While the wife dies to the first husband by divorcing him at salvation the husband, the old sin nature, does not die to the wife in the sense he wants her back, and therefore remains very active in trying to seduce her back to the first marriage.
5. Remember that good and evil is the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of human life.
6. By union with Christ in His spiritual death the believer or wife has positionally rejected good and evil, positionally separated from good and evil, positionally divorced good and evil; and therefore, by current positional truth has married the Lord Jesus Christ.

The wife/new believer has a new husband; but she is not an adulteress for doing this.

Lesson #236

236 10/31/1977 Romans 7:4a Military resolutions; privacy for GAP; believer back under the old sin nature and three codices of the Mosaic Law

Some resolutions from a veterans group (Veterans of the World Wars) that Bob belongs to. Keep the Panama Canal under US control. Allow looters during a crisis to be shot on sight. Continued occupation of border between North and South Korea. These men recommend everything that is in complete agreement with Bible doctrine. This is the establishment doctrine taught in the Word of God.

Reading of vv. 1–3. Classified is an impersonal term, and it means that we do not intrude on their privacy, which includes their sex life. The exception is parents over children. Once they get out of the home, they will find these things out the hard way.

Only cuckoos run around and admit their sins to everyone. The order of the day in church is privacy. You cannot come in and pay attention if you know that half the congregation is looking at you out of the corner of their eye.

Everyone in church must have their privacy; and Bob will go overboard to make certain that we have our privacy in church. Bob would never have a beard; but someone who wants to come and listen with a beard, that is okay. People should recognize that Berachah is the one place that they can come and have complete privacy.

Romans 7:4 Likewise, my brothers, you also have been put to death to the Law through the body of Christ, for you to belong to another, to the One having been raised out from the dead, so that we should bear fruit to God. (BLB)

Verse 4 – how the principle does work out. “Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ.” The conjunction hōste (ὥστε) [pronounced HOH-steh] is used to introduce an independent clause—“therefore,” followed by the indicative. Plus the vocative plural from adelphos (ἀδελφός) [pronounced ad-el-FOSS], referring to all believers. It is a reminder that all of us as believers are in the same family, born into it in the same way. We were born again, but we were born again at different times. Furthermore, not all of us have had the same opportunities at the same time, nor have we used the same opportunities to take in doctrine. We cannot all be put in the same mold. There is no cookie cutter apparatus to make us all the same. We are not alike in any way. We are royal family of God; and we are all different. We expect too much of others and not enough of ourselves. None of us are free from distractions or from temptation. And if you are envious of any other person, you are a fool.

With the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai and the nominative plural subject, su—“Therefore, my brethren, you also.” Plus the aorist active indicative of thanatōō (θανατώω) [pronounced thahn-aht-OH-oh], meaning to put to death, but in the passive it means “made to die.” You were made to die, to be divorced from the first husband, the old sin nature positionally. The constative aorist gathers into one entirety the action of the verb. It contemplates the baptism of the Spirit and resultant retroactive positional truth in its entirety. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb through retroactive positional truth at the moment of salvation. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

Next, instead of having the husband mentioned, we have instead the marriage counselor. This is because when you go back to the marriage counselor of the first marriage of the first marriage, the Mosaic law was perfect, it did a great job pointing out our problem and the solution—dative of reference singular from the noun nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], used for the Mosaic law as the marriage counselor. The definite article denotes a precious reference to the Mosaic law as the marriage counselor in Romans

6:14, 15. Then dia plus the ablative of means from sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah], used here for the physical body of our Lord in hypostatic union. Plus the generic use of the definite article emphasizing the uniqueness of our Lord's humanity from the virgin birth to resurrection, and the possessive genitive from Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]—"the body of the Christ." This is a reference to Christ on the cross. The ablative of means is used because of origin involved. Married to Christ through current positional truth means and demands greater things from us. Therefore since the second marriage is so infinitely superior to the first it demands a higher and a greater marriage counselor, that one being God the Holy Spirit.

Husband and a wife used to go to Berachah. They left. She was worried about two Christians being married. She went to a marriage counselor and eventually has an affair with the marriage counselor. The marriage was over; and she stayed with the marriage counselor.

1977 Romans

Lesson #237

237 11/01/1977 Romans 7:4b Marriage analogy (cont.); children of the marriage to Jesus Christ

Paul F. Reardon in the battle of Monte Casino. He led an assault platoon. His command was pinned down. He moved out in full view of the enemy and he moved close enough to throw a grenade 45 yards for a direct hit. The company took the objective. He reached the building, but his men were unable to follow him. He moved in and was killed, after killing at least two of the enemy.

The 45 is the only anti-personnel handgun. Another medal to a Lieutenant Robinson. It is because of men like him that we can assemble and study the Word of God.

Romans 7:4 Likewise, my brothers, you also have been put to death to the Law through the body of Christ, for you to belong to another, to the One having been raised out from the dead, so that we should bear fruit to God. (BLB)

The human body of Christ received the imputation of all of our sins.

Divorce is tantamount to death.

"that ye should be married to another" – the preposition eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the infinitive to introduce a result clause, and with it is an articular infinitive. The articular infinitive is something that you learn only in Classical Greek. It must be remembered that there is a great distinction between the Koine Greek of the New Testament and the Koine Greek found in extra-biblical manuscripts of the time. Much of the New Testament Koine Greek is really Attic Greek, pure Classical Greek. The articular infinitive is actually Classical Greek idiom. We have an actual result here. An articular participle or an articular infinitive becomes a noun, and that affects the meaning of the Greek.

Plus the accusative plural of general reference from the personal pronoun su which is used as the subject of the infinitive. The pronoun refers to all believers. Then the aorist active infinitive from the verb gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my] which means to become, but here means to become intimate, referring to intimacy in marriage. The aorist tense is a constative aorist for an instantaneous action at salvation. The instantaneous action is whereby God the Holy Spirit who enters us into union with Christ retroactively—the divorce from the first husband, the old sin nature—also enters us into union with Christ seated at the right hand of the Father. This is the second marriage where the Lord Jesus Christ becomes the groom and the Church becomes first of all the body of Christ, and then for an official marriage prior to the Second Advent we have the bride later on. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb at salvation through current positional truth. The infinitive is an infinitive of actual result. What this is saying in effect is that when you believe in the Lord Jesus Christ it is also tantamount to a marriage ceremony in which the bride says, “I do.” Translation: “with the result that you might become.”

Then the dative of indirect object from the adjective héteros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os], which means another of a different kind, i.e. the Lord Jesus Christ who is totally different from the old sin nature. Identification with Christ in His resurrection, ascension and session is current positional truth and is tantamount to the second marriage to the Lord Jesus Christ. Often the dative of indirect object indicates the one in whose interest the baptism of the Spirit occurs, and it is to our advantage to have a relationship that no believer in the past ever had. We are royal family of God as a result. So through the baptism of the Holy Spirit the Lord Jesus Christ has a royal family for His battlefield royalty in the angelic conflict.

“even to him who is raised from the dead” – again, this emphasizes current positional truth which starts with the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ. The articular aorist active participle from the verb egeirô (ἐγείρω) [pronounced ehg-Ī-row] used for the literal, bodily resurrection of Christ. The definite article is used as a relative pronoun. The culminative aorist tense views the resurrection of Christ in its entirety but regards it from the viewpoint of existing results: ascension, session, glorification, battlefield royalty. The passive voice: Christ received the action of the verb through two agencies. The resurrection of Christ was accomplished by God the Father—Colossians 2:12; 1Timothy 1:10; 1Peter 1:21. God the Holy Spirit was also involved—Acts 2:24; Romans 1:4; 8:11; 1Peter 3:18. Both are mentioned as agents of resurrection because of this analogy in which Christ is the second husband and God the Holy Spirit is the marriage counselor. The circumstantial participle means “even to him who has been raised up.”

The resurrection of Jesus Christ is personally related to each one of us. It was not easy. To whom much is given, much is expected. But this does not mean that you must get out there to do something great for God.

The husband suddenly wakes up and asks, where is all the glow and go? What has happened? Marriage is not a romantic novel. How your marriage works out is what you do every day. When you say, I do, you are agreeing to be the man’s slave. You go to bed every day a slave and you wake up every day a slave. The key is not what you do once and awhile, but what you do every day.

We are expected every day to make positive, correct decisions for the Lord Jesus Christ. Bible doctrine.

The most difficult thing in the world to be a good slave; and it is also difficult to be a good disciple. God wants you to live for Him consistantly one day at a time as His slave.

We do not belong to ourselves; none of us do. When the time comes, we have the doctrine and the Lord will have the place or situation where you can apply it.

We are moving toward the saturation point of good and evil and it is about to erupt.

Then ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative plural from the adjective nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS]. The adjective is plural but it should be translated “dead.” You would ordinarily says “dead ones”—“who has been raised up from among dead ones.” That would be a correct description of resurrection because we do have here a literal, physical, bodily resurrection. But that really isn’t what it means because the adjective is used as a substantive. The definite article with nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS], and that would be translated as an adjective “from among the dead ones.” However, here we do not have a definite article. This is what is called in a preposition phrase, anarthrous construction. The noun is not preceded by the definite article. The absence of the definite article in a prepositional phrase changes the meaning of that adjective which is used as a substantive. It emphasizes the qualitative aspects of nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS], and there is not qualitative in the “dead ones” of nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS] but there is something qualitative about “deaths”—“from deaths,” resurrection from deaths, not dead ones. The correct translation: “to him who has been raised up from deaths”—spiritual and physical death. Christ died twice on the cross.

“that we should bring forth fruit unto God” – a purpose clause: the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] introduces a final clause to denote aim, purpose objective. We have an objective here. We are married to another to produce. The human race is perpetuated by a relationship between a man and a woman, and this is called fruit or production. So in the old marriage we had children, now in the new marriage we have children. The children of the first marriage: sin, good, evil. Now we are married to Christ, the wife is the believer, the Holy Spirit is the marriage counselor, and now new children are to be produced. This time maturity adjustment to the justice of God which glorifies the Lord Jesus Christ. But it is possible for the believer to go back to the old sin nature and produce sin, good, and evil. It doesn’t mean he is an unbeliever, it simply means that he is unfaithful to the second husband.

Plus the aorist active subjunctive from the compound verb karpophoreō (καρποφορέω) [pronounced kahr-pohf-EH-oh]; from [karpos = fruit; phoreō = to bear] – “in order that we might bear fruit.” Bearing fruit here: the children of the marriage in the analogy. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist, it views the advance to spiritual maturity in its entirety but it emphasizes the viewpoint of existing results. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb through the daily function of GAP. The teaching of Bible doctrine is the Lord Jesus Christ making love to the believer. The believer can accept or reject that love. The Bible doctrine must become epignōsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] before it means spiritual advance. This is the potential subjunctive implying a future reference qualified by the element of contingency. The contingency is based upon individual attitude toward Bible doctrine. Plus the dative of indirect object from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] emphasizing the one in whose interest maturity adjustment is attained. It has the definite article to indicate in this case someone well known to the readers.

Romans 7:4 Therefore, my brethren, you also were made to die with reference to the law by the human body of the Christ; with the result that you might belong to another, to the one who has been raised up from deaths [spiritual and physical], in order that we might bear fruit to the God.

Principle #1

1. The production of union with Christ in His resurrection is maturity adjustment to the justice of God which glorifies the Lord Jesus Christ.
2. This can only be accomplished through the daily function of GAP, i.e. perception of doctrine under the ministry of one's right pastor.
3. Hence, Bible doctrine resident in the soul is the seed planted for the harvest of glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ. Bible doctrine resident in the soul is the means of glorifying the Lord Jesus Christ.
4. Doctrine resident in the soul is the seed which produces the harvest of glory to God and at the same time that ultimate in life: direct blessings from the justice of God to the mature believer.
5. Note that this verse emphasizes that the Mosaic law, while perfect in its proper function, is not the marriage counselor for the second marriage.
6. The Holy Spirit is presented as the marriage counselor for the second marriage in the middle of verse 6.
7. Therefore, death to the old husband or divorce from the first husband through retroactive positional truth also includes death or divorce to the Mosaic law as the marriage counselor of the first marriage.

Romans 7:4 Therefore, my brethren, you also were made to die with reference to the law by the human body of the Christ; with the result that you might belong to another, to the one who has been raised up from deaths [spiritual and physical], in order that we might bear fruit to the God.

Principle #2

1. The baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation provides the analogy of divorce from the first husband and marriage to the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ. This explains the phrase "by the human body of the Christ" in our translation.

2. This verse implies that divorce is death to the former mate in marriage.
3. Therefore to die with reference to the law means that the Mosaic law, the marriage counselor for the first marriage, is no longer functional or operational. We go to a higher marriage counselor.
4. In other words, the Mosaic law has fulfilled its function in providing information for the divorce from the first husband.
5. Codex #1 of the Mosaic law, the commandments, presents the problem of spiritual death in the first marriage.
6. The first marriage occurred at physical birth with two real imputations. Human life imputed to the soul; and Adam's original sin to the sin nature.
7. Retroactive positional truth is divorce from the first husband at salvation, while current positional truth is marriage to the second husband at salvation.
8. The purpose is stated at the end of the verse: "in order that we might bear fruit to the God." No one bears fruit to God in status quo spiritual death. We have to be alive to God before we can bear fruit to God. This is accomplished through maximum doctrine resident in the soul resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

Lesson #238

238 11/02/1977 Romans 7:5 Intro. review of the doctrines of the baptism of the Holy Spirit and positional truth

Bob said that he would give this doctrine one more time, but then, after that, he will dust them. See The Baptism of the Holy Spirit \(lesson #189\).

You don't need to tell people what you agree with and what you don't agree with. It is not what you agree or disagree with me, that is irrelevant. What you learn from Bob is what is important. He is an expert and we are not.

A Church of Christ minister approached Bob and asked him if he was baptized by immersion. "Oh, thank God; that means you are saved!"

The church is not built on Simon-Peter; it is built upon Christ Jesus. "I will build my church (future tense) and the gates of Hades will not overcome it."

The Doctrine of Positional Truth is reviewed. It was first studied in Lesson #190, and that is where the notes will be found.

Lesson #239

239 11/03/1977 Romans 7:5 Intro. MacArthur (CMH); racism; doctrine of retroactive positional truth; migrations to the United States

Douglas MacArthur was prepared in the Philippines for attacks from Japan; he could see way beyond what others could see. As a divisional commander, he was out ahead of his point. Great combat and moral courage. He is a misunderstood man. He mobilized, trained, and led an army against superior forces. A personal disregard for personal safety when under fire. He had rational courage. Never once did he doubt that God had a purpose for his life. This rational courage is almost nonexistent today.

We enjoy our freedom by studying the Word of God each night.

The Doctrine of Retroactive Positional Truth is in lesson #196 (notes are there).

The review includes the two marriages, the unbeliever to the sin nature; and the believer to Jesus Christ. Marriage counselors and children.

Every woman is the slave of husband she marries, which can be good, if her strength of love is enough.

Bob was watching the news and an atheist woman, Murray-O'Hair kept disrupting the prayer. When the woman rejects the existence of God, she rejects the ultimate in authority. She rejects every type of authority. She kept interrupting a prayer. "Don't touch me!" she said. "That is probably the only time she has had a chance to say this."

Bob does not see how such a woman could have a happy marriage if they have rejected all forms of authority.

Bob reads Romans 7:1-4.

Bob now goes back to a review of the Doctrine of Retroactive Positional Truth is in lesson #196 (Bob goes to part B). Current positional truth will be saved for Romans 8.

There is no such thing as a racial issue among Christians. The communists are raising the racial issue in order to destroy the western world (the free world). Many races are hypersensitive about their race and things said. Racial issues is a satanic device. When you get involved in things like this, you are arrogant. The exploitation of this today is the function of Marxism. You are a sucker and a fool and lacking in Bible doctrine if you fall for that stuff. As a born-again believer, how could you begin to think such a thing. We are born again because God has a framework for your life in your race. That is a simple application; so why be a sucker. Marxism is a satanizing of racism.

Those who reject Bible doctrine tend to become duped by communism and their propaganda. Do not blame your rotten personality on racism. If you are persecuted at all, it is probably your fault. And if you think it is racial discrimination, who thinks they can get justice by the courts of this world?

Bob thinks that all of these books written about him are anti-Scot and anti-Germany. See how stupid that is? It is God Who has a purpose for you life. If God only used black haired and brown eyed people, we would all be black haired and brown eyed. Communism tries to exploit racism.

We do not condone slavery, but people were brought to the United States on purpose by God.

Bob thinks that the next great opening could occur in Mexico. The Catholic church and communism have been very antagonistic toward one another; but the truth gets lost there. There is a tremendous amount of illegal immigration out of Mexico; and this movement for our country may be indicative of positive volition.

God has a purpose for your life as a believer, and it is not to be a Marxist agitator.

Arabs are not to even look into our direction; but we are getting a massive number of Arabs moving into the United States. They are free to believe what they want to believe; but that does not happen in any Arabic nation.

People are coming from everywhere to the United States. Racism is not an issue; your social life is not an issue.

Why are you an American? Why are you here? God is going to use you. God uses everyone, regardless of their vocation. The spiritual battle for our country is far greater than al of these other petty concerns like racism.

There is a population shift taking place right now like never seen before.

Lesson #240

240 11/04/1977 Romans 7:5–6a Children of the first and second marriages; functions of the three codices of the Mosaic Law

No tracts to be left in Berachah Church, no businesses are to solicit here; and no materials on Democrats or Republicans to be left here. Trying to use the Lord in any business or any other endeavor. This has been the policy of Berachah and will continue to be so as long as Bob is in charge.

Some form of production is in the realm of possibility.

Romans 7:5 For while we were in the flesh, the passions of sins that were through the Law were at work in our members, to the bringing forth of fruit to death. (BLB)

Verse 5 – we go back to review the production of the first marriage. “For when we were in the flesh,” a reference to the analogy to the first marriage, to being an unbeliever. The explanatory use for the conjunctive particle gar, “for”—and explanation is forthcoming, followed by the temporal particle hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] used as a temporal conjunction, plus the imperfect active indicative of the verb eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be. The imperfect tense is a progressive imperfect for linear aktionsart in past time. This is also known as the imperfect of duration, indicating that in past time, from birth to salvation, the old sin nature was the husband, the absolute authority. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb under the sovereignty of the first husband, now divorced, the old sin nature. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the standpoint of reality.

Then the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative singular of sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx] for the old sin nature—“For when we were in the flesh,” or better, “For while we were in the flesh [OSN].” This is a reference to the status quo of the unbeliever from birth, all the way to salvation. And if this status quo remains after salvation it becomes classified as carnality or reversionism. Carnality is sinning without rebound. The sovereignty of the old sin nature has been broken by the baptism of the Holy Spirit and subsequent retroactive positional truth. Hence, this phrase refers to the unbeliever’s status in life.

We are all condemned by Adam’s sin. Personal sins are reserved for the cross. At salvation, God imputes His righteousness to us, and that establishes the grace pipeline. This is a judicial imputation. Eternal life is a real imputation, as it is imputed to God’s Own righteousness. We cannot penetrate the grace pipeline with anything, like tithing or living right, etc. This eliminates legalism.

It is not the imputation of personal sins to the cross that is in view in retroactive positional truth, it is the rejection of good and evil, the other two trends of the old sin nature. When good and evil are rejected as the other two trends this is tantamount to the rejection of the first husband followed by the separation from the first husband, followed by divorce. This is the concept of retroactive positional truth.

Agamemnon, who agreed to sacrifice his daughter in order to win in Troy. When he returned, 20 years later, his wife drew him a bath. While he relaxed, she threw a net over him and his wife and her lover cut him up into little pieces.

Or Helen, whose face launched a thousands ships. These emotional trends of those who act under impulse or under a trend. That is pathêma (πάθημα) [pronounced PATH-ay-mah].

When some people have problems getting pregnant, that is okay. Sometimes that is God’s plan. Such people should not have children or even adopt.

“the motions of sins” – incorrectly translated. The nominative plural subject pathêma (πάθημα) [pronounced PATH-ay-mah] means sufferings, misfortunes, passions. The noun was used in the Greek to denote what befalls a man and has to be accepted by him. It really means impulse or trend, following an impulse or trend. With this is the possessive genitive plural from the noun hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], referring to personal sins which are categorized in three classifications: mental sins, verbal sins, and overt sins. So we translate: “the sinful impulses” or “the sinful trends.” The sinful impulses refer to the children of the first marriage. If you continue to function in good and evil then you are unfaithful to the second husband because the only children in the second marriage is the filling of the Holy Spirit + the consistent function of GAP = maturity adjustment to the justice of God. This means that the production that glorifies God are the blessings that the justice of God provides for the mature believer, blessings which are secure, blessings for which you have capacity.

If, after salvation, you continue to function in good and evil, then you are being unfaithful to your new husband. There is only one production in the second marriage.

How do we know the trend is sinful? Codex #1 defines sin in all of its categories; it makes it clear what personal sin is.

“which were by the law” – the nominative plural definite article used as a relative pronoun, “which,” the preposition dia plus the genitive of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] with the definite article: “which through the law.” The law is the marriage counselor.

“did work in our members” – imperfect middle indicative of the verb energēō (ἐνεργέω) [pronounced en-erg-EH-oh], which means to be operative or effective, or to be at work: “which through the law were effective,” i.e. we understood these things as sin because they were defined for us by the marriage counselor. The progressive imperfect tense of duration denotes that occurred in the past up to the time of salvation, the divorce from the first husband. The middle voice is the dynamic middle which emphasizes the part taken by the subject in the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

Plus the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural from mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss], referring to the human body, and especially to the brain where these things are programmed; and the possessive genitive plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“our.”

“to bring forth fruit unto death” – eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] used in order to indicate a result clause, plus the accusative of the definite article with the articular infinitive, aorist active infinitive of the verb karpophorēō (καρποφορέω) [pronounced kahr-pohf-EH-oh] – to bear fruit or to produce, resulting in the production of fruit. The constative aorist gathers up into one entirety the rulership of the old sin nature over the life of the individual from physical birth to the new birth. The active voice: the trends of the old sin nature produce the action of the verb. The infinitive is the infinitive of actual result. Plus the instrumental of association singular from thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], used here for spiritual death.

Romans 7:5 For while were in the flesh [OSN], the sinful [impulses or] trends which through the law were effective in our members, resulting in the production of fruit associated with spiritual death.

Principle

1. Obviously this is a reference to the past, prior to salvation which through the two imputations at physical birth we became spiritually dead and therefore related to the old sin nature.
2. The two real imputations which occurred at physical birth combined to produce the status quo of the first marriage.
3. The result of spiritual death was not only the sovereign rule of the old sin nature over life, but the function of its trends.
4. In this passage the old sin nature's trend toward sin is the one emphasized because this trend was solved at the cross.
5. The Mosaic law demonstrates these personal sins as sin—Romans 3:20; 1Timothy 1:9,10.

Principle

1. Through the Law simply means that the Law acts as a marriage counselor for the first marriage. The Law analyzes the problem; it reveals the problem. Personal sin in a manifestation of that marriage.
2. The sin nature is located in the cell structure of the body.
3. Production by the sin nature refers to sin, good and evil.
4. The children of the first marriage, the trends toward good, evil and sin.
- 5.
6. Therefore the Mosaic Law is a marriage counselor demonstrating the problems and fallacies of the first marriage.
7. As a marriage counselor, the Law is perfect.

By way of contrast, v. 6—production within the first and second marriages:

Romans 7:6 But now we have been released from the Law, having died to that which we were bound, in order for us to serve in newness of the Spirit, and not in oldness of the letter. (BLB)

Verse 6 – “But now we are delivered from the law” begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle de, used to connect two clauses where a contrast is intended. First clause: production of the first marriage; second clause: production of the second marriage. The adverb of time nuní (vuví) [pronounced noo-NEE] refers to the fact that we are now in the second marriage—“now,” referring to salvation adjustment to the justice of God and current positional truth by which we became married to the Lord Jesus Christ.

The verb is the aorist passive indicative of katargeô (καταργέω) [pronounced kaht-ahrg-EH-oh], which means to be ineffective, powerless, to abolish. In the passive voice it means to be released from an association with something. “But now we have been released.” It is a verb of divorce. The aorist tense is a culminative aorist which views the baptism of the Spirit at salvation in its entirety, it views it here from existing results, namely the release from the first husband and release from the marriage counselor.

The Mosaic law is not the marriage counselor of the second marriage. When you divorced the first husband by believing in Christ you left the law behind. Then the prepositional phrase από (ἀπό) [pronounced aw-PO] plus the ablative of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]—“But now we have been released from the law.” The marriage counselor from the first marriage has no good advice the offer for the second marriage.

Once you accept the solution, you cannot go back to the first marriage or the marriage counselor for the first marriage.

Principle

1. The Mosaic law was the marriage counselor of the first marriage between mankind and the old sin nature.
2. The first marriage existed from birth to regeneration.
3. The divorce is based on salvation adjustment to the justice of God, i.e. faith in Christ.
4. The divorce part in salvation is retroactive positional truth. The believer has rejected, separated and divorced the old sin nature.
5. Remember that good and evil is the function of the first husband, the old sin nature. God and evil is used as the principle.
6. The Mosaic law as the marriage counselor taught the fact of the old sin nature and the function of the old sin nature’s trends.
7. The law counselled that mankind has a bad marriage in relationship to the old sin nature.
8. The law also points to the solution, revealing salvation—Levitical offerings, the various articles of furniture in the tabernacle, the holy days, the modus operandi of the Levitical priesthood.
9. Once mankind has believed in Christ the law can do nothing further as a marriage counselor since the believer is married to Christ through the baptism of the Spirit and current positional truth.
10. Therefore, the believer has been released from the law as the marriage counselor of the first marriage—Romans 10:4.

1977 Romans

Lesson #241

241 11/06/1977 Romans 7:6b MacArthur re Nov. 11; abuse of authority; can't rebound good and evil

We are a free country only because of our armed forces. November 11th is the great holiday coming up.

A few words by Douglas MacArthur, speaking of the citizen soldier and the professional soldier. I think that this was the dedication of MacArthur Park. It can be found here: http://kukis.org/Samuel/2Sam_18.pdf

His words were prophetic. Our people interacting with our enemies are traitors.

The Law is perfect, but it has very limited objectives with it.

“You look like you are all under the great pressure of divine discipline.” The worst and best things come out of marriages.

When men get married, the sometimes become corrupted with their power over the woman.

Bob was very heavily hooked up with campus crusade; and wrote material for them; before he understood.

We’ve got a good thing going on here this morning, but it might become evil if it overlaps to the football game today.

Romans 7:6 But now we have been released from the Law, having died to that which we were bound, in order for us to serve in newness of the Spirit, and not in oldness of the letter. (BLB)

“that being dead wherein we were held” – there is no word for “that” in the original, or any grammatical construction that demands it. There is simply the aorist active participle from the verb apothnêskō (ἀποθνῄσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]. The aorist is a constative aorist which gathers up into one entirety the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation, referring to that momentary action when we believe in Christ. The active voice: the believer produces the action of the verb a salvation through retroactive positional truth. This verb “to die” refers to divorce, not physical death—“by having died” or “through having died,” an instrumental participle which indicates the means by which the action of the verb is accomplished. Then en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the instrumental from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], translated “by which.” Plus the imperfect passive indicative of the verb katechō (κατέχω) [pronounced kaht-EH-khoh] which means to be suppressed or to be bound—“through having died to that by which we were suppressed.” This is a reference to the first marriage.

Romans 7:6a But now we have been released from the law as a marriage counselor, through having died to that by which we were bound [1st marriage to the OSN];...

The paragraphs coming before the exegetical study above perhaps should be placed after it.

242 11/06/1977 Romans 7:6c Power and the old sin nature corrupt; self-promotion; basic power is volition

Joseph Cleto Rodriguez received the medal of honor when fighting in the Philippines in the battle for Manila. We have freedom because of him.

When some men are given the power over a woman, they become tyrants. They cannot handle authority. Power corrupts.

Romans 7:6 But now we have been released from the Law, having died to that which we were bound, in order for us to serve in newness of the Spirit, and not in oldness of the letter. (BLB)

“that we should serve in newness of spirit” – the conjunction hōste (ὥστε) [pronounced HOH-steh] introduces the dependent purpose clause, and should be “for the purpose of.” Plus the present active infinitive of douleúō (δουλεύω) [pronounced dool-YOO-oh] which means to be a slave and therefore to be under authority.

Imputations and marriage analogy reviewed. God created the soul; and human life continues after death.

“No one is going to use Berachah Church in order to advance themselves. You will never advance by bribing God...I am in complete charge in this church.”

Adam could not lead a platoon of one; man allowed the woman to lead him. Because of that, Satan became ruler of this world. Satan can only be in one place at one time, and when he is in the United States, he mostly goes to CA.

“You men think if you have recruited your own, you could get the one good recruit. We have a lot of mismatches today.” Love is in the mind; it is not in the body. It is not the function of sex.

Bob cut many a friend off because they went one way and he went the other for doctrine. “We might even go all the way to Christmas without another incident—I doubt it.”

The secret to be a great leader to be a great lover is inside the soul. The psychiatrist today is where surgery was 500 years ago.

How many are you still blaming your problems on a tyrannical father or an unloving mother? Power corrupts government and individuals.

We have a whole movement of women saying that they are free spirits.

The infinitive has as its subject the accusative plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], and this is called the accusative of general reference, translated

“we.” It serves as the subject of the infinitive and it changes the translation, “so that we might serve as slaves.” The customary present tense denotes what may reasonably be expected to occur in the second marriage to the Lord Jesus Christ. It is the will of the second husband, the policy of the second husband, that the wife, the believer, crack the maturity barrier and receive from the justice of God those blessings of paragraph SG2 which glorify God and bring blessing to. When we understand this principle we cling to the divine viewpoint and we recognize that if God doesn’t promote us we are not promoted; if God doesn’t prosper us we are not prospered. The active voice: each one of us as believers. The infinitive is the infinitive of intended result, when the result is indicated as fulfilling a deliberate objective—“so that we might serve.”

Plus en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of kainótēs (καινότης) [pronounced kahee-NOHT-ace], “in newness,” newness in the sense of something incorruptible. The law can even be corrupted by human distortion, but the Holy Spirit is God and He is incorruptible. So there is the principle of corruptibility neutralising the effectiveness of the Mosaic law; but you cannot corrupt God. Then the ablative of means singular from pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], and this is anarthrous indicating the quality of the incorruptibility. This ablative expresses means when source is indicated. Translation: “that we might serve in a new marriage by means of [Holy] Spirit.” God the Holy Spirit will give the information to make a positive decision when it should be positive, a negative decision when it should be negative, provided that God the Holy Spirit has taken the information into your soul—Bible doctrine. God the Holy Spirit only uses doctrine. But the marriage counselor does not go where He is not wanted, and every time we commit a sin without rebound, and when we become involved in good and evil, then we are grieving and quenching the Spirit; we are not controlled by the Spirit. The Holy Spirit is the marriage counselor for the new marriage to Christ. Hence, the Holy Spirit through doctrine provides the motivation, the inspiration, and the reality of our relationship to the Lord.

Sooner or later, everyone latches onto a gimmick. They have some kind of a plan, back there on the back burner, just waiting to launch it.

“and not in the oldness of the letter” – the connective use of the conjunction kai and the negative adverb ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo], “and not.” We are all through with the old marriage counselor. Then the locative singular of palaiótēs (παλαιότης) [pronounced pal-ah-YOT-ace], used Hebraistically as an adjective—“and not in the old marriage.” The ablative of means is from grámma (γράμμα) [pronounced GRAHM-mah] —“by the letter,” referring to the Mosaic law.

Adam was smart, stronger and better looking than anyone here; and the same is true of the woman. But they had power; they had volition, plus and minus. Power is corruptible. The woman took the fruit from the tree; and the man took the fruit from her hand. They chose corruption.

No one grows by the Law; we grow by the function of the Holy Spirit by means of Bible doctrine.

Romans 7:6 But now we have been released from the law as a marriage counselor, through having died to that by which we were bound [1st marriage to the OSN]; that we might serve in a new marriage by the Spirit, not in the old marriage by the letter.

1977 Romans

Lesson #243

243 11/07/1977 Romans 7:7a The Rangers; only the Mosaic Law reveals old sin nature trends; stay with the system

Throughout this week, Bob has been reading various medal of honor recipients. Also articles, like the Army's Fightingest outfit. Average age of 25; 199 came home out of 2000. The rest were left behind in hospitals, in prisons and in graves. An article about Rangers in WWII.

A defeat of the German army in one battle with no Ranger casualties. Our freedom to meet has been purchased on the battlefield.

Codex #1, #2 (ceremonial laws, presenting Jesus as the solution) and #3 (divine establishment laws).

Bob left seminary not knowing anything about imputations, despite getting an A in this subject. Romans has forced him to learn it and apply it.

It is incorrect that you become spiritually dead after your first sin. You are born spiritually dead. Adam's original sin is the basis for our spiritual death. Our personal sins were not imputed to us. They were imputed, instead, to Christ on the cross.

When we believe in Jesus Christ, there are two more imputations. Righteousness to every believer; and eternal life to every believer.

Prior to written revelation, the Mosaic Law was revealed in other forms. Hammurabi was not copied to get the Mosaic Law.

The 6th imputation is our objective, with is blessing based upon spiritual growth. There is a 7th which we will study in the future.

Verses 7-14: The function of the Mosaic law as a marriage counselor. Some unusual things about the law and how it functioned as a marriage counselor. There is nothing wrong with the law, even though people have distorted it into a system of legalism.

Verses 7, 8, the function of the law in exposing the old sin nature. All of the genius of the unbeliever cannot discover the old sin nature with its trends toward sin, good, and evil. Only the revelation from God provides the information. And revelation from God in God's Word, specifically the Mosaic law, reveals the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life ruling through spiritual death. Satan is the sovereign of this world but the old sin nature is the sovereign of human life. Mankind is blind to the status quo of the first marriage apart from the function of and ministry of the Mosaic law. Specifically, then, the Mosaic law is the marriage counselor indicating a bad first marriage and presenting the solution related to the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Law and Sin

Romans 7:7 What then shall we say? Is the Law sin? Never may it be! But I have not known sin, if not by Law. And indeed, I had not been conscious of covetousness if the Law had not said, “You shall not covet.”

Verse 7 – “What shall we say then?” The nominative neuter singular from the interrogative pronoun tis (τις) [pronounced tihç], and an inferential postpositive conjunctive particle oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon], used here for an inferential formula idiom. Plus the future active indicative of the verb légô (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] which means to say or to speak. The future tense is a deliberative future, and a deliberative future starts us on a Greek debater’s idiom. Questions of uncertainty are always expressed by the future indicative. Such questions may be real, asking for information, as here, or they may be rhetorical taking the place of a direct assertion. The active voice: Paul uses the rhetorical debater’s idiom to refute a distortion that there is something wrong with the law. The indicative mood is an interrogative indicative in which the indicative assumes that there is an actual fact which may be stated and answered to the debater’s idiom. The rhetorical question in the Greek (not in the English) debater’s technique to introduce the a false assumption, a false inference, from the previous paragraph regarding the function of the Mosaic law as a marriage counselor of the first marriage. Literally, the phrase is translated, “Therefore what shall we say?” But this is an idiom and you do not translate idioms literally. The idiom actually means, “Therefore to what conclusion are we forced?” Doctrinal teaching forces conclusions, leads to correct inference, and there is always the danger of distorting the correct inference. So no comes the false conclusion, an erroneous inference from the previous paragraph. The false conclusion is the erroneous assumption that the Mosaic law is no good.

“Is the law sin?” This is a rhetorical question stating a false conclusion in order to set it up as a straw man and knock it down. The nominative singular subject nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] refers to the Mosaic law. The definite article denotes a previous reference, it may be used to point out an object the identity of which has been previously defined in the context. Plus the predicate nominative singular subject hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], translated “Is the law sin?” The question represents the believer’s failure to rightly divide the Word of truth, and it also indicates a certain prejudice to dispense with the law as having no value of any kind. The predicate nominative hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] refers to the principle of sin here and not the sin nature. The law is a gift from God; it is designed by God, an instrument created by God.

“God forbid” – mê (μή) [pronounced may] genoito (γίνοιτο) [pronounced GEE-noyt-oh]. Literally, “Let it not be.” The word for “God” is theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], and it is not there in the original. The negative mê (μή) [pronounced may] denies the idea.

Genoito is the aorist active indicative of gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my]. The gnomic aorist is for the certainty of refuting a false allegation. The active voice: the assumption is false. Hence, a false assumption always produces false action. If you don't think right, you don't do right. "Let it not be" is an idiom meaning "Emphatically not."

Principle

1. In Romans chapter 6 the writer, the apostle Paul, communicates the fact of retroactive positional truth, namely that the believer is dead to the old sin nature (death is tantamount to divorce). When a divorce occurs between two people they are dead to each other for time and eternity. In Romans 7:1-6 Paul emphasized the believer's death to the Mosaic law. This is a part of the divorce. Once the advice of the Mosaic law is followed, namely to believe in Jesus Christ, then the divorce has occurred and also there is death to the marriage counselor.
2. Since both the Mosaic law and the old sin nature are placed in the same category of being dead to the believer a misconception on the part of some has arisen. Paul, in dealing with this misconception, is going to teach some doctrine.
3. Many of the believers in Rome to whom this was originally addressed erroneously assumed that the Mosaic law is evil because it is associated with the old sin nature, failing to pick up the point that it exposes the old sin nature. They assumed that since the old sin nature is evil, and since the law is placed in the same category as the old sin nature connected with the marriage, that the law also is evil.
4. Therefore Paul demonstrates that the law is not evil and not in any way related to the sin nature, except to expose it and to give a solution. Principle: That which exposes or reveals sin is not sin. That which reveals human good is not evil, and that which reveals evil is not evil. In other words, in demonstrating a hopeless marriage the marriage counselor is not sinful or evil in doing so.

You must think right in order to do right.

It is best to stick with the system rather than to destroy the system. When your car quits, you do not open the hood and beat the motor with a sledgehammer. You open up the hood, replace a few parts, and you preserve the overall system.

We will continue to have sin and problems till the Gog and Magog revolution.

Bob explains the system by talking about his sister, who became a WAC. She went from being a fashion model. Had he been under her, it would have been the hardest thing in the world to salute her, but he would do it.

This led to a story about a friend of Bob's who would hijack a plane and come and see him; and Bob had a WAC driver. When he was coming down from the plane, she saluted him, and he began to salute her, but planted one on her. That ruined the system and it took Bob a week to get her back into line.

A temptation for a believer functioning in good and evil in his life by destroying this or that system. But that is not what we are supposed to do.

You might marry a monster; that does not mean that marriage is bad; it just means that you have said I do to the wrong person. Is the Law sin for allowing divorce? It is the system dealing with the problems.

The systems in life are there for a purpose. We put our troubles in the Lord's hands and we let the system grind out.

Lesson #244

244 11/08/1977 Romans 7:7b; Exodus 20:17 MacArthur as a General; role of the Mosaic Law; lust: definition and illustration in trends

Life Magazine 1841 dated the day after Pearl Harbor, but the contents were all written prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor. The Americans in this magazine look like Americans.

This is about MacArthur in the Philippines. He graduated in 1903 and had broke several records, like getting engaged with 8 women at the same time. He denied this later, saying that he did not know that he was so heavily engaged with the enemy. MacArthur is a lover of the art of war. He was born in 1880 in Little Rock Barracks Arkansas.

Principles from previous lesson are repeated. It is impossible for God to be evil or for anything to come from God to be evil

The Law and Sin

Romans 7:7 What then shall we say? Is the Law sin? Never may it be! But I have not known sin, if not by Law. And indeed, I had not been conscious of covetousness if the Law had not said, "You shall not covet." (BLB)

We all start out in life knowing nothing; the same is true of beginning the spiritual life.

"Nay, I had not known sin, but by the law" – "Nay" is the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-l-LAH] which sets up a contrast between two clauses, and is translated "On the contrary." Then the aorist active of the verb ginôskô (γινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh] plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. In this phrase Paul is saying there was a time when he was ignorant. All of us were in a state of ignorance. "On the contrary I was not cognizant." The aorist tense is a constative aorist contemplating the action in its entirety. It takes the occurrence of Paul's ignorance of the old sin nature and regardless of the duration of that ignorance it gathers it up into one entirety. He could not understand the sin nature until he had some doctrine, the gospel, and the principle being that God the Holy Spirit takes gospel information and makes it real in our souls so that we can believe in Christ. We don't have to understand the old sin nature for salvation but some time after salvation we discover it. So the constative aorist is used to cover the area of ignorance.

The active voice: Paul as the human author produces the action of the verb by learning something. In doing so he is representing us at various stages of growth. The indicative mood is declarative for the fact that we have the reality that Paul worked this out on his own, whereas we have to be taught. Paul had to discover the sin nature in order to understand that there was much more happening in this world than just sin. Paul got down to the 10th commandment, something clicked in his genius brain.

The accusative singular direct object of the verb with the definite article refers to what he was ignorant of. Not sin as personal sin but the sin nature—hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah]—as the source of sin, as well as good and evil. The word “but” doesn’t occur here, it is ei (εἰ) [pronounced I] mê (μή) [pronounced may], a Greek idiom which means “except.”

Plus the prepositional phrase, dia plus the genitive of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], referring to the Mosaic law. There is nothing wrong with the Law. It reveals that the marriage is bad; it does not make the marriage bad.

“for I had not known lust” – lust is a system of thought that comes from the body. The OSN is in the body and the brain has programmed all of us to lust, to want something that is forbidden. Some people tithe in order to get something from God. Or they sing in the choir and they get praise and they love that.

This is the postpositive conjunctive particle gar used as an explanatory conjunction. It is translated in this case “for instance” because with it is the enclitic particle te.

Then the pluperfect active indicative from oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da] is used as an imperfect, so we deal with it as an imperfect rather than a pluperfect. It is the imperfect of duration, indicating ignorance in the past up to the time denoted by the context. The fact that the process in the past time was completed is the implication of the pluperfect used as an imperfect. The active voice: Paul produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative, representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

At T&P, when someone has a question, they are directed toward a tape. It is much better to get the information and then apply it.

Bob and flying. His illustration is, it is much better if you do it. Once you know how to fly, some of these aerial moves are quite fantastic. When you are able to fly, it is exhilarating. The same thing is true for the believer who gets to work things out for himself. This is known as being spiritually self-sustaining.

Plus the accusative singular direct object from the noun epithumia (ἐπιθυμία) [pronounced ep-ee-thoo-MEE-ah], with the generic use of the definite article representing a category—the lust pattern of the old sin nature. Lust must have a source, and the source of lust, the old sin nature, is in the body, not the soul. When lust moves into the soul, you get hangups or a syndrom (a consistent manifestation of a psychological malady).

It takes a lot of doctrine to get these lusts out of the soul. Lust includes illegal, illicit, sinful, backlash desires. The trends toward sin, good or evil. Someone shot the finger at Bob while driving and he chased him all over town, but never caught him. “That was killer lust; someone else might do that, and I would take that as an invitation.”

Most human good is done in order to get human approbation. The most un-American thing in the world is a ballot written in a second language.

Take any group of people in the world, and they have hangups.

Power lust. Everyone wants to set the policy. Authority always looks fine from the outside until you have it. The responsibility and the necessary integrity to go with authority

Romans 7:7 (so far) Therefor to what inclusion are we forced? Is the law sin? Emphatically not! I did not understand the lust pattern, except the Law said...

“except the law had said” – the nominative singular of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] with the definite article which indicates previous reference, plus the imperfect active indicative of légō (λέγω) [pronounced LEH-goh] referring to the 10th commandment: “except the law says.” The imperfect tense is the imperfect of duration. The active voice: the law produces the action as the marriage counselor. The indicative mood: it is a dogmatic reality, a dogmatic statement of fact.

The tenth commandment as literally translated from Exodus 20:17. You shall not lust for your neighbor’s house; you shall not lust for your neighbor’s wife, or his male servant, or his female slave, or his ox, or his donkey, or anything else that belongs to your neighbor. The tenth commandment not only deals with the subject of lust but it emphasizes the importance of human freedom in terms of property, privacy, and modus vivendi. In other words, you have a right to your privacy, your property, to a way of life that suits you.

These are things recognized by a legitimate government.

“Thou shalt not covet” – the negative ouk (οὐκ) [pronounced ook] which denies the reality of the alleged fact, used here as a negative of prohibition with the future active indicative of epithumia (ἐπιθυμία) [pronounced ep-ee-thoo-MEE-ah] which means to lust. This is an imperative future tense in which the future tense expresses a command. The active voice: the reader of the law produces the action. The indicative mood is potential. This can be lust in the realm of sin, good or evil.

Romans 7:7 Therefore to what conclusion are we forced? Is the law sin? Definitely not. On the contrary, I was not cognizant of the sin nature, except through the law; for instance, I did not understand the lust pattern, except the law kept on saying, You will not lust.

Lust and the Sin Nature

1. Lust implies origin or source. It isn’t the origin or source, it implies an origin or a source.

2. Since lust is prohibited by the 10th commandment the obvious conclusion is that trends of the old sin nature are to be restrained or inhibited.
3. The first nine commandments in the Decalogue are obviously overt, while the 10th commandment obviously is the missing link between the source [the old sin nature] and the actual sin or function of sin, good, evil. Murder, adultery and stealing are sins in the Ten Commandments; and the link between the source and these acts of sin is lust.
4. The genetically formed old sin nature constantly has desires which are inordinate. The old sin nature throws out impulses. Some of them are directed toward good, some toward evil, some toward sin. The old sin nature throws out impulses (Bob has been referring to them as lusts). These impulses might be directed toward sin, good or evil.
5. The old sin nature desires what belongs to others, whether people, property, possessions, authority, power, recognition, or approbation.
6. Having discovered lust through the law, the marriage counselor, Paul became cognizant of the first marriage to the old sin nature. He became aware of the fact that it occurred at birth.
7. Lust is the link between sin and its origin, the old sin nature.
8. Lust is the link between human good and its origin, the old sin nature.
9. Lust is the link between evil and its origin, the old sin nature.

A boy and a girl go to the movies, and they are smooching, then her favorite actor comes on the screen. In the meantime, the boy is ignored. Then, after the movie the boy runs this actor down. The boy comes out with a whole string of criticisms and the girl stands up for him. The boy gets all tied up in knots. This is the function of lust. This would fall into recognition and approbation.

Paul became cognizant of the first marriage, the old sin nature and us.

The lust for another's approbation, or another's authority, or whatever. Lust is a sinful, inordinate, illicit or illegal desire.

Lesson #245

245 11/09/1977 Romans 7:8a General Sir Walter Walker; doctrine of the Mosaic Law (review); three codices; thoughtfulness

We should fully understand the gospel, salvation, the essence of God; but key in all of this is imputations.

General Sir Walter Walker is mentioned. As the Vietnam War came to an end, Alexander Solzhenitsyn noted that the 3rd world war was over and the United States lost. The fourth world war would decide the fate of civilization.

Bob reviews the imputations and the two marriages.

The United States has no foreign policy; it somehow got shaken up beginning with Woodrow Wilson who was a history professor who did not understand history.

Walker warned the South Africa is today's front line and if that line is lost, we are lost.

Those who desire peace should prepare for war. Walker understands the baseline for war is to understand one's enemy thoroughly. "For your tomorrow, we gave our today. We have won the war but we have lost the peace."

A review of the first seven verses.

Romans 7:8 But sin, having taken an occasion by the commandment, produced in me all covetousness; for apart from the Law, sin is dead. (BLB)

Verse 8 – "But sin, taking occasion by the commandments." The postpositive conjunctive particle de is used to connect two clauses where some contrast is intended. There is a contrast here and so it is translated as an adversative conjunction, "But." Plus the nominative singular subject from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], referring to the old sin nature, with the definite article to denote a previous reference. This is, again, a reference to the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life ruling through spiritual death.

Then the aorist active participle from the verb lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh] which means to take or to grasp. The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist which states the present reality with the certitude of a past event. Obviously this is an idiom and it is an idiom device for emphasis. It is used for a state which has just been realized, or a result which has just been accomplished or on the point of being accomplished. The active voice: the sin nature produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial. With this is the object of the participle, the accusative singular direct object of aphormē (ἄφορμή) [pronounced af-or-MAY]. It means the starting point, the base of operation for an expedition. It also connotes the resources which are needed to carry out an undertaking and therefore it is often translated "capital." Generally the word connotes an occasion, a pretext, or an opportunity for something. "But the sin nature, having taken the opportunity." Plus the prepositional phrase dia with the genitive of entolē (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY], — "through the commandment." It refers to the tenth commandment.^[1] This was the commandment that we just studied.

The Mosaic Law. A review of the Doctrine of the Mosaic Law (which is found in Lesson #55). Returned to notes around 53:00.

"wrought in me all manner of concupiscence" – the aorist middle indicative of katērgázomai (κατεργάζομαι) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ahēe] means to achieve, to accomplish, to bring about, produce, create. We translate "produced in me." But the sin nature, having grasped the opportunity through the commandment, produced in me." In other words, first of all you see the commandment that you are not supposed to lust. Then the next thing you do is go out of your own free will and you lust. So there is the grasping of the opportunity.

The aorist tense is the culminative aorist viewing the function of the old sin nature in its entirety but emphasizing the existing results of the lust. The middle voice: deponent verb, middle in form but active in meaning. The old sin nature produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

Plus the prepositional phrase for “in me,” en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative singular of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]. Paul is using himself as a representative. This was his experience in the past but he is now a mature believer under the ministry of the Spirit writing these things, using himself as the representative. He is personalizing the doctrine. Before we knew that commandment we lusted—before cognizance. Now, after cognizance we still lust, only now we know what we are doing. We did it before because we wanted to; we do it now because we want to. But we know what we are doing now and we know that there is something inside of us producing this. Paul is presenting the battle of the two husbands. Lust is the missing link between all sin, but it is not just sin, it also applies to good and evil. Lust is the motivator of the volition to follow the old sin nature.

Some people become friends over their lust pattern. Some maybe the girl watchers group; and others may called it the wealth building group. Most Christian fellowship is based upon compatibility of lusts.

Next we have the accusative feminine singular from the adjective pás (πάς) [pronounced pahs], plus epithumia (ἐπιθυμία) [pronounced ep-ee-thoo-MEE-ah]—“every category of lust.” “But the sin nature, having grasped the opportunity through the commandment [10th commandment], produced in me every category of lust.” Why do we sin? We have a sin nature; and the link between our sin nature and sin, good and evil is the lust pattern. The Law simply defines why we are sinful; what we do that is sinful.

Law, disapprobation of society and isolation from society—this is how lust is dealt with in society. However, the Christian life is able to apply inner controls

Lesson #246

246 11/10/1977 Romans 7:8b Mitchell Paige, USMC, CMH; doctrine of the old sin nature (review); lust vs. tenth commandment

A firsthand account of a lengthy battle; some of it mostly with one man. 110 Japs counted in front of his sector. Mitchell Paige, a medal of honor recipient. This was on the Solomon Islands.

But the sin nature having grasped the opportunity through the commandment...

Romans 7:8 But sin, having taken an occasion by the commandment, produced in me all covetousness; for apart from the Law, sin is dead. (BLB)

Principle

1. The old sin nature used the prohibition of the 10th commandment to assert its authority over mankind through sponsoring disobedience to the 10th commandment. All corruption comes from this principle.
2. The law as a marriage counselor says to mankind, Do not lust. But the first husband, the old sin nature says, Lust in every category.
3. The law, by prohibiting lust, was a good marriage counselor.
4. The husband, the old sin nature, by demanding lust was an evil husband ruling through spiritual death.
5. Every category of lust refers to the trends of the first husband, the old sin nature. Lust in the trend toward sin includes covetousness, lasciviousness, sanguinary lust, hence killer lust.
6. Lust in the trend toward good and evil includes approbation lust, power lust, immolation to a guilt complex.
7. The old sin nature indwells the body, being genetically formed in the cell structure of the human body, including the brain.
8. The old sin nature is aggressive and belligerent, and the law commands to cease and desist from lust.
9. Using the 10th commandment as an opportunity to flaunt its sovereignty over life the old sin nature produces in the human being every category of lust.
10. Therefore, the old sin nature uses the 10th commandment to exercise its authority over human life through the function of lust.
11. The sin nature is the first husband impregnating mankind with lust. The law in the 10th commandment says, You will not lust. The old sin nature says, You will lust. The Mosaic law defines the relationship with the old sin nature as a bad marriage, a marriage which has resulted in spiritual death from the moment of birth.^[2]

A review of the doctrine of sin nature.

Romans 7:8 But sin, having taken an occasion by the commandment, produced in me all covetousness; for apart from the Law, sin is dead. (BLB)

“For without the law sin was dead” – the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar, plus the adverb chōros (χωρος) [pronounced KHOH-ross] used as an improper preposition, followed by the genitive singular from nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]. Translation: “For apart from the law.” Then the phrase hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS]—“sin was dead”; hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] in the singular referring to the old sin nature, the first husband from birth through the real imputation of Adam’s original sin to the genetically formed old sin nature. There is an affinity between Adam’s sin and the sin nature. Adam’s original transgression of cognizance is the origin of the old sin nature and the basis for its transmission in the perpetuation of the human race.

With this is the present active indicative from eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME] supplied, and then the predicate nominative feminine singular from the adjective nekros (νεκρός)

[pronounced nehk-ROSS], used here in the sense of being unknown. It does not mean death here, it means unknown. Death is used literally for physical death, but death is used figuratively for retroactive positional truth or divorce. Death is used for carnality, and death is now used for ignorance. What you do not know you are dead to. Apart from the Law, the sin nature is unknown to us.

Principle

1. You cannot solve a problem until you are aware that there is a problem.
2. The sin nature was dead in the sense of being unknown as a problem.
3. The Mosaic law and the 10th commandment caused mankind to become cognizant of the problem of the old sin nature and spiritual death.
4. Paul discovered that his spiritual death came from within him, not from any sin he was committing. The old sin nature resided in his body from birth.
5. Overt sin and the trend toward sin is the result of having the old sin nature, not the means.
6. The old sin nature, not the Mosaic law, is the culprit.

Romans 7:8 But the sin nature, having seized the opportunity through the commandment, produced in me every category of lust. For apart from the law the sin nature is dead [unknown].

Principle

1. Paul, like all of us, acquired the old sin nature at birth.
2. Paul, however, was ignorant of the marriage or the presence of the old sin nature until the law revealed it.
3. When Paul's ignorance was dispelled by the law he became aware of the residence of the old sin nature and the resultant problem of spiritual death.
4. You cannot solve a problem until you are aware of that problem.
5. The two real imputations at physical birth are unknown to all of us when we are born and for a long time thereafter. This ought to be common knowledge, but few know it.
6. Ignorance must be replaced with cognizance. This can only occur in two categories: #1, the communication of the Mosaic law to the unbeliever; #2, the communication of pertinent Bible doctrine to the believer, understood through the teaching ministry of God the Holy Spirit.
7. This is why the Mosaic law is the marriage counselor of the first marriage and the Holy Spirit is the marriage counselor of the second marriage.
8. Both marriage counselors are perfect. One marriage counselor is from God, the other is God.
9. The law is limited to counseling the first marriage because its content deals with the old sin nature, its function of lust, its trends toward sin, good and evil. Also, the law presents the solution. The law presents the gospel as the solution to spiritual death of the first marriage.

247 11/11/1977 Romans 7:9 Unknown Soldiers (Tombs); unbeliever's ignorance of the old sin nature; lusts invigorated by knowledge of them

This is the true day to celebrate freedom through military victory. After the armistist was signed, we won the next World War as well. An unknown soldier buried in Westminster Abbey, which is the who's who of people in England. The United States gave this man the US medal of honor. There is another unknown soldier in France.

Romans 7:9 And I once was alive apart from Law; but the commandment having come, sin revived, and I died;... (BLB)

Verse 9 – “For I was alive without the law once.” The postpositive conjunctive particle de is used as a transitional particle here. With it is the nominative singular personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], meaning “I,” and it is in the proleptic position which gives it very strong emphasis, plus the imperfect active indicative of the verb zaô (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh]—“Now I live.” The imperfect tense is the imperfect of duration which contemplates the process of having gone on in the past up to the time denoted by the context, but without any necessary inference as to whether or not the process is completed. In other words, for Paul he understands, for others who are learning, not yet. This is strong linear aktionsart in past time but as yet no meaning is conveyed. The active voice: the human writer, Paul, uses himself as the illustration. The indicative mod is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of absolute reality.

Then an adverb used as an improper preposition, chōros (χωρός) [pronounced KHOH-ross] plus the genitive, and the object of the preposition, nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]—“apart from the law.” This is followed by the enclitic particle of time, poté (ποτέ) [pronounced poht-EH], referring to some time in the past. It can be translated “formerly” or “once,” or better, “at one time.” Translation: “Now at one time I lived apart from the law.” That means to live under the tyranny of the first husband, to live under spiritual death, to be ruled by the old sin nature as the sovereign of human life, and not having any awareness of the problem until the Mosaic law presented it.

Bob had to read many commentaries on Romans and none of them analyzed Romans accurately.

It is remarkable that Paul is saying this, as Jews were trained in the Law from early childhood. How do we understand this?

Principle

1. This is a reference to the Mosaic law in the role of the marriage counselor of the first marriage. Paul, the human author, knew the law backwards and forwards. They memorized the Law in fact.

2. The marriage which produced spiritual death occurred through the real imputation of Adam's original sin to the genetically formed old sin nature. To discover the existence of the old sin nature in Paul's day was quite a problem because the New Testament canon was not yet written. While the Old Testament canon does teach the old sin nature (David taught it in Psalm 51) it is very difficult for the unbeliever to understand the existence of the old sin nature and many other things related to spiritual phenomena. So when the 10th commandment came into focus—"Thou shalt not lust"—that is how Paul went from his personal sins to the lust behind them, to the source of that lust which was the old sin nature.
3. While spiritually dead from this imputation, mankind is not aware of the fact.
 - a. This is why psychology has done many good things and many bad things. This is an example of someone groping around blindly and never putting their finger on the real problem. Psychology gropes. Sadler threw a little Christian doctrine into the thing; but generally speaking, psychology is the perfect illustration of the sin nature.
 - b. Maybe the evangelist could help us here? The evangelist has been unable to find the problem, where we all have the sin nature and we are all condemned by Adam's sin. He goes all around blindly trying to find the truth. Many evangelists have a stem-winder on a few sins. They think that they are evangelizing. They are just as blind as the psychologist. We have Adam's genes, and when Adam sinned, we sinned. There is a total magnetism between Adam's sin nature and Adam's original sin. One man in history sinned to get the sin nature; but we were all born with a sin nature. We sin because we are spiritually dead. Dead people always acts like dead people. A dead person cannot act like a living person.
4. Paul was aware of his life from the real imputation of life but he was ignorant of spiritual death or the second imputation that occurred at birth. The Mosaic Law reveals, as a marriage counselor, the source of sin. You understand people a lot better if we know they have a sin nature but we do not all manifest it the same way.
5. "Apart from the law" refers to the fact that awareness of the first husband, the old sin nature, did not exist until Paul read and understood the implication of the 10th commandment. An imperfect of duration. He was alive via the imputation of life; and dead due to the imputation of Adam's sin.
6. Paul was self-conscious; so he was aware that he was alive. But he was ignorant of his condemnation from God. He was not aware of the sin nature.
7. Apart from the law the old sin nature is unknown. If you don't understand something you are dead to it.
8. This also explains the true meaning of the adjective substantive nekros (νεκρός) [pronounced nehk-ROSS], the word "dead" [unknown] which is the last word of the previous verse.
9. Dead in the sense of divorce; then dead in the sense of ignorance. When you do not understand something, you are dead to it. When you divorce someone, you are dead to them and they to you.

“but when the commandment came” – the enclitic particle de again, used to connect this clause with the previous one, and there is a contrast implied, therefore translated “but.” Now follows a genitive absolute in which there is a genitive noun or pronoun form with the participle and the genitive is the subject of the participle, and it is not grammatically connected with the rest of the sentence. It does not have to jibe with the cases of other words in the sentence. In the genitive absolute it starts out with the genitive singular from entolê (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY], the word for commandment. While it is in the genitive case it is the subject of the participle. The definite article denotes a previous reference to the 10th commandment.

Plus the aorist active participle of érchomai (ἔρχομαι) [pronounced AIR-khoh-my], which means to come. The aorist tense is a dramatic aorist, it states the present reality with the certitude of a past event. This is an idiom, a device for emphasis, often used for a state which has just been realized or the result of what has been accomplished. The active voice: the 10th commandment produces the action of the verb. The participle is temporal and therefore is translated “but when the tenth commandment came,” i.e. came into my consciousness. Paul heard it and it became epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis].

“sin revived, and I died” – the nominative singular subject from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] for the sin nature or the principle of sin, plus the generic use of the definite article to set up the old sin nature as a category—“the sin nature.”

The word “revived” is a bad translation. This is the aorist active indicative of anazâō (ἀναζάω) [pronounced an-ad-ZAH-oh] [aná (ἀνά) [pronounced aw-NAW] = again; zâō (ζάω) [pronounced DZAH-oh] = to live], come to mean to come to life again, to become alive, to spring into life, to wake up, to come back to life. It also means to take on fresh life or fresh energy and it means to become invigorated— “the sin nature became invigorated.” In other words, the discovery of the existence of the old sin nature doesn’t stop sin. The sin nature became invigorated or became much more active. The compound anazâō (ἀναζάω) [pronounced an-ad-ZAH-oh] is not found in either Classical Greek or in the Septuagint. In Revelation 20:5 anazâō (ἀναζάω) [pronounced an-ad-ZAH-oh] is used for resurrection from the dead, as well as for the resurrection of Christ in Revelation 14:9. So the word was not coined by Paul. The real meaning in this context is invigoration, not resurrection. The aorist tense is a constative aorist, it contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety, including cognizance of the 10th commandment, awareness of the lust pattern, cognizance of the origin of lust, the old sin nature, and therefore awareness of the bad marriage and therefore involved in it more than ever. The active voice: the first husband, the old sin nature produces the action of the verb—invigoration of activation. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. Once you become aware of the first husband the activity is speeded up.

Principle

1. All human beings pass through a state of innocence based on ignorance.
2. This passage teaches that innocence is a state of ignorance, while death or guilt is a state of cognizance.

3. Man in the garden was not ignorant, and perfect. He was not innocent, however. Innocence implies ignorance and man in the garden was not ignorant of God, of the prohibition, of what God had provided, of the contract he had with God—a day at a time. He was not innocent but he was perfect. Man outside the garden under the lordship of the old sin nature from birth may be innocent because he is not aware of the real imputation, but he is also not perfect. Innocence is ignorance; and that is not Adam’s circumstance. He completely understood what he was doing.
4. However, cognizance of the 10th commandment leads to awareness of the source of lust, the old sin nature, the first husband.
5. Awareness of the sin nature activates and invigorates the old sin nature in the sphere of lust.
6. This activation and invigoration causes mankind to realize that he has a problem—the existence of a bad marriage under the status quo of spiritual death.
7. Mankind’s marriage to the old sin nature is spiritual death from birth.
8. Therefore the law acts as a marriage counselor, teaching both the bad marriage and the solution in salvation adjustment to the justice of God.
9. Lust, taught in the 10th commandment, is the link between the source [OSN] and the action of the OSN in sin, good, and evil.
10. By understanding lust one begins to understand the existence of the OSN and mankind’s status—spiritual death.
11. Awareness of the function of the old sin nature results in awareness of spiritual death.

“and I died” – the connective use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de, and the nominative singular personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] which refers to Paul, the human author, who states the experience of every person in the human race. Therefore he is acting as a representative of the human race as he writes. Plus the aorist active indicative of apothnêskô (ἀποθνήσκω) [pronounced op-ohth-NACE-koh]. The culminative aorist views the event in its entirety—cognizance of the 10th commandment—but regards it from the viewpoint of the results—awareness of spiritual death, awareness of condemnation from birth.

When he said “I died” he is actually saying “I realized I was dead.” He was dead all the time spiritually; now he is aware of it. The active voice: Paul, the human writer, uses himself to represent the human race. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. Paul became aware of the true state of things. The Mosaic law had fulfilled its function as the marriage counselor making Paul aware of the true state of spiritual death under the old sin nature.

Lesson #248

248 11/13/1977 Romans 7:9–10 (vs 9 principles) General Sir Walker; profit motivation: Mosaic Law gives problems and solutions

British General Officer Sir Walker is up on Russia's plan to gain dominance by taking over the seas. South Africa is key in that part of the world. What the west suffers when the Arabs cut back a little oil is nothing compared to what will happen when the communists control the Cape of Good Hope. Communist inspired insurrections. Civil war could be the greatest danger to us.

General Kegan is one of the few straight-speaking US generals who recognizes the threat of communism.

Bob: "We should have made a big hole where Russia and northern China are, right after WWII."

Our spiritual growth is the only hope for our country.

We need statesmen instead of politicians. Each one of us is given a day at a time. We do a number of routine things.

Romans 7:9 And I once was alive apart from Law; but the commandment having come, sin revived, and I died;... (BLB)

Romans 7:9 Now at one time I lived apart from the law; but when the tenth commandment came, the sin nature was activated and invigorated, and I realized I was spiritually dead.

Principle

1. You have to understand that you have a problem before you can reach a solution. Awareness of the problem leads to cognizance of the solution.
2. The Mosaic law as the marriage counselor made Paul aware of the problem so that he could accept the solution, namely salvation through faith in Jesus Christ.
3. Like all of us Paul was spiritually dead from birth. That is the problem. The imputation of human life to the soul was accompanied by the imputation of Adam's original sin to the genetically formed old sin nature.
4. There is no correct solution until the problem is understood.
5. Paul did not become dead when he understood the 10th commandment, he became aware of spiritual death which had existed from birth.
6. Again, this emphasizes the Mosaic law as the marriage counselor of the first marriage, bringing cognizance of the problem and pointing to the solution.
7. There's nothing wrong with the marriage counselor, the law is perfect.
8. Everything is wrong with the first husband, the old sin nature, and the spiritual death this marriage his marriage to mankind produces.
9. Cognizance, then, of the 10th commandment caused Paul to become aware of the fact that spiritual death originated from within himself rather than through some overt act of sin or good or evil.
10. Only one sin condemns us from birth: Adam's original sin imputed to the genetically formed old sin nature.

11. Hence the old sin nature is the real culprit.
12. The Mosaic dispelled Paul's ignorance regarding the first husband and resultant spiritual death. Therefore, awareness of the problem precedes awareness of the correct solution taught on Codex #2 of the Mosaic law.

Human life lives in the soul forever, no matter where the person spends eternity.

The sin nature is the corrupting influence on mankind.

We were in Adam when he sinned; and all of our genes were in Adam when Adam sinned. Most evangelists are in error where the Word of God is concerned.

The evangelist who says, "Down with this; and down with that." And the people there agree with him, so they shout out amen! There is no such thing as follow up where an individual goes to another individual. One-on-one destroys the privacy.

Profit is the motivation in business; and that is a Biblical principle. What destroys that function is good and evil. When you find a government trying to destroy profit, you are looking at a government that is evil. It is the welfare that is Satanic; it is communist which is satanic; it is socialism that is satanic.

The golden goose has become so prosperous in the United States that the goose is not killed easily, even though our government is trying to. Profit is the basis for business. We have a energy problem today because the federal government is trying to destroy the gas mining industry. All of us have to live on profit.

FDR was a lover of Russia and communism. In the South American countries, you have to be a communist or a Catholic; and that is the problems with that area. Mexico is beginning to break away from that. Bob is convinced that he will see positive volition break out in Mexico, but Canada is going to the dogs. The only nations which have resisted going to the dogs is Rhodesia and South Africa.

Romans 7:10 ...and this commandment that was unto life proved to be death to me. (BLB)

Verse 10 – "And the commandment, which was ordained to life." The connective kai and the nominative singular of the subject entolê (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY], with the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun to call attention with special emphasis to Codex #2—"And that commandment." Codex #1 demonstrates condemnation. It tells us about human life being imputed at birth to the soul, about Adam's original sin being imputed to the old sin nature. Then Codex #1 takes the manifestations of that OSN—trends toward sin, toward good, and toward evil. It sets up prohibitions against these things because sin, good and evil are not only against God but they are also destructive of freedom which must be the environment for evangelism. So when sins are mentioned in the ten commandments they are sins all right but they are mentioned in connection with the subject, they destroy freedom.

Next is the nominative singular feminine from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], translated “which.” Then an insertion at this point. The elliptical style of this verse demands the communication or revelation verb, such as deiknumi (δείκνυμι) [pronounced DIKE-noom-ee], and so we translate “And that commandment which points.” Plus the prepositional phrase, the object of the pointing, eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus the accusative of zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY]—“to life,” eternal life from Codex #2. This is a reference to the Levitical offerings which portray Christ bearing our sins on the cross, a judicial imputation from God. All of our personal sins were collected and imputed to Christ on the cross and then judged. Or the holy days: “Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us.” Or the tabernacle and its various articles of furniture and the modus operandi of the Levitical priesthood. All of these things taught various aspects of the work of Christ on the cross—redemption, reconciliation, propitiation, imputation, justification.

“I found to be unto death” – the aorist passive indicative of heuriskô (εὕρισκω) [pronounced hyoo-RIHS-koh] which means to discover, to recognize, to find. It is used for an intellectual discovery based on reflection, observation, examination or investigation. We translate, “the same was discovered.” The aorist tense is a constative aorist for an action extended over a period of time. The action is the studying of the Mosaic law gathered up into one entirety: everything in Codex #1 dealing with the problem, everything in Codex #2 dealing with the solution. It was studied over a period of time until it fell in place. The passive voice: the subject receives the action of the verb. The apostle Paul received the action of the verb through diligent study of Codex #2. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Plus the word moi which is the instrumental of agency from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], and it should be translated “by me.”

Again, we have to insert deiknumi (δείκνυμι) [pronounced DIKE-noom-ee], because we have eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] as the preposition of pointing plus the accusative singular of thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss]—the spiritual death of Codex #1. Plus the attributive use of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS], translated here “the same.” This is from the nominative, not the dative case, and it refers to the Mosaic law. The commandment that taught the solution also revealed the problem.

Romans 7:10 And that commandment, which points to [eternal] life [in codex #2], the same was discovered by me, pointing to death [Codex #1].

The Mosaic Law must first reveal the problem and then a solution could be devised for it. The problem must be understood first.

1977 Romans

Lesson #249

249 11/13/1977 Romans 7:11 General Keegan; rationalizing lusts of the old sin nature after knowledge of them; old dog nature

The Tulsa Tribune quotes Keegan extensively. We have gone from containment to detent, to appeasement to surrender in a single lifetime. The Soviet Union is set to wage war as has never been fought before. They think a war with the United States will result in 160 million Americans dead; and 6 million Russians dead. We cannot. The Warsaw nations could capture Europe in 36 hours. They are equipped with the gas to do this. Israeli planes and intelligence gives us great protection.

The people who are awake now are the ones who have been awake all along.

Romans 7:11 For sin, having taken an occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it put me to death. (BLB)

Verse 11 – “For sin, taking occasion by the commandment.” This begins with the explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar and the nominative singular subject hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], the sin nature, referring to the first husband. “Taking occasion by the commandment” is, again, having grasped or having seized the opportunity. This is the aorist active participle from the verb lambánō (λαμβάνω) [pronounced lahm-BAHN-oh], meaning to grasp or to seize. This is a dramatic aorist tense which states a present reality with the certitude of a past event. This idiom is a device for emphasis and is used for a state which has just been realized, a result which has just been accomplished or on the point of being accomplished. The active voice: the sin nature produces the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial. With this is the accusative singular direct object from the noun aphormê (ἀφορμή) [pronounced af-or-MAY], which means the starting point, the base of operations for an expedition. It also connotes the resources needed to carry out an undertaking, hence it is used quite frequently in the ancient Greek for capital. “For the sin nature, having seized the opportunity.” The word for capital is also the word for opportunity in the Greek. Inside of each one of us is the old sin nature which never loses its aggressiveness until the day that we are separated from it by physical death or the possibility of the Rapture. What was the opportunity? Learning what the sin nature was. Learning about lust—“by the commandment,” the preposition dia plus the genitive of entolê (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY],, correctly translated “through the commandment.” This is a reference to Codex #1 which has taught us about lust as the connecting link between the old sin nature and its function: sin, good, and evil. The commandment here refers to the 10th commandment, “You will not lust.”

Melarky and Balderdash story. Bob learns a lot from this. Once that you find out something should not be done, you desire to do it.

Principle

1. The old sin used the prohibition, You will not lust, to assert its authority over mankind through sponsoring disobedience, sponsoring revolt against the tenth commandment.
2. The law as a marriage counselor to mankind, You will not lust.
3. But the first husband, the old sin nature counters, Lust in every category.
4. The Mosaic law by prohibiting lust is a good marriage counselor, it did its job properly.

5. The first husband by demanding lust was a terrible husband, ruling through spiritual death. Every category of lust refers to the first husband, the trends of the old sin nature.
6. For example, the trend toward sin. Lust in this area includes covetousness, lasciviousness, killer lust, the get even syndrome, or I have to prove myself syndrome.
7. For example, the trend toward good and evil. Lust includes approbation lust, power lust, immolation lust to assuage the guilt complex.
8. The OSN indwells the body, being genetically formed in the cell structure, including the brain which is programmed for human viewpoint until it is reprogrammed.
9. The OSN is belligerent and aggressive when the Mosaic law commands to cease and desist from lust.

When you do something in ignorance there is no corruption because you are doing something that is wrong, nevertheless you are ignorant and it is not a corrupting principle. But once you know that you shouldn't then you not only do that which is wrong but you have added corruption to it. Illustration: You see a sign: Don't step on the grass. It immediately arouses the corruption in you and you deliberately step on the grass. This is a symptom of being corrupted, and you are corrupted by your own power, authority, to do something that is forbidden. So once you understand the issue and you do it anyway you are now being corrupted in that issue, and corrupted away from the true principles of authority. So to do it when you know it is worse because of the rejection of authority. So using the 10th commandment as an opportunity to flaunt human sovereignty over life the old sin nature produces in the human being every category of lust, and it matures into sin, good, and evil. Hence, the OSN uses the 10th commandment to exercise its authority in human life, and it succeeds thereby destroying those principles which keep us and protect us under establishment authority.

“deceived me” – the aorist active indicative of exapatáō (ἐξαπατάω) [pronounced ex-ap-at-AH-oh] means to deceive or to cheat. It was used for the serpent's deception in the garden—2Corinthians 11:3; 1Timothy 2:14. The constative aorist contemplates the action of the verb in its entirety. The active voice: the old sin nature inside of each one of us not only deceives us but keeps us out of normal establishment blessing in life. We consider what we do more important than the authority which forbids it. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. With this is the accusative singular direct object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“me.”

Principle

1. The deception includes the fact that marriage to the sin nature from physical birth means spiritual death to God.
2. Before man can be alive to God he must be dead or divorced from the old sin nature who still is in us and very much alive.

3. This is accomplished at salvation through the baptism of the Holy Spirit and retroactive positional truth.
4. Man is deceived by the old sin nature's trends toward good and evil into the delusion that the old sin nature can actually produce what is pleasing to God. Many Christians believe that the welfare state is fulfilling the plan of God.
5. Hence, the old sin nature whose function is good and evil deludes the human race into thinking that lust and gratification of that lust is justifiable.
6. This is the foundation for every system of good and evil, including socialism, the welfare state, communism, plus all of the Marxist theories. Communism appeals to the sin nature; it appeals to our desire to do good and evil.
7. While man thinks that he is accomplishing the greater good for the greater number he is in reality creating evil to satisfy his lust pattern and to serve Satan as the ruler of this world.
8. This religious rationalism is the basis for the terrible evils which have come into existence in contemporary history.
9. Human good is a deception, a delusion, a rationalization, the function of the lust pattern of the old sin nature.

The tenth commandment keeps on warning, You will not lust. But the old sin nature counters: Lust is justifiable to provide a new world order. Even the thought of a new world order is a system of lust in the field of good and evil. The new world order of socialism, Marxism, communism, is inspired by Satan himself as the ruler of this world and is desirable modus operandi for the old sin nature as the ruler of human life.

“and by it slew me” – the connective use of the conjunction kai, and the prepositional phrase dia plus the genitive of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτοῦ) [pronounced ow-TOSS]: “and through the same.” This is the attributive use of the intensive pronoun, i.e. through the same tenth commandment. Plus the aorist active indicative from the verb apokteinō (ἀποκτείνω) [pronounced ap-ok-TEE-no], which means to kill a sacrifice, used for depriving a person of either natural life or spiritual life. Here it means to destroy and to annihilate. The aorist tense is a constative aorist and it gathers together into one entirety the function of the old sin nature in breaking through the authority of the Mosaic law to set up a rationalization. The old sin nature misrepresents spiritual death as hopeless and without solution, and that is the greatest issue in history. Man always thinks there is a solution to everything apart from God, for that is the delusion set up by the old sin nature. The active voice: the old sin nature distorting the 10th commandment, rejecting divine authority, continues to rule through spiritual death. The OSN is the corrupting power in life. The indicative mood is the reality of the old sin nature ruling through spiritual death from physical birth. The sovereignty over human life is established as a false authority through the imputation of Adam’s sin to the genetically formed old sin nature. This authority operates as the evil authority in contrast to divine authority.

Principle

1. The old sin nature misrepresents spiritual death as hopeless without solution.

2. The old sin nature represents the justice of God as the enemy of the human race, when in reality the justice of God is the only source of blessing for the human race through first, condemnation, and then blessing through grace.
3. Condemnation must precede justification and salvation. Without condemnation from the justice of God there can be no justification from the justice of God.
4. Condemnation is necessary for the construction of the grace pipeline at salvation.
5. There was no grace in the human race until first there was condemnation.
6. So the first husband, the OSN, uses the Mosaic law to distort the truth about God and keep the wife, the human race, under its sovereignty.
7. Remember that the old sin nature is the sovereign of human life ruling through spiritual death.

Romans 7:11 For the sin nature, having seized the opportunity through the commandment, deceived me, and through the same [10th commandment] killed me.

The sin nature continues as the corrupting power in life. This authority operates as the evil authority in life.

Satan was first man's tempter, and then Satan accused man for succumbing to this temptation. The sin nature does essentially the same thing.

Bob talks about a pure virgin. Someone can be a virgin and not pure.

2Corinthians 11:1 I wish you would bear with me in a little foolishness. Do bear with me!
 2Corinthians 11:2 For I feel a divine jealousy for you, since I betrothed you to one husband, to present you as a pure virgin to Christ.

2Corinthians 11:3 But I am afraid that as the serpent deceived Eve by his cunning, your thoughts will be led astray from a sincere and pure devotion to Christ.

1977 Romans

Lesson #250

250 11/14/1977 Romans 7:12–13a Mosaic Law is not the culprit, but the perfect marriage counselor

A medal of honor recipient.

Romans 7:12 So indeed, the Law is holy, and the commandment is holy and righteous and good.

Verse 12 – the law is not the culprit. “Wherefore the law is holy.” The conjunction hôte (ὥστε) [pronounced HOH-steh] introduces an independent clause and an inference from the previous clause, therefore it is translated “Therefore.” The Attic Greek affirmative particle men follows. It is used as an emphatic conjunction, translated “In fact therefore.” Then the subject, the nominative singular of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], the Mosaic law, the marriage counselor of the first marriage. A better translation: “As a matter of fact, therefore, the law.” Then the verb to be understood, and the predicate nominative singular of hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss], “holy.” That which reveals the existence of the old sin nature is not sin itself.

“and the commandment” – the adjunctive use of the conjunction kai should be translated “also.” Then the nominative singular subject entolê (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY], used for Codex #1 and specifically the 10th commandment of Exodus 20:17. This is a reference to the manner in which Paul discovered the existence of the old sin nature.

Then comes three predicate nominatives, translated “holy, and just, and good.” The first, hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] again, has a slightly different meaning. It emphasizes the fact that the law and the 10th commandment originates from God. God is perfect, therefore the law is perfect. The law has been set aside by God in order to fulfil a definite objective. It is not a panacea, it is designed for a specialized objective. The use of the word “holy” the second time refers to the fact that it is perfect within the framework of its designed function.

One thing is not the solution to everything. The government is not designed to oversee everything or to guide or rule everything. This leads to a conflict of interest and real problems.

The Galatians were trying to use the Law to solve everything or to handle everything. This will all be solved in Romans 8. The Mosaic Law requires certain things from the people of Israel. The Law demands perfection; but it cannot provide it. This was the problem with the rich young ruler.

The Law can show you that there is a problem, but the Law does not build the pipeline of blessing. The work of Christ prepares the pipeline. Righteousness demands righteousness; and justice demands justice. We receive 36 things at salvation. One is a judicial imputation, one is a real imputation, and 34 are blessings that flow through the pipeline.

God’s character is not compromised by blessing us.

Codex #1 is perfect justice and it presents the problem; codex #2 provides a solution in shadow form, codex #3 provides a program for the entire human race.

Then a predicate nominative singular from dikaios (δίκαιος) [pronounced DIH-kai-oss], meaning justice as a characteristic of a judge, or righteousness. It means perfect justice. So we have the fact that the commandment is holy and perfect justice, i.e. the commandment is fair, the law is fair. The Mosaic law is a system of integrity. The law comes from God. God is integrity, and whatever comes from God reflects that integrity but it reflects that integrity in a limited scale. The purpose of a flashlight is not to throw light in all directions. The law has a limited purpose and you cannot use it for all directions when it is only designed to go in one direction. One of those directions is perfect justice, and our understanding of the Mosaic law makes us realize our lack of God’s righteousness, perfect justice and integrity. Next is the predicate nominative from agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], which is good of intrinsic value, the good, the absolute good. These are three characteristics of the 10th commandment as a part of the Mosaic law. These characteristics not only apply to the 10th commandment but they apply to the entire law.

Romans 7:12 As a matter of fact, therefore, the law is holy, also the commandment [10th] is holy, and perfect justice, and absolute good.

Principle

1. This verse concludes that the law is not the culprit. The law is the marriage counselor of the first marriage.
2. There is nothing wrong with the marriage counselor in pointing out a bad marriage.
3. In fact, the law does a perfect job both in stating the problem and in pointing out the solution—Codex #2.
4. Because the law as a marriage counselor points out the problem of spiritual death it does not follow that the law is the sponsorer of spiritual death. It is not the law who is condemning, it is God who is condemning. The law is His instrument for communication of condemnation.
5. Because the law as a marriage counselor points out that the first husband is sinful it does not follow that the law is sinful.
6. In fact, man is sinful because he possesses the sin nature from birth. Man is spiritually dead because Adam's sin is imputed to that sin nature.
7. It is the first husband, the old sin nature, that is sinful, not the Mosaic law functioning as the marriage counselor.
8. Man is sinful because he possesses the old sin nature, not because the law says he is sinful—Romans 3:20.
9. The law is not sinful because it exposes the old sin nature, or personal sin. The law fulfills its purpose perfectly in revealing both the problem and the solution.

Romans 7:13 Has that which is good then become death to me? Never may it be! But in order that sin might be shown to be sin, it is working out death through that which is good to me, so that through the commandment sin might become sinful beyond excess. (BLB)

Verse 13 – the true ministry of the law as a marriage counselor. “Was then that which is good made death unto me?” The inferential conjunction oun (οὖν) [pronounced oon] denotes the introduction of the inference. It is generally translated “therefore.” The nominative neuter singular of the adjective agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], picking it up from the end of the last verse: the law is absolute or intrinsic good. Then the dative singular indirect object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], indicating the one in whose interest the Mosaic law acts as a marriage counselor—the unbeliever married to the old sin nature. “Therefore the good to me.” The Mosaic law is good to us because it shows us we have a problem as unbelievers. It is good to us in that it points out to us that we are in the status quo of spiritual death, the marriage to the old sin nature. Our personal sins were set aside to put imputed to Jesus on the cross.

Next is the aorist active indicative of gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my], translated “did it become.” This is a constative aorist tense, it gathers into one entirety the action of the verb. The active voice: the question relating to the Mosaic law produces the action. The indicative mood is the interrogative indicative in which the viewpoint of reality is implied by a fact enquired about. Plus the predicate nominative singular thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] for spiritual death. “Therefore the good to me, did it become death?”

1977 Romans

Lesson #251

251 11/15/1977 Romans 7:13b–14a Monopolies; repetition; old sin nature and the wife are culprits, not the Mosaic Law

An article about socialist use of frightful phantoms. They depict the horrors on monopolistic capitalism. Even free enterprisers are divided on the anti-trust legislation of our government. Are monopolies inherently bad? A monopolist cannot charge monopolistic prices, as potential competition exists. Producers always face the possibility of other producers appearing on the scene. Destroying a monopoly simply encourages other inferior businesses to step up and take their place.

The big federal government almost always eliminates competition.

Romans 7:13 Has that which is good then become death to me? Never may it be! But in order that sin might be shown to be sin, it is working out death through that which is good to me, so that through the commandment sin might become sinful beyond excess. (BLB)

Agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] refers to the function of the Mosaic law as a marriage counselor in the first marriage. Agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] is the good, the intrinsic good. The Mosaic law reveals the problem of spiritual death in the marriage to the old sin nature at birth, plus the solution in the saving work of the Lord Jesus Christ on the cross. The rhetorical question, “Therefore the good to me, did it become death?” is designed to reflect the thinking of those who distort the teaching of the apostle Paul. The rhetorical question is a debater’s technique for anticipating and refuting the erroneous conclusions made from listening to this teaching. The word thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss] refers to spiritual death here which is the status quo of the first marriage to the old sin nature at birth. Obviously then, the intrinsic good in the Mosaic law did not become death to mankind. Something that is intrinsically good cannot suddenly become something that is evil. Good can be turned into evil but not intrinsic good. The function of the Mosaic law is to reveal the problem and to reveal the solution.

“God forbid” – mê (μή) [pronounced may] genoito (γίνοιτο) [pronounced GEE-noyt-oh]. The aorist tense is a gnomic aorist for the certainty of refuting the false allegation. The active voice: the assumption is false, hence the false assumption produces the action of the verb of being rejected. The optative is a voluntative optative for the expression of a negative wish. Literally, “May it not come to pass,” comes to be a Greek idiom which means “Definitely not” or “Emphatically not.” The emphatic denial of the debater’s question is actually a teaching device handling a misconception by the communication of correct doctrine.

“But sin, that it might appear sin” – the issue which refutes the erroneous conception. The adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast between the two clauses. Plus the nominative singular subject which is the old sin nature, the real culprit, hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] in the singular, plus the definite article to denote a previous reference in the context—“But the sin nature.” Then the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] for a final clause which has an aim, a goal, a purpose or objective.

There is no excuse for not growing in Berachah. It is amazing how just a little panic can knock you off your game. Repetition is just a part of life; and a part of every sport.

Plus the aorist passive subjunctive of phainô (φαίνω) [pronounced FAH-ee-noh], meaning to demonstrate, to show, or to reveal. The aorist is a culminative aorist viewing the exposure of the sin nature in its entirety but regarding it from the viewpoint of existing results. The OSN has to be exposed. The existing results: adjustment to the justice of God—first, salvation, then rebound, and eventually maturity adjustment to the justice of God which is the purpose for continuing us, keeping us in this life. We are here for that final objective. The passive voice of phainô (φαίνω) [pronounced FAH-ee-noh]: the subject receives the action of the verb, exposure for what it is, sinfulness of the culprit. The subjunctive mood is a potential subjunctive used with the purpose or the objective conjunction to denote a future reference qualified by the element of contingency. “But the sin nature, in order that it might be revealed.” Then an independent nominative, the same word, hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah]. This time it has a slightly different meaning because it is describing itself for what it is—“as sin.”

Next in the Greek is the phrase dia tou agathou, translated “through the [intrinsic] good.” The good with the definite article refers to the function of the Mosaic law which exposes the old sin nature as sinful. In other words, the good exposes the bad but the good is not bad because it exposes the bad as bad.

“working death in me” – the present middle participle of κατεργάζομαι (katergázomai) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ahee], which means to achieve, to accomplish, to produce, to bring about, to prepare someone for something. Here it means to work out, to do that from which something results, to make something already in existence a reality—“making spiritual death a reality to me.” The present tense of duration denotes what has begun in the past—revelation from the Mosaic law—and continues into the present time. The law keeps telling the human race it has a problem—the old sin nature, spiritual death. The law also presents the solution in Codex #2 through the work of Christ. The middle voice of the deponent verb is translated like an active voice. The Mosaic law produces the action of the verb, this is the function of the marriage counselor to analyze the problem and communicate the solution. The participle is circumstantial and translated as a finite verb for clarification. “Therefore the good to me, did it become spiritual death? Definitely not. But the sin nature, in order that it might be exposed through the good made spiritual death a reality to me.” “To me” is the dative singular indirect object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH].

“that sin” – hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] and the nominative singular subject hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] for the old sin nature: “in order that the sin nature.”

“by the commandment might become exceeding sinful” – the aorist active subjunctive of gínomai (γίνομαι) [pronounced GIN-oh-my], meaning to become. This is a dramatic aorist used for stating a present reality with the certitude of a past event. In other words, an idiom which is a device for emphasis in the Greek. It is commonly used for a status quo which has just been revealed, namely spiritual death is the result of the marriage to the first husband, the old sin nature. The active voice: the old sin nature produces the action of the verb. The subjunctive mood is the potential subjunctive with hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] implying purpose qualified by the element of contingency. Plus the prepositional phrase kata plus the accusative of hyperbol (ὑπερβολή) [pronounced hoop-air-bohl-AY] which means extreme. It is translated literally, “according to the extreme,” meaning “utterly.” Then once more a different word for the predicate nominative, an adjective hamartôlos (ἁμαρτωλός) [pronounced ham-ar-to-LOSS] which means “sinful.” Utter sinfulness of the old sin nature is revealed by the Mosaic law. Then dia plus the ablative of entolê (ἐντολή) [pronounced en-tol-AY],—“by the commandment,” a reference again to the 10th commandment. This is the ablative of means, used in this prepositional phrase because the origin of the means is implied.

Romans 7:13 Therefore the good [Mosaic law] to me, did it become spiritual death? Definitely not. But the sin nature, in order that it might be revealed [or exposed] through the good made spiritual death a reality to me; in order that the sin nature might become utterly sinful by the commandment.

Summary

1. Personal sin does not condemn the human race.
2. Only one sin condemns the human race: Adam’s original transgression in the garden.
3. This original sin of Adam is imputed to each one of us at birth.
4. Here a contrast begins. Human life is imputed to its home, the divinely-prepared soul, while Adam’s original sin is imputed to its genetically-prepared home, the old sin nature.
5. Personal sin, such as lust sins, is the result of having the old sin nature, but not the means of condemnation from the justice of God.
6. Personal sin is a manifestation of the old sin nature’s sovereignty over human life, but not the means of condemnation from the justice of God.
7. Therefore the true ministry of the Mosaic law, Codex #1, is to reveal the existence of the old sin nature through the perfect norms and standards of God stated in Codex #1.

8. Therefore there is nothing wrong with the marriage counselor, the Mosaic law which is perfect and reveals perfect standards of God's righteousness.
9. These standards reveal both the sinfulness of the old sin nature and the status produced by the old sin nature—spiritual death.
10. Spiritual death existed before the Mosaic law, but the Mosaic law revealed spiritual death.

Romans 7:14 For we know that the Law is spiritual; but I am fleshly, having been sold under sin. (BLB)

Verse 14 – a contrast between the marriage counselor and the wife. “For we know that the law is spiritual” – the inferential use of the conjunctive particle gar, translated “certainly” or “consequently.” Plus the perfect oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da] used as a present active indicative for cognizance. The form is perfect but it is used as a present tense. The pluperfect of this form is used as an imperfect and it represents something already resident in the right lobe. The conjunction hōti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] is used for whatever that cognizance is. It merely introduces quotation marks or presents the content of the cognizance. The subject of cognizance is the nominative singular of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], the law. With it is the generic use of the definite article comprehending the Mosaic law as a completely separate category from all other categories. Plus the present active indicative of the verb to be, eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME]. The present tense of the verb is a static present, it represents a condition which perpetually exists and must be taken for granted as a fact. The active voice: the Mosaic law produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of absolute reality. With it is a predicate nominative, the adjective is pneumatikos (πνευματικός) [pronounced nyoo-mat-EEK-oss], meaning “spiritual.” “Certainly we know that the law is spiritual.”

Principle

1. The law is spiritual because it comes from God and fulfils the divine purpose in human history related to the angelic conflict.
2. The law is a counselor of the first marriage to the old sin nature. The law is perfect because it perfectly exposes the old sin nature.
3. The law functions in revealing also the solution. The law is perfect because everything in Codex #2 revealing Christ is perfect and fulfils this objective within the framework of Israel and those who understand Israel.
4. At this point comes a great shift of emphasis. Up to this point the emphasis has been on the culprit, the old sin nature. But because of the transition from the first marriage to the second marriage a new emphasis is placed on the wife who is also the culprit in the first marriage, and potentially a culprit in the second marriage. The wife is the failure, the culprit, who is tempted to return to the old sin nature. She wants to sin and commits acts of good and evil.

252 11/16/1977 Romans 7:14b Carnality cf. reversionism; public confession of sin; culprits of first and second marriages

New Jersey discovered that they had two medal of honor recipients; and they are given a permanent tag for their vehicles and put their initials somewhere on the plate.

Bob reads the medal of honor information. He took out two machine gun positions, then advanced on another two. They could not seem to hit him so they retreated, hiding out in a cellar. They surrendered to him.

Romans 7:14 For we know that the Law is spiritual; but I am fleshly, having been sold under sin. (BLB)

“but I am carnal” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de used as an adversative conjunction. It sets up a contrast between the previous clause and this one. The nominative singular subject from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] is in the proleptic position, i.e. it precedes the conjunction; the conjunction is postpositive. This emphasizes a transition from the old sin nature husband as the culprit to the wife of the second marriage, the believer as the culprit—“But I.” Plus the present active indicative from eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be. The present tense is tendencial, used for an action which is purposed or attempted but not actually taking place at the moment. It represents the idea of that which is intended or inclined to occur. So when Paul says, “I am carnal” he is not speaking for himself, he is speaking about the problem for all believers. The tendencial present says in effect, he is not carnal. (A carnal believer cannot write Scripture). Yet, this is in the present tense so obviously he is dealing with a principle and not giving any personal confession. The active voice: Paul as the human author represents the common experience of believers after salvation. The indicative mood is a potential indicative of impulse and condition. The predicate nominative which follows is an adjective, sárkinos (σάρκινος) [pronounced SAHR-kee-noss], “fleshly,” belonging to the realm of the flesh. It is a reference to the believer’s return to the first husband, the old sin nature.

There was a woman who came to Berachah and she was emotional and continually wanted to confess her sins publically. Emotion must have an authority. The rational controls the emotional and keeps you from doing something stupid.

In the second marriage, the husband is Christ and the marriage counselor is the Holy Spirit. So, if there are any problems in this second marriage, it refers to the wife (as believers, we are married to Christ).

Perfection in this life is unobtainable. Those who think that they are perfect are the worst of all. People tend to think that those who teach the word are perfect. No one thinks that around here, but it is thought elsewhere.

Principle: This is the transition to the great inner conflict, away from the marriage counselor and away from the culprit, the old sin nature, and now into a new stage of our study. Now the conflict begins between the old sin nature, the first husband, and the wife, the believer.

The believer or the wife of the second marriage [to Christ] returns to the first husband, not in sin as such but staying under the influence of the old sin nature through sin. In other words, rejection of rebound just as reversionism is rejection of GAP. The issue is not the fact that we sin, the issue is the fact that do not avail ourselves of the grace system for getting back into fellowship immediately. Carnality is the failure to use the rebound technique, whereas reversionism is the neglect of Bible doctrine. We now change subject from the function of the Mosaic law, the perfect marriage counselor, and the culprit, the old sin nature, to the failure of the wife in the second marriage; the second marriage where the husband is perfect and cannot sin, where the marriage counselor is perfect and cannot sin, and where the only weakness in the second marriage is the believer, referring to each one of us. The old sin nature is still there and still says, Come back. There are three ways in which this is accomplished: 1) sin without rebound, i.e. carnality; 2) reversionism, the function of good and evil; 3) eventually two meet and become reversionism. "I am carnal" – the new culprit is the born again believer.

Real self righteous types often go right into reversionism. Carnality is getting into apostasy through sin; reversionism gets into apostasy through good and evil.

"sold under sin" – the perfect passive participle from pipráskō (πιπράσκω) [pronounced pip-RAS-ko], which means to sell or to lead astray. Here it means to be led astray. We can never be sold to the old sin nature because we are in a second marriage, we are married to the Lord Jesus Christ (current positional truth). We can be led astray; we are vulnerable. This word was used from the time of Homer for selling, but also used for selling out, or to be ruined, or to be led astray, and sometimes even to be betrayed. We get our connotation from the Hebrew where pipráskō (πιπράσκω) [pronounced pip-RAS-ko] was used in translating the Septuagint. The Hebrew verb is mâkar (מָכַר) [pronounced maw-KAHR] which means to be led astray. The perfect tense is a dramatic perfect, emphasizing the completed action of carnality or sinfulness with emphasis on the results of the action, the lordship of the old sin nature. Though married to Christ, the second husband, this is the acceptance of the authority of the old sin nature, in this case through carnality. It can also be through reversionism. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb when he exercises his option for sin.

Bob might never teach rm/rw again, given the weirdo response, mostly from outside Berachah. They wrote letters and called with all kinds of some weirdo ideas. Weirdos and their actions do not change the principles of doctrine. As it says in the hymn written by the Yankees, God's truth goes marching on.

The principle also applies to exercising one's option for good and evil. The participle is a temporal participle, hence correctly translated "when I have been led astray." He isn't carnal now, but at any time he is led astray he is. The same thing is true for all of us. Then the prepositional phrase, hupó (ὑπό) [pronounced hoop-OH] [authority] plus the accusative singular of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] for the old sin nature—“under the authority of the sin nature.” The only thing that breaks the authority of the sin nature after you sin is rebound.

There is a gathering in Houston of women who are rebelling against all forms of authority to which they are subjected. But no one is more honored than a woman under authority. But a woman’s beauty cannot be divorced from being under authority. There is no such thing as a woman has rejected authority and is still beautiful.

Bob watched a speaker. Not attractive and not coming across; a little smile and a self righteous attitude. Every man with a bit of authority-orientation can see this. She is sneaky about the authority of her boss, she rejects the authority of her parents and husband; and she expects everyone to treat her a certain way no matter what. The same thing is true of men. “I’m in charge here.” If you have to say it, you aren’t. The greatest thing about manliness is being under the authority of the Word of God.

Everyone has an angle; they are all downtrodden. Big government owes them respect, and owes them a living and is to give them equality.

The national council of churches is filled with good and evil.

Romans 7:14 For we know that the law is spiritual. But I am unspiritual, led astray under the authority of the sin nature.

Principle

1. The temporal participle pipráskō (πιπράσκω) [pronounced pip-RAS-ko] emphasizes that the believer is only fleshly when he is led astray by the sin nature with its trends toward sin.
2. This verse emphasizes the fact that there is an inner conflict as long as we live in this life. And we all have it.

You have problems and everyone around you has problems. Everyone has a sin nature. Everyone has failures. You develop understanding and objectivity. Someone might make a sarcastic remark or say something that is problematic. You just let it pass. You have to pass adolescence so you can be understanding and courteous and objective. You just let it go. You learn to be thoughtful of others, even those who are obnoxious to you. This is the one thing that takes the most time. You just let a lot of things just pass on by. You are hypersensitive and anything gets you off track. With some doctrine, you learn not to be offended or hurt. A little bit of thoughtfulness is all that it takes. You do not need to know any details; you simply need to know the principle.

People distorted the Law by thinking that it needed still to be followed to the letter. The problem is not the Law; it is the people who distort the Law. Those who try to keep the Sabbath or they tithe. The culprit here is the sin nature, not the Law.

When Paul says, I am carnal, he changing emphasis. By rebound, we neutralize the authority of the old sin nature. You name your sin and its power is broken. The minute that you do not rebound, that is when you fall into carnality.

The old sin nature is only the culprit in the first marriage; but we are the culprit in the second marriage. We succumb to the sin nature; but this is our choice.

We changed subjects in the middle of the verse. The subject is no longer the marriage counselor of the first marriage, the Law. It is the attacks of the original husband, the old sin nature. But we are the ones who succumb to the first husband.

1977 Romans

Lesson #253

253 11/17/1977 Romans 7:15 Yielding to the old sin nature without rebound; "lack of spiritual progress" report

Private Hedera: A soldier who had his feet taken out by a mine, and yet he kept firing and two strongholds were taken as a result.

Vv. 15–17 is the first attack from the previous husband. This is the old sin nature. In the divorce and remarriage, the wife is the believer and Jesus Christ is the new husband.

Romans 7:15 For I do not understand my own actions. For I do not do what I want, but I do the very thing I hate. (BLB)

Bob reads the passage. "This is pretty obvious, an inner conflict," and the congregation laughs (apparently on the obvious part).

Verse 15 – "For that which I do I allow not." The explanatory use of the conjunctive particle gar for an explanation as to why the believer is the culprit after salvation, whereas the old sin nature was the culprit before salvation. With it is the nominative neuter singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], plus the present middle indicative of the verb κατεργάζομαι (katergázomai) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ahée], which means to achieve, to accomplish, to bring about, to produce. Generally it connotes to work out and finally accomplish, and therefore to achieve. "For what I accomplish." This is the present tense of duration denoting something that happens in the past with results that continue up to the present time. Hence a description of a carnal believer who has compromised the second marriage to the Lord Jesus Christ by going back under the control of the ex-husband, the old sin nature. The is the middle voice of a deponent verb, therefore it is an active voice. Paul produces the action of the verb and represents the status quo in so doing of the carnal believer. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

It is a reference to the achievement of the second marriage, the Christian way of life, and it is a bona fide accomplishment which is frustrated because of the successful function of the old sin nature. In carnality or reversionism the believer is not achieving spiritual maturity through the daily function of GAP. Remember that carnality is not sinning. Sinning is out of fellowship but it does not become carnality unless you stay out of fellowship. In other words, rebound in a reasonable amount of time resolves the problem of carnality before it gets under way. Carnality is following the trend of the old sin nature, unchecked by the rebound technique. The trend of the old sin nature is not checked by self-determination but by the filling of the Holy Spirit, and the filling of the Spirit is only recovered by rebound. So carnality is staying out of fellowship. Reversionism is the next stage in which the believer gets into good and evil, the other two trends of the old sin nature.

Then we have the phrase “I allow not” which is simply the negative adverb ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] plus the present active indicative of ginôskô (γινώσκω) [pronounced gih-NOH-skoh] which means to know—“I do not understand.” The present tense is an aoristic present for punctiliar action in present time. Since the indicative mood has not a distinctive tense for expressing the idea of a present fact without reference to progress the present tense is used. Paul produces the action, representing the status quo of the carnal and the reversionistic believer. The aoristic present sets forth the event as now occurring, hence Paul is assimilating carnality or assimilating reversionism in order to make this very personal. “For what I achieve I do not understand.”

Bob does not participate in demonstrations, like down with the lesbians, etc. He does not tell you who to vote for and no one can put out pamphlets in Berachah. For what I achieve, I do not understand... describes the control of the old sin nature in the field of good and evil.

Principle

1. Paul assimilating carnality and reversionism does not understand his lack of spiritual growth, his orientation to the plan of God. He is representing himself as a carnal believer, though it is not a reality in his life.
2. Paul cannot comprehend why he is not advancing to maturity, which is the objective for the believer in time. He cannot comprehend his confusion. He must assimilate carnality and reversionism to the maximum, and carnality and reversionism is a state of confusion and disorientation from the plan of God.
3. He cannot understand why he is not receiving those blessings from the justice of God which are so obviously promised to the mature believer.
4. Paul is not fulfilling the temporal purpose for the imputation of divine righteousness. Paul is saying he is confused and unable to figure out what he is doing; but he is actually not in that state, but he is identifying with such a person.
5. Divine righteousness imputed is the basis for the justice of God providing the five categories of blessing in maturity. They have not materialised and he says, in effect, Why? Half of what is necessary to move forward is missing. I would assume that this is fellowship.
6. Paul is not fulfilling the purpose of the second marriage to the Lord Jesus Christ.

“for what I would, that do I not” – the postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used to express a cause or a reason. It is translated “because.” Then the nominative neuter singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], plus the present active indicative of the verb thélô (θέλω) [pronounced THEH-loh] which means a desire, in contrast to lust. It is a legitimate desire based upon motivation of doctrine and the filling of the Spirit. The historical present tense is employed when a past even is viewed with the vividness of a present occurrence. So he is going back to those moments after salvation when he wanted to glorify God. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality. Remember that Paul is acting as the representative of carnality and reversionism to produce the action.

Then the nominative plural subject from the immediate demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], which simply means “there things,” and it is a reference to the daily function of GAP under the ministry of the Holy Spirit through which maturity is attained. Plus the present active indicative of prassô (πράσσω) [pronounced PRAS-so], which generally means to practice, but it also means to accomplish, with the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]—“these things I am not accomplishing.” This is a tendential present tense used for an action which is purposed or attempted or desired but not taking place. The active voice plus the negative represents the fact that the carnal or reversionistic believer, as represented here by Paul, is not accomplishing the objective of phase two. The objective is to advance to maturity. This is a potential indicative of obligation and it points to what is expected in reality, but contingency is introduced because of negative volition toward doctrine and failure to rebound when necessary. The desire is there, but it is never put into action.

Principle

1. Paul represents himself as resolving to advance spiritually, desiring to please Christ and wishing to take in doctrine in order to achieve the objective.
2. But all these good intentions are neutralized by the machinations of the first husband, the old sin nature, with its trends toward sin, good and evil.
3. The old sin nature can do nothing apart from the volition of the believer.
4. The trend toward sin is quickly solved through the function of the rebound technique. Rebound, when practiced, insulates against carnality.
5. The trend toward good and evil can only be solved by consistent positive volition toward doctrine. This is positive volition which places you under the teaching of your right pastor.

The is the lack of a progress report.

“but what I hate, that do I” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahI-LAH] sets up a contrast between what Paul resolves or desires to do as a believer in the second marriage and what he is actually doing in going back to the first husband. The ex-husband is making attractive noises which lure the confused wife back to that miserable relationship of the first marriage. With this is the nominative singular of the relative pronoun hos (ὅς) [pronounced hohç], translated “but what.”

Then the present active indicative of the verb miseô (μισέω) [pronounced mihs-EH-oh], which means to hate. But it is much stronger than that, it means to detest. It is intensified hate. The present tense is descriptive, indicating what is now going on. It is also known as the pictorial present since its distinctive force is to present to the mind of the reader a picture of events in the process of occurrence. The active voice: the normal attitude of the believer toward the first husband, the old sin nature, is miseô (μισέω) [pronounced mihs-EH-oh], detesting it. The indicative mood is a potential indicative of obligation, since the believer should detest the old sin nature and love the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ.

Plus the nominative plural subject from the immediate demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos]—“these things,” and the present active indicative of the verb poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh], “I keep doing.” This is a retroactive progressive present, denoting what has begun in the past and continues into the present time. The active voice: the reversionistic believer produces the action of the verb. Paul as the human author is merely representing the reversionist, though he is not a reversionist at this point. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

Romans 7:15 For what I accomplish I do not understand, because what I desire (or, will) to do, these things I am not accomplishing; but what I detest, these things I keep on doing.

They are shocked by the sins which they commit; so they react to this, and they get involved in good. They shock themselves into doing good and evil.

Principle #1

1. This is a reference to either sinfulness without rebound or the reaction to that sinfulness which is the production of good, eventuating in evil.
2. Such production is tantamount to the wife in the second marriage returning to the ex-husband, the old sin nature, finding the old sin nature more attractive than the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ.
3. The linear aktionsart indicates that the believer is consistent in following the trends of the old sin nature, rather than following the authority of the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ. The reversionist does this constantly. He does not sin always; he also does acts of human good. So it is sin, good, sin, good; sin, good and evil.
4. Obedience to imputed righteousness demands two things: rebound when necessary, and consistent perception of the Word of God.

Principle #2

1. The verse indicates the successful attack of the first husband in the realm of volition. The culprit is the believer with volition.
2. The OSN has overcome the determination of the believer by leading him into a modus operandi which he does not understand, which he often despises, but nevertheless continues in it—for one obvious reason: neglect of rebound; neglect or rejection of doctrine.

3. Therefore, the attack of the first husband succeeds apart from the believer operating under logistical grace. If you separate the believer from items of logistical grace then he has no support against the seductive activities of the ex-husband. Logistical grace is a must; you cannot go anywhere without it.
4. This means the use of rebound is necessary in order to be filled with the Spirit. The daily function of GAP also becomes necessary; it is the only way to advance.

People say that there is nothing as bad as a reformed rake. He reacts to his former activities; and there is a massive amount of self-righteousness involved.

This means that the daily function of gap is necessary for the believer to advance. This is the last stage of driving toward maturity.

1977 Romans

Lesson #254

254 11/18/1977 Romans 7:16 (vs 15 principles) Carter and the USSR; first attack of the ex-husband, the old sin nature; crusades hinder GAP

A newspaper article on Brezinski, I think our secretary of state; and he speaks in gobbledegook and with a communist mentality. He does not like all of our spending on the arms race; but the cost of freedom is constant vigilance.

Our foreign policy has been sentimental to our own detriment (Bob).

Bob calls his a neo-Marxist who thinks in terms of a new world order.

Nov. 1 Boston Sun Egypt has refused to let the Britain nuclear ship through the Suez Canal. This does not exactly give the mentality of the Egyptians. We will get that same kind of nonsense when we turn over the Panama canal. Same paper, p. 4, says our military might in the Pacific has dropped off, so that we could not stop a Soviet attack on Japan or South Korea.

Romans 7:15 For what I accomplish I do not understand, because what I desire (or, will, resolve) to do [to glorify the Lord], these things I am not accomplishing; but what I detest, these things I keep on doing.

The two marriage analogy. The old sin nature is the culprit in the first marriage, but the believer is the culprit in the second marriage.

There are many Christians in government who are filled with good and evil solutions.

We have to stay loose and stay cool, because Jesus Christ controls history. We need to understand v. 15.

We have all kinds of movements to end communism. Bob developed a nasty attitude toward all crusades. He labeled as totally incorrigible and don't ask him.

We only have so much time on the earth after we are saved. Many of these crusades are about good things. When a crusade is a substitution for Bible, they automatically will fail.

You ignore Bible doctrine and you will have a constant conflict in your soul.

Principle #3

1. To do things you do not desire to do and to keep on doing them is an obvious warning of the inner conflict between the two husbands. This is old sin nature versus Christ.
2. The first husband is the old sin nature, and though divorced through retroactive positional truth desperately continues his activity inside of every believer. He is trying to seduce the believer under his authority and into the trends of sin, good, and evil.
3. The second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ, is standing by to provide the most fantastic blessings through maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
4. To experientially place yourself under orders to the second husband through the daily function of GAP is to turn away from temporary stimulation and pseudo happiness of the devil's world into a perfect, temporal and eternal happiness provided by the justice of God in the righteousness of God imputed.
5. There is no way for the believer to break out of the dilemma apart from the filling of the Holy Spirit and the daily function of GAP.
6. Only the filling of the Spirit and Bible doctrine resident in the soul can break the power and the influence of the old sin nature in life.
7. While instant provision for sin is provided through the rebound technique there is no instant or immediate solution to good and evil apart from maximum doctrine resident in the soul.

If God can provide the greater at salvation, namely the righteousness of God; then He can also provide great blessing in time, which is the lessor effort.

Romans 7:16 Now if that which I do not want, this I do, I consent to the Law, that it is good. (BLB)

Verse 16 – “If then I do that which I would not.” The conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] introduces the protasis of a first class condition. This is supposition from the viewpoint of reality. Then the postpositive transitional particle de, translated here “now—“Now if.”

Plus the present active indicative from the verb poiëō (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh]. This is a descriptive present for what is now going on: Now of I keep doing.” This is a way of describing linear aktionsart in present time. The active voice: the carnal or reversionistic believer produces the action of the verb under the influence/authority of the ex-husband, the old sin nature. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the standpoint of reality. This is necessary for the protasis of a first class condition.

Then the accusative neuter singular direct object from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos] for what is comparatively near at hand. The neuter gender here refers to what immediately precedes. “Now if I keep doing this thing.” Plus the nominative neuter singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], “which,” referring to the demonstrative pronoun which in turn refers to the dilemma of this verse.

Then the present active indicative of thélô (θέλω) [pronounced THEH-loh] plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]—“I do not desire.” The present tense is a customary present for what occurs in the status of either carnality or reversionism under the influence of evil. The active voice: the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] indicates the correct attitude of the believer toward the desires of the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ. He desires to please the second husband. The indicative mood is declarative, representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. “Now if I keep on doing this thing which I do not desire to do.”

“I consent” – present active indicative from sumphēmi (σύμφημι) [pronounced SOOM-fay-mee] [sun = with; phēmi (φημί) [pronounced fay-MEE] = to speak], to speak with means to agree, to consent: “I keep agreeing.” This is the perfective present for a fact which comes to be in the past but is emphasized as a present reality. The fact of the correctness or accuracy of the Mosaic law existed in the past and is now emphasized as a present reality. The active voice: the believer produces the action through application of doctrine. The declarative indicative mood is from the standpoint of reality.

“unto the law that it is good” – the instrumental of association with the definite article, and the noun is nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], “with the law.” The agreement is followed by a conjunction, hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee], which gives the content of the concurrence. Plus the implied present tense of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], the verb to be, and the predicate nominative singular from kalos (καλός) [pronounced kal-OSS], which means “good” but it is not like agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] good. Agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] good is good of intrinsic value, but his is good in the sense of denoting a quality in accordance with a purpose. I has many translations: noble, praiseworthy, advantageous.

Romans 7:16 Now if I keep doing this thing which I do not desire to do, I agree with the law that it is noble.

Principle #1

1. There must be a standard to break through the gloomy enigma of contradiction in the life of the unbeliever: the old sin nature versus our Lord Jesus Christ; the old sin nature versus the marriage counselor, the Holy Spirit.
2. This standard is the marriage counselor of the first marriage, the Mosaic law.

3. Therefore emphasis is placed on Codex #1 which emphasizes the problem of the first marriage, and Codex #2 which emphasizes the solution to the problem of the first marriage—salvation.
4. Once the solution has been accepted—faith in Christ—then the battle between the two husbands begins. There is no battle as long as there is only one husband, but retroactive positional truth divorces us from the old sin nature, the first husband, and simultaneously marries us to the second husband, current positional truth extrapolated from the baptism of the Spirit.
5. In this battle we have a new marriage counselor in God the Holy Spirit, but we never disagree with the content of the old marriage counselor, the Mosaic law. We still recognize the Mosaic law for what it is: from God, perfect, having a perfect design, a limited design in its function but nevertheless a perfect design.
6. This information about sin, good, and evil is still correct, still accurate.
7. Therefore we do not reject the standard of the law under the ministry of the Holy Spirit, but we use these standards to define sin for rebound and to alert us with regard to good and evil as a part of the assault on the Christian life.

A preacher in CA says that no one can understand Romans 7 until we get to heaven.

Principle #2

1. So when the believer keeps sinning or succumbs to good and evil he recognizes the nobility and the advantage of the Mosaic law in defining what he does not desire to do.
2. Hence, the Holy Spirit as the new marriage counselor uses the standards of the law to define sinfulness for the purpose of rebound and to define good and evil for the purpose of avoiding through separation.
3. In Codex #3 the Mosaic law defines divine principles of establishment which counteract both good and evil.
4. Patriotism is the Christian function under establishment, but socialism and the welfare state is a matter of good and evil (which is the devil's policy and the old sin nature's function).
5. Therefore Codex #3 of the Mosaic law, the establishment part of the code, continues to relate the believer to establishment for separation from the function of good and evil.
6. When the believer sins from his own volition he is doing something incompatible with his new marriage to Christ.
7. Therefore he is doing something he does not desire to do.
8. Therefore, he agrees to the advantage of the law in defining that sin, and he agrees also to the advantage of the law in defining establishment, so that the trends of the old sin nature can be avoided in the power and the filling of the Holy Spirit.
9. Therefore the law is advantageous to the believer even though the Mosaic law is no longer the marriage counselor.

255 11/20/1977 Romans 7:17 Roles of the old sin nature, volition and the Holy Spirit re inner conflict of the believer

Imputations and the marriages are the interpretive principles.

Human life is received after birth. Life is imputed to the soul; a real imputation, as the soul is its home or target. Adam's original sin at the same time is imputed to the old sin nature, which is another natural (real) imputation.

The evangelist tries to keep bringing your own sins into the picture. Christ died for our sins refers to His spiritual death. Jesus was still alive when He proclaimed, Finished.

First 16 verses read.

Christian involvement today in good and evil is horrendous.

V. 17 is the first attack of the ex-husband. V. 18 will be the second attack of the ex-husband.

Romans 7:17 And in that case I am no longer doing it, but the sin dwelling in me. (BLB)

Verse 17 – “Now then it is no more I that do it.” The first word is the adverb of time, nuní (νυνί) [pronounced noo-NEE]. When this is combined with the postpositive particle de it becomes an idiom, so nuní (νυνί) [pronounced noo-NEE] de is literally, “But now.” It is an idiom which should be translated “But as the case really stands.” The next two words are oukéti (οὐκέτι) [pronounced ook-EHT-ee] egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]. Oukéti (οὐκέτι) [pronounced ook-EHT-ee] is used logically rather than temporally, hence it means “no longer.” Plus the nominative singular subject egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], “I.”

Then the present active indicative of κατεργάζομαι (katergázomai) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ahee], which means to achieve, to accomplish, to do, to work out. In this case we translate it “perform.” This is an iterative present denoting what recurs at successive intervals. The middle voice of the deponent verb is taken as an active voice. Paul himself uses himself to represent the modus operandi of the human race under the control of the old sin nature. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verb form from the viewpoint of reality. The accusative neuter singular direct object from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS] is attributive and is translated “the same.” “But as the case really stands I am no longer performing the same [that is, sin, good, evil].”

Principle

1. The attributive use of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS] refers to the trends of the old sin nature, toward sin, good and evil. .

2. This does not imply lack of cooperation or failure to use one's own personal volition in the matter of sin, good, and evil. We never perform these acts without the volition being involved.
3. Paul is dramatizing the conflict between the ex-husband, the old sin nature, and the present husband, the Lord Jesus Christ; with emphasis on the believer in the analogy. And in the analogy the believer is the wife.
4. This emphasizes how a believer with maximum doctrine resident in his soul understands the problem, and on the one hand honors doctrine and on the other hand renounces and rejects the ex-husband, the OSN. The more doctrine we learn the more we can avoid evil and good.
5. No one ever commits a sin, known or unknown, without involvement of his own volition. Two things are involved: lust [from OSN] and volition.
6. Paul is not denying the involvement of his volition but he is renouncing the function of the old sin nature as the ex-husband.
7. The believer is not the master of his inner life, therefore the need of a marriage counselor for the second marriage—the Holy Spirit.
8. The Holy Spirit enables the believer's volition to make decisions which please the Lord Jesus Christ rather than the old sin nature.
9. While volition is involved in the performance of sin, good, and evil, volition is not the source of these things.
10. Only the filling of the Spirit and Bible doctrine resident in the soul can offset the gravitational pull of the OSN soliciting sin, good, and evil.

The a fortiori blessing goes like this: if God has done the most for us at salvation; then God is able to provide blessings for us in time. If you are minus blessings in time, then you are minus blessings in eternity.

Apparently a wire was sent to Bob (and others) to picket against the feminists, who are holding some sort of a rally in Houston. The National Women's Conference of 1977 was a four-day event during November 18-21, 1977, as organized by the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year.

God is not impressed with you running around doing works and whatever. He is not impressed by your personality, dedication or strong emotions.

“Your sour expression tells me that your worship is in the wrong church.”

“but sin that dwelleth in me” – this is not personal sin, it is the old sin nature. The adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up the contrast between the previous clause and this one—“but.” Then the culprit of the first marriage, the nominative singular subject of hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] with the generic use of the definite article use to portray the old sin nature as the now well-known ex-husband.

Plus the present active participle of enoikéō (ἐνοικέω) [pronounced en-oy-KWH-oh] [en (ἐν) [pronounced en] = in; oikéō (οἰκέω) [pronounced oy-KEH-oh] = dwell], which means to inhabit or indwell. We can translate it “living” as well. It means to dwell in or to live in—“but the sin nature which keeps on living in me.” The present tense is retroactive progressive present denoting what began in the past, at birth, and continues into the present time. The OSN continues to live inside each one of us after salvation. The active voice: the OSN produces the action of the verb after salvation. The participle is circumstantial. With this is the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural of the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“in me.”

Romans 7:17 But as the case really stands, I am no longer performing the same [sin, good, evil], but the sin nature which keeps on indwelling me.

This is why the believer must have, and does have, the indwelling presence of two members of the Trinity—God the Holy Spirit as the marriage counselor and the Lord Jesus Christ for the purpose of fellowship. Our marriage is union with Christ, the baptism of the Spirit. The indwelling of Christ, however, is only for the believer who is positive toward doctrine—2Corinthians 13:5 says that Christ comes out of the reversionistic believer. The indwelling of the Spirit is permanent.

Principle

1. The inner conflict of the believer and the pressure on volition of the royal family then becomes obvious. We have the pressure of inner conflict, the pressure of desiring to please the Lord, and yet not pleasing Him because of what we are doing, and being cognizant of what we are doing and not pleasing to Him.
2. Inside of each believer is the old sin nature soliciting and seducing toward sin, toward good, and toward evil.
3. Inside each believer is the Lord Jesus Christ, the second husband since salvation.
4. Also inside of each believer is the Holy Spirit, the marriage counselor of the second marriage.
5. Both Christ, the second husband, and God the Holy Spirit, the new marriage counselor, indwell the body of the believer. These doctrines to be taken up Romans 8:8–9.
6. To appreciate all of this there must be another indwelling, i.e. the indwelling of Bible doctrine in the right lobe of the soul, as well as the human spirit. In the human spirit the construction of the edification complex occurs; in the soul the believer advances to maturity.
7. The first attack of the former husband, the OSN, emphasizes the source of the conflict and the seduction of human volition.

1977 Romans

Lesson #256

256 11/20/1977 Romans 7:18a Can't depend on people; soul is the issue not the body; role of volition and knowledge of Bible doctrine

Bob is being entertained by the women meeting in Houston (they are apparently all on chapter 8).

Romans 7:18 For I know that there dwells in me nothing good, that is, in my flesh. For to will is present with me, but not to do good. (BLB)

Verse 18 – “For I know that in me” begins with the postpositive conjunctive particle gar used in the inferential connotation and is translated “In fact” or “Certainly.” Plus the perfect verb oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da] used as a present active indicative for some form of cognizance—perfect in form, present in meaning. With it the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative singular of the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], translated “in me.” “In fact I know that in me.” The question has to be understood on the outside in connection with the angelic conflict, but the problem also has to be understood on the inside. Paul is saying in effect that he understands the problem in himself, and in so doing that he indicates that he has great objectivity. Objectivity becomes the way of learning the problem and therefore finding the solution. So we have cognizance of the problem, the inner conflict between the ex-husband, the OSN, and the marriage counselor of the second marriage, the Holy Spirit. The principle: Cognizance of the problem must precede awareness of the solution, and its proper application in solving the problem. The correct translation: “In fact I know that there does not dwell in me.”

He understands the problem in himself. Paul is demonstrating great objectivity. There is no perfect man, perfect woman or perfect church. If you depend upon people for happiness, you will be unstable and unhappy.

We have to begin again, after oida (οἶδα) [pronounced OY-da], with the insertion of such as the conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] before the prepositional phrase. Between “I know” and “in me” we have two very important Greek words. One is a negative adverb and the other is a verb: the negative adverb ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] is used for the present active indicative of the verb oikéō (οικέω) [pronounced oy-KEH-oh] which means to inhabit, to live, to dwell, to have one’s habitation or to dwell in something. It is translated, “In fact I know that there does not dwell.” The present tense is a historical present viewing a past event with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: the principle of no intrinsic good indwelling the body produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of Bible doctrine. For the definition of the prepositional phrase we have these words in between: “In fact I know that there does not reside in me.”

Bob talked to a group, British pilots? They were very objective and they took things in stride. They could laugh at themselves. Too many of you take yourselves too seriously.

Most people do not belong with other people because they are thoughtless. They are thoughtless in their manners and conversations.

Then comes what is comparable to a parenthesis, “that is, in my flesh” – the nominative neuter singular from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], used here for an explanation. With it is the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], and the two words together are simply used as an explanatory amplification—“that is.” Then en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx] with the possessive genitive of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“in my flesh,” a reference to the human body which is the headquarters for the old sin nature, from which headquarters the old sin nature rules. Satan rules from outside of each one of us, he is the ruler of this world.

Instead of handling life in privacy, they makes their sins public and all of their issues public.

Slaves had no rights to go around and demand freedom.

When we want to solve a problem with the body, the problem cannot be solved. Solution lie in the soul; not in the body. The body must be sustained in life, as it is the house for the soul. For the believer, that soul must be controlled by the Holy Spirit.

What you take into your body, it is released as waste. But what you take into the soul, by way of doctrine, it kept and it advances the believer to maturity.

“no good thing” – the accusative singular of agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], meaning intrinsic good. It is the object of the verb.

8.

Principle

1. In total depravity the problem is spiritual death. Total depravity is the imputation of Adam’s original sin to the OSN, and spiritual death is a part of total depravity. Spiritual death means more than no salvation relationship with God, it means ignorance of God’s plan, ignorance of God’s policy.
2. The problem is hopeless in the human body, leaving only the human soul for the area of solution. The solution always deals with the fact that Bible doctrine must become resident in the soul. Spiritual growth and glorification of Christ cannot occur in the physical body, only in the soul.
3. It is the soul, not the body, which is saved at eternal salvation through faith in Jesus Christ.
4. The believer receives a new body, a resurrection body, in eternity.
5. Furthermore, the solution to the problem of phase two or time resides inevitably in the soul—Bible doctrine resident in the soul through the daily function of GAP, plus the filling of the Holy Spirit.
6. Therefore spiritual growth and glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ cannot and does not occur in the body, but in the soul.
7. The divine energy of the filling of the Spirit must replace human energy since the solution is located in the soul and not the body. Human energy and the function of human energy does not glorify Jesus Christ.
8. The spiritual food of Bible doctrine must replace the physical food of life which sustains the body. It is what sustains the soul that counts. This does not mean that we neglect physical food.

9. The human body is the place where physical food is converted into human energy but the soul is the place where doctrine must reside and the Spirit must fill/control for the advance to maturity, and therefore glorification of Christ.
10. What human energy is to the body the spiritual energy of the filling of the Spirit is to the soul.
11. What food is to the nourishment and sustenance of the body Bible doctrine is to the nourishment and sustenance of the soul.
12. Solution depends upon the filling of the Spirit, i.e. the Holy Spirit controlling the battleground, the soul, and the residence of Bible doctrine.
13. All objectives are accomplished through experiential sanctification. Experiential sanctification begins its modus operandi through the filling of the Spirit and the daily function of GAP, and eventuates if persistence occurs in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
14. Spiritual advance to maturity and the glorification of the Lord Jesus Christ in super-grace status can only be accomplished under the ministry of the Holy Spirit through Whom we convert gnôsis (γνώσις) [pronounced GNOH-sis] doctrine into epignôsis (ἐπίγνωσις) [pronounced ehp-IHG-noh-sis] doctrine.

“for to will is present with me” – the explanatory conjunctive particle gar, followed by the articular present active infinitive of the verb thélô (θέλω) [pronounced THEH-loh], which means to will, to wish, to desire. It means also to resolve and it connotes the relationship between the volition of the soul and purpose in life. Here the articular infinitive is used as a substantive. The definite article provides the case for converting this participle into a noun. Since the definite article is in the nominative neuter singular that becomes the case for the participle converted into a noun. The definite article informs us that the substantival use of the infinitive is going to be a special noun. Since the infinitive does not have a case, the definite article gives it its case. It is translated, “for the resolve.”

Then the present middle indicative of the verb parákeimai (παράκειμαι) [pronounced par-AK-i-mahee], “is present.” There is the resolve, the will, the desire to please God, to do the will of God. Wanting to please God is not the same as pleasing God. Many men in love want to please a woman, but they do not have a clue. You can be sincere in wanting to please a woman but don’t know how. Some people get married and they think that they are going to automatically please one another because you are married.

This is what is wrong with politicians, is they are trying to please everyone. He has long abandoned his own principles in trying to figure out how to get elected.

“Pastors try to please everyone in the congregation (not me).”

This is the present tense of repeated action, known as the tendencial present, which describes what recurs at successive intervals. The indirect middle emphasizes the agent producing the action of the verb rather than participating in the results of the action. The agent is the believer with the inner conflict. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Plus the locative of sphere from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], translated “in me”—“for the resolve is present in me.” “In fact I know that there does not reside in me (that is, in my human body,) any intrinsic good: and the honorable accomplishment of my purpose is negative.”

Man's Volition

1. The desire to please God, the desire to solve the problem, comes from headquarters in the soul—human volition.
2. But human volition cannot solve any problems or make a right decision without logistical support.
3. Man's volition has been involved from the very beginning when Adam took the fruit from out of the hand of the woman. In the garden Adam and the woman made decisions every day with regard to staying away from the tree. Then one day they both made a decision to eat of the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. The one thing you do not need in your relationship with God is good and evil.
4. The first sin in the human race, then, was an act of volition.
5. Salvation is a non-meritorious act of volition. The merit lies in the object, not in the subject.
6. After salvation the volition of the believer must make daily decisions in the direction of logistical provision of grace.
7. When sin has occurred there must be a decision to rebound, but the believer must understand the mechanics of rebound.
8. To reach the objective of the Christian way of life daily decisions must be made in favour of perception of doctrine, in favour of rebound when necessary.
9. So Paul describes the believer who is willing to make right decisions but is frustrated by ignorance of doctrine.
10. Volition must have direction. Furthermore, volition must have grace direction.
11. Without doctrinal facts and doctrinal information the volition is frustrated in fulfilling the divine policy and executing the objective stated in the divine decrees.
12. Volition is useless without direction, without information, without cognizance of doctrine.
13. The resolve is present in the believer but the execution of the resolve demands cognizance of doctrine. You can't please God until you know how to please God.
14. Otherwise, there is the frustration stated in the final phrase of this verse.

This verse states the fact that sincerity is not a Christian virtue.

1977 Romans

Lesson #257

257 11/21/1977 Romans 7:18b–19 Principle of the failure of sincere Christians; policy; human vs. divine solutions

Romans 7:18a In fact I know that there does not reside in me (that is, in my human body,) any intrinsic good: and the honorable accomplishment [or, execution] of my purpose is negative.

The body is hopeless; the only solution is found in the soul. The divine energy of the filling of the Spirit must replace the human energy of legalism and sincerity. The battlefield is the soul, not the body. The solution of Bible doctrine; more important food than physical food.

Romans 7:18 For I know that there dwells in me nothing good, that is, in my flesh. For to will is present with me, but not to do good. (BLB)

Romans 7:18 In fact I know that there does not reside in me (that is, in my human body,) any intrinsic good: and the honorable accomplishment [or, execution] of my purpose is negative.

This doctrine is related to the activist Christians in Houston.

The Failure of Sincere Christians

1. Sincerity is related to volition, but volition without doctrine is helpless in both the execution of the will of God and the attainment of the objective: maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Sincerity is related to volition by way of emotion. Emotion is the connecting link between sincerity and the decisions made from sincerity. Sincerity is filled with good intentions but sincerity is merely emotion trying to take the objective.
2. There is no glorification of Christ apart from maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
3. There is no direct blessing from the justice of God apart from maturity adjustment from the justice of God.
4. There is no maturity adjustment to the justice of God apart from Bible doctrine resident in the soul. You can only get this doctrine in the soul by means of the authority of the pastor-teacher. All of these cells are a blasphemy to the Lord.
5. So while human volition is sincere in desiring to glorify God, this is not the answer. "If you don't get out there and protest, their blood is on your hands."
6. The best intentions of the sincere believer are destroyed on the shoals of ignorance. Sincere believers are eventually trapped in the sphere of good and evil. They have good intentions; but they fall into good and evil.
7. How can you fulfil the purpose and resolve to glorify Christ if you do not know how to do it, if you do not know the policy? You cannot do the will of God unless you know His policy.
8. Ignorance of doctrine interdicts between good intentions and motivations and the fulfilment of the will of God. Good intentions are not the will of God necessarily. Sincere decisions are not necessarily the will of God.
9. Sincerity plus ignorance of doctrine is a guarantee of failure. Sincerity is not a virtue, it is a sign of stupidity.
10. Sincerity without doctrine is the road to reversionism under the influence of evil. It is the road of apostasy.

11. The second attack of the ex-husband, the old sin nature, places emphasis on sincerity and emotional motivation. This is the quickest road to reversionism and the sin unto death.

Bob is not going to talk to every single person who wants to. He has an organization and they disseminate and distribute policy.

When you see long-haired males, you know there are problems with this organization.

God has put His policy in the Bible; and the pastor-teacher is designed to explain it.

Sweetness and light Christians have nothing to offer you by way of advice.

Discerning people know to give sincerity a wide birth.

Romans 7:18 In fact I know that there does not reside in me (that is, in my human body,) any intrinsic good: and the honorable accomplishment [or, execution] of my purpose is negative.

Review of Romans 7:18

1. Before any believer can appreciate the divine solution and God's grace policy he must come to the end of himself—the end of human gimmicks.
2. He must realize that the verse we are studying, for example, states that there does not reside in any of us any ability or talent, or sacrificial function by which we can glorify God.
3. The sincere believer must run out of human solutions before he will accept the divine solutions. The sincere believer is stupid, therefore he has to try every human solution before he tries the divine solution which is Bible doctrine resident in the soul through the daily function of GAP.
4. Honorable accomplishment or execution of God's will is negative until the believer uses cognizance of doctrine to advance to the maturity adjustment to the justice of God, plus resultant glorification of Christ and maximum blessing from the justice of God.
5. Grace blessing from the justice of God cannot come to the believer by any means of human activity, any system of legalism, but only through doctrine resident in the soul.
6. Honorable execution of the divine plan and the attainment of divine objectives is negative until the believer accepts logistical grace—a right pastor communicating doctrine from the Word of God on a consistent basis.
7. Until you accept the teaching and the authority of whoever your right pastor happens to be your honorable achievement will be negative.

Romans 7:18a In fact I know that there does not reside in me (that is, in my human body,) any intrinsic good: and the honorable accomplishment [or, execution] of my purpose is negative.

Seneca, the greatest philosopher of his day, executed by Nero. “What he wills, he does not will.” This is what happens when sincerity gets into the picture with a few gimmicks.

Romans 7:19 For the good that I desire, I do not do; but the evil that I do not want, this I practice. (BLB)

Verse 19 – “For the good which I would I do not.” This is a dilemma that occurs when a believer has a little doctrine. A little doctrine is like a lot of poison, it confuses you. You must have a lot of doctrine and therefore you have little or no poison.

This begins with the nominative neuter singular from the adjective agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS], good of intrinsic value. With it is the postpositive explanatory conjunctive particle gar, and it is translated literally, “For the intrinsic good.” Plus the nominative neuter singular relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç]—“which,” and the present active indicative of the verb thélô (θέλω) [pronounced THEH-Ioh] which means to purpose, to resolve. There is another word for purpose or resolve: boulomai, which means to purpose or resolve from knowledge, whereas thélô (θέλω) [pronounced THEH-Ioh] means to purpose or resolve from emotion or sincerity. This doesn’t always hold true but there are cases where it does, and this is one. The present tense is an iterative present for a desire, a purpose, a resolve which occurs at successive intervals. The active voice: Paul, the human author, uses himself to represent the inner conflict. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Plus the present active indicative from poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] with the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]—“I do not do.” “For the intrinsic good which I desire I do not do.” The present tense is a historical present, it views a past event such as carnality or reversionism, or both, with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: Paul, representing the carnal and the reversionistic believer, produces the action of the verb, not when he writes but in the past time. The indicative mood is declarative for absolute dogmatic reality. The intrinsic good or agathos (ἀγαθός) [pronounced ag-ath-OSS] is the fulfilment of the objective designed by God for each one of us in eternity past.

God has plans for our lives. But it is not what we think that it is. Our blessings in time and eternity depend upon the content of Scripture in your soul.

“but the evil” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast. Then the nominative neuter singular from the adjective kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS], one of the words for evil, plus the definite article used with abstract nouns in which their character and application is revealed, so it is “the evil”—“but the evil.”

“which I would not” – the nominative neuter singular from the relative pronoun hos (ὃς) [pronounced hohç], whose antecedent is kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS] /evil—“but the evil which.” The neuter gender is translated “which,” the feminine gender is translated

“who.” Plus the present active indicative of thélô (θέλω) [pronounced THEH-loh] again, with the negative—“which I do not desire.” The present tense is a pictorial present, it gives the mind a picture of what is now going on. The active voice: Paul, representing the reversionist, produces the action of the verb in expressing an inner conflict. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

“that I do” – the nominative neuter singular subject from the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], and in the singular it is translated “this.” Plus the present active indicative of prassô (πράσσω) [pronounced PRAS-so], the verb which means to practice or accomplish. The present tense is a perfective present, it denotes a continuation of the existing results of reversionism, the practice of evil. The active voice: Paul, representing the reversionist under the influence of evil, produces the action. The indicative mood is the potential indicative of impulse. It goes with sincerity.

When Bob makes a point, he basis it upon the Greek exegesis. Whether you like it or not, exegesis is important for understanding the Word of God. Bob suggests good posture. “You do not understand the grammar and syntax of English, and that’s the problem.”

Romans 7:19 For the intrinsic good which I desire I do not do; but the evil which I do not desire, this I keep on practicing.

Principle

1. As the policies and objectives of the Christian way of life unfold in the mind of the believer (through perception of doctrine) it does not follow that understanding the will of God means doing the will of God. The first part of the solution is knowing the will of God through perception of doctrine, but once you know the will of God the next step is doing it. God provides for the knowing His will; and the way to accomplish it. There is no place for human ability, talent, schemes, systems or sincerity.
2. The inner conflict between the ex-husband, the old sin nature, and the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ, is personified and dramatized in many biblical passages.
3. Without the filling of the Spirit and the constant perception of Bible doctrine under the ministry of one’s right pastor the evil which the believer does not purpose to do he keeps on practicing.
4. Therefore, part of the problem is to know the objective, and the other part is to attain the objective—the objective being maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
5. Intrinsic good in this verse refers to cracking the maturity barrier through maximum doctrine resident in the soul. Only in maturity do we have the capacity and the security for blessing from the justice of God.

Primary potential is the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation. This potential gives us the objective of blessing in time. But we must first have capacity to enjoy that blessing.

Romans 7:19 For the intrinsic good which I desire I do not do; but the evil which I do not desire, this I keep on practicing.

This is the inner battle between the two husbands: the old sin nature, which is the previous husband; and Jesus Christ, the new husband. The ex-husband keeps trying to win back the believer after the marriage is over.

The doctrines of evil, gap, divine guidance, eternal security, and a couple of others were suggested for us to review.

Lesson #258

258 11/22/1977 Romans 7:20 Second attack of husband #1; inner conflict; shift of responsibility from the old sin nature to believer's volition

A review of the translation going back to v. 1. If we understand imputations, the marriage analogy and a fortiori, then we understand Romans 7.

God is too smart to love people. God only loves internally and externally. He loves His Own integrity; and He loves the other Members of the Godhead. God cannot love that which is sinful or imperfect. Therefore, we do not have a direct relationship with His love.

God's righteousness demands an equivalent.

Life does not begin until God imputes it. Once God gives life to the soul, it cannot be destroyed. There is no soul sleep.

Our personal sin is not an issue in relation to God, as our sins were imputed to Christ on the cross for judgment.

God imputes His righteousness to us; so divine blessing can be given to us from God's justice. God can give us a variety of blessings from His justice because they are given to His righteousness which is imputed to us. The imputation of divine righteousness explains why God.

The believer who spends his entire time on earth being disciplined either never advances or is removed from this earth by the sin unto death.

Bob would like to go back and talk to his professor about imputation, but he does not think that his previous professor who taught him imputations is very receptive to anything that Bob has to say.

The missing link between blessing in time and the believer is capacity. Capacity is achieved in one way, through spiritual growth.

We all lust; and only a foolish person does not recognize that. But knowing that we lust does not shut down the lust pattern of the soul.

Romans 7:20 Now if what I do not want, I do this, it is no longer I who do it, but sin dwelling in me. (BLB)

Verse 20 – “Now if I do that I would not.” The postpositive conjunctive particle de is used in a transitional sense here and translated “Now.” Then a conditional conjunction or the conjunctive particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /], plus the indicative mood of the verb, and is used for a first class condition, supposition from the viewpoint of reality.

Plus the present active indicative from the verb poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh] which means to do. The present tense is a descriptive present, sometimes known as a pictorial present, for something in the process of occurrence. The active voice: Paul, the human author, uses himself as a representative of the reversionist. He is not in reversionism when he writes this but he represents the attitude of the reversionist in order for a better understanding of this passage and a personalising of this passage compatible with its interpretative illustration of the divorce from the old sin nature and marriage to the Lord Jesus Christ as the second husband. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

Then the word “that” is really the nominative singular relative pronoun hos and it should be translated “what” because of the neuter. Plus the nominative singular from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]. The present active indicative of thélô (θέλω) [pronounced THEH-Ioh] with the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] means purpose, will, or desire. The negative ouk is used with the indicative mood; and mê is used with the subjunctive mood. “Now if I am doing what I do not desire.” The present tense is a customary present denoting what may be reasonably expected from the believer who is positive toward doctrine. The active voice: the believer produces the action. The indicative mood is potential of obligation. The potential depends upon perception of Bible doctrine. Plus the nominative neuter singular from autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS], the intensive pronoun, the attributive use—“the same I keep doing.”

Principle

1. The believer with cognizance of Bible doctrine does not desire to follow the trends of the old sin nature.
2. But the first class condition of the protasis indicates the reality of doing it anyway.
3. Therefore the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS], “the same,” refers to production of sin, good and evil. This production or accomplishment of sin, good and evil is what such a believer does not desire to do.
4. There is an inner conflict between what the believer desires to do and what he actually does. Example of a football player who desires to do well, but some things made it impossible.
5. This dilemma reveals the fact that there is a strong push-pull activity in every believer, but not in the unbeliever.

6. In fact, the life of the believer is a major battleground between the forces of evil by the old sin nature and the forces of God led by doctrine and the inner ministry of the Holy Spirit.
7. The volition of the believer's soul is subject to tremendous antithetical pressures from two husbands: the ex-husband or the old sin nature and the new husband, the Lord Jesus Christ as represented by doctrine, and the marriage counselor, the indwelling Holy Spirit.
8. Only through the filling of the Spirit and cognizance of pertinent doctrine can the believer be enabled to make decisions which are pleasing and honoring to God.

Some believers can seem very weird. We can be two different people. There is this conflict between the rule of the sin nature as over against the rule of the better nature (the spiritually grown believer). This passage demands that we be thoughtful of other believers.

“it is no more I that do it” – the temporal adverb oukéti (οὐκέτι) [pronounced ook-EHT-ee] which means “no longer.” This means that from the first marriage to the second marriage there is a change of emphasis on who gets the blame. The source remains: the old sin nature. But the volition of the believer now becomes involved, and he is not going to excuse himself, he is just going to show that the source remains the same but the responsibility for controlling the source is entirely different: the source being the old sin nature, and the old sin nature being the ruler of human life, ruling through spiritual death, had the authority before salvation. But after salvation the old sin nature no longer has the authority, the believer's volition is in the driver's seat, and therefore the responsibility of the believer for his own decisions becomes a great issue. The believer is not the ultimate source of sin, good and evil but the old sin nature. However, the believer has volition which permits the trends of the old sin nature. The present middle indicative of the verb κατεργάζομαι (katergázomai) [pronounced kat-er-GAHD-zom-ahee] means to bring it about. “I am no longer the one bringing it about.” The present tense is a progressive present signifying the action in progress or in a state of persistence—linear aktionsart present time. The middle voice of the deponent verb—middle in form, active in meaning—Paul represents himself in the illustrative role for the teaching purpose. The indicative mood is declarative for reality in the verbal action. Plus the accusative singular direct object autós (αὐτὸς) [pronounced ow-TOSS]—“it,” referring to accomplishing the trends of the sin nature.

“but sin that dwelleth in me” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH] sets up a contrast between the negative and the positive. Plus the nominative singular subject from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ἡ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah], the old sin nature, with the definite article denoting a previous reference. Then the present active participle of oikéō (οικέω) [pronounced oy-KEH-oh], meaning to reside or dwell, make residence in. The present tense of duration denotes what was begun in the past and continues throughout life. Even after salvation we still have the residence of the old sin nature. The active voice: the old sin nature as the ex-husband produces the action. This is a circumstantial participle emphasizing the fact that after salvation the old sin nature still makes its headquarters in the human body. Then the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“inside of me.”

Romans 7:20 Now if what I do not desire, the same I keep doing, I am no longer the one bringing it about, but the sin nature residing in me.

If you do something that you do not desire to do, then you desired to do it. After salvation, you continue to have volition; but volition is no good without having all the pertinent information. Some people do not have the facts, so they say, "I am going to pray about it." But God is not going to lead a person who lacks the facts or the pertinent doctrine.

Principle

1. The second attack strategy emphasizes the frustration of the divine purpose in the believer by the counterattack of the old sin nature. The person exercises his volition in order to go along with the desires of the sin nature (the ex-husband).
2. Again, as before salvation, the old sin nature is the origin of sin, good and evil. But now that the believer is married to the second husband he cannot go back to the ex-husband without being involved. The believer has never committed a sin unless he wanted to do it. People do things because they want to do them. Volition is key in the life of the believer.
3. The conflict between the purpose to please Christ and the desire to fulfil the lusts of the old sin nature while living in this world becomes a constant push-pull pressure in which the true purpose and meaning of the Christian life is stale-mated by the trends of the old sin nature (check-mated would be death by the sin unto death).
4. The old sin nature provides both lust and the motivation for the believer's wrong decisions—the volitional involvement in the trends of sin, good and evil.
5. The believer is not excused because from his own free will he succumbs to the pull pressure. The Holy Spirit pushes us toward spiritual maturity; and the sin nature pulls us into its sphere of influence in order to sin (or to commit acts of sin, good or evil). When you commit a sin, you are the one responsible for doing it.
6. Therefore the first husband is constantly trying to get the ex-wife back under control.
7. When he succeeds the believer is classified as a reversionist under the influence of evil.
8. This leads to the concept in the next verse: the co-existence of both good and evil.....

Lesson #259

259 11/23/1977 Romans 7:21 Battle of the Bulge–1; conflict in the soul from coexistence of Bible doctrine and the old sin nature

1944 Adolf Hitler reviewed his situation, 76 divisions destroyed and 1,000,000 men killed as well just that year up to October. One general thought that he ought to be in charge of the allies, and he believed that the Americans should be put into a quiet area of the Ardeen Forest.

Bob is drawing out a map of the armies. Possibly found here:

https://www.rbthieme.org/images/Illustrations/BattleOfTheBulge_11.gif

Golden Lions not tasting battle yet. Hitler pulled together 3 armies for a counterattack, and there are British and American armies there. Their whole objective was to hit American troops and this was the biggest European campaign that the Americans were involved in, in WWII. Montgomery wanted Americans to only play a very secondary role in this battle. American intelligence had no idea what was happening. Only George S. Patton Jr. was the only man who was prepared. The Americans did not have a clue as to what was taking place across from them. An unknown soldier was going back and forth, and giving the Krauts hell. He should have gotten the Medal of Honor, but we do not know his name.

Bucholtz Americans standing in line for breakfast and saw these troops traveling in twos. They grabbed their weapons and started shooting.

The objective was the Myrrs River, meant the Germans had to go through another city.

A Medal of Honor recipient, McGarity (?) from Tennessee. It is because of men like him that we have the freedom that we do.

Bob reviews imputations. The marriage analogy. The culprit of the first marriage is the sin nature; the culprit of the second marriage is the believer, who chooses to operate according to his sin nature.

A review of the first 20 verses.

Romans 7:21 So I find the principle in my desiring to do good, that evil is present with me. (BLB)

Verse 21 – “I find then a law.” The inferential illative particle ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah], in the apodosis of a conditional sentence used to express a result, and therefore it should be translated either “consequently” or “as a result.” With it is the present active indicative of the verb heuriskô (εὐρίσκω) [pronounced hyoo-RIHS-koh]. The present tense is a historical present which views the past discovery with the vividness of a present occurrence. The active voice: Paul discovered this phenomenon of good and evil co-existing in conflict with himself. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality. Plus the accusative singular direct object from nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] which has a variety of meanings. With the definite article used as a demonstrative pronoun it means here a rule governing one’s actions. Therefore it is translated, “Consequently I discovered this principle.” The principle has to do with the co-existence of doctrine from the new husband and evil from the ex-husband. There is a conflict which arises when we get some doctrine.

“that when I would do good” – literally, this is “to me the one wishing to do the honorable.” The conjunction hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] is used to indicate the content of a principle does not occur until after the dependent clause. The dependent clause has the dative singular indirect object egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“to me.”

Plus the articular present active participle from the verb thélô (θέλω) [pronounced THEH-loh], which means to wish, desire, purpose, will, resolve. The customary present tense is for what is expected of the believer as a member of the royal family of God. The active voice: Paul represents himself in the status of the reversionistic believer in order to personalize the problem. He is not reversionistic as he writes, he is filled with the Spirit. The participle is a temporal participle and therefore translated “that when I desire.”

Plus the present active infinitive of the verb poieô (ποιέω) [pronounced poi-EH-oh], which means to do. The iterative present tense is used to describe what recurs at successive intervals. The active voice: Paul represents the believer in conflict. The infinitive is the infinitive of intended result when the result is indicated as fulfilling a deliberate objective or aim. Then the accusative singular direct object from the adjective used as a substantive, kalos (καλός) [pronounced kal-OSS] with the definite article, meaning “the honorable thing.” The honorable thing includes the maintenance of the filling of the Spirit through the function of rebound and the daily function of GAP, resulting in the attainment of the objective—maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

We advance spiritually based upon all the God has given to us. Only what He gives us advances us in the spiritual life.

“evil is present with me” – literally, “that in me the evil resides.” The locative of sphere from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], preceded by hóti (ὅτι) [pronounced HOH-tee] indicating the content of the principle. Plus the nominative neuter singular from the adjective substantive kakós (κακός) [pronounced kak-OSS]—“evil,” and the present middle indicative of the verb parákeimai (παράκειμαι) [pronounced par-AK-i-mahee] which means to be present or to reside in—“that the principle of evil resides in me.” The present tense is a retroactive progressive present, evil has resided in us in the past with the result that it continues to right up to the present time. In other words, evil came with the imputation of Adam’s sin to its genetically formed home, the old sin nature. Evil is residence is counteracted by Bible doctrine resident in the soul and the filling of the Holy Spirit. The indirect middle voice is one in which evil produces the action of the verb. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of doctrine.

Romans 7:21 Consequently I discovered this principle: when I desire to do the honorable thing, that the principle of evil resides in me.

1977 Romans

Lesson #260

260 11/24/1977 Romans 7:22 Battle of the Bulge–2; Thanksgiving; doctrine in NOUS can't be applied; prisoner of war of the old sin nature; volition

One division (?) had not faced battle before. The innovated as never imagined. They did everything imaginable to stop the enemies. Even to driving a truck/jeep toward a tank, and then jumping out before impact.

Jose Lopez. He killed off 100 of the enemy. Ardennes Offensive.

Thanksgiving is a mental attitude. We see the ravages of reversionism in our country. In everything give thanks. If there is something for which you are not thankful, you are off the track. True capacity for thanksgiving is related to Bible doctrine in the soul. Several verses related to thanksgiving are covered. Although Bob did not cover this as a doctrine, per se; he did refer to many of the verses listed below:

The Doctrine of Thanksgiving

1. Thanksgiving is the daily act of rendering gratitude to God. And there is no gratitude to God apart from Bible doctrine in the soul. Thanksgiving is often a public acknowledgment or celebration of worship in which the goodness and graciousness of God are extolled, 1Chronicles 16:7-36.
2. Thanksgiving is the normal mental attitude of the royal family of God, Ephesians 5:20; 1Thessalonians 5:18.
3. Thanksgiving is based on knowing God through doctrine resident in the soul, Psalm 100:3-5.
4. Thanksgiving is a priestly sacrifice. It was a sacrifice in the Old Testament, it is a sacrifice for the royal priesthood of the New, Psalm 116:17; 107:22; Amos 4:5; Hebrews 13:15.
5. Thanksgiving is a supergrace function, Colossians 3:15; 2Corinthians 4:15. Maximum ability in thanksgiving is related to the supergrace life, therefore maximum thanksgiving comes from maximum doctrine in the soul. You must have doctrine in the soul before you have the mental attitude of thanksgiving. 2Corinthians 9:10,11, related to the priestly function of giving.
6. Personal testimonies, Daniel 2:23; Romans 1:8; 1Corinthians 1:4; Philippians 1:3; 2Timothy 1:3. Thanksgiving is as normal as breathing for the believer who is spiritually mature.
7. We thank God for our food.
8. Thanksgiving is motivated, therefore, by Bible doctrine resident in the soul, Colossians 2:7. You have to be taught before you overflow in thanksgiving.
9. Believers who are positive toward doctrine motivate thanksgiving in others, 1Thessalonians 3:9.
10. Thanksgiving is related to the function of prayer, Colossians 4:2.
11. God is the object of thanksgiving, 2Corinthians 9:15; Revelation 7:12

Romans 7:22 For I delight in the Law of God according to the inward man; (BLB)

Verse 22 – “For I delight in the law of God after the inward man.” The postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used to express ground or reason. Then the present passive indicative of the verb sunêdomai (συνήδομαι) [pronounced soon-AY-dom-ah-ee] [sun = with; hêdonê (ἡδονή) [pronounced hay-dohn-AY] = enjoy] which means to be delighted with something, along with those in the periphery. “For along with other believers I am delighted.” This is the customary present tense to denote what may reasonably be expected to occur. The passive voice: this is a deponent verb, passive in form, active in meaning. Paul representing the believer who is positive toward doctrine produces the action. The indicative mood is the potential indicative of obligation. It is our obligation to put something into the soul to offset the residence of evil.

That something is Bible doctrine mentioned in the locative of sphere singular from nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]—the third use of the word in this passage. Here it is used for doctrine in a general sense. Law from God means Bible doctrine here. Plus the ablative of source theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. God is the source of that which offsets evil in the soul. The ablative of source emphasizes the source of doctrine, the origin of doctrine. The phrase “after the inward man.”

Kata with the accusative of place which in the extension of space connotes along, over, through or in. The word usually means “down.” Here it means “in.” The accusative singular of the generic use of the definite article represents a class as being set apart from all other categorizing or classification. Plus the adverb ésō (ἔσω) [pronounced EHS-oh], meaning “inner,” and the generic use for man, anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos]—“in the inner man.” The inner man refers to the soul which is the battleground for the great conflict. Everything is decided in the soul. The battleground in the Christian life takes place in the soul.

Romans 7:22 For along with other believers I delight in the law from God [Bible doctrine] in the inner man.

Many points below were compared to the Ardennes Offensive.

The Battleground of the Christian Life is the Soul

1. Without Bible doctrine resident in the soul there is no inner conflict, for there is no divine viewpoint to challenge the trends of the old sin nature. Most Christians have substituted human good for Christian production.
2. Bible doctrine resident in the soul is not only the means of attaining spiritual maturity, which glorifies Christ, but the means for combating the attacks from the old sin nature in the inner conflict. The soul is the battleground. The greatest innovators in the world are believers with doctrine in the soul. God leads different people to do different things at different times. The innovation of the Battle of the Bulge is what was key to our success there.
3. God the Holy Spirit who provides the perception of doctrine also provides the application of doctrine and/or innovation in combating the functions of the old sin nature with its trends toward sin, good and evil.
4. Bible doctrine not only defines sin but reveals the true nature of good and evil.
5. Most believers are ambushed by good and evil. Good is the real secret. You think you are doing good for God; and this is just human good, often parlayed into evil.
6. In this battle you not only have to know the terrain [soul] but you have to know the objectives within that terrain.
7. You also have to understand the opposition, the old sin nature.
8. The opposition also seeks to distract from the inculcation of doctrine. We all have different things to distract us.

261 11/24/1977 Romans 7:23 Battle of the Bulge–3; negative volition of the believer = prisoner of war of the old sin nature; doctrine aids volition against attack

Walter Robertson was one of the great generals and there was a time when his division was in a fight with the entire German army.

Securing a ridge, by a man who used a bazooka to stop 5 tanks at point blank range.

Romans 7:23 ...but I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and making me captive to the law of sin being in my members. (BLB)

Verse 23 – the opposition. “But I see another law in my members.” The postpositive conjunctive particle de has at least five different uses. Here it is used to simply connect one clause with another with a slight contrast intended. The contrast comes from the opposition to Bible doctrine. Then the present active indicative of the verb blepō (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh] which means to see. Blepō (βλέπω) [pronounced BLEHP-oh] is used when you have some doctrine you have learned and finally get a chance to use it. The present tense is the aoristic present for punctiliar action in present time. In an instant of time all of these doctrines that have been collected in the right lobe of the soul are suddenly concentrated on a particular problem and used effectively. The active voice: Paul the human writer uses himself as the illustration for the discovery of the inner conflict. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

With it is the accusative singular adjective hétēros (ἕτερος) [pronounced HEH-ter-os], another of a different kind. In other words, the enemy. Plus the accusative singular direct object from nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], meaning “principle.” “But I see another of a different kind of principle.” It is located in the battlefield area, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss], plus egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH] in the possessive genitive—“in my members.” Mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss] always refers to the body, in which is the old sin nature. The different principle is the principle of opposition, the various functions of the old sin nature.

“warring against the law of my mind” – the present middle participle from the compound verb antistrateúōmai (ἀντιστρατεύομαι) [pronounced an-tee-strat-YOO-om-ahēe], which doesn’t really mean a war. It really means campaigning against. A campaign is a part of a war. In other words, Paul is referring to a specific time when the attack of the old sin nature occurs. The war goes on until we depart from this life by physical death, and we have many campaigns. The principle is campaigning against Bible doctrine. Bible doctrine in this particular verse is fighting a defensive action to wear out the enemy and then counterattack. The present tense is a progressive present for a state of persistence, hence linear aktionsart in present time. The circumstantial participle is for the fact that as long as we are in this life there is a conflict. The antagonistic principle is the operation of the old sin nature constantly attacking, campaigning against the principle of Bible doctrine resident in the soul.

Xenophan invented a whole number of systems for war. One of the oldest textbooks in history, 600 years before Christ. He uses technical terms; and Paul uses many of the words that Xenophann did.

The phrase “of my mind” is the descriptive genitive singular from noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose]. Noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose] is used because it refers to the left lobe of the soul. The right lobe of the soul is called in the Greek kardia, translated “heart.” The left lobe is where information is waiting, either to be processed over to the right lobe where it is usable, or to stay there and to be hooked up with arrogance and pride and to be misused, distorted and abused. The attack is always on the left lobe where doctrine in the left lobe is not strong enough to stand up against the attacks of the OSN. Only doctrine in the right lobe causes spiritual growth. Only doctrine in the right lobe can actually advance the believer, and only doctrine in the right lobe is usable. Doctrine fights in the right lobe only, not in the left lobe. Principle: If you are strong enough you won’t be attacked.

“and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin” – the conjunction kai is used to introduce the result which comes from that which precedes: “and so.” Plus the present active participle of aichmalōtízō (αἰχμαλωτίζω) [pronounced aheekh-mal-oh-TIHD-zoh]—“and so making me a prisoner.” This is a retroactive progressive present in which they have been a prisoner in the past because the doctrine was only in the left lobe, and they continue to be a prisoner up to the present time. The active voice: the believer with doctrine in the left lobe becomes a reversionist under attack. The campaign results in becoming a prisoner to reversionism. Plus the accusative singular direct object from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“me.” Plus nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] again, the principle—“making me a prisoner to the principle of the sin nature.” So the sin nature takes captive quite frequently.

“which is in my members” – the articular present active participle from the verb eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. The definite article is used as an attributive intensive pronoun, emphasizing the fact that the old sin nature continues to reside in the human body after salvation. The present tense is a perfective present denoting the continuation of existing results. It refers to a fact which has come to be in the past but is emphasized as a present reality. The circumstantial participle indicates that from birth we have had the old sin nature, and as long as we live on this earth the old sin nature will be there, and the old sin nature always attacks an unprepared position. The weak position is the born again believer who has doctrine in his left lobe but has never transferred it to his right lobe. He has not followed through on the mechanics of the function of GAP. The definite article is translated “the same.” The active voice: the old sin nature as the subject produces the action. The circumstantial participle says in effect that this is the status quo of mankind from physical birth. Then en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of mélos (μέλος) [pronounced MEL-oss] with egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“the same being in the members of my body.”

Romans 7:23 But I see a different principle in the members of my body, campaigning against the principle of my mind, and so making me a prisoner to the principle of the sin nature, the same sin nature being located in the members of my body.

The Sin Nature versus the Holy Spirit

1. Power corrupts. The volition of the soul is a basic power which is corrupted by the old sin nature with its trends toward good and evil, as well as sinfulness.
2. There is a constant pressure on the volition from the old sin nature whose headquarters is located in the human body, and Bible doctrine resident in the right lobe is the only deterrent.
3. When there is no Bible doctrine in the right lobe of the soul the old sin nature is the inevitable winner. The OSN makes a prisoner of the believer.
4. Being a prisoner to the OSN results in a life of great misery and divine discipline, and eventually the sin unto death. It also means no possibility of fulfilling the plan of God for your life in phase two.
5. The two conflicting principles within the believer co-exist as long as we live on this earth. The only way to have peace in human history is to be prepared for war. Maximum preparation for war is the only way to have peace. An unprepared nation becomes vulnerable and is subject to attack. So it is in the battleground of our souls. To be prepared we must have doctrine in the right lobe. We are unprepared when it is only in the left lobe. Doctrine in the left lobe does not resist and we become the captives of the old sin nature.
6. The only solution is the filling of the Holy Spirit plus the daily function of GAP, resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
7. Apart from Bible doctrine resident in the soul the OSN controls the battlefield with tactical victory, especially through involving the believer in good and evil.
8. Therefore power is corrupted and authority is distorted through one of the conflicting principles.
9. The conflicting principle is mutually exclusive with Bible doctrine in the right lobe, and therefore there can be no compromise between them.
10. Both principles reside in the believer, making his life a battleground. The OSN indwells the body; the Holy Spirit indwells the body. The OSN attacks the soul, but is deterred by Bible doctrine resident in the right lobe.
11. Since the OSN is located in the body, as its headquarters, it makes its attacks toward the soul; it does not reside in the soul. It makes its attack through the three trends: sin, good, evil.
12. The verse we are studying emphasizes the aggressiveness of the OSN, and the success of the OSN's attack unless countered from Bible doctrine resident in the soul under the filling of the Holy Spirit. To be made a prisoner in phase two is to become a casualty.

262 11/25/1977 Romans 7:24 Battle of the Bulge—4; principle of the increase of the grace of God

The Battle of the Bulge was actually about 15 battles. The 7th armor division is almost unknown among historians.

Romans 7:24 O wretched man I am! Who will deliver me out of this body of death?

Verse 24 – the despair that comes to the believer in reversionism. “O wretched man that I am!” The word “wretched” has changed its meaning drastically since the KJV was translated. The verse begins with the nominative singular subject from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH], translated “I,” used here for the purpose of expressing the personal misery of the person who is in reversionism. We must understand immediately that Paul is not wretched. As the writer of this passage he is extremely happy and a mature believer, and under the filling of the Holy Spirit he is writing this passage. But in order to personify the difficulties of reversionism he is led by the Holy Spirit to take the position of a reversionist in order to express the disaster of warning discipline, intensive discipline, and eventually dying discipline.

The grace pipeline is encapsulated by God’s integrity. We must have the capacity for blessing. The righteousness of God is the guardian of the justice of God.

We do not receive blessing from God because we agonize, or because we knock on doors for God, or have changed a bad habit. Our blessings are based upon having God’s perfect righteousness.

Human life is in the soul forever. There is affinity between human life and the soul. The soul is designed to house human life forever.

There is also an affinity between the old sin nature and Adam’s original sin. We are born physically alive and spiritually dead.

There was no grace in the garden because the man and the woman came perfect from the hand of God.

Personal sins are only an issue to Jesus, who received the imputation of our personal sins on the cross.

The subject demands the inserting of a present active indicative from eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME]. It is understood in this type of structure. This is present linear aktionsart; it is retroactive progressive present taking us right up to the moment of writing. The predicate nominative singular of exclamation from the adjective talaípōros (ταλαίπωρος) [pronounced tal-AH-ee-poe-ross] is next, the word translated in the KJV “wretched.” It means to be totally miserable, and it should be translated “I am a miserable person,” the testimony of every reversionist. By standing alone without the verb it receives even greater emphasis. This adjective perfectly describes the reversionistic believer under divine discipline. Next is the predicate nominative singular from anthrōpos (ἄνθρωπος) [pronounced ANTH-row-pos], used generically here for a person. This is the believer whose terrible suffering comes from divine discipline as a result of reversionism. It is dealing with the believer who has rejected doctrine, the believer who is not familiar with the way to go as far as the Christian life is concerned.

The believer who sins and rebounds; the believer who sins and stays out of fellowship is called carnal; the third category is the person who is out of fellowship and moves into evil. That is the reversionist.

The rejection of the sin nature is a rejection of good and evil. Good and evil was not imputed at the cross.

When you are miserable, you often want everyone else around you to be miserable.

“who shall deliver me from the body of this death?” – How do I get out of this jamb? get out of the misery? It begins with the interrogative pronoun, the nominative singular subject tis (τις) [pronounced tihç]. We naturally depend upon people to pull us out of the doldrums. When we feel bad we seek happy people. Then the future active indicative of the verb rhuomai (ῥύομαι) [pronounced RHOO-ohm-ahēe], which means to drag out of danger, to drag someone out who is helpless. Plus the accusative singular direct object of egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]—“me.”

The future tense of rhuomai (ῥύομαι) [pronounced RHOO-ohm-ahēe] is a progressive future, it denotes the idea of progress in future time. You can be rescued but it has to be done a day at a time, there is no instant rescue here.

Solomon had everything; her was serenaded, he was entertained; and he was miserable. This is the status quo of reversionism.

There is no instant rescue. It is doctrine today, doctrine tomorrow, etc. That is the only way to be dragged out, to be rescued from reversionism. The active voice: the question presents an unknown subject, but anticipated by the next chapter as God the Holy Spirit plus Bible doctrine resident in the soul—the rescue team. There is no substitute for this. The interrogative indicative mood assumes that there is an actual fact which may be stated as an answer to the question. Therefore it emphasizes the factors of experiential sanctification leading to maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

Next is the prepositional phrase, ek (ἐκ) [pronounced ehk] plus the ablative singular from the noun sōma (σῶμα) [pronounced SOH-mah], with the definite article to denote a previous reference to the human body as the headquarters and residence of the old sin nature, the ruler of human life. The genitive of relationship singular from the near demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], plus the noun thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss]—“this death”—“who shall rescue me from the body of this death?”

Romans 7:24 I am a miserable person! who shall rescue me from the body of this death?

There are several doctrines related to this.

The Principle of the Increase of the Grace of God

1. While grace covers the function or trends of the old sin nature, grace is not increased through the activity of the old sin nature. Our trends toward sin, good and evil do not increase grace.
 - a. All of the human rights movements are evil. These are a phony front for communist aggression.
 - b. All the goofy environmentalism is a front for communism. We live better than even communist leaders.
 - c. Being a draft dodger is evil.
 - d. Bob is not telling any of us to join an organization or to leave an organization. Bob will set us straight, but we make the decisions.
 - e. We do not whip the Bolsheviks on their ground. You cannot run around and demonstrate; that is lawless. Berachah respects the law.
 - f. Our government is about 92% evil in all that it does. Yet we have the greatest written instrument for government that there is. As the servant of the people, the government has no right.
2. Grace is the policy of God whereby divine justice blesses the believer.
3. Therefore grace increases first at the point of justification, and then at the point of maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
4. The grace of God increases in direct proportion to the development of the believer's capacity for blessing from doctrine resident in the soul.
5. As a believer grows through the function of GAP, grace increases.
6. Therefore grace increases through the filling of the Spirit and perception of Bible doctrine. Maximum inculcation of doctrine results in maximum blessing.
7. Grace is never advanced through the function of the old sin nature.

1977 Romans

Lesson #263

263 11/26/1977 Romans 7:24 Battle of the Bulge—5; principle of rescue from this body of death to newness of life

Double session, with refreshments.

The basis of our freedom includes the Battle of the Bulge.

Twin villages, and the 2nd division right there did a tremendous job. This was considered to be a quiet sector. Some excellent road systems. Heavy storage ammunition and gasoline gap. Camp Eleanor.

Bob spends in excess of 25 minutes on the Battle of the Bulge.

Romans 7:24 I am a miserable person! Who shall rescue me from the body of this death?

Principle #1

1. The principle of rescue is an increase of grace. Grace is not increased by the function of the sin nature.
2. The mechanics of rescue include the filling of the Spirit and the constant daily function of GAP, eventuating in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
3. God gives us one day at a time for the purpose of perception of doctrine. The perception of doctrine is the only means of spiritual growth.
4. The “body of death” is the residence of the old sin nature in the human body.
5. Rescue or deliverance is the direct result of grace increase or maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
6. Three things occur at salvation which begin the rescue or deliverance: the imputation of divine righteousness to the believer resulting in justification or the construction of the grace pipeline; the real imputation of eternal life to the divinely prepared home or target—regeneration; the baptism of the Holy Spirit which provides divorce from the old sin nature as the first husband, and marriage to the Lord Jesus Christ who is the second husband.
7. Newness of life (Romans 6:4) is the grace environment provided through the baptism of the Spirit for blessing from the justice of God at maturity.
8. Newness of life is better than what the original man and the woman had in the garden.

The justice of God is our point of reference; and God’s righteousness is imputed to us so that blessing can be given to us in time. God can only bless us in time from the justice of God to the righteousness of God which is in us. All divine blessings go to God’s righteousness in us. There is nothing that we can do in order to gain such blessing.

There must be capacity for blessing, or it is not blessing. Once you receive God’s righteousness, you are then qualified to receive God’s blessings. David was the wealthiest man in the world, and his son was even more wealthy.

Man in the garden was only given one day at a time. When Adam sinned, justice must curse before God can provide blessing.

What man had in the garden were perfect; but what we have outside the garden is spiritual maturity is even greater.

Romans 7:24 I am a miserable person! who shall rescue me from the body of this death?

Romans 6:6 answers this: Be knowing this, that our old man [OSN] has been co-crucified together with him, in order that the human body with reference to its sin nature might be rendered powerless [inoperative], that we should no longer be slaves to the old sin nature.

Romans 6:7 For he who has died [baptism of the Spirit and resultant retroactive positional truth] has been acquitted [positional deliverance] from the power of the sin nature.

1977 Romans

Lesson #264

264 11/26/1977 Romans 7:24 Principle 25, basis for the increase of grace; conflict of options; A FORTIORI

Romans 7:24 I am a miserable person! who shall rescue me from the body of this death?

Principle #2

1. We are forced to go back to the grace policy of the justice of God in blessing the believer.
2. Grace is not increased through the function of the old sin nature.
3. Grace does not provide motivation for living under the power of the old sin nature. The greatest motivation in life is grace.
4. As a divine policy grace cannot and does not motivate the believer to go back to the OSN, the ex-husband. That motivation is lust.
5. However the only way to avoid this is through Bible doctrine resident in the soul. This Bible doctrine feeds into the brain the plan of God, a new program; ultimately maturity adjustment to the Justice of God.
6. To the legalistic believer grace always appears to be a licence to sin, while to the antinomian grace appears to be an excuse for sin.
7. Neither viewpoint is correct. Both are antithetical; both are wrong. Neither legalism nor antinomianism can break away from the sovereign power of the old sin nature. The sin nature rules over life through the trends. The integrity of God does not sponsor the trends of the OSN.

Principle #3

1. Maximum inculcation of doctrine results in grace increase.
2. The soul is the key to spiritual advance to maturity and glorification of Christ. The soul is the battleground. HQ for the sin nature in the body.
3. The soul must be occupied, then, by the filling of the Spirit and saturated with Bible doctrine.
4. Again, grace is the policy of the justice of God in providing blessing for the believer in time as well as in eternity. God's integrity does not depend on sinfulness or the production of good or evil.
5. Acts of personal sin, the production of human good, the modus vivendi of evil do not bring grace blessings from the justice of God. They bring punitive action.
6. The justice of God is the source of cursing and blessing; the justice of God is the believer's point of reference.
7. Divine justice punishes reversionism, and divine justice provides blessing for growth in grace.

8. You cannot be dominated by the old sin nature after salvation and attain maturity adjustment to the justice of God. With self righteous people, the attack comes from human good. The legalist filled with human good is on the road to evil; and the antinomian is filled with sin; also on the road to evil.
9. Sinfulness or carnality is quickly handed by rebound adjustment to the justice of God, but the OSN's trends toward good and evil produce reversionism resulting in punishment and discipline rather than blessing from the justice of God.

Do you not know, to whom you put yourselves under orders...you are slaves to that which you place yourself under habitual obedience. (Romans 6:6)

Principle #4

1. After salvation God has provided a system of doctrine to fortify the soul as a base of operations for the advance to maturity.
2. This system of doctrine provides a daily option from the volition of the soul, the means of placing ourselves under orders to God. That option requires two things: rebound when necessary, and positive volition toward doctrine.
3. Since learning doctrine is the greatest thing we do in life, the daily positive volition toward doctrine is the only way to follow the colours to the high ground of maturity.
4. Self-determination must be related to perception of doctrine under the filling of the Holy Spirit.
5. Committal to Christ means receiving the delivery of the system of doctrine.
6. The soul must be saturated with Bible doctrine to offset the influence of the old sin nature, and at the same time to attain the objective: maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
7. Rejection of doctrinal teaching and ignorance of the system of doctrine in the Word of God is the reason for our failure. Rejection of doctrine which results in ignorance of doctrine is the most serious offence against the second husband, the Lord Jesus Christ. Nothing in Christianity can ever be divorced from perception of Bible doctrine.

Romans 7:25 Thanks be then to God, through Jesus Christ our Lord! So then, I myself indeed with my mind serve God's Law; but with the flesh, the Law of sin. (BLB)

Verse 25 – the conflict of options. There are two sentences. The source of the solution is the first sentence and the recognition of the options is the second sentence.

“I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord” begins with the nominative singular of explanation. The noun is charis (χάρις) [pronounced KHAHR-ic] which means grace here. Because this is a nominative of explanation there will be no verb. Then the dative singular indirect object from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] with the definite article. The generic use of the definite article sets aside God as a unique classification. Literally this passage means, “Grace belongs to the God.” So the solution is God's solution, not ours. This can be in the Koine Greek an idiom meaning thanks to God, as translated in the KJV, but here “Grace belongs to the God” is the solution. Then comes the prepositional phrase dia plus the genitive of lêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE] Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS]—“through Jesus Christ.” Plus the possessive genitive from kurios (κύριος) [pronounced KOO-ree-oss] with the personal pronoun—“our Lord.”

Principle #1

1. The source of the solution is the second husband, Jesus Christ our Lord.
2. The principle involved in the solution is grace.
3. Grace is the decisive factor in the inner conflict between the old sin nature and the Lord Jesus Christ.
4. This amplifies the reference to grace in Romans 5:2.
5. The believer can be disappointed when friends and loved ones fail, but the grace of God never fails. Grace cannot fail as the policy of God. People fail; grace does not.
6. Our stand does not depend upon other people, our stand depends upon the grace of God.
7. Under the policy of grace the believer depends on divine integrity.
8. Grace is the means by which mankind adjusts to the justice of God.
9. Either mankind will adjust to the justice of God or the justice of God will adjust to him.
10. This is the difference between cursing and blessing from the justice of God.
11. We must remember that God does not possess life; He is life, life uncorrupted and uncontaminated by the old sin nature.
12. Therefore God’s action toward His creatures is never arbitrary, nor the result of indifference. God is governed by the nature of His own character, His pertinent attributes of essence. God must act in accordance with His character. We cannot be blessed apart from God’s character.

What righteousness demands, justice executes. Righteousness requires judgment of all sins throughout all human history. When the believer develops capacity for blessing, the righteousness in that believer demands blessing. The justice of God can provide the 5 categories of blessing for the believer. The grace of God does not every undermine or compromise the character of God.

The example of the husband who buys new furniture for his wife, but only provides the down payment. They come and collect the furniture next month because he does not pay. He has no character upon which to depend.

Principle #2

1. This brings us to a fortiori—with stronger reason. If the greater is accomplished then the less will not be withheld. This proves the existence of eternity.

2. If the greater benefit has been provided by the justice of God (justification), it follows a fortiori that the less will not be withheld. The less is blessing in time flowing through the grace pipeline.
3. The blessings flow from the justice of God to the righteousness of God. The direction is the mature believer who has the capacity for such blessing from maximum doctrine resident in the soul, and from the re-programming of the brain calculator with divine viewpoint.
4. The greater degree in a fortiori is not quality or quantity, but degree of effort.
5. If the justice of God can accomplish the greater through grace it follows a fortiori that the justice of God can accomplish the less through grace.
6. If the greater benefit of imputed righteousness was given by the justice of God at salvation, it follows a fortiori that the justice of God will not withhold the less—blessing, prosperity—in time.
7. Blessing and prosperity from the justice of God glorifies the Lord Jesus Christ. That is why we are left behind after salvation.
8. Remember that the difference between greater and less in a fortiori is not quality or quantity but degree of effort. The greater is more difficult, while the less is much easier to provide.
9. The provision of blessing and prosperity in time is nothing compared to the provision of imputed righteousness and subsequent justification.
10. If the justice of God provides the greater blessing and prosperity in time it follows a fortiori that the justice of God will provide the less, which is blessing or reward in eternity.

Romans 7:25 Thanks be then to God, through Jesus Christ our Lord! So then, I myself indeed with my mind serve God's Law; but with the flesh, the Law of sin. (BLB)

The second sentence is the recognition of the options. "So then with the mind I myself serve the law of God" – two inferential particles, ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah] and oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon]. Ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah] is an illative particle expressing inference, while oun (οὐν) [pronounced oon] is a transitional inferential particle. Put together we have simply "So then." What follows is Classical Greek in which there are two correlative particles: men, and later on de—"on the one hand, and on the other hand." These give us the options.

Then the present active indicative of the verb, douleúō (δουλεύω) [pronounced dool-YOO-oh], which means to serve, to be a slave. The present tense is an iterative present, used to describe what occurs at successive intervals or is conceived of in successive periods. The tense connotes the alternatives resulting from the options. The active voice: the nominative singular subject is "I," referring to Paul who is representing himself as the believer with the dilemma of options. Plus the predicate use of the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] which is the word "myself." Plus the potential indicative of obligation, which means that the alternative we have is going to be the potential indicative of impulse (on the other hand).

Now we insert “with the mind,” the instrumental of means singular from noús (νοῦς) [pronounced noose]. Bible doctrine has to be resident in the mind and the believer must be filled with the Spirit for this alternative to be true. So we are talking about an option which puts us on the right track. Plus the dative singular indirect object from nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]. The phrase is anarthrous. Plus the possessive genitive singular from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“the law of God.” The law of God is the principle of grace function, including rebound for the filling of the Spirit and the daily function of GAP for the maturity adjustment to the justice of God. The principle can only serve in the mind and not in the body where the old sin nature is located. The law of God is the principle of experiential sanctification.

“but with the flesh the law of sin” – de is with men, so this time it means “but on the other hand.” Then the verb is inserted, which is not repeated because in Classical Greek it is understood. The word “flesh” is the instrumental of means from sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx], referring to the old sin nature. The definite article is used as a possessive pronoun—“with my flesh I serve.” Plus the dative singular indirect object from nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss]—translated “law” if it is understood that it is the principle of the old sin nature. The possessive genitive singular from hamartia (ἁμαρτία, ας, ῆ) [pronounced hahm-ahr-TEE-ah] refers to the OSN—“but on the other hand with my flesh I serve the law of the principle of the sin nature.” The law of the sin nature is the principle of the impulses or trends found in the sin nature—good, sin, evil.

Romans 7:25 Grace belongs to the God through Jesus Christ our Lord. So then on the one hand with my mind I myself serve the law of God; but on the other hand with my flesh I myself serve the law [or, the principle] of sin.

Mary Baker Eddy took the view that the health of the body was related to spiritual condition. But the battleground is the soul and not the body. But we don’t neglect the body simply because it is not the solution. That is weirdo.

Principle

1. Two mutually exclusive principles carry on a continual battle inside of the believer. The battle of the two husbands. The sin nature versus the Holy Spirit.
2. Each husband has a headquarters. The OSN, the ex-husband, resides in the body but attacks the soul. The Lord Jesus Christ resides in the soul and seeks to control the body through doctrine resident in the soul.
3. The new husband is represented by the Holy Spirit as the marriage counselor, and Bible doctrine resident in the soul.
4. Both the Holy Spirit and Bible doctrine must control the soul for the believer to serve with the mind the law of God.
5. Through rebound adjustment to the justice of God the believer recovers the filling of the Spirit lost through sin.
6. Through the daily function of GAP Bible doctrine resident in the soul results in spiritual growth and maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

7. Therefore experiential sanctification is the law of God. This includes the filling of the Spirit plus the daily function of GAP, resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
8. While carnality and reversionism is the law of sin resulting in severe divine discipline, and ultimately the sin unto death.
9. However the sin unto death does not connote loss of salvation, merely the last intensive punishment of the reversionistic believer in time.

1977 Romans

Lesson #265

265 11/26/1977 Romans 8:1; John 6:69 Battle of the Bulge-6; intro. doctrine of sanctification: agents, phase 1

Military communion (11:00).

Chapter 8

Bob reads the translation for Romans 8 (11:30-15:50)

By way of introduction we call this chapter "The new life." The title comes from Romans 6:4. The principle of this passage is very simple: the plan of God is greater than any condemnation, any sin, any failure, any personal suffering or adversity, any historical disaster, any problem of life. The new life is greater than anything in life. In other words, by the intake of doctrine on a consistent basis we have something that is greater than life, and we stay above life and on top of life, and life never crushes us, destroys us, or breaks us. We may bend but we never break. That is the principle in this chapter.

The plan of God is divided into 3 phases: salvation, after salvation alive on this earth (the believer in time), eternity.

Outline

Paragraph one: The new life in sanctification, verses 1-17.

Paragraph two: The new life and suffering, verses 18-30.

Paragraph three: The new life and its challenges, verse 31-39.

Before proceeding with this chapter we must have clearly in mind the general doctrine of sanctification.^[1]

Although the Doctrine of Sanctification has already been done in the Romans' series, this is a new one, as per Bob in this lesson. I took the one below from NB2, and this is a version from about 10 years later. The actual points do not match up at all; but there are enough similarities to allow me to add a few points and additional explanation.

This doctrine was covered in lessons #265, 266 and 267.

Doctrine of Sanctification (2)

Bob said to start new notes for Romans. This particular set of notes comes about 10 years later in the spiritual dynamics series.

A. Definition and Description.

1. Sanctification is a technical theological term for the status quo of the royal family of God in three phases of the protocol plan. The term means to be set apart to God for a special purpose. We, the royal family of God, are set apart to God in three ways from salvation to the eternal state. This is the status of a believer from salvation into eternity. Sanctification is merely a way of describing God's plan for your life.
2. Phase one, positional sanctification, refers to salvation at which point the baptism of the Spirit enters every believer into union with the person of Jesus Christ. There are seven results of the baptism of the Holy Spirit, four of which are pertinent here.
 - a. Sanctification is the means of extending the great power experiment of the Hypostatic Union into the Church Age, so that the correct designation for this dispensation is the great power experiment of the Church Age.
 - b. Sanctification is the means of the formation of the royal family of God.
 - c. Sanctification is the means of the creation of a new spiritual species for the utilization of the divine omnipotence; i.e., the omnipotence of God the Father related to our portfolio of invisible assets, the omnipotence of God the Son related to the perpetuation of human history, and the omnipotence of God the Holy Spirit related to your very own palace, the operational-type divine dynasphere.
 - d. Equal privilege for every believer to execute the protocol plan of God in union with Christ.
 - e. Positional sanctification means you have eternal security; there is no way you can ever get out of your relationship with God.
3. Phase two, experiential sanctification, is the function of the spiritual life after salvation. The function of the spiritual life depends on the three spiritual skills: the filling of the Holy Spirit, the metabolization of metabolized doctrine, and the utilization of the ten problem solving devices. This produces experiential or spiritual righteousness. This is your residence, function, and momentum inside the operational-type divine dynasphere.
4. Phase three, ultimate sanctification, is the believer in his resurrection body in the eternal state.

5. Positional sanctification is the status quo of every Church Age believer at the moment of salvation through faith in Christ. God the Holy Spirit enters him into union with Christ by means of the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

B. Etymology.

1. There are a number of Greek words used for sanctification that help define the concept. The Greek verb hagiazô (ἁγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh] means to “set apart.” That’s exactly what God does with the royal family; He sets us apart in order to show that we are royalty. Remember that Jesus Christ has three royal warrants.
 - a. Royal Warrant number one: Jesus Christ as God. Royal title: Son of God. Royal family: God the Father and God the Holy Spirit.
 - b. Royal Warrant number two: Jesus Christ as humanity from the point of His physical birth. He is directly descended from the fourth son of David and Bathsheba, Nathan. Royal title: Son of David. Royal family: Dynasty of David. Mary was descended from Nathan; Joseph was descended from Solomon.
 - c. Royal Warrant number three: Jesus Christ since His resurrection, ascension, and session. Royal title: King of kings and Lord of lords, Bright Morning Star. Royal family: He was without a royal family at the point of His session. As a result, God inserted the Church Age, the mystery age, for the calling out of a royal family for our Lord’s third royal title. It is during the Church Age only that the greatest privileges and opportunities ever given to the common believer are provided. Once this royal family is completed, it will be resurrected by the Rapture of the Church.
2. So Hagiazô (ἁγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh] tells us that we are set apart in a special way in history. We have unique privileges and unique opportunities which start at salvation. One of the seven ministries performed by God the Holy Spirit at salvation is the baptism of the Spirit, in which the Holy Spirit enters each believer into union with Christ. This is the way in which the royal family is formed. This never occurs outside of the Church Age. So hagiazô (ἁγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh] is used for positional sanctification, meaning that every believer is “in Christ.” “In Christ” is technical for positional sanctification, in that we are set apart forever as the royal family of God. Appointed by the justice of God as aristocracy forever.
3. Hagiazô (ἁγιάζω) [pronounced hawg-ee-AD-zoh] is translated “to make holy, to consecrate, to sanctify.” It means you are appointed by the Justice of God as aristocracy forever. It therefore refers to God’s plan for aristocracy. (Your aristocratic function is maturity adjustment to the justice of God.)
4. The adjective Hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] is one of the titles for the royal family of God. Unfortunately, it is translated into the English by an obscure word which has an erroneous connotation: “saint.” This connotes some sort of self-righteous, strained, painful, sacrificial life. But actually Hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] describes you as a believer in Christ. Every Church Age believer is a saint, no matter who or what he is.

5. Principles of application from hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss].
 - a. Hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] is used in front of your name to tell you that, since the moment of your salvation, throughout time on earth, and for all eternity future, you have been set apart for the greatest privileges and greatest opportunities that have ever existed for believers. What do you have that none of the great Old Testament believers had? You have the indwelling of the person of Christ, the indwelling of God the Holy Spirit, the computer assets of election and predestination, and the divine dynasphere, just to name a few. Never in the history of the human race has so much been given by God to believers as has been given to Church Age believers.
 - b. Jn 6:19, “And we have believed; in fact, we have come to know that You are the Holy One from God [ho hagios tou theou].” This anticipated Christ’s royalty. The singular Hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] in the nominative is applied to our Lord before it is ever applied to us. So sanctification in all its implications goes back to our Lord Jesus Christ, the supreme aristocracy of all the human race!
 - c. But Hagios (ἅγιος) [pronounced HA-gee-oss] is also used of you because your aristocracy is related to Christ. Although human aristocracies eventually disappear, your aristocracy is the most secure that could ever exist, for it is the only aristocracy which will last forever. You are a saint by divine appointment. Your magna charta is the Word of God and the Holy Spirit.
6. Aristocracy also means only one class. We are all believers in union with the Lord Jesus Christ. This excludes any differentiations of race, sex, or human status. There is no issue regarding your sex or race. There is no social order; there is no racism.
7. The noun hagioσmos (ἁγιασμός) [pronounced hag-ee-as-MOSS] is translated sanctification or sanctifying. It is also translated holiness or consecration. It refers to investiture of aristocracy. It refers to the state of being made an aristocrat forever. It also refers to our Lord’s battlefield royalty with emphasis on His integrity. It especially emphasizes our relationship to the integrity of God.
8. A noun rarely used is hagiôtês (ἁγιότης) [pronounced hag-ee-OHT-ace], which means sanctification. It is often translated holiness. This describes the principle by which all believers are related to the integrity of God and the aristocracy of God.
9. Another noun, hagiôsunê (ἁγιωσύνη) [pronounced hag-ee-o-SOO-nay], is used only by the apostle Paul, who apparently coined it. hagiôsunê (ἁγιωσύνη) [pronounced hag-ee-o-SOO-nay] means holiness, set apart, or sanctification. This word emphasizes the categorical stages of our aristocracy: phases one, two, and three. This word relates our aristocracy to God’s plan for the royal family of God.
10. Since this concept applies to Church Age believers only, it is found only in the Greek. It has no Hebrew equivalents, since everything related to the Church, as part of the mystery doctrine, was not revealed to Old Testament writers.

C. The Three Phases of Sanctification.

1. Positional Sanctification, Phase One.

- a. This occurs at salvation through faith in Christ. Every believer is taken at salvation and entered into union with the person of Christ. This constitutes equal privilege to execute the protocol plan of God.
- b. The mechanics of positional sanctification is the baptism of the Holy Spirit.
- c. Positional sanctification is the means of eternal security. You can never be taken out of union with Christ. Rom 8:38-39, "For I am persuaded that neither death nor life nor angels nor principalities nor powers nor things present nor things to come nor height nor depth nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Rom 8:1, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus."
- d. Positional sanctification qualifies the believer to live with God forever. There are two reasons for this.
 - (1) The believer possesses the righteousness of God; that of the Father being imputed, and we share the perfect righteousness of Christ through our positional sanctification. If we are going to live with God forever, we have to be as good as He is. We are, by having His perfect righteousness.
 - (2) The believer possesses eternal life. 1 Jn 5:11-12, "And this is the deposition: that God has given to each one of us eternal life, and this life is in His Son. He who has the Son [positional sanctification] has eternal life; He who does not have the Son of God does not have the [eternal] life." If we are going to live with God forever, we must also have His life, eternal life. We do; it comes from the Father through imputation and from the Son through positional sanctification.
- e. Positional sanctification belongs to all categories of believers, whether winners or losers experientially. 1 Cor 1:2, 30 says that even the worst of believers (those in the Corinthian church) are sanctified in Christ Jesus.
- f. Positional sanctification is the status of the new spiritual species. Eph 2:10, "We are His creation, having been created in Christ Jesus for good of intrinsic value achievements which God has prepared in advance, that we should walk by means of them."
 - (1) We walk by means of them through:
 - (a) Postsalvation epistemological rehabilitation.
 - (b) Cognition of Bible doctrine for orientation to God's grace and His plan.

- (c) Cognition and utilization of available divine omnipotence.
- (d) Cognition and use of our very own portfolio of invisible assets.
- (e) The development and use of the unique problem-solving devices of spiritual adulthood.
- (f) The utilization of metabolized doctrine to pass the three categories of suffering for blessing.
- (g) The adoption of grace priorities for our lives.
- (2) This includes God emphasis over people emphasis, spiritual living in the divine dynasphere over psychological living in the cosmic system, and the use of divine power rather than human power and talent in the execution of God's plan.
- (3) This means equating living with dying through the use of God's perfect happiness (+H) at spiritual maturity (Phil 1:20-21), and equating adversity with prosperity through the use of +H (Phil 4:11-13).
- g. Positional sanctification is the means of forming the royal family of God, Eph 1:5, 10.
- h. Characteristics of positional sanctification.
 - (1) It is not an experience; it is neither emotional nor ecstatics.
 - (2) It is not progressive. It cannot be improved in time or in eternity.
 - (3) It is not related to human merit. We are not in Christ because of what we do, but because we believed in Him and God the Holy Spirit did the work of entering us into union with Him.
 - (4) It is obtained en toto at the moment of salvation through the baptism of the Holy Spirit.
 - (5) It is understood only through cognition of the pertinent doctrine.
 - (6) It is eternal in nature; it cannot be changed by God, angels, or mankind.
- i. Implications of positional sanctification.
 - (1) We share the perfect righteousness of Christ, 2 Cor 5:21.
 - (2) We share the eternal life of Christ, 1 Jn 5:11-12.
 - (3) We share the election of Christ, Eph 1:4.
 - (4) We share the sonship of Christ, Gal 3:26.
 - (5) We share the heirship of Christ, Rom 8:16-17.
 - (6) We share the priesthood of Christ, Heb 10:10-14.
 - (7) We are transferred into the kingdom of the Son of His love, Col 1:13.

j. This constitutes the principle of equal privilege under the computer asset of predestination. This is the basis for the formation of the royal family of God.

k. Positional or phase one sanctification is divided into two parts theologically: retroactive positional truth and current positional truth. This whole concept is presented in Romans as analogous to the believer being divorced from the old sin nature and now married to the Lord Jesus Christ.

l. In retroactive positional truth, the believer is identified with Christ in His spiritual and physical deaths and burial.

(1) Identification with Christ in His spiritual death is rejection of good and evil, tantamount to separation from the first husband, the old sin nature. (This whole analogy follows divorce procedure.)

(2) Identification with Christ in His physical death is separation from good and evil, tantamount to separation from our first husband, the old sin nature.

(3) Identification with Christ in His burial is tantamount to actual divorce, where there is death between the two involved.

m. In current positional truth, the believer is identified with Christ in His resurrection, ascension, and session at the right hand of God the Father, tantamount to our second marriage which demands "walking in newness of life." We are "new creatures; the old things have passed away." Old things refers to our past marriage to the old sin nature.

2. Experiential Sanctification, Phase Two.

a. Experiential sanctification is the function of the spiritual life after salvation. The function of the spiritual life depends on the three spiritual skills: the filling of the Holy Spirit, the metabolization of doctrine, and the utilization of the ten problem solving devices. This produces experiential or spiritual righteousness. Our spiritual righteousness is capacity for divine blessing in time. As our spiritual righteousness increases, our capacity increases, and therefore our blessing in time from God increases. When we execute the protocol plan of God by reaching spiritual maturity, then we have the conveyance of our escrow blessings for time because we have the capacity to enjoy them from our spiritual righteousness.

b. Experiential sanctification refers to residence, function, and momentum inside your very own palace, the operational-type divine dynasphere. Here is where winners and losers are manufactured experientially.

(1) So experiential sanctification exists inside your palace. This is the place of the filling of the Holy Spirit, and the only place where you can execute the protocol plan of God. Outside your

(1) So experiential sanctification exists inside your palace. This is the place of the filling of the Holy Spirit, and the only place where you can execute the protocol plan of God. Outside your palace, Satan has two very nice rest homes (dungeons) for you: cosmic one and cosmic two. In these losers are developed.

- (2) This provision of your very own divine dynasphere, for which you can opt any moment, hour, and day, is your equal opportunity under the computer assets of predestination. Therefore, in eternity past, God the Father provided for every believer his very own place for experiential sanctification in his prefabricated palace.
 - (3) So basically, experiential sanctification is the believer residing in his very own palace, under the enabling power of God the Holy Spirit, and having momentum from metabolized doctrine.
- c. Experiential sanctification is referred to by the Greek word EUSEBEIA, translated "spiritual life (not godliness)."
3. Ultimate Sanctification, Phase Three.
- a. Ultimate sanctification refers to the believer in the eternal state. It carries the concept of having a resurrection body. In eternity, every believer will have a resurrection body.
 - b. Until the Rapture of the Church occurs, all Church Age believers who die go to heaven in an interim body where there is equally great happiness and blessing to all believers, whether they are winners or losers.
 - c. At the Rapture all Church Age believers receive their resurrection bodies, both winners and losers, both those already in heaven ("the dead in Christ shall rise first"), and those alive on the earth ("and we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, and so shall we ever be with the Lord").
 - d. We have our resurrection body, minus the sin nature, minus human good or evil, minus the Lake of Fire.
 - e. So ultimate sanctification is the state of being blameless before God, possessing a resurrection body, 1 Cor 1:8; Eph 1:4.
 - f. Following the Rapture of the Church, at the Judgment Seat of Christ, winners receive the conveyance of their escrow blessings for the eternal state and be presented to God the Father in the royal court of heaven.
 - g. Ultimate sanctification converts the body of Christ into the Bride of Christ.
 - h. In ultimate sanctification, the Church is resurrected aristocracy, and therefore, different from all other resurrections. The royal family of God shares in the coronation and triumph of Jesus Christ at the Second Advent. Therefore, the bride must be prepared prior to the Second Advent.
 - i. Other passages: Phil 3:21; 1Thessalonians 5:23; 1John 3:1-2.

- j. One professor said that the dead in Christ will rise up refers to all believers. He did not realize that the Church Age is royalty; and royalty has its privileges. We get our resurrection bodies 7 years before Charley company, which refers to the OT saints.
- k. Ultimate sanctification is being conformed to the image of His Son.
- l. The believer in ultimate sanctification is described as blameless. This describes the entire royal family at the rapture; and only God can do this. Think of God taking all of us and making us blameless.
- m. Philippians 3:21 the transformation of our body of our humiliation changed to conform to the body of His perfection.
- n. Now may the God of prosperity sanctify you entirely and may your soul, spirit and body be preserved. 1Thessalonians 5:23 1John 3:1-2

D. The Categorical Exception to Sanctification.

1. The concept of sanctification of our physical food is taught in the Bible.
2. To sanctify your food all the time, everywhere, is a very good idea, for you never know what is in that food. In this way, you can still receive all the benefits from the food without any side effects, simply because you have sanctified that food.
3. To sanctify food requires one believer in fellowship offering a very short prayer asking God the Father to set apart his food.
4. To ask God to “sanctify” or “set apart” your food means to ask Him to overrule any impurities that may have infiltrated the food; i.e., impurities from storage, from exposure (to elements or creatures), from virus or bacteria.
5. 1 Tim 4:4-5 explains the sanctification of food. “Because everything created by God is good for food, and nothing is to be rejected as unclean, if the food is received with thanksgiving; for it is sanctified for nourishment through the Word of God and prayer.” Note its purpose: to be sanctified for nourishment. First you have to be thankful for the food. And then you have to know enough doctrine (“through the Word of God”) to know what to say in prayer. So you must be in fellowship for your prayer to be heard.
6. To sanctify food takes no longer than one sentence: “Father, sanctify this food; in Christ’s name, Amen.” God isn’t impressed with a lot of words, especially unnecessary ones.

E. The Means of Sanctification: Our Lord Jesus Christ.

1. Our Lord Jesus Christ is the means of sanctification through His saving work on the cross.
 - a. There is no sanctification in the Church Age outside of those who personally believe in Christ.
 - b. Were it not for the unique Person of Christ in His Hypostatic Union and His efficacious saving work on the cross, there would be no sanctification in the human race, no being set apart to God.
 - c. No salvation means no sanctification, because salvation precedes all three categories of sanctification.

d. We are a new spiritual species in contrast to the Jews who are a new racial species.

2. Our Lord as the means of sanctification is taught in Heb 10:9-10, 14. This was what our Lord said when He came into the world. "At that time [point of virgin birth, incarnation], He [Jesus Christ] said, 'Behold, I have arrived to accomplish Your will [purpose],' by means of which will we [Church Age believers] have been sanctified to God forever through the offering of the body of Christ once and for all on the cross. For by means of one offering, He has made perfect forever those being sanctified."

F. Recipients of Sanctification: Church Age Believers Only.

1. In positional sanctification at salvation, the believer is entered into union with Christ through the baptism of the Spirit. We share the eternal life, righteousness, sonship, heirship, royalty, election, and destiny of Christ, as well as many more things.
2. In experiential sanctification in time, the believer is sanctified through the function of the spiritual life, the execution of the three spiritual skills.
3. In ultimate sanctification, the eternal state, the believer is sanctified through the possession of a resurrection body.

G. Three Agents of Sanctification.

1. The agent at the point of salvation is God the Holy Spirit. This is the baptism of the Spirit, as mentioned in 1Corinthians 12:13 and Eph 4:4.
 - a. 1Corinthians 12:13, "By means of one Spirit we are all baptized into one body, whether we are Jews or Greeks [Gentiles], whether slave or free, we were all caused to drink one Spirit."
 - (1) Baptism means to identify one object with another object. We are identified with Christ which makes us all equal. The only true equality in history is found in the equality produced by the baptism of the Holy Spirit. We are all equal before Christ because we are all in union with Christ.
 - (2) The same equality means we have the same opportunity to execute the protocol plan of God under the doctrine of predestination. Equality is opportunity.
 - (3) There was no equality in the Old Testament, especially in Israel. Consider the Levitical priesthood and the Jewish royal family.
 - b. The phrase "to drink one Spirit" in 1 Cor 12:13 is explained in Jn 7:37-39 when our Lord gave a message on the last day of the Feast of the Tabernacles. "Now on the last day, the great day of the feast [Tabernacles], Jesus stood up and shouted saying, 'If anyone is thirsty, let him come to Me and drink. He who believes in Me, as the Scripture has said, 'Out of His innermost being will flow rivers of living water.'" By this He meant the Spirit, whom those [Church Age believers] who believe in Him were to receive. For the Spirit was not yet given because Christ was not yet glorified.” Drinking portrays the non-meritorious aspect of faith in Christ.

- c. The Holy Spirit was never given in the Old Testament. Occasionally certain people were empowered by the Spirit. But the indwelling and filling of the Spirit are reserved for the Church Age.
 - d. Just as when you drink water, water is in you; so also when you believe in Christ, you are caused to drink the Holy Spirit, which is tantamount to the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.
2. Bible doctrine is the agent is experiential sanctification.
 - a. John 17:17, “Sanctify them by means of doctrine. Your Word is doctrine.”
 - b. Ephesians 5:26, “That having purified her [Church], He might sanctify her by means of the washing from the water [doctrine] of the Word.”
 - c. 2Thessalonians 2:13, “Brethren, we should always give thanks to God for you, loved by the Lord; for from the beginning God has elected you with reference to salvation through sanctification by the Spirit and through belief in the truth.”
 - d. The absolute concept of experiential sanctification is related to the filling of the Holy Spirit. The relative concept of experiential sanctification is related to the degree of spiritual growth through perception, metabolization, and application of doctrine.
 3. God the Father is the agent of sanctification in the eternal state.
 - a. Romans 8:28-29. In 1 Cor 1:8 we are said to be “blameless in the day of our Lord.”
 - b. Ephesians 1:4, “that we should be holy and blameless before Him.” “Blameless” is the special work of God the Father in eternity future.
 4. Jesus is an agent in sanctification.
 - a. (Jesus speaks as an infant) “I have arrived to accomplish Your plan.”
 - b. Not sure about the passage.
 - c. God is calling out a royal family for the Lord. Prior to this, believers were family of God; but beginning with the Church Age, we have the principle of royal family forever.
 - d. Hebrews 10:10 we are sanctified in the past with the result that we remain royal family forever. Hebrews 10:14 By means of one offering, He has sanctified us for all time. The key is, what do you build on that foundation? You can build upon this or not. There is no work or function that we can perform to complete this.
- H. The royal lines of Christ.
1. Joseph was descended from Solomon. He is Jesus’ legal father. His royal family is the entire dynasty of David.
 2. King of Kings, Lord of Lords is Jesus’ battlefield royalty.
- I. Sanctification as related to the angelic conflict:
1. All phases of sanctification is related to the angelic conflict.

2. The mature believer in phase II has contributed to the tactical victory of the Angelic Conflict.
3. Said believer glorifies the Lord Jesus Christ in time; and demonstrates that the mature believer has that which is greater in life than our parents had prior to the fall.
4. Status quo is greater for the mature believer than that which Adam had.
5. Our resurrection body will be physically superior to all angels.
6. Jesus Christ demonstrates a complete victory over Satan.
7. In angelic and human creatures, power corrupts because of sin. But there will be no corruption in the resurrection body. Prosperity corrupts, etc. when related to creatures in resurrection bodies.
8. At the end of human history, Satan is completely defeated; and sanctification plays a role in the defeat.

J. Sanctification and the purpose of life after salvation

1. Between salvation and eternity, the believer spends a certain amount of time on earth. So much time on earth. The time is broken down into days and we are given one day at a time. In that day, two things are expected of us. Rebound when necessary and a portion of every day should be devoted to perception of Bible doctrine. Besides that, we have the rest of the day to do what we need to do.
2. The objective for time spend on earth is glorification of the Lord. However, this is a principle which needs defining. Romans 8 will do this. This is to use one day at a time fulfilling the purpose of one day at a time. Maturity adjustment to the Justice of God.
3. The attainment of spiritual maturity is the tactical victory in the angelic conflict; and this is called godliness elsewhere.
4. The means of attainment is the filling of the Holy Spirit + the daily function of gap. God in His grace gives us capital for the spiritual life. This is time. God intends for us to invest this capital. This daily teaching came slowly but surely. There was a private class for affluent people in town. Others for another group. Then Bob went to Rice; and the U of H had him out. The other class were the dummies. Then one day, Bob discovered one day at a time. Bob was about to write his doctorate. He came down to Houston on an emergency installment. He discovered a day at a time in Joel.
- 5.
6. The flow of maturity blessings through the grace pipeline glorifies the Lord Jesus Christ but fulfills God's plan for us.
7. Failure to meet this, brings us to the sin unto death.
8. Either you adjustment to the justice of God or the justice of God will adjust to you.
9. Maladjusted to the justice of God produces evil. Experiential sanctification has nothing to do with production.
10. Production is incidental to experiential sanctification.

11. The means of attainment ...
12. Experiential sanctification keeps our priorities straight and gives us concentration on our objective in phase II.

K. Additional points:

1. We are believers are tied to the plan of God by sanctification.
2. Interruption of the Church Age, where Jesus is told to sit at the right hand of God.
3. The church is intercalated between the Age of Israel and the Millennium.
4. We are all saints. John 6:69 and we have believed, and have come to know, that you are the Holy One of God." All Saints Day became Halloween to clear out the weirdos. This is when witches were searched out and burned.
5. Holy ones, set-apart ones, sanctified ones. This describes all of us. This is us as believers as different from all other believers. We are aristocracy; we are royalty.
6. Aristocrats originally began as working aristocrats. Only later, 2 or 3 generations later, just sat around.

(This doctrine was also taught in Heb 121 6/20/74, 220 10/4/77, and the Strong Delusion series, 12/3/79.)

Lesson #268

268 11/28/1977 Romans 8:1 Result of positional sanctification; condemnation cf. judgment; doctrine of the Last Judgment

Our personal sins are not an issue in salvation. Our personal sins are only imputed once, on the cross, to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Life in the Spirit

Romans 8:1 Therefore there is now no condemnation to those in Christ Jesus. (BLB)

Verse 1 – the result of positional sanctification. “There is therefore now no condemnation.” It begins with the nominative singular adjective oudeis (οὐδεὶς) [pronounced oo-DICE], the word translated “no,” sometimes “not,” and is always a very strong negative. With that is the inferential and illative particle ára (ἄρα) [pronounced AHR-ah] which demands conclusions from the preceding chapter, and translated “therefore.” Plus the adverb of time, nun (νῦν) [pronounced noon], which means it is time to get cracking, time to start advancing. You have enough information now, and will receive enough briefing in this chapter eight so that there is no excuse for any more retreat. “Therefore now.” Then, since oudeis (οὐδεὶς) [pronounced oo-DICE] is a nominative singular adjective used as a substantive and emphasizing the negative, it becomes a predicate nominative. “There is no” is what it means. Ara means therefore; nun (νῦν) [pronounced noon] means, now. There is no.

The word “condemnation” is mistranslated in the KJV. Condemnation and judgment are two different things. Condemnation is the passing of the sentence; judgment is the execution of the sentence. The verse is talking here about execution. The sentence was passed on us at the moment of birth by the justice of God through the imputation of Adam’s original sin to the genetically formed old sin nature, resulting in spiritual death. That is condemnation. So it is ridiculous to say there is no condemnation when obviously there is condemnation. We are born condemned.

This is the nominative singular katákrima (κατάκριμα) [pronounced kat-AK-ree-mah], the predicate nominative noun meaning punishment following sentence. It means doom or judgment. Condemnation is the correct word for the sentence. We were sentenced at birth by the imputation of Adam’s sin, so we are already condemned. So the word is not condemnation, the word is “judgment,” and it is referring to the lake of fire.^[2] There is quite an elapse of time between the condemnation at birth and the judgment of the lake of fire. The corrected translation is, “Therefore now there is no judgment.” The sentence for condemnation at birth is not carried out for those who have been born again.

The believer needs to have eternal security right away. Otherwise we keep sliding off the roof of salvation and keep pulling ourselves back onto the roof. Being born again means a new life; that is the subject—John 3:18, “is not judged.”

“to them which are in Christ Jesus” – the dative plural indirect object from the definite article, used as a demonstrative pronoun emphasizing believers in Christ and translated “to those.” Plus the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] with the locative of the proper nouns Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] and Iêsous (Ἰησοῦς) [pronounced ee-ay-SOOCE]—“to those who are in Christ Jesus.” The rest of this verse as seen in the KJV is not found in the original Greek.

Romans 8:1 Now therefore there is no judgment to those who are in Christ Jesus.

The Doctrine of the Last Judgment is back with Lesson #229; so all the pertinent notes will be placed there. This is the final, culminating judgment of human history.

Romans 8:1 Therefore there is now no judgment to those in Christ Jesus.

1977 Romans

Lesson #269

269 11/29/1977 Romans 8:1 Review of the doctrines of eternal security and current positional truth

The doctrine of eternal security is found back in Lesson #130; and notes from this lesson will be placed there.

The coach should not work the football team up; he teaches them skills and they do not depend upon their emotions; but they depend upon their skills. The same thing is true for the royal family of God. We do not need to be jacked up with a bunch of emotion. T&P is a professional organization; and it is not based upon emotion. You do not need to feel like you belong. If you make a big mistake over at T&P, Bob will speak to you and you will know for a fact that you are a part of T&P. Getting emotional in war is no help.

We receive righteousness of God imputed to us; but we share the eternal life of Christ by being in Christ. Rank has its privileges. The imputation of divine righteousness occurred for all believers during every dispensation.

The baptism of the Holy Spirit is related to our primary potential. This is the encapsulation of that grace pipeline. The justice of God is at one end; and the righteousness of God is at the other end. This will be brought out by Romans 8:13. If you live under the authority of the old sin nature, and you do, you are destined to die (the sin unto death). But, if by means of the Spirit, you recognize as dead the actions from the body (witnessing, prayer, doing things for God, singing, changing your personality). There is nothing that we can do to glorify God. All that we do comes from human energy. God's plan calls for divine energy. God has a plan and the only ammo for that plan is the filling of the Spirit; and anything that we do which is not the filling of the Spirit. Production is not the basis for reward; maturity is the basis for our reward. The basis for glorifying God is only by that which God has provided. We cannot break through that pipeline. No way, are we going to break through. Don't stop working. Your production is a reflection of your spiritual advance. When you teach, you also learn. Anyone who teaches in prep school gets unlimited tapes.

If you scrape the human good and self-righteousness off some believers and they turn out to be okay.

The primary potential is divine righteousness. Current positional truth is related to the secondary potential as well. Current positional truth is related to the possession of eternal life. It is related to election and predestination. Related to positional sanctification. Current positional truth is related to God's personal possession forever.

I got some of these points but not all of them. Around 40:00 to 55:00.

Our life has a purpose, an objective, security and capacity (as we grow).

Life in the Spirit

Romans 8:1 Therefore there is now no judgment to those in Christ Jesus.

Don't worry about the future; you will not be thrown into the Lake of Fire, no matter how many times that you fail. The believer's inner conflict in life in the next three verses.

Lesson #270

270 11/30/1977 Romans 8:2 Diary of a Yankee soldier; review of the doctrines of the convicting ministry of the Holy Spirit and baptism of Holy Spirit

There were many believers on both sides of the Civil War. Merritt J. Simmons is the Yankee soldier who died in this battle in Georgia, the Battle of Chicamauga. He had lain in the same place after the battle for 4 or 5 days. He remained alive; apparently the rebels helped some of them to a hospital; but not him. The rebels did dress their wounds, but did not remove them for awhile. Around 7 days later, he was moved to a hospital. Someone writes a letter on his behalf after he dies.

Our personal sins are not an issue in condemnation or in salvation.

The various imputations are reviewed.

Romans 8:2 For the Law of the Spirit of life has set you free in Christ Jesus from the Law of sin and death. (BLB)

There are virtually no existing notes on vv. 2–4. However, Bob did do the exegesis so I will include it (although my notes are generally not as good as the notes which are done here).

Gar + nominative singular subject of nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], and although it is generally translated law, here it means principle.

The neuter singular of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah] (genitive/ablative case). Used with the definite article, comprehending the Holy Spirit in terms of his support in time.

Ablative singular of zôê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY], and translated the source of life; referring to the real imputation of eternal life. There is an affinity between the new birth and eternal life.

En + the locative of Christos and Iesous. This refers to current positional truth.

The convincing/convicting ministry of the Holy Spirit; which is found in Lesson #90. Any appropriate notes will be placed there.

Common grace and efficacious grace all found here. Four ministries of the Holy Spirit, Who is the source of eternal life.

Aorist active indicative of eleutherôō (ἐλευθερόω) [pronounced el-yoo-thehr-OH-oh], which means, to free, to set free. With the personal pronoun you. Constantive aorist. Eternal life is imputed to regeneration. We share the Lord's eternal life, so that means that we have the double portion.

Being free means that we are free of a bad marriage. This goes back to the analogy for this chapter.

The baptism of the Holy Spirit places us into Christ. This action is gathered up into one entirety.

We begin this chapter with the ministry of God the Holy Spirit.

Two doctrines to review. The Doctrine of the Baptism of the Holy Spirit. This is found in Lesson #189 and any notes from here will be placed there.

We are set free in Christ Jesus. Positional truth is key here. Remember that it occurs at the moment of salvation.

The law of sin and death.

Apo + nomos = from the principle Then hamartia, in the singular referring to the sin nature.

Romans 8:2 For the principle of the Spirit [ministry of the Spirit at salvation] Who is the source of eternal life has set you free in Christ Jesus from the principle of the sin nature and the resultant spiritual death.

Principles Based upon Romans 8:2

1. Remember the divorce analogy; the concept of retroactive positional truth.
2. The divorce from the sin nature and the marriage to the Lord Jesus Christ; these two principles make the soul the battleground of this struggle. The antagonists are in the body; but the battleground is the soul.
3. Salvation through faith in Jesus Christ is the moment of our divorce or being set free from the first husband, the sin nature. We are now dead to that person. This is being set free from the power of the sin nature.
4. The old sin nature is very much alive, even though the divorce is tantamount to death.
5. In a parallel passage, Galatians 5:16ff and Romans 7–8 means that we should be familiar with this conflict.
6. The life of the believer and the soul of the believer is the battleground for these two forces. You can think human viewpoint or divine viewpoint. Our country is dining on the tree of the knowledge of good and evil every day.
7. Formerly, the old sin nature had complete authority and ruled as a tyrant through spiritual death. This husband's authority is cancelled by retroactive positional truth.
8. With the filling of the Spirit and constant perception of Bible doctrine, the battlefield is controlled by the Spirit and God is free to provide those fantastic blessings of SG2 to the mature believer. He has exploited the victory. Many victories were lost because a victory was not exploited. The battle of Chickamauga was worthless, as it was not exploited by the confederate army. Our exploitation of victory is to reach maturity. That is the only way that we can exploit the victory of the baptism of the Spirit.

The limitations of the Law as a marriage counselor come up next.

271 12/01/1977 Romans 8:3 Mosaic Law is not for salvation, spirituality or to reach maturity; amplification of the doctrine of imputation

Romans 8:3 For of the Law being powerless in that it was weak through the flesh, God, having sent His Son in likeness of sin of flesh and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh,... (BLB)

No actual notes available for Romans 8:2–3; so the notes here were added by me (and they are not as thorough as the notes elsewhere).

There is a limitation on the Law as a marriage counselor.

Nominative absolute + no verb. Descriptive genitive singular of nomos. “For the inability of the Law...” The idea, “For what was impossible from the Law, God has accomplished...”

The Law

1. The Law is from God. God is perfect; the Law is perfect.
2. The perfection of the Law must be described in terms of its divine purpose and not by human distortion.
3. The Law states the problem and communicates the solution to unbelievers.
4. The Law is not an instrument of salvation. No one has ever been saved by keeping the Law. Many have been saved by heeding the Law.
5. Codex 1 defines the problem; codex 2 provides the solution.

The Law is perfect and it is from God; but it has a very limited purpose.

En + hos. Because... Imperfect active indicative of astheneô, which means to be weak, to be powerless. Linear aktionsart in past time.

Through the flesh.

For the inability of the Law, because it was weak through the flesh....

The Mosaic Law can point to the solution; but it is not the solution.

The Limitations of the Mosaic Law

1. The Mosaic Law has a specific function and limitation.
2. The Law was never designed to be an instrument of salvation or spirituality. Illustration of the 45 auto, which is a perfect man killer. You can get it messtup, and it continues to fire. If you want to sink an aircraft carrier, it is not adequate. There are other means, but not the 45 automatic.
3. As such, the Law is weakened by the flesh.

4. The genetically formed old sin nature has affinity for the real imputation of Adam's sin. There are two things that always go together: Adam's original sin + the sin nature. When Adam committed that sin, the sin nature was formed.
5. Spiritual death did not exist until Adam took the fruit and ate it.
6. The Law cannot remove any person from spiritual death. The Law can tell you that you are under spiritual death; but it cannot fix that.
- 7.
8. The distortion occurs when man tries to keep the Law for salvation.
9. We receive salvation from Christ and not from the Law and spirituality is from the Holy Spirit, not from the Law.
10. Furthermore, we attain spiritual maturity from doctrine resident in the soul; not from the Law.

The Limitations of the Mosaic Law is a portion of the doctrine of the Mosaic Law.

There is nothing wrong with the Law, the problems with the Law are all about its misuse by man. Or the misuse of the Law by the sin nature.

We live in the greatest country in the world. Bob would like to fight about 5 people a night over this point.

Romans 3:20 Because by the words of the Law, no flesh can be justified, for knowledge of sin comes from the Law.

Galatians 2:16 Knowing that a person is not justified by the works of the law, but through faith in Christ Jesus, even we have believed in Christ Jesus that we might be justified by faith in Christ, and not by the works of the law; for by the works of the law no person will be justified.

Romans 3:28 We conclude, then, that man is justified by faith apart from the works of the law.

Bob illustrates that a proper use of his hands today is typing; and using them to get into fights is not legitimate, as a bishop is not a striker of persons.

God invented the Law for one purpose, and that is not salvation.

Pempô = having sent. The God, by having sent,...

There are many doctrines which could be taken up at this point; but they will be set aside, as we have already had them.

Accusative singular of huïos, the word for an adult son, a mature son. Heautou; the Son of Himself...

homoíōma (ὁμοίωμα) [pronounced hom-OY-oh-mah] + sarxz + hamartia. His Own Son in the likeness of the flesh of sin, but He was not the flesh of sin. Sarxz is used for the human body. This is a reference to the humanity of Jesus Christ. Here, we need to know the doctrine of the Hypostatic Union and Impeccability.

Romans 8:3 For what was impossible from the law, because it was weak through the flesh [OSN, first marriage], the God by having sent his own Son [deity of Christ] in the likeness of the flesh of sin [perfect humanity of Christ], and for a sin offering [the work of Christ on the cross], judged the sin nature in the flesh;..

The sentence was executed at the cross. The condemnation occurred at our birth, but the penalty was paid prior to that. Jesus came to be a sin offering for our sins.

An Explanation of Romans 8:3

1. The sin nature resides in the human body. It is not eradicated or removed as long as we are in the body. The solution to personal sin is instant, the rebound technique.
2. By the imputation of personal sins to Christ on the cross, the old sin nature has been judged.
3. The result is both salvation + divorce from the old sin nature and retroactive positional truth.
4. The Law was not designed to provide salvation. It became the marriage counselor which pointed to the solution.
5. What the Law was unable to do, God did.
6. Furthermore, God the Father accomplished the objective by the cross.
7. This verse is a crossroads where all the doctrinal teaching of the Old Testament meets all the doctrinal teaching of the New Testament canon. There is a vast and great difference between these two testaments.
8. The Law was never designed to save us or to make us spiritual.
9. The weakness of the Law is based upon man's distortion of the Law. The nose has many purposes, but it was never made to be a battering ram. Example of a guy who would get drunk and then try to walk through doors. His nose became very weak because it was used for the wrong purposes.
10. The principle: the divine purpose continues in spite of man's failures and distortion. Just because we distort or abuse something, the plan of God continues just as it ought to. The plan of God is not going to stop simply because we mess up.

Too many people think that the plan of God depends upon them, and if they fail, they think that the plan of God will stop. We can't get along without God; but He can certainly get along without us.

The Principle of Imputations—Real and Judicial

1. It is the justice of God which is the source of all imputations. Attributed or ascribing something to someone. The justice of God is half of God's integrity. We have no contact with the love of God; or with the sovereignty of God. Our point of reference is the justice of God. People can be unfair; systems can be unfair; but God cannot be unfair. The justice of God is the source of cursing and blessing; condemnation and salvation. Our hopelessness is God's opportunity. God's plan is perfect.

- a. Righteousness demands righteousness; justice demands justice. God must get His righteousness to us; and there must be a way of doing it. God's whole purpose is to impute His righteousness to us without compromising His character. Until we have God's righteousness, there is no way that we can be blessed by Him. God cannot bless clucks or imbeciles or people. We are all idiots by imputation, of course. We can be written off as hopeless, senseless. We cannot get anything from God by being good. God is not moved by anything that we do.
 - b. God has no favorites. Bob is no favorite of God's. He does not have a secret way to pray to get his prayers answered. And Bob does not have any special in with God to be greatly blessed. To whom much is given, much is expected. Pastor-teachers get double blessing and double discipline. People think that they are God's favorites due to having a great personality or being particularly righteous. But God has no favorites. We have favorites; so we think that God has them.
2. A real imputation must have a target or a home; a natural affinity.
 3. A judicial imputation is an imputation made to something or someone which lacks a target, home or natural affinity. Therefore, free will of the recipient has to be a component part.
 4. The imputations at birth. Human life is imputed at birth to the soul. Physical death does not destroy life. The body is a temporary abode. Human life is only in the soul and it will always be in the soul. When you leave your house (the body) you will never go back to that body again.
 5. Adam's original sin is imputed to every person's sin nature. The source of the old sin nature is Adam's original sin. The author and the book go together. There is affinity between these two. All real imputations can be established by affinity. There is no free will involved. God makes the first and last decisions for us in our lives, which is the way it should be. When Bob's mother told him not to do something, he did it right then and there. If his father told him not to do something, he waited until the father was gone and then he did it. How would you like a world to be run by a volition like that? Bob is personalizing the situation as Paul did in order to explain it. How do you thank God for spiritual death if you don't understand it?
 6. Imputation and non-imputation at the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ. God the Father made decisions about Jesus Christ at birth. The Father gave human life to the format soul attached to the fetus. This is why John 3:16 is the most misunderstood verse. God does not love us; God does not love the world (the cosmic system). The 23 male chromosomes were not there for the virgin birth; and this eliminates the sin nature; and therefore, no imputation of Adam's original sin. The virgin Mary had a sin nature; but she could not transmit it. Jesus Christ receive human life but no imputation of Adam's sin.

7. The sin nature was judged in Christ. Jesus reached the cross without having committed a sin. So all of the personal sins were poured out on Christ. These sins were imputed to Jesus Christ. There was no natural affinity. The justice of God imputed those sins in judgment. Jesus had a human body; but no sin nature. His body was minus the sin nature.
- a. Isa 53:4 Surely he has borne our griefs and carried our sorrows; yet we esteemed him stricken, smitten by God, and afflicted.
 - b. Isa 53:5 But he was pierced for our transgressions; he was crushed for our iniquities; upon him was the chastisement that brought us peace, and with his wounds we are healed.
 - c. Isa 53:10 Yet it was the will of the LORD to crush him; he has put him to grief; when his soul makes an offering for guilt, he shall see his offspring; he shall prolong his days; the will of the LORD shall prosper in his hand.
 - d. Isa 53:11 Out of the anguish of his soul he shall see and be satisfied; by his knowledge shall the righteous one, my servant, make many to be accounted righteous, and he shall bear their iniquities.
 - e. Isa 53:12 Therefore I will divide him a portion with the many, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong, because he poured out his soul to death and was numbered with the transgressors; yet he bore the sin of many, and makes intercession for the transgressors.

Lesson #272

272 12/02/1977 Romans 8:3 Battle of the Bulge—7; principle of amplification of the doctrine of imputation (cont.)

The Battle of the Bulge was one of the most important battles of WWII. Bob covers some of the things which occurred during this battle.

9000 Americans surrendered due to an Alan Jones? Disgraceful.

It has never come out till yet, like the greatest casualties that we took in one place was from our own air force.

The justice of God is the source of all the imputations and it is the great issue in the function of life. The doctrine of imputations from above is added to from this lesson.

We will have undeserved suffering when we pass the maturity barrier. Persistence pays off. We have to stick with it. We still need to look at blessing coming through the maturity pipeline and intense suffering when it is not for discipline. Undeserved suffering often comes to you in maturity.

Most of the notes from this lesson are placed with the Doctrine of Imputations above.

No actual notes available for Romans 8:2–3; so the notes here were added by me (and they are not as thorough as the notes elsewhere).

1977 Romans

Lesson #273

273 12/04/1977 Romans 8:4a Divine justice can only bless +R; real imputation of divine blessing to +R without compromise of the essence of God

When we receive capacity for blessing and life, at the same time, we receive capacity for suffering. We are going to relate the blessings of suffering with the blessings of spiritual maturity.

All blessing in life is a real imputation. Imputed righteousness is the reason why we can be blessed. We were in Adam genetically when Adam sinned. The imputation of Adam's original sin to our sin nature allows our personal sins to be saved up for the cross.

Doctrine of suffering to be taught during the Christmas season, an appropriate time for it.

Bob describes the narrow purpose of Chimney Rock. Like the Mosaic Law. When you try to widen the Mosaic Law to be used for other things, it does not work.

Romans 8:4 so that the righteousness of the Law should be fulfilled in us not walking according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit. (BLB)

Verse 4 – the triumph of the second marriage. Three principles to be noted: 1) If God provides something with a limited purpose (like the Mosaic law) He also provides something with a total purpose (like salvation through faith in Christ or spirituality through the rebound technique); 2) This verse 4 is a purpose clause, a continuation of the sentence begun in the previous verse and it is designed to express the triumph of that divine righteousness imputed after salvation in phase two; 3) The triumph of imputed righteousness in the attainment of spiritual maturity, and the means of that triumph through the filling of the Spirit, are all stated in one purpose clause.

“That the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us” – the conjunction hina (ἵνα) [pronounced HEE-na] plus the subjunctive mood introduces the purpose clause, the final clause to denote aim, objective, or purpose. With it is a nominative singular subject dikaiōma (δικαίωμα) [pronounced dik-AH-yo-mah] which means requirement or commandment. The noun connotes the legal act corresponding to an ordinance or requirement. Hence, it is what might be classified in modern English as the actualisation of justice. “In order that the legal requirement of the law.” The legal requirement of the law is that in order to receive blessing from God you have to be as good as God is, and God is perfect righteousness. This is a legal requirement which cannot be fulfilled in the energy of the flesh, by keeping the law.

Divine Justice Can Only Bless Perfect Righteousness

1. The integrity of God, composed of divine righteousness and justice, is the guardian of the attributes of God. The attributes of God cannot be compromised in God's dealings with His creatures. Therefore the righteousness of God is the guardian of His justice, and the justice of God is the guardian of all the divine attributes.
2. There must be no compromise of attributes in the function of the essence of God. That is why divine righteousness demands perfect righteousness and divine justice demands perfect justice. Righteousness, justice demands justice in the function of the divine integrity toward mankind.
3. To avoid compromise and inconsistency a principle of doctrine becomes axiomatic: divine justice can only bless divine righteousness. Without the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation there could be no blessing in time or eternity.
4. Righteousness is the principle of divine integrity while justice is the function of divine integrity.
5. God cannot accept anything less than perfect righteousness, and God cannot bless anything less than perfect righteousness.
6. Therefore the justice of God, the source of all direct blessing from God, is only free to provide such blessing where God's righteousness resides. God's righteousness resides in the believer by judicial imputation at salvation.
7. Therefore the imputation of divine righteousness is absolutely necessary for any blessing from the justice of God.
8. God loves His own integrity composed of His divine righteousness and justice.
9. Therefore, what righteousness rejects justice condemns. When divine righteousness accepts or approves divine justice blesses.
10. This fulfils the principle that the justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands.
11. At the moment of faith in Christ the individual believers receives divine righteousness by judicial imputation.
12. What we receive at salvation demands exploitation. Just .like a victory in battle needs to then be exploited. We have +R at salvation; and we need to exploit that; it is not just to sit there. God is not going to give us blessing because we have +R but because we exploit having +R.

The ablative singular from nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss] plus the definite article refers to the Mosaic law. The ablative of means with the definite article denotes a previous reference, and it should be translated "In order that the legal requirement demanded by [or, of] the law."

The Legal Requirement of the Law

1. The legal or righteous requirement of the law is that divine blessing which demands perfect righteousness for a real imputation.
2. Divine justice can only bless perfect righteousness.
3. The Mosaic law demands perfect righteousness for blessing from God.

4. At salvation perfect righteousness is imputed so that at maturity the blessings from the justice of God are imputed.
5. The law states many blessings which demand perfect righteousness for fulfilment.
6. God supplies the perfect righteousness—His own—through judicial imputation at salvation adjustment to the justice of God.
7. Thereafter God supplies through logistical grace the necessary doctrine and the means of the filling of the Spirit through rebound to provide the completion of a real imputation of divine blessing.
8. Remember that real imputation must have an object, a point of affinity which we simply call a home or a target. The object is the righteousness of God prepared by imputation at salvation.
9. Divine blessing has an affinity for divine righteousness, for what the righteousness of God demands the justice of God executes.
10. Divine blessing, the fulfilment of the legal requirement of the law, becomes the reality when maximum doctrine resident in the soul results in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

1977 Romans

Lesson #274

274 12/04/1977 Romans 8:4b Doctrine of plêroô (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh]: fill up a deficiency; exploitation of imputations; legal requirement of the Mosaic Law

Losers find ways to explain it. Tampa Bay has never won a game. They are called the most feared team because no one wants to be the first one to lose to.

No specials or no breaks until we get to Romans 8:39.

First 3.5 verses read.

The Legal Requirement of the Law reviewed (above). This legal requirement is the exploitation of our position at salvation and riding this into spiritual maturity.

Romans 8:4 so that the righteousness of the Law should be fulfilled in us not walking according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit. (BLB)

The legal requirement of the law is the exploitation of imputed righteousness at salvation by advance to maturity through the filling of the Spirit and the perception of Bible doctrine—maturity adjustment to the justice of God through Bible doctrine and the filling of the Spirit. The advance to maturity, then, results in the justice of God imputing divine blessing to the righteousness of God. All of these blessings flow through the grace pipeline, and only the status of maturity provides the capacity for blessing necessary for glorification of Christ and the appreciation of the source of real imputation.

Doctrine of Plêroô

“might be fulfilled in us” – the aorist passive subjunctive from the verb plêroō (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh].

1. First of all, plêroō (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh] means to fill up a deficiency. At salvation the believer’s deficiency is maturity adjustment to the justice of God. At salvation the problem is that we have the greater without the less. The greater is the imputation of divine righteousness; the less, blessings from the justice of God in time. The deficiency emphasizes the lack of balance which is only implemented by a fortiori—the justice of God will not withhold the less: blessings in time through maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
2. Secondly, plêroō (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh] means to fully possess. Maximum blessing from the justice of God must fully possess the believer who is fully possessed by the Spirit and fully filled with Bible doctrine.
3. A third meaning of the word is to fully influence. Bible doctrine must fully influence the life for the believer to have capacity for blessing.
4. The fourth is to fill with quality, to fill with a specific quality. The believer is filled with the highest quality of blessing as a result of divine righteousness imputed at salvation, and divine blessing imputed at maturity.

Romans 8:4a In order that the legal requirement of the law might be filled up in us.

The morphology: this is an aorist passive subjunctive. This is a culminative aorist. The aorist tense brings out the fact that the legal requirement of the law is divine righteousness and blessings to match. We receive divine righteousness at salvation, and we must have blessings to match at maturity. The only thing that will match divine righteousness is blessing in time from the justice of God. The culminative aorist views the advance to maturity in its entirety, it gathers into one entirety everything it takes to get to maturity but emphasizes the result: blessing in time. The passive voice: the believer receives the action of the verb, from the filling of the Spirit plus the daily function of GAP, resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God and resulting in maximum blessing from the justice of God as a real imputation from divine justice to divine righteousness imputed. The subjunctive mood is potential, because there are a lot of believers who are not even going to come close to maturity. The potential subjunctive, then, depends on two functions: rebound when necessary and the function of the GAP consistently under the filling of the Spirit.

Various Uses of Plêroō

1. Usage is important, and the verb plêroō (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh] has a tremendous amount of usage. It is used for the believer controlled by the Holy Spirit—Ephesians 5:18. It is used for the pastor communicating doctrine to his congregation—Colossians 1:25.
2. The purpose of having the gift of pastor-teacher in every generation is to fill up a deficiency that all sheep have. All believers have a great deficiency of Bible doctrine.
3. The third use is found in Romans 8:4 where it is used for the mature believer receiving the imputation of divine blessing at maturity.

4. It is also used for maturity adjustment to the justice of God through the construction of the edification complex of the soul—Luke 2:40, where “becoming full of wisdom” is plêroô (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh]. Wisdom is doctrine. Cf. Ephesians 3:19—“filled up with all the fullness from God.” Colossians 1:9.
5. The fifth use of plêroô (πληρώω) [pronounced play-ROH-oh] is capacity for happiness in the mature believer. Perception of doctrine resulting in capacity for happiness—1John 1:4.
6. It is used for the priestly function of giving in Philippians 4:18.
7. It is used for the mature believer’s production of divine good—Philippians 1:11; Revelation 3:2.

“in us” – the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH]. Su is the 2nd personal pronoun; and autos is used for the personal pronoun (along with several other uses).

Principle

1. The deficiency in us at salvation is divine blessing from the justice of God. There is an affinity between divine blessing and divine righteousness so that the imputation of divine righteousness at salvation demands a real imputation. It becomes the divinely prepared home for a real imputation which occurs at maturity whereby the justice of God imputes all divine blessings of the righteousness of God.
2. The imputation of divine righteousness demands the imputation of divine blessing to complete it. That is why these divine blessings are called the fullness of God.
3. The possession of divine righteousness and/or justification demands the imputation of divine blessing.
4. The deficiency at salvation is divine blessing.
5. This deficiency is filled up, implemented, when the believer cracks the maturity barrier through maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
6. This deficiency cannot be filled up in status quo carnality or reversionism.
7. Therefore, the next phrase emphasizes the fact that we must be walking by means of the Spirit and not by means of the flesh. If we get out from the control of the Holy Spirit for very long we are going to wind up in sin, good, evil, the trends of the ex-husband.
8. The Mosaic law demands perfect righteousness for blessing from the justice of God. “In order that the legal requirement of the law might be filled up in us.”
9. The legal requirement of the law is divine blessing to match the imputed righteousness of God at salvation.
10. Therefore maturity adjustment to the justice of God fills up the life of the believer with blessing imputed from the justice of God.

“who walk not after the flesh” – the locative plural from the definite article used as a relative pronoun [hos] whose antecedent is the locative plural from the personal pronoun egó (ἐγώ) [pronounced ehg-OH].

Plus the present active indicative from the verb peripateô (περιπατέω) [pronounced per-ee-paht-EH-oh] which means to walk. The customary present tense denotes what habitually occurs in the life of the believer who is positive toward doctrine, consistent in its perception, and rebounds every time it is necessary. The active voice: the positive believer produces both the negative and the positive action. He walks not after the flesh but after the Spirit. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal idea from the viewpoint of reality.

The negative side: the negative particle mê (μή) [pronounced may] with the prepositional phrase kata plus the accusative of sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx]—“not according to the flesh [OSN].” The doctrine of Walking was covered in the book of Philippians.

“but after the Spirit” – the adversative conjunctive particle allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ahl-LAH] sets up a contrast between the two clauses, between the old sin nature and the Spirit. Plus kata, plus the accusative of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]—“but according to the Spirit.”^[3]

Romans 8:4 In order that the legal requirement of the law might be filled up in us, who keep walking not according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit.

Principle

1. We cannot keep the law by keeping the law. We can only keep the law through the filling of the Spirit and the daily function of GAP, eventuating in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
2. Maturity or experiential sanctification fulfills the legal requirement of the law: blessing from the justice of God.
3. Blessing from the justice of God is a real imputation. The source is divine justice; reception: divine righteousness where capacity through doctrinal inculcation exists. This imputation cannot occur apart from maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
4. The law requires blessing for perfect righteousness. The Law does not give the blessing; it requires it.
5. The law cannot provide blessing, only state the requirement.
6. The requirement is filled at two points in the adjustment to the justice of God. Those two points are salvation and spiritual maturity.
7. The divinely prepared home for the imputation is provided at salvation. So the first part of the provision is salvation accompanied by imputation of divine righteousness.
8. The actual imputation occurs at maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
9. Under the principle of a fortiori the greater is provided at salvation, the less is provided at maturity. If the greater is provided already, then the lesser must be provided as well.
10. If God has provided the greater at salvation, i.e. justification, it follows a fortiori that He will provide the less, i.e. divine blessing at the point of maturity.
11. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God completes the divine requirement stated in the law. Divine justice can only bless perfect righteousness. The rich young ruler wanted to use his righteousness in order to gain God's approval. He was not seeking first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness; he was seeking his own righteousness.

12. The filling of the Spirit is necessary for the believer to advance to maturity. Γνώσις cannot be converted to ἐπίγνωσις apart from the filling of the Spirit. There is no spiritual growth apart from the filling of the Spirit because this is the necessary state to convert knowledge into full knowledge.

Bob reads all 4 verses.

Lesson #275

275 12/05/1977 Romans 8:5 Intro. Battle of the Bulge Plans; doctrine of the filling of the Holy Spirit (revised) (There are five lessons on Romans 8:5)

Deception is a very important part of warfare. The Americans had broken through an important line; and they assumed that Russia was going to send some large armies in (an assumption made by both Americans and Germans). Hitler brought in about 50 generals. This was really well guarded and their side arms were taken. And Hitler talks for 4 hours. Had you even moved to get your handkerchief, you would have been shot. None of them dared to sneeze or make any unnecessary movement. Hitler compared himself to Frederick the Great. Hitler had a place where they would attack. They had to sign a paper to indicate that, under penalty of death, they would not reveal where this took place.

Some Americans were deceived into surrendering. They were going to attack in waist-deep snow drifts. Funk pretended about to surrender his weapon, and suddenly put it into action, and defeated about 40 men, killing 20 of them.

The men trained for war in America are completely different from the politicians. A different breed of cat.

Lesson #276

276 12/06/1977 Romans 8:5 Intro. Battle of the Bulge, 14th CAV.; doctrine of the filling of the Holy Spirit (pts. 8–10); pseudo-spirituality

14th Cavalry were in a high mountainous area called the Snow Mountain. They were a green outfit. They were too small to withstand two divisions; and they were a green outfit and not well-led. Bob saw them as a gallant outfit and he has the only surviving regimented colors pre-WWII.

Reading of the first 4 verses.

Romans 8:5 For those being according to flesh mind the things of the flesh; but those according to Spirit, the things of the Spirit. (BLB)

Lesson #277

277 12/11/1977 Romans 8 via 1Kings 19:1–18 Fear vs. faith–rest; doctrine of the filling of the Holy Spirit (pt.11)

First four verses read.

A hearing test. That strange noise was just so that you can figure out if your hearing is normal. The organ cannot stand cold weather and it complains. The noise is gone because it has been turned off, which is what happens to those who complain too much at Berachah Church.

Ahab has been telling his wife too much, who is beautiful and evil.

God is judging nation Israel due to reversionism. The crops have failed.

Elijah has challenged the king.

Jezebel is by herself; and she has no one there to take out her bad disposition. She is missing her favorite past time, which is telling her husband moment-by-moment what to do. All of this is because of that pest Elijah. She is assuming that Elijah is dead and there will be a great celebration that night.

The children are offered up and many are having sex at the same time.

1Kings 19:1 Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and how he had killed all the prophets with the sword.

She saw out on the horizon a tiny cloud in the sky; the first cloud that she had seen in a long, long time. And she became fascinated with this cloud. She thought that this represented the triumph of the prophets of Baal. She thought that this was wonderful that the day that Elijah is killed, that there is the first rainstorm in years.

She heard the clatter of horses outside. He runs in to meet her and she asks, "Where are my prophet and how did it go."

Ahab says, "Please sit down; you are not going to like this."

Then Ahab will talk about what Elijah has done.

Her smile disappeared and she thought of many things that she wants to torture Elijah with. She gets over her temper before she can plot against Elijah.

While the people were starving, Ahab was concerned about his great stable of horses and mules. He did not care about his people, but he did care about his animals. He is hedonistic and he is very self-centered.

Jezebel was as strong as Ahab was weak.

Religion and the state must be kept separate.

There must be freedom to evangelize; and freedom to say no.

This woman is brilliant, but she is not able to run a kingdom. She is not capable of handling it; just as Cleopatra could not rule correctly. She will come up with a scheme to defeat Elijah and she comes at him at his point of weakness. No man can every spot the arrogance in another man that a woman can. The woman is much smarter about a man's weaknesses more than any other man.

She rules of Ahab because he is ruled by pleasure. You can enjoy college much more if you do your studying and work first; and then go and party. Jezebel knew this weakness. When a woman attacks a man's weakness. Men cannot stand up to a woman who knows to attack him at his weakness.

Elijah, however, will not be defeated, because he has doctrine. Jezebel knows that, if you kill Elijah, you will advance a cause. Communists will kill their own people in order to advance their cause. They make a martyr out of such a one.

1Kings 19:2 Then Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah, saying, "So may the gods do to me and more also, if I do not make your life as the life of one of them by this time tomorrow."

We might think to send a servant with a dagger to kill him; but Jezebel does not do that. If you get in a talk with a woman, she is going to win if she is on her own ground. The dumbest woman in the world can outsmart the smartest man.

A man who is arrogant is the dumbest of all the human race. This makes him vulnerable to everything. The woman has to have the last word. It is always that last word that is devastating. She is going to catch Elijah in a spot where he does not faith rest it.

Jezebel had to get rid of Elijah without being blamed for it; and without making him a martyr. The threat is her greatest weapon. Now, Elijah does not think this through; and that if God has a plan for his life, then it does not matter what Jezebel was.

As long as she is angry, she cannot think clearly. She needs to discredit Elijah instead of killing him. She needs to make it seem that Jehovah is not great enough to protect Elijah.

No woman who is going to kill you is going to give you 24 hours. If she is going to kill you, she is not going to tell you that she is going to kill you. You won't know it until she is in the process of killing you.

But Jezebel does not plan to kill Elijah; and Elijah will take the bait hook line and sinker.

One of them refers to those who have been killed in the previous chapter. The most effective way of dealing with Elijah is fear. She does not send a messenger with a dagger; she sends him with a threatening message.

We are on the verge of a great depression; and we can have solutions which are much worse than the crisis. Whenever, you are afraid of anything in life, you are saying that God is not greater than these problems. God can keep us alive in the most awful of economic disasters.

The threat of crime as our city has been overrun with foreigners from out of town.

Elijah is a supergrace believer in at least supergrace B. Even though he has faced many crises; he has learned this facing many difficulties in the past. He even brought this woman's son back to life. He knows the solution for this attack.

When was the last time you were afraid. We as believers have no excuse for fear. The greater the crisis the better time that we can have. If our plane is in a spin, or we are in combat, we cannot carry around any fear with us. There is no place for fear in the plan of God. Mature believers and growing believers are always threatened with fear. This is a common approach. How many times has fear been the false motivation. The time that we spend our life in fear, we are going in the wrong direction. A nation of frightened people is a nation of slaves.

1Kings 19:3 [Then he was afraid, and he arose and ran for his life and came to Beersheba, which belongs to Judah, and left \[or, deserted\] his servant there.](#)

The best translation is, when he was afraid, he rose up. He jumps up, panic stricken. He runs. He jumps up. He was afraid and he ran for his life. Elijah was in good shape. He ran from the northern kingdom and he ran all the way to the southern kingdom. He ran about 230 miles. He only stopped long enough to get rid of his servant, who is also in great shape.

Elijah is going to leave his servant there and slip away. This is the malfunction of faith rest and the application of Bible doctrine to the situation.

The second paragraph is what happens to frightened people. You should rebound and get back to it. But Elijah does not do this, so he falls into self-pity.

1Kings 19:4 But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness and came and sat down under a broom tree. And he asked that he might die, saying, "It is enough; now, O LORD, take away my life, for I am no better than my fathers."

1Kings 19:5 And he lay down and slept under a broom tree. And behold, an angel touched him and said to him, "Arise and eat."

This is a good day's march. He is ready to rest. He is under a broom tree; a famous desert tree. It is a leafless tree. It has no use to man; no shade at all.

This tree describes the life of the reversionist. This broom tree has no shade and no water around it. It is as useful as the sand in the desert.

Elijah demands for himself that he might die. He uses nephesh. He is requesting that his soul might be removed. Elijah says he is not better than his ancestors, the Exodus generation.

The Change in Elijah

1. Fear throws up frozen valves in the soul. He is panicked so that doctrine in the soul is not being applied. Self-pity is the antithesis of the application of doctrine.
2. As Elijah exits from the land, he is entering into reversionism. This changes him completely. The objective man is now a coward. Self-pity is total subjectivity.
3. The most inconsistent people in the world are reversionism. Elijah's inconsistency is obvious. He ran because he was afraid to die; and now that he is away, he prays to die. How much inconsistent can you be?
4. The reversionism never knows what he wants because he is under emotional revolt of the soul. This is characterized by desires and wants changing every hour on the hour.
5. Along with self-pity, Elijah is depressed. He is depressed because in reversionism our priorities are always wrong. .

1Kings 19:6 And he looked, and behold, there was at his head a cake baked on hot stones and a jar of water. And he ate and drank and lay down again.

1Kings 19:7 And the angel of the LORD came again a second time and touched him and said, "Arise and eat, for the journey is too great for you."

1Kings 19:8 And he arose and ate and drank, and went in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights to Horeb, the mount of God.

Even though Elijah wants to die, he is given food and he eats. He arises and travels 40 days and 40 nights to Horeb. He goes 40 days on the strength of that food.

The Lord Speaks to Elijah

The cave-in in the cave. This is the third paragraph; and we will cover this quickly. Even in reversionism, you are sustained by God. Reversionists eat and change clothes and they have shelter.

1Kings 19:9 There he came to a cave and lodged in it. And behold, the word of the LORD came to him, and he said to him, "What are you doing here, Elijah?"

He only intended to stay the night, but darkness is a great place to sulk and to feel self-pity. Notice that he receives this...

1Kings 19:10 He said, "I have been very jealous for the LORD, the God of hosts. For the people of Israel have forsaken your covenant, thrown down your altars, and killed your prophets with the sword, and I, even I only, am left, and they seek my life, to take it away."

People are always impressed with their own zeal when they have lost their perspective.

He thinks that he is indispensable. Reversionism always destroys the priorities of the believer. Human ability is not substitute for divine dynamics.

Zechariah 4:6 Then he said to me, "This is the word of the LORD to Zerubbabel: Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, says the LORD of hosts.

1Kings 19:11 And he said, "Go out and stand on the mount before the LORD." And behold, the LORD passed by, and a great and strong wind tore the mountains and broke in pieces the rocks before the LORD, but the LORD was not in the wind. And after the wind an earthquake, but the LORD was not in the earthquake.

God gives him a command to get up and move out. Move to a place to get the lesson. He is going to get face to face teaching from the Lord. Y^ehowah keeps passing by.

There is a tornado breaking up the rocks in the mountain; but God is not in the wind. The Lord is not in that. Then an earthquake, but Y^ehowah is not there either.

1Kings 19:12 And after the earthquake a fire, but the LORD was not in the fire. And after the fire the sound of a low whisper.

1Kings 19:13 And when Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his cloak and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave. And behold, there came a voice to him and said, "What are you doing here, Elijah?"

1Kings 19:14 He said, "I have been very jealous for the LORD, the God of hosts. For the people of Israel have forsaken your covenant, thrown down your altars, and killed your prophets with the sword, and I, even I only, am left, and they seek my life, to take it away."

Elijah fails to learn the lesson. So the Lord will shut him down. It is not in the wind, the earthquake, but the power is in the power of the Spirit.

But God will have to set Elijah aside. But because he would not learn the lesson and where the power lies. 3 men to replace him. This should have been accomplished by one man.

1Kings 19:15 And the LORD said to him, "Go, return on your way to the wilderness of Damascus. And when you arrive, you shall anoint Hazael to be king over Syria.

1Kings 19:16 And Jehu the son of Nimshi you shall anoint to be king over Israel, and Elisha the son of Shaphat of Abel-meholah you shall anoint to be prophet in your place.

1Kings 19:17 And the one who escapes from the sword of Hazael shall Jehu put to death, and the one who escapes from the sword of Jehu shall Elisha put to death.

Three men necessary to replace Elijah.

1Kings 19:18 Yet I will leave seven thousand in Israel, all the knees that have not bowed to Baal, and every mouth that has not kissed him."

The nation was not going to be destroyed because there is a large pivot. This is why God will protect nation Israel. This pivot of mature believers will postpone destruction for 125 years. This is a pivot of mature believers.

The filling of the Spirit comes through rebound adjustment to the justice of God

Lesson #278

278 12/11/1977 Eucharist; Romans 8:5 Review; conflict of thought patterns; carnality defined

13 minutes for the Eucharist service.

Imputation explains life from birth all the way into eternity. Every divine blessings comes from the justice of God and goes to the righteousness of God. 6. No system of works can penetrate this screen. The love of God is not our point of reference in the Christian life. The love of God ceased as a point of reference in the garden.

Review of imputations and the first and second marriages.

Vv. 5–8 presents a crisis of conflicts.

Romans 8:5 For those being according to flesh mind the things of the flesh; but those according to Spirit, the things of the Spirit. (BLB)

The old sin nature calls for the believer to come back, and then the trouble begins again.

Verse 5 – Missing most of the Greek words and phrase by phrase translation. While “according to the flesh” is a literal translation, kata in this case means to be under the authority of, and so we translate, “For those believers who are dominated by the old sin nature keep thinking about the things of the old sin nature; but those believers who are dominated by the Holy Spirit keep thinking about the things of the Spirit.” The things of the Spirit refer to Bible doctrine.

This refers to the carnal believer and the reversionist believer.

Romans 8:5 For those believers who are dominated by the old sin nature keep thinking about the things of the old sin nature; but those believers who are dominated by the Holy Spirit keep thinking about the things of the Spirit.

These points are repeated in lesson #280.

Principles of Romans 8:5

1. What the believer thinks depends upon who and what dominates his life. [What: the OSN; Who: the Holy Spirit]
2. Either the old sin nature dominates the life, concentrating on sin, good and evil, or the Holy Spirit dominates the life, concentrating on Bible doctrine and divine viewpoint.
3. The old sin nature dominates the believer through rejection of rebound and negative volition toward Bible doctrine.
4. The Holy Spirit dominates the believer through rebound when necessary, and constant positive volition toward Bible doctrine.
5. Attitude toward Bible doctrine is the contrast between the two clauses of verse 5.
6. The thought pattern of the believer which pleases God depends on the relationship with the Holy Spirit. This includes maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
7. This is the same as the ingredients for the attainment of experiential sanctification, which is the filling of the Spirit plus maximum doctrine resident in the soul equals maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Maturity and experiential sanctification are synonymous terms.
8. These interchangeable terms for nomenclature are going to be used in Romans 8.
9. Experiential sanctification is related to two post-salvation adjustments to the justice of God: a) Rebound; b) Maturity.

279 12/12/1977 Romans 8:5 Doctrine of mental attitude (good review); tension, mental attitude of troops without company commanders; rapport and diplomats

The thoughts of the soul is what a person is. It is human viewpoint or divine viewpoint. Human viewpoint is the thinking of the reversionistic believer and the carnal believer. Even the mature believer thinks human viewpoint. Elijah is an example of this.

You have made it when you take undeserved suffering and treat it just like blessings. We can be blessed in suffering; and this will never occur again.

Undeserved suffering is designed for blessing when you have cracked the maturity barrier. Below this barrier is divine discipline. In maturity, your suffering is for blessing. It is meaningful suffering.

Bob reviews this doctrine in Lesson #348.

The Doctrine of Mental Attitude

1. Definition.
 - a. Mental attitude is the function of the right lobe or the heart of the believer. This is the function of human thought.
 - b. The sum total of all thought impulses which emanate from the launching pad of the believer's right lobe are called viewpoint.
 - c. If the thought emanating from the right lobe is human viewpoint then it is an expression of cosmic norms and standards of life. It is an expression of the Satanic side of ruling cosmos diabolic us.
 - d. The antithesis is divine viewpoint or the expression of biblical norms and standards of life.
 - e. Every thought impulse of the believer can be categorized basically as divine or human viewpoint.
 - f. There is a great difference between the thinking according to the Royal Family Honor Code and those who think human viewpoint.
2. The real you is what you think. What a person thinks in the right lobe of his soul is what he really is. Mental attitude, therefore, determines both the character and the life of any individual. Mental attitude determines both your character and capacity for life. To think you must have a vocabulary. Thinking is the real personality - Proverbs 23:6,7. The passage portrays hypocrisy as the background for principle. In a person a person thinks hatred, implacability, but he or she invites you to sit down and eat. The real person is not the one who offers you the hospitality but the one who thinks hatred and implacability toward you. A person can appear to be on the surface to be hospitable, gregarious and nice, and inside to be a vicious person. Thinking is the real personality. He desires not to share with anyone else.
3. The conflicts of mental attitudes in the believer. Every believer is a walking battlefield. This often explains why, at least for a while, some Christians are quite kooky, get mixed up in a hurry. It is because they have an inner conflict of mental attitudes. This is described for us in Isaiah 55:6-9 - "Seek the Lord while He may be found [positive volition toward doctrine in time], call upon Him while He is near" - the principle of prayer and other spiritual dynamics related to the believer - "Let the reversionist forsake his way [negative volition toward doctrine], and the unrighteous man [reversionist] his thoughts [human viewpoint], and let him return to the Lord [reversion recovery], and He will have compassion on him; and to our God; and to our God; for He will abundantly pardon." The reversionist has a bad mental attitude. He is full of mental attitude sins and he is a complainer. If anyone ought to forsake their way it is the reversionist. What is his way? Negative volition toward doctrine producing complicated results in his life. "And the unrighteous man his thoughts" - the most dangerous thing in your soul are your thoughts when you are in reversionism. The thoughts go through and through until they make you a kook, and all of the psychotic problems and the neurotic problems that exist right now, and all of the people who are truly mentally ill are mentally ill because of the thoughts that course through the soul. "For My thoughts [divine viewpoint] are not your thoughts [human viewpoint], neither are My ways [the ways of God] your ways [reversionism]. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts." God's thinking is recorded in the Bible that we may have the honor code written out for us, thinking which is in complete opposition to the thinking of the world. Many people brought up in Christian homes have a lot of legalism to unlearn; and those brought up in heathenism, have their own human viewpoint to unlearn.

4. The command to divine viewpoint. Since doctrine is the mind of Christ, as per 1Corinthians 2:16, attitude toward doctrine determines viewpoint of life - Philippians 2:5, "Keep on having this mental attitude in you which was also in Christ Jesus" - a reference to His humanity and a reference that He had a maximum saturation of doctrine. This command is obeyed by the consistent and daily function of GAP. Maximum doctrine in the soul is the only source of divine viewpoint and our only protection. 2Corinthians 10:4-6 tells us what our attitude and what our concept in the royal family should be - "(For the equipment and the weapons of our conflict are not human attributes" - we are fighting in the greatest of all warfare, the angelic conflict, older than the human race, and we are not fighting it with human attributes. The power is in the soul - "but the attributes of power [resident doctrine in the soul] through God against the destruction of fortifications)" - Satan's fortifications, Satan's concepts. Satan has many fortifications in the world today, e.g. the United Nations, the concept of socialism, communism, the ideologies of the day. Therefore these fortifications cannot be destroyed by a good punch or counter punch, these things are in a greater warfare and a warfare that demands the skill of the soul. The skill of the soul is our mental attitude based on doctrine resident in the soul - "assaulting and demolishing cosmic thoughts [human viewpoint], and every obstacle of pride which attacks against the objective of knowledge of God [divine viewpoint], and makes a prisoner of every human viewpoint system of thought to the authority of Christ;" - in other words, your greatest fighting capabilities in the angelic conflict are in your soul. You can have a weak body and be totally out of it as far as your physical body is concerned and you can have the most dynamic powerful attack. You possess in your soul the great capabilities for fighting. However, like any good weapon, the soul has to be loaded; and loading and locking is Bible doctrine in the soul. You have to load the weapon - "holding in readiness to punish all deviation from obedience [reversionistic human viewpoint], when your obedience [daily function of GAP] has been fulfilled." So the whole principle is that we must load up this great weapon that God has given us, the human soul.

- a. God calls upon believers to have a renovation of thinking.
 - b. Legalism is not the way for the believer to think.
 - c. Doctrine in the soul causes believers to think in terms of common sense. Thus we avoid living and thinking in the devil's triangle.
 - d. Those who have rejected thinking divine viewpoint have chosen to live in the devil's triangle.
5. Rapport in the royal family is also based on divine viewpoint - Philippians 2:2, "Fill up the deficiency with inner happiness, that you keep on thinking the same thing [divine viewpoint], having the same love, soul rapport, in thinking."
- a. Love is a mental attitude. Soul rapport in thinking is the basis for love. What is love? It is soul rapport in thinking. So the power of anything that is great in life, the dynamics of everything that is wonderful in life, is based upon what goes on in the soul."
 - b. We do not have the same amount of love for every other believer. The key is to not have mental attitude sins toward any other believer. Have a relaxed mental attitude toward every believer and give them their privacy. We are not required to run around and be nice to every person among the brethren.
 - c. Rapport in the royal family of God is based upon divine viewpoint in thought and the honor code in practice.
 - d. You would be amazed as to how many people are shy. It is rude and crude to turn around and tell the people you love them. Every service, you can find everything from tuxes to jeans.
 - e. Thinking is the source of honor and integrity.
6. The function of the royal priesthood, therefore, demands a new mental attitude - 2Timothy 1:7, "For God has not given us the spirit of fear, but of power [resident doctrine], love [the capacity for life which comes from that doctrine], and stabilized mentality" - nobility is based upon stabilized mentality. Romans 12:2 - "And stop being conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that you may prove what the will of God is, namely that the will of God is good, and acceptable, and perfect." Some psychiatrists checked in with Bob to find out what he was doing because there were some crazies who were ready to be put away; but Berachah tranquilized them and kept them from going off the deep end.
7. Divine viewpoint from doctrine produces confidence - 2Corinthians 5:1, "For we know that if the earthly tent which is our house is torn down [physical death], we have a building from God [resurrection body], a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." Verse 6 - "Therefore, we keep having confidence, and knowing that, while we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord." As long as we live in this life we can have great confidence based upon knowing. Verse 7 - "(For we walk by doctrine [our confidence] resident in the soul, and not by sight). Our whole instrument system is doctrine resident in the soul. Verse 8 - "We keep having confidence, and take mental delight in the fact that to be absent from the body is to be at home with the Lord." So consequently, everything in life that is important for the member of the royal family of God, his nobility, his impact, his dynamics, his glorification of the Lord, is related to what goes on in his soul, what he thinks in his mind.

8. Romans 12:2
 - a. Stop being conformed to this age means staying out of the devil's triangle.
 - b. The word age refers to a period of time during which Satan rules the world. Between the fall of man and the 2nd advent. We have the rulership of man, of Satan and then the reign of Jesus Christ. Age refers to the period of time when Satan is the ruler of this world.
 - c. Good and evil prevail in the devil's triangle.
 - d. The devil's triangle is the place of the function of good and evil.
 - e. Neglect or rejection of doctrine places the believer in the devil's triangle and only the renovation of thought gets the believer out of the devil's triangle.
 - f. The mind is renovated through the daily function of gap.
 - g. This doctrine in the soul replaces human viewpoint with doctrinal orientation. Doctrine forms a new mental attitude in the mind. Mental attitude is everything.
9. Mental attitude determines human personality. Proverbs 23:6–7 Do not eat the bread (or, enjoy the hospitality) of a selfish man or desire his delicacies [he appears to be hospitable, but underneath, he is something else] for as he thinks in his soul, so he is. And he says to you, "Eat and drink," but his right lobe is not with you [or, his right lobe is against you]. You will never be an interesting personality if you do not have much of a vocabulary. Bob has coined words and phrases to be able to identify a specific doctrine wherever it is found. You must have a vocabulary by which to think. If your vocabulary is limited to a number of four-letter words, then your thinking is stifled. To have a good sense of humor, you have to have to have a good vocabulary. Otherwise, you can only enjoy pratfalls or spiels filled with four-letter words. The real person is not the one who offers you the hospitality but the one who is filled with hatred. The perception of Bible doctrine is the best way to expand your vocabulary. Any system with a technical vocabulary improves your mind.
10. Maturity adjustment to the justice of God is a matter of mental attitude dynamics. Philippians 4:7 And the prosperity from God, transcending human comprehension, shall garrison your right lobes and thoughts by means of Jesus Christ. You should have as much inner happiness when under undeserved suffering or great blessing.
11. Giving is a mental attitude. 2Corinthians 9:7–8 Each one, just as he has determined in his right lobe, let him give, not from mental pressure or compulsion from emotion, for the God loves a grace oriented believer. The person who gives with the right mental attitude will always have something to give. The believer supplies the mental attitude and God supplies the money.
12. Mental attitude dynamics when advancing from supergrace B to ultra supergrace.
 - a. Supergrace A when enjoying R&R.

- b. Supergrace B when crossing over no man's land.
 - c. Ultra supergrace. Greatest testing and suffering occurs between supergrace B and ultra supergrace. Philippians 3:15 Therefore, as many as are mature ones, let us continue objective thinking. In fact, if you have a different mental attitude in something, the God will reveal even that to you.
13. Inner beauty is a mental attitude. 1Timothy 2:9 Likewise I have made a command decision that women should make themselves beautiful by respectable, well-arranged clothing, associated with sanity associated with respect for authority and good judgment (or common sense); not with emphasis on high fashion hair styling, golden jewelry or either pearls or expensive clothing. 1Timothy 2:10 But what becomes fitting for women being promised super-grace status [or maturity status] through intrinsic good accomplishments. (The daily function of gap) 1Timothy 2:15 If they persist in doctrine, and love (the relaxed mental attitude), even experiential sanctification with stability of mind (inner beauty is a mental attitude; inner beauty is emphasized)
14. The areas of life involving mental attitude.
- a. Stability is a mental attitude - James 1:8.
 - b. Prosperity is a mental attitude - Philippians 4:7.
 - c. Giving is a mental attitude - 2Corinthians 9:7.
 - d. Worldliness is a mental attitude - Romans 12:2; Colossians 3:2.
 - e. Evil is a mental attitude - Matthew 9:4.
 - f. Arrogance is a mental attitude - Galatians 6:3.
 - g. "Therefore, as many as are mature, let us continue objective-type thinking [the result of being spiritually mature], and if you think differently in anything at all [and you do], this also will God reveal that to you." - Philippians 3:15." In other words, the answer to divine viewpoint, the answer to the dynamics of objective thinking is all bound up in Bible doctrine.

280 12/13/1977 Romans 8:5–6a Military disaster trends of the U.S.; results of mental conflict; doctrine of the sin unto death (review)

Jerry and his family did die in a plane wreck; but the little girl survived with a broken leg. He was almost a dead ringer for Dick Van Dyke.

Navy can't seem to determine what kind of Navy they want; and, as a result, nothing is being done. Russia has the largest artillery in the world. Universal military service required with 25 million in reserve.

Before the new year ends, President Carter is finding more and new ways to trim down our military.

No deviation from Romans until we finish Romans 8. Bob is cancelling his message for Christmas day, which is Who and What is Santa Claus?

Romans 8:5 For those believers who are dominated by the old sin nature keep thinking about the things of the old sin nature; but those believers who are dominated by the Holy Spirit keep thinking about the things of the Spirit.

A repeat of Principles of Romans 8:5 (back two lessons).

Romans 8:6 For the mind of the flesh is death; but the mind of the Spirit, life and peace, (BLB)

Verse 6 –“For to be carnally minded is death” begins with the inferential use of the conjunctive particle gar, translated “Consequently” or “So then.” Plus the nominative singular subject from the noun phrónēma (φρόνημα) [pronounced FRON-ay-mah], which means thinking or thought pattern—“Consequently the thought pattern.” Then the possessive genitive singular from the noun sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx], which sometimes is used for the human body and other times for what indwells the body. Here it refers to the old sin nature.

Since this is ellipsis we include the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME], and then comes the predicate nominative singular from thanatos (θάνατος) [pronounced THAH-nah-toss], used here for the sin unto death to the reversionistic believer—“is death [sin unto death],” which means that the human viewpoint of life results in the sin unto death. The sin unto death is maximum discipline from the justice of God to the reversionistic believer. The reversionist is under the complete domination of the old sin nature, therefore the justice of God cannot bless, but only discipline such a believer.^[4]

Sin unto Death taken from NB2; not a close match up. This doctrine is also covered in Lesson #301.

Doctrine of the Sin unto Death

A. Definition and Description.

1. 1John 5:16 If anyone sees his brother sinning a sin not face-to-face with death, he shall ask and He [God the Father] will give life to him who does not sin face-to-face with death. There is a sin face-to-face with death; I do not say that he should ask concerning this category.
 - a. The literal meaning of the preposition prós (πρός) [pronounced prahç] plus the accusative of relationship means “face-to-face with.” It can be translated idiomatically “the sin terminating with death.” The translation “unto death” is a meaningless translation.
 - b. You are not to pray for believers who are dying the sin terminating in death. You can pray for others as long as they have not committed the sin terminating in death. The sin terminating in death is the sin of not executing the spiritual life of the Church Age.

- c. This does not open the door for you to malign or judge anyone. You have to see this sin being committed, which means you probably have to know the person intimately, e.g., husband and wife, friends, people in a church. The sin face-to-face with death is not related to gossip, maligning, or spreading of tales about the sins of others.
 - d. The sin face-to-face with death is a sin which is repeated many times and there is no rebound. God has never made a judgment of anyone that excludes the love of God. Therefore, God's judgment of this person is always fair.
 - e. The sin face-to-face with death is maximum divine discipline from the integrity of God. It is the highest form of disgrace that can occur.
 - (1) Divine discipline results from the believer using his own volition to create his own failures in life after salvation.
 - (2) The sin face-to-face with death is described in Psalm 7:14- 16, "Behold, he shall have labor pains of vanity [warning discipline] because he has become pregnant with frustration. Therefore, he has given birth to a life of deceit [intensive discipline]. He dug a grave [the sin face-to-face with death]. He explored it [the experience of warning and intensive discipline]. Therefore, he has fallen into the ditch which he himself has constructed. His frustration will return on his own head." The sin face-to-face with death does not come all at once, but in segments.
 - f. Failure to use the rebound technique of 1 Jn 1:9 results in perpetual carnality.
2. 1John 5:17, "All unrighteousness is sin, and there is a sin not face-to-face with death." There is no sin which causes death.
- a. 1John 5:16b means that while you are still dying, you can still sin. It is the sins that intensify the suffering in dying. This is a reference to sinning when you are in the death-shadowed valley (Psalm 23:4). When you are going through the valley of death, there are certain sins that you can commit face-to-face with dying that are going to make the journey miserable: jealousy, bitterness, vindictiveness, self-pity, fear, worry, anxiety. All of these sins make dying miserable. There are those who sow to the wind and reap the tornado in the death-shadowed valley. The sin face-to-face with death is you creating for yourself your very own dying misery in the death-shadowed valley God has provided for you. This is fair, painful, and terminates in physical death. Sins committed while dying intensify the journey through the death-shadowed valley.
 - b. The divine initiative of eschatological grace challenges the believer to deploy the problem solving devices on the FLOT line of the soul, so that you can travel through your own death-shadowed valley with the most fantastic blessings, Phil 1:21; Psalm 23:4. The training for the blessing or profit in dying comes from the daily function of the spiritual skills in your life. This is while 2Tim 1:7 says, "For God has not given us a lifestyle of fear, but of power and of virtue-love and of sound judgment."

3. Four categories of death exist.
 - a. Dying grace is given to mature or advancing believers. It is the greatest blessing of life because it is directly related to and is only exceeded by rewards at the Judgment Seat of Christ, Psalm 116:15; Phil 1:21.
 - b. Transfer to heaven apart from death, example, Enoch, Heb 11:5; Elijah, 2Kg 2:11-12.
 - c. The sin face-to-face with death. This disciplinary death is given to believers who refuse to execute the spiritual life. Suicide occurs where the believer in the cosmic system takes his own life.
 - d. The exit-resurrection at the end of the Church Age.
 4. The sin face-to-face with death is not a specific sin. It is the believer residing and functioning in the cosmic system. All his human good and sins add up to motivational evil toward self and functional evil toward others.
 5. The sin face-to-face with death is maximum divine discipline, the most painful experience in life with no alleviation. It implies loss of reward and blessing and ashamedness at the judgment seat of Christ.
- B. The Context for the Sin Face-to-Face With Death.
1. The context is the general doctrine of divine discipline. Divine discipline is the sum total of punitive measures by which God judges, corrects, and teaches the believer in time. Hebrews 2:5-6, "And so you yourselves have forgotten the principles of doctrine which teach you as a son. My son do not make light of discipline from the Lord, nor be fainting when you are punished by Him. For you see, 'Whom the Lord loves He punishes and scourges with a whip every son whom He receives.'"
 2. Divine discipline is confined to time, Revelation 21:4.
 3. Divine discipline results from the believer using his own volition to create his own failures, Psalm 7:14-16.
 4. Certain sins are worse as far as divine discipline is concerned, i.e., sins of the tongue that bring triple compound discipline, Mt 7:1-2. If you have personal love toward God, you have impersonal love toward man. So do not gossip, judge or malign others, Psalm 64:7-8; Jas 4:11, 5:9.
 5. For the believer in the cosmic system, there are three stages to the sin face-to-face with death.
 - a. The first stage of divine discipline is warning discipline, Rev 3:20, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If anyone has heard My voice and he opens the door [rebound], I will enter face-to-face with him and dine with him [restoration to fellowship with God] and he with Me."
 - b. The second stage of divine discipline is intensive discipline, Psalm 32:1-5. Psalm 118:17-18.

- c. The third stage of divine discipline is the sin face-to-face with death, Revelation 3:16, "Therefore, because you are lukewarm, and neither cold [unbeliever] nor hot [believer executing the spiritual life], I am about to vomit you out of My mouth." Philippians 3:18-19 For many keep walking concerning whom I have communicated many times and now I keep on communicating even though weeping that they are the enemies of the Cross of Christ, whose termination is ruin, whose god is his emotion, whose fame is by means of dishonor, who keep on thinking about earthly things.

6. There are two categories of suffering.
- Suffering for discipline is a teaching aid unless you ignore it. This discipline is unbearable.
 - Suffering for blessing is bearable and accelerates your spiritual growth by helping you to apply doctrine to the situation.
- C. Documentation for the Sin face-to-face with death.
- In the Old Testament, Psalm 118:17-18 Jeremiah 44:12
 - In the New Testament, 1John 5:16.
- D. The sin face-to-face with death is related to the stages of reversionism.
- The stages of reversionism are:
 - Reaction to Bible teaching or distraction from Bible teaching.
 - A frantic search for happiness.
 - Operation Boomerang.
 - Emotional revolt of the soul.
 - Locked in negative volition.
 - Blackout of the soul.
 - Scar tissue of the soul.
 - Reverse process reversionism.
 - The sin face-to-face means shame at the judgment seat of Christ with failure to receive your escrow blessings for eternity.
 - Maximum punitive action of dying the sin face-to-face with death does not imply that the believer will be miserable after death, because there is "no more sorrow, no more tears, no more pain, no more pain" for all believers who are face-to-face with the Lord.
- E. The sin face-to-face with death is related to the rejection of establishment truth, Jeremiah 9:13-16.
- F. Administration of the sin face-to-face with death does not imply loss of salvation, 2Timothy 2:11-13.
- G. Case histories of believers who have faced the sin face-to-face with death.
- Certain believers in Philippi, Phil 3:18-19.
 - Certain believers in the church at Laodicea, Rev 3:16.
 - King Saul, 1Chronicles 10:13-14. This is occult reversionism resulting in the sin face-to-face with death.

4. 1Cor 11:27-28, 30-31 describes participating in the communion service in a state of perpetual carnality resulting in the sin face-to-face with death. You have a choice between using the rebound technique or dying from divine discipline.
5. King Hezekiah had an evil foreign policy of going to Egypt for help, Isaiah 30:1-3. So God put him under the sentence of the sin which terminates with death, Isaiah 38. He rebounded and was given more time to live.
6. The case of the incestuous Corinthian, 1Corinthians 5:1-10, who recovered, 2Corinthians 7:8-11.
7. The case of Ananias and Sapphira in Acts 5:1-10. Their life in perpetual carnality was manifest by lying to God.
8. The case of Hymenaeus and Alexander, 1Timothy 1:19-20, who also lived in perpetual carnality.

H. Recovery:

1. Changing your mind about doctrine.
2. Rebound. 1Corinthians 11:30 (sleep is the sin unto death).
3. GAP is necessary for recovery. Worldliness is the mental attitude of the reversionist. Do you not know that the love of the world keeps on being alienation from God?

I. Other points:

1. God always preserves His pivot.
2. Thought pattern of the brain in 3 categories: sin, good and evil.
3. The justice of God cannot bless the reversionistic believer. This believer can only be blessed by association.
4. If God accomplished the greater at salvation, then He will provide the less in time. If God provides blessings in time, then He will provide matching blessings in eternity.
5. Worst thing to happen to the believer is to die the sin unto death.
6. The sin unto death is maximum discipline to the reversionistic believer, but this does not remove salvation from the believer.

1977 Romans

Lesson #281

281 12/14/1977 Romans 8:6b Hungarian crown; costly U.S. Dept. of Energy; blessing imputed to +R only

Saint Stephen's crown is going to the communists. This crown was a very important treasure to be kept in the United States until Hungary becomes free.

A reading of the corrected translation.

Romans 8:6 For the mind of the flesh is death; but the mind of the Spirit, life and peace, (BLB)

Consequently, the thinking pattern of the sin nature is death...

“but to be spiritually minded is life and peace” – the postpositive conjunctive particle de is used to connect two clauses which are antithetical. The contrast is intended, and here the contrast is between the thought pattern of the old sin nature, which is human viewpoint, and the thought pattern of the Holy Spirit as the marriage counselor of the second marriage which is divine viewpoint.

This is followed by a nominative singular which is used as the subject, the noun is phrónēma (φρόνημα) [pronounced FRON-ay-mah], referring to thinking, and is a reminder that what you think is what you are. It is obvious that we are given doctrine in order to think the divine viewpoint of life. Satan is the ruler of the world and the old sin nature is the ruler of life, and between them we are caught in a squeeze in which we are easily destroyed unless we take in Bible doctrine.

Then follows the possessive genitive from the noun pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], used here for God the Holy Spirit—“but the thought pattern of the Spirit.” This is a reference to Bible doctrine. This is ellipsis and a verb is inserted, the present active indicative of eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME]—“is.” Plus the predicate nominative from zōê (ζωή) [pronounced dzoh-AY], meaning the function of life, a reference to phase two or God’s plan for the believer after salvation and before departure from this life. The emphasis here is capacity for life from maximum doctrine resident in the soul of the mature believer. Then a second predicate nominative, the predicate nominative from eirênê (εἰρήνη, ης, ἡ) [pronounced eye-RAY-nay] which does not mean peace but does mean prosperity. The purpose for keeping us in this life is to bless us. Until there is something coming to the righteousness of God imputed at salvation from the justice of God through the grace pipeline, until the blessings flow there, Jesus Christ is not glorified by your life. The glorification of Jesus Christ is the justice of God imputing as a real imputation to God’s righteousness imputed.^[5] the justice of God imputes blessing to its home, which is imputed +R. We are left behind for a purpose.

Romans 8:6 Consequently the thought pattern of the old sin nature is dead; but the thought pattern of the Spirit [Bible doctrine resident in the soul] is life [capacity for life] and prosperity.

Consequently the thought pattern of the sin nature is dead, but the thought pattern of the Spirit produces life and prosperity (of paragraph SG2)

Summary Points

1. At salvation, the greater a fortiori is from the justice of God. No natural affinity between ourselves and God’s perfect +R. Any judicial imputation must be followed by another judicial imputation which will allow a real imputation in the future. The first judicial imputation were all of our sins poured out on Jesus Christ. There was no natural affinity there between our sins and Jesus Christ. Nor is there any affinity between us as believers for God's righteousness. God had to go to a lot of work in order for this to all be put together. God went to a lot of trouble in order to bless us. Any time the justice of God is imputed, divine blessing comes to us as a real imputation. These blessings are secure. None of this here today and gone tomorrow. You have all kinds of security when you crack the maturity barrier. Security in history and in historical disaster. Perfect security when you receive unjust suffering. There is a false maturity. Just having a few nice things that you like. Often, that is just logistical grace, which is pretty good in itself. The greater is the imputation of divine righteousness.

2. The greatest things that every happen to us glorifies God.
3. At spiritual maturity, the less in a fortiori is accomplished through the real imputation of divine blessing to the divinely prepared home, +R.
4. Two judicial imputations preceded this real imputation.
5. There is no a fortiori blessing in time until divine blessing which glorifies Christ is received.
6. This verse indicates that the sin unto death does not complete a fortiori. You die horribly and miserably unbalanced. The imputation of divine righteousness is balanced out...and then it levels out. The normal Christian is flying level. When divine blessing is imputation, then you level off.
7. Zoê indicates to the justice of God cannot impute the blessings of SG2 is no good without capacity.
8. Blessing without capacity is miser.

Romans 8:6 Consequently the thought pattern of the old sin nature is dead; but the thought pattern of the Spirit [Bible doctrine resident in the soul] is life [capacity for life] and prosperity.

Divine justice can only bless divine righteousness. All of our blessing and discipline all comes from the justice of God.

Adam's original sin was only committed once. Those who promise to God, "I will never do that again." That is meaningless. Paul was the worst sinner because he was moral and self righteous and legalistic.

Adam's sin created the old sin nature; and the natural affinity means that Adam's sin must be imputed to the sin nature.

1977 Romans

Lesson #282

282 12/15/1977 Romans 8:6 Necessity of two judicial imputations before the real imputation of divine blessing (6 categories) to +R

Romans 8:6 Consequently the thought pattern of the old sin nature is dead; but the thought pattern of the Spirit [Bible doctrine resident in the soul] is life [capacity for life] and prosperity.

It is prosperity that we are now studying for the Christian life.

The doctrine of imputations is critical; and we must distinguish between a real imputation and a judicial imputation. The first has a home or target and the second does not. A judicial imputation must be followed by another judicial imputation. This answers why we are still in the world. Why not now? Why are we still here after being saved? After salvation, there is no divine blessing except as related to this real imputation. We understand the two imputations at birth, one giving us death and the other life. The real imputation of human life comes from the justice of God. The divinely prepared and divinely created human soul. Two factors in a real imputation: human life is being imputed and the target is the human soul. To all of us, Adam's original sin is imputed to its genetically prepared home, the sin nature. You have life and death at the same time.

Grace is the policy of the justice of God. Grace did not become God's policy until after the condemnation of man. One sin condemns us all. The sin of Adam was unique. There is no morality issue associated with it. Bob has rarely met a person who was shocked or upset over Adam's sin. He has never heard anyone condemn Adam for that sin. But Bob has heard tons of people talk about this or that sin.

The advent of television has been the death knell of thinking. Without Bible doctrine, we can only think human viewpoint. If we are ever to move along, we must think divine viewpoint. The worst sin and the one with the greatest repercussions is Adam's. We can have greater blessing in this world because God condemned us at birth. We are at the bottom and we can only go in one direction, and that is up.

We did nothing to gain our spiritual death. In Adam, all die. We were born spiritually dead. We were not great until age 3 or so, when we did our first sin. We were condemned even before that.

Adam could not have eternal life in the garden. How long can you go before perfect environment makes you curious to try something else.

Our personal sins could find no natural home or target with Jesus Christ. When we believe in Christ, we have the judicial imputation of God's righteousness to us. Without God's righteousness, there is no plan of God. It takes two judicial imputations in order to have one imputation of divine blessing.

There is that which is imputed and that which is the target of the imputation.

There is a lot of divine blessing in Romans 8. Paragraph SG2 has at least 6 categories of blessing.

Categories of Blessings for Supergrace (Review)

1. Spiritual blessings. They are mentioned first because these are the blessings related to capacity; they are related to the attainment of spiritual maturity. Sharing the happiness of God. Capacity for love, capacity for life. Capacity for undeserved suffering. We do not have capacity for discipline; otherwise discipline is not discipline. The mature believer has capacity for undeserved suffering. Ability to interpret contemporary history in the light of Bible doctrine. Adaptability to changing circumstances. The greatest innovators in the world are mature believers in the time of historical disaster.
2. Temporal blessings. These make you smile; might even make you lick your chops. Wealth, success, promotion, recognition in one's sphere of life. Social prosperity related to category #3 love. Technical prosperity. Mental prosperity. Perspicacity and IQ go up for the believer. Cultural prosperity maximum enjoyment of literature, art, music. You have learned to appreciate good symphony music, but they are playing at the wrong time. Establishment prosperity; private property, protection from crime and reprisal. Leadership dynamics. God's plan for our life in category #2 is a reality. Several of you may be most disappointed because I left out your personal interest.
3. Blessing by association is one of the most wonderful things in life. This is the only way that unbelievers and reversionistic believers have some blessings and happinesses in life. The mechanics are simple. God often directly blesses believers because they are associated with the believer. In the indirect blessing. Direct blessing comes from God. Peripheral areas such as loved one periphery (rm, rw, pets, husbands, wives, children, grandparents); a business periphery (investors, management, labor); professional periphery (school, police force, fire dept, symphony orchestra); social periphery (clubs, fraternities, athletic groups, friends); spiritual peripheries (local church, missionary board); geographical periphery a mature believer in a neighborhood becomes a blessing to the neighborhood (same for the city, county, nation); inheritance (dying as a mature believer and those left behind are the heirs to them); pastoral periphery (no congregation can exceed the spiritual growth of the pastor, so the pastor must press on).
4. Historical impact. The mature believer is the spiritual Atlas who carries his generation. He is the pivot; as the pivot goes, so goes the nation. The spinoff is always destroyed. The pivot is made up of mature believers. That is the answer to our problems today is the increase of the pivot. Mature believers are on the right side of history. The reversionist is punished by history; the mature believer rides on the crest of the wave of blessing, rising up over historical disaster. Ultra supergrace believers had tremendous impacts, not just in their generation but in generations after them.
5. Dying blessing; dying grace is the departure of the believer from this life. This is the greatest experience of this life. Dying grace is the mature believer's permanent change of station.
6. A fortiori blessings. The greater is the blessings of time. If God can provide those, then He can provide blessings in eternity.

7. Undeserved suffering. God has the opportunity to give us suffering that we can handle in life. This will be the subject of Romans 8:18–30 (at least in part). This is what Romans 8:28 is all about, which is designed for mature believers only. To them who love God refers to the mature believer. No rebound is necessary for undeserved blessing.

Divine essence can only bless divine righteousness. Justice demands justice; righteousness demands righteousness. God has a standard which His essence requires that He hold to this standard. The principle of doctrine becomes axiomatic. Divine justice can only bless perfect righteousness. Righteousness is the principle of divine integrity and justice is the function of divine integrity. God cannot bless anything less than perfect righteousness. The imputation of divine righteousness is necessary for any blessing to come from the justice of God. The grace of God can only function based upon the imputation of divine righteousness blessing perfect righteousness. The two judicial imputations of our personal sins to Jesus Christ; and His righteousness to us. God loves His Own integrity, which is composed of His righteousness and justice. The love of God as a divine attribute. Because God loves His Own integrity, what divine righteousness accepts or approves, divine justice blesses. What righteousness rejects; justice condemns; what righteousness accept, divine justice blesses. The justice of God administers what the righteousness of God demands. At the moment of faith in Christ, mankind received that judicial imputation.

A fortiori is also reviewed.

Romans 8:6 Consequently the thought pattern of the old sin nature is dead; but the thought pattern of the Spirit [Bible doctrine resident in the soul] is life [capacity for life] and prosperity.

1977 Romans

Lesson #283

283 12/16/1977 Romans 8:6 via Job 5:1–18 Factors in imputations; basis and permanence of divine blessings cf. logistical grace.

Romans 8:6 Consequently the thought pattern of the old sin nature is dead [that is, the sin unto death]; but the thought pattern of the Spirit [Bible doctrine resident in the soul] is life [capacity for life] and prosperity.

The most difficult thing for God to do is to bless us.

Everything begins for us is human life; and the target is the soul. Adam's original sin is also imputed to our sin nature. Eternal life is also a real imputation. The 4th imputation demands judicial imputations first. This last one is complex because there must be two judicial imputations in order to have this. Our sins must be imputed to Jesus Christ. No affinity between the perfect God-man and our sins. Blessings in time are parlayed into eternal blessings.

We are going to look at several Old Testament passages to illustrate these principles. Job 5 is going to get us thinking in the right direction.

Even obeying certain blessings from the Word of God bring us blessing.

A senior officer gives a great many commands to his junior officer without any thought of reward or recognition. God commands us to witness and He commands us to pray; but none of these commands bring blessing. No blessing for service, no blessing for witnessing. This is what is wrong with fundies today. The typical illustration is the Baptist who tithes. A parent who promises blessing to a child who behaves in church is false; this is propaganda. Blessing comes God's way.

Everyone has a gimmick to get God's blessing. The holy roller who tilts his head back and lets sounds exit his mouth.

How many of you are going to run around and be nice to everyone just so that you can have a better Christmas?

God blesses us on the basis of His plan, not ours. When God gives you something, it is not because you deserve it. You do not deserve any blessing from God. Every time that God blesses us, it is because He can do this without compromising His integrity. When God blesses us, it is such a lot of work. "Why, was it worth it?"

The angelic conflict is never resolved by us being good. No one is God's favorite. If God favored anyone, then God could not be God; His integrity would be compromised.

Many women look at being married and getting a man is the very definition of blessing; but it could be the worst decision of your life. A blessing is not a blessing unless you can enjoy it and derive maximum happiness from it.

If you were a multi-millionaire would you be happy? "Yes," you say, "And no," I say. You can't believe how much happier you are now than you would having the accoutrements of life.

Love is a concentration. When you concentrate on something, you give. It is inevitable. God cannot compromise Himself by giving to His Own integrity. The ultimate in blessing is divine blessing to +R. There is no compromise if God's left hand gives to His right hand.

Job 5:1 "Call now; is there anyone who will answer you? To which of the holy ones will you turn?"

What have you asked for lately? God is not going to give you anything except from His righteousness. Everything between salvation and maturity is logistical grace. This is logistical support. This might be great clothing or great transportation.

When you reach maturity, then you will know what Bob means by blessing.

The vehicle of prayer—God, I want this, and this, and this, Amen. So is there anyone who will answer?

The holy one is the believer to whom you go and say, “Pray for me.”

If two or three pray for the same thing—that belongs to the previous dispensation. All of the great prayers have been prayed by one person. We all have terrible times of pressure.

There are people who have ministries of intercession. When it hurts and you want people to pray for you, if you are out of fellowship and in carnality, others can pray and pray and you still hurt. You are dealing with the justice of God. The divine honor code never changes. When you are suffering for blessing, all the prayers in the world will not change anything. You will be carried forward by Bible doctrine in your soul.

What people of true integrity can you turn to? We need to get help from the integrity of God, not from man.

Job 5:2 Surely vexation kills the fool, and jealousy slays the simple.

The fool is maladjusted to the justice of God. The reversionist believer destroys himself when he is jealous about anything. Life is too short. If someone runs off with your bf or gf, you are better off. You have lucked out.

Job 5:3 I have seen the fool taking root, but suddenly I cursed his dwelling.

A reversionist and he seems like everything is good and he just moved into a new house. He was so delighted about it, but it decays in a moment. That stimulation wears off in a second.

Job 5:4 His children are far from safety; they are crushed in the gate, and there is no one to deliver them.

Wives think that children are the answer. If the husband has any wandering tendencies, the children will push him further out.

Many times children are delivered by being associated with a mature believer. But without that association, they are destroyed.

Job 5:5 The hungry eat his harvest, and he takes it even out of thorns, and the thirsty pant after his wealth.

There is no advantage to the advantages without the advantage.

The wealthy are admired and people are jealous of them. The welfare state takes from those who work hard and are smart in business, and this is given to those without ability.

The United States has become a failing human race. There is no equality in heaven or in life.

Job 5:6–7 For affliction does not come from the dust, nor does trouble sprout from the ground, but man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward.

Trouble comes from the sin nature; trouble comes from Satan imposing upon his realm good and evil. The trouble with this world is man; not nature.

Job 5:8 “As for me, I would seek God, and to God would I commit my cause,...

Seeking God is the intake of doctrine resulting in maturity adjustment to the justice of God.

The faith-rest technique takes our trouble and difficulties and puts it upon God.

Job 5:9 ...who does great things and unsearchable, marvelous things without number:...

The existing material is out of the integrity of God. With maturity, the blessing of God is imputed to the target. The pipeline is encapsulated, righteousness of God on one end and justice of God on the other end. This excludes anything that we do. No human function can penetrate that screen.

Justice must execute what righteousness demands. Since God is giving and God is on the receiving end, then God is glorified. This stands when God does not compromise His character.

Marvelous things without number describes the blessings of supergrace 2.

Job 5:10 ...he gives rain on the earth and sends waters on the fields;...

Rain on the earth is blessing poured upon a nation, which is economic blessing.

Job 5:11 ...he sets on high those who are lowly, and those who mourn are lifted to safety.

This is promotion going through the grace pipe. We cannot take credit for it, as it is strictly the integrity of God.

Lifted to safety is blessing to the suffering believer. The blessings come through the pipe where this is blessing or suffering. It does not matter what the outside climate is; great prosperity or great adversity. The justice of God still sends those blessings down the grace pipe no matter what the circumstances of life may be.

If the Carter administration got its way with everything, it would be the worst thing to happen to us. But will that deprive you of anything? Not at all. Doctrine will not be denied.

Job 5:12 He frustrates the devices of the crafty, so that their hands achieve no success.

No matter what you are, there are people who are not going to like you. You will learn that your happiness is not based upon everyone liking you. There are those who are highly critical of you. They maltreat you in every way. These are the crafty people.

Job 5:13 He catches the wise in their own craftiness, and the schemes of the wily are brought to a quick end.

Job 5:14 They meet with darkness in the daytime and grope at noonday as in the night.

By day, the conspirators think that they have got you, but night comes and they are confused.

Job 5:15 But he saves the needy from the sword of their mouth and from the hand of the mighty.

That sword is gossip and other verbal sins.

The tyrant is not an enlightened man, but he is an authority to himself. He takes away freedom, but he cannot destroy the blessing of the dictator.

Job 5:16 So the poor have hope, and injustice shuts her mouth.

The helpless must have confidence; but the others must shut their mouths.

Job 5:17 "Behold, blessed is the one whom God reproves; therefore despise not the discipline of the Almighty.

Do not despise the discipline of God. The positive believer uses rebound to keep short accounts and moves up the line.

Job 5:18 For he wounds, but he binds up; he shatters, but his hands heal.

These are the results of discipline and rebound.

Lesson #284

284 12/18/1977 Romans 8:7a; Job 5:19–27 Undeserved suffering in SG2 blessings; categories of disaster; divine timing of death

Job 5:19 He will deliver you from six troubles; in seven no evil shall touch you.

Job 5:20 In famine he will redeem you from death, and in war from the power of the sword.

Job 5:21 You shall be hidden from the lash of the tongue, and shall not fear destruction when it comes.

Job 5:22 At destruction and famine you shall laugh, and shall not fear the beasts of the earth.

This is not hysterical laughter.

The grizzly bear is an animal with a bad disposition.

Wolves are fine animals and they are monogamous for a lifetime.

Maximum adjustment to the justice of God means that we do not need to fear anyone.

Job 5:23 For you shall be in league with the stones of the field, and the beasts of the field shall be at peace with you.

In the Old Testament, stones were projected as missiles. Many systems to eject them. No military weapon will take you until it is your time. Only the integrity of God can transfer a believer from time to eternity.

Job 5:24 You shall know that your tent is at peace, and you shall inspect your fold and miss nothing.

Most people see death as their great fear.

Job 5:25 You shall know also that your offspring shall be many, and your descendants as the grass of the earth.

Job 5:26 You shall come to your grave in ripe old age, like a sheaf gathered up in its season.

Job 5:27 Behold, this we have searched out; it is true. Hear, and know it for your good.”

A reading of Romans 8 so far.

Romans 8:6 Consequently the thought pattern of the old sin nature is dead; but the thought pattern of the Spirit [Bible doctrine resident in the soul] is life [capacity for life] and prosperity.

We have approached blessing by means of a fortiori.

All the imputations of life are real except for two judicial ones. Our personal sins were imputed to Jesus Christ; and then His righteousness was imputed to us.

Human life antecedently belongs to the human soul. Eternal life is later imputed to regeneration.

If you think that the welfare state is wonderful and that Congress is doing a wonderful thing, then you are an enemy of the cross, even though you will spend eternity in heaven.

Romans 8:7 ...because the mind of the flesh is hostility toward God; for it is not subject to the Law of God, for not even can it be. (BLB)

Verse 7 – “Because the carnal mind is enmity against God.” The causal conjunction dioti (διότι) [pronounced dee-OAT-ee] plus the nominative singular subject phrónēma (φρόνημα) [pronounced FRON-ay-mah] which means “thought pattern,” plus the possessive genitive of sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx] used for the old sin nature, then ex-husband, the culprit of the first marriage. However, in the second marriage both Christ and the Holy Spirit as the marriage counselor are perfect, and the wife-believer in carnality or reversionism is always the culprit.

Then the predicate nominative echthra (ἐχθρα) [pronounced EHKH-thrah] which means hostile or enmity, plus the prepositional phrase eis (εἰς) [pronounced ICE] plus theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS], minus the definite article—“Because the thought pattern of the flesh [OSN] is hostile toward God.”

These principles are repeated in Lesson #292. Some of the notes below come from that lesson.

Principles of Romans 8:7a

1. The carnal believer is not the believer who sins but the sinning believer who rejects or neglects the rebound technique.
2. The carnal believer never rebounds, and therefore never recovers the filling of the Spirit, which is an absolute necessity for spirituality, as well as the mental attitude of winners. This is human viewpoint approach to life. You never hand anything to anyone. That destroys the great principle of mental attitude.
 - a. A monarchy is a no-nonsense kind of government.
 - b. There is not a bureaucracy in all of Washington that should not be eliminated.
 - c. Social security monies are used in a million ways to...
3. What you think is what you are. Without doctrine in the soul your thinking is hostile to God. This hostility of thinking can only be rectified by means of maximum doctrine resident in the soul.
4. There are three categories of thinking which are hostile to God:
 - a. Sin. Mental attitude sins are hostile thinking toward God—arrogance, jealousy, bitterness, hatred, fear, worry, implacability, vindictiveness, guilt complex, etc.;
 - b. Human good (Christian service organizations); little goody-good thoughts. Let’s organize something like a third party. A 3rd party is a human good idea and this always siphons off conservative votes.
 - c. The function of evil which combines with good to form the policy of Satan in the rulership of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the ruler of life.

285 12/18/1977 Romans 8; Psalm 23:1 [PSALM 23 SPECIAL, lessons 285–291]
Permanence of imputed divine blessings in spite of the failure of the believer; The Shepherd and sheep

Still working on Romans 8:6–7

Life and peace both mistranslated from the last time we were here.

Six categories of blessing.

Factor 2 is imputations. It takes two judicial imputations to provide us with a real imputation. Factor 1 is Adam's original sin; factor 2 is the old sin nature. We are born facsimiles of Adam.

At salvation, eternal life is imputed to regeneration.

A fortiori and the prosperity factor.

All personal sins were imputed to Jesus Christ; and when we believe in Jesus Christ, God's perfect righteousness is imputed to us at salvation.

When David hooked up with Bathsheba, he was a mature believer. But he did not lose his blessings from paragraph SG2. David has social and sexual prosperity. He had been promoted to the top of the military. After the smoke had cleared, David was still a great general.

We do not receive blessings because of the things that we do. We are blessed with maximum doctrine resident in the soul resulting in blessings from God.

David's beloved son is talked into a revolution against him. The blessings that we receive are parlayed into eternal blessings.

The Outline of Psalm 23

1. Promise of
2. Power of the word and the power of the Spirit
3. The security of phase 2 for the mature believer. No matter how great the crisis.
4. The warrior, the king and the guest. V. 5?
5. The pursuit of grace in time and maturity.

The Lord Is My Shepherd

Psalm 23 superscription A Psalm of David.

Psalm 23:1 The LORD is my shepherd; I shall not want. (ESV)

Y^ehowah refers to One Member of the Trinity. To the mature believer, Jesus Christ is Savior, Lord and our Shepherd. John 10:10–11 (life and abundance of life). Hebrews 13:20–21 Jesus is called the great Shepherd. May the Lord equip you in all intrinsic good; we are equipped to execute His will. The good Shepherd laying down His life for the sheep is the first judicial imputation. This sets up the a fortiori approach to blessings in time at the point of maturity.

A third category of the Lord as to the Chief Shepherd. If the greater is provided by the justice of God in time, then it follows that the less will not be withheld.

Romans 8:28 and Psalm 23:1 both belong to the mature believer.

Psalm 23:1a The Lord is the One \(constantly\) shepherding me.

Believers as Sheep

1. This implies that believers are sheep. All believers are analogous to sheep.
2. Sheep are helpless and dependent upon the shepherd.
3. Because the sheep are helpless, the shepherd provides, protects preserves and prospers.
4. There are seven areas of sheep helplessness. Each area is analogous to our helplessness before the Lord Jesus Christ.
 - a. Sheep cannot guide themselves. A cat and a dog both have a built in gyro, and they know where they are. You can drive a dog out to the country, drop him off, and he will come home. A sheep can get lost in his own meadow.
 - b. A sheep cannot clean himself. Bob wondered why sheep always stank. They don't clean themselves. Dogs clean themselves in many ways. Sheep won't do anything like that. The shepherd must clean the sheep; analogous to the rebound technique.
 - c. A sheep is helpless when injured. A dog or a cat will lick his own wounds. The injured sheep will just lie down and die.
 - d. A sheep is defenseless. The tooth, the claw, jaw muscles. The large dogs are not the toughest dogs. Pit bulls are extremely strong. Speed helps other animals. The ability to camouflage is another protection for some animals.
 - e. A sheep cannot find food or water by himself. The shepherd must lead him to grazing ground or to water. Without this, sheep would eat the poison darnel weed.
 - f. Sheep are easily frightened and are soothed by the voice of shepherd or to music.
 - g. The wool of the sheep belongs to the shepherd.

Negative lô' (אֵל or אֹל) [pronounced low], which means not, no. Strong's #3808 BDB #518. + châçêr (רָחַק) [pronounced khaw-SEHR], which means, to lack, to need, to be lacking, to decrease. In Strong's #2637 BDB #341.

Psalm 23:1 The Lord is the One (constantly) shepherding me. I cannot lose [anything] [or, I cannot lose anything].

Summary Points

1. Like Romans 8:28, this passage applies to the mature believer. David left in a hurry, just his sword, a mule and some food. He is a mature believer; the wealthiest man in the world. Now in a state where he appears to lose everything. Whatever God has imputed to us will remain with us. I cannot lack anything; I cannot lose anything. You may have a great disaster or perhaps two of them. And we will understand it from Romans 8:18–30. David would be temporarily separated from his palace and he would be without the things of happiness in his life. Even though he does not have them now, God is preserving them for David. You never lose the Lord and you never lose anything gotten by imputation.
2. While David has lost at the moment of his retreat everything, in reality, he has lost nothing. He cannot lack anything. He cannot lose anything.
3. This is the temporal security. Whatever flows down the grace pipeline cannot be lost.
4. David had previously failed the Lord in the affair with Bathsheba.
5. David did not lose his great wealth, his great crown. When the smoke cleared, all of his imputations were intact.
6. What flows through the grace pipeline cannot be cancelled by man's failures. As long as we live, we will continue to sin. We receive 36 things at salvation. We cannot lose those things.
- 7.
8. These blessings cannot be rescinded by human good, evil, sin; etc. This is illustrated by Abraham and Hagar. He was disciplined but he did not lose any of his blessings.

The dynamics of maturity. There is the Word and the Spirit. The dynamics and the means of obtaining the dynamic. The first one is Bible doctrine; the means of attaining maturity is daily gap. The second dynamic in v. 3. Never confuse means and results.

1977 Romans

Lesson #286

286 12/19/1977 Romans 8:6; Psalm 23:2–3a Battle of the Bulge; security of and capacity for divine blessing; +H in adversity

23 years ago this month that the Germans began their counter-offensive. They picked up some of Montgomery's comments so their objective was to break through the British and American armies at their weakest spot. Only one G2 knew where this was coming. The Germans concentrated a quarter of a million men; they hid a huge amount of weaponry behind the forest. This was the greatest failure in intelligence. Totally undetected. A capture of 9000 Americans. The battle became a fight for key roads and villages. The 3rd day of the Ardennes offensive and 9000 men were captured; our worst showing in any battle.

One guy, who was not every identified, held off the entire German army from a house; he had tons of ammo and firearms.

David was at a low point, being forced out of his city and into the desert-wilderness of Judah. He made three stops and he wrote a psalm at each psalm 23, 27, and 63 (right before organizing to respond). David was driven out of Jerusalem as a mature believer and apparently all was lost.

David lost his friends, his loved ones, many in his military. But, in truth, he had not lost anything. This real imputation is secure, based upon 2 judicial imputations.

If the justice of God can accomplish the greater, it follows a fortiori that the justice of God can provide the less. The function of Christ as the chief shepherd.

Psalm 23:1 The Lord is the One (constantly) shepherding me. I cannot lose [anything] [or, I cannot lose anything].

David, at this point, is suffering undeserved.

Psalm 23:2 He makes me lie down in green pastures. He leads me beside still waters. (ESV)

The Hiphil imperfect of râbats (רָבַט) [pronounced raw^b-VAHTS], which means to stretch oneself out, to lie down, to recline, to settle upon. Strong's #7257 BDB #918. In the Hiphil, we are caused to lay down. Many times when people are petty, it comes from fear. The picture is a sheep in a pasture, relaxed, well-fed, and free from fear.

nâ'âh (נֶאֱחָ) [pronounced naw-AW], which means pastures, meadows; obviously a pleasant piece of land. Strong's #4999 BDB #627. In choice fields.

In pastures of choice food, He causes me to lay down.

Piel of nâhal (נָהַל) [pronounced naw-HAHL], which means to lead, to guide to a watering place; to guard, to provide for, to sustain. Strong's #5095 BDB #624.

Noun in masculine plural construct waters of. m^enûwchâh (מְנוּחָה) [pronounced m^e-noo-KHAH], which means rest, resting place, place of rest, quietness. Strong's #4496 BDB #629. Also comfort, refreshment. The mature believer does not relax in the material blessings of life but confidence and assurance in historical disaster.

This revolution was led by the son whom David loved. The inner resource of any disaster, turning suffering into the greatest possible blessing.

Psalm 23:2 In pastures of choice food, He causes me to lay down. He leads me to waters of comfort (and refreshment) [= the refreshment of Bible doctrine in the soul] in adversity and disaster.

Points on Psalm 23:2

1. The inner happiness during adversity continues just as in times of prosperity when you are a mature believer. You have the same doctrine; you still being supported by the Lord.
2. While this flight from Jerusalem seemed to indicate that David lost everything; but there were two months, and two months of fantastic blessing. Absalom was very much like his father. But Absalom did not have the Bible doctrine in his soul or leadership dynamics. He had a fantastic personality. He was handsome, talented and smart. He was complimented and flattered and he could not take it. He was chosen to lead the conspiracy against his father.
- 3.
- 4.
5. David was fleeing for his life. He still had the blessings from the two judicial imputations.
6. For the moment, David lost all his visible blessings, but he continued with the spiritual blessings. The two judicial imputations which provided the real imputation of blessing in time.
7. Since everything in life is a detail, having or not having is not a consequence. People make the mistake of counting on the wrong thing in life for happiness. You cannot count on friendship for happiness. What makes them truly wonderful to the believer is the capacity for friendship and happiness; and human integrity. When you have human integrity; you may have things today and enjoy them. You may lose them tomorrow, and you still have the blessing from God.

David is down to barebones, and there is no panic button being pressed. And when David gets back and he will have a ball. Nothing is lost even when you have lost everything, to the mature believer (not you, the mature believer). When you get to maturity, you cannot lose. Abraham has a mature believer lied and got out of a jam. He did not lose anything; in fact, he gained.

When Abraham put his son on the altar, he did not lose his son; but we gained from that. You do not lose when you are a mature believer. You gain. The reason is because this blessing to the mature believer comes from the justice of God down the grace pipeline. Remember that this is encapsulated. The real imputation of divine blessing from the justice of God to the righteousness of God. Having or not having is inconsequential. The source of blessing is always there.

The widow who gave the two mites; the money is gone, but the source is still there.

Psalm 23:3 He restores my soul. He leads me in paths of righteousness for his name's sake. (ESV)

Pilel imperfect of shûwb (שׁוּב) [pronounced shoo^bv]; which means to return, to turn, to turn back, to reminisce, to restore something, to bring back something, to revive, to recover something, to make restitution. Strong's #7725 BDB #996.

The soul is the battleground. If we are going to learn doctrine, we must confess our sins. God is faithful and just to forgive that sin because it has already been judged.

Only the restored soul (by rebound) can appreciate Bible doctrine.

Hiphil imperfect of nâchâh (נָחַח) [pronounced naw-KHAH], which means to lead, to guide. Other meanings: to lead forth, to lead back. Strong's #5148 BDB #634.

ma^egâl (מָגַל) [pronounced mah^g-GAWL], which means entrenchment, track, rut [wherein a wheel revolves]; a way; a course of action. Strong's #4570 BDB #722. This can also mean wheel ruts made in the ground.

Some Points

1. Imputed righteousness at salvation is the basis for our blessing at maturity. This allows God to bless us at maturity.
2. It takes two judicial imputations in order to provide us with the imputation of blessing. Most imputations are real. Only two are judicial. A real imputation has two things which have a natural affinity for one another. A real imputation is the thing imputed and where it goes to. Those are the two factors. Human life imputed to the divinely prepared soul. Adam's original sin imputed to its target or home the old sin nature.
3. The first judicial imputation finds the justice of God imputing all the sins of the world to Jesus Christ on the cross. There is no natural affinity between the thing imputed and what it is imputed to. There is no natural affinity between the perfection of Jesus Christ and the sins which are poured out on Him. Our personal sins do not belong on Christ. Only two judicial imputations.
4. The second judicial imputation places divine righteousness with the believer at the moment of salvation. There is no natural home in us for God's righteousness. All divine blessing must go to that home.
5. Therefore, at salvation the greater in a fortiori blessing from the justice of God is accomplished through the imputation of divine righteousness.
6. The judicial imputation of divine righteousness is called justification. All imputations are real except for two.
7. Two judicial imputations combine to make one real imputation of blessing at maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
8. The greater in the a fortiori has been given. Therefore the less occurs... There is a real imputation at salvation. Imputation of divine blessing at maturity to our righteousness.
9. If the justice of God provides the greater at salvation, it follows that the justice of God will provide the less at maturity. The real imputation...

10. The best things which happen to us in life glorify God. These blessings are real imputations from the justice of God to the righteousness of God.
11. God had to accomplish the greater first; the two judicial imputations which precede blessing to our imputed righteousness.
12. We trade in our personal sins for the perfect righteousness of God.
13. Greater in a fortiori refers to degree of effort. Not a reference to quality or quantity.
14. Capacity for blessing comes from resultant maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
15. The divine support of logistical grace.
16. Many wonderful things come from food, shelter and clothing. Until you crack the maturity barrier, it is all logistical grace.
17. These often appear to be blessings, but they are not to be compared to the true concept of blessing, which comes from the justice of God to the righteousness of God to the mature believer.
18. The judicial imputation of righteousness puts us off balance. We must be weighted down with divine blessing. That will straighten us out.
19. Because such blessings originate from the justice of God, they are withheld until the believer attains maturity.
20. Blessing without capacity equals misery. At maturity, capacity is ready for the blessing.

There is no affinity between God's blessing and prayer, or tithing, or any system of self-righteousness or sacrifice.

"Stand up and tell the person behind you that you love them." That is the stupidest thing to take place anywhere. There are a whole lot of Christians that Bob does not want to love him personally.

The first imputation is necessary for the second to occur. If the justice of God accomplished the greater at salvation, + the imputation of divine righteousness at the moment that we believe. If God accomplished the greater, the combination of to the two judicial imputations = justification, which means blessing at a future date.

David left everything behind except his sword and his fatigues; but when he gets back, all of these things will still be there. He has the source; and what he received as a mature believer was the result of God's blessing to the righteousness in David. God does not give from love; He gives from His righteousness.

We are blessed for being God but because of God's work on the cross. Bob whispers, "Just because we know there is no Santa Claus." Bob says, have an Easter egg hunt, even though you are involved in a fertility celebration.

1977 Romans

Lesson #288

288 12/21/1977 Romans 8:6; Psalm 23:4a Battle of the Bulge: St. Vith; you die alone; no fear in supergrace; concept of divine integrity

Very cold and then a week of constant fog. Ardennes is a heavily forested region with very few roads. They were suddenly hit with a Russian high, and the temperature dived before zero. Many American soldiers froze to death.

There was a hub that the Germans needed to take immediately. They were completely surrounded, 9000 surrendered, 3000 or so killed. A few towns that the Germans took; and they were unable to take a town because there was a resistance put up in Saint Vith. So many unsung heroes at San Vi. It happened on Christmas or in that time generally.

4 regiments. Usually 5000-6000 men in a regiment. Then called combat commands, A, B and R (reserve). At one time, there were so many people retreating, in order to come through, they would shoot anyone on the road to come into San Vi.

The Battle of St. Vith was an engagement in Belgium fought during the Allied advance from Paris to the Rhine in World War II. It was one of several battles on December 16, 1944 constituting the opening of Germany's Ardennes counteroffensive (more commonly known as the "Battle of the Bulge"). (From Wikipedia)

9000 prisoners did not have a change and Bob blames a guy named James. On 20 December, a regiment came up. Every attack the Germans attempted was stopped.

This saved 25,000 others. The Germans needed St. Vith in order to supply everyone, and that was the only way to get it all there. One barrage was said to take out 1500 men. One of the most effective barrages of the entire war. The Germans were driven back. Two tank destroyer outfits held off a large number of Germans. And this was followed by the greatest snowstorm ever.

The famous goose egg salien(?). There were people from all kinds of organizations. Two men were then able to hold off the entire German army after being given 24 hours. It is because of men like that, dealing with incredible cold that we don't know, which allows us to enjoy our freedom.

The first three verses read.

Psalm 23:4 Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for you are with me; your rod and your staff, they comfort me. \(ESV\)

The two judicial imputations which are the basis of all the blessing that we receive.

It is a valley overshadowed by death; it is the valley that we take when we are dying. No two of us are going to go the same way. But we will all die. Some valleys are valleys of discipline for the believer. It is always a dangerous painful thing.

Psalm 23:4a When I walk in a valley overshadowed by death, I cannot fear evil...

The reversionistic believer has the low crawl through ground glass.

We have recently studied that, when it is the Lord's time to take us, then we go. One of these days, we will review evil.

Points on Psalm 23:4a

1. When it is time to die, no one can go with the believer. The believer goes alone. Bob knew people who could not stand to be alone. They have no capacity for life. All of us must face some things alone. The real person is who we are alone. Bob has given up explaining how much is involved when preparing for teaching. Great mental fatigue that no one understands unless they have been there. Certain things in life must be done alone. Going alone through that valley can be the greatest experience of life. This can only be done alone. Of course there are people who will mourn you; who are sympathetic. But you have to do your own dying. You also must do your own living.
 - a. The real you, what you are in your soul, must travel alone in life. Most human relationship is based upon physical attraction, prominence attraction, one of the biggest traps in life. It is the soul which really counts. You miss a great deal by not discovering that a person has a soul. Look for the person who can express their soul.
2. Everyone must travel alone. But the Christian has no fear.

3. Friends and loved ones cannot travel in this valley until it is their time. They cannot walk with you.
4. Dying is a time of being alone. David is going it alone.
5. There is a separation from friends and loved ones, their responsibility is to continue to live. Ours is to go through the valley of death.
6. For the mature believer, doctrine is his constant companion in life, and as soon as loved ones are behind, the Lord begins to walk through the valley with the Lord. In this way, he is the exception.
7. The reason for no fear is given in the next phrase. The mature believer is the exception to dying. Just as he receives great blessing, so he receives great blessing in the dying of category #5.

Bob thinks of so many people who died at Ardennes, who were isolated, alone, and yet they stood their ground. They continue in their missions. Anyone can look good in a crowd.

Because + the 2nd singular masculine pronoun. This refers to One Person, the Lord Jesus Christ; He is the companion for every mature believer. The third word is a preposition. It has a 1st person singular suffix.

Psalm 23:4a When I walk in a valley overshadowed by death, I cannot fear evil because You are with me...

In order for Jesus to die for our sins, He had to be alone. Since we are condemned by only one sin, the sin of Adam, those sins are free to place on the Lord Jesus Christ.

God's integrity is reviewed, which is found also back in Lesson #108.

1977 Romans

Lesson #289

289 12/22/1977 Romans 8:6; Psalm 23:4b Temporary target for imputation; SG2 believer's temporary loss of blessing enhances them

Last week, Jack Treadwell departed from the scene. Given the medal of honor.

A real imputation requires us to have God's righteousness. Without this, our life would have no meaning and no definition. God imputes human life when the fetus emerges from the womb. You have done nothing to gain human life; and you will not lose it.

If the target is not divinely prepared, it can be removed. Human life has an affinity for the soul. There was not an old sin nature until Adam sinned. His sin is the basis for our condemnation. We are not condemned by God for failing or for our sins or for being imperfect.

Condemning us at birth was the best thing. We were in Adam when we sinned. We are made up of those chromosomes created in the garden. You do not have to commit a sin in your life in order to be condemned.

You can never say, I was the worst sinner in town, but now I am saved and have shed all of my bad habits. Personal sin is only an issue to One Person in human history. All of our sins were poured out in Jesus Christ. There is no natural affinity between our sins; so the imputation had to be judicial.

God's righteousness, a standard that we could never meet, half of His divine integrity, is judicially imputed to us. God went to a lot of trouble to save us and to bless us. Way more than we are worth. The prong on the sheep thing is used to guide them into blessing.

Psalm 23:4 Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for you are with me; your rod [discipline] and your staff, they comfort me. (ESV)

Psalm 23:4 When I walk in a valley overshadowed by death, I cannot fear evil because You are with me; your rod [discipline] and your staff, they comfort me.

Comments on Psalm 23:4

1. Anything that comes from the justice of God is wonderful or painful.
2. This principle is intensified with the mature believer.
3. This is the application of Romans 8:28, which is for mature believers.
4. David wrote these words during one of the worst times in his life. He was the greatest soldier of his day. He was a king.
5. David, at this low point, was comforted by all things working together for good. God's plan is greater than anything in life. It is greater than any suffering. In the plan of God, we can always ride the crest of the wave.
6. All imputations are permanent and secure. God's plan is greater than any disaster of life.
7. God's justice manifests itself in discipline or in deliverance is greater...
8. Whether dying or living, there is great security in our relationship with the integrity of God.
9. Therefore, the integrity of God is greater than anything in life. The more doctrine that we take in, the more we become aware of God's integrity.

We have one or two catastrophes in life, which supercharges us when it comes to moving toward maturity. Undeserved suffering in the believer's life is designed for the blessing of the believer. For the mature believer only, all things work together for good.

When David comes back, his son Absalom will be dead, but David will have greater blessing than ever before.

Now, a lot of believers in Berachah are not alone, but filled with friends and loved ones; and there are others and they will be alone for Christmas.

When God takes away someone by death or removes something by adversity, then you need to wake up and realize that God's plan is greater than anything in our lives.

When you lose some of your blessings, you develop appreciation for them. You may lose some things, but you do not lose the Lord. If we receive any blessing from Psalm 23, then this blessing comes to us from 3000 years ago. No matter what, you always have the Lord, no matter what has been removed from you. If some things are removed, you have not lost anything, the source is always there. We cannot lose the source. That is impossible. There are too many imputations to lose the source.

Lesson #290

290 12/23/1977 Romans 8:6; Psalm 23:5a Battle of the Bulge: Bergdorf; banquet table from Bible doctrine in the soul; background for David's undeserved suffering

We are studying the last two words: capacity and prosperity in Romans 8:6.

Don't come to Bob with your problems or for sympathy.

Large river between Germany and Luxemburg; the Sauer River, the town of Bergdorf; a resort town, a beautiful area. The G2 knew everything going on in this little sector. There was only one company, 4th infantry division. On D day, the Germans chose Bergdorf as their first objective. There were four outposts. Germans knocked out three outposts.

F company was on its own. They took the strongest hotel, which had a deep basement and cellar and he put everything in there, 60 men. No anti-tank weapons, no bazookas, etc. When confused, attack. Germans blasted the hotel with everything. The Americans came out the next morning. Just as the fog began to lift, they were strafed. Germans dug in and made a night attack and they finally blew a big hole in one of the walls. Germans charged, but they were pushed back. They opened up a sealed wall where some of the finest wines were there.

They held up the Germans for 4.5 days. Germans were all around everywhere. A fresh company came in and recovered Bergdorf. This was done Christmas Eve.

While our freedoms are eroding from corrupt politicians; these brave men gave us these freedoms.

First four verses read:

The verb means to prepare a banquet table. To the face of me; which means before me.

There is a table for a banquet. There is undeserved suffering; and this provides great prosperity in time of great adversity, great catastrophe.

Psalm 23:5 You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies; you anoint my head with oil; my cup overflows. (ESV)

Psalm 23:5 You have prepared before me a (banquet) table in the presence of my enemies...

David has terrible enemies on every side; and yet, everything has been prepared for him in eternity past.

Physical life and spiritual death at the same time. The justice of God cannot bless until there is first condemnation followed by the imputation of God's righteousness. We are born condemned at birth so that we might be blessed in this life. We are left alive in order to receive the imputations about which David is writing. God went to a lot of work in order to provide a lot of blessing for us.

Like David, we suddenly have a terrible catastrophe that wipes everything out. We still have the source of our blessing and we still have our future.

Background for David's situation; maturity adjustment to the justice of God. Two judicial imputations resulting in a real imputation from the justice of God. We do not earn it or deserve it. It is not what we do that receives these blessings. Our blessings are secure because of the real imputation. The second factor gives us our security. It is never what we do; it is what God does. No one receives any blessing from God for tithing, or witnessing, or cross mountains to witness to the natives; but you will never be blessed. Even with facts, you cannot assemble them. David is a mature believer, but he is driven out from Jerusalem. David still has the source; and he is blessed with great wealth; but he did not bring it with him. Temporarily, David has lost his throne and his wives. The doctrine was the source of his maturity adjustment to the justice of God. To promote without capacity is punishment. Capacity must precede blessing. The table is filled with doctrine. This is not a literal table. The table is in his soul.

The believer must have the table in order to enjoy this blessing. The table represents David's maturity prosperity. But he is in an historical and personal crisis. Doctrine is David's life and his capacity for life. Such adversity is a part of Romans 8:28 for the mature believer only. All things work together for the mature believer; not for the carnal believer and not for the reversionistic believer and not for the immature believer.

The combination of all of these things will provide David with the greatest blessing that he has ever known. At the moment, David is minus all of the blessings which he used to have; but the table filled with doctrine is still there.

The first analogy is prosperity. Two more analogies to go.

291 12/25/1977 Romans 8:6; Psalm 23:5b–6 Battle of the Bulge: Bastogne; David's temporary separation from SG2 blessings

Team SNAFU. Bob told a story of a great Christmas fight; one of the most magnificent fights of all time, like Trenton in 1779 (?).

The last two words are all about capacity for life and prosperity. We are developing the concept of prosperity.

Analogy to the soldier. The table represents David's great material prosperity. Secondly, that analogy to the king. You anoint my head with oil.

Psalm 23:5 You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies; you anoint my head with oil; my cup overflows. (ESV)

Piel stem of dâshên (דָּשַׁן) [pronounced daw-SHANE], which means to be fat, to become fat, to grow fat. Strong's #1878 BDB #206. Then oil + my head. Absalom was the leader of a revolution at that time. This is the story of a legitimate function being challenged. David loved Absalom as a chip off the old block; but Absalom would die because he had to die. David was never a loser, even though he lost his beloved son.

The table prepared belongs to the mature believer only. David had received his spiritual blessings; and the material blessings (great general and king); social and sexual prosperity; and all of them due to doctrine in his soul.

Every mature believer has one or two great disasters. David is suffering from the Absalom revolution. Temporarily, David has lost his castle, his crown, friends, his position. David learns out in the desert that all the blessings from the justice of God, which flow from His justice to His righteousness. Every blessing of SG2 is undeserved. David did not earn these blessings. There is nothing that he did to earn any of this.

Part of his blessing was being promoted to king. No revolution, no failure, no conspiracy will remove David from his position of authority.

The word for cup is a special one. This is a golden or silver goblet; a cup only for the finest of wines. This was first an empty cup, but now it is filled to capacity. The table is the blessings given to David; and the cup represents his capacity for blessing.

Believers can be miles apart. What is in the soul makes all the difference in the world. There is no verb here, an ellipsis. r^evâyâh (רָוַיַּח) [pronounced r^evaw-YAW], which means saturated, running over, an abundance [of drink]; a drinking of one's fill. Strong's #7310 BDB #924. If you do not have the capacity, all the blessings mean very little.

Psalm 23:5 You have prepared before me a (banquet) table in the presence of my enemies; you have anointed with oil my head; my cup is overflowing.

The Table and the Cup

1. The table of the soldier is the real imputation of divine blessing to the soldier.
2. The times of suffering.
3. The overflowing cup of the guest represents capacity.
4. In the last analogy, we have a host, Who is the Lord Jesus Christ, Who is the good shepherd, the great shepherd.

Blessing in time; blessing in eternity. Under the laws of hospitality. It does not matter who the guest is; it matters who the host is. Nothing depends upon us. Hospitality is not determined by the nature of the guests. One of the true signs of a gentleman is being a good host is being hospitable, no matter how bad the guests are. Most people think that having the right guest makes the perfect party, but the key is the host (s).

After salvation, we are left behind, here to represent Him as ambassadors. The imputation of blessing does not depend upon the guests but it does upon the host. It is always in true hospitality the host. David will not love his table or his cup.

Three armies are in pursuit of David right now.

Psalm 23:6 Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of the LORD forever. \(ESV\)

Concluding this psalm.

A fortiori logic is what David concentrates on. As the justice of God has provided blessing and prosperity in time; he sees future blessing and reward.

It takes suffering and disaster for the believer to renew and appreciate the Source of all these blessings.

Psalm 23:6 Only prosperity and grace shall pursue me all the days of my life and I will live prosperously in the house of the Lord forever.

Lesson #292

292 12/25/1977 Romans 8:7a Patton, General Creighton Abrams; biblical form of government; three categories of thought hostile to God

Officer came to Patton to tell him what the Germans were going to do. He was so accurate, a plan was developed to go north and hit the Germans.

All the supplies were being sent to Montgomery rather than to Patton. Patton suffered all kinds of shortages. Five months of continual fighting. A tremendous high morale. Their tracks and mortars all worn. Most of the tanks had more mileage than anyone expected them to go; and most overhauled twice. Stone houses in that region were natural for fortifications. Patton had learned to appreciate the superiority of the German armor.

Intense fighting ensued. Casualties were unbelievable. Creighton Abrams was a great man, with great battle courage and great honor off the battlefield. It is the courtesy of him that we have the blessing of studying the Word of God.

They were outgunned and out-tanked by the Germans.

Romans 8:7 ...because the mind of the flesh is hostility toward God; for it is not subject to the Law of God, for not even can it be.

Romans 8:7a Because the thought pattern of the flesh is hostile toward God...

Points given for this back in Lesson #284.

1977 Romans

Lesson #293

293 12/26/1977 Romans 8:7b Battle of the Bulge: Abrams; right mental attitude respects authority; insubordination to divine policy.

The Battle of the Bulge was fought this time, great blizzard, one of the worst ever for this area. More background given here.

Human good thought patterns; and add to that the thinking of evil.

Romans 8:7 ...because the mind of the flesh is hostility toward God; for it is not subject to the Law of God, for not even can it be. (BLB)

“for it is not subject to the law of God” – the explanatory use of the postpositive conjunctive particle gar is used as an explanation. The explanation combines what we have seen in mental attitude with the principle behind good mental attitude. Says Proverbs says, “What you think is what you are.” The key word to mental attitude is the believer’s concept of authority, his response to authority. It comes up in the present passive indicative of the verb hupotassō (ὑποτάσσω) [pronounced hoop-ot-AS-so] plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]—“For it is not subordinate.” The thought pattern of the old sin nature is hostile toward God because it has rejected authority.

The Word of God demands respect. Authority is key everywhere. Authority is the key to an aggressive mental attitude.

The present tense is retroactive progressive present denoting what has begun in the past with either carnality or reversionism and continues into the present time. The carnal or the reversionistic believer receives the action of the verb. With the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo] it refers to a continual insubordination to divine policy. The indicative mood is declarative representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

Great authority orientation with a song leader who deserves respect and gets it. Professional musicians have come in and said it is the greatest singing anywhere. Bob is watching those with a bad mental attitude toward the song leader.

Principle: This insubordination to divine policy is based upon both neglect of rebound and negative volition toward Bible doctrine. The status of carnality and reversionism is insubordination to the ultimate in authority—God’s authority Himself. Insubordination in one area always overflows to other areas. Reversionistic or carnal believers are disoriented to life through rejection of or resistance to authority.

Justice and righteousness is the basic system; based upon absolute authority on both ends. God runs through this pipeline certain kinds of adversity. David was far better off than he ever was before.

God does not bless people on the basis of bribery. We cannot break through pipeline of blessing.

“the law of God” – the dative singular indirect object from the noun nomos (νόμος) [pronounced NOHM-oss], which sometimes means law and sometimes means principle. Here it refers to policy. It is divine policy that is mentioned here. Bible doctrine is God’s policy.

Divine policy begins the moment that we are born. Imputations. The justice of God cannot bless unless it first condemns. A judicial imputation only has one factor; it does not belong to the person to whom the factor is being imputed. All divine blessing goes from the justice of God to the righteousness of God.

The church has no right to shake you down for a dime.

God has a policy. People think if they just do certain things, God is going to bless them. The justice of God is key; the love of God is not.

The policy is not ours, it belongs to God for we have a possessive genitive from the noun theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]—“of God.”

To give us things when we lack the capacity would be somewhat of a curse.

The imputation of righteousness to us is permanent; the imputation of eternal life is permanent.

If God can provide the greater, which is the imputation of eternal life to the person who believes; it follows that He can provide blessings to the believer in time.

This does not eliminate production from the plan of God; but it increases the quality of production.

Romans 8:7 Because the thought pattern of the old sin nature is hostile toward God, because it is not subordinate to the policy of God.

Principle

1. Doctrine reveals the plan of God.
2. Doctrine provides the basis for executing the plan of God.
3. The believer must be subordinated to doctrine or he cannot fulfil the plan of God.
4. Without doctrine in the frontal lobe the believer cannot be guided by God.
5. Without doctrine in the right lobe the believer cannot grow spiritually, cannot advance to the objective, and cannot be blessed by God.

Through lack of Bible doctrine in the soul the believer not only fails to attain the objective of the Christian life in spiritual maturity, but at the same time becomes the actual enemy of God during his life time. Might be involved in the emotional revolt of the tongues movement. Mixed up and confused.

1977 Romans

Lesson #294

294 12/27/1977 Romans 8:8 Battle of the Bulge: "Monty"; issue of means for pleasing God; reversionism cf. carnality

17December 1944 reference to the German attack. Hitler crony was a drunk and not too bright. The army next to him was much better commanded. When Montgomery was put in charge, he made a mess of it. He was one of the most cautious persons to come along. We should never put any American soldier under the command of any foreign general. Monty is a poor soldier and petty and vindictive.

You are going to run into very self righteous Christians and mostly do not have any idea why they are still here. Easy to become distracted or bringing up false issues.

Romans 8:8 And those being in the flesh are not able to please God. (BLB)

Verse 8 – this brings us to the inability and the incompetence of the carnal and reversionistic thought pattern. Nothing is more incompetent than the thought pattern of reversionism. “So then they that are in the flesh” – the transitional use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de should be translated “Moreover.”

The nominative plural from the definite article is used as a personal pronoun, “they.” The present active participle from the verb to be, eimi (εἰμί) [pronounced eye-ME], “Moreover they who are.” The progressive present signifies action in progress, linear aktionsart in present time. The active voice: both carnal and reversionistic believers produce the action of the verb. The participle is circumstantial.

Then the prepositional phrase, en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx], referring to the old sin nature—“in the flesh.” “Moreover they who are in the old sin nature.”

Points

1. This phrase refers to both carnal and reversionistic believers under the authority of the ex-husband, the old sin nature. The carnal and the reversionistic believer can be defined as those who continue to recognize the authority of the OSN after being divorced from it. The ex keeps trying to insert himself into your life.
2. This phrase could (but it doesn't here because the believer is in view) refer to the unbeliever who is also said to be “in the in the flesh.” It is true that the unbeliever is still married to the old sin nature. The unbeliever, then, is under the policy of good and evil, under the authority of the old sin nature who function is good and evil.
3. The unbeliever is in the flesh, or under the authority of the old sin nature, through the marriage that took place at birth. The real imputation of life to the soul followed by the imputation of Adam's sin to the sin nature.
4. In view here, however, is the believer. The carnal of reversionistic believer is under the control of the old sin nature because he has neglected the filling of the Spirit and he has neglected or rejected the teaching of Bible doctrine by his right pastor.

Do you prove to the unbeliever that you are a witness to him by being better than him or being in some sort of competition with him. We are here to glorify Jesus Christ. Bob is teaching how to please God, approaching from the negative side.

“cannot please God” – present passive indicative of dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahee] with the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo], “not able.” The present tense of dunamai (δύναμαι) [pronounced DOO-nam-ahee] is a static present, it represents a condition as perpetually existing. In other words, as long as the believer is under the control of the old sin nature, following the trend toward sin, evil or human good, there is no way that he can please God. The passive voice: this is a deponent verb which is passive in form but active in meaning. It means here that the carnal or reversionistic believer is producing the action of the verb. Both are under the control of the sin nature, the ex-husband. The indicative mood is declarative, representing the verbal action from the viewpoint of reality.

With this is an aorist active infinitive of the verb aréskō (ἀρέσκω) [pronounced ar-EHS-koh] which means to please or be pleasing. The aorist tense is a constative aorist which gathers into one entirety the action of the verb. The active voice: in this passage it is the carnal or reversionistic believer producing the action of the verb, though in principle the same thing applies to the unbeliever. The infinitive is an actual result infinitive.

Then the dative of indirect object from theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS]. Theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] is anarthrous here, emphasizing the quality of the person mentioned.

It is always the imperfect ones who are hard to please. God is easy to please. We are responsible to a perfect God. Bible doctrine teaches us the same way. We are left in this life to please God. Pleasing God is a part of glorifying God. To please God, you must be perfect like God is.

So how do we, as imperfect creatures, please a perfect God? The two kinds of imputations. For a real imputation, there are two factors: what is imputed and to where it is imputed.

We are disciplined for the sins that we commit; but we are not condemned for those sins. The original sin is imputed to us.

If we are going to please God, we must have something perfect to please Him with. When we were given His righteousness, that becomes our chance. When that target is filled with the blessings of SG2.

We have been left here to please a perfect God. A perfect God has to be pleased with perfection; but we do have His perfection.

Human life is designed so that the justice of God can bless us in time; and eternal life is designed so that we can be blessed in eternity, above and beyond. God is not sloppy in His thinking He thinks categorically. We cannot please God by prayer, by other mechanics; but they are not the way to please God. If a soldier obeys orders, that is what he is expected to do. But if he does above and beyond that, that pleases his commander.

We are given rebound in order that we can recover the filling of the Holy Spirit; and that puts us back on track.

Romans 8:8 Moreover they who are in the flesh [under the authority of the sin nature] are not able to please God.

1977 Romans

Lesson #295

295 12/28/1977 Romans 8:8 Battle of the Bulge: CMHs; American aggressiveness; distractions from Bible doctrine; means for pleasing God

Bob describes another battle from this time. It was a citation. A man who loved machine gunning.

It takes something perfect in order to please God. It requires two judicial imputations.

Pleasing God

1. In order to please God, this must be done in a nonmeritorious way. This is done by imputations. No legitimate function commanded by the Word of God can penetrate the grace pipeline. Not by prayer or witnessing. The result of blessing from God to a mature believer is greater than the blessing found in the garden. It comes with a security not found in the garden.

2. The grace pipe and 34 things added to the first two.
3. The key to salvation and divine blessing is the two judicial imputations which preceded it.
4. Two judicial imputations are required. We trade our sins for the Lord's perfect righteousness. We all carry around something which is perfect everywhere that we go. We have God's righteousness in us.
- 5.
6. The real imputation is a follow up...we get eternal life at the time that we receive divine righteousness.
7. After salvation, God is pleased when we rebound and when we take in doctrine.
8. The imputation of divine blessing is glorifying to God.
9. Phase III or eternity, God is pleased to provide eternal reward and blessing. These balance out a fortiori.
10. God is not pleased with anyone who tries to intrude upon His plan. Conflict between the sin nature and the believer.

We do well in war because of our underlying American aggressiveness. We lost part of this due to the rise of so many bureaucracies, which are designed to reduce aggressiveness.

The one guy who came to Thieme's house and said, "I am Isaiah and you are Jesus Christ and let's get going."

Several psychiatrists have talked to Bob about what he is doing in Berachah, because his teaching seems to make some people tranquil.

1978 is going to be a big year of separating many of us. All of us as believers have equal opportunity. We all have God's righteousness.

Romans 8:8 And those being in the flesh are not able to please God. (BLB)

Romans 8:8 Moreover they who are in the flesh [under the authority of the sin nature] are not able to please God.

1977 Romans

Lesson #296

296 12/29/1977 Romans 8:9 Doctrine of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit (revised); necessity and function of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit; issue of the doctrine of procession

The sin nature is the husband and the ruler of all human life, until a person believes in Jesus Christ. All of us are condemned because of Adam's original sin; that is the basis of our condemnation. The issue is not our own personal sins, but Adam's sin. At salvation, the only issue is Jesus Christ; it is not sin.

Verses 9-10, the issue of the frustration of the fulfilment of the divine purpose in life on the part of most Christians.

Romans 8:9 Now you are not in flesh but in Spirit, if indeed the Spirit of God dwells in you; but if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, he is not of Him.

It is arrogant to think that you have anything to do with your own condemnation. Our personal sins did not antecedently belong to the Lord Jesus Christ. +R, when we believe in Jesus Christ, is imputed to us. There is no natural home for the Lord's +R. At divorce, the former husband and wife are dead to one another. Ex-husband is the sin nature; ex-wife is the unbeliever. New marriage is between the Lord Jesus Christ and the wife, the believer.

Verse 9 – how the Christian way of life can be fulfilled, how our major logistical support is the indwelling presence of God the Holy Spirit. “But ye are not in the flesh” – the nominative plural subject from the proleptic pronoun su has great emphasis. While the unbeliever continues to be dominated by the old sin nature, for the sin nature is the ruler of human life, the believer through the baptism of the Holy Spirit and being divorced from the old sin nature is now free; no longer, therefore, positionally under the domination of the old sin nature. The baptism of the Holy Spirit is the basis for the divorce from the old sin nature, the old husband, through retroactive positional truth, and the marriage to the new husband, the Lord Jesus Christ, through current positional truth. The word “you” comes first in this sentence in the Greek, it is proleptic and it means you and only you, emphasizing you as a believer.

Plus the postpositive conjunctive particle de which joins two clauses where a contrast is intended. Here it acts as an adversative conjunction. The difference is the divorce that took place at salvation through the baptism of the Spirit. The word de as a conjunctive particle sometimes has an emphatic or an intensive meaning, especially when it follows and emphatic or proleptic pronoun. Therefore the translation can start out, “In fact all of you,” referring to believers in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Our president, our Congress and our Supreme Court can all be written off as evil.

With have a positional separation from the sin nature through the baptism of the Spirit.

Then comes the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] followed by the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]. This is a retroactive progressive present tense, denoting what has begun in the past at the moment of salvation and continues forever. It is a reference to retroactive positional truth in which the believer through the baptism of the Spirit is identified with Christ in His spiritual death, which is rejection of the old sin nature as the first husband, identifying with Christ in His physical death which is separation from the old sin nature as the first husband, and identified with Christ in His burial which is divorce from the old sin nature as the first husband. The active voice: the believer in the Lord Jesus Christ produces the action of the verb. The action occurs at the moment of salvation: the baptism of the Spirit. The indicative mood plus the negative emphasizes the reality of the divorce, our positional separation from the old sin nature through the baptism of the Holy Spirit. “In fact all of you are not.”

Plus the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] and the locative singular of sarx (σάρξ) [pronounced sarx], referring to the old sin nature—“in the flesh” or “under the control of the old sin nature.” So this statement views the Christian way of life from the standpoint of the baptism of the Holy Spirit and resultant positional truth. The adverse result is the great inner conflict in which the old sin nature indwelling the body is fighting against the Holy Spirit who indwells the body. The battle ground is the soul; both seek to influence the soul.

“but in the Spirit” – the adversative conjunction allá (ἀλλά) [pronounced ah-LAH] sets up an emphatic contrast between the ex-husband, the old sin nature, and the marriage counselor of the second marriage, the Holy Spirit. Plus the prepositional phrase en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], referring to the fact that God the Holy Spirit indwells us at salvation, and one of our commands is to be filled with the Spirit.

Then comes a phrase that indicates that the believer should understand the various ministries of God the Holy Spirit. The phrase doesn’t set up any doubts if you are a believer but merely indicates where the emphasis will lie in this passage: “if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you.” The compound conjunction eiper (εἴπερ) [pronounced Ī-per] is translated “if indeed” or “if after all,” and sometimes “since.” Here it is used in its debater’s sense, “assuming that.” The assumption is based on reality since the Holy Spirit indwells every believer of the Church Age. The nominative subject is pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah], this time with the possessive genitive theos (θεός) [pronounced theh-OSS] emphasizing the deity of the third person of the Trinity. The present active indicative of oikéō (οἰκέω) [pronounced oy-KEH-oh] means to indwell or to inhabit. The present tense is a static present for a condition which perpetually exists. The active voice: God the Holy Spirit produces the action. The indicative mood is declarative for a dogmatic statement of fact. Plus the preposition en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative plural of su, indicating all believers have this same status quo—“assuming that the Spirit of God dwells in all of you.”^[6]

“Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ” – the emphatic use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de, translated “In fact.” Then the conditional conjunction ei (εἰ) [pronounced I] introducing the protasis of a first class condition, assumption from the basis of reality, plus the enclitic indefinite pronoun tis (τις) [pronounced tihç], the subject of this sentence in the nominative case. “In fact if anyone.” The category here is the unbeliever who does not possess the indwelling of Christ.

Plus the present active indicative of echô (ἔχω) [pronounced EKKH-oh] plus the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo]—“does not have.” The present tense is a static present representing a condition which will always exist, no unbeliever is indwelt by the Spirit. The active voice: the unbeliever produces the action. The indicative mood plus the negative states the reality of the fact. The accusative singular direct object pneuma (πνεῦμα) [pronounced PNYOO-mah]—"the Spirit," plus the ablative of source from Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS], it was Christ who sent the Spirit—"from Christ." "In fact if anyone does not have the Spirit from Christ." This is the ablative of source which emphasizes the doctrine of procession.

Doctrine of the Indwelling of the Holy Spirit

A. Definition and Description.

1. The Holy Spirit indwells the body of the Church Age believer at the moment of salvation, 1 Cor 6:19-20, 3:16.
2. The indwelling of the Spirit is one of the six permanent ministries of the Holy Spirit at salvation. The purpose of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is to provide a temple in the body of every Church Age believer for the indwelling of Jesus Christ as the Shekinah Glory and the indwelling of God the Father.
 - a. There are no sacred buildings in the Church Age. The only sacred building was the temple in Jerusalem which belonged to Israel and was destroyed in 70 A.D.
 - b. God the Holy Spirit makes a sacred building out of your body for the indwelling of God the Son and God the Father.
3. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is also a sign of the royal family status, which is superior to being in the family of God, as believers in past dispensations were. In the Millennium, all believers are filled with by the Holy Spirit, but no millennial believer is indwelt with the Holy Spirit. There was no indwelling of the Holy Spirit until the Church Age. Believers in the Old Testament were empowered by the Holy Spirit at times. We live on the best time in (or the best side of) history, which is after the cross. Therefore, we are royal family to complement Christ's battlefield royalty. We receive six additional ministries of the Holy Spirit at salvation: efficacious grace, regeneration, sealing, spiritual gifts, filling, and baptism. The Church Age is the completion where the Lord calls out His royal family.
4. While no believers are indwelt by the Holy Spirit in other dispensations, all believers are indwelt with the Holy Spirit in the Church Age. The ministry of the Holy Spirit in other dispensations was technically the enduement of the Holy Spirit. For example, David said, "Take not Your Spirit from me," Psalm 51:11.
5. The Holy Spirit indwells the body of every believer, but only controls the soul of the believer under the title "filling of the Holy Spirit" or "walking in the Spirit."
6. It is important to distinguish between the indwelling of the Holy Spirit which is permanent, and the filling of the Holy Spirit which is temporary depending on the use of the rebound technique. When we sin we lose the filling of the Holy Spirit, but not the indwelling of the Spirit.

7. The Holy Spirit indwells the body of the believer because the old sin nature lives in the body of the believer. In the life of every believer, human ability must be superseded by divine ability. Therefore, the dynamics of the Holy Spirit are clearly important. Both seek to control the soul.
8. However, the actual use of divine power from the indwelling of the Spirit depends on the filling of the Holy Spirit rather than the indwelling of the Spirit. The indwelling is not operational apart from the filling.
9. Therefore, the believer must learn to distinguish between the indwelling of Holy Spirit and the filling of the Holy Spirit. It is the filling of the Holy Spirit by which we deploy the problem solving devices of the protocol plan of God. The filling of the Holy Spirit is the first power option of the spiritual life and without this divine power it is impossible to execute the unique spiritual life of the Church. Divine power is necessary to execute the divine plan. Without the filling of the Holy Spirit there is no spiritual life. A perfect plan demands perfect power for its fulfillment. The Christian way of life is a supernatural way of life and demands a supernatural means of execution, which means anything the unbeliever can do is not the Christian way of life.
10. The indwelling and filling of the Holy Spirit are not synonymous terms.
 - a. While the indwelling of Holy Spirit emphasizes the body, the filling of the Holy Spirit emphasizes the believer's soul. Therefore, the sphere of indwelling is always stated as the body of the believer, 1Cor 3:16; 6:19-20. Your body is the sacred building of the Church Age. This indwelling makes it impossible for demon possession to occur.
 - b. While both the indwelling and filling are absolutes (they cooperate with each other and are not antithetical), they are different types of absolutes.
 - (1) The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is an irrevocable absolute.
 - (2) The filling of the Holy Spirit is a revocable absolute through carnality. But the indwelling and filling are cooperating absolutes when we are filled with the Spirit.
 - (3) When the Holy Spirit controls the soul, the believer is said to be filled with the Spirit. But when the sin nature controls the soul, the believer is said to be carnal-both grieving and quenching the Holy Spirit
 - (4) Rebound is the only way to recover the filling of the Spirit.
 - (5) The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is both permanent and irrevocable whether the believer is carnal or spiritual, winner believer or loser believer.
 - (6) The filling of the Spirit is temporary, depending on whether the believer is spiritual or carnal.
 - (7) The filling of the Spirit is related to the believer's soul. When the sin nature takes over the believer's soul, then the believer sins.

(8) The purpose of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is to provide a temple in the believer's body for the indwelling of Christ as the Shekinah Glory.

(9) The purpose of the filling of the Spirit is to provide the enabling power for the execution of the unique spiritual life of the Church Age.

(10) Therefore, the indwelling of the Spirit is permanent, while the filling of the Spirit is temporary, depending upon consistency in using the rebound technique of 1John 1:9.

c. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is permanent whether the believer is spiritual or carnal, therefore, it is non-experiential.

d. The filling of the Holy Spirit is temporary, depending on the experiential status of the believer.

e. The filling of the Spirit is mandated by God, Ephesians 5:18, but the indwelling of the Spirit is stated by God as a fact, 1Cor 3:16, 6:19- 20. Therefore, the indwelling of the Spirit is a permanent status quo in time.

f. Both power options in the spiritual life (the power of the Holy Spirit and the power of Bible doctrine in your soul) depend upon the filling of the Holy Spirit. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is a temple in the body. The filling of the Spirit is the triumph of the soul.

11. Additional nomenclature related to the Spirit.

a. We are commanded to "grieve not the Spirit," Eph 4:30, which occurs when we enter cosmic one.

b. We are commanded to "quench not the Spirit," 1Thessalonians 5:19, which occurs when we enter cosmic two.

c. We are never commanded to be indwelt by the Spirit (this always exists), but to "be filled with the Spirit," Eph 5:18, or to be "walking in the Spirit," Gal 5:16.

12. Personal judgment decisions, like how much you eat, drink or smoke, has nothing to do with the filling of the Holy Spirit. Overindulgence in these things is sin, but moderation in their consumption is not sinful.

B. The Inner Conflict Between the Old Sin Nature and Indwelling of Holy Spirit.

1. The prior indwelling of the old sin nature from physical birth and the indwelling of the Holy Spirit from the new birth result in a great inner conflict, Gal 5:17 For you see the old sin nature rises up in protest against the indwelling Spirit and the indwelling Spirit wars against the old sin nature, for these—the Spirit and the old sin nature—are constantly opposed to each other, that you may not continue doing whatever things, if you desire. .

2. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the principle of victory over the old sin nature, while the filling of the Holy Spirit is the function of victory over the old sin nature.

3. Therefore, emphasis is placed on the baptism of the Holy Spirit, which divorces the believer from the power of the old sin nature and marries the believer to a second husband with a new way of life (the subject of Romans 8). It further provides a new marriage counselor for the new life in God the Holy Spirit.

4. The inner conflict between the old sin nature and indwelling of the Holy Spirit is portrayed in Romans 8:2-8 and Gal 5:16ff. The old sin nature has a head start at birth. It is only overcome by positive attitude to doctrine, especially the doctrine of rebound. The sin nature controls in Romans 7 and the Holy Spirit controls in Romans 8.
- C. The Prophecy of the Indwelling of God the Holy Spirit, John 7:37-39.
1. It was prophesied prior to the beginning of the Church Age by Christ. There are three spiritual uses of water, one of which is mentioned in Jn 7:37-39.
 - a. For salvation, Isaiah 55:1; Revelation 22:17.
 - b. For doctrine, Jn 3:5; Ephesians 5:26.
 - c. For the Holy Spirit, Jn 7:39. 2. In Jn 14:16-17 Christ again prophesied the indwelling of Holy Spirit, "will be in you."
 - d. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit occurs after the glorification of Jesus Christ after the cross.
- D. The Primary Objective of the Indwelling of Holy Spirit.
1. The primary objective of the indwelling of Holy Spirit is to provide a temple in your body for the indwelling of the other two members of the Trinity. This provides motivation for the attainment of spiritual objectives.
 2. The power or energy to accomplish the Christian life comes through the Holy Spirit.
 3. Advance to maturity and glorification of Christ is accomplished through the filling of the Spirit and perception of doctrine.
 4. Perception of doctrine is related to the teaching ministry of the indwelling Holy Spirit, John 14:26. The Holy Spirit provided accuracy of recall through a photographic memory for the writing of Scripture, John 16:12-15 cf 1Corinthians 2:9-16 and 1 Jn 2:27.
- E. Anointing or unction is a synonym for the indwelling of Holy Spirit, 1John 2:20, 27. Anointing relates the indwelling of the Holy Spirit to the Church Age believer as a sign of the royal family of God. The indwelling of Holy Spirit is the royal family escutcheon. Because the royal family lives in the Holy of Holies forever, it is important that we are indwelt by God the Holy Spirit. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit demonstrates that we are royalty. Anointing appoints us ambassadors for Christ.
- F. The Distinction Between the Indwelling of Christ and the Holy Spirit.
1. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is both permanent and functional, while the indwelling of Jesus Christ is the guarantee of escrow blessing in the believer's advance to maturity. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is also in the body and is permanent.
 2. There is definite evidence that the reversionistic believer does not benefit from the indwelling of Jesus Christ, 2Corinthians 13:5; Revelation 3:20.

- G. Oil illustrates the power of the indwelling of Holy Spirit.
1. Oil lubricates. Friction is removed from machines by oil, just as the Holy Spirit removes friction between people.
 2. Oil heals and is used for medicine. The Holy Spirit heals breaches among believers.
 3. Oil lights; the Holy Spirit illuminates the teaching of doctrine.
 4. Oil propels; the Holy Spirit provides the thrust to maturity.
 5. Oil invigorates; the Holy Spirit stimulates production.
 6. Oil warms; the ministry of the Holy Spirit warms the life of the believer in relationship to the Lord and other believers.
 7. Oil adorns; the Holy Spirit provides inner beauty.
- H. The Importance of the Power of the Spirit, 1 Kg 19:1-18. Elijah failed to learn the importance of the Spirit-filled life. He was not indwelt with the Spirit in the same sense that we are.

There is a doctrine of procession, something which Bob taught a long time ago. John 15:26 The Father sends the Holy Spirit. But the Son also sends the Holy Spirit. In the second century, some groups of Christians split up on two sides: some said that the Father sent the Spirit and others said Christ sent the Spirit. They actually harmed and even killed one another based upon this.

Bob says not to argument with family about doctrine. If they are positive, they will go out and get it; if not, they won't.

“he is none of his” – the nominative singular subject is the demonstrative pronoun houtos (οὗτος) [pronounced HOO-tos], “this one,” referring specifically to the Holy Spirit, plus the present active indicative of eimi (εἶμι) [pronounced eye-ME] with the negative ou (οὐ) [pronounced oo], “is not.” This is a customary present for what does not occur regarding the unbeliever. The active voice: the unbeliever produces the action. The indicative mood plus the negative states the reality of a point of doctrine. Then a possessive genitive from the intensive pronoun autós (αὐτός) [pronounced ow-TOSS] used as a personal pronoun emphasizing the identity of God. This is an idiom which is correctly translated “he [the unbeliever] does not belong to him [God].”

Romans 8:9 In fact you are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, assuming that the Spirit of God dwells in you. In fact if anyone [unbeliever] does not have Spirit from Christ [Holy Spirit], he [unbeliever] does not belong to him [God].”

Principle #1

1. The unbeliever has no relationship with God. In the Church to have a relationship with God one must be indwelt by the Holy Spirit. The only way this can happen is to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ.
2. The indwelling of the Spirit, therefore, occurs at the moment of salvation.
3. Like the baptism of the Spirit, the indwelling of the Spirit is a salvation blessing which flows from the justice of God to the righteousness of God.
4. Furthermore, this verse implies that it is impossible for the unbeliever to execute the Christian way of life through his own talent or ability.
5. Principle: The Christian way of life is a supernatural way of life which demands a supernatural means of execution.
6. Therefore anything the unbeliever can do or accomplish is not the Christian way of life.
7. The fact that the believer is indwelt by the Spirit and provided by logistical support to be filled with the Spirit emphasizes the grace provision for attainment of the objective—maturity adjustment to the justice of God.
8. To whom much is given much is expected. The Holy Spirit is given to the royal family of God in the Church Age with great expectation—advance to maturity.

This great expectation can only be fulfilled by advancing to maturity.

Principle #2

1. All the commands of the Christian way of life through relationship with God the Holy Spirit.
2. Apart from the ministry of the Holy Spirit to the royal family there is no pleasing God, no accomplishing of the objective of phase two which is maturity adjustment producing glorification of Christ.
3. Therefore frustration or fulfilment of the plan of God depends upon the believer's relationship with the indwelling Holy Spirit, and the Holy Spirit's communication of doctrine to the positive believer.
4. The teaching of doctrine by one with the gift of pastor is useless apart from the ministry of the Holy Spirit and the function of GAP.
5. All perception of doctrine depends upon the ministry of the Holy Spirit.
6. All application of doctrine depends upon the ministry of the Holy Spirit.
7. All the execution of divine commands and obedience to divine will depends upon the ministry of the Holy Spirit.
8. All attainment of objectives depend upon the ministry of the Holy Spirit in the life of the believer.
9. Therefore the difference between frustration and the fulfilment of the divine plan in the believer's life depends upon the indwelling of the Holy Spirit and the ministry which results from that indwelling.

297 12/30/1977 Romans 8:10 Doctrine of the indwelling of Jesus Christ; missing link between imputed +R and divine blessing

Romans 8:10 But if Christ is in you, the body is indeed dead on account of sin, but the Spirit is life on account of righteousness. (BLB)

Verse 10 – the fulfilling of the same concept through the indwelling of Jesus Christ. “And if Christ be in you” – the intensive use of the postpositive conjunctive particle de is translated “In fact.” The conditional particle ei (εἰ) [pronounced /] plus the indicative introduces a first class condition, an assumption from the viewpoint of reality.

Then the prepositional phrase, the nominative singular Christos (χριστός) [pronounced krees-TOHSS] is the subject, referring to the second person of the Trinity, and en (ἐν) [pronounced en] plus the locative of su—“In fact if Christ is in you.” This is a first class condition and is assumed to be true as far as all believers in the Lord Jesus Christ are concerned.^[7]

Doctrine of the Indwelling of the Jesus Christ

- A. The Prophecy of the Indwelling of Jesus Christ, John 14:19-20 Before long the world will see Me no longer, but you will see Me; because I live, you also will live. In that day [Church Age], you shall come to know that I am in My Father, and you in Me, and I in you.
1. There never has been a time in history when some part of the world did not see Jesus Christ. That is the doctrine of theophany. There was not a generation in Old Testament times that did not see the visible member of the Trinity. But in the Church Age, Jesus Christ is invisible to mankind.
 - a. Christ appeared as a man, e.g., to Jacob, Abraham.
 - b. Christ appeared as a cloud, pillar of fire, the burning bush.
 - c. Christ actually indwelt the sacred building in Israel.
 2. The Church Age believers would live in operational divine dynaspheres, and by so doing would be able to see Christ.
 3. "I am in My Father" is a statement declaring the deity of Christ. These believers would come to know that Jesus Christ was true deity while in Hypostatic Union. The humanity of Christ was in union with the Father, a unique positional sanctification. This is undoubtedly the basis for our positional sanctification, since we are in union with Christ and must share everything He has.
 4. "And you in Me," is the prophecy of the baptism of the Spirit, equal privilege under predestination prophesied.
 5. "And I in you," is a declaration of the indwelling of Christ. This is true for every believer (plural personal pronoun).

6. The people who heard this prophecy could see Christ's humanity, but they could not see His deity. The same was true of the Shekinah Glory. They could not see the Shekinah Glory, but they could see the manifestation of its presence in the cloud and pillar of fire.

7. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is unique to the Church Age. The Church Age is the dispensation of the royal family of God, therefore it has certain unique features which include the fact that God the Holy Spirit and God the Son indwell every believer. These are unique and never occurred before in history.

B. The Verification of the Indwelling of Christ in Our Lord's Prayer for the Church, John 17:22-23, 26.

1. "And I have given them the glory which You gave Me." This is a reference to the prototype divine dynasphere by which the humanity of Christ glorified God the Father. Now our Lord has given to us the operational divine dynasphere as the means of glorifying Him.

2. "That they may be one even as we are one." The glory is more than the divine dynasphere, but includes the indwelling of Jesus Christ.

3. Verse 23, "I in them" is a specific reference and prophecy of the indwelling of Jesus Christ. "And you in Me [the Father's indwelling of Christ during the Incarnation]; in order that they might be matured..." God the Father indwells the Son in order that He might become mature. In the same way, Christ indwells us that we might become mature.

4. In Jn 17:23a, the preposition EIS plus the adverbial accusative of reference neuter singular of HEIS should be translated, "with reference to one." This means there is one objective: to fulfill God's plan and glorify God.

5. "that the world may know that you have sent Me and that You have loved them, just as You have loved Me." One of the purposes for the indwelling of Christ is a sign to you that God the Father loves you just as He loved Jesus Christ.

6. Jn 17:26, "I have made known to them Your person and I will continue to make it known, that the love with which You have loved Me may be in them. . ." This love will never be in you until you reach gates 5 and 6 of the divine dynasphere: personal love for God and impersonal love for mankind.

7. "...and I in them." Jesus Christ indwells you along with the virtue-love of the divine dynasphere. This does not become a reality to us until we have metabolized doctrine about who and what God is.

8. John 17:22-23, 26 And I have given them the glory which You gave Me that they may be one even as we are one. I in them And you in Me [the Father's indwelling of Christ during the Incarnation]; in order that they might be matured with reference to one that the world may know that you have sent Me and that You have loved them, just as You have loved Me. I have made known to them Your person and I will continue to make it known, that the love with which You have loved Me may be in them and I in them.

C.

The indwelling of Jesus Christ relates to the mystery doctrine of the Church, i.e., the protocol plan of God and the portfolio of invisible assets, Col 1:25-29.

1. Verse 25, "Because of which [Church Age], I have become a minister with reference to the dispensation from God, which was given to me for your benefit, that I might implement [fill up] your deficiency of this doctrine from God,"
 - a. It is for the benefit of every believer to understand the dispensation in which he lives and everything related to it.
 - b. Although we are blessed by studying the Old Testament, there is no substitute for briefing you with regard to your own dispensation, why you are here, and the tremendous assets God has provided for you more than for anyone else in any other dispensation.
2. Verse 26, "the mystery, which has been concealed from past dispensations and generations, but now has been made known for the benefit of His saints."
 - a. The protocol plan of God for the Church Age was only hidden from past dispensations and from Old Testament writers because of its uniqueness. It could not possibly have been revealed without upsetting everyone.
 - b. Some of the benefits are: the indwelling of every member of the Trinity, the universal priesthood, your very own portfolio of invisible assets, the protocol plan of God, a spiritual gift, and invisible impact on history.
3. Verse 27, "to whom God willed to reveal to [among] the Gentiles the [riches of glory] glorious riches of this mystery which is Christ in you, the hope of [with reference to] glory;"
 - a. The riches which God has given to you have a source. The source is God's glory. You have both the riches and the Source of the riches indwelling you. Jesus Christ as the Shekinah Glory indwelt the Tabernacle and Temple not only as a guarantee of Israel's security, but also of their prosperity and blessing. Jesus Christ now indwells you as a guarantee of your security, riches, and fantastic blessings. If Jesus Christ indwelt a building in the age of Israel, how much greater is the indwelling of Christ in the body of every believer in the Church Age?
 - b. "The hope of glory" is the mature believer's confidence that at the point of maturity he will receive his escrow blessing which will glorify God both in time and eternity. is used technically as hope 2 and hope 3, the confidence or future expectation of the adult believer who recognizes that the indwelling of Jesus Christ as the Shekinah Glory is the guarantee of greater blessings for time and eternity. The first characteristic of spiritual adulthood is occupation with Christ. Christ indwells us for the purpose of motivation. Knowing He indwells us gives us a very strong and powerful motivation to keep advancing through each stage of spiritual adulthood with its accompanying category of undeserved suffering.

- c. "Glory" here refers to your escrow blessings. "Christ in you" is the confidence (hope 2 and 3) of receiving those escrow blessings which glorify God the Father. Once we crack the maturity barrier, the indwelling of Jesus Christ becomes a personal reality to us. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is part of our motivation to continue momentum. For the reversionist, the indwelling of Christ has no effect. It is as if Christ were on the outside knocking to be let back into his life, Rev 3:20.
 - d. "The hope with reference to glory" refers not only to the Lord Jesus Christ, but also to the escrow blessings deposited with Jesus Christ, the depository by the grantor, God the Father, in eternity past. Jesus Christ as the escrow officer is the One who actually conveys those escrow blessings to us in time when we reach spiritual maturity. He conveys those blessings to His own righteousness in us, which we share by positional sanctification.
 - e. "Christ in you, the hope of glory" further speaks of capacity. As believers, we must have capacity before blessings, even logistical blessings; otherwise we can't handle the blessings. If you understand the doctrine of the indwelling of Christ, you will have the capacity to enjoy your logistical grace blessings without being destroyed from lack of capacity.
 - f. This doctrine of the indwelling of Christ is vital to you for security, a guarantee, motivation, and capacity. Because it is so important, the next two verses teach the responsibility of the pastor- teacher to disseminate this information.
4. Verse 28, "Whom we proclaim, constantly inculcating every person, even consistently teaching every person with all wisdom, in order that we may present every person mature in Christ." Or a more interpretive translation: "Whom we communicate, warning every believer [about being a loser] and teaching every believer [about being a winner] in all wisdom [mechanics for the execution of the protocol plan of God], that we might present every believer mature in Christ."
 5. Verse 29, "For which purpose [execution of the protocol plan] I also labor to the point of exhaustion, constantly striving toward the objective [to learn doctrine] on the basis of His working [enabling power of the Holy Spirit in teaching the Word] which is effective in me by means of the power [divine dynasphere]." Or a more interpretive translation: "For this purpose I also labor to the point of exhaustion, competing according to the game plan which is operational in me inside the divine dynasphere."
- D. The indwelling of Christ is related to the Shekinah Glory in the Old Testament.
1. Definition and Description.

- a. "Shekinah" is derived from the Hebrew noun shâkan (שָׁכַן) [pronounced shaw-KAHN], meaning to dwell. It refers to the fact that Jesus Christ indwelt certain sacred buildings in Israel.
- (1) Shekinah was coined by the rabbis who wrote the Babylonian Targum during the Babylonian captivity.
 - (2) They developed the technical word as a periphrasis to speak of God as dwelling among His people. In this way, the Targum writers avoided the danger of applying this as an anthropopathic concept to Jesus Christ as Jehovah.
 - (3) It was used to express the invisible presence of God with Israel.
- b. "Glory" is the Hebrew Biblical word kâbôwd (כְּבוֹד) [pronounced kaw^b-VODE], used for the visible manifestations of Jesus Christ as a theophany.
- c. Shekinah itself represents the invisibility of Christ, the God of Israel, actually indwelling three sacred buildings during the Age of Israel: the Tabernacle, Solomon's Temple, and Zerubbabel's Temple. Glory represents the visible manifestation in theophanic form.
- d. Since Jesus Christ as the God of Israel was invisible to the Jews, He was understood through the various categories of doctrinal teaching from Moses and Aaron and the Levitical priests. Illustrations of the doctrinal teaching was taken from the rituals authorized by God. For example, the articles of sacred furniture in the Tabernacle, the modus operandi of the feasts or holy days, the modus operandi of the priests and even their uniforms were used to teach Christology. There was lots of doctrine and lots of illustrations in the ritual plan of God of the Old Testament.
- e. There are three categories of manifestations of Jesus Christ during the dispensation of Israel.
- (1) Theophanies appeared to Old Testament believers.
 - (2) During the First Advent, Jesus Christ became flesh and "tabernacled among us," according to Jn 1:14, for thirty-three years.
 - (3) Christophanies were the manifestations of Jesus Christ in resurrection body before His ascension.
- f. Our subject, the Shekinah Glory, relates only to theophanies. There are two categories of theophanies as appearances of Jesus Christ in the Old Testament. (The examples are not exhaustive.)
- (1) Animate.
 - (a) As the angel of the Lord (Jehovah).
 - (b) As a man in human form, He visited Abraham and wrestled with Jacob.
 - (2) Inanimate.
 - (a) The cloud and glory of the Lord, Ex 40:34-38.

(b) A pillar of cloud at the entrance to the Tabernacle (a different kind of cloud), Ex 33:9.

(c) A pillar of fire.

(d) The burning bush.

- g. The title, Shekinah, refers to the invisible presence of our Lord Jesus Christ in the Holy of Holies, enthroned on the mercy seat between the cherubs, Psalm 99:1; Isa 37:16.
- h. As Shekinah, Jesus Christ indwells the Holy of Holies in the Tabernacle, Ex 25:21-22. As such, He is declared to be the God of Israel, Lev 26:11-12.
- i. Under the title glory, or Kâbôwd (כבוד) [pronounced kaw^b-VODE], Jesus Christ was manifest to people at various times. He was manifest to the Jews as a Theophany in Ex 16:7,10; Lev 9:23; Num 14:10, 16:19, 42, 20:6. So Jesus Christ, the person, the Shekinah part, was invisible. Jesus Christ, the theophany, was visible at various times to various groups in Israel.
- j. Shekinah Glory, then, is defined as theological nomenclature designed to explain the relationship between:
- (1) Jesus Christ and client nation Israel.
 - (2) Jesus Christ and the Church as the royal family.
- k. Shekinah Glory explains the uniqueness of the Jew in the dispensation of Israel, while at the same time explaining the uniqueness of the body of Christ in the dispensation of the Church.
- l. In the dispensation of Israel, Jesus Christ indwelt a building; first the Tabernacle, and then two temples. In the dispensation of the Church, Jesus Christ indwells the body of every believer.
- m. If the indwelling of Christ in the sacred buildings of Israel is unique and without precedent in human history, how much more is the indwelling of Christ in the body of every believer unique and without precedent!
- n. Shekinah Glory is a title for our Lord Jesus Christ which establishes a link between two unique categories of spiritual phenomena: the eternal and infinite Son of God dwelling in buildings, and the eternal and infinite Son of God, now the God-man, Jesus Christ in Hypostatic Union, indwelling your body as a believer.
- o. The Shekinah Glory is identified as the God of Israel in Lev 26:11-12. "Moreover, I will make My tabernacle [dwelling place] among you, and My soul will not despise [reject] you. I will also walk among you; I will be Your God and you shall be My people."
- (1) Further proof that Jesus Christ is the God of Israel is found in Luke 1:68. "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for He has visited us [First Advent] and accomplished redemption for His people."

(2) Hezekiah's prayer in Isa 37:16 gives three facts: Jesus Christ is the God of Israel, Jesus Christ is the Lord of the armies of Israel, and Jesus Christ dwelt in the Holy of Holies between the cherubs as the God of Israel. Isa 37:16, "O Lord of the armies, O God of Israel, who sits between the cherubs, You alone are God over all the kingdoms of the earth [Jesus Christ controls history]. have made the heavens and the earth." This reference tells us that the God of Israel was Jesus Christ, for Col 1:16-17 says Jesus Christ created the heavens and the earth, also confirmed by Jn 1:3 and Heb 1:10.

(3) Deut 6:4, "Hear, O Israel: the Lord [Jesus Christ] is our God; the Lord [Jesus Christ] is unique [SHAMA JISRAEL, ADONAI ELOHENU, ADONAI ECHAD]."

(4) A New Testament commentary on the Shekinah Glory is found in Rom 9:4. "Who are Israelites, to whom is given the adoption [unconditional covenants to client nation Israel] and the glory [the Shekinah Glory in sacred buildings]."

2. The Location of the Shekinah Glory.

a. The Shekinah was located in the Tabernacle. Ex 25:21-22, "And you will put the mercy seat [throne] on top of the ark, and in the ark you will put the testimony which I will give you. And there I will meet you, and from above the mercy seat, from between the cherubs which are on the ark of the testimony, and I will speak to you about all that I will give you in mandates for the citizens of Israel."

b. Jesus Christ as the God of Israel was actually going to dwell above the mercy seat between the cherubs in the Holy of Holies. This is also taught in Lev 9:23 and Num 16:42. Heb 9:4-5 describes the presence of the Shekinah Glory as the God of Israel in a more subtle way. "Above it [ark of covenant], the cherubs of glory." Ordinarily they were only called cherubs, but here they are called "cherubs of glory" because that's where our Lord Jesus Christ indwelt the Tabernacle in the Old Testament.

c. The Glory was identified with the cloud theophany as the visible manifestation of the God of Israel.

(1) This is taught in Ex 40:34-38, "Then the cloud covered the Tent of the Meeting [Tabernacle], and the glory of the Lord filled the Tabernacle. Now Moses was not able to enter the Tabernacle, because the cloud had settled on [top of] it, and the glory of the Lord filled the Tabernacle. And throughout all their travels, whenever the cloud was lifted from over the Tabernacle, the citizens of Israel would move out; but if the cloud did not lift, they did not move out until the day when it was lifted. For throughout all their travels, the cloud of the Lord was over the Tabernacle by day, and there was a fire in the cloud by night in sight of all the house of Israel."

(2) The cloud by day and the fire in the cloud by night meant that the motivation, security, life, and blessing of Israel was tied into the God of Israel. Israel was ruled by God; it was a theocracy. The Jews were guided by the God of Israel as they followed that cloud. The cloud was security in bivouac and guidance on the march. At any time, night or day, a Jew could pause to look at the cloud and know that the God of Israel dwelt in the Tabernacle. Whatever was bothering or worrying him, the Jew only needed to look at the cloud and be reassured of his security and blessing.

(3) So the theophany of the cloud revealed the fact that Jesus Christ was present though invisible as the Shekinah. Lev 9:23, "Then Moses and Aaron went into the Tent of the Meeting [Tabernacle], and when they came out and blessed the people, the glory of the Lord appeared to all the people."

(4) Ex 16:10, "Now it came to pass as Aaron spoke to the entire congregation of the sons of Israel that they looked toward the desert, and behold, the glory of the Lord appeared in a cloud."

(5) Num 14:10, "Then the glory of the Lord appeared to all the sons of Israel."

(6) Num 16:19, "And the glory of the Lord appeared to all the congregation."

(7) Num 16:42, "Now it came to pass when the congregation had assembled against Moses and Aaron, that they turned toward the Tent of the Meeting [Tabernacle], and behold, the cloud covered it and the glory of the Lord appeared."

(8) The Shekinah Glory was related to the pillar of cloud at the entrance to the Tabernacle. Ex 33:9, "And it came to pass when Moses entered the tent, the pillar of cloud would descend and stand at the entrance of the Tabernacle, and the Lord would speak with Moses."

d. The Shekinah Glory was related to the worship of Israel. Ex 33:10, "When all the people saw the pillar of the cloud standing at the entrance of the tent, the people would stand up and worship, each one at the entrance of his tent."

e. The Shekinah Glory also indwelt the Temple of Solomon.

(1) 1 Kg 8:10, "And it came to pass when the priest came from the Holy Place [during the dedication of the Temple], that the cloud filled the house of the Lord, so that the priests could not stand to minister because of that cloud, for the glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord."

(2) 2 Chron 5:13b-14, "Then the house [Temple] of the Lord was filled with the cloud, so that the priest could not stand to minister because of that cloud. For the glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord."

- (3) The theocratic statement of Psalm 99:1 speaks of Solomon's temple. "The Lord rules, let the people tremble; He sits between the cherubs, let the land shake."
 - (4) The dedication of Solomon's temple is found in 2 Chr 7:1-3. "Now when Solomon had finished praying, fire came down from heaven and consumed the burnt offering and sacrifices, and the glory of the Lord filled the house. And the priest could not enter into the Temple [house] of the Lord because the glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord. Then the citizens of Israel, seeing the fire come down and seeing the glory of the Lord over the Temple, bowed down on the pavement with their faces to the ground, and they worshipped and gave praise to the Lord saying, `Truly He is God; truly His grace is eternal.'"
- f. The Shekinah Glory was also related to Zerubbabel's Temple in Hab 2:20. "The Lord is in His holy Temple; let all the land keep silent before Him." Silence is the only way you can learn.
3. Blasphemies against the Shekinah Glory in the Old Testament.
- a. The blasphemy of Nadab and Abihu.
 - (1) Remember that the Shekinah was invisible; the glory was visible at certain times. The Shekinah dwelt in the Holy of Holies, and no one was permitted into the Holy of Holies, Ex 40:35; Num 16:2. Only on the Day of Atonement was the high priest allowed to enter the Holy of Holies, and then only twice: once with a sacrifice for himself, and once with a sacrifice for the people.
 - (2) Moses' older brother, Aaron, became the first high priest of Israel. Aaron had four sons. The first two, Nadab and Abihu, violated the Holy of Holies and so were eliminated. As a result, the priestly line continued through Aaron's two younger sons.
 - (3) Just outside the veil of the Holy of Holies is the altar of incense. Though it is in the Holy Place, it actually belongs to the Holy of Holies. But since it had to be used by the priests, it was kept outside the veil of the Holy of Holies. The description of the altar of incense is given in Ex 30:1-9. The prohibition regarding the altar of incense is given in Ex 30:9. "You shall not offer any strange incense on this altar, or burnt and food offerings, and you will never pour out a libation on it."
 - (4) Outside the Holy Place was the brass altar for the burnt and food offerings; this taught that Christ died outside the camp. The fire on the brass altar came from the Lord. This fire from the Lord was taken from the brass altar into the Holy Place (via the seven lamps) and used to burn incense on the altar of incense.

(5) The fire on the brass altar came from the Lord in the following manner. Lev 9:22b-24, "And he [Aaron] stepped down after making the sin offering, the burnt offering, and the peace offering. Then Moses and Aaron went into the Tabernacle. When they came out, they blessed the people; and the glory of the Lord [cloud] appeared to all the people. Then fire came down from before the Lord, and consumed the burnt offerings and the portions of fat on the altar. When all the people saw it, they shouted and fell on their faces."

(6) A short time later Nadab and Abihu, in a state of intoxication, took unauthorized fire ("strange" fire in KJV) into the altar of incense. Since their father Aaron was the high priest, they were authorized to function as priests as the two oldest sons. They brought their own incense and their own "matches," and started a fire in the Holy Place. Then they peeked behind the veil of the Holy of Holies, which was forbidden, and saw some kind of Light. Then, in their drunken state, they took their self-made fire on the altar of incense and from it made some sort of torch, busted through the veil, and entered into the Holy of Holies.

(7) Lev 10:8-10 tells the story of what happened to these two men before they entered the Holy of Holies. "Then the Lord spoke to Aaron saying, `Do not drink wine or alcoholic beverage on duty, neither you nor your sons with you when you come into the Tabernacle [Tent of the Meeting], so that you may not die. This is a perpetual mandate throughout your generations, to make a distinction between the Holy of Holies and the profane, and between the clean and the unclean.'"

(8) This implies that no one has the right to be under the influence of alcohol and teach the Word of God or, in this case, fulfill a ritual related to God's Word. The "profane" is what you do when not fulfilling some spiritual function.

(9) Lev 10:1-3 tells what happened to Nadab and Abihu. "Now Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took their fire pans [censers or incense vessels], and after putting fire into them [strange fire], they added incense to it [incense from altar of incense], and offered strange fire in the presence of the Lord [Holy of Holies], which He had not commanded. Therefore, fire came out from the presence of the Lord and consumed them, and they died in the presence of the Lord [in the Holy of Holies]. Then Moses spoke to Aaron [Lev 21:8], `I will sanctify Myself in him [high priest] that is near Me [i.e., I will treat as holy those that approach Me]; furthermore, I will glorify Myself in the presence of the people.'"

(10) "In the presence of the Lord" means they busted through the veil with strange fire. The only light in the Holy of Holies is the presence of the Shekinah, the Lord Jesus Christ. But in stumbled these two drunks with human light (human viewpoint), with the idea of pouring this out between the cherubs! Jesus Christ, dwelling between the cherubs, wiped them out with fire!

(11) The Lord was saying, "I will glorify Myself in the presence of the people. They don't have to come in here. Only once a year can the high priest come in; that's all. And furthermore, I'll have no drunk priest serving in here at the altar!"

(12) There were two results from the case history of Nadab and Abihu.

(a) They died the sin unto death for attempting to put unauthorized light or fire in the Holy of Holies. Christ is the light of the world, and Christ was the light in the Holy of Holies.

(b) The Levitical priesthood descended from Aaron through his two younger sons, Eleazar and Ithamar. Eleazar became the next high priest. In the time of David, Eleazar's line was temporarily set aside and Ithamar's line became the high priest.

(13) Another meaning to all of this is found in Lev 16:1-2. "Now the Lord spoke to Moses after the death of the two sons of Aaron [Nadab and Abihu] when they approached the presence of the Lord and died. Then the Lord said to Moses, 'Tell your brother Aaron that he shall not at any time enter the Holy of Holies inside the veil before the mercy seat which is on top of the ark, lest he die. For I will appear in a cloud above the mercy seat.'" In other words, "if you want to know if I'm there, just look above the tent and see the cloud. But actually I will dwell inside the Holy of Holies on the mercy seat between the cherubs." The rest of Lev 16 describes the exception on the Day of Atonement when the high priest, after sanctification ceremonies, entered the Holy of Holies twice. Apart from this exception, no one was to enter the Holy of Holies. The penalty for any violation of this was death.

(14) Num 3:4, "But Nadab and Abihu died in the presence of the Lord [Holy of Holies] in the desert of Sinai. And they had no children; therefore, Eleazar and Ithamar served as priests during the lifetime of their father Aaron."

b. The blasphemy of Hophni and Phinehas.

(1) Another blasphemy against the Shekinah Glory occurred during the time of Israel's wars with the Philistines. 1 Sam 4 tells the story of Eli's two sons, Hophni and Phinehas. At the time Eli was the high priest and a very old man in his late nineties. His sons, Hophni and Phinehas, served as priests in the Tabernacle then located at Shiloh. The Jews were very apostate at this time. There was practically no evangelism and very little doctrine being taught, for Eli was too old and his two sons were very apostate.

- (2) The Jews had just been defeated in battle by the Philistines as judgment for their apostasy and rejection of doctrine, 1 Sam 4:1-2. They wanted to destroy the Philistines, the last of the great warrior Greeks. Instead of turning to the Lord as a result of their defeat, they were looking for a good luck charm, 1 Sam 4:3. (Rebound seldom occurs to the apostate.)
- (3) They decided the ark of the covenant in the Tabernacle at Shiloh would be their good luck charm. They were so apostate that they didn't even know that ordinarily that was where the Lord dwelt. Because of their apostasy, the Lord was not dwelling there at this time.
- (4) The two priest sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, went into the Holy of Holies and picked up the ark and carried it out. 1 Sam 4:4, "So the army sent troops to Shiloh, and from there they carried back the ark of the Lord of the Armies, Who sits between the cherubs. Furthermore, the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were with the ark of the covenant." In other words, these two men claimed that only they knew the right way to "rub the rabbit's foot," and that they were the only ones who could carry the ark to the battlefield.
- (5) A second battle was then fought against the Philistines in which the Jews were not only defeated but practically destroyed, 1 Sam 4:10. The results of this terrible annihilation were:
 - (a) Hophni and Phinehas were killed, 1 Sam 4:11.
 - (b) The ark of the covenant was taken by the Philistines and placed in their heathen temple; they hoped it would somehow bring them luck, 1 Sam 4:17.
 - (c) Eli, age 98, was sitting on a gate. When he heard the news, he fell off the gate, broke his neck, and died instantly, 1 Sam 4:12-18. So part of the source of the apostasy, a very bad priesthood, was eliminated.
- (6) The wife of Phinehas, while in childbirth labor, heard the news. Her reaction is recorded in 1 Sam 4:19-22. "Now his [Eli's] daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinehas, was pregnant and about to give birth [in labor]. When she heard the news that the ark of God was taken and that both her father-in-law and husband had died, she squatted down and began to give birth, for her labor pains came on. Then about the time of her death, the midwife who stood by her said to her, 'Do not be afraid; for you have given birth to a son.' But she did not answer or pay attention. Then she called the boy Ikabod, saying 'The glory [Shekinah Glory] has departed from Israel' . . . Then she repeated, 'The glory [Shekinah Glory] has departed from Israel, for the ark of God was taken.'"

(7) IKABOD is translated "there is no glory." For during this period of apostasy, Jesus Christ had departed from Israel because the ark of God was captured, and because the Jews had violated every principle related to the sacred furniture in the Tabernacle.

4. The Sacred Buildings of Israel.

a. Beginning with the construction of the Tabernacle in the desert, a series of sacred buildings were constructed in Israel according to specifications laid out by the Lord Himself, because they represented the whole concept of Christology and soteriology.

b. These buildings were always associated with the presence of the Lord; that's what made them sacred buildings. They were indwelt by Jesus Christ, the Shekinah Glory. Furthermore, all these buildings portray and memorialize the person and work of the Lord Jesus Christ during His First Advent.

(1) The Tabernacle: Ex 25, 33, 40; Lev 9:23; Num 16:42. "Tabernacle" literally means the tent of the meeting, for it was the place where God met Moses and the people.

(2) The Temple of Solomon was a more permanent structure, mentioned in 1 Kg 8; 2 Chron 5; Isa 37:16.

(3) The Temple of Zerubbabel is mentioned in Hag 2 and Zech 2:5 as being "the place of the dwelling of the Shekinah Glory." This was the Temple eventually built after the Jews returned to the land from their Babylonian captivity.

(4) There is also a Tabernacle/Temple in heaven, which memorialized Christology and soteriology, mentioned in Rev 11:19, 13:6, 15:5. "After these things, I looked and the Temple [Tabernacle] which serves as a testimony in heaven was opened."

(5) There is a temple in Jerusalem during the Tribulation, but this is a center for apostasy, Matt 25:15; Rev 11:1. There is no Biblical evidence that this temple has any sacred connotation; on the contrary, there are reasons why it cannot be indwelt by the Shekinah Glory.

(6) The millennial Temple of Ezek 40-47 is related to the restoration of Israel as a client nation to God during the Millennium. Its ritual serves the same purpose of memorializing the person and work of Jesus Christ on the cross as does the Eucharist during the Church Age.

5. There are two periods in which there is no sacred building.
 - a. The Church Age.
 - (1) Since Jesus Christ already came in the flesh during the First Advent, there are no longer any theophanies nor any sacred buildings in which He dwells. The sacred buildings of Israel have been replaced by something more startling and unique.
 - (2) In the Church Age, the body of every believer is indwelt by the Holy Spirit in order to provide a temple for the indwelling of Christ. There are no sacred man-made buildings in the Church Age, only auditoriums where doctrine is taught.
 - (3) Since the old sin nature resides in every cell of your body, Jesus Christ could not reside in your body unless the Holy Spirit indwells to provide a temple for the indwelling of Jesus Christ. The very fact that the Holy Spirit indwells your body and turns it into a sacred building provides some positional restraint on the old sin nature.
 - (4) 1 Cor 3:16, "Do you not know that you are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwells in you?"
 - (5) 1 Cor 6:19, "Do you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit who is in you, whom you have from God, and you are not your own?" Your life now belongs to God. Therefore it has the greatest potential for happiness the world has ever known, and for greater impact than the world has ever known.
 - (6) 2 Cor 6:16, "For we are the temple of the living God. Just as God has said [Lev 26:12], 'I will dwell in them and walk among them; furthermore, I will be their God and they shall be My people.'"
 - (a) Lev 26:12 literally says "I will walk among you," using the Hebrew hithpael perfect of HALAK. In the hithpael it means to walk about, to traverse, to walk among; in other words, it connotes a relationship. The preposition BE, which usually means "in," becomes an irregular preposition here because of the combination with the noun which follows it, TAWEK, meaning "in the middle of." So the actual word here is BETHOK, which combines the preposition BE and noun TAWEK to mean "among." There is no way indwelling could be implied here. This means Jesus Christ will be in the presence or in the middle of Israel, indwelling a building.
 - (b) But when Paul quotes this in 2 Cor 6:16, he doesn't use "among." He makes a very subtle change. He translates HALAK as the future active indicative of ENOIKEO, which can only mean "indwell." In Lev 26:12, Jesus Christ was dwelling "among" the Jews, not "in" them. He was indwelling the Tabernacle but was living among them. Now in the Church Age, Jesus Christ indwells the believer; He doesn't live among us. If Paul wanted to quote HALAK exactly from the Hebrew, he would have used PERIPATEO, but he doesn't. Instead he uses ENOIKEO, meaning to indwell.

- (c) ENOIKEO is a gnomic future tense, which states what is always true under the given circumstances of personal faith in Christ. Jesus Christ produces the action; He indwells in you. The declarative indicative mood is used for a dogmatic statement of doctrine: the doctrine of the indwelling of Christ in your body.
- (d) To make this indwelling concept even stronger, Paul uses the Greek preposition EN plus the locative of AUTOS following ENOIKEO, which is translated "indwell in them." This is so strong!
- (e) This same verb, ENOIKEO, is used in Rom 8:11 for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Rom 8:11 says, "But if the Spirit of Him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, He who raised Christ from the dead will also give life to your mortal bodies through His Spirit who indwells you." The first "dwell in" is OIKEO plus the preposition EN. But Paul anticipated the resistance to the doctrine of the indwelling of Christ, and so in his second mention of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, he uses ENOIKEO plus preposition EN, "to indwell in you." The same words, ENOIKEO plus EN, are used for the indwelling of both Jesus Christ (2 Cor 6:16) and the Holy Spirit (Rom 8:11).
- (f) If in Rom 8:11 ENOIKEO refers to the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, then it follows logically that ENOIKEO used with Jesus Christ indicates the fact that Christ indwells your body as well.
- (7) So in 2 Cor 6:16, Paul quoted Lev 26:12 with the slight but important change, "I will dwell in them," not "among them," to show the dispensational change regarding the place of residence of the Shekinah Glory.
- (8) Because of the indwelling of Jesus Christ, there are no sacred buildings in the Church Age. However, for Jesus Christ to indwell your body, where the old sin nature also resides, it is necessary for that body to be converted into a temple by the indwelling of God the Holy Spirit.

(9) There is no period of time between the age of Israel and the eternal state that is without "sacred" buildings except the Church Age. This points to the tremendous importance of the Church Age, the crossroads of history, the dispensation of the royal family.

b. The eternal state is the next period in which there are no sacred buildings.

(1) Rev 21:3, "Behold, the Tabernacle of God [Jesus Christ] is with mankind, and He will tabernacle with them. They shall be His people; consequently, God Himself will be with them."

(a) The future active indicative of SKENOO, "will tabernacle" is a reference to the Shekinah Glory. The predictive future is a reference to the eternal state, and explains that there is no sacred building then, no tabernacle because Jesus Christ, the Shekinah Glory, tabernacles with them. This could also be construed as a gnomic future for a universal point of doctrine: there will be no sacred buildings in the eternal state because Jesus Christ is present.

(b) "His people," (plural) refers to different categories of believers from different dispensations who, as winners, are the permanent citizenry of a satellite city suspended above the earth, the New Jerusalem of the eternal state.

(c) Jesus Christ, as the Shekinah Glory, is the light of the New Jerusalem.

(2) Rev 21:10-11a, "Then He carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and He showed me the Holy City, Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, having the glory of God." The "glory of God" is the presence of Jesus Christ as the Shekinah Glory.

(3) Rev 21:22-24a, "And I saw no temple in it [eternal Jerusalem], for the Lord God, the Almighty One [deity of Christ], even the lamb [humanity of Christ], is its temple. Therefore, the city has no need for sun or moon to shine on it, for the glory of the Lord [Jesus Christ the Shekinah Glory] has illuminated it, and the lamb is its lamp. Then the nations will walk by its light . . ."

E. The Relationship between the Indwelling of Christ and the Indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

1. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit provides a temple for the indwelling of Christ as the Shekinah Glory.

a. 1 Cor 3:16, "Do you not know that you are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwells in you?" This is repeated in 1 Cor 6:19-20 with some amplifications.

b. 1 Cor 6:19-20, "Do you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit who is in you, whom you have from God, and that you are not your own? You have been bought with a price; therefore, glorify God in your body." You glorify God in your body by the knowledge of and then the execution of the protocol plan of God, the lifestyle of wisdom, and the unique life.

c. 2 Cor 6:16, "Or what agreement has the temple of God with idols? For we are the temple of the living God, just as God has said [Lev 26:12], 'I will indwell them and walk among them; furthermore, I will be their God and they will be My people.'"

(1) The "idols" here refers to the Corinthian temples. They were houses of prostitution, places where they worshipped the various gods and goddesses of sex. They were also the place for the best bars and best food, with a little religion thrown in on the side. As a result, Corinth was a party town. Since some of the believers were still going back there, Paul asks what is the rapport between those idol temples and the temple of your body.

(2) See the development of Paul's quotation of Lev 26:12 in this doctrine, point 4.

F. ???

1. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is the beginning of the unique life.
2. The combination of the indwelling of Christ and the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is the basis for the unique life. Rom 8:10, "For if Christ is in you [and He is]; on the one hand the body is dead because of the sin nature, but on the other hand the Spirit is [the unique] life because of [imputed divine] righteousness." (See the Doctrine of the Unique Life.)

3. Motivation from the indwelling of Jesus Christ is related to the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, 1 Jn 3:23-24. "Furthermore, this is His mandate: that we believe in the person of His Son, Jesus Christ, and that we love each other just as He [Jesus Christ] gave us mandate. And he [Church Age believer] who executes His mandates keeps residing in it [the divine dynasphere], and He [Jesus Christ] resides in him. Furthermore, by this [living in the divine dynasphere], we have come to know that He resides in us [cognition of indwelling of Jesus Christ] from the Holy Spirit [teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit in divine dynasphere] whom He [Jesus Christ] has given to us." (See the Doctrine of Procession.)

a. Christ keeps on residing in the believer who keeps on residing and functioning in the divine dynasphere. This is for the purpose of motivation for momentum.

b. The Holy Spirit is the teacher of the doctrine of the indwelling of Jesus Christ. This can only occur if we keep residing in the divine dynasphere and learning doctrine. By living in the divine dynasphere, and continuing to expose ourselves to the teaching of doctrine, we come to know that Christ resides in us.

c. Jesus Christ indwelling our bodies is our status quo since salvation, but Jesus Christ being glorified in our bodies is the ultimate experience of spiritual adulthood. The three stages of spiritual adulthood are related to three experiences associated with Christ in our bodies, which are distinct from Christ indwelling our bodies.

- (1) The experience of spiritual self-esteem is "Christ being formed in our bodies," Gal 4:19.
- (2) The experience of spiritual autonomy is "Christ being at home in our right lobes," Eph 3:17.
- (3) The experience of spiritual maturity is "Christ being glorified in our bodies," Phil 1:20.

d. These stages of experience are a result of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, who from His base of operations in our body functions as "the filling of the Spirit" inside the divine dynasphere.

e. The indwelling of Jesus Christ provides a new emphasis for the royal family of God, a new priority for the new spiritual species, the body of Christ.

f. Negative experience (from negative volition) with God results in wrong relationship with God. Wrong experience (from wrong priorities) with God results in wrong relationship with people. Right relationship with God results in right relationship with people.

g. The indwelling of Jesus Christ demands that every believer give #1 priority to his relationship with God before his relationship with people. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit provides the base of operations for establishing as our #1 priority the relationship with the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit who indwell us.

4. From the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, we learn about the indwelling of Jesus Christ as the Shekinah Glory, and this results in the transformation of our lives into the image of the Shekinah Glory, 2 Cor 3:14-18.

a. Verse 14, "But their minds were hardened [negative volition to Israel], for until this very day [AD 57 and now] at the reading of the Old Testament Scriptures, the same veil remains unlifted over their minds, because it can only be removed in [by] Christ."

- (1) The unbelieving Jews, because they had rejected Christ as Savior, suffered from scar tissue of the soul. Because the Jews rejected Christ as Savior, they had a veil over their minds about Christ as Messiah.
- (2) The veil is the scar tissue on the soul of the Jewish unbeliever. The Jews read about Christ in the Old Testament, but they did not understand and follow the pattern of Rom 9:30-33. Therefore, they sought to be justified by the Law, as per Gal 2:16.

(3) However, this veil, or hardness of the soul, is abolished or removed from the Jewish mind when he believes in Jesus Christ.

b. Verse 15, "But to this day [AD 57 and still now], when Moses is read, a veil lies over their right lobe."

(1) "A veil lies over their right lobe" means that scar tissue of the soul accumulated from rejection of Christ as Savior makes it impossible for them to understand even that which they customarily repeat: ADONAI ELOHENU, ADONAI ECHAD (Jesus Christ is our God; Jesus Christ is unique).

(2) In the dispensation of Israel, the Jews could not see Jesus Christ dwelling between the cherubs. There was a veil between the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies, and the entire Tabernacle was covered. But they could see Christ from the articles of sacred furniture taught by the priests, and from the theophanies, like the cloud over the Tabernacle.

(3) Today when a Jew believes in Christ, the veil is removed. Jesus Christ, the Shekinah Glory, now indwells his body. Now Christ can be seen, not literally, but by understanding, through the teaching ministry of the Spirit, the indwelling of Christ.

c. Verse 16, "But when anyone [specifically a Jew] turns to the Lord, the veil is taken away." Paul had to explain the blindness of the Judaizers, since the Corinthians had accepted their teaching and had become legalistic.

d. Verse 17 teaches the freedom to execute God's plan after conversion. "Now the Lord is the Spirit [deity of the Spirit], and where the Spirit of the Lord is [indwelling of the Holy Spirit in the body of the believer and in divine dynasphere], [there is] freedom."

(1) "The Lord is the Spirit" is a reference to the deity of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is called "Lord" in Isa 6:8-9 cf. Acts 28:25-27; Jer 31:31-34 cf. Heb 10:15-17.

(2) The Spirit indwells the body of every believer to provide a temple for the residing Shekinah Glory, Jesus Christ, and to provide a base of operations for His ministries of filling, controlling, walking, and teaching.

(3) Under the filling ministry, the Holy Spirit indwells the divine dynasphere as the enabling power for the execution of the protocol plan of God. When the believer resides in the divine dynasphere, he is said to be "filled with the Spirit." The "filling of the Spirit" also refers to the Spirit controlling your soul. As the believer functions at the various gates of the divine dynasphere, he is said to be "walking by means of the Spirit."

(4) There are two categories of freedom, establishment and spiritual. This passage refers to spiritual freedom which exists only inside the divine dynasphere, Jn 8:32. The filling of the Spirit provides the spiritual freedom necessary for the fulfillment of the protocol plan of God and the glorification of God.

e. Verse 18, "But we all, with an unveiled face [believer in divine dynasphere at gate #4], beholding as in a mirror [Word of God] the glory of the Lord [Jesus Christ as Shekinah Glory], are being transformed into the same image [reflected glory of indwelling Christ as Shekinah Glory] from glory [humanity of Jesus Christ in prototype divine dynasphere] to glory [believer in operational divine dynasphere], as it were, by the Spirit of the Lord [enabling power of Holy Spirit in divine dynasphere]."

(1) "We all with unveiled face."

(a) The unveiled face is:

(i) The Jewish believer, in contrast to the Jewish unbeliever, whose mind is veiled when he reads the Old Testament Scriptures. Just as the veiled face means ignorance of doctrine, so the unveiled face means cognition of doctrine. The unveiled face is the result of epistemological rehabilitation.

(ii) The believer filled with the Spirit, having residence, function, and momentum in the divine dynasphere, under the enabling power of the Spirit and momentum from metabolized doctrine, i.e., the capability of understanding mystery doctrine.

(b) The unveiled face means:

(i) To understand our status quo as royal family, the portfolio of invisible assets, the protocol plan of God, the lifestyle of wisdom, the unique life, and everything related to our equal privilege and equal opportunity.

(ii) Passing all three categories of suffering for blessing: providential preventative suffering, momentum testing, and evidence testing.

(2) "Beholding as in a mirror." The mirror is the Word of God. As we persist in learning doctrine inside the divine dynasphere, we not only see a reflection of ourselves, but we also learn the mystery doctrines of the Church Age, we see the Shekinah Glory, Jesus Christ.

(3) "The glory of the Lord."

(a) As a reference to the Shekinah Glory, this also refers to the indwelling of Christ without saying so.

(b) However the point here is not the indwelling of Jesus Christ, but seeing the glory of the Lord, from Bible doctrine, which results in occupation with Christ and personal love for the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

(c) In this context, the believer, through his persistence in living in the divine dynasphere and in learning doctrine, comes to a knowledge of the indwelling of Christ as the Shekinah Glory.

(d) The Jews profited from understanding that which they could not see. They could not see the Shekinah Glory dwelling between the cherubs in the Holy of Holies, but they knew He was there by the presence of the cloud over the Tabernacle/Temple. The analogy to this concept is found in Ex 40:34, "Then the cloud covered the Tabernacle, and the glory of the Lord filled the Tabernacle."

(i) In the Holy of Holies, Jesus Christ was present, but He was invisible to the people. This is analogous to the indwelling of Christ. He actually indwells your body, but He is invisible to you.

(ii) The visible manifestation that the Shekinah Glory was indwelling the Tabernacle was the cloud, a theophany, which covered the Tabernacle. The visible manifestation today that the Shekinah Glory indwells the believer is his attainment of spiritual adulthood through residence, function, and momentum inside the divine dynasphere.

(e) The indwelling of the Shekinah Glory makes it possible for the believer to be transformed into the same image, which is tantamount to spiritual adulthood.

(f) The indwelling of Jesus Christ as the Shekinah Glory today is just as invisible as He was in the Old Testament, but the cloud of His reflected glory is seen in the Church Age believer who advances through the stages of spiritual adulthood to spiritual maturity.

(g) Jesus Christ, as the Shekinah Glory, indwells every believer. His reflection becomes apparent through metabolized doctrine and resultant momentum in the believer.

(4) "Are being transformed."

(a) The pictorial present tense of METAMORPHOO presents a picture of the believer being transformed through residence, function, and momentum inside the divine dynasphere. We are never transformed through any personal self-improvement.

- (b) The passive voice means the believer is acted upon by metabolized doctrine, resulting in spiritual adulthood.
- (5) "Into the same image."
 - (a) This is quite a problem, because Jesus Christ is God. There's no way we can be God-like; that's impossible and blasphemous. But we can emulate our Lord Jesus Christ in His humanity.
 - (b) From the point of His virgin birth, Jesus Christ occupied the prototype divine dynasphere and rapidly advanced through the gates while in childhood. He reached spiritual maturity, gate number eight, and subsequently faced evidence testing from Satan before His public ministry began. Not at any time did His humanity ever leave the prototype divine dynasphere. He had respect for and obedience of authority. He was teachable and continued to grow in grace and favor with God and man. We can do likewise, thus being in the image of Christ.
 - (c) In the divine dynasphere we can emulate Christ, i.e., emulate the image of His humanity. We can advance through the divine dynasphere gates in exactly the same manner, for we have the exact same enabling power of the Spirit, and we have even greater mystery doctrine!
 - (d) So "the same image" means the same as Jesus Christ, the indwelling Shekinah Glory.
 - (e) The transformation "into the same image" refers to the three stages of spiritual adulthood which manifest the invisible indwelling Christ.
- (6) "From glory."
 - (a) This is a reference to Jn 1:14, where the Shekinah Glory, our Lord Jesus Christ, became flesh and tabernacled among us.
 - (b) Hence, this is a reference to the Shekinah Glory residing in the body of every believer and the human body of Christ residing in the prototype divine dynasphere.
 - (c) So "from glory" is Jesus Christ, the Shekinah Glory, becoming true humanity and residing in the prototype divine dynasphere during His entire Incarnation. Now He indwells the Church Age believer.
- (7) "To glory." The preposition EIS + the adverbial accusative of measure from DOXZA indicates how far the action of the main verb extends. The action of METAMORPHOO, or "being transformed," extends all the way to Church Age believers who, through residence, function, and momentum inside the divine dynasphere, attain spiritual adulthood. From the Shekinah Glory becoming true humanity and residing in the prototype divine dynasphere to the believer residing in the operational divine dynasphere attaining spiritual adulthood and glorifying the Lord.

(8) "As it were, by the Spirit of the Lord."

(a) This refers to two functions of the enabling power of the Holy Spirit inside the divine dynasphere:

(b) The ministry of spirituality and/or the filling of the Spirit. Generally the phrase, "filling of the Spirit," from Eph 5:18, refers to your body. For when the Holy Spirit, who indwells your body, has control of your soul you are said to be filled with the Spirit. That is the status quo of being inside the divine dynasphere. Functioning at the various gates is "walking by means of the Spirit."

(c) The teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit.

G. The indwelling of Christ relates to the baptism of the Spirit and positional truth, Gal 2:20. "I have been crucified with Christ [retroactive positional truth], and I no longer live but Christ lives in me [indwelling of Jesus Christ]. And the life which I now live in the body [current positional truth], I live by means of doctrine with reference to the Son of God who loved me and delivered Himself up on my behalf."

1. Retroactive Positional Truth related to the Indwelling of Jesus Christ.

a. Retroactive positional truth is a part of the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

b. At the point of salvation, the Holy Spirit put us in union with Christ. That is current positional truth, meaning we are currently identified with Christ, and we share everything He has: heirship, sonship, righteousness, eternal life, election, destiny. Also, by being in union with Christ, we are royal family.

c. In addition to current positional truth, which is identification with Christ in His resurrection, ascension, and session (His current status), we are also identified with Christ in His death and burial. This is retroactive positional truth, accomplished through the same mechanics of the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

d. While retroactive positional truth is identification with Christ in His physical death and burial, there is also great emphasis on identification with Christ in His spiritual death on the cross.

e. While God the Father imputed all the sins in human history to Jesus Christ on the cross and judged every one of them, two things were rejected and not judged on the cross: human good and evil. The basis for salvation is the imputation of all sins in human history to Christ on the cross followed, by their judgment by God the Father, 1Peter 2:24; 2 Cor 5:21. Human good and evil were not imputed to Christ on the cross and were not judged.

- f. The gist of retroactive positional truth is that since we were identified with Christ in His spiritual death, when He rejected human good and evil, positionally we have also rejected human good and evil.
- g. As a result, human good and evil remain an issue in our lives as believers. Thus by application of the doctrine of retroactive positional truth we must also reject human good and evil in our experience.
- h. Human good and evil are combined to form the policy of Satan as the ruler of this world and the function of the old sin nature as the sovereign ruler of human life in the body.
- i. Jesus Christ rejected human good and evil on the cross. Human good and evil were rejected for judgment by the justice of God since they were not necessary for our salvation. They were separated from the judgment of our sins.
- j. Both human good and evil have a dual function in life.
 - (1) As the policy of Satan, the ruler of this world.
 - (2) As the function of the old sin nature residing in the cell structure of the body of every person.
- k. Through retroactive positional truth, the Church Age believer is separated from human good and evil positionally through the baptism of the Holy Spirit, so that positionally the rulership of Satan and the control of the old sin nature are broken. But positional truth is not an experience.
- l. Consequently, retroactive positional truth combines with current positional truth to destroy and abrogate the sovereignty of the old sin nature in the body where our Lord Jesus Christ now indwells.
- m. Furthermore, the baptism of the Holy Spirit at salvation and resultant retroactive positional truth nullifies the power of Satan as well as the old sin nature. But we must know and apply these doctrines before they become a part of our experience.
- n. Rom 6:1-8, "Therefore, what are we to conclude? Are we to continue in the sovereignty of the sin nature that grace may increase in our lives? Emphatically not! We who have died to the sin nature [retroactive positional truth], how shall we still live in it? Or do you not know that all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus [baptism of the Spirit] have been baptized into His death [retroactive positional truth]? Therefore, we have been buried together with Him through baptism into death [retroactive positional truth] in order that as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, so we too might walk in newness of life [executing protocol plan of God]. For if we have become intimately united in the likeness of His death [and we have through retroactive positional truth], and not only this [retroactive positional truth], but we also shall be intimately united with Him in the likeness of His resurrection [current positional truth]. Therefore, be knowing this: that our old self [unbeliever in Adam] has been crucified together with Him [retroactive positional truth], in order that the human body with reference to its sin nature may be rendered powerless, that we should no longer be the slaves to the sin nature. For he who has died [retroactive positional truth] has been acquitted [positional deliverance of retroactive positional truth] from the power of the sin nature. Now if we died with Christ [and we have through retroactive positional truth], we also believe that we shall live in association with Him [current positional truth]."

- o. Col 2:12, "Having been buried with Him [retroactive positional truth] by means of baptism [baptism of the Spirit], the same baptism by which you have been raised with Him [current positional truth] through faith in the working of God who raised Him [Jesus Christ] from the dead."
 - p. Col 3:1-4, "Therefore, if you have been raised with Christ [and you have in current positional truth], keep seeking things above [Bible doctrine] where Christ is, sitting on the right hand of God. Keep thinking about things above, not things on the earth [Satan's policy of good and evil], for you have died [retroactive positional truth], and your life has been hidden with Christ by God. When Christ, who is our life, is revealed, at that time [Second Advent], you also will be revealed with Him in glory."
 - q. Retroactive positional truth was very important for Paul to teach the Galatians at this time. The Celtic Galatians had bought the lie of legalism from the Judaizers, who taught that faith alone couldn't save; that salvation is by faith plus keeping the Mosaic Law. In Galatians 2, Paul recalls the time he chewed out Peter for being a hypocrite. At one point Paul said to Peter, "where is your application of retroactive positional truth!" i.e., "I have been crucified with Christ" (verse 20).
 - r. This means that positionally the believer must reject all human good and all evil. This means separation from the power and authority of the old sin nature. After all, what stimulates the old sin nature more than legalism?
 - s. In this context, retroactive positional truth means that Paul is dead to the Mosaic Law. So are all these Galatian believers. "Christ fulfilled the law," Matt 5:17. "Christ is the end of the law for those who believe," Rom 10:4.
2. Paul has a new life because of retroactive positional truth, "and I no longer live [as a Pharisee]."
 3. Paul emphasizes the doctrine of the indwelling of Christ and relates it to retroactive positional truth, "but Christ keeps on living in me."
 - a. Not only is every Church Age believer separated positionally from the old sin nature (retroactive positional truth applied), but he is indwelt by the Son of God, our Lord Jesus Christ. This is a reminder of the doctrine of the unique life, that all three members of the Godhead indwell our body.

- b. Here is motivation from the indwelling of Jesus Christ to apply both retroactive positional truth and current positional truth to the Christian life in the fulfillment of the protocol plan of God. The indwelling of Jesus Christ as the Shekinah Glory is not only a guarantee of our fantastic blessings and our portfolio of invisible assets, but is also motivation for the fulfillment of the protocol plan of God.
4. "And [the life] which I now live in the flesh [body], I live by means of doctrine with reference to the Son of God."
- a. Paul, motivated by the indwelling Christ, and through application of retroactive positional truth and current positional truth, is living by doctrine. This last phrase means, "with reference to His indwelling, I am motivated to learn Bible doctrine."
 - b. This phrase means that fellowship with the indwelling Christ comes through Bible doctrine, the mind of Christ (1 Cor 2:16).
 - c. The protocol plan of God demands that our relationship with the indwelling Christ take priority over our relationship with mankind. The indwelling of Jesus Christ demands God emphasis over people emphasis. As long as you emphasize relationship with people over relationship with God, you cannot attain spiritual self-esteem, and you will probably never realize the implications of the indwelling of Jesus Christ. Instead, your life will be characterized by self-induced misery.
 - d. Occupation with Christ and personal love for God must precede impersonal love for all mankind at gate #6 of the divine dynasphere.
 - e. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is a warning sign to every believer that personal love for God must always have #1 priority over any human relationships or any interaction with those in your periphery.
- H. Conclusion: The Doctrinal Test regarding the Indwelling of Christ.
- 1. Self-examination must always be done with the greatest possible objectivity, without any prejudice.
 - a. This can only be accomplished in a satisfactory manner through the perception of Bible doctrine and its metabolization in your right lobe.
 - b. Once you have doctrine in your right lobe, then you can look at yourself through the mirror of the Word of God, and evaluate yourself on the basis of that doctrine.
 - 2. 2 Cor 13:5, "Be testing yourselves to see [determine] if you are in the doctrine; keep examining yourselves, or do you not know [this] about yourselves, that Jesus Christ is in you, unless, of course, you flunk the test?"
 - a. "Be testing yourselves." You cannot do this in a state of ignorance about Bible doctrine. How you feel emotionally, what you think intellectually, your state of health, or any other human factor is not the criterion for evaluating yourself. The only measure you are to use is the Word of God and what it says about your life. We are responsible to God to test ourselves.

- b. "To see [determine] if you are in the doctrine."
- (1) Bible doctrine must have #1 priority in the life to fulfill the will of God, to execute the protocol plan of God, and to fulfill the principle of relationship with God taking priority over relationship with people.
 - (2) Therefore, the believer must be constantly alert to make sure that his scale of values emphasizes the importance of Bible doctrine first in his life. There are constant distractions in your life designed to de-emphasize Bible doctrine, and to frustrate the will of God under the three categories of His plan, i.e., the protocol plan of God, the lifestyle of wisdom, and the unique life.
 - (3) It is essential that your priorities are straight. This requires epistemological rehabilitation, which demands the daily perception of doctrine, especially the mystery doctrine of the Church Age, without which we cannot fulfill God's plan for our lives, and without which our relationships with others will inevitably sour, and our relationship with ourself will be frustrating.
 - (4) Through perception, metabolization, and application of Bible doctrine under operation Z, the believer begins to understand the mechanics of the protocol plan of God, he begins to use the assets in his portfolio of invisible assets, and through residence, function, and momentum in the divine dynasphere, he fulfills this doctrine of the indwelling of Jesus Christ.
- c. "Keep examining yourselves."
- (1) This self-examination is impossible unless the believer obeys the first command in context: "be testing yourselves to see if you are in the doctrine."
 - (2) Objective self-examination under the privacy of your own priesthood is only possible with cognition of Bible doctrine. Under the privacy of your own priesthood, you must examine yourself in every area of your life.
 - (a) You examine yourself regarding sin. This is the only way you can rebound. You must be aware of sin in your life before you can confess it.
 - (b) You examine yourself for fear, worry, and anxiety, and you use the faith-rest drill in spiritual childhood to overcome these.
 - (c) You examine yourself for proper objectives in life. The solution is hope 2 and hope 3.

- (d) You examine yourself with regard to your personal love for God. Until you love God, you're not in spiritual self-esteem, and any other system of self-esteem is only arrogance.
 - (e) You examine yourself with regard to human interaction. The solution is gate #6, spiritual autonomy. Impersonal love toward all mankind is the basis for capacity for personal love toward a few. At gate #6, your relationship with people peaks out.
 - (f) You examine yourself with regard to your relationship with God, which peaks out at gate #8, spiritual maturity.
 - (g) You examine yourself with regard to your status quo. The solution is cognizance of the three stages of spiritual adulthood.
 - (h) You examine yourself regarding your suffering status, when and why. Is it self-induced, punitive, or suffering for blessing?
- (3) You can't really answer these questions about yourself unless you first have the doctrine. Everything depends on combining your status quo as a royal priest with cognizance of Bible doctrine.
- d. "Or do you not know [this] about yourselves."
- (1) Only metabolized doctrine can be utilized in self-examination. You are commanded and mandated to examine yourself! This should not be put off until you feel like it, or until you get in a jam and are forced to examine your life. God's mandate is for objective self-examination.
 - (2) You cannot fulfill this mandate unless you personally have an understanding of the pertinent doctrine, which here is the doctrine of the indwelling of Jesus Christ.
 - (3) Part of spiritual self-esteem is self-knowledge in relationship to the divine provision for your life.
 - (4) Until we reach the point of occupation with Christ and personal love for each member of the Trinity who indwells us, spiritual self-esteem is impossible. With personal love for God, we can know ourselves under spiritual self-esteem, and then we find the new motivation that comes in spiritual adulthood: motivation from knowing that Christ indwells our body.
- e. "That Jesus Christ is in you?"
- (1) The rhetorical question dealing with the indwelling of Jesus Christ is designed to test your spiritual self-esteem, and to motivate continued advance through the various stages of spiritual adulthood.

(2) Spiritual self-esteem cannot be parlayed into spiritual autonomy until the believer passes providential preventative suffering, 2 Cor 12:7-10.

(3) Cognition of the indwelling of Jesus Christ not only motivates the believer to continue his spiritual momentum, but it also motivates his application of doctrine, which will frustrate the impending danger of spiritual self-esteem being neutralized by arrogance. For spiritual self-esteem can very easily be parlayed into arrogance, preoccupation with self, and loss of spiritual adulthood unless the believer understands this doctrine.

(4) So it becomes apparent that understanding the doctrine of the indwelling of Jesus Christ and applying it to the Christian life becomes a necessity in status quo spiritual self-esteem.

(5) Two doctrines are important to understand in spiritual self-esteem: the doctrine of providential preventative suffering which provides momentum in spiritual self-esteem, and the doctrine of the indwelling of Jesus Christ which motivates the believer in spiritual self-esteem.

(6) Like the Shekinah Glory dwelling between the cherubs in the Holy of Holies in the Tabernacle of Israel, the indwelling of Jesus Christ is just as invisible but just as real. Like the theophany of the cloud that covered the Tabernacle, the glory of the indwelling Christ became visible to Israel. Generally, the Jews would look at the cloud over the Tabernacle when they were suffering. If it was undeserved suffering for blessing, they profited from seeing that glory. Those who did not profit from it were destroyed by the sin unto death.

(7) The glory of the indwelling of Jesus Christ is seen in two ways.

(a) The attainment of spiritual maturity and the distribution of our escrow blessings.

(b) The passing of evidence testing as a witness for the Prosecution in the appeal trial of Satan and the fallen angels.

f. "Unless, of course, you flunk the test?"

(1) There are two ways of flunking the test.

(a) Ignorance of the doctrine of indwelling of Jesus Christ.

(b) Failure to apply the doctrine of indwelling of Jesus Christ.

g. Actually, there are three tests in this verse.

(1) Self-testing for positive volition toward Bible doctrine as the #1 priority in your life.

(2) Persistence in the perception and metabolization of doctrine, resulting in accurate and objective self-examination under the privacy of your own priesthood.

(3) Cognition in the application of a specific doctrine, the indwelling of Jesus Christ, for two purposes.

(a) To motivate in spiritual adulthood.

(b) To frustrate and neutralize arrogance in your life.

(4) When the believer flunks the test in self-examination, he applies the doctrine of the indwelling of Jesus Christ to avoid discouragement, despondency, or further distraction. When the believer flunks the test, he is then in a very precarious situation, even though Christ continues to indwell his body during failure. However, the believer can begin by applying this doctrine and keep plugging in the spiritual life.

3. One of the ways by which you examine yourself.

a. Experience with people is not the major issue in the Church Age (although it is emphasized today by those who do not know doctrine) because of the unique nature of the Church Age. As a member of the royal family of God, the indwelling of the Shekinah Glory, as well as the indwelling of God the Father and God the Holy Spirit in you is the major issue!

b. It is not, therefore, the quality of our experience in relationship with mankind that takes first place, but the quality of our relationship with God. It is impossible to have a high quality relationship with God unless you have doctrine resident in your soul.

c. The major emphasis of spiritual adulthood begins at gate #5 with spiritual self-esteem. Spiritual self-esteem demands that relationship with God take priority over relationship with people. It should be evident that spiritual self-esteem is personal love for God; therefore, it demands that God emphasis precede people emphasis.

d. In other words, gate #5, personal love for God takes precedence over gate #6, impersonal love for all mankind.

e. Spiritual self-esteem is characterized by personal love for God. spiritual autonomy adds to this impersonal love for all mankind.

f. The indwelling of Jesus Christ demands God emphasis over people emphasis, for Christ indwelling our bodies is much closer to us than people, no matter what the relationship with them may be.

g. As long as you emphasize relationship and fellowship with people over relationship and fellowship with God, you cannot and never will attain spiritual adulthood. Your life will be characterized by self-induced misery under the law of volitional responsibility plus the three stages of divine discipline.

h. Wrong experience with God results in wrong experience with people. Right experience with God results in right experience with people.

I. The Implications of the Indwelling of Christ.

1. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is a sign of royalty.
 - a. While the baptism of the Spirit is the means of forming the royal family of God, the indwelling of Christ is both the sign of the royal family and another expression of the uniqueness of the Church Age.
 - b. Therefore, your background is of no consequence in the Church Age, because you are indwelt by Jesus Christ. You have equal privilege and opportunity with all other believers.
2. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is a guarantee of our portfolio of invisible assets. Along with the sealing ministry of the Holy Spirit in Eph 1:13-14, the indwelling of Christ is a guarantee of our portfolio of invisible assets prepared for us by the Father in eternity past.
3. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is a guarantee of eternal security.
 - a. You cannot lose your salvation, no matter how you foul up your life, no matter how you fail!
 - b. You can't see Christ indwelling your body until you die. Then your soul and spirit leave your body, "absent from the body and face to face with the Lord," (2 Cor 5:8). Jesus Christ leaves your body along with your soul and spirit and escorts you to heaven.
 - c. This fulfills the principle of Psalm 23:4, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will no fear no harm because You are with me."
4. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is a guarantee of your escrow blessings.
 - a. Since Jesus Christ is both the depository of our escrow blessings and the escrow officer who distributes them to us when we fulfill the conditions of the escrow, the indwelling of Christ is a guarantee that, billions of years ago, God the Father created and placed on deposit in Christ fantastic escrow blessings for you.
 - b. The fulfillment of the escrow conditions is the execution of the protocol plan of God. The indwelling of Christ is not a guarantee that we will receive our escrow blessings, only that they exist. We will never receive our escrow blessings until we advance to spiritual maturity.
5. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is the motivation for momentum in spiritual adulthood.
 - a. At gate #5, spiritual self-esteem, you have personal love for God the Father, Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit. Knowing Jesus Christ indwells you becomes the motivation you need to advance to gate #6, spiritual autonomy, and to gate #8, maturity.
 - b. Each one of these stages is accompanied by the divine administration of undeserved suffering. Spiritual self-esteem must pass providential preventative suffering to advance to spiritual autonomy; spiritual autonomy must pass momentum testing (gate #7) to reach spiritual maturity; spiritual maturity must pass evidence testing to glorify God to the maximum.

- c. Therefore, there must be some motivation, in addition to metabolized doctrine, to go through undeserved suffering. The specific motivation is the application of the indwelling of Christ. This becomes the motivational virtue for the advance through each stage of spiritual adulthood. There must be a strong personal love for God that continues to get stronger. It is occupation with the person of Christ that becomes the important motivating factor beginning at spiritual self-esteem, Heb 12:3.
6. The indwelling of Jesus Christ emphasizes our relationship with God rather than people.
 - a. The unique factor of every member of the Godhead indwelling your body provides a different emphasis and a new priority for the new spiritual species, the body of Christ.
 - b. As long as you emphasize experience with people over experience with God, your experience in life will be characterized by self-induced misery from the law of volitional responsibility, plus a tremendous amount of punitive suffering from the three categories of divine discipline (warning, intensive, and dying).
 - c. Believers today are constantly seeking counsel about human relationships. In most cases, the problems exist because of wrong priorities: people emphasis over God emphasis.
 - d. Right experience with God (life in the divine dynasphere) results in right relationship with people. Negative experience with God results in wrong experience with people.
 - e. Because of the indwelling of Jesus Christ, the Church Age believer cannot put relationship with people before relationship with God. Your priorities are established by those who are closest to you: God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, who indwell you! Therefore, your priority must be God emphasis before people emphasis. The key to right priorities is the indwelling of Christ.
 - f. The protocol plan of God demands that you give #1 priority to your relationship with God as the only way to have a successful relationship with your fellow man. In other words, virtue in the protocol plan of God places relationship with God ahead of relationship with people or with self. If you put relationship with people ahead of relationship with God, you're insecure, subjective, and will have a miserable life.
 - g. Gate #5, or spiritual self-esteem, is characterized by personal love for the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, who all indwell you. But they are all invisible to you. Therefore, the persons of the Godhead can only become the objects of your personal love through a consistent intake of pertinent Bible doctrine.

h. Gate #6, or spiritual autonomy, characterized by the functional virtue of impersonal love for all mankind, provides capacity for love in romance, friendship, marriage, social life, etc. But always remember that gate #6 rides on a tandem behind gate #5. Relationship and experience with God must precede relationship and experience with mankind.

i. Epistemological rehabilitation is a never-ending function during the believer's sojourn on earth. Epistemological rehabilitation demands cognition of virtue love as a problem solving device, which must be related to the doctrine of the indwelling of Christ.

j. The challenge of the communion service is priority. The person whom we worship in the communion service indwells your body. The challenge is always who and what is Christ. 1 Cor 11:24-25 commands us to "keep on doing this in memory of Me." You cannot remember someone you do not even know. The communion service is designed to bring to memory the doctrine you know concerning the person and work of Jesus Christ, who now indwells you.

k. 2Peter 3:18, "Grow in grace and the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; to Him be glory, both now and to the day of eternity."

l. Heb 12:3, "Consider Him [Jesus Christ], who has endured such hostility by sinners against Himself, so that you do not grow weary and become discouraged."

(1) The humanity of Christ, in His prototype divine dynasphere gave #1 priority to His relationship with God the Father, as illustrated by His prayer at Gethsemane, "Nevertheless not My will but Thy will be done." There's our pattern. No one ever faced so much hostility from people as did our Lord during the First Advent. But it never deterred Him from His mission in going to the cross and being judged for your sins, because His priorities were always straight.

(2) The weariness described by this verse is that which comes from putting people first in your life. This is weariness from being disappointed and let down by people. This is often your fault, because you assign to others your standards. You put people first and then when they disappoint you, you get discouraged and disillusioned. Weariness, discouragement, disillusionment are exactly what the believer demands by putting relationship with people before relationship with God.

J. Summary and Highlights.

1. Categorically, there are three ways to classify God's plan for your life.

a. The protocol plan of God emphasizes the modus operandi of the royal family of God in relationship to the divine dynasphere.

- b. The lifestyle of wisdom emphasizes the believer's epistemological rehabilitation through the metabolization of doctrine.
 - c. The unique life emphasizes the fact that every person of the Trinity indwells your body, even though they are all omnipresent, imminent, and transcendent, but still locally indwelling your body.
2. The Significance of the Indwelling of God the Father.
 - a. It is related to the glorification of His plan for the Church Age, Eph 1
 - b. b. It provides assurance regarding His work in eternity past on our behalf. He is the author of our portfolio of invisible assets, the grantor of our escrow blessings, the mastermind of the protocol plan of God, and the designer of our very own palace (the divine dynasphere) by which we execute that protocol plan of God.
 3. The Significance of the Indwelling of Christ.
 - a. A sign or badge of the royal family.
 - b. A guarantee of our portfolio of invisible assets portfolio of invisible assets.
 - c. A guarantee of life after death in the presence of God.
 - d. As the depositary and escrow officer, the guarantee of our escrow blessings.
 - e. Motivation for momentum in spiritual adulthood.
 - f. The basis for assigning #1 priority to relationship with God over relationship with mankind.
 4. The Significance of the Indwelling of God the Holy Spirit.
 - a. To construct a temple in our bodies for the indwelling of Jesus Christ.
 - b. To provide a base of operations for both the execution of the protocol plan of God and the glorification of Christ in our bodies.
 5. There are three major distinctions in the mystery doctrine for the Church.
 - a. The difference between the indwelling of Christ in our bodies and the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in our bodies.
 - b. The distinction between the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in our bodies and the filling of the Spirit. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is status quo from salvation; therefore never experienced. The filling of the Spirit is a Christian experience both in our souls and in the divine dynasphere, but not in our emotions.
 - c. The distinction between the indwelling of Jesus Christ in our bodies and the glorification of Christ in our bodies. The indwelling of Jesus Christ in our body is status quo; therefore not experienced. The glorification of Christ in our bodies is the ultimate experience of the Christian life, the experience of spiritual maturity.
 6. Each stage of spiritual adulthood is related to an experience related to Christ. These experiences are not the same as the indwelling of Jesus Christ.
 - a. The experience of spiritual self-esteem is Christ being formed in our bodies of Gal 4:19.

- b. The experience of spiritual autonomy is Christ being at home in our right lobes, as in Eph 3:17.
 - c. The experience of spiritual maturity is Christ being glorified in our bodies, as in Phil 1:20.
 - d. The indwelling of Jesus Christ in our bodies is non-experiential. The glorification of Christ in our bodies is the experience of maturity.
7. The indwelling of Christ provides a new emphasis, a new motivation, a new priority for the new spiritual species, called the Church, or the body of Christ. The new priority is:
- a. God emphasis must precede people emphasis.
 - b. The indwelling of Christ demands that every believer give #1 priority to his relationship with God, gate #5 of the divine dynasphere.
 - c. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit provides a base of operations for giving #1 priority to God emphasis over people emphasis.
 - d. Wrong experience with God results in wrong relationship with yourself.
 - e. Wrong experience with God results in wrong relationship with people.
 - f. Wrong experience with God results in wrong relationship with God.
 - g. Right relationship with God results in right relationship with both self and people.
 - h. Relationship with self peaks out at spiritual self-esteem.
 - i. Relationship with people peaks out at spiritual autonomy.
 - j. Relationship with God peaks out at spiritual maturity.
- K. The indwelling of Christ is not the same as having occupation with Christ as a problem solving device on the FLOT line of the soul.
- 1. Occupation with Christ is the experience of having the tenth problem solving device deployed on the FLOT line of the soul. It is tantamount to Christ being formed in your soul, Gal 4:19; or Christ being at home in your hearts, Eph 3:17. This is the experience of the mature believer who has executed the protocol plan of God.
 - 2. The indwelling of Christ is related to the body and is not an experience. Indwelling is a position. Occupation with Christ is an experience.
 - 3. Just as Jesus Christ indwelling the body of every believer, so God the Holy Spirit indwells every believer.
 - a. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is positional.
 - b. The filling of the Holy Spirit is experiential.
 - c. The indwelling of Jesus Christ is positional.
 - d. Occupation with Christ is experiential.
 - 4. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is related to the believer's body, 1 Cor 3:16, 6:19-20; 2 Cor 6:16. The filling of the Holy Spirit is related to the believer's soul, Ephesians 5:18. The filling of the Holy Spirit is experiential, while the indwelling of the Holy Spirit is permanent. Therefore, all believers are indwelt with the Holy Spirit. Only believers using the spiritual skills are filled with the Spirit.

- a. The filling of the Holy Spirit is mandated by God. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit is stated by Scripture to be a permanent status quo in time.
- b. The purpose of the indwelling of the Spirit is to provide a temple for the indwelling of Christ as the Shekinah glory.
- c. The purpose of the filling of the Spirit is:
 - (1) To provide the first power option of the spiritual life.
 - (2) To provide the first spiritual skill in the spiritual life.
 - (3) To provide the second problem solving device on the FLOT line of the soul.
- d. Summary.
 - (1) The indwelling of the Spirit is permanent whether the believer is spiritual or carnal. Therefore, the indwelling is non-experiential.
